Phyllis Dearborn OR, THE
Countess of Basingwell

CHAPTER XXXI.

"Do you know that in this paper?" he asked the lawyer.

"I do, my lord."

"Then tell me your errand quickly, and without your former useless circumlocution."

Anger acted like a stimulant on Mr. Stillman, and he caught his companion by the hand and led her forward.

"My errand is this: I have here the daughter of the late Earl of Basingwell. Her mother was lawfully married to the late earl, as we are prepared to prove, and this young lady was born in wedlock, and is therefore the rightful occupant of the title and estates which you now wrongfully hold."

Lionel listened to the end, and then went toward the girl, who wore a somewhat frightened expression.

"Of course," said Lionel, in a gentler tone than he had yet used, "you only need to prove this to the satisfaction of my lawyers, and I will vacate not only willingly, but with pleasure. Nothing, my dear young lady, would be farther from my wish than to retain for an instant anything that does not belong to me, Mr. Stillman, you know my lawyers—Messrs. Grey & Whitcomb. Will you talk with them? I will send them immediate word of my attitude in the matter. In the meantime, if the young lady will make her home with us, she will be heartily welcome to do so. I can think of nothing more to say, unless it be that I shall be pleased to supply the young lady with any funds necessary for her maintenance or for the proper prosecution of her interests."

"My lord," said Mr. Stillman, very much impressed and entirely rid of the anger which had troubled him, "this is more than generous—it is almost an injustice to yourself. Such magnanimity I never saw, nor expect to see again. I shall see that the young lady needs nothing, but I leave it to her to decide whether to remain under your roof or not. I am of the decided opinion that her claim is absolutely just, else I beg you to believe that I would never have taken any notice of it. Perhaps you would wish to have a synopsis of the points in evidence. If so—"

"No," said Lionel, gravely, "I will leave that to more competent judges."

"Will you remain here, or return with me?" asked Mr. Stillman of his client.

"Oh, I wouldn't stay for fifty pounds."

Here Is a Certified Cure Of Chronic Salt Rheum

By Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment—Also a Bad Case of Eczema Just Reported Cured.

Eczema and Salt Rheum are different names for practically the same disease. Small pimples or vesicles form in groups, break and run watery matter, a crust is formed, itching is intense and the disease shows a strong tendency to spread over the body. Whatever may be the cause, Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure, for it heals and dries up the sores and leaves the skin soft and smooth.

Mr. Geo. E. Compton, Brooklyn, N.Y., writes:—"I suffered for two years with Salt Rheum. Though I consulted three different doctors and tried many medicines, it was all to no effect. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say that when I finished the sixth box the Salt Rheum was all gone. There can be no doubt that the cure was entirely due to the use of this ointment, and I would rather suffer from Salt Rheum and Eczema to know about it."

Mr. Geo. Hume, J. P., Brooklyn, N.Y., writes:—"This is to certify

"She prefers to go with me, your lordship," said Mr. Stillman, with a benevolent smile. "A little timid, poor thing," he added, in a stage whisper. Then to Lionel, "I beg your pardon, but the document—"

"Well?" said Lionel.

"It will be important in the evidence, I think. In fact, it is the most important."

"It shall be in the hands of my lawyers without delay."

"Just so, just so. Thank you. Good-day, my lord. I wish I could express—"

Lionel put his hand kindly on his arm.

"If you cannot express it you have the comfort of knowing that nobody can, Mr. Stillman. How did you come out from the station?"

"In some sort of a vehicle. I don't know that it is far enough to matter."

"I will ring for a carriage," said Lionel, "it would be a pity if even only the claimant to the Basingwell estates should be obliged to walk. Will you not eat something?"

"Will you?" asked Mr. Stillman, of his charge.

"No, no," was the hurried reply. She seemed more anxious to get away than anything else.

No further effort at conversation was made until the carriage was announced, when ceremonious farewells were said, and the claimant and her lawyer left. Lady Basingwell had sat silent and unmoved, if languidly curious during the whole time; but after they were gone she rose as if to leave the room.

"Lady Basingwell," said Lionel, peremptorily.

She stopped and faced him. She did not dread anything he might say. She was glad of every word he spoke to her. She was glad even to hear him speak. She had come to worship him as a creature so far out of her reach, so far removed from her, that his was like the voice of a god to her.

"Is there anything more that you have done, or purpose doing, to injure my name? I ask less because I expect a truthful answer than because I wish to warn you that my forbearance has reached its limit."

"You are right not to require an answer," she replied, in the monotone that was easiest for her to maintain.

"Such as I can hardly be expected to tell the truth, in the interests of that truth, then, it were better that you talked and I listened."

It sounded like the bitterest sarcasm; but it was in truth a wall from her heart. She knew she had shut herself out of his affection or respect, and she was devoured by despair.

"You do well," he said, "to answer me with gibes. Will you tell me how long you have had this paper?"

"Willingly. For something like ten days."

"And that is all?"

"That is all."

"Where did you get it?"

