Farm and Household.

The Drainage

Some farmers appear to think the only gain from underdraining is that the soil is dry enough to work sooner after hard rains and will yield better crops when the season is wet. But this is by no means all the benefit, according to an Ohio Farmer correspondent who is an enthusiastic advocate of tile drainage. He names and comments upon the following additional reasons for his faith:

First, a better yield in dry seasons; second, it is easier to keep the ground clear of weeds, which, vegetable, grass, etc., are made more palatable; fourth, wheat and clover do not have to be so much by freezing and thawing; fifth, the soil does not wash so much; sixth, it makes the soil more fertile.

To say that ditching prevents damage by drought may seem strange to those who have never tried underdraining their land, but those who have tried it know that the crops over and near a tile ditch are better in a dry season than where no tiles are used. The droughts that do the most damage are those where a dry summer and fall follow an open winter and a wet spring. This is caused by the wet weather in the spring making the soil run together and become compact. When dry weather follows, it is more injurious than if the soil is looser, as it generally is over and near a tile ditch.

As to the second reason—it is easier to get rid of weeds—a little observation will prove it to be correct. Weeds in the wet spots in the neighborhood where the wheat is killed by the water that the deck, ragweed, dices and other pests are the worst. It is the same way in the cornfield and potato patch. The low, wet places are generally the most difficult to keep clean.

The third advantage is that the products of well drained land are more palatable than those grown on wet land. The same varieties of potatoes planted in different soils will produce potatoes of dissimilar qualities. Those grown on well drained land will cook dry and mealy, while those grown in a wet, heavy, clay soil will be of an inferior quality and will be soggy when cooked.

The fourth advantage claimed—that wheat and clover are not injured so much by the ground freezing and thawing—does not need explaining. It is the same way with the corn and potato patch. The low, wet places are generally the most difficult to keep clean.

As to the fifth claim—that the soil does not wash so much—I am not quite so positive as I am about the others. The loose soil over a tile ditch will wash easily if the tile does not have the capacity to carry all the water that runs to it.

As to the last claim—that it makes the soil more fertile. I mean by this that it is not only makes the soil more productive, but that it adds fertilizing elements to the soil the same as we do when we cover the ground with manure or fertilizers. Some may inquire when these elements are applied. The answer is, every day in the year and by the water and air that pass through the soil.

While a heavy coat of stable manure may make better crops for six, eight or ten years and an application of commercial fertilizer will show for several years, if they are not renewed the soil will not show any gain from them after a time, but the tile ditch, like "a thing of beauty" is "a joy forever."

Deep Ploughing Questioned.

It is a disputed point in tillage as to whether or not deep ploughing is the best method of keeping the soil in proper condition. Many farmers are of the opinion that deep ploughing is detrimental to the land, while, on the other hand, there are those who keep ploughing a little deeper every year, thinking that by so doing they improve the producing capacity of the land. To decide the matter intelligently, the texture of the soil must be taken into consideration in each case. With the lighter, loamy or sandy lands the winter frost will accomplish all that is necessary in the way of loosening the soil. Heavy clays require cultivation, and in many cases deep cultivation, as well as green manuring, in order to improve the texture. Another consideration is the retention of humus in the place where it is most needed—in the three or four inches of the surface soil. Deep ploughing that would turn this under is not advisable.

To get Profit from the Cow.

It is extremely difficult to get a great many men to see that the reason why they are not financially successful with cows is because they treat them in so heartless a manner, said Board's Dairyman. They tie them up in rigid stanchions and force them to bear their young in such cruel confinement; they compel them to lie in their own filth until their sides are plastered with it; they shut them up in dark, damp underground stables, forcing them to breathe in air reeking with poisonous fumes; they half starve them in winter's cold and midsummer droughts; they dog them and abuse them with blows and curses. All these things are of common practice, and then such men wonder that this wonderful mother deities to them a profit from her motherhood.

How to catch rats.

Set your steel trap in a corn sack. Roll in the mouth of the sack until a space is left large enough to contain the trap. The rat sees the ears of the corn through the top and in reaching for them strikes the pedal with his nose. The trap is thus sprung, so as to catch him just behind the ears, and his death is instantaneous. This is more humane than catching him by the leg and causing him to suffer all night. I have caught them successfully in that way, and I believe it will prove successful in most cases, says a Farm and Fireside correspondent. You are sure of one every night until they are exterminated.

Deafest of Poisons.

The dispenser of prussic acid was instantly killed by inhaling one whiff of his own handiwork. Prussic acid is never sold or handled. The smell of it is always fatal. It kills the instant it enters the lungs as a gas. Atropine, though it has a harmful odor, is so deadly that a much of it would adhere to a moistened foreigner would instantly cause death. When a whiff of prussic acid is broken someone has to suffer. It will burn wood, eat through iron plates, and destroy whatever it touches. Such an accident once happened in an acid factory. Every one ran away, leaving the acid to smolder itself by setting fire to things. Soon it was seen that the building would be destroyed and hundreds of people thrown out of work, and four men volunteered to put out the fire in the acid room. They climbed and came out feeling all right. Five hours later all were dead.

Teach Mothers the Courtroom.

One has a good deal about the decadence of good manners, especially among the young men of the period, and wonders sometimes where the fault lies. After studying the matter carefully, one is reluctantly drawn to the conclusion that it is the mother in most cases who is at fault.

No doubt there will be indignation denials of a charge of this kind on the part of mothers generally, but evidence is against them, and they cannot deny that they are at least negligent in training their boys to the old time courtesy, which every boy and man was expected to show not only to women of all ages and conditions, but to the elders of their own sex as well.

There are some things which the mother should not fail to remember in her intercourse with her own sons, from the earliest time when their training may begin. It is her remembering and carrying out such simple rules of conduct for herself that will have the most potent influence upon the whole future behavior of her children.

She should never permit herself to forget that if she treats her boy as a gentleman she will go a great way toward making him one.

She should insist that he play proper deference to her, to his sisters and to every one with whom he comes in daily contact, and that he should give proper, respectful and courteous treatment to the domestic of the family.

She should never be so busy that she cannot listen to his confidences. In that way she will know them. No child will seek sympathy from others if he can get it from the mother.

