

Grave Situation In Britain.

Cabinet Discussing Miners Strike--One Hundred Thousand Transport Workers Idle--Price Cutting in Sugar Commenced--Bolsheviki Issue Ultimatum to Armenia.

CABINET DISCUSSES CRISIS.
LONDON, Oct. 21. The Cabinet discussed to-night the grave situation arising from the threat of railway and transport workers to force the government to negotiate with the miners. Whether any decision was reached was not disclosed up to eleven o'clock. Two grave questions are worrying the political and industrial world, first, to what extent Labor leaders are losing control of the workers, and second, whether a political crisis and an appeal to the country will develop from the miners dispute. It is stated that James Henry Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, has exerted the greatest efforts to get action taken by the railwaymen postponed for a few days, but that his influence was overborne. Lloyd George was in formal consultation with some of the Labor leaders to-day, but little hope seems to be retained that the government will recede from its position, insisting upon an increased output and the submission of the dispute to an independent tribunal on condition of an increase in wages.

RESULT OF THE STRIKE.
LONDON, Oct. 21. The effect of the coal strike is appreciably felt by the various unions affiliated with the National Transport Workers Federation, members of which are being thrown out of employment in increasing numbers by coal stoppage. From fifty to a hundred thousand transport workers are idle and hundreds of thousands of other workers in other callings have been obliged to remain idle.

DENIES GREENWOOD'S STATEMENT.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 21. The United States government has taken no action to discourage Irish immigration, Under-Secretary of State Davis said to-day. He was discussing the statement made in the British House of Commons yesterday by Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, because the United States no longer welcomed immigrants from Ireland because it did not desire to swell the total of disturbing elements in the United States.

PRICES DROP IN MONTREAL.
MONTREAL, Oct. 21. The Dominion Sugar Refining Co. to-day announced a drop in sugar prices. They are now quoting seven pence for the price per hundred pounds. Local butter dealers stated to-day that ten days ago he had to pay sixty cents a pound for butter, but now it can be purchased at 55 cents, and for fifty-one cents. Fish is also cheaper.

BOLSHEVIK ULTIMATUM TO ARMENIA.
PARIS, Oct. 21. The Russian Soviet government has issued an ultimatum to Armenia, according to advices received to-day by the French Foreign Office from Armenia, demanding permission for the immediate transport of Bolsheviki troops through Armenia in order to effect a junction with the Turkish Nationalists in Asia Minor and Armenia, has rejected the ultimatum. The Bolsheviki also asked the Armenians to repudiate the Treaty of Sevres with Turkey.

THE PRICE OF SUGAR.
TORONTO, Oct. 21. It was rumored in the sugar market here to-day that Canadian refiners would drop their wholesale prices to sixteen cents. A further rumor was that one of the Canadian refiners was prepared to undersell others regardless of the price quoted by its competitors.

FEEDING MACSWEENEY.
LONDON, Oct. 21. Prison officials continue to force nourishment on Lord Mayor MacSweeney, who was still delirious to-night, according to a late bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League. The Lord Mayor is unable to recognise friends, but the delirium is of a quiet type.

KILLED IN HOLD-UP.
CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 21. One bandit was killed, two others seriously wounded, and Wm. Petre, bank clerk was probably fatally wounded late to-day, when ten bandits held up the Cleveland Trust Company branch at Bedford, ten miles from here. Four of the bandits were captured, the others escaping. The robbers secured no money.

ARMOUR & CO. CHARGED WITH PROFITEERING.
NEW YORK, Oct. 21. Federal indictments containing one hundred counts were returned here against Armour & Co., Chicago packers, and various officers of that concern charging profiteering in violation of the Lever Act.

DYE RIGHT

It's the Grandest on Earth, Declares St. John's Woman

Mrs. Clayton Says Tanlac Restored Health After Four Years' Suffering.

"I suffered four years before I got Tanlac, but this medicine restored my health six months ago, and since then I have been feeling just fine," said Mrs. E. Clayton, Wal's Square, St. John's, Newfoundland, recently. "I had indigestion and dyspepsia, could hardly eat enough to keep me up, and what little I did eat would blow me until the pain was often so bad I just had to lie down. "My nerves were so shattered I could scarcely sleep, and just any little noise would upset me completely. "I had dreadful headaches, and always felt so tired I could scarcely stay up, and just before I got Tanlac I couldn't even look after my housework. The fact is, I was in such a miserable condition that I was afraid to be left alone even for a few minutes. "I tried a lot of different medicines, but nothing relieved me until I got Tanlac, but it certainly made me feel like a different person. My appetite is so good that I am always ready to eat, and I can eat anything I want without trouble. My nerves are so quiet I sleep like a child every night and never have a headache or the least worn out feeling. I am certainly in fine condition, and I just think Tanlac is the grandest medicine in the world." Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gushue, in Millertown by Exploite Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freake.—adv.

