THE EXECUTION OF THOS. COLLINS

Condemned Man Cool and Nervy to the Last Moment

NO CONFESSION WAS MADE

Final Scenes in the Last Act of the New Ireland Tragedy--No Hitch in Radcliffe's Plans.

Hopewell Cape, N. B., Nov. 15.--Thomas Francis Collins paid the death penalty for the murder of Mary Ann McKinley this morning at 7:25 o'clock. Five minutes before this time Sheriff Lynds summoned Hangman Radcliffe to the cell, and the procession to the gallows immediately followed. Collins walked steadily to the platform and did not utter a word after leaving his cell. The execution was witnessed by about a dozen persons, including officials, clergymen, pressmen and one or two others, and was conducted in daylight at the request of the prisoner. The last hours of the prisoner were spent quite peacefully, the convicted man apparently finding much strength in the presence of Rev. B. H. Thomas, of Dorchester. Mrs. L. B. Steeves was with the prisoner until one o'clock this morning and his parting with her was a most affectionate and pathetic one. "Good bye, mother," were the prisoner's last words to her as they kissed in a last farewell. Mrs. Steeves was overcome with emotion at the trying ordeal through which she had to pass. Several times following her departure the prisoner broke down and wept bitterly on Mr. Thomas's shoulder. Later he recovered much of his composure and found comfort in reading favorite passages of Scripture and familiar hymns with the attending clergyman. Shortly after three o'clock Collins fell asleep and slept for nearly three hours. Rev. Mr. Thomas remained by him during that time. A light breakfast consisting of fried eggs was then taken to him, but of this he partook very sparingly. At his request Rev. Mr. Thomas ate a light lunch with him. The final services in the cell were then conducted, and in them the prisoner seemed to derive much strength for the final ordeal. His favorite passage of Scripture was the 121st Psalm and this he read several times. The familiar 23rd Psalm was also read and discussed. Favorite hymns were also read over, among these such as How Firm a Foundation, Nearer My God to Thee, Just As I Am and What a Friend We Have in Jesus. Shortly after the procession to the gallows was formed the prisoner requested Mr. Thomas to read the passage, "Whosoever cometh to Me shall in no wise be cast out," and after this had been done saying "that means even me." The last words of the prisoner were spoken to Rev. Mr. Thomas as he wept upon his neck. "Tell Sheriff Lynds, Mrs. Steeves and my other friends that I am trusting in Jesus and will not disappoint them, but will be brave and courageous to the end," he said. During Thursday evening the condemned man made no reference to his guilt and so far as is known left no statement or confession.

At twenty minutes past seven the procession to the gallows started, Radcliffe leading the way. He was followed immediately by the prisoner, who was assisted by the Rev. Mr. Thomas. The prisoner walked calmly and steadily and made no movement after reaching the gallows. Deputy Sheriff Simpson of Amherst, was also in the procession and accompanied them to the platform. At a request made by the prisoner in his cell Rev. Mr. Thomas held his hand as he ascended the steps. Radcliffe adjusted the black cap to Collins' head, strapped his legs together, and placed the rope around his neck. The Lord's prayer was then repeated by Rev. Mr. Thomas and the lever allowing the death trap to fall was pulled by the hangman at exactly 7:25 o'clock. The body was allowed to hang for seven minutes, as violent beatings of the heart followed during this period although the condemned man's neck was dislocated by the drop. As the trap dropped no movement was noticeable beyond the twitching of the man's hands. The drop was about nine feet and a half, the executed man's feet being nearly three feet above the floor on which the doctors and other officials stood. The execution, a painful sight, was witnessed by the group of grim faced men. It was well conducted, being free from the least thing that might mar the solemnity of the occasion. The apparatus, although hastily erected Thursday, worked well, their being not the least delay or bungle. Interment took place on the hill above the goal, the grave having been prepared on Thursday afternoon. A number of Collins' friends were present, and were much impressed with the service as conducted by Rev. Mr. Thomas, with Rev. Wm. Lawson, of Hillsboro, assisting.

Following the execution, your representative visited the home of Sheriff Lynds, with the purpose of seeing Mrs. Steeves, as it was thought possible the prisoner might have made a confession to her. Mrs. Steeves, however, was so overcome with emotion that she could not see anyone, and sent word that she had no statement whatever. In a subsequent conversation with Rev. B. H. Thomas, he stated that although the prisoner, as far as known, had made no confession, he believed that Collins died with a sincere trust in Christ as his Saviour, and that his recent thoroughly changed attitude, with his sweet air of resignation, had thoroughly convinced him that he had died with the Christian's hope.

Use Lime Juice. "A little lime juice is a glass of cool water, about half hour before breakfast," said James R. Gordon, of Chicago, at the Hotel Duncan, "will cure the most obstinate case of indigestion. After one has taken the lime juice for about six or eight mornings an improvement manifests itself. It is gradual, slow but sure. English sailors are forced to take a certain quantity of lime juice twice a week. You never heard of one of them suffering from anything like indigestion. The juice of the lime kills all poisonous acids that collect in one's stomach during the night and keeps the lining clean and healthy. I was in the West Indies one time and the people over there use lime juice for almost every ailment. To them it is the greatest medicine known. They use it exclusively for terrible fevers, giving a little of it in lukewarm water to the patient several times a day."

Many an unwise parent works hard, and lives sparingly, all his life for the purpose of leaving enough to give his children a start in the world, as it is called. Setting a young man adrift with money left him by his relatives, is like tying a bladder under the arms of one who cannot swim; ten chances to one he will loose the bladder and go to the bottom. Teach him to swim and he will not need the bladder. Give your child a good education. See to it that his morals are pure, his mind cultivated, and his whole nature made made subservient to the laws which govern man, and you have given what will be of more value than the wealth of the Indies. You have given him a start which no misfortune can deprive him of. The earlier you teach him to depend upon his own resources and the blessings of God, the better.