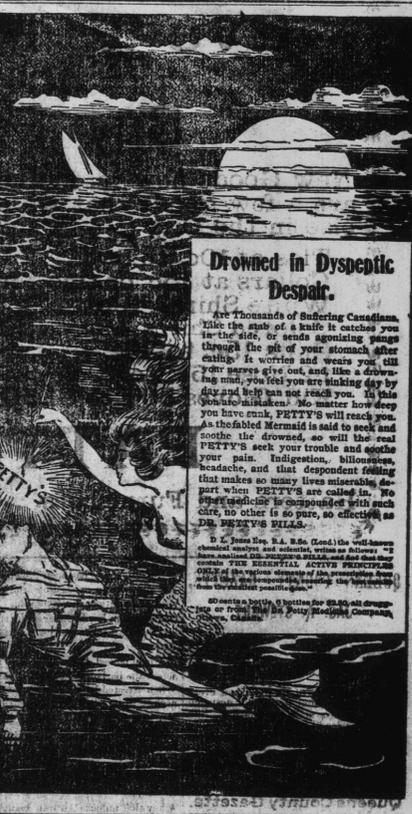

She should set high ideals for him and instill into his mind a distaste for all vulgarity or coarseness, and she should herself embody that ideal.

To Correct Rashfulness.

The bashful young girl must stop thinking about herself," writes Margaret E. Sawyer in the April Ladies' Home Journal. "I heard the other day of a man, a college student, who went to visit his sister, a college student also. He was the one man, as it happened, in the dining-room with five hundred girls, and he had occasion to cross the room with their bright eyes beaming on him with curiosity and interest. Said my informant: 'The boy was completely at his ease. You would have thought his sister the only girl present.' Evidently the young man's mother had brought him up in a sensible way and he was free from the bane and comfort, self-consciousness. It is hard for a very diffident person to be free from awkwardness, and very acute distress and much humiliation may be the results of an extreme shyness. Try not to think how you look, what impression you are making, 'what sort of gown you have on. Do not let your mind dwell on yourself, but think of what you are to do, and of making others pleased and happy.' Once you are free from self-consciousness, bashfulness will trouble you no more."

Worked Both Ways.

"It's a fine morning, Biddy," said the squire.
"It's a fine morning, your honor and ladyship; and sure I had a fine dream last night!"
"What did you dream, Biddy?" inquired the lady.
"Sure, I dreamt his honor gave me a pound of baecy and your ladyship gave me a pound of tay."
"Oh," laughingly replied the squire, "but you know, Biddy, dreams go by contraries."
"Sure, then, your honor can give me the pound of tay and her ladyship can give me the pound of baecy."

A HUNDRED YEARS HENCE

What wonders has half a century wrought for Canada! Half a century ago we bought flour, agricultural implements, carriages, pianos and organs, woollens, cottons, hardware of various descriptions and many other necessities almost exclusively in the United States; now we are exporters of most of these things and our products are known almost all over the civilized world. Australia is one of our good customers, so is Japan, and from South Africa they send here for hay, broadstuffs, fighting men and missionaries. Canada has become the most important of Britain's Colonies, barren, cold, ice-bound Canada, as it was pictured fifty years ago. And what will Canada become a hundred years hence! Progressing as she has during the last fifty years, for every bushel of grain, every pound of meat, butter or cheese, for every bushel of fruit, or dozen of eggs or pound of poultry that she exports now, a hundred years hence she will export ten, and the increase in the output of her manufactures will be in the same ratio. Fifty years ago our facilities for transportation were limited, few of our farmers were able to do more than make a bare living, our mines were worked in a primitive way and so were our lumbering operations and our markets were restricted. Now all a Canadian has to do is to work intelligently and his reward is certain. A hundred years hence the area of cultivated land in Canada will be fourfold larger than at present and by better cultivation the crops per acre will be doubled. The farmer will make Canada what it is and the farmer will make his future.

ST. JOHN LETTER.

Sir Robert Peel, a grandson of Great Britain's famous prime minister of the same name, who died in 1850, has decided to become an actor. He will go on the stage, powder his face, wear a wig and have chorus girls, subrettes, heavy men, old men and clowns for his associates. It is not likely that his social descent will be very marked or very distasteful for he has been what is called a "high roller." He was born in 1867, married a countess in 1897, and from his majority had an annual income of $115,000. About a year ago he was adjudged a bankrupt, liabilities $1,533,050, assets nil. This shows that his expenditures, from the day of his birth, were about $163,000 a year, or upwards of $450 a day. This young man is the author of a novel called "A Bit of a Fool," it is presumed it is an autobiography.

Mrs. Girvan, aged 87, widow of William Girvan, who died about two weeks ago, was buried last Wednesday.

George Robertson, M. P. F., has gone to London to complete arrangements for the construction of the St. John Dry dock.

The river and Lake steamers are being patched up again for the summer service. River and Lake navigation will be resumed in a few days—somewhat earlier in the season than usual.

An automobile has been brought to the city and will be placed on the road as soon as conditions are favorable.

Aside from hay Steamer Mohican takes 200 tons of flour from this port to South Africa.

A man named Collis attempted to walk across the harbor last Thursday evening. When arrested he was in the water to the neck.

A local post of an Ingoldby turn has written: In every pound packet of Union Blend Tea The blender has placed for the buyer a key.

A key that unlocks An iron bound box That contains what the foppish demonstrate "rocks".

In plain words, bank notes of various sizes, That go to the buyers as Christmas surprises.

The flour market is rather firm—and millers are asking a slight advance on high grade Manitoba flours but so far the local market is unchanged. Beef and pork have advanced 50 cents to $1.90 per barrel. Quotations to-day are: Choice pork, per cwt. $14.00; best $12.50; extra $11.00; and extra $10.00. Lard has advanced 1 cent per pound: tubs, 8 cents; pails 8 cents and tins 8 cents. The market for broom corn is still high and manufacturers advise that a further advance of 25 cents per dozen on brooms is likely to take effect at any time. Cheese is still out of the market. Choice prunes in 25 pound boxes are quoted at 63 and 7 cents per pounds. Of molasses there is only a small stock of P. R. on hand which is quoted at 42 cents. Better continues very scarce and good stock is sought for at 18 to 20 cents per pound. Eggs are not plentiful and the small arrivals sell quick at 12 cents. Business has been very brisk during the past week and a great many schooners are making their first spring trips. Orders from different parts of this province are much larger than from Nova Scotia; probably because the conditions for lumbering are more favorable here than there.

Shortly after five o'clock yesterday afternoon a large quantity of fireworks in the hardware store of George Beverley on Germain Street became ignited and a terrific explosion followed. The glass and other windows in the market building and on the opposite side of the street were shattered and not only Beverley's store but others in the immediate vicinity, including Kane & McGrath's cold storage and Goodwin's fruit store were wrecked. Fortunately the firemen were soon on hand and a conflagration was averted. The damage to stocks and buildings will be large. It is said at this writing that no one was very seriously injured.

EDWARD EDWARDS.

St. John, March 31.

