When Fred Was Lost In the Deep Woods.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Fred was out of bed by daylight, preparing for a trip into the woods. He, with several companions of his own age, had for a long week been planning on this excursion, and Fred was full of eager anticipation.

"Now, son you must not walk too far without resting under some friendly shade tree," warned the mother as she finished packing a good-sized lunchbox for Fred to carry with him.

"Yes, or maybe they're men that want to study the life of a tribe of dwarfs," asserted Tom. "Yes, that's about it," declared his twin brother.

"Well, we'll follow their tracks till we come to the men who made them," said Fred. "So far as I'm concerned, I'm not afraid. Are you, boys?"

"Nope," answered Peg and Shorty. "Nixey," added Tom and Sim. "We are here to discover and not to run from tracks."

So saying the five stragglers wended their way through the timber, which grew heavier and denser at every turn. The road soon became so dim that they could hardly discern the rough tracks.

After about an hour's trudging through the woods the boys decided it was time to eat. They sat on the soft leaves and opened their lunch boxes.

human feet and hands, for the tracks of shoe-adult size—and bits of whittlings made by a pen-knife trimming down a bit of elder stick told the adventurers that other human beings from civilization were there also.

"Who can tell but what they're in search of buried treasure?" said Peg, a look of mystery in his eye.

consumed more time in going than he had consumed in coming. A little shiver of fear ran through him but he quickly threw it off. "Oh, I'm not lost, even though the boys have gone on and left me," he said aloud.

"So, on-and on he walked, and pretty soon, to his astonishment, he came to a stream of water, clear and rippling over rocks and pebbles.

When alone, and out of hearing of his companions' voices, Fred began his work of counting. Every minute was recorded by a notch cut into a small stick which he carried for the purpose.

And after what seemed a long time to him he suddenly recalled his counting and the notch-stick. Surely, surely, he had let the hour slip by without keeping track of the flying minutes.

Fortunes Wrecked in the Decline of Hill Stocks—Half a Million in a Year.

The stocks of the Hill lines show a depreciation in market value during the past year of more than half a billion dollars. There has been no more spectacular development in the quotations of leading railroad issues than the decline in the Hill stocks. The causes of the decline are to be found in speculative and financial reasons rather than in any questions of railroad management. Mile for mile, and share for share the three Hill properties are worth at least as much as they ever were.

In the Northern Pacific and Great Northern alone the decline has been nearly $400,000,000 as follows:
Northern Pacific . . . . . $338,820,000
Great Northern . . . . . 522,000,000

Selling price Hill stocks, high of 1906 . . . . . $880,820,000
Northern Pacific, 1,500,000 shares at present . . . . . 178,250,000
Great Northern, 1,900,000 shares including Ore. . . . . 248,000,000

Selling price at present . . . . . $421,250,000
Loss from high . . . . . 459,570,000
The foregoing does not take any consideration of the Burlington. The most of the stock is locked up. The shrinkage in the market value of the 1,100,000 shares has, however, easily been $600,000,000. It brings the total depreciation in the Hill stocks up to more than half a billion. The market value of the stocks in the Hill roads today, including Great Northern Ore, is a few million short of $650,000,000. This compares with an aggregate market price of somewhat less than $1,300,000,000 at previous high prices.

This enormous shrinkage has pretty nearly wrecked more than 600 fortunes. If half the takes which are told in financial circles here and abroad are true, it has pretty nearly crippled from further enterprise at the moment one of the most powerful entities in the world.

OUTSIDE LOANS OF CANADIAN BANKS
Some Millions Might Fairly Be Made Available at Home.

(Montreal Star.)
In view of the discussion that has arisen over the large amount of money Canadian banks loan outside of the country, it is interesting to see that the Canadian bank statement out yesterday, places the total of outside loans at $44,321,000, the bulk of which is in the shape of call money.

