The names, surnames, additions and residences of the partners composing firms for trading, manufacturing or mining purposes in Ontario, and the name in which they carry on, or intend to carry on business, are required to be registered in the registry office of the registry division in which they carry on business: see The Partnership Registration Act (R. S. O. c. 139), ss. 2, 4.

For a form of notice of motion for a statement of the partners under this Rule and a form of order: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 103, 104.

The order for the statement cannot be enforced by attachment under Rule 353: Pike v. Keene, 24 W. R. 322; 35 L. T. 341.

101. Where persons are sued as partners in the name of the firm the writ shall be served either upon any one or more of the partners, or at the principal place within Ontario of the business of the partnership, upon any person having the control or management of the partnership business there; and such service shall be deemed good service upon the firm whether any of the members thereof are without Ontario or not, but in the case of a partnership which has been dissolved to the knowledge of the plaintiff before action, the writ of summons shall be served upon every person within Ontario sought to Service of firms, how to be effected.

Rule 101.

Notice of capacity in which a person is served.

be made liable. Every person so served shall be informed by notice in writing given at the time of service whether he is served as a partner or as a person having the control or management of the partnership business, or in both characters. In default of such notice the person served shall be deemed to be served as a partner. C.R. 223 and 224.

The Eng. O. 48*a*, rr. 3, 4, is to the same effect.

The service provided for by this Rule is of a writ issued against a firm by its firm name under Rule 100, i.e., of a firm "carrying on business within Ontario."

Foreign firms.

Foreign Firm.—This Rule applies to foreign firms carrying on business within the jurisdiction—but not to foreign firms not so carrying on business. Foreign firms not carrying on business within the jurisdiction must be sued in the names of the partners, each of whom must be served: see H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., 397; and Russell v. Combefort, 23 Q. B. D. 526; Western v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304; Nutter & Co. v. Messageries Maritimes, 54 L. J. Q. B. 527; and Lysaght v. Clark, 1891, 1 Q. B. 552.

Firm dissolved before action.

Firms Dissolved Before Action.—Notwithstanding the dissolution of a firm, it may still be sued in the firm name: In re Wenham, 1900, 2 Q. B. 698.

But the clause of the Rule relating to dissolved firms seems practically to render it useless to sue partners in the firm name if the firm has been dissolved; for notwithstanding that a firm existing at the date of the accrual of the cause of action may be sued in the firm name, although it has been dissolved before action, yet every individual member of the firm, resident in Ontario, and sought to be made liable, must also be personally served with the writ; and in such a case partners resident out of Ontario are not personally bound by service on those within Ontario, and cannot be made individually liable unless they are individually made parties and served under Rule 25: see Rule 105; Wigram v. Cox, 1894, 1 Q. B. 792; 70 L. T. 656; Shepherd v. Hirsch & Co., 45 Ch. D. 231, and "Service on a partner," infra.

When a partner dies before action brought against the firm, a judgment against the firm can only be enforced against the surviving partners, and the partnership assets: Ellis v. Wadeson, 1899, 1 Q. B. p. 718; 80 L. T. 508; and the same result will follow where a partner dies between the service of the writ and the trial of the action and judgment: Ib., pp. 718-19.

Where a partnership, unregistered, existed between A., B. and C., under the style A. & Co., and A. absconded, and three days later C. made a secret assignment of his interest in the business to B., and two days thereafter, before the announcement was made public, C. was served with a writ in an action against the firm by its firm name, of which proceedings B. was aware, it was held that the service was good: Bank of Hamilton v. Blakeslee, 9 P. R. 130.

Mode of service of firms.

Service.—The service provided for is of a writ issued against a firm by its firm name under Rule 100, i.e., of a firm "carrying on business within Ontario."

In the case of an action against a foreign firm as a firm, or against a firm, some members of which do not reside within Ontario, service must be effected as in this Rule mentioned, and in the case of a firm, none of whose members resids within Ontario, no other mode of substitutional service than upon the manager as mentioned in this Rule is authorized: Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 788; 70 L. T. 443. Rule 101.

It does not seem to be clear whether a partner within Ontario may be served for the firm under this Rule, by serving him, not personally, but substitutionally: see Shillito v. Child, W. N. 1883, 208; Croyden v. Jackson, 3 T. L. R. 650; Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B., at pp. 792 and 790; and 70 L. T. p. 445. Where a partner is only substitutionally served, it is doubtful whether execution could issue against him, without leave, if he does not appear in the action: see Jackson v. Litchfield, in note to Rule 105.

Service on a Partner.—A service within Ontario only is what is contemplated: see last clause of Rule 106. Service on a partner temporarily within Ontario will probably suffice: see Pollexfen v. Sibson, 16 Q. B. D. 792; Shepherd v. Hirsch & Co., 45 Ch. D. 231. These cases are probably again authorities on this point though decided under the repealed Rules and overruled in Western v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, for reasons not applicable under the new Rules. Service on a partner in Ontario.

The words used in this Rule are "be served on any one or more of the partners," without any express qualification that the partners served must be within the jurisdiction, but as under the old Rules it was held that words equally unqualified must be confined to persons within the jurisdiction of the Court, the same rule of construction will probably be applied to this Rule: see Russell v. Cambefort, 23 Q. B. D. 520; St. Gobain, etc., v. Hoyermann's Agency, 1893, 2 Q. B. 102; Rule 105.

Furthermore, service out of Ontario is regulated by Rule 25; see notes to that Rule, and by the terms of Rule 101, leave to issue a writ is not necessary as against the members of the firm who are out of Ontario, which may point to a service not requiring to be scrutinized under Rule 25, by reason of the service being within Ontario: see also the last clause of Rule 106.

In a case within Rule 25 an order may be made for service of any individual partner so as to reach assets of his in Ontario under Rule 105 (see last clause of that Rule); but such service will probably only bind the partner served: see Russell v. Cambefort, and other cases supra; and it would seem that such an order can only be made against partners individually defendants: see Rule 105 (2), and Dobson v. Festi, 1891, 2 Q. B. 92; and quære whether any order binding upon the firm can be made other than for service of all the partners: Ib. If all partners are to be served out of the jurisdiction, no object is gained by suing the firm by its name rather than the partners individually: see per Lindley, L.J., in Western v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B., at p. 314.

If the person served as a partner is not a partner, the service may be set aside with costs on the application of the firm: Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 564.

Service on Manager.—Service otherwise than on a partner, must be made upon some person having the control or management of the partnership business at its principal place of business in On a manager of a business in Ontario.

Rule 102.

Ontario. The Eng. Rule adds "at the time of such service" and that must be the meaning of this Rule.

The substitutional service on a manager, thus authorized, is good service upon which to obtain judgment and execution against the firm.

As to what constitutes "having the control or management of the partnership business": see Baillie v. Goodwin, 33 Ch. D. 604; Heinemann v. Hale, 1891, 2 Q. B. 83; Grant v. Anderson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 108; Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784, in notes to Rule 100. Service on a receiver or manager appointed by the Court of the business of a firm in liquidation, will not bind the firm: Re Flowers, 1897, 1 Q. B. 14. Where a manager is served, notice in writing that he is served as manager must be given: Rule 101.

As to when execution may be issued against partners individually, see Rule 105.

Notice.

The notice required by this Rule is for the purpose of enabling the person served to konw whether it is intended to charge him as a partner under Rule 105, and to enable him, or the firm, to dispute that he is a partner. If he is only manager, and not a partner, he need not appear where the notice informs him that he is served only as having control or management of the business: Rule 103.

Form of notice.

For a form of notice: see H. & L. Forms, No. 74.

If served as a partner the delivery of a notice to that effect is not necessary; the Rule provides that in default of notice the person served is to be deemed to be served as a partner: see Telfer v. Dun, 2 O. W. N. 1146.

Where the notice is that he is served as a partner, or where no notice is given, and the person is therefore deemed to be served as a partner, he may, and probably, if not a partner, should, appear under protest denying that he is a partner: Rule 104. If he does not appear under protest, or otherwise, it may be that execution may be issued against him under Rule 105 (c). Probably a motion may be made by the firm, at any rate, to set aside service effected upon a person as a partner, where he is not a partner: Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 564; and see Gibson v. Le Temps, infra.

It may not always be possible to ascertain before service the name of the person in charge of the business, and the notice though required to be delivered at the time of service need not be directed to any one, and need not contain anything but the notification of the capacity in which the person is being served with the writ.

Omission of notice.

Where no such notice is given, and the person served is not a partner, the service is defective, and may be set aside on the application of the firm: Gibson v. Le Temps, 6 O. L. R. 690; but not after judgment has been obtained after appearance by the firm: Ib.

A person served as a partner who denies that he is a partner may be examined generally for discovery. If it turns out that he is not a partner his examination cannot be used as evidence except against himself: Telfer v. Dun, supra.

Appearance of partners.

102. Persons sued as partners in the name of the firm shall appear individually in their own names, but all subsequent proceedings (a) shall continue in the name of the firm. C.R. 225. Rule 102.

Same as Eng. (1891) O. 48c, r. 5.

(a) These words should be confined to "subsequent proceedings" by the plaintiff: Longmon v. Hudson, 14 P. R. 215; in that case it was held that a defence and counter-claim by the defendant, individually, is regular, at any rate in an action against a firm after its dissolution; but see Ellis v. Wodeson, infra, p. 496.

Appearance.—No appearance is to be entered for the firm. Partners, whether served personally or not, must appear individually within the time limited for appearance computed from the time of a valid service of the firm under Rule 101; and the appearance of a partner is an appearance on behalf of the firm so as to found proceedings against the firm under Rule 57; Lysoght v. Clork, 1891, 1 Q. B. 556. Probably an appearance under protest under Rule 104 will not be sufficient for that purpose. Appearance.

Semble, an appearance not under protest is an admission that the person appearing is a partner: see Dovies v. André, 24 Q. B. D. 598; 63 L. T. 151; Zuccato v. Young, 38 W. R. 474, under the former practice.

Semble, also, that a person claiming to be a partner may, after a service of the firm under Rule 101, appear, notwithstanding that his claim to be a partner is disputed: see Robinson v. Ward & Son, 36 Sol. Jour. 415.

Where defendants were carrying on business in the name of a non-existent limited company styled "Liberal Opinion Limited," and were sued in that name, it was held that under this Rule the defendants were bound to appear in their individual names, and that an appearance entered for "Liberal Opinion Limited" was a nullity, and the solicitor so entering the appearance was held to be personally liable, to be ordered to pay to the plaintiff all costs lost by reason of his so doing: Simmons v. Liberal Opinion, 1911, 1 K. B. 966; 104 L. T. 264; but an appearance entered in the name of a company which had been chartered, but had not qualified itself to do business, was held not to involve the solicitor in such a liability: Campbell v. Taxicabs Ferralls Ltd., 27 O. L. R. 111.

Time for Appearance.—The time for appearance, where the writ is served on the manager, and also on a partner personally, runs from the date of the last of such services: see Alden v. Beckley, 25 Q. B. D. 543. Time for.

Solicitor's Authority to Enter Appearance.—Where a partner has not been served, but an appearance is entered for him by the instructions of a co-partner, who has been served on behalf of the firm, such appearance, if unauthorized, will be set aside on the prompt application of the partner in whose name it was entered: Mason v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 418; but ordinarily instructions from a managing partner to defend the action for the price of goods supplied to the firm in the ordinary course of business is good authority to a solicitor to enter an appearance for all the partners: Tomlinson v. Broadsmith, 1896, 1 Q. B. 386; Court v. Berlin, 46 W. R. 55; 1897, 2 Q. B. 396. Solicitor's authority.

Rules 103, 104.

Infant partner.

Where one partner is an infant, and appears by a guardian ad litem, the appearance is proper: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534; 69 L. T. 373; but as to the form of the judgment: see note to Rule 104.

Signing judgment.

After appearance by any partner the plaintiff cannot sign judgment against the firm until the defence of every partner appearing is disposed of: Adam v. Townend, 14 Q. B. 103; Jackson v. Litchfield, 8 Q. B. D. 474; Munster v. Cox, 10 App. Cas. 680.

Defence.

Defence.—As to the effect of partners severing in their defence, and not raising the same defence: see Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; 51 L. T. 733; and Smith v. Cropper, 10 App. Cas. 249.

Each partner appearing is entitled to put in a defence for the firm: Taylor v. Collier, 30 W. R. 701; Ellis v. Wadeson, 1899, 1 Q. B. p. 171; 80 L. T. 508, though they should endeavour by agreement to put in but one statement of defence: Ellis v. Wadeson, supra; Arnoldi v. Dawes, 2 O. W. N. 1019; and the defence must be in the name of the firm, even though, pending the action, the firm is dissolved by the death of one of the partners, and the defence is delivered by the surviving partner: Ib.; but see Langman v. Hudson, 14 P. R. 215.

No appearance except by partners.

103. Where a writ is served upon a person as the person having the control or management of the partnership business an appearance by him shall not be necessary unless he is a member of the firm. C.R. 226.

Same as Eng. (1891) O. 48*a*, r. 6.

An appearance by a person describing himself as manager should be refused by the officer unless it is under protest pursuant to Rule 104.

This Rule assumes that the person served will be notified as provided by Rule 101 that he is served, not as a partner, but as a person having the control or management of the business. If such notice is not given, then the person served, although he be in fact only a manager, is to be deemed to have been served as a partner: Rule 101, and, as such, may be found liable to execution under Rule 105 (1) c., and therefore in such a case an appearance under protest under Rule 104 is necessary.

Appearance under protest of person served as partner.

104. A person served as a partner may (1) enter an appearance under protest, denying that he is a partner, but such appearance shall not preclude the plaintiff from otherwise serving the firm and obtaining judgment against the firm in default of appearance if no partner has entered an appearance in the ordinary form; or (2) enter an appearance not only denying that he is a partner, but also disputing the plaintiff's claim. C.R. 227.

Same as in Eng. (1891) O. 48*a*, r. 7.

Form.—For a form of appearance under protest: see H. & L. Rule 104. Forms No. 107.

Contesting Denial of Partnership.—If the plaintiff insists that the person served is a partner, he may, it would seem, move in Chambers to strike out the appearance, shewing that the person so appearing is a partner; upon such a motion probably an issue may be directed to determine the question: see Worcester Banking Co. v. Trotter, 3 T. L. R. 709; and Davis v. Morris, 10 Q. B. D. 436 (cases of an issue directed under Rule 105). This course will probably be expedient where there is no other means of serving the firm pursuant to Rule 101. Denial of partnership.

Re-service of Firm.—The plaintiff may leave for decision in the action (probably under Rule 105 (2), when execution is sought) the question whether the person served is a partner, and may serve the writ in some other way pursuant to Rule 101, so as to bind the firm. Re-service of firm.

Where an action was brought against a firm, and one of the partners individually, and the partner alone appeared, but separate defences were afterwards delivered by the partner, and the firm, it was held that the defence of the firm could not be struck out: Taylor v. Collier & Co., 30 W. R. 791; W. N. 1882, 83; 51 L. J. Chy. 853. The firm is sued, though appearance must be by the partners individually, and, as regards any claim against the firm, the defence to be filed must be for the firm, and in the firm's name: Ellis v. Wadeson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 714, 720. Defence.

Judgment.—If one of several partners does not appear, judgment cannot be entered against him individually. Judgment if recovered must follow the writ and be against the firm: Jackson v. Litchfield, 8 Q. B. D. 474; Adam v. Townend, 14 Q. B. D. 103; (see the discussion of this case in 17 L. J. 324); Firmin v. International Club, 5 T. L. R. 612. But where one of the partners is an infant, and the action is on contract, the judgment given against the firm should expressly except the infant: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534; 69 L. J. 373; Re Beauchamp, 1894, 1 Q. B. 1; S. C., sub nom. Lovell v. Beauchamp, 1894, A. C. 607. Judgment against firm.

In Munster v. Railton, 10 Q. B. D. 475, 11 Q. B. D. 435 (affirmed in the House of Lords, 10 App. Cas. 680) an action was brought against a firm, "R. & Co."; R. appeared individually, and the plaintiff then delivered a statement of claim against "R. sued as R. & Co." and obtained judgment. Afterwards discovering that C. was a member of the firm of "R. & Co.," plaintiff was not allowed to amend his judgment to make it conform to the writ and be a judgment against the firm, as he had chosen to sue R. individually.

Where a partner is served, after a service on a manager or other person under Rule 101, judgment by default of appearance cannot be signed until the requisite time has expired after the second service: Alden v. Beckley, 25 Q. B. D. 543.

The right to issue execution against individual partners is regulated by Rule 105. Execution.

Rule 105.

Execution of judgment against a firm.

105.—(1) Where a judgment or order is obtained against a firm, execution may issue against the property of

(a) The partnership;

(b) Any person who has by his appearance or notice, under Rule 14 or pleading, admitted that he is, or who has been adjudged, to be a partner;

(c) Any person who has been served as a partner with the writ of summons and has failed to appear.

Leave to issue execution.

(2) If the party who has obtained the judgment or order claims to be entitled to issue execution against any other person as being a member of the firm, he may apply for leave so to do; and the Court may give such leave if the liability be not disputed, or, if disputed, after such liability has been determined in such manner as the Court may direct. C.R. 228.

To same effect as Eng. (1891) O. 48*a*, r. 8.

Execution of judgment against a firm and the partners.

This Rule provides the mode of realizing a judgment against a firm. Where a partner has been made a party individually, any judgment awarded against him may of course be enforced against him in the ordinary way.

Where the writ is issued against partners, not individually, but in the name of the firm, service of the writ on one or more will be sufficient: Rule 101; but the judgment must follow the writ and be against the firm: Rule 102. Therefore, if no appearance is entered judgment cannot be entered against any of the individual partner even though they may have been served with the writ. Execution may, however, under this Rule, be issued, without leave, in the cases mentioned, against individual partners, upon the judgment against the firm: Jackson v. Litchfield, 8 Q. B. D. 474.

Infant partner.

Where one of the partners is an infant, under a judgment for debt against the firm, execution may be issued against the firm so as to bind all the partnership assets, and the assets of the adult partners, but the infant partner is not personally bound by the judgment, and execution cannot issue against him individually, although he may have been personally served with the writ: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534; whether this is so in case of a judgment for a tort has not been decided.

Any appropriate form of execution may be issued to reach the property liable under this Rule, and it is presumed that where the property can only be reached by a receiver or other proceedings by way of equitable execution, the necessary order may be made; and see Rule 545.

Married woman.

Where a married woman is a partner, execution as against her individually can only be against her separate estate as in the case of a judgment against her individually: see re Frances Handford, 1899, 1 Q. B. 566; Gibson v. Le Temps, 8 O. L. R. 707, and supra, p. 483 et seq. Rule 105.

The plaintiff is not confined to his remedy against the individuals by execution under this Rule, but may bring fresh actions against the partners individually upon the judgment obtained against the firm: Clark v. Cullen, 9 Q. B. D. 355, and a judgment against a firm is no bar to an action against the partners individually on a promissory note given as a collateral security for the same debt: Banque Provinciale v. Arnoldi, 2 O. L. R. 624. Action on judgment.

Under an execution against an individual partner the sheriff cannot sell the interest of the partner in the partnership assets. He can seize the partnership goods and sell the execution debtor's share, whatever may be the difficulties that arise thereafter; and the Judicature Act has made no difference in this respect: Harrison v. Harrison, 14 P. R. 436; but it is only the partner's interest in the tangible property of the partnership that can thus be sold: Rennie v. Quebec Bank, 1 O. L. R. 303; 3 O. L. R. 541; the partner's interest in the goodwill or book-debts or anything else which cannot be seized by the sheriff cannot be reached in that way: Helmore v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 436; 56 L. T. 72; but see The Execution Act (R. S. O. c. 89), s. 20. Exigible property.

Clause 1 (c).—Person Served as Partner and Failing to Appear.—The service contemplated is such service as is provided for by Rule 101; and "who has been served" would appear to mean "personally" or otherwise as an individual may be served under the Rules: Jackson v. Litchfield, 8 Q. B. D. 478; 46 L. T. 519. Clause 1 (c).

A person so served, if he is served otherwise than as a partner, must be so notified, and if no notice is given he is deemed to be served as a partner (Rule 101) and must govern himself accordingly. If where so served, or deemed to be served, as a partner, he fails to appear, it would seem that he may be proceeded against under this Rule (clause c). Under the present Rules the doubt referred to in Davies v. André, 24 Q. B. D. 598, as to whether a person was served as a partner or only as manager, will not arise.

Execution by Leave.—This clause (2), only applies where there is in truth a partnership, which is bound by the judgment, in consequence of service upon one of its members, or its manager: see Standard Bank v. Frind, 15 P. R. 438. It does not apply where the plaintiff seeks to obtain, on a judgment against a firm, execution against a person not actually a partner whom he has not served as a partner with the writ, but whom he claims to treat as a partner by estoppel: see per Osler, J.A., in Ray v. Isbister, 22 Ont. App. 16. Clause (2). Execution against partners by leave.

Where the action is between a firm and one or more of its members, or between firms having one or more members in common, execution cannot issue at all without leave: see Rule 107.

A judgment against a firm is not conclusive of the liability of a person who has neither admitted on the pleadings that he is, nor has been adjudged to be a partner, nor has been served with the writ. Execution in such case will not be allowed to issue without a trial of the liability under the last clause of the Rule: Ex parte Young, 19 Ch. D. 124; 18 C. L. J. 119.

The Master in Chambers cannot under Rule 222, determine that a person was a partner without directing the trial of an issue if dealred: Standard Bank v. Frind, 14 P. R. 355, overruling Tennant v. Monhard, 12 P. R. 619.

Form of issue.

An issue in wbicb tbe question was whetber the person alleged to be a partner "was, or bad beid bimself out as, a partner in tbe defendant firm" was beld to bave been rigbtly ordered: Davis v. Hyman & Co., 1903, 1 K. B. 854; 88 L. T. 284.

Tbe issue will only ba as to tbe question of tbe partners in the firm against which judgment bas been recovered; tbe validity of the judgment will not be allowed to be put in issue by a person who disputes his liability as a partner: Gibson v. Le Temps, 6 O. L. R. 690.

A statutory declaration of partnersbip registered under The Partnerships Registration Act (R. S. O. c. 139), is incontrovertible: S. C., 8 O. L. R. 707.

Tbe execution is not limited to partners at tbe date of tha writ, but it is a question of fact in each case wbethe.· tbe persons against wbom it is desired to issue execution are partnera in tha firm against wbicb tbe judgment bas been obtained and liable to execution having regard to Rules 101, 106: see Davis v. Morris, 10 Q. B. D. 436.

Wbere an individual bas entered an appearance in an action against a firm, tbera must be a novation to render bim liable for a debt contracted befora be was a member, tbe fact that tbe individual bad undertaken to indemnify the firm is not enough: Cripps v. Tappin, 1 Cab. & El. 13. See Scarf v. Jardine, 7 App. Cas. 345.

Leave must also be obtained to issua execution wbenever a partner sues, or is sued, by a firm of whicb be is a partner, or wherever a plaintiff and defendant firm bave common partnera: sea Rule 107.

Judgment against firm, effect of.

106. A judgment against a firm in the firm name shall not release, render liable or affect any member thereof who was out of Ontario when the writ was issued and who has not appeared thereto, unless he has been sued either within Ontario or in accordance with the Rules respecting service out of Ontario, but this provision shall not prevent the enforcement of the judgment against partnership property. C.R. 228, part.

Under tbis Rule a judgment against a firm altbough it binds tbe firm and its property, and to that extent binds all tbe partners: see Heinemann v. Hole, 1891, 2 Q. B. at p. 91, citing Lindley, L. J., in Western, etc., v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, does not release or render liable any member tbereof in bis individual capacity, wbo was out of Ontario when tha writ issued, and wbo has not appeared thereto, unless be bas been personally sued. The object of tbe Rule is to prevent tbe application of tbe rule of law bereafter mentioned.

Action against joint contractors.

Joint Contractors.—A judgment obtained against some joint contractors is ordinarily a bar to an action for the debt against others not sued: King v. Hoare, 13 M. & W. 494, and partners are sucb joint contractors: Kendall v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas. 504. See Re Hodgson, Beckett v. Romsdale, 31 Ch. D. 177; 34 W. R. 127; 55 L. J. Chy. 241; Cambefort v. Chapmon, 19 Q. B. D. 229. In Hoore v. Niblett, 1891, 1

Q. B. 751, it was held that the fact that one of the joint contractors was a married woman contracting in respect of her separate property, made no difference in the application of the rule; but the rule does not apply in the case where the judgment against one joint contractor is on a contract by him alone for payment of the joint debt, such as a cheque given by him alone: Wegg Prosser v. Evans, 1894, 2 Q. B. 101; 1895, 1 Q. B. 108, overruling Cambefort v. Chapmon, supra: see Hough Lithographing Co. v. Morley, 20 O. L. R. 484. Rule 106.

So also a judgment against one of two tortfeasors is a bar to an action against the other, but an interim injunction followed by a compromise whereby the action is stayed against him is not a bar to an action against the other: Kelly v. Hammond, 2 T. L. R. 804; and a judgment against one of two joint debtors under former C. RR. 587, 603 and 609, was held not to be a bar to the action as against the other joint debtor who had obtained leave to defend: Dueber Watch Case Manfg. Co. v. Taggart, 26 Ont. App. 295; 30 S. C. R. 373; Weoll v. James, 68 L. T. 515; and the same rule would probably be applied to a judgment against a defendant on a specially indorsed writ under these Rules: see Rule 59; but where two joint contractors were sued, and judgment was entered, by consent, against one, it was held that the plaintiff could not subsequently bring on the action for trial, and obtain judgment against the other: McLeod v. Power, 1898, 2 Ch. 295; 79 L. T. 67. A defendant who relies on the recovery of judgment against another joint contractor as a defence should plead it: Ib. Joint tort-feasors.

The release of one of two joint debtors under a joint, or joint and several obligation operates as a release of his co-debtors: Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15; Bogart v. Anderson, 8 O. L. R. 261; and this rule of law applies as much to a judgment debt as to any other obligation: Re E. W. A., a Debtor, 1901, 2 K. B. 642. Where judgments were signed by default of appearance against some defendants, joint contractors, but judgments by default were not warranted by the practice, and the action was proceeded with to trial against other defendants only, it was held that, by proceeding against such other defendants without taking any warranted proceedings against the defendant who failed to appear, the plaintiff must be considered as having abandoned his action against him: Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15; and a compromise having been made with some of the defendants who did not appear in respect of a debt for which judgment had been obtained against others of the defendants, further proceedings on the judgment were stayed: Ib.; but see Edwards v. Hood-Barrs, 1905, 1 Ch. 20; 91 L. T. 766. Release of one of two joint debtors.

Where a judgment has been recovered against one of two joint contractors in ignorance of the liability of the other of them, and without joining him as a party in the action: Hammond v. Schofield, 1891, 1 Q. B. 453, or against an agent in ignorance of his having acted as agent for an undisclosed principal: Toronto Dental Mfg. Co. v. McLaren, 14 P. R. 89, the judgment will not be vacated on the application of the plaintiff in order to enable him to join the other joint debtor, or undisclosed principal, as a defendant, even on the consent of the defendant against whom the judgment has been entered: Hammond v. Schofield, supra. Effect of judgment against one of several joint debtors.

The above rules of law would, however, seem to be modified by Rules 101 and 106, so far as those members of a partnership are concerned who are out of the jurisdiction.

Rules 107, 108.

Application of Rules to actions between co-partners.

107. Rules 100 to 106 shall apply to actions between a firm and one or more of the members and to actions between firms having one or more members in common, if the firm or firms carry on business within Ontario, but execution shall not issue in such actions without leave, and, on application for leave, all such accounts and inquiries may be ordered and directions given as may seem just. C.R. 230.

Same as the Eng. O. 48*a*, r. 10.

Although Rule 106 is made applicable to the class of actions mentioned in this Rule, yet this Rule shews that in no case coming within it is execution to issue without leave.

The Rule aplies to cases where a firm sues a partner of the firm; or a partner sues a firm of which he is himself a member; or where a plaintiff and defendant firm have common partners.

Party carrying on a business under a name not his own, how to be sued.

108.—(1) Any person (whether a British subject or not, and whether residing within or without Ontario) carrying on business within Ontario in a name or style other than his own name, may be sued in such name or style.

Service.

(2) The writ may be served upon the person so carrying on the business if he be within Ontario, or at the place of business within Ontario (or if there are several such places, at the place within the county in which the cause of action arose), upon any person having the control or management of the business there.

Notice required.

(3) The person upon whom the writ is served shall be informed by notice in writing, given at the time of service, whether he is served as the person carrying on the business or as a person having the control or management of it, and in default of such notice he shall be deemed to be served as the person carrying on the business.

Appearance.

(4) The person so sued shall appear in his own name, but all subsequent proceedings shall continue in such name or style.

Appearance under protest, when necessary.

(5) A person served as the person carrying on the business may enter an appearance under protest denying that he is the person so carrying on the business, but such appearance shall not preclude the plaintiff from otherwise serving the person sued or from obtaining judgment in default of appearance in the ordinary form by the person so sued.

Rule 108.

Judgment, how enforced.

(6) Any judgment or order in the action may be enforced by execution against

(a) The property of the person so sued, used or employed in or in connection with the business.

(b) Any property of a person who by his appearance or by notice under Rule 14, has admitted that he is or has been adjudged to be the person carrying on the business, or has been served with the writ as the person carrying on the business and has failed to appear.

Leave to issue execution, when necessary.

(7) When judgment has been signed for default of appearance and the writ has not been personally served upon the person whom the plaintiff alleges to be carrying on the business, the Court may give leave to issue execution against such person if his liability be not disputed, or, if disputed, after it has been determined in such manner as the Court may direct. C.R. 231, amended.

See Eng. (1891) O. 48a, r. 11.

Scope of Rule.

The present Rule is an adaptation of the procedure provided by Rules 101-105 in the case of a partnership firm, to the case of a business carried on by an individual in some name or style other than his own. It only authorizes an action against a person in his trade name in connection with the business carried on under that name: McIver v. Burns, 1895, 2 Ch. 630; 73 L. T. 39.

The Rule by its express terms applies to a person not a British subject residing out of the jurisdiction, but carrying on business within the jurisdiction in a name or style other than his own name. To such a case the Eng. R. has been held not to apply: St. Gobain Co. v. Hoyermann's Agency, 1893, 2 Q. B. 96; 69 L. T. 329; 4 R. 441; see also De Bernales v. N. Y. Herald, 68 L. T. 658; 1893, 2 Q. B. 96 (n).

Person carrying on business under name not his own.

A business carried on under such names as "Madame Louise" or "Waukenpbast," and not being the title of a corporation, will therefore be within the present Rule; so also will probably a business carried on under such circumstances as existed in Standard Bank v. Frind, 15 P. R. 438; St. Gobain v. Hoyermann, supra. In De Bernales v. New York Herald, 1893, 2 Q. B. 96 (n); 68 L. T. 658, it was held that "The New York Herald" was not a firm name, and that it was the name of the thing sold and not the name under which the proprietor trades. The Rule probably does not affect that decision. The Rule would also seem not to include the case of an ecclesiastical order, some of whose members reside within Ontario, as in Golding v. Order of La Sainte Union, etc., 67 L. T. 605; 4 R. 93.

This Rule does not apply where the person so carrying on business has become a lunatic: Rule 21, in such case applies: Fore Street Warehouse Co. v. Durrant & Co., 10 Q. B. D. 471.

it will be noticed that a person carrying on business in the manner described, may be sued in the name or style adopted by him in his business, but he cannot sue in that name; he must sue in his own name: see Mason v. Mogridge, 8 T. L. R. 505; but where a plaintiff named "J. W. Lang," carried on business alone as "J. W. Lang & Co.," and sued by that name it was held that he was suing in his own name, as "and Co." was surplusage and might be struck out: Lang v. Thompson, 16 P. R. 516.

As to what is meant by "carrying on business": see notes to Rule 100.

The Rule constitutes an exception to Rule 25.

Service of writ.

Service of Writ.—The Rule (clause (2)) prescribes the method of service of a person sued under any name or style other than his own name. (1) The writ may be served in Ontario upon the person sued, or (2) it may be served upon any person having the control or management of the business in Ontario of the person sued. Where the latter mode of service is adopted the person served must be notified in writing that he is served as being the person having the control or management of the business: clause (3). Where the person sued is resident abroad, it would seem that if he is to be personally served with the writ or notice of the writ, the provisions of Rules 28, 29, would have to be observed; but not the provisions of Rules 25-27; C. R. 231 (2), expressly dispensed with leave to issue the writ, but the omission of that provision does not appear to render leave necessary. In such a case it would seem that the time for appearance should be more than the ordinary 10 days allowed in the case of service within the jurisdiction, and application should be made for an order regulating the time for appearance in such a case.

Notice requisite.

On service of the writ notice is to be given whether the person served is so served as the person carrying on the business, or as a person having the control or management thereof; and where no notice is given, the person served is to be deemed to be served merely as a person having control, and no personal liability will attach to him, and no judgment or execution can be signed or issued against him if he does not appear. If he appear, otherwise than under protest, he admits he is the person carrying on the business, and, if judgment goes against him, is liable to have execution issued against him in his own name, as well as in the name in which he is sued. In this respect this Rule varies from Rule 101, where, in the absence of such notice, the person served is to be deemed to be served as a partner.

Appearance.

Appearance.—Appearance must be entered by the person sued in his individual name: see clause (4), and Taylor v. Collier, 30 W. R. 701. C. R. 231 (3), provided that a person served merely as having the control or management of the business need not appear; but that provision has been omitted as unnecessary.

Protest.

An appearance under protest by a person served (see clause 5) denying that he is the person carrying on the business, will of course be entered by him in his own name.

C. R. 231 (5) authorized an application to compel disclosure of the person who at the time of the accruing of the cause of action was the person carrying on the business; this provision has been omitted in these Rules: see, however, Rule 14, and Rule 2.

See also notes to Rules 103-106.

Judgment.—Judgment must follow the writ and be against the defendant by the name or style by which he is described in the style of the action. Rule 100. Judgment.

Execution.—Execution may be enforced against the property employed in the business, wherever there has been a valid service under clause (2), i.e., either upon the person carrying on the business within Ontario), or at the place of business within Ontario upon some person having the control or management of the business there. To enforce the execution against other property as being that of the owner of the business, it would seem that there must either be proof, or what amounts to an admission, that the owner of the property is the owner of the business, or proof that the owner of the property has had an opporunity of disputing that he is the owner of the business, he therefore (1) must have been adjudged to be the owner of the business; or (2) must have appeared in his own name (not under protest), and so have admitted the fact, or (3) must have been personally served and failed to appear. Execution.

Where judgment has been obtained by default on a service not on the owner personally, an application under clause (7) will be necessary where it is desired to reach property not used or employed in, or in connection with, the business: see also Standard Bank v. Frind, 15 P. R. 438, under the former Rules.

CHAPTER VII.

PLEADINGS.

General Provisions.

Statement of claim.

109.—(1) The plaintiff shall state the nature of his claim and the relief sought in a pleading to be called the Statement of Claim, and may therein alter, modify, or extend his claim as endorsed upon the writ. C.R. 242 and 244.

(2) When a defendant has not appeared and the statement of claim alters, modifies, or extends the relief claimed, the plaintiff shall not be entitled to judgment on default of defence unless the statement of claim is served personally in pursuance of an order for substitutional service. New.

Former C. R. 171 enabled a defendant to dispense with a statement of claim, but there is no such provision in these Rules.

Statement of claim, when necessary.

A statement of claim is necessary even where no appearance is entered, whenever the case is one in which the plaintiff can only obtain judgment by motion for judgment: see Rules 44, 110; Minton v. Metcolfe, 46 L. J. Chy. 584; Hunter v. Wilcockson, 9 P. R. 305.

It is not necessary where a writ is specially indorsed: see Rules 111, 37; or where a defendant only disputes the amount claimed: see Rule 50; or the plaintiff in default of appearance is entitled to a final judgment: e.g., see Rule 40.

Special indorsement.

Where the writ is specially indorsed, the indorsement becomes the only pleading necessary; and it stands as and for a statement of claim, and becomes amendable as a statement of claim would be under Rule 127: Confederation Life v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 648. In ordinary cases the statement of claim will be framed in accordance with the Form No. 10, and see H. & L. Forms, No. 123.

Enlarging, or varying, claim.

The latter part of clause (1) is to the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 228, passed in affirmance of Lorge v. Large, W. N. 1877, 198. See also Smith v. Richardson, 4 C. P. D. 112; Johnson v. Palmer, Ib. 258; Eyre v. Cox, 24 W. R. 317; Wilmott v. Freehold, 51 L. T. 551.

The construction placed upon the corresponding Eng. Rule has been that it applies only where a statement of claim is actually delivered, not where it is constructively delivered, under Eng. (1883) R. 206 (see Rules 199, 200), in case of non-appearance, by filing with the proper officer.

And this is the effect of clause (2) of this Rule, viz., that if a statement of claim is served under Rules 199 or 200, by posting up a copy in the proper office, where a defendant does not appear, or give an address for service, the plaintiff cannot in his statement of claim enlarge his claim as indorsed on the writ: Law v. Philby (2), 35 W. R. 450; Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160; see also Foord v. Brown, 20 L. R. Ir. 185; Stone v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 188. Rule 109.

Probably this Rule only expresses with a modification what was formerly decided, viz., that the plaintiff will not be strictly confined to the particulars mentioned in the writ: see before the Jud. Act, Sowden v. Sowden, 4 P. R. 276; Huggins v. Guelph Borrel Co., 8 P. R. 110; and after the Jud. Act in Johnson v. Palmer, 4 C. P. D. 258; Large v. Large, W. N. 1877, 198; Loinchberry v. Dunn, 9 C. L. T. 412.

An absolutely distinct and different cause of action from any mentioned in the indorsement on the writ may not be set up in the statement of claim: United Telephone Co. v. Tosker, 59 L. T. 852; Cave v. Crew, 68 L. T. 254; 41 W. R. 359; W. N. 1893, 42; 3 R. 401; Ker v. Williams, W. N. 1886, 16; 30 Sol. Jour. 238; nor a claim arising pendente lite: McLean v. McLeon, 17 P. R. 440.

The added claim must have some direct relation to the original claim, but, being so related, the claim may be substantially different from that indorsed on the writ, thus, where the claim on the writ was for specific performance, a statement of claim for cancellation of the agreement and recovery of possession of the land in question was held to be a legitimate extension: Gibson v. Hieb, 1 O. L. R. 247; and see Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639; Chapman v. McWhinney, 4 O. W. N. 35; but see Snider v. Snider, 30 O. L. R. 105; 5 O. W. N. 254; so a claim that is supplementary to the original claim will be proper, as where the writ was by a mortgagee against a mortgagor, indorsed for an injunction to restrain waste, and the statement of claim claimed also possession of the land by reason of default in the mortgage: Smythe v. Martin, 18 P. R. 227.

An objection that the statement of the claim goes beyond the writ should be taken promptly; if not made till the trial, it is too late: Bugbee v. Clerque, 27 Ont. App. 96, 717; Gibson v. Hieb, supra.

Form of Statement of Claim.—A statement of claim should follow the writ as to the names of the parties, and the character in which they are suing, or sued. Subject to what is said above a plaintiff will not be strictly confined to the particulars of his cause of action indorsed on the writ. Form.

The plaintiff need not ask relief against all the defendants named in the writ, but may claim against some only, if he abandons proceedings against the rest, but not otherwise: Arch. Prac., 13th ed., 215, unless the claim is of an equitable nature and the presence of the defendant is necessary as a party though no relief be asked against him.

As to printing the statement of claim: see Rule 139. As to the causes of action which may be joined: see Rule 69. As to the form in which material facts should be set out: see Rule 141.

In a statement of claim, the date of the issue of the writ of summons was formerly required to be stated, as shewn in Form 10 of C. RR., and was held to be essential. Where it was omitted, leave to amend was given on a motion to set aside the statement of claim: Scott v. Creighton, 9 P. R. 253. The present Form 10 is not complete: see Rule 140, it omits to indicate that the date of the writ is requisite; and it is advisable that the former practice on this point should be continued in order that the date of the commencement of the action may appear on the record. Date of writ.

Rule 110.

Under the English Rules it has been said that, in general, a defence should not be anticipated and answered: Holl v. Eve, 4 Ch. D. 341; Clarke v. Callow, 46 L. J. Q. B. 53; and see Snider v. Snider, supra, p. 507. The relief desired must be asked for: Rule 145.

Place of trial.

The place where the plaintiff proposes to try the action is to be mentioned in the statement of claim: Rule 245, and (subject to exceptions mentioned in that Rule), the plaintiff has a prima facie right to have the trial at any place he names; unless otherwise ordered: see notes to Rule 245.

Indorsements and service.

Attention should be given to the matters mentioned in Rule 110 to be marked on the pleading. For the time for delivery: see Rules 110, 178 and 204; and as to the mode of delivery: see Rule 199. A copy should be filed as well as served: Rule 140.

Time within which to be delivered.

110. The plaintiff shall deliver his statement of claim within one month from the entering of appearance or at any time before appearance and where there is more than one defendant the statement of claim shall be delivered within a month from the last appearance or from the time when the last appearance should have been entered. C.R. 243.

This Rule shortens the time allowed by C. R. 243, for the delivery of a statement of claim from three months to one month.

The Eng. (1883) R. 225 is somewhat different.

Where writ specially indorsed.

A specially indorsed writ is in effect the statement of claim: Rule 111, and if not sufficient may be amended like an ordinary statement of claim: see Rule 127: Confederation Life v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 648.

The plaintiff may if he choose deliver a statement of claim with the writ, or after service of the writ and before appearance; in such cases it would have to be delivered to the defendant in person or in such other manner as might be specially ordered.

Where the writ is specially indorsed, however, no further, or other statement of claim can be delivered without leave; and as to delivery of defence where the special indorsement constitutes the statement of claim: see Rule 112; and Dunn v. Dominion Bank, 5 O. W. N. 103.

The plaintiff may be disallowed the costs of the statement of claim if it was unnecessary: see Rule 670.

A guardian ad litem of an infant, and a married woman, may waive delivery of a statement of claim: see Knotchbull v. Fowle, W. N. 1876, 2; Fryer v. Wiseman, W. N. 1876, 3.

C. R. 342 provided that "a month" should in C. RR. mean a calendar month. This provision is not contained in these Rules: see, however, The Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1), ss. 29 (a), 30, and p. 309, supra. In computing the month vacation is not reckoned: Rule 170. For the mode of delivery: see Rules 140, 199, and 200. If a statement of claim is not delivered within the time allowed, the action may be dismissed for want of prosecution: Rule 323.

Although a special indorsement is in effect a pleading: see Rule 111, yet it is only a quasi pleading; and the Rules applicable to ordinary pleadings do not necessarily apply to it; e.g., a specially indorsed writ may be served in vacation notwithstanding Rule 178, and semble, the affidavit required to be filed by a defendant under Rule 56, though also a quasi pleading: see Rule 112 (3); yet it would seem not to be a pleading within Rule 178. Rule 110.

Extending Time for Delivery.—As to the extension of time: see Higginbottom v. Aynsley, 3 Ch. D. 288. Extension of time.

An order extending the time will not be made ex parte: Wigle v. Harris, 9 P. R. 276.

A statement of claim filed after the time for doing so has expired, without leave, has been held under the Irish Act to be not irregular, unless the defendant has served a notice of motion to dismiss: O'Connell v. O'Connell and Sampson v. O'Donnell, 6 L. R. Ir. 470, 471; but in Ontario, under C. R. 243, it was decided that a statement so filed is irregular, and might be struck out on motion in Chambers unless circumstances were shewn justifying an extension of time: Clarke v. McEwing, 9 P. R. 281; see clause (b) of that Rule, and Anon., 26 Sol. Jour. 511; but this Rule contains no prohibition against filing a statement of claim after the month; and a statement so filed might be held not to be irregular any more than a defence delivered after time, and before any other proceeding was taken. It cannot be treated as a nullity: Gill v. Woodfin, 25 Ch. D. 707; see also Groves v. Terry, in notes to Rules 112, 118. Filed after time.

On a motion to strike out as irregular a statement of claim delivered after the proper time under C. R. 243, an order might be made allowing it to stand, and any proper terms might be imposed as a condition of its being validated: Toronto v. Romsden, 5 O. W. R. 381, 413.

An application to enlarge the time will, in general, be by motion in Chambers. Or the time may be enlarged by consent: Rule 175. The consent should be in writing, and no order is then necessary: Ambroise v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D. 759.

Where, by mistake of a clerk of the plaintiff's solicitor, the statement of claim was served too late by two days, further time was given. The Court thought it immaterial that plaintiff had delayed bringing the action till shortly before the Statute of Limitations would have barred the claim: Canadian Oil Works v. Hoy, 38 L. T. 549; W. N. 1878, 107; but the Court has refused to renew a writ of summons after the time for effecting the renewal has expired, where the claim, in the absence of such renewal, would be barred by the Statute of Limitations: Doyle v. Kaufman, 3 Q. B. D. 7, 340; Hewett v. Barr, 1891, 1 Q. B. 98.

Where a statement of claim was delivered after the time limited by an order, and an order afterwards was made extending the time for delivery on payment of $20 costs, and the costs were paid, but no new statement delivered, it was held under C. R. 243 that though the delivery was irregular, it was waived by retaining the copy served and the costs: Pierce v. Palmer, 12 P. R. 275.

Where an order was made giving a further limited time to file a pleading, and providing that, in default, judgment might be signed, a judgment signed without serving a copy of the order was held to be regular: see Fardon v. Richter, 23 Q. B. D. 124; sed quære, if an order of dismissal can he made under these Rules until after default: see Rule 323 and Armstrong v. Toronto & Richmond Hill St. Ry., infra.

After nine years' delay in proceeding to deliver a statement of claim in an action hy solicitors on a hill of costs, the delay being owing to the fact that defendant was impecunious, the plaintiffs were allowed to deliver a statement of claim, on terms of not charging interest, and a set-off of the costs of the motion, and the plaintiffs submitting to a taxation of the hill sued on: Finkle v. Lutz, 14 P. R. 446.

Where further time for a month "peremptory" was given, this was held to mean that the pleading must he delivered within the specified time, unless the order itself he expressly altered hy any subsequent order: Falck v. Axhelm, 38 W. R. 196.

See also notes to Rules 112, 118, 323.

Shortening Time.—Where plaintiff has obtained an injunction, or registered a lis pendens, or for other reasons justice so requires, the plaintiff may be ordered under Rule 176 to file a statement of claim before the month above mentioned: see Armstrong v. Toronto & Richmond Hill St. Ry., 15 P. R. 449; Hall v. Forteye, 9 C. L. T. 231; Jameson v. Laing, 7 P. R. 404; Sheppard v. Kennedy, 10 P. R. 242.

The plaintiff becomes in such case "hound to deliver a statement of claim" (see Rule 323) within such shortened time, hut the order should not provide that on default the action he dismissed; such an order is under Rule 323 only to he made "after the expiration of such time": Armstrong v. Toronto, etc., supra, and semble on application in Chambers for that purpose, on notice to the plaintiff, and proof of default.

Indosement to be statement of claim.

111. Where the writ is specially indorsed such indorsement shall be treated as a statement of claim and no other statement of claim shall be necessary. C.R. 245, amended.

To the same effect as Eng. R. 225 (a).

A "specially indorsed" writ would seem to he one indorsed within the meaning of Rule 33: see notes to that Rule.

The plaintiff ought to indorse his writ for money claims, in such a way that the indorsement may furnish all necessary information to the defendant in regard to the claim: see Anon., W. N. 1875, 202, per Lush, J. If the indorsement is considered hy the defendant to be insufficient his course is to apply for delivery of a further statement of claim or better particulars: see Rule 138: Fawcus v. Charlton, 10 Q. B. D. 516. Where the indorsement is not sufficiently explicit, particulars may he ordered, and further time to put in a defence given, if necessary: see Cotton v. Housemon, W. N. 1876, 22; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 36; hut the proper form of application in such case would seem to he for a further statement of claim: Schomberg v. Zoebelli, W. N. 1876, 106; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 36. Particulars of lump sums, for which credit was given, were ordered in Godden v. Corsten, 5 C. P. D. 17.

For further information with regard to particulars: see notes to Rule 33, 138.

In an action for money alleged to have been obtained by fraudulent misrepresentation, the nature of the misrepresentation, and the particulars of the sums sued for being set out in the indorsement of the writ, it was held that the indorsement was sufficient, and a motion to compel the delivery of a better statement of claim was refused: Young v. Beattie, 16 L. R. Ir. 192. Rule 112.

The Rule appears to be imperative, and it was held in Dominion Bank v. Dunne, 5 O. W. N. 103, that where a plaintiff has served a specially indorsed writ, he cannot without leave deliver another statement of claim in the action.

112.—(1) Where the writ is specially indorsed and the plaintiff does not elect under Rule 56 to serve a notice of trial the defendant may deliver a defence or counter-claim at any time within 10 days after his appearance. When defence must be delivered.

(2) Where the writ is not specially indorsed the defendant may deliver his defence and counter-claim within 10 days from the delivery of the statement of claim or from the time limited for appearance, whichever shall be last. C.R. 246 and 247, amended.

(3) Where a defendant who has appeared to a writ which is specially indorsed and filed the affidavit required by Rule 56, does not file a statement of defence within the time limited, his affidavit shall stand as his defence, and notice of trial may be at once served. [As amended by Rule passed 24th December, 1913].

See Eng. (1883) RR. 239, 240. Under clause (1) the 10 days are to be reckoned from the entry of appearance; under clause (2) the 10 days will be counted from the last day for appearance, where a statement of claim has been delivered with the writ, or before appearance: see Rule 110, and not from the actual entry of appearance where it has been entered before the time for appearance has expired: McCulloch v. Hamilton, 32 C. L. J. 364; Lovell v. Taylor, 5 O. W. R. 525, 527. Vacation is not reckoned in the 10 days: Rule 178.

A "defence" and a "counter-claim" cannot be delivered separately, but must be included in one pleading: see Form 13; H. & L. Forms No. 127, and Holloway v. York, 25 W. R. 627; also Bogot v. Easton, 11 Ch. D. 392. It would seem, however, that a "reply" to the statement of defence, and a "defence" to the counter-claim may, where necessary, be delivered separately: see notes to Rule 114.

The time may be extended by consent in writing: Rule 175; Ambroise v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D. 759. No order is then necessary; but if a consent cannot be obtained, the Court is liberal in granting further time. The motion for further time is made in Chambers on notice: Wigle v. Harris, 9 P. R. 276.

If a defence is not put in, the pleadings may be noted as closed, after which no defence may be received or filed without an order: Rule 121, or, it is presumed, a consent: see Rule 175. Where proceedings are not taken to note the pleadings as closed, a defence put in without leave, after the proper time but before judgment, cannot be treated as a nullity: Gill v. Woodfin, 25 Ch. D. 707; see also Harding v. Lyons, 13 L. R. Ir. 302; Gibbings v. Strong, 26 Ch. D. 66; 50 L. T. 578; and notes to Rules 110, 118, and 121.

An action should not now be set down on motion for judgment by default of pleading until the pleadings are noted as closed: see notes to Rule 121, but if a defence be filed after such noting: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137, or even after the action has been set down on motion for judgment, the defence, though irregular, cannot be treated as a nullity and ignored: see Gill v. Woodfin, and other cases supra, and notes to Rule 121.

A defence delivered after the time, and after a motion for leave to deliver it had been refused, was set aside with costs: Meehan v. Meehon, 14 L. R. Ir. 301.

A defence delivered after the time, and upon the day when the case was to be heard on a motion for judgment, was held to be irregular, and ordered to be struck out, unless the defendant paid the costs of setting down the action on motion for judgment, within a limited time: Snider v. Snider, 11 P. R. 34.

Where an order is made giving a further limited time for filing defence, and providing that in default judgment may be signed, a judgment signed after default is regular, though no copy of the order is served: Forden v. Richter, 23 Q. B. D. 124.

A counter-claim has been allowed to be filed after issue joined: Evans v. Gonn, W. N. 1875, 199; but it may be too late after the case is entered for trial: Wore v. Gwynne, W. N. 1875, 240.

See also notes to Rules 110, 115, and 118.

Defence and Counterclaim:—

When to be delivered.

The defendant must deliver his statement of defence within 10 days from appearance, if the writ is specially indorsed: Rule 112 (1); and if not, then within 10 days from the delivery of the statement of claim, or the time for entry of appearance, whichever is last. Rule 112 (2). A defence delivered after the time, but before judgment, is not a nullity, nor is it irregular: Munn v. Young, 5 O. W. N. 426.

Form.

The facts relating to the defence must be stated in the same manner as is provided in respect to other pleadings: Rules 141 et seq. If the defendant has no facts to set up he may simply "take issue," or deny the statement of claim. Such a pleading will prevent an implied admission, and put the plaintiff to the proof of his claim: Rule 144; Hore v. Cowthrope, 11 P. R. 355; Molcolm v. Race, 16 P. R. 330; and see Irwin v. Turner, Ib. 349. All facts not in the statement of claim on which the defendant means to rely should be set out: Rule 143. Though a defendant is not taken to have admitted what he does not deny (see Rule 144), he should nevertheless make all proper admissions: Rule 142; otherwise he may have to bear the costs rendered necessary by the failure to admit: Rule 671. The character in which the plaintiff sues (Rule 152), the incorporation of a corporate party (Rule 153), and the legality or sufficiency of a contract in point of law, if intended to be disputed, must be expressly traversed (Rule 154). In an action for the recovery of land the defendant need only state that he is in possession, unless he has some equitable ground to set up: Rule 155.

Where the authority of the plaintiff's solicitor to bring the action is disputed, that is not a proper subject to raise by way of defence; that can only be raised by a motion to stay the proceedings; e.g., where an action was brought by a person alleged to be of unsound mind, a denial of the plaintiff being of unsound mind in the defence was struck out as being no defence to the action: Richmond v. Bronson, 1914, 1 Ch. 968; 110 L. T. 751. Rule 113.

In an action of libel or slander where a defendant does not plead the truth of the alleged slander or libel, no evidence can be given of it in mitigation of damages: Rule 158.

There may be a plea to the jurisdiction: see Rule 48; Dart v. Citizens Ins. Co., 11 P. R. 513.

Inconsistent pleas may still be used where applicable: Re Morgon, Owen v. Morgon, 35 Ch. D. 492; e.g., in an action for money, a denial of the loan, and plea that, if lent, it has been repaid or release given: Bornicott v. Hann, W. N. 1876, 24; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 39. A defence amounting to pleas of not guilty, and justification, may be properly pleaded: Restell v. Steword, W. N. 1875, 231; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 87. The offering of an apology, payment into Court, and a justification may be pleaded together in an action for libel: Hawkesley v. Brodshow, 5 Q. B. D. 302. This was not formerly allowed: see Doyle v. Owen Sound Printing Co., 8 P. R. 69. But where payment into Court was pleaded together with a justification, in a libel action, and it was not clear from the pleading in respect of which particular part of the cause of action the payment was made, the defence was struck out as embarrassing: Fleming v. Dollar, 23 Q. B. D. 388; and see Rule 310.

As a general rule, the defendants may deny the plaintiff's causes of action, and plead payment into Court in respect to the whole or any part of them: Rules 307, 308; Berdon v. Greenwood, 3 Ex. D. 251, in which the decision in Spurr v. Holl, 2 Q. B. D. 615, was questioned. A defendant may plead "not guilty by statute" where that defence is applicable: Rule 156; also grounds of defence or counterclaim arising after action brought, but before delivery of defence: Rules 159 et seq.; but pleading in abatement was abolished by C. R. 283 and is not allowed by these Rules.

The Rules following, in relation to counter-claims, are made in order to give effect to the Jud. Act, s. 16 (d), supra.

As to counter-claims, see note to Rule 115.

Frivolous, vexatious, or scandalous defences, or defences tending to prejudice, embarrass, or delay the fair trial of the action, may be struck out on motion in Chambers: see Rule 137 and notes.

Where the writ is specially indorsed the delivery of a defence is 10 days "after his appearance," not "after the time limited for appearance," as in clause (2).

Where a plaintiff elects to proceed under Rule 56 no statement of defence other than the affidavit referred to in that Rule is necessary, or admissible without leave.

113. Where a defendant sets up a counter-claim which raises questions between himself and the plaintiff and any other person he shall add a second style of cause Where counter-claim affects third person.

in which he shall be described as "Plaintiff by Counter-claim" and the plaintiff and such other person shall be described as "Defendants by Counter-claim," and shall deliver his counter-claim to such of them as are parties to the action within the period limited for the defence and shall serve the same without delay upon such of them as are not parties to the action together with a summons according to Form No. 25, issued from the proper office and a copy of the statement of claim. C.R. 248 and 249, amended.

For the form of the title required by this Rule: see Form 13; H. & L. Forms, No. 127.

The Eng. R. 244 reads, "questions between himself and the plaintiff along with any other person," and this does not authorize a counter-claim by defendant raising "questions between himself along with any other person and the plaintiff," so that where the defendant and a third party had a joint cause of action against the plaintiff, even though arising out of the same circumstances that gave rise to the plaintiff's cause of action, a counter-claim by the defendant against the plaintiff, making also the third party a defendant to it, was struck out: Pender v. Toddei, 1898. 1 Q. B. 708. Under the present Rule 113, such a counter-claim would also seem to be unauthorized. The variation in the language of the Rule would not seem to change its meaning in this respect. The intention would seem to be that relief by counter-claim is confined to a defendant, and that a third party (not being a defendant in the action) cannot be thus directly or indirectly introduced into an action so as to enable him to claim relief against the plaintiff. Thus, a claim by the defendant on behalf of himself and other parties, which as regards an action would be within Rules 79-87, cannot be set up by counter-claim: Hume v. Hume, 38 C. L. J. 204.

Where defendant in an action on a note shewed that the note had been transferred to the plaintiffs to secure a debt due to them by the payee, one T. N., which debt had been satisfied since the commencement of the action, and the defendant swore that he had a good defence on the merits against T. N., it was held that this Rule had no application, but that the plaintiffs admitting these facts were entitled to their costs under Rule 164, and the cause of action having devolved upon T. N., he was entitled to continue it by taking out an order under Rule 301: Oshawa Cabinet Co. v. Note, 18 C. L. J. 60.

A third person made a defendant to a counter-claim is not entitled to enter an appearance until he has been served with the counter-claim and summons; and if he appears without having been so served, the appearance may be discharged on motion by the plaintiff in the counter-claim: Fraser v. Cooper, 23 Ch. D. 685.

Where, in an action for the price of iron, the defendant set up a counter-claim for a deduction, which he had been obliged to allow a purchaser, owing to the inferiority of the quality of iron, it was held unnecessary to add the purchaser's name to the title of the action: see Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 66; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 85 per Lush, J., who said Order 22, r. 5 (corresponding to the present Rule), does not apply to such a case: see also Williams v. Wright, W. N. 1875, 232. Rule 114.

For the rules in respect to service of writs of summons: see Rules 15, et seq., and 25.

The Rule has made a change in the practice in requiring a third party added by counter-claim to be served with a writ of summons as well as the counter-claim.

114. Any defendant to a counter-claim shall within ten days after service thereof on him, deliver a defence thereto. C.R. 250. Defence to counter-claim.

The summons to be served on third persons added by counter-claim requires such third persons to enter an appearance, as well as to deliver his defence (if any) to the counter-claim, within 10 days after service.

A plaintiff made a defendant by counter-claim may counter-claim against the plaintiff by counter-claim, in respect of a cause of action accruing subsequent to the issue of the writ: Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428; or in respect of a breach of the contract alleged in the counter-claim: Renton v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 446; but not in respect of independent matters arising before action: Jones v. Page, 85 L. T. Jour. 157, such matters can only be set up by amendment of the statement of claim: see Rule 157; and a third party made a defendant by counter-claim is limited to a defence, and is not entitled to counter-claim against the defendant who brought him in: Street v. Gover, 2 Q. B. D. 498; General Electric Co. v. Victoria Electric Co., 16 P. R. 476, 529; Alcoy Ry. Co. v. Greenhill, 1896, 1 Ch. 19; 73 L. T. 452; but see Green v. Thornton, 9 C. L. T. 139, where a pleading, though called a counter-claim, was allowed as being in substance a defence: General Electric, etc., v. Victoria Electric, etc., supra, per Meredith, J., at p. 481, and per Street, J., ib., at p. 534; see also Eden v. Weardale, 28 Ch. D. at p. 338. How far a counter-claim may be pleaded to a counter-claim.

By this Rule a plaintiff has 10 days to deliver a "defence" to the counter-claim; and by Rule 118 the plaintiff has 10 days to "reply" to the statement of defence; the time for defence to a counter-claim and a reply, therefore, run concurrently under the present Rules; as to amending statement of claim after defence: see Rule 127. Plaintiff's pleading to a counter-claim.

A defence to a counter-claim was, in Irwin v. Brown, 12 P. R. 639, held to be technically a "reply" in the action, but that case was not followed in Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349, decided under C. RR. which gave a longer time for a reply than for a defence. Doubtless the plaintiff may combine in one pleading his "reply" to the statement of defence and his "defence" to the counter-claim, but such a pleading must, under this Rule, be delivered within 10 days.

The Eng. Rules are different. Under them the plaintiff has 21 days within which to reply to the counter-claim: Rumley v. Winn, 22 Q. B. D. 265.

In case of default being made by plaintiff in delivery of a defence, the defendant cannot sign judgment for default of pleading, but must move for judgment under Rules 222, 354, 356; Jones v. Mocouloy, 1891, 1 Q. B. 221. Such a judgment may be obtained even after the plaintiff's action has been dismissed for want of prosecution: Roberts v.

Booth, 1893, 1 Q. B. 62; 3 R 161; see also Higgins v. Scott, 21 Q. B. D. 10. See notes to Rule 116.

A pleading in answer to a counter-claim which denies the allegations of the counter-claim, puts the counter-claiming defendant to proof of his counter-claim, and submits that it should be dismissed, is a "defence" to the counter-claim, and not a joinder of issue in the action: Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349.

Subsequent pleading by the counter-claiming defendant.

Whether "plaintiff" in Rule 118 includes a plaintiff by counter-claim, or whether, by virtue of Rule 2, Rule 118 applies by analogy, it would seem that a counter-claiming defendant has 10 days from the delivery of the defence to the counter-claim within which to reply to such defence, and therefore the pleadings in such an action cannot be closed until the expiry of that time, or until the delivery of a reply: Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349.

Semble, a counter-claim cannot for all purposes be regarded as a statement of claim, and would not be amendable under Rule 127: see Eng. Rule 311, which allows an amendment of a counter-claim without leave, but there is no such provision in these Rules. The only provision for amendment of a counter-claim without leave is Rule 128.

Counter-claim.

115. A defendant (b) may set up by way of counter-claim (a), any right or claim whether the same sounds in damages or not. C.R. 251.

(a) C. R. 261 had here "to the claim of the plaintiff," but the omission of these words is immaterial, a counter-claim can only be filed to a claim of a plaintiff.

See notes before Rule 102.

This is a Rule made in furtherance of sec. 16 (d) of the Act.

"Defendant" in this Rule would seem not to include a third party made a defendant to a counter-claim: see notes to Rule 114.

Third party procedure, provided for by section 16 (d) of the Judicature Act, is discussed under Rule 165. In addition to the class of cases there mentioned, the defendant is by the above sub-section enabled (subject to the discretion of the Court) to set up in an action brought against him, any claims whatever which he may have against the plaintiff, and under certain restrictions claims against the plaintiff jointly with other persons: see Naylor v. Farrer, 26 W. R. 809; Besant v. Wood, 12 Ch. D. 605; Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802; Fried v. Galloway, 4 C. L. T. 191 up any matter properly pleadable in a cross-action, though arising after the commencement of the action: see Rule 159; and consequently a set-off, if arising after action, under the present Rule can only be set up by way of counter-claim. Rule 115.

Under the present Rule a claim of a defendant against a plaintiff sounding in damages must be set up by counter-claim: see Grills v. Farah, 21 O. L. R. 457.

A counter-claim properly so-called is therefore a claim by defendant for relief, which he cannot obtain by defence in the action: Girardot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 162, 201. By it a defendant may set up any cross-claim whether sounding in damages or not, subject, however, to Rules 124, 137.

What was before The Judicature Act a legal set-off, and pleadable as a defence, is still so pleadable, and should be so pleaded, and not as a counter-claim; and if the set-off exceeds the claim, the excess may be recovered without counter-claim for the same: Girardot v. Welton, supra; and see The Judicature Act, s. 128, supra; Gates v. Seagram, 19 O. L. R. 216; where, a set-off having been erroneously set up by counter-claim, the action, and the question of costs, were disposed of in accordance with the real character of the defence.

If a claim for liquidated damages is pleaded by defendant by way of counter-claim, the plaintiff may set up matters in defence arising subsequent to action brought: McNamara v. Skain, 23 Ont. 103; Rule 160; secus if the claim is pleaded by way of set-off; and see Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428.

Other cases recognize that a set-off and counter-claim are quite distinct: see Cutler v. Morse, 12 P. R. 594; Tagart v. Marcus, 36 W. R. 469; Winterfield v. Bradnum, 3 Q. B. D. 326; Stumore v. Campbell, 1892, 1 Q. B. 314, 316; and cases infra, p. 523; and on the subject of costs, see the notes to Jud. Act, s. 74, supra, p. 260 et seq.

A counter-claim must be delivered within the time allowed for delivering a defence: Rule 112, and can only be delivered when a defence could be filed; it cannot be delivered after an action has been discontinued or dismissed: see note post, p. 520.

Set-off.—A most important change was made by The Judicature Act in the previously existing law relating to set-off, and cross-demands. Former practice as to set-off.

Set-off, like counter-claim, was created by statute. Prior to the Statutes of set-off, 2 Geo. 2, c. 22, s. 13, and 8 Geo. 2, c. 24, ss. 4, 5—see now The Judicature Act, ss. 126-128, supra, p. 297 et seq.—where there were cross-demands unconnected with each other, the parties were put to their cross-actions. Sections 126, 127, supra, enabled "mutual debts" to be set-off against one another (see Rees v. Watts, 11 Ex. 410), though the mutual debts are of a different nature, that is, a bond debt can be set-off against a simple contract debt: see Bennett v. White, 1910, 2 K. B. 643, where a debt of plaintiff to a third party assigned to the defendant was held to be capable of being set-off.

In Equity, set-off has been allowed in many cases not within the Statutes of set-off: see Story's Eq. Jur., ss. 14, 38, et seq.; Lundy v. McCulla, 11 Gr. 368; Macbeth v. Smart, 13 Gr. 332. The Statutes of set-off applied only where the set-off was of a legal debt, and excluded equitable debts, and unliquidated damages.

The Judicature Act abolished the distinction between legal and equitable debts; and the present Rule expressly authorizes the setting up of unliquidated demands as an answer to either liquidated, or unliquidated demands, not merely by way of set-off, but so as to enable the defendant to obtain judgment in his favour for any balance, or for such other relief as he may be entitled to, on the merits of the case: see Staples v. Young, and Horrocks v. Rigby, infra, p. 532. The effect of The Judicature Act would seem to be to abolish any distinction, in effect, between set-off and cross-demands so far as the right to recover is concerned, though any cross-demand which could not formerly be pleaded as a set-off must now be pleaded by way of counter-claim.

A distinction has, however, been recognized which is still of importance in reference to the disposition of the costs where a counter-claim is set up, not by way of a defence against the plaintiff's cause of action. Mr Pitt Lewis, in his work on County Court Practice, quoted with approval by Cockburn, C.J., in Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. D. 577, says:—"A set-off would seem to be of a different nature from a defence (qu. counter-claim) inasmuch as a set-off appears to shew a debt balancing the debt claimed by the plaintiff, and thus leaving nothing due to him; while a counter-claim, it would seem, consists of a cross-claim, not necessarily extinguishing or destroying the plaintiff's demand. In other words a set-off appears to consist of a defence to the original claim of the plaintiff; a counter-claim is the assertion of a separate and independent demand, which does not answer or destroy the original claim of the plaintiff. The right to rely on a set-off has long existed. The right to set up a counter-claim was first given by the Judicature Acts." See also Gathercole v. Smith, 7 Q. B. D. 626; Pellas v. Neptune Marine Ass. Co., 5 C. P. D. 34; and notes to The Judicature Act, s. 16 (d), supra, p. 41, and s. 74, supra, p. 261.

Under the Jud. Act.

As to striking out pleadings.

The terms of the present Rule are wide enough to allow a defendant to set up any cross-demand, whether connected with the plaintiff's claim or not, and whether it sounds in damages or not; but the Rule must be read in connection with Rules 124, 134, 136, 137, as to striking out pleadings: Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802.

The Rule is only one of procedure, designed to prevent the necessity of bringing a cross-action where a cross-demand can conveniently be tried in the original action. It does not give rights as against third parties, or confer rights of set-off between the parties which did not exist before. Thus claims against a company held by a director and bonâ fide for value assigned to a third person, were held not subject to be set-off against damages payable under an order, afterwards obtained by the liquidator of the company against the director: Re Milan Tramways Co., Ex p. Theys, 22 Ch. D. 122; affirmed in appeal, 25 Ch. D. 387: see Mersey Steel, etc., Co. v. Naylor, 9 Q. B. D. 648; 9 App. Cas. 434. In an action for calls by the liquidator of a company, a claim by a shareholder against the company was not allowed to be set off: Re Whitehouse, 9 Ch. D. 595. A set-off claimed against arrears of pension, against which, by statute, no set-off was permissible, was disallowed: Gathercole v. Smith, 7 Q. B. D. 626.

In an action by a trustee for a debt due to him as such trustee, or as agent for another person, the defendant may set up as a defence to the extent of the claim that the cestui que trust is indebted to him in a greater sum for unliquidated damages: Bankes v. Jarvis, 1903, 1 K. B. 549; 88 L. T. 20. In that case the defence was set up in the form of a counter-claim, but quære, whether it should not have been set up as an equitable defence, as it might have been under the old practice: Ib.

Debt set-off must be mutual.

The right of set-off only applies to mutual debts, viz., debts due and owing to and by the same parties: therefore a defendant cannot set-off a debt due by the plaintiff to him and another person in equal shares: Bourcier v. Paxson, 6 Q. B. D. 540; see also Federal Bank v. Harrison, 10 P. R. 271; 20 C. L. T. 194.

In an action by a receiver of a landlord's estate for rent due the landlord the defendant set up a set-off of money due by the landlord; it was held that the action by the receiver being in the interest of incumbrancers on the lands, the set-off could not be relied on: Mullarkey v. O'Donohue, 16 L. R. Ir. 365. So a receiver of an estate was held not entitled to set-off against a debt due by him as executor, a debt due to him as receiver, notwithstanding that both claims arose in respect of the same estate: Nelson v. Roberts, 69 L. T. 352.

Where a set-off is claimed or pleaded in defence to an action for debt, the debt sued on is not thereby extinguished to the extent of the debt sought to be set-off, but two separate and distinct debts remain until judgment: Re Hirom Maxim Lamp Co., 1903, 1 Ch. 70.

A claim for freight cannot be set-off against a claim for damages for wrongfully taking possession of the goods in respect of which the freight is claimed: Lord's Trustee v. Great Eastern Ry., 1908, 1 K. B. 195; 97 L. T. 760; 1908, 2 K. B. 54; 98 L. T. 910, such a demand would be the subject of a counter-claim.

A debt due by a firm to a deceased person's estate cannot be set-off against a legacy bequeathed by the deceased to members of the firm: Turner v. Turner, 1911, 1 Ch. 716; 104 L. T. 901.

On the other hand a cross-claim which is really a set-off, though set up in the pleadings as a counter-claim, will, nevertheless, be treated by the Court as a set-off—and if the defendant's set-off equals the plaintiff's claim, the action must be dismissed, and if it exceeds it, the defendant is entitled to judgment for the excess: Jud. Act, s. 128, supra; Gotes v. Scogram, 19 O. L. R. 216; Girardot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 162, 201.

A County Court judgment was allowed to be set off against a judgment of a Superior Court: Sandys v. Louis, W. N. 1875, 249; 1 Chsrl. Cb. Ca. 81.

Action of trover and for goods sold and delivered. Defendant was not allowed to set-off a claim against a third party, though such third party was the principal of the plaintiff: Tagart v. Moreus, 36 W. R. 469.

Counter-claim.

Counter-claim.—The mode in which a defendant proceeds to obtain the cross-relief contemplated by the Rule is by counter-claim, which has been defined as "a pleading where a defendant claims some remedy or relief either against the plaintiff alone, or against the plaintiff together with some other person or persons, whether already parties to the action or not": see Haynes' Chy. Pr. 77, and per Blackburn, J., in Treleaven v. Bray, 45 L. J. Chy. 115.

A defendant is not bound to make his cross-claims by counter-claim, but may assert them by cross-action: Adamson v. Tuff, 44 L. T. 420; see note to sec. 16 (d) of the Act, supra, p. 41; Neale v. Clarke, 4 Ex. D. 295; and a counter-claim can only be maintained where a cross-action might be brought: Birmingham Estates v. Smith, 13 Ch. D. 506.

But where an action and cross-action have been brought there is power, in a proper case, to stay one, and compel the plaintiff in it to proceed by way of counter-claim in the other action: see Irwin v. Sperry, 11 P. R. 229; Conmee v. C. P. Ry., Ib. 149.

A counter-claim cannot set up two distinct causes of action, unless they arise out of the same transaction: Parke v. Pain, 15 O. L. R. 187; Stroud v. Lawson, 1898, 2 Q. B. 44.

The Courts should give a liberal interpretation to these Rules, which were no doubt passed with the intention of settling in one litigation all questions arising out of the subject matter of the dispute: per Brett, L.J., in Turner v. Hednesford Gas Co., 3 Ex. D. 151.

Plaintiff must be party.

It is of the essence of a counter-claim that it claims relief against the plaintiff, either alone, or in conjunction with some other person. There can be no counter-claim against a co-defendant alone: Cope v. Crichton, 18 P. R. 462; Warner v. Twining, 24 W. R. 536; McLay v. Sharp, W. N. 1877, 216; Benecke v. Craddock, W. N. 1881, 54;—Sheppard v. Beane, 2 Ch. D. 223, is not to be considered an authority: see Harris v. Gamble, 6 Ch. D. 748; Furness v. Booth, 4 Ch. D. 586. So there can be no counter-claim against a third party, unless a claim is made against plaintiff along with such third party: Dear v. Sworder, 4 Ch. D. 476; Romann v. Brodreckt, 9 P. R. 2; Barber v. Blaiberg, 19 Ch. D. 473; and Rule 113. Relief against co-defendants and third parties alone can only be obtained under the third party procedure: see Rules 165, et seq.

A counter-claim irregularly filed, not including a claim against a plaintiff, may be struck out on motion: Cope v. Crichton, 18 P. R. 462.

The relator in an action in the nature of an information at the suit of the Attorney-General is not a plaintiff, and a counter-claim cannot be filed against him: Atty.-Gen. Ex rel. Russell v. Vaughan Road Co., 14 P. R. 516.

A counter-claim may be set up by the Crown in a petition of right: Thomas v. The Queen, W. N. 1875, 218; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 71. But a claim against the Crown which would be the proper subject of a petition of right, cannot be set up by way of counter-claim in an action brought by the Attorney-General: Attorney-General v. Hargrave, 11 O. L. R. 550.

Where by a statute a particular mode of procedure is provided for obtaining a particular relief, that mode must be pursued, and procedure by a counter-claim will be improper: Pinto v. Badman, 7 T. L. R. 317.

It is not necessary that the amount claimed by the defendant should be equal to the claim of the plaintiff: Mostyn v. West Mostyn Co., 1 C. P. D. 145.

A counter-claim can only be filed while the action is in esse; after dismissal, or discontinuance of the action a counter-claim can no longer be filed: The Salybia, 1910, P. 25; 101 L. T. 959; although the dismissal of an action after the filing of a counter-claim will not preclude the defendant from proceeding with it. In England R. 249 expressly so provides, but there is no similar provision in these Rules, but see post, p. 524.

Counter-claim against Plaintiff Alone.—Where a counter-claim is brought against a plaintiff alone, it is not necessary that the claim of the defendant should be connected with the plaintiff's original cause of action; it may relate to any matter which might be the subject of an independent action: Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. D. 576; and Quinn v. Hession, 40 L. T. 70, where it was held that the words, "relating to or connected with the original subject of the cause or matter," in sec. 16 (d), of the Act only qualify that portion of the section with which they are in immediate connection, viz.; a counter-claim which seeks relief against a third party as well as the plaintiff: see also Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174; Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802. But the defendant cannot set up by way of counter-claim against the claim of a plaintiff, suing only in his individual capacity, claims against him personally, and also as executor: Macdonald v. Carington, 4 C. P. D. 28: unless both plaintiff's and defendant's claims arise in reference to the estate of which the plaintiff is executor: see Rule 71. Rule 115.

The plaintiff may answer the defendant's counter-claim by a counter-claim: see Renton v. *Nevill*e, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 446; Toke v. Andrews, infra; which may be in respect of a cause of action arising after the issue of the writ, but arising out of the same transaction as the counter-claim: Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428; but not if the ground of claim is independent and arose before the issue of the writ: see Rule 157, and James v. Page, 85 L. T. Jour. 157. In such latter case the new claim may be raised by amendment of the statement of claim: Ib.

A counter-claim against a foreign plaintiff may be for a cause of action for which the defendant could not obtain leave to serve a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction: Griendtoveen v. Hamlyn, 8 T. L. R. 231; but semble, not in the case of a plaintiff a foreign sovereign, as semble a foreign sovereign only submits to the jurisdiction as to matters arising out of the claim: S. African Republic v. Compagnie Franco Belge, 1897, 2 Ch. at p. 490; 77 L. T. 555; S. African Republic v. Transvaal Northern Ry., 67 L. J. Chy. 92.

There may be separate counter-claims against two plaintiffs severally, though they sue jointly: Manchester, etc., Ry. Co. v. Brooks, 2 Ex. D. 243.

Counter-claim against Plaintiff and Others.—Where a counter-claim is made against the plaintiff and another person it is subject to certain restrictions. Against the plaintiff and others.

(1) The relief sought to be obtained against him must relate specifically to, or be connected with, the subject matter of the action: Padwick v. Scott, 2 Ch. D. 736; see Harris v. Gamble, 6 Ch. D. 748; Quin v. Hession, and Barber v. Blaiberg, supra, p. 520.

(2) The counter-claim must, as before mentioned, claim relief against the plaintiff along with such other person: Rule 113; Trelevaen v. Bray, 45 L. J. Chy. 113; 1 Ch. D. 176; Dear v. Sworder, 1 Ch. D. 476; and Harris v. Gamble, supra; Turner v. Hednesford Gas Co., 3 Ex. D. 145.

Where the defendant and a third person have a joint cause of action against the plaintiff, even though arising out of the same circumstances that give rise to the plaintiff's cause of action, the defendant cannot set up his cause of action by counter-claim making the third person a defendant to it: Pender v. Taddei, 1898, 1 Q. B. 798. Where relief is not claimed against the third party along with the plaintiff, the proceedings must be under Rule 165: Central African Trading Co. v. Grove, 40 L. T. 540; 48 L. J. Ex. 510. It is not enough that the counter-claim be in form, if it be not in substance, for relief against the third person along with the plain ; thus where the matter of the counter-claim may be set up against the plaintiff as a defence without the third party, and the plaintiff is not interested in what is claimed from the third party, the counter-claim is improper: Romann v. Brodrecht, 9 P. R. 2; Torrance v. Livingstone, 10 P. R. 29.

Furthermore, it has been held, perhaps under the terms of C. R. 250 now Rule 114, that a third party cannot counterclaim against the defendant who brought him in: Street v. Gover, 2 Q. B. D. 498; Alcoy v. Greenhill, 1896, 1 Ch. 19; 73 L. T. 452; and such a pleading may be struck out on a summary application: General Electric Co. v. Victoria Electric Light Co., 16 P. R. 476, 529, which distinguished Green v. Thornton, 9 C. L. T. 139, where a third party, made with the plaintiff a defendant to a counter-claim, was allowed to amend a reply to the defendant's counter-claim, by asserting another counter-claim against the defendant, but this was said to have been allowed because, although called a counter-claim, it was in substance a defence: see 16 P. R. 481, 584; see Rule 114, and notes. In Evans v. Buck, 4 Ch. D. 432, it was held that a person cannot be brought in, as a defendant to a counter-claim, against whom relief is claimed in one of two inconsistent alternatives: see note to Rule 67.

In an action by the assignee of a chose in action, it was held that the defendant could not counter-claim for damages for breach of the contract assigned, against plaintiff and his assignors, but that he must be limited to setting up by way of defence any claim for damages which he might have as against the assignors: Sovereign Bank v. Parsons, 18 O. L. R. 665, see S. C. at a subsequent stage sub nom. Parsons v. Sovereign Bank, 1913, A. C. 60; 107 L. T. 572.

The counter-claim need not be for the same cause of action against all the defendants to it: Central African, etc., Co. v. Grove, 27 W. R. 933; 40 L. T. 540;; Turner v. Hednesford Gas Co., 3 Ex. D. 145.

A defendant is not entitled to set up in his counter-claim a hypothetical case for relief against a third party: Sackville v. Pocey, 18 C. L. J. 14.

Semble. A defendant may serve a third party out of the jurisdiction with a counter-claim: see Rule 24, note, p. 347.

Where a defendant counter-claims against the plaintiff as liable alone, the plaintiff cannot have added another person who, he alleges, is also liable as to a part of the counter-claim: Eyre v. Moreing, W. N. 1884, 58.

Counter-claim only where separate action would lie.

Counter-claim only where a Separate Action would Lie.—In any case, a counter-claim can only be set up where an action might be brought: Birminghom Estates v. Smith, 13 Ch. D. 506, 508.

A counter-claim has therefore been disallowed where it set up a debt alleged to have been incurred by the plaintiff when an infant, and not ratified under Lord Tenderden's Act: Rawley v. Rawley, 1 Q. B. D. 460. So in an action by an administrator for the balance of an intestate's banking account, a debt due from the intestate on a note which became due after his death was not allowed to be set off, because an administration order had been before action obtained of which the defendants had notice; and under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, s. 14, equity would restrain the defendant from proceeding on the note, leaving him to prove for it in the administration proceedings: Newoll v. National Provincial Bank of England, 1 C. P. D. 496; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 82; see also Montieth v. Wolsh, 10 P. R. 162. So also, where the claim set up in the counter-claim had been extinguished by the obtaining of a judgment in another Division, which judgment the defendant was not at liberty to enforce without leave, it was disallowed: Birmingham Estates v. Smith, 13 Ch. D. 506; see also Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174, where a counter-claim for damagee for forcihle entry under the Statute of Richard 2 failed, because that Act gave no civil remedy. So also, where a counter-claim wae hy a eurety againet the plaintiff and third partiee (the dehtore), to require the plaintiff to firet proceed egainet the debtors (they heing ahle to pay), and for indemnity from the dehtors, it was disallowed: Federal Bank v. Harrison, 10 P. R. 271. Rule 115.

See also Re Milan Tramways Co., ex parte Theys, 22 Ch. D. 122, affirmed in appeal 25 Ch. D. 587; followed in Re Gillespie, 54 L. J. Q. B. 342; Gathercole v. Smith, 7 Q. B. D. 626; Beatty v. Mair, 10 L. R. Ir. 208.

Matter which would be the proper subject of n petition of right cannot be set up hy way of counter-claim in an action hy the Attorney-Generel: Attorney-General v. Hargrave, 11 O. L. R. 530. Counter-claim against Crown.

As to when a counter-claim is neceesary to enable a defendant to obtain an injunction or a receiver against the plaintiff: eee notes to sec. 17, supra, p. 62. Injunction by counter-claim.

Counter-claim when Regarded as a Separate Action. — Whether e counter-claim is to he considered merely ns a defence, or as something like a separnte action, has heen much discussed. It is not sn action: Irwin v. Brown, 12 P. R. 639; hut see Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349, though hy the terme of the Rule 116 it has the same effect as a statement of claim in a cross-action, to enehle judgment to be given on both claim, and counter-claim: eee Lumsden v. Winter, 8 Q. B. D. 650, and it wes early viewed as in the nature of en independent action in dealing with the question of the costs of it: see Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. D. 577; Faines v. Bromley, 6 Q. B. D. 695, and notes, supra, p. 519, and to Jud. Act, s. 74 supra, p. 260 et seq.; Waring v. Pearman, 32 W. R. 429; 35 L. T. 633; and now in England it has practically been decided that, though not a cross-action, everything done in respect of the proceedings upon it must be treated as if it were: McGowan v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 469; Sykes v. Sacerdoti, 15 Q. B. D. 425; Amon v. Bobett, 22 Q. B. D. 548; Neck v. Taylor, 1893; 1 Q. B. 560. This result is pertly hesed upon the amended langusgs of Eng. (1883) R. 199, which says that a counter-claim "shell have the eame effect as a cross-nction, etc." The corresponding Ont. Rule 116 reeds, "a counter-claim shall be treated as an action so es to enahle the Court to pronounce a final judgment upon all matters set up therein"; but the Ontario Rules are in the direction of regarding proceedings on the counter-claim as independent of those in the action: see notes to Rules 114, 116, 117, 121. See also Dominion Burglary Guarantee Co. v. Wood, 3 O. L. R. 365.

In Stumore v. Campbell, 1892, 1 Q. B. 314, it was hcid that the judgments of plaintiff and defendant on claim and counter-claim respectively constitute two independent dehts, either of which may he garnished, notwithstanding that the other party's judgment may he for a larger sum. It would of course he otherwise where an order is made to set off one against the other.

A counter-claim has also been viewed as a cross-nction for other purposes. For instance, relief mey he given upon it in respect of a cause of action that nrose after the issue of the writ in the original action: Rule 159; Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174; McGowan v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 469; see also Chamberlin v. Chamberlin, 11 P. R. 501.

In accordance with the principle of Beddoll v. Maitland, it has further been now decided (and the decision was confirmed in England by an express Rule, Eng. (1883) R. 249), that the discontinuance of an action by the plaintiff does not put an end to the counterclaim: McGowan v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 464, overruling Vavasseur v. Krupp, 15 Ch. D. 474; The Queen v. Judge of City of London Court, 1891, 2 Q. B. 71; that a counter-claim may be revived on the death of the defendant, independently of the revivor of the action by the plaintiff: Andrew v. Aitken, 30 W. R. 701; 46 L. T. 689; and that a plaintiff may, in reply to a counter-claim, set up a counter-claim against defendant: Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428; Renton v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 446; see also 19 C. L. J. 162; but a counter-claim cannot be filed after the action has been discontinued, or dismissed: The Salybia, 1910, P. 25; 101 L. T. 359.

Where the plaintiff's claim was dismissed for default in compliance with an order, after a counter-claim had been filed, the defendant was allowed to proceed with his counter-claim by motion for judgment as by default of pleading thereto by the plaintiff: Higgins v. Scott, 21 Q. B. D. 10, in note to Rule 121; Roberts v. Booth, 1893, 1 Ch. 52; 67 L. T. 646; these cases in England have the support of the express of Eng. (1883), R. 249 (not adopted in Ontario), provided that where the defendant sets up a counter-claim, and the plaintiff's action becomes stayed, discontinued or dismissed, the counter-claim may nevertheless be proceeded with, but it is probable that in Ontario the decision would be the same without an express Rule. See also Bildt v. Foy, 9 T. L. R. 34, 83; Jones v. Macaulay, 1891, 1 Q. B. 221. But where the counter-claim is one which the defendant could only set up by reason of the plaintiff, a foreigner, having come within the jurisdiction and sued the defendant, if the plaintiff moves to discontinue his action the defendant is in the position of a plaintiff quoad the counter-claim, and will not be permitted to continue it, as a term of the plaintiff being allowed to discontinue: Dominion Burglary Guarantee Co. v. Wood, 3 O. L. R. 365.

Where a claim can properly be the subject of a set-off it should be set up as a defence, and not by way of counter-claim, and if set up by counter-claim, even though it is allowed, the defendant will not be entitled to any more costs than if it had been pleaded simply as a defence: Girordot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 162, 201.

In respect to security for costs also, a defendant who sets up a counter-claim becomes to some extent in the position of a plaintiff in a cross-action: Winterfield v. Brodnum, 3 Q. B. D. 324; and, when out of the jurisdiction, was in one case ordered to give security for costs: The J. Fisher, 2 P. D. 115; but a defendant will not be ordered to give security where his counter-claim is in respect of the same subject-matter as the plaintiff's claim: Mapleson v. Masini, 5 Q. B. D. 144; see also Shepherd v. Hayball, 13 Gr. 681; or is in effect a defence: Neck v. Taylor, 1893, 1 Q. B. 560; and where he admits the plaintiff's claim, and sets up a counter-claim founded on a distinct claim, he cannot demand security for costs from plaintiff if out of the jurisdiction: quare, however, where he sets up a counter-claim for an amount greater than the plaintiff's claim; see Winterfield v. Brodnum, supra; see also notes to Rule 382.

Rule 113. Evidence.

Where the issues of fact in the claim and counter-claim were identical, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to adduce in reply to the counter-claim fresh evidence which would have been material to the original case: Green v. Sevin, 13 Ch. D. 589; see also, as to the evidence where claim and counter-claim are tried together: Re Woodfine, Thompson v. Woodfine, 38 L. T. 753.

Co-defendants to a counter-claim cannot examine one another for discovery: Molloy v. Kilby, 15 Ch. D. 162.

Form.

Form of Counter-claim.—A counter-claim and statement of defence must be included in the same pleading, and the same rules apply in many respects to a counter-claim as to a statement of claim: see Holloway v. York, 25 W. R. 627, and Form 13; H. & L. Forms, No. 127.

A counter-claim is subject to the same rules as a claim in respect to the causes of action which may be joined: see Compton v. Preston, 21 Ch. D. 188; Hunter v. Stark, 17 P. R. 47.

By the express terms of the Rules, the relief prayed for by way of counter-claim must be specifically stated: Rule 145; but a counter-claim under these Rules is not governed by as strict regulations as in England under Eng. Rule 243: see Crowe v. Barnicot, 6 Ch. D. 753; Hillman v. Mayhew, 24 W. R. 485; but see Lees v. Patterson, 26 W. R. 399; 7 Ch. D. 866.

Under these Rules it would seem that it is not necessary, by separate numbering of paragraphs, headings, or otherwise, to distinguish the defence from the counter-claim. It will be sufficient if the second style of cause when required by Rule 113 is added, and the facts on which the defendant relies, whether by way of defence or counter-claim, are concisely stated and without prolixity (Rule 141.) A prayer for the counter-relief desired should be added: Rule 145. Then, by analogy to the decision in Watson v. Hawkins, 24 W. R. 884, if the facts stated and proved show either a defence, or a right to any relief prayed for by way of counter-claim, the defendants will be entitled to the benefit of such defence, or to such relief: see also Newell v. National P. Bank, 1 C. P. D. 501. If relief, by way of counter-claim, whether general or otherwise, is not asked, it will be taken that it is not wanted: Holloway v. York, 25 W. R. 627.

Defence to counter-claim.

Defence to Counter-claim. — The defence to a counter-claim must be delivered within ten days after the service of the counter-claim: Rule 114.

Besides delivering a defence, the plaintiff in the action may set up a counter-claim arising out of the same transaction as the defendant's counter-claim: Renton v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 448; to which the same rules would apparently apply as to the original counter-claim. But the right to deliver a counter-claim to a counter-claim is confined to the plaintiff in the action, and does not extend to any co-defendant, or third person who is made defendant to a defendant's counter-claim.

The plaintiff in the action would also seem entitled to resort to the third party procedure in regard to any claim set up against him by counter-claim, and obtain leave to serve a third party against whom he claims indemnity, contribution, or relief over, in respect of the counter-claim: Levi v. Anglo-Continental, 1902, 2 K. B. 481; 86 L. T. 857.

Counter-claims allowed.

Counter-claims Allowed.—Examples.—The following are examples of counter-claims allowed to be set up, as raising questions which can conveniently be tried with the plaintiff's claim in the action:

Action by a stock-broker for price of shares. Counter-claim for frauduient misrepresentationa ns to the values of the shares: Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Ch. 73; Evans v. Gann, W. N. 1875, 199; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 70; see also Lee v. McMahon, 2 Ont. 654.

Action for price of iron. Counter-claim for inferiority of iron. Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 73; or non-delivery of part: Midland Ry. Co. v. Ontario Rolling Mills, 2 Ont. 1.

Action for price of coals. Counter-claim for non-delivery of part of the coals: Norton v. Merriman, W. N. 1875, 219; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 80; aee Fulton v. U. C. Furniture Co., 32 C. P. 422; 20 C. L. J. 11.

Action for negligent construction of ship. Counter-claim for extras due beyond the contract price: Trinacria v. Richardson, W. N. 1875, 219; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 74.

Action by builder. Counter-claim for breach of covenant in building contract: Trevena v. Watts, W. N. 1875, 250; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 79.

Action by lessor for rent. Counter-claim for an alleged debt, and damnges for non-performance of lessor's ngreement: Atwood v. Miller, W. N. 1876, 11; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 82; see Atkinson v. Ellison. W. N. 1875, 199; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 69.

Action of ejectment for non-payment of rent. Counter-claim for rectification of lease so as to atate terms by which no rent would be due: Carew v. Christopher, 10 L. R. Ir. 38.

Action for ejectment by heir against widow. Counter-claim for dower: Glass v. Glass, 9 P. R. 14.

Action for recovery of land and mesne profits. Counter-claim for damages for illegal distress against plaintiff and his bailiff: Dockstoder v. Phipps, 9 P. R. 204.

Action for specific performance. Counter-claim for damages and rectifiestion of agreement, and specific performance of the agreement as rectified: Dunlop Tire Co. v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 249.

A counter-claim was allowed claiming against an nssignee a set-off of damagea due from the assignor: Young v. Kitchin, 3 Ex. D. 127; Exchange Bank v. Stinson, 32 C. P. 158; see Pellas v. Neptune Marine Ass. Co., 5 C. P. D. 34.

Where A. sued B. on a bill nnd B. defended by alleging that A. was really trustee for C. who owed B. money; B. was allowed to bring in C. and claim set-off: Macdonald v. Bode, W. N. 1876, 23; hut this case was disapproved of in Toggart v. Marcus, 36 W. R. 469; see supra, p. 519.

Action to establish a will. Counter-claim propounding two earlier wills, under which defendant claimed in the event of the last in dste being invalid: Appleman v. Appleman, 12 P. R. 138.

Action by nn executor for detention of the goods of his testator. Counter-claim for funeral expenses paid by the defendant, and a debt due to him from the testator before his death: Wotkin v. Newcomen, 1 Cab. & El. 113.

Rule 115.

Action for the recovery of land. Counter-claim for damages in respect of a trespass by the plaintiff on the lands in question, and for an assault: Goring v. Cameron, 10 P. R. 496.

Action by lessor for ejectment, and forfeiture of lease. Counter-claim for relief from the forfeiture: Wardens of Cholmeley's School v. Sewell, 1893, 2 Q. B. 254; 69 L. T. 118.

Action for money lent. Counter-claim for money paid by defendant, and for work done by him for the plaintiff and another, (without joining the other person): Eyre v. Moreing, W. N. 1884, 58.

Actions by executors to charge a married woman's estate with a debt to their testator. Counter-claim by her and her husband, also a defendant, for money belonging to the wife, not part of her separate estate, and for chattels in the possession of the testator at his death, and alleged to be the property of the husband: Hodson v. Mochi, 8 Ch. D. 569.

Action by cestuis que trustent against a surviving trustee to make good purchase money of testator's share of a partnership business, allowed to remain outstanding. Counter-claim to be indemnified by all cestuis que trustent, including the plaintiffs, as the retention of the money by the surviving partner was by their consent: Re Holmes, Wright v. Weatherhead, W. N. 1883, 110.

Action propounding will of defendant's wife, who had obtained a protection order. Counter-claim to set aside the protection order as fraudulent, pronounce against the will, and for letters of administration: Mudge v. Adams, 50 L. J. Pro. 49; 17 C. L. J. 369.

A mortgagor was allowed to set up, in a foreclosure suit, a claim to open signed accounts: Eyre v. Hughes, 2 Ch. D. 148.

Action by a trustee in bankruptcy for unpaid price of a chattel purchased from the bankrupt. Counter-claim for fraudulent representation made by the bankrupt on the sale: Jack v. Kipping, 9 Q. B. D. 113.

M. and C. are partners with B. in London and Honduras; the two firms are separate. Actions by M. and C. against the London firm as agents of the Honduras firm for an account. B. had a decree in Honduras for the taking of partnership accounts there, and the London firm asked by counter-claim for the accounts of the Honduras firm to be taken: Mutrie v. Binney, 35 Ch. D. 614; 36 W. R. 131.

Irregular counter-claim.

Striking Out Counter-claim.—Where a so-called counter-claim is irregular by not claiming relief against the plaintiff: Cope v. Crichton, 18 P. R. 462; or is otherwise not authorized by the Rules: General Electric Co. v. Victoria Electric Light Co., 16 P. R. 476, 529, it may be struck out on motion, notwithstanding that the party moving to strike it out has pleaded to it and the case has come on for trial: Cope v. Crichton, supra. See also Barber v. Blaiberg, 19 Ch. D. 473.

Counter-claims inconvenient to be tried.

In order to prevent the abuse of the extensive powers of counter-claim given to defendants, the Court has a discretion under Rule 137 to consider whether the counter-claim should be proceeded with, or struck out, leaving the defendants to make it the subject of an independent action.

Rule 115.

There is jurisdiction to stay proceedings in a cross-action, and allow the claim to be set up by counter-claim in another action, yet it should only be done when the points at issue are the same: Adamson v. Tuff, 44 L. T. 420; see Irwin v. Sperry, 11 P. R. 229; Conmee v. Can. Pac. Ry., 11 P. R. 149.

Scandalous counter-claim.

Where the Court was of opinion that a counter-claim was not bona fide, and it contained scandalous charges, it was struck out: Lee v. Ashwin, 1 T. L. R. 291; see Rules 136, 137.

Striking out counter-claims.

Striking Out.—For the principles upon which the Court acts in striking out counter-claims, see Naylor v. Farrer, infra, Padwick v. Scott, 2 Ch. D. 736; Deer v. Sworder, 4 Ch. D. 476; Harris v. Gamble 6 Ch. D. 748; Birmingham Estates v. Smith, 13 Ch. D. 506; Rotheram v. Priest, 28 W. R. 277; also the examplee infra.

An application to strika out a counter-claim: see Rule 137, may, in England, be made in Court: eee Dear v. Sworder, 4 Ch. D. 476; Huggons v. Tweed, 10 Ch. D. 359; hut, as a general thing, ehould be made in Chambers: eee Naylor v. Farrer, 26 W. R. 809; and Coe's Prac. in Cham. 78. In Ontario it may, and uenally should, be made before the Maeter in Chambers, or other officer having liks jurisdiction: see Rules 207 (4), 208. It should be made hefore trial. In Lynch v. Macdonold, 37 Ch. D. 227, it was soid that it was too late to apply after reply (the period fixed by the Eng. Rule), hut doubtless also at the trial the Judge has power to deal with the pleadinge and the action as he may deem proper: see Barber v. Blaiberg, 19 Ch. D. 473.

The decision of a Judge in suon a matter, if appealed from, will rarely be interfered with: Huggons v. Tweed, 10 Ch. D. 359.

In Naylor v. Farrer, Jessel, M.R., said that, in his opinion, uoder the Eoglish Rule, a defendant might eet up any number of cross-claims. There was no limit laid down in that Rule either to their number or nature; but it was left to the discretion of the Court or a Judge to limit them, otherwise fifty causes of action of the most diverse nature might be joined together and eet up, and witnesses of all kinde called in support of each. How would it be possible for ths Court to try all those in one action? There muet also bs some limit to the character of the claim set up. Suppoee, for instaoce, an action for account brought by a surviving partner againet the widow, who wae also ths executrix of the other, to which the widow set up a counter-claim for damages for breach of promiee of marriage, could that hs said to be a counter-claim which could he conveniently disposed of in the pending action? It was impossible. The Judge must exercise the diecretion given to him hy the Rule in allowing or rejecting a counter-claim.

In Bartholomew v. Rawlings, W. N. 1876, 56; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 32. Archibald, J., said: "There ie no doubt whatever that a defendaot entitled to set up any counter-claim that is not so incongruous as t be incapable of being cooveniently tried with ths original claim." The question of the convenience of trial depends greatly upon whether the subject of the counter-claim is germane to the subject of the actioo. But though a couoter-claim he not in relation to matters foreign to the subject of the action, still the fact that it will oecessitate a long account, and thus unduly delay the action, may furnish grounds for excluding it: Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802. See also Delobbel-Flipo v. Varty, 1893, 1 Q. B. 663; Hawkins v. Mybrea, 3 T. L. R. 91.

In Canadian Securities Co. v. Prentice, 9 P. R. 324, Cameron, J., said: "I have assumed that allowing or disallowing a counterclaim, where third parties are to be brought in, is matter of discretion, not a course to be exercised arbitrarily, but upon consideration of all the circumstances, including rights involved in the counter-claim, and the question of delay, and convenience of trial. In jury cases there can be no question that much difficulty may arise by the mixing up of different claims—if I may use the term "mixing" in such connection—and cross or counter-claims in the same action; and unless the clear legal rights of the defendant for his protection against the plaintiff's action would seem to require it, counter-claims ought not to be favoured." Rule 115.

A counter-claim for damages arising out of the same subject matter or contract as the plaintiff is proceeding upon, is therefore in general, proper. So also a counter-claim in the nature of a cross-demand, pecuniary or otherwise, unconnected with the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim, provided there is no inconvenience in having a trial of both in the same action.

A counter-claim, like any other pleading, may be struck out for scandal, or if it tend to prejudice or embarrass the fair trial of the action, or if it be frivolous or vexatious: Rules 136, 137; also Lee v. Ashwin, 1 T. L. R. 291.

See Monteith v. Walsh, 10 P. R. 162, in note to Rule 608.

Where the counter-claim is in form against both plaintiff and third parties a Judge cannot properly strike it out on a preliminary motion, or of his own motion, because he considers the plaintiff is not properly made a party to it: Thompson v. Big Cities Realty Co., 21 O. L. R. 394; unless the counter-claim on its face is open to objection under Rule 124; if he considers it cannot be conveniently tried with the original action, semble, he may order it to be tried separately: see Rules 66, 67, 73 and Rule 2; and where a counter-claim is struck out as not being conveniently triable with the original action, execution on the judgment in the original action may be stayed until the question raised by the counter-claim shall have been otherwise tried or disposed of: Thompson v. Big Cities Realty Co., supra; Auerbach v. Hamilton, 19 O. L. R. 570; and see Rule 117.

Counter-claims Disallowed—Examples:—Counter-claims will not be allowed to be set up which cannot be the subject of an action: see Rawley v. Rawley, and other cases, pp. 522-3, or which raise questions not capable of being conveniently tried in the action. Counter-claims not allowed.

The following are examples of counter-claims held not capable of being conveniently tried in the action:

Action of assault and battery. Counter-claim for seduction of the defendant's daughter: Coppeleus v. Brown, W. N. 1875, 231; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 77.

Action for assault. A counter-claim for breach of agreement to repair a house was struck out, though an endeavour was made to connect the causes of action by showing that the parties were talking about the state of the house at the time of the assault: Lee v. Colyer, W. N. 1876, 8; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 86.

Action for libel consisting in the circulation of a letter by defendant among the shareholders of a colliery company. The plaintiff was one of the directors in the company, who was charged in the letter with conspiracy and fraud. Counterclaim for damages for loss sustained in respect of shares bought on false representations. Liodley, J., said: "This is one of those cases where it would be very difficult to keep the jury from mixing up the two claims." The counter-claim was therefore struck out without prejudice to any action defendant might bring, and the plaintiff was put on terms not to issue execution on any judgment he might obtain without leave of the Court or a Judge: Nicholson v. Jackson, W. N. 1876, 38; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 37.

Action for slander. Counter-claim for assault which was also pleaded in mitigation of damages for the slander: Greer v. Hunter, 11 C. L. T. 281.

Action for the specific performance by S. of an agreement for purchase by him of certain patent rights. H. & N., who were made co-defendants as claiming some interest in the subject-matter of the contract, alleged that the plaintiff had agreed to sell to them, and not to S., and that they had afterwards agreed to sell to S. By counter-claim H. & N. asked for specific performance by the plaintiff of his agreement with them, and by S. of his subsequent agreement with them. The counter-claim was excluded: McLoy v. Sharp, W. N. 1877, 216.

Action for specific performance. Counter-claim for conspiracy against the plaintiff, and others, all but one resident out of Ontario: Dunlop v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 249.

Action against trustees of a settlement for breach of trust. Counter-claim against the husband of a plaintiff (also a plaintiff) for £45, due on a bill of exchange: Fendall v. O'Connell, 52 L. T. 538.

Action for protection of a trust fund. Counter-claim for libel: S. African Republic v. Compagnie Franco-Belge, 1897, 2 Ch. 487; followed in Dunlop v. Ryckmon, supra.

Action against an indorser on a promissory note. Defence, that it was to be paid out of a certain agency in which the defendant and the maker of the note were engaged, and that the plaintiff by libel and slander of the defendant had prevented that business from going on. Counter-claim for damages for the libel and slander: Central Bank v. Osborne, 12 P. R. 160; for the converse of this case: see Sill v. Alexander, 2 O. W. N. 23, 401.

Action for foreclosure. Counter-claim for damages by reason of false and depreciative statements in regard to the value of the mortgaged premises: Odell v. Bennett, 13 P. R. 10; see also Lynch v. Macdonald, 37 Ch. D. 227.

Action to recover land for non-payment of rent. Counter-claim not connected with plaintiff's demand, in the absence of special circumstances disallowed: Hilldige v. O'Farrell, 8 L. R. Ir. 158.

Action by A. against B. for trover of goods which C. assigned by bill of sale to A., and which B. had seized. Counter-claim by B. alleging a bill of sale from C. to him, and claiming relief against C. upon it. So far as the claim against C. was concerned, it was held not sufficiently connected with the original cause of action: Barber v. Blaiberg, 19 Ch. D. 473.

Action by liquidator for calls against a newspaper proprietor. Counter-claim for price of advertisements and damages: Government Security Invest. Co. v. Dempsey, 50 L. J. Q. B. 199.

Action for damages for negligence. Counter-claim for libel: Mc-Lean v. Hamilton Street Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 193. Rule 116.

Action by a trustee in bankruptcy of L. & Co. Counter-claim not against the firm but against L. only: Baker v. Gent, 9 T. L. R. 159.

Action by judgment creditor of a joint stock company against a shareholder in the nature of a sci. fa. Counter-claim for damages against the company only: Grills v. Farah, 21 O. L. R. 457; such a claim being held to be pleadable under The Ontario Companies Act by way of defence: Ib.

Action on promissory note. Counter-claim that plaintiff had conspired with third persons, added as defendants by counter-claim, to keep certain moneys instead of applying them on the note, and praying that the new defendants might be ordered to account therefor: General Electric Co. v. Victoria E. L. Co., 16 P. R. 529.

Action for specific performance by vendor against purchaser. Counter-claim for a comparatively small amount of money owing, as the result of an account, by plaintiff to defendant, and which the latter claimed to set-off against the purchase money. Counter-claim excluded as irrelevant to original claim, and because it would be inexpedient to try the two claims together, and would unduly delay the action to investigate the account: Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802. Cases of set-off.

Separate Trial of Counter-claim.—Where a counter-claim is not excluded, it is still a question of convenience and in the discretion of the Court, whether the action and counter-claim should be tried together, or separately: Re Woodfine, Thompson v. Woodfine, 47 L. J. Chy. 832; 38 L. T. 753: see Rules 66, 67, 73, and Rule 2.

Staying Proceedings on Claim, or Counter-claim.—The Court refused to make an order upon the counter-claim until the original claim was dealt with: Aitkin v. Dunbar, 46 L. J. Chy. 489; but whether issues raised by the claim and counter-claim shall be tried together is a matter of convenience: Re Woodfine, Thompson v. Woodfine, 38 L. T. 753; 47 L. J. Chy. 832; and under Rule 117 the Court may stay proceedings on either a claim, or counter-claim, until the other is disposed of.

116. A counter-claim shall be treated as an action, so as to enable the Court to pronounce a final judgment upon all matters set up therein. C.R. 252. Judgment on counter-claim.

See notes to Rule 115.

Judgment on Counter-claim.—A judgment on a counter-claim may be obtained in like manner as a judgment for a like claim may be obtained in an action. If the counter-claim is for a claim for which a final judgment might be signed for default of appearance, then a final judgment may also be signed for default of defence to such a counter-claim: Rule 355; e.g., a final judgment may be signed where the counter-claim is one that might be specially indorsed: Rule 56 and see Rules 35-43; where, however, the claim is one for which a final judgment cannot be signed for default, then the pleadings must be noted closed: Rule 121, and a motion for judgment is necessary: Rule 356 (1). This motion may be made in the Weekly Court or at the trial, if any, of the action: Rule 358. The defendants by counter-claim are entitled to notice of the motion: Rules 213, 215.

See notes to Rule 256.

Judgment for balance of counter-claim.

Balance in Favour of the Defendant.—Judgment upon the counter-claim may give the defendant complete relief as in an independent action, by ordering payment of any balance found in his favour: Staples v. Young, 2 Ex. D. 324; or by awarding to him such other relief as he may be entitled to; and the judgment may provide that the amount recovered on the counter-claim for damages and costs shall, notwithstanding any claim of lien on the part of the defendant's solicitors, be set off pro tanto against the sum awarded to the plaintiff for a debt and costs: Blumenstiel v. Edwards, 5 O. W. R. 796. In Horrocks v. Rigby, 26 W. R. 714, a defendant, who had purchased the entirety of a leasehold, resisted a claim against him for a specific performance of a contract for sale of a moiety of the leasehold: he was also mortgagee, and in the latter capacity, as alternative relief by way of counter-claim, he called upon the plaintiff to redeem him, and it was held that he was so entitled, with costs as of a foreclosure suit.

Where the plaintiff claimed £49 12s., and defendant admitted the claim, and counter-claimed for £75, and judgment was given for the plaintiff on his claim, and for defendant for £40 on his counter-claim, it was ordered that the plaintiff should have costs of his claim, and the defendant the costs of his counter-claim, which was interpreted to mean that the plaintiff should have costs up to the delivery of the defence, and the defendant his costs after that time: Bowker v. Kesteven, 47 L. T. 545.

Judgment will usually be entered for the balance: see Shropnel v. Laing, 20 Q. B. D. 338; Griffiths v. Potterson, 22 L. R. Ir. 656; but the judgment may be for the plaintiff upon the claim, and for defendant upon the counter-claim: Ib. The form in which the judgment is entered does not affect the mode of taxing the costs, which will depend upon whether the counter-claim could, or could not, be pleaded as a set-off: see Shrapnel v. Laing, supra, and other cases in note to sect. 74, supra; it probably would affect the right of a third person to garnish either debt separately, as to which: see Stumore v. Campbell, 1892, 1 Q. B. 314.

Costs.

As to costs, where a balance is found in favour of the defendant, and in other cases of claims and counter-claims tried together, see Staples v. Young, supra; Blake v. Appleyard, 3 Ex. D. 195; Parker v. Chambers, 4 C. P. D. 68 and 457; Chatfield v. Sedgewick, Ib., p. 459; Baines v. Bromley, 6 Q. B. D. 197, 691, and notes to sec. 74, supra, p. 260.

As to the effect of a solicitor's lien upon the right to a set-off: see notes to Rule 666.

A charging order in favour of a solicitor under Rule 689 will be limited to the balance actually recovered: Westcott v. Bevan, 1891, 1 Q. B. 774.

Stay of proceedings on undisputed claim, pending disputed counter-claim.

117.—(1) Where a defendant does not dispute the plaintiff's claim, but sets up a counter-claim, the Court may stay proceedings respecting the claim until the counter-claim is disposed of. C.R. 255.

(2) Where a plaintiff does not dispute the defendant's counter-claim the Court may stay proceedings upon the counter-claim until the claim is disposed of. New. Rule 117.

This Rule is intended to prevent the obvious injustice of permitting the plaintiff to sign judgment and enforce payment from a defendant, who might establish a counter-claim entitling him to a balance upon the claim and counter-claim taken together.

Where a counter-claim is struck out as not being conveniently triable with the original action, a similar course may be pursued: see Thompson v. Big Cities Realty Co., 21 O. L. R. 394; Auerbach v. Hamilton, 19 O. L. R. 570.

Reply and Subsequent Pleadings.—Under the Ontario Rules of pleading the plaintiff may either reply or amend his statement of claim: which course he shall pursue depends on circumstances. If he desires to strengthen his case made in the statement of claim, either by setting up new facts, or correcting mistakes therein, he should amend. If on the other hand he wishes merely to set up an answer to facts alleged by the defence, without in any way altering his statement of claim, or merely takes issue on the defence, then he should reply. Reply, and subsequent pleadings.

A reply must not set up new claims: or refer to an independent document as containing facts on which the pleader relies, without properly setting out such document as part of the reply; and, like other pleadings, it must not state evidence, arguments or conclusions of law: see Rule 141, and Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 790, and Collambell v. Flight, W. N. 1877, 125.

A reply is to be delivered within 10 days after the last of the defences: Rule 118.

As to reply, and a defence to a counter-claim: see Rules 114, and 160.

As to [illegible] further defence to a counter-claim founded on matter arising after the defence: see Rule 162.

If the plaintiff amends, the defendant has further time to plead to the amended pleading: see Rule 128.

Where the time to deliver reply would have expired on 25th July, but was extended to 22nd August, and afterwards to 19th September, and on 26th September, no reply having been filed, the defendant took proceedings to obtain judgment as on admissions by reason of the default, and on the same day the plaintiff, by leave, served notice for leave to deliver a reply, leave was refused by the Judge of first instance, on the ground of unexplained delay, but was granted, on payment of costs, by the Court of Appeal: Eaton v. Storer, 22 Ch. D. 91.

Leave to deliver a reply after the regular time for doing so had expired was granted, though the reply only sought to put in issue what was already in issue by the defence, the object of filing it being to enable the plaintiff to file a jury notice, the case being one in which a jury notice would be proper; and so it would be left to the discretion of the Judge at the trial to decide whether the trial should be had with, or without, a jury: Qua v. Canadian Order of Woodmen, 5 O. L. R. 51.

Close of pleadings.

Close of Pleadings by Reply.—The pleadings are not closed until a reply has been delivered, or the time for delivering one has expired: Rule 120, and until then a defendant cannot give notice of trial: see Robinson v. Caldwell, 1893, 1 Q. B. 519; 68 L. T. 218; 5 R. 320.

Form of Reply.—See H. & L. Forms, Nos. 126, 128. The reply must not raise a new ground of claim not made by the writ or statement of claim: Rule 157; Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 787; Kingston v. Corker, 29 L. R. Ir. 364; and must not contradict the statement of claim: Breslauer v. Barwick, 36 L. T. 52; Collett v. Dickinson, 26 W. R. 403; Hancock v. De Nieeville, W. N. 1875, 230; but it may either traverse the allegations made in the defence, or confess, and avoid them, or both: Hall v. Eve, 4 Ch. D. 341; 46 L. J. Chy. 145; 35 L. T. 926; 25 W. R. 177. In an action of ejectment where the defendant set up a claim as assignee of a mortgage, the plaintiff was held entitled to reply that the alleged assignment was made without consideration, and that the assignor was a lunatic at the time of the assignment, to defendant's knowledge: Smith v. Smith, 2 O. L. R. 410.

Defence to Counter-claim, and Reply Thereto.—Quære, whether the word "plaintiff" in this Rule includes a plaintiff by counter-claim: semble, it does: see Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349: Rule 114 and notes; it does not in the Act: see Jud. Act, s. 2 (r).

Delivery of reply.

118. A plaintiff shall deliver his reply, if any, within 10 days after the defence or the last of the defences has been delivered. C.R. 256.

Eng. (1883) R. 276 allows 21 days.

The last of the defences means the last defence of all the defences: see Collett v. Preston, 3 Mac. & G. 432; Arnold v. Arnold, 9 Beav. 206; Bertolacci v. Johnstone, 2 Ha. 633; Chy. O. 152; and Ambroise v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D., at p. 762.

Vacations are not reckoned in computing the time: Rule 179. As to extending the time: see notes to Rules 110, 112, and 176.

Delivery after Time.—Under the English practice a reply delivered after three weeks, and without an extension of time, is irregular, and may be set aside, the pleadings having become closed. (see Rule 120): Webb v. Kerr, 14 L. R. Ir. 294; and where a reply was delivered without leave after the time, and before notice of motion for judgment, it was held to have the effect of preventing notice of motion for judgment from being given under the English Rules, on admission of the defence by default of reply: Graves v. Terry, 9 Q. B. D. 170; see also notes to Rules 110, 112.

In Ontario, however, it has been held that the delivery of a reply after the time prescribed, does not in itself entitle the opposite party to move to set it aside, and even if strictly the right to move exists, the pleading should not in general be set aside, but the time should be extended: Wright v. Wright, 13 P. R. 268, see also notes to Rules 110, 112.

Leave for subsequent pleadings.

119. No pleading subsequent to reply other than a joinder of issue shall be pleaded without leave. C.R. 257.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 277.

Pleadings cannot go beyond reply without leave, except that the defendant may join issue, if he chooses. That, however, would not seem to be necessary, as the pleadings are deemed to be closed without joinder of issue, at the expiration of the time within which the delivery of subsequent pleadings is necessary: Rule 120. If the plaintiff replies specially, it may be necessary for a defendant either to amend his statement of defence, or to rejoin, so as to set up some new feature in the case, in the nature perhaps of a confession and avoidance, or something destroying the effect of the reply: see Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 792-3; but this cannot now be done in any case without leave: Rules 134 and 119. Rule 120.

In Norris v. Beazley, 35 L. T. 845, leave to rejoin was refused, the proposed rejoinder being regarded as unnecessary, and only amounting to a statement of matters contained in the statement of defence in a more detailed way.

In Evans v. Gann, W. N. 1875, 199, leave was granted to plead a counter-claim after issue joined.

As to pleading grounds of defence to a counter-claim arising after delivery of defence thereto: see Rule 162.

120. As soon as either party has joined issue upon any pleading of the opposite party, or as soon as the time for delivering a reply or subsequent pleading has expired, the pleadings shall be deemed to be closed. C.R. 262. When pleadings closed.

See Eng. (1883), R. 280.

Where a defence and counter-claim are delivered, and the defendant does not note the pleadings closed as to the counter-claim under Rule 121, the pleadings as to the counter-claim do not become closed under this Rule by lapse of time: Nixon v. Mundell, 14 O. L. R. 343.

Under this Rule if there is no counter-claim, it is not necessary to deliver any pleading to the defence: Lockington v. King, 7 C. L. T. 47; Robinson v. Caldwell, 1893, 1 Q. B. 519; 5 R. 320, and the pleadings become closed when the plaintiff has delivered a joinder of issue, or reply, or where, without joinder, or reply, ten days have elapsed from the delivery of the defence: Schneider v. Proctor, 9 P. R. 11. Where there is no counter-claim.

Where there is no counter-claim, and a reply has been delivered, the pleadings become closed without the delivery of any other pleading, or of a joinder of issue: Qua v. Canadian Order of Woodmen, 5 O. L. R. 51; Weller v. Proctor, 10 P. R. 323; and Piper v. Benjamin, 17 P. R. 267.

A joinder of issue may, however, properly be delivered either to a defence, or a reply, and sometimes materially saves expense and delay: see Robinson v. Caldwell, and Qua v. Can. Order of Woodmen, supra. Joinder of issue.

By delivery by the plaintiff of a simple joinder of issue upon the statement of defence and counter-claim, the pleadings are closed, and notice of trial may be given: Hare v. Cauthrope, 11 P. R. 353; Malcolm v. Race, 16 P. R. 330; but a pleading which denies the allegations in a counter-claim, puts the counter-claiming defendant to the proof thereof, and submits that the counter-claim should be dismissed, is not a joinder of issue, but a defence, to which the counter-claiming defendant has 10 days to reply, so that the pleadings are not closed until he replies, or joins issue, or the 10 days expire: Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349.

A reply joining issue on the statement of defence, and further alleging that the facts set forth in the defence are no answer to the claim, is a joinder of issue only, within Rule 120, and closes the pleadings: Gibson v. Nelson, 19 P. R. 265.

In Webb v. Kerr, 14 L. R. Ir. 294, it was held that when the pleadings were closed by expiry of time under this Rule, neither party could re-open them without the leave of the Court; but see contra Wright v. Wright, 13 P. R. 268, where the delivery of a reply after the time had expired was held to be not necessarily open to objection. A reply was allowed to be delivered after time, to enable the plaintiff to give a jury notice, the case being one primâ facie proper to be tried by jury: Qua v. Canadian Order of Woodmen, supra, p. 535.

Amendment.

Where a pleading is amended under an order giving leave to amend, or the time limited by the order for making the amendment has expired, the pleadings are in the same position as to their being closed as they were when the order was made: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378.

Where a plaintiff issued a writ against several defendants, but only served one, and proceeded against him to the close of the pleadings, it was held that he must be assumed to have abandoned as to the others, and the pleadings in the action were closed, and notice of trial could be regularly given: Vondusen v. Johnson, 3 C. L. T. 505.

Where there is a counter-claim.

Where there is a counter-claim, the delivery of a pleading by the plaintiff which is more than a joinder of issue, and constitutes a reply to the defence proper, and a defence to the counter-claim, will not close the pleadings, as the counter-claiming defendant has further time to reply: Irwin v. Turner, supra.

Where a third party has been made a defendant to a counter-claim, the action is not at issue till the counterclaim has been struck out, or the third party has pleaded, or become in default: Canadian Securities Co. v. Prentiss, 2 C. L. T. 90.

A counter-claim must be by defence, and therefore a joinder of issue on the defence, not mentioning the counter-claim, closes the pleadings, and notice of trial thereafter is therefore regular: Macara v. Snow, 12 P. R. 616.