"I bought it from Mr. Simmons for the sum of ten thousand pounds. You have seen the check."

"Then, even on that day, when you were pretending to tell me the whole truth, you were concealing this from me."

"You forget that I married you for your money," she said. "If I had told you of this, I knew very well you would do what you have done—relinquish the property without a struggle. I have never been able to attain to that I know Mr. Geo. E. Compton and believe his statement to be true and correct."

Mrs. Allan Weber whose husband is proprietor of the Manitoulin Woolen Mills, Shequandah, Ont., writes:—"I have had a bad case of Eczema on my right leg below the knee. I tried all kinds of ointments and liniments but to no avail, and was pretty well discouraged. Hearing of how Dr. Chase's Ointment is curing Eczema, I decided to give it a trial and I am glad to say that it made a complete cure. The sores healed up completely, and I have had no trace of the old trouble for over a year."

It takes a little patience to cure a severe case of Eczema or Salt Rheum, but you soon obtain relief by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, and you can see with your own eyes the benefits obtained once the healing process sets in. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place, therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heat the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 3/4 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of the most pleasant and effective remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heats the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "3/4 ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

the lofty disregard of money that you have. Perhaps in time I shall acquire it."

"Where did Simmons get this paper?"

"Stole it out of a book in this room one day before we were married."

"Are you human?" he cried, with a sort of wall of despair.

"I am what my training has made me," she answered.

"How can you sit there, and without the change of a muscle tell me things that make you loathsome to me? Have you no horror of yourself? Is stealing nothing to you? Is lying nothing? Are all crimes the same to you? Could you live in ease and luxury knowing that some poor creature might even be starving while you were wasting what was hers? Tell me, did that girl move you to no pity? none whatever?"

"I think if there were any pity in my heart, it would be for myself," she answered.

"Pity for yourself! Because you cannot enjoy yourself with stolen money?"

"Put your own interpretation upon it, my lord."

Lionel paced the floor. Suddenly he stopped in front of her.

"What is to become of us?" he asked.

"Become of us! Why, I suppose we shall go to some garret and starve. It would be pleasant to starve with you."

She knew that would anger him; but it was the true feeling that was in her heart. If she might have had his love and respect, it would have been easy for her then to have starved with him. How strangely Fate had twisted her life and her feelings!

"Oh, you are infamous!" he ejaculated. "How can you make a mockery of your own shameful treachery to me?"

"You asked, and I answered," she replied.

"I wished to know how you and I were to live as regards each other."

"I suppose you have already decided that. As my husband, will you not support me?"

"That I will do to the best of my ability," he promptly responded; "but I will not share the same house with you, nor eat at the same table. My food would choke me—the air you breathed would stifle me. This castle has been all too small. I am glad to go from it."

"I shall make no objection to whatever you decide upon," she said.

"You seem possessed with the spirit of mockery," he said; "but I will take you at your word. I do not know what I can do to earn money; but it shall be something, and one-half of that, more, if I can spare it, shall be yours."

The interview ended with these words, and they separated, not to meet again until dinner was served, when they sat down together with the same icy reserve that had characterized all their intercourse since that day when she had told him of her deceit.

After dinner they separated again, and she went to her apartments, where she sat at her little desk for more than two hours, writing and re-writing a letter, which began with the simple word—Lionel. After that was written and placed in an envelope directed to him, she paced the floor for many minutes, and then, with head erect, went down stairs.

She looked in the drawing-room, and when she saw it was empty her courage seemed to fail her, and she leaned against the side of the door, and murmured:

"I can't; oh, I can't!"

Then she drew a deep breath, and added:

"I cannot go without. He may scorn me, loathe me, and lash me with the bitterest words, but I cannot go without."

She drew herself up again, and went on to the library.

She listened at the door, and knew by the scratching of a pen that he was in there writing. She knocked at the door, and was bidden to enter.

She did so, and saw how at sight of her, he stopped his work and stared coldly. She wavered a moment, and went over to him.

"Lionel," she said, "I have no right never at any time—I have no right to know it. But a new life begins for us from to-day. A life entirely apart. It is not only just, but if you had not said it must be so, I should have insisted on it. You are a poor man now—as poor as you were that night when you came to me and I deceived you into a declaration of love. I told you then that I loved you, and would share your poverty with a light heart—and I lied. To-night, with all my wickedness fresh in your memory, and turning your heart to stone at the very sight of me, I come to you, again poor, and say to you voluntarily, and with the expectation of nothing but scorn for saying it—I love you, Lionel and I would give my life at this moment to have your trust again."

He had slowly risen as she spoke, and when she had finished, looked at her with bitter distrust and scorn. She stood with lowered head.

"Why do you come to me with such a speech?" he said. "Why do you waste your arts on me now? I could not believe you if I would; and thank Heaven, I have so rooted you out of my heart that not one fiber of the old affection remains. You cannot open a wound in that spot again. Say frankly what your purpose is."