The detailed statement of outside loans is as follows:

	Call Money	Current Loans
Montreal . . . . .	$11,728,310	$7,718,230
British N. A. . . . .	5,282,289	3,085,223
Nova Scotia . . . . .	543,888	3,400,550
Union of Halifax . . . . .	200,000	1,602,238
Merchants . . . . .	4,282,232	1,108,862
Commercial . . . . .	8,819,935	1,688,294
Royal . . . . .	2,415,415	3,162,242
Hamilton . . . . .	72,600	72,600
Imperial . . . . .	1,500,000	100,000
Western . . . . .	1,000,000	1,000,000
Sovereign . . . . .	1,575,000	1,575,000
Total . . . . .	$60,609,114	23,723,297

Some of the critics of the banks say they see the full force of the argument that "quick reserves" in New York are necessary, but they claim that if $10,000,000 or even only $5,000,000 were withdrawn and brought back to Canada, it would help our conditions not a little.

"Really," she said, "I don't see how any one can lose money in stocks. As I understand it, the theory is very simple. All you have to do is to buy when they're clear down and sell when they're clear up."
"True," he admitted, "but suppose they were not clear down when you thought they were, and instead of going up after you had given an order, they kept on going down. What would you do then?"
"Why," she replied, with a bright, confident smile, "I'd just tell the broker I was only joking when I made the deal."

THE BRITISH JOURNALISTS WILL BE HERE ON THURSDAY

Brief Biographical Sketch of the Men Who Will Compose the Party.

The party of British newspaper men now visiting Canada will spend next Thursday in St. John, arriving on the 6:30 a. m. train from Halifax. A meeting of the council will be held this morning at 11 o'clock to arrange for their reception.

It is proposed that the members of the council with the board of trade and the newspaper men of the city will unite to entertain the visitors during their stay here, which is limited to the day of their arrival.

This is the second party of British journalists who have visited Canada recently. A short biographical sketch of the visitors may be of interest.

David L. Cromb, the Dundee Advertiser and People's Journal representative, has been associated with the well known Scottish newspapers since leaving school. He is editor of the People's Journal, a paper that requires no introduction to the Scotswomen of Canada. On his visit to the west he hopes to make the acquaintance of many brother Scots.

Barclay McConeky represents a series of daily and weekly newspapers. Chief among these are the Belfast Evening Telegraph, the Irish Daily Telegraph, Belfast Telegraph, the Times and Ballymena Weekly Telegraph. Four years ago he crossed the continent on a similar errand and wrote a series of articles which additional interest was given by illustrations from his own photography. He retains pleasant recollections of the Scotchmen and Scotch homes on the present occasion to renew old acquaintances and make many new ones. He was unanimously chosen treasurer of the Ulster district of the Institute of Journalists.

A. H. Powell, who represents the Birmingham Evening Dispatch, is particularly interested in the range and development of Canadian manufactures.

Charles W. Starmer represents the Northern Echo (daily) and the Yorkshire Gazette and South Durham and Auckland Chronicle (weeklies), which circulate in the populous northern counties of England noted for engineering, bridge building, mining and agriculture. Mr. Starmer is a member of the Darlington town council and a justice of the peace for the borough.

Allenburgh, representing the Manchester Guardian, is the youngest member of the party. The Guardian not only appeals to Lancashire people, but is a recognized authority on all matters of national importance.

W. Longstaff is the representative of the Newcastle Chronicle, a paper which circulates extensively in the north of England. It embraces the interests of many districts in which the coal-mining, shipbuilders, and iron manufacturers largely predominate; but agriculturists, as well as persons connected with numerous other industries, are also among its readers. As a man with five and twenty years' experience of the British parliament, Mr. Longstaff may be expected to give some attention to political and social matters connected with the Dominion.

J. T. Dunsford, Fellow of the Institute of Journalists, part proprietor of the Somerset County Gazette, Bridgewater Mercury and Devon and Somerset Weekly News, has been editor of the Bridgewater Mercury for the past forty years, and is one of the oldest working journalists throughout the west of England.

Rowley Ellison, B. A., LL. B., is a Fellow of the Institute of Journalists, and is leader writer on the East Anglian Daily Times, published in Ipswich, the county town of Suffolk. Mr. Ellison is also a member of the Ipswich emigration committee, which has already sent out many Suffolks to Canada.

