CHRISTIES OFFER HOTEL TO CITY

Excessive Cost of Lighting Creates Storm of Protest

WOULD AID FINANCE BIG HOTEL

Charles and Al Christie, Movie Magnates, Write City Friend of Plan.

BOTH "OLD BOYS"

Desire To Boost Home Town Prompts Brothers To Make Offer.

Charles and Al Christie, the London old boys who have become millionaires in the moving picture industry, have offered to take a hand in the financing of the proposed new London hotel.

In a letter to a well known Londoner a few days ago, the two brothers state that they are willing to take an active interest in the erection of a new hotel in their home town. They say they are quite willing to supply some capital themselves and also to take part in the organization work in connection with raising the money needed.

The letter will be brought to the immediate attention of the city council at the earliest opportunity. The need for a new hotel in London has been recognized for many years now and just lately the chamber of commerce and the city council have been active in a scheme to make this a possibility in the near future.

Several firms who specialize in building hotels have been consulted in the matter and approached as to costs. The offer of the Christies puts a new color on the situation and brings new hope to the men who have been working for a new hotel here.

In this letter, which is written to a personal friend of the Christies, the brothers say they realize how much London needs an hotel, if it is to take its rightful place. They will be glad, they say, to take their share in the financing.

The man who received this letter, and who knows the brothers well, says he thinks that they would do things on a large and generous scale.

REGARDS POLAR FLIGHT AS GAMBLE WITH DEATH

ROUTE TAKEN BY ARCTIC AVIATORS.

The above map shows the route taken by the Amundsen-Ellsworth part, in their flight to the North Pole from Spitzbergen. Some authorities think the party may have gone on to Alaska after visiting the pole, and the dotted line on the above map indicates the route probably taken if Amundsen decided to go to Alaska.

Captain Felix Riesenberg, Famous Arctic Expert, Visualizes Hazards, and Then Success, of the Amundsen-Ellsworth Expedition Now in Far North—Attempt To Fly To Top of World Compresses Age of Achievement Into Single Moment,, Relying For Success On Combination of Courage, Ambition and Science.

Captain Felix Riesenberg, navigator of Walter Wellman's airship America in the first attempt to reach the pole by dirigible, has written for The Advertiser this graphic account of the Amundsen-Ellsworth flight. He explains: "Assuming that the fliers were successful in reaching the pole by aeroplane, and that their delayed return was due to difficulties in re-launching the planes, this is the story of their hazardous flight as I visualize it from a long experience in Arctic exploration and aviation."

By CAPT. FELIX REISENBERG,
Special Correspondent of the North American Newspaper Alliance and The London Advertiser.

It is late afternoon, May 21, 1925. A perfect Arctic day, with blue sky showing silvery white far to the north and west, where the ice blink tints the air with its metallic sheen. From the ends of the earth reports have come to King's Bay telling of the weather, bits of information pieced together by the meteorologists. The answer to the puzzle is at last favorable.

Two great Dornier Wal aeroplanes rest on the snow, pointing downward toward the beach. A mile of smooth snow-covered ice forms a perfect take-off. The tanks are full. Provisions are stowed. The thermos flasks are filled with hot chocolate—all but that of Mechanic Omdahl, who takes hot milk and coffee; it may be his last drink—who knows? In this gamble with death, all things are possible.

The frightful racket of the motors sounds above the snow-peaked mountains of Spitzbergen, in the rapid fire of the tests. Everything is ready, and 720 horsepower await the spark of life in each of the

Col. Gartshore Suffers Slight Paralytic Stroke

Must Take Long Rest As Result of Overwork Strain.

STRICKEN AT WORK

Breaking under the strain of a week of overwork, Col. William M. Gartshore, president of the McClary Manufacturing Company, and one of London's prominent philanthropic workers, collapsed this morning at his desk in the firm's downtown offices. At Victoria hospital, where he was taken on the orders of his physician, Dr. C. A. Harris, his affliction was diagnosed as a paralytic stroke.

Col. Gartshore's condition is not considered alarming and at 2 o'clock this afternoon he was resting well. Dr. Harris advises, however, that he take a prolonged rest. The stroke was not a serious one, his physician told The Advertiser, but it will be a day or two before his exact condition can be ascertained.

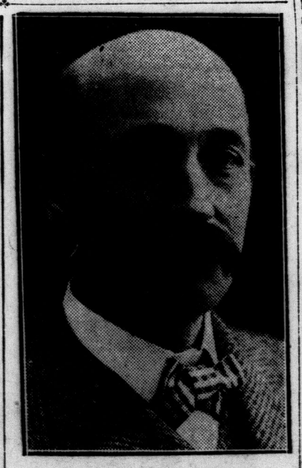

The colonel's breakdown was hastened, friends say, by the unusually active part he played in municipal happenings of the past two days.

Yesterday morning he welcomed Lieut.-Governor Harry Cockshutt to London on the occasion of the annual inspection of the public school cadets. Meeting the lieutenant-governor at the station, Col. Gartshore escorted him to the London Hunt and Country club for luncheon, afterwards accompanying him to the review.

Victoria hospital has in Col. Gartshore one of its most active supporters and the late afternoon found him in attendance at the graduation exercises at the convocation hall, University of Western Ontario. He addressed the nurses and administered the Florence Nightingale pledge.

At the evening reception, Col. Gartshore gave another address and also danced with his own acquaintances and several of the nurses.

While his executive duties have been strenuous for the past week, Col. Gartshore appeared in excellent health when he arrived at the office shortly after nine this morning. His collapse in his chair gave firm officials the first sign that the president was in ill health.

SUFFERS SLIGHT STROKE.

Col. W. M. Gartshore, who was stricken with illness at his office this morning. Strain from overwork, chiefly in the interest of the public, is blamed for his collapse. He is now in Victoria hospital. Doctors have prescribed a long rest.

Crystallization of Christian judgment into national law was characterized by Rev. J. H. Farmer, D.D., Toronto, ex-chancellor of McMaster university, in an address on Social Service, as the purpose and object of the federal and provincial social service councils.

"As Baptists we should stand in close," declared Dr. Farmer, "and cooperate wherever possible to improve the laws of the country. Religion must be foremost in all social service work, and in helping others we should always remember to put first things first."

Puzzled by Issue.

Dr. Farmer stressed "the necessity and importance of Christians studying the housing problem, the land

CENSURE MOTION REJECTED

British Liberals Defeated On Proposal Aimed Against Speaker Whitley.

LLOYD GEORGE'S STAND

Claim Was Made That Protection Denied to House Minorities.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 28.—The house of commons, by a vote of 306 to 27, today rejected a Liberal motion for a vote of censure of the speaker, the Right Hon. John Henry Whitley.

The motion to censure the speaker, a very unusual proposal in the house of commons, had additional rarity from the fact that it was made by the Liberal party of which the speaker himself is a member.

The expressed grievance of the Liberal party against the speaker was that "contrary to recent precedents" he granted a closure of the first day's debate during the second reading of the finance bill, thereby preventing the Liberals from making as strong a case in the debate as they desired.

Claim Undue Protection.

The motion for censure maintained that this action of the speaker did not accord the Liberals the protection that is due to minorities in the house.

The Liberal motion for censure was supported by David Lloyd George and Sir John Simon and other leaders of that party. It was known in advance that the proposal for censure would be defeated, as both the Conservative and Labor parties opposed it.

The last occasion when the house was called upon to discuss a motion to censure the speaker was in 1902. On that occasion it was stated there had been no similar discussion in parliament since 1770.

In moving the proposal for censure, Captain Wedgwood Benn, of the Liberals, said the closure rule was never intended to be used for the suppression of relevant and reasonable parliamentary debate. He said there was no reflection intended upon the speaker, but the motion was offered as a vindication of a great principle.

Lloyd George's Stand.

Mr. Lloyd George expressed regret at having to challenge the authority of the chair, particularly with a speaker who stood so well with all parties, but he said to propose a vote of censure was now the only way to raise the question of the principle of free debate.

Premier Stanley Baldwin said the Conservatives would oppose the motion because after a careful study of parliamentary authorities the party leaders were convinced the speaker had not been careless of the rights of minorities.

GASOLINE JUMPS ONE CENT IN CITY

Now Sells at 30 Cents, Including Tax—Expect Further Advances.

Announcement of a one-cent increase per gallon in the price of gasoline in Canada this morning gives every indication there will be a further rise in gas prices shortly, according to local dealers.

All Canadian companies were notified of the increase, effective this morning, last night shortly before 6 o'clock. It was an expected increase, they say, the American market having much to do with change of prices.

Gasoline now retails at 30 cents per gallon, including tax. This price is asked by the Imperial Oil Company, the British-American Oil Company and jobbers.

Crude oil prices have advanced recently in the United States, J. G. Thompson, manager of local Supertest stations, said this morning. This naturally affects prices of gasoline and this morning's increase, and probable further rises, was anticipated. The highest price gasoline has reached in the past 18 months is 42 cents per gallon. The expected continued increase will not reach this amount this year, however, dealers say.

WRANGEL ISLAND TRAGEDY PAPERS BEING PREPARED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, May 28.—Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of interior, said in the house today that he was having the papers prepared respecting the fatal Wrangel Island expedition, and they would be presented to the house shortly.

The statement was made in reply to questions asked by H. C. Hocken, Conservative, Toronto West.

COMPLAIN OF FANCY LIGHT COST

Property Owners on Wellington-Waterloo Block Protest Excessive Lighting Tax.

MISUNDERSTANDING

Believed 40-Cent Foot Revenue Would Be Only Expense For System.

Owners of property on the Wellington-Waterloo block on Dundas street are complaining bitterly of the cost of the ornamental lighting installed last year. They claim that while they agreed to pay a frontage tax of 40 cents a foot for ten years for installation, they are now confronted with a permanent tax of 70 cents a foot for "excessive lighting." In a letter sent to the city council and signed by all the property owners on this block, this complaint is registered and some relief asked.

The local improvement act prohibits a city from instituting ornamental lighting except on petition and this is how the work in London was done. The residents knew they would have to pay the 40-cent tax as worked out by the city engineer, but they claim they knew nothing of any excessive lighting tax until being billed for it this year.

At the present time it costs $1,400 a year to light this particular block in London. The city pays the cost of the ordinary lighting as it was before the fancy style was installed and charges the property owners with the difference. It is this that makes up the 70 cents a foot frontage tax, and of course it is a permanent one.

Residents complaining say that it will reduce the value of their holdings and other residents in the city say it will absolutely kill any other plans which might have been made for fancy lighting in the city.

SLEEPS AT WHEEL, MAN BADLY HURT

Thomas Hogan, Smith's Falls, Seriously Injured When Motor Crashes in Ditch.

Thomas Hogan of Smith Falls was taken to Victoria hospital this morning seriously injured as the result of a motor accident shortly before 9 o'clock on the Dundas highway. The car which he was driving, according to the police, went into the ditch when Hogan fell asleep at the wheel.

Four other occupants of the car, V. M. Merriam, Owen A. Guzalain, Reginald Watson and S. Miller, escaped uninjured. The car, owned by Merriam, was coming from Toronto to Detroit. Near Thamesford Hogan commenced to drive the car. It was a few miles west of Thamesford that the motor turned off the road into a deep ditch. The car is badly smashed.

T. S. P. Lucas, provincial motor officer, took charge of the case. The motor was towed to Thamesford for repairs. Dr. Weir of Thamesford was called to attend to Hogan and had him removed in the A. L. Oatman ambulance to Victoria hospital.

Hogan is said to be in a serious condition. He is hurt about the face and head and suffers from a severe hip injury. He will not be in condition to leave the hospital for some time, physicians say.

CLOSER WATCH ON DRUG TRAFFIC IS PROMISED

Government Passes Bill To Amend Narcotic Act For Imports.

HARBOR COSTS UP

Belle River Citizens Want Improvements Made in North Essex.

By E. C. BUCHANAN.
Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Correspondent.

Ottawa, May 27.—An echo of the failure of the House of Commons to respect Monday as a national holiday was heard in the chamber this afternoon. The prime minister made reply to a resolution passed and published by the grand lodge of Orange Young Britons characterizing the observance of Ascension Day and the non-observance of Empire Day as unpatriotic and unprotestant.

Mr. King pointed out that Ascension Day had been observed since Confederation, and reminded the house that in 1920 Sir Robert Borden had given what amounted to a promise of the continuance of the practice. As to Empire Day, he had been guided by the British parliament, which sat on that day. Mr. Meighen asserted that Empire Day was a national holiday in Canada but not in England.

Most of the afternoon was devoted to the discussion of amendments to the narcotic drug act, which were offered by the Hon. Dr. Beland for the purpose of bringing Canadian law into conformity with decisions of the league of nations. The new measure places further restrictions on traffic in drugs. Woodsworth of Winnipeg complained that it did not restrict production, but the minister explained that Canada was not particularly concerned on that score as it was not a producer of drugs, and imported very little of the opium grown in British India. The bill was passed.

The ocean freight rates committee expects to conclude the taking of evidence tomorrow night. Sir William Petersen, it is announced, is to go into the witness stand during the day.

Residents of Belle River were before the public accounts committee of the commons today to give evidence in justification of the famous harbor improvements secured for that town from the federal government by "Tim" Healy, Liberal member for North Essex. The Belle River citizens present were Dr. Trottier, J. R. Ducharme, Leo Sylvester and F. H. Taylor. The first two were examined during the day and the others are to be called on Friday.

Doctor Trottier's evidence was to the effect that the harbor improvements were entirely warranted. They would give the town the advantage of cheaper coal, gravel and other materials for the municipality and its industries, that hitherto have had to be brought in by rail. He also claimed that the shipment of tomatoes and other products of the vicinity would be facilitated by the bettering of the harbor, and that its business as a summer resort was being increased. Doctor Trottier based his evidence on his experience as reeve of the municipality of Belle River and president of the hydro commission. Both he and Mr. Ducharme declared that real estate values had risen, and the prosperity of the community been enhanced since the promise of a harbor had been secured.

W. A. Boys, chief Conservative whip, cross-examined Dr. Trottier, with a view to showing claims made as to the need of the harbor, and the uses to which it was to be put were "preposterous," but the witness insisted that the situation was as he had outlined it.

Manna's Victory Arouses House

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 27.—The House of Commons learned the name of the Derby winner, when Sir William Davison, member from Kensington, interrupted a dreary round of questions by arising and asking: "Is the honorable member aware that Manna won the Derby?"

There were cries of "order," some laughter, and then the House proceeded to its business.

WINDSOR WATCHES BEER OPTION PLAN

Border Believes Huron Plan Opens Way To Stronger Drink.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Correspondent.

Windsor, May 27.—Efforts being made by prohibitionists of Goderich and Huron county to have sale of the new 4.4 beer abolished in that community under the provisions of the local option statute, are closely watched here, particularly by the anti-wet crowd, who believe that should Premier Ferguson accede to the wishes of the Goderich prohibitionist element and order the sale of beer stopped, it would open the way for a demand locally that something stronger than beer be permitted under a local option.

It is asserted that should the premier grant the one request it would be difficult for him to refuse the other, because both are made under a similar provincial regulation.

No definite plan of action has yet been agreed upon, but it is understood the government will be asked to grant further concessions to North Essex or any part of it that desires a change from existing conditions.

UNIVERSITY SENATE HAS FIVE VACANCIES

Government Expected To Appoint From List Chosen by Alumni.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, May 27.—It is expected that the provincial government will shortly make several appointments to the University of Toronto board of governors from the nominations made by the alumni federation. There are at present five vacancies on the board, but whether the government will fill all these at one time it is not possible to ascertain. It is practically certain, from what The Advertiser can gather, that Angus MacMurchy, K.C., the president of the alumni federation, and Right Hon. L. P. Duff, of the supreme court of Canada, will be among those chosen by the government to represent the alumni federation on the board.

The vote has taken place of the members of the alumni federation, and the eight who received the most support were: Angus MacMurchy, K.C., Hon. W. R. Riddell, Hon. C. A. Masten, Dr. H. B. Anderson, Rt. Hon. L. P. Duff, John J. Gibson, H. G. Acres, D.Sc., Dr. John C. Maynard.

T. V. A. CONFIDENT OF PENSIONS BILL

Byron Sanatorium Branch Certain Senate Will Ratify New Measure.

Members of the Byron sanatorium branch of the Tubercular Veterans' Association of Canada are confident that the new pensions bill now in the hands of the senate committee will be ratified by the senate in a few days' time.

The T. V. A. is particularly interested in this measure because it contains an amendment to the pensions act which will entitle all tubercular ex-soldiers to a full disability pension for two years after discharge from treatment, when their disease is due to their war service, and a 90 per cent disability pension for two years when their disease is considered to have been aggravated on service.

Another clause in the bill calls for the permanency of the pension bonus.

Tribute to Byron.

Veterans in every part of Canada have paid tribute to the untiring efforts of the Byron branch of the T. V. A. in behalf of tubercular comrades. The local branch has the largest membership in the dominion with more than 400 enrolled and has taken the lead in many crusades which have brought greater consideration for the ex-service man.

The activities of the branch are numerous and include the presentation of pension claims, the care of widows and orphans of deceased comrades, and the distribution of relief to the families of ex-soldiers often admitted to the sanatorium in a hopeless condition.

The members have also taken up the responsibilities of entertaining the patients as well as managing the sanatorium library, furthering the work so nobly started by the late Lady Beck.

Formed in 1921.

The Invalided Tubercular Soldiers' Welfare League was the parent body of the present association, which was formed in the fall of 1921. From that time the work of the T. V. A. has increased in scope, an office being maintained in Ottawa, where a representative is in constant touch with the pension commissioners and D. S. C. R. officials.

T. V. A. members have made a searching study of the disease and with the co-operation of tubercular specialists have succeeded in convincing the government of the real merits of their cause.

The progress of the association is all the more noteworthy on account of the fact that every member is a victim of tuberculosis and all work is voluntary, none of the officials being salaried. Apart from legislative activities, more than 1,200 pension claims have been settled satisfactorily, with 600 now under consideration. During the past three years $200,000 in retroactive pensions has been recovered for ex-service men.

DOG OFFERED BY TUSTIN TO KINGSVILLE SCOUTS

Matter of Recent Shooting in Hands of Ontario Humane Society.

Referring to comment about the reported shooting of a dog by the chief of police in Kingsville, while boy scouts stood by, Humane Inspector George Tustin declares that the matter is now in the hands of the Ontario humane society, and that the facts were placed before that body a week ago. He says that a full investigation of the case will be made.

"I have a pure bred British bull and terrier dog, 11 months old, which I will give to the Kingsville boy scouts for a mascot," he said last night, "and if they will let me know I will personally take the dog to Kingsville ad present it to them. It will make a real mascot for their troop."

PORT STANLEY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Yesterday this historic edifice was the scene of marked activity, when the men of the congregation gathered to give the building a coat of paint, inside and out, and the women gathered for an old-fashioned quilting bee. The Advertiser photographer caught the enthusiastic workers busily engaged in their patriotic labor. The church is one of the oldest in Western Ontario, and the congregation, though not numerically strong, is most enthusiastic in church activities of every nature. Rev. Jamieson led the men in the work yesterday, while Mrs. Jamieson directed the activities of the women.

RIFFS DEFEATED IN BIBANE ATTACK

Tribesmen Not Discouraged — Regulars Being Sent To Front Line.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, May 28.—The Riffians continue their activity against the French in Morocco, particularly in the west, but the situation is unchanged, according to the latest word from the French headquarters.

Abd-El-Krim is beginning to put his regulars in the line instead of using them to stiffen the columns of the tribesmen supporting him, as was his previous policy.

The French have 60,000 men behind the Ouergha river. They have well-organized defences, but are also prepared for offensive fighting if necessary.

A violent attack by the Riffians against the Bibane post failed completely, the French claim, but the tribesmen are said to be by no means discouraged over this or their previous defeats.

The situation at home is beginning to clarify. The socialists, having finally accepted the motion of confidence worded by the left Cartel delegates and approved by the latter, assured a substantial majority at the conclusion of the debate proceeding in the chamber of deputies.

PURSE IS PRESENTED HAROLD W. DONAHUE

Late Assistant Manager of Hay Stationery Company Honored by Employees.

A tribute that is reserved for those who, through years of faithful service, have made their influence felt in the world about them, was paid last night to Harold W. Donahue, late assistant manager of the Hay Stationery Company, when he was tendered a purse of gold by the management and the members of the office staff.

Mr. Donahue has joined the advertising department of The Advertiser and comes with an enviable record of eleven years of service and progress with the Hay firm. In that period, a comparatively short one in the business calendar, he rose from parcel boy to the post of assistant manager where his devotion to the interests of the firm and his consideration of his fellow employees brought him a popularity that ever grew stronger.

