Visit to St. Patrick's On Sunday Last.

Eloquent Addresses—Imposing Ceremony—Immense Congregation.

This afternoon your Grace will preside over a solemn and impressive ceremony, and call down the mercy and goodness of God upon the souls of our dear departed ones. As we pray this afternoon, for those loved souls, you will allow us to associate with them the soul of the devoted mother who has recently been taken from Your Grace's affections. May all their souls repose in the Lord's holy peace.

And now we ask your Grace to bless us. Bless us with a father's hand, and may that blessing in bringing joy to our hearts, draw us closer to God, enabling us to fulfil all through life the mission of a true Irish people, to love their church firmly, faithfully in spirit and in truth.

ARCHBISHOP'S REPLY.
Replying from the throne, Archbishop Bruchesi told of the great pleasure he always felt in visiting the parish of St. Patrick's, adding that the sentiments and desires of St. Paul when speaking to the Ephesians were his sentiments and desires when speaking to the good people of St. Patrick's, and his heart went out to the good people before him, for it was not the first time he had visited them, for often he had come within the walls of the historic church when he was yet a child clinging to the hand of his father. His Grace declared that he was not a national bishop, but a bishop of the Catholic Church, and the people of St. Patrick's were just as much his dear children as those of any other parish in the diocese. That afternoon prayers would be said for the departed priests and faithful of the parish, and he deeply appreciated the delicate sentiment expressed by their pastor when he asked that the faithful might be allowed to associate His Grace's mother with their own loved dead.

Mgr. Bruchesi proceeded to say how grateful the people of St. Patrick's should be that their church was in such a splendid position from a temporal point of view. There was not another church in the city in the same position financially, all of which was due to the zeal of the previous pastors and to the people's generosity. He mentioned the names of Fathers Dowd, Quinlivan and Callaghan and asked the people to work together for the glory of their religion and the welfare of their race. There was a time when St. Patrick's was the only English speaking parish in the city of Montreal, and it was only a few days ago that he had established the eighth parish of English-speaking Catholics, and there would be others in the near future. His Grace said that he intended that all such parishes should have priests of their own nationality.

The Archbishop said he wished to give the people of St. Patrick's some practical advice under three heads. The financial condition of the church was good, as it might be better. It was very desirable that every family should have a pew in the church. This would not only aid the funds of the Church, but it would likewise tend to strengthen the ties which bound them to their spiritual home. In the second place all good Catholics should contribute to their pastor's support. This was a duty and a debt of honor which each family should ever forget, each family paying two dollars, and those who lived alone, one dollar. Thirdly, His Grace drew the attention of the faithful to the fact that it was very desirable that in case of a death in the family a funeral service should be held in the church. In this connection His Grace referred to the society called the Union of Prayer, which he would like to see established in this parish. It was not merely for the poor but for all Catholics, and for the sum of twenty-five cents per annum, the benefits of the society were assured to all.

Mgr. Bruchesi then referred to the change which had recently taken place in the pastorate of St. Patrick's, and about which too much had been said and written. Referring to the obedience which all Catholics owe to authority, His Grace mentioned the fact that a bishop could not always confide to the faithful the reasons which led to such changes. What he did was accomplished with a full knowledge of his own responsibility before Almighty God. He knew that unfortunate words had been spoken, but he was glad to say that ample apology had been made. All men were liable to err, but when a man acknowledges his error and apologizes he proves his manliness. For his part His Grace said that everything was forgotten.

The Archbishop then referred to the present pastor, Rev. Gerald McShane, as one who had been born and brought up in their midst, and who was a member of the order of St. Sulpice, whose Superior was allowing him to remain at St. Patrick's for a certain period. That, however, did not mean that this order was in control of St. Patrick's parish. The Archbishop then warned the people against anything that might shake their faith, for at present the church was the subject of attack. A certain preacher had asked if progress had been made in different branches of science, then why not progress in religion? The Lord did not say he came to found churches, but "my Church." That which was established in truth could not be changed, and that which was handed down from heaven could not be modified. If the contrary idea prevailed then there would be no God. The Archbishop said he had the greatest possible respect for his non-Catholic friends, but, while loving them, Catholic people must not admit their errors. He had been asked if a Catholic could occupy a position as organist or be a member of a choir in a Protestant temple, and his reply was in the negative. His revered predecessor had taken this matter to the supreme authority, and the reply was against any such proposition. Anyone occupying a position in the choir of a Protestant church or at the organ would be participating in the service, and this could not be done by a Catholic.

His Grace also reaffirmed the Catholic position as regards mixed marriages. This was, however, nothing new, as he said, it had been affirmed and reaffirmed time and time again. The results of such unions, he declared, were in the main disastrous to the faith. Supposing, he said, that a Protestant husband were to promise that the children would be brought up in the Catholic faith, but the mother died, who could possibly say that the child would be educated and brought up a Catholic? While the Catholics wanted to live in peace and harmony with the Protestants, there must be no compromise where the principles of the true faith were concerned. He asked them to remember what their forefathers had done in Ireland for their faith, and he appealed to the people of St. Patrick's to hold fast the faith that had been handed down to them.

The Episcopal blessing was then imparted.

In the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the Libera was chanted for the repose of the souls of all the departed ones of the parish. His Grace officiating, after which solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given, bringing the pastoral ceremonies to a close.

Afterwards His Grace called upon the ladies of the congregation of St. Patrick's Academy, where Mgr. Bruchesi and the pastor were received by Rev. Mother Aloysia and her assistants, the Archbishop expressing the greatest pleasure at the wonderful chance that had taken place during the past year, and voiced the hope that St. Patrick's Academy would continue the good work carried on during so many years. A call was also made at the home for old men and women, under the charge of the Grey Nuns, as well as to the boys' school, Ste. Genevieve street.