A Fatal Debauch.

CANTERBURY, Mar. 21.—Thomas Cunningham, a well known resident of Skiff Lake, was found a few days ago in an unconscious condition at the shop of John McCusker, where he had been imbibing too freely of the ardent, and died shortly afterwards. Coroner A. D. Coburn, at the urgent request of friends of the deceased, summoned a jury, and held an inquest. After examining several witnesses, and deliberating upon the evidence adduced, the jury returned the following verdict:

"We the undersigned jurors appointed to inquire into the cause of the death of Thomas Cunningham, find that the deceased came to his death from paralysis brought about by exposure while on his way to Canterbury, on February 27th and liquor given him by John McCusker, and from lying in an uncomfortable and a natural position in the shop of John McCusker during the afternoon and night of February 27th.

CANTON, Me., March 29.—A horrible

HEALTH IN APRIL

Use The World's Greatest Spring Medicine

Paine's Celery Compound

It is The One Remedy Gladly and Universally Recommended by the Ablest Doctors

It is well known that almost every condition of winter life has been detrimental to the health of thousands of men and women.

The blood has become clogged and impure—the skin is unhealthily and manifestly showing eruptions and pimples; the eyes are dull and sunken; the nerves are unsteady; there is less in weight, and stomach troubles, rheumatism and neuralgia make life a misery by day and night.

Paine's Celery Compound is the only spring medicine that the best physicians are now recommending, because no other remedy can so quickly bring new and vigorous health to the ailing, half-dead and broken-down.

Paine's Celery Compound cures disease by first purifying the blood and enriching and strengthening the nerves. It makes the weak strong; it regulates and invigorates the entire nervous system from the brain to the minutest nerve filament.

Seeing that the experience of tens of thousands has proven that Paine's Celery Compound is the greatest of all spring medicines—the one remedy that the world could not lose to-day at any price—it is foolish and suicidal to defer its use. One or two bottles used at this season will surely banish all symptoms of disease and fit you for the work and duties of spring and summer.

When you are buying Paine's Celery Compound see that you get the genuine with the name "Paine's" and the "Stalk of Celery" on the label; other compounds are frauds and deceptions.

A French Victory in Algeria

PARIS, March 29.—An official account has been issued of the victory of the French troops over the Arab army at In Salah, which assembled with the object of attacking the French expedition, which recently occupied the oasis of In Salah, southwest of Algeria. The French learned of the scheme and decided to storm the enemy's position, which was successfully carried March 19 by a column led by Lieut. Col. Du. The town was first bombarded and then stormed, the Arab warriors making their last stand in the mosque. They left 900 killed and 100 wounded on the field. In addition 450 prisoners were taken. The French losses were nine native soldiers killed, 38 wounded and two officers wounded.

Murders in Maine

ST. STEPHEN, March 29.—A man named Reynolds is under arrest in Calais for the murder of his wife and two children at Red Beach this morning.

The only particulars yet known here are that the wife and one child were killed with an axe, and the murderer then set fire to the house and fled.

The second child is dying. Reynolds is said to have come from Pembroke to Red Beach about two months ago.

Reynolds chased one of his daughters for a long distance before he overtook her and struck her with the axe. He is believed to be insane. The coroner's inquest will be held to-morrow evening.

CANTON, Me., March 29.—A horrible

crime, due, it is thought to insanity, was committed this forenoon by Ross Reynolds, a wood chopper, at Red Beach a small town about ten miles from here.

Mrs. Reynolds and one son were killed with an axe. Another son, Juddy Taylor, and the house burned to the ground. Then Reynolds ran up the street flourishing his axe. He was eventually taken in to somebody and brought to this place for safe keeping.

AGED LADY'S DEATH.—The death is announced today of Mrs. Charlotte P. Asherton, at the ripe age of 80 years. The deceased lady's maiden name was Dennison and she was a native of Mangerville. Her children who survive are Dr. Atherton and Mrs. Geo. A. Cliff both of this city.—Fredericton Herald, Thursday.

A GRAND MOVEMENT.—Robert Choate, of Boston, an American, wrote the Montreal Star, enclosing twenty small subscriptions of his friends, and suggesting a popular patriotic fund to be started in Canada and the United States to gather in ten cent pieces, quarter dollars, etc., for the fifty thousand orphans and widows of British soldiers dead in Africa. The Star, in publishing this letter from Boston, suggested the starting of a Children's Testimonial to Queen Victoria, promoted by the boys and girls of Canada, accompanied by a special patriotic fund. It was proposed to engrave on parchment the name of ever child to this fund of ten cents and upwards. The name of every boy or girl who collects ten subscriptions in the testimonial as a leader in the movement and the photograph, beautifully mounted, of every boy and every girl who collects five dollars or upwards is to accompany the gift and the testimonial. The letter of which will be in form suitable for placing amongst the tributes from her loyal subjects, placed in the room in Windsor Castle, where the public can obtain a view of them. The presentation of this great testimonial from the children of Canada, through Lord Minto, accompanied by the photos of the children who are raising it, will be a touching incident in her life, and it is an opportunity that will probably come only once in a life time to the children of Canada. Boys and girls wanting special blank subscription lists and particulars of the movement can obtain them by mailing a postal card to the Montreal Star. Photographers all over Canada are offering to photograph free to place in the Queen's testimonial the boys and girls of Canada who identify themselves successfully with the movement. Subscriptions by the thousands are pouring into the Star office.

British Consul Fatally Stabbed.

KINROSS, Ja., March 23.—Advises received here today from Ciudad, Bolivar Venez., says that a fortnight ago James Lyall, the acting British consul there was fatally stabbed while leaving the consulate.

KINROSS, Ja., March 23.—Despatches from Surinam, Dutch Guiana, received here to-day say it is the feeling of the British and that British subjects in prison have been so brutally treated that they recently revolted and shot one of the keepers. The British residents of Surinam are said to be suffering from the same grievances as complained of by the Outlanders of South Africa.

LOST A HORSE.—Mr. Joseph Owens lost a very fine horse on Sunday, from a hurt it fell in the stable.

OUR HPS FOOR.—Mr. Alfred Brooks, while having a stick of timber in Mr. R. F. Davis' ship yard on Monday received a severe cut. The axe slipped embedding itself in his instep. Two arteries were severed. The cut is a very deep one and will lay Mr. Brooks up for some time. Dr. Casswell rendered the necessary surgical aid.

