

THE PASSING OF ANGUS CAMPBELL

His Cotton-Picking Machine Revolutionized Labor.

HE CAME FROM ONTARIO

Inventor Died in the City Hospital at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Aug. 17.—Angus Campbell, of Pittsburgh, Pa., a native of Beverly Township, and the man who invented the cotton-picking machine which revolutionized the cotton-picking trade of the south, died at the city hospital here Tuesday afternoon. It was the custom of Mr. Campbell to come to Hamilton very frequently to visit his sister, Mrs. Tufford, York street, and it was while here that the ailment from which he suffered became acute and terminated fatally at the City Hospital, where he went about two weeks ago for treatment.

Deceased was the son of the late Kenneth Campbell, of Beverly, and was in his 53rd year. When a young man he learned the trade of pattern-maker and about thirty years ago left this district and went to Chicago, where he remained for some time. From there he went to Texas, where he resided until he went to Pittsburgh, his home for many years, since which time he devoted his efforts to invention and it would seem the irony of fate that just as he had made a success in life and was about to reap the benefit of his endeavors, disease ended his career. Mr. Campbell will be remembered by the friends of his young manhood, and by the numerous acquaintances he made during his frequent visits to Hamilton, for although he was of a retiring disposition, he was most highly esteemed by those who knew him. He was a man of the attainments and possessed of that unflagging perseverance which knows no failure, and which enabled him to invent a machine which the southerners said could do everything but take a drink and vote the Democratic ticket. In the death of Mr. Campbell the world loses an inventor of no mean ability and while he did not live to enjoy the fruits of his labors beyond having the satisfaction of seeing the perfecting of the machine on which he had spent so much time, his invention will be of vast benefit to the mercantile world.

Mr. Campbell and his wife, who was formerly Miss Henderson, of Pittsburgh, came to Hamilton in July 1910, last and although he was in delicate health at the time, he was able to go about. Complications developed and he went to this city for treatment, but two weeks ago for treatment which, however, proved of no avail. Besides his wife, deceased is survived by one brother, Donald, of Chicago, and one sister, Mrs. L. Tufford, 415 York street.

His Inventions. Referring to Mr. Campbell's invention, the World's Work, of December, 1910, has the following, in part, to say: "The mechanical cotton picker, the impossible machine that will automatically strip and separate cotton bolls, finger over the delicate plant, get the lint and leave the rest unharmed—this contrivance of almost human intelligence has at last been made."

The cotton gin made cotton king, and made the king's standing army of blacks a permanent drawback to half the nation. And the south considered this standing army so necessary to cotton production that it was willing to fight to preserve it. A gin did all this. The picking machine has signed the order to disband the black army of cotton pickers that have kept King Cotton from being an enlightened ruler. A south, without the yearly demoralization of cotton picking time, when men, women and children from the mills, kitchens, schools and everywhere desert their normal vocations for the cotton patch—that would be a new south indeed.

The machine to make this new south and incidentally to save the southern farmers tens of millions of dollars every year, had its beginning in a curious manner.

A Notable Career. Twenty-five years ago Angus Campbell, a pattern maker, of Chicago, made a pleasure trip to Texas to visit a brother, then a superintendent in the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad. As the brothers travelled around the state they saw hundreds of men, women and children dragging sacks, step by step, through the cotton fields as they picked. Mr. Campbell had been making models for several labor-saving devices, and the idea of making a machine to do the picking occurred to him. It was several years before he could get an opportunity to experiment, but in 1889 he made his second appearance in the cotton field—this time with a machine designed to pick cotton by a fairly simple contrivance—a horizontal cylinder hung low between a pair of wheels drawn by a mule. The cylinder was studded with wooden fingers, covered with little tufts of bristles. The fingers reached down in the cotton as the cylinder turned and the bristles caught the ripe cotton and pulled it from the bolls. After it passed there was little left on the stalks, but there was a good deal on the fingers and the bolls, blooms and bolls were all injured by the thrashing of the fingers. The machine was not altogether a success, but Mr. Campbell did not give up. He followed with a machine consisting of two upright cylinders arranged to pass on opposite sides of the row of plants and pull their bristles covered fingers from the sides. The bristles, however, became clogged with cotton and the fingers still damaged the plants.

In spite of these discouragements, Mr. Campbell made a permit after experiment for twenty years more. Every year he had a new machine in the field—sometimes two in a year. He experimented with every kind of a wooden finger, putting hogs' bristles on some and wire bristles on others, until finally he evolved a steel finger with slightly indented teeth that could be turned on a polished table without scratching it, but that would take hold of any cotton fiber it touched. Mr. Campbell progressed from a horizontal cylinder to two upright cylinders, in which the fingers were fixed; then to cylinders in which the fingers as well as the cylinders turned. The first machines were drawn by mules, but when the gasoline engine was perfected, Mr. Campbell gladly accepted himself of it. Although his first engine had to be helped out by a mule, for the past four or five years the machines have done the work on their own.

Attached to the machine are two bags into which the picked cotton falls. Two different companies were organized to put the machine on the market, but because of bad business management, both failed, but when he had perfected his machine Mr. Campbell enlisted the aid of Theodore H. Price, of New York, who is now president of the Cotton Picker Company.

Of the machine, one man who had watched it work, said: "Well, anyway, it cannot take a drink or vote the Democratic ticket; there is still something left for a man to do."

ADMIRAL TOGO RODE WITH THE ENGINEER

Japanese Hero Had Some Unpleasant Experiences While in New York.

New York, Aug. 17.—Admiral Togo left New York late on Friday for Washington. His departure had a feature quite as unusual as his midnight arrival and welcome in New York Bay the previous night, for he left the city in a cab of a big electric engine drawing a heavy Pennsylvania train from the capital city.

Although the luxurious private car Olivette, which the Government has placed at the disposal of the distinguished guest while in this country, was attached to the train, the naval hero elected to sit by the engineer's side and watch him operate the 4,000-horsepower motor.

"I am intensely interested in your world-pre-eminence in electric engineering and railroading," the admiral said, through his interpreter, "and I wish to avail myself of this opportunity to closely observe both. Therefore, I will ride with the engineer."

The admiral rode in the cab to the limit of the electric zone, at Harrison, N. J., and there entered his car. He asked many questions of the engineer concerning the electric equipment. In fact, it was remarked that he displayed more interest in this included of his visit than in anything previously.

During his fourteen hours' stay in the city, Admiral Togo had many conflicting experiences, but there was not the least change in his almost blank countenance. He was not seen to smile, nor to frown, although he had much occasion to do the latter. He was entirely impassive so far as his countenance might reveal his emotions.

Always Calm. Once, when an overzealous photographer for whom he had graciously consented to pose, roughly shoved his head to one side, with a "Don't hold your head so stiffly," he evinced no displeasure. Again, when three photographers became involved in a quarrel in his presence as to preference for camera position, he looked on without changing his expression, even while Chandler Hale third assistant secretary of state and official representative of the Government in entertaining the admiral, ejected the photographers.

It has been agreed by Commander Tanaguchi and Mr. Hale that the newspaper reporters would be permitted to briefly interview the admiral on his visit here, but not on politics. But as soon as they had reached the Anglo-French-American arbitration treaties, the reporters—at least some of them—branched off into questions concerning Japan's attitude toward Russia and the Moroccan affair. Admiral Togo replied briefly that he would not discuss politics, but the reporters persisted, and Mr. Hale and Mr. Tanaguchi emphatically terminated the interview, but the admiral's face did not change its

INDIAN SEEKS TREASURE

Big Keyes, Over 100, Says He Buried It Eighty Years Ago.

