BEAVER FLOUR
COSTS LESS - IS BETTER - AND GOES FURTHER THAN ANY WESTERN WHEAT FLOUR.

Because "Beaver" Flour is the original and genuine blended flour. It contains nutritious, full flavored Ontario fall wheat, blended with a little Manitoba spring wheat to give added strength.

"Beaver" Flour is not like the woman who can make only one kind of cake or one kind of fancy pastry. "Beaver" Flour is like the attractive, capable, clever housewife who can make Bread, Rolls and Biscuits - Cakes, Pies and Pastry - and makes them all equally well. That's the flour you want! WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XVIII.

"Oh, hang Froude!"

"What—now? Aren't you satisfied yet? Hang him by all means; quarter him, too, if you like."

"Pooh! I say, Ned, my boy, you'll keep it quiet, eh?"

"What—under madame?" I said, with a grimace.

"Of course, I shall speak to her as soon as I have the right—you needn't be afraid of that. But I must see Natalie again first."

"Oh, of course!" I assented, thinking how odd the familiar mention of the little damsel's name sounded from his lips. "I'll keep dark, never fear!"

But, I say, look here, you know—don't let me in for breaking the news, I bar that."

"And so do I, since it is my business. By Jove, there goes seven! There will be a score of patients in the surgery. Remember now, don't you talk; and good-night."

He was off across the common at his usual break-neck rate before the last words were well out, and I turned toward home at a slower pace. Rigid as the rule at Chavasse was, I knew that in the circumstances it would be in far too great a commo-

Unable to Work for 14 Months

Mr. Henry Black.

What a helpless mass of flesh and bone the human body is, once the nerves become exhausted. Extreme weakness comes over you, and you lose control of the limbs. The next step is paralysis.

You will be fortunate if, like Mr. Black, you get the building-up process in action before it is forever too late. By forming new, rich blood Dr. Chase's Nerve Food carries new vigor and energy to every organ and every member of the human body.

Mr. Henry Black, 31 St. Catherine street east, Montreal, Que., writes:—

"The wonderful results I obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food constrain me to write this letter in order that others who suffer from nervous exhaustion and weakness may use this medicine with equally satisfactory results. As the result of overwork I became completely exhausted, and was unable to work for fourteen months. As I am the father of a family, these were sad days for me, but after I had used six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I had improved so greatly that I continued the crackling of the branches, and, besides, they were too thick to be pulled aside in a moment like that. Had he tumbled into the ditch? That did not appear partion to be punctual with dinner. I calculated that if I reached home at eight o'clock I should still be in time.

It was bitterly cold and damp, and before I was at the end of the village I began to wish that I had kept Gray Donald to ride back on, or had taken a seat in the carriage. Altogether I was uncomfortably chilly and outrageously hungry when I reached the junction of the roads and branched off toward Mount Chavasse.

Just at that time it was not so cheerful a place for a late walk. The footway was no better, and I supposed no worse, than country footways; mostly are, being as muddy, sloppy, and rough as it well could be; and the tall thick hedges on each side rendered it uncomfortably dark at the best of times; while here and there, huge trees arched and met overhead their gaunt bare boughs interlacing. Not one of the maids at Chavasse—even the cool practical Virtue—would have undertaken to walk into the village after dark—a fact which madame, who scorned nervousness as something she did not understand, he least, had found herself bound to acknowledge. But I was not nervous, luckily, and kept up my brisk pace, by no means sorry that dinner was to be found at the end of this uncomfortable tramp.

I had almost reached the environs of the park when I jumped back suddenly, and setting my foot in an abominable icy puddle, almost slipped down. From the hedge on my right a man sprang out into the middle of the lane, barely a pace in front of me. A queer-looking figure he was—tall, thin, shabbily dressed, and with a great rough traveling cloak tossed over his shoulder. But it was his face which made me stare at him. He was not English—that was certain. No Englishman ever had that dark skin, swarthy yet sallow, those large intensely black eyes, or that thick long mustache, with its ends curling downward almost as low as his chin.

I stared at him, and he stared at me, and so we stood for a moment. The moon was up, as I have said, and its light showed me another odd thing about this man's face—an ugly irregular scar running transversely from the roots of his hair to the left eyebrow, and giving him an oddly sinister look. Altogether he wanted only a slouched hat to make him look like the villain of an old melodrama. Apparently I had startled him as much as he had startled me, for he muttered something—not in English—and, swinging round upon his heel, pulled his cloak round him and stroled down the lane at a rapid pace. The road curved just there, and he was out of sight in a moment, but I was more than a trifle astonished when I rounded the curve to find that he had disappeared.

I stood looking round in bewilderment. I had certainly seen the man, and yet where was he now—vanished? Had he broken through the hedge again? It might be, but surely I should have heard the crackling of the branches, and, besides, they were too thick to be pulled aside in a moment like that. Had he tumbled into the ditch? That did not appear particularly likely unless he was tipsy, which he had not seemed to be. All I knew was that he had disappeared; the road stretched before me straight and level as far as I could see, and I myself was the only person on it. Puzzled, I went on to the gate in the park palings, and, passing through, branched off in the direction of the Lady's Walk, which was the nearest cut to the house. I was in the little layrel alley which led to it when a light rapid footfall sounded close at hand; there was the soft swishing of a silk dress as some one came upon with a rush from round the corner, and for the second time that night my arm was clutched and an eager face was peering into mine.

The trees were so thick just there, and it was so dark in consequence that it was not at once that I recognized Mlle Valdin—a mademoiselle whom I had never seen excited—trembling, frightened, all her governess composure gone. She was in her square-cut dinner-dress with its elbow sleeves, and seemed to have darted out of the house in a violent hurry, waiting to put no wrap on, for she was panting and the breath came from her parted lips in gasps as she clutched my arm, her pale face and wild dark eyes raised to mine. Phi! Good had held my arm tightly, but his grasp was nothing to the vise-like grip of those thin white fingers round my wrist, and a piece of ice could hardly have been colder. What on earth was the matter with the governess? I wondered, my thoughts flying to the possibility of an accident to be carriage on the road home; or perhaps Nat was really hurt, after all!

"What is it?" I asked hastily. "Did you come to look for me, mademoiselle? Nothing more wrong, I hope?"

"Eh!" she cried, shrilly, dropping my arm as she retreated a step. "I am you, then, Monsieur Ned?"

"Of course it is. What did you want me for? Anything with Miss Orme?"

"Want you for—?" she exclaimed. "Eh, what mean you then? What do you think I want, monsieur?" she asked, volubly. Mademoiselle was always given to clipping her sentences when she was excited or put out. If I could trust my eyes, she was both now.

She drew out of my path without giving me time to answer one of her rapid questions, and motioned with her hand for me to pass on.

"Go in!" she said, quickly. "You have been long, monsieur, and the dinner will wait in a little while. Madame wants you—she has asked for you."

"Then you did come to look for me?" I said, standing still instead of passing on.

"But I did not, I say. I look for me. I came out for the pain—the ache in my head."

"Does your head ache?" I said involuntarily. "I'm sure I'm sorry for that, mademoiselle. I suppose Miss Orme's accident scared you. I hope it is not much"—for mademoiselle, when she had headaches at all, usually had them with a vengeance.

"Bah, nothing—a bagatelle!" she returned, passing her hand over her forehead. "It will go; it is the fright—yes. Go in then, you, to madame."

She waved her hand again, drawing the trained draperies of her black silk gown out of my way, and this time I did pass on, pausing, however, to look back at her as she stood there shivering with her bare neck and arms.

"I say, mademoiselle, I wouldn't stay out long like that if I were you. It's awfully cold. Wouldn't you be better for a shawl or something?"

"No, I come in directly. Go then!"

I went, feeling that if the lady caught cold it was her business, not mine; as I turned into the Lady's Walk I heard the rustle and swirl of the governess's silk dress as she passed rapidly down the narrow laurel alley.

I crossed the hall to the drawing-room, expecting to find madame here, but Virtue Dent, going towards the dining-room with a waiter in her hand, checked me.

"Is madame down yet, Virtue?" I asked.

"Not yet, sir."

"But she is asking for me, isn't she?"

"I don't think so, sir—leastways I haven't heard her. She said to Miss Natalie just now that she hardly expected you'd be in to dinner; you would most likely stop talking to Dr. Yorke."

So mademoiselle, for some reason best known to herself, had told a fib. I appeared. I wondered what in the world she meant by it.

"How is Miss Natalie, Virtue?" Does she seem any the worse for her tumble?"

"Not a bit, sir, only that her headaches, she says; but madame thinks the had best not come down this evening. Valla is with her, and I'm just going to take her up some dinner. Madame is dressing."

