BIRDS IN RELATION TO THE FARM

Paper on the Birds of the Maritime Provinces by W. H. Moore, Scotch Lake, N. B. Written for the Maritime Farmer.

It is not the purpose at this time to take an account with all the birds that have at one time or another had a direct bearing in relation to the farm.

If it were, there would be a vast amount of statistics and information to be given in connection with our many breeds of poultry and poultry products, either as eggs or meat for our consumption. The poultry business is a great branch of farming in itself.

Or we might deal at some length with the sea birds of the equatorial Pacific ocean, and their valuable fertilizing product, known as guano, a fertilizer which we shall know no more.

Perhaps many of the younger members of the audience have not heard of this by-product of the wild birds; perhaps many of the older members knew little of it even when it was on our market here between thirty and forty years ago.

For the information of all I will say that guano was voidings of sea fowl dropped upon their roosting places, upon rocky islands in the Pacific ocean. Under the rays of the tropical sun, the moisture soon dried and very little, if any, of the fertilizing constituents were wasted in evaporation. When these banks of bird manure were first discovered, they were many feet in depth, 90 to 100 feet on some islands. This manure was carried in shiploads to civilized countries and there sold at a good figure, but it well repaid both the sailing merchants and the farmers who used it.

Deposits of excrement of sea birds occur on rocky islands in various parts of the world in nearly all latitudes; but guano of commercial value is limited chiefly to rainless regions of the tropics.

The importance of guano as a fertilizer was realized by the Peruvians nearly 300 years ago. The Incas held it in high esteem and deposits on the Chincha Islands were jealously guarded.

In 1824 the first experiments were made in United States.

In 1840 it was introduced into England by Lord Derby.

Chincha Island deposits estimated at 12,376,100 tons.

In 1850 the price in United States was $50.00 or more per ton.

Alex. von Humboldt took some to Europe in 1804 and called attention to its value. Not until 40 years after was its importance realized.

NEW BRUNSWICK BIRDS.

Our subject at this time has more to do with our New Brunswick birds in relation to our New Brunswick farmers, and it is a subject well worthy of our consideration, and one that it is well to have come before us at such a convention as this, to be treated of by a New Brunswick farmer for the benefit of New Brunswick farmers.

In considering whether a plant or animal is beneficial or injurious to the welfare of man, we must make up our minds to deal with the question in an unprejudiced manner. If we consider a plant, we try to find out if the plant is of direct benefit to us. If it should be beneficial, it is possible, also, that it may be more harmful than the benefit is worth. A plant may be of some little use as a fodder and yet be injurious in removing moisture and fertility from the ground that we want reserved for our crops, which are regarded as highly beneficial plants.

The same applies, also, to a bird or an animal. A bird or an animal may destroy injurious insects or plants and yet do more injury, in some manner, than its benefits amount to. So, in considering our birds in relation to the farm, we must study both sides of the question and weigh them in a true balance with an unprejudiced hand. With the exception of the game birds, our other birds will only have to be investigated in connection with their food supply.

THEIR FOOD SUPPLY.

Is the food they consume anything that would be highly beneficial to the farmer or is it a material that is more or less injurious to the welfare of the farmer? In dealing with our birds and their habits, it must be done briefly with the short time at our disposal. Let us divide the birds into groups. In the first group we will place the permanent residents, for, as they are with us the year round, it may be possible that they do either more good or more harm than a group that is with us for a short period. In the second group we will place the summer residents or those coming here to rear their broods of young during the summer season, when our supply of injurious insects and weeds are generally abundant. In the third group we will place the migrants that breed north of us and pass the winter season south of us, thus passing through our fields and woods twice a year—in spring, when the insects are becoming active, and in autumn, when many insect eggs are to be found and when weed seeds are plentiful. Group four contains the winter visitors, being those that breed in the north in summer and pass the winter in our section.

Let us review the birds of the first group! Among them we find the Chickadees, surely known by everybody. They are with us in goodly numbers and what do they eat? In winter their food consists chiefly of eggs and pupa of various species of moths that infest our orchard and forest trees. In summer, larvae, pupa and mature insects compose the bill of fare. They consume an immense amount of insects that are injurious. The Crows and Jays belong to this group, but the Crows are more plentiful along the southern coast in winter than they are here. The verdict concerning the Crows' qualities hang in the balance in some districts, yet over our greater area they are highly beneficial. The amount of cut-worms, tent caterpillars, locusts and other noxious pests comprised in the menu of this bird goes a great way toward pardoning his wrongs. In grain sections in the south farmers even take the trouble to feed the birds old corn at the time when they would be pulling up the young sprouts, for they realize that the workman is worthy of his hire, and would no more think of shooting crows than they would of shooting horses and cows, because they demand grain in return for their work.

Canadian Forestry Association

A Special Meeting of the Canadian Forestry Association will be held in Regina, Sask., Friday and Saturday, Sept. 3rd and 4th, 1909. The meetings will begin at 9.30 a. m. and at 2 p. m., in the City Hall and there will be an evening meeting at 8 o'clock, when illustrated lectures will be delivered. On Saturday, there will be an excursion to Indian Head to inspect the Forest Nurseries and Plantations. The subjects dealt with will refer particularly to conditions in the prairie provinces and will embrace:—Tree Planting on the Eastern and Western Sections of the Prairies, Forest Reserves, Game Protection, Growing Wood for Fuel and for Wind-breaks, the Relation of Forests to the Conservation of Moisture, etc.

His Honor the Lieut.-Governor has kindly consented to open the meeting and Representatives of the Provincial Government, the City of Regina, and delegates and take part in the discussion. The Board of Trade will welcome the excursion.

MRS. PETERS RETIRES FROM PRESIDENCY OF REBEKAH ASSEMBLY.

The Rebekah Assembly of the provinces convened in annual session at St. John on the 11th inst. Mrs. Margaret S. Peters, president of the Assembly, in her annual address spoke favorably of the fraternal papers, and told of the many visitations she had made. She made the following suggestions:

1. That the Assembly have prepared a set of Model By-Laws, to be in skeleton form, leaving blank places to be filled in to suit the peculiar circumstances of each lodge.

2. That the stronger lodges try to devote some time to looking after the weak ones in their district, visiting them and encouraging them in every possible way.

3. That the president appoint one of the past presidents a committee on foreign correspondence to report to the next annual meeting.

4. That the Rebekah Lodges continue the penny offerings to the Home Fund and make some special effort each year to raise an amount.

Mrs. Peters is succeeded by Miss Harriet A. Smith, of St. John.

A CHARMING TRIP BY WATER.

To the Editor of Digby Courier:

Dear Sir:—It will interest your readers to learn of my very charming trip by water to Bridgetown. Our party, comprising Mr. and Mrs. Graham and Miss Gordon, of Boston, with Mrs. A. L. Wear, Mrs. A. L. Andrew and myself from New York, made this trip with Capt. S. D. Munro of Digby in his clever little yacht "Constance" and as she has both motor and sails, we enjoyed all the forms of water navigation.

The Annapolis Valley through which we sailed is one of the choicest scenic spots I ever saw and I have been in most of the countries of the globe.

