

SPLENDID MODERN BRIDGE SYSTEM OF THE COUNTY OF HASTINGS

County Engineer Allen Publishes a Comprehensive and Illuminative Article showing what Our up-to-date County Has already Accomplished.

The last issue of The Contract Record of Toronto contains an excellent and interesting resume from the pen of Mr. Lucius E. Allen, county engineer, of what Hastings County has accomplished in the way of modern highway bridge construction. Mr. Allen also outlines in a comprehensive way the system by which this county is gradually superseding its antiquated bridge system with one that is up-to-date and permanent.

The article is illustrated with several of the bridges showing the various types that have been introduced according to the requirements of different localities.

Following is Mr. Allen's article—

Both in Canada and the United States public attention is being turned to the importance of good roads. Highway construction has had in the past, and still has, an important place in the development of trade and commerce, but it is now generally acknowledged that the improvement of our public highways is essential to the growth and progress of the country as a whole. The construction of highways, and that with the construction of so-called permanent roads, the construction of permanent bridges being an important part.

Before referring to modern practice in bridge construction, it may be of interest to refer briefly to the fact that practically all the bridges built in this country were of the wooden beam type, usually of the iron truss type, usually of the iron truss type, usually of the iron truss type.

It was not until about 1830 that the iron was first introduced by Whipple. This material was succeeded some years later by the concrete. The material now universally used in steel bridge construction did not come into general use until about 1875. From its use, due to its great tensile strength, the modern development in bridge construction received its greatest impetus.

The use of cement as a material for bridge construction is of comparatively recent date, although cement was apparently used by the Romans. The first concrete arch was constructed of plain concrete in 1869 and is known as the Grand Maître bridge at Fontainebleau, France. This arch has a span of one hundred and sixteen feet. In 1871 a plain concrete arch of thirty-one feet span was constructed in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, New York. It was not until the construction of a reinforced concrete arch in San Francisco in 1889, that iron or steel was first used in connection with concrete. At the present time steel and concrete reinforced with steel are the predominant materials in use for bridge construction.

In the construction of a bridge there are certain essential requirements and principles that must be adhered to in order to secure satisfactory and permanent results. I shall endeavor to outline briefly the fundamental requirements.

Adaptation of Type to Location

There have been many "mistake" bridges, and one of the first and most important steps in the building of a bridge is a careful study of the location, having special regard to the type of bridge best adapted to the particular location. The main points upon which to base a decision as to the best type of bridge to construct are: 1—length of span and height; 2—character of river or stream; 3—character of foundation.

Whether steel or reinforced concrete is used, the length of span and height above high water must be carefully considered. If the span be less than sixty or seventy-five feet, a low truss steel construction is usually used. If eighty or 100 feet, the high truss is usually used. It is also essential to consider whether two shorter spans with a pier in the center are more economical than one long span, which will govern the height and size of piers required.

The same conditions apply if reinforced concrete construction be desired. Up to 40 to 45 feet the girder design is usually used, being a usually simpler and less expensive to build than the concrete arch, and it may be possible and more economical to divide the total span distance into a series of reinforced concrete girder beam spans of 40 to 45 feet each.

Character of River or Stream.

Due regard should also be given to the character of the river or stream over which a bridge is to be constructed. If the current be rapid, and the water of some depth, the cost of

A FAMILY REUNION

Sons and Daughters of Mrs. Daniel Foster Celebrate her Birthday

Eighty-eight years ago is a long recall in the life of a nation but particularly so in the life of an individual. However a family gathering took place yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gillett, 115 Dundas street, Belleville, which had for its purpose the celebration of the eighty-eighth anniversary of the birth of an esteemed Belleville lady, Mrs. Daniel Foster, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Gillett.

Remarkably hale and hearty is Mrs. Foster, after her ripe experience of life. Active and manifesting a deep interest in all the events of the day, she thoroughly enjoyed the observance which brought to her side again the five surviving members of her family, three sons and two daughters. The sons travelled long distances in order to be present and honor the occasion. They are Mr. B. V. Foster, connected with the Grand Trunk Railway system, Montreal; Mr. W. Edgar Foster, Montreal, solicitor for the G. T. R. in Ontario; and Mr. F. E. Foster, who has resided in Chicago for the past twenty years and conducts a most successful business. The daughters are Mrs. J. Frith Joffers and Mrs. Alfred Gillett both of this city.

Mrs. Foster was the recipient of greetings on her great age and best wishes for many happy returns. The dinner was featured by the time-honored birthday cake and candles.

Mrs. Foster is the daughter of the late Peter Vrooman, who was born in Schenectady, N. Y. and was a United Empire Loyalist.

She came to Belleville over a century ago in 1812 and resided in holding the Foster homestead, which still stands at the corner of Dundas and Foster Ave. He afterwards removed to Thurlow township where he took land. His daughter, Miss Jane Vrooman, Mrs. Foster was born in the third generation of Thurlow in 1826. Sixty years ago she was wedded to Daniel Foster, who died about thirty years ago. After the marriage she came to Belleville and resided in the Foster home in this city. Mrs. Foster for years conducted a successful business in Belleville.

The intimate friends of Mrs. Foster in this city congratulated her on the occasion of her eighty-eighth anniversary and wish her many more birthday anniversaries.

A 'BOOST' BELLEVILLE PROJECT

A movement has been started by a large number of influential musical people in Belleville to have, in the middle of May a grand revival on a large scale of the "Golden Age" in its new form with re-written book and music that was eliminated in the first production on account of the small chorus. It is the intention of the promoters to give the opera for two weeks continuously in Belleville, Trenton, Picton and surrounding towns for the first week, the second week for the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Lindsay, and for a week in Toronto at the Royal Alexandra Theatre. There is no city in Canada which has more genuine talent for musical operations in Belleville and it is the hope of the promoters to exploit the fact and make it light-operatic organization as valuable an advertising adjunct to Belleville, in Canada at least, as the "Mandolin" society is to Toronto.

In addition to the large chorus of a hundred, an orchestra of at least forty pieces will be assembled.

The old members of the Golden Age Chorus and the members of the Philharmonic Society, all choir and other singers as well as interested friends, and all players of orchestral instruments, amateurs or professionals, are requested to attend a meeting to be held in the armoured lecture room, Monday evening, March 20, at 8 o'clock sharp. This is a "Boost Belleville" project. Let us all get together.

New Crepe Weaves and Colors for Blouses

The word dainty by no means expresses fully the charm of these new Pompadour Crepes. They are truly the last word in up-to-the-minute Blouse and Dress Materials.

The following new colors are represented in the showing: Vanderbelt Blue, September Morn, and Dolly Varden.

The material is a very fine weave of silk with the crepe effect prettily carried out and last of all is washable. It is being used as frilling as well.

In width it is 40 inches and an ordinary kimona sleeve can be made from 1 1-4 yds. The price is $2.00 a yd.

Resembling closely its predecessor, the Silk Crepe de Chine, this cotton material promises to make a very strong impression upon those making Summer Blouses and Dresses now.

It is well to anticipate your needs a little beforehand, and a dress or two of this charming material, in colors of September Morn, Honey or Geranium, will freshen one's Summer Wardrobe up, not a little bit. The price is 50c a yd.

The Display of Spring Styles will continue for the first part of the week on the 2nd floor.

BELLEVILLE OLD BOY GETS FINE POSITION

When J. W. Norcross was selected for the important post of Managing Director of the Canada Steamship Lines, one of his first moves was to appoint W. E. Burke as his assistant. This selection was a natural one in view of the able assistance he has had from Mr. Burke in the building up of his large and successful shipping business. Mr. Burke brings to his new position an unusual experience for a man of his years. Known and widely popular all over the Great Lakes, his personality and executive ability will, undoubtedly, be a big factor in the working out of the plans for the improvement of the various divisions of the Canada Steamship Lines, which, in all, comprise a fleet of no less than 101 boats.

Mr. Burke is an old Belleville boy and still delights to return to his old home when business duties permit.

THE GARBAGE QUESTION

Try to Get Trainmen to Drink

Belleville.—For inducing two G.T.R. trainmen to induce them to take a drink of whiskey, John E. Connor, a Macleod driver, was fined $100 and costs in police court Monday morning. Connor, with a load of cattle, boarded the train at Napanee under the influence of liquor when the conductor and rear brakeman refused to partake of some with him he accused them of theft, and used grossly insulting language until Belleville was reached. The alleged theft never occurred, and in addition to the Dominion statute penalty Connor was fined $4 more, as he pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly. The G.T.R. officials prosecuted. Napanee Beaver.

Motion to Change Place

His Honor Judge Devoche this morning heard a motion in the case of Clarke vs. Mack. This is an action brought by Fred Clarke against Mr. Mack of Napanee in the county court of Hastings for damages for alleged wrongful dismissal. The defendant owns an opera house and the plaintiff had been engaged to manage it. The motion to-day was by the defendant to have the trial changed from Belleville to Napanee. After argument the motion was adjourned to Wednesday April 1st at the request of the defendant's counsel to enable him to procure a further affidavit as to other witnesses he intends calling at the trial. W. D. M. Storey for defendant. A. A. Abbott, Trenton, for plaintiff.

A Confusion in Names

It is sometimes inconvenient to bear the same name as some other party, especially when the other party is not well behaved. Mr. Everett Smith of Reg's Corners has called to inform The Ontario that some of his friends have been chaffing him about being drunk. The fact is that an Everett Smith who hails from Kingston has twice run foul of the single-eyed ministers of the law in Belleville and his name has duly been heralded in our police court as one who had been guilty of over-indulgence in the pleasures of the flowing bowl. It was certainly not the Mr. "Everett Smith" from our northern suburb. The latter we believe to be a young man of good habits, and a total abstainer from intoxicating liquor.

On Monday March 23, 1914, by Rev. W. G. Clarke B.A., pastor of the Tabernacle church, John Frederick Defoe Collins in the presence of Grace Collins and her father, Mr. George Collins, in the presence of immediate relatives. The young couple will reside in the city.

CARTERS WANT SOME CHANGES

Tariff should be Raised They Say—No Need For Bonds.

Fifteen licensed carters of the city are asking the city council to recommend to the Police Commissioners the following changes in the Carters' by-law:

1. The doing away with the payment of 75c. to the Chief of Police for the issuing of the licenses and having the same issued by the city treasurer.
2. An increase in the tariff to 50c. per hour for single horses and 75c. per hour for a team or any other amount that the Honorable body may feel like recommending.
3. The doing away with the necessity for bondsmen or bonds.

Then follow the signatures of 15 carters of the town.

The executive will deal with this at the next regular committee meeting, although Ald. O'Brien thought the council was well enough acquainted with the carters' requests to face the question last night.

It is wise to prevent disorder. Many a man has had to get up at the stomach and feel free from them. At the time manifestation that the stomach and liver are not performing their functions, a course of Parmentier's Vegetable Pills should be tried, and it will be found that the digestive organs will speedily resume healthy action. Laxatives and cathartics are so bludgeoned in these pills that no other preparation is so effective as they.

OUR daily news letter from this thriving town furnished by The Ontario's special representative.

Busy Trenton

Trenton, March 18.—Mr. Spencer, the well known and popular liv... man of Frankford is advertising a sale of his effects by auction.

One little letter "sp" spoiled the effect of our remarks in connection with the Art Exhibition, held last week in the Dufferin School.

On Saturday afternoon the lady teachers looked charming, and we are inclined to think that the pictures hanging on the walls; what the competitor made us say "that a few of the males had eyes, etc."

Mrs. Deans of Colborne is visiting her nephew, Mr. C. J. Young. The Canadian Club is holding an important business meeting this afternoon.

An effort is to be made to bring a prominent advocate of town planning and town improvement, here, at an early date.

When a pup is done? Quite recently a friend of ours owned a pup and when the tax collector came for the annual fee, he refused to pay it.

The annual "At Home" will be held next month, and the excursion to Trenton some time in June.

There is some talk of the citizens attempting to get the council to establish a free market day on one day each week. We have not looked into the merits of the proposition, but if any citizen has seen it tried out, the columns of the local papers would, no doubt, be freely offered to him, to explain its workings and advantages.

Trenton, March 19th.—We received a call to-day from Mr. Robertson, manager of the Belleville Creamery, and from him learned some interesting facts.

Many farmers in this district perhaps do not yet know that this concern is paying so much for cream, delivered at nearest railway station, or at a point convenient to the farmer, as is being paid by buyers in the distant cities.

Mr. Wilbur Ferguson has purchased a fine lot on the Belleville Road from Mr. Bruce Powers, and has already commenced the erection of a residence thereon.

Four new residences have been started in vicinity of C. N. R. Park, and we hear of several for which material is being prepared, to be built in East Trenton.

This is in the company of the church of St. Peter's in Chatham, will also give a dance in same hall, on the evening of Easter Monday.

We were reading yesterday of the fighting in Ireland in 1790 and there abouts, and it seems that in those days the English had their hands more than full.

To-day conditions are still, to say the least, unsettled; but it is to be hoped that wise counsels will prevail, and for the time being strife be avoided.

We think that Canada should keep on meddling in Imperial matters, particularly when the question is such a delicate one as that of Home Rule for Ireland.

WELLINGTON

Wellington.—Mr. Stephen White and daughter of Bloomfield were in attendance at Mrs. White's funeral on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clinton of Bloomfield were guests on Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. William Clinton.

Some of our doctors had to get lively horses, the roads being so bad, that their own horses were tired out.

Our undertakers are very busy at present, there being so many deaths. A number were in town on Friday afternoon from Niles' Corners and Sand Beach Hall.

Ansley Baynor from Dundas, Ont., is visiting his aunt, Mrs. H. Pettenhill.

Our different land agents are busy in town and country, and others met at H. B. Wilson is home from a trip west in the interests of W. P. Niles and home.

All the delegates to the Sunday school convention held at Hotel Alexandra, A. A. Morden, superintendent of the Wellington Sunday school gave an address on temperance.

A number of boys and girls on last Thursday enjoyed sliding on the 'ice' along our pavements. It is too bad there is not a rink for our young people to use.

Mrs. Alberti Pottenhill of Rose Hall visited Mrs. Joseph Pottenhill a few days last week.

Mrs. Wilson will return soon to take up her residence in Winnipeg. Gerald Noron and Archie Haight of the O.B.C. Belleville were home for a few days. They returned on Monday to resume their studies.

A number of tourists have taken some splendid views of our icebanks. We are pleased to see Mrs. (Rev.) Dr. Cobb home again. She was accompanied by her son from St. Mary's, who has been with scarlet fever. He is now much better.

Mr. Gerald Ferguson has a very neat grocery. A number of his Melville friends called on him the day of the S. E. convention in St. Mary's.

Mr. Earl Benson of Toronto entered town last week. We hope to see Earl soon at Easter.