And I had better dress, too, I knew, unless I wanted to get into my mother's bad graces, and so raced upstairs to my room to exchange my mud-spattered riding habiliments for something more civilized. Nat's room was only just across the corridor; the door was ajar, and I heard the sound of her voice, and presently a laugh—as she talked to Valla, I suppose. Had she told madame? I wondered, recalling how shy and pretty the sweet little dark face had been as I caught a glimpse of it when that unconscious lady had come hurrying into old Wilde's cottage. I hardly thought it likely that she had done so; the domestic atmosphere did not seem stormy, and the first glance I gave at madame's face as we entered the dining-room told me decidedly that she had not.

It was not a silent meal, for my mother had plenty to say about Nat's accident—how fortunate it was that Doctor Yorke had been on the spot, and had a great many questions to ask; but the talk was entirely between her and myself. Mademoiselle came to the table looking wretchedly pale and cold, and sat toying with her knife and fork, hardly eating a mouthful.

This Home-made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You
Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly. A Family Supply at Small Cost.

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough instantly, and will usually cure the most stubborn case in 24 hours. This recipe makes 16 ounces—enough for a whole family. You couldn't buy as much or as good ready-made cough syrup for $2.50.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

You probably know the medical value of pine in treating asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, sore lungs, etc. There is nothing better. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in galic acid and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends for it in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

PASTORAL LETTER

OF MICHAEL FRANCIS, BY THE GRACE OF GOD AND FAVOUR OF THE APOSTOLIC SEE, ARCHBISHOP OF ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — TO ALL THE FAITHFUL, CLERGY AND LAITY OF THE ARCHDIOCESE. — HEALTH AND BENEDICTION.

Dear Beloved in Christ,

Once more as the Holy Season of Lent approaches, the duty becomes incumbent on Us of addressing you in the form of a Pastoral Letter.

In looking abroad over the face of the world to-day, it is impossible not to be struck with astonishment and wonder at the vast strides that have been made by men in the regions of science and physical enterprise. Man seems to have grasped, and harnessed to his use, the most hidden and powerful forces of Nature. Time and space have been minimized as to be almost abolished, and the most distant bounds of the world are brought together. The air, the earth, the sky, all are being dominated by the great powers of the human mind, and man has reason to be elated and to cry out with the Psalmist, "What is man, that Thou art mindful of him? Thou hast made him a little less than the Angels. Thou hast crowned him with glory and honour. Thou hast set him over the works of Thy hands. Thou hast subjected all things under his feet."—Ps. VIII-5-6. But unfortunately, while man has been absorbed in the study and development of all these material forces, and secret powers of the universe, they are not to forget that there is another, a higher, a holier, a more sacred, side to human character, a more noble and exalted sphere of human knowledge, namely, the moral and religious. That region of human aspirations which stretches away beyond this present perishable world into Eternity. It is sad to note that this religious and moral side of man's nature has not advanced in proportion to his material and physical progress. Indeed we are sometimes inclined to believe that this better and more exalted aspect of man's character has not only not advanced during these latter years, but has actually retrograded; gone backwards, and sunk to a more debasing level than even in the days of paganism.

It is now nearly two thousand years since the ennobling doctrine of Christianity was unfolded to the world, and the pure moral stream of the Gospel-teaching was poured forth into the seething gulf of pagan depravity which then enveloped the whole human race. St. Paul in his Epistle to the Corinthians (I. Cor. V.) gives us a glimpse of the horrible and unmanly state of immorality which existed among all classes, at the time of the introduction of Christianity. "But," he says, "you are washed, but you are not sanctified, but you are justified, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the spirit of our Lord."—(ib. VI-11). Ever since that day the warfare has been going on between virtue and religion on the one hand, and vice and immorality on the other. And sometimes, when the veil is for a moment raised over the depravity and infamy of the world, we begin to ask: How Christianity made any headway at all against this dreadful torrent of iniquity?

Notwithstanding all the prayers that are being constantly poured forth in the choirs of God's churches, and the cries raised from the thousand choristers of religious men and women, besieging the throne of mercy, for peace and good will among men on earth; yet behold at this present moment whole armies of men arrayed in warlike attitude, bent upon destroying each other and sending down to death and their fellows, even innocent women and children not being spared, in this fiendish carnage. Again, where men are not actually slaughtering and butchering each other, they are slaying and persecuting each other. The spirit of disorder, irregularity and insubordination is abroad; the whole social and commercial fabric is unseamly and dislocated; mutiny and rebellion against all authority are rife; and the very foundations of the social system are in a state of upheaval. The spirit of anarchy and false equality is infused by designing men into the minds of simple people; upsetting and destroying their natural sense of Justice and Peace, and charity, and filling their minds with hatred and suspicion of their employers. Even the very women—the female portion of society—those whom God has created in a more fragile mould, and of a more delicate texture; and has destined to the peaceful circle of domestic life and family duties; they, too, have become tainted with the foul spirit of the age, and have unsexed and degraded themselves, seeking to intrude into spheres for which God never intended them, seeking to fill the positions intended by God for the coarser and less sensitive portion of humanity. Thus have they striped themselves of all the graces and charms, and refinements with which God has adorned them and made of themselves brazen, unattractive and revolting caricatures. How different is all this from the beautiful picture of the noble woman given us in God's inspired word: "The heart of her husband trusteth in her. She will render him good and not evil, all the days of her life. . . . She hath opened her hand to the needy, and stretched out her hand to the poor. . . . Strength and beauty are her clothing, and she shall laugh in the latter day. She hath looked well to the paths of her house, and hath not eaten her bread idly. . . . The woman that feareth the Lord shall be praised."—(Proverbs XXXI). All this beautiful description has been perverted and corrupted by those modern undignified women who seek to assume positions and duties foreign to their sex.

Then in the moral life it would seem that all the sweet and chastening teaching of Christ has been forgotten and rejected, and that the world has gone back to a state of filthy and impure paganism. The sacred tie of marriage, of which Our Lord spoke in these solemn and awe-inspiring words. . . . "What God has joined together let no man put asunder."—(Matth. XIX-6). This sacred and inviolable bond, the foundation of all society, has been ruthlessly torn to pieces and desecrated. The fatal blight of that sacrilegious undoing of the most sacred tie; that impious defiance of God's most solemn command, has been now sanctioned legally in many countries which still call themselves Christian.

This fatal dissolution of the only bond which can keep society together, is now so universally sanctioned that all the safeguards of human society are broken down and the population in these countries is in a terrible state of confusion, immorality, and decadence. The curse of divorce is accountable for more desolate and orphaned children than all the diseases and maladies which afflict the human race. In England alone during the past year, the Divorce Courts have thrown upon the world no less than seventy thousand children, (70,000) orphaned; not by the hand of God; not by the death of their parents; but by the impious laws of divorce. The Catholic Church stands out to-day, alone, as she has always stood, as champion of the unity and perpetuity of the marriage tie. Another most shocking development of the spirit of immorality and lawlessness which has assumed most alarming proportions of late years is the horrible practice known as White Slavery.

It is nothing more or less than the trafficking in the virtue and purity and chastity of young girls, who are trapped and sold by human fiends for immoral purposes. Thousands upon thousands of innocent girls and young women are annually swallowed up in this dreadful vortex of vice in the large cities of Europe and America. They are ruined and destroyed body and soul; for Time and for Eternity.

We sometimes, dear people, are inclined to lament and complain of our isolation here in Newfoundland; our separation from all the excitement and movements in the world, our provincialism and lack of progress; but we should on the contrary, thank God that we are saved from such contaminations and dangers as those. As far as we know these evils have not yet made their appearance among us, though some rumors have come to our ears that seem to point to the insidious creeping in among us of some of these enemies of virtue. We have heard that there are among us agents of this inhuman and fiendish traffic of the flesh, and that some of our Priests there are always on the alert, have not yet reported to Us the existence of any of these symptoms; but we cannot be too cautious or too vigilant, and it is better that this pestilence should be forestalled, than that we should wait till it has actually appeared among us, and then endeavour to stamp it out. We would suggest that action be taken immediately by our Local Authorities in this matter. Large numbers of our innocent girls leave our shores annually. It seems to Us that the whole question of the emigration and the engagement of these girls by agents, the methods made use of to entice them away from home, and the arrangements made for their reception and employment in foreign countries, should be made the subject of a thorough investigation by a Commission legally appointed for the purpose. We need not dwell upon the terrible responsibility resting upon parents in regard to allowing their children to go abroad.

