Hospital for Sick Children TORONTO

Upkeep of Big Charity Requires Fifty Cents a Minute.

Dear Mr. Editor:

The 44th annual report of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, shows a notable advance in every department of its service to the suffering and crippled youngsters of this province. The ward accommodation has been taxed to its capacity, and the summer annex, the Lakeside Home, was opened for the first time since the outbreak of war.

The daily average of cot patients has increased during the year from 192 to 223, including children from practically every county in Ontario. Even had the cost of supplies and labor remained stationary, the substantial increase in the number of patients would alone account for the addition to the charity's debt, which at the close of the fiscal year was $109,000. This debt has become an embarrassing burden. Further increase must threaten impairment of an enviable efficiency.

The Hospital is in the forefront of all institutions upon this continent devoted to the care of sick children. It cost $335,399 to maintain last year. This great sum not only puts at the service of the children of Ontario all the resources of medical science, but, in addition, provides for a training school for 120 nurses and for unsurpassed clinical facilities for the University students who are preparing to engage in their profession throughout the province.

The income which must be forthcoming to finance this absolutely essential work figures out at seven hundred dollars a day; and as there is no endowment fund, all but a fraction of that amount has to be derived from individual benevolence. Therefore the Trustees are making a Christmas appeal to every lover of children to foot the bills for some period of time, no matter how short it may be. A minute of mercy costs fifty cents.

For churches, societies, lodges, etc., who have more ample funds wherewith to assist the youngsters to a fair start in life, the naming of cots is suggested. A number of memorial cots have been thus dedicated in honor of the overseas service of fellow-members. This privilege is extended in recognition of gifts of $2,000 to the Main Hospital or $500 to the Lakeside Home, which can be paid in annual instalments if so desired.

Literature, illustrative of all branches of the past year's work, together with any other information desired, will be gladly furnished on application to the Secretary, the Hospital for Sick Children, College Street, Toronto. Contributions should also be addressed to the secretary.

IRVING E. ROBERTSON,
Chairman of Appeal Committee.

Export Trade in Dairy Products Assured

It is the consensus of opinion of Canadian officials who have visited Europe that the future of the export trade in dairy products is assured.

In England butter is everywhere at a premium and Canadian cheese continues to hold its good reputation. Mr. H. S. Arkell, Live Stock Commissioner, who has recently returned from overseas, states that the shortage of milk and dairy products in Great Britain is unprecedented. The same is true of other European countries. The scarcity and high price of concentrated feed is to some extent responsible for this. The condition is so general as not quickly to be remedied. It is further responsible for retarding the increase of swine production and the restoring of the normal requirements of fat. This statement from the Live Stock Commissioner should give confidence not only to dairy farmers but to those who are able to raise hogs.

A VALUABLE INDUSTRY

BALDWIN'S, LIMITED, WILL LOCATE IN CANADA.

Name of the Firm Is One to Conjure With In the Old Country. Where They Employ an Army of 14,000 Workers, and a Large Branch Will Shortly Commence Operations In Toronto.

THE real facts in the story of the coming of a branch of the great Baldwins, Limited, the largest steel manufacturers of Great Britain, to the former site of the British Forgings Company, on the reclaimed land of Ashbridge's Bay, Toronto, are far more arresting than the sometimes weird rumors that have been circulating for some weeks past in the press of Canada. Some idea of the immense importance of this industry and what benefits may accrue to Toronto and the country from its foundation there was obtained in an interview with the representatives of this great firm, Roger Beck and J. C. Davies, the managing-director, who are making arrangements for the installation of the industry, the first buildings of which have already been started on the sandy land of the new manufacturing district.

Baldwins, Limited, is a name to conjure with in the Old Country and wherever there is a demand for steel. It has an authorized capital of £7,000,000 sterling, with £5,000,000 called up. Its 13,000 to 14,000 workmen form an army larger than that which established the British Empire in India and other parts of the world. Its ramifications and property extend to every part of the British Isles, where it is entirely self-contained. "We have our own peat, our own coal, which is mined in South Wales, our own iron-ore mines in Oxfordshire and other foreign countries," said Mr. Beck.

"We have large deposits of silica, out of which heat-resisting bricks and material is made, and so on," said Mr. Davies. "This magnitude expressed in terms of products that would be astounding Baldwins turn out 1,000,000 tons of steel ingots, and raise 1,250,000 tons of coal every year. They make ship plates, boiler plates, rails, black and galvanized sheets, and tin plates, which are rolled in their mills. Around the Baldwin plant there spring up a host of complementary and necessary industries, such as coal, bricks, fire-clay, sulphuric acid, tin smelters, and a hundred other firms.

There, in brief outline, is the great firm of Baldwins. The problem of some men of imagination and patience was how to show that firm that it was needed in Canada, a fact the company clearly recognized, and how, especially, to have it located in Toronto. That feat was accomplished principally, Mr. Davies acknowledges, by Mr. Home-Smith and by Mr. E. L. Cousins of the Harbor Trust. "If it hadn't been for the determined effort of these two gentlemen," said Mr. Davies, "it would be very doubtful whether we should have embarked on this venture in Toronto. I should like to mention the names of these two gentlemen in particular. I should like to say, too, how well we have been received by the people of Toronto; how all the information possible has been placed before us; and how we have been assisted in every way."