Mrs. (Dr.) H. H. Post spent a few days last week with Pictou friends. Wellington can boast of a first-class post office and they are kept very busy on account of the rural routes going from this office.

The buzz-saws are heard in this vicinity. Mrs. O. E. Bowdman has returned to her home at Maplewood after visiting Mrs. John Barry and family in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Morden are visiting at Pictou. Mr. and Mrs. G. Vandervoort of Galesburg were at Niles' last week. We are pleased to hear that Mrs. Richard Trampour is better after her recent illness. Mr. R. Trampour is able to get out again.

A large number are suffering with rheumatism. Mrs. Phoebe Murphy has purchased the house of the late Lawrence S. Peter. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greer spent a Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James E. Minns at Pictou and Monday with Mr. and Mrs. David H. Spencer.

BE LIBERAL WITH PRAISE

Don't be afraid to praise people. It is very well to say that it hurts a boy or a man or a woman, to praise; there may be those who do their best work without encouragement but let us remember that nearly all of us who live on this earth are human beings and work best when encouraged.

It is a great mistake not to tell people when you are satisfied with them. If the cook sets before you a dinner fit for a king, tell her so. Don't be too loathly to praise the office boy if his work is commendable. Tell him so.

It is so much harder for some people to give praise than it is for them to give money. Many a generous man is a very niggard of praise.

Do you like to be praised yourself? Then depend upon it the other fellow will like it.

Pour the oil of encouragement on the wheels of progress and watch 'em whirl.

I am not advocating soft soap or flattery or gush. No one likes to be gushed at, and any fool can tell that from the real thing.

But when a man has made a hit with you tell him so. He may be dead before you get another chance, or you may die yourself.

It takes quality to appreciate quality so when you praise a thing you are really offering a compliment to yourself. Doesn't that appeal to you? Will you let all the good things in life pass you by and you as mum as a dead owl?

Wake up, man! Watch out for a chance to praise some one, admit to your own self that you like what he has done and then—tell him so!—Smith's Magazine.

BRITONS WILL NOT BE SCARED

The illustrated English papers contain pictures of the King and Mr. Asquith side by side, watching the Chicago-New York baseball game and smiling broadly.

If some of the politicians and newspapers are to be credited, Britain is on the eve of bloody civil war. Yet the King and the Prime Minister can spare time for a baseball game and enjoy it when by all accounts their faces should reflect the shadow of coming calamity.

What is the use of politicians crying havoc when the two men who, more than any others, bear the weight of official responsibility, can show such insouciance in public?

The whole situation is characteristically British. There may be a revolution in Britain—many think the country is undergoing a social revolution at the present time—but violence, bloodshed and disorder are so remote from British ways of thinking and doing that the average Briton does not believe and will not believe that there will be anything of the sort in Ireland.

The professional scare-mongers cannot scare him he is confident that a way out will be found in the peaceful compromising British fashion, and he is obviously right. As a race the British are short on logic but long on common sense.

It doesn't take much of a cold wind to feel like a blizzard on a Sunday morning.

If you love your neighbor as yourself you have a chance to prove it by fencing your chicken yard while he is making his garden.

There is considerable fluttering in the Canadian henhouse over the proposal that the egg producing district of China, the great territory between the Yellow and Yangtze river provinces, is to be drawn on for eggs for the Canadian market.

Most Canadians we fancy, will insist upon having some kind of guarantee along with the eggs, because the Chinese are said to be fond of them when they are anywhere from one to five years old. But modern methods have made their appearance in China and with the stimulus of a world market, the Chinese are learning the trick of canning eggs for one thing, refrigerating them for another thing, and treating them in other fashions in order to get a price which to them seems very large.

Men work in that district for ten cents a day, and in spite of the ordinary idea that cheap labor is not poor labor, that particular labor is excellent for its purpose, and it is felt that with the leadership which has now gone to China and the enormous abundance of labor at an insignificant rate, according to European and Canadian ideas, the egg business is likely to become so large in China, as seriously to affect the market elsewhere, although, as already stated, we presume that Canadians will prefer fresh eggs to Chinese cured ones. But as the saying is you never can tell.

The way of the would-be philanthropist is fraught with many discouragements. Up in Toronto we read that the women who were accustomed to go out and do housework can no longer be induced to do so. They find at home and have all their wants looked after by the relief association. Down in San Francisco they are resorting to a different method.

The people there will do no more wholesale feeding of the idle, but will investigate each case and extend aid if the applicant is found worthy. Free meals and beds in the cities have encouraged the congregation of hordes of undesirable who never do work and never intend to if they can escape it, and the result has been the organization of armies of bums and criminals like that led by "General" Kelly, who hope to be able to live at the expense of the thrifty public.

In New York the I. W. W. overran the restaurants, invaded churches and made themselves conspicuous and obnoxious everywhere during the past winter. Then a great snow came which impeded traffic by blocking streets and roads and there was a demand for labor at good wages. These men absolutely refused to go to work, and the people of the city realized that they had been imposed upon, just as the people of other communities have been. Those who work for what they have are not likely to share it willingly with those whose creed opposes all honest labor and whose sole object is to create disturbances by constant and purposeless agitation.

Not to allow the coming of automatic telephones to eclipse the older invention of telegraphy, a British engineer has invented an automatic telegram writer. In a few years every man may be his own telegraphist. It may be possible to sit down at one's own desk and click out a message to distant parts on a kind of typewriter; the finished printed message arriving almost simultaneously at its destination, ready to read. It is claimed by the inventor, Mr. Donald Murray, that even more wonderful things will be possible with the Murray Multiplex telegraphic instrument. The message by clever automatic devices, will, if necessary, be registered at more than one destination by the mere depression of the keys of the instrument, so that a Canadian government department could send a telegraphic message from headquarters at Ottawa to Vancouver, Winnipeg, Montreal, Halifax, and all desired points simultaneously. The machine will transmit at the rate of 40 or 50 words a minute, and print the message in page form at the receiving station. Mr. Murray is a New Zealander by birth, and has worked on the British post office engineering staff. The G. P. O. London authorities are experimenting with the invention. American rights have been bought by one of the big cable companies.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

Between the dark and the daylight, When the night is beginning to lower, Comes a pause in the day's occupations, That is known as the Children's Hour.

I hear in the chamber above me, The patter of little feet, The sound of a door that is opened, And voices soft and sweet.

From my study, I see in the lamplight, Descending the broad hall stair, Grave Alice, and laughing Allegra, And Edith with golden hair.

A whisper, and then a silence! Yet I know by their merry eyes They are plotting and planning together To take me by surprise.

A sudden rush from the stairway, A sudden raid from the hall! By three doors left unguarded They enter my castle wall!

They climb up into my turret O'er the arms and back of my chair; If I try to escape, they surround me; They seem to be everywhere.

They almost devour me with kisses, Their arms about me entwine, Till I think of the Bishop of Bangen In his Mouse Tower on the Rhine.

Do you think, O blue-eyed banditti, Because you have scaled the wall, Such an old mouse-trap as I am Is not a match for you all!

I have you fast in my fortress, And will not let you depart, But put you down in the dungeon In the round tower of my heart.

And there will I keep you forever, Yes, forever and a day, Till the walls shall crumble to ruin And moulder in dust away.

—Longfellow.

THE RURAL PROBLEM

One of the most valuable addresses delivered in Canada in a long time was that given by Rev. John Mac Dougall B. A. at the recent Social Service Congress. Mr. Mac Dougall is a Presbyterian clergyman, and pastor of a rural church at Spencerville, Ontario. He has recently published a book that every citizen of Ontario ought to read,—"Rural Life in Canada." We here reproduce a part of Mr. Mac Dougall's address.

"D'Archy McGee, that true patriot and sagacious statesman, once said: 'We Canadians are here to vindicate our capacity by test of a new political creation. In order to do so, what we most immediately want is men, more men, and still more men, in town and country.' In the town that need is being met, but the country, far from gaining 'men and still more men,' cannot hold her own.

"Ontario's total rural loss since Confederation is 111,000. But she has now a rural population of 148,000 in Muskoka, Algoma, and the newer north, where there were but 12,000 souls all told. The rural decline in older Ontario is therefore more than 248,000. Her urban growth meanwhile is over 1,015,000.

"It must be remembered that the rural loss is not measured by diminution alone, but by diminution plus natural increase cancelled. The natural increase of the rural population of all eastern Canada since Confederation would at a rate of but one per cent per annum, have amounted to 1,418,000. This has been entirely cancelled, and we have diminution instead. But the urban population, whose increase might have been but 354,000, has actually increased two millions.

"This general movement of population forms the groundwork of the rural problem. At great cost the country is building the city. Upon the 97,000 whose going decreased the rural population of older Ontario, and upon the additional 152,000 whose going cancelled the natural increase, rural Ontario spent $500,000,000. This drain, a clear gift of the country to the city, is universal.

"But the momentary tribute is the least part of the contribution. The country has surrendered a multitude of occupations which once gave it social wealth. Countryside commerce is waning before the mail order system. Choice of occupations is confined to one, that of agriculture. The loss to the farmers themselves is greater still; unrest has robbed farm life of poise and permanency.

"Improvement is seen in the lessened proportion of women in the country. The excess of men over women in Ontario's population is 85,900. In the cities there are 102 women to 100 men; in the country 116 men to 100 women. Women are even more dissatisfied with farm life than men.

"The schools suffer. In my home township there is a school with but a single pupil on the roll. Last year the school was not opened, the trustees paying $300 to have the solitary pupil conveyed daily to the next district school and taught there. Yet fifty years ago that school had an attendance of 45. In Ontario, in 1912, there were 110 schools with an average attendance for the year of less than five.

"The industrial revolution is the occasion but not the cause of this problem. That revolution, in itself, created a new order, a boom to the farmer. Economic injustice is the first of the underlying causes of the problem. By the incidence of the protective tariff, declared to be essential to the standing of industry, one-tenth of the farmer's income is transferred to city pockets.

"Our system of taxation contributes. One effect of that system is to raise the price of land in city and country—already some three million dollars an acre in the heart of our cities—is passed back from hand to hand by means of the overhead charges in business until it falls upon the first producer of which class the farmer is chief.

"Economic opportunity is denied the farmer. Though the farmer is the safest of private borrowers, he pays, as the report of the Saskatchewan Commission on Agricultural Credit shows, from 10 to 14 per cent interest, while good commercial paper is discounted at 6 per cent. But in Germany, with adequate agricultural credit, farmers pay only 4.4, and in France only 4.3 per cent. Nor is such credit a bagatelle in national prosperity. The farmers of Saskatchewan alone are paying interest on $140,000,000 of borrowed capital. In the United States each person engaged in agriculture holds, on the average, just one-third as much wealth as the average held by each person engaged in other pursuits. When we remember the higher cost of living in Canada, and the more rapid urbanization that is taking place, the situation is still more acute in Canada.

"Other factors enter as fully as the economic one. These handicaps bear upon all alike yet the situation is not homogeneous. We have localities where it assumes the tragic form revealed by a recent report of the Commission of Conservation dealing with the Trent watershed, where, in 1911, 195 farms were sold for non payment of taxes at an average price of six cents an acre. Tillage of land unfit for husbandry accounts for the situation. We have fine old homesteads thrown on the market, and other farmsteads marked by constant improvement. Exhaustion or conservation of fertility accounts for the contrast. We have rich plow lands reverting to pasture, while reclaimed swamp brings $500 an acre. We have farms of high productivity secured through rotation, fields in clean tillage, grain of high grade, herds attaining new records of performance, contrasting with farms where antiquated methods crush with cruel yoke. Scientific agriculture and haphazard routine account for the disparity. We have neighborhoods where modern methods secure markets, and we have localities where produce is allowed to go to waste after it has been secured. Business efficiency, secured through co-operation, is the key to the situation.

"Two things must be secured; agricultural education for all, not for a limited number, and, secondly business efficiency through co-operation. The plan for the former is available in the Recommendations of the Commission on Industrial Training and Technical Education for Canada. The first requisite for co-operation is legislation authorizing the formation and defining the powers of co-operative societies. At present the only legal form of organization is upon a joint stock basis. The other factor in the problem is the replacing of the individualistic spirit by the co-operative spirit.

"There is an imperative call for education in the country which shall not only train the youth for the occupation of agriculture, but hold them with magnetic interest in the schools until trained for life as well as for occupation in the country—an education such as is planned in the recent Report on Industrial Training and Technical Education, with its proposal, for example, of social service.

"There is an imperative call for healthful recreations and means of social intercourse springing directly out of the new co-operative life.

"And there is an imperative call for the church to fulfill its function in rural life, not its primary function of filling all country institutions with spiritual men alone, not merely in providing a social centre and introducing approved Y. M. C. A. methods, but in solving the problem directly by teaching that conservation is a moral task, sounding, a clear note against exploitation as essentially immoral by dealing with the question of character that lies behind lack of co-operation and of even scientific cultivation; and by leading the farmer to enter upon the responsibilities of the new world environment with a new sense of worth and of service rendered.

"The problem becomes fourfold; of securing first, community ideals and solidarity, so that all helpful agencies in the county shall unite in one common cause."

"It is a problem, too of securing the joy and pride of labor. Country life is not for all, but for those who are to dwell in the country, whose task is to furnish man's daily bread; those who are to be found in fertile field and stock not only their price in gold, but the artists' creative joy and the reward of the scientist when some new planet swims into his ken."

As a beginning, in Senate Reform, why not adopt the rule that all Senators shall retire when they have reached seventy years of age? To-day there are thirty-three members of the upper house who are over seventy years of age. Twenty-one of these are Liberals and twelve are Conservatives.

Such a rule would have several effects. I would tend to make the Senate a more lively and aggressive body by lowering the average age. It would be an inducement to governments to appoint younger men to the upper house. And finally it would help to solve a difficult task such as the government of to-day faces with an adverse majority in the Senate.

Neither party wishes to abolish the Senate. Here there is a slight reform, to which there can be no reasonable objection, and yet one which might do much to remove the most glaring defect of the Senate as at present constituted. It might exclude some good men such as Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who is active at ninety, but it would eliminate many whose era of usefulness as legislators has passed away.

—Canadian Courier

It was very rude of the Glasgow prison physician to knock down the suffragette who tried to horsewhip him—and not only rude but wholly contrary to the rules of the game. How can frenzied females make examples of public men if the latter are not to submit meekly to the attack? Yet this is the kind of rejoinder the militants invite by their reckless insults and assaults. Men are only human—a very inferior quality of humanity, as all suffragettes know—and they are bound to grow tired of always turning the other cheek. What if others should take their cue from the Glasgow doctor and hit back? What if Englishmen generally should put aside their "false sympathy for hysterical women," as a German critic calls it, and abandon leniency for severity. It must be obvious even to "cat-and-mouse" hunger-strikers that they would be hopelessly outclassed in a final appeal to brute force. Nevertheless, we must emphasize the unspontaneous attitude of the Glasgow man toward the militant who attacked him. He did not play fair, and no British suffragette with a spark of self-respect should ever try to horsewhip him again.