In England at the present day the most drastic legislation has been passed against the agents or, as they are called, "procurers" of this immoral trade. The law inflicts the degrading punishment of "flogging" upon the culprits, for it is acknowledged that such fiends in human shape are impervious to any moral punishment; and the only way to produce an effect on them is to treat them as we do the brute beast—with physical punishment. In a country like ours where the greater portion of the people are engaged in nautical occupation, and spend the greater part of their time sailing with the dangers of the ocean, few are the firebrands which do not cease to mourn the loss of some loved one, swallowed up by the relentless sea. During the past year the "toll of the ocean" has been perhaps more heavy than usual, and while the generosity and charity of our people has been truly noble towards the afflicted survivors; yet the task of succouring all those in need is becoming almost too burdensome for private charity, and we hail with gladness, the report which we have heard, of the establishment of some permanent and official fund from which, in urgent cases, the stricken ones may be assisted.

Coming to look more closely into the state of our own Catholic people, and the condition of our Church, we have reason to be grateful. In nearly all the outlying parishes the works of Religion and Education are being prosecuted with energy; new churches and new school-houses and halls are being erected. In St. John's during the past year the heavy debt contracted in the building of the new St. Bonaventure's College, is being rapidly paid off. In this connection we feel it our duty to pay a special tribute to the untiring zeal of the Ladies' Committee who have practically taken upon themselves the liquidating of this debt. During the past year large and expensive improvements have been made at St. Patrick's Church, River Head. The committee formed among the leading men of the Parish pushed the work to completion with great energy. The whole of the heating system has been renewed, but the growing work was the completion of the magnificent bell-tower and spire. This portion of the Church has stood there unaltered for the past half century an eyecore to the observers, and a reproach to the Parish. It is now completed and is converted into an object of beauty to be seen for miles in all directions. At the Orphanage, Mount Cashel under the energetic management of Brother Ennis and his assistants, the New Wing, (a magnificent building in concrete) has been completed, as also a large and commodious Boiler-House.

At Littledale Academy the splendid new Convent has been erected and is now in occupancy by the boarders. This is one of the most beautiful buildings in the vicinity of St. John's and the most perfect in all its equipments. Standing as it does in the midst of the Waterford Valley, on the margin of the rippling stream, and surrounded by wooded hills and pastoral fields, it would be difficult to find a more pleasing prospect, and our people may rest confident that within its walls their children will receive a most satisfactory training morally and intellectually.

While we contemplate with satisfaction all this development in church and school-buildings, there is still one very urgent need to which we desire to call your attention. We mean the creation of a fund for the education of Ecclesiastical Students. There are at present some fifteen or sixteen Newfoundland students in various foreign institutions studying for the Priesthood. Of these eleven are for the Archdiocese of St. John's. As there is no special fund for this purpose the burthen upon the Archbishop becomes very heavy. It is Our intention then to call upon all members of the flock to help Us in this most necessary work.

We request every Parish-Priest to establish a Collection for this purpose. We leave it to the discretion of the Parish-Priests to select the day for making the collection in their parishes, but we desire that it be done as soon as possible, as a very large sum has been paid during the past year on this head.

We intend this collection to be annual, so as to form a permanent fund which we hope in the course of time may enable Us to found an Ecclesiastical Seminary. College for the preliminary education of students. This Seminary will be, at least in its beginnings, of moderate proportions capable of accommodating some ten or twelve students. It will be erected on vacant ground not far from the Cathedral so that the pupils may be able to attend the functions and thus acquire a knowledge of the Sacred Rubrics, which is one of the principal parts of an Ecclesiastical Education. It will be under the charge of one or two Priests so that the spirit of the Religious Vocation may be cherished and fostered in the hearts and characters of the youthful students. The subjects for this institution will be selected from the boys in the College, who on the basis of their marks that seem to indicate their aptitude for a Religious Vocation. They will be transferred to the Seminary, there to pass a year or two in the study of Classics or Philosophy before being sent to some of the Colleges in Europe, for their Theological course. We now appoint next Sunday, the first Sunday in Lent for the taking up of the Collection in the Churches of the City.

We are happy to be able to announce that during Our stay in Canada last summer We made arrangements for the holding of

A Mission during the present Lent, and We have succeeded in securing the services of our of the Redemptorist Fathers to conduct the Mission. It will open in the Cathedral on next Sunday, the first Sunday of Lent, February 9th, and will continue for two weeks till February 23rd. On that evening it will open in St. Patrick's and continue for two weeks more till March 4th closing on Passion Sunday. It is now ten years since our people enjoyed the benefits of a Mission, viz., in the year 1903.

We exhort you, dear people, to dispose yourselves by prayer and fasting and by attendance at the Religious Services, to reap the full benefits of this spiritual harvest. To stir up the Grace of God that is in your souls. Remember that during this time of Mission Almighty God opens up for you all the stores of His bounteous mercy. He offers you a full measure of His Divine Charity. Remember that a great responsibility remains upon every one of you to avail of these gracious gifts and prepare yourselves by the reception of the Holy Sacraments of Penance and the Blessed Eucharist to secure for yourselves the plenitude of God's Mercy and Love. We give thanks to God always for you all, making a remembrance for you in Our prayers without ceasing.—(Eph. I. 2).

Stop Coughing

It's quite as foolish as it is annoying to keep on coughing since Phoratox Cough Mixture is guaranteed to soothe and heal the irritated parts at once, and to rapidly destroy the very cause of this aggravating nuisance. Hundreds of persons are complaining every day about the cough or cold they have had for a long time and are not able to get rid of it. Don't let a Cough or Cold hang on to you day after day and run the chance of catching and developing the Cough that is not easy to get rid of. You will avoid all this unnecessary worry (about the cough or cold you have) by obtaining "Phoratox Cough Mixture" at once.

Delaney and Tucker

HAVE A CHAT ON MORE DAYLIGHT

What do you think of the Daylight Bill? asks Tucker.

Fine idea, says Tucker, providing we can manage to get another Bill passed to keep people awake in the day time, and prevent us from dreaming while we are standing on our "pins." You know in this country, says Tucker, we often think we're awake when in reality we are dreaming. Look around yourself, Delaney, and see the amount of dreaming we have done about hotel building. See the nightmares we have tussled with and notice the amount of coal boring we have performed in our minds. Open your "peepers" and behold the range of houses we have built for the workmen with our tongues. We think we're awake, but it is only imagination on our part, Delaney, my boy.

Some people, says Tucker, never dream when they go to bed, but just as soon as they hoist themselves out of bunk the dreaming machinery starts revolving again. In all the mouths of the year we dream, says Tucker. There's no close season on dreaming. The dreamers are just as busy when it's ninety-five in the shade as when it's fifteen below zero. Oh yes, says Delaney, daylight is a fine thing, a fine thing entirely, but most of us don't like too much light, especially if it's thrown on our private actions. We like plenty of light for shooting, or golfing, or on the day of the Races, but we don't want light to penetrate any further than our sweaters, not a bit of it. If we look at the benefits we will gain from more daylight we ought to be honest enough to admit that we waste a big lot of the light that we have now. This like the man who thinks he'd do wonders if he could run up against a big wall of money, but give him the spon-

Wooden Sealing Steamers.

A SUGGESTION.

Editor Evening Telegram.

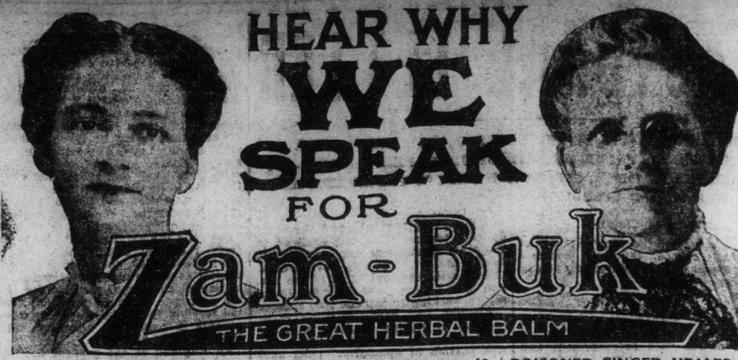

Dear Sir.—We would like to see the owners of wooden sealing ships depart from the customs of the past as regards the shipping of crews. We would suggest that each steamer take a certain number of men for the whole voyage, say one-third of the crew. This, we think, should consist of gunners and their assistants, etc., and should follow up the voyage under certain arrangements. The other two-thirds should remain on the ships until about the fifth of April, and no longer, and if the ship is not in port by that date those men should be landed at their homes, while the other portion of the crew remain on and prosecute the voyage to a finish. If the ship misses the young seals it is unfair and a waste of time and money to keep the full crews out until some time in May as is often the case. The great objection of the to-day as regards signing on wooden ships is that if unsuccessful in securing the whitecoats they are compelled to lose a month of valuable time in a further search for old seals, which month is one of great hardship an entail great suffering from the miseries entailed by the close confinement of the living and sleeping quarters, by the wretched weather, poor food, and the usual accompaniments which are ever present under circumstances such as control the prosecution of the sealing voyage. Each steamer should take her crew from one or two ports which would permit the captain to return and land his short term men without loss of time or inconvenience to the men. The seals secured after the second departure would be packed separately and weighed out separately. Some men may be willing to continue the second trip and would ship to do so, while many object to being kept out after April 5th, and the latter are justified in objecting. While the wooden ships prosecute the sealing voyage some such arrangement is necessary both in the interest of owners as well as men.

