Dief Set To Deliver Convocation Address

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker is one of four men to receive honorary degrees at UNB's fall convocation, scheduled for the Lady Beaverbrook Rink Thursday, Oct. 9.

Other Degrees

Other honorary degrees will go to Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell, a native of P.E.I. who has served as minister of the 5th Ave. Presbyterian Church, N.Y.C., since 1935; J. D. B. Harrison, director of the forestry branch of the department of northern affairs and national resources, and L. Z. Rousseau, dean of forestry at Laval University, Quebec City.

Mr. Harrison and Dr. Rousseau have both contributed much to scientific forestry, and their honors come as part of the 50th anniversary of the birth of UNB's own forestry faculty. The celebration is to coincide with the university's annual home-coming program Oct. 9-11 and the annual conference of the Canadian Institute of Forestry in Fredericton Oct. 5-9.

Campus Briefs

TOMORROW DEADLINE: Tomorrow is the last day for applications for the C. C. Jones ($250) and W. C. Keirstead ($100) Scholarships. The awards are made by the Associated Alumni, with terms on Page 40 of the calendar.

PRE-MED CLUB: UNB's Pre-Med Club will hold its first meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Memorial Students' Centre.

YEARBOOKS: Distribution of yearbooks continues in the SRC Office Tuesday (10 a.m. to noon), Thursday (10 a.m. to 1 p.m.) and Friday (11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.).

SHARES AWARD

William Edward Russell of St. Stephen, who graduated from UNB in May, is joint winner of a $500 entrance scholarship to the school of dentistry at Dalhousie University, Halifax. He shares the award, the Burnham L. Mitchell Scholarship, with Ian Furlong Paul of Glace Bay, a graduate of Acadia University, Wolfville.

SRC To Meet Tomorrow Night

President, Ron Manzer, has called the first Students' Representative Council meeting of the year for tomorrow evening in the Oak Room of the Memorial Students' Centre. The meeting starts at 7:30 o'clock.

The SRC is the students' elected government and the ultimate control over all other campus organizations. It finances students' non-athletic activities through a levy collected at registration time. This year's undergraduate tax was $17 a head.

Mr. Manzer also announced that students who registered late can procure their SRC cards this week. In addition, married students can have their cards stamped to obtain privileges for their wives. The SRC office in the students' centre will be open for these purposes from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. each day through Friday.

UNB FEES INCREASE WITHOUT WARNING

From BRIGID TOOLE and JIM O'SULLIVAN

Most UNB students last week found their university fees raised without prior notice. Affecting six of eight degree courses given on the Fredericton campus, the unannounced hikes ranged between $10 and $25.

Enrolment Nearing 1,500

UNB's total enrolment this year may hit 1,500, Miss Edith G. McLeod, registrar, told The Brunswickan.

By last Friday, enrolment, including law and postgraduate students, was already a record 1,450. Miss McLeod forecast at that time that about 50 or so students had yet to register.

However, Mrs. Mona MacMillan, accommodations director, said she knew of no student still without a place to live.

Filled to capacity, UNB's four residences are handling 388 students. Of these, 102 are co-eds.

Mrs. MacMillan said she had helped about 600 students secure lodging. Many other students from out-of-town found places on their own.

This year's freshman class, unofficially estimated at 530, got its first taste of campus life Saturday, Sept. 20, when UNB's president, Dr. Colin B. Mackay, delivered an address of welcome.

Part of the freshmen's orientation program was writing of college ability tests. Prof. Florence T. Snodgrass, head of the psychology department, reports that 394 new students were tested. She says students who have not yet written the tests can do so sometime in October.

Measure Skills

These tests measure skills closely related to academic success, and are used to help counsel students.

Most students registered Tuesday and Wednesday last week. Lectures began Thursday.

For the great majority of students, the first knowledge of the increases came when they went to the bursar's tables during registration sessions at the Lady Beaverbrook Rink.