See also notes to Rules 246, 325.

Note may be entered of default.

121. Where any party makes default in delivering a statement of defence to the statement of claim or to the counter-claim within the time limited therefor, in cases where judgment cannot be signed, the opposite party may, upon proof of the default, by praecipe to the officer with whom the pleadings are filed, require him to note the default, and thereafter no pleading by the party in default shall be received or filed. Until default is so noted the party in default may file his pleading. C.R. 263, amended. Rule 122.

There is no similar English Rule. This Rule also covers, in part, the provisions of C. R. 593.

Where interlocutory judgment cannot be signed, and an assessment of damages is necessary, or a motion for judgment, after the delivery of a statement of claim to which no defence is filed, the pleadings must be first closed by the entry of a note under this Rule before the case is set down for assessment of damages, or on motion for judgment: Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639. Interlocutory judgment.

Where more than a year elapses after a party becomes entitled to note pleadings closed, by analogy to Rule 357, the note should not be made without leave, and semble, leave should not be granted without notice to the opposite party: Radford v. Barwick, 10 O. L. R. 720; Rule 213; and semble, on notice to defendant: Ib., Morison v. Telfer, 120 L. T. Jour. 383; but see Rule 35. Motion for judgment.

In Lloyd v. Ward, 13 P. R. 238, Saturday being the last day to deliver a defence, the plaintiff caused a note under this Rule to be entered at 2.25 p.m., conceiving that no defence could be validly delivered on that day, none having been served by 2 o'clock; but it was held that under Rule 140, filing was part of the delivery, and the defendant had under former C. R. 7, (see now sec. 83, supra, p. 273), up to 3 o'clock to file the defence, whether it had been delivered or not. The offices now close at 1 p.m. on Saturday: see s. 83.

An action should not be set down on motion for judgment by default of pleading until the pleadings are noted as closed: see Rule 121; directions to officers in note to Rule 249, and Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639. A defence filed after the pleadings have been so noted as closed is irregular, but is not a nullity, and, if filed before notice of motion for judgment is given, entitles the defendant to notice of the motion: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137.

If a defence be delivered after service of a notice of motion for judgment, it should be brought to the attention of the Court by the plaintiff, if he is aware of it; or the defendant may do so, and the Court will exercise its discretion under all the circumstances: Gibbings v. Strong, 26 Ch. D. 66; Montagu v. Land Corporation, 56 L. T. 730; or the defendant may move to stay the motion for judgment, and for leave to deliver the defence: Potts v. Deane, 11 L. R. Ir. 396. See also Wilson v. Noble, 11 L. R. Ir. 546; Munn v. Young, 5 O. W. N. 426. Delivery of defence after time.

See also notes to Rules 112 and 120.

A defendant may note the pleadings closed, on default of defence to a counter-claim; but under former C. R. 263, it was held that until the pleadings were noted closed, the plaintiff might deliver a subsequent pleading to the counter-claim: Nixon v. Mundell, 14 O. L. R. 343.

Where a counter-claim is in substance a part of the defence, though pleaded as a counter-claim, it is not proper to note the pleadings closed as to the counter-claim, but it should be treated as a defence: Smith v. Ransom, 2 O. W. N. 921.

122. Either party shall be entitled to raise by his pleading any point of law, and by consent of the parties, Questions of law, how to be determined.

or by leave of a judge, the same may be set down for hearing at any time before the trial, otherwise it shall be disposed of at the trial. C.R. 259.

To same effect as Eng. (1883) RR. 285, 286; and see C. R. 373.

Scope of Rule.—Though demurrers are, in effect, abolished, the object of this, and the succeeding Rules, is to preserve a procedure for determining substantial questions of law as expeditiously as by the former demurrer, while rendering it no longer possible to raise objections which would lead to nothing but an amendment: see Burstall v. Beyfus, 26 Ch. D. 35; Brophy v. Royal Victoria, etc., Co., 2 O. L. R. 651.

A motion to strike out the name of one of several plaintiffs, on the ground that he has no title to maintain the action, should not be made under Rule 66, but the objection should be raised under this Rule: Morang v Rose, 3 O. L. R. 354.

Three methods of proceeding are provided by Rules 122-124 (see Burstall v. Beyfus, 26 Ch. D. at p. 38, and Hubbuck v. Wilkinson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 91), namely:—

(1) By raising on the pleadings a question of law, so that the parties may have it quickly decided: Rules 122-123.

(2) By raising on a pleading (see Lever v. Land Securities, 70 L. T. 323), the question whether it discloses any reasonable cause of action, or answer. If it does not, the Court or Judge may order the pleading to be struck out, not necessarily disposing of the action: Rule 124, first part.

(3) In a case where an action, or defence, is shewn by the pleading, or by undisputed facts, to be frivolous and vexatious, then the Court or Judge can dismiss the action, or order it to be stayed, or judgment to be entered, as may seem just: Rule 124.

Rule 126 enables the parties to state a case by consent: and this Rule enables the Court to direct that a question of law be decided before the issues of fact are decided: Metropolitan Board v. New River Co., 1 Q. B. D. 727; affirmed 2 Q. B. D. 67.

Rule 73 enables a Judge to direct the trial of one or more questions of fact before others, and by analogy to that Rule the Court will, at the trial of an action involving questions both of law and of fact, decide the question of law first, if it appears that the decision of such question may render it unnecessary to try the question of fact: Pooley v. Driver, 5 Ch. D. 460.

Ordinarily pleadings are only required to state the material facts: Rule 141. Questions of law may arise on the facts alleged. Under this Rule, however, it will be proper to raise and state a point of law in a pleading.

A point of law will always be based upon a certain state of facts, which must be assumed or proved to be true before the point of law can be disposed of. The facts in the opposite pleading may be expressly admitted, and Rule 222 may then apply; or a pleading may allege that the pleading of the opposite party discloses no cause of action or defence, and a point of law within this Rule will thus be raised: Salaman v. Warner, 1891, 1 Q. B. 734; Thioden v. Tindall, 7

T. L. R. 581; and the facts in the pleading will in such case be taken to be admitted: Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 26 Ont. 61; Bank of Ottawa v. Roxborough, 18 O. L. R. 511. Rule 122.

The facts raising the point of law were, in O'Brien v. Tyssen, 28 Ch. D. 372, assumed to be true, though denied by the pleading of the opposite party, where the case was set down by consent under the corresponding Eng Rule for argument: see also Shafto v. Bolkcow, 34 Ch. D. 725. The facts were verified by affidavit in Re Bracken, 43 Ch. D. 3, where the case was set down pursuant to an order. Probably on motion to set down a point of law raised under this Rule for argument, an investigation on affidavit or otherwise may take place to ascertain whether, notwithstanding the pleadings, there is any real dispute as to the facts necessary for the determination of the point of law: see Blaydes v. Selby, 35 Sol. Jour. 528, where admissions of fact were made.

Where the decision of the point of law will not, owing to there being material facts in dispute, dispose of the case, it is undesirable to set down the point of law for argument before the trial: see Western S. S. Co. v. Amaral, 1914, 3 K. B. 55.

Procedure.—The question of law raised will be determined at the trial, unless, by consent, or by order, under the latter part of the Rule, the case is set down for argument at the Weekly Court. Procedure.

Motion to set down for Argument.—The motion to set the matter down for argument must be made before a Judge in Chambers: see Rules 207 (4), 208 (13), and Bank of Montreal v. Morrison, 3 O. W. R. 303; Smith v. Smith, 5 O. W. R. 518, 673.

An order may be made where the decision of the point of law will materially affect and have an important bearing upon the action, and probably cause a saving of expense: London, Chatham & Dover Ry. v. S. E. Ry., 53 L. T. 109; Chatenay v. Brazilian, etc., 1891, 1 Q. B. 79; and see Leyman v. Latimer, 3 Ex. D. 352; 26 W. R. 305; 37 L. T. 819; but probably not, unless the action, or a distinct cause of action, or some considerable question in the action, can be disposed of (see Rule 123); nor where the question of law may not arise if the issues of fact are tried: Parr v. London, Edinburgh & Glasgow Assce. Co., 8 T. L. R. 88; particularly where evidence may be lost by delaying the trial of the issues of fact: Scott v. Mercantile, etc., Ins. Co., 8 T. L. R. 431, (see S. C. 66, L. T. 811); and se Re Palmer, 22 Ch. D. 88; Owners, etc., of Maori King v. Hughes, 73 L. T. 141, in note to Rule 73.

Where the writ of summons was indorsed, "the plaintiffs claim damages from the defendants for refusing to supply them with water by meter, under sec. 41 of the New River Act, 1852"; after appearance the plaintiffs, on an affidavit (uncontradicted by the defendant), that the sole question between the parties was, whether the defendants were bound to supply water by meter for road use, obtained an order to try that question first: Metropolitan Board v. New River, 1 Q. B. D. 727; 2 Q. B. D. 67; but whether that procedure would be warranted by this Rule, quære: sed vide Rule 73.

Where a point of law is raised on a pleading under this Rule, the party raising it is, for the purpose of the argument, taken to admit the pleadings as true in fact: Bank of Ottawa v. Roxborough, 18 O. L. R. 516.

Argument.

Party to Begin.—The party entitled to begin is the party who raised the point of law in his pleading: Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867; Stevens v. Choron, 1901, 1 Ch. 894.

Stay of Trial Pending Appeal on Question of Law.—The trial of the issues of fact will not in general be stayed pending an appeal respecting questions of law: Re Palmer, 22 Ch. D. 88; and see Arnold v. Toronto Ry. Co., 16 P. R. 394; Hockley v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 7 O. L. R. 186.

Examples.—On a motion to strike out a pleading as bad in law, the Court will not look at the pleading with the same strictness as upon a demurrer under the former practice: Bank of Hamilton v. George, 16 P. R. 418.

Examples of cases disposed of under Rule 122.

Under this Rule an objection in the nature of the former general demurrer for want of equity was entertained: see Salaman v. Warner, 1891, 1 Q. B. 734; Thioden v. Tindall, 65 L. T. 343; Cobb v. Great Western Ry., 37 Sol. Jour. 196; also a question of law depending on the construction of a will: Re Ball, 36 Ch. D. 508 (though that case was brought on under Rule 124); Chatenay v. Brazilian, etc., 1891, 1 Q. B. 79; or any other instrument such as a debenture: Page v. International, 68 L. T. 435; the effect of a disentailing deed: Millbank v. Vane, 1893, 3 Ch. 79; the validity of an admitted instrument imposing a fetter on a mortgagor's right of redemption: Salt v. Northampton, 45 Ch. D. 194; 1892, A. C. 8; in an action of libel whether statements by solicitors in objections to taxation while acting as solicitors were absolutely privileged: Pedley v. Morris, 65 L. T. 526; 40 W. R. 42; a question of estoppel: Priestman v. Thomas, 9 P. D. 210; of res judicata: Caird v. Moss, 33 Ch. D. 22; Boswell v. Coaks, 6 R. 167; a question preliminary to the right to sue, e.g., a defence that an action would lie only after adjustment of insurance by arbitration: Viney v. Bignold, 20 Q. B. D. 172; or that the action would not lie, owing to the omission to give notice of the intention to bring the action, where one is necessary, e.g., in libel against a newspaper, under The Libel & Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71), s. 8: Benner v. Mail Printing Co., 24 O. L. R. 507; whether notice of action was necessary: McCarthy v. Vespra, 16 P. R. 416; whether a corporation can maintain an action for libel: Mayor of Manchester v. Williams, 1891, 1 Q. B. 94; whether the Atty.-Gen. or Local Board could sue for a nuisance: Atty.-Gen. v. Logan, 1891, 2 Q. B. 100; whether an action of tort survived to an executor suing: Oakey v. Dalton, 35 Ch. D. 700; whether plaintiffs who had assigned their business to defendants in trust for creditors had a right to sue for an account: Cooke v. Smith, 45 Ch. D. 38; whether the purchaser, from the proprietors of a trade mark, of goods having that mark, could sue alleged infringers of the trade mark: Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867; whether a Statute of Limitations applied to bar the plaintiff's claim: Parker v. London County Council, 1904, 2 K. B. 501; whether the Court has jurisdiction: Companhia de Mocambique v. British S. A. Co., 1892, 2 Q. B. 358; 1893, A. C. 602; a question under the Statute of Frauds: Stokell v. Niven, 61 L. T. 18; whether an assignment of a chose in action under which the plaintiff claimed was void for champerty; both parties assenting: Colville v. Small, 22 O. L. R. 23, 426; and where an action was to recover a bet on the result of a Parliamentary Election, it was suggested that the question whether the action was maintainable might be determined under this Rule: Harris v. Elliott, 28 O. L. R. 349.

Where defendants contended that, assuming questions of fact to be found against them, they were, as a matter of law, liable for a small sum, which they would pay into Court rather than go to the expense of evidence, an order was made under this Rule for determination of the questions of law first: Tattersoll v. National Steamship Co., W. N. 1884, 32. Rules 123, 124.

On the other hand in Scott v. Mercantile Accident Insurance Co., 8 T. L. R. 431, an order for trial of a point of law first was refused, where issues of fact might be found at the trial which would render the question of law immaterial: see also Grosvenor v. White, 38 W. R. 201.

In Preston v. Fullwood, 2 T. L. R. 60, a question of law, which could not clearly be separated from the other questions in the action, was directed to be tried first at the trial upon admissions or evidence.

See also cases referred to under Rule 73.

123. Upon the determination of such point of law the Court may pronounce such judgment as may be deemed proper. C.R. 260. Judgment thereon.

See Eng. (1883) R. 287.

124. A Judge may order any pleading to be struck out on the ground that it discloses no reasonable cause of action or answer, and in any such case, or in case of the action or defence being shown to be frivolous or vexatious, may order the action to be stayed or dismissed, or judgment to be entered accordingly. C.R. 261. Pleading may be struck out.

See Eng. (1883) R. 288. The jurisdiction is exercisable only by a Judge in Court or in Chambers: see Rules 205, 207 (4), 208 (13).

Scope of Rule.—Two cases are provided for by this Rule: Two cases provided for

(1) Where a pleading discloses no reasonable cause of action or defence.

In such a case a claim, or defence, may be struck out, not necessarily disposing of the action, as leave may be given to amend; or the action may be dismissed, or judgment given for the plaintiff, or defendant.

(2) Where an action is shewn by the pleadings to be frivolous or vexatious.

This appears to apply to the case of a plaintiff's action appearing by the pleadings to be frivolous or vexatious, and in such case the action may be stayed or dismissed, or judgment may be given for defendant.

This Rule does not seem to apply where only part of a pleading is scandalous, defective, or embarrassing. Rules 136 and 137 then apply.

On an application under this Rule, the Court is strictly confined to a consideration of the pleadings: Bornes v. Carter, 2 O. W. N. 8.

A description of the cases in which this Rule is applicable has been expressed in various ways. In Atty.-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 274; 27 L. J. N. C. 126, and Parsons v. Burton, W. N. 1883, 215; it was said that the Rule was not intended to take the place of a demurrer, but only to get rid of frivolous actions; but see Hubbuck v. Wilkinson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 86.

A pleading which sets up matter which has been held by an unreversed decision of the Court of Appeal to be bad in law, will be struck out, though the pleader disputes the correctness of the decision: McCarthy v. Vespra, 16 P. R. 416; Lawry v. Tuckett-Lawry, 2 O. L. R. 162.

The question whether an action would lie, without an allegation of special damage, for falsely and maliciously and without reasonable or probable cause presenting a bankruptcy petition, was held not to be one to be determined on application to strike out a statement of claim as disclosing no reasonable cause of action: Wyatt v. Palmer, 1899, 2 Q. B. 106. Nor the question whether one of several plaintiffs was entitled to maintain the action: see Morang v. Rose, supra, p. 538.

A statement of claim which discloses a reasonable cause of action which a notice of action is necessary, but omitting to allege that notice of action was given, cannot be struck out on that ground: Conmee v. Weidmann, 16 P. R. 239.

A statement of claim which discloses a reasonable cause of action cannot be struck out upon an application under this Rule, on a suggestion that the action cannot succeed for want of necessary parties: Beardmore v. Toronto, 19 O. L. R. 139.

This Rule only applies after a statement of claim is delivered; but the application need not be made until after the close of the pleadings, when the Court may look at the whole case upon the pleadings: Tucker v. Collinson, 34 W. R. 354. A motion before delivery of statement of claim may, however, be made by way of application for the exercise of the inherent jurisdiction of the Court: Ker v. Williams, 29 Sol. Jour. 681.

Jurisdiction under this Rule will only be exercised with caution: Magrath v. Reichel, 57 L. T. 850; 14 App. Cas. 667, and a doubtful question of law will not be decided: Roberts v. Charing Cross Ry., 1903, W. N. 13; 87 L. T. 732; Goodson v. Grierson, 1908, 1 K. B. 761; 98 L. T. 740 (action to recover bets); but see Harris v. Elliott, 28 O. L. R. 349; nor will an action be dismissed brought bonâ fide to try a question of law: Lea v. Thursby, 89 L. T. 744; 90 L. T. 265. The improbability of the facts alleged is not material. However improbable, their truth will be assumed: see Lawrance v. Lord Norreys, 39 Ch. D. 236; Langdale v. Knill, 6 T. L. R. 236; Johnston v. Johnston, 33 W. R. 239; Thompson v. Big Cities Realty Co., 21 O. L. R. 401; but if nevertheless the Court is satisfied that the action is frivolous or vexatious: Kellaway v. Bury, 66 L. T. 603; 8 T. L. R. 433, as for example, being plainly based upon some ground which, if proved, as it is assumed it will be, would not in law entitle plaintiff to judgment: Johnston v. Johnston, 33 W. R. 239; Re Batthyany, 32 W. R. 379; Rep. of Peru v. Peruvian Guano Co., 36 Ch. D. 489; Williams v. Earl Beauchamp, 11 P. D. 60; Weldon v. Maples, 20 Q. B. D. 331; Willis v. Earl Howe, 1893, 2 Ch. 545; 2 R. 427; Law v. Llewelyn, supra, p. 46; or being a case where a plea of res judicata if raised must succeed: Macdougall v. Knight, 25 Q. B. D. 1, the action will be dismissed: see also Reichel v. Magrath, 14 App. Cas. 667; Rio Tinto v. Société des Metaux, 6 T. L. R. 408; Stephenson v. Garnett, 1898, 1 Q. B. 677. So where an action was brought against an official liquidator personally, in respect of property vested in him officially, so that no action was maintainable, except against him officially, and by leave of the Court, it was stayed: Graham v. Edge, 4 T. L. R. 442; so also an action brought under

The Fatal Accidents Act, by an infant who was not the personal representative of the deceased was dismissed: Luciani v. Toronto Construction Co., 4 O. W. R. 1073; and see Blayborough v. Brantford Gas Co., 18 O. L. R. 243; also an action for libel against a solicitor respecting statements made by him in an affidavit made in the action on an interlocutory motion: Gompas v. White, 6 T. L. R. 20; see also Lilley v. Roney, 61 L. J. Q. B. 727; Lawrence v. Newberry, 7 T. L. R. 588; Salomons v. Knight, 8 T. L. R. 472; Guy v. Walker, 8 T. L. R. 314. Rule 124.

This Rule would seem to contemplate that the frivolous or vexatious nature of the action or defence should appear from the pleadings: see also Atty.-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 1892, 3 Ch. 278; but in Rep. of Peru v. Peruvian Guano Co., 36 Ch. D. 489; affidavits, and in Remmington v. Scoles, 1897, 2 Ch. 1; 76 L. T. 667, the defendant's admissions under oath in another Court, were admitted: see also cases, supra, p. 45 et seq. Probably affidavits may also be used, as the application may be considered to be made to the Court both under this Rule, and under its inherent jurisdiction: Fletcher v. Bethom, 41 W. R. 621; Chaffers v. Goldsmid, 1894, 1 Q. B. 190; and see Boswell v. Coaks, 6 R. 167; Thompson v. Big Cities Realty Co., supra, p. 542.

Where the defence set up an immaterial issue (e.g., that the plaintiff, who was suing as a person of unsound mind, was not in fact insane), it was struck out: Richmond v. Branson, 1914, 1 Ch. 968; 110 L. T. 751.

A defendant may move notwithstanding that the action is brought by an infant: Anon., 29 Sol. Jour. 638; and see Luciani v. Toronto Construction Co., supra.

Leave to amend may be given in a proper case: Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867, on such terms as to costs as may be just: Preston v. Fullwood, 34 W. R. 200.

Where an action is dismissed because the statement of claim shews no cause of action, a fresh action may be brought: see Jones v. Insole, 64 L. T. 703; 39 W. R. 629.

In Darlow v. Scratton, 29 Sol. Jour. 131, Chitty, J., said, that the word "reasonable" is merely redundant, and the question is whether there is any question to be tried. In Burstall v. Beyfus, 26 Ch. D. 35, and Dadswell v. Jacob, 34 Ch. D. 278; 55 L. T. 751, 857; Cotton, L.J., thought that the Rule applied where a pleading is demurrable, but that the same strictness is not to be used in looking at the statements in the pleadings, as formerly on demurrer: see also Bank of Hamilton v. George, 16 P. R. 418; Lindley, L.J., in Dadswell v. Jacob, at p. 284; said that a pleading which discloses no reasonable cause of action "is demurrable at once, and it is something more, it is perfectly frivolous," and that is the thing which is struck at by the Rule.

The Rule only applies to pleadings which are obviously unsustainable, as where the Court is satisfied that a statement of claim discloses no cause of action: Smith v. London, 19 O. L. R. 139; Scott v. Patterson, 17 O. L. R. 270; Atty.-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 274; 27 L. J. N. C. 126; as, for example, being in respect of a question decided by the Court of Appeal adversely to the plaintiff's alleged cause of action: Lawry v. Tuckett-Lawry, 2 O. L. R. 162; or where a pleading is obviously bad: Brophy v. Royal Victoria Life etc., Co., 2 O. L. R. 651; but does not apply where an arguable question of law is involved: see Rodger v. Noxon Co., 19 P. R. 327; or at all events should not: Kennedy v. Kennedy, 2 O. W. N. 1173; nor where a lengthy argument and citation of numerous authorities is necessary to shew that the plaintiff should not succeed: Anderson v. Gurrie, 38 Sol. Jour. 256; Booler v. Holder, 37 L. T. 29?; Mutrie v. Binney, 35 Ch. D. 614; see also Re Bulthyony, 32 W. R. 379; Shofta v. Bolckow, 34 Ch. D. 725; and Grosvenor v. White, 81 L. T. 663; 38 W. R. 201; Beardmore v. Toronto, 19 O. L. R. 139; nor where questions of law, and matters of general importance are involved: Dyson v. Attorney-General, 1911, 1 K. B. 410; 103 L. T. 707; but only to very clear cases: Christy v. Ion Specialty Co., 18 C. L. T. 85; 34 C. L. J, 163, nor where a defence is obviously frivolous and vexatious: Solomons v. Knight, 8 T. L. R. 472; Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 665; Remmington v. Scoles, 1897, 2 Ch. 1; 76 L. T. 667; Mackellar v. Hornsey, 49 W. R. 301; Critchell v. London & S. W. Ry., 1907, 1 K. B. 860.

It is not convenient to act under the Rule where, assuming a defence to be true and to be no answer in law, the defendant may have another defence: Grosvenor v. White, 38 W. R. 201; 61 L. T. 663.

Again in Ketlaway v. Bury, 66 L. T. 602; 8 T. L. R. 434, Lindley, L.J., said: "It is not enough that the statement of claim should be demurrable, it is essential that the Court should see that the plaintiff has no case at all either on his statement of claim, or on such affidavits as he may file with a view to amendment": see also Black v. Ellis, 12 O. L. R. 403.

Though a pleading be struck out, the party pleading may be allowed to file an amended pleading: David v. Ryan, 2 O. W. N. 322.

Apart from this Rule the Court has jurisdiction to stay proceedings wherever necessary for the purposes of justice: see Jud. Act, s. 16 (f), and notes, supra, p. 42 et seq.; and it has moreover inherent jurisdiction to prevent an abuse of its process.

The bringing of an action, even though maliciously and without foundation, is no ground for an action, the only damage which the defendant suffers being compensated by costs: Boxter v. Young, 3 O. W. N. 413; following Quartz Hill Mining Co. v. Eyre, 11 Q. B. D. 674, 689. And no matter how scandalous or false statements in legal proceedings may be, it is essential for the administration of justice that they should be made with impunity: Baxter v. Young, supra, following Munster Lamb, 11 Q. B. D. 588.

Where the statement of claim disclosed the commission of a felony (rape) the action was stayed until the defendant had been prosecuted, or reasonable ground shown for not prosecuting: Smith v. Selwyn, 137 L. T. Jour. 7; but see E. v. F., 11 O. L. R. 582.

No reasonable cause of action, or defence.

(1) No Reasonable Cause of Action or Defence.—In ascertaining whether there is a reasonable cause of action or answer, the Court does not try the action on the pleadings, but merely looks to see if a reasonable case is set up: Louis v. Guardians of Marylebone, 4 T. L. R. 442. The pleading complained of will not be looked upon with the same strictness as it used to be upon a demurrer; a party is not to be lightly deprived of a ground of substantial defence by the summary process of a judgment under this Rule: Bank of Hamilton v. George, 16 P. R. 418; Dadswelt v. Jacobs, 34 Ch. D. 278. A defence to a sci. fa. action which might have been pleaded as a defence to the original action was struck out: Shaver v. Collon, 16 P. R. 278; but the Court refused to strike out clauses of a statement of claim because notice of action was not alleged to have been given, though notice appeared to be necessary: Conmee v. Weidman, 16 P. R. 239; also where a statement of claim set up an agreement required by the Statute of Frauds to be in writing, but not stating it to be in writing: Fraser v. Pape, 91 L. T. 340. Rule 124.

The principles formerly applicable to demurrers will, however, to some extent be applied. As a general rule the pleading alone will be looked at: Boaler v. Holder, 54 L. T. 299; Salomons v. Knight, 8 T. L. R. 473; Willis v. Earl Beauchamp, 11 P. D. 59; Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 667; Rep. of Peru v. Peruvian Guano Co., 36 Ch. D. 480; and perhaps the particulars if any: see Davey v. Bentinck, 1893, 1 Q. B. 185; but the admissions of the defendant may also be considered: Remmington v. Scoles, 1897, 2 Ch. 1; 76 L. T. 667; it is not enough to refer to a document in the pleadings and read the document on the motion; the part relied on must be set out in the pleading: New Chile v. Lee, 4 T. L. R. 444; Howard v. Hill, W. N. 1887, 193.

Where therefore a material fact is not pleaded, without which no cause of action or defence is disclosed, the pleading might formerly have been demurred to; now, objection in law may be taken to it under Rule 122; see Griffiths v. London and St. Katharines Docks, 12 Q. B. D. 493; 13 Q. B. D. 259 (sed vide Conmee v. Weidman, supra); or a motion to strike out may be made under this Rule, in a plain case, and perhaps also in a case where the possibility of amendment is doubted, so as to compel the party whose pleading is defective to shew by affidavit whether he can amend it.

A statement of claim was struck out where the Court was satisfied that the plaintiff could not succeed at the hearing: South Hetton Coal Co. v. Haswell S. & E. Co., 1898, 1 Ch. 466; 78 L. T. 8; Hodson v. Pare, 1899, 1 Q. B. 455.

A statement of claim against a Justice of the Peace, for an alleged slander uttered in the course of proceedings pending before him, was struck out as shewing no reasonable cause of action: Law v. Llewellyn, 1906, 1 K. B. 487; 94 L. T. 359.

Where a plaintiff had no status to maintain the action (to interpret a will), the action was dismissed under this Rule: Kennedy v. Kennedy, 24 O. L. R. 183; or where an action under The Fatal Accidents Act was brought in respect of the death of an adopted son: Blayborough v. Brantford Gas Co., 18 O. L. R. 243; and see Luciani v. Toronto Construction Co., supra, p. 543.

Where, with a statement of defence, the defendant's solicitor sent a letter stating that they did not intend to insist on the defence, but that it was put in to prevent the plaintiff from taking money out of Court, except in satisfaction of his claim, it was ordered to be struck out: Critchell v. London & S. W. Ry., 1907, 1 K. B. 860; 96 L. T. 603.

Liberty to Amend.—The Court will give leave to amend in a proper case, rather than give judgment in ignorance of facts which it ought to know before rights are decided: Steeds v. Steeds, 22 Q. B. D. 37; Griffiths v. London & St. Katharines Docks, supra; Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867; Black v. Ellis, 12 O. L. R. 403; on such terms as to costs as may be just; Preston v. Fullwood, 34 W. R. 200; leave to set up a new cause of action was refused: Kennedy v. Kennedy, supra; sed vide David v. Ryan, supra, p. 544. Leave to amend.

Application.—An application to strike out a pleading should be made promptly. It may be made immediately after the delivery of the pleading, and before pleading in answer to it: Atty.-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 274, or perhaps after the close of the pleadings: see Tucker v. Collinson, 34 W. R. 354; at any rate before the case is set down for trial: Cross v. Howe, 62 L. J. Ch. 342.

Frivolous and vexatious actions.

(2) Frivolous and Vexatious Actions.—Under the second branch of the Rule the action must be obviously frivolous or vexatious: see per Lindley, L.J., in Atty.-Gen. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 277. An action appearing from the pleadings to be of that description comes within this Rule: see Willis v. Earl Beauchamp, 11 P. D. 59; Reichel v. Magrath, 14 App. Cas. 667; but, apart from the Rule altogether, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to prevent abuse of its process and to dismiss an action which can on motion be shewn to be frivolous or vexatious: see Metropolitan Bank v. Pooley, 10 App. Cas. 210; Kellaway v. Bury, 66 L. T. 603; Brophy v. Victoria, etc., Co., 2 O. L. R. 651; Lawry v. Tuckett-Lawry, 2 O. L. R. 162; Ker v. Williams, 29 Sol. Jour. 687; and notes to sec. 16 (f) of the Jud. Act, supra, p. 42 et seq.

Issue to be filed.

125. Where an issue is directed to be tried it shall, if the parties differ, be settled in chambers, and as soon as settled be filed in the office in which the proceedings are carried on, and thereafter the proceedings in the issue shall be carried on in the same manner as the proceedings in an action. C.R. 377, amended.

An issue is in the nature of a pleading, and besides being filed, must also be served: see Rule 140.

Semble, where an interpleader issue is ordered in an action, the issue should be filed where the action was commenced, even though the interpleader application be made elsewhere, e.g., where in an action commenced in an outer county, the application for an interpleader issue is made in Toronto; "The proceedings" would mean "the proceedings in the action in which the application is made" and not "the interpleader proceedings."

Where proceedings are initiated in Toronto, the Central Office is the proper office to file the issue: Rules 625, 626.

Parties may concur in stating special case.

126.—(1) The parties to any cause may concur in stating questions of law arising, in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court; and may agree that on the judgment of the Court being given in the affirmative or negative of the question or questions of law raised, certain specific relief may be awarded.

(2) Upon the argument of the case the whole contents of the documents referred to therein may be read, and the Court may draw from the facts and documents any inference, either of fact or law, as at a trial. C.R. 372.

See Eng. (1883), R. 389.

C. R. 372 provided for the statement of a special case "in any pending matter not commenced by writ": the present Rule may possibly have as wide an effect; see Rule 3 (b) (j). Rule 128.

The Rule provides for the statement of a special case "in any cause" which probably includes not only actions commenced by writ of summons, but also matters commenced in any other way authorized by the Rules. Where the case is stated in a proceeding not commenced by writ, The Judicature Act, s. 135, supra, protects persons acting under any judgment made on the special case, in like manner as if the judgment had been pronounced in an action commenced by writ. A special case, on its being filed, may be registered as a lis pendens, whether stated in an action commenced by writ or not: Ib., s. 136. Special cases, how stated

The Rule does not appear to contemplate that proceedings may be commenced by filing a special case; but that the stating of a special case shall be ancillary to an action, or some other proceeding already commenced.

Stating Case.—Former C. R. 318 provided that a special case is to be stated concisely and in numbered paragraphs: Bulkeley v. Hope, 9 D. M. & G., 36; and by C. R. 374 it was to be signed by the parties or their solicitors, and filed by the plaintiff; but these provisions are not continued in the present Rules, but probably no alteration of practice is intended by the omission. Stating case.

As to stating special cases where infants, or other persons not sui juris, are interested, see Jud. Act, s. 3, and notes, supra, p. 24.

The Rules authorize the stating of a special case before statement of claim: Metropolitan Board v. New River Co., 1 Q. B. D. 727; 2 Q. B. D. 67.

Where pleadings are delivered, and are admitted to state the facts, the case may come on as a motion for judgment under Rule 222: see Till v. Till, 15 Ont. 133.

A special case must be upon a real state of facts, not a hypothetical one: Republic of Bolivia v. Bolivian Navigation Co., 24 W. R. 361; Bright v. Tyndall, 4 Ch. D. 189; Pryse v. Pryse, L. R. 15 Eq. 86; Smith v. Gibson, 25 L. T. 559; 20 W. R. 88; Savage v. Tyers, 20 W. R. 817; Bardwell v. Sheffield Water Works Co., L. R. 14 Eq. 517; and where stated in an action, only such questions of law can properly be raised as must necessarily arise in the action: Republic of Bolivia v. Bolivian Navigation Co., 24 W. R. 361; Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 9 O. L. R. 33. The Court should not be asked, upon a case stated without pleadings, to answer questions which could not be raised upon proper pleadings: Taylor v. Compbell, Postmaster-General, 33 U. C. Q. B. 264. The Court will not entertain a case in an action in which the Court has no jurisdiction: Attorney-General v. Cameron, 26 Ont. App. 103. Must be on real and not hypothetical facts.

The following are examples of special cases under The Judicature Act:—Lysaght v. Edwards, 2 Ch. D. 499 (a question arising in an action for specific performance): Gen. Finance Co. v. Liberator, B. S., 19 Ch. D. 15 (a question of title, in an action for recovery of land): Wilson v. Dundas, W. N. 1875, 232 (a question as to the liability of a garnishee); Morshall v. Aiglewood, W. N. 1881, 3 (a question as to the construction of the power of appointment in a Examples.

will); Ashbury v. Watson, 51 L. T. 766 (a question under the Companies Act); Rosher v. Rosher, 26 Ch. D. 801; 51 L. T. 785 (a question as to the validity of a condition annexed to a devise in fee).

A defence in the nature of a demurrer may be set up to a special case: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 23 Ont. App. 566.

Amending special case.

Except by consent, a special case, after having been finally agreed to, cannot be reopened: Hamilton v. Staley, 28 Sol. Jour. 478; and see Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 23 Ont. App. 566. Affidavits cannot be received to alter or modify a special case stated by consent. The only relief open to the party complaining that a case has been mis-stated, is to apply to amend or vacate it, and quære whether it can be amended after judgment, except by consent: Cousineau v. City of London F. Ins. Co., 15 Ont. 329: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297.

Semble, in case of error, the Court may, at the hearing, order a special case to be amended: Rule 183, The Immacolata Concezione, 9 P. D. 37; and a special case was amended by leave, at the hearing, by adding a party in existence before the case was filed, but accidentally omitted, and the case, as amended, was ordered to be set down against the added defendant: Barnaby v. Tassell, L. R. 11 Eq. 363. Where new parties come into existence after a special case is set down they should be made parties to the proceeding: Palmer v. Flower, 18 W. R. 887; Atty. v. Etough, L. R. 13 Eq. 462; Savoge v. Snell, L. R. 11 Eq. 264. See Peter v. Peter, W. N. 1884, 45, 60; 32 W. R. 409, and 515, in note to Rule 301.

Amendment after judgment on a special case was refused in Re Taylor, Tomlin v. Underhay, 22 Ch. D. 495; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297. But where a special case is stated in an action, and a decision given upon it, under a mistake of fact, the Court is not bound by the decision, unless it has been adopted by subsequent orders, but may disregard it and direct the action to go on to trial: Re Taylor, Tomlin v. Underhay, supra, and East v. O'Connor, 19 P. R. 301.

Setting down special case.

Setting Down, and Notice.—Under the present Rules a motion for judgment on a special case is to be set down, and notice thereof given, as upon motions for judgment in other cases: see Rules 215, 234 (b).

Upon the argument of a special case stated in replevin, the plaintiff has the right to begin: Vigar v. Dudman, 24 L. T. 734.

Judgment on special case.

Judgment.—The Court is not bound to answer every question the parties may think fit to put: Viscount Barrington v. Liddell, 2 DeG. M. & G. 480, 506; Seton 34. It will not in general declare future rights: Savage v. Tyers, 20 W. R. 817; Lady Langdale v. Briggs, 8 DeG. M. & G. 426, 427, 428: Earl of Tyrone v. Waterford, 6 Jur. N. S. 567; Greenwood v. Sutherland, 10 Ha. App. xii.; Garlick v. Lawson, Ib., xiv.; but has occasionally done so: Bogg v. Midland, L. R. 4 Eq. 310; Byam v. Byam, 19 Beav. 58; nor will the Court make any order where the facts stated do not enable it to determine the rights of the parties: Bulkeley v. Hope, 8 DeG. M. & G. 36.

In a special case stated in an action only such questions will be answered as must necessarily arise in the action: Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., supra, p. 547.

A very special order having, by consent, been made for the purpose of obtaining the judgment of the Court under Eng. R. 1875, O. 40, r. 8, the Master of the Rolls discharged the order, as the effect of it would be to make the Judge an arbitrator between the parties, who would thus, contrary to their intention, be deprived of the right of appeal: Republic of Bolivia v. Bolivia Navigation Co., W. N. 1876, 77; 24 W. R. 361. Rule 127.

Where the answers to the special case dispose of the action, the proper course is, to take the decision as a judgment making declarations to the same effect; and the answers ought to be followed by the words: "and this Court doth adjudge and declare the same accordingly." In such a case the Registrar was directed to draw up the judgment as answering the special case, on motion for judgment: Harrison v. Cornwall Minerals Railway Co., 16 Ch. D. 66.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from the judgment on a special case to the Appellate Division: Re Taylor's Estate 22 Ch. D. 495; see Allum v. Dickinson, 9 Q. B. D. 632, and Jud. Act, s. 26, supra. Appeal from judgment on special case.

Where a special case is calculated to raise for decision questions of fact only, the proceedings are extra cursum curiæ; the judgment is in the nature of an arbitrator's award, and an appeal cannot be entertained, if objected to (except, perhaps, where it could be had from the award of an arbitrator): Burgess v. Morton, 1896, A. C. 136; 73 L. T. 713.

127. A plaintiff may, without leave, amend his statement of claim, including a claim specially indorsed on the writ, once, either before the statement of defence has been delivered, or after it has been delivered and before the expiration of the time limited for reply, and before replying. C.R. 300 and 1247. Amendment by plaintiff without leave.

This Rule applies to a statement of claim which has been served out of the jurisdiction, where the defendant has appeared, and where it is amended it will not be necessary to re-serve the writ: Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 346, the amended pleading must, of course, be delivered to a defendant who has appeared: see Rule 128; sed quære, where the defendant has not appeared: see Rule 35; but, notwithstanding that Rule, if the amendment enlarges, or is otherwise a substantial variation of, the plaintiff's claim as notified to the defendant either by indorsement on the writ, or statement of claim, semble he should be served with the amended statement of claim; especially having regard to Rule 354: see Gee v. Bell, infra, p. 550, and Re Hartley, 1891, 2 Ch. 121, and notes to Rule 183, infra, p. 643. Where an amended writ is served a second appearance is not necessary, the first appearance stands as an appearance to the amended writ: Paxton v. Baird, 1893, 1 Q. B. 139. Amendment of statement of claim.

Where leave to amend is necessary, and defendant is out of the jurisdiction, the plaintiff must shew that the claim as proposed to be amended is one for which he would have been entitled to leave to issue a writ for service out of Ontario under Rule 25: Holland v. Leslie, supra; Hogaboom v. MacCulloch, 17 P. R. 377. It would seem, therefore, that a claim introduced by amendment made under this Rule without Where defendant out of jurisdiction.

leave, must be of the like character as that originally made, otherwise the defendant may apply to have it disallowed.

In Malcolm v. Race, 16 P. R. 331, it was held that a defendant who simply files a joinder of issue to the statement of claim, thereby closes the pleadings; and semble, in such a case a plaintiff would be precluded from amending under this Rule.

Chancery Practice.

The former Chancery practice which furnishes a guide to the procedure under this Rule, warranted the addition, under an order of course to amend, of a plaintiff: Dunn v. McLean, 6 P. R. 97, or defendant: Attorney-General v. Nethercoat, 2 M. & Cr. 604; but not the striking out of a defendant, or of a plaintiff, if any of defendants had answered: Dunn v. McLean, supra. As, however, this Rule relates to the amendment of a pleading only, and as an action is not now commenced by a pleading but by a writ, it would seem that no alteration in the frame of the action as to parties can be made by amendment under this Rule. It is to be observed also that Rule 134 (3) points to the service of added defendants with a writ.

It has been held under the similar provisions of the Irish Judicature Act, that a plaintiff amending without leave may not add a fresh cause of action not covered by the indorsement of the writ, and that such an amendment is liable to be moved against under Rule 137: Moore v. Alwill, 8 L. R. Ir. 245. Such an amendment may affect the costs of prior pleadings, and on a motion under Rule 137 such costs may be provided for, but under the English practice, and now in Ontario (see Rule 109), it is not the rule that the statement of claim must be no wider than the claim indorsed on the writ: see Johnson v. Palmer, 4 C. P. D. 258; and Bourke v. Alexandra Hotel Co., W. N. 1877, 30 (except when a defendant has not appeared, and a statement of claim has to be delivered, in order to found a motion for judgment): Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160; 56 L. T. 305; and see Gibson v. Hieb, 1 O. L. R. 247, where defendant, by appearance, waived objection; and there seems to be no reason why the plaintiffs should not, except as to parties, make under this Rule as large amendments as by the former Chancery practice might have been made under an order of course: as to which see McGillivray v. McConkey, 6 P. R. 56. The provisions of Rule 137 will enable the defendant to obtain the imposition of any terms that may be just.

Extension of claim by amendment.

Where the writ claimed damages for wrongful dismissal and slander, but the statement of claim was confined to the former cause of action only, an amendment, made under this Rule, setting up the second cause of action was held to be proper: Rodger v. Noxon Co., 19 P. R. 327.

Where a plaintiff has obtained discovery, he cannot thereafter, by amendment, add a claim which, if it had been originally made, would have disentitled him to discovery, e.g., a claim for penalties: Rose v. Croden, 3 O. L. R. 383.

Amendment as to place of trial.

The plaintiff may not change the place of trial by amendment under this Rule: Bull v. North British, etc., Co., 10 P. R. 622; and it has also been held in England that he may not, by amendment under this Rule, supply an omission to name the place of trial in his statement of claim: Locke v. White, 33 Ch. D. 308. But this may not be so in Ontario, for it would not be known where the place of trial was to be; while in England the effect of omitting to name any place is that the action is to be tried at the Middlesex Sittings. Such an amendment in England, therefore, would amount to changing the place of trial without order, but would not have that effect here. See also Powell v. Cobb, 52 L. T. 183. Rule 128.

Where the plaintiff amends after a statement of defence has been put in, the defendant may amend his statement of defence under Rule 128; or put in a new defence, or may proceed with his original defence: Boddy v. Wall, 7 Ch. D. 164 (not following Darling v. Lawrence, 46 L. J. Chy. 808; W. N. 1877, 182). Where the plaintiff amends by striking out claims to which certain paragraphs of the defence make an answer, so that they are no longer necessary, it would seem that the defendant need not amend by striking them out: Christy v. Ion Specialty Co., 18 C. L. T. 85; 34 C. L. J. 103. If he neither amends nor puts in a new defence, the original defence will stand as a defence to the amended statement of claim: see Rule 128. Amendment by opposite party.

After an order which extended the time for delivery of the defence until after particulars of claim should be delivered, an amended statement of claim delivered without leave was held to be irregular: Anthony v. Blain, 5 O. L. R. 48. And see Confederation Life v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 648. Time limited for amendment.

Where, after judgment, a defect in the pleadings is required to be amended, ordinarily the judgment will have to be vacated: Wilgress v. Crawford, 12 P. R. 658; Clark v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54; after a final judgment in favour of defendant, an amendment by adding a party plaintiff so as to reconstitute the suit was refused: see Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; 1898, A. C. 447; and Rules 183 and 521, and notes. Amendment after judgment.

Where a defendant is prejudiced, or embarrassed, by an amendment under this Rule, he may move to strike out, or disallow the amendment: see Rule 137. On such a motion, if the amendment is allowed to stand, terms may be imposed in a proper case.

See Eng. (1883) R. 312.

The giving of security for costs has been imposed as a term where a new case was raised by the amendment: Northampton Coal, Iron & Waggon Co. v. Midland Waggon Co., 7 Ch. D. 500. See also Bourne v. Coulter, 50 L. T. 321; 53 L. J. Chy. 699. Terms imposed.

Where the plaintiff issued a writ indorsed for the recovery of land, claiming as reversioner and under a surrender of a lease, and the defence was that the lease was in effect a mortgage, and the surrender was obtained by fraud; an amendment by the plaintiff asking, in the alternative, foreclosure of the land as mortgagee, was disallowed on motion: McIlhargey v. McGinnis, 9 P. R. 157.

Where a plaintiff strikes out allegations so as to make the answer of defendant useless, the defendant may apply for the costs unnecessarily incurred: see McGillivray v. McConkey, 6 P. R. 56; Clarkson v. White, 4 Ont. 663; Strickland v. Strickland, 3 Beav. 242; Mavar v. Dry, 2 S. & S. 113; Mounsey v. Burnham, 1 Ha. 22; Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 351-2; Bourne v. Coulter, 50 L. T. 321; 53 L. J. Chy. 699; Sidebottom v. Hooton Park Club, 18 T. L. R. 453. See also Weldon v. Neal, 19 Q. B. D. 394, in note to Rule 137. Costs.

128. Where a plaintiff has amended his statement of claim the opposite party shall plead thereto or amend his pleading within the time he then has to plead, or Pleading or amendment by the other party after amendment.

within ten days from the delivery of the amendment, whichever shall last expire, and in case the opposite party has pleaded before the delivery of the amendment and does not plead again or amend within the time above mentioned, he shall be deemed to rely on his original pleading in answer to such amendment. C.R. 302.

The Eng. (1883) R. 313 is similar.

For the reason for the latter provision, see Boddy v. Wall, 7 Ch. D. 164; Powell v. Jewesbury, 9 Ch. D. 34.

This Rule has been held not to apply where amendments are made under an order: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378.

Amendment by consent.

129. Either party may amend his pleadings at any time on filing the written consent of the opposite party. C.R. 303.

Application for leave to amend.

130. An amendment may be made by leave of the Court, or of the Judge at the trial, and such amendment shall be at once made on the face of the record. C.R. 304.

The Eng. (1883) R. 314 is to the same effect.

Rule 127 provides for an amendment, without leave, of the statement of claim: Rule 128 provides for an amendment without leave of the statement of defence. This Rule empowers the Court to give leave to amend, either (a) as an interlocutory application or (b) at the trial. It is only where the amendment is made at the trial that the latter part of the Rule applies; in such a case the officer attending the trial should make the amendment allowed, on the record, and no formal order is necessary, but judgment ought not to be entered till the amendment is made. Where the amendment is granted on an interlocutory application a formal order is necessary.

Where Rules 127, 128, do not apply, or the time for making an amendment thereunder has expired, if an amendment is desired it must be applied for under this Rule.

A counter-claiming defendant must therefore now make special application if he desires to amend his counter-claim, unless the opposite party consents: Rule 129.

Principles on which amendment of pleadings allowed.

Amendment of Pleadings by Leave.—General Principles.—Amendments which justice requires are to be allowed: see Rule 183 and notes; but it is to be justice to both parties; therefore the allowance of amendments to pleadings is subject to limitations to meet the requirements of justice, and so that the whole nature of the action may not be changed by amendment: Blenkhorne v. Penrose, 29 W. R. 237; 43 L. T. 668; Raleigh v. Goschen, 1898, 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429; Rose v. Croden, supra, p. 550; and subject also to whether justice will be advanced, having regard to the nature of the proposed amendment: McIlhargey v. McGinnis, 9 P. R. 157; Caughill v. Clark, 9 P. R. 471; 3 Ont. 269; Hendricks v. Montagu, 17 Ch. D. 642; Weldon v. Neal, 19 Q. B. D. 394; and to the time when the application is made: see Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; 10 App. Cas. 249, and other cases, infra. Rule 130.

An action may, by amendment of the writ and statement of claim, be turned into an action by the Attorney-General at the suit of a relator, without prejudice to a pending motion in the action; the necessary sanction of the Attorney-General being obtained: Coldwell v. Pagham Harbour, etc., Co., 2 Ch. D. 221; see Mounsey v. Earl of Lonsdale, L. R. 6 Chy. 141.

An action against a Minister of the Crown will not be allowed to be amended, so as to make it an action also against the defendant as a private individual: Roleigh v. Goschen, 1898, 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429; and see Smith v. Boyd, 18 P. R. 76, 296.

In Corgill v. Bower, 4 Ch. D. 78, a defendant, who had put in a joint defence with another, was allowed to amend by raising defences separately from his co-defendant, and an affidavit showing the nature of the new defence sought to be raised, or its materiality, was not required: see also Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 391; and Chesterfield v. Block, 25 W. R. 409. From subsequent cases, however, it is clear that, provided the position of the cause is such that the granting leave to amend will not work injustice to the opposite party, the materiality of the amendment is a matter for consideration on the motion, and it would seem that the Court or Judge has power to consider the amendment and refuse to allow an amendment which is immaterial, or does not appear to be true, or capable of being substantiated: see McIlhargey v. McGinnis, 9 P. R. 157, or which would set up an unmeritorious defence, where the time for raising it without leave has expired: see Caughill v. Clark, 9 P. R. 471; 3 Ont. 269; Oates v. Foresters, 4 Ont. 535; Machado v. Fontes, 45 W. R. 565; 1897, 2 Q. B. 231; Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 348. Materiality of amendment.

Where an amendment of a matter of account as stated in the pleadings would be allowed before judgment, a similar amendment in respect of accounts filed should be allowed in the Master's Office: Court v. Holland, 4 Ont. 688.

Stage of Proceedings.—Application should be made at as early a stage as possible. Delay will be a circumstance to be considered in forming an opinion as to the justice of allowing an amendment: Clark v. Wray, 31 Ch. D. 68. The Rules apply and confer power to allow an amendment so long as anything remains to be done in the case: The Duke of Buccleuch, 1892, P. 212. Stage of proceedings when amendments allowed.

It is not necessarily too late after reply or issue joined: Chesterfield v. Black, 25 W. R. 409; after the cause is entered for trial: Roe v. Davies, 2 Ch. D. 729; at the trial: Budding v. Murdoch, 1 Ch. D. 42; King v. Corke, Ib., 57; Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 388; Dallinger v. St. Albyn, 41 L. T. 406; Green v. Sevin, Ib., 589, 595; Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 17 Ch. D. 721, 724; Laird v. Briggs, 19 Ch. D. 22; Russell v. Canada Life Ass. Co., 32 C. P. 256; Blenkhorn v. Penrose, 29 W. R. 237; Nottage v. Jackson, 11 Q. B. D. 627; Riding v. Hawkins, 14 P. D. 56; or after a new trial has been ordered (in which last case the action is in the same position as if it was at issue, and had not been tried): Hunter v. Boyd, 6 O. L. R. 639. (In such cases the opposite party may sometimes obtain costs incurred in respect to the old pleadings: see Dan. Prac., 5th ed., 351-52; or, if a plaintiff, he may have the opportunity given him to consider whether he will discontinue: see Edison Telephone Co. When allowed.

v. India Rubber Co., 17 Ch. D. 137). An amendment may also be allowed after interlocutory judgment, but before assessment of damages: The Duke of Buccleuch, supra, p. 553; after verdict, but before judgment: Stillway v. Toronto, 20 On. 98; Noad v. Murrow, 40 L. T. 100; or on application for a new trial: Ecklin v. Little, 34 Sol. Jour. 546; but an application after final judgment is too late, except upon the terms of vacating the judgment: Wilgress v. Crawford, 12 P. R. 658; Clarke v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54. See also Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 774; and see notes to Rule 128, p. 552.

At the trial where all the evidence that could throw light on the case has been given, it is a mere matter of form to adapt the pleadings to the matters proved: Gough v. Bench, 6 Ont. 699; in order to determine the real matter intended to be tried: Smith v. Boyd, 18 P. R. 76 (but see 18 P. R. 296); Stillway v. Toronto, 20 Ont. 98; see also The Dictator, 1892, P. 64; Wyatt v. Rosherville, 2 T. L. R. 282, and Modera v. Modera, 10 T. L. R. 89, where a greatsr sum having been awarded than was claimed, amendments accordingly were made in the writ and pleadings.

Leave to amend should, as a rule, be asked before argument of the case as it stands has failed: Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; James v. Smith, 1891, 1 Ch. 384; Browne v. Dunn, 6 R. 67; Sales v. Lake Erie, etc., Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 224.

Motion before Trial.—The Master in Chambers, or other officer having like jurisdiction, may entertain applications to amend: see Rules 205, 207 (4), 208; see notes to Rule 208.

The application should be made in Chambers before trial, as a general thing: Marriott v. Marriott, 26 W. R. 416. It should be made ordinarily to the Master in Chambers, or like officer, upon notice, and the amendments should be specified, or their nature stated, either in the notice of motion, or in the affidavits in support of it: see Lawrance v. Lord Norreys, 39 Ch. D. 218. The condition in which the action stands should also be shewn.

Amendments allowed.

Amendments Allowed.—In Tildesley v. Harper, 10 Ch. D. at p. 396; Bramwell, L.J., said his practice in Chambers had been to give leave to amend, unless satisfied that the party applying was acting malâ fide, or that by his blunder he had done some injury to his opponent which could not be compensated for by costs or otherwise: followed in Re Trufort, Trafford v. Blanc, 34 W. R. 56; 53 L. T. 498; Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 770, 773; Claparede v. Commercial Union, 32 W. R. 151, 282. see also Crapper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 711; Shickle v. Lawrence, 2 T. L. R. 776; Steward v. Metropolitan, etc., 18 Q. B. D. 180; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297 (see S. C. in P. C., 1898, A. C. 447; 78 L. T. 270). For the similar rule in cases where an extension of time is applied for, see notes to Rule 491, infra.

The Court of Appeal in Tildesley v. Harper, supra, p. 553, applied, in respect of an amendment at the trial, the same principles as if the application had been made before trial on motion: see Green v. Serin, 13 Ch. D. 589, 595.

Where, by a slip in pleading, the legality of a will intended to be impeached was admitted, leave to amend was granted: Smith v. Smith, 5 Ont. 690, 898.

Leave to amend will generally be granted where there has been a slip in pleading, but not, in general, so as to raise a fresh cause of action: Clarke v. Yorke, 31 W. R. 62; 47 L. T. 381; see Budding v. Murdoch, 1 Ch. D. 42; Roleigh v. Goschen, 1898, 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429. Rule 130.

Leave to amend may be granted, though the proposed amendments set up a case not raised by the claim, and may require an adjournment to obtain fresh evidence: Budding v. Murdoch, 1 Ch. D. 42; see, however, the remarks as to the headnote to that case, Re St. Nazaire Co., 12 Ch. D. at p. 92; Betts v. Doughty, 5 P. D. 26. And leave will in general be granted, on proper terms, so as to enable the real question between the parties to be tried: Laird v. Briggs, 19 Ch. D. 22; Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 770, 773; but see Smith v. Boyd, 18 P. R. 76, 296. See also notes to Rule 183.

Under this Rule, and Rule 183, a plaintiff was allowed to amend his statement of claim in an action on a building contract, by increasing the amount claimed for extras, and to amend his reply by changing acceptance into non-acceptance of money paid into Court, the Court being satisfied that the plaintiff had made a mistake, and, on finding it out, had moved with reasonable promptness to correct it, and that no real prejudice was done to the defendant: Chevalier v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 219.

An amendment was also allowed in an action for an account of certain securities, by setting up that the defendants had no right to the securities at all, having obtained them by undue means: Stuart v. Bank of Montreal, 14 O. L. R. 487.

Where leave is necessary and the defendant is out of the jurisdiction, the plaintiff must shew that the amended claim is in respect of a cause of action which would have entitled him, had it been preferred in the first instance, to leave to issue the writ for service out of the jurisdiction: Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 346; Hogaboom v. McCulloch, 17 P. R. 377.

A defendant was allowed to amend his defence by setting up the Statute of Limitations as an additional defence: Patterson v. Central Canada L. & S. Co., 17 P. R. 470; and see Williams v. Leonard, 16 P. R. 544; 17 P. R. 73; and Hogaboom v. McCulloch, 17 P. R. 377; Siven v. Temiskaming Mining Co., 2 O. W. N. 129.

As to setting up the Statute of Frauds: see Elmsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 425, 525.

Amendments Refused.—The Court has, however, a discretion as to the amendment: see Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 772; Oates v. Foresters, 4 Ont. 535; and leave was refused at the hearing, where no reason appeared why the bill was not amended when the answer came in: Offord v. Offord, 1 Charl. Ca. (Court) 102; see Lowther v. Heaver, 37 W. R. 55; 59 L. T. 631; and where the effect of allowing an amendment would be to compel the plaintiff to new assign, and adduce new evidence: Edevain v. Cohen, 41 Ch. D. 563; 43 Ch. D. 187; or where the added claim would take away a defence, such as of the Statute of Limitations, which had accrued, and would change the substantial rights of the parties: Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722. When refused. Amendments refused.

Leave was refused, where the Judge thought the amendment would merely enable the defendants to raise to the plaintiff's title to sue, a technicnl objection which was not raised on the pleadings (as required by Rule 143), and which the defendant never intended to raise, till he adroitly sought to avail himself of it at the hearing: Collette v. Goode, 7 Ch. D. 842; see also Caughill v. Clark, 9 P. N. 1883, 8; or to raise a charge of fraud when the case hsa besn launched independently of fraud: Hendricks v. Montagu, 17 Ch. D. 642; Bentley v. Black, 9 T. L. R. 580; Symonds v. City Bank, 34 W. R. 364; Lever v. Goodwin, supra (hut see Riding v. Hawkins, 14 P. D. 56); or vice versa; Dunbor v. Meek, 32 C. P. 195; or to raiae a defence under a section of the Statute of Frauds which had not heen pleaded: James v. Smith, 1891, 1 Ch. 884; or to require the addition of parties, and raiae a new case: Nohel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 17 Ch. D. 721; Edevain v. Cohen, supra; Raleigh v. Goschen, 77 L. T. 429; 46 W. R. 92; and were made too late, as where the trini was approaching and ths amendment would have the effect of delaying ths trial: Tottenham Local Board v. Lea Conservancy Board, 80 L. T. Jour. 244; James v. Smith, supra; Clark v. Wroy, 31 Ch. D. 58.

Where a claim was for specific performance, or damages for breach of an agreement, and the plaintiff, pending the action, re-sold the subject of the contract, notifying the defendant of his intention to do so, hut went to trial without amending his claim, it waa hsld that, as he had diaahied himself from enforcing specific performance, the action must hs dismissed. Leave to amend at that stags hy atriking out the specific performance claim waa not conaidered proper: Hipgrave v. Case, 28 Ch. D. 356. Sec also Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; 10 App. Cas. 249.

In an action for personal injuries, the defendanta denied the charge of negligence. After more than six mc..ths they proposed to amend hy alleging a contract that would transfer the liahility to a local body. An action against such local hody was required hy statute to be brought within six months from the accrual of the csuse of action. Leave to amend was accordingly refused, aa the plaintiff would be irremedisbly injured, and could not he restorsd to the same position ss before the defendants' mlatake in pisading: Steward v. Metro- politan, etc., Co., 15 Q. B. D. 556. See also Re Gaulard, 57 L. J. Chy. 209.

Though the Court will not allow an amendment for the purpose of setting up an unmeritorious claim, or defence, yet the defence of the Statute of Limitations is not considered unmeritorious: Patterson v. Central Canada Loan Co., 17 P. R. 470. See also note to Rule 37.

In all cases where a plaintiff seeks to recover at the trial upon a different cause of action from that stated in his pleadings, a formal amendment of the pleadings should be made at the trial: Hyams v. Stuart King, 1908, 2 K. B. 696; 99 L. T. 424, and see Rule 186.

Terms on which amendment allowed.

Terms.—The terms on which an amendment is allowed are in the discretion of the Court or Judge, according to what the justice of the particular case requires: Woolley v. Brood, 1892, 2 Q. B. 317. The opposite party must not be allowed to be prejudiced: Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 774; and will be given all proper opportunity of meeting new matter: see Budding v. Murdoch, 1 Ch. D. 42, and other cases supra, in which application was made at the trial, or, if a plaintiff, he may have an opportunity given him to consider whether he will discontinue: see Edison Telephone Co. v. India Rubber Co., 17 Ch. D. 137.

Where a plaintiff is allowed to amend at the trial by setting up a new case, the defendant is ex debito justitiæ entitled to put in a defence thereto: Elmsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 425, 525, where the Statute of Frauds was allowed to be set up.

Time for amending.

The time to amend, or deliver a new pleading, will vary with each case. Fourteen days was allowed in Planet Building Society v. Part, W. N. 1878, 204; a week in Chesterfield v. Block, 25 W. R. 409; a month in Williamson v. L. & N. W. Railway Co., 12 Ch. D. 787. Where no time is limited by the order, Rule 131 applies.

Costs.

Costs.—Costs are in the discretion of the Court or Judge: Jud. Act, s. 74; and are generally awarded so that the opposite party shall not have to bear the expense, either of the motion to amend, if any, or of proceedings rendered unnecessary, such as costs of trial, if any: Chesterfield v. Block, 25 W. R. 409; Corgill v. Bower, 4 Ch. D. 78; King v. Corke, 1 Ch. D. 57; Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 392; Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 770; Re Goulard, 57 L. J. Chy. 209; or of pleadings, etc., rendered useless: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 351-2; the costs may sometimes be reserved to be disposed of when the merits are tried: Roe v. Davies, 2 Ch. D. 729; and Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 17 Ch. D. 721, in which the costs given to the plaintiffs by the Judge at the trial appear to have included costs of amendments, which apparently were necessary in consequence of disclosures made by defendant's clerk.

Time limited for amendment.

131. A party who has obtained leave to amend shall make the amendment within the time limited by the order, or if no time is limited, within ten days from the date of the order. C.R. 305.

To same effect as the Eng. (1883) R. 315, and as Chy. G. O. 83; Morgan Chy. Orders, 4th ed., 415-17; Dan. Prac., 5th ed., 346.

C. R. 305 provided that if an order to amend was not acted on within the time limited it became ipso facto void. Probably no change in the practice was intended by the omission of that provision from this Rule: see Rule 530.

Rules 132-134.

How alterations to be made.

132. A pleading may be amended by written alterations in the copies filed and served and by additions on paper to be interleaved therewith if necessary; unless the amendments are so numerous or of such a nature that making them in the copies filed and served would render the same difficult or inconvenient to read; in either of which cases the amendment shall be made by delivering a re-print or fresh copy of the pleadings as amended. C.R. 306.

Substantially the same as the Eng. (1883) R. 316.

Under Eng. R., if amendment exceeds two folios, a fresh copy is required.

In John v. Lloyd, L. R. 1 Chy. 64, it was held that, though amendments to a bill did not in any place exceed two folios, the Clerk of Records and Writs had discretion to refuse to file the bill without a reprint, if the amendments were numerous and complicated.

Delivery includes filing, therefore, if a re-print or fresh copy of a pleading is delivered under this Rule it must also be filed: see Rule 140.

Marking of amended pleadings.

133. Where a pleading is amended a memorandum shall be made in the margin stating the date of and authority for the amendment, and the amendment shall be written or underlined in ink of a different colour from that used in the original pleading. C.R. 307.

See Eng. (1883) R. 317.

These directions apply to the copy filed, but an omission to similarly mark the copy of the amended pleading, delivered to the opposite party is unimportant: Honmer v. Clifton, 1894, 1 Q. B. 238; 10 R. 55.

C. R. 308 expressly provided that an amended pleading is to be delivered to the opposite party within the time allowed for amending the same. Under Rule 132 the amendment may be made in the copy served; and for that purpose a demand may be made of the copies served for the purpose of amending the same; or the amended pleading is to be filed and served: the time for making the amendment in the copies served, or serving the amended pleading would appear to be the time allowed for making the amendment, which is not effectually made until the copies served are amended, or the amended pleading is served.

Adding and striking out parties. Substitution and addition of plaintiffs.

134.—(1) The Court may, at any stage of the proceedings, order that the name of a plaintiff or defendant improperly joined, be struck out, and that any person who ought to have been joined, or whose presence is necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon the questions involved in the action, be added; or where an action has through a bonâ fide mistake been commenced in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff, or where it is doubtful whether it has been commenced in the name of the right plaintiff, the Court may order any person to be substituted or added as plaintiff. Rule 134.

(2) No person shall be added or substituted as a plaintiff, or as the next friend of a plaintiff, without his own consent in writing thereto to be filed. Consent required.

(3) Parties added or substituted as defendants shall, unless otherwise ordered, be served with the amended writ of summons, and the proceedings as against them shall be deemed to have begun only at the time when they are added. C.R. 206 and 313. Parties added or substituted to be served with writ.

See Eng. Rules (1883) 124, 133.

See Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 391.

It seems to have been assumed that in some cases a person may be added as a plaintiff without his consent: Murray v. Wurtele, 19 P. R. 288; sed quære if that is correct, having regard to the explicit terms of this Rule: see Winnifrith v. Finkelman, 5 O. W. N. 781.

Clause (3) applies only to the defendants added, or substituted.

The Rule does not provide for serving the original defendants with the amended writ.

The Court of Chancery formerly under Chy. O. 65, exercised a similar power of dealing with the questions raised in a suit, wherever justice could be done to all parties, notwithstanding misjoinder, or nonjoinder: see Lambert v. Hutchinson, 1 Beav. 277, 286. Where necessary, the decree expressly saved the rights of absent parties.

Persons who might have been originally made parties under Rule 66, may be added under this Rule: Liddiard v. Toronto Railway Co., 5 O. L. R. 371 (where, in an action for damages for injuries to the plaintiff occasioned by negligence of defendants, liberty was given to join, as a plaintiff, the plaintiff's infant son who was also injured, making him to sue by his father as next friend).

Misjoinder, though it cannot defeat an action, may affect the costs: Roberts v. Evans, 7 Ch. D. 830.

An application to substitute a plaintiff may be refused, if made so late that to grant it would be no saving of expense as compared with the bringing of a new action: McNabb v. Toronto Construction Co., 2 O. W. N. 992.

Non-joinder.—The Rule extends to cases of non-joinder: Beardmore v. Toronto, 19 O. L. R. 139; Kendall v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas. 516. Ordinarily a plaintiff is entitled to sue, or omit to sue, whomsoever he pleases, and a defendant cannot, except in special circumstances, apply to add parties. In the case of nonjoinder he must usually raise the point as a question of law, that in the absence of those whom he may think necessary parties, it is not competent for the Court to give the relief sought; and this point being determined in his favour, it is then Non-joinder for the plaintiff to apply to add the necessary parties. What is above said with regard to a plaintiff, does not apply to a plaintiff by counter-claim, so far as the counter-claim is concerned.

A defendant cannot obtain an order adding a party as plaintiff without his consent: Winnifrith v. Finkelman, 5 O. W. N. 781; and see clause (2), supra.

As a defendant cannot ordinarily move to add parties, so it is only in exceptional circumstances that third persons can apply to be added as parties. As Lord Justice Bowen humourously said: "'A suit is not like an omnibus in which anyone is entitled to find a place who hails it from the pavement in the course of its journey": see Life of Lord Bowen, p. 185.

Misjoinder.

Misjoinder.—In the case of misjoinder of parties, the case is different, and where a defendant contends that he, or another defendant, is improperly joined as a defendant, he may move to strike out his name as a defendant, or compel the plaintiff to elect against which of the defendants he will proceed, and strike out the name of the other. The defendant should raise any objection of this kind that he may have, at the earliest possible moment: Sheehan v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59, where the objection was not allowed, though taken by the defence; see also Ruston v. Tobin, W. N. 1880, 19; Roberts v. Evans, 7 Ch. D. 830; Scane v. Duckett, 3 Ont. 370. Where the defendant's contention is that additional parties are necessary to enable the action to proceed at all, it would seem, however, that it is sufficient for him to take the objection by his defence, leaving the plaintiff to apply to add parties if so desired: see Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 28 W. R. 653; 42 L. T. 754; 49 L. J. Chy. 726; Lydall v. Mortinson, 5 Ch. D. 780; see also Cornell v. Smith, 14 P. R. 275, an action to establish a will.

If the plaintiff cannot proceed without the addition of parties, the action should not be dismissed, but the parties deemed necessary should be directed to be added by him: VanGelder v. Sowerby Bridge, etc., Soc., 44 Ch. D. 374. If in such a case the trial has to stand over, the question as to how the costs thrown away should be borne will doubtless depend upon which party was in default.

It was held to be too late to raise objection for the first time in the Supreme Court, that the legal representatives of the person injured were not made parties, where a policy was sued on by the person in whose favour it was made: Venner v. Sun Life, 17 S. C. R. 394.

Where the plaintiffs are not persons entitled to bring the action, so that the objection is one of substance, and not merely that other parties should be joined, formerly a demurrer was proper, and now, probably, that objection may be raised by defence: see McClenaghan v. Grey, 4 Ont. 329.

Clause (1) provides a cure for misjoinder, and non-joinder, by striking out, or adding parties. Applications under it may be made by either party, or the Court may act mero motu: Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160. The power given is very extensive, and may be exercised at any stage of the proceedings, before trial on motion, and at the trial: Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160, in a summary way. An order was made after delivery of a statement of claim: Anon., 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 25; but was refused, as being asked for at an unreasonably late stage, where the case had come on for trial, and had been adjourned:

Williams v. Andrews, W. N. 1875, 237; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 60. It cannot be made after the trial, nr after final judgment: Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 765, per Chitty, J., at p. 974; Attorney-General v. Corporation of Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423. In that case new parties had succeeded to the rights and liabilities of the defendants, and it was held on appeal, that the pleadings could not be amended to introduce these parties after final judgment, and that when it became necessary to enforce such a judgment against persons who had acquired a title after it was made, an action must be brought for that purpose; and, after final judgment dismissing an action, it was held to be too late to add a party as plaintiff, in order to remedy an objection of want of proper parties: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297. Where the judgment is not drawn up, however, and can therefore be recalled, the plaintiff may be allowed to amend, and add parties: Keith v. Butcher, 25 Ch. D. 750. Rule 134.

An application to add as a defendant a person who ought to be, but has not been joined, ought to be granted or refused upon the same principles on which a plea in abatement for the non-joinder of such person would have succeeded nr failed: per Lord Cairns in Kendall v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas. 516.

Applications to add, or strike out.—An application to add, or strike out parties, should be made promptly: Sheehan v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59; Williams v. Andrews, W. N. 1875, 237; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 60; Vallance v Birmingham, etc., 2 Ch. D. 369. it may he after delivery of statement of claim: Anon, 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 25; or at the trial, even during examination of witnesses: Ruston v. Tobin, W. N. 1880, 19; King v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160; House Property Co. v. H. P. Horsenail Co., 29 Ch. D. 190; Gondy v. Gandy, 30 Ch. D. 57; though it may under the circumstances be then too late: Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 28 W. R. 653; or in some cases after judgment, if the party to be added does not object: see Re Mason, Turner v. Mason, W. N. 1883, 134, 147; sed quære, see Heard v. Borgwardt, W. N. 1883, 173 and 194, and Hurst v. Hurst, 21 Ch. D. 278, 289; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., supro. Adding or striking out parties.

The order, whether for adding, striking out, or substituting parties, is in the discretion of the Judge; and after trial it was held too late to add new plaintiffs and make a new case: New Westminster Brewing Co. v. Hannah, 24 W. R. 899, and see supra, p. 535; and Northern E. & M. Co. v. Cordova Mines, 31 O. L. R. 221, per Riddell, J., at p. 247.

The Court, in ordering a new trial, may properly add as a party defendsat a person against whom relief is then for the first time claimed in the alternative: Caslon v. Consolidoted Plate Glass Co., 26 Ont. App. 63. This case was reversed, hut nnt on this point: 29 S. C. R. 624.

A voluntary association of individuals forming an unincorporated society cannot be sued in the name of the association, and if so sued, may move to strike out its name as a party defendant: Metallic Roofing Co. v. Local Union, 5 O. L. R. 424. As to the proper way of suing such an association, see Rule 75 and notes.

Where it becomes necessary to enforce a judgment against persons who acquired title after it was made, an action must he brought: Attorney-General v. Corporation of Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423; but see Young v. Huber, 29 Gr. 49; and see Morgon v. Day, Dan. Pr. 5th ed., 463, note (o), Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 166; Kennedy v. Forwell, 11 O. L. R. 389, and Re Parbola, Blackburn v. Porbola, 1909, 2 Ch. 437; 101 L. T. 382.

The application is made in Chambers: see Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552; and on notice: Tildesley v. Harper, 3 Ch. D. 277; Re Colbeck, Hall v. Colbeck. 36 W. R. 259; but an order nisi has under peculiar circumstances heen made ex parte, to become absolute unless moved against within a time named in the order: Re Wortley, Culley v. Wortley, 4 Ch. D. 180; Wilson v. Church, supro.

A motion on behalf of some of several plaintiffs, when all should join, will not be entertained: Re Wright, 1895, 2 Ch. 747.

In Roberts v. Holland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 665, the objection that the plaintiff could not sue alone was raised as a point of law on the pleadings.

Where a plaintiff is added by amendment he is only entitled to such relief as he could have claimed if the action was commenced on the day he was added: see Attorney-General v. Pontypridd Water Works Co., 1908, 1 Ch. 388; 98 L. T. 275.

This Rule does not provide for the issue, or service, of a new, or an amended writ, where a plaintiff is added; nor for service of the amended writ on the original defendants when a new defendant is added: see Jamaica Ry. v. Colonial Bank, 1905, 1 Ch. 677, 694; 92 L. T. 548.

Striking out Parties.—Under the former practice, if a party was improperly joined, the defendant might demur if the impropriety appeared on the face of the proceedings; otherwise it was necessary to defend, and proceed to a hearing of the cause. The present Rule enables the Court, on an interlocutory motion, to strike out a party improperly joined, before expense is incurred.

An objection that a person joined with others as plaintiff has no title to maintain the action is a matter of substance which should be raised on the pleadings, and not by motion to strike out parties under this Rule: Morang v. Rose, 3 O. L. R. 354.

Where an action is brought without proper authority, the action may be stayed in the case of a sole plaintiff; or in case there be several plaintiffs, some of whom have not authorized it, the names of such plaintiffs may be ordered to be struck out. The application may be made by the defendant, or by the parties whose names have been used without authority: Barrie v. Weymouth, 15 P. R. 95; Barrie P. S. Bd. v. Barrie, 19 P. R. 33. If the application is made by the defendant, the parties whose names are to be struck out are necessary parties to the motion: see infra, p. 566; a formal discontinuance of the action is no bar to the motion: Gold Reefs of W. A. v. Dawson, 1897, 1 Ch. 115; 75 L. T. 575.

Where a plaintiff alleged to be of unsound mind, not so found, sued by his next friend, an allegation in the defence that the plaintiff was not of unsound mind, was struck out, as irrelevant, and embarrassing, the proper way of raising such a question being by way of motion to stay the proceedings: Richmond v. Branson, 1914, 1 Ch. 968; 110 L. T. 763.

One of several plaintiffs making a compromise with the defendant is not entitled to have his name struck out as of course. Where a plaintiff desires to retire from an action he may be permitted to do so on giving security for costs, and if he is a necessary party, though his name be struck out as plaintiff, it must be added as a defendant: Re Mathews, Oales v. Mooney, 1905, 2 Ch. 460; 93 L. T. 158. Rule 134.

If a defendant is improperly joined, he should apply to have his name struck out, at the earliest possible moment; but a defendant was struck out on his own application, though he had delivered a statement of defence upon which issue had been joined, and delay only influenced the decision as to the costs: Vallance v. Birmingham & Midland Lands, etc., Corporation, 2 Ch. D. 369. For cases of improper joinder of defendants: see notes to Rule 67.

Where two defendants are sued in the same action, in respect of separate torts, or other distinct and separate causes of action, either may apply to compel the plaintiff to elect against which of them he will proceed, and the name of the other will be struck out: Sadler v. G. W. Ry. Co., 1896, A. C. 450; 74 L. T. 561; Andrews v. Forsythe, 7 O. L. R. 188; Chandler v. Grand Trunk Ry., 5 O. L. R. 589. Plaintiff required to elect against which defendant he will proceed.

Where defendants did not move under this Rule to be struck out, but took part in the defence, they were held jointly liable with other defendants to the costs of the action: Twinbarrow v. Braid, W. N. 1878, 169.

The Court will not virtually try the cause, however, on such an application. Where, therefore, a plaintiff, a builder, sued for work and labour done, and made two persons defendants who occupied the position of lessee and lessor, alleging that there was a doubt which was liable to him, Lush, J., on the application of the lessor, refused to strike him out on his statement that the lessee was liable to do all repairs: Anon. W. N. 1875, 203; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 59. Under an order striking out a defendant, and giving the plaintiff leave to amend, he may not amend by striking out another defendant, even though that defendant's interest was determined: Wymer v. Dodds, 11 Ch. D. 436; Elwon v. Vaughan, W. N. 1879, 69. A defendant sought to be struck out is entitled to notice, that he may be heard as to the question of his costs: Wymer v. Dodds, supra.

A defendant in ejectment, a tenant, whose landlord had obtained leave to defend, and whose lease had expired pending the suit, was not allowed to have his name struck out, as the plaintiff's security would thus be diminished: Johnston v. Oliver, 9 P. R. 353.

Where relief is claimed against a defendant on the ground of tort, he ought not, on his own application, to be struck out; see Healley v. Newton, 19 Ch. D. 336.

Where there is a misjoinder of plaintiffs, a defendant may apply to stay proceedings until the plaintiffs elect which of them shall proceed, and the names of the others will then be struck out. On such an application the Court has no power to impose terms on defendants as regards any defence under the Statute of Limitations which they may have against the plaintiffs whose names are struck out, or to enable the latter to issue new writs nunc pro tunc: Hulmance v. Raleigh, 17 P. R. 458.

Adding Parties.—This Rule is to be read in connection with Rules 66, 67, and 134: Edwards v. Lowther, 24 W. R. 434; and any person who might have been joined originally under the latter Rules may be added under this Rule: see Liddiard v. Toronto Ry., 5 O. L. R. 371; Smith v. Hoseltine, W. N. 1875, 250; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 56; Adding parties.

Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 388, subject to the restrictions hereafter referred to, and to the power of the Judge in his discretion to refuse to interfere if injustice is likely to be done in any way by the addition: see Edwards v. Lowther, 34 L. T. 255. The principles on which the Courts acts under this Rule are discussed in Smith v. London, 19 O. L. R. 139.

The words "who ought to have been joined," in this Rule mean "ought, in order to do complete justice, to have been joined," and, as a general rule, "all parties against whom remedy or relief is sought should, if possible, be joined in the same action": per Archibald, J., in Edwards v. Lowther, 45 L. J. C. P. 419. There, an action was brought against a publisher of a newspaper for libel, and after issue joined the proprietor of the newspaper was added as a defendant on the plaintiff's application.

But the Courts do not interpret the Rules as empowering them to add parties at the instance of a defendant to the same extent as upon the plaintiff's application.

The Rule does not extend to class suits so as to enable one of the class to intervene as plaintiff where the original plaintiff's claim is settled before judgment: Driffill v. Ough, 13 O. L. R. 8.

Adding plaintiffs.

Adding Plaintiffs.—The addition of a plaintiff is subject to the provision of clause (2) of this Rule, that the addition shall be by his consent in writing; (sed vide, Murray v. Wurtele, 19 P. R. 288), but if he consents, the addition may be made against the wish of the other plaintiff, where the right of action has passed from the original plaintiff: Emden v. Corte, 17 Ch. D. 169; 29 W. R. 600: sed quære, in such a case should not the party in whom the cause of action has vested proceed under Rule 300.

Where a party brought an action in his own name instead of in the name of the person in whom the legal title of the property to be recovered was vested, an amendment was allowed adding such party: McGuin v. Fretts, 7 C. L. T. 159; Walcott v. Lyons, 29 Ch. D. 584; and see Ayscough v. Bullor, 41 Ch. D. 341.

But in a later case it was held that if the plaintiff by whom the action was commenced had no cause of action, the adding as a co-plaintiff at the trial a person who had the right of action, would not cure the defect, and the action must fail: see Matthews v. Usher, 1900, 2 Q. B. 535: Colville v. Small, 22 O. L. R. 426, at p. 429; and see Hathoway v. Doig, 6 Ont. App. 264; New Westminster Brewery Co. v. Hannah, 24 W. R. 899; Walcott v. Lyons, 29 Ch. D. 584; see, however, Rule 134 and notes; and Kent v. Communauté des Sœurs de Charité, 1903, A. C. 220.

In De Hart v. Stevenson, 1 Q. B. D. 313, one of the several co-owners of a ship, sued for freight dues; the defendant applied to add the other co-owners as plaintiffs confessedly in order to obtain the benefit of their liability for costs. The application was refused, on the ground that it was not shewn that the presence of the others was necessary in order to completely adjudicate upon and settle the questions arising in the action: see also Horry v. Dovey, 2 Ch. D. 721, and Walcott v. Lyons, supra.

Examples of adding plaintiffs.

In Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 388, an action was brought by a tenant for life for specific performance of an agreement, signed by her "for myself and those entitled after me," to accept a lease of a coal mine. After notice of trial the plaintiff died, and the persons entitled in remainder, of whom the plaintiff's executor was one, wishing to adopt the suit, were at their request added as plaintiffs at the trial. The question whether the action would nevertheless fail was not considered by the Court. Fry, J., said: "I think that at present I have nothing to do with that. The object of the provision was, not that a party's case should be framed so as to succeed, but that it can be adjudicated on by the Court, whether in his favour or against him." Where a plaintiff assigned his interest to a third person, who obtained an order giving him liberty to prosecute the suit in the name of the original plaintiff, it was held on the application of the defendant, that the assignee was bound to amend the title of the action, so as to shew that he was the real plaintiff, and to set forth the assignment, by amendment or otherwise, in the statement of claim: Seear v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121; 43 L. T. 716. Quære, whether the proper procedure in such cases is not under Rule 300. Rule 134.

Where the plaintiffs were lessees of eleven houses for a long term, one being sub-let, they, together with the sub-tenant, brought an action to restrain a nuisance, etc., subsequently the sub-tenant declined to go on. The other ten houses having been let in the meantime, two of the other sub-tenants were, on application, added as co-plaintiffs with their consent: House Property & I. Co. v. H. P. Horsenail Co., 29 Ch. D. 190. The addition of a plaintiff was refused where the effect would be to constitute a new action which the plaintiff in the action commenced could not maintain: Tinning v. Binghom, 16 P. R. 110; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; Durham v. Robertson, supra, p. 554; Hathaway v. Doig, 6 Ont. App. 264.

After judgment finding defendants liable for a collision, the substitution of the owner of the cargo as plaintiff, instead of the then plaintiff, his agent, was allowed so as to enable the owner's damages to be assessed. It was held that judgment finding the liability and leaving the damages to be assessed was not final, and therefore there was a power to act under this Rule: The Duke of Buccleuch, 1892, P. 201.

In an action to restrain defendants from using certain premises as a smallpox hospital, application was made under this Rule by the plaintiff, to join another person with his consent who was an inhabitant of the same neighborhood, on the ground that since the action was commenced the plaintiff had given up his business and was going abroad. An order was refused, on the ground that the cause of action was injury to the plaintiff's own property only, and it was not necessary, to enable the Court effectually to dispose of all questions in the action, that anyone be added: Dolton v. St. Mary Abbotts, 47 L. T. 349. Refusal to add.

Consent of Person added as Plaintiff.—Notwithstanding Murray v. Wurtele, supra, p. 564, the Rule is imperative that a plaintiff cannot be added without his written consent, and the reason is obvious because every person named as plaintiff incurs a liability to be ordered to pay the costs of the action. The consent referred to in clause (2) should be verified by affidavit: see Emden v. Carte, 17 Ch. D. 169; Turquand v. Fearon, 4 Q. B. D. 280; 27 W. R. 396. The practice now requires the consent to be in writing and filed. It must be given personally by the party to be added; the consent in writing of his solicitor, though given with his knowledge, and in his presence, is not a compliance with the Rule, and is insufficient: Fricker v. Von Grutten, 1896, 2 Ch. 649; 75 L. T. 117. The objection that there is Consent of person added as plaintiff.

no consent of a plaintiff sought to be added may be taken by defendant: Turquand v. Fearon, supra, p. 565; see also Jackson v. Kruger, 54 L. J. Q. B. 446; 52 L. T. 962; Tryon v. National Prov., 16 Q. B. D. 678; 54 L. T. 167.

The case of trustee and cestui que trust is no exception to this provision; the trustee's consent will be required in order to make him a co-plaintiff on the application of his cestui que trust: Besley v. Besley, 37 Ch. D. 643; so also where an assignee for the benefit of creditors was sought to be added as a plaintiff in an action by a creditor to set aside a fraudulent conveyance: Bank of London v. Wallace, 13 P. R. 176; and persons alleged by the defendants to be beneficially interested in the subject matter of the action, cannot, on the defendant's application, be added as plaintiffs without their consent in writing: Major v. Mackenzie, 17 P. R. 18.

Where the consent of the absent party cannot be obtained, the plaintiff may, in some cases, be allowed to proceed by making him a defendant.

In Duckett v. Gover, 6 Ch. D. 82, a company was made, by mistake of law, a defendant instead of a plaintiff; and time was given to obtain the consent of the company to be joined as co-plaintiffs: see also Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 97, and Pender v. Lushington, 6 Ch. D. 70. Where a resolution of a company had been passed that the company's name should not be used in an action brought by a shareholder for himself, and also in the name of the company, against directors alleging misapplication of the funds, the company's name was struck out as plaintiff, and leave was given to amend the writ by adding the company as defendants: Silber Light Co. v. Silber, 12 Ch. D. 717. In MacDougall v. Gardiner, 1 Ch. D. 13, 22, it was said that every litigation on a company's behalf should be in the name of the company, if the company really desires it. See also McHenry v. Lewis, 25 So. Jour. 777. Where there is a fraud committed by persons who can command a majority of votes, the minority may sue, and the company need not be plaintiff: see Atwool v. Merryweather, L. R. 5 Eq. 464; Menier v. Hooper, L. R. 9 Chy. 350; Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 107; and see Spokes v. Grosvenor, etc., Hotel Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 679, per Chitty, L.J., but in that case the company must be made a defendant.

Jessel, M.R., in Duckett v. Gover, 25 W. R. 554, said: "An application to strike out the name of a person added as plaintiff without his consent can only be made by the person so added": but where proceedings were instituted without the authority of a company, they were set aside at the instance of defendants: see Cape Breton Co. v. Fenn, W. N. 1881, 23; and see Barrie v. Weymouth, 15 P. R. 95; Barrie Public School Board v. Barrie, 19 P. R. 31.

In Cormack v. Grofrian, W. N. 1876, 22, the action was by a shipowner against consignees of the cargo for demurrage, and a counterclaim was put in for damage to the cargo. Leave was refused to the plaintiff to add as co-plaintiffs the other owners (perhaps because they did not consent), notwithstanding that the plaintiff contended that it was a hardship on him to have to meet the counter-claim alone if others were liable as much as he.

Quære, whether, in such a case, an application by the plaintiff to add them as co-defendants to the counter-claim would have been more successful: see Aikins v. Dominion Live Stock Ass., 17 P. R. 303; and post, p. 569.

In Beck v. Dear, W. N. 1876, 40; 2 Charl. Ch, Ca. 25, the addition of a plaintiff was refused where the object was to bring a counter-claim against him. See also Bank of Commerce v. Bank of B. N. America, 10 P. R. 158; Norris v. Beazley, 2 C. P. D. 80. Rule 134.

See also Secar v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121, supra, where a plaintiff was, in effect, added on a defendant's application.

In Emden v. Carte, 17 Ch. D. 169, a trustee of a bankrupt plaintiff was added as a plaintiff, and the conduct of the action given to him on his own application, he alleging that the interest in the action had passed from the plaintiff to him. A similar order was made in Bird v. Matthews, 46 L. T. 512; see also Woodward v. Shields, 32 C. P. 282, and notes to Rule 301.

In Saylor v. Cooper, 2 Ont. 398, where the equitable owner of land sued in respect of a right of way of necessity implied by a grant of land, he was permitted to make the owner of the legal estate a co-plaintiff, by amendment at the hearing; and see Lynes v. Snaith, 1899, 1 Q. B. 486; 80 L. T. 122.

An amendment by adding a plaintiff ought not to be allowed so as to prejudice the defendant's right to set up the Statute of Limitations as against the added party: see Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722; affirmed by C. A.: see 88 L. T. Jour. 253.

This Rule does not provide for the issue, or service, of an amended writ, where a plaintiff is added: see McNabb v. Toronto Construction Co., supra, p. 559, nor for serving upon the original defendants an amended writ when a new party is added: see Jamaica Ry. v. Colonial Bank, 1905, 1 Ch. 677, 694; 92 L. T. 548. As to when an amended writ should be served, see notes to Rule 183.

Actions have been sometimes inadvertently brought by the wrong person, as by cestui que trust, instead of trustee: by mortgagor, instead of mortgagee. The same mistake has been made where it was matter of real difficulty to say which of the two persons ought to sue, as in the case of contracts made by agents, as to which it is sometimes a question of much nicety to determine who ought to sue. The object of this Rule is to prevent such actions becoming abortive. Substitution and addition of plaintiffs.

Where an action has, through a bonâ fide mistake, been commenced in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff, the fact that the original plaintiff has no cause of action, does not take away the jurisdiction of the Court to order the substitution of another person as plaintiff: Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co. (No. 2), 1902, 2 K. B. 485; 87 L. T. 359.

The bonâ fide mistake, which must be shewn, may be one of law: Duckett v. Gover, 6 Ch. D. 82; Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 97.

An application under this Rule to substitute a plaintiff can only be made by the plaintiff on the record: Clowes v. Hilliard, 4 Ch. D. 413; and can be made only in cases where a bonâ fide mistake has occurred, which has been discovered after action brought; as where a new partner was brought into a firm before the dealing in question; but it is not intended to confer upon the Judge unlimited discretion to remodel the proceedings: per Mellor, J., in Turquand v. Fearon, 4 Q. B. D. at p. 282. In Smith v. Haseltine, W. N. 1875, 250; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 56, Huddlestone, B., said: "You have to satisfy me of two things: 1st, that there has been a bonâ fide mistake in the issue of the writ; and 2nd, that it is a necessary change;" see also Clowes v. Hilliard, supra, p. 567.

Substitution of plaintiff.

In an action by assignees of insolvents, the Judge at the trial held that the claim sued for did not pass, under the circumstances, to the assignees. The defendants having been given time during the sittings to ascertain whether they had any defence to an suit by the insolvents, the latter were added under this Rule as plaintiffs, and judgment was given in their favour, but without costs: Woodward v. Shields, 32 C. P. 282; but see Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 774; see also Emden v. Carte, 17 Ch. D. 169.

Where in a foreclosure action the plaintiff's solicitor swore that although he knew another person was interested in the mortgage he did not know when the action was commenced, as the fact was, that the mortgage had been assigned to such other person, the assignee was substituted as plaintiff: Biggar v. Kemp, 17 O. L. R. 360.

In an action to restrain the violation of a covenant, and for damages, the plaintiff was advised, after action commenced, that there was something in her title which might act as a personal bar to her obtaining relief. An amendment by making another person a co-plaintiff who was also entitled to the benefit of the same covenant was allowed, the real question being the effect of the covenant: Ayscough v. Bullar, 41 Ch. D. 341. Where a new plaintiff is thus added, the action, as regards him, is to be deemed to have been commenced, only from the date of his being added: Ib. See also Walcott v. Lyons, 29 Ch. D. 584.

Adding defendants on plaintiff's application.

Adding Defendants.—On the plaintiff's application, as a rule, all persons may, on proper terms, be added, against whom the plaintiff desires to proceed, and whom he might have made defendants originally.

A person whom plaintiff was entitled to join originally under Rules 66, 67, as a defendant, was added upon proper terms on the plaintiff's application after he had obtained discovery: Tate v. Natural Gas Co., 18 P. R. 82.

A plaintiff, the assignee of a book debt, in an action against the debtor, was allowed to add the assignor, and make an alternative claim against him in the event of the debtor succeeding in his defence: Langley v. Law Society of U. C., 3 O. L. R. 245.

On defendant's application.

Whether a defendant will be added, or not, upon a defendant's application, depends upon whether the adjudication upon, and settling of, the questions arising in the action requires the presence of the person proposed to be added: Harry v. Davey, 2 Ch. D. 721. In general a defendant will not be added against the plaintiff's will, unless his presence is necessary to enable the Court to effectually and completely settle all matters in question, and unless the parties will be prejudiced by his non-joinder: Leduc v. Ward, 54 L. T. 214; McCheane v. Gyles, No. 2, 1902, 1 Ch. 911; 86 L. T. 217. In Norris v. Beazley, 2 C. P. D. 80, a defendant sought to add a person as a defendant; the person sought to be added consented, and the object of the application was to enable such person to set up a counter-claim against the plaintiff, (and see Montgomery v. Foy, Morgan & Co., 1895, 2 Q. B. 321). The plaintiff objected, and it was held that this Rule should not be made use of in a manner harassing to plaintiffs, by forcing them to include in their action persons against whom they do not seek to proceed, unless a strong case is made out, showing that, in the particular case, justice cannot be done without the person being brought in.

Denman, J., thers said: "We ought not to act upon it (the Rule) by adding a defendant without the consent of the plaintiff, except in cases where it is clearly made out that it is necessary to do so." Rule 134.

In Drage v. Hortopp, 28 Ch. D. 414, (where one executor brought an action for foreclosure without joining either as plaintiff or defendant his co-executor who had absconded to avoid prosecution for fraud), the Court refused to require the plaintiff to join the absentee as a party; and see also Toronto & Hamilton Navigation Co. v. Silcox, 12 P. R. 622, and Sanders v. Peck, 50 L. T. 630; 32 W. R. 462; Peterson v. Fredericks, 15 P. R. 361.

The addition of a defendant contemplated by this Rule, is not a person against whom the original defendant may have a remedy over: Hewitt v. Heise, 11 P. R. 47; or for contribution, or indemnity: see Re Harrison, 1891, 2 Ch. 349 (as to which see Rule 165), Peterson v. Fredericks, 15 P. R. 361; McChesney v. Gyles, No. 2, 1902, 1 Ch. 911: nor of a person claimed by a defendant to be liable to the plaintiff instead of himself: Lerculey v. Horrison, W. N. 1876, 39; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 26; Lovell v. Holland, W. N. 1876, 53; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 26; Thompson v. London County Council, 1899, 1 Q. B. 840; 80 L. T. 512. In such case the defendant can defend himself without the presence of the other party; and if the plaintiff does not proceed against the other party, the defendant is not injured. But the Rule has been held to apply where some only of several joint contractors are sued: Robb v. Murray, 13 P. R. 397.

Where the plaintiff, in misconception of his rights, had sued the defendants in their official capacity as servants of the Crown, he was not allowed to amend by suing them as private individuals: Raleigh v. Goschen, 1898, 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429. Defendants sued in wrong capacity.

As a general rule where an action is brought against one only of several joint contractors, he is entitled to have his co-contractors joined as defendants, and is not limited to serving them with a third party notice under Rule 165: Pilley v. Robinson, 20 Q. B. D. 155; as explained in Wilson v. Balcarres, 1893, 1 Q. B. 422; S. C. sub nom. Wilson v. Killick, 68 L. T. 169, 312, that is, where, under the old practice, a plea in abatement might have been pleaded: see also Scarf v. Jardine, 7 App. Cas. 364; Robb v. Murray, 13 P. R. 397; but not necessarily where the joint contractor resides out of the jurisdiction: Wilson v. Balcarres, supra: or, being within the jurisdiction, cannot be found after reasonable inquiry: Robinson v. Geisel, 1894. 2 Q. B. 685; 71 L. T. 70; or is insolvent: Gildersleeve v. Balfour, 15 P. R. 293, nor where the party sued is on the face of the contract the sole contractor, though other persons are behind jointly interested: Toronto & Hamilton Navigation Co. v. Silcox, 12 P. R. 622; see also Eyre v. Moreing, W. N. 1884, 58. Adding joint contractors as defendants.

In an action against a surety, the principal, who disputed liability, was added as a defendant on the application of the surety: Reid v. Gould, 13 O. L. R. 51.

Persons were added as defendants who appeared to be the persons really liable to plaintiffs, and were conducting the defence for the defendants sued: Adams v. Watson Manufg. Co., 15 Ont. 218; and 16 Ont. 2, where the decision was affirmed as to the terms of payment of costs imposed as a condition precedent to amending.

In Strathy v. Stephens, 29 O. L. R. 383, the Court of its own motion added a party as a defendant who, although not a party, appears to Party added mero motu by Court.

have been represented by counsel at the trial; such a course, however, could not be adopted without giving the added party an opportunity to defend if he desired it. In that case the Court assumed to act under this Rule, and The Judicature Act, s. 16 (h). Where the Court can add parties against the will of the plaintiff seems doubtful. The ordinary rule that a plaintiff is dominus litis would seem to be infringed by such a practice; the Court may rule that a person not before the Court is a necessary party; it is then open to the plaintiff to either appeal from the ruling or comply with it, by adding the party, but the addition if made, semble, should be on the plaintiff's motion. But it must be admitted that the cases as to adding parties are not always consistent with the principle of the plaintiff being dominus litis.

Members of club.

As to adding members of a club in an action against the club, and the right of those added to apply to have co-contractors added: see Aikins v. Dom. Live Stock Ass., 17 P. R. 303.

Objection as to non-joinder, how to be raised.

It has been held that a defendant who is desirous of raising the objection that some one jointly liable with him has not been joined as a defendant, may make a motion under this Rule to add the persons jointly liable: Gildersleeve v. Balfour, 15 P. R. 293, or may apply in Chambers to have the action stayed, shewing that the person alleged to be jointly liable with him, is within the jurisdiction: McArthur v. Hood, 1 Cab. & E. 550; and see Begg v. Ellison, 14 P. R. 384; Robinson v. Geisel, supra, p. 569.

On such an application it need not be admitted by the plaintiff, or by the person sought to be added, that he is jointly liable with defendant. If the defendant shows some ground for so saying, he is entitled to have the person added on any proper terms as to costs: Fardell, etc., Co. v. Bassel, 15 T. L. R. 204; sed vide Toronto & Hamilton Navigation Co. v. Silcox, supra, p. 569.

By analogy to the old practice where a plea in abatement for non-joinder of co-contractors was pleaded, a defendant now moving to stay proceedings until co-contractors are added should shew by affidavit the names and residences of the persons whom he seeks to have added, and he is subject to the same liability as to costs, in case persons are added who turn out not to be liable: Aikins v. Dom. Live Stock, etc., 17 P. R. 303.

Examples.

In Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657, lessee sued the son of the lessee who was entitled to the term, subject to a sub-lease to D., for damages for breach of covenant caused by dilapidations made by D. Under the terms of the sub-lease to D. (who was brought in under a third party notice) it was doubtful whether he was liable to indemnify the defendant, or only the executors of the deceased lessee. On the defendant's application, the plaintiffs not objecting, the executors were added as defendants to enable them to get indemnity from D., and D. was held not entitled to object, though the case might be different if the plaintiffs objected.

In Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844, an administration suit, where the plaintiff's title as a beneficiary under a will was doubtful, and the trustee under the will was the only defendant, the beneficiary interested in disputing the plaintiff's claim was added; and where an executor was sued for a legacy, a third person to whom he had paid it was ordered to be added as a co-defendant on the defendant's objection: Clifton v. Crawford, 18 P. R. 316.

In Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 788, a defendant died, and the cause of action alleged in the claim did not survive. Upon the plaintiff's motion, alleging further facts which shewed a cause of action which did survive, the administrator of the deceased defendant was added. See also Rule 301. Rule 134.

In Head v. Bowman, 9 P. R. 12, the plaintiff sued for damages caused by the flooding of his lands by defendant's mill dam. The G. W. Ry. Co. had turned the waters of the stream into another channel, which was not deep enough to carry off all the water if the defendant's dam were removed, so that plaintiff could not obtain complete relief by succeeding against the defendant; on the plaintiff's application liberty was therefore given to add the Ry. Co.

Defendants might, under the former Chancery practice, be added after the judgment, for the purpose of a motion for injunction to preserve the subject of the suit: Young v. Huber, 29 Gr. 49; sed vide Attorney-General v. Corporation of Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423.

In Dix v. G. W. Ry. Co., 34 W. R. 712; W. N. 1886, 130; 54 L. T. 830; 55 L. J. Chy. 797, the defendant company covenanted separately with the plaintiff and two other covenantees by one indenture. The plaintiff sued for specific performance of the covenant without joining the separate covenantees. They were added on the application of the company; but see McGheone v. Gyles, No. 2, 1902, 1 Ch. 911, supra, p. 569.

In Hewitt v. Heise, 11 P. R. 47, it was held that the facts did not show a case for adding a defendant, but rather for service of a notice under Rule 185, claiming indemnity.

An officer of a corporation cannot be added merely for the purpose of discovery: Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552. See notes to Rule 67.

Application by Third Persons.—In Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500; 35 S. C. 181, a person who had acquired an interest after the commencement of a foreclosure action was on his own application added as a party, and in Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160, a person to whom the defendant had assigned pendente lite was added at the trial at his own request. Where plaintiff had assigned his interest before suit it was doubted whether it was proper to allow the assignee to be added as plaintiff: Foster v. Ward, 9 L. R. Ir. 447. Application by third persons. Adding a defendant at his own instance.

In Molloy v. Kilby, 15 Ch. D. 162; 29 W. R. 127, it was held that third persons made defendants to a counter-claim and wishing to interrogate the plaintiff for discovery, should apply under this Rule to be made defendants to the original action.

Cases have arisen in which a third party has applied for leave to come in as a defendant. For such a case no express provision is made. In Mills v. Griffiths, 45 L. J. Q. B. 771, an action of ejectment was brought by a lessor against a lessee who had incurred a forfeiture; on motion of a mortgagee of the lessee to be added as a defendant, the Court refused to make an order, holding that the questions involved in the action were wholly on the covenant between the lessee and lessor. In Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552, a representative action, a bond-holder who had a substantial interest and disputed the plaintiff's contention, was on his own application, added as a defendant. See also Watson v. Cave, 17 Ch. D. 19, and Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160; Debenture Co. v. De Murieta Co., 8 T. L. R. 496.

In Kitching v. Hicks, 9 P. R. 518, an action against an assignee for the benefit of creditors, claiming a lien on goods taken by the assignee, certain creditors claiming that they had a substantial interest in the subject of the action were, on their own application, added as defendants.

A third party who would be commercially and incidentally, but not legally and directly injured by a judgment being obtained against the defendant in an action, is not entitled on the ground of such prospective injury to be made a party to the action; therefore, in an action to restrain the user of a machine alleged to be an infringement of the plaintiff's patent, the maker of the alleged infringement was not allowed, on his own application, to be added as a defendant: Moser v. Marsden, 1892, 1 Ch. 487; 60 L. T. 570.

In Vovosseur v. Krupp, 27 W. R. 176, a foreign sovereign (the Mikado), applied and was added as a defendant in order to enable him to apply to dissolve an injunction.

In Ferris v. Ferris, 9 P. R. 443, an action was brought by a father to recover arrears under an annuity deed against his son who had absconded. The son's wife had barred her dower by the annuity deed, and had brought a suit against her husband for alimony. She now applied to be let in to defend this action, on the ground that it was collusively brought to defeat her suit for alimony, and defraud her of dower. She was let in to dispute the amount claimed.

Where defendants are added as parties after the commencement of an action, the action as to them is, under this Rule (cl. 3), deemed to be commenced only from the date they are added: see St. Louis v. O'Colloghon, 13 P. R. 322; Huthnonce v. Roleigh, 17 P. R. 458; i.e., from the time when they are served with the amended writ: see Gooderham v. Moore, 31 Ont. 86.

Costs.

Costs.—Where persons who are not necessary, but are proper parties, are added as defendants, upon an objection made by an original defendant, the Court may in its discretion refuse to award costs to such added parties: Merry v. Pownall, 1898, 1 Ch. 306; 78 L. T. 146; 46 W. R. 487; or may order the defendant, at whose instance they were added, to pay them, where it is ultimately found that they should not have been added: Aikins v. Dom. Live Stock, etc., 17 P. R. 303.

Where the present Rule is not applicable, plaintiffs may nevertheless sometimes be added under Rule 134; see notes to that Rule, and Emden v. Carte, 17 Ch. D. 169; and Smith v. Hoseltine, W. N. 1875, 250.

For other cases in which the Rule has been acted upon: see Val de Travers Asphalte Co. (Limited) v. London Tramway Co. (Limited), 48 L. J. C. P. 312; 40 L. T. 133; W. N. 1879, 46, and Mercantile River Plate Co. v. Isaac, W. N. 1876, 104; 2 Chan. Ch. Ca. 23; Blackburn Union v. Brooks, 28 W. R. 57; Cupples v Strohon, 29 L. R. Ir. 120; Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 388; Corswell v. Hylond, 3 T. L. R 708; Lynes v. Snaith, 1899, 1 Q. B. 486; 80 L. T. 122.

Service of amended writ.

Service of Amended Writ.—Clause 3 is an adaptation of C. R. 207: see Eng. (1883) R. 135, which is to the same effect. Where the person added is out of the jurisdiction, the writ, if originally issued for service within the jurisdiction, should before service be amended according to the form for service out of the jurisdiction: Keate v. Phillips, W. N. 1878, 186; or a concurrent writ should be issued.

The directions for service of the writ on new defendants do not meet the case of consolidated actions: Re Wortley, Culley v. Wortley, 4 Ch. D. 180, where the defendants were added to the consolidated action without service of any writ being required. Rules 135, 136.

Service of the writ of summons on a company, added for conformity as defendants, was dispensed with under this Rule, where the defendants already before the Court were directors and principal shareholders of the company, and were being sued in respect of money in their hands and found (as against them) to belong to the company: Jones v. Miller, 24 Ont. 268, sed quære.

Where a sole plaintiff died after delivery of statement of claim and his executors took out the common order to revive, copies of the writ, order to revive, and order adding a defendant, were directed to be served on the added defendant: Austen v. Bird, W. N. 1881, 129; 17 C. L. J. 365.

As against defendants added by amendment, the action will be deemed to be commenced from the time when they are served with the amended writ: Goodcrham v. Moore, and other cases, supra, p. 572.

This Rule does not provide for the issue or service of an amended writ where a plaintiff is added, nor for service on the original defendants where a new defendant is added: see Jamaica Ry. v. Colonial Bank, 1905, 1 Ch. 677, 694; 92 L. T. 548. As to when an amended writ should be served: see notes to Rule 183.

Appeal.—An appeal lies to the Appellate Division from an order of the Judge at the trial directing the case to stand over to add parties: Payne v. Caughell, 24 Ont. App. 556; and see Monro v. Toronto Railway Co., 4 O. L. R. 36; 5 O. L. R. 483. Appeal.

135. If a statement of claim has been delivered previously to a defendant being added, it shall be amended in such manner as the making of the new defendant a party may render desirable; and a copy of the amended statement of claim shall also be delivered to the new defendant. C.R. 208. Amended statement of claim.

See Eng. R. 1875, O. 16, r. 16. It is omitted from Eng. Rules 1883.

C. R. 208 enabled the Court to dispense with an amendment. This provision has been omitted from this Rule, probably for the reason, that where an amendment is allowed it ought always to appear on the record, otherwise the judgment pronounced might appear not to be warranted by the record.

136. The Court may order that any pleading, petition or affidavit, or any part of a pleading, petition or affidavit, which is scandalous, be taken off the file, or may direct the scandalous matter to be expunged. C.R. 296. Court may order scandalous matter to be expunged.

Taken from Chy. O. 69.

Scandal.—This Rule enables the Court, at the hearing of any action or matter, suâ sponte, to order scandalous matter in any pleading, petition or affidavit to be taken off the files or expunged, or to do so on an application for that purpose at any time before the hearing. Scandal.

Rule 137.

As to scandalous matter in a pleading: see also Rule 137.

Application to strike out scandalous matter.

Nothing can be scandalous which is relevant: per Cotton, L.J., in Fisher v. Owen, 8 Ch. D. 653; Jones v. Huntingdon, 3 Chy. Ch. 117; B——— v. W———, 31 Beav. 342; Millington v. Loring, 6 Q. B. D. 190; and the test is, whether the matter alleged to be scandalous would be admissible in evidence in shew the truth of any allegation which is material with reference to the relief prayed: Christie v. Christie, L. R. 8 Chy. 499; Cashin v. Cradock, 3 Ch. D. 376. The Court has power to strike out scandalous matter from an affidavit, or to order the person who has filed it to pay the costs of it, on the application of any person, even a stranger to the action, or mero motu. It is not necessary that the applicant should be the injured person; Cracknall v. Janson, 11 Ch. D. 1; Middleman v. Wilson, L. R. 10 Chy. 230; Sadlier v. Smith, 7 P. R. 409; 15 C. L. J. 52; Goddard v. Parr, 24 L. J. Chy. 783.

Where proceedings are ordered to be taken off the files it is said to be the proper practice to destroy them: Hill v. Hart-Davis, 26 Chy. D. 471; sed quære, is not the proper practice to seal them up. Otherwise should they be destroyed, and the order be subsequently reversed, they could not be restored to the files. See also Rule 187.

The Court has jurisdiction to order in any proceeding, scandalous matter to be struck out; thus, scandalous statements in a bill of costs were ordered to be struck out: Re Miller & Miller, 51 L. T. 853; 33 W. R. 210; W. N. 1884, 234; Erskine v. Gartshore, 18 Ves. 114.

As to the power of the Court to strike out scandalous matter: see Bright v. Morner, W. N. 1878, 211; Cracknall v. Janson, 11 Ch. D. 1; and as to scandalous matter in affidavits: Warner v. Moses, W. N. 1881, 89; Kenrick v. Kenrick, 12 W. R. 335; Sadlier v. Smith, 7 P. R. 409; Blake v. Albion L. A. Co., 24 W. R. 677.

Costs of motion.

The costs of the motion are as between solicitor and client: Ex parte Thorp, 1 Ves. 394; Ex parte Porter, 2 M. & Ayr. 220; Ex parte Simpson, 15 Ves. 478, and both the party and his solicitor concerned are liable to be ordered to pay costs of an application: Ib.; Rottray v. George, 18 Vee. 232, and see Bishop v. Willis, 5 Benv. 83; Anon., 4 P. R. 242. As to the disallowance of the costs of unnecessary matter in pleadings and affidavits: see Rule 670.

Prolixity.

Prolixity.—Although there is no Rule specially giving the Court power to take pleadings or affidavits off the files for prolixity, it has nevertheless an inherent power to do so: Hill v. Hart-Davis, 26 Ch. D. 470; and pleadings may also be ordered to be struck out for prolixity: Morsh v. Pontefract, W. N. 1876, 7; 1 Chanl. Ch. Ca. 66; Dovy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473; or amended by striking out the prolix matter: Brock v. Tew, 18 P. R. 30.

Impertinence.

Impertinence.—The Court has also jurisdiction to order pleadings, petitions, or affidavits, containing matter which is impertinent, i.e., irrelevant, to be taken off the files, or amended by striking out the offending matter.

Striking out pleadings.

137. Any pleading which may tend to prejudice, embarrass, or delay the fair trial of the action may be struck out or amended. C.R. 298.

See Eng. (1883) R. 309.

As to striking out scandalous matter: see Rule 136 and notes.

Rule 137.

Improper or embarrassing pleadings.

Striking out a Pleading as Improper or Embarrassing, on the Application of the Opposite Party.—Apart from the Rules, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to strike out a defence as frivolous, vexatious, and an abuse of the procedure, e.g., where it attempts to retry, in another form, a question already decided against the defendant: Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 665; see also Rule 124.

As a rule, the only grounds for striking out pleadings are that they are either (1) embarrassing, (2) scandalous, or (3) tending to prejudice or delay: Ryan v. Fish, 10 P. R. 187, 192; but in Chamberlain v. Chamberlin, 11 P. R. 501, it was held that a defence which was wholly inapplicable, might be struck out, though neither scandalous, nor tending to prejudice, embarrass, or delay; and see Glass v. Grant, 12 P. R. 480; so also a pleading tendering no issue, and containing unnecessary matter: Brock v. Tew, 18 P. R. 30; a defence alleging want of notice of action, where defendants were not entitled to notice of action: McCarthy v. Vespra, 16 P. R. 416; and an allegation in a defence to an action by a person of unsound mind, suing by his next friend, that the plaintiff was not in fact of unsound mind, was struck out: Richmond v. Branson, 1914, 1 Ch. 968; 110 L. T. 763. Pleadings will not necessarily be struck out because they are inconsistent: Re Morgan, 35 Ch. D. 492; but where the plaintiff asked for an injunction and damages, and recovery of possession, it was held that such claims were inconsistent and embarrassing, and the plaintiff, though granted an injunction, was refused costs: Evans v. Davis, 27 W. R. 285.

On application of the opposite party to strike out.

An embarrassing pleading has been defined as one in which matter is pleaded which the party is not entitled to make use of: Heugh v. Chamberlain, 25 W. R. 742; W. N. 1877, 128; Straiford v. Gordon, 14 P. R. 407; or to prove: Duryea v. Kaufman, 21 O. L. R. 161; e.g., in an action to enforce a contract for the sale of a patent without warranty, a defence putting in issue the validity of the patent: Liardet v. Hammond Electric Light, 31 W. R. 710; W. N. 1883, 96; allegations respecting matters compromised in a former suit, and which therefore could not be re-litigated: Knowles v. Roberts, 38 Ch. D. 263; Reichel v. Magrath, supra; or an allegation or claim that the action should be treated as supplemental to another action: Nitrate Securities v. Williams, 106 L. T. 730; or where inconsistent relief is claimed, e.g., payment under an agreement, damages for its breach, and rescission of the agreement: Grice v. Bartram, 3 O. W. N. 178.

A pleading not drawn according to the Rules respecting pleadings is embarrassing: see notes to Rules 141, et seq.

As a general rule, a pleading should not be set aside on summary application unless plainly frivolous, or indefensible. Formerly the party was left to demur, and even though the pleading appeared to be demurrable, that was not a sufficient reason for striking it out: Glass v. Grant, 12 P. R. 480; Straiford v. Gordon, 14 P. R. 407; Daley v. Byrne, 15 P. R. 4; now, however, that demurrers are abolished, it would seem to be proper to move under Rule 124, in cases where that Rule is applicable.

A motion to strike out a reply on the ground of its being a departure from the statement of claim was refused: McLaughlin v. Lake Erie & Detroit Ry., 2 O. L. R. 151; and see Brophy v. Royal Victoria L. I. Co., 2 O. L. R. 651.

Where allegations are properly pleadable under Rule 141, the Court has no power to strike out the paragraph containing them, unless scandalous, or tending to prejudice, embarrass or delay, within the meaning of the present Rule: Millington v. Loring, 6 Q. B. D. 190.

Striking out the whole of a pleading.

The whole of a pleading may he atruck out; a atatement of claim: Coshin v. Crodock, 3 Ch. D. 376; Ker v. Williams, W. N. 1886, 16; a defence: Preston v. Lomont, 1 Ex. D. 361; or a reply: Williomson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 787. See alao Golding v. Wharton Saltworks Co., 1 Q. B. D. 374; W. N. 1876, 40; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 40, and Horris v. Gomble, 6 Ch. D. 748; Atty.-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 274; 2 R. 84.

In Finch v. The Guordions of York Union, 35 L. T. 360, a motion to atrike out the whole atatement of defence waa heid to he misconceived, as the defence was not ao frivoloua aa to juatify ita being aet aside. In Weir v. Bornett, W. N. 1875, 258; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 93, a defendant applied to compel the plaintiff to amend, in an action for false repreaentationa in regard to debenturea, atated to have been made in a latter and proapectua, and Huddleaton, B., refused to order an amendment of the claim, so as to ahew which of the false repreaentationa were in the letter, and which in the prospectus.

Striking out parts of pleadings.

The power to strike out ia not exerciaed so aa to enahle one party to dictate to the other how he ahould plead: Rolfe v. Mocloren, 3 Ch. D. 106, 108; hut portions of pleadinga have heen struck out which are not in accordance with Rule 141; e.g., where they contained irrelevant allegations of fraud, to the effect that in transactions other than the one in queation the defendants had heen guilty of fraud: Blake v. Albion L. I. Co., 35 L. T. 269; Mcnhinick v. Turner, W. N. 1876, 55; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 42; immaterial facts set out with prolixity: Dovy v. Gorrett, 7 Ch. D. 473; Brock v. Tew, 18 P. R. 30; admissions, Askew v. N. E. Ry. Co., W. N. 1875, 238; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 90; Davy v. Gorrett, supro; evidence: Jones v. Turner, W. N. 1875, 239; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 91; Cole v. Con. Pocific Ry. Co., 19 P. R. 104; Gloster v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 4 O. W. R. 532; Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 88; Fcornside v. Morris, 2 O. W. N. 676; scandaloua atatementa which were immaterial: Duncan v. Vereker, W. N. 1876, 64; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 44: aee Crocknoll v. Jonson, 11 Ch. D. 1; Sodlier v. Smith, 7 P. R. 409; Christie v. Christie, L. R. 8 Chy. 499; Wood v. Eorl Durhom, 21 Q. B. D. 501; and notea to Rule 136; hut nothing is acandalous that is relevant to the merits: aee Fisher v. Owen, 8 Ch. D. 653, and other casea in note to Rule 136; Whitney v. Moignord, 24 Q. B. D. 630; Dan. Prac., 5th ed., 290. General statementa of title may he struck out: Philipps v. Philipps, 4 Q. B. D. 127; Riddell v. Strothmore, 31 Sol. Jour. 183; Rule 155; allegations so prolix aa to he ohacure: Morsh v. Pontefract, W. N. 1876, 6; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 66; see alao Hill v. Hort-Dovis, 26 Ch. D. 470; and unnecessary details though not amounting to statements of evidence: Aderis v. Thrigley, W. N. 1876, 56; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 43; paragraphs pleaded to a hypothetical case which might never ariae, and could only arise on an amended claim: Fulford v. Wollocc, 1 O. L. R. 278.

Paragraphs in a statement of claim tendering an immaterial issue: e.g., in a cinim for damages caused hy a defect in a machine, an allegation in the statement of claim that defendants were insured against such accidenta waa atruck out as heing immaterial, and embarrassing: Flynn v. Industriol Exhibition, etc., 6 O. L. R. 635; see also Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 88; nnd Hoy v. Bingham, 5 O. L. R. 224; or in a statement of defence which raised no issue, or only one that is immaterial: Webb v. Hamilton Cataract Power Co.,

In Huntly v. Goskill, 1905, 2 Ch. 656; 93 L. T. 785, parts of a statement of claim were struck out, and a certificate of lis pendens was vacated, as being an abuse of the process of the Court; but on an appeal by the plaintiff, the Court of Appeal set aside the writ, but gave the plaintiff leave to issue a new writ, properly framed. Vacating lis pendens.

In an action for seduction, a paragraph of the statement of claim alleged that the defendant administered noxious drugs to the plaintiff's daughter. It was held that the paragraph could not be struck out as disclosing a felony for which the defendant ought to have been prosecuted, inasmuch as the plaintiff was not the person upon whom the felonious act was committed, and had no duty to prosecute: Appleby v. Franklin, 17 Q. B. D. 93; but see Smith v. Selwyn, 137 L. T. Jour. 7, where the action was stayed; and Vincent v. Sprague, 3 U. C. Q. B. 283; Brown v. Dalby, 7 U. C. Q. B. 160; Walsh v. Nattrass, 19 C. P. 453; Williams v. Robinson, 20 C. P. 255; but see E. v. F., 10 O. L. R. 489; 11 O. L. R. 582.

A paragraph in the prayer for relief will be rarely struck out: Duryea v. Kaufman, 21 O. L. R. 162.

Allegations in the statement of claim may be struck out where they have been abandoned by the reply: Brooking v. Maudsley, 55 L. T. 343. Allegations which have been abandoned.

For cases where several plaintiffs and defendants are joined, and causes of action alleged which can not be set up in one action: see notes to Rules 66 and 67. Parties or causes of action improperly joined.

In an action to restrain a breach of contract in restraint of trade, it was held to be embarrassing to claim both an injunction and liquidated damages, but, the point not having been taken until the hearing, it was held that the plaintiff should elect: Grant v. Horrison, 69 L. T. 307.

Where a statement of claim for libel set out the whole article complained of, the Court refused to strike out any part of it as embarrassing: Hay v. Bingham, 5 O. L. R. 224; but where a plaintiff set up a breach of 23 different patents he was ordered to limit his claim to any three of them: Saccharin Co. v. Wild, 1903, 1 Ch. 410; 88 L. T. 101.

In an action for slander, where there was a denial of the speaking of the words alleged, a paragraph of the defence, admitting the speaking of other words (setting out the defendant's version of what he had said), and saying that they were true, was struck out as embarrassing: Rassam v. Budge, 1893, 1 Q. B. 571; 5 R. 336; 68 L. T. 717; Fulford v. Wallace, 1 O. L. R. 278. Defence.

A defence separating a libel, and justifying as to part, without leaving it clear what part was justified, was struck out as embarrassing: Fleming v. Dollar, 23 Q. B. D. 388; so also a defence setting up that an alleged libel was fair comment, without setting out the facts on which it was alleged to be a fair comment: Crow's Nest Coal Co. v. Bell, 4 O. L. R. 660.