An Interesting Copper Story

We want you to read every word of this story. It won't take you long and you will feel well repaid when you have done so. Copper is today receiving more attention than any other metal, even gold. Copper is the mainstay of industrialism, the metal most clamored for by manufacturers everywhere. The demand far exceeds the supply, and what is more, the most sanguine confess they cannot see when the mines will catch up. This wonderful demand is what makes copper high. Don't look at the fluctuations of certain defunct copper stocks--look at the price of raw copper (present market price 1 1/2). Think of it--a few years ago copper went begging at half that price. There is money in copper. Money for the engineer, money for the miner, but more money for the man who has funds to help develop ore-bearing properties. He is the man who gets the big slice. He commands the situation because he holds in his hand the one thing essential to all such work. The lion's share is due him, for he sows his seed, as it were, and waits patiently for harvest time, taking such risks as are common to all such enterprises. Some people speak of mining, and particularly the acquisition of mining shares, as risky. Will someone kindly specify just what underfaking in this uncertain world is not a risk. If "taking chances" is gambling, then we are all gamblers--even the man who builds a new house, for it may burn down. Your grocer who buys flour at $3.00 and sells it for $5.00, makes a profit, if unforeseen circumstances force it below $5.00 he loses, is he a gambler? So is your friend who trades horses, for he doesn't know what he is getting. The man who builds a new fishing boat or weir gambles on the season. If it is a good one he makes his money--if a failure he is apt to go "broke." Every investment is a gamble in one sense, but is that any reason why we should not attempt to make our money earn dividends? Conservatism is in many ways a virtue, but when conservatism conflicts with the spirit of growth and progress, one is better without it. Better wear out than rust out. Better die in harness than waiting with folded hands for your ship to come in. How can it return to you with gold unless you load it first with an outgoing cargo?

NAME	PERCENTAGE	PERCENTAGE	PERCENTAGE	PERCENTAGE	PERCENTAGE	PERCENTAGE	PERCENTAGE	PERCENTAGE	PERCENTAGE
Green Sample			44.17%	126.71
Brown Sample			21.6%	58.14

Sample shows values of $126.00 per ton, ($8.00 is paying ore) and as this property can produce ore at $6.00 to $8.00 per ton, you see the profit is enormous. The brown, or poorest surface sample, goes $66.00, paying ore in itself. If you doubt this analysis, write Mr. Henry Carmichael, Boston, (see assay herewith) and he will confirm this report.

A Great Opportunity

Many people would invest in mining stocks if they could but feel that they were buying actual mineral ground, and stood a fair chance of ultimately sharing in the prosperity of the interests owning such properties, and they do well to hesitate. But when they have a great and unusual opportunity like the present one--a chance which comes but once in a life time, they should make the most of it.

The Arizona and Eastern Copper Co.

is capitalized at only $250,000.00, perhaps one-tenth of the actual value of its property NOW. The company has a clear and perfect title to eight claims, covering one hundred and thirty acres of the best mineral land in Riverside mining district, Pinal County, Arizona. The company has no debts, liens or bonds and only needs to sell $1,000 shares of stock at half price, to insure immediate sale, to put it on a good working and dividend-paying basis. These shares you can buy for a limited time at Grandma's Courting Days.

"Then he really did consent at last?" said Emmeline.

"Yes," replied grandma. "There really wasn't anything else for him to do, I said: 'Dear father, Mr. Hackerley inspires me with sentiments of the most profound respect; I esteem him most highly, but I do not love him, and it grieves me to the heart that you should consider me undutiful. On the other hand, if you please to marry my daughter, I must, as your daughter, obey you, but I shall be most unhappy, believe me.'"

"Were you joking, grandma?" asked Vivien.

Grandma looked at her rather severely. "Why should you ask that question?" she inquired.

Emmeline gave her sister a surreptitious pinch. "I—I thought that perhaps you weren't really in earnest," explained Vivien.

"Indeed I was," said grandma smoothing her skirt. "Very much in earnest. I could not, even to please my dearest father, contract a matrimonial alliance with a gentleman 40 years my senior. William contrived to send me a billet urging a clandestine meeting, but that, of course, I denied him."

"Why?" asked Vivien.

"I am surprised that you should ask me that question, my dear," said grandma. "Why, such a meeting would have been highly improper."

Emmeline coughed.

"Still, I do not believe that my father would have abated his determination had it not been for the intervention of Mr. Hackerley himself, who, with a chivalry and kindness that was far beyond our expectations, resigned his pretensions and actually pleaded William's cause."

"How perfectly sweet and lovely of him!" exclaimed Emmeline.

"Wasn't he just noble!" said Vivien.

"After you had talked him down to do that, grandma, you won't mind if I ask you, will you, but did you call him William—when you were together, you know?"

"Certainly not," replied grandma. "Not before we were formally affianced, at least, I called him Mr. Tompwin."

"How funny!" remarked Vivien, quite frankly.

Emmeline giggled a little, and then begged her grandmother to go on. "I'm just crazy to hear you tell me all about it," she said.

"There is nothing more to relate," said grandma. "When dear father had given his consent and our betrothal had taken place, we were, of course, permitted to see each other with comparative freedom. William was invited to dine with us every Sabbath and on any social occasion, such as a ball, or when my mother and I attended the play, he was allowed the privilege of escorting us."

"Gee!" exclaimed Emmeline, unguardedly and with fervor.

"Emmeline, you shock me," said her grandmother, reprovingly.

"I didn't mean anything by it and Tom says it so often that I say it without thinking," said the girl. "Please don't mind me. How long were you engaged, grandma?"

"For two years," replied grandma.

"Father and mother considered that we should both have time to acquaint ourselves with each other's dispositions before taking the irrevocable step of marriage."

"Didn't they have divorces then?" asked Vivien.

"I presume that, then, as now, there were divorces, but there was not then the laxity of opinion concerning them that unhappily prevails at this day and age," replied grandma. "Furthermore, well-conducted young women would not even have mentioned such a subject."

"Go on, dear grandma," urged Emmeline. They wanted to give you a chance to know each other thoroughly, so they allowed you to see each other once a week and sometimes even oftener?"

"Yes," said grandma, seriously, "and if parents were equally wise nowadays we should hear of fewer hasty and ill-considered unions. I tell you there is nothing more. We were married on the eighteenth of June, 1856."

