A Millionaire's; Countess Westerleigh.

CHAPTER VI.
(Concluded.)
"Ob, no," she said, listlessly; "yours is the tiring part of the business, not mine. I should think you must be weary of painting portraits."

"Of some, yes; of others, no," he said, after a pause, during which he had allowed her voice, clear, bell-like yet low, to sing in his ears. "It is hard work, painting some faces; while others—well, they paint themselves."

"Yes," she said, indifferently. Her indifference galled him, and he lowered his brush slightly. "You do not ask if yours is among the latter, Lady Florence," he said, with a faint smile, and a hesitating glance at her.

He did not know how she would take even this respectful approach to the familiar. "No," she said, not so much with hauteur, as with cool, ice-like impassivity. "It is a question for you, who have to produce the portrait, not for me."

Her half-contemptuous response fell on him like a dash of cold water for a moment; then a fierce anger at her immovability rose within him. "You are not anxious, then, that the portrait should be a success, Lady Florence?"

She shrugged her shoulders and stroked the cat. "I am afraid I do not care very much about it," she said, with the same indifference. "And yet most ladies are so very anxious," he said.

"Yes, Her Grace of Mudshire, who has just left, I think she would shed tears if her portrait were not what she expected and hoped it to be."

He went to the duchess's portrait and held it up, a smile, almost a sneer, on his dark, pale face. Lady Florence looked at the portrait and smiled.

"The duchess should be satisfied, I think," she said. He set the canvas down in its place against the wall.

"And you, Lady Florence?" he asked, standing before the easel. "Will you not see how the picture is progressing and give me your opinion?"

She dropped from her lap the cat which looked surprised at its abrupt descent and arched its back, and went toward the picture, looked at it with an indifferent eye, and said, listlessly: "Have you flattered me as you have flattered the duchess, Mr. Tyers?"

WOMAN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE

Known All Over The World—Known Only For The Good It Has Done.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

Fox Creek, N. B.—"I have always had pains in the abdomen and a weakness there after meals and often in my stomach. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better and I can work with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers."—Mrs. WILLIAM S. BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N. B.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of whom state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

TORONTO, ONT.

"No," he said, almost under his breath—her nearness confused and embarrassed him—"no; that were impossible. My difficulty is in painting truthfully."

She looked at him with cold inquiry. He pointed to the face on the canvas and continued, his voice very low and hushed: "If you look at that mirror, and then at the face I have painted, you will understand what I mean, Lady Florence. The great master of flesh tints was Ety. You may know that?"

She moved her head slightly in the negative. "I have heard of him, seen his pictures. I didn't know, I know nothing about art."

"Well, Ety himself would have found it impossible to imitate the delicate tints, the creamy white of the face you see in the mirror. The hair again. Yours has a red gold of it which would have driven even the old French masters to despair. I have tried to suggest—to suggest if only—in my picture, and you see how full the paint is compared with the original."

She glanced from the mirror to the canvas, critically, calmly, as if he were discussing some other piece than her own. "Then the eyes," he went on. "There are one or two men who can paint eyes, or rather, the pupil think they can; but there is not one of them could reproduce the violet shade in yours. Shade! There are a dozen—twenty shades. Sometimes while I am painting them they will change from blue almost to black and let them be what color they may, they are so beautiful that they fill me with discouragement and despair."

She looked and listened without a blush, without a falter in eyes or other lips. She was just as unmoved as if he had been the dress-maker flitting on the exquisite perfection of her figure.

"I see you do not confine your flattery to your brush, Mr. Tyers," she said, coldly, indifferently; "but, really, I don't see why you should be disappointed. If I am as good-looking as that," she pointed to the portrait with her fan—"I am quite satisfied."

"And I am not," he said, with a subdued warmth. "It is a libel—a caricature! Sometimes I have been on the point of slashing the canvas with my palette-knife, and telling you that I had attempted an impossible task and must relinquish it."

"Pray do so, if you feel in that way about it."

"Perhaps I can show you what I mean—what I miss, where I fail," he said, after a moment's pause. "Do you see the dress, the diamonds, the fan—all that has no life in it? Well, they are painted well enough. Although I say it, I am, if not satisfied with them—for no artist is ever satisfied—at least tolerant of them. I can let them pass. But it is when I come to the face that I find my difficulty. It is as lifeless as the satin and silk; it is just a beautiful mask without soul, or the breath of life, or thought—"

He stopped and sighed, and looked at her. "Perhaps that is my fault," she said, going back to the couch and sinking down again. "But please don't be uneasy, Mr. Tyers. I am quite satisfied with my picture, and I am sure my friends will be. Though you may not think so, you have flattered me quite enough."

"Ah, no, no," he said; "I know that it is not so. I have not stood before it and studied it for hours without learning the truth. I think you for your patience, Lady Florence—for your kind encouragement." He took up his brush and went to work again with seeming composure; but inwardly he was burning. There was not another woman in the world, he told himself, who would have stood by unmoved, and heard herself spoken of, described, as he had described this haughty beauty. Was there no way of rousing her? He felt at that moment as if he would have given half of what remained of his life to see that cold, impassive, lovely face flushed with passion—with passion of love or anger, or yes, of hate. Its marble-like impassivity tortured him.

To feel that her very presence set his heart aching, and to know that he was less than nothing to her, that no word of his could move her, was an agony which throbbled through him like a subtle poison.

He pointed on for about a quarter of an hour, then he said: "We will rest for a little while, Lady Florence, if you please." She inclined her head, and stroked the cat, which had again coiled itself up on her lap.

"Very well," she said; "painting must be tiring work." He sauntered to the cabinet and brought out an exquisite Venetian flask and glass, and set them on the inlaid moresque table beside the couch.

"Will you let me offer you a glass of Persian wine, Lady Florence?" She scarcely raised her head. "No, thanks."

He bowed, and went to the cabinet and poured himself out a glass of the tincture which he had taken just before she came in, and his eyes began to brighten, and his hand went toward his cigarette-case; but he remembered who was present, and did not venture to smoke.

He wandered aimlessly about the room, and picked up one or two of the canvases and looked at them absently. The last he caught up was a sketch of Vane Tempest.

He carried it to the light, and stood looking at it with his back to Lady Florence. It was not a bad sketch and it was not a good one. He was about to set it down again, when he heard Lady Florence's voice behind him say: "Mr. Tyers—"

There was no novel a tone in it that he turned round quickly, the sketch in his hand. She was leaning on her elbow, her eyes fixed on the sketch, a faint dash of color in her face. As her eyes met his they faltered, and—yes, drooped.

He stood looking at her in a dazed kind of a maze. The lovely face had awakened to life at last; the soul had become visible in the eyes.

For a second, thinking only of his picture, a feeling of delight and gratification sprang up within his heart when he glanced at the sketch, and he delight changed to the hideous agony of jealousy. It was the sight of Vane Tempest's face that had roused her then. What else could it be?

"Mr. Tyers," she said, and he noticed that even her voice had taken on itself life and feeling, "whose portrait is that?"

"This," he said, slowly. "This is a rough sketch of Mr. Vane Tempest."

"I thought so," she said, sinking back, and speaking with what he felt sure was only a simulation of the usual cold listlessness. "Will you let me see it, please?"

He crossed the room and held it in his hand. "Perhaps I can show you what I mean—what I miss, where I fail," he said, after a moment's pause. "Do you see the dress, the diamonds, the fan—all that has no life in it? Well, they are painted well enough. Although I say it, I am, if not satisfied with them—for no artist is ever satisfied—at least tolerant of them. I can let them pass. But it is when I come to the face that I find my difficulty. It is as lifeless as the satin and silk; it is just a beautiful mask without soul, or the breath of life, or thought—" a proper light before her, and his eyes watched hers as they dwelt on it. He saw—his passion—call it love for her, if you will—gave him a keen and piercing insight—her lovely violet eyes soften, grow darker, though she tried to keep their expression one of cold criticism.

