Dissension and chaos ruled at last night's Liberal meeting, and became increasingly more involved as the evening progressed. At times the two factions, the one supporting the nomination of Lloyd Harris and the other advocating a straight Laurier platform clashed so hotly that confusion was rampant and the chairman, Vice-President George Cook was forced to repeatedly call for order and again and again define the status of the gathering—whether it was a convention of representative delegates or merely a meeting of party followers—and he was forced to admit that he himself did not know. After three hours wrangling and nothing definite was accomplished an adjournment was made with no provision for a succeeding meeting. The situation in the South Brants remains as before except that the Liberals last night committed themselves to a straight party fight.

Lloyd Harris, the Liberal nominee for the coming Federal election, it is said, has resigned and Mayor Bowlby has been requested and has consented to become a candidate on an independent Liberal platform. These developments have resulted from last night's meeting of the Liberals of the South Brant riding when serious opposition to him jeopardized Mr. Harris' position as the Liberal candidate.

Little or nothing was accomplished at last night's fusion meeting of North Brant delegates, except the shedding of a clearer light upon the situation in that riding. The Liberal delegates in attendance at the gathering took objection to Col. Harry Cockshutt as a non-resident, and declined to consider any candidate other than their present one, John Harold. The Conservative delegates appeared for suggestions of any one who might prove acceptable as a union candidate, but to all appeals the Liberals offered only the name of John Harold. The meeting was prolonged until after eleven o'clock, discussion being lengthy and at times heated.

Union Government or the Laurier platform was the bone of contention. Representatives from Oakland township, that stronghold of Liberalism, came out flatly for Laurier and were ardently supported by a strong following of the younger element of the meeting. At one juncture when the discussion was most involved and when all semblance of order was lacking on account of the loud and unqualified calls for Laurier, Chairman Cook emphatically shouted above the uproar.

This morning, it is stated, some were exceedingly active planning an open meeting of all anti-conscriptionists and anti-fusion citizens to be held in a public hall. Circulars announcing the meeting were drafted and Mr. W. C. Good mentioned as a possibility as an anti-fusion candidate.

On the motion of Mr. Jas. Seace, Dr. Johnson took the chair. The names of the delegates were taken. T. Scott Davidson stated that the Liberal delegates had brought a number of supporters.

"I am chairman of this meeting and I'll tell you we are going to have a Laurier candidate. This party who are conscripting our boys when 4500 have already gone from Brant county will not have our support. I'll tell you, our blood is up! We are not going to stand for any more of this fool business!"

In the interval since last night's riotous gathering, in formation of the spirit of the meeting has been communicated to Mr. Harris, who was faced with the alternative of retiring or sticking to his guns in the leadership of a divided party. He selected the former course and Mayor Bowlby will be the candidate on a straight independent Liberal ticket.

On the motion of Mr. Jas. Seace, Dr. Johnson took the chair. The names of the delegates were taken. T. Scott Davidson stated that the Liberal delegates had brought a number of supporters.

Time and again during the meeting the constitution of the Liberal party was referred to and M. W. McEwen on each occasion produced the guiding principles of the party and read them aloud to convince the gathering that it would be impossible to reject Mr. Harris now that he had been unanimously nominated by the committee appointed for that purpose.

When interviewed this morning his worship definitely stated: "I could not help but see that the county representatives did not want Harris at last night's meeting. I tried in vain to preserve peace and harmony, but failed. I knew they wanted me. They cheered when I rose to my feet. I have never refused a public trust."

A crisis was precipitated by Mr. A. Harley who anticipated an actual demand for a Laurier candidate by suggesting that if the nomination were to go to another member of the party, the nominee should be selected by a properly constituted committee and not such a gathering as that of last night. He proposed a resolution that a special committee be appointed to retire for ten minutes and regularly select a candidate. Supporters of Mr. Harris rallied to the latter's support and condemned the suggestion as invalid whereupon Mr. Harley retired and communicated by telephone with Lloyd Harris in Toronto and informed him that the meeting "had absolutely refused to have further dealings with the enemy."

When interviewed this morning his worship definitely stated: "I could not help but see that the county representatives did not want Harris at last night's meeting. I tried in vain to preserve peace and harmony, but failed. I knew they wanted me. They cheered when I rose to my feet. I have never refused a public trust."

Mr. Harris' reply was: "Definitely accept the nomination without equivocation or any further reservation."

The meeting commented at half past eight with Vice-President Geo. Cook of Oakland, presiding in the absence of the President, Dr. W. D. Wiley. Secretary McIntyre read a letter that had been received from Mr. Harris, reading as follows:

When interviewed this morning his worship definitely stated: "I could not help but see that the county representatives did not want Harris at last night's meeting. I tried in vain to preserve peace and harmony, but failed. I knew they wanted me. They cheered when I rose to my feet. I have never refused a public trust."

On the motion of Mr. Jas. Seace, Dr. Johnson took the chair. The names of the delegates were taken. T. Scott Davidson stated that the Liberal delegates had brought a number of supporters.

Dear Sir,—I have been carefully considering the political situation in Brantford to-day, and had decided to advise you that I would allow my name to stand as the nominee of the "Win the War Liberal convention," which was tendered to me a week ago Saturday night.

When interviewed this morning his worship definitely stated: "I could not help but see that the county representatives did not want Harris at last night's meeting. I tried in vain to preserve peace and harmony, but failed. I knew they wanted me. They cheered when I rose to my feet. I have never refused a public trust."

On the motion of Mr. Jas. Seace, Dr. Johnson took the chair. The names of the delegates were taken. T. Scott Davidson stated that the Liberal delegates had brought a number of supporters.

I have, however, just learned that the chairman of the Fusion committee which was organized for the purpose of bringing the parties together and if possible avoid the necessity of an election under present serious conditions in Canada, has written the Liberal Association for another meeting, and as I made it a condition of my accepting a nomination, that an earnest effort should be made to get the parties together, I think, that in order to be consistent, I should request that this letter asking for another conference should not be ignored.

On the motion of Mr. Jas. Seace, Dr. Johnson took the chair. The names of the delegates were taken. T. Scott Davidson stated that the Liberal delegates had brought a number of supporters.

I therefore ask my friends to accede to the wishes of the chairman of the Fusion committee and arrange for another meeting, which should be held within the next day or two, and if no results are reached at such meeting, then I am in the hands of the Liberal party, and will do as my friends desire.

FIVE MINUTE CURE IF STOMACH IS BAD

When "Pape's Diapepsin" reaches stomach all indigestion, gas, and sourness disappears. You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs. Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its rapidity in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them, if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours, and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructation of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

Pte. Fred Ball Recovering Splendidly
That everything possible is being done by the government through all its branches in the matter of caring for the sick and wounded among the overseas soldiers, and by way of consideration for relatives at home, is evident from the following group of letters received by Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ball of Market St. since their son, Pte. Fred W. Ball, was wounded on Oct. 20th.

No. 1.
Dear Dad.—You, no doubt, have heard of my being wounded. Now, don't worry for I'm all O.K. I got a piece of shrapnel in my right ankle, a piece in my right thigh. Now for my left leg; big toe nearly severed and my shin bone shattered, and last of all, two small pieces under my arm, one of them penetrating my chest.

Your son,
Fred W. Ball.

Dear Mrs. Ball:—Fred W. Ball was admitted to the above ward this morning dangerously wounded in the chest. He is also wounded in both legs. He is very ill, but all possible will be done for his comfort by the doctors and sisters of the hospital. Will let you hear further if necessary.

Dear Sir,—I promised your son, who is a patient in this hospital, to let you know how he is getting on. He has rather had wounds in the left leg, but he is recovering splendidly now. He is not suffering at all, and is improving every day. He is quite happy and contented, and is being well looked after by doctor and nurses, so that you may rest contented that everything is being done to bring him around speedily to health again. He is an exceedingly nice lad, and I have enjoyed my chats with him very much. His message to you is that you are not to

TABERNACLE TOPICS

The tabernacle building was too cold for comfort last night, but few complaints were heard. A little adjustment in heating will, no doubt, bring satisfaction. The hymn books were offered for sale last night for the first time and were rapidly secured. Mr. Fisher is winning his way with the audience and the singing promises to be a factor of great interest, and helpfulness. When Mr. Fisher sent out the call for passages relating to prayer the responses indicated that many had more than a passing knowledge of the scriptures.

Mrs. Learning sang the "Old Time Power" with which some of the "old time effect." It was fine. Dr. Hanley announced as his subject for to-night, "The Price of Power." The subject for Friday night will be "Family Night."

Dr. Hanley's sermon on prayer last night was a strong argument from experience. Examples were multiplied of definite answers to prayer. More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. There is a temptation to cater to numbers, but the biggest thing is not always seen. Power is in the soul. Not all can sing nor speak in public; no two are alike, but all can pray. We lose the power to evangelize when we refuse to pray. Our prayers are unanswered because our faith is small; we are surprised when the answer comes more than when it does not. Belief is the core of prayer, but it can be operative only where prayer is natural and not mechanical. Selfishness, both individual and denominational, stands in the way of good work. Let us clear the way and begin to pray for folks, said the evangelist.

Dr. Hanley's last point was that he pays to pray. A young man converted in their meetings had written him a letter from France, shortly before paying the great price, stating his confidence in Christ. Who would estimate the worth of that letter?

Young Ball was a veterinary student when he enlisted, and before crossing to France he was requested to remain in England and assist in dispensing at the base, but he thought it his duty to go to the front. We will give to-morrow a letter from an office which convinces the reader that Fred has done his "bit good" and plenty.