"Lionel," she said, in a low tone, "my answer is no more than I expected, no more than I deserve. Tell you frankly what my purpose is? Yes, though you flout me still, and refuse to believe me. I want you to kiss me once more. It will be for the last time, Lionel. Don't you judge me, Lionel, I've voice broke, don't judge me. I have been bad enough, and deserve your hatred; but don't judge me. Oh, Heaven, I don't know what I am saying. Kiss me, Lionel. Don't let me go away without that to remember."

"Kiss you!" he said, with a short laugh of utter disdain, "I would as soon kiss an adder that was only waiting to dart its poison into me. Begone from me!"

She looked into his face out of her helpless eyes, and saw that he was immovable. Then she dropped on one knee and caught his hand before he could disengage it, and pressed a kiss upon it. He snatched it away, and rubbed it with an involuntarily motion. She rose to her feet, and smiled in a sad way at the evidence of the intensity of his dislike.

"It will never come out, Lionel," she said, "and some day you will be glad I did it, in spite of you."

RESTRICTIONS ON IMPORTS OF FRUIT. LONDON, Feb. 24.—Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, was asked in the Commons to-day what restrictions were proposed to place on imports of fruit, and when they would take effect. He said that he would not make a definite statement, except that restriction imposed would not apply to fruit from British Dominions, Colonies or Dependencies.

ASQUITH REPEATS HIS STATEMENT. LONDON, Feb. 24.—Asquith concluded his address to the House of Commons to-day, following his words evoking approval from every corner of the House. He stated in clear, direct, emphatic language what are the terms on which we are prepared to make peace. I will repeat them. They are familiar to our Allies and well known to the German Chancellor. What I said on November 8th, 1914, I repeat now: "We shall never sheathe our sword, which we have not laid down, until Belgium, and I will say Serbia, recover in full measure, and more, than they have sacrificed, until France is adequately secured against aggression; until the rights of the small nations of Europe are based upon an unassailable foundation; until the military domination of Prussia is wholly and finally destroyed."

"What is there wanting, in clearness and directness in that, I ask Mr. Trevelyan and the German Chancellor? How can I make it fuller and more intelligible? How can I do more to convince him, and all our enemies that not until peace, based upon these foundations, is within sight of attainment, and not

LONDON, Feb. 23. In the Commons to-day, the Premier officially announced the appointment of Lord Cecil as War Trade Minister.

RESTRICTIONS ON IMPORTATION OF FRUIT.
LONDON, Feb. 23. In the Commons to-day, the Premier officially announced the appointment of Lord Cecil as War Trade Minister. Lord Robert Cecil to-day attended a Cabinet meeting for the first time in his capacity as Minister of Blockade.

WALTER RUNCIMAN, PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRADE, was asked in the Commons to-day what restrictions he proposed to place on importation of fruit, and when they would take effect. He said that he would not make any definite statement, except that any restriction imposed would not apply to fruit from British Dominions, Colonies or Dependencies.

SNOWDEN REPEATS HIS STATEMENT.
LONDON, Feb. 23. Snowden concluded his address as follows, his words evoking applause from every corner of the House: "I have stated in clear, direct, explicit and emphatic language what are the terms which we are prepared to make peace. I will repeat them. They are: 'We shall never sheath the sword, which we have not lightly drawn, until Belgium, and, I will add, Serbia, recover in full measure all, and more, than they have sacrificed, until France is adequately secured against aggression; until the rights of the small nations of Europe are based upon an unassailable foundation; until the military domination of Prussia is wholly and finally destroyed.'"

"What is there wanting, in clearness and directness in that, I ask Mr. Trevelyan and the German Chancellor? How can I make it fuller and more intelligible? How can I do more to convince him and all our enemies that not until peace, based upon these foundations, is within the grasp of attainment, and not until then, shall we, or any of our Allies, abate by one jot our prosecution of the war."

PEACE DISCUSSED.

LONDON, Feb. 23. Philip Snowden, Socialist, took advantage of the discussion of the Government's Consolidated Fund Bill in the Commons to-day, to raise a question as to the conditions under which it would be possible to bring the war to an end, with the object for which the Allies were fighting realized. He contended that prolongation of the war could be justified only by a reasonable expectation that through its continuance the Allies should be in a position to dictate such terms as to secure future European peace. He thought that few men who took an intelligent and dispassionate view of the situation, and the lessons it had taught, would say that there was any reasonable ground for hope of a decisive and crushing military victory for either of the contending parties. If Britain was determined to continue in expectation of crushing Germany he declared, her people ought to be convinced that it was the best method for establishing the international relations of the European Powers. He, however, believed that the continued attempt to crush Germany would be the worst basis for the establishment of a just and lasting settlement. The speaker declared that all nations, especially Germany, were being driven to accept the evidence of this war, of the futility of militarism, and that the time was ripe for making a movement in the direction of peace. In particular, Snowden maintained that German Socialists were solidly in favor of peace, now that it had been proven that Germany was invulnerable from external attack. The Premier said he would not like it to go forth to the world that Snowden and Trevelyan were spokesmen for any substantial body of public opinion. He even doubted whether they spoke for their own constituencies. Certainly, he declared, they did not speak for Democratic opinion. The Premier welcomed Snowden's admission that the conditions of peace should be such as to secure permanent attainment of national aims. There is absolute unity in the country, he continued. The Premier declared that Snowden's statement on the military situation was a matter of opinion. The real gist of Snowden's speech, added the Premier, was his contention that a genuine desire for peace existed in Germany. As evidence, there was the report of the debate in the Reichstag and the Chancellor's speech in which he said he would welcome approaches from any quarter, but did not say he was prepared to make approaches himself. The Premier referred in biting terms to the Chancellor's statement that Germany was not the enemy of small nations, and characterized the statement as colossal and shameless audacity, after her treatment of Belgium and Serbia.