"Yes," she said, "this is Mr. Vane Tempest; but it is not a good portrait."

"No," he asserted; "it lacks expression. I have missed that careless, light-hearted look that is in his eyes and about his lips. It is only a rough sketch; I made it one night while he was walking up and down—he is rarely still—smoking. It is worth nothing. They say that it is always difficult for a painter to paint any one whom he loves; perhaps that is why I have missed Vane Tempest's bright look."

"You and he are great friends?" she said; and the same interest displayed itself in her voice.

"Why, yes," he said. "I suppose we are great friends; at any rate, there is great friendship on my side. You do not know, Lady Florence, that Vane Tempest saved my life? He may have told you—"

She smiled rather scornfully. "He certainly would not have told me any one," she said.

Senley Tyers bit his lip. "No; of course not. No; but it is the fact, Vane Tempest found me starving—on the verge of suicide. He saved me. Not by giving me food and money only—that would not have done it—but by cheering and encouraging me."

"That is like him," she said, softly. He walked to the easel quickly and softly, and caught up the brush and painted quickly, as he continued talking.

"Most men would have been satisfied with playing the Good Samaritan and have said 'Good-bye'; but Vane Tempest gave me his friendship as well as his food and money. It is to him that I owe the success that has come to me. Yes, we are friends. He comes here when he pleases, and spends what are for me some happy hours. I think there is no one in the world like him—"

He glanced at her. A pensive smile sad and tender, was in her eyes, and he painted it into the eyes on the canvas.

"So bright and light-hearted, and yet so true and brave!" The violet eyes seemed to glow.

"And he is always the same," he went on. "You know—or perhaps you do not know—that he and I have been down to the west coast together?"

"No," she said. "When? where?"

"Last week," he said; "to a place called Trollope. He asked me to go down with him, for company's sake. I left him there. It is a wild spot, and I was quite sorry to leave him."

She leaned forward, leaning on her elbow, her eyes fixed on the sketch where it rested against the wall. "Why did he go there?" she asked.

"He went to see a relation, an uncle—"

When Unselfishness is Not Unselfishness.

By RUTH CAMERON.

I do believe Dorothy Sears is the most generous girl I ever knew, said the lady next door. "She spent the whole day helping one of her neighbours pack her trunks. You know she has a perfect genius for packing. She can get more into a trunk than any one I ever knew. She certainly is a thoroughly unselfish girl."

The Lady-who-always-knows-somehow and the lady next door were both visiting on my veranda when the lady next door delivered this eulogy.

While she was speaking I noticed that the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow bent low over her embroidery with that quizzical ghost of a smile which means that she doesn't exactly agree with the speaker's opinion.

"Well," said the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow, "I didn't mean to say anything, but if you must know, it amused me to hear Dorothy called a thoroughly unselfish girl. I know her well, and she isn't what I call unselfish at all. What about her doing all that packing? Well, she has a passion for system; she packs beautifully, and she likes to pack just as we all like to do things we do especially well; moreover, she had nothing else to do yesterday. Besides, she likes to be thanked, and like all the rest of us she enjoys doing kind things for people when they are things she enjoys doing anyway."

Fashions and Fads.

Among new fabrics are many brocades, tains, garnished with sequins and gold or silver lace.

For every kind of sport the brilliant-hued silk knitted or wool coat is a charming and becoming style.

Evening girdles are to be wide and draped, and will be worn both below and above the waist line.

This year's wedding gown should be fashioned of plain or brocaded satin crepe de chine or chafneuse.

Fabric hats will be the leaders in the millinery world, the loveliest being of velvet, moire, taffeta, crepe or velour.

Fashion dictates that the contour of the head must be outlined. No rats and little false hair must be used.

The most distinctly Oriental note in the newest frocks is the broad sash, which is, swathed around the figure.

The newest fall jackets are cut away sharply at the front and slope away to a medium short length at the back.

The decidedly new thing about coats is the wide turtleneck collar, sometimes running down into revers at the front.

The charm of the founced skirt has returned to favor, and many pretty-dresses show killed flouncings of tulle or lace.

A favorite fabric for afternoon dresses is net in all weights and in many combinations. It is washable, cool, inexpensive and new.

Striped materials are very fashionable, and a red-and-black striped chiffon jacket is effectively combined with a gray tussor silk skirt.

Some of the new skirts are slashed to the knee over the right foot, where a bow knot of brilliants catches the drape in place.

Fashion seems to have swung around again to the separate jackets and separate skirts, and the selection of contrasting colors must be harmonious.

Among the new fall colors are putty, aubergine green, eggplant purple, Sevens green, Florentine red, scarab green, mandarin yellow and oak-leaf brown.

Close-fitting hats, with outstanding trimming, are as much in vogue as ever. The trimming may be either feather, fancy or loops of ribbon and velvet in fantastic shape.

Collarettes of marabou are short and wide and finished with a bow and ends. They come in exquisite chinchilla mixture, a softly shaded gray and a variety of new Parisienne shades.

Minimise The Loss.

Practically farmers may easily minimise the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.

We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.

The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodating.

Hymenal.

East Wabana was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding at St. Michael's Church on Wednesday, Sept. 3rd, when Mr. Walter Neville, of Topsail, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Miss Catherine Holland, R. C. teacher, formerly of Kings Cove. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. McGrath, Parish Priest of Wabana, in the presence of a few of their immediate friends.

The bride looked charming in a suit of cream voile with hat and veil to match. She was attended by her cousin Miss Clara Devine, who was dressed in a suit of pink voile with hat to correspond. Mr. John Neville did the honors of best man. After the ceremony the party repaired to the residence of the bride, where a reception was held and congratulations were given, after which the happy couple joined the sea. Progress which was waiting at the wharf for the occasion gaily decorated in bunting, and left for Kelligrews where they are going to put up at the well known hotel "The Anchorage," where the honeymoon will be spent. They took with them the best wishes of their many friends. The bride received many beautiful and costly presents which goes to show her popularity. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Neville many years of wedded life together.

Patriotism.

Real patriotism is not a willingness to die for your country, but a willingness to give your time, money and thought for your country.

If you would take the time you employ in drilling in the armoury, wearing gold braid and a sword, and employ it in interesting yourself in political conditions in your ward, you would be more of a patriot.

Patriotism is not a military thing, to be exercised upon supreme occasions of war, but is an everyday thing to be shown by improving the conditions of life in your community.

It is not for parade. It is for use. It is not a luxury. It is a necessity. You cannot be a genuine patriot until you are converted. Instead of a merely individual conscience you must get a civic conscience. You must learn to feel that your city's affairs are "my business" and not the political bosses' business. You must develop the Human Nerve. You must feel what Humanity means.

For patriotism is a religion; it means a high form of continuous devotion.

You cannot be a patriot and not be interested in politics. Politics is the expression of Patriotism. If it is degraded, you are degraded and your city and state—Dr. Frank Crane in Woman's World for September.

Economy of Oysters.

Of all foods oysters probably show less waste than any other; in fact, there is no waste, even the shells are valuable as chicken feed, in road-making, as fertilizer and as the raw material out of which buttons, etc., are made, to say nothing of the pearls they produce.

But it is as an article of food that the oyster shines. Having practically the same food value as meat, it is even more easily digested and therefore an important part of the invalid's diet. Owing to the improved methods of packing and shipping, an "R" is being put into every month of the year, for it is now possible to enjoy oysters in almost every month. In the East they are eaten every day in the year.

