DISASTROUS STORM IN KING'S COUNTY

Hurricane of Hail Cuts Crops Down

Buckwheat Fields in Its Wake Totally Destroyed

Potatoes Cut to the Ground—Window Glass in Penobscot Churches Smashed and Many Houses Suffer Similarly—Ice Came Down the Size of Marbles for Half an Hour.

Penobscot, July 25.—The crops in this section of Kings county were seriously damaged in a severe hail storm which swept across the valley at 1 o'clock to 1 1/2, leveling growing crops, breaking windows and leaving disaster in its wake.

The hailstones were of remarkable size, averaging about like hazel nuts, while some rivaled marbles.

The brittle buckwheat stalks were cut down to the ground and potatoes were the same fate on some farms.

Daniel Robinson estimates the damage to crops on his farm alone will be $800, that in this vicinity the loss will amount in the thousands of dollars.

The storm came up from the northwest, beginning at 1 o'clock and raging furiously for half an hour.

It was the worst storm seen in the valley for many years and the size of the hailstones has never been equalled.

Head of Employes Brotherhood Declares Strike is Imminent

Union Will Issue Ultimatum to Management, and if Demands Are Not Acceded to, 2,000 Men Will Quit.

Halifax, July 27.—Two thousand employes of the Intercolonial railway threaten to go on strike and to stop the entire system between Montreal and Halifax unless their demands for increased pay and an adjustment of their grievances are granted.

Mr. Mosher stated that for several days past conferences between union officials and General Manager Gutelius have been going on at Moncton, and as a result of the refusal of the new manager of the clerks and freight handlers' demands the union will at once send an ultimatum to the general manager.

Copies of the ultimatum will also be sent to Premier Borden and the minister of railways.

Mr. Mosher also states that Mr. Gutelius wanted 500 men "cut out" from shipping in any way in the negotiations, which the union officials refused to agree to.

President Mosher says a vote has already been taken in favor of a strike unless their demands are agreed to.

CANADIAN RIFLEMAN IN THE KING'S PRIZE

Private Hawkins, of Toronto, the Man

Landed the Coveted Trophy By One Point with Score of 330—Was Thirtieth Man on the Dominion Team But Others Dropping Out Gave Him a Chance to Go to Bisley.

Bisley Camp, July 25.—Private Hawkins of Canada, today won the King's Prize for rifle shooting, carrying with it the National Rifle Association's gold medal and gold badge and $1,200 in cash.

Private Hawkins' aggregate was 890 points out of a possible of 900.

Sergeant Ommundsen, a Scottish territorial, was the winner of both the silver and bronze medals.

The scene on the ranges was highly diverting. Blessed with a fine afternoon, a large company had assembled on the ranges.

During the early part of the last stage the main body of the crowd gathered round Ommundsen. His two magpies in the early portion of the score caused his supporters to look doubtful, especially as news came along that lower down the range a Canadian had settled down to plaster the target with bullets.

The crowd quickly shifted its position and assembled round Hawkins. The excitement was intense, when he wanted a bull on his last shot to make himself secure, a great cheer arose directly the indicator appeared in the bottom right hand corner.

Directly he had got the shot Hawkins pulled out his pipe. He was heartily congratulated by Lord Chelmsford, General Sir Douglas Haig, commander at Aldershot, and by the Duke of Devonshire.

The valuable perchon stallion seized some days ago by customs officers, is still held here.

Moncton, July 27.—Henry C. LeBlanc, aged 37, son of Cyrille LeBlanc, of St. Mary's, Kent county, was drowned this morning in the new city reservoir, about four miles out of the McLaughlin Road.

LeBlanc and two companions went into the reservoir, bathing, neither being aware that the water was not deep and the men were simply wading around when LeBlanc fell into a deep hole made by the removal of a stump and sank.

On the way out Mr. Tuttle's horse became frightened at a derrick on the side of the road, and broke some part of the harness or wagon. Mr. Tuttle jumped out and in the excitement of trying to hold the horse he was suddenly stricken with paralysis.

