but he felt pretty sure he could beat his rival on anything like even terms.

"Well, I won't call you a better man ill you've beaten me," Jack asserted, defiantly.

"What's the matter with racing to

Brown's, at Valley Stream, and back to-night?" asked Vic, craftily.

"I'll go, if you think it won't rain."

"Hold on. Trifles like rain and punctures would count. They'll be no excuse. We'll have the wind at our backs going against us. I'll think it con-ing back. A 25 mile race like that ought to prove something. What do you say?"

"I'm with you"—and Jack began some hasty preparations.

Some of the boys tried to discourage the rivals from racing at such a time on such a night.

"Don't you know there's been wheelmen held up nights out in those woods?" cried little Will Jenkins.

"Newspaper stories," laughed Jack.

It was 8 p. m. before the boys got their wheels in trim, the chains lubri-cated, the tires inflated, the bearings oiled and the lamps filled. But they started promptly at that time.

For a few minutes they pedaled over some roughly paved streets, and the raw wind made both begin to repent their rash venture. But soon they struck fair turf and macadam roads and sped along at great speed, the wind at their backs.

Slowly, but surely, Vic drew away from Jack, though his legs were not moving as fast as his rival's.

The road wound along through sleepy villages, past fields and farms into dark patches of coal woods, which brought vicily to the boys' minds the stories of wheelmen waylaid and robbed by men who sprang suddenly from the leafy covert. Vic was considerably in the lead now. Looking ahead, Jack could see but the faint streak of light thrown on the ground by his rival's lantern.

"That's all right," muttered Jack.

"His high gear and the wind favor him

now, but I'll hold him coming back.

Give me a low gear for pedaling against the wind."

The faint ghost-like light disappeared around a bend in the road, and Jack began to feel lonely.

"It might be better for us to keep together coming home, anyway, thought

Jack, as a cracking noise reached his ears, as if someone were moving among the trees and underbrush on his right.

The wind moaned dimly as it swept through the branches, and more than once Jack thought, in his excited state, that he detected fiery eyes in the dark depths which glared at him as he swept by.

But the momentary fear passed away, and as he emerged from the woods he began to really enjoy his ride.

He was perspiring freely, and some of the upgrades made him puff, but at this he smiled as he thought of his rival's high gear.

At last the lights of Valley Stream gleamed ahead, and Jack wheeled into the yard of the appointed road-house

just as Vic was mounting to return.

"Good-bye, Jack," that worthy shouted. "I'll see you later at the club?"

"Just ring when you get there," responded Jack. "I'll let you in."

Glancing at the clock as he entered,

Jack noted that it was 9:35. The proprietor of the place knew both boys and had heard of the race from Vic.

He chatted pleasantly until two wheelmen, apparently well-to-do business men, of middle age, entered, inquiring their way. They laughed and joked about their predicament in being out a night like that, having missed the last train to the city.

Right after them came another bicyclist, who impressed Jack rather unfavourably. He darted a quick glance at a roll of bills one of the gentlemen displayed in paying his bill. But while the boy was taking a critical survey of his wheel outside the man came out, got his machine and rode off.

Jack purposely delayed starting a little, as he didn't want the man for a travelling companion. When he did get off he was six minutes behind Vic

but he had faith that he could eventually catch up.

Jack now began to work in earnest.

He bent over his wheel and pedaled swiftly along the old Morriok road, though the wind was now in his teeth and his light flickered fitfully.

Past Springfield he flew, and shortly turned into locust avenue, without catching sight of Vic or the rough-looking stranger. He heard nothing now but the whir of his wheel and his own hard breathing. He was bent on winning the race.

Pump!

Jack uttered an angry ejaculation.

In passing over a railroad track his light had been jarred out.

"Well, I've got no time to light it now," he muttered, and worked the fastr.

Now he caught sight of a faint light ahead. "That must be Vic—I'm overhauling him!" he thought joyfully.

"The man had no light!"

He was approaching the point where the Rockaway road intersects when the chain on his wheel jerked and creaked ominously.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 30, 1897.

Editorial Chat.

"Kit," the Toronto Mail and Empire's bright lady representative, has been in London, writing up the jubilee ceremonies. "Kit" is one of the cleverest lady journalists in America.