Here is a breakdown of the actual charges, the fees announced in the 1958-1959 edition of the UNB calendar, and the unannounced increase, if any:

Course	Actual Fee	Calendar Fee	Difference
Forestry	$395	$370	$25
Engineering	430	410	20
Arts	335	315	20
Business Administration	335	315	20
Education	285	272	13
Science	360	350	10
Physical Education	315	315	None
Teaching	285	285	None

Even without the extra charges, fees were the highest on record, running on the average five dollars higher than in the 1957-1958 calendar.

Beset by current fees of $430, senior engineering students like to look back on the days when they were freshmen. Then (1954-1955, if they passed every year), their fees amounted to only $265.

On the other hand, senior arts and business administration students paid but $240 in their first year (1955-1956), while senior scientists had to shell out only $250 when they were freshmen.

Are Included

University fees cover registration, tuition, laboratories, libraries, athletics and accident insurance.

This year's fees are a far cry from the earliest found during a search of UNB records. Way back in 1962, when arts was truly the only faculty, students had to pay just $24 a year.

While fees have obviously risen greatly during the last 96 years, the increase does not represent the hardship it seems at first glance.

For one thing, inflation has so cut purchasing power that today's dollar is worth only a small fraction of its 1862 counterpart.

Moreover, the average family today has a far higher real income than in the past, so that it can better afford to send its children to college.

One thing is certain: the increased fees have not discouraged people from going to university, as this year's record enrolment at UNB so clearly shows.

Staff Meeting Slated Tonight

The Brunswickan seeks new staff members at a meeting scheduled for 7:30 o'clock tonight in the all-purpose room of the Memorial Students' Centre. During the session, department heads will interview those interested in working on the paper.

Jobs available include news, sports and feature writing, editing, layout, cartooning, and proofreading. Also open are positions in the business department.

Guest speaker is Prof. Fred Cogswell of the English department. He will lecture on the fundamentals of newspaper writing.

The Brunswickan's editor-in-chief Jim O'Sullivan, invites all those seriously considering work on the paper to attend tonight's meeting.

Fredericton Lacks Variety

From Peter Kent

The new student at UNB will find off-campus entertainment in Fredericton lacking in variety. Admittedly, there is often enough for the student to do, but he has little choice of where to do it.

There is a noticeable lack of "dining and dancing" in the city. One may eat and one may dance, but never the twain shall meet.

The most popular eateries for college students fall into four categories.

First, there are the restaurants where the students go for light snacks after the show. The most popular of these restaurants are the Paradise on Queen St., the Imperial Restaurant on Carleton St., and the Sun Grill on Regent St.

Secondly, for a lunch counter with longer hours, many students frequent the Club 252 on the corner of Regent and Charlotte Sts., which remains open until 3:00 a.m.

Thirdly, there is the Flame

Restaurant, 7 miles from the centre of the city on the Saint John highway. This is the closest one can get to dining and dancing in Fredericton, although the dancing must be done to recorded music. The Flame, open until 3:00 a.m., provides rustic atmosphere for a meal after a big dance.

For a different type of atmosphere, there is the Kent Inn on Waterloo Row. During the winter students rent the Kent Inn for private parties.

Regular dances in the city are held at the IOOF Hall situated at the corner of Brunswick and Carleton Streets, on Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Dances are also held at Teachers' College, Castle Hall and Fredericton High School.

The consumption of liquor in Fredericton, as in the rest of the province, is governed by the Intoxicating Liquor Act. According to this law, the distribution of liquor is controlled by the provincial government, which operates three outlets in Fredericton. One liquor store is situated on Queen St. opposite the Lord Beaverbrook Hotel. There is another on the corner of Queen and Westmorland Sts., and adjacent to it is a beer store. The store hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on weekdays, and from 9:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Saturdays. No permit is required to purchase liquor in the stores.

Liquor may not be sold to anyone under 21.