A local reporter received last evening a wire from a city daily requesting him to rush as early as possible report last night of Conservative meeting to-night, labour meeting and to-morrow night, farmer's meeting. It is his boss's that the news editor in question has been duped by some long distance reporters who are endeavouring to tell Innes and Woodward what is going on in Simcoe, and we feel it necessary to announce the program correctly.

1.—To-day, Unionist Mass Meeting to select a government candidate.
2.—To-morrow, Thursday, Independent Convention to select a candidate in the interests of farmers and labour.
3.—Saturday, Reform delegate convention to select a Reform candidate. In case a suitable man is not obtainable on Thursday, the bills, however, have been printed and appear with-out the name of the president of the Reform Association, Mr. H. B. Donly, therefore, being called in the name of the Secretary, Mr. John Porter.

Local enumerators are compiling lists of soldiers' sisters, daughters, wives and mothers, to add them to the 1916 voters' lists. They can make no other alterations except to strike off aliens as defined by the Act. Electors who have moved from one ward to another will be required to vote where they resided when the Assessor paid his 1916 visit, or in other words, where they appear on the 1916 list. The enumerators cannot so much as omit the names of deceased persons, whose names appear on the list.

Pte. John N. Sloan, arrived from England on the last trolley on the night. John went over with the 133rd more than a year ago. He states he was sent home on account of being too young. There was no one to meet him.

The parks committee of the town council has provided a boulder at the park for the reception of a bronze tablet to the memory of the doctor, J. L. Campbell, and are carrying out Mr. Campbell's desire that the park be kept in its natural state. The boulder is a red granite rock, of glacial origin, weighing about four tons.

The hour of work is removing dead and other undesirable trees from the streets and trimming where necessary. All the wood thus gathered up is being sent to the market square to be converted into wood for the charity committee.

WONDERFUL VALUES IN REAL IRISH LINEN

The Situation of the Linen Market:
There are three countries from which we obtain flax for weaving linens, viz: Belgium, Russia and Ireland. Belgium we depended on for Contrai Flax (the finest imported flax)—this source is gone. Russia grew a large quantity of flax but owing to the unsettled state of affairs in that country, and the difficult transportation facilities, the supply from there is almost cut off. The whole Irish crop (which is small) is required for making plain linen, which is used for aeroplane wings—the demand for this is enormous, and every plain linen loom in Ireland is put on this work. The result is, in event of the war continuing on into another year, and it seems certain it will, the general trade in linens will come to an end. Under such circumstances, and taking into consideration the demands of the War Office, it is not so surprising that the linen offered to the public is so expensive as that it is so cheap. Pure linen goods are now very scarce, and are still going higher. When the war ends there cannot be a sudden slump in prices for the all sufficient reason that stocks do not exist, and the trade in high class linens could not assume the normal for years to come, owing to the system of production.

Buy Your Linens NOW!

You can readily see our reason for so urgently advising our customers to buy linens while we can show such an excellent range of beautiful designs and qualities at such wonderful prices. Linens that we are now showing have been stock or contracted for 15 to 24 months ago, thus saving the enormous advance in prices in the past year.

FUSION MEETING Continued from Page One We are hoping to get together, we have made certain advances, very radical ones. Col. Cockshutt is apparently unsatisfactory to you, and Mr. Harold—without deciding or lauding either one—equally so to us.

Notice to Creditors In the matter of the assignment of Crompton Grocery, of the City of Brantford, in the County of Brant, Grocers, Insolvent. Notice is hereby given that the Crompton Grocery, of the City of Brantford, in the County of Brant, grocers, has made an assignment under R.S.O. 1914, Chapter 134, of all its estate, credits and effects to me, John W. Westbrook, of the City of Brantford, in the County of Brant, Sheriff, for the general benefit of its creditors.

Take No Chances. "We want union government supported, we want to take no chances," remarked Dr. Johnson. There was a lot of kicking over conscription during the last session of Parliament, John Harold was one of the first to attack Geo. P. Graham's anti-conscription meeting.

Mr. C. H. Waterous Mr. C. H. Waterous paid a glowing tribute to the late Samuel Harold, father of John Harold. Liberals and Conservatives were equally patriotic to-day. The speaker admitted that Laurier had taken a stand which loyal Liberals, Mr. Harold among them, could not support. Every man who believed in union government had chosen Sir Robert Borden as his leader, and he and all alike should be unionists, and members of no political party.

Mr. J. M. Patterson Mr. J. M. Patterson stated such a thing, he stated an untruth, declared Dr. Lovett. Mr. Geo. L. Telfer appealed for acceptance of a Liberal in North Brant. He declared that Dr. Reid had cast suspicion upon Mr. Harold's loyalty.

Mr. James Scace Mr. James Scace laid stress upon the urgency of the situation. The meeting was called not for discussion or comparison of candidates, but to reach a decision which might eliminate strife in this section of the empire, a foundation important enough to induce all to suppress antagonism and elevate their manhood.

Up to Liberals "The Liberals have not yet stated whether they will agree to Col. Cockshutt," he observed. "Will they do so?"

THE SITUATION.
Rome and Berlin reports differ as to what has been happening just recently on the Italian front. The Teutons claim that they added to their bag of important positions in a drive along the Trentino. The Italian war office admits this but asserts that they have been retaken by heavy counter attacks. It is stated that the Garibaldians are now showing splendid spirit and valor and that their morale, which undoubtedly was badly shattered under the first onrush of the foe and treason in the ranks, has now been fully restored.

A French Cabinet has again resigned. That sort of thing in Gay Paree isn't a sensation but a habit and does not begin to mean what the outside world imagines.
The news is still very much involved as far as Russia is concerned. About the only matter of certainty is that Kerensky at last accounts was continuing in his new course with a very considerable backing.
It is announced from Ottawa that the Union Government has decided to take control of the packing houses. The drastic plan proposed is to take half of the profits, above seven per cent on capital and all of the profits over fifteen per cent.

THE FIGHT IS ON.
It is pretty safe to say that the bulk of the people of the two Brants did not desire an election contest in either riding at this time.
As to that the vast majority, outside of Quebec, also considered a Dominion fight a most undesirable thing, but Laurier forced it for his own purposes, and thus it is that the deplorable spectacle is presented of a struggle at the polls to see whether or no the brave Canadian boys shall at once and in the future receive needed aid at the front.

As far as the two local constituencies are concerned the Conservative Unionists made every possible effort to avoid a fray. Both seats were theirs in the last Parliament, but they were willing to go fifty-fifty with Hon. Mr. Rowell, Liberal Unionist, to have the north riding.
As will be seen by correspondence and telegrams elsewhere in this issue, no step was left unturned by Harry Cockshutt and his associates to bring about the desired result, but Mr. Harold and his friends balked that friendly purpose.

Upon the absence of a struggle between Conservative and Liberal Unionists in the one riding depended also the avoidance of a like struggle in the other and that both will now take place is most decidedly not the fault of the Conservative Unionists.
They showed their good faith to an extreme point. In this regard the facts are there and cannot be controverted.

The outcome is that in a time of struggle at the front, where Canadians are daily giving their lives to ensure our comfort and liberty, there will be a petty turmoil in the two Brants with dissension instead of concentration and personal feeling instead of undivided purpose in a great cause.
And for such a state of affairs we emphatically repeat the local Conservatives are not in any sense to blame.

However, now that the fight is on, there will be no quarter given on behalf of what Conservative Unionists consider to be a whole-souled endorsement of the platform and the purposes of Sir Robert Borden and his colleagues.
NOTE AND COMMENT.
Get your coats off on behalf of helping the brave boys at the front and the win-the-war candidates in the two Brants.
It is painful to think of that scene of hubbub at the Reform meeting.
Mr. Harris was not present when he accepted his nomination. If he had been the dolings would have been apt to give him a pain in the region of the diaphragm.
We have a white elephant in the City Hall and a bear garden at the Lib. convention so that this good burg can boast of a good start for a messenger.

Harris would be wise to quit now instead of waiting for what is coming to him on election day.

THE BRANT CONVENTION.
Ten delegates from each side threatened matters in this city last night with reference to agreeing upon Fusion candidate for the North Riding.
Nothing resulted except a lot of hard talk.
The Conservatives, as a matter of fact, had the better case for they were able to show a clear and unreserved effort to make way for Hon. Mr. Rowell, an effort blocked by Mr. Harold and his friends, and they also asked the Liberal delegation to name a resident Conservative of the riding, who would be acceptable to them. Time and time again the question was pressed, but without result.
Mr. F. Snook of Paris, ably presented the facts as far as Harry Cockshutt was concerned.
Mr. Davidson, M.P.P., was the main spokesman for the others. He is the gentleman who not long ago during a speech in Waterloo, said that the time would come when "You will go down on your knees and thank God for such a man as Laurier." Mr. Davidson is the possessor of a very sarcastic tongue, and he repaid the courtesy of the Conservatives who allowed him to speak at their meeting in Paris last Saturday night, by intimating that he had made them "pull in their horns." In reality he was treated with the greatest consideration and admitted at the gathering that nothing had been said to which he could take exception. He advanced the plea that had Mr. Fisher been the candidate Mr. Harold would not have run. Nonsense. Mr. Harold was in the field as far back as two years ago with the avowed object of trying to beat Fisher, who was not then known as likely to later be called to the Senate.

The fight in the North Riding has been brought about by the efforts of Liberal Unionists there, in face of Conservative Unionists going more than half way, in fact offering to stand aside for one of their number. It is they who have invited the struggle and it is now up to all sincere wishers of the Union Government to back Harry Cockshutt, who by deed and word, has been an ardent win-the-war man from the commencement of hostilities.

