CHAPTER II.

Ed Not Answer His Case.

Then they passed a very pretty girl, who moved slightly to Ambrosia, but whose greeting she declined to notice.

"That girl is my enemy," she said with a little laugh. "I took her dress-maker from her, and she has said disagreeable things about me in consequence."

"You do not love your enemies, then?" asked the doctor.

"I should think not! I have a mind totally incapable of comprehending such an idea."

"Yet it is a matter of religion." "Yes, I wish it was religious. It is so sweet and successful!"

Robert looked at her and was perplexed and uncertain. The demure face, the mocking eyes, the independent air puzzled him. Was she in earnest, or not? A carriage passed at the moment, and its occupant bowed to Ambrosia.

"That is Gertrude Jones," she said. "Do you know her, doctor? She is one of the ecclesiastical ladies of Anarix. You should see how beautifully she transacts her religion twice every Sunday; and what immaculate toilets she wears! They must come from Paris, and they must cost a fortune!"

Margaret Libby says they always rouse a Judea-envy in her breast. She wants to stop Miss Jones and ask her: "Why are not those costumes sold and the money given to the poor? Because the poor are Gertrude's great point. All the young rectors think her splendid!"

"I remember hearing a lady say that Miss Jones dressed as well as an English duchess."

"Oh, what a fool!—on Miss Jones! Her toilet is Parisian to the last bow. She is noted for her extravagance in dress. She has more jewels than she can ever wear."

"Is such extravagance right? Is she any happier for it? There is an old proverb which asserts that enough is better—"

"Better than a feast? I prefer the feast, decidedly. There is something enchanting in a splendid waste. I have often wished to try all the silk and lace I fancy. How my money would slip and slide and slide away like water into sea!"

"Yes, I remember." "O fair! O sweet! As the sweet apple blooms on the high on the highest; forgot of the gatherers; So thou! So thou!"

"That is what I mean. Sweet blooms, but forget of the gatherers." "But Robert, you have only heard the half. The other half explains why I forgot of the gatherers."

"Yet not so, not forget of the gatherers." "But high o'er their reach in the golden air."

"O sweet! O fair! That tells the tale, Robert. Women are now so cultured, so learned, so independent, so fastidious—so what not—that a man has to be a Goliath of self-conceit, to try to reach them."

"Up in the golden air, so sweet, so fair" are they! I do not even try. They would naturally be above my stature. Perhaps some country girl will save me."

"Are you still so ignorant about the country girl? Of all the daughters of Mr. Worldly-Wise-Man, she is now the cleverest. Her simplicity has become as much a fable as any of Baring-Gould's myths of the Middle Ages. She would be deeply offended if you supposed her one ribbon behind her city sister in the fashions, or on one cent behind any one in her appreciation of money."

She goes to colleges, and she writes for the newspapers, and she has turned the old farm-house into a villa or a mansion. The country girl is an extinct species. You are too late."

"What a deal of time men waste in business! Take a month or two, Robert, a month or two to fall in love and get married!"

"When a woman is as variable as water, how dare you adventure her?" "There is a little little boat called 'matrimony.' I have read that you could tame the sea if you could only marry it. Every one has a weak point. Incidentally, I heard to-day that Miss Shepherd's work print is her brother Tom—her ex-wife, Elizabeth, unreliable brother, Tom Shepherd."

"Have you ever seen him?" "Never, until to-day. He came into the club this afternoon with Captain Atkins. When they left, I heard the remarks made. They may be true; it is just as likely they are—mistakes."

"What of his appearance?" "He is gentlemanly and very handsome. It was mainly young Starti who criticized Shepherd, and you know the Starti family admire only the Startis. Besides, Starti was telling about his trip around the world, and he was amused at Shepherd's interfering with one of his audience."

"I suppose he has seen wonders." "There is an old sailor, in nautical annals, who once from the topmast had a vision of Jerusalem and Madras, and And North and South America. And the British feet 'er-ridin' at an' cheer."

And Admiral Nelson, K.C.B. But that old sailor saw nothing in comparison. For young Starti the arch has surrendered all his experiences."

"Are you interested in his experiences?" "Not in the least. I am tired. Will you try to sleep? What time do you get up?" "I shall be off when the dapple grey clouds bring up the dawning and the happy do not say 'farewell' until next again in a few days."

"Good-night, then, and a happy journey." "All right. Get a sound sleep and see Miss Shepherd in the morning. But though left to himself, Robert did not go to sleep. He sat and dreamt, waking; that was his pleasure, his rest, the way in which he prepared himself for the morrow. He had resolved to be awake when Will left but he watched just long enough to be in a deep sleep at daybreak. Will returned to himself the sun was high and the world was busy."

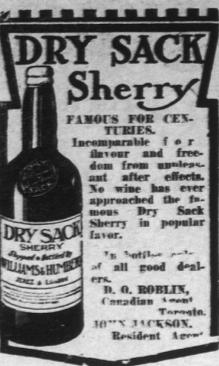

He went to Broadway and saw flowers to Ambrosia; but he resolved not to call at Mr. Shepherd's until the afternoon. Just as he was thinking of going there, he saw Ambrosia on the Avenue. She had a gentleman with her. He was talking earnestly to her, and Ambrosia, walking with lowcast eyes and gravely listening was beautiful as a woman could be. As he passed, she raised her head and gave him one magical glance. But after this perverse contradiction kept them apart. He called every day on Mr. Shepherd; he delayed his visit beyond all medical reason; but Ambrosia was always out. She had dropped to do, her step-mother said, and a modest to wait upon and her arrangements to make with the library and friends to call upon, etc."

