FIFTH DAY OF THE COUNCIL

Session Unusually Brief—Routine Business Considered—Number of Petitions Received—Public May Address Committee on the Lien Law.

The meeting of the Yukon council yesterday was less eventful than any previous since the session first convened, being confined almost wholly to routine business. The committee on civil justice was called at 4 o'clock so early in the day it was assumed that there would be but little to do in regular session. The crowd of spectators, however, was also less than usual, the great bulk of whom were drawn to the chamber merely out of idle curiosity. Some three or four labor agitators were on hand presumably in the interest of the confiscation law, but they had no opportunity to express how much they did not know about the matter to the council. Joseph McGregor, hero of a hundred slough battles, was one of the present trio which was primed to do some "explanationing." In addition to them there were also other delegates present from the Trades and Labor council and had an attempt made to have placed the Trades and Labor council on record as being unanimous in favor of the bill, there would have been a howl of protest that would have awakened the dead. The commissioner answered another pair of questions put by the senior member from Dawson, who apparently has a monopoly of the privilege, and there were quite a few new petitions presented.

Among the petitions was one presented by Mr. Clarke from J. H. Russell and others who desire to establish a brewery in the city and ask such legislation be enacted as will permit of them doing so. Mr. Pringle filed a petition from the miners of upper Hunker asking that a road be constructed from 15 above up the right hand fork. Mr. Newlands submitted a report from the committee on standing orders and private bills that was quite extensive. Concerning the application of E. A. Probst for relief, he having been injured in a fire while serving in the department as one of the firemen, the committee is of the opinion that such relief could only be received upon recommendation of the commissioner to the house.

As to the application of Allan S. Cannon for the exclusive privilege of maintaining a slaughter house, the committee with the exception of one member was of the opinion that it should not be received on account of its being for an exclusive privilege. The petition of Ben Van Valkenburg was needless and should not have been referred to the council. The committee recommended that the petition be referred to the council, and that the legal adviser be instructed to draw up such...

THREE DROWNED IN FAVOR OF MASS MEETING

Citizens Are of Opinion That Treadgold Matter Should Not be Allowed to Drop. Suggested That Subject of a Delegation Should be Reopened.

There seems to be a general feeling about the city today that further measures should be taken to impress upon the government the feeling of the community in relation to the Treadgold concession. It seems now to be generally accepted that the government is strongly committed to Treadgold and that there is little hope of an annulment of the grant. There is, however, still a belief that a representative delegation might accomplish good results at Ottawa and it has been proposed that a mass meeting should be called for some evening next week to discuss the matter. It was stated this morning that the Board of Trade will take the subject in hand and it is altogether probable that the next meeting of the board, which occurs on Tuesday next, will be a lively one. Thus far the board has taken no action and will not do so until the regular meeting.

SHORT COUNCIL SESSION

The session of the council this afternoon was of less length than any held yet since the sittings began, lasting less than a half hour. There were no petitions, but very few motions and merely matters of routine. Mr. Clarke made several motions to produce notice of which intention was given a day or two ago. He desires a return showing the total amount disbursed by the commissioner or acting commissioner of the Yukon between the date of the last adjournment of the council and the beginning of this, showing where such expenditures were authorized by this council, when the same were not by the authorization of the council upon whose authority the said amounts if any were disbursed. Also, showing in detail the total amounts paid since the last session of the council for printing and advertising showing to whom or what company or individual the same was paid; the respective dates of payments, also, any unpaid bills for advertising or printing. Also, that an order of the house do issue for a return showing the total value of beer consumed or imported during the last twelve months, how much being Canadian and how much American; also, the cost of transportation, duties and other fees where possible. Also, the total cost of the work done on the road around the Klondike-bluff, what the original contract price was, who did the work, why it was done in the winter instead of in the summer and upon whose recommendation was such done and if the territory was put to any expense by such operation. To the query as to the value of the beer imported the commissioner informed the member such would be a matter of impossibility to procure, the customs department taking no cognizance of the cost of such importations. Mr. Lowe introduced the following motion: That in the opinion of this council it is desirable to aid in the development of the copper mines of the Yukon territory, by voting a sum of money from the general revenue fund of the territory not to exceed the sum of $100,000 toward the erection of a plant for the purpose of smelting, concentrating or reducing copper ores at Whitehorse, or to assist a company by a grant of money or an annual subsidy toward the erection of such a plant. Mr. Lowe spoke shortly to his motion saying that the miners in his section were not overburdened with funds and that on account of the high rates on the railroad and the steamers it was an almost impossibility to ship their ores rich, though they are. If the government would assist in the erection of a smelter the opinion was expressed that it would pay in revenue within one year the total cost of its construction. Mr. Lowe also introduced an amendment to the dog ordinance which was given its first reading. It will come up again on Monday. Mr. Newlands introduced a bill amending the steamboat license ordinance which reduces the fee from $250 to $150. First reading. Mr. Thompson introduced his resolution re the telegram it is proposed to send to the minister of justice concerning how far the Yukon council may probe into the Treadgold matter. The commissioner had already prepared a telegram he expressed himself as willing to send and upon the same being accepted by Mr. Thompson the latter withdrew his motion. The amendment to the D. A. A. charter was given its second reading. Considered by the committee of the whole on Monday. The commissioner replied to the questions of Mr. Clarke submitted on Wednesday. Regarding the wood on the Quartz creek concession rotting because the miners were not allowed to use it, no official information of such has yet reached the commissioner. If it is learned that such is true the commissioner will do all in his power to remedy it. Regarding the meetings of the council, such are provided for by statute. Mr. Thompson gave notice that on Monday he will ask if there has been any reply had from the wire to the minister of justice. Mr. Clarke moved that from now on no printing contract be entered into or paid for unless the same is submitted to public competition. An adjournment was taken until Monday afternoon, there being no session tomorrow. Fancy Petaluna eggs—at N. A. T. & T. Co. LOST, pair glasses, in case. Please return. Bleeker & de Journalist. Government Deals With Grand Trunk