"What did you wear?" asked Emmeline, with interest.

"Get me those daguerreotypes out of the top drawer in the highboy," grand-

DOCTORS USING PATENT MEDICINES

The Honest Physician is Anxious to Cure and Uses the Best Available Remedies.

The discussion of the bill now before the Dominion Parliament for the regulation of the manufacture and sale of patent or proprietary medicines is one of the utmost importance, and is receiving a great deal of attention, not only by the proprietary medicine manufacturers, but also by the retail and wholesale druggists. Every manufacturer of reliable and high class remedies welcomes the bill as a step in the right direction. The discussion has brought out the fact that the best physicians in Canada and on the continent approve of and prescribe Paychine in cases of the most difficult character. In a recent instance of very serious throat and lung trouble the patient had been using Paychine. Two leading United States specialists were consulted, in addition to two eminent Canadian physicians. Upon learning what the patient was using, a sample of Paychine was taken and analyzed, with the result that the physicians advised its continuance. They prescribed no other medicine but Paychine, with the result that the patient has fully recovered and is a splendid walking and talking advertisement for the wonderful curative power of a remedy that will "stand up" before the keenest professional criticism and analysis as a builder up of the system and restoring all wasted conditions. Paychine has no equal and the best and most earnest physicians recognize this fact. "At the age of 35 my lungs were in a terrible state. I had in grippe the year before; it settled on my lungs and I kept steadily growing worse till I got down so low I was in bed for six weeks. I had a consultation of doctors, and they said they could do nothing more for me. Then I started to use Paychine. I took the medicine for more than a year. It certainly did wonders for me. I am now as strong as I was before my sickness."

MRS. H. HOPPE,
Morpheh, Ont.

Paychine, pronounced "Stee-ken," is the greatest of tonics, building up the system, increasing the appetite, purifying the blood, its direct action being directly upon the throat and lungs, giving tone and vigor to the entire system. ma directed. "There," she said, opening one of the faded red square cases.

"That was taken a month after our wedding. I wore that dress to a ball the evening of the day that I heard Mr. Lincoln make a speech in favor of Mr. Freeman. Your grandfather was very indignant at some of the arguments Mr. Lincoln advanced. At that time he was a strong Buchanan man himself, and—"

"Just see that crinoline!" interrupted Vivien. "Oh, if they ever do bring them back I'll die! Why did you wear that funny looking thing across your forehead, grandma?"

"The fillet? Those were worn then. I think, Vivien, that if your hair—"

"I think they are awfully becoming," Emmeline hastened to say. "What color is that dress, grandma? It's a sort of pink, isn't it?"

"Salmon pink," replied the old lady.

"It was silk. I'll show it to you some day. Here's your grandfather. We were taken at the same time."

"Was his coat as blue as that?" asked Emmeline.

"Bluer than that," said grandma.

"The picture is faded."

"Aloe coat and yellow trousers?" gasped Emmeline.

"But, my dear," corrected the grandmother, "they were nankeen. He always wore nankeen on those days. That waist-coat he is wearing was embroidered by hand. Some of the embroidery was in gold thread—pure gold. It was handsome. Now, put them back. I'm going to take my nap and I'm tired of your chatter."

"Dear, funny old things," said Emmeline. Did you ever hear anything so ridiculous? Can you imagine them?"

"And think of falling in love with a girl with hair arranged like that and in a salmon-pink silk over a hoop skirt! How could he?"

"How could she? That necktie sticking out on each side of him! And, Vivien, his coat sleeves were down over his knuckles. The coat doesn't fit, to say nothing of the color. And that hat on the table by him! Do you honestly believe they ever did—really?"

"Em," said Vivien, suddenly, "I'm going to call in every one of my photographs and burn them!"—Chicago News.

A Trout Story.

Most travellers carry medals for telling fish stories, but here is one which is a little off the common run. We were camping in the north, says a man of the road, and one evening after our supper of black bass and bacon we lay under the pine trees smoking and telling fish stories in which it was always the "bigger bass" that got away. The guide listened with the gravity of a man who knew all about fish stories, and finally he knocked the ashes from his pipe and told us a fish story. "Once long ago," he said, "there was a terrible big trout up in Smith's pool. Every fellow who fished in the pool had hooked him one time or other, but he always got away, bit off the snood or something. I tried to catch him myself a dozen times. One day I was sitting by the pool, when splash, a young robin fluttered out of a nest on a limb above the pool into the water below. In a minute there was a rush, a gleam of yellow, and the old trout had thrown himself clean out of the water, and I had swallowed the robin whole. What did I do? Well, I climbed that tree in short order. Got another one of those young robins, baited my hook with it, and threw it in just as lightly as I could. In a minute there was another rush, another gleam of yellow, and again the old trout jumped clear of the water as he swallowed the robin, and in a minute I had him hooked. It was lucky I wasn't fishing with any of this new-fangled rigging these boys use, and that I wasn't bothered with a reel to look after, or I would have lost him sure. As it was it took me a devil of a time to get him out. Good to eat? Great Scott! We didn't try to eat him. He was so full of hooks we sold him for old iron, you know." That ended our fish stories for that night.

If potatoes intended for seed are placed in pits and properly covered, they will come out in the spring without a sprout and as firm as when placed in the pits. This condition certainly indicates that no vitality has been lost.

Finely chopped or crushed turnips make an excellent change of diet for poultry during the winter. The same thing is true of pumpkins. A pumpkin cut in halves and placed before the fowls will soon be nothing but rind. A good way is to stick them on nails in the walls of the house, as the fowls will get desirable exercise in jumping a few inches to reach them.

Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy

"ALL DEALERS"

man said, flinging the dead hens at her feet. A flock of blood dew upon Miss Gatty's faded frock.

"You had a right to do as you did," Miss Gatty panted. "Only--please go away! Go quick!"

She spoke stooping over the hens. The man looked at her, chose enough to see two tears plash down on the corpses. He ran ineffectively from the sight, but not altogether cravenly.