We trust the owners will take those suggestions under consideration immediately and arrange for crews accordingly, as there is plenty of time to make arrangements for the coming spring.

Yours truly,
W. F. COAKER,
Pres. F. P. U.
St. John's, Feb. 3rd, 1913.

Successful "At Home."

The C. C. C. Corps held their Annual "At Home" in the British Hall last night. It was under the patronage of His Grace the Archbishop and eclipsed all former successes. Amongst the four or five hundred persons present were His Grace the Archbishop, Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche, Revs. Frs. McDermott, Pippy and Kelly, Hon. J. Harris, T. J. Edens, I. G. Sullivan, members of the Christian Brothers, representatives of the sister Brigades, and members of the committee. The ballroom was prettily decorated by Staff-Sergeant Murphy. At 8.15 the concert commenced consisting of an overture by the band of the Corps; solos by Miss D'Alberti and Mr. C. Hutton and choruses by St. Patrick's Hall School boys. Each of the numbers elicited an encore. Dancing commenced at 9.30. The ladies' committee served teas at 11 o'clock after which dancing was continued until an early hour this morning.

INJURED FOOT CURED.

"I speak for Zam-Buk because it cured me of a terribly bad foot," says Mrs. Alice Berryman of 190 John St. North, Hamilton. She adds: "The injury was caused by a wagon wheel, and the sore was on my right foot. It became very inflamed and swollen and so painful that I fainted away. In spite of treatment, the wound got no better and the foot became more and more swollen until it was several times its usual size. The flesh was terribly bruised and blackened and it was quite impossible for me to walk. My husband's mother at last brought me a box of Zam-Buk. This was applied to the foot and it was surprising how soon I found relief from the severe pain. A further supply of Zam-Buk was obtained and I persevered in using this balm alone. In a couple of days the swelling had gone down considerably, the discoloration was less distinct and the pain was banished. In four days I could go about as usual: the bruised and injured foot had been thoroughly cured by the timely use of Zam-Buk."

Did you ever ask yourself: "How is it that Zam-Buk is so popular?"

It is because it is superior and different to other salves. Contrast them! Most salves are nine-tenths animal oil or fat. Zam-Buk hasn't a trace of animal fat in it. Most salves contain mineral coloring matter. Zam-Buk is absolutely without! Many salves contain poisonous astringents. Zam-Buk doesn't. Zam-Buk is actually more powerfully antiseptic than crude carbolic acid. Yet it stops instead of causing pain and smarting when put on a wound. It heals more quickly than any known substance, abscesses, ulcers, eczema, blood-poisoning, cuts, scalp sores, chaps and all skin injuries and diseases. All drugs and stores sell at 50c a box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 1c stamp for trial box.

POISONED FINGER HEALED.

Mrs. Frank St. Denis of 305 Thompson St., Winnipeg, speaks for Zam-Buk because it cured her of a poisoned finger, which had caused her days of agony. Hear her experience. She says: "One morning, while washing, I felt a slight pain in the end of my finger. This gradually got more acute until by the evening of the next day the end of the finger had become swollen and hard and so blue I became alarmed. "The pain from it was almost too much to bear. It made me turn quite sick! Pouches of first one kind and then another were applied, but seemed to give me no relief. My daughter-in-law, who had had some previous experience with Zam-Buk obtained a box for me. I anointed the sore place liberally with this balm, and in a few hours, the throbbing aching pains were subdued. Further applications of Zam-Buk gave me more ease, so that I could get a little sleep. In a few days the nail came off, but after that Zam-Buk seemed to reduce the inflammation quickly. I continued its use until in the end it had brought about complete cure."

Men Are Getting

NEARLY AS MUCH SENSE AS WOMEN.

Quite often now you hear a man say, "When do the stores begin holding their winter shoe sales? I want to lay in my year's supply of shoes." Or, you will hear a man tell his wife, "Better look through the papers my dear, before you buy that stuff." And "my dear," who has never done anything else but look through the papers for the past ten years before she has bought any stuff, simply smiles tolerantly and continues with her own shrewd shopping by constantly following the advertising in her own shrewd way.

But it speaks well for the growing intelligence of most men to see that they are beginning to notice that there is such a thing as advertising.

A store can actually offer exceptional bargains, as quite a few stores are doing in this paper to-day, and expect to get a goodly crowd of men. Not only that, but these men seem to be pleased at saving a good amount of money on the personal things they buy.

In other words, the old, Tom-fool idea about advertising has just about passed away.

Advertising is a low priced scientific selling method, which is used by all of the brightest business concerns. When a store can sell 200 pairs of shoes through advertising with the same amount of light and heat and rent required to sell one hundred pairs without advertising, there isn't much question about the value of that advertising to the stores nor about the extra profit to you.

Furthermore, when a store can come out with its Clearance Sales, as most stores are doing now, and by advertising reduced prices, can turn its entire winter stock into cash and be ready with a brand new stock for spring, there isn't much question of the value of that advertising for them and there certainly isn't much question of that kind of bargains for you.

Don't worry about these stores. They have had to figure in season upon cutting their prices out of season, and if you do not get your share of these bargains now, you certainly are not getting what is coming to you. There are some remarkable bargains being offered in this paper these days, and any man who doesn't watch

Earlshall Coming With New Captain

The barque Earlshall is now at Liverpool, being repaired and will leave here for this port a few weeks hence. Capt. Faulke, who left here for Southampton to bring out Job's new auxiliary vessel, the Netherthorn, has taken command of the barque in place of Capt. McConney, who has left her. The Earlshall met with a serious mishap. She left Glasgow last fall for this port and after being absent a month at sea, put into Swansea to get competent seamen, which were obtained and the vessel made a second attempt to reach St. John's. This time she was storm-tossed and got into Queenstown in a crippled condition, the crew having a thrilling experience.

It is not decided yet who will go across after the Netherthorn, which Capt. Faulke was to go in.

Had an Enjoyable Time

The members of the Total Abstinence Society band were dined by the Society last night at Wood's West End Restaurant, when about 50 persons had a very pleasing evening. The menu was of a very tempting character and was done full justice to, after which a very comprehensive toast list was discussed and brought forth some fluent and witty speeches. Responding to the toast of the President, Mr. W. J. Ellis, the occupant of that office in the Society, reviewed the work of the organization and referred with pleasure to the complimentary notice of the body made in a recent issue of the Montreal Tribune. Speeches were delivered also by ex-President J. J. Bates and Messrs. P. J. Hanley, T. J. Redmond, J. Clancey, J. Nangle and V. P. Griffin, and Mr. Wm. Pope, recently appointed instructor of the band. Ex-President P. J. O'Neill was unavoidably absent. Songs were rendered during the evening by Messrs. P. J. Murphy, J. P. Grace, N. J. Murphy, N. J. Wadden and T. Walsh, and recitations by T. J. Rolls and E. Bailey. A vote of thanks was accorded the caterers, after which this most enjoyable reunion terminated.

PORTIA DRIVEN BACK.

A message was received yesterday afternoon by Bowring's coastal office from Capt. J. Keen, of the s.s. Portia, of Channel, stating in effect that the steamer had met with heavy arctic ice and it was impossible for her to get around Cape Ray. The ship is now coming east, due here Thursday or Friday.

Things Do Not "Just Happen"

But are the result of the intelligent work of a healthy body and brain— But body and brain cannot do their best work unless nourished and built up on the right kind of food.

Grape-Nuts

is a well-balanced food made of wheat and barley and contains the vital food elements in form for easy digestion.

It meets Nature's requirements for building strong bodies and active brains.

When these are healthy a person is equipped to "do things."

The Old Liberal Standard.

If the searchlight of truth be turned upon the writer of the political effusions in the Daily News, he will be regarded as the author of a great deal of artful sophistry, and, when some near of remote personal interests are in sight, of fulsome and unmeaning flattery. The "prospect" has a great deal to do in the way of deciding as to whether or not the author shall censure or commend.

In the first article, published on Saturday last, on "Retrospect and Prospect," he steers wide from the truth and coins axioms that would afford merit for the most stupid schoolboy. "Publicity," says he, "is the basis of democracy." Can anybody interpret what this means—this high-sounding, empty logic—?

Does he mean to claim the democratic element for the Government, on the ground that they have scouted the Vox Populi, ignored the people's petitions, defied their most reasonable demands, squandered their revenues, clung with leech-like tenacity to the public chest, violated their most sacred pledges, wasted the people's money in useless picnicking and many other violations of public confidence—all of which being matters of public notoriety. If such be the writer's thought and idea, I would say—

May Heaven Deliver this Country from Such a Party!