"It mattered little to Robert what was the cause of her absence, the fact of it was the trial he had to contend with. And he did not conceal from Mrs. Shepherd that it was a very hard trial. For when a man has decided that a certain good thing is within his reach and then finds out within obstacles in his way, he can not help the sensation of being rather cruelly dealt with."

And he missed Will so much. He had no one to talk to; no one at least to urge him to do the thing he wished to do. The only kind of advice that is acceptable. Indeed, after Ambrosia had left New York, he was so restless and unhappy that he invited a very wise old friend to dine, and then he partially revealed the state of his heart."

And this friend followed the usual laws prescribed for such a condition—he warned Robert against the wiles of women and the dangers attending marriage. He used several young men of his own acquaintance as warnings and morals to point his lecture, and Doctor Carter listened attentively, and answered:

"Your advice, captain, may be all very good and so forth; and in fact it is very good and so forth—but—but—but—and he shook his friend's hand and went off through Madison Square, whispering to himself: "But it does not answer my case; not at all."

is a good thing to know Will, and hope you may do so very soon. He is going to Stromberg."

She said she hoped so, and that she was glad he was going to Stromberg and her voice was low and soft, and her bright face thoughtful, those said.

"And we are nearly at the end of our drive, doctor, and I shall hope to see you very often. It has been such great pleasure."

She was the first Ambrosia saw and Robert longed even then to say something sweetly definite to her. But she was busy with her wrap, and had so evidently the gladness which intimates the end of an excursion that he felt how out of tune any note of love would be in such a commonplace scene."

After all, he had not had the satisfaction he had hoped from the drive. He was happy and yet unhappy. He was in love with two different Ambrosias, and quite sure he had no more the entire number. How many girls in one were there? Was it possible any could be entirely—so it lovely as to shadow the beauty of all the others?"

Will scouted the idea. "A pretty lover you are, Robert, to imagine imperfections where you have not even seen it. For my part, I should refuse to believe she had a fault even if it was under my eyes. I am certain she is simply perfect: How old is she?"

"I dare say she is twenty; perhaps more. Between twenty and thirty a New York girl is a sphinx. No man can tell her age. Do you remember those delightful lines of Sappho's you read to me the other night? They describe so well a great number of lovely unmarried girls."

"Yes, I remember." "O fair! O sweet! As the sweet apple blooms on the high on the highest; forgot of the gatherers; So thou! So thou!"

"That is what I mean. Sweet blooms, but forget of the gatherers." "But Robert, you have only heard the half. The other half explains why I forgot of the gatherers."

"Yet not so, not forget of the gatherers." "But high o'er their reach in the golden air."

And Admiral Nelson, K.C.B. But that old sailor saw nothing in comparison. For young Starti the arch has surrendered all his experiences."

"Are you interested in his experiences?" "Not in the least. I am tired. Will you try to sleep? What time do you get up?" "I shall be off when the dapple grey clouds bring up the dawning and the happy do not say 'farewell' until next again in a few days."

"Good-night, then, and a happy journey." "All right. Get a sound sleep and see Miss Shepherd in the morning. But though left to himself, Robert did not go to sleep. He sat and dreamt, waking; that was his pleasure, his rest, the way in which he prepared himself for the morrow. He had resolved to be awake when Will left but he watched just long enough to be in a deep sleep at daybreak. Will returned to himself the sun was high and the world was busy."

He went to Broadway and saw flowers to Ambrosia; but he resolved not to call at Mr. Shepherd's until the afternoon. Just as he was thinking of going there, he saw Ambrosia on the Avenue. She had a gentleman with her. He was talking earnestly to her, and Ambrosia, walking with lowcast eyes and gravely listening was beautiful as a woman could be. As he passed, she raised her head and gave him one magical glance. But after this perverse contradiction kept them apart. He called every day on Mr. Shepherd; he delayed his visit beyond all medical reason; but Ambrosia was always out. She had dropped to do, her step-mother said, and a modest to wait upon and her arrangements to make with the library and friends to call upon, etc."

"It mattered little to Robert what was the cause of her absence, the fact of it was the trial he had to contend with. And he did not conceal from Mrs. Shepherd that it was a very hard trial. For when a man has decided that a certain good thing is within his reach and then finds out within obstacles in his way, he can not help the sensation of being rather cruelly dealt with."

And he missed Will so much. He had no one to talk to; no one at least to urge him to do the thing he wished to do. The only kind of advice that is acceptable. Indeed, after Ambrosia had left New York, he was so restless and unhappy that he invited a very wise old friend to dine, and then he partially revealed the state of his heart."

And this friend followed the usual laws prescribed for such a condition—he warned Robert against the wiles of women and the dangers attending marriage. He used several young men of his own acquaintance as warnings and morals to point his lecture, and Doctor Carter listened attentively, and answered:

"Your advice, captain, may be all very good and so forth; and in fact it is very good and so forth—but—but—but—and he shook his friend's hand and went off through Madison Square, whispering to himself: "But it does not answer my case; not at all."

"What a deal of time men waste in business! Take a month or two, Robert, a month or two to fall in love and get married!"

"When a woman is as variable as water, how dare you adventure her?" "There is a little little boat called 'matrimony.' I have read that you could tame the sea if you could only marry it. Every one has a weak point. Incidentally, I heard to-day that Miss Shepherd's work print is her brother Tom—her ex-wife, Elizabeth, unreliable brother, Tom Shepherd."

"Have you ever seen him?" "Never, until to-day. He came into the club this afternoon with Captain Atkins. When they left, I heard the remarks made. They may be true; it is just as likely they are—mistakes."