Captain Munro is certainly a capable and experienced yachtsman and his courtesy and care won our deep appreciation.

Yours faithfully,
G. A. SYKES,

END OF THAW TRIAL.

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Justice Mills handed down a decision this morning declaring that Harry K. Thaw is insane. He dismissed the writ of habeas corpus under which Thaw endeavored to secure his release from Matteawan and remands him to the custody of the state authorities at that institution.

Thus ends the trial of Harry Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, one of the most sensational and fittest murder trials in the history of the country. The trial has been an expose of the degraded hidden life of the murderer's victim, and though the world could well spare the slain, none the less the murderer made to suffer a just and inevitable penalty.

The owner of Mona Baron, the Frederickton mare which died at Sussex, during the races, was offered $900 for her a few days before.

Nova Scotia Temperance Alliance

As articles have appeared in the Press which convey a false impression regarding the work of the Nova Scotia Temperance Alliance, the following facts are submitted:—

I. PURPOSE OF THE ALLIANCE.

The Alliance is at the unification of the Temperance forces of the Province. It is a league of work along educational lines, a campaign of Pledge-signing, a distribution of literature, the expenditure of money to enforce the law, and is endeavoring to obtain the most satisfactory legislation.

II. ATTITUDE OF THE ALLIANCE.

The Alliance is not directly, or indirectly, seeking to influence the members of the Legislature. It is not an adherent of the law during Liberal-Conservative administration, nor does it ask its members to increase in the nomination of members.

It is not a party, and it does not have a political platform.

New Airship to Fly Like Eagle

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12.—Prof. H. L. Twining, head of the Department of physics and electrical engineering in the Los Angeles Polytechnic High School, began aerial experiments today with an "Ornithopter," a flying machine with 27 foot wings, designed to operate like those of an eagle.

Prof. Twining has been studying bird flight for 20 years and feels confident he can demonstrate the principles he has evolved.

The flying machine has no motor. Instead Prof. Twining has devised a system of levers to be operated with hands and feet.

Mineola, R. I., Aug. 12.—Charles Foster Willard, the amateur aeronaut, made two successful flights here this morning in the Herring-Curtiss aeroplane recently purchased by the Aeronautical Society. In the first flight he made a complete circle of about two miles in circumference the starting place. In the second and landed easily within 50 feet of flight he described a figure "8" travelling about four miles and landing ten feet from the starting point. During the last flight Willard attained the height of eighty feet.

Does Advertising Pay?

Few people realize the enormous extent to which advertising has been carried on in America. Take for instance the eleven largest retail stores in New York city. The following table is said to show what each store spent in advertising in a single month:

The Siegel-Cooper Co., $32,052.31

John Wanamaker, 30,273.83

Simpson-Crowford Co., 26,406.24

The 14th Street Store, 25,402.24

R. H. Macy & Co., 21,193.03

Hearn, 20,412.45

Bloomington Bros., 18,677.28

The Adams-O'Neill Co., 17,499.14

Ehrich Bros., 14,201.23

Saks & Co., 13,912.97

Rothenberg & Co., 12,488.84

These figures afford about as convincing proof of the fact that it pays to advertise as anyone could desire. These great retail establishments are not in the habit of spending money for things that do not pay.

A DRUNKEN NINE-YEAR-OLD BOY.

A special despatch to the Globe from Chatham last week said: "A nine-year-old boy named Burley was seen staggering home yesterday, and it was thought to be sunstroke. Later it was found that he was drunk. As a result, an information was laid against Augustus Newman, bartender, for supplying liquor to a minor."

SCORES OF BABIES KILLED BY HEAT.

New York, Aug. 11.—Infant lives went out by scores under the heat and humidity of yesterday. Seldom since the day after the General Slocum was burned has the Morgue at the Bellevue dock held so many tiny bodies as last night, when forty five there, twenty-seven sent from the New York Foundling Asylum and the others from various hospitals and other institutions.

Coney Island, whose hot sands were unwet by the light westerly breeze during the afternoon, added three to the heat's toll of babyhood. Prostrations were numerous, several occurring in the neighborhood of the Brooklyn Bridge entrance from Park Row.

GOING IT SOME.

To the Editor of Digby Courier: Dear Sir:—According to the Bear River News air ships and flying machines have got to take a back seat and Bear River can come to the front and boast of more horse speed than any other place in the province, for two ladies of the above place drove to Boston last Thursday and spent the day.

FARMERS PICNIC AT HALL'S ISLAND

Addresses by Principal Cumming, Professor Woodworth, Judge Longley and Others.—Crowd Enjoy Gaily Occasion.

The Farmers' Picnic at Lawrence-town on Saturday afternoon and evening last was a most successful and enjoyable occasion. Hall's Island, which is one of the beauty spots of the County and a favorite picnic resort, was crowded with people coming by carriage or train to join the social gathering and hear the speeches of the prominent agriculturists.

The first speaker was Professor Cumming of the Agricultural College, Truro. His addresses are always educative and make a deep impression.

He laid especial stress upon the value of dairying which he thinks is a branch of agricultural industry sadly neglected by our farmers. He would make hog-raising an adjunct of dairying. Other important suggestions received due appreciation.

Mr. Justice Longley followed Prof. Cumming and in his usual happy vein reviewed the agricultural progress of the province, urging our farmers to make better advantage of the accessories to farming which they now enjoy and of which their forefathers were deprived. "Fifty years ago," said the judge, "you had no reapers, no reaping machines, nor any other of these mechanical improvements that have come with recent years, but you were just as prosperous as you are now. With improved conditions should come improved prosperity; you have not bettered your condition. Why? The answer is you are not systematic in your labors and system is necessary to the farmer as well as to the merchant. It is the basis of all success."

Professor Woodworth spoke upon the rotation of crops, which he strongly advocated and gave other important advice about the planting and care of orchards.

Colonel Spurr followed in a speech commending the Agricultural College at Truro as the acme of instruction and benefit for young farmers.

After the speech-making, sports followed consisting of a tug of war between a pair of oxen and 20 men, also tub-racing, log rolling, etc. Fire-works and music by the Lawrence-town brass band also enlivened the occasion.

Digby Boat Damaged

Digby, Aug. 11.—The worst northeast storm of the season was experienced here last night. The St. John yacht Rena, of the R. K. Y. C., owned by S. A. Williams, lost an anchor and dragged down among the other yachts anchored in the harbor. Great damage was done to the Bay of Fundy fishing fleet. A number of gasoline boats of the Little River fleet, which were anchored at Tommy's Cove, were nearly all destroyed. Captain Rupert MacWhinnie, of the schooner Elmer, found it the worst storm he ever passed through in the Bay of Fundy. He lost three dories. John W. Hayden's sloop yacht Evelyn parted her murrings and sank at low water mark in the Joggins. The New York yacht Clara II, arrived here last night for a harbor and rode out the gale in safety. The Rena was rescued from her perilous position this morning by Captain F. A. Robinson's power boat Moto. During the night some boat collided with O. S. Dunham's power yacht Okawella, although her light was burning brightly, and carried away her signal mast and part of her brass rail.