BOURASSA PARTNER WITH LAURIER.
The Toronto Globe in a leading editorial refers to the pledge which Bourassa is enacting from all Laurier candidates in Quebec to the effect that they favor the immediate suspension of the Military Service Act, and abandonment of further Canadian help in the war and aid.
This pledge, which is to be exacted from the candidates of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Province of Quebec, and wherever else throughout the Dominion Nationalist influence extends, ought to be enough for even the most dictatorial of dictators. But Bourassa is a hard master. He will not be content until he obtains assurances that no additional efforts will be made to prosecute the war. In effect he insists that if Sir Wilfrid Laurier's candidates in Quebec receive Nationalist support they must earn it by adopting the Nationalist attitude of hostility to the prosecution of the war upon any terms.
It may be said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Quebec followers in signing the Nationalist pledge go no farther than Sir Wilfrid himself has gone in his manifesto. The suspension of the operation of the Military Service Act until it has been referred to the people, as proposed by Sir Wilfrid, implies its abrogation if the popular verdict is against the measure. The Nationalist pledge, therefore, demands no more than by implication Sir Wilfrid Laurier is prepared to concede.

But what next? Let us suppose that a referendum has been decided upon, and that a solid French-Canadian vote, reinforced by the scattered elements throughout the other Provinces that are opposed to the Act or to further participation in the war, should defeat the Act? Would Bourassa be content with this triumph, which would inevitably lead to the speedy reduction of the fighting strength of the Canadian force through failure to send reinforcements? There is not the remotest possibility that Bourassa would stop there. What he wants to do, what he has been doing ever since 1897, is to implant hatred of British connection in the minds of the Canadian people. The leopard has not changed his spots. The Nationalist leader, with the pledges of the Liberals of Quebec to suspend the Military Service Act in his hands, would go forward with confidence to the second part of his program, already outlined in Le Devoir. Having made an end of the Military Service Act he would continue the struggle against all additional war effort.

WHY PRAYER IS NOT ANSWERED.
Subject of Evangelist Hanley's Sermon at Tabernacle Last Night.
The Tabernacle was about half full last night, many remained away on account of the over flow on Sunday evening. But it was an interested and happy crowd just the same. Mr. Fred Fisher was on hand at 7:30 as the choir began its evening chorus with Mr. Andrew's joining in at intervals.
Three reasons were given why God does not answer prayer.
(1) We do not believe they will be answered, we fall to get a big enough conception of what God can do. Some folk carry around a shingle and ask God to give them five bushels of blessing. Pray and believe and you can do anything you wish.
(2) God will not answer your prayer until you put yourself into your prayer. "Lord send us a revival," is of no avail but, "Lord send us out after a revival" will bring an answer which will shake this city. This revival campaign in Brantford and not some thing which I have brought here in a suit case.
(3) God will answer your prayer when we pray for some one and go after that one. Let all the churches and all the people pray for God's blessing and send out where to receive it and all will be well. One thousand praying women will solve all our difficulties and give us victory.
Dr. Hanley set in a good word for the Vice-Dean, and welcomed men to the Tabernacle to break business there.
The subject of the sermon for the

WEDDING BELLS.
Details of a Double Military Wedding in Which Brantfordites are Interested.
An officer of the 15th Battalion writing of the double wedding of Capt. Stenlin and Miss Sweet and Lieut. Preston and Miss Paterson says:
The sun was shining so blithely as I left camp riding my horse. It did seem so odd, riding to church to play the organ at a wedding service. I got down to Willey at 1.15 and found the bride waiting. The organ was over to the vicarage to see the young brides-to-be and sure enough they were there, having arrived in charge of Major Sweet at about 1.30 from London. After shaking hands and saying "Hello," I went back to the church, where all the officers soon gathered and of course all the folk from the local village. The boys went in their vestry and the girls were near the church and then came forward. When the girls on the arms of Major Sweet and Col. Outchell came forward I played "The Wedding March." The bride after the ceremony changed them to bright golden dresses. The place was crowded and at the gate there were horses for every officer of the battalion. We mounted our steeds and formed a guard of about eighteen horses in front and about a similar number in rear of the wedding car, white officers rode alongside to complete the guarding of them up to and through the camp, where at oil mess we had arranged to drink a toast to long and happy lives for them all.
How wonderful it all seemed, our horses prancing and jumping about, white ribbons and uniforms, sun-bleached after showers, everything was perfect.
The brides met us on the road about a quarter of a mile from the lines and we all marched in to their music. We passed through the camp the whole battalion cheering as we came to our own lines. Down the middle of the road we were met by our wife, laughter, cheering and must be an accompaniment seldom heard under such circumstances and rarely experienced by Canadian girls. So far from the "in such a wonderful and ancient land, married from a church over a thousand years old, surrounded by soldiers of all ranks who could not but be the more so, both from side of this solemn in Europe—how could these dainty brides be other than overwhelmed by this wonderful contemplation of association.
A wedding is usually enough to cause considerable excitement, how much more then must it have been to the two very brave and pretty brides. Surely they had a welcome to cheer their hearts.
At the mess the toast to the brides was drunk. A sterling silver service was presented to each with the crest of the 15thth engraved on each piece. Who would not have such a relic? Given under the conditions which made the marriages here and under these circumstances possible, and remembering again just why it all was and is, I cannot help believe that many generations from now these little pieces will still bear testimony that a number of Canadian came over to try and do a bit to help old Mother England, and that two very brave girls came across the stormy sea at about the worst season of the year to be with those who loved and leded them.
The two happy couples left in cars for London. There was no fire, but content was thrown about like snow. The car was filled with it. We cheered them as they left and watched them out of sight. It was such a happy double wedding.

HUNS DEFEATED.
By Corrier Leased Wire.
London, Nov. 14.—The Germans met with a complete defeat at the hands of the British yesterday in Flanders, the war office reports. An attempt to recapture the ground recently won by the British near Passchendaele was repulsed.
The communication follows:
"Following upon the increased activity of their artillery already noted the Germans yesterday afternoon attacked the British positions held by our troops on the high ground north of Passchendaele. The attack was repulsed completely.
"There is nothing further to report."

HAVE GOOD HEALTH.
Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Old Reliable Spring Tonic.
Don't let the idea that you may feel better in a day or two prevent you from getting a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla today from any drug store and starting at once on the road to health and strength.
When your blood is impure and impoverished it lacks vitality, your digestion is poor, and all the functions of your body are impaired.
Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest known blood tonic. It will build you up quicker than any other medicine. It gives strength to do and power to endure. It is the old standard tried and true all-the-way round blood purifier and enricher, tonic and appetizer. Nothing else acts like it, for nothing else has the same formula or ingredients. Be sure to ask for Hood's, get it today, and begin taking it at once.

FRANCH OFFICIAL.
By Corrier Leased Wire.
Paris, Nov. 14.—The artillery was very active last night on the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) says a French official communication. French detachments made a number of successful raids, particularly southeast of St. Quentin, east of Saigneville and at Acheval. The detachments, he thinks, are damaging his property and the other evening he visited his tenants with the object of protesting against their rough treatment of the house. Mr. Dardagnan challenged his right to eject them and the fight commenced. Egoian went down to defeat before the "entente cordiale" and preferred a charge of assault. The evidence indicated that the fight was a general all-round free-for-all fray and the case was dismissed.

PRAYER MEETINGS.
Miss Robertson of the Hanley, Fisher party reports that morning prayer-meetings are going exceedingly well. Seventy-five women were present at the meeting on Tuesday morning of the women of Group A at the home of Mrs. Isaac Moyer, 45 Superior Street, when Miss Robertson spoke in a most inspiring manner. The ladies of groups C and D which groups include the territory north of Colborne street and east of Clarence street and to the city limits both north and east will meet at the home of Mrs. James Adams, 152 Chatham street on Thursday morning to-morrow Nov. 15th at 10 o'clock. Paris, Nov. 14.—The artillery was very active last night on the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) says a French official communication. French detachments made a number of successful raids, particularly southeast of St. Quentin, east of Saigneville and at Acheval. The detachments, he thinks, are damaging his property and the other evening he visited his tenants with the object of protesting against their rough treatment of the house. Mr. Dardagnan challenged his right to eject them and the fight commenced. Egoian went down to defeat before the "entente cordiale" and preferred a charge of assault. The evidence indicated that the fight was a general all-round free-for-all fray and the case was dismissed.

MASONS VISITED BY GRAND MASTER

Brant Lodge Had Big Evening Last Night; First Degree Put On

Brant Lodge Masons were at home last night at their rooms in the Temple to receive an official visit from Right Worshipful, the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, in Ontario.

After the opening of the Lodge the work of the first degree was put on with musical ritual, and before adjournment was made to the banquet hall, the Grand Master, on behalf of the Past Masters and District Grand officers, presented to the Brantford Lodges, a handsomely framed and large photograph of Past District Deputy Grand Master, R. W. Bro. Dr. Hanna.

The King—God Save the King, song selected by Bro. W. T. Millard; The Most Worshipful the Grand Master and the Grand Lodge of Canada—Proposed by R. W. Bro. Dr. Hanna.

Our Absent Brethren—Proposed by R. W. Bro. Rev. G. A. Woodside, Reading, W. Bro. N. D. Neill. Sister Lodges—Proposed by W. Bro. E. R. Read; responded to by R. W. Bro. Rev. J. R. Hanley, P.M., Calvary Lodge, No. 95, Iowa.

In his address to the brethren, the Grand Master pointed out not only the duty they as Masons, owed to the Great Architect of the Universe, but also the duty they owed to their King and Country.

The members were enthusiastic in the singing of the National Anthem at the conclusion of the addresses.

LIEUT. E. F. COREY

Is Reported on the Casualty List To-day

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Corey received a telegram to-day announcing that their son, Lieut. E. F. Corey, has been wounded.