GERMAN BANKS IN DIFFICULTIES.

LONDON, Feb. 23. A despatch from the Daily Express correspondent in Geneva says: "A banker just returned here after spending several months in Germany, tells me that the principal banks in the chief towns of the Rhine and also in Munich and Dresden, are in serious financial difficulties, and some big crashes may be expected within the next three months. The losses involved will be at least £180,000,000, the banker added, and if the war continued another nine months, Germany would be ruined financially."

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. A News Agency despatch from Washington, published here this afternoon, says: "The appearance of President Wilson before Congress in the next few days to announce his desire to break off diplomatic relations with Germany, was foreseen by this afternoon, by high administration officials. This action is certain to follow, said one of the officials, if intimations coming from German sources are correct. Those intimations are that the German Foreign Office is sending instructions to Ambassador Bernstorff to delay for further delay in terminating the Lusitania dispute and for long discussion on technicalities over the armed merchantmen decree, scheduled to go into effect on March 1st."

AUSTRIA AND MONTENEGRO.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 23. The officer is believed to belong to the German raider Moeve. In addition to her own crew there are 206 prisoners on the Westburn which were taken from various British vessels. The Westburn left Liverpool on Jan. 21st for Buenos Aires. She was a vessel of 3,500 tons, built in 1899, owned by J. Westall, of Sunderland. HEAVY FIGHTING.

PARIS, via St. Pierre, Feb. 23. The Paris bulletin of 2 p.m. announces heavy fighting going on between Brabant and Herbebois, a 15 kilometre front. The French have evacuated Haumont-village. A desperate struggle is raging. Fighting of great violence is in progress from the right bank of the Meuse to a point southeast of the Herbe forest, the War Office announced today. North of Verdun there were infantry actions on a front of ten miles. East of Zeppolis the French were enabled by a counter-attack to retake a great portion of the forest of Causes, north of Beaumont.

FOOD RIOTS IN GERMANY.

LONDON, Feb. 23. The Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily Mail says that he has reliable information to the effect that rioting is increasing in Germany. He telegraphs that protest meetings, especially of women, continue to be held notwithstanding severe police measures. The most serious riot, which has so far taken place in Germany, occurred on the evening of Feb. 19 in Bergedort, a suburb of Hamburg, where a women's meeting was held in front of the burgomaster's house, in protest against the butter and fat regulations. It developed into a big street demonstration, the people shouting "down with the government." Police, summoned from Hamburg, drove the screaming and struggling women into their homes after a street battle. A despatch from Zurich reports serious food protests and riots in Hanover.

If washing powders are used in the washing of linen, it will go to pieces in no time.
Linen should be kept in a dry, cool place. Heat causes the threads to become brittle.

No Premature Peace.

It is heartening to read the firm words of Premier Asquith in reference to premature peace. The body of men who are trying to start a peace propaganda in Great Britain are those who were notorious in opposing every means of preparation to meet war adversity before the days of war and who professed the utmost confidence in Germany's good intentions. Since the war began they have hampered the volunteering under the Kitchener and Derby schemes and opposed bitterly the compulsory bill, and have been most intent on frustrating the efforts of Lloyd George in speeding up the output of munitions. There was a delicate irony in Premier Asquith associating Mr. Trevelyan with the German Chancellor in his query as to whether he had not been clear and direct enough. The Premier repeated his statement of November 9th, 1914, with the addition of an inclusion of Serbia. Here it is: "We shall never sheath the sword, which we have not lightly drawn, until Belgium, and I will add, Serbia, recover in full measure all, and more, than they have sacrificed; until France is adequately secured against aggression; until the rights of the small nations of Europe are based upon an unassailable foundation; until the military domination of Prussia is wholly and finally destroyed."

The repetition of the original statement makes the matter clear enough. France has been equally firm in its policy. It is a fight to a finish. The object is to make it impossible for Germany to renew the war for many generations to come, if ever. Britain is the most interested party in such a policy, because it is plain enough to those who read the signs of the times, that Germany's main intention now is to get peace and prepare for it. Europe next time but with Britain alone. It is far better to cripple her now and put her in such a position that she cannot make war again in the Twentieth Century.

