MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DAN BRUFF.

A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XXII.

All eyes went to Heroncourt—even Maida's; hers rested on his face with an expression not to be described. He was very white and his brows were drawn. He put out his hand and took hers and held it firmly, his eyes full of love and tenderness, of admiration, even of worship. He had never loved her better than at that moment, she seemed almost divine to him; and his unworthiness to claim so noble a creature as his own, weighed upon his heart.

"Miss Carrington is quite right," he said. "I agree with every word she has said. The money must be restored. You have appealed to me—that is my response."

Mr. Coburn glared, and, for the first time in his professional life, found himself for the moment incapable of speech; then he burst forth with angry indignation:

"Do you know what you are saying, my lord? You advise, you aid and abet, this young lady, this poor girl, half mad with grief, to make over her and her sister's fortune to—this man?"

"I do," said Heroncourt.

A faint cry like a long-drawn breath rose from the listeners.

"Oh, you do! I suppose you would like me to sit down, my partner and I, and draw up a deed of gift this very moment?"

Heroncourt inclined his head.

"I should," he said.

"Yes!" broke from Maida's white lips.

"Oh, you would!" exclaimed Mr. Coburn. "Then permit me to tell you, my lord, that you are talking rank nonsense; and that I decline to have any hand in such an insane proceeding. In the whole course of my professional career—"

Heroncourt went to him and laid a hand upon his shoulder.

"Don't you see, don't you understand?" he said, in a low voice. "If you do not do it, if you refuse to stand by her to carry out her wishes, she will get someone else?"

"Then let her!" retorted Mr. Coburn. "It's sheer madness. Where is the man? He was here just now."

He swept the room with his pince-nez for the insignificant cause of all this trouble, but the shrinking little figure was not to be seen.

"He has gone. I must see him. I must take counsel's opinion. I tell you frankly, Lord Heroncourt, that I shall do everything in my power to stop this insane idea of my client; for, remember, she is my client!"

Maida uttered a faint cry; the color stole to her face and her eyes glowed. Drawing Carrie with her, she went to the table, and, while they all watched her in amazement, she wrote something on a sheet of foolscap lying there.

"Sign!" she whispered to Carrie.

Carrie put her signature—a shaky but legible signature—and Mr. Coburn strode forward as she had finished it.

"What is this?" he demanded, taking up the paper. "Why—why, are you aware that by this you have given up the whole of your fortune to this man?"

He was almost purple with rage and indignation, and he was about to tear the paper across; but Maida took it gently but swiftly from him, and held it out to Heroncourt.

His hand closed over it, and he looked at the lawyer calmly.

"The thing is done, sir," he said.

A cry arose—it was almost a scream from Lady Glassbury—Maida swayed unsteadily and sought a chair for support, and Heroncourt drew her arm within his, and, supporting her, took her from the room.

"Maida! Dearest! What can I say to you? How can I tell you how I admire, love, revere you?"

She drew her arm from his, covered her eyes with her hands; then her arms fell to her sides, and she looked at him.

"Good-bye!" broke from her quivering lips.

"Good-bye?" he echoed, started, and yet with a sharp pang of foreboding. "Why good-bye, dearest?"

She held out her hands to him, then drew them back, drew them from his swift grasp.

"Because—because it must be 'Good-bye,'" she faltered, striving to drive back the sobs, the tears that blinded her. "It is good-bye forever, is it not?—for we must part!"

CHAPTER XXIII.

"We must part!"

Heroncourt looked at her with tender pity in his eyes. The excitement of the scene was still strong upon them; naturally he felt confused; and he did not fully take in the meaning of her words. He may have thought that she was half hysterical with the stress and strain of the ordeal she had just gone through.

"Part, dearest," he said, with something almost like a smile. "Do you mean that I must go now?"

"Yes—and forever!" she responded, with a catch in her voice, her hand going up to her lips as if to steady them. "Ah, don't you see, don't you understand? I have seen, I have known it ever since I knew the truth. I knew that all must be over between us."

His face paled, his brows came down as was their wont when he was angry or much moved.

"Can you know what you are saying?" he said, in a low voice. "Do you realize—? We will not say any more now, dearest. You shall go and rest. Try and get some sleep. You want to be alone; I will not worry you; no one shall worry you again to-night. To-morrow I will come and take you for a drive."

"Not to-morrow, not ever again," she said, again calmly, but with definite sadness. "I know what I am saying, Byrnie; I have been saying it to myself so often. It is so strange to me that you do not understand, do not see. But, no; you are too noble, too unselfish—"

"Never mind my nobility and unselfishness, dearest," he said, with a smile that was meant to soothe and calm her. "Just tell me exactly what you mean, what is it that is troubling you, that sweet heart of yours, that dear little head—I haven't told you yet how nobly you have behaved, how grandly. Such a self-sacrifice as you—and Carrie, God bless her!—have made, is one of those things that make one think better of poor humanity. I love and revere you for it, my queen!"

"Yes; it has cost a great deal," she said. "Once or twice I was tempted—when I thought of the cost, of all that it meant to me—I was tempted—But I could not have done otherwise: you know that. Now I am going to pay the cost. I have got to say good-bye, got to part with you."

Her hands rested on his shoulders for a moment, but she drew them away swiftly ere he could take them. He did not interrupt her, but stood looking down into her eyes with a dreadful foreboding.

"Don't you see, Byrnie, that now we have lost the money, now I am poor again, we—we can't be married?"

He started and bit his lip; but still he said nothing; he knew it was better to let her speak from the fullness of her heart.