The regret the members of the printing department feel in Mr. Donahue's going was expressed a few nights ago when Superintendent Harry Howard presented him with a silk umbrella, mahogany handled.

The presentation of the purse was made last night by M. G. Hay, vice-president of the firm, and the following address that accompanied it tells well the feeling of all the employees:

"It was with surprise and deep regret that we, members of the Hay Stationery Company staff, learned that you were severing your connection with the company.

"While we all regret your departure, we are glad to see you are going up, and will watch your progress with interest, on the principle that you can't keep a good man down—the top is always in sight.

"Feeling as we do, we cannot let the occasion pass without showing you in some way a token of our appreciation of the many deeds of kindness from you to us during our service together, and we ask you to accept this small purse as an expression of our friendship towards you, and at the same time to wish you unbonuded success in any position you may attain in the future.

On behalf of the staff,
E. SMITH.

For the company,
J. B. HAY.

Mr. Donahue is also in receipt of scores of letters of congratulations and expressions of good wishes from firms the country over with whom he has business connections.

SMITH'S FALLS BOARD HEARS ALL EVIDENCE

School Officials Meet Again Tonight To Reconsider Teachers' Dismissals.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Smith's Falls, Ont., May 28.—After having heard statements from all the teachers of the collegiate institute and having questioned them upon their opinions as to the discipline exercised in the school, the board of education of Smith's Falls, at its secret meeting late last night, concluded the investigation in hand as far as the taking of evidence is concerned.

The board meets again tonight to peruse the evidence and decide whether or not it will reverse its previous decision to dismiss seven of the teachers, which action was the cause of the recent pupils' strike. The students, a number of whom stayed outside the school until the meeting adjourned at 1 o'clock, stated that they might strike again this morning in protest against the board's further delay in giving a decision.

VIOLENT STORMS HINDER CROPS, PARTS OF FRANCE

Beauvais District Badly Damaged by Heavy Rain and Hail Recently.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, May 27.—Storms of such violence as not to have had any precedent in France for thirty years past sprang up suddenly last night and they have proved a veritable catastrophe in certain parts of the countryside region round Beauvais. This district suffered particularly from torrents of water sweeping over the fields and uprooting the young crops.

Hail has beaten down the grain and damaged the fruit trees in the Beauvais district, and the roads are flooded. Even paving-stones have been washed away by the flood. It is thought that it will be two weeks before the agricultural laborers will be able to resume work in the fields.

The damage to the crops in the Beauvais district is estimated at 800,000 francs. Throughout the Oise department the crops will be poor owing to the excessive dampness of the soil.

PAINTING, QUILTING ARE HELD AT PORT

St. John's Presbyterian Church Is Scene of Tremendous Activity.

Special to The Advertiser.

Port Stanley, May 27.—Members of St. John's Presbyterian church turned out today in full force to lend a hand at the first painting and quilting bee held at the church for over 30 years. The men of the parish, under the leadership of Rev. Jamieson, arrived on the scene of activities shortly after daybreak, and by late afternoon had given the church a glossy coat of white paint, both on the outside and inside. The ladies of the church were busy throughout the entire day making quilts, to be sold at the annual bazaar in July, to raise a building fund for the church.

St. John's church is the oldest in the village, having been built in 1854. It is one of the few old-fashioned Scotch churches that remain in the province at the present time. In the recent church union elections the congregation decided to remain out of union by a great majority, and since that time many new names have been added to the parish list, that have come from Union churches in the district. Two years ago the congregation was composed of only 54 people, but now the members total 118.

Organized in 1854.

The congregation was organized on December 17, 1854, and the first services held on Sunday, February 28, 1855, when the Rev. Doake accepted a call to the parish. Up until 1875, the church was connected with the Presbyterian Free Church of Scotland, but in that year became a part of the United Presbyterian Church of Canada. The first pastor in this new branch was the Rev. J. P. Bakie. The two elders at that time were W. Strathdee and Alex McGill.

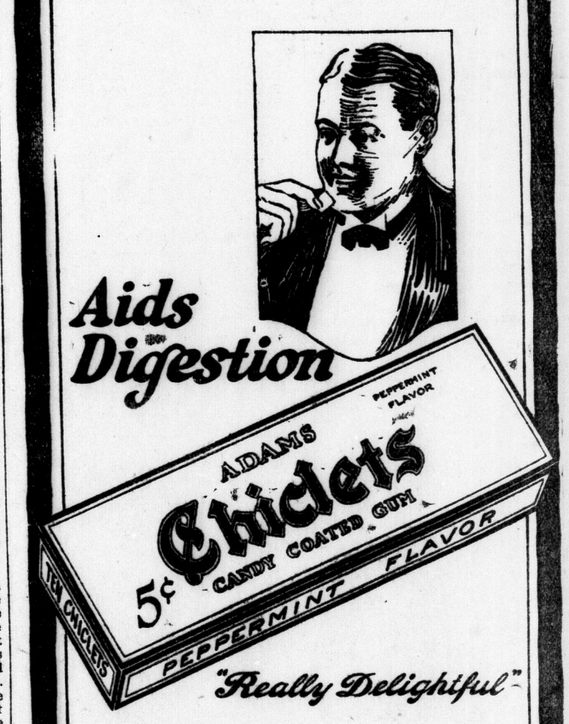

The Port Stanley parish, though small, is one of the most important in the London Synod, and is classed as one of the foremost and oldest Presbyterian churches in Western Ontario. During the summer months it is filled to capacity every Sunday with cottagers and tourists, who come for miles to hear the old-fashioned Scotch services.

Pastor Hard Worker.

Rev. Jamieson, the present pastor, is responsible for the splendid showing made today. He came to this parish three years ago from Southmountain, in the Brockville Synod, and during that time has done much for the betterment of the village, as well as the church. He is a great athlete, and for 10 years, prior to coming to Port, was connected with the Y. M. C. A. athletics in United States and Canada. A few years ago he was coach of the famous Warren, Pennsylvania, lacrosse team, which was considered one of the best in the states.

Today's painting was the first done on the parish for over 30 years.

Those who were responsible for the splendid showing were: Mrs. Jamieson, president of the women's missionary society; T. W. Sanderson, Noel Weir, Fred Morgan, Donald Graham and W. E. Eastwick.

RICHMOND ISLAND WILL BE REPLACED

On Smaller Scale, With Light in Center, Works Board Decides.

The island at the intersection of Richmond street and Central avenue will be replaced on a smaller scale as soon as possible and a light will be erected in the center. This was the decision reached last night at a special meeting of the board of works called to deal with the matter. It is the intention of the committee that when the street railway company change the arrangement of their tracks on Central aevnue this miniature park shall be moved over to the corner of Clarence street and Richmond streets at the north-end wedge. In the meantime the small island will be built.

T. W. MacFarlane, chairman of the parks committee, told The Advertiser last night that he had not been consulted in any way as to the removal of the island, and that his opinion or that of the commissioners had not been sought.

On the motion of Alderman Kilbourne, T. C. McBride was recommended as city building inspector. The mayor and Aldermen McCormick and Linnell supported this motion. Aldermen Bottrill and Ashton opposed it, thinking it should go to the housing commission for ratification.

Judge Talbot MacBeth was appointed to act as arbitrator for the city in the action by Miller, Scandrett, Limited, against the city, and his appointment will be ratified today at a special meeting of the council. It was learned that J. C. Elliott, K.C., will act for the company.

Mrs. Bertha Davis Declares Statements Made Inferring Dishonesty.

Mrs. Bertha M. Davis, secretary of the Circle Pride of London, an auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Foresters, is suing Walter Richards, London, auditor of the circle, for $500 damages, alleging that Mr. Richards made some statements on December 19, 1923, implying that she was dishonest and involving circle funds to the amount of $30.

Mr. Richards in his statement of defence denies absolutely that he made any statements of such a nature regarding Mrs. Davis.

CONDEMNS CADET SUIT PROCEDURE

David Ross, Brotherhood Head, Says Govt. Grant Mortgaging Illegal.

That the city should refuse to pay the government grant of $1,250 to the supplier of the school cadet uniforms is the opinion of David Ross, president of the brotherhood in London. Mr. Ross takes the ground that the action of the board of education in mortgaging the government grant for 1925, 1926 and 1927 to the firm supplying these uniforms after having set aside only $2,500 in its estimates for this expenditure is both illegal and unethical.

The board of education promised the firm who offered to supply the 1,000 cadet uniforms, the government cadet grant for the next three years. This, in spite of the fact that the city council was under the impression that the estimate of $2,500 was all that would be used for uniforms. Mr. Ross considers this a breach of faith on the part of the board.

"This kind of handling of public money is setting an extremely dangerous precedent," said Mr. Ross. "In this case the amount is certainly not large, but the principle is a vicious one. Considering the large public discussion on the matter all over the city and the expression of the membership of the brotherhood in general it was not fair to the ratepayers and citizens to mortgage the grants in this way. The amount in the estimates set by the board should have been adhered to. Apart entirely from the legal side of the question the public had the right to express itself definitely before money three years away was offered by its own trustees and guaranteed to the manufacturer supplying the goods."

Sixty Students Relinquish Alma Mater Ties and Face World on Graduation Day

Ginko Tree From Old Japan Is Planted To Perpetuate Spirit of Arts '25.

JOY, SORROW TOO

Cyril Sullivan Reviews Year at Western—Parting Message of Dean Fox.

With expressions of joy on graduating and sorrow on parting from their alma mater, with tributes to the past of the university and high hopes for its future, 60 members of Arts '25 of university college and Ursuline college, held the final class exercises in the auditorium at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The class, which is the first to graduate from the new buildings, left mementos of their passing in the form of a class tree, which was planted just the north of the college of arts. It is a slender Ginko tree from Japan. In addition to the tree a sun dial from England was unveiled on the northeast corner of the terrace of the main building.

Many friends of the students, together with the dean and instructors, were present.

Grant Wiley Speaks.

"Each member of Arts '25 realizes that during this present transition from the life of the undergraduate to membership in the ever-growing boy of the alumni he must sever active connection with the university," said Grant Wiley in his opening remarks on the planting of the class tree.

"The students realized that they were bidding farewell to the world that had been theirs for four years. They had been happy years, and contrary to general belief the new relationships formed would not be one of disinterest, but more growing concern and enthusiasm of teaching and ideals," he said.

From the instruction of pedagogues the students would enter a life of self-education, for which teachers had prepared them. They would pass into a world of wide scope and greater material emoluments.

Sun Dial Taken.

The sun dial was presented by J. MacKenzie Dobson, who said that it was a token of the esteem the students held for their alma mater. It represented the affection for the old buildings as well as the new wherein they had formed lasting friendships.

Four years was not too long to spend in the university, he said, touching on the proposal to cut the university course to two years, leaving high schools to teach the freshmen and second year courses. Such a move would be regrettable since it was the preparation of the first two years in college that made the last two invaluable.

Cyril Sullivan, president of the year, briefly reviewed the history of class '25, saying that the class had reached the long-looked for day of graduation following four years of toil and pleasure.

The feelings of the class were not those of October, 1921, when as freshmen the members first crossed the threshold in the old Western buildings.

Untried Fields Ahead.

Then they were venturing into untried fields: into a new and strange environment. The four years were long. Obstacles had been surmounted. The regret was that the period of work and play, together must of necessity, end.

As juniors, the class of '25 had delved deep to taste more fully of the childish joys of the freshman mind before they had come to the last year crowned with all that oneness of purpose, which all the tradition of old Western had enabled them to bring to the new. They looked ahead to the misty vistas of university success.

Prof. H. R. Kingston, Ph.D., F.R.A.S., honorary president, and Dean W. Sherwood Fox, Ph.D., D.Litt., F.R.S.C., then addressed the students with a parting message.

The valedictory was read by Eunice Moorehouse. George W. Bond, the class prophet, told his fellow students where they would be in 25 years.

The exercises came to a close with a hnale by the class quartet.

HE FLEES COCK FIGHT, REPENTS, PAYS FINE

County Collects $16.50 From Peter Sansone—Recognized by Police.

Peter Sansone is the latest Londoner to hand over $16.50 to County Magistrate Hawkshaw for the privilege of attending the cockfight at the farm of W. J. Talbot, London township, last Monday.

Although Sansone managed to get away without the police getting their hands on him, he was recognized by High Constable Wharton and a summons was issued. Sansone did not wait for the official bid to court and paid up wtihout a murmur, stating that it cost real money on occasions to be on speaking terms with the police.

S. ROBICK FOUND GUILTY IN ASSAULT

Remanded Week For Sentence —Two Companions Are Allowed Freedom.

Steve Robick, one of three whom police held responsible for a drunken street brawl on Philip street one month ago, in which Nahoon Zarawich was seriously injured, was found guilty of assault occasioning actually bodily harm by Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon in police court this morning. He was remanded one week for sentence.

Pete Gorman and Harry Gimack, charged with wounding Tony Wolodok in the same fight, were allowed their freedom. Gorman was given suspended sentence. Gimack was found not guilty.

The fight occurred on May 1. Zarawich received a blow over the head which rendered him unconscious. At Victoria hospital, where he has been confined for the past three weeks, it was found he was suffering from a fractured skull.

Although Robick denied he had struck Zarawich, evidence of four witnesses of the fight implicated him.

The case lasted the greater part of the morning, seven witnesses being called by the crown. Howard Cluff defended Robick. He endeavored to prove that if Robick had taken part in the fight he had done so only in self-defense.

Robick, a Pole, had apparently been on bad terms with Zarawich, a Russian, for some time. Witnesses said he had asked them to join in the fight. He carried a spike or chisel in his hand and it was this instrument which inflicted Zarawich's head injury.

Foreigners must be impressed with the seriousness of fighting and quarheling among themselves, the magistrate said in convicting Robick. The fact that the three men had been in jail on remand for almost one month helped in gaining their freedom today and will be an important factor in minimizing Robick's sentence next week, the court said.

LUCANITES TRY OUT NEW BEER

Old-Timers Not Over-Pleased With "Fergie's Foam."

Lucan got its first taste of 4.4 beer yesterday and pronounced it "cold and wet."

The Central hotel was the mecca for all the old-timers anxious to quaff the Ferguson brew, their opinion being that the Ontario premier had played a joke on them.

The Central hotel is the only one in the village that has yet received a permit to sell the new beer.

Cockshutt Insures Popularity With the Coming Generation

London's school children will have an extra long week-end, beginning Thursday. Friday is to be a whole holiday, with Saturday and Sunday to get over it.

In his address to the cadets in Victoria park yesterday afternoon, His Honor Col. Harry Cockshutt, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, closed a brief speech by asking the boys what they would think of having a holiday. A rousing cheer from a thousand cadets gave the answer.

The lieutenant-governor turned to Chairman Lawrason of the board of education. In a moment the momentous question was settled. Friday, all day Friday, was to be a holiday.

The announcement brought to a close one of the most important and popular addresses ever heard by schoolboys in London.

HURON W. A. HEARS REPORTS TODAY

Appeal Committee Find $9,430 Needed in Various Fields This Year.

Business featured this morning's session of the Huron W. A. As each report was brought up it was the cause of much discussion, and practically the entire morning was taken up with business remaining from yesterday.

The appeal committee also reported and gave the total amount needed in the various fields as $9,430.

The Diocesan Bulletin was the topic of a great deal of discussion. It was considered from every angle, and finally it was decided to accept the following resolution from St. John's church, this city:

"This branch heartily commends the publication of the bulletin as a means of supplying information about the various branches of work carried on by the W. A., and suggests that the bulletin be issued after each meeting of the diocesan executive and that it contain accounts of current business transacted." It was also recommended that enough copies be printed to supply each branch.

Mrs. R. J. Bowen presided for the first half hour in the absence of the president, Mrs. Frank Anderson.

A pleasing break in the routine of business was the presence of Rev. H. H. Corey, Mrs. Corey, and their family. Mr. Corey spoke briefly They had with them a charming little seven-year-old Eskimo girl, who has lived with them in Japan for six years. She sang in Japanese for the gathering, and won the hearts of those present.

The mid-day prayers and quiet hour were taken by Dean Tucker, who delivered a splendid address of an inspirational nature.

CONSIDERS POLAR TRIP AS GAMBLE WITH DEATH

metal boats. Men are saying "goodbye."

Roald Amundsen has sent back his last messages. Lincoln Ellsworth, the sole American and captain of the N-24, has despatched a parting radio to the Explorers club, New York: "About to leave. Greetings to Explorers club."

Battle Against Big Odds.

Men are hurrying across the ice. Dr. Johan Matheson, the surgeon, has seen to the emergency kits the special rations, the physical condition of the adventurers. But they are highstrung, in spite of their calm; it is the calm of tension. The emergency kits contain hypodermic syringes and strychnine. They have been instructed in the use of these super-stimulants, for the possible extremity may come, the point where the very last pulse of life must be awakened. This flight is a battle against tremendous odds.

"Come, let us go!" calls Amundsen. Andree said these same words, these last words, in 1897, mounting the basket of the ill-fated balloon Eagle.

Lincoln Ellsworth calls, "All aboard!"

The men climb into their places in the long projectiles. The heavy flying clothes make them awkward, the fur-lined hoods and great goggles pushed up over their foreheads give them the appearance of gorillas. But those faces, those firm sunburned faces already red from the continuous glare of the Arctic sun, rough with hair, but lit by high courage and determination, are an answer to the age-long struggle of the race. Men are still ready to die for an ideal.

Lief Dietrichson and Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, Vikings, sailors and lieutenants in the Norwegian navy, have taken places in their respective planes. Riiser-Larsen, dark and handsome, smiles over at Dietrichson. The mechanics, Omdahl and Feucht, are on board. Lincoln Ellsworth jumps into his plane. Amundsen, seeing all on board, waves a general farewell, and takes his place.

The ships Hobby and Farm ride off to seaward, ready to stand by in case the aeroplanes fail to rise, for at the last moment they have been loaded with a burden of 6,700 pounds, though designed to lift only 4,400. But men and machines must carry over-load for every exacting mile toward the distant and mysterious pole.

For a moment—it seems an age to those waiting—the planes lie quiet. Amundsen lifts his arm: "Go! Go!"

Now let us follow the fliers off toward the polar cap:

Planes Heading North.

The planes are heading north. To the right the coast line of Spitzbergen slides backward like a strip of white film, jagged mountains lifting ragged peaks against blue sky. It is five minutes to 6 p.m., and the sun rides to the west, not to sink, but to swing around them until midnight will find it directly ahead. It is their solar compass.

They fly low, but each ten minutes sees them lightening as the vital gas is burned in the motors. The planes are in close company. It is like a picnic. Joy sings in their hearts. Lincoln waves to Roald. Lief and Hjalmar are all business at their controls, but the mechanics, irresponsible riders, wave at each other. Not one of them would give up his seat for the throne of a kingdom. Never have mere men taken a more desperate and fascinating chance.

The men are adjusting themselves to the racket. The action of the planes is smooth, they ride the air with the slick speed of perfect balance. The terrific noise is only an echo of the grand emotion of men at last set free. A half hour has passed; an indentation on the coast line marks Magdalena Bay; they see a glimpse of South Gat, and are abreast of Danes island. They pass Seal Bay and for a fleeting second look down the white stretch of Danes Gat toward the little rock called Dead Man's Isle, from behind which Andree sailed. Amundsen points and Ellsworth follows with his eye. The huge bulk of Amsterdam island rises to the left. They see the outline of the Arctic pyramids, and then Hackluyt's Head, and the land trends suddenly to the east.

Pass Northern Outpost.

The planes, in less than an hour, have passed the northern outpost of Spitzbergen, heading off toward the pole over a historic sea, a sea that once knew the keels of Henry Hudson and William Barents, a sea once sailed by Horatio Nelson, and by the great Parry, first of Arctic explorers to attempt a penetration toward the pole. In another hour they are beyond the farthest mark set by Parry and are rapidly approaching the uttermost end of the known seas to the north. Off there somewhere Andres found adventure, and eventual death.

Hjalmar and Lief, great adventuring names, have been relieved at the controls. The captains are busy. Amunsden, measuring by speed, has already given the signal five times. They are above 85 degrees of latitude. Below them they scan the white unbroken ice for signs of land. The sun has circled ahead of them and trends off to the east. The drum and racket of the engines comes with increasing power as the loads lighten, the petrol draining from the tanks with disconcerting rapidity. The men have sparingly partaken of their lunch. The sky, constantly under observation, begins to cloud. The planes ride closer together. The stress of tense nerves, already beginning to relax, is suddenly tightened. The aviators huddle down in their seats. A thin mist bulks befeore them. They feel the biting cold, gradually dropping as the top of the world rolls under them, and the metal bodies of the planes begin to pick up a veneer of vitreous ice from the mist.