Exeter, Mo., Aug. 17.—After spending several weeks hunting for a treasure which he says he helped hide more than eighty years ago, Big Keyes, a Chickasaw Indian, has returned to his home in Oklahoma. Keyes, who says he is more than a hundred years old, tells that the treasure, which consisted of silver, was buried by his tribe in a cave on the White River in southwestern Missouri.

According to the old Indian his tribe has been driven out of Georgia and went to Northern Arkansas and Southern Missouri, where he lived along the course of the White River. It was they discovered a silver mine, and for years the Indians mined the metal and melted it into bars. Then, fearing an attack of the white settlers, the silver was put in a cave, a rock rolled into the mouth and earth piled over it. The attack which the Indians feared, Keyes says, was caused by the reports of finding by them of the silver. After hiding the treasure

SILENT TO WIFE

Never Forgave Scandal That Met Him on Return From War.

Patchogue, L. I., Aug. 17.—Gibson Ruland, ever since he returned to his home in this village from the civil war in 1864, had lived in a house adjoining that of his wife and never in forty years had spoken a word to her. Ruland was buried in the village cemetery recently. He was 91 years old and at the time of his death had not a friend or relative in the world, his wife having died some time previously from grief, it is believed, because he would not be reconciled with her. Ruland married shortly before the civil war. He enlisted at the first call for volunteers. When he returned four years later, gossiping residents of Patchogue were linking the name of his wife with those of other men who had not gone to the war.

From the day he returned and first heard the stories Ruland never again addressed a word to his wife. He left the house in which he and she had been living before the war and built himself a house next door. It was small, with only two rooms, and he

What We'll Wear This Fall

Even now feminine interest begins to awaken in serge suits and dresses for the autumn and in cloth and velvet costumes for later in the year. For the coming season the coats of tailored suits will be comparatively short, but decidedly longer than during the summer. The jacket will be semi-fitting at the waistline, but the long front closing brought down below the waistline will be retained. The big directoire revers, either plain in cloth or serge, or draped in satin or soft velvet, the square, round, or pointed sailor collar, and the long, straight sleeve will all be incorporated in the new semi-tailored suit. Many fall coats show a double-breasted front, with one side brought well over the other. This turns back and forms a big revers when the coat is unfastened.

New skirts are just a trifle wider than they have been. But they are still distinctly narrow and hang perfectly straight, without the slightest flare at the foot. Some of them are made with a few flat plaits at the base. Most of them have a round tunic at the front and sides, and a wide panel at the back.

The waistline in both suit skirts and in dresses is high and round. For dresses the one-sided effect obtained by spiral tunics on the skirt, and a single revers on the waist, is perhaps the predominant feature of the present moment.

Fichus and collars brought down below the waistline in the back are very good. The fichu or collar is almost always white, even on a dark dress.

For tailor-made costumes for the autumn—a wool velvet—known as velvets à la mode—is to take the place of summer silks, taffetas and satins. Either plain goods, stripes or figures is correct. For the afternoon semi-tailored suit silk or cotton velvet is proper and for morning suits and dresses navy blue serge is good from one year's end to the other.

For daytime wear the colors are quiet as one would naturally expect at this season of the year.

Paris, the city of fashion, insists on black and white and dark crow blue for the fall. As a matter of fact, Paris is always partial to those colors, and while a new shade may appear and hold for a season or two, it is always shown against a background of black and white that will eventually push forward and oust the newcomer.

This season the very vivid, transparent current red is putting forward its claims as a popular favorite for evening wear. And there are several shades of royal purple that will be used a great deal with white for dinner dresses, or with gold and crimson for evening wraps.

THE SEVENTH NOON

BY FREDERICK ORIN BARTLETT,
Author of "The Web of the Golden Spider."

CHAPTER XVII.

The Making of a Man.

Donaldson, with hands in his pockets, stood in front of Arsdale, who had slumped down into a big leather chair, and admired his work. There was still much to be done, but the man who had brought him there some thirty hours before, the improvement was most satisfactory. Arsdale, with trimmed hair and clean-shaven face, in a new outfit from shoes to collar, and, save even if depressed, began to look a good deal of a man.

"How do you feel now?" inquired Donaldson.

Arsdale hitched forward, and resting his chin in his hands, elbows on knees, stared at the floor.

"Take hell," he answered.

Donaldson frowned.

"You deserve it, but you oughtn't," he said.

"Oh, I deserve it all right. I deserve it."

"Yes, you do. But that doesn't help any."

Arsdale groaned.

"There isn't any help. I've made a beastly mess out of my life, out of myself."

"I wish I could agree, but I can't," answered Donaldson.

He walked up and down a moment before the fellow, studying him. He was worried and perplexed. The task he had was an unpleasant one. He had to overcome a natural repugnance to interference in the life of another. Under ordinary circumstances he would have watched Arsdale go to his doom with a feeling of nothing but indifference. In his own passion for individual liberty he neither demanded nor accepted sympathy for personal misfortunes or mistakes, and in turn was loath to trespass upon either the rights or duties of another, but his own life, through the intricately entangled with this other that now he recognized the inevitability of such interference. On the other hand, the failure to arouse Arsdale largely depended on the happiness of the girl.

"No," he reflected aloud. "The question isn't how much punishment you deserve, for the pain you suffer personally does not, unfortunately, remedy matters in the slightest. It wouldn't do you any good for me to turn you over to the police, or I'd do that. You're hard to get hold of, because there's so little left of you."

Arsdale made no reply. He remained motionless.

"But," continued Donaldson, with emphasis, "that doesn't make it any less necessary. You've got to pull what is left together—you've got to play the man with what remains. You can't get all the punishment you deserve, and so you've got to deserve less. This, not for your own sake, but for the sake of the girl—for the sake of the girl you struck."

Arsdale quailed. He glanced up at Donaldson with a look that made the latter again Arsdale's dog-fancy as he had tottered in his death throes. But the mere fact that the man quivered back from this shameful thing was encouraging. It was upon this alone that Donaldson based his hope, upon this single drop of uncorrupted Arsdale blood, which still nourished some tiny spot in the buried-out brain.

"You must make such reparation as you can," continued Donaldson. "Your life isn't long enough to do it fully, but you can accomplish something towards it if you start at once."

"It's all a beastly mess. It's too late," Donaldson's lips tightened.

"Well," he asked, "if you aren't going to do what you can, what do you propose?"

"I know a way. I'm going to pull out for the sake of Elaine."

Donaldson started as at the cut of a whip lash. Then he straightened to meet the man who had started as at the cut of a whip lash. Then he straightened to meet the man who had started as at the cut of a whip lash. Then he straightened to meet the man who had started as at the cut of a whip lash.

how this contingency had never occurred to him. Now for the moment it dawned on him, for it brought him down, like a wounded bird, to the level of Arsdale himself. As voiced by the latter, the act expressed the climax of unutterable cowardice. Donaldson, in the first shock of indignation, included in the same indictment with the very man for whom he had had so little mercy, felt the same powerlessness that had paralyzed the other. He was short of his strength. He blinked as stupidly at Arsdale as Arsdale had blinked at him.