Special to the Daily Nugget. Ottawa, May 14.—The Dominion government has decided to grant a subsidy to the Grand Trunk-Pacific. The line is to be 3,000 miles in extent and is given a subsidy averaging $5,000 per mile. This means a cash grant of $15,000,000. In addition the government will guarantee bonds to the extent of $20,000 per mile for 3,000 miles, which will enable a company to raise $60,000,000 more by mortgage.

SEND A DELEGATION.

Elsewhere in this paper will be found an Ottawa telegram reproduced from the Sun of this morning, and dealing with the debate in parliament upon the Treadgold concession.

The report confirms the brief summary of the discussion which appeared in the Nugget of Tuesday and appears to leave no doubt of the fact that the government is committed to the Treadgold concession.

The position taken by the Premier and other ministers may be stated in a few lines. The fact is recognized that the great need of the district is an adequate system of water supply.

This sort of reasoning is thoroughly plausible and to the average member of parliament, who is in total ignorance of the real facts in the case, would naturally be entirely satisfactory.

In this emergency, the Nugget has no hesitation in saying that a delegation instructed to carry the views of the people to the government should be sent to Ottawa at once.

Petitions have been forwarded, resolution passed by the Liberal Club, by the Board of Trade, by the city council, and by the elective members of the territorial council have been sent on to Ottawa, and the government still remains determined to stand by the Treadgold orders.

The situation is certainly upon-coming and should be met by prompt action. If the government is not turned from its purpose now, or within the near future, it never will be—and in any event, it is highly desirable that the whole truth be learned at the earliest possible moment.

It is plainly evident that Mr. Ross is a sick man and a seriously sick man at that. There is no other explanation which will meet the situation.

In the estimation of this paper, therefore, no time should be lost. The matter will not brook further delay. If the country is to be saved from Treadgold, the people must act and act quickly.

MASS MEETING.

It is announced that a mass meeting will be called in a few days to deal with the Treadgold concession as it now stands. This is a proper course of procedure and in fact seems to be the only right way to handle the situation.

The determination to call a mass meeting to consider the matter is thoroughly in order. If solemn pledges and promises have been simply a matter of juggling of words it is time the facts were ascertained.

There is not the most shadowy reason upon which to base any belief that Mr. Ross has proven false to the trust reposed in him by the people of this territory.

Anyone who may desire to address the committee to which the lien law was referred, will be given an opportunity of so doing. It is the general desire to see a law enacted which will give needed protection to labor without undue injury to other legitimate interests.

Imperial Defense

London, April 13.—The correspondent of the Globe in St. John's, Newfoundland, concludes a lengthy article on the proposed Canadian Naval Reserve by saying that in order to have the empire's food supplies coming from within the empire the Atlantic highway must be properly safeguarded.

The Morning Post, in a lengthy comment on the Militia Bill introduced in the Canadian House of Commons by Sir Frederick Borden, says that Canada will hold aloof from imperial defense as long as the Laurier administration remains in power.

In a letter to the London Times, General Laurier, formerly of Nova Scotia, strongly defends the self-governing colonies for not contributing to imperial defense.