EARTHQUAKE IN JAPAN.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Reports received today concerning the earthquake in Central Japan on Saturday afternoon show that there were a number of fatalities and that great damage was done to property. The dead at present are said to be thirty, though it is feared that the fatalities will be greatly increased when the outlying districts are heard from. The number of persons injured is 82. Thus far 362 buildings, including many temples, are reported to have been destroyed and more than one thousand others badly damaged.

ANOTHER REPORT

Sydney, N. S., Aug. 15.—A report is current here that International President Lewis, of the U. M. W., has wired instructions to District President Dan McDougall to order the Springfield strikers to return to work. The report probably refers to the pump-men, fan-men and repair men only, and not to the coal cutters and loaders.

was glad of any break in the dull monotony, accepted with alacrity. The motor was a four cylinder Layton, with a vicious back fire and a hoarse, wet cough, which would have warned an expert to look after his engine and relieve the oil valves, machinery was a rental, and, in detail to be looked after in the garage; therefore the driver hunched up Riverside drive with a charming disregard for signs and omens.

The Englishman talked, and the Texan listened, though he adroitly kept the conversation in a social vein on the chance of finding some opening for an attack on Irvington. In this he was not disappointed. The earl had secured letters of introduction to Jacob Renwyck, but on calling at the Broad street offices had found the gentleman absent. He left his letters, together with a note of request, and had promptly received a cordial invitation to join a small house party in the home of the Renwycks on the Hudson. He had accepted and intended to go there on the following day, where his valet would join him, bringing his luggage from Washington.

Richard's heart rose and rejoiced. Here was a possible chance to meet Miss Renwyck, yet he must proceed with caution. "Renwyck," he said thoughtfully. "Seems to me I've heard that name. Well, it's..."

The earl became so eloquent on that subject that his companion's suspicions were at once aroused, and more so as the Englishman's attention was riveted upon an income rather than his steering gear. "Any daughters in the family?" asked the Texan carelessly. "One, Aw—quite passable, I understand." Richard agreed with him, but did not think it necessary to mention the fact. "Did you ever meet the lady?" "No, old chap." "Nor any of the family?" "Never. I am—ah—not so keen, however, on Miss Renwyck's—er—relatives, don't you know," drawled his lordship in his most blasé and superior manner. The Texan's white teeth could not bear an angry snap. He could not bear his friend in that pose, but he put a curb on his tongue.

young woman of a Panhard stopped to view a general wreck and took bustling notice of every one's name and address? he detoured of raising the Englishman's head. The Texan about to answer truthfully when he opened his eyes and drew a sufficient of Police: "My name is Richard Williams of San Antonio, Texas—I'll pay all damages. The man has one of my cards."

The earl's eyes deliberately shut out any reproachful glance. The man of San Antonio, however, thunderstruck at this limit of nerve, but his vigorous words were cordially received. "What?" asked the patrolman. "Richard Williams," interrupted Crolyland. "Were you not the man who..."

Richard truthfully admitted to that idiot, and special dispensation of his own to answer anything more. "I had evened up with the machine happen to be my own," continued. "I was driving to Irvington tomorrow with the arrowed intention of making love to a lady you have never seen?" "Call it prospecting," laughed the Englishman. "It's a fair game, isn't it?"

"No, it isn't," snapped the Texan, falling into the vernacular of the plains. "It's a dinky deal with a cold deck. Where does the girl come in?" "Coronet," drawled the noble earl, "and not such a bad sort under it. If she is satisfied, I am, I'm sure." "Balthazar, mess of potatoes and a pig in a poke," suggested the Texan rather warmly. "But what of the why, great Scott, man, you're second hand!" She may be humped and hided."

"Why—under the tank," said Richard as he wild guess. The young woman flung back her head and laughed. "Did you learn to drive a motor in a hansom cab, sir?" "On a broncho, ma'am," returned Richard, cheerfully seeing the game was up. "There," she said as she held out her hand to him. "One thing more. Your friend Mr. Williams is an Englishman, isn't he?" "No," answered the young man solemnly: "he's a Turk."

CHAPTER IV. RICHARD, greatly annoyed by the turn of affairs and smarting because of his easy fall into Miss Sempson's clever trap, was forced to cool his heels in the waiting room while the serious and aged Englishman was being patched up temporarily by the doctors and put to bed in a private room. After a while the uniformed nurse came briskly and accepted the Texan's check. "Are you the chauffeur?" "The chauff—no—er—yes, of course," stammered Richard in wrathful confusion. "Very well, then. Mr. Williams wants to see you at once. This way, please."

She spoke curtly, as if she had little use for chauffeurs in general and none at all for this particular specimen. Richard, however, rose obediently—he could do nothing else—but his cheeks were flaming hotly at his false and humiliating position. Crolyland was carrying his joke a little too far. "Thank you," he answered grimly, to the great surprise of the nurse. "I'm particularly anxious to see the gentleman myself."

He was led to the door of a bare but sunny room, spotlessly clean, where the woman left him. He entered and closed the door sharply behind him and then turned to face the handmaiden earl reposing peacefully in bed. "Look here, Crolyland! What do you mean by giving my name in place of your own?" The earl smiled up at him and winked craftily. "Now, don't be a silly ass, old chap. Sit down. You can't smoke here, but I dare say you won't mind."

Richard seated himself somewhat reluctantly and awaited the answer to his question. For a moment the Englishman lay with closed eyes, then opened them and drawled out irrelevantly: "Ripping girl, that Miss Sempson, eh? Don't let me forget her address—322 Madison avenue. I shall send flowers—" and it won't be long either. By the way, I won't be able to go to the Renwycks at Irvington tomorrow." Richard brightened visibly. The proposition afforded some points of advantage after all. "You see," the earl went on, "I'll be laid up here for perhaps two weeks, and I don't want our ambassador to know it. My right arm is out of commission, and I can't write my excuses to Mr. Renwyck. I want you to see him personally and explain the matter to him quietly. Ask him if he'll be good enough to hold my luggage until I can get out of this place and send for it. My man will arrive there with my boxes tomorrow from Washington. Now, won't you do this for me, old fellow?"

"Well, yes, I suppose so, so long as I am in for it," said Richard, striving to conceal his joy. "Anything else?" The earl nodded. "I'd be glad if you would despatch my man as soon as he arrives. Bill's his name, Wadsway Bill." "Yes, I remember him now. Lord, but a name!" said Richard, who had seen the man at San Antonio with a view to a day or so before his lordship started for the ranch, sending his man back to New York. "Yes, isn't it? So suggestive, you know, to have him always around—especially on the first of the month, you know."

"Is that why you are going to fire him?" "No; he's a lazy beggar," returned the earl, languidly suppressing a yawn. "and a thief, too, by Jove! The last time it was four pound six and my jeweled cigar cutter. Mention it to him—he'll understand. You might say also that I have a letter from my friend Mr. Drake of Scotland Yard." For half an hour longer Richard remained with the earl discussing the details of the explanation to Mr. Renwyck and some other matters which he could attend to for Lord Crolyland. Then he arose to take his leave, promising to run up to Irvington the next morning.