THE INSIDE HISTORY

Continued from Page One said he had been in Ottawa and had seen Mr. Rowell about it. I made him this proposition: That I would write you and request you and Mr. Rowell to talk the matter over and give us your opinion as to who should be the Unionist Government candidate in Brant.

Whatever is done, so far as I am concerned, will cause no heart burning. I hope you can decide promptly and send me a telegram stating Mr. Rowell's and your own opinion.

I am very sorry to have to trouble you about a matter of this kind, knowing you are so busy, but you will, no doubt, appreciate that it is necessary to have these things satisfactorily adjusted, if we are to save future trouble.

I remain, Yours faithfully, H. COCKSHUTT.

P.S.: I called Mr. Harold by phone and have read this letter to him, which he accepted and told him I would so inform you.

Without waiting to hear the answer to the above, another Liberal convention was called, of which notice appeared in the Express of Oct. 30th, and Mr. Harold was again nominated thereat.

On Nov. 5th, no answer having then been received to the letter above quoted, Senator Fisher and Mr. W. S. Brewster went to Ottawa, with the consent of Harry Cockshutt, and met Hon. Dr. Reid, who has charge of election matters in Ontario, on Tuesday morning.

Mr. Rowell was willing and the Conservatives were willing, but Mr. Harold was not willing as set forth in his above answer.

Under the circumstances Mr. Rowell naturally wired that his name must not be considered, and he has now been offered, and accepted the nomination of the Conservatives of Durham, a Riding which they carried by 724 in the last contest.

The Court has deemed it only fair to give these particulars in order to definitely nail the distortions which have been busily circulated with regard to Mr. Cockshutt.

It will be seen that his course has been straightforward and manly throughout.

THE ANSWER. To Col. Harry Cockshutt, Brantford, Ont.

I don't believe it would be in the interest of the Union Government for me to retire. Had my advice been taken three weeks ago to consult both parties before you were nominated and again after Mr. Rowell's name was first suggested, and before I was renominated, the solution now proposed might have been possible.

Mr. Rowell was willing and the Conservatives were willing, but Mr. Harold was not willing as set forth in his above answer.

Under the circumstances Mr. Rowell naturally wired that his name must not be considered, and he has now been offered, and accepted the nomination of the Conservatives of Durham, a Riding which they carried by 724 in the last contest.

The Court has deemed it only fair to give these particulars in order to definitely nail the distortions which have been busily circulated with regard to Mr. Cockshutt.

It will be seen that his course has been straightforward and manly throughout.

Laid at Rest

The funeral of the late Frances Pierce, aged two years, five months and four days, took place from 11 Burwell Street to the G.T.R. station to Lynden. The Rev. David Alexander and Rev. Mr. Carr conducted the service at the house, while Rev. Mr. Cropp officiated at the church and grave. The floral tributes were as follows: Wreaths, father and mother; W. T. Farr; sprays, grand-father and mother Dymont, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. John McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. John Devereaux, Mr. and Mrs. Bethune, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Page and Leone, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Dargill, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. James Wallely, Mrs. VanSickle and Eva, Mrs. Durham and Vera, Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Mayne Rouse.

MRS. THOS. BATCHELOR

The funeral of the late Mrs. Batchelor took place from the family residence, 138 Marlboro St. The deceased was 47 years of age. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and three sorrowful children, one son overseas, and her only sister in Scotland. The floral tributes were many; family wreath, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mathewson and family, a spray; Mrs. G. Wilkes, a spray; ladies of Alexandra church, spray. The pallbearers were Mr. Brockee, Mr.

NOTICE

We beg to notify our consumers that the recent interruptions to service on Sunday mornings has been caused through the stringing of heavier wires on our main circuit in order to handle the increased business and to maintain our voltage at the proper standard. These Sunday interruptions will continue for some two or three weeks. The last interruption to the main circuit will be Sunday, November 18th from 5 a.m. to 8 a.m. The Terrace Hill section will be interrupted for the following two or three Sundays from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m.

WE ARE HERE TO SERVE YOU

To The Editor of The Courier

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 14, '17.
To the Editor of The Courier:
Brantford, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—During my short life to date, it has been proven conclusively many times that when a man or a small body of men attempt, by manipulation, to stifle the voice of the people, there is something bound to break.

(To-day from coast to coast, in this free Dominion, we find a wave of resentment, and reproach literally sweeping the country against any manipulation which takes the management of the country out of the hands of the masses, where it belongs, and places it in the hands of the few.)

The coming election will be an issue between the people seeking self-government, as opposed to a group of men who have placed themselves in authority with the despotism of the old British House of Lords. Please do not make any mistake about it. That is the issue! Personally I am proud to say that I am an advocate of the rule of the people by the people and not of the rule of the people by the few. Rule or be ruled—take your choice.

To bring the matter home, we have seen attempt after attempt made for a saw-off in the two Brants, one gentleman to take one seat provided another gentleman got the other, and all that sort of thing. Possibly the majority of the electors approve of this game, but thank goodness I am no party to it nor will I ever be. If we are free, let us be free and say who we want or do not want. There is a wide difference of opinion, and goodness knows every elector should be entitled to his own opinion. The victor is always the one that pleases the majority of the people.

In glancing over the Globe to-day, I note that at a meeting of Brantford Liberals Tuesday evening that Mr. Harris was present and accepted a nomination. Perhaps he was and perhaps he wasn't. Those that were there knew that he was only represented by a letter. Surely the Globe's correspondent is in error. It makes one wonder who the correspondent of that paper is. The same article says that the meeting was strongly against a candidate that would support the will of the electors in the matter of the Military Service Act. Surely an error again, and it leads me to believe that the Globe received its report before the meeting was adjourned. It surely looks like it.

In conclusion, allow me to predict that this election will not be a fight between Conservative, Liberal or Labor, but rather a fight of a free people against the present autocratic, self-appointed combination called Union Government. If this does not prove to be the case I retire as a prophet.

Wishing you, sir, the very best of health and prosperity, I remain,
Yours respectfully,
ARTHUR O. SECORD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

While Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Seace were attending service in St. James' Church last Sunday evening, two young fellows took possession of their car and made off with it. Fortunately one of the church wardens happened to suspect something was wrong outside and hurrying out saw the men going off in the car. Procuring another car, Mr. Seace followed them and the men seeing they would be caught, left the car on Sydenham street and ran off. Such a thing as this has never happened on the Hill before.

The Rev. Rural Dean Adamson of Paris took the services in St. James' Church on Sunday morning and delivered a capital address on the grand work of the British Red Cross.

The funeral of the late Mrs. J. J. Cunningham of Sydenham street took place on Monday afternoon at Mt. Hope Cemetery, the Ven. Archdeacon Mackenzie officiating. The deceased had been ill for some time, but bore her illness with Christian patience.

Mrs. Ralph Storey, of Sydenham street, who has been in the hospital for some weeks, is now slowly recovering from her long illness.

For the convenience of those who cannot attend the tabernacle union services are being held in the Baptist and Methodist Churches on the Hill.

BRANTFORD, AND THE AFTER-THE-WAR PERIOD

The Struggle for Advancement is Going to Assume a Bitterness Unknown in the World's History

Some there are who are planning to seize what they call the tremendous trade opportunities of the after-war period. There are others who but utter warnings of the unprecedentedly bitter trade which will follow the war of shot and shell. Again others fancy that the Allies will, of necessity, follow the path traced by the Hun, and subsidize foreign trade, giving it both moral and financial support.

It is all a huge problem, and Canada, with the rest of the world, will have to meet that problem to her own making or unmaking. On a smaller, but just as important a scale, each city will be in the throes of a bitter trade contest. The future, for a century to come, may depend upon the plans taken for development of trade and commerce during the first years succeeding the declaration of peace.

In the first place, there will be a tremendous reorganization to be effected. Hundreds of plants now being used for the making of munitions and other war necessities, will have to be re-converted. There will be a world-wide scramble for trade. Old markets will in some cases be unavailable, and new markets will only open to those who seek them persistently. Brantford's prosperity is dependent upon the prosperity of her manufacturers, and the prosperity of her manufacturers is dependent to a large degree on the loyalty and efficiency of the citizens. Neither can exist without the other. Germany's efficiency in manufacturers before the war was well-known. Her commercial and financial condition will be a vital factor in the after-war situation. Germany's vast overseas trade has been wiped out since the outbreak of the war, and her customers have been largely taken by competitors. Two factors emerge clearly.

One is that Germany must find huge trade profits somewhere, or perish utterly. The other is that all her former markets will either be locked or barred against her, or they will have learned to depend upon other sources of supply.

What will be the effect of all this? Will it not sharpen the notorious unscrupulousness of her manufacturers and exporters a hundredfold? Will it not lead them to force the world into a struggle for markets and trade, beside which previous struggles will be child's play. These questions vitally effect every Brantford citizen.

EFFICIENCY IS VITAL

The keynote of the position, for Canada, appear to be a great increase in national efficiency. There must be no more easy-money booms, no more promoters' schemes, no more subdivision of imaginary city lands. Everything must rest on a concrete foundation of fact and efficiency and thoroughness.

The manufacturer must get down to the brass tacks of his manufacturing. Some time ago Colonel Pope, the President of the National Council of American Manufacturers, stated that nowadays a manufacturer had to be an economist, a student, a statesman, and half a dozen other things. That gives the measure of the new situation in a phrase.

There must be economy of production, economy of distribution. The Government Consular and Commercial Representatives abroad must be keyed up to the new level. Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, the Manufacturers' Association, Builders' Exchanges, Real Estate Exchanges, all these trade protective associations must rise to a new appreciation of their responsibilities and their opportunities.