THE PARK RESTAURANT.—The park restaurant will be managed this year by Mr. Hiram Blythe, of Greenwich, Queens County, who has secured the privilege, as well as the right to hire boats on the lake and to run a merry-go-round. Mr. Blythe hopes to make all the features attractive.—Globe.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—John Sypher, a well known resident of Sypher's Cove, Queens County, was the victim of a serious accident on Sunday last. It appears that while walking on the ice near the shore of the river, he slipped and fell, dislocating his hip and shattering his thigh bone. He was removed to his home and Dr. Earle of Young's Cove, was sent for, but owing to the dangerous condition of the river for travelling, it was nine o'clock on Monday morning before he arrived. Mr. Sypher suffered a great deal from his injuries, but at last accounts, under the doctor's skilful treatment, he was progressing favorably towards recovery.

THE RIVER.—On Sunday morning and afternoon there was a great run of river ice through the Falls, and most of the coves and docks were filled with it. Tuesday it also ran freely. If mild weather continues, the river may be open a little earlier than usual. A great deal of snow is reported from the headwaters, and the river is already high, so the Indian-ward residents are looking for a freshet as high as last year. The owners of the tug and river steam-boats are hoping for a heavy warm rain to put the finishing touches to the ice in the river. A very slight rise of water will set it running, as it is very rotten and will break up easily. Some ice is coming down today, but it is only from the lower reaches, the upper body remaining intact.—Friday's Globe.

THE ST. JOHN'S RIVER.—Keewick, April 1.—The ice in the river is apparently as solid as at any time during the winter. Yesterday men were at work cutting it, and today teams are crossing. Frederickton, April 1.—The ice here is apparently firm although tonnage is a little timid about venturing upon it. Brantford, April 1.—The river is open in the centre and the gap is rapidly widening. There is still ice in the coves and along the shore.

Washington Letter.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27, 1900.—It is rumored here that Lord Pauncefoot will soon be raised to the rank of Viscount, as a further reward for his connecting to remain in service instead of retiring on his pension of $8,000 a year, as he is entitled to do. If this is done, none will congratulate His Lordship more warmly than his American friends. Lord Pauncefoot appears to be the first envoy to this country who has succeeded not only in gaining the good will of Americans and Englishmen but also of Canadians who are said to be congratulating themselves on his continuing in office. This fact in itself is sufficient to stamp Lord Pauncefoot as a diplomat of the first water, and it may be that his stay in Washington will be prolonged, not merely for a few months but more likely still for a few years, since after the conclusion of the war in South Africa, it will be more than ever necessary for England to have a man of his diplomatic caliber in the American National Capital, owing to the fact that the Canadian who have rendered the home government such valuable and gallant services in the South African struggle will be more than ever eager that their interests at Washington should be cared for.

It has been generally supposed that Lord Pauncefoot was sent to this capital in the first place as the result of an intrigue against him. At that time the fact that the Canadian who have rendered the home government such valuable and gallant services in the South African struggle will be more than ever eager that their interests at Washington should be cared for.

SEATTLE, March 29.—The government transport Garrons from Manila, Feb. 17, has arrived from quarantine, with news of an active preparation in military and naval departments of Japan for war with Russia.

The Indian Examine.

CALCUTTA, March 28.—The Viceroy, Lord Curzon, of Kollatton, addressing the council on the budget today, said that nearly five million persons were in receipt of regular relief, and that the cost of the ensuing year was estimated at 325 lacs of rupees. The loss of revenue for the year had been 121 lacs of rupees. The government, he said, hoped during the forthcoming year to spend 100 lacs of rupees in irrigation, but he could see no change of cutting down the military estimate. "There are two duties of Indian statesmanship," said the Viceroy, "one is to make these millions happy and the other is to keep them safe. For the sake of the one we must not neglect the other."

Droppings in the Throat

A Symptom of Catarrh Permanently Cured by Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure.

The hawking and spitting which the catarrh sufferer goes through in the morning to clear the throat of the droppings is a marked symptom of this distressing disease. In the early stages the discharge may be slight, but it becomes so thick and tough that considerable effort is required to expel it from the throat.

It is encouraging for the catarrh victim to know that he can be relieved of this distress and permanently cured of catarrh by using Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. This acute and chronic catarrh are eradicated from the system by Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. It clears the choked-up passages, heals the ulcers, and quickly conquers disease.

Mr. Thomas Stewart, 215 Bay Street, Ottawa, Ont., states: "I was afflicted with a very severe form of catarrh for nine years, and was so bad that the doctor gave me up to die of consumption. A careful systematic use of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure brought about a complete change. I no longer have any hawking and spitting, and am perfectly cured. The doctor burst out my throat three times for this disease."

The Anthropologist's Coat.

(W. K. CULLE, IN "CHAMBER'S JOURNAL".)

It frequently gives one a shock of surprise to observe what small and even ridiculous matters serve to influence a man's development and success in life. Peter Sand, Master of Arts and Fellow of St. Gaston's, was distinguished, and failed on one occasion to distinguish between a black cloth and a dark blue. In this act lies the secret of his subsequent development and prosperity.

Three years ago Peter's development had apparently ceased. He lived entirely at the university town of Durbridge, was known as a Fellow of St. Gaston's, and occasionally lectured on anthropology. His friends had, also, expected a great deal of him but, for some time abandoned those expectations. One of two articles in scientific magazines formed the sum total to the press, and first portions of his great work on "The Epoch of Mastodon" had been written only to be thrown aside. The income from his Fellowship was more than enough for his comfort and he had never liked society. Gradually he had withdrawn farther and farther into himself until at the age of thirty-three he looked fifty years older, and was a willing and contented recluse. His enemies called him "Fossil," and he was familiarly known among his friends as "Little Peter."

His usual course of life received an interruption one day in the form of a letter from Barron, an old school-fellow who had kept a distant but kindly eye upon Peter for some fifteen years. The Fellow of St. Gaston's read the letter several times before he could comprehend it fully. It appeared that Barron was about to be married, and wished his old friend to attend him as groomsmen.

A notification that he would be expected to act as bridegroom could scarcely have caused Peter more distress. He is a groomsmen—at a wedding! It was ridiculous—impossible! To refuse Barron's request, however, seemed almost impossible for he was the last of that almost forgotten circle of early friends. After long and troubled consideration he sent an urgent note, asking the bridegroom to come up to Durbridge and explain.

Barron came, a big fellow with a large heart, which even his work as a country solicitor had not succeeded in warping. He was one of those who had respected Peter's learning and had hoped for great things from him. His disappointment was extreme to find shrinkage instead of expansion, retreat instead of attainment. "Dear me, Sand!" he cried, "what's wrong with you? You look so old, and so very grey! Do you go out much?"

"Never," answered Peter, "why should I?"