There is one radio station, CFNB, which broadcasts from Fredericton. It is affiliated with the CBC Trans-Canada Network. You can pick up CHSJ-TV from Saint John, Channel 4.

There are two motion picture houses in the capital city. The Gaiety Theatre is located on Queen St. and generally runs fairly current movies of a better quality. The Capitol, at the corner of King and Carleton Sts., usually runs western and horror films, often on double bills. Both theatres run one matinee and two evening shows. There are no movies on Sundays.

Arts Centre Lends Prints To Students

Miss Lucy Jarvis, Director of Art at UNB has announced that students will be able to borrow framed prints to hang in their rooms. The prints include examples from many schools of painting, both classical and modern and will be on loan for periods of approximately two months.

The University Art Centre, where the prints may be obtained, is located up the hill behind Aitken House. It contains a large comfortably furnished room where fine art books, a hi-fi machine and a large collection of records may be enjoyed at leisure. There is also a small stage with a piano, and opportunities for playing chess.

Miss Jarvis recently announced that the hours during which the Art Centre will be open are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for the current academic year.

The Art Centre is also occasionally open on week-end evenings for special programmes of exhibitions, concerts, drama, poetry reading and other events.

The University Art Centre was started in 1941 through the efforts of Miss Jarvis, the late Pegi Nicole MacLeod and Mrs. N. A. M. MacKenzie, wife of a former president of UNB who is now President of UBC. Appropriately, it was first situated in the historical observation building and until recently, was known as the Observation Art Centre. "Its operation has never been by pre-conceived plan, it has developed in response to the needs of the students and Faculty", Miss Jarvis said. A great impetus in development resulted from the influx of post war students and the quarters and activities have since been continually expanded. In the words of Miss Jarvis, "The recent Canada Council grant indicates an environment has evolved which justifies the appointment of a resident fellow in fine arts".

newspapers — two dailies and one weekly. The Telegraph Journal, a morning publication, is a provincial paper, published in Saint John. The Daily Gleaner, noted for its outspoken editorial page, is the local afternoon paper. The Capital Free Press is published every Thursday.

The New Brunswick hunting season opens October 1 and closes November 30. There is a closed season on moose and caribou. UNB students from outside the province may purchase resident hunting licenses. These are sold at all sporting goods stores in the city.

The local branch of the YM-YWCA offer adult education courses during the winter. This year they are tentatively planning on a "defendo" course, a dramatic workshop, and classes in Bridge, pioneer crafts and Canadian folksongs.

Common Decency

The recent unannounced increase in UNB fees was hardly a way for the university to make friends.

In fact, it cannot help but hurt the university's reputation, because it is inexcusable that no apparent attempt was made to give students prior notice of the hike.

The sums involved last week were clearly sufficient to warrant spending the few cents it would have taken to send each student a form-letter containing advance warning. In many cases, the increase was equal to the cost of a week's room and board, an important matter for students on tight budgets.

What is far worse, however, is that last week's action is not the only recent case of unannounced increases in charges.

For example, co-eds in residence have twice in just two years found their actual residence fees higher than those given in the calendar. Last year, the unexpected increase in charges for each student in a double room was $50; this year, it was $25.

Surely the students deserve better treatment than that cited here and on Page One.

But, there is something even more pragmatic for the university to consider:

The students affect greatly what the general public thinks about UNB, because for many outsiders, the student is the university.

If the student (and prospective graduate) feels the university is unjust, so will the public.

In other words, it is in the interest of good public relations for UNB to treat its students fairly.

Film Society Program Announced By Fowler

The UNB Film Society is about to embark on the most ambitious program in its history, President Larry Fowler said this week.

The campus group plans to present two series of films, one of 10 with general appeal and a second of five designed to show the technical artistic development of the film.

Students, faculty members and other interested parties can buy season's tickets for either or both series.

Showings are on Sunday evenings in the auditorium of the chemistry building, the seating capacity of which limits membership in each series to 300. All programs begin at 8.30 o'clock.