The Salvation Army and the Great War.

Last night Lieut.-Colonel Otway delivered an interesting and instructive illustrative lecture on "The Salvation Army and the Great War." Long before the time announced for the lecture the Livingstone Street Hall was filled to its utmost capacity.

At 8 o'clock the service commenced with singing the old familiar hymn, "Rock of Ages," which was illustrated with highly colored pictures, after which Mrs. (Col.) Otway offered prayer. Then the lecturer stated that the object of the lecture was not to again rehearse the well known cause of this great and terrible conflict, but to show in particular a little of the work of the Salvation Army in connection therewith.

The speaker continued, as stated, it is not my object to speak of the cause, yet we do well to continually remind ourselves that this is unique in the history of the world for several reasons, viz.—

1. The continent contains twenty million of well equipped troops.
2. There are eleven nations involved in the fearful crisis.
3. The cause—the broken treaty.

The Colonel also referred to Bernhardi's writings, especially the phrase Germany's world-power or downfall, and stated no doubt it would be the latter.

The first views shown on the canvas were that of their Majesties, President Poincare, King Albert, King Victor Emmanuel, Lord Kitchener and Sir John French, also a glimpse of the Army work for Naval and Military men in normal times of war. The Naval and Military League has for its object the linking together of all Salvationists in Naval and Military forces throughout the world, enrolling them as Leaguers and organizing them for aggressive Christian work among their fellows. The Army has fifteen homes for soldiers and sailors at the chief Naval and Military bases of the world. They provide safe and clean lodgings, wholesome, well cooked food, and in addition to the moral and spiritual influence exercised by contact with the Officers, meetings are held.

Lord Fisher, the Creator of the Present British Navy.

Some months ago Lord Fisher, instructed by His Majesty the King, visited local committees in England in connection with the Prince of Wales Fund to see how things were being done, to check up the wires of soldiers and sailors. The Chairman informed him that before the committee had been formed the Salvation Army Officers had come forward and suggested that the Army should undertake this particular work, and that he had sent twenty women, who had tender hearts and cheerful countenances, to do the work. Lord Fisher, hearing this, clapped his hands and said "Splendid. This is the best arrangement I have heard of yet; I will tell the King about it."

Nearly the whole of Belgium lay in the hands of the enemy. Belgium soldiers have to be accommodated in French and English hospitals. Many thousands are brought to England and accommodated in English hospitals. The Belgium Governor entered into an arrangement with the Salvation Army to receive every one of their wounded soldiers on discharge from hospitals. When a man is ready to discharge the hospital authorities have instructions to communicate with the Salvation Army Social Headquarters, who arrange for the nearest Army Officers to receive him and to enable this band of willing workers to carry on the noble work they have undertaken.

Regiment at the front.

Sagona Loses Propeller Blades.

The Sagona reached Port aux Basques last night in an almost disabled condition, two of the propeller blades having been broken by the ice. After discharging her full general cargo at Port aux Basques the Sagona will come to St. John's to be docked.

GEO. H. HOLMES.

Pleasing Presentation to Departing Cleric.

A deputation from the congregation of St. Thomas's Church, consisting of Hon. M. G. Winter, Hon. R. Watson, Mr. James Lawrence and Mr. R. Dowden called upon the Rev. Arthur Clayton, at the Curate's House, Forest Road on Tuesday evening and presented him with a handsome gentleman's dressing case. Mr. Watson making the presentation on behalf of the Vestry and congregation. Mr. Watson in a few well appointed words referred to the general good feeling which St. Thomas's Parish had ever had for the rev. gentleman, and hoped that at the time he would meet many of the old boys, as the Parish has given nearly a hundred of its young men to the cause. Mr. Watson then wished Mr. Clayton a successful interview at the War Office, good health while on active service, and a triumphant return to us. In reply the Rev. gentleman thanked Mr. Watson, the gentleman present, and the people of St. Thomas's in general for their tangible remembrance of him, and hoped that he might be fortunate enough to meet the Nid. Regiment at the front.

Sagona Loses Propeller Blades.

The Sagona reached Port aux Basques last night in an almost disabled condition, two of the propeller blades having been broken by the ice. The ship had left Louisburg but a few hours and was working her way through the ice when the watch felt the vessel give a sudden forward heave as if she had received a shock, and then fell back. After discharging her full general cargo at Port aux Basques the Sagona will come to St. John's to be docked.

Do You Know Her?

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I don't like her," said the wants-to-be-cynic.

"Why?" said the L. A. D. Y. H. O. always-knows-somehow.

"She's one of those women who use their sex and pretend all the time to be unconscious of it."

"Could you be a little more definite?" inquired Molly, the little stenographer lady.

"Well, if you want me to be perfectly frank, she is the kind of woman who leads you on to take little familiarities with her, and then, when you do, draws back and insults and says, 'Unhand me, villain,' or words to that effect."

"She Wanted To Know How He Knew."