A plea denying liability is not embarrassing by being joined with a plea of tender before action, and payment into Court: Davis v. National Insurance Co. of Ireland, 16 P. R. 116.

Rule 137.

Reasons pleaded to shew why an act, said to be ultra vires, was not ultra vires, were held not to be irrelevant or embarrassing, and a matter alleged as a reason should not be struck out because it is a bad reason: Tomkinson v. S. E. Ry. Co., 57 L. T. 358.

A defence in a sci. fa. action, which might have been pleaded as a defence to the original action, was struck out: Shaver v. Cotton, 16 P. R. 278.

Where a defendant pleaded that a sum paid by him into Court as security for costs, was a satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the defence was struck out: Mendels v. Gibson, 7 O. L. R. 611.

Embarrassing by being defective.

Where a pleading is defective in not containing all the allegations necessary to show a case for relief, or a defence, the pleading may, for that reason, be embarrassing, and, where the defects can be supplied, it will in general be proper to move to strike out the pleading or paragraph, thus, where in a claim by a simple contract creditor he omits to state that he sues on behalf of all creditors to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent against creditors, the objection should be raised by motion under this Rule; see Scane v. Duckett, 3 Ont. 370. So where a claim for ejectment alleged that prior to 1874 defendant was tenant and had paid rent, but since 1874 had not paid rent, it was held to be embarrassing as not showing any subsisting tenancy: Molloy v. Lewers, 12 L. R. Ir. 39; see also Rowley v. Laffan, 10 L. R. Ir. 9.

Where pleadings are such as should be struck out, they ought to be struck out by the Judge, and not be left to be dealt with as a question of costs: Watson v. Rodwell, 3 Ch. D. 380.

Amendment when allowed.

Ordinarily, instead of altogether striking out a pleading, or part of a pleading, the party whose pleading is defective will be given an opportunity to amend: Moorhouse v. Colville, W. N. 1876, 12; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 95; Anon., W. N. 1876, 24; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 39.

Where a pleading is obscure, instead of striking it out, it may be ordered to be amended so as to make it clear to the opposite party: Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 505; Johnson v. Stafford, 33 C. L. J. 433; and see Rule 138. So with an allegation improperly made as a distinct cause of action, but which might be properly pleaded as an aggravation of damages: Agar v. Escott, 8 O. L. R. 177.

An amendment which will injuriously alter the rights which the parties would have, if there were no amendment, will not be allowed: Weldon v. Neal, 19 Q. B. D. 394; Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722; e.g., an amendment for the purpose of setting up a claim, which, since the issue of the writ, has been barred by the Statute of Limitations: Weldon v. Neal, supra; Lancaster v. Moss, 15 T. L. R. 476.

Striking out amendments.

Matters improperly introduced by amendment may be struck out, e.g., an amendment adding claims for assault, and false imprisonment, which would be barred by the Statute of Limitations, if made by a new writ, was struck out: Weldon v. Neal, supra.

In Restell v. Steward, W. N. 1875, 249, paragraphs improperly introduced into a statement of defence by amendment were struck out.

Frivolous or vexatious.

As to striking out a pleading as shewing no reasonable cause of action, or answer, or as being frivolous, or vexatious: see Rule 124.

Rule 138.

English authorities not always applicable in Ontario.

In view of the difference between the English and Ontario systems as to admissions (see Rule 144), caution will be necessary in applying the English authorities on the subject of striking out embarrassing pleadings. The English Rules require a party to deal specifically with the allegations in the previous pleading, and to deny such allegations as he is not prepared to admit; but where, as under the Ontario system, a party is not so bound to make denials, he might not, in framing his pleading, be embarrassed by an improper pleading, though he might be prejudiced if irrelevant statements of fact in such a pleading were allowed to go before a jury; but, even in England, in an action to establish a right of way, where the defence neither admitted nor denied the alleged right of way, an application to strike it out, as embarrassing, was refused: Thornhill v. Weeks, 1913, 2 Ch. 464; 109 L. T. 146.

Appeals.

The striking out of pleadings is in the discretion of the Judge; and, as a general rule, an appeal from his order will not be entertained, unless a question of principle is involved: see Golding v. Whorton Saltworks Co., 1 Q. B. D. 374; Watson v. Rodwell, 3 Ch. D. 380; Ruston v. Tobin, 10 Ch. D. 558, 565; Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, 20 Ch. D. 365. Such an appeal was entertained in Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473; Knowles v. Roberts, 38 Ch. D. 263; see also Loird v. Briggs, 19 Ch. D. 22; Peterkin v. McMorlone, 4 Ont. App. 25.

On this subject, see also notes to sec. 16 (f), supra, p. 42 et seq.

Master no power to strike out interrogatories for impertinence.

Under this Rule the Master in Chambers, or Local Judge, or Master, has no power to strike out for impertinence, interrogatories which have been delivered for the examination of a witness under commission: Williams v. Corby, 8 P. R. 83.

For form of notice of motion, see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 412-416.

Particulars may be ordered.

138. A further and better statement of the nature of the claim or defence, or further and better particulars of any matter stated in any pleading or special endorsement, may in all cases be ordered. C.R. 299.

See Dryden v. Smith (2), 17 P. R. 505, in note to Rule 141, infra, p. 592.

Particulars of pleadings.

Until this Rule the practice in Ontario as to ordering particulars depended upon the inherent jurisdiction of the Court to prevent injustice, no Rules on the subject having been adopted: Queen Victoria Park, etc., v. Howard, 13 P. R. 14. This Rule has, however, made no substantial change in the practice. The principle upon which particulars were ordered in Ontario, even before this Rule, has been the same as in England, viz.: to prevent surprise and embarrassment at the trial, and to lessen expense of evidence: Mason v. Vancamp, 14 P. R. 296; Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Ch. D. 410.

"As a general rule, applications for particulars are to be made before the applicant has pleaded over. Particulars are ordered with reference to pleading, and are distinguished from examination for discovery, which is to get at the knowledge of the adverse litigant. . . . Particulars are ordered primarily with a view to have the prior pleading made sufficiently distinct to enable the applicant to frame his answer thereto properly," per Boyd, C.: Smith v. Boyd, 17 P. R. 463, at p. 467.

Demand of particulars.

Demanding Particulars.—Before applying for particulars a written demand for the particulars desired should, in general, be made, so as to confine any subsequent motion to such particulars as are refused.

Where a party complies with a demand for particulars of his pleading, he will be restricted at the trial to the particulars given without any order for that purpose: Young v. Erie & Huron Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 4.

Particulars given in compliance with a written demand, or an order, should be given in writing; an oral statement of them will not be sufficient: Ryan v. Donovan, 16 C. L. T. 71 (N. W. T.).

Application for particulars.

Application for Particulars.—The applicant should prove the previous demand, if any, and the non-compliance with it, and should shew by affidavit the need for particulars: Roberts v. Owen, 6 T. L. R. 172; Sachs v. Speilman, 37 Ch. D. 303-305, unless it is clear from the pleading that particulars of general allegations there made must be necessary, in which case a motion to strike out the pleading as embarrassing, or to compel its amendment by setting out particulars, will often be proper.

When amendment of pleading proper instead of particulars.

In Kohfreitsch v. McIntyre, 19 C. L. J. 116; 3 C. L. T. 173; it was held by Mr. Dalton, in Chambers, that, in a case where formerly a party would have been entitled to particulars of a pleading, the proper course will in general be to move to compel an amendment of the pleading so as to state the particulars required. In that case the defence was that a note sued on had been obtained by fraud, (as to pleading which, see Rule 143), and the defence was ordered to be amended so as to state the circumstances of the fraud: see Wallingford v. Mutual Soc., 5 App. Cas. 685; Schomberg v. Zoebelli, W. N. 1876, 106; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 36; in such a case particulars have sometimes been ordered: see Baston v. Bradshaw, 8 L. R. Ir. 30; Appleman v. Appleman, 12 P. R. 138. A like order would seem to be proper where justification is pleaded in general terms in an action for libel: see Corcoran v. Robb, 8 P. R. 49; or an action for wrongful dismissal: see Sounders v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 435, 448; Crabbe v. Hickson, 14 P. R. 42; or in such a case as Palmer v. Palmer, 1892, 1 Q. B. 319, where a statement of claim alleged merely that plaintiff was entitled to possession of land as heir-at-law of B., who died seised in fee and in possession, and the plaintiff was ordered to give particulars of the relationship relied on as constituting him the heir.

General allegations sometimes permitted.

There may, however, be cases in which a general allegation may be allowed in the pleading to avoid prolixity, leaving the opposite party to apply for particulars if necessary: see The Rory, 7 P. D. 120, where a statement of claim, claiming damages for delivery of cargo in a damaged condition, alleged that the damage was occasioned by the defective condition of the vessel, or by the negligence or breach of duty of the defendants: see also Appleman v. Appleman, 12 P. R. 138.

Time for applying for particulars.

Time for Application.—As particulars are most frequently desider for the purpose of framing a pleading in answer, the application should be made before the applicant pleads over: Smith v. Boyd, 17 P. R. 463, 467; by a defendant before delivering a defence: see Augustinus v. Nerinckx, 16 Ch. D. 7; Blackie v. Osmaston, 28 Ch. D. 123; Kelly v. Martin, 6 O. W. R. 141; and by a plaintiff before delivering his reply, or amending his statement of claim. Putting in a defence is not necessarily a waiver of the right to particulars: Sachs

v. Spellman, 37 Ch. D. 295; 58 L. T. 102; Watson v. North Metropolitan Co., 3 T. L. R. 273; but in general, in the absence of special circumstances, particulars will not be ordered after the close of the pleadings: Smith v. Boyd, 17 P. R. 463; see S. C., 18 P. R. 296; and Gourond v. Fitzgerold, 37 W. R. 55, 265. Particulars can not, at that atage, be required for the purpose of pleading, and they will only be granted for the purposes of the trial, upon affidavit showing that they are necessary: Bonk of Toronto v. Ins. Co. of N. A., 18 P. R. 27. Rule 138.

Where defendant applied before defence for particulars of transactions impeached, the circumstancee of which were within his own knowledge, and not that of the plaintiff, the application waa ordered to stand over until the defence was put in: Sochs v. Spellmon, supro; see Re Morgon, 35 Ch. D. 500.

Particulars may be ordered subject to the party required to deliver them having first an opportunity to examine for discovery: Townsend v. Northern Crown Bonk, 19 O. L. R. 489. Discovery before particulars ordered.

Where such an order is made, it should provide that the party to deliver the particulare ahould he at liberty to examine his opponent for discovery, and that the particulars should be delivered within a certain time after discovery has been, or might bnve been obtained: see Ib.

Thsre is ao hard and fast ruie as to the ciasa of caees in whicb particulars will he ordered to be delivered before discovery, or discovery to be given before particulars. The Court will look at the circumstances of each case: Woynes Merthyr Co. v. Rodford, 1896, 1 Ch. 29.

Where the detailа of the facta pleaded lie in the knowledge of the psrty asking particulara, particulare sbould not be ordered before discovery is given by the party asking the particulars: Sims v. Slater, 10 C. L. T. 227; Millor v. Harper, 38 Cb. D. 110; Sochs v. Speilman, supro; Whyte v. Ahrens, 26 Ch. D. 717; Leitch v. Abbott, 31 Ch. D. 374; Maxim & Co. v. Nordenfeldt, 1893, 3 Ch. 122; Edelston v. Russell, 57 L. T. 927; Waynes Merthur Co. v. Radford, 1896, 1 Cb. 29; but see Zierenberg v. Labouchere, 1893, 2 Q. B. 183, an action for libel.

In some cases all the particulars required may be obtained by examinaation for discovery: see Saunders v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 435; explained in Benbow v. Low, 16 Cb. D. 97; Frost v. Brooke, 32 L. T. 312; Hill v. Wotes, L. R. 9 C. P. 688; Blochford v. Green, 14 P. R. 424; Holl v. Bryce, 6 T. L. R. 344. Particulars obtained by examination.

Where by examination for diacovery the defendant had obtained the informstion which would be given by particulars, particulars were refused: Gould v. Beottie, 11 P. R. 329.

Where a pleading sets up that a deed is fraudulent and void under The Froudulent Conveyonce Act (R. S. O. c. 105), particulars of the fraud should be obtained hy examination for discovery: see Pitfield v. Guest (Nov. Scot.), 18 C. L. T. 144.

Particulars—General Principles. — Particulara will be ordered giving information to prevent the opposite party from being takeu by surprise at the trial, and to eave unnecesaary expense: Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Cb. D. 410; Turncock v. Sortoris, 33 Sol. Jour. 58; Newport, etc., Co. v. Paynter, 34 Cb. D. 93; Crompton v. Anglo-American, General principles on which particulars are ordered.

etc., 35 Ch. D. 283; Thompson v. Birkley, 31 W. R. 230; but not such as will oblige a party to disclose the evidence upon which he relies: Queen Victoria Park Commissioners v. Howard, 13 P. R. 14; (where defendants, pleading that certain lands were Ordnance Lands, were not ordered to give particulars of facts and means by which, and the time at which, the lands so became Ordnance Lands, it not appearing that the defendants had any special means of information not open to the plaintiffs); see also Temperton v. Russell, 9 T. L. R. 319; Cave v. Torre, 54 L. T. 518, 519; Salisbury v. Nugent, 9 P. D. 23. The drawing of the line between evidence, and particulars of facts to prevent surprise, is often difficult: Britos Medical v. Britannia, 59 L. T. 888; Molsons Bank v. Hall, 5 O. W. R. 625.

A defendant may be ordered to give particulars of documents, and of the transactions to which they relate, (but not of their contents) referred to in his pleadings, though he has in an affidavit on production of documents effectually claimed for those documents the privilege of non-production: Milbank v. Milbank, 1900, 1 Ch. 376; 82 L. T. 63.

A party is entitled to have the opposite party's case presented in an intelligible form; Harbord v. Monk, 38 L. T. 411; Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 505; and if the charges are not sufficiently explicit, particulars may be ordered: see Anon., W. N. 1875, 202, 220; or an amendment of the claim may be applied for: Schomberg v. Zoebelli, W. N. 1876, 106; 2 Chart. Ch. Ca. 36.

Particulars compel a litigant to state the details of what he pleads, whether he himself knows the facts or not; discovery compels him to state what he knows: see Turnock v. Sortoris, 33 Sol. Jour. 58.

In determining what particulars may be demanded, the decisions under the English practice of delivering interrogatories may be usefully referred to. These shew that a party cannot be compelled to disclose the details of his evidence, as contradistinguished from the facts: Eade v. Jacobs, 3 Ex. D. 335; explained in Atty.-Gen v. Gaskill, 30 W. R. 558; Bidder v. Bridges, 29 Ch. D. 29; Benbow v. Low, 16 Ch. D. 93; Re Leigh, Rowcliffe v. Leigh, 6 Ch. D. 256; Sheward v. Lord Lonsdale, 5 C. P. D. 47; 42 L. T. 172; Commissioners of Sewers v. Glasse, L. R. 15 Eq. 302; Lister v. Thompson, 7 T. L. R. 107; or matters which do not pertain to the questions to be raised at the trial, though they may be relevant if a judgment is obtained: Parker v. Wells, 18 Ch. D. 477; but the material facts upon which the issues in the case will be raised must be disclosed: Ashley v. Taylor, 38 L. T. 44, such as, in an action for dissolution of a partnership in the practice of surgeons, occasions when the defendant conducted himself in such a way as to make it impossible for the plaintiff to practice with him: Lyon v. Tweddell, 13 Ch. D. 375; and, in an action for wrongful dismissal, instances of misconduct relied on to justify the dismissal: Saunders v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 435; Crabbe v. Hickson, 14 P. R. 42; and in an action for false imprisonment, particulars of reasonable and probable cause were ordered: Green v. Garbutt, 28 T. L. R. 575, 133 L. T. Jour. 330.

Where by his statement of claim, the plaintiff sued as trustee for A. B. "and others," upon motion by defendant he was ordered to amend his statement of claim by striking out the words "and others," or else to give particulars to defendant of such "others" within one week: Johnson v. Stafford, 33 C. L. J. 433.

Where the plaintiff claims not an account merely but a definite sum, he must state what his case is in detail, either in the pleadings or by way of particulars: Blackie v. Osmaston, 28 Ch. D. 119. Rule 138.

Where a party seeks to open a settled account, particulars of specific errors relied on may be ordered: Ontario Lumber Co. v. Cook, 11 O. L. R. 111.

Where a claim was for a liquidated sum under an agreement for services rendered, and money disbursed, particulars of services and disbursements were ordered: Gunn v. Tucker, 7 T. L. R. 280; see also Sedgwick v. Yedras Mining Co., 4 T. L. R. 17; Hall v. Symons, 92 L. T. Jour. 337.

See also notes to Rule 33.

As to particulars of damages: see Turnock v. Sartoris, 33 Sol. Jour. 58; Blachford v. Green, 14 P. R. 424.

As to particulars of payment into Court: see Rowe v. Kelly, 59 L. T. 139; James v. Radnor, 6 T. L. R. 240.

Where particulars of money claims can be indorsed, or stated in the claim, they ought to be so: see per Lush, J., Anon., W. N. 1875. 202; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 35. If, therefore, sufficient particulars are not given, the costs of an application to obtain them should be borne by the plaintiff.

In libel actions the following rules are established, viz., that where a defendant raises an imputation of misconduct against the plaintiff, the plaintiff ought to be enabled to go to trial with knowledge of the acts which it is alleged he has committed, and upon which the defendant intends to rely, as justifying the imputation; and if the particulars required are such as the defendant ought to give, he cannot refuse to do so, merely on the ground that his answer will disclose the names of witnesses: Woolton v. Sicvier, 1913, 3 K. B. 499; 109 L. T. 28. Particulars in libel actions.

Examples—Particulars not Ordered.—Particulars will not be ordered where the ordering of them will embarrass the party from whom they are asked, and the want of them will not take the party asking them by surprise, as where knowledge of the circumstances of the case lies with the party asking particulars: see Roberts v. Owen, 6 T. L. R. 172; Lister v. Thompson, 7 T. L. R. 107; Temperton v. Russell, 9 T. L. R. 319; Scottish Ont., etc., Co. v. Toronto. (Boyd, C., 20th Dec., 1897), or where they are immaterial, as, for example, in an action to recover certain charges, where the defence was that they were unreasonable and excessive, particulars of the items objected to were refused, as the plaintiff would at the trial have to prove that they were reasonable: James v. Radnor, 6 T. L. R. 240; see also Care v. Torre, 54 L. T. 515; Gibbons v. Norman, 2 T. L. R. 676; or where by them it is sought to have evidence of the facts disclosed, and not the facts themselves: see cases, supra, p. 582. Examples, where particulars not ordered.

Particulars of the fraud for which a conveyance was impeached were refused: Pitfield v. Guest, supra, at p. 581.

Where the plaintiff's claim was not a merely legal demand for an ascertained sum, but an equitable claim, which, if successful, would only lead to an account being taken, and particulars were not necessary to enable defendant to frame his defence, the plaintiff was not ordered to furnish them: Augustinus v. Nerinckx, 16 Ch. D. 16.

Rule 138.

Where a plaintiff was suing for an account by an administrator, an order requiring him to give particulars of the property of which he required an account was held to be erroneous, and was discharged: Corr v. Anderson, 112 L. T. Jour. 214.

Examples, where particulars were ordered.

Particulars Ordered.—Of payments which the defendants, who were mortgagees in a redemption action, admitted having received, and which were invoived in their counter-claim: Kemp v. Goldberg, 36 Ch. D. 505; 56 L. T. 736; of a sum for which credit was given by the claim, in order to enable defendant to frame his set-off or counter-claim: Godden v. Corsten, 5 C. P. D. 17; W. N. 1879, 190; of negligence, and damages, in an action for damages for injuries caused by negligent driving: O'Meara v. Stone, W. N. 1884, 72; 27 Sol. Jour. 359; of general allegations of trust, and breaches thereof: Re Anstice, 33 W. R. 557; 52 L. T. 572; of errors in progress certificates, though these were the result of information derived from documents prepared for the litigation which were privileged: Can. Pac. R. v. Conmee, 11 P. R. 297; of items alleged to be false entries, and of the nature of the objection to each: Newport v. Paynter, 34 Ch. D. 88; of false and fraudulent misrepresentations: Seligmon v. Young, W. N. 1884, 93; 28 Sol. Jour. 411; in an action for infringement of a trade mark, of "divers persons" alleged to have been deceived: Humphries v. Taylor Drug Co., 39 Ch. D. 693; of items of a claim in respect of which the defendant pays money into Court, but only if the trial will be facilitated and neither party embarrassed: Orient Steam Nav. Co. v. Ocean Marine Ins. Co., 34 W. R. 442. This case was decided under Rule 203, of Eng. Rules of 1883, providing expressly for a demand of particulars, and order therefor, if not given on demand, which is the practice pursued in Ontario without special Rule.

In an action for goods sold and delivered, a counter-claim for damages for inferior quality was set up. Particulars of the damages claimed were ordered: Anon., W. N. 1875, 220; see also notes to Rules 33 (g) and 111.

Defendants claiming a road to be a highway by dedication were ordered, if they relied on any specific acts of dedication or declarations of intention to dedicate, whether alone or jointly with user, to give the nature and dates of the acts or declarations, and the names of the persons by whom they were done or made: Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Ch. D. 410.

Alimony.

In suits for alimony, the former Chancery practice required that the various acts of violence, or adultery, relied on, should be set forth specifically in the bill, that the defendant might have notice of them, otherwise no evidence of such acts could be given: Rodman v. Rodman, 20 Gr. 428, 440, 441. This is in accordance with the present Rules of Pleading: see Brook v. Brook, 35 W. R. 351; 57 L. T. 425; In Rosenstadt v. Rosenstadt, 9 P. R. 311, an order was made for delivery of particulars of acts relied on, within one month, and confining the plaintiff's evidence to such acts: and though in that case it was considered convenient to order particulars, the decision shews clearly enough that the plaintiff's statement of claim was not properly framed to enable her to go into evidence. Particulars were ordered by names of servants in whose presence abusive language was alleged to have been used by plaintiff: Bishop v. Bishop, 1901, P. 325; 85 L. T. 173.

Rule 138.

Fatal Accidents Act.

In an action under The Fatal Accidents Act, by parents for the death of a son in a railway accident, particulars of the alleged negligence causing the death were refused, and also particulars of the damage claimed: Mulvenna v. Can. Pac. Ry., 5 O. W. N. 779; and see infra, p. 587.

Wrongful dismissal.

In an action for wrongful dismissal, the plaintiff is entitled to a list of the specific acts which defendant is aware of, and on which he proposes to rely as justifying dismissal, and if further facts are afterwards discovered, particulars of them should also be furnished before trial: Crabbe v. Hickson, 14 P. R. 42; Saunders v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 435; Scott v. Mewberry, 3 O. L. R. 252.

Malicious prosecution.

In an action for malicious prosecution defendant was not ordered to give particulars of what he relied on in support of an allegation of reasonable and probable cause, in the absence of any necessity for giving any such particulars being shown by plaintiffs: Roberts v. Owen, 6 T. L. R. 172.

False imprisonment.

In an action for false imprisonment as a lunatic, reasonable and probable cause as a defence was held to be an immaterial allegation, and particulars of it were refused: Cave v. Torre, 54 L. T. 87, 516.

Grounds of belief.

Where directors, sued for misrepresentations in a prospectus, set up that they had reasonable grounds to believe such representations to be true, particulars of such grounds of belief were ordered to be delivered: Odman v. Oppert, 1901, 2 K. B. 576; 87 L. T. 828.

Settled account.

Settled account: see Ontario Lumber Co. v. Cook, supra, p. 583.

Seduction.

In an action for seduction defendant was held not entitled to particulars of times and places, unless he made affidavit denying the seduction, so as to shew that he did not know the nature of the charges brought against him, which otherwise would be deemed to be matters within his own knowledge: Thompson v. Birkley, 31 W. R. 230; 47 L. T. 700; Knight v. Engle, 61 L. T. 780; Hollister v. Annable, 14 P. R. 11; Mason v. VanCamp, Ib., 296; and see Turner v. Kyle, 2 O. L. T. 311. Where such an affidavit is made, particulars may be ordered before defence: A. v. B., 7 O. L. R. 73; a denial of the paternity of the child does not entitle the defendant to particulars of others having had intercourse with the plaintiff's daughter: Hooton v. Bailey, 1907, 2 K. B. 18; 96 L. T. 537.

Criminal conversation.

In an action for crim. con., defendant is entitled to particulars of times and places, where he makes affidavit denying the alleged acts, and stating that he is ignorant of the charge, and that the application is made bonâ fide: Keenan v. Pringle, 28 L. R. Ir. 135; but not without such an affidavit, especially after an examination for discovery: Murray v. Brown, 16 P. R. 125.

Undue influence. Testator's mental capacity.

The practice in the Probate Division in England is not to order particulars of undue influence charged: Salisbury v. Nugent, 9 P. D. 23; or of allegations of a testator's unsoundness of mind: Hankinson v. Barningham, 53 L. J. Pro. 16.

Libel and slander.

In an action for libel against a newspaper, the statement of claim must be confined to the statement specified in the notice required by The Libel and Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71), s. 8, to be given before action: Obernier v. Robertson, 14 P. R. 552.

Where the charge made against the plaintiff is general, the defendant who pleads justification must set out the facts on which he relies in support of his justification, and if he do not, particulars will be ordered: Zierenberg v. Labouchere, 1893, 2 Q. B. 183; 69 L. T. 172; Bristol v. German P. & P. Co., 33 C. L. J. 462; Wilkinson v. Hamilton Spectator, 2 O. W. N. 471; and if it is necessary in order to enable the plaintiff to know what particular occasion, or transaction is referred to in the defence, the defendant may be required to disclose the names of persons, notwithstanding such disclosure may involve disclosing the names of the defendants' witnesses: Wootton v. Sicvier, 1913, 3 K. B. 499; 109 L. T. 28.

Where a review of a book stated that the plaintiff by his own confession was a barefaced liar, and the defence was justification, the plaintiff was held entitled to particulars of the passage relied on: Devereux v. Clarke & Co., 1891, 2 Q. B. 582; and see Foster v. Perryman, 8 T. L. R. 115.

In an action for libel in a newspaper publication, which the defence said was an accurate report of certain public proceedings and fair comment thereon, particulars by interrogation were denied as to the names of persons on whose information the report was based: Hennessy v. Wright (No. 2), 36 W. R. 878; 24 Q. B. D. 445; and where the action is against the proprietor of a newspaper who admits the publication of the libel, and pleads an apology, the plaintiff is not entitled to interrogate the defendant as to the name of the writer, unless the identity of the writer is a fact material to some issue raised in the case: Gibson v. Evans, 23 Q. B. D. 384; Blanc v. Burrows, 12 T. L. R. 521; nor to have production of the original manuscript of the libel: Hope v. Brash, 1897, 2 Q. B. 188; 76 L. T. 823.

Particulars were ordered of a defence of justification in a libel suit, where it was not clear whether the defence was that what was charged against plaintiff was true, or was truly reported: Hennessy v. Wright, 57 L. T. 795; 57 L. J. Q. B. 594. In Wills v. Carman, 17 Ont. 223, a defendant not pleading justification, but saying that the alleged libel was a fair comment on matters of public interest, was held entitled to show what the facts were, as to the matters commented upon, in order to show that the comments upon them were fair; but this does not mean that a defendant can give evidence to show that the alleged libel is true without pleading justification: Brown v. Moyer, 20 Ont. App. 509; Manitoba, etc., v. Martin, 21 S. C. R. 518.

A defendant in a libel action is not entitled to particulars of the names of persons, or dates, and places, where the alleged libel was published, in the absence of special grounds requiring them, and particularly when the particulars of the publication if any must be known to the defendant: Keogh v. Incorporated Dental Hospital, 1910, 2 Ir. R. 166.

Slander cases.

In an action for slander, particulars may be ordered of the persons to whom the slanderous words were spoken, or if such persons are unknown, or the words were spoken to the plaintiff, then the name of any person who was present and heard, or might have heard the words spoken: Thornton v. Copstock, 9 P. R. 535; which, it has been held in Gould v. Beattie, 11 P. R. 329 (see also Patterson v. Dunn, 14 P. R. 40), is in Ontario, to be followed in preference to the contrary views expressed in Bradbury v. Cooper, 12 Q. B. D. 94, and Roselle v. Buchanan, 16 Q. B. D. 656; but see McMillan v. Colwell, 7 C. L. T. 141; but it has been held, even in England, that those decisions are not to be extended to occasions of publication of an alleged libel: Gourand v. Fitzgerold, 37 W. R. 55. Particulars as to the names of persons alleged to have been passing by, when the slanderous words were used, and particulars as to the alleged damages, have been refused: Wingard v. Cox, W. N. 1876, 106, 2 Charl. Ch. Cs. 33; see also Colonial Insurance Corporation v. Prosser, W. N. 1876, 55; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 35; Restell v. Steward, W. N. 1875, 231; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 87; more especially where the persons are persons whose names the plaintiff does not know: Dawson v. Rogan, 10 C. L. T. 300. Rule 186.

Where the plaintiff alleged slander spoken to S. C. "and others," particulars as to "others" were refused, where, before motion, the plaintiff gave all the information in his power as to what he knew of the other persons present, and the defendant did not swear that he could not plead without further particulars: Winnett v. Applebe, 16 P. R. 57.

In an action for slander imputing a specific charge, which is justified, no particulars are necessary: Cuming v. Green, 7 T. L. R. 408: see Foster v. Perryman, 8 T. L. R. 115; and Heaton v. Goldney, 1910, 1 K. B. 754; 102 L. T. 451.

But a defendant is entitled to the fullest particulars the plaintiff can furnish, as to places where, times when, and persons to whom alleged defamatory words were uttered; and also of the names of persons who have ceased to do business with plaintiff, in consequence of the alleged slander, and also particulars of the slanderous statements alleged as showing express malice, or in aggravation of damages: Muller v. Gerth, 17 P. R. 129; and see Robinson v. Sugarman, 17 P. R. 419.

Where fair comment was pleaded, and the defendant stated that the facts on which he commented were statements in certain specified documents, further particulars were refused: Digby v. Financial News, 1907, 1 K. B. 502; 96 L. T. 172.

In an action for slander of title, particulars were refused as to persons who would have given more than was realized at the sale in respect of which damages were claimed: Catton v. Gleason, 14 P. R. 222; but in an action for libel, particulars were ordered of the facts on which the plaintiff's claim for damages for loss of trade was based: Blachford v. Green, 14 P. R. 424. Slander of title.

Particulars were ordered of the links of relationship, whereby plaintiff sought to establish his title as heir, in an action for the recovery of land: Palmer v. Palmer, 1892, 1 Q. B. 319; also of the section of the Real Property Limitation Act on which defendant relied: Dodge v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 46. Ejectment.

Particulars of negligence causing death of plaintiff's husband were refused, (plaintiff and defendant being both in ignorance of the circumstances); Smith v. Reid, 17 O. L. R. 265; and see supra, p. 585. Negligence.

As to the extent to which a defendant setting up a defence of misrepresentation in procuring insurance, arson, and improper statement of loss, may be ordered to give particulars: see Katrine L. Co. v. Liverpool & L. Ins. Co., 17 P. R. 318. Insurance cases.

Particulars of objections to a patent must be given: see Cropper v. Smith, 51 L. T. 729: see form of order in Ehrlich v. Ihlee, 56 L. T. 819. Patent cases.

The general law applicable to discovery governs actions for infringement of patents. Full disclosure of the lines of attack must be made, hut no such individualizing of the persons who are alleged to hs prior users as would enahle ths plaintiff to fix upon the defendant's witnesses: Smith v. Greey, 4 C. L. T. 589; 21 C. L. J. 58; 11 P. R. 169.

In Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co., 55 L. T. 482, particulars of infringements of two patents were delivered. Ths defendant snswered the plaintiff's interrogatories, whereupon he discontinued as to one patent. The defendants then required the plaintiff to distinguish hetween the infringements compiained of, referring him to thsir answers and interrogatories, and interrogating him as to which of the processes, which they described, infringsd the patent relied on by him. It was held that the plaintiff was not obliged to particularize the infringements: see also Birch v. Mather, 31 W. R. 362; 22 Ch. D. 629; Anglo-American Brush Co. v. Crompton, 34 Ch. D. 152; 35 Ch. D. 283, under Imp. Act 46 & 47 Vict. c. 57, s. 29.

Particulars wers ordered of respects in which the defendants denied that the plaintiffs' patent was for any new invention, etc. (as alleged), and dates and occasions when, and aiso names of persons hy whom prior user was had: Smith v. Greey, 11 P. R. 169; see aiso Holliday v. Heppenstall, 41 Ch. D. 109; Union Electrical, etc., Co. v. Electrical Storage Co., 38 Ch. D. 325; Boyd v. Farrar, 57 L. T. 866.

An application hy the defendant to amend his particulars of ohjections to a patent, on the ground that, pending the triai, the defendant had discovered new facts showing want of novelty, wss refus[illegible], it not being shown that he couid not with reasonahle diiigence have discovered the new facts sooner: Moss v. Malings, 33 Ch. D. 603.

All defects in the specifications of a patent on which ths defendant intends to reiy at the trial must be specified in ths particuisrs of ohjection: Anglo-American Brush Co. v. Crompton, 34 Ch. D. 152; 35 Ch. D. 283.

In an action for infringement of a duiy registered copyright, particulars were ordered showing the date of registration of the copyright, and the parts of defendant's book which infringed it: Liddell v. Copp Clark Co., 19 P. R. 332.

"Not guilty by Statute."

Particulars of a defence under "not guiity, hy statute" may now be requirsd: see Rule 156.

Effect of order for particulars.

Effect of Order for Particulars.—Where particulars are deiivered pursuant to a demand, or an order, ths party deiivering the same wiii he restricted at the triai to the particulars so delivered, without any order for that purposs: Young v. Erie & H. Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 4.

It may be made a term of an order for the deiivery of particuiars, that in dsfault of deiivery hy a plaintiff his action he dismissed, and in case of a defendant, that his defence he struck out: see Davey v. Bentinck, 1893, 1 Q. B. 185; 67 L. T. 742; or it may provids for the exclusion of evidence if no particulars, or insufficient particuiars, are given: Noxon v. Patterson, 16 P. R. 40, and if hy the terms of the order the iatter is the penalty imposed on a defendant for default, a further order wiii not he mads iimiting a time for deiivery of particuiars, and on default striking out the defence: Bell v. Morrison, 5 O. W. R. 226; ths order for particulars should not direct ths excision of the pleading, on default, if it is good per se: Noxon v. Patterson, supra, p. 588. Rules 139-141.

Where an order was made for particulars of certain paragraphs of defence, and in default the paragraphs to be struck out, it was held that the officer with whom the pleadings were filed could strike out the paragraphs without further order, upon default being shown by affidavit: Hamilton Road Co. v. Flatt, 10 P. R. 581.

An order striking out particulars complained of as too general was refused, it being held that, if too general, the admission of evidence thereunder was in the discretion of the Judge at the trial: Citizens Insurance v. Camphell, 10 P. R. 129.

As to the giving of particulars by parties in a representative capacity: see Higgins v. Weekes, 5 T. L. R. 238.

GENERAL RULES OF PLEADING.

139. Every writ, pleading or other document, may be printed, typewriten, or written in whole or in part. C.R. 265. Pleadings may be written, etc.

See Eng. (1883) R. 205.

C. R. 265 limited the number of copies of a document to be allowed on taxation, but the new tariff has rendered that provision unnecessary.

When a pleading is printed Rule 188 prescribes the kind of type to be used.

Pleadings must be in English: see sec. 122, p. 293, supra.

140. Every pleading shall be filed, and served upon all parties concerned therewith, and shall be marked on the face with the date of filing, and with the title of the action, the description of the pleading, and the name and place of business of the solicitor and agent (if any) of the party filing the same, or the name and address of the party filing the same if he does not act by a solicitor. C.R. 266, amended. How pleadings delivered should be marked.

This Rule is a consolidation and amendment of C. RR. 266, 267. Delivery includes filing and service.

In Ontario the delivery of a pleading includes both its filing and service. The English practice does not require pleadings to be filed: see Lloyd v. Ward, in note to Rule 121, p. 537, supra.

141. Pleadings shall contain a concise statement of the material facts upon which the party pleading relies, but not the evidence by which they are to be proved; dates, sums and numbers shall be expressed in figures. C.R. 268. Form of pleadings.

The somewhat similar Eng. (1883) R. 200, provides for the signing of pleadings, and that a pleading "shall contain, and contain only, a statament in a summary form of the material facts, etc." The pleadings in England since this Rule ara now like a special indorsement on a writ, which indeed always serves as a statement of claim: see O. 20, r. 1. The Englisb pleadings and dacisions tberaon, and as to particulars, cannot now be safe guides in Ontario.

Facts to be stated.

The system of pleading introduced by tbe Jud. Act, 1881 requires not tbe legal result of the facts, but tha facts tbemselves, to be statad. A statement of claim, therefora, wbicb marely alleged that a good and valid do*natio mortis causo* had been made to tha plaintiff, without stating the facts which constituted it, was formerly held to be demurrable: Re Porton, Townsend v. Porton, 30 W. R. 287; 45 L. T. 755; so a statement that "thera was contributory negligence on tha part of the plaintiff," is a statement of a conclusion of law on a state of facts not set out: Kelly v. Martin, 6 O. W. R. 141.

Subsequent Rules modify slightly tha original Rule requiring tha facts only to he stated: see Rule 143, by which the contentions in point of law must be stated, so as to prevent surprise. In complying with tbese Rules therefore, it may not always he proper to state only facts.

Libel.

In an action for defamation, the plaintiff must set out, as formerly, tha words of the alleged libel: see notes to Rule 147, and Robinson v. Sugormon, 17 P. R. 419; Hoy v. Binghom, 5 O. L. R. 224; and the defendant must set out all the facts sbewing defences, e.g., justification, or priviiege: Belt v. Lowes, 51 L. J. Q. B. 359; or intended to be relied on in mitigation of damages, such as the plaintiff's general bad character: Scott v. Sampson, 8 Q. B. D. 491; sea notes to Rule 158; or that the alleged libel (when in a newspaper article) was published in good faith and in the usual coursa of business: Beaton v. Intelligencer, etc., 22 Ont. App. 97; or that the words were spoken on a privileged occasion: Vansycle v. Parish, 1 O. L. R. 13; so in an action for libel, where the defendant pleads fair comment on matters of puhlic interest, he must set out the facts upon which it is alleged that the article complained of was a fair comment, or allege tha truth tbereof: Crow's Nest Cool Co. v. Bell, 4 O. L. R. 660.

A statement of claim in an action for defamation for words charging tbe plaintiff with an offence under tbe Cr. Coda, ss. 533, 534, need not aver special damage, hut it is otherwise when the offence charged is a violation of ss. 529 or 530: see Routley v. Horris, 18 Ont. 405.

Slander.

In an action of slander it is not sufficient to allege that the defendant falsely, and maliciously, spoke, and published, the dafamatory words complained of. The tima and place, and the parsons to whom, or in whose presence, they wers spoken must be stated with reasonabla certainty: Thornton v. Capstock, 19 C. L. J. 254; the statement that the words wera spoken and published to certain named persons, "and to others at present unknown to the plaintiff," was held sufficient: Townsend v. O'Keefe, 18 P. R. 147; an allegation that during a period of 5 months the defendant spoka and published various slanders to certain named persons, and to others not known to the plaintiff, was held bad, and struck out because it did not shew which of the persons were present when the different statements were made, nor at which times and places they were present: Ib.

A counter-claim for slander, referring to charges set out in the statement of defence, on an occasion primâ facie privileged, and alleging tbst tbey were falsely and maliciously spoken, was held to be s good pleading, though it omitted to shew in what respect the plaintiff had exceeded the privilege: Hopewell v. Kennedy, 9 O. L. R. 43. Rule 141.

A defence of purchaser for value without notice may be relied on at the hearing, though not expressly pleaded, if it be a just inference from the facts admitted, on the pleadings, or subsequently by agreement of the parties: Taylor v. Blacklock, 34 W. R. 175; and see note to Rule 148. Purchaser for value.

Ths pleadings in dower are governed by the same rules as those in other actions. The right of dower is a legal conclusion from certain facts, and those facts should be stated in the pleading: Lauder v. Carrier, 10 P. R. 612. Dower.

A plaintiff who claimed to be entitled to a right of way over a road, snd an injunction against the obstruction of the road, was required to state in his pleading the way, and the route, and limitations of the road, over which he claimed the right. A general statement that there was a road over a certain farm connecting two other farms, and that the plaintiff and his tenants were entitled to a right of way over it, was held to be embarrassing: Harris v. Jenkins, 22 Ch. D. 481; see also Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Ch. D. 410. So a plaintiff claiming an easement must set out the facts on which he relies as entitling him, by grant, prescription or otherwise: Farwell v. Hoogan, 12 L. R. Ir. 14; and as to a defence in such a case: see Thornhill v. Weeks, supra, p. 579. Other cases.

Where the pleadings alleged that "the company has otherwise acknowledged its insolvency," it waa held that aa a matter of pleading, the manner of acknowledgment should have been stated: Re British American Loan, etc., Co., 4 C. L. T. 248.

In a foreclosure action where the mortgagee applies for judgment, on default of appearance, not only for foreclosure, hut also for a personal order for payment, the statement of claim ought, shortly, to contain an express statement of the covenant, or other contract, upon which the order is claimed: Law v. Philby, 56 L. T. 230; 35 W. R. 401.

Stating the Material Facts.—All facts which are material to the plaintiff's claim should be stated in the claim, and all the matters whether of law or fact relied on by way of defence should be stated in the defence, or the omission of some material allegation by way of claim, or defence, may ultimately prove fatal to the litigant: see Haddington [illegible] Quarry Co. v. Huson, 1911, A. C. 722; 105 L. T. 467. What are "material facts."

There is a difference in the rules governing pleadings in actions respecting patents for inventions and other cases: Duryea v. Kaufman, 21 O. L. R. 161. Tha "material facts" are those which the party must prove to be fully and completely successful: Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 88; and, generally speaking, any fact which may bs properly proved, may be pleaded; hut not facts, which, if proved, would have no effect upon the result: Duryea v. Kaufman, supra, hut allegations consisting of an historical history of the plaintiff's claim though unnecessary in one view, hut shewing why the action was brought, were allowed to stand: Curry v. Clarkson, 2 O. W. N. 221; and see Fearnside v. Morris, Ib., 676. Facts may be "material," thongh they are not facts which must be proved in order to establish the cause of action; if they are facts which, if proved, would affect the damages, thsy are properly pleadable in a statement of claim: Millington v. Loring, 6 Q. B. D. 196; (explained. Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., supra); Lamb v. Beaumont, 49 L. T. 772; Glossop v. Spindler, 29 Sol. Jour. 556; Whitney v. Moignard, 24 Q. B. D. 630; so facts in mitigation of damages, in an action for malicious arrest: Pursley v. Bennett, 11 P. R. 64; and in an action for slander: Vonsycle v. Parish, 1 O. L. R. 13. The Eng. Rules of 1883 (R. 237), provide that no defence as to damages shall be necessary; and, therefore, such a defence is not allowed to be pleaded: Wood v. Earl of Durham, 37 W. R. 222; sed vide, Whitney v. Moignard, 24 Q. B. D. 630. There is no similar provision in Ontario.

In an action for malicious prosecution, a part of the statement of claim, setting out the observations of the Judge, before whom the plaintiff was tried on a criminal charge, was struck out, but a part, stating damage from publication of such charge, was allowed to stand: Morrow v. Cheyne, 12 P. R. 487.

In an action for damages for false representations inducing the plaintiffs to supply the defendant with goods and money, it is sufficient to aver that the goods and money were supplied on the faith of statements, oral, and written, (specifying them), falsely and fraudulently made, leaving the details of goods, etc., to be given by particulars subsequently if required: Arthur v. Runnians, 18 P. R. 205.

Illegality.

A plea to an action on a contract, that it was entered into for immoral, or illegal, consideration, must set out the particular facts relied on as establishing such consideration: Clark v. Hogar, 22 S. C. R. 510; see note to Rule 143.

Though each paragraph should as nearly as possible contain a separate allegation, it need not contain a separate cause of action or defence: Union F. I. Co. v. Lyman, 46 U. C. Q. B. 453. The facts must be stated concisely, without any rhetoric: per Melliah, L.J., in Watson v. Rodwell, 45 L. J. Chy. 744; 3 Ch. D. 380; but if a pleading states only material facts, it will not be struck out merely because the facts are stated at too great a length: Heop v. Marris, 2 Q. B. D. 630; unless the pleading is so prolix as to embarrass: Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. at p. 488; Mar. v. Pontefract, etc., W. N. 1876, 7.

Prolixity.

Prolixity may consist in (1) necessary facts being stated at undue length; or (2) statements of unnecessary facts: per Baggallay, L.J., in Davy v. Garrett, 38 L. T. 77. It is improper to state argument, or inferences and conclusions of law: Davy v. Garrett, supra, and per Mellish, L. J., in Watson v. Rodwell, supra: Hanmer v. Flight, 35 L. T. 127; Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 787; but matters of law may, and semble should, be raised: see Rules 122, 143; but "charges" such as were sometimes introduced in Equity pleadings, and which were merely statements of the pleader's view of the equity should not be stated: Watson v. Rodwell, supra; nor evidence, e.g., facts shewing that a person is the heir-at-law of a deceased person: Evelyn v. Evelyn, W. N. 1880, 62; see also Blake v. Albion Life Ins. Co., 35 L. T. 269; 45 L. J. C. P. 663; Jones v. Turner, W. N. 1875, 239; Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., supra; Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 88; nor evidence in the shape of admissions: Askew v. N. E. Ry. Co., W. N. 1875, 238. Documents relied on as admissions are nothing but evidence; Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473.

Admissions and other evidence.

Arrangement of allegations and causes of action and defence.

A plaintiff is entitled to have the defences set out in such a manner as will enable him upon reading them to form a fairly correct judgment as to their scope and meaning, and as to what is intended to be relied upon under them. Paragraphs should be arranged so as to group separate defences: Dryden v. Smith, (2) 17 P. R. 505.

The Court has a discretion to strike out statements which are open to any of these objections: Rule 137. There are many cases in which facts and evidence are so mixed up as to be almost indistinguishable: per Archibald, J., in Smith v. West, W. N. 1876, 55; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 51. Rule 141.

The plaintiff in an action to recover land, must set out all the material facts upon which his title is founded; but a defendant need not do so, unless his title is equitable: see note to Rule 155.

The plaintiff need not state under what particular form of action he is proceeding; nor in what legal relation he claims to stand to the defendant: Metropolitan Ry. Co. v. Defries, 36 L. T. 150, 494; Honmer v. Flight, 24 W. R. 346.

What is material, is a statement of the facts, and of the relief claimed: and the facts need not be distributed so as to show which of them support each claim to relief. So long as the facts show which plaintiff is entitled to any one kind of relief claimed, or, where there is a claim for general relief, to any relief at all, the paragraph containing them will not be objectionable: Watson v. Hawkins, 21 W. R. 884.

The old form of Common Law pleading for money had and received, was considered a sufficient statement of that fact; and an application for the amendment of the statement of claim by setting forth the circumstances under which the money was received, was dismissed: Bartlett v. Roche, W. N. 1876, 54; but the old Common Law pleadings, as a rule, are no longer admissible. Former Common Law Forms.

Defences, of "never indebted" and "set-off," in the old forms, have been struck out as violating the present Rule: Davis v. Yeo, Mr. Dalton, 11th April, 1882. See Copley v. Jackson, W. N. 1884, 39.

The pleading of the "common counts" is not admissible: Sproule v. Ferrier, 20 C. L. J. 284.

The plea of "not guilty," without statutory authority to plead it, is not admissible: Peterborough v. Midland Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 127.

Where a condition is set up in a pleading, it is unnecessary to aver performance, as that is implied: see Rule 146. And the opposite party must, in his pleading, specify the condition which has not been performed, if he desires to set up non-performance. Conditions precedent.

The English (1883) Rule 210 is an express Rule on the subject: see also Bradley v. Chamberlyn, 1893, 1 Q. B. 439.

Quære, whether hypothetical defences can be pleaded: Smith v. Farr, 14 Ont. 729.

An appearance with these words added, "the defendant admits only $103, but otherwise disputes the plaintiff's claim in this action," was held to be in effect a statement of defence: Voight, etc., Co. v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443. Unconventional forms of pleadings.

C. R. 283 expressly provided that a defence in abatement shall not be pleaded, but that Rule has not been included. No plea in abatement.

A plea in abatement was one which showed some ground for abating, or quashing, the writ, or the writ and declaration. Such pleas were generally based on the non-joinder of parties, or the personal incompetency of the parties to sue, or be sued, or the want of jurisdiction in the Court; and according to the former procedure, where such a plea was pleaded, it must have been disposed of before a plea to the merits need be pleaded. An instance of an ineffectual attempt to raise what amounted to a plea in abatement, will be found in Preston v. Lamont, 1 Ex. D. 361.

Though the form of objecting, by means of a plea in abatement, to the non-joinder of a defendant, who ought to be included in the action, is abolished, yet an objection to the want of parties ought to be disposed of upon the same principles on which a plea in abatement would have succeeded, or failed: per Lord Cairns in Kendall v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas, 516; 41 L. T. 418.

A defence stating that the plaintiff is a married woman, and that her husband is a necessary party, is in reality an informal plea in abatement, and was held to be no defence: Abouloff v. Oppenheimer, 30 W. R. 429.

Under Rule 48 permitting the entry of a conditional appearance, it would seem as if a plea to the jurisdiction may now be pleaded; whether a defendant could insist that that plea must be first adjudicated before he can be required to deliver a defence is not clear: see notes to Rule 48.

Signature of counsel unnecessary.

The signature of counsel to a pleading is unnecessary.

Admission of statements of opponent.

142. Each party shall admit such of the material allegations contained in the pleading of the opposite party as are true, and a defendant shall not deny generally the allegations contained in the statement of claim but shall set forth the facts upon which he relies even though this may involve the assertion of a negative. C.R. 269, amended.

This Rule corresponds in principle with the former practice in Chancery. The Eng. (1883) R. 371, is permissive only, and authorizes, but does not require (as this Rule does) a party to the action to give notice, by his own statement or otherwise, that he admits the truth of the whole or part of his adversary's pleading.

In Lee v. Button, 12 Ch. D. 383, Malins, V.C., said that a defendant ought not to deny the plain and acknowledged facts, which it is neither to his interest, nor in his power, to disprove.

As to the construction of admissions not made by reference to paragraphs of the opposite party's pleading: see Dovey v. Irwin, 4 Ont. 8.

Where all the material allegations in the plaintiff's claim were admitted, he was not allowed to go into evidence: The Hardwick, 9 P. D. 32.

As to costs, where proper admissions are not made: see Rule 671.

As to withdrawing admissions made otherwise than in pleadings: see East v. O'Connor, 19 P. R. 301, in notes to Rule 222, infra.

By Rule 144 "save as otherwise provided" the silence of a pleading as to any allegation in a previous pleading is not to be an admission of its truth. Where no defence is put in, then, on the pleadings being noted closed, the defendant is taken to admit the facts set out in the statement of claim: Rule 354. Rule 143.

143. A defendant to an action or counter-claim shall raise all matters which show the action or counter-claim not to be maintainable, or that the transaction is either void or voidable in point of law, and all such grounds of defence as if not raised would be likely to take the opposite party by surprise, or would raise issues of fact not arising out of the preceding pleadings, as for instance, fraud, Statute of Limitations, release, payment, performance, facts showing illegality either by statute or Common Law, or Statute of Frauds. C.R. 271. Pleadings to raise all grounds of defence or reply.

In Byrd v. Nunn, 5 Ch. D. 781, where a statement of defence denied the making of an agreement alleged, and proceeded to say that the person by whom it was alleged to have been made was of unsound mind, it was held that the only issue was the unsoundness of mind of the alleged contractor. In Collette v. Goode, 7 Ch. D. 842 the defendant alleged that a song was not duly registered by reason of the time of registration not being entered; he was not allowed to prove that the registration was void, by reason of the name of the publishers not being duly stated. Both the above cases, however, depended to a great extent, upon the English Rules as to admissions, which have not been adopted in Ontario: see note to Rule 144.

Plea to the Jurisdiction of the Court.—In a proper case the Court will allow an objection of ouster of jurisdiction to be raised at the trial, though not previously raised by the pleadings: Crossfield v. Manchester Ship Canal Co., 1904, 2 Ch. 123. Jurisdiction.

Notice of Action.—Want of notice of action, when necessary, (see The Libel and Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71, s. 8), must be pleaded: Verratt v. McAulay, 5 Ont. 313; McKay v. Cummings, 6 Ont. 400; and see Conmee v. Weidman, 16 P. R. 239. Notice of action.

Notice of Dishonour.—In an action on a dishonoured cheque, notice of dishonour to the drawer should be averred: Fruhouf v. Grosvenor, 67 L. T. 550; 61 L. J. Q. B. 717; 8 T. L. R. 744. Notice of dishonour.

Libel—Justification—Privilege.—In an action for libel, justification, or privilege, must be specially pleaded: Belt v. Lawes, 51 L. J. Q. B. 359, and see notes to Rule 141. Justification—privilege.

Fraud.—As to the mode of pleading fraud; see notes to Rule 148. Fraud.

Statute of Limitations.—Where the Statute is pleaded the particular section or sections relied on should be specified, or the defendant may be required to give further particulars: Dodge v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 46. Pleading Statute of Limitations.

But The Public Authorities Act (R. S. O. c. 89), was held to be a Statute of Limitations, and its limitation provisions available as a defence on a pleading merely setting up a Statute of Limitation without specifying the Act: Gregory v. Torquay, 1911, 2 K. B. 556; 105 L. T. 138 (a C. C. case).

Wherever the plaintiff is allowed, by amendment, to set up a new claim, the Court may, and ordinarily will, impose the term, that the defendant shall be in the same position in regard to such new claim under the Statute of Limitations, as if the action, as to such claim, had been commenced at the date of the amendment: Hoguboom v. MacCulloch, 17 P. R. 377.

Pleading Statute of Frauds.

Statute of Frauds.—The effect of this Rule and of Rule 154 is to require the defendant who wishes to rely on the Statute of Frauds, in an action between the parties to a contract, to plead the Statute specifically; but where the plaintiff has to show a title good in omnibus (as in an action for conversion of goods), the defendant may, without specially pleading the Statute of Frauds, set up that the plaintiff's title is based upon a contract which is void under that Statute: Kent v. Ellis, 31 S. C. R. 110.

Formerly "at law, if the contract was denied, it was a matter of evidence whether the contract was one which could be sued upon, or whether the remedy was barred by the Statute; but in Equity, if the defendant intended to rely upon the Statute of Frauds, or any other special statute, he was compelled to make a special averment of his intention": per Mellish, L.J., in Clarke v. Callow, 46 L. J. Q. B. 54; see also Morgan v. Worthington, 38 L. T. 443.

Formerly in Equity the statute might have been relied on by demurrer where the facts, which made the statute apply, appeared on the face of the bill: Wood v. Midgeley, 2 Sm. & G. 115; Agnew on Statute of Frauds, 494; and might have been relied on as a defence, though not pleaded in the answer: Wilde v. Wilde, 20 Gr. 521; sed vide Butler v. Church, 18 Gr. 190; but in Clarke v. Callow, supra, the plaintiff, by anticipation of the defence of the statute, alleged facts to show that the contract, though verbal, was a binding one under the Statute, and the defendants traversed these facts merely, not setting up the Statute; and it was held that defendant was not entitled to rely on the Statute.

The facts which make the Statute apply should be stated, and the particular provisions relied upon should be pointed to. It is not sufficient to merely make a general statement of reliance on the Statute: Pullen v. Snelus, 40 L. T. 303. But see James v. Smith, 1891, 1 Ch. 384, where it was held that it is not necessary to plead any particular section of the Statute of Frauds, but the defendant having pleaded sec. 4 was not allowed to amend, or avail himself of sec. 7; (see S. C. in Appeal, 65 L. T. 544, and Dodge v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 46).

Though it has not been proper since the Judicature Act to raise the defence of the Statute of Frauds by demurrer: Catling v. King, 5 Ch. D. 660; Morgan v. Worthington, 38 L. T. 443; Towle v. Topham, 37 L. T. 308; Dawkins v. Lord Penrhyn, 4 App. Cas. 51; Shardlow v. Cotterill, W. N. 1881, 2; Futcher v. Futcher, 29 W. R. 884, and see Johnasson v. Bonhote, 2 Ch. D. 298, a question under the Statute may probably now be raised under the procedure adopted in lieu of demurrers (see Rules 124, 126) where the facts which make the Statute apply appear upon the pleading of the opposite party.

Where the Statute is not pleaded, it cannot now be relied on as a defence: see Olley v. Fisher, 34 Ch. D. 367.

Where a plaintiff at the trial is allowed to amend by setting up a new case, the defendant is ex debito justitiæ entitled to amend by setting up a defence thereto, and may in such defence set up the Statute of Frauds as to the new case, though not previously pleaded: Emsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. [illegible]; Brunning v. Odhams, 75 L. T. 602.

See also Rule 154 and notes

Pleading other statutes.

Other Statutes.—As to pleading statutes relied on, other than the Statute of Limitations, and the Statute of Frauds: see 83 L. T. Jour. 93; Coburn v. Collins, 35 Ch. D. 373 (registration necessary under the Bill of Sales Act): Hoyward v. Lely, 56 L. T. 418 (registration under the Copyright Act); from which it would appear to be well to mention any statute relied on in the pleading, in order to prevent the imputation of an attempt to surprise. The pleadings in the above cases were held insufficient, but amendments were allowed: see also McKoy v. Cummings, 6 Ont. 400. As to The Chattel Mortgage Act, see Williams v. Leonard, 16 P. R. 544; 17 P. R. 73; Siven v. Temiskaming Mining Co., 2 O. W. N. 129; and as to The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 124), see B. & L. Assoc. v. Poaps, 27 Ont. at p. 476, and as to The Master and Servant Act (R. S. O. c. 144), see Neil v. Park, 10 P. R. 476.

A mistake in the year of the Statute referred to in a pleading, would not appear to be fatal, provided that it reasonably appears what statute is intended: Renton v. King, 93 L. T. 10.

Illegality.

Illegality.—See Pearson v. Carpenter, 35 S. C. R. 886. Where a contract sued on was illegal, it is not necessary expressly to plead the illegality as the Court is bound to take notice of it: N. W. Salt Co. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co., 107 L. T. 439; but the facts constituting the illegality must be stated: Clark v. Hogor, 22 S. C. R. 510.

Res Judicata.—Estoppel by res judicata cannot be relied upon unless specially pleaded: Cooper v. Molsons Bank, 26 S. C. R. 611; Hounstan v. Sligo, 29 Ch. D. 448; Edevain v. Cohen, 43 Ch. D. 187.

Performance.—As to the averment of performance of conditions precedent: see note to Rule 146.

Silence of pleading no admission.

144. Save as otherwise provided, the silence of a pleading as to any allegation contained in the previous pleading of the opposite party shall not be construed as an admission of the truth of such allegation. C.R. 272.

See Eng. (1883) R. 209, which is different.

This Rule introduces the practice of the Court of Chancery as to admissions: Chy. O. 123; see also Rule 142. It was a principle of Common Law pleading that each party was to be taken to admit those allegations in the pleadings of the opposite party which he did not deny, and that is the present English practice.

Exceptions to Rule.

"Save as Otherwise Provided."—The exceptions referred to in these words are those which require the pleading to specifically deny the right of the party to claim in a representative capacity; or the alleged constitution of a partnership firm: Rule 152; or the incorporation of a corporate party: Rule 153; or the legality of a contract; or its sufficiency in point of law: Rule 154.

Where a material fact therefore is alleged in a pleading, and the pleading of the opposite party is silent in respect thereto, the fact must be considered in issue: Waterloo Mutual, etc., v. Robinson, 4 Ont. 295; Seabrook v. Young, 7 C. L. T. 152; King v. Bailey, 31 S. C. R. 342.

Where a pleading, however, does not maintain silence, but contains an answer to allegations in opposite pleadings which has no sense if not read as admitting certain statements, those statements must be taken as admitted: Richardson v. Jenkins, 10 P. R. 292.

The present Rule is not applicable where under Rule 122 a point of law is raised on the pleadings. Thus where a reply raised a question of law to the effect that certain paragraphs of the statement of the defence raised no defence to the action, it was held that this Rule did not apply, and that the statements referred to were thereby admitted for the purposes of the argument of the question of law: Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 26 Ont. at p. 65.

The English Rules under the Judicature Acts, in regard to admissions, differ from the above: see Eng. (1883) Rules 209, 213, 216, 218, the effect of which is that, so far as regards statements of claim and defence and counter-claim, and as regards parties who are not infants or lunatics, the want of a specific denial of a fact will operate as an admission, and will entitle the party, whose pleading is thus admitted, to move for judgment; and thus upon a technical construction of the pleadings final judgment may be obtained: see Thorp v. Holdsworth, 3 Ch. D. 637, and Rutter v. Tregent, 12 Ch. D. 758; and the merits might sometimes not be reached: see Tildesley v. Harper, 7 Ch. D. 403; reversed, however, in appeal, 10 Ch. D. 393: Lumsden v. Winter, 8 Q. B. D. 650; Coroli v. Hurst, W. N. 1883, 115; Thornton v. Church, 10 L. R. Ir. 378; Williamson v. London & N. W. Ry. Co., 27 W. R. 724; Elliot v. Harris, 17 L. R. Ir. 351.

By Rule 142 (which is founded upon Chancery G. O. 124), each party is to admit such allegations in the pleadings of the opposite party as are true; and if he does not do so, he may have to bear, or be ordered to pay, the costs so occasioned in any event, if the Court should think the admission was unreasonably withheld.

Relief claimed to be stated specifically.

145. Every statement of claim and counter-claim shall state specifically the relief claimed, either simply or in the alternative, and may also ask for general relief. When damages are claimed the amount shall be named. C.R. 273.

The Eng. (1883) R. 230, is different, providing that general or other relief need not be prayed for, and may always be given. The clause as to damages is new.

Claim for general relief.

A claimant is not entitled to any relief unless it is specifically prayed for, or can be given under a prayer for general relief; and if general relief is not asked for, it will be considered that the party does not want it: Holloway v. York, 25 W. R. 627; Cargill v. Bower, 10 Ch. D. 508. Where general relief is claimed, a plea ing will not be open to objection, if the facts stated in it show that the plaintiff is entitled to any relief: Watson v. Hawkins, 24 W. R. 884, unless the relief be foreign to the scope of the claim: Gaughan v. Shorpe, 6 Ont. App. 417; Gunn v. Trust & Loan Co., 2 Ont. 393. It is sufficient to set out in the statement of claim facts which entitle to relief, and pray for any relief that the facts warrant: Phelps v. White, 7 L. R. Ir. 160. Under a prayer for general relief the Court will grant the appropriate relief which the facts warrant, although unable to grant the specific relief claimed: see Slater v. The Canada Central Ry. Co., 25 Gr. 363. It will warrant a mandatory order if that is the appropriate relief, even though not specifically prayed for: Holman v. Knox, 3 O. W. N. 154. Rules 146, 147.

Facts, arising after action brought, entitling the plaintiffs to further relief, in respect of the subject matter of the litigation, beyond what they were entitled to at its commencement, have been allowed to be set up by amendment: Yorkshire Waggon Co. v. Cornwall Minerals Ry. Co., 73 L. T. Jour. 120.

In an action for an injunction, under the usual prayer for general relief, damages are included: Serroo v. Noel, 15 Q. B. D. 549.

As to the efficiency of a prayer for general relief: see Cook v. Martyn, 2 Atk. 3, and the observations thereon in Byrne v. Frere, 2 Moll. 166.

It does not follow, because a plaintiff has asked for reformation of a document, that a defendant is entitled to claim the same relief though he has not asked for it: Wolfe v. Hayes, 1 Ont. 322; 18 C. L. J. 177. As to asking two inconsistent kinds of relief: see Evans v. Davis, 27 W. R. 285, referred to in note to Rule 137, and Breslauer v. Barwick, 36 L. T. 52; 24 W. R. 901.

As to claiming alternative relief: see Duryea v. Kaufman, 21 O. L. R., at p. 177.

146. Any condition precedent, the performance or occurrence of which is intended to be contested, shall be distinctly specified in his pleading by the party relying thereon, and an averment of the performance or occurrence of all conditions precedent necessary for the case by the plaintiff or defendant shall be implied in his pleading. C.R. 1304. Performance of conditions precedent to be implied, unless specifically denied.

See Eng. Rule (1883), 210, to the same effect.

Under this Rule no averment of the performance of a condition precedent is necessary; the party setting up the condition impliedly avers also its performance; it lies upon the opposite party by his pleading to specify particularly the non-performance of any condition precedent on which he intends to rely.

147. Where the contents of any document are material, it shall be sufficient in any pleading to state the effect thereof as briefly as possible, without setting out the whole or any part thereof. C.R. 275. Effect of document may be stated.

Rule 148.

This does not dispense with the necessity for setting forth the precise defamatory words in an action of libel or slander: Harris v. Warre, 4 C. P. D. 125; Bradlaugh v. The Queen, 3 Q. B. D. 607; Darbyshire v. Leigh, 1896, 1 Q. B. 554; 74 L. T. 241; Hay v. Bingham, 5 O. L. R. 224; see also Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473.

Where res judicata in an Irish Court was alleged, a brief statement of the Irish judgment was held sufficient: Houston v. Sligo, 29 Ch. D. 448; 52 L. T. 96.

It is sufficient to state the effect or substance of the limitations in a will, without setting out the precise words used in the will: Darbyshire v. Leigh, 1896, 1 Q. B. 554; 74 L. T. 241.

A lost grant may be pleaded without stating date, or parties: Palmer v. Guadagni, 1906, 2 Ch. 494; 95 L. T. 258.

Allegation of malice, etc.

148. Where it it material to allege malice, fraudulent intention, knowledge or other condition of the mind of any person, it shall be sufficient to allege the same as a fact, without setting out the circumstances from which the same is to be inferred. C.R. 276.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 218.

Where an act is lawful in itself, so that no cause of action arises from the doing of it, the fact that it was done maliciously, or from a bad motive, does not make one: Chaffers v. Goldsmid, 1894, 1 Q. B. 186; Allen v. Flood, 1898, A. C. 1; and no use of property which would be legal, if due to a proper motive, can become illegal because it is prompted by a motive which is improper, or even malicious: Mayor, etc., of Bradford v. Pickles, 1895, A. C. 587; see also Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 489; Riddell v. Strathmore, 3 T. L. R. 329.

A statement by a trader that his own goods are superior to those of another trader, even if untrue, and the cause of loss, gives no cause of action; and the allegation of malice does not convert a statement primâ facie lawful into one primâ facie unlawful: Hubbuck v. Wilkinson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 86.

Fraud.

Fraud.—Fraud should be distinctly charged as fraud: Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. at p. 489; and if "fraudulently," or words of similar import are omitted, there must be allegations of fact which necessarily, and per se, amount to fraud: Byrne v. Muzio, 8 L. R. Ir. 396, and see Rule 143; and the facts constituting the fraud should be stated, or no evidence in support will be received: Re Rica Gold Washing Co., 11 Ch. D. 36, 43, 47; Redgrave v. Hurd, 25 Sol. Jour. 372; Arkwright v. Newbold, Ib., 338; Symonds v. City Bank, W. N. 1886, 19; 80 L. T. Jour. 245; see Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187; Cargill v. Bower, 10 Ch. D. 502; but where facts and circumstances are set out from which an inference of fraudulent intent, etc., may be inferred, the inferrence may be drawn: see Herring v. Bischoffsheim, W. N. 1876, 77; Johnson v. Barnes, W. N. 1883, 32; but see Davy v. Garrett, supra. See Kaltenbach v. Lewis, 30 W. R. 356; 45 L. T. 666, for allegations which were considered to amount to a charge of fraud.

A general allegation of fraud, however strong the words used, where there was no statement of the circumstances relied on as constituting the alleged fraud, was held not to amount to an averment of fraud, of which any Court ought to take notice: Wallingford

v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 685, 697, 701. In that case, however, the allegation in question was contained in an affidavit filed by defendant upon a motion to obtain judgment on a specially indorsed writ. The construction of this Rule was not in question. Rule 148.

Fraudulent concealment of fraud, which within Gibbs v. Guild, 9 Q. B. D. 59, may be relied on as ground of equitable relief against the running of the Statute of Limitations, being a question of fact, must be averred as such in the pleadings: Barber v. Houston, 14 L. R. Ir. 273.

In Herring v. Bischoffscheim, W. N. 1876, 77, the statement of claim alleged the purchase of bonds through fraudulent misrepresentations in the prospectus of the company, and, on a motion to strike out parts of the statement of claim as prolix, it was held sufficient to allege generally that the prospectus, which was set out, was fraudulent to the knowledge of the defendants, without specifying the particulars, and without going into either the motive which led to the issue of the prospectus, or the particulars of the fraudulent scheme of which the prospectus formed a part.

As to obtaining more specific allegations, or particulars, of fraud charged: see notes to Rules 138 and 141.

Malice.—It will be sufficient under this Rule, in an action for malicious prosecution, to allege that the proceedings were taken without reasonable or probable cause, without setting forth the circumstances from which the same would be inferred: Aderis v. Thrigley, W. N. 1876, 56; 2 Chari, Ch. Ca. 43. Malice.

In an action for malicious prosecution the plaintiff should allege the absence of reasonable cause, and the presence of malice, as the burden of proof thereof rests on him: Abrath v. N. E. Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 440; 11 App. Cas. 247; 55 L. T. 63; Hicks v. Faulkner, 8 Q. B. D. 167; see Malcolm v. Perth Mut., etc., 29 Ont. 717; St. Denis v. Shoultz, 25 Ont. App. 131; in an action for false imprisonment, neither allegation, nor proof, of malice is necessary, and the burden of shewing reasonable cause is on the defendant: Hicks v. Faulkner, supra.

For an action against a corporation for malicious prosecution: see Corford v. Carlton Bank, 1899, 1 Q. B. 392; 1900, 1 Q. B. 22; and for a malicious libel: see Citizens Life Assce. Co. v. Brown, 1904, A. C. 423.

Negligence. — A statement of claim was held sufficient, which alleged that while the plaintiff was using an hotel, of which the defendant was a proprietor, as a guest for reward to the defendant, by the negligence of defendant the ceiling of the room, in which the plaintiff then was, fell upon and injured him: Sandys v. Florence, 47 L. J. C. P. 598. Negligence averred generally, was held sufficient in Quillinon v. Canada Southern Ry., 6 Ont. 567. Negligence.

Condition of Mind.—Where knowledge, or ignorance, is material, it should be alleged, e.g., of untruthfulness of statements in particulars of sale: Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 1; of unsafe condition of the defendant's premises, in an action by a servant for injuries through their unsafe condition: Griffiths v. London & St. Katharine Docks Co., 13 Q. B. D. 259; of want of knowledge on the servant's part: Ib.; threats and intention to commit a trespass: Stondard v. Vestry of St. Giles, 20 Ch. D. 195. Condition of mind.

Purchase for value without notice.

Purchaser for Value without Notice.—This claim, or defence, should generally be made specifically: Atty.-Gen. v. Biphosphated, etc., Co., 11 Ch. D. 327; but may sometimes be inferred from facts alleged: Taylor v. Blakelock, 32 Ch. D. 564. See The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 39, as to proof of payment of purchase money.

Allegation of notice.

149. Where it is material to allege notice to a person of any fact, matter or thing, it shall be sufficient to allege such notice as a fact unless the form or precise terms of the notice is or are material. C.R. 277.

See Eng. (1883) R. 219.

Implied contract.

150. Where a contract or relation between persons does not arise from an express agreement, but is to be implied from a series of letters or conversations, or otherwise from a number of circumstances, it shall be sufficient to allege the contract or relation as a fact. C.R. 278.

To the same effect as the Eng. (1883) R. 220.

Where a Court has to find a contract in a correspondence, and not in one note or memorandum formally signed, the whole of what has passed between the parties must be taken into consideration: Hussey v. Horne Payne, 4 App. Cas. 311; N. W. Transportation Co. v. McKenzie, 25 S. C. R. 38.

An agreement is not strictly speaking a fact; it is an inference of law from facts. The material facts should therefore be stated: Rule 141. If there is an "express agreement" in writing, that fact should be stated, and the effect of the document set forth: Rule 147. If the agreement is to be gathered from a series of letters, conversations, or circumstances, the present Rule applies: Turquand v. Fearon, 40 L. T. 543; see also Smyth v. Levinge, 39 L. T. 579; Noad v. Murrow, 40 L. T. 100. There should not be merely a bare statement that "it was agreed," however, "as a general rule it is not sufficient to state merely that there was an agreement . . . the party pleading . . . must give such particulars as will enable his opponent to meet the case set up": per Thesiger, L.J., in Turquand v. Fearon, 40 L. T. at p. 545. In other words the party must make a general reference to the letters, conversations, or circumstances.

Where an agreement to have any effect in law must be in writing, it is sufficient to allege that there was an agreement without alleging that it was in writing; that it was in writing is matter for evidence at the trial: Pasco v. Richards, 50 L. J. Chy. 340; and it lies upon the party setting up the agreement to prove one sufficient in law at the trial: Privett v. Hay, Mr. Dalton, 4th March, 1884. See also Fraser v. Pape, 91 L. T. 340, supra, p. 545.

Facts presumed need not be stated.

151. Neither party need in any pleading allege any matter of fact which the law presumes in his favour, or as to which the burden of proof lies upon the other side.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 221.

152. If either party wishes to deny the alleged constitution of any partnership, or the right of any other party to claim as executor, or as trustee, or as assignee in insolvency, or in any representative or other alleged capacity, he shall deny the same specifically, or the same will be taken to be admitted. C.R. 280. Denial of representative capacity.

See Eng. (1883), R. 238.

153. Unless the incorporation of a corporate party is specifically denied, it shall not be necessary to prove it. C.R. 281. Incorporation.

The Rule would seem to apply to plaintiffs suing, or defendants sued, in an alleged corporate capacity, though they be not, in fact, incorporated: see Krug Furniture Co. v. Berlin Union, etc, 5 O. L. R. 463. See Rule 108.

154. Where a contract is alleged, a denial of the contract shall be construed only as a denial of the making of the contract in fact, and not of its legality or its sufficiency in law, whether with reference to the Statute of Frauds or otherwise. C.R. 282. Denial of contract only denial of the making.

See The Eng. 1883, R. 216.

A plea of non est factum pleaded to a declaration filed before The Judicature Act, in an action on a policy of insurance, was held to be not embarrassing: and under this Rule it must be treated as a denial of the making of the contract of insurance in fact: Burnett v. Union Mut. F. Ins. Co., 32 C. P. 134.

In an action of ejectment by an assignee of a lessee against the assignors, the statement of claim alleged an assignment by deed by defendants to the plaintiffs. The defendants denied "that they had assigned or made over the premises" to the plaintiff. This was held under the corresponding Irish Rule to put in issue the execution of the assignment only, and not its invalidity as contrary to a covenant against alienation in the lease: Hayes v. Corcoran, 8 L. R. Ir. 75.

Where a plaintiff sets up a written contract in a case within the Statute of Frauds, it is not necessary for the defendant to plead the statute as a defence, and evidence of a parol contract in such a case is not admissible without an amendment of the pleadings: and if such amendment is allowed the defendant should, if he desires it, be allowed to set up the statute: Brunning v. Odhams, 75 L. T. 602: Elmsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 425.

155. A defendant in an action for the recovery of land who is in possession by himself or his tenant need not plead his title, unless his defence depends on an equitable estate or right, or he claims relief upon any equitable Defence to action for recovery of land.

ground against any right or title asserted by the plaintiff; but, except in the cases hereinbefore mentioned, it shall be sufficient to state by way of defence that he is so in possession, and he may rely upon any ground of defence which he can prove. C.R. 285.

Same as Eng. (1883), R. 254, except that the latter provides that by so pleading he shall be taken to deny the allegations in the statement of claim: see Danford v. McAnulty, and not infra.

This Rule only applies to a defendant. In an action for recovery of land the statement of claim is as much subject to the foregoing Rules as in any other action, and the plaintiff must therefore set forth the material facts upon which he relies to prove his title. The effect of a deed is not a fact, and a statement of claim which merely alleged that by virtue of certain deeds, etc., plaintiff was entitled to possession of land, and did not state the purport of the deeds or set out the plaintiff's pedigree, or show the devolution of title by which the land in question became vested in the plaintiff, was therefore held embarrassing: Philipps v. Philipps, 4 Q. B. D. 127; 39 L. T. 329 and 556; Davis v. James, 26 Ch. D. 778; Jones v. Curling, 13 Q. B. D. 273. So also a statement of claim, which simply alleged that the plaintiff had been wrongfully dispossessed of the land by the defendant, was set aside for not stating the facts which shewed the plaintiff's interest in the land: O'Connor v. O'Hara, 8 L. R. Ir. 249; see also Lyell v. Kennedy, 20 Ch. D. 491; 8 App. Cas. 217; Cromwell v. Swail, 1 T. L. R. 474.

A statement of claim stating that "by virtue of a certain settlement, the plaintiff is entitled" without setting out or stating the effect of the limitations in the settlement is insufficient: Riddell v. Strathmore, 31 Sol. Jour. 183.

A statement that the plaintiff, or any person through whom he claims, was on such a day seised in fee simple in possession, would seem to be sufficient statement of a plaintiff's title: see the Form in Wilson's Jud. Act, 7th ed., 572; and Smith v. Cairns (before Chief Justice Galt, 8th April, 1889). In Beatty v. Leacy, 16 L. R. Ir. 132, a general allegation of the plaintiff's derivative title was held sufficient.

In several cases under the Irish Jud. Act, a defence, in actions of ejectment for non-payment of rent, has been set aside as embarrassing, where it, in effect, merely denied that defendant was tenant, without alleging anything as to the defendant's title, or saying that he was in possession: see Hildige v. O'Farrell, 8 L. R. Ir. 158; Barnes v. Barnes, 8 L. R. Ir 165; Rowley v. Laffan, 10 L. R. Ir. 9.

Where the plaintiff's case depended on the heirship of A., and that fact was stated simply, without shewing how A. became heir, the pleading was held sufficient: Evelyn v. Evelyn, 42 L. T. 248; 28 W. R. 531.

But in Palmer v. Palmer, 1892, 1 Q. B. 319, a defendant was held entitled to particulars shewing the links of relationship on which plaintiff relied as constituting him "heir:" see also Blacklidge v. Anderton, W. N. 1893, 112.

An action for the assignment of dower is an action for recovery of land: McCulloch v. McCulloch, 4 C. L. T. 252; McLean v. McLean, 17 P. R. 440.

In an action for dower, the facts shewing the right of dower (which is a legal conclusion from the facts) must be stated: Louder v. Carrier, 10 P. R. 612. Rule 156.

Equitable Estate or Right.—The defendant relying on an equitable title must, in his statement of defence, allege the nature of the deeds and documents on which he relies; and it is not sufficient to allege that by virtue of divers mesne acts, and mesne assurances, all the estates and interests of the plaintiff's predecessor in title are now vested in the defendant: Sutcliffe v. Jones, 40 L. T. 875; 27 W. R. 750. A defendant who pleads merely that he is in possession, was always at liberty to question the plaintiff's title, even under the English system of pleading, by which what is not denied is taken to be admitted: Danford v. McAnulty, 6 Q. B. D. 645, affirmed in H. L. 8 App. Cas. 458; and this is now expressly provided in the English 1883, R. 254; à fortiori under the Ontario system, where mere non-admission puts the plaintiff to proof. Equitable title.

See Attorney-General v. Midland Ry. Co., 3 Ont. 511, and Adamson v. Adamson, 17 Ont. 425; Allan v. Woods, 68 L. T. 143.

156. Where a defendant by virtue of any statute enabling him so to do pleads not guilty by statute he shall in his defence refer to the statute giving the right so to plead, and also to all statutes upon which he relies, giving chapter and section in every such reference, and if so required shall deliver particulars of his defence. C.R. 286 and 287, amended. Plea of "not guilty by statute" to contain reference to statute relied on

See Eng. (1883) R. 208.

Formerly the Court did not, in general, with this plea allow other pleas: Neale v. McKenzie, 2 Dowl. P. C. 702; but these Rules contain no such provision.

Formerly there were several statutes authorizing the defence of "not guilty by statute" to be pleaded, but of late years this provision has been, very generally, repealed. The defence may be pleaded by a railway under Dominion control, in an action against it for indemnity for damage, or injury, sustained by reason of the railway; see The Railway Act (R. S. C. c. 37), s. 306; Reist v. Grand Trunk Ry Co., 15 U. C. Q. B. 355; Pew v. Buffalo & Lake Huron Ry. Co., 17 U. C. Q. B. 282.

The statute must be formally pleaded to enable the defendant to avail himself of any defence under it: McKay v. Cummings, 6 Ont. 400.

An informal pleading of the statute has been allowed to be amended so as to be pleaded in the form of the general issue: Grant v. Culbard, 19 Ont. 20; and see Bond v. Conmee, 16 Ont. App. 419.

Formerly, a railway company could not be required to give particulars of the defence of "not guilty by statute:" Taylor v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 148, overruling Jennings v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 300, in which particulars were ordered, where the plaintiff was not aware of the defence intended to be set up. Under this Rule, a defendant may now be required to give particulars of the defence; which practically neutralizes the benefit of such plea. Particulars.

Rule 157.

"Not guilty by statute" cannot be pleaded to an action for specific performance of a contract: Peterborough v. Midland Ry. Co., 12 P. P. 127; Scottish Ont., etc., Co. v. Toronto, 24 Ont. App. 208; and see Brown v. Blackwell, 35 U. C. Q. B. 239.

The plea of "not guilty by statute" puts in issue not only the defence which the statute gives, but also all the defences which were admissible under the general issue at Common Law: Ross v. Clifton, 11 A. & E. 631.

Contributory negligence may be set up under this plea: Doan v. Michigan Central, 17 Ont. App. 481.

An equitable defence is not admissible under this plea: Brown v. Blackwell, 35 U. C. Q. B. 230.

A plea of the general issue by statute was not demurrable, though no statute is applicable: Cairns v. Water Commissioners of Ottawa, 25 U. C. P. 551.

In an action in the County Court a plea of "not guilty by statute" does not necessarily raise any question as to the title of land, so as to exclude the jurisdiction of the Court: Bell v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 16 C. P. 252.

The provisions of this Rule must be strictly followed: Bond v. Conmee, 15 Ont. 716; 16 Ont. App. 398; Heming v. Woodyatt, 32 C. L. J. 126. Both the statute by which the plea is allowed, and that containing the matter relied on by way of defence, must be mentioned in the margin: Van Natter v. Buffalo & Lake Huron Ry. Co., 27 U. C. Q. B. 581; Belch v. Arnott, 9 C. P. 68; Doan v. Michigan Central Ry., 18 Ont. 482; and see Grant v. Culbard, 19 Ont. 20, where an amendment was allowed; but where evidence is given under the pleas as pleaded, without objection at the trial, it is too late afterwards to object to the sufficiency of the plea: Doan v. Michigan Central Ry., 17 Ont. App. 481.

If the defendant omits to follow the requirements of this Rule, he cannot give special matter in evidence under a defence of "not guilty": see Joy v. McKinn, 1 U. C. C. P. 13. An amendment may sometimes be allowed to supply the omission, even after verdict: Edwards v. Hodges, 15 C. B. 477; Van Natter v. Buffalo & Lake Huron Ry. Co., 27 U. C. Q. B. 581. But where a defendant pleaded "not guilty," intending to justify under a statute, but the Nisi Prius record had not the words "by statute" in the margin, the Judge at Nisi Prius refused to allow an amendment by the addition of those words, as it was not shown that they were in the margin of the defendant's plea: Forman v. Dawes, 1 Car. & M. 127. The parties may so act at the trial, and subsequently, as to be precluded from raising the objection of the omission to name a particular statute in the margin of the plea: Burridge v. Nicholetts, 6 H. & N. 383.

The words "according to statute" instead of "by statute" written in the margin, are sufficient: Robertson v. Cooley, 7 U. C. Q. B. 305.

Inconsistent pleadings.

157. A subsequent pleading shall not raise any new ground of claim or contain any allegation of fact inconsistent with the previous pleadings of the party pleading the same. C.R. 288.

See Eng. (1883) R. 212.

The object aimed at by this Rule is to prevent what, under the Common Law system of pleading, was called "departure." Where it is now desired to vary something stated in a former pleading of a party, it must be done by amendment of that pleading. Rule 158.

A second pleading may add a fact to, but must not contradict, the first: per Brett, L.J., in Breslauer v. Barwick, 36 L. T. 52; 24 W. R. 901; nor raise a fresh cause of action: Collambell v. Flight, W. N. 1877, 125. See also Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 787; Duckworth v. McClelland, 2 L. R. Ir. 527; Kingston v. Corker, 29 L. R. Ir. 364. Where a reply violates this Rule the Judge at the trial may refuse to try the action: Hurd v. Bostwick, 16 P. R. 121.

In an action for goods sold, the defence was coverture; plaintiff replied, that he was not aware that defendant was a married woman, and thought she was a widow, and that she obtained credit by representing herself to be entitled to an annuity under a separation deed; and it was held that the reply did not raise a claim inconsistent with the previous pleading: Collet v. Dickenson, W. N. 1878, 52.

In the following cases pleadings have been held to be unobjectionable:

Action for infringement of patent, by alteration of goods supplied by plaintiffs—Defence that, under an agreement with the plaintiffs, the alterations were authorized—Reply denying this and asking rectification of the agreement on the ground of mistake, if it did so authorize: McLaughlin v. Lake Erie & Detroit River R. R. Co., 2 O. L. R. 151.

Action for possession.—Defence a mortgage made by plaintiff's father and assigned to defendant—Reply that there was no consideration for the assignment, and that the assignor was of unsound mind to the knowledge of defendant: Smith v. Smith, 2 O. L. R. 410.

158. In actions for libel or slander, in which the defendant does not by his defence assert the truth of the statement complained of, he shall not be entitled on the trial to give evidence in chief, with a view to mitigation of damages, as to the circumstances under which the libel or slander was published, or as to the character of the plaintiff, without the leave of the presiding Judge, unless [in his pleading or] by notice given seven days at least before the trial he furnishes particulars in writing to the plaintiff of the matters as to which he intends to give evidence. C.R. 488, amended. Libel or slander, particulars of evidence in mitigation.

The words in brackets indicate the amendment which has been made in C. R. 488.

No demand for these particulars is necessary. They must be furnished as a condition precedent to giving of evidence of the matters mentioned.

Rule 158.

Notwithstanding C. R. 488, it was held that the facts relied on in mitigation of damages in an action for libel or slander must be set out in the defence: Beaton v. Intelligencer P. Co., 22 Ont. App. 97; Vansycle v. Parish, 1 O. L. R. 13; McKenzie v. McLaughlin, 38 C. J. 131; but see Fulford v. Wallace, 1 O. L. R. 278; and even though they were, a notice under the Rule would also be necessary. Under the Rule as amended, if the particulars are given in the defence, then the seven days' notice is not requisite. According to the above mentioned decisions, it seems to be doubtful whether a defendant could qualify himself to give the evidence referred to in the Rule merely by giving the notice, where he had omitted to give the particulars in his defence. The safest course would therefore appear to be to give the particulars in the defence.

Where the defence does assert the truth of the statement complained of, it has been held that evidence as to the plaintiff's character with a view to mitigation of damages, is not admissible unless the facts relied on are pleaded: Scott v. Sampson, 8 Q. B. D. 491, so that the effect of the Rule and this decision is, that whether the truth of the alleged libel or slander be pleaded or not, the evidence referred to in this Rule cannot be given, unless the particulars are furnished as therein mentioned. Evidence in mitigation of damages is admissible where the defendant pleads that the publication complained of was privileged: Mangena v. Wright, 1909, 2 K. B. 958; 100 L. T. 960.

It will be observed that the Rule is directed to evidence in chief as to two points, (a) the circumstances of publication, (b) the character of the plaintiff, and does not preclude evidence which can be obtained by cross examination of the plaintiffs' witnesses, nor does it preclude evidence in chief as to any other matters than those above mentioned, even though particulars have not been furnished either in the defence, or by notice.

As to the nature of the particulars to be furnished: see notes to Rule 138.

Before delivery of defence.

159. A ground of defence or counter-claim which has arisen after action, but before the defendant has delivered his statement of defence, may be pleaded either alone or with other grounds of defence. C.R. 289.

See first part of Eng. (1883) R. 282. Under this Rule the defendant may, in his defence, set up any ground of defence, or counter-claim, which he has at the time of delivering the defence, no matter when such ground arose; and not merely grounds of defence which arose before the time limited for delivering the defence.

Whether a ground of counter-claim arising after action brought can be set up was the subject of conflicting decisions in England: see Beddall v. Maitland, Toke v. Andrews, and other cases cited in notes to Rule 115, pp. 523-524. The words "or counter-claim" have been inserted in this Rule to remove any doubt. See also Chamberlain v. Chamberlin, 11 P. R. 501, and notes to Rules 115 and 161.

Where the claim sued for had been attached by garnishee proceedings instituted before action, any payment made by the defendant pendente lite in pursuance of such proceedings constitutes a defence arising after action, and does not relate back to the attaching order: Pickard v. Tims, 19 P. R. 109.

A plaintiff cannot, except by way of defence to a counter-claim (Rule 160), set up matters arising pendente lite as a ground of claim: McLean v. McLean, 17 P. R. 440. Rules 160-162.

As to raising new matter after judgment: see Rule 523 and notes.

160. If, after a counter-claim has been delivered, a ground of defence thereto arises it may be pleaded in answer thereto. C.R. 290. Defence to counter-claim.

See Eng. R. (1883) R. 282, last part.

A plaintiff may, in his reply to a counter-claim of defendant, counter-claim in respect of a cause of action accruing after the issue of the writ, or arising at the same time, and out of the same transaction as the counter-claim of defendant: Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428; Renton v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 446, and under this Rule he may also set up as a defence matter arising after the delivery of the counter-claim.

But where a claim which might have been pleaded by way of counter-claim is pleaded as a set-off, the plaintiff may not reply matters arising subsequent to action brought: McNamara v. Skain, 23 Ont. 103. See also notes to Rule 115.

161. Where a ground of defence or counter-claim arises after the delivery of the statement of defence or counter-claim, the defendant may within ten days after such ground of defence or counter-claim has arisen, deliver a further defence or counter-claim, setting forth the same, or introduce the same by amendment into his statement of defence or counter-claim. C.R. 291. After delivery of defence.

A counter-claim and set-off were, under the Eng. Rules corresponding to the original Ont. Rules, held to constitute a ground of defence within this Rule: Wood v. Goodwin, W. N. 1884, 17, and this will, no doubt, be so now under this Rule, and Rule 115: see contra, Chamberlain v. Chamberlin, 11 P. R. 501, under the original Rules.

In computing the ten days, Vacation is not reckoned: Rule 179 and the time may be enlarged: Rule 176; and see Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 25 W. R. 303.

By pleading such a plea at law under the former practice, a defendant abandoned all his former pleas: Barker v. Palmer, 1 Salk. 178; but this is not so under the present Rules, though semble, other defences fall to the ground if the plaintiff confesses the new plea: see Fosler v. Gamgee, 1 Q. B. D. 666.

162. Where a ground of defence to any counter-claim arises after the delivery of the defence thereto the defendant to the counter-claim may within 10 days after such ground of defence has arisen, deliver a further Defence to counter-claim arising after reply.

pleading setting forth the same, or may set up such new ground of defence by amendment. C.R. 292.

See Eng. (1883) R. 283. The same liberty is here given to a plaintiff after the time for delivering a reply has expired as is, by the preceding Rule, given to a defendant after the delivery of his defence.

Amendment on praecipe.

163. Any such amendment may be made on præcipe, C.R. 293, amended.

This and the preceding Rule provide two methods for setting up matters of defence to a counter-claim arising after a defence thereto has been delivered, e.g. (1) a further pleading, or (2) the amendment of the previous pleading. These Rules are confined to matters arising within ten days prior to the delivery of such further pleading, or the amendment of the previous pleading. They do not warrant the introduction of any other matters of defence, and if, under colour of these Rules, matters of defence were introduced which did not arise within the ten days, such pleading, or amendment would be irregular, and be liable to be set aside.

Where the ten days is suffered to elapse, an application to extend the time might be made under Rule 176: see Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 25 W. R. 303.

Plaintiff may deliver confession of defence.

164. Where any defendant pleads any ground of defence or counter-claim which has risen after the commencement of the action, the plaintiff may deliver a confession of such defence; and he may thereupon sign judgment for his costs up to the time of the pleading of such defence unless otherwise ordered. C.R. 295.

See (1883) R. 284.

Payment of money into Court is not a "defence" within the meaning of this Rule: Cullander v. Hawkins, 2 C. P. D. 592.

Under the Rules 22-23 of T. T. 1856, which were to the same effect, though a defendant pleaded with such a plea other defences arising before action, the plaintiff was nevertheless entitled to confess the plea, and have his costs, the other pleas failing to the ground. And this Rule seems to have the same effect: Foster v. Gamgee, 1 Q. B. D. 666. There is no difference in this respect between a plea of bankruptcy, and any other plea: Foster v. Gomgee, supra. A plea that defendant was an adjudicated bankrupt, upon an act of bankruptcy which occurred after the service of the writ, was held to be "a ground of defence which has arisen after the commencement of the action," and the plaintiff was held entitled to confess it, and sign judgment for his costs under this Rule: Champion v. Formby, 7 Ch. D. 373.

Such a confession is a determination of the matters in litigation, and precludes a second action for the same cause: Newington v. Levy, L. R. 5 C. P. 607; 6 C. P. 180.

This Rule applies to a counter-claim in the nature of a pecuniary set-off, arising after action brought: Ellis v. Munson, 36 L. T. 585:

Wood v. Goodwin, W. N. 1884, 17, and to counter-claims generally: see notes to Rules 115, 161; but the Eng. Rule does not in terms apply to counter-claims: Beddoll v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174. Rule 164.

Where a Judge refused to deprive the plaintiff of the costs, under the last clause of this Rule, it was held that they were costs left within the discretion of the Judge within section 49 of the English Judicature Act (corresponding to sec. 24 of the Ont. Act), and that, therefore, there could be no appeal from the decision, except by leave: Perkins v. Beresford, 47 L. T. 515; and see Hopkins v. Vickers, 3 T. L. R. 610.

Defendants delivered a further defence of matter arising since former defence. Plaintiff delivered a confession of this defence, and signed judgment for costs. The defendants asserting that the point was sufficiently raised by the former defence, which was not intended to be waived, and consenting to withdraw the further defence, the judgment for costs was set aside under this Rule: Bridgtown, etc., v. Barbados Water Supply, etc., 38 Ch. D. 378.

This Rule was held not to apply, where the defence also set up matters of defence, which had occurred before the commencement of the action: Horrison v. Abergavenny, 57 L. T. 360; and where an action had been brought by a judgment creditor against a judgment debtor and another, to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent, and, after pleading of several defences, the judgment debtor obtained leave to amend by adding as a defence, without abandoning his other defences, that the plaintiff's claim had become extinguished by reason of a set-off ordered in another action, it was held that this was a case in which the plaintiff should not be allowed to confess the new defence, and sign judgment for costs: Patterson v. Smith, 14 P. R. 558.

As to discontinuance of the action by the plaintiff in other cases: see Rule 321.

Rule 165.

CHAPTER VIII.

THIRD PARTY PROCEDURE.

Third party notice, where contribution or indemnity claimed.

165.—(1) Where a defendant claims to be entitled to contribution or indemnity from or any other relief over against any person not a party to the action, hereinafter called a third party, he may issue a notice in accordance with Form 24 (hereinafter called the third party notice) which shall be sealed in the same manner as the writ of summons, and shall state the nature and grounds of the claim.

(2) A copy of the notice shall be filed, and a copy together with a copy of the statement of claim, or, if there be no statement of claim, of the writ, shall be served on the third party within the time limited for the delivery of the defence. C.R. 209.

Third parties.

Provision for the case of "other relief over" is not contained in Eng. (1883) R. 170. In other respects this Rule, though not in identical terms with, is to the same effect, except that the Eng. Rule provides (as C. R. 209 formerly did), that the leave of the Court must be obtained to issue a third party notice.

For Form: see No. 24; H. & L. Forms, No. 478. This Form requires the place of issue to be added.

The Rules relating to third party procedure provide machinery for giving effect to sec. 16 (d) of the Act, supra, p. 40.

The third party procedure as provided by the Rules, applies only to actions commenced by writ, not to summary proceedings, such as an originating summons in England: Re Wilson, Atty.-Gen. v. Woodall, 45 Ch. D. 266; 63 L. T. 100; nor to proceedings commenced in Ontario under Rule 10.

Scope of the Rules.

Scope of the Rules.—By Rules 67 and 68, plaintiffs are given the fullest liberty to join as defendants all persons against whom, jointly, severally, or in the alternative, they may jointly, severally, or in the alternative, claim relief. By sec. 16 (d) of the Act, in furtherance of one of the main objects of the Legislature, namely, to have the claims of all persons interested in the subject of the litigation disposed of in the same action, a further and entirely new jurisdiction was conferred upon the Court. By that section a defendant to an action may obtain (1) against a plaintiff alone, or the plaintiff and some other person—any relief that might be granted in an independent action by the same defendant against the same plaintiff alone, or against the same plaintiff and such other person; (2) against (a) a co-defendant, or (b) any other person—any relief relating to, or in connection with, the original subject of litigation, which might be granted in an independant action by such defendant against such co-defendant, or other person; and it has been said that a liberal construction should be given to the Rules relating to third party procedure: Steele v. Can. Pacific Ry., 25 O. L. R. 492. Rule 186.

The mode in which a defendant may obtain the relief above mentioned against a plaintiff alone, or along with some other person, is by counter-claim, and treated of supra: Rule 113, et seq. A counter-claim, as the name imports, is one advanced against that of the opposite party; a counter-claim by a defendant must therefore be a claim against the plaintiff alone, or against the plaintiff and some other person or persons: whereas third party procedure is for the purpose of enabling a defendant to obtain relief against a co-defendant or some third parties only, in respect of a liability in which the plaintiff is not concerned.

By a counter-claim, to a certain extent, complete relief may be obtained against a co-defendant, or a third person not originally a party: Rules 113-117; but no counter-claim can be set up which does not seek relief against a plaintiff: see notes to Rule 115.

The third party procedure provided by the Rules prescribes the procedure, so far as has, at present, been thought expedient, for giving a defendant (whether so in an action, or a counter-claim: see Levi v. Anglo-Continental, &c., 1902, 2 K. B. 481; 86 L. T. 857), relief against a co-defendant, or any other person, as contemplated by section 16 (d) of the Act.

The present Rules provide that:—

(1) Third party procedure is confined to claims for (a) contribution from,—(b) indemnity from,—and (c) other relief over,—against a third party.

(2) Contribution, indemnity, or other relief over, may be enforced against a co-defendant, as well as a person not originally a party.

(3) Final judgment may be given between a defendant and a third party or between a defendant and a co-defendant, in the same proceedings, without the bringing of a subsequent action.

(4) The third party procedure applies not only to the parties to the action, but also to parties to a counter-claim, who may also avail themselves of it: see Levi v. Anglo-Continental, etc., supra.

Contribution.—Where a defendant claims contribution, or indemnity against a co-defendant, the procedure prescribed by this Rule must be followed; it is not enough merely to claim it by his defence: see Gregson v. Henderson Roller Bearing Co., 20 O. L. R. 584. Contribution

The right to contribution is an equitable right arising where two or more persons are subject to a common liability, other than for a fraud, or other wilful tort: see Johnson v. Wild, 44 Ch. D. 146; Sutton v. Dundas, 17 O. L. R. 556.

Except in cases of liability for fraud, or other wilful tort, the right exists between trustees: Butler v. Butler, 14 Ch. D. 329; Re Eyton. Bartlett v. Charles, 45 Ch. D. 458; 63 L. T. 336; Lever v. Penrce, W. N. 1888, 105; quasi trustees, such as directors: Ramskill v. Edwards, 31 Ch. D. 100; co-partners or co-adventurers in partnership: McLaren v. Marks, 10 P. R. 451; Lowe v. Dixon, 16 Q. B. D. 455; co-sureties: Moorhouse v. Kidd, 28 Ont. 35; affirmed in C. A., 18 C. L. T. 235; 34 C. L. J. 381.

There is no right to contribution between tortfeasors, knowingly committing the wrong: Atty.-General v. Wilson, Cr. & Ph. 1; Lingard v. Bromley, 1 V. & B. 117; Power v. Hoey, 19 W. R. 916; Merryweather v. Nixon, 8 T. R. 186; and per Lord Herschell, Palmer v. Wick, 1894, A. C. 318; see also The Englishman, 43 W. R. 670; Pollock on Torts (5th ed.), 191; 124 L. T. Jour. 168; but a trustee committing a breach of trust, at the request, or instigation, or with the consent in writing, of his cestui que trust, is in some cases entitled to be indemnified out of the share in the trust estate of such cestui que trust; The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 36.

In an action against some of the directors of a company for misapplication of the funds of the company, the defendants were allowed to serve a third party notice upon a person who was also a director at the time of the alleged misapplication, and who would be liable to contribute: Furness v. Pickering, 1908, 2 Ch. 224; 99 L. T. 142.

An assignee of a lessee, as to part of the land leased, who had paid the whole of the rent due by the lessee, was held not entitled to contribution from the assignee of the lessee of the remaining part of the land, there being an independent and not a common liability: Johnson v. Wild, supra, p. 613; but semble, in such a case relief over might properly be claimed under this Rule.

Where a surviving executor is sued for an account, and he seeks contribution against the representatives of the deceased executor, he cannot insist on the plaintiff making such representatives defendants, but he may proceed against them as third parties under this Rule: Re Harrison, 1891, 2 Ch. 349; 64 L. T. 442.

As to contribution between co-defendants: see notes to Rule 170.

Indemnity.

Indemnity.—Indemnity arises where the defendant sued by the plaintiff, though liable to the plaintiff, may have a right to indemnity over against a third party whom the plaintiff could not sue. A defendant does not lose his right to have his claim against a third party determined in an action against him, because the plaintiff in addition to claiming on grounds as to which there is, or may be, a right of indemnity, also alleges grounds for relief against the defendant with which the third party has no concern: Pettigrew v. Grand Trunk Ry., 22 O. L. R. 23; but where the right to indemnity does not exist in the event of negligence by the defendant, and the plaintiff's claim is wholly based on the alleged negligence of the defendant, in such a case a third party notice claiming indemnity would not be proper: Hunter v. Hamilton Bridge Works, 2 O. W. N. 251.

The right to indemnity within the English Rules must be one arising out of a contract for indemnity as such, expressed, or implied: Speller v. Bristol Steam Navigation Co., 13 Q. B. D. 96, where it was held that a warranty of seaworthiness of a vessel hired, was no such contract for indemnity against a claim for damages for the injury of plaintiff's goods in the vessel by reason of its not being seaworthy. So in an action for trespass by cutting timber, defendants justifying their acts under an agreement with third parties from whom the defendants purchased the timber, would not seem to be entitled to bring in the third parties and claim indemnity, under the English Rule, the damages not being necessarily the same, and semble, there would not be a case for relief over within the Ontario Rule: see Parent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 712; 3 O. L. R. 350. See also

Cases where there is no such contract, but merely a right to damages against the third party if the plaintiff succeeds in recovering from defendant, are not within the English Rules: Birmingham Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Railway Co., 34 Ch. D. 261; Pontifex v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152; Payne v. Caughell, 17 P. R. 39; and see Wilson v. Boulter, 18 P. R. 107; Windsor, &c., v. Highland Park, 19 P. R. 130; Miller v. Sarnia Gas Co., 2 O. L. R. 546; but may sometimes be cases of "other relief over" within the Ontario Rule 165; but not where the damages claimed against the third party are not in any way measured by the damages recoverable by the plaintiff against the defendant: Gagne v. Rainy River Lumber Co., 20 O. L. R. 433.

Cases of an express contract for indemnity will present no difficulty; but an express contract may be met by a defence that the claim is not within the contract: see Page v. Midland, 95 L. T. Jour. 252, following Hunt v. White, 37 L. J. Ch. 326. Express contract

In Hull v. Sim, 10 T. L. R. 463, in an action against the committee of a club, they were held entitled to bring in some of the members, under a rule of the club which provided that the committee of the club was to be indemnified by the members.

A covenant by the assignee of a lease to indemnify the assignor against liability on the covenants in the lease was enforced by third party proceedings: Gooch v. Clutterbuck, 1899, 2 Q. B. 148; 81 L. T. 9; and so also a covenant by an assignee of the equity of redemption of mortgaged property to assume the mortgage: McMurtry v. Leushner, 3 O. W. N. 1176.

A contract for re-insurance is not a contract for indemnity: Geen v. Herring, 1905, 1 K. B. 152; 92 L. T. 37; Nelson v. Empress Assce. Co., 1905, 2 K. B. 281; 93 L. T. 62.

An implied right of indemnity may arise in the case of principal and agent: see Langley v. Law Society of U. C., 3 O. L. R. 245; Birmingham Land Co. v. London & N. W. Railway, 34 Ch. D., at p. 277; of acts done at request: Ib., and Carshore v. N. E. Railway Co., 29 Ch. D. 344; of identical contracts (e.g., for supply of goods with a warranty), where the second contract (with a similar warranty), is entered into with knowledge of the first: see Birmingham Land Co. v. London & N. W. Railway, 34 Ch. D. p. 277; also Jacobs v. Brown, W. N. 1884. 23; Hort v. Brown, 28 Sol. Jour. 577; Steel v. Dixon, W. N. 1880, 113; 42 L. T. 765; 28 W. R. 796; also between trustees and their cestui que trust concurring in a breach of trust: Sawyer v. Sawyer, 28 Ch. D. 595; Re Holt, 1897, 2 Ch. 525; The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121) s. 35; Re Salmon, Priest v. Uppleby, 42 Ch. D. 351. (In the last case, however, there seems to have been an express contract for indemnity). There is no right of indemnity on the part of a passive trustee for a breach of trust by the acting trustee, except under special circumstances, as where the acting trustee is solicitor for the trust, or has derived personal benefit from the breach of trust: Bahin v. Hughes, 31 Ch. 390; Blyth v. Fladgate, 1891, 1 Ch. 337; all are equally liable to the c. q. t.: Cowper v. Stoneham, 68 L. T. 18. Implied contract.

Where an action was brought against a surviving trustee for recovery of a trust fund, lost by misapplication thereof by a deceased trustee, a solicitor, it was held that the partners of the deceased solicitor could not be brought in as third parties on a claim of defendant to be indemnified by them, the right of the defendant to recover from the surviving partners a sum equal to the lost trust fund being an independent right not depending on the liability of the defendant: Wynne v. Tempest, 1897, 1 Ch. 110; see also Campbell v. Farley, 18 P. R. 97.

A surety is entitled to call upon his principal to discharge the liability for which he is surety, even though the surety has not been sued for, or paid it: Ascherson v. Tredegor Dry Dock Co., 1909, 2 Ch. 401; Cunningham v. Lyster, 13 Gr. 575; Mewburn v. Mackelcan, 19 App. 729; sed vide Re Beavan, Davies v. Beavan, 1913, 2 Ch. 595.

As to claims against third persons for indemnity against liability for damages arising out of negligence of the third persons as contractors: see McCann v. Toronto, 28 Ont. 650.

The right to indemnity may have arisen either before, or after, the commencement of the action: Edison v. Holland, 33 Ch. D. 497; see also Edison v. Joblochkoff, 35 W. R. 178.

As to the difference between a guaranty, and a contract of indemnity: see Guild v. Conrad, 1894, 2 Q. B. 885; 71 L. T. 140; Beattie v. Dinnick, 27 Ont. 285.

The claim for indemnity need not necessarily be for the whole of the plaintiff's claim; it may be for any separate, or aeparable part of it: see Swale v. Can. Pacific Ry., 25 O. L. R. 492.

Other relief over.

Other Relief Over.—This is a new class of case provided for in Ont.; but not under Eng. (1883) R. 170.

The object of the present Rules is to extend the third party procedure to cases where a defendant, if he is held to be liable to the plaintiff, has a right of action to recover from another the amount for which he may be liable to the plaintiff: see Miller v. Sarnia Gas Co., 2 O. L. R. 546; Gagne v. Rainy River Lumber Co., 20 O. L. R. 433; or a specific part of it: see Swole v. Can. Pac. Ry., 25 O. L. R. 492, against another person, whether by way of contribution, or indemnity, or as damages under an independent contract, or otherwise; and relief against a third party can probably now be obtained in Ontario in cases in which it could not be obtained under the Eng. Rules or the former Ont. Rules which followed them: see for example London & Western Trusts v. Loscombe, 13 O. L. R. 34, 36; Constantine v. Warden, 44 W. R. 162; 73 L. T. 450; 12 T. L. R. 33, where a defendant who became liable in consequence of a failure to unload a ship pursuant to a charter party, was held not entitled to claim over against a third party, a purchaser of the cargo from the defendant, under an agreement by which he was liable to the defendant for "any loss, demurrage or expenses arising therefrom"; and see The Jacob Christensen, 1895, P. 281. But the scope of the Rules in cases of "relief over" cannot yet be said to be at all well defined. A tendency to restrict the scope was at first rather indicated in Miller v. Sarnia Gas Co., 2 O. L. R. 546, where it was said that the third party procedure is only applicable where a defendant, if liable to the plaintiff, is entitled to recover against the third party the very damages which the plaintiff seeks to recover against him; but in Swale v. Can. Pac. Ry., supra, it was held that the Rules should be construed liberally and it seems to hsve been considered that in previous casea too nurrow an intsrpre- Rule 166.

tstion had been given to them. It would seem that an independent right, which may be enforced hefors defendant is damnified, and whether he ia damnified or not, is not a right to either indemnity, or relisf over: see Wynne v. Tempest, 1897, 1 Ch. 110; 75 L. T. 624; supra, p. 616; Campbell v. Farley, 18 P. R. 97; see nlso Birmingham Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 34 Ch. D. 261; Moore v. Death, 16 P. R. 296; London & Western Trusts v. Loscombe, supra, p. 616.

Oae ohject of the Rules is to prevent the sams question, common as between ths plaintiff and defendant, and ths defendant and the third party, from heing tried on different occasiona and in different fornms: Wilson v. Boulter, 18 P. R. 107; hut where damages, if recoversble by defendants, would he assessed upon a different principle from those of the plaintiff, there is no such identical question, snd no case for relief over: Ib., ses also Parent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 712; 3 O. L. R. 350; Pontifex v. Foord 12 Q. B. D. 152; Cotton v. Bennett, 26 Ch. D. 161.

In an action for conversion of goods, the defendant may bring in the party who sold him the goods as a third party against whom he is entitled to relief ovsr: Confederation Life Association v. Labatt, (No. 2), 18 P. R. 266.

Where the plaintiff claimed a haiance due to him for hire of a race track, and the defendants alleged an agreement hy n Ferry Company to pay $15 per day to defendants while the races were heing carried on, it was heid that defendants had no right to contribution or indemnity, or any relief over, against the Ferry Company, in respect to the plaintiff's claim for rent: Windsor Fair Grounds v. Highland Park Club, 19 P. R. 130.

In an sction hy an employee in a factory for damages for injuries occssioned hy alleged negligence, in that a retort by which the injury was caused was defective, and without a safety valve, a third party notice given hy defendant to the manufacturers of the retort was set aside, ths retort sppearing to have heen manufactured under a written contract containing no warranty, and providing that the defendants were to put in their own fittings, including the safety valve: Wilson v. Boulter, 18 P. R. 107.

The Rules do not, and even the original Rule did not enahle defendsnt to hring in a third party in an action for specific performance hy a vendor, so as to have it determined between plaintiff and defendant, whether the third party has a title to the whole, or part of the lsnd: Begg v. Ellison, 14 P. R. 384.

Other Cases.—In certain special cases hy statute, relief over Other cases. against a third party may he ohtained hy a defendant. By The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), s. 464, a municipal corporation sued for damages sustained by renson of any obstruction, excavation, or open- Obstruction, etc., of highways.
ing in, or near, a highway, or hridge, made, left, or maintained, by any person other than the corporation, or a aervant or agent of the corporation, may have such other person (including corporation) added as s defendant or third party: see also Erdman v. Walkerton, 15 P. R. 12; Stilliway v. Toronto, 20 Ont. 98; Homewood v. Hamilton, 1 O. L. R. 266; hut such third person cannot properly be joined hy the plaintiff ss a co-defendant with the corporation: Baines v. Woodstock, 10 O. L. R. 694.

Third party procedure.

Third Party Procedure—General Principles.—If a third party is a necessary party to the action as regards the plaintiff, the defendant ought to have him added as a defendant, and not as a third party under this Rule: see Pilley v. Robinson, 20 Q. B. D. 155, and other cases in notes to Rule 134; and see Bank of Commerce v. Bank of B. N. A., 20 C. L. J. 136; 4 C. L. T. 200.

Under C. R. 209, before a third party notice could be served, it was necessary to obtain the leave of the Court; that preliminary is no longer necessary; but if the defendant improperly serves a third party notice, it will be open to the plaintiff, or to the party served, to move to set it aside; and the cases in which leave to serve a notice under C. R. 209 will be useful in determining whether or not a notice served is within this Rule.

Leave to serve a notice was refused where defendant claimed indemnity from three persons jointly, viz.: a plaintiff, a defendant, and a third person: Re Gilson, 1894, 2 Ch. 92. Semble, that was a case for filing a counter-claim.

Whether the claim which the defendant has against the third party, need not be identical or co-extensive with the plaintiff's claim against the defendant himself, quære: see Swonseo Co. v. Duncan, 45 L. J. Q. B. 640; 1 Q. B. D. 649, and Miller v. Sarnia Gas Co., 2 O. L. R. 546; semble, it must: Gagne v. Rainy River Lumber Co., 20 O. L. R. 433.

"The object of the Act was not only to prevent the same question being litigated twice, but to obviate the scandal, which sometimes arose, by the same question being differently decided by different juries": Renecke v. Frost, 1 Q. B. D. 422, per Blackburn, L.J.; see also Re Collie, 2 Ch. D. 51.

A right to indemnity arising after action brought, entitles a defendant to notify a third party: Edison & Swon Co. v. Holland, 33 Ch. D. 497.

The third parties can only be joined before trial: Lockie v. Tennont, 5 Ont. 52, and will not be allowed to be brought in, if the plaintiff will be prejudiced: Bower v. Hortley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Wye Valley Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 16 Ch. D. 489; see also Swanseo, etc., v. Duncan, 1 Q. B. D. 648-9, and Rule 171; Hutchison v. Colorado United Mining Co., W. N. 1884, 40; Mead v. Etobicoke, 13 P. R. 341.

Leave to serve a third party notice was refused, where the defendants claimed that the damage in question had been occasioned by the proposed third party, and there were other actions by other plaintiffs pending in which the same point was raised, on the ground that the proposed third party would be prejudiced by the damages being assessed piecemeal, and the plaintiff would also be prejudiced, and unnecessarily delayed: Mahoney v. Canada Foundry Co., 12 O. L. R. 514.

Married woman as third party.

A married woman may be brought in as a third party, if a separate action might be brought against her: Gloucestershire Banking Co. v. Phillips, 12 Q. B. D. 533; Jones v. Elderton, W. N. 1884, 39.

Third party notice by a plaintiff counterclaimed against.

Where a defendant in an action counterclaims against a plaintiff, the plaintiff may serve a third party notice on a person against whom he claims contribution or indemnity in respect of the counterclaim: Levi v. Anglo Continental, etc., 1902, 2 K. B. 481.

See notes to Rule 166, et seq.

Rule 165. Counter-claim by third party.

A third party cannot counterclaim against the plaintiff: Eden v. Weardale, 28 Ch. D. 333; but it would seem that he may against the defendant who brings him in: Ib. 338; 54 L. J. Chy. 384; Borough v. James, W. N. 1884, 32.

A third party is not a person served with notice of proceedings within the definition of "defendant" in sec. 2 of the Act; but by an order giving directions under Rule 169, he may be placed in the same position as a defendant: Eden v. Weardale, 28 Ch. D. 338; 35 Ch. D. 287.

Replevin.

The Rules relating to third party procedure apply in an action of replevin: Bradley v. Clarke, 19 C. L. J. 80; 9 P. R. 410.

Counter-claim not proper to raise claim for relief against co-defendants.

Where a defendant makes a claim against a co-defendant for indemnity or other relief, his proper course is to proceed under Rules 165 and 170, and not by counterclaim: Furness v. Booth, 4 Ch. D. 586. The contrary ruling of V.-C. Hall in Shephard v. Beane, 2 Ch. D. 223 (an earlier case), has not been followed, and was subsequently disapproved of by the same Judge in Harris v. Gamble, 6 Ch. D. 748. The defendant might formerly raise a question against a co-defendant by a pleading which also stated a defence against a plaintiff; but such pleading is not a counterclaim, and should not be so entitled: Furness v. Booth, supra. It would seem, however, that this cannot now be done; if a defendant claims relief over against a co-defendant he must now proceed under Rule 170.

Fourth, etc., parties.

In Walker v. Balfour, 25 W. R. 511, it was held that a third party brought in under Rule 165, was not entitled under that Rule to have any other person against whom he has a claim, added; but in Fowler v. Knoop, 37 L. T. 219; W. N. 1877, 68, the third party against whom indemnity was claimed, was allowed, under the concluding words of section 16 (d), of the Act, to bring in a fourth party, from whom he claimed indemnity upon the same grounds upon which it was claimed from him: and see Klawanski v. Premier Petroleum Co., 104 L. T. 567. Perhaps the point cannot yet be considered as settled: see Yorkshire Waggon Co. v. Newport Coal Co., 5 Q. B. D. 268; Witham v. Vane, W. N. 1880, 108.

Practice in third party proceedings.

Practice.—As already pointed out, leave to serve the notice is no longer necessary. The notice must be filed in the office where the writ issued, and sealed as a writ of summons, and service must be effected as in the case of a writ of summons, and the third party after service must enter an appearance if he intends to contest the plaintiff's claim as against the defendant who served the notice, or such defendant's claim to indemnity, contribution, or relief over. If he does not appear he is bound by the decision, both as to the plaintiff's claim against the defendant, and the defendant's claim for indemnity, contribution, or relief over: Rule 166. If he appears, before anything further can be done in respect of the claim to contribution, etc., directions must be obtained as to the extent to which, and the mode in which, the claim is to be determined: Rule 169.

Notice must be served on the third party within the time for delivering the defence: Rule 165; but see Re Gilson, 1894, 2 Ch. 92; but there is power to extend the time: Rule 176; the plaintiff not objecting: Swale v. Can. Pac. Ry., 25 O. L. R. 492.

A notice which was too late, having been served after the pleadings were closed, and the action entered for trial, was under the circumstances not allowed to be made good by the granting of an extension of time, and was set aside on the application of the third party: Porent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 709; 3 O. L. R. 350.

Under the former C. R. 209, an application for leave to serve a third party notice would not be entertained after the close of the pleadings: see Lockie v. Tennant, 5 Ont. 52; Birmingham L. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 56 L. T. 702; Associated H. Co. v. Whichcord, 8 Ch. D. 457; and it would seem to be doubtful whether after judgment there is jurisdiction, on an appeal, to add a third party by amendment: see Edison, etc., v. Holland, 41 Ch. D. 28; or to allow a defendant to claim relief against a co-defendant: Boulthee v. Cochrane, 17 P. R. 9.

Evidence.

Where the time for service of a third party notice under this Rule has expired, a special application to extend the time for filing it might be made: Rule 175. The motion should be on affidavit accounting for the ispse of time, and shewing the state of the action, the nature of the plaintiff's claim, and the circumstances under which the right to indemnity, contribution, or relief over, is claimed. The defendant must make out a primâ facie case; it is not sufficient merely to state that he claims contribution, etc., etc.: Birmingham L. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., supra; but the Court in giving leave to issue a notice, did not decide that the claim is a valid one, but merely that a primâ facie case has been made for the relief claimed by the defendant against the third party: Carshore v. N. E. Railway Co., 29 Ch. D. 344; Edison, etc., v. Holland, 33 Ch. D. 497; Beynon v. Godden, 4 Ex. D. 247; Pettigrew v. Grand Trunk Ry., 22 O. L. R. 23.

Service of notice out of jurisdiction.

Service of Notice.—The notice to the third party is to be served according to the Rules relating to the service of writs of summons: Rules 15, et seq. Such notice may therefore be served out of the jurisdiction under Rule 25, and in such a case leave to serve would be necessary, as in the case of a writ of summons, and such service will be allowed only where, if it were a writ, it would be capable of being so served; and in determining whether the notice can be so served, if it were a writ, the Court will not have regard to the plaintiff's claim, but will only consider the defendant's claim actually made in the notice: McCheone v. Gyles, 50 W. R. 376; 1902, 1 Ch. 287; 86 L. T. 1; see notes to Rule 25 and Swonseo Shipping Co. v. Duncan, 1 Q. B. D. 644; Dubout v. Macpherson, 23 Q. B. D. 340. In such case the time for appearance (ten days) mentioned in Rule 166 will not be sufficient; and in Swonseo, etc., v. Duncon, supra, this was used as an argument that the enactments as to notice to third parties were not intended to apply to persons out of the jurisdiction. The answer given by the Master of the Rolls to this objection was, that the order giving leave to serve the notice out of the jurisdiction is to name such a time for appearance as the necessity of the case as to time and place requires. see Rule 27, and the Rule allowing ten days only must be taken to be modified accordingly.

Time for appearance.

Third party appearance.

Default of appearance of.

166. If a third party desires to dispute the plaintiff's claim in the action as against the defendant or his own liability to the defendant, he shall enter an appearance within ten days from the service of the notice, and in default of his so doing, he shall be deemed to admit the validity of any judgment obtained (whether by consent or otherwise) against such defendant, and his own liability to contribute or indemnify, claimed in the third party notice. C.R. 210. Rule 166.