The ACADIAN has frequently advocated the establishment of a public library in Wolfville. This would be a good time to make a move. There is no reason why our town should not have such an institution—at least on a modest scale. Will not some one move in the matter.

We learn that Rev. E. M. Saunders, D. D., is preparing a history of the Baptists of the Maritime Provinces. Dr. Saunders is eminently fitted for the task he has undertaken and the work when issued will no doubt be a most valuable and interesting addition to the literature of the denomination.

A Scott Act was being vigorously carried on in Annapolis county. No less than seventeen complaints have recently been lodged against persons charged with illegally selling intoxicating liquors, and many convictions have been made. Temperance sentiment appears to be gaining in our province, and the Scott Act is getting in its work in many of the counties.

The sewerage question has caused considerable talk in town during the past week. We trust that sufficient interest may have been created to induce a full attendance at the meeting on Monday evening next. The matter is of sufficient importance to deserve a careful consideration and a full and free discussion. It should be viewed from every standpoint and the town should have the benefit of the opinions of our citizens generally. If the best interests of our town is kept in view the meeting cannot fall in being of value, no matter what course of action may be decided upon.

After a vigorous campaign a vote on the Scott Act was taken on Thursday of last week in Charlottetown, resulting in the rejection of the law by a majority of 113. It is much to be regretted, both in the interests of the city and of the province at large, that the temperance sentiment in Charlottetown was not strong enough not only to retain but to enforce the law. The results which have been achieved in Moncton, Amherst and other towns during the past few months go to show that the Scott Act is capable of doing very effective service against the liquor evil in our larger towns when an earnest sentiment of the community.

The Klondike region is the spot on which our eyes turn longingly these days. The reports of the wonderful richness of the newly discovered gold fields along the Yukon are enough to turn the heads of us of moderate incomes. Fortunes are made in a week by even the primitive placer method. But the gold cloud has a dark lining. Great hardships and privations have to be undergone before the gold fields are reached, and the graves of many who have succumbed dot the river bank. But in the overpowering desire for the key that unlocks all doors, that breaks down all social barriers, these melancholy warnings are unheeded.

Last Sunday was the 25th anniversary of "Lundy's Lane," the hardest fought battle of the war of 1812-15, in which British arms in Canada added fresh laurels to their record of glory, and saved the Province to the Empire. In these warm days we are inclined to complain of the heat; but think of the 103rd Regiment, composed chiefly of boys, and contending in "heavy marching order," with knapsacks, and the cumbersome "old brown bears," tramping 20 miles on sandy roads, under the burning Canadian sun, entering a murderous action at 9 o'clock, and fighting hard and steadily till within half an hour of midnight! Lundy's Lane, whose famous scene is within a mile of the great cataract of Niagara, caused the invaders to relinquish all hopes of subduing Canada, and a few months later, the Treaty of Ghent was signed. May the peace it secured long prevail!

The Dominion has altogether five experimental farms—a central farm and four branch farms, and contain in all about 2,200 acres of land. The central experimental farm has been established near Ottawa, about the boundary line between Ontario and Quebec, and serves the purpose of both these important provinces. One of the branch farms is located at Nappan, Nova Scotia, near the dividing line between this province and New Brunswick, and supposed to serve for the three maritime provinces; another federal government farm has been established at Brandon, Manitoba, for the prairie province; a third at Indian Head, in Assinibois, as an aid to agriculture in the Northwest territories; and a fourth has been located at Agassiz, British Columbia, where it serves a like purpose for the Pacific province. At all these farms many experiments are in progress in all branches of agriculture, horticulture and arboriculture, and some problems of great importance to farmers have already been solved. The eastern part of this province, while it has derived a slight benefit from the central experimental farm, has derived no benefit from the farm at Nappan in this province. The latter institution, as far as we can learn, is simply of benefit to the district in which it is situated. Could it not be made of benefit to other sections as well?

The Summer School of Science for the Atlantic Provinces.