The general-interest series opens Oct. 19 with an Alec Guinness comedy, The Man in the White Suit (U.K.). Other bookings:

Oct. 26 Back of Beyond (Australia) and The Kurobe Gorge (Japan), two hour-long documentaries;

Nov. 16: The Seven Deadly Sins (France and Italy), a movie spicy enough to be banned in Quebec;

Nov. 30: Miss Julie (Sweden), a play by Strindberg;

Jan. 11: Duck Soup (U.S.A.), a Marx Brothers comedy;

Jan. 25: The Lone White Sail (Russia), one of the finest films about children;

Feb. 8: Othello (Russia), one unusual treatment of Shakespeare;

Feb. 22: The Sheep Has Five Legs (France), Fernandel in one of his best comedies;

March 8: The Grapes of Wrath (U.S.A.), the famous John Steinbeck story with Henry Fonda in the lead.

Name of the tenth film will be announced later. Mr. Fowler said it will probably be one of the better United States films about the Second World War. Possibilities include They Were Expendable and A Walk in the Sun.

Single membership in the series costs $3.50. Members of the same family may buy a double membership for $6.00.

The second series opens Nov. 23 with The Film and Reality, a British documentary which includes scenes from 58 historic films. Other showings:

Jan. 19: The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari (Germany), a 1919 film which portrays how a madman feels about the director of a lunatic asylum;

Feb. 15: The Birth of a Nation (United States), D. W. Griffith's 1914 masterpiece about the American Civil War and the Reconstruction era.

March 1: a program of silent comedies made in the U.S., featuring such people as Buster Keaton, Charlie Chaplin, Laurel and Hardy;

Apr. 5: Orphée (France), 1949 surrealism written and produced by Jean Cocteau.

Single Costs $2.00

Single membership in the second series is $2.00. Doubles are $3.50.

Tickets for both series are available at the Bonar Law-Bennett Library, and from members of the society's executive: the president, Mr. Fowler; first vice-president, Jim O'Sullivan; second vice-president, Prof. Allan Donaldson; secretary, Carl Wallace, and treasurer, Winslow Brewer.

Because of an agreement with the distributors of the films, the society cannot sell tickets for just one evening, but must treat each series as a unit sale. This agreement allows the society to procure its films at lower-than-usual rent.

UNB Planning For Future

By JIM O'SULLIVAN

UNB's Arts Building, the oldest structure in use by a Canadian university, is an excellent conversation piece, but modern conditions require new, bigger and more expensive facilities.

That's the hard, cold fact behind the greatest wave of construction in UNB's history.

In the last five years, the university has spent millions changing the face of the hillside campus. This year, for instance, additions to the plant include two new men's residences, an extension to the Students' Memorial Centre, parking lots, and a central heating plant. Total cost: about $1,000,000.

Yet, according to Dr. Colin B. Mackay, the university's young, energetic president, present construction is only a prelude to a great 12-year works program.

To Cost $9,550,000

Announcement of the three-stage master plan, with a total cost of $9,550,000, was made this summer by Dr. Mackay. He calls it "a blueprint for the future."

The first stage, costing $3,200,000, begins as soon as possible. It includes:

- (1) a science (physics and biology) building.
- (2) an academic building for arts students,
- (3) three more residences,
- (4) a combined dining hall and fellowship centre to serve the number of students living on the campus, and
- (5) extension of essential campus services, including renovation of the Arts Building and Memorial Hall.

Target date for completion: 1960.

Second Stage

A second stage of the plan, to be finished by 1965, will cost $3,050,000. Included are an engineering building, an extension to the academic building, expansion of the library, and three more residences.

During the third stage which will run to 1970, the university hopes to add wings to the academic building, two residences, an auditorium, married students' quarters, and a women's gymnasium. Cost of these projects is expected to run about $3,300,000.

Where will UNB find the money for this great undertaking?