"You cannot marry anyone who is—poor," she went on, her eyes meeting his with a piteous kind of gravity, her hands clasped tightly. "You yourself are poor; you want the money, you must have it. Oh, I understand it all so well! How often have I heard it. And I know it is true. Why, even I see that it is impossible that you should marry anyone unless she were rich, very rich. And I am poor now, and I must give you up—Ah, do not look at me so! You know what it costs me, you know that I love you, that I shall love you until I die—but I can never marry you."

His heart grew cold as ice. Her very confession of love for him was evidence of her resolution, of that determination, that power of will, which characterized her. He began to shake a little, for his love was as great as hers, and, being a man, more passionate and less capable of reasoning.

"This is madness, Maida!" broke from him at last, almost sternly.

"Ah, no! it is not madness," she said, with a sigh. "It is sanity, the sanity of this workaday world. I should be mad if I did not say what I say, if I were to falter for one moment with the truth, with the awful fact—for it is awful to me—and yet I have to face it!"

"And I?" he said. "You speak for yourself only."

"Ah, no, no!" she broke in with piteous entreaty in her voice and her eyes. "I am thinking of you, and only of you. I am speaking for both of us. I know that you would not have done so—"

"And you are quite right," he said, passionately. "Nothing shall induce me to give you up. I would rather discard the title, change my name, leave England, or stay and work here on the estate as a laborer, than resign you!"

The warm blood rushed to her face, she gripped the bosom of her black dress to keep her hands from going round his neck.

"Ah, it is you who are mad!" she said. "But you have not had time to think yet, to face the truth. It has not come so suddenly to me. I have known it since—since the night my father died. I have had time to think, to gain courage, to brace myself to face the inevitable. You must help me to do so. Ah! you will help me? I want help so badly," she sighed, piteously.

"I will not help you," he said. "I will never give you up. Let all else go—"

"All!" she said. "Oh, don't you realize what all that 'all' means? To give up your place in the world—so high a one—all its privileges, all its duties and responsibilities. To leave your people, to desert them—oh, it would be like a soldier deserting before the enemy! You could not do it! Do you think I would let you, or that I should be happy if I could bring myself to let you? Every moment of the day my happiness would be turned to gall by the thought that I had ruined your life, that I had permitted you to sacrifice it for—a woman."

"The woman I love!" he broke out, almost fiercely. "The woman who loves me!"

"Yes, too well to wreck your life. But I cannot talk more." She drew her hand across her brow. "I am so tired—so tired!"

"To-morrow?" he pleaded, almost commanded.

She shook her head.

"No, not again, not to-morrow, nor ever. I could not bear it—do you not see what it costs me to part with you once? Could I go on parting with you? I love you, but I pray that we may never meet again."

He uttered an inarticulate cry, and tried to take her hand; she drew it away from him at first, then placed it, with a gesture of renunciation, in his.

"Our paths separate from now. We shall both suffer; you only for a time—I hope and pray: it shall be my constant prayer. You must try and forget me—"

"Forget you! My God!" broke from him.

"Try and think of me as if I had died," she said. "Help me to bear the heavy cross which is laid on me. I ask you to do this, knowing that you love me. Look in my eyes, Byrnie, and realize that my resolution is unbreakable. My love for you will keep me firm. Your future happiness is dearer to me than life itself, and nothing, nothing even you can say, will tempt me to wreck it. Go now. I—I cannot bear any more. Ah, go!"

"You ask too much," he said, hoarsely. "But I will go now—this must be torture for you: it is for me, and I judge you by myself. Go and rest; but understand that I do not yield to you; that I will not give you up."

"I know," she said. "It is I who give you up—because I must. This must be our last meeting—I could not bear to go over it all again—nothing would make me swerve from my resolution. Good-bye! Ah, you will go now!"

With something between a groan and a moan he drew her towards him—and crushed her against his breast.

She suffered the passionate caress—suffered it because she knew that it was the last—and her head sank on his shoulder and her lips formed a kiss against the insentient cloth, while his kisses fell on her face. At last she gently, but firmly, withdrew from his arms, and, catching at the balustrade as she went, ascended the stairs.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR TRANSFER OF PASSENGERS.

NEW YORK, July 16. Arrangements have been made to transfer the passengers of the Kristianstad to the Swedish-American liner Stockholm, which will take them on board at St. John's and carry them to their destination, it was announced by the officials of the Swedish-American Line. The Stockholm left here last February for Sweden, but was detained at Halifax by the British authorities and has been there ever since. It was said that arrangements had been made with the British Government by which she can complete the Kristianstad's voyage.

FRENCH WIN POSITIONS.

Grand Headquarters of the French Army in France, July 16 (Associated Press).—A double victory was won by the French last night among the clump of hills known as the Moronvillers Massif, to the west of Rheims, as a result of well-conceived plans and brilliantly executed tactics. The German prisoners taken numbered several hundred, the exact total being computed when the correspondent left the battlefield. Great significance is attached to the ground captured, which, although small in extent, possesses immense importance, as the Germans, by having it snatched from them, lost the only remaining observatories in this region, and will thus be greatly hindered in future operations. The hill group consists of five heights, Carnillet, Mont Blond, Mont Haute, the Casque, and the Teton. Before to-night's fight the French held all the crests, but the saddles between Mont Blond and Mont Haute and the Casque and the Teton were occupied by the Germans, who were able to watch French movements from these points of vantage. The correspondent observed the artillery preparation and the actual battle from a point whence the entire clump could be observed, and the progress of the troops could be viewed. Unceasingly, hour after hour, the guns belched forth shells, but little noise could be heard on the French side in consequence of the direction of the wind. All around the ground was peppered, and the immense clouds of various colored smoke and crashing of explosives told of the heaviness of the bombardment. The French knew that fronting them lay strong German forces, for three divisions had been recognized, the 19th Hanoverian, the 7th Prussian and the 23rd. The French infantry attacks at the extremities of the Moronvillers clump on the two saddles began at

THE CASE OF THE TEACHERS.