W. Redwood is managing reporter of the Western Daily Press, the first daily newspaper published in Bristol, and with which are allied the Bristol Evening News and the Bristol Observer, papers which circulate extensively in Bristol, Gloucestershire, Somersetshire, Wiltshire and other western counties. Mr. Redwood has been connected with the Western Daily Press since 1878. He was for three years one of the vice-presidents of the Institute of Journalists, has served on the council of the Institute, and is honorary secretary of the Bristol and West of England Newspaper Press fund.

Joseph Cooke, managing director of the Sheffield Daily Independent, and chief reporter of the Doncaster Gazette and Boston Guardian (England) is an alderman of Boston and was twice elected mayor of the Lincolnshire town, which gave its name to Boston, Massachusetts. He has been an active working journalist (as well as a newspaper proprietor) since 1875, and has had a close connection with many eastern English newspapers. On a previous occasion the Sheffield Independent

A PLAIN DUTY If the Times did not believe that St. John would be conferring a great benefit upon its future citizenship by paying more attention to the training of the children, this journal would not so frequently urge the need of more attention to the needs of the little ones in their play hours.

The money stringency has hit New York so hard that it has raised the interest rate on new bonds offered for sale, and has also ordered the curtailment of civic expenditure wherever possible.

The rush of maritime province people to the west in the last few years is illustrated by the fact that 2000 of them attended a picnic at Calgary yesterday.

The British journalists who will come to St. John next Thursday will be given a cordial welcome. It will be the duty and the pleasure of the members of the city council, local newspaper men, business men and others, to see that the visitors have the most favorable opportunity to inspect the city and the harbor, and gain as much accurate information concerning the winter port as the time at their disposal will permit.

Fire which broke out in the wooden conveyor at the Union Point pulp mill of the Partington Pulp & Paper Company at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon did about $3,000 damage. Materials and Trimmings for Mid-Summer Wear

BY DOROTHY DALE.

The newest gowns are certainly very beautiful in coloring and design and the woman who has any discernment in selecting her costumes can do charmingly good for midsummer festivities.

or makes a very effective finish for surplus folds, and a similar unembroidered handkerchief, of course, edge the wide over-leave.

The first figure at the left was drawn from a costume of pale pink silk, with insertions of val lace. The back of the gown is shown, and special attention is called to the long graceful lines given by the panels of lace insertion.

Ammonia is a great labor-saver at cleaning time, and its uses are legion. It does service in almost every department of housekeeping as a polishing and cleaning agent.

Apple Pudding—Add to one and a half cups of strained stewed apples the juice of an orange, the grated rind and juice of half a lemon, 3 tablespoonfuls of sherry, three-quarters of a cupful of sugar, and two tablespoonfuls of gelatin soaked in cold water.

Apple Compoete—Peel and core seven good-sized apples, and put them in cold water, to which the juice of a lemon has been added; then blanch them in this water until tender enough to give a little when touched.

The first design illustrates a trimming which is being widely used on the summer gowns. The sketch shows how to gather this puffing, which can be made of ribbon, to be used as an insertion between the bands that head ruffles, etc.

Macaroni Miltani—Melt a quarter cupful of butter or dripping in a saucepan, and then saute in it an onion, slice thin, a stalk of celery, cut into cubes, and a sprig of parsley; stir, to keep from burning, and when of a golden brown add a can of tomato, season with salt and pepper and let simmer about half an hour, or until the watery juice has evaporated.

Meanwhile cook half a package of macaroni in boiling salted water; let boil about twenty minutes, or until tender, but not long enough to make it shapeless, drain and rinse in cold water, then set in a hot place. Press the tomato sauce through a sieve fine enough to keep back the seeds, but not so fine as to hold back the pulp, which should be of the consistency of thick cream. Heat a hot platter with cheese, cover with macaroni, pour over sauce, add grated cheese, then more macaroni sauce and cheese until all is used. Then with a spoon and a fork gently turn over the macaroni until it is thoroughly mixed with the sauce. Now add a generous sprinkling of cheese to the top and serve. MISS DEVERD'S UNBEATEN TANDEM TEAM

Since American bred and American schooled horses have captured blue ribbons galore while in competition with the equine aristocrats of the United Kingdom at the late International Show in London, the Show Horse is more prominently in the eye of lovers of horseflesh today than ever before. By "Show Horse" is meant the very highest type of horse—a horse which years of painstaking care on the part of breeders has finally produced, and one which months, and in some instances, years of patient handling and training has been required to bring to that degree of perfection as regards manners, gait, action and conformation, all so necessary to a horse's success in the show ring.