"Why, because you are becoming a fossil man," was the caustic answer. "You must wake up—you ought to marry." "What?" exclaimed Peter, astounded; "lose my Fellowship?" Barron sighed, and felt very sorry that the Fellowship had ever been gained. Then he set himself to persuade Peter to run down for the wedding, and to undertake the duties of groomsmen. It was to be a very quiet affair, he explained, and the responsibility was simply nothing.

Peter listened and gradually gave way. To the bridegroom's amusement, he then began to make exhaustive notes in a pocket-book, so that he might not forget any of his duties.

"Since you don't care for going about much," said Barron, "you needn't come down until the day before. That will be time enough, and you won't require so much luggage."

"Just my things," I suppose," said the Fellow. "It's lucky that I've had a first-rate new coat lately. It's a blue one."

"Blue?"

"Yes, dark blue. I intended to get black, but I'm short-sighted, you know, and when the patterns were submitted I chose blue by mistake; but it's a splendid thing, and my landlady tells me that it looks very well. I should like to do you credit at the wedding, old fellow."

He uttered the last words so kindly, and his confidence in the blue coat was so touching and childlike, that Barron could not speak the protest that rose to his lips. Besides, if Peter had to exert himself to fit a new coat, he might rebel, and give up the project altogether. So he held his peace, reflecting that there might be no law against blue after all. He did not know how criminal his silence was, for he was but a man and, had never been married before.

When he reached home he found cause to regret his silence. The bride to be was supported by the presence of her sister, who had given up a position of ease as a countess's companion to fill the vacant place in the family circle. She had bright eyes and a quick tongue, and did not show such reverence for her new brother as she might have shown. Barron was continually at war with her.

"What is this Mr. Sand?" she asked, pertly. "What is his work?"

"Oh, he is a Fellow," said Barron.

"Indeed! That is very lucid. Is he a nice fellow?"

"He is a fellow with a capital F, Miss Pattie," was the rebuking answer—"Fellow of St. Gaston's College. His work is anthropology."

"And what is that, pray?"

"Oh, skulls," said Barron, "skulls and skeletons, and all that sort of thing. He's wonderfully clever—so clever that the St. Gaston's people give him two hundred a year as long as he remains unmarried. They know that marriage spoils clever men, so they bribe them to remain single!"

"Has anybody ever tried to bribe you to remain single, John?" asked Miss Pattie, icily, and John was so demoralized by the thrust that in another moment he had betrayed the secret of Peter's coat.

The minutes that followed were decidedly troubled ones. Dumay succeeded to incredulity, and indignation to dismay. It was in vain that poor Barron pleaded that Master of Arts and a Fellow of St. Gaston's might wear any coat he liked at any wedding he liked, and even claim to set the fashion: He was told that the idea was an outrage, and that he should have placed his foot upon that blue coat at its first appearance. Miss Pattie declared that she would never, never walk out of church on a blue coat sleeve, and that her brother Charles must be asked to act as groomsmen instead of that Fellow. Then Barron said that he would prefer to walk into church with Peter in a blue coat than with any other living man in a black one. So the matter was left in the faint hope that the groomsmen might be smuggled into a more suitable garment on the morning of the wedding.

"It will be a bad thing for him," said Miss Pattie, "if he brings that coat down here."

"Oh," said Barron, "what will you do?"

"I shall simply look at him," was the quiet reply. "That's all."

Barron thought it might prove to be quite enough, for Miss Pattie's eyes had remarkable powers of expressing the colder emotions. He felt sorry for his friends, but was utterly helpless.

On the eve of the wedding Peter came and Barron introduced him to the bride's relatives. While the groomsmen were nervously congratulating the bride, he himself was forced to admit to Miss Pattie that the dreaded coat had come, and would certainly make its appearance in church. Her eyes flashed dangerously.

"Very well," she said, "you know what I promised, and she took the opportunity of working out her vengeance."

This was at supper, and Peter sat facing her. When he addressed her, she answered cold and without interest; if he glanced in her direction he met a look of abhorrence and contempt which even a scientist could scarcely have mistaken. Barron watched the play of fear in her afterwards in surprise. It appeared to him that Peter did not suffer the way he should have suffered. He certainly became more silent, but the glances he returned to the enemy were entirely free from confusion.

"You don't seem to hurt him," said Barron, at last. "What is wrong?"

"There's nothing wrong," was the sharp retort. "He is unusually stupid, that is all."

Barron laughed. "Nothing of the kind," he said. "He's looking at you continually, and perhaps you notice that his interest is increasing. Don't flatter yourself, Pattie; please don't. He is simply studying the formation of your head for anthropological purposes. Peter has a mania for skulls."

After that blow Barron retreated with honor, and bore the groomsmen with him. They spent an hour before sleeping inquiring over the duties of the morning. Peter thinking further notes in his book with a face of unexpected interest and earnestness. When this was done, he said:

"That young woman, Miss Pattie, has a fine pair of eyes, John."

"Yes, said Barron, expectantly.

"Yes, I saw her looking at this old coat of mine. It is certainly faded, though I have never noticed it before, and perhaps she thought I intended to wear it tomorrow. I am glad that I have brought my blue one—I am sure she—I mean you—will like it."

What was coming to Peter? Barron gazed at his pensive and contented face in growing amazement. Could it be possible that Miss Pattie had worked this sudden change? Here was retribution, indeed!

"John," said the anthropologist, a little more hesitatingly, a little nervously, "I believe there is an old custom—a groomsmen's privilege—to—to—hem—to kiss the bride."

"Eh?" cried Barron; "the bride, you mean, not the bridesmaid. You kiss the bride."

"Oh," said Peter, "the bride, is it not the bridesmaid? I see!" and it seemed to Barron that his face had fallen a little. But his own amazement was so great that he could scarcely take notice. He tried to imagine how Miss Pattie would look if Peter had tried to carry out his mistaken idea of the old custom, and he wished with all his heart that he had left the thing alone. Then he said "Good night" to Peter, and hastened away to his own room to laugh in peace.

In the morning Peter appeared in the dreaded coat. It was a dark blue, and he was so pleased with the effect that he could not find courage to destroy his illusions. "After all," he thought, "Peter looks very neat; it is to be a very quiet wedding, and everything will be over in half an hour." So he actually congratulated him upon his appearance, and nerved himself to meet the consequence.

The carriage took them to the church, where they prepared to wait in the vestry until the bridal party should arrive. There Barron spent a few anxious moments in reminding Peter of his various duties. It was at this point that a sudden and startling thought occurred to him.

"Peter," he exclaimed, "have you the ring?"

"What ring?" cried Peter, astounded.

"No—upon my word—I haven't!"