We are glad to add another voice to the protest that the treatment accorded the teachers of the Island has evoked. That protest appears to express the unanimous opinion of the papers, and we think few of their readers will be found to dissent from it. The teachers presented a memorial to the Government—the late Government, we are happy to term it—asking for a 20% increase in their salaries. We understand that the demands contained in the memorial were all granted, with the exception of the date when the increase should take effect. In that regard the teachers appear to have been completely deceived, and had they not met in St. John's to attend the summer school they might not have discovered their mistake until too late. They asked that the increase date from January 1st of this year; the Government, from no other motive than its customary parsimony, fixed the date at July 1st. It is not too late to alter it and give effect to the plain justice of the demand. The Government that acted thus arbitrarily is happily a thing of the past. The teachers and the cause of education have better asking more capable friends among those that replace it. The amount involved in setting back the date six months is about $15,000, a mere bagatelle in comparison with the additional revenue that should, and easily could, be derived from the country. We can assure the teachers that they are strongly supported in their fight by public opinion, which we believe will be effective to win for them recognition of their right in this matter.

The New Government

After long negotiations the Premier was able to announce to the House of Assembly yesterday that a National Government had been agreed upon. This morning the Government resigned and the new Government was sworn in. Its composition is the following. Sir Edward Morris retains the Premiership. Dr. Lloyd, leader of the late Opposition, takes Hon. R. A. Squires' place as Attorney General, and Mr. Squires becomes Colonial Secretary. Hon. J. R. Bennett is for the moment without office, but it is probable that a departmental act will shortly create the much needed Ministry of War, to which he will be assigned. Mr. Halford succeeds Hon. S. D. Blandford as Minister of Agriculture and Mines; Mr. Stone, Mr. Piccott as Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Mr. Woodford will continue Minister of Public Works; Mr. Cashin Minister of Finance and Customs.

The Executive will consist of the Premier, Dr. Lloyd, Hon. R. A. Squires, Messrs. Halford and Cashin, and, without portfolio, Messrs. Cliff, Coaker, Hickman, Ellis, Bennett, Gibbs, and Crosbie. The Council is thus enlarged from nine to twelve members. Hon. R. K. Bishop resigns in addition to those old members who have been replaced.

Thus the Coalition Government has at last been settled by agreement. Apart from its personnel, the further features of the agreement to be noted are an arrangement by which Dr. Lloyd, the Attorney General, will take the Premier's place at any time when he may be absent from the Colony, and the fixing of the general election for next spring, following the next session. Concerning the latter we shall have more to say in the proper place. We leave our readers to form their own opinion of the merits of the new administration. We shall content ourselves here with reminding its members of their great responsibility and of the extraordinary circumstances that have created it. They will have the approval and support of the country in measure according to the manner in which they show themselves sensible of those circumstances and strive to meet the great needs of the country. It is those needs that have underlain the agitation which has placed them in office and that constitute the sole concern of the country. There will be abundant opportunity in the next few weeks to judge how far its has benefited by the change.

Latest From the Wreck.

Big Liner Still on the Rocks—Swedish-American Liner Stockholm Coming Here for Survivors.

The latest news of the wrecked Liner Kristianiafjord is that she is high and dry on the rocks at Miskin Point. The bottom is half torn out of her, all holds are filled with water and her case, as regards being refloated, is looked upon as hopeless, though the Captain of the doomed ship is optimistic that she can be refloated by the aid of compressed air and with this in view he has communicated for the services of the most powerful and up-to-date wrecking tugs in Canada. All yesterday and again to-day the work of caring for the surviving passengers of the wreck was continued and commendably carried out. With the exception of the first class passengers who were given quarters on the S.S. Florizel, the men spent last night at the Prince's Rink, where suitable berths were erected, and the women and children at the Seamen's Institute, the Grenfell Hall being converted into a temporary dormitory. Some of the passengers at the Rink were for a time disconcerted over the fact that their luggage and all they possessed had been lost, until given to understand that such was not the case and that practically all the luggage had been saved out of the doomed ship and was en route to St. John's. Then they spent a happy night, a few of the number affording amusement to the crowd by discoursing selections with violins, mandolins and other musical instruments. At the Grenfell Hall, however, matters were different and pathetic, as some of the mothers and infant children were not so fortunate as to have their wraps they had when escaping in the lifeboats. Mrs. Jones of the Institute, informs us that some clothing and eatables were generously given for the relief of the sufferers by some of our charitable disposed ladies, but insufficient to supply the large number who were in want. Most of these people were third class passengers on the Kristianiafjord and are badly off.

At eight o'clock last night the S.S. Prospero, which went to the scene of the wreck Sunday night, arrived here with the balance of the passengers, numbering 150, mostly women and children, and a large quantity of luggage. The passengers remained on board the ship all night and were examined by Dr. Campbell, Quarantine Port Officer. This morning the passengers came ashore and the luggage was landed at Shea & Co.'s wharf when the work of identification began. Each passenger took his own trunk, valise or satchel, etc., and everything went off without a hitch. Owing to the lack of accommodation there all women, except 100 mothers and infants and old and infirm women, were removed from the Seamen's Institute to-day to the British Hall, where beds are being erected for them, though they will get their meals at the Institute. The men who were quartered on the Florizel and at the Institute were also transferred to-day to the Prince's Rink with the greater bulk of male passengers that are there. Ample cooking and eating quarters for the men are provided at the Curling Rink. All arrangements for the re-embarkation of the passengers en route to their destination are finalized, the Swedish-American Liner Stockholm having been secured for the purpose. The Stockholm left Halifax last night and is due here some time to-morrow evening. Some of the passengers, who are seriously ill, however, will not be able to go, including a woman, who is down in Hospital suffering from peritonitis, and another who gave birth to a child after landing from a life boat at Portugal Cove, Trepassay. The condition of both women is such that they are not expected to live. Another young woman, who has measles, is at the Signal Hill Hospital and another is in an advanced stage of consumption.