TRAINING CHILDREN.
Building things of brick and stone. Writing books and making deals, Gathering treasure you may own. These are tasks the day reveals; Some are difficult to do. Some require much strength of will. Patience, courage, genius, too. But there is a greater still; Of life's duties large or small; Whereby men find blame or praise, This is greatest of them all-- Having little ones to raise.

We may fall in brick and stone,
And but little harm is done;
We may lose the gold we own,
And the world will still go on;
We may blunder through the day,
Doing poorly all our work;
But from this we dare not stray,
We've one task we dare not shirk-- We are building with their years,
Shaping all their future days,
Dealing with their smiles and tears,
Who have little ones to raise.

Here must be no sad mistakes,
No neglect or careless thought;
Each should see the man he makes
Shall be fitted as he ought.
For the trials he must meet,
Strong for all he'll have to bear,
And we lead him to defeat,
If perchance we fail him there;
He shall smile, or he shall grieve
As we've taught him manhood's ways--
For with human souls we weave
Who have little ones to raise.

Red Hair is Fashionable.

Time was when small girls with flaming red hair had their lives made miserable by rude little boys who called out after them "carrots," and asked them facetiously to spare a light for their cigarettes.
Now they can take heart of grace, for they are right in the fashion. Also they stand every chance of getting married.

That is, if we may credit Major Hurst, the great authority on red-headed people, who says that a red-haired old maid is practically unknown.
But she should, if she wishes her children to be red-headed, marry a red-haired man; or falling this, one with fair hair.

The major, who has made a life study of the subject, and who has investigated the ancestry of thousands of red-headed people, finds that red hair appears on one side or the other of the family tree of every one of them, and frequently in conjunction with fair hair.

He lays it down as an invariable rule that the children of a red-haired couple always have red hair, that those of a red-haired mother and a fair-haired father--or vice versa--are usually so distinguished, but very rarely indeed when red hair mates with dark.

There is one woman in England who outshone the queen, the Duchess of Marlborough, Mrs. John Jacob Astor, and other women notables at the opera in London, by her wonderful showing of gems. It was Mrs. Doris Walker, the daughter of Sully Joel, the South African diamond king, who is said to be the "richest man in the world."

Fat That Shows Soon Disappears

Prominent fat that comes and stays where it is not needed, is a burden; a hindrance to activity, and a curb upon pleasure. Many forms of advice to reduce weight have been advanced, such as dieting, hard work, excessive exercise, etc., all of which are either unpleasant or dangerous. The latest, more modern and pleasant way to take off burdensome fat, is to take, after each meal and at bedtime, a Marmosa Tablet. These little tablets are so effective and harmless as the famous Marmosa Free and harmless from which they take their name. To get rid of fat at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week, simply take one of these little tablets after each meal and at bedtime until you have reduced your weight to where you want it. No wrinkles or fibrousness will remain to show where the fat came off. They are for sale by all druggists at $1 for a good size box. If you prefer to have tablets come to you direct by mail, please, in plain sealed cover, send money to Marmosa Co., 57 Garfield Building, Detroit, Mich. They will deliver to distant places and fat. Be yourself, slim, trim and attractive.

Is Scotland Going Dry?

The English papers are full of advertisements of Scotch castles, Scotch grouse moors, Scotch deer forests and Scotch salmon streams for sale unconditionally, the most decided sign we have seen yet that Scotland is really in danger of going dry. For who wants to tramp a moor or wade a burn without a gillie at hand to pour an occasional nip of usquebaugh? So the alarm of the owners of Highland sporting estates must be a measure of the danger.--San Francisco Chronicle.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON THE HIGH TIDE OF MEMORY.

RUTH CAMERON

Isn't it interesting the way a high tide of memory will float some long unthought-of recollection out of the subconscious into the conscious mind? Sometimes the cause of this high tide is absolutely untraceable, and then again you can trace it to some stimulation of some sense.

Did You Ever Make Housebooks?

For instance, I suddenly became conscious the other day that I was thinking of the "housebooks" we children used to make. Did you ever make housebooks? A housebook is the home of a family of paper dolls. It is a brown paper book made out of nice brown wrapping paper and crisscrossed with the furniture manufacturer's catalogue. I should really like to know what proportion of the population of every furniture catalogue sent for by young people whose minds are set on housekeeping include nothing more lucrative to the advertiser than a housebook. I wonder if they, the manufacturers, know about this industry, and what they think.

To return to the main road—I wonder why I should think of housebooks, and then all of a sudden I knew. I was using some glue that I had bought to help in stabilizing our housebook furniture.

Again I find merry-go-rounds and nut stands floating about in my consciousness. This time, sound instead of smell has caused the high tide. An ancient hurdy-gurdy down the street is playing one of the tunes which used to be played on my favorite merry-go-round in the days when I thought at least one corner of Heaven would be given over to merry-go-rounds and roller coasters.