"How do you know?" inquired Molly.

"Sounds as if I knew from experience, doesn't it? And I do, not with her, but in times past with her type. I can feel it with her."

"Do you think you have any right to judge a woman by anything so indefinite and vague as a feeling?"

"Haven't I heard you say several times that some man or other gave you an uncomfortable feeling? Why shouldn't a man have a feeling about women, too?"

"It doesn't seem quite—"

"No, perhaps it isn't quite—and I wouldn't say it to everybody, but between ourselves like this is different. Besides, well—to tell the truth—my feeling was corroborated. It wasn't my experience; it happened to one of the other men who comes more into contact with her."

He Accepted Her Invitation.

"She used to brush up against him."

when she brought his letters to him, and when he asked her to show him the touch method on the typewriter, she let her hands touch his more than was strictly necessary, and she was always bringing the conversation around to intimate topics. That kind, you know, she was, rather, pretty, not terribly so, but pretty enough, and one Saturday afternoon, when she offered to stay and do some work for him, and they were alone and she was undressing close up to him looking up in his face, the way she does sometimes, he—well, I guess he accepted the invitation and kissed her. And then such a row as there was! She cried and pretended to be insulted. When he told her that she had led him on, she was more up in the air than ever. Of course there wasn't anything he could exactly lay his finger on, but he knew she had been deliberately leading him on. He apologized, but he hasn't any use for her, and I can't say that I blame him."

"The Woman Tempted Me," Says Molly.

"Of course not," said Molly. "The woman tempted me, you know."

"What do you think about it, Lady?" said the Cynic to the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow.

"Don't you think, perhaps," said the Lady hesitatingly, "that even if she did lead him on, she may have been partly unconscious of what she was doing?"

"I think, dear lady," said the Cynic, "that if anyone could persuade me to take that point of view, it would be yourself."

New York Style.

By GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Good Old Slivash"

New York is known as the Empire State, because of the vast numbers of money kings, railroad kings, steel kings, theatre kings and miscellaneous potentates which it harbors. It is a medium-sized, quaintly-designed state, containing 47,000 square miles and over 6,000,000 people, something over 5,000,000 of whom are jammed down in the toe of the state in a municipal sardine box, known as Greater New York.

New York State is the greatest of American commonwealths, partly because it had an early start, and partly because it has always believed in advertising. It contains more people, more factories, more money, more millionaires, more society, more newspapers, more actors, more shipping and more politics than any other state. It is 400 miles long and 300 miles tall on the map and is divided into two parts by the New York Central Railroad and the Erie canal. It was discovered in 1609 by Hendrick Hudson, who, however, made the great mistake of sailing away without picking up a few public service franchises cheap and made nothing from his find. It was first settled about 1614 and in the last 100 years has grown so rapidly that Congress has had to be enlarged ten times to take care of its ever-increasing horde of representatives.

The state of New York itself is commonly supposed to be only a sort of back yard for the city of New York, but this is only because the city does all of the talking. The back yard contains over 4,000,000 people, and when they are having a political campaign it is impossible to hear anything else in the country. New York always votes for the successful presidential candidate for the same reason that a fat boy always sits on the lower end of a tector tetter.

New York State contains three mountain ranges, the Catskills, the Adirondacks and lower Broadway. It Annual Entertainment.

The annual entertainment held last night at the Synod Hall by the C. M. B. C. was very successful. After a short address from Rev. Canon White a programme of songs, recitations and instrumental selections was gone through. Those who took part were: Misses Stafford, M. Mitchell, Skinner, Messrs. S. W. Cornick, F. Cornick, F. Seymour, McCowan, Chafe, Walker, H. M. S. Britton's string band.

The sketch presented by Messdames H. Outerbridge and Colville won much applause, and Mr. Wheeler who as a ventriloquist rivals Valentine Vox kept everybody in merry mood.

His Lordship Bishop Jones who was present spoke of the good work of the class and thanked all who had helped in any way to make the entertainment a success.

Teas were served during the evening by the ladies of the class, and Miss Harvey and Mr. A. Crocker acted as accompanists. The proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to the worthy object of purchasing literature for the Harbour Mission Work.

Passionist Fathers Coming.

It is expected that four of the Passionist Fathers who will give the mission here during the coming Lent will leave the U. S. for St. John's next week. Fathers McPhail and McDougall, of the Redemptorist Order, are now holding a mission at Harbor Grace, and will give several such at other places, but will likely be heard in the Cathedral and St. Patrick's here before their departure.

Constant Headaches

When the nervous system gets run down one of the most persistent symptoms is headache. Nervous headache has been described as the cry of the starved brain for more blood.

Because of its remarkable blood-forming and blood-cleansing qualities, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food ranks first as a means of overcoming nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, headache, indigestion, sleeplessness, irritability and all the annoying symptoms of nervous breakdown.

It is not a mere relief, but there is a real cure; for it rebuilds and reconstructs the wasted and depleted nerve cells.

