

The Chronicle,
is published every Friday afternoon, by Lewis W. Fryer & Co. at their Office in MASONIC HALL, back of King-street.
Terms—15s. per annum, or 3s. 6d. if paid in advance.—When sent by mail, 3s. 6d. extra.
By Visiting and Business Cards (plain and ornamental), Landfills, Blanks, and Printing generally, neatly executed.

Weekly Almanach.

APRIL.	In Sun. & Moon. []	In Sun. & Moon. []
29 Saturday	4 54 7 3 2 50 7 10
30 Sunday	4 53 7 3 3 15 8 28
1 Monday	4 51 7 3 3 37 9 29
2 Tuesday	4 49 7 3 4 10 10 8
3 Wednesday	4 47 7 3 4 42 10 48
4 Thursday	4 46 7 3 4 54 11 23
5 Friday	4 44 7 3 5 26 11 57

New Moon, 4th, 2h. 15m.

Public Entertainments.
BANK OF NEW-BRUNSWICK.—Solomon Nichols, Esq. President.—Discount Days, Tuesday and Friday.—Hours of business, from 10 to 3.—Notes for Discount must be left at the Bank before 10 o'clock on the days immediately preceding the Discount days.—Director next week: I. H. DeVeber, Esq.

COMMERCIAL BANK.—Charles Ward, Esq. President.—Discount Days, Tuesday and Friday.—Hours of business, from 10 to 3.—Bills or Notes for Discount must be lodged at the Bank before 10 o'clock on Saturdays and Wednesdays.—Director next week: Thomas Lavitt, Esq.

NEW-BRUNSWICK FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—John M. Willmot, Esq. President.—Office open every day, (Sundays excepted) from 11 to 1 o'clock. [All communications by mail, must be post paid.]

SAYINGS BANK.—Office hours, from 1 to 3 o'clock on Tuesdays.—Cashier and Register, D. Jordan.

MARINE INSURANCE.—I. L. Bedell, Broker. The committee of Underwriters meet every morning at 10 o'clock, (Sundays excepted).

Whiteland.
LOSING AND WINNING.
BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE COTTAGE IN THE OAKS," "SENSIBILITY," &c.

[Continued.]
Until this evening, Mr. Westbury had scarcely seen Miss E. since his marriage. He had avoided seeing her, being anxious to avoid her, and she, on her part, had been equally desirous to avoid him. Her heart had been full of his image, and his sense of rejection had filled her with indignation. She had been so much affected by his indifference, that she had not been able to attend to her usual duties. She had been so much affected by his indifference, that she had not been able to attend to her usual duties. She had been so much affected by his indifference, that she had not been able to attend to her usual duties.

"Je le servirais mieux, si je l'eusse aimé moins."
The first thing to disturb the kind of quiet that Julia enjoyed, was the prospect of another party. One morning, while at the breakfast table, a card was brought from Mr. and Mrs. Parker, who were to be "at home" on Friday evening. After looking at the card, Julia handed it to Mr. Westbury in silence. "It will be proper that we accept the invitation," said Mr. Westbury.

"The remembrance of the agony she endured at the last party she attended, caused Julia's eyes to tremble a little, as she thought of the party. "Just as you think best—but for my own part, I should seldom attend a party for the sake of enjoyment."
Mrs. Westbury thinks it proper to immerse herself in a convent, she said, said Mr. Westbury: "For myself, I feel that society has claims upon me that I wish to discharge."

"I will go if you think there would be the least impropriety in my staying away," said Julia. "I should as soon say, as I think there would," said Mr. Westbury. "Sometimes I am," thought Julia; "what does he mean? Does he refer to my station in society? Or does he fear that the world will think me an ungrateful wife, that wishes to exclude herself from observation?"

In the course of the morning, Julia called on Mrs. Cunningham, and found that lady and her husband discussing the point, whether or not they should attend Mrs. Parker's party. "Are you going, Mrs. Westbury?" asked Mrs. Cunningham. "I am not," said Mrs. Westbury. "Why not?" "I have not time," said Mrs. Westbury. "You are always so busy," said Mrs. Cunningham. "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this."