This school was organized in this town ten years ago and has since met in various parts of these provinces, Parrsboro, Pictou, Antigonish, Charlottetown, Amherst, Sackville and St. John, and has just closed a very successful session at Yarmouth, our western metropolis. The attendance of this year, owing to the untiring efforts of President Cameron, was the largest in the history of the school, being nearly 200. Yarmouth gave the scientists a royal welcome, not only placing their buildings at their disposal, but providing two very enjoyable excursions, one on the new Coast Railway to Argyle and the other by boat to the beautiful Tusket Islands. The latter took place on a most charming day and was thoroughly enjoyed. The private hospitality of the citizens was also unbounded and many pleasant drives were enjoyed through their kindness. Mayor Wyman was especially attentive to the visitors, while the Hon. Mr. Baker entertained the whole school at a garden party on his beautiful grounds.

Work was carried on systematically in all departments of science, and those who attended found the subjects so attractive that many regretted that the time could not have been prolonged. Superintendent Dr. McKay was present for nearly a week, and he with Dr. Hall and Prof. Caldwell were the only representatives of the original staff of instruction that began work in Wolfville in 1887. Next year they meet in Moncton, and Principal Oulton is the new president.

Beach Echoes.

Tourist visitors are becoming more numerous at the Beach. On Monday last a party of eight young lady tourists rode over from Starr's Point on their wheels and spent the day at the Beach. The proprietor of one of the largest beaches on the Atlantic coast was at the Beach on Tuesday for a short time. He seemed much pleased with the place, and advised the building of a hotel for tourists here.

Misses Maria, Carrie and Fanny Harris, of Grand Pre, with the Misses Richardson and Miss Ellis, of Windsor, are occupying one of the new cottages. They have christened it "Cape View." The merry-go-round started on its first journey on Tuesday of this week. The boats freshly painted red, white and blue, looked very pretty with their arched awnings and flags, and proved a great attraction to young and old.

A flag has been placed at the top of the tallest tree on the Beach. A private picnic from Hantsport visited the Beach last Saturday, but were heavy rain. Mrs. J. W. Churchill and her two daughters were among the number.

The Foresters' Excursion.

The Foresters' Excursion to Parrsboro on Saturday last was not so largely attended as could have been wished by the promoters. Those who attended, however, had no cause to complain. The sail across the basin in the morning was a most delightful one and was heartily enjoyed. On the arrival of the steamer at the pier a goodly number took teams for the village; others first explored the beauties of Patridge Island, and enjoyed the magnificent views afforded from its summit. The baseball game between Wolfville and Springhill teams was easily won by the latter. At 4.30 o'clock the company assembled at the steamer and soon after embarked for home. A few showers of rain fell on the return sail but not enough to mar the enjoyment of the day, which was pronounced by all a most pleasant one. The Wolfville band furnished a choice programme of music, which added very much to the pleasure of the trip. Capt. Colwell and his obliging staff did all in their power to add to the comfort and enjoyment of the excursionists.

Avonport Atoms.

Rev. Mr. Langille, our new pastor, occupied the pulpit of this church last Sabbath at 3 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Smith and family are spending the summer here the guests of Mrs. Smith's father, Mr. George N. Borden.

Miss Effie Cox, of Middleton, is visiting at her home in this place.

Miss Sadie Borden, of Long Island, is at present visiting her brother, Mr. B. B. Borden. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Copland and little son Henry, of North Cambridge, Mass., are spending a few weeks with Mrs. Copland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shaw.

Miss Laura Hantley is at present visiting in Newport at the home of her uncle, Capt. J. McBurnie.

Mrs. F. E. Cox and little son, of Middleton, are visiting friends here.

Miss Martha Fuller, school teacher at Newton, Hants Co., is spending the vacation at her home.

The Kentville Y. M. C. A. has taken a new lease of life since the Evangelists Hunter and Crossley have been at Kentville. The officers are as follows: Pres. W. E. Porter; Vice Pres., E. B. Newcomb; 2nd Vice Pres., J. E. Patton; Secy., W. L. Wright; Treas., H. G. Harris. Strong committees were selected for various parts of the work. The young men are determined to make it a success. Seventeen new members have been added and a large number of others are expected. Success to Kentville!—The Leader, July 1897.

MONEY TO LEND ON MORTGAGE—Apply to E. S. Crawley, Solicitor, Wolfville, N. S.