Look at the autobiographies of Minnehaha and Pocahontas. Minnie knew when to ha ha and Pocahontas knew just when to shield Captain John Smith's head from the ax with her dress skirt. It was a trying moment for Cap. but he was true blue and afterwards made Pocahontas his wife.

Stroller's Column.

The ice is now gone and spring is here. Spring has been here for some time but not so much so as at present. It is now time to bring forth gladioli bulbs and swear off ferns until the new crop is ready for the market.

Another unflattering indication of spring is that married men who are endowed with that most admirable of all masculine traits, being handy around the house, are already beginning to manifest their talent in making summer refrigerators.

The Stroller made a summer refrigerator once to prevent divorce proceedings being instituted. He made it from green lumber and by the time the weather got real warm the boards had shrunk until it looked like a chicken coop.

London, April 12.—That gigantic plan or the regeneration of Ireland, the Land Bill, is not to stand alone. The chief secretary for Ireland announced in the House of Commons yesterday that two captains of industry, Lord Iveagh, the brewer of Dublin, and Pirrie, the shipbuilder of Belfast, are to undertake a great scheme of transport development throughout the whole country.

The announcement of this made in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Wyndham, he emphasized that the object of the two capitalists was not to make money, but to patriotically facilitate organized transportation to agricultural communities, and to consider the possibilities of aiding industrial and agrarian enterprises.

Mooselidde, May 12th, this year. To me who kin rede and Rite life at mooselidde is not what it was when I was basking in IgroanCe. The gunny dolman does not look as wise to me as it once did.

Ann, the Stroller is surprised that you, the decaying belle of an old family sees no sparkle of hope in the future. If you would buy a pair of garters and quit drinking the future would hold more pale pink tints for you.

Mr. Wyndham also announced a new bill, the effect of which will be to bestow upon Ireland £195,000 annually, as the equivalent of what England receives under the Education Bill.

According to the London Daily Mail the real significance of the new scheme of Irish agricultural development, which was outlined by Mr. Wyndham in the House of Commons on Wednesday night, is that, for the first time, organized motor traffic, will attempt to supplement, if necessary, complete, with other existing means of locomotion and transit.

The Dublin correspondent of the Chronicle says he hears on the authority of a member of the government that parliament will be dissolved at the end of the present session and that a general election will be held in the autumn.

It was suggested in police court a few mornings since that the climate of this broad, white northland works wonders in matters of love and affection; that here in many cases females are known to lift their love like it was a chattel mortgage and transfer it to some other man, object, article, or thing, leaving the former "Johnny on the Spot" nothing but regrets and a shriveled up heart with which to commune as he again takes up the burden of life.

More Schemes for Welfare of Ireland. The economies promised by the Chief Secretary for Ireland, in connection with the Irish Land Bill, will largely depend upon the establishment of the new regime as many duties now performed by officials of Dublin Castle will devolve on the Irish Senate.

Mr. Chamberlain's name is mentioned in connection with the proposal to local representatives. Mr. Wyndham's introductory speech was in regard to all the main features of the scheme. Several secondary, but important points had, however, to be omitted by the Irish secretary in condensing his speech within reasonable limits.

The machinery by which the peasant proprietors are to come into existence is simple. The landlord first sells the Estate Commission to inquire into the circumstances of his estate, with a view to a sale. Then the price of the estate is estimated, and within a prescribed time, to be fixed by the estates commission, the owner must agree to sell at the estimated price.

The land purchase bill has been well received by the London press. All the newspapers agree that although the bill will place a burden on the British taxpayers, it will be well worth the money, if the objects are attained.

The Standard (Ministerial) remarks the extraordinary fact that the chief secretary for Ireland in a Unionist cabinet, in introducing the land bill, should receive such universal and convincing tokens of good will.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal says: "Wyndham's effort, if honest and earnest, will command sympathy and support, if otherwise, the Irish peasantry are strong enough to oppose and defeat it."

The Cork Constitution (Conservative) says that the bill falls short of expectations in several particulars, but seems well worthy of acceptance.

The Northern Whig (Liberal) says that the first impression created by the bill is decidedly favorable.

While but few people witnessed the attempt, and but a small percentage of those who did did not know that it was not a bluff, a young man attempted suicide on the water front the day the ice went out. Thinking there would be luck in unlucky numbers he put in a guess for Hershberg's outfit for the 13th day, 13th hour and 13th minute.

THE TREADGOLD

Ministers Defend Generally Opp Opposition Some. (From Yukon Sun, May 14, 1903, p. 2.) Today Mr. T. C. Cairns (Ministry) brought up the Treadgold concession which was introduced in the House of Commons on May 13th of last year. The Minister of the Interior, in a full discussion of the subject, pointed out that the concession was granted to the Yukon Territory in 1898, and that it had been renewed on several occasions. He stated that the concession was granted to the Yukon Territory in 1898, and that it had been renewed on several occasions.