OBITUARY.

MR. HENRY R. GRAY.
The death occurred suddenly on Tuesday evening of Mr. Henry R. Gray, the well-known chemist, at his residence, 99 East Sherbrooke street. He was sixty-nine years old, but had enjoyed vigorous health up to a few days ago, and even on Tuesday attended to business as usual. That evening, however, he returned home complaining of feeling worse, and he gradually became weaker until death occurred shortly after 11 o'clock.

Mr. Gray's drug business was established in 1859, and has become one of the city's landmarks. Ever since that date he was a proprietor in St. Lawrence ward. In 1887 he was chosen to represent it in the City Council, and his work as chairman of the Health Committee during the smallpox epidemic of the following year will never be forgotten by medical authorities of the city.

Ex-Ald. Gray was born on December 30th, 1838, at Boston, Lincolnshire, England, and was educated at Standard Hill, Nottinghamshire.

Mr. Gray was one of the founders of the Pharmaceutical Association of the Province of Quebec, and was successively secretary-treasurer, vice-president, and, for three years, president, while up to a recent date he was a member of the board of examiners. He was also one of the charter members of the Montreal College of Pharmacy, and for two years its president.

He was elected alderman for St. Lawrence ward in 1884, afterwards being appointed chairman of the local Board of Health and serving during the whole of the disastrous epidemic of smallpox which overtook the city in 1885. During his aldermanic term he was also a member of the civic Road Committee.

In 1885 Mr. Gray succeeded in having a by-law passed making it necessary for scavenger debris to be cremated, and was afterwards instrumental in the establishment of an incinerator. He served as alderman for three years and then declined reelection.

Mr. Gray married Miss Katharine Margaret McGale, youngest daughter of the late Dr. Bernard McGale, in his lifetime of the Army Medical Staff. Mr. Gray was also a life governor of the Montreal General Hospital.

MR. A. D. LACROIX, GENERAL DIRECTOR OF CATHOLIC SCHOOLS.
Mr. A. D. Lacroix, general director of the Catholic schools of Montreal, who had been in failing health for some time past, and had gone to Florida with his daughter for the benefit of his health a short time ago, died on Friday last at Palm Beach.

The late Mr. Lacroix had been director-general of Montreal Catholic schools for the past three years, and for almost twenty-five years before that had occupied the position of principal of Montcalm school. He began his career as teacher at the age of eighteen. He was first teacher in Molson College, then professor in St. Mary's Academy, and later principal of the St. Vincent de Paul school, returning to St. Mary's Academy as principal.

Besides his work in connection with Montreal educational institutions, Mr. Lacroix was for twelve years secretary of the St. Jean Baptiste Association, later becoming secretary-general of that organization. In 1904 he was appointed director-general of Catholic schools in the city, a position which he held up to the time of his death.

MRS. MARTIN EAGAN.
The death occurred with painful suddenness on Friday morning last of Bridget Hart, wife of Mr. Martin Eagan. Deceased had been indisposed for about a week, and grave fears were entertained almost from the first for her recovery. The end came, after intense suffering, and with perfect resignation, and fortified with the holy Sacraments of the Church. Mrs. Eagan had many friends, friends whom she had kept all through life, and by these she is mourned sincerely. Mrs. Eagan was of a most retiring disposition, devoted to her home and family, a truly Christian woman, giving quiet-

Presentation to Mr. Martin J. O'Donnell, Jr.

A special meeting of St. Patrick's T. A. and B. Society was held on Sunday, February 17, for the purpose of making a presentation to Mr. Martin J. O'Donnell, Jr., who for some years past, had been the recording secretary of the Society. Mr. O'Donnell has left for St. John, N.B., in the interests of the Canadian Fairbanks Co., who have promoted him to an important position. His many friends and well-wishers before his departure decided that his past services should not be forgotten.

ten, and that a suitable present be made him. This took the form of a handsome traveling bag, which was presented to Mr. O'Donnell by the Spiritual Director of the Society, Rev. Father Killoran, in a few well chosen remarks, to which Mr. O'Donnell gratefully replied.

ly to charities, and her sorrowing husband and children have taken from them. To these the True Witness extends its heartfelt sympathy. May her soul rest in peace.

The funeral, which was very largely attended, took place at St. Patrick's Church on Monday morning. The Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Gerald McShane, assisted by Father O'Reilly and Father Heffernan as deacon and subdeacon respectively. Mr. Lamoureux sang at the Offertory "Pie Jesu" very sympathetically, and the body was the plaintive strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," pealed forth from the organ. The chief mourners were Mr. Martin Eagan, husband; Mr. F. Eagan, son, and Messrs. Chas. F. and T. Hart, nephews. Among others noticed in the cortege were: Messrs. W. McNally, Judge Curran, Judge Doherty, C. F. Smith, Ald. Clearihue, P. McCrory, Dr. Harrison, C. A. McDonnell, B. Tansey, F. J. Hatchet, J. P. Cleghorn, James McShane, John Dwyane, P. McDermott, O. O'Brien, John Johnston, D. T. Foley, J. Jones, D. J. McGillis, P. F. McCaffrey, Jas. Scott, G. C. Egan, W. J. Graham, D. McIntyre, L. E. A. Cholette.

REV. JAMES BROWN.
The death occurred last week in Alderney, England, of the Rev. Jas. Brown. Father Brown is affectionately remembered by a great number of the parishioners of St. Patrick's, among whom he labored for quite a lengthy period. His zeal to bring those outside the Church within its pale is a thing spoken of very frequently, and of saying daily a Hail Mary with the aforementioned intention is faithfully observed by some to this very day. May his soul rest in peace.

