It was only natural that both Sir Richard and those who brought him to Toronto should, on his first public appearance have, make some reference to his change of party allegiance. He devoted the first part of his speech to a definition of his position without making the personal topic too prominent. While admitting that a man should not lightly abandon the political party he has been in the habit of working with, he maintained that in his own case there was ample justification for the course he took in the conduct and public acts of the men he had been associated with, and he added that he had never repented of the step he took fourteen years ago. While men are frequently found growing more conservatives must be allowed to become liberal, as in the case of Mr. Gladstone in England or himself in Canada.

Calling attention to the dangers which threatened the country at the present time he traced them largely to growing complication of public questions coupled with the growing attractions of business pursuits. The questions are harder to understand, and it is more difficult to induce men of ability and integrity to devote themselves steadily to public life. The same danger threatens the United States, and there the evil is rapidly intensifying. It is due to public indifference that Ontario does not exercise her legitimate influence in dominion affairs. He did not blame the people of Onese for gooding more devoted in the deadership. He contended that the application of the bill to Ireland would result in re opening the flood gates of agitation. The amendment was rejected by 332 to 137. Randolph Churchill, Gorst and several other conservatives and all the Parnellites voted for the government.

No candid person can deny that the merchants of Milton have a grievance. Crowds of people leave the town every Satday for places where they can get everything to be had in Milton and whisky as well. Farmers in the vicinity who formerly dealt there come no more. The evening trains on Saturday bring to Milton gallons of whisky and numbers of drunken men. Let one example be given. Last Saturday an old man in Milton named Barney Colter purposed having a few of his friends help him plow, and to cheer their hearts left for Streetsville on Thursday to get a supply of whisky. W. F. MACLEAN. WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 21, 1884.

All Stuff. Referring to the recent extraordinary in crease of England's importation of wheat from India, and the determination of the imperial government to spend several millions more in pushing railroads into extensive wheat districts not yet reached, the Montreal Witness says :

England plainly prefers to develop India rather than Canada, for the simple reason that India has no hostile tariff and admits her commerce free. "India," she says, "will not send us wheat, and then by heavy duties discourage those who wish to take our goods in return, after the example of America." This is the sentimental view of the case, and sentiment does not go for nothing. But a more serious fact is that it is the protective tariffs of this continent which actually put the premium on Indian wheat. England has a himself.

England is displeased because Canada does the case then proceeding, and stating his not buy more goods from her. To which version of the facts; that he had declined we reply, most emphatically—"all stuff." to hold any communication whatever with If the Witness would make enquiry of him on the subject, and pointed out to him bank managers and leading importers in Montreal, it would probably find them on his part. He could not suppose that it unanimously of opinion that, as things are, had been with the sanction, or even the we are buying from England about as knowledge, of his counsel, that the plain much as we are able to pay for. Up to the close of 1882 we were certainly buying ill-advised and foolish in the extreme. more than we were fairly able to pay for, Three was nothing so likely to prejudice a as the record of both wholesale and retail judge against a suitor as finding him adopttrade pretty well shows. The Witness ing such a course. It was the first time professes to be something of an authority that anything of the sort had occurred on matters commercial: would it have us since his accession to the bench, and he increase imports beyond our means, and so our English creditors? Canada's bills payable in England are big enough already, we should say.

The latter part of the paragraph above quoted appears to mean that imports from England are discouraged because of high freights on the westward voyage. Pre-England to this side the Atlantic are prietorship of land. Active and eloquent among the cheapest freights known in the agents are now making a tour among the wide world. England's desire to develop the resources of India can be sufficiently accounted for on common sense principles of both business and politics, without any need of dragging in the tariff question when making comparison with Canada.

But a more serious act is that it is the protective tariffs of this continent which actually put the premium on Indian wheat. England has a business with India both ways, and both can therefore be done, in spite of distance, to greater advantage. England is all the more likely to see the need of railway development in India just now, that her iron interests at home are at the rested altogether with the judge—the case If this means anything, it means that ing before for the purpose of talking over mentioned how the case ended, but Mr. Fortier will probably know better next

About Flat Money.