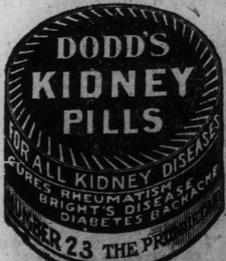

I would rather have said, The basis for democracy is truth—truth, holding up with one hand the flag of a common brotherhood and with the other the flag of equal rights for every class, and creed occupying the circumscribed territory of this old Colony of the Crown.

I am aware that the writer does not want this. I suppose he would like to have in office always a few pliable politicians that he could encourage with hope, or move with fear whenever his own exigencies prompted him.

Then, with regard to the Government, the mountain labors again and brings forth a veritable mouse. This is what he says—"the ship is man-made, the haven God-given, but the honors of navigation rightly belong to the captain." Well, supposing we take this to be true, but it really is not, then the dishonor and disgrace of getting the ship out of her proper course, having to jettison the valuable cargo, and in the confusion and disorder running the ship on the rocks—then every ruinous mishap which occurs "rightly belongs to the captain."

But then he says, in effect, God only gives the haven—"the haven is God-given"—God has nothing to do with the construction or running of the ship. In effect this is like saying there is no God in practical politics. "The haven is God-given," says he. Then, according to this form of reasoning, the political destiny which affects the future safety and well-being of the Colony must be God-given. But everybody knows this is a sinister kind of logic. The men who form the Government (the ship of state) and the captain are equally bound to look after her best interests to see that she does not eat herself up in costs—to keep her clear of dangerous reefs and quicksands and conduct her safely to a haven which shall be commodious and fair, and prosperous, and suitable to the conveniences and necessities of the great body politic that built the ship and manned her for her four years voyage.

And then he jumps his full weight on the good old Liberal Standard, the flag our sires defended with their very blood—the flag that braved many a hard-fought contest and won many a brilliant victory, and will win another in a few months' time—and shouts: "Now the Liberal Party is no more; its flag is trailed in the dust." This is a direct insult to the old Liberal Standard-bearers and their numerous followers in Newfoundland, to-day, who fought many a hard conflict against Toryism and oppression in their native land, and their sires with some of themselves yet living, will come to the rescue again and lift aloft gallantly the old Liberal Standard with Sir R. Bond in the lead and defy all the forces of Toryism to keep it "in the dust," where the writer says, gloatingly and offensively, it now lies.

BELGRADE, Feb. 3.
Scutari is already on the point of falling. It is reported that the Turkish commander sent two representatives to the Serbian commander to propose capitulation.

LONDON, Feb. 3.
Sir Edward Grey had a long interview with the King to-day, after which he attended a meeting of the Ambassadorial Conference, but nothing important developed.

LONDON, Feb. 3.
King Menelik, of Abyssinia, is dead, according to a special despatch received here. His successor and grandson, Lidj Jeassu, entered the capital on Sunday amid great pomp.

LONDON, Feb. 3.
War has been resumed. The bombardment of Adrianople began at 7 p.m., and a small skirmish occurred at Tchatalja lines. Unless Turkey yields, the Allies will now endeavor to drive her out of Europe.

LONDON, Feb. 3.
Colonel James Martin McAlmont, M.P., for the Eastern division of Antrim, died on Sunday. He was Deputy Grand Master of the Orangemen of Ireland, and sat for Antrim East since 1885. He was Aide-de-Camp to Earl Cowper an dthe Duke of Marlborough when viceroys of Ireland. Colonel McAlmont was 66 years of age.

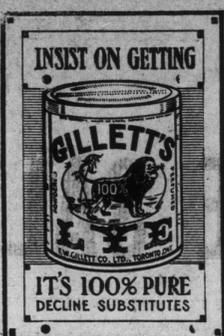

LONDON, Feb. 3.
Osman Nizami Pasha leaves London to-morrow to resume his ambassadorial duties at Berlin. He said that from information received from military sources he believed the Allies underestimate the condition of the Turkish Army, and would find themselves confronted with a redoubtable enemy including the best Mussulman veterans who fought under Isset Bey, and the tried soldiers and good marksmen, lately engaged in Tripoli under Enver Bey and Fethy Bey. He added that the Ambassador was right who predicted that, if driven to despair, the Turks would fight like wild animals.

GENEVA, Feb. 3.
The Swiss Federal authorities evidently regard the situation with great apprehension. During the last two months they have been witnessing on the French and German frontiers large masses of troops gradually collecting, and to-day the frontier garrisons are virtually on a war footing. Many officers, both French and German, were recently withdrawn from Switzerland where they had been working or residing. Ever since January, the federal authorities have been taking precautionary measures. Official notices have been published in the newspapers to the effect that in the event of war all Swiss citizens in certain countries must return immediately, while in a second zone of countries, including America, those who are liable for military duty must be in readiness. There is to be no mobilization in Switzerland, but 100,000 soldiers can be at their posts in 24 hours, 250,000 in 48 hours and 500,000 within a week, as officers and men have rifles, ammunition, uniforms and all other paraphernalia at their homes. Cereals of all kinds have been ordered from the States and Canada, the usual Russian supply having failed owing to the Balkan war, but it is now beginning to arrive, and is replenishing the Government's almost empty storehouse. Farmers have been warned to have their horses in good condition; chief surgeons and doctors have received official letters from Berne.

Nickel's Big Attraction.

The Nickel Theatre was crowded again last night and the large audiences were charmed with the pictures. The Pathe weekly showing principal happenings the world over was of unusual attractiveness. From Russia, where the Princess is being married, the spectator is taken to Philadelphia to witness the launching of a warship. Then is seen the Mormon Colony, at Salt Lake City, Utah and the elders and buildings of the Mormons. "Two old Pals" is a comedy illustrating the troubles of a circus manager and the devotion of a trained elephant. "The heart of a Boss" is the combination of an American political life story and a touching love drama which was closely followed by all. "Life on an Oxo farm" is an educational picture. Thousands of cattle are seen, including a number of thoroughbred bulls valued at $5,000 each. The pictures are true to life and the audience imagine themselves on a huge farm with the live stock round them. The counting of cattle, roping and branding of calves are all perfectly seen. Mr. Thomas sang a catchy comedy "I'm twenty-one to-day," the chorus of which was taken up and heartily rendered. The programme will be repeated this evening.

Hr. Grace Notes.

On Thursday, January 23rd, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Butt.

Mr. Graham Duff, son of Mr. R. M. Duff, left by Friday's train for Parrsboro, N.S., where he will enter the branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, there. Graham is a general favorite and all his friends will wish him abundant success in his chosen business.

Dr. Cron and his bride came to town on Thursday night and for the present will reside at the home of Mrs. Quinton, Cochrane Street. The doctor and his bride are very popular and all wish them a long and prosperous wedded life. Lots of joy and no sorrow at all is your correspondent's wish to the newly-wedded pair.

The poor family referred to in my notes a few days ago as being in very poor circumstances and living on Pipe Track Road, were increased a few days ago by the arrival of a baby boy. The family is without a stove, or have only a portion of one, and if there is any person in this town with a second or even a third hand one willing to give it to this poor family, they have only to ask us and we will give them the name.

The old hulk, 'Flying Cloud,' was taken out to the outer harbor where the schooner 'Lucky Change' went ashore some time ago, and was placed near as a breakwater for the latter schooner. It is hoped in this way to be able to save the 'Lucky Change' from breaking up, and to get her off in the Spring.

The Knights of Columbus and their friends had a very enjoyable dance in the Academy Hall on Friday night.

This week promises to be another busy one in court circles here, as several more cases for breaches of the Temperance Act are to come up for hearing. Harbor Grace is evidently soon to be a dry city, and justly so. Head Constable Sheppard is doing good work, and report says he is giving his commission in these cases to charitable purposes. If this is so the 'Head' is deserving of a double share of congratulation.

At Cochrane St Church

The annual Thanksgiving services were held in Cochrane Street Methodist Church on Sunday. The congregation had the pleasure of hearing for the first time, the new Pastor-elect of the Congregational Church, the Rev. Mr. Henry Thomas. The 'text chosen was, "For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." The subject was treated under four heads and the challenge of the Gospel, the contents, the conquering power, and the conditions. The Rev. gentleman is a forceful speaker and we bid him welcome to the city pulpits. At the session of the Sunday School in the afternoon, Mr. Young, Superintendent of the Jubilee Sunday School, at Sydney, Cape Breton, addressed the School. The scholars' Thankoffering laid on the plates, amounted to sixty-five dollars.