Mrs. Oscar J. Francis, of Chicago, Ill., wife of the U. S. Ambassador at Rotterdam, who was en route to her husband, came by the Prospero and is very sick, after her trying experience. Mr. Lethrow O. Horne, newly appointed U. S. Consul at Christiania, also came. Capt. Storm, of Messrs. Park and Storm, was on the big liner en route to his home in Norway.

When the Prospero will leave the wreck yesterday afternoon there was a heavy sea running, but it had little effect on the stranded liner, she being so far in on the land, but a change of wind will smash her in pieces, it is thought. No attempt to save any of the cargo has been made, the Prospero reports, owing to the rough condition of the sea.

The Kristianiafjord's general cargo, principally sugar, is all spoiled, as the holds are all full of water. Capt. Kean thinks it is almost an impossibility to refloat her, though the captain of the stranded ships is sanguine that the task can be accomplished by compressed air if such means can be promptly secured. Wonderful feats have been performed by this modern device, and the captain of the big Scandinavian is hopeful as to its success in this case.

At 5 a.m. to-day the S.S. Petrel arrived from the scene of the wreck, having on board a full cargo of baggage taken from the Kristianiafjord. The crew report having experienced considerable difficulty in transferring the baggage from the big ship to theirs, owing to the heavy sea. However, despite the roughness of the waters they were successful in securing upwards of two thousand suit cases, travelling bags, hand grips, hampers and numerous articles of value that were left behind by the passengers in their hurry to leave the ship. As far as could be arranged the contents of the staterooms of first and second class passengers were gathered up in white sheets and labelled with the names of the owners. On reaching port the Petrel docked at the wharf of the Mid. Produce Co., and under the direction of the Hon. J. C. Crosbie, who took a deep interest in the passengers, the precious cargo was taken from the ship and placed in one of his large fish stores. The suit cases were arranged in seven rows, two deep, running the whole length of the building. At first all the passengers crowded into the building, all anxious to claim their own belongings. This arrangement was found to be unworkable, and later the whole crowd were ordered out of the building but allowed to return in small numbers at a time.

After identifying his property each passenger was given a clearance by the Customs officials who stood by the door of the big fish room. There is a considerable quantity of clothing, jewelry and other valuables yet to be returned to their proper owners, which for the present are in the keeping of the chief steward of the ship. One first class passenger had his gold watch, valued at $480, a camera and jewelry amounting to over $1,000, the property of his wife, returned to him this morning. He was grateful to the official of the ship for the kindly act, whose honesty should not go unrewarded by the ship's owners. Immediately on discharging her cargo and having her tanks refilled with water, the Petrel again proceeded to the scene of the wreck where she will assist in salvaging the remainder of the cargo.

To all who helped in looking after the survivors of the wreck from the very outset, much credit is due.

GREECE ACTIVELY IN THE WAR.
WASHINGTON, To-Day.
Uncertainty as to Greece's status in the world war was cleared away today with the receipt of official information that the Greek Government has not only severed relations with all four Central Powers but is actually in a state of war with them. Information has reached the State Department that the Greek Minister in Paris has notified the French Government that Greece considers herself a full belligerent and will act accordingly. He said it was not necessary to issue a formal declaration of war as the Government feels it is bound by the declarations previously issued at Saloniki by Premier Venizelos, who took with him to Athens all the responsibilities and commitments of the temporary Salonika Government. As a semi-belligerent Greece is expected to lose no time in mobilizing her war resources and joining effectively in the common Allied operations in the Balkans. The strength of the Venizelos army is placed at about 60,000, and the remnants of the former regular army, while not over 30,000 now, has at times been mobilized to a total of 200,000, and is capable of reaching 300,000 if munitions are provided. The regulars practically were demobilized by the Allies when Constantine held the organization as a threat to the Allies' rear, but can quickly be called to the colors again, while it is understood the new Government has not yet mobilized for this army the classes of 1916-17, previously prevented by the Allies from being called to the colors about two weeks ago. Commissioner Jonnart, to whom the Allies entrusted the enforcing of Constantine's abdication, has reported that a Greek army of 25,000 will be raised to add to the 700,000 Allied soldiers already in the Balkans. A Greek Mission may be sent to the United States not only to negotiate for supplies for this army but also to present Greece's situation as to the general world reconstruction after the war. For the present it is probable Greece will be mentioned by the Allies, who have stocks already on hand, but for the future, and as far as general credits are concerned, it is probable the Athens Government will wish to deal direct with this country. It is understood here that while some pro-German anti-war spirit remains in Greece the great majority of the people are happy that a flat decision has at last been made and the perils and uncertainties that have beset the nation's attempt to be neutral are ended. They realize that Greece has a splendid opportunity to strengthen her international position, which suffered through her doubtful policy throughout the war. Bulgaria, her traditional enemy, has occupied an appreciable section of Greek territory and threatens to surpass Greece in her power in the Balkans. While Italy has sent troops to Northern Epirus to connect with the Allies at Salonika and establish a shorter line of communication than the long sea route, since Greece's entry into the war negotiations have been under way for the abandonment of part of this section by Italy. Greece also has further territorial ambitions in the Balkans and solicitation for 300,000 Greeks in Constantinople and the two million Greeks which she claims in Asia Minor particularly about Smyrna.