The bridegroom said something under his breath. He had given the ring into Peter's charge on the previous night, fearing that he might leave it behind him, and up to the present moment that horrid coat had so troubled his mind that the matter had quite escaped him. The ring had been forgotten!

He made a rapid calculation. His house was not far off, and the missing article could yet be obtained. It was true that the bride would arrive directly, but if Peter made in effort to slight return with the ring by the time it was needed.

"Run!" he said, "run! You know where it is—in my writing desk. Run!"

Peter did not wait for further instructions. He caught up the nearest hat—which happened to be Barron's—and rushed out by the side door. There was no vehicle within call, and he could not go in search of one. Clipping Barron's hat over his brow, he ran away through the quiet churchyard, the tails of his blue coat flying behind him. When he reached the house he knocked twice without effect. Then he perceived that everyone had gone to the church, and turned in despair and helplessness. As he turned, he saw that one of the drawing-room windows had been left unshut and slightly open.

There was only one thing to be done. He gave a furtive glance up and down the silent, sunny street, and then pushed the sash higher. There was an awkward scramble, and the hat was crushed against the top of the window. In a moment more he was safely inside.

The desk was found but was locked. In his agitation, Barron never thought of giving him the keys. Peter looked about him once more, picked up a poker and with one or two blows destroyed the lock.

There was the ring, all ready in its case. There, also, was Barron's pocket-book which had been forgotten like the ring. Peter grasped the articles, and was turning to fly, when he found himself face to face with a policeman!

It was a painful meeting. The officer had observed Peter's furtive entry, and had quietly followed. It looked to him a clear case of daylight burglary, and he was one of those obtuse policeman whose convictions it is impossible to move. Peter tried to explain.

"It's a wedding," he cried, "and this is the ring. I came back to get, and they are all waiting at the church. I am the groomsmen."

Then came the tragedy of the coat. This policeman knew all about weddings, for he had often attended at the church doors in an official capacity. He had only served the costumes worn on such occasions, and he had never seen a groomsmen in a blue coat. He shook his head stubbornly.

"That's all very well," he said, "but I can't take it, sir. You must walk to the station with me. It's close by."

Peter saw the argument was vain. The entry by the window, the broken lock, the pocket-book, and, although he did not know it, the blue coat were all against him. By this time the ceremony must have begun, and perhaps they were waiting for the ring. With an exclamation of rage and despair he hurled both ring and pocket-book into the farthest corner of the room.

At the church, however, matters had gone perfectly. Barron soon decided that Peter must have got into difficulties, and then discovered the keys of his desk in his pocket. Making the best of the case, he secured the services of Miss Pattie's "brother Charles," as groomsmen, sent him to borrow a ring from one of the ladies, and then went to meet the bride, fully provided. Everything ran smoothly after that until the whole party proceeded to the bride's home for the breakfast.

From there a messenger was sent to look for Peter, and just as the breakfast had begun the missing groomsmen made his appearance. What he had suffered during the course of his adventures no one would ever know, but there was in his face a mingling of unutterable emotions. Hatless, dusty, but disheveled, he stepped into the room and stared about him. But his chief emotion was anxiety.

"Good gracious, my dear fellow!" cried Barron, "where have you been? What is the matter? Come and sit here."

Peter came. He looked at the faces of the bride and bridegroom, and saw that all was well. Then he wiped his brows, with a sigh of relief.

"It is all right, then?" he said, huskily. "I have been in a terrible state—thought you couldn't get on without the ring."

He spoke so strangely that a smile appeared on several faces. One of those at the head of the table, however, did not smile. She was looking into Peter's face, and it was her voice that murmured, "Poor fellow!"

Barron heard it and wondered.

The groomsmen took his seat, and told his curious story. It could not have been expected that the poor anthropologist would be a good story-teller; but here was a surprise for all. Peter had been shaken out of himself; he spoke with simple feeling and indignation; his words, his gestures, moved everyone to sympathy. The scientist had emotions, in spite of science.

"Imagine the position," he said. "The bridegroom waiting for the ring which I had been entrusted to get—and the policeman, impossible, inflexible! My dear Barron, I was wild—I would have done anything—I would have given a fortune—I would have given up my Fellowship—to get away—I would."

He paused for breath. Every eye was upon him; every sound was hushed.

"The inspector," he said, "was a little more reasonable, and thus I am here. That policeman must have been a little mind, I believe. I could not quite make out his explanation; but it seems that one of his excuses for arresting me was my coat—my—my coat! It is most extraordinary!"

Then, of course, everyone looked at Peter's coat, and saw that it was blue beneath the dust. Barron glanced at Miss Pattie, and she, perceiving his meaning, remembered her threat. She looked at Peter Sand once more, for the third time.

There was no ridicule now, no contempt. Peter's face was flushed, his eyes were bright. Miss Pattie saw in his countenance something that caused her own to soften, to change. She saw, perhaps, an old Peter, the one who had been Barron's friend and won Barron's faith and loyalty long ago—the plain, unselfish Peter, who, during the whole of this unhappy adventure, had not given one thought to himself. Or perhaps she saw in his face the Peter of a possible future, when some soft hand—a woman's hand—should have brushed away the dust of his studies, and sent him forth, neat and burnished, to face the world again.

Then Peter, in the silence, looked up also, and their eyes met. For a moment they gazed at each other, and for the second time that day Peter Sand's Fellowship became a small thing. Then the incident was over.

"Well, upon my word!" muttered Barron, who had seen it all. "Upon my word!"

As I have already hinted, everything came about through the blue coat. Had it not been for that, Miss Pattie would have paid no more attention to Peter than to any other fussy scientist, and Peter would never have been led to observe her eyes. Had it not been for the coat, Barron would not have forgotten the ring, Peter would have had no need to break into the house, the policeman would have no reasonable excuse to doubt his explanation. Further, but for the coat, Miss Pattie would not have given Peter that second glance which moved her sympathy for him, nor that third

AN EXTRAORDINARILY LIBERAL PROPOSITION.

FOR LESS THAN THE 2 PAPERS AND A 300 PAGE BOOK PRICE OF ONE PAPER

FIRST, and properly, in making a choice of reading for the home you select your own home paper. However good may be the reading of other papers, there is none that comes home so closely to you as your local weekly. It is to further increase this interest by adding to our lists that the following liberal proposition is made to subscribers. We have been careful to form combinations only where we knew we were touting safe ground and could thoroughly recommend the publications offered. Read carefully every word of this offer for it means a saving of money to you.

Montreal Daily Herald

A GREAT METROPOLITAN DAILY

WE are pleased to announce that we have been able to make most extraordinarily liberal arrangements with the publishers of one of the greatest of Canadian dailies—The Montreal Daily Herald.