Tha notice, Form No. 24, in the Rules, should in casee of "other relief over" be slightly modified in its last paragrapb. Instead of the words "your own liability to contribute or indemnify," there should be stated appropriately the liability to which it is claimed that the third party ie eubject. See H. & L. Forms, No. 478.

As to the time for entering appearance in the case of a third party out of the jurisdiction: see note to Rule 165, p. 620, supra.

Appearanco indicates a desire to dispute the plaintiff's claim in the action, as against the defendant, on whose hebalf the notice bas been given, or the third party's own liability to the defendant. When a motion is afterwarde made under Rule 169 for directions, the third party will etate whetber he admits hie own liability to the defendant, snd whether he wishee to dispute the plaintiff's claim, and the extent to which he will be allowed to take part in the action will be defined accordingly. Appearance by third party served under Rule 165.

Where tbe third party appeare, nothing more csn be done in regard to tbe claim for contribution, etc., without an application under Rule 169 for directions; as to subsequent proceedings: eee notes to that Rule.

By non-sppearance the third party is taken to admit the validity of any judgment obtained against the defendant who brought him in, and his own liability to the extent of the claim made against him by tbe third party notice. In such a case the defendant may note the pleadings closed against the third party, and if he does not do so in due course the plaintiff may compel him to do so in order that tbe action msy be proceeded with: Niogaro & Ontario Construction Co. v. Wyse, 4 O. W. N. 248. Ae to judgment against the third party in such case: see Rules 167, 168.

Motion to Set Aside Notice.—The third party may move to set aside tbe notice served upon him: Benecke v. Frost, 1 Q. B. D. 429; Bower v. Hartley, Ib. 652; Horwell v. London Gen. Omnibus Co., 2 Ex. D. 365; and semble, he generally should take that course if he intends to dispute the propriety of bis being served, and not wait until a motion for directione is msde under Rule 169; see Holden v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 421. Motion to set aside notice.

In England a conditional appearance msy be entered by a third party who intends to move to eet aside a notice served on him: see Eng. (1883), R. 100; Pleasants v. E. Dereham, 47 L. T. 439; Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 564; but in Ontario a conditional appearance cannot be entered except by leave of the Court or a Judge: Rule 48; and it hss now been decided in Ontario, that the third party should not appesr as a preliminary to moving to set aside the notice: Windsor, etc., v. Highland Park, 19 P. R. 130. Appearance whether necessary.

Notice of an application to aet aside the notice muet of course be given to the defendant who served the notice, and may also properly he given to tbe plaintiff, who is interested in seeing that no question Notice to plaintiff.

Rule 167.

is introduced into the litigation which may prejudice him: see Bower v. Hortley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Wye Valley Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 16 Ch. D. 489.

Order.

If the defendant who gave the notice cannot, from the nature of the case, become entitled to any remedy, or relief over, against the third party, the service will be set aside: Horwell v. London General Omnibus Co., 2 Ex. D. 365; as where it was made to appear that the contract under which indemnity was claimed did not apply to the state of facts appearing in the pleadings between the plaintiff and defendant: Ferguson v. Toronto, 14 P. R. 358. See also Rice v. Alliance, etc., Gas Co., 12 L. R. Ir. 172; Johnson v. Wild, 44 Ch. D. 146; Birmingham L. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 34 Ch. D. 261; Hammond v. Bussey, 20 Q. B. D. 97; Pontifex v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152; Catton v. Bennett, 26 Ch. D. 161; Moore v. Death, 16 P. R. 296.

Discovery in third party proceedings.

Discovery.—C. R. 465 expressly provided that a third party after defence, or after the time for defence had expired, should be liable to make discovery, and to obtain discovery from the defendant giving the third party notice. That Rule has not been continued, but Rule 348, no doubt, now applies to a third party, and possibly also, by analogy, Rule 327.

A third party appearing was not, nor is he now, entitled to an order for production as against the plaintiff. But if directions were obtained under Rule 169, allowing him to defend as against the plaintiff, he would then be, and probably is still, in the same situation, with respect to the plaintiff, as any other defendant and might, and probably still may, obtain discovery from, and be compelled to give it to, the plaintiff: McAllister v. Bishop of Rochester, 5 C. P. D. 194; Eden v. Weordale, 34 Ch. D. 223; see also Brodley v. Clarke, 9 P. R. 410, where, though there was no direct issue between the plaintiff and a third party, yet, as the latter had all the rights of a defendant, and virtually took his place, the plaintiff was allowed to examine him under Rule 327.

Semble, a third party, made a defendant by counter-claim, may not be entitled to give notice for production to the original plaintiff, but on special application he may obtain an order, where the circumstances warrant it: see The Alcoy & Gandia Ry. v. Greenhill, 74 L. T. 345.

Discontinuance. — Notice of discontinuance of claim against a third party given by the defendant under Rule 321 was upheld: Bucknall v. Mitchell, 13 O. W. R. 44.

Third party judgment against, how obtained.

167. Where the third party makes default in entering an appearance, the defendant giving the notice, in case he suffers judgment by default, shall be entitled at any time to move for judgment against the third party to the extent of the contribution, indemnity or relief over claimed in the third party notice. C.R. 211.

See Eng. (1883) R. 172.

No judgment can be summarily entered against a third party for default of appearance; a judgment can only be obtained under this Rule, or Rule 168, on motion, of which the third party should have notice: sed vide, Rules 35, 354. Rules 168, 169.

C. R. 211 provided that a defendant should only be entitled to judgment against the third on proof of satisfaction of the judgment against himself; but that provision has been omitted from these Rules.

For proof of default in entering of appearance: see Rule 36.

Where the defendant moves for judgment against a third party, before he has himself satisfied the plaintiffs' judgment against himself, a reasonable term may sometimes be, that the amount payable by the third party be paid into Court: see Cunninghom v. Lyster, 13 Gr. 575; Boyd v. Johnston, 20 Ont. 404; Mewburn v. Mockelcan, 19 Ont. App. 729.

This Rule will probably not affect the decisions in which it was held that a person entitled to indemnity might obtain judgment before he has actually paid anything to the person to whom he is liable: see English and Scottish Trust Co. v. Flotou, 36 W. R. 938; Underhoy v. Read, Ib., 75; Clendennon v. Grant, 10 P. R. 593; Cunningham v. Lyster, supro; Boyd v. Johnston, supra; Mewburn v. Mockelcan, supra, and Federol Bonk v. Horrison, 10 P. R. 271.

168. Where a third party makes default in entering an appearanee, if the aetion is tried and results in favour of the plaintiff, the Judge who tries the action may, at or after the trial, direct such judgment as the nature of the case may require, to be entered for the defendant giving the notiee against the third party. C.R. 212. Third party judgment against, how obtained.

See Eng. (1883) R. 173. See notes to Rule 167.

In cases coming within the principle of Cunnirghom v. Lyster, Boyd v. Johnston, and Mewburn v. Mockelcan, the third party may be ordered to pay the amount for which he is found liable into Court: but see Sutherlond v. Webster, 21 Ont. App. 228; Re Beavon, Dovies v. Beavan, 1913, 2 Ch. 61.

169. Where the third party appenrs pursuant to the third party notiee, the defendant giving the notiee may apply for directions, and the Court may order the question of liability, as between the third party and the defendant giving the notiee, to be tried in sueh manner at or after the trial of the aetion, as may seem proper; and may give the third party liberty to defend the action, upon such terms as may be just, or to appear at the trial and take part therein, and generally may order sueh proceedings to be taken and give such directions as may appear proper for having the question between the defendant and the third party most eonveniently determined, and as to the mode and extent in or to which the Defendant notifying third party may apply for directions.

third party shall be bound or made liable by the judgment in the action. C.R. 213.

See Eng. (1883) RR. 174 and 175.

The application should be made in Chambers: see Rules 207 (4), 208, 209.

Directions as to procedure.

Application for Directions.—After appearance by a third party, or co-defendant, against whom relief is claimed (Pontifex v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152), before the trial can be had of any issue raised against him under the third party notice, the directions of the Court must be obtained under this Rule, as to the extent to which the third party is to take part in the action, and how the question between the defendant and the third party, or co-defendant, is to be determined: Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 198; Flower v. Todd, W. N. 1884, 47; Burke v. Pittman, 12 P. R. 662; Tritton v. Bonkort, 35 W. R. 474. Without an order under this Rule the Court at the trial will not entertain the question raised by the third party notice: Ib., and the third party is not entitled to take any part in the trial, and is not entitled to costs: Gibb v. Camden, 16 P. R. 316; and see The Millwall, 1905, P. 155; 93 L. T. 426. The Court is not, on an application for directions, precluded from considering whether the case is one in which third party proceedings can properly be taken: Dunn v. Toronto Ferry Co., 11 O. L. R. 16.

This application may sometimes be the first opportunity the plaintiff has of considering how the introduction of the third party will affect him, and notice of the motion must of course be given to him: see Bower v. Hortley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Wye Valley, etc., v. Hawes, 16 Ch. D. 489; Swansea, etc., v. Duncon, 1 Q. B. D. 648-9; Finlay v. Scott, W. N. 1884, 8.

In general the motion will be made, as the Rule provides, by the party giving the notice; but an application seems to have been made by the third party in Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 198.

Time for trial of question against the third party.

The words "at or after the trial of the action," have been construed as meaning that any question between the plaintiff and the defendant should be tried at the trial between the plaintiff and the defendant, or that directions should then be given as to further proceedings: Coister v. Chopmon, W. N. 1884, 31. It was there said that it was not intended that an action should go to trial between defendant and third party after the question between the plaintiff and defendant had been determined. The intention of the Rules is that a third party is, if he desires it, to have an opportunity to contest the plaintiff's claim, as well as his liability to the defendant who brings him in; and therefore directions must be obtained at a stage when it is possible that there may still be a trial between plaintiff and defendant. After judgment has been obtained against the defendant, a Judge cannot give directions as to the trial of the question of the liability of the third party, who has been brought in: Rich v. Dorrett, 28 Sol. Jour. 513, and this seems to be still the rule.

Effect of settlement of action before trial.

Where after a third party had been brought in, and directions had been given as to trial, the action was settled as between the plaintiff and defendant, it was held that the defendant could not proceed to trial against the third party, and the claim of defendant against the third party was dismissed with costs, without prejudice to the defendant's bringing an action against him: Wheeler v. Cornwall, 4 O. L. R. 120. Rule 169.

If the case proceeds to trial between the original parties without obtaining directions under this Rule as to a third party who has appeared, semble, the third party proceedings thereby become abortive, and no subsequent order can be made giving the defendant any relief against such third party, but he would have to proceed against him by a separate action: see Gregson v. Henderson Roller Co., 20 O. L. R. 584, 590. Effect of going to trial without directions.

The Court or Judge may give such directions as may be proper for having the question in which the third party is interested determined, subject always to the condition that the plaintiff must not be prejudiced or unreasonably delayed: see Rule 171, and Corshore v. N. E. Ry. Co., 29 Ch. D. 346; or, looking at the circumstances, and notwithstanding that the third party may not have moved to discharge the service of the notice upon him, and notwithstanding that an appearance has been entered by the third party, the Court or Judge may determine that it is not a proper case for citing a third party, or that the giving of any directions will prejudice or delay the plaintiff, and may therefore refuse to give any: Schneider v. Bott, 44 L. T. 142; 8 Q. B. D 101; Pontifex v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152; Donn v. Toronto Ferry Co., 11 O. L. R. 16; see Bower v. Hartley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Associated H. Co. v. Whichcord, 8 Ch. D. 457; in which case the third party must be considered as dismissed from the action: Schneider v. Bott, 8 Q. B. D. 701; 45 L. T. 370; 50 L. J. Q. B. 525; 30 W. R. 420; 18 C. L. J. 56; see Baxter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. 591; or may dismiss the third party from the action without any motion for that purpose by the third party: Scripture v. Reilly, 14 P. R. 249. Order on motion for directions.

Where an application for directions involves a preliminary question, as to whether there is a right to indemnity, etc., about which there is great doubt, that doubt may sometimes be a sufficient ground for refusing to give directions; as to such cases: see Baxter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. 455, 591; 72 L. T. 183; and see where the claim set up is really and properly the subject of a counter-claim: Moore v. Death, 16 P. R. 296; but see Holden v. G. T. R., infra, and Donn v. Toronto Ferry Co., supra.

Upon the application for directions, none will be given for the trial of the question between the defendant and the third party, unless the Judge or officer is satisfied that there is a proper question to be tried. If satisfied that the case is one for contribution, indemnity, or other relief over, but that there is no disputed question to be tried, he may give judgment against the third party: Gloucestershire Banking Co. v. Phillips, 12 Q. B. D. 536; and see cases cited under Rule 222; or if the case is not a proper one for the application of the third party procedure, he may make no order for trial.

Directions were given where it was desirable that the question of the defendant's liability to the plaintiff should be established in such a way as to be binding on the third parties, although all matters in dispute between the defendant and the third parties would not be determined in the action; and the questions between the defendant and the third party were ordered to be tried after the trial of the action: Holder v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 421, and see Christie v. Toronto, 15 P. R. 415.

Where a co-defendant is served with a notice claiming relief under Rule 170, on the motion for directions under this Rule the question of the propriety of serving the notice may be raised: see Baxter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. p. 458; Holden v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 2 O. L. R. p. 423.

Directions refused.

Refusal of Motion.—Where the motion for directions under this Rule is refused, that is equivalent to a dismissal of the third party from the proceedings: Baxter v. France, supra; Schneider v. Batt, 8 Q. B. D. 701; 45 L. T. 370; and see Scripture v. Reilly, 14 P. R. 249, and semble, the question of costs should then be disposed of.

Directions given.

Application Granted.—Where the application is rightly made, the third party, on the return of the motion, should declare whether or not he admits his liability to the defendant, and whether or not he desires to dispute the plaintiff's claim against the defendant. If he admits that, in the event of the plaintiff's succeeding, he is liable to the defendant, he may be allowed to defend, or to actively assist in resisting the plaintiff's claim, if he so desires: Pearson v. Lane, W. N. 1875, 248; Coles v. Civil Service, 26 Ch. D. 529.

If the third party does not admit his liability, that question may be ordered to be determined at the trial under Rule 169: Flower v. Todd, W. N. 1884, 47; 28 Sol. Jour. 301; see also Callender v. Wallingford, 53 L. J. Q. B. 569; Blore v. Ashby, 42 Ch. D. 682; or after the trial: Holden v. G. T. R., supra; and if he desires so to do, he may be allowed to put in a defence to the plaintiff's claim, and take such part in the proceedings as seems right under the circumstances of the case: Coles v. Civil Service, supra; see form of order in that case, and in Seton on Decrees, 5th Ed., p. 23, also Borton v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 38 Ch. D. 144; Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657; 60 L. T. 651; Christie v. Toronto, 15 P. R. 415.

If the pleadings are closed as regards the plaintiff and defendant at the time the application for directions is made, that fact should be mentioned to the Court, so that special directions as to pleading and notice of trial may be given. Where this was not done, and the action had been previously set down for trial, and notice of trial given by the plaintiff, an order, made on the application for directions, allowing a third party to defend, and for the trial of the issue between the defendant and the third party at the trial, and the delivery of a defence by the third party, was held to have the effect of re-opening the pleadings, making it necessary for the plaintiff to make up a new record, including the defence of the third party, to enter the case again, and to give notice of trial to the defendant, and to the third party: Confederation Life, etc., v. Laboll, 18 P. R. 238.

Examples of directions in third party proceedings.

Examples of Directions.—In an action by the holders of a bill, indemnity as to part was claimed by the acceptors from the drawer, on the ground that the consideration had in part failed; the drawer denied failure of consideration; an order was made substituting the drawer for the plaintiff, and allowing him to sue on the bill, upon the acceptor's undertaking to pay the amount not in dispute, and the drawer's paying to the plaintiff the balance in dispute: National Provincial Bank of England v. Bradley Bridge, etc., Co., W. N. 1876, 63; 2 Chari. Ch. Ca. 30.

A. contracted to sell goods to B. with a warranty, and himself bought the goods from C. stipulating for a similar warranty. B. sued

A. for breach of warranty. It was held that C. was properly brought in, and directions were given for trial of the liability of C. to indemnify A.: Hort v. Brown, 28 Sol. Jour. 577. Rule 169.

Third parties admitting their liability to indemnify were substituted as defendants with the plaintiff's consent: Commissioners of Waterford v. Veale, W. N. 1876, 23, but not where plaintiff objected: Measures v. Thomas, W. N. 1875, 23; see also Norris v. Beasley, 2 C. P. D. 80; Dawes v. Thornton, W. N. 1876, 74; Seligman v. Mansfield, W. N. 1875, 240; Barton v. London & N. W. Ry. Co., 38 Ch. D. 144; Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657; 37 W. R. 592; 60 L. T. 651.

The third party may probably obtain leave under this Rule to counter-claim against the defendant, or at any rate the fact of his having a valid counter-claim will prevent judgment from being given against him: Borough v. James, W. N. 1884, 32; but a third party will not be allowed to counter-claim against the plaintiff: Eden v. Weardale, etc., 28 Ch. D. 333.

If the defendant does not effectually defend the action, and the third party has not liberty to defend, further application may be made by him for directions: Barton v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., supra; and see Blore v. Ashby, 42 Ch. D. 682.

Giving a third party leave to appear at the trial, and ordering him to be bound by the judgment which shall be given, is not equivalent to giving him leave to defend the action: Deseronto Iron Co. v. Rathbun Co., 11 O. L. R. 433. Where a third party obtains leave to appeal from a judgment in the name of the defendant, it is not competent for him to prosecute the appeal in his own name: Ib.

Effect of Directions.—A third party permitted to defend, or to take part in defending the action, does not become a defendant for all purposes: Eden v. Weardale, 35 Ch. D. 281; but see sec. 16 (d), last sentence; though, if he is really the person who is fighting the plaintiff, he may be added as a defendant: Edison, etc., v. Holland, 41 Ch. D. 33. Effect of directions in third party proceedings.

A third party defending the action along with the defendant is not confined to the defences which are open to the defendant: Callender v. Wallingford, 32 W. R. 491; but see Bell v. Van Dodelszen, W. N. 1883, 208, where, defendant admitting the plaintiff's claim, the third party was not allowed to dispute it. In such case the third party would not seem to be bound by the judgment against defendant in proceedings between the defendant and the third party.

Where a third party has liberty to appear at the trial, he may cross-examine the plaintiff's witnesses on the question of the liability of defendant to the plaintiff: Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. 362; and may call witnesses: Barton v. L. N. & W. Ry. Co., 38 Ch. D. 144; and see Deseronto Iron Co. v. Rathbun Co., supra.

As to the giving of the directions having the effect of opening the pleadings: see Confederation Life, etc., v. Labatt, supra, p. 626.

Discovery as between Parties to the Action and a third Party. —Former C. R. 465, provided for discovery as between the third party and the defendant bringing him in. There is now no express Rule providing for discovery as between the third party and the plaintiff, or the defendant; but where the third party appears and is permitted Discovery.

Rule 169.

to defend the action, he would, as regards the plaintiff and defendant bringing him in, then seem to be a defendant, and under this Rule it would be competent for the Court to give directions as to discovery: or where the third party is only given leave to take a limited part in resisting the claim of the plaintiff, an order, upon a special application in Chambers for that purpose, or upon the motion for directions under this Rule, may be made in favour of the third party for discovery by the plaintiff; Eden v. Weardale (No. 3), 35 Ch. D. 287. In like manner the plaintiff may obtain discovery from the third party: see McAllister v. Bishop of Rochester, 5 C. P. D. 194; Eden v. Weardale (No. 2), 34 Ch. D. 223; Bradley v. Clarke, 9 P. R. 410; Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 201; Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q. B. D. 329.

Costs of third party proceedings.

Costs.—The costs of the proceedings will in general be reserved till the trial: Benecke v. Frost, 1 Q. B. D. 422, but quære whether the order giving directions should not make some reference to the costs of the proceedings: Tomlinson v. Northern Ry., 11 P. R. 526; see also Gibb v. Comden, 16 P. R. 316.

Where the motion for directions is refused, it would seem that the costs of the third party or defendant against whom relief is claimed should be provided for. Jud. Act, s. 74, supra.

A third party who is given liberty to contest the plaintiff's claim against the defendant should not, without necessity, defend separately from the defendant, where his case and that of the defendant are identical, as against the plaintiff. If he does do so, he may be refused costs, even though the plaintiff fails: Williams v. Buchanan, 7 T. L. R. 226.

Where the third party on being served with notice, pays the plaintiff's claim, he is liable to the defendant for his costs of defence as between solicitor and client, and for his costs of claim between party and party: King v. Federal Life Ins. Co., 17 P. R. 65.

Where a third party appears and obtains leave to defend, his costs are in the discretion of the Judge at the trial, and may be ordered to be paid by the plaintiff: Witham v. Vane, 28 W. R. 812; W. N. 1880, 108; 1881, 79; 44 L. T. 718; Fulton v. Brown, 18 P. R. 137; Russell v. Eddy, 5 O. L. R. 379; or by defendant: Dawson v. Shepherd, 49 L. J. Q. B. 529; W. N. 1880, 110; Ewing v. Toronto, 18 C. L. T. 237; 34 C. L. J. 417; or to be borne by himself: Williams v. S. E. Ry. Co., 26 W. R. 352; Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. 352; Williams v. Buchanan, 7 T. L. R. 226; Tomlinson v. Northern Ry., 11 P. R. 419, 526; Wallbridge v. Gaujot, 13 P. R. 463; or he may be ordered to pay the plaintiff's costs directly: Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 198; Edison v. Holland, 41 Ch. D. 28; or defendant's costs: Bates v. Burchell, W. N. 1884, 108; Morgan v. Hardy, 17 Q. B. D. 782; Jablochkoff v. McMurdo, W. N. 1884, 94; Staness v. Anglo American Ins. Co., 3 O. W. N. 886; and costs payable by defendant to the plaintiff may be given to defendant against the third party: Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q. B. D. 329; Morgan v. Hardy, supra; see also Beynan v. Godden, 4 Ex. D. 246; Blore v. Ashby, 42 Ch. D. 682.

Where defendants were sued for insurance moneys which they had paid to deceased's executors, taking from them a bond of indemnity, and the executors, being brought in as third parties, paid the plaintiff's claim and costs, the defendants were held entitled against the third parties to the costs of their defence between solicitor and client.

and costs of their claim against the third parties between party and party: King v. Federal Life Ins. Co., 17 P. R. 65. Rule 170.

Where no directions were made giving a third party leave to take part in the action, and he voluntarily appeared at the trial and asked to be made, and was made a defendant, it was held that the defendant who gave the notice could not be ordered to pay his costs: Gibb v. Camden, 16 P. R. 31.

170. Where a defendant claims to be entitled to contribution or indemnity from or relief over against any other defendant, a notice may be issued and the same procedure shall be adopted as if such last mentioned defendant were a third party, except that a copy of the statement of claim or writ need not be served with the third party notice, and service may be effected upon the solicitor in the action, if any, of the defendant sought to be made liable as a third party. C.R. 215. Claims to contribution, indemnity, etc., against a co-defendant.

The present Rule makes it clear that relief in the cases contemplated by Rule 165 may now be given between co-defendants, as well as between a defendant and a third party, and by the same general mode of procedure, this was formerly doubtful: see H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 385.

No leave to issue the notice need be obtained: Baxter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. 455, 458; Holden v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. p. 423; see also Towse v. Loveridge, 25 Ch. D. 76. It is perhaps doubtful whether a defendant who has already appeared in the action should enter a second appearance to the notice, but that course was taken in Baxter v. France, supra, and is, it is submitted the proper course under this Rule. The notice (Form 24; see H. & L. Forms, No. 478), served on the co-defendant will direct him to appear if he disputes the claim made by the notice, and failure to appear will, it would seem, subject him to the consequences stated in Rule 166 and in the notice.

When an application is made under Rule 169, for directions as to the proceedings upon such claim, the defendant against whom relief is claimed may object to the claim being entertained: see Schneider v. Batt, 8 Q. B. D. 705; Wye Valley Ry. Co. v. Howes, 16 Ch. D. 489; Baxter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. 455; and it has also been held that this is the proper course to be pursued where a co-defendant served contends that the claim is not one to which Rule 170 is applicable, or objects to the question between himself and his co-defendant being tried. It is not proper (unlike in this respect the case of a notice served on a person not a party to the action) to move to set aside the notice: Baxter v. France, supra; but see Towse v. Loveridge, 25 Ch. D. 76. Motion for directions.

A claim by a defendant against a co-defendant for indemnity will not be tried without an order under Rule 169 providing for the determination of the claim raised: Burke v. Pittman, 12 P. R. 662; Flower v. Todd, W. N. 1884, 47; Tritton v. Bonkart, and other cases, supra, p. 624.

The procuring by a defendant of the pleadings of a co-defendant who claims contribution, etc., from him does not operate as a notice to the former: Steel v. Dixon, 28 W. R. 796; 42 L. T. 765.

In Walker v. Dickson, 14 P. R. 343, where the defendant claimed indemnity against a co-defendant, the question was directed to be tried at the same time and place as the plaintiff's claim, notwithstanding that the time for pleading to the claim for relief over had not expired, and that it was, at the date of the order, too late to give the usual ten days' notice of trial to the third party.

As to whether a defendant who is entitled to indemnity from a co-defendant is entitled to judgment before he has actually paid anything in discharge of his liability to the plaintiff: see Rules 167, 168, and notes.

Security for costs.

Security for Costs.—As to security for costs by a defendant from a co-defendant making a claim against him: see Molsons Bank v. Sawyer, 19 P. R. 316.

Plaintiff not to be delayed by questions between defendants.

171. A plaintiff is not to be prejudiced or unnecessarily delayed by reason of questions between the defendant and the third party in which he is not concerned; and such directions shall be given and terms imposed as may be necessary to prevent delay of the plaintiff, where it can be done without injustice to the defendants and third party. C.R. 216.

The object of the present Rule is to prevent the plaintiff from being delayed by questions between the defendant and a third party, whether such third party is a stranger or a co-defendant.

There is no express Rule like this under the English Practice, but the decisions of the Courts are to the same effect: see Bower v. Hartley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Wye Valley Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 16 Ch. D. 489; Barton v. London & N. W. Ry. Co., 38 Ch. D. 144; Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657; 60 L. T. 651; Hutchison v. Colorado U. M. Co., W. N. 1884, 40.

Rule 172.

CHAPTER IX.

TIME AND VACATIONS.

Standard time, meaning of.

By The Definition of Time Act (R. S. O. c. 132), s. 2, "standard time is adopted as regards any time mentioned in any Act of the Ontario Legislature, Rule of Court, by-law, deed, or other instrument, unless otherwise stated. As regards that part of the Province which lies east of the meridian, of 90° west longitude, standard time is reckoned as 5 hours behind Greenwich time; and as regards that part of the Province lying west of the said meridian, standard time is reckoned as 6 hours behind Greenwich time.

"Month" means calendar month.

This Act also provides that the term "month" in any Act or Rule of Court means a calendar month unless otherwise specifically stated: Ib., s. 3.

In the absence of statutory, or other provision, to the contrary, "month" in contracts and legal documents means lunar month: Hutton v. Brown, 29 W. R. 928; and there is, in England, no general exception making it mean a calendar month in commercial documents: Bruner v. Moore, 1904, 1 Ch. 305; but in Ontario: see supra; and see Bills of Exchange Act (R. S. C. c. 119), s. 46 (2).

Period of less than 6 days.

172. Where a period of less than 6 days is prescribed holidays shall not be reckoned. C.R. 343.

See Eng. (1883), R. 962. Holidays are defined by the Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1), as follows:—

"Holiday," meaning of.

"29 (l). The word "holiday" shall include Sunday, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, Christmas Day, the birthday, or the day fixed by proclamation of the Governor-General, for the celebration of the birthday of the reigning Sovereign, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labour Day, and any day appointed by proclamation of the Governor-General or the Lieutenant-Governor as a public holiday or for a General Fast or Thanksgiving, and whenever any other holiday falls on a Sunday, the next day following shall be in lieu thereof a holiday." See also R. S. C. c. 1, s. 34 (1).

This Rule does not apply to Division Courts: Re McKay v. Talbot, 3 O. L. R. 256.

Statutory holidays other than Sundays, were held not to be dies non juridici: Foster v. Toronto Railway Co., 31 Ont. 1; sed vide Holmested's Sunday Laws of Canada, pp. 48-65; and see Rule 174, which appears to recognize that all holidays are non-juridical days.

This Rule applies to the computation of the 48 hours' notice of the examination of a party required to be given under Rule 346: Lovelace v. Harrington, 10 O. R. 157.

Where the limited period is not less than six days, holidays are counted: Ex parte Vine, 4 Ch. D. 794; Cornish v. Monning, 18 C. L. J. 143. except when the last day is a holiday, when, by Rule 174, it is not to be reckoned: Taylor v. Jones, 45 L. J. C. P. 110.

Rules 173, 174.

As to how far the Court regards a fraction of a day: see Broderick v. Brootch, 12 P. R. 561; Clarke v. Bradlaugh, 8 Q. B. D 63; 46 L. T. 49.

Where a statute limits a time for making an application, serving notice of motion within the prescribed time is sufficient, and it is not absolutely necessary that the application should be brought on to be heard within that time: Re Sweetman & Gosfield, 13 P. R. 293; Re Shaw & St. Thomas, 18 P. R. 454; Re Gallop v. Central Queensland Co., 25 Q. B. D. 230; 62 L. T. 834.

Days, how computed.

173.—(1) Where a number of days not expressed to be clear days is prescribed the same shall be reckoned exclusively of the first day and inclusively of the last day

Clear days.

(2) Where the days are expressed to be clear days, or where the term "at least" is added, both days shall be excluded. C.R. 344.

Clause (1) see Eng. (1883), R. 972. Clause (2) no corresponding Eng. Rule.

Even in a statute, where the time within which an act is to be done is to run from a certain date, or event, the day of the date, or event, must be excluded in the computation of the time: Goldsmiths Co. v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 1904, 1 K. B. 1.

When the expression "clear days" is not used, days are "clear" when expressed to be "at least" a certain number of days: see clause (2); and Reg. v. Shropshire Justices, 3 A. & E. 173; Fisher's Digest, p. 8323; Webster v. Leys, 3 C. L. T. 504; Kemohr v. Marx, 18 C. L. J. 444, 19 C. L. J. 10, 3 C. L. T. 31.

This Rule applies to the construction of orders made in actions limiting the time for doing any act: Bank of B. N. A. v. Hughes, 7 C. L. J. 136.

Where last day is holiday.

174. Where the time for doing any act or taking any proceeding expires on a holiday the act or proceeding may be done or taken on the next juridical day. C.R. 345.

See Eng. (1883) R. 963.

This Rule does not apply to extend the time for registration of a chattel mortgage under the statute: Morgan v. Pinkerton, 7 Ont. App. 490; nor to extend the time fixed by a Statute of Limitations, and therefore, in an action on a promissory note, where the limit of time under such a statute expired on Sunday, and the writ was not issued till Monday, the bar of the statute was held to apply: Morris v. Richards, 45 L. T. 210; see also Flower v. Bright, 2 J. & H. 598; but since The Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1) s. 28 (h): "If the time limited by an Act for any proceeding, or for the doing of anything, expires or falls upon a holiday, the time so limited shall extend to, and such thing may be done on the next following which is not a holiday."

When the time for appealing from Chambers expires on a holiday, the motion may be made the next day: Tyler v. Jones, 45 L. J. C. P. 110.

As to a notice of motion given for a day: see Rule 215.

Rules 175, 176.

175. Any time prescribed may be enlarged or abridged by consent in writing, without order. Con. Rule 478. C.R. 347.

Enlargement of time by consent.

The reference to Con. Rule 478 appears to be an error, and refers to the Rule on which C. R. 347 was founded.

"Prescribed" means prescribed by Rules of Court: see McLean v. Pinkerton, 7 Ont. App. 490, and see infra.

176. The Court may from time to time enlarge or abridge the time prescribed by the Rules, or by an order, for doing any act or taking any proceeding, and this power may be exercised although the application is not made until after the expiration of the time prescribed. C.R. 353.

Enlargement or abridgment of time.

See Eng. (1883) R. 967.

An application under this Rule should be on notice to the parties affected if they have appeared.

A motion to extend the time for making a motion may be made at the same time as a motion which is objected to as out of time: Bradshow v. Warlow, 32 Ch. D. 403.

Scope of Rule.—The Rule only applies where a limited time is fixed for something to be done, and not where the Rules direct some act to be done before another: Re Pilcher, Pilcher v. Hinds, 11 Ch. D. 905; 40 L. T. 832.

Scope of Rule.

The Court cannot, under this Rule, extend the time for renewing a writ where in the absence of such renewal the claim would be barred by the Statute of Limitations: Doyle v. Kaufman, 3 Q. B. D. 340; and see Magee v. Hastings, 28 L. R. Ir. 288; but the time for issuing a concurrent writ may be extended, the original having been kept renewed so that it could be acted upon within the jurisdiction: Smallpage v. Yonge, 55 L. T. 44, distinguishing Doyle v. Kaufman. See also note to Rule 9 supra, p. 323; St. Louis v. O'Callaghan, 13 P. R. 322.

An extension of the time limited by C. R. 1044 for delivery of a statement of claim was extended, though the liberty of the subject was involved: Winch v. Travis, 13 P. R. 102.

It was said in Parent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 709; 3 O. L. R. 350, that the time for delivering a third party notice could not be extended under this Rule, but it was so extended: Swale v. Can. Pac. Ry., 25 O. L. R. 492; Dominion Bank v. Armstrong, 5 O. W. N. 105.

There is no power to extend (McLean v. Pinkerton, 7 Ont. App. 495; Re Oliver and Scott, 43 Ch. D. 310; 61 L. T. 552; McCarron v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 35 C. L. J. 421), or to shorten (Re Sweetman & Gosfield, 13 P. R. 293), the time fixed by a statute, and not by the Rules. The time for moving against an award was extended in Re Oliver & Scott, supra, because the time for moving was fixed by Rules passed by lawful authority altering the statute. 9 & 10 W. 3, c. 15, s. 2. See also Flower v. Bright, 2 J. & H. 590. The time for payment of costs under an order which dismissed the action in default of payment was twice extended, but this was done by extending the time for appealing from the original order of dismissal: see Stroti v. Toronto Construction Co., 22 O. L. R. 211.

Tha time allowed by Rule 313 for tnking maney out of Court, which has been paid in with n defence, cannot he extended under this Rule after tha plaintiff has proceeded ta trial: Magonn v. Ferguson, 18 P. R. 201.

This Rulc does not empower the Caurt to allow an application as to costs, which by Jud. Act, s. 74, if made to n Judge, must he made at the trial, to be made nt any later pariod: Boker v. Oakes, 2 Q. B. D. 171; but see Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542.

Extending time for appealing.

Extending Time for Appealing.—In appenls to tha Appellate Division, the applicatiou for an extension of time to appeal should be made ta a Judgo of the liigh Court Division as, until the nppeal is lodged, the Appellate Division would not appear to hava any jurisdiction. It wns at one time held that in giving lenve, or extending time, thera was a difference between applications before, snd after judgment. In the former case, lenve was rendily granted, unless the opposite party was injured in some respect, for which payment of costs could not compensata him; but in tha latter case after the action had heen once tried, and judgment given, the party in whose favour the judgment is, was held to have n vested right in it of which he is not to be deprived, except under special circumstances: see Collins v. Vestry of Paddington, 5 Q. B. D. 368; Miller v. Brown, 9 P. R. 542; Shupe v. Shupe, 4 C. L. T. 129; Croig v. Phillips, 7 Ch. D. 249; McAndrew v. Borker, 7 Ch. D. 701; sea Re Ambrose Lake Tin ond Copper Co., Taylor's Cose, 8 Ch. D. 643; Re Sceptre Licensed Victuallers Fire Insuronce Co., Ex parte How, W. N. 1879, 6; hut these cases have heen gradusliy departed from, and it is now held that no such distinction exists, but that each case depands upon its own circumstances, and discretion is to be exercised, accardingly, in either case, so as to do what justice may require in the particular case: Cusack v. L. & N. W. Railway, 1891, 1 Q. B. 347; Abell v. Morrison, 14 P. R. 210; see also Re Gobourie, Casey v. Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252; Re Clayton Mills Manufg. Co., 37 Ch. D. 28; Esdoile v. Poyne, 40 Ch. D. 520; Ross v. Robertson, 7 O. L. R. 464; Roy v. Port Arthur, 7 O. L. R. 737, and notes, supra, p 115.

No precise rules can be laid down as to what constitute circumstances sufficient to cail for tha exercise of the discretion of the Court: see Corter v. Stubbs, 6 Q. B. D. 116; Re Manchester Economic B. S., 24 Ch. D. 488; Willy v. Standord, etc., 10 P. R. 34. Even in the case of the time for taking a step heing allowed to expire by mistake, there is no hard and fast rule that an extension will not be givan unless thare has heen conduct on the part of the opposite party conducing to tha mistaka: Illingwòrth v. Melbourne, 18 T. L. R. 775.

As a general rule after delay and expiry of tha regular time, thers must be shewn a bonâ fide intention to appeal held whila the right to appeal existed, and a suspension of further proceedings hy reason of some special circumatances: Smith v. Hunt, 5 O. L. R. 97. Tha spplicant must also shew primâ facie error in the judgment: Union Bonk v. Rideau Lumber Co., 19 P. R. 106; Ross v. Robertson, Roy v. Port Arthur, supro.

Whera thera has heen delay on hoth sides, hut an appeal is ready, though too late to he set down in due course, consent should ordinarily be given to its being entered: see McLoughlin v. Moyhew, 5 O. L. R. 114.

Thus, though, generally speaking, an extension will be granted where justice requires it: Re Gabourie, Casey v. Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252; and cases supra; two particular lines of cases have been noticed in which leave may be given, 1st, where there is unavoidable accident, whereby a party is unable to bring on his appeal; and 2nd, where some equity is raised on behalf of the appellant from the conduct of the other side: Langtry v. Dumoulin, 4 C. L. T. 351; Re Mansel, Rhodes v. Jenkins, 7 Ch. D. 711; Re Blyth & Young, 13 Ch. D. 416. Mistake on the appellant's part with which the respondent has nothing to do may be a ground, and it is not essential to shew misconduct by the respondent (though there are expressions in the cases to the contrary): see Re Mansel, Rhodes v. Jenkins, supra; McAndrew v. Barker, 7 Ch. D. 701; Curtis v. Sheffield, 21 Ch. D. 5; Rumohr v. Marx, 19 C. L. J. 10; Berdan v. Birmingham, 7 Ch. D. 24; but there must be an equity shewn in the applicant's favour either from conduct of the other party, or from something else recognized as a ground of equity: Re New Callao, etc., 22 Ch. D. 484; Re Manchester Economic B. S., 24 Ch. D. 488; Peckett v. Short, 32 W. R. 123; Wilby v. Standard, etc., 10 P. R. 34; Lewis v. Talbot Road Co., 10 P. R. 15; Sieveright v. Leys, 9 P. R. 200; Langdon v. Robertson, 12 P. R. 139; Re Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252; Esdaile v. Payne, 40 Ch. D. 520; McNair v. Andenshaw, 1891, 2 Q. B. 502; and the onus of shewing such equity is on the applicant: Shupe v. Shupe, 4 C. L. T. 129. Rule 176.

In Dayer v. Robertson, 9 P. R. 78, time for appealing from an Official Referee in Chambers, was extended where the time had expired through a misapprehension of the practice: see Crow v. Samuel, 2 C. P. D. 21; and in D'Ivry v. The World, 17 P. R. 543, where, though a sittings of the Court had been lost, substantial steps towards bringing on the appeal had been taken, and security had been given for a large part of the debt and costs.

An extension was granted where the applicants had been, without their default, in ignorance of the order appealed from, and applied as soon as they heard of it: Re Padstow, Total Loss, etc., Ass'n., W. N. 1882, 1; 51 L. J. Chy. 344; where a notice of appeal was withdrawn by mistake, and immediately renewed: Re Ambrose, etc., Taylor's Case, 8 Ch. D. 643; where the delay was attributable to the Court: Mcrae v. White, 9 P. R. 288; under peculiar special circumstances: Re Lake Superior Native Copper Co., 11 P. R. 36; where some of the parties affected by the judgment lived at a great distance, and out of the jurisdiction: Re Jacques, 30 W. R. 394; but not where due diligence in communicating with them was not shewn: Miller v. Brown, 9 P. R. 542; and where the order appealed from, viz., for the winding up of a company, was founded upon a void resolution of which the appellant, who obtained the order, was not aware, and therefore had not disclosed to the Court: Re Manchester Economic B. S., supra; where the case was important, and there were conflicting decisions below: Powell v. Peck, 12 P. R. 34; where leave was necessary, and had not been applied for, but proceedings to appeal had been taken in proper time, and a fairly arguable point of law was presented: Langdon v. Robertson, 12 P. R. 139, approving of the rule expressed in Sieveright v. Leys, 9 P. R. 200; and see Re Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252, and Foley v. Canada P. L. & S. Co., 18 C. L. J. 444. Extension granted.

Leave was granted where the proposed appeal was from an order refusing to set aside a judgment obtained by default in an action for recovery of land, where the omission to file defence was due to a mere slip of the solicitor, the application for relief being made promptly, and the action having been directed to be brought, on the staying, by a previous action, of proceedings under a power of sale in a mortgage, presumably because the plaintiff's right to exercise the power was not clear: Bourne v. O'Donohoe, 17 P. R. 274.

Where counsel had been instructed to draw the necessary notice of appeal, but owing to illness had been unable to do so, leave to appeal was granted: Rumbold v. London C. C., 100 L. T. 259; so also where the time to appeal from a judgment at the trial had, by mistake of counsel, been suffered to elapse: Baker v. Faber, 124 L. T. Jour. 215.

Extension refused.

An extension was refused where the object of the appeal was to fix executors with interest on money which they had invested, and on which a loss had occurred: Coates v. McGlasham, 2 Chy. Ch. 218; where the delay was owing to the applicant's ignorance of the practice: Wilby v. Standard, etc., 10 P. R. 34; or to the party having inexcusably proceeded under the old and repealed practice: Brown v. Dorse, 34 W. R. 776; Re Crosley, 34 Ch. D. 664; or to the inadvertence of his solicitor: Winnett v. Renwick, 6 P. R. 233; (but see Walton v. Jarvis, 18 U. C. Q. B. 620; Weldon v. De Bathe, 3 T. L. R. 445); or the misconstruction of a Rule of Court: International Financial Society v. City of Moscow Gas Co., 7 Ch. D. 241; or the mistake of counsel as to the time allowed for appealing: Re Coles and Ravenshear, 1907, 1 K. B. 1, 95 L. T. 750; but see Rumbold v. London C. C. supra. A contrary subsequent decision by a Court of Appeal does not form a special circumstance: Craig v. Phillips, 7 Ch. D. 249; Allan v. McTavish, 3 C. L. T. 196; see contra, Re Normantown, 50 L. J. Chy. 223; nor does the fact of a statute having been passed altering the law, even though it be retrospective: Eyre v. Wynn Mackenzie (No. 2)). 1896, 1 Ch. 135; 73 L. T. 571.

See also Baddin v. Sutherland, 20 C. L. J. 146; 4 C. L. T. 205; and Hamilton Prov. Loan Co. v. Dumble, 20 C. L. J. 147; 4 C. L. T. 205.

In Curtis v. Sheffield, 21 Ch. D. 1, (see also 20 Ch. D. 398), leave to appeal from a decree 45 years old, which declared future rights, was asked by a person who applied promptly after the happening of the event which entitled him to a fund if the decree should be reversed; but leave was refused, the fact that future rights were declared being held to be no sufficient reason for giving leave in a case where all parties, who could in any event be interested, were before the Court when the declaration was made.

The order extending the time granting leave to appeal should provide for the contingency of the appeal being abandoned; and where the costs of the motion are not provided for in the appellate Court, the Court in which the order extending the time was made is the proper tribunal to correct the omission: Milson v. Carter, 1893, A. C. 638.

See also an article on the subject, 28 C. L. J. 99.

Unless otherwise expressly provided, there is no appeal from an order refusing leave to appeal: Ex p. Stevenson, 1892. 1 Q. B. 609; Lane v. Esdaile, 1891, A. C. 210; see, however, Moore v. Peachey, 8 T. L. R. 406; nor from an order granting leave: Re Central Bank, 17 P. R. 395; Re Sarnia Oil Co., 15 P. R. 347; Kay v. Briggs, 22 Q. B. D. 343; or extending time for appealing: Moore v. Peachey, 8 T. L. R. 406.

Where, pending an appeal in a redemption action, it is desired to extend the time for redemption until after the disposition of the appeal, an application to the Court of first instance under this Rule is proper: Manks v. Whitely, 1913, 1 Ch. 581; 108 L. T. 450. Rule 176.

Other Cases.—In Wilkins v. Bedford, 35 L. T. 622, Bacon, V.C., refused to extend time for delivering a counter-claim. It had not been delivered, through the gross neglect of the defendant's solicitor, and the application was made six months after a decree had been obtained, but immediately after the defendant discovered his solicitor's neglect.

In Hastings v. Hurley, 16 Ch. D. 734, the time for indorsement of the date of service under Rule 17 was extended.

Where, within four days from a decision of a Master in Chambers, an appeal summons was taken out, and made returnable at a date after the expiration of the four days, but on the first day when a Judge would sit at Chambers, it was held that the time might be enlarged under this Rule: Gibbons v. London Financial Association, 4 C. P. D. 263.

By a Master's order an action was ordered to be dismissed, unless notice of trial should be given by a certain day. Through mistake of a solicitor's clerk, notice of trial was not so delivered. A Judge in his discretion refused to extend the time, and the Court of Appeal refused to interfere: Gilder v. Morrison, 30 W. R. 815.

Under this Rule the Court may order a plaintiff to deliver his statement of claim within a shorter time than that allowed by Rule 110; but such an order seems only proper where the plaintiff is asking an indulgence or for some other cause, is subject to be put on terms. The order should not direct a dismissal of the action in case of default; in case of default a substantive application for dismissal may be made under Rule 323, which expressly provides that an application for dismissal is not to be made till after the expiration of the time within which the plaintiff is bound to deliver his statement of claim: Armstrong v. Toronto & Richmond Hill St. Ry. Co., 15 P. R. 449.

Where a third party notice was served too late, the Court in the circumstances refused to extend the time: Parent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 709; 3 O. L. R. 350; but it was extended: Swale v. Can. Pac. Ry., 25 O. L. R. 492; Dominion Bank v. Armstrong, 4 O. W. N. 105.

Where an order was made under Rule 323, dismissing an action for want of prosecution, unless a statement of claim should be delivered within a week, and no statement was delivered in the week so limited, it was held that the action was at an end, and that there was no jurisdiction to make an order subsequently extending the time for delivery of the statement of claim: Whistler v. Hancock, 3 Q. B. D. 83; and see Dunn v. McLean, 6 P. R. 156; Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 16 P. R. 225; The Crown Corundum & Mica Co. v. Logan, 3 O. L. R. 434; sed vide Carter v. Stubbs, infra, p. 638.

An order was made on the 6th of May, dismissing an action for want of prosecution if the statement of claim was not delivered within fourteen days, and on the 19th of May, the plaintiff took out a summons returnable the next day, the last of the fourteen days, for further time to deliver the statement of claim. The summons was, on the 20th, adjourned, by the consent of the parties in writing indorsed thereon, till the 21st, and on the 21st a Master made an order giving seven days more for delivery of the statement of claim. The Court rescinded the order on the ground that there was no jurisdiction to make it, the action being at an end on the 20th of May: King v. Davenport, 4 Q. B. D. 402.

On the 25th of March a Master made an order dismissing an action for want of prosecution, unless an affidavit in answer to interrogatories was filed on the 31st. The affidavit was not filed on that day; but on the day following a summons was taken out for further time to answer the interrogatories; it was held that it was still competent to the Court or a Judge to enlarge the time for moving to set aside or vary the order of the 25th of March: Burke v. Rooney, 4 C. P. D. 226.

The Court of Appeal decided that a Judge had jurisdiction under C. R. 353 to enlarge the time for appealing against an order dismissing the action for want of prosecution, even after the order had taken effect, and the action had therefore become dismissed; and that he had also jurisdiction, when he had so enlarged the time for appealing, to vary or amend the order dismissing the action, and in the exercise of such jurisdiction his discretion was not limited by fixed or arbitrary rules: Carter v. Stubbs, 6 Q. B. D. 116; see also Welpy v. Buhl, 3 Q. B. D. 80, 253, and note to Rule 323.

In the above cases, Whistler v. Hancock, supra, p. 637, is recognized as correctly decided. In that case there was no jurisdiction to make the order asked, because the motion was to take some step in the cause, and was not directed to modifying the order for dismissal. There had been no order or application within the week to set aside or vary the order of dismissal, or to enlarge the time for appealing against the order of dismissal, and, that order existing and having taken effect, the cause was dead.

The last five above-mentioned English cases were considered and approved in Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 16 P. R. 225; and in Newcombe v. McLuhan, 11 P. R. 461, were not considered to stand in the way of a motion to vacate a judgment (signed on default of delivery of a statement of claim on a day previously fixed by order for its delivery), and to extend the time for delivering statement of claim: see also Bank of Minnesota v. Pogue, 14 Ont. App. 347; The Crown Corundum Co. v. Logan, 3 O. L. R. 434, and Muir v. Guinane, 9 O. L. R. 324.

Where an order for taxation of costs between solicitor and client limited a time within which it was to be acted on, and provided that in default it was to be of no effect: it was nevertheless held that the time for acting under the order might be extended: Re McIntosh, 1903, 2 Ch. 394; 88 L. T. 820.

Time for vacations.

177. The Vacations shall be:

(b) The Christmas Vacation consisting of the period from the 24th day of December to the 6th day of the following January, both days inclusive. C.R. 354.

Office hours in vacation.

(1) Office hours during vacation shall be from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. This Rule to be known as 177 (1), and to take effect immediately.

This sub-section 1 has not been officially printed. The above is its form according to information received from the Registrar of the Appellate Division, and is according to the note in his book.

By sec. 83 of the Jud. Act the office hours of the Court are regulated "subject to the Rules as to office hours during vacations."

Unless under any Rule (such as Rules 178, 179), proceedings are prohibited during vacation they may lawfully be taken, e.g., taxation: Cousineau v. City of London F. Ins. Co., 13 P. R. 36; proceedings before an Official Referee: Morples v. Roseburgh, 17 P. R. 104; service of notice of trial: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378.

Examinations and pleading in vacation.

178. An examination shall not be held nor shall pleadings be amended or delivered in the Long Vacation, except by consent or by direction of the Court, but when a writ is to be served out of the jurisdiction, and in Mechanic's Lien proceedings, the statement of claim may be delivered in vacation. C.R. 351 and 439.

See Eng. (1883) R. 964.

A pleading may be delivered without consent or order in the Christmas vacation: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378; but the opposite party cannot, without order, be compelled to deliver a pleading in answer during Christmas vacation: see Ib. and Rule 179.

The part of C. R. 439 covered by this Rule is that which prohibited examinations for discovery, without leave during the Long Vacation. The Rule now presumably covers all examinations of parties or witnesses.

Vacation, time of, when not to be reckoned.

179. Unless otherwise directed by the Court, the time of the Long Vacation, or of the Christmas Vacation, shall not be reckoned in the computation of the times appointed or allowed by these Rules for filing, amending, or delivering any pleading, or in the times allowed for the following purposes:

(a) Appeals to a Judge in Chambers;

(b) Reports becoming absolute.

(c) Moving to discharge an order adding a party;

(d) Moving to add to, vary, or set aside a judgment by a party served therewith;

Rule 180.

(e) Doing an act or taking a proceeding in appealing to a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division. C.R. 352.

As to delivery of pleadings, and examinations for discovery, in vacation: see Rule 178.

A notice of trial given in vacation is regular: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378.

Appeals to a Judge in Chambers.—Although the time of the Christmas or Long Vacation is not to be included in the time limited for appealing to a Judge in Chambers, yet when any judgment, order or decision so appealable is made or given in vacation, any party affected might appeal therefrom, if he pleased during vacation to the vacation Judge under former C. R. 767 (6), but that provision is not continued in these Rules.

Masters' reports, when confirmed.

Masters' Reports.—In order to confirm a Master's report, it must be filed as directed in Rules 428, 429, fourteen days: see Rule 502. No part of this period must fall in vacation. As to the procedure in appeals from a Master's report: see notes to Rules 502, 505.

Drainage Appeals.—The Rules apply as far as possible to appeals from reports of the Drainage Referee under R. S. O. c. 198, and Christmas Vacation is excluded in the computation of the time limited by s. 116, for appealing: Re Raleigh and Harwich, 18 P. R. 73.

Motions to discharge orders to continue proceedings. Time for.

Moving to Discharge Order Under Rule 303.—Where an order of revivor was formerly issued, the practice is now to issue an order to continue the proceedings. Ten days from service are allowed for moving against an order to continue proceedings: Rule 302, C. R. 352, was confined to motions of that kind, but this Rule as now worded, applies to all orders adding a party.

Motions to add to, or vary judgments.

Moving to add to, or Vary, or Set Aside a Judgment.—This Rule applies to motions to add to, or vary, judgments, by parties served therewith, by direction of the Master, whether on being added as parties to an action under Rules 404 or 470, or merely for the purpose of binding them by, and enabling them to attend the proceedings in the action under Rules 79-87. The time allowed for moving against a judgment by any party so served is ten days from the day of service: see Rules 87, 405, 471.

Appeals to App. Div.

Appeals to the Appellate Division.—The time of the vacations is not to be reckoned, under clause (e), in any time fixed by statute or Rule, for "doing an act or taking a proceeding" in appealing to the Appellate Division; formerly appeals from County Courts were excepted, but they are not now.

Vacation Judges.

180. One or more of the Judges shall be selected for the hearing in Toronto during Long and Christmas Vacations of all such applications as may require to be promptly heard. C.R. 114.

No business is heard by the vacation Judges, except such as requires "to be promptly heard" within the meaning of the above Rule.

As to what is vacation business: see Re Wigan Junction Railway Co., L. R. 10 Chy. 541. No Judges except the vacation Judges, or those sitting for them, can dispose of business in vacation: Per Lush and Lopes, JJ., 24th September, 1877. Sed quære. Rules 181, 182.

181. All applications within the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers which require to be immediately or promptly heard during Long Vacation shall be heard by one of the following officers, viz., the Master in Ordinary, the Master in Chambers, and the Registrars, who shall arrange among themselves before the commencement of each Long Vacation on what days and for what period each shall act; and in the absence of such arrangement the duty shall devolve upon them in rotation, beginning with the junior officer in order of appointment, and they shall sit at least one day in each week. C.R. 115. Chambers during long vacation.

182. The præcipe for any cheque to be issued during the Long Vacation shall be lodged in the Accountant's Office on or before the 20th day of July, unless otherwise directed by a Judge. C.R. 413 and 1257. Vacation.

CHAPTER X.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

(i) Effect of Non-compliance and Errors.

Amendment of defects or errors.

183. A proceeding shall not be defeated by any formal objection, but all necessary amendments shall be made, upon proper terms as to costs and otherwise, to secure the advancement of justice, the determining the real matter in dispute, and the giving of judgment according to the very right and justice of the case. C.R. 309 and 312.

See Eng. (1883) R. 1037.

This Rule is in regard to amendment of defects and errors generally, and is supplemental to Rule 137, respecting amendment of pleadings, and Rule 521, respecting clerical errors and slips.

Under The Administration of Justice Act, 1873 (36 Vict. c. 8), it was held that if the Court comes to the conclusion that an amendment is "necessary for the advancement of justice, the prevention and redress of fraud, the determination of the rights and interests of the respective parties, and of the real question in controversy between them, and best calculated to secure the giving of judgment according to the very right and justice of the case," the granting or refusing of the amendment ceases to be a matter of discretion: Peterkin v. McFarlane, 4 Ont. App. 45; Gilleland v. Wadsworth, 1 Ont. App. 82; Muir v. Guinane, 10 O. L. R. 370.

The Court is required by this Rule to allow any amendment which is "necessary for the determining the real matter in dispute, and the giving of judgment according to the very right and justice of the case" and "justice," includes justice to both parties.

In Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. at p. 710, Bowen, L.J., said:—"I know of no kind of error or mistake which, if not fraudulent or intended to over-reach, the Court ought not to correct, if it can be done without injustice to the other party . . . Courts do not exist for the sake of discipline, but for the sake of deciding matters in controversy, and I do not regard such an amendment as a matter of favour or of grace. . . . It seems to me that as soon as it appears that the way in which a party has framed his case will not lead to the decision of the real matter in controversy, it is as much a matter of right on his part to have it corrected, if it can be done without injustice, as anything else in the case is a matter of right. . . . The question seems to me to be this, can you by the imposition of any terms place the other side in as good a position for the purpose of having the question of right determined as they were in at the time when the mistake of judgment was committed? It does not seem to me material to consider whether the mistake of judgment was accidental or not, if not intended to over-reach." The other L.JJ. do not seem to have agreed with these observations so far as they include a mistake of judgment, and they refused leave to amend on the ground that the party had deliberately chosen a course inconsistent with that afterwards sought to be taken by amendment; but see Ecklin v. Little, 34 Sol. Jour. 546; see also Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 774; Collette v. Goode, 7 Ch. D. at p. 847; Laird v. Briggs, 19 Ch. D. 22, 29. Rule 183.

In Ontario it has been held that an amendment may be allowed under this Rule at any stage of the proceedings before final judgment, wherever any prejudice it may occasion to the opposite party can be compensated by costs: Williams v. Leonard, 16 P. R. 544; 17 P. R. 73; Siven v. Temiskaming Mining Co., 2 O. W. N. 129.

Under this Rule, a plaintiff who had by his pleading accepted money paid into Court by the defendant, was allowed to amend by withdrawing the acceptance and substituting a refusal to accept; and where he had claimed too little, he was allowed to increase his claim by amendment: Chevalier v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 219.

Amendment of Writs of Summons:— Amendment of writ.

An order to amend has been held to be necessary, even though the writ has not been served: per Lush, J., Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 32; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 34; and this decision has been followed by Mr. Dalton in Chambers: see Globe, 6th Oct., 1881, and (H. & L. Forms, No. 467); see contra under the former practice. Worthington v. Boulton, 6 P. R. 68.

When a statement of claim has been delivered, containing an extension of the claim made by the writ, an amendment of the indorsement on the writ seems to be unnecessary: Large v. Large, W. N. 1877, 98; Johnson v. Polmer, 4 C. P. D. 262; and now Rule 109 (2) requires such a statement of claim to be personnlly served where the defendant has not appeared. See under the previous practice: Conybeare v. Lewis, W. N. 1881, 31; 44 L. T. 242; 29 W. R. 391; Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 24 W. R. 317.

An action may, by amendment of the writ and statement of claim, be turned into an information without prejudice to a pending motion in the action, the necessary sanction of the Attorney-General being obtained: Coldwell v. Pogham Harbour Reclamation Company, 2 Ch. D. 221.

An amendment of the indorsement on the writ, by increasing the amount claimed, was allowed after verdict: The Dictator, 1892, P. 64; 66 L. T. 863; and see Wyatt v. Roshcrville, 2 T. L. R. 282; Chottel v. Daily Mail, 18 T. L. R. 165; and other cases in notes to Rule 321, p. 369.

A writ of summons served out of Ontario may like any other writ be amended, but, it would seem, not so as to introduce any claim in respect of which service out of Ontario would not be allowed under Rule 25: see Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 346.

Where a writ has been amended, the amended writ must be served, if the writ had been served and the time for appearance had elapsed, and the defendant has not appeared, it would seem that the service may be in the manner mentioned in Rule 200, at least in a case where no new claim, but only an amplification of the original one, is made: Re Hartley, 1891, 2 Ch. 121; 64 L. T. 786; Jamaica Ry. Co. v. Colonial Bank, 1905, 1 Ch. 677; 92 L. T. 548; there is no hard and

Rule 183. fast rule that an amended writ must be served personally on a defendant who has not appeared: Ib.; or the writ may he served in the same way as the original was served: The Cassiopeia, 4 P. D. 188 (where a new claim was introduced); Guess v. Perry, 12 P. R. 460 (where a claim for damages was struck out by amendment); see also Bryans v. Hughes, 14 L. R. Ir. 62. Under Rule 109 (2) personal service is necessary if the amendment has been a substantial one; and see Jamaica Ry. v. Col. Bank, supro, p. 643. If the defendant has appeared it would seem to be sufficient to serve his solicitor with the amended writ; but see Rules 16 and 199.

Where a statement of claim has been delivered and it is amended, it will not in general be necessary to amend and re-serve the writ. It will be sufficient to serve the amended pleading: see Rules 127 and 132, and notes.

Where the writ of summons was amended by correcting a clerical error in the indorsement after a statement of claim had been filed, it was held that the statement of claim should have been refiled, though it required no amendment, and a motion for judgment was refused: Southall v. Dunsdon, 96 L. T. 109.

Irregularities amended.

Irregularities in a writ of summons may be amended either on motion by the plaintiff, or leave to amend may be granted where the defendant moves to set aside the writ. The following irregularities have been allowed to be amended:—A writ signed by a Process Clerk issued after the appointment of his successor: Stevenson v. Williams, 7 P. R. 358; a writ issued without the signature of the proper officer: Labadie v. Darling, 7 P. R. 355; a writ tested in the name of a retired Chief Justice after the appointment of his successor had been gazetted, but before he had taken the oath: Nelson v. Roy, 3 P. R. 226; and a writ tested in the name of a Lord Chancellor after his resignation and the appointment of his successor: Pleasants v. East Derehom, etc., 47 L. T. 439; a writ issued in the name of a deceased sovereign: Bank of Homilton v. Boldwin, 28 O. L. R. 175; a mistake in the date of the teste as "eighty" for "eighty-two": Wesson v. Stalker, 48 L. T. 444. But the absence from the Province of the Judge in whose name writs are tested does not render it improper to teste a writ in his name: Brett v. Smith, 1 P. R. 309.

An amendment was not allowed where it would defeat the Ststute of Limitations: Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722; S. C. 88 L. T. Jour. 253, in appeal; but see Challinor v. Roder, infra, p. 645.

The plaintiff will have to pay the costs of an amendment of the writ.

Amendments of Pleadings.—See notes to Rules 127-138.

Amendments as to parties.

Amendments Respecting the Parties are treated of in Rules 130, 134, 183.

Amendments which require the addition of parties as well as the restatement of allegations in pleadings are made by the combined action of Rules 134, 137, 183; Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 772; Scear v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121.

Misnomer.

Where a person was intended to be sued as an executor, but by mistake was misnamed in the writ, an amendment was allowed substituting the true name of the defendant intended to be sued, notwithstanding that in the meantime the Statute of Limitations would.

but for such amendment, have been a defence to the action against such party: Challinor v. Roder, 1 T. L. R. 527. Rule 184.

Amendment after Judgment.—The writ of summons and subsequent proceedings may, in a proper case, be amended after judgment to correct some defect or error: Clarke v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54; see Wilgress v. Crawford, Ib. 658; but the judgment in such case must be vacated and proceedings taken afresh from the point at which the defect occurred; 15 P. R. 54; and see formerly Barrett v. Gardner, 1 Chy. Ch. 344; Laurason v. Buckley, 2 Chy. Ch. 334; Bank of Montreal v. Power, 2 Chy. Ch. 47; and any such amendment will probably be only of defects and errors, not of pleadings or as to parties necessitating relitigation: see Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 774. Thus where the judgment was in favour of the defendant, an amendment reconstituting the suit by adding the Attorney-General, and turning the action into an information and action, was refused: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; and see Durham v. Robertson, supra.

An amendment made affecting a person not a party, was, at his instance, rescinded: Glass v. Comeron, 9 Ont. 712.

Amendment of Slips, etc.—As to the correction of slips, omissions or clerical errors, generally: see Rule 521; and as to clerical errors in reports and certificates of Masters: see notes to Rule 502.

A notice of motion which did not show any interest in the relator as required by The Municipal Act, 1913 (R. S. O. c. 192), s. 163, was held amendable: Reg. ex. rel.. Percy v. Worth, 23 Ont. 688.

A notice of motion in a quo warranto proceeding in which there was a discrepancy between the day of the week and the day of the month mentioned as that on which it was returnable, was amended in accordance with a notice subsequently given stating the day on which the motion would be brought on: Rex ex rel. Roberts v. Ponsford, 3 O. L. R. 410.

Where judgment had been pronounced for sale of property as described in a claim, but afterwards it was discovered to have been mis-described, the claim was by consent of all parties amended, and the judgment post-dated, so as to appear to have been made after the amendment: Winkley v. Winkley, 44 L. T. 572; 29 W. R. 628. In general, however, an order ought not to bear a fictitious date: Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 773.

184. Non-compliance with the Rules shall not render the writ or any act or proceeding void, but the same may be set aside, either wholly or in part, as irregular, or may be amended, or otherwise dealt with, as may seem just.

This Rule is based on C. R. 310. See notes to preceding Rule.

Proceedings not Curable.—Service of a writ of summons instead of a notice, on a foreigner abroad (see Rule 29) is a nullity: Hewitson v. Fobre, 21 Q. B. D. 6: and service of a writ without shewing the original when demanded: Phillipson v. Emanuel, 56 L. T. 858, and service on a wrong person, whether void or only irregularities, have been held to be not remediable. The service will be set aside: Ib.; Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 564. Proceedings not curable.

As to the difference between an irregularity and a nullity: see further Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15.

"If unwarranted by any enactment or Rule, it (the joinder in one action of several plaintiffs having different causes of action) is in my opinion more than an irregularity": per Lord Herschell, in Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 1894, A. C. 501.

A writ purporting to be issued out of the District Court of Thunder Bay and Rainy River, after the district of Rainy River had been created a separate provisional judicial district, was held to be a nullity and not curable by amendment: Hewgill v. Chadwick, 18 P. R. 359.

A judgment purporting to be signed under Rule 37, but not properly so, the writ not having been specially indorsed, is a nullity: Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15; Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175.

A judgment irregularly signed is not a matter which can be remedied under this Rule: Anlaby v. Pretorius, 20 Q. B. D. 764; the defendant has a right to have it set aside: Ib.; Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443; Muir v. Jenks, 1913, 2 K. B. 412; there, however, the plaintiff refused to amend.

Defects in proceedings taken under an Act of Parliament cannot be overlooked: see Lawson v. Can. Farmers, etc., 9 P. R. 309; Re Ostrom and Sidney, 15 Ont. App. 372; Smith v. Baker, 2 H. & M. 500.

See also Ferrand v. Mayor of Bradford, 8 D. M. & G. 93.

Proceedings curable.

Irregularities Curable.—Where short notice of motion had been irregularly given, but the opposite party had not been injured by the irregularity, the Court exercised its discretion under this Rule, disregarded the irregularity, and heard the motion: Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. D. 504; see also Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180; Re Coulton, 34 Ch. D. 22. In Re McRae, 25 Ch. D. 19, it was held that objection to a short notice of an appeal was waived by appearing upon it.

An irregularity may be condoned, in the discretion of the Court, even on a motion for attachment: Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172; Litchfield v. Jones, 25 Ch. D. 64; see Re Pilcher, Pilcher v. Hinds, 11 Ch. D. 905; Re Evans, 1893, 1 Ch. 252; 68 L. T. 271. It was said in Taylor v. Roe, 68 L. T. 213, that the Court will not condone a direct non-compliance with the Rules upon an application affecting the liberty of the subject; but see Rendell v. Grundy, 1895, 1 Q. B. 16, 21.

The following irregularities have not been allowed to prevail to defeat a proceeding: The non-service of affidavits with notice of motion to set aside an award: Re Wyggeston Hospital v. Stevenson, 33 W. R. 551; or with a notice of motion for attachment (see Eng. (1883) R. 699): Rendell v. Grundy, supra; or with notice of motion under The Overholding Tenants Act: Re Dewar & Dumas, 8 O. L. R. 141; service of a writ issued in the name of a deceased Sovereign: Bank of Hamilton v. Baldwin, 28 O. L. R. 175; the service of a writ out of the jurisdiction without the indorsement given in the N. B. (Form 2), and issued upon an order granted without an affidavit being filed under Rule 26; Dickson v. Law, 1895, 2 Ch. 62; service of a writ omitting the address of plaintiff's solicitor: Hoerler v. Hanover Coout-chouc, etc., 10 T. L. R. 22, 103; date of service not indorsed under Rule 17: Steers v. Rogers, 7 T. L. R. 183: Foat v. Bossett, W. N. 1888, 255; service of pstition instead of summons: Re Bethlehem and Bridewell Hospitols, 30 Ch. D. 541; Re Stofford's Charity, 57 L. T. 846. Rule 185.

See Taylor v. Delancy, 3 O. L. R. 380, supra, p. 136.

Waiver.—Irregularities may bs waived by appearance: Re McRae, 25 Ch. D. 19; see also notss to Rule 46; but not necessarily where ths liberty of tbs subject is affectsd: Monder v. Falcke, 1891, 3 Cb. 488; Taylor v. Roe, 68 L. T. 213; Rendell v. Grundy, 1895, 1 Q. B. 16, 21; nor whers tbe appearance is merely to take the objection to the regularity of tbe proceedings: see Mander v. Folcke, 1391, 3 Ch. 488; Firth v. De las Rivas, 1893, 1 Q. B. 768; 69 L. T. 383.

See also notes to Rules 185 and 219.

A nullity cannot be waived by any act of tbs party against wbom it bas been taken, nor by lapse of time: Hoffman v. Creror, 18 P. R. 473, 19 P. R. 15; Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175.

135. An application to set aside any proceeding for irregularity shall be made within a reasonable time, and shall not be allowed if the party applying has taken a fresh step after knowledge of the irregularity. C.R. 311. Irregularity, motion to set aside proceedings for to be made promptly.

Ths same in effect as Eng. (1883) R. 1038.

If an objection can be waived, it amounts to an irregularity, if not, it is a nullity: Bonk of Upper Conoda v. Van Voorish, 4 U. C. L. J. 232. The tendency of the cases is to consider defects as irregularities, ratber tban nullities: Herr v. Douglos, 4 P. R. 102; Bank of Homilton v. Boldwin, 28 O. L. R. 175. A strangsr cannot set asids proceedings for irregularity: Perrin v. Bowes, 5 U. C. L. J. 138; Balfour v. Ellison, 8 U. C. L. J. 330; McKenzie v. Harris, 10 U. C. L. J. 213; Nicholls v. Nicholls, 3 P. R. 201; see, bowsver, Bonisteil v. McMaster, 6 O. S. 32; unless they are, in effect, fraudulent: McDonald v. Boice, 12 Gr. 48; and ses Martin v. Boulanger, 8 App. Cas. 269. Ses also notes to Rule 184.

Ths notics of motion must specify ths irregularity: Rule 219; George v. Green, 14 O. L. R. 578; 42 S. C. R. 219.

A writ joining causes of action which under former C. R. 341 (now abrogated), could not be joined without leave, was beld to be sn irregularity, and entering an appearance to sucb a writ was a "fresh step," witbin tbis Rule; and a defendant wbo appeared, instead of spplying to striks out tbe irregularity, was beld not to be entitled to insist upon it: Mulckern v. Doercks, 51 L. T. 429; 53 L. J. Q. B. 526; Re Derbon, 36 W. R. 667; see, however, Hunt v. Worsfold, 1896, 2 Ch. 224; 74 L. T. 456, wbere North, J., refused to follow Mulckern v. Doercks, supro, considering it to bave been overruled by Smurthwaite v. Honnoy, 1894, A. C. 494; 71 L. T. 457.

See also Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 375, and Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249, in notes to Rule 24, p. 349; and Tozier v. Hawkins, 15 Q. B. D. 650.

An order setting aside proceedings must be served promptly, or it will he deemed to bave heen abandoned: Molsons Bonk v. Dillobaugh, 13 P. R. 313.

Rules 186 186.

But where a Divisional Court sets aside the judgment at the trial, and orders a new trial, delay in issuing the order cannot be set up as a waiver by either party: Kelly v. Wade, 14 P. R. 66. There is a distinction in this respect between interlocutory orders, and judgments or orders going to the merits of the action: Ib.: see also Re Leslie, 23 Ont. 143.

Where, on the return of a motion, an enlargement is granted for the purpose of remedying an objection to the regularity of the proceedings, and the motion is afterwards heard and disposed of on the merits, the objection to the irregularity of the proceedings is not open on appeal: Rendell v. Grundy, 1895, 1 Q. B. 16.

Amendment at trial.

186. Where an amendment is directed or allowed at the trial, it shall not be necessary to issue an order therefor. The amendment, unless otherwise directed, shall be at once made on the record. C.R. 314 and 1445.

The reference to C. R. 1445 is probably intended to refer to R. 1445 of 1 Jan., 1896, on which C. R. 314 was partly based.

Where a plaintiff is allowed to amend at the trial by setting up a new case, the defendant is ex debito justitiæ, also entitled to put in a defence thereto: Elmsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 525.

Where an amendment is directed under this Rule the Clerk attending the sittings of the Court should make the amendment on the record at the trial: Rule 187 does not apply to such an amendment.

The party on whose application the amendment is allowed should see that it is actually made. Where a judgment was pronounced on the assumption that an amendment had been in fact made, and it was not, an appeal from the judgment was dismissed without costs because the amendment had not been actually made: Hyams v. King, 1908, 2 K. B. 696.

No physical alteration of records.

187. Where an amendment of any record of the Court or document filed, other than a pleading, is directed, no physical alteration of the record or document shall be made, but a note shall be made, in the margin or other convenient place, of the amendment directed. C.R. 315.

This Rule adopts the practice laid down in Fox v. Bearblock, 45 L. T. 469; 46 L. T. 145. It applies more particularly to judgments and orders in which, if physical alterations were made in the books of the Court, the entries might in the event of the amendment being struck out, and restored, on successive appeals, leave the records of the Court more or less illegible. Under this order the amending order is entered at length and a note of it inserted in the entry of the judgment or order amended. The judgment or order issued, which is amended, should be similarly dealt with, and not otherwise altered.

(ii) Form of Documents, Size of Paper, etc.

Pleadings, etc., how to be printed or written.

188.—(1) All pleadings, affidavits, judgments, orders and other documents shall be printed, typewritten, or written in a clear and legible manner, with a margin upon the left hand side, upon foolscap paper of good quality. C.R. 319, amended. Rules 189, 190.

(2) When documents are printed, pica type, leaded, shall be used.

As to printing pleadings: see Rule 139.

189. No notice shall he given orally. C.R. 316. Notices to be written or printed.

A verbal notice to produce is insufficient: Provincial Ins. Co. v. Shaw, 19 U. C. Q. B. 537.

190.—(1) In all proceedings in an action, except pleadings, and judgments, and reports, the following short style of cause shall he sufficient: Short style of cause.

"Between John Smith and others,—Plaintiffs, and

Richard Roe and others,—Defendants."

(2) In case of proceedings which it has been the practice to entitle more shortly thus: "Smith v. Roe," such practice shall continue. Con. Rule 451.

(3) In proceedings under any particular Act (e.g. the Mechanics' Lien Act), the style of cause shall be "In the matter of—(naming the statute), "Between A.B., Plaintiff, and C.D., Defendant" (or "A.B., Applicant" and "C.D., Respondent"). C.R. 320 and 1235.

The reference to C. R. 451 at the end of clause (2) refers to the Rule on which C. R. 320 was based. C. R. 451 is now Rule 339.

In all pleadings, judgments and reports, the full style of the action or matter is to be set out: in other proceedings, including affidavits, interlocutory orders, notices of trial, to produce, to admit, notices of motion, and of appeal, the shortened style first given in the Rule may be used. Notwithstanding this Rule all vesting orders should be entitled in the full style of cause, or a difficulty may arise in making title thereunder.

The shorter title, e.g., Smith v. Roe, is usually confined to appointments for settling minutes of judgments or orders, Master's warrants, notices of taxation, or other notices and appointments not already mentioned, which are required to be taken out or served in the progress of a cause. There is, however, no authority for styling affidavits in this way.

Where an action is dismissed as against one of several defendants, it would seem that it is not irregular thereafter to leave that defendant's name out of the title of the action: see Prince Albert v. Strange, 2 D. G. & Sm. at p. 709.

Rules 191, 192.

(iii) Copies and Service of Papers.

Service of office-copies of affidavits and other proceedings dispensed with in certain cases.

191. Where service of affidavits and other documents is required, true copies, legibly written, typewritten, or printed, are to be served. C.R. 322.

An "office copy" of a document is a copy authenticated by the proper officer, usually the one in whose custody the original record of the proceedings is deposited. Under Rule 192, office copies of judgments and orders are to be certified by the officer in whose office the same are entered. Office copies of other proceedings should be certified by the officer in whose office they are filed. Office copies of judgments are expressly required to be served in certain cases: see Rules 87 and 404; and where according to the former practice an office copy of a decree, or order, was required to be served, in like cases an office copy of the judgment, or order, would seem to be necessary under the present practice, except where a different practice is expressly provided.

Under the former Chancery practice, the first proceeding in the cause served upon a defendant was usually required to be an office copy; e.g., bills, or decrees, or orders served on parties added in the Master's office, and orders of revivor. But under the present practice, it would seem sufficient to serve a plain copy of an order adding parties upon a change of interest, instead of an office copy as formerly: see Rule 302.

As to what is "a true copy:" see Walker v. Niles, 18 Gr. 213; Sharp v. McHenry, 38 Ch. D. 427.

Habeas Corpus.—A writ of habeas corpus ad subjiciendum, can only be properly served by delivering the original writ to the person to whom it is addressed: Reg. v. Rowe, 71 L. T. 578. It must be signed by the Judge who grants it, and notice must also be served giving the person to whom the writ is addressed, notice of the consequences of failure to obey it: Re Hallock, 30 C. L. J. 770. See 15 C. L. T. 9.

Orders.—Where an order directs the doing of an act within a limited time, the order should be served on the person required to obey it before the limited time has expired, and in time to give him a reasonable opportunity to comply with its terms. Where an order was not so served a motion to commit for disobedience was refused: Berry v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14. Where the limited time expires without service, it will not be necessary to apply for an order limiting a further time, before the order can be enforced: see Rule 176.

Office copies.

192. Where an office copy of an order or judgment is directed to be served it shall be certified by the officer in whose office the order or judgment is entered. C.R. 323.

An office copy is made by comparing it with the original or with the entry thereof in the judgment book, marking it "examined" (appending the signature of the officer), and stamping it with the seal of the Court or of the officer who certifies it.

Copies of documents to be demanded in writing.

193. A party requiring a copy of any affidavit, exhibit, or document not directed to be served shall serve a demand for the same and a copy shall be served with all convenient speed. C.R. 324 and 325.

Pleadings are required to be served on all parties concerned therewith without a demand: Rule 140.

An irregularity in the indorsement of a pleading was formerly waived by demanding a copy of it, and was ordered to be amended without costs: Bennett v. O'Meara, 2 Chy. Ch. 167.

This Rule is imperative, and the Court will enforce compliance with it: Totten v. Macintyre, 2 Chy. Ch. 80; Burrows v. Hainey, 2 Chy. Ch. 186. Formarly the costs of furnishing copies were part of the costs of the cause, or application, and payment of the costs of the copies could not be required as a condition of furnishing them. Whether the Rules are intended to make any change in this respect is not very clear: see Rule 194.

Under tha Rules as now framed, it would seem that where copies of documents aro demanded, if payment therefor is required as a condition precedent to delivery, an application is necessary under the following Rule:

Copies of documents in possession of another party.

194. A party entitled to copies of or extracts from. any document in possession of another party, may be directed to pay for such copy at the rate of 10 cents per folio, if the request for such copy is deemed unreasonable, or the solicitor of the party producing the document shall be at liberty to give notice that the party requiring such copy is at liberty at some reasonable time and place to himself make it, in which case the party producing shall not be entitled to any fee in respect thereof. C.R. 326, amended.

In practice, the costs of furnishing copies of affidavits on a motion have been regarded as part of the costs of the motion; and it has not been usual to demand payment for copies so demanded as a condition of furnishing them.

But a solicitor desiring copies of documents produced for inspection by the opposite party, was held to be entitled to make the copies himself, without first giving the opposite solicitor an opportunity to make them: Ormerod v. St. George's Iron Works, 1905, 1 Ch. 505, 92 L. T. 541.

Semble, that copies of documents may by leave of the Court be taken by photography: Lewis v. Londesborough, 1893, 2 Q. B. 191; 69 L. T. 353.

If payment for copies demanded is required, an application under this Rule is necessary.

The former C. R. 321 provided that "a folio shall be 100 words": although that provision has not been included in the present Rules, it is presumed that no change has been made. A folio under the Eng. Rules is 72 words: Ord. LXV., r. 27 (14).

Rules 195-197.

Solicitors' and agents' book.

195. A book to be called "The Toronto Solicitors' and Agents' Book," shall be kept in the Central Office to be there inspected by any party or solicitor or his clerk without fee; and every solicitor having an office or carrying on his business within the said city, shall cause to be entered in such book (in alphabetical order) his name and place of business or some other proper place within the city where he may be served, and as often as any such solicitor changes his place of business or the place where he may be so served as aforesaid, he shall cause to be made the like entry thereof in the said book. C.R. 90.

The entries required to be made under this Rule are compulsory. Essery v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 13 P. R. 219.

For the consequences of not complying with this Rule: see Rule 199 (3).

Entry of Toronto Solicitors as agents.

196. Every other practising solicitor shall cause to be entered in the said book (in alphabetical order) his name and place of business, and also in an opposite column the name of some solicitor having an office and carrying on business in the city of Toronto as his agent. C.R. 91.

The entry of a Toronto agent by solicitors practising out of Toronto is compulsory: Essery v. G. T. Ry. Co., supra. See also Rule 199.

Solicitors' and agents' book in County Towns.

197. Every Deputy or Local Registrar shall keep in his office a book to be called "The County Solicitors' and Agents' Book," in which each solicitor residing within the County elsewhere than in the County Town, and not having an office there, shall specify the name of an agent, being a solicitor of the Supreme Court, and having an office in such County Town, as his agent with respect to business carried on in the local offices in the said town. C.R. 92.

The Deputy Clerk of the Crown is not mentioned in the Rule, and he is therefore not authorized to keep the book referred to in the Rule.

The entry of the name of an agent in the books required to be kept under C. R. 92 was optional: Essery v. G. T. Ry. Co., supra; but under this Rule it would seem to be compulsory. If the entry is made, services may be effected accordingly: see Rule 199; but service on an agent is not good service on the principal, unless the agent is booked as agent under this Rule: Robinson v. Robinson, 13 P. R. 51. Semble, if no entry is made service may be effected as provided in Rule 199 (3).

In England a town and a country firm, having certain partners in common, are treated as the same firm, and not as principals and agents: Re Borough Com. & Bdg. Soc., 1894, 1 Ch. 289.

There is also to be kept by the Deputy Clerks of the Crown at Ottawa and London a "Consent Register" as provided by Rule 243. Rules 198, 198.

198. Admissions and acceptances of the service of an order, notice of motion or other paper, upon the opposite solicitor, need not be verified by affidavit. C.R. 328. Solicitor's acceptance need not be verified.

See Rules 15, 36, as to acceptance of service of writs of summons.

Under Rule 36 acceptance of service of writs of summons, and undertakings to appear, are required to be verified by affidavit in order to be used for signing a judgment by default; but all other acceptances and admissions of service may under this Rule be received and acted on, without verification.

In practice the signature of solicitors to consents, undertakings, admissions, letters, and other documents in an action when used before the Court do not usually need verification, but, unless disputed, are assumed to have been duly signed by the solicitor or firm of solicitors by whom they purport to be signed; and any attempt to impose on the Court by a false or unauthorized signature of a solicitor would probably be regarded as a contempt of Court.

199.—(1) Documents which do not require personal service shall be served upon the solicitor of the party to be served or his agent entered in the Toronto or County "Solicitors' and Agents' Book." Agent when to be served.

(2) Such service may be made by leaving the document to be served with any clerk in the solicitor's office.

(3) Where a solicitor has not caused such entry to be made, the posting up of a copy of any document in the office in which the proceedings are being carried on is to be deemed sufficient service. C.R. 329.

By Rule 195, it is imperative upon every solicitor residing in Toronto to enter his name and address in the Solicitors' and Agents' Book; and it is also imperative on every solicitor not residing in Toronto to appoint an agent in Toronto, and have his name entered as such agent in the Solicitors' and Agents' Book kept at Osgoode Hall; and under Rule 197 it is also necessary for every solicitor to have a booked agent in every county town. If a solicitor does enter an agent's name in the books kept in a county town where proceedings are being carried on, then service can be effected on such agent, but if he does not, then service can be effected by serving the solicitor himself, or by posting up a copy of the document required to be served in the office where the proceedings are being carried on under cl. (3) of this Rule. Service can only be effected on a solicitor by posting up copies, when there is no entry of an agent in the books at the place where the proceedings are being carried on: see Essery v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 13 P. R. 221.

Service of papers on a solicitor as agent for another solicitor is not good, unless the solicitor served is the booked agent of the other, even though he has acted as agent in the same suit: Robinson v. Robinson, 13 P. R. 51.

This Rule only applies to the service of documents, which do not require personal service: see Rule 16 as to writs of summons. Proceedings affecting the liberty of the person, unless in cases where service on a solicitor is expressly authorized, usually require personal service, and also, as a rule, initiatory proceedings in a cause or matter.

A solicitor cannot, as agent for one principal, serve himself as agent for another principal: Horseman v. Coulson, 6 P. R. 263; Ontario Bank v. Fisher, 4 P. R. 22.

Service on the clerk of a solicitor elsewhere than at the office of the solicitor, is good only from the time it reaches the solicitor: Hermann v. Mandarin, etc., 18 P. R. 34.

Where parties have solicitors, papers and documents must in the absence of special arrangement be served by the party's solicitor: Yeatman v. Snow, 28 W. R. 574, and served either upon the solicitors, or their agents under this Rule: Omnium Securities v. Ellis, 18 C. L. J. 143; 2 C. L. T. 216; see Kellewell v. Watson, 52 L. J. Chy. 818, where a notice served by a new solicitor before an order changing the solicitor had been obtained was held good, no one being misled.

Special arrangement is sometimes made between solicitors for service of papers upon one another through the post office, and in such case a question may arise as to whether service is to count from the date of mailing, or the date of receipt. This will be determined, according to the agreement, if any, between them, or if there be no special agreement on this point the date of receipt will be the date of service as it is the general practice to admit service as of the day of receipt: McDonough v. Alison, 9 P. R. 4.

Service of solicitor on record good though he have ceased to act.

Until an order has been made and served, changing the solicitor of any party to an action, or authorizing such party to sue, or defend, in person, service on the solicitor originally named is sufficient, even though such solicitor have ceased to act for such party: see Rule 389; Davidson v. Leslie, 9 Beav. 104; Wright v. King, 9 Beav. 161; and see Newton v. Thompson, 16 Jur. 1008; De la Pole v. Dick, 29 Ch. D. 351; 52 L. T. 457; Muir v. Guinane, 9 O. L. R. 324; but not after the proceedings for which the solicitor had originally authority to act have come to an end, so that in law his authority has ceased: Reg. v. JJ. of Oxfordshire, 1893, 2 Q. B. 149; 69 L. T. 368; Jones v. Ricknell, 20 Q. B. D. 164; Re Gray, Gray v. Coles, 65 L. T. 743. Where a solicitor had absconded, a notice of motion left at his unoccupied place of business was held properly served: Newton v. Thompson, 22 L. J. Chy. 10; and see Re Templeman, 20 Beav. 574; Re Wisewold, 16 Beav. 357; Re Catlin, 18 Beav. 508; Re Dufaur, 16 Beav. 1; Re Thompson, 20 Beav. 545; Wilson v. Emmett, 19 Beav. 232; Ex parte Belton, 25 Beav. 368; Re Wolton 4 K. & J. 78; and see Rule 201.

For the proceedings on the death of a solicitor to compel the appointment of another: see Dean v. Lethbridge, 26 Beav. 397, and Rule 392 post.

Service, where no address for service given.

200.—(1) Where a party sues or defends in person and no address for service of such party is given, or where a party has ceased to have a solicitor, or where a defendant served with a writ of summons or notice in lieu thereof has not appeared thereto, all documents not requiring personal service shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be deemed to be sufficiently served by posting up a copy in the office in which the proceedings are being carried on. Rule 200.

(2) If an address for service is given, then all documents shall be sufficiently served upon such party if left for him at such address. C.R. 330.

Defendant who has not Appeared.—A defendant who does not appear is not entitled to notice of further proceedings, unless specially so provided by any Rule, or by any special order of the Court: see Rule 35, and notes. In the cases where it is by Rule or order so provided that such a defendant is to be served with notice, or in any case where the plaintiff desires to serve such a defendant, service may be effected by posting up under this Rule, if no address for service has been given, unless personal service is made necessary by any Rule or order, or the practice of the Court; but proof of service of the writ of summons must be first filed: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145; Rule 36.

A notice of motion for judgment is a document which may be delivered by posting under this Rule: Dymond v. Croft, 3 Ch. D. 512; Morton v. Miller, Ib. 516; Parsons v. Harris, 6 Ch. D 694; Burritt v. Murdock, 9 P. R. 191; Williams v. Cardwell, 25 W. R. 646, not following Cook v. Dey, W. N. 1876, 122; so a notice of assessment of damages under Rule 247; O'Connor v. Hogan, 10 L. R. Ir. 262; a writ of summons after amendment; Re Hartley, 1891, 2 Ch. 121; 64 L. T. 786; an order to continue proceedings under Rule 301; Jackson v. Kilham, W. N. 1891, 171; a notice of motion for an attachment: Re Morris, 44 Ch. D. 151; Re Evans, 1893, 1 Ch. 252; but semble, only where personal service cannot be effected: Re Bossett, 1894, 3 Ch. 179, because proceedings whereby the liberty of the person is intended to be affected: e.g., proceedings upon which to found an application for an attachment, are usually required to be personally served on the party, even though he have appeared, or sued, by a solicitor. Applications to commit for non-production of documents are, however, an exception to this rule: see Rule 353.

The Rule applies where a person not originally a party is made a defendant to a counter-claim and fails to appear: Verney v. Thomas, 58 L. T. 20.

The omission of a defendant's address, or address for service when necessary, in an appearance by a defendant in person, is expressly provided for by Rule 47.

Where several parties are served with a document under this Rule, a copy must be posted up for each. The posting of one copy only of a statement of claim and notice of motion for judgment for two defendants was held not to be service on either: Haacke v. Ward, 17 P. R. 520.

The Rule only applies to proceedings before judgment, proceedings after judgment requiring to be served on a non-appearing defendant cannot be served in the manner described by this Rule. Thus a notice of motion for a receiver by way of equitable execution cannot be served in the manner mentioned in this Rule, but must be served personally or, by leave, substitutionally: Tilling v. Blythe, 1899, 1 Q. B. 557.

As to service of proceedings in the Master's Office, upon a non-appearing defendant: see Rule 403.

Service where solicitor's office closed or no one in.

201. Where at the time of attendance to serve any document, the office of the solicitor for the party upon whom the service is sought to be made is closed or no one is in attendance therein for receiving documents served, service of the document may be effected by mailing the same, at any time during the same day, addressed to the solicitor, at his office, by registered post, and the service shall be deemed to have been effected at the time of the attendance for that purpose at the office of the solicitor. C.R. 331.

This Rule was passed to meet the case of Raphael v. Davis (before Mr. Cartwright, M.C., 15th January, 1897).

It is presumed that service may be effected in the manner mentioned in this Rule, after an attendance to serve after 2 p.m. on Saturday, or after 4 p.m. on other days, but, as the service will only count as of the next day, it will be better to serve at the office on the next day: see Rule 204.

Service of proceedings may be made on solicitor of execution creditor.

202. Service upon an execution creditor may be effected by serving the solicitor issuing the execution. C.R. 332, amended.

C. R. 332 was restricted to the service of execution creditors in actions for foreclosure, or sale, to enforce a charge on real property. The present Rule is unlimited, and applies to all cases where an execution creditor is required to be served.

It is a matter of some doubt how far a solicitor's retainer continues after judgment has been recovered: see 79 L. T. Jour. 208; De la Pole v. Dick, 29 Ch. D. 351; 52 L. T. 457; James v. Ricknell, 20 Q. B. D. 164; 58 L. T. 278; and Reg. v. JJ. of Oxfordshire, 1883, 2 Q. B. 149; Re A Debtor, 1914, 2 K. B. 758.

The question has recently received consideration in Millar v. Kanady, 5 O. L. R. 412, 418, where it was held that the retainer of a solicitor to bring or defend an action does not terminate on the giving of a judgment so long as anything remains to be done by the solicitor for the client's protection, e.g., taxation of the opposite party's costs, and preparing any bill of his client's costs to be set off under the judgment.

Whether the retainer continues or not, this Rule makes the service of the solicitor who has issued the execution sufficient service on the client for whom he acted.

Rules 203, 204.

203. It shall not be necessary to regular service that the original document shall be shown, unless sight thereof is demanded. C.R. 333.

Original order need not be shown unless demanded.

C. R. 333 made an exception in cases of arrest or attachment, but this exception has not been continued.

Unless it is demanded, it is not necessary that the original order to examine a judgment debtor should be shown to him when serving him with a copy of it, in order to found an application for a ca. sa., in the event of his disobeying it: Imperial Bank v. Lickey, 8 P. R. 246.

It is not a ground for setting aside an execution that the order on which it issued had not been previously served: Cranston v. Blair, 15 P. R. 167; and see Hopton v. Robertson, 23 Q. B. D. 128.

As to service of orders, and of a writ of habeas corpus: see note to Rule 191.

See also notes to Rule 184.

Time for service of pleadings, etc.

204. Service shall, unless otherwise ordered, be effected during vacation and on Saturdays before two o'clock in the afternoon, and on other days before the hour of four o'clock in the afternoon, and service effected after those hours shall be deemed to have been made on the next juridical day. C.R. 349.

The Rule applies only to interlocutory proceedings in the course of an action or matter. It does not apply to writs of summons or other initiatory proceedings, and speaking generally it only applies to proceedings which may properly be served on a solicitor for a party.

Where service was admitted by a solicitor a few minutes after the hour per incuriam, and was repudiated by him as soon as he discovered the nature of the paper served upon him, it was held not to bind: McTavish v. Sympson, 7 P. R. 145; Wright v. Woy, 8 P. R. 328.

Service of a paper effected within proper hours but by leaving the paper in the office of the solicitor, after he and his clerks had left for the day, is good service only from the time when the paper comes to the knowledge of the solicitor: Davis v. Hubbard, 20 C. L. J. 32; following McCollum v. Prov. Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 101; but service may also be effected under Rule 201 so as to have the service count from the time of attendance to serve.

A specially indorsed writ is not a pleading within this Rule, and may be served at any hour of the day: Murray v. Stephenson, 9 Q. B. D. 60; see also Veale v. Automotic Boiler, etc., Co., 18 Q. B. D. 631; see also in the case of a notice of motion to quash a by-law, Re Davis & York, 10 C. L. T. 8.

See Lloyd v. Word, in note to Rule 121.

Rule 205.

CHAPTER X.

MOTIONS IN COURT AND CHAMBERS.

Powers of Court, how to be exercised.

205. The power conferred upon the Court may be exercised by a Judge sitting in Court, and, when so provided by the Rules, by a Judge in Chambers or the Master in Chambers, or a Local Judge in Chambers, or any Master or Referee to whom any cause or matter is referred. New.

Under former Rules an attempt was made to distinguish how the jurisdiction of the Court in various matters was to be exercised by the use of the words "Court," "Court or a Judge" or "Judge."

In the present Act and Rules an attempt is made more explicitly to define what business is to be taken in Court, what before a Judge in Chambers, and what before the Local Judges in Court or in Chambers, and what before the Master in Chambers, or before any Master or Referee to whom a cause or matter is referred. According to the strict reading of this Rule all business is to be taken in Court, except such as the Rules provide may be taken in Chambers or otherwise.

Motions for Judgment.—If that is the correct interpretation of the Rule, it seems to follow that unless the Rules expressly provide that a judgment may be entered for default of appearance or defence; or may be obtained on motion in Chambers, it must be moved for in Court, i.e., at its weekly sittings: Rule 356, or at the trial: Rule 358.

Further Directions.—Where further directions, or a question of costs, have been reserved, then, unless the reservation is expressly to a Judge in Chambers, the motion must be made to a Judge in Court.

Evidence taken in the Master's office cannot be read on a hearing on further directions: Gould v. Burritt, 11 Gr. 234; Curling v. Austin, 2 Dr. & Sm. 129; McGill v. Courtice, 17 Gr. 271; and, as a rule, affidavits will not be received on any matter covered by the report: Re Lea, Lea v. Lee, 124 L. T. Jour. 335. But on the question of costs reserved, the Court will look at an order made on appeal from the report, and also at the pleadings, and other orders made in the cause: Downey v. Boaf, 6 P. R. 89.

Court on F. D. may refuse to act on report, or to carry out an erroneous judgment.

The Court may, on a hearing of the cause on further directions, refuse to act upon a report, although it be confirmed, if it appears to be improper, or unsatisfactory: Taylor v. Craven, 10 Gr. 488; Baldwin v. Crawford, 1 Gr. 202; Harrison v. McSheehan, 80 L. T. Jour. 75; and it may also refuse to carry out the original judgment pronounced in the action, if it appears to have been improvidently granted: see Commercial Bank v. Graham, 4 Gr. 419; Mitchell v. Strathy, 28 Gr. 80. Where the original judgment is defective, the Court may as far as possible supply the defects: Robertson v. Meyers, 1 Gr. 560; but where a judgment restraining the infringement of a de facto patent, and ordering an account was not appealed from, the Court will not stay the account or refuse to carry out the judgment merely because the patent in question has been subsequently revoked: Poulton v. Adjustable Cover & B. B. Co., 1908, 2 Ch. 430; 99 L. T. 647. Rules 208, 207.

The Court may on further directions award interest on an amount found due by the Master, though the judgment declaring the liability is silent as to interest, and the statement of claim does not ask it; but it is a matter of judicial discretion both as to the allowance of interest and the time from which it should run: Burland v. Erle, 1905, A. C. 590; 93 L. T. 313.

C. RR. 613, 618, provided that where the party having the carriage of the cause did not within 14 days after report or after the determination of issues of fact, set down the cause for hearing on further directions, or on motion for judgment, then any other person interested might do so. Those Rules have not been continued; but possibly under the present Rules any party may set the cause down as soon as the report is confirmed, or the cause is ready to be heard: see Rule 246.

Where a reference had been ordered to the Master to inquire whether a partition alleged in the pleadings was binding upon the parties thereto, and the Master found in the affirmative; a motion for judgment was held to be proper, and judgment was directed to be entered according to the report: Consolidated Bank v. Wallbridge, 13 C. L. J. 205. See also Larkin v. Lloyd, 64 L. T. 507.

206. Any power conferred upon the Court may be exercised upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as may be deemed just. New. Discretion as to costs, etc.

This Rule appears to give to the Judge or judicial officer authority to dispose of the question of the costs of any application which may be made before them respectively: see sec. 74, supra, p. 238; and also authority to impose terms, wherever terms may properly be imposed, i.e., usually where a party is asking an indulgence.

A sum in gross may be allowed: Rule 652, but not more than $30 except by a Judge: Ib.

This Rule, however, is subject to Rule 658, which prohibits any award of costs on ex parte motions.

207. The following applications shall be disposed of in Chambers: Business to be transacted in Chambers

1. For the sale, lease or mortgaging of the estates of infants.
2. As to the custody, guardianship, maintenance, and advancement of infants;
3. For administration or partition without action;
4. Relating to the conduct of actions or matters;
5. For the payment into Court of moneys under The Trustee Act.

Rule 207.

6. To vacate certificates of lis pendens.

7. Appeals from the Master in Chambers and Local Judge.

8. Motions for judgment under Rules 57 to 62.

9. Applications under the Lunacy Act.

10. Applications for and on the return of a writ of Habeas Corpus.

11. Motions for mandamus, prohibition, or interpleader.

12. Motions to wind up companies under the Dominion and Ontario Acts.

13. Motions for payment of money out of Court.

14. Originating motions under Rule 600, clauses (c), (d), (f) and (i). C.R. 366. Amended.

The matters which may be disposed of in Chambers are too numerous to specify in detail. Most of them are enumerated in this Rule and the following notes. Those applications which may be entertained by the Master in Chambers, and Local Judges and Masters, are specified in Rules 208, 209.

A Judge has jurisdiction to make any order which can be made in Chambers, when sitting in his private room: Hartmont v. Foster, 8 Q. B. D. 82; 45 L. T. 429.

The foregoing Rule contains a more complete enumeration of matters which may be disposed of in Chambers than C. R. 366. Clauses 7-14 were not in that Rule, but it does not appear to be exhaustive. Under Rule 243 the Court has a wide discretion as to hearing matters in Chambers.

It is to be noted that although the matters enumerated in this Rule are to be disposed of in Chambers yet many of them are by Rule 208 expressly excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, and by Rule 209 from the jurisdiction of Local Judges, and Local Masters.

When Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction, matters may be brought before a Judge.

Applications in Chambers, to whom to be made:—

Applications proper to be made in Chambers, but which are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, Official Referees, Local Masters, and Local Judges acting under Rule 209, may be made before a Judge of the High Court Division in Chambers, and under Rule 210 in some cases before a Local Judge. A Judge sits in Chambers on Tuesday and Friday, at Toronto, in each week (except in vacation, when special arrangements are made): see Rule 234 (1).

Applications which can be made in Chambers should be made there, and not in Court: Moffatt v. Ruddle, 4 Gr. 44; Anon., Ib. 61; or the costs may be refused: Murney v. Courtney, 16 Gr. 52; or allowed only as of a motion in Chambers: King v. Connor, 10 Gr. 364.

As to the adjournment of motions from Chambers to Court, and vice versa: see Rule 223. Rule 207.

Matters coming before any officer of the Court having jurisdiction in Chambers, should not be referred to a Judge because the parties desire it, but only when the officer can certify that it is a proper case to be heard before a Judge; and matters improperly referred to a Judge will not be entertained: Hughes v. Rees, 9 P. R. 86. Matters not to be unnecessarily brought before a Judge.

Clause 1.—Sale of Infants' Estates.—As to the mode of proceeding for sale of infants' estates: see The Infants' Act (R. S. O. c. 163), ss. 5, 13, and Rules 618 et seq., and notes. The motion must be made to a Judge: see Rule 208 (7). Sale of infants' estates.

Clause 2.—Guardianship, and Maintenance, etc., of Infants.—As to the mode of proceeding for appointment of guardians: see Rule 619. Guardianship of infants.

Applications respecting the guardianship of the person, or property, of infants, are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers: see Rule 208 (7), and also from that of the Local Judges: Rule 209; and Local Masters: Rule 209. The authority of the High Court is not excluded by The Infants' Act (R. S. O. c. 153), s. 26: Re Stannard, 1 Chy. Ch. 16.

Applications respecting the custody of infants under The Infants Act (R. S. O. c. 163), s. 2, may be made to a Judge in Chambers: see Re Davis, 3 Chy. Ch. 277; Re Keith, 7 P. R. 138; Re Eves, 16 Gr. 580; Re Murdock, 9 P. R. 132; Re Smith, 8 P. R. 23; Re Scott, Ib., 58; Re Ferguson, Ib., 566; but not to the Master in Chambers: see Rule 208 (7); nor (subject to Rule 210) to the Local Judges: Rule 209; nor to the Local Masters: Rule 209.

Clause 3.—As to procedure on motions for administration: see Rule 608, et seq., and notes. Administration, and partition.

As to the procedure on motions for partition: see Rules 615, 616 and notes.

Semble the Master in Chambers has jurisdiction under this clause, unless the application is opposed, in which case the motion must be disposed of by a Judge: see Rule 208 (8); but see Rule 212. The Local Masters' jurisdiction is similar: see Rule 209, but as to Local Judges: see Rule 212.

Clause 4 embraces all interlocutory motions concerning practice or procedure necessary in the course of an action or matter, and which, generally speaking, except so far as the exceptions of Rule 208 apply, are within the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters: see Rules 208, 209, 210. Motions relating to conduct of actions.

This clause is probably not intended to include motions involving an adjudication on the rights of the parties, e.g., applications for injunctions, etc.; or under Rule 600.

Clause 5.—As to the procedure on applications to pay money into Court under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121): see the Act, s. 39. Motions under Trustee Act.

The Master in Chambers, Local Judges and Local Masters may entertain such applications.

Rule 207.

Under that Act applications may also be made by trustees, guardians or personal representatives to the Court for advice; how far such applications will be entertained in Chambers, may depend on the nature and importance of the question involved; but if brought on in Chambers it is always open to the presiding Judge to adjourn the application into Court: Rule 223. The same observation applies to applications under the Act to appoint a new trustee: see s. 18, or for a vesting order: see s. 15. Applications under these sections should be made to a Judge: see Rule 600 and notes.

Vacating lis pendens.

Clause 6.—The jurisdiction under this clause cannot be exercised by the Master in Chambers, or Local Masters, being excluded from their jurisdiction by Rule 208 (13): see Jud. Act. s. 37.

Appeals.

Clause 7.—As to the procedure on appeals from a Master in Chambers, and Local Judges: see Rules 505, 506. Local Masters should have been included in this clause: see Rule 505. The matters mentioned in this clause are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers: see Rule 208 (2), and consequently are also excluded from the jurisdiction of Local Judges, and Local Masters, under Rule 209.

Motions for judgment on specially indorsed writs.

Clause 8.—The jurisdiction under this clause may be exercised by the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters, not being excluded therefrom by Rule 208. Motions for judgment under Rule 222 are, apparently, not excluded in business which may not be taken in Chambers; but in addition to the motion for judgment specifically referred to in clauses 3 and 8, motions for judgment in mortgage actions in cases where there are adult defendants who are in default of appearance or defence, and there are infant defendants, may be made in Chambers: Rule 400.

Lunacy applications.

Clause 9.—Applications under The Lunacy Act (R. S. O. c. 68), s. 6, to declare a person a lunatic must be made to a Judge in Chambers: see Rule 208 (5); Re Paton, 1 Chy. Ch. 192; Re Fleming, 13 C. L. J. 197; Re Kelly, 6 P. R. 220, or for a commission de lunatico: Re Stuart, 4 Gr. 44.

The supposed lunatic is entitled to notice of the application: Re Miller, 1 Chy. Ch. 215, unless the Court, on proper evidence of its being dangerous, or useless, to serve him, dispenses with service: Re Newmon, 2 Chy. Ch. 390; Re Mein, Ib., 429.

Where an order has been made declaring the lunacy, the Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to entertain applications respecting the property of the lunatic, under The Lunacy Act, s. 14, et seq.

Where the next of kin intervene on a lunacy application they are not allowed costs out of the estate, unless it can be shewn that the fact that they intervened has proved financially beneficial to the estate, when, upon the principle of salvage, costs may be allowed: Re Brown, 2 O. W. N. 924.

The custody of the lunatic need not be interfered with, unless it is shown that, in the interest of the lunatic, it should be: Re Clark, 14 P. R. 370. Where the custody of the lunatic was the only object of a motion for a declaration of lunacy, and it was not thought proper to alter the existing custody, a declaration was refused, though there was no doubt about the lunacy: Ib.

A husband of a married woman lunatic has no absolute right to be appointed the committee of her person either eolely or jointly: Re Davy, 1892, 3 Ch. 38. Rule 207.

The righte of creditors against the property of a lunatic will not be interfered with by the Court until an order has been made shewing that the Cnurt has taken control of the lunatic's estate: Re Clarke, 1898, 1 Ch. 336; Re Brown, Llewellin v. Brown, 1900, 1 Ch. 489. After the estate has so become subject to the control of the Court, it cannot he seized under an execution; hut the execution creditor is entitled upon application to be paid out of it, subject to the maintenance of the lunatic, but not of the lunatic's wife: Re Winkle, 1894, 2 Ch. 519. The maintenance of the lunatic is a first claim both on the capital and income of his estate under the control of the Court: Re Plenderleith, 1893, 3 Ch. 332; but, subject to this, the Court will not restrain a creditor from exercising his legal rights: Didisheim v. London & Westminster Bank, 1900, 2 Ch. 15.

Clause 10.—Applications for writs of hobeas corpus in a civil or criminal proceeding may be made to a Judge in Chambers under The Habeas Corpus Act, 29-30 V. c. 45; see R. S. O. c. 84; or The Habeas Corpus Act (31 Car. 2, c. 2), (see R. S. O. 1897, vol. 3, p. xxxvi): Re Paton, 4 Gr. 147. As to whether a Judge can in Chambers rescind his own order for a writ of habeos corpus, or qnash the writ itself on the ground that it iseued improvidently: see Re Ross, 3 P. R. 301. The Master in Chambers, and Local Masters, cannot entertain applications of this kind: Rule 208 (1), nor Local Judges, unless Rule 210 applies. Habeas corpus.

A person confined or restrained of his ilberty is limited to one writ of habeas corpus to he granted hy any Judge of the High Court Division returnahle heforo himself or another Judge in Chambers, with a right of appeal to the Appellate Division from the judgment given on the return of the writ. The judgment of the Appellate Division is final, and where no such appeal is taken, the order which might have been appealed against becomes final, and no other writ of habeas corpus can issue in the matter; and such order is a good answer to an action in which the same question is raised: Taylor v. Scott, 30 Ont. 475. This wss a civil proceeding, hut the decision would seem also to he applicahle where a hobeas corpus is required in a criminal matter, hecause in Ontario an appeal lies to the Appellate Division from a refusal to release: eee The Habeas Corpus Act (31 Car. 2, c. 2) and The Conoda Supreme Court Act (R. S. O. c. 139), ss. 62-65; and The Ontario Habeas Corpus Act (R. S. O. c. 84), s. 8; and Cox v. Hokes, 15 App. Cas. 506.

Clause 11.—Applications for mandamus or prohihition are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers: Rule 208 (9) and also under Rule 209 from that of the Local Judges and Local Mssters; hut as to Local Judges: see Rule 210. Mandamus or prohibition.

The applications intended to he covered hy this Rule are summary spplications without action: see Rule 622, and not applications in sctions where a mandamus is a part of the relief claimed, and the right to which depends on the result of the action.

As to the procedure on applications for mandamus and prohihition: see Rules 622-624, and notes.

Rule 207.

Winding-up ordar.

Clause 12.—Winding-up Ordar. — An order for winding-up a company upon a petition under The Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144), may be made by a Judge in Chambers: Re The Toronto Brass Company, 18 P. R. 248.

Thie is ons of those mattars not in tarms axcluded from tbe jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers and Local Judges and Local Masters, hut wbich seeme to come under the exception of Rule 208 (13), as being a matter which is expreesly required to be done by a Judge. But as to Local Judges: see Rule 210.

Motions for payment out of Court.

Clause 13.—The motions refarred to in thie clause are not ooly interlocutory applications for payment out of Court, hut also orders for distribution of funds in Court in administration and partition actions or matters. These latter are excluded from ths jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers: Rule 208 (10) and also from that of the Local Judge and Local Masters under Rule 209; hut ae to Local Judges: eee Rule 210; hut other motions for payment out of Court may be eotertained by the Master in Cbambers, Local Mastere, and Local Judges, but tbeir orders cannot be acted on until approved of by a Judge of the Supreme Court: see Rule 732.

Originating notices.

Clause 14.—This clause, it will be noted, does not include all mattere commenced by originating notice, hut ie confined to tbose specified.

Besides tbe matters mentioned in tbie Rule, there are others wbich may be taken in Chambers.

Additional Cases to which Jurisdiction in Chambers extends.—Tbe jurisdiction in Chambere extende to other matters, in addition to tbe bueiness enumerated in Rule 207, e.g.:—

Motions for judgment in mortgage cases.

1. As already mentioned, motione for jndgment in ordinary mortgage actions, for aale, or forecloenre, or for redemption, wbere infants are concerned: see Rule 466. The Mastar in Chambers, Official Refereee when eitting for bim, and Local Judges, and in the caeee meotioned in Rule 209 tbe Local Masters, bave jurisdiction to entertaio auch applications.

To convey free from dower.

2. Applicationa to enable the owner of land to convey free from tbe dower of bie wife, under The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70), ee. 14, 15, 16 and 17, may be made in Cbambera: Re Eogles, 7 P. R. 241; Re Campbell, 25 Gr. 187, 480; but it eeems probable that applicatioos of this kind can only be entert: iued by a Judge as a persono designata.

To appoint or dispense with appointment of, representative of estate.

3. Applications to appoint, or to dispense with tbe appointment of a pereon to repreaent tbe eetate of a deceased person under Rule 90; or to represent a claes under Rules 75 or 77, or tbe heir at law, or next of kin; or a clasa, or an unborn person, under Rule 76. The Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Maeters, have juriediction to enter:: in eucb applications: eee Collver v. Swayzie, 8 P. R. 42.

Thie would eeem to come under tbe business intended to be included hy tbe general worde of clauee 4.

Motions to commit.

4. Motions to Commit.—Motione to commit for contempt, by reaeon of dieobedience of an order in Chambers, or a præcipe order, may be made in Chambers, hut where tbe dieobedience ie of a Court order, tbe motione eboulc be made in Court: Verrall v. Hordy, 9 C. L. T. 310, following Klein v. Union Fire Ins. Co., 3 C. L. T. 601.

And so also it should be made in Court, where the object is to commit a stranger to the action for contempt in interfering with the due course of justice: Southwick v. Hore, 15 P. R. 331. Such a matter is to be dealt with as a criminal matter, not affected by the practice and procedure under the Rules: Ib.; and see Seaward v. Paterson, 1897, 1 Ch. 545; 76 L. T. 215; and notes to the Jud. Act, sec. 17, pp. 72, 73; but all contempts in civil proceedings are not criminal within the meaning of the Jud. Act, s. 151: see Scott v. Scott, 109 L. T. 1; 1913, A. C. 417. Rule 208.

In that case the order on which the alleged contempt was based, was held to be illegal, but Haldane, L.C., said: "Even if the order had been validly made. . . . a breach of the order would have in substance been punishable only on the same footing as the breach of an ordinary order in a civil case for an injunction, and a punitive order made with reference to the breach, falls in such cases, outside the language of sec. 47 of the Judicature Act, 1873, which provides that no appeal shall lie from the judgment of the High Court in any criminal cause or matter": see also the judgment of Lord Atkinson.

Such applications are not within the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers or Local Masters: Rule 208 (1; but as to Local Judges: see Rule 210.

5. Motions for Physical Examination of Plaintiff.—Under the Jud. Act, s. 70, "the Court which, or the Judge, or the person who, by consent of parties or otherwise, has power to fix the amount of damages" may order the physical examination of a plaintiff suing for damages for bodily injury. Where the application is made to a Judge; under clause 4, it would seem to be proper to make it in Chambers, but the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters, do not appear to have any jurisdiction to entertain such applications: see Rule 208 (13); but as to Local Judges: see Rule 210. Applications for physical examination of plaintiff.

6. Issue of Subpœnas as to Province of Quebec.—Under C. S. C. c. 79, ss. 4-11, subpœnas may be ordered to issue to the Province of Quebec in actions pending in the Supreme Court of Ontario: see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76, p. 986). A Judge in Chambers can entertain such applications, but not the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, or Local Masters: see Rules 208 (13), and 209. Subpoenas to Quebec.

7. Vacating the registration of certificates of lis pendens where the action is not disposed of: see Jud. Act, ss. 36-37, supra, and Rule 208 (13). Vacating lis pendens.

8. Whether motions for replevin orders are within this Rule is not very clear: see Rules 359 et seq. Replevin.

208. The Master in Chambers is empowered and required to dispose of all applications properly made in Chambers save in respect to the following matters: Master in Chambers, jurisdiction of. Matters excepted.

1. Matters relating to criminal proceedings, or the liberty of the subject; Criminal matters, etc.

2. Appeals and applications in the nature of Appeals; Appeals.

3. Extending the time for appealing to a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division; Extending time to appeal.

Rule 208.

Arrest. 4. Applications for arrest;

Lunacy. 5. Proceedings as to Lunatics;

Originating notices. 6. Originating notices other than applications for administration, partition or interpleader.

Infants or their estates. Settled estates. 7. Applications as to the custody, maintenance or guardianship of infants, or the sale, lease, mortgage of or dealing with infants' estates or settled estates.

Administration. Partition. 8. Opposed applications for judgment for partition or administration.

Mandamus and prohibition. 9. Applications for Prohibition or Mandamus.

Payment out of Court. 10. The payment of money out of Court, or dispensing with payment of money into Court, in administration and partition matters.

Granting taxed costs in lieu of commission. 11. Allowing taxed costs in lieu of commission under the provisions of Rule 653.

Striking out jury notice. 12. Striking out a jury notice except for irregularity.

Matters required to be done by a Judge. 13. Any matter which is expressly required to be done by a Judge.

Removal of causes. 14. The removal of causes from Inferior Courts.

References under Arb. Act. 15. The making of orders for references under The Arbitration Act.

Staying proceedings after judgment. 16. Staying proceedings after verdict, or judgment at a trial. C.R. 42, amended.

This Rule appears to be intended to confer on the Master in Chambers all the jurisdiction of a Judge in Chambers at the time of this Rule coming into force, i.e., 1st September, 1913; except as to the matters above excepted: see In re Donisthorpe, 1897, 1 Q. B. 671; Watson v. Dandy, 18 C. L. T. 164. Any powers hereafter conferred by Rule or Statute will not by force of this Rule be exercisable by the Master in Chambers. The propriety of extending any such after conferred powers to the Master in Chambers, or Local Judges or officers, is thus reserved for consideration by the Judges.

Where a statute hereafter passed merely enlarges the power of a Judge in Chambers, in a case in which the Master in Chambers has previously exercised jurisdiction, it would seem that the Master in Chambers can exercise the additional powers conferred by the statute upon a Judge in Chambers: see Collver v. Swayzie, 8 P. R. 42.

Jurisdiction of a Judge as a persona designata.

Jurisdiction Intended to be Reserved to Judges.—While the Master in Chambers may thus, speaking generally, exercise (except as to the matters excepted) the jurisdiction which a Judge in Chambers had on 1st September, 1913, yet this Rule is subject to some exceptions. It would not seem to enable the Master in Chambers to act in a matter in which a Judge in Chambers acts by virtue of any statute as a persona designata (e.g., under The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70), ss. 14, 15, 17, in making orders dispensing with a wife's joining in a conveyance by her husband: Re Nolon, 6 P. R. 115); nor does it give the Master in Chambers powers which it has been the policy of the Court to retain in the hands of the Judges. Thus in Hendricks v. Hendricks, 13 P. R. 79, it was held that the mere consolidation of the Rules could not work a construction which was not in accordance with the policy upon which Rule 653 [originally promulgated along with Rule 615 (4)] was framed. It would, therefore, seem to be still contrary to Rule 615 (4), that the word "Judge" therein should by the aid of Rule 208 be made to extend to the Master in Chambers, and by force of Rule 209 to Local Judges and Local Masters also; and it would seem that the Master in Chambers has still no power to make orders for distribution in partition actions under Rule 615 (4): see Rule 208 (13). Rule 208. Partition.

Applications to the summary jurisdiction of the Court against solicitors were held to be excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers and like officers: Re L. & M., 6 P. R. 21; Re Bridgmon, 16 P. R. 232; Re Ross, Ib. 482; but see Re Carroll, 2 Chy. Ch. 323; Re Walker, Ib. 324; Re Toms, Ib. 381; Re Attorney, 7 P. R. 174; also applications by parties claiming adversely to a receiver, or sequestrator: see Brown v. Dollard, 6 P. R. 113; also an application by a person claiming adversely to the heirs or next of kin in an administration suit to be made a party in the Master's office and for leave to establish his claim there: Re Tobin, Tobin v. Tobin, 7 P. R. 67; and an application for payment into Court by an executor or administrator of money admitted by him to be in his hands: Re Curry, 8 P. R. 340; but see now Rule 222; semble, under that Rule the motion for judgment should be made in Court. Summary jurisdiction over solicitors.

The Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction on conflicting evidence to strike out pleas, raising questions of liability preliminary to an account, and to order an account to be taken: Ryan v. Fish, 20 C. L. J. 114; nor to set aside a judgment of a creditor against an absconding debtor to enable another creditor to defend: Wills v. Corroll, 10 P. R. 142. Other cases.

References to Masters.—The right of the former Referee in Chambers to direct a reference to a Master was denied: Brown v. Dollard, 6 P. R. 113; this case was affirmed on rehearing, on another ground, however, viz.: that the relief should have been sought under Chy. Ord. 398, et seq.; see also Queen v. Smith, 7 P. R. 429; and since The Judicature Act the right of the Master in Chambers to direct such a reference under the Dominion Winding-up Act has also been denied: Re Queen City Refining Co., 10 P. R. 415; Re Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., 10 P. R. 485; and see Fraser v. Buchanan, 25 Ont., per Rose, J., at p. 5. References to Masters.

But whatever may be the case in regard to interlocutory orders, it would seem clear that when the Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to award a judgment, he has power, for the purpose of carrying out such judgment, to direct a reference to the Master: see Rules 466, 519, 611, and notes.

Clause 1.—Liberty of the Subject.—All matters affecting the liberty of the subject are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master Liberty of subject.

in Chambers, under clause 1, and also from the jurisdiction of Local Judges and Local Master: Rule 209, but as to Local Judges: see Rule 210. Consequently the Master in Chambers cannot entertain motions to compel obedience to an order for production by committal: Keefe v. Word, 13 C. L. J. 166; and he has no jurisdiction to order the discharge of a defendant held in custody under a ca. sa.: Cochrane v. Lamon, 11 P. R. 351.

Appeals, etc.

Clause 2.—Appeals.—An application impeaching the propriety of a filing, is not an appeal or in the nature of an appeal from the officer who filed the document, so as to exclude the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers: Waterous v. Forran, 6 P. R. 31.