The right side is paralyzed and the patient is in a semi-conscious condition, being unable to walk straight at all.

Mr. Tuttle is about 60 years of age, and the outcome of his serious illness may not be known for a few days.

CHAUFFEUR HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR WOMAN'S INJURIES

Long Arm of Law Reaches from St. Stephen to Chatham for Driver of Car Which Struck Carriage—St. John Police Notified.

Saturday, July 26. The police here were notified yesterday to look out for an automobile and its driver, which collided with a carriage near St. Stephen on Tuesday, demolishing the vehicle, seriously injuring Mrs. Dow, of St. Stephen, one of the occupants, and also hurting her two children, who were in it.

The number of the automobile was given to the chief of police, Messrs. Marshall Gibson, of St. Stephen, and the license number showed it as belonging to a man named Moran, he said. It has been found that the automobile passed through St. John and it is expected that it will be located at Chatham today.

According to the story of the affair, the chauffeur, because nothing further in the way of construction can be done till the crossovers and other parts ordered come to hand, which is not expected by Mr. M. Hopper, general manager of the company, till late in the month of August.

Those interested in the extension and in the advancement of this section generally feel there has been unnecessary delay, and point out that with the summer half gone already, there seems little likelihood of the cars going even as far as Kane's Corner in time for any benefit this season.

(Staff Correspondent of Toronto Globe.) Charlottetown, P. E. I., July 28.—The fox men of this city are somewhat exercised over the large importation of foxes which are arriving here from various parts of the Dominion, mainly from the west and north.

Mr. Tuttle is about 60 years of age, and the outcome of his serious illness may not be known for a few days.

Another step forward toward the completion of the street railway track to Kane's Corner, was made yesterday when the diamond crossing for the line arrived in St. John and was unloaded by the company.

This, however, will do little toward hastening the time when the new track will be operated, because nothing further in the way of construction can be done till the crossovers and other parts ordered come to hand, which is not expected by Mr. M. Hopper, general manager of the company, till late in the month of August.

REPUBLICANS FIGHT EVERY ITEM

Democrats Vote Solid Against Every Amendment

Many Lively Exchanges During Which the Stand Paters Profess Great Sympathy for the Farmers, Whose Interests They Claim are Being Sacrificed.

Washington, July 28.—Senator Williams, of Mississippi, in the tariff debate today, said that the Democrats had found it difficult to deal logically with the tariff because the industrial conditions had been placed on high stilts by years of Republican protection.

This prompted Senator Cummins to ask why the Democrats had not cut off a little of both stilted legs "instead of leaving the industrial body crippled with the manufacturing leg longer than the agricultural leg."

Senator Williams replied that they were "afraid it would kill the poor thing to walk straight all at once."

Senator Bristow, discussing an alleged discrepancy in a duty on potato starch with none on potatoes, asked Senator Williams why the Democrats put a duty on rice and not on potatoes.

Senator Williams said the reason was that the Republicans had begun to hot-house rice and the Democrats could not take all the duty off at once, and further that rice was not such an "every day food as potatoes."

"Why do you put a duty on bananas?" Senator Bristow asked.

"First," said Senator Williams, "because it is not a basic article of food, and second, because the banana trade of this country is absolutely controlled by the United Fruit Company, which is also buying up the banana lands abroad."

Senator Bristow finally declared that in the pending bill the Democrats had deliberately and outrageously discriminated against the farmer in favor of the manufacturer.

"Does the senator mean to say," asked Senator Williams, "that the Democrats of the house and senate deliberately got up a scheme to injure the American farmer?"

"I would not want to attribute to the senator from Mississippi any such a repulsive and unworthy purpose," replied Senator Bristow, "but I say they have framed a bill which does."

Amendments Voted Down.

An amendment by Senator Bristow to reduce the proposed duty on dextrine made from potato starch from one and a half cents per pound to one cent was rejected by a vote of 29 to 46. Senators Brandegee, Oliver and Lodge of the minority voted with the Democrats.

An amendment by Senator Burton to strike off the duty of ten cents per pound and the duties on gentian, licorice root and sarsaparilla root were also rejected.