Aware of the Danger.

Amunsden is fully aware of the danger. Suddenly he realizes that no other plane is in sight—the sister machine has disappeared in the mist, and he cannot hear the drumming of its engines because of the racket of his own. Amundsen signals Hjalmar and they rise. The plane climbs, faster, slower. Ice is clinging to the wings—up! up! Motors are opened to the limit. Can they rise above the ice mist? The great mystery of the north has pulled its curtain over them, until suddenly the glistening plane jumps clear, 6,000 feet above the fog, into the flash of a brilliant sun streaming over the top of the world and seeming to applaud.

But where is the other plane? Has it kept on the level? Is it still in the clutch of the ice-laden mist? No one can stop, no one can tell. Then, a thousand feet below them, in a valley of mist, the second plane comes to sight for a moment and disappears. Another dreadful half hour goes by and the second plane, crusted with ice, but lightened by excessive burning of gas, noses upward into view.

The adventurers are now above the 88th parallel, and the strain on machines and men has been terrific. Will they be able to withstand another cloud? It is so cold the ice clings and weighs them down; it will not melt.

Goal Reached at Last.

Hours—ages pass. The men are bright-eyed, hectic. Their eyelids burn, their limbs ache. The great-hearted engines never falter. The sun is almost behind. Ahead of them, banks of gray cloud hang like threatening wreaths of crape. Below them the ice mass is almost indistinguishable. All directions will soon be south, and the mechanics anxiously watch the tanks and mark the tally of their fuel. It seems as if they had been up for a month.

The whole sky looks fearsome, it blackens; and the ice below, in contrast, becomes an unearthly paleness, a dead, depressing white. The sun is yellow in the drift of haze. But this is the goal, the top of the world.

The men are ages older than when they started. Another age of achievement has been compressed into a moment by the combination of courage, ambition and science. Restless human minds and bodies have been shot out over the top of the world in metallic torpedoes; another triumph has been registered by the rash impatience of men.

I. O. D. E. BACKS UP BEAUTY ISLAND

Chapter Regents Regret Passing of North London Spot.

The I. O. D. E. of the city is entering a protest in regard to the removal of the tiny square at the intersection of Richmond street and Central avenue. This was the spot which was being considered favorably by many of the members for the proposed cenotaph.

Mrs. A. E. Miller, regent of the Municipal chapter, would be sorry to see the little park go, although as yet she had not picked it out as a place for the cenotaph. She believes the cenotaph scheme is an excellent one, and hopes that it will be erected in London. The matter will probably come before the Municipal chapter meeting in June for further discussion.

"What a pity!" was the comment made by Mrs. F. J. Greenaway, regent of the Campbell Becher chapter, when she heard of the little park's removal. She suggests that it be replaced, after the road has been paved, and that it be elevated from the pavement, she believes, with stone steps leading up to it. This would make a suitable base for the proposed cenotaph and would add to the beauty of the spot.

Mrs. George MacDonald, regent of the Nicholas Wilson chapter, who first proposed the square at Central avenue and Richmond street as a site for the cenotaph, says that she feels very badly about its removal.

"It is the only little square we have in the city," she says. "I hope that they replace it, for it isa safety zone as well as a beauty spot at this corner."

Mrs. MacDonald suggests that the square might be made larger and perhaps oval in form, should it be replaced by the city.

Mrs. D. F. Campbell, regent of the C. E. F. Returned chapter, I. O. D. E., thinks that the removal of the square at this corner would be a disgrace to the city. It would be an ideal spot for the cenotaph.

Respecting prohibition, the convention desired to place itself on record as condemning "the evident laxity and corruption which has marked the government's administration of this law" and further that the convention favored enforcement of the law as long as it is on the statute books.

Concerning agriculture, the convention adopted a resolution favoring greater encouragement to this industry, the promotion of canning industries and promotion of wider markets.

Afternoon On a Hill

I will be the gladdest thing
Under the sun!
I will touch a hundred flowers
And not pick one.
I will look at cliffs and clouds
With quiet eyes,
Watch the wind bow down the grass,
And the grass rise.
And when the lights begin to show
Up from the town,
I will mark which must be mine,
And then start down!

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

Untangled Threads.

"My lady wanted me to leave it at the door of a foundling hospital. But it was a pretty child. I liked little girls, for Fanny's sake. I thought it would be good for the baby to grow up a lady. She was drugged with soothing syrup. I had her in an old school box of Sir Rawdon's. I'd made ventilation in it. I stopped the cab before another house. Then I carried the box a few doors farther on where the Hastes lived, and left it. My husband had come home some days before. He was in London, with money I'd given him, ready to go back to Canada. I gave him more money—and the boy. The young woman—the mother—I'd passed off at the court as a cousin of mine. We had her buried at Ardry-le-Mare. The servants supposed I'd taken the children to their relations in London. And the affair was forgotten. But never by me! I was not a murderess. Yet I suffered remorse. Sometimes I thought I should go mad. I was fascinated by the room where that Italian girl had died. My lady had to pension me off and send me away, for I was no longer of use to her. I brought Fanny up—and I supported myself through the years. My lady died, leaving word with her son to be good to me—I deserved gratitude. And he was good—though he never knew why I'd been left as a charge upon him. But a few months ago what money I had saved was lost—through my husband. Sir Rawdon offered me a place here as housekeeper. Fanny wished me to accept, and I yielded to her. Ah, if I had not! The old horror was soon back upon me!

"One day I could not keep my tongue still—after all those years. I blurted out the truth to Fanny. And I was overheard. It was in the tapestry boudoir I talked. Mr. Magnani was visiting in the house. He heard something — not all — but enough for him to use as blackmail. I became his slave. I've been his slave ever since."

Again Dagon had been right in saying that all—even the affair of Eve Carroll's disappearance — could be traced back to the same cause.

Magnani had always hated Rawdon, grudging him his place in the world and the money which would have belonged to him if his mother had not been jilted by the rich Englishman. He had wanted Rawdon to die; but when he learned Mrs. Gillett's secret, he would have tried to marry Pan for the sake of the Court if the papers proving her rights had not been destroyed. As for the money, it could come to her only through Rawdon's death, for it had mostly been made by Rawdon's father. Then Eve Carroll arrived upon the scene, and Magnani had fallen in love with her—in the one way he knew how to love. Besides, she was a great heiress. Even Rawdon's fortune was nothing compared with hers. But she had flirted a little, and—engaged herself to another man.

Mrs. Payntor was left as a last resort, but by this time Magnani was deeply involved in a plan that, with luck, should win him everything he wanted. Hidden Hall Court, Rawdon Wells' money (he meant to change his name legally to Wells later, for he'd already been naturalized as a British subject); and perhaps Eve Carroll, the great heiress, for his own; all without fear of suspicion falling upon him.

The awkward part, where his plans for Eve and himself were concerned, lay in the fact that they could not mature till the day she had become the wife of another man. This was because she could not be brought down to the Court until then. Her marriage to Haste, however, would not be an insuperable objection, for Magnani looked far ahead. He honestly believed (if it were in him to do anything honestly), that Eve had liked him once. All women liked him. Besides, he had discovered about her that she was not physically brave. Once he got her into the place he had prepared, and threatened her with a violent death if she resisted, he could force the girl to follow out a certain program. When it should be safe to do so, he would smuggle her in disguise out of her hiding place, and out of England. With his own mother (who still lived in a small town near Naples, supported by him), Eve could be safely left until Rawdon had been hanged for murder, and he—Paolo Magnani—had come into his inheritance.

After that—months after, when the affair had been half forgotten—the dead could return to life. Even that act in the drama was arranged in Magnani's mind. Mrs. Haste was to be found in a village in France, having lost her memory. What had happened on the night of the wedding would forever remain a mystery. She would recall nothing since a certain moment when she had left the music room and run out-of-doors to frighten Kennedy Haste, because they had talked of an old ghost story—the tale of the vanished bride. She would have taken a bitter distaste for her husband, and would go to America with her aunt, spend some months in a sanatorium. She would desire a divorce and get one in Reno, where such matters can be settled easily. No one would blame her for Rawdon's fate, as apparently she would have lost her reason temporarily.

After a decent interval, he, Paolo, would make love openly to Eve, and they would be married.

To bring these results to pass, Magnani had worked with care and ingenuity. (Even when all had failed at last, he still seemed proud of that!) He was popular in the neighborhood of Hidden Hall Court, and had "got hold of a constable at Ardry-le-Mare without difficulty. Fanny Gillett had promised her help for love of Kennedy Haste. (It was she who took Pandora back to the Court from the police station at Ardry-le-Mare, where the girl had been drugged.) And at first the plan had worked on oiled wheels.

Magnani had suggested the honeymoon invitation to Don, urging that it would "heap coals of fire" on Eve's head.

As for the bride's disappearance, that had been brought about with the utmost simplicity. He had been on the spot, playing the part of Marianti and had discussed with Fanny several ways of stage-managing the "vanishing" act. But having overheard Eve's suggestion to sing to her husband while the latter remained in the dining-room, it had seemed as if fate were playing into his hands. While the pair talked at the table of their first meeting at the Ritz, hurriedly he took off wig and makeup. And in his own character he had silently shown himself to Eve at the secret door in the paneling, his finger on his lip. Then, with a smile and an air of playful mystery, he had beckoned. Entering into the supposed joke, excited and curious, she had obeyed the summons. Even halfway down the concealed stairway she had willingly followed. There he had seized the girl, and pressing over her face a prepared mask filled with Rawdon's anesthetic, he had stifled her into unconsciousness. The rest—getting Eve down to the "hidden hall"—was not difficult. The one dangerous moment came when passing the laboratory. Rawdon was there, as Magnani knew better than anyone else. But the door was shut, and no contretemps happened. In the room with the unconscious girl he had replaced his white wig and a part of his damaged makeup. He had made a wound in his arm, according to plan, stained a boot of Rawdon's which he had secreted, and rushed upstairs to the tapestry boudoir in which, as it was seldom opened, he would be safe for a moment. As Dagon surmised, he had taken impression of Rawdon's fingerprints, having a plaster cast of his hand. All these materials, and the skeleton, Magnani had got ready for use in a different plan, but this chance had been too good to miss. Three minutes in the tapestry boudoir were enough. Paolo returned to the cellar, stuffed the skeleton (which he had waiting there in an unused box) and the pair of boots into the furnace fire, where already Rawdon had placed the leather bag. Then Magnani got to his own room, long before the alarm was given.

There he carefully renewed "Marianti's" damaged appearance, and was ready innocently to "discover" the open panel in the music room.

Pandora's taking upon herself Rawdon's supposed guilt was the first hitch in Magnani's program. He had done his best to thwart her by bribing the constable and commandeering Fanny's help. Mrs. Gillett had shown herself "tiresome," but she was in his power. Then it had been a serious blow when the skeleton had been proved to be that of a man. Magnani had, however, piled up more evidence against Rawdon, whom he still hoped to eliminate.

"And so I should have done," he finished at last, "if it hadn't been for that devil Dagon, and the girl Pandora. I have to thank those two for my ruin."

"And we have to thank them for our salvation," said Haste.

"Yes," sneered Magnani. "Yes, I suppose you sentimentals will now contrive to 'live happily forever after'—all five of you. Though I don't see how my dear Rawdon and the rightful heir can juggle the estates and title without the whole business coming out."

"Meaning me by the 'rightful heir'?" Dagon flung back. "Gosh, what would I do with a title? And I wouldn't have this wicked old ghost-ridden house for a gift. When I settle down I'll have a villa in Italy. But I'm hanged if I'll ever go to a movie show anywhere, for fear I see the grinning mug of Signor Paolo Magnani! My sister will be Lady Wells. That's enough for me. Any rights I might have in Hidden Hall Court I make over to her. Now I'm going to put you neck and crop out of this house, Magnani, in the company of Miss Gillett. Then we can begin the 'happy forever after' business. And the honeymoon can go on as if it had never been interrupted."

"Dagon, you're wonderful," said Rawdon Wells.

"Brother, I love you," said Pandora Haste.

King Eagle and Mrs. Eagle At Home With Their Children In a Tall Tree

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

On great, strong wings that carried him swiftly King Eagle headed for the Big Mountain and a certain tall pine tree that grew on the side of it. In that tree was the home of a king, his home. He is one king who does not live in a palace. Being one of the feathered folk, his home is a nest but such a nest as no other folk possess.

That home was older than Farmer Brown's Boy. Yes, sir; King Eagle and Mrs. Eagle were raising a pair of babies in that very nest when Farmer Brown's boy was born. It was smaller, much smaller then, but it was the very same nest, or at least a part of the very same nest, to which King Eagle was taking that fish now. It was the only home King Eagle had known since leaving the nest in which he was born. It was the home which he and Mrs. Eagle had started housekeeping in years ago. He loved every stick in it and so did she.

It was built chiefly of sticks. There were some big ones in the foundations. They had planned it to be their home always and so they had made those foundations in the great pine strong. Each year they had added something to the nest, so that now it was more than three times as big as it had been when they had sent their first children out into the Great World. And how they loved it!

King Eagle and Mrs. Eagle had mated for life. They believe in the home and that the true home depends on a partnership for life. So neither had ever had any other mate. Through good years and bad years, in times of plenty and in times of little food, they had remained true to each other and to their home, and each year they had sent two or three children out into the Great World.

Straight to his home flew King Eagle and there waiting for their breakfast were two hungry babies still more or less covered with white down through which the dark feathers were beginning to show. They had the hooked bills which Old Mother Nature gives only to those who must tear apart their food, and already they knew how to use them, as they soon proved on that fish. King Eagle watched them from a perch just outside the nest until presently he saw Mrs. Eagle headed that way with more food. Then with a last prideful look he started off to hunt once more.

"They take a lot of food, those two youngsters," said King Eagle, as he flew. "They take a lot of food and it takes a lot of hunting to get it. But they are worth all the trouble they cost and more. I have sent some fine children out into the Great World, but none finer than those two back there. (King Eagle said this very thing every year.) My, such appetites! I do hope their mother brought enough to fill them for a while. I'm getting rather hungry myself."

Meanwhile Mrs. Eagle had brought back a treat—a duck, from which she stripped the feathers and which she tore apart before giving to the Eaglets. For a while she rested. Then as the babies closed their eyes for a nap she, too, resumed hunting, for she knew that she must eat in order to keep well and fit to hunt for these growing children. Meat and fish they must have, and these could be obtained only by constant hunting. It would be weeks before these children could hunt for themselves.

GOVERNOR VISITS ILL NURSE TO PRESENT HER DIPLOMA

Propped Up With Pillows She Watches Classmates in Procession.

ONE IS MISSING

Behind all the beautiful flowers which were banked in colorful profusion against the stage of Convocation Hall yesterday afternoon, behind the congratulatory addresses from the lips of the lieut.-governor and local officials, and behind the gaiety of the reception which followed the Victoria hospital graduation exercises was a strain of sadness unnoted by the general public.

At the opposite end of the city, in a sick-room in Victoria hospital, another nurse was celebrating her graduation day. Although her uniform was a sick robe, she, too, received her diploma from the hands of the lieut.-governor, who made a special visit to the hospital to be able to perform this little act of graciousness.

Her room was a bower of flowers, graduation gifts, and when the nurses, all in uniform, left the hospital in a body to proceed to Convocation Hall, she was propped up in bed so that she could see them from her window. Hers, too, was a happy graduation day.

There was still another member of this class who should have received her diploma yesterday afternoon. This was Miss Gertrude Cahill, whom death called last summer. Her room-mate has placed her picture in the class-room at the hospital where the graduation pictures hang. And when the picture of the year 1925 is hung there, hers will be close beside.

Among the members of the graduating class is one who came all the way from Denver, Colorado, to graduate from Victoria hospital. This is Miss Madeline Fletcher Bucke, whose mother graduated from the London hospital some years ago. She was born in Mexico, and has a mining engineer for her father. It is interesting to note, too, that among the graduates is a namesake of Florence Nightingale, this time not Florence, but Emma Nightingale.

There were 161 accredited delegates in attendance at the meeting today, representing every auxiliary in the district. They were practically all unionists, and the organization will carry on the work in connection with the United church until the end of the year. This is the plan that has been adopted by the three churches entering the union, the idea being that, by the end of the present year, the mission boards of the respective churches will have the work perfected, and the activities will be merged under one organization.

Reports presented at the meeting today indicated that the past year has been one of the most successful in the history of the Presbytery. Mrs. Weir, of Ridgetown, the retiring president, presided over this afternoon's session, at which addresses were given by Mrs. D. McGillivray, a missionary from Shanghai, and the new president, Mrs. McRae. Rev. A. S. Why Men's Mothers and Wives Are Natural Enemies. Why Do Young Girls Prefer Older Men to Boys?

Dear Miss Dix—I am 25, and I am soon to be married to a young man to whom I have been engaged for four years. We get along perfectly together, are devoted to each other, and have every chance for happiness, except that I must live with his mother.

She has had her life blighted by an interfering mother-in-law, but it doesn't seem to have made her any more tolerant of me. Our ideas are diametrically opposite, and in four years' acquaintance and honestly trying to be friends, I cannot understand her, or like her, and I am sure she does not like me. She's not old, or financially dependent.

I cannot bear the thought of going into their home and causing trouble. Am I making a mountain out of a mole hill? Should I try to make the best of it?

APRIL.

Answer:

If you do not like your husband's mother before marriage, there is small chance of your coming to care for her when you are brought into daily and hourly contact in the home, and you are headed for trouble if you undertake to live with her.

Any man who asks his wife to live with his mother does both of them a cruel injustice, because he makes a situation that would try the virtues of two female angels, and which no two merely human women should be expected to cope with successfully.

Men don't understand what a home means to a woman. It is literally a woman's kingdom. It is the one tiny spot in all the big world where she is monarch of all she surveys; where she is the head, the authority; where she can exercise her taste and carry out her own ideas, and any stranger interferes with this at her peril. From the time a little girl child begins playing with toys and has her dollhouse with its miniature tables, and chairs, and beds, and cooking stove, she dreams of the real home she will have one day, and plans just how she will furnish it and run it.

It is this instinctive, not-to-be-suppressed yearning for her own home that makes it impossible for two women to live together in peace, especially when they are daughter-in-law and mother-in-law. The mother-in-law cannot give up the running of her home to another and sit down in silence while she sees her daughter-in-law incompetently doing things that she did expertly. The daughter-in-law cannot be happy doing things her mother-in-law's way instead of her own. So they quarrel and make themselves miserable, and make the poor man who loves them both more wretched still.

DOROTHY DIX.

* * * *

Dear Dorothy Dix—Why do girls seem to prefer older men to boys of their own generation? I am in love with a girl 18 years old, intelligent and holding a good position. I will not be in a position to marry until I complete my education and build up a good practice, say, five years from now. I have a rival who is about 35 years old and who is doing a good business, and I am afraid that he will win the girl away from me.

SOCK.

Answer:

I think you have answered your own question. The man of 35 is ready to marry and has something definite to offer the girl. A schoolboy has nothing, not even the certainty that he will still want to marry the girl after he has finished his education and studied his profession.

The chances are that five years from now you will smile when you think of the calf love that you had for this girl, and that you will have entirely outgrown her. If your education really educates you, you will see life from a very much broader standpoint than you do now, your tastes will have been cultivated and improved and you will desire a very different type of wife from the one that you would pick out today.

Chief among the women who help men are those who refuse to marry them when they are 20 years old, and in time to come you will look upon the man who is your rival today as the one who saved your life.

ZIMBALIST AND HEIFETZ HONOR A GREAT TEACHER

Tells of Thrilling Birthday Concert in Carnegie Hall, New York.

FOR LEOPOLD AUER

By JULIA HOYT.

New York, May 27.—A couple of weeks ago I spent an evening which was one of the most thrilling I have ever experienced. It was the evening which was chosen by Efram Zimbalist and Jascha Heifetz for the concert to honor Leopold Auer, their teacher, on his 80th birthday. As a matter of fact, Mr. Auer's birthday is June 7th, but as many of the artists and their followers will have left for other parts of the world by that time, they decided to celebrate it earlier.

I went to Carnegie hall, knowing that with the artists who were going to take part, it could not be other than a wonderful evening, but I did not realize how curiously thrilling, in fact exciting and moving, it would be. When Auer, a strange looking little old man, completely bald, but with a beard, and wearing horn-rimmed spectacles, walked on the stage with Zimbalist and Heifetz on either side of him, there was something in the picture that to me was very moving. The huge audience rose to its feet and gave him an ovation lasting at least three or four minutes.