Spring Bells Always Mean Peace to Me.

Bells in the morning will always mean one thing to me—the coming of great peace. Shall we ever forget the sound of those bells on that November morning? They began to ring in our town before I woke up. I woke up to the sound and the thrill of them. As I write now, just thinking of that moment makes those dear delicious little quivers go up

The Millions of Memories in Your Brain.

Truly, when one thinks of all the memories that are stored away in these brains we carry around with us, the millions of impressions that must be registered in every brain, one is awed and appalled by the wonder of our own make-up. Stevenson wrote about a woman who said she could wonder herself crazy over the miracle of the human eyebow. It was fortunate she did not turn to the contemplation of the human brain or her insanity would have been instantly consummated.

Poverty Hitherto Unknown in Germany.

It is declared by Dr. Leymann of the German Labor Ministry, that much unemployment is inevitable in Germany this winter. Forty per cent. of Germany's coal must be delivered abroad and Germany is now living a vicious circle.

"We have neither ships nor railway trucks, and our rivers are occupied, and we must pay a billion and a half marks monthly for the maintenance of the armies of occupation," said Dr. Leymann.

"Next winter Germany may experience depths of poverty and wretchedness hitherto unknown to her. The people will have to live on turnips and cabbage, and then will come the danger that they will turn toward Bolshevism."

Pleasure in Little Things.

The surest way to gain cheerfulness and happiness is to acquire and cultivate the habit of taking pleasure in little things—things easily attainable, the common and ordinary things of life, the daily interests of home, the society of neighbors and friends, the mirth and play of children, the birds and flowers, the day's vacation when a longer one is out of the question, the little gift where a costly one is impracticable, and the little acts of kindness and courtesy. All of these help to fill life with gladness. The pleasures usually craved are those hard to attain; and in their pursuit a thousand untold sources of pleasure are trodden under foot. Many postpone all thought of happiness until they get rich; then they expect to begin to enjoy life. But all the time life itself is slipping away, cheated of its natural and reasonable pleasures, and either their dream of wealth is never realized or, if it is, too often the power of enjoyment is gone, for if continually checked and postponed it withers away.

Wise Men Say—

That luck and work are twins.
That a hot temper will make others cool towards you.
That the way to carry a stiff load is to have a stiff upper lip.
That wisdom is the adaptation of what you have to what you need.
That there are no means of escape from the cells of a guilty conscience.
That initiative consists in doing the right thing without being told to.
That a soul disposition doesn't make for either good digestion or success.
That the man worth while is the man who can smile when everything goes wrong.
That poverty is the best foundation on which to start to build a successful career.

IDLE TALK.

WINT MARCH

I hear poor hicks talk politics from dawn until the gloaming, and, calm and cool, I groom my mule, her fetlocks currying. Oh, I might devote to Harding's goat the time I spend in labor, but I'm inclined to keep in mind the fact that winter's coming, when storms will whoop around my coop, and blizzards will be humming. I do my chores, while all outdoors is full of idle yawping, for still the hicks talk politics, and keep the welkin popping. I thresh my beans and other greens, my prune trees wisely guarding; my boosts or knocks won't hinder Cox, or put a crimp in Harding. Whoever wins you'll see my bins well filled with spuds and carrots; my crows I raise while other jays talk bunk like loquacious parrots. Sometimes at night, by candle light, when all my work is ended, I sip a white of campaign gulle, in language high and splendid. And people list in awe, I wist, as though to some lawgiver, to plans I've planned, this weary land from bondage to deliver. But in the day I toil away, the lean earth amply larding, and heave no rocks at Jimmie Cox, and heave no bricks at Harding.

Father of Fountain Pens.

There is still in use in Paris a fountain pen made in 1864.

This pen was patented in that year by Jean Benoit Mallat, an engineer, and the firm that still carries on the business founded by him asserts that it was the first fountain pen ever made.

Mallat was the inventor of the gold pen with the ruby point, perhaps the easiest writing and most durable nib ever put on the market. But it is necessarily expensive. In 1843 Mallat substituted iridium as a point for his pens. At the same time he provided a reservoir for the ink. This was the germ from which grew the idea of storing ink in the handle.

Mallat's fountain pen differs only slightly from our modern ones. It was self-filling, but the flow of ink was regulated by a little turn-screw on the side. This, however, was soon given up, as it became clogged.

It would be interesting to know what was the date of the earliest patent on a fountain pen in America or England.

Kept Too Cool.

A commercial traveller, during an extensive journey in the provinces, took his wife with him. Being exceedingly nervous about fires, he frequently impressed upon her the necessity of keeping a "cool head" should ever the danger occur.