The evening service was conducted by the Pastor, the Rev. C. A. White-mars, M.A., B.D., who preached a most thoughtful and earnest sermon from the words, "And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men unto Me," one of the greatest thanksgiving themes of the ages.

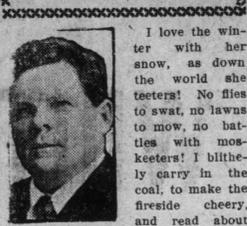

The choir rendered the anthem "O Lord how manifold are thy works," and a chorus from the Cantata "Seed time and Harvest." At the evening service, Miss Herder favored the congregation by singing that beautiful solo, "O rest in the Lord." A most fitting close to the day's services was the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, administered by the Pastor.

The offering including the Sunday School, amounted to two thousand and fifty dollars, this amount, no doubt, will be added to on the coming Sabbath.

WINTER HAPPENINGS.

I love the winter with her snow, as down the world she teeters! No flies to swat, no lawns to mow, no battles with mosquitoes! I blithely carry in the coal, to make the fireside cheery, and read about the long lost pole, and Amundsen and Peary. I gaily take my trusty lyre and seize a chair that fits me, and play until I bust a wire, or till my grandma hits me. A man can sit and close his eyes and dream without a sore head; serenely knowing that the flies won't gnaw his nose or forehead. No chiggers will devour his limbs or ants bring dire disaster; what wonder that his joyous hymns shake down a lot of plaster? Oh, Winter, I could sing your praise in odes too long for printing! I'd not curtail by one your days. Keep up your merry whistling! Pile up your clouds until the skies assume a dark complexion! Storm, rattle and howl, and freeze the flies to dead for resurrection! You'll never hear me rant and carp because you tilt and tounery; I'll just sit here and slug my harp and cheer you on your journey!

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DYPHTHERIA.

A RIGHT SENSE OF VALUES.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The other day I overheard a girl at a counter next me making her choice between a cheap, but pretty collar, and an expensive piece of good lace.

She finally chose the piece of real lace. "I can't possibly afford it," she said to her companion, "but I'll charge it, and I guess it'll come out all right. I simply can't bear things unless they are nice."

"I know it, my dear," said the other girl. "You do have such good taste." Whereat the first girl smiled a smile of evident self-approval, and tucked the piece of lace that she could not possibly afford into her muff with an air of complete satisfaction.

She evidently felt a great pride in that taste of hers which wouldn't let her be content with things that were within her income.

And in that feeling she was typical of a large class of people.

I know a woman who all her life has kept her husband in debt because she wouldn't have anything cheap in her home. Her silver must be solid, though his income was decidedly plotted; her floors must be hardwood when she should have been content to have them painted. In short, she insisted that everything must be all wool and a yard wide, although her husband's salary was mostly cotton and much nearer eighteen inches than a yard.

She felt that she would degrade herself by admitting anything cheap into her home.

In reality, she would have raised herself, since she would have been doing what every just and square man or woman ought to do—making her tastes conform to her income, no matter how badly it hurt.

I don't deny that to have good taste is a reason for pride. It is good to appreciate the beautiful and the real, and to dislike the cheap and shoddy; and it is good to be able to gratify these tastes.

But it is not good to place these tastes and their gratification above our sense of justice and above our duty to our fellowmen. And that is what any man or woman is doing who lives beyond his means.

After all, when you come to think of it, if all that we believe is true, these material things that we sell our lives for are nothing but chaff which the wind driveth away. Did you ever look around your living room and see all those things that you've worked so hard to own and collected so painstakingly, and suddenly realize how very little they meant? In themselves they are valueless. It is only because we have agreed together to call them valuable that they are so. What are they to be compared with honour and justice, and other absolute and eternal things?

Of course it's only once in a while that a corner of the veil lifts like that, but even that brief, occasional vision ought to keep us from completely losing sight of the things of value.

Red Cameron

Headachy, Bilious,
Upset? 'Cascarets.'

Bilious, throbbing headache means
Bowels are clogged and liver stagnant—you need Cascarets.

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

Idleness.

BY H. L. RANN.

Idleness is a loose-jointed habit which, when persisted in, leads to laziness and a curt note informing the addressee that the undersigned will try to wriggle along without him after Saturday night. It is a destructive vice, and will cause a man's ambition to curl up at both ends and run off the track into the nearest pool hall.

Idleness is caused by securing too much rest at the expense of people who have to meet the pay roll. It is a very expensive luxury for employers who are not conducting a sanitarium for hobble-footed hirelings. After an employer has enjoyed a feast of idleness and a famine of work during the busy season, as a result of having his entire crew inoculated with the hook worm, he will wish that he had been born a Hottentot, with nothing to do but run around in a red flannel undershirt and nobody to pay off but the hired girl.

An idler is a procrastinator, and a procrastinator is a person who never does anything to-day that can possibly be put off until the week after next. There are a great many excuses for idleness, the most common of which is a tired feeling in the soles of the feet. There are a great many people in this world whose underpinning has become so exhausted that they can't go down to the creamery for a can of buttermilk without sinking down on a dry goods box and resting their feet with one hand, while discussing the tariff with the other.

Idleness in the home is a great disappointment to young brides who didn't know what they were getting at the time they signed up. Every year thousands of young men get married who never do any hard work except at meal time, after which they retire from active business pursuits and kick about the high cost of living. An idle husband, who calls it a day's work to change his necktie; can put love's young dream on the hummer quicker than any other affliction.

Idleness is a great luxury, which vice with the electric toaster and the limousine foot-warmer, but it is fatal to people who have to work for a living.

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces' in writing to us states:

"I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an unfailing remedy in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators."

What Waves Measure.

Measurements of waves taken "by finding the height above the ship's water-line from which a neighbouring wave-crest just intercepts the horizon," according to Dr. Vaughan Cornish, a great authority on the subject, "are believed to be accurate to within one foot in ten when made by a practised observer."

From time to time one reads in the papers of waves 80ft., 90ft., and even 100ft. in height. These estimates, however, are quite inaccurate.

During ordinary storm gales large waves in the middle of the North Atlantic are usually some 40ft. to 45ft. in height; though the late Lord Kelvin said he once measured a momentary peak of water 60ft. high in the Notes of Long Ago.

I. C. MORRIS.
CHAPTER VIII.

St. John's in 1820, was a very small town indeed, and did not offer many inducements or attractions for a young man who wished to make his way in life; and so after the excitement of the arrival passed away and we came more properly to ourselves, we looked about the harbor, and tall of amongst ourselves as to our prospects, and as to what success would attend us. The entire surroundings were very much different to what we had been so accustomed to at home in Ireland. We had come from a populated country of about seven millions, and were accustomed to stone buildings and a well laid out town; and while the places from which some of us had come were not large towns by any means, they of course had many advantages that could not be found on this side of the water at that early date. But for all this we were prepared.

We had come to rough it, and to make the best of our chances, and to earn our living by honest industry. So we all looked at the harbor, and were greatly pleased with its indraft and seclusion, for it really seemed to us a haven of security; although being so near to the Atlantic coast. We looked and looked at Signal Hill, and greatly admired the forts that were upon it. The Southside hill was covered with greenery, and almost down to the water's edge there was a bountiful display of spruce and fir trees. The buildings on the Southside were very few, mostly small stores and fishing stages. In the west end of the harbor there was no bridge where the present one now is; but somewhere further west, near where the gas house is built, there was a narrow crossing. It was some time after our arrival that the present Long Bridge was constructed, and it was known as Job's Bridge, because Mr. Job Loyd in the cottage at the end of it, which was afterwards bought by Mr. McLaughlin. The wharves on the north side of the harbor were very different from those of the present date (1870), but still they were well suited to the trade and shipping of the time.

Water Street was not much better than a narrow road, and did not run much further west than Bennett's Brewery. The seal-fishery was beginning to be developed, and there were many vats being erected for the purpose of rendering the fat. There were more flakes than wharves on the water front and all parts of the harbor. The houses were mostly all of wood, and the population could not have been more than eight or ten thousand. The flakes extended from Raftus's down to Newman's, and on the Southside from Whitens' down to the present site of the floating dock. There were also the stages of Ingston and King's at the turn of the Narrows on the Southside. At the extreme East end of the harbor there were several large fishing establishments and flakes. Among the names the principal one seemed to be that of Howell.

Of the town itself I cannot say much. There were several short streets running up, but the principal one was called the "King's Road," and it led back to the Mall near the site of St. Thomas's Church. St. Thomas's Parish was then known as a military Parish, and the church was a very small building; but the site had been long occupied for the same purpose. (There are some who say it was the first place in the New World in which the Church of England service was read.) The Parish Church of England stood near where now stands the Cathedral, and the old Chapel of our own Catholic Church is still in the same place, though about to be removed for the erection of the Star of the Sea Hall. The Wesleyan Church was quite near the English Church. Of schools there were but few, and they were taught by old men who had seen life, some on the battlefield, and some in an official capacity of State in the Old Land.