Heifetz and Zimbalist, looking absurdly young beside him, banged their bows on their violins and smiled in a proud, and at the same time protective, way. When the applause finally died down the never-to-be-forgotten concert started with a trio played by Auer and his two star pupils.

Wonderful Program.

For the information of those who have not seen other accounts of the concert, I will give the list of artists. After the trio came Zimbalist accompanied by Ossip Gabrilowitsch, then Professor Auer accompanied Sergie Rachmaninoff. Next came Heifetz accompanied by Zimbalist, Josef Hofmann alone at the piano, and, finally, a duet by Zimbalist and Heifetz. It is easy to see that even had the reason for the occasion been a less moving one, the list of artists alone was enormously exciting.

It is understandable that Zimbalist and Heifetz would feel the urge to pay their respects to Professor Auer, but to me it is quite splendid how great artists who, personally speaking, owe him nothing, gladly turned out to pay him respect. To see Rachmaninoff playing the simplest accompaniments with as much care and interest as he has ever given to his own concerts, was an appealing sight. To see Gabrilowitsch turning the pages for him and, afterwards rendering the same service for Zimbalist, was entertaining as well as appealing.

I have always heard of the great jealousy existing among artists. Certainly the other night disproved that statement as far as these artists are concerned. Particularly is this so in the case of Zimbalist and Heifetz. Here are two young violinists who might conceivably have some feeling of competition. One had only to listen to them in their duet to see how much had no thought of trying to outplay the other, to know that no such feeling exists between them.

A Great Teacher.

Professor Auer has done a great deal for music. He has not only been a great violinist himself, but is known as the teacher of almost every great violinist alive today. I must confess to having been a little worried before Mr. Auer's solo. He had already played in a difficult trio and after all, eighty years is pretty old to go through such an experience as that evening must have been for him.

But I need not have worried. His tone is, undoubtedly not quite as full as in years gone by, but it is beautiful; his bowing is perhaps not quite as certain, but his pitch is sure, and his great artistry, his musical knowledge and feeling are all there, and one could feel nothing but respect and admiration for him.

At the close of the concert the audience quite naturally called for Auer, and the announcement was made that he was much fatigued and had left the hall. I afterwards heard that the people back stage had been worried by his exhaustion after his solo. However, when they arrived for supper at his house he not only had recovered sufficiently to be there to greet them, but insisted on staying up until three in the morning, and, as one guest expressed it, "he had more pep than any of us."

It was a memorable evening, and one which will certainly not soon, if ever again, be duplicated.

WEDDINGS

SANDERSON—WILLIAMSON.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in St. Andrew's church at 7 o'clock Saturday night last, when Miss Lavina Ida Williamson, daughter of Mrs. E. A. Williamson of William street, became the bride of Mr. John Inglis Sanderson, also of London, the Rev. D. C. MacGregor officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Cecil Williamson, was charmingly gowned in peach-colored georgette, a small sand hat of satin and carried a bridal bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Carrie Parker, as bridesmaid, was prettily gowned in apple green canton crepe, a gray hat, and corsage of sweetpeas and roses. Mr. Frederick Powers attended the groom.

The wedding music was furnished by Mr. Charles Wheeler, organist of the church. Among the out-of-town guests was Miss Sanderson of Toronto, aunt of the groom.

Following the ceremony a delightful wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's mother, the happy couple leaving yesterday for a trip up the lakes. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson will reside at 223 Erie street west, Windsor.

A very interesting report of the recent convention was given before the members of Victoria Lodge, No. 120, L. A. to B. of R. T., last night, by Mrs. T. Kelley, the official delegate, who returned from Cleveland on Tuesday. A telegram from the B. of R. T., No. 240, invited the members to attend a picnic at Springbank on July 23.

A happy feature of the evening was the presentation of a past president's pin to Mrs. E. E. Rodgers, and a bouquet of flowers, as a birthday memento to Mrs. W. Smith, the secretary. At the close of the meeting a social hour was spent and supper served by Mrs. Smith.

WEDS ON MAY 13 WITH 13 MAIDS

Dayton, Ohio, Bride Defies Superstition on Marriage Day.

(Copyright.)

New York, May 27.—A good many young women think they are tempting fortune sufficiently when they marry, and Englishwomen in general consider May an unlucky month in which to enter the bond of matrimony. But Miss Alice O'Brien of Dayton, Ohio, in London today became the bride of Capt. Leonard Walkley, not only on the 13th of May, but wore a green wedding gown, carried peacock feathers, and was attended by 13 bridesmaids.

The black coat and gray trousers, once a favorite masculine combination, has been adopted into the feminine fashion fold. Ten o'clock in Central park sees scores of tailored suits jauntily worn. Many of these have a short dark jacket and a plain gray skirt. In conjunction with these are worn rather heavy walking shoes of dark tan, dark brown stockings and a small, rolled brim, pull-on felt hat. A shirt blouse with a bow tie completes the costume.

Bigger Bankoks.

Bankoks are bigger. That is the latest trend in fashion about headgear. This popular straw braid is now appearing in high flat-topped crowns with medium wide down-turned brims. The latter are bound in felt of a contrasting shade and simply trimmed with a felt band of harmonizing hue. But only a person with an oval face should wear one.

The latest powder puff being included in the smartest handbags and toilet cases in V-shaped. This construction enables the bearer to apply the powder easily to the nose and below the eyes without distributing it broadcast over all her features.

Embroidered Necklace.

The embroidered necklace now, it is likely to adopt that decoration for evening frocks when Charlots Revue comes back to town. For both Miss Gertrude Lawrence and Miss Beatrice Lillie (Lady Peel), who are so popular in America now, are wearing frocks which feature that adornment. One frock Miss Lawrence wears is of filmy white chiffon, embroidered with a scintillating necklace in quaint horseshoe design. The necklace continues down the back of the frock in the form of pennons ending in long tassels.

Mr. and Mrs. John Saunders and family spent the holiday with friends at Dorchester.

A WOOLEN BLANKET

AS YOU KNOW

is one of the "fussiest" of the articles that you have to wash. Wool won't stand boiling-hot water, doesn't like going through a wringer, cannot be dried at high temperature—indeed, unless you handle a woolen blanket "just so" it's going to harden, shrink and "felt." It's hard work to wash blankets, and then you're never sure just how they're going to "come out."

At a cost of over $2,000, we have installed machinery that renews your blankets like new. Come in and we'll show you one we have done. Then we know you'll send yours here. A money-back guarantee of satisfaction.

If a Six weeks old Baby Could Talk

What would your little one say on the food question?

If nursed, it would be a happy story, for no food can excel that supplied by Nature.

But the infant on Eagle Brand is a contented cherub, too. He would tell you how he looks forward to his feedings, how he relishes each bottle. He'd assure you Eagle Brand agreed with him; you'd know it did because it is always of the same richness and strength, so easily digested—and safe because of its absolute purity.

Eminent physicians, experienced nurses and millions of mothers are agreed that Eagle Brand is the one safe food for bottle-fed babies. And if further proof were required it exists in the fact that Eagle Brand has served three generations.

St. Thomas, May 27.—Three big innings made up of bunched hits were all the St. Thomas intermediates needed to chalk up their second win of the season and hand the Orients their third successive defeat here today. The count read 11 to 8.

Both the starting hurlers were hit hard and were forced to run for the showers under a cluster of blows. Balkwell, who took up the mount duties for the visitors, received his call at the end of the fifth, three singles and a double, bringing in three runs, doing the trick, while Scott relieved Arlien halfway through the eighth, after the Forest City crew gathered in a run by means of two healthy swats.

London broke into the scoring column in the third. Balkwell started the fireworks with a single into left. Gray was given a free pass. Roberts made a bad play on Finlayson's liner to center, and everybody was safe. Southcott sacrificed Balkwell across the plate, and Christopher hit a smoker at Slater to bring in the other two. Cooper popped out.

The locals came back in their half of the third with six runs that started Balkwell on his way out. Black started off with a single to left. Arlien drew a walk. Slater's choice cut off Black at second, but Oliver's hit into center brought in Arlien, and an error by Hall on Crawley's bounder put Slater across. Balkwell had Dodson whiffing at three bad ones, but threw the last one into the dug-out. Crawley scoring. Hogan's intended sacrifice went for a safety when Finlayson hurled the ball ten feet over Burgess' head. Roberts went out, Southcott to Burgess. Balkwell threw another into the dug-out while trying to get one across to Udell, and Hogan counted. Black ended the inning by grounding out.

The visitors tried hard to even it up, getting one more run in the fifth, two in the eighth and two in the final frame, but the locals sandwiched five runs in between, enough to give them the game.

EASTERN GOLFERS QUALIFY FOR NATIONAL TOURNEY

Associated Press Despatch.

Long Beach, N. Y., May 27.—Seventy-four leading golfers of the east and Emmet French of Youngstown, Ohio, who had no fears of the difficult Lido course and came east to qualify, passed their first test in the eastern district trial rounds of the national open golf tournament today. They played their 18 hole allotments in 83 or better, thereby assuring their participation in the second half of the necessary 36, which will be played on Friday.

MacDonald Smith, touted as the winner of the open championship, set a furious pace today, posting an exceptional seventy, in which he scored six birdies. He was two under par for the round, breaking the competitive record of 71.

GOLF BALLS

Different makes have different actions

stick to your favorite brand

and

Eliminate much poor play

By ABE G. ESPINOSA, One of America's Leading Professionals.

If a player is using a certain make of ball with good results, it is unwise for him to change. This is especially true just before a match, as a change at that time may hold disastrous results. There is a great deal of difference in the action of the different makes of balls, particularly on the greens, where touch is a vital factor. It is an easy matter to see what is likely to happen where a player has accustomed himself to the action of one kind of ball and he suddenly tries to use another brand without allowing for a change in action. If a switch is contemplated, enough time should be spent in practice with the new ball to learn its peculiarities.

LONDON MINT TEAM COMES NEARER TOP BY TRIMMING FLINT

Pete Harris Again Obliges With Real Support Behind Him.

BEAUCOUP POISE

Outfielders Called On To Make Only Four Putouts.

IKE Baker's Tecs detonated off extra base knocks and timely blows under the myth that the locals can't hit southpaw pitching yesterday afternoon, and a 4—2 win over Flint came down after the explosion was over.

They hit the old delusion on the nose especially hard when they elected to choose Lefty Fiegert as the victim of their demonstration.

"Two Gun" Pete Harris turned in another win to his string yesterday. Pete took the liberty of spotting the heavy hitting Vehics to a man on the paths in every inning but one, but showed so much stuff and poise in front of the support accorded him that only four outs went into the outer works. Three fast double plays and smart fielding kept Pete out of difficulties otherwise.

Tice Jahn worked around to third and was left there stranded as Harris tightened up, and his support rallied in. Jahn whanged a triple to start the second, and then the next three were outed infield plays. In the fourth Jahn burned one at Sandquist, who, in the necessary hurry, overthrew first, the runner taking third. The best Loepp could do was to hit at Baker, who sniped him off.

Pull Double Play.

The Flinters varied this with the old army game of squeezing them around, but in the third Sandquist pulled down Trefry's line drive and caught Hruska off second for a double play, and in the sixth with Trefry on second after being shoved there by a sacrifice. Brower made a brilliant run to pull in Tice's long drive from off the chalk line course it was taking uptown, and Harris forced Jahn to slice one at Cross.

Meantime the locals found two of three walks issued by Lefty Fiegert the open sesame to opportunity, and they improved the shining hours with timely blows. In the third Klein drew a pass, and Stimpson caromed a hit off Fiegert. Cross singled to left, Klein scoring, and Stimpson being called out at the plate. Umpire Agur was premature, as Fiegert, covering the plate, was feet—not inches—from tagging Stimpson, who had hooked away from the putout.

Another "Homer" For Jim.

Brower drew a walk to start the seventh, and Sunny Jim Kernan poled out a homer that went for three bases. Kernan was scored by Vermilyea's single to centre. Vermilyea went to second as Fiegert tried to snipe him off first, but Harris, who dropped a short fly into centre field, was robbed the second time in the game, when Dunn dizzied away back and came out of the whirl with the ball.

Stimpson's double and Cross' triple gave the Tecs their last tally in the eighth and marked the second time in this game the two had bracketed their hits. A nice play by Trefry on Brower's drive to left saved further scoring.

Trefry's infield hit put the batter on second, when Vermilyea tried the almost unplayable and overthrew first. He scored, when Tice ripped out a double that almost tore third base from its moorings.

Loepp opened up the ninth with a sharp triple which Stimmie chased to the ditch, and Kuhel's long sacrifice fly to right counted it in. Welsh, who hit singled in Fiegert's place in the fifth, grounded to the box, and Hruska popped to Vermilyea.

Lucan Juveniles Here Tomorrow

Meet Orient Youngsters in Elgin-Middlesex Tilt.

The Orient juveniles will play their second game of the Elgin-Middlesex league against the Lucan youngsters at Queen's Park tomorrow night. The locals won their first start of the season at Strathroy last Monday and turned the trick handily, which should mean another victory on Friday, as the Strathroy kids were picked as the group winners before the season started. Manager Harold Doidge has rounded up most of the best prospects in the city and they are working together in fine style. They have the fight that means winning ball games and never give up. Maloney, a left-hander, is the mainstay of the hurling staff. He has lots of stuff and speed to burn. With Moralee behind the plate holding him up he is hard to beat.

The infield works smoothly at all times and fails to get excited, while the outfielders are a likely looking trio that know how to hit as well as chase anything that gets past the inner garden.

MISS JOYCE WETHERED, retained the British ladies' golf title by defeating Miss Cecil Leitch at Troon, Scotland, in the final last week. It was a great match and was decided on the 37th green.

Pirates Defeat St. Thomas Nine

Squeeze Play in Last Inning Decides Game.

The Pirate juveniles opened their season with a victory last night, when they won 4—3 from the St. Thomas Comets at Queen's Park.

A squeeze play in the last inning gave the locals the game. With the count tied Ellis was hit by a pitched ball. He stole second and third. Buskard walked. Evans squeezed a bunt toward the pitcher, and Ellis tallied.

Rumble got the longest hit of the game when he drove the ball over the center fielder's head for a home run, scoring Bennett ahead of him. Taylor, the visitors' first sacker, was accountable for the Comets' runs. In the first frame he doubled, scoring Smith. In the fifth Smith counted on Taylor's triple. He scored the tieing run in the seventh.

Among the fielding features that stood out was a triple play by the Pirates. Pullin and Knight were on first and second, when Stewart hit a hot liner that looked like a clean hit. Player grabbed it, and the base runners were caught off the sacks.

Rumble's wildness in the last spasm accounted for the Saints' last run. Through an error and three walks a run was forced across.

SOCCER KICK-OFFS

By LINESMAN

The soccer game between London Garrison and C. N. R. is to be played tonight at Carling Heights at 6 o'clock. This game is the first round of the injured players' competition. The Railroaders are the present holders of the Thomas Furniture trophy and will make a big effort to repeat this season, but the soldiers are determined to give them a hard game, so that tonight's tilt should be interesting, and a big crowd should turn out to help swell the injured players' fund.

Saturday should see the Sackville street grounds with a capacity crowd as it has been decided to have the day set apart for Bill Hazelwood, who broke his leg in the first game of the season, and it will be quite a time before he will be able to get around again. Bill has many friends and is popular with all soccer fans in the London district, and it is to be hoped that everyone will be on hand or contribute to the funds for the benefit of so popular a player and his family. The game is between the local C. N. R. team and the Toronto C. N. R.'s and the kick-off will be at 2:30. There is no other game in London on Saturday, and as the Toronto team is a strong side the game should be attractive. Anyone wishing to contribute to the funds should communicate with H. Poole, secretary, C. N. R. shops.

The game at Westminster on Monday was an interesting affair and the Glencoe lads created a favorable impression with their display against the medicos. The latter were experimenting and Burgess and Mair were the left wing pair, the former getting a goal.

McKellar, the Glencoe center, is a smart player, and netted all three goals for his side, while Lovell, in goal, gave a great display, one of the best seen this season.

SONS OF ENGLAND LOSE TO WOODSTOCK COLLEGE

Woodstock, May 27. — The college eleven kept up their good record by whitewashing the Sons of England 2—0, at Victoria Park tonight in a city league football game. Lane scored the first goal at ten minutes, Linton following with a well-aimed kick.

College—Goal, Janes; backs, Fisher and Dolson; halves, Smith, Johnson and Law; forwards, Linton, Monteis, Gifford Lane and Waltho.

Sons of England—Goal, Jones; backs, Mountney and Smith; halves, Newell, South and Marshall; forwards, Ritchie, Dorken, R. Harcourt, Scott and Baines.

ENTRY DATE IS EXTENDED IN NORTHERN GIRLS' LOOP

Palmerston, May 27.—James Mahoney of this town, president of the Northern ladies' softball league, announced tonight that entries would be received by Secretary M. E. Wilson, Moorefield, until June 1. It is more than likely that at least two large groups will be playing in the new league.

On the Side Lines With C.S.G.

There is no end to the angles of baseball nor the records that may be hung up. But while it may be slightly novel that London has lost its only games of the season to the number of nine by lone-run margins, it's not the type of a record the locals are out to set.

Nurmi has had his Hel-ffrich upon earth, and his victor perhaps a thrill such as he will not experience again. Bravo Paavo!

THE DERBY.

Another Derby Day has gone.

Steve Donoghue has shown once again how much the ride counts when the race is as open as yesterday's event was.

But after all the result and the actual happenings of the Derby are insignificant as compared with the Derby as an event.

Derby Day next to Christmas is the day of all the year which most saddens the heart of the Britisher in exile from the old land, yet quickens the pulses of those who claim Anglo-Saxon kinship.

It is an event of Empire. None can doubt that it is one that tightens the bonds of that vast structure upon which the sun never sets.

It personifies year after year a good many of the finest traditions upon which the Empire is founded.

It is at once the smartest social event of the season and the most democratic.

Be-plumed 'Arriett rubs elbows with 'Ighnesses whose 'aughtiness has been dropped, like a mask, for the day and the pearl-buttoned 'Arrys meets the Reginalds of truth and stage portrayal on common ground, and all in between jostle in that friendly spirit which marks British crowds.

The Coster invasion of Epsom Downs for Derby Day must always be its most colorful feature.

Times have changed for the landed aristocracy and hunting squires with which the traditions of the Derby are bound up, but the Coster except for the externals—a few more pearl buttons perhaps and a few more expletives added to a vocabulary already rich and sulphurous—is the same in heart and outlook as he was when the Derby started a century and a half ago.

* * * *

"God Save the King—and the Derby" isn't as irreverent as it may, at first, sound.

* * * *

THE MENTAL SIDE OF BASEBALL.

Minor league clubs are having their customary trouble with rookies sent out for added experience by the majors. Pitchers picked up by the big league scouts have been unable to stop the hitting in Classes A and B. Infielders have not been fast enough. Outfielders have done good hitting, chiefly because they trained in the south. But the real trouble has been in the lack of mentality. A minor league manager the other day who was paying $300 a month to a major league rookie, sent him for farming, spoke feelingly. "That fellow is going back east tomorrow," said the manager. "He isn't worth $300 or half that sum. He can't think. He hits well, and he fields well. But when he gets on the bases, well—it's terrible to look at him. Only last week he was on second base, and a long fly went to right field. We needed the run. He left second all right, but instead of running to third, he got half way there, then turned back. The fielder dropped the ball and the runner should have scored. Instead, we never got the run and lost the game. He turned that trick before. So I'm through." The player went back, too.

Another major league club of the east sent a ball player into the Michigan-Ontario league two weeks ago. He hit beautifully, and his fielding was not bad. But as a base-runner, he was the rankest sort of an amateur. His ball club was six runs behind the other day, and the ball game half over. The opposing pitcher was wild and the player walked. He was the first man up. Two wide pitches were made on the following batsman, when lo and behold, this major league youngster was seen stealing second base. The catcher of the other club was so surprised he never made an attempt to retire him. "Guess he got his signals all mixed up," the catcher remarked to the batter with a grin. And what do you suppose the base-runner said after he had been hit home? "I thought you gave me the hit-and-run signal," he told the batsman. There he was in hot water for the second time within the space of a few minutes. The hit-and-run never is put on with a team so far in the ruck. Straightaway hitting only is the thing. This is another sample of major league youngsters who would burn up the minors.

CASEY DETOURS AGAIN.

"Mr. Casey Stengel," writes W. O. McGeehan, "is about to take the detour to the minors. It is not as sad as it might seem on first consideration. Mr. Stengel has seen life in the big time as few have seen it. He has been shifted from club to club in the National league, and he played something more than a minor part in three world series. Also he served with the Oriental expeditionary forces sent to demonstrate the national pastime to the natives of Japan, China and the Philippines.