Where a reference in an action had been made to a County Court Judge, who died before entering upon it, an application to set aside (as having been issued without jurisdiction), an appointment to proceed with the reference, issued by the deceased's Judge's successor was held to be in the nature of an appeal: Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 403.

Extending time for appealing.

Clause 3.—Applications to extend the time for appealing whether it be to the Appellate Division, or to a Judge in Court, or in Chambers, are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, and under Rule 209, from the jurisdiction of Local Judges, and Local Masters; but as to Local Judges: see Rule 210. Such applications are proper to be made in Chambers: Rule 207 (4); but must be made before a Judge.

Fraudulent Debtors' Act.

Clause 4 excludes all applications under The Fraudulent Debtors' Arrest Act (R. S. O. c. 83), s. 3, from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, and under Rule 209, from the jurisdiction of the Local Judges and Local Masters.

Lunacy proceedings.

Clause 5.—Proceedings as to lunatics. Under the former C. R. 42, this exception was considered to prevent merely applications for declarations of lunacy from being entertained by the Master in Chambers, but not, after such declaration had been made, applications concerning the property of a lunatic.

Originating notice.

Clause 6.—This clause has the effect of excluding from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, Local Judges and Local Masters, all jurisdiction to entertain any originating notice whatever, except in the three cases specified, viz.: (1) administration; (2) partition, and (3) interpleader; and originating notices for administration, or partition, can only be entertained by them when unopposed: see cl. 8.

As to the proceedings for administration: see Rules 608 et seq., and as to proceedings for partition: see Rule 615 et seq., and as to interpleader: see Rules 625 et seq.

Infants — maintenance, custody.

Clause 7.—Several matters are included in this exception, viz.:

(1) Applications regarding the custody, maintenance or guardianship of infants. As to this: see The Infants' Act (R. S. O. c. 153), ss. 2-4, and notes to Jud. Act, s. 3, p. 12, supra, and Rule 207 (2).

Sale of property.

(2) Applications for the sale, lease, or mortgage of infants' estates. As to this: see The Infants' Act, ss. 5 et seq., and notes to Rule 207 (2).

Settled estates.

(3) Sale, leasing, or mortgaging of settled estates. As to this: see The Settled Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 74), ss. 3-14.

All of these applications are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters. Numbers 1 and 2 are, however, proper to be made before a Judge in Chambers: Rule 207 (2); but applications for the lease, sale, or mortgaging of settled estates, are usually made to a Judge in Court; and are not enumerated in Rule 207 among the business which may be disposed of in Chambers. As to the jurisdiction of Local Judges in such matters: see Rule 210. Rule 208.

Clause 8.—See clause 6, supra, and note.

Clause 9.—Applications for mandamus or prohibition are proper to be made in Chambers before a Judge (Rule 207 (11)). But by this clause are excepted from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, and under Rule 209, from that of the Local Judges and Local Masters. Mandamus and prohibition.

Clause 10.—Payment out of Court in partition matters is a matter expressly reserved to a Judge: see Rule 615. This exception has the effect of preventing the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters, from either ordering payment out or dispensing with payment into Court of any money in any administration or partition proceeding. Payment out in administration and partition actions.

Clause 11.—The power to order tax costs in lieu of commission under Rule 615 can only be exercised by a Judge, it is possible under Rule 207 (4), such an application might be entertained in Chambers. Costs in administration actions.

Clause 12.—By this exception the power of the Master in Chambers, Local Judges and Local Masters to strike out jury notices is limited to applications on the ground of irregularity. In all other cases the application must be made to a Judge in Chambers: see Rule 207 (4), and see Rule 398. But as to Local Judges: see Rule 210. Striking out jury notices.

Clause 13.—This exception is probably intended to apply to all matters where, either by the Rules, or any statute, a Judge is required or empowered to do anything: e.g., see the Jud. Act, s. 73, as to ordering medical examination of a plaintiff. C. S. C. c. 79, s. 4, as to authorizing the issue of a subpœna to the Province of Quebec. As to such matters neither the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, nor Local Masters, have any jurisdiction. But as regards Local Judges: see Rule 210. Matters required to be done by a Judge.

Clause 14.—Applications for the removal of causes from Inferior Courts for the purposes of mandamus or prohibition, are matters excluded by this exception from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters, but are matters which may be properly made to a Judge in Chambers: Rule 207 (11), and see supra, clause 9. Removal of causes from Inferior Courts.

Clause 15.—The reference to The Arbitration Act in this exception is probably erroneous, and what is really intended is the making of references under s. 65 of the Jud. Act. References under Arbitration Act.

Clause 16.—Staying Proceedings after Verdict or Judgment. This clause prevents the Master in Chambers, Local Judges and Local Masters from having jurisdiction, after a decision of the Appellate Court, to order a stay of proceedings till such time as leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada can be moved for, in a case requiring Staying proceedings after verdict or judgment.

Rule 209.

such leave; or to require the defendant to undertake to refund damages and costs in the event of the judgment proposed to be appealed from being reversed: Tabb v. G. T. Ry. Co., 8 O. L. R. 514; and from making any order staying proceedings either on a reference, or execution pending an appeal. Such applications can only be entertained by a Judge in Chambers: but the Master in Chambers and other officers having the like jurisdiction may, notwithstanding this clause, make an order for security for costs, or for increasing such security, and staying proceedings as a matter incidental to such an order: Stow v. Currie, 20 O. L. R. 356. As to the power of Local Judges: see Rule 210.

Quo warranto applications.

Quo Warranto.—The Master in Chambers has jurisdiction in quo warranto proceedings under The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), s. 160. He has also power to direct a reference to a County Judge to take evidence in such a matter under The Municipal Act, see ss. 173 and 161; Reg v. McCloy, 13 P. R. 96. His decision respecting a municipal election is appealable: see The Municipal Act, s. 179.

The jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers in Quo Warranto Proceedings is confined to those under The Municipal Act and does not extend to applications provided for by the Jud. Act, ss. 146-150, supra.

Costs.

Jurisdiction to Dispose of Costs of an Action where no other Question Remains.—See note to sec. 74, supra, p. 243.

Changing venue in C.C.

Changing Venue in C. C. Actions.—The jurisdiction to entertain motions to change the venue in County Court actions was doubted: Brigham v. McKenzie, 10 P. R. 406; but is now settled by Rule 767.

As to changing the venue where the Judge of the County Court is a defendant: see Anon., 4 P. R. 310.

Adjourning from Chambers.

Adjournment of Motions before Court or Judge.—An application made to an officer in Chambers, which he has no power to entertain, may be adjourned before a Judge: Rule 223 (2).

Vacation.

Long Vacation.—As to the officers empowered to hold Chambers during the Long Vacation: see Rule 181.

Local Judges and Local Masters.

Local Judge's jurisdiction in Chambers.

209. A Local Judge and a Local Master who does not practise as a Barrister or Solicitor or take out a certificate entitling him to practise shall in all causes and matters in his county and in interpleader proceedings where the goods in respect of which interpleader is sought are situate in his county, have concurrent jurisdiction with, and the same power and authority, as the Master in Chambers at Toronto. C.R. 45.

See notes to Rules 207 and 208.

The jurisdiction of a Local Judge in Chambers is made co-extensive with that of a Judge of the High Court in all cases within the provisions of Rule 210.

The jurisdiction of Local Judges, and Local Masters, under this Rule, is limited to causes and matters in their respective counties, whereas the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers is Provincial. Rule 210.

The power of the Local Judges is extended by the following Rule, subject to the conditions, and exceptions, therein mentioned, to matters which, in Toronto, can only be heard before a Judge in Court, and also in certain cases to matters which in Toronto can only be heard by a Judge in Chambers.

All orders for payment of money out of Court or dispensing with payment of money into Court by a Local Judge or Local Master, under this Rule, must be approved by a Judge before being acted on: Rule 732.

210.—(1) A Local Judge shall, in actions brought and proceedings taken in his county, possess the like powers as a Judge sitting in Court or Chambers with regard to:— Local Judges' jurisdiction generally.

(a) Motions for judgment in undefended actions;

(b) Motions to appoint receivers after judgment by way of equitable execution;

(c) Applications for leave to serve short notice of a motion to be made before a Judge sitting in Court or Chambers.

And where the solicitors for all parties reside in his county or agree that the same shall be heard before him any motion or application except

i. Applications for taxed or increased costs under Rule 653. Exceptions.

ii. Motions for injunction, save as provided in Rule 211.

iii. Motions to strike out a jury notice save for irregularity.

(2) Where an infant or lunatic or person of unsound mind is concerned the powers conferred by this Rule shall not be exercised without the consent of the Official Guardian, or of the committee or guardian of or the person authorized to act on behalf of the lunatic or person of unsound mind. C.R. 47. Amended. Where infants or lunatics concerned.

Since this Rule a Local Judge has no power to hear a motion to continue an injunction until the trial, except by consent as provided by Rule 211; see formerly Dougall v. Hutton, 19 C. L. T. 190; 35 C. L. J. 368.

C. R. 47, excepted from the matters which a Local Judge may dispose of "trials of actions." This exception though omitted from this Rule, is probably still an exception from his jurisdiction, as not being a "a motion or application" within the meaning of this Rule.

The jurisdiction conferred by this Rule can be only exercised by a Local Judge: (a) where the solicitors for all parties reside in his county, or (b) where the solicitors for all parties agree that he shall exercise jurisdiction, subject in both cases to the proviso, that if any infant, lunatic, or person of unsound mind, is concerned, the Official Guardian must consent, whether he is acting for such infant, or lunatic, or not.

Subject to these qualifications a Local Judge has the like jurisdiction as the Master in Chambers: Youldon v. London Guarantee Co., 2 O. W. N. 1135.

Where the solicitors do not reside in the county of the Local Judge, or do not consent to his acting, he has no jurisdiction: Wendover v. Nicholson, 5 O. W. R. 645, and he has no power to make an order affecting persons not formally before him without their consent; the fact that they have been notified and do not attend, and object, is not sufficient to give him jurisdiction; an order for the representation of absent parties under Rule 75 cannot be made by a Local Judge: Chisholm v. Herkimer, 19 O. L. R. 600.

All orders made by a Local Judge for payment of money out of Court, or dispensing with the payment of money into Court, are subject to Rule 732, and must be approved by a Judge before being acted on.

Local Judge's jurisdiction as to injunctions.

211.—(1) A Local Judge may in cases of emergency grant an ex-parte injunction in any action brought in his county upon proof to his satisfaction that the delay required for an application to a Judge is likely to involve a failure of justice, but such injunction shall not be for a longer period than eight days.

(2) If all parties interested consent, the Local Judge may hear any motion to continue, vary or dissolve the injunction. C.R. 46, amended.

Under the first clause of the Rule, the Local Judge can only grant an injunction for eight days. Usually where an interim injunction is granted in Toronto, it is granted ex parte for a specified time, "and until any motion which may on that day be made to continue the said injunction shall have been disposed of," but where a Local Judge makes the order, it will be necessary to see that the addition of such a clause does not amount to an extension of the injunction beyond the limit of eight days. Where an interim injunction is granted by a Local Judge, it will always be advisable to bring on any motion to continue it before the expiration of the eight days, unless there is a real emergency it would seem that the Local Judge has no jurisdiction to grant an injunction: see Capital Manufacturing Co. v. Buffalo Specialty Co., 3 O. W. N. 553.

Motions for partition and administration.

212. Motions for partition or administration may be made before a Judge in Chambers or the local Judge of the County where the land (or if more than one parcel, any parcel) is situate or the testator or intestate died. C.R. 956. Rule 213.

This covers only part of C. R. 956, the other provisions of th .t Rula are embraced in Rule 615, post.

On reference to that Rule it will be seen that only motions for partition on behalf of adult parties are authorized. If any infant is interested, he must be made a defendant,—if partition is sought by an infsnt: see Rule 616.

As to the persons entitled to make summary application for administration: see Rules 608, 610.

In spplications for partition, or administration, any local Judge in whose county the land, or some part of the land in question is situste, or in whose county the testator or inteatate died, has jurisdiction, therefore where the estate consists entirely of personalty and no land is in queation; the only Local Judge who would have jurisdiction would be tha Judge of the county in which the testator or inteatste died.

Motions under thia Rule are to be by originating notice: see Rules 608, 615.

General Provisions as to Motions.

213. Any application in an action or proceeding shall be made by motion, and notice of the motion shall be given to all parties affected by the order sought. C.R. 355 and 356. Amended. Application to Court or Judge to be by motion.

See Eng. (1883), RR. 696, 697.

A notice of motion for attachment atating that the Court would be moved at the Royal Courts of Justice was held sufficient: Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172.

Where a motion haa been made and refused, it cannot he renewed as a general thing without leave: Regina v. Richardson, 13 P. R. 303; Reg. v. Mayor of Bodmin, 8 T. L. R. 553; but see Payne v. Newberry, 13 P. R. 392, where the motion when first made was held to be technically irregular; formerly n motion for a habeas corpus waa an exception; but see now Re Hall, 8 Ont. App. 135; but where an interlocutory motion is refused on a ground which is aubsequently removed by an amendment of the proceedings, a second motion for the same purpose may he made, and the doctrine of res judicata will not apply: see Dombey & Son v. Playfair, 1897, 1 Q. B. 368; 75 L. T. 676.

The Court may, under Rules 89, 215, 216, dispense with service of a notice of motion.

Where the notice of motion ia the first proceeding in a cause, or is to be served on a defendnnt who has not appeared, or the motion relates to the liberty of the person, e.g., a motion to commit for contempt, it should, as a general rule, be personally served.

Rule 213.

These Rules, unless otherwise expressed, merely relate to civil proceedings and consequently Rules 215, 216, do not extend or apply to proceedings for, or in relation to, the quashing of convictions or orders in criminal proceedings.

In most cases where a suitor is prosecuting proceedings in person he is entitled to be heard in person in support of, or opposition to, any motion in the course of such proceedings; there are, however, some motions which the Court will not entertain unless made by counsel; e.g., a motion for a prerogative mandamus: Ex p. Wollocc, 1902, 2 K. B. 488, where Re Lewis, 1884, 14 Q. B. D. 474, was held to be no authority for a contrary practice; so also in the case of complaints against a barrister, or solicitor, for alleged misconduct: see Re Solicitor, 1903, 1 K. B. 857; and Re Solicitor, 1903, 2 K. B. 205, where the complaint had been investigated by a committee of the Law Society, and the solicitor acquitted.

As to motions by way of appeal: see Rule 218.

A motion, on which, before the Rules, no one but the applicant was entitled to be heard, may still be made ex parte: Re City of Toronto, Leader Lane Arbitration, 13 P. R. 166.

The rights of an applicant cannot be prejudiced by anything done after the notice of motion has been served, but his rights are to be determined as they existed at the date of its service: see Preston v. Tunbridge Wells, 1905, 2 Ch. 323; 88 L. T. 53.

Motions to quash by-laws.

Motions to Quash By-laws.—A motion to quash a municipal by-law should be made to a Judge in the Weekly Court, and from his decision either granting, or refusing, the motion, an appeal lies to the Appellate Division: see Jud. Act, s. 26 (1).

Under The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), a notice of motion to quash a by-law must be served 7 clear days before the day on which the motion is to be made: s. 283 (2).

The Court has no power under Rule 176 to shorten this period of 7 clear days, as it is fixed by the statute, and the powers given by Rule 176 only extend to periods of time fixed by the Rules: Re Sweetman & Gosfield, 13 P. R. 293. By analogy to the case of a writ of summons it would seem that Rule 204, providing for the hours for effecting certain services does not apply to the service of the notice of motion, it being the first proceeding in the matter.

Where an applicant collusively discontinues his application to quash a municipal by-law, other parties interested may be authorized to intervene and continue the proceedings in the applicant's name, on giving him proper indemnity as to costs: Re Ritz & New Hamburg, 4 O. L. R. 639.

As to the procedure to be followed on such motions: see The Municipal Act, ss. 283-286.

Persons interested in supporting a by-law which is attacked may be allowed to intervene on a motion to quash, on the terms of submitting to be answerable for the costs of the applicant: Re Henderson & W. Nissouri, 23 O. L. R. 651.

Substituted service of notice of motion.

Substitutional Service of Notice of Motion.—C. R. 334 provided: "Where it appears, upon the hearing of any matter, that by reason of absence, or for any other sufficient cause, the service of notice of the application or of the appointment, cannot be made, or ought to be dispensed with, such service may be dispensed with, or any substituted service, or notice, by advertisement, or otherwise, may be ordered;" but that Rule has not been continued; and it may be a question whether the power to dispense with service of a notice of motion any longer exists: by analogy Rule 16 would probably authorize substitutional service: and Rule 89 might probably authorize the Court proceeding in the absence of a party, but saving his rights: but whether it could as in the case of Rex v. Wigand, 1913, 2 K. B. 419; 109 L. T. 111, dispense with service altogether, on a person against whom an order is proposed to be made, is by no means clear: see Rules 213, 214. Rule 216 it will be observed only provides for making an interim order in such a case. Rule 213. Dispensing with service.

If an order for substituted service of a notice of motion to commit can be made at all, it should not be made except in a case where no doubt exists as to the notice coming to the knowledge of the person against whom the motion is to be made: Re Chatham Horvester Co. v. Campbell, 12 P. R. 666.

By analogy to C. R. 334, service of a warrant and all subsequent proceedings in the Master's Office upon certain absent defendants was dispensed with, other defendants in the same interest being represented: Smith v. Houston, 15 P. R. 18; but it would seem that a Master, qua Master, had no jurisdiction under that Rule to order substitutional service of proceedings in his Office; though possibly Masters may now make such orders under their jurisdiction in Chambers under Rules 209, 433: see Re Hynes; Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217.

Where it was not shewn that defendant could not be served, the Court refused to dispense with service of notice of motion for judgment for default of defence: Dominion Bank v. Doddridge, 12 P. R. 655. But if a defendant has not appeared: see Rule 35; and Burritt v. Murdock, 9 P. R. 191.

By the Common Law no judgment could be given against a defendant until he had appeared; but modern legislation has enabled the Court to adjudicate notwithstanding a defendant does not appear. By the Common Law a defendant could not be required to appear except by writ of summons issued in the King's name, modern legislation has authorized the Court to exercise jurisdiction upon notice of motion without any writ being issued: Rule 10.

Prior to The Judicature Act, notices of motion were unknown in Common Law and in Chancery could only be served after bill filed. In Chancery the subpœna to appear and answer, originally necessary, had been dispensed with, and a notice substituted.

It would seem that, except as altered by the Rules, or Statutes, the principles on which the ancient practice was based would continue operative.

By C. R. 361, it was provided:

"The plaintiff may, without leave, serve a notice of motion for an injunction, and may, by leave of the Court or a Judge to be obtained ex parte, serve any other notice of motion upon any defendant with the writ, or at any time after service of the writ and before the time limited for appearance of such defendant; and any notice of motion may be served on the plaintiff by any other party at any time after service of the writ upon such other party." Service with writ or before time for appearance.

Rule 213.

See Eng. (1883) R. 704. That Rule has not been continued, and it may perhaps be open to doubt how far the practice thereby authorized can now be continued.

Eng. (1883) R. 662, provided that notice of motion by a defendant might be served at any time after appearance by the defendant.

C. R. 361 made a distinction between notices of motion for an injunction, and other notices of motion, authorizing the former to be served before appearance, without leave, but requiring leave for such service in the case of other notices of motion. The English Rule requires previous leave, in all cases in which notice is served before the time limited for appearance, but the corresponding Irish Rule was held in French v. Colles, 17 L. R. Ir. 238, not to apply to injunction motions.

Where an affidavit was sworn before the issue of the writ, an injunction was granted ex parte on the undertaking of counsel to have the affidavit re-sworn and filed: Green v. Prior, W. N. 1886, 50.

Under the Eng. (1883) R. 704, it was intimated that leave to serve notice of motion with the writ could not be given where the defendant was out of the jurisdiction until an appearance had been entered: Manitoba & N. W. Land Co. Corporation v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432; sed quære in Ont., and see Hersey v. Young, W. N. 1894, 18, where leave was given, without prejudice to what might arise thereafter.

Where leave is given, that fact should be stated in the notice of motion: Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. D. 504; and see notes to Rules 184, 215. An objection that leave to serve short notice should not have been given cannot be successfully urged as a preliminary objection: Mander v. Falcke, 1891, 3 Ch. 408; 65 L. T. 454.

Quashing convictions.

Motions to Quash Convictions.—For the procedure on such motions for breach of Provincial Laws: see The Jud. Act, s. 63 supra, p. 223.

And for the procedure on such motions for breach of the Criminal Law of Canada: see C. RR. 1279-1287. Those Rules are passed under the authority of the Criminal Code and are not intended to be affected by Rule 2. They are to be found, supra, p. 140.

Evidence on Motions.—See Rules 226-230, and notes.

Affidavits to be read in support of a notice of motion must be filed before the notice is served: Rule 298. Affidavits in answer to a motion must be filed before they can be read, but not necessarily filed the day before, as was formerly the practice in Chancery.

Where a party obtained an enlargement on terms, to file affidavits but did not comply with the terms, he was not allowed to read the affidavits: Campbell v. Martin, 11 P. R. 509.

A party to a motion may read in support of his own case, the affidavits filed by his opponent: Re Margetson & Jones, 1897, 2 Ch. 214; 76 L. T. 805.

As to proof of service where the opposite party does not appear: see Scear v. Webb, 25 Ch. D. 84, and note to Rule 298.

Motion by Person not a Party.—A notice of motion, other than a notice which originates proceedings, can ordinarily only be given by a party: Re Knight, 32 Sol. Jour. 166; but see the special provisions of Rules 358 and 920. An application by a person not a party was formerly usually made by petition; but now, semble it should be by originating notice: see Rule 10. Rules 214, 215.

Length of Notice.—See notes to Rules 215 and 184.

214. If on the hearing of a motion it appears that any person to whom notice has not been given ought to have had notice, the Court may either dismiss the motion or adjourn the hearing thereof in order that notice may be given. C.R. 360. Where proper parties not served.

215.—(1) Except where otherwise expressly provided unless leave is given there shall be at least 2 days between the service of a notice of motion in an action and the day for hearing. Two clear days' notice.

(2) Unless leave is given there shall be at least 7 days between the service of an originating notice and the day for hearing. C.R. 348. Amended.

See Eng. (1883) R. 701.

Clause 1.—"At least." The day of service and day of return of the motion are both to be excluded: see Rule 173 (2). Holidays are also to be excluded: Rule 172; and for the days on which the offices are closed: see Jud. Act, s. 83, supra, p. 273. "Clear days," how computed.

Motions for judgment are held to be within this Rule: Parsons v. Harris, 6 Ch. D. 694; Pearce v. Spickett, W. N. 1876, 109; Martins v. Birney, 10 P. R. 368, and note to Rule 222. Notice of motion.

A notice of motion need not state under what Rule the party proposes to move: Re Barker's Estate, 10 Ch. D. 165-6.

Where a motion is made by leave of the Court or a Judge, the notice should so state, otherwise it is irregular: Hill v. Rimell, 8 Sim. 632. The Court should also be informed of the fact on the return of the motion; but the Court has a discretion to disregard the irregularity: Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. D. 504. Under Rule 184 affidavits were allowed to be read, though not served until after the notice of motion: Re Wyggeston Hospital v. Stevenson, 33 W. R. 551. So, where, without leave, a motion is made returnable on a day on which the Court does not sit: Armstrong v. Cayley, 13 Gr. 558, or in vacation: Maullin v. Rogers, 34 W. R. 592; 55 L. T. 121; 55 L. J. Q. B. 377; or the notice is too short: Daubney v. Shuttleworth, 1 Ex. D. 53; Deykin v. Colemon, 25 W. R. 294, it is irregular; but the Court may disregard the irregularity: see Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180; Forrest v. Davies, 26 W. R. 534, and Re Coulton, Hamling v. Elliott, 34 Ch. D. 22; 55 L. T. 464. When given by leave.

Objection to a notice of appeal, as being short, was considered waived by appearing on the appeal: Re McRae, Forster v. Davies, 25 Ch. D. 19; and by obtaining an enlargement of the motion, and demanding affidavits: Re Forlinger & Morrisburg, 9 C. L. T. 109. Waiver of irregularity.

But appearance on a motion to commit, in order to take an objection that the service is irregular, is not a waiver of the irregularity: Mander v. Falcke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; 65 L. T. 454.

Where notice of motion has not been given in sufficient time owing to a bond fide mistake, the Court may, in its discretion, allow the party in default to shew the reason of the mistake by affidavit, and allow the motion to be made on a later day: Smith v. Smacksmen Ins. Co., 32 W. R. 184.

Amendment.

In Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180, notice for a day not in the sittings was amended by inserting the proper day, the case apparently having been entered by the Clerk in the list of opposed motions for the first day of the sittings. The notice was held bad, but the amendment was allowed, the amount in question being large. In Mullin v. Rogers, supra, p. 677, the Court thought it best for the parties not to permit an amendment, the amount being small: see Williams v. De Boinville, 34 W. R. 702.

As to the case of a motion against a defendant who has failed to appear in the action, or who has given no address for service, or has ceased to have a solicitor: see note to Rule 200.

Costs, when party giving notice does not appear.

Where the party who has given notice of motion fails to appear, the party served and appearing is entitled to an order for his costs, on filing an affidavit proving service of the notice: Berry v. Exchange Trading Co., 1 Q. B. D. 77; Reg. v. Armstrong, 13 P. R. 306; Denison v. Devlin, 11 Gr. 84; in the case of motions required to be set down, special provision for such an event is made: see Rule 660. Costs of affidavits prepared, but not filed at the date of the abandonment, were allowed in Harrison v. Leutner, 16 Ch. D. 559.

Affidavit of service.

Under The Judicature Act, where an order is made in default of appearance on a motion, the former practice is still in force, and it is still necessary to produce an affidavit of service to the Registrar before the rising of the Court; it is not sufficient if it be produced in time to draw up the order: Secar v. Webb, 28 Ch. D. 84; Jones v. Bartholomew, W. N. 1883, 205; Re Rosier, Jones v. Bartholomew, 49 L. T. 442.

When notice irregular.

If the notice of motion is invalid, the party served not being bound to appear, is not entitled to costs of he does appear: Daubney v. Shuttleworth, 1 Ex. D. 53. In Re Coulton, Hamling v. Elliott, 34 Ch. D. 22, it was held that notice for a day not in the sittings is not bad, perhaps because the parties appeared on the motion: and see Fisken v. Smith, 3 Chy. Ch. 74.

When party appears unnecessarily.

As to the costs of a person who appears, though unnecessarily served, and merely to ask costs, and of one who appears quia timet an order would be made against him: see Lucas v. Fraser, 9 P. R. 319.

Where Court has no jurisdiction.

As to when costs will be given, where the Court decides that it has no jurisdiction: see supra, p. 241.

Tender of $5 costs to formal respondents.

Under C. R. 1153, formal parties might, with a notice of motion, or petition, be tendered $5 for costs, and if they appeared unnecessarily they would get no more costs: Re Sutton, 46 L. T. 740; Re Mitchell, 17 Ch. D. 515; 45 L. T. 60; but that provision has been dropped in the present Rules.

Clause 2.—Originating Notice.—These are an exception to ordinary notices of motion, and whether made returnable in Chambers or in Court, must be given seven days before the return in which holidays are to be reckoned, unless special leave is first obtained to serve a shorter notice: see Rule 172. The seven days are to be reckoned exclusive of the day of service, but inclusive of the day on which the motion is returnable: Rule 173 (1). Rule 216.

Appeals to the Appellate Division.—A notice of motion by way of appeal from a judgment at a trial to the Appellate Division is also an exception to the ordinary notice of motion, and must be seven days: Rule 491. Two days' notice of motion in other appeals is sufficient: Rule 492.

Motions to Quash Convictions.—Motions of this kind must be made on six days' notice: see Jud. Act, s. 63, supra, pp. 140, 223.

216. If satisfied that the delay necessary to give notice of motion might entail serious mischief, the Court may make an interim order ex parte. C.R. 357. When orders ex parte can be made.

See Eng. (1883) R. 698.

As to what motions are ex parte: see Dan. Pr. 5th ed., 1441, 1909; and see Rules 376, 486.

Where the opposite party though not served with a notice of motion nevertheless appears upon the motion, he is entitled to be heard, and the motion should not, in that case, be entertained ex parte: McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459.

No order of any moment should be made ex parte except in a case of emergency: Thomas v. Storey, 11 P. R. 417. An ex parte order is always taken at the peril of the party, and is liable to be moved against, if improperly made, or if material facts are suppressed on the hearing of it: Sturgeon v. Hooker, 1 De G. & S. 484; Re Gedye, 15 Beav. 254; Cortwright v. Hinds, 3 Ont. 384; Hynes v. Fisher, 4 Ont. 60; Rep. of Peru v. Dreyfus, 55 L. T. 802; Schmitten v. Foulks, W. N. 1893, 64; Re McCarthy, Pepler & Co., 15 P. R. 261; Re Collyer, etc., Co., 81 L. T. 110.

A party moving ex parte must make a frank disclosure of all material facts; his omission to do so may entitle the opposite party to have any order made on his application set aside with costs: see Collins v. North British & M. I. Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 228; Republic of Peru v. Dreyfus, 55 L. T. 802; In re Burlond, Burland v. Broxburn Oil Co., 41 Ch. D. 542; Atkinson v. Plimpton, 6 O. L. R. 566; Mair v. Comeron, 18 P. R 484.

Motions for leave to appeal from a report: Hamilton v. Tweed, 9 P. R. 448; to stay execution: Grand Trunk Ry. Co. v. Ont. & Quebec Ry. Co., 9 P. R. 420; to dismiss an abandoned appeal: Ormerod v. Bleasdale, 54 L. T. 343; or under Rule 271; Hoocy v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 114, 118, should not be made ex parte.

A motion for leave to effect substituted service of a notice of motion is ex parte: Hamilton v. Davies, W. N. 1880, 82.

An ex parte order for the examination of a witness dangerously ill was upheld as being in accordance with the former Chancery practice: Baker v. Jackson, 10 P. R. 624.

Where the party moving does not appear, the motion is called an abandoned motion. As to costs in such case: see notes to Rule 215.

As to moving against ex parte orders: see Rules 217 and notes.

Rule 217.

Service of ex parte order.

Service of Ex Parte Orders.—Ex parte orders should be served as soon as possible: Church v. Marsh, 2 Ha. 652; Dan. Pr. 5th ed., 1436. An order made on a motion on which a party affected appeared does not necessarily require to be served on such party: Farden v. Richter, 23 Q. B. D. 124; see also Hopton v. Robertson, 23 Q. B. D. 126 (n); and Cronslon v. Blair, 15 P. R. 167; except orders setting aside proceedings which, though made on notice, must be served promptly, or they will be deemed to have been abandoned: Molsons Bank v. Dillabaugh, 13 P. R. 312; but see Kelly v. Wade, 14 P. R. 66; and orders sought to be enforced by attachment must also be served.

Costs.

Costs.—Costs are not to be awarded on an ex parte motion: Rule 658, and see McLeon v. Allen, 14 P. R. 84. But presumably such costs are intended to be in the discretion of the Taxing Officer; but the awarding of costs, is a judicial function.

Ex parte orders may be moved against.

217. A party affected by an ex parte order, or any party who has failed to appear on an application through accident or mistake, or insufficient notice of the application, may move to rescind or vary the order before the Judge or officer who made the same, or any Judge or officer having jurisdiction, within four days from the time when the order comes to his notice. C.R. 358.

This Rule was passed in 1888 to meet the objections and difficulties raised in Ryon v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 535; McNabb v. Oppenheimer, 11 P. R. 214, and Taylor v. Sisters of Charity, Ib., 496; see Hughes v. Field, 9 P. R. 127.

See also Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249.

All ex parte orders are periculo petentis: Re McCarthy, Pepler & Co., 15 P. R. 261. See also notes to Rule 216.

In Reid v. Trimmer, 9 C. L. T. 391, it was held that where an order was made after an enlargement had been refused, and the opposing party had no material in answer to the motion, the order was not an ex parte one, and a motion against it should be by way of appeal.

As to ex parte orders for arrest: see R. S. O. c. 83, s. 25; Jury v. Jury, 16 P. R. 375.

An application to rescind an ex parte order made by a Local Judge was entertained by the Master in Chambers: Williams v. Harrison, 40 C. L. J. 80.

"Party affected."

"Party Affected."—Where a garnishee does not, pursuant to Rule 596, bring to the notice of the Court the claim of a third party, such third party is a "party affected," within this Rule: Porker v. McIlwain, 16 P. R. 555; 17 P. R. 84.

An execution creditor, prejudiced by an amendment of a judgment, and writs of execution issued in an action to which he was not a party, may, on application, have the order rescinded; but quære, whether this Rule applies to limit the time for making the application to rescind: see Glass v. Comeron, 9 Ont. 712; it must at any rate be made promptly: In re Deakin, 1900, 2 Q. B. 889.

The general administrator of a deceased defendant was held to be a party affected by an ex parte order appointing a judgment creditor to be receiver of defendant's interest in an estate, and another person to be administrator ad litem, although the grant of general administration was subsequent: McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 255. Rule 217.

"Party Failing to Appear through Accident, Mistake, etc."— See Flett v. Way, 14 P. R. 122; Cousins v. Cronk, 17 P. R. 348. Party failing to appear.

Procedure on Motion.—On an application under this Rule a Judge, or the Master in Chambers, has power to reconsider a matter which has been brought before him ex parte, and to receive additional evidence both for and against the order impeached: Flett v. Way, 14 P. R. 123; and an ex parte order so brought up for reconsideration will not stand or fall upon the sufficiency of the affidavits on which it was made: Cairns v. Airth, 16 P. R. 100. Procedure on motion to set aside ex parte order.

For the purpose of a motion under this Rule to set aside a judgment obtained by default, the action is still pending, so as to make service of the solicitor on the record, good service: Muir v. Guinane, 10 O. L. R. 367.

The motion to rescind or vary may be supported, or opposed, by matter not before the Judge or officer when the order was made. The motion is not an appeal, but is a substantive motion, and the question is not alone whether the order should have been made, but whether, having been made, it should, in view of any change in the state of affairs, or position of the parties, be rescinded: Howland v. Dominion Bank, 15 P. R. 63; Cairns v. Airth, and Cousins v. Cronk, supra; Allison v. Breen, 19 P. R. 119, 143.

But the right of the party supporting the order to go into further evidence, will not prevent the order from being set aside if it should appear that there was not a fair disclosure of all material facts at the time the order was obtained.

Orders made from time to time ex parte, renewing a writ of summons (thus preventing the application of the Statute of Limitations) were rescinded, where the plaintiff knew, but did not disclose, that he knew where the defendant could be served: Muir v. Cameron, 18 P. R. 484. But an application to rescind an order renewing a writ of summons was refused where it appeared that nothing had been withheld from the officer who made the order, and that he had been satisfied with the efforts shown to have been made to effect service, though it appeared that the defendant had not changed his address, and that it might have been ascertained from a directory: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Tennant, 5 O. L. R. 524.

Where costs were awarded against a non-appearing defendant by a Divisional Court, under the impression that he was represented on an appeal, a subsequent application by such defendant to vary the order of the Divisional Court, by striking out the order for payment of costs, was entertained and allowed: Cousins v. Cronk, 17 P. R. 348.

Costs of the application may be refused though it is successful: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137; In re Kitson, 1911, 2 K. B. 109.

In Brown v. Pepall, 23 O. L. R. 630, it was held that an order purporting to be made on consent, but which did not in fact follow the terms of the consent, is not an ex parte order though made in the absence of the opposite party, and could only be varied on appeal: sed quære, if every order is not ex parte which is made in the presence of only one of the parties, unless made with the consent of the absent party; an order improvidently made contrary to the terms of a consent is not a consent order, and appears to be as much ex parte as if there were no consent at all. If such an order could only be corrected on appeal, then affidavits to show that the Court had misinterpreted the consent would be inadmissible, which might in some cases work injustice..

Motion by way of appeal.

218. Every notice of motion by way of appeal shall specify the grounds intended to be argued. C.R. 363.

C. R. 363 only applied to motions by way of appeal from, or to set aside an award. The present Rule includes those, and all other motions by way of appeal.

As to irregularities: see Rule 219.

Irregularity to be stated in notice.

219. A notice of motion to set aside a proceeding for irregularity shall specify the irregularity complained of and the objections intended to be insisted on. C.R. 362.

It may be sufficient if the notice refers to grounds of irregularity appearing in the affidavits. Where an irregularity complained of was not thus specified, the motion was dismissed, though the irregularity was proved: Dominion S. & I. Co. v. Kilroy, 12 P. R. 19; see also Blain v. Bloin, 9 P. R. 269; and Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172; Wright v. Wright, 13 P. R. 268; and Vonsickle v. Boyd, 14 P. R. 469, in the note to Rule 291, where an irregularity in an affidavit was held to be waived, objection not having been taken as required by this Rule: and see Wood v. Worth, 5 O. W. N. 452.

A party moving against an irregularity must himself be regular, and is not entitled to any indulgence: Scott v. Burnham, 3 Chy. Ch. 399; Waterous v. Forron, 6 P. R. 31; Poole v. Poole, 2 Chy. Ch. 379; Donelly v. Jones, 4 Chy. Ch. 48; he must move promptly: Miller v. Miller, 9 U. C. L. J. 132; and before taking a fresh step in the action: Manning v. Birely, 2 C. L. J. 331; Lorkin v. Armstrong, 1 Chy. Ch. 31; Mulkern v. Doerks, 51 L. T. 429; Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395; or making any demand respecting the alleged irregular proceedings which would put the opposite party to expense: Carpenter v. Hamilton, 2 Chy. Ch. 282; Bennett v. O'Meoro, 2 Chy. Ch. 167; Re Forlinger and Morrisburg, 9 C. L. T. 109; or he may be held to have waived the irregularity; but see Hunt v. Worsfold, 1896. 2 Ch. 224; 74 L. T. 456, where North, J., refused to follow Mulkern v. Doerks.

Proceedings that are merely irregular are valid until set aside, but a nullity has no effect whatever: Fuller v. McLean, 8 P. R. 549. See also notes to Rule 184.

An amendment of the notice of motion for the purpose of setting up an irregularity, will not be allowed after the time for remedying the irregularity has elapsed: see Dunlop P. T. Co. v. Actien-Gesellschaft, &c., 1902, 1 K. B. 342; 86 L. T. 472.

Application turned into motion for judgment.

220. The Court may direct any application to be turned into a motion for judgment. C.R. 617.

There is no corresponding English Rule.

Rules 221, 222.

The Court may direct a motion for an interim receiver, or injunction, to be turned into a motion for judgment, where it is satisfied that there is no other question to be tried; and the consent of parties is not necessary: Merritt v. Nissen, Divl. Court, 12 Dec., 1900; King v. Toronto, per Britton, J., 29 Dec., 1902.

See this Rule applied in Byrne v. Box, 2 C. L. T. 47; but in Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 264 (revereing S. C., 16 P. R. 78), it was held by the Court of Appeal that this Rule could not be applied to turn an appeal from the Master in Chambers refusing a motion under C. R. 603, into a motion for judgment under this Rule.

This Rule was applied, with the consent of parties, on an appeal to the Appellate Division from an order made on appeal from the Master's report, which, by consent of parties, was turned into a motion for judgment on further directions: Re Nichols & Hall, 26 June, 1913.

Court may order speedy trial and change venue.

221. When upon an application for an interim injunction or upon any other motion it appears expedient to direct an early trial, the Court may make such order as may be deemed necessary to secure an early hearing, either at the place named for trial or such other place as may be convenient. New. See English Rule 657*a*.

The Eng. Rule referred to is 657 (1a.). This Rule virtually permits the Court to change the venue sua sponte if it shall appear expedient so to do, and to direct a trial in any County it may see fit, notwithstanding Rule 245. This may not only be done on a motion for an interim injunction, but upon "any motion." The Rule, however, will probably only be acted on in cases where it appears for some special reason to be in the interests of justice that the trial should be expedited, or the venue changed.

Summary relief on motion upon admissions in pleadings, etc.

222. A party may, at any stage of an action, apply for such judgment or order as he may, upon any admissions of fact in the pleadings, or in the examination of any other party, be entitled to; and it shall not be necessary to wait for the determination of any other question between the parties; or he may so apply where the only evidence consists of documents and such affidavits as are necessary to prove their execution or identity without the necessity of any cross-examination, or where infants are concerned, and evidence is necessary so far only as they are concerned, for the purpose of proving facts which are not disputed. C.R. 616.

See Eng. 1883, R. 376.

Scope of Rule.—The object of this Rule is to enable a plaintiff or defendant to get summary relief in the action, or as to so much of the action as there is no controversy respecting. If the whole matter of the action is not in controversy, either party may be entitled to move on the admission as to the part not in controversy: Thorp v. Holdsworth, 3 Ch. D. at p. 640.

Rule 222.

Under this Rule the admieeion on which the motion is founded must be either in the pleadings, or the examination of the party.

There cannot be en admiseion under thie Rule in the pleadings, until both claim and defence (Jurmer v. Davis, 23 Sol. Jour. 462), have been delivered: McLeod v. Sexsmith, 12 P. R. 606; the indorsement on a writ was held to be not a pleading within the Rule: Wallis v. Jackson, 23 Ch. D. 204, followed by Boyd, C., in Fell v. Williams, thongh not mentioned in the report: 3 C. L. T. 358: eee also Gillott v. Ker, 24 W. R. 428; and the reference to pieadings in the Rule.

The admissions muet be clear and definite: Landergan v. Fcost, 55 L. T. 42; 55 L. J. Chy. 505; and the Court will not under this Rule, order money to be paid into Court upon an interiocutory application, except upon a cleer admission that the party required to pay hes it in hand: Neville v. Matthewman, 1894, 3 Ch. 345; an admission that the party ie responsible therefor is not enough: Nutter v. Holland, 1894, 3 Ch. 408; Crompton & E. Union Bank v. Burton, 1895, 2 Ch. 711; 73 L. T. 181; hut see Re Benson, 1899, 1 Ch. 39; 79 L. T. 590; hut where a defendant admitted that ehe held in her hende funde of an infant, but claimed a discretionary trust therein, which was heid not to be the fact, she was ordered to bring the fund into Court: Whitewood v. Whitewood, 19 P. R. 183.

Admissions not in pleadings.

Admissions in lettere written hy a trustee before, and after, action brought, that he has received trust funde, and the recital of that fact in the eettlement, the execution of which by the trustee has been proved, are under the English Rule eufficient admissions to support an order for payment into Court, although there is no formal admission in the pleadings: Hampden v. Wallis, 27 Ch. D. 251; see also Porrett v. White, 31 Ch. D. 52; and eo are admissions in a letter by the defendant'e solicitor: Ellis v. Allen, 1914, 1 Ch. 904; sed quære, if they would he sufficient under this Rule, which requires the admission to be in the pleadings, or examination of the party.

Jurisdiction of Court on motion for judgment on admissions.

The Court can, on an interiocutory application, when it has before it the parties to an account, look at all the facts of the cese, and use ite discretion as to dieellowing chargee to which the party making them is clearly not entitled, and may order peyment into Court of the sum which it thue decidee to be pieinly due to the other party: Wanklyn v. Wilson, 35 Ch. D. 180.

Ordinarily an action will not be tried piecemeal: but where the claim of the plaintiff against the defendants ie severeble, and one defendant does not eppear, or doee not deliver a defence, and enother delivers a defence in which the plaintiff's right to relief is admitted, the plaintiff mey proceed againet the letter under thie Rule, and against the former by defeult: Re Smith's Estate, Bridson v. Smith, 24 W. R. 392; Parsons v. Horris, 6 Ch. D. 694; see, however, Warner v. Dovies, 79 L. T. Jour. 136; but semble the motion ageinst both parties should ordinerily he made et the same time. See also Jenkins v. Davies, 1 Ch. D. 696, where a statement of defence, purporting to be the defence of a husband and wife, raised no defence as regarded the hushend, end the plaintiff wes held entitled under the English rules of pleading (though it would be otherwise here under Rule 144) to judgment against the husband as edmitting the plaintiff's claim, without waiting for the determination of the case against the wife. Where the plaintiff'e claim againet several defendants is not severable, the action should be brought to a trial or hearing against all of them at the same time: see notes to Rule 354. Rule 222.

The Rule is applicable at any stage of the action, after pleadings: McLeod v. Sexsmith, supra, and therefore it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment on an admission under this Rule, though he had delivered a reply, and the action was set down for trial: Brown v. Pearson, 21 Ch. D. 716; and the Rule may be acted on at the trial: Tildesley v. Harper, 7 Ch. D. 403. After a judgment obtained without pleadings, the Rule was held to be applicable on a motion under Rule 105 for leave to issue execution against a person who had been served as a partner under a judgment against the firm, the necessary admissions appearing in an examination of the person upon an affidavit made by him on the motion: Tennont v. Manhard, 12 P. R. 619; but there is no power under this Rule to determine summarily the liability of an alleged partner who was not served with the writ, and who disputes his liability: Standard Bank v. Frind, 14 P. R. 355; and see S. C. in appeal, 15 P. R. 438. Motion for judgment on admissions at any stage.

The entering of a dispute note under Rule 50, limiting the defence to a part of the sum claimed, and admitting the remainder, was held to be an admission under this Rule: Crawford v. Gemmell, 7 C. L. T. 117; but see now Rule 50.

It is in the discretion of the Judge whether to give relief on the motion or not, and the Appellate Division will not review his discretion: Mellor v. Sidebottom, 5 Ch. D. 342.

On a plaintiff's motion for judgment where all the facts are before the Court, and the conclusion is against the plaintiff, the action, and not merely the motion, may be dismissed: Hill v. Hill, 2 O. L. R. 289, 541; 3 O. L. R. 202. So also on a defendant's motion, where, in an action for libel against a newspaper, it appeared by the pleadings and the admission of the plaintiff in his examination for discovery that no notice had been given as required by The Libel and Slander Act, (R. S. O. c. 71), s. 8, the action was dismissed with costs: Benner v. Mail Printing Co., 24 O. L. R. 507. Action may be dismissed.

A defendant may move upon an admission entitling him to the "relief" of having the action dismissed: Pascoe v. Richards, 50 L. J. Chy. 337; 44 L. T. 87; The Naples, 35 W. R. 59; Coyle v. Coyle, 19 P. R. 97; Herman v. Wilson, 32 Ont. 60.

The Court acting under this Rule has decided, on the pleadings, the question whether the facts set up by the defence constituted a legal defence: Ontario Bank v. Young, 2 O. L. R. 761; but it has since been held that the Rule does not apply to the case of the alleged insufficiency in law of statements of fact pleaded in the defence: and that in such case the procedure provided by Rules 122 or 124 should be followed: Edwards v. Cole, 8 O. L. R. 140.

In an action for infringement of a patent, the defendant admitted the infringement in ten instances, but denied any other infringement. On a motion for judgment on the pleadings the plaintiff was held bound to take the denial as well as the admissions, and was entitled to an inquiry as to damages limited to the ten instances admitted: United Telephone Co. v. Donohue, 31 Ch. D. 339. Admissions must be taken as pleaded.

An admission by defence must be taken just as it is pleaded: Demorest v. Midland Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 640. Thus in an action on a policy of insurance for £1,000, a defence that on an apportionment of the loss under a certain condition in the policy, the defendants were liable for £82 only, was set up. The plaintiffs were not allowed to have judgment for thie, and proceed for more; the defendants' contention being that the admiasion was, that £62 was due as the result of an entire defence shewing that no more was due: Andrews v. Patriotic Assurance Co., 18 L. R. Ir. 115; and eee Barrie v. Toronto & N. P. Co., 11 O. L. R. 48.

Admission by partner.

The statement of one partner on hia examination (in a suit against the firm), aa to transactions which occurred during the partnership, binds all the partners, unless they seek by examination of some of themselvea to contradict or qualify the statements of the partner whoae evidence they object to: Taylor v. Cook & Co., 11 P. R. 80.

Mortgage actions.

In a forecloeure action, the statement of defence craved leave to refer to deeds mentioned in the etatement of claim, and, eave as by such deeds when produced ahould appear, the defence did not admit that they were to the effect mentioned in the statement of claim. Upon motion for judgment under thie Rule, the deeds being produced, it was held that there was a sufficient admission of the execution of the deeds, as they appeared to be of the dates, and made between the partiee, mentioned in the statement of claim: Barnard v. Wieland, W. N. 1882, 103; 30 W. R. 947.

Judgment for poasession was given against a mortgagor who admitted the mortgage and default eimply: Truet & Loan Co. v. Hill, 9 P. R. 8; so where he admitted that his mortgage was in defeult and that plaintiff was mortgagee, merely eaying, in addition, that aome one else was in posseesion: Padgett v. Binns, W. N. 1884, 10; see also Croft v. Collingwood, Ib., 33.

In Coddington v. Jacksonville, Peneacola and Mobile Railway Co., 39 L. T. 12, the plaintiff claimed a charge upon certain honds of a foreign state which were depoeited in the hank to the credit of the cause. The defendants, in their answer, admitted the plaintiff's title, and an order wae made, hefore the hearing, for the eale of the honds as periahable goode within the meaning of Rule 371.

Examples of relief given on motion.

Under thia Rule in a partition action, an inquiry wae directed as to the persona interested in the property: Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 688; an order for sale was made: Burnell v. Burnell, 11 Ch. D. 213; an order was made for taking the accounte of partnership dealings: Turquand v. Wilson, 1 Ch. D. 85; the agent of the trusteee of a will was ordered to deliver up all eecurities relating to the testator's eetate, and to account for all euma received on hehalf of the estate: Rumsey v. Reade, 1 Ch. D. 643; and an order wae made for a dissolution of a partnership: Thorp v. Holdsworth, 3 Ch. D. 637; aee also Bennett v. Moore, 1 Ch. D. 692; Martin v. Gale, 4 Ch. D. 428. Probahly also the common application for payment into Court by an accounting party of a sum admitted to be in hia hands may now, at any rate hefore judgment, he made in Chamhera under this Rule, though formerly made in Court: Re Curry, 8 P. R. 340. As to what la a eufficient admission for thia purpoae: see Re Curry, supra; Re Babcock, 8 Gr. 409; Collins v. Orme, 3 Chy. Ch. 70; London Syndicate v. Lord, 8 Ch. D. 84; Freeman v. Cox, Ib., 148; Symonds v. Jenkins, 34 L. T. 277; Re Beeny, Ffrench v. Sproston, 1894, 1 Ch. 499; Hollis v. Burton, 1892, 3 Ch. 228; Nutter v. Holland, 1894, 3 Ch. 408; Crompton & E. Union Bank v. Burton, 1895, 2 Ch. 711; 73 L. T. 181; Neville v. Matthewman, 1894, 3 Ch. 345; Re Benson, 1899, 1 Ch. 39; 79 L. T. 590.

A foreclosure decree was refused where the defence did not admit the mortgage deed: Davies v. Smith, 29 Sol. Jour. 115, [or Smith v. Davies, 29 Sol. Jour. 132]: see W. N. 1884, 242; 52 L. T. 19. Rule 222. Insufficient admission.

Where a solicitor put in a fraudulent defence for his client, without the knowledge of the client, making admissions on which judgment was obtained against the client, the judgment was set aside and the client allowed to withdraw the defence and put in a fresh one: Williams v. Preston, 20 Ch. D. 672.

Practice on Motion.—Notice of motion need only be served upon the defendant who makes the admission, where the cause of action is severable: Macmillan v. Australasian, etc., 76 L. T. 182. Practice on motion for judgment on admissions.

Those provisions of this Rule, which are not contained in the English Rule, are taken from the former Chancery order regulating hearings on motion for decree (see Chy. O. 270), and on bill and answer.

Both those methods of hearing a case were formerly employed in cases involving the consideration of important questions of law. Suits for the construction of wills are familiar examples: see for instance, Fuller v. Macklem, 25 Gr. 455; Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 407; Patton v. Hickson, 25 Gr. 102; Clarkson v. Scott, 25 Gr. 373. In such cases this Rule is no doubt applicable, and the motion will be properly made in Court: Rogers v. Wilson, 12 Ont. 322. In simpler cases similar to those in which the English Rule was intended to apply, the application may in England be made in Chambers: see Gough v. Heatley, W. N. 1884, 14; 32 W. R. 385; 49 L. T. 772; Cook v. Heynes, Ib. 75; London, etc., v. Digby, 36 W. R. 497; 58 L. T. 724; 57 L. J. Chy. 505; Allen v. Oakley, 2 L. T. 724. Applications under C. R. 616 were formerly entertained by the Master in Chambers: see Trust and Loan Co. v. Hill, 9 P. R. 8; Cook v. Lemieux, 10 P. R. 577; Taylor v. Cook, 11 P. R. 60; Heneberry v. Turner, 2 Ont. 284; and see Ladies Tailoring Assoc. v. Clarkson, 27 C. L. J. 501. But it is open to doubt whether under the present Rules any motion for judgment can be made in Chambers except in the cases specified: see Rule 207 (8).

All the plaintiffs on the record must join in, or be parties to, the motion under this Rule: Re Wright, Kirke v. North, 1895, 2 Ch. 747; 73 L. T. 396.

Formerly in Chancery on a motion for decree the examination of a defendant might be read, with his answer, against him: Proctor v. Grant, 9 Gr. 31; Mathers v. Short, 14 Gr. 255; see also Powell v. Lea, 20 Gr. 521; and Rogers v. Wilson, 12 P. R. 322, 545; and on a motion for judgment under this Rule the defendant's examination for discovery may be read: Coyle v. Coyle, 19 P. R. 97. Affidavits proving exhibits might formerly be read on motion for decree under Chy. O. 270, or on a hearing on bill and answer: see Killaly v. Graham, 2 Gr. 281; Chalk v. Raine, 13 Jur. 981. And this would seem to be admissible under this Rule unless the documents in question are disputed: see Cook v. Lemieux, 10 P. R. 577. It may be found that, upon the documents which may be referred to, the questions raised in the action cannot satisfactorily be disposed of, in which case the action may be directed to be brought on for trial in the usual way: Gardner v. Brown (before Galt, C.J., 28th October, 1889). What may be read.

In England an application may be made where the judgment asked for is in the nature of a final judgment, and not merely interlocutory:

Rule 222.

Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686; Jenkins v. Davies, 1 Ch. D. 696; Re Borker's Estate, 10 Ch. D. 162, 165; but it has been held that the party moving must have a clear case, and if he claims a right which does not exist at law, the fact that it is not denied in the other party's pleadings will not entitle him to judgment: Chilton v. London, 7 Ch. D. 735; see Rule 261.

It seems that in England, as a matter of form, further directions cannot be reserved; but the same object is accomplished by declaring that the further consideration of the action is adjourned: Bennett v. Moore, 1 Ch. D. 692; Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686; Brassington v. Cussons, 24 W. R. 881. No difficulty of that kind would seem to arise here, and where the motion is made in Chambers the motion on further directions should also be made in Chambers: McGillicuddy v. McCarthy, 7 C. L. T. 165.

Where the plaintiff makes no case the action, and not merely the motion, should be dismissed: Hill v. Hill, 2 O. L. R. 541; 3 O. L. R. 202; Hermon v. Wilson, 32 Ont. 60.

In an action on a foreign judgment where the only defence was a denial of the judgment, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to judgment, under this Rule, upon the pleadings and an exemplification of the judgment, as it was necessary for the plaintiff to give evidence to connect the defendant with it, and support its genuineness, the defendant having put the judgment distinctly in issue: Henebery v. Turner, 2 Ont. 284.

In reply the plaintiff admitted that a collision was not due to default of the defendant, or those on board, and submitted to a decree that it was due to inevitable accident. On motion by the defendant on the admission, the action was dismissed with costs: The Naples, 35 W. R. 59.

In an action by the payee against the maker of a note the defendant, on examination, said that the note had been made and delivered to a trading company for a purpose other than that for which the company had deposited it with the plaintiffs, but did not allege notice to the plaintiff. Judgment for the plaintiff was granted: Ontario Bank v. Young, 2 O. L. R. 761.

Where the plaintiff's case is not conclusively made out, the motion will be refused: Cook v. Lemieux, 10 P. R. 577, where it was held that much care must be taken in cases under this Rule not to take away the right of trial on viva voce evidence: see also Gardner v. Brown, supra, and Bornum v. Henry, 9 O. L. R. 319.

The whole of an admission in a pleading must be looked at, and the sense, and not merely the grammatical construction or the form thereof, is to be regarded as the criterion of the extent and scope of the admission: Dovey v. Irwin, 4 Ont. 8; Borrie v. Toronto & N. P. Co., 11 O. L. R. 48; and it must be clear and distinct: Londergan v. Feost, 34 W. R. 691; 55 L. T. 42.

Counter-claim as an answer to a motion.

Where the plaintiff's claim is admitted, but the defendant sets up a counter-claim for damages for a larger amount, the plaintiff is not necessarily entitled to judgment upon the admission of his claim. The proceeding upon the plaintiff's claim may be stayed on proper terms pending the disposition of the counter-claim: Rule 117 (1). Semble, if the counter-claim is apparently frivolous or unsubstantial, the plaintiff would be entitled to have the amount of his claim brought into Court to await the result: Mersey Steamship Co. v. Shuttleworth, 10 Q. B. D. 468; 11 Q. B. D. 531. A judgment for the plaintiff was granted, where the counter-claim was in fact an independent claim for damages as to the quality of other goods than those for the price of which the plaintiff was suing; but execution was directed to be stayed till after the trial, on the defendant paying the amount of the judgment into Court: Showell v. Bowron, W. N. 1883, 30; 31 W. R. 550; 48 L. T. 613; 52 L. J. Q. B. 284; Sheppards v. Wilkinson, 6 T. L. R. 13; Court v. Sheen, 7 T. L. R. 556. Rule 223.

Terms.—And where a plaintiff had obtained judgment on the pleadings against the defendant under this Rule, and the defendant appealed therefrom, and at the same time applied for leave to amend his defence, and set up a counter-claim, leave was granted, and the judgment recovered by the plaintiff was directed to stand as a security for what might ultimately be found due to the plaintiff: Auerbach v. Hamilton, 19 O. L. R. 570, and the term of payment of the amount into Court was refused. Terms, etc., where there is a counter-claim.

Withdrawing or Abandoning Admissions.—Where admissions were made not in pleadings, or in any document filed, but in a statement of facts agreed to by both parties, the plaintiff was held to be at liberty to abandon the admissions without any motion to be relieved from them, and to proceed with the action by statement of claim in the usual way, countermanding a notice of motion given by him for judgment on the statement of facts: Post v. O'Connor, 19 P. R. 301. Withdrawing admissions.

As to allowing an admission to be withdrawn: see Hollis v. Burton, 1892, 3 Ch. 226.

223.—(1) The Court may adjourn for consideration in Chambers any motion or matter brought before it which should have been brought on in Chambers or which, though properly brought on in Court, may, in the opinion of the Court, be disposed of more conveniently in Chambers; and any motion or matter brought or in Chambers which should have been brought on in Court may be adjourned into Court. Matters may be adjourned from Court to Chambers, and vice versa.

(2) Any motion or matter improperly brought before the Master in Chambers or a Local Judge may be adjourned by him before the Court or a Judge in Chambers. C.R. 367. Amended.

Quære, whether a Judge in Chambers can refer matters properly before him to the Appellate Division: see Hood-Borrs v. Cothcart, 72 L. T. 184; and see Jud. Act, s. 43, supra, p. 205.

Under C. R. 44, the Master in Chambers had power to refer any matter pending before him to a Judge, but that Rule has not been continued; and semble, there is no longer any such power, unless where the case is improperly brought before him. Under this Rule it would seem to be the duty of the officer to dispose of every application properly made to him: Hughes v. Rees, 9 P. R. 86; see also Hood-Barrs v. Cothcart, supra.

Rules 224-227.

A Local Judge has not power to transfer a motion, which may properly be heard by him, to be heard by the Master in Chambers, though the latter officer would have had jurisdiction to hear the motion had it been made originally before him: Mahoney v. Welsh, 6 O. W. R. 18.

When guardian to be notified.

224. Where an infant or lunatic is a defendant or interested in a fund in Court, no order in any way affecting his interest shall be made without notice to his guardian ad litem or committee. C.R. 359. Amended.

Half an hour's attendance on a summons, or appointment is sufficient.

225. An attendance on a motion in Chambers, or on an appointment before a Master, Registrar, or other officer, for half an hour next immediately following the return thereof, shall be deemed a sufficient attendance, and no such motion shall be made or matter be proceeded with ex parte, before the expiry of such half-hour. C.R. 350.

Evidence on motion.

226. Evidence upon a motion may be given by affidavit. C.R. 489.

An applicant who has failed to make out his case on his own affidavits, may read the affidavits of his opponent if they supply what is lacking: Re Margetson & Jones, 1897, 2 Ch. 314; 76 L. T. 805, and see notes to Rule 298.

It was held that a Judge could not, on an interlocutory motion, properly decide the matter in controversy by a personal inspection of the subject matter in dispute, in lieu of taking evidence orally, or by affidavit: London General Omnibus Co. v. Lovell, 1901, 1 Ch. 135; 83 L. T. 453. See notes to Rule 267.

It has been held in England, that affidavits in reply may bring forward additional evidence in support of the original case, and are not restricted by this Rule, to the points raised by the defendant's evidence: Peacock v. Harper, 7 Ch. D. 648; see also Adair v. Young, W. N. 1879, 8; Roe v. Davies, 2 Ch. D. 731; but see Re Ferris & Eyre, 18 Ont. 395, and Gilbert v. Comedy Opera Co., infra.

Affidavits filed by a plaintiff in reply will not, upon an interlocutory motion, be ordered to be taken off the files, upon an allegation by the defendant that they are not confined to matters strictly in reply, though at the argument, if it should turn out to be so, the Court will not regard them, or may give leave to the defendant to answer them: Gilbert v. Comedy Opera Company, 29 W. R. 169; 43 L. T. 665.

This Rule has been held applicable to proceedings under The Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144): Re Boynes Carriage Co., 27 O. L. R. 144.

Cross-examination on affidavit.

227. A person who has made an affidavit to be used upon a motion or at a trial or on a reference, may be cross-examined thereon, before any officer having jurisdiction in the county in which the witness resides, upon being served with a subpœna for that purpose. C.R. 490.

Based upon Chy. O. 268. C. R. 490 expressly excepted affidavits on production. That exception though not in this Rule, nevertheless appears still to exist, as such affidavits do not appear to come within the Rule, not being made to be used on a motion at a trial, or on a reference; and a party cannot be cross-examined on an affidavit on production in support of a motion for a better affidavit on production: Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 500; but, although a party is not liable to cross examination on an affidavit on production, this does not preclude the opposite party, on an examination for discovery, from inquiring as to the existence of material documents not referred to in the affidavit: MacMahon v. Railway Passengers Assur. Co., 26 O. L. R. 430. Rule 227.

This Rule is held not to apply to proceedings to set aside a municipal election: Rex e. r. Beck v. Sharp, 16 O. L. R. 267; in such cases the leave of the Judge, or Master in Chambers, must be first obtained before a cross-examination on affidavits can be had: Ib. Whether the Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to make such an order is not quite clear: see The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), ss. 171, 173 (2), and Rule 208 (13).

C. R. 490 was held not to apply to proceedings in a Divisional Court: Trethewey v. Trethewey, 10 O. W. R. 893; but see Rushton v. Grand Trunk Ry., 6 O. L. R. 425; nor to proceedings in the Master's office: Plenderleith v. Parsons, 10 O. L. R. 436, but in its present form Rule 227 appears to apply to any affidavit filed on any motion, or on any reference. It may be noted that the collocation of the Rules, on which the latter case is based is not the same in these Rules, and C. R. 668 has been dropped: C. R. 669, however, is retained: see Rule 411, and it may probably be held that even under this Rule if a cross examination on any affidavit used on a reference is desired, that it must be taken before, and subject to the direction of, the Master before whom the reference is pending.

A party cannot withdraw an affidavit which he has given notice of reading, so as to avoid a cross-examination of the deponent: Clarke v. Law, 2 K. & J. 28; Pike v. Dickinson, 21 W. R. 862; W. N. 1873, 178; Re Quartz Mining Co., 47 L. T. 644; 21 Ch. D. 642.

The opposite party may cross-examine witnesses who have made affidavits though they are not read: Re Ottaway W. N. 1882, 9; 30 W. R. 282; Re Quartz Hill, etc., Co., supra; but see Mosson v. Thorley's Food Co., W. N. 1879, 181.

The party cross-examined cannot insist on the passage in his affidavit being read, or shewn, to him, before he answers: Gwynne v. Watney, 31 L. T. O. S. 231.

Cross-examination on affidavits filed in answer to a motion not properly made may be refused: Canada Bank of Commerce v. Bricker, 1 C. L. T. 729, until the question of the propriety of the motion has been determined.

As to the mode of compelling attendance for cross-examination: see Rules 338-347.

The right to re-examine necessarily follows upon cross-examination: Rex v. Noel, 6 O. L. R. 385; even as to matter elicited during cross-examination, which is inadmissible or volunteered, unless the cross-examiner submits to such matter being expunged.

Rule 228.

The Rule has been held to apply to proceedings under The Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144): Re Baynes Carriage Co., 27 O. L. R. 144.

Upon an examination of a witness under this Rule he may be required to produce documents in his possession, but where he is the servant of a company, and a witness on its behalf, the company can only be required to produce its books for his examination so far as may be necessary to contradict or test the accuracy of the witness's evidence: Re Baynes Carriage Co., 27 O. L. R. 244.

The affidavit of justification of a surety in an appeal bond filed, was held to be an affidavit used in a proceeding within Chy. O. 263: Hughes v. Hughes, 17 C. L. J. 110; 1 C. L. T. 189; but would not appear to be within this Rule.

When the proceeding for which the affidavit has been filed has been disposed of, the right of cross-examination is gone: Catholic Printing Co. v. Wimon, 11 W. R. 399; Felan v. McCill, 3 Chy. Ch. 56; Clendinning v. Varcoe, 7 P. R. 61.

Deponents making affidavits in reply, are liable to cross-examination: Re Foster, 6 P. R. 95; 9 C. L. J. 313.

As to the extent to which the affiant may be cross-examined: see Wilson v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 203.

Attendance of witnesses for examination in motions how procured.

228. Any party may by subpœna require the attendance of a witness to be examined, before any officer having jurisdiction in the county in which the witness resides, for the purpose of using his evidence upon any motion. C.R. 491.

C. R. 491, enabled evidence to be taken not only for use on any motion, but also on "any other proceeding." The present Rule is confined to evidence required upon any motion.

Motion must be pending.

A motion must be pending to enable a party to proceed under this Rule: Traders' Bank v. Kean, 13 P. R. 60. Depositions taken when no motion is pending, are irregular, and cannot be read: Stovel v. Coles, 3 Chy. Ch. 362; and an appointment to examine in such circumstances will be set aside: McLaren v. Tew, 3 O. W. N. 1376.

A party cannot, under cover of a motion for particulars, proceed to examine a party for discovery: D. v. W. 3 O. W. N. 993.

An ex parte motion is a "motion . . . before the Court" within the Rule: Dunlop v. Dunlop, 9 O. L. R. 372.

Subpœna, date of.

Where the evidence of a person who refuses to make an affidavit is sought in support of an ex parte motion, the motion must be mentioned, and an adjournment obtained for the purpose of procuring the desired evidence under this Rule; or else an order for the examination of the witness must be obtained under Rule 271.

A subpœna for the examination of a witness, dated prior to the time at which the party issuing the same was entitled to examine the witness, was held to be irregular: McMurray v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 3 Chy. Ch. 130.

A party as well as a stranger may be examined as a witness under this Rule, and the consequence of default in attendance is to put him in contempt: Clark v. Campbell, 15 P. R. 338; and where the evidence of the party in default is required in support of a motion to set aside, or vary, an order obtained by such party, the operation of such order may in the meantime be suspended: Ib. Rule 228.

Evidence may be taken under this Rule in support of a motion for a new trial: Rushton v. Grand Trunk Ry., 6 O. L. R. 425.

The witness, though not a party to the action, may move to set aside the subpœna and appointment served on him: Dunlop v. Dunlop, 5 O. W. R. 258, 305; and see London & Globe v. Kaufman, 48 W. R. 458; 1899, W. N. 240.

This Rule was held to apply to proceedings under The Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144): Re Baynes Corriage Co., 27 O. L. R. 144; and see S. C. 27 O. L. R. 244.

The Rule does not apply to criminal proceedings, e.g., motions to quash convictions: Reg. v. Hayword, 32 C. L. J. 30; or to a summary proceeding under The Assignments and Preferences Act (R. S. O. c. 134), s. 11, to remove an assignee, which is not a proceeding in an action: Re Wilson, 6 O. L. R. 564; nor to proceedings in controverted municipal elections: Rex, e. r., Beck v. Sharp, 16 O. L. R. 267. The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), provides a special code of procedure in such matters: see ss. 171, 173 (2).

229. Witnesses may by leave of the Court be examined viva voce before the Court upon any motion. C.R. 493. Viva voce examinations.

In re Fraser, 24 O. L. R. 222, a Divisional Court on an appeal from a judgment at the trial of an issue, ordered an examination of witnesses before itself, and retried the case, but this course was held not to be warranted by the former Rules: S. C. 26 O. L. R. 508: but see now Rule 265.

C. R. 493 also provided for the production of documents: see now, Rule 349; but production could only be ordered under C. R. 493 for the purposes of a pending motion, and the Court had no power under that Rule to order a person, not a party to the action, to produce documents in his possession merely for the purpose of enabling a party to the action to inspect the same before trial: see Straker v. Reynolds, 22 Q. B. D. 262; 60 L. T. 107; Central News Co. v. Eastern Telegraph Co., 53 L. J. Q. B. 236; Elder v. Carter, 25 Q. B. D. 194.

A person called on to produce documents under this Rule is entitled to take the same objection to produce them as he would on being served with a subpœna duces tecum: Re Smith, 1891, 1 Ch. 323; 64 L. T. 253. The fact that a document has been deposited with the witness in a sealed packet does not privilege it from production: Rex v. Daye, 1908, 2 K. B. 333; 99 L. T. 165.

A witness who objects to produce a document is not entitled to be heard by counsel: Doe d. Rowcliffe v. Egremont, 2 Moo. & Rob. 386; Carson v. Davidge, 34 C. L. J. 429.

Where a number of documents are produced by a witness who is not a party, the proper course is to obtain an adjournment to ascertain which of them are material. They should not be put in en bloc, and the witness questioned as to them seriatim: Re Maplin Sands, 71 L. T. 56, 594.

Rules 230-232.

How prisoners may be brought to give evidence.

230. The Court may order the sheriff, gaoler, or other officer having the custody of any prisoner, to produce him for any examination authorized hy these Rules or as a witness at a trial. C.R. 495.

See note to Rule 273.

Default in payment, how to be proved.

231. Where money is directed to he paid into a Bank, the certificate of the cashier, manager, agent, or like officer of the Bank, of default in making such payment, shall he sufficient evidence of such default. C.R. 497.

Certificate of non-payment, how to be signed.

The certificate should be signed hy the cashier, manager, or agent, or like officer. The certificate of an accountant in the hank is not sufficient: Campbell v. Garrett, 1 Chy. Ch. 255. A certificate of default, according to the present practice, should state that the money was not paid on the date of the taking of the account or since: see formerly: Farrell v. Stokes, 1 Chy. Ch. 201. The certificate does not prove itself, but must be verified hy an affidavit.

The affidavit of the plaintiff of non-payment is usually required on the motion for a final order for sale, or foreclosure, in addition to the certificate of the bank: see Rule 486, note.

Power given to receive further evidence in all appeals, etc.

232.—(1) On all appeals, or hearings in the nature of appeals, and on all motions for a new trial, the Court or Judge appealed to shall have all the powers as to amendment and otherwise of the Court, Judge or officer appealed from, and full discretionary power to receive further evidence, either hy affidavit, oral examination before the Court or Judge appealed to, or as may he directed.

(2) Such further evidence may he given without special leave as to matters which have occurred after the date of the judgment, order or decision from which the appeal is hrought.

(3) Upon appeals from a judgment at the trial, such further evidence (save as mentioned in subsection (2)) shall he admitted on special grounds only, and not without leave of the Court. C.R. 498.

Semble, that this Rule does not apply to evidence newly discovered after the trial: Bank of B. N. A. v. Western Assurance Co., 11 P. R. 434. It is confined to cases where the evidence is sought to be introduced for the purposes of the appeal: Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Toggart, 19 P. R. 233; the Court may entertain an application to admit new evidence on, and for the purposes of, a County Court appeal: Butler v. McMicken, 32 Ont. 422.

New evidence to be admissible under this Rule must be practically conclusive, merely corroborative evidence, or evidence obtained under suspicious circumstances will not be admitted. As a rule the evidence must be of some fact essential to the case of the existence of which there is no reasonable doubt, or no room for serious dispute, and there must have been no remissness in adducing all possible evidence at the trial: Rothbone v. Michael, 20 O. L. R. 503. Rule 232.

New evidence was admitted, in Leoch v. Grand Trunk Ry., 13 P. R. 467; Burfoot v. DuMoulin, 21 Ont. 583; Dean v. Ont. Cotton Mills, 14 Ont. 119; Dolen v. Metropolitan L. A. Co., 26 Ont. 67; Warren v. Van Norman, 29 Ont. 84, 508; see also notes to Rule 257.

It would seem that a special motion for leave is not necessary, but leave may be obtained on the argument of the appeal. It will in general be advisable, however, to notify the opposite party of the intention to ask leave to give the further evidence.

See Sanders v. Sanders, 45 L. T. 637; 51 L. J. Chy. 276; 18 C. L. J. 236; Re Compton, Norton v. Compton, 27 Ch. D. 392; Robinson v. Bradshaw, 32 W. R. 95; Leach v. Grand Trunk Ry., supra; Wood v. Reesor, 22 Ont. App. 57; Re Rouse, 59 L. T. 887.

Evidence that a foreign corporation had been licensed to do business in Ontario was admitted after the argument of an appeal: Semi-Ready v. Tew, 19 O. L. R. 227; further evidence was admitted after judgment on an appeal, but before the order on appeal was issued, and upon such further evidence, the judgment on appeal was recalled, and a new one pronounced: Rathbone v. Michael, supra; and evidence of the by-law of a company authorizing the sale of its shares at a discount, was admitted on an appeal from the judgment at the trial, no objection having been made at the trial to the want of such evidence: Gowganda-Queen Mines v. Boekch, 24 O. L. R. 293; 46 S. C. R. 645; and see 27 O. L. R. 643.

For remarks as to the caution to be observed in giving leave to adduce further evidence in appellate Courts: see Merchants Bank v. Lucas, 12 P. R. 526; Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 98; and Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, 1896, 1 Ch. 108; and the remarks of Cotton, L.J., against allowing fresh evidence to meet defects in the case, seen after trial: Re Leonard & Ellis Trade Mark, 26 Ch. D. 289. Where evidence is allowed to be adduced, the opposite party has the right to cross-examine thereon: Spencer v. Ancoats V. R. Co., 84 L. T. Jour. 440.

Leave to adduce further evidence on an appeal, with a view to the reduction of damages, or a new trial, was refused, where the Court appealed from had reduced the damages if the plaintiff would consent (which he had done), but the defendants were still dissatisfied: Fraser v. London Street Ry. Co., 18 P. R. 370; but semble, where the Court finds the damages excessive in a case tried by a jury, it must order a new trial, it cannot reduce the damages, except by consent of both parties: Watt v. Watt, 1905, A. C. 115.

Where an assignment of a policy was lost, but it was doubtful whether sufficient evidence of the loss had been given to warrant the admission of secondary evidence, at the trial, further evidence by affidavit was allowed by the Divisional Court to be given on a motion against the judgment: Dolen v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 26 Ont. 67; and see Warren v. Van Normon, 29 Ont. 508.

Where a Divisional Court, on an appeal from a judgment made on the trial of an issue, directed witnesses to be examined before itself, and in effect re-tried the issue, it was held to be a procedure not warranted by the former Rules: Re Fraser, 24 O. L. R. 222; 26 O. L. R. 508.

The Supreme Court of Canada does not allow fresh evidence to be used on an appeal: Montreal v. Hogan, 31 S. C. R. 1.

Pending an appeal to the Supreme Court the appellant applied for leave to give evidence that a copy of a document put in as an exhibit was not a true copy, but it not appearing that such evidence would necessarily affect the judgment of the Court, the application was refused: Dueber Watch Co. v. Taggart, 19 P. R. 233; and see Birch v. Birch, 1902, P. 130.

233. Upon any motion the Court shall have power to direct the trial of an issue upon oral evidence and may enlarge the motion before the Judge at the trial of the issue. New.

A somewhat similar power was given by C. R. 615, which has been dropped from this revision; but see Jud. Act, s. 27 (2), supra, which to some extent embodies the provision of C. R. 615. The power to direct an issue would appear to be a part of the inherent jurisdiction of the former Court of Chancery, now vested in the Supreme Court of Ontario: see Sm. Pr. (6th ed.), 787-788. Where an order was taken, by the consent of the parties, to determine certain issues of fact in a manner which the Judge afterwards held to be beyond the powers of the Court, Jessel, M.R., refused to proceed with the trial, on the ground that any decision founded upon this consent order would not be binding upon the parties: Republic of Bolivia v. National Bolivia Nav. Co., 24 W. R. 361.

Weekly sittings in Chambers and in Court.

234.—(1) A Judge shall sit in Chambers on Tuesday and Friday, and in Court on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday in each week, except in vacation. C.R. 99.

Court motions.

(2) All papers for use in the Court at Toronto shall be filed in the Registrar's office and all papers for use in Chambers shall be filed with the Clerk in Chambers, and when no longer required all such papers and all papers forwarded for use on the motion shall be transmitted to the office in which the proceedings were commenced. C.R. 102. Amended.

Chambers motions.

(3) All papers to be used on a Chamber motion to be heard by a Judge in Chambers shall be left with the Clerk in Chambers on the day before that on which the motion is to be heard, and shall be marked with the name of the office where the proceedings were commenced. New.

Transmission from local offices.

(4) All documents sent from local offices to Toronto shall be sent to The Central Office, and the necessary return postage or express charge shall be transmitted therewith.

(5) Unless otherwise directed by the Judge, ex parte and unopposed motions in Chambers shall be heard before contested motions and appeals. C.R. 369. Rule 239. Ex parte motions.

(6) Motions and other matters to be heard in Court, except ex parte applications, shall be set down for argument, in the Registrar's office, on præcipe, at least on the day before the day of argument, and a list of the cases set down shall be posted up the day before the day for which the same are set down, and a copy shall be furnished to the Registrar or other officer who is to attend the sittings of the Court. C.R. 364. Court motions to be set down.

The Registrar's office referred to in this Rule is that of the High Court Division.

Affidavits before the Court on a motion and mentioned in the order made thereon, were held to be taxable, though filed in the office of the Clerk in Chambers instead of in the Registrars' office: Sturgeon Falls P. Co. v. Sturgeon Falls, 19 P. R. 286.

No. 8 of the Regulations of the High Court, passed on 17th Dec., 1904 (and which would appear to be still in force except as to Divisional Courts), is as follows:

"(8) When a case is required to be set down for a Divisional Court, Weekly Court or Chambers, the officer shall require the party desiring the case to be set down to indorse on the notice of motion the name of the office in which the action or proceeding was commenced, and the officer shall not set down any case without such indorsement, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge."

Motions which may be made in the Weekly Court, or in Judge's Chambers, in Toronto may also in certain cases be made at sittings for trials as provided by Rule 244.

N.B.—There are no Rules 235-238.

239. Sittings shall be held at Ottawa and London on at least one day in each week, except during vacation; and all proceedings in any action or matter which may be heard before a Judge may be heard and determined at such sittings:— Sittings of Court at Ottawa and London.

(a) Where the motion is ex parte; Matters which may be heard at such sittings

(b) Where the solicitors for all parties reside in the county in which the sittings are held;

(c) Where such solicitors who do not so reside consent to the proceeding being heard at such sittings; or register their names in the book to be kept as hereinafter provided; or

Rules 240-243.

(d) Where a Judge may direct any proceedings to be heard at such sittings. C.R. 104.

This Rule is not intended to apply to sittings for the trial of actions, but merely to such business as may be disposed of by a Judge in the Weekly Court, or in Chambers.

The register referred to in clause (c) is that mentioned in Rule 243. C. R. 106 expressly provided that the procedure in the Weekly Courts at Ottawa and London should mutatis mutandis be the same as in the Weekly Courts, or in Judges' Chambers, in Toronto, but though that Rule has been dropped that does not indicate that there is any change in the practice in this respect, as in the absence of any Rule to the contrary, that is the only procedure provided.

Duties of Deputy Clerks.

240. The Deputy Clerks of the Crown at Ottawa and London respectively, shall act as registrar and clerk of the Court. C.R. 107.

Notice of matters to be heard at sittings.

241. All proceedings to be brought on at any such sittings shall be entered for that purpose with the Deputy Clerk of the Crown on or previously to the day next but one before the day appointed for the sittings; and it shall be the duty of the Deputy Clerk on the evening of that day to telegraph the Senior Registrar at Toronto, advising him what business has been so entered, and the Registrar shall forthwith inform the Judge appointed to attend at such sittings; and if no business has been so entered it shall not be necessary for any Judge to attend. C.R. 109.

Where Judge unable to attend on the day fixed.

242. Where the Judge appointed is unable to attend, such sittings may be presided over by any other Judge or by a Judge of any County Court, upon such Judge of a County Court being requested by a Judge to attend for that purpose. C.R. 110.

Form of declaration by solicitors desiring to be registered.

243.—(1) Any solicitor may file with the Deputy Clerk of the Crown at the place of such sittings a request to the effect following:—

I, desire to be registered as consenting to the hearing and disposal at the sittings at Ottawa (or London as the case may be) of all proceedings in which I may be acting as solicitor.

"Consent register."

(2) A book to be called "The Consent Register," which shall be open to inspection by any solicitor or his clerk without fee, shall be kept by the Deputy Clerk of the Crown at Ottawa and London respectively, wherein shall be recorded such requests and the names of the local agents (if any) of the solicitors filing the request. Rule 243.

(3) A solicitor who files such request may at any time withdraw the same by giving to the same officer notice in writing to that effect, and the Deputy Clerk upon receiving such notice shall forthwith make an entry thereof in the said book. C.R. 111 and 112.

The Register referred to in this Rule appears to be in addition to that referred to in Rule 197.

Rules 244, 245.

CHAPTER XI.

TRIALS.

244. At any sittings appointed for the trial of actions any motion which may be made before a Judge in Court or in Chambers may be made if:—

(a) The solicitors for all parties consent; or

(b) The matter in controversy arise in the county; or

(c) The party opposing or showing cause or his solicitor resides in the county. C.J.A., sec. 91.

The letters "C.J.A." should be O.J.A., the reference intended being to the former Jud. Act.

Place of trial.

245.—(1) Subject to any special statutory provision the place of trial of an action shall be regulated as follows:—

(a) The plaintiff shall, in his statement of claim, or where the writ is specially indorsed, in the indorsement, name the county town at which he proposes that the action shall be tried;

(b) Where the cause of action arose and the parties reside in the same county the place to be named shall be the county town of that county;

(c) Save in mortgage actions, where possession of land is claimed, the place to be named shall be the county town of the county in which the land is situate;

(d) The action shall be tried at the place so named, unless otherwise ordered upon the application of either party. C.R. 529.

See Eng. (1883) R. 425.

Special statutory venues.

"Subject to any Special Statutory Provisions."—The exception preserves the provisions under particular statutes by which certain kinds of action are directed to be tried in some particular place.

The exception contained in the present Rule operates in favour of local venues created by Dominion Acts, and Provincial Acts contained in the Revised Statutes, or passed subsequently thereto. See Buckley v. Hull Docks, 1893, 2 Q. B. 93; 69 L. T. 347; Howard v. Herrington, 20 Ont. App. 175.

The following are instances of actions governed by Dominion Statutes which fix the venue—actions for infringements of patents under The Patent Act (R. S. C. c. 69), s. 31; see Goldsmith v. Walton, 9 P. R. 10; Aitcheson v. Mann, Ib., 253, 473; Alsop v. Cullen, 4 O. W. N. 114; actions under The Customs Act (R. S. C. c. 48), s. 162; actions for anything done in the administration of the criminal law: see Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146), s. 1143. Rule 245.

Most of the restrictions formerly contained in certain Provincial Statutes respecting the place of trial of actions in particular cases have been repealed in the recent revision of the Statutes. Actions against municipalities for default in keeping highways and bridges in repair must be tried in the county in which the municipality is situate: see Jud. Acts, s. 54 supra.

Where no special statutory provision as to the place of trial applies, this Rule prescribes a particular place: (1) In actions where the cause of action arose and the parties reside in the same county: clause (b); (2) In actions for, or including, a claim for recovery of land, other than mortgage actions: clause (c). In other cases the plaintiff makes choice of such place as he thinks fit, though it must not be vexatiously chosen.

Clause (a).—The forms of specially indorsed writs in mortgage actions do not state a place of trial. This omission should be supplied as required by this Rule: see Form 5.

The mention of a place of trial in the indorsement of a writ, not specially indorsed, does not preclude the plaintiff from naming some other place of trial in his statement of claim: St. Mary's & W. O. Ry. v. Webb, 18 O. L. R. 336.

Under the Eng. R. similar to the former C. R. 653, it was held that no new jurisdiction was conferred, and that therefore actions for damages for trespass to lands out of the jurisdiction could not be maintained: British S. African v. Companhia Mocambique, 1893, A. C. 602; and see Brereton v. Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., 29 Ont. 57.

An action to cancel a lease of a mining location, and to recover possession of the location, and to restrain the defendant from entering thereon, was held not to be an "action of ejectment" within the former Con. Rule: Kendell v. Ernst, 16 P. R. 167.

Clause (b).—This clause applies to County Court cases, and the venue may be changed and the action transferred to the Court of the County in which the cause of action arose and the parties reside: Leach v. Bruce, 9 O. L. R. 380; Corneil v. Irwin, 2 O. W. R. 466, and see Rule 767.

"Cause of Action."—Means the whole cause of action. Where part of the cause of action arises in the county in which the parties reside, and part in another country, the Rule does not apply, and the question of venue must be determined by the consideration of convenience: Conner v. Dempster, 6 O. L. R. 354.

"Parties Reside."—The residence of the plaintiff at the time of the delivery of his statement of claim, and not at the time of the issue of the writ, is the time referred to in this clause: Edsall v. Wray, 19 P. R. 245; unless the writ be specially indorsed: see clause (a).

This clause will govern a case in which the cause of action has arisen in a county in which all the parties to it, other than those who are out of the jurisdiction, reside: Saskatchewan Land, etc., Co. v. Leadley, 9 O. L. R. 556. The county town of that county should therefore be named in the statement of claim as the place of trial. Ib.

Clause (c).—This clause is intended to apply to all actions for the recovery of land, except where such relief is part of the relief claimed in mortgage actions.

Actions for recovery of land.

In actions for recovery of land the trial must primâ facie take place in the county where the land lies, but the writ may issue from the proper office in any county: Canada Permanent L. & S. Co. v. Foley, 9 P. R. 273; so also an action for assignment of dower, which is an action for the recovery of land: McCullough v. McCullough, 4 C. L. T. 252.

An action by a mortgagee for foreclosure, payment, and possession, is not an action for recovery of land within this Rule, and the venue in such cases, therefore, need not be in the county where the lands lie: Seymour v. De Morsh, 11 P. R. 472; and see Kendell v. Ernst, 16 P. R. 167.

It is the duty of the plaintiff's solicitor to conform to clauses (b), and (c), and name the place of trial as there indicated. If it be not the most convenient place for the trial, the plaintiff may apply to change it to a more convenient place: Brown v. Hazell, 2 O. W. R. 784; Pitze v. Cork, 3 O. W. N. 401.

County Court cases.

Venue in County Courts.—Under The County Court Act (R. S. O. c. 69), s. 30 (1), unless the venue is changed, or the parties consent, actions for recovery of damages for trespass or injury, to land, brought under sec. 22 (1) c, actions for obstruction to easement under sec. 22 (1) d, are to brought and tried in the county where the land is situate; partnership actions under sec. 22 (1) g, in the county where the partnership had, or has, its principal place of business; and actions by legatees under sec. 22 (1) h, in the county where letters probate or of administration have issued, or where the deceased resided at the time of his death, unless by consent of the parties, or unless the place of trial is changed: and actions for the recovery of land are to be brought and tried in the county where the land is: sec. 30 (2).

Contract as to place of trial.

Place of Trial Fixed by Contract.—The parties formerly might agree that in case of litigation the action is to be carried on, or tried, in a Court having jurisdiction in a particular locality: see The Noxon Co. v. Cox, 6 O. L. R. 637; or that the trial shall be at a particular place: Dulmage v. White, 4 O. L. R. 121; and the Court gave effect to such a condition: Ib.; Wright v. Ross, 11 O. L. R. 113; but it would seem that such contracts or agreements do not affect the practice of the Court on motions to change the venue: see: Bell v. Goodison Thresher Co., 12 O. L. R. 611; and see The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 63), s. 74.

Former practice.

Clause (d).—Changing Place of Trial.—In Chancery no actions were local, all were transitory. At Common Law some actions were local, and some transitory. In a local action the venue had to be laid in the county in which the cause of action arose, though the trial might be ordered to take place elsewhere. In a transitory action the plaintiff might lay his venue where he pleased, subject to the power of the Court or a Judge to order it to be changed. The practice as to changing the venue was, that either party might apply for an order for that purpose. The plaintiff, if the application was his, had to shew reasonable ground for the change, and if the application was the defendant's the defendant had to shew distinctly a preponderance of convenience in favour of trying where he proposed, instead of where the venue was laid: Church v. Bornett, L. R. 6 C. P. 116. Rule 245.

Now, the Court or a Judge may change the place of trial on motion for that purpose, in all cases not governed by special statute, including actions for recovery of land; see Can. Pac. Ry. v. Manion, 11 P. R. 247, and including actions within clauses (b) or (c) of Rule 245. Change of place of trial.

Under the present Rule, on a motion to change the place of trial, while the matter is largely in the discretion of the Court, or Judge, and one question is where can the action most conveniently be tried (see Greey v. Siddall, 12 P. R. 557; Taylor v. Grant, 9 C. L. T. 140), it is now settled by two decisions of Divisional Courts that the discretion is to be exercised subject to two restrictions, viz.:—

(1) The plaintiff, where clauses (b), or (c), do not apply, has a right to select the place of trial, a right which is not lightly to be interfered with, where the place has not been vexatiously chosen; and

(2) The onus is upon the applicant to shew that the preponderance of convenience is against the place named in the statement of claim: Stondord Drain Pipe Co. v. Fort William, 16 P. R. 404; Hollidoy v. Stanley, Ib., 493; see also Noad v. Noad, 6 P. R. 48; Plum v. Normanton, W. N. 1876, 105; Wood v. Koy, W. N. 1879, 206; Shroder v. Myers, 34 W. R. 261; Green v. Bennett, 32 W. R. 848; 50 L. T. 706; Bridcut v. Duncan, 7 T. L. R. 514; Walton v. Wideman, 10 P. R. 228; Ross v. Con. Pac. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 220; Nicholson v. Linton, Ib., 223; Madgon v. Ferland, 17 P. R. 124. This was in effect the practice in Chancery formerly: Noad v. Noad, 6 P. R. 48; Bridcut v. Duncan, 7 T. L. R. 514; and was held by the Court of Appeal to be the settled practice: Compbell v. Doherty, 18 P. R. 243.

There has not been unanimity amongst the Judges in this Province as to the weight to be given to the place where the cause of action arose, in determining the place which is most convenient. This had formerly little weight in Chancery: Noad v. Noad, supra; but was an important element at Common Law: Harper v. Smith, 6 P. R. 9; Gilmour v. Stricklond, 6 P. R. 254; Phippen v. McLeod, 7 P. R. 377. The reported cases, and the opinions of the majority of the Judges, are in favour of adopting the former Chancery practice, and of determining the convenience by a consideration of the expense, and the witnesses' facilities of travelling: see cases supra, and Davis v. Murray, 9 P. R. 222; Robertson v. Dagoneou, 3 C. L. T. 266; Walton v. Wideman, 10 P. R. 228; Slater v. Purvis, 10 P. R. 604; Ross v. Con. Pac. Ry. Co.; Nicholson v. Linton, supra; Taylor v. Grant, 9 C. L. T. 140; Odell v. Mulholland, 14 P. R. 180; Berlin Piano Co. v. Truoisch, 15 P. R. 68; Brethour v. Brooke, 15 P. R. 205.

"The facts in each case must be considered, but it is a safe general rule that the venue will not be changed unless the defendant shews that some serious injury and injustice to his cause will arise by trying it where the plaintiff proposes to have it tried": per Boyd, C., in Dowie v. Partlo, 15 P. R. 314.

The fact that a view by the jury, or the Court, might be necessary, is a circumstance to be considered: Odell v. Mulholland, 14 P. R. 180; Canada Carriage Co. v. Down, 46 C. L. J. 139; see also Jenkins v. Bushby, 1891, 1 Ch. 484; Mangan v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., 1891, 2 Ch. 551.

The Court, or Judge, will not enter into an inquiry as to the personal inconvenience of witnesses: Standard D. P. Co. v. Fort William, 16 P. R. 404; Higgins v. Coniagas Reduction Co., 2 O. W. N. 953; and it is impossible, as a general rule, to enter into the investigation whether one class of witnesses will be more injured than another, by absence from home: Noad v. Noad, and Davis v. Murray, supra, p. 703; Berlin Piano Co. v. Truolsch, 15 P. R. 68; except in the case of a public officer: Fisken v. Smith, 2 Chy. Ch. 49; Fogg v. Fogg, 12 P. R. 249.

Change of place of trial.

As to witnesses who are out of the jurisdiction, the place of trial may be of comparatively little importance: Saskatchewan Land, etc., Co. v. Leadley, 5 O. W. R. 449.

The preponderance of convenience to be shewn by the defendant must be considerable. A change will not be made on account of a trifling difference in expense: see Peer v. N. W. Transportation Co., 14 P. R. 381; Stewart v. Johnstone, 4 U. C. L. J. 21; Mooney v. Mooney, 6 P. R. 267; Keyes v. McKeon, 2 O. W. N. 899; and Walton v. Wideman, and other cases supra, p. 703, even though the cause of action arose at the place to which the change is asked to be made: McDonold v. Dawson, 8 O. L. R. 72; Campbell v. Doherty, supra, p. 703; especially if the plaintiff undertakes to pay the difference in expense: see Brigham v. McKenzie, 10 P. R. 406; but an undertaking by defendant to pay the difference in expense to the plaintiff if the place of trial is changed is not a ground for making a change: McDonald v. Dawson, supra.

But difference of expense is of more importance in an alimony action, as the defendant has to bear in any event all the disbursements: Fogg v. Fogg, 12 P. R. 249.

An affidavit giving names of witnesses and the nature of their evidence, will outweigh one that merely deals in generalities: see Dickenson v. Toronto Ry., 2 O. W. N. 832.

Where the parties reside in the county in which the cause of action arose and the venue is laid, a very strong case will have to be made out to obtain a change: see Pollard v. Wright, 16 P. R. 505; Servos v. Servos, 11 P. R. 135.

The fact that a change will delay the trial considerably is a circumstance to be considered: Servos v. Servos, supra.

A direction to the parties to disclose the names and evidence of the witnesses, in order to consider whether the witnesses are material, is not proper: Arpin v. Guinane, 12 P. R. 364.

Where the plaintiffs resided at Montreal, and the defendants' officers at Picton, and the plaintiffs had some witnesses resident at Toronto, the place of trial was changed from Ottawa to Toronto: Cooper v. Central Ontario Ry. Co., 4 Ont. 280.

Where owing to conflicting affidavits it is impossible to decide which would be the most convenient place of trial, the Court may decline to interfere, leaving it to the trial Judge to apportion the cost as may be proper if it shall appear that the wrong place has been selected:

McArthur v. Michigan Central, 15 P. R. 77, as explained in Brethour v. Brooke, 15 P. R. 205; and see Roberts v. Jones, 1891, 2 Q. B. 194. Rule 245.

Delay in applying may, apart from all other considerations, be sufficient to justify the dismissal of a motion to change the venue; as where the action is just about to be tried, and application might sooner have been made: Phillips v. Beall, 26 Ch. D. 621; 32 W. R. 665.

The affidavits on such motions should be made by the parties themselves, and not by their solicitors: Hood v. Cronkrite, 4 P. R. 279; Baker v. Waldon, 2 O. W. R. p. 434; Leach v. Bruce, 9 O. L. R. 380.

An application is not necessarily premature because issue is not joined, if the issues can be determined from the pleadings: Powell v. Cobb, 29 Ch. D. 488-9.

Semble, this Rule does not give a Judge a right to interfere with the procedure in the action (e.g., to change the venue of his own motion), except at the instance of a party: Bull v. North British, etc., Co., 11 P. R. 83. Such motions should not be made at the Assizes; it is too late then to consider the balance of convenience, as the parties have to be prepared for trial: Sarnia Agricultural Implement Co. v. Perdue, 11 P. R. 224.

The plaintiff having named a place of trial in a specially indorsed writ, cannot name a new one in the statement of claim: Segsworth v. McKinnon, 19 P. R. 178; Turcotte v. Finkelstein, 2 O. W. N. 952; nor having named one in his statement of claim, can he change his mind and name a new one by amendment of the statement of claim under Rule 127: Bull v. North British, etc., Co., 10 P. R. 622. As to whether the omission to name a place of trial in the statement of claim can be supplied by amendment: see note to Rule 127. Change on plaintiff's motion.

Where the writ is not specially indorsed the plaintiff may, in his statement of claim, name a different place of trial to that indorsed in the writ: St. Mary's & W. O. Ry. v. Webb, 18 O. L. R. 336.

The place of trial may be changed in actions to recover land, as well as in other cases: see clause (d), Can. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Monion, 11 P. R. 247.

In the cases mentioned in clauses (b) and (c) of the Rule, viz., actions where the cause of action arose, and the parties or those who are within the jurisdiction, reside in the same county, and actions for recovery of land, the plaintiff is obliged to name a particular place, whether the most convenient or not: Saskatchewan v. Leadley, 9 O. L. R. 556. In such case the plaintiff may, nevertheless move, like the defendant, to have the place changed; the onus will be upon the applicant of shewing a preponderance of convenience in favour of the change proposed.

In the cases where the plaintiff has the right of selection, he cannot have the place settled by him changed, if the defendant objects, except upon shewing some cogent reason. If the place chosen by him is manifestly an improper one, he may be ordered to pay the costs of the motion to change: Martin v. Ross, 6 P. R. 264. If, however, the plaintiff is obliged by clause (b), or (c), to name a place which is not the most convenient, he cannot be said to have named an improper place, and where he applies for a change, the circumstance that he has named a place should not weigh against him. The plaintiff may probably, however, as formerly, obtain a change to hasten the trial, where he is in danger of losing his debt, particularly if by some unforeseen circumstance he has been prevented from going to trial at the place originally named by him: see Lucas v. Taylor, 4 P. R. 99; Mercer v. Vogt, 3 P. R. 94; James v. James, 3 Chy. Ch. 54; McDonell v. Prov. Ins. Co., 5 U. C. L. J. 186 (where the Judge appointed to take the Assizes refused to try the case, being interested in the defendant company).

On ground that fair trial cannot be had, etc.

On other extraordinary grounds the place of trial may be changed. For instance, the existence of circumstances which may render it impossible to have a fair trial, such as political excitement: Roche v. Patrick, 5 P. R. 210; the interests of the locality being involved: Municipal Council of Ontario v. Cumberland, 3 U. C. L. J. 11; or its prejudices or sympathies enlisted on one side so as to render a fair trial impossible: McDonagh v. Prov. Ins. Co., 2 C. L. J. 104; Blackburn v. Cameron, 5 P. R. 341; see also Davis v. Murray, 9 P. R. 229; Shafto v. Bolckow, 35 W. R. 686; 57 L. T. 17; Crossham v. Leach, 32 L. T. 665; Shroder v. Myers, 34 W. R. 261; Queen v. Appleby, 13 C. L. T. 375; Unger v. Brennan, 14 P. R. 294; Allen v. Turk, 2 O. W. N. 43. But the mere fact that one of the parties is personally widely known or popular in any county, is not a reason for having the trial elsewhere: Oakville v. Andrew, 2 O. W. R. 608; Brown v. Hazell, Ib. 704.

Quære, whether the pendency of other similar suits, and the fact that a large number of persons are interested in the county in the matters involved, and that in the opinion of a number of residents a fair trial cannot be had, will be sufficient: see Abell v. Leadly, Abell v. Kirk, 2 C. L. T. 555, 557; see also Moor v. Boyd, 3 P. R. 374; Unger v. Brennan, 14 P. R. 294. See also where the Sheriff is a party: Brannen v. Jarvis, 8 P. R. 322; or the County Judge: Anon., 4 P. R. 310.

The place of trial was changed in a collision suit in the Maritime Court, on the sole ground that the local Judge would be in a better position to try the case from his practical or easily obtainable knowledge of the locality in which the collision occurred: The Wiarton Belle, 2 C. L. T. 360.

Appeals.—The discretion of the Court or Judge, exercised on a motion to change the place of trial, is an appealable discretion: Philips v. Beall, 26 Ch. D. 621; 32 W. R. 665; Saskatchewan, etc., v. Leadley, 9 O. L. R. 556; and see C. R. 1275, which has not been continued; and though a Judge in Chambers may, perhaps, freely review the decision of a subordinate judicial officer in Chambers, the discretion of a Judge in Chambers, unless a clearly mistaken view has been taken by him, will not be interfered with by a Divisional Court, even though the Court think the discretion might have been exercised differently: per Meredith, C.J., in Standard D. P. Co. v. Port William, 16 P. R. at p. 406-7, citing The Assyrian, 4 T. L. R. 694; see also Benyon v. Larabe, 6 T. L. R. 146; Solby v. Lage, 12 T. L. R. 191.

An order in Chambers affirmed by a Judge will not be interfered with, though the Appellate Division should not be satisfied that there is a preponderance of convenience in trying the case at the place named in the order: Peer v. N. W. Transportation Co., 14 P. R. 381.

Changing place of reference.

Changing Place of Reference under Judgment.—A reference to a Master is primâ facie to the Master at the place where the proceedings were instituted: Macara v. Gwynne, 3 Gr. 310; McNab v. McInnis, 4 Chy. Ch. 53; but the place is subject to be changed, upon motion, applying the same principles as in the case of the place of trial: see Jackson v. Harriman, 9 C. L. J. 29; McNab v. McInnis, supra, p. 706. The policy of The Judicature Act in decentralizing business introduces a further element, and, as far as possible, local matters are to be sent to the local Masters; a reference was therefore changed and sent to the Master of the county in which a partnership business in question was carried on: Aitken v. Wilson, 9 P. R. 75. Rule 246.

A reference was also changed where it became necessary to add as a party the Master before whom the matter was pending: Weldon v. Templeton, 1 Chy. Ch. 360; and where the Master's illness unfitted him from attending to business: Re Kirkpatrick, 13 C. L. J. 121; 2 C. L. T. 204.

In administration matters, however, the reference should primâ facie be to the place where the person whose estate is to be administered resided; in such matters Macara v. Gwynne, 3 Gr. 310, is not applicable: Thompson v. Fairbairn, 10 P. R. 533. See also notes preceding Rule 402.

Cross Actions.—Where cross actions, with different places of trial named, are consolidated, the place of trial will be ordered as the balance of convenience requires: Gonce v. Leitch, 11 P. R. 255.

246. After the close of the pleadings either party may give notice of trial. C.R. 530. Notice of trial.

Close of Pleadings.—See notes to Rules 120 and 325. Close of pleadings.

As to when the pleadings are closed: see Hore v. Cawthrope, 11 P. R. 353; Malcolm v. Race, 16 P. R. 330; and notes to Rules 118, 120. Notice of trial given before the pleadings are closed, within the meaning of Rule 120, as against all the defendants, is irregular: Long v. Long, 7 O. L. R. 526; Schneider v. Proctor, 9 P. R. 11; Robinson v. Caldwell, 1893, 1 Q. B. 519; 68 L. T. 218; and a defendant against whom the pleadings are closed may take the objection, and have the notice of trial set aside, though the other defendants are content to accept it: Long v. Long, supra.

Where an overdue defence was filed on the last day for giving notice of trial, and a joinder of issue and jury notice were filed on the same day, but after the filing of the defence, the service of notice of trial with the joinder of issue and jury notice on the same day, but before the filing of the defence, was held to be regular: Broderick v. Broaich, 12 P. R. 561; but service of notice of trial and jury notice before the filing or delivery of defence on the last day, defendant being in no default, is irregular: McIlroy v. McIlroy, 14 P. R. 264; followed in Hermann v. Mandarin, etc., Co., 13 P. R. 34, in preference to Broderick v. Broaich, supra, and the issuing of an order to produce at the time defence was delivered was held not to waive irregularity in the notice of trial: Ib.

Where no reply is delivered the plaintiff cannot give notice of trial until the lapse of 10 days from the delivery of the defence: Robinson v. Caldwell, supra; Rules 118, 120. Where the reply is something more than a joinder of issue, quære, can the notice of trial be given without giving defendant time to file a joinder of issue: see Rule 119; Piper v. Benjamin, 17 P. R. 267.

Where after notice of trial haa heen given, a third party notice is given, and directiona mads thereon aiiowing ths third party to put in a dsfence, and directing the issues hetween the defendant and third party to he tried at the trial of ths action, that has the effect of re-opening the piendings, and they ars not re-cioscd until after the sxpiration of the tims for deiivering a repiy to the third party's defence; and a new record must then hs prepared inciuding the third party proceedings, and the case must be again entered for trial, and a new notice of trial given to the defendant, and third party: Confederation Life v. Labott, 18 P. R. 238; so where, nfter notice of trial given by defendant, the plaintiff ohtained ieave to amend and add a new defendant necessitating further pieadings, the notice of trial was set aside on the appiication of the piaintiff: Brennan v. Bank of Hamilton, 2 O. W. N. 91.

Notice of triai given prematureiy is a voidahie proceeding, and where a motion to set aside such a notice was adjourned tiii the trial, and was dismissed hy the Judge at the trial, who proceeded with the trial in the ahsence of the defendant, it was heid that a motion hy way of appeai against ths decision of the Judge on the motion, and aiso to set aside the judgment, might properiy he made to the Divisionai Court: Campou v. Rondall, 17 P. R. 525; Qua v. Canadian Order of Woodmen, 5 O. L. R. 51.

Assessment of damages.

Assessment of Damages.—Where a plaintiff indorsed his writ for a iiquidated demand, and signed interiocutory judgment for default of appearance, and thereafter fiied a statement of ciaim varying the ciaim for reiief asked hy the writ, and, without ciosing ths pieadings on the statement of ciaim, set the cause down for assessment of damages on the reiief ciaimed hy ths statement of ciaim, it wns heid that the proceedings were irregular and the assessment of damages could not he made: Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639.

Notice of assessment of damages must he given, thought defendant has not appeared: see Rule 247, and notes.

Notice of trial.

Notice of Trial.—For forms of the notice of trial, see Forms Nos. 34, 35; H. & L. Forms Nos. 829, 830 and 633, and see Rules 248, 250.

Where notice of trial did not state ths piacs where the triai was to take piace, a motion to set aside the notice was refused, in the ahsence of an affidavit stating that the party moving was therehy misled: O'Brien v. Wells, 20 C. L. J. 369. See aiso Wolker v. Terry, 7 P. R. 340; Bank of Montreal v. Cameron, 7 P. R. 188.

The notice may be given, in non-jury cases, for either the jury, or non-jury, sittings, at the place named for trial: see Rule 248 (d), except in Toronto cases, as to which see Rule 250.

Either party may give notice of trial.

"Either Party."—Any one of the parties plaintiffs, or defendants, may givs notice of triai; Tinning v. Grand Trunk Ry., 11 P. R. 438; and if one of severai defendants does so he should serve his co-defendants as weii as the plaintiff: McLeon v. Thompson, 9 P. R. 553. If some of the defendants have not appeared, and it is necessary, or desired, to give them notice of motion for judgment, such notice should he for the samc time and place ns thc notice of trial: McGill v. McDonell, 14 P. R. 483; hut see now Rulcs 35, 354.

Where the plaintiff served an insufficient notice of triai on defendants, and third parties, and it was set asido on defendant's motion.

it was held that it was the plaintiff's and not the defendant's duty to notify the third parties that the trial could not proceed on the notice, and third parties appearing at the trial were held entitled to costs of the day from plaintiff: Knight v. Ridgetown, 14 P. R. 81. Rules 247, 248.

Where a defendant exercises the power conferred by this Rule, and gives a regular notice for the sittings next approaching, the plaintiff cannot interfere with defendant's right, by giving notice for more distant sittings: Shaw v. Crawford, 13 P. R. 219; McGill v. McDonell, 14 P. R. 483; see also Hogaboom v. Lunt, 14 P. R. 480.

Failure to give Notice of Trial.—The plaintiff in all actions (other than non-jury actions in the County of York) is liable to have his action dismissed for want of prosecution if he fails to give notice of trial, where the pleadings have been closed six weeks before the commencement of any sittings for which he might give notice: Rules 248 d, 324, 325. Failure to give notice of trial.

As to non-jury actions in the County of York: see Rules 324, 250.

Where a case is to be tried in the County of York without a jury, the plaintiff (notwithstanding Rule 248 d) will not be in default under Rule 325, by reason of his not giving notice for a sittings for which he might have given notice, if it is not the non-jury sittings: Leyburn v. Knoke, 17 P. R. 410.

247. Where interlocutory judgment has been signed against any defendant for default of appearance or pleading, ten days' notice of assessment of damages shall be given to him. Such notice and proof of service shall be filed when the action is set down. C.R. 537. Amended. Notice of trial to be given where interlocutory judgment signed.

See notes to Rule 35.

The notice may be served by posting up, as mentioned in Rule 200.

Where the action is to be tried as against other defendants it is advisable to give notice of assessment for the same time and place as notice of trial is given. As to the assessment of damages: see note to Rule 39.

248. Except in actions to be tried at Toronto, without a jury; Ten days' notice required before entry, except in Toronto cases.

(a) Ten days' notice of trial shall be given before entering an action for trial;

(b) After notice of trial is given, either party may enter the action for trial, and if both parties enter the action for trial at the same sittings it shall be tried in the order of the plaintiff's entry; Entry of action for trial.

(c) Actions shall be entered for trial not later than the sixth day before the commencement of the sittings; but a Judge may permit any action to be entered after the time above limited; Time for.

Rule 248.

(d) An action which is to be tried without a jury, may be entered for trial at any sittings appointed for the place named for the trial of such action. C.R. 538. Amended.

See Eng. (1883), RR. 438, 439.

For Form: see No. 34; H. & L. Forms Nos. 829, 830, 633.

C. R. 538 provided that "short notice of trial" should be five days, but this provision has not been continued in this or any other Rule.

The ten days are computed in the usual way, exclusively of the first day and inclusively of the last, under Rule 173: see Horper v. Morse, 3 C. L. T. 309. The Rule does not expressly provide that the notice of trial is to be filed with proof of service before the case is entered; but the officer seems entitled to require it before making the entry: see clause (a). See note to Rule 253.

This Rule does not apply to non-jury actions to be tried at Toronto: Rule 250 applies to such cases.

Amendment of notice of trial.

Notice of trial was amended nunc pro tunc where given for trial at Belleville, naming the day fixed for the Assizes at Picton, the Belleville Assizes being over, and the party served not having been misled: Wolker v. Terry, 7 P. R. 340; so where "September" was inserted instead of "October," as the mistake could not mislead: Bank of Montreal v. Comeron, 7 P. R. 188; ses also O'Brien v. Wells, 20 C. L. J. 369; and McBride v. Corroll, 14 P. R. 70.

Where, after notice of trial given by plaintiff, the defendant obtained an order postponing the trial on payment of costs, this was held to be a conditional order not staying the plaintiff's proceedings, and one which the defendant was at liberty to abandon without being liable to pay other than the costs of the application: Allen v. Mathers, 9 P. R. 477.

As to both parties giving notice of trial: see notes to Rule 246.

Opposite party entitled to full notice.

A defendant is entitled to the full ten days' notice, and there is no power to compel him to take less, unless he has consented to take shorter notice, or unless shorter notice can be imposed as a term of granting an indulgence to the defendant: Hamilton Prov. & L. Soc. v. McKim, 13 P. R. 125; Whitney v. Stark, Ib., 129. See also Laskier v. Tekeian, 67 L. T. 121; Qua v. Can. Order of Woodmen, 5 O. L. R. 51; but where a special order as to trial is being made it may provide for a notice of trial shorter than the usual 10 days: see Baxter v. Holdsworth, 1899, 1 Q. B. 266; 79 L. T. 434.

Service by mail.

Where, by arrangement, papers were served by mail, notice of trial posted in time, but received one day short of the ten, was set aside: McDonough v. Allison, 9 P. R. 4. But, except by consent, service cannot be effected by mailing; a notice sent by mistake to defendants' solicitors, the envelope of the letter being addressed to them instead of to the plaintiffs' solicitors' agents for service, and returned by mail on seeing that the letter was not intended for them, was held not to be good service: Newsome v. Mutual Life Insurance Co., 3 O. L. R. 253.

Service too late.

On motion to set aside a notice of trial served a few minutes late, service having been admitted, but immediately afterwards repudiated, it was held that unless service of a good notice was negatived, the service should not be set aside: Wright v. Way, 8 P. R. 238.

Where notice of trial is set aside on the application of one of several defendants, the plaintiff should notify the others that it has been set aside, or he may have to pay their costs of the day: Knight v. Ridgetown, 14 P. R. 81. Rule 249. Setting aside.

Where, after notice of trial has been served, the pleadings are re-opened and new issues are to be tried, the notice of trials falls, and a new record must be prepared, and a new notice of trial given: see Confederation Life v. Lobatt, 18 P. R. 238. Reopening of pleadings.

Countermand of Notice not Allowed.—Eng. (1883) R. 443, provides that no notice of trial shall be countermanded, except by consent, or leave of the Court, or a Judge. This Rule has not been adopted in the Ontario Rules. By the former Common Law practice countermand was permitted, but not by the Chancery practice. Since The Judicature Act, notice of trial cannot be countermanded, by either party: Friendly v. Carter, 9 P. R. 41. Countermand not allowed.

Remanet.—In the case of a remanet, no notice of trial was formerly necessary: Donovan v. Boultbee, 10 P. R. 52; but must now be given, except in the case of non-jury actions at Toronto: Rule 252. A case postponed by order at the trial, on defendants' application, is a remanet: Donovan v. Boultbee, supra. Remanet, new notice required.

Entry of Action for Trial.—The present Rule requires the entry to be made not later than the sixth day next before the first day of the sittings, unless with the Judge's permission. It may be made on any earlier day, after the lapse of ten days from the giving of notice of trial: see Rule 248 (a) (b). Entry for trial.

Sunday is, under Rule 172, not to be excluded in computing "the sixth day," unless it is the last of the six days: see Rule 174.

The entry is made on præcipe: see H. & L. Forms, No. 381, to the proper officer, in Toronto in the office of the Registrar of the High Court Division, and in other places to the Local Registrar, or, where there is no Local Registrar, the Deputy Clerk of the Crown in jury cases, and the Deputy Registrar in non-jury cases.

The defendant can enter the action, or if the plaintiff fails to do so, the defendant may apply to the Judge under clause (c). The Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction to entertain an application for costs of the day for not proceeding to trial: Hopkins v. Smith, 9 P. R. 285. But where, after the plaintiff has given notice of trial, neither party enters the case, the defendant may, under Rule 325, move to dismiss the action for want of prosecution: see also Crick v. Hewlett, 27 Ch. D. 354; Sievier v. Spearman, 70 L. T. 132 (decided upon the terms of Rules 436 and 440, of the Eng. Rules of 1883). Action not entered.

Although clause (d) authorizes the entry of non-jury actions at jury sittings, a party is not in default who does not avail himself of that liberty, wherever there are also non-jury sittings at the same place: Rule 325 (2).

249. The party entering an action for trial shall, at the time of entry (or, in the cases to which Rule 250 applies, at or before the time when the notice of trial is to be filed), deposit a record containing a certified copy Record.

Rule 250.

of the pleadings and particulars and of any order containing directions respecting the trial. C.R. 539. Amended.

See Eng. (1883) R. 454.

Where no copy was delivered and the plaintiff did not appear, the action was dismissed with costs: Forrell v. Wole, 36 L. T. 95; see note to Rule 253.

Regulation as to passing records for trial.

The following regulation was made by the President, and Chief Justices, of the High Court of Justice, dated October 28th, 1899:—

"Whereas it is necessary for the due administration of justice, and avoidance of delays and unnecesaary expense, that records entered for trial should show the state of the action against all the defendants, including those who have not appeared, or as against whom the pleadings have been noted closed, or any interlocutory, or final, judgment has been signed;

Therefore, from and after the first day of January next (1900), all officers passing records are hereby directed, and required, to see that they contain, in addition to a certified copy of the pleadings, a note or memorandum stating the state of the action as against every defendant or defendants who has, or have, put in no defence, or as against whom the action has been discontinued.

No extra charge is to be made for such note or memorandum.

All officers and clerks when entering causes for trial, or for hearing on motion for judgment, are required to see that the same are in a proper state for trial, or hearing, and are not otherwise to enter the same; and for that purpose may require either the production of the record, or a certificate of the state of the action, when the necessary information cannot be obtained from their own books of office."

By a regulation of the Judges, made on 25th June, 1914, it is provided:—

Where case transferred from C. C. or Sur. Ct.

"Where an action has been transferred from a County or Surrogate Court to the Supreme Court, a memorandum should be added to the record, showing this fact and the authority for the transfer, e.g.

"This action was brought in the County (or Surrogate) Court of the County of . and was transferred to the Supreme Court under section 22, sub-section 3 of the County Courts Act—or, by order of the Honourable Mr. Justice A. B. under section 22, sub-section 5 of the County Courts Act—or as the case may be."

After a transfer, the action is in the Supreme Court and the proceedings should be so entitled.

This Rule, it will be observed, also requires the particulars, if any, and also any order containing directions respecting the trial to be included in the record.

Where the record is lost a new one may be made up: see White v. Hutchinson, Tay. 305; if the pleadings are opened after the record has been entered for trial a new record must be made up and entered: see Confederation Life v. Labatt, 18 P. R. 238, supra, p. 711.

Setting down and notice of trial in non-jury cases, York.

250.—(1) Actions to be tried at Toronto without a jury may be set down for trial by either party immediately after the close of the pleadings.

(2) Notice of trial shall be given, by the party setting down the action for trial, within two days thereafter, and he shall within four days after so setting down the action, file the notice of trial and proof of the service thereof, with the officer with whom the action was set down. Rule 251.

(3) Where default is made in filing the notice of trial, any party who has been served therewith may within four days after such default, file in like manner the notice of trial served on him and proof of the service thereof.

(4) Where a notice of trial is filed, the action shall be placed upon the list of cases for trial upon the expiration of three weeks from the date of the setting down.

(5) If two or more parties have entered the action for trial, it shall be tried in the order of the first entry. C.R. 542.

For Form 35, see H. & L. Forms, No. 830.

Where the pleadings are re-opened after service of a notice of trial, see Confederation Life v. Labatt, 18 P. R. 238, supra, p. 711.

It will be seen that in regard to Toronto cases, the procedure for giving notice of trial, and entering cases for trial, is different from that in regard to cases to be tried elsewhere. Under Rule 248 (a) cases to be tried elsewhere than in Toronto cannot be entered for trial until ten days after notice of trial has been given; whereas in Toronto cases the case must be first entered for trial and then notice of trial must be given. In Toronto cases the notice of trial must be filed with proof of service before the case can be put on the trial list. Whereas with regard to cases tried elsewhere, there is no provision for filing the notice of trial or proof of service, although it is probably intended that they should be filed: see note to Rule 248.

251. An action may be withdrawn from trial, upon consent. C.R. 543. Withdrawal of record by consent.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 291, which was framed to obviate the necessity of applying to the sitting Judge for leave.

As to discontinuance of the action after it has been entered for trial: see notes to Rule 321.

At Common Law, a plaintiff who had entered a cause for trial might withdraw the record at any time before the jury were sworn. This was often a hardship, where the defendant was ready with his witnesses and counsel. Under the present clause, leave is necessary for the withdrawal of a record, unless all parties consent, and in Learnmouth v. Croll, 1 Charl. Ca. (Court) 100, Huddleston, B., refused an application to postpone the trial fixed for a few days thereafter, though counsel for the plaintiff was not sufficiently instructed in the case; and he referred the plaintiff to the Judge who was to sit on the day appointed for trial, for leave to withdraw the record.

Any order made at the trial for withdrawal or postponement, and requiring to be issued, should be signed by the officer who acts as Registrar at the trial: Waghorn v. Hawkins, 12 P. R. 145; Rule 527; except in Toronto, where all orders made at the sittings are to be settled by the Senior Registrar: see C. R. 26 d, which though not continued in these Rules, has not been superseded by any other provision: see Rule 526.

Orders at the trial for amendment of pleadings do not require to be issued; the amendment is made on the record: Rule 186, and orders respecting postponements, not containing any special terms, may not require to be issued.

For the effect of withdrawal of a juror, see Thomas v. Exeter Flying Post, 18 Q. B. D. 822.

Actions not tried.

252. Actions not tried or disposed of after being once entered for trial shall not, except in the case of actions entered for trial without a jury at Toronto, be heard at any subsequent sittings unless a fresh notice of trial is given and the action has been again set down, but no fee shall be payable for such setting down. C.R. 544. Amended.

The object of the present Rule is to make it necessary (except in non-jury actions in the County of York) to give a new notice of trial, and re-enter the case for trial, wherever a case becomes a remanet: see "Nemunet" in note to Rule 248.