At one hotel they were staying at a fire actually broke out. The commercial traveller roused his wife, assisted her to dress, and, to demonstrate the value of presence of mind, reached for his frock coat, silk hat and umbrella, and accompanied his wife into the street. There they watched the firemen in their work of subduing the outbreak.

"And now," remarked the husband to his wife, "you see the advantage of having a cool head."

"Yes, John," was the reply, "but you might have put your trousers on."

A Poser.

Mlle. Boland, the daring French air-woman who recently flew the Channel, says that the only question regarding her aeronautical experiences that she was totally unable to answer was put to her by a child.

I was (says Mlle. Boland) visiting a friend in Paris, and my host's little girl, aged about eight or nine, following on a lengthy cross-examination, wound up with this poser:

"But, tell me, ma'mselle," she inquired in all earnestness: "If the end of the world was to come, and the earth was destroyed while you was up in your aeroplane, where would you land when you came down?"

Thieves Buried Alive.

A correspondent sends the following:—

In Ha Tony, a little village just north of Canton City, there lived one Tsao Ah Sum. There was shrewd suspicion that he had stolen many oxen—fifteen to be precise. The ox is a sacrosanct beast of burden, and under village law to steal one is a capital offence. Tsao Ah Sum stole his last ox a month or two ago, and when the hue and cry went out he fled. He was eventually caught and he had to face trial before the elders of three villages, for he had not confined his depredations to his immediate neighborhood. He was found guilty and given the maximum penalty, namely, to be buried alive. On the day of the execution the village watchmen beat the gongs and all the young men of the village gathered around a rectangle eight feet deep. Before Tsao Ah Sum was invited to make his resting-place in the hole he was feasted with wine and meat while the elders performed sacrifices for the benefit of his soul. The rite being ended two watchmen lowered Tsao Ah Sum into the hole, head downwards, and while all the young men and spectators shouted the watchmen of another village shot at the convict with a native gun loaded with shot which pierced the body of the victim in numerous places.

Terrors of Bonaparte's Birthplace.

At times even a writer of fiction is convinced that truth is stranger than the comedy in which he deals.

Taking the case of Harold MacGrath, "While visiting on the Island of Corsica," said Mr. MacGrath, "where I had gone with Mrs. MacGrath to see the birthplace of Napoleon, we underwent a week of lurid and melodramatic experiences such as no author has ever had the courage to write."

Mr. MacGrath had always been an admirer of the Little Corporal, and for that reason decided to see his birthplace, even though French people who knew conditions on the island tried to dissuade him. But, having written "A Splendid Hazard," a novel dealing indirectly with the celebrated ruler's life, the author was not to be discouraged.

The party embarked from Marseilles and arrived at a Corsican fishing village late in the evening. It was the height of the "vintage season" on the island, and the village was given over to the most disgusting debauchery.

A Night of Horror.

"We put up at a little inn that was worse than a pirate's den," said Mr. MacGrath. "Here we learned to our dismay that practically all food was shipped to the island from the mainland, and that consequently eating conditions were the vilest imaginable. We found it impossible to eat the dinner served us that evening."

But all this was only the beginning of a night of horror. Upon the advice of their host, the MacGraths barricaded themselves in their room to prevent the possibility of invasion by marauders. The precaution was well taken, the author stated, as their many times that night. In the room above them a brawl occurred and a man was murdered. The next morning the MacGraths discovered that the blood had run through the cracks in the ceiling and had congealed in a great red splotch on their wall.

The next day the trip across the island to Ajaccio, where Bonaparte was born, began. The road led through a wild, picturesque country, infested by Mafia gangs, making travel by nightfall impossible.

Only Beans and Cereal.

"Remember," Mr. MacGrath explained, "during this time we had nothing to eat except the remains of a tin of beans a man had opened with an axe, some crackers, a little cheese, and wild chestnuts we gathered."

"Upon our arrival at Ajaccio we stayed only long enough to see the Little Corporal's birthplace, whereupon we were glad to embark from the port of Bastia, at which point we got our first meal in five days."

In concluding his story, the author said:—"History indicates that Napoleon seldom mentioned his home. The only reference I recall was during his imprisonment. This doesn't seem strange to me, for about the only time anyone could wish for Corsica would be when he was in jail."

Spiritualism

on the Amazon.

The original exponents of spiritualism were found among the tribes in the region around the head waters of the Amazon River by early Spanish explorers, and savage ceremonies are still held there with exactly the same rites as those witnessed by the Europeans so long ago.

The mediums do not employ rappings, table-tipping or the dark cabinet to call up the dead, but their ceremonies are weird and spectacular in the extreme.

When a member of the tribe desires to talk with a deceased relative or friend he visits the medium and states his wish; at the same time making advance payment in the form of feathers, fruit and various jungle delicacies. The medium requests him to return at a certain hour the next night with as many guests as he cares to invite in honor of the departed spirit.