"What of his appearance?" "He is gentlemanly and very handsome. It was mainly young Starti who criticized Shepherd, and you know the Starti family admire only the Startis. Besides, Starti was telling about his trip around the world, and he was amused at Shepherd's interfering with one of his audience."

You Blame the Stomach

But chronic indigestion will disappear when the liver, kidneys and bowels are not right by DR. A. W. CHASE'S KIDNEY AND LIVER PILLS

You are skeptical. You have tried many medicines and still suffer from indigestion with all its annoying symptoms.

Take a new line. Leave the stomach alone, for the source of trouble is in the intestines and beautiful digestion can be restored by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills.

Mr. C. D. Bennett, Maple Grove, Ontario, writes: "I had dyspepsia very bad. The food would sour, my stomach would swell up, I suffered a great deal of using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I am now entirely cured and can eat any kind of food."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanns, Bates & Co., Toronto.

her heart to take a certain road, but she still prefers to delay a little with what possibilities are left; she wants some sentimental retrospection, some interesting memory, some deep sleep, and some encouragements for the future.

"Of course, I shall have to marry," she said to her step-mother, "but matrimony is like a close, high gate; my girl wishes to stand a little while with her hand upon the latch."

"I never saw you so timid before, Amber."

"Ah, the others were different. I knew they meant no more than I did, but Dr. Carter is in earnest. He will ask me to be his wife, and if I say yes I shall be his wife before I know what has happened. It is the irrevocable which makes me hesitate."

"He will be here this morning." "I cannot see him this morning. I have had a letter from Cousin Bessie. She wants me very particularly. I have not seen Bessie for a week, and I do not know what she is going to do this summer."

Now every girl has a chosen confidante, to whom she imparts her triumphs and as many of her failures and annoyances as she thinks conducive to make her enviable and interesting. And Bessie Madison was not only Ambrosia's confidante, she was also her cousin. They had liked each other, best friends of each other quarrelled and made up quarrels, all of their conscious lives, and were still upon terms of womanly friendship, which, however, is friendship of an exceedingly delicate character.

So, after her drive with Dr. Carter, Ambrosia felt a natural desire to see her Cousin Bessie. She said: "I am anxious about Uncle Madison, who has not been feeling well lately. Bessie spoke of getting him to take an ocean voyage. I wish he and Bessie would go and take me with them."

"I should not like you to go. Ambrosia, in the present state of your father's health."

"I dare say father would like me to go—but I shall stay with you, of course. I do hope Bessie is going—and I must see Uncle. I have been quite uneasy about him."

St. John's, Newfoundland, Jan. 9, 1911.

Something for Nothing.

We observe that Capt. Corkum, of Gloucester, master and owner of an American vessel, has come to St. John's to interview the Government and to prefer the request that the American vessels be allowed to take herring in non-Treaty waters.

For colonial gall this request is monumental.

It is only quite recently that the American Customs re-affirmed the discrimination against Newfoundland herring caught and exported by Newfoundlanders, charging a prohibitive duty on such fish, whilst admitting duty free herring imported by American skippers obtained in Newfoundland waters at the expense and under the directions of Americans.

At this very time Premier Morris is in the United States telling Americans that his Government is prepared to give fishing rights to American skippers in non-Treaty waters in return for free entry of fish caught and exported by Newfoundlanders.

Gloucester knows the terms on which to obtain the concession Capt. Corkum asks for. Moreover it is useless to give Americans something for nothing.

We have the fate of the last Reciprocity Treaty before us. It is an illuminating warning.

Here is what Sir Robert Bond said about the matter in 1905.

"For fifteen years, by a free and generous policy toward our fisher friends of the New England States, we have endeavoured to show them that in our desire to secure a measure of reciprocal trade with their country we intend them no injury whatever; on the contrary, we desire to compete with them on equal terms for the enormous market that eighty-five millions of people in the United States offers for fishery products. In 1890 we said to the people of the United States, remove the tariff bar that shuts our fishery products out of your markets, and we will grant you all the supplies that you require at our hands to make your fishing a success. The offer still holds good. For the reason that I have explained, the past fifteen years the fishermen of the United States have received those supplies without the tariff barrier to the admission of our fishery products into the United States being removed by act of Congress, but we find the very men to whom we have extended such generous treatment, are precisely those who have worked most strenuously to injure us in our trade relations with their country. We now propose to convince those men that the hands

Be Sober and Watch.

The first monthly meeting of the T. A. & B. Society for 1911 took place in the main hall with President Ellis in the chair, and some 450 members present. Three new admissions were made. The Chairman of the Juvenile Branch, Mr. J. J. Norris, arranged for the transfer of three juveniles to the adult branch. They were well recommended and welcomed as excellent additions.

After the transaction of the regular business, a resolution was carried to advertise for a doctor. This resolution was the outcome of the action of the city medical practitioners in raising the scale of charges. The proposition was intelligently discussed and passed unanimously. It was decided also to hold the annual soiree about the usual date and arrangements for carrying it out were made.

The Juvenile Branch held its monthly meeting in the Armory at the same time and some new members were admitted. Votes of thanks were passed to the lady friends and to Mr. Kielly of the Casino. The outlook for temperance for 1911 is favourable, for at the meetings yesterday there must have been upwards of a thousand adherents of Father Matthew.

Where Is It Put?