MARKET REPORTS

CHICAGO, March 24.—The advance in prices for grain was stopped today by reports that new corn from Argentina was already at the wharves in Galveston. These reports were later disputed. After reaching a new high level for 1914 the corn market closed nervous at same as last night to 1-40 down. The outlook in wheat and oats coincided, both unchanged to 1-8 to 1-40 off. In provisions there was a net decline of 2 1-8 to 10c.

CLOTHES IMPREGNATED: Chloride in Cheddite Factory Workers' Garments Proved Fatal.

NORTH BAY, March 25.—William Stuart, aged 19, died at North Bay hospital as a result of burns received in the factory of Cheddite Explosives Co., at Whitfield, 12 miles from here, where he was employed.

From evidence of fellow-workmen at the inquest held last night before Coroner Campbell and Crown Attorney McKee, Stuart was wearing a hole in his suspenders, which, being impregnated with chloride, and highly inflammable, ignited from the friction. His outer working clothes were asbestos material, but his underclothing caught fire, and being full of chloride burned so quickly that he was frightfully injured.

Much Opium Seized: ST. JOHN, N.B., March 25.—Between 15 and 20 pounds of opium have been seized by customs officers at West St. John from the South African liner, Benguela, and will be sent to Ottawa for destruction. MELVILLE

Melville, March 23.—Again the time is here for showing and plowing out the roads for wagon traffic.

Mr. Isaac Clark visited at Mr. Mack French's on Tuesday.

The grim harvest death is again in our midst. We are sorry indeed to report the death on Wednesday of Mrs. John Morton having been ill only six days of pneumonia.

The sympathy of the whole community in this their sad bereavement. The floral tributes were many wreaths from the following organizations.

Many were in attendance from a distance, Miss Jane Morton of Toronto Mrs. Alex Morton of Belleville and many of her former neighbors.

Mr. J. B. French was in Belleville on Saturday.

Messrs. Bailey and Belmont of Bloomfield are in the neighborhood with their sawing outfit.

The Rev. Harold White visited on Saturday at Mr. John Kinnear's.

Mr. John Harvey has sold his property to Mr. Stephen Young and has purchased the farm of Mr. Harold Bradshaw.

We understand that Mr. Dan McColl, Wooler, has been engaged to operate the Carrying Place road bridge.

We are pleased to report that little Marie Moran, who has been undergoing treatment for three months for the past two weeks, is able to resume her school duties again this week.

The revival services which were being held at Mr. Carroll's on Friday evening last.

Although the origin of the Woodbine Hotel fire is still a profound mystery to the Toronto authorities.

When the two met under the same roof in the Woodbine Hotel it is said that the day of revenge was taken by this one to be at hand.

The police will be put in possession of the names connected with this story.

What will the Government do with the resolution of Thomas Marshall, Liberal member for Monck, asking the House to memorialize the Dominion Government to grant Hydro Radials the same subsidy as those given to steam railways?

A deputation from Ontario Municipalities will wait upon the Federal Government this week with a similar request and the government, therefore, will likely take some action within a day or two.

If Mr. Marshall, supported by the Liberals in the House, forces the hands of the local government this time, he will merely be repeating what he did last session.

SIDNEY CROSSING

Sidney Crossing, Mar. 23rd.—A large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Farley on Friday night.

To spend a social evening and bid them farewell before leaving for their new home in Belleville. A very pleasant evening was spent and Mr. and Mrs. Farley were presented with a beautiful tea service as a slight token of the high esteem in which they were held by their Sidney friends.

Mr. Farley was for several years president of the Sidney Cheese factory and a member of the Bayside circuit quarterly board and will be much missed while Mrs. Farley was a most active worker in all the branches of the Community church and her place will be hard to fill.

We regret very much to see another of Sidney's old pioneer homesteads passing into the hands of strangers.

Mrs. Ketta Vanderwater has been quite seriously ill, her daughter, Mrs. D. Lawrence of Corbyville, being with her.

Mr. H. Finkle of Bayside gave a splendid discourse from the pulpit of the Aikens' church on Sunday last.

Breezy Notes From Foxboro

Foxboro.—A fine night, fair state of roads, and most of all the prospect of a rare treat brought a crowd to the pancake social last Friday night.

And seldom are anticipations so fully realized as were theirs upon this occasion. Nothing could have been more toothsome than those piping hot buckwheat flapjacks prepared in delicious maple syrup, the genuine article, with which one's plate was filled and refilled as often as one pleased.

Then too if you happened to be one of those unfortunate who cannot eat pancakes and syrup there were cakes and a bountiful supply of tea, so you were sure of a good supper in any case.

One often hears it said today that the people are amusements mad. The crowd in only interested when they are told that they are mistaken, and this theory was refuted by the facts of Friday night's program.

A large proportion of the audience was young people, most excellent characters were maintained throughout. And that the various numbers were appreciated was evidenced by the hearty applause that greeted each piece, yet there was not a single humorous selection and in many a distinctly religious note was struck.

The program opened with a chorus by the church choir "Come to the Church in the Wildwood." This was followed with a brief prayer by the pastor, Rev. A. L. Brown, after which he introduced the chairman, Rev. J. N. Baker, D.D., the principal of Albert College, Belleville, who discharged the duties of his office in a manner that left nothing to be desired.

Dr. Baker did not make a formal chairman's address but incorporated the selections with appropriate comments. The next item was a solo "The Bird with a Broken Pinion" by Miss F. Wright of Belleville. Then came a violin solo by Mr. A. B. Ransom of Belleville.

The remaining numbers were as follows: Solo—"Good Bye" Mrs. (Rev) A. B. Sanderson, Belleville. Recitation—"Inasmuch"—Miss W. Peters.

Quartet—"Come Where the Lilies Bloom"—Mrs. (Rev) J. F. McInnes, Mrs. Chisholm, Mr. T. S. Holgate, Mr. S. G. Gay.

Piano solo—"Mrs. Duff's Reading"—"Nellie's Prayer"—Miss Lulu Ross.

Solo—"Asleep in the Deep"—Mr. T. S. Holgate.

Reading—"The Child Martyrs"—Miss E. M. Adams.

Solo—"Sing Me to Sleep"—Mrs. A. B. Sanderson.

Violin solo—"Mr. A. B. Ransom Solo"—"The Four Leaf Shamrock Grow"—Miss F. Wright.

National Anthem.

Before this last was sung a hearty vote of thanks to all who had contributed to the entertainment was moved by Dr. J. A. Pennington and carried unanimously. The social and concert were under the auspices of the Epworth League in aid of the Forward Movement.

After the concert people were saying "Dr. Baker is an ideal chairman." "It takes Mrs. Duff to make a piano talk." "The more often you hear Mrs. Sanderson the better you like her." "Miss Wright has a sweet voice and her articulation is as distinct as if she were talking."

"There were not half enough violin solos." "The chorus was fine but the quartette took the cake." "Mrs. McInnes has a grand voice." "The recitations were first-class."

On Sunday morning Mr. W. Woods, who is president of the teen department for this district, organized a teen class in the Presbyterian S. school. The following officers were elected:

Pres.—Miss M. McInnes. Vice Pres.—Miss H. Pyne. Sec.—Mr. C. Hamilton. Treas.—Miss M. Bartlett. Teacher—Miss Peters.

Then Miss J. M. Godin Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

And Her Kidney Disease and Female Weakness Disappeared—She is Now a Strong, Healthy Woman.

PARTY POLITICS CAST ASIDE

TWO NONAGENARIAN SENATORS ARE HONOURED AT OTTAWA.

Pleasant Gathering in Which Party Hat No Part—Genial Utterances of Party Leaders.

Ottawa, March 23.—The Senate of Canada, gave a dinner in the Parliament building in honor of Sir Mackenzie Bowell and of the Hon. C. F. de Boucherville, celebrating the one and the ninety-first birthday of the other Hon. J. A. Lougheed, Government leader of the Senate, president and had on his right Sir Mackenzie and Mr. Joseph de Boucherville, representing his father, who was unable to be present. The vice-chairmen were Senator L. G. Power, Senator Robert Jeffrey and Senator F. T. Thomson.

Premier Borden proposed the health of the two guests, Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, he said, was a most distinguished career. He was the only man who enjoyed the distinction of membership in two Legislative Chambers in Canada. His mind was still that of a young man and he gave promise of years of usefulness to his country.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who was of old English descent, showed the characteristics of the race which has made England what it was, a modern public life had been a record of manliness and integrity. He had struck hard blows, but without bitterness.

Not only in public life but in their private characters had these men through their long lives been exemplars to all. Neither had been touched by the breath of suspicion; both had always worn the white flower of a blameless life.

In acknowledging the honor Sir Mackenzie said the never had he known a man whom he more honored and respected than Senator de Boucherville. He remarked that through change the Senate had made over in his lifetime; no less than three times.

Senator Postock proposed the health of the Chairman, and in reply Hon. Senator Lougheed took occasion in felicitous terms to congratulate Sir Postock on his election as Liberal leader of the Senate. He noted that Sir Mackenzie Bowell was an Englishman by birth and a former head of the Orange Order in Canada, and other Senator de Boucherville was of French origin and an Ultramontane. They were both deeply attached to each other in their public life.

There is a third man whose habit is not compatible with the teachings of Jesus; this is the Christian, who poses as being as godly as he will not run the risk of contamination with the world, by going to the polls and exercising the franchise. The speaker pointed out that Jesus lived among men, and told them to "render unto Caesar" his duty and that no man can lose his neighbor, and that the law is as vital as the air we breathe on every side. The ideal citizen was then graphically depicted in the life of Daniel, who by (1) plain living and high thinking, (2) Christian work, (3) loyalty, (4) respect for his neighbors, (5) devotion to his duties, and (6) respect for his duties to the state, the ward-politician and statesman who only serves the state in the interests of his own pocket and lust for power.

ONE YEAR FOR BIGAMY

Elzevir Man Goes to Centre—Domestic Relations in North.

William Lindsay of Elzevir was this morning convicted before Judge Derroche on a charge of bigamy. In 1900 he married Ethel Switzer and in 1913 Mary Ganniff, the first woman not being dead to his knowledge. He was sentenced to one year in the Central Prison.

Mr. P. J. M. Anderson conducted the case for the crown. Mr. White of this city defended the accused but offered no defence.

Lindsay and his wife had separated six or seven or eight years ago.

Mr. White drew attention to the moral conditions of the north, stating that perhaps one hundred people in the township were living in an undesirable state. Evidently Lindsay was not so clear on his course of conduct as he might have been had it not been for his surroundings.

Judge Derroche said he had no doubt of Lindsay's guilt as he had seen his wife not more than three or four years before the second ceremony and had heard of her from Christopher Switzer shortly before the ceremony with Mary Ganniff. Hence there was "Menace."

There was much in Mr. White's argument of the loose domestic conditions of the north, as any one knowing the country will tell. It is lamentable that men and women are living together unmarried, some with other men's wives. Unfortunately this is not considered an offence in the eyes of the law. It does seem, said the

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A unique birthday party was held on Wednesday, March 18th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willett C. Ketcheson, 8th concession of Thurlow in honor of their son, Cecil, who had attained his twenty-first year. About twenty-five guests were present in response to the invitations, mostly neighbors and immediate friends of the family. The party sat down to a bounteous birthday dinner, the menu being all that could be desired. After the guests had shown their appreciation of all the good things that had been provided, Mr. Roy Sills arose, and in an eloquent and witty speech proposed the toast for the guest of honor. To this Cecil responded in a brief but clever speech, expressive of the gratitude he felt because of the honor that had been bestowed upon him.

A register was produced and all signed their names. The remainder of the evening was very pleasantly spent in parlor games, music, singing and conversation. Mr. and Mrs. Moore and other contributed to the musical program.

A feature of the evening was the serving of the birthday cake. The ring was secured by Mr. Clifford Ketcheson, while Miss Gilbert of Carmel was the lucky discoverer of the silver coin. Mr. Cecil, amidst great merriment, endeavored to extinguish the twenty-one lighted candles at one breath. But as four still remained burning he will have to endure the miseries of bachelorhood for four years more.

The party broke up at an early hour in the morning, all voting it one of the most enjoyable evenings they had ever spent.

STITCH IN TIME

Lesly Conley of St. Ols, who contracted a two weeks' board bill at the Temperance Hotel here last September, was mugged in the sun of $16.00. Conley claimed Mr. Hughes sent him there to board, which proved to be untrue. Last week Constable Bailey located his man at Murphy's Corners, hence the result. Conley believes now that "a stitch in time, saves nine."—Bancroft Times

HYMENEAL

A very pretty house wedding occurred on Wednesday, March 11th; at the home of the bride, when Miss Annie M. Allen, daughter of the late W. J. Allen, Esq., M.P.P., and Mrs. Allen, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Wiggins, of Vancouver.

The ceremony, which took place at high noon, was performed by the Rev. H. S. Graham in the presence of the immediate relatives. The bride, wearing her mother's wedding dress, entered the drawing-room on the arm of Mr. Archie Thompson to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Florence McLeod.

The bride looked charming in her travelling suit of taupe tweed and wearing mink furs. The happy couple left on the afternoon C. P. R. train for Toronto and points east before taking up their permanent residence in Vancouver.

Mrs. Wiggins will be very much missed in social and church circles, where she was always a bright and willing worker. She received many beautiful wedding presents from her numerous friends, among which was a handsome tea set of Limoges china.—Maddox Review

BIG TIMBER CUT

The past winter has been an ideal one for getting out timber and the yards at Harrison's saw mill, Finlay's factory and the C.P.R. station, contain more timber now than for years past. At Harrison's saw mill all the available yard room is piled high with logs and other nearby land has also been taken up, while immense piles of chips are being built skyward. At the C.P.R. station, the yard is filled from the Dummer road crossing almost to the western semaphores and contains thousands of dollars worth of lumber. A gang of about twenty men are at present engaged there peeling poles. Messrs. Finlay and Sons Co. also have the largest amount of timber on their premises than for years past, which promises a busy summer. From a district where the timber supply has been said for years past to be diminishing, such an amount as taken out this season seems remarkable.—Norwood Register

Change in Pulp Mills

The Paper Mills and Pulp Mills will become separated on March 31st. The head office of this latter concern will be in Toronto, but Mr. Ellis Brunelle, the new manager of the Pulp Mill, who has been with the Prince Ferris Pulp Company of Rimouski, Que., has been here for a day or two. Mr. Brunelle will continue to superintend the plant as he has since it was built. The Northumberland Paper and Electric Company will continue under the same officers and management, and will immediately commence enlarging and improving their proving their plant, utilizing the capital and attention for that purpose which has been hitherto has been devoted to the pulp business.—Campbell Herald

EXPERIENCE ON THE MARKET

Mrs. Demille of the fourth concession of Sidney claims to have had an unwelcome experience on the market on Saturday. A certain lady in town agreed to purchase a roll of butter worth about 50c, and tendered one dollar in payment. Mrs. Demille, put down 50c change and says she did not take up the dollar bill and after a few moments, the $1.50 and the butter were gone. The lady in question who made the purchase was interviewed by the police, but she said there had been no mistake on her part.