In buying beef, mutton, poultry or fish, by the pound, there is always a good deal of waste, in the form of bones, inedible portions, feathers, etc. In a cut of steak, for instance, the waste often runs as high as 30 and 60 per cent. In poultry it is often greater. In the oyster there are no bones, no feathers and no inedible portions; it is all meat and particularly rich in those elements which go to repair over-worked brains and nervous systems.

Oysters are readily prepared in a chafing dish; more so than other foods. If the average housewife only knew of the many delicious dishes she could make in a chafing dish, the consumption of oysters would increase by leaps and bounds.

Which Leader?

The efforts of the Graballs to prevent the co-operation of the Liberal and Union forces failed miserably. That failure so incensed them that they are now using all their devilish ingenuity to neutralize its natural effects. They recognize that their straits are desperate and as desperate men they are proceeding to extremities in the vain hope of trying to save their skins. They are telling people that President Coaker sold out to Sir Robert Bond. Now selling implies a price. Such a charge attacks the honour of Sir Robert Bond and of Mr. Coaker. The charge is absolutely false in every particular and in every sense. Sir Robert Bond has too high a sense of honour and dignity to have recourse to any such course. Mr. Coaker has too great a love for the success and welfare of the Fishermen's Protective Union to lower himself in the estimation of its members. The Advocate to-day turns the tables on Mr. Coaker's enemies in this matter and does it most effectively. We quote his reply in part:—

"Grab-allism and Grab, recognising the wonderful hold of the 'reformer' from the backwoods," on the people have attempted as in the case of Mr. Roberts, to buy him over. At first $4,000 was offered him, then $50,000, then $100,000 and finally the bids for the purchase of his honor and integrity reached $250,000. But the bait failed to catch the incorruptible President of the F. P. U.

Spurred the Bribers.
Think of it, Toilers of Newfoundland! Coaker has been offered a fortune to betray your confidence. He might have sold you out to your enemies for a quarter of a million dollars and left you at the last in worse case than you were at first. But he flatly declined the gilded bribe, preferring poverty with honour to wealth with dishonor and the hatred and contempt of his betrayed fellow-countrymen.

In view of these facts, whatarrant nonsense it is for the Grab-all organs to shriek that Coaker has sold the Union to Bond! What could the President hope to gain from such an ungodly compact? Not wealth—that has failed to corrupt him even when offered to a greater, far greater, extent than Bond could command. Not position—Coaker is already leader of the united thousands of Newfoundland fishermen and would have to forsake that high place to enter a

How Mr. John Alexander Robinson seen from this extract from his writings:

"For Sir E. P. Morris, it is enough that money men, capitalists like the Harmsworths are concerned. Capitalists have an irresistible attraction for him. . . . After all, the man who could vote for the contract of 1898, and then vote for that of 1901, could vote for anything, and we may well be pardoned for not taking seriously his views of any contract where capitalists are concerned."

Yet these are the men who are trying to-day to boom Sir Edward Morris as the man to be trusted by the people and are endeavouring to disparage the incorruptible Commander, Sir Robert Bond, and the incorruptible President of the Fishermen's Protective Union, Mr. W. F. Coaker.

Morris Must Be Held Responsible.

The article we re-print on the saving of the Savings Bank by Sir Robert Bond is a sufficient answer to the scare campaign of the Graballs against the Savings Bank. Sir Robert Bond is the man who saved the Savings Bank in 1895. He is the man who saved the credit of Newfoundland at the same time. He has proved in the past that he is the man who can be relied upon to maintain Newfoundland even in times of disaster. His opponents have jeopardised our standing by piling up debt and indulging in every form of extravagance and misrule. His opponents did everything they could to wreck the '95 mission, but they failed. His opponents now are trying the same tactics they indulged in in 1895. But Sir Robert Bond won out. To-day we have the extraordinary spectacle of a Government newspaper trying to work up a scare against the Government Savings Bank by falsely declaring that Bond and Coaker intend to take money out of the Savings Bank to buy motor boats and start farms in the interior. The charge is utterly false. It is a base and low fabrication. Think of it: it is within the bounds of possibility that the most careful and economical administrator of public affairs, Newfoundland ever had, Sir Robert Bond, the man who pledged his own wealth, to save the Savings Bank, would ever dream of jeopardizing money in the Savings Bank in such a manner. It is unthinkable. But the campaign shows the desperate steps McGraith is taking to try to ensure a continuance of the grabs he has been indulging in the past four years. This campaign is on behalf of Morris, and Morris will be held responsible for this mad and insensate attack on the Savings Bank, of which as a Premier is he chief custodian and trustee.

Mr. Edwin Bower Hesser, of the Boston Opera Company, is due to arrive by to-day's express, and will be a guest at Waterford Hall.

Turn That is LEST

Never, we say never, before history of the city of St. John any public man been the recipient such a whole-souled and enthusiastic reception as was the Hon. Robert Bond last evening. There was practical no organization. The people for the hon. gentleman has won a signal victory needed no other title than the word to bring forth in their thousands to honor ex-illustrious patriot and a Nova's plucky, shrewd and liant statesman.

THE PROCESSION.

The procession started from the toric Beach at 8.30 o'clock. The of march was west on Duckworth Gower Streets, north on Spring to Water Street, east to Cochrane and via King's Bridge Road to residence of the Hon. Mr. Bond. A mass of citizens moved westward, thousand persons were in the line the crowd grew proportionally passed

Through the Streets. Intermingled in that vast crowd the leading citizens as well as street walk. A remarkably large number of women, whose faces and ing showed that they had worked to win bread, joined with the procession. They all had heard and read Mr. Bond and of his Heroism and to save them and their posterity, home and liberty, and they took advantage of the occasion to bear their testimonies to the faith that was in them. In starting, it is estimated Three Thousand Persons were in line. At every step the number increased. When Mr. Bond's residence on Cochrane Road was reached the great square outside was black with people; by this fully five thousand had gathered. Inside on the balcony, were the men and the members of the Executive, as well as members of the House of Assembly and other distinguished citizens. When Mr. Bond appeared Mr. Morris asked where he was speaking from, he said from the gallies that he had the officers who were trying to keep

The Surging Mass Back to let them come on, and in rushed hundreds. In five minutes the square grounds were filled; still the number would not be missed from the semble outside, unable to get within bearing distance of the speaker, a Grand Old Man stepped forward, box served the purpose of the form. As soon as he raised his above the sea of faces, up went hearty cheers for

Sir William Whiteway.

The Premier waited until the crowd cheering was over, and then his introductory remarks, "with my heart," said Sir William, "to extend a hearty welcome to able, plucky and shrewd statesman, the Hon. Robert Bond, Colonial Secretary. (Cheers.) We are assembled here to-night under the canopy heaven, as citizens and as men."

A Hearty Welcome to Him and to convey an expression of high appreciation of the eminent services which he has rendered the city. Three cheers for Mr. Bond five minutes the cheering was longed). The Premier then referred to the condition of the Colony. Mr. Bond left here two short ago. The last ray of hope seen have died in our hearts, we dare think of what the result would

Turn the Gascoles Out That is What the People Say LEST WE FORGET

Never, we say never, before in the history of the city of St. John's has any public man been the recipient of such a whole-souled and enthusiastic reception as the Hon. Robert Bond last evening. There was practically no organization. The people for whom the hon. gentleman has won such a signal victory needed no other incentive than the word to bring them forth in their thousands to honor and exalt Newfoundland's patriot and Terra Nova's plucky, shrewd and brilliant statesman.

THE PROCESSION.

The procession started from the historic Bench at 8:30 o'clock. The line of march was west on Duckworth and Gower Streets, north on Springdale to Water Street, east to Cochrane St. and via King's Bridge Road to the residence of the Hon. Mr. Bond. As the masses of citizens moved westward three thousand persons were in the line, and the crowd grew proportionally as it passed.

Through the Streets.