Once more American brains and American dollars, a combination so well calculated to overcome all obstacles, have triumphed and now we can boast of a horse which the experts of all countries have pronounced to be the very highest type of horseflesh ever exhibited in a tan bark enclosure. With the English hackney for a basis to work upon, a judicious crossing of blood has wrought a most remarkable evolution in the park horse of our large cities. The hackney, crossed with the best blood lines of the Kentucky roadster, and, later, with those of the Morgan courage, conformation, manners, speed, action, beauty and breeding, which combination has amply fitted him for a journey across the seas, there to sweep everything before him in the various classes in which he competed.

It required years and years of study to accomplish this feat, and to Henry Fairfax, of Virginia, more credit is due, perhaps, than to any other importer and breeder of hackneys in this country. Mr. Fairfax is the pioneer in this undertaking and after expending a fortune to this end his efforts have at last been crowned with success, and he has lived to reap the harvest he so richly deserves.

Each year are held, in various parts of the East, scores of Horse Shows, all of more or less importance to the breeder and fancier; some of national and even international significance. This is the season of the open air show; those delightful functions where, amid picturesque settings, the show ring is pitched, and about these arenas hundreds of beautifully groomed women and well groomed men are wont to gather to pay homage to the thoroughbred. This is a horsey age, and it is no longer vulgar to be horsey, and these devotees of the show ring of today are thoroughly at fait with the horse in all his varying moods and tenes, and can at a glance take in his every good point or defect.

In the East, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Newport, Boston, Plainfield, Morristown, Orange, Tuxedo, Rutland and Atlantic City all hold out of door shows, and each is of vast importance to the exhibitor who, in nearly every instance, completes the circuit. Of course, there are hundreds of shows elsewhere, such as those given throughout Virginia, but nearly all of these are of more or less local significance, as in the latter state ninety per cent of the exhibits are Virginia bred, and, in consequence, the hunter and saddle types predominate. The Middle and Far West all have their shows, too, but since Chicago has failed to make its horse show the success it should be, Western breeders must depend entirely upon the East as the scene of their horses' successes.

With the approach of fall, however, the final test comes, the survival of the fittest as it were, and then the horses that have met with success at the open shows are carefully prepared for the season's climax, the Madison Square Garden show, New York, where the National Horse Show Association annually holds the greatest show on earth. The International Horse Show, recently held in London, where American horses established such unbroken records for ribbons won, has spurred Americans on to renewed efforts and one year from next spring this country is to be the scene of the international show, and it is needless to assert that a new era will then dawn for breeder and fancier on this side of the Atlantic.

THE VANDERBILTS.

With such events as these as an incentive, it is little wonder that millions of dollars are annually expended on horseflesh, and it will doubtless prove interesting to gain a more intimate acquaintance with the thoroughbred in his winter quarters. Reginald C. and his brother Alfred G. Vanderbilt, beyond doubt, head the list of sportsmen who breed, own, train and exhibit show horses on the American and European circuits. Both are enthusiastic and accomplished whips, and concentrate all their energies, as well as many thousands of dollars towards producing the ideal show horse, fitted for all harness classes. Neither, strange to say, care for the saddle type, but delight in drawing the rein over something from a single park hackney to an eight in hand, if needs be. It is conservatively estimated that each spends $300,000 a year toward the maintenance of his respective stable, called upon to pass judgment on the embryo debutantes, and then the final test is made by Mr. Bone, the stable manager, in the presence of Mr. Vanderbilt. When Bone says a horse is fit, Mr. Vanderbilt has no hesitancy in including him in the string of seasonal campaigners that start out in quest of ribbons, cups and glory.

HOW HORSES ARE TRAINED.