Rev. James Brown was born in Hampshire, England, in 1829, and came to Canada in 1842. He received his education in Montreal College and Montreal Seminary. He completed his theological studies at Issy, France, under the care of the Order of the Sulpicians, where he was ordained on the 29th May, 1858. He joined the order and served for a few years as a missionary among the Iroquois at Oka. He was then removed to this city and was for many years at St. Patrick's Church, and also at St.

Anti-Alcoholic League Holds Meeting.
On Sunday afternoon last, in the Monument National, the Anti-Alcoholic League held an important meeting. Representatives from several of the temperance and fraternal societies in the city spoke.

Alderman S. J. Carter declared that it was advisable to obtain legislation whereby saloons in the city would be forced to close at seven o'clock on Saturday's and ten o'clock every other day in the week. It was not the intention of the meeting, however, so he said, to formulate drastic measures against intemperance. Their idea was rather to educate the people up to realizing its evils.

Chief Justice Taschereau presided, and brief speeches were made by Dr. Guerin, Mr. S. Chevalier, of the Chosen Friends' Society, Mr. Idor Lariviere, of the Independent Order of Foresters; Mr. V. Morin and Mrs. F. H. Waycott.

They require no testimonial. Their excellent qualities are well known to all those who have used them and they commend themselves to dyspeptics and those subject to biliousness who are in quest of a beneficial medicine.

La Vie
(Written for The True Witness.)
A dream of future bliss:
A disappointment, a cross;
An hour of pain for friends we miss,
A taste of happiness—
A bitter struggle, and a strife
A fleeting joy born for a day,
An atom that must pass away,
And this is life.
—Rev. P. T. O'Reilly.

HOUSE AND HOME CONDUCTED BY HELENE.

It is rather remarkable that in recent years there seems to be a decided tendency in the fad and fancy world to adopt pagan costumes in dress as well as in ornamentation.

From the head to the eyebrows or eyelashes. Only the brave and rich can patronize the new method at present, for, besides being painful and costly, it takes a long time to accomplish it.

The specialist works by putting in, not on, the new eyelashes and eyebrows whenever they are absent or grow thin, and so cunning is he in his work that not even the closest scrutiny can detect any difference.

IN BUYING PERFUMES. "If you give her perfume for her birthday," said the druggist, "give with discretion. Find out first the effect of perfumes on the system."

THE APPRECIATIVE GIRL. Appreciation is the root and the flower of native courtesy. The girl who is appreciative requires few lessons in etiquette.

NEED FOR DUST SHEETS. Every housekeeper should be amply provided with dust sheets, which can be thrown over upholstered chairs, sofas, and other items of furniture when the rooms undergo their periodical "turnout."

TRANSLANTED EYELASHES. In Paris and London, where the idea originated, there are specialists who make a handsome living out of the process of transplanting hair

DEPARTURES IN OUTLINES are not lacking, for several of the newest fashions are made very close-fitting over the bust and waist as well as hips, and one wonders what will become of the beloved blouse.

CARE OF SKIRTS. Here is a practical plan for cleaning and pressing skirts, says the New York American. Brush them first, then whisk off with a clean brush dampened in ammonia and warm water.

NOT MUCH CHOICE TO HIM. Six-year old Dick was preparing much against his own sweet will, to go calling with his mother. It was the first time that Dick had been allowed to get ready alone, and together with boyish disgust at being obliged to go visiting, he felt the importance of the situation.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS. A new settlement worker was going the rounds of her district one bright spring morning. In a crowd-

CONSTIPATION.

Although generally described as a disease, can never exist unless some of the organs are deranged, which is generally found to be the liver. It consists of an inability to regularly evacuate the bowels, and as a regular action of the bowels is absolutely essential to general health, the least irregularity should never be neglected.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS have no equal for relieving and curing Constipation, Biliousness, Water Brash, Heartburn, and all Liver Troubles.

Often in moving a heavy piece of furniture the matting on the floor will have an ugly hole torn in it, says the Chicago News. The torn place is usually where it is most noticeable and cannot be covered with a rug.

CRUEL QUESTION THAT. Up in Boston the other day a young lawyer, who spends most of his time trying to seem busy and prosperous, went out for a while, leaving on his door a card neatly marked:

Blue Ribbon Ribbon Tea. This coupon cut out and mailed to The Blue Ribbon Tea Co., P. O. Box 254, Montreal, entitles the sender to a free package of one of our Blue Ribbon Teas. Fill in blank space whether you wish Black, Mixed or Green Tea.

They Never Knew Failure. Careful observation of the effects of Parke's Vegetable Pills has shown that they act immediately on the diseased organs of the system and stimulate them to healthy action.

FUNNY SAYINGS. "No," said Mr. MacSwish, the autocrat of a little Scotch school, "ye'll recite that poem afore a' the class, Willie McSnortie, and see that ye gie it in perfect English."

WHAT HE USED THE MILK FOR. A clergyman had been for some time displeased with the quality of milk served him. At length he determined to remonstrate with his milkman for supplying such weak stuff.

The Papal Secretary at a Social Function.

(From "Suora Felicia," by Marie Donagan Walsh, in Donahoe's for January.) Just then the Cardinal came out, accompanied by his host and a group of diplomats, and as he passed recognized Latham by a friendly smile which lit up his grave face wonderfully.

After a short talk the Cardinal passed on, and Latham said: "You wonder how the 'black sheep' comes to be of the cloth for the nonce; but of course you know His Eminence is more than half English."

Deaf Ear to My Urgent Appeal

As I saw my letter in print, and was well pleased, I take pleasure in writing to you again. I haven't much news to tell you, as it is very stormy here for the last week. I expect to go to Mass to-morrow if it is fine. Oh, how I do long to see spring once more, and to enjoy hearing the little birds sing.