St. John's now in 1870 is a city to what it was in 1820. The water then in the harbor came right up into the hollow where now stands Mr. McCarthy's shop (at present Globe Steam Laundry), and because of that it was called the Mud Pond, and fish flakes were built over it. And so we looked at the hills and at the town, and at the ships in the harbor, and some of these were very quaint, as was much

After Years of Suffering. Tells How Her Health Was Regained.

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to you for special advice. In a short time I had regained my health and am now strong and well."

Another Woman Recovers.
Newton, N.H.—"For five years I suffered from female weakness and dragging down pains. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored my health and the pains are gone."
—Mrs. F. A. PEASLEE, R.F.D., Box 88.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

of the shipping of that date. Of course to us it was all new and full of interest, and as we had come here to make our home we noted every object, and commented upon every aspect and wondered had we done the best thing in leaving old Ireland and coming to Newfoundland. Some of us were sorry, and we all felt more or less lonely, as we knew that we had no time to stay on board the ship and that in the course of a day of two we would have to leave her and make our home on shore.

The arrival of a ship at that time was a very much greater attraction than it is at present; and we being an emigrant ship, of course our arrival made no little stir. And so it was soon noticed abroad as to who we were, and there being a great many Irishmen in the city at the time, most of whom had left Ireland as we had done, it was not long before several boats put off and boarded us. We met some whom we knew, and the new arrivals found friends among those who came aboard; and many, many inquiries were made about the old land, and about the old people at home. This made us feel somewhat better, and broke the monotony of the voyage, and brought us in touch with some of our countrymen, and we learned from them a little of the place to which we had come. We did not expect all sunshine, but came out prepared to do our best; and as those we met seemed quite jolly and hearty, and apparently were in the best of health, and the weather was fine, we felt satisfied that we had come to a fine country. There was plenty of sunshine, and many of our kith and kin, and many of our faith. And so, having learned a little of the town from the ship's deck, and viewed it from the rail, we knew that our next step would be that of going on shore, and beginning life anew in the land which we had drawn as our lot.

Dr. Danell, in an interview at Paris, tonight said he had promised Sir Edward Grey that if the Turks immediately accepted the Allies' conditions, they would conclude peace, but whatever happened, there would no further armistice.

Some Boxing Facts.

For 7 hours, 19 minutes, A. Bowen and J. Burke battled against each other at New Orleans on April 6th, 1893. This is the longest glove fight that has ever taken place, and although the combatants fought no fewer than 110 rounds, the contest ultimately resulted in a draw. The longest bare knuckle fight on record lasted 6 hours, 15 minutes, between James Kelly and Jonathan Smith, at Melbourne, in November, 1855.

For quick work, Battling Nelson holds the record, seeing that he knocked out William Rossler in three seconds at Harvey, Illinois, U.S.A., in April, 1902, though Tommy Burns did not take much more than a minute to dispose of Jem Roche at Dublin, in 1808.

One of the fiercest fights ever known was the conflict at Farnborough, in 1860, between Thomas Sayers, Champion of England, a light, Sussex man, about 5 feet 8 inches high, and John Heenan, the "Bernicia Boy," a huge American. Strength, however, was equally matched by skill, and eventually the fight had to be interrupted.

Remarkable Escape from Starvation off Cape Horn.
Extract of letter from DAVID AMES (Master) of the late barque "Colorado," of Glasgow, — Having lost our ship on Staten Island, on the 5th of July, and having saved neither ourselves nor provisions, we were compelled to travel over the island for ten days, subsisting on nothing but shell-fish and seaweed. On the 19th of July we came across another shipwrecked party of seventeen, the surviving part of the crew of the British ship "Dunskote," of Glasgow, fourteen having perished through exposure. Now, the ship was lost on the 25th of June, and a lot of the cargo, consisting of Epps's Cocoa, was washed ashore out of the wreck. There was nothing saved except the Cocoa, and we, numbering twenty-five men, were kept alive but in up to the 20th of August, when we were rescued by the steamer "Mercurio," of Buenos Aires.

"Too much praise cannot be given to this Cocoa. We had a good stock of it, there; we used it in a liquid state for drink, we also baked it on the fire, which kept us alive and warm for weeks on this barren island, situated in a region of perpetual ice and snow."

Notes and Comments.

Morris must go.
Morris has not made good on the enforcement of the Bait Act. The Bankers are down on the slackness of his Government, and the Board of Trade is most emphatic in its protest against the way the Bait Act has been enforced the past season.

The Board of Trade declares that a considerable quantity of bait is now stored in St. Pierre, carried there in contravention of the Bait Act for the use of French bankers. The slackness in enforcing the Bait Act has made good for the French bankers.

The Board of Trade offers the opinion that the presence of this Newfoundland Bait is a menace to the successful marketing of our bank fish next year. Yet, in face of this, the Evening Herald is asking that Morris be allowed to finish his work. No. The risk is too great.

The year before we had the objectionable contract made with Trefethen & Lord. Little has been heard of it lately, and we do not know how the contract stands at present. Enquiries will no doubt elicit information when the Assembly meets.

It will be remembered that Sir Robert Bond and his colleagues in the Assembly put up a strenuous fight against it, and the Hon. John Harvey criticised it severely in the Legislative Council.

This is how the Hon. John Harvey summarized his objection to the contract as it affected bait:—

"The export of bait fishes, in a form in which they can be afterwards used for bait, should be permitted to none but Newfoundlanders, under license, least of all should it be permitted to American citizens over a long period of years. This appears to me to be a matter of national principle."

"The contract, combined with the speeches with which it has been introduced in both Houses, appears to constitute a COMPLETE AND UNEXPLAINED REVERSAL of our policy of refusing to issue to foreigners licenses to export herring, even for food purposes, from any but the Treaty Coast. We cannot follow these fish after they leave this Colony, and there seems to be no possible way to prevent their use for bait purposes afterwards."

No doubt Sir Robert Bond and his colleagues will apply the probe to the big concessions which the American press reported the Booth Company were to obtain from the Morris Government. There is no doubt that the Booth Fishing Company were reported to be obtaining concessions of bait for fifteen years. The Government press has denied this. But the terms of the contract have never been published and these should be most carefully scrutinized in view of what happened in connection with the Trefethen and Lord contract.

The Police Court.

There were no prisoners to be tried this morning, and only two small civil cases were heard.

An enquiry is being held by Judge Knight into the drowning accident by which Bartlett and James lost their lives last Saturday evening.

Personal.

Mr. Arthur English is back from the North. He looks well after his trip.

Capt. John Parsons of Bay Roberts is in town.

Mr. James of Harbor Grace is in the city. He contemplates a business trip to the States, shortly.

Inter-Collegiate Hockey Match.

Feldians Defeat St. Bon's.
The opening game in the Inter-Collegiate hockey series took place at the Prince's Rink this morning between B. F. C. and St. Bon's teams in the presence of a large gathering of college supporters and resulted in a victory for the former by six goals to five. St. Bon's drew first blood and were a goal in advance at half time, the score being 3-2. After this the Bishop Field boys worked strenuously and increased their score, though towards the finish they seemed to be played out and the sounding of the final whistle gave them the match. The game on the whole was not a clever exhibition of hockey yet it was a hard fought one which made it exciting and interesting. The players were:—

TUESDAY, Feb. 4th, 1913.

The Howard Combination Lather Brush and Beard Softener is the very latest shaver's adjunct, having just been patented and put on the market. It consists of a good shaving brush attached to which is a rubber massage pad which is ingeniously fastened to the handle of the brush and is designed to assist in softening the beard before shaving, and for facial massage afterward. Altogether the Howard is an excellent adaptation of means to an end. Price complete, 70c. each.

Have you tried Cherry Pine Chewing Gum? It is worth while, it being a very dainty chewing gum in winter-green and peppermint flavours, and is well spoken of by the boys. Price 5c. a pk.

FIRST CARNIVAL.—Arrangements are now being made for the first carnival for the season which takes place on the 29 of the month.

LEFT HALIFAX.—The S. S. City of Sydney left Halifax at six o'clock last evening and is due here to-morrow night. The steamer is bringing a large mail.

VESSEL DETAINED.—The barge Dunne, Capt. Hartery, is still held in port, owing to one of her crew being ill. The captain cannot get a sailor to go in his place.