A roll call was demanded on a Burton amendment to strike off the duty of one cent a pound on citrate of lime on the ground that it was raw material.

An amendment by Senator Burton to strike off the duty of ten cents per pound and the duties on gentian, licorice root and sarsaparilla root were also rejected.

"Are you going to vote for it now?" asked Senator Bristow.

"No, because I am going to support the view of the majority," said Senator Reed.

"Then you believe in caucus legislation?"

"No," Senator Reed replied, "but I do believe in supporting a policy which all have agreed upon. If I would vote for nothing except what I favored I would have to write the whole bill. But there is a cause that is far more binding than any other, and that is the organization of the interests which have controlled and financed and for years made a cast-paw of the Republican party."

"And your party has written a bill," Senator Bristow hotly rejoined, "which is more for the benefit of these interests than any tariff bill ever presented. It places on the free list articles of independent manufacture and protects those manufactured by the trusts."

When the senate adjourned hours of anxious but delayed progress in the chemical schedule so that less than ten paragraphs had been approved during the day.

YOUNG GREEK DROWNED AT FREDERICTON

Went in Bathing, Lost Hold on Log and Sank, Being Unable to Swim.

Fredericton, July 27.—(Special.)—Nikolaos Athalokis, a young Greek, aged 19, employed in construction on the St. John & Quebec Railway, was drowned this afternoon near the Victoria Mill, while bathing. He was unable to swim.

With other laborers he went in bathing. He went out some distance from the shore, the others being nearer the bank of the river. He lost his hold on a log and sank. The body after being in the water half an hour was recovered. Dr. S. F. A. Wainwright, coroner, viewed the body, and gave permission for burial.

Grading of butter and other food-stuffs on sale in the country market may be considered by the board of health in consequence of complaints from citizens that they find great difficulty in distinguishing the good from the bad in making their purchases.

In larger cities it is part of the duties of a market inspector to grade the butter on sale and to impose fines or confiscate the produce when it is improperly graded or its merits misrepresented.

Although the market clerk has authority to order out anything offensive which may be offered for sale in the market it is no part of his duty here to prevent the sale of "rancid or unwholesome butter and if he had the necessary qualifications and were empowered to mark the different grades it would be found very convenient for the citizens.

Work of This Pest Is Province Wide

Curator of Natural History Museum, Home from Trip. Tells of Ravages of Spruce Bud Worm.

An insect pest, which this year has appeared in disastrous numbers, is now ravaging throughout the province. The Spruce Bud Worm is denuding of their foliage, spruce, hemlock and fir in all portions of New Brunswick. This pest, which is a little greenish-brown caterpillar, is so small that its work was hardly noticeable. It is thought that the peculiar climatic conditions during the winter have nursed the breeding of this insect to such an extent that the timber lands of the province are at the present in great jeopardy.

Wm. McIntosh, the curator of the Natural History museum, who returned on Saturday from his tour through the province with the Better Farming Coaches, says that the whole territory has suffered from the pest. This year's growth has been nothing amazing. At the present stage nothing can be done to rid the pest, and horticulturists and farmers are awaiting eagerly for the next season to hope that nature will take her own course in controlling the number of the enemy, until moderation or perhaps complete extinction.

From Edmundston down the valley to St. John, any observant person will notice that the tops of the spruce, fir and hemlocks are all blackened, as though they were scorched by a forest fire. This peculiar destruction of trees is the work of the spruce bud worm. The insect is a little greenish-brown caterpillar, which is not reproduced until the following season, thus putting back the growth one year for each time they are demolished. It is made very easy for the insect to destroy the tree or inflict very serious injury by devouring these buds.

The little worms gnaw the buds or needles close to the twig, separating them. Their presence is seldom noticed unless they appear in such numbers as now, when the tops of the trees are denuded of all foliage. About a week ago these two into the pupa stage and in a few days later they emerged in the adult form, this being a little brown-colored moth measuring about three-quarters of an inch across. Specimens of these are numerous at the present time about the air lights in the city. The egg hatches in the fall. The caterpillar remains during the winter in a partly grown state.