WAR REVIEW.
LONDON, To-Day.
Again the Teutonic Allies have suffered reverses in the loss to the Russians of part of the village of Lodz in the Lomnica River region in Galicia, in the repulse of an attack by the Russians N. E. of Katus and in the Champagne region in France where the French drove them from positions they had recaptured, inflicting heavy casualties. From Riga on the Baltic to the Roumanian frontier the Russians and Austro-Germans along the entire front are engaged in battle, but except in Galicia where the Russians continue to develop their advantage or hold back the thrust of the Teutons, little has become known concerning the operations. Not alone have the Russians in the drive in Galicia made good gains of terrain, but their captures of men, guns and material have been enormous. From July 1st to 13th, according to a Russian official statement, 36,943 officers and men of the Teuton Allies were made prisoners by General Brussiloff's troops, and 93 heavy and light guns, 28 trench mortars, 43 machine guns and 91 guns of other descriptions have been taken. The Germans in the Champagne have again attempted the positions taken from them recently near Mont Haute and Teton. They were entirely repulsed near Teton, suffering heavy casualties. On Mont Haute during the night-long battle their efforts, according to the French War Office were momentarily successful in regaining nearly all the ground they had lost. Violent counter attacks launched by the French, however, succeeded in returning to General Petain's forces all the German gains. Considerable fighting has taken place between the British and Germans on the northern front in France and Belgium, but apparently the infantry attacks are still in the nature of raiding enterprises, although Berlin records the repulse of British attempts to recapture positions at Lombaertzyde in Belgium and inflicted heavy losses.

French Consul Gives Thanks.
St. John's, July 15th, 1917.
Editor of the Evening Telegram, City, Nfld.
Mr. Editor, I wish to express publicly my gratitude to the ladies and gentlemen who so generously contributed towards making the various events in aid of the French Red Cross such a success. While it would be quite impossible to name all of them, I hope you will allow me space to name at least those with whom I have been more personally connected in this matter.
I have first to acknowledge the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor, who headed the subscription list and so readily undertook to put the matter before his Committee headed by Mr. Steer, and of Lady Davidson, whose lady workers of the W. P. A. have contributed so much to the actual work. Mrs. George Emerson accepting the charge of Treasurer, and Mrs. John Harvey and Mrs. Gosling acting as members of the special committee for the purpose.
The first event was the most enjoyable entertainment given on the grounds of Mrs. Emerson and Hon. Chas. Emerson at Quinipiac under the management of Mrs. Alex. Winter and Miss C. Emerson, who spared no efforts during several days to prepare it and made it such a success even in face of unfavourable weather. I should have acknowledged this splendid and voluntary help long ago, but for the necessity of waiting for a complete list in order not to trespass too often upon the hospitality of the newspapers.
In the matter of the Band Concert, I have to thank the Municipal Council, from whom Mayor Gosling very kindly secured permission to use Bannerman Park; the C.L.B. and C.C.C. Bands, whose Bandmasters, Mr. Morris and Mr. A. Bulley delighted the public with their pieces during the whole evening; Major Montgomerie and the Volunteers sent by him; Mrs. Tasker Cook, Mrs. Alderice and many ladies whom it would be impossible to name, but whose help proved extremely valuable, and Mr. H. D. Reid for street car advertising.
For the Flower Day, a fitting closing to this series of events, my best thanks are due to Mrs. Charles Mackay-Harvey, who willing accepted the charge of Convener, although just back from a fatiguing trip, and whose efforts have proved a big success. Here again, it is quite impossible to name all the ladies, fair and kind, who so effectively helped supplying or selling flowers. So I must be satisfied to say that the memory of the graceful gesture of the women of Newfoundland, offering their flowers to help the French soldiers, will always live in my heart and will make a strong appeal to our stricken people in France. Last, but not least, I wish especially to express my heartfelt thanks to Col. Rendell, who throughout the whole series of events has placed at the service of the French Red Cross his well known qualities of public spirit and business ability; to the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. G. Leve, who together with Mr. Steer, the President of the Patriotic Committee, gave a generous start to the public subscription in the most courteous and gentlemanly way; and to so many of the prominent business firms of this city; to my dear Colleague, Mr. Tasker Cook, who ably seconded by Mrs. T. Cook, has been in the forefront throughout; to the Editors of the daily press, who unstintingly advertised in their columns, and especially so to Hon. Dr. P. T. McGrath, to whose pen we are indebted for the various paragraphs printed in this connection. To the general public I express my deepest gratitude for its ready response to our appeals. It seems that the people of Newfoundland, even after doing so splendid a part, both in men and in money, for the Empire, were still eager to show its appreciation of the part played by France in this common war. I have no doubt that the French Government will duly appreciate the magnificent contribution of Newfoundland to the French Red Cross, and I hope to be able to Teutonic Bankruptcy.

(From the New York World.)
Austria is virtually bankrupt and confesses it by paying interest on its gold-bearing bonds to outside as well as to home creditors in paper kronen at a discount of 60 per cent. in neutral money equivalent to gold. Germany, with the mark down a week ago to 44.9 per cent. discount in the same money, was evidently tottering on the edge of this financial abyss when the Reichsbank decided to release gold by way of restoring its highly disorganized exchanges with Switzerland, Holland and Scandinavia. It gave up about $20,000,000, which exceeded its gains in gold for over three months preceding. The effect has been a slight advance from the mark's greatest depreciation, but this is hardly a drop in the bucket for the need to be dealt with. Austria practically has no gold to give up. Germany cannot give up what it has for exchange purposes without further weakening the Reichsbank's immense paper circulation based on its gold. Austria is close to the bottom of the decline. If there is any durable arrest for Germany short of that and short of peace it is not now observable unless through a resort by the Kaiser to the mailed fist applied to his neutral neighbors who dare to place such doubts upon German solvency.