"One of the first persons Julia distinguished amid the company, as she entered Mrs. Parker's drawing-room, was Mrs. Cunningham, who gave her a nod and an exulting smile, as though she had just seen an old friend. "You look so well," said Mrs. Cunningham. "I have carried the day," said Julia. "You look so well," said Mrs. Cunningham. "I have carried the day," said Julia. "You look so well," said Mrs. Cunningham. "I have carried the day," said Julia.

attention engrossed by any particular individual? "You surely cannot mean that I was particularly attentive to Miss Edon, Lucy?" "Oh, how could you say so?" said Mrs. Cunningham. "You were with a kind of laugh that expressed any thing rather than pleasure or indifference. I really wonder how you came to recollect having seen such a person as Miss Edon in my company."

"Your remark concerning Westbury brought her to my mind," said Mr. Cunningham. "How strange!" said his wife. "And how extreme that young lady's modification must have been, that she could detain two newly-married gentlemen near her for more than an hour and a half at one time!" "Especially, Mr. Cunningham, the company must have thought that you and Westbury were staying with them should do her worst homage."

"And seriously, my dear Lucy," said Mr. Cunningham, "taking the lead of his wife, which she reluctantly permitted him to do—'Seriously, it was merely accidental that I spoke to Miss Edon this evening. There is not a person on earth to whom I would give conversation I am more completely indifferent—to take no offence, love, where none was meant. There is no one whose conversation can compete with me for the loss of yours, and it is one reason why I must dislike those crowds, that, for a time, they necessarily separate us from each other.'"

"The following morning, Mrs. Cunningham called on Mrs. Westbury, when at the moment of her arrival, she happened to be in her chamber—but she instantly descended to receive her visitor. When Mrs. Westbury left the parlour a short time previous her husband was there; but he had disappeared. "You must not be angry," said Mrs. Cunningham. "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this."

"I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this." "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this." "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this."

led with profound melancholy. But when passing from solitude, to solitude, boundless space opens before you, this feeling wears off by degrees, and you experience a secret awe, which, so far from depressing the soul, imparts life, and elevates the genius. Extraordinary appearances everywhere present a land teeming with miracles. The burning sun, the towering eagle, the barren fig-tree, all the poets, all the pictures of Scripture are here. Every name commemorates a mystery, every grove announces a prediction, every hill re-echoes the accents of a prophet. God himself has spoken in these regions, dried up rivers, rent the rocks, and opened the grave. The desert still appears unto us, and you would imagine that it had never ceased to be a desert, since it heard the awful voice of the Eternal."

"I will go if you think there would be the least impropriety in my staying away," said Julia. "I should as soon say, as I think there would," said Mr. Westbury. "Sometimes I am," thought Julia; "what does he mean? Does he refer to my station in society? Or does he fear that the world will think me an ungrateful wife, that wishes to exclude herself from observation?"

In the course of the morning, Julia called on Mrs. Cunningham, and found that lady and her husband discussing the point, whether or not they should attend Mrs. Parker's party. "Are you going, Mrs. Westbury?" asked Mrs. Cunningham. "I am not," said Mrs. Westbury. "Why not?" "I have not time," said Mrs. Westbury. "You are always so busy," said Mrs. Cunningham. "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this."

"I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this." "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this." "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this."

"I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this." "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this." "I have only been trying to convince you how much more comfortable we should be to our friends, than in such a crowd as this."

show his love to his wife, is by gratifying her dress, furniture, company, and so forth. "He must rain himself, then, to show his love," said Mr. Cunningham, throwing his head back on the easy chair, with a mingled expression of mental and bodily pain on his features. "Mrs. Cunningham, however, did not look up to mark the expression of his countenance, but half-uttered in reply to his remark—

"I never knew a man who was too stingy to dress his wife decently, but to excuse himself on the ground of necessity. I do detest to hear a man talk of rain, if his wife only asks for a new pair of shoes." "Mrs. Cunningham was too deeply wounded at the attempt to reply, and Mrs. Cunningham, having uttered something of her discontent in the gentle ebullition, flitted out of the chamber, without even casting a glance toward her sick and now afflicted husband."

[To be continued.]
[FOR THE CHRONICLE.]
THE ASSEMBLY'S VENGEANCE AGAINST WILFUL CONTEMPT.
A MARVELOUS DITTY.
Telling how the House of Assembly was wickedly contemned by Chips the Carpenter, Blunt Jerry, Daring Lancer, Stoney Tipstaff, Jenny Gleaser, and Naughty Georgey, and how the contemners were treated thereof.