It is common to obtain celery seed low in germinating power and lower still in vitality. A test planting should be made under soil conditions, and seed discarded if not what it should be. The best seed loses its vitality in a few weeks.

The seedlings may be grown in flats in the greenhouse or in the hotbed. The seed for the early crop should be sown about the middle of February, and for the late crop about four weeks later.

The soil for the seed flat should be fine and clean, with little turf. Seeds must be covered lightly and never allowed to dry during the early period. The seedlings should appear in a fortnight. They are delicate at the start and require a careful attention as any plants grown for the garden.

There are two methods of handling seedlings prior to planting in the field. 1.—The plants are allowed to grow in the seedbed until ready to transplant to the field. 2.—When the plants become one inch high, they are pricked off in flats or hotbeds about one or two inches apart each way. This extra handling is a great consumer of time, but usually pays in that plants so handled develop stronger root systems, with the result that the plants receive a very slight check and few are lost when set in the field.

Celery is set in the field in single rows, double rows or solid beds. For commercial work, where horse labor is to be chiefly employed, the single row system is generally followed. These rows are about five feet apart and plants set five or six inches apart in the rows.

Good seed is essential to good celery. It is common to obtain celery seed low in germinating power and lower still in vitality. A test planting should be made under soil conditions, and seed discarded if not what it should be. The best seed loses its vitality in a few weeks.

HE WENT DOWN, AND WAS CRY OF WOULD-BE RESCUERS WHEED WHEN GEORGE AKERLEY DROWNED

Popular Young Man Swam into Marsh Creek at Head of Courtney Bay and Threw Off Bruce Addison who Would Have Saved Him—Sank Suddenly while Swimming with Powerful Stroke.

Monday, July 29.—After a strenuous but futile effort had been made to keep him from going into the water, George Akereley, aged twenty-two, of 288 Brunswick street, plunged to his death on Saturday night in the waters of Courtney Bay, near the foot of Hanover street. Friends believed that the man had become mentally deranged, and as he waded into the tide, Robert Bruce Addison, who had been after him, as far up as his arms, and tried to grapple with the man before he got beyond his depth. He was thrown back, however, and with trousers and shirt still on, Akereley launched out boldly into deep water. About two hundred yards from shore he suddenly threw up his arms and sank. He never came up again. About an hour later, when the tide had receded, his body was found about a dozen yards from where he sank. Coroner Berryman decided it unnecessary to hold an inquest.

With Frank O'Brien and John Merrick, Akereley went down to the shore, and the letter expressed an intention of going in for a swim. He had a few drinks and his companions tried their best to dissuade him, but it was useless. He threw off his clothing and was just about to enter the water when Addison happened along. He grappled with the man, and even began to grapple with him, because he feared that the man was not wholly sane and capable of looking after himself. Akereley became irritable, and being a much abler and younger man, he threw Addison off.

With his shirt and trousers on, he started to wade in, saying that he was going to bathe his feet. Addison noticed that he was going out quite far and rushed after him. Akereley appeared to be in a state of frenzy. He turned and laughed at the man who was attempting to rescue him and struggled to keep out of his reach. When both were about their arms, Akereley struck out, in a graceful and easy stroke, in a powerful and easy stroke. He was inclined to be angry with himself for having gone so far, and he went to his home to change his clothing. He had just completed the change when his little son rushed into the house crying: "He went down, dad," in a very excited voice.

The affair has cast a gloom over the community. The committee of the League is making arrangements to have a service on Wednesday and tomorrow evening for the benefit of the bereaved family, and it is expected that the St. Mary's Band, of which the deceased was once a member, will play tonight, and that the Sons of England Band, which he also belonged to, will play tomorrow night.

Some expenses which Akereley swam from the shore and took a tramp, but just why he sank so suddenly will never be known.

BABIES' HOSPITAL NOW BE CONSIDERED IN NEW BUILDING

Provincial Doctor Says Special Section for Infants is Advisable

TEN COMMANDMENTS

Committee of Workers in Boston Issue Instructions to Young Mothers— Babies Die as Result of Ignorant Treatment Rather Than from Wilful Neglect.