"The whole project was opened up by our firm," said Mr. A. M. Russell, of the firm of Hugh Russell & Sons, Montreal. "We are agents in Canada for Baldwins, Ltd., and for a number of years, we have been advising them to locate out here, or it would be only a matter of time before the business they had established in Canada would be a thing of the past. We suggested that they should acquire the site of the British Forgings plant in Toronto, and establish a tin-plate and sheet industry, and manufacture there, thus recovering the business that was lost to the American manufacturers. Mr. Davies came out to Canada in April, and, in due course, the British Forgings plant was acquired." The final decision, Mr. Davies explained, was reached through two factors; the first, by the efforts of Mr. Cousins and Mr. Home-Smith in the purchase of the property; and, the second, through the sympathy of Sir Adam Beck. "Although we have not been able altogether to have Sir Adam meet our desires," said Mr. Beck, a namesake of the Hydro-knight, "still in our conference, we have been shown every consideration, and hope for the result."

"The attraction to us as a company to locate in Toronto," said Mr. Davies, "was this: Before the war we did a very considerable business in Canada, and, finding that the whole of this was being captured by the United States, it was natural that we should make an effort to restore it. What we're out for, in a few words, is to meet the needs of the whole of Canada in tin-plate, lead-coated plates, and galvanized and black sheets.

"You can quite see the enormity of this plant, when you consider that the imports of these articles before the war into Canada were 50,000 tons of tin plates and 125,000 of black and galvanized sheets. To build that plant, you can see, will take a long time, but by next May we hope to be starting production." The foundations of the three shops, each 800 feet long, have already been begun; and, soon, there will be 2,200 men employed for a start.

"The first unit we have commenced upon," continued Mr. Davies, "will require 100,000 tons of steel per annum. Another industry that we find that Canada is lacking in is heavy steel castings. As we are very desirous that these heavy castings, which we shall require for the plant, we are already contemplating putting down, we are making arrangements to operate some of the electric steel furnaces to make these castings; otherwise we should have to go to the United States or to the Old Country for them."

"Reds" Like Canada.

All that remains of the Finnish Foreign Legion, which, under British leadership, fought the Germans on the Russian frontier, but would not fight the Bolsheviks because they were revolutionaries themselves, want to come to Canada. Away up in the Baltic are these would-be Canadian citizens, who helped the allies against the Teutons, but have been a problem ever since. These are strange allies since the legion was recruited from none other than former members of the Finnish Red Guard who were expelled from their country after the last change of Government there. Men without a country, they were formed into a foreign legion, 14,000 strong, and under British and Canadian officers did good work against the Germans, who tried to cross the Russian frontier to reach Murmansk. After the armistice, however, they refused to fight the Bolsheviks themselves. Through the efforts of Britain most of the legion was finally repatriated, but there was a certain element too steeped in revolutionary ideas for the Finnish Government to allow re-entry. They were blacklisted men. They were forwarded into details and placed under Lieut. F. S. Wetton, of Winnipeg, a Canadian who went out with the Siberian force as an officer in the Devonshires. Wetton protests they are not Bolsheviks, although a little radical in tendency. He says they are anxious to come to Canada, and he has made representations to the Dominion immigration authorities in that respect. However, it is scarcely likely that Canada will see the matter in the same light. Wetton's following are the very cream of Finnish revolutionism, Oskari Tokoi, former Prime Minister for Finland, being an N.C.O. and a number of other prominent wavers of the red flag ranking as mere privates.

"Autumn" or "Fall."

Both are correct, "autumn" being rather more classic and generally used in England, while "fall" is now distinctly American and more expressive in its reference to the time of falling leaves. In England, the autumn is still sometimes called "the fall of the leaf." An English writer says: "Fall is better on the merits than autumn, in every way; it is short, Saxon, picturesque; it reveals its derivation to everyone who uses it, not to the scholar only, like autumn; and we once had as good a right to it as the Americans, but we have chosen to let the right lapse and to use the word now in no better than larceny." But if "fall" is more expensive, "autumn" has sanction of long usage and classical approval. The poets all give it the preference. Different ones speak of "cool autumnal autumn," and "yellow autumn," weather with "nodding corn."

Prince an Indian Chief.

"Dawn of Day" is the latest distinctive title to be conferred upon the Prince of Wales, who was invested with a chieftainship in the Six Nations (Iroquois) in the course of five hours spent in Brantford. At the Mohawk chapel the prince signed the register which contains the signatures of his grandfather and great-uncle the Duke of Connaught. He was particularly interested in the Bible presented to the Six Nation Indians by Queen Anne. The women of the tribe requested that he convey to his royal mother the Queen an address from them. The prince unveiled a bronze tablet inscribed with names of the 36 members of the Six Nations who died overseas.

PIMPLES ITCHED AND BURNED

Face Was Badly Disfigured. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

"Small red pimples and black-heads began on my face and my face was badly disfigured. Some of the pimples festered while others scalded and there were places where the pimples were in blotches. They used to itch and burn terribly. I saw an advertisement for Cuticura and I tried them. They stopped the itching and burning and I used four cakes of Soap and three boxes of Ointment which healed me." (Signed) Miss V. A. Hayes, Stormont, N. S., Dec. 25, '15.

Chimney Sickness.

Chimney sickness is a complaint that few people are likely to suffer from, but anyone who found himself on a sandy day at the top of the Saganeok chimney in Chicago might get it.

The chimney of Saganeok is the tallest in the world. The shaft stretches up 550 feet above the foundation pier, and as the base is 450 feet above the sea-level to start with, the place where the smoke comes out is actually 1,000 feet up, and the wind on shore averages about double the velocity of the wind down below.