Personal Mention.

Misses Laura and Mary Curry, of this town, left on Friday of last week for St. John, where they intend visiting relatives for a few weeks.

Mr. John Godfrey and daughter Edith, who have been visiting friends in Barrington, Shelburne Co., for a short time, returned home this week.

Rev. A. J. Kempton, spoke for Wisconsin at the big Wisconsin-Minnesota Christian Endeavor rally in San Francisco Saturday evening.—Wisconsin State Journal.

Mrs. J. S. Morse, of this town, who has been very ill for some time, is now glad to relate, now convalescent—Her daughter, Mrs. Doull, of Montreal, is still with her.

Mrs. Mary A. Ellis, and Horace Ellis McKenna, of this town, who have been visiting at Blomidon and Baxter's Harbor for a fortnight, returned home on Monday last.

Miss Harriet Shaw and Miss Gardner, of Rockland, Mass., who have been the guests of Mrs. P. M. Macdonald, of this town, for a short time, returned to their homes this week.

Rev. Kenneth C. Hind, of Wolfville, who has been in town the past few weeks, has gone to Mahone. He was very much charmed with the beauties of Bridgewater.—Bridgewater Bulletin.

Messrs. William Rand, of Canning, and R. E. McAtchey, of Grand Pre, have entered into a partnership to carry on a commission business in fruit at Boston.—The ACADIAN wishes them success.

Mr. J. A. Lawrence, of Truro, has been visiting in Wolfville this week, at the invitation of Mr. Laurence's first visit to the Annapolis Valley, and he expressed himself to the ACADIAN as highly pleased with what he saw.

Mr. T. H. Martell, of Boston, Mass., eldest son of Rev. A. Martell, has, accompanied by his wife, been in town this week visiting his father. Mr. T. H. Martell is the printer and publisher of a manifold order book which is very popular in the United States.

Mr. E. W. Porter, LL. M., of Chicago, arrived in town last Tuesday, at the guest of his brother, Mr. F. J. Porter, of this town. Our young friend wheeled from Chicago to Boston, coming from Boston to Yarmouth by steamer. At Yarmouth he again took to the "bike," and rode to Wolfville.

The Denver correspondent of the Chicago Standard, writing of the Denver Baptist churches, says: "Rev. C. W. Williams is on his third year as pastor of the Capitol Hill church, where he is, greatly beloved. The church, though small, is strong and the general character of the membership is high."

Mrs. E. E. Faville left on Tuesday morning to spend a few weeks with her parents in Iowa. Prof. Faville leaves on Monday, and will also visit friends in Iowa. Prof. and Mrs. Faville take up their residence at Manhattan, Kansas, the first of September, at which date the Professor's duties in the State College of Agriculture in that town commence.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 30, 1897.

Local and Provincial.

Camp-meeting opens at Berwick next Thursday.

Well reader, what did you indulge yourself in last Saturday, the "circus," or the "excursion?"

Mr G. E. Torrie, of this town, has in his possession a seven-dollar bill, issued in 1776, by the United States government.

Waburn's circus was at Kentville on Saturday last.

This week we have to acknowledge a donation of new potatoes, beans, carrots, etc., from the garden of our venerable townsmen, Capt. G. H. Gillmore, for which we beg to return our thanks.

For SALE.—A building lot, in a sightly and desirable location, near centre of town. Apply to C. E. STARR.

Wolfville was favored with an "organ" recital one day this week.

That California Fruit Cider is far superior to any other temperance drink ever offered for sale in this country.

The Dental Association of Nova Scotia meets this year in Wolfville.

Now that our band has got started again we shall hope to hear them play on the stand some of these fine evenings.

Prof. C. Griffin is at the Morse store with a gripphophone.

LOOK!—For Sale or to Let, House and stable in Wolfville, good garden, 25 apple trees, 50 plum, pear and cherry trees, gooseberry and raspberry bushes. Picked 400 boxes strawberries this year.

Arrangements are now being made for a steambath excursion to Blomidon from this port on Friday next, Aug. 6th.

Mr Kenneth Skinner, who is visiting his old home at Roundhill, after an absence of several years, was in town this week riding a motor tricycle.