THE TREADGOLD CONCESSION

Members Defend the Grant Which is So Generally Opposed in the Territory. Opposition Members Express Some Strong Views.

(Yukon Sun, May 15.)

Members of the territorial council, May 13. — In the early part of the day the territorial council met to consider the Treadgold concessions, of which Mr. T. C. Casgrain had given notice on May 10. In doing so he said he was only accepting the invitation of the minister of the interior to discuss the subject on May 13th of last year, to a full discussion of the subject. He said that the council had passed an order-in-council on June 23, and December 7, 1902, which was repealed on April 12, and replaced by new order-in-council of the same date, after some discussion had been made to the effect that a district consisting of 100 square miles, he said, had been handed over to the grantees under an order-in-council which was the extraordinary document ever since under notice of the house. The concession granted could only be cancelled when the order was cancelled and commented upon.

Mr. Casgrain was given the sole right to use water to generate power for the grantees, priority to take water for distribution, and other privileges which brought them into competition with the free miners in such a way that the latter had no chance. Casgrain went on to quote from Yukon newspapers, principally the "Yukon Herald," and from individuals who said there was a general feeling of protest against the grant of such extensive and valuable rights to the Treadgold syndicate.

He also went into the order-in-council in detail to show the house that the time privileges amounted to, and stated that the amended order-in-council made no material change in the original orders to which such objection was taken. He said he had the right to devote and take water as restricted to 5,000,000 gallons per hour, but this would give him a monopoly of the water power.

The strongest protest had been against the right of the syndicate to acquire and work the abandoned claims, but this was continued in the amended order, as well as the fact that no rentals should be paid by the crown except for timber.

The original condition that the syndicate would spend $250,000 within a certain time was omitted, and a rental was given a third-year term for which it had a monopoly. In the recent election, Casgrain in the liberal platform contained that setting forth that a supply of water to miners was one of the most important questions in the Yukon and its supply would best be left to the government. The government should take steps to forthwith amend the Treadgold concession to make the supply of water a national monopoly. Another plank asserted that the concession created a gigantic monopoly. Mining in Yukon could not be carried on at great expense, and one of the prime necessities was the supply of water. To supply this need properly, the work could only be done by a monopoly. To condemn the government for granting this concession would be to condemn Yukon today and end in its being abandoned, all because the government had undertaken to arrange for a proper and necessary system. There was no evidence that there would be any loss of revenue. If any men with the command of means believed in a calculation of the probable profits of the syndicate, they would be tumbling over each other in their eagerness to get the concession on any terms. The whole cabinet had carefully talked over the terms of which the concession should be granted, and had revised their decision when it seemed right to do so. The concession might have a portion of the Yukon. There was a lot to be prospecting and developed, and so finally the territory would bring a great revenue to the treasury. No more evidence had been adduced to show that this concession was going to be detrimental to the mining interests of Yukon. The miners would get what they were crying out for, water, that they wanted the government to go out and spend its millions in providing.

The point that the government was giving away public domain, Blair met by reading section 47 of the Dominion lands act, and section 5 of the amendment act of 1892, which gives the governor-in-council power to make regulations for sale, lease, etc., of crown lands. The opposition had calculated that more fabulous sums would have been made out of concessions than had been made, but not one man had thought it worth while to apply since then for a single acre of the territory.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier told of the consensus of opinion among the miners that it was necessary to make arrangements for the purpose of collecting water, creating power and then distributing it to the miners. The government was first asked to undertake it as a public work, but it was found that works on the scale demanded would cost more than five million dollars. The government was not prepared to spend such a sum. Were the opposition ready to advise the government to spend two millions? The work therefore had to be done by private enterprise, and capitalists came to the government and declared their willingness to do the work. The government entered into an agreement with them, subsequently making some conditions when representations were made, and providing that the miners should have the prior right to enough water to operate their claims.

The leader of the opposition replied to Sir William Mulock's point that the amendment order was not yet gazetted by showing that his first order was not gazetted. He read the protest of the Dawson Liberals against it and spoke strongly against the concession.

Fitzpatrick held that the government had a legal right that the work should be done by government or company. The government decided that a company was best, and he approved of what was done. The government was prepared, however, to listen to any grievances, and prepared to remedy them.