The effect of the Rule seems to be, that actions not reached at the jury sittings may not be entered for trial at the non-jury sittings (nor vice versa) without consent or leave: see Ward v. Jackson, 12 P. R. 225, and, if withdrawn, they must be re-entered and a further fee for entering at another sittings must be paid; but if not reached they must also be re-entered for trial, but in that case no further fee for entry will be required.

It has been held that where a Judge has no time to try a case, owing to his having to go to another circuit town, though he may make the case a remanet, he should not direct it to be tried at another place: Fairburn v. Household, 53 L. T. 513. This case seems to have turned on the circumstance that the Judge had not power to change the venue, which power he would have in Ont. See Jud. Act, s. 14, supra.

Non-appearance of plaintiff.

253. If, when an action is called on for trial, the defendant appears, and the plaintiff does not, the defendant shall be entitled to judgment dismissing the action, and if he has a counter-claim may prove such claim. C.R. 546.

See Eng. (1883) R. 456. C. R. 546 concluded with the words: "so far as the burden of proof lies upon him," but the omission of these words does not seem to alter the effect of the Rule: see Rule 261.

In such case the defendant is entitled to judgment dismissing the action with costs: Farrell v. Wale, 36 L. T. 95, and cases infra, without going into evidence, though the onus of proof may be on him:

Armour v. Bate, 1891, 2 Q. B. 233; 65 L. T. 137; it has been held in England that the defendant need not prove the service of notice of trial on him: James v. Crow, 7 Ch. D. 410; and Re Palmer, Skipper v. Skipper, 32 W. R. 83; 49 L. T. 553; following Ex parte Lows, 7 Ch. D. 160; not following Cockle v. Joyce, 7 Ch. D. 56; but see note to Rules 248, 250. But where notice of trial had been given by the plaintiff, and he filed a liquidation petition, under which a trustee had been appointed, and no one appeared at the trial for the plaintiff or trustee, proof of service of notice on the trustee was held to be necessary: Eldridge v. Burgess, 7 Ch. D. 411. Rule 254.

On application a judgment dismissing an action may be set aside, and the action restored to the list, upon proper terms: see Birch v. Williams, 24 W. R. 700; Breed v. Jackson, 10 T. L. R. 142, and notes to Rules 520 and 499. As to restoring cases struck out on account of the absence of counsel, see Harvey v. Renon, 12 Jur. 445; and as to costs so occasioned, Godson v. Hall, 7 Cl. & Fin. 549.

A judgment dismissing the action under this Rule is equivalent to a judgment on the merits, and is a bar to another action for the same cause: Armour v. Bate, 1891, 2 Q. B. 233, unless it is otherwise expressly provided.

The practice in England, where the plaintiff does not appear, is not to swear the jury, and any costs which the defendant may incur, by having the jury sworn in such case, the defendant may not be entitled to get taxed: Lane v. Eve, W. N. 1876, 86.

Where a test action came on for trial, and the plaintiff was not prepared to proceed and applied for a postponement, to which under the circumstances, so far as his own interest was concerned, he was not entitled, it was held that the Court could not regard the rights of the plaintiffs in the other actions, and must dismiss the action with costs: Robinson v. Chadwick, 7 Ch. D. 878; and see note infra, p. 784.

254. The Judge at the trial shall, at the request of either party, order a witness to be excluded from the Court until he is called to give evidence, and also, if the Judge deems it expedient, a party intending to give evidence; or he may require such party to be examined before the other witnesses on his behalf, and the Judge may, in his discretion, exclude the testimony of any witness or party who does not conform to such order. C.R. 547. Exclusion of witnesses.

See Sievewright v. Sievewright, 8 P. R. 81, and note infra, p. 804; note to R. 327.

A plaintiff calling defendant as a witness is not entitled as of right to re-examine in the nature of cross-examination. The Judge has a discretion to refuse to allow such cross-examination: Price v. Manning, 42 Ch. D. 372; 61 L. T. 537.

A party calling a witness is not thereby debarred from calling another witness to contradict him: Stanley Piano Co. v. Thomson, 32 Ont. 341.

In England, parties as well as witnesses may be excluded from Court during the examination of other witnesses: Outram v. Outram,

Rules 255, 256.

W. N. 1877, 75, but a witness will not be excluded during the reading of affidavit evidence: Penniman v. Hill, 24 W. R. 245. See also W. N. 1876, 297. In Ontario the exclusion of parties is in the discretion of the Judge under this Rule.

Hearing in camera.

A hearing in camera may be allowed in a proper case: Mellor v. Thompson, 31 Ch. D. 55, and 25 C. L. J. 597; 82 L. T. Jour. 297; 88 L. T. Jour. 40; and per Lord Fitzgerald, in Macdougall v. Knight, 14 App. Cas. 206-7; but semble, only where the interests of justice require it: see Scott v. Scott, 1913, A. C. 417; 108 L. T. 1; Reid v. Aull, 6 O. W. N. 372.

255. The Judge may in all cases disallow any question put to a witness which may appear to the Judge to be vexatious and not relevant to any matter proper to be inquired into at the trial. New. Eng. Rule 462.

This Rule applies both to an examination in chief and also to a cross-examination; apart from the Rule the Court has an inherent jurisdiction to prevent the examination or cross-examination of a witness from being abused: see Re Mundel, 1883, 52 L. J. Ch. 756.

Where the evidence given by a witness in answer to questions by the Judge is adverse to one of the parties, that party should be allowed to cross-examine the witness on that point, but not generally: Coulson v. Disborough, 1894, 2 Q. B. 316; 70 L. T. 617; In re Keighley, 1893, 1 Q. B. 405; but see Re Enoch & Zoretzky, 1910, 1 K. B. 327; 101 L. T. 801.

The Judge may himself ask a witness leading questions, if he thinks fit: Connor v. Bront, 31 O. L. R. 274.

Addresses of Counsel at trial.

256.—(1) At the trial, the addresses to the jury shall be regulated as follows:—

(a) At the conclusion of the case of the party who begins, if the opposite party states his intention to be not to adduce evidence, and he has not adduced evidence, the party who begins shall have the right to address the jury for the purpose of summing up the evidence, and the opposite party shall have the right to reply;

(b) If the opposite party does not state his intention to be not to adduce evidence, or if he has adduced evidence, he shall have the right to open his case, and (after the conclusion of such opening), to adduce such evidence as he thinks fit, and when all the evidence is concluded, to sum up the evidence, and the party who begins shall have the right to reply;

(2) Where a defendant claims a remedy over against a co-defendant, he shall have the right to address the jury after the co-defendant. Rule 256.

(3) Where a party is represented by counsel, the right conferred by this Rule shall be exercised by his counsel. C.R. 548.

See Eng. (1883) R. 460.

The right of defendant's counsel to sum up the evidence, is not a Common Law right, and cannot be insisted on in a Court (e.g., a County Court in England), where it is not customary: see Dymock v. Watkins, 10 Q. B. D. 451.

Custom in England has established a distribution of the work on opening, examining of witnesses, and summing up, among the counsel engaged, which is not followed in Ontario: see King v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160; Metzler v. Wood, 26 W. R. 125.

Course of procedure at trials.

In Ontario usually the course of proceeding at a trial is as follows: The counsel having the right to begin opens the case by an address to the Court, and jury, if any, in which he states the facts of the case and the nature of the issue to be tried, and the evidence by which he proposes to prove his case. He then produces the evidence. If at the conclusion of his case, the opposite party desires to produce evidence, he is entitled to address the Court and jury, if any, stating the nature of his case and the evidence he proposes to produce in support of it; this right, however, is not generally exercised, but without any preliminary address, he adduces his evidence. Evidence in reply may be then adduced by the party who began, and at the conclusion of the evidence, the counsel who did not begin addresses the Court, and jury, if any, on the whole case, and the counsel who began then replies. If, however, the party who did not begin adduces no evidence, then the counsel who began addresses the Court, and jury, if any, on the whole case at the conclusion of the evidence, and the opposite party replies. In trials before a jury, therefore, there are usually but three addresses, viz.: the opening speech before any evidence is adduced, and the two addresses at the conclusion of the evidence. Where defendants are represented by different counsel, each defendant is entitled to be heard by his own counsel. Where two sets of defendants are represented by separate counsel, the counsel for the first set of defendants, opening their case and giving evidence, should sum up their case to the jury before the counsel for the second set of defendants who has opened his case and given evidence: Medley v. London United Tramways, 26 T. L. R. 315.

Where a trial take place before a Judge without a jury, the opening speech is frequently dispensed with, the reading of the pleadings being considered a sufficient statement of the case.

Right to begin.

The right to begin is not altered by this Rule. The party upon whom the burthen of proof lies is the party entitled to begin: Harr. C. L. P. Act, 2nd ed., 291. Generally the burthen of proof lies on the party who asserts the affirmative on the record, i.e., the affirmative in substance, and not merely in form. If there is a presumption of law in favour of the pleading of either party the onus probandi is cast upon his adversary, though he may thereby be called on to prove a negative. Where there are conflicting presumptions, the onus probandi lies on the party having in his favour the weaker presumption of the two. But where the case of a party rests on the proof of some particular fact, of the truth or falsehood of which he must from its very nature be peculiarly cognizant, the onus of proving the fact lies on him, even though there be a presumption of law in favour of his pleading; and where the plaintiff sues for damages and it is necessary for the plaintiff to show the amount of damages sustained, he is entitled to begin, even though the affirmative of the issue be on the defendant, but if the affirmative of the issue is on the defendant, and plaintiff's counsel will not undertake to offer proof of substantial damage, the defendant is entitled to begin: Ib., 292, 293; Best on Right to Begin, 3, 5, 12, 21, 23.

An incorrect ruling as to the right to begin is no ground for a new trial unless the ruling "did clear and manifest wrong": Harr C. L. P Act, 2nd ed., 293.

Involves right to reply.

The right to begin is important, as it also involves, as we have seen, in some measure the right to reply. The right to reply, as far as the Attorney-General is concerned when appearing for the Crown, or any counsel appearing for the Crown having written authority from the Attorney-General for that purpose, is unaffected by this Rule, as he has always the right to reply, no matter who may have begun: see Rule 5 (2).

As to the reason for giving the right to reply: see per Lord Esher, in Fletcher v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 1 Q. B. 122.

Where defendant claims relief over, etc.

The effect of clause (2) is to confirm the decision in Stilliway v. Toronto, 20 Ont. 98, as to the time when counsel for a third party defending the action shall address the jury. The object is to give the plaintiff a reply against both the original defendant, and the third party.

Evidence omitted by accident or mistake, how supplied.

257. Where, through accident or mistake or other cause, a party omits or fails to prove some fact material to his case, the Judge may proceed with the trial, subject to such fact being afterwards proved at such time as the Judge shall direct; and, if the case is being tried by a jury, the Judge may direct the jury to find a verdict as if such fact had been proved, and the verdict shall take effect on such fact being afterwards proved as directed; and if not so proved, judgment shall be entered for the opposite party, unless the Judge otherwise directs, but this Rule shall not apply to an action for defamation. C.R. 549.

No corresponding Eng. R. C. R. 549 provided that it should not extend to actions of "libel," the present Rule does not apply to actions of "defamation," which would appear to include actions of slander, as well as libel.

This Rule merely enables a party to supply proof of some fact omitted before the trial is concluded, the verdict of the jury, if any, being taken on the assumption that it will be proved before judgment is given.

As to the power of a Judge or a Divisional Court to receive new evidence on an appeal: see Rule 232 and notes.

As to obtaining a new trial on the ground of the discovery of fresh evidence; see notes to s. 28, supra, p. 155. Rule 258.

As to motions to reverse or vary judgments on discovery of new matter, etc.: see Rule 523 and notes.

The obtaining by a party from proof, under an idea that his adversary had no real intention of putting him to such proof, and being thereby taken by surprise, is no ground for a new trial: Andrews v. Stuart, 1 C. L. T. 724. See also Heath v. Pugh, 6 Q. B. D. 355.

At the close of defendant's case plaintiff was not allowed to call a defendant whom he had expected to be called on his own behalf, the plaintiff's counsel admitting that he had not been misled by any misrepresentation, that this defendant would be called on his own behalf: Barker v. Furlong, 1891, 2 Ch. 172.

Where a party is taken by surprise by a point made against him at the hearing, the Judge may, if he thinks right, at any stage of the trial allow him to produce rebutting evidence; and if such permission is refused, the appellate Court will, in a proper case, permit the fresh evidence to be adduced on the appeal: Bigsby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24, and Rule 232.

In a suit for an injunction to restrain a nuisance caused by a chemical manufacturer, the plaintiff's counsel applied at the close of his speech for liberty to adduce evidence to explain (as the plaintiff's witnesses had had no opportunity of doing) certain evidence of the defendant's witnesses as to various vapour arising from a material (asphalt) stated to be used in the manufacture of varnish made by the plaintiff, and to show that the word asphalt had a double meaning; it was held that the evidence should be admitted: Bigsby v. Dickinson, supra.

A Judge may, at any period in a case allow further evidence to be called, for his own satisfaction, by either party, even though it is doubtful whether the party is entitled to put in such evidence as of right: Budd v. Davison, 29 W. R. 192.

The Court on argument of a motion by the plaintiff for a new trial, allowed the plaintiff to give in evidence the proclamation bringing into force the Ontario Factory Act: Dean v. Ontario Cotton Mills Co., 14 Ont. 119; and see Burfoot v. DuMoulin, 21 Ont. 583; so in Cooke v. McMillan, 5 O. W. R. 507, an affidavit proving the dates of the deaths of two persons was allowed to be filed on an appeal, formal proof not having been given at the trial, though the dates were made known to the Judge.

In an action for false arrest and malicious prosecution, arising out of a false information laid by defendant, a certified copy of the information being objected to, leave was given to put in afterwards the original, and an exemplification of the judgment of acquittal: Hamilton v. Brootch, 17 Ont. 679.

258. Where equitable issues are raised by the pleadings, they shall, unless the trial Judge otherwise directs, be tried, and the damages, if any, incidental thereto, assessed by the Judge without the intervention of a jury. C.R. 550. Trial of equitable issues.

Rules 259, 260.

Where equitable issues alone are raised, a jury is not of right, but of grace, under this Rule: see Adamson v. Adamson, 12 P. R. [illegible] in such cases a jury notice would be irregular, and might be struck out.

Where both legal and equitable issues are raised, a jury notice may be given: Rule 259, and, if given, the action must be entered at the jury sittings, when the legal issues will be tried by a jury (unless the Judge otherwise directs), but the equitable issues must be tried without a jury, pursuant to this Rule, unless the Judge otherwise directs.

Where there are both legal and equitable issues, it is within the power of the Judge to direct the equitable as well as the legal issues to be tried by the jury: Rae v. McDonald, 13 Ont. [illegible] 64; see also Wright v. Sun Mutual, 29 C. P. 336.

It would now seem not to be in the power of a Judge in Chambers, or the Master in Chambers, or other like judicial officer, before trial, to make no order for the trial of equitable issues by a jury. The present Rule seems to have the effect of leaving the mode of trial entirely in the discretion of the Judge at the trial.

As to striking out a jury notice, and the discretion of the Judge at the trial: see further Jud. Act, s. 56, and Rule 398 and notes.

Where both legal and equitable issues.

259. Where both legal and equitable issues are raised, and notice for a jury has been given, the action shall be entered for trial at the jury sittings, and such issues shall be tried at the same time, unless the Judge presiding at the trial otherwise directs. C.R. 551. Amended.

See notice to Rule 258.

Assessment of damages

260. Damages in respect of any continuing cause of action shall be assessed down to the time of the assessment. C.R. 552.

See Eng. (1883) R. 482.

A continuing cause of action is a cause of action arising from the repetition or continuance of acts or omissions similar to those in respect of which the action is brought: for example, pollution of a stream: Hole v. Chard Union, 1894, [illegible]Ch. 293; 7 R. 84; 70 L. T. 52; see also Ratté v. Booth, 10 P. R. 649; 14 Ont. App. 419; 15 A. C. [illegible]; obstruction to light: Jenks v. Clifden, 1897, 1 Ch. 694; 76 L. T. 382.

This Rule is merely declaratory of what was the practice in Equity prior to the Judicature Act: Stalker v. Dunwich, 15 Ont. 342; Turner v. Burns, 24 Ont. 28; Hole v. Chard Union, supra.

Where damage is caused to land, causing subsidence, there is a fresh cause of action on every fresh subsidence, and the recovery of damages for one subsidence is no bar to another action for damages occasioned by a subsequent subsidence: Darley Main Colliery Co. v. Mitchell, 11 App. Cas. 127; 54 L. T. 82; Crumbie v. Wallsend, 1891, 1 Q. B. 503; but such damages cannot be given in anticipation: West Leigh Colliery v. Tunnicliffe, 1908, A. C. 27.

Where damages were awarded in lieu of an injunction owing to building operations of the defendant, under this Rule they were allowed in respect of acts occurring after the writ issued but prior to judgment: Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542; 42 L. T. 225.

Where an assessment of damages for nuisance was made by the Master three years after the date of the judgment, under this Rule it was held they were properly assessed up to the date of the certificate: Read v. Wotton, 1893, 2 Ch. 171; and see Jones v. Simes, 1890, 43 Ch. 607, at p. 612. Rule 261.

261. A party shall not be entitled to judgment at the trial or on motion on the ground of his pleading being true, if the facts proved are not sufficient in point of law to entitle him to judgment. C.R. 610. No judgment on true pleadings merely.

Taken from 44 Vict. c. 5, s. 44. There is no corresponding Eng. Rule.

Gray v. Stait, 11 Q. B. D. 668, illustrates this Rule. That was an action for wrongful distress by seizure of goods off the premises, after the expiration of the tenancy, and the tenant had given up possession. The defence set up was proved, viz.: that they had been fraudulently removed to prevent distress for rent; but nevertheless judgment was directed to be entered for the plaintiff for 1s.

In McGee v. Kane, 14 Ont. 226, this Rule was held not to be applicable. In that case the statement of claim had been held to be sufficient upon a demurrer, and the plaintiff having at the trial proved the material allegations in it, it was held that an objection that the facts proved were not sufficient in law to entitle the plaintiff to judgment, could not be entertained, and that the decision on the demurrer should be followed at the trial. See also Weir v. Mathieson, 11 Gr. 390.

Though the facts alleged by the plaintiff be true and be undisputed by the defendant, yet if they do not entitle the plaintiff to the relief claimed the action should be dismissed: Society of Architects v. Kendrick, 102 L. T. 526.

C. R. 545 provided: "If, when an action is called on for trial, the plaintiff appears, and the defendant does not, the plaintiff may prove his claim as far as the burden of proof lies upon him." And see Eng. (1883) R. 455. That Rule has not been continued, but probably no change in the practice is thereby made. Non-appearance of defendant.

Before the Jud. Act, 1881, in actions of ejectment, if the defendant did not appear at the trial, the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict without any proof: R. S. O. (1887) c. 51, s. 32. Now, ejectment suits are on the same footing in that respect as other suits: see Guillet v. Clark, referred to and discussed in 72 L. T. Jour. 398.

In the cases dealt with by C. R. 545, it has been held in England that the plaintiff need not prove service of the notice of trial: Charlton v. Dickie, 13 Ch. D. 160; Dacres v. Foote, W. N. 1890, 70; 88 L. T. Jour. 397; Baird v. E. R., etc., Racecourse, W. N. 1891, 144. See, however, The Avenir, 9 P. D. 84. This is in accordance with the former practice at Law. There had been a previous decision by Fry, J., the other way: Cockshott v. London General Cab Co., 26 W. R. 31; W. N. 1877, 214; and see notes to Rules 248, 250, 253. But, in the absence of any decision to the contrary, it would seem proper that, where judgment has been pronounced in the absence of a defendant, the officer with whom the judgment is entered should require due proof of service of notice of trial, or of motion for judgment, to be filed with him before entering the judgment, unless the proof has been given at the trial: see Glasgow v. Glasgow, 9 Ont. 511 (n). In actions tried at Toronto this is unnecessary, because the proof of service of the notice of trial is required to be filed when the case is set down: see Rule 250 (2).

The plaintiff's proof of his claim is of course limited to the allegations of his statement of claim: Barker v. Furlong, 1891, 2 Ch. 179, and he is entitled to the relief claimed, and such other relief as is consistent therewith: see Stone v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 188; Kingdon v. Kirk, 37 Ch. D. 141.

If the defendant has a counter-claim and does not appear at the trial, the plaintiff is entitled to have judgment on his claim on proving it, and to have the counter-claim dismissed with costs: Lumley v. Brookes, 41 Ch. D. 323.

If plaintiff was entitled at service of writ, but not afterwards.

262. If in action to recover land the plaintiff is, at the time of the service of the writ, entitled to possession, but his right afterwards expires, he may by leave discontinue the action, and the costs shall be in the discretion of the Court.

Taken from C. R. 611, which was taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 51, s. 31. There is no corresponding Eng. Rule.

In England a writ of possession will be allowed to issue although the plaintiff's estate terminated after action commenced, and before trial, unless it will be unjust and futile to issue the writ, and it is for the defendant to shew affirmatively that such will be the result of issuing the writ: Knight v. Clarke, 15 Q. B. D. 294; but where the action is discontinued as provided in this Rule, no writ of possession could be issued.

As to the ordinary procedure for discontinuing an action: see Rule 321.

List of exhibits.

263.—(1) Exhibits shall be numbered, and the Registrar attending the trial shall, at the conclusion thereof, make a list of the exhibits, giving a description of each exhibit, and stating by whom it was put in. The exhibits of each party shall be classified separately in such list. C.R. 555 and 556.

Exhibits to remain in Court till judgment.

(2) The exhibits shall remain in Court until judgment is given and during any stay of proceedings, and thereafter shall be delivered out, without order, upon the application of either party upon notice to the other, unless an appeal is taken, when the exhibits shall be retained until the appeal is disposed of. C.R. 557.

Or pending appeal.

Exhibits may be destroyed if not applied for.

(3) Where exhibits have not been applied for within five years from the date of a trial the officer in whose custody they are may notify the solicitors for the parties that unless they are applied for in three months they will be destroyed, and unless such exhibits are applied for within that period he may by leave of a Judge destroy them. New. Rule 264.

For Form of marking Exhibit. See No. 125 and H. & L. Forms, No. 833. Exhibits at trial, how to be marked.

For Form of Schedule of Exhibits, see No. 130 and H. & L. Forms, No. 834.

A regulation of the Judges passed on 17th December, 1904, provides as follows:

"6. When the Judge at a trial reserves judgment in any case, elsewhere than at Toronto, the Clerk of the Court shall forthwith forward the record and exhibits to the Central Office. Papers to be transmitted where judgment reserved.

"7. All local officers of the Court when sending papers or exhibits to the Central Office shall indorse on the wrapper enclosing such papers or exhibits, the short style of cause, the title of the officer sending them, and the purpose for which they are sent,—e.g., 'Jones v. Smith. From Local Registrar at Brantford, for Appeal to Divisional Court' or 'For Mr. Justice Magee'—or as may be."

264. The verdict and judgment shall be indorsed on the Record, and shall also be recorded by the Registrar or officer acting as clerk at the sittings in a book to be kept for recording the proceedings thereat. C.R. 558. Amended. By whom entries of findings to be made.

See Eng. (1883) R. 465.

The practice under the English Rule is substantially the same as that which this Rule provides, except that the verdict and judgment are not required to be indorsed on the copy of the pleadings.

As to the effect of a judgment pronounced but not signed: see note to Rule 512.

The Rule is silent as to the person by whom the indorsement on the Record is to be made; but the practice hitherto prevailing has been that the Judge who tried a case himself always signed the indorsement, and also usually made it. By whomsoever made, it seems desirable that the Judge should continue to sign the indorsement in order to prevent mistakes, as it is upon this indorsement, and not on the written reasons, if any, that judgments are drawn up and settled. The indorsement of the Record is a perpetuation of the old Common Law procedure.

By C. R. 559, it was provided that the indorsement or a certificate of the officer should be sufficient authority to the proper officer to sign judgment, and see Eng. (1883) R. 466. Certificate of Judge or officer.

But that Rule has not been continued but probably no change in the practice has been made.

C. R. 553 expressly provided that the Judge might postpone or adjourn the trial. Adjournment of trial.

Rule 284.

Although that Rule has not been continued it would seem probable that such power still exists.

Where the hearing of an action was adjourned to allow the plaintiffs to add parties, the plaintiffs were ordered to pay all the costs incurred by the action having been in the paper for hearing, and not merely a fixed sum for costs of the day: Lydall v. Mortinson, 5 Ch. D. 780; Smith v. Boyd, 18 P. R. 76, and see 18 P. R. 296.

Where a plaintiff seeks relief in respect of matters not covered by his statement of claim, an amendment is necessary, which, in general, will only be granted on the terms of adjourning the trial to give the defendant time to consider the fresh claim, and the plaintiff paying all costs thrown away, including the costs of the day: Cobb v. Stringer, 100 L. T. Jour. 181; Karunoratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 405.

The trial of an action to recover damages for personal injuries was ordered to be postponed at the instance of the defendants, on the ground that sufficient time had not elapsed to enable the damages to be properly estimated: Speers v. Great Western Ry., 6 P. R. 170.

Motions to postpone the trial may, of course, be made before the trial, and should be so made, where practicable, in Chambers, before expense in preparing for trial is incurred.

For terms imposed where defendant obtained an order for postponement on payment of costs, and then notified plaintiff's solicitor that defendant would not pay the costs and that the trial must go on, upon which plaintiff applied to postpone: see Allen v. Mathers, 19 C. L. J. 79.

The Master in Chambers, on a motion to postpone the trial, has under this Rule, power to impose terms, e.g., giving security for the amount sued for: Bank of Hamilton v. Stork, 13 P. R. 13.

The costs of postponing a trial, on account of the absence of a material witness, will be costs in the cause, where diligent efforts have been made to secure attendance: Brown v. Porter, 11 P. R. 250; but where the application is not made promptly, the applicant may be ordered to pay the costs of the application and adjournment: McMillan v. McDonald, 22 Gr. 362.

As to costs of the day on a postponement of the trial: see Outwater v. Mullett, 13 P. R. 509.

See Foirburn v. Household, etc., 53 L. T. 513, in note to Rule 252.

Judge may direct entry of judgment; or reserve judgment.

The Judge at the trial cannot against the will of the plaintiff's counsel, non-suit the plaintiff on the opening address, without hearing the evidence: Fletcher v. L. & N. W. Ry., 1892, 1 Q. B. 122; but where there is some evidence adduced by the plaintiff, but it is not of such a nature as would warrant the jury in finding a verdict in his favour, the Judge may direct a non-suit: Hiddle v. National F. & M. Ins. Co., 1896, A. C. 372; 74 L. T. 204.

Where at the trial it appears, at the close of a plaintiff's case, that there is no evidence against one of the defendants, it is within the discretion of the Judge whether he will then direct a verdict in such defendant's favour, or wait till the whole evidence in the cause closes: Parnell v. Great Western Railway Company, 34 L. T. 126; see 1 Q. B. D. 636.

In such a case, the action being for negligence, one of the defendants called witnesses, the effect of whose evidence was to throw the blame on his co-defendant, and they were cross-examined by the latter's counsel, a verdict being found against this defendant and in favour of the other; it was held that these circumstances did not entitle the unsuccessful defendant to object to the verdict: Ib. Rule 264.

Where there are several distinct issues to be tried, the Judge may, without the consent of the parties, accept the verdict of the jury upon those issues on which they agree, and discharge them upon the others, leaving the parties, if they think fit, to take down the undecided issues to a new trial; and the Court will give judgment on the decided issues, and has power to send down the undecided issues to a new trial: Marsh v. Isaacs, 45 L. J. C. P. 505. Disagreement of jury.

Where the jury, in answer to questions, gave answers which were not consistent with one another, they were sent back for re-consideration of the inconsistent answers: Peuchen v. Imp. Bank, 20 Ont. 325. Jury giving inconsistent answers.

Under the present Rules judgment in actions to recover land, as in all others, may be entered at once unless the Judge otherwise directs: see Rudd v. Frank, 17 Ont. 758.

Where a Judge, after trying a case without a jury, reserves judgment, and dies without having given it, the case must go down to trial again: Clarke v. Trask, 1 O. L. R. 207. Death of Judge.

After a judgment by consent has been passed and entered, it cannot afterwards be varied on the ground of mistake, except for reasons sufficient to set aside an agreement: Attorney-General v. Tomline, 7 Ch. D. 388; such a judgment creates an estoppel between the parties: Re South American Co., 1895, 1 Ch. 37; 71 L. T. 594. As to appeals in such cases: see s. 26 of the Act and notes. After entry of judgment it cannot be varied.

Where the Judge does not at the trial direct judgment to be entered, he may indorse on the record at any time subsequent thereto his direction for judgment, upon which judgment may be entered as though the indorsement had been made at the trial; or he may, after the facts have been found by the jury, or by the Judge at or after the trial, indorse the finding, and leave the parties to move for judgment before him, usually such motion is made at the trial, and if necessary the Judge reserves judgment.

Where, at a trial by jury, a motion for a non-suit is made at the close of the plaintiff's case, and again at the close of the whole evidence, and the Judge adopts the course of taking a verdict, and of considering the motion afterwards, he may, if he considers that there was no evidence to go to the jury, dismiss the action: Macdonald v. Mail Printing Co., 32 Ont. 163; 2 O. L. R. 278; the power to direct judgment to be entered for defendant on the ground that there was no evidence to go to the jury, was assumed in Davies v. Felix, 4 Ex. D. 33; see also Rocke v. McKerrow, 24 Q. B. D. 463; 62 L. T. 556; though there the Judge on consideration could not say that there was no evidence to go to the jury. The fact that the Judge refused the motion for a non-suit at the close of the plaintiff's case does not prevent his giving effect to it at the close of the whole case: Skeate v. Slaters, 1914, 2 K. B. 429; 110 L. T. 604. See also s. 43 of the Act, and Daun v. Simmins, 48 L. T. 343, and Hamilton v. Johnson, 5 Q. B. D. 263; but where the jury have found for the plaintiff and there is evidence to support the finding, it cannot be disregarded, and a judgment contrary to it cannot be entered: Kelly v. Davidson, 32 Ont. 8; 27 Ont. App. 687; Perkins v. Dangerfield, 51 L. T. 535; Conn. Mutual v. Moore, 6 App. Cas. 644; Macdonald v. Mail Printing Co., supra; Burns v. Clark, 37 C. L. J. 32; unless the finding is on an immaterial issue, and the Judge is of opinion that, on the undisputed facts, the defendant is entitled to judgment: see Horgrove v. Dominion Council of Templars, 2 O. L. R. 79, 89.

Where the jury answers questions partly in favour of each party, so that no judgment can be entered for either party, the Judge may decline to enter any judgment, and the case then stands as upon a disagreement of the jury, and may be brought on again for trial as if the findings did not exist: Rule 501. If either party thinks that the findings justify a judgment in his favour, his course will be to move for judgment upon them at or after the trial; if the Judge declines to enter any judgment the motion will be dismissed, and an appeal may be had from the decision or order on the motion for judgment: see notes to Rule 501.

Under the Eng. R. 463, judgment was in Peters v. Perry, 10 T. L. R. 266, entered for the defendant where the jury had disagreed. Under s. 30, if the jury disagree and find no verdict, the Judge at or after the trial may dismiss the action; and see Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, Patterson, J.A., November, 1883. In that case the action was upon promissory notes: the defence relied on was the insolvency of the defendant and his discharge under a deed of composition and discharge duly confirmed. In reply the plaintiffs attacked the discharge on the grounds of fraud, and fraudulent preference. Objections were taken to the validity of the discharge upon facts which were undisputed, and as to certain other matters of fact which were disputed, evidence was gone into, to shew that the discharge had been obtained by fraudulent preference of a creditor, and by giving to that creditor a valuable security. At the trial the defendant objected that there was no evidence to go to the jury. Without deciding whether there was, or was not evidence, the question was left to the jury by the Judge, and this and all other questions were reserved for discussion on motion for judgment. The jury disagreed and therefore left the question unanswered. Nevertheless, both parties moved for judgment, the plaintiffs contending that on the undisputed facts, objections fatal to the discharge were established; the defendant contending that the discharge was good as against such objections, and that there was no evidence proper to go to the jury on the issue of fraud, or fraudulent preference. Both motions were refused though apparently considered proper in point of form, the Judge being of the opinion that the issue as to the validity of the discharge could not properly have been withdrawn from the jury, and that the undisputed facts were not, without the matters left to the jury for consideration, sufficient to decide the question as to the validity of the discharge.

As to the effect of the withdrawal of a juror: see Thomas v. Exeter Flying Post, 18 Q. B. D. 822.

Unanimity of the jury is no longer necessary, the verdict of 10 out of 12 is sufficient: section 58 (1), supra. If any juror is discovered to have an interest in the result, or to be a relative of any of the parties, he may be discharged, and the trial may proceed before the remaining 11, of whom the verdict of 10 is sufficient: Ib., s. 59.

The judgment of the Court should not go beyond the relief claimed by the pleadings. In Korunoratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 405, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council animadverted on tho Court below having awnrded relief not covered by the issues raised on the pleadings. There the question raised on the pleadings was whether a will waa good or had in toto, and the jndgment found it was good as to personaity. Rule 266.

Staying Entry of Judgment, or Execution.—Unless the Judge at the trisi stays the entry of the judgment: see Rule 495, it may be eatered forthwith.

An application to stay the entry of judgment, or the issue of execution, is best made at the trini when all the facts are known to the Judge. If not made tlii later it may be necessary to shew on affidavit circumstances making a atay just: see Tuck v. Southern Counties, etc., Bank, 61 L. ⁊. 159.

Formerly, if a stay of execution had been refused hy the Judge at the trial, an application to the Court must be supported by special circumstsnces; and allegations that the verdict or judgment was against the weight of evidence, or that there was no evidence to support the verdict or jndgment, or that there was misdirection, were not special circumstancea: Monk v. Bartram, 1891, 1 Q. B. 346.

As to stay of execution and further proceedings in the action in the event of an appeal to the Appellate Division: see Rules 495-498.

Record and Exhibits.—The exhibits are retained in Court until judgment has been given, and during any atay of proceedings: Rule 263 (2).

The Record is also retained in Court.

In the County of York records and exhibits are forwarded hy the Clerk of Assize to the Central Office, from which, when required before the Registrar settiing the judgment, they can be obtained on his requisition: see Rule 396 (2). The judgment, when settied, is entered in the office where the action was commenced: Rule 531. County of York.

In other counties, where judgment is given at the trial, the record and exhibits are retained by the officer who attends as Registrar at the trial, if he is the officer in whose office the proceedings were commenced, as in that case he is the proper officer to enter judgment: Rule 531; or when the judgment is settled hy him (Rule 527), they are forwarded by him to the officer in whose office the proceedings were commenced, and where the judgment is to he entered: Rule 531. Other counties.

Where judgment is reserved at the trial, the record and exhibits must be forwarded to the Central Office: see Regulation of 17th December, 1904, in note to Rule 263 (2); and aft judgment is given should be transmitted to the officer who is to settle the judgment.

When the record and exhibits are required on a motion before a Divisional Court, they may be forwarded to the Central Office, under Rule 396 (1).

265. The Judge by whom any cause or matter is tried with or without a jury, and the Court before which any cause or matter is brought by way of appeal, may inspect any property or thing concerning which any question arises therein, and where the sanity of a party is Judge may inspect.

Rule 266.

in question, may examine him for the purpose of determining his sanity. C.R. 570. Amended.

Where a Judge takes a view of premises or property in dispute, semble, he should do so in presence of the parties, so as to avoid any mistnke as to the property viewed being that in dispute.

This Rule applies (1) to trials, (2) to motions by way of appeal. It does not authorize a view on any interiocutory motions which are not hy way of appeal. The difficulty in the way of a Judge acting on a personal view, in an interiocutory motion, is that the evidence of his senses cannot be laid before an appellate tribunal in the event of an appeal from his decision; hut, of course, the same difficulty usually exists in any case where a view is had either hy Judge, or jury. The Rule authorizes a personal examination by an Appellate Court of a person whose sanity is in queation, as was done in In re Fraser, 26 O. L. R. 508.

In England it has been held that a Judge on the trial of an action of deceit cannot take a view of the property, or matter, in litigation, in lieu of taking the evidence of witnesses, e.g., on a question of colourable imitation: London General Omnibus Co. v. Lavell, 1901, 1 Ch. 135; 83 L. T. 453; and see Kessowji Issur v. Great Indian Peninsular Ry., 96 L. T. 859; Re Fraser, 26 O. L. R. 508; hut in an action to restrain the passing off of goods of the defendant as those of the plaiatiff, it is said that the Judge looking at the exhibits before him, and also paying due attention to the evidence adduced, must not surrender his own independent judgment to nny witness: per Lord Macnaghten. Payton v. Snelling, 1901, A. C. 311; and sea Civil Service v. Dun, 1897, 13 Ch. D. 512; North Cheshire & M. B. Co. v. Manchester B. Co., 1899, A. C. 83; Hecla F. I. Co. v. Walker, 14 App. Cas. 555; Houldsworth v. McCrea, 1867, L. R. 2 H. L. 380; Bonnie v. Swan, 1903, 1 Ch. 211. Sed quære, if there is any distinction between the two classes of action, and whether under this Rule the function of the Judge is not the same in both, viz., to determine whether, in view of a comparison, there is any evidence.

Inspection of real or personal property by jury, parties or witnesses.

266. A party may apply for an order for the inspection by himself or by his witnesses, of any real or personal property, the inspection of which may be material to the proper determination of the question in dispute. (See also Rule 370.) C.R. 571.

See Eng. R. (1883) 659.

Rule 266 is confined to casea in which the property of which inspection is sought is in the possession, custody or control of the party against whom the order is desired: Hills v. Union Loan, etc., Co., 19 P. R. 1; Semble, inspection of property in which other persons not before the Court are interested cannot he ordered: Coomes v. Hayward, 1913, 1 K. B. 150.

This Rule is intended apparently to appiy to inspection for the purposes of a trial; further provision is made by Rule 370 for obtaining inspection in other cases.

Under the similar Eng. Rule, an order was made allowing defendants, at their own expense, to bring within the jurisdiction a ship stranded at a piaca out of the jurisdiction, and for which tha pinintiffs claimed to recover against the defendants on a policy of insurance, as for a totai ioss: S. S. New Orieons v. London Provinciol & Marine Ins. Co., 1909, 1 K. B. 943; 100 L. T. 595. Rules 267, 268.

Liberty was given under the similar Irish Rule to inspect a ship lying in harbour, on which it was alleged that certain timber, part of the subject matter of the action, had been placed by defendant for removal: Morris v. Howell, 22 L. R. Ir. 77.

Under Eng. (1883) R. 654, property has been ordered to be sent out of the jurisdiction for inspection by witnesses who are to be examined by commission: see notes to Rule 277, infro, p. 747.

In England there is no power to order the Sheriff of one county to bring a jury of that county to view lands in question in another county: Stoke v. Robinson, 6 T. L. R. 31; but see The Jurors Act, s. 86, in note to Rule 267 infro.

267. A view by the jury may be ordered by the Judge presiding at the trial. C.R. 572. Amended. Judge may order view at trial.

In order to obtain a view, C. R. 572 provided that evidence should be furnished shewing where the view is to be made, and the distance from the Sheriff's office, and that a deposit should be made to cover the expenses unless otherwise ordered; although these provisions are omitted from the present Rule, evidence of the kind indicated may still be required, and the deposit of a sum to cover expenses may be imposed as a term of granting a view.

By The Jurors Act (R. S. O. c. 64), it is provided as follows:—

"86.—(1) Where in an action, whether the same is to be tried by a Special or Common Jury, it appears to the presiding Judge that in order to the better understanding of the evidence, the jurors who are to try the issues ought to have a view of the place, or of the real or personal property in question, whether the same be within or without the county in which the trial is to take place, he may at any time after the jurors have been sworn and before they give their verdict, order that the jurors shall have such view. View by jurors.

(2) The order may be made on such terms as to costs and the adjournment of the trial and otherwise as may be deemed just, and shall contain directions to the Sheriff as to the manner in which, and the persons by whom, the place or the property in question shall be shewn to such jurors, and any other directions which under the circumstances the Judge may think proper." Terms of order.

Special Juries.—As to the provisions for trying actions by special juries: see The Jurors Act, ss. 78-85; and as to the Judge certifying for costs thereof: see Ib., s. 84: Barker v. Davis, 1913, 3 K. B. 34; 108 L. T. 941.

268. The Court may obtain the assistance of merchants, engineers, accountants, actuaries, or scientific persons, in such way as it thinks fit, the better to enable it to determine any matter of fact in question in any cause or proceeding, and may act on the certificate of such persons. C.R. 94. Court may obtain service of experts.

Master cannot employ experts.

It is only the Court that is authorized to obtain the assistance of experts. A Master to whom a cause is referred, has no authority to employ experts for the purpose of assisting him to come to a conclusion on matters referred to him: Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robertson, 24 Gr. 555; Mildmay v. Lord Methuen, 1 Drew. 216; 16 Jur. 965; but see contra, Re London & Birmingham Ry. Co., 6 W. R. 141; and see Rule 422, note.

Costs of expert may be allowed though improperly.

Where, however, the Master had, at the instance of the plaintiff, and with the consent of the creditors, in an administration suit, employed an expert, and the parties received the benefit of his services without objection, the Court on appeal by the creditors refused to disallow the costs incurred: Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robertson, supra.

This Rule gives a wide discretion to the Court as to the manner in which experts shall be employed; but apparently it does not give the Court power to direct experts to be employed for the purpose of giving evidence as witnesses; it appears merely to enable the Court to procure the assistance of experts for the purpose of getting their opinions, on the evidence adduced by the parties, or upon a view of the locus in quo: see Enderwick v. Allden, 88 L. T. Jour. 12.

In Broder v. Soillord, 25 W. R. 456, the Judge at the trial, appointed an independent surveyor to make a report, and at the adjourned hearing his report was handed to the Judge; the Judge thought that two points should be stated more fully, and he directed the surveyor to make an addition to his report, observing that he preferred not to allow the surveyor to be sworn as a witness, as he was acting in a quasi-judicial capacity.

Cases in which expert appointed.

Where there is contradictory evidence on a scientific question the Court is at liberty to employ an independent expert to give advice upon which the Court may form its judgment: Badische Anilin, etc., v. Levinstein, 24 Ch. D. 156.

An expert has been employed to ascertain the effect of a dam on the water penned back: Dickson v. Burnham, 14 Gr. 601; 17 Gr. 265; Hawkins v. Mohoffy, 29 Gr. 326; and the amount of encroachment of alluvium on a sea shore: Attorney-General v. Chambers, 4 DeG. & J. 55, 58; and as to the effect of using steamboats on a canal: Case v. Midland Ry. Co., 27 Beav. 247; as to the mental condition of a person alleged to be a lunatic: Re Fraser, 24 O. L. R. 222. As to the circumstances under which the Court will send an expert, to report in the case of a suit to abate a nuisance: see Slavin v. North Boncepeth Coal Co., L. R. 9 Chy. 705; Enderwick v. Allden, supra.

Court cannot refuse to grant relief against nuisance until inquiry made by expert how it may be best abated.

Where a plaintiff proves himself entitled to an injunction against a nuisance, or other injury, the Court cannot, before pronouncing judgment, order an expert to be employed, for the purpose of ascertaining the best mode of removing the nuisance, etc., even though the injunction to which the plaintiff is entitled be a difficult one for the defendant to obey: Attorney-General v. Colney Hatch Asylum, L. R. 4 Chy. 146; and a general inquiry as to what ought to be done to preserve the plaintiff's light and air was refused: Stokes v. City Offices Co., 13 W. R. 537. But after judgment, the opinion of an expert may be taken, as to the time which ought to be allowed for carrying it into effect: Attorney-General v. Methyr Tydfil, 5 W. R. 148.

Rule 263.

In the Baltic Co. v. Simpson, 24 W. R. 390, it was held that the Court ought not, under ss. 64, and 65 of the Jud. Act, [illegible] an order before trial, appointing a scientific person to report on a question of fact.

Where a matter is referred by the Court to an expert for report, a formal order of reference to him should be drawn up; but where an expert acted, and made his report, without this having been done, the Court acted on the report notwithstanding the objection: Enderwick v. Alden, 88 L. T. Jour. 12.

Appointment may be ex parte.

Where an expert is employed, it is not absolutely necessary that the appointment should be made in the presence of the parties: Re London & Birmingham Ry. Co., [illegible] W. R. 141.

Expert cannot call witnesses.

An expert cannot call witnesses: Morris v. Llanelly Ry. Co., W. N. 1868, 46; and his report is not conclusive: Ford v. Tynte, 2 D. J. & S. 127; Adamson v. Gill, 16 W. R. 306.

Assessors.

The Court cannot after the evidence has been taken in an action call in the aid of experts as assessors, and base its judgment on their opinion as to the result of conflicting testimony of a technical character: Wright v. Collier, 19 Ont. App. 298; not even though the assessors are so called in with the consent of the parties: Ib.

Reference to experts under Jud. Act., ss. 64, 65.

Under The Jud. Act, s. 64, any question arising in any cause or matter may be referred to an official referee, or to any special referee agreed on by the parties, for inquiry and report, and in this way the assistance of experts may be obtained. And under s. 65 a cause or matter may, in certain cases therein mentioned, be referred to a special referee (if the parties so agree) for trial.

No power it will be seen is given to the Court under s. 64 or 65, to refer a cause to anybody but an official referee, except by consent of the parties. Where, therefore, a reference is required under those sections to an expert, it would seem that the parties must agree on the referee to be named. It is possible, however, that this Rule may be held so to amplify the power of the Court as to enable it to refer causes for the purposes mentioned in ss. 64 and 65, to special referees of its own nomination, independently of the consent of the parties.

Where a referenee is directed to an expert for inquiry or report under s. 64, or for trial under s. 65, that is, of course, an exception to the rule laid down in Morris v. Llanelly Ry. Co., supra, that he cannot call witnesses: see Rules 270, 400.

Where a question, or a cause or matter, is referred to a special referee under s. 64 or 65, his report is appealable in the same way and within the same time as a Master's report: see Rules 400, 503.

Expert evidence.

Where an expert is required to give evidence, his evidence should be given viva voce, as the Court as a general rule discourages the taking of such evidence by commission: The Attorney-General v. Gooderham, 10 P. R. 259.

It is provided by The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 10, that not more than three expert witnesses on each side shall be examined without leave, to be obtained before the examination of any of the three which may be called without leave, in any action, arbitration, or other proceeding.

Rule 248.

Tho neglect of the Judge at the trini to enforce this provision was held to he ground for granting a new trial: Rice v. Sockett, 27 O. L. R. 410.

In the caso of proceedings within the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament, five may he called suhject to the like provision: Canada Evidence Act (R. S. C. c. 145), s. 7.

Where parties adduce quasi expert evidence, it is not open to the Court, upon a trial by jury, to withdraw the case from the jury, hecause, in the opinion of the Court, the witnesses are incompetent to give expert evidencc, hut the evidence must be suhmitted quantum valeat; e.g., in an issue in which the mental capacity of a testator was in question, the evidence of witnessos who spoke to his mental capacity was held to he admissihle, even though the witnesses were not, in the opinion of tho Court, experts: Regan v. Waters, 10 Ont. App. 85. As to the weight to he attached to the conclusions of scientific witnesses: see Goldsmid v. Tunbridge Wells, L. R. 1 Chy. 349.

Where the opinions of experts on foreign law nre conflicting, the Court may examine for itself the text hooks and judicial decisinns of the foreign country, in order to arrive at a satisfactory cnnclusion: Rice v. Gunn, 4 Ont. 579; The Stettin, 14 P. D. 142. The Court will not receive the opinions of experts as to the proper construction of a Canadian statute: e.g., the evidence of surveyors as to the correct mode of making a survey under a statute is inndmissihle: Stafford v. Bell, 6 Ont. App. 273.

The costs incurred in order to qualify experts to give evidence are not tayahle hetween party nnd party: see McGannon v. Clarke, 9 P. R. 505.

Rule 266.

CHAPTER XIII.

EVIDENCE.

269. The witnesses at the trial of an action or an assessment of damages shall be examined viva voce and in open Court, but a Judge may at any time, for sufficient reason, order that any particular fact or facts may be proved by affidavit, or that the affidavit of any witness may be read at the trial, on such conditions as he may deem just, or that any witness whose attendance ought for some sufficient cause to be dispensed with, be examined before an examiner; but where the other party bonâ fide desires the production of a witness for cross-examination, and such witness can be produced, an order shall not be made authorizing his evidence to be given by affidavit. C.R. 483. Evidence on trial to be viva voce.

See Eng. (1883) R. 483. The use of affidavits at a trial was not permissible in the Common Law Courts; but in Chancery exhibits might formerly be proved at the hearing in that way.

Under Chy. O. 176, from which this Rule is derived, there were many decisions as to the matters which might, and might not, be proved by affidavit: see Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 777, 1236; Devey v. Thornton, 9 Ha. 233; Fowler v. Reynal, 15 Jur. 1019; Re Delevante, Delevonte v. Child, 6 Jur. N. S. 118; Bush v. Watkins, 14 Beav. 33; Hoghton v. Hoghton, 15 Beav. 278; Bear v. Smith, 5 D. & S. 92; Follows v. Dillon, 2 W. R. 507; Botemon v. Margerison, 2 W. R. 607; Howard v. Chaffers, 11 W. R. 585; Evans v. Lewis, 2 L. T. 559; Fleming v. East, Kay, App. iii.; Macdonald v. Antelme, W. N. 1884, 72. Evidence at trials, etc.

Affidavits as to trustees' conduct, between judgment and the hearing on further directions, may be read by the original plaintiff on the question of costs; but not affidavits as to their conduct before judgment; but it would seem that persons added as defendants in the Master's office, or who are served with the judgment under Rule 87, might read affidavits as to the trustees' conduct before, or after judgment, on the question of costs: Re Revill, 55 L. T. 542. Affidavits.

In an administration action, the Court may, under this Rule, if it thinks fit, receive fresh affidavit evidence on further consideration: May v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347; see, however, Downey v. Roof, 6 P. R. 89, and Goodall v. Clarke, 2 O. W. N. 1388 as to the usual material which may be used on further directions, viz., the pleadings, the judgment and orders, if any, and the Master's report.

Certain facts are expressly authorized to be proved by affidavits: e.g., service of notice to produce documents: see Rule 272; the absence from Ontario of a witness or party whose evidence has been taken by commission: see Rule 287.

Rule 269.

The Court has no power on a motion for judgment for default of pleading to receive evidence by affidavit to prove the allegations of the statement of claim against infants, or parties non compotes mentis, or in any other case, except where Rule 222 is applicable: see Ellis v. Robbins, 50 L. T. 512; 17 C. L. J. 342; and Re Fitzwater, 32 L. J. Chy. 83.

Evidence at trial to be oral.

The Judge should, in every case of fairly contested or disputed facts coming on to be tried, take the evidence orally unless some good reason to the contrary is shewn: Atty.-Gen. v. Metropolitan District Ry. Co., 5 Ex. D. 218; see also Nagle-Gillman v. Christopher, 4 Ch. D. 173; Blackburn Union v. Brooks, 7 Ch. D. 68; Warner v. Mosse, 16 Ch. D. 101.

In the absence of agreement, evidence must be taken viva voce at the trial, and affidavits used on a motion cannot be used at the hearing: Perkins v. Slater, 45 L. J. Chy. 224; but where an interlocutory motion had been ordered to stand over till the hearing, and a deponent had died in the meantime, the Court allowed his affidavit to be read at a trial, with evidence viva voce, although the deponent had not been cross-examined: Elias v. Griffith, 46 L. J. Chy. 806.

Where none of the parties cited had appeared in an action to prove a will in solemn form, Hannen, P., refused to allow the execution and attestation of the will to be proved by affidavit: Cook v. Tomlinson, 24 W. R. 851. In Gornall v. Mason, 12 P. D. 142, an action for revocation of probate, an affidavit made by the witness eight years previously to obtain probate was allowed to be read as evidence in support of the will.

In Drewitt v. Drewitt, 58 L. T. 684, an affidavit used on a motion in the cause, made by a witness who was unable to attend at the trial, was allowed to be put in as evidence. This was not allowed in Blackburn Union v. Brooks, 7 Ch. D. 68, where cross-examination of the witness was desired.

The depositions of a defendant taken on his own behalf in shorthand upon a reference, were held to be admissible in evidence, notwithstanding that he had died before the examination was concluded and before cross-examination: Rondall v. Atkinson, 30 Ont. 242, 620.

The Judge, at any period in a case, may allow further evidence to be called by either party for his own satisfaction, though it be doubtful whether it would be admissible, on the request of either party, as of right: Budd v. Davison, 29 W. R. 192. It was said by Lord Esher, M.R., that at the trial the Judge may call and examine a witness not called by the parties, and that the right of the parties to cross-examine such a witness is in the discretion of the Judge, who should as a rule allow cross-examination by any party adversely affected by the answers of the witness, but not a general cross-examination: Coulson v. Disborough, 1894, 2 Q. B. 316; 70 L. T. 617; and see In re Keighley, 1893, 1 Q. B. 405, but these dicta of Esher, M.R., as to the right of a Judge to call a witness, were disapproved by the C. A.: Re Enoch & Zaretzky, 1910, 1 K. B. 327; 101 L. T. 801.

As to proof of registered instruments: see Barber v. McKay, 17 Ont. 562.

Depositions of Deceased or Absent Persons.—In an action under The Fatal Accidents Act, the depositions of the deceased taken de bene esse in an action commenced by himself under The Workmen's Compensation Act, were allowed to be read: Erdman v. Walkerton, 20 Ont. App. 444; and see Elias v. Griffith, supra, p. 734. Rule 369.

So also when a witness examined at a former trial cannot be found, his depositions in another judicial proceeding in which the opposite party had an opportunity to cross-examine him, may be used, on proof of his absence, and inability to find him: Cuff v. Frazee Storage Co., 14 O. L. R. 263.

Telephone Conversations.—Evidence of a conversation over a telephone was admitted: Warren v. Forst, 22 O. L. R. 441; 24 O. L. R. 282; 46 S. C. R. 642.

Privilege of Witnesses.—A witness is not liable for slander in respect of statements made by him in the witness box: Dawkins v. Rokeby, 33 L. T. 196; not only is the evidence of a witness given under oath privileged, but so are also his preliminary statements made before trial to the litigant on whose behalf he is called, or the legal adviser of such litigant: Watson v. McEwan, 1905, A. C. 480; 93 L. T. 489.

Admissions.—A party may be called upon by any other party to admit any document, saving all just exceptions, by a notice to admit, which may be according to Form 39; H. & L. Forms, No. 686. Notice to admit documents.

This extends to all documents which a party proposes to adduce in evidence, and not merely those in his custody or control: Rutter v. Chapman, 8 M. & W. 388.

Among the "just exceptions" are the admissibility of the documents as evidence: Phillips v. Harris, Car. & M. 492, and their legal effect: Hills v. London Gas Light Co., 1 F. & F. 346; but not an objection to their reception on the ground of interlineation: Freeman v. Steggall, 14 Q. B. 202.

Admissions between defendants cannot be used as evidence against the plaintiff: Dodds v. Tuke, 25 Ch. D. 617.

A notice to admit must be given a reasonable time before trial: Tynn v. Billingsley, 3 Dowl. 810; Cary v. Cumberland, 1 P. R. 140 and holds good upon a subsequent trial: Day, C. L. P. Act, 3rd ed., 103: Wilson v. Baird, 19 C. P. 98.

A notice to admit may be given, in respect of a document not in the possession or under the control of the party: Rutter v. Chapman, 8 M. & W. 388; Conger v. McKechnie, 1 C. L. Cham. 220; or a foreign judgment: Smith v. Bird, 3 Dowl. 641; or documents, the validity of which is directly in issue: Spencer v. Barough, 9 M. & W. 425.

C. R. 527 expressly authorized the giving of notice to admit, but though it is dropped, there is no alteration in the practice on this point.

For notices which may be given to enable secondary evidence to be given of wills, registered instruments, telegraphic messages, letters, etc.: see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), ss. 42-49.

Section 50 of The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 24), does not enable a party to use as evidence a certified copy of a registered probate: Barber v. McKay, 17 Ont. 562; 19 Ont. 50.

Rules 270, 271.

Admissions sufficiently signed by solicitor.

C. R. 528 provided that: "It shall be sufficient if written admissions are signed by the solicitor of the party by whom, or on whose behalf, they purport to be made."

Although that Rule has not been continued, it is to be presumed that no change is intended to be made in the practice. A solicitor is an officer of the Court and his signature is accepted as authentic, unless disputed.

The mere fact that documents are admitted in admissions signed by the solicitor, will not make them evidence unless put in at the trial: Watson v. Rodwell, 11 Ch. D. 150; and the admission of a copy does not entitle the plaintiff to put in the copy, without first accounting for the original: Sharpe v. Lambe, 11 A. & E. 805. The admission when made is conclusive: Langley v. E. of Oxford, 1 M. & W. 508.

Where the precaution of giving a notice to admit has not been taken, any extra expense occasioned thereby may not be taxable: see Rule 670. On the other hand where the notice has been given and admissions have been unreasonably refused, the party neglecting or refusing to make the admissions may be ordered to pay the costs thereby occasioned: Rule 671.

Evidence before a Master or Referee.

270. All witnesses in any matter pending before a Master, shall be examined vivâ voce, unless it is otherwise ordered by the Master or by the Court on special grounds. C.R. 484.

See notes to Rule 269. This Rule also applies to matters referred to special or official referees: see Rule 400.

A subpœna may properly be issued to compel the attendance of a witness before a Master: Hannum v. McRae, 17 P. R. 567; 18 P. R. 185.

Depositions.

271. The Court may, in any cause or matter where it appears necessary for the purposes of justice, make an order for the examination upon oath before an officer of the Court or any other person and at any place, of any person, and may permit such deposition to be given in evidence. C.R. 485.

See Eng. (1883), R. 487.

Construction of Rule.

Scope of Rule.—This Rule applies only where there is pending litigation between contesting parties: Re Hewitt, 15 Q. B. D. 159, 163; and for the taking of evidence for the purposes of the trial, or upon a hearing upon a reference: Beaton v. Globe, 16 P. R. at pp. 285, 286; and for that purpose may be applied wherever necessary for the purposes of justice: see Warner v. Mosses, 16 Ch. D. 100; Nadin v. Bassett, 25 Ch. D. 21. It cannot be used merely for the purpose of obtaining discovery: Beaton v. Globe, supra, and see infra, p. 738.

It is not necessary to apply under this Rule for an order to examine witnesses on a reference after judgment; the former practice of subpœnaing without leave is not abolished: Raymond v. Tapson, 22 Ch. D. 430; Hannum v. McRae, 17 P. R. 567; 18 P. R. 185.

In lieu of a Commission.—This Rule may be invoked if necessary to obtain the evidence of a witness for use at the trial, without the issue of a commission, whether the witness be without, or within the jurisdiction, wherever it may be necessary and just: see notes to Rules 277 et seq.; see also Croft v. Middleton, 9 Ha. App. xviii.; London Bank of Mexico v. Hart, L. R. 6 Eq. 467; (where a form of order is given); Banque Franco-Egyptienne v. Lulcher, 41 L. T. 468; 28 W. R. 133. Rule 271. Order for examination of a witness in lieu of a commission.

Examination abroad under this Rule will be ordered upon the same principles and under the same circumstances as a commission would be ordered, as to which see Rule 277, and notes, and Delap v. Charlebois, 15 P. R. 142.

There is a difference between a party seeking to have his own examination abroad, and that of a mere witness. In both cases it is a matter of judicial discretion, but the discretion will be exercised in a stricter manner in the case of a party: Coch v. Allcock, 2 Q. B. D. 178, 181.

An order for examination of a plaintiff, otherwise than before the Court and jury, was considered not proper, where the issue was forgery of the plaintiff's name, or a personation of the plaintiff: Thomas v. Storey, 11 P. R. 417.

In applying under this Rule to examine witnesses before trial, it is not sufficient to shew that the examination will materially benefit the applicant, some special reason must be given why the witness should be examined, out of the regular course, and not at the trial for the first time: Hendrie v. Neelon, 19 C. L. J. 18; 2 C. L. T. 599.

Examination de bene esse.—Under this Rule orders may be made for examination of a witness de bene esse, for use at the trial, or on a reference in the Master's office: Re Dunsford, 9 P. R. 172. Examination de bene esse.

Examination of a witness de bene esse is allowed where there is danger of losing testimony from death, or absence at the time of the trial. An order will therefore be made where a necessary witness is going abroad, or is from illness, age, or other infirmity, likely to be unable to attend the trial: Warner v. Mosses, 16 Ch. D. 100; and generally speaking wherever justice requires it, though, as a rule, only where the evidence is to be used for some definite judicial proceeding pending: Whitehead v. Buffalo & L. H. Ry., 6 U. C. L. J. 232, where an order was made in contemplation of a reference to a Master not yet directed.

In a proper case, the evidence of a party plaintiff, or defendant, as a witness on his own behalf, may be ordered to be taken de bene esse: see Can. Pac. Ry. v. Rosen, 2 O. W. N. 375.

If the ground is that the witness is over 70 years or dangerously ill, or going immediately abroad, the application may be made ex parte: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 817; 6th ed., 655; Oliver v. Dickey, 2 Chy. Ch. 87; Crippen v. Ogilvey, Ib., 304; Bidder v. Bridges, 26 Ch. D. 1; Baker v. Jackson, 10 P. R. 624; Crammond v. Thompson, 11 T. L. R. 572; but the Court in its discretion refused to apply this rule to the extraordinary case of thirty witnesses over 70 years, in Bidder v. Bridges, supra.

In other cases notice should be served: see Anderson v. Anderson, 1 Chy. Ch. 291; Speors v. Daddell, 7 P. R. 260; Hooey v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 114.

If the only ground is that the witness is the only witness as to some facts, this should be clearly shewn: Hope v. Hope, 3 Beav. 317; Jomeson v. Jones, 3 Chy. Ch. 98; but the order may provide that the examination is not to be used at the trial unless the attendance of the witness cannot be procured: Elliott v. Can. Pac. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 593.

That the witness is going abroad is a sufficient ground. He need not be going permanently, or be the only witness: Speors v. Waddell, 7 P. R. 260; and where witnesses residing out of Ontario come within the jurisdiction, and are about to return, an order for their examination here before their departure may be made: Delap v. Charlebois, 15 P. R. 142.

Such orders are discretionary, and if witnesses have been examined, will not be reversed unless plainly erroneous: Ib.; and see Beoton v. The Globe, 16 P. R. 281.

As to what must be shewn at the trial before the deposition, when taken, can be used as evidence: see Dan. Pr., 6th ed., 656-7; 7th ed., 558-9.

For form of order for examination de bene esse: see Seton, 5th ed., 89; and see Burton v. Staffordshire Ry. Co., 35 W. R. 536; 56 L. T. 601; Solicitor of the Treasury v. White, 55 L. J. Pro. 79; W. N. 1886, 144.

Any party to the action, whose interest may be affected by the examination of witnesses under this Rule, is entitled to have counsel present on such examination to protect his interests: Dominion Bank v. Bell, 13 P. R. 471.

Where evidence had been taken in shorthand of a party on his own behalf, and he had died before the examination was concluded, and before he could be cross-examined, the evidence was held to be admissible: Randoll v. Atkinson, 30 Ont. 242, 620.

Costs.

Costs.—In Carty v. London, 10 C. L. T. 3, the costs of an examination were allowed, though the evidence was rejected at the trial as inadmissible; so also in Rondot v. Monetory Times, 18 P. R. 141, where it became unnecessary to use the depositions, in consequence of admissions made in evidence by the opposite party.

Examination cannot be had for discovery.

Cases in which Rule not Applicable.—By a series of decisions prior to 1894, this Rule was applied to authorize examinations for the purpose of discovery not only of parties, before the time for doing so in the ordinary course: Fisken v. Chamberlain, 9 P. R. 283; Boulton v. Blake, 11 P. R. 196; Tate v. Globe, 11 P. R. 253; Wallis v. Newton, 7 C. L. T. 138; Orpen v. Kerr, 11 P. R. 128; Thomson v. Gye, 13 P. R. 273; Campbell v. Scott, 14 P. R. 203; Beoton v. Globe, 15 P. R. 473; but also of persons not parties: Turner v. Kyle, 18 C. L. J. 402; Hendrie v. Neelon, 2 C. L. T. 499; McNally v. McDonold, 9 C. L. T. 54; Boulton v. Blake, 11 P. R. 196; Murray v. Worner, 11 P. R. 440; Gordon v. Phillips, Ib. 540; Carnegie v. Cox, Ib. 311; Smith v. Clarke, 12 P. R. 217; McMaster v. Mason, 12 P. R. 278; Brown v. Pears, 12 P. R. 396; see also Carnegie v. Federal Bank, 10 P. R. 69; Rosenheim v. Silliman, 11 P. R. 7; Hooey v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 114; Henderson v. Blain, 14 P. R. 308. All the decisions countenancing such examinations were disapproved of, and overruled by the Court of Appeal, in Beoton v. Globe Printing Co., 16 P. R. 281, in which it was held that this Rule does not apply to examinations for discovery. Ordinarily, such examinations must be had in the manner, and at the times provided, by Rules 327-337. There may be inherent jurisdiction in the Court or a Judge to make a special order for examination for discovery before the time for obtaining it in the ordinary way arrives, but there seems to be no express Rule on the subject: see note to Rule 336; and Rules 271, 349. Rules 272, 273.

The Rule was formerly held to apply to the examination of a witness on a pending motion who has not made an affidavit: Monaghan v. Dobbin, 18 C. L. J. 180; 2 C. L. T. 260; and a witness, from whom it is desired to obtain information, in order to serve a defendant with the writ: Seoger v. Borber, 27th August, 1881, Mr. Dalton.

It would seem that either this Rule, or Rule 228, may be applied where it is desired to examine a witness upon a pending ex porte motion: see McMillan v. Wonsborough, 10 P. R. 377, and notes to Rule 228.

Arbitration.—Semble, an arbitration pending before an arbitrator named under The Municipol Act (R. S. O. c. 192), s. 339, is not a "matter" within this Rule: Re Mocpherson ond Toronto, 16 P. R. 230.

Using Depositions in Another Action.—The Court has no power to make an order authorizing the use in a future action of evidence taken in a pending action: Erdmon v. Wolkerton, 14 P. R. 467. Using depositions in another action.

The depositions of a deceased person taken as a witness in a former suit were allowed to be read, the parties being in effect the same, the adverse party having had the opportunity to cross-examine, and the two actions substantially involving the same queations: Erdmon v. Walkerton, 22 Ont. 693; 20 Ont. App. 444; 23 S. C. R. 252. Depositions of a witness taken in another judicial proceeding in which the adverse party had power to cross-examine, may be admitted on proof that the witness after diligent search cannot be found: Cuff v. Frazee Storoge, 14 O. L. R. 263.

As to using depositions taken at a previous trial in the same action: see Monro v. Toronto Ry. Co., 9 O. L. R. 299.

272. Service of a notice to produce may, in the absence of an admission of service, be proved by an affidavit of the solicitor in the cause, or his clerk. C.R. 487. Evidence of service of notice to produce.

See Eng. Rule (1883) 378.

Notice to produce given for one trial will be good for a new trial if one is ordered: Hope v. Beadon, 1851, 21 L. J. Q. B. 25.

As to the reason and necessity for giving notice to produce at the trial: see notes to Rule 351.

273. A subpœna may be issued at any time in blank and may be completed by the solicitor or party, and any number of names may be inserted in one subpœna. C.R. 478, amended. Subpoena.

Rule 274.

A subpœna should be issued from the office where the proceedings were commenced: Rule 762.

Though a subpœna be issued from the wrong office yet if served and conduct money paid, the witness should attend and then raise any objections he may have to the regularity of the subpœna: Evel v. Bank of Hamilton, 3 O. W. N. 336.

Formerly it was necessary when serving a subpœna to exhibit the original: Woods v. Fader, 10 O. L. R. 643; but that is necessary now only in case it is demanded: see Rule 203.

A witness cannot have a subpœna set aside, merely because he swears he can give no relevant evidence; but if it is shewn that the subpœna was not issued bonâ fide and that the witness can give no relevant evidence, it may be set aside: Rex v. Baines, 1909, 1 K. B. 258.

Where a person required as a witness is undergoing imprisonment for a crime in the Province, it is necessary to move for an order to the governor of the prison to produce the prisoner in Court at the trial: see form of order, Seton, 5th ed., 89. Such an order, however, will not be issued when the time for trial is uncertain, until the case is on the paper for trial: Jenks v. Ditton, 76 L. T. 591, and see Rule 230.

A subpœna dated before the time when the party issuing the same was entitled to examine the witness subpœnaed was held to be irregular: McMurray v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 Ch. Ch. 130.

Subpœna to produce original record not to issue without order.

274.—(1) No subpœna for the production of an original record, or of an original document from any registry office, shall be issued, but an order for its production or transmission may be made which shall be obeyed by the officer in whose custody it is.

(2) Except in special circumstances requiring or justifying the production of the original, no such order shall be made where the document may be proved by a certified copy. Any officer required to produce a document shall be entitled to be paid ordinary witness fees. C.R. 479, amended.

The application for the order may be made to the Master in Chambers, or other officer exercising the like jurisdiction in Chambers. The application should be supported by an affidavit showing the necessity for producing the original, and that the production of a certified copy will not be sufficient.

The Rule applies to records of the Court, and memorials in the offices of Registrars of Deeds; an assignment of a squatter's right filed in the Crown Lands Department was held not to be a record within the meaning of the Rule: McGuire v. Sneath, 2 U. C. L. J. 184.

Original papers filed in Court should not be sent away to be used in evidence at a trial, unless it is shown that the production of the originals is essential; and the party applying to have them transmitted has some right in them; or the interests of public justice require their transmission: Gaynor v. Scott, 24 U. C. Q. B. 180; and by a regulation of the Court, dated 16 Feb., 1905, directions are given to office ... of the Court that, "subject to Rule 338 (now Rule 396 (2),) in case ... originals are required instead of examined or certified copies of affidavits, papers, and documents on file or of record in the Court, such originals shall not be taken away from the Court by any officer under a subpœna, unless authorized so to do by a Judge's order in that behalf." Rule 274.

Where original documents are produced in evidence under a subpœna by any public officer, the originals are not to be left in Court, but copies thereof, or of so much as may be necessary, certified by the officer, are to be put in: see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 48 (1); except where the genuineness of the document produced is in question: see Ib., s. 48 (2).

In an action for malicious arrest, the production of an examined copy of the affidavit on which the arrest was made, and shown to have been used in the cause, is sufficient primâ facie proof of such affidavit, and that it was made by the defendant: Spafford v. Buchanon, 3 O. S. 391; Wilson v. Thorpe, 18 U. C. Q. B. 443. But in an action for malicious prosecution, the production of the original indictment indorsed "no bill" is not sufficient proof of its termination; a record must be drawn up, and an examined copy produced: Hewitt v. Cone, 26 Ont. 133; Reg. v. Ivy, 24 C. P. 78; McConn v. Prenevcou, 10 Ont. 573, and see Gunn v. Cox, 3 S. C. R. 296; Henry v. Little, 11 U. C. Q. B. 296; Aston v. Wright, 13 P. R. 14; but see O'Horo v. Dougherty, 25 Ont. 347. A conviction returned to the Sessions and filed by the Clerk of the Peace becomes a record, and may be proved by a certified copy: Grohom v. McArthur, 25 U. C. Q. B. 478. In action for malicious arrest

So also the books, indictments and records of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, in the hands of the Clerk of the Peace, are public documents, and any person affected by them is entitled to a copy of a record of acquittal without the fiat of the Attorney-General: see sec. 132 supro; Rex v. Scully, 2 O. L. R. 315; 4 O. L. R. 394. Indictments and records of Gen. Sess.

Any public document filed in a public office of the government may be proved by a certified copy: McLeon v. McDowell, 1 U. C. Q. B. 13; The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 26, but see Longtry v. umoulin, 7 Ont. 499. As to proof of orders of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council: see The Evidence Act, s. 23; and as to orders of the Governor-General in Council, Ib., s. 22; registered instruments may be proved by certified copies. Ib., ss. 45-49. Certified copies of registered memorials are sufficient evidence of such memorials: Lynch v. O'Horo, 6 C. P. 259; but a memorial is not always sufficient proof of the deed to which it relates: Gough v. McBride, 10 C. P. 166; Ansley v. Breo, 14 C. P. 371; for the cases in which the memorial proves the deed, see The Vendors & Purchasers Act (R. S. O. c. 122), s. 2 (b), and (c); Re Higgins, 17 Gr. 303. Public documents.

As to proof of wills: see The Evidence Act, ss. 42-44; where the probate is admissible as evidence under this statute, it is evidence of the testator's death, as well as of the will: Dovis v. Von Norman, 30 U. C. Q. B. 437. Wills.

A Crown patent must be proved by the production of the original, or an exemplification thereof: Reid v. Banks, 10 C. P. 202; McCollum v. Dovis, 8 U. C. Q. B. 150; a certified copy is not sufficient: Prince v. McLeon, 17 U. C. Q. B. 463. Under The Quieting Titles Act, certified copies of patents are, however, received. Patents.

By-laws.

As to proof of municipal by-laws: see The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), s. 258; Robinson v. Gregory, 1905, 1 K. B. 534.

Subpœna duces tecum.

A sealed packet deposited with a banker is not exempt from production under a subpœna duces tecum: Rex v. Daye, 1908, 2 K. B. 333; 99 L. T. 165, and semble, the Court may in a proper case direct the seal to be broken and the contents divulged: but semble, a servant cannot on a subpœna duces tecum be compelled to produce the documents of his master without the latter's consent; and it lies on the party demanding production to show that the master assents; there is no obligation on the servant to procure his consent: Eccles v. Louisville & N. Ry., 1912, 1 K. B. 135; 105 L. T. 928.

Disobedience to a subpœna duces tecum may be punished by attachment even though the disobedience has not been wilful: Rex v. Daye, supra.

Calling opposite party.

275. Where a party desires to call an opposite party as a witness at the trial, if he is within the jurisdiction, he may either subpœna such party, or give him or his solicitor at least five days' notice of the intention to examine him as a witness in the cause, paying at the same time the amount proper for conduct money; and if such party does not attend on such notice or subpœna judgment may be pronounced against him, or the trial of the action may be postponed. C.R. 481, amended.

"At least five days" means five clear days: Rule 173 (2); Sundays and other holidays are excluded: see Rule 172.

It is to be observed that this Rule does not say that the notice is to be given five clear days before the commencement of the sittings. It, perhaps, therefore, may be sufficient if five clear days elapse before the case comes on; but see Sierichs v. Woodcock, 13 P. R. 260; Girvan v. McLean, 12 C. L. T. 357.

The Rule only applies to a party resident within the jurisdiction, and where a litigant is residing abroad the opposite party can not compel him to attend as a witness on notice, but must take his evidence by commission: see Patchin v. Davis, 10 U. C. Q. B. 639; Tyre v. Wilkes, 18 U. C. Q. B. 46; Sefton v. Lundy, 4 Chy. Ch. 33.

Payment of ordinary witness fees and conduct money is necessary: see Ham v. Lasher, 24 U. C. Q. B. 357.

Bench warrants.

276. Upon proof to the satisfaction of the presiding Judge of the service of a subpœna upon any witness who fails to attend or to remain in attendance in accordance with the requirements of a subpœna, and that a sufficient sum for his fees as a witness had been duly paid or tendered to him, and that the presence of such witness is material to the ends of justice, the Judge may by his warrant, directed to any sheriff or other officer of the Court, or to any constable, cause such witness to be apprehended anywhere within Ontario, and to be forthwith brought before the Court and detained in custody as the presiding Judge may order, until his presence as such witness is no longer required, or, in the discretion of the Judge, he may be released on a recognizance (with or without sureties) conditioned for his appearance to give evidence. C.R. 482. Rule 277.

For Form of Warrant: see No. 59; H. & L. Forms, No. 706.

277. Where the testimony of a person who is residing out of Ontario is required and for any reason an order under Rule 271 is not sufficient the Court may order the issue of a commission for the examination of such person. C.R. 499. Amended. Witnesses out of Ont.

C. R. 499 expressly enabled a Master or Referee to order the issue of a commission in proceedings pending before them; but although that is omitted in this Rule, it does not appear to deprive those officers of that power: see Rule 411; Brooks v. Georgian Bay, etc., Co., 16 P. R. 511.

This Rule provides for the issue of a commission only in the case of a "person who is residing out of Ontario," which will include any party, as well as a stranger to the action.

In the case of the examination de bene esse of aged or infirm persons resident within Ontario, or of persons about to withdraw therefrom, Rule 271 will now be applicable. Under it an order will be all that is necessary, without the issue of any commission.

A former Con. Rule 586 provided that the commission should be issued "in case the Court or Judge is satisfied that such commission is applied for in good faith and not for purposes of delay." These words have doubtless been omitted as unnecessary and the Court or Judge will still require to be satisfied, as formerly, of the propriety of granting the order: see Berdan v. Greenwood, 20 Ch. D. 764 n; 46 L. T. 524; Re Boyse, Crofton v. Crofton, 20 Ch. D. 760; Langen v. Tate, 24 Ch. D. 528.

Discretion of Court as to Granting Commissions to take Evidence.—There is no hard and fast rule as to granting, or refusing, a foreign commission. It is not granted as of course: Price v. Bailey, 6 P. R. 256; Vivian v. Mitchell, 13 C. L. J. 198; Berdan v. Greenwood; Re Boyse, Crofton v. Crofton, supra; Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 1, 178 (overruling Kemp v. Tennant, 2 T. L. R. 304). It is a matter of judicial discretion: Mills v. Mills, 12 P. R. 473; Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 1, 178; see also Re Imperial Land Co. of Marseilles, W. N. 1877, 236; 37 L. T. 588; Kidd v. Perry, 14 P. R. 364; an order was refused where it would cause delay, and the applicant had been dilatory in trying to obtain it: Stewart v. Gladstone, 7 Ch. D. 394; Temperance Colonization Socy. v. Evans, 7 C. L. T. 46; and it was said that a commission should never issue unless it appears that the evidence sought by it would be available upon some issue in the action: per Riddell, J., in Hawes, Gibson Co. v. Hawes, 3 O. W. N. p. 312. So, Discretion.

where the Court was not satisfied on the materials adduced, that the evidence was material: Longen v. Tate, 24 Ch. D. 522; Smith v. Grey, 10 P. R. 531; Morrow v. McDougald, 16 P. R. 129; Toronto Industrial Exhibition, etc., v. Houston, 5 O. W. R. 303; and where there was another action pending in the foreign country for the same cause: Mair v. Anderson, 11 U. C. Q. B. 160; and it was refused in a case where the evidence sought, though material, would be only corroborative: Ehrmann v. Ehrmann, 1896, 2 Ch. 611.

In Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, referred to in 27 W. R. p. 226, Brett, L.J., said: "I apprehend that the granting of a commission is a matter of discretion, and that the grounds upon which a commission is granted or refused is always a matter of comparison, namely, whether it is more convenient that the commission should go, than that witnessee should be examined before the tribunal here, and the exercise of that discretion depends upon the circumstances of each particular case." See the remarks of the same Judge in Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 181; see also Robins v. The Empire Printing Co., 14 P. R. 488; and Ferguson v. Millican, 11 O. L. R. 35.

The order may be reconsidered on appeal where circumstances render it just to do so: Emanuel v. Soltykoff, 8 T. L. R. 331, but the discretion of the Court or Judge will not readily be interfered with: Butterfield v. Finonciol News, 5 T. L. R. 279; Hunt v. Roberts, 9 T. L. R. 92.

In Re Boyse, Crofton v. Crofton, 20 Ch. D. 760, it was held that upon an application for a commission to take evidence abroad the Court ought to be satisfied that the application is made bonâ fide. Where the Court thought the witnese should be subjected to a strict cross-examination on part of a claim in which he was interested, and the French practice was to have the examination take place through the Judge only, a commiseion was refused: see aleo Berdon v. Greenwood, 46 L. T. 524; 20 Ch. D. 764 (note), where the case turned on the fact that the person to be examined was the plaintiff himself, and the Court was not satisfied that he could not attend so as to be cross-examined viva voce, but on the contrary, was keeping out of the way: see Langen v. Tate, 24 Ch. D. 522; Spiller v. Paris Skating Rink Co., W. N. 1878, 228; 27 W. R. 225; Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, supra; Kidd v. Perry, 14 P. R. 364; and Thomas v. Storey, and Lawson v. Vacuum Brake Co., 27 Ch. D. 137, as explained in Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 1, 178.

In the absence of special circumstanees making it desirable that the plaintiff should face the Court or jury in person, there is no reason why his evidence should not be taken by commission where he is residing abroad: Armour v. Walker, 25 Ch. D. 673; Banque Franco-Egyptienne v. Lutscher, 28 W. R. 133; 41 L. T. 468; W. N. 1879, 183; Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 1, 178; see Price v. Bailey, 6 P. R. 256.

Commission for examination of the party moving.

Where, however, the person to be examined abroad is the party himself who asks for the commission, the Court will be more circumspect as to making an order than in the case of an ordinary witness: Mills v. Mills, 12 P. R. 473; Light v. Anticosti, 58 L. T. 25; Price v. Railey, 6 P. R. 256; Kidd v. Perry, supra.

A plaintiff's application to take his own evidence by commission in an action for libel, was refused, it being considered that the plaintiff's evidence ought to be given before the jury, the main question being one of damages depending upon the plaintiff's testimony: Keiley v. Wakley, 9 T. L. R. 571. Rule 277.

There is however a difference between the case of a foreign plaintiff, and a foreign defendant, asking to be examined on commission in his own country. the Court will not regard a defendant's case with the same strictness as the case of a plaintiff who has chosen his own forum: Ross v. Woodford, 1894, 1 Ch. 38; 70 L. T. 22; Hartmont v. Daly, 12 T. L. R. 170; Emanuel v. Soltykoff, 8 T. L. R. 331. Prima facie a defendant resident abroad is entitled to the commission: New v. Burns, 43 W. R. 182; 71 L. T. 681; 11 T. L. R. 53; but greater strictness may be observed in the case of a defendant who had left Ontario after the action was commenced: Ferguson v. Millican, 11 O. L. R. 35. A defendant's application was refused where the matters in question were complicated accounts arising out of transactions between plaintiff and defendant, when both were residing in Ontario, and the expense of executing a commission would exceed the costs of a defendant's coming from England, and his only reason for not coming was engagements in England, and want of time and money: Porter v. Boulton, 15 P. R. 318; but see Ferguson v. Millican, supra.

The plaintiff, where there was a counter-claim, was viewed as a defendant so far as the counter-claim was concerned, and a commission to take his evidence on the counter-claim was granted: Levi v. Edwards, 5 O. W. R. 23.

A commission to examine as a witness a person who has absconded from the Province, will not be refused on the ground that he is alleged not to be a credible witness, and that his cross-examination in open Court is desired: Nordheimer v. McKillop, 10 P. R. 246. The proper course in order to impeach his veracity is to call witnesses at the trial for that purpose: Id. Evidence of a witness whose credibility is impeached.

The fact that the witness was a co-defendant with the party applying was considered no obstacle to the granting of a commission: Wilson v. McDonald, 13 P. R. 5.

In The M. Moxham, 1 P. D. 115, a commission to take evidence in Spain as to the law of Spain, was refused, as it was not shewn that competent Spanish advocates could not attend the trial without difficulty, and in the opinion of the Judge it would, under the circumstances, be more satisfactory to have the witnesses examined in Court. See also Russell v. G. W. R. Co., 3 U. C. L. J. 115, and Atty.-Gen. v. Gooderham, 10 P. R. 259; where the object was merely to obtain scientific, or expert testimony: but see The Edison Co. v. Hough, 98 L. T. Jour. 374. Expert evidence.

Motion.—A motion for a commission is usually to be made after issue joined: Smith v. Greey, 10 P. R. 531; but it is not essential that the action be technically at issue. The motion may be made whenever it can be shown that some issue is raised on the pleadings which must be tried in the action: Smith v. Greey, 11 P. R. 38. When motion to be made.

For form of order: see No. 73, and for form of a commission, No. 60. See H. & L. Forms, Nos. 777, 779.

The latter forms are those given in C.R.R., and contain some clauses which are not now needed.

Evidence on Motion.—In case of an application for a commission, before issue joined, the nature of the evidence expected from Evidence thereon.

Rule 277.

the witness must be shewn, that the Court may see whether it is likely to be material and necessary: Morrow v. McDougald, 16 P. R. 129, explaining Smith v. Greey, 10 P. R. 531.

The affidavit on which the application is based, even after issue joined, should state that the witnesses proposed to be examined are material and necessary: Kidd v. Perry, 14 P. R. 364. An affidavit of the plaintiff stating that the witnesses to be examined were necessary for the plaintiff on the trial, and that he was advised and verily believed that he could not safely proceed to trial without their evidence, was held to be prima facie sufficient: Robins v. Empire Printing Co., 14 P. R. 488.

The personal affidavit of the party applying may not be essential in support of the motion for a commission, but cogent reasons must be given, by some one who can speak with knowledge, why an applicant who seeks to have his own evidence taken in that way cannot attend in person: Kidd v. Perry, 14 P. R. 364.

Under the English practice it is a recognized, though not an absolutely rigid rule, to give in the affidavit the name of at least one of the witnesses proposed to be examined, and the excuse for not doing so, that the witness might be spirited away, was held untenable: Howard v. Dulan & Co., 11 T. L. R. 451.

Where defendants contended that the evidence expected from the witnesses was unnecessary by reason of implied admissions in the pleadings, it was held, that it was for the defendants to make the evidence unquestionably unnecessary either by amending their pleadings so as to expressly make the admission, or by undertaking to do so at the trial: Robins v. Empire, supra.

In Ehrmonn v. Ehrmonn, 1896, 2 Ch. 611, it was said that a commission or letters of request for the examination of a witness abroad ought not to be issued, unless the evidence which it is proposed to obtain is evidence directly material to an issue in the cause, and not merely evidence which may be incidentally useful in corroboration of other evidence.

Where the application is to examine a witness who is travelling, it should be shewn that he will remain at the place to which the commission is directed, a sufficient time to allow of its due execution: Singer v. Williams Manufacturing Co., 8 P. R. 483.

Order.

Order.—A commission issues only pursuant to the order, and should follow the order; where, therefore, an order provided for examination of one witness M., viva voce, and others upon interrogatories, it was held that the commission could not issue to examine M. only without amending the order: Smith v. Babcock, 8 P. R. 175.

An objection to a witness affirming instead of taking an oath, on a commission, ought to be taken at the time of his appearing before the commissioner: Rickards v. Hough, 30 W. R. 676; 51 L. J. Q. B. 361.

Terms.

In the discretion of the Court or Judge, terms may be imposed on granting an order for a commission, e.g., that the plaintiff give security for defendant's costs of the execution of the commission, and undertake to speed the proceedings and not delay the trial: Robins v. Empire P. Co., supra; Coleman v. Bank of Montreal, 16 P. R. 159; Sheppard v. Dalbiac, 80 L. T. Jour. 26; 30 Sol. Jour. 46; that no greater costs be taxable than if the witness had been subpœnaed within the jurisdiction: Watt v. Mackay, 5 O. W. R. 93, 170; or that the expense of the commission be borne by the applicant, and that the examination be upon interrogatories: Toronto Industrial, etc., v. Houston, 5 O. W. R. 349; or that a sum be paid by the applicant to the opposite party on account of the expense: Ferguson v. Millicon, 11 O. L. R. 35. Rule 277.

Terms as to reading the depositions at the trial were imposed, where the plaintiff applied to examine himself by commission: Nadin v. Bassett, 25 Ch. D. 21.

Commissions may provide for the examination of unnamed persons at a particular place: Nodin v. Bassett, 25 Ch. D. 21; Armour v. Walker, 25 Ch. D. 676.

Books and documents produced in an action may be sent out of the jurisdiction, for the purpose of examining witnesses on a foreign commission; but documents produced in another action which is sub judice will not be sent away: Clarke v. Union (Chabot's Case), 10 P. R. 213; Chaplin v. Puttick, infra.

An order may be made that the subject matter of the action shall be sent out of the jurisdiction for the purpose of identification by the witnesses: Choplin v. Puttick, 1898, 2 Q. B. 160; 78 L. T. 410; not approving of Leader v. Smythe, 8 T. L. R. 612, in which the Court refused to order a brooch to be sent abroad for identification.

Where a witness previously examined by commission stated that he had further evidence to give, to explain or correct his former evidence, a re-examination was allowed under a new commission. The witness in such a case should be considered the witness of the party applying to re-examine him: Rogers v. Manning, 8 P. R. 2.

Letters Rogatory.—In aid of a commission, where the assistance of a foreign Court is necessary in order to compel the attendance of a party for examination for discovery, or of a witness before the commissioner, letters rogatory may be ordered to issue. For form of letters rogatory: see H. & L. Forms No. 781. The letters are directed to a foreign Court within whose jurisdiction a witness whose evidence is desired is resident, requesting the aid of that Court in procuring such evidence. Such letters are necessary where a witness will not attend voluntarily for examination. It will be seen that they conclude with the statement "and we shall be ready and willing to do the same by you in a similar case when required." Express provision is made for thus aiding British Courts in other jurisdictions: see The Canada Evidence Act (R. S. C. c. 145, s. 41); and Re Kirchoffer v. Imperial Loan & Investment Co., 7 O. L. R. 295; and see Imp. Stat. 48 & 49 Vict. c. 74; in Dom. Stats. 1886; Ex p. Smith, 2 Cart. 330; Re Wetherell, 3 Cart. 315; and express provision for aiding any foreign Court is made by The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 50.

As to taking evidence in Ontario for use in a foreign Court: see Re Wetherell, 4 Ont. 713, and statutes above referred to: Re Kirkchoffer v. Imperial Loon & Investment Co., supra.

Orders for letters rogatory to a foreign Court are not granted unless absolutely necessary for the purposes of justice: Ehrmann v. Ehrmonn, 1896, 2 Ch. 611; 75 L. T. 37.

Interrogatories.—Where the evidence is to be taken on interrogatories, the applicant frames his interrogatories at the risk of the evidence taken being rejected in whole or in part; the Master in Chambers cannot consider, or interfere with them, on motion for that purpose: Toronto Industrial, etc., v. Houston, 9 O. L. R. 527.

Return of Commission.—Where the time for the return of a commission was extended to a certain day, and on that day the witnesses were examined, it was held, that, having been executed within the time, the necessary delay occasioned by its transmission did not render it irregular: Darling v. Darling, 9 P. R. 560.

See Darling v. Darling, 8 P. R. 391, for irregularities which were held not to invalidate the proceedings under a commission.

Opening Commission.—See Rule 289.

Commissions on a Reference.—

The Master, or Referee, may direct witnesses to be examined before any other Master, or Examiner, of the Court, without the consent of the parties: Re Casey, Biddell v. Casey, 1 Chy. Ch. 198.

The Master, or Referee, cannot grant an order for a commission ex parte: McLennan v. Helps, 3 Chy. Ch. 193; except where the reference is ex parte.

Where an application is made to the Master, or Referee, for a commission to cross-examine a plaintiff resident abroad, on an affidavit filed by him in support of his account, the Master, or Referee, cannot properly refuse it, so long as the plaintiff relies on the affidavit in support of his claim: Townsend v. Hunter, 3 C. L. T. 310; Horlick v. Eschweiler, 11 O. L. R. 140.

An order of a Master, or Referee, for a commission should, mutatis mutandis, follow, as nearly as may be, the form of order as given in the Appendix. See Form No. 120; H. & L. Forms, No. 777.

See also notes to Rule 411.

Costs.—As to the costs of commission: see Dominion, etc. v. Stinson, 9 P. R. 177; Rondot v. Monetary Times, 18 P. R. 141, in note to Rule 667.

Refusal to attend.

278. If a party for whose examination an order has been made or a commission has issued, refuses to attend before the examiner or commissioner, judgment may pass against him. C.R. 500.

Rule 277 enables a commission to be issued by either party to take the evidence of himself or of the opposite party, or of a stranger: Rule 278 is applicable where a party whose evidence is desired by his opponent does not attend for examination.

If a plaintiff is in default his action may be dismissed; and if a defendant is in default, notwithstanding any evidence that may be adduced, judgment may be given in favour of the plaintiff as if the plaintiff's cause of action was admitted: but see Rule 261.

The default of the party ought to be proved by the certificate of the examiner, or other proper evidence, including proof of due service of notice of the time and place appointed for the examination.

279. The notice of a motion for a commission to take evidence shall state the name and address of the commissioner proposed. C.R. 501. Notice of motion.

280.—(1) Unless otherwise directed the examination shall be upon oral questions to be reduced into writing and returned with the commission and notice of the execution of the commission shall be given to the opposite party, if, within the time prescribed by the order, he gives the name and the address of a person resident within two miles of the place where the commission is to be executed, on whom such notice may be served. Examination to be viva voce unless otherwise ordered. Notice to be given of examination under Commission.

(2) If no agent is named or the name or address given proves to be illusory or fictitious, or if the party so notified fails to attend pursuant to the notice, the commission may be executed ex parte. C.R. 502, 504 and 506.

Under the present Rule, prima facie, the examination is to be wholly oral, but the order may still provide for an examination on interrogatories: see Rule 281; and see under the old practice, Watson v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 354; Taylor Ev. 451. The Rule requires both questions and answers to be reduced to writing by the Commissioner or his Clerk and returned with the commission.

281. Where the examination is to take place upon written interrogatories, the interrogatories in chief shall be delivered to the opposite party 8 days before the issue of the commission; and the cross-interrogatories shall be delivered to the opposite party within 4 days after the receipt of the interrogatories in chief; and in default of cross-interrogatories being so delivered, the commission may be executed without cross-interrogatories. C.R. 503. Examination on written interrogatories.

The rules of evidence as to leading questions at a trial cannot be strictly applied to interrogatories administered under a foreign commission in the Master's office: Lockwood v. Bew, 10 P. R. 655.

It is not proper to apply to strike out interrogatories for impertinence, the proper course is for the witness to demur to the impertinent questions: Williams v. Corby, 8 P. R. 83; see Lockwood v. Bew, 10 P. R. 655, and Swabey v. Dovey, 55 L. J. Chy. 631; Toronto Industrial, etc. v. Houston, 9 O. L. R. 527.

282. The witnesses shall be examined on oath, affirmation, or otherwise, in accordance with the law of the country in which the commission is executed. C.R. 505. Oath of witness.

283. Where a witness does not understand the English language the commission shall be executed with the aid Interpreter.

Rules 284-288.

of an interpreter nominated by the commissioner, and sworn to interpret truly the questions to be put to the witness, and his answers thereto, and the examination shall be taken in English. C.R. 507.

Copies of documents as evidence.

284. If a witness produces a book, document, letter, paper or writing, and refuses for good cause, to be stated in his deposition, to part with the original, a copy or extract certified by the commissioner shall be annexed to the deposition of the witness. C.R. 508.

Depositions may be taken in shorthand.

285. The depositions may be taken in shorthand either by the commissioner or a shorthand writer duly sworn. C.R. 509 and 510.

Depositions, how to be signed.

286.—(1) Unless the examination is taken in shorthand the depositions shall be subscribed by the witness and by the commissioner.

(2) Where taken in shorthand it shall not be necessary that the depositions be read over or signed by the person examined unless counsel attending on the Commission so desires. C.R. 511.

Where only one of two commissioners signed the return, this was held not to vitiate it: Milville Mutual, etc., v. Driscoll, 11 S. C. R. 183.

C. R. 511 (3), provided that a copy of depositions taken in shorthand certified by the commissioner, if he took them, or by the shorthand writer who did take them, and signed by the commissioner, shall for all purposes have the same effect as the original depositions. It is presumed that the like effect will be given to copies so certified, notwithstanding that provision has been omitted from this Rule.

Return of commission and use thereof as evidence.

287. The commission, interrogatories, depositions and any documents or certified copies thereof or extracts therefrom, referred to therein, shall be sent to the proper officer, on or before the day named in the order for the commission, enclosed in a cover under the seal of the commissioner; and the same or certified copies thereof may be given in evidence, saving all just exceptions, without any other proof of the absence from Ontario of the witness therein named than an affidavit of the solicitor or agent of the party as to his belief of such absence. C.R. 512.

Parties joining in Commission to share costs.

288. Where the opposite party desires to join in the commission and examine witnesses on his own behalf thereunder, each party shall in the first instance pay the costs of the commission consequent upon the examination of his witnesses. C.R. 513. Rules 289-291.

C. R. 513 (2), provided as follows: "If for any reason the commissioner named by either party refuses to act upon receiving 48 hours' notice in writing from the other commissioner so to do, the commission may be executed by the commissioner giving such notice." When commissioner of one party may act alone.

That provision has not been included in the present Rules and the effect of its omission remains to be determined.

289. A commission when returned shall at the request of either party be transmitted for use at the trial, and may be opened at the trial, or before trial at the instance of either party by the officer to whom it is returned on two clear days' notice to the other party. C.R. 515. Opening commission.

The Court in permitting a foreign commission to be opened before the trial, will not impose restrictions as to the use to be made of the knowledge of the evidence which would be acquired by the solicitors by such opening: Smith v. Greey, 11 P. R. 238.

290. Every order for a commission shall be read as if it contained the particulars mentioned in the next preceding ten rules, and shall not set forth the same, but may contain any variations therefrom, and any other directions which the Court sees fit to make. C.R. 514. Order for commission to be read as including above Rules 280-289.

Although the order for the commission is not to contain the particulars mentioned in Rules 280-289, A copy of these Rules is, nevertheless, to be indorsed on the commission: see Form No. 60.

291. An affidavit shall be drawn up in the first person, stating the name of the deponent in full, and his description and true place of abode, and shall be signed by him. C.R. 516. Form of affidavits.

See Eng. (1883) RR. 527, 528.

An affidavit should be entitled in the cause or matter in which it is to be used. The shortened style of "A. B. and others, plaintiffs, and C. D. and others, defendants," may be used: Rule 190; Dickey v. Heron, 2 Chy. Ch. 490; but not such as "Brown v. Jones." Style of cause in affidavits.

The Court may receive an affidavit, notwithstanding formal defects in it: The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 40.

Affidavits erroneously entitled have been allowed to be taken off the files and resworn without a fresh stamp: Pearson v. Wilcox, 10 Ha. App. xxxv.; Hawes v. Bamford, 9 Sim. 653. Erroneously entitled, may be re-sworn.

In affidavits made by parties to the cause it was sufficient in Equity to describe the deponent as the above-mentioned plaintiff, or defendant, without specifying any residence, or other addition: Crockett v. Bishton, 2 Madd. 446; Rogers v. Crookshank, 4 C. L. J. Affidavits by parties to the cause.

Rule 291.

45. And the same rule prevailed at Common Law: Poole v. Pembrey, 1 Dowl. P. C. 693; Brooks v. Forlar, 5 Dowl. P. C. 361; Lyman v. Brethron, 2 C. L. Ch. 108; Ewing v. Lockhart, 3 U. C. Q. B. 248. But affidavits in which the plaintiff in a divorce proceeding gave no address, or an illusory one, were rejected by the Court, and the case was disposed of on the defendant's affidavits: Hyde v. Hyde, 59 L. T. 523. An affidavit as to the fitness of a proposed trustee in which the deponent was described as a "gentleman," was held insufficient: as the position in life or occupation of the deponent is in such case material in order to give effect to the affidavit: Re Orde, 24 Ch. D. 271; Re Horwood, 55 L. T. 373; but in other circumstances such a description is not necessarily insufficient so as to prevent the affidavit from being filed or used: Re Dodsworth, Spence v. Dodsworth, 1891, 1 Ch. 657; 64 L. T. 282.

An affidavit by a person who was a stockbroker was held not to state his description and true place of abode, by describing him as a "stock exchange stock broker": Re Levy, Levin v. Levin, 60 L. T. 317; 37 W. R. 396.

Affidavits received, though irregularly drawn.

The Court has sometimes received affidavits sworn abroad, although drawn in the third person: Re Husband, 12 L. T. 303; and see Dryden v. Frost, 8 Sim. 380; and not entitled in the cause: Salvidge v. Tutton, 20 L. T. 300; Blaney v. Blaney, 113 L. T Jour. 265. And an affidavit without the signature of the deponent was received: Re Howard, L. R. 9 C. P. 347; but see contra, Anderson v. Stother, 9 Jur. 1085.

Where the initial only of the deponent's second Christian name was given, the affidavit was held to be regular: De Forrest v. Bunnell, 15 U. C. Q. B. 370.

An affidavit to obtain an order to arrest which began "I, Alberta Jane Boyd, the above named plaintiff," her name being Alberta Jane Vansickle, and was signed Berta Jane Vansickle, was held to be not a nullity, but an irregularity merely, which under the circumstances was waived: Vansickle v. Boyd, 14 P. R. 469.

An affidavit omitting the words "make oath" will be rejected: Allen v. Taylor, 10 Ex. 52; Phillips v. Prentice, 2 Ha. 542; Re Newton, 2 D. F. & J. 3.

Before whom affidavits may be sworn.

Affidavits may be sworn in Ontario before commissioners appointed under The Commissioners for Taking Affidavits Act (R. S. O. c. 77), s. 9, or before a notary public of Ontario: see The Notories Act (R. S. O. c. 160), s. 4. As to affirmations, see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 15.

The notary need not affix his seal to the affidavit: R. S. O. c. 160, s. 8, which overrules the decision in Boyd v. Spriggins, 17 P. R. 331.

Affidavits may also be sworn before Justices of the Peace: see Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1), s. 23 (3).

Affidavits sworn abroad.

Affidavits sworn out of Ontario may be sworn before any of the persons enumerated in The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 38. Affidavits sworn before any other person than those mentioned in that statute cannot be read: McEwan v. Boulton, 3 Chy. Ch. 63.

Affidavits before whom to be sworn.

Affidavits sworn before the solicitor, or partner, or managing clerk, or agent, of the solicitor, of the party in whose behalf the affidavit is filed, cannot be read: Dunn v. McLean, 9 C. L. T. 212; 6 P. R. 95; Duke of Northumberland v. Todd, 7 Ch. D. 777; and see Rule 297.

But this Rule does not apply to the partner of a counsel engaged in the cause, but not otherwise connected therewith: Wilde v. Crow, 10 C. P. 406; nor to affidavits to obtain an order for arrest: Rule 297. Rule 292.

A commissioner ought not to take affidavits not made in any cause, nor authorized by statute to be taken by him. Such oaths are voluntary: Jackson v. Kassel, 26 U. C. Q. B. 341; McIlroy v. Holl, 25 U. C. Q. B. 303; and see R. S. C. c. 145, s. 36. Commissioner should not take voluntary affidavits.

The officer taking the affidavit should add after his signature the name of his office. The words "A Commissioner, etc.," or "A Commissioner," or "A Comr.," have been held sufficient: Henderson v. Harper, 2 U. C. Q. B. 97; Brown v. Parr, 2 U. C. Q. B. 98; Murphy v. Boulton, 3 U. C. Q. B. 177; Pawson v. Hall, 1 P. R. 294; Brett v. Smith, Ib., 309; Conoda Perm. L. & S. Co. v. Todd, 22 Ont. App. 515. But the signature alone has been held insufficient: Babcock v. Bedford, 8 C. P. 527. "Sworn before, etc.," omitting "me," was held sufficient: Martin v. McCharles, 25 U. C. Q. B. 279; and see De Forrest v. Bunnell, 15 U. C. Q. B. 370; and Eddowes v. Argentine L. & M. A. Co., 62 L. T. 514; 38 W. R. 629. Officer should add his name of office.

As to the mode of administering oaths: see per Kay, J., in Bourke v. Davis, 88 L. T. Jour. 103.

The addition of a deponent is only descriptive and not an allegation of fact: Hood v. Cronkrite, 4 P. R. 279. The usual form of oath, "you swear that the contents of this affidavit are true," however, would seem to pledge the deponent to the truth of the addition, as well as of the matters formally deposed to.

In drawing affidavits, the following observations of Wilson, J., in Fisher v. Green, 2 C. L. J. 16, may be useful to the student: "I regret to find, in several instances lately, that superlative words are used in stating facts in affidavits. There can be no stronger expression of the very truth than that it is stated on oath. If less certainty is intended, the statement should be qualified. The terms to which I object are, 'I most positively swear,' etc. I can only show my disapproval of such language, by refusing to allow costs to be taxed for affidavits drawn in this style, when costs are in my discretion. In one of the affidavits before me I observe the expression, that the statement made by another person in another affidavit was 'false.' I suppose the affidavit was drawn by a young man of little experience, for the one had detailed a transaction in one light, and the other had stated the same transaction in another light, but the term 'false,' as applied by one to the other, could in no way verify the statement of him who used the offensive expression,"—and see Davidson v. Grange, 5 P. R. 258. Fisher v. Green. Superlative and needlessly offensive expressions not to be used in affidavits.

A solicitor introducing impertinent and irrelevant matter into his affidavit may be ordered to pay the costs of the application in which it is used: Anon., 4 P. R. 242; and see Corby v. Robbin, 5 U. C. L. J. 225.

Where affidavits were badly written, scarcely legible, and difficult to decipher, the Court refused all costs connected with their preparation, although costs of the suit were given: Burnham v. Garvey, 27 Gr. 80.

292. In an affidavit made by two or more deponents the names of the persons making the affidavits shall be inserted in the jurat, but if the affidavit of all the deponents Affidavits made by two or more deponents.

Rule 293.

is taken at one time by the same officer, it shall be sufficient to state that it was sworn by both (or all) of the "above-named" deponents. C.R. 517.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 529.

An affidavit which omitted "before me" was (under Eng. O. 38, R. 14, which enables the Court to accept affidavits notwithstanding defects in form), see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 40, received, where from what appeared in the affidavit, such as signature of the Consul, and his initials affixed to alterations, the reasonable inference was that the affidavit was sworn before him: Eddowes v. Argentine, etc., Co., 62 L. T. 514; 38 W. R. 629, and other cases in note to Rule 291.

For general form of affidavit: see No. 17; of jurat: see No. 16, and in case of illiterates: No. 18; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 784-783.

Affidavits how framed.

293. Affidavits shall be confined to the statement of facts within the knowledge of the deponent, but on interlocutory motions statements as to his belief, with the grounds thereof, may be admitted. C.R. 518.

To the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 523.

Under this Rule the grounds of statements made on "belief" are required to be stated, but not the means of knowledge for positive allegations: see Bidder v. Bridges, 26 Ch. D. 1; Quartz Con. Gold Mine Hill Co. v. Beall, 20 Ch. D. 501; Edwards v. Dovis, W. N. 1888, 59.

An affidavit on information and belief, founded on statements made to the deponent by an informant who declined to repeat them on affidavit unless subpœnaed, was not admitted on an interlocutory motion in a case where the informant might have been, but was not, subpœnaed, and no irremediable injury could result from the exclusion of the evidence: Re Anthony, Doig v. Anthony, 1899, 2 Ch. 50; 80 L. T. 188.

Affidavits on information and belief which fail to disclose the grounds thereof, are not evidence, either on an interlocutory or a final application, and need not be answered: see 104 L. T. Jour. 285; and Re J. L. Young Manufacturing Co., 1900, 2 Ch. 753; 83 L. T. 418; Nieminen v. Dome Mines, 4 O. W. N. 301; and in England a solicitor may be refused costs of such affidavits: Re J. L. Young, etc., supra.

An affidavit in which the deponent stated that he was credibly informed and believed certain facts, without stating the name of his informant, or the ground of his belief, was held not to comply with this Rule, and was insufficient proof of the facts deposed to: Gilbert v. Stiles, 13 P. R. 121; Robinson v. Morris, 15 O. L. R. 649.

Evidence on information and belief, though generally admissible on interlocutory applications, is not admissible on a proceeding which, though interlocutory in form, finally decides the rights of parties; and the party against whom it is adduced, is not bound to contradict it; but if, in the Court below, he deals with the evidence as admissible, he may be precluded from objecting to it before the Court of Appeal: Gilbert v. Endean, 9 Ch. D. 259.

Costs of setting out the contents of written documents were disallowed, in Hirst v. Proctor, W. N. 1882, 12.

Affidavits may be ordered to be taken off the files, if scandalous or irrelevant; Sodlier v. Smith, 7 P. R. 409; 15 C. L. J. 52; Osmaston v. Association of Lond Financiers, W. N. 1878, 101; Kernick v. Kernick, 12 W. R. 335; Goddord v. Porr, 3 W. R. 633; or the scandalous matter may be expunged: Worner v. Mosses, W. N. 1881, 69; Re Fitch, 2 Chy. Ch. 288; and see Rule 136, and note. Rules 294-296. Scandalous affidavits.

Costs of scandalous affidavits will be disallowed: Vanstaden v. Vonstaden, 10 P. R. 428.

294. In an action or proceeding to which a corporation is a party, any affidavit required by these Rules to be made by a party may be made by any officer, servant, or agent of the corporation having knowledge of the facts required to be deposed to, and he shall state therein that he has such knowledge. C.R. 519. Affidavits by officers for corporation.

295. An affidavit having in the jurat or body thereof any interlineation, alteration, or erasure shall not be used without leave unless the interlineation, alteration or erasure is authenticated by the initials of the officer taking the affidavit. C.R. 520. Alterations in affidavits.

See Eng. (1883) R. 532.

The former Rules on which C. R. 520 was based provided expressly that the leave is to be that of "the Court or a Judge or officer before whom the affidavit is to be used." The present Rule by implication has the same meaning.

A line drawn through words though leaving them legible is an erasure: Williams v. Clough, 1 A. & E. 376.

Where an interlineation was uninitialed by the Commissioner, it was held that under this Rule the affidavit could not be read, but leave was given to refile it properly sworn: Boyd v. McNutt, 9 P. R. 493; see Re Clooke, 65 L. T. 455; 61 L. J. Chy. 69.

No alteration can properly be made in an affidavit after it has been sworn: see W. N. 1882, Part 2, 81.

296. Where an affidavit is sworn by a person who appears to be illiterate, the officer shall certify in the jurat that the affidavit was read in his presence to the deponent, who seemed perfectly to understand it, and signed it in his presence; otherwise such affidavit shall not be used without leave. C.R. 521. Affidavits by illiterate persons.

See the Eng. 1883, R. 533. And see note to Rule 295.

From the form of jurat under this Rule: see Form 18; H. & L. Forms, No. 784.

Where an affidavit of an illiterate person did not appear to have been read over in the presence of the Commissioner, it was taken off the files: Blenkharn v. Longstaffe, 52 L. T. 681; 54 L. J. Chy. 516.

Rules 297, 298.

No affidavit to be sworn before solicitor of party.

297. An affidavit sworn before the solicitor of the party on whose behalf it is made, or before the clerk, or partner, of such solicitor, shall not be used; but this Rule shall not extend to an affidavit to obtain an order for arrest. C.R. 522.

See Eng. (1883) RR. 536, 537.

See notes to Rule 291.

Query, whether the Rule prevents the agent of the solicitor from taking an affidavit: Re Lennox Provincial Election, 4 O. L. R. 647.

This Rule only applies to affidavits made in actions or proceedings in Court: Canada Perm. L. & S. Co. v. Todd, 22 Ont. App. 515.

The corresponding Eng. Rule was held to apply to the affidavit of execution of a bill of sale under The Bills of Sale Act, 1882: Baker v. Ambrose, 1896, 2 Q. B. 372; and see Archibald v. Hubley, 18 S. C. R. 116; but the reasons for the decision would not seem to apply in Ontario.

Affidavits in chief, when to be filed.

298. Affidavits upon which a notice of motion is founded shall be filed before the service of the notice of motion and all other affidavits shall be filed before they are used. C.R. 524.

Taken from Chy. Order 261, which also provided that affidavits in answer must be filed not later than the day before that appointed for the hearing of the motion, or petition. That provision, however, is not embodied in these Rules, and no time whatever is prescribed for filing affidavits in answer, or reply. The reason of the Rule is that the party served with the notice of motion may have an opportunity of examining the affidavits intended to be used in support without demanding copies from the opposite party, which might amount to a waiver of objection to the regularity of the motion.

Affidavits in support to be mentioned in notice of motion.

The affidavits and papers intended to be used in support of a motion, must be mentioned in the notice of motion: Farish v. Martyn, 1 Gr. 300; and when the motion is intended to be supported by affidavits filed previous to the date of the notice of motion, the date of the filing of such affidavits should be stated in the notice: Fraser v. Fraser, 13 Gr. 183; McMartin v. Dartnell, 2 Chy. Ch. 322; Mackenzie v. Carter, 12 P. R. 544; documents referred to in the affidavits filed in support of a motion may be read without special reference to them in the notice: Jonhson v. Ashbridge, 2 Chy. Ch. 251. If a party gives notice of reading an affidavit in support of a motion, but declines to read it, the opposite party may, nevertheless, do so: Clarke v. Law, 2 K. & J. 28; Canty v. Houlditch, 14 Sim. 75, and may cross-examine the deponent though the party filing it offers to withdraw it: Pike v. Robinson, W. N. 1873, 178. So a respondent's affidavits may be read in support of a motion, though no case is made out by the applicant's own affidavits: Re Margetson & Jones, 1897, 2 Ch. 314; 76 L. T. 805.

Filing affidavits.

Affidavits of service must be filed at latest before the rising of the Court on the day on which the application is made: Miltown v. Stuart, 8 Sim. 34; but see contra, Sear v. Webb, 25 Ch. D. 84; 49 L. T. 94, where it was held that they were filed in time, if filed at any time before the order was drawn up; but see Re Rosier, Jones v. Bortholomew, 49 L. T. 442. Rule 299.

See also notes to Rule 226.

Former C. R. 523 provided that: "Affidavits and other papers required to be filed shall be filed before being used."

Although this provision is not continued, it is not to be presumed that any change in this respect has been made in the practice.

It is the imperative duty of the solicitor of any party to proceedings to cause to be filed every affidavit sworn and used by such party in the course of the proceedings: Taylor v. Gotes, 72 L. T. 436.

The proper office for filing affidavits is (subject to Rule 234 (2)), the office in which the proceeding was commenced: Rules 761, 762. Place of filing.

Where the affidavit is the commencement of the proceeding it may, in counties other than the County of York, be filed with any officer in the county who is authorized to issue writs of summons, and his office thereby becomes the proper office for filing all subsequent papers: Rules 761, 762; except proceedings in Court, or Chambers, in Toronto: see infra. In the County of York the central office is the proper office for the commencement of proceedings.

In the High Court Division, papers for motions in Court are to be filed in the Registrars' office: Rule 234 (2); and for motions in Chambers are to be filed with the Clerk in Chambers: Rule 234 (2); C. RR. 341 and 525 provided that papers so filed were to be ultimately transmitted to the Central Office. The omission of that provision in these Rules is probably not intended to make any change in the practice. Motions in Court or Chambers in Toronto.

As to affidavits to be used before the Weekly Court at Ottawa, and London: see Rule 240. Weekly Courts.

As to affidavits to be used in the Weekly Court, or Chambers, in Toronto: see Rule 234.

299. Where properly marked exhibits are referred to in an affidavit filed, and are not annexed thereto, such exhibits need not be filed, but shall be left for the use of the Court, and shall be handed out on the disposal of the motion unless otherwise ordered. C.R. 526. Exhibits.

Exhibits to an affidavit are part of the affidavit, and inspection thereof cannot be withheld from the person against whom the affidavit is to be used: Re Hinchcliffe, 1895, 1 Ch. 117; 71 L. T. 532.

CHAPTER XIV.

PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS IN ACTIONS.

(i) Transmission of Interest.

Death or assignment pendente lite.

300. If by reason of death (when the cause of action survives or continues) or by assignment or conveyance any estate, interest or title devolves or is transferred the action may be continued by or against the person to or upon whom such estate or title has come or devolved. C.R. 395.

See Eng. (1883) R. 180.

An order under Rule 301 is necessary to obtain the benefit of this Rule.

Where an action is carried on by a plaintiff after he has parted with his interest, it must be dismissed: Roper v. Hopkins, 29 Ont. 580; the action can only be properly carried on by the transferee first obtaining an order under this Rule making himself plaintiff.

Incumbrancers pendente lite.

Incumbrancers, or purchasers, becoming such after writ sued out, and a lis pendens registered, will be bound by the judgment, and need not be made parties whether the plaintiff have notice of them or not: Dan. Pr. 5th ed., 242; 6th ed., 290, 296; Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 407; see Wallbridge v. Martin, 2 Chy. Ch. 275; Seear v. Lawson, 15 Ch. D. 426; 16 Ch. D. 121; Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham, 28 Ch. D. 38; Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160. But in cases where there has been a change in ownership of the legal estate, and a conveyance is required, it may be necessary to add parties: Dan. Pr. 243; and notes to Rule 404.

And a person who, after the institution of a foreclosure action, acquires an interest in, or a claim against, the mortgaged premises, may, on his own application, be added as a party defendant: Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500.

Additional parties may be, in such cases, added by the plaintiff by a præcipe order under Rule 301: Matthews v. Mears, 21 Gr. 99; see Lowe v. Watson, 1 Sm. & Giff. 123; but not parties who acquired their interest before action: McKenzie v. McDonnell, 15 Gr. 442.

Where a defendant in a foreclosure action dies pendente lite, if his equity of redemption passes to his representatives, an order to continue proceedings against them under Rule 301 is necessary: Kennedy v. Foxwell, 11 O. L. R. 389.

Assignment of subject of action.

Whether an agreement respecting the assignment of the subject of an action made with persons not parties, pendente lite, renders the action defective, depends upon the nature of the agreement, and whether, according to its legal effect, the Court can give the relief claimed without the addition of the other persons: Scott v. Benedict, 9 C. L. T. 181.

Rule 300.

Where a plaintiff in an action brought by him on behalf of himself and all other creditors of a defendant assigns his debt pendente lite, the action may be dismissed unless the assignee obtains an order under Rule 301 to continue the proceedings: Wolff v. Von Boolen, 94 L. T. 502.

Assignment for the benefit of creditors.

An assignment under The Assignments and Preferences Act (R. S. O. c. 134), for the benefit of creditors, has not the effect of transferring to the assignee an existing cause of action, to which the assignor was entitled, to set aside a transaction as being in fraud of creditors: Gage v. Douglas, 14 P. R. 126; sed vide Wolff v. Von Boolen, supra.

Rule does not affect the law as to the survival of causes of action.

There is nothing in the Rules on this subject to alter the existing law as to what causes of action do, and what do not, survive; thus where the cause of action, or the interest of the party is terminated by death, etc., the action is at an end: Twycross v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 40; Kirk v. Todd, 21 Ch. D. 484; Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 768; 27 W. R. 228; Bowker v. Evans, 15 Q. B. D. 565; 53 L. T. 801. See notes to Rule 301. Nor is there anything to preserve to any person a right of action, which, by the ordinary rules of law, has passed from him. Thus, on the bankruptcy of a plaintiff, where the right of action is one which passes to the trustee, the action cannot be carried on by the bankrupt, but only by the truetee: Jackson v. North-Eastern Ry. Co., 5 Ch. D. 844; Worder v. Saunders, 10 Q. B. D. 114; see also Emden v. Carte, 17 Ch. D. 169; Selig v. Lion, 1891, 1 Q. B. 513. If, in such a case, there are two trustees, and one refuses to go on, the other may do so, and make his co-trustee a defendant: Jackson v. North-Eastern Ry., supra.

An action for tort cannot be revived in the name of an assignee who obtains an assignment of the claim before judgment, though after verdict: Bloir v. Asselstine, 15 P. R. 211.

When action may proceed without order.

Where the cause of action survives to, or continues in some person who is before the Court: Eldridge v. Burgess, 7 Ch. D. 411; see Aichin v. Buffolo, etc., 2 Chy. Ch. 45, no order to continue is necessary. Thus where five defendants were jointly and severally liable, two of whom became bankrupt, Fry, J., offered to allow the trial to stand, that the other three might serve notice on the trustees of the bankrupts if they wished to do so; as they declined, the suit was held not to be defective and the trial was ordered to proceed: Lloyd v. Dimmack, 7 Ch. D. 398; see also Wolker v. Blockmore, W. N. 1876, 112.

Where partners have recovered a judgment, and one of them dies, the action survives so that the surviving partner may issue execution: Davies v. Andrews, 28 Sol. Jour. 411; W. N. 1884, 94.

In an action for damages for misrepresentations against several defendants, one defendant died after issue joined. It was held that the action could be proceeded with against the survivors: Beatty v. Neelon, 9 Ont. 385.

When order necessary.

Where, however, the cause of action does not survive to, or continue in, some person who is before the Court: Re Shepherd, 43 Ch. D. 136; 62 L. T. 337; Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448; 70 L. T. 511; e.g., where a sole plaintiff, or defendant dies, or becomes bankrupt, the action abates or becomes defective: Eldridge v. Burgess, 7 Ch. D. 411; Jackson v. N. E. Ry., Co., 5 Ch. D. 844; Borter v. Dubeux 7 Q. B. D. 413; Emden v. Carte, 17 Ch. D. 169; Chorlton v. Dickie, 13

Rule 300.

Ch. D. 160; Warder v. Saunders, 10 Q. B. D. 114, and an order to continue it must be obtained under the subsequent Rules, by the proper parties: Walker v. Blackmore, supra; Stanhope v. Stanhope, 11 P. D. 106; see Rules 300, 301.

Where, before the confirmation of the Master's report appointing a committee of a lunatic, and propounding a scheme for maintenance, the lunatic died, notwithstanding his death, an order was made, the executors of the deceased consenting, for the confirmation of the Master's report, the discharge of the committee, and the surrender of his bond: Re Garner, 1 O. L. R. 405.

Death before service of writ.

If the death or change of interest takes place before the writ is served, the action cannot be revived or continued: Watson v. Ham, 1 Chy. Ch. 295; and see Foster v. Ward, 9 L. R. Ir. 447.

The Rule applies where both parties die pending an action: Sellors v. Goode, 30 L. R. Ir. 298.