Local and Provincial.

The Coast Railway for a distance of 30 miles between Yarmouth and Pubnico Head has been opened for traffic.

Rev. J. A. Harris, of Mahone Bay, conducted the services in St. John's church, on Sunday morning and evening last.

Mr J. D. Chambers, our popular dry goods merchant, has this week had an awning placed in position over the sidewalk in front of his store.

There was an eclipse of the sun yesterday morning between the hours of 8 and 10.30 o'clock, which would have been visible here had old Sol not been obscured by clouds.

We are in receipt of a pretty and useful folder from the Yarmouth S. S. Co. This company has put our Province very much in debt for the valuable advertising given every season.

A party of excursionists came over from Parrabore to Wolfville last Saturday or the steamer Acadia.

For SALE.—A No 51 Walker Furnace with 9 pipes and registers. Suitable for either hard or soft coal. Apply to L. W. SLEEP.

A couple of bicycle girls of about forty summers who were in town last week attracted considerable attention because of the picturesque and brief costumes they sported.

We observe that a valued exchange has adopted the phonetic system of spelling. Its rendering of Parrabore is "Parrabore." The journal in question has always been a rather bold innovator both as regards spelling and construction.

Money to Loan on Real Estate, straight loan or on instalment plan.—A. V. PINCO, Barrister, Wolfville, N. S.

A PIONEER'S STORY.

Following an illness of LaGrippe He Suffered Day and Night for Four Years—A Well Known Clergyman Endorses His Statements.

From the Record, Windsor, Ont. Among the residents of Kingsville, Ont., none is held in higher esteem than Mr Jas. Lovelace, who is known not only in town, but to many throughout Essex county.

When a correspondent of the Record called upon him and asked him to verify certain statements as to his cure from a painful malady after several years of suffering, he cheerfully did so. Mr Lovelace of late grippe, which left me with a severe pain in the pit of my stomach.

After trying household remedies and getting no relief, I consulted a doctor, but after a long treatment which did not help me, I became discouraged and concluded there was no relief for me.

Next meeting in Temperance Hall, Thursday, Aug. 12th, at 8.30 p. m. The meetings are always open to any who wish to become members.

A Consecrated Shut-in. What one woman, feeble in health, can do to save souls is exemplified in the career of Sarah Robinson, of Framingham, England.

Twenty-five years ago the resident of her London doctor was a couch for the greater part of her life. Hearing this she went to the Lord with it and made one definite request.

That my complaint might never hinder my work, whether my life was long or short, I promised him that, by his grace, I would not repine at pain or ugliness, if only I might work without interruption.

From that day to this, notwithstanding her spinal weakness, she has by personal energy and influence carried out her plans in successful temperance work among soldiers.

Her motto was "Ready," as adhered to through many givings as to her power for effectual service. Large mission buildings, soldiers' homes, and coffee houses in three capitals stand as one phase of the results.—Golden Rule.

The joy of dying that others might live, the glory of living without selfishness, the enthusiasm of feeling His concern, the enthusiasm of feeling His life away to Him before Christ, was the joy that was set before her.

To get men to love one another, and thus get the will of God done on earth as it is in heaven, is our mission as truly as was the mission of Jesus. We can each take this mission as our life motive.

The motive which abides in the heart of God—and keep this motive as the seed of life through all joy and sorrow, success and disappointment, failure and victory.

Upon the altar of this infinite presence we may each dedicate ourselves as living sacrifices, holy and acceptable unto God.—George D. Herron, D. D., in A Plea for the Gospel.

A Turning Point. Dr. Hannay's secretarial colleague, the Rev. D. Burford Hoek, says a commercial traveller from Liverpool, who was in the habit of visiting Dumfries, had a custom, after he had finished his business, to go round the town with a bell, announcing a temperance lecture.

Young Hannay went to hear him, and as the result became possessed of a strong and almost passionate determination to keep clear of the snares into which so many of his fellow-townsmen were constantly falling.

So I made up my mind as a boy that I would not be a drunkard. He went on March 7, 1837, to a bookseller's shop, where a pledge-book was kept. The bookseller was doubtful as to the wisdom of any but full-grown men signing the pledge.