The passing of Mr. Stengel to the minors was foreshadowed even at the height of his career. His dogs failed him at a great crisis. It was during a world series between the Giants and the Yankees. Mr. Stengel struck a mighty blow to the limits of the park. If it had gone into the bleachers all would have been well. But the ball remained in the park and the test of Mr. Stengel's dogs began.

Mr. Stengel used all his speed. He was wobbling as he rounded second. He was tottering as he passed third. But, though his aching dogs complained and wanted to give up the race, Mr. Stengel sternly drove them along the course until he forced them across the plate for a home run. Then he collapsed. Or, rather, the dogs collapsed and refused to do any more work for the year.

This particular home run was the climax of a season in which Mr. Casey Stengel astounded the customers of all of the baseball parks. Before joining the Giants, Mr. Stengel had been as shopworn ivory by at least four clubs in the National league. The verdict was, "Casey Stengel is through. Or, at any rate, his dogs are through."

But Mr. Stengel demurred. "There's life in the old dogs yet," he insisted. Mr. John Joseph McGraw listened and sympathized. Mr. Stengel, the "Little Orphan Casey," of organized baseball, was taken in trade by the Giants.

The news reached Mr. Stengel while he was with the Phillies. Immediately he proceeded to pack his wardrobe trunk. "Why the hurry?" he was asked. "You are not due to join the Giants until tomorrow."

"Do you think that I am going to give McGraw time enough to change his mind?" demanded Mr. Stengel. He caught the first train to New York and was at the Polo grounds before even Mr. Henry Fabian had risen to water his lawns. Mr. Stengel's performance with the Giants that year is baseball history. The Giants that year had even worse pitching than they have had before or since. It was necessary for them to batter through to a pennant by main force with their bats. One of the mightiest of the bats was that of Mr. Casey Stengel, the discarded.

Colts Outhit Saginaw Aces But Go Under By 3-0 Score

ARTHUR FLETCHER, manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, has done something for his team that has not been achieved in Philadelphia since the days of Pat Moran. Not since the beginning of the present season have the Phillies been lower than fifth place at the week-end, and in 1924 there was never a week-end that they got that high. All during May last season they were in eighth place. Thus far in this May, they have been in fourth, fifth and third place, and they were in third place last, which shows they are on the way up. Baseball fans begin to realize that the work of the Phillies is the biggest stunt that is being pulled off in baseball this year. They are not in first place but they are not in eighth place, and never have they been there on a week-end since the season began.

Petrolea, May 27.—The local junior baseball team defeated the Point Edward intermediates for the third time this season last evening by a score of 7 to 6 in a splendid exhibition game. Kiddo was touched for twelve hits, three being triples, while Isber allowed ten hits. The juniors appear to have struck their stride, and will make a strong bid for the county honors.

Skeeters' Win From Baltimore Club Puts Climbing Leafs In First Position

Fifteenth Straight Victory Puts Toronto Leafs On Top As Skeeters Beat Orioles

Charlie Gehringer Again Hero at Bat With Brace of Doubles.

READING WINS

Bisons Take Twin Bill From the Stars at Buffalo.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 27.—Brilliant fielding behind the erratic pitching of "Hoot" Gibson saved the day for the Leafs, and they defeated Rochester by 8 to 4 and ran their winning streak up to fifteen successive games. The tribe gathered fourteen hits off Gibson, but the Leafs' infield executed four double plays and killed the tribe's chances of taking a commanding lead. Gehringer was the batting hero, getting doubles in the fourth and fifth innings, when the Leafs scored one and five runs, respectively.

Both Fisher and Maley held the hits down to a few. Kelly hit a homer in the first, Anderson in the second, the latter coming with Spencer on second. Holm made five of his team's total hits. CHARLES FLINT RHEM, from South Carolina, rookie pitcher of the St. Louis Nationals, is by far the most amazing pitcher of the year. It was he who recently set the Giants down with an 8 to 0 score, the first "goose egg" ever administered this year to the league leaders.

DIAMOND GLINTS

The biter was bitten.

Manager Hruska will continue to operate the southpaw wrackett, and Montgomery will probably step in today.

* * *

Stimpson and Cross when the rest of the club were not hitting in Flint were able to brackett their hitting behind good pitching, sufficiently to keep the Tecs in the hunt until every ninth inning. They did it yesterday again and then punch appeared in the other end of the batting order when James Kernan got his triple and Vermilyea came through.

* * *

Nothing but a total breakdown of the works behind him could have beaten Harris yesterday. Harris' dominance was in the air.

After Lefty Alton, who reported here Tuesday in mistake for a right-hand hitting outfielder, was seen in action yesterday, Mike Baker advised quick work with the check book, and President Heard took the hint.

Alton is the property of the Nashville club, with which the local club has lingering dealings in which Lee Mackey, Pete Harris, Connie Fields and Turk Eiffert were involved.

He hit .300 with Nashville last year as a pitcher and outfielder, but reported here from the Terre Haute Three-Eye Club.

Fragile Burleigh Horne, former Saginaw-Port Huron-Sarnia pitcher, who went to Rochester last season, was seriously injured Tuesday while pitching against Syracuse. Horne had Syracuse well beaten in the seventh when he was hit by a batted ball from Griffith's bat and was carried from the field. He was taken to the club house first and then removed to a hospital on a stretcher. It is feared he has a ruptured liver.

Outfielders capable of hitting .300 or over each season usually are not long out of work. In Flint there is one—a free agent. He is Steve Cozington, youthful giant, who has been turned loose by the Decatur club of the Three-Eye league. Dan O'Leary, former manager of the Flint Vehics, gave Steve his papers Saturday as a friendly act after directors of the club had ruled that Cozington was of no use to the team. It remains to be seen whether the Decatur club made a blunder. Beyond all question the club has made a mistake. It could have used Cozington in a good trade, or it could have sold him. More than that, it should have kept him. For consistent .300 hitters are not to be found every day.

Cozington came to Flint in an effort to land with some club in the Mint league, where his work is well known. The big obstacle, of course, is the advancing season and completed rosters. He blames the cold weather of the Three-Eye territory for his failure to get started. "I played in the winter league of California and turned in an average of over .500," said Steve. "When I joined Decatur, after being sold by Saginaw, I caught cold. For a week I was in bed. I batted .750 in three games when I returned, then was taken out and never given another chance." Cozington said O'Leary treated him royally, but was unable to convince ten directors of the club that Cozy was the ball player his records show. So Steve is here, looking for a job.

SPEEDERS GATHER FOR INTERNATIONAL

Drivers Tune Up For Dizzy 500-Mile Grind Saturday.

Special to The Advertiser.

Indianapolis, May 27.—An extreme air of confidence pervades gasoline alley at the Indianapolis motor speedway, where the thirteenth international 500-mile automobile race will be held next Saturday, starting at 10 a.m.

All of the drivers have gone about their preparation with an air of bravado that betokens complete satisfaction with their mounts.

Never before in the history of the famous auto derby has there been a paralleling practice period. Drivers appear at the track, clad in their Sunday best every day, peep in on their cars, and then go away to a gymnasium to toughen muscles for the long, battering grind of Saturday.

That speed will be the order of the day is a foregone conclusion with the rapid laps that are being turned in. The star drivers are fooling each other by not driving an entire lap at speed. They post members of their crew between two points and try for speed, then slow down at another part of the track so that rivals clocking them will be thrown off.

However, it is safe to say that there are five crack drivers who will be piloting cars that will be less than one mile an hour different in speed when the starter waves his red "go" flag.

Jules Ellingboe, a star performer on the Indianapolis track, has been named to pilot Jerry Wonderlich's mount, while Jerry, the owner, will run the pit and be ready to give Ellingboe relief should he need it.

Ira Vail and Ora Haibe are both mentioned as the man up on the R. & J. special, which was rebuilt after Reggie Johnson cracked it up at Charlotte. Vail, the "human cotter pin" of racing, probably will have the call.

Tommy Alley, of auburn thatch and Oldfield cigar, is nominated to skip the Kess-Line special over the bricks, and Nick Eckerle will be at the helm of the Rotary special if the St. Louis car can be made to move rapidly enough to qualify.

Charles Shambaugh and his barn-built Lafayette, Ind., entry is causing commotion at the track and as yet Shambaugh has not pointed out his driver. During practice he has been tooling the mount himself.

Eddie Edenburn, the little man with the big job of "running the race" from a technical standpoint—he being the A. A. A. representative—has arrived and is perfecting his organization for the big drive.

BOTHWELL TOO FAST FOR NEWBURY TEAM

Special to The Advertiser.

Newbury, May 27.—The Newbury baseball team suffered its first defeat of the season last evening in Bothwell, when the heterogeneous nine representing the oil town outwinded the locals in a run-getting fracas of long duration, the final score being 20 to 10. Tobias for Bothwell pitched well, while Fisher and Connely for Newbury were batted hard. The M. K. L. league standing now is: Thamesville, won 1, lost 0; Newbury, won 1, lost 1; Bothwell, won 1, lost 1; Florence, won 0, lost 1.

CHESLEY WINS, 24-1.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chesley, May 27.—The first game of baseball in the Bruce league played in Chesley today between Kincardine and Chesley resulted in a 24-1 victory for the home team. It was a runaway game for Chesley. The visitors never had a chance.

Batteries: Chesley, McCartney and Hoeflin; Kincardine, Wilson, Cottrill and Anderson. Umpires, McKay. Kincardine, and Ferguson, Chesley.

MEUSEL'S HOMER WINS FOR YANKS

Senators Beat the Athletics Through Joe Harris' Great Hitting.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 27.—New York staged a slugfest in the sixth inning today, scoring four runs and defeating Boston 4 to 3. Bob Meusel's tenth home run of the season, with two on bases, featured the Yankees' productive inning.

SENATORS WIN.

Associated Press Despatch.

Philadelphia, May 27.—Washington helped the Philadelphia Mackmen dedicate their new park here this afternoon and then won an old-fashioned hitting bee by 10 to 9. Joe Harris' two homers, one in the fourth with none on and one in the fifth with two on, helped batter Slim Harris from the peak, and his triple in the eighth gave the visitors a tally that prevented the Athletics' two runs in the eighth from tying the score.

TYGERS LOSE.

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, May 27.—Chicago bunched hits today on a trio of Detroit pitchers and defeated the visitors, 10 to 6. Robertson blew up in the sixth inning and had to be relieved by Thurston. Catches by Cobb and Hooper were features. Bassler was hit on the knee by a foul tip, and had to retire from the game.

INDIANS WIN IN TENTH.

Associated Press Despatch.

St. Louis, May 27.—George Uhle had the better of Ernest Wingard in a pitching duel, and the Cleveland Indians defeated the St. Louis Browns today, 4 to 2, in a ten-inning game. L. Sewell's triple and Lee's double were instrumental in scoring the winning runs.

Cricket Season Opens This Week

St. George's Meet St. Thomas Eleven On Saturday.

The Southwestern cricket league will be officially opened in this district on Saturday, when St. George's Society will meet the St. Thomas eleven at Springbank Park. Mayor Wenige will declare the season open by bowling the first ball at 2:45.

The game has made rapid strides in Ontario during the past two years and indications point to 1925 being a record year for London, with three teams already in the running and a fourth, Westminster Hospital, now being organized.

The Canadian National, Westminster, St. George's Society and the Ontario Hospital all have strong outfits and the race should be a close one.

ADMITS WESTMINSTER

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, May 27.—The Southwestern Ontario cricket league has added an eighth team to its membership, an application made by the Westminster Hospital club of London, having been accepted. As under the seven-team league one team was without a match each Saturday, the latest entry is welcomed, as it will even up the games. A schedule is being prepared whereby the Westminster club will meet each of the other seven clubs in home and home league matches.

Billy Godfree, George Scott and Howard Arnold were the first second and third riders respectively to finish in the money in last night's London bicycle club's 7½ mile handicap race to Crumlin and return. Godfree, who was the youngest rider entered, and who consequently was given the top handicap of seven minutes, finished in 26 minutes 15 seconds. Scott was only a wheel's length behind. Arnold came third in 25:53.

The fastest time of the race was made by F. Caton, who, from scratch, covered the distance in the remarkably good time of 19:47.

Thistles Beaten By McCormicks

The McCormick ladies defeated the S. & I. Thistles last evening at the Federal Square in a major softball league title by a 10 to 8 score. It was a close, interesting game all the way through. The Thistles staged a three-run rally in the last inning and looked good for a few more. J. Waide pitched good ball for the losers but weakened in the fourth and fifth, and the biscuit lassies took advantage, gathering four runs in each, but in the last two frames she received perfect support. A. Townsend pitched good ball for the winners until the fourth, when P. McCreedy replaced her. The second tosser did not do so well, as the Thistles seemed to hit her more easily. V. Summers at second showed up very well for the winners. The teams:

S. & I. Thistles—D. Thorne, 1b.; B. Williamson, s.s.; A. Speiran, c.; S. Raughty, c.f.; M. Colbert, 2b.; H. Millen, 3b.; E. Bamford l.f.; R. Curnoe, c.f.; A. Percy, r.f.; J. Waide, p.

Seniors To Play Here Saturday

The London seniors battle Brantford Cordage here on Saturday afternoon in the first home game the locals have had for some weeks.

Brantford Cordage defeated the locals in twelve innings, and Braund's Braves are out to wipe out the memory of defeat.

The locals have yet to register a win, but point out that three of their losses have been by one run margins. They believe that Saturday will see the turn of the tide.

The local line-up will not be changed from that which has taken part in the last two games.

No choice of pitchers has been made, but all are in fine shape. Coach Gil Forgue gave the team a drilling last night.

Hams Over Salary Limit, Claims Mint President

STEVE DONOGHUE,
famous English jockey, won the famous turf classic at Epsom Downs yesterday on Manna, with Zionist second and The Sirdar third. This is Donoghue's sixth win of the Derby, his record being as follows:

1915—Pommern (run at Newmarket).
1917—Gay Crusader (run at Newmarket.)
1921—Humorist (run at Epsom).
1922—Captain Cuttle.
1923—Papyrus.
1925—Manna.

Donoghue is the leading English rider and one of the great jockeys of the decade. He came to America in 1923 and rode Papyrus in the match race at Belmont park on Oct. 20 with Zev. Donoghue was presented with gold spurs in 1923 after winning three successive Derbies.

Halligan Gives This As Reason For Clippers Being Ahead.

LEAGUE STRONGER

T. J. Halligan, president of the Mint league, was a spectator at yesterday's game. He stopped over en route from Hamilton, where he saw the Hams perform against the Aces.

Incidentally he took occasion to say right out in meeting that the Hamilton club must be away above the salary limit. These things are usually said behind closed doors, but T. J. had his say right out in the open.

"You can't tell me that Hamilton isn't cheating somewhere," said the prexy after the game. "They're getting away from the reduced salary limit somehow. That team of theirs is a high-class ball club, too good for this league, and they must be paying real money to hold such ball players."

Halligan mentioned that players like Judd, who was purchased from an International league team, would hardly play in a class B league without a fair sort of salary.

"If I were the owner of the club, my salary list would be in accordance with the league ruling," he said. "The other clubs are down, sticking inside the limit, and that's the reason the Hamilton club is out in front now."

Whether the club is paying salaries that make the payroll top-heavy, no one knows but the officials of the club, but as far as they are concerned everything is according to Hoyle. There has been no deviation from league rulings, according to Hamilton reports, and there will not be at any time, and on the other hand they have no intention of weakening the team when it is not necessary.

President Halligan has a slight feud on with President Heard, which was ruffling him somewhat, but otherwise was more enthusiastic than he has ever been about the Mint league. Every city in the loop is showing increased attendance over last year's figures and the weather has not been too kind at that.

The difference between President Heard and the league prexy has to do with the percentage division for visiting clubs.

It involves a ruling in the constitution and when the question was submitted to Mike Sexton, czar of the minors, the local boss was awarded a decision on points.

PALMERSTON TEAM TIES WITH MOUNT FOREST 1-1

Special to The Advertiser.

Palmerston, May 27.—The intermediate W. F. A. opener with Mount Forest here tonight resulted in a one-all tie. The locals, minus three of their regulars, were not able to do better than even up the score in the last 15 minutes of play. During more than the first half of the game Mount Forest looked much better, but they lacked staying power and the latter part of the game found them winded and the home players having much the better of the play and in much better condition. Reg. Thompson of Moorefield handled the game with satisfaction to both teams.

Two Ways of Governing.

There used to be an old theory that the proper way to get the right kind of government rule or legislation was by electing the right kind of men. That should have worked out all right, but then came the lobbyists, sent to the seat of government to influence the votes of members on legislation. They came, did their work and in so doing gathered up so much notoriety that the fine art of lobbying had to cease under that form.

Washington provides a good example of the manner in which the work is now carried on since the passing of the lobbyists. The new idea is to erect buildings in Washington, as near the Capitol or its various departments as possible, and from these to direct campaigns of publicity, keep a close record of the hours spent in the house by the members, the speeches they have made, and the votes they record.

The extent to which this work has been carried on can be gathered from the following list of organizations that have for the most part very substantial premises right close to the seat of government at Washington. The women's equal franchise organizations were the first to erect premises, and these were followed by the American Farm Bureau Federation, United States chambers of commerce, American Railway Union, Daughters of the American Revolution, American Federation of Labor, National Anti-Saloon League, American Legion. In addition there are numerous independent organizations ready to sell their services to any movement that feels the need of some force to create public opinion in its favor.

The multiplication of these agencies at Washington is fairly conclusive evidence that this method of procedure gives the required results. If it had been found to be a failure it is certain that these associations would not continue with the erection of large buildings and the maintenance of expert staffs. It gets away from the old theory of the people at large electing representatives on certain party platforms in the belief that when in power they would proceed with the carrying out of the same things they were pledged to when they made their appeal to the electors. It marks the entrance of a new post-election force that seeks to take hold of members after the people have elected them and cause them to function as these various organizations want them to. It really means that public opinion is not the basis of self-government, but rather that the section of the public that is well organized and sufficiently financed takes to itself the duty of bringing pressure to bear to see that its own aims are served. The great mass of the people, unorganized and with no facilities to follow up the verdict it registered in the ballot box, stands only a second-rate chance under such circumstances. Its function is to elect the members in the first place—that of the organized forces is to use the members after they have been elected. If the same plan were continued and expanded United States would ultimately face the position of having its legislation framed and its laws made and enacted by people who names never appeared on a ballot paper.

The Broadened Vision.

Dr. C. C. McLaurin, whose name is synonymous in the Baptist denomination with missionary work in Western Canada, was addressing a meeting in London in connection with the Middlesex and Lambton association of Baptist churches. In order to bring the subject clearly before his audience he made use of a lantern and a number of slides showing the development that had taken place.

One thing was noticeable. When he was speaking of mission stations in the Peace River country, some of them four or five hundred miles west and north of Edmonton, he showed a view of an Anglican church, and remarked: "That was the field of labor of the late Bishop Reeves, of the Anglican church, a man of God and devoted to the extension of His kingdom. Away up in that country there are others from the same church, devout, earnest, self-sacrificing souls, doing a splendid work."

There was a note in that frank tribute that is too often missing when denominational speakers seek to tell of the particular work they are doing. It may be that they are so engrossed with the particular mission to which they have turned their hand that they have no time to mention others carrying on under different auspices. At the same time there is something wholesome about a vision that is big enough to recognize the work of others, particularly when it is in the same vineyard and for the same Master.

If He Knows, Let Him Tell.

A correspondent signing himself "Friend of Russia" writes stating that much unfair comment has been made "by the capitalistic press which refuses to print the truth about Russia. Trotsky has come back in spite of the reports that he had been banished from Russia, and even other statements that he was dead."

The answer to the first assertion is simply this—newspapers would be glad to publish positive facts about Russia if they knew they were getting them. In the current issue of the Manchester Guardian Weekly this statement is made: "The truth is, of course, that no one has a very clear idea of what goes on in Russia." If it were possible to know we imagine the Manchester Guardian would be in a position to discover and present definite news.

If this "Friend of Russia" can tell the people here any more about why Trotsky left, what he did when he was away and how he happens to be back, we will be pleased to hear more from him because it will show that he has access to news sources that are closed to the rest of the world.

It is known that Trotsky quarreled with the group of theorists who control the cast-iron bureaucracy that pretends to represent the Russian people. That group agreed even in the lifetime of Lenin that his theories had to be diluted by the application of common sense, even if in a restricted degree. Trotsky was not a party to the process of thinning down; he quarreled with those who proposed to pursue the plan farther, and it was for that reason that he was removed from the war office and sent into virtual exile.