But even as he stood with loose lips before the inferior features of the younger man, he realized that the man who had been the chatter of a child. He had used the phrase idly and, although it was possible he might in just as idle a mood commit the act itself, Donaldson was convinced that it was not yet a Good idea. With this came the inspiration which gave him a fresh grip upon himself; that revealed his great opportunity; he would make Arsdale see all that he himself had learned in these few days. So in reality he would be giving the best of his life to another. It was like oxygen to one struggling for breath through congested lungs. He went to the window, and in great despatched inhalations stood for a moment drinking in not only the fresh air, but with it the spirit of the eager, turbulent world which was bathed in it, the world that he now saw so clear. The sun flashing from the neighboring windows glinted its glad message of life; the rumbling of the passing traffic soared it to him in a thundering message, like that of shattered sea waves; the deep, cell-like undertone of the city itself sang it to him. And the message of all this voices was just: "It is good to live! It is good to live!"

He turned back, seeing a new man in the chair before him. Here was a brother—a brother in a truer sense than a better man could have been. Coming from different directions, along different roads, through different temptations, they had reached at last the crumbling edge of the same dark chaos. They faced the same eternal problem. That made them brothers. But Donaldson had already seen already learned that made him the stronger brother. His face was alert, his body alert, as he came to Arsdale's side. The latter looked up at him in surprise, feeling his presence before he had seen it. Donaldson's first words stirred him.

"You can't pull out," he said, "because you're out already. You don't know. Don't you see you must pull back."

"A great deal better than you yourself do. And in the light of that understanding I tell you what you can't do—that is, pull the wool."

"I'm no good to anyone," Arsdale complained. "I don't see what I can do. I wouldn't be better for everyone if I just quit."

The word was a biting gnome to Donaldson.

"I know," he answered. "But it isn't right—all because you don't know. You can't know what you're quitting. You can't just look around you and see you wouldn't just be quitting the girl who perhaps don't need you, though you we can't see how maybe at the time we can't realize it, but it's so. Someone will get at the good in us if we just fight along, no matter how we may cover it up."

"Don't," he said, "lighten in his chair. His shaking fingers clutched the chair arms. But the next second his face clouded."

"Tell me what good I've done," he demanded aggressively.

Donaldson smiled. He couldn't very well tell the man the details of these last few days and what they meant to him. They proved his claim. Arsdale had been, if nothing else, connecting link. It was he, even this self-indulgent weakness, who had brought Donaldson to his own, who had led Donaldson through a series of self-revealing incidents, to where he could stand quivering with the truth of life, and give of his strength back to this man to pay the debt. Yes, he knew what Arsdale had accomplished, and before he was through the latter should feel its effect.

"Man," answered Donaldson, almost solemnly, "you have done your good—even you, in spite of yourself."

"But not to Elaine, where I should have done most."

Arsdale's hand rested a moment on Donaldson's shoulder.

"Yes," he said, "I like to think you have been of some service even to her. Arsdale rose to his feet."

"If I could think that—if I could look her in the eyes again."

"Look her in the eyes! Keep those eyes (To Be Continued.)"

ROW DEVELOPED AT CON. MEETING

North Middlesex Executive Attempts to Override the Delegates.

NOMINEES WERE AROUSED

Demanding a Hearing Before Nomination, and Got It—Reeve Elliott Named.

[By Our Own Man.]
Albion, Aug. 17. The Conservative convention for North Middlesex today fell to pieces. George Elliott, leader of the North Middlesex Executive, was the first to speak. He was followed by Mr. H. B. Morphy, and his nomination was seconded by Mr. Thomas Courney.

The convention held in the town hall, Albion, today, was well attended. Some two hundred delegates were present. In all there were ten nominees. George Elliott, Lucian John Laughton, Parkhill, George Elliott, West Williams, John Drummond, Mr. Gillingham, W. H. Barram, Parkhill, Duncan McArthur, East Williams, N. Gillingham, W. C. McMillan, William Hay, Alisa Crake, W. E. Uden, McMillan, and James Brown, of East Williams.

Mr. James Roberts was the chairman of the convention, and among those present were Hon. W. J. Hanna, provincial secretary of Ontario, and Mr. H. B. Morphy, Conservative candidate for North Perth.

The nominations followed each other thick and fast immediately upon opening the meeting, which was called to order about an hour past the time appointed. Before any of the nominees had been allowed an opportunity to either accept or decline, the nominations were declared closed by the chairman, and the names of more delegates among those present were called together to select a candidate. Some of them, however, demurred against the unusual expedition with which it was proposed to select a candidate, and expressed a desire to hear the different men speak. Several of the nominees declared that they were not ready to stand in case they were selected to head their party in the riding. William Hay, of Alisa Crake, declared at once that he would be unable to accept the candidature should he be selected by the convention. Mr. Barram, of Parkhill, also declared emphatically that it would be well to know how many of the nominees were prepared to stand in case they were selected. The Hon. Mr. Hanna, however, in rising to speak a few words, declared that any man who might be selected by the votes of his party ought to be willing to make any sacrifice needed to stand for the contest. Never before in the history of Canada has a question of so great importance been placed before the Canadian people for their decision.

Some Disagree.
Some of the nominees and delegates, however, disagreed with Mr. Hanna's view of the matter, and there were cries to hear the delegates speak before the nomination. The chairman declared that there was no attempt on the part of the executive to override the wishes of the convention, as the executive had not even selected a nominee. Mr. W. D. Stanley then moved that the gentlemen who had been nominated be each allowed five minutes to speak, and either accept or decline their nominations. The motion was seconded by Mr. McMillan, and carried by the meeting.

The Nominees.
Mr. Hanna thanked his friends for his nomination, but also declined. He said it was the duty of the Conservative party to give a fair presentation of the issue at stake to the electors. Mr. Brown, in declining, said that he had looked at the reciprocity pact from every standpoint, and failed to see how it could in any way benefit this country. There had been times when Canada would have been glad to secure reciprocity with the United States, but now that the United States were the eager party to the proposal Canada no longer desired it. Mr. Hay declared that outside of the question of party politics, not a single vote would be polled in favor of reciprocity. The Americans were simply looking for a market for their produce in Canada. He also declined his nomination, as did Mr. Barram, who followed.

Too Much Hurry.
The nominations followed each other thick and fast immediately upon opening the meeting, which was called to order about an hour past the time appointed. Before any of the nominees had been allowed an opportunity to either accept or decline, the nominations were declared closed by the chairman, and the names of more delegates among those present were called together to select a candidate. LIBERALS OF NORTH BRUCE for Timmie and reciprocity. The moneyed interests and corporations have controlled things long enough; it's the farmers' chance now.

Cheers for Timmie.
Mr. Timmie was heartily cheered. He had intended to retire at the close of the late parliament and let somebody else have a show. In fact he urged Mr. Bowman to become his successor, but the latter scouted the suggestion. However, he was glad to carry the banner of reciprocity, and endeavored the efforts of Hon. Messrs. Fielding and Patterson. "I was a bit surprised to hear that Mr. Hanna sneered at them here yesterday because they were old men. You know I'm an old man myself, and I've got lots of good company. There's Mr. Malcolm and Mr. Cameron and Mr. Campbell and Mr. Douglas and Mr. McDougall and ever so many more old men, and first-class men I see in this hall; and the old men are all right despite Mr. Hanna's sneers. (Applause.) I would like to tell him that the old men he tried to belittle are able men, and if he wants to find better men he won't find them around Queen's Park, Toronto. (Renewed cheers.) Mr. Timmie was Scotch and not content to let well enough alone. The man who let well enough alone would never have been a farmer. The farmers of Bruce satisfied to let well enough alone, or did they want to do better? The reciprocity agreement meant a new era of prosperity.