Inside five minutes he was back with a basket of fine, dewy, scarlet berries. Miss Gatty had vanished. So had the slain. He walked around to the back door searching for her without finding.

Being a determined person, he stepped boldly inside. Miss Gatty sat in the prim dining room, her head buried in her arms beside the old mahogany table. She was sobbing--hard, dry sobs.

The intruder half turned as though to run away again, but thought better of it, stepped forward and set down his basket in front of her with a resounding thump. As she sprang up startled he said in an embarrassed voice: "May-be you don't know who I am. My name's Lalor."

"But I did know it. You should not be here," Miss Gatty panted. "Your wife?"

"Thank you, but I haven't got a wife--not yet," Mr. Lalor said, with a grin. "You must be thinking of my sister-in-law. Fanny keeps house for me, but she hates the place and wants to leave. I think I'll let her--and see if I can't have peace and neighbors. Don't you think we ought to be neighbors?"

"You're really responsible. Your hens have taught me to take what I want regardless of bounds," he flung back at her. Susanna laughed outright and answered honestly, "If they really did it I'm mighty glad."

When we reach the higher studies of foreign languages we are told to seek diligently to learn to think in the alien tongue, as well as to read and write it. That is, we are expected to catch the meaning of the strange words without any connection with English or English speech.

SUPERSTITIOUS.

General Grant believed in dreams. The English naval hero, always carried a horseshoe with him into battle.

"You Molke, the hardy old German general, would never bring a battle on a Friday."

Prince Bismarck of Germany would never sit down to a dinner with thirteen at the table.

Creedon, Duke of the Confederacy believed that the presence of children brought him luck.

James G. Blaine would never turn back to answer his home even if he had forgotten something.

The father of Nicholas II. of Russia guided his actions by the advice of an astrologer upon the subject of his marriage.

Admiral Farragut says he used to be guided by a still, small voice which told him what to do in battles.

The ameer of Afghanistan, the sultans of Morocco and Zanzibar and the khedive of Egypt all maintain official astrologers.

A Timely Present. A certain colored gentleman recently saluted a large colored lady of the Amazonian type in the following language: "Yuh's lookin' mighty fascinatin' 'dis evnin'."

Next day the aforesaid colored gentleman presented the said "Sal" with a copy of Webster's Dictionary, saying, "I might want ter salute yuh agin, so please look up the meaning of some of these heap complimentation terms."

"Sal promptly refused to accept the present upon the ground that one would have to know the word in order to look it up."

Gowns From the Undertaker's. "You'll be astonished when I tell you," said a man who knows, "but it's a fact that dressmakers sometimes send to a fashionable undertaker for a gown when they have a hurry order. There was a time when undertakers carried only shrouds in stock, but in this age of luxury the big concerns have a line of what are known in the trade as 'ladies' fine burial dresses.'"

As He Viewed It. Stranger (in small town)--I saw by the papers that a boy lives here who was born with no legs and no arms. I am a dime museum manager, and I should like to find him. Citizen--No use hunting him up. His parents won't exhibit him. "They want to sell it for as much as they can get for it."

Never Touched Him. Nodd--Would you mind returning the book you borrowed of me last year? Todd--Some one borrowed it of me and hasn't returned it yet. Did you ever see anything like the way some people act about a thing like that? They have no sense of honor--Life.

A PARASITE CREEPER.

New Zealand's Vegetable Caterpillar is a Most Peculiar Plant. The most extraordinary object I have ever seen is the New Zealand vegetable caterpillar. The rata is a parasite creeper which first destroys its forest host and then craves it to death and usurping its skeleton, becomes a tree itself. If the rata seedling is dug up soon, but from the head of a perfectly formed caterpillar.

It is supposed by some that the caterpillar which on dissection proves to be internally the exact counterpart of its living insect relative, swallows the tiny rata seed while living and burrows into the ground, becoming, instead of a chrysalis, the germinating home of the seed, which by some agency turns its unfortunate foster mother into wood.

Others, however, contend the caterpillar itself is produced by the rata, in spite of their theory that if sprigging from a seed the shoot would grow out of different parts of the caterpillar instead of invariably growing from the head.

The insect vegetable is yellowish, about four inches long and is fully extended. I have seen them freshly dug up after a day's work in these parts, and all had the appearance of a perfect insect carved in wood.

The Elevator Eyes. One of the greatest hardships suffered by men who run elevators in the tall office buildings downtown is the bad effect it has on their eyes. The cars are run at a high rate of speed, and the men have to look straight ahead of them most of the time, their eyes soon feel the strain of the constant motion.

"I've worked in the subway," remarked one of these elevator men, "and I thought that was pretty bad, but it isn't a patch to the way my eyes feel after a day's work in these cars. If you ever run across an elevator man who seems unusually bad tempered toward the close of the business day, just look at his eyes and you will be apt to forgive him. They generally show the strain that has been put on them for eight or ten hours."

As Exemplified. A learned professor was dining with the Dilzets and the table was set with the best wine that Mrs. Dilz's china closet afforded. The guest was particularly interested in the display and admired it greatly. Picking up the plate in front of him and noting the stamp of the manufacturer on the bottom of it, he remarked, "I presume you know that china, or the art of making it, was discovered by accident?"

Just then there was heard in the kitchen, where the maid was busily at work, a loud crash. "There is one thing I want to warn you about," said the wigmaker to the man who was buying his first wig, "and that is the electric fan. Whenever you see an electric fan in motion give it a wide berth. If you don't it is apt to embarrass you. Electric fans and wigs are deadly enemies. Nothing outside of an Indian and a tomahawk will lift a wig from the wearer's head quicker than an electric fan in motion."

A Fairy Tale. Dear little Maude awoke about 2 o'clock the other morning and asked mamma to tell her a fairy tale. "It's too late, darling," mamma replied. "Daddy will be in shortly, and he'll tell us both one."

His Language. "He's ouring naps," "Yes; he's one of the best fellows going."

The great republic shall live as long as the poorest citizen freely expresses his personal and political opinion, and no loquax--Baltimore American.