Today Russia is flirting with capital, and has made concessions to private enterprise that could never have passed muster in the days of the revolution. Whether he has been called back by the reactionaries to block that movement is not known. We have no information on that point, and neither has the "Friend of Russia."

Six Days of Silence.

It is now six days since the Amundsen-Ellsworth expedition took to the air in an attempt to reach the north pole. Since then not a word has come from the members of the party. No station has picked up any sign from them to tell whether they are safe or giving warning of impending disaster.

Critics are already speaking of the futility of such expeditions whereon brave men risk and lose their lives. The complaint is made that there are great fields of useful accomplishment open to them, and that if their efforts were directed in these channels the world would benefit.

Fortunately people are not all so well-regulated that adventure fails to beckon them on. There are those to whom the lure of the unknown is a driving force that sends them on to conquest.

Residents of Genoa said Christopher Columbus was crazy when he held that by sailing far enough he would find a new waterway to the east—yet he discovered America. And poor old Galileo was forced to recant after he constructed the first telescope and announced that the world was round.

There are continually those daring spirits that insist on stepping out in advance of others, going into places from which the more timid shrink, and exploiting theories and ideas that many of us call impossible or foolish.

Amundsen knew the danger of his flight. He has spent years exploring unknown lands and uncharted seas. That was his life and his existence. Although the silence that has followed his trip is distressing to the point of being ominous, the world will continue to hope for some word of the safety of the brave Amundsen and his associates.

Farewell to the Roosters.

Prize roosters gathered in a bush near London a couple of days ago, coming from several points in Ontario, and even from across the border. It was a real old rooster-fight, or, to use a more correct phrase, cocking-main. The preliminary bouts had taken place, and a number of the combatants had been knocked out for keeps when the police appeared.

That's the trouble with police, they're always poking around when they're not wanted. Etiquette of the cockpit decrees that those who are supposed to attend would have received invitations, and if the police were not asked what right had they to attend?

But they did attend, and the strange part is that this international event was strangely upset when they appeared. The guests actually took to the woods, and so did a number of the roosters.

The thing uppermost in the minds of the owners of the fighting-cocks was not the payment of a fine but the possession of the birds. Here again the law did not seem to enter into the spirit of the affair, for instead of having an auction sale the captured birds will decorate the menu of several Strathroy institutions in the form of chicken soup or chicken pie. Cruel world, this is in spots. Victor and vanquished, Canadian or Yankee, the roosters were reduced to the common level of soup, sharing the same fate as the unknown and unsung speckled hen who fell beneath the family axe because all she would do was cluck, molt and eat.

Note and Comment.

An Indian became drunk from consuming 30 bottles of 4.4 beer. He'd make a good tank for a gas-filling station.

Hamilton Spectator is certain that more important than the arms conference at Geneva is the one in the hall at 11 o'clock on Sunday nights.

Provision should be made for retaining or enlarging the little island park at the corner of Central avenue and Richmond street. It is a dangerous street crossing at any time, and children have a habit of getting as far as that little spot and making that a starting-place for the rest of the trip over the wide sweep of street at this point. It served a good purpose, and should not be destroyed.

Sarnia had a little celebration when the first steel sheet was run through the galvanizing plant of the Dominion Alloy Steel Corporation. It was marked with the company's stamp and presented to the chamber of commerce. May it be the first of a long procession going through the same process. London congratulates Sarnia on the event. The greater Sarnia becomes the better for us all.

The Sweet Nurses

Now They Go Forth To Ease Our Pains and Battle With Our Sixteen Chills, They'll Feed Us Bitters From a Pail and Hand To Us Great Gobs of Pills.

Forty nurses at Victoria graduate in chosen work amid impressive scenes.—From the news columns.

How good it be that such is so, to have two score of nurses come, all knowin' of the thing to do, and likewise how it should be done.

Ah, tell us, nurses, dressed in white, if you be thorough through and through, no matter what the ailment be do you know just the thing to do? And mustard plasters can you make when folks has pains a foot inside, and can you mold them so they won't peel sections from the victim's hide.

And if a man's contrary like and he won't take his bitters right, and showin' now and then his teeth as though he'd snarl a bit and fight—say would you lay a fist on him and pry his jaws and hold his nose, and take the bitters from a pail and holler at him "here she goes."

Or if he had ten pills to take to soothe the fever from his brow, yet he refused to roll them in and started kickin' up a row—would tempers of a kind like that so rile you up and get your goat, that you would get a pop-gun out and shoot the pellets down his throat?

And can you mold a lemon pie, and make a bouncin' puddin', too, and carve a section from a cow to limber up a husky stew? And can you make sweet cakes and tarts and salads with a dash of cream, and cook a rarebit late at night to bring to pass a pleasant dream?

You should be knowin' of these things the like of which you'd have to make, for them what indigestion smites, who suffer from a tummy ache.

And if some time you might be called to nurse back to the ways of health, some jay that had six limousines and rolled around in ways of wealth, and if when he was up once more he looked you squarely in the eye, and vowed that it was you, sweet nurse, that made him live instead of die—

Now would you say nay, nay to him and spurn him for the words he said, declarin' how you'd stay a nurse, and keep a-nursin' till you're dead?—ARK.

100 Years Ago

WITH the coming of William Proudfoot, William Robertson and Thomas Christie, duly accredited ministers of the Church in Scotland, a great impetus was given to religious training in this locality. Rev. Mr. Robertson died soon after reaching Canada. Mr. Christie found other field of labor. Thus to Rev. William Proudfoot fell the great task of organizing religious work in Middlesex and beyond. He preached on November 11th and again on November 18th in 1832 in a little village known as "The Forks," and held another service there on February 10th, 1833. This was the birth of First Presbyterian church, London.

On February 17th in the same year he preached in the log school and church building on the eleventh concession of London township, his first sermon in English Settlement. On May 7th, 1833, Mr. Proudfoot took up his permanent residence near "The Forks" and on the site of the present Proudfoot property that lies west of Mount Pleasant cemetery. From this home base he made excursions into the country round and in an incredibly short time had gathered congregations and was holding services at First church, London, Westminster (St. Andrew's), English Settlement (Vanneck), the Proofline (Bethel), and possibly at Lambeth. Once in five Sundays was the regular service. Roads were a track through the woods; on horseback or on foot the mode of travel. Imagination pictures the heroic work of this great man. He preached each Lord's Day a sermon of at least one hour's duration, more often an hour and a half. People came from long distances. Once a month left keen interest in the coming service. Later, when Carlisle was organized, the records state that over forty members from English Settlement formed its nucleus. These members at this time were attending the services in the log church nearly ten miles from their homes. It was not unusual to walk to church. On weekdays the minister attended his pastoral duties in his county-wide parish. Visiting, examining, catechizing, encouraging, marrying, instructing and burying filled a busy week and led him to his next place of meeting for the Sabbath day. To the north, east, south and west he extended the work, into Nissouri, Blanshard, Downie and Fullerton, then westward into Adelaide and Warwick and northward to Carlisle and Craig. It was a great parish and Mr. Proudfoot was a great man.

The English Settlement Church.

On the 19th day of October, 1833, English Settlement congregation was formally organized with John Hedley, Christopher Waugh and John Stevenson ordained and inducted as elders. Mr. Stevenson was already an elder, and was inducted only. By 1838 the charges of Westminster, First, English Settlement and Proofline had so grown that preparations were made to call a minister, or indeed two ministers. A quotation from the records may well explain this movement and close this sketch:

"Mr. Proudfoot's charge had now increased in numbers so much that it was thought the time had come when English Settlement and Proofline should be separated from First, London, and Westminster. It was generally understood that it was Mr. Proudfoot's desire to remain in London and that he expected English Settlement and Proofline to call another minister; but the esteem and affection of the people of these congregations for him was so great that they voted unanimously for him. But London was just as anxious to have him and so the call was sisted and he continued two years longer to serve all four congregations." Then Mr. James Skinner came. But that is another story.

Aristocrats In Majority There

In Second Article on Foreign Office Mr. Somerville Deals With Manner of Securing Appointments.

By HENRY SOMERVILLE.

LONDON—A Canadian who sees behind the veil of the foreign office is struck by a peculiarly English atmosphere. It is not easy to say why. One might remark that the clerks all wore spats and were carefully but quietly groomed. There is an air of reserve and reticence, yet of high-bred politeness. The accent of all the voices is more purely English than is common in England. The personnel are all of a type, and that of a type which is called "gentlemanly." It is very different from the miscellaneous mob that makes up the house of commons.

Such are the impressions that would strike any visitor to the foreign office. The secret of the whole thing, no doubt, is that the foreign office staff bears the stamp of the old English public schools and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge pre-eminently. The foreign office is one of those departments of public administration which remain most definitely under the aristocratic tradition.

The British civil service is no longer recruited by a system of political patronage as it was before 1870. There is now a system of open competitive examinations. The theory is that any British boy who has brains enough may get to the top of the civil service tree. We know that any boy may become secretary of state for foreign affiairs, for the Lossie loon, James Ramsay MacDonald, held that office a few months ago. But that only proves that it is easier to become a secretary of state, easier to become prime minister, than it is to become a permanent undersecretary without advantages of birth and education. Perhaps this is only as it should be. Prime ministers and other ministers are very important in their day, but their day is short. In less than three years we have had no less than four prime ministers, Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Bonar Law, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Mr. Baldwin. Political heads of departments are transitory; the official heads are permanent.

Where Oxford Leads.

If the civil service were as freely open to natural talent as is the government, the fact that 90 per cent of the members of the higher sections of the foreign office were educated at Eton would be very remarkable. It would appear that Eton has nearly a monopoly of the cleverest boys in the country. Eton's predominance as a school is approached by that of Oxford as a university. Taking a number of recent years, which there is no reason to suppose exceptional, it is found that in competitive examinations for foreign office clerks and attaches in the diplomatic service the successful candidates graduated as follows: Oxford, 50; Cambridge, 24; Edinburgh, 1; no university, 11.

The products of the ancient public schools and universities are not so overwhelmingly successful in other walks of life. Their predominance is greatest in the foreign and diplomatic services, but it is also very marked all through class one of the civil service. The reason is that the "open examination" which regulates admission to the higher civil service has such a syllabus that it cannot be passed except by those who have studied the subjects in which Oxford and Cambridge excel—such subjects as history, philosophy, classics and mathematics. Moreover the examination must be passed before students are 25 years of age. It can only be successfully attempted by those who have had the advantage of the best teaching from their very early years. The age limit, as well as the character and standard of the examination, operates to restrict the higher civil service to the class which possesses superior educational opportunities, including, of course, those who are able to win scholarships.

Trained to Govern.

Perhaps this, again, is only as it should be. It may be that the syllabus of the open examination harmonizes so exactly with the curricula of Eton and Oxford solely because Eton and Oxford pursue the studies best fitted to train good administrators. There is much to be said for this view. The ancient schools and universities have for centuries conceived it to be their function to train a governing class, not a commercial class. The British civil service has some severe critics, but by most judges it is rated highly. The members of the late Labor government spoke well of it, and their verdict must carry weight for they were predisposed to criticism of officials recruited from a privileged class. It is certainly true that year after year Oxford and Cambridge send numbers of their ablest students to the civil service, despite the fact that the emoluments of the service are very low compared with what the best men can command in business, in law and other professions.

Few Scots or Ulstermen.

There are very few Scotsmen in the foreign service, very few Ulstermen, very few English Noncomformists. The English element has almost a monopoly and their religion is usually either Church of England or Roman Catholic. No one suggests that there is any racial or religious favoritism. It happens that the tradition of the foreign service is largely confined to old English families, Anglican or Catholic in religion. Philip Snowden once pointed out that, taking a number of recent years, half of the successful candidates for the foreign office were sons of peers or baronets in their own right. The only explanation of this fact that the civil service commissioners were able to offer was that it was this class which was most ambitious to obtain posts in the service.

There is nothing in the system of recruitment which tells in favor of English, Church of England and Roman Catholic candidates as such, but much that tells very decidedly in favor of those who can get to Oxford or Cambridge at an early age. It is easier for a Lossie loon to become prime minister, like Mr. MacDonald, or an errand boy to become secretary of state for the colonies, like Mr. J. H. Thomas, than to enter class one of the civil service. For better or worse, the foreign office is staffed by men who, in the main, are more artistocratic in their temper and outlook than the nation at large.

GEN. MORRISSON DIES AT OTTAWA

Veteran of Two Wars, and a Native Londoner, Succumbs in Sixtieth Year.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, May 28.—Major-General Sir Edward W. B. Morrisson, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., D.S.O., late adjutant-general at national defence headquarters, a veteran of the South African war and officer commanding the Canadian artillery in France during the great war, died this morning at 1:15 o'clock in his 60th year. Sir Edward had been in failing health for some time.

A few days ago he was taken with a seizure and removed to hospital from his home. Death came during his sleep.

Edward Whipple Bancroft Morrisson was born at London, Ont., in 1867, his father being a Scotsman from Glasgow. From his early boyhood he showed an inclination to a military life and began both his writing and fighting career in Hamilton, Ont., over 30 years ago, when he joined the staff of the Hamilton Spectator and also the Canadian militia.

Whatever he did, he did thoroughly. Starting his journalistic career, he first fitted himself by becoming a proficient shorthand writer. He was a well-known figure in Hamilton during his "cub" 'days, always carrying a substantial walking stick, which he knew well how to wield in case of necessity, and accompanied by a rambolling greyhound. He had a keen sense of news, graphic descriptive power, and above all that good old-fashioned British bulldog tenacity which made him hang on till the whole story had been gathered and told his readers. He soon rose to be city editor of the Spectator, and later went to Ottawa to take the position of editor of the Ottawa Citizen, a position he held until the outbreak of the South African war.

Sir Edward received his knighthood of K.C.M.G., in 1919. He had been created C.B. in 1918 and C.M.G. in 1917. After his return to Canada Sir Edward was appointed master-general of ordnance and later combined with that office the duties of adjutant-general.

In 1911 he married Emma Thacker, daughter of John S. Kaye of New Orleans, Ala. Sir Edward was a Presbyterian by religion, and a Conservative in politics. He was a member of Rideau and Ottawa hunt clubs.

COURT COSTS TURNED OVER TO NEEDY WOMAN

Magistrate Believes Deserted One Needs Money Worse Than City.

Rather than collect court costs in a recent wife desertion case, heard in local police court, Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon ordered the money, received at police court this morning, sent to the wife, who is in dire circumstances.

The case was settled some time ago when the husband agreed to pay his wife a small sum of money each week. The first payment arrived at the police court clerk's office this morning. Costs in the case amounted to $7, and should the municipality collect this amount, only $4 would be left for the wife's maintenance.

Both Mr. Graydon and Crown Attorney A. M. Judd agreed that the city was not in immediate need of the money, and it would serve a better purpose in the maintenance of a destitute woman.

BAPTIST DELEGATES ELECT NEW OFFICERS

problem, and the tax problem, not as Liberals, Conservatives or Progressives, but as Christians, since, if these questions can be properly solved a whole lot of other problems will be solved as a direct result."

The speaker admitted that at first, because of his "jealousy for personal liberty," the question of temperance legislation had rather puzzled him. He stated that when those engaged in the liquor traffic had resorted to giving free drinks to boys in order to create in them a taste for intoxicants, that they might grow up to replace the patrons of the traffic who had to be replaced about every ten years, to sustain the traffic, he had come to the realization that it was right and justifiable to step in and make certain legal restrictions upon the liberty of the individual along temperance lines.

Dr. Farmer pointed to the traffic in narcotic drugs as "one of the most serious threats against the well-being of the nation," and justified restrictions against the liberty of the individual in that connection also.

"A large proportion of the sin, crime, shame and immorality today," continued Dr. Farmer, "is due to feeble-minded people of whose feeble-mindedness bad men take advantage. The fathers of the 5,000 children born annually in Canada out of wedlock should be compelled to support those children. The church, too, has a duty to these classes.

Shows Good Profit.

Dr. Farmer explained that Baptist traditions of church independence of state support and state control prevented the church from accepting the offer of the Hamilton city council to provide $1,000,000 from the city treasury for a site and buildings, if the church would transfer McMaster university from Toronto to that city. He added that if private citizens volunteered as individuals to raise the necessary funds that the university would be moved to Hamilton.

In closing, Dr. Farmer asserted that the Baptist church is blazing the way today in that Baptist democracy underlies the British empire, constituted as it is of practically independent commonwealths, but bound together by the ties of sentiment.

L. F. Kipp, Toronto, editor of the Canadian Baptist, outlined the work of the official church paper. He stated that last year the job work department of the paper had had a turnover of $13,500, an increase of $2,900 over the previous year, and that for the first nine months of the current year the turnover has amounted to $13,500, and would reach as high as $16,000 before the close of the convention year. The advertising and subscription departments of the paper were said, by Mr. Kipp, to be in a similarly flourishing condition, with between 8,500 and 8,700 subscribers throughout the dominion. The Baptist church bookroom turnover last year, according to Mr. Kipp, amounted to $88,000.

Committee Reports.

The report of the state of religion committee, as read by Rev. L. J. Stones, B.A., B.Th., Wyoming, showed that there are twenty Baptist fields in the Middlesex and Lambton association with 29 churches, only two of which, Strathroy and East Williams, are vacant at the present time. Three ministers left the association during the past year, while five ministers entered the association. The total resident membership of the association is placed at 3,001, and the non-resident membership at 537 persons. A net gain of 71 persons was shown in membership during the year, as follows: Gained by baptisms, 169; by letter and experience, 82; a total of 251; lost by death, 50, by letter 89, and by erasure 41, or a total of 180. The total amount raised within the association for home purposes was placed at $62,905 by the committee, and $3,236 for foreign missions, which works out to $16.25 per member per annum for home work and 83 cents per member per annum for foreign work.

List of Officers.

The full list of officers for the ensuing year, as brought in by the nominating committee under Rev. J. H. Silmon, Adelaide street church, London, as chairman, is as follows: Moderator, M. D. NO DATE YET SET FOR CONFERENCE

City Solicitor Declares Bridge Question To Be Settled At Early Date.

No date has yet been set for the meeting of the Ontario railway board in the matter of the street railway company and the city of London. City Solicitor T. G. Meredith, in whose hands the whole question has been placed by the city, says today that no date has been arranged for the meeting of the board.

Last night in the meeting of the finance committee Alderman Douglass protested against the running of empty street cars over Ridout street bridge by he company, as will be necessary when the York street bridge is closed for repairs. He thought it was a matter that could be taken up separately from the rest of the street railway company question. This, however, is not the case. If it has to wait until the board meets the service over Ridout street may be in operation before any legal action can be taken.

FRIENDS ARE LACKING, MALCOLM HITS SNAG

Court Remands Unsteady Visitor For Week—Haines Up Again.

Malcolm Stuart was not among his friends when he appeared in county court this morning on a drunk charge. As a rule, Malcolm collects his excess liquor in the city itself, and always has two friends when he appears in police court in the persons of Chief Birrell and Sergeant McDonald.

However, to hearken back to Mr. Stuart. There were no friends with Scotch accent to plead for him before Squire Hawkshaw. Malcolm did his best and declared that he was on the way to Melbourne to get a job on the pavement with Boss ⅞ Brazier and unfortunately took several small drinks to help him on his way.

The drinks weren't much help to Mr. Stuart, for he had lost all power to make his legs behave when he was found in a ditch in Westminster township by License Inspector Walter Bolton.

Malcolm had been seen in the home of his friend, Dick Haines, earlier in the afternoon, and as a result of other observations made by the license inspector and High Constable Wharton, Haines was brought to jail and charged with keeping a disorderly house. He was remanded for a week at the request of Chief Wharton.

"Don't you get tired coming here, Haines?" asked the magistrate.

"I certainly do," replied the prisoner, with much feeling.

"You told me you were going to marry that woman, when I paid a surprise visit to your house some time ago," the high constable reminded Haines.

"Certainly," replied Dick. "I'll marry her right here if you say so."

"I don't want you to," came back the high constable.

"You will appear again a week from today," declared the court, as Richard was led back to the cells.

BRITAIN, FRANCE TALK REPLY TO GERMANY

French Answer to Security Pact Plan Pends—Eager For Backing.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 28.—The cabinet today considered the explanation recently furnished to it by Foreign Minister Briand of France, of details of the draft of the proposed French reply to Germany's suggestions for the formation of a security pact.

The French note has not yet been sent to Germany. A draft was sent to the British government last week in order that Great Britain and France might be agreed in advance upon the reply. The British authorities requested France to elucidate certain details of the note.

It was learned today in official circles that the French were very eager for the note to Germany to have British approval before it is sent to Berlin.

Well-informed authorities said the attitude was that nothing would be discussed but a pact limited to Germany's western frontier. It was regarded as probable that the cabinet would consider some way to state very clearly this position to the French government.