"What about salt, John?" queried a voice.

"All right," replied Mr. Timmie. "I'll tell you my position on salt. I've been in the salt business as most of you know, for 27 years. The salt factories are not mine, they belong to farmers and not to John Timmie. He only manages them for the owners. When the reciprocity schedules were given out I looked hard at the article of salt, and I thought a lot harder. Then it came to me and I remembered my position. I said to myself: 'Now, John, here you are; you were not sent down here for your own benefit and aggrandizement; your first duty is to the people of North Bruce, and to the people of Canada; and I knew that while reciprocity was going to be a great advantage to you all, you farmers sent me down there to look after your interests, and I am trying to do it to the best of my ability.'"

Mr. Timmie was given a memorable testimonial of approval.

"You'll be there again, John," shouted one enthusiast, and the cheering was renewed.

Mr. Bowman.
Mr. Bowman, who followed, delivered a splendid address, dealing in detail with the effect of reciprocity on the farming, manufacturing, and consuming Canadian people. "It is not politics, it's business," he declared, amid applause. The opposition to reciprocity originated with the big fellows in Toronto and Montreal, who have made millions out of the producer and consumer. The principal protests came from men like Mr. J. W. Flavell, of the Davies packing business, which has been shown in the courts to have paid from twenty to thirty cents per pound for salt for years, and Sir Byron Walker, who made himself rich by investing the money of Canadian depositors in the United States. "Gentlemen like these are those who fight this great proposal, which benefits the producer and consumer alike," added Mr. Bowman. "What caused the determination of Mr. Borden and his lieutenants to fight to the bitter end?" he continued. "Was that little meeting in the Mount Royal Club at Montreal, when certain interests pledged themselves to raise $750,000 to fight reciprocity? I would like the statement of that meeting to you publicly, and I know it to be correct."

Short addresses were also delivered by Messrs. J. J. Hunter, A. Logan and J. Roy Sales.

A resolution was unanimously adopted endorsing reciprocity and pledging the gathering to its support. The following officers were elected at a preliminary session of the North Bruce Liberal Association: President, A. Malcolm, Kincardine; first vice-president, D. McLeod, Southampton; second vice-president, A. Chambers, Allandale; secretary-treasurer, W. J. Taylor, Tara.

declined to accept a nomination, but had been stood as a candidate had been selected by the convention before being called upon to speak. Mr. Elliott touched on the effects of reciprocity on the live hog market. He compared the prices of live hogs in Ontario and Michigan, in an attempt to show that higher prices prevailed in the American state. As to his nomination he would place himself at the disposal of the convention, but if the party could select a stronger man he would only be too ready to endorse that candidate's nomination.

This One Sees War.
Mr. John Laughton declined to stand, stating that his time was already occupied with his duties as a member of the advisory board of education for Ontario. He threw a bouquet at the Whitney Government and the Premier of Ontario, and then explained that he left the Liberal party rather than see his country going to the dogs for want of a protective tariff. The Yankee farmers were looking for a foothold in Canada, and they would have to be driven back as Brock drove back the invaders in 1812. Every Canadian farmer had put $100 in potatoes from New Brunswick to supply her market. Ontario does not even grow her own potatoes and beans. Once the American farmer gets into Canada the devil himself couldn't put him out. But above all the reciprocity question was a national issue. The important thing was what is best for the whole of Canada. In conclusion he advised the electors to send five men to Ottawa to represent the riding, men who would not be afraid to protect the farmers against institutions like the Farmers' Bank.

Reformers Not Disloyal.
Mr. George Stanley said that he had consented to be a candidate at the solicitation of his friends. He would feel justly proud to stand for the rights of the British flag, but there would be no vote between himself and Mr. Elliott. He did not take the position that the Reform party was disloyal to the British flag. There were traitors in all parties. One thing to be gloriously proud of was the position to which the Canadian nation had risen. He would not have seen the convention go by default, but Mr. Elliott had consented to stand. He would move that his nomination be unanimous. Mr. Stanley's motion was seconded by Mr. John Brown, in declining, said that he had looked at the reciprocity pact from every standpoint, and failed to see how it could in any way benefit this country. There had been times when Canada would have been glad to secure reciprocity with the United States, but now that the United States were the eager party to the proposal Canada no longer desired it. Mr. Hay declared that outside of the question of party politics, not a single vote would be polled in favor of reciprocity. The Americans were simply looking for a market for their produce in Canada. He also declined his nomination, as did Mr. Barram, who followed.

Morphy's Nightmare.
Mr. H. B. Morphy, Conservative candidate for the north riding of Perth, declared it to be the design of the party to cloud all other issues under the reciprocity question. The reciprocity pact would be the greatest departure from the established trade policy of this country since when in 1878 Sir John A. Macdonald laid down his National Policy. Messrs. Fielding and Patterson had violated the rights of the Canadian people to constitutional government by going further than their responsibility allowed in their attempt to bring in the reciprocity pact. The speaker criticized the Canadian navy, declaring millions of dollars had been wasted in laying the foundation of an oppressive militarism under the wing of patronage merely for the purpose of providing places for the sons of the members of Parliament. He also blamed the falling of the Laurier tower and the Quebec bridge disaster on the Laurier Government. The Government, he declared, was also guilty of throwing away public money in building sawdust wharves and other useless construction works. Reciprocity, in his opinion, would kill the Canadian horse trade. American cattle from the Mississippi valley were all diseased with either tuberculosis or pneumonia. Their free admission to Canada would vitiate and lower the standards of Canadian stock. American hogs, which are fed upon refuse, would also swamp the Canadian market. American canned and refrigerated meats would kill the beef cattle trade of Canadian farmers. Referring to the Canadian timber trade, Mr. Morphy quoted from the Literary Digest to show that all the timber in the United States was controlled by only 100 people. With free trade the American timber trusts could force the Canadian holder to accept any price they were willing to pay. Canada's pulp forests would be denuded by the Americans in an effort to break the American trusts.

A KETTLE THAT WHISTLES.
The newest kettle which is likely to prove very popular is not content with mere singing, but whistles shrilly the moment it boils, so that the housewife has no excuse for not going at once to attend to its requirements. This has the result of preventing the everyday tragedy of the boiling over of water out of the spout and from under the cover on to a clean stove or to the extinguishing of a fire. The new kettle has a long, narrow neck at the top by which it is both filled and emptied. This is covered by a cap cover the length of the neck, and at the top of this is a whistle which admits directly the hot bubbles by reason of the steam passing through it.

KILLS HER CHILDREN IN FIT OF INSANITY
Woman In North Bruce Town Strangles Little Boy and Girl.

Lion's Head, Aug. 17.—The body of Mrs. Thos. Pettigrew was found hanging dead in the kitchen of her home here by neighbors this morning, and in a bed upstairs were the bodies of her two children strangled to death.

The children were a boy and a girl, James and Hazel, aged 10 and 12 years. From the condition of the house it is evident that they were able to put up some sort of a struggle with their lives, but the frantic woman finally overcame them, and by tying pieces of thin rope around their necks they were slowly strangled to death.

After undressing them and placing them side by side in bed, the woman then tied a piece of rope to the bottom of the bed in another room. The end of it was put through a stove-pipe hole in the floor. Coming down the woman then tied the loose end around her throat, mounted a table, and then jumped off.

The deed is thought to have been the result of "insanity brought on by years of illness. Her husband, a carpenter, was away from home at distant work. Cries were heard from the house about midnight.