THE HAGUE CONFERENCE

This second meeting of the nations through their representatives, held at last in The Hague, what has been accomplished we cannot tell. The results of such a conference we may not know. That good must come we do not doubt.

To some the results have fallen far short of what might have been expected, to others the time has been one of seed sowing and they are willing to wait for the harvest. That such a gathering could be held at all is a most hopeful indication of good, and that plans should be made for other such conferences at stated intervals in the future is still more encouraging to those who are anxious for the world's peace.

The United States has placed itself on record for advancement in more honest methods in warfare, in its motion for exemption of private property from capture on the high seas in times of war. It is a matter of no little surprise to us to see Great Britain casting its vote against such a measure. We fall to see the justice of attaching private property at sea at any such time. Highway robbery should not be upheld under any conditions. Upon the whole, the Conference has made some advance in broadening the scope of international good fellowship, and reached agreements which will make it harder for nations to plunge into warfare, and which will help alleviate suffering when war does occur. A decided advance has been made in the direction of prolonged and universal peace. The next step will be a jump.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA

Two years ago at the conclusion of the war between these two powers a treaty of peace was signed, but it is not until recently that it has been concluded. The real text of this treaty is not known, possibly outside of the parties most interested, but it may be taken for granted, that peace is permanently secured. What the real relationship of such may be towards Manchuria, we do not know, but Japan seems to be taking a fatherly interest in China, and Russia seems willing to have her do so, and it becomes China to awaken out of its sleep and cease to live in the past. To hold its own it must adopt modern methods, as has Japan itself, and thus place itself where it can do so. This valuable territory to the north which was the cause of the unhappy war may slip from her grasp at any time should she continue to sleep.

L'Etang.

Last week several properties at Back Bay changed hands. There would be no reason to comment on this fact, were it not for the situation of the properties, the prices paid and the buyers. The land lies close to L'Etang, facing water, open the year round, and offers good facilities for the building of docks, the prices were far in excess of current values and the buyer was G. W. Marsh of Marsh & Marsh, Toronto. This firm is engaged in the West India trade. They have steamers running to Montreal in the summer season, they no doubt desire winter port facilities, they are buying land at Back Bay, it can mean only one thing, they propose to have a winter port there.

Nature dealt with a generous hand when she formed the haven at L'Etang. Man freed from illusive influences ever turns to Nature. It is natural that ships fleeing from the ocean's fury, should seek the nearest and the best of harbors, it is also natural that freight, bound to Western Canada should proceed with dispatch. The world knows that there is no safer refuge on the Atlantic coast than L'Etang, and the transportation companies realize that L'Etang brings Montreal a day nearer the old country. Influences, deceptive and otherwise, have so far prevented the recognition the harbor deserves. Is there to be a change? Does the purchase of these lands portend great things? Is L'Etang to be the great winter port nature intended? Are Marsh & Marsh the purchasers of lands at Back Bay—but a step from L'Etang—the fore-runners of men with trans-continental systems in their charge who are about to bring Europe a day nearer the West and the Orient and who are about to develop L'Etang?

BY THE WAY

Any port in a storm.

It is now in order to fix a new date for the provincial elections.

Word, boat, storm doors and banking—the order of the day in St. George and elsewhere.

One is a prince until the third comes, and "friends" race with each other in getting away.

It is remarkable how prone some men are to brag of their ancestry when they have nothing else in their worth bragging about.

Keep the rink project going. Our enterprising citizens do not fail in any undertaking that they set out to accomplish in earnest.

If every citizen of St. George should resolve to be strictly loyal to St. George, our trade would increase 20 per cent, which could be handled at home as a profit, and thereby prove of mutual advantage to the town as a whole. Ask yourself if there is any one thing you can as well get at home as by sending away for. Think it over! Let it be St. George first.

The short, sharp and sometimes long loud squeals, that shoot through the frosty air these fine mornings, indicate the end of sundry Mr. and Mrs. Hogs, indicate also the approach of winter, a rise in the price of feed, and roast pork for dinner.

The purpose of punishment for crime should never be for motives of revenge; it should be based upon two grounds, and two only; the prevention of subsequent criminal acts upon the part of the criminal himself and its deterrent effect upon others. —Ex.

A stranger visiting these parts any of these cool evenings, would imagine the town and surrounding country were special wards of the Government and that fog alarms were on every house top. It is only a loose valve in the exhaust pipe at the Pulp mill—the music is not the sweetest in the world and perhaps a little repair work would be appreciated by the public.

Many eyes will be upon the ex-Minister of Railways. Hon. Mr. Emmerson is far from considering himself effaced from the political map. His friends say he has been quietly accumulating a trunkful of spicy pages from the lives of certain bitter opponents, and should he lift the lid there may be consternation among certain who number themselves in Mr. Borden's following.

A country editor offers the following summary of his experience:

- Been broke 300 times.
- Had money 45 times.
- Praised by the public 5 times.
- Asked to drink 8 times.
- Refused to drink 0 times.
- Missed prayer meeting 52 times.
- Been roasted 324 times.
- Washed the office towel 3 times.
- Missed meals 0 times.
- Taken for a preacher 11 times.
- Taken for a capitalist 0 times.
- Found money 0 times.
- Taken bath 6 times.
- Delegates paid 27 times.
- Paid in conscience 0 times.
- Got whipped 10 times.
- Whipped the other fellow 0 times.
- Cash on hand at beginning $1.45; cash on hand at present 67 cents.

The Intercolonial.

The minister of railways in one of his recent speeches showed that he is in hearty sympathy with the improvement of the means of transportation, and especially of the Intercolonial Railway. He intimated that there would be a surplus of hundreds of thousands of dollars on the operation of that system during the past financial year, and that no effort would be made to make it as efficient as possible. He foresaw the leasing of branch lines by the government if that were likely to secure a more effective service, and he added that the idea of continuing the Intercolonial through Ontario is worthy consideration, as a means of testing the advantages of government ownership. There need be no doubt of the popularity of such a proposal in this province, if it be carried out along a judiciously-selected route, and if the road is to be made first class in every respect.