The Herald has achieved a well-deserved reputation for the remarkable value it gives its readers. It is one of the most enterprising newspapers in the Dominion, and in thousands of home circles is welcomed on account of the great interest it manifests in subjects of special interest to the family. It is admirably the favorite daily of the women of Canada. To the farmer and business man, it appeals through its accurate market reports and business columns. To the young men, through the attention it bestows on clean, manly sport. To the lover of fiction, through the excellent stories appearing regularly in its columns. To the politician, through the calm and moderate tone of its editorial expressions.

The only reason which prompted the publishers of The Herald to make us the offer, which enables us to club the two papers at the extraordinarily low price given below, is their desire to immediately introduce the Daily Herald in large numbers in this neighborhood. The offer they now make will hold good for a limited time only.

It should be mentioned that subscribers to The Herald during the next few months will enjoy to the full the opportunity which this paper is offering to all readers to secure valuable books at merely nominal figures.

IN the best sense of the term this is an Ideal Cook Book—ideal in being a practical book—a book which the housewife will want to keep constantly by her side and can depend on, because of the simplicity and reliability of every recipe. Starting with a chapter on soups, naturally the first course, throughout its three hundred pages and over there are to be found more than 1,000 recipes, winding up with an excellent chapter on sick room cookery. Following the cookery section there is a department entitled "The Doctor," in which are recipes selected from eminent authorities, and which will be found invaluable where the doctor is not readily available. The recipes are numbered throughout the book, and each is prefaced with a list of the ingredients called for by the recipe, rendering it unnecessary for the housewife to read through the entire recipe and make calculation of what is wanted. Size of page is 5 inches by 8 inches, bound in handsome oilcloth covers. It would be a mistake to confuse this book with any paper-bound cook book that would go to pieces in no time.

Spicy News Items Gathered by Gazette Correspondents

To BARRON QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE. Dear Sir: I understand that a cheese and butter factory is to be in operation at Jemseg this summer. Would it not be a good plan for our farmers living along the river from the head of the canal, to Mr. Perry's in Hampton, to send their milk to that factory. Some years ago a movement to build a butter factory was started here but it was not successful, now a good opportunity is here for us to avail ourselves of, if we would combine and purchase a small steam launch which would collect the milk every morning from the farmers on the river the cost would not be very much individually and with the amount of milk we could send to the factory we could obtain the lowest rate for manufacturing it. There is no doubt that it is profitable to co-operate in dairying and there is no prospect of our building a factory here so would it not be a move in the right direction to join with the Co. at Jemseg. If not why not?

Yours truly, R. F. Lake Stream, Kept Co.

March 29.—Many and varied have been the changes in the weather this month, but the most surprising occurred on Friday 23rd inst., when a heavy shower of rain and snow accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning and distinct peals of thunder passed over this place. Mr. A. McDevitt, who has been in poor health for some time past, is now receiving medical attendance from Dr. H. B. Hay.

The school at Lake Stream, which has been closed during the winter months, is to be opened again the 2nd of April under the control of Miss Sadie J. Fulton. Mr. Daniel Duffy passed through here this week en route to Upper Salmon River, where he has been extensively engaged the past winter in hauling logs. Mr. Duffy has wisely been procuring help for the coming drive as men are somewhat scarce and wages are high. Several parties passed through this place this week on their way home, having finished their winter work.

Newcastle Bridge.

On Wednesday, March 21st, in the public hall at Newcastle Bridge, a very successful entertainment was given which far surpassed anything of the kind ever given in this locality.

It was held in connection with an opera supper. The proceeds of which go towards painting the interior of the Baptist Church. The following programme was successfully carried out: Chorus—Greeting glee. Recitation—Opening address. Dialogue—Little drummer. Dialogue—The $30,000 dollar. Speech—Ship of faith. Recitation—Little school no. 1. Dialogue—Hatchabab. Song—Beautiful songs of Spring. Recitation—Johnnie sleepy head. Dialogue—The beautiful man. Dialogue—Hatchabab story. Dialogue—Dead Kitten. Recitation—I go to school. Chorus—"Who was it," Little Girls. Dialogue—Taking the census. Recitation—"St. Peter at the gate. National Anthem.

The sum of $36.80 was realized. Owing to the great depth of snow the lumbermen of this place have closed their winter operations earlier than usual. Miss Laura A. Pond, of Marysville, is visiting her cousin Mrs. J. R. Kennedy. Mrs. Crothers, of Richibucto, who has been spending the winter with her brother, A. M. MacThurrott, has gone to visit another brother at Margerville. Miss Lizzie Porter spent Sunday with her parents at Salmon Creek. Mrs. J. E. Miller has just received a large supply of spring goods including lots of fancy wall paper, which reminds the ladies that house-cleaning time is fast approaching.

Examine the Tongue. The skilled physician reads your condition by a glance at your tongue. If it is coated and you have a bitter taste in your mouth in the morning he knows your liver is torpid and sluggish and prescribes the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They cure biliousness, stomach troubles, and all liver and kidney disorders. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. At all dealers.

Young's Cove Road.

March 26.—The GAZETTE is much appreciated by the young people of this place. Parties are the order of the day, two being held at Cumberland Bay during the past week.

Miss Jennie Jeffery has been visiting friends in St. John for the past week. Misses Alice Ferris and Alice Hannel-packer took tea with Mrs. Andrew Elliott on Thursday last.

Rev. L. J. Wasson's child has been very ill and is attended by Dr. Earle and Armstrong.

Prayer meeting was held at Mr. Andrew Lippert's on Wednesday evening by Rev. L. J. Wasson.

Mr. N. B. Lippert's crew has returned from the woods. Misses Nellie J. Kennedy and Mahal Wiggins spent a very pleasant evening at Mr. George Gale's, of Young's Creek.

Messrs. Wm. and Annie Reid are going to the States. Mr. Annie Smith's home was gladdened by the arrival of a young daughter.

Miss Carrie Jeffrey passed through here on her way to Bagdad.

Waterboro.

The ice in the Grand Lake is beginning to get frail, although a very pleasant trip was enjoyed last Monday when Geo. Orchard, Tammy Purdy, Ella Sherry and Lou Orchard passed through this place on their way to Cumberland Bay.

The school at this place has greatly improved during the last few months under the skillful management of Gordon B. Knight, and we sincerely hope he will stay another term with us as we shall be very sorry to miss his smiling face—especially at the table.

The many friends of Mr. Bron Slecum will be sorry to know that while sawing wood for C. H. Metz he met with the misfortune of having his fingers badly mangled, but he hopes he will soon be able to attend his duties as janitor at the school house at White Hill.