MY DOLLY AND PUSSY AND ME. By the blazing fire, in a big arm- chair, We're as happy as happy can be: The three best friends in the whole Wide world, My Dolly and Puss and me.

HUNGRY TIME. When I was getting better, And they propped me up in bed, Oh, didn't I feel hungry! But I knew the doctor said, "He can't have much to eat yet"; So I thought of things instead.

My mother'd sit and read me Any story I'd pick out; I guess you know already What the stories were about, I'd listen and imagine; And it helped me do without.

Dear Aunt Becky: This is my first letter to you. I am eleven years old and I live about a quarter of a mile from the school where I go every day with my sister and brother. We go to the same school as Bridgie Barry. I learn the same lessons as she does.

Dear Aunt Becky: Our teacher has read us the nice letters in the True Witness so I think I will write also. I am going to school and like my teacher very well. Mary Barry said her favorite studies were arithmetic and geography.

Dear Aunt Becky: I was so glad to see my letter in print. I go to school every day and I like it very well. Our inspector came to visit our school last week. He gave me a nice prize as a reward for application.

Dear Aunt Becky: I was so glad to see my letter in print that I took courage to write again. I am still going to school. Our school inspector, Mr. A. Tanguay, came last week. He was well pleased with us all, and rewarded a great many for their application and good conduct.

Dear Aunt Becky: It is a long time since I have written to you, so I thought I would write again. I am still going to school, and like it very much. I am doing my best to study as well as I can.

The Irishman in the Lumber Camp.

The big lumber camp was situated on the shore of a large lake, in the northern part of the Province of Quebec, and Karaghan, the "green-horn" Irishman, as he viewed the desolate scene, was sick at heart. It was all so strange and savage—so different from his own green country in the Golden Vale of Tipperary.

He felt himself at a great disadvantage. At home in Ireland things had been so very different with him. There Denis Karaghan had been a very young king among men. The big, handsome giant had been a champion athlete, with world's records to his credit in heavy-weight throwing.

The Cost of Good Health Will be Lessened by the Timely Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. How much money is wasted on useless medicines. How much time is lost; how much pain endured simply because you do not find the right medicine to start with. Take the earnest advice of thousands who speak from experience in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will save time, money, and above all, will find perfect health. Proof of this is found in the statement of Mr. J. A. Roberge, a well known resident of Lacine, Que., who says: "I am a boatman, and consequently exposed to all conditions of weather. This exposure began to tell on my health. The cold laid to the weakness, loss of appetite, pains in the limbs and side. I tried several medicines but they did not help me. My condition was growing worse and a general breakdown threatened. I slept poorly at night and lost much in weight, and began to fear that I was drifting into chronic invalidism. One day while reading a newspaper I was attracted by the statement of a fellow sufferer who had been cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had spent much money without getting relief, and I hated to spend more, but the cure was so convincing that I decided to give those pills a trial. I am now more than thankful that I did so. After the first couple of weeks they began to help me, and in seven weeks after I began the pills I was as well as ever I had been. I am now convinced that had I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the outset I would not only have been spared much suffering, but would have saved money as well." Rich, red blood is the cure for most of the ailments that afflict mankind. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new rich blood. That is why they cure such common ailments as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, heart palpitation, erysipelas, skin troubles, and the headaches, backaches, sideaches and other ills of girlhood and womanhood. The pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Synopsis of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS. ANY even number of sections of Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less. Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situated. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of the intending homesteader. The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans: (1) At least six months' residence upon cultivation of the land is each year for three years. (2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother. (3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon said land. Six months' notice in writing should be given the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent. W. W. CORY, Deputy Minister of the Interior. Protestant Tribute to Brebeuf. Brebeuf, the Jesuit missionary to the Indians, was once making his way, starving, freezing, and in pain across a desolate field of ice in the wilderness. He had been refused shelter and food; he had slept in the snow; he had barely escaped a torturing death. And now, just as the sun was setting, he looked up into the western sky and saw the figure of a cross. "How large was it?" asked his brother missionaries, when, after months' privation and suffering, God brought him back to them. "Large enough—large enough to crucify us all," replied Brebeuf. "That was his intention of the vision in the wilderness—the vision of sacrifice, the call to freedom and larger service, the cross of his

Moreover, among the Huron-Iroquois tribes, palisades were sometimes constructed without post-holes. Mr. Andrew Hunter cannot plead ignorance of this since in his paper entitled "National Characteristics and Migrations of the Hurons, etc."

Mr. Andrew Hunter talks glibly, throughout his several pamphlets, of distinct traces of palisade lines, and pronounces magisterially that this village site was so fortified and that other was not.

Notwithstanding what I have just said, I can confidently point out, at the Martyrs' Hill, the position and outlines of two bastions at the very least, and the angles of the flanks with the curtain.

But why waste so much valuable time, not to mention the ink when "writing fluid" fit for a fountain pen is not easily obtainable?

MR. ANDREW HUNTER'S FASHION OF WEIGHING.

I am sure, Mr. Editor, you are desirous of knowing what decision Mr. Hunter arrived at after reading the authorities quoted above, absolutely the only ones bearing on the question of distance in our case.

It is painful to have to expose not only the illogical conclusions of Mr. Andrew Hunter, but what is more, the seeming inability to master the meaning of a simple statement. At times, he sees distinctly, in a phrase, exactly the reverse of what it asserts, witness the above. It would be a meaningless question to ask Mr. Hunter where is the site "which answers the description very well."

Moreover, the greater the difference in length (especially when the lines drawn from B to A and B to C, are about equal) between the two lines taken together and the third line, the further away B will be from that third line.

But let us return to the lines which join the dots (the dots will always be at the points (angles) of a triangle thus formed, except in one case only, and that is, when the sum of any two lines set end to end is exactly equal to the remaining line (that is, measuring the same in length).