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—I see by this morning's "News" that Councillor Channing has interested himself about the night soil on Pope Street. May I ask where it is being taken? Would it not be a good time of all the Councillors, and everyone else as far as possible, to move in this matter. Such sanitary conditions as we have in St. John's are not to be found in any town of its size in the civilized world I am sure and it is quite time that this night soil be taken somewhere and chemically the country as it is at present. Surely the cost of removing it some treated instead of being spread about kind, for the stuff would be less expensive in the end than the epidemic that is sure to come sooner or later.

Faithfully yours,
ONE INTERESTED.

210 Persons Killed in the Mountains.

Berlin, December 31.—During the twelve months ended November 15, 210 persons have been killed in mountaineering accidents in Central Europe—the Swiss Alps, the Tyrolean Mountains, the Austrian Alps, the Carpathian Mountains, and the Bayarian Ranges. Ninety-four fatal accidents occurred in Switzerland, and eighty-two in the Tyrolean Mountains, the remainder being distributed over the remaining ranges mentioned.

During the same period there were 567 accidents which did not end fatally.

Cochrane-st. Church.

Inspiring sermons in 12 congregations and splendid singing combined to make the Synodal School Anniversary yesterday at the above church both interesting and instructive. Rev. J. S. Sutherland preached in the morning, and adopted the motto for the day, "The Christian Warfare," the subject of his sermon. He held the close attention of the whole congregation whilst he dealt with the various characteristics necessary for those who fight in this warfare—faith, virtue, obedience, knowledge, temperance, godliness, brotherly kindness, charity. The address was apt and forceful, and such as could be understood by even the youngest of the scholars. In the evening Rev. Mr. Matthews, the pastor, preached, taking as his text, "A Good Soldier of Jesus Christ," and showing forth the various qualities which are necessary to the makeup of a good soldier. He spoke of the various phases of the Christian warfare, and of the part that young people have to take in it.

In the afternoon the meeting was presided over by Mr. C. R. Steer, while Rev. J. W. Bartlett gave a most interesting address and spoke of the army of children who marched to the Holy Land to rescue the tomb of our Saviour from the Saracens. The exercises in the afternoon were of a most pleasing character, and were faultlessly rendered by the young performers. During the day Misses Herder and Vincent rendered solos, which were highly appreciated by the congregations. The singing of the children was led by the grand organ with the assistance of Messrs. Parsons and Dutoit, with cornets. The scholars joined in heartily and the hymns were bright and tuneful. The Superintendent, Hon. J. J. B. Woods, and the officers and teachers are to be congratulated upon the successful result of this anniversary celebration.

Brother and Sister Perish.

Old Lady Upset Lamp While on Her Way to Bed.

Charlottetown, January 3.—A tragedy took place to-day at Clyde River, by which Colin MacPhail, postmaster and his sister lost their lives, and the little cottage where they lived was burned to the ground. The sad occurrence is supposed to have been caused by the old lady falling and upsetting a kerosene lamp while on her way to bed. The flames spread rapidly setting fire to her clothing and spreading to other inflammable material. A neighbor, Neil MacKinnon passing, discovered that the house was on fire and gave the alarm, and in a few minutes time, over one hundred people had gathered.

The body of Miss MacPhail was found in a corner of the kitchen, burned to a crisp, where she had fallen; but the body of her brother was removed before the flames got into the bedroom, life being extinct, however, he having been suffocated in bed. His body was passed out through the window.

Two of the valuable silver dollars of the issue of 1894 were found this month among the property of a lawyer in Carlisle, Pa., who had at one time been a prominent patent attorney. The last time a dollar of 1894 was sold the price paid for it was over $3,000. There were more than 13,000 silver dollars minted in 1894, but the bulk of them were lost at sea while being transported to the Mediterranean to pay off the men on the American fleet. There are thought to be only four of the coins in existence besides those now accounted for.

The New York Christian Work and Evangelist strongly condemn the growing practice of women attending dinners with men and indulging in the use of intoxicating liquors. That journal says: "Women not only drink cocktails before dinner now in New York, but they drink strong wines and much champagne, and it is no uncommon thing to see them so flushed with drink that they lose all sense of modesty and say things that had enough in men, sound horrible in women." Here is an opportunity for social reform.

The Late Captain Henry Thomey.

There passed away on Saturday at Harbor Grace in the person of Henry Thomey a very remarkable Newfoundland, one of the old vikings, a veteran sealing master, and the son of another skipper, Arthur Thomey, as well known and as successful as the celebrated son. Henry Thomey had attained the great age of 91 years but on his visit recently to St. John's he appeared to enjoy wonderful health and the spirit of a boy. The Ridley, in whose employ the Thomes served for two generations thought a great deal of their skippers. One of the great events of the spring was Thomey's arrival to Ridley's, or the famous Az. Munden to Munn's. Thomey was great as a teller of yarns about the ice, but Az. Munden beat him hollow.

They were splendid men, those old sealing skippers, and nearly all baymen. Thomey's success at the ice in the Isabella Ridley was phenomenal, and he made good trips both in the s.s. Commodore and s.s. Greenland, whilst Thomey was remarkably successful, averaging 4,000 for 40 years and never losing a man. Like every one else, he had had luck especially in what is known as the Bloodhound year, which the local poet has commemorated—

"The Mary Joyce is stuck in the ice
And so is the Bloodhound too;
To paddle his own canoe."
NEWFOUNDLANDER.

Jan. 9th, 1911.