He refused. He rejected, but the lad's hand was on the book, and almost before the good man could recover from his surprise, the words "Alexander Hannay" were written in a round, bold hand, and there remains to this day.

He himself regarded the incident as the turning point in his life, for only recently he said, "Most positively do I now declare my belief that my position in after-life, and any service that I have rendered to the cause of temperance as a boy that I would not be a drunkard."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

No woman ever really thinks she is lonely, and no man ever really believes he is fat.

The average man's idea of luxury is to own a house with a billiard table in the basement.

Understanding a woman is easy compared to knowing whether it is time to let the furnace go out yet.

Christian K. Ross, the father of "Charlie" Ross, whose abduction from his parents' home became a matter of world-wide interest, and still remains an unsolved mystery, has just died at his home in Germantown, Pa.

Practically wrecked the life of the father and from the time the boy was stolen, nearly 23 years ago, his father was a burden to the once active business man.

Fruit culture is more profitable to the farmer now than his other crops. Brown Bros. Co., the most extensive nursery house in Canada, have a vacancy in this section. Write them at Brown's Nurseries, P. O., Ont., for their terms.

A man may be truthful with others and yet try to lie to himself.

A coarse woman in fine clothes makes even common vulgarity plain.

Scraps for Odd Moments.

It is only in life's journey that the last mile grows shortest.

Little Bessie says to the new minister: "Ma says for you to come over to tea this evening; then that'll be done."

Truth crushed to earth will rise again, quoted the earnest man. True, replied Senator Scroggins; but in many cases not until after the referee has counted ten.

Minards Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

And are the divorce laws so very liberal in your section? Liberal! Say! They are so liberal that nobody ever heard of a woman crying at a wedding out there.

Professor—"You see that the right leg of the patient is longer than his left, and that, in consequence of this, he limps. What would you do in his case?" Student—"I should limp, too."

Minards Liniment Cures Colds, etc. Short-sighted guest, to Hotel Clerk—"I was chills to the bone. What a blessing these registers are!" "Chills—Excuse me, sir; but that's perforated mat you're standing on."

Ethel—I saw Count Hardupak last night. Cousin Tom—Does he talk as brokenly as ever? Ethel—My yes, I heard him ask me to loan him ten dollars before he left.

Ayer's Pills lead all ailments and purgatives. Their action is gentle and thorough.

"I'm satisfied, said the young man just home from college, "that the science of electricity was understood before the flood."

"Don't be a fool," snorted the old gentleman. "Beg pardon, but Noah must have certainly used some kind of an ark light."

"Come," said the kind-hearted old man, "you can't wander about here all night. You must go home."

"Toms," echoed the unfortunate, bitterly, "what is home to me?" "But you have a home, a warm, comfortable, cheerful home."

"I did have such a home, the very home you have painted, but now, oh, heaven, but now—"

"But now what, sir?" "My wife is house cleaning."

A stimulant is often needed to nourish and strengthen the roots and to keep the hair a natural color. Hall's Hair Restorer is the best tonic for the hair.

Good for a Paragraph.—A well-known Dublin journalist tells the following anecdote: One night as a messenger from the office of an evening paper was passing along the quays on the banks of the Liffey, he heard the sound of someone struggling in the water.

"Are you drowning?" he shouted. "I am," replied a feeble voice from the water.

"What a pity!" said the lad consolingly. "You are just too late for the last edition to-night, but cheer up—you've had a nice little paragraph all to yourself in the morning."

The following story of how an insurance board turned the laugh on the company's medical examiner is given in an exchange:

Mr Zea, a Columbian minister in England, died suddenly. He was insured in various offices, and rumor said that he had shot himself. A meeting of one of the insurance boards was held, and the directors were talking the matter over, when Doctor M. appeared, who was the company's medical referee, as well as Mr Zea's own physician.

"Ah! now you can tell us the true cause of Mr Zea's death."

"Certainly, I can," said the doctor, solemnly, "because I attended him."

Here he paused, and was surprised to find that his merely preliminary remark was hilariously received as a solution of the whole question.

Search the Wardrobes and Closets. In almost every home half-worn garments and goods are stored away in wardrobes and closets that can be made as good as new and fitted for months of wear.