ONTARIO HOSPITAL NURSES RECEIVE DIPLOMAS TODAY

Colorful Ceremony Marks Presentations To Members of Graduation Class.

GIVEN RECEPTION

The assembly hall at the Ontario hospital was the scene of an interesting ceremony this afternoon when the members of the graduating class received their diplomas and pins. At the strains of the processional, all of the nurses filed into the hall, their blue and white uniforms making a pretty background for the pure white uniforms of the graduating nurses.

The ceremony was a simple one, Dr. W. J. Robinson, superintendent of the hospital, occupying the chair throughout. The program was opened by a brief invocation by the Rev. A. L. Beverley, followed by a short but inspiring address from the chairman.

Dr. G. H. Stevenson officiated at the presentation of diplomas, while the pins were presented by Mrs. Gerald Pearson. A pretty feature of the ceremony was the presentation of beautiful bouquets of flowers from the hospital to the graduating class, Miss Ruth Robinson making the presentation.

Other flowers came from friends of the graduates, and altogether formed a pretty mass of color in the hall. Delightful violin numbers were rendered by Miss Cora Brennan, Mrs. Harris Elliott acting as accompanist.

The chief address of the afternoon was given by Dr. Alfred J. Grant, who spoke in glowing terms of the work of the nurses and pointed out how important was that work in the community.

Following the graduation exercises, a reception in honor of the graduating class was held in the nurses' home, and tonight the nurses will be entertained at a dance in the assembly hall.

The graduating class includes Miss Eileen Hope Weaver of Chatham, Miss Marian McDougal-King of St. Thomas, Miss Myrtle Alberta Weaver of Chatham, Miss Eve Mae Rau of this city, Miss Victoria Eileen Langford of Owen Sound, Miss Sarah Winnifred Hudson of Chatham and Miss Alexine Jean Colton of Brudenell, Ontario.

Aliens Engaged Abroad Will Not Be Admitted to the Glasgow Conference.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 28.—Aliens known to be engaged in subversive activities abroad will not be admitted to Great Britain to attend the annual conference of British communists, opening at Glasgow, Scotland, next Sunday. This announcement was made in the house of commons today by the home secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, who said he had issued instructions to this effect with the full assent of the government.

London despatches earlier this month said there had been some anxiety over the rapid growth of the communist element in Great Britain since the barriers to the entrance of such persons were removed by the late Labor government. Power to exclude such elements is vested in the British cabinet under the immigration act.

ROADS TO CENTER COUNCIL PARLEY

Middlesex Body Will Talk Contraction of County System.

The proposed contraction of the Middlesex county road system to the extent of some 69 miles will be one of the most important matters to be discussed by the county council, which opens its June session at the county buildings next Monday.

"The matter will be discussed at length by the council next week," declared Warden Allan McPherson, Glencoe, over long distance telephone today. The warden headed the Middlesex delegation to Toronto yesterday, and met Hon. G. S. Henry at the latter's request to discuss the elimination of a number of county roads in Middlesex.

"There will be nothing done in the matter this year," continued the warden. "I understand that the government will send engineers to confer with the various township councils.

"There will be more county roads taken off Caradoc township than any other, the government looking with a view to through traffic in all cases."

FERGUSON FAVORS INDIVIDUAL PLAN

Declares Proposed Method of School Instruction What He Desired.

Experiments in teaching history by individual instruction, as carried on in the Central collegiate by Walter C. Johnston, were described in The Advertiser recently. The method attracted the attention of the prime minister, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, also minister of education, and it has apparently been favorably considered by his deputy, A. H. Colquhoun.

Premier Ferguson's views are that instruction of this nature is what he desired to get in the primary schools through the elimination of home work, and he thought the experiments being tried in London collegiate were along the right line.

The Advertiser is informed by the department of education at Toronto that the high school inspectors have been requested to observe the method of teaching history, which is being tried out by Mr. Johnston in the Central collegiate.

MAXWELL B SHOWS WIDE FLUCTUATION

Gains Are Recorded in Leading Stocks On Wall Street.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 28—Wall Street, 1:30 p.m.—Buying of high-priced shares in anticipation of favorable developments became more intense, with Mack Truck, General Electric, American Can, and Dupont making rapid strides upward. Woolworth, General Baking and Havana Electric were also in demand. American Sumatra Tobacco preferred rose 8 points to a new high for the year, while M. A. Hanna first preferred broke 16 points to 51, the lowest of the year.

Noon.—Erratic fluctuations in Maxwell B certificates, which soared 9½ points to 113½, and then broke precipitately to 103½, later chilled speculative sentiment and caused general reactions of 1 to 2 points on hasty profit-taking. Constructive interests subsequently marshalled their forces and came to the supro rt ofthe public utilities, merchandising and chain store issues, and toward noon the entire market was again trending upward.

Before midday gains of 2½ to 4 points had been registered by American Can, Nash Motors, Sears-Roebuck, Shattuck Stores and Robert Reis first preferred. Call money renewed at 4 per cent.

Market Sidelights

ABITIBI.

Sudden strength in the shares of Abitibi puts the price, where it has not been for over a year. New Year is blamed for the advance, but the street knows there must be a reason. Some think that it may have to do with the fact that the company now has its own rights all along the Abitibi river, which was brought about by the taking over of the Hollinger power plant. This is going to enable Abitibi to develop the maximum power capacity for which its plant was originally planned, and result in their being able to handle more business.

The last statement of the company in March showed net earnings of $10.95 a share on the 250,000 common shares of no par value outstanding, compared with $6.59 in 1923 and $7.25 in 1922. There was also a marked improvement in the position of working capital, which showed an excess of current liabilities amounting to $785,445.

There is a persistent belief that Abitibi is marked for an increase in dividend. In that event, of course, the present rise would be explained.

STEEL REPORTS.

Improved interest in future requirements and continued steady purchasing of spot supplies are features of the week in the Canadian metal markets, according to Canadian Machinery. While buyers are not interesting themselves in large tonnages, they are apparently reaching a decision that prices are about as low as they are going to be in most lines.

In several directions, steel orders are somewhat more numerous than they were recently, but it is observed that most of them are from the smaller buyers who rarely buy very far ahead, and for that reason are fairly constantly in the market in good or bad times.

New York, May 27.—The raw sugar market was easier today. Late yesterday there were additional sales of at least 150,000 bags of Cuban for prompt and June shipment at 4.45c. an advance of 1-32c, but today offerings increased, and prices declined 3-32c to 4.37c for spots, duty paid. Today's business included 11,000 bags of Porto Rican, first half June shipment, and 10,000 bags of Cuba afloat at 4.40c; 6,500 bags of Porto Rican, first half of June clearance, and 5,000 bags of Cuban afloat at 4.37c.

Raw sugar futures prices declined 5 to 8 points, but rallied partly near the close on covering, and were finally 3 to 6 points net lower.

Refined sugar prices were advanced 10 points to the basis of 5.70c for fine granulated by several refiners, although they were still accepting orders at 5.60c. The general range of prices was from 5.55c to 5.70c. Only a moderate inquiry was reported. Refined futures were nominal.

NORWAY FLOATS LOAN OF $33,000,000 IN U. S.

Blair and Company Win Out Over J. P. Morgan Firm in Bidding.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 27.—Conflicting price movements continued to characterize today's uneven bond market, alhtough trading was marked by an undercurrent of strength.

The interest of investment circles was centered chiefly in the announcement that spirited competition for a $33,000,000 Norwegian loan had resulted in the award of the government's financing, which has hitherto been handled by J. P. Morgan & Co. and the National City Company, to another syndicate headed by Blair & Co.

Price changes in stock exchange trading were generally narrow and insignificant. Among the rail issues which lost ground on profit-taking were several of the St. Paul obligations. Kansas City Southern 5's, Denver and Rio Grande 5's, Central 5's and Union Pacific refunding 4's.

200 POUNDS OF OPIUM SEIZED AT MONTREAL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, May 28.—Officers of the customs preventive service connected with the port of Montreal have seized 200 pounds of opium, which is said to have come by way of the United States. The consignment was found in one of the houses of the red light district. No arrests have been made in connection with the case.

This is the largest opium seizure ever made here by officers of the service.

Floods Menace New South Wales

Associated Press Despatch.

Sydney, N. S. W., May 28.—Serious floods were reported today to have occurred in the Queanbeyan district in the southern part of New South Wales, where five persons were reported drowned and about 150 families homeless.

A flood of the Murrumbidgee river was apparently sweeping towards Wagga Wagga, threatening the possible inundation of that town.

Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, May 27.—A mild reaction from the strength shown in the grain exchange here yesterday developed in today's session, restricted demand and disappointing Liverpool cables forcing a recession of 2⅛c in the price of May delivery wheat, which closed at $1.92⅞. Improved weather conditions throughout the United States grain belt also influenced the downturn.

An inclination on the part of "longs" to liquidate on every advance imparted an easier tendency to the market, and on the extreme dip May wheat broke 5½c from the high point of Tuesday. Narrow fluctuations prevailed during mid-session, and, with a strong undertone, the market firmed before the close. July drorped 2⅜c at $1.79, while October underwent a decline of ⅜c at $1.48¼. The bulk of the trade was confined to the latter months.

The coarse grain markets followed the action of wheat, and prices generally were lower, with rye the heaviest loser, 3c below the previous close. Trade volume on these markets was light.

A reactionary tendency was manifest in the cash wheat market, very little business being transacted. Cash oats met a fair inquiry, but little business was worked. No interest was taken in cash barley, rye and flax.

Cash prices:

Wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.92⅞; No. 2 northern, $1.89⅞; No. 3 northern, $1.84⅞; No. 4, $1.61; No. 5, $1.41; No. 6, $1.23; feed, $1.15; track, $1.82.

Barley—No. 3 C. W., 89c; No. 4 C. W., 89c; rejected, 81¾c; feed, 80¼c; track, 89c.

CHICAGO

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, May 28.—Although wheat showed early declines in price here today, the market soon rallied and scored something of an advance. Lower quotations at Liverpool had a depressing effect at first, and so, too, did somewhat better conditions in the United States. Crop damage reports from Kansas led to renewed buying and to a general upturn in values. The opening, ⅜c to 1¾c lower, was followed by an irregular rise to $1.71⅞ for May and $1.63⅝ for July.

Corn lacked aggressive support. After opening at ⅛c off to ¼c up, the market sagged all around and was slow to react.

Oats traders took their cue from wheat. Starting unchanged to ¼c lower, oats later showed a moderate general gain.

MONTREAL.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, May 27.—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here today was fair but as the prices bid in most cases were out of line with exporters views, little new business was reported, and the market in this respect was quiet, but there was some inquiry from exporters for wheat and barley to fill ocean freight engagements, and sales of several loads of No. 1 and No. 3 northern wheat and some No. 3 barley were made at f.o.b. prices, Montreal. There was no change in the condition of the domestic market for oats. The volume of business was small.

FLOUR

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, May 27. — Prices for all grades of spring wheat flour were well maintained at the recent advances established, but there was no improvement in the volume of business.

The trade in winter wheat flour was also of a limited character, but as the offerings from Ontario millers were small, values were sustained.

A very firm feeling prevailed in the market for all lines of millfeed. While the undertone to the standard rolled oats market was firm, the trade volume was small

SOUTH HURON LIBERALS ENDORSE T. McMILLAN

Popular Candidate Chosen at Rousing Rally at Hensall.

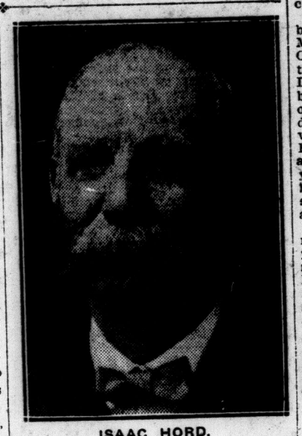

KING IS LAUDED

Hon. Duncan Marshall Tells of Lower Taxes and Freight Rates.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Hensall, May 27.—Thomas McMillan, of Seaforth, is the choice of South Huron Liberals to contest that riding in the forthcoming federal election. He was elected at a rousing Liberal convention held this afternoon in the town hall here, winning over Owen Geiger. Only two of nine nominees allowed their names to stand as possible candidates.

It was a true Liberal convention, one that heralded Liberal victory for South Huron, and one that pledged itself to support Tom McMillan in the forthcoming battle.

ISAAC HORD.

For 53 years he has served as secretary of the Mitchell Methodist Sunday school in his home town. For the same length of time he has served as an official of the church. While attending an international Sunday school convention as a delegate he and Mrs. Hord toured Palestine.

An enthusiastic gathering of more than 300 greeted announcement of Mr. McMillan's nomination with cheers. Signifying that the choice was unanimous, all arose as mutual guarantee that he would receive a county-wide support.

Tom McMillan will be elected. And South Huron will be redeemed. That is the feeling of all who attended today's convention at Hensall.

Prominent Workers Speak.

Conclusion of voting saw both Mrs. A. H. Beaton, president of the Ontario Liberal Women's association, and the Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario Liberal organizer, urging South Huron Liberals to give their contribution to Liberalism in strong support of their candidate. With honest endeavor and co-operation, Tom McMillan can be elected South Huron member in the dominion house, they said.

In speaking chiefly to the Liberal women, and there were many present at the convention, Mrs. Beaton pointed out the necessity for their co-operation with the men of the party. She advised that an advantageous lesson could be learned from Conservatives in their habit of settling all party strife aside at election time, in calming eruptions and working for a common cause at a critical moment.

Nominees for the candidature included Dr. J. W. Shaw of Clinton, Owen Geiger of Hensall, Dr. R. R. Ross of Seaforth, W. H. Golding of Seaforth, J. M. Govenlock of Seaforth, R. G. Seldon of Exeter, James Watson of Seaforth and D. F. McGregor.

"I'll do more to help carry the banner of Liberalism than my good friend Geiger," Mr. McMillan said in characteristic virile manner as he accepted the nomination. "I'll do more than Geiger, and in the last election there was no one who did more than he.

Is Well Known.

"I know something of the trust and responsibility you have placed on me," Mr. McMillan continued, "I know the nature of the people I am going out amongst, and I will enjoy it. There is no one in South Huron but that I can meet as a friend. We stand today as Liberals of South Huron upon the threshold of victory, and I am pleased to say there are many Progressives who have assured me of their support should I receive this nomination."

In reply to a question, Hon. Duncan Marshall was unable to forecast the approximate date of the next general election, but he advised Mr. McMillan to "hitch up the old mare and get to work as soon as possible."

"It is a good thing to have farmers on the floor of the house," Mr. Marshall said in reference to Mr. McMillan, "But it is distinctly better to have farmers who have been leaders in their community. Mr. McMillan has first-hand knowledge of the agricultural conditions of this country, and that will make him a capable member."

In the recent West Hastings by-election Mr. McMillan was one of the most valued and prominent workers, the speaker said. He gave his time gratuitously, his recompense being the satisfaction of witnessing a Liberal victory.

An Anti-Tory Win.

Mr. Marshall forecasted a consolidation of all people opposed to Toryism. In the very near future, he predicted, there would be only one opponent to each Conservative candidate in each riding. If that is done, he said, Toryism would be wiped out.

"The wave of public indignation which four years ago strove to defeat the Tory government was not from Liberals alone," Mr. Marshall declared. The dead hand of Toryism placed on agriculture stirred the farmers to action and resulted in the formation of their own party."

The consolidation which Mr. Marshall foresees will include the combined forces of present parties other than Conservative to fight in a common battle against Toryism.

"The Liberal party was never so proud of its leadership as under Premier King," Mr. Marshall continued, in speaking of the political situation in Canada at present. "In the past four years he has been able to guide the country in a manner that has brought credit to himself and honor to the whole dominion of Canada."

Shipping Rates Lower.

Mr. Marshall quoted from his personal experience proof of the gradual reduction in freight and rail rates during recent years, which had been lowered now to an amount where shipping was at least profitable to the farmer.

"If we have to smash the sides out of the inadequate boats the Tories built—they are too low to allow cattle to live—we are going to smash the freight rates acrpss the ocean for the benefit of the people of Canada."

Mr. Marshall cited instances of proof of a "shipping combine," and told of the present government's activities in connection with the interests of the cattle farmer to break up the combine and reduce rates. He pointed out that under the King government, industries were more prosperous, despite ruin talk from the opposition, and the farmers are a great deal better off than they have been in the past few years. Taxes were reduced by $50,000,000 last year, he declared.

"There are two distinct methods of balancing or reducing the budget," Mr. Marshall said. "The province of Ontario illustrates this. One is practiced by Conservatives, the other by Liberals. The first is to balance the budget by increasing taxes, the second is to balance the budget by reducing expenditure. The latter is what the King government has done. Expenses have been greatly reduced and taxation, too. In Ontario here you have taxes on everything, food, beverages. The only thing the Conservatives here have not taxed is air."

Today's South Huron meeting, acknowledged the most enthusiastic in years, concluded with moving of a resolution of support for Thomas McMillan. Dr. J. W. Shaw, president of South Huron Liberals, acted as chairman for the day, with T. N. Forsyth as secretary.

JAP LIQUOR EVIL NOT LIKE CANADA

Drink Traffic Is Better Controlled in Orient, Says Corey.

That the open bar-rooms of not so many years ago, and the tempting profits from them were among the greatest evils of this country, was a fact put before the Huron Women's Auxiliary last eevning, when Rev. H. H. Corey, B.A., L.S.T., of Japan, compared this country with Japan. Drink in Japan was also a very bad evil, but the word "beer" had been adopted from the West. Still, the habit was not respectable, and the sale of beer and whiskey in Japan was better controlled than it was in either the United States or Canada, though prohibition had not yet been introduced into that country.

In speaking of the moral conditions of Japan, Mr. Corey stated that they were not so bad as it was thought in this country, and that Christianity simply meant the tightening of the moralities that existed. There was no slavery with which to contend. Marriage was moral.

Suicide was the one thing the missionary had to fight. Japanese considered it honorable to do away with themselves, and it was hard for them to see the Christian point of view.

"Because they are so clever," the speaker said, "we must be of one faith. They must adopt Christianity." Christianity did not mean social advancement in Japan. They felt that Christianity had failed in the Western nations, but they must be made to see that it had not. It meant a lot to a Japanese to become a Christian—the giving up of all his traditions and family ties.

Lauds Missions.

Bishop Williams, who presided, also spoke briefly on the missions in Genoa. He gave several reasons for missions, stating that they were rooted in the heart of God, and that this should prevent the government from passing the exclusion bill, in connection with immigrants. Missions were also the marching orders of the church, and they had made us what we are, and they were also the one agency which had raised people to a higher level.

"The only way by which we can discharge our debt to the Indians, who have had their lands taken from them, is to teach them the love of God," the bishop said, "and missions are the one way we can contribute help to the many peoples coming into our land."

Mrs. J. E. Bell sang delightfully.

It was stated that the total receipts for the year amounted to $13,648, an increase of $888 over last year. The thankoffering amounted to $1,866.44.

Christians Not Foreign.

The one solution of the problems of the world today is Christ. This statement was made by Mrs. Farrabee, the dominion president of the Anglican W. A., in the splendid address she presented to the women attending the Huron Diocese convention at Cronyn hall, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Farrabee also strongly objected to the word "foreign" being used in connection with Christians in overseas lands. She said they were not foreign; that only non-Christians in Africa, India, China and Japan were foreigners.

"There are four factors," she said, "which makes Christianity necessary —the wanderlust of the white race and its expansion; modern science and inventions; the recent great war, and education." Each of these factors she ably explained, pointing out the effect of the knowledge of Christ on each.

Various reports were continued from the morning session, and Miss Waugh, prior to speaking of the junior work, presented the junior W. A. of St. George's church, this city, with the W. A. banner. She also encouraged the idea of a junior forward movement.

Invite Dominion Board.

The bishop was present and read the result of the ballot, and introduced Mrs. Farrabee. Miss Young, retired missionary from Japan, was on the platform, and she was presented with a lovely basket of flowers. Representatives to the dominion board were also appointed, and included Mrs. Williams, Miss Smith and Mrs. Dolph.

It was decided by a standing vote to invite the dominion board to meet here in the fall. An invitation was also extended to the Huron Diocesan board to hold the next annual meeting in Grace church, Brantford, in May of 1926.

At a supper-meeting at St. George's church, South London, between the afternoon and evening sessions, Mrs. Farrabee again spoke, but to the girls of the Anglican church, who were gathered in the parish hall. She gave an inspiring talk on the three forces in missionary work—spiritual, which was the base of the triangle, with education and finance forming either side. She took them on an aeroplane trip across Canada, and her address dealt mainly with the work of the girls. The trip also extended overseas.