Capt. Robert Bartlett.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir—Is it not strange that after receiving the generous, unstinted praise of all nations and newspapers for his great work in the Arctic, that the first cowardly attack upon Captain Robert Bartlett should be made by a newspaper published in his own country, the home of his family for four generations?—though most reluctantly we admit this, it is nevertheless a fact. We are pleased to note, however, that it has raised a most indignant protest wherever it has been read. Captain Bartlett and his family have been highly respected in Newfoundland many years before the editor of the newspaper in question was born, and the utterances of his newspaper will reflect discredit on no one but himself. Almost every civilized nation has honored Bartlett and conferred medals upon him. The British press has been most lavish in its praise, affectionately referring to him as the "Shackleton of North America." An American publication just issued by the Frederic A. Stokes Company pays a most glowing tribute to Bartlett in the following words:

"The long generations of ice and ocean fighters behind this brave, indomitable young Newfoundland captain seemed to be re-living in him, the strenuous days that carried the flag of England 'round the world.'"

In face of such a tribute it is hard to understand how any newspaper, especially one printed in Newfoundland, could be guilty of an attack on Captain Bartlett, the man whose very name brings a flush of pride to the cheek of every son and daughter of Terra Nova. It is sincerely hoped that a fitting rebuke will be tendered the author of the editorial.

Captain Bartlett is proud of his motherland, and every true Newfoundland is proud of him.

Narrow Escape.

Mr. Austin Parsons, of Oquerbury, had a very narrow escape from an untimely end on the 7th of December last. It happened at Brig Bay, St. Barbe District, where Mr. Parsons was in pursuance of his work as assistant to Head Constable Sheppard, who was acting this season in that district as warden, and for the general observance of the law.

Eight of these savage brutes of mongrel breed, called Labrador dogs, made a sudden and ferocious attack on him, biting him badly and bringing him, despite his struggles, to the ground. Quick and terrible death now stared him in the face. In one minute all would be over with him. But providentially Head Constable Sheppard and the owner of the dogs heard his calls for help and arrived at the spot just in time to drive them off and rescue him from the horrible fate of being eaten alive.

Much credit is due to the skillful and prompt way in which Constable Sheppard (whose lessons in "First Aid" now came in so well) cut, washed and dressed the wounds and daily attended to the sufferer in place of a doctor. Mr. Parsons cannot say too much in praise of Mr. Sheppard. He is now almost recovered from the shock and his wounds are nearly healed. He is thankful to have escaped so well.—Standard.

Reid-Mfld. Co's Ships Arrive.

The s.s. Home, Capt. A. Blandford arrived at 10.35 p.m. Saturday to lay up here for the winter at the dock premises. She made a good run down from Bay of Islands, having had fine weather all through.

The s.s. Clyde, Capt. Job Knee, entered port at 7.45 p.m. yesterday, having concluded her service for this season on Notre Dame Bay. She had good weather coming up except for a S. E. blow during the afternoon. She also will lay up at the dock premises, to get an overhaul before taking up next seasons work.

Violently Resisted the Police.

A well known West Ender who very often spends a term in jail, came down Water Street Saturday night and insulted several people passing by. Near the foot of Pilot's Hill he accosted almost every female he met, and was noticed by Constable Cleary and another officer who arrested him. He gave the men much trouble, but despite his struggles he was handcuffed, and though he fought with the officers all the way he was eventually landed in the cells.

A Lady Says:

"Those Magic are wonderful powders for relieving headache. I don't think I ever took anything which relieved me so quickly and without any ill after effects." They can be had only at W. T. COURTENAY, corner of Duckworth and Prescott Streets.—Jan. 7.

The Portia Here.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. T. Fitzpatrick, arrived here at 3.30 p.m. Saturday from the westward after a trip which was remarkable for bad weather. After leaving here on the 26th December she had good weather until leaving Burgeo, on the 30th, when a regular blizzard was the experience with a S. E. gale. This continued until the ship arrived at Port aux Basques next day. She remained in that port owing to stormy weather until daylight Sunday, the 1st inst., and on the run to Bonne Bay the weather was very boisterous, the same prevailing on the return voyage until she reached Hermitage Bay. She had a fairly good run after that until port was reached. She brought a small freight and these passengers: Messrs. Wilton, Anstey, Daley, Murphy, O'Leary, Costello; Mesdames White, Walsh, Cashin; Misses Power, Broome; Masters Froehalm, Casuin (2) and 32 second class.

Survey Progressing.

Those engaged at the Southern Shore railway survey are still at work and are doing it with despatch. The weather up to date has been very propitious, there being little frost and no snow to impede the men. They have gone over Cemetery Hill, at Ferryland, and are working across to Shoulder of Mutton, Long Pond, over a level country, and are distant from St. John's about 43 miles. Unless very severe weather occurs the work will continue all winter.

BRUCE'S ROUGH RUN.—The s.s. Bruce did not reach Port aux Basques from Sydney until 3.35 p.m. yesterday owing to a S. E. gale with thick snow prevailing. This necessarily retarded the ship, which took 16 hours to cover the distance. The ship all the season has been doing excellent work and until this voyage has always been on schedule time.

The Frozen Herring Fishery.

Capt. Corkum of Gloucester, whose vessel is now in Bay of Islands, came to town by train Saturday to ask a permit from the Government to take a load of frozen herring in Placentia Bay. He called on the Attorney General to-day to discuss the matter.

"Absolutely Alright."

That is what an authority says of Magic Headache Powders. They cure—no ill after effects, which is all right. The price 19 cents is all right. W. T. COURTENAY, corner Duckworth and Prescott Streets.—Jan. 7.

Star of the Sea Day.