Marie I. through St. Louis (Ducroux's map can be very little use here, as all are agreed that the St. Ignace which is there marked is St. Ignace I.), and, precisely because it lay very little out of the straight line, it lay almost in the same direction. I have already, higher up, touched upon the question of direction, but wish to put the demonstration within the reach of the least educated of mortals, so that the youngest may understand.

If three dots (points) A, B, C, marked anywhere on a slate (or plane surface), be joined by three straight lines, the dots will always be at the points (angles) of a triangle thus formed, except in one case only, and that is, when the sum of any two lines set end to end is exactly equal to the remaining line (that is, measuring the same in length).

Moreover, the greater the difference in length (especially when the lines drawn from B to A and B to C, are about equal) between the two lines taken together and the third line, the further away B will be from that third line.

faible que les autres," cotes being understood. The space was not, according to the text, smaller than any other of the given sides, but it was small considering the entire length of the circumvallation, while "plus faible que les autres," asserts that the remaining space was weaker than any of the other three sides.

It goes without saying that Mr. Hunter had read all this. Yet, with consummate assurance, and that assumption of superiority which characterizes his whole "circular letter" from start to finish, he dictatorially lays it down as an infallible dictum which all must accept on his individual and unsupported judgment, and none gainsay under penalty of passing for irrational, "that the records tell us (according to any rational interpretation of their words) that the position of St. Ignace was three miles nearer to this place (The Martyr's Hill) to Ste. Marie on the Wye."

A TERMINOLOGICAL INEXACTITUDE.

It was not enough to travesty the few precious records remaining to us, and which furnish all the information we have relating to St. Ignace II., but after insinuating, to put it mildly, that no use had been made of them in determining its position, he would have your readers believe, Mr. Editor, that "the sole point which led to the 'thorough convincing' above mentioned was the shape of the ground, but even in this particular quote mistakenly, for the phrase 'fosse profound' has a distinct reference to a channel or trench surrounding the village and not a 'peak' in relief, or flat-topped eminence, such as the one he chose."

Was it the "sole" point, the "shape of the ground," which led to the "thorough convincing"? (Was the "Green Veranda" the sole point for Jack? I should like to know if Mr. Andrew Hunter really beguiled himself to the extent of imagining that he alone read the Archeological Report for 1902. I understand fully that it is not snatched up as eagerly by the promiscuous reading public of the Strand or Munsey, or other attractive or diverting magazines, but it is read by those, and they are not a few, who take a warm interest in Canadian history and archaeology. How, after making such an assertion, Mr. Hunter will be in future able to look them in the face is inconceivable, if like other men he be conscious of a reputation for veracity and fairness to sustain. This is the man who would pose as the censor of historical and archaeological error, and lead those much-to-be-pitied people, led astray by the glowing newspaper account of the Shrine, back into the paths of truth. The ditch, it is to be feared, is not far off. THE BLIND LEADING THE BLIND "Fosse profound" (with an acute accent over the e) is not simply "a channel or trench". It is here used as a term in the art of fortification, and under this heading it signifies moat: "Entourer d'un fossé, (fort), a moat." (Spiers and Surenne's Dictionary, N.Y., Appleton, 1862); "fosse (acute accent over the e) (FORT.) moat." (Clifton and Grimmaux's Dict., Paris and London, Garnier Bros. and Hachette & Co., latest edition.) Nor is it here an ordinary moat or ditch dug by the hand of man, for it is qualified in the text "qui (i.e. la place) estoit entourée d'une palissade de poutres, de la hauteur de quinze à seize pieds, et d'un fossé profond, dont la nature avoit puissamment fortifié ce lieu par trois costez, etc." (Ibid. 1649, p. 10, col. 2, Quebec edit.). The Cleveland edition (vol. 34, p. 122,) has "pins" instead of "pieux." The phrase literally translated should read: "Which (place) was surrounded with a stockade of posts (or pine trees) from fifteen to sixteen feet in height, and by a deep moat, wherewith nature had powerfully fortified the place on three sides, etc." To be "powerfully fortified by a deep moat" implies more than a trench, and as it was nature's handiwork it would of necessity take the shape of a "deep ravine."

Mr. Hunter facetiously informs us, no doubt, in his capacity of expert, that the "fosse profound" has a distinct reference to a channel or trench surrounding the village and not a "peak" in relief, or flat-topped eminence. In answer to this sally, I might retort and ask him if he ever saw a valley without a hill? But surely, he must credit even the poor, ordinary non-expert with enough intelligence to see a difference between a hill and a hole in the ground. A peak is a pointed summit, and is nowhere mentioned in my paper in connection with St. Ignace II. It is a suggestive interpolation of Mr. Hunter, which, judging by his context, he would have his readers believe found place in the report with which he finds fault. On page 93 of this report, the ideas as well as the words are properly translated thus: "and encircled by a deep depression (in the land), with which nature had powerfully fortified the place on three sides."