Chimney sickness is due not to the height alone, but to the swaying of the chimney. In a bad gale the Saganeok chimney sways 15 inches from side to side. The most marked oscillation is at right angles to the course of the wind. Thus, in a driving north wind, it wobbles from east to west.—Tit-Bits.

Ian Hay's Anecdotes.

Among the amusing anecdotes recounted in Ian Hay's "Last Million" is one showing how much the Yankee recruits had to learn under the officers of the British and French armies even after their preliminary training at home. A young American officer wittily describes to a Red Cross nurse the emphasis placed upon the proper methods of saluting. There was an English sergeant—well, the boys used to come running a hundred yards to see him salute an officer. I tell you it tickled them to death at first. Next thing they were all trying to do it, too." Here the American gave a very creditable reproduction of the epileptic salute of the British guardsman. "Like that," he said. "I'm not surprised that," he said, "commented the nurse. "Stim," continued the officer, appreciatively, "that sergeant was a bird. At the start we regarded him as a pure vaudeville act. He talked just like a stage Englishman for one thing. I shall never forget the first morning we held an officers' instruction class. There were about forty of us. Old man Duckett—that was his name, Sergeant Instructor Duckett—marched us around and put us through our paces. We meant to show him something—we were a cheery bunch in those days—so we gave him what we imagined was a first-class West Point show. (Not that any of us had been at West Point.) When we had done enough, he lined up and said: 'Well, gentlemen, I have run over your points, and before dismissing the parade, I should like to say that I only wish the President of the United States was here to see you. If he did not catch sight of you, I know that his first words would be 'Thank Gawd from the bottom of my heart, we've got a navy!'"

Some Strange Duels.

In the latter part of the eighteenth century that prince of charlatans, Count Cagliostro, proposed a duel with poisoned pills. The trouble arose because he had called a physician a Cagliostro, on the ground that "a medical controversy should be settled in a medical manner." He proposed that two pills, one deadly, the other harmless, should be put in a box and shaken up. Each was to draw a pill and swallow it.

In due course the duel came off. Cagliostro lived. The other man died.

Some years before the war an American student in Paris, challenged by a Frenchman whose baseballs he was using. There was immense jeering, and the American was accused of everything from insanity to cowardice. The latter on the assumption that a baseball could possibly be hurt by a base-ball. But the American, taking his stand at pitcher's distance, threw with such force and accuracy that the flying sphere struck his opponent between the eyes and laid him out flat, though he recovered later on.

A duel with deadly germs was seriously proposed by a Chicago physician in 1916. The preliminaries were arranged, but at the last moment the challenged party shrank from the ordeal.

NOTHING TO EQUAL BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Alfred Naud, Natagan River, Que., writes: "I do not think there is any other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones. I have used them for my baby, and would use nothing else." What Mrs. Naud says thousands of other mothers say. They have found by trial that the Tablets always do just what is claimed for them. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, and thus banish indigestion, constipation, colic, colds, etc. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DERBY DAY INCIDENT.

Romantic Incidents of England's Premier Racing Event.

People who never bet and who usually take no interest whatever in race horses, yet find themselves reading the sporting intelligence in the newspapers when Derby Day comes round, says Spare Moments. Even bishops have been known to inquire the name of the winner. This year the excitement was unusually great, as it was the first Derby Day since racing was banished in the early days of the war.

A volume could be filled with anecdotes about the Derby and Derby winners.

The Derby of 1867 was perhaps one of the most sensational and romantic on record. It was won by Mr. Chaplin's Hermit, a horse reported to be lame. The race was actually run in a snow storm, and the winner started at the long odds of 66 to 1. The plunging Marquis of Hastings lost a fabulous sum in bets over this race, and was ruined.

The pliancy of the situation was increased by the fact that, some years previously, Mr. Chaplin and the Marquis of Hastings had been rivals in love, the marquis carrying off the lady.

The Derby was one of the greatest gambling Derbies ever known, a well-known duke losing in a single bet £180,000. Hermit's progeny won nearly £350,000 in stakes. Mr. Chaplin, who purchased him as a yearling for the modest sum of 1,000 guineas, presented his skeleton when he died in 1890 to the Royal Veterinary College. Two Derby winners have died at sea. Blue Gown, the hero of '68, was sold to a wealthy American for £4,000, and died on the voyage across the herring pond. As the horse was not insured, the Yankee lost heavily over the transaction. A similar fate was that of Kingcraft. By a strange fluke he won the Derby in 1870, but in nineteen succeeding races did not once get past the post first. He was sold for £530 in 1884, and also succumbed to the stormy seas on his voyage to the States.

Amota was another famous Derby winner. His year was 1838. Belonging to Sir G. Heathcote, the squire of Epsom, he only ran upon one occasion—that in which he won the Derby.

He is buried in the beautiful grounds of the Durdans, Lord Rosebery's charming country seat. The grave is surrounded by iron palings, and the stone slab gives full particulars as to the horse's age, and so on. It is beautifully situated within a few hundred yards of the Derby winning post, and here, surrounded by beautiful trees, daffodils and magnolias in full bloom, the classic hero's bones rest peacefully.

A well-known public house in Epsom is named after Amato.

In front of the Inn is a well. From time immemorial someone—no one as yet discovered who—has chalked a tip for the Derby on the cover of this well. Racegoers are notoriously superstitious and ready to follow the slightest tips.

A few years ago a one-time wealthy man was on the verge of ruin through his unfortunate gambling propensities. He had about £500 left, and made up his mind, so the story runs, to risk his all upon whatever horse the well "gave" for the Derby. This decision proved particularly fortunate, as the horse selected won at long odds against, and the lucky winner resolved never to back a horse again—a resolution he kept.