Intermingled in that vast crowd were the leading citizens as well as the street waif. A remarkably large number of women, whose faces and clothing showed that they had worked hard to win bread, joined with the procession. They all had heard and read of Mr. Bond and of his Herculean efforts to save them and their posterity, their home and liberty; and they took advantage of the occasion to bear public testimony to the faith that was in them. In starting, it is estimated that Three Thousand Persons were in Line.

At every step the number increased. When Mr. Bond's residence on Circular Road was reached the great space outside was black with people; by this time fully five thousand had gathered. Inside, on the balcony, were the Premier and the members of the Executive, as well as members of the House of Assembly and other distinguished citizens. When Mr. Bond appeared, Mr. Morris asked where he would speak from; he said from the gallery. He then told the officers who were trying to keep to let them come on, and in rushed the hundreds. In a few minutes the spacious grounds were filled; still the number would not be missed from the assembly outside, unable to get within hearing distance of the speaker. After a delay of about ten minutes, the Grand Old Man stepped forward. A box served the purpose of the platform. As soon as he raised himself above the sea of faces, up went three hearty cheers for

Sir William Whiteway.

The Premier waited until the prolonged cheering was over, and then began his introductory remarks. "With all my heart," said Sir William, "I rise to extend a hearty welcome to our able, plucky and shrewd statesman, the Hon. Robert Bond, Colonial Secretary. (Cheers.) We are assembled here to-night under the canopy of heaven, as citizens and as men, to tender and to convey an expression of our high appreciation of the eminent services which he has rendered this Colony. Three cheers for Mr. Bond (for five minutes the cheering was prolonged). The Premier then referred to the condition of the Colony when Mr. Bond left here two short months ago. The last ray of hope seemed to have died in our hearts, we dared not think of what the result would be should Mr. Bond fall in his mission to get the

Financial Aid Required.

I have been on missions myself and I know what difficulties I had to contend with; and Mr. Bond will tell you to-night how he was shadowed and belied at every step he took in the direction of raising the required loan. "The Premier was brimful of hope for the future. Every sentence he spoke inspired new confidence in his listeners. Cheer after cheer followed the words which fell upon willing ears. The Premier then moved the following resolution, which was seconded by the Hon. E. P. Morris:

THE RESOLUTION.

Resolved,—That we, the citizens of St. John's assembled at a public meeting, desire to extend a hearty welcome to the Hon. Robert Bond, Colonial Secretary, and to convey to him an expression of our high appreciation of the eminent services which he has rendered to this Colony; of the zeal and ability with which he has discharged the onerous duties devolving upon him, and we warmly congratulate him upon the successful issue of his mission on behalf of this Colony.

Hon. E. P. Morris Speaks.

Hon. E. P. Morris saw how little use there was for him to speak at length; rather than to give expression to the same hearty sentiment of welcome so ably proposed by the Premier, Sir William Whiteway. He would not delay them by any lengthy observations, he esteemed it a great privilege to have the honor of seconding that resolution of thanksgiving which they had assembled for the purpose of tendering to Mr. Bond the thanks of the people of this Colony for the able manner in which he had discharged the onerous duties connected with the mission from which

He Had Just Returned.

When Mr. Bond left here, two months ago, a dark cloud hung over Newfoundland, and few could be found to believe in the ultimate success of his mission; but to-night they knew that that mission had been crowned with success; that by the successful raising of a loan on advantageous terms for the Colony, he has removed that dark cloud, or, at least, given it a silver lining. He had converted despair into hope, and waited that hope all over the land. In a word, Mr. Bond has cut the Gordian knot of our difficulties and Newfoundland is

Once More Out of Danger.

We cannot properly estimate the difficulties and obstacles which Mr. Bond had to surmount and overcome, and it is only those who have been intimately associated with him who can appreciate the zeal and energy which he put into his work when working for Newfoundland; and to-night it must be consoling to Mr. Bond, and must be a reward for all his patient toil, to see himself surrounded by thousands of his countrymen, representing all classes in the community, who, laying aside all party differences, vie with each other in honoring the man who has so successfully piloted the old ship into calm and tranquil waters, and who has given us a practical demonstration of which is best expressed in his graphic quotation, "You may laugh at her name, and scoff at her shame, But there's life in the old land yet."

The same popularity Mr. Morris has always possessed, and we may add, that it is held in the hearts of every son of Terra Nova, while he thinks well to ask them for their confidence, was evidenced at last night's mass meeting. When he stepped forward to second the resolution the hand played "The Banks of Newfoundland," as if it were to remind the thousands that a "son of the soil" was about to address them. During the introductory remarks Mr. Bond stood looking earnestly out at the sea of faces which had come to bid him welcome. He was evidently deeply moved by all that was going on about him, and why not?

No One Man in Newfoundland

had ever received such an ovation. Unconscious of the time being that he had done his country a great and lasting service, his honest heart felt naught but gratitude towards his fellow-countrymen. Hon. Mr. Bond spoke substantially as follows:—

HON. MR. BOND SPEAKS.

My Friends,—Your greeting, so cordial, so earnest and so true, is so overwhelming in its enthusiasm that I find it impossible at this time to convey to you a correct idea as to how earnestly, how fervently, and how deeply I feel your kindness. There are times when the heart is too full for words, and when silence bears the most eloquent testimony. I find this precisely one of those occasions; and if I should simply bow my acknowledgments and leave you to believe what

My Lips Can So Ill Express.

I can conceive of no higher honor than this. I could wish for no greater. History tells us of warriors who risked home and fortune and life itself, in order to gain the approbation of their fellow-countrymen; and who, returning home with victory perched upon their banners, received such demonstrations of popular favor as I find myself the recipient of to-night. But I have not done any of these things. You have reminded me, my friends, that "peace has its victories as much renowned as war," and that duty well and faithfully done

Is Certain to Meet Its Reward.

I have the conscience of having done my duty, nothing more; and having done it, I can meet you to-night with rejoicing. I have been engaged in a fight, it is true, a fight for liberty, for honor, for country. Not on tented fields where gallant hosts, with steel and bullet, vie in strength and valor, but in a political arena that has embraced a portion of two hemispheres. I have been fighting for the past two months single-handed against most insidious, bitter and relentless enemies of our country.

They have not been fighting with the sword, but with tongue and pen, that are oftentimes sharper and more powerful than the sword. Your presence here to-night is to signalize a victory won against frightful odds—won for you, for your children, for our country. When I left here on the 11th May last, it was as the leader of a forlorn hope. The country had been brought to the verge of ruin by the self-seeking of some, by the apathy of others, and by the deliberate planning of a knavish few. The credit of the Colony was gone, its finances were apparently hopelessly involved, and to many the only avenue of escape from utter ruin lay in the direction of

Confederation or Crown Colony.

Confederation with the Dominion of Canada, upon the terms proposed by the Government of the Dominion would have been derogatory to the present and future of the Colony, for it meant the abandonment of our self-reliance and consequent non-development of the interior of the country. It meant the relinquishment of all upon which our hopes for the future have been and still are based, namely, the development of the material prosperity by the opening up of our vast and fertile interior, and the resources that a bountiful Providence had laid up for us in the interior of this country. It meant the sacrifice of the present and future of this Colony, for their success depends upon the completion of the line to the ### West Coast and Port aux Basques.