Dreyfus Affair

Paris, April 6.—M. Jaures, a Socialist deputy, today launched his promised revelations of the Dreyfus case in the chamber of deputies. They proved to be more sensational and more important than was anticipated and reawakened much of the angry excitement that marked the sitting of parliament when this "cause celebre" was tearing France to pieces. M. Jaures undertook to show that a document of the most serious importance, which might have procured a decisive investigation of the case, was systematically suppressed, that the spurious letter attributed to the Emperor William was, like Col. Henry's forgery, done at the ministry of war, and that highly placed officials were responsible for it, and that this fraudulent document was afterwards slipped into the ministerial dossiers in a manner that enabled it to be procured as evidence without incurring the risk of public scrutiny.

M. Jaures' speech was long, and though it was eloquent and powerful, it need not be followed in detail. Its kernel was the exposition of a letter purporting to have been written by Gen. De Pellieux in August, 1898, the day Col. Henry committed suicide, to M. Cavagnac, who was the minister of war, asking permission to resign because he realized that he "was the dupe of those without honor, and unable longer to rely on the confidence of my subordinates, and unable to trust my superiors, who have made me work upon forgeries."

The reading of this letter aroused a great sensation, in the midst of which

Some Queer Marriages

Among certain African tribes husbands are not permitted to look upon their wives. They live in huts apart, and only during the night are they allowed to visit their brides. This custom, which prevails in the neighborhood of Timbuctoo, is equalled in singularity by that in vogue at Futa, where wives never permit their husbands to see them unveiled until three years have elapsed since their marriage. In Sparta, as is well known, the husband was only able to seek the society of his wife by stealth and under cover of darkness, as seems to be the case among the Turkomans of the present day, on whom, sometimes for the space of two years after marriage, a similar taboo is laid.

Among civilized people such codes do not, of course, exist, although eccentricity has been known to afford analogies, if solitary, examples; as in the case of a wife of a Viennese doctor, who having on the eve of the day originally fixed for her marriage, been stricken with smallpox, which completely destroyed her good looks, became a bride only on condition that she might ever day by day wear a thick veil. This stipulation, however, she herself afterward rescinded.

A curious marriage was a few years since celebrated in the Russian province of Simbirsk. The bride, who by withdrawing herself entirely from the world, had obtained a reputation for great sanctity, bestowed her hand upon an ascetic of equal fame. The couple had never previously seen each other, nor did they when the priest made them one; for after the ceremony in which they took part blindfolded, they separated never to meet again.

Almost as singular was the wedding, at which the bride wore a silk handkerchief wrapped loosely around her face, that took place in the vicinity of a church in a northern district of London. To save her parents from ruin she had consented to marry a rich man, whom she regarded with aversion, on the stipulation that he should never behold her when she had become his wife. After the ceremony she returned to her parents' house, which, however, her husband, through the good offices of friends, persuaded her to abandon for his own.

A widow, whose husband had had the misfortune to be blind, was sought in second marriage by a well-to-do citizen of Leeds. She, however, rejected his addresses, and on his demanding a reason, averred that she could on no account permit him to exercise a privilege that had not been enjoyed by her first choice, viz., that of looking upon her face. Her lover fell in with her humour, and so obstinate did she prove when his wife that more than three months elapsed ere he could induce her to remove the thick veil under which since her wedding she had hidden her features.

Towards the close of the eighteenth century there appeared at Brunn, in Bohemia, an imposter, named Maria Zoller, who, giving herself out to be inspired, invariably wore a veil when among her followers — at whom she had many-est, as she pretended, the divine effluence that streamed from her countenance should strike them dead. A number believed in her pretensions, among others a rich old farmer, who went so far in his folly as to ask her hand in marriage. Loth to forego a wealthy husband, and at the same time unwilling to confess to a gross imposture, she advanced the fact that he must, as her husband, sooner or later behold the splendour of her face, and consequently perish miserably. The man, however, as doubtless she intended, still pressed his suit, and, on her urging that she dare not have murder on her conscience, deprived himself of sight that he might qualify for her husband. Soon afterward Zoller, now that her ridiculous assumptions were in no danger of exposure, espoused her fatuous wooer, who to the day of his death believed that he had been providentially favored.

At the request of the confirmed dyspeptic the operator was taking an X-ray photograph of the seat of his trouble. "This, I suppose," remarked the sufferer, with a ghastly attempt to be facetious, "is what might be called taking light exercise on an empty stomach."

Clara—"Did papa give assent?"
Tom—"No. He said he had no objection to our getting married, but not a cent would he give us."

BONANZA ELDORADO

Clean up Has Proven Satisfactory

No. 28 Above Bonanza a Wonder A Number of Social Events.