All through the town of Fredericton (Exciting great alarm)
At Elman Tree, a town distant six days from Tatta, whose informant was living, he saw in the possession of the Arabs and Jews various articles which had belonged to Mr. Davidson, which he described, and left no doubt as to his identity. Amongst the articles he named a silver watch, a pocket-compass, a sword, three books, a box of medicine, a paper for candy, beads and cyrines, all of which he must have seen, or he could not describe them so correctly. His informant could not give a certain account of the fate of Abo Bolez, the companion of Mr. Davidson, but understood he had gone on with the caravan in which opinion he was borne out by the letter received from Zheek Bey-Tonch.

The lamented decease of this celebrated traveller, at least the seventh African discovery, was very feelingly alluded to by the chairman, R. J. Murchison, Esq. Mr. Davidson has long been known to the public from the account of his travels in Mexico, Egypt, and the Holy Land, and from having delivered lectures on these subjects at several institutions. His loss will be sincerely deplored by a large circle of friends, to whom he was no less endearment from his scientific information than his amiable conduct.

IMPROVED STEAM ENGINE.—An improvement, said to be one of the greatest of the age, has been lately made in England, in the steam engine for propelling boats. The plan of the cylinder is attached to the crank of the shaft of the paddle wheel, and there is a contrivance within the cylinder for the piston to accommodate itself to the motion of the crank. The motion of the piston is effected, and performed without the slightest defect. The boat to which it is attached goes from London to Gravesend. "A saving of considerable power is effected, and the cost of the engine is reduced to nearly or quite half."

LONDON, March 13.—We understand that the King, when informed of the present distress experienced by the silk manufacturers in Southampton, was pleased to direct that a sufficient quantity of silk for fourteen dresses should be immediately completed and forwarded to his Majesty at Windsor Castle.
A numerous meeting of Conservative members was held at Sir Robert Peel's yesterday afternoon, when we understand it was unanimously resolved to offer every legitimate opposition to the Chancellor of the Exchequer's plan for the abolition of Church rates.—Standard.

We have reason to believe that a very great change is contemplated in the Post Office department, and that the Whig Post Master General has fallen at last under the onslaughts of the "Wallace weight." It is also said that the charges for postage are to be much reduced, and that we shall hear more of the matter in the ensuing budget.—Correspondent of the Standard.

A somewhat curious circumstance took place at Keighly Church on Sunday last, during the solemnization of marriage between a lovely couple. On coming to the part in which he says, "until death do part," the bridegroom refused to proceed until the clergyman would answer whether marriage could continue binding till death, since Parliament had put it in the power of the Commissioners, under the new Poor Law Act, to separate man and wife long before that period, and he considered that the marriage service should be amended by inserting "until death, or the Poor Law Commissioners do us part." The minister wished to evade answering by saying he would satisfy him in the vestry afterwards; but all would not do; he persisted in his determination to have the important question decided at the time, and would have gone home as unshackled as he came, if the clergyman had not thought to the contrary, marriage continued now until death.—West Riding Herald.

A ROYAL JOKE.—"Why," says His Majesty (God bless him!) to Bishop Curran, "are the Bishops like too many of our merchant vessels?" The Bishop, after pondering some time, gave it up, observing, "that he knew more of the Church service than he did of merchant vessels;" when the King replied, "Be content, many of them are sent forth that are not seaworthy."—Satirist.

The European population of the Russian empire amounts to 65,000,000.

Great! He carried his arms and his conquests, furniture, company, and so forth. "He must rain himself, then, to show his love," said Mr. Cunningham, throwing his head back on the easy chair, with a mingled expression of mental and bodily pain on his features. "Mrs. Cunningham, however, did not look up to mark the expression of his countenance, but half-uttered in reply to his remark—

"I never knew a man who was too stingy to dress his wife decently, but to excuse himself on the ground of necessity. I do detest to hear a man talk of rain, if his wife only asks for a new pair of shoes." "Mrs. Cunningham was too deeply wounded at the attempt to reply, and Mrs. Cunningham, having uttered something of her discontent in the gentle ebullition, flitted out of the chamber, without even casting a glance toward her sick and now afflicted husband."