As soon as the man goes away the medium builds a fire of scented woods, over which he steeps a decoction of green herbs. Many of these herbs are deadly poison, but are so skilfully mixed in measured quantities that one acts as an antidote to the other.

At the appointed time the spiritualist and his invited guests appear and seat themselves in a circle around the fire, but at a respectful distance from it. Absolute silence reigns save for the regular tap of a drum sounded at intervals by a man stationed in the deep shadows beyond the fire.

The medium appears bearing aloft a cocoa-nut shell filled with the brew of herbs. He scatters the glowing fire to form a ring and steps into the middle of it, first laying fragrant green sticks on the live coals. Soon clouds of thick smoke rise and envelop him, the men around the fire break into a wild incantation, the drum is furiously beaten, and in the midst of the uproar the medium drinks the poison and casts the empty cocoa-nut shell among the spectators,

A Chance Missed.

Miss Gladys Jessel, eldest daughter of Col. Sir Herbert and Lady Jessel, who has taken up cinema acting as a profession, tells an amusing story of a girl friend. She was a very attractive and sprightly young damsel (says Miss Jessel), and when going away from a party one day offered to give a lift home to a man she knew lived in the same street, as herself.

"Oh, dear!" she cried, as she sank back among the cushions, and the car sprang forward. "Oh, dear! This wretched weather! I am simply frozen to death. And my hands are like ice. Feel them!"

But the young man did not respond. He looked at her bashfully for a few moments, and said: "You should have brought a muff with you!" "I did!" she wailed.

Harbor Grace Notes.

There passed away at his home on Harvey Street, on Monday last, a respected citizen in the person of Mr. Robert Lilly. Deceased had been ill for some time, and death was not unexpected. Left to mourn, besides a widow, are four children—three daughters and one son—all of whom are living in the United States. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, when all that was mortal, was laid to rest in the Church of England Cemetery. To the bereaved family the town extends sympathy in this hour of trial.

Mr. H. J. Watts of His Majesty's Customs, St. John's, was in town on Tuesday. His many friends were pleased to see him once again.

A steamer arrived from Bell Island on Tuesday night at 7.30, bringing the body of the late Mrs. A. Stone, who had died there a short time previous; as well as a number of mourners to attend the funeral, which took place from her sister's, Miss Badcock's residence yesterday afternoon; and which was very well attended, considering the very poor weather. The remains were laid to rest in the Church of England Cemetery. To the sorrowing relatives and friends the town extends sympathy.

The schr. "Constance," belonging to Messrs. Munn & Co., arrived in port yesterday afternoon from the Labrador.

Mr. E. Simmons went out by yesterday afternoon's train on a few days visit to the city, to attend to business there.

The schooner "Innovation," Captain M. H. Randell arrived in port yesterday (Wednesday) morning. This schooner left Port Union on the 19th inst., bound for Bahia with 3766 qts. of fish on board; struck a rock after just leaving that port and having been damaged quite a bit came on here to be docked. It is likely part of her cargo, if not all, will have to be removed, before she can go on dock and have the necessary repairs effected. This ship is a fine type of marine architecture, and hails from Lunenburg.

The goods and other assets belonging to Mr. W. A. McKay were disposed of by public auction yesterday morning, at the store previously occupied by Mr. McKay.

Mr. Robert Tetford, Jr., received a message from his father from St. Anthony a short while ago, informing him that, accompanied by his wife, he was leaving via Prospero for home. Mrs. Tetford has spent the most of the summer at St. Anthony, visiting her daughter, Mrs. Don. Moore; and owing to her not feeling well, her husband went down a few weeks ago, to accompany her home again. Through a later message received in town yesterday by Mr. Tetford it is thought Mrs. Tetford (his mother) is very ill; but their many friends are hoping for the best. They are expected on the next Prospero, which will be due in St. John's soon. It has been rumored around town that this boat was calling at Harbor Grace this trip; but we do not know whether this is correct or not.

Messrs. Munn & Co's. schooner "Coronation," S. Noseworthy, master, arrived here this morning from Labrador, after a fine run.

The many friends of the Rev. Canon Noel will be sorry to hear that he has not been very well for the last few days, but trust he will soon be feeling himself again.

Mr. R. S. Munn was among the passengers to arrive from St. John's by last night's train.

Salvage Notes.

Baxter Oldford arrived from the Labrador last week, bringing the key of the Salvage fishing fleet, and hailing for 400 quintals (Labrador salted).

The schooner Beatrice May, J. Squires, master, left for St. John's on Tuesday, with a load of codfish.

The weather for the past week has been quite unsettled, and "true to Newfoundland's ideal of fall weather" and bringing a customary prolific yield of autumn color and minor maladies.