FIVE GENERATIONS.

Probably unique in the annals of family history anywhere was the reunion of the Gifford family of Simcoe on Monday, May 25. Five generations were represented, the oldest member of the family being 79 years of age and the youngest five months. The celebration was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Gifford, the senior member of the family, both of whom are just 79 years of age. In all they have 45 grandchildren and great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren. The picture shows the five generations on both sides: Mr. and Mrs. Perry Gifford, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barker (top, left), Mr. and Mrs. George Barker (top, right), Mr. and Mrs. Wm. House and their twin daughters, the great-great-grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Gifford.

UNION STATIONING COMMITTEE CONVENES IN ST. ANDREW'S

Considerable work was accomplished by the Western Ontario provisional settlement committee of the United Church of Canada at a meeting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon.

The committee appointed by the three church communions entering union on June 10 next embraces the Presbyterian synod of Hamilton and London, the London Methodist conference, the Hamilton Methodist conference and the union of Congregational churches in the western portion of the province.

Between 30 and 40 Presbyterian and Methodist ministers are being considered by the committee in its endeavor to rearrange the congregations and charges of the three denominations as they will probably function after union is consummated.

Since the suggestions and arrangements made by the committee are only tentative and subject to the consent of the ministers and congregations concerned, as well as to the courts of the united church, nothing has been made public by the committee as to the settling of the ministers on its list.

Those present at the committee meeting yesterday were: Rev. H. S. Dougall, D.D., Oakville (Methodist), chairman of the committee; Rev. Robert Martin, D.D., Stratford (Presbyterian), secretary of the committee; Rev. J. H. Edmison, D.D., Toronto, secretary of home missions of the Presbyterian church in Canada; Rev. J. H. Woodside, Ottawa, who has general oversight of unionist minorities in Presbyterian congregations which have voted non-concurrence; Rev. W. H. Sedgewick, D.D., Hamilton (Presbyterian); Rev. G. K. Bradshaw, Hamilton (Methodist); Rev. A. Alexander, Hamilton (Congregationalist); Rev. D. C. MacGregor, D.D., St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, London; Rev. A. E. M. Thomson, M.A., B.D., Centennial Methodist church, London, and president of the London Methodist conference, and Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, Askin street Methodist church, London.

The next meeting of the committee will be held in Toronto on June 9, when more definite arrangements and settlements will be effected of the ministers to be placed in congregations of the United Church of Canada.

Bishop Will Be Presented With "Thanks Badge" On Saturday.

In recognition for the great service he has rendered boy scouts in this district, Right Rev. Bishop M. F. Fallon will receive the "Thanks Badge" of the scouts at Sunshine park on Saturday afternoon. The presentation will be made prior to the laying of the corner stone of the new seminary at 4 o'clock.

The "Thanks Badge" is composed of a "Swastika" with a gold fleur-de-lis superimposed.

There are now some twenty Catholic Boy Scout troops in the Border Cities, Chatham, Stratford, Woodstock, Simcoe, St. Thomas, Sarnia and London. Representatives from these places will be present at this special ceremony. A scout from Chatham will read the address to his lordship.

After the bishop has addressed the scouts they will form the bodyguard of the procession from Huron street to the seminary building.

WORKING GIRL'S EXPERIENCE

Read how She Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Arnprior, Ontario.—"I must write and tell you my experience with your medicine. I was working at the factory for three years and became so run-down that I used to take weak spells and would be at home at least one day each week. I was treated by the doctors for anemia, but it didn't seem to do me any good. I was told to take a rest, but was unable to, and kept on getting worse. I was troubled mostly with my periods. I would sometimes pass three months, and when it came it would last around two weeks, and I would have such pains at times in my right side that I could hardly walk. I am only 19 years of age and weigh 118 pounds now, and before taking the Vegetable Compound I was only 108 pounds. I was sickly for two years and some of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken a bottle of it I felt a change. My mother has been taking it for a different ailment and has found it very satisfactory. I am willing to tell friends about the medicine and to answer letters asking about it."—Miss HAZEL BERNDT, Box 700, Arnprior, Ontario.

A day out each week shows in the pay envelope. If you are troubled with some weakness, indicated by a run-down condition, tired feelings, pains and irregularity, let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound help you.

CHANGES PLANNED IN ROAD SYSTEM

Thirty-Five Miles in Kent May Revert To Township Control.

COUNCIL TO ACT

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, May 27.—Thirty-five miles of country roads are slated for elimination from the county system on recommendation of the department of highways, according to Warden Thomas Heatherington. The elimination is called for by the reclassification of county road systems of the province. The reclassification in question promises to form a lively topic at the forthcoming county council session.

Chick Thieving.

As a result of an amendment to the municipal act whereby the licensing of chicken peddlers is authorized, a bylaw designed to inaugurate such a system in Kent will be introduced at the forthcoming county council session. High Constable Peters says the system will aid in curbing chicken-thieving.

Must Pay Costs.

Six Indians of Moraviantown, who pleaded guilty to charges of chicken-stealing, were remanded for one week to give them an opportunity to consider paying costs and making restitution. In the case of Charles Stonefish, Leonard Noah and Charles Lewis, each must pay $63.80, Joe Pheasant and Murray Lasalle $28.15, and Clarence Fisher $39.80.

Settlement Made.

O. V. Knister, a Ruscombe man, who was yesterday committed for trial on a technical charge of stealing a sum of $1,500 from Ed. Massey, local hog buyer, was dismissed by Judge Stanworth when a settlement was reached between the parties.

NEW GOITRE REMEDY

Great interest attaches to reports of a remarkable method for treating goitre recently demonstrated at the W. T. B. Laboratory, 3090 Minty Block, Battle Creek, Mich. It is used by the patient herself in her own home and it is said that the largest and most hideous goitres begin to recede almost in a day. They gradually get smaller until in three or four weeks they are often gone entirely. The treatment is perfectly safe for anyone to use and many believe it will prove the long sought specific for all goitres. A little book issued by the laboratory explains the method fully and will be mailed free for the asking to anyone interested.—Advt.

HEART TROUBLE SHORTNESS OF BREATH

Mrs. Geo. E. Bowman, Morrisburg, Ont., writes:—"I am writing you a few lines to let you know of my experience with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Two years ago I became very poorly with my heart and nerves and whenever I took the least little bit of exercise my heart would start to jump and flutter. I could not walk upstairs without having to sit down and rest before I was half way up, on account of my breath becoming so short.

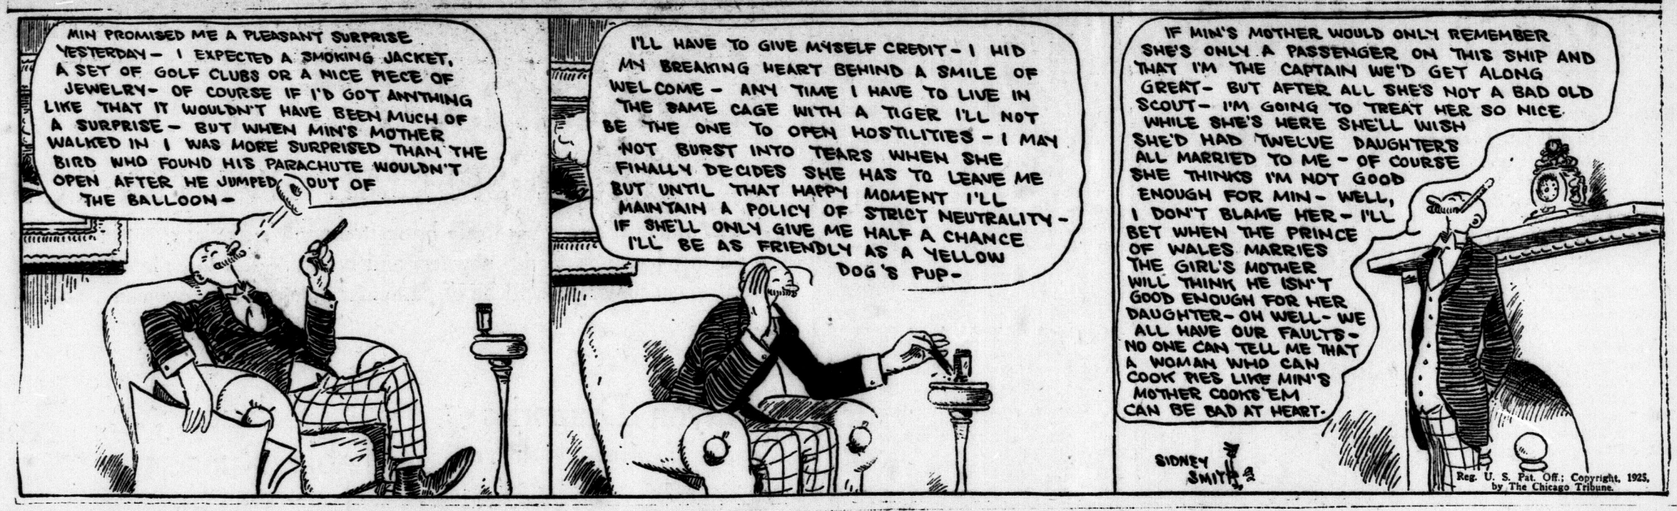

"I commenced taking

REVISIONS MADE IN COUNTY ROADS

Conference at Toronto Decides On Changes in Rural Highways.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 27.—A deputation of 60 men, representing nine counties, conferred today with Deputy Minister of Highways S. L. Squires, Hon. Finlay McDiarmid, former minister of public works and highways, A. Rankin and T. Malone, members of the legislative commission, for the purpose of completing the road program for the government. The object is to eliminate the loose ends of roadways, conserve expenditure, and produce greater efficiency by bringing the systems of the several counties and the government into line so as to secure the greatest amount of co-operation. The counties represented at the conference today were as follows:

Counties.	Total road mileage.	County road mileage.
Middlesex	2,149	490
Wentworth	866	196
Welland	1,105	171
Norfolk	1,182	234
Oxford	1,340	286
Lincoln	660	163
Waterloo	822	193
Brant	619	104
Haldimand	798	138

TEN PER CENT OF ROADS.

About 10 per cent of the mileage of Middlesex county roads is affected by the realignment plans made at Toronto yesterday, when a deputation of 60 men from nine counties conferred with Deputy Minister of Highways S. L. Squires.

Engineer Charles Talbot of Middlesex county, on his return to London from the conference, stated that no great changes were made in the county. The few changes made would not affect many people, but all were for the best. Some roads were made county roads, and others were turned back to the townships.

The conference went along smoothly, and no snags were struck, according to the Middlesex engineer. The proposed changes will be made as soon as possible.

Motorist Mistakes Bullets of Officer For Bandit's Shots

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, May 27.—Newton Wylie, a Toronto motorist, after paying a $10 fine in county police court for speeding, confessed that he thought he was being chased by genuine hold-up men when he heard revolver shots. The shots in question were fired by High Constable Peters as a signal to Wylie to stop. Peters gave chase when he claimed that the Toronto man passed him at a fast rate of speed. The officer asserts that his car had to travel at 62 miles an hour to pass Wylie.

COMPANY READY TO BUILD BRIDGE

Private Firm Will Start Work If Plans Are Approved.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Correspondent.

Windsor, May 27.—The proposed Detroit-Windsor municipal bridge scheme took on a new phase this afternoon when Mayor Frank J. Mitchell informed Essex county representatives who had gathered here to discuss the subject, that the American Transit Company had expressed its willingness to go ahead with the construction of a bridge, providing federal and local approval of the company's plans was forthcoming.

With every municipality represented at the meeting, the delegates were unanimously in favor of a bridge rather than a tunnel as a connecting link between the two cities. After the matter had been thoroughly discussed a special committee was named to confer with the transit company and to obtain further details as to what it was intending to do. When this information has been acquired it will be made available to the Detroit common council, whose wishes are to be consulted before any move is made.

Mayor Mitchell told the delegates that estimates of the American Transit Company fix the cost of building the bridge at approximately $12,000,000. The company would, it was intimated, fix a lower rate of fare than the present ferry rates. Explaining the proposed plan for financing the bridge by the municipalities, the mayor said it was but a question of issuing debentures and having them endorsed by the provincial or the federal governments.

PROTESTS PLAN TO RUN EMPTY CARS ON BRIDGE

Alderman Douglass Objects to L. S. R.'s Use of Condemned Ridout Structure.

ALLOWED BY BOARD

City Solicitor Will Be Asked To Take Action On Matter.

Ald. Douglass at last night's meeting of the finance committee, objected strenuously to the action of the London Street Railway in sending empty cars over the Ridout street bridge after it had been condemned.

"I do not think that it is fair," he said, "that the company should ask its conductors and motormen to cross a bridge that has been condemned by the Ontario railway board.

City Engineer Near told the committee that the Ontario railway board has given the company permission to take cars over the Ridout street bridge "at the company's risk."

Ald Douglass wanted immediate action by the city to prevent this action, and urged that it should be taken up as a matter separate from the rest of the railway situation. Mr. Near said again that in the decision of the board to close the bridge it added a clause to the effect that the closing of the bridge was not to be considered a breach of the franchise bylaw with the city.

In connection with this statement, the mayor held that the matter of the bridge could not be treated as a separate matter from the whole question, and that it rested entirely with the city solicitor. Ald. Douglass objected vigorously. He said that it was a matter of the safety of the men on the empty cars, and argued for immediate action, without getting much satisfaction from the committee.

Is Up To Solicitor.

"The whole thing is in the hands of the city solicitor, I imagine," remarked the mayor.

"Then all I can say is you've got a fine imagination," returned the alderman.

After statements were read from the fire chiefs of Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Calgary, Ottawa, Halifax, Hull, strongly condemning "assembled pumpers and fire equipment," the finance committee last night decided to recommend the acceptance of a standard pumper for the London fire department. Two tenders were made, one from the American La France Company for $15,750, and the other from the Seagraves Company for $17,650. On motion of Ald Douglass, the lower tender was accepted subject to the approval of the city solicitor.

Requirements Met.

In spite of objections from the the mayor that the specifications sent out by the city did not allow of competition in the matter of tendering, it was found on examination that both companies agreed to meet the city requirements in pumpers. The mayor stated that the pumper could not be bought this year as there was no money in the estimates, and that there was no legal way of using any city funds for this purpose.

Maurice Gootson appeared before the committee, apologized to the fire chief for a statement he had made that the chief had accused him of setting fire to his own storehouse, and also in an attack on the city police. He said that the police had failed to afford him the protection that he needed, and after a long explanation, the committee instructed the mayor to bring the matter to the attention of the police commission and report back.

A grant of $400 was made to the Orangemen for the convention here on July 11, and another of $100 to the Amputations association, subject to there being funds available for the purpose.

Alderman Doig complained that some employees of the P. U. C. were prevented from playing football on pain of dismissal, and the mayor was instructed to get a report from the commission on this.

STUDENTS SCORE IN SHAVIAN PLAY

Shaw, "Pygmalion" and University Talent Meets Complete Success.

First-rate histrionic ability, coupled with a well-selected cast trained to perfection brought a complete success to the University of Western Ontario year play, Shaw's "Pygmalion," as presented by the literary society in the auditorium, college of arts, last night.

In "Pygmalion" Shaw has taken up the age-old argument of heredity versus environment, not to settle the question but to use it as a background for his stimulating criticism and devastating wit.

The Pygmalion is Henry Higgins, professor of phonetics, who guarantees to make a lady out of a gutter-snipe flower girl in six months. He passes the girl off as a duchess at a fashionable garden party within the stated time.

Through it all runs the Shavian bombardment of epigrams. He scorns the wealthy. He scoffs at the poor. The firm beliefs of men are ridiculed. The sacred credos of women excite his laughter and his sarcasm. The clergy and the military are a fair target for his titters.

Woman Is Pursuer.

At one time his teasings are subtle words, dropped as in confidence for those who think they understand him. In the next breath he turns to the pure joshing of the rustic, ever returning to the game with swift, sure, piercing of the favorite boasts of the layers of human strata.

And then in the fifth act to finish with a flourish, he shouts his axiom. Woman is the relentless pursuer of the male. And lets it go at that.

Such is Shaw and such is Pygmalion, comedy, buffoonery, satire, a touch of the pathetic, almost, at times to be relieved by further attacks on pet superstitions with the old ammunition of his own manufacture.

It was splendid. The laurels go to every member of the cast, but the highest honors are for Helen Berdan, who, as the little flower girl, and later, the near-duchess, won a complete victory.

The portrayal of the role left nothing to be desired. Miss Berdan interpreted every mood, every movement, every line with a thorough understanding of the work in hand, and, incidentally, wore her charming gowns becomingly.

Good Supporting Cast.

Sydney Kingsmill, playing opposite, gave the desired effect as the inconsiderate, selfish and, where women were concerned, stupid man. J. MacKenzie Dobson supported him as Major Pickering.

Helen Hughes played Mrs. Higgins and Florence McDonagh Mrs. Pearse, the housekeeper. Gerald Jordan played Alfred Doolittle. Others in the cast were Grace Sabine, Marion Stark, John Wilkey, Margaret Goodwin, Constance Strothers, Gar E. Elson, Allan Grant, Richard Hungerford and Fred Rose.

Besides the fact that the university students produce the good plays in their own theatre with their own orchestra, led by Walter Rennie, lies the realization that as well as giving satisfactory entertainment, they are making important contributions to the little theatre movement in Canada.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL CONTRACT AWARDED TO HAYMAN, SONS

East Wing Addition Will Cost Board of Education $53,000.

BUY PROPERTY

Advisory Vocational Committee Promises Opening by Autumn.

John Hayman and Sons, London, will build the new addition to the London technical and commercial high school. The advisory vocational committee of the board of education has let the contract for the work to the local firm at a cost of $53,000.

The addition will be built on the east side of the present technical school building, and will be completed in readiness for occupancy this coming fall.

After considerable time and trouble the committee purchased the property on which to build the addition as follows: M. S. Cater, 37 feet off the rear of his property facing on William Street, $1,500; J. H. Chapman, 70 feet off the rear of his property facing on King street, $4,000; Miss E. Howie, her property facing on William street and on which there is a frame cottage, $6,000. (The cottage will be used by the committee and rented to the caretaker of the school.)

The amount to be paid by the advisory vocational committee to the board for the services of L. E. Carrothers, superintendent of building and caretaking, in preparing the plans and specifications for the new addition has been fixed at $2,000.

Comprises Eight Classrooms.

Before deciding to build the addition to the east wing of the present building, the committee secured contract prices also for the addition to be built on the west wing. The difference between the lowest tenders on the east side and on the west side was approximately $6,000, arising from the fact that the plumbing and heating plants can be installed at a much lower figure on the east than on the west side. After careful consideration the committee felt that in the interests of economy and looking to future additions to the building it would be advisable to build the addition proposed at this time on the east side of the building.

The addition, which will consist of eight classrooms, is the second which has been made to the present technical school building since it was first opened in 1919. Two rooms will be separated by folding doors and accommodation provided for carrying on the physical training work of the technical school. This move will obviate the necessity of the classes leaving the building to secure their training in this particular work at the Y. M. C. A., as has been the case for the past year or so. More adequate accommodation will be provided when the new addition is completed for the ever-growing attendance at the school, which now stands at 900 day students and approximately 1,100 evening class students.

Within Estimated Cost.

Other firms tendering for the contract were: John Putherbough and Hyatt Bros., both of London, and John B. Gray and Pickett and Healy, both of Toronto.

The work of having plans and specifications prepared for the addition, calling for tenders, considering those received and carrying on negotiations for the property required on which to build the addition, has all been carried out by a sub-committee of the advisory vocational committee, consisting of Trustee George F. Copeland, chairman of the advisory committee, Trustee William G. Murray, Harry Hayman, S. F. Lawrason, chairman of the board of education, and H. B. Beal, principal of the technical school.

Since the cost of the addition, building and equipment was placed at $70,000, half of which will be paid by the provincial government, the advisory committee still has $3,500 with which to equip the addition.

Incidentally, the equipment required will not reach that sum, and hence, once again, the advisory committee will have carried through the erection of an addition to the school at a figure well within the estimated cost.

Woodstock, May 27.—Nearly $900 will be added to the funds of the Woodstock Rotary club, to be used in aid of crippled children in the city and Oxford county, as the result of the big celebration held here on May 25, under the auspices of the club. About $2,000 had been the net profit estimated on the affair, but owing to the unusually cold weather prevailing during the day, the result is considered by local Rotarians to be quite satisfactory.

Yesterday, 15 cars of rubble stone arrived, to be used in the work on the new breakwater. Special tracks have been laid on the dock so as to bring the cars to the water's edge to load into scows.