[To be continued.]
[FOR THE CHRONICLE.]
THE ASSEMBLY'S VENGEANCE AGAINST WILFUL CONTEMPT.
A MARVELOUS DITTY.
Telling how the House of Assembly was wickedly contemned by Chips the Carpenter, Blunt Jerry, Daring Lancer, Stoney Tipstaff, Jenny Gleaser, and Naughty Georgey, and how the contemners were treated thereof.

All through the town of Fredericton (Exciting great alarm)
At Elman Tree, a town distant six days from Tatta, whose informant was living, he saw in the possession of the Arabs and Jews various articles which had belonged to Mr. Davidson, which he described, and left no doubt as to his identity. Amongst the articles he named a silver watch, a pocket-compass, a sword, three books, a box of medicine, a paper for candy, beads and cyrines, all of which he must have seen, or he could not describe them so correctly. His informant could not give a certain account of the fate of Abo Bolez, the companion of Mr. Davidson, but understood he had gone on with the caravan in which opinion he was borne out by the letter received from Zheek Bey-Tonch.

The lamented decease of this celebrated traveller, at least the seventh African discovery, was very feelingly alluded to by the chairman, R. J. Murchison, Esq. Mr. Davidson has long been known to the public from the account of his travels in Mexico, Egypt, and the Holy Land, and from having delivered lectures on these subjects at several institutions. His loss will be sincerely deplored by a large circle of friends, to whom he was no less endearment from his scientific information than his amiable conduct.

IMPROVED STEAM ENGINE.—An improvement, said to be one of the greatest of the age, has been lately made in England, in the steam engine for propelling boats. The plan of the cylinder is attached to the crank of the shaft of the paddle wheel, and there is a contrivance within the cylinder for the piston to accommodate itself to the motion of the crank. The motion of the piston is effected, and performed without the slightest defect. The boat to which it is attached goes from London to Gravesend. "A saving of considerable power is effected, and the cost of the engine is reduced to nearly or quite half."

LONDON, March 13.—We understand that the King, when informed of the present distress experienced by the silk manufacturers in Southampton, was pleased to direct that a sufficient quantity of silk for fourteen dresses should be immediately completed and forwarded to his Majesty at Windsor Castle.

A numerous meeting of Conservative members was held at Sir Robert Peel's yesterday afternoon, when we understand it was unanimously resolved to offer every legitimate opposition to the Chancellor of the Exchequer's plan for the abolition of Church rates.—Standard.

We have reason to believe that a very great change is contemplated in the Post Office department, and that the Whig Post Master General has fallen at last under the onslaughts of the "Wallace weight." It is also said that the charges for postage are to be much reduced, and that we shall hear more of the matter in the ensuing budget.—Correspondent of the Standard.

A somewhat curious circumstance took place at Keighly Church on Sunday last, during the solemnization of marriage between a lovely couple. On coming to the part in which he says, "until death do part," the bridegroom refused to proceed until the clergyman would answer whether marriage could continue binding till death, since Parliament had put it in the power of the Commissioners, under the new Poor Law Act, to separate man and wife long before that period, and he considered that the marriage service should be amended by inserting "until death, or the Poor Law Commissioners do us part." The minister wished to evade answering by saying he would satisfy him in the vestry afterwards; but all would not do; he persisted in his determination to have the important question decided at the time, and would have gone home as unshackled as he came, if the clergyman had not thought to the contrary, marriage continued now until death.—West Riding Herald.

A ROYAL JOKE.—"Why," says His Majesty (God bless him!) to Bishop Curran, "are the Bishops like too many of our merchant vessels?" The Bishop, after pondering some time, gave it up, observing, "that he knew more of the Church service than he did of merchant vessels;" when the King replied, "Be content, many of them are sent forth that are not seaworthy."—Satirist.

The European population of the Russian empire amounts to 65,000,000.

APPROPRIATIONS MADE DURING THE LAST SESSION OF THE PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE.

Table with columns for item description, amount, and balance. Includes sections for 'SCHEDULE 1. A. LEGISLATURE' and 'SCHEDULE 1. B. REVENUE'.