How to Dress.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

How much does it cost you a year to dress? Some day this summer when the reader friends have some vacation time that they don't know what to do with, I wish they'd write me some letters on this subject. Then we'll have a symposium on it the same as we did on the subject of how much people give for charity. Tell us what your income is and how much of it you spend on clothes.

Charge Up Your Own Time
And if you have time we'd like to know about how you apportion that money, how much for underwear, suits, blouses, etc. If you put a great deal of time into them, charge that at the rate of a dressmaker's or seamstress' time.

Presumably the letters will be anonymous. If you want to sign your name, of course the confidence will be respected.

The way I became interested in this subject was this: A group of us were talking about what we spent for clothes. One woman spent $600 a year; another $150 (plus considerable of her own time); a third $200 flat.

A Moderate Proportion!
The third is an unmarried business woman with an income of about two thousand dollars, and that seemed to me a very moderate allotment. What do you think?

Incidentally, when we expressed our surprise that she could do so well on that she gave us some of her rules. I think they are interesting enough to repeat.

Be careful that your clothes are well spaced—that is that each garment serves some sufficiently different purpose. One needs a different kind of gown for so many occasions that no woman of limited income can afford to double up by buying two or three gowns that serve the same usage.

If you can make a summer coat really warm enough for winter by putting an interlining in it, do so and finish it up while it is in style.

Don't Let Your Clothes "Sour" in the Closet

Don't have the trick of wearing some favorite dress all the time and permitting other perfectly good dresses to "sour" in your closet. Use all the assets that keep clothes in good shape, hangers, shoe trees, the tailor, etc. Keep an umbrella and rubbers at both ends of the route and always have an adequate raincoat.

These are some of her suggestions. Maybe you'll have some that you'll incorporate in that letter you are going to write me.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE SAFETY PIN.
The safety-pin is a humble implement which is used to hold babies together. If it were not for the safety-pin thousands of sweet, innocent babies would have to wear suspenders and hose-supporters, instead of being allowed to grow up in a free and well-legged attitude. The safety-pin was invented long before buttons were thought of. In fact, if man had his say about it buttons would not be used at all except for decorative purposes. The average button is a melancholy failure, having a tendency to give way at some crucial moment and cause the owner to regret having left home. Some of the worst catastrophes in life have befallen men who relied upon a bone sash suspender button, only to have it break in two in the middle at the opening of the hesitation wait.

murderous, brass-jawed safety-pin with which babies are pinned to their clothes every day. How often is it the case that a wee baby cries in its sleep, in a fitful manner, and is immediately treated for colic, when the chances are ten to one that it has been impaled upon a long, sloping safety-pin.

If the laws of this country were intended to render equal and exact justice, the safety-pin would be banished from polite society and supplanted by the clothes-pin. This would be a great relief to scores of husbands who have tried to dress a playful, squirming baby while their wives were at the club, and in doing so have run a two-inch safety-pin through their left thumb. If Congress would pay more attention to such practical legislation as this and less to pork, there would be more happiness in married life.

A popular form of safety-pin is the flouring-pin, which is used to pin an abusive husband to the kitchen floor. The use of this pin, as a corrective implement, is advocated by both press and clergy and upheld by our courts, except where the jury is composed of married men.

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

Everyday Etiquette.

"In what order does the bridal party enter the room if there is one flower girl and a maid of honor," asked Lucille.
"The bridegroom, clergyman and best man enter the room in which the ceremony is to be performed, and stand facing the guests, awaiting the arrival of the bride, who enters the room alone or with her father. Immediately before her walks the maid of honor, who is preceded by the flower girl. The bridal party stands to form a segment of a circle," advised her mother.

Your Boys and Girls.

Children have a sweet tooth and it should be catered to as sugar is necessary to a growing child.

Good little brown cakes will result if made as follows: Cream together one-half cupful of butter and one cupful of sugar. Add one-fourth cupful of cocoa, the yolks of three eggs, and one-half cupful of milk and water. Sift with one and one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, and one-fourth teaspoonful of ground cloves. Stir into the other ingredients and lastly add the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Fill round gum pans half full of the mixture, and bake. When cold, frost with boiled frosting, and paint brownie faces on each, with melted chocolate.

Peppermints—One cup granulated sugar, 2 teaspoonfuls of boiling water. Cook three minutes after it begins to boil. Soon as clear looking, take off the stove and add one level teaspoon confectionary sugar and peppermint. Beat well and drop on marble slab or paraffin paper.

Chocolates—Same as peppermints, except adding a small piece of grated chocolate with the sugar, etc. These are just as good as any you can buy, and not expensive, but pure.

Summer School for Teachers.

We are requested to announce that a limited number of vacancies will be welcome at the Summer School for Teachers provided they do not interrupt the work. Should they desire to hear any of the lectures, they will kindly take their seats quietly at the rear of the class and observe silence. On Saturdays at 12.30, Dr. Brundage gives a special series of lectures on the Child, at the Methodist College Hall, and as there is considerable space at the rear of the Hall, a good opportunity is afforded to persons interested in children and education to hear something worth hearing. The regular classes are held in St. Bonaventure's College from 9 to 11.45 daily, and from 2.15 to 4.15 daily, except Saturdays.

GUESTS AT BALSAM PLACE.—T. R. Williamson, New York; F. F. Murphy, Placentia; Rev. E. W. Andrews, Harbor Grace; and 22 1st class passengers of s.s. Kristianiafjord.