Friday, July 25.—Health of the babies has always been a source of worry, and attention to mothers, particularly in this time of the year, when the liability of fatal complaints is ever present, and it is estimated that a hundred babies are harmed by the ignorant care of their mothers for every one injured by neglect.

Many of the prominent doctors of Montreal have come to the conclusion that what is needed in that city is a hospital devoted exclusively to the care of babies from three weeks to twenty months old, and they believe that the infant mortality in that city is due to a rule children's hospitals will refuse to take children in so young without their mothers, and it means that either the mothers will have to leave their babies to the care of their mothers, or the babies will die.

Although the situation in St. John is not quite so extreme as in some of the larger cities, one of the local doctors, in speaking of the hospital, said that if a new hospital were erected here, to have a portion of it set apart for the care of infants, it would be a great benefit to the infant mortality in the city. Since the institution of the children's ward in the General Public Hospital, a great deal of good work has been done for children, but the opinion has been expressed that a section given over to the care of infants would show far better results.

In order to reduce the death rate among the babies in Boston, a committee of workers in that city, who have organized and they draw up the following ten commandments for mothers:

1. Do not give your baby any medicine unless you possibly can.
2. Do not give the baby any medicine except on the advice of the doctor.
3. Do not have a doctor who prescribes chalk mixtures or opium mixtures for your baby's diarrhoea.
4. Do not let flies get near the baby or the baby's milk.
5. Do not let flies get near the baby or the baby's milk.
6. Do not let flies get near the baby or the baby's milk.
7. Do not let flies get near the baby or the baby's milk.
8. Do not let flies get near the baby or the baby's milk.
9. Do not let flies get near the baby or the baby's milk.
10. Do not let flies get near the baby or the baby's milk.

HOUSE AS IMPORTANT AS FOOD TO POULTRY

In Fact Seems First Essential to Success, Many Making Costly Mistakes.

MULTITUDE OF FACTORS.
Fresh Air, Temperature, Freedom From Draughts, Security, Coet and Weat.

(By J. Harry Wolsiefer, Poultry Judge, in New York Sun.)
Contrary to the general belief that breed or feed is the first essential in successful poultry raising, after some fifteen years' experience, both on a small and large scale, we have realized that proper quarters are the first essential in making poultry a successful venture.

A large number of poultry failures have been caused by poorly constructed poultry buildings, more so in the past than during the present age, in which poultry success has been made wonderful progress, thanks to the Maine experiment station, which first gave wide publicity to the curtain front house and afterwards followed by experiments in housing by the different experiment stations throughout the country. And yet, with the good advice that is so freely given by the various and poultry press, one sees many spent in housing that is far from giving the proper results and costing double the amount which it should.

With the ever increasing price of lumber, the average poultry raiser is in no position to experiment. Poultry, young or old, do their best when in perfect health. All throughout the country there can be seen flocks that are not in the best of condition, and naturally not earning the money by steady egg production that they should. In winter flocks have been kept properly, but owing to neglect, they have not produced winter eggs. Whole flocks have been put out of commission by colds followed by the dreaded roup. To avoid this, much thought should be put on the question of poultry housing. "Hobbies" are good things to ride at times, experiments are in order with the up to date poultry raiser, but the basic principle of hygiene should be the advice first of the experiment stations, especially in the States in which they live, who know conditions, and the writings of those who have been through the mill and have made good. The average poultry house is either too low or too high, often not wide enough, more often draughty, and all, poorly ventilated.

Most beginners seem to be afraid of fresh air, and heat seems to be uppermost in their minds, with the result of the all glass front, a house which when struck by the sun rays is hot, and at night is cold and damp, the latter being a particularly injurious condition.