Now a moat supposes an escarpment, a steep descent or declivity, a precipitous side of any hill or flat-topped eminence, and the deeper the depression or ravine the higher the plateau. Bressani (p. 252), in his precise use of the word, "Son site et les fortifications, que nous avons fait faire, le rendait impenetrable, du moins pour des sauvages." Its position and the fortifications which we caused to be constructed there, rendered it impregnable at least for savages. To contribute in any fair proportion to the impregnable of a stronghold, the exigencies of such a site would call for a depression and corresponding eminence on unusually large lines, and the fact mentioned that the deep moat was limited to three sides only differentiates it from any other commanding position lying in the proper direction and at the clearly determined distance from the Old Fort on the Wye. When Mr. Andrew Hunter shall have discovered such a site it will be time enough to think of changing the position of the shrine. A COMPETENT PERSON CORRECTS A BLUNDER. Mr. Andrew Hunter continues: "I am well aware Rev. Father Jones suggested that the occupation of St. Ignace II. was too short to leave any traces of abbeds behind. This unwarrantable claim is too absurd to need dwelling upon at any length." Really? But what seems so absurd to him has been deemed a very cogent argument by others, even by General John S. Clark, who, as the main authority relied on in determining the scene of Jogues' massacre, is admitted by Mr. Hunter to be an expert. In his letter of May 18, 1903, the General says: "On receipt of Mr. Hunter's identification of a site of St. Ignace II. in the township of Tay, (p. 21 of his monograph), I criticised his conclusions as inconsistent with the facts inasmuch as the remains show an occupation of at least several years, while St. Ignace II. was only occupied about one year." The supposed site mentioned on p. 21 by Mr. Hunter, is the farm of Chas. E. Newton, Esq., west half of lot 11, concession 6, Tay. So "the unwarrantable claim," that is, that few traces of occupation would be found at the real site of St. Ignace II., on account of the short time it existed, was, after all, according to a duly accredited and certified expert, not "too absurd to need dwelling upon at length" by Mr. Andrew Hunter, nor was it "too ridiculous to merit serious attention." Much less was it "like the device of a theorist, etc., etc." for Mr. Andrew Hunter would not dare to use these amenities of language, in these tactfully chosen expressions, in speaking of General Clark, whom, with good reason, he proclaimed a competent judge.

Subject of Much Discussion.—Letter in an Orillia Paper in which Rev. A. E. Jones, S. J., and other distinguished scholars are Critized.—Refutation by the learned Archivist of St. Mary's College this City.

But John had another difficulty. One farm house looks so much like any other, all through the new country, how could he know his uncle's house without having to inquire of strangers, who perhaps could not speak his language. The cripple told him that his uncle's house had a green veranda all around it. And to show how much he knew he told Jack that all the farmers there grew red hollyhocks.

So John started out on horseback and he rode, and rode, always guided by his compass, until he came to Middown, ten miles or so off. This was easy for he had been there before. Then after giving his horse a drink, he started again, still going south-east by his compass. And he rode, and rode over the flat prairie, where there was no road but only grass, until he saw in the distance, but it was a little to the right, some scatter houses, and knowing that he had ridden about ten miles from Middown he was pretty sure it was Farville. A boy on a horse, whom he met ten minutes after, told him it was Farville. So he rode, and rode until he came to the first house. It had red hollyhocks in the front yard but no green veranda. And it was just the same with all the other houses. Poor John and Jerry the horse were very tired, and John had nearly lost all hope of finding his uncle's house, when he saw a clump of small trees, the first John had seen for a long time on the prairie. And there was a chimney that showed above the trees, so he was sure there was a house there. It was the last house of Farville, the only one he had missed. But what made John very glad it had a green veranda, which none of the other houses had. He tied his horse to a post and ran up the steps, but just as he had his hand on the knocker, for out West on the prairie they had no electric push-bells yet, he noticed there were no red hollyhocks in the front yard. This puzzled him, but he scratched his ear, and with a knowing nod he said half aloud to himself, "The green veranda is all right, as for the red hollyhocks we will talk about that later." (He found out after that the hollyhocks were all planted behind the barn). So he knocked, and, children, who do you think came to the door?

This is the "Parable of the Green Veranda and the Red Hollyhocks," not written by our modern Aesop, Ade.

APPLICATION OF THE PARABLE.

The problem of finding St. Ignace II., the Indian village where Bressani and Lalmeze were incited to death by the Indians, is similar to the above, that is, as similar as circumstances will allow, since "every comparison goes on three legs."

We have the term of departure known to a certainty, the ruins of the old fort of Ste. Marie I., then a village, St. Louis, lying midway, whose direction is ascertained by consulting Ducreux's Map (Incidentally, it may be remarked here that there is no record existing of more than one site of St. Louis). The distance from Ste. Marie I. to this midway village of St. Louis is given in Bressani and in the Relations. As for the total distance of St. Ignace II. from the Old Fort, it is set down in Brother Francois Malherbe's obituary, while its distance from the midway village of St. Louis is recorded in Bressani, in two letters of Father Charles Garnier and in the Relations.

As for its direction from the Old Fort, it is inferred from the fact that the sum of the two distances, that is, from the Old Fort to St. Louis, and from St. Louis to St. Ignace II. is about equal to the total distance of St. Ignace II. from to the question, formulate a thesis which I hope to make clear and acceptable.

"East half lot 4, concession VII., TAY Township, is absolutely the only spot—

1. Where the configuration of the ground tallies perfectly with the description of St. Ignace II., given in the Relations and in Bressani.

2. Which at the same time lies at the proper distance, and,

3. In the right direction from Ste. Marie I. (The Old Fort)."

The whole line of reasoning lay there in the nutshell. It took just the last six or seven lines to state it. And why did not Mr. Andrew Hunter, our distinguished propagator of truth and censor of error, whose letter, he tells us unambiguously, was "merely a plea in plain language for historic truth and the use of common sense in matters of archaeological inquiry," why did he not at least indicate this line of reasoning, like an honest critic, then lay bare its weak points, to show that nothing conclusive could be drawn from it? Mr. Andrew Hunter has logical acumen enough to know that as a premise it was unassailable, so he concluded that the best that could be done (in the interests of truth?) was to ignore it completely.

MINOR PREMISE PROVED.

I shall deal with the propositions numbered off above as 1, 2, 3, in the following order: 2, 3, 1; but for fuller development I must refer you, Mr. Editor, to pages 95, etc., of the Archaeological Report for 1902.