Mr. Merran has started in business at Grand Forks. He has opened a jewelry store.

Mr. J. Cohen, well known in Dawson, has gone to the Forks and is running a tailor shop.

Mr. J. D. Hartman of King Solomon's hill is in town today.

Fisher, Washburn & Co., have finished sluicing on No. 28 above Bonanza. Now the question which is generally asked is, "How much did they clean up all told?" Hundreds of people were present last Sunday to witness the grand clean up, which was undoubtedly one of the largest that has ever been made in the Yukon territory. A picture was taken of the clean up showing the dust in the boxes.

Reilly & Co. on No. 25 above Bonanza have made several clean ups and say they were better than expected.

French hill is showing up well and the miners there are more than pleased with their winter's work. While sluicing has been backward this spring and a large number have not made a clean up yet wherever there has been one they are all pleased over the results.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. McKay have issued invitations for a grand ball to be given at the Magnet hotel on No. 18 below Bonanza next Friday night, May 22nd. The Magnet hotel is one of the largest buildings on the creek.

Mr. and Mrs. McKay are numbered among the early comers to the land of the midnight sun, likewise among the best known on the creeks and in town. No expense is being spared to make this one of the most social functions ever given on Bonanza creek.

Mr. K. Larson, an old timer in the Yukon, has purchased the Idaho road house on No. 21 above Bonanza and will commence immediately to make extensive improvements. Mr. Larson's wife and daughter came from the outside last fall and have had charge of the culinary department of the 36 road house for Grant & O'Leary up to the present time.

During the few months that Mrs. Larson had charge at the latter place she has built up an enviable reputation for the house. Mr. and Mrs. Larson know full well what difficulties will have to be met in opening a new place, but both have had fifteen years' experience in hotel keeping and if good wishes and good housekeeping is any criterion of their success they certainly will be prosperous in their new location.

SAD NEWS.

J. E. Sherwood Learns of His Brother's Death.

J. E. Sherwood of the Oak Hall clothing store received a telegram today announcing the death of a brother in Everett, Wash. Deceased was the father of Frank Sherwood, a young man who has been in Dawson during the past year.

Young Sherwood learned of his father's illness some time ago and left immediately for his home arriving two days before the end. There are in the family another son and a daughter.

HARVEST IS ON

With the Klondike Consolidated Gold Fields.

The first cleanup of the Klondike Consolidated Gold Fields, Limited, was brought to the Dawson banks yesterday. No amount is stated but it is understood to be a good one.

The company is operating 69 below on Bonanza, Haldane concession on Laves river, and the Sir Grant concession on Clear creek, Stewart river. A big Keystone drill is now at Whitehorse for prospecting these two concessions. The company may also operate later on a dredger of the Stewart river.

The company is Anglo-French, the president being a Londoner and the vice-president a Parisian, Mr. R. Azuza Turrene, who six days ago, on 69, fell with three men from a platform 20 feet high and was severely hurt on the face. One man suffered some injury in the back, but no bones were broken.

Temperature is Low

The maximum and minimum temperature of yesterday as officially recorded was 63 and 35. At noon today it was 46. The average for this season of the year is very low.

LONELY PASSENGER

Large Dog Floats Down Yukon on Ice Cake

This afternoon at a few minutes past 1 o'clock a large black dog sitting on a huge cake of ice attracted considerable attention while floating down past the city. The animal was barking piteously and was evidently much distressed at his predicament.

The ice cake drifted in close to the garbage wharf and two men who chanced to be there called affectionately to the dog with the result that he jumped into the water and swam to the edge where he was pulled out and cared for. How far the dog had traveled on the ice is not known.

NO CHANGE IN RIVER

Except to be Rapidly Clearing of Ice

Steamers Not Yet Reported as En route to Dawson—At Outside Points.

There has been practically no change in the condition of the Yukon river at this point within the past 24 hours. Ice is still freely running and it is believed that two more days will cause it to run free. The water is not rising to any extent.

No steamboats are yet in sight and no word has been received as to when the Sybil and Thistle will leave Lehigh for Dawson.

If the river is free from ice by Monday the steamer J. P. Light will be dispatched to Coal creek below Fortymile to bring up the coal-laden scow which is in the ice there last fall.

H. C. Davis will dispatch the Prospector to Stewart river just as soon as the two rivers are free from ice. The Prospector is at the ways below West Dawson and is ready to steam up as soon as the ice is gone.

The following is the report of the river at outside points:

Eagle—River broke last night 7. Running big ice.

Ogishie—Moose Island jam broke 10 a.m. yesterday, river dropped 7 feet. River running full of ice now from Rosebud creek.