What of the People

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—After weeks of delay in forming a coalition government, we are told that the amalgamation of the Government and Opposition has been a live issue. If this movement had anything to do with the patriotic ring about it, the people are inclined to look down upon it, but patriotism is not a matter of the mind, but of the heart, for it is a well known fact that the delay in forming a coalition government has been caused by the desire of the foremost members of either party to get all the plums that they could lay hands on. What about the people? Have they no say in this matter? The present members of the Government, the intelligence of the country, the people are bound to have such conduct as they see fit to raise against it? Are we to be insulted to our independence by people without a kick against the pricks, and I ask the one who can save us from the domination of the Big Interests—Sir H. H. H. To come forward and wipe the tears of political expediency from the eyes of the Opposition and the Government, and means nothing for the good of the people. They will have to make another concession after another in order to keep the amalgamation together. What this will mean for the country any man can see. It is needed is for a man like Sir H. H. To start the ball rolling, and soon show these twisters that his "life in the old land" is not as much as that of the Opposition, and the Government very much if they can carry the day; they realise that the whole try is sick and tired of both an grasp at straws in order to themselves. But the people's remedy in their hands, and if dependence and the liberty of the people is to be held sacred, it is time to strike. The people have task before them. I admit that the fathers and brothers of heroes who gave their lives for us are not going to permit their graves to be robbed from them, making a fight to retain them. Yours truly,
FRED

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Permit me to draw attention to the matter of pay salaries, and especially to the increase recently voted by the Government.
The account published at the meetings of the House said that the Government had accepted the recommendations of the General Committee. This is not the last clause of the motion presented to the Government by the committee, asked that the increase made as from Jan. 1st, 1917, of great importance to the family men, especially the teachers, knows the inadequacy of the salary of the teacher, and the inadequate three years ago, must it be with him now, with prevailing high prices.
The teacher will find none of the increase recently voted by the Government until he has begun other school year and in many cases has taught for a full quarter not before November. This is not only unfair, and I trust the Government will reconsider the decision and agree to pay teachers the increase as from Jan. 1, 1917, and would suggest that it be paid to

What of the People?
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—After weeks of playing at politics, we are told to-day that an amalgamation of the Government and the Opposition has been arrived at. If this movement had anything of a patriotic ring about it the people may be inclined to bow down to it and accept it, but patriotism is as far from their minds as the sun is from the earth, for it is a well known fact that the delay in forming coalition has been aroused by the desire of the foremost members of either party to get all the plums that they could lay hands on. What about the people, have they no say in this matter? Do the present members of the House imagine that they represent the entire intelligence of the country and that the people are bound to put up with such conduct as they have been guilty of? I ask in all sincerity, what does Sir E. P. Morris mean, does he think that the feelings of the people are such as to permit this high-handed game to go without a storm being raised against it? Are we to take this insult to our independence as a people without a kick against it. I think not, and I ask the one man who can save us from the domineering of the Big Interests—Sir Robert Bond—to come forward and wipe these politicians out of political existence. Such an unity as that of the two parties means nothing for the good of the people. They will have to grant each other concession after concession, in order to keep the amalgamation together. What this will mean for the country any man can see. All is needed is for a man like Sir Robert to start the ball a rolling and we will soon show these twisters that there is "life in the old land yet." Both the Opposition and the Government doubt very much if they can carry the country; they realise that the whole country is sick and tired of both, and they grasp at straws in order to save themselves. But the people have the remedy in their hands, and, if the independence and the liberty of the people is to be held sacred now is the time to strike. The people have a big task before them, I admit, but surely the fathers and brothers of those heroes who gave their lives for liberty are not going to permit their liberties to be robbed from them without making a fight to retain them.
Yours truly,
FREDOM.

Coalition Government
Announced by the Prime Minister.
Yesterday afternoon's session of the House of Assembly was typically brief, though remarkably important. Petitions were presented by Mr. Stone from Elliston, and Mr. Devaux from North Hr.
Resolutions to incorporate the Placentia Water Company were introduced by the Colonial Secretary and other items on the Order Paper were deferred.
The Prime Minister then moved the adjournment of the House and made the following announcement:—
"For the past week or so negotiations have taken place between the two political parties in the Legislature in relation to the formation of a National Government. The terms upon which the two parties have come together have been concluded, and on the meeting of the House tomorrow I will be in a position to announce the names of the gentlemen who will form the new Government."

Citizens' Committee
MR. W. J. HIGGINS PRESENT.
At a special meeting of the Citizens' Committee held in the Board of Trade Rooms last night, the temporary bill in connection with the Municipal Charter now before the Legislature came up for discussion. The main object of the bill is to make the landlord responsible for the city taxes and not the tenant. In the case of a house not being occupied he is responsible only for one-third of the regular tax. Mr. W. J. Higgins, Secretary of the Joint Select Committee of the Legislature, attended the meeting, not in his official capacity, but on the invitation of the Citizens' Committee. A further section giving the Council power to build Workmen's houses had been added. The Citizens' Committee will accept the bill on the following conditions, viz.:—"That the bonus not exceeding 10% of the cost, for building of houses, be applied to those costing $1,000 and under, and that tenants of houses with a rental of $100 or less be given the right to appeal to a Magistrate in cases where extortionate increase are made in the rents."
The suggested change will be submitted in the formal manner to the Joint Select Committee to-day.

STAR 2 GOALS; C. E. I. NIL
One of the fastest and hardest fought football games seen here in recent years was played last evening on St. George's Field between the C.E.I. and Star. The latter won out by two goals to nil. The teams were: STAR—Goal, Walsh; backs, Hartery, Kavanagh; halves, W. Hart, Bell, W. Duggan; forwards, Evans, Jackman, Williams, McGrath, B. Hart. C.E.I.—Goal, Lush; backs, Stick, Churchill; halves, Drover, Giffingham, Reid; forwards, Harris, Jerrett, Ewing, Miller, James (Bugden).
During the game James, one of the best players of the C.E.I., was seized with cramps in the legs and had to retire, being replaced by Bugden.