"Oh, I say, Wilson," the earl called after him as he reached the door, the nurse having just entered with a warning that Mr. Williams must be left alone forthwith, "you won't forget about that beastly machine, will you?" "Certainly not," returned the bonyard. Richard and immediately became oblivious to "beastly machines" and everything else on earth except the memory of a warm, limp form that had nestled in his arms and a head of wind blown hair that cuddled against his shoulder while he rode amid that mass of cattle on that faroff Texan prairie. On the following morning Mr. Richard Williams, dressed in his best and with a soul full of hope and foreboding, took the 10:30 local train at the Grand Central station. He chanced to be the only male passenger to alight at Irvington, and with a beating heart he walked down the platform to the exit gate, when suddenly he heard a voice say: "Richard me, but are you not Lord Crolyland?"

Richard turned to see outside the fence a restive mare latched to a perfectly appointed trap, in which sat an elderly man of distinguished appearance. He recognized him at once, of course. Now, the Texan had not counted upon meeting Mr. Jacob Renwyck at the station, and his plans were disastrously affected by the unfortunate contretemps. He had hoped to enter the house before his name became known, and also he had prayed that the tractor thereof might not be at home at the moment of his arrival. However, he must put on a bold front and trust to luck. He pushed his way through the gate and approached the vehicle. "I recognized you instantly from your picture," said Mr. Renwyck, thrusting out a cordial hand. "Glad to see you, Jump in."

"What part of it?" "Oh, around in spots—Texas mostly—dabbling in cattle, you know." The old gentleman drew his mare up sharply, then let her go again. "Texas, eh? So have I. Ever met an old skinkin', cattle king, and so on, named Bill Williams?"

The tone of Mr. Renwyck's voice indicated perfectly in what low estimation he held the aforesaid Williams. "I—I know his son," said Richard nonchalantly. "Umph! Any improvement on the father?" "In a way, yes," the young man replied, with a ghost of a smile. Really, the conversation was growing interesting! For the moment Richard forgot he was Lord Crolyland, although a resentment which he could not exhibit considerably modified his amusement. "Don't believe it!" the old gentleman asserted flatly. "No, sir," he exclaimed, with a snap of his jaw under his white mustache; no, sir! No member of that generation of vipers could ever be anything else than a—than a—"

"Snake, naturally," suggested Richard in a bitter but carefully veiled anger, his heart lodging in the very bottom of his boots at this suggestion. The development of Renwyck's disgust for his father, which, in addition to the success of his love affair, "That's it," continued Mr. Renwyck, with cool deliberation, nodding vigorously—"a rattler!" "Yes," smiled Richard, the humor of the situation appealing to him in spite of its possibilities. "I've heard him called that, too, in—in a poker game." The adventurer was sinking every moment deeper into the mire. He did not think the present instant was auspicious for declaring himself a viper, yet tell his name he must soon, for even now they had passed the iron gateway of the Renwycks' country home and were whirling up a winding avenue lined with trees. What the result of this declaration would be he could but too well imagine. His heart sank; his hopes vanished.

Suddenly into his brain there flashed a brilliant idea—nothing less than an inspiration. To avoid trouble the Earl of Crolyland had coolly appropriated the name of Richard Williams. A fair exchange was no robbery by the laws of love and war, and if Richard bowed the Englishman's title for the time being an imminent calamity might be averted. At all events, he would meet the girl he loved, which was the chief object in view, and, besides, the proposition appealed to his sense of humor. His spirits rose at once. "Pardon me, Mr. Renwyck," he observed, with a faint suggestion of what he thought was the Englishman's drawing manner, "what jolly fine grounds you have! What d'ye call 'em?" "Restmore." "Ha, ha! Very good. Really, you know, quite up to Crolyland Park." "Think so?" said his flattered host. "I'm glad you like the place. Here we are!"

He drew the mare up sharply beneath the porte cochere and tossed the reins to a waiting groom. In a moment the pseudo noble guest was standing on a wide portico whose pillars and trellises were twined with wisteria in the season's first luxuriant bloom. From a seat on the lawn a vision in a bewildering white morning gown arose and came toward him. The Texan was conscious of an electric current turned slowly to the crowning notch of ecstasy. He saw for the second time in his life an oval face framed in dark hair, a pair of melting eyes and a nose with just that saucy tilt which seemed to dare him to plant a kiss beneath it, and a figure that he had once held in his arms. How could he have ever let it go? "Lord Crolyland," said Mr. Renwyck, indifferently enough, as if adorable girls like that were as plenty as blackberries, "allow me to present you to my daughter."

CHOLERA INFANTUM CURED.

"Something like two years ago my baby, which was then about 18 months old, was taken seriously ill with cholera infantum, vomiting and diarrhea profusely," writes J. J. Dempsey, Ala. "I did not know how to relieve her but did call on a doctor and being very much alarmed at her bent for a physician but failed to find one, so came back by E. Bros. & Carter's store and Mr. E. recommended Chamberlain's Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I procured a bottle of it, went home as quickly as possible and gave the baby a dose of the remedy. It relieved her in fifteen minutes and soon cured her entirely." For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN; A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

COLLAPSE OF MINERS' STRIKE IN VIEW.

(Sydney Record.) In so far as the number of men employed and the output of coal secured is concerned the strike at the collieries may be regarded from now on as practically at an end. With the men brought in from outside places and with those who had abandoned work and who are now returning the company is rapidly fitting up available places.

A GRAND KIDNEY MEDICINE

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him When Everything Else Failed.

Ulverton, Que., March 17th, 1908. I wish to place on record, for the sake of others who may be suffering in the same way that I suffered, that no medicine I ever took did me so much real good as "Fruit-a-tives" did. I suffered for many years with Kidney Trouble, with bad pain in the back.

I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill, but nothing gave me any relief, and I was getting discouraged.

I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and did so—and this medicine cured me when everything else failed.

I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset they gave me relief and I am now practically well again; no pain, no distress, and all symptoms of kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well, and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I did. To them, I say try "Fruit-a-tives" as they are a grand kidney medicine.

Will Not be Bumper Crop

Winnipeg, Aug. 9.—All the West is throbbing with interest just now over the condition of grain. It is a source of general conversation, for every line of business between the Lakes and Mountains depends to very considerable extent upon the grain crop of the prairie provinces. The yield will not be a bumper crop. This statement in times past has been regarded in the prairie section as the highest form of disloyalty, but new blood in the West is modifying many ideas and this is one of them. Farmers have suffered from crop boomers, as have business men generally almost every year, and the crop boomer, the man who knows that the yield is to be enormously increased, etc., is becoming unpopular. He is being put up into the same basket with the man who insists that while Manitoba produces the best No. 1 hard wheat in the world, it never gets colder in winter than a mild frosty morning. Crop conditions throughout the West are good, very good, and business as a result is out of all proportion to facilities and equipment, but the yield will in no event exceed an average crop, and it may be slightly under last year's. This condition is due particularly to lack of early moisture in many districts, late in others, and excessive moisture late in the season elsewhere.