It meant ruin to thousands of our people, who would have lost the benefit of the labor of present being provided by the construction of the line to Port aux Basques, and who could not have obtained labor at this time in any other direction. Again, the surrender of that constitution which had been won by the perseverance and the dedication to the patriotic cause of our countrymen, was an alternative so cruel and humiliating that we shrink from it with horror. Such was the position of matters in this country when I left here a few weeks ago. As I stood on the deck of the S. S. Tibber and bade good-bye

To My Friends in the Government,

the prospects that stretched out before us were as dark as the night that overshadowed us. They could only wish me good luck and hope for the best. My political opponents predicted failure. As subsequent events proved, the wish was father to the thought. With a pertinacity worthy of a hoarder, they dogged my footsteps and flashed their missiles to the money markets of the world. But they over-reached themselves. The very intensity of their attacks defeated their object. Day after day the newspapers of Canada, of the United States and of England, contained

The Most Abominable Reflections

upon the people, and the credit, and the capabilities of this Colony, that had been cabled to them by literary assassins residing in this city. I regret to say that there are in our midst a few individuals so lost to all sense of honesty or decency, so utterly abandoned that they are prepared not only to blast personal character, but to bring wreck and ruin upon the country that is affording them an asylum and a living, if only they may succeed in injuring those whose only crime is that they possess your confidence and respect. For a considerable time these despicable characters had

Succeeded in Utilizing the Respectable Press

outside of this Colony to further their own nefarious ends. But they can no longer do it to the same extent, for they are known in their true character. When in the great city of Boston, I called upon the leading editors of every newspaper there and told them of the men who were making use of the columns of their journals. The result of my interviews was that the whole press of Boston came out in support of the Colony, and in an earnest appeal to the financial resources of the United States to help us in our loan. I took similar steps in Canada and in England. I regret to say that and also in this country, that the Rev. Dr. Harvey was responsible for some of the despatches that were cabled from here with a view to prevent a loan being obtained for the Colony. I casually met that gentleman a few days ago, who, after he had congratulated me upon the success of my mission, volunteered the statement that he had not written a line or cabled a word to any quarter with a view to embarrassing the negotiations for a loan. The reverend gentleman

Condemned Most Strongly

the course that had been and was being pursued by newspaper correspondents in this city, and gave me his permission to make public his reputation of what had been attributed to him. I have written to England to dissuade the minds of parties there upon this matter, and I gladly avail of this opportunity to do that gentleman justice. The Rev. Dr. Harvey is known far beyond the confines of his country, and his literary reputation and his age adds weight to what is supposed to be his utterances. I do not hesitate to state that importance was attached to many of

The Cable Despatches

to which I have alluded, because it was supposed that they emanated from him. In concluding my remarks upon this point I would say, let these things continue, let this defamation of character and country continue, and you may as well commence to write the epitaph of the commerce and of the prosperity of this country. The predictions of the failure of my mission proved to be as false as the most of those that I obtained upon the most favorable terms, all the money that the colony required to wipe out its floating debt and meet its interest liabilities, thus saving the autonomy and credit of the Colony.

When My Political Opponents

found that the loan was an accomplished fact, and that they had been misled in their attempt to prevent it, they next turned their attention to the Savings Bank and with all the earnestness of desperadoes, endeavoured to wrest it from me. I obtained, up to not know to this hour, that I have placed the Savings Bank beyond their power to harm it. I will tell you a surprise here to-night which not only I secured a loan for the Colony, but I have also obtained a MILLION OF MONEY FOR THE SAVINGS BANK which is available to ### Meet Any Call of Emergency.

I have also arranged for the disposal of the whole of their securities at par. The Savings Bank has been placed in a position to withstand all the vicissitudes of the future. If there are any in this vast multitude who have been frightened into withdrawing their money from the Savings Bank, I pledge you my word most solemnly to-night that what I have told you is true and as a friend, advise you to return to the Savings Bank and deposit again your savings of a lifetime beyond the reach of the thief of the fire. There are hundreds in the city who to-night have in their homes, through fear created by writers in our local papers. These people forget that the thief may steal their money, but he cannot steal their homes, through fear created by writers in our local papers. These people forget that the thief may steal their money, but he cannot steal their homes, through fear created by writers in our local papers. These people forget that the thief may steal their money, but he cannot steal their homes, through fear created by writers in our local papers.

All their Savings Hidden Away

Ill-feeling and Petty Jealousies,

and by a long pull, and a strong pull, and a pull together, we shall lift our country to a higher level. The autonomy of the country has been saved; it is now in your keeping, and it rests entirely with you, my friends, as to how long we shall retain it. I again thank you for this hearty reception from the bottom of my heart. The honor you have conferred I shall treasure as a sacred memory to the close of my life.

Cheer after cheer went up from the assembled multitude as Mr. Bond finished speaking.

The National Anthem was sung at the Premier's request, and the large, intelligent and patriotic audience dispersed amid a fresh display of rockets and stage fireworks.—From The Evening Telegram, July 27, 1913.

Coaker Contrasted With Morison and Crosbie.

The Hypocrites Who Are Shocked at Bond's Combination With the F. P. U.

The people who pretend to be horrified at the Bond-Coaker combination and can support Morison, while the latter holds with Morison, the Forfeited Don, and John Spar Crosbie are the most ardent hypocrites. Let us contrast Coaker with both these men and see who will best bear the test of fair criticism.

Morison and Crosbie are directors of a company, the Newfoundland Produce Company, which has secured two profitable coastal contracts. These contracts were made with the Government of which they were members which voted to pay to the company of which they are directors the large sums of $19,000 per year for 12 years for the Fogo Mail Service and $20,000 per year for 12 years for the Fortune Bay Service.

At the City Hall. Yesterday afternoon the regular weekly meeting of our City Fathers was held. The Mayor, Mr. Ellis, presided and there were present Councilors Mully, Myrick, Coaker, Martin and Ryan.

The Board of Trustees of the General Protestant Cemetery wrote as to widen Topal Road. A special meeting will be held to consider this matter.

The Colonial Secretary wrote saying the dredge would be at work here this fall. J. Potties' complaint about bad drain on Gear Street was referred to the Engineer.

Rossler & Co's application to extend their store on Central Street was referred to the Engineer.

N. J. Murphy asked to be appointed Sanitary Inspector. Application put on file.

Council's Solicitor F. J. Morria wrote application sent by him to Council showing the lay-out of the streets on LeMarchant Road and the refusal of the Council to approve of the plan. He also referred to Mr. Prowse's intimation that he would go ahead without the Council's permission.

cars, would gladly accept? These are a few of the ways in which Morison and Crosbie have served the country. Believing that clarity begins at home they began helping themselves before they were a month in office and are still doing it. They have been too busy looking after themselves that the people, the fishermen, whose interests they were elected to conserve have been sadly neglected. Of all the promises made by the Government to develop the fisheries, all have been diamal failures. In fact beyond the fishing industry, which cannot be called much of a success yet, nothing has been done.

Now let us see what Coaker has done for the Toller. By combination he has enabled them to purchase their provisions, their supplies cheaper, notwithstanding Morria's frantic promises coal is dearer to-day in St. John's than when he took office. In the outputs Coaker can sell it for $2. per ton less than the local dealer. He has stashed the salt combine and gave the fishermen cheaper salt, he gives them cheaper flour of the best quality, cheaper clothes and besides has materially helped to increase and keep up the price of fish. Can Morria, Morison or Crosbie claim credit for any betterment of the fishermen's condition? They were promised cold storage, direct communication with West Indies, better marketing, standard culls, thirty-seven ways of putting up fish to increase the consumption of fish, and they have done nothing.

Several of the singers were favorites in Halifax, having sung here last year. Others were heard for the first time but could not complain of their reception. M. Umberto Sacchetti, first tenor of the Boston Opera Company, scored a success that means he will not soon be forgotten. Although the first tenor of the Boston Opera Company, he was somewhat of a surprise, his rendering of English songs alone placed him in the front rank, and gives hope that in the opera to follow he will be allowed full scope. The "Turdido" song from "Carmen" will bring a response from any audience it well done. It is as old as human nature and as young, and M. Nikola Dolouchanoff sang it so well that "The Rosary" had to serve as an encore.

The sextette from Lucia di Lammermoor was splendidly sung.