Yesterday we presented to our reader the Chicago Tribune's idea that what the crop was generally represented as "doing little over sixty years ago. In each case there was a new and additional creation The most encouraging meteorological of paper money, in order to meet the and allowing the bank of England In 1843 it was .22 of a gallon per head, and certificates on securities deposited, and would have fallen in this latitude to a point injurious to fruits and all vegetation. Happily, however, the case has been otherwise, and as the summer approaches the prospects for abundant harvests this year are as bright as can be reasonably desired. Though the country has just been financially disturbed the good agricultural outfook should do much to restore confidence.

Garntshees Must Go.

Mr. Hickson, says the Montreal Star, has issued an order that any employe of the Grand Trunk railway whose wages are attached by a garnishee summons shall be dismissed unless some satisfactory reason is given. The order has been issued in the payment of balances; in other words, it issued a new kind of paper money kind of paper money kind of paper money, which, owing to the great financial prestige of the institution, was at once accepted by everybody. Such is, in substance, the Tribune's explanation of what was done in New York last week. To which we added that the clearing house had virtually assumed the functions of a national government, and had been able to perform these functions successfully, too, as the result showed.

But we cannot halt here; there is still something further to be said on the subject, which may be said very briefly, too. The Chicago Tribune is strongly opposed to "fiat" money, but will it tell us what once and the present figure, 40, or about 2½ bottles.

Substantially the same thing happened in London: directly it was known that the bank of England was authorized to issue all the notes wanted, then those who the day before were clamoring tormore notes did not want any notes at all. Such is the power of "flat" money to save the country on critical occasions.

It is said that a scheme is on foot to

Drinking and Smoking in Great Britain

From a Paper read before the Society of Pub-lic Analysts of England, Jan. 16, 1884. The quantity of British and foreign spirits consumed in 1843 was .87 of a proof gallon per head of population, and this has not increased very materially, the present consumption being 1.03 gallons, or an increase of nearly 19 per cent. But the consumption reached a similar figure so far back as 1859, while it fell to .86 of a gallon in 1860—actually lower than in 1843. From 1860 there was a gradual rise, to 1875 when it reached 1.31 gallons per it remained almost stationary till 1861, when it rose suddenly to .37, from which it went on gradually increasing till 1876, when it was .57, and it has since fallen as gradually to the present figure, .40, or about 2½ bottles.

then, the remarkable fact that while spirits, wine, tobacco, tea, and coccoa have in creased to the extent of 18, 84, 63, 214, and 277 per cent, coffee has decreased to a very considerable extent. What is the reason of this? My opinion is that the people of this country are losing their taste for coffee, because of the difficulty of obtaining it in a pure state. Just about the time when the consumption was at its taining it in a pure state. Just about the time when the consumption was at its maximum, chicory began to be used, and now the use, or rather the abuse, of this vegetable is so universal that comparatively few know the taste of real coffee.

When she turned I greeted her politely, and said I was delighted the wrap ed her. She looked rather unhap during the performance, but the shawl was not returned to the store, and I charged my opera ticket to expenses."

During a recent visit of a governmen investigating commission in Hot Springs the shrewd chairman discovered that the hot water coming from a certain spring had a peculiar taste. This was, indeed had a peculiar taste. This was, indeed, an important discovery, and, by a special act of congress extending the powers of the commission, the gentlemen went to work, with firmly-fixed determination, declaring that the sunlight of reform must shine on the fraud. The following figures show the cost of the enterprise: Special detection the fraud. The following figures show the cost of the enterprise: Special detectives, $7000; whisky, $9000; witness fees, $6000; total, $22,000. scarcely 7000 Laplanders.