Table with columns for item description, amount, and balance. Includes 'SCHEDULE 1. B. REVENUE' and 'SCHEDULE 4. D. PACKETS & COURIERS'.

Table with columns for item description, amount, and balance. Includes 'SCHEDULE 4. D. PACKETS & COURIERS' and 'SCHEDULE 5. E. LAW SALARIES'.

Table with columns for item description, amount, and balance. Includes 'SCHEDULE 5. E. LAW SALARIES' and 'SCHEDULE 6. F. EDUCATION'.

Table with columns for item description, amount, and balance. Includes 'SCHEDULE 6. F. EDUCATION' and 'SCHEDULE 7. G. PUBLIC BUILDINGS'.

Table with columns for item description, amount, and balance. Includes 'SCHEDULE 7. G. PUBLIC BUILDINGS' and 'SCHEDULE 8. H. MISCELLANEOUS'.

Table with columns for item description, amount, and balance. Includes 'SCHEDULE 8. H. MISCELLANEOUS' and 'SCHEDULE 9. I. MISCELLANEOUS'.

Table with columns for item description, amount, and balance. Includes 'SCHEDULE 9. I. MISCELLANEOUS' and 'SCHEDULE 10. J. MISCELLANEOUS'.

The complaints of the Canadians were not the complaints of a minority, they came before the House as a whole. The noble Lord agreed that the best way of governing Ireland was to let her have her own way...

Among the propositions that will be brought forward by the Government, there is one, the importance of which may possibly escape notice, but which if carried into effect would be of great benefit to the industrial classes generally...

It is well known that labour, in a new country, is the greatest desideratum. It is the life of civilization, and is very greatly productive than it is in the old countries of Europe. Every party of emigrants, therefore, who go out to settle in a new country, are in a sense, the life of the country...

London, March 17.—The Church Rates Abolition Bill has already undergone a second reading in the House of Commons, and its fate is not yet determined. In our view it shall be able to do so in the course of the week...

We observe in the Paris Papers of Wednesday that the Home Minister had presented the Law demanding Two Millions of Francs for the Secret Service Money. He explained the demand by the necessity of keeping down the deficit, and containing the plots of assassination.

Lady Canning, we regret to say, died on Wednesday last. Lady Canning, we regret to say, died on Wednesday last. Lady Canning, we regret to say, died on Wednesday last.

The Duchess of Kent has ordered a sufficient quantity of silk to be sent to her dresses, manufactory in Spitalfields as it is her Royal Highness's wish that she should be supplied with the same to be made up for her by the weavers in Spitalfields.

On Wednesday the 19th ult. the following young gentlemen, Pupils at the HERRINGTON ACADEMY, received silver medals, which they had earned in the last semi-annual examination, presented to them by John Hunter, Esquire—Mr. R. A. HULL, as superior Arithmetic; Mr. P. M. HULL, as superior Algebra; Mr. B. D. HULL, as superior Geometry.

On Wednesday the 19th ult. the following young gentlemen, Pupils at the HERRINGTON ACADEMY, received silver medals, which they had earned in the last semi-annual examination, presented to them by John Hunter, Esquire...

THE CHRONICLE.

SAINT JOHN, APRIL 28, 1837.

REPORT FROM THE DELEGATES. The report of the Delegates has been presented to the Assembly, and is a most interesting and valuable document.

It appears that the Delegates tried very hard to get the amount reduced, and after a few additional amendments had been proposed, they were successful in having it fixed at £14,500 currency. To justify their having agreed to so large a sum, Mr. Wilton in his letter to Mr. Brown writes, "they have a large sum of money which we wish to get, and if we give them a little more than we think they ought to have—we must consider it a gift pro tanto."

On Wednesday the 19th ult. the following young gentlemen, Pupils at the HERRINGTON ACADEMY, received silver medals, which they had earned in the last semi-annual examination, presented to them by John Hunter, Esquire...

On Wednesday the 19th ult. the following young gentlemen, Pupils at the HERRINGTON ACADEMY, received silver medals, which they had earned in the last semi-annual examination, presented to them by John Hunter, Esquire...

On Wednesday the 19th ult. the following young gentlemen, Pupils at the HERRINGTON ACADEMY, received silver medals, which they had earned in the last semi-annual examination, presented to them by John Hunter, Esquire...