Months of careful training are required to perfect the knee and hook action of the latter day harness horse. First the candidate is jogged over a track, over which, at regular intervals, are laid bars, or fence rails, which obstacles tend to require the horse not only to carefully pick his way, but to lift his feet and in time it will become second nature with him to pick up his feet to the proper height. Of course scientific shoeing and proper biting and booting greatly aid in this arduous action, and, once acquired, never ceasing care must be exercised to see that the horse does not overdo it, as too much action is quite as fatal to his chances in the ring as too little. With the action fully developed the next step is towards developing speed, for now the horse that is put through his paces in the show ring must do so at a speed of at least a mile in four minutes, and even faster if he can maintain it. With a hundred or more horses of this character in his string some small idea of the expense attached to transporting and exhibiting the Vanderbilt string can be formed. It requires a groom to each horse and this average does not include the small army of attendants required to care for the carriages and various equipages used in the ring, or the squad that is constantly employed in the harness room, whose labors there are apparently never ending. The gold mounted harness in the Vanderbilt and Harriman stables require quite as much attention as the silverware and toilet articles on my lady's buffet and dressing table. Each horse has his own trunk, in which are kept his blankets, sheets, hoods, leggings, boots, etc.; the sum annually expended for the same being sufficient to lavishly dress the most fastidious of our young men of fashion.

The combined value of cash and plate prizes won by the most persistent of our exhibitors would not pay the feed bills for horses and grooms while on the circuit.

Professional drivers and riders pick a pretty penny in the course of a season. For instance, when his horses are entered in these classes calling for a woman driver Mrs. Belle Beach Bain invariably handles the ribbons over the Vanderbilt horses, for which service she receives $100 for each appearance in the ring, win or lose. It is an easy matter for Mrs. Bain and other women who have made their life's work to earn four or five hundred dollars a day at some of the meets.

trip will bring the daily receipts to $120 a day. Then, when the season is over, the horses will be auctioned off and being well trained and once the property of a Vanderbilt, it is needless to say that they will command fancy prices. In which event the rich amateur will have had his fun and his profit too.

BOUGHT BY KING EDWARD.

When Mr. Vanderbilt returned from Europe it became known for the first time that two of his prize winning high stepping pairs had been purchased by England's sovereign, just as the string was being prepared for its homeward journey. The animals sold were King Edward and King James, a pair of typical state coach horses, 62 hands high, George D. King, of Springboro, Pa., bred the pair and sold them to Mr. Vanderbilt two years ago and since then they have met with unequalled success in the show ring. On the occasion of her visit to the recent exhibition at Olympia, Queen Alexandra saw the horses and so admired them for their stately carriage that she urged her consort to purchase them. Sir Henry Ewart, the King's Equerry, then opened negotiations and the day prior to the date set for sailing the sale was consummated.

In purchasing these King Edward pair, a delicate compliment to his new ally, France, as well as to America, since both horses are by the imported French coacher, Troarn, himself a prize winner at Madison Square Garden and many other good shows. Since retiring from the ring Troarn has sired a number of ribboners.

PROMINENT BREEDERS AND EXHIBITORS.

J. H. Harriman, a multimillionaire and proprietor of the Avondale Farm, is another enthusiastic devotee of the show ring and his string under the guiding hand of Jack Donnelly has been one of the most consistent winners of ribbons in the past few years, the Vanderbilts not excepted. His Lord Brooks and Lord Burleigh are possibly the best matched pair on the circuit this year and never fail to create the most intense enthusiasm when shown.

The keenest rivalry exists between the Harriman, Vanderbilt, Clarence W. Watson and J. H. Moore stables, and when the horses from these stables line up in the same class it is always a battle royal for supremacy.

Mr. Watson made several millions in West Virginia coal a few years ago and immediately set to work to surround himself with a galaxy of champion show horses. His matchless pair, Lord Baltimore and My Maryland II, won everything in sight at the International and will doubtless repeat their successes here when they have rested up after their gruelling English campaign. Mr. Watson's stable is one of the most extensive in this country. While in England the Watson horses won twenty-two ribbons, despite the fact that they did not have a piece of harness on them from the day they sailed from New York until they made their sensational dash into the International ring.