IS MEMORY A BLESSING.

Youth Takes Little Interest in Elder's Anecdotes.

It does not seem to have occurred to mental trainers that a good memory is not an unmixed social blessing, says the London Times. A fortune awaits the man who can teach the complete art of forgetting; for who would not spend much gold to lose the memory of past stupidities, of unkind speeches and selfish actions, or to recapture the freshness of old music, old books and old loves? However, since a good memory is reputed desirable, there is no harm in pointing out that its manifestation in the form of reminiscence is not always greeted with irrefragable rapture. The tradition of poetry, of course, has always been to bolster up the reputation of memory, for the early bard was the embodiment of tribal recollections, and poets, who are all bards at heart, have always been unable to conceive the possibility that an event worth recording once may not seem so impressive to a second generation.

Shakespeare, for instance, puts into King Henry's lips on the eve of Agincourt lines that make a picture which touches our very marrow—a picture of some great manorial hall decked for the feast, with the gray-haired old warrior presiding at his board, surrounded by friends, retainers and sturdy old yeomen of pure breed, who followed him in battle. The knight is telling the noble old tale, remembering "Harry the King, Salisbury and Gloucester," recalling with many a jest the miseries of short rations and a wet bivouac, and not forgetting "with advantages" the deeds of himself and his "meine." The old yeomen listen with rapture to the familiar story, applaud where they have always applauded, and jog their worthy master's memory if he appears to forget any familiar passage in the homely epic.

But the younger yeomen—do we see them equally attentive? Is there not a suspicious air of polite resignation in their attitude, and are their comments as they trudge back to the homestead quite respectful? These are uneasy questions.

Talents Transmitted to Sons.

There are numerous instances in history in which parents possessing uncommon gifts are supposed to have passed them on to their children. This is especially the case in regard to musical talents.

The mother of Schumann, for instance, had great musical ability. Chopin also received his wonderful gift—and also his delicate constitution—from the maternal side; Gounod's mother was exceedingly fond of music, while the mother of Spohr, the German composer, was an excellent judge of music and a fine critic, without being herself a musician.

Sir Walter Raleigh declared that he inherited from his mother that pliancy of deportment which ever distinguished him. Goethe pays frequent tribute to the character and culture of his mother, as does also the poet Wordsworth.

Sydney Smith believed that he inherited from his mother his rare conversational powers and quickness of repartee. It is well known that the mother of Edward Gibbon, the historian, was a great reader and cultivated the same taste and habit as her son.

The mother of Charles Darwin made herself acquainted with all the branches of natural history, and entertained a great fondness for animals. This record seems to show that maternal talents and tastes are frequently transmitted to sons; it is also claimed that the gifts of the fathers usually descend to the daughters.—Tit-Bits.

As Good as a Youth.

Workmen at a mill in Greencastle are telling a good story regarding one of the workmen. It has been a rule of the company not to employ men over a certain age.

A few days ago a man living within a stone's throw of the mill solicited work, but was turned down because of his gray whiskers and his snow-white hair. The "old" man was not daunted. He felt he was still good for many days of work, so he went to a drug store, bought a bottle of black hair dye and soon had his whiteness a jet black. He again asked for work of the same foreman and was accepted at once. He was put to work and made good from the start. Then he was worried because his white hair was growing, as also were his equally white whiskers. He again bought a second bottle of dye and used it to hide his identity.

The "old" man is still working his eight hours a day, and one official of the company stated he had done such a good job he did not have to buy another bottle of dye, but could hold his job, even with his white hair and whiskers.—Indianapolis News.

ENGLAND TO AUSTRALIA FLIGHT IS COMPLETED

Australian Aviator is Winner of the Rich $50,000 Prize.

Port Darwin, Australia, Despatch—Captain Ross Smith, the Australian aviator, arrived here to-day from England, thus winning a prize of £10,000 offered for the first aviator to make the voyage.

Under the conditions laid down by the Australian Government when it offered a prize for making a flight from England to Australia, the distance of 11,500 miles had to be covered within thirty days.

Captain Ross Smith left the Hounslow aviation field, near London, at 9 o'clock Nov. 12, on his flight to Australia. On Nov. 18 he reached Cairo, and on Nov. 19 he continued his flight, and on Nov. 23 reached Delhi, India. From there he continued east until he reached Rangoon, turning southward at that city, making a number of stops along the Malay Peninsula and in the islands of Oceania. He arrived at Bima, on Sumbawa Island, near Java, Monday night.

Port Darwin is near the northernmost tip of Australia, being near the town of Palmerston.

An interesting phase of the latter part of the flight was the international contest developed between the British Captain Smith and Lieut. Etienne Poulet, the French military aviator. Poulet left Paris for a flight to Australia on Oct. 14, nearly a month before Captain Smith started from London. The Englishman caught up with Poulet in India, however, the aviators meeting in Rangoon on Nov. 29, and both leaving for Bangkok on Dec. 1. The two airmen started off nearly together from Bangkok the day following. No reports have been received, however, as to the whereabouts of the French aviator after leaving Bangkok.