Spindell Singers. The Aria from "Simon Boccanegra," less familiar here than other solos, served to introduce M. Edgar Littleton to such advantage that he too was compelled to give several encores.

Brilliant Opening of the Operatic Season

Mr. Hesser's Fine Company of Singers Delighted Music Lovers With a Programme of High Merit—Mme. Gabbi's Triumph in "Cavalleria."

"A million times better than last year" was a comment overheard at the close of the opera last night. Those who had the pleasure of hearing the stars of the Boston Opera Co., a year ago may best judge the quality of this year's performance with this comment as a basis of contrast. Mr. Edwin Bower Hesser, manager of the road company, has spared neither pains nor expense to make this tour a success, and the second annual season certainly opened brilliantly. If this first performance is a augury of the season, then Halifax is fortunate indeed.

Succession of Delights. From the time the curtain rose on the trio in the duet scene from "Faust" until it fell for the last time of "Santuzza" the first to the death of the faithless "Turridu," last night's programme was a succession of delights to the music-lover.

Several of the singers were favorites in Halifax, having sung here last year. Others were heard for the first time but could not complain of their reception. M. Umberto Sacchetti, first tenor of the Boston Opera Company, scored a success that means he will not soon be forgotten. Although the first tenor of the Boston Opera Company, he was somewhat of a surprise, his rendering of English songs alone placed him in the front rank, and gives hope that in the opera to follow he will be allowed full scope.

and Mme. Gertrude Hutcheson, the coloratura soprano of the Company made an instant hit. Mme. Hutcheson has unusual control and her voice is sympathetic as well as brilliant. Add to this a charming personality and her triumph is explained. Mme. Woodwine and M. Vittono also achieved successes.

Madame Gabbi's fine work. But the great voice and the great acting of the evening appeared in "Cavalleria Rusticana." Mme. di Gabbi, a prime donna of Milan, as "Santuzza," did some magnificent work both in singing and acting. Perfection of tone and phrasing made her a delight, while her facial expression was marvellous. Every phase of emotion was depicted. She was well supported by M. Gatti, as "Turridu." It is not often Halifax has such a treat. Mme. Woodwine and M. Vittono as "Lola" and "Alfo," gave excellent support to their principals, but M. Sinclair, who was disappointing in "Anna Lucia." The part in her hands lacked effectiveness. In some other part Mlle. Sinclair may be seen to better advantage; but her "Lola" was the weak spot of the evening.

Manager Hesser announced a surprise in the person of Miss Betty Lee a London success, in a group of Japanese songs. Miss Lee is a dainty little person with winsome ways and a pretty voice, but she was a bit out of the picture, and so perhaps did not win all the appreciation she merited. In a lighter programme she would have made the hit of the evening.

Mr. Kelly's Direction. Maestro John Craig Kelly deserves a word all to himself. As musical director he left nothing to be desired and "The Intermeezzo" as he interpreted it on the violin left nothing of its sweetness and delicacy. Halifax cannot expect a long season of opera, but Manager Hesser is giving it a chance to prove its right to be called a music loving city. Good houses this week mean a return in year with still more ambitious programme. Music lovers cannot fail to appreciate this opportunity and knit closer the ties between Halifax and the Boston Opera Co. Manager O'Donnell certainly seems to understand the tastes of Academy patrons.

To-night's Programme. To-night "La Traviata" will be sung in three acts. This is the story of "Camille" and as well as being one of the most musical of all the operas, it has a dramatic intensity that makes it something to look forward to seeing. Mme. Hutcheson has the leading soprano role. M. Umberto Sacchetti, first tenor of the Boston Opera Company, scored a success that means he will not soon be forgotten. Although the first tenor of the Boston Opera Company, he was somewhat of a surprise, his rendering of English songs alone placed him in the front rank, and gives hope that in the opera to follow he will be allowed full scope.

The sextette from Lucia di Lammermoor was splendidly sung.

Spindell Singers. The Aria from "Simon Boccanegra," less familiar here than other solos, served to introduce M. Edgar Littleton to such advantage that he too was compelled to give several encores.

His rendering of English songs alone placed him in the front rank, and gives hope that in the opera to follow he will be allowed full scope. The "Turdido" song from "Carmen" will bring a response from any audience it well done. It is as old as human nature and as young, and M. Nikola Dolouchanoff sang it so well that "The Rosary" had to serve as an encore.

Poetical Gems.

(FOR THE SCRAP BOOK.)

THE ENTIRE SELECTION THIS WEEK IS TAKEN FROM THE WORKS OF ROBERT BRIDGES, THE NEW POET LABUATE.

LAUS DEO.

Let praise devote thy work, and skill employ
Thy whole mind, and thy heart be lost in joy
Well-doing bringeth pride, this constant thought
Humility, that thy best done is sought.
Man doeth nothing well, be it great or small,
Save to praise God; but that hath saved all:
For God requires no more than thou hast done,
And takes thy work to bless it for His own.

LARKS.

What voice of gladness, hark!
In heaven is ringing?
From the sad fields the lark
Is upward winging.
High through the mournful mist that blots our day
Their songs betray them soaring in the grey.
See them! Nay, they
in sunlight swim; above the farthest stain
Of cloud attain; their hearts in music rain
Upon the plain.

Sweet birds, far out of sight
Your songs of pleasure
Dome us with joy as bright
As heaven's best azure.

ODE.

Gird on thy sword, O man, thy strength endure,
In fair desire thine earth-born joy renew.
Live thou thy life beneath the waking sun
Till Beauty, Truth, and Love in thee are one.

Thro' thousand ages hath thy childhood run:
On timeless ruin hath thy glory been:
From the forgotten night of loves for-done
Thou risest in the dawn of hopes unseen.
Higher and higher shall thy thoughts
aspire,
Unto the stars of heaven, and pass away
And earth renew the buds of thy desire
In fleeting blooms of everlasting day.
Thy work with beauty crown, thy life
with love;
Thy mind with truth uplift to God

Dear Sirs,—We have nothing but good to say of Mathieu's Syrup and can conscientiously describe it as the most popular and successful Cough Medicine we handle. Owing to the absence of any drug store in this vicinity there is a great variety of Proprietary medicine sold in the course of the year, and Mathieu's Syrup pre-eminently leads in its own class. Yours sincerely,

I rode as I might, and came
To my love at close of day.

The sight of her still'd my fears,
My fairest-hearted love:
And yet in her eyes were tears:
Which when I question'd of,
"O, now thou art come," she cried,
"This need; but I thought to-day
I never could here abide,
If thou wert longer away."

MY DELIGHT AND THY DELIGHT.

My delight and thy delight
Walking, like two angels white,
In the gardens of the night:

My desire and thy desire
Twining to a tongue of fire,
Leaping live, and laughing higher:

Thro' the everlasting strife
In the mystery of life.

Love, from whom the world begun,
Hath the secret of the sun.

Love can tell, and love alone,
Whence the million stars were strown
Why each atom knows its own,
How, in spite of woe and death,
Gay is life, and sweet is breath:

This he taught us, this we knew,
Happy in his science true,
Hand in hand as we stood
Neath the shadows of the wood,
Heart to heart as we lay
In the dawning of the day.

WHEN DEATH TO EITHER SHALL COME.

When Death to either shall come—
I pray it be first to me,
Be happy as ever at home,
If so, as I wish, it be.

Possess thy heart, my own;
And sing to the child on thy knee,
Or read to thyself alone
The songs that I made for thee.

LOVE.

Since thou, O fondest and truest,
Hast loved me best and longest,
And now with trust the strongest
The joy of my heart renewest:

Since thou art dearer and dearer
While other hearts grow colder
And ever, as love is older,
More lovingly drawest nearer:

Since now I see in the measure
Of all my giving and taking,
Thou wert my hand in the making,
The sense and soul of my pleasure:

The good I have ne'er repaid thee
In heaven I pray be recorded,
And all thy love rewarded
By God, thy master that made thee.