Of all the prominent exhibitions whose friendly rivalry has given zest to the sport and helped materially to raise the standard of excellence at American Shows, none has surpassed W. H. Moore's persistence of competition or liberality of expenditure to possess the best specimen of the heavy harness horse. With one of that looked as good as, or better than his own. No mere question of price ever stops him. He has just purchased five trotting bred pairs of the heavy harness type that are likely to cause a stir when he uncovers them at the Madison Square Garden Show in November.

A score or more names could be mentioned in the list of breeders and fanciers who show their horses merely for the sport they derive from exhibiting their beautiful and fragrant expensive toys. Despite the efforts of promoters of show horses, however, the spirit of commercialism is fast creeping into the game, and drastic measures will have to be adopted ere it gains to great a headway and drives the amateur from the field. Of course the stakes are so high and so well worth playing for, as the question of price never curbs the desire of a showman to own the best horse of his class, that it is little wonder that the dealer is ever on the alert to catch the early worm.

TANDEM.

The most picturesque of all classes is that for tandems. In Hildred and Baron Miss Emily H. Bedford has a pair of unbeaten champions. She has never failed to capture a blue with this superb pair wherever they were shown. There is a dash to a tandem which never fails to thrill the spectators, and when the whip straightens out his pace and they settle down to their stride it never fails to bring forth ringing cheers from stand and field. Whips that successfully tool a coach often fail when it comes to handling a tandem, as it is the most difficult of all styles of driving to master. The sporting tandem class is an especially showy one, for in this the leader must be an accomplished hunter as well as a true going driver. In this class it is necessary for the whip, after showing his pair in harness, to submerge the leader, saddle him and show him over three jumps, the same regulations prevailing that are applied to the qualified hunter.

SADDLE HORSES.

One of the prettiest and showiest of all classes is that for saddle horses and one that is receiving even more attention this year than heretofore. So far, it has fallen to the lot of a new comer in the show

COACHING.

Alfred Vanderbilt is an ardent coacher, and while he owns and exhibits harness horses of all types he devotes his best energies toward developing the best road fours in America and in this he has succeeded. In crossing the Atlantic Ocean with a string of twenty-one horses, fifteen coaches and carriages, to say nothing of his retinue of grooms, array of harness and other show paraphernalia, Mr. Vanderbilt has set a pace difficult for any one to follow. While in England he captured 36 ribbons, ten of which were blues. In his string was the famous road team of grays, named Venture, Viking, Variety and Vogue. They swept everything before them at the International Horse Show, London, and at the Royal Show at Richmond, just as they had done here before being sent abroad. Other noted winners in his string included Rustling Sills, Fall Dress, Polly Prim and Sweet Marie, the park four-in-hand that cost Mr. Vanderbilt $20,000 a few years ago; also The Youngster, The Duke, The Major, Gibson Boy, Primrose, Hi Boy, Columbia, Lady Kathryn, Alert, Watson and Lucie.

An innovation in coaching circles is shortly to be sprung by young Vanderbilt, and to this end agents are now scouring Kentucky for about fifty sturdy examples of the coaching type. Early in September Mr. Vanderbilt is to establish a coaching route between the Central Park Plaza, New York, and Ardley-on-the-Hudson and Belmont Park. To the coach will be harnessed eight horses and three relays of horses will be used each way, a distance of twenty-five miles. At each relay station there will be a hostler to a horse in making the change and each change will be effected in about two minutes. Each horse will work a day and then rest a day in the fields. Although the public coaching indulged in by Mr. Vanderbilt is merely for sport, it does not generally result, contrary to general belief in financial loss. The fare to Ardley with this exclusive reinman will not be less than five dollars a seat each way. The coach will carry twelve passengers and ten dollars for the round trip.

When the tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

THE STOCK MARKET

Latilaw & Co. of New York write: "It is improbable that last week's liquidation was fully reflected in Saturday's bank figures, and while the banks have sustained some loss of cash in their operations with the sub-treasury, the general expectation is that the statement on Saturday next will show another increase of surplus reserve. Withal there seems little upon which to base speculative sales of stocks at this level, and the development of any positively favorable news would probably be followed by a further substantial recovery."

CONSCIENCE IN POLITICS

H. B. Ames, M. P., of St. Antoine, Montreal, Counsellor Electors to Study Policy of Both Parties.

(Montreal Witness.)