Geographers have repeatedly stated that in former times all Scandinavía, and even a portion of Northern Germany, was formerly occupied by the Laplanders. This is an error. The Laplanders entered into Scandinavia from the north, and they never descended below the sixty-first degree of latitude, where they were found at the date of the first historical records. If the Laplanders were ever spread over the whole of Scandinavia, it must have been during the stone age, and they would have left traces behind them, which is not the case except north of Gothland. No historic tradition supports such a supposition. At the present day the Lapps are not a pure race, but are everywhere mingled with Norwegians, Swedes, Russians and, above all, with the Finns.

Truro, N. S., Correspondence New York Sun, I have often wondered that a sect peculiar as the McDonaldites, or Jerkers, have escaped discussion. I do not know of any church of that sect, except in Prince Edward's Island, and they are rapidly dying out. Their form of service is much like the Presentation. to her feet with a screech that made my blood run cold. She was so violent and I was so near her that I could not stay and watch her another minute. I forced myself backward through the crowd. As a good many besides myself were frightened, a general rush was made for the door, the screams of the frightened ones mingling with the shrieks of those who had the jerks, for by this time six or eight were having them at once. No mad house ever held a more excited crowd. Some, while shrieking, made exclamations as though imploring help. As I could not understand a word they said, I suppose they spoke Gaelic. When we got out doors, we walked down the road, out of the sound of the noise, until our fright had

THE HISTORY OF DANCING.

In Shakespeare's Time. Queen Anne's

The ancients held the dance in the very highest esteem, for was it not invented by the goddess Rhea, who preserved Jupiter from Saturn? while Homer and Hesiod sang its praises. Socrates himself, who is supposed to have realized the vanity of all things save the immortality of the soul, went to the trouble of learning dancing when an old man, and perhaps received the invitation of some antique edition of Mrs. Ponsonby de Tomkins or Mrs. Leo Hunter eager for his entrance. But then it must be borne in mind that the classic dance was more severe in character, as the martial Pyrrhic dance, from Saturn? while Homer and Hesiod acter, as the martial Pyrrhic dance, performed by Greek or Roman armed cap-a-pie, weapon, terch or wand in hand, amply testifies. The ancient rustic was, however, particularly partial to a curious dance, which consisted of jumping with one foot only on a bladder inflated with six of slutching.

with air or filled with wine and rubbed on the outside with oil; and he who did this slippery exercise well received the wine-skin for his pains. The dance of the Eu-menides, or Euries, in the theatre at Athens is said to have produced such an effect on the spectators that they were totally unable to control their excited feelings, and the direct results often happened. Dancing now remains among all savage nations the outward and visible sign of their emotions. Perhaps the most curious custom in the history of dancing is that which is said to have taken place at Limoges not long ago, where the inhabitants "danced the round" in the choir of the church, invoking their parts "can be a said to be a sai church, invoking their patron saint St.
Marcel, saying, instead of the Gloria Patri, "St. Marcel, pray for us, and we shall dance in honor of you."

Witty Beatrice, in Much Ado About
Nothing gives

Nothing, gives a graphic review of the dances of Shakespeare's time, where, speaking to Hero, she says: "Wooing, wedding and repenting is as a Scotch jig, a measure and a cinque pace; the first ut is hot and hasty, like a Scotch jig, and full as fantastical; the wedding mannerly modest as a measure, full of state and ancientry and then comes repentance and, with his bad legs, falls into the clinque pace faster and faster, till he sinks into his grave."

In such high repute was dancing held in the reign of James I. that the benchers of Lincoln's inn issued an order that "underlarristers were "by decimation." barristers were, by decimation, put out of commons, because the whole bar offended by not dancing on Candlemas day preced-ing, according to the ancient order of the society, when the judges were present, and that if the fault were repeated they should be fined or disbarred." Later on, down to Queen Anne's time, when ladies in hoop and farthingale, crested with marvellous edifices of pomatumed hair and powder, contrived to dance the stately minuet and

The present generation has at least to be thankful that the wheel of fashion has rescued the dancer from this and invented the trouser. The country dances, derived merely from a corruption of contre-danse—that is, a number of persons placed opposite each other to begin a figure—became, by this confusion of ideas, rooted in rustic favor, naturally because these dances introduced greater personal familiarity be-Whipple's Air Brush.

