The cereals also indicate a productive yield; but I have observed that the turnip crop is a general failure. The best, and without exception the only full crop. and without exception the only full crop of turnips I have seen this season is upon the farm of Mr. John Dickie second Con., Declineh.

It should also be borne in mind that the great exhibitions of Ontario follow one-another in immediate succession, the Provincial at Hamilton first, then that of Guelph, and finally that of London, at these towns respectively. Extensive additions have been made to the Guelph Exhibition Buildings, which it is anticipated will fully meet the waits of exhibitors, in respect to horses, cattle, sheep &c. Visitors may rely on ample Hotel accomodation as all our hotels are this year in full blast and from what we know of the energy and public spirit characterizing the Landlords the public may rely on having every attention paid to their wants compatible with the occasion. We may mention that the accommodation provided last year was considerably greater than the demands made upon it by exhibition visitors, and yet the number attending the exhibition did not fall short of that partronizing several Provincial constitutions.

Yesterday evening we published a paragraph with reference to the stealing of a horse, which should have read St. Catharines instead of Guelph. When Detective Rousseaux brought in Turnbull with the horse and buggy, the Chief of Police telegraphed to Mr. W. W. Huff, the owner, who keeps a livery stable in St. Cath. arines, and he came on at once. It seems that some days ago Turnbull, who seems that some days ago Turnbull, who was formerly a deckhand on the propellor America, got the horse from Huff, alleging that he was going simply to the village of Jordan, and would be back that same day. Not returning, and Huff being apprehensive, he got out a handfull giving a description of Turnbull and the missing "rig." When Huff came down and heard a plausible story from Turnbull, he refused to prosecute and took the horse and buggy home.—Hamiltot Times.

Centre Toronto Carried.

Mr. Wilkes' Majority 29. Centre Toronto has been carried by the Reformers. Speaking of the contest

the Globe says:—

"Mr. Wilkes' supporters went early to the polls, and by half-past nine his election was assured. In the afternoon, however, by means of bribery and personation, Mr. Shanly's friends succeeded in largely reducing Mr. Wilkes' majority. To such an extent were these practices carried, that it was at length found necessary for Mr. Wilkes' scrutineers to require every person, without exception, who came to vote, to be sworn. There were persons who speculated in votes as they would in cattle, keeping several men together and paying them not to vote until a good price could be got for them, when they would be sold in tens or dozens, and both the speculators and voters' While the procession in honor of Mr. Wilkes' victory was passing the Leader office, some of the Tories tried to raise a row. Stones were thrown by several of the mob, and the police, learing serious consequences, drew their "locusts' and quickly dispelled it. In the evening and quickly dispelled it. ## Dr. Orton to Sir Francis' Rescue.

In the Brantford Courier of Tuesday, after bewailing the defeat of Sir Francis Hincks, and asserting that that had been brought about by bribery on the part of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks in Brantford in Start of the Reformers, The defeat of Hincks, McDougall, Shanly, Cameron, Walsh and Jackson are defeated at the polls.

bery on the part of the Reformers, it goes on to say:

"As the public learned at the Kerby House, last night, from the lips of Dr. Orton himself, the Union candidate for the Centre Riding of Wellington, bribery has also been practised by the Reformers in that constituency to an extent, that to the Purists (?) themselves must appear perfectly incredible. Specific charges were pointed out of the most unblushing bribery even on the part of so-called Ministers of the Christian Religion, and steps, we understand, are to be taken in that Riding, as in this, to show unscrupulous politicians that they cannot, with impunity, make traffic of the votes of the people."

There is nothing like going away from home to get home news. Here we have Dr. Orton coming to the rescue of poor Sir Francis, and comforting him over his defeat by the assertion that he also had lost his seat by the wholesale bribery practised by the Reformers in Centre Wellington. It will be seen by the extract above, that the doctor does not stick at trifles. He was bound to satisfy the Brantford Tories that he had a sufficient excuse for being beaten, and he certainly stretches that excuse to the extremest point, no doubt under the impression that no doubt under the impression that it would never travel as far as Guelph, or be repeated in the Centre Riding. We extend to him our most profound pity. He has been badly used. He was deserted by the leading Tories in the Riding, who would not move a finger to help his election. He had to beg, and pray, and pay for the Support of Guelph renegades and did victory. Mr. McCallum has expended a large sum of money, after getting and words, and cash, he came out the county arranged for his own purposes, and words, and cash, he came out only second best. But don't say anything more about bribery, deardoctor, either at home or abroad, else we will a little tale unfold about your bribery, whose lightest breath would harrow the souls of the pure Conservatives in Wainfleet, the Riding, and even stir up to their depths the torpid feelings of your Touter Fahey. The Ontario constituencies keep piling up the Reform victories John Macdonald was nominated. Mr. Centre Toronto has elected an able Reformer in the person of Mr. Wilkes, ly interrupted by Sir John. In the course one of the most influential merchants in the city. Every effort was made by the Conservatives to secure this till he retracted a statement he made on Division, for the word went forth that the Kingston hustings, he could not call John A. was determined at whatever cost to win all the cities in Ontario. But he has failed, for Centre Toronto has nobly fought the battle and won. The County of Monck too, which was specially shaped out and framed to suit Mr. McCallum, has also elected an able Reformer in the person of Mr. Edgar. This is another severe blow to the Tories. And, to crown all, old Cornwall, long represented by Sandfield Macdonald, has elected blow to the Tories. And, to crown all, old Cornwall, long represented by Sandfield Macdonald, has elected a sound Catholic Reformer by acclamation. This is certainly noble work for one day.