The Star of the Sea Association held their annual parade yesterday morning. Leaving their Hall at 10 a.m. the Society marched to St. Patrick's Church, by way of New Gower Street and Hamilton Street. The number in the procession was well up to the standard of former years. Three bands accompanied the Society, viz., the C. C. C. T. A. and the Mount Cashel Band. Rev. Father Power celebrated, High Mass, Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan being Deacon, Rev. Fr. Kelly, Sub-Deacon, Rev. Fr. Pippy Master of Ceremonies. His Grace the Archbishop occupied the Throne and was assisted by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Roche and Fr. McDermott. The ceremonies were carried out in an impressive manner. The music of the choir was exceptionally fine, and the comments that were heard on all sides after Mass were that the choir of St. Patrick's is now equal to the Cathedral choir. Mr. McCarthy has adopted an excellent system and everyone in the choir, poor as well as rich, is given a chance to render solos and test their voices. His Grace the Archbishop preached an impressive sermon.

After Mass ranks were formed up anew and the Society marched to Government House by way of Water and Cochrane Streets. The President, Mr. E. M. Jackman, tendered the respects of the Association to the King, the Governor and Lady Williams, and assured His Excellency of the loyal feeling that animated the hearts of the members toward the King and Constitution. He reviewed some of the good work that his Society was doing and had done in the past, also referring to its progress the past year. Hearty cheers called for by Mr. Jackman were, at the conclusion of his speech, given for the King, the Governor and his good lady.

Sir Ralph replied in suitable terms and said that the visit of a Society like the Star of the Sea afforded him much pleasure, and he was further gratified to know that a fraternal feeling existed between the Society and other organizations of the city. He was aware that the Society was first founded by fishermen, the memories of whom should prove honoured recollections to the present members—their descendants. He knew that the Society was loyal to the core like all the other people in Newfoundland. He hoped to have the pleasure of coming better acquainted with the Society. After cheers were again given the ranks were reformed and the Society proceeded to the Archbishop's Library where they were received by His Grace the Archbishop. Mr. Jackman after tendering the greetings of the Society made particular reference to the lectures given by Rev. Father O'Callaghan, the Spiritual Director, at the monthly meetings. He expressed the hope that His Grace would be pleased to give a lecture for them the coming winter. Marked enthusiasm prevailed amongst the members of the Society which is now in a flourishing condition. Cheers were then given for His Grace and the other clergyman present. His Grace responded and expressed the hope that the Society would continue to prosper. He alluded to the work on St. Patrick's Church done by the late Rev. Dean Born, and felt assured that it would be completed in a satisfactory manner. His Grace gave special allusion to the music rendered at Mass and which was excellent. He congratulated the organist on the result and said that new organ would soon be placed there. Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan then addressed the Society and wished them increased prosperity. He referred to their successes on the football field in the past which had been gained by earnest effort. He admonished the members to be good Catholics and always loyal to their religion. The Society returned to their Hall by way of Basildon's Cross and Queen's Road. Fourteen new members were admitted yesterday.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

Sentenced for Robbery

Constable John Morrissey arrived from Bell Island to-day with two boys, former residents of Pilley's Island, who were brought before Judge Conroy charged with the theft of $30 from the store of Mr. Geo. Wars, of Pilley's Island. The money was taken piecemeal by the lads who filed a key to fit the lock, and thus entered the place at night. Const. R. Dewling suspected a theft, got the names of the boys and brought the theft home to them. They pleaded guilty to-day and were each fined $20 or 30 days. The other lads will be arrested by Dewling when he returns, and will be brought before Magistrate Wells for trial.

Sermon to Young Men.

Last night at George St. Church a very large congregation listened with great interest and attention to an able discourse by Rev. Mr. Bartlett on the topic of "Making bricks without straw." Mr. Bartlett's conceptions of the material available for the construction of character, to which his discourse chiefly alluded, were very high indeed, and his illustrations, referring to the leaders of "thought and action" of the past ages were remarkably pertinent and timely. The discourse must have had an ennobling and inspiring effect upon the large body of young people attending the service. Mr. Bartlett gives promise of having a very successful term with the George Street congregation.

Fire at Petty Harbor.

A fire broke out at Petty Harbor last evening in the house of Mr. Michael Walsh, at 5.45, while all the family except Mrs. Walsh were on their way to church. Mr. Pridham who happened to be passing saw the smoke coming out of the upper story, and gave the alarm. He soon gathered a crowd of men who seized all the buckets and pails they could get, and getting a ladder some of them went on the roof and others up the stairs. After working hard for about 20 minutes they succeeded in putting out the fire. It originated in a room upstairs where the boys were supposed to have dropped lighted matches when getting ready to go to prayers. One side of the room was burnt right out to the claphoard and will entail an expenditure of about $30 on Mr. Walsh to put into a state of repair. There was no insurance.

Syrians Sent Back.

Three Syrians who came here from Liverpool en route to New York were sent back from Sydney last Saturday. They paid £15 for their passage in the steamer at Liverpool to a Syrian agent there. They have less than $20 each now in their possession and will likely become a burden on the Colony. They would be glad to get work here. Our Government should stop this.

S.U.F. Parade at Topsail.

The S. U. F. held their annual parade at Topsail, on Tuesday, January 3rd, 1911, which turned out very successful, the day being perfect (excepting the wind). An invitation was sent to Kelligrews Lodge, No. 33, of which a goodly number of members attended including the band. The members of Lodge No. 41, met the members of Lodge No. 33 at Villa Nova, Manilla, from thence to Topsail Church where the Rev. Canon Temple delivered a very suitable address. After prayers the Society paraded as far as Carter's Bridge, Topsail East, thence to the Hall where a wished for repast was served by the wives and sisters of the members. After lunch the band rendered a few very nice selections, for which we extend our heartiest congratulations. The whole parade was photographed while returning from Topsail East, by S. Tilley, Esq., and after lunch the band was photographed separately, seated in front of the Hall.