The homely "spud" is attracting much attention these days, but the crop to date is only fair, although in Salvage Bay, the yield is rumored to be slightly above the average.

The autumn touch in the mornings makes the call for fuel insistent. Unfortunately wood is very scarce in the vicinity and what wood there is costs the buyer at the least $7.50 per cord. Coal is difficult to obtain except by the local fishing schooner.

Mr. John Moss, merchant of Bishop's Harbor, went to St. John's this week for the purchase of his winter stock.

Mr. Edward Oldford, of Salvage Harbor, is at present in the city gathering supplies for his shop.

There is a great scarcity of sugar in the place, the said scarcity being due in a measure to the waiting policy adopted by the store-keepers, who being cognizant of the Hickman "win-out" are waiting for the warranted "drop."

With the growing scarcity of wood, and the growth in numbers of coal-consuming stores, we are of opinion that a small cargo of coal per year, would be a big boon to the neighborhood, and a source of profit to the "caterer."

Unionism is very quiet at present. Whether it will ever flourish to its old-time fire and strength is exceedingly doubtful, but as always there will be found some willing to believe in the whims of Moses or in the infallibility of the Michievellian policy.

The Advocate's cry for suppression of the press, surely, is not as a result of the Imperial Press Conference. Rather may it be the result of the unfortunate idea namely Chester-ton that befell the editor.

What kind of a paper would the Advocate be with its headlines erased and its denunciations censored? Verily the agitator in this case, might place example before precept. "Verb Sap."

Salvage, Oct. 15, 1920. —COR.

Man Who Ate Coins and Needles.

An inquest at Preston, (England) revealed that a man suffering from melancholia and delusions, swallowed needles and coins. Judging from the bright appearance of the coins they must have been rubbing against each other in the stomach a considerable time. The cause of death was perforation of the pancreas. A witness did not think deceased had swallowed the coins in order to take his life. He was not of suicidal tendencies and must have swallowed the coins prior to admission. "Death from misadventure" was the verdict recorded.

Olympic Games.

The original Olympic games date back perhaps to the days of Homer. In the olden days the Olympiads were the greatest event in the world. They were the foundations of the life and empire of ancient Greece and Rome, and made possible the triumph of Greece over Asia, and of Rome over the world. The Olympic games were first held in 776 B.C. The name comes from the site on which they were held—Olympia in Elis, not a city, but a small plain in the district of Pisatis, nearly surrounded by lofty hills and bounded on the south by the Rive Alpheus. On this plain was the sacred grove, called Altia, supposed to have been laid out by Hercules. It was adorned with beautiful structures and works of art, altars, statues and monuments in great number, including the Temple of Zeus. This temple housed the most magnificent production of Hellenic art, the chrysephantine statue of Zeus by Phidias.

Story of Recovery of MSS

A strange story of the recovery of some valuable MSS. lost in a shipwreck was told in the course of his sermon in a Surbiton (England) church by the Rev. J. Alston, who was preaching on behalf of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The late Archdeacon Dennis, a missionary in South Nigeria, spent several laborious years in compiling a dictionary and grammar of the Ibo language (comprising six distinct dialects) and circulated the Bible to be printed and circulated amongst the native tribes. On his way home to England, towards the end of the war, the vessel on which he was a passenger was torpedoed, and the Archdeacon lost his life. Some months later his manuscripts were found in a crevice of the rocks on the coast of Wales, where they had been washed up by the sea, and they are now awaiting publication.

Joking With Kings.

"Kings are ill to joke with," Carlyle once observed. Numerous examples might be quoted, however, of amusing retorts and sallies at the expense of monarchs. Among the neatest, perhaps, was that made to the Prince of Wales, afterwards King William IV., by the Secretary of the Admiralty. The Prince had been bantering the Secretary for some time. "When I am King," said he, "you shall not be Secretary of the Admiralty. What do you say to that?"

"God save the King!" rejoined the witty Secretary. It is related that when Charles II. was inspecting a warship at Chatham, he asked Killigrew, "Don't you think I should have made a good shipwright?"

"I have always thought that your Majesty would do better at any trade than your own," replied Killigrew. Almost as disconcerting was an answer given to Frederick the Great, who, wishing to humiliate his physician, asked: "How many men have you sent into the other world?" "Not nearly so many as your Majesty," was the retort, "but with infinitely less glory."

Gallantry in Maine.

A woman's right to attempt to conceal her age has won a judicial victory in Maine, where the Supreme Court has decided that it is sufficient unto the law of a woman who registers for voting declares that she is over twenty-one years. Our own State is not so kind as that, writes a New York correspondent, but it is not unkind of the traditional reticence. It is written in the New York election law, and the Court of Appeals has not been asked to declare it unconstitutional, that very young lady voters must tell the truth, while old maids and matrons may sidestep.