Hootalingua—Hootalingua river not open yet.

Big Salmon—Big Salmon river not open yet.

Selkirk—River raised 3 feet since yesterday. Jam mile long four miles below.

Stewart—Stewart river went out yesterday. Jam below here broke. River running free now.

SUDDEN DEATH

Mrs. Martha Daniels, Colored, Dies of Heart Disease

Mrs. Martha Daniels, a highly respected colored woman, died at her home this morning near the corner of Second avenue and Albert street, after an illness of only a few hours. Heart disease is believed to have caused the woman's death.

At 8 o'clock yesterday evening an Attorney J. G. Hay and Jack Carson were on their way to their home on Second avenue north they noticed Mrs. Daniels sawing a stick of wood. Suddenly she stopped, dropped to the saw, staggered to the door of her cabin and motioned the two men to her assistance. They hastened to her and found her suffering great pain. They assisted her inside the cabin and to her bed, then called some other colored women to aid them in doing what they could for the sufferer. One of the men went for Dr. La Chapelle who at once hastened to do all in his power to relieve the sufferer. Messrs. Hay and Carson remained with her until midnight when, as she appeared much better, they went home. Mrs. Daniels' friends remained throughout the night. Early this morning she took suddenly worse and died before medical assistance could reach her.

At about 11 last night, fearing the worst, Mrs. Daniels sent for Leroy Tozier, an old friend of twelve years standing. He responded to the summons and at her request took notes from which he was today to draw up the woman's last will and testament. She owned property in Seattle and in Colorado to the value of between $3000 and $4000 and it was her desire to bequeath all she had to two neices residing at Moline, Illinois, she having no children and her husband being dead. She named Richard Davis, a well-known colored resident of Seattle, as executor of her will.

Mrs. Daniels came from Seattle or Everett, Wash. Mr. Tozier is not certain which, to Dawson in '99. She went outside last summer, returning in the fall. She was an honest, hardworking woman and was held in high esteem not only by those of her own race but by all who knew her. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made. Mrs. Daniels was about 48 years old.

AFFAIRS OF THE HEAD

Rather Than Heart Occupy Police Court

Three Cases of Drunk and Disorderly Up for Hearing This Morning.

For several days previous to today the business of the police has been with matters of the heart in that love and affection, and lack of it, have been a predominant feature of several cases. This morning the cases all had to do with affairs of the head for all of them were on the charge of drunk and disorderly.

Abram Hamilton Anderson guessed he had taken more than was good for him but had no recollection of having been disorderly on First avenue or elsewhere. Constable Carter explained that the disorder consisted in A. H.'s inability to take care of himself. A fine of two and costs of two days' labor was imposed.

John St. Arnaud, a barber, had likewise acted in such manner as to have a and d appended after his name. He had, according to Constable Carter, used bad language on Second avenue yesterday evening.

Last fall John was confined in the asylum for some time as the result of a protracted drunk which caused him to become "bughouse." Since released and until yesterday he had been in his right mind and had industriously plied his trade. His lordship warned him of the trouble he was liable to bring on himself and imposed a fine of $2 and costs of two days at hard labor. It was said that for John's own good his friends will permit him to serve the two days.

Alfred Corrigan, a very large man who does not speak English, had been very drunk yesterday morning when by some means his face was badly battered up. He pleaded not guilty but was easily convicted, all the testimony being against him. He, likewise, was given an option on paying $2 and costs of performing two day's labor.

Corporal Pat Egan who has been stationed at the new post on Eureka for the past three months, returned to Dawson yesterday and will likely remain here this summer. He says but little work was done on Eureka last winter aside from that performed on three or four claims. On the claim at the mouth of 18 pup a dump of 80,000 buckets is out and will yield a big clean up. There are two or three other fair sized dumps on the creek.

Corporal Egan looks thin but says he has sawed up in foot lengths 150 cords of wood in the past forty days.

Tickets for the A. B. show at Rudy's. Admission, 50c; reserved seats, $1 and $1.50; box seats, $2. Next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

CRICKET SEASON

To be Officially Opened Tomorrow Afternoon

The official opening of the cricket season will occur tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the police barracks. At the time mentioned picked teams representing England and Canada will contest for cricket honors and from the personnel of the teams it is apparent that good play will result. The members of the English team are as follows: J. F. Sugrue, C. S. W. Barwell, D. Joig, Captain Wroughton, F. S. Long, Corporal Joy, G. White-Fraser, C. R. Elderton, R. H. Cautley, H. W. Betts, H. G. Herbert.