Bob-Sliding Accidents

Whilst bob-sliding over Brazil's Square last night, Samuel Haynes, his wife and Miss J. King, received several severe bruises owing to the slide running into an electric light pole at the foot of the street.

Haynes, who was steering the 'bob,' lost control of the gear, and when the sled bumped into the pole, he was rendered unconscious by the shock. Mrs. Haynes and Miss King received some nasty cuts about the head and face but Mr. J. Cooper and Miss D. House who were also of the party escaped uninjured. Dr. O'Connell, who was summoned by Head Constable Peet, attended the injured parties.

Women With Weakness Find New Strength.

For all special weakness from which girls and women suffer, no surer remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they maintain that bracing health every woman so earnestly desires, they remove disease and bring strength that lasts till old age.

The blood is richly nourished by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Appetite increases, weakness and secret ills give way to surplus energy and reserve vigor.

No pale girl, no ailing woman can afford to miss the enormous good that comes from Dr. Hamilton's Pills; get a 25c. box to-day.

METHUSELAH.

Methuselah, that grand old gent, saw centuries pass by; the generations came and went, and he remained to die. No doubt among the ancients ranks the faddists a row their breath, and he was told by health board cranks just how to sidestep death. I mean to see them at his side, and hear them give advice. "Eat predigested hay," they cried, "that has been kept on ice. Sleep out of doors, in rain or sleet, or you'll be on the blink; boll all the air that you inhale, and fry the things you drink. Eat less than half of what you wish, put sawdust in your bread; if you are fond of beef or fish, eat liverwurst instead." The faddists sprang their speils and died; Methuselah shed tears, but would not take them as a guide—and lived nine hundred years.

His voice across the distance calls a cheering word to me: "I ate ice cream and codfish balls, and was sickless free. I filled myself with scrambled eggs, and steaks from slaughtered steers, and pranced around on active legs for near a thousand years."

Florizel's Coal Cargo.

Word has been received that the S. S. Florizel did not get away from Louisburg for this port until 6 o'clock yesterday morning and is due to-night. The work of unloading will start immediately on arrival and will be continued day and night with a double shift of workmen. The ship's coal cargo will be divided between Money & Co. and the United Coal Company at whose premises she will discharge. The Florizel will go back to Louisburg for another cargo, including her sealing supply, and on her next return will make ready for the icefields.

GREAT BATTLE IN VERDUN REGION—DESPERATE FIGHTING.

LONDON, Tuesday.—The troops belonging to seven German army corps, under Crown Prince Frederick William, are engaged in a 26 mile front, north of Verdun, in a desperate effort to drive back the French defending forces, probably with the capture of the great French city in view. There has been very heavy fighting for a considerable period in this district, and the French war zone, but within the few days the attacks of the Germans have taken additional strength, and the battle line has been extended. It now reaches from Malincourt on the west to Etain on the east with Verdun in the centre. Only a few miles southward the Germans claim to have made important advances and to have taken several towns. The extent this is admitted by the War Office, which describes the situation as one of increasing intensity. German preparations were extensively interrupted by a heavy shelling of the French war zone, but the French were called into action and responded in kind by a heavy shelling of the Germans. While unable to resist the onslaughts of the attacking forces, much of the front, according to Paris communications, the attacks were well sustained and very heavy losses inflicted on the Germans.

PRO-GERMANS EMBARRASS IN SENATE WILSON AND SECRETARY LANSING.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—The agitation in Congress in connection with European belligerents, which grew to such proportions yesterday, that the Democratic Foreign Affairs Committee voted to canvass the sentiments of the Senate in favour of some such action, also was opened up by the end of the day surprises, tension and agitation were such as had not been seen in Congress for some time. It came that President Wilson's attitude, unalterably opposed to any such action by Congress. He would not be embarrassed thereby in the negotiations with Germany, was a wide-spread suggestion. The situation has reached a point at which the President would soon lay it before Congress. Secretary Lansing in some way decided to bring the Government. In a communication Senator Stone he said that the President had been fixed without any intention of State, but that he would signify his intention to abandon the administration policy without warning. A statement was made officially that nothing had been determined in the situation, which, though grave, was a waiting one, that no such policy would be announced until the den developments at the Peace Conference brought surprise and apprehension to the administration leadership. In front with the possibility of a congressional interference with the grave aspects, ranging from the administration policy, to the new right embarrassment of the President and the Secretary of State, the President was confident they would continue the situation and leave the conduct of the branch of the Government to carry on the diplomatic negotiations with Germany. From authentic sources came the statement last night, that the President intended the dispute, pending with many, would be settled without prolonged negotiations. He is believed that the breaking of diplomatic relations with Germany, was a war. There will be no unduly in handling a situation of such much possibility. The administration is broad and an important principle is involved, viz., the Americans to travel on business, merchantmen and that this principle not be abandoned. The State Department will take no action until the receipt of Germany's reply to the request of the United States to break through Ambassador Vint's offer for the assurance that the force of an intention to suspend merchantmen without warning. February 23, does not nullify previous pledges given in the Paris and Lusitania negotiations. The next is expected momentarily and the net is expected to review the situation on Friday, if it has arrived time to consider the German reply.