In the ninth column shall be entered the elector's age, except that an elector over thirty years of age may state such age as "over thirty" and have it so entered in the register. Woman's distaste for telling her age will pass away probably by A. D. 4768. About six months later man will drop his own pet weakness, the desire to conceal from his neighbour the size of his salary.

Babies and Battles.

In one year, between Trafalgar and Waterloo a host of babies, destined to be heroes, were born. During 1809, Mr. Gladstone was born in Liverpool—Alfred Tennyson was born at the Somersby rectory; and Oliver Wendell Holmes made his first appearance in Massachusetts. On the very self-same day of that self-same year Charles Darwin made his debut at Shrewsbury, and Abraham Lincoln drew his first breath in old Kentucky. Music was enriched by the advent of Frederic Chopin at Warsaw, and of Felix Mendelssohn at Hamburg. Within the same year, too, Samuel Morley was born in Homerton, Edward Fitzgerald in Woodbridge, Elizabeth Barrett Browning in Durham, and Frances Kemble in London. But nobody thought of battles. Everybody was thinking of babies. Yet, viewing that age in the truer perspective which the distance of a hundred years enables us to command, we may well ask ourselves, "Which of the battles of 1809 mattered more than the babies of 1809?"

Reincarnation of Thibetan Priest.

A remarkable story comes from China to the effect that a Hootookatoo, a Thibetan high priest, who was beheaded by the Dalai Lama for siding with the Chinese when fighting against them, has been reincarnated by the Chinese Government, and all his titles and wealth restored.

The process of reincarnation was simply this: Infants of a certain blood displaying signs that they possessed the same soul as did the deceased were assembled and their names written upon slabs of wood and sealed. These were placed in a large urn of precious metal, from which the High Lama drew by chance one of the names. The choice was greeted by the populace with shouts of joy.

The edict further provided that the sainthood of Hootookatoo should be restored, and that his treasure confiscated should be returned to the infant Hootookatoo. A Regency of Lamas will act for the reincarnated one until his maturity. When he grows up he will have palaces, gardens men and women slaves, and all the things that the man he is supposed to be would have had if he were living.

Even the Dalai Lama, who is supposed to be "the reincarnation of the heavenly emanation of the Enlightened One," has to pass through similar ceremonies before he can be considered fully reincarnated. It is an interesting fact that the "incarnated" of today is in a position to handle the ashes of his first body, burned almost two thousand five hundred years ago.

Our Lost Eleven Days.

Referring to the three hundredth anniversary of the sailing of the Mayflower, the ship that bore the Pilgrim Fathers to America, many people no doubt have been puzzled by the fact that the vessel sailed from Plymouth on September 8th, 1620, whereas the great public meeting at the Albert Hall to celebrate the event has been fixed for September 16th.

The reason for this apparent discrepancy in the dates is that our calendar has been altered since the Mayflower sailed, eleven days having been struck out of September by Act of Parliament in 1752.

The Albert Hall meeting is fixed for the eve of the anniversary, of course.

Many other historical anniversaries have been similarly affected by the alterations of the calendar, including

Thrilling Fight With Two Bandits.

During a thrilling fight with two armed bandits, Nathan Schrader, forty-two years old, a pawnbroker at 1746 Madison avenue, New York, was shot through the right shoulder, but managed to hold one of the bandits until the police arrived.

Schrader was behind the counter in his shop when two men entered. As they approached the counter both drew revolvers. They commanded Schrader to throw up his hands and give them his cash.

Instead of complying, Schrader leaped over the counter and grappled with one of the men. As he did so both opened fire. He fell backwards with a bullet through his right shoulder. The men started backing through the door. Schrader, although weak from the loss of blood, grasped one of the men and held him.

Attracted by the fusillade of shots, Policeman Patrick Carroll, of the East 194th street station, rushed to the pawnshop. As he saw the policeman, the bandit managed to wrench himself from Schrader's fast weakening grip and started to run up Madison avenue. The policeman, seeing he was being outdistanced, fired several shots at the fugitive. While none of the shots took effect they succeeded in frightening the man into stopping and surrendering.

When the man was taken to the station house he described himself as Sidney Kaston, 24 years old, of 20 West 118th street, and, according to the police, confessed that he and a pal entered the pawnshop after having planned the robbery and waited for a time when Schrader would be alone in the shop.

Schrader was taken to Harlem Hospital, where he is in a serious condition from loss of blood.

Commissioner for Mesopotamia.

Sir Percy Cox has gone to Mesopotamia as High Commissioner to enquire and to report on the form of the future government for the ancient land, believed to contain the site of the Garden of Eden, where human history began, and for centuries the seat of two of the great empires of antiquity—the Babylonian Empire and the Assyrian Empire. The High Commissioner will be assisted by Sir Percy Sykes, who has been studying conditions in Mesopotamia.