ANXIOUS ABOUT ADRIATIC.—The schr. Adriatic, of Lunenburg, is to-day 12 days out from Sydney to this port coal laden for J. J. Mullaly & Co. This is a long time for a vessel to occupy in making such a voyage and there is some anxiety expressed about her in marine circles.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.—The Regular Meeting of Terra Nova Council, No. 1452, to be held on Tuesday, Feb. 4th, has been postponed, by order of the G.N., until Tuesday, Feb. 11th. W. H. TOBIN, Recorder. febl,tf

SEVEN PER CENT.—The Cabot Whaling Company met yesterday afternoon and a dividend of seven per cent. was declared. Last year's directors were re-elected, as follows: President, A. J. Harvey; Vice-President, K. P. Prowse; Hons. M. G. Winter and John Harvey complete the board.

One would scarcely think it, but there are many kinds of eyeglass lenses. There are the old style double Convex and Concave, the Periscope, the improved Toric or Meniscus Lens; in these forms there are Spheres Cylinders and Sphero-Cylinders, any of which may be combined with prisms. Then there is the Lenticular Lens, an arrangement to lighten the weight of thick heavy lenses. In addition to the above there are the various forms of Bifocal Lenses, consisting of the Cement, Perfection, Split and Kryptok Bifocal. All the above can be had in various tints, smoked blue amber, etc., and ground in any forms—oval, full oval, round and other irregular forms. There is just one place in Newfoundland where you can have any of the above lenses made at an hour's notice, that is TRAPNELL, the Eyesight Specialist. febl,tf

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAR-GET IN COWS.

Found Unconscious On Board the S.S. Cynthia To-Day

WM. WOODFORD TAKEN FROM HOLD AND SENT TO HOSPITAL.

Last evening, as Mr. Wm. Woodford, son of Mr. John Woodford, of Convent Square, did not come home, his parents became anxious about him and anxiety gave place to alarm when he had not visited home at midnight. The young man is a boiler-maker's help, and works for the Reid Nfd. Co., and his non-appearance at home impelled his father to go, and search for him and he reported to the police at the police station and also made enquiries at the western station, the dry dock and other places, but without a trace of his son. Naturally Mr. Woodford and his wife and family spent a night of apprehension and alarm and at 7 o'clock this morning he continued the search and went on board the Cynthia, in which his son had been working. He aroused the crew who were asleep, and later was assisted by the men who worked with his son, in the search for him. Woodford worked effecting repairs to the ship with W. Finch and remarked to him at 5.30 p.m. yesterday that he was going to a doctor to get some salve for his eye which had been hurt. Nothing was seen of the man after this until 8.15 this morning when Bernard Finch and Vincent Grant discovered him in the hold among the cargo below the middle deck of the ship. The man lay on his back unconscious and for a while it was believed he was dead. The covering was put over this hatch which is amidships, at 5.45 p.m. yesterday and it must have been some 20 minutes before this that the man fell into the hold a distance of about 6 feet. Fortunately the hatch was broken in places and put on lightly and this admitted air to the hold or Woodford would have been suffocated as he lay there all night. He evidently fell shortly after leaving Finch and in the gloom of the place no person about saw the accident. Just after discovery, the man was seen to crawl along the cargo and later slipped. The rush of air and light into the place awoke him from his stupor and he spoke saying to those about that he didn't know what happened to him, and asked if he was cut. He later said he could not tell what had happened to him and shortly after lapsed into unconsciousness. In the meantime the men telephoned almost very surgery in the city and could not get a doctor to respond to the call though the doctor of the Calypso on being summoned promptly attended. There were no cuts on the man's head or body and no bones were broken, though it is thought he was badly hurt internally by the fall received. The ambulance was summoned and he was taken to Hospital at 8.30 a.m. It would appear from the foregoing that an emergency doctor is badly wanted in this city. When accidents occur the lives of people are often jeopardized by the tardiness with which medical help is secured.

Mr. Morine Sues Twillingate Sun.

Mr. Morine, K.C., has taken a suit for defamation and issued a writ against the Twillingate Sun. The action is based on the publication of the appended article in the last issue of the Twillingate Sun by Editor Temple:—

"WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?"
The Fisherman's Advocate announces that Mr. A. B. Morine has been retained as standing solicitor for the F. P. U. We understand current reports say a salary of $1,000, and one dollar deposit from every member who requires legal advice. The paragraph referred to goes on to say that Mr. Morine will not be a candidate for election this fall. This is entirely needless, as Mr. Morine can't. Two years' residence in the Colony are necessary to intending candidates and this Mr. Morine hasn't had. There is nothing, however, to prevent Mr. Morine working the strings that move the puppets, and with Confederation as the end in view to work them very strenuously.

It looks as though the old issue is going to be raised once more with Messrs. Morine, Crowe and Coaker as the principal figures behind the scenes. We shall see what we shall see very shortly.

Mr. Morine claims that the tenor of the article is injurious to him in his professional capacity and is absolutely false.

Enquiry Started.

A magisterial enquiry began at the Court House before Judge Knight this forenoon into the drowning accident of Saturday evening. The evidence of the survivor, Joseph Moyst, was taken and is pretty well the same as that given in the Telegram yesterday. An enquiry like this should be held in public and the press notified so that their representatives can attend.

The Suggestion of the F.P.U. President

Elsewhere in this issue, Mr. Coaker, the President of the F. P. U., deals with an important matter which affects the success of the wooden sealing steamers and the convenience sealers who go out in them to hunt the harvest of the ice floes. We commend the attention of those affected to this suggestion. It raises a most important question, and the solution offered to the difficulty which has been felt especially of late years seem to us sound. The owners and the sealers affected are, however, the best judges, and one of the best offices that the F. P. U. can furnish is the discussion and solutions of problems which intimately affect its members and the success of the voyage. There can be no doubt that the success of the voyage in the wooden steamers depends at times on staying out to kill old seals by guns, but this is most inconvenient and a hardship to many of the men who did not wish to remain aboard till the end of April and who have work waiting them at home which concerns them more. Mr. Coaker cuts the Gordian knot of the difficulty and offers a way out.

Mr. Morine Sues Twillingate Sun.

Mr. Morine, K.C., has taken a suit for defamation and issued a writ against the Twillingate Sun. The action is based on the publication of the appended article in the last issue of the Twillingate Sun by Editor Temple:—

"WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?"
The Fisherman's Advocate announces that Mr. A. B. Morine has been retained as standing solicitor for the F. P. U. We understand current reports say a salary of $1,000, and one dollar deposit from every member who requires legal advice. The paragraph referred to goes on to say that Mr. Morine will not be a candidate for election this fall. This is entirely needless, as Mr. Morine can't. Two years' residence in the Colony are necessary to intending candidates and this Mr. Morine hasn't had. There is nothing, however, to prevent Mr. Morine working the strings that move the puppets, and with Confederation as the end in view to work them very strenuously.

It looks as though the old issue is going to be raised once more with Messrs. Morine, Crowe and Coaker as the principal figures behind the scenes. We shall see what we shall see very shortly.

Mr. Morine claims that the tenor of the article is injurious to him in his professional capacity and is absolutely false.

Enquiry Started.

A magisterial enquiry began at the Court House before Judge Knight this forenoon into the drowning accident of Saturday evening. The evidence of the survivor, Joseph Moyst, was taken and is pretty well the same as that given in the Telegram yesterday. An enquiry like this should be held in public and the press notified so that their representatives can attend.

Here and There.

White Enamel Bedsteads.

A few months ago we bought a large quantity of White Enamel Bedsteads, considerably below the usual price. These goods should have reached us at the beginning of the year, but owing to the weather conditions were delayed.

[We are pushed for space to store these Bedsteads, so with the idea of getting them out in a hurry they are marked at ridiculously low prices. Now is the time to purchase a Bedstead for your spare room, or for your own room.

Remember, these Enamel Bedsteads are first-class goods, perfect in every respect, with the highest grade Enamel finish. In all sizes, price from $4.20 to $20.00.

BOWRING BROS.,

What a Contrast.

Mr. A. W. Hiseock had a letter to-day from his son Fred, of the Bank of Montreal, dated at Montreal the 25th ult., saying that the weather there was springlike and balmy. They had only a couple of days sleighing and no skating up to the time of writing, and it is one of the mildest winters ever experienced in that section. Letters received from Boston go Montreal one better. These say that it is uncomfortably warm in the city, the heat being intense in stores and offices, and people go abroad minus their overcoats. What a contrast to Newfoundland, where we are getting more frost than we require, with ice all about the coast. But the warm weather will come to many of us by and bye, and some that we know may get too much of it.

BADLY SCALDED.—A couple of days ago a young chap named Ring, working at Mr. Courtenay's barber shop, Water Street, accidentally upset a vessel of boiling water and was badly scalded about the legs. He has since been confined to his home.

Coastal Boats.

The Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.35 a.m. to-day.
The Ethie arrived at Baie Harbor at 5.30 p.m. yesterday.
The Invermore left Port aux Basques this morning for St. John's, and should leave here to-morrow for Sydney, taking mails and passengers for Canada and the United States.