There are many styles of good houses advocated by the experiment stations and the leading breeders, but for the average beginner perhaps nothing is so handy, economical and practical as the shed roof house. These can be made to fit almost anywhere in the back yard in the city, on the outskirts or in the farms, and the big commercial plants have found them to be the best. In building one do not make the mistake of constructing it too small or too high. They should be at least 8 by 8 ft. in the front and from 4 to 5 feet in the rear, to allow sufficient room to stand inside, while attending the chicks or broilers, or to allow the birds to be obtained in a house of this size, the low house being very hot during the spring and summer months. The sills should be placed on the east side, as most of the summer storms come from the west. It also gives added ventilation in summer. The house is boarded on the north, east and west, and covered with some of the commercial paper, or ply.

The roof should be covered with amite roofing, or some pebbled roofing that is not hot in the summer and requires no painting. A one inch mesh wire netting can be placed on the outside of the openings, and the curtains are placed to protect the fowls from vermin and keep sparrows from entering the house.

For the poultry, raise on a larger scale the same style of house will prove successful, adding more depth: 14 and 16 feet deep are popular. If 14 feet wide it should be 10 feet high, and if 16 feet wide it should be 12 feet high, as the 7 ft. front allows the winter sun on the shortest days in December to reach the rear of the house, if 16 feet wide. 9 1/2 feet high will allow the sun to penetrate to the rear sill. Always make the openings for the main frames high enough to the plate rail, which allows good light to enter, and plenty sunlight. Make the opening 9 inches wide, which will allow one inch on the outside to tack a three foot wire netting, and the frame should be made in such a way that it can be placed over a 10 or 12 foot deep area, and will accommodate muslin just a yard wide. This saves sewing of waste of muslin.

The house can be as long as the poultry keeper wishes, 20, 40, 60 or 100 feet. If over 60 feet long, it should be placed every 20 feet on one side of the house, and the other side of the house should be placed on a platform, and drinking fountains, so the litter will not get into the house. The permanent houses should have board floors.

The best floor, however, when properly constructed and handled right, is concrete. Board floors are hard to clean and always get dirty and draughty, and are costly in the long run. The best pine floor has but a short life, and to make it rat-proof is expensive. In laying the floor, it is best to give six or seven inches of cinders or stone, five to one, as a base. Before setting the floor, lay a layer of brush grass tar over the surface. Then lay the finish concrete three or four to one. This makes an ideal floor, rat proof, easy to clean and which will last indefinitely. It is given by the various and poultry press, and a half inch of dirt and six inches of litter make a floor hard to surpass.

But poultry should never be allowed to be on the bare ground, and a covering of sand or dirt and litter. In all poultry construction, the aim should be to purchase materials that are cheap, but good enough to last several years, without repairs. It is false economy to try to build so cheaply that the upkeep after the first year or so eats into the profits of the poultry plant. It is always a paying proposition to have the poultry quarters up to date, and all things considered, it is one of the first essentials in making poultry a paying venture.

More Trainmen Laid Off.
Moncton, July 28.—Six more brakemen and three conductors of the I. C. R. received notice yesterday. The brakemen are sent home, which means that they are practically dismissed, while the conductors Daniel Sullivan, James Melanson and John Cochrane are to follow. Railway men are very indignant and something is being done to get the matter straightened out in a few days.

The question of a strike is being talked about, but they intend to wait until the grand lodge officers arrive. They intend holding an indignation meeting, it is said, at which the dismissal of H. P. Brady, general superintendent, will be asked for. They intend to send a petition to Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of railways.

An unconfirmed report is being circulated to the effect that thirty firemen will be laid off from the fire department. There is nothing new today in the clerk's situation, and I. C. R. officials refer to talk about Mr. Mosher's statement to increase the clerk's salary to $22.00 a month, and laborers ten cents a day.

D. Pottinger, former general manager of the I. C. R., is residing at the Cape. For the summer and in the fall will go to Ottawa to take up his residence there.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clayton Rich, of Forest avenue, Portland, Maine, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Louise Taylor, formerly of St. Stephen, New Brunswick, to Alexander Stuart Donald, of Moncton (N. B.), the wedding to take place at an early date.