CANADA'S NEW PRESTIGE

Canada will start the after-war period with a magnificent prestige among the nations. In the middle of 1914 the country was faced with a tremendous crisis. Armies had to be organized business had to be steadied and then re-organized on a war basis, the whole Dominion had to be cast into the melting pot of the new conditions. The result is that the national business in every department is on a higher level of efficiency than ever before. The time is coming when another big re-organization will be demanded, an organization for peace. Canada can begin her preparations and her planning with greater faith in her future success after having come safely through the unequalled testing time of 1914.

WHERE WILL BRANTFORD STAND?

What about Brantford in this re-making of the industrial world? Like every other city Brantford is a world in the making, having within it all the factors that make for success or failure. In connection with this Booster Campaign, many articles have been written showing the need of citizen-co-operation. With genuine loyalty to the city with earnest endeavor by each one of us, and with a clear understanding of the good to be derived, Brantford must and will be ready for the new era.

Brantford's manufacturing plants are organized on a bed-rock level of efficiency, controlled by men of wide vision and high enterprise. They have gained world-wide markets, and manufacture what will be most needed by all nations at the close of hostilities. Our manufacturers are emphatically ready and need have no fear for the outcome.

Given the support of our citizens as a whole, Brantford will become a yet larger and better city, and will not be found wanting when the after-war period breaks upon the world. But the essential point is that co-operation and pride in our city must be pre-eminent.

Every Out of Town Buy a Gamble

WHAT CAN WE SAY TO CONVINCE YOU?

Much Has Been Written and Published Regarding Buying at Home—Are You Serving Your Own Best Interests?

Are you still unconvinced? There are no arguments in favor of spending your money out of town. The habit cannot stand the light of close investigation. You do not, will not—if you buy out of town—advertise the fact to your friends and neighbors. You who make a practice of going away from Brantford for goods you can secure here—are you proud of your methods. If you could realize it, a light temporary advantage may be purchased too dearly. Your own best interests will be better served in the long run by what benefits your neighbors, who are co-partners in the fight for community prosperity.

The conclusions of a cost expert as to the comparative buying power of different classes of merchants clearly demonstrates that the larger concerns have little, if any, advantage, in the buying of merchandise.

The same may be said when the selling methods employed by the large out-of-town houses are compared with those employed by the local dealers. From both viewpoints the big out-of-town houses are entirely without advantage; in fact, where there is any advantage it favors the local dealer. That being the case, if the out-of-town dealer offers you articles cheaper in price, it must necessarily follow that the quality must be skimpy. We are not, any of us, experts in all lines of manufacture. True, we may believe that each purchase is as recommended. But how many of us are sure.

No way has ever been devised of evading transportation charges and the consumer is always the man who pays. It is in his connection that the out-of-town houses put over their biggest business-getting lemon. In the explanation of how it is done will be given an illustration of one of the many ways they use to create the impression that they sell cheaper than local retail merchants.

The whole question of out-of-town trading as against doing business with a reliable house at home is one of vital concern to every community in the country.

Surely every resident of Brantford takes a real pride in his or her city? Is there one amongst us that has not the desire to play a part that will advance the position of his or her home city? Is there a citizen of Brantford so disloyal to his city that he will not make a sacrifice—if sacrifice were necessary—for the lasting benefit of his home. Surely all will do a share towards pushing Brantford forward to its destined goal, as a great, bustling, thriving centre, one of the richest and fairest in this Dominion. Make "Buy at Home" and "Boost Brantford" your slogan, first last and all the time.

The Business Men Endorse Campaign

With only a few exceptions Brantford's business men endorse the Buy-at-Home Campaign. This means that each of these merchants, needing what another merchant sells, will make his or her purchase locally. This is as it should be. The pledge to buy at home is easily kept, and will, without doubt, be of much value to the city.

Gold Bricks

Every day, of every year, the gold brick game is played. First in one way, then in another, but the game is put over, and always there are "takers." Sometimes this brick is so disguised that its true nature is seldom discovered, but the brick is there, just the same. Many times the brick is handed out in the shape of merchandise—sometimes consciously. But your local merchant will not knowingly resort to that kind of business. If unconsciously he hands you a brick, rest assured that he is as anxious as you are to right the wrong. That's one of the good features of dealing locally. The gold brick doesn't stay put.

BEWARE OF THE CHAIN-LETTER

Local Women "Bit" and Many Were Stung

Not long ago a number of Brantford girls and women were taken in by a petticoat fraud. Each was asked through advertisements to send 10 cents to a firm and copies of the advertisement which she received to a number of friends. The flood of replies for a time threatened to swamp the Minneapolis post office but is now over.

The dime flood started when Minneapolis "silkers" started a chain letter advising women that each recipient of one of the notes could obtain a silk petticoat by sending copies to a few of her friends and sending 10 cents to a mythical mail order concern. Post office inspectors squelched the scheme right at the start.

Since then 1,116,651 letters have been received, coming from all parts of the world. Liberia, Madagascar and Manchuria were among some of the far-away lands that were heard from.

BRANDON VICTORY LOAN By Courier Leased Wire. Saskatoon, Nov. 13—Albert Champagne, M. P., for Battleford in the last election was chosen by a convention of Laurier Liberals at Battleford as their candidate last evening. The Unionist convention for Battleford met at Wilkie on Friday.

LIBERALS CHEERED SALTS OF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

(Continued from Page One.) gathering when he moved an amendment that no more time be given Mr. Harris to arrive at a definite decision. The amendment carried by an overwhelming majority, practically unanimously.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. It is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful. It is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a tumbler glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is especially good for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effective, lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble. It is an endeavour to clear the air. The meeting was adjourned until Saturday night when a properly constituted convention could arrive at a decision.

Mr. Harris' decision. A sensation was sprung when Mr. Harley returned to the room and announced that in the interval since he had left, he had communicated by long-distant telephone with Lloyd Harris, who was in Toronto en route to Washington, and had informed the latter that the meeting had refused to have further dealings with the Union committee.

the convention." Referring to Mr. Harris, he said, "I don't want to see him kicked out."

Again the Constitution, was investigated by Mr. McEwen to discover whether the nomination could be reconsidered, but there was apparently no loophole and the search ended in vain.

Mr. Preston in an effort to quell another rising of disorder called on the chair for a ruling as to the status of the meeting. He doubted if it was truly representative. The chair could give no ruling, and in turn appealed to Mr. Preston.

"I don't know, I am asking you, was the answer of Mr. Preston. Mr. Preston reiterated that he did not believe the meeting to be truly representative, but was lapsed.

A delegate from one of the rural districts could not understand why Mr. Harris was not informed of the spirit of the meeting and given an opportunity to resign rather than have a split in the party. This query precipitated another prolonged discussion and the meeting broke up completely out of control. No effort was made by the chairman to call it to order, and for upwards of fifteen minutes the almost helplessly involved situation was hopelessly considered.

Finally a semblance of order was restored after some had left in disgust for home, and the chairman asked all, exclusive of the Oakland delegation, who approved of Laurier to stand. About one half stood. Later Mr. Harris stood in a body for Sir Wilfrid.

T. H. Preston spoke, pointing out that there was a Laurier candidate selected, the party would still be split. When reciprocity was the main issue at the last election, he had advised the people to vote for Laurier, and the people had been sacrificed to the rural sections, who wanted the agreement with the U.S. The people of the city wanted conscription. The country did not. It was now the turn of the country to vote for Laurier, and although they were adversely affected by the Military Service Act, it was their turn to sacrifice themselves for the city.

This address provided food for another animated discussion, and once again disorder and chaos ruled. More Liberals seized their hats and departed in haste. Several motions were introduced advocating an adjournment, finally with no provision for another meeting, no united expression of the meeting regarding a platform or a candidate. Chairman Cook declared an adjournment.

KAISER'S DOWNFALL FORECAST OVER FOUR HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Remarkable Prophecy Made by German Monk In Early Seventeenth Century—All Agree That Last German Emperor is Now on the Throne

(By R. C. Wyndham, in Chambers' Magazine) That visions of future events and the gift of prophecy have been vouchsafed in all times to certain individuals cannot be doubted, for we have the evidence of Holy Writ to confirm this; but very often these predictions are obscure and difficult to unravel until the event foretold actually happens. Then we call to mind the prediction made, perhaps centuries before, and we palliate our unbelief with the example of the Trojans of old and the story of Cassandra.

Daniel's vision of the "Four Great Empires" happened in the year 606 B.C. Of the Fourth Empire the prophecy says: "A king of fierce countenance shall arise understanding dark sentences (lies). His power shall be mighty, and shall prosper and practice, and shall destroy the just people. Through his policy also he shall cause guile to prosper; he shall magnify himself in his heart, and shall destroy many; he shall also stand up against the Prince of Princes, but his power shall be broken."

The time appointed for the fulfilment of the prophecy was "Seven Cycles," and as each cycle represents 360 years, so seven times 360 would equal 2520. As the prophecy was delivered in the year 606 B.C., as before stated, then by subtracting 606 from 252 we get the number 1914, the year the present war broke out, the greatest war the world has ever seen, as prophesied by the prophet Daniel and St John the Divine, which shall only end with the great "Armageddon."

St. Peter, in his address on the day of Pentecost, quotes the words of the prophet Joel: "Your sons and your daughters shall prophecy and your young men shall see visions, and your old men dream dreams."

Having these examples before us, why should we deny the gift of prophecy in these latter days? We see prophecies and predictions given four and five and even seven hundred years ago being wonderfully fulfilled in our own time.