PUT HIMSELF ON PROHIBITED LIST

A certain Ottawa citizen has the courage of his convictions. On Monday of last week papers were put up in the hotels forbidding them to sell this man intoxicating liquors. It transpired later that he had the papers put up himself, so that all might know that he had not the liquor out, and did not wish to be asked to drink or to get anybody into trouble through mistaken kindness by securing liquor for him. The Ottawa Vindicator says: "It was the brave act of a man who fears nothing so much as himself in the upward climb to complete manhood, and every man who is a man will hold up his hand in his very laudable endeavor. Success to him and to all who wish to break shackles that prevent the growth of their diviner self." It was more than this, however, it was one of the strongest arguments met with in a long time in favor of banishing the bar and the treating system.—Colbourn World

WILL MANUFACTURE AEROPLANES HERE

Messrs. Polay Bros in a letter to The Ontario convey the welcome news that they will continue the manufacture of aeroplanes in this city. It seems probable that they have the beginning of an industry that is capable of great expansion. Aeroplanes and flying boats are now pretty well past the experimental stage, and promise soon to come into general and commercial use. Following is an extract from a recent letter to The Ontario: "We are going to continue manufacturing Aeroplanes and Flying Boats in Belleville, and will start in on a more extensive scale in a very short time, also will run one of the largest Aeroplanes and Flying Boat schools in America. We have been very busy demonstrating our latest product, and getting the machines more generally understood by the public. It takes a wise man to suffer properly, any fool can suffer adversely. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field and it is now known and prized throughout this hemisphere. B.B.C. WINNERS OVER STIRLING

The return hockey match with Stirling team was played off at the Arena here, when the Belleville Business College boys were winners by a score of 7-4. The game was called about 1:30 and both teams went on the ice with only six men on a side as one of the Stirling men did not show up. The ice was good and the game was fast. A little over a minute had passed when Brotherhood made a rush down the ice passed the puck to Hutchinson and scored. The game progressed with hard checking on both sides and in about 10 minutes O'Flynn took the puck to center ice and lifted it over the heads of the players landing it in the net. The rest of the first half was close checking with no more goals for either side. Result 2-0. After a few minutes' rest the teams went on the ice again, and the Stirling team seemed determined to win by some means, but the puck could not get away with it and scored again on the job all the time. Hanna and Hitchcock then took the puck down the ice, and made one more for the B.B.C. After it was faced again Hitchcock got away with it and scored again. After the face-off Lynn and House of Stirling did some good work and scored the first goal for their team. Combination work on the part of the B.B.C. soon resulted in another goal. Both teams were working hard, but one of the Stirling men was resting 3-4 of the way up the ice, the puck came up to him and in spite of the efforts of the B.B.C. he scored. The B.B.C. boys were working hard, but one of the Stirling men was resting 3-4 of the way up the ice, the puck came up to him and in spite of the efforts of the B.B.C. he scored. 13TH REGT. WILL REPRESENT ONTARIO

The 13th Regiment of Hamilton winners of the western Ontario section of the Officers' Baseball League, and the 15th Regiment of Belleville, winners of the eastern Ontario section, played at the Armories Saturday night to decide which team should represent Ontario in the play-off in this city. It seems probable that Hamilton won the game by the one-sided score of 31 to 1, and that just marks the difference between the two teams. Belleville were outplayed in every department, being especially weak in fielding. Perry pitching in good form, held the easterners in check all through the game, and was the shining light with the bat, having two home runs and two three-base hits to his credit.

SPEAKING OUT.

Here is a clear-cut resolution simply stating facts and opinions that are irrefragable. It was adopted by the Board of Trade of the city of Pittsburgh, Pa., at its January meeting. Resolved, that this organization realizing as never before the increasing burdens of taxation caused by the liquor traffic in this country, as so conclusively shown by the figures given by the census of the United States; realizing the great gain morally to the citizenship of our country by a material reduction of our saloons; realizing that it is poor economy to allow the granting of liquor licenses which annually grind out a grist of humanity for which we must increasingly pay an unnecessary tax; realizing the economic loss to the country through the inefficiency of the individual, and recognizing the fact that more than 47,000,000 of the population of our country already live in territory from which liquor has been banished by the sovereign will of the people, be it resolved, that this organization place itself on record as favorable to the passage of the bill now before Congress submitting the question of national prohibition to the several State Legislatures, that the question may be settled in harmony with the will of the people.

GRAND ORANGE LODGE ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Lindsay, March 20.—The closing session of the Grand Orange Lodge lasted all through last night, most of the delegates leaving the place of meeting at daylight for early trains. Business of a routine character occupied the closing hours of a long session. Fraternal greetings were received from the Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West. A spirited contest took place between the towns of Napansco and Port Hope and the cities of Brockville and Ottawa, for the holding of the 50th annual session of the Grand Lodge of Eastern Ontario in March, 1915, Ottawa finally being decided upon.

The following officers were elected: Grand Master—Fred E. M. Forde, Ottawa, re-elected. Deputy Grand Master—Evan H. McLean, Bowmanville, re-elected. Junior Deputy Grand Master—O. W. Lindsay, Lansdowne, re-elected. Grand Chaplain—Rev. A. R. Sanderson, Belleville. Grand Treasurer—T. B. O'Connell, Millbrook, re-elected. Grand Lecturer—T. H. Thompson, Madoc, re-elected. PUSS WASN'T IN THE WELL

Reports were started by unknown persons that the well at the public school at Deseronto was in a very insanitary condition. In fact it was commonly reported that a dead cat had in some way gotten into the well. As a result of the rumors the Board of Health issued a pretty strong order to the Board of School Trustees to have the well attended to. The chief of police was at once instructed to go and examine the well. He did so and found everything O.K. He stated that it was not possible for anything to get into the well. The secretary, Mr. T. A. Gordon, also took a sample of the water to the medical health officer, Dr. Vandervoort, for examination. After analysis the doctor reports that the water is all right. It was the result of the rumors that have had the well examined twice, and it is most gratifying to them, as it must be to all reasonable people, to know that the well at the school was not in any way responsible for the case of typhoid fever we had in town a few weeks ago, which has been suggested by some.—Post

LADIES WIN MANY GAMES

Whitby Ladies Hockey Club having won all honors in sight seeking for other clubs to conquer. They are champions of Ontario having squeaked Ingersoll club by 8 to 0 and the gay Stirling girls by 14 to 0 they naturally felt extra good. As every one of those Whitby girls can cook, sew, darn their own stockings, feel so general house-wives, we have no objection in publishing their names which sound chub and explains why they are so good stuff. Goal, Phyllis Campbell; defence, Amy Ross and May Thompson; rover, Lena Smith; center, Nellie Blanchard; right wing, Jessie Bryan; left wing, Florence Ward. The Stirling girls went up on the afternoon train Thursday last and were a lively bunch all right. They were out for a "time" and were getting it, too. They sang their "yell" and tooted their horns and gave the other passengers something interesting to look at and enjoy. Yes, the Stirling young ladies had the fun of their lives if they failed to get a "hook in" through the Whitby goal. Their chaperone's duties were light although she kept them under close scrutiny.—Bowmanville News

A WORD FOR OUR FINEST WOMANHOOD

While inventors have lately turned more and more attention to making woman's work on the farm easier, work in this line is still behind the movement to replace labor with machinery in other lines.

For years this has been discussed. The insularity of the farmers' wives from loneliness and hard work has been one phase of the crying need for some better social conditions in the country.

THE DULL BOY

Many people fail because they are set to do what nature has not fitted them to do. All trees have much in common, but the wagon maker has no use for pine, nor the cabinet maker for poplar.

At a press club banquet, Bancroft, the magician told the following, which shows that a teacher should not rashly conclude that because a child is born short in some of his powers he is therefore dull.

At my first school there was a boy to whom the teacher could not impart the simplest elementary knowledge. One day, when he seemed duller than usual, she sent him from the recitation bench to his seat with a reprimand, promising to recommend his dismissal to the trustees.

The truth dawned on the teacher. The boy's mind ran to entomology. The teacher said nothing, but that afternoon called up the entire class for general recitation. The boy appeared dull as ever.

Beyond the fact that a fly was a fly and had wings, they could say nothing further, but the dull boy was all aglow. He held up his hand and snapped his fingers; he realized his superiority; it was his day.

From that day the teacher encouraged his aptitude, and troubled him no more with grammar and arithmetic. She went into the woods with him and helped him in his studies of nature.

To make a long story short, he was sent to Europe for study. In Leipzig he was made moderator of the National Conservatory of Science. He held for a time an important position in the Smithsonian, at Washington, and is now in Paris one of the leading entomologists of the world.

SOUTH AFRICAN LABOR WAR.

An extraordinary situation recently arose in South Africa. In the face of a threat of a general strike, involving both the railway and mining interests, the Commonwealth called out practically the entire militia and declared martial law.

Commenting on the sentence, the Chronicle says: "Here is one of the best educated and highest principled men in South Africa, a man who has within the Labor movement always discouraged the Syndicalist tendency and who, it is no secret, did not favor the recent strike."

The defence of the government is in the statement that there was danger of a strike that would not only paralyze the industry of the whole country, but that it would lead to a native rising as well.

RUNNING SLACK

Signs are not wanting that, although the provincial government continues to do good work, as in the introduction of the compensation bill, there is a gradual slackening of the tone, a relaxation of the tension which kept all things moving, as it were, towards the golden year.

It only takes a turnover of a few per cent., two or three in a hundred, to upset the strongest government. It may seem very dreadful that two or three per cent. of the voters should hold the government in the hollow of their hands.

There are a lot of people in Ontario wondering why Mr. G. Howard Ferguson is so indispensable to the government that special legislation had to be passed to save his political life. Mr. Ferguson's personal merits are quite aside from the question.

At the best it represents the slackening up of the system. The government would not have so acted in 1906.

—Editorial from Toronto World (Conservative.)

It has been said that the Albanians, the settlement of whose future status is now disturbing Europe, are unfit for self-government. But, as a writer in the London Chronicle points out, most of the cleverest men in the diplomatic service of Turkey were recruited from the Albanians.

As to the innate chivalry of Albanians, Englishmen like Aubrey Herbert, M. P., or Major Paget, who lived 35 years in Albania, testify to a regard for women and children which not even the fiercest quarrels can break down.

As a result of the establishment of public schools, with American teachers, in the Philippines nearly 11,000 boys and 4,000 girls were graduated from primary schools in 1912-13 from the intermediate course 3,500 boys and 1,000 girls; from the high school 284 boys and 58 girls.

To judge from the published summary of the report of the commission to investigate the construction of the Transcontinental, fortunately only slight incidents of dishonesty and corruption are alleged. It is possible, but difficult, to deduce dishonesty from the letting of contracts at prices which permitted subletting at a profit.

The report seems to be, in the main, a criticism of the policy avowed from the first by the Government of the day, and undisputed by the Opposition, of building a road of the 'highest class in order to efficiently and cheaply transport the products of the West to the sea.

THE BURIAL OF MOSES.

(And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor; but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day.—Deut. XXXIV, 6)

By Nebo's lonely mountain.

On this side Jordan's wave,

In a vale in the land of Moab,

There lies a lonely grave;

But no man knows that sepulchre,

And no man saw it e'er;

For the angels of God upturned the sod,

And laid the dead man there.

That was the grandest funeral

That ever passed on earth;

Yet no man heard the trampling,

Or saw the train go forth:

Noiselessly as the daylight

Come when the night is done,

And the crimson streak on ocean's cheek

Grows into the great sun;

Noiselessly as the spring-time

Her crown of verdure weaves,

And all the trees on all the hills

Open their thousand leaves

So without sound of music

Or voice of them that wept,

Silently down the mountain's crown

The great procession swept.

Perchance the bald old eagle

On grey Beth-peor's height

Out of his lonely eyrie

Looked on the wondrous sight:

Perchance the lion stalking

Still shuns that hallowed spot:

For beast and bird have seen and heard

That which man knoweth not.

But, when the warrior dieth,

His comrades in the war,

With arms reversed and muffled drums

Follow his funeral car:

They show the banners taken:

They tell the battles won

And after him lead his masterless steed,

While peals the minute-gun.

Amid the noblest of the land

We lay the sage to rest,

And give the bard an honored place,

With costly marble drest

In the great minster transept

Where lights like glories fall,
And the sweet choir sings, and the organ rings

Along the emblazoned wall.

This was the bravest warrior

That ever buckled sword:

This the most gifted poet

That ever breathed a word:

And never earth's philosopher

Traced with his golden pen.

On the deathless page, truths half so sage

As he wrote down for men.

And had he not high honor?

The hills for his pall!

To lie in state while angels wait

With stars for tapers tall!

And the dark rock pines like tossing plumes

Over his bier to wave,

And God's own hand, in that lonely land,

To lay him in his grave!

In that deep grave without a name,

Whence his uncoffined clay

Shall break again—oh wondrous thought!

Before the judgment day.

And stand with glory wrapped around,

On the hills he never trod,

And speak of the strife that won our life

With the incarnate Son of God.

O lonely grave in Moab's land!

O dark Beth-peor's hill!

Speak to these curious hearts of ours,

And teach them to be still:

God hath his mysteries of grace,

Which we cannot tell.

He hides them deep, like the hidden sleep

Of him he loved so well.

LANG MAY YOUR LUM REEK

Editor The Daily Ontario:

I hand you herewith a poem by Mr. David H. Wilson.

It is so truly poetical and breathes such fine sentiment that it will, I am sure, be appreciated by the readers of The Daily Ontario.

Lang may yur lum reek, an' happy may ye be,

An' may the future hae in store much joy for you

An' me.

May your life be full of sunshine and never know

A year.

As ye enter on the journey o' another guid New

Year,

Lang may yur lum reek, an' aye frae care be free:

May the yule log burn brightly in the chimney

Neuk for thee,

Aud may each day be brighter, and full of love

And cheer,

As ye travel on life's pathway through another

Guid New Year.

Lang may yur lum reek, an' may yur days be

Lang.

Wi' a cheery smile upon yur lips, an' in yur

Heart a sang.