East St. John and the territory around Courtney Bay is a veritable land of artesian wells and almost every house in that section of the country has one of these wells in connection. A little over a year ago one of the best machines was brought here from St. George and since its advent three others have made their appearance. The wells are bored to a depth of from 40 to 100 feet into the solid rock and with very few exceptions, good clear water has been secured. The boring machines were so successful in going through rock in this section that a number of them have been procured by the Courtney Construction Company and are now used for drilling for blasting.

A six months' old bull calf purchased by J. A. Floyd & Sons, of Central Northumberland county, from the Allendale stock farm at Hampton, which has already reached a weight of 370 pounds, has helped to open the eyes of the farmers in that section regarding the results which can be attained in stock raising in New Brunswick. The animal, which is pure Ayrshire, is an exceptionally fine one, and will be used for breeding purposes.

Mr. Floyd, like most of his neighbors, has been using Holstein stock largely for dairy purposes, but he has decided that Ayrshires are better adapted to the conditions here, the grading is not so easy as the original Holstein type was accustomed to.

Rev. Edwin Smith and family, late of Chipman, left for their new home in Macleod, Alberta, Saturday afternoon. Previous to leaving Chipman Mr. Smith's congregation arranged a surprise party at the manse, where a very pleasant evening was spent. After refreshments were served, Isaac Fraser, clerk of session, called Mr. and Mrs. Smith to the front, and in a very appropriate address praised long enough to present them a purse of $100, two $50 bills, in token of the esteem in which you are held, and family are held, and of the love of individual hearts. Appropriate addresses were also made by Isaac Baird, Charles G. Baird, Thomas Baird, and Alexander Turner. Mr. Smith made an appropriate reply, and thanked the congregation for their kind words and successful gathering, bidding the pastor and his family an affectionate adieu, and would never forget their kindness and hospitality. After singing God Be With You Till We Meet Again, the congregation dispersed, bidding the pastor and his family an affectionate adieu, and would never forget their kindness and hospitality.

Issues Ultimatum
TO I. C. R. MANAGER
General Manager Gutelius wanted to give less than 6 per cent, but wanted 12 per cent, and wanted to take away some of the privileges they now enjoy, just the same as he took away from the trainmen. It is only of recent date that train conductors were put back to brakemen and other unfair changes made. In many cases that were partially deserving, he offered less than nothing.

Among the grievances we wished changed was the establishing of a maximum day, so that the men would not be compelled to work 15 to 20 hours a day, and only receive a day's pay for it, and the question of overtime pay. Among the privileges that Mr. Gutelius threatened to take away was the time and a half allowance and public holidays. Then followed his request for 500 men to be ruled from the organization. This was nothing less than an effort to disrupt the organization. It should be borne in mind that the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, incorporated under Dominion law, is the only organization of railway men in Canada, purely Canadian, the others all being affiliated with American organizations.

We did everything possible to meet the management in fixing up the rules, anticipating that they would meet the men on the wage question. They had expected Gutelius would be more liberal, as he had made promises to that effect. The "deadlock" came on the matter of ruling out five hundred members of the organization. This was on Saturday afternoon at Moncton, and because of the refusal of the men to

No educational progress in any city or town in Canada is worth anything unless it is in the hands of the schools for work in English by young men and women from whatever nation they come whose children will be as much a part of the nation as the generation as any proud son of U. E. L. origin. Only in this way can they be made an asset instead of a problem.

Cut a slice of four oranges two sliced bananas and one and a half cups of sugar. Put the mixture in a bowl with a good lump of ice. Let it stand for an hour or so, and then add a pint of carbonated water.

IMMIGRANTS IN CANADA; FACES OF FOREIGN BIRTH

Facts of the Year 1912 Presented in Pictorial and Striking Form.

Every fourth person one meets in Canada has come to the dominion within the past ten years. A train or a visitor to any city from coast to coast if he has his eyes open is sure to be impressed with the number of faces of many different nations settled in this continent. This continent has become the great melting pot of the nations and the government reports show that representatives of ninety different nations settled in Canada in 1912. In that year the number who came from the British Isles was 146,869 and from the United States