Dr. Mackay hopefully lists these sources: (1) former students and other interested friends, (2) business and industry who need highly trained manpower, (3) governments and philanthropic foundations.

Launches Appeal

As a start, the university is now launching a $3,200,000 fund-raising appeal to finance the first stage of the master plan. "It is our intention to reach this objective early next year," Dr. Mackay said.

Hopes for success were kindled this summer when Premier Hugh John Flemming announced that the provincial government would match dollar for dollar, funds coming from private sources.

The premier said he hoped his government's action would increase the generosity of private sources.

"We want them to know that the government . . . is appreciative of their interest and support for this important factor in New Brunswick life and culture."

To Go All Out

Dr. Mackay adds that the university is to go all out in an effort to sell itself to the general public:

"In the past, we have displayed a tendency to dream great dreams but to shrink from implementing necessary changes to transform these dreams into reality. This we can no longer afford to do and this we will not do."

He emphasized that while recent construction has been "the result of frenzied last-minute planning," the new master plan calls for an orderly, co-ordinated expansion.

The plan "has two objectives: first, to overcome present physical deficiencies, and second, to deal with the demands of future years."

Expect 2,800 Students

Last year, UNB's student enrollment was 1,380, the largest in history. By 1970, it will probably be at least 2,800, Dr. Mackay said.

The university has engaged an internationally known firm of architects, Larson and Larson, to plot future development of the campus. The firm has more than 30 years experience with university work in both the United States and Canada.

Established in 1785 as "an academy of liberal arts and sciences," the university was chartered in 1800 as the College of New Brunswick. In 1829 it became King's College with Sir Howard Douglas as first chancellor. The name was changed to the University of New Brunswick in 1859.

Problems of Growth

At one time the 130-year-old Arts Building could accommodate the entire student population, but not any more. At present, the university has inadequate classrooms and laboratories, a serious lack of residential accommodation for both men and women, and a disturbing lack of essential campus services, Dr. Mackay claims.

However, while much remains to be done, the university has in the past five years made great progress in meeting the problems of growth, he added.

The provincial government financed two of the major projects: a million-dollar chemistry building and a $400,000 expansion of classroom space for engineering students. A generous public response to an appeal led by the chancellor, Lord Beaverbrook, and a grant from the Canada Council have resulted in the two new men's residences opened this fall, the first since completion of the Lady Beaverbrook Residence during the depression.

McLellan Scores Two

By Gordon Howse & Jack Sweet
The UNB Red Bombers defeated the highly-touted Saint John Wanderers 34-7 Saturday afternoon on rain soaked College Field. The Bombers steamrolled to a 26-0 lead at half time and finished the second half with the second string backfield playing. Saint John, winners in two previous games this season, one a 54-6 effort over the Moncton Hubs and a 19-18 victory over the Stadacona Sailors, were inept offensively and defensively. The left side of the Wanderers wingline was particularly sieve-like.

Speedy fullback Ed McLellan scored two majors, to spearhead the UNB offence. Other touchdowns went to Jim Ross, Norm Bolitho and quarterback Pete Madorin. Madorin converted one TD, and left footed Pete Rylander booted a rouge. A safety touch completed UNB scoring.

Bubbles Peters scored the only Saint John major and Jackie Boyle converted.

Special mention should go to the Red Bombers defensive squad. The heads up linework of Don Goss, Jack Davis, Sonny Clarke and Tom Doyle held the Wanderers to only one first down on the ground in the first half and several times broke through to nail Nagle and company for losses. Stirling McLean had a good day at defensive half running back kicks and defending against passes. He intercepted one pass and knocked down several others. Brian Hough inserted into a defensive half position in the latter part of the game intercepted one long pass and jarred a receiver loose from the ball on another play.