Life will then be worth the living, an' heaven will

Be near.

When every day will be to you—a happy guid

New Year.

—David H. Wilson,
Louisville, Ky.

With the Scotch dialect interwoven into the poem one would readily associate it with the gems of Ramsay and Burns, who have made the poetry of Scotland famous in all the ends of the world.

In this poem Mr. Wilson shows that the harp of Scotland still finds a hand that can awaken its sweet minstrelsy.

THE LATEST STYLES

"What are the women up to now?" said Styles-on-Parade.

It gets my goat, it gets my goat," the Reuben Feller said.

"The modes are getting worse, I vow," said Styles-on-Parade.

"They'll never b'lieve this on the farm," the Reuben Feller said.

"These city get-ups that I see display more than mere cheek.

And e'en the mildest slit skirt makes a wooden

Injun shriek.

They ought to duck such fashions in the middle of the creek.

I reckon I'll go home right in the mornin'!"

"I once thought I was used to shocks," said Styles-on-Parade.

"You are no more, you are no more," the Reuben Feller said.

"They spring a new one every noon," said Styles-on-Parade.

"This town is too blamed swift for me," the Reuben Feller said.

"I once went to a music show, the costumes they were queer.

The first act hadn't finished when I ran away in fear.

But they wouldn't be a marker to the rags I see right here.

I reckon I'll go home right in the mornin'!"

"Don't leave me here alone, O Rube!" cried Styles-on-Parade.

"Come home with me, come home with me," the Reuben Feller said.

"I'll seize your invitation sir," said Styles-on-Parade.

"Give me a hayseed pillow and a corn-cob mattress bed.

Just let me primp alfalfa stalks from sunrise until dark.

Enslave me in the wheat fields and I'll carol like a lark.

I used to love the city, but these styles; O save the mark!

I'm going to be a farmhand in the mornin'!"

Lesson XIII.—First Quarter, For March 29, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. vii. 21-28. Comprehensive Quarterly Review Golden Text, Mic. vi. 8.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

LESSON I.—Jesus and the Children. Mark ix. 30-37; x. 13-16. Golden Text, 1 Pet. v. 5. "Be clothed with humility, for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble." In the first part of our lesson the contrast is between the desire for greatness on the part of the disciples and the humility of a little child.

LESSON II.—The Mission of the Seventy. Luke x. 1-16. Golden Text, Matt. x. 20. "It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you." Prayer that the Lord would send forth laborers to be honest prayer must be from hearts willing to be sent forth as lambs among wolves.

LESSON III.—The Good Samaritan. Luke x. 25-37. Golden Text, Mark xii. 31. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." When our Lord called any one's attention to the law it was that they might be convinced of sin and led to Himself as the Saviour of sinners.

LESSON IV.—Serving Jesus. Luke viii. 1-3; ix. 57-62; x. 35-43. Golden Text, Matt. xxv. 40. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, My brethren, ye have done it unto Me." In the first and last sections of this lesson we see women ministering unto Him, and Mary of Bethany, having done her part, found time to listen to His teaching.

LESSON V.—The Unfriendly Neighbor. Luke xi. 1-13. Golden Text, Luke xi. 9. "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." A better title for this lesson would be "The Father who giveth all," according to Rom. viii. 32. If we honor Him, as in the first three petitions of the prayer (verses 2-4), we may count upon Him to make good all the rest and verse 13 also.

LESSON VI.—Darkness and Light. Luke xi. 14-28; xxxiii. 88. Golden Text, Luke xi. 35. "Take heed, therefore, that the light which is in thee be not darkness." These religious people were so blinded by their own self-righteousness, which was really darkness and not light, that they could not distinguish between God and the devil.

LESSON VII.—Christ's Hatred of Shams. Luke xi. 37-54. Golden Text, Gal. vi. 7. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked." There is always a loving welcome from the Lord Jesus for all who penitently turn to Him, but for hypocrites, such as these Pharisees and lawyers, He has the most severe words—welcome for sinners, but a word for the self-righteous.

LESSON VIII.—Faith Destroying Fear. Luke xii. 1-12. Golden Text, Luke xii. 8. "Whoever shall confess Me before men, I will confess him before My Father who is in heaven." The hatred of the truly righteous by the self-righteous resulted in expulsion from the synagogue and even in death (John xvi. 2), but the separation of soul and body was given to the believer and not a thing to be feared (Phil. i. 21-25).

LESSON IX.—Trusting in Riches and Trusting in God. Luke xii. 13-34. Golden Text, Luke xii. 34. "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." It is still manifestly true that, as a rule, men are more interested in earthly things than in heavenly things and act as foolishly as did the man in this lesson. He who gives his life may require it of us at any time.

LESSON X.—Watchfulness. Luke xii. 35-48. Golden Text, Luke xii. 37. "Blessed are those servants whom the Lord when He cometh shall find watching." In verse 43 there is also a blessing upon the one found doing. When saved we are put in trust with pounds and talents, and the Holy Spirit is given to us to dwell in us, work in us and teach us, and our commission is "Occupy till I come" (Luke xix. 13).

LESSON XI.—The Lawful Use of the Sabbath. Luke xiii. 10-17; xiv. 1-6. Golden Text, Mark ii. 27. "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath." Their greatest accusations of Christ were that He made Himself equal with God and, in their estimation, dishonored their Sabbath (John x. 33-36; ix. 14; v. 18). They were so blinded by their own doings that they could not see their need of what He came to give them.

LESSON XII.—Lessons by the Way. Luke xiii. 18-30. Golden Text, Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, but he that doeth." There is much false teaching, and there are many deceived people, and the only safety is by the Truth, which is in Christ Jesus, who is Himself the Truth. In Him is Life and nowhere else (1 John v. 12), and until we have Life by truly receiving Him we can do nothing to please Him.

DESERONTO CITIZENS WANT THEIR TRAINS RESTORED

Deseronto, March 19.—The Board of Trade and a number of interested citizens convened in the Town Hall this afternoon to meet Inspector Spencer of the Railway Commission. Trains 13 and 14, which run on the C. N. H. between this place and Napanee and connect there with the G. T. R. trains going east and west, have recently been taken off, and a petition to the Railway Commissioners to have the train service re-established resulted in to-day's meeting.

President R. J. Dewar occupied the chair, and representatives were called upon from the iron works, lumber mills and other prominent industries, who pointed out that the cancelling of said trains had materially hindered their business interests. It was also shown that the general interest of the public as regards mail and passenger service was injured by the change.

The Inspector said he would interview the Canadian Northern officials in Toronto immediately and at once report to the Railway Commission in Ottawa. The Board of Trade is hoping to have the train service restored at an early date.

From Saturday's Daily West Hastings Liberals met in convention and held their annual meeting on Friday afternoon in the Hastings Liberal Club rooms in the Robertson block, Front street. The guest of honor was Dr. D. B. Neely, M.P., for Humboldt, Sask. Representatives from various municipalities of the large riding assembled at two o'clock.

The early part of the meeting was of a business nature. Mr. P. McL. Forin, president, occupied the chair. A committee was appointed to nominate officers. Their report which was read by Mr. J. O. Herby was received and adopted. It was as follows:- Hon. Presidents - Thos. Ritchie and Henry Fringle, Belleville. Pres.-E. T. Marsh, Trenton. Sec.-W. S. Smith, Belleville. RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:- RESOLVED that the Liberals of the West Hastings riding desire to place on record the sense of the great loss sustained by Ontario, Canada and the Empire, in the death of Sir George W. Ross, Leader of the Liberal Opposition in the Senate at Ottawa, and to add our appreciation of the eminent services rendered to the Province and Dominion during a long public career.

RESOLVED that we tender the sincere sympathy of the West Hastings Liberals to Lady Ross and members of the family in the sad bereavement they have sustained. RESOLVED that this convention of the Liberals of West Hastings express their appreciation of the great public services rendered by the late Hon. William Patterson, whose eminent gifts of intellect were unselfishly used to further the interests of this Dominion. In his death they in common with the Liberals of Canada have sustained a great loss and they desire to express to the intimate friends of the deceased their sympathy and condolence in their hour of bereavement.

The Liberals of the West Riding of Hastings desire, through this convention, to extend congratulations to the Honorable N. W. Rowell, Leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario, on the able manner in which he continues to lead the Liberal forces in the Legislature at Toronto, and to express appreciation of his efforts to advance the moral and social welfare of the people of the Province.

RESOLVED that the Liberals of the West Hastings riding in convention assembled hereby re-affirm their confidence in their great Leader, the Right Honorable Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the members of the Liberal Party at Ottawa, and extend our sympathy and support in the broad national stand they have taken in championing the rights of the people in opposition to the class legislation of the present Federal Government.

The association expressed its regrets at the illness of Mr. Henry Fringle and expressed the hope that he would soon be restored to vigorous health. Mr. Marsh the new president then took the chair and was received with applause.

DR. D. B. NEELY, M.P.

Dr. Neely was thereupon introduced to the meeting. He is a very young man and an eloquent speaker. When representing a western constituency he was born in Ontario. Dr. Neely expressed his deep pleasure in being present and he had gladly accepted the opportunity. It was a pleasure to see such a representative body of fighting Liberals as were present at the meeting. Large advances, authorities might be turned in many cases into victories if the proper spirit was manifested. If he had any strong liberal principles today it was because he had had to protect himself against adverse political principles. If we have right on our side, there is never a time when we can consider it fair to our consciences to lay down arms.

Twenty men came up against Laurier in Quebec because of opposition to his navy policy. Who now sits at Mr. Borden's right hand, but the Hon. Mr. Peil-tier, who was elected in opposition to the navy policy? Last week's Orange Sentinel bewails the fact that a Frenchman had been appointed King's Printer. For years certain appointments had been balanced between race and race, and creed and creed.

What are the Orange Order going to do with the organization which deceived those who put them there? If there is loyalty to God and King and Country in that order ("and I believe there is in the rank and file"), they will stand up and make their position and duty clear in the next election. This is an agricultural country. In two and a half years the military expenditure has grown between $4,000,000 and $55,000,000 per year. Last year Col. Hughes built an armory in a place four miles from a railway and where about 25 men live. Where there was a Conservative majority in 1911, Col. Hughes cements this by an armory saying it is military training. Is this the same for policy that our public moneys should be spent in this lavish way upon an institution of no value when completed which are a continual bill of up-keep. Soon we will know what it will cost to pay for the Minister of Militia's trip to Europe with 23 officers and his secretaries.

The same lavish and irresponsible expenditure is found in the various departments. The government recognizes its inability and appoints a large number of commissions. The first one on civil service, did not last long before the chairman was ousted. The speaker then referred to the commission on the Transcontinental Railway. The members were Mr. Lynch-Staunton, who is in the employ of the Ontario Legislature and who is not known to have ever cast a Liberal vote, and Mr. Gutelius, not a British subject until a month after his appointment as engineer of the history of parliament have we had a session more barren of legislation than the one facing this year.

The one thing the Government seems able to do is to squander money without sufficient good results. The people of Canada made a mistake when they gave the verdict of 1911. You can't build tariff walls high enough to prevent trade. The Laurier Government is responsible for the trade with the British Motherland. In 1911 the prospect of reciprocity alarmed certain manufacturers and caused them to think that it was the thin edge of the wedge of free trade. The result was the defeat of the Liberal Government. In two years the production of wheat has grown so that this year in the west there are about 70,000,000 bushels which it does not know what to do with. Canadians are obliged to sell on the British market. The result was that the returns were barely enough to pay operating expenses of raising wheat, instead of having a surplus.

By the narrow policy of closing the American market, the purchasing power of the farmers was limited and they were not able to buy machinery in the east. The Bank of Commerce report shows that the farmers of the west had purchased much less machinery in 1913 than in 1912. In four years the value of wheat dropped about 20c per bushel and the cost of operation has gone up. The American market if open, would help the situation by preventing the slaughtering of our wheat in the British market, by not being forced to rush the wheat through to escape the close of the navigation season at Fort William, by putting the Americans in the position to keep up their exports in flour.

What hurts the farmers on the western plains hurts the east and vice versa. The West proposed to have the tariff removed on wheat but the government turned it down. Why? Because the Conservatives would have themselves repaying the verdict of 1911. The Conservative Government of Manitoba voted to a man to have wheat put on the free list. This speaker in the Legislature at Ottawa asking the government to put wheat on the free list, but the answer was made that stronger reasons would have to be adduced before the matter would be taken up. The Liberal opposition is not lying down. It has not been discussing the navy bill because that was killed so dead a year ago.

The Liberals are asking for relief of the high cost of living. No relation exists between the price the farmer gets for his cattle and the price paid in the butcher shop. While hogs were higher in October and November in Buffalo than in Toronto, the price of pork was lower in Buffalo than Toronto by 25% to 40%. The cause is that the high tariff protects the trusts who govern the price of foodstuffs. The Liberals want the foodstuffs on the free list (applause). If the goods are put on the free list there will be a much closer relation between the producer and the consumer. In 1911 the Conservatives argued that reciprocity would close most of the factories. But what do we find now? Hundreds of factories are closing down to-day and men being turned out of work in winter. What true prophets the present generation in office at Ottawa!

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Confinement indoors, often in over-heated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the schools, taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of languor. Others are low-spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions, which soon get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed. Many people take purgative medicines in the spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. This is all that a purgative does. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood and soothe the jangled nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills not only banish spring weakness, but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anæmia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism, and other diseases due to bad blood.

Mrs. Freeman Leslie, Greenwich, N. S., writes: "I was found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the very best family medicine there is. I was completely run-down and could not sleep or do any work. I was very nervous and the best sound started me. I began reading Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they soon brought me back to the best of good health. They also cured my husband when he was suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism."

If you are ailing this spring, you cannot afford, in your own interest, to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Toronto Globe to-day contains a cut of Frank Butler Yeats, the young son of Mr. Edmund Butler Yeats, banker of Stirling, Ontario. The boy is a cousin, once removed, of Wm. Butler Yeats, the Irish poet and dramatist. There is a striking resemblance between the Stirling lad and his famous cousin.

DR. CREELMAN ON "SOME FARM PROBLEMS"

Lecture at Canadian Club Last Night—Advice to Farmers Who Want to Give Up Active Agriculture.

From Saturday's Daily
 "Some Farm Problems" was the subject of a brilliant address by Dr. George C. Creelman, president of the Ontario Agricultural College before the Canadian Club in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. Conspicuous around the banquet board were prominent farmers of the district. Mr. H. Sneyd, president, occupied the chair and extended a cordial welcome to the visitors. After a splendid banquet spread before the assembled members by the Ladies' Auxiliary, the guest of the evening was introduced.