GRANULATED SORE EYES CURED

"For twenty years I suffered from a bad case of granulated sore eyes," says Martin Boyd, of Henrietta, Ky. "In February, 1903, a gentleman asked me to try Chamberlain's Salve. I bought one box and used about two-thirds of it and my eyes have not given me any trouble since." This salve is for sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, N. S. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

ON THE COUNTRY ROAD.

(Chicago Daily News.)

What joy to walk amid these rural scenes!
The very atmosphere's a cure for care.

The peace that comes—(Honk-honk!) Hang those machines!
That automobile missed me by a hair.

The dew still lingers on the shining leaf;
The tree frog chirps within his green abode.

I love to hear the sweet—(Honk-honk!) The thief!
I wonder if he thinks he owns the road.

The woodland glades are passing far to see;
There's poetry in each walk and shady tower.

The rapture of the season comes to me—
(Honk-honk!) He's going sixty miles an hour.

I love a country stroll, but what's the use?
(Honk-honk!) Great guns! That fiend is speeding hard.

I can't think of anything but rank abuse.
Henceforth I'll stroll at home in my back yard.

WHAT THEY ARE COMING TO.

Is the following, from the Chicago "Evening Post," a true indication of what we are coming to?

"I don't recall seeing you at college. I guess you must be before my time."

"Possibly, possibly. Who was at the head of the faculty when you were there?"

"Um—let me see—I don't recall his name, but I was there the year Jinks played half-back on the football team and kicked a goal twice from the field in the last half of —"

"O, sure; of course. That was the year our centre rush graded most of the opposing team on his back for a gain of thirty yards. Yes, indeed. I wonder who was president then? I don't seem to be able to remember minor details of college life myself."

LOGIC APPLIED.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

There is a society in New York that, each year, takes a dozen or so East Side children and gives them the time of their lives for a month at an old farmhouse over in Jersey. The very first thing that takes place upon the arrival of the consignments is a thorough scrubbing.

"Good gracious, Jakey, your bath water is as black as ink," the attendant remarked to a lad at the end of his distressing ceremony. "It is dirtier by far than any of the others."

"Well, ain't I two years older 'an any of them kids?" Jakey demanded.

WHO'S AFRAID OF PANTS?

(Everybody's Magazine.)

Little Robert and Jim, the grocer's delivery man, were great friends; and on the momentous day of Robert's promotion from dresses to knickerbockers, he waited eagerly in front of the house for Jim's coming. But the delivery man, when he came, busied himself about his wagon, without seeming to see anything unusual in his small chum's appearance. Robert stood around hopefully, in various conspicuous positions, until he could stand it no longer. "Jim," he burst out at last, "is your horses 'fraid of pants?"

CHEAP WIT.

"Joel Chandler Harris," said an Atlantan, "used to write comic newspaper editorials. Sometimes he made fun of rival editors in them, too."

"Simon Simpson, a rival editor in Mobile, having been made fun of, wrote angrily in his rag:

"Joel Harris has been getting off some cheap wit at our expense."
"Joel, on reading this, grabbed his pen and dashed off, quick as a flash, for next day's issue:

"It must have been cheap, Simon, to be at your expense."

WHEN OLD AGE COMES.

If God grant me old age,
I would see some things finished;
some outworn
Some stone prepared for builders
yet unborn,
Nor would I be the sated, weary sage Who sees no strange new wonder in each morn.

And with me there on what men call
the shelf
Crowd memories from which I cull
the best—
And live old strifes, old kisses,
some old jest;

For if I be no burden to myself
I shall be less a burden to the rest.

If God grant me old age,
I'll love the record writ in whiten-ed hair,
I'll read each wrinkle wrought by patient care.

As oft as one would scan a treasured page,
Known by heart each sentence craven there.

I'd have you know life's evil and life's good,
And gaze out calmly, sweetly on it all—
Serene with hope, whatever may befall;

As though a love strong spirit ever stood
With arm about you waiting any call.

If God grant me old age,
I'd have us very lenient toward our kind Letting our waning senses first grow blind

Towards sins that youthful zealots can engage,
While we hug closer all the good we find.

I'd have us worldly foolish, heaven
wise,
Each lending each frail succor to withstand,
Ungrudging, every mortal day's demand;

While fear-fed lovers gaze in our old eyes
And go forth bold and glad and hand in hand.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE PAYNE TARIFF BILL

Washington, Aug. 1.—When majority leader Payne, head of the house conference on the tariff bill which bears his name, rose in the house of representatives to present the report of the conference committee of the two houses on the bill, the measure had been in conference for just three weeks. Contending that the bill makes a general downward tendency from the present rate of duty, Mr. Payne presented an exhaustive analysis of its provisions. He undertook to show that there had been a marked decrease in the rate of the necessities of life, while admitting that there had been an increase on some of the luxuries.

Probably the most marked reductions throughout any schedule in the bill, as a result of the action of the two houses and of the conference committee, are found in the metal schedule. Beginning with the decrease in iron ore there is a general reduction throughout the portion of the bill, pig iron a 10 per cent. down from $4 to $2.50 per ton, and cast iron from $4 to $1.

The reduction of duty of the items in this schedule is about 50 per cent., and the schedule includes steel rails. There was increase on structural steel required use.

Rough lumber is exempt from $2 to $1.24 per factory, with a corresponding decrease of the different dressed lumber of 20 per cent.

The wool schedule underwent no change of consequence, but the entire cotton schedule was reconstructed and the phaeology greatly changed in the hope of preventing reductions through decisions by the courts, such as have characterized the administration of the Dingley law during later years.

There is uniform increase in wines and liquors of 15 per cent.

In the agricultural schedule hops are increased from 12 to 16 cents a pound.

The publishers won out their fight for lower wood pulp and print paper, the rate on the ordinary newspaper print paper being fixed at $3.75 per ton instead of $6 as under the Dingley law, and on the higher grade of print paper at $3.75 instead of $8.

Mechanically ground wood pulp is to come in free of duty instead of paying one-twelfth of a cent a pound as under the Dingley law, but provision is made for a countervailing duty in case it becomes necessary to protect this country against Canada's prohibitions upon the exportation of woods to the United States. Klides of cattle come in free of duty, and a corresponding reduction in leather and leather goods.

Bituminous coal is reduced from 67 cents per ton to 45 cents.

Agricultural implements go off from 20 per cent. ad valorem to 15 per cent. and the older works of art are placed upon the free list.

Petroleum, which received much attention in both houses, slipped through without any duty.

There was practically no change in the wool schedule from the rates of the Dingley law, but there was a readjustment between the tops and yarns and a small decrease on cloths with a cotton warp.

Hides were placed on the free list while the rate on band and sole leather is reduced from 20 per cent. to 5 per cent. ad valorem; on dressed leather from 20 per cent. to 10 per cent., boots and shoes from 25 per cent. to 10 per cent.

Plaster rock or gypsum, crude, from 50 to 30 cents per ton, ground or calcined from $2.25 to $1.25. There is a general reduction in mica to 40 per cent. ad valorem. There was before a mixed specific and ad valorem system.

In the lumber schedule the only increases were those on shingles, from 30 cents to 50 cents per thousand, and the briar wood and laurel wood for the use of pipe makers from the free list to 15 per cent.