Doctors' Fees.

We learn that many medical practitioners are desirous of reconsidering the scale of fees recently published. They say that the publication was premature and it was understood that at another meeting the fees were to be discussed further. At all events, we are told that the matter will be taken up for reconsideration at the next meeting. There is a disposition of attendance on members and their families at a charge of 50c. a visit, provided the society guarantees the indebtedness incurred up to $5 in each case. It appears as if an amicable arrangement is in sight.

The Banking Outlook.

Great activity has already begun at Burin and Grand Bank preparing for the Bank fishery. Men are offered $210 wages for the summer, and even at this figure it is hard to get them. Mr. Hollett has gone to Lunenburg for his new schooner, the Gordon W. Hollett. There will be five new bankers more in Burin this year than last, carrying from 8 to 10 dories. Besides there will be about 15 smaller bankers more, carrying from three to four dories. The outlook was never brighter.

For my part I do not intend to give away a penny piece. (Loud silence.) Particulars of the fight Laing, of Australia, and Jack of California, at London on afternoon, show that in the first rounds Laing did all the landing heavy blows and hitting severe punishment. The American again recovered himself in the fourth but was again subjected to a grueling, which he took very fly. REINDEER BRAND CONDENSED MILK

Is far better than normal, raw cows' milk for everyday culinary purposes. For the preparation of such wholesome dishes as bread-and-butter pudding, custard, baked custards, boiled rice, sago, tapioca and rice puddings and many other desserts of ordinary utility, 'Reindeer' Milk is unexcelled. 'Reindeer' Milk is just the best of good milk from the great dairying centres of the Dominion; the surplus water is driven out and the milk is then preserved by the addition of pure sugar, much as the housewife would ordinarily preserve fruit. For this reason, an open can of 'Reindeer' Milk will keep indefinitely; the sugar crystallizes in a thin layer over the top of the milk and protects it from the deleterious influences of the atmosphere. Remember, the Dominion Government Analyst gives 'Reindeer' Milk total solids of 72.68% with 8.61% butter-fat. 'Reindeer,' therefore, stands above all other brands of sweetened, condensed milk on the market.

Laing's Victory.

Particulars of the fight between Laing, of Australia, and Jack Burns, of California, at London on Monday afternoon, show that in the first three rounds Laing did all the leading, landing heavy blows and administering severe punishment. He tried hard for a knockout, and nearly succeeded in the second round, when he sent Burns sprawling, the gong saving him. The American apparently recovered himself in the fourth round, but was again subjected to a severe grueling, which he took very pluckily. Burns had another narrow escape from being knocked out in the eighth round, the gong saving him.

Laing had decidedly the better of the tenth round. He played for a knockout, but still Burns withstood him. The gong for the third time saved the American in the eleventh round after Laing had sent him to the boards. The Australian was now a certain winner. Burns came up very groggy in the twelfth round. Laing, seeing his advantage, went straight for his opponent, landing rights and lefts. After a minute's fighting Corri decided that Burns' chances were hopeless, and awarded the match to Laing on points.

He Gave Hack a Hard Time.

Dr. Roller, of Seattle, gave Hackenschmidt a hard fight at Boston recently. In the first bout Hackenschmidt got a crotch hold at the end of ten minutes and the men went to the mat. Roller threw the Russian three times, but each time Hackenschmidt rose. Finally the Russian went face down. At the end of fifteen minutes Roller was still on top when both men regained their feet. Hackenschmidt failed at the half Nelson and then began spinning Roller on his head. Roller escaped hammerlock by clever work and thrice later the Russian missed the hold by a slight margin only. When Roller escaped the deadly hammerlock a fifth time, Hackenschmidt tore around after the doctor, finally getting him on his back with a farther arm Nelson and body roll after 1 hour and 7 minutes wrestling.

Roller got a toe hold on the Russian in the second match, but the giant proved too strong and Roller could not turn him over. Hackenschmidt rolled the doctor on his head and finally succeeded in getting a quick fall on his opponent in a body roll and won the second fall in 15 minutes.

Broke Window.

Saturday evening a drunk entered Kearney & Atkins store, Water Street, and refused to leave when requested. Mr. Kearney had to use force to get him out. When putting him out the man pushed violently against the door and put his arm through the large pane of glass in it worth $5. Mr. Kearney has his name and address and will make him pay up.

Irish Perfectos. Land for Oxford.

It may not be long before the "Irish perfectos" will be as familiar as the "clear Havana." Tobacco growing is being developed with some rapidity in Ireland.

It is about twenty years since Col. Nugent Talbot Everard commenced experimenting in growing tobacco on his estate at Randlestown, County Meath. Others have imitated him, and the result is that now, in addition to his twenty-five acres, there are Lord Barrymore with ten acres, Lord Dunraven with twenty-five acres, Captain O'Byrne with seven acres and many others with small plots.

Lord Mayor's Banquet

The Lord Mayor's Banquet at the Guild Hall in London the other day was surely a gargantuan feast. Here are the figures of the quantities requisitioned for the banquet: 50 turtles made into 100 tureens of soup; two barons of beef, each weighing 150 pounds; 150 mousse of soles, 150 crevets of prawns, 150 timbrels of liver, 150 casseroles of partridge and pheasant, 50 game pies, 100 capons, 80 tongues, 150 jellies and creams, 300 dishes of pastry, 250 dishes of pineapples, grapes, etc. 1500 loaves, 700 bottles of champagne, 12 dozen bottles of port, 4 dozen bottles of claret, 2 dozen bottles of sherry, 6 dozen bottles of hock, 3 dozen bottles of roselle. The wine alone cost £400, and the total expenditure on the banquet will probably be about £2,500. Nearly 250 waiters were employed.