Wait Your Time.

Every man must patiently abide his time. He must wait, not in idleness, not in useless pastime, not in querulous dejection, but in constantly, steadily filling and accomplishing his task. That when the occasion comes, he may be equal to it. Talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, without a thought of fame. If it comes at all, it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after. It is a very indiscreet and troublesome ambition which cares so much about what the world says of us, to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say; to be always shouting to hear the echoes of our own voices.

Mr. Editor:

As I am about to sever my connection with the pulp industry of your town, I take this opportunity of extending my heartfelt gratitude to the company for the uniform kindness and courtesy shown me while in their employ. The pleasure of working thirteen seasons, at one sixty six, is something that will always be a pleasant memory. I have saved considerable money, and met the increase in bread without a murmur. My general health has improved, and I can now carry on a hand-to-hand as easily as I carried it at the initiation ceremony. My friends and co-workers from Nova Scotia, St. John and Quebec and Pleasant Point, have all derived the same lasting benefits that it has been my good fortune to receive. We have the consolation and joy of realizing that we will soon be dead heroes, which is an honor accorded to very few persons in the ordinary walks of life. Owing to the severity of the St. George law the company willingly and generously granted me a short respite. For this concession I am very grateful as it gave me time to get my dinner, mail a letter and rub on liniment where the muscles needed stretching. The company, with its solicitude for my well-being, and without any effort on my part, allowed me the same pay as my worthy friend from Pleasant Pt. For this the Micmac joins with me in thanks. Is it any wonder that I swell with pride when I ponder over these many favors extended to me when greatly needed. It is with much satisfaction and thanks that I realize that an export duty on pulp will not affect the industry here, as the wages being so much in excess of what is paid in other mills, the employees will readily consent to a reduction which will meet any duty that may be imposed.

It would be ungrateful on my part not to say a word in praise of the law, demanding a fee from foreign skilled labor. The town fathers, in their kindly interest and enterprising spirit, thought it best to have a slice of the magnificent amount paid me, and to avoid any inconvenience that might be put in my way, very thoughtfully sent the Marshall to collect from my board. I paid him smilingly, while my copper colored brother from Pleasant Point, looked on in a sympathetic way—no doubt feeling his superiority, but very considerably hiding his feelings on this occasion.

As I am about to leave the town it may be presumption on my part to offer any suggestions, but I feel it a sort of a duty to my fellow men to ask them to consider favorably every proposition of the Pulp Co. If they ask (and I feel they are too modest to do so) for exemption from taxes, don't hesitate to grant the request. Do all you can to help along this industry. Its benefits are far-reaching, the dry-goods merchant, the livery stable, the undertaker and in fact every branch of business derives a benefit from this line of industry. If it will be of interest to your readers as to my intentions in disposing of my wealth, I may say that when I arrive at Bonny River—to which station I will proceed on foot—I will purchase a ticket to St. Stephen and proceed at once on my arrival there, to Woodlands, from which place I will write you.

You will pardon me for using so much of your valuable space, but I am sure you understand how lonely and dejected I feel in severing my connection with the Pulp Co., and will consider under what strong emotion I am writing.

Yours in health, wealth and pulp,
JOHN D. ROCKFELLER.

A Mild Winter.

There is some comfort to be obtained from the fact that weather prophets almost to a man agree that we are to have a mild winter. There are thousands of signs upon which to base their predictions. Speaking of these the Washington Post says: "Muskrats have not even begun to build their winter quarters. This is a sign that has never failed from the time that Adam first observed that muskrats were weather sharps."

Ducks have been slow in migrating. Is not this convincing to anybody but a calloused skeptic? Deer have their thin fall suits on; the beavers have not begun cutting their winter wood supply; the owls have not yet withdrawn to the forest deeps; the songbirds have not all sailed southward; toadstools have few or no wrinkles; corn husks are not thick; possum has only one curl to his tail this fall; the muskrat's legs are low; the wild geese are stilljourning on northern lakes; jack-rabbits have not yet begun to thum on hollow logs; there is no thick down under the chicken's feathers, nor any bony growth; the whiskers of Jersey farmers are struggling and of slow growth; black cats have no white under her eyes; the goose is fat and unspotted; vermin under logs and old planks are more numerous and lively than ever before; fishwrens are near the surface; in fact, nature with myriad voices unanimously attuned declares that the winter of 1907-1908 will not amount to shucks."

Lost wealth may be restored by industry; the wreck of health regained by temperance; forgotten knowledge restored by study; alienated friendship smoothed into forgetfulness even forgotten reputation recovered by penitence; but who ever again looked upon his vanished hours, recalled his slighted years, stamped them with wisdom, or effaced from heaven's record the fearful blot of wasted time.

P., made reference to the iron deposits of Gloucester County and now comes the word that he has successfully negotiated a lease with the Dominion Mining Co. the property in which are the chief deposits. The property is located on the Nepisiguit River below Grand Falls and experts claim it contains the richest iron deposit in Canada. Borings recently have shown 324 feet solid iron ore to get. The company has secured a twenty years lease and will install a plant at once for active work. Under the terms of the lease the government will receive a royalty of five cents per ton on all ore mined.

Women would be better and happier if men loved them better and were more true to them. If the man would strive as hard to make home happy as they do to seek happiness elsewhere, the world would be better. Hours do come when men admit the power, the worth of women. Not in sunshine so much as in shade and storm. When engrossed with business and rolling on the sea of success we too often forget the ones without whom life would be a blank, and only fly to the haven of shelter—the love and gentle caresses of women—when the waves are high and to remain around is to perish.

Barnum & Bailey's Sold.

New York.—The Barnum & Bailey Circus was purchased by Ringling Bros. for $410,000 and the famous old property with all its animals and paraphernalia, will be turned over to the new owners at Bridgeport, (Conn.), where the show has already gone into winter quarters. News of the sale came by cable from London, where the English stockholders 1,500 in number, met and ratified the sale of the American rights in the show by Mrs. James A. Bailey, widow of one of the men who made the Barnum & Bailey Circus famous. This cable announcement was verified last night at the Barnum & Bailey offices, at 27 West Twenty-second street, and by John Ringling, who is stopping at the Waldorf, Astoria.