For the practice where a party dies pending an appeal; see note to Rule 301, infra, p. 767. And see also note to Rule 304, infra, p. 770.

Upon the death, before judgment, of the sole beneficiary on whose behalf an action is brought under The Fatal Accidents' Act the action comes to an end. It cannot be continued for the benefit of the beneficiary's estate, nor can a new action be brought by the beneficiary's personal representative: McHugh v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 600.

Duty of solicitor whose client dies pendente lite.

Where an action becomes defective by the death of a necessary party, or the dissolution of a corporation which is a necessary party, it is the duty of the solicitor who has acted for such party to notify the opposite party of the defect; and he may make himself personally liable to be ordered to pay costs lost in consequence of the proceedings being carried on after such defect has arisen, if he continues to act as solicitor, or fails to notify the opposite party of the defect: Salton v. New Beeston Co., 1900, 1 Ch. 43; 81 L. T. 457.

Bankruptcy.

On the bankruptcy of plaintiff, the defendant, wishing to have the action dismissed for want of prosecution, was required to give notice to the trustee: Wright v. Swindon Ry. Co., 4 Ch. D. 164; see also Re Atkins, 1 Ch. D. 82; Cameron v. Eager, 6 P. R. 117.

In an action by the indorser of a bill of exchange against the drawer who had become bankrupt, and suffered judgment by default, the trustee applied for leave to defend, complaining that judgment had been snapped. Quain, J., said, "It is only a question of terms. I will order the judgment to be set aside on payment of costs, and that the trustee be at liberty to defend in the name of the debtor:" Goddard v. Poole, W. N. 1875, 230; 1 Chanl. Ch. Ca. 126.

Assignment pendente lite.

Quære, whether an assignment of a verdict in an action for tort, before judgment, if made as provided by The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c.. 109), s. 49 (1), will now entitle the assignee to obtain an order to carry on proceedings in his own name. See under sec. 58 (5) of the Jud. Act (1897), as it was before the amendment by 60 V. c. 15, s. 5, Blair v. Asselstine, 15 P. R. 211; and notes to Rule 85, supra, p. 454, and 20 Law Quarterly Rev., p. 113.

Rule 134 has been also applied to add parties, for example, in Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160, to add a person at his own request to whom an assignment pendente lite had been made by defendant; and in Secar v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121, on defendant's motion to add a person to whom the plaintiff had assigned his interest. In such a case as the last, the action may be stayed till security is given, or the suit continued in the name of the assignee: Swan v. Adams, 7 P. R. 147; see also Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 768. Rule 300.

An order adding a trustee in bankruptcy under this Rule as a defendant for discovery only, was set aside as improper: Symonds v. City Bank, 79 L. T. Jour. 175.

Where an assignee for creditors had made a compromise of an action commenced by him, and was subsequently removed, and a new assignee appointed in his place, it was held that such new assignee might obtain an order making himself plaintiff in the action, and continue it in his own name, leaving the defendant to move to stay it, or plead the compromise in bar; and that this course was preferable to directing an issue as to the validity of the compromise: Davidson v. Merritton, 18 P. R. 139.

Where the cause of action is transferred by the plaintiff, and the transferee makes himself plaintiff under Rule 301, the defendant may be entitled to amend by setting up any defence he may have against the new plaintiff: Stavert v. Horton, 3 O. W. N. 265, 348.

C. R. 395 in terms applied only to devolutions or assignments pendente lite, and it was held not to apply to assignments or devolutions of interest after final judgment: Atty.-Gen. v. Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423; where the action is at an end: Arnison v. Smith, 40 Ch. D. 570; but see Phillips v. Fox, 8 P. R. 51; but in a foreclosure action, where a party had assigned his interest after judgment, the assignee was made a party, after order for foreclosure absolute: Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 166; and see Brigham v. Smith, 2 Chy. Ch. 257; Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254; where the assignment takes place pendente lite the order must be obtained before judgment: Abell v. Parr, 9 P. R. 564, where it was held that persons to whom defendants had assigned pendente lite, could not be added after judgment and declared bound by it, where they claimed to be entitled independently of the assignment: and see Arnison v. Smith, supra. Assignment after judgment.

The present Rule is not confined in terms to assignments pendente lite before judgment, and would seem to cover any assignment or devolution of interest taking place at any time after action, whether before, or after judgment, where it is necessary to bring before the Court the person in whom an interest in, or liability for, the subject of the action has devolved, and whose interest it is sought to bind by the proceedings, or who claims to enforce, or against whom it is claimed to enforce, a judgment recovered in the action. Rule not confined to assignments pendente lite before judgment.

Thus, where a defendant in a foreclosure action desired to open the foreclosure after the death of some of the plaintiffs, it was held that the proper procedure was to ask the surviving plaintiffs to issue an order to continue the action in the names of themselves and the representatives of the deceased plaintiff, and, on their refusal so to do, it would be open to the defendant to make a special application for an order to continue the proceedings in the names of the surviving plaintiff against the original defendants, and the representatives of the deceased plaintiff as defendants: Pennington v. Cayley, 1912, 2 Ch. 236; 106 L. T. 591. And where a defendant in a foreclosure action dies pendente lite before a final order has been obtained, an order to continue proceedings against the representative is necessary: see Kennedy v. Foxwell, 11 O. L. R. 389.

Execution.

Where only a part of a judgment debt is assigned, the assignee has no right to issue execution: Forster v. Baker, 102 L. T. 522, and see S. C. Ib. 29. In that case an order had been obtained by the assignee under Rule 566, and it was set aside. Semble, the proper course in such a case would be to obtain an order under Rule 301 to continue proceedings in the name of the assignors and assignee as plaintiffs.

In England it is held that a trustee in bankruptcy of a judgment creditor may obtain leave to issue execution (see Rule 568), without obtaining an order to continue proceedings: In re Bagley, 1911, 1 K. B. 317, but it seems a somewhat anomalous proceeding to permit a person to issue execution without his first being made a party to the record; and the better practice would appear to be to require him first to obtain an order under Rule 301 before applying under Rule 568: see Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448; 70 L. T. 411.

The Court has no jurisdiction inherent, or otherwise, over any other person than those properly brought before it as parties, and it cannot, on any interlocutory application, make orders against the representatives of a deceased party, where such representative has not himself been made a party: Brydges v. Brydges, 1909, P. 187; 100 L. T. 744.

Where a trustee in bankruptcy, suing as such, is removed, and a new trustee appointed, the latter must obtain an order to continue the action: Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham, 28 Ch. D. 38.

Setting aside order.

Where a person issuing an order to continue proceedings is barred by the Statute of Limitations, the order will be set aside on motion. Jay v. Johnstone, 1893, 1 Q. B. 25.

Where a person claiming to be assignee of the plaintiff, obtains an order under this Rule, the original plaintiff, if he disputes the assignment, may move to set the order aside: Fisken v. Ince, 8 P. R. 147.

Order to add parties on change of interest, how obtained.

301. Where a change or transmission of interest or liability has taken place or where by reason of any person interested coming into existence after the commencement of the action, it becomes necessary or desirable that any person not already a party should be made a party, or that any person already a party should be made a party in another capacity, an order that the proceedings shall be carried on between the continuing parties and the new party, may be obtained on præcipe. C.R. 396.

See Eng. (1883) R. 181.

"Necessary or Desirable."—It has been said that it may in rare cases be "necessary and desirable" under this Rule, to add or substitute a person as plaintiff, without his consent as required by Rule 134 (2), on the application of the opposite party, but he should not be exposed without further action on his part, or adoption by him of the position into which he is forced, to liability for damages or costs: Murray v. Wurtele, 19 P. R. 286.

Rule 301.

But it may be open to doubt whether in any case a person can properly be added as a plaintiff without his consent; and it is submitted that the proper procedure, where the transferee of a plaintiff pendente lite neglects to take out an order under this Rule authorizing him to continue the proceedings, is for the defendant to move to limit a time for the transferee to take out such order, or in default that the action be dismissed, or that all proceedings be stayed; see Rule 305; Daniel Pr., 5th ed., 717; Cameron v. Eager, 6 P. R. 117; Watson v. Watson, 6 P. R. 229; Chowick v. Dimes, 3 Beav. 290; Wright v. Swindon Ry. Co., 4 Ch. D. 164; Motion v. King, 29 W. R. 73.

In foreclosure actions where a subsequent incumbrancer redeems the plaintiff, it has not been the practice for the defendant redeeming to take out any order to continue the proceedings, the judgment has been treated in such cases as a judgment for his benefit which he is entitled to prosecute without obtaining any such order: Rule 471, Federal Life Assurance Co. v. Stinson, 13 O. L. R. 230; 2 Madd. Ch. Pr. 495.

This Rule applies where the cause of action survives or continues to some person not already a party. Where the cause of action does not survive, the action cannot be continued under this Rule: see cases in note to Rule 304, and Lowe v. Watson, 1 Sm. & G. 12; Dendy v. Dendy, 5 W. R. 221; Greenhough v. Rumney, 5 W. R. 265; Williams v. Williams, 9 W. R. 296.

This Rule applies where the cause of action survives and to assignments, etc., before judgment.

The Rule only applies to devolutions of interest taking place before final judgment: Atty.-Gen. v. Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423, duties after the final judgment. It is necessary to take any proceedings in the action (other than execution, which is provided for by Rule 566), e.g., where the plaintiff dies after final judgment by default, and defendant wishes to apply to set aside the judgment and to be let in to defend: Chambers v. Kitchen, 16 P. R. 219; 17 P. R. 3; see also Arnison v. Smith, 40 Ch. D. 570; Brigham v. Smith, 2 Chy. Ch. 257; Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 166; Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448; 70 L. T. 411; Kennedy v. Foxwell, 11 O. L. R. 389, and Re Parbola, Blackburn v. Parbola, 1909, 2 Ch. 437; 101 L. T. 382.

When actions survive.

All actions survive which do not fall within the maxim, "actio personalis moritur cum persona," as modified by statute: see Twycross v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 40. That maxim has no application to any breaches of covenant, except those which constitute a mere personal wrong, and, with that exception, all rights of action for breaches of contract pass to the executors: Formby v. Barker, 1903, 2 Ch. 539, per Vaughan Williams, L.J., at p. 550.

The rule of the Common Law as to the survival of causes of action was summed up in the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona. This was first modified by 4 Ed. 3, c. 7, and in 1886, this maxim was to a large extent abrogated. The statute then passed with some slight amendment, is now The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 41, and when the Imperial statutes in force in Ontario were revised this statute was deemed to have superseded 3 Ed. 3, c. 7, which was accordingly repealed: see 2 Ed. 7, c. 1, Sch.

Under The Trustee Act, s. 41, except in cases of libel and slander, all torts or injuries to the person, or to the real, or personal, estate of the deceased, survive to the personal representatives of the deceased, who have the same rights and remedies in respect thereof as the deceased would have if living, and the damages recovered form part of his estate; and in like manner the personal representatives of a deceased person are liable for torts, except libel or slander, committed by the deceased to any other person in respect of his person, or of his real, or personal property, but actions by or against the personal representatives in respect of any such torts must be commenced within a year of the death of the person by, or against, whose representatives the action is brought; and an order to continue an action already commenced must be obtained within that period in cases where the action survives only by virtue of the provisions of The Trustee Act, s. 40 (2).

This section of the statute is to some extent founded on the Imp. Stat. 3 & 4 Wm. 4, c. 42, s. 2, but goes very much beyond the provisions of that Act, which limits the survivni of actions in respect of torts, to those committed by, or against, the deceased, within six calendar months prior to his decease. Many causes of action, therefore, which would not survive under the English Act, would survive under the Ontario Statute.

Notwithstanding The Trustee Act (R. S. O. 121), sec. 41, the benefit of an action under The Fatal Accidents Act (R. S. O. c. 151), to which the beneficiaries named therein are entitled, does not survive in favour of their representatives: McHugh v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 609; but the personal representatives of the deceased may have an original cause of action under The Trustee Act, s. 40, supra.

Under the statute, a right of action for seduction now survives against the seducer's personal representative: Lince v. Faircloth, 14 P. R. 253; and an action for crim. con.: C. v. D., 10 O. L. R. 641; (sed vide Brydges v. Brydges, 1909, P. 187; 100 L. T. 744); before the Act, see Udy v. Stewart, 10 Ont. 591; and if an action for any tort which survives, has been commenced by the deceased, it may be continued by his representatives: Mason v. Peterborough, 20 Ont. App. 683.

Actions which survive.

Prior to The Trustee Act, s. 41, supra, under 4 Ed. 3, c. 7, certain personal actions survived: e.g., actions of tort, where the injury had been done to the estate of the deceased: Twycross v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 40; Hatchard v. Mège, 18 Q. B. D. 771 (a case of slander of title); Jones v. Simes, 43 Ch. D. 607; 62 L. T. 497; Jenks v. Clifden, 1897, 1 Ch. 694; 76 L. T. 382 (a case of obstruction of light); or where the deceased's estate had benefited by the tort; Hambly v. Trott, 1 Cowp. 374; Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 768; Ookey v. Dalton, 35 Ch. D. 700; 57 L. T. 18; but where the deceased wrongdoer had merely derived a negative benefit by his tort, by saving himself an expense which he would otherwise have been put to, the right of action did not survive under 4 Ed. 3 c. 7, against his personal representatives either at law: Phillips v. Homfray, 24 Ch. D. 439; 49 L. T. 5; or in equity: see Hamilton Provident & L. Socy. v. Cornell, 4 Ont 623; and see Re Duncan, 1899, 1 Ch. 387; 80 L. T. 322.

It has been laid down that the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona "never extended to personal actions founded upon any obligation, contract debt, covenant, or any other duty to be performed, for there the action survived": 1 Wms. Saund. p. 240, and that the maxim did not extend to actions for tort arising out of breach of contract: see Davis v. Hood, 88 L. T. 19, (a case of negligence by a solicitor); but an action for breach of promise of marriage, though in form an action for breach of contract, is within the maxim and was not maintainable against the representatives of the deceased promissor:

Finlay v. Chirney, 20 Q. B. D. 494; 58 L. T. 664; Chamberlain v. Wilson, 2 M. & S. 408; query, whether such a cause of action would even now survive under The Trustee Act, s. 41, supra: see James v. Morgan, infra. Rule 301.

An action against a putative father of an illegitimate child, on a covenant made by him with the mother for its support, was held not to pass to the personal representative of the mother: James v. Morgan, 1909, 1 K. B. 564; 100 L. T. 238.

Cases of tort arising from breach of contract, which were an exception to the Common Law rule, probably still survive in Ontario, as at Common Law, and are not subject to the limitation of The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 41 (3), supra, as to bringing an action therefor.

As to persons interested in the subject matter of the litigation who come into being after the commencement of an action: see Peter v. Peter, 26 Ch. D. 181; Re Goold, 51 L. T. 417; and see Rule 76, and infra, p. 766. Persons coming into being pendente lite.

Practice.—An order to add parties under this Rule is issued on pracipe: Oshawa Cabinet Co. v. Note, 18 C. L. J. 60; application in Court is not necessary: Crane v. Loftus, 24 W. R. 93; Roffey v. Miller, Ib. 109; Dyer v. Painter, W. N. 1881, 105. Practice.

For form of the order: see Form No. 62; H. & L. Forms No. 485. It continues proceedings in the plight and condition in which they were at the transmission of interest: see also Chorlton v. Dickie, 13 Ch. D. 160.

After an order under this Rule, the practice is, as formerly, that in the subsequent proceedings the title of the revived action shall be added to the original style: Miller v. Huddlestone, W. N. 1881, 171; Secor v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121. Title of cause after revivor.

As to the effect of an order as regards costs: see infra, pp. 766, 769.

Where an action becomes defective, by the death, or transmission of interest, of any of the parties, whether before or after judgment, the plaintiff, or in the case of the death of a sole plaintiff, then his representatives; or in the case of the death of one of several plaintiffs, then the surviving plaintiff, or in the case of an assignment or transmission of the plaintiff's interest inter vivos, then his assignee, are the proper parties to apply for an order to continue the action; because the carriage of the action rests with them. If the plaintiff, or his representative, or a surviving plaintiff, or assignee, does not take out an order to continue the proceedings in due course, it is open to the opposite party to move to limit a time for him to do so, and, in default of his so doing, either to dismiss the action for want of prosecution, or, if after judgment, to stay all further proceedings: see supra, p. 763; but there does not appear to be any authority enabling a defendant to take out such an order, except in a case where he is entitled to assume the carriage of the action as plaintiff, or desires to obtain some relief therein: Pennington v. Coyley, 1912, 2 Ch. 236; 106 L. T. 59; or where he seeks to continue the action for the purpose of recovering costs: Rule 306. Who may obtain order.

Where a sole plaintiff in an administration action died, an order to continue the action was granted to a person who had been served with notice of the judgment, and had obtained liberty to attend the proceedings, he being held to be in the same position as a party to the action: Burstall v. Feeron, 24 Ch. D. 126. The personal representative of the plaintiff might obtain an order to continue the proceedings: Dyer v. Painter, W. N. 1881, 105. But a person, who has not obtained such liberty to attend proceedings, cannot obtain an order under this Rule, as he is not a party: Delaney v. Delaney, 27 Sol. Jour. 417. Sed quære, whether in either case such a person becomes party to the proceedings: see notes to Rule 87, p. 466. It has been held that in a case of transmission of interest of a party served with notice of judgment, an order under this Rule is not proper; and that the successor should be served with notice of the judgment: Re Wicks, W. N. 1888, 9.

Where two of several plaintiffs having separate causes of action died before trial, but, in ignorance of their death, the trial proceeded and the action was dismissed, an application by the executors of the deceased plaintiffs to continue the action was refused: Arnison v. Smith, 40 Ch. D. 567; and see Solton v. New Beeston Co., supra, p. 760.

Liability for costs.

The effect of an order to continue the proceedings is to impose on an added plaintiff the ordinary liabilities of a plaintiff in an action, as if he were originally made a party: see infra, p. 769, and such liability cannot be imposed on a party thus added as plaintiff, against his will. Surviving plaintiffs, therefore, would have no right to issue an order to continue proceedings in the names of themselves and the representatives of a deceased plaintiff, without the consent of such representatives.

An executor continuing an action becomes, as formerly, when he obtained an order of revivor under the old practice, liable for costs: Boynton v. Boynton, 9 Ch. D. 250; 4 App. Cas. 733. So does an official liquidator continuing an action commenced by the company: Re London Drapery Stores, 1898, 2 Ch. 684.

Operation of order.

An order of revivor is in force from its service, although the party served therewith has 10 days to move against it; and notice of trial served within 10 days after such service, for a day after the expiration of the 10 days, was held good: New York Piano Co. v. Stevenson, 10 P. R. 270.

Where on the death of the sole defendant, after notice of trial, persons in whom his interest vested were added as defendants, it was held that new notice of trial to them was necessary: Johnston v. English, 55 L. T. 55; 35 W. R. 29; W. N. 1886, 131.

On the death of an accounting party the Court may, on an ex parte motion, order the action to continue between surviving parties and the executor of deceased, notwithstanding that the executor is resident out of the jurisdiction: Jomeson v. Morsholl, 46 L. T. 480; and see Rule 25 (2), and Rule 2; but see Morrice v. Smart, 73 L. T. Jour. 398.

Infants born pendente lite.

If an action becomes defective by the birth, since its commencement, of an infant who is a necessary party thereto, and proceedings, since its birth, have been taken in the action, the common order under this Rule will not render such proceedings binding on the infant. A special form of order to meet this case will be found in Seton, 4th ed., 1527, Form 3, 5th ed., 102, and Peter v. Peter, 26 Ch. D. 181. See also Re Goold, 51 L. T. 417.

Lunatic.

Where a party becomes a lunatic pending action, as to continuance of the action by his committee: see Re Green, 41 L. T. 30; 48 L. J. Chy. 681.

After the death of a judgment debtor, an order for a receiver of his estate cannot be made without representation of the deceased's estate: Re Shephard, Atkins v. Shephard, 43 Ch. D. 131; Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448; 70 L. T. 411. Rule 301. Receiver.

In Wollis v. Smith, 46 L. T. 473; 51 L. J. Chy. 577, a judgment creditor who had obtained an order attaching a judgment debt, was held entitled to be added under this Rule as co-plaintiff with his debtor, in the action in which the debtor had obtained the judgment, and to have notice of all proceedings taken in that suit to recover the debt. This decision proceeded to a great extent upon the terms of Eng. Ord. 60, R. 2 (1883, R. 179), which applied to the case of the devolution of an estate by operation of law, and has not been adopted in the Ontario Act, or Rules; but see Rule 2.

This Rule is not inapplicable to the case where there is a transmission of interest by reason of a subsequent incumbrancer having redeemed the plaintiff in a foreclosure suit. In such case, however, a new account may probably be taken under Rule 477 without order.

Where the plaintiff died after judgment, and the defendant desired to move to set aside the judgment, an order obtained by the defendant to continue the proceedings in the name of the executor of the deceased plaintiff, was upheld: Chambers v. Kitchen, 16 P. R. 219; 17 P. R. 3; sed quære, see Pennington v. Cayley, 1912, 2 Ch. 236; 106 L. T. 591; and Rule 305; Farnham v. Millward, 1895, 2 Ch. 730; Watson v. Watson, 6 P. R. 229; Cameron v. Eager, 6 P. R. 117; Chowick v. Dimes, 3 Beav. 290. The only case in which a defendant would seem entitled to obtain such an order after judgment is where he has an interest in enforcing the judgment, or is seeking some relief in the action; but in such a case, if he obtains the order, he should make himself plaintiff, and the representatives of the deceased plaintiff defendants: see Burstall v. Feoron, 24 Ch. D. 126; Pennington v. Cayley, supra, p. 765; but see Dani. Pr., 6th ed., 289.

Where an appeal to the Appellate Division becomes defective by death, transmission of interest, or other cause, proceedings to continue the appeal by or against the proper parties should be taken under this Rule, and in the High Court Division: Grosett v. Carter, 6 Ont. 584; see also Ranson v. Patten, 17 Ch. D. 767; Re Knight, Knight v. Gardiner, 84 L. T. Jour. 205; 32 Sol. Jour. 166. Appeal.

Costs of Order.—The costs of an order to continue proceedings are recoverable as part of the costs of the cause: Girordot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 201. Costs of order.

The costs of an order under this Rule were allowed in Mitchell v. Barrett, 3 C. L. T. 265.

Delay.—There is no time limited for reviving. If, therefore, the defendant does not move under Rule 305, primâ facie, an order to continue is regular: Ardogh v. York, 17 P. R. 184. It would seem however, that there is not an unlimited right to revive proceedings, and if undue delay takes place in obtaining the order it may be set aside: see Lemesurier v. Macauley, 20 Ont. App. 421; Jay v. Johnston, 1893, 1 Q. B. 25; see also Curtis v. Sheffield, 20 Ch. D. 398; 21 Ch. D. 1; Mickelthwaite v. Vavosour, W. N. 1893, 61; Fussell v. Dowding, 27 Ch. D. 237; Re Leslie, 23 Ont. 143; and where there is undue delay in taking out the order to continue the proceedings, the Delay in issuing order.

Rule 301.

defendant may move to limit the time for so doing, and in default to dismiss, or stay the action: see supra, p. 763, and Rule 305.

Dismissal of action.

Dismissal of Action on Failure to Revive.—See Rule 305 and note.

Actions against firms.

Actions against Partnership Firms.—Where a partner dies between service of the writ of summons and judgment, the action may continue without an order, but judgment can only be enforced against his surviving partners, and the partnership assets: Ellis v. Wadeson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 714, 719.

Counter-claims.

Counter-claims, etc.—A counter-claim may be revived, in the same way as an original action, by the representatives of the deceased counter-claiming defendant: Andrew v. Aitken, 21 Ch. D. 175; 46 L. T. 689; see also Lumsden v. Winter, 8 Q. B. D. 650.

As to the case of consolidated actions: see Re Wortley, Culley v. Wortley, 4 Ch. D. 180.

The Rules on this subject apply to petitions and originating notices as well as actions: Re Atkins, 1 Ch. D. 82; Re Dynevor, W. N. 1878, 199.

Execution.

Execution.—Where, after judgment, it is merely desired to issue execution, and rights or liabilities have become changed by death or otherwise, the person seeking to issue execution may proceed under Rule 566; sed quære whether even in that case, the persons applying for leave to issue execution should not first make themselves parties to the action under this Rule: see supra, p. 762. Where it is sought to appoint a receiver by way of equitable execution, the representatives of the deceased debtor must be brought before the Court, by order to continue proceedings under this Rule, before the motion for a receiver can be entertained: Re Shephard, Atkins v. Shephard, 43 Ch. D. 131; 62 L. T. 337; Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448; 70 L. T. 411.

Where the solicitor of a deceased plaintiff issued execution without reviving, it was held that a motion might be made by defendant to set it aside without first reviving the action: Chambers v. Kitchen, 16 P. R. 219; 17 P. R. 3.

Where it becomes necessary to enforce a judgment against persons who have subsequently acquired a title, an action must be brought for the purpose: Atty.-Gen. v. Cor. of Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423.

Examples.

Examples.—Where the plaintiff died within fourteen days from trial, the Court made an order, on the application of his executors, continuing proceedings, the executors undertaking to apply forthwith for probate, and to produce the same at the trial of the action if obtained: Hughes v. West, 13 L. R. Ir. 224.

Two sons were, under their father's will, appointed trustees on attaining twenty-one, and an administration action was commenced on the elder attaining that age, in which the infant son was a plaintiff, and the other a defendant as trustee. Upon the infant attaining twenty-one and becoming a trustee, and thus changing his interest and liability, an order was made ex parte making the infant son a co-defendant: Re Goold, Goold v. Goold, 51 L. T. 417; W. N. 1884, 185.

In an action on a promissory note, where the defendant became bankrupt, it was held that the trustee should not be added, as the judgment would not be for recovery, but would only amount to a declaration of a right to prove, which ought to be made in the bankruptcy proceedings: Barter v. Debeux, 7 Q. B. D. 413. Rules 302, 303.

Where a petitioner had died after an order directing inquiries, it was ordered that the petition be carried on by the executors: Re Atkin's Estate, 1 Ch. D. 82. See note to Jud. Act, sec. 2 (a).

Effect of order as to Liability for Costs.—The person by, or against whom, the action is continued, becomes liable to be ordered to pay the whole costs, both those incurred before, as well as those incurred after, the order: Boynton v. Boynton, 9 Ch. D. 250; 4 App. Cas. 733; Watson v. Holliday, 20 Ch. D. 780; Vint v. Hudspith, 30 Ch. D. 24; Borneman v. Wilson, 28 Ch. D. 53; School Board, etc. v. Wall, 35 Sol. Jour. 527; Re London Drapery Stores, 1898, 2 Ch. 684. Costs.

Where the action on the death of one of several plaintiffs survives to the others, they are liable for the whole costs to the defendant, without regard to the estate of the deceased: Aspden v. Seddon, W. N. 1877, 207.

Discharging Order.—As to the grounds for discharging an order: see Dan. Pr., 6th ed., 301; Rule 303 and note; Burstall v. Feoron, and Jay v. Johnstone, supra, p. 767.

302. Such order and a notice according to form No. 40, shall be served upon the continuing parties or their solicitors, and upon the new party. C.R. 397. Service of order.

See Eng. (1883) R. 182.

The Ontario Rules do not require an appearance to be entered by the person served.

303. A person served with such order may apply to the Court to discharge or vary the order at any time within 10 days from the service thereof. C.R. 398. Application to discharge order.

See Eng. (1883) R. 183.

This Rule is very similar in its terms to Chy. O. 339, under which it was held to be not sufficient to give notice of the motion to discharge within the time allowed, but the motion had to be made returnable within that time: Harris v. Myers, 16 Gr. 117; Jackson v. Gardiner, 2 Chy. Ch. 385; 15 Gr. 425; McIlroy v. Hawke, 3 Chy. Ch. 66; see Fox v. Wallis, 2 C. P. D. 45. The time may be extended: see Smith v. Gunn, 2 Chy. Ch. 230, and Rule 176. The motion was formerly made to the Court and set down for the proper day. It is not included in the business which may be taken in Chambers: Rule 207, unless it comes under clause 4.

A notice of trial served before the 10 days had expired, for a sitting commencing after the 10 days, was held good, no motion against the order having been made: New York Piano Co. v. Stevenson, 10 P. R. 270.

Rule 304.

Previous delay in the prosecution of the action is no ground for discharging the order, the defendant not having moved to dismiss: Ardagh v. York, 17 P. R. 184; but if the Statute of Limitations has barred the claim, the order may be discharged: see Lemesurier v. Macaulay; and Jay v. Johnston, in note to Rule 301.

Not only the party served with the order may move to set it aside, but any party who claims that the order has been improperly issued may also move to rescind it; Rule 217, and see Pennington v. Cayley, 1912, 2 Ch. 236; 106 L. T. 591.

Action not to abate by reason of death between verdict and judgment.

304. When death takes place after verdict or finding of the issues of fact but before judgment, judgment may be entered notwithstanding the death, whether the cause of action would, apart from this rule, survive or not. C.R.

This Rule is partly founded on C. R. 394.

See Eng. (1883) R. 178.

Death between argument and judgment.

Where, after argument before the Court, and before the delivering of judgment, a party dies, it would seem that no order to continue proceedings is necessary to enable the Court to give judgment; but the party in whose favour the judgment is, or his personal representative, if he be dead, is entitled to have judgment pronounced and entered as of the date on which the argument took place: Eccard v. Coulthard, 1897, 2 Ch. 554, and see 2 Williams' Saund., part II., pages 72*n*, 72*o*; Evans v. Rees, 12 A. & E. 175; Miles v. Bough, 3 D. & L. 105; Miles v. Williams, 9 Q. B. 47; Cumber v. Wane, 1 Str. 426; Collinson v. Lister, 20 Beav. 355; Freeman v. Tranah, 12 C. B. 406; Moor v. Roberts, 3 C. B. N. S. 844; Belshom v. Percival, 8 Ha. 157; and see Couture v. Bouchard, 21 S. C. R. 281.

Where, in ignorance of the death of the plaintiff, after the argument, a certificate of the Court of Appeal, was issued dated as of the day of pronouncing judgment, the certificate was, on the ex parte application of defendant, amended so as to bear date as of the day of the argument, and was ordered to be entered as of that date: Gunn v. Harper, 3 O. L. R. 693; Young v. Gravenhurst, 24 O. L. R. 467.

A special direction should be got from the Court to date and enter the judgment when delivered as of the date of the argument, otherwise it has to bear date as of the day it is pronounced (see Rule 512), which will make it apparently defective on its face. In Huntington v. Attrill, before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, 5th Aug., 1892, where the respondent died after argument of an appeal, but before judgment, the Committee directed the action to be revived before the Order in Council, embodying the judgment was issued, and an order of revivor was made by the Committee accordingly [ex rel. D. W. Saunders, of counsel for appellants]; but see Grasett v. Carter, 6 Ont. 584, 588, where it was said that any revivor required pending an appeal to the Court of Appeal should be effected in the Court below because the Court of Appeal had no machinery for reviving suits: and see C. v. D., 10 O. L. R. 641.

Or before judgment issued.

Where a party dies after judgment, but before it has been drawn up and entered, the judgment must be drawn up and issued before the ordsr to continue proceedings is issued: see Bcomish v. Pomeroy, 1 Chy. Ch. 32; Golbraith v. Armstrong, Ib., 33. Rule 305.

The effect of the Rule appears to he that where a litigant dies after argument and hefore judgment, the judgment is to be given, ns if given before the death took place.

But for the purpose of enforcing the judgment, an order to continue the proceedings must he first ohtained; whether snch an order can be obtained will depend on whether or not the judgment is of such a nature as to be enforceahle hy, or against, the representatives of the deceased, as the case may be.

But it is to he remembered that under this Rule in the case of a judgment in respect of a tort, a deceased plaintiff's representatives would become entitled, not in respect of the tort, but in respect of the judgment recovered by the deceased; and though the right of action in respect of the tort which was the aubject of the action might not devolve on them, yet the right of deceased as a judgment creditor would.

305. Where a plaintiff has died and proceedings may be continued, the defendant may apply to the Court on notice to compel the person entitled to proceed with the actiou to proceed according to the provisions of these Rules within snch time as the Court may order, and that in default the action be dismissed for want of prosecution. C.R. 403. Right of defendant in action which may be so continued.

See Eng. (1883) R. 185, and Duke v. Dovis, 1893, 2 Q. B. 260.

The procedure pointed out hy this Rule appears to he the proper course for a defendant or his representative to take, and not (as wns suggested in Murroy v. Wurtele, 19 P. R. 288), himself to issue an order to continue proceedings; unless he is entitled to assume the position of plaintiff and take the carriage of the action: see supra, Rule 301, and note; or is seeking to recover costs: see Rule 306.

In Wingrove v. Thompson, 11 Ch. D. 419, the Court, acting under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 56, s. 44, appointed a person to represent the estate of a deceased plaintiff, who died insolvent and intestatc, so that the defendant might have somebody against whom to move to have the action dismissed for want of prosecution: sed quare if there is jurisdiction to make such an order in Ontario.

See Oshawa Cabinet Co. v. Note, in note to Rule 213.

Under the former Chancery Practice if the representatives of a deceased sole plaintiff did not revive when served with an order limiting a time for doing so. the action was dismissed without costs: Pudge v. Pitt, 3 W. R. 100; Hill v. Gaunt, 9 W. R. 68. Under Rule 305 an order may be made for payment of costs. If the defendant moving intends to press for a dismissal with costs his proper course would seem to he to include a claim to that effect in his notice of motion to compel the plaintiff to revive.

Where a sole plaintiff died after judgment, and defendant desired to move to set aside the judgment; see Chambers v. Kitchen, 16 P. R. 215, 17 P. R. 3.

Rules 306, 307.

Costs.

306. Where an action is so dismissed an order for payment of costs may be made and enforced against the goods and lands which were of the deceased plaintiff. C.R. 404. Amended.

Formerly in Equity a suit could not be revived for costs payable by the deceased party personally, unless the costs had been taxed before the abatement of the suit, or unless in addition to the costs a duty was decreed which remained unexecuted: Sm. Pr., 6th ed., 728. C. R. 404 expressly provided that it could; whether this Rule as now framed has the same effect remains to be determined.

Semble, where a defendant, under this Rule, seeks to continue proceedings for the purpose of recovering costs due by a deceased plaintiff, he should make himself plaintiff, and the representatives of the deceased plaintiff defendants, by the order to continue the proceedings; he cannot properly bring the latter into the action as plaintiffs, because that would be imposing on them a personal liability for past costs: see note to Rule 301, supra, p. 769.

In Gunn v. Harper, 3 O. L. R. 693, where the plaintiff died after argument of an appeal, but before the giving of judgment; on the appeal being dismissed with costs, it was held that the defendants were entitled to the appointment of an administrator ad litem to represent the plaintiff's estate, in order that the costs of the action and of the appeal might be recovered, the deceased plaintiff having no assets in the Province, but having given a bond, securing the costs of the appeal. See also Young v. Gravenhurst, 24 O. L. R. 467. But former C. R. 195, which enabled the Court to appoint an administrator ad litem, has not been continued.

(ii) Payment into Court with a Pleading, in Satisfaction.

When defendant may pay in.

307. A defendant may, either before or at the time of delivering his defence, or afterwards by leave of the Court, pay into Court a sum of money in satisfaction of the cause or a part of the cause of action, or of one or more of the causes of action for which the plaintiff sues, and the money when so paid in shall remain in Court subject to further order unless the plaintiff elects to take it out as hereinafter provided. C.R. 419.

See Eng. (1883), RR. 255-265;

Comparison of practice in Eng. and Ont.

(1) This Rule is not confined to any particular class of actions, but whether it applies to a claim which is not for recovery of money has not been decided. The English Rule has been held not to apply so as (1) to compel a plaintiff who accepts money paid in "in respect of the causes of action complained of," to accept it in satisfaction, not only of damages incurred, but also of his claim to establish his right to an injunction; or (2) to enable a plaintiff who accepts the money paid in, to do so, not only as a satisfaction of his own claim, but also as in effect discharging him from liability on a counter-claim by the defendant, who has paid the money in: Coote v. Ford, 1899, 2 Ch. 93; 80 L. T. 697.

(2) It enables the defendant to deny the plaintiff's causes of action, and, at the same time, pay into Court: see Rule 308; Berdan v. Greenwood, 3 Ex. D. 251; Hawkesley v. Bradshaw, 5 Q. B. D. 22, 302; Harper v. Davis, 19 Q. B. D. 170; even in actions for libel or slander; Hawkesley v. Bradshaw, supra, which are expressly excepted by the Eng. Rule; or to plead tender before action: Davis v. National Ass. Co., 16 P. R. 116. Quære, whether this is so in all cases, such as actions to try a right, or to establish a character which is assailed, or where fraud is charged: Berdan v. Greenwood, supra. Rule 307.

The principle is, that the Court ought not "to preclude defendants in actions from saying and doing that which, as practical men, before the action, they might reasonably say and do, viz., say that they entirely deny a person's right to sue them, yet pay, or offer to pay, a sum of money as the price of peace and for the prevention of further litigation:" Berdan v. Greenwood, 3 Ex. D. 259. In Spurr v. Hall, 2 Q. B. D. 615, an action for nuisance, the defendant was not allowed to plead payment into Court together with a denial of the right of action; but the subsequent cases make the propriety of that decision at least doubtful, and under the Rule the defendant's right so to do, seems plain. See also Potter v. Home and Colonial Insurance Co., cited 2 Q. B. D. 622; and Jud. Act, sec. 71, supra.

(3) The payment into Court is not to be an admission of liability: Rule 308. Under the Eng. Rule payment in satisfaction is an admission of liability of the cause of action, in respect of which the money is paid into Court; but with his defence a defendant may (except in action for libel or slander: Fleming v. Dollar, 23 Q. B. D. 388) pay in money, and deny liability: Wheeler v. United Telephone Co., 13 Q. B. D. 597. See Hennell v. Davies, 1893, 1 Q. B. 367; 68 L. T. 220, where money was paid in generally, without specifying the cause of action. Under this Rule there is no exception of actions for libel or slander.

(4) Payment may be made in satisfaction of part of a cause of action, or of any one or more of several causes of action as well as of the whole action.

(5) The plaintiff may not take the money out, unless he accepts it in satisfaction of the cause of action in respect to which it was paid in: Rule 311.

The result will be that, notwithstanding any defence denying liability, the acceptance will satisfy the cause of action, and the action, except as to costs, will come to an end, if the payment in is in satisfaction of the whole cause of action: see Re Earl of Stamford, 33 W. R. 909, where plaintiff, after taking the money proceeded with the action, and was required to stop proceedings, or pay the money in again: see also Kane v. Mitchell, 13 P. R. 118. Practice in Ont.

The money will, under this Rule, remain in Court as the defendant's money, if not accepted by the plaintiff in satisfaction, to be dealt with by the Court in the judgment, or by other order in the action: see Maple v. Earl of Shrewsbury, 19 Q. B. D. 463; 35 W. R. 819. It will not be paid out on motion by the plaintiff, he not accepting it in full: Kane v. Mitchell, supra; and if the plaintiff fail to recover judgment for as much as the amount paid in, the defendant will be entitled to the surplus: Veale v. Reid, 117 L. T. Jour. 292.

It would seem also that it should be treated, while in Court, as the defendant's money, where it is paid in with a denial of liability, and plaintiff does not accept it, but proceeds to trial and recovers less: Gillmor v. Cowan, cited in Davis v. National Ass., 16 P. R. 119; Gray v. Bartholomew, 1895, 1 Q. B. 209; 71 L. T. 867 (slander) and see under the dissimilar English Rules, Dunn v. Devon, 70 L. T. 593; 1895, 1 Q. B. 211 (n), (libel).

Where the plaintiff did not elect to take the money out within the time limited by Rule 313, and judgment was given in favour of the defendant upon the cause of action in respect of which the money was paid in, but the judgment did not dispose of the money in Court, it was held that it remained in Court subject to the final order of the Court after the determination of the action, and must be disposed of in accordance with such determination. Plaintiff was held to be not entitled, after such judgment, to an order under Rule 176, extending nunc pro tunc the time limited by Rule 313; Mogann v. Ferguson, 18 P. R. 201.

Even where liability is not denied the money must remain to be dealt with by the Court, if plaintiff does not elect to take it out under Rules 312 and 313; and, by reason of the plaintiff's not accepting at the proper time, the defendant may afterwards contend that the amount payable by him is less than the amount paid into Court: Denison v. Woods, 17 P. R. 549; see Veale v. Reid, supra, p. 773.

Where an action is constituted under Rule 65 by several plaintiffs having separate claims, a payment into Court of a lump sum is not irregular, but the plaintiffs may require the defendant to deliver particulars of the claims in respect of which the payment is made: Benning v. Ilford Gas Co., 1907, 2 K. B. 290; 97 L. T. 102. Where a defendant denied that the contract sued on was binding on him, and paid into Court £50 to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, and further that if it was binding on him he paid into Court £250 which he alleged was sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, it was held that the pleading was irregular as not specifying the cause of action in respect of which the payments were made: Chapman v. Westerby, 136 L. T. Jour. 406.

Costs.

Where the money is not accepted in full, and the plaintiff recovers sufficient to carry costs, though less than the amount paid in, it would seem that the plaintiff is entitled to the general costs of the action down to payment in: Powell v. Vickers, in note to Rule 313, infra; but see Wheeler v. United Telephone Co., 13 Q. B. D. 597; Goutard v. Carr, 13 Q. B. D. 598 n; Wood v. Leethom, 61 L. J. Q. B. 215; Jones v. Whittoker, 57 L. T. 216, and Kane v. Mitchell, supra, p. 773; but he may nevertheless be liable to pay the costs of issues on which he fails: Powell v. Vickers, supra, and Hubback v. British N. Borneo Co., 1904, 2 K. B. 473.

And see Bucston v. Higgs, 4 Ex. D. 174; Gretton v. Mees, 7 Ch. D. 839; Best v. Osborne, 12 T. L. R. 419, where the plaintiff was given costs up to the time of payment into Court, and defendant costs subsequent thereto. The Judge at the trial doubtless has a discretion under Jud. Act, sec. 74, to give defendant the whole costs of the action: see also Fowkes v. Fox, 91 L. T. Jour. 30. In Small v. Lyon, 10 P. R. 222, where judgment was given for defendant with costs, it was held that the Taxing Officer had no alternative but to tax the defendant all his costs.

Payment in by one of two defendants.

Where two defendants are entitled to put in separate defences, and one has paid money into Court exceeding the amount ultimately recovered in the action, the other defendant cannot avail himself of the payment into Court by his co-defendant as a satisfaction of the cause of action against himself, and, on failure of his defence, plaintiff is entitled to have judgment entered against him for costs: Penny v. Wimbledon Urban District, 1899, 2 Q. B. 72. Rules 308, 309.

Where on a motion for summary judgment defendant was allowed to defend, on payment of money into Court as part security for the plaintiff's claim, the defendant was not allowed to set up in his pleading that such payment into Court was in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim: Mendels v. Gibson, 7 O. L. R. 611.

Where tender of amends in an action for tort is pleaded under Jud. Act, s. 71, the money must be brought into Court: see Rule 309. Actions of tort.

In an action against a husband and wife for a tort of the wife (a libel) it was held that the husband and wife could not put in inconsistent defences, and therefore the husband paying money into Court, the wife could not plead denying liability: Beaumont v. Kaye, 1904, 1 K. B. 292; but that was because in England a payment into Court is an admission of liability, which is not the case under Ont. Rules: see Rule 308.

Where a defendant in an action of libel or slander pays money into Court by way of amends with his defence under The Libel and Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71), s. 9, he cannot in the event of his failing in his defence under s. 7 of that Act, treat the payment as made under Rule 307: Oxley v. Wilkes, 1898, 2 Q. B. 56.

As to payment into Court in actions for libel, see The Libel and Slander Act, supra, s. 9. Where a plaintiff in a libel action died before money paid into Court by defendant in satisfaction has been taken out, his executor was held entitled to obtain payment thereof: Maxwell v. Wolseley, 1907, 1 K. B. 274.

As to payment in by a third party: see Bates v. Burchell, W. N. 1884, 108. Third party.

308. Payment of money into Court shall not, unless expressly so stated, be deemed an admission of the cause of action in respect of which it is paid. C.R. 420. Payment not to be an admission.

See Eng. (1883) R. 255.

Where money is paid into Court in full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff cannot obtain leave to take it out in satisfaction of part only, with liberty to proceed for the balance claimed by him: Barrie v. Toronto & Niagara Power Co., 11 O. L. R. 48.

309. With a defence setting up a tender before action, the sum alleged to have been tendered shall be brought into Court. C.R. 428. Tender.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 257.

This Rule is similar to the former Common Law practice: see Chapman v. Hicks, 2 C. & M. 633, where it was held that if the sum tendered was not paid in, the plaintiff might sign judgment for the sum as to which tender was pleaded.

A defence may be set up denying liability as well as pleading tender: Davis v. National Assur. Co., 16 P. R. 116.

Rule 310.

The Rule would seem to apply in a foreclosure suit, as well as in any other kind of action: see Kinnaird v. Trollope, 42 Ch. D. 610.

Payment into Court with a plea of tender before action is not an admission of the right of the plaintiff to bring the action: American Aristotype Co. v. Eakins, 7 O. L. R. 127.

Where a defence sets up a tender, it is not essential that the tender should be alleged to have been made before action, if the fact may be inferred from the other statements of the defence: Griffiths v. Ystradyfodwg, 24 Q. B. D. 307.

The plaintiff cannot take the money out in satisfaction, and tax his costs as of course; the plea of tender raises an issue, which remains unsettled on the record, and in respect of it the defendants are entitled to go to trial: Ib. If the plaintiff elects to take the money, he must take it in full of his claim, and the defendant thereupon becomes entitled to his costs: American Aristotype Co. v. Eakins, 7 O. L. R. 127; and see Rule 315.

Formerly a tender could not be pleaded in an action for unliquidated damages: see Davys v. Richardson, 20 Q. B. D. 722; 21 Q. B. D. 202; but under Jud. Act, s. 71, and Rule 307, semble, it may; and it is probably for that reason that the former special provisions of The Municipal Act and The Justices of the Peace Protection Act (R. S. O. 1897), c. 88, permitting a tender of amends, have not been continued in the present R. S. O.

Tender to a solicitor of a cheque, is not a good legal tender: Blumberg v. Life Interests Corp., 1897, 1 Ch. 171; 1898, 1 Ch. 27.

To be signified in defence.

310. Payment into Court shall be pleaded, and in the pleading the cause of action or part thereof, in respect of which the payment is made, shall be specified. C.R. 421.

See Eng. (1883) R. 256.

A payment into Court in satisfaction of the whole, or part, of the plaintiff's claim may be made before, or after, the delivery of a defence: see Rules 307, 311.

In the case of a payment in before defence, if a defence is subsequently delivered, the payment in must be set up in the defence. Where the payment in is made after the delivery of the defence, the order granting leave should provide for the delivery of a supplementary defence, in order to set up the payment in as required by this Rule.

Where there are several causes of action, or different heads of claim, money should not be paid in generally, without specifying the amounts applicable to the different causes of action or heads of the claim, where it can be done; otherwise particulars may be ordered. Thus, where plaintiff claimed (1) mesne profits, and (2) damages for dilapidation and non-repair of premises leased, the defendant paying in generally was ordered to give particulars apportioning the money paid in to the different heads of claim: Rowe v. Kelly, 59 L. T. 139; W. N. 1888, 141; and see Benning v. Ilford Gas Co., in note to Rule 307.

In Paraire v. Loibl, 49 L. J. C. P. 481; 43 L. T. 427 (discussed in Rowe v. Kelly), where plaintiff claimed for distinct services as defendant's architect, viz.: in preparing plans, acting as arbitrator, and msking surveys, it was heid that payment into Court generally was sufficient in point of pleading, but the question whether particulars should bs ordered was not passed upon: see Bank of London v. Guarantee Co., 12 P. R. 499; Ocean Marine SS. Co. v. Ocean Marine Insurance Co., 2 T. L. R. 425.

Or in notice.

311. A defendant paying money into Court before delivering his defence shall serve upon the plaintiff a notice stating that he has paid in the money, and specifying the claim or cause of aetion in respect of which the payment has been made. C.R. 422.

Taken from Eng. (1883) R. 258.

For form of notice: see H. & L. Forms, No. 397.

A defence delivered subsequently and simply denying liahility was heid not embarrassing: Anon, 31 Sol. Jour., 136, 139; hut under Rule 310, the payment must bs pleaded.

Where a motion for judgment is pending when the payment is made, the defendant is liahle for the costs thereof: Re Lomer v. Waters, 1898, 2 Q. B. 326; 79 L. T. 81.

How plaintiff may take money out of Court.

312. The plaintiff may take the money out of Court in satisfaction of the cause of action, or part thereof, in respect of which it was paid in, upon filing and serving a memorandum (Form 27), which sball be equivalent to a satisfaction piece. C.R. 423.

The memorandum referred to in this Rule should he entered of record: see Rule 532.

For Form No. 27, see H. & L. Forms, No. 398. Where the money is accepted in satisfaction of the cause of action, or part of the cause of action, in respect of which it is paid in, no order for payment out is necessary: Rule 319.

If the money is not taken out hy the plaintiff, it is suhject to the order of the Court, and such order may be made in respect of it as the case may require, and the rights of the parties may ultimately appear: see Brown v. Feeney, 1906, 1 K. B. 563; Maxwell v. Wolseley, 1907, 1 K. B. 274; Ramus v. Dashwood, Mew's Dig. 1909, p. 480.

Election.

313. The plaintiff shall make his election to take the money out of Court within four days after the day on which be receives notice of payment in if the payment is made before defence, and if the money is paid in with the dcfence he shall elect before the expiration of the time for replying, and before replying. C.R. 424.

Where the plaintiff does not elect, within the time provided hy this Rule, to accept ths money, the defendant may contend thnt it is more than the plaintiff is entitled to recover: see Denison v. Woods, in note to Rule 307, p. 774.

Rule 314.

A plaintiff, who by mistake had accepted money paid in with a defence, was allowed to withdraw his acceptance: Chevalier v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 219; and see Emery v. Webster, 9 Ex. 242; Rule 314, infra.

Where the plaintiff by mistake claimed less than was due to him, and the amount claimed was paid into Court, and taken out in satisfaction before the mistake was discovered, it was held that the plaintiff could not bring another action for the true amount due, less the amount so recovered in the former action: Sanders v. Hamilton, 96 L. T. 679.

If the plaintiff elects not to accept the money paid in, and fails at the trial to recover judgment for as much as was paid in, the defendant paying it in is entitled to the surplus: Veale v. Reid, 117 L. T. Jour. 292; Gillmor v. Cowan, cited in Davis v. National Ass. Co., 16 P. R. p. 119; Maguire v. Ferguson, 18 P. R. 201. The money in Court is subject to the order of the Court, and must be dealt with as the rights of the parties ultimately appear: Ib.; Rule 316.

Where the money paid in is less than the amount claimed, and an amount within the jurisdiction of a County Court, the plaintiff accepting it is, nevertheless, entitled to costs on the Supreme Court scale: Stephens v. Toronto Ry., 13 O. L. R. 107, 363.

Where the plaintiff elects not to take the money out of Court, and proceeds with the action, and recovers less than the amount paid in, he is primâ facie entitled to payment of the amount recovered out of the moneys in Court: Rule 316 (2); but it is open to the defendant to show, if he can, that his claim against the plaintiff for costs will exceed the amount recovered by the plaintiff, and so stay payment to the plaintiff until the true balance is ascertained: Powell v. Vickers, 1907, 1 K. B. 71; 95 L. T. 774.

Taxing costs.

314. Where the defendant does not allege tender before action and the plaintiff takes the money in satisfaction of all the causes of action, he may tax his costs of the action, and issue execution therefor, unless the defendant pays them within forty-eight hours after taxation. C.R. 425. Amended.

Whether this Rule gives the plaintiff an absolute right to the costs according to the scale of the Court in which the action is brought, irrespective of the amount brought into Court and accepted in satisfaction of the claim, and without any set-off of costs by the defendant, was the subject of a conflict of opinion; in the affirmative: see Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195 (a decision of a Divisional Court), followed by Britton, J., in McKelvey v. Chilman, 5 O. L. R. 263; and in the negative: see Chick v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 12 P. R. 58, (Rose, J.), not referred to in Babcock v. Standish, and see Rule 649; and Soloman v. Mulliner, 1901, 1 K. B. 76. The point may now be considered to be settled affirmatively by the decision of the Court of Appeal: Stephens v. Toronto Ry., 13 O. L. R. 363, approving Babcock v. Standish, supra.

Where money is paid into Court in satisfaction of one of several claims, with a denial of liability, and the plaintiff proceeds with the action, but ultimately accepts the money paid in in satisfaction of all claims sued for, he is entitled to the costs of the claim in respect of which the money was paid into Court up to the time of payment, but must pay the defendant's costs of all other claims, and of all subsequent proceedings after payment in: Smith v. Northleach, etc., 1902, 1 Ch. 197; and where in such a case the plaintiff proceeds to trial, and succeeds on some issues, he is entitled to the costs of those issues, though the amount recovered be less than the amount paid in: Wagstaffe v. Bentley, 1902, 1 K. B. 124; 85 L. T. 744; and see Ridout v. Green, 87 L. T. 679. Rule 314.

In an action for an injunction to restrain a nuisance, and for damages, the defendants denied liability, and paid money into Court in satisfaction of the claim for damages. The plaintiff accepting the money in satisfaction of the claim for damages, was held not entitled to tax his costs, as the entire cause of action was not satisfied: Moon v. Dickinson, 38 W. R. 278; 63 L. T. 371; Coote v. Ford, 1899, 2 Ch. 93; 80 L. T. 697; Frost v. Leslie, 27 O. L. R. 450.

It has been held that though only sixpence is paid into Court the plaintiff, if he takes it in satisfaction, is entitled to his costs: McSheffrey v. Lonagan, 20 L. R. Ir. 528; and on the scale of the Court in which the action is brought: Stephens v. Toronto Ry., 13 O. L. R. 363; and if he accepts the money within the time allowed, he cannot be made liable for defendant's costs incurred between the dates of payment in and acceptance: Lomer v. Waters, 1898, 2 Q. B. 326.

See Suckling v. Gobb, in note to Rule 321, p. 789.

If the plaintiff does not accept the money in satisfaction, he may become liable to pay the whole costs: see Bank of London v. Guarantee Co., 12 P. R. 499.

The costs may be taxed under this Rule without any judgment or order, unless it becomes necessary to enforce payment, in which case the plaintiff may sign judgment after the expiration of 48 hours from the granting of the certificate of taxation.

But if the plaintiff accepts the money in full satisfaction of his claim, he will be treated as having discontinued the action as to the causes to which the money does not relate, (though he should properly give notice of withdrawal of them), and may tax his costs of so much of the action as relates to the causes for which the money is paid: McIlwraith v. Green, 14 Q. B. D. 766; 52 L. T. 81; but it would seem that defendant would be entitled to the costs of the causes abandoned by plaintiff, as upon a discontinuance: Smith v. Northleach, etc., 1902, 1 Ch. 197.

The plaintiff is not entitled to costs under this Rule where the money is paid in with a plea of payment and the plaintiff accepts it; but he must pay the defendant's costs: see Griffiths v. Ystrodyfodwg, 24 Q. B. D. 307: American Aristotype Co. v. Eakins, 7 O. L. R. 127.

If the plaintiff does not elect within the time given by Rule 313, probably his right to do so, and to tax costs, is gone: see Spincer v. Watts, 23 Q. B. D. 350; 67 L. T. 711. It was, however, held under original J. A. Rule 218, which gave the plaintiff 4 days after receipt of notice of payment within which to accept the money in satisfaction, that he might still apply under former C. R. Rule 1130 (now Jud. Act, s. 74), for costs: Greaves v. Fleming, 4 Q. B. D. 226; see also Broadhurst v. Willey, W. N. 1876, 21; but quære, whether that will be so under the present Rules, by which the plaintiff has no right to the money by the mere payment of it into Court, but only in the event of his making an election under Rule 313; and see Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195.

For form of judgment for costs: see Form No. 100; H. & L. Forms, No. 859.

If the plaintiff recovers less than the amount paid in, the defendant is entitled to the excess: Gillmor v. Cowan, cited in Davis v. National Ass., 16 P. R. 119; Rule 316 (2); and where the plaintiff recovered only 22c. more than had been paid in in satisfaction, he was held entitled to full costs of the action: Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 25 Ont. 641.

Where the plaintiff's solicitor, by mistake, accepted money paid in, and signed judgment for costs, the judgment, on application of the plaintiff, was set aside, upon payment of costs, and the plaintiff was allowed to proceed with his action: Emery v. Webster, 9 Ex. 242; Chevalier v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 219.

Costs in case tender accepted.

315. Where the defendant alleges tender before action and the plaintiff elects to take the money in satisfaction unless otherwise ordered the defendant may tax his costs and the amount allowed him shall be paid to him out of the money in Court and the balance shall be paid the plaintiff. New.

This Rule in effect affirms the conclusion arrived at in American Aristotype Co. v. Eakins, 7 O. L. R. 127.

Payment in with denial of liability.

316.—(1) Where money is paid into Court and liability is not admitted and the plaintiff does not accept, in satisfaction of the claim or cause of action in respect of which the payment into Court has been made, the sum so paid in, but proceeds with the action in respect of such claim or cause of action, the money shall remain in Court and be subject to the order, and shall not be paid out of Court except in pursuance of an order or upon the consent of both parties.

Application of money in case of recovery by plaintiff.

(2) If the plaintiff proceeds with the action in respect of such claim or cause of action, or any part thereof, and recovers less than the amount paid into Court, the amount paid in shall be applied, so far as is necessary, in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, and the balance (if any) shall be repaid to the defendant, but if the defendant succeeds in respect of such claim or cause of action, the whole amount shall be repaid to him. New. See English Rule 260*c*.

Where the Plaintiff Recovers Less than the Amount Paid into Court.—Where by reason of the plaintiff recovering less than is paid into Court, he is ordered to pay costs to the defendant, semble, the defsndant is entitled to an order for payment of such costs out of the monsys in Court, payahle to ths plaintiff, and payment to ths plaintiff may be staysd, until such costs have heen taxed: see Powell v. Vickers, 1907, 1 K. B. 71; 95 L. T. 774. Rules 317-320.

317. A plaintiff may, in answer to a counter-claim, pay money into Court in satisfaction thereof, subject to the like conditions as to costs and otherwise as upon payment into Court by a defendant. C.R. 427. When plaintiff may pay in.

Sams as Eng. (1883), R. 263; and see Hutchinson v. Barker, 71 L. T. 624.

318. A defendant paying money into Court shall in his præcipe state the rule under which he is paying it in. New. Defendant paying in to state Rule.

319. Money accepted by the plaintiff in satisfaction may be paid out to him without order, upon the pleadings and notice of acceptance being transmitted to the Accountant, who shall return the same to the proper office after having made the necessary entries in his books. C.R. 423. Acceptance of payment by plaintiff.

Although this Rule dispenses with the necessity of an order for psyment out; nevertheless the plaintiff must satisfy the Accountant that he has complied with Rule 312.

(iii) Consolidation of Actions.

320. Actions may be consolidated by order of the Court. C.R. 435. Consolidation of actions.

See Eng. (1883), R. 656.

Consolidation of actions may take place in several ways, and the term is used in different senses: see Kuula v. Moose Mountain, 26 O. L. R. 335-8.

(1) Actions by same Plaintiff against same Defendant.—If a plaintiff hrings two actions against ths sams defendant, for matters which might properly hs combined in ons action, and ths douhls proceeding is shswn to he vexatious, a Court of Law, in the exercise of its ordinary power to prevent any ahuse of its own process, might consolidate the actions; that is to say, stay proceedings aosolutely in one action, and require the plaintiff to include the whole of his claims in ths other; and this has been done with costs against the plaintiff: see Cecil v. Brigges, 2 T. R. 639; Anon., 1 Chitty's Rep. 709 (n); Beardsall v. Cheetham, E. B. & E. 243; 2 Chitty's Archhold. 13th ed., p. 1085 et seq.: Dan. Pr., 6th ed., 1888: Dan. Forms, 3rd ed., 816; Sston, 5th ed., 700; and msy hs dons under this Rule upon the application of either party: Martin v. Martin, 1897, 1 Q. B., 429; 76 L. T. 44. Several actions by the same plaintiff against same defendant.

Rule 320.

Where an action is commenced that covers the same ground as one already existing, together with some further relief, it will be stayed as to the first part: Morton v. Quick, 26 W. R. 441; and see Hamilton v. Hamilton Street Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 151.

An application to consolidate two actions by the same plaintiff, one for malicious prosecution, and the other for salary as a manager, was dismissed by Quain, J., with costs: 1 Chart. Ch. Ca. 127; 60 L. T. Jour. 86.

Where plaintiffs brought an action for the same cause of action as was set up by them in a counter-claim in an action in another Division, it was held that, though the case was not strictly within this Rule, because the plaintiffs had not brought two actions, yet there is inherent jurisdiction in the Court to prevent undue use of its process, and the plaintiffs' action was stayed till their counter-claim should be disposed of: Taylor v. Bradford, 9 P. R. 350.

Where the plaintiffs in a prior pending action, claimed $200,000, balance due upon a construction contract, and in another action, begun some time afterwards, claimed $3,000 for goods sold and delivered, and the cause of action arose before the commencement of the first action, it was held that the two claims should have been made in one action, and it was a proper exercise of discretion to refuse judgment, and leave the question till the determination of the first action, in which a large set-off was claimed, since, in the result of both actions, nothing might be due to the plaintiffs: Conmee v. Can. Pac. Ry., No. 2, 11 P. R. 222.

Several actions by same plaintiff against different defendants.

(2) Actions by same Plaintiff against different Defendants.—But the term consolidation is more frequently used in a different sense. Where actions are brought by the same plaintiff against different defendants, but the questions in dispute in all are substantially the same, the Court, if the defendants apply, will stay proceedings in all the actions except one, until that one action has been determined, upon the terms that the various defendants agree to be bound by the event of the action which proceeds. This practice has been applied to the case of actions against several underwriters upon policies of insurance: Hollingsworth v. Broderick, 4 A. & E. 646, (see the form of order in that case, Chitty Forms, 9th ed., p. 788); actions against guarantors of separate parts of a debt by separate instruments: Sharp v. Lethbridge, 4 M. & G. 37; or against joint and several obligors of a bond conditioned for the good behaviour of another person: Anderson v. Towgood, 1 Q. B. 245; Essex v. Wright, 13 P. R. 474; or against principal and sureties on a replevin bond: Bartlett v. Bartlett, 4 Scott, N. R. 779; or against the several members liable upon a mutual insurance policy: Lewis v. Barkes, 4 C. B. N. S. 330; to several actions against different defendants for trespass in refusing to pay tolls, where the main issue, as to the right to tolls was common to all the actions: Vaughan Road Co. v Fisher, 14 P. R. 340; and to several actions in respect to the publishing of the same libel in different newspapers: Colledge v. Pike, 56 L. T. 124; in which last case the plaintiff was given liberty, if dissatisfied with the verdict, to select another action for trial.

In Eddison v. Dalziel, 9 T. L. R. 334, three such actions for libel by the same plaintiff were consolidated, though two defendants pleaded justification, and the third an apology, and payment into Court. So where a number of actions against different defendants may be reduced to classes, those of each class raising the same questions, the Court may allow one action of each class to proceed, and stay the rest: Syers v. Pickersgill, 27 L. J. Ex. 5.

This course of staying all but one of several actions, will only be allowed where the questions in dispute are substantially the same. Where questions, raised by defendants, of fraud and misrepresentation would necessarily be different, and depend on different evidence, a stay was refused; Niagara Grape Co. v. Nelles, 13 P. R. 179, 258; and see Williams v. Raleigh, 14 P. R. 50.

Libel actions may be consolidated.

Under The Libel and Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71), s. 6, actions for the same libel may be consolidated so that they shall be tried together. If the plaintiff recovers damages, the same are to be assessed in one sum, and apportioned by the jury against the different defendants: Ib., s. 6 (2). See Imp. Act, 51-2 Vict. c. 64.

Such a motion to consolidate should not be made until statements of claim have been delivered from which it may be seen whether the actions are for the same libel: Crossley v. Ferguson, 33 C. L. J. 461; but it has been made before the delivery of the defences: Stone v. Press Assoc., 1897, 2 Q. B. 159; 77 L. T. 41.

Effect of staying actions at the defendants' instance.

The order for consolidation, when made on the application of the defendant, does not require the plaintiff's consent: Hollingsworth v. Broderick, 4 A. & E. 646. It binds the defendants in the actions which are stayed to abide the event of the one which proceeds; but it has been held not to bind the plaintiff to do so; and that, if the result of the first action is against him, he may proceed with another: Doyle v. Anderson, 1 A. & E. 635; Doyle v Douglas, 4 B. & Ad. 544. But see Amos v. Chadwick, 9 Ch. D. 459; and Bennett v. Lord Bury, 5 C. P. D. 339. A consolidation order may be obtained at any time after each action has become a lis pendens, i.e., when the writ has been served: The Helenslea, 30 W. R. 616, see Hollingsworth v. Broderick, supra; Ray v. Sherwood, 1 Curt. 173, 193; 1 Moo. P. C. 353; but in the case of several actions for the same libel, see Crossley v. Ferguson, supra.

Re-opening consolidation.

The Court may re-open the consolidation order, and allow a second action to be defended, notwithstanding that the plaintiff has succeeded in the first action. But it will require a very strong case to induce it to do so. Probably a case must be shown at least as strong as would be required to procure a new trial: see Foster v. Alvez, 3 Bing. N. C. 896; Cohen v. Bulkley, 5 Taunt. 165.

Several actions by the same plaintiff against different defendants cannot be consolidated without the consent of defendants, on the plaintiff's application unless the issues to be tried are precisely similar: Lee v. Arthur, 100 L. T. 61.

Test action.

(3) Actions by Several Plaintiffs against the same Defendant.—Although consolidation, properly so called, is obtained at the instance of several defendants, where several defendants are sued by the same plaintiffs, a somewhat analogous proceeding has been adopted in the converse case, of several plaintiffs bringing several actions against the same defendant, to recover similar relief in reference to the same transactions. Malins, V.C., at the instance of the plaintiffs, enlarged the time for taking any further steps in all the actions but one, until that one should be tried: Amos v. Chadwick, 4 Ch. D.

Rule 320.

869; and his judgment was affirmed on appeal: 9 Ch. D. 459; see also Hodson v. Richardson, 3 Burr. 1478. A like course was taken in Bennett v. Lord Bury, 5 C. P. D. 339, where thirty-eight actions had been brought, and, on the plaintiff's application, the proceedings in thirty-seven were stayed until the trial of the thirty-eighth as a test action, though it was said that the incidents would or might vary in each case, and there would be differences of proof in each, but the gist of the charge was the same in all. See also Fulmer v. Windsor, 5 O. W. R. 589, 591, 772; Campbell v. Sovereign Bank, 3 O. W. N. 334.

Where issues in actions are not the same.

Where the issues in several actions are not the same, there cannot be a consolidation of them. Where, therefore, several actions had been brought against a municipal corporation for damages arising from the negligent construction of drains; consolidation was refused, as each plaintiff would have to prove that the negligence resulted in injury to his own particular land: Williams v. Raleigh, 14 P. R. 50; and it was doubted whether a common defendant could obtain a consolidation order against the will of the several plaintiffs: Ib.; but where husband and wife brought separate actions against the same defendant for damages arising out of the same act of alleged negligence, they were ordered to be consolidated: Noyes v. Young, 16 P. R. 254.

Consolidation of four actions by different plaintiffs against the same defendants for damages caused by the spread of fire, negligently set out on the defendants' land was refused: Kuulo v. Moose Mountain, 26 O. L. R. 332.

Judgment in test action, how far binding in other actions.

Where an action is ordered to be tried and the others are directed to abide the result, the judgment in the test action will not bind the parties in the other actions, unless the action has been tried out on its merits, upon evidence: Amos v. Chadwick, 9 Ch. D. 459. Where therefore, the plaintiffs in the test action, when it came on for trial, declined to proceed, and judgment was then given for defendants, it was held that, notwithstanding the Rule corresponding to former Ont. C. R. 779, which provided that a judgment of non-suit should unless otherwise directed, have the same effect as a judgment upon the merits, the Judge had jurisdiction to substitute another of the actions as a test action: Ib. In the absence of agreement, the plaintiff, in an action thus constituted a test action, has no right to be indemnified against costs by the other plaintiffs: Ib.

Where on a test action coming on for trial, the plaintiff was not prepared to proceed, and applied for a postponement, to which, under the circumstances so far as his own interest was concerned, he was not entitled; it was held that the Court could not regard the rights of the plaintiffs in the other actions, and must dismiss the action with costs: Robinson v. Chadwick, 7 Ch. D. 878. See notes to Rules 253 and 321.

A judgment on the merits in the test action will not preclude an appeal in any of the other actions, unless there is an agreement that the decision in one is to be final in all: Coutts v. Dodds, 16 P. R. 273.

Cross actions.

(4) Cross Actions.—A fourth kind of consolidation is where there are cross actions between the same parties, arising out of the same matter, and the Court stays one, directing the plaintiff in it to bring forward his case by way of defence, set-off or counter-claim in the other action. In such case the party on whom the onus of proof lies is given the conduct of the proceedings, by being directed to proceed with his action: Thomson v. S. E. Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 320; see also The Never Despair, 9 P. D. 34; Girvin v. Burke, 13 P. R. 216. Rule 320.

An action for breach of an agreement and fraud, and a cross action for specific performance, were ordered to be consolidated in the latter action: Holmes v. Hervey, 25 W. R. 80.

Where the plaintiff brought an action for an account, and the defendant brought another action for a balance due on cross accounts, the latter action was stayed on the defendant's application: Bethell v. United Stock Ex., W. N. 1866, 10.

Separate Actions between Different Parties.—In Smith v. Whichcord, 24 W. R. 900; separate actions between different parties relating to the same subject were consolidated; but in Ryon v. Comeron, 16 P. R. 235, and Kauls v. Moose Mountain, 26 O. L. R. 332, an application to consolidate was refused. Separate actions between different parties.

Though consolidation is refused, a trial of the actions at the same time may sometimes be had, where that course will be convenient, and a saving of expense: Ryon v. Comeron, supra.

Conduct of Consolidated Actions. — Where two actions commenced on the same day were consolidated, and a difference of opinion arose between the plaintiffs as to the conduct of the action, the plaintiffs who took the first steps towards severance were made defendants, and the conduct of the cause was given to the other plaintiffs, though their claim was the smaller in amount: Holden v. Silkstone & Dodsworth Coal & Iron Co., 30 W. R. 98. Conduct of consolidated action.

There is no fixed rule that the action last begun is to be stayed: Thomson v. S. E. Ry. Co., 30 W. R. 537; 46 L. T. 513; Miller v. Confederation Life, etc., 11 P. R. 241; Seton, 706.

The plaintiff in the first action will not be given the conduct if his action is defective: Re McRoe, 25 Ch. D. 16.

In determining who is to have the conduct of a consolidation of two cross actions, the main indicia to be regarded are, which action was first begun, upon whom does the chief burden of proof lie, and which action is the more comprehensive in its scope: Girvin v. Burke, 13 P. R. 216.

As to the conduct of several administration actions after their consolidation: see notes to Rule 610.

In Master's Office.—The Master in Ordinary has no jurisdiction to consolidate actions in which judgments are entered, and under which separate references are pending in his office: Boswell v. Grant, 11 P. R. 376. Consolidation in M. O.

Practice.—The application is to be made usually in Chambers: see Smith v. Whichcord, 24 W. R. 900; Chitty's Arch., 13th ed., 1087; but occasion for consolidation may arise in Court, e.g., on motion for an injunction. Practice.

The Master in Chambers, or other officer having like jurisdiction, may dispose of such applications: see Rules 207 (4), 206, 209.

Rule 321.

An application to consolidate several actions for libel, against different newspapers, was granted before the delivery of defences: Stone v. Press Assoc., 1897, 2 Q. B. 159; 77 L. T. 41; but semble, it should not be made until statements of claim are delivered: see Crossley v. Ferguson, and other cases, supra, p. 783.

Venue in consolidated action.

Place of Trial.—Where cross-actions with different places of trial named are consolidated, the place of trial will be ordered as the balance of convenience requires: Gonce v. Leitch, 11 P. R. 255.

(iv) Discontinuance.

Discontinuance.

321.—(1) The plaintiff may, at any time before receipt of the statement of defence of any defendant, or after the receipt thereof before taking any other proceeding in the action (save an interlocutory application) by notice in writing, filed and served, wholly discontinue his action against such defendant or withdraw any part thereof; and the defendant shall be entitled to the costs of the action, if wholly discontinued against him, or if not wholly discontinued to the costs occasioned by the part withdrawn.

(2) A plaintiff may discontinue as to one or more of several defendants.

(3) Such costs may be taxed upon production of the notice served, and if not paid within four days from taxation the defendant may issue execution therefor.

(4) Such discontinuance or withdrawal shall not be a defence to any subsequent action.

(5) Except as provided by the preceding subsection a plaintiff shall not discontinue without leave of the Court, which may be granted upon such terms as to costs and as to any other action against all or any of the defendants, and otherwise as may be proper. C.R. 430.

See Eng. (1883), Rs. 290 and 292.

For form of judgment: see H. & L. Forms, No. 860.

Scope of present Rule.

Scope of Present Rule.—The present Rule besides allowing the plaintiff, as formerly, to discontinue the whole action, authorizes the withdrawal of a part of his cause of complaint, or a discontinuance of the action against one or more of several defendants; formerly, at Law, the discontinuance could only be of the whole action: Benton v. Polkinghorne, 16 M. & W. 8. In Equity a partial discontinuance could be effected by amendment.

The power to withdraw part is, however, only where the part is severable from the rest of the claim: Bank of London v. Guarantee Co., 12 P. R. 499.

Rule 321.

It was formerly held that a plaintiff could not serve notice of discontinuance against one of several defendants; and that his proper course was to obtain an order for leave to discontinue against such defendant: Fox v. Hamilton Prov. & L. Soc., 9 C. L. T. 197. The last sentence of clause (1) of Rule 321, makes a change in this respect.

Notice when, and to whom to be given.

Where a co-defendant, as against whom interlocutory judgment had been signed, is sued jointly for a libel, he is entitled to notice of the motion, and an order obtained without notice to him is irregular: Jennings v. Cripps, Divl. Court (14 Nov., 1903).

The plaintiff cannot serve notice under this Rule on an infant until a guardian is appointed, and so escape the costs of the action: Ruth v. Taylor, 79 L. T. Jour. 211.

One of several plaintiffs.

One of several plaintiffs has no absolute right to withdraw from an action and to have his name struck out as a plaintiff: Re Matthews, Oates v. Mooney, 1905, 2 Ch. 460. In case of difference between co-plaintiffs, an order may be made striking out a non-concurring plaintiff, and making him a defendant, but only on the terms of giving security for defendants' costs: Ib.

On a motion to set aside a discontinuance as irregular, leave was granted to discontinue on proper terms on a cross-motion of the plaintiff: Spiller v. Coghlan, 20 L. R. Ir. 32.

An action ought to be disposed of against all the parties to it, therefore, the defendant has become an unnecessary party owing circumstances arising subsequent to the issue of the writ, the ac ... should be dismissed, or discontinued, as against him: McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295.

Class action.

After judgment for the benefit of the plaintiff and other members of a class for which he sues, an action cannot ordinarily be dismissed even by consent of parties: see Arnbery v. Thornton, 6 P. R. 190; but even in such an action the plaintiff remains dominus litis after judgment, and where there are no other unsatisfied members of the class, he may, on his own claim being satisfied, consent to an order staying all further proceedings: Re Alpha Co., Ward v. Alpha Co., 1903, 1 Ch. 203; 87 L. T. 646.

By analogy the Rule has been held applicable to a third party notice: Bucknoll v. Mitchell, 13 O. W. R. 44.

Stage of proceedings.

At any Time, etc.—The Rule permits a discontinuance before appearance: Moore v. S. Counties, etc., Bank, W. N. 1889, 150; The Salybia, 1910, P. 25; 101 L. T. 959; but see in the case of an infant, Ruth v. Taylor, supra. It does not permit the plaintiff to discontinue his action after it has been entered for trial: Matthews v. Antrobus, 49 L. J. Chy. 80; and he has no right to demand to be non-suited at the trial. If he wishes to discontinue his action, at that stage, leave must be obtained under clause (4), or Rule 251; see Fox v. The Star, 1898, 1 Q. B. 636; 78 L. T. 311; 1900, A. C. 19; 81 L. T. 562.

The words "before taking any other proceeding in the action" mean "before taking any proceeding with an intention of continuing the action," and do not include a step such as taking money out of Court, or bringing in money in satisfaction of a counter-claim: Spincer v. Watts, 23 Q. B. D. 350; and see Musman v. Boref, 40 W. R. 352; 66 L. T. 171.

Rule 821.

The discontinuance is only of right, either before defence put in, or, if defence is put in, before taking any step, other than an interlocutory application. Proceedings for discovery after defence was held to be a step, though the proceedings were not effectively prosecuted: see Christie v. Woodhouse, 4 O. W. N. 93.

When confession of defence proper.

If the statement of defence sets up matters arising after the issue of the writ, the truth of which the plaintiff cannot deny, and which afford a good answer in law, the plaintiff's proper course will be, not to discontinue, but to enter a confession of the defence under Rule 164.

Form of notice.

Form.—For form of discontinuance: see Form No. 30; H. & L. Forms, No. 562.

Under the English Rule (which does not contain the words as to the notice being filed and served), it was held that a written notice by the plaintiff's solicitor as follows: "We are instructed to proceed no further in the action," was sufficient notice: The Pommerania, 4 P. D. 195; but a letter saying "We shall discontinue this action, and take out of Court the amount paid in, and tax our costs. We will send formal notice to-morrow," is not a notice of discontinuance within the Eng. R. and a fortiori not within this Rule: Moon v. Dickinson, 38 W. R. 278; 63 L. T. 371; see also Brooking v. Maudslay 55 L. T. 343.

It is not necessary for the plaintiff to ascertain the amount of defendant's costs and pay them in order to make the notice of discontinuance effectual: Barry v. Hartley, 15 P. R. 376.

Effect of discontinuance.

Effect of Discontinuance.—The Rule is express (clause 4), that by a discontinuance there is no res judicata; see also The Kronprinz, 12 App. Cas. 256 (Where the same action was revived); United Telephone Co. v. Tasker, 59 L. T. 852.

A discontinuance filed by a plaintiff has been held not to have the effect of discontinuing a counter-claim set up in the action: McGowan v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 464 (overruling Vavasseur v. Krupp, 15 Ch. D. 474); but a counter-claim which the defendant could only assert by virtue of the plaintiff's submitting to the jurisdiction and suing the defendant, will be put an end to by the plaintiff's discontinuance: Dominion Burglary Guarantee Co. v. Wood, 3 O. L. R. 365; and a discontinuance in a vendor's action for specific performance puts an end to defendant's right, if any, to move for judgment for specific performance on admissions: Lye v. McConnell, 5 O. W. R. 326; and after the action has been discontinued a counter-claim cannot be filed: The Salybia, 1910, P. 25; 101 L. T. 959.

An appeal by the plaintiff will be thereby discontinued: Conybeare v. Lewis, 13 Ch. D. 469. Where, however, a plaintiff, who had given an undertaking as to damages, discontinued his action, it was held that the Court would nevertheless direct a reference as to damages: Newcomen v. Coulson, 7 Ch. D. 764.

The discontinuance of the action is no bar to a motion by a plaintiff, whose name has been used without authority, to have his name struck out of the proceedings; and to compel the solicitor acting without authority to pay the costs: Gold Reefs of W. Australia v. Dawson, 1897, 1 Ch. 115.

Costs.

Costs.—The defendant has an absolute right to all costs of the action, and they are not in the discretion of the Judge under the Jud.

Act, s. 74; see The St. Olaf, 2 P. D. 113; The J. H. Henkes, 12 P. D. 106. The costs will includs costs made costs in the cause on an application on which the plaintiff succeeded; The St. Olaf, supra. Rule 321.

The defendant is entitled to costs though the plaintiff discontinues before appearance: Moore v. S. Counties, etc., Bank, W. N. 1889, 156.

Costs of work in preparing, briefing, or otherwise relating to affidavits, etc., properly and not prematurely done, down to the time of discontinuance, are taxable: Harrison v. Leutner, 15 Ch. D. 559.

It was formerly held that as this Rule only applies to an "action" it could not be made use of in an interpleader issue: Hogaboom v. Gillies, 15 P. R. 402. See now Jud. Act, s. 2 (a); and Bucknall v. Mitchell, supra, p. 787.

A reasonable time will be given to defendant within which to apply for an appointment to tax his costs, before an appointment will be granted to the plaintiff to tax interlocutory costs to which he may be entitled: Barry v. Hartley, 15 P. R. 876.

Where a plaintiff gives notice of discontinuance, and the defendant's costs are taxed, judgment must be signed therefor, in case of non-payment, before execution to enforce payment can be issued: see clause (2). The English practice is different: see Bolton v. Bolton, 3 Ch. D. 276.

An order of a Master which stayed an action on payment of costs, was varied by substituting the word "discontinued" for "stayed," to prevent the possibility of the action being again proceeded with: Anon, W. N. 1876, 40; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 38.

Where, on a motion under the Eng. Rule corresponding to former C. R. 503, the defendant was ordered to pay money into Court as to part of the claim, and was given leave to defend as to the remainder, and the plaintiff afterwards discontinued, the costs were held to be not governed by this Rule, but were in the discretion of the Court under Jud. Act, s. 74, and plaintiff was given costs up to the time of payment into Court: Suckling v. Gabb, 36 W. R. 175.

The rule whereby the plaintiff in a creditor's administration action is precluded from discontinuing his action after judgment does not apply to a debenture holder's action, the reason being that in a creditor's action the Court, by directing in the judgment that the estate shall be applied in due course of administration, takes upon itself the duty of administering the assets, whereas no such direction is contained in the usual judgment in a debenture holder's action: Re Alpha Co., 1903, 1 Ch. 203; and see Re Ritz & New Hamburg, 4 O. L. R. 639, supra, p. 440.

Discontinuance by Leave.—In a test action, the plaintiff asked for a postponement of the trial, or that an order for discontinuance might be made; the Court held it could not regard the rights of the plaintiffs in the other actions, but must act as if the plaintiff had not appeared at the trial, and dismissed the action: Robinson v. Chadwick, 7 Ch. D. 878. Discontinuance by leave.

Where a case had been referred to arbitration, and the arbitrator found in favour of defendant as to all but a small part, leave to discontinue was refused: Stahlschmidt v. Walford, 4 Q. B. D. 217; see also Matthews v. Antrobus, 40 L. J. Chy. 80.

Leave to discontinue is only granted on payment of the costs: The J. H. Henkes, 12 P. D. 106. Costs on discontinuance.

Rules 322, 323.

On a motion for leave to discontinue, tha Court haa no jurisdiction to give the plaintiff any costs where the defence, if undisputed, or if it were eatahliahed, would diaantitle tha plaintiff to maintain the action: Lambton v. Porkinson, 35 W. R. 545; aee also Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. D. 76.

Tha Court may impoae terma that no other action shnll be brought for tha same causa, as a condition of granting leave to discontinue: Schlund v. Foster, 44 C. L. J. 116.

Where this is done, the order will in effect constitute a bar to any further claim in respect to the matter in question by the plaintiff in any collatoral proceedings: see Re Woodhouse, 5 O. W. N. 148.

It has been held that, on the application of a plaintiff admitting the defence a Judge, under this Rule, haa jurisdiction to order a atay of all proceedinga, and to dispose of tha costs: Musmon v. Boret, 66 L. T. 171; 40 W. R. 352; Armstrong v. Armstrong, 9 O. L. R. 14.

Whare the action ia against two defendanta jointly, each defendant ia entitled to notice of a motion to diacontinua against either of them even though interlocutory judgment may have heen signed against one of them: Jennings v. Cripps (Divisional Court, 14 Nov., 1904).

Withdrawal of defence.

322. A defendant may withdraw his defence or any part thereof, by written notiee filed and served. C.R. 431.

See Eng. (1883) R. 290.

One of the defendants, in an action for the recovery of land, was nllowed to withdraw hia defence after the action had been in the paper for trial, hut had heen postponed till another action relating to tha same property should be ready for trial, upon tha terms of giving to the plaintiffs all the relief to which they could be entitled at the trial, and paying the coata occaaioned by the defence, and the coata of a summons for leave to withdraw: Reol & Personal Advance Co. v. McCorthy, 14 Ch. D. 188. The costa only which were occasioned exclusively by the defence were allowed: Ib.

A defence put in fraudulently, and without authority, was allowed to be withdrnwn: Willioms v. Preston, 20 Ch. D. 672.

As to withdrawal of defence of infanta, see Fitzwoter v. Waterhouse, 52 L. J. Chy. 83; Gardner v. Topling, 33 W. R. 473.

(v) Dismissal of Actions for want of Prosecution.

On failure to deliver statement of claim.

323. If the plaintiff, being bound to deliver a statement of elaim, does not deliver the same within the time allowed for that purpose, at the expiration of such time the action may be dismissed for want of prosecution. C.R. 432.

See the Eng. (1883), R. 294.

Dismissal for want of prosecution.

Rule 110 regulatea the time within which the plaintiff is bound to delivar his statement of claim, viz., one month after appearance, or, where there is more than one defendant, within a month from the last appearance, or from the time the last appearance should have been entered.

"Tha expiration of such time": sea Armstrong v. Toronto, etc., Ry., 15 P. R. 449, in note to Rules 110 and 176. Rule 323.

Tha application to dismiss for want of prosecution is made in Chambers. Tha application may be supported by an affidavit that a statement of claim has not been delivered, and a certificate of the officer, in whose office the action is, of tha state of the cause. Dismissal for want of prosecution.

Whera tha plaintiff made default in delivering his claim, and had become bankrupt, it was held that notice of motion to dismiss under this Rule must be served upon the trustee in bankruptcy: Wright v. Swindon Ry. Co., 4 Ch. D. 164.

And whera a plaintiff, suing on behalf of himself and all other creditors of the defendant, makes an assignment for tha benefit of creditors wharehy his interest in the subject matter of the action vests in the assignee, tha defendant may move to dismiss for want of prosecution in default of the assignee obtaining an order under Rule 301 to continue the proceedings: Wolff v. Von Boolen, 94 L. T. 502.

In Higginbottom v. Aynsley, 3 Ch. D. 288, on a motion to dismiss under this Rule, Hall V.C., gave a week's time to take further proceedings, observing that each case must depend upon its own merits. The plaintiff was ordered to pay tha costs of the motion. Probably tha plaintiff will in general ha given a short further time upon payment of costs.

Some only of tha defendants cannot have tha action dismissed, if, for sufficient reasons, proceedings against other defendants hava haen delayed, and the applicant ought probably to apply to tha plaintiff's solicitor for information as to the state of the cause against the other defendants: Foley v. Lee, 12 P. R. 371: sea Ambroise v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D. 759.

A defendant can only have the action dismissed as against himself: Word v. Word, 11 Beav. 159.

It has been said that if a plaintiff desires to avoid the cost of the hearing of the motion he should tander to tha defendant tha costs of the notice, and giva the usual undertaking to go on: Evelyn v. Evelyn, 13 Ch. D. 138; Freason v. Loe, 26 W. R. 138; hut this is not the practice in Ontario, even whera the motion to dismiss is merely for a default under this Rule: see note to Rule 325 (1). Tha filing of a statement of claim is no answer to a motion to dismiss: Napanee Tamworth, etc., Ry. Co. v. McDonell, 10 P. R. 525, if the time for filing it had expired when the notice of motion was given: see Rule 110. Undertaking to proceed.

Where, before statement of claim, an action was stayed until the plaintiff should give security for costs, and the time for delivery of a statement of claim expired without security having been given, it was held that tha stay did not prevent the action from being dismissed under this Rule: La Gronge v. McAndrew, 4 Q. B. D. 210. Default in giving security for costs.

A plaintiff was allowed to file a statement of claim after nine years' delay, it being shewn that tha delay was owing to the defendant being financially worthless: Finkle v. Lutz, 14 P. R. 446. Further time allowed.

Where the plaintiff set up a compromise, as a ground for not proceeding, and tha defendant disputed it, the question of settlement was ordered to he tried: Rees v. Corruthers, 17 P. R. 51.

Rule 323.

Where, after the time for delivering a statement of claim had elapsed, an order had been made dismissing an action unless a statement of claim should be delivered within a week, and this was not done, it was held that the action was at an end, the order having neither been complied with, nor appealed against, and an order could not afterwards be made extending the time for delivering the statement: Whistler v. Hancock, 3 Q. B. D. 83; see also King v. Davenport, 4 Q. B. D. 402; and Hollender v. Foulkes, 16 P. R. 225. But if an order to dismiss is made, further time may be given for appealing against that order: Burke v. Rooney, 4 C. P. D. 226; Carter v. Stubbs, 6 Q. B. D. 116; or if the time has not expired, so that the action is not gone, there is jurisdiction to vary or rescind the order for dismissal on proper grounds: Welply v. Buhl, 3 Q. B. D. 80, 253; Carter v. Stubbs, supra. In Newcombe v. McLuhan, 11 P. R. 461, the above cases were considered, and it was held that after the action stood dismissed for failure to file a statement of claim by the time named, and judgment was signed dismissing the action, an order could be made under Rule 176 to vacate the judgment, and further extend the time for delivering the statement of claim. See also notes to Rule 176, and Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347.

Final order of dismissal.

Where an order is made dismissing an action unless a statement of claim be delivered within a time named, it has been the practice in Ontario to obtain a further order ex parte dismissing the action, showing that the previous order has not been complied with: see Burns v. Chisholm, 2 Chy. Ch. 88; but doubt has been cast upon the propriety, or at any rate the necessity, of that course: Hollender v. Foulkes, 16 P. R. 225.

It would seem that an order dismissing an action does not take effect until it is drawn up and served; and that the action under the English practice is not dead until that is done: Metcalf v. British Tea Association, 46 L. T. 31; but see Script Phonography v. Gregg, 59 L. J. Ch. 406.

As to the effect of a peremptory order requiring plaintiff to proceed within a named time, see Holdcraft v. Lorandes, 27 Sol. Jour. 296; Falck v. Axthelm, 24 Q. B. D. 174; Cox v. Holmon, 25 L. J. N. C. 115.

Where an order was made dismissing an action in the event of the plaintiff not complying with an undertaking, it was held that on default the order was absolute, and no further order was necessary: Crown Corundum Co. v. Logan, 3 O. L. R. 434 (but the Divisional Court, though affirming the order, declined to deal with that point): Ib., and it would probably in such a case be safe to obtain a final order.

The plaintiff sued the indorser of a bill of exchange. The debt was afterwards paid by the acceptor, and the indorser applied to dismiss the action for want of prosecution. Lindley, J., said, "I shall certainly not let the action go on simply to determine who is to pay the coats. All further proceedings in the action to be stayed, the defendant to pay the costs of the writ": Anon., W. N. 1876, 37; see also Elliott v. Gardner, 8 P. R. 409; Wallace v. Ford, 1 Chy. Ch. 282.

Though no motion to dismiss is made, the plaintiff cannot after the time limited by Rule 110 has expired regularly proceed without leave: see note to Rule 110; but the former practice requiring a Term's notice to be given, where a year has elapsed without a proceeding having been taken, is not continued under The Judicature Act: Beaver v. Boardman, 9 P. R. 239. For a similar restriction upon moving for judgment: see Rule 357. Rules 324, 325.

In England a formal judgment for defendant's costs is signed upon the order for dismissal: Chitty Forms, 189; but in this Province the costs may be recovered under the Judge's order: see Rule 3 (g).

An action may also be dismissed for not duly proceeding to trial: see Rule 325 (1).

Effect of Dismissal.—The dismissal of an action for want of prosecution is not necessarily a bar to a subsequent action in respect of the same matter: Re Orrell Colliery & Firebrick Co., 12 Ch. D. 681; Fyrne v. Frere, 2 Moll. 180; Roberts v. Lucas, 11 P. R. 3; though made on consent, unless the order is made upon a compromise of the cause of action: Magnus v. National Bank of Scotland, 36 W. R. 603; 58 L. T. 617; but the plaintiff is liable to be called on for security for costs in the second action, if the costs of the first are not paid: see Rule 373. Effect of dismissal for want of prosecution.

The Court may examine the pleadings, and evidence and proceedings at the trial of a former action, and the reports of the reasons given for the judgment, to ascertain what was decided. The dismissal of an action, on the ground that it was prematurely brought, is no bar to another action when time has removed the objection: Barber v. McCuaig (2), 81 Ont. 598.

Notwithstanding an action is dismissed the Court has still jurisdiction to determine to whom money paid into Court pending the proceedings, should be paid out: Wright v. Mitchell, 18 Ves. 292; Wynne v. Jackson, 2 Russ. 351; Brown v. Feeney, 1906, 1 K. B. 563; 94 L. T. 460.

See Sutton v. Huggins, W. N. 1875, 235.

324. In actions to be tried without a jury at Toronto, if the plaintiff does not set down the action for trial within six weeks after the pleadings are closed and proceed to trial as provided in Rule 250, the action may be dismissed for want of prosecution. C.R. 434. Non-jury cases, York.

See notes to Rule 325 (1).

Default must be made both in setting down, and proceeding to trial under Rule 25' before a motion to dismiss can be made: Toronto Type Foundry Co. v. Tuckett, 17 P. R. 538.

325.—(1) In all other actions if the pleadings are closed six weeks before the commencement of any sittings for which the plaintiff might give notice of trial, and he does not give notice of trial therefor and enter the action for trial, the action may be dismissed for want of prosecution. C. R. 433. On failure to give notice of trial.

(2) Where there are separate sittings for the trial of actions with and without a jury the plaintiff shall not be considered in default for failure to enter a non-jury action at the jury sittings. New.

See Eng. (1883) R. 38.

Rule 324 deals with Toronto actions, this Rule applies to all other actions.

The six weeks is not a time limited for "doing any act" within Rule 176. It, therefore, cannot be abridged under that Rule, and the lapse of this period is an absolute condition precedent to the right of the defendant to give notice of motion to dismiss for want of prosecution: see Saunders v. Pawley, 14 Q. B. D. 234; unless the plaintiff, on asking an indulgence, has been put on terms.

A defendant need not wait until the time for the plaintiff to give notice of trial has expired under this Rule, but may, if he chooses, himself give notice of trial after the close of the pleadings: Rule 246, and may in that way have the action tried on the merits, instead of moving to dismiss it for want of prosecution.

There is a continuing duty on the plaintiff's part to give notice of trial until the case is tried; hence, although he has given a notice, but the trial, for some reason, is postponed, the defendant may move to dismiss under this Rule if the plaintiff makes default in giving notice of trial for any subsequent sittings for trial: Chapman v. Smith, 32 C. P. 555; Hibernian Bank v. Hughes, 10 L. R. Ir. 15.

Remanet.

Where a case is made a remanet, a further notice of trial must be given under Rule 252, except in non-jury actions to be tried in Toronto. A case was held to be a remanet where, by verbal order at the trial, it was "postponed till the Autumn Assizes"; Donovan v. Boulibee, 10 P. R. 52.

Where new trial ordered.

Where a new trial has been ordered, and the plaintiff does not give notice of trial pursuant to this Rule, a motion in Chambers to dismiss for want of prosecution is the course for defendant to pursue; or he may himself give notice of trial: Diamond Harrow Co. v. Stone, 7 O. W. R. 685; the Court which ordered the new trial has no jurisdiction in the matter: Roberts v. French, 14 R. 210; 72 L. T. 147; 43 W. R. 258.

For what sittings notice to be given.

Where a case is to be tried without a jury, and two Spring or Autumn Sittings are appointed at the place of trial, one for jury, and the other for non-jury cases, the plaintiff may give notice of trial for either Sittings, but is not in default under this Rule by reason of his not giving notice of trial for the earlier Sittings, if it is not the non-jury Sittings: Leyburn v. Knoke; Leyburn v. Herbert, 17 P. R. 410.

Pleadings not closed.

Where one of several defendants in an action has delivered his defence, and the time for the plaintiff to deliver his reply to such defence has expired, but the plaintiff has, without the knowledge of that defendant, agreed in writing with the other defendants to extend the time for delivering their defences, that defendant cannot move to dismiss the action as against him for want of prosecution, the pleadings not yet being "closed"; and it was said that a defendant's proper course is to write to the plaintiff's solicitor, and inquire how the action stands as regards the other defendants: Ambroise v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D. 759.

Terms imposed.

On a motion to dismiss, or that the plaintiff give security for costs, an order was made for the plaintiff to give security for costs, and staying proceedings in the meantime: Wilmott v. Freehold, etc., 29 Sol. Jour. 385; 33 W. R. 554; 52 L. T. 743; and see Rule 374. Rule 326.

Where an action was ordered to be dismissed unless notice of trial was given by a specified time, and by mistake of the solicitor's clerk notice was not given, a Judge refused to extend the time, and the Divisional Court refused to interfere: Gilder v. Morrison, 30 W. R. 915.

An order that the action be dismissed unless notice of trial be given, and action entered for trial within a certain time, was made in Sievier v. Spearman, 74 L. T. 132.

In cases where equitable relief is granted upon a condition which the plaintiff fails to comply with, the action may be dismissed, even after judgment: Hayes v. Elmsley, 30 C. L. J. 574.

On motion to dismiss, some excuse must be given for the default, the sufficiency of which will depend upon the circumstances of each case. Chy. Gen. Order 276 was held to be applicable to such motions: Bucke v. Murray, 9 P. R. 495; and though that Order is not expressly continued in the Rules the practice originated under it and acted upon under the original Rules will probably be held to apply. That Gen. Order was as follows: Motions to dismiss.

"276. Where a defendant is entitled to give notice to dismiss, it is not to be sufficient answer to the motion for the plaintiff, after being served with the notice, to take out and serve an order for amending the bill or to file a replication, or undertake to speed the cause: but it shall be necessary for the plaintiff to shew that he has prosecuted the suit with diligence, or that under all the circumstances the bill should not be dismissed." Chy. Order 276.

Though an undertaking to speed the cause is therefore not a sufficient answer to a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution (though it is otherwise in England: Evelyn v. Evelyn, 13 Ch. D. 138; Freason v. Loe, 26 W. R. 138), it is still discretionary with the Judge to say whether, under all the circumstances, the action should be dismissed: Bucke v. Murray, supra. See also Nopanee, Tomworth, etc., Ry. v. McDonnell, 10 P. R. 525; Carter v. Barker, 11 P. R. 1. Undertaking to speed not an answer to motion.

The former decisions under the Chancery practice will therefore probably serve as authorities as to what is a sufficient excuse: see cases in Robinson & Joseph's Digest, pp. 2922, et seq.; Finnegan v. Keenan, 7 P. R. 385; and as to what amounts to waiver of objection to the delay: Cotton v. Rodgers, 7 P. R. 423; see also Miles v. Roe, 20 C. L. J. 113; 10 P. R. 218.

Where the action was brought on a ground for which no action lay, the plaintiff being in default under this Rule, indulgence was refused, and the action dismissed: Clarke v. Creighton, 13 P R. 113.

326.—(1) When an action has been discontinued or dismissed for want of prosecution a defendant who has counter-claimed may, if he so elects, proceed with the trial of his counter-claim, and if he elects to proceed he shall give notice of his election within 10 days after the discontinuance or dismissal of the action, and the counter-claim shall then be liable to dismissal for want of prosecution for failure to proceed to trial. Counter-claim may be proceeded with after discontinuance, or dismissal of action.

Rule 336.

(2) In default of such election the counter-claim shall on the discontinuance or dismissal of the action be regarded as dismissed without costs. New.

This Rule only applies to a counter-claim filed before an action has been dismissed, or discontinued; in that case, notwithstanding the dismissal or discontinuance, the counter-claim may be prosecuted: it does not enable a defendant to file a counter-claim after an action has been dismissed, or discontinued: see The Solybio, 1910, P. 25; 101 L. T. 959.

(vi) Examination for Discovery.

Discovery.

An action for discovery may still be brought, where necessary, but it can rarely now be necessary. As an aid to an action in Ontario, it will seldom be necessary, as discovery may under the Rules be obtained in such action; an action for discovery in aid of proceedings in a foreign Court will not lie: Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 41 Ch. D. 151.

The following are instances of actions for discovery: Ainsworth v. Starkie, W. N. 1876, 8; Reiner v. Salisbury, 2 Ch. D. 378; Orr v. Diaper, 4 Ch. D. 92.

In an action by the Attorney-General at the suit of a relator, the Crown, represented by the Attorney-General, has the same right of discovery as a subject has in an ordinary action: Atty.-Gen. v. Newcastle, 1897, 2 Q. B. 384; but the Crown is not bound to give discovery: Ib. See note to Rules 5 (2), and 744.

In general, discovery is obtained by interlocutory proceedings, as ancillary to the main object of an action, but an action for discovery may, in a proper case, still be brought: Orr v. Diaper, 4 Ch. D. 92; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644. For the grounds of objection to such an action: see Maddock's Chy. Pr., 3rd ed., 268.

Discovery General Rules.

The methods prescribed by the Rules for obtaining discovery are: Firstly, by examination of the adverse party, and, in the case of a corporation, of their officers or servants: Rules 327-337; Secondly, by the production under oath for inspection of the documents in the possession of the adverse party: Rules 348-353; Thirdly, in actions to recover damages for personal injury, by an examination by a duly qualified medical practitioner of the injured person: Jud. Act, s. 70; and Fourthly, by the inspection by the party and his witnesses of any real or personal property, the inspection of which may be material to the proper determination of the question in dispute: Rules 266, 370.

The Judicature Act has made no alteration in the right of the parties to discovery by examination: see Atty.-Gen. v. Gaskill, 20 Ch. D. 519; also Hunnings v. Williamson, 10 Q. B. D. 459; see also Jones v. Jones, 22 Q. B. D. 425; Martin v. Treacher, 16 Q. B. D. 507; Malcolm v. Race, 16 P. R. 330; Whiteley v. Borley, 56 L. J. Q. B. 312; Derbyshire v. Mayor of Derby, 1896, 2 Q. B. 53, 297; 74 L. T. 747; 77 L. T. 107; Johnston v. London and Paris Exchange, 6 O. L. R. 49.

Where no right to discovery.

Therefore there is no right to examine a defendant for discovery in an action touching an alleged champertous agreement: Welbourne v. Can. Pac. Ry. Co., 16 P. R. 343; nor in an action for criminal conversation with the plaintiff's wife: Mulholland v. Miscner, 17 P. R. 132; Taylor v. Neil, Ib. 134; Fleury v. Campbell, 18 P. R. 110; (though an examination was allowed on a claim for damages for alienation of the affections and loss of the society of the wife in Taylor v. Neil, supra); but see Leitis v. Lambert, 24 Ont. App. p. 664, and Fleury v. Campbell, supra; nor in an action against a tenant for double rent, or double value, under The Landlord and Tenant Act (R. S. O. c. 155), ss. 57, 58: Hobbs v. Hudson, 25 Q. B. D. 232; 62 L. T. 764; 63 L. T. 215; nor in an action based on a forfeiture, or an alleged forfeiture: Mexborough v. Whitwood, etc., 1897, 2 Q. B. 111; 76 L. T. 765. overruling Seaward v. Dennington, 44 W. R. 696; nor in an action under the Imp. Trada Mark Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 57), s. 58, which imposes the forfeiture of a sum not exceeding £50, to the ragistered proprietors for each offence, to be recovered as a simpla contract debt: Saunders v. Wiel, 1892, 2 Q. B. 18, 321; or generally in an action for penalties: Hunnings v. Williamson, ana other cases supra; Rose v. Croden, 3 O. L. R. 383; nor in an action for extra tolls under Tha Timber Slide Companies Act (R. S. O. c. 181), s. 34, which is an action for penalties: Pickerel, etc., Co. v. Moore, 17 P. R. 287; sea also Pickerel R. Imp. Co. v. C. Beck, &c., Co., 5 O. W. R. 183; hut in an action to recover a penalty for violation of The Alien Labour Act (R. S. C. c. 97), The Canada Evidence Act (R. S. C. c. 145), s. 2, was haid (Rose, J., dissenting), to authorize examination for discovery: Reg. v. Fox, 18 P. R. 343. Neither can discovery ha had in an action to recover damages, on the ground that tha defendant had bean guilty of maintenance: Hopkins v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 659. Sea also Johnston v. London & Paris Exchange in note to Rule 349. Rule 327.

But an action for the amount payahle under The Copyright Act, 1842, for each representation of a copyright musical puhlication wae held not to he an action for penalties (such amounts being fixed hy way of compensation to the plaintiff), and therefore discovery was allowed: Adams v. Bailey, 18 Q. B. D. 625. Discovery may also ha had in an action for an injunction, though the defendant may incur a liability for a penalty, in the event of disobedience of the injunction: The Derbyshire County Council v. Derby, 1897, A. C. 550; 74 L. T. 747; 77 L. T. 107.

Under The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 7. no person is excused from answering queations which may tend to criminate him, or which may tand to establish his liability to a civil proceeding at tha instanca of the Crown, or of any person, and tha effect of this proviaion is to take away the priviiege which formerly existed on that ground: Chambers v. Jaffray, 12 O. L. R. 377.

Examination for discovery.

327.—(1) A party to an action whether plaintiff or defendant, may, without order, be orally examined before tho trial touching the matters in question by any party adverse in interest, and may be compelled to attend and testify in the same manner, upon the same terms, and subject to the same rules of examination as a witness except as hereinafter provided.

Where discovery from a corporation is sought.

(2) In the case of a Corporation any officer or servant of such Corporation may, without order, be orally examined before the trial touching the matters in question by any party adverse in interest to the Corporation, and may be compelled to attend and testify in the same manner and upon the same terms and subject to the same rules of examination as a witness except as hereinafter provided; but such examination shall not be used as evidence at the trial.

(3) After the examination of an officer or servant of a Corporation a party shall not be at liberty to examine any other officer or servant without an order. C.R. 439 and 1250.

Since Rule 327 (2), a past officer (formerly examinable), cannot be examined: Cantin v. The News, 8 O. L. R. 531, and besides an "officer" (alone, formerly examinable), a "servant" may now be examined: see formerly Morrison v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 5 O. L. R. 38.

Scope of Rule.—The right to examine under this Rule does not extend to actions in which there is no right to discovery: see note preceding Rule 327.

An action for recovery of land is not one of the exceptions. The defendant in such an action is liable to be examined by the plaintiff for discovery: Lyell v. Kennedy, 8 App. Cas. 217; 48 L. T. 585; reversing S. C., 20 Ch. D. 484; 46 L. T. 752; and see under the dissimilar Eng. Rule, Phillips v. Phillips, 40 L. T. 821; and the fact that a defendant pleads that he is a "purchaser for value without notice" affords no ground for resisting discovery: Ind v. Emmerson, 56 L. T. 778; although this was formerly a good plea to a bill for discovery. An examination for discovery may be had in an action for breach of promise of marriage: McLaughlin v. Carroll, 4 C. L. T. 498; and see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 11; and in an interpleader issue: Canada Perm. B. S. v. Forest, 6 P. R. 254; and see White v. Watts, 31 L. J. C. P. 381.

"Action or Issue."—A petition authorized under the Rules would appear to be an "action": see Jud. Act, s. 2, and Re Credit Co., 11 Ch. D. 256; Re Haddan's Patent, 51 L. T. 190; also interpleader proceedings.

"Before the Trial."—These words do not prevent the examination of a party after a trial which proves abortive, by reason of disagreement of the jury, and before a second trial, if the party has not already been examined. Such a trial is not a trial within the meaning of this Rule: Clarke v. Rutherford, 1 O. L. R. 275.

Who may be examined.

Parties Adverse in Interest.—Under the Eng. (1883) R. 343, providing for the examination of the "opposite party or parties," it has been held that a party added by the defendant in a counterclaim, is not an opposite party as regards the plaintiff: Molloy v. Kilby, 15 Ch. D. 162; but see Bradley v. Clark, 9 P. R. 410; 19 C. L. J. 193. But a third party, who has been notified by the defendant under Rule 165, and has appeared and obtained leave to defend, is entitled to examine the plaintiff in the same manner as an original defendant: McAllister v. Bishop of Rochester, 5 C. P. D. 194; Eden v. Weardale Iron Co., 34 Ch. D. 223; and the plaintiff is entitled to examine him: Bradley v. Clark, 9 P. R. 410; 19 C. L. J. 193.

An official liquidator, as an officer of the Court, cannot be called upon to make discovery, unless he is representatively in the position of an adverse litigant to the party requiring discovery: Henderson v. Rule 327.

A defendant who has not appeared, and to whom e statemsnt of claim has not been delivered, is examinable by the plaintiff: Bulst v. Currie, 33 C. L. J. 622; 17 C. L. T. 335; but he was formerly not entitled to examine the plaintiff: see Askley v. Brenton, 13 P. R. 98; but owing to the variation in the present Rule 336 it is possible that case is no longer law.

If the issues between co-defendants are material to the case of the plaintiff, or to the character of the relief he seeks, he may examin a defendant upon them, though there is no issue between the defendant and himself: Alexander v. Diamond, 9 P. R. 274. A defendant whose interest is identical with that of the plaintiff is a party adverse in point of interest to his co-defendant, and may be examined by such co-defendent; (sed vide, contra, Birchal v. Birch, 1913, 2 Ch. 375); and, where the plaintiff's solicitor is present at such examination, the depositions may be read against the plaintiff: Moore v. Boyd, 8 P. R. 413. A disclaiming defendant charged with complicity in a fraud was held to be properly questioned as to the fraud: McFarland v. McFarland, 9 P. R. 73.

A necessary party to an action may be examined for discovery, though no relief is asked against him: Spokes v. The Grosvenor & W. E. R. T. Hotel, 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 679.

The plaintiffs on the record must be taken to be the parties conducting the litigation, and therefore a member of a plaintiff firm is examinable by a defendent, though he was admittedly not in favour of the action: Howes Gibson Co. v. Howes, 2 O. W. N. 1345, 1391.

Infants.—As a general rule an infant suing by next friend may Infants. in the absence of special incapacity, be examined for discovery before trial in the same way as an adult: Arnold v. Ployter, 14 P. R. 399; distinguishing Moyor v. Collins, 24 Q. B. D. 361; approved in Flett v. Coulter, 4 O. L. R. 714; see also Curtis v. Mundy, 1892, 2 Q. B. 178.

An order for the examination of an infant for discovery should not give the examiner discretion to determine the capacity of the infant. The proper mode of raising the question as to the infant's capacity is by motion to set aside the appointment, or if there is not time for that, then upon a motion to commit for non-attendance, so that the question may be considered by the Court itself: Flett v. Coulter, 4 O. L. R. 714.

The next friend of a party is not "a party," and formerly could not Next friend.
be examined for discovery: Vono v. Canadian Cotton Mills, 13 O. L. R. 421; and see note to Rule 348, p. 827; but now he is liable to be examined for discovery: see Rule 332.

Officers, etc., of Corporations.—Under the present Ont. Rule 327 one present officer, or servent, of a company party may be examined without special order. If on his examination it turns out that he does not possess the necessary information, leave to examine others may be applied for; and it is altogether within the discretion of the Court whether another officer, or servent, should be examined: see clause (2); Dawson v. London St. Ry., 18 P. R. 223.

Rule 327.

it is reasonable and convenient that the corporation should suggest for examination the officer or servant best qualified to give the desired information, who should prepare himself by obtaining knowledge of all relevant facts: Clorkson v. Bank of Hamilton, 9 O. L. R. 317.

Where the plaintiff sued "T. Tanners' Association," a syndicate, not incorporated, made up of a number of trading partnerships and incorporated companies, and one of the companies appeared and defended in its own name, "sued as the Tanners' Association," it was held that the agent of the syndicate could not be examined as an officer of the Association, because it was not a corporation, nor of the company defending, because he was not its officer: Ahrens v. Tanners' Association, 6 O. L. R. 63.

An auditor may, or may not, be an officer of a company. Prima facie he is not: Re Western Cos., etc., Co., 45 W. R. 418.

An attorney appointed by a foreign corporation to represent it in Ontario in compliance with The Extra Provincial Corporations Act (R. S. O. c. 179), s. 10 (1), is liable to examination under this Rule as an officer of the corporation: McNeil v. Lewis, 16 O. L. R. 652.

The head of a municipal council is the only member of the council liable to examination for discovery under this Rule: Davies v. Sovereign Bank, 12 O. L. R. 557.

An officer of a Board of Commissioners appointed under a by-law of a municipality to manage Electric Light Works, was held to be examinable as a servant of the municipality: Young v. Gravenhurst, 2 O. W. N. 118.

The Medical Health Officer of a municipality has been held not to be an officer examinable: Coleman v. Toronto, 15 P. R. 27, 125; Forsyth v. Cassiff, 29 Ont. 478 (except when the corporation is being sued in respect of anything done by such officer: Coleman v. Toronto, supra; Odell v. Ottawa, 12 P. R. 446); nor surveyors usually employed by a municipality, but not formally appointed officers thereof: Meek v. Yarmouth, 9 C. L. T. 373.

In the case of a society which consisted of a head office, called the "Head Camp," and a number of local branches, called "subordinate camps," the clerk of a subordinate camp was held to be an officer of the society and examinable: Readhead v. Woodmen of the World, 9 O. L. R. 321.

Under the former practice an order was made to examine an architect of defendants, in an action for price of work and materials in erecting a building, where defendants themselves could give no information: Smith v. Clarke, 12 P. R. 217; and a local agent of an insurance company who procured the application for the insurance in question in the action: Hartsell v. Canada Mutual Aid Co., 12 P. R. 401; Goring v. London Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 10 P. R. 642.

An officer of a company called as a witness at the first trial of an action may, pending a second trial, be examined under this Rule: see Leitch v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 671.

An objection that the person sought to be examined is not an officer, should be taken at the outset when it is sought to examine him, and cannot be taken on taxation only: Township of Logan v. Kirk, 14 P. R. 130.

Where a corporation tenders one of its officers who is a solicitor, to make discovery on its behalf, the privilege of a solicitor cannot be claimed, secus, where the opposite party selects such person for examination: Swansea v. Quirk, 5 C. P. D. 106; Solford v. Lever, 24 Q. B. D. 695. Rule 337.

As to the time for making the examination: see Rule 336.

An order for the examination of an officer residing in a foreign country of a foreign corporation which had attorned to the jurisdiction, was refused: Perrins v. Algoma, etc., 8 O. L. R. 634. Officer of a foreign corporation.

An application, pending an examination of an officer of a defendant corporation, to examine another servant of the defendant corporation was refused: Hees v. Ontario Wind Engine Co., 44 C. L. J. 744.

And where, in an accident case, the plaintiff examined the conductor of the car on which the accident took place, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to examine another servant of the defendant company who had seen the accident: Lange v. Toronto & York Radial Ry., 5 O. W. N. 64.

How Attendance Procured.—See Rules 337, 345-347.

Ordinarily an appointment is obtained from the Examiner: Rule 337, and a copy served on the solicitor of the party required to be examined seven days before the day fixed for the examination, the ordinary witness fees being also left with him at the same time. Attendance for examination, how obtained.

In the case of a party no subpœna is necessary. Where the person to be examined is not a party to the action, then the appointment together with a subpœna: Rule 345 (2), must be personally served, and the ordinary witness fees tendered to the person to be examined. In this case the appointment must also be served on the solicitor of the opposite party forty-eight hours before the time fixed for the examination: McMurray v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 Chy. Ch. 130; Vardon v. Vardon, 7 P. R. 436. A subpœna dated prior to the time when the party issuing it was entitled to examine the person served therewith, is irregular: McMurray v. Grand Trunk Ry., supra. The solicitor of the opposite party should always be served with a copy of the examiner's appointment: Fowler v. Boulton, 12 Gr. 437.

The solicitor of the party to be examined is entitled to forty-eight hours, notice of the examination: Rule 346, but the party himself, where he has a solicitor, is only entitled to reasonable notice according to circumstances: Wilson v. Cowan, 19 C. L. J. 140; 3 C. L. T. 216; Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388; see Re N. Wheal Exmouth Mining Co., 31 Beav. 628; and Lynskey v. Can. Pacific Ry. Co., 4 C. L. T. 93; but where a party who has no solicitor is required to attend, he should have forty-eight hours' notice: Watson v. Ham, 1 Chy. Ch. 293.

Semble, where a party to an action is required to be examined, two courses are open, he may be served with the appointment, and paid his witness fees, by delivering the same to his solicitor; if this method is adopted the service must be effected seven days before the day fixed for the examination. The other course is to serve the party personally with the appointment (which must also be served on his solicitor), and pay him his witness fees, in which case it is sufficient if the service on the solicitor is effected forty-eight hours, and on the client a reasonable time, before the time fixed for the examination.

Rule 327.

Where the party to be examined is a resident out of the jurisdiction: see infra, and Rule 328.

Where a party is subpœnaed, with others, for examination at the same hour, he is bound to wait until he can be examined, and, if he depart before examination, he may be ordered to attend again at his own expense: Campbell v. Scott, 5 O. L. R. 233. Where a party attends voluntarily for examination and submits to be sworn, he cannot refuse to answer proper questions because he has not been subpœnaed: Cooke v. Wilson, 3 O. L. R. 299.

Service on the solicitor of a corporation is not sufficient service on the officer sought to be examined; and an order will not be made for substitutional service upon an officer of a litigant corporation, of the subpœna and appointment: Mills v. Mercer Co., 15 P. R. 276.

Abandonment of order.

A party taking out an order to examine and failing to appear on an appointment thereunder, loses the benefit of the order, and must obtain a new one: Ferguson v. Elliott, 7 P. R. 7. When an examination is adjourned sine die, re-service of an appointment and payment of conduct money is necessary in order to compel attendance: Whitehead v. Harte (Mr. Dalton, 22nd June, 1882), Globe.

Adjournment of examination.

So, where an examination is adjourned for further production of documents disclosed on the examination, the party to be examined is entitled to further witness fees for attendance on a subsequent day: Chamberlain v. Thwaite, 11 C. L. T. 53; and he is compellable to re-attend upon being paid his proper fees, although he has signed the depositions, and does not consent to the adjournment: Re Metropolitan Brush Co., 51 L. T. 816; 54 L. J. Chy. 253.

Parties out of Ontario.

Party Out of Ontario.—Where a party to be examined is resident out of Ontario, even though temporarily within Ontario, he can only be examined pursuant to a special order made under Rule 328: Connolly v. Dowd, 18 P. R. 38; Cox v. Prior, 18 P. R. 492; he cannot be compelled to attend by being served under Rules 327, and 337, or 345, without such an order: Ib. The former cases of Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388; Smith v. Greey, 11 P. R. 345; Comstock v. Harris, 12 P. R. 17; Parker v. Meriden, 7 C. L. T. 112; are now inapplicable owing to changes in the Rules.

Where a party resided in Quebec, a subpœna requiring his attendance for examination in Ontario might formerly be ordered to issue under Con. Stat. Can., c. 79, s. 4; Moffatt v. Prentice, 6 P. R. 33; Bank of British North America v. Eddy, 19 C. L. J. 192; and see Morell v. Morrison, 6 P. R. 210; but such an order was not granted ex parte: Moffatt v. Prentice, supra; and see Dewalt v. Hughitt, 7 P. R. 323. In Lefurgey v. Great West Land Co., 11 O. L. R. 617, it was held that a subpœna cannot be granted to compel a party resident in Quebec to attend for examination for discovery; but the cases above mentioned were not referred to. Where considered necessary, an order for a subpœna may probably still be made, or contained in an order made under Rule 328, or a commission may be directed: see Stratford v. Great Western Ry. Co., 6 P. R. 91.

Ordinarily, it is probable that it will be sufficient if the order directs attendance, upon service of a copy of the order and of the appointment of the Examiner upon the solicitor of the party: see Rule 328.

The party may doubtless, as formerly, when a subpœna was granted, he compelled to attend at such place as in the opinion of the Court is most convenient, and not necessarily the nearest to his place of abode: Smith v. Babcock, 9 P. R. 97; Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 9 P. R. 396; but a defendant resident in Quebec cannot be ordered to attend in Ontario: Lefurgey v. Great West Land Co., 11 O. L. R. 617. Rule 327

A Special Examiner must, by the order, be appointed to take the examination, or a commission may be issued: Banque Franco-Egyptienne v. Lutscher, W. N. 1879, 183; 41 L. T. 468; 28 W. R. 133; see also Nadin v. Bassett, 25 Ch. D. 21; but there is no authority to proceed without an order, and by subpœna only: see Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 9 P. R. p. 399; Connolly v. Dowd, 18 P. R. 38.

Where such an order has been made, attendance will be compelled in such manner as may be directed by the order. If a commission is issued, attendance may be compelled as in the case of a commission for examination of a witness.

See also Rule 328, and notes.

Vacation.—Examinations for discovery cannot be held in the Long Vacation without leave: Rule 178. Examination in vacation.

Where a motion for an injunction is pending in vacation the Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction to authorize an examination of witnesses in support of the motion to be taken in vacation, the motion and all pertaining to it being within the jurisdiction of the Court: Saskatchewan L. & H. Co. v. Leadley (before Meredith, C.J.C.P., 11th September, 1903); but semble, the Master in Chambers, and other officers having like jurisdiction, would have jurisdiction to order an examination for discovery in vacation.

Place of Examination.—The Examination must usually be had before a Local Registrar, Local Master, or Deputy Clerk of the Crown, or Special Examiner, in the county where the party to be examined resides: Rule 345; but for special reasons, to be shewn on an application in Chambers, he may be ordered to attend elsewhere: Rule 347; Gallagher v. Gairdner, 2 Chy. Ch. 480; McDermid v. McDermid, Ib., 371; Compbell v. Tucker, 7 P. R. 135; Kahn v. Redford, 3 Chy. Ch. 55; and note as to this case Cooper's Digest, 1873, p. 111. Place of examination.