President Creelman is a man gifted with wonderful oratorical power, fluency, and a deep insight into agricultural problems of the day and the future. He brought greetings from the Guelph Canadian Club and the Ontario Agricultural College. The function of the O.A.C. is not to teach agriculture but to take the boys with a fairly good farm practice after they have received all the instruction possible at the hands of their fathers and teach them better methods. Twenty-two different countries are represented by students, Canada, United States, England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, twenty being from South Africa, also India, Australia, North American Indians, (6), Argentina, Mexico, and applications have been received from five Chinamen. Today there are 1500 in attendance. Conducted here in practice for ten years. There are now from 300 to 350 girls at the Institute yearly. The presence of the young ladies has a good influence on the young men in the same associations.

Dr. Creelman drew a distinction between the ideals of Canadians and Englishmen. A visitor from the Old Land is interested in livestock and knows all the classes, while a Canadian at Guelph is attracted more to the green houses and does not know the names of the various classes. The Englishman in the town looks to the day when with a competency he can retire to rural life, while the Canadian farmer dreams of the time when he can move into the town or city and have an easy time. Which has the greater prospect of happiness? Dr. Creelman said he had the greatest feelings of respect for the man doing hard manual labor and his aim to secure comfort and ease in his old days in the town. But are farmers happy in retired life in the city? It takes means to live a quiet life in town. The retired farmer generally has not enough means to enjoy himself as he would in the farm, because he is earning nothing. Hence it comes that he is blamed for lack of progressive ideas because it will increase his taxes. Then the busy and the retired farmer can find no one with sufficient leisure to spend time in talking. Would it not be better for the farmer and his wife to retire to a corner of the farm, erect a dwelling, enjoying himself with his own country life, having leisure to devote to the problems of school, farm, politics and the country church. Such service is much needed today.

Many men had come to town and after setting around, with health restored by a short rest, get restless. For their own health, for the good of the municipality they had better live on the farm, but having not leisure from it, they do not want to do heavy manual labor in their last days. So they look for work in town. The farmer earns every cent he makes. The country school and church need a teacher by the gift of an occasional day and other furnishings to make the school life brighter.

In this country we set up false standards. The citizen does not appreciate the farmer, while the farmer may look with a jealous eye upon the apparent ease and luxury of the city man. If the farmer is not free with his money, it is because he has not had leisure. But the generosity of a farmer in preparation for a social with his gifts of pies, cakes, buns, leaves, butter, is remarkable. The city man will give up each readily but he does not like to risk taking a great home for dinner because of the small supply of victuals at home. The city man wears a frock coat, silk hat and is dressed for his business. The farmer does not wear these for the same reason. The old terms of "hands" and "mascab" are being forgotten. The city is about one generation only away from the farm. There is no intrinsic difference in men on the farm and in the city.

What would become of the cities if the boys did not come up to town in the strength of their young pure manhood and enter the high places in city life?
 Only the past forty years has bread not been scarce we are just out of the bread line. Who ever heard of a person today hungry for bread? Farmers brought us out of the breadline by cutting down the bush, which was an enemy to crops in those days.
 But farming has changed. In the old days in Ontario there were few varieties of crops, few weeds, no insects. The amount of crop depended upon the amount of brawn expended. Today the weeds are extensive, making the inauguration of the system of desiccation demonstration and quoted successes in increased crops. With the aid of the press and district instructors, the system of instruction in the use of the hoe and the 40,000 acres have been drained and 130,000 acres in the total drained by instructors and farmers on their own initiative. The increase is $22.00 on the average per acre on the drained lands over the undrained. The total appropriation up to 1912 has been $10,000 and the result is an increase to farmers of $2,500,000 each year.
 Dr. Creelman paid high tribute to the Ontario farmer. He had been all over the world and found the Ontario farmer very progressive. If it were not for Ontario the banks and the fine estates of the world, the field crops are 150% over the west including the territory from Manitoba to the Pacific coast. Principal Creelman's attention to the changes introduced in the season are barley, wheat, and oats. From one hundred of Manitoba barley 750,000 bushels were grown.
 The Swedes know their agriculture. They raise 75 bushel of wheat per acre and 90 bushel in small plots. Every grain is hand picked. After five years the wheat is pedigreed. Ontario averages only 22 bushels of wheat per acre, the U.S. 12 bushels. The advantages of plump seeds over shrunken, the advantages of clover in restoring nitrogen to the soil, were noted.
 Canada today produces nearly 60% of the cheese in the British market. Today there is still too great a discrepancy between the average and the possible. Much scientific work in the increase of milk production remains to be done.
 One young instructor can do more in a county office where hundreds of farmers can come to him with problems than on a farm.
 More teachers go to the O.A.C. every year. The college keeps in touch with them by correspondence. Much good can be done for farm life by having the girls take courses of farm-housekeeping.
 Life should be as attractive on the farm as in the city. The possibilities for improvement in agriculture are enormous.

One young instructor can do more for social intercourse, may the good citizens of Belleville have the desire to possess not a mere mortgage but a good Ontario farm. (Applause)
 W. W. Anderson moved a hearty vote of thanks, Mr. F. E. O'Flynn seconded the motion.
 "O Canada" and the National Anthem were sung by the club, before the closing.

HOLLOWAY ST. LEAGUE
 There was an exceptionally large attendance at the league last night. After the transaction of business a debate was then called—"Resolved that Queen Victoria did more for the good of the English people than Queen Elizabeth." Those taking part were Miss G. P. Farber and Miss G. W. G. The affirmative was by Miss G. W. G. and the negative by Miss G. P. Farber. The judges were Mr. Meas, Mr. Ponier and Mr. Gail. Their decision was in favor of the negative. Both sides brought out splendid points.
 During the course of the evening Mr. Terry Sang a solo which was very much enjoyed.

IN STERLING LIVES A GIRL

Who Suffered As Many Girls Do—Tells How She Found Relief.

Sterling, Conn.—"I am a girl of 22 years and I used to faint away every month and was very weak. I was also bothered a lot with female weakness. I read your little book 'Wisdom for Women' and I saw how others had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it, and it has made me feel like a new girl and I am now relieved of all these troubles. I hope all young girls will get relief as I have. I never felt better in my life."—Miss BETHEA PELOQUIN, Box 116, Sterling, Conn.

Massena, N.Y.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I highly recommend it. If anyone wants to write to me I will gladly tell her about my case. I was certainly in a bad condition as my face was all turning to water. I had pimples on my face and a bad cold, and for five years I had been troubled with suppression. The doctors called it 'Anemia and Exhaustion,' and said I was all run down, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me out all right."—Miss LAVINA MYERS, Box 74, Massena, N.Y.

Young Girls, Read This Advice.
 Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, headache, dizziness, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

LAY ON ICE ALL NIGHT
 Murray Man Brought to Belleville Hospital in Sad Plight.
 From Saturday's Daily
 A resident of Murray last met with a serious accident last night when he fell from a bridge upon the ice in the river. There he lay in an unconscious state until this morning when his plight was discovered.
 A passerby was surprised to find Charles Roberts of Murray township in a state resembling that of death. However investigation showed that he was alive. He was rendered what assistance was possible in Trenton and was brought to Belleville on the early G. T. B. train and taken to the Belleville Hospital. One of his knees is fractured and his feet and hands are badly frozen from exposure to the cold.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION
 Friday night the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. T. Manley Farley to the number of one hundred or more met at their home and read them an address and presented them with a handsome silver tea service. Mr. Farley has sold his farm to Mr. Sine and expects in the near future to move to Belleville. Following is the address:
 Sidney, March 20, 1914
 To Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Farley—
 We your friends and neighbors have lagged with deep regret that you are about to move from our midst. As friends and neighbors we feel that our loss will be great, for you have endeared yourselves to us in many ways by your acts of kindness and usefulness among us both in our homes and in the church. With grateful memories of your past influence for the good of the neighborhood we feel called upon to send with our love and prayers, that for many years you may enjoy the smile of heaven and also the confidence of friends in whose society you will soon find yourselves. We ask you to accept this silver tea service, not for its intrinsic value but as a slight token of our regard for you. We feel it a pleasure as well as a duty to make this presentation and avail ourselves of this opportunity of doing so with feelings of pleasure. Hoping you will be spared many years of health and happiness in your new home, we all wish that God's blessing will follow you wherever you go.
 Signed on behalf of your Sidney friends and neighbors
 J. Sargent
 W. E. Vanderwater.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS WERE INJURED
 Deseronto, March 20.—What might have been a serious accident occurred this afternoon in the laboratory of this high school. Several of the third form pupils were experimenting, and one of them was heating a mixture of lime, ammonium chloride and water, when an explosion occurred, breaking the test tube, and scattering the contents over several of the pupils. Two of the boys, Percy Van Black and Clarence Hircman, suffered slightly from the accident, the lime getting into their eyes and causing inflammation. They were at once hurried to Dr. Vanderwater's office, where their eyes were given medical attention. Miss Philp, the science teacher, was in the room at the time, but was unable to prevent the explosion.
 Mr. Chas Bonister left on the 10 o'clock G. T. B. last evening for Toronto to visit his daughter Mrs. Jas Pyper who is ill.

CHARLES WILMOT WAS ONE OF VICTIMS OF WOODBINE HOTEL FIRE IN TORONTO

He Perished Along With Others—Recovery of Remains of Well-Known Belleville Sportsman—Was a Son of Inspector of Fisheries For the Dominion of Canada—Possessed Remarkable Skill in Horsemanship—His Biography.

The tragic death of Charles Wilmot of Belleville in the Woodbine Hotel fire in Toronto on Tuesday evening was the topic of conversation in all parts of this city yesterday afternoon and evening and today. Hope was held out against hope that it might transpire that Mr. Wilmot by some chance had not been in the doomed building. Even in Toronto it was not until late in the afternoon that there was doubt as to the identity of the body which is now believed to be that of Mr. Wilmot. In the morning it was given out that Mr. Wilmot had gone off in the afternoon and had not been seen to return to the hotel. However in the afternoon it was found that he had gone up to his room early in the evening to have a nap. He left some of his friends in the lobby of the hotel and went up stairs. He had had an engagement to meet Mr. J. C. Cookburn of Toronto on Wednesday morning. Yesterday Mr. Cookburn could find no trace of him. Mr. Wilmot was taking an interest in the hockey game on Tuesday night and had told a guest that he intended to go and see it. He had before going out and that is the last that was seen of him. He had a room on the third floor.

In the search for human remains yesterday morning, a second body terribly charred was located about ten thirty o'clock. The firemen were just about to leave the building, when district chief Frank Forsyth found a part of the remains of a body among some blackened debris on the second floor on the east side. The body was dug out and removed to the morgue. It was believed to be that of Mr. Wilmot but there was nothing much by which to identify him except a piece of clothing.

The body was positively identified by a brother-in-law last night. His son was expected from Detroit to-day to establish the identity. Although there was no special means of identification, there was little doubt about its being the body of Mr. Wilmot owing to its exterior in every way. He was a large man and weighed well over 200 pounds. Hundreds of people had crowded on the Pearl street side of the hotel, anxiously awaiting the result of the searchers' work. When the body was found there was a difficulty in getting it out to the patrol wagon which had to be backed up under the fire escape.

One of the Toronto papers last evening stated that Mr. Wilmot had made an arrangement to be examined on Wednesday morning by a physician in anticipation of putting $20,000 on his life. An inquest was opened yesterday afternoon by coroner McDonnell and was adjourned until Friday afternoon when all of the guests at the hotel will be summoned to give evidence. The fire department and the architect's department will also be called upon to testify, and a thorough investigation will be conducted. The inquest will be held in the afternoon in order to give the interested public an opportunity to attend without inconvenience. No evidence was taken last night.

Intensely pathetic is the fact that Mr. Wilmot in a letter home just about a week ago had his intention of removing from the Woodbine Hotel to a private boarding house.

BIOGRAPHY OF LATE CHAS. WILMOT

Charles Wilmot was born in Newcastle, Ontario, son of the late Samuel Wilmot. He spent the most of his life in that village where he was one of the leading citizens. It was there that he conducted the government fishery and became Inspector of Fisheries and Fish Culture for the Dominion of Canada which position he held for many years. His interest in fancy horses and thoroughbred stock was manifested in no uncertain way during his Newcastle residence.

His father operated the first hatchery in Canada. When he retired from this position, he purchased land at the forks of the Credit River and erected a private hatchery. He sold out his interests there to a company and shortly afterwards came to Belleville. This was about nine years ago. Here he took up his residence in Avondale on the Trenton Road with his family.

In Belleville he will be remembered as having been the possessor of the finest ponies that ever came to this city. The pride he took in the horsemanship of these horses was remarkable. He had the greatest success with high class animals in the high actors and hurdle jumpers and was also deeply interested in harness horses. His success with English ponies imported animals was phenomenal. This pony broke a record as a hurdler a couple of years ago and became the champion. This horse Mr. Wilmot sold in England.

He had been out of this business for a couple of years, having sold his stock. His success at the horse shows brought him large prizes and a great reputation as a horseman. He, Mrs. Wilmot and his daughters exhibited their ponies at Toronto, Cobourg, Ordensburg, Plattsburg and Chicago and became known in sporting circles of Canada and the United States. During his short residence here he possessed fine Jersey cattle which won prizes upon prize and he also operated for a time an extensive poultry farm of fancy fowl.

At all the fall fairs in Belleville he lent his valuable assistance and exhibited his ponies and drivers. His skill as a judge of horses was of the highest class. He was a generous contributor to any event of a sporting nature and devoted much time to the collection of subscriptions for public functions in the past few years. His skill in training animals was remarkable. Any one who witnessed his instruction of those who desired to become apt in the management of fancy horses of all classes would pronounce him to be an expert.

Mr. Wilmot left Belleville early in December as promoter for the Del Monte Company of Preston, with Messrs. Edmondson and Gates. Owing to some difficulty in securing options on land, he had recently devoted himself to floating the Essex Fishing, Fur and Sporting Club, with headquarters in Toronto street. He had been appointed president of this company. He was a member of the Anglican Church and a communicant of St. Thomas.

Those who know him best declare he was one of the truest sportsmen Belleville ever possessed. His interest in sport was practical and he had practical knowledge of horses which most men however interested do not possess. That he dearly loved his ponies goes without saying. One who knew him well in Toronto said last night "Mr. Charles Wilmot was not immediately overcome by the smoke you may be sure he made a giant's battle for his life. He was a man of magnificent physique and great resolution. Though no longer young he retained much of his extraordinary strength, and without the handicap of suffocation he would have torn a hole in the brick wall to escape. A caged lion fighting for his liberty would give some picture of the terrific struggle that must have gone on before he succumbed to the enveloping flames."

A Belleville sportsman speaking to-day of the late Charles Wilmot quoted a number of instances in which he had exhibited his generosity by giving assistance to poor people in Belleville who could never hope to repay him.