In a book entitled "Vaticinius Lehtinen," written by a monk in the thirteenth century, the end of the Hohenzollern dynasty is predicted to happen consequent on the events of the year 1914. Now it is to be noted that the rise of that dynasty began only with Frederick of Hohenzollern, Burgrave of Nuremberg, in the fifteenth century, when the Emperor Sigismund conferred the mark of Brandenburg upon the said Frederick in 1417. After the death of the Elector Frederick William in 1688, Prussia became a kingdom, and Prussian militarism began to show itself, but the end of this war foreshown, not a century later, by an old poet, who in the year 1762, wrote thus: "The last Emperor of Germany shall be paralytic in the arm, and will mount his horse on the opposite side." This corresponds exactly with the case of the present Emperor. And the prediction adds: "His son shall be killed at the gates of Berlin; in that year Poland shall have its own king."

The celebrated "Prophecies of Strasbourg" and also a hermit of Aix-la-Chapelle predict the fall of the German Emperor to occur at this period.

Prophecies of Johannes the Monk, About 1600 A.D.

1. It will have been thought that the Anti-Christ has been frequently identified, for all slayers of the Lamb have a resemblance, and all evildoers are found to be typical of the Great Evil.

2. The veritable Anti-Christ will be found to be one of the monarchs of his day, a Lutheran. He will invoke the name of God (the Good Old God), and will claim to be his successor.

3. This Prince of Liars will swear by the Scriptures; he will represent himself as the instrument of the Most High, to chasten the wicked.

4. He will have but one perfect arm, and his innumerable troops will take for their motto, "God is with us," and will appear as the legions of hell.

5. For a long time he will agitate by ruse and felony; his spies will overrun the world, and he will master of great secrets.

6. He will employ philosophers who will attempt to prove that his mission is celestial.

7. A war will cause the mask to be lifted. This war will not be applied against France, but chiefly against another distinguished Power, and in a short time the war will become universal.

8. This war will enlist all the people of Christendom, and also Mohammedans, and those from afar. Armies shall rise from the four corners of the earth.

9. The Angels will enlighten the souls of men, and in this time they will recognize that this is the Anti-Christ, and that they will all be enslaved if they do not overthrow this despot.

10. The Anti-Christ will be recognized by many indications; he will go out of his way to massacre priests, monks, women, children and the aged. He will go forth torch in hand, like the barbarians, and will show no mercy while he blasphemously invokes the Name of God.

11. His pretentious words will resemble those of the Christians, but his actions will be those of Nero and the Roman persecutors. He will have an eagle in his coat of arms, and another eagle will appear, in that of his ally, the other bad monarch.

12. These are Christians, but one of them will disclose to the Pope Benedictus, who will be elected towards the end of the reign of the Anti-christ.

13. There will no more be seen any prisoners, simply to absolve the captives, for priests and monks will fight as well as other citizens; and further, the Pope Benedictus will have cursed the Anti-christ, and it will be proclaimed that those who fight against this despot will find salvation, and dying will straightway be translated to heaven like the martyrs.

14. The Papal Bull which proclaims these things will resound afar, and will give fresh courage to the brave and carry death to the allies of the Anti-christ. The defeat of the Anti-christ will demand the death of more men than Rome ever contained.

15. It will need the united efforts of all the Powers, for the Cock, the Leopard, and the White Eagle will not make an end of the Black Eagle if the prayers and wishes of all humane people do not aid them.

16. Humanity has never before known such peril. The triumph of the Anti-christ would be that of the Demon of whom he is the incarnation.

17. It has been said that twenty centuries after the incarnation of the Word, the Beast will in his turn incarnate, and menace the world with as much of evil as the Divine Incarnation brought of good.

18. In 20th century the Anti-christ will manifest himself. His army will exceed in numbers anything that has ever been imagined. There will be Christians among his followers, and there will be Mohammedans and also savage troops among the Defenders of the Lamb.

19. In all Christendom there will not be a small space that is not red-sky, earth-water, and even the atmosphere will be all red, for blood will flow into all the four elements at the same time.

20. The Black Eagle will hurl himself at the Cock who will lose many feathers, but will use his spurs heroically. He would speedily be reduced but for the aid rendered him by the Leopard and his claws.

21. The Black Eagle will come from the Lutheran country, and will surprise the Cock, and will invade much of his territory.

22. The White Eagle will come from the northern side, and will surprise the Black Eagle and the other Eagle, and will invade the country of the Anti-christ.

23. The Black Eagle will be forced to retreat from the Cock, and the Cock should follow him into the country of the Anti-christ, to help the White Eagle.

24. None of the battles which have taken place hitherto up till now will have been anything equal to those which will take place in the Lutheran country, for seven Angels, spoken of by the Divine St. John, will now pour out the fire of their vials of wrath on the impious land, which signifies that the Lamb will obtain the Catholic of Canada and the United States of America.

25. When the Beast sees that it has lost, it will become furious and will work destruction and for some months the Feast of the White Eagle, the talons of the Anti-christ, and the spurs of the Cock will rend it, Rivers will be forded by means of dead bodies, which will divert the course of the waters. Only the very distinguished, such as emperors, princes, shall be interred, for the carnage of the war will be heaped together with the victims of plague and hunger.

26. The Anti-christ will on several occasions sue for peace, but the Seven Angels will go before the Three Animals and the Defenders of the Lamb, and will proclaim that peace shall only be accorded on conditions that the Anti-christ be crushed as straw in the threshing.

27. The Three Animals and the Agents of the Lamb cannot stop fighting whilst there remains soldiers of the Anti-christ, and will crush as straw in the threshing.

28. What makes the decision of the Lamb so implacable is that the Anti-christ has pretended to be a Christian, and has blasphemously acted in the name of God. If that he does not perish, the fruit of the Redemption will be lost, and the gates of hell will have prevailed against the Saviour, and this cannot be.

29. This will be no humane war. The Three Animals and the Defenders of the Lamb will exterminate the last army of the Anti-Christ, but the battlefield will be made a charnel house as large as a big city. For the land will be transformed the place, making it a chain of bill-clocks.

30. The Anti-christ will lose his crown, and will die in solitude and in misery. He will be taken out of the Crescent from Europe where there will remain none but Christians. The White Eagle will then establish himself in Constantinople.

31. Then shall commence an era of peace and prosperity for the world, and there shall be no more war; each nation shall be governed by its own conscience, and will live in justice. Then peace shall reign, and happiness shall dawn on the human race.

Such are the extraordinary prophecies

ditions of Johannes the Monk, uttered over three centuries ago, much of which we see already fulfilled to come. Paragraphs 2 to 8 show clearly the figure of Kaiser William II, as if his name was actually mentioned, especially paragraph 4, where it says, "He will have but one perfect arm, and will appear as the legions of hell." Paragraphs 12 13 and 14 fill us with amazement! Does the present attitude of the Catholics of Canada and the United States of America headed by Monsignor Bonzano, Delegate Apostolic at Washington, foreshadow the fulfillment of this part of the prediction? Time will tell. Paragraph 26 says, "The Anti-christ will on several occasions sue for peace." Has not the Kaiser on several occasions sued for peace both covertly and openly? But peace shall not be accorded until his armies are crushed "as straw in the threshing." Paragraph 11 we read, "His pretentious words will be those of a Christian, but his actions will be those of Nero and the Roman persecutors." Paragraph 3 bears on this, where it says, "This Prince of Liars will swear by the Scriptures, and he will cause himself to be represented as the instrument of the most high, to chastise the wicked." Can words be plainer or point more significantly to the Kaiser? The example given above of Professor Seeby bears out paragraph 8, but is only one out of thousands. Such a rotomontage of sycophancy, and such expressions of barbarous cruelty make civilization shudder, and arouse universal anger and contempt. But the tide has turned, and to-day, instead of their "te deums," their churches resound with the "de profundis." Germans would be glad of peace now, many of them on any terms. Paragraphs 12 13 and 14 fill us with amazement! Does the present attitude of the Catholics of Canada and the United States of America headed by Monsignor Bonzano, Delegate Apostolic at Washington, foreshadow the fulfillment of this part of the prediction? Time will tell. Paragraph 26 says, "The Anti-christ will on several occasions sue for peace." Has not the Kaiser on several occasions sued for peace both covertly and openly? But peace shall not be accorded until his armies are crushed "as straw in the threshing." Paragraph 11 we read, "His pretentious words will be those of a Christian, but his actions will be those of Nero and the Roman persecutors." Paragraph 3 bears on this, where it says, "This Prince of Liars will swear by the Scriptures, and he will cause himself to be represented as the instrument of the most high, to chastise the wicked." ### THE DAILY ROUND, THE COMMON TASK

"When for Several Months at a Stretch Your Guns are Never Moved, Routine at the Front Grows as Monotonous as in a Fort in Peace Time."

(By and Lt. K. N. Colville)

When for several months at a stretch your guns are never moved, from their position and there is no immediate prospect of a push, routine in a heavy battery at the front is apt to grow as monotonous as it is in a fort in peace time. You begin to look wistfully at your map and wonder if the Higher Command is ever likely to select your sector for a push (it never occurs nowadays to the British gunner that the enemy is likely to do anything of the sort) and you plan all sorts of strategic moves by which, if you were the Higher Command, you would breach the Boche lines and cut off great chunks of his army. The only thing that makes you a little doubtful in nine months out of twelve, is the nature of your local mud in which you begin, after long acquaintance, to take a certain pride, boasting that it surpasses in depth and extent, adhesiveness and retentiveness that of any other area on the front.

There are many things you feel you want. One is more fighting; you want to feel that the war is being speeded up a bit, and that you yourself are playing a bigger part. Another is more definite results. You don't mind sitting on shivering all night firing salvoes if you are going to be told next day that you caught a Prussian division coming up into the line and all but annihilated it, or even that you bagged the approaches to some crumbling village so effectively that your infantry were able to take it and consolidate it with never a counter attack to worry them. But such satisfaction, alas, is seldom yours. For the most part it is the enemy alone who knows the extent of the damage you have done him, and he is careful to "publish" it not in Askalon.