Nothing no life about the place the door was broken down.

The "No Quarter" Sign on a Hundred Suits --- With the Bayonet Sticking Through

Possibly you have read of my coming to the city. I can promise you that this store will shortly be enlarged to twice its present capacity, for such fine clothes as "Semi-ready" will force themselves to the front when backed by proper and painstaking store service.

I will give you such a service as will please you now and always; and I will offer you clothes that have the "air" which an artisan cannot produce unless he has the artistic instinct.

Selling a Hundred Semi-ready Suits at Less Than Cost

Clearing Some as low as $9.00, others at $11.00 and $13.50

All new suits, seasonable and stylish, with never a mark nor a flaw in them. This is a sale which calls for quick action on your part. Such good clothes for so little money have never been offered before. For these are real Semi-ready Tailoring. And there is only one "Semi-ready." Here, and here only.

Records of Trust Companies

So far as records show, there has never been a case of default by a trust company as executor.

No description of the equipment or explanation of the service, afforded by an institution such as the Canada Trust Company, so forcibly emphasizes the desirability of appointing it as executor under a will, as the actual records showing the reliable service rendered by companies of this kind.

Low Fare is Offered to California

and you travel over the Union-Southern Pacific

Whether you want to raise cattle, wheat, fruit or chickens, California is the place. The people out there now, can't raise enough to supply the demand. It is 750 miles long and 250 miles wide, yet there are fewer people in the entire state than there are in Chicago. Populations means opportunity only for rich men. For men of little means, opportunity lies in the absence of population. Let this stick in your mind.

When you have finally concluded that your opportunity lies in California and that this excursion and this low fare is your chance, come down to our ticket office here; we have information on every point relative to California—its soil, its products, its people, its lands, its churches and its schools.

Standard Route of the West
The great national highway over which the East has gone West and the West has gone East for two generations. It is the old line, the short line, the quick line, the established line, the safe line, the line of the Overland Mail. Every inch is protected by electric light signals, one-third of all the electric light signals in the United States are used in the lines of this system. The road is ballasted with dustless Sherman Gravel. The dining cars are excellent. Meals are served at reasonable prices, and you pay only for what you eat.

MR. BORDEN AT SIMCOE REPLIES TO PREMIER

His New Bogey Is Flood of Produce From Favored Nations.

Simcoe, Aug. 17.—Three days ago Sir Wilfrid Laurier faced a great audience in Lynwood Park and delivered his militant message to the people of Canada. Tonight Mr. R. L. Borden arrived with what he believed to be an antidote. The rink was filled.

Mr. W. F. Maclean, of Donlands, added to the gaiety of the evening. If not to an intelligent understanding of the issue, by an attack upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier, whom he, with great gusto, described as a "long-haired Indian doctor with Taff's reciprocity 'pilla' and as 'a political humbug.'"

He drew a terrifying picture of the awful ruin and desolation that would fall upon the farms of the Dominion under reciprocity, and reiterated the World's arguments concerning the sheep industry.

Mr. A. C. Pratt, M. P. for South Norfolk, and Mr. H. P. Jones, M. P. for North Norfolk, completed the list of speakers, the latter prophesying a majority of one thousand for Mr. McCall, a statement that elicited laughter from even the party stalwarts.

Mr. Borden offered, as justification of the obstructive tactics of the Opposition, their determination to force a vote of the people, and then passed on to a consideration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's address at Simcoe. "The Prime Minister," he said, "has repeated here the remarkable statement contained in his manifesto, that it has been the constant and earnest endeavor of every public man in Canada for forty years to consummate a reciprocity treaty with the United States. That statement is not true. On four separate public occasions since 1898 Sir Wilfrid Laurier has repudiated any desire by the Canadian people for reciprocity, and any intention on his part to secure it."

Quoting Charlton.

Mr. Borden recalled the words of the late Hon. Mr. Charlton, the brother of the Hon. W. A. Charlton, the Liberal candidate for Norfolk, in a statement at Detroit in December, 1902. "He said there," continued the Conservative leader, "if the reciprocity treaty of 1854 had been continued until 1902 I don't know whether the Stars and Stripes would be floating over Canada, but I do know you would not have known the two countries apart."

"Mr. Charlton's opinions as to the possibilities of a compact such as this are in marked contrast to those of a Prime Minister who has evidently forgotten these remarks of the protagonist of reciprocity," he commented.

Mr. Borden reiterated his statement that he and his supporters did not doubt the loyalty of the Canadian people, but added that under reciprocity the loyalty of the people would be face to face with serious difficulties.

He said that if the agreement was at any time abrogated by Canada the United States could use the prohibitive tariff as a club. His statement that the farmers should be protected did not evoke applause. He was alarmed at the prospect of the flood of produce that would come from the twelve favored nations.

STRATHROY.

Strathroy, Aug. 17.—The principal and staff of the collegiate institute are to be congratulated on the creditable standing of the S. C. I. candidates at the recent departmental examinations. 75 per cent being successful, and seven of the Normal entrance candidates securing honors.

Wednesday, Aug. 30, the question of a new collegiate building will come before the voters of the town.

The Arcade stores, formerly occupied by Mitchell & Gill, have been leased for a term of ten years to F. H. Brewster, of London. The premises are to be renovated and turned into one large store with a frontage of 45 feet.

Mr. George Richardson and Miss Nellie Richardson are holidaying in Detroit. Miss Belle McKellar is spending a couple of weeks in Sarnia.

Mrs. D. C. Ross and daughter Clara and Miss Banghart leave today for Lake Huron Park.

An interesting contest is taking place in Alexander Park among the lady bowlers for a prize generously donated by Mrs. N. D. Brooks, before she left for Toronto.

Mr. Neville R. Lindsay, of Edmonton, Alta., is holidaying at the home of his mother, Mrs. W. B. Lindsay, Front street.

Miss Clara Gorman, of Grand Rapids, is visiting her father, Mr. G. G. Gorman.

St. John's Sunday school are looking forward to Aug. 25, when they hope to hold a picnic at Lake Huron Park, Sarnia.

Mrs. N. S. Bayley and daughter Charlotte are spending a few days in Sarnia and Detroit.

Mrs. Arch Thompson and the Misses Thompson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., are guests of Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Thompson.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Nicholls, Front street east, their youngest daughter, Eva E. was married at noon to Mr. H. H. Hawley, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Hawley, of Campbellford. The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin, and un-tended. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Graham, pastor of the Methodist Church. Only the intimate friends of the bride and the mother of the groom, Mrs. M. A. Hawley, of Campbellford, were guests. The presents were numerous and beautiful. After the dainty luncheon the happy couple left for a trip to Toronto, Campbellford, Belleville and the east. After a short honeymoon they will take up their residence in Charlette, Mich.

AUDACIOUS HOAX BY DUBLIN MAN

Passed Himself Off on Villagers as Lord Clifford.

A CRICKETING TRAGEDY

Player Dies From a Blow From Another Athlete's Bat.

Dublin, Aug. 17.—An audacious hoax was perpetrated lately in the little County Meath village of Dunshaughlin by a young, stylishly-dressed man from Dublin who for a number of hours completely hoodwinked several prominent local people by passing himself off as "the Right Hon. Surgeon Moore," and also as "Lord Clifford." He appeared on the scene as a surgeon whose motor car had broken down, although as a matter of fact he had journeyed to the village on an old bicycle. He proceeded to the residence of Lord Dunsany, and there boldly announced himself as "Lord Clifford." The Dunsany Castle servants did everything they could to make him comfortable, and he actually succeeded in obtaining a loan of several pounds which he said he needed to tide him over till his return to Dublin. Finally Lord Dunsany's chauffeur drove him back to Dublin in a motor car. At the Phoenix Park gate, he alighted, and said he was going to the Kildare Street Club. Nothing has been heard of the stranger since, and the police are now looking for the bogus peer.