From the Milwaukee Telegraph. Prof. Lydston, the popular artist, was asked his opinion of the Whipple air brush about which so much has been said of late: "I consider it one of the greatest inventions of the age. It is certain to revolutionize the art of portrait painting in water colors. For many years I have painted on ivory and paper surfaces, and can justly lay claim to a good degree of skill in the art of stippling with India ink and water colors; but the work of the air brush, in the hands of an artist, will do more in one hour, and do it better, than can be done by the old process of hand stipple, in one week. It is the only work which will stand the test of the magnitung class. Where I can set the only work which will stand the test of the magnifying glass. Where I can put on one stipple dot with the brush the Whipple machine will put on 500 dots, and the distribution will be so perfect that no artist would risk his reputation by say-ing he could equal it by the old method. I shall use this air brush hereafter for all of my water color work, because I can do the work much better as well as more rapidly. I also recommend the air brush to all my brother artists. If you have time, call at the studio, 504 Grand avenue. An investigation will convince any one of the truth of my assertions. Mr. Cottrill, the artist employed by Mr. Whipple, has a life-size portrait of the late Senator a me-size portrait of the late Senator T. O. Howe, one of Wisconsin's great est and best statesmen. It is 5 by 6½ feet. He is represented sitting in his library, surrounded by his books. It is the best piece of water coloring I ever saw. It will be at the studio only a few days more whose it will be only a few days more, when it will be removed to New York, where Mr. Whipple will permanently locate. Mr. Cottrill is now working up a portrait-in colors. By calling you can see the machine work. Without doubt the new method will take the place of the old work by crayen and India ink. Among the advantages derived is this: Instead of waiting weeks for a portrait, you have to wait only a few As a rule, artists do not take readily to new things, but the enthusiasm of our friend Lydston in behalf of the Whipple air brush would convince anyone that he is in earnest, and that the new invention is certain to take its proper rank.

SPECIAL NOTICE CHALLENGE OF S1000 ibuted among charitable institu to be distributed among charitable institutions of this city.

To the Editor of the Star:

The following notice, which has appeared and still appears in the press of this city, has been brought to our notice:

"CIGARS, 860,800 CIGARS
duty paid during last month. The largest amount excised in the Dominion by any one factory, (Extract from official books), &c.,&c.,"

We beg respectfully to contradict this statement, and we deny that the amount was the largest excised in the Dominion by any one factory during last month. We hereby challenge the factory in question to prove the statement so advertised. In support of our challenge we hereby beg to transmit to you our accepted cheque for one thousand dollars, which, in the event of the challenge being accepted and the statement advertised being correct, we are willing should be distributed by you amongst the charitable institutions of this city. In the event of the statement being proved to be incorrect the other party to forfeit a like amount of $1900, to be deposited with you on the acceptance of the challenge for a like distribution. The challenge to be accepted within one week, and to be decided by arbitrators whoshall take their figures from the official books. We trust that no excuse will deter the factory advertising from accepting the above challenge, and afford to the public conclusive proof of the correctness of its statement. S. Davis, & Son, Cigar Manufacturers.

To the Editor of the Star.

Dear Sir,—What we surmised has occurred. The factory which we challenged to prove that it excised the largest quantity of cigars over any other factory in the Dominion during last month, as it advertised, now attempts to squirm out of the difficulty.

It endeavors in last night's Star to direct the attention of the public from the matter in issue by ignoring our challenge and creating one of its own instead. We will not allow the public to be guilled in this manner.

We call upon the factory to come forward honestly and boldly and prove the correctness of the statement it so freely advertises, and stand or fall by the result. Immediately upon this being disposed of we are quite ready and able to reply to any challenge which may be made. Our challenge still remains open for four days, and if it be not accepted by that time we shall consider the falsity of the advertisement to have been admitted, and shall leave to the public to decide what amount of credence that or any other advertisement of the factory in question is entitled to.