There are exceptions, and they tend to grow more frequent as the soldier's way of life becomes a little less uniformly subterranean. Once for example about the time when the mud of Artois (an inferior brand as we thought of the mud of the Somme) was drying up, I sat on a cartridge box, with a tarpaulin over my head and a telephone and a map beside me, and watched the German shrapnel bursting away up in the air over the great trench that ran within a hundred yards of my guns. Presently I noted great brown smudges of smoke and earth going up on the crest of the ridge a thousand yards or so in front of me, and at the same time I heard the telephone beside me buzzing "O. O." "O. O." "O. O."

"Hello! I say, picking up the receiver. "Is that the guns?" says a

TOMMIES TURN OUT TROUSSEAU FINERY

Soldiers in Hospitals Be come Rivals of Convent Nuns in Needlework

No common "Sister Susie" sewing for the "convalescents" Tommy—the makes trousseaus for war-bridges. Erepostorous as the idea may seem to the home-grown imagination, Canadians who live in touch with the world have been to the convalescent homes and hospitals of the Military Commission know that scores of brides have included in their trousseaus daily personal finery as well as household linens embroidered by the returned soldiers.

The men are turning out exquisite pieces of embroidery, as occupational work during the early part of their convalescence when they must remain in bed or lie on the verandahs in steamer chairs, and selling them in many cases for prices which cover the finest work of exclusive shops bring.

Equal of Madeira

Bed spreads, towels, linen sheets and pillow covers, underclothing, lace and fancy pieces have been listed among their accomplishments. Nothing is too ambitious for under-takes, and many of the men work so finely that their work has been taken for Madeira embroidery. Like the island women they work in the sun and the tiniest variation from perfection is quickly noted.

Many of the men design the patterns and monograms they embroider, and show unsuspected artistry. To some white work appeals, and to others color as a medium of expression, but the outcome is uniformly good.

It has been found that aside from the fact that the work gives a something to occupy his thoughts it has a quieting effect on the nerves. Many interesting displays of the men's work have been arranged at the various homes, and many more are hold on until certain show pieces are finished.

And enjoyed the sight hugely. But this sort of thing doesn't often happen and though the incident cheered us all up mightily for a week or two, it still left some of the guns wanted was really to see the effect of our own fire (there were no officers left who had been posted on the spot) and further to envious the infantry their close view.

And I suppose if we ever attained our desires we should still not be content, but come to the conclusion that the best of us is a bayonet.

MRS. CHAS. PEDEN GAINS 27 POUNDS

Twice Examined and Each Time Told Operation Was Only Hope

"I have just finished my third bottle of Tanlac and have gained twenty-seven pounds," was the truly remarkable statement made by Mrs. Chas. Peden, residing at 559 Mill street, Huntsville, Ala. Mrs. Peden is one of the best known and highly respected women of that thriving little city, where she has made her home for a number of years.

"When I commenced taking the medicine," she continued, "I only weighed ninety-eight pounds, now I weigh 125 pounds and never felt better in my life. For years I have suffered with a bad form of stomach trouble, constipation and pains in my side and back. At times the pains took the form of torture and I was unable to eat and catch my breath. I had a dread of the future, and that an operation would be my only hope. I had fallen off until I only weighed ninety-eight pounds and was so weak I could hardly get around.

"I had no appetite at all, and what little I did eat would cause gas to form in my stomach, which gave me palpitation of the heart, sick headaches and a dizzy feeling about the head. When the spells came on I would get awfully nervous. I worried about myself until I could rest and sleep but little.

"I had fallen off until I was almost skin and bones and my strength and energy were slowly leaving me. I had a dread of the future, and could see nothing but the operating table and the knife. I had a perfect horror of an operation, but I had made up my mind that it was either life or death and prepared to submit to it. I had made all preparations for the operation and called on my sister to tell her good-bye as I did not know whether I would live to see her again or not. My sister begged and pleaded with me not to allow them to cut me and told me to wait and try a good tonic for a week or two. I still left some of the guns wanted was really to see the effect of our own fire (there were no officers left who had been posted on the spot) and further to envious the infantry their close view.

And I suppose if we ever attained our desires we should still not be content, but come to the conclusion that the best of us is a bayonet.

PROVIDE FOR SOLDIERS

By Courier Leased Wire

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—A report made by a special investigating committee to the soldiers' aid commission of Ottawa holds out the hope that the government will make provision for soldiers suffering from certain serious diseases. Despite the fact that the military hospitals commission has hitherto been disposed to view that no responsibility rests on the government in regard to these cases, the report states that Sir James Loughhead, chairman of the hospitals commission and Col. A. Thompson, medical superintendent, have assured the committee that the government will make provision for these men. Sir James undertook the responsibility of bringing the matter before the cabinet and assured the committee of his belief that the government intends to adopt a liberal policy towards soldiers in this class.

MAYOR A UNIONIST

By Courier Leased Wire

Regina, Nov. 13.—Mayor Cowan was the speaker of the Union Government convention held here yesterday afternoon to name a candidate for this federal riding. Dr. J. W. Mahan and Peter McAra were also named, but the latter declined to stand and Mayor Cowan secured a substantial majority on division. Besides the Liberal and Conservative delegates, the Great War Veterans had twenty delegates and the Army and Navy Veterans had five delegates in attendance.

While the ballots were being counted the cabinet and executive was formed with Peter McAra as president.

ASK WAGE INCREASE

Washington, Nov. 13.—Pennsylvania anthracite operators and miners representatives, resumed discussions here to-day on the miners' demand for a forty per cent. wage increase. Operators had declined to grant the raise asked but are willing to make some advances.

Washington, Nov. 13.—An official cablegram received here to-day announced the safe arrival in a French port of Captain Andre Tardieu, high commissioner of France to the United States, who has returned for a short stay in France to be present when the American legation arrives in Paris, and also to meet in Europe Lord Northcliffe and Lord Reading.

WILL STILL PLAY

By Courier Leased Wire

Montreal, Nov. 13.—George Kennedy, owner of the Canadian Hockey Club, says his team would be playing withstanding the action of the National Hockey Association in deciding not to operate. Mr. Kennedy said if no other games would be arranged, he would play exhibition games and then play off with the coast team.

LONDON VICTORY LOAN

ARGUMENT.

I've never found in joint debate much profit, or much loss of weight, and facts beyond all measure. My neighbors sit around all day and argue without ceasing; they labor in their daily ways, until their lungs need greasing. They say the same thing o'er and o'er, a million times they've said it; and in the village not a store will give these blocks credit. They tell how governments would run if their advice were heeded, and lack the price to buy a ton of coal that's badly needed. Some of their wives are scrubbing floors and others take in washing, while all the day these wise old bores are arguing and joshing. There are so many useful jobs that people should be doing; I don't admire the windy swabs, that talkers still pursuing. That man will yet be in a box, will yet be swatted dizzy, who leans against a post and talks while other men are busy.

PREMIER IN HALIFAX.

By Courier Leased Wire.

Halifax, Nov. 13.—Sir Robert Borden arrived in Halifax late yesterday afternoon. He was called on by some personal friend. To-day the premier will receive deputations which have been arranged, one of them from munitions manufacturers. At one o'clock he will address the Halifax Rotary Club, of which he is a member and in the evening a convention of the Conservative party is to be held. At the same hour a convention of the Liberal party will also be held.

GIRL'S SUSPENDER DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

After all, the very nicest thing for the junior girl is a plaited skirt, and when it is combined with a suspender waist there is nothing left to be desired in the way of smartness. The skirt has a straight lower edge and it is finely side-plaited to an inside belt. The suspender pieces are cut so wide at the waistline that the effect is that of a jumper. These pieces are attached to a separate wide belt. The blouse is made like a shirtwaist and the neck is finished with a broad Dutch collar. The long sleeves are gathered into deep cuffs. Serge or gabardine would be good for the skirt and suspenders, with the blouse of handkerchief linen or washable silk.

The girl's suspender dress pattern No. 8486 is cut in four sizes, 8 to 14 years. The 8 year size requires 1 1/2 yards of 30 inch material for the gowns and 2 1/2 yards of 30 inch material for the dress.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
She gave him her hand over his shoulder. Greeting it, he pressed it hard to his cheek, and a single cry was wrung from him:
"Oh, Nahnya, my dear love!"
Gritting his teeth, he forced the rest back. "I will not whine!" he muttered to himself.
Nahnya sat behind him like a ghost woman, giving no sign.
Dawn broke over the river ahead of them, and the sun rose and shone straight through the noble pass. Charley awoke, and the three of them took paddles.
They left the principal mountain chain behind them, and thereafter the river pursued a circuitous course through wide flats, and around the bases of lesser heights. They breakfasted on an exposed stony bar, obtaining fuel from a fantastic jam of drift-logs left at high water.
As the sun approached the meridian Nahnya produced the bandage again. Her face expressed the old, wistful, inscrutable blank. Never was there such a woman for ignoring all that had passed.
"We going to land soon," she said. "I take it off then."
Ralph submitted.
They landed within sound of another rapid, a hollow, throaty roar. After a wait to unload the canoe, and pack their slender baggage on their backs, Ralph was led up the bank and, as his moccasined feet told him, put upon a well-beaten trail.
"Put your hand on Charley's shoulder and follow," Nahnya said. "It is a good trail. You will not fall."
After a few minutes Nahnya took off the bandage, and Ralph found that they were swallowed in the bush once more. But this was only a forest of thickly springing aspen saplings, with straight white stems, and twinkling, trembling bright leaves.
The trail wound ahead of them and behind like an endless brown ribbon. Centuries of moccasined travel, not to speak of the hoots and paws that used it surreptitiously, had packed the earth too hard for anything to grow.
Always looking out for any evidences of his white men, Ralph thought: "This must be a main route of travel."
Once climbing a hill, he had a glimpse of the river behind them. Thence up hill and down the trail led them over a rough and characterless country. The aspen trees were springing from the ashes of the original forest.
There were raw open spaces filled with the charred remains of the monarchs, matted with the purple bloom of the fire-weed.
Through the openings Ralph saw lesser mountain heights, green to the summit. He called it an unbeautiful land. As far as he could judge the general trend of the trail was northward, but the trail twisted continually, and he often lost the sun.
They had covered, he guessed, between twelve and fifteen miles, when Nahnya called a halt. They were in a little stretch of grass fringing a still streamlet.
"We stop here till midnight," she said. "All will sleep."
Ralph awoke about sunset to find that he and Charley were alone in camp. His heart winced, remembering the other times she had stolen away from camp and he had followed her.
This time he did not go.
Soon he saw her coming back in the trail with an ax upon her shoulder. He thought that her footsteps dragged and that her face betrayed an unutterable, sad weariness. Rising quickly, he found he was mistaken. It was the old, walled face that she showed him.
"We start in five hours," she said quietly. "Sleep some more." She lay down at a little distance.
It was very dark when they arose and made up their packs. Continuing on the trail they were obliged to keep close together. Presently they commenced to zigzag down a long hill where the trail was much broken and washed. Ralph putting his feet into holes, and catching his toes on exposed roots, made but rough going of it. They reached the bottom at last.