2. Malherbe's Obituary sets down the distance of St. Ignace II. to Ste. Marie I. (The Old Fort) as two leagues or six miles (Cf. Report on Canadian Archives, Ottawa, 1884, p. xv., and La Semaine Religieuse de Quebec, June 9, 1889, p. 322). The correctness of this distance of two leagues is corroborated by what follows under (a) and (b).

(a) St. Ignace II. to St. Louis, Bressani says, only three miles (Martin's Translation, p. 253). Ragueneau in the Relations says, about one league, or about three miles (Rel. 1649, Quebec edit., p. 10, 2 col., line 30 et ss.). Fr. Charles Garnier's letters to his brother Henry, Apr. 25, 1649, has a league or thereabouts, or three miles (re "fort" see R. 1649, p. 11, 2 col., line 41 et ss.). A second letter of the same to Pierre Boutar, Apr. 27, 1649, gives also one league (Rochemontex, II., p. 464).

(b) Ste. Marie I. (Old Fort) to St. Louis, Ragueneau says, not more than one league (Rel. 1649, p. 10, 2 col., line 44 taken with p. 11, 1 col., line 10). Bressani gives two Italian miles, that is 3740 meters (Martin's Translation, p. 254, taken in conjunction with p. 253, line 19 and line 28). The distance given in (a) added to the distance given in (b) makes out two leagues, or six miles ap-sions, and who had occupied that position from 1644 to 1650, that is, until the Huron missions were ultimately abandoned. He had first come up to Huronia September 1, 1637, but went down to Quebec in August, 1640. Returning to the mission, August 14, 1641, he remained there until the end. His office, as Superior, obliged him to visit at frequent intervals all the missionary centres of Huronia, so that he was well informed as to their situation.

Fr. Charles Garnier arrived among the Hurons August 13, 1634, and remained there uninterruptedly until he was slain, December 7, 1649. Ragueneau says of him: "There was not one mission in the whole country of the Hurons where he had not been, he had started many of them, and to mention one, the mission where he met his death." (Rel. 1650, p. 13, 1 col.).

Fr. Francesco Giuseppe Bressani began his missionary career in Huronia in the early autumn of 1645. Towards the end of the summer, 1649, he was sent down to Quebec to secure assistance and supplies for the mission. Half-way on his return trip, he met the Huron flotilla of canoes manned by three hundred Indians and bringing with them the whole French colony, missionaries and all, who were abandoning the country for ever. Bressani published his "Breve Relation" at Macerata, in 1653.

The accounts of these three men were written contemporaneously with the events related, and were written on the spot with the exception of Bressani's Breve Relation. There is no other evidence, at first hand, bearing on the subject. Can there be any hesitation in preferring the testimony of such men to that of Christophe Regnaud?

MINOR PREMISE PROVED.

I shall deal with the propositions numbered off above as 1, 2, 3, in the following order: 2, 3, 1; but for fuller development I must refer you, Mr. Editor, to pages 95, etc., of the Archaeological Report for 1902.

2. Malherbe's Obituary sets down the distance of St. Ignace II. to Ste. Marie I. (The Old Fort) as two leagues or six miles (Cf. Report on Canadian Archives, Ottawa, 1884, p. xv., and La Semaine Religieuse de Quebec, June 9, 1889, p. 322). The correctness of this distance of two leagues is corroborated by what follows under (a) and (b).

(a) St. Ignace II. to St. Louis, Bressani says, only three miles (Martin's Translation, p. 253). Ragueneau in the Relations says, about one league, or about three miles (Rel. 1649, Quebec edit., p. 10, 2 col., line 30 et ss.). Fr. Charles Garnier's letters to his brother Henry, Apr. 25, 1649, has a league or thereabouts, or three miles (re "fort" see R. 1649, p. 11, 2 col., line 41 et ss.). A second letter of the same to Pierre Boutar, Apr. 27, 1649, gives also one league (Rochemontex, II., p. 464).

(b) Ste. Marie I. (Old Fort) to St. Louis, Ragueneau says, not more than one league (Rel. 1649, p. 10, 2 col., line 44 taken with p. 11, 1 col., line 10). Bressani gives two Italian miles, that is 3740 meters (Martin's Translation, p. 254, taken in conjunction with p. 253, line 19 and line 28). The distance given in (a) added to the distance given in (b) makes out two leagues, or six miles approximately. So that according to the old records St. Ignace II. lay about six miles from Ste. Marie I. or the Old Fort. The Martyrs' Hill, where the shrine stands, on lot 4, concession VII., Tay Township, is a little less than six miles, or about two leagues from the ruins of the Old Fort. Therefore it is situated at the correct distance from the well known ruins.

But is there not at least one authority in disagreement with those just quoted? Yes, and but one. Christophe Regnaud, a domine, aged 36, was with the missionaries in Huronia. In 1650 he returned to France and became a lay brother. In 1673, all but thirty years after the disaster, he writes a letter to a friend in which the following passage occurs: "Fr. Jean de Brobeouf (sic) and Fr. Gabriel d'Alemant (sic) set out from our cabin (caban) to go to a small town (bourg), named St. Ignace, distant from our cabin about a short quarter of a league." Which is equivalent to saying, "from our cabin (and let us suppose that by cabin he meant Ste. Marie I.) it was less than a mile and a half to the town of St. Ignace."

WEIGHING THE EVIDENCE.

When there is question of deciding between conflicting statements it becomes a matter of judicious inquiry to determine the reliability of the persons who bear evidence. Here we have an estimate of distance (from Ste. Marie I. to St. Ignace II.) where on the one side a single witness gives less than a mile and a half, and on the other several witnesses give about six miles. The discrepancy is out of all proportion to the insignificance of the distance involved. In the present instance, both parties must be held to be truthful, inasmuch as none of them intended to deceive. We must seek the cause of the difference elsewhere.