Sir Percy Cox has spent 25 years in the Middle East and only returned from the Teheran Legation in the middle of June on his appointment as High Commissioner of Mesopotamia. He is 55. During the Mesopotamia campaign he was the political officer with the British forces.

Mesopotamia means the land between the rivers, that is, between the Tigris and the Euphrates. Its soil is exceedingly fertile and in ancient times it produced great crops of grain and maintained a large population. This was due to the excellent irrigation system of the ancients which brought water to a rich but thirsty soil.

In the Middle Ages the Turks came and the irrigation canals fell into ruin, and a large area that had once been cultivated became a waste. The British are restoring the canals and doing everything possible to protect the farmers and shepherds from the robber bands of Arabs and Kurds, who for generations preyed upon the industrious element of the population.

A form of government has to be decided upon, and self-governing Arab states have been proposed. Much will depend on the report of the High Commissioner.

"I ended corns forever in this scientific way"

Millions have said that about Blue-jay. Others tried it and told others the same story. So the use has spread, until corn troubles have largely disappeared.

If you have a corn you can settle it tonight. And find the way to end every corn. Apply liquid Blue-jay or a Blue-jay plaster. The pain will stop.

Soon the whole corn will loosen and come out.

Think what folly it is to keep corns, to pare or pad them, or to use the old harsh treatments.

Here is the new-day way, gentle, sure and scientific. It was created by a noted chemist in this world-famed laboratory.

It is ending millions of corns by a touch. The relief is quick, and it ends them completely.

Try it tonight. Corns are utterly needless, and this is the time to prove it.

Buy Blue-jay from your druggist.

Thought He Knew Better

Johnny paid his first visit to a farm the other day. All his life he had lived in the heart of a great city, and when he suddenly came in sight of a hay-stack, he stopped and gazed earnestly at what appeared to him as a new brand of architecture.

"Say, Mr. Smith," he remarked to the farmer, pointing to a haystack, "why don't they have doors and windows in it?"

"Doors and windows!" smiled the farmer. "That ain't a house, Johnny, that's hay."

"Don't try to kid me, Mr. Smith!"

was the scornful rejoinder. "Don't you suppose I know that hay don't grow in humps like that?"

Now You Know.

Little Willie is blessed with seven sisters of a more or less mature age. He was asked at school to write a short essay on "Girls," and this is what he wrote:

"Girls are feminine gender, and they wear frocks. They only have one pocket, which they can't find. They're awfully fond of grown-up fellers, and can tell when their chins is rough in the dark. Some girls is funny. They will 'oller and jump in a chair when they see mouse; but they is awfully strong when they gives a little fellow like me a hiding. Girls sometimes have nice white-teeth, and then they allus giggles, just to show 'em. Girls like fishin,' but not putting worms on hooks."

Where Shakespeare Found "Macbeth."

GEORG BRANDES'S PREFACE.

Young writers who are worried about the difficulty of finding original plots may take comfort from the fact that Shakespeare rarely troubled to invent a plot for his plays. He just borrowed his raw materials from his reading and then went seriously to work. All the historical plays were taken from English history as recorded by a certain Raphael Holinshed, who lived about the middle of the sixteenth century.

Macbeth, Real and Imaginary.

Mr. Georg Brandes, the well-known Danish Shakespearean scholar, tells us in his introduction to "Macbeth," in Heinemann's "Favourite Classics" series (6d. net each volume), that Shakespeare has considerably altered the facts of history for the sake of dramatic effect. He states that "Macbeth did not sin against the laws of hospitality in taking Duncan's life. He attacked and killed him on the open field. By the Scottish laws of succession he had a better right to the throne than Duncan. After having seized the throne he ruled firmly and justly. . . . It is hardly necessary to remark that the finest parts of the drama, such as the appearance of Banquo's ghost and Lady Macbeth's sleep-walking scene, are due to Shakespeare alone."

The Wonder of Style.

After pointing out that several other Elizabethan dramatists were wont to make use of well-known historical material in this manner, Brandes examines further the marvellous transformation of history after passing through the alembic of Shakespeare's mind. "Shakespeare," he says, "has employed in the treatment of this subject a style that suits it—vehement to violence, compressed to congestion—figures treading upon each other's heels, while general philosophic reflections occur but rarely. It is a style eminently fitted to express and waken terror."

"Weak and Flagging."

Brandes, perhaps, is most interesting when he points out Shakespeare's faults. He says that "the beginning of the lengthy Scene 3 in Act IV, with its endless dialogue between Malcolm and Macduff, which Shakespeare has transcribed literally from Holinshed, is weak and flagging." He also remarks that the "drama is a little marred by the constant insistence that such is the consequence of grasping at power by the aid of crime." The moralist mars the dramatist.—John O' London's Weekly.