Messrs. Tom and Lovie McLean passed through this place on their way to Jemseg this week where they will spend the remainder of this month in order to secure their papers as Captains.

Miss Victoria McLean intends visiting friends at this place before starting for her future home in Newburyport. We will miss Miss Lena Sharp this week as she intends visiting friends at Raleigh Town.

Mr. John McLean intends helping Mr. James Stephens split wood this week. That Gagetown Street Riot.

To EDITOR QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.

DEAR SIR,—In your issue of March 28th I read an answer to a local which appeared in your issue of March 21st, by one signing himself X. Y. Z.

He begins thus, "any person living here or who has had the pleasure of paying Gagetown a visit, knows that a more gentlemanly class of young men are hard to find." But he says "what must the people think who have never visited Gagetown?" Now if X. Y. Z. wanted to tell the truth, he would have informed your readers, in justice to Gagetown and her young men, that the Riot was caused by outsiders and temporary residents of the town.

Your writer of the 28th ult., refers to W. and the truth, I would say that it takes a truthful man to judge, and therefore I don't think that X. Y. Z. is of much authority, you know the old saying, "Misery likes company." So X. Y. Z. you need not try to bring W. down to your own level. X. Y. Z. also spoke of W. reading the Montreal Star and how they could not sleep being disturbed by steadily visions. I think the brain of the writer of the 28th must be deranged, or else "where there is little given there is little required of him."

Thanking you for the space in your paper. I am, yours truly, Gagetown Boys' Frisend, Gagetown, April 2nd, 1900.

Iron Bound Cove.

Mar. 28.—In looking over the columns of the GAZETTE my attention was directed to a certain remark in the Iron Bound Cove notes in reference to a party from Newcastle, and this place spending an evening at the Coal Mines. As the skating was good I called to the Coal Mines and was there informed that the party from this place was one old gentleman and his wife and a lady friend, and those referred to from Newcastle was a young lady who was visiting in this place and joined the three to have a moonlight drive.

The old gentleman on being told that he was the one referred to as spending a pleasant evening on account of no Gale being around and failing to understand what the Unknown One meant by the Gale stated that Brown's Wharf was always a very calm place and the hunter on his evening expedition would steer close to the wharf to keep out of the wind. He moreover stated that if the "Unknown One" kept from the Coal Mines on account of the Gale at Brown's Wharf he would not be much good in South Africa, and I believe the old gentleman is right.

Miss Sarah Harrison spent a few days at Chipman last week. Miss Belle Pollock has returned home from Chipman. Miss Pollock was the guest of Miss Maggie Thompson on the 23rd inst.

Messrs. Richard Graves and Joe Lucas were at the Coal Mines Saturday evening.

Mr. Fred Pollock has returned home again. Mr. Sam Harrison spent Sunday at the Coal Mines.

So now showing you Mr. Editor, for this space in your valuable paper, and hoping the "Unknown One" will soon write again, I will sign myself, etc.

"Open Door" in China.

New York, March 28.—A Chicago despatch says that a special to the Times-Herald from its Washington correspondent, Walter Wellman, gives what Mr. Wellman says are the actual demands made on China in the matter of maintaining the "open door." These demands have been acceded to by China, the despatch says. The demands amounted to the following: 1, that each, within its "sphere of influence" or leased territory, in China should pledge itself not in any way to interfere with any treaty port or vested right within the "sphere" or territory under lease. 2, That in all ports within the "spheres of influence," except few ports, all merchandise landed or shipped, irrespective of nationality, shall pay the Chinese treaty tariff of the time being, and the duty shall be paid to the Chinese government. 3, That in particular the "spheres of influence" the government controlling that sphere will levy no greater harbor duties on vessels of any nationality than are levied on vessels of its own nationality, and that on railroads built, controlled or operated within those spheres the citizens of other nationalities shall pay no higher charges for transportation of merchandise than are paid by the citizens of the powers controlling such "spheres." The powers making the demands were Great Britain, Russia, Germany, France, Italy, Japan and the United States.

A FORESTER'S CASE.

Chronic Kidney Disease Cured After Eight Years' Agony.

Mr. John J. Burns Gives His Experience With Dodd's Kidney Pills—Nothing Else Gave Relief—Death Seemed Near—Dodd's Kidney Pills Never Fail.

DARLEY, P. E. I., April 2.—There are many members of the Independent Order of Foresters in this town, and the surrounding country district, and they are among the most respectable, wealthy, and estimable citizens of the district. They are all thoroughly acquainted with the case of Mr. John J. Burns, a popular member of the order, who conducts a boot and shoe business here.

Mr. Burns has had an experience that has been given to but few men. He has stood in the presence of the grim tyrant Death, within the very shadow of his wings. The monster's hand was outstretched to grasp his victim, and Mr. Burns was within an infinitely short distance of his grave, when a protecting influence came between him and Death, and the demon was put to flight. Dodd's Kidney Pills were his protectors. Death attacked him in the disguise of Kidney Disease.

For over eight years Mr. Burns had endured the agonies of chronic inflammation of the Kidneys. His pains were indescribable. Every effort to obtain relief or cure utterly failed. There seemed no other ending of his misery but death.

Provisionally Mr. Burns heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He tried them. They cured him. His Forester friends know it. His neighbors know it. Hundreds who never saw him know it. They all know that Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all other Kidney Troubles.

Wickham.

March 17.—Permit me once more to encroach upon your columns, with a few rambling notes from this quiet village. I will begin by stating a calamity.

One fine night in the present month Mr. Thos. W. London met with a severe loss—his summer residence being burned while he and his wife were in St. John spending the winter. The people of the vicinity were much surprised on seeing nothing but the foundation remaining. The general impression is that Mr. London left the building without the necessary precautions of closing draught turning damper, etc., when he left last autumn. It is thought that Mr. London will rebuild in a few weeks. A similar disaster occurred at the same gentleman's last spring.

Miss Moss of this place has just returned from a very enjoyable trip to St. John. Rumor says that the wedding bells will likely ring about Wickham soon. So may it be.

One of our most popular young men, Mr. Wm. Foster, it is said, intends taking his leave to Uncle Sam's Territory to spend the remainder of his days. We are very sorry to hear of his intended departure and hope that the change may be beneficial to his health etc.

Miss Ina Monteith is spending the spring with her sister Mrs. Stanley Akeley of Westheadmont. She is much missed in social circles.

McCrea Bros. have finished their lumbering operations. They have about 850 logs on the bank.

Miss Sadie McCrea has returned from a very enjoyable visit at Belleisle.