Mr. Dunlop Ill.

Mr. Dunlop who shot Dr. Pritchard, and since his trial has been in the Penitentiary on remand, has been ill for some time past and is being attended by Dr. Keegan. He is afflicted with heart trouble, but it is not thought that any serious consequences will accrue to him.

Needs of a New Scheme.

It is likely that within a very short time Oxford University will be augmented in notable degree by a new school of learning and new facilities for special research and study.

The subject of agriculture has recently been taken up eagerly at Oxford, and Oxford men likely in after life to have control of land, are encouraged to study agriculture and kindred subjects as a proper part of their training. This branch of university learning, which owes very much to Professor Somerville, who left the Board of Agriculture to take up this work at Oxford promises well, but the lack of land for the practical experiments, and of money for carrying them on, has hitherto prevented such a development as has taken place in Cambridge, where the University has done splendid agricultural work, especially in the domain of research.

Backache Suffering

A wonderful medicine in this man's description of DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Two Painful Accidents

At 2 p.m. Saturday as a boy named Joseph Asplund, son of Mr. M. Asplund, of Howe Place, was swinging out of the shaft pole of a siver in Hoyletown, it suddenly fell and the boy with it. The heavy pole fell on the lad's face and pinned him to the ground where he lay stunned and bleeding until seen by Mr. James Croxley who hastened to his aid and lifted the pole off his face. Fireman Pierce Foley, of the Eastern Station, was proceeding home to dinner at the time, and taking the injured boy in his arms bore him to the Hospital, surrendering him to the Matron, Miss Southcott. The lad who was badly hurt had his wounds attended to in the institution. He bled profusely, and had a narrow escape from being killed.

Became Very Ill.

Shortly after 12 yesterday a man named Parrell became weak at the foot of Prescott Street and fell to the ground, almost opposite a street car bound west. Messrs. Cook and Wall, who had charge of the car, picked the man up, and some friends coming along he was taken to a nearby drug store where he was looked after, and the matter was reported to the police who summoned Dr. Rendell. He was in a bad state when the doctor arrived, but after his ministrations he revived. He was then taken home.

Special Evening Telegram.

MALAGA, Spain, Jan. 8. What is believed by many to have been an attempt upon the life of King Alfonso occurred during a brief visit here on Thursday. Arriving at the Palace the King stepped down from his carriage, turning for a moment to acknowledge the saluos of the crowd. He then entered the Palace. As the swinging door closed behind him, an explosion in the crowd outside drowned the cheers. Before the alarmed and stampeded crowd had realized what had happened, the gendarmes had closed about the spot from which the report had arisen. Two persons were found to have been slightly injured, but no other harm had been done. The official account of the incident says that it was unimportant and that a civilian dropped "a pistol enclosed in a box." No further details were made public.

Andrew Carnegie, the multi-millionaire, was not a shareholder.

Scarcity of Herring Brings Good Prices

By the Portia we learn that during the past week herring have been very scarce about Bonne Bay and Bay of Islands, and it is feared that the fish have deserted these places for the rest of the season, so that the fishery will not be as successful as it at first promised to be.

There are some fifty sail of American vessels at Bay of Islands, and it looks now as if their chances of securing cargoes were slim. Most of the vessels now there want to get away as quickly as possible as expenses are high and many of the vessels are under charter, so that good prices are offering for the fish. Some skippers have offered $1.20 per thousand for frozen fish, and $2.50 to $3.00 per barrel for pickled fish. These are fancy prices but the fish will sell at big figures in the American market. Should there be a run of herring during the present week the fishermen will do handsomely. Seven American schooners are at Bonne Bay with only part cargoes, and if no more can be obtained will leave a few days hence for home. There is plenty of herring in Placentia Bay and these fish are of very large size. They are exceptionally plentiful at Barren Island and also at Middle Beach, but as there are no Americans there to purchase the fish, they being debarred from doing so by law, few people are catching them. Some Canadian vessels have arrived and others are expected to arrive shortly, while several local vessels will go there for cargoes, including a new schooner purchased by W. Hollet, at Shelburne, N. S., and which will take a large quantity of the fish.

Successful Concert at Northern Bay.

A very enjoyable concert was held in the R. C. school here on the 28th ult. A very interesting and amusing programme was rendered, consisting of songs, recitations and dialogues, concluded by a flag drill, which is worthy of note. The entertainment was conducted by Miss C. March, to whom too much praise cannot be given for her energy and ability in managing such an excellent programme. Rev. J. Lynch contributed a song in his usual good style and was very much applauded. A word of thanks is due the Misses Kennedy (2) and Dr. Ferguson, of Western Bay, who so generously assisted in the musical part of the entertainment. Special mention should be made of Mr. W. Hogan, who so kindly assisted with his gramophone, which would be a splendid entertainment in itself. The hall was crowded to the utmost as many friends from the nearby settlements attended. After the performance refreshments were served and dancing was indulged in till 4 o'clock in the morning. The concert was repeated on Friday night. Net proceeds, $50.00. ONLOOKER.

The Bella Rosa, fish laden by A. Goodridge & Sons, and the Lake Simcoe, laden by Baine Johnston & Co., sailed from this port Saturday. Both are good sailers, but the latter vessel owing to her superiority in size has a greater spread of canvas, and it is thought will make a quicker voyage down than the former. There will be a race between them which will be watched with interest by nautical men.