Crusoe and His Island

Any person with a bowing acquaintance with history, actual, literary or otherwise, could no doubt call to mind offhand a number of stories which, in spite of their being hopelessly fictitious, have implanted themselves so firmly in the popular fancy, that all the King's horses and all the King's men could not, by this time, budge them. Three, all taken at random, will serve, and curiously enough, Defoe is the plaintiff in the case of two of them. They are the confusion of Crusoe's island with Juan Fernandez, the Ride to York, and the existence of the original Old Curiosity Shop. It is of no avail to insist that Dickens himself declared that the Old Curiosity Shop was no more; that the ride to York was good, or bad, history two centuries before Turpin was endowed with it; and that no one who had ever read Robinson Crusoe could confuse the famous island with Juan Fernandez. The man in the street, ignoring that caustic phrase of the great Birreller, "What in the name of Bodley has the public to do with literature?" smiles indulgently, and gets along with his mistake.

Yet, in all seriousness, the question must arise, why should men waste their time arguing as to the original of an island in a story written early in the eighteenth century. The answer is very simple, because men love to be amused. Dr. Johnson once declared that there were only three books in existence which the ordinary reader would rather see lengthened than shortened. Robinson Crusoe was one of them, and if the aforesaid ordinary reader does not perchance know what the other two are, the opportunity is open to him for his amusement. Anyhow, Dr. Johnson's famous contemporary, the Frenchman Marivaux, was equally explicit. "Robinson Crusoe," he said, "is the first book I ever read with exquisite pleasure; and I believe every boy in Europe might say the same thing."

About a century later, a critic, with an overpowering attraction to the banal, summed up the attractions of the book in a couple of sentences, which should be preserved in the interests of the gayety of nations: "If it be inquired by what charm it is that these surprising adventures should have instantly pleased, and always pleased, it will be found that few books have ever so naturally mingled amusement with instruction. The attention is fixed, either by the simplicity of the narration or by the variety of the incidents; the heart is amended by a vindication of the ways of God to man; and the understanding is informed by various examples, how much utility ought to be preferred to ornament; the young are instructed, while the old are amused."

Even so brilliant a writer as Mr. R. H. Dana joins the worshipping throng, and, in a delightful description, in "Two Years Before the Mast," tells how, as the brig Pilgrim left the "deep blue cloud" of the island behind it, he "gave a parting look and bade farewell to the most romantic spot any eyes had ever seen."

All of which is very good, but from Juan Fernandez to the mouth of the Orinoco happens to be some 3,200 miles, measuring from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and with all South America in between. And it was "near the mouth of the Great River of Oroonoke," as Defoe is careful to insist, on the frontispiece of the first edition and in the story itself, that Crusoe's island lay. Indeed, in order that there should be no mistake whatever about the matter, Defoe brought out, in a conversation between Crusoe and Friday, the fact that the land, the former "perceived to be the west and north-west was the great island Trinidad on the north point of the mouth of the river."

How, then, did the wonderful muddle arise? It is all extremely simple. Defoe, like Shakespeare and innumerable other writers, borrowed his plot ready made. Seven years before Captain Worder Rogers had published a book, in which he had told the story of how he had rescued Alexander Selkirk from his self-imposed maroonment; if the word may be coined, on the island of Juan Fernandez. The idea appealed to the fancy of Defoe, just as later it did to Cowper and many others. The effect on Cowper was seen in the well-known poem beginning, "I am monarch of all I survey," on Defoe, in Robinson Crusoe, which, he it said, owes nothing at all but its idea to Selkirk or to Rogers.

Still, when the eighteenth century was young, every man knew all about Selkirk, and every boy had read Crusoe, and new that Crusoe was Selkirk. As time went on, what followed became inevitable. Crusoe was Selkirk, Selkirk's island was Juan Fernandez, therefore Juan Fernandez was Crusoe's island. Post hoc, propter hoc, what more could anyone demand? But, Defoe explains, carefully, that it was not. Yes! but so did D'Ekome explain that the Curiosity Shop had been pulled down, and Defoe, again, that Nevinson rode to York. The fate of the Curiosity Shop, the position of Crusoe's island, these are details which are forgotten as soon as learned. Our business is with Codlin and Short, Dick Swiveller and Marchioness Sally Brass and Quilp, with Crusoe and Friday, and all the other puppets. The positions of islands, the sites of shops, such things are the affair of the surveyor and the hydrographer. As for the Ride to York, the Circus settled all that decades and decades ago.

NEW LOW RECORD FOR THE POUND

New York Despatch—Rates on sterling exchange continued their downward course to-day, checks being quoted at $3.80 1-4, or 1 1-2 cents lower than the lowest quotation reported yesterday.

France also declined to a new low record, checks being quoted at 11-52 for the dollar, off 32 centimes from yesterday's closing prices. Lire checks also dropped 17 centimes, and were offered at the rate of 13.47 for the dollar. The German mark, worth 23.8 cents before the war, has dropped so less than two cents, quotations being made at 1.98 cents.

CANADA'S DEBT.

Total Net is Now Placed at $1,817,839,000.

Ottawa Despatch—Ordinary expenditure by the Dominion last month exceeded ordinary revenue. Expenditure was $43,486,000; revenue, $31,618,000. The heavy expenditure, however, is largely accounted for by a large payment on November 1 of interest on war loans. During the eight months period closing with the end of November ordinary expenditure, $202,536,000. Increase in net debt during November was $32,963,000, as compared with $20,394,000 in November of last year. The total net debt of the Dominion is now $1,817,839,000.

Resumption of public works following the armistice is reflected in increased expenditure on capital accumulated during the eight months period. Capital expenditure on public works, including railways and canals, was $28,607,000; during the corresponding period last year it was $10,120,000.

Current revenue during the eight months period was $218,027,000. During the corresponding period last year it was $193,322,000.