Canada's team is composed of the following: H. G. Wilson, E. C. Sekler, Dr. Norquay, Jas. Phillips, Inspector Howard, Sheriff Eilbeck, A. G. Smith, Ridley, Complin, Dundas and Warren.

If the day is pleasant a large crowd is expected to witness the game.

FIFTH DAY OF COUNCIL

fore be it resolved that this council is of the opinion that a sum of money should be voted from the general fund of the territory to assist in establishing an assay office at Whitehorse.

In moving the resolution Mr. Lowe stated that he felt the necessity of doing so from the fact that in his district the miners have no way of testing their ores and new quartz discoveries except by sending such to Vancouver, Victoria or Seattle. Such is not only expensive but causes much delay while waiting for results, particularly in those properties wherein development work is being steadily prosecuted, as there is no way by which ore values may be determined while the work is progressing. In that way Whitehorse has been greatly handicapped in the past and the member trusted that the council would empower the commissioner to arrange for the expenditure of a certain sum of public money with that object in view—once from Selkirk to the international boundary the mountains are a continuous range of mineral bearing hills which contain a wealth incalculable.

The speaker expressed regret that the honorable member from district No. 3 was out of order for two reasons and hoped that he would bring up again the same matter at a later date. Mr. Justice Dugas inquired if what was desired was an assay office similar to that in Vancouver where a staff of 32 men is employed, and Mr. Pringle also desired to know the wishes of Whitehorse in the matter. The commissioner explained that his idea of the resolution, its intent was to retain the services of a competent assayer at that point by the government paying a portion of his salary in order to induce him to remain in that district. The commissioner expressed himself as being very desirous of doing all in his power to facilitate the development and exploitation of quartz and copper properties in the Whitehorse district.

Mr. Clarke had his usual list of motions pertaining to this or that affair. He desires the returns showing by whom the road to the summit of Gold Hill was built; the cost of the same; and also what it would have cost had it been done in the summer time instead of the winter. The speaker ruled the last question out of order as no estimate had been made of what the cost would have been under the conditions mentioned. He also desires the names of all the men employed on Hunker and Dominion on road work during last October and November. Also, the money they received in wages. He likewise moved that an order do issue for the returns showing the cost of caring for the gusher, the ditch, and all matters pertaining to it.

The replies to the notices due yesterday re the expenditures of the council since its last session were postponed until today.

Mr. Newlands introduced the private bill allowing the Dawson Amateur Athletic Association to increase its capital stock. The bill was given its first reading and will come up today for its second.

Several questions put to the speaker the day before by Mr. Clarke were answered. The following are the queries and replies:

Q. Is it the intention of the commissioner to grant aid toward building a smelter at Whitehorse? A. The commissioner does not propose to grant aid toward any such enterprise without submitting the matter to council in the usual way.

Q. Can the commissioner inform the council if this council can exercise any control over the importation or manufacture of beer in the Yukon, more than is being exercised at present? A. The answer to the question is matter of opinion and not of fact. Reference is made to section 6 of the Yukon Territory Act, as amended by section 2 of chapter 34 of the Dominion Acts of 1902, for the power of the commissioner in council regarding the control and regulation of the sale of and traffic in intoxicating liquors in the territory.

Q. Can this council establish a brewery or authorize any individual or company to do so? A. The question is one of legal opinion and not of fact.

Mr. Clarke gave notice that on Monday next he would move that all correspondence relating to the charge of the Nugget newspaper of $2650 for printing ordinance No. 33 should be produced.

Mr. Landreville offered a resolution memorializing the governor general in council to amend the Yukon Act so as to provide for a wholly elective council.

Mr. Pringle offered also a resolution memorializing the governor general in council to provide an advisory council chosen from the number of elective councilmen in the administration of the affairs of the Yukon territory.

Mr. Newlands stated that in response to a request by the commissioner he had prepared a bill to amend the ordinance relating to the traffic on the public highways. He desired leave to present the bill and would ask that it be given its first reading. Agreed. Mr. Clarke asked that the rules be suspended in view of the emergency of the occasion and that the bill be put upon its second reading at once. Mr. Newlands objected to such haste as he had prepared the bill hurriedly and he feared some alterations might be necessary. However, if it was the wishes of the council that the bill be advanced another stage at once, he did not care personally. It was given its second reading and Mr. Newlands moved it be referred to the committee on public works.

After adjourning, the committee on civil justice was to have met to consider the bills now before it, but after waiting a number of moments owing to a misunderstanding a further adjournment of the committee meeting was taken to 10:30 Saturday morning. The lien law will be among those to be considered and an opportunity will be given those interested to address the committee both for and against the bill.