The purchase of the Barnum & Bailey show gives the Ringling Brothers practically a monopoly of the circus business in America. The Barnum & Bailey show was their greatest rival. The Ringlings now own outright three of the largest circuses on earth—the Forepaugh-Sells show, Barnum & Bailey's, and their own Ringling Brothers' Circus. The names of the three shows will remain as they are, and each will tour the country as a separate organization.

The Barnum & Bailey show and its predecessors, the London Hippodrome and P. T. Barnum's "Greatest Show on Earth," have been before the public of two continents since 1874. The P. T. Barnum shows and the Great London Hippodrome, of which Cooper, Bailey & Co. were proprietors, were amalgamated in 1881. P. T. Barnum and the "Greatest Show on Earth" in 1887. This partnership continued until Mr. Barnum's death when Mr. Bailey became the sole proprietor of the Barnum & Bailey show. W. W. Cole, the managing director of the Barnum & Bailey Circus prior to its sale to the Ringlings has been associated with the show since 1885. The Barnum & Bailey show is the largest in America. Its winter quarters in Europe are located at Stoke-on-Trent, about fifty miles from Liverpool. Mr. Bailey built this plant a few years before his death. It is included in the show property taken over by the Ringlings. Eighty railroad cars are now at this European station. The winter quarters at Bridgeport are also included in the sale.

From a Woman's Point of View

Apples in salad are the only novelty installed of late years. Apple and date salad is one of the latest, perhaps newer than apple and pineapple, or apples and celery and nuts. To make it, cut apples up into shapes like matches or straws. One does not like to say matches, for it gives one such a match taste in the throat just to think of the two at the same time—food and unpleasant matches! Cut up date also in neat pieces, discarding the seeds, of course; that goes without saying. Use much more apple than dates. Marinate with oil and lemon juice freely; keep closely covered for some time, perhaps an hour or less before using. Arrange upon lettuce. To the mind of some a dash of red pepper belongs in all apple salads.

Louis L. Kraines came all the way from Yuma, Cal., to marry a girl he had never seen. The bride was Miss Flora Weiss, a pretty young woman of Tazewell county.

The groom wrote to his aunt here, Mrs. Patterson, to put him in communication with a girl who would make him a good wife, as he was lonely on his ranch in Colorado. Mrs. Patterson recommended Miss Weiss, a neighbor's daughter, and correspondence was begun.

The girl was taken with the romance of the affair and when photographs were exchanged and proved satisfactory a proposal quickly followed. An acceptance was written and then Kramer came east to claim the bride. The marriage was celebrated the day after his arrival and the couple departed immediately afterward for Yuma.—Bloomington correspondent.

Something new in window dressing was supplied last week by a woman's tailor on the Paris boulevard who makes a specialty of smart dresses at bargain prices.

Following the example of his more aristocratic brethren in the Place Vendome, who invariably show new models on comely young employees, he requisitioned a number of pretty girls to display his latest ready-to-wears—only instead of keeping them in the privacy of his salesrooms he put them in a large show window. There they sit, chat, and walk about, showing $12 robes to the uttermost advantage.

The plan works to perfection, save in

Needed to Marry.

The modern bachelor is by no means as black as he is painted. He is simply one of those exceptional men who have been born without the genius of matrimony. To marry at all, a man requires inspiration; to marry well, aspiration, and to marry foolishly, desperation. None of these qualities has been vouchsafed to the singular being who liberally and of malice prepense leads the single life.

Good wives are better conservators of public peace and morality than policemen, prison statutes, and all the terrors of law. Let a man be thus home anchored, and have an interest in house and lot, and except he is radically bad, he becomes a self-appointed guardian of the peace and of public morals.

Profanity never did any man the least good. No man is the richer, the happier, or wiser for it. It commends no one to any society. It is disgusting to the refinement of the good; insulting to those with whom we associate; degrading to the mind; unprofitable, needless and injurious in society. Young man, don't be profane.

Did you ever realize that nothing on earth can smile but a human being? Gems may flash reflected light, but that is a diamond flash; a face that cannot blossom, and dies upon the stalk. Laughter is day and sobriety is night, and a smile is the twilight that hovers gently between both, and more bewitching than either.

One drop of ink will blacken a whole glass full of pure water. So will one communication make the world foul. Beware of those evil words. You might drop many, many drops of pure water into the tumbler, but it would have no perceptible influence. So it will take thousands of good precepts and good instructions to root out this one evil word.

The Man Behind.

In almost every newspaper you pick up you are pretty sure to find a lot of gush about the man behind the counter and the man behind the gun, the man behind the buzz saw and the man behind the sun, the man behind the times and the man behind his rents, the man behind the plowshare and the man behind the fence, the man behind the kodak and the man behind the bars, the man behind his whiskers and the man behind his fists and everything is entered on the list. But they've skipped another fellow, of whom nothing has been said—the fellow who is even or a little way ahead, who pays for what he gets, whose bills are always signed. He's a blamed sight more important than the man who is behind. All the editors and merchants and the whole commercial class are indebted for existence to this honest fellowman. He keeps us all in business, and his town is never dead, so we take off our hats to the man who is ahead.—St. Louis and Canadian Photographer.

Why the Editor Swore.

With a terrific cold in his head,
And his eyelids heavy and sore,
The editor sat in a broken chair
And bitterly, earnestly swore.
A youth had dropped in with a poem,
A man was there with a dun,
A chap had entered to tell him
How the paper ought to be run.
An irate subscriber had told him
That his sheet wasn't fit to be read,
While another had carefully promised
To punch the editor's head.
The foreman was yelling for copy,
The wind whistling in at the door,
And this with a few other reasons,
Is why the editor swore.
But the angel who took it to heaven,
Recorded his verdict there:
"The jury will find in the present case
"Was a justifiable swear."

Richest Nation.
The United States is the richest nation in the world.