A Cricketing Tragedy. A cricketing tragedy engaged the attention of the Queenstown petty session the other day. A youth named Robinson was charged with having killed another youth, Pinkney, by striking him with a cricket bat. While twelve boys were playing cricket one of them named Toby Robinson for fun took away a man's coat and hid it. A boy named Larry Pinkney told the man what had happened, and the man boxed Toby's ears. This enraged Robinson, and his brother Edward called Larry Pinkney a mean sneak. Philip Pinkney took up the cudgels on his brother Larry's behalf, with the result that a quarrel ensued. Then the accused snatched the cricket bat previously named Robinson and struck Pinkney with it on the head, felling him instantly to the ground. Pinkney moaned and struggled to rise, but fell again. Then he swooned off, and remained in a state of unconsciousness until he died.

A Ship's Tribulations.

After an adventurous voyage the Norwegian ship Auden, on its way to Queenstown harbor a few days ago. The Auden's troubles began at the Cape of Good Hope where a fierce gale was encountered. The tremendous sea broke over the vessel just before midnight, washing everything movable overboard. One lifeboat was carried away and another smashed. Four seamen were swept overboard, and disappeared in the darkness, an attempt to rescue them being impossible. For a time it was thought that the ship would not weather the storm. The skylight of the apprentices' forecastle was smashed, and also was the skylight of the sailors' forecastle, and several compartments became flooded. When the storm was over it was found that the ship was badly damaged. In many cases stout iron bars had been bent and twisted as if they had been of mere wire.

Operations at Sea.

Two critical operations performed in mid-ocean marked the voyage of the White Star liner Celtic which put into Queenstown harbor the other morning. Both were successful. The ship was stopped while the surgeon on board, Dr. McMaisters, operated on a boy of 7 years for appendicitis, and on the day following on a man who successfully operated on for a similar complaint. Dr. E. D. Roberts, of New York, and physician of Seattle, who were passengers, viewed Dr. McMaisters. The operation on the man was performed while the ship was steaming, as there was no time for delay owing to his critical condition.

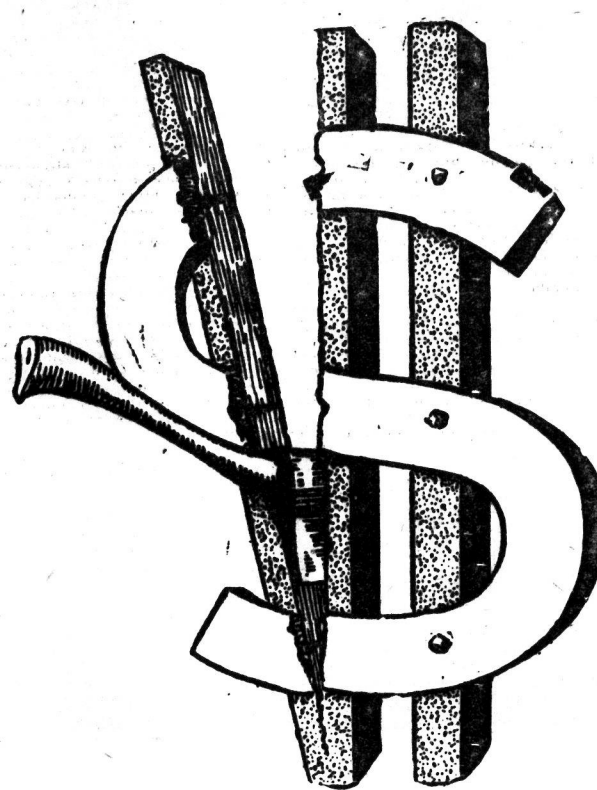

A peculiar burning accident occurred the other day on the top of a Dublin tramway car, which resulted in the death of Miss Johnston, of Drumcondra. Suddenly the girl was observed to be in a mass of flames. Men pulled off their coats and tried to stifle them, but it was no good. Her hair was burnt off and her flesh was shockingly charred before willing helpers were able to master the flames sufficiently to lift her tenderly into a cab which conveyed her to the hospital. She died a few hours afterwards. The cause of the sudden outbreak of flames is a mystery.

An exciting mishap occurred recently to a boating party on the Shannon. Peter O'Brien, Patrick Casserley, and James Anon were cruising at a place called Ballyglass, two miles outside Athlone, when the boat overturned, throwing them into the water. Casserley and O'Brien were able to swim, but it was no good. Her hair was burnt off and her flesh was shockingly charred before willing helpers were able to master the flames sufficiently to lift her tenderly into a cab which conveyed her to the hospital. She died a few hours afterwards. The cause of the sudden outbreak of flames is a mystery.

An impressive spectacle was witnessed the other night at Fermoy, County Cork, where a fire broke out on Corvin Mountain. Within a short space of time the flames quickly spread until it seemed as if the whole mountain were ablaze. Viewed from Fermoy the blazing mountain seemed an immense fiery horse shoe, with now and then sparks leaping into the air. Never before has there been such a fire in the district, and people were amazed at the vastness.

Much alarm was caused at Cappamore, County Limerick, recently, owing to a large bog near the village taking fire. The flames spread with great rapidity over several hundred acres on which the turf was cut and drying. A contingent of men tried to get the flames under, but the bog burned for two days. Happily the flames were confined to the bog, adjacent plantations and houses escaped.

FACING GRAVEST CRISIS

kept the different units in touch with the general staff.

Tube Traffic Held Up.

London's elaborate underground system, including the metropolitan district railways had difficulty in operating because of a strike of the men at Stratford, East Ham, through which no trains could pass. Thus at times traffic was held up for a considerable period.

Rioting at Sheffield.

Sheffield Aug. 18.—There has been considerable rioting here. The troops and police, who were engaged in escorting wagons in moving goods, were obstructed by rowdies and compelled to use their batons, and late last night a gang of roughs attempted unsuccessfully to tear up the tracks of the Midland Railway. Lord Mayor threatens to requisition more troops if there is a repetition of the disorder.

At Nottingham.

Nottingham, Aug. 18.—On receipt of the strike order the railroaders here went on strike, although enough of them remained at work to keep the passenger traffic going.

Irish Strike Called.

Dublin, Aug. 18.—At a meeting last night attended by the employees of the four Irish railways, it was decided to call a strike at 6 o'clock this morning.

Some for Conciliation.

Glasgow, Aug. 18.—Eighteen hundred railwaymen struck here last night, but at Edinburgh the men still favor conciliation, and it is unknown whether the 45,000 Scotch railroaders, half of whom are unionists, will join the strike.

Liverpool Quiet.

Liverpool, Aug. 18.—Liverpool was comparatively quiet the past 24 hours, following the receipt of the strike order. The city is not yet in a state of tumult and rioting growing out of the strike of transport workers and non-unionists. The troops, however, continued to guard all public streets. That there were no serious disturbances last night probably was due to the fact that the electric light company, by careful management, succeeded in keeping the city lighted by straining men into the power station to replace the regular staff, who are in sympathy with the strikers. Until 8 o'clock last night the company maintained only a limited supply of electricity for the city, but at one time the street service was suspended, and the additional supply of electricity obtained by the city was used to light the streets.