THE TOLL OF THE GERMAN RAIDERS.

LONDON, Tuesday.—Under the fact that the Westburn has prisoners on board from the British steamer (the British which was sunk after a fighting battle by the German submarine) Moeve off the west coast of Ireland, seemingly would be the fact that the Florenco, Horace, and Luxembourg had met a similar fate.

Feildians Win From Terra Novas

IN BRILLIANT GAME—GREAT EXCITEMENT.

What was admitted to be one of the fastest games ever seen in our local league hockey arena was last night's meeting between the Terra Novas and Feildians, the latter winning by 4 goals to 3, after an extra play-off.

It was easily the best exhibition of this season. Play was continuously fast and from start to finish there were very few let ups. A notable feature was the entire absence of rough play. There was a goodly attendance and excitement and enthusiasm vied with each other amongst the fans.

Both teams displayed clever work at the outset, but before five minutes had elapsed White landed the first goal for the Feildians. Resuming their rushes Bennett netted No. 2 just as the timekeepers had ticked off 10 minutes. No further scoring was done by either side in the first half.

At the opening of the second half the Terra Novas showed up better and after a brilliant run Waits scored their first goal, followed by Trapnell notching up the equalizer. Stick next distinguished himself and after zig-zagging the ice No. 3. This put the Terra Novas in the lead and excitement grew to fever heat as the Feildians put forward every ounce of steam to equalize and succeeded through White. A few minutes later and full time was announced, the score being equal, 3 to 3. After an extra play off of 7 minutes Bugden made a splendid individual run, passed all opponents and scored the fourth and winning goal for the Feildians.

Mr. G. Herder was referee and Messrs. P. J. Grace and F. J. Brien, timekeepers. The players were:—

The Victorias and St. Bon's will try conclusions to-morrow night.

New R. C. Church.

It is not unlikely that the foundation for the new R. C. Church will be commenced about May next. The church, which will be situated in the central part of the city, will be of concrete, have all up to date appointments including a new design heating apparatus, and will seat a large congregation.

H. N. Concert.

The Holy Name Society held a concert in the St. Bonaventure's Aula Maxima last evening which was enjoyed by all. Songs and recitations were given by Messrs. Whelan, Kelly, Power and Grace and a gramophone selection was a pleasing item of the event. The Society is now making arrangements to give some lectures during the coming Lent, and the debating platform will also come under consideration.

LARGE FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late Mrs. (Sergeant) W. T. Long took place yesterday afternoon. A large concourse of mourners attended. Interment was at the C. of Christ E. Cemetery. Rev. J. Brinton officiating at the graveside.

Obituary.

MRS. MARGARET GIBBS.

One of our best known and charitable citizens passed to her rest last evening in the person of Mrs. Margaret Gibbs. The deceased lady had been ill of a severe attack of influenza about ten days, but none of her family or friends had thought of any serious effects that the end at all was so near. Though seventy-two years of age at her death, Mrs. Gibbs was still a smart old lady, and followed the interests of home and family doings with the zest of many former years, and it was only recently that she helped to nurse one of her grandchildren through diphtheria. She was ever a fond mother, one who did her duty and loved in the doing of it. Her husband predeceased her a number of years, and she leaves six children and several grandchildren to mourn her. Hon. M. P. Gibbs, K.C., and John of the Customs Department at the General Post Office are sons of the deceased and to them, family and friends the Telegram offers sincere sympathy. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon, interment to be at Belvidere.

BELOW THE STANDARD.

How do you feel to-day? Not quite right? Energy a little below standard—not strong enough to handle your work with a little exertion? perhaps a slight cough?

Nyala's Cod Liver Compound is what you need.

Don't get frightened about those words "Cod Liver." You'd never know it from the taste.

It's a real tonic containing cod liver extract, extract of malt, wild cherry and hypophosphites—a splendid combination.

The cod liver extract builds you up—so does the extract of malt. The wild cherry soothes the bronchial tract and the hypophosphites supply phosphorus to the nervous system—just the thing it needs.

And the taste is pleasant.

As an all round tonic, strength restorer and body-builder, you'll find nothing better than Nyala's Cod Liver Compound—so why look further? You will be pleased.

The price is one dollar.

Anglo-American Telegraph

CO. LIMITED.
The Anglo-American Telegraph Company announces that improvements in its trans-Atlantic cable facilities enables it to reinstate its cable letter service which has been suspended since January third. The Anglo-American Telegraph Company some time ago re-established its deferred half-rate and week-end letter cable services, and resumption of its cable letter service restores its full line of supplementary services in addition to its regular fast cable service. This restoration of the cable situation to its normal basis is of the greatest importance to Newfoundland foreign trade.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X Lamp and GASTHEAM Rad atoms fill all light and heat requirements.