PRESCRIPTION "A."

Very Highly Recommended by An Outport Man.

Please send me by mail 1 large bottle of Stafford's Prescription "A." Enclosed you will find 50 cents, also 10 cents for postage. You sent me a trial size a few days ago and it almost cured my wife. Another 50 cent bottle will make a cure. I have tried doctors and all kinds of medicine, but don't believe that there is any medicine that can cure a bad stomach like STAFFORD'S PRESCRIPTION "A." I am more than thankful that ever you advertised that medicine. Please forward as soon as possible, as I am waiting anxiously for it.

Regatta at Lower Island Cove.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Mr. Editor,—Our annual regatta took place on August 20th. In the morning the weather was anything but encouraging, and the charge had decided to postpone it; but in the afternoon the weather cleared and as quite a number of visitors from the neighboring settlements had visited the site of contest, the committee decided not to disappoint them. The first sport was a running contest; six entered. It was won by H. A. Gillingham (Musgrave Hill) and H. Morris (Lower Island Cove), 2nd.

Fishermen (Juvenile).
Two boats entered. Dreadnought (Caplin Cove); W. Bursey,cox; F. Butt,stroke; A. G. Cull, E. Power, E. Churchill. Beothic (Lower Island Cove); B. Morris,cox; C. G. Lewis,stroke; C. L. Garland, Geo. Driscoll, J. Garland. Both boats started at once, the Dreadnought slightly leading which position was kept up right up to the finish. The Caplin Cove boys winning by four boat lengths.

Fishermen (Senior).

Dreadnought (Caplin Cove); H. T. Reynolds,cox; E. Garland,stroke; J. Butt, W. Bursey, J. Harris. Beothic (Lower Island Cove); J. J. Wheeler,cox; E. Nagman,stroke; H. Morris, A. Cooper, H. Bursey. At the start the Dreadnought took the lead. The Beothic slowly caught up and both reached the buoys together. The Dreadnought took a longer turn than the Beothic which slightly retarded her progress. On the home stretch the Dreadnought kept the lead with the Beothic hard by. When about half way the Caplin Cove boys seemed to be renewed with increased vigour and giving the stroke which Caplin Cove can give, finished three boat lengths ahead of Island Cove.

Students.
Beothic (Lower Island Cove); J. J. Wheeler,cox; K. Morris,stroke; C. Garland, H. Garland, A. M. Hudson. Dreadnought (All-comers); W. Bursey, R. English, H. A. Gillingham. In this race both boats were equal until the buoy was reached when the Beothic making a longer turn than the other fell behind. But gradually she worked her way ahead and as the distance between the boats and goals decreased the interest increased, the supporters of each boat cheering loudly. Island Cove seemed to have the little extra vim and finished one-fourth boat length ahead. The prizes were then presented by Mr. A. G. Hudson and thus the interesting feature came to a close.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well, You did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc." That "if" means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible? Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.

A Good Thing For St. John's

Hundreds of our readers will be much interested in the announcement in to-day's Telegram of Ungar's Laundry & Dye Works, Halifax. The opening of an agency of such an establishment as this is claimed to be an event that will be welcomed by every man and woman of this city and surrounding country. The results obtained through Dry Cleaning, while not so well known in Newfoundland, are almost inconceivable. It is a process that transforms an old discarded suit into new. In other words instead of paying $25 or $30 for a new suit, send the old one to be Dry Cleaned, costing but $2, and see what you save. Messrs. Ungar's have the latest appliances and most up-to-date equipment to do Dyeing in all its various branches. The local agency, Messrs. Nicholls, Inkpen, Chafe & Co., Ltd., Water Street, will be glad to send you a booklet explaining Dry Cleaning and Dyeing upon request. See announcement in this issue.

Headaches and Heart Trouble

Nervous Prostration of Three Years' Standing Cured a Year Ago by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
Anyone who knows the discouragement and despair which accompanies the helplessness of nervous prostration will appreciate the gratitude felt by the writer of this letter.
Mrs. H. C. Jones, Scotch Lake, C. B., writes: "I suffered from nervous prostration for nearly three years. I had frequent headaches, had no appetite and was troubled with my heart. After consulting two doctors, without obtaining satisfactory results, I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was completely cured by this treatment. It is nearly a year since I was cured, and I want others to know of this splendid medicine. I now attend to my household work with pleasure and comfort, and am glad to have the opportunity of recommending Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."
At least one benefit is bound to be derived from each dose of this great food cure, as day by day it forms new blood and builds up the system. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A Popular Plan as results already show

Many letters are arriving from widely-scattered sections of Canada and Newfoundland asking for copies of our Partial Payment Plan booklet. These bear out our belief from the start that the new plan would prove popular.

Some orders have been entered, but of course it's too early to expect more, as it's only during the past ten days that we have been sending out the booklet.

It is the strong interest as manifested in these letters that is especially gratifying, containing, as they do, assurances that our Partial Payment Plan is something the public really wanted.

Eight Japanese, carrying their national flag, fled towards their consulate. Some Government troops fired and two of the Japanese fell dead. ## Jerome Arrested

Special to Evening Telegram.

COATCOOKE, Sept. 5. William Travis Jerome, was arrested here to-day charged with gambling, on the complaint of Miss Fred Aldridge, a citizen of Coatcooke who swears she had seen Jerome playing poker in public yesterday. Jerome was taken to the jail where Thaw was confined. Thaw's lawyers disclaimed any knowledge of the arrest. The belief prevails that it was Thaw who invited Jerome among the townspeople who resented Jerome's presence. Thaw was withdrawn almost immediately. The Board adjourned suddenly. It was reported that a decision had been reached. The arrest of Thaw two weeks ago by Constable Bonfret has stirred up a small tangle in Coatcooke. The remainder of the town council took umbrage at Bonfret's action and have demanded that he be asked to resign. The remainder of the Council refused, and it is understood that several Aldermanic resignations are pending.

The charge against Jerome is common gambling on railroad property, the maximum penalty for which is one year's imprisonment with the option of a fine. Crowds gathered around the jail, shouting "Hurrah for Thaw; now we will deport Jerome." Jerome was admitted to $500 bail and left the jail smiling.

Ferry Service.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor—Last fall the so-called Government thought they would try to gain a few supporters by placing a ferry service on the harbour to run from North to South side. The ferry was running a few months and out of that time it was a real humber and a hindrance instead of a convenience. You may be on either pier waiting for the time to take passage by the ferry and would try to control your patience to wait for a half hour or so after the time set forth for the ferry to sail, and after waiting for so long a period you would have to start and use your own personal ferry (your feet). On or about the first of this year this ferry was, we understand, accidentally destroyed, and according to the papers was to be replaced in a few weeks after the accident, and it was only the other day it was replaced, and since it has been replaced it is a worse fake and a worse even than the first one was. The present ferry was, we understand, a boat cast aside by some party as being of practically no use, and the Government having a few weeks left to their credit thought it was just as well to dispose of the little cash that was remaining and they hired or purchased this boat; but anyway wherever they got her or however they got her she is at present engaged in. But this is only another specimen of their good judgment and doing good for the people, and I can see what a disaster is ahead of this Government next November.

Walk, good people, and see what the Liberal and Union Party will do us after November, and I feel assured that we will have no room to complain as we have at present, but we will be able to praise the good things of the Liberal Government and they will give us a better service than we have at present.

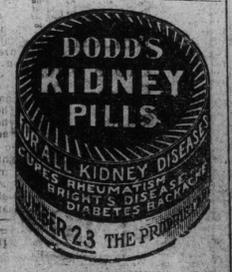

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space, I remain,
Yours truly,
EYE WITNESS.