The rate on salvaged lumber was decreased from $2 per thousand to $1.25 per thousand. There was also a diminution on timber from one cent per cubic foot to one-half cent, and on sawed boards of white wood and kiln-dried woods from $2 per thousand to 50 per thousand.

The reduction in the differential rates in favor of dressed lumber averaged about one-third of the Dingley rate. Paving posts, railroad ties and telephone poles reduced from 20 to 10 per cent. ad valorem. Clapboards from $1.50 to $1.25; laths from 25 cents to 20 cents per thousand, while fence posts and kiln-dried wood were taken from the dutiable list and placed on the free list.

—A Paradise reporter sends a Hal-to the hay and apple crops of the Valley which is a correct view of the situation as represented by farmers to the Monitor-Sentinel. The suggestion as to the use of arsenate of lead in preference to Paris green is worth consideration.

"The majority of the farmers

through the Annapolis Valley have their upland and intervals hay stowed away under cover, and now the marshes present a busy scene. The dryness of the season has had a marked effect on the uplands, the crop on which will be little more than two-thirds of the average. The high marshes are also very light, but all low-lying lands are giving a good return.

"Hoed crops show the effect of lack of moisture—only continual cultivation keeps the crops growing—and in many places potatoes and some other root crops are almost standing still.

"The dry weather has been particularly favorable for the health of the potato bug and tent caterpillar. In some places the former has stripped the vines down to the bare stalks, while the yellow-white webs of the latter are excessively prevalent.

"Farmers are naturally conservative and slow to adopt new methods and until they throw away their Paris green and use arsenate of lead, they may expect these and kindred pests.

"The apple crops, while not as large as some predicted, will be superior to the average in the quality line; spot is almost entirely absent, and with the added

WHY NOT OWN AN AUTOMOBILE?
If automobiles are needed anywhere at all they are in the hands of the speakers of the Women's Institute, at Guelph. We predict that the time was near at hand when farmers would own their own automobiles. Nor is the prediction a visionary one. Like the telephone and the trolley, the automobile seems destined to be the comfort of country life, and the cost will not interfere with our buying. We can sell at a mere fraction of original cost. These cars are taken by us as part payment for the newest and latest models, and are such as we can thoroughly recommend. Any machine we send out is guaranteed to be in first-class condition, and beyond the fact that second-hand cars are not this year's style, there is nothing wrong with them in any way. We use them as a means of introduction to the country trade, and make the values extra special to encourage quick buying. If interested, send your name and address for fuller particulars.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES FOREST FIRES

Presentation and Address to Rev. F. P. GREATOREX

Dartmouth, Aug. 12.—Rev. Mr. Greatorex, the retiring Rector of Christ Church, Dartmouth, was waited upon by delegates from the parish consisting of the Prescott Johnson and John L. Wilson, H. D. Romans, George A. Orman, and H. H. Dewitt as representatives of the parishioners who assembled in the vestry of the Church at an early hour last evening and the Senior Warden, Prescott Johnson, read the following address: Rev. F. P. Greatorex:

A number of your parishioners, having in mind the fact that the kindly relations existing between you as Rector and us as parishioners are to be severed in the very near future by your departure from our midst, have availed ourselves of the opportunity of expressing, on our own and on their behalf, in a more or less tangible way, our appreciation of your services to the parishioners of Christ Church during your Rectorship here. For four years we and the members of our households, as well as a host of friends whose names are not on this address, have experienced your kindly ministrations. Always ready to respond to the sacred duties of your high calling you will leave behind you many thankful hearts and many happy memories of kindly sympathy and cheer given in the hour of affliction. Always ready to lend your assistance in providing entertainment for others you have endeared yourself to Dartmouth citizens in general and especially to the members of Christ Church. You have truly shared both our joys and our sorrows.

The accompanying watch and chain is but a slight token of our esteem for you as a pastor and friend. As it is a true timekeeper, never shirking its responsibilities and duties, so you have been a true pastor, ever working with the single aim of promoting the cause of Christ among the members of your congregation. There are abundant evidences that your labors have not been in vain, and this must be cheering to you as it is to us. Your family has also been of material assistance to the Church and we wish you and them every blessing in the years to come. May every you and them, is our wish. Wishing you once again success in the Lord's work in the days to come. We are, yours most sincerely,

The address was signed by many of the parishioners who had subscribed towards the presentation. The watch is suitably inscribed with the monogram of Mr. Greatorex on the back. The watch is inscribed as follows: I. H. S. Presented to Rev. F. P. Greatorex, by Parishioners of Christ Church, Dartmouth, in appreciation of faithful services, July, 1909.

In a few appreciative remarks, Mr. Greatorex thanked the delegates and members of the parish for their remembrance and for the token of esteem. He asked to be allowed to send a letter of gratitude. The following letter was received this morning: My Dear Friends,—Allow me to thank you very much for the handsome gift that you have so kindly presented to me. It is just what I required and is therefore doubly acceptable.

But even more than the watch and chain do I value the kind words accompanying the gift. The position of a clergyman must always be a difficult one, for of course he cannot please everybody—but it is with me a great cause for thankfulness that God has been pleased to give me so many kind friends and to bless my ministry amongst you. I heartily hope and pray that His blessing may equally rest upon my successor, and that the parish may flourish as never before. F. P. GREATOREX. Dartmouth, August 12th, 1909.

Springhill Mines Closed Down

(Halifax Chronicle.)

Montreal, Aug. 10.—The Cumberland Railway and Coal Company have decided to close down the mines at Springhill, N. S., indefinitely. This statement was made this afternoon by Mr. R. Drummond, President of the Company, who added as a limiting clause, "Until affairs are upon a basis where we can make a profit at the business." Mr. Drummond stated that the report telegraphed from Springhill last night that Manager J. R. Cowans had issued a notice offering to take back the men on the old terms was misleading, as the Company will not now take back the men on their terms.

"We have had a Board of Conciliation," said Mr. Drummond, "and it was proved to the satisfaction of the Board that the Company has been actually losing money for the last three years. Apart from any return on capital, we have lost money in actual operation. The report of the Board said that: 'These statements were not seriously called in question by the counsel for the men. Indeed it is not likely that they are open to question.'"

"In spite of these facts, which are indisputable, the men have asked for the fixing of a standard wage of ten per cent in advance of their present rate. That would mean an increase of $40,000 in the annual wage bill. Now when we are losing money at the present rates, how could we be expected to grant an increase. In the light of these facts, it seems very extraordinary that they should make such a demand. It looks like the dictation of these outsiders, the officers of a foreign organization.

"It has been stated that the strikers in Nova Scotia are part of the plan to control the Canadian coal trade in the interest of the Americans. At first blush such a charge may look absurd, but in view of recent developments does it not seem probable? If the coal trade of Canada is ruined it is the American miners who will benefit and they form the great majority of the U. M. W. A."

Springhill Mines, N. S., Aug. 10.—The strike is on in earnest at Springhill. Only one fireman turned up for work this morning in the person of G. E. Patterson, the Secretary of the Labor Party. All the other firemen, pumpmen and engine drivers have quit work, and the officials are working at the fire, doors, pumps, unloading coal, etc.