The deepest sympathy of the public goes out to Mrs. Wilmot so suddenly and terribly bereaved of her husband and to the family, which consists of one son, Eardley of Detroit and two daughters, the Misses Audrey and Gwendolen. They are bearing up well under the awful shock and will attend the obsequies at Newcastle, his old home.

PROTECTION OF ICE HOLES

There may be court action over recent accident whereby horse was drowned.

There is a possibility that one of the courts of this county will be called upon to determine what constitutes proper protection of holes in the ice cut by gangs of ice cutters, during the winter months.

A recent accident occurred whereby a horse was drowned in one of these holes. The question at issue is whether a bush or limb of a spruce tree may be considered proper protection or whether a wire or railing is also necessary. One lawyer who has been in the habit of driving on the bay said yesterday that the present bush method was very confusing.

HALSTON

Halston, March 16—Everybody is enjoying the fine weather. The missionary tea at Mr. R. Gibson's was well attended. As long ago as 1877 Mr. Paterson established a branch of his biscuit business in this city. The late S. W. Bradshaw was the first manager and continued to hold the position for about five years when he was succeeded by Mr. L. R. Terwilliger, the present manager. Mr. Terwilliger has been since his first establishment. At first he was bookkeeper for the firm, and later was promoted to the management.

Mr. Paterson was well known to many of our citizens and often used to visit our city. He was always very popular with his staff as well as everyone with whom he had business associations.

HON. WILLIAM PATERSON.

PATERSON IS DEAD

The Former Minister of Customs Passes Away.

HAD LONG PUBLIC CAREER

Veteran Liberal Statesman Who Sat in the Laurier Cabinet During its Whole Term of Office and Took a Great Part in Tariff Revisions of 1897 and 1907 Was Seventy-Five Years of Age.

PICTON, Ont., March 19.—Hon. William Paterson, ex-Minister of Customs, is dead at the home of his daughter here at the age of 75 years. He had been in ill-health since his retirement from politics in 1911, and acutely ill throughout the winter. He passed away at his apartments, Johnston street, in the presence of his wife and daughter. Surviving members of the family are: William F., of Brantford; Charles G., professor of church history in Presbyterian College in California; and Mrs. Dr. M. E. Brantcomb, Picton. The funeral will probably take place in Brantford on Saturday.

Hon. William Paterson was born in Hamilton in 1839. When he was ten years of age his parents died from cholera and he was adopted by the late Rev. Dr. Ferrier and taken to Caledonia, Ont. Educated in Hamilton and Caledonia, he in 1853 entered into partnership in Brantford as a biscuit manufacturer, and in 1876 became sole owner of the business.

His public career began when he served as deputy registrar of Brantford (1859-71) and as mayor (1872-3). He represented South Brant in Parliament from 1872 (when he defeated Sir Francis Hincks) until 1896, when he himself was defeated, but his opponent was also unseated later for the corrupt practices of his agents. Meantime Mr. Paterson was elected for North Grey. From 1900-4 he represented North Wentworth and Brant, and sat for Brant 1904-11.

When the Laurier Government was formed, Mr. Paterson became controller of customs, and as such had much to do with framing the tariff of 1897 and 1907. In 1897 he was sworn in as Minister of Customs, and frequently acted as Finance Minister in the absence of Mr. Fielding, with whom he acted in framing the reciprocity pact of 1911.

In 1902, he was one of the Canadian delegates to the Imperial Conference in London; he was a member of the Tariff Commission of 1905; in 1909, he was appointed by King Edward to act on the royal commission to report on trade relations between Canada and the West Indies. With Mrs. and Miss Paterson he was present by invitation at the coronation of the late King Edward, and was subsequently presented to the King and Queen, as well as to their present Majesties.

LATE HON. WM. PATERSON WELL KNOWN HERE

Belleville might almost have claimed the late William Paterson as one of her merchants and business men. As long ago as 1877 Mr. Paterson established a branch of his biscuit business in this city. HOW CHAS. WILMOT'S BODY WAS IDENTIFIED

Laundry Marks on Shirt Aid in Establishing Identity of Victim of Woodbine Fire.

From Thursday's Daily
The identification of the body of Charles Wilmot, burned to death in the Woodbine Hotel fire in Toronto was as follows. On Wednesday night the inquest was begun on the body of a man "probably Charles Wilmot." "On March 12th" said yesterday I. Sberer of Sherer's laundry on Jarvis street, "some clothes came in to be laundered from the Woodbine Hotel. Amongst it was a shirt with the letters 'W 533' on it. This was under the name of Wilmot. At the morgue today I found a remnant of a piece of shirt on the body and took it to the laundry to have it washed. The neck band had the initials 'W 533' on it. So that clears that up."

WHITNEY GOVT. IS BECOMING MORIBUND

(Special to The Ontario)
Toronto, March 20.—A rather startling question was heard in the lobbies of the Parliament Buildings today, asked by a man who has followed political history closely for twenty years. The question was this: "Is the Whitney government moribund?" The man admitted that surface indications, such as the large Government majority, did not point that way, but declared there were other factors which put a different aspect on the question.

"A change of Government in Ontario," he said, "is an important matter and any possibility of such a development is well worth considering. Both the Conservative and Liberal Governments at Ottawa, the former in 1896 and the latter in 1911, had large majorities when they were turned out of office by the people. The mere fact of a large majority deceives no one but the Government itself."

It is significant that the Toronto World, (Conservative), is talking along similar lines, and is referring to the Ontario Government as one that is running slack. "Whether it be a loosening of discipline or an accumulation of heresies or the shipboard methods of over-confidence or the contempt that comes with familiarity, all governments seem to tread the same path. It was hoped that the Whitney Government would be different, but there are signs which are evident enough."

Among the things mentioned in the lobbies which point to a decline in the Government, is the recent forcing through the House by the Government of the Indemnity Bill which is to apply to the future as well as to the past and which encourages rather than discourages corruption. The inevitable alliance between the Government and the liquor interests, as evidenced in its most recent form by the Snider affair which looms up as a big political issue and the shutting off last year of investigation in the Proudfoot charges involving the Provincial Secretary.

KNIGHTS WENT TO PETERBORD

In ten days he was quite some gain except for a terrible, half beaten year which, starting above his left eye, ran across the top of his head, ending at the right ear. It was the mark left by Terkoz when he had torn the scalp away.

During his convalescence Tarzan tried to fashion a mantle from the skin of Sabor, the tiger, which he had slain at this time in the cabin. But he found the hide dried as stiff as a board, and as he knew naught of tanning, he was forced to abandon his cherished plan.

Then he determined to ditch what few garments he could from one of the black men of Mbonga's village, for he had decided to mark his elevation from the lower orders in every possible manner, and nothing seemed to him a more distinguishing badge of manhood than ornaments and clothing.

To this end, therefore, he collected the various arm and leg ornaments he had taken from the black warriors who had succumbed to his swift and silent noose and donned them all.

About his neck hung the golden chain from which depended the diamond-encrusted locket of his mother, the Lady Alice. At his back was a quiver of arrows slung from a leathern shoulder belt, another piece of loot from some vanquished black.

About his waist was a belt of tiny strips of rawhide fashioned by himself as a support for the homemade scabbard in which hung his father's hunting knife. The long bow which had been Kulonga's hung over his left shoulder.

The young Lord Greystoke was indeed a strange and warlike figure, his mass of black hair falling to his shoulders behind and cut with his hunting knife to a rude bang upon his forehead, that it might not fall before his eyes.

Hair was commencing to grow upon his face. All the apes had their own hair, but the black men were entirely hairless, with very few exceptions.

True, he had seen pictures in his books of men with great masses of hair upon lip and cheek and chin; but, nevertheless, Tarzan was afraid. Almost daily he whetted his keen knife and scraped and whittled at his young beard to eradicate this degrading emblem of apehood.

And so he learned to shave, rudely and painfully, it is true, but nevertheless effectively.

CHAPTER VIII. His Own Kind.

WHEN he felt quite strong again after his bloody battle with Terkoz, the mighty ape, Tarzan set off one morning toward Mbonga's village. He was moving carelessly along a winding jungle trail instead of making his progress through the trees when suddenly he came face to face with a black warrior.

The look of surprise on the savage face was almost comical, and before Tarzan could unslung his bow the fellow had turned and fled down the path crying out in alarm, as though to others before him.

Tarzan took to the trees in pursuit and in a few moments came in view of the fleeing quarry.

There were three of them, and they were racing madly in single file through the dense undergrowth.

Tarzan easily distanced them, nor did they see his slight passage above their heads nor note the crowding figure squatted upon a low branch ahead of them beneath which the trail led them.

Tarzan let the first two pass beneath him, but as the third came swiftly on the quiet noose dropped about the black throat. A quick jerk drew it taut.

There was an agonized scream from the victim, and his fellows turned to see his struggles, body, rise, as by magic, slowly into the dense foliage of the trees above.

With shrieks they wheeled once more and plunged on in their effort to escape.

Tarzan dispatched his prisoner quickly and silently, removed the weapons and ornaments and—greatest joy of all—a handsome doeskin breechcloth, which he quickly transferred to his own person.

Taking the body across his shoulder, he moved more slowly through the trees toward the little palisaded village, for he again needed arrows.

As he approached quite close to the enclosure he saw an excited group surrounding the two fugitives, who, trembling with fright and exhaustion, were unable to recount the uncanny details of their adventure.

The villagers were worked up into a state of panic, but wise Mbonga affected to feel considerable skepticism regarding the tale and attributed the whole fabrication to their fright in the face of some real danger.

"You tell us this great story," he said, "because you do not dare to speak the truth. You do not dare admit that when the tiger sprang you ran away and left your comrades. You are cowards."

Scarcely had Mbonga ceased speaking when a great crashing of branches in the trees above them caused the blacks to look up in renewed terror. The sight that met their eyes made even Mbonga shudder.

Turning and twisting in the air came the dead body to sprawl with a sickening limpness upon the ground at their feet.

With one accord the blacks took to their heels, nor did they stop until the last of them was lost in the shadows of the jungle.

Again Tarzan came down into the village and renewed his supply of arrows and ate of the offering of food which the blacks had made to appease his wrath.

Before he left he carried the body to the gate of the village and propped it up against the palisade in such a way that the dead face seemed to be peering round the edge of the gatepost down the path which led to the jungle.

Then he returned, hunting, always hunting, to the cabin by the beach.

It took a dozen attempts on the part of the thoroughly frightened blacks to re-enter the village, past the grinning face of their dead fellow, and when they found the food and arrows gone they knew, what they only too well feared, that the evil spirit of the jungle was abroad.

Only those who saw this terrible god of the jungle die, for was it not true that none left alive in the village had ever seen him? Therefore those who had died at his hands must have seen him and paid the penalty with their lives.

As long as they supplied him with arrows and food he would not harm them unless they looked upon him, so it was ordered by Mbonga that in addition to the food offering there should also be laid out an offering of arrows for this Munango Keeewat, and this was done from then on.

When Tarzan came in sight of the beach where stood his cabin, a strange and unusual spectacle met his vision. On the placid waters of the land-locked harbor floated a great ship, and on the beach a small boat was drawn up.

But, most wonderful of all, a number of white men like himself were moving about between the beach and his cabin.

Tarzan saw that in many ways they were like the men of his picture books. He crept closer through the trees until he was almost above them.

There were ten men, swarthy, sun-tanned and villainous looking fellows. Now they had congregated by the boat and were talking in loud, angry tones, with much gesticulating and shaking of fists.

Presently one of them, a dwarfed, mean faced, black bearded fellow with a countenance which reminded Tarzan of Pamba, the rat, laid his hand upon the shoulder of a giant who stood next him and with whom all the others had been arguing and quarreling.

The little man pointed inland, so that the giant was forced to turn away from the others to look in the direction indicated. As he turned the mean faced man drew a revolver from his belt and shot the giant in the back.

The big fellow threw his hands above his head, his knees bent beneath him, and without a sound he tumbled forward upon the beach dead.

Tarzan puckered his brows into a frown of deep thought. It was well, thought he, that he had not given way to his first impulse to rush forward and greet these white men as brothers. They were evidently no different from the black men, no more civilized than the apes, no less cruel than Sabor, the tiger.

For a moment the others stood looking at the killer and the giant lying dead upon the beach.

Then one of them laughed and stepped the little man upon the back. There were much more talk and gesticulating, but less quarreling.

Presently they launched the boat and all jumped into it and rowed away through the dense undergrowth.

toward the great ship, upon whose deck Tarzan could see other figures moving about.

When they had disembarked, Tarzan slipped to earth behind a great tree and crept to his cabin, keeping it always between himself and the ship, that everything had been ransacked. His books and pencils strewed the floor. His weapons and shields and other little store of treasures were littered about.

As he saw what had been done a wave of anger surged through him. The new scar upon his forehead stood suddenly out, a bar of inflamed crimson against his tawny hide.

Quickly he ran to the cupboard and searched in the far recess of the lower shelf. Ah! He breathed a sigh of relief as he drew out the little tin box and, opening it, found his greatest treasure undisturbed.

The photograph of the smiling, strong faced young man and the little black puzzle book were safe.

What was that? His quick ear had caught a faint but unfamiliar sound.

Running to the window he looked toward the harbor. Another boat was being lowered from the ship. Soon its saw many people clambering over the sides of the larger vessel and dropping into the boats. They were coming back in full force.

For a moment longer Tarzan watched while a number of boxes and bundles were lowered into the waiting boats. Then as they shoved off from the ship's side the ape man snatched up a piece of paper and with a pencil printed on it several lines of strong, well made, almost letter perfect characters.

This notice he stuck upon the door with a small sharp splinter of wood. Then, gathering up his precious tin box, his arrows and as many bows and spears as he could carry, he hastened out of doors and disappeared into the forest.

When the two boats were beached upon the silvery sand it was a strange assortment of humanity that clambered ashore.

Some twenty souls in all there were if the fifteen rough and villainous appearing seamen could have been said to possess that immortal spark since they were, forsooth, a most filthy and bloodthirsty looking aggregation.

The others of the party were of different stamp. One was an elderly man with white hair and large rimmed spectacles. His slightly stooped shoulders were draped in an ill fitting though immaculate frock coat. A shiny silk hat added to the incongruity of his garb in an African jungle.

The second member of the party was a tall young man in white duds, while directly behind came another elderly man with a very high forehead and a russy, excitable manner.

After these came a huge negro clothed like Solomon as to colors, her great eyes rolling in evident terror first toward the jungle and then toward the cursing band of sailors who were removing the bales and boxes from the boats.

The last member of the party to disembark was a girl of about nineteen, and it was the young man, who stood at the boat's bow to lift her high and dry upon land. She gave him a brave and pretty smile of thanks.