EVEN TORTURED U.S. ENLISTED MEN

Officer With German Name and Characteristics

Is Under Court-Martial for Brutality.

New York Despatch—Brutal treatment, and even deliberate torture, of enlisted men of the American expeditionary forces are charged against Capt. Karl W. Detzer, formerly commanding officer of the 398th Military Police Company, whose trial by court-martial opened at Governor's Island to-day.

Evidence will be submitted, it is said, by officers familiar with the case, that will rival the sensational developments of the trials of Lieut. "Hard-boiled" Smith and Sergt. Ball, who are now serving prison sentences for brutality to American soldiers in Paris.

Among the documentary evidence prepared for Capt. Detzer's trial are depositions made by Lieut. Col. Wm. L. Culberson, formerly acting Inspector-General of the A. E. F., after investigating at Le Mans, France, charges made against the captain. The deposition declares that "beyond a doubt" men who were under Capt. Detzer's control "had been cruelly and brutally mishandled."

Capt. Detzer, who was formerly a Fort Wayne, Ind., newspaperman, had charge, under the assistant provost marshal, of all criminal investigation at the American embarkation centre at Le Mans. Capt. Detzer faces 28 specific charges charging him with violation of three of the articles of war.

WED HIS RESCUER.

British Land Girl Drove Bull From Farmer.

Uckland, Eng. Cable—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Peggy Fisher, the young land girl who recently saved the life of a young farmer who was being gored by an infuriated bull, is now the wife of the man she rescued. Peggy attacked the bull, and kicked it with such force on the head that it cleared off in time for the young man to escape. For this deed she received the Land Distinguished Service Bar.

Other land girls, as the English girl farmers are called, have shown their pluck in many ways, and six more Distinguished Service Bars have recently been awarded.

Heart is Busy Organ.

Your heart is a very busy organ. While you breathe once, it beats four times. At each beat it sends four pounds of blood through your veins and arteries. The weight of the circulating blood is 29 pounds. When you run, your legs and the other parts of your body need more blood, so your heart must pump faster. It is a ceaseless worker.

China Clay Used in Paper.

The fact that an amalgamatum with a capital of £2,000,000 has been formed to control the richest and best clay-fields in Devon and Cornwall, where alone china-clay exists in Great Britain, recalls the story of one of the most interesting and historic industries in the country.

China-clay is the fine white clay used in making the porcelain articles we are handling every day. Its great virtue lies in the fact that it is of a pure, or nearly pure, white, both before and after being fired, making it of great value in the manufacture of porcelain. It is also used to a great extent by papermakers, and in less quantity in the making of some chemical products.

Technically, china-clay is known as kaolin, derived from Kaoling—"high ridge"—the name of hills in China where the clay was first discovered and used in the manufacture of porcelain. Jesuit missionaries introduced it to Europe, and in the middle of the eighteenth century the clay was discovered in Cornwall and later in Devonshire.

The total output represents nearly half a million tons per annum.—Tit-Bits.

SEED GROWERS IN CONVENTION

Ontario Body Holds Annual at Guelph.

Officers Elected for Ensuing Year.

Guelph Despatch—The annual meeting of the Ontario Seed Growers' Association was held in the City Hall to-day, and matters connected with the improvement of seed grain were discussed at great length. E. D. Eddy, of the Dominion Seed Branch, stated that his department would in the future institute much more severe restrictions with regard to the introduction of new varieties of grain, and Prof. C. A. Zavitz asked that these restrictions be made to apply also in the case of alfalfa with respect to place of origin.

Mr. Newman, Secretary of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, described the work being done in the western provinces for the improvement of seed wheat and especially the success obtained by Seager Wheeler, with the varieties Klitchener and R-1 Bob. He told of the Canadian exhibitors' success at the recent Chicago show, and predicted a large number of seed entries at the Chicago International next year. He asked for support in developing interest in showing across the line from all the provinces, as the reputation made by this year's exhibitors was sure to encourage a demand for our seed and there is a great chance for the trade to be developed to a tremendous extent.

The following directors were elected: F. A. Smith, Port Hurwell; Dr. F. G. Hutton, Charing Cross; J. C. Duke, Ruthven; J. S. Moore, Bellamy; W. J. Squirrell, Guelph; R. R. Moore, Norwich; H. L. McConnell, Port Burwell; A. S. McLennan, Toronto; P. L. Pancher Chatham; T. G. Gaynor, Ottawa.

A number of our prominent farmers journeyed to Toronto recently to secure several carloads of cattle to feed for the winter. They report the purchase of a considerable number of good feeders.

R. Flatt and Son have recently purchased a new Holstein herd sire. It combines the best breeding obtainable in America. The average seven day record of the three nearest dams is 30.88 lbs. of butter with over 100 lbs. of milk per day, while one of the paternal granddams holds the Canadian Championship in the eight months after calving division with 19.02 lbs. of butter in seven days, the other being the 36 lb. cow Lula Keyes recognized by American breeders as exemplifying perfect Holstein type. Wentworth county can now offer outside buyers selection from herds carrying breeding equal to any owned in America.

He stood upright and gazed before him into the darkness of the wood, and tried to realize all that this meant to him, to ease the throbbing of his heart; and he tried to speak calmly, and repress the joy that consumed him.

"I understand—not your reason for asking; I do not want that—but what you want me to do. You want to marry me"—he laughed but checked himself—"as soon as possible. Right? If I could marry you to-morrow! But I am afraid it couldn't be done. I don't know, but I will see. Is that all?" He laughed again; but the laugh did not jar upon her, for she understood it.