The company apparently expect a prolonged strike because they started to take the horses out of the mine this morning, which is seldom done in the early stages of a doubtful strike. Manager Cowans, who was in Parrsboro last night, arrived in town at 11 a. m., but declined to make any statement. Everything is extremely quiet and orderly about town. The main street was filled with a croup of strikers calmly discussing the situation, but a heavy rain has driven them to their homes, and the town is practically dead.

WILL RUIN BUSINESS.

The general impression among the men is that the strike will still be on when the snow flies unless the Company in the meantime give in. A rumor which your correspondent has failed to verify is prevalent about town that the miners at the Jorcins will be called out also. The business men of the town are the ones who will feel the strike most. During the last months business has been in a wretched condition, and the merchants are in no condition to give unlimited and extended credit. At the meeting last night only one man voted against a strike, and the meeting closed with cheers.

A GLOOMY PROSPECT.

The situation here is gloomy enough. The Company thought it expedient to prove before the Conciliation Board last month that it was losing money, and unless the men turned in to help, the industry must close. The Board's findings were against the contentions of the men and for a second time a strike is inaugurated when judicial tribunals says that there are no grievances. It is to be regretted that so many men will be out of employment and the hope is generally expressed that the Vice President of the U. M. W. from Indianapolis, who is in control of the workmen, will not attempt to carry out in Springhill the policy frankly avowed as being conducted in Glace Bay—pay money to the men to leave the country on the plea that it is cheaper to pay their transportation than to feed them. It would be strange when the two Governments are paying money to persuade men to settle in the province, if the funds of an American organization were to be used to pay men to leave it.

THE WOES OF THE WEAK-STOMACHED MAN

Relieved by Father Morrissey's "No. 11"

Did you ever see a happy dyspeptic? Or a man cheerful over his indigestion? No wonder you didn't, for the man who cannot digest cannot enjoy very much. When the stomach refuses to work the whole system goes wrong, and there follows heartburn, headache, constipation, bad breath and severe pain. Then the mind is affected; a person becomes irritable, sarcastic, surly—in fact, almost unbearable.

Father Morrissey gave this matter special study, and devised a tablet now known as "Father Morrissey's No. 11," which relieves the misery. Each tablet is capable of digesting 1 1/2 pounds of food—a good square meal. One tablet after eating, with a half tumbler of water, insures perfect digestion, providing reasonable care is taken to avoid foods that have been found especially disagreeable to the stomach.

If you have suffered from a weak stomach, why not do as thousands have done—take Father Morrissey's No. 11 Tablets and be cured? See at your dealer's, or from Father Morrissey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B.

County S. S. Association

The Field Secretary, J. W. Brown, Ph. D., and Provincial Superintendent of Elementary, Mrs. G. W. Whitman, will be present, as well as other thoughtful progressive Sunday workers and we hope much may be done to further the best interest of our Schools.

Will all the pastors and superintendents work for a large attendance at this Convention? Can we not have a representative from every School in the County?

Let your aim be in attending these meetings to help and to be helped, not losing sight of the spiritual side.

Send names of delegates to Mrs. T. A. Elliott, Paradise, before Aug. 25, with mode of conveyance and time of arrival.

THE HOME

WHY SO HEARTLESS?

Is there anything the world needs so much as good mothers? A woman comes to mind who has all the advantages of city life, belongs to a church, and who has a really beautiful little girl. She was talking with a number of women one day when the conversation turned on cats. Several remarked how well they liked cats when this self-satisfied, smiling woman said she had tried to raise kittens several times but that her little girl choked and dragged them around so they always died. Upon one of us saying, "How horrible, can you not teach her different from that?" she only shrugged her plump shoulders and said, "Oh, some times I scold a little, but, then, I don't care." The child stood there listening—a spoiled darling, a mother of the future—who will be as indifferent to suffering as her mother before her.

Why does the responsibility of motherhood rest so lightly on their shoulders and why are not more really interested in justice to animals?

If every mother would train her children to be always kind and humane, in a short time the world might be reformed and we would have good men and women everywhere who could not be happy unless they were always just and considerate of the four-footed creation as well as of human beings. If all parents in the past had done their whole duty what a charming place this world would be!

Why are women so heartless? When we see men abusing their poor faithful horses and other animals entrusted to them, we know how little their mothers cared about teaching them otherwise and realize how urgent is the need of good mothers.

A good person is one who is kind and just to everyone and everything and who tries to influence others to be so, and I care not of what religion person may be or of what religion a follower of whether a follower of any, that person is good and is the world's greatest need today.—Dumb Animals.

POISE IN WALKING.

The first essential of graceful walking is poise. The weight of the body must be adjusted over the balls of the feet. In correct poise, the chest always leads, the abdomen recedes, the back and head assume their right positions. It goes without saying that there can be no grace in a hasty walk. Haste causes irregular and uncertain movements of all portions of the body, detracts from a woman's dignity and makes rhythm impossible.

Activity and right use of the feet are the second essential of a graceful walk. The feet have a double duty to perform—in bearing the weight and propelling the body. When the standing position is right, one leg is swung forward from the hip, the knee acting in harmony, and the ball of the foot touching first. The weight is so quickly transferred that the heel makes no noise. Women who walk heavily leave the weight on the heel and are never graceful. The general saying that one should "walk on the balls of the feet" has led some people to try not touching the heel at all. The result is a mincing gait wholly without dignity or grace.

The position of the feet should be straight. The weight of the body being on one foot while the other is swinging forward, the strongest position of the foot should be taken, which is, practically straight. As children are always taught to "turn their toes out" this will surprise many.

The carriage of the shoulders is an important element in graceful walking. Nervousness, self-consciousness and haste show in stiffness of the shoulders, also in the aggressive elbows and clasped hands. If the chest is well up and forward, the shoulders will take their natural position and the arms hang at the sides. Forget your shoulders and think only of your chest.—Delineator for August.

Vegetarian Pastry.—Take one of the flaked, ready cooked breakfast foods, and mix with about half the quantity of rich cream, to form a moist paste. With this line a well-oiled pie plate, molding it around the edges to resemble ordinary pie crust. Pour in a filling of custard cocoanut, cream, lemon or apple, and bake as an ordinary pie. While the filling is cooking, the cereal will bake out firm and crisp, becoming firm enough to support the pie when it is taken from the pan. It forms a pastry as delicious as the lightest puff paste, and has none of the indigestible qualities of the latter. A meringue should be placed on top, instead of an upper crust.—Woman's Home Companion.

ADVICE FOR HOUSEWIVES.

A broom is more convenient than a carpet sweeper in removing cobwebs from the parlor ceiling. If you can have but one vegetable for dinner when you have company, do not choose horseradish, as some people find that when eaten in large quantities it does not agree with them.

In baking pies or cakes, or even bread, it is always better to have a fire in the stove range used for the purpose.

Soup should always be served in dishes of some sort, as otherwise it is likely to damage the table linen. Small pieces of bread broken from the slice and spread judiciously with butter may be eaten from the hand, and are much liked by most persons.