In silence the party advanced toward the cabin. It was evident that, whatever their intentions, all had been decided upon before they left the ship. They came to the door, the sailors carrying the boxes and bales, followed by the five who were of so different a class. Then the men put down their burdens, and then one caught sight of the notice which Tarzan had posted.

"Ho, mates!" he cried. "What's here! This sign was not posted an hour ago or I'll eat the cook."

The others gathered about, craning their necks over the shoulders of those before them, but as few of them could read at all, and then only after the most laborious fashion, one finally turned to the little old man of the top hat and frock coat.

"El, portessah," he called, "step forward and read the bloomin' notice."

Adjusting his spectacles, the professor read aloud:

"THIS IS THE HOUSE OF TARZAN, THE KILLER OF BEASTS AND MANY BLACK MEN. DO NOT HARM THE THINGS WHICH ARE TARZAN'S. TARZAN WATCHES."

"Who the devil is Tarzan?" cried the sailor who had before spoken.

"He evidently speaks English," said the young man.

"But what does Tarzan of the apes mean?" cried the girl.

"I do not know, Miss Porter," replied the young man, "unless we have discovered a runaway simian from the London zoo, who has brought back a European education to his jungle home. What do you make of it, Professor Porter?" he added, turning to the old man.

"I reckon the daffy old bouncer don't know no more'n we do about it," growled the rat faced sailor.

"Keep a civil tongue in your head," cried the young man, his face paling in anger at the insulting tone of the sailor. "You've murdered our officers and robbed us. We are absolutely in your power; but, so help me, you'll treat Professor Porter and Miss Porter with respect or I'll break that neck of yours with my bare hands—guns or no guns."

William Cecil Clayton stepped so close to the rat faced sailor that the latter, though he bore two revolvers and a villainous looking knife in his belt, stunk back abashed.

"You coward!" cried the young man. "You've never dared shoot a man until his back was turned. You don't dare shoot me even then."

He turned his back full upon the sailor and walked nonchalantly away.

The sailor's hand crept slyly to the butt of one of his revolvers; his wicked eyes glared vengefully at the retreating form of the young Englishman. What he would have done will never be known, for there was another face behind every more of the party from the follow of a nearby tree. Tarzan had seen the surprise caused by his notice, and while he could understand nothing of the spoken language of these strange people their gestures and facial expressions told him much.

The rat of the little rat faced sailor in killing one of his comrades had aroused a strong dislike in Tarzan, and now that he saw him quarreling with the fine looking young man his animosity was still further stirred. He drew a poisoned arrow to his bow and fired at the sailor, but the foliage was so thick that he soon saw the arrow would be deflected by the leaves or some small branch, and instead he launched a heavy spear from his lofty perch.

Clayton had taken but a dozen steps; the rat faced sailor had half drawn his revolver; the other sailors stood watching the scene intently.

Professor Porter had already disappeared into the jungle, whether he was followed by the russy Sammel Z. Philander, his secretary and assistant. Esmeralda, the negress, was busy sorting her mistress' baggage from the pile of bales and boxes beside the cabin, and Miss Porter had turned away to follow Clayton when something caused her to turn again toward the sailor.

And then three things happened almost simultaneously—the sailor jerked out his weapon and leveled it at Clayton's back, Miss Porter screamed a warning, and a long metal shod spear shot like a bolt from above and passed entirely through the right shoulder of the rat faced man.

The revolver exploded harmlessly in the air, and the seaman crumpled up with a scream of pain and terror.

CHAPTER IX. At the Mercy of the Jungle.

LAYTON turned and rushed back toward the scene. The sailors stood in a frightened group, with drawn weapons, peering into the jungle. The wounded man writhed and shrieked upon the ground. Clayton, unseen by any, picked up the fallen revolver and slipped it inside his shirt; then he joined the sailors.

"Who could it have been?" whispered Jane Porter, and the young man turned to see her standing, wide eyed, beside him.

"I dare say Tarzan of the apes is to look for them himself when he caught the yellow gint of a sleek hide moving cautiously through the jungle toward Clayton.

It was Sheets, the leopard. He heard the soft bending of grasses and wondered why the young white man was not warned. Could it be he had failed to note the loud warning? Never before had Tarzan known Sheets to be so clumsy.

No, the white man did not hear. Sheets was crouching for the spring, and then, shrill and horrible, there rose upon the stillness of the jungle the awful cry of the challenging ape, and Sheets turned, crashing into the underbrush.

Clayton came to his feet with a start. His blood ran cold. Never had so fearful a sound smote upon his ears. He was no coward, but if ever man felt the icy fingers of fear upon his heart Cecil Clayton, eldest son of Lord Greystoke of England, did that day in the fastness of the African jungle.

The noise of some great body crashing through the underbrush so close beside him and the sound of that blood-curdling shriek from above tested Clayton's courage to the limit, but he could not know that it was to that very voice he owed his life nor that the creature who hurled it forth was his own cousin—the real Lord Greystoke.

The afternoon was drawing to a close, and Clayton, disheartened and discouraged, was in a terrible quandary as to the proper course to pursue, whether to keep on in search of Professor Porter, at the almost certain risk of his own death in the jungle by night, or to return to the cabin, where he might at least serve to protect Jane Porter from the perils which confronted her on all sides.

He disliked to return to camp without her father; still more he shrank from the thought of leaving her alone and unprotected in the hands of the mutineers of the Arrow or the hundred unknown dangers of the jungle.

Possibly, too, he thought, before this the professor and Philander had returned to camp. He started, stumbling back through the thick and matted underbrush in the direction that he thought the cabin lay.

To Tarzan's surprise, the young man was heading farther into the jungle in the general direction of Mbonga's village, and the abrewed young ape man was convinced that he was lost.

The fierce jungle would make any prey of this unprotected stranger in a very short time if he were not guided quickly to the beach, thought Tarzan. Yes, there was Numa, the lion, even now stalking the white man a dozen paces to the right.

Clayton heard the great body paralleling his course, and now there rose upon the evening air the great beast's thunderous roar. The man stopped with upraised spear and faced the brush from which issued the awful sound. The shadows were deepening; darkness was coming on.

For a moment all was still. Clayton stood rigid with raised spear. Presently a faint rustling of the bush behind him apprised him of the stealthy creeping of the thing. It was gathering pace to the right.

Clayton heard the great body paralleling his course, and now there rose upon the evening air the great beast's thunderous roar. The man stopped with upraised spear and faced the brush from which issued the awful sound. The shadows were deepening; darkness was coming on.

and with a volley of oaths resumed.

This man, Snipes, had assumed the role of chief since he had killed their former leader, and so little time had elapsed that none of his companions had as yet questioned his authority.

Clayton's only response was a shrug of the shoulders, but as he left them he picked up the spear which had transfixed Snipes, and thus primitively armed the son of the then Lord Greystoke strode into the dense jungle.

Every few moments he called aloud the names of the wanderers. The watchers in the cabin by the beach heard the sound of his voice growing ever fainter and fainter, until at last it was swallowed up by the myriad noises of the primeval wood.

When Professor Archimedes Q. Porter and his assistant, Samuel T. Philander, after much insistence on the part of the latter, had finally turned their backs toward camp they were as completely lost in the wild and tangled labyrinth of the jungle as two human beings could be, though they did not know it.

It was by the merest chance of fortune that they headed toward the west coast of Africa instead of toward East Zanzibar, on the opposite side of the dark continent.

When in a short time they reached the beach, only to find no camp in sight, Philander was positive that they were north of their proper destination, while, as a matter of fact, they were nearly 200 yards south of it. Mr. Samuel T. Philander grasped Professor Archimedes Q. Porter firmly by the arm and hurried the weakly protesting old gentleman off in the direction of Cape Town, 1,500 miles to the south.

When Jane Porter and Esmeralda found themselves safely behind the cabin door the negress' first thought was to barricade the portal from the inside. With this idea in view she turned to search for some means of putting it into execution, but her first view of the interior of the cabin revealed a shriek of terror to her lips, and, like a frightened child, the huge black ran to bury her face in her mistress' shoulders.

Jane Porter, turning at the cry, saw the cause of it lying prone upon the floor before them—the whitened skeleton of a man. A further glance revealed a second skeleton upon the bed.

"What horrible place are we in!" murmured the awe stricken girl. But there was no panic in her fright.

At last disengaging herself from the frantic clutch of the still shrieking Esmeralda, Jane Porter crossed the room to look into the little cradle, knowing what she should see there before ever the tiny skeleton disclosed itself in its pitiful and pathetic form.

What an awful tragedy! These mute bones proclaimed that the possibilities of the possibilities that might be before herself and her friends in this ill fated cabin.

Quickly, with an impatient stamp of her foot, she endeavored to shake off the gloomy forebodings, and turning to Esmeralda bade her cease her wailing.

"Stop, Esmeralda; stop it this minute!" she cried. "You are only making it worse. I never saw such a big baby."

Soon the girl found that the door was equipped with a heavy wooden bar upon the inside. After several efforts the combined strength of the two enabled them to slip it into place—the first time in twenty years.

After Clayton had plunged into the jungle, the sailors—mutineers of the Arrow—fell into a discussion of their next step, but on one point all were agreed—that they should listen to put off to the anchored Arrow, where they could at least be safe from the spears of their unseen foe.

So much had Tarzan seen that day that his head was in a whirl of wonder. But the most wonderful sight of all to him was the face of the beautiful white girl.

Here at last was one of his own kind; of that he was positive. And the young man and the two old men, they, too, were much as he had pictured his own people to be.

He did not understand anything of the motives behind all that he had seen, but somehow intuitively he liked the young man and the two old men, and for the girl he had a strange longing which he scarcely understood.

As for the big black woman, she was evidently connected in some way with the girl, and so he liked her also.

For the sailors, however, and especially Snipes, he had developed a special hatred. He knew by their threatening gestures and by the expressions upon their evil faces that they were enemies of the others, and so he decided to watch them very closely.

Tarzan wondered why the men had gone into the jungle. Never did it occur to him that one could become lost in that maze of undergrowth which to him was as simple as the main street of your own home town.

When he saw the sailors row away toward the ship and knew that the girl and her companion were safe in his cabin he decided to follow the young man into the jungle and learn what his errand might be. He swung off rapidly in the direction taken by Clayton and in a short time heard faintly in the distance the now only occasional calls of the Englishman to his friends.

Presently Tarzan came up with the white man, who, almost fagged, was leaning against a tree wiping the perspiration from his forehead. The ape man, hiding safe behind a screen of foliage, sat watching him with the keen men of his own race intently.

At intervals Clayton called aloud, and finally it came to Tarzan that he was searching for the old men.

Tarzan was on the point of going to his homely sheath, and the man was gathering up his bow and quiver from where he had tossed them when he leaped to attack the lion.

Clayton spoke to the man in English, thanking him for his brave rescue and complimenting him on his wondrous strength and dexterity.

The only answer was a steady stare and a faint shrug of the mighty shoulders, which may have betokened either disparagement of the service rendered or ignorance of the language.

The bow and quiver slung on his back, the wild man once more drew his knife and deftly carved a dozen large strips of meat from the lion's carcass. Then, squatting upon his haunches, he proceeded to eat, motioning Clayton to join him.

The strong white teeth sank into the raw and dripping flesh in apparent relish, but Clayton could not bring himself to share the uncooked meat with his strange host. Instead he watched him, and presently there dawned upon him the conviction that this was Tarzan of the apes, whose notice he had seen posted upon the cabin door that morning.

If so he must speak English.

Again Clayton essayed speech with the ape man, but the replies were in a strange tongue, which resembled the chattering of monkeys mingled with the growling of some wild beast.

CHAPTER X. The Forest God.

WHEN Tarzan had finished his repeat he rose and, pointing to the professor and Philander had returned from that which Clayton had been pursuing, started through the jungle toward the point he had indicated.

Clayton, bewildered and confused, hesitated to follow him, for he thought he was but being led more deeply into the mazes of the forest, but the ape man returned and, grasping him by the coat, dragged him along until he was convinced that Clayton understood what was required of him and then left him to follow voluntarily.

The Englishman finally concluded that he was a prisoner and saw no alternative but to accompany his captor, and thus he traveled slowly through the jungle while the sable mantle of the impenetrable night of the forest fell about them.

Suddenly Clayton heard the faint report of a firearm—a single shot and then silence.

In the cabin by the beach two thoroughly terrified women crouched to each other as they crouched upon the low bench in the gathering darkness.

The negress, sobbing hysterically, bemoaned the evil day that had witnessed her departure from her dear Maryland, while the white girl, dry eyed and outwardly calm, was tortured by inward forebodings. She feared not more for herself than for the three men whom she knew to be wandering in the abysmal depths of the jungle, from which now issued the incessant shrieks and roars, barkings and growlings of its terrifying and fearsome inmates.

Now came the sound of a heavy body brushing against the side of the cabin. She could hear the great padded paws upon the ground without. Then for an instant all was silence.

"Hush!" the girl whispered. "Hush, Esmeralda!" for the woman's sobs and groans seemed to have attracted the thing that stalked there just beyond the threshold.

A gentle scratching sound was heard on the door. The brute tried to force an entrance, but presently this ceased, and again she heard the great padded paws creep stealthily around the cabin. Again they stopped—beneath the window, on which the terrified eyes of the girl now glared themselves.

"Heavens!" she murmured, for, silhouetted against the moonlit sky beyond, she saw framed in the tiny square of the latticed window the head of a huge tiger. The gleaming eyes were fixed upon her in tense ferocity.

"Look, Esmeralda!" she whispered. "What shall we do? Look! Quick! The window!"

Esmeralda glanced stiffly closer to her mistress and glared averted toward the little square of moonlight just as the tiger emitted a low, savage snarl.

The sight that met the poor black eyes was too much for the already overstrung nerves.

"Oh, Gabriel!" she shrieked and slid to the floor, an inert and senseless mass.

For what seemed an eternity the great brute stood with its fore paws upon the sill, glaring into the little room. Presently it tried the strength of the lattice with its great talons.

The girl had almost ceased to breathe when to her relief the brute disappeared and she heard the brute's footsteps leaving the window. But once more the scratching commenced, but this time with increasing force until the great beast was tearing at the massive panels in a perfect frenzy of fury.

Could Jane Porter have known the immense strength of that door, bulged by place, she would have felt less fear of the tiger reaching her by this avenue.

For fully twenty minutes the brute alternately snifed and tore at the door, occasionally giving voice to a cry of baffled rage. At length, however, he gave up the attempt, and Jane Porter heard him returning toward the window, beneath which he paused for an instant and then launched his great weight against the time worn lattice.

The girl heard the wooden rods groan beneath the impact, but they held, and the huge body dropped back to the ground below.