"Only when Canada shall have a sensitive conscience, and oppose, in successive every government that betrays its trust, will we have that clean and honest administration which we have a right to demand, and which we are entitled to expect. Enough young men I believe will vote at the next election for the first time to make or unmake the political destinies of either party."

This statement was made this morning by H. B. Ames, M. P., in an interview with a Witness representative regarding the forthcoming visit to Montreal of R. L. Borden, leader of the opposition in the house of commons.

"Part government," said Mr. Ames, "is a necessity, and one or the other party must administer the affairs of the country. The party in power is judged by its performance, while the party in opposition can only be judged by its promises and by the sincerity of those men who formulate its policy. When the electors are convinced that an administration is falling short in efficiency, of what they have a right to expect, and when they are convinced that the men who control the alternative party are of such a character that they will carry out the reforms which they are pledged; then it is that the people take the administration from one party and grant it to another."

"Part government," said Mr. Ames, "is a necessity, and one or the other party must administer the affairs of the country. The party in power is judged by its performance, while the party in opposition can only be judged by its promises and by the sincerity of those men who formulate its policy. When the electors are convinced that an administration is falling short in efficiency, of what they have a right to expect, and when they are convinced that the men who control the alternative party are of such a character that they will carry out the reforms which they are pledged; then it is that the people take the administration from one party and grant it to another."

ROBINSON AND POND

The following item is from the Chatham World:

"Mr. James Robinson, ex-M. P. for Northumberland, is a resourceful man. His touring car slid down a muddy road side, the other day, and could not climb the ascent to the roadway on account of the soft and slippery nature of the ground. It looked as though nothing less than a six-horse team would haul it up. Let us build a sheer boom to guide it," said Mr. Robinson, and a sheer boom of fence rails, held in place by stakes, was laid diagonally from beside the car to the roadway. The machine, kept from sliding sideways by the boom, ascended to the middle of the road at the first trial.

When Admiral Pond, the inventor of the sheer boom, hears of this exploit, he may be expected to take the next train for the Miramichi.

Lawn Waists, $1.00 and $1.25; Linen Waists, $1.75 to $4.00

QUICK SALE OF A SPECIAL-PURCHASE LOT AND A CLEARANCE OF WHAT ARE LEFT OF THE LINEN QUALITIES.

Sale Monday Morning at 8.30 O'clock in the Silk Room, 2nd Floor. No Waists Reserved or Sent Out on Approval. In Fairness to All it Will Also Be Necessary to Withdraw the Exchange Privilege.

With Fall and Winter Goods Arriving and demanding storage room, we find it necessary to hold a special sale of all our summer lawn and linen waists though the season is not yet over. In order to add to the attractiveness of the event, we are including some dozens of handsome new lawn waists we secured a short time ago at a snap quotation. Even though we were without this special-purchase lot, the display of handsomely-trimmed garments would be very tempting, particularly the Irish Linen qualities with their rich delft embroidering.

The Special Lot of Lawn Waists at $1.00 and $1.25

Here we have a manufacturer's bargain assortment, something with which we can wind up a very successful season, by giving everybody a present of a lovely waist at about half price. The lawn is of the best, charmingly embroidered, tucked and lace inserted. A mass of new patterns. Collars attached, three-quarter sleeves and buttons at the back or front as desired. Sizes, 32 to 44 bust. Only about fifteen dozen in the lot.

Irish Linen Blouse Waists, $1.75 to $4.00

Most ladies know full well that these are ridiculously low prices for such exquisite goods. A few weeks ago—even a week ago—they could not be purchased for dollars more. The embroidering in itself is worth the money, and when it is understood these waists formerly sold at from $3.00 to $7.50, an appreciation of their great value may be had. Besides the art needlework on these waists there are lavish pleatings, tuckings, etc. The sleeves are long or short, as preferred, and the buttoning at back or front.

Special in Ladies' Cotton Undervests, 15c. and 20c. Each.

Something catchy in the bargain line for Monday shoppers in the Underwear Department. These vests have short sleeves, high neck and long sleeves. Lace trimmed.