Raisins are preferable to currants in all cakes and puddings made during the summer and early fall, as near-sighted persons are not so likely to mistake them for flies.—Judge.

HELPING GOD.

A child had been playing in the garden one day, and when she came in her mother said, "What have you been doing, my dear?" "Helping God, mother," said the little one. "How have you been helping God?" asked the mother. "I saw a flower going to blossom, and I blossomed it," answered the child. There are some people who think they are helping God when doing just what this child did. God does not want help in opening his buds and blossoming his roses. The buds must be opened and the roses blossomed in nature's gentle way, in God's way. To blossom them before their time would be to ruin them. We need to be most careful in our culture of spiritual life in others, especially in children. Violence and forcing way do incalculable harm. Many a child's life fails of its rarest beauty because its development is hastened. Rose buds want only air, sunshine, and rain to bring out their beauty. The best thing we can do to develop spiritual life is to give an atmosphere of love and purity to those we seek to bless. From "A Heart Garden."

KEEP THE SCRAPS.

When you have collected a number of bits of pure toilet soap pour hot water over them in the proportion of a cupful to half a cupful of soap shavings. Set the jar on the stove, and when it boils, and the soap is well dissolved, stir in ground oatmeal, and a little lemon juice, adding a few drops of any good perfume. As soon as the batter becomes stiff, pour it into a greased dish. When nearly hard cut into cakes, and you have a most excellent soap for whitening and softening the hands.

Scraps of common soap may be utilized in the same way, using ground bathbrick or scouring sand and considerably less water.

Oh, joy it is to live
To know, to hear, to see!
God has so much to give
And gives to gladden me—
Music and mirth and love on Earth
And Heaven yet to be!
—Frank Dempster in Century Magazine.

Some families reserve all their unpleasantness for meal hours; they think it a convenient occasion to discuss things that have gone awry; to thrash out grievances, to dwell on disagreeable or gloomy subjects. If they but knew it they are courting dyspepsia more surely than if they indulged in mince pie or terrapin.

The work of skinning onions, which usually ends in tears, can be made a pleasure by pouring boiling water over them and covering a few minutes before peeling.

Cook a can of tomatoes slowly with several slices of bacon. If already fried all the better. Add an onion cut fine, bread crumbs, and seasoning. Makes an appetizing change.

INTENSE COLICKY PAINS RELIEVED.

"For some years I suffered from intense colicky pains which would come on at times and from which I could find no relief," says I. S. Mason, of Beaver Dam, Ky. "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me by a friend. After taking a few doses of the remedy I was entirely relieved. That was four years ago and there has been no return of the symptoms since that time." This remedy is for sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN; A. B. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL; and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

FACTS AND FADS.

Evening Gloves Are Handlessly Embroidered—Midsummer Millinery. Daily gloves for summer evening wear are of tinted silk. Most gloves for wear with expensive frocks are embroidered in old times. Some of the present day coliffures show bunches of corkscrew curls pinned on at the side near the neck. This style is extreme and becoming to COMBINATION GARMENT OF DOTTED SWISS.

Very few persons. The coliffure should always suit the costume. For instance, an elaborate coliffure of many puffs and curls outlines a shirt waist suit, while a classic gown demands a coliffure along the same lines. For wear with a lingerie dress is a hat of black tulle, set off by a large handsome bow of white lace and a band around the crown to correspond.

A single rose for trimming is the extreme of simplicity reached by some Parisian milliners, the hat being of rough straw or horsehair braid.

Handsome wings are coming into vogue on new millinery. Early in the season they were conspicuous by their absence. Now, however, they are the very latest. Flowers, of course, are in good taste and are always worn in summer.

The combination garment illustrated is carried out in dotted swiss, which is a material much used this summer for underwear. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

The Summer Muff—Dainty Colorings in Coat Trimmings.

With the lace hat and scarf French women now wear a marvel of mild elegance to add to their grace and to do duty as a vanity bag. These wide flat affairs are made of mousseline chiffon or marquisette—anything dia phanous—and colored like the gown or scarf. Although they are plaited and shirred into the semblance of a muff, they do not convey the idea of warmth, but only of novelty and airy grace.

The most delightful color combinations are used on the new coats with the smartest results. A soft diagonal bronze serge suit in simple tailor outline has a wide collar and deep cuffs of prune faille silk. This same shade was used with charming effect on a suit of navy blue. A soft gray blue had a touch of apricot satin under silk touches in dark blue.

Such a frock as the one illustrated can be worn with guimpe or as depicted. The oddly shaped yoke is cut in one with the sleeves, and the blouse portion is arranged over it. The skirt is straight and plaited.

Was Made Useful

Only two ago the Commercial Industries of the forest were becoming a little article of domestic life; such as brooms, tooth-picks, shoe pegs, hollyhocks, etc. What was said of the importance of the fact that our timber trees are being more carefully cut than formerly, and that the waste wood of trees is being utilized to a larger degree than formerly. The following fact is to the point.

A Massachusetts manufacturer of brushes recently made a discovery in our state which supplied him with waste material exactly suited to his purpose. He came down into Maine to buy wood for the backs of hair brushes, and chanced to visit the yards of a spool maker who was using white birch. The spool man took the white part of the wood only, and was throwing away the red hearts. Thousands of cords had been burned or dumped in the lake to be rid of it.

The red hearts were exactly what the brush maker wanted, and at little more than the expense of freight he supplied the factory.

This is typical of the trend of manufacturing. Waste of wood is still great, but it is being saved. What one factory cannot use another turns to profit. Formerly mills threw away half the forest-tips left in the woods, sawdust jumped in streams to pollute them, and destroy fish, slabs burned in perpetual bonfires and defective logs and low grade lumber abandoned as not worth moving.

This policy does not generally prevail now. Some mills have put in machinery to work up their own by-products, others sell their waste to manufacturers who can use it, as in the case just cited in Maine, our own state. The properties and uses of woods are now subjects of careful investigation, and the problem of turning to account the odds and ends and the by-products is brought more to the front now than formerly.

The United States forest reserve has taken up this study in a comprehensive and systematic way. Investigations of the woods of particular states are being conducted usually in co-operation with the states concerned. The plan, when fully carried out, will include every commercial wood in the United States, not fewer than 200 species.

The properties of each will be investigated, its hardness, toughness, elasticity, durability, weight, fuel value, size of tree, regions where grown, the common names by which it is known in different localities, and other matters of this kind. A history of the wood's uses in the past will be given, and an account of present uses, together with suggestions for a wider range of usefulness in the future by pointing out in what capacities it will serve best and be most valuable.

WOMEN TO FARM.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Half a dozen Chicago seamstresses recently bought 160 acres of irrigated land out of their earnings, and will seek economic independence in fruit culture in 1910. They are the Misses Glenna Lynch, Adelaide Jackson, Marie Miller, Helen Miller, Laura Hunt and Maud Lynch.

"We came to the conclusion a year ago that the irrigated farms of the west offered a field of work for women and our belief has not been shaken," said Miss Lynch.

"We have a house on the land and we are going out to take possession. I leave now to prepare the way. It is a great and pleasurable chance for us."