"You are very good to me," she said. "When you have gone I will write—and explain; will ask for your forgiveness."

"Gone?" he repeated dully.

She looked up at him with faint surprise.

"Yes. You will go after—after we are married. You know that I should ask you that? You did not think that I meant to be a burden to you."

He gazed at her as if he were hypnotized. Her eyes met his solemnly and unabashed in her innocence and purity, and he felt as a man would feel if he had surrendered his reason, his very senses, under some subtle influence too powerful to be resisted.

"I understand," he said, the solemnity of his tone answering the solemnity in her eyes. "When I am gone you will write and explain. 'Yes'—he drew a long breath—"I understand. And give you my promise. You will explain; I will wait."

There was silence for a moment, or two. The soft tones of the Sonata of Schubert's floated out to them. The performed air of the woods stole over them; he felt as if he were in a trance, and yet he knew that the moment was real; that he was to marry Clytie for some mysterious yet sufficient reason. He did not regret, did not resent, this last exaction of hers;

No edge without stropping

Provide a barber with a number of the highest-priced razors obtainable and stipulate that he must use a new razor on every individual customer and he would refuse if he valued his trade.

Stropping, you see, is needful because it removes the roughness of the new blade and realigns the saw-like edge that shaving produces; because it keeps the blade free from rust; and because it is the only means that will provide you each morning with a keen edge for shaving.

You don't take the blade out to sharpen it; nor do you take the AutoStrop Razor apart to clean it. From first to last—stropping, shaving and cleaning—you never need to remove the blade from the razor.

The surprise was for her, for Mollie laughed still more hysterically.

"You silly little goose!" she exclaimed breathlessly. "Do you think I didn't know that? Why, I knew it before you did. I detected him the night he arrived. I saw him prowling about the churchyard; he had been to his father's grave. He gave himself away fifty, a hundred times. Did ever any fisherman, laborer, working man, look like that? Why, even Percy, though he did not guess the truth, realized that 'Jack Douglas' was a gentleman, and treated him as one. When did you discover it?"

"On the day of the storm, in the boat," said Clytie, in a low voice.

"And you cared for him before then," declared Mollie. "I saw how it was with you, dear. And now it is going to be all right!" she went on joyfully. "He has opened up, told you he loves you; you are going to be married, he will come to his 'own' and you and he will reign at dear old Bramley as Sir Wilfred and Lady Carton! Clytie, do you think the servant will be very much alarmed if I scream? Because, if I don't, I'm afraid I shall explode!"

"Hush, Mollie," murmured Clytie soothingly, and stifling a sigh; for the picture Mollie had drawn was but the mockery of her happiness. "He does not know that I have discovered that he is Sir Wilfred. He must not know."

"Why?" demanded Mollie, with reason.

Clytie drew her hand across her brow with a gesture of weariness and doubt. "Don't you see, dear?" she said. "If he knew, he—would not marry me. Mr. Granger told me in his letter, reminding me of the date, that Sir Wilfred had already refused to marry me. Mr. Granger told me this unwillingly, but he was obliged to do so. He wrote vaguely about a paper Sir Wilfred had drawn up, but which Mr. Granger had not in his possession; he said that Sir Wilfred might change his mind; but that I could not rely on that, and that the time had come when he, Mr. Granger, was compelled to tell me how matters stood. You see, Mollie, that Sir Wilfred had renounced the proposed marriage; and I know he would not change his mind. He is too proud to gain Bramley by—by consenting to his father's plan."

"I see," said Mollie slowly and thoughtfully. "And you had to humor him, to—speak. Clytie dear, I know how you feel about it; but I honor you for doing what you have done. Only a brave woman could have done it. And now tell me everything, dear. The marriage—I suppose it must take place soon?" She laughed joyfully. "How delightful it all is! When I try to realize it my head swims!"

"Yes; the marriage must take place soon, before the twenty-third. And it must be—must be a secret one." She felt Mollie draw back and gaze at her in the darkness.

"A secret one!" repeated Mollie, with amazement. "But why, Clytie?"

There was silence for a moment, and Mollie could not see the pallor of the face above her, the quivering of the lips.

"You must not ask me that, Mollie dear," she said almost inaudibly. "There—there are reasons. He is satisfied. And you shall know after—in time."

"Very well," said Mollie, after a moment or two of thought. "Then I must be content to wait. The whole affair is so romantic, so mysterious, that it would be a pity to spoil it by an ordinary wedding. Satisfied, I should think he was! I know him; he's half-mad with delight at getting you on any terms. I never saw, or read of, any man half as much in love as he is. And no wonder. But go on, Clytie; my soul is thirsting for the minutest details. How you can sit there as calm as a boiled egg and as cool as a cucumber, while I'm all of a tremble with excitement!"

"There is no more to tell, Mollie dear," said Clytie. "He is coming to-morrow."

"To arrange about the wedding? Oh, Clytie, isn't it delicious! My fondest, wildest hopes are going to be realized. And they were happy ever afterward. And I'm not forgetting myself. I've shuddered every time I thought of that ridiculous herold and Bramley and of yours of surrendering back to Camden town and rental indignance. And now you are going to be the real mistress of Bramley! Lady Carton. How nice it sounds! And, Clytie, what a splendid fellow he is. Such an absolute dear. Really, I think, if you had refused him, I should have proposed to him myself!"