Taverns Closed.

All taverns were closed at 8 o'clock, and hereafter will be in accordance with the orders of the city magistrates, they must shut down at 2 o'clock in the afternoon until further notice.

Also it was decided to suppress the sale of beer and other drinks.

As a further precaution the press was requested to avoid sensational headlines, which would be likely to incite to disorder. It was also deemed advisable to ask the Government to afford adequate military and naval protection to prevent intimidation of men who are willing to work.

The streets of the city are getting into an unbearable condition as a result of a strike of the scavengers.

The cruiser "Antrim" late last night landed a party of marines, who were sent to the docks and the electric power station.

In the Paddington district the police had to deal with a number of rowdies looking for a broad shop and other stores.

Queenstown, Aug. 18.—Instructions have been received here to land all the mail of the steamer Adriatic, when she arrives here, to the strike of telegraph operators.

Two Hundred Thousand Are Out.

The union leaders this afternoon expressed their confidence in the success of the strike. They claimed that two hundred thousand men had quit work.

James Henry Thomas, labor member of Parliament for Derby and assistant secretary of the amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, issued a statement in which he asserted that the strikers had almost paralyzed the whole railway system of the United Kingdom.

The proposal for a royal commission was considered by a joint committee of the railway societies during the forenoon, but the men did not change or alter their position that the railway should be placed directly with them in the slightest degree.

The Great Western Railway and the Great Central appeared to be the most seriously affected. The officials of the former candidly confessed their inability to afford the necessary service, but claimed that the modified schedule which was drawn up when the strike broke out was working smoothly.

Troops were in control of their London station at Paddington, and the Great Western has four principal routes, covering in a general way the territory from Dover and London to Liverpool, and connecting the ocean ports with London, South Wales, the Midlands, and the west of England.

Leeds, Aug. 18.—Fifteen thousand railway men of all grades have struck here, without waiting for the official signal. As a result only a restricted service is possible and all business is paralyzed.

Manchester, Aug. 18.—The strike situation here remains about the same. Trade is being carried on with the utmost difficulty, and the prices of goods are constantly rising. The railway companies are utilizing their extremely limited resources with the aid of the police to maintain the city's supply of goods.

Many towns have served to further reduce the train service to Manchester, and the result business is at the point of stagnation. Many firms are closing down.

We: England Cut Off.

Some other lines were getting their trains in and out of the city, and those running to the south coast were selling return tickets and continuing the home of the excursion trains, though they abandoned part of the suburban service in order to maintain that on the longer lines. Many roads succeeded during the night in moving some perishable freight.

The conditions in the provinces were somewhat more serious than in and about London. Early today word came from Birmingham that West England was completely cut off. Passenger trains on the Midland Railway in other directions were running as usual, but freight traffic on some branches had been stopped. There was some disorder at Birmingham. At Manchester business was at a standstill, as the teamsters were still out today. The three passenger stations in Liverpool were besieged with passengers and the platforms were piled high with baggage.

The companies were finally compelled to discontinue selling tickets.

Bad in Wales.

Throughout Wales, where the unions are stronger there was almost a total stoppage of traffic. No trains were able to get through to Fishguard. As the day progressed more serious reports came in. Strikers took possession of the railway line at Llewellyn, a seaport of Wales, and succeeded in repulsing the police, who attempted to drive them off. At several out-of-the-way places in Wales signal boxes were burned.

Some two hundred men employed on the Caledonian Railway went out to the railway line at Llewellyn, a seaport of Wales, and succeeded in repulsing the police, who attempted to drive them off. At several out-of-the-way places in Wales signal boxes were burned.

An interesting incident was noted at Enderbury station, where the police were seen escorting boxes containing strike pay from the station to the offices of the union.

ISSUES WARNING.

services were suspended. Many bakers have closed their shops, causing a scarcity of food, which will result in much suffering. A landing party from the cruiser "Antrim" is assisting at the docks.

"At Manchester the situation is perfectly quiet, the strike leaders having appealed for order. The railway services are greatly disorganized, but no disturbances occurred at Sheffield, but perishable goods are being gotten through."

During the session Mr. Churchill delivered a stern warning to the disorderly elements. He said that there had been no disturbances in London, but several attempts had been made to commit outrages against railway property. It was important that all should understand that such acts were crimes of the most serious character, punishable with penal servitude. It was early set to measure the extent of the strike, but the Government was taking all necessary steps to make sure that the food supply, as well as the other essential, should not be interrupted by the strikers.

Not the well-to-do would suffer, but the poor of the great cities and those dependent upon them, who would be quite helpless if the machinery by which they are fed—on which they are dependent for wages—were thrown out of gear.

"The Government believes that arrangements made for working the lines of communication, and for the maintenance of order, will prove effective, but if further measures of even larger scope will be taken promptly. It must be clearly understood that there is no escape from these facts, and as they affect the supply of food of the people and the safety of the public are far more important than anything else."

WILD CAMELS OF SPAIN.

It is quite unnecessary, it seems, to go so far afield as the heart of Africa or the silent spaces of the Polar regions, to find virgin ground. There is still a certain amount of unexplored territory in Europe, especially in Spain, where nearly half the land has been abandoned to wild animals.

Proof of this is furnished in "Unexplored Spain," a remarkable book by Messrs. Abel Chapman and Walter J. Buck. Among other things the authors discuss the subject of the wild camels, that there are wild camels in Europe, all is hard to believe, but that these particular "wild camels" exist in watery wildernesses which are flooded during a great part of the year is astounding.

The story of these strange inhabitants of the watery wildernesses of Spain is briefly summarized in the following sentences: "The animals were introduced to Spain in 1823 by the Marquis de Balleza, with the object of employing them in transport and agriculture, as they are so commonly used in the arid shores of Africa. But local difficulties ensued—chiefly arising from the intense fear and repugnance of horses towards camels which resulted in numerous accidents—and eventually the camels were got free in the marshes. There they have since lived in large and bred under wholly wild conditions for well-nigh a century."

TRAINED SEAL IN CONGRESS.

Representative Edward W. Townsend, one time newspaperman of Montreal, N. J., caused a sensation at the capital at Washington by appearing at the room of the committee on expenditures in the Department of Commerce and Labor, accompanied by a trained seal.

A large crowd gathered to watch the unusual sight. The little seal is named George. Mr. Townsend is responsible for the investigation now in progress of the charges of indiscriminate butchery of the great seal herd of the Pribilof Islands. There has been much conflicting testimony as to the sizes and weights of sealskins and as to the ages of the animals from which skins variously classified were taken. George was shown as a living example. After he has served his purpose as a committee exhibit he will be turned over to the Bureau of Fisheries to live there.

MAN IN IRONS GOES TO FUNERAL.

An unusual incident is recorded from Hallowell, Del., where a man handcuffed to Sheriff Buell, Isaac Short, who shot and killed Charles Wilson, of Denton, Md., in a quarrel last week, attended the funeral of the man who shot him. Crowds flocked to the funeral out of morbid curiosity to see how Short would act, and because of a rumor that Short's friends would attempt a rescue.

Paper Bag Cookery

These Cooking Bags are now available by mail or at The London Advertiser Office in quantity and at cost, as stated on coupon, which must be clipped out and presented or sent with order. A Paper Bag Cooking Coupon will be found in every issue of The London Advertiser as long as the bags are on sale.