The schooner Studland, Captain W. Day is now discharging a cargo of salt to her owner, Mr. Ernest Simmons.
The Hilda R. Capt. Yetman, arrived on Saturday with a cargo of coal to her owners, Messrs. R. D. McKee & Sons.
Your correspondent reached the 50th mile stone along life's journey to-day. Half hundred years old. Oh!

Rev. Gordon Dickie, Pastor of St. Andrew's Church, St. John's, arrived here on Saturday afternoon by motor, and occupied the pulpit of the Kirk, both forenoon and evening. The rev. gentleman's discourses were inspiring and eloquent, and the congregation will look forward to his promise to visit them again in the near future. The rev. gentleman also visited the Sunday School in the afternoon, and expressed himself as well pleased with the bright thoughtful answers of the children to his questions on the lessons for the day.
The s.s. Othar came in from Bell Island on Saturday with a number of workers who spent Sunday here, and returned to the scene of their labors in the evening. Among the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Spence and their little daughter Laura who took a run in to see old friends.
The whaler Hawk which has been purchased by the Newfoundland Shipbuilding Company arrived here on Saturday evening with a load of material for the Company. When the news arrived on Sunday that the steamer, Kristianfjord, had been stranded at Mistaken Point the deck load of heavy timber was immediately put overboard and men were employed to secure it, while the Hawk hurried off to the scene of the wreck to render what service she could.

A memorial service was held in St. Paul's Church last night in the memory of Pte. Albert Horwood, who recently died in a German hospital from wounds received on April 14th, when he was taken prisoner. The church was well filled, among the congregation being the members of the Conception Bay British Society of which deceased was a member, and also by his comrades of the King Edward Brigade.
Mrs. A. G. Connell who returned from the General Hospital some time ago where she was under treatment for an accident that befell her some time ago. She is gradually gaining strength, and wishes to express her thanks to Dr. Keegan, Miss Taylor, Miss Scott, and all the other nurses for their kindness and attention to her while she was at the institution.

How to Economize in Home Baking
Use Royal Baking Powder in Place of Eggs
Fewer eggs may be used in many recipes, and in some cases left out altogether, by using an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted. The following tested recipe for corn bread is a practical illustration:
CORN BREAD
1 1/2 cups corn meal
2 1/2 cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar (if desired)
1 1/2 cups sweet milk
The old method called for 2 eggs
Booklet of recipes which economize in eggs and other expensive ingredients mailed free. Address Royal Baking Powder Co., 6 St. Lawrence Boulevard, Montreal.
DIRECTIONS—Sift the dry ingredients into bowl; add milk and melted shortening; beat well, and pour into greased pan or muffin tins and bake in hot oven about 25 minutes.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—As a teacher I would like to know if the following paragraph which is a section of the memorial presented to the Government by the General Educational Committee of the different denominations has been accepted. The section reads as follows:—
"Your Memorialists beg to point out to the Government that the present is a period of stress, that teachers are now going in debt or leaving the ranks. Under these circumstances they ask that the increases sought be enacted as from the first day of January of this year."
Has the Government overlooked this petition? I hope not. As you are aware, sir, the teachers in this country have never been paid a living wage, and since the war started they have suffered more, owing to the high cost of living, than any other class. Imagine a teacher only existing on his small salary three years ago, and then think of what he has been up against during the past three years. Of course, one of the two things have happened, he has either left the profession or he has gone in debt.
It must be remembered that many of the teachers who are now attending the Summer School are sacrificing a great deal in order to qualify themselves for their future work. This school, I understand, is not costing the Government a cent, therefore, we confidently expect this part of the Memorial to be granted. What we want and what we must have, is the increase to date from January, 1917.
Thanking you in anticipation for space, I am,
truly yours,
FEDAGOGUE.
St. John's, July 16th, 1917.

for this year a Summer School for Teachers. I believe the benefits derived from attendance at this Summer School will be far reaching. Teachers will go back to their duty with a clearer realization of the responsibility of their work—the training of the future citizens of Newfoundland—the greatest work which anyone can undertake, and a work which should carry with it the highest remuneration possible.
Not a few have come to this Summer School at great personal sacrifice in order to better fit themselves for the great work.
For the past few months they were actually living on the hope based on the recommendation contained in the Memorial presented to the Government by the General Education Committee, that the then partly-promised increase of salary would be paid from January 1st, 1917. But if they had nothing but that hope to live on they certainly would have died fasting. I do trust that even now it is not too late for this hope to be realized.
If the Government would only grant the proposed increase from January 1st, 1917, instead of from July 1st, 1917, and they can if they will, they would earn the gratitude of the teachers and all who have the interest of Education at heart. The teachers will be better able to follow the Summer School programme by buying the books required for the course, and discharging other obligations which many of them cannot do now.

MAN LOSES HAND IN GUNNING ACCIDENT.
While celebrating the visit of His Grace the Archbishop and party at Fouch Cove, a young man named Archibald Murray, of that place, was the victim of a gunning accident. He had been firing off guns and as the ecclesiastical party were making their departure from the settlement, Murray, this time, overloaded his gun, with the result that his left hand was blown off. He was taken in Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan's motor car to Torbay where he was attended by Dr. Donohue.

Newfoundland Weather
With its damp and heavy fogs imposes the most difficult test a kerosene could be asked to meet.
SKIPPER KEROSENE OIL
Gives steady power under any weather conditions—because it is pure—every drop.
Does away with carburetor trouble—because it is always the same. Clean burning. Non-carbonizing.
Costs less by the mile and by the year.
Skipper Kerosene Oil is unequalled for household uses.