Obituary.

CAPT. THOMAS SPRACKLIN.
The death occurred yesterday of Capt. Thomas Spracklin, of whom you have heard so much. He was a white man, 5' 10" tall, and a very fine specimen of a man. He was in his 62nd year at the time of his death and was a man who was well liked and highly respected by all who knew him. He had few enemies and had many friends. A widow, two sons and four daughters mourn the loss of a kind husband and father. To them The Evening Telegram extends its sincere sympathy.

KEEP MINARD'S LINIMENT IN THE HOUSE.

Two Lectures Sunday

Special to Evening Telegram.

Pastor A. H. Macmillan, of New York City will deliver two lectures in the British Hall to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon and evening, Sept. 7th. The topic for the afternoon is "How Shall the Heathen be Saved?" Mr. Macmillan says that the Bible does not teach that the heathen will be saved because they are ignorant, therefore ninety thousand who die every twenty-four hours are not saved in ignorance, still he claims that it would not be just to condemn without giving them a chance to be saved. This apparently contradictory situation he says he will clear up, and show a loving and just and reasonable plan for those who have already died, and are still dying in ignorance.

The topic for the evening lecture, which begins at eight o'clock is "Where Are the Dead?" This subject should appeal to everyone, for all have friends and relatives who have died to-day, those living to-day will be dead to-morrow. Where are they? Will the wayward child and the loving parent be forever parted? Will we know our dear ones when we meet beyond? These and other questions will give chapter by chapter from the Bible to prove every point.

—Come and bring your friends. No collection, seats free.

This Date in History.

SEPTEMBER 6.

New Moon.
Days Past—248 To Come—418.
VINCENT NOVELLO born 1781, English composer and musical editor. Himself a composer of sacred music, he also edited sacred works of Haydn, Mozart, and other composers which were before unknown in England. The publishing enterprise which he undertook in 1811 was the forerunner of the present firm of Novello, Ewer & Co.
Musie is the only sensual gratification which mankind may indulge in to excess without injury to their moral or religious feelings. —Addison.

SEPTEMBER 7.

First Quarter.
Days Past—249 To Come—115.
16th Sunday after Trinity.
WHITTIER died 1892, aged 87. American poet laureate of abolition. Although somewhat lacking in fire and concentrated passion, his poems have the freshness of spring flowers.
FOUNDATION STONE of Cochrane St. Church laid 1830.
To do is to succeed—our fight is won! Heaven's approving smile The smile of God is victory! —Whittier.

McMurdo's Store News.

PEKING, To-day. Despatches received here from Nanking report that the Northern armies completely sacked the city, looting and other excesses lasted three days. The soldiers visited the American consulate and demanded money, but Mrs. Gilbert, wife of the Vice-Consul, during the absence of her husband, pluckily talked the men out of their design, reminding them that Americans were their friends. The soldiers then left the Consulate. The fall of Nanking to Northern soldiers marked the close of the rebellion as all the provinces are now reported quiet.
LONDON, To-day. Even Count Okuma, former Japanese Foreign Minister, supports the opposition critics of the Government's alleged vacillating and weak policy in China, and urged the seizure of a Chinese port.
TOKIO, To-day. Morihiro Abe, director of the Political Bureau of the Japanese Foreign Office, died to-day, a victim of an unknown assassin.

The Undaunted Man

I met a Kansas granger whose corn crop was in danger from drought and roasting wind; it was much to be pitied. He looked across acres, all doomed by weather fakers who got the climate mixed; he watched the dust clouds swirling, he saw the corn leaves curling, he looked the rows betwixt; he said: "It's gone, I reckon; it's shrivelled up by heck, an' it won't produce an ear; of course, it's mighty grievous; such things will always peeve us—but better luck next year!" His spirit wasn't humbled, he neither groaned nor grumbled, nor cast away his tools; merrily he whistled and manured his mounds. How many are undaunted when good things they have wanted like bubbles disappear? How many grin at sorrow and look toward to-morrow and better luck next year? That farmer, in the future, when you, disgruntled, tout your loud trumpet of despair, will have all kinds of money, his days will all be sunny, and diamonds he will wear. For fortune always favours the man who never wavers when evil days appear, who sizes up affliction and says, with graceful defiance, "Well, better luck next year!"

Bad Reports.

The Invermore report from Labrador is anything but encouraging. Practically nothing has been done south of Hopedale, and from that place to Cape Muford the catch is very poor. Further north the floaters are doing well, and some of the settlers have done fairly with their traps. A few days ago a number of schooners were met with coming south with poor fares. Capts. Bishop and Roberts of Westville were met returning with full cargoes. Some foreign vessels are on the coast awaiting cargoes. They are not as numerous as in former years.

A black or dark blue gown is brightened with the Arab sash, woven with white lines of somewhat crude shades into a kind of gold tissue. It is knotted in front and falls a few centimeters over the skirt toward the hem.

MR. F. J. KING, R.C.M., I.S.M.,

will resume lessons for Piano, Organ, Singing and Theoretical Subjects on Monday, September 8th. Special reduced fees to students at local colleges and schools. For terms, etc., apply at 199 Gower Street.—sep6,li

GRADUALLY RECOVERING.

Mrs. Macnamara, wife of Mr. Frank Macnamara, is now at Westville Bay. She is a guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Aiden O'Driscoll, and we are glad to note she is having a rapid recovery from her recent illness. Mrs. Macnamara will spend several weeks at Westville Bay.

now being erected on the Bay Bulls Road, and consecration of the Cemetery on Wednesday, Sept. 10th, at 3 o'clock. Special train leaving St. John's at 2.15. Teas and refreshments on the grounds. sep6,21

BUNY PLACE.

Grieve's firm is the busiest place in the city to-day. The schr. Mary Lloyd is loading for Pernambuco and quite a number of schooners are discharging fish there. Over 100 men are working on the premises.

GOOD ADVICE.

It is necessary to always have a bottle of good Brandy at hand.

What Brandy will you buy? The Medicinal Brandy "Sanator" is not a properly so-called medicine, but it has been selected from amongst the best known brands for their effective principles, and it is distilled so as to develop its tonic and digestive qualities. It is really the FAMILY BRANDY, which name the public has, for a long time, bestowed on it.

The celebrated French physician, DR. PHARZELLE, Inspector-in-Chief of the Great Medical Services, says: "The medicinal Brandy 'Sanator' is eminently an easy digestive drink, remarkable for its tonifying and reinvigorating properties."

Ask for Medicinal Brandy Sanator from your liquor dealer; he has it.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Sept. 6, 1913. Blue Jay Corn Plasters are still in great demand. One of the reasons is that this plaster combines the virtues of the ordinary corn cure with that of the corn plaster of fact. These plasters are very effective in granting relief to those troubled with corns or similar excrescences. Price 15 and 25 cents a pie. Pine Tree Lozenges are the thing to employ for sudden colds, hoarseness resulting from sudden changes in the weather and incipient coughs. A good think to have in the pocket as the nights become cool. Price 25 cents a box.

Here and There.

During Dr. Howlett's temporary absence from the city his practice will be conducted by Dr. M. S. Power.—sep6,4i

A FLEET PREACHER.—To-morrow night the Rev. Mr. Hudson will be heard at Wesley Church. He is a brother-in-law of Rev. Mark Fenwick. He is said to be one of the most talented preachers in the Island.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. John's Mechanics' Society will take place on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. By order, J. LAHEY, Sec.—sep6,li

CITY TEAM VICTORIOUS.—In the play off for the baseball championship this morning at Grand Falls, the city team defeated the Grand Falls team by a score of 29 to 15. This gives the city team the Inter-Town Baseball Championship for the season, also the R. G. Reid trophy for 1913.