HEAVY ON THE NEWS .- The Guelph St Herald professes to be a first-class newspaper, but it could not or would not give a report of the South Riding nomination, which as a matter of news, was of interest to Conservatives as well as Reformers in the County.

A DENIAL AND AN ADMISSION .- Th assistant editor of the Herald denies that he was at Stony Battery, helping Mr. McKechnie, but admits that he went into North Wentworth on Friday night. This was two clear days before the election. Pray, what part of the Riding was he in, and how was he engaged during these two days.

Sour Grares .- The Herald is indig nant that the "Brantford candy man," as it calls Mr. Patterson, should have been elected in place of poor Sir March, May, July, Sept. at MoonExtended before Francis. Well, it does look bad for HAMLTON-Crystal Palace Gratter Guelph.

The Foster Brother:

The Orphan of the Wreck. CHAPTER XIV.

"Hech me," said the old fisherman, with a sigh, "this is just the place we sam" up, and the sicht that met us is in up mind as clear as if it was only yesterday. Yonder is whaur the bit o' the wreck lay, and it was just in that coraer whaur the man sat wi' the bairn on his knee, the leddy's dead body lyin' close saide it."

To the spot so pointed out they advanced in silence, overwhelmed with feeling and emotion. What changes had the intervening twenty years brought about? The child had become a strong youth; the fisherman in his prime had become bent and grey-headed; Kenneth and Lucy had sunk into the grave, and their infant stood there a wife by her husband's side.

All that was human was changed since then, but Nature seemed entirely the same. No alteration had taken place on these rocks, or on the ever-moving yet never-changing sea.

To the eyes of Dan Kirkby all things continued as they were. It was not a place or a time for conversation, and during the half hour they remained on the rocks little was spoken except a question asked at Dan, in a low tone, to which he replied in a tone as low. It was much the same when, on going ashore, they went from room to room of the house where Kenneth and Lucy had lodged and thought of those who had spent a summer there in joy and love.

Their progress to the churchyard on the hill was slow and tedious, for Dan was bad at walking; but at length they emerged on the solitary height on which was the place of graves and its utter desolation despened the sadness of the associations natural to such a place.

Dan led, the way over the grassy monneds to the corner in which the unknown lady had been buried, and pointed out the sod which covered her lowly resting place. The lapse of years had made the turf level with the ground, and this rendered the grave undistinguishable but for the rank grass which had grown on the spot, and served to indicate its precise situation.

George knelt down, and with his pocket knife cut this tall grass down and made the surface neat and smooth, the feelings of his son being the while thrillingly acute. The others looked on with deep emotion. Caroline's tears flowed freely, and she gathered some of the grass which George had cut to preserve it.

When they were ready to depart, George indicated his wish to stay a few moments behind, and after, the rest had gone he agai on and after Wednesday,

There was no vocal response, but a gleam of sunshine breaking through the branches of the trees fell in a golden ray upon the grave, and its light entered his heart like a promise of hope, and the belief stole into his mind that some day or other light would break in upon the mystery of his birth, and his name and family be made known to him.

Rejoining his companions, they returned to where the boat was moored, and getting again on board they steered their course for Millport. The voyage and the feelings it had called up were scarcely in keeping with the joys of a honeymoon, yet Harry and Caroline felt that it had been good for them to be there, and the rest of the evening was spent with George, in a love-prompted effort to cheer and comfort him.

They, too, shared his hope that the waster of his hight would be salved rest of the evening was spended on for thim.

They, too, shared his hope that the mystery of his birth would be solved, and, with all the ardour of youthful imagining, they invested the revelation with the most pleasant consequences—with an honoured and respected name—perchance with a good social position, and even wealth.

Yet there was no immediate prospect of their youthful day-dream being realised, for their friend the doctor of Galston Lunatic Asylum had, in reply to their letter of inquiry regarding the maniac, informed them he was still there, and still hopelessly insane. George had half-contemplated paying a visit to the place in order to see him; but, on reflection, he had abandoned the idea, for, according to the account sent, the poor creature was devoid of even the faintest intelligence, and was, therefore, incapable of giving one word of information. For the present, then, it seemed as if no further effort could be made, and George resolved to resign himself as patiently as possible to the endurance of that ignorance which could not be dispelled.

As Others See us.

v York papers are be

Even the New York papers are begining to see the frightful corruption which is afflicting this country. The New York Sun has the following:—
Our Canadian neighbors have a fine prospect of experiencing the delights of Ring domination in the Dominion. They already have had a slight taste of what can be done by well-organized cliques in the arrangement of monies appropriated for public improvements; but their former experience is as nothing to what is now in store for them. More than fifty members of the last Dominion Parliamentwere largely interested in two companies incorporated specially to secure; if possible, the contracts for building the railroad from Lake Nipissing around Lake Superior to the Pacific Ocean. The new Parliament will doubtless have its full share of patriots who in their anxiety to see the great Canadian Pacific Railroad under way, will not scruple to take a practical part in the work of its construction, and who will deem it but just that their efforts to develop the resources of their country should be well rewarded. For the next ten years the Pacific Railroad Ring of Cenada may be expected to exercise an important influence in the politics of the Dominion, as the many millions of dollars which are to be expended on the new road will offer inducements for jobbery which, according to present indications, will not be neglected.

As everything connected with lightning about this time is interesting, we may mention thaton the 2nd mat., in England, a train an the Great Eastern Railway was struck 57 lightning between Claydon and Brantford. All the windows of one of the cafriages were smashed, and one passenger was knocked from his seat, not being, however, much hurt. There were, it appears to us, a safficient variety of railway, socidents before, without this real-thanger. Whether a railway, while hard son, can be protected by a lightning fod, we are not 'mechanical enough to determine; but if it could, of course the conductor (electrical) would always be out of order when wanted.