A Great Coal Field.
St. George's bay, Newfoundland, contains an immense coal field fully twenty miles in length and ten in breadth. It has been estimated that if the output were to reach 250,000 tons per annum the coal bed would not be exhausted in a century.

Point Barrow.
Point Barrow in Alaska is the farthest point north in this country. To get there one must go to Seattle, then by steamer 1,650 miles to Valdes and then 2,750 miles by sled.

Largest Wooden Building.
The parliament building in Wellington, New Zealand, is the largest wooden structure in the world. In Wellington and some other New Zealand towns almost every house is constructed of wood. So likewise are large churches and business houses.

Algerian Sharpshooters.
Many tales are told by travelers of the wonderful skill of the Algerians in handling rifles. The native Algerian would rank with our expert rifle shooters.

Munjoy Hill Observatory.
One of the oldest observatories in Maine is situated on Munjoy hill, in Portland. It was erected in the spring of 1807 and served in the previous days of 1812 to announce to the townspeople the sailings and windings of Portland's ships.

Niagara Falls Power.
To an electrical engineer, remarks Popular Mechanics, the beauty of Niagara falls is somewhat dimmed as he reflects that the 3,500,000 horsepower is worth more than $100,000,000 a year.

The Thumb.
The thumb has more strength than all the other fingers together.

Odd Rubbing Posts.
Rubbing posts for cattle, made of whale's jaws, are to be seen in the village of Hawsker, in England, and represent the whale trade formerly carried on at that place. They stand twelve feet or so above the ground.

The Whale's Laminæ.
The age of whales is ascertained by the size and number of laminæ of the whalebone, which increase yearly. Ages of 300 and 400 years have been assigned to whales from these indications.

Bath Mats.
Bath mats may be made of discarded bedspreads by cutting from the firm part squares of desired size and hemming. These mats are nice to lay on the floor beside the bathtub when the latter is in use, but should be folded and hung in a convenient place, as they are not heavy enough to take the place of a rug.

Half Rates for Women.
Women, because they eat so much less, only pay half rates in the more old-fashioned of Sweden's hotels.

Marriage Insurance.
Army and navy officers in Germany are obliged to make a deposit of $7,500 with the government before they are permitted to marry. This draws an income of 2 per cent and at death is refunded to the family or heirs.

Low Down Cities.
Most Dutch cities are several feet below the level of the sea.

Animal Intelligence.
Evidence of a mind in all animals, even the lowest, is found by F. W. Hensley. The snipe exercises the power of choice when it eats, and the tree-like colony of one called infusoria, called zoöthamnium, after a time ceases to be agitated by jars repeated at intervals, showing that it must remember that a jar is harmless.

German Silver.
German silver contains no silver at all. It is an alloy of copper, nickel and zinc.

The Lion's Jaws.
The lion has an enormous jaw power. An African traveler once pushed the butt end of his gun into a lion's mouth, and the pressure of the jaws cracked it as though it had been struck by a steam hammer.

A Coasty Bridge.
A bridge between England and France would, it is estimated, cost £34,000,000.

Cloud Formations.
The cloud-formation known as "Mars' tails" and "mackerel sky" are invariably three miles high. The highest clouds are ten miles high, and these are composed of minute particles of ice.

Sunday.
Sunday, as the word implies, is sun day—the day of the sun. Men worshipped the sun for a long time before they began to worship God, and Sunday was the day on which the source of light and heat received their adoration. On this day Christ's resurrection is supposed to have taken place; hence the Sunday became the worship day of the Christians.

Hawking Gloves.
Some old hawking gloves have the hands and thumbs made in red velvet, the outside of the hand covered with the finest embroidery in many tones of silk, mixed with metal threads. They appertain to the days of good Queen Bess.

Infantile Chicken Broth.
Customer—What on earth is this broth made of, waiter? Surely it isn't chicken broth? Waiter—Well, sir, it's chicken broth in its infancy. It's made out of the water that the hogs are boiled in.

The Old Time Stagecoach.

In 1722 there were, strange as it seems, only six stagecoaches running in all England, and of course these were the only public vehicles for travelers. Even these were a novelty, and a person named John Crosset thought that he would write a pamphlet against them. "These coaches," he wrote, "make gentlemen come to London upon every small occasion, which otherwise they would not do—except upon urgent necessity. Nay, the convenience of the passage makes their wives come often up, who rather than come such long journeys on horseback would stay at home. Then when they come to town they must be in the wade, get fine clothes, go to plays and treats and by these means get such a habit of idleness and love of pleasure that they are uneasy after."

The Chameleon Goshawk.
I know no bird which passes through so many changes of plumage and color of eyes as the goshawk. A young one which I have mounted is about the size of a small hen and is covered with white down. His eyes are pale blue. When fully grown, the first plumage is dark brown above and the eyes are pale yellow. No one would be likely to suspect this being a goshawk who had seen only adult birds. Later it changes to the dark slaty blue of the adult, and the eye, after passing through all the intermediate changes in color from stry yellow, orange yellow and pink, finally assumes the deep rich red of the adult. I know no other hawk, adds Manly Hardy, writing in Forest and Stream, so handsome as the goshawk.

The Letter G.
The letter G furnishes us a curious bit of orientalism. Its Hebrew name is gimel, camel, from the resemblance of the Hebrew character to the head and neck of that animal. The character was thus almost certainly derived from a picture of that animal, which, reduced to a hieroglyphic and then simplified, still distantly indicates the shape of the head and neck of the beast of burden familiar to every dweller in eastern lands.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional treatment. Halls Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient's strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. "A Man of Great Reserve Force and Strength."
At last a Liberal has been found to whom Conservative praise is given. At last the valued Post has seen some good in things Liberal. Hon. G. P. Graham is the honored man. Of the new minister's visit to Sackville our local contemporary says:--
"Those who had the good fortune to meet Mr. Graham were all favorably impressed with both his appearance and manner. He is absolutely free from ostentation or show and his cordial and democratic reception of the different citizens to whom he was introduced was greatly appreciated.
One cannot meet him but become impressed with the fact that he is a man with a great reserve force and strength behind his modest bearing."--Sackville Tribune.