and the trail became good again, but Nahnya, who was leading, presently struck off from it, and they crossed a wide meadow, their moccasins swishing through the grass.
The sky was heavily overclouded. Ralph could barely make out Nahnya close ahead; everything else was swallowed up in the thick darkness. Nevertheless Nahnya seemed to know exactly where they were. At a certain point in the grass, without any distinguishing features that Ralph could see, she stopped, saying:
"We wait here till it is light. You can sleep if you want."
Dawn brought another dramatic surprise. They were resting almost at the edge of a steep declivity of earth, and two hundred feet below moved another great, smooth, swift stream, its edging surface gleaming in the gathering light like creased satin; or as if the water were flowing shallowly over a mirror.
It stretched away far to the left, confined deep between its dim barr heights, like a luminous ribbon. Down stream were several fairy-like islands half-revealed through the mist with their unreal foliage.
It was a kind of gigantic trough that confined the river. From the edge of the bank the land stretched back in gentle undulations. Behind them and off to the left as far as they could see rolled an unbroken sea of grass showing a strange, dark green in the half light.
To the right, about half a mile away, the wooded hills began, rising tier behind tier.
The river first appeared foaming from behind a spur of these hills. Behind him in the grass Ralph was astonished to discover two ancient log shacks with boarded windows and padlocked doors. They reminded him with a faint shock of the existence of fellow white men.
Nahnya was busy wrapping a pack within blankets.
After cording the bundle and tying it, she gave it to Charley, and with a laconic command, led the way down the precipitous slope. They scrambled and slid down to the water's edge, accompanied by miniature avalanches of gravel.
At the bottom, drawn upon the stones, there was a little raft made of four lengths of dead timber lashed together with a strong, light cord. A little paddle was stuck between the logs.
The cord was the same that had been used to bind him; a length of it was now around the pack that Charley carried.
Ralph recognized Nahnya's handiwork. This was what she had been doing with the ax during the previous afternoon, while he and Charley slept.
Nahnya and Charley pushed the raft into the water until only its forefoot remained resting on the stones.
Charley held it from floating away, while Nahnya, kneeling on the logs, tied the pack firmly to a cross-piece. Having done this she came ashore, and an awkward silence descended on the trio.
Ralph waited apathetically for her next order, but none was issued. The resourceful Nahnya for once was at a loss. Her back was turned to Ralph, Charley continued to kneel, holding the raft.
Ralph's mind dulled with pain and from insufficient sleep did not grasp the significance of these preparations. From the first, he had been used to leaving all details of the journey to Nahnya, and he took little notice of what they carried. It was he who broke the silence.
"This little thing is never big enough to carry the three of us," he said listlessly.
"Sure!" said Charley with a grin.
Nahnya said nothing. She kept her head averted from Ralph. She twisted her hands until the knuckles were white. Ralph remembered this later.
He stepped on board the raft to test its buoyancy. As he did so, Charley with a heave of his back launched it out on the current. Then Ralph understood. He spun around, a dreadful pain transfixing his breast. "Nahnya!" he cried in a voice wild with reproach.
Her back was stubbornly turned to him, her head sunk between her shoulders, her hands pressed over her ears. Charley still knelt on the stones, his dark face working oddly.
"Good-by, Moorahp!" he cried.
In the confusion of surprise, dismay, anger, and pain that shattered him, Ralph conveyed only one idea to his brain—Nahnya's hands pressed to her ears.
His essential stubbornness responded. "She'll hear no more," he said, and shut out the agonizing sight of her, receding on the shore, he flung himself down full length to bury his head in his arms. He took no thought of the instability of his craft. Boiling off the center, the logs sank under him, tipping him into the icy water.
Quickly as it happened he heard Nahnya's cry before he went under. It was no ordinary sound of terror, but a cry of agony exactly attuned to the pain in his own breast. Even as the water closed over his head he heard and understood and everything was changed.
His limbs rose to the surface again.
The raft relieved of its burden had righted, and still floated beside him. Man and raft were being carried down together in the current. Grasping the logs he turned his head. An unforgettable picture was etched on his brain: Nahnya, waist-deep in the water, straining toward him, and Charley desperately arranging her back. There could be no mistaking that act, nor the cry preceding it. Everything was changed.

Life blossomed again.
He did not feel the paralyzing chill of the water. Pain winged out of his breast, giving place to a joy so keen it was still like pain. But he could gladly have died of this pain.
He knew for sure that she loved him.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH YERGEN CAMERON
BRING UNSPORTSMANLIKE ABOUT BILLS.

Some time ago I wrote about the way in which women use, abuse and misuse all the privileges the department stores vie with each other in giving them (I wonder if women realize that the extension of these privileges is one of the reasons that the department stores find it hard to pay their girls what they should. Surely if they did they would be willing to forego such costly rights as changing things so freely and having even the tinnest bundle sent.)

At that time I believe I said that men were more fair about matters pertaining to business dealing than women.

When Men and Women are Equally Unscrupulous

I have just had my attention drawn to one matter in which men and women are equally unscrupulous. And that is in their attitude to-

Why He Couldn't Send a Bill Collector

"Why don't you send a bill collector?" I asked.

"Couldn't do that," he said, "because I have several of his relatives for my patients and they would all leave me."

There's two examples of what I call a thoroughly unjust attitude toward business dealings on the part of men and women alike.

To retaliate against a perfectly just measure such as the merchant's asking for the two dollars or the dentist's sending a bill collector, by withdrawing one's trade, is downright mean and unfair.

Honor Ought to Keep You From Using Your Power.

To be sure you have the power but honor ought to withhold you from using it.

A good sportsman would say, "I got what I richly deserved."

Suppose the people who paid your salary paid you that way, where would you be? And these people have bills to pay just as you have. Letting bills run like that unless you are hard pushed (and even then you could surely plan to pay a cer-

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

When cough, feverish and sick give California Syrup of Figs.
Children love this "fruit laxative" and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the constipation was gone, bile and undigested food passed out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Good Night Stories

BROWN CRICKET
Brown Cricket was so happy to think the meadow folk had asked her to open their concert with a song that she didn't notice Johnny Grasshopper turn his back and disappear under the grasses.
Johnny Grasshopper had hoped he would be asked to sing, but no one but his best friend seemed to think he could sing at all. Of course Johnny Grasshopper thought there wasn't a voice in the meadow quite so rich as his, and when he heard Brown Cricket accept the invitation it made him very cross.
"Isn't it lovely of them to ask me," chirped Brown Cricket to Wooley Worm. "There's Katy-did and Johnny Grasshopper, who both have nice voices."
"Yes, there are plenty of pleasant voices among the meadow singers, but your song always seems so cheery every one feels better after listening to them," replied Wooley Worm, and she promised to call for Brown Cricket in plenty of time for the concert.
Now it happened that Johnny Grasshopper heard their conversation, and he made up his mind the best way to get a chance to sing was to keep Brown Cricket from reaching the concert on time, so he spent all day trying to find a way. When he saw Wooley Worm stop at Brown Cricket's house he hopped along among the dead grasses so she couldn't see him. And when Brown Cricket and Wooley Worm took to the smooth road, Johnny Grasshopper stopped them and said he feared they would be late if they went that way.
"I've found a much shorter way if you care to come with me," said Johnny Grasshopper, and Brown Cricket who didn't want to be late, gladly accepted his kind guidance. They hadn't travelled far when they came to a dreadful mud puddle. Wooley Worm began to cry, for she didn't want to get her feet wet. Neither did Brown Cricket, so she asked Johnny Grasshopper what he intended to do.
"Jump across!" cried Johnny Grasshopper, and with one spring he spanned the puddle, and they quickly crossed and reached the concert just as Johnny Grasshopper was trying to convince the meadow folk that Brown Cricket wasn't coming, and that he was to sing in her place.
Wooley Worm told the audience that Johnny Grasshopper had tried to do. They were so angry they wanted to drive him away, but Brown Cricket interceded, and Johnny Grasshopper was given a back seat and was permitted to listen.
Brown Cricket started the concert with a merry song, and the meadow folk never had a better time.
After the concert Wooley Worm told them about this short cut home and the lovely bridge Brown Cricket had built. They all walked across it on their way home, all but Johnny Grasshopper who jumped over the puddle and hopped out of sight.