Clytie winced; all unwittingly Mollie had laid her hand upon the recent wound of Clytie's maiden modesty and pride. They talked, more quietly now, for some time; but at last went upstairs. In the light Mollie noticed Clytie's pallor and weakness, but attributed them to excitement; the emotion, she was looking fagged out, dear; and no wonder. But you will be all right now. Thank goodness, there will be a great strong man to look after you, and your long-suffering sister will be relieved of her burdensome task."

It was some time before she left Clytie; and when she had gone Clytie sank on her knees beside the bed, her face hidden on her outstretched arms. (To be continued.)

CROP AND TRADE CONDITIONS THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION

Complete Reports Submitted On Conditions in the Various Provinces of the Dominion at Annual Meeting of the Bank of Montreal Will Be of Special Interest to Mercantile and Farming Communities.

At the Annual Meeting of the Bank of Montreal complete reports were submitted by the Superintendents of the Bank, dealing with trade and farming conditions in the various provinces of the Dominion. These reports cover the particular operations carried out in the various sections of the country and on this account become of very special interest to the mercantile and farming communities desirous of keeping in touch with the important developments that are occurring throughout Canada.

We quote from the different reports as follows:

QUEBEC.

The cut of lumber during the past season was not as large as usual. Practically all stocks have been sold and shipped out. Prices were high. Labor conditions show improvement and a larger cut is looked for this winter.

The demand for pulpwood from the United States was uneven, but stocks have been well disposed of and high prices are expected to be maintained.

The paper mills of the Province continue to working to capacity, the demand for newsprint and better qualities of print papers exceeding the supply.

Manufacturing in nearly all lines has been generally satisfactory, although production is still limited by scarcity of skilled labor and raw materials.

Hay and cereal crops were average. Root crops were large, but potatoes suffered from rot. Pasturage was good, and dairy products will show an increase.

With the exception of asbestos, there is little mining done in the Province. Asbestos prices are good and shipments are well maintained.

The fur business has been good, and boot and shoe manufacturers find difficulty in supplying the demand.

Shipbuilding continues active, a number of large steel vessels having been launched from different yards during the year.

The wholesale and retail trade was most satisfactory; collections were good and failures show a decrease.

There have been no exceptional expenditures during the year by the Dominion or Provincial Governments and municipalities have limited disbursements to necessary works. Practically no railroad construction was undertaken.

There is very little speculation in real estate; values and rentals are both high.

General conditions, both in cities and rural districts, are good, with no apparent slackening in trade since the termination of the war. The housing problem is everywhere acute, and those dependent on a fixed income are seriously affected by the abnormal cost of all necessities.

ONTARIO.

Manufacturing in Ontario has been limited only by shortage of supplies and disturbances in labor. Government credits for goods sold to Europe have stimulated manufacturing, and domestic demands have been insistent. New industries have been started, and a number of successful manufacturing concerns in the United States have been making enquiries with the intention of locating in Ontario.

Ontario farmers have been steadily bettering their position in recent years, installing modern equipment and improving their modes of living. The past year has been one of fair crops and high prices. A wet spring was followed by an exceptionally dry summer, and grain crops, with the exception of fall wheat, fell below the average. Root crops were good, corn and tomatoes were a record yield; the season was poor for all fruit except grapes. Cheese production showed a falling off. There is a shortage of hogs; sheep raising is on the increase. The cattle situation is somewhat unsettled, owing to the limited amount of feed available for carrying through the winter.

The production of lumber has been seriously reduced owing to shortage of labor. 1919 has been an excellent marketing year, with heavy sales to Great Britain and the United States, and a steady domestic demand for all classes of lumber. Prices have been unusually high, there is no accumulation of stocks on hand, and notwithstanding the scarcity of labor and increased costs of operating, the year has been a successful one. Pulp and paper have been in large and increasing demand, with soaring prices for the latter.

Mining production during the year has been curtailed. The demand for nickel fell off after the Armistice; strikes lessened the silver output. Both these situations are improving and larger production has taken place at the gold mines.

Both wholesalers and retailers report it easy to sell goods. Credits are shortened and bad debts negligible.

Larger expenditures were generally made by municipalities this year in an effort to overtake works postponed during the war.

Population shows a general increase with a tendency to drift to urban and manufacturing centres.

Values in real estate are steadily increasing. So little building took place during the war that there is now a general shortage, particularly in dwelling houses, and in consequence there is much activity in real estate and an improvement in the building trades.

There has been a continued extension in hydro-electric power during the past year, and works at Nipigon and Chippawa as well as at other places less important, will within the next two years add very largely to the available power for manufacturing and other purposes throughout Ontario.

Generally speaking, the year has been one of great activity throughout the Province.

McClary's Kootenay

TOP, bottom and all four sides of the Kootenay oven are evenly heated. That is why it is so famous as a dependable baker. There is a thermometer, too, to tell whether the heat is right or not.

No range is quite so easily managed. Duplex grates clear the ashes at a single turn. Burnished cooking-top never needs blacklead. Nickered steel oven walls are kept clean with a damp cloth. Well-fitted joints and dampers hold the fire—and the oven heat—for hours. Let us show you the Kootenay.

WATERDOWN,

ONTARIO

It was a grand review of German troops at Potsdam. The Kaiser called out to the officer commanding the Prussian Guard in a voice loud enough to be heard by all the distinguished guests around: "Pick me out a hundred men from the Prussian Guard." Then, taking the arm of our late King Edward VII., he escorted him round the hundred men, and said bantering-ly: "Well, do you think you could find a hundred men in England to beat those?"

"I don't know about that," promptly replied the late king, "but I could easily find fifty who would try."