Brian Arthur, Ross, Bolitho, and McLellan roamed for large gains through and around the Saint John line. Ted Boswell, Dave Fairbairn, and Larry Friedman threw key blocks and opened large holes to spark the sustained drives that featured the Bombers' play. UNB touchdowns resulted from 55, 62, 60, 89, and a 37 yard marches to paydirt.

Bench Notes:

Although one game does not make a season, Coach Don Nelson has built a potential championship team. It has all the ingredients, a big line, a fast backfield, and a good quarterback. All that plus a top defensive platoon.

The Red Bombers big test will come next Saturday when they renew their feud with the Mount Allison Mounties here at Col-

Sport Schedules

Sports followers will be interested in the following schedules of games which will take place during the fall:

The football situation is rather complicated this season due to the fact that UNB and Mount Allison are playing in two leagues. UNB and Mount Allison will play a home and home set of games, each to be valued at one point each. Each of these games is to be part of the regular schedule in both leagues.

UNB is entered in the Maritime Intercollegiate Football League composed of UNB, Mount A, Acadia, St. Mary's, St. Thomas and Saint Dunstan's. Each team will play the others once.

The New Brunswick Canadian Football League is composed of UNB, Mount A, Saint John, and Moncton. One game with each team will be played. The winners in this league will meet a Nova Scotia team for the Maritime Intermediate title.

Intramurals To Resume Action

Intramural athletic activities are starting to get into full swing.

Intramural softball team entries will be accepted up until 12 noon, Oct. 1st, that is tomorrow.

The UNB open golf tournament was held last Friday and Saturday. Jim Bolland is the new UNB golf champion finishing with a sharp 73. Ben Gray and Roger Baird were runner ups, each with a 74. John Sears 77, Dave Petrie 78, Dave Hachey 80, Gord Petrie 82, Bob King 82, and Tom Calkin 85 were other low shooters.

Charlene Hallet with a 79 for 15 holes won the girls' crown. Margo Pond was runner up shooting a 99 for 15 holes.

Next Sunday, weather permitting, a faculty versus student tournament will be held.

The UNB Intercollegiate golf team will be picked in the next two weeks. The four chosen will defend the Intercollegiate title won by UNB in Sackville last year. This year's tournament will be held in Antigonish with the date tentatively set for October 18.

An intramural soccer meeting will be held this afternoon at 1:30 p.m. in the gymnasium. All classes or faculties interested in playing intramural soccer should have a representative present.

The campus tennis tournament is being played out. The draw is posted in the gym and all interested can keep in touch with the athletic office.

Archery sessions are being held each Saturday. Next Saturday's meeting will be held in the parking lot adjacent to the gym.

Soccer Team After Title

In keeping with the increasing interest of soccer in New Brunswick an encouraging number of players turned out to the early training sessions last week.

A fast keen squad has its eyes on two trophies this year. The first is the Sumner Trophy, emblematic of New Brunswick Senior Soccer supremacy. UNB's first round draw with Moncton Albions is being played this Saturday, 7:00 p.m. at College Field.

The team will also play a home and home series with Mount Allison University, the winners advancing against the Nova Scotia champions for the Maritime Intercollegiate title.

Training sessions will be held this evening and Thursday (7:00 p.m.) for those interested.

lege Field. Mounties' Coach, Gus McFarlane was evidently quite interested in last Saturday's game, even to the extent of bringing a movie camera with him. Outside of obvious overall superiority, the Bombers did not show much, since they used only a dozen basic plays all afternoon. Coach Nelson should have a real bag of tricks worked out for next Saturday.

The following Saturday, also on home grounds, UNB will play Acadia University.

The Bombers sported new jerseys, somewhat similar in style to the Hamilton Tiger-Cats; their hard driving type of ball reminds us of these same Cats, especially the Red and Black rough and rugged front wall.

Big Don Goss was slightly shaken up in the third quarter but soon returned to action.

Arthur, McLellan, and Ross all played great games despite leg injuries.

Bobby Walker, the Bombers new offensive guard showed up well before being forced to retire.