Christophe Regnaud, as a domestic "help," may never have left the precincts of Ste. Marie I., or visited the village of St. Ignace II. What his other qualifications for judging the distance correctly were, we cannot tell. At all events, his testimony is given twenty-nine years after the event and twenty-eight after he had left Canada.

On the other hand, it is true that Father Jacques Bruyas, the writer of Malherbe's obituary, had never set foot in Huronia. He landed in Canada only in 1666, but he was Superior of all the missions of New France from August 1693 till August 1698, and consequently had easy access to all the old records. But what is of supreme importance, his testimony is fully borne out by the authorities who vouch for the distance between the first and the second village, and that between the second and the third, as seen under (a) and (b). Among these we have Fr. Paul Parvaneau, who was the local Superior of all the Huron mis-only A Common Cold BUT IT BECOMES A SERIOUS MATTER IF NEGLECTED. PNEUMONIA, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, CATARRH or CONSUMPTION IS THE RESULT. Get rid of it at once by taking Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Obsolete coughs yield to its grateful soothing action, and in the racking, persistent cough, often present in Consumptive cases, it gives prompt and sure relief. In Asthma and Bronchitis it is a successful remedy, rendering breathing easy and natural, enabling the sufferer to enjoy refreshing sleep, and often effecting a permanent cure. We do not claim that it will cure Consumption in the advanced stages, but if taken in time it will prevent it reaching that stage, and will give the greatest relief to the poor sufferer from this terrible malady. Be careful when purchasing to see that you get the genuine Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark. Mr. Wm. O. Jenkins, Spring Lake, Alta., writes: "I had a very bad cold settled on my lungs. I bought two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup but it only required one to cure me. I have never met with any other medicine as good." Price 25 cts., at all dealers.

A Marriage of Reason
By Maurice Francis Egan, Author of 'The Land of St. Lawrence,' 'Tales of Sexton Maginnis,' 'The Fate of John Longworth,' 'Songs and Sonnets,' 'The Ghost in Hamlet,' Etc

The three went to Kenwood almost in silence. Mrs. Carey had her happy thoughts; the others had nothing to say to each other.

you will find yourself at rest and feel a new life in you, if you look into the sources that have given your wife patience all these years.
'The vita nuova of Dante,' he added, half in earnest. 'Well—I have thought of it. It would make my wife the 'happiest woman in the world, and perhaps penitence would drive out remorse.'

perhaps better; and, above all, she had been taught that the household work done by the Queen of Heaven, for the God of Heaven and Earth, was neither degrading nor irksome, provided it were done for His honor and glory; and even if her voice should fail—and, like many other singers, she had as great a horror of this as of sudden death—she would not be entirely dependent. She had admitted that the words of her aunt had a double sting, because, unworried as she was, the cherished hope that her uncle might have remembered that, after all, she was an orphan without a home. He had not done so. She brushed all disappointment from her, and knelt to say a prayer for his soul. She arose, looked down again at the twilight street, and determined to take a walk, at least to the end of the street.

Appendicitis Prevented
In 7 Out of 10 Cases by Avoiding Constipation With an Occasional Dose of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Appendicitis is the direct result of constipation, or a cold settling in the abdomen, starting inflammation of the appendix. Of these 75 per cent. are the result of constipation. Besides abdominal soreness, and the colicky pains which finally centralize in a persistent localized pain in the right abdomen, the patient may be subject to vomiting, stomach upset, and occasionally chilly sensation.

she read the name on the card. She determined to add a last pang to the heart of the girl who had dared to defeat her plans, and so she wrote on her own large card:
'You need not come here expecting anything from me. No will has been found; I suppose that's what you want to know.'

Parish News of the Week.

EUCHERE IN AID OF ST. ALOYSIUS CHURCH.

Only a couple of weeks have passed since the first Mass was celebrated in St. Aloysius parish, and already signs of great interest in the building of a new church are apparent. The announcement that an entertainment would take place on the 13th inst. for the purpose of aiding this worthy cause made every one interested determined that no effort should be spared to make it a success. In this respect it seemed as though they were successful, beyond their own most sanguine expectations. It is estimated that not less than 1500 people were present, and two or three hundred more sought admission, but could not obtain it for lack of room. No less than 175 tables were occupied by the players. Several very handsome prizes had been donated by kind friends. During the progress of the play, a good vocal and instrumental programme was furnished by very fine local talent.

the reverend director, Father Killoran, was presented with a beautiful gold chalice. The presentation was made by Miss Frances McCabe on behalf of the officers and promoters of the Sodality in recognition of his able directorate during the past four years. Father Killoran replied very feelingly, saying he would always remember the members when using it.

THIRD ORDER OF ST. FRANCIS. Last Thursday evening the social reunion of the St. Patrick's Fraternity, men's branch, of the Third Order of St. Francis, took place. The members of the Third Order have had a reunion for the last two years, this last one far surpassing the former efforts in every respect. A very good programme had been prepared and was exceedingly well carried out. Mention is due to Messrs. Gaudry, Holland, Dely, Norris, the St. Ann's Male Quartette and a number of boys from Belmont school, under the special direction of their teacher, Mr. R. J. Louis Cuddey. A well trained orchestra discoursed some fine selections throughout the evening. Refreshments were served and the entertainment closed with an address by the Rev. Father Ethelbert, O.F.M., director of the Fraternity. There were present Rev. Father Holland, of St. Ann's and Fathers Christopher and Celestin.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION. On Tuesday, Feb. 25th, St. Patrick's T. A. and B. Sodality will celebrate the 68th anniversary of the founding of the Society, by a eucHERE, to be held in St. Patrick's Hall. Refreshments will be served, and no pains have been spared to make the affair a success. The members and their friends anticipate a very pleasant evening.