Directions—How to Use Cooking Bags:

1. Select one that "fits" the food intended to be cooked.
 2. Grease slightly the inside of the bag, except in the case of vegetables, or when water is to be added.
 3. When the food has been prepared for the bag, place the same on the table, and lift the uppermost edge of the bag while you insert the contents.
 4. Fold the mouth of the bag two or three times and fasten with a clip, or pins, or in any other way that will secure as nearly as possible a hermetical closing.
 5. Should it ever happen that a bag leaks, simply transfer it with contents undisturbed to another bag.
 6. The oven, any kind of which will do, should be kept clean, and if properly heated, as with the old style of cooking, results should satisfactorily follow. Average oven heat should be about 200 degrees, Fahr., and when the bag is put into the oven this heat should be reduced by about 30 degrees. In the case of ovens with solid shelves, a wire grid should be placed on the shelf with a space between and the bag with contents on the grid. Experience will soon teach the cook when the oven is hot enough without the use of a thermometer.
 7. The oven door will not require to be opened every now and then "to see how the roast is doing." The whole force of the heat is playing upon the bag and from within it cannot escape.
 8. Exercise care in taking the bag out of the oven, and if gas is used the bag should be kept out of danger of contact with the flame.
- A plate inserted under the bag will best remove it from the oven.
- When taken out for use the bag should be ripped open from the top and the fragments thrown away.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OFFERINGS WERE SMALL
ON THE SQUARE TODAYOld and New Oats Are In Demand at Good Prices—
The Quotations.

There was a small market for the local square today. Only a few loads of hay were offered, and these sold at from $15 to $16 per ton. Oats are not yet plentiful, but good prices and a fairly active demand prevail for both old and new oats.

Very little fruit was offered on the fruit market. Locally there is no demand for fruit at present. Dealers say that the season this year is two weeks earlier than last year, and London housewives are not yet ready to purchase their supplies of fruit for preserving.

The consequence is that owing to the low prices prevailing on the London market the fruit growers are consigning their fruit to other markets. Local fruit men say that on account of the season opening earlier it will close earlier and that many people will be disappointed in securing their winter stock of fruit.

On the poultry market commission dealers are paying a trifle less for live chickens, the price now being only 12 cents per pound.

FINANCIAL.
[From Charles Head & Co., by private wire to J. J. Kearney.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—After the early advance of 1 to 2 points, the tone was firmly maintained, and recent gains were held. The statement of Judge Lovett was regarded as the most important influence regarding trading sentiment. London bought about 2,000 shares and Content & Co. were noted as heavy buyers of the more active issues. A feature was the concentration of trading in the leading stocks, the transactions in the market being about 10,000 shares out of a total of 24,000 in the first hour. Most of the buying was in Union Pacific and Western Union. In that stock attributed the sharp upward to recent covering of shorts. The upward movement of Union Pacific after the close yesterday was very large.

Dam Washed Away.
Reports of damage done by Wednesday afternoon's storm are still coming in, and the total loss to property and buildings will likely total up in the thousands. The heavy rainfall that accompanied the lightning and thunder caused the Thames river to rise rapidly and become a raging torrent, with the result that a good deal of damage was done to property along the river banks. Dr. Mitchell, of Epsom, had a large concrete dam in the course of construction on his property for the purpose of establishing a trout pond beside the Thames. A small creek flows into the dam, but Wednesday's storm turned this into a small river, with a current that was powerful enough to wash away about twenty feet of the concrete dam, causing Dr. Mitchell a heavy loss.

RIDGETOWN TURNS TABLES ON CHATHAM
Tennis Players Meet Again. This Time Late Losers Win.
Ridgetown, Aug. 17.—Ridgetown Tennis Club turned the tables on Chatham yesterday, defeating them by two points. The Chatham Club was very late arriving, and some of the events were necessarily cancelled. Dr. Rose and Miss Arnold, Chatham, defeated Miss Locke and Dr. Groves, Ridgetown, 6-2, 6-4.
Mr. Morley and Miss Waddell, of Chatham, defeated Dr. Routledge and Mrs. Marr, Ridgetown, 6-2, 6-0.
Mr. Riley Youngs and Miss Macdonald, Chatham, defeated Mr. Thompson and Mr. Kirk, Chatham, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.
Dr. Routledge and Dr. Groves, of Ridgetown, defeated Mr. Kirk and Mr. Matthews, Chatham, 4-6, 6-2, 4-1.
Miss Macdonald, Ridgetown, defeated Miss McLaren, Chatham, 6-3, 6-2.
Mr. Marr, Ridgetown, defeated Miss Waddell, Chatham, 6-0, 6-1.
Mr. Morley, Chatham, defeated Dr. Routledge, Ridgetown, 6-0, 6-1.
The matches that have been played for her were a very wide circle of admirers, and have made her one of the most successful of modern poets.—From an article in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

DEATH OF MRS. COPELAND
Well-Known Wellington County Lady Taken By Death.
St. Marys, Aug. 17.—The unexpected death occurred here yesterday of Mrs. Cope, a highly-respected resident of Wellington County, near Guilford, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Towell, where she had been visiting for a few weeks. The cause of her death was tubercular meningitis. The deceased was in her 65th year, was born in King's County, Ireland, and settled with her parents in Wellington County at the age of 2 years. She is survived by five daughters and one son, as follows: G. Emmerson Copeland, Vancouver, B. C.; Mrs. W. H. Towell, St. Marys; Mrs. J. Mason, Guilford; Miss Mary Copeland, Guilford; Mrs. S. Petty, Eramosa; and Miss Elizabeth, of Victoria, B. C. The funeral will be held in Everton Cemetery, near Guilford.

Sarina, Aug. 18.—While excavating the foundation for the new house of Mr. John McGibbon, on Front street, workmen unearthed a mahogany coffin containing the remains of an Indian buried in 1812.
Mr. F. P. Farber, the Liberal candidate, has arranged to speak at Wexford on Monday, Aug. 21, and at Camanche on Tuesday, Aug. 22.

HAGGART NOT WANTED
Nomination Ballot Indicates He Will Be Dropped After Polling.
Perth, Aug. 17.—Hon. John Haggart secured the Conservative convention here today by nine votes over Col. Bagnall. The vote stood 33 to 24. Six others were nominated, but withdrew. Thus was the trouble in the Conservative party here solved. No Liberal press representative was admitted to the convention. Mr. Haggart's nomination was made unanimously. The vote is taken here to indicate that Mr. Haggart is not wanted after this election.

SHE MADE POETRY PAY.
Ella Wheeler Wilcox began to make poetry pay when she was a girl in her early teens, and she is undoubtedly to be classed as one of the most successful of living writers of poetry, measuring success by the pecuniary reward. She began to write verse and prose when she was 8 years old, and she had no doubt, even at that age, that a career as a writer was cut out for her. When she was 9 she wrote a novel, and three or four poems in a day was no uncommon showing for her. She had a great many more rejections than acceptances at first, but she is a born optimist, and so she never got discouraged. She kept her literary productions going the rounds, and the events were necessarily cancelled. After having been rejected a dozen times or so.
Her first check was from one of Frank Leslie's publications. It was for $10 for three poems. That was about the rate at which she was paid for her poems in those days. But as she could turn out two or three of these poems a day, her friends thought she was doing money at that rate.
She began to reap large rewards from her pen with the publication of her first volume of poems. Her collected poems, which were a very wide circle of admirers, and have made her one of the most successful of modern poets.—From an article in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.