Where a plaintiff is resident out of Ontario he may be ordered to attend at some place within the jurisdiction to be examined for discovery: Lick v. Rivers, 1 O. L. R. 57; but it is otherwise in case of a defendant: Lefurgey v. Great West Land Co., 11 O. L. R. 617.

The Examination.—The Examiner's office is not a public Court, and he has a discretion which may be reviewed by the Court, as to the admission or exclusion of persons who desire to be present at an examination: Re Western of Canada O. L. & W. Co., 6 Ch. D. 109; Merchants Bank v. Ketchum, 16 P. R. 366; Wright v. Wilkin, 6 W. R. 643; see also Re Cambrian Co., 51 L. J. Chy. 221; Re Grey's Brewery Co., 25 Ch. D. 400; Pratt v. Pipe, 3 O. W. N. 214. The Examiner in his discretion may exclude the clerk of the counsel conducting the examination, if his presence is objected to, and even the examinant's own solicitor if his presence interferes, in the Examiner's opinion, with the due taking of the examination: Hand v. U. C. Furniture Co., 12 P. R. 292. Examiner's office not a public Court.

Rule 327. A defendant, who had allowed judgment to go by dsfault, was held entitled to be represented by counsel on the exnmination of his bookkseper nt the instance of a co-defendant under Rule 275; Dominion Bank v. Bell, 13 P. R. 471.

Exclusion of parties. Where several parties attend for examination, the Examiner may exclude those in the same interest, while the others are under examination: Culverwell v. Birney, 10 P. R. 575; Stevewright v. Stevewright, 8 P. R. 81; Sodlier v. Smith, 14 C. L. J. 30; but one of them should be permitted to remain for the purpose of instructing counsel, subject to his being first examined: Stevewright v. Stevewright, 8 P. R. 81; and the Examiner has a discretion as to the order of their examination, where several are in attendance for examination: Stuart v. Bolkis, 32 W. R. 676; 53 L. J. Chy. 791.

A refusal to comply with the Examiner's ruling is a contempt of Court: Sadlier v. Smith, 14 C. L. J. 30.

Producing of documents on examination. The party examined may be required to produce books and papers: Rules 341, 342, but books in constant use need not be produced until it is decided that they are necessary, when the Examiner may adjourn the examination until they are produced: Comstock v. Horris, 12 P. R. 17.

Ordinarily, any question as to whether documents are subject to production on the examination should be raised before the Examiner: Alexander v. Irondale, 18 P. R. 20; but in a proper case, such as a subpœna for the production of an enormous number of papers, amounting to an abuse of the process of the Court, a motion may be made to set aside the subpœna: Steele v. Savory, W. N. 1891, 195; 35 Sol. Jour. 92; 8 T. L. R. 94.

As to the scope of the examination: see notes to Rule 343.

Disclosure on examination. The issuing of a subpœna duces tecum as a substitute for an order for production is not to be encouraged: per Boyd, C., Lovery v. Wolfe, 10 P. R. 488; 20 C. L. J. 410.

If documents are produced, the examining party is entitled to have them marked as exhibits: Hands v. U. C. Furniture Co., 12 P. R. 292.

If the examination is unnecessary, or vexatious, or of unnecessary length, the party taking it may have to pay, or at all events be disallowed, the costs of it: Dobson v. Dobson, 7 P. R. 256; Evans v. Jaffroy, 3 O. L. R. 327; and see Rule 654.

An examination for discovery in support of a defence which is bad in law will not be allowed: Rogers v. Lambert, 24 Q. B. D. 573; 62 L. T. 694.

Fees. Where the examination is taken before a Local Registrar, or other officer paid by salary, the fees are payable in stamps: Denmark v. McConoghy, 8 P. R. 136; Jud. Act, s. 78; but officers not paid by salary are entitled to fees in money for their own use, for such examinations: Rule 773.

Disclosure on Examination.—Privilege, etc.—As to what must be disclosed, privilege, etc.: see notes to Rule 343.

On Reference to an Official Referee.—As to Discovery on proceedings before a Referee: see Rules 400, 411.

Examination for Discovery at other Times than that Mentioned in Rule.—The examination under this Rule may be had as of course within the time prescribed, but it is possible that there is inherent jurisdiction to order, where justice so requires, an examination of a party for discovery at an earlier period, or after an examination under this Rule has taken place: see Waynes Merthyr Co. v. Radford, 1896, 1 Ch. 29; 73 L. T. 624, and Thomson v. Gye, 13 P. R. 273. There does not now, however, seem to be any express Rule on the subject. It was held under the former practice that a second examination of the same party should not be allowed except under the most special circumstances: Thorburn v. Brown, 8 P. R. 114; see also Campbell v. Scott, 14 P. R. 203; and upon a special motion made on notice: Laird v. Stonley, 6 P. R. 322. But assuming that there is authority to make an order for examination for discovery at an earlier period than that mentioned in this Rule, it ought not to be made except under special circumstances: Thomson v. Gye, 13 P. R. 273, and such an order, if obtained ex parte, would be irregular: Hooey v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 114. Rule 328.

Where the pleadings have been amended raising matters not before suggested, after examination for discovery, an order may, in a proper case, be made for further examinations limited to the matter raised by the amendment: Standard Trading Co. v. Seybold, 7 O. L. R. 39.

328. Where a party to be examined is out of Ontario the Court may order the examination to be taken at such place and in such manner as may seem just and convenient, and service of the order and of all papers necessary to obtain the examination may be made on the solicitor of the party, and any conduct money may be paid to him unless the order makes other provisions therefor. C.R. 477. Amended. Examination for discovery of parties residing out of Ontario.

See notes to Rule 327.

This Rule is in terms restricted to the examination of the parties. It does not extend to the examination of officers of corporations: Perrins v. Algoma Tube Works (Limited), 8 O. L. R. 634; but it applies to the case of a party temporarily absent: Maclean v. James Bay Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 440, 495; and an order may be made for the examination of such a party at the place abroad where he may happen to be: Ib., 495.

Where a defendant resides out of Ontario, and is only in it for a temporary purpose, his attendance to be examined for discovery can only be obtained under this Rule, and not by appointment under Rule 337: Cox v. Prior, 18 P. R. 492. An order may, where convenient, be made for the examination in Ontario where the party happens to be, and such an order was made where the defendant resided in British Columbia and was temporarily in Ontario attending the House of Commons, of which he was a member: Ib.; and see Lefurgey v. Great West Land Co., 11 O. L. R. 617; the fact that a party who resides out of Ontario has business interests in Ontario, and has permanent lodgings in Ontario while there, does not necessarily constitute him a resident of Ontario: Denneen v. Walberg, 3 O. W. N. 1511. Though a defendant resident out of the jurisdiction cannot be compelled to attend for examination for discovery within the jurisdiction, it is otherwise in the case of a plaintiff: Lick v. Rivers, 1 O. L. R. 57.

Rules 329, 330.

The Court, or Judge, may take judicial notice of the geographical situation of places where examinations can be held with reference to the residence of the party to be examined, in order to fix a place which may be just and convenient: Lick v. Rivers, 1 O. L. R. 57. A local Judge of the county where the solicitors for both parties reside, has jurisdiction to make an order under this Rule: Ib.

As to parties resident in Quebec: see note to Rule 327, supra, p. 802.

The principle on which an examination of a party can be read against him is that it is an admission under oath, but that principle does not apply to the officer of a corporation.

Examination of officer of corporation out of Ontario.

329. The Court may order the examination for discovery at such place and in such manner as may be deemed just and convenient of an officer residing out of Ontario of any Corporation party to an action, and service of the order and of all papers necessary to obtain such examination may be made upon the solicitor for such party, and conduct money may be paid to him, and if the officer fails to attend and submit to such examination pursuant to such order the Corporation shall be liable if a plaintiff to have its action dismissed, and if a defendant to have its defence struck out and to be placed in the same position as if it had not defended. Such examination shall not be used in evidence at the trial. C.R. 1321.

Depositions, how may be evidence.

330. Any party may, at the trial of an action or issue, use in evidence any part of the examination of the opposite party; but the Judge may look at the whole of the examination, and if he is of opinion that any other part is so connected with the part to be so used that the last mentioned part ought not to be used without such other part, he may direct such other part to be put in evidence. C.R. 461.

See Eng. (1883) R. 366.

In the Court of Chancery of this Province, and in the Common Law Courts of both England and Ontario, a party could use no part of the examination of his opponent without using the whole. The consequence was that one of the great uses of an examination of a party (viz., the saving of expense by proving, by admission, the facts not really in dispute, was prevented), as such admissions in the examination often stood side by side with other statements which the examining party could not safely make part of his case.

The Rule only authorizes the examination for discovery to be used as evidence where it is that of "the opposite party." It does not authorize the use of the examination of any other person who is not a party, as evidence at the trial: e.g., and the evidence of an assignor of a chose in action taken under Rule 335 will not be usable against the assignee, nor will the examination "of a person for whose benefit" an action is brought or defended, taken under Rule 334, be usable against the actual parties to the action. In such cases the examination is confined to the purposes of discovery simply, and if the evidence is required at the trial, the person must be called and examined in the same way as any other witness. Rule 331.

See Lyell v. Kennedy, 50 L. T. at p. 734, in which under the corresponding English Rule it was said that when an admission is read, everything ought to be read which is fairly connected with that admission.

Where the plaintiff, without objection, put in the defendant's depositions and referred to certain parts, and the Judge in charging the jury referred to other parts, it was held that he could properly do so, as the whole depositions had been put in evidence: Dougall v. Stapleton, 12 Ont. 206.

Where the examination of a witness has been taken by a stenographer it is admissible in evidence, even though incomplete, and though, in consequence of the death of the witness, he could not be cross-examined: Rondoll v. Atkinson, 30 Ont. 242, 620; semble, the same rule would apply to an examination for discovery.

Where, after examination for discovery, the examinant dies, it has been held that his representatives continuing the action, or against whom it is continued, cannot use the deceased's examination as evidence, because the deceased if he had lived could not have used it in his own behalf: Johnson v. Birkett, 21 O. L. R. 319; Atkinson v. Cosserley, 22 O. L. R. 527; but an examination de bene esse of the deceased stands on a different footing and is admissible: see Erdmon v. Wolkerton, 20 Ont. App. 444; 23 S. C. R. 352.

The examination of an officer of a company cannot be used as evidence against the company: see Rule 329. Nor can the examination of a defendant be read against a co-defendant, unless the defendants stand in such a relation that they are bound by each other's admissions. But semble, the examination of one plaintiff can be read against his co-plaintiffs, if any.

331. Any person who refuses or neglects to attend at the time and place appointed for his examination, or refusing to be sworn or to answer any proper question put to him, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt of Court and proceedings may be forthwith had by attachment. He shall also be liable, if a plaintiff, to have his action dismissed, and if a defendant, to have his defence, if any, struck out. C.R. 454. Penalty on witness refusing to attend or answer, etc.

This Rule is confined to three classes of cases (1) refusal, or neglect, to attend for examination, (2) refusal to be sworn, (3) refusal to answer lawful questions; and it renders a wilfully disobedient defendant liable to have his defence struck out: Haigh v. Haigh, 31 Ch. D. 478; and a disobedient plaintiff to have his action dismissed: Republic of Liberia v. Imperial Bank, L. R. 9 Chy. 569; S. C., as Republic of Liberia v. Roye, 1 App. Cas. 139; Dunn v. McLeon, 6 P. R. 156; Dauvillier v. Myers, W. N. 1883, 58.

By Rule 353 a party failing to comply with a notice or order for production, or inspection of documents, is liable to similar penalties.

Where there are joint plaintiffs the action cannot be dismissed for the default of one, in such a case the defendant must proceed against the defaulting plaintiff by motion for attachment: Ferris v. McMurrich, 2 O. W. N. 770.

The party or person must have been regularly subpœnaed: McMurray v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 3 Chy. Ch. 130, and paid his witness fees: Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388, or no order can be made against him: McLean v. Bruce, 12 P. R. 602.

A party subpœnaed for examination and paid his conduct money, having been examined while others were being examined, is bound to wait for examination, and is not justified in leaving without communicating with the examiner: Campbell v. Scott, 5 O. L. R. 233.

A motion to strike out the defence, or to dismiss the action, is not the proper course, where default has been made by an officer of a company or corporation in attending for examination or in answering questions. The remedy is to commit the officer: Badgerow v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 13 P. R. 182; Central Press Association v. American Press Association, 13 P. R. 353; McWilliams v. Dickson, 10 O. L. R. 639.

Where an examination has been adjourned sine die, unless a new day has been agreed on by the solicitors in writing, there must be a new appointment served before the party under examination can be put in default: McIntosh v. Robertson, 2 O. W. N. 869.

Committal for contempt.

Motion to commit for Contempt.—It has been held that proceedings to attach must be taken before the Court, and not before a Judge in Chambers: Merchants Bank v. Pierson, 8 P. R. 123; but this decision does not seem in practice to have been adhered to in cases under this Rule. (In other cases of contempt: see Southwick v. Hare, 15 P. R. 331.) The motion is made to a Judge in Chambers in a case of non-compliance with a præcipe order, or an order in Chambers; and an application to the Court is necessary in case of breach of an order of the Court: see Klein v. Union Ins. Co., 3 C. L. T. 601, and note to Rule 207.

The Master in Chambers cannot entertain applications to commit for non-production: Rule 208 (1); Keefe v. Ward, 9 P. R. 220; 18 C. L. J. 166; 2 C. L. T. 260; neither can a Local Judge, or a Local Master: Rule 209; but semble, a Local Judge may do so when acting under Rule 210.

Proof of due service of the appointment, and payment of conduct money is necessary in all cases of motion to commit, under this Rule, and, in the case of a person not a party, proof is also necessary of service of a subpœna: see Rule 345 (2); In re Harvey, 1907, P. 239.

It is not necessary to serve, with a notice of motion to commit, copies of the affidavit upon which it is based: Hannum v. McRae, 18 P. R. 185.

The defaulting party is entitled to notice of motion to strike out the defence, or to dismiss the action, which may be served on his solicitor. Where the motion is to commit the defaulting person or party, personal service of the notice of motion is requisite, as a general rule: Rule 546; Mann v. Perry, 44 L. T. 248; 50 L. J. Chy. 251; Weir v. Matheson, 1 Chy. Ch. 244; Nelson v. Worssam, W. N. 1890, 216; Mander v.

Falcke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; 64 L. T. 791; except where every reasonable effort to effect personal service has failed, in which case an order for substituted service may be made: Ib., and S. C., 65 L. T. 464; and in the case of default in production pursuant to a notice, or order to produce, and in certain other cases: see Rule 353. Two days' notice would seem to be sufficient in all cases: Rule 215. Rule 331.

Where an order was made for examination in Ontario of a defendant who resided out of Ontario, but was temporarily in Ontario attending the House of Commons, of which he was a member, it was held that the order could not be enforced by attachment against the defendant while the House was in session, but it might be enforced under Rule 331 by striking out his defence: Cox v. Prior, 18 P. R. 492.

In Re Evans, 1893, 1 Ch. 252; 68 L. T. 271, the Court refused to set aside an order for attachment founded on a notice of motion which had not been personally served, holding that the irregularity may be condoned if the Court sees fit; but in Taylor v. Roe, 3 R. 259; 68 L. T. 213, Kekewich, J., held that an irregularity will not be condoned on motions affecting the liberty of the subject, where the opposite party appears and takes the objection.

A person committed for default in attending to be examined is not entitled to a habeas corpus: Re Anderson v. Vanstone, 16 P. R. 243.

See further as to motions to attach, notes to Rules 545, 546.

As to motions to commit for unsatisfactory answers, see Smith v. Greey, 4 C. L. T. 589.

An objection to answer incriminating questions should be taken by the witness, but the privilege may be claimed on a motion to commit, though not claimed before the Examiner: Hall v. Gowenlock, 12 P. R. 604. The penal provisions of R. S. O. (1897), c. 334, ss. 2, 6, do not afford any ground for refusing to answer questions put regarding a fraudulent transaction: Dunsford v. Carlisle, 10 P. R. 449; and see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 7; and The Canada Evidence Act (R. S. C. c. 145), s. 5.

Dismissal of Action or Striking out of Defence.—In general another opportunity to obey will be given on terms, but where the action is unmeritorious the plaintiff may be refused this indulgence and the action may be dismissed: Denham v. Gooch, 13 P. R. 344. Dismissal of action, or striking out defence.

Where the plaintiffs were husband and wife, and the wife complied with an order for production, but the husband absconded without complying, Hall, V.C., refused to dismiss the action: Hartley v. Owen, W. N. 1876, 193; 34 L. T. 752.

For other cases in which the power has been exercised: see Eyre v. Hughes, 25 W. R. 528; and Rep. of Liberia v. Roye, 1 App. Cas. 139. In the last case it was held that where any step ought to be taken in a cause which, in the judgment of the Court, was necessary to facilitate the decision of the cause, and default had been made, the former Court of Chancery had power, if the party in default was the plaintiff, to dismiss the bill: see also Fraser v. Burrows, 2 O. B. D. 624.

Compliance was held excused by illness: Lord Cardwell v. Tomlinson, 33 W. R. 814; 52 L. T. 746.

Other Remedies.—On a motion to commit for non-production of books, etc., pursuant to a subpœna duces tecum on an examination for Other remedies for default.

Rule 332.

discovery, it was held that the proper course was to get the examiner to direct what should be produced, and to adjourn the examination for procuring the documents: Lavery v. Wolfe, 10 P. R. 488; Comstock v. Harris, 12 P. R. 17.

Where the defendant did not appear, nor deliver any statement of defence, after being served with a statement of claim, and a summons for him to attend to be examined touching the matters in question (delivering up to plaintiff of books and documents in his possession) was likewise disregarded, it was held, that, notwithstanding that he was a party to the action, he must be considered as being summoned as a witness, and must be dealt with accordingly, and that his disobedience was not disobedience of an order of Court. An order was therefore made under Eng. Rule of 1883, No. 495 (not adopted in Ontario), for his attendance for examination at his own expense, for disobedience of which an attachment might issue: Powell v. Nevitt, 55 L. T. 728.

The question whether or not the person or party alleged to be in default is really so, may be tested by moving to compel him to attend again at his own expense, and submit to examination, or in default that the action be dismissed, or defence struck out. Where such an order has been obtained and disobeyed, the motion to dismiss, or strike out defence, may perhaps be made ex parte: Dunn v. McLean, 6 P. R. 156; but see Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 16 P. R. 225; Rule 213.

Upon failure of a plaintiff to attend for examination, the action must be stayed for a definite time, to enable him to attend, but not indefinitely: Comstock v. Harris, 12 P. R. 17.

A party who has been ordered to attend for further examination after a refusal to answer questions, is in contempt if he does not so attend, but that is not a bar to his appealing from the order: McGregor v. McDonald, 11 P. R. 518.

Restoring action dismissed for non-production.

Restoring Action, etc.—Where an action has been dismissed it will not be restored, unless, perhaps, where the claim would otherwise be barred by the dismissal, e.g., by the Statute of Limitations: Dunn v. McLean, 6 P. R. 156; and see Hodgson v. Paxton, 2 Chy. Ch. 398; Bank of Montreal v. Wilson, 2 Chy. Ch. 117; Davy v. Davy, 2 Chy. Ch. 26; nor where the defence has been struck out, and judgment signed, will the judgment be set aside: Haigh v. Haigh, 31 Ch. D. 478.

Miscellaneous.—It is not imperative on the Court to act under this Rule: Kennedy v. Lyell, W. N. 1882, 137. It was said in one case that the Rule is a penal one, and only to be acted on in the last resort: Lush, J., in Twycross v. Grant, W. N. 1875, 201, 229; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 115; see Fisher v. Hughes, 25 W. R. 528; Pike v. Keene, 24 W. R. 322; 35 L. T. 341.

Next friend or guardian of infant may be examined.

332. When an infant is a party the opposite party may examine the next friend or guardian of the infant or at his option the infant, if he is competent to give evidence. New.

See Eng. Rule, Ord. 31, R. 29.

The Rule is a reversal of Vano v. Can. Cotton Mills, 13 O. L. R. 421.

Having regerd to the collocation of Rulcs, 327-337, the examination referred to in this Rule appeara to be one for discovery, end the Rule gives a defendant, where ths plaintiff is an infant suing by his next friend, the option of either examining the infant, or his next friend, or guardian, for discovery, but not both, and if he elect to examine one, he cannot thereafter examine the other. The guardian rsferred to is probably the guerdian, if any, of the person or eetate, not a guardian ad litem. Rule 333.

With regard to a plaintiff suing en infant, the Rule appeara to authorize an examination of either the infant, or his guardian, hut not both.

Under the Ontario practice the Official Guardian is ordinerily the guardian ad litem of all infant defendants, whether the "guardian" referred to in thie Rule ia the guardian ad litem of an infant, or the guardian of the person or estate of the infant, remains to be determined. It seeme unlikely that the Official Guerdien waa intended to be subjected to such exnminations, at the same time the guardian of the pereon or estate of an infant may not be in any way before the Court, or connected with the litigation. It may be here remarked that the Eng. Rule above referred to is confined to the guerdian ad litem.

This Rule doee not extend to the next friend of a lunatic, or person of unsound mind. The English Rule permits the next friend of a lunatic to be examined for discovery: Pospati v. Paspati, 110 L. T. 751.

The infant will be only examinable if he he competent to give evidence; that is, understands the neture of an oath.

While the examination of a party for discovery may ordinarily be read against him as evidence at the triel on the ground that it constitutes an admiseion; yet it seems evident thet the examination of the next friend, or guardian of an infant, could not be read against the infant, hecauee he would not be hound by their admiesione. Possibly the infant might read such examination against the opposite party, as being the evidence of a witness called and examined hy him, especially in the event of the next friend, or guardian, dying before the trial. Wherever it is eonght to examine a next friend, or a gnardian, under this Rule, service of a subpœna is necessary: Rule 345 (2).

As to the liability of a next friend of an infant to make an affidevit of documents: see notes to Rulc 348.

333. Any person examined for discovery may be further examined on his own beh if, or on behalf of the Corporation whose officer or servant he is, in relation to any matter respecting which he has been so examined, and such explanatory examinations shall be proceeded with immediately after the examination in chief. C.R. 449 and 450. Parties and others may be examined on their own behalf.

The explanatory examination may be proceeded with, notwithstanding that the counsel for the opposite party has withdrawn: Connolly v. Murrell, 14 P. R. 187.

Rule 334.

Party benefited.

334. A person for whose immediate benefit an action is prosecuted or defended may without order be examined for discovery. C.R. 440. Amended.

There appears to be no similar English Rule.

A person to be examined, etc., must be directly interested: Menzies v. Toronto & Ottowa, etc., Globe, 1st October, 1881. An order was made for the examination of the plaintiff's wife, where it appeared, on affidavit, that the plaintiff was agent for his wife as to part of the subject matter of the suit: Bowmon v. Sutherlond, Globe, 10th September, 1881.

Examination, when ordered.

In Johnson v. McIntosh, 3 C. L. T. 313, J. L. was trustee for the E. estate for twenty years, when the plaintiff was appointed in his place. The action involved the consideration of matters during the trusteeship of J. L., and as to which the plaintiff was ignorant, and the E. estate was indebted to J. L., so that if the plaintiffs succeeded J. L. would be benefited. An order was made under this Rule for examination of J. L. Semble, an order is not necessary unless the person to be examined refuses to submit to examination.

In an action by creditors of a firm to establish the liability of defendant as a partner, the assignee of the firm for the benefit of creditors, though having no direct beneficial interest in the result, was regarded as a quasi plaintiff, and the defendant was held entitled to production from him, and to examine him for the purposes of discovery: Frothingham v. Isbister, 14 P. R. 112.

See also note to Rule 166, supra, p. 622.

An order under this Rule for the examination of the plaintiff's daughter, in an action of seduction, was refused, but under special circumstances was granted under the former C. R. 485 (now Rule 271); Turner v. Kyle, 18 C. L. J. 402; 2 C. L. T. 598; see also Hollister v. Annable, 14 P. R. 11; Baxter v. Campbell, 9 C. L. T. 5; but see now as to the scope of that Rule, notes to Rule 271.

Where, in an action for infringement of a patent, the defendant set up that he had acquired the right to use the invention from C. & Co., but it did not appear that C. & Co. had done anything in reference to the action before, or after, it was brought, it was held that C. & Co. were not persons for whose benefit the action was defended: Moffott v. Leonord, 8 O. L. R. 519.

The examination of a debtor, who had effected insurance and assigned the policy for the benefit of his creditors, was ordered, in an action by one creditor and the trustee for the benefit of other creditors: Macdonald v. Norwich Union; Clarkson v. F. Ins. Assn., 10 P. R. 462; so also of a debtor, in an action against his assignee for the benefit of creditors, to establish the right of the plaintiff to rank upon the insolvent estate: Garland v. Clarkson, 9 O. L. R. 281.

See Minkler v. McMillan, 10 P. R. 506, where proof of the interest of the party sought to be examined was unsatisfactory, but the order was made, with the qualification that it was only to be used for the purpose of discovery.

In Lamb v. Dodds (Mr. Dalton, 8th May, 1883), the action was to establish an alleged will, suspected by the defendant to have been a forgery of the plaintiff's husband, who was not a party; the plaintiff having been examined had no knowledge of it, but the circumstances under which it had come into her hands were suspicious, and an order was made, under this Rule, on defendant's application, for examination of the plaintiff's husband for discovery, as a person for whose benefit the action was brought. Rules 335, 336.

335. Where an action is brought by an assignee the assignor may without order be examined for discovery. C.R. 441. Assignor of chose in action, examinable for discovery.

An officer of a corporation, the assignors of a chose in action, cannot under this Rule, or otherwise, be examined for discovery: Bank of Toronto v. Quebec F. Ins. Co., 18 P. R. 41.

Where an examination is sought under this Rule the assignor, if not already a party to the action, must be subpœnaed: see Rule 345 (2). If a party to the action, service on his solicitor as provided by Rule 337, would seem sufficient; in both cases ordinary witness fees must be paid.

336. Examination for discovery may take place at any time after the statement of defence of the party examining or to be examined has been delivered or after the pleadings have been noted as closed, and the examination of a party to an issue may take place at any time after the issue has been filed. C.R. 442. Amended. Time when examination may be held.

This Rule seems to vary in an important particular from C. R. 442, in that it seems to authorize a defendant who has delivered no defence to examine the plaintiff for discovery after the pleadings have been noted closed. Formerly he could not do so: see Ashley v. Brenton, infra.

A party may be examined as a witness in support of a motion although the time for examining him under this Rule may not have arrived: McClennaghon v. Buchanon, 7 Gr. 92. Party may be examined as a witness.

Under this Rule it will be noticed that the right of the plaintiff to examine only arises after the statement of defence, or after the pleadings are noted closed: see Davis v. Wickson, 9 P. R. 219. He is not obliged to wait until all of several defendants have filed their statements of defence; but may examine each defendant as soon as he has delivered his defence or the pleadings have been noted closed as to him. Time for examination by plaintiff.

But where a plaintiff is ordered to give particulars of his statement of claim, he has, by special order, been allowed to have discovery, by examination of the defendant, and production of documents, before delivering such particulars, where the Court thought it just: Waynes Merthyr Co. v. Radford, 1896, 1 Ch. 29; 73 L. T. 624; but not as to matters which ought to be within the plaintiff's own knowledge: Zierenberg v. Labouchere, 1893, 2 Q. B. 183; 69 L. T. 172. Particulars.

A plaintiff may examine a defendant who has made default in delivering a defence: see Bacon v. Campbell, 6 P. R. 275; and Dominion Bank v. Bell, 13 P. R. 471; or has not appeared: Bulst v. Currie, 33 C. L. J. 622; 17 C. L. T. 335; and see Spokes v. The Grosvenor & W. E. R. T. Hotel Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 679.

The right of a defendant to examine the plaintiff under this Rule arises after he has filed his statement of defence, or the pleadings have Time for examination by defendant.

Rules 337-338.

been noted closed: Ashley v. Brenton, 13 P. R. 98, therefore, would appear to be obsolete.

Co-defendants need not be notified of examination of plaintiff.

A defendant is entitled to examine the plaintiff as soon as his own statement of defence is filed; he is not obliged to wait until those of his co-defendants, if any, are filed: Fowler v. Boulton, 12 Gr. 437. He need not notify his co-defendants of the examination: Ib.

The examination may be had, though the case has been entered for trial: Clarke v. Hawke, 1 Chy. Ch. 346.

Service on solicitor for client.

337.—(1) A party within Ontario shall attend for examination for discovery before the proper officer in the County in which he resides upon service of an appointment upon his solicitor seven days before the day appointed for the examination, and conduct money shall be paid or tendered to the solicitor.

(2) The solicitor shall forthwith communicate the appointment to the party required to attend, and shall not apply the money to any debt due to the solicitor or any other person, or pay the same otherwise than to such party for his conduct money, and the same shall not be liable to be attached.

(3) The attendance of a party may also be required under Rules 345 to 347.

This Rule appears to be based on C. R. 447.

The word "party" means "party to an action." Where persons who are not parties, such as the next friend of an infant, or an officer of a corporation, are to be examined, a subpœna and personal service is necessary: see Rule 345 (2).

Where documents are required to be produced, notice to produce them, or a subpœna duces tecum should be also served: see Rule 341.

(vii) General Rules as to Examinations.

RR. 339-347. apply to examination of witnesses.

338. Rules 339 to 347 shall apply to the examination of a witness upon a motion or under an order and to cross-examination upon affidavits and to all examinations for discovery. C.R. 492. Amended.

The effect of this Rule is to assimilate the practice relating to examinations of witnesses on interlocutory applications, with that relating to the examination of parties for discovery.

Mode of conducting examination.

339. Any person examined shall be subject to cross-examination and re-examination; and the examination, cross-examination and re-examination shall be conducted as nearly as may be as at a trial. C.R. 451.

Rules 340, 341.

Examination may be taken in shorthand.

340.—(1) The examination (unless otherwise ordered or agreed) shall, if the examiner is a shorthand writer or a shorthand writer is available, be taken in shorthand by the examiner or by a shorthand writer approved and duly sworn by him and shall be taken down by question and answer; and it shall not be necessary for the depositions to be read over to, or signed by, the person examined.

Certified copy to have effect of original depositions.

(2) A copy of the depositions so taken, certified by the person taking the same as correct, and if such person be not the examiner, also signed by the examiner, shall be received in evidence saving all just exceptions. C.R. 457 and 458.

Depositions to be returned to Court.

(3) The depositions taken by the examiner shall, upon payment of his fees, be returned to and filed in the office in which the proceedings are carried on. C.R. 459.

Where an error has been made by the shorthand-writer in transcribing his notes, the Court may allow the transcript to be taken off the files for correction: see The Knutsford, 1891, 1 P. 219; 64 L. T. 352.

"Saving all just exceptions."—This Rule does not make the depositions of a party, or of an officer of a corporation, admissible in evidence, otherwise than as provided in Rule 330.

Production of papers.

341. The person to be examined or any party to the action shall, if so required by the subpœna or notice, produce on the examination all books, papers and documents relating to the matters in issue which he could be required to produce at a trial. C.R. 448. Amended.

The proper mode of compelling production on an examination for discovery, where the witness neglects, or refuses, to produce, is for the Examiner to direct what documents are to be produced, and to adjourn the examination. Process by subpœna duces tecum to get production of particular documents is not to be encouraged by treating non-production thereunder, for discovery, as contempt: Lavery v. Wolfe, 10 P. R. 488; but see Alexander v. Irondale, etc., 18 P. R. 20. See note to Rule 342.

See Russell v. Macdonald, 12 P. R. 458.

Semble, the notice referred to in this Rule, is a notice to produce documents served with the appointment on the solicitor of the party to be examined, as provided in Rule 337; a subpœna duces tecum is required to be served on persons not parties: see Rule 345 (2). But where a witness is examined in support of a motion, it was held that he could not be compelled to produce documents to add to what he had to say, or to enable him to become possessed of facts not within his knowledge: Re Baynes Carriage Co., 27 O. L. R. 244.

Rules 342, 343.

This Rule provides for production of documents by the party under examination. It does not cover the case of production of documents in the possession of an opposite party required for the purpose of examining a witness respecting them. Where documents of that kind are produced under Rule 348, they may be transmitted to the Examiner for the purposes of an examination as provided by Rule 396 (2); or, in case of need, a special order for production of documents at the examination may be obtained under Rule 349.

A party admitting the possession of documents may be ordered to produce them.

342. Any person who admits, upon his examination, that he has in his custody or power any such document may be directed to produce the same for the inspection of the party examining by the examiner, and for that purpose a reasonable time is to be allowed. C.R. 452.

Where Master may order production.

The power of the Master, or Special Examiner, to order production of documents under Rule 342, is not, as formerly, confined to cases where parties to the action admit the possession of such documents. Where the admission is made by an officer of a corporation, if the corporation is a party, the Master, and Examiner, has now power to make the order, and an application in Chambers is not necessary: see Rule 349. In the case of an officer of a corporation which is a party to the action, it would seem that an order for production of documents can only be made of such as he admits are in his custody or power, and not of any which are in the custody or power of some other officer. Production may be obtained upon service of notice, as provided by Rule 348. The provisions of Rule 342 are intended to meet the case of any one examinable under Rules 327, 332, 335, or as a witness upon any interlocutory motion, who on his examination admits that he has material documents which he has not produced; the examination may be adjourned for the purpose of enabling the examinant to comply with the Master's, or Examiner's, order for production: Comstock v. Harris, 12 P. R. 17. The Examiner's direction is subject to appeal: see Rule 344.

A person examined under Rule 271 may also be ordered by the Examiner to produce documents by virtue of this Rule: Orpen v. Kerr, 11 P. R. 128.

The question as to the liability of any person being examined to produce any documents referred to in a subpœna duces tecum should ordinarily, be raised before the Examiner, and not by motion to set aside the subpœna: Alexander v. Irondale, etc., Ry., 18 P. R. 20; or by motion to commit for contempt in disobeying the subpœna: see note to Rule 341; Steele v. Savory, W. N. 1891, 195, is only to be followed in exceptional cases: Alexander v. Irondale, supra.

Objection to questions.

343. If any person under examination objects to any question put to him, the question and the objection shall be noted, and the validity of such objection shall be decided by the examiner, whose decision shall also be noted. C.R. 455. Amended.

See Eng. (1883) R. 496.

Disclosure on Examination for Discovery.—A party has the right to examine for discovery, not only for the purpose of obtaining information from the opposite party as to material facts which are not within his own knowledge, and is within the knowledge of the opposite party, but also for the purpose of obtaining from the opposite party admissions which will make it unnecessary for him to enter into evidence of the facts admitted: Att'y-Gen. v. Gaskill 20 Ch. D. 519; Hellier v. Ellis, W. N. 1884, 9; see Colter v. McPherson, 12 P. R. 630; Humphries v. Taylor Drug Co., 39 Ch. D. 693; Macdonald v. Sheppard Pub. Co., 19 P. R. 282. Rule 343. Scope of examination for discovery.

The examination must not extend to matters wholly irrelevant to the pleadings: Bentley v. Murphy, 2 O. L. R. 685; Cole v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 19 P. R. 104; and it will be, as far as possible, confined to matters relevant to what is raised by the pleadings: Atty.-Gen. v. N. Metropolitan Tramways, 1892, 3 Ch. 70; 67 L. T. 283; Dickson v. Covert, 2 Chy. Ch. 242; Nicholl v. Elliott, 3 Gr. 536; Proctor v. Grant, 9 Gr. 31; though a fair amount of latitude must be allowed: Mack v. Dobie, 14 P. R. 465, and matters germane to what is strictly raised by the pleadings may be inquired into, in view of the right to amend; information for which purpose is one of the objects of examination for discovery: see McGillivray v. McConkey, 6 P. R. 56. Relevancy to the mere allegations in the pleadings may not be sufficient to justify a particular line of discovery, if parts of the pleadings are not relevant to the action: Bentley v. Murphy, 2 O. L. R. 665. Questions with a view to discovering the names of the parties witnesses are not admissible: Knapp v. Harvey, 1911, 2 K. B. 275.

Discovery is relevant or material, not only if it is directed to the facts directly in issue, but also if it is directed to the damages: Blumenstiel v. Edwards, 5 O. W. R. 341.

Examination for discovery in support of a defence which was had in law, was not allowed: Rogers v. Lambert, 24 Q. B. D. 573; 62 L. T. 694.

It is improper to examine generally as upon a cross-examination of a witness: see Kennedy v. Dodson, 1895, 1 Ch. 334; sed vide Rule 339.

The plaintiff is entitled to discovery of what will help him to prove any issue to be determined at the trial; but where discovery is sought in aid of something which is not part of what the plaintiff must prove at the trial, but is merely consequential to it, the right is not absolute, but discretional, until the plaintiff has established his fundamental right at the trial: see per Street J., in Graham q. t. v. Temperance, &c., 16 P. R. at p. 539; but where the plaintiff sued on an agreement, which defendant denied, but also set up that, if established, it had been performed, the defendant was required to answer questions directed to the alleged breach of the agreement, without the agreement itself having been first established: Sheppard v. Harkins, 8 O. L. R. 632.

Questions which only go to impeach the credit of the party examined are not admissible: Mock v. Dobie, 14 P. R. 465.

Where a party's right to an account depends on his establishing a fiduciary relationship which is denied, the opposite party may refuse to make discovery of matters of account until the question of relationship has been judicially determined: Bedell v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R.

Rule 343.

670; and a defendant may refuse to answer questions as to facts, which would become material only in the event of the plaintiff establishing his right to recover damages: Evans v. Jaffray, 3 O. L. R. 327.

A defendant pleading privilege was allowed to be examined as to his reasons for believing in the truth, and as to the means taken by him to ascertain the truth, of the alleged slander in respect of which the action was brought: Elliott v. Garrett, 1902, 1 K. B. 170; 86 L. T. 441; and from whom he obtained information: Edmondson v. Birch, 1905, 2 K. B. at pp. 525-6, per Romer, L.J.; but see Caryll v. Daily Mail, 90 L. T. 307; Adams v. Fisher, 110 L. T. 537.

A plaintiff was held entitled to examine a married woman as to the estate possessed by her at the time of the contract, that being, as the law then stood, a matter which the plaintiff must prove: Kennedy v. Bowes, 11 C. L. T. 281; Smith v. Berg, 36 L. T. 471; and see Bursill v. Tanner, 16 Q. B. D. 1.

An executor pleading plene administravit was held bound to disclose particulars of the real and personal estate: St. George v. St. George, 19 L. R. Ir. 225.

A party examined is bound to inform himself as far as possible as to the matters in question so far as the means within his own possession, or that of his servants or agents, can assist him, in order to give the discovery which the opposite party is entitled to: see Vanhorn v. Verral, 3 O. W. N. 439.

Disclosure by Officers of a Corporation.—The person examined, whether a party, or an officer of a company, is bound to seek the necessary information which is in his own possession, or in possession of the servants or agents of the company, in order to give the discovery to which the party examining is entitled: Harris v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 18 P. R. 285; Clarkson v. Bank of Hamilton, 9 O. L. R. 317; Horton v. McLean, 2 O. W. N. 1493; but it would seem that an officer is not bound to answer as to his own knowledge, not acquired in the course of his employment by the company, or to make inquiries of the other officers or agents as to their knowledge not acquired in the same way, but acquired accidentally, or in some other capacity than as such officers or agents: Welsbach Incandescent, etc., v. New Sunlight Incandescent, etc., 1900, 2 Ch. 1; 83 L. T. 58; see also Sydney Cheese & Butter Factory Association v. Brower, 19 P. R. 152, where a special agreement was set up by the defendant binding him not to divulge the matters, disclosure of which was sought.

Action to recover land.

Matters as to which Discovery may be had.—There is no distinction, as regards the right to discovery, between actions for recovery of land, and other actions; and a plaintiff is therefore entitled to discovery as to all matters relevant to his own, and not exclusively to the defendant's case: Lyell v. Kennedy, 8 App. Cas. 217; Daniel v. Ford, W. N. 1883, 27, 52. This is not a new right, however; the right to discovery is unaffected by The Judicature Act: Ib., and Hunnings v. Williamson, 10 Q. B. D. 459, 462.

Defamation.

In an action for libel of the plaintiffs in the way of their trade, where no special damage is alleged, but only general diminution of profits, discovery as to the amount of diminution, and how it was made out, was held to be relevant: Blackford v. Green, 14 P. R. 424.

In an action against a newspaper for libel, a defendant cannot be required to disclose the source of his information: Pornell v. Walter, 24 Q. B. D. 441; 62 L. T. 75; Blanc v. Burrows, 12 T. L. R. 521; Plymouth Mutual C. & I. Society v. Traders Publishing Association, 1906, 1 K. B. 403; 94 L. T. 258; and see Ridgeway v. Smith, 6 T. L. R. 275; Hope v Brosh, 1897, 2 Q. B. 188; but see Edmonson v. Birch, 1905, 2 K. B. 523-6, where it was said that such information may have to be disclosed, but not where the Court thinks it is asked for an ulterior purpose, such as to bring an action against the person who gave the information, and not bonâ fide for the purposes of the pending action; nor can a well established newspaper, sued for libel, be required to disclose the number of its circulation: Whittaker v. Scorboro' Post, 1896, 2 Q. B. 148; 74 L. T. 753, overruling Parnell v. Walter, supra, on that point. Questions as to the inquiries made as to the truth of the matters complained of before publishing them are proper: White v. Credit Reform, &c., 1905, 1 K. B. 653; 92 L. T. 817; but not the names of persons to whom the publication had been shewn: Ib.; but an inquiry as to the names of persons to whom an alleged defamatory circular, the subject of the action, had been sent, was allowed: Massey-Harris v. De Laval Separator Co., 11 O. L. R. 227, 591; and also as to the person who had given the information on which the circular was based: Ib.; Chambers v. Joffroy, 12 O. L. R. 377; but an inquiry as to the name of the informant from whom the defendants received the information on which they acted in sending the alleged libel, and in respect of which the defendants pleaded privilege, was disallowed: Edmonson v. Birch, 1905, 2 K. B. 523; 93 L. T. 462. And where defendant pleaded fair comment an interrogatory to the plaintiff "Do you intend to set up, that defendant in publishing the words complained of was actuated by express malice towards the plaintiffs —if yea, give generally the facts and circumstances on which the plaintiffs rely as showing actual malice," was disallowed: Lever v. Associated Newspapers, Ltd., 1907, 2 K. B. 626; 97 L. T. 530. But whether an inquiry as to the name of the informant in libel actions against newspapers should be allowed is a matter of judicial discretion; such an inquiry for the purpose of enabling the plaintiff to sue the informant, is obviously illegitimate; and as a matter of public policy it may not be in the public interest that a newspaper sued for libel should be compelled to disclose its informant: see Adams v. Fisher, 110 L. T. 537. Rule 343.

Questions as to defendant's meaning of the alleged defamatory words were held inadmissible: Heaton v. Goldney, 1910, 1 K. B. 574; 102 L. T. 451; Morley v. Patrick, 21 O. L. R. 240.

Where a defendant pleads qualified privilege, though he does not plead justification, he is not precluded from examining the plaintiff for discovery as to matters affecting the question of the defendant's honest belief, as tending to shew absence of malice, even though the answers may tend to prove the truth of the libel: McKergow v. Comstock, 11 O. L. R. 637; nor, in an action of slander, from examining the plaintiff as to the truth of matters of fact on which the alleged defamatory remarks were based: Walker v. Hodgson, 1909, 1 K. B. 239; 99 L. T. 902.

In an action for slander the defendant may be asked whether he spoke the words complained of, "or words to that effect," and in whose presence he spoke them: Dalgliesh v. Lowther, 1899, 2 Q. B. 590; 81 L. T. 161; and what information he had, and what inquiries he made, as to the truth of the words: Saunderson v. Von Radeck, 11[illegible] L. T. Jour. 33; but questions as to whether, within three years, the defendant had uttered the alleged slander, and to what persons, were held to be oppressive, and were disallowed: Barham v. Huntingfield (1913), 2 K. B. 193; 108 L. T. 703.

In an action to recover a loan, questions with a view to shewing that the defendant carried on the business of a money lender within The Money Lenders Act, 1900, were allowed: Nash v. Layton, 1911, 2 Ch. 71; 104 L. T. 834.

Malicious prosecution.

In an action for malicious prosecution, questions as to what information the defendant had before instituting the prosecution, and what steps he took to ascertain the truth thereof, and as to the facts on which the defendant relied as constituting reasonable and probable cause, were disallowed: Maas v. Gas Light & C. Co., 1911, 2 K. B. 543; 104 L. T. 767.

Patent cases.

In an action for infringement of a patent, the plaintiff was held to be bound to answer questions as to matters which tended to show that the patent was not a good one, having become forfeited: Parramore v. Boston Manufacturing Co., 4 O. L. R. 627.

The general law applicable to discovery governs in patent cases. The defendant must disclose the particular lines of attack on the plaintiff's patent which are contemplated, but need not so individualize persons alleged to be prior users, as to enable the plaintiff to know the defendant's witnesses: Smith v. Green 10 P. R. 482.

As to the extent to which plaintiff may examine defendant for discovery in an action for infringement of a patent, where the defendant claims to use a secret process: see Ashworth v. Roberts, 45 Ch. D. 623; Osram Lamp Works v. Gabriel Lamp Co., 1914, 1 Ch. 699; 111 L. T. 99.

In an action for infringement of patent where defendants were ordered to account for profits, it was held that, upon the reference, they must disclose the names and addresses of their customers: Saccharin Corporation v. Chemicals and Drugs Co., 1900, 2 Ch. 556.

Seduction.

In an action for seduction, where defendant admitted the seduction, questions as to promise of marriage were disallowed; Leroux v. Schnupp, 15 O. L. R. 91.

Disclosure of evidence and names of witnesses.

A party, on examination for discovery, need not disclose the names of his witnesses: see McColla v. Jones, 4 T. L. R. 12; Marriott v. Chamberlain, 17 Q. B. D. 154; 54 L. T. 714; Vunhorn v. Verral, 3 O. W. N. 337; and see Caswell v. Toronto Ry., 24 O. L. R. 339, 353; nor the evidence he intends to give: Coyle v. Coyle, 19 P. R. 97; though he cannot object to disclose a material fact only for the reason that names of witnesses will thereby, necessarily, be disclosed: Ib.; Johns v. James, 13 Ch. D. 370; Humphries v. The Taylor Drug, etc., Co., 39 Ch. D. 693; Birch v. Mather, 22 Ch. D. 629; Hall v. Liardet, W. N. 1883, 175; Marshall v. Metropolitan, 7 T. L. R. 49; Williamson v. Merrill, 4 O. W. R. 528; and see 5 O. W. R. 64; Sangster v. Aikenhead, 5 O. W. R. 438, 495; or their reputation injured: Macdonald v. Sheppard Pub. Co., 19 P. R. 282.

Answers tending to disclose party's evidence.

As to objections to answer questions tending to disclose evidence, see Eade v. Jacobs, 3 Ex. D. 335; Atty.-Gen. v. Gaskill, 20 Ch. D. 539, Benbow v. Low, 16 Ch. D. 93; Bray on Discovery, 445; Coyle v. Coyle, 19 P. R. 97; Hooton v. Dalby, 1907, 2 K. B. 78; 96 L. T. 537 (action of seduction); Knapp v. Harvey, 1911, 2 K. B. 725; 105 L. T. 473; (action for personal injury).

Rule 343.

Whers a solicitor's ohjection to questions is overruled hy ths Examiner, hs cannot put an end to ths examination hy withdrawing, and the examination if proceeded with will hs regular, and will not be struck out, though taken after he has withdrawn: Connolly v. Murrell, 14 P. R. 187, 270.

Privilege generally.

Privilege on Examination.—Ths gsneral rules as to privilege in evidencs apply in examinations for discovery, and in ths production and inspection of documents: ses notes to Rule 343.

Ths plaintiff is entitled to examine in ordsr to ascertain what title the defendant is setting up against him. This does not coms within ths ground of privilege: Coyley v. Sandycroft, 33 W. R. 577.

A hushand of wife may under The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 9, refuse to disclose communications rnade hy ons to the other of them during marriage: Connolly v. Murrell, 14 P. R. 187, 270; hut each must disclose communications made hy a third person to either of them: Williamson v. Merrill, 5 O. W. R. 64.

As to ohjections to answers as tending to criminate, see infro.

As to ohjections on the ground of disclosing the names of witnesses, see supra, p. 820.

Whers interrogatories, under the English practice, were administered to the guardian od litem of a lunatic defendant, it was held that hs need not answer them, as he was not a party, and not called upon to make admissions against defendant's interest: Ingrom v. Little, W. N. 1883, 124; hut see Rule 332.

Where knowledge, which might have heen ohtained hy inquiry, is contained in reports which are privileged, the information so ohtained is privileged: London, Tilbury & Southend Ry. Co. v. Kirk, 51 L. T. 599.

As to the circumstances under which police officers can he compelled to disclose the source of information under which they have done an act for which the action is hrought: see Humphrey v. Archibald, 21 Ont. 553; 20 Ont. App. 267.

Answers tending to criminate.

Criminating Questions.—Formerly a person under examination for discovery might object to answer questions tending to criminate such person, or ths hushand or wife, of such person: Fisher v. Owen, 8 Ch. D. 645; Allhusen v. Labouchere, 3 Q. B. D. 654; Aloboster v. Horness, 70 L. T. 375; Mitchell v. Little, 10 P. R. 265; Jones v. Gollon, 9 P. R. 296. The ohjection must have been made on oath: Webb v. East, 5 Ex. D. 23; Power v. Ellis, 6 S. C. R. 2; Redfern v. Redfern, 39 W. R. 212; D'Ivry v. World, 17 P. R. 387; and if not claimed bef·e the Examiner the privilege, it seems, might still have heen claimed on a motion to commit: Hall v. Gowanlock, 12 P. R. 204. It was sufficient if the person swore that the answer to the question 'might' tend to criminate him: Lamb v. Munster, 10 Q. B. D. 110. That another person might he exposed to an action, was, and is no ground for refusing to answer: Tetley v. Easton, 25 L. J. C. P. 293; hut an officer of a corporation might claim ths privilege on the ground that ths corporation might be exposed to a criminal prosecution: D'Ivry v. World, 17 P. R. 387.

See the notes to Rule 348, infro, p. 833.

The protection was against answering not only a question that had a direct tendency to criminate the person or corporation, hut also one that formed a step towards doing so; the person, however, or in the case of a corporation, an officer, must have pledged his oath to his belief that such would, or might, be the effect of the answer; and to entitle him to the privilege of silence, the Court must have seen from the circumstancee of the cnse, and the naturo of the evidence which the witness was called to give, that his belief was likely to he well founded: D'Ivry v. World, 17 P. R. 387.

Where, in an action on promissory notes, defendants pleaded that plaintiff and others hnd conspired to harass defendants, and lessen trade competition, contrary to 52 V. c. 41 (D.), s. 1 (c), aad had procured holders of notes to transfer them to the plaintiff, who was suing ss trustee, plaintiff was held not entitled to refuse to answer as to the names of his cestuis que trustent, on the ground that the answer would tend to criminate him: Mills v. Mercer Co., 15 P. R. 276.

But now under The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 7, a witness is not excnsed from answering any question on the ground that his answer may tend to criminate him; and see The Canada Evidence Act (R. S. C. c. 145), s. 5; Reg. v. Fox, 18 P. R. 343; Chambers v. Jaffray, 12 O. L. R. 377; hut whether these Acts cover the case of an officer of a corporation whose evidence might tend to criminate the corporation, is doubtful.

As to actions for hreach of promise of marriage, and proceedings in consequence of adultery: eee The Evidence Act, c. 76, s. 8, aad notes preceding Rule 327, supra, p. 797.

It was at first thought that answers given under such circumstances are not, under The Canada Evidence Act (R. S. C. c. 145), admissihie against the person examined, in any criminal proceedings, except a prosecution for perjury in giving such evidence, and the old rule exonerating a party from giving such evidence was therefore thought to be in effect ahrogated: see Weiser v. Heintzman, 15 P. R. 258; hut on appeal (S. C., 15 P. R. 407), it was held that the Dominion Act had not altered the practice in civil proceedings; hut see Reg. v. Fox, 18 P. R. 346.

In an action to recover damages for maintenance (which is an indictable offence), as no discovery could he had which would not involve the defendsnt in matters leading up to the offence, no examination for discovery can take place at all: Hopkins v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 659; sed quære, how far, if at all, this is now law.

Examiner's order subject to review without appeal.

344. Any direction or ruling of the examiner shall be subject to review upon any motion with respect to such examination without an appeal. C.R. 453. Amended.

There is no Rule specially regulating appeals from Special Examiners, but an appeal might be had under Rule 505. This Rule, however, enables the Court to review any order or ruling of an Examiner, without an appeal. This may be done when the depositions are read before the Court, when any evidence which he has improperly received may be rejected.

Subpœna and appointment.

345.—(1) Any party who is liable to be examined may be required to attend before the proper officer in the County in which he resides, for examination, upon being served with an appointment and upon payment of the proper fees. Rule 345.

2. Any person not a party, liable to be examined, shall also be served with a subpœna. C.R. 443. Amended.

"In which he resides": see Maclean v. James Bay Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 440.

For special reasons, the examination may be specially ordered to be taken before some other person, and elsewhere than provided by this Rule: Rule 347; Gallagher v. Gairdner, 2 Chy. Ch. 480; McDermid v. McDermid, Ib., 372; Campbell v. Tucker, 7 P. R. 135; Kahn v. Redford, 3 Chy. Ch. 55; Coop. Dig., 1873, p. 111; and see Standard Trading Co. v. Scybold, 7 O. L. R. 39.

The fact that a witness could only speak Welsh, was held not to be a reason for having the examination before some person other than the Court Examiner, as he can have an interpreter: Marquess of Bute v. James, 33 Ch. D. 157.

This Rule draws a distinction between persons who are parties, and persons who are not; parties are only required to be served with the appointment; persons not parties must be served not only with the appointment, but also with a subpœna. In both cases proper witness fees must be paid: see infra.

A party may be either personally served with an appointment under this Rule, in which case he would only be entitled to reasonable notice as in the case of a witness, unless he is suing or defending in person; as to which: see infra, or he may be served, by service under Rule 337, on his solicitor, in which case seven days' notice must be given.

Attendance and submitting to be sworn precludes objection that no subpœna had been served: Cooke v. Wilson, 3 O. L. R. 299.

An order for substitutional service of the appointment and subpœna for the examination of a person not a party to the action will not be made: Mills v. The Mercer Co., 15 P. R. 276.

Subject to what is said below as to suitors suing, or defending, in person, a party, or person, who is personally served, is entitled to be served a reasonable time, but not necessarily 48 hours, before the time appointed: Re North Wheal, etc., Co., 31 Beav. 628; 8 Jur. N. S. 1168; Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388; Wilson v. Cowan, 19 C. L. T. 140; 3 C. L. T. 216; Lynskey v. Can. Pac. Ry. Co., 4 C. L. T. 93.

The solicitor of the party to be examined is entitled to 48 hours' notice: Rule 346; and where a suitor has no solicitor, he is also entitled to 48 hours' notice: Watson v. Ham, 1 Chy. Ch. 293.

Where a motion is made to compel attendance of a person who has not attended, or has attended and refused to be sworn, it must be proved that he was duly served with a copy of the appointment, and (if not a party) also with a subpœna, and was paid proper fees: McLean v. Bruce, 12 P. R. 602. Semble, that the Examiner's certificate on these points would not be sufficient: Ib.

Default of Witness.—The evidence of default should show that the witness had been duly subpœnaed, where subpœna is necessary; a statement in the certificate of the examiner, that evidence of the service had been produced, is insufficient: Waddle v. McGinty, 2 Chy. Ch. 442; and see Sutherland v. Rogers, Ib., 191; and Barber v. Adams, infra, p. 824. Default of witness, how punished.

Rule 345.

The subpœna (when necessary) must be served personally, otherwise an attachment for non-attendance cannot be obtained: Barber v. Adams, 16 P. R. 156.

Where the subpœna is issued from an office other than that in which the proceedings are being carried on, the person served, having been paid conduct money, should attend and there raise any objections he may have to the regularity of the subpœna: Evel v. Bank of Hamilton, 3 O. W. N. 336.

A witness failing to attend is liable to be committed for default. A witness who attends, but refuses to answer proper questions, may, on motion, be ordered to attend again and submit to answer the questions at his own expense, or in default be committed: see Hannum v. McRae, per Moss, J.A., 18 P. R. at p. 200.

It was held in Woods v. Fader, 10 O. L. R. 643, that in order to found proceedings for contempt it must be shown that the original subpœna was shown to the witness at the time of service: sed quære, if that is so any longer: see Rule 203.

A witness, whether a party, or a stranger to the cause, who is required to attend for examination, is entitled to be paid ordinary witness fees, and may refuse to attend, or, if attending, may refuse to be sworn, until paid: Rule 345 (1); Brocas v. Lloyd, 23 Beav. 129; Wiltshire v. Morsholl, W. N. 1866, 80; Davey v. Durrant, 24 Beav. 493; and see Robins v. Carson, 2 Chy. Ch. 343; Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388; Smith v. Greey, 11 P. R. 345.

Where the defendant's solicitor was served under Rule 337, but defendant himself was not, but the appointment was twice duly enlarged, and defendant was served for the enlarged date, and his solicitor notified of the enlargement, the defendant not attending, was held to be in default: Reid v. Wolters, 19 P. R. 310.

A motion to commit a witness for refusing to answer questions is a civil process, and not a criminal proceeding. The privilege of Parliament may therefore be claimed by the witness: Re Armstrong, 1892, 1 Q. B. 327.

A motion to commit must be made before a Judge: Keefe v. Ward, 18 C. L. J. 166; 2 C. L. T. 260; and see Rule 208 (1).

A witness attending for examination, is not bound to wait more than half an hour, unless notified that his examination is to be proceeded with: Perks v. Stottart, 1 N. R. 563; but see Campbell v. Scott, supra, p. 808.

See Clark v. Campbell, in note to Rule 228.

Examination of party out of jurisdiction.

Party or Witness out of Ontario.—Where the witness, or party required to be examined in support of a motion is out of the jurisdiction, an order for a commission may be obtained as soon as the notice of motion is served: Forrell v. Cruickshank, 1 Chy. Ch. 12; or if a resident in Quebec a subpœna may be ordered to issue under C. S. C. c. 79, s. 4 (see R. S. O. p. 986); Moffatt v. Prentice, 6 P. R. 33; McKerchie v. Montgomery, 1 Chy. Ch. 225; sed vide, contra, Lefurgy v. Great West Land Co., 11 O. L. R. 617.

Where a party resident out of Ontario comes temporarily within Ontario, his attendance for examination for discovery can only be obtained by order under Rule 328: Cox v. Prior, 18 P. R. 492.

A party resident in Quebec cannot be required to attend for examination in Ontario: Lefurgey v. G. W. Land Co., supra. Rules 346-348.

346. The party examining shall serve a copy of the appointment for such examination upon the solicitor of the opposite party at least forty-eight hours before the examination. C.R. 446. Service of appointment on solicitor.

Sundays and other holidays are excluded in the computation of the 48 hours: see Rules 172 and 173 (2), and Lovelace v. Harrington, 10 P. R. 157. Service on Saturday at 9.30 a.m. for Tuesday at 2 p.m. is insufficient: Senn v. Hewett, 8 P. R. 70. Where the person to be examined is not a party, he must be personally served; the Court will not, in such a case, authorize substitutional service: Mills v. The Mercer Co., 15 P. R. 276.

Where a suitor is suing, or defending, in person, he is held entitled to at least forty-eight hours' notice under this Rule: see Watson v. Ham, 1 Chy. Ch. 293.

347. An order may be made for the examination of any person liable to be examined as aforesaid before any other person or in any other county. C.R. 444. Order to examine.

Rule 345 (1) prescribes that a party liable to be examined is to be examined in the county where he resides. This Rule enables a special order to be made for examination in any other county. The Rule relates not only to parties, but also to persons, not parties, liable to be examined as witnesses: see Hull v. Allen, 2 O. W. N. 260.

See notes to Rules 327, 336, 345.

An order for the examination of an officer residing in a foreign country of a foreign corporation which had attorned to the jurisdiction was refused, in Perrins v. Algoma, 8 O. L. R. 634.

(viii) Production of Documents.

348. Each party, after the defence is delivered, or an issue has been filed, may by notice require the other within ten days to make discovery on oath of the documents which are or have been in his possession or power, relating to any matters in question in the action; and produce and deposit the same with the proper officer for the usual purposes. A copy of such affidavit shall be served forthwith after filing. C.R. 464. Notice for production of documents.

See Eng. (1883) R. 354.

This Rule makes a material change in C. R. 464, on which it is professed to be based. It substitutes a notice for a præcipe order. It limits the right to production on notice: (1) To cases where a defence, or an issue is filed. Formerly a plaintiff had a right to an order for production of documents, though no defence was filed, as soon as the time for delivering a defence had expired. Under this Rule that right does not exist: and semble, a special application for production will be necessary if required wherever no defence is filed. The issue referred to in the Rule is, probably, one specially ordered to be tried, e.g., an interpleader issue, and not the ordinary joinder of issue in an action.

The notice for production can only be properly served under this Rule, where the party serving it is entitled to discovery. If the action is of such a nature as disentitles the plaintiff to such relief, the notice would be irregular, and would be set aside: Johnston v. London & Paris Exchange, 6 O. L. R. 49 (an action to recover penalties).

On a special application, production may be obtained under Rule 349 from "any party" and at any stage: see notes to that Rule.

In a petition of right, the Crown is entitled to discovery of documents from the suppliant: Tomline v. The Queen, 4 Ex. D. 252; and in an action by the Crown, the Crown has the same right of discovery against the defendant as one subject has against another: Atty.-Gen. v. Newcastle, 1897, 2 Q. B. 384; 77 L. T. 203. The defendant has not the same right against the Crown, though as a rule the Crown gives full discovery, unless the public interest requires that this should not be done: Ib.

This Rule does not enable a notice to be given to a next friend or guardian of either an infant, or a lunatic, nor to any person on whose behalf the action is brought, although the latter and also the next friend, or guardian, of an infant are liable to be examined for discovery: see Rules 322, 334.

Time for production.

Time for Production.—The Rule means that as each defendant puts in his defence, that defendant becomes liable to give, and is entitled to obtain, production.

Place.

Place.—Where production is required upon an issue, the officer with whom the issue is filed is the officer in whose office the documents should be produced: see Rule 125. In all other cases, the place for production will be the office where the proceedings were commenced: see Rule 762.

From whom production may be compelled.

Party Entitled to Production.—This Rule entitles any party to production from the adverse party: and Rule 327 enables a party to examine for discovery "any party adverse in interest," and it is probable that production may be obtained under this Rule from any party who might so be examined: see notes to Rule 327, supra: and Hamilton v. Nott, L. R. 16 Eq. 112; Kennedy v. Wakefield, 39 L. J. Chy. 827; 22 L. T. 645; 18 W. R. 884; and Brigham v. Bronson, 3 C. L. T. 311. (where a defendant obtained production from a co-defendant adverse in interest); but where there is no question at issue between co-defendants, they are not entitled to discovery from each other: Birchal v. Birch, 1913, 2 Ch. 375; 109 L. T. 275.

Under C. R. 466, persons for whose benefit an action was prosecuted or defended were quasi parties for the purpose of the production of documents, but that Rule has not been continued.

A defendant, who is a necessary party to the action, is liable to make discovery to the plaintiff, though no relief is asked against him: Spokes v. The Grosvenor & W. E. Ry. T. Hotel Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 679.

Under an order obtained by one defendant, other defendants cannot compel production: Seymour v. Longworth, 3 Chy. Ch. 112. Rule 348.

Where a defendant has not filed a defence he is not entitled to give notice under this Rule, neither can a plaintiff give such a defendant notice.

Third Party.—As to compelling production by, and against, a third party: see Rule 169 and notes.

Affidavit.—Under an order for production by the plaintiff, the plaintiff on the record is the person to make the affidavit, and an affidavit from some beneficial plaintiff is not a compliance with the order: Wilson v. Ruffolovich, 7 Q. B. D. 553. By whom affidavit to be made.

Where a plaintiff of unsound mind sues by a next friend, the defendant is entitled to an affidavit of documents made by the next friend, or by some one acquainted with the facts: Troviss v. Bell, 8 P. R. 550; and in the case of an infant, see Arnold v. Ployter, 14 P. R. 399; Flett v. Coulter, 4 O. L. R. 714. In England, Higginson v. Holl, 10 Ch. D. 235; to the same effect, was disapproved of in Dyke v. Stephens, 30 Ch. D. 189; see also Mayor v. Collins, 24 Q. B. D. 361; Pink v. Shorwood, 1913, 2 Ch. 286; 108 L. T. 1017. A motion by the defendant was granted, that the next friend of an infant plaintiff might be ordered to make an affidavit in reference to documents in his possession in Crowe v. Bank of Ireland, 5 Ir. R. Eq. 578; but see Ingram v. Little, 11 Q. B. D. 251; Re Corsellis, Lowton v. Elwes, 48 L. T. 425; W. N. 1883, 60; 52 L. J. Chy. 399; Dyke v. Stephens, 30 Ch. D. 189; Redfern v. Redfern, 1891, P. 139; and Curtis v. Mundy, 1892, 2 Q. B. 178; Scott v. Consolidated Bank, W. N. 1893, 57; 94 L. T. Jour. 508; decided under the English Rule of 1875, O. 31, r. 12 (1883. R. 354), not adopted here, but which provides that any 'party' may apply to a Judge for an order directing any other 'party' to the action to make discovery on oath of the documents which are or have been in his possession, etc., relating to any matter in question in the action. Infant and lunatic plaintiffs.

Where it is sought to remove a next friend of an infant, he cannot be compelled to give discovery under this Rule for that purpose: Re Corsellis, Lowton v. Elwes, 31 W. R. 414. (For the conclusion of that matter see 50 L. T. 703).

In an action by a husband and wife, the wife suing in respect of her separate property, they must make affidavits as to what documents they, and each of them, have, an affidavit as to what they have jointly not being sufficient: Fendall v. O'Connell, 29 Ch. D. 899. Husband and wife.

In other cases, where a plaintiff cannot make an affidavit, some proper person must do so for the plaintiff, and proceedings will be stayed meanwhile: Republic of Liberia v. Roye, 1 App. Cas. 139; see Prioleau of U. S. America, L. R. 2 Eq. 659; U. S. America v. Wagner, L. R. 2 Chy. 582; Princes of Wales v. Earl of Liverpool, 1 Sw. 114; see also notes to Rule 349. But it has been held that proceedings could not be stayed by a defendant, in an action on a marine policy, until the plaintiff had obtained an affidavit of documents from his assignor, who was not a party to the suit, nor under the plaintiff's control, within the jurisdiction: Fraser v. Burrows, 2 Q. B. D. 624; but see Willis v. Baddeley, 1892, 2 Q. B. 324; 67 L. T. 60, 206. Foreign Governments as suitors.

C. R. 468 provided: "Where the party required to produce documents is a corporation the affidavit shall be made by one of its officers, and may be according to Form No. 20." Affidavit on production by a corporation.

Rule 348.

That Rule has not been continued, but the practice has probably not been changed: see Form No. 21, and Rule 772 (2). This is in conformity with what was the practice in Chancery: see Dan. Prac., 5th ed., p. 1677, and cases there cited.

Where a bill was filed by a Republican government, the defendant, having put in a sufficient answer, was held entitled to the usual affidavit of documents, to be made by one or more of the Ministers, or officers, of the government: Republic of Liberia v. Imperial Bank, L. R. 16 Eq. 179.

It was held unreasonable to require a defendant company to answer interrogatories through a former director who was interested in the plaintiff company, the Court intimating at the same time, that such person might be made a defendant, and discovery thus obtained: Manchester Val de Travers Paving Co. v. Slagg, W. N. 1882, 127.

Person benefitted formerly a quasi party for certain purposes.

By C. R. 466 it was also provided: "A person for whose immediate benefit an action is prosecuted or defended is to be regarded as a party for the purpose of production of documents."

That Rule has not been continued; whether such a person can now be required to make affidavit merely by notice seems doubtful. Such a person is liable to examination for discovery: see Rule 334, and notes: Garland v. Clarkson, 9 O. L. R. 281, and Bradley v. Clarke, in note to Rule 166, supra, p. 622.

The Court may stay proceedings in an action brought for the benefit of a person, not a party, until discovery of documents shall have been made by such person: Willis v. Baddeley, 1892, 2 Q. B. 324; 67 L. T. 60, 206.

By Rule 335 where an action is brought by an assignee of a chose in action, the assignor is examinable for discovery, but there is no Rule requiring the assignor to make an affidavit of documents.

Official liquidators.

As to production of documents by an official liquidator: see Re Mutual Society, 22 Ch. D. 714.

Affidavit where no documents produced.

An affidavit must be made, though the party has no documents to produce. It should not be made before the notice to produce is served: see Kennedy v. Royal Ins. Co., 3 Chy. Ch. 489; Dobson v. Dobson, 7 P. R. 258; and it should not in such case refer to schedules containing no documents: see Rogers v. Crookshank, 4 C. L. J. 45.

"Possession or Power."—The party's solicitor, who has in his books and papers entries relating to the party's affairs, cannot be compelled to produce them, nor can the party be required to get and produce copies: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 237 (reversed, on another point, in appeal, Ib., 286).

Documents admitted by a defendant, sued as administratrix, to be in her hands individually, but not in her representative capacity, were ordered to be produced: Fox v. Sleeman, 17 P. R. 492.

"Usual purposes."

"The Usual Purposes" mentioned in this Rule include the inspection, and taking of copies by the opposite party; but where documents were mentioned as being in the hands of a third person, who refused to give them up until paid certain charges, it was held that the opposite party must content himself with inspecting them, and taking copies, unless he would agree to indemnify his opponent against the costs of obtaining the documents: Hogaboom v. Cox, 15 P. R. 23. Rule 348.

Documents produced should ordinarily be deposited in the office in which the proceedings are being taken, (and the former order (Form 96) directed them to be deposited with the affidavit on production), and that practice must, doubtless, still be followed, but not in the case of books in daily use: Macdonnell v. McKay, 2 Chy. Ch. 141; though inspection of these must be allowed at reasonable times: Hamelyn v. Whyte, 6 P. R. 143. In practice it is not the custom to deposit the documents, unless specially required by the opposite party; and upon an undertaking being given to allow inspection, when required, of books in constant use, the deposit of them may be dispensed with: Re Ross, 5 Ont. App. 82. Where necessary, any convenient place for inspection may be named by special order: see Hamelyn v. Whyte, supra; Gabbett v. Cavendish, 3 Sw. 267 (n), (a case of books in daily use): Prestney v. Colchester, 24 Ch. D. 376; (old records and books): Wagner v. Mason, 6 P. R. 188, (documents in which other persons were interested). Deposit of documents.

Probably, notices to produce under this Rule, as under Chy. O. 134, are for the purposes of a trial only, and can not be used for the purposes of a reference, but the Master to whom the reference is directed may be applied to for a direction for production: Hilderbroom v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 389; Rule 411. See also Shelly v. Hussey, 8 P. R. 250. Production before Referees, or Masters.

See further as to production before Masters, and Referees, notes to Rules 399 and 411; and Cochrane v. Morrison, 10 P. R. 606.

In an action on a marine policy, an order that the plaintiffs and all other persons interested produce the ship's papers in accordance with the practice in that behalf before The Judicature Act, was held not superseded by it, and therefore proper: China Trans-Pacific S. S. Co. v. Commercial Union, 8 Q. B. D. 142.

As to restoring to parties documents left for inspection in the office of a Master: see Darling v. Darling, 10 P. R. 1.

Postponement of Discovery Pending Decision on Point of Law.—Under Rule 122, the Court may order any point of law which is raised to be argued, and may postpone inspection of documents until such point has been determined: DeCorteret v. Lond Security Co., 42 W. R. 104; 70 L. T. 323; 7 R. 16; Engeland v. Mitchell, 13 O. L. R. 184; and may make the like order where some issue of fact ought to be first determined: Rule 352. Postponing production.

Discovery and Production of Documents Generally.—Courts of Equity have always compelled the production of documents. The Common Law Courts did so to a very limited extent, but the practice was extended by statute: R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 169, 170; 41 Vict. c. 8, s. 3. And now under The Judicature Act, the right is regulated by the rules previously existing in the Court of Chancery: Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644, 658; and the Common Law rules are entirely at an end: Cotton, L.J., in Eade v. Jacobs, 3 Ex. D. 337, explained in Bidder v. Bridges, 29 Ch. D. 29, in which it was decided that the defendant has no larger right to discovery than the plaintiff. Production is a matter of right (subject to any right of privilege or protection), and is not a matter in the discretion of the Court: Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 423; Atherley v. Harvey, 36 L. T. What must be produced.

551; except where sought under Rule 349, when the Court would appear to have a discretion as to the documents to be produced.

A plea of purchase for value without notice was formerly available as a bar in Chancery, in a suit for discovery in aid of proceedings at law, but was not available against either discovery, or relief, in cases in which the Court of Chancery had concurrent jurisdiction. Section 16 (c) of the Act, therefore, does not protect defendants who set up such a defence from giving discovery, as the Supreme Court does not now exercise the mere auxiliary jurisdiction of the former Court of Chancery, but has complete jurisdiction over the whole action: Emmerson v. Ind, 12 App. Cas. 300; 56 L. T. 778.

All material documents unless some ground of privilege made out.

Every material document (see Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. at p. 411), must be produced, unless it is shown to be privileged; though where the materiality depends upon the determination of a question in dispute, and the discovery sought is calculated to cause considerable trouble, or to prove oppressive and vexatious to the party from whom it is sought, the Court may act upon Rule 352, and postpone the discovery until the question has been determined: Wood v. Anglo-Italian Bank, 34 L. T. 255; Evans v. Jaffray, 3 O. L. R. 327. See also notes to Rule 352.

It is the duty of a party, who, after filing an affidavit, discovers a document of which his opponent has a right to have production, but which is not disclosed in the schedule, to inform his opponent of the discovery, either by a supplementary affidavit (the proper course), or at least by notice: Mitchell v. Dorley Moin Colliery Co., 1 Cab. & Ell. 215.

Where the documents produced indicate that there are other documents in the possession of the party making the affidavit, which are not produced, such other documents unless shown to be privileged will be ordered to be produced: Kent Coal Co. v. Duguid, 1910, 1 K. B. 904; 102 L. T. 225; 103 L. T. 89; Ormerod v. St. George's Iron Works, 95 L. T. 695. A document delivered under seal to a banker (e.g., in a sealed packet), is not exempt from production by the banker as a witness: Rex v. Daye, 1908, 2 K. B. 333; 99 L. T. 165, and semble, the owner, if liable to produce it, could not, by sealing it up, prevent its inspection.

Everything which will throw light upon the case: Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; Boyd v. Marchment, 13 O. L. R. 468; or which may help the case; Dinn v. Brandon, 79 L. T. Jour. 196; Cameron v. Comeron, 10 P. R. 522; Compagnie Financière, etc., v. Peruvian Guano Co., 11 Q. B. D. at p. 63, is primâ facie subject to production, and inspection.

Letters written, though not mailed, must be produced; the mere fact that they were not forwarded is no ground of exemption: Cameron v. Comeron, 10 P. R. 522.

Photographs are "documents": Fox v. Sleeman, 17 P. R. 492.

Discovery of documents clearly immaterial to the question at the trial will not be compelled before trial: see note, p. 836.

Materiality.

As a rule only those documents material to the issue to be tried can be required to be produced; documents which may be material on a reference, if the relief claimed is granted, are not "material" before trial: see Dickerson v. Rodcliffe, 17 P. R. 586; and notes infra, p. 837.

The Court, however, does not in general distinguish nicely between the materiality of the discovery to the matter to be tried at the hearing, and by way of consequential relief; still if the discovery is such as might be used to the prejudice of the party, irrespective of the suit, the Court will look narrowly to the question, whether there is reasonable prospect of its being of material service at the hearing: Carver v. Pinto Leite, L. R. 7 Chy. 90; Heugh v. Garrett, 44 L. J. Chy. 305; 32 L. T. 45; Republic of Costa Rica v. Erlanger, L. R. 19 Eq. 33; Graham, q. t. v. Temperance & G. L. A. Co., 16 P. R. 536; and where the plaintiff's right to judgment was conceded, discovery was ordered before decree as to matters which would be referred to a Master: McDonald v. McArthur, 7 C. L. T. 28, following Elmer v. Creasy, L. R. 9 Chy. 69. Rule 348.

Where, in an action for libel, defendant has pleaded justification, and has pleaded or delivered particulars in support of the plea, the issues to be tried are limited to the particulars, and discovery is also limited to those matters: Yorkshire Provident, etc., v. Gilbert & Rivington, 1895, 2 Q. B. 148; Arnold v. Bottomley, 1908, 2 K. B. 151; 98 L. T. 777. Where publication is admitted, and an apology and payment into Court pleaded, production of the original MS. of the libellous contribution was not ordered: Hope v. Brash, 1897, 2 Q. B. 188; see also Parnell v. Walter, 24 Q. B. D. 441; Blanc v. Burrows, 12 T. L. R. 521, where in an action against a newspaper for libel, the editor was responsible for the publication, it was held not relevant to inquire from whom he got his information, or the means taken to test its truth: see also note to Rule 343, supra, p. 821.

Where a question, in an action on an insurance policy, was whether the plaintiff's answer to the question, whether he had been subject to asthma, was material under 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 33 (2), (see now R. S. O. c. 183, s. 156 (5)), which provided that no untrue statement should vitiate the contract unless material, it was held that the materiality was a question for the jury, and defendants were ordered to produce all other applications, and medical examinations, in which the answer as to asthma had been in the affirmative, with a view to the plaintiff's showing that in such cases the company had treated the answer as immaterial: Ferguson v. Provident Institution, 15 P. R. 366.

A defendant is entitled to inspect documents evidencing the contract sued on, though he does not admit their genuineness: Benjamin v. Saulez, 6 Ir. R. C. L. 16; and documents bearing upon the amount of damage, though there is no question of liability to be tried, but assessment of damages only: Pape v. Lister, L. R. 6 Q. B. 242.

After judgment for the plaintiff in an action for the infringement of a patent, he is entitled to inspection of defendant's books, and to an account, although an appeal may be pending from the judgment: Sarby v. Easterbrook, L. R. 7 Ex. 207. Inspection.

Discovery of the documents must be given, though the party may not be bound to produce them for inspection: Rumbold v. Forteath, 3 K. & J. 44; Lazarus v. Mozley, 5 Jur. N. S. 1119; Manby v. Bewicke, 8 D. M. & G. 476; Kain v. Farrer, W. N. 1877, 266; New British Investment Co. v. Peed, 3 C. P. D. 196; and see Owen v. Wynn, 9 Ch. D. 29; Re Pickering, 25 Ch. D. 247.

The party making an affidavit on production must, if necessary, seek the necessary information from his present or former agents: Earl of Glengall v. Frazer, 2 Hare, 99; McIntosh v. G. W. Railway, 4 DeG. & S. 544; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. Information to be sought by party producing.

Rule 348.

644; see Rasbothom v. Shropshire, etc., 24 Ch. D. 110; Southwork v. Quick, 2 Q. B. D. 321; Bolcklow v. Fisher, 10 Q. B. D. 161; see also Horris v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 18 P. R. 285; Foakes v. Webb, 28 Ch. D. 287. In an action on a policy of marine insurance, the defendants obtained an order that the action should be stayed until the plaintiffs satisfied the Court that they had done all in their power to obtain production of the ship's papers: West of England Bank v. Canton Co., 2 Ex. D. 472; but where the person in whose control the documents were, was not within the jurisdiction, and it was difficult, if not impossible, to obtain the discovery, the Court refused to stay proceedings: Froser v. Burrows, 2 Q. B. D. 624; and where executors were sued for trust funds alleged to have been received by their testator, it was held that they were not bound to make inquiry of the testator's bankers, to enable them to say whether or not the fund had been paid to the bankers at a period 20 years prior to the testator's death, and that inquiry into transactions of so remote a date was no part of their duty: Alliott v. Smith, 1805, 2 Ch. 111.

Difficulty in obtaining production.

Mere difficulty, or inconvenience, in giving discovery, is no reason for not giving it. Thus a railway company were required to give discovery of the contents of books in the possession of themselves or their agents extending over a series of years, to show the receipt of goods specifically delivered to them for carriage: Holl v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 35 L. T. 848. See also Mertens v. Hoigh, 11 W. R. 792.

Documents not in party's possession.

If documents not in the possession of a party are required to be produced, or information respecting them given, the party is entitled to be indemnified against the cost of obtaining the documents, or the information: Homelyn v. Whyte, 6 P. R. 143; Bethell v. Casson, 12 W. R. 200; Hogoboom v. Cox, 15 P. R. 23.

Secondary evidence.

Though documents are privileged from production, the opposite party may nevertheless give secondary evidence of them: Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759; 78 L. T. 283.

Copies.

A party who has a right to have documents produced for his inspection has also a right to take copies of them: Pratt v. Pratt, 30 W. R. 837; 51 L. J. Chy. 838; 47 L. T. 249; W. N. 1882, 117; and such copies may, under proper safeguards, be allowed to be taken by photography: Lewis v. Londesborough, 1893, 2 Q. B. 191.

As to obtaining copies: see Rules 193, 194.

Privileged documents.

Privilege and Protection from Production.—The general rules as to privilege in evidence, are applicable in regard to protection from discovery: Wadeer v. East Indian Co., 2 Jur. N. S. 407; Clegg v. Edmonson, 22 Beav. 125. See Greenough v. Gaskell, 1 M. & K. 100.

The following are some of the principal classes of cases in which documents need not be produced:—

On ground of public policy.

1. State Documents and the Like, the Production of which is not in the Public Interest, and is against Public Policy.—Kain v. Farrer, W. N. 1877, 266; 37 L. T. 469; H. M. S. Bellerophon, 31 L. T. 756; 23 W. R. 248; 44 L. J. Adm. 5; Hennessey v. Wright, 21 Q. B. D. 509; Wright v. Mills, 62 L. T. 558; Ford v. Blest, 6 T. L. R. 295. But it must be stated in the affidavit how these are privileged: Kain v. Farrer, supra; and in such case it is for the head of the department, having the custody of such documents, not for the Judge, to determine whether the production will be injurious to the public service: Bradley v. McIntosh, 5 Ont. 227; Hennessey v. Wright, 21 Q. B. D. 509; Hughes v.

Vargas, 9 R. 661; 9 T. L. R. 551; see Re Joseph Horgreaves, 1900, 1 Ch. 347. Rule 348.

As to privilege by reason of a disclosure being injurious to the administration of justice: see Humphrey v. Archibald, 21 Ont. 553; 20 Ont. App. 267.

2. Documents, the Production of which would Tend to Involve the Party in a Criminal Charge, or to Subject Him to a Penalty.—Webb v. East, 5 Ex. D. 23; Fisher v. Owen, 8 Ch. D. 645; Allhusen v. Labouchere, 3 Q. B. D. 654; Hill v. Compbell, L. R. 10 C. P. 222; Boyle v. Wiseman, 10 Ex. 647; see Waters v. Earl of Shaftsbury, 14 W. R. 259; Pickerel, etc., Co. v. Moore, 17 P. R. 287; or forfeiture: Marborough v. Whitwood, 1897, 2 Q. B. 111; Atty.-Gen. v. Toronto Junction Recreation Club, 7 O. L. R. 248; but the objection must be made upon oath: Webb v. East, supra, Bromley v. Graham, 11 P. R. 451; Power v. Ellis, 6 S. C. R. 1; and must be made in an affidavit pursuant to a notice under Rule 348, or an order for production; such an objection taken on a motion is no ground for refusing an order: Spokes v. Grosvenor, etc., Hotel Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. D. 124; 76 L. T. 677; National Association of Operative Plasterers v. Smithies, 1906, A. C. 434; 95 L. T. 71. The penalty and forfeiture clauses of the 13 Eliz. c. 5, and 27 Eliz. c. 4 (see R. S. O. (1897), c. 334, ss. 2, 6), cannot be used to prevent production by parties to deeds which are impeached under those statutes: Bunn v. Bunn, 4 DeG. J. & S. 316; Mortin v. Treacher, 16 Q. B. D. 513; but see Society of Apothecaries v. Nottingham, W. N. 1875, 259. Involving party in criminal charge.

An action for pound breach, claiming treble damages, is a penal action, and the plaintiff is not entitled to an affidavit of documents: Jones v. Jones, 22 Q. B. D. 425; Hobbs v. Hudson, 25 Q. B. D. 232; but where the action is for a sum imposed by statute by way of compensation, the plaintiff is entitled to an affidavit: Adams v. Batley, 18 Q. B. D. 625; and see Saunders v. Wiel, 1892, 2 Q. B. 321.

The mere fact that a party disobeying the order of the Court granting the plaintiff the relief claimed would be liable to a penalty, is no ground for refusing discovery: Derbyshire v. Derby, 1896, 2 Q. B. 297; 1897, A. C. 550; 74 L. T. 747; 77 L. T. 107.

See also note to Rule 343, p. 821.

Generally, when fraud is charged, no privilege can be claimed for documents relating to the alleged fraud: Ferner v. Williams, 11 Jur. N. S. 902; Philips v. Holmer, 25 W. R. 578; Chorlton v. Coombes, 4 Giff. 372; Mornington v. Mornington, 2 J. & H. 697; Williams v. Quebrada Ry., 1895, 2 Ch. 751; 73 L. T. 397; Smith v. Hunt, 1 O. L. R. 334; but see Griffin v. Fawkes, 17 P. R. 540; Bullivant v. A.-G. Victoria, 1901, A. C. 196.

A witness can no longer be excused from answering questions on the ground that they may criminate, or tend to criminate himself: see note preceding Rule 327, p. 797, supra; but it has not been determined whether the Acts there referred to render a witness or party liable to produce documents which may incriminate, or tend to incriminate him, or a corporation whose servant he is.

3. Documents Relating Exclusively to the Party's Own Title, or Case, or to the Evidence by which it is to be Established.—Owen v. Wynn, 9 Ch. D. 29; Dow v. Eley, 2 H. & M. 725; Ingilby v.

Rule 348.

Shafto, 33 Beav. 31; Commissioner of Sewers v. Glasse, L. R. 15 Eq. 302; Stovel v. Coles, 4 Chy. Ch. 9; Green v. Amey, 2 Chy. Ch. 138. In such case his opponent is not entitled to see his deeds, etc., in order to "pick holes" in them: Owen v. Wynn, 9 Ch. D. 29; but it must appear that they do not relate also to the title of the opposite party: Clegg v. Edmonson, 22 Beav. 125; Lind v. Isle of Wight Ferry Company, 8 W. R. 540; Bishop of Winchester v. Bowker, 29 Beav. 479; Felkin v. Lord Herbert, 9 W. R. 756; Bolton v. Corporation of Liverpool, 1 Myl. & K. 88; Jenkyn v. Bushby, 14 W. R. 531; Southwark & Vauxhall Water Company v. Quick, 3 Q. B. D. 315, and it must appear on oath positively, and not on information and belief only, that the documents are exclusively matter of evidence in support of, and not impeaching, the party's own case, and do not support that of the opposite party: Diamond Match Co. v. Hawkesbury Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 577.

Where a defendant claimed title to the property in question through the plaintiff it was held that the deeds under which he claimed were not privileged from production as relating exclusively to his own title: Attorney-General v. Storey, 107 L. T. 430.

The denial of the making of, or an allegation that, a document relating exclusively to the opposite party's own case, is forged, gives no right to call for its production: Griffin v. Fawkes, 17 P. R. 540.

Letters between co-defendants were held not capable of being put in evidence, and therefore, as not supporting the defendant's case, are not privileged: Hey v. De la Hey, W. N. 1886, 101.

Interrogatories seeking discovery in support of a substantive case set up by the defendant were required to be answered by the plaintiff: Bidder v. Bridges, 29 Ch. D. 29; but a party is not entitled to discovery of the manner in which, and the evidence by which, his opponent intends to establish exclusively his case: Ib.

Production cannot be refused merely on the ground that if the plaintiff's claim is unfounded, he has no interest in the documents: Gresley v. Mousley, 2 K. & J. 288.

Production was ordered when, from the circumstances of the case as stated, the Court thought that the cases of the plaintiff and defendant were so interwoven that nothing could relate to the one without relating to the other: Hamilton v. Street, 1 Gr. 327.

For what was held a sufficient description of the documents, and entitling them to protection on this ground: see Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. 400; Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 724; Budden v. Wilkinson, 1893, 5 Q. B. 432; Milbank v. Milbank, 1900, 1 Ch. 376; 82 L. T. 63; Diamond Match Co. v. Hawkesbury Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 577.

It was held by the Court of Appeal in Budden v. Wilkinson, 1893, 2 Q. B. 432, that this rule is not confined to documents relating to the title to land, overruling Maclean v. Jones, 65 L. T. 553; and see Frankenstein v. Gavins H. C. C. Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 62; 76 L. T. 747.

In Budden v. Wilkinson, supra, it was also held that the omission of a statement that the documents did not contain anything impeaching the case or title of the plaintiff was immaterial.

The following statements have been held to sufficiently disclose some ground of privilege: "The said documents relate solely to the case of the defendants, and not to the case of the plaintiff, nor do they tend to support it, and they do not to the best of our knowledge, information and belief, contain anything impeaching the case of the said defendants, wherefore, we object to produce the same and say they are privileged from production": Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. 400; see a discussion of that case, 16 L. J. 263; see also Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 724; and Bulman v. Dixon, 49 L. T. 736. Rule 348.

4. (Properly speaking only a branch of the third head.) A Party's Muniments of Title, which he Swears Relate Solely to his Own Case and do not Contain Anything (in the case of a Plaintiff) Impeaching his Case, or (in the Case of Either a Plaintiff or Defendant), Supporting, or Material to, the Case of the Opposite Party:—Atty.-Gen. v. Newcastle upon Tyne, 1899, 2 Q. B. 478; Minet v. Morgan, L. R. 8 Chy. 361; Morris v. Edwards, 23 Q. B. D. 287; 16 App. Cas. 309; Horton v. Bott, 26 L. J. Ex. 267; New British Invest. Co. v. Peed, 3 C. P. D. 196; Frankenstein v. Gavin's H. C. C. Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 62; Griffin v. Fawkes, 17 P. R. 540; but not documents which tend to support the title of the opposite party: Lyell v. Kennedy, 8 App. Cas. 217, 223, 224; Attorney-General v. Storey, supra, p. 834; see Smoll v. Eccles, 3 P. R. 189; Egremont Burial Board v. Egremont Iron Ore Co., 14 Ch. D. 158; Webster v. Whewall, 15 Ch. D. 120. It was held in the last case, that it was sufficient to swear to the best of the deponent's knowledge, information and belief. The contrary has been held in Manby v. Bewicke, 8 D. M. & G. 476. Muniments of party's title.

It is insufficient to swear generally that the documents are privileged. The affidavit must state the facts upon which the objection is grounded: Gardner v. Irvin, 4 Ex. D. 49; see also Webb v. East, 5 Ex. D. 23; Clergue v. McKay, 3 O. L. R. 478.

An affidavit to protect maps is more readily accepted than in the case of deeds: March v. Bailey, 78 L. T. Jour. 263; see also article on production of documents of title in 78 L. T. Jour. 278.

In an action for the recovery of land, and delivery of deeds relating thereto, in the defendant's possession, the defence of purchaser for valuable consideration without notice does not enable the defendant to resist discovery of such deeds and documents: Emmerson v. Ind., 55 L. T. 422; 34 W. R. 778, but only if he sets that defence up simply (in which case the discovery would not be material to the issue to be tried), not if he also disputes, or does not admit, the plaintiff's title: Ib.; 33 Ch. D. 323; 12 App. Cas. 300.

The defendants, before putting in their statement of defence, moved for the production by the plaintiffs of the conveyance under which they held their land, in order to ascertain whether it contained a reservation of minerals, the defendants alleging that, if it did not, they would submit to a decree at once. It was held that the land having been conveyed to the plaintiffs in fee simple, they were primâ facie entitled to the land down to the centre of the earth, and, unless the defendants could show that the plaintiffs were not so entitled, the latter could not be compelled to produce their title deeds: Egremont Burial Co. v. Egremont Iron Ore Co., 14 Ch. D. 158; see Webster v. Whewall, 15 Ch. D. 120.

The following is a form of statement of objection on this ground, in the affidavit on production: Form.

"I object to produce the documents set forth in the second part of the first schedule, on the ground that they are the muniments of my title to the , and do not to the best of my knowledge, information and belief, contain anything [In the case of a plaintiff, tending to impeach my case or] material to the case of the and tending to support it."

In the case of the defendant it is not necessary that the affidavit should state that the document does not contain anything tending to impeach his own case: Attorney-General v. Newcastle on Tyne, 1899, 2 Q. B. 478; Johnson v. Whitaker, 90 L. T. 535.

Title deeds of defendant in possession.

5. (Also properly speaking a branch of the third class above mentioned.) Title Deeds of Land of Which a Party Defendant is in Possession, in an Action to Recover Possession of the Land by an Adverse Title:—Phillips v. Phillips, 4 Q. B. D. 127; 27 W. R. 939; but the defendant must make an affidavit disclosing what they are: Rumbold v. Forteath (No. 1), 3 K. & J. 44; New British Co. v. Peed, 3 C. P. D. 196; Wrentmore v. Hagley, 46 L. T. 741; see Owen v. Wynn, 9 Ch. D. 29; Lyell v. Kennedy, 8 App. Cas. 217; Daniel v. Ford, W. N. 1883, 52. This rule depends on the circumstance that where claims to the same land in fee simple are made by two different persons, they must be based on inconsistent titles; it cannot therefore be applied to a case where the titles of the plaintiff and defendant are not absolutely adverse, but may to some extent be proved by the same evidence: Ponsonby v. Hartley, W. N. 1883, 13; 74 L. T. Jour. 208; affirmed on appeal though on a different ground, W. N. 1883, 44. In that case the right to possession was not disputed, but the right to minerals was claimed, and the plaintiff relied on a reservation of them, and the plaintiff was allowed to inspect the title deeds, to see if they supported his case.

Form of stating objection.

The following is a form of statement of objection on this ground.—

"I object to produce the documents, etc., on the ground that they relate to the evidence of my right to the possession of the subject matter of this action to which the plaintiff (or defendant) claims an independent title."

Mortgagees' deeds.

6. Mortgage Deeds are privileged until the mortgagee is paid what is due: Chichester v. Donegall, L. R. 5 Chy. 497; Patch v. Ward, L. R. 1 Eq. 426; Jones v. Jones, Kay, App. vi.; Bridgewater v. DeWinton, 12 W. R. 40; Haward v. Robinson, 4 Drew, at p. 526; Weeks v. Stourton, 13 W. R. 489; Freeman v. Butler, 33 Beav. 289; Smith v. Barnes, L. R. 1 Eq. 65; Anon., 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 61; W. N. 1876, 23; Fisher on Mortgages, 4th ed., 302; unless the right to redeem is denied: Patch v. Ward, and Jones v. Jones, supra; Bell v. Chamberlen, 3 Chy. Ch. 429; and where the proceedings are being taken by the mortgagee upon the mortgage deed, inspection of it may be ordered, as of any other document sued on: Emmens v. Middlemiss, 8 P. R. 320.

Irrelevant to the question at the trial.

7. Documents Having no Bearing on the Question to be Tried:—These need not be produced before trial: Merchants Bank v. Tisdale, 6 P. R. 51; Bryce v. McIntyre, 7 P. R. 134; Parker v. Wells, 18 Ch. D. 477; Parnell v. Walter, 24 Q. B. D. 441; 62 L. T. 75; 38 W. R. 270; Whittaker v. Scarborough Past, 1896, 2 Q. B. 148; 74 L. T. 753; Evans v. Jaffray, 3 O. L. R. 327; such as papers relating to details of a trust account, until the right to account has been established: Fennessey v. Clark, 37 Ch. D. 184; McGregor v. McDonald, 11 P. R. 386; Hurst v. Barber, 12 P. R. 467; Bedell v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 670; or of a partnership account, until a partnership, if disputed, is established: Engeland

v. Mitchell, 13 O. L. R. 184; but see Sydney Cheese &c., Assen. v. Brower, 19 P. R. 162; or relating to sales in an action for infringement of trade-mark, until the right to damages is established: Waters v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 1 W. R. 259; and see Graham v. Temperance & G. L. I. Co., 16 P. R. 536; Rule 352. The Court does not distinguish too nicely, however, between documents relating to the question at the hearing and consequential relief (see note p. 831 supra), especially in cases where further inquiries consequent on the establishment of the plaintiff's right may not be directed at the trial, but judgment at the trial may be given as to the matters depending upon the right: Re Morgan, Owen v. Morgan, 39 Ch. D. 316; Sheppard Publishing Co. v. Harkins, 8 O. L. R. 632. Rule 348.

The rule is thus expressed in Graham v. Temperance, etc., 16 P. R. 536, per Street, J., "Wherever discovery is sought in aid of an issue which must be determined at the hearing, the plaintiff is entitled to it, to help him prove the issue; but where it is sought in aid of something which does not form part of what he must prove at the hearing, but is merely consequential to it, the right is not absolute, but discretional, until the plaintiff has established his fundamental right at the hearing." See also Sheppard Publishing Co. v. Harkins, supra.

The plaintiff sued the defendant, who had acted as his stock-broker, for an account, and damages, making general allegations of fraud, and then interrogated with a view to establish the fraud. The defendant refused to answer on the ground that the plaintiff was not entitled to the information till after decree. It was held that the plaintiff was entitled to the discovery to establish his alleged charges of fraud at the trial: Leitch v. Abbott, 31 Ch. D. 374.

A party's case for the purposes of discovery consists of everything which it is reasonable to suppose will directly, or indirectly, enable him either to advance his own case, or damage, or repel, his adversary's: Compagnie Financiere du Pacifique v. Peruvian Guano Co., 11 Q. B. D. 65; English v. Tottie, 1 Q. B. D. 141; Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; Western of Can. Oil Co. v. Walker, 6 P. R. 191; Lawlor v. Murchison, 3 Gr. 553; Ferguson v. Provincial Provident Institution, 15 P. R. 366; and the test of materiality is to assume the party's pleading to be true: Gresley v. Mousley, 2 K. & J. 288; Whyte v. Ahrens, 32 W. R. 311, affirmed in appeal; 26 Ch. D. 717; where it was held that the party was entitled to discovery before giving particulars of fraud under Eng. 1883, R. 202 (see also Leitch v. Abbott, 31 Ch. D. 374; Miller v. Harper, 38 Ch. D. 110; Harbord v. Monk, 6 Ch. D. 616); but a document relating exclusively to the case of the party making discovery is not material: see Wigram on Discovery, 15, 261; Bray on Discovery, 484; Minet v. Morgan, L. R. 8 Chy. 361; Atty.-Gen. v. Emerson, 10 Q. B. D. 191; 62 L. J. Q. B. 67, and per Brett, L.J., 74; Pelle on Discovery, 42.

Irrelevant documents, if disclosed, need not be produced for inspection: Wilson v. Thornbury, L. R. 12 Eq. 617; Central News (Limited) v. Eastern Tel. Co., 28 Sol. Jour., 390; 33 L. J. Q. B. 236. Irrelevancy.

Where there was a bona fide contest as to the right to sell a certain drug alleged to be the subject of a patent of the plaintiff's, it was held that the defendants should not, before trial of the question of right, be compelled to afford discovery of the details and particulars of their buying and selling, so as to disclose their own and their customers' private business transactions: Dickerson v. Radcliffe, 17 P. R. 586; and see Engeland v. Mitchell, 13 O. L. R. 184.

Rule 343.

Libel.

In an action for libel, where a defendant has delivered particulars of a defence of justification, he is not entitled to discovery of documents relating to matters not covered by such particulars: The Yorkshire P. L. Ass. Co. v. Gilbert & Rivington, 1895, 2 Q. B. 148; 72 L. T. 445; Arnold v. Bottomley, 1908, 2 K. B. 151; 98 L. T. 777.

In an action against a newspaper for libel, the plaintiff is not entitled to the production of the original M.S. containing the alleged libel: Hope v. Brash, 1897, 2 Ch. 188; 76 L. T. 823; nor to discovery of the name of the writer, nor of the price paid for the MS., nor of the means taken by defendant to test its truth: Parnell v. Wolter, 24 Q. B. D. 441; nor (where there is no question as to the defendant's solvency) to discovery of the circulation of the newspaper containing the libel: Whittaker v. Scarborough Post, 1896, 2 Q. B. 148; 74 L. T. 753. See also notes p. 819 and 831.

Trade secrets.

In Star Kidney Pad Co. v. Greenwood, 3 Ont. 280, an action on a promissory note given for kidney pads, one defence was that the pads were useless, and possessed no healing properties. Discovery of the recipe or ingredients was refused, the plaintiff resisting the discovery, on the grounds that no representation was made as to the ingredients, which constituted a trade secret, and the disclosure of the same would damage the plaintiff's business. See also Badische Anilin, etc. v. Levinstein, 24 Ch. D. 156; Howe v. McKernon, 30 Beav. 574; Ashworth v. Roberts, 45 Ch. D. 623; but it is in the discretion of the Court to order inspection of documents which might disclose a trade secret: Mistovski v. Mandleburg, 6 T. L. R. 207.

Books of account.

Where books of accounts are produced which contain entries not relating to the matters in question in the action, the party producing them is entitled to seal, or cover up, during inspection by the opposite party, all parts not affecting, or relating to, the matters in question, but an affidavit should be made showing that the parts sealed, or covered up, do not in any way relate to, or affect, the matters in question: see Graham v. Sutton, 1897, 1 Ch. 761; 76 L. T. 369; and Sydney Cheese, etc., Assn. v. Brawer, 19 P. R. 152.

Where a defendant in an action for infringement of a patent is required to produce his books for the purpose of a reference as to profits made by him, he cannot refuse to disclose the names of his customers to whom he has sold goods infringing the plaintiff's patent: Socchorin Corp. v. Chemical & Drugs Co., 1900, 2 Ch. 556; 83 L. T. 206.

Documents held in a different character.

8. Documents held by a Party in a Different Character from that in which he is Sued:—Pindar v. Smith, 6 Madd. 38; Wogner v. Mason, 6. P. R. 187.

Where a defendant claimed that he held documents only as solicitor for a co-defendant also a party, but who had not been called on to produce, nor notified of the application, it was held that he should not have been ordered to produce these documents without the co-defendant being called on to show cause: McGregor v. McDonald, 11 P. R. 386.

Documents in which a third person is interested.

9. Documents in which a Third Person, not a Party to the Action, is Interested—are not for that reason alone protected from production: Kettlewell v. Barstaw, L. R. 7 Chy. 680; Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; but when such documents are in the joint legal (not necessarily corporal: see Reid v. Langlois, 1 Mac. & G. 627; and B. A. Ins. Co. v. Wilkinson, 6 P. R. 268), possession of the third person, and the party from whom production is sought, the latter cannot be required to produce them; see cases supra, Murray v. Watter, Cr. & Ph. 114; Kearsley v. Philipps, 10 Q. B. D. 36, 465 (where all the cases are reviewed), unless there is no interest which can be affected by their production other than the interest of the parties to the action: London & Yorkshire Bank v. Cooper, 15 Q. B. D. 7 and 473. Production will not be required from a party having the sole legal possession, if a third person who is not a party and who has the beneficial interest objects, unless the suit is of such a nature that the Court can say that the party having the legal custody sufficiently represents in the suit the other person interested: Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 45; but where production will not be ordered, the party must give all the information in his power respecting the documents in his affidavit, and also on any examination: Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., supra; Nichols v. Elliott, 3 Gr. 545; Clinch v. Financial Corporation, L. R. 2 Eq. 271; Vyse v. Foster, L. R. 13 Eq. 602; Hadley v. McDougal, L. R. 7 Chy. 312; Evans v. Jaffray, 3 O. L. R. 327. But, although documents in which a third person is interested are not producible, the party excusing production on that ground may nevertheless be required to disclose the contents of such documents: Rattenberry v. Monro, 103 L. T. 560; and see per Jessel, M.R., Swanston v. Lishman, 45 L. T. 360, at p. 361. Rule 348.

Possession by a party's agent, is of course the possession of the party: Murray v. Watter, Cr. & Ph. 114.

A defendant sued as administratrix was held bound to produce material documents admitted to be in her possession, but which she claimed to be entitled to individually, and not in her representative capacity: Fox v. Steeman, 17 P. R. 492; but a personal representative cannot be compelled to produce documents containing entries relating to the affairs of the deceased, when such documents are the private property of the solicitor who acted for the deceased in his lifetime: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 286; 65 L. T. 30.

As to documents in the joint custody of husband and wife: see Fendall v. O'Connell, 29 Ch. D. 899.

A solicitor cannot set up a lien acquired in the cause against the right of other parties to production; and the fact that a lien which may be set up exists, is not a sufficient reason for not ordering production, as the party may be able to free the documents from the lien: Vale v. Oppert, L. R. 10 Chy. 340; Rodick v. Gandell, 12 Beav. 325; 1 De G. M. & G. 763; Lewis v. Powell, 1897, 1 Ch. 678; 76 L. T. 282; Pratt v. Pratt, W. N. 1882, 117; but see Bainbridge v. Blair, 1 Jur. 256. Documents subject to a lien.

A lien of a solicitor on papers does not confer any greater right to refuse production of the documents subject thereto than his client would have; where therefore the client would have to produce the documents, an order may be made requiring the solicitor to produce them subject to his lien, in an action to which the client is a party, if production is necessary in order to do justice to parties other than the client: Re Hawkes, 1898, 2 Ch. 1; 46 W. R. 445.

The Court refused to compel defendants to produce documents which were in their possession solely as directors of a company to which the documents belonged: Williams v. Ingram, 16 T. L. R. 451. Papers belonging to third parties.

Production was not ordered in an action of trespass against a defendant, who was committee of a lunatic, of documents relating to the lunatic's estate, the documents not being in the custody of the party, but in the custody of the Court having jurisdiction in lunacy: Vivian v. Little, 11 Q. B. D. 370.

Form.

The following is a form of statement of objection in the affidavit on this ground:

"I object to produce the documents, etc., . . . on the ground of their being in my possession or power jointly with A. B. [stating the noture of the joint possession]."

For a description held not sufficient to protect on the ground of joint interest, see Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 45.

Communications between solicitor and client.

10. Documents which are Privileged, as being Communications Passing between the Party and his Confidential Professional Adviser, or Agents:—

Of this kind are all communications between a party and his solicitor or other legal adviser, whether made ante or post litem motam, it is enough if they are communications of a confidential character: Smith v. Daniell, L. R. 18 Eq. 649; Original Hartlepool Collieries Co. v. Moon, 30 L. T. 585; (not an open communication: Foakes v. Webb, 28 Ch. D. 287; Rawstone v. Preston, 30 Ch. D. 116); made by, or to, the legal adviser in a professional character: Minet v. Morgan, L. R. 8 Chy. 367; Corporation of Hastings v. Ivoil. Ib., 1017; Macfarlane v. Rolt, L. R. 14 Eq. 580; Homelyn v. Whyte, 6 P. R. 143; Hoffman v. Crerar, 17 P. R. 404; Mostyn v. West Mostyn, 34 L. T. 531; Wilson v. Northampton, L. R. 14 Eq. 477; Eadie v. Addison, 47 L. T. 543; Mayor, etc., of Bristol v. Cox, 26 Ch. D. 678; Proctor v. Smiles, 55 L. J. Q. B. 527; Lowden v. Blakey, 23 Q. B. D. 332; Bullivant v. A.-G. Victoria, 1901, A. C. 196; see Lyell v. Kennedy, 9 App. Cas. 81; including communications with a former solicitor: Thomas v. Sec. of State for India, 18 W. R. 312; Marriott v. Anchor, etc., 3 Giff. 304; Wilson v. Brunskill, 2 Chy. Ch. 147; and the predecessors in title of the party: Minet v. Morgan, and Mostyn v. W. Mostyn, supra.

The privilege may be claimed in respect to communications to a solicitor, who besides being the solicitor of a corporation, is also an officer of the corporation, and examinable as such: Salford v. Lever, 24 Q. B. D. 595.

It was held insufficient to state that the documents were privileged, as communications between deponent and her solicitor. It is necessary to state that they are professional communications of a confidential character: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 237, 286; Clergue v. McKay, 3 O. L. R. 478; Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1900, 2 Ch. 315.

Communications by a clerk of the defendant company to the company, containing references to advice given by the company's solicitor, whom the clerk had consulted, are privileged, being held to be the same as if written by the solicitors: Boughton v. Citizens Insurance Co., 11 P. R. 110.

Where a document is privileged, the production of it as an exhibit to a witness in another action is not a waiver of the privilege for all purposes, even as to a person entitled to inspection of the deposition in which it was referred to: Goldstone v. Williams, 1899, 1 Ch. 47; 79 L. T. 373.

The privilege is not lost by the death of the client: Bullivant v. Attorney-General of Victoria, 1901, A. C. 196.

Rule 848.

Extent of this ground of privilege.

The privilege extends to a person who, unknown to the client, had ceased to practise as a solicitor when the communications were made: Calley v. Richards, 19 Beav. 401; see also L. R. 18 Eq. 654; and to communications with reference to actual or impending litigation coming from any third person employed by the solicitor, or at his instance, such as his town agent: Cott v. Tourle, 23 L. T. 485; 19 W. R. 56, or clerk, accountant, or other skilled person: see Lawrence v. Campbell, 4 Dr. 485; Steel v. Stewart, 1 Ph. 471; Churton v. Frewen, 2 Dr. & S. 390; Hooper v. Gumm, 10 W. R. 644; Birmingham & M. Motor Co. v. London & N. W. Ry., 1913, 3 K. B. 850; or in any other way procured by the solicitor, or by the client or his agent, at the instance of the solicitor: Bustros v. Whyte, 1 Q. B. D. 423; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644; Taylor v. Batten, 4 Q. B. D. 85; and to documents prepared with a bonâ fide intention of being laid before a solicitor in a contemplated action: Southwark v. Quick, 3 Q. B. D. 315; Thompson v. Maryland Casualty Co., 11 O. L. R. 44; Imrie v. Wilson, 3 O. W. N. 929; Wheeler v. Le Marchant, 17 Ch. D. 675; (see that case explained and upheld in Colcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759); Kennedy v. Lyell, 23 Ch. D. 387; S. C., 9 App. Cas. 81; Macdonnld v. Norwich Union, etc., 10 P. R. 501; Lowden v. Blakey, 23 Q. B. D. 332; even though they answer the purpose of giving information to other people as well: Hunter v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 16 P. R. 385; but see Jones v. Great Central Ry., infra, p. 842; letters from a third person in answer to inquiries by a party's solicitor with a view to anticipated litigation: McCorquodale v. Bell, 1 C. P. D. 471; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644; or in answer to similar inquiries of the party himself at the suggestion of his solicitor: Donohue v. Johnston, 14 P. R. 476; or in reasonable contemplation of litigation: Collins v. London General Omnibus Co., 5 R. 355; 68 L. T. 831; anonymous letters to solicitors about the case: Young v. Holloway, 12 P. D. 167; documents material to the party's case procured by his solicitors of their own motion for the purposes of the action: The Palermo, 9 P. D. 6; Guelph C. Co. v. Whitehead, 9 P. R. 509, and indicating also names of witnesses: Elmsley v. Miller, 10 O. L. R. 343; documents relating only to the conduct of the suit: Ingilby v. Shafto, 33 Beav. 31; Gandee v. Stonsfield, 4 DeG. & J. 1; Turner v. Burkenshaw, 11 W. R. 851; papers relating to a former action, and privileged therein: Bullock v. Corry, 3 Q. B. D. 356; Bacon v. Bacon, W. N. 1876, 96; Nordon v. Defries, 8 Q. B. D. 508; Branford v. Branford, 4 P. D. 72; Pearce v. Foster, 15 Q. B. D. 114; Canadian Pacific Ry. v. Conmee, 11 P. R. 197; Colcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759; 78 L. T. 283; but not otherwise: Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; Re Worswick, 38 Ch. D. 370; a doctor's report of an examination at the instance of a party's solicitor: Friend v. London, Chatham and Dover Ry. Co., 2 Ex. D. 437; and reports of surveyors as to the condition of a cargo, made solely for the case of one of the parties, or for the opinion of his legal adviser: The Theodore Korner, 3 P. D. 162, see Cossy v. London, Brighton, etc., Ry. Co., L. R. 5 C. P. 146; and a report of an accident made in similar circumstances: Collins v. London General Omnibus Co., 68 L. T. 831; 5 R. 355; Hunter v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 16 P. R. 385; see also Shapter v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 O. W. N. 1334.

But where a member of a trade union was entitled to the legal assistance of the solicitor of the union, on satisfying the union that he had a good ground of complaint, it was held, in an action by him against his employer for wrongful dismissal, that letters by him to the union for the purpose of obtaining the solicitor's assistance were not privileged: Jones v. Great Central Ry., 1910, A. C. 4; 100 L. T. 710.

But such a report cannot be privileged, merely by being made on a printed heading stating it is made for the information of the party's solicitor, and his advice thereon; the affidavit on production must distinctly show that the report was provided solely for the purpose of being used by the party's solicitor in any litigation which might arise in respect of the subject matter of the report: see Swaisland v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 O. W. N. 960.

All statements made at joint consultations between parties and their respective solicitors or counsel, even though made by one party to the solicitor or counsel of the other are privileged; so also is a statement made by one party to the solicitor of the other at an interview between them alone, held at the request of the other party Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, W. N. 1896, 74; 74 L. T. 783; 65 L. J. Ch. 794.

In a probate action an order for production of documents, the private property of plaintiff's solicitor, containing entries by the solicitor as to the deceased's affairs, was refused: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 237, 286; and where a plaintiff propounded a will which was contested on the ground of the alleged insanity of the testatrix, briefs of counsel in the possession of the plaintiff, who had acted as solicitor for the testatrix in the action to which they related were held to be privileged: Curtis v. Beaney, 1911, P. 181; 105 L. T. 303.

Documents publici juris.

Although copies of documents, which are publici juris, are themselves, unprivileged, a collection of entries in public records, and registers, and of photographs of tombstones, and houses, will be protected from production, when it has been made or directed by the solicitors of a party for his defence, and is the result of the professional knowledge, skill and research of those solicitors: Lyell v. Kennedy, 27 Ch. D. 1; 53 L. J. Chy. 937.

Transcript of shorthand notes.

Transcript of shorthand notes of proceedings in open Court are not privileged: Re Worswick, Robson v. Worswick, 38 Ch. D. 370; Learoyd v. Halifax Banking Co., 1893, 1 Ch. 696; 68 L. T. 158; and see North Australia Co. v. Goldsborough, 1893, 2 Ch. 381; Goldstone v. Williams, Deacon & Co., 1899, 1 Ch. 47; 79 L. T. 383; Lambert v. Home, 1914, 3 K. B. 86.

The giving of an extract, or copy, of an opinion of counsel procured by the solicitor for his client, on the subject matter of a suit, to the solicitor on the other side, does not prevent the opinion from being privileged: Carey v. Cuthbert, 6 L. R. Ir. Eq. 599; but as to making use of the copy so given: see Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759.

Communications not in professional character.

Protection cannot be claimed on this ground for communications made to a solicitor, but not in his character of solicitor: Greenough v. Gaskill, 1 M. & K. 98; Rudd v. Frank, 9 C. L. T. 387; Thomas v. Rawlings, 27 Beav. 140; as where he was not simply advising as solicitor, but negotiating on his own account in the transaction impeached in the action: Pawson v. Merchants Bank, 11 P. R. 21; and see Bullivant v. Attorney-General, 1901, A. C. 196; or was plaintiff's patent or other agent, as well as his solicitor; and the communication was in the former capacity: Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co., 55 L. T. 482; Clergue v. McKay, 1901, 3 O. L. R. 63; nor for letters to a party's solicitor, not induced by inquiries: McCorquodale v. Bell, supra, p. 841 (sed vide Young v. Holloway, 12 P. D. 167, supra, p. 84); nor for documents not obtained by direction of the party's solicitor, but by way of precaution and by possibility to be laid before him for the purpose of defence to an action, if any should be brought: Cook v. N. Metropolitan Tramway Co., 6 T. L. R. 22; and see Rawstone v. Preston, 30 Ch. D. 116; Thompson v. Maryland Casualty Co., supra, p. 841; nor for statements made voluntarily, or at the party's request for his own information, by his unprofessional agents: Bustros v. White; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, supra, p. 841; though made in confidence, and so marked: Hopkinson v. Lord Burghley, L. R. 2 Chy. 477; see Wimon v. Bradstreet, 2 Chy. Ch. 77; nor where fraud is charged: see infra. Rule 348.

Where documents are produced in such cases, an undertaking may be required from the opposite party not to use the documents for any collateral purpose: Hopkinson v. Lord Burghley, supra; Richardson v. Hastings, 7 Beav. 354.

Notes on a bill of costs of proceedings in Chambers recorded by the solicitor are not privileged: Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1900, 2 Ch. 315, following Greenough v. Gaskell, 1 M. & K. at pp. 102-104; and Re Worswick, Robson v. Worswick, 38 Ch. D. at p. 373.

Protection also cannot be claimed for information derived from collateral sources, and not directly from the client: Marsh v. Keith, 1 Dr. & Sm. 342; Ford v. Tennant, 32 Beav. 162; Desborough v. Rawlins, 3 M. & Cr. 515; Re Land Credit Society, 15 W. R. 703; nor for mere collateral facts, such as the client's residence, unless communicated confidentially; e.g., as his client's hiding place: see Heath v. Crealock, L. R. 15 Eq. 257; Re Arnott, Ex parte, Chief Official Receiver, 37 W. R. 223; 60 L. T. 109; or address: see Bursill v. Tanner, 55 L. J. Q. B. 53; (see also the distinction between confidential communications, and those of facts patent to the senses: Kennedy v. Lyell, 48 L. T. 455; 23 Ch. D. 387); nor for documents passing between the party's solicitor and third persons to enable the solicitor to advise his client, unless they were for the purpose of obtaining information, evidence, or legal advice with reference to litigation existing, or contemplated, between the parties to the action: Wheeler v. Le Marchant, 17 Ch. D. 675; (see that case explained and upheld in Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759); Pavitt v. Metropolitan Tramways Co., W. N. 1883, 100; Original Hartlepool Collieries Co. v. Moon, 30 L. T. 193, 585; Betts v. Grand Trunk Ry., 12 P. R. 86, 634; Conmee v. Can. Pac. Ry. Co., 9 C. L. T. 36; Learoyd v. Halifax Banking Co., 1893, 1 Ch. 686; North Australia, etc., Co. v. Goldsborough, 1893, 2 Ch. 381; (see Westinghouse v. Midland, etc., 48 L. T. 98, 462, as to what constitutes lis mota); nor for professional opinions given partly for the benefit of the party requiring production: Reynolds v. Godlee, 4 K. & J. 88; Talbot v. Marshfield, 13 W. R. 885; Wynne v. Humberston, 27 Beav. 421; nor in respect of communications passing between a solicitor and his client, who was the predecessor in title of the plaintiff and defendant, in respect to property in dispute: Platt v. Buck, 4 O. L. R. 421. Of collateral information. Between solicitor and a third person.

Professional communications are excepted from protection in partnership actions, and actions between beneficiaries and trustees, where such communications had been obtained for the sake of, and paid for out of, the partnership, or trust estate: Gaurond v. Edison Gower Bell Tel. Co., 59 L. T. 813; 57 L. J. Chy. 498.

Rule 348.

No privilege can be claimed by a trustee as against his cestui que trust, for letters passing between the trustee and the solicitor, relating to the trust before action brought: Re Mason, Mason v. Cattley, 22 Ch. D. 609; Talbot v. Marshfield, supra, p. 843; Re Postlewaite, Postlewaite v. Rickman, 85 Ch. D. 722.

Fraud.

Where fraud is charged, communications between solicitor and client as to the subject-matter of an alleged fraud are not privileged in an action: Williams v. Quebrada Ry. Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 751; 73 L. T. 397; Smith v. Hunt, 1 O. L. R. 334; Mornington v. Mornington, 2 J. & H. 697; Charlton v. Coombes, 4 Giff. 372, 382; Reynell v. Sprye, 10 Beav. 51; 11 Beav. 618; see also as to the effect of a charge of fraud: Re Postlewaite, P. v. Rickman, supra; Reg. v. Cox, 14 Q. B. D. 153; Reg. v. Bullivant, 1900, 2 Q. B. 163; 82 L. T. 493, subsequently reversed in the House of Lords, because in that case no fraud was charged; see 1901, A. C. 196.

Secondary evidence of privileged document.

The privilege where it exists only prevents the production of the document, or the disclosure by the solicitor of its contents; secondary evidence of its contents may be given: Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759.

Where a solicitor or his clerk has improperly produced in legal proceedings documents which were privileged, as being communications from his client, the latter may apply to the Court to restrain by injunction the use of such documents, or copies thereof: Ashburton v. Pape, 1913, 2 Ch. 469; 109 L. T. 381.

Form of claim of privilege.

Form of Claim of Privileged Communications.—It is not enough to state that the documents are privileged, as being communications between the deponent and his solicitor. It is necessary to state that they are professional communications of a confidential character: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 286; Clergue v. McKay, 3 O. L. R. 478; and, in the case of a correspondence, in respect of which privilege is claimed, it must be so stated in the affidavit on production, without any ambiguity, in order that there may be no doubt as to its being privileged. That letters were "in reference to the matters which are now in question in this action," was held to be too indefinite a description: Clergue v. McKay, 3 O. L. R. 478.

The following are forms of statement of objections to produce communications between solicitor and client, on the ground of privilege:

"I object to produce the documents set forth in the second part of the said first schedule, on the ground that they are communications passing between me (or A. B., acting on my behalf), and my solicitor, with reference to matters which are now in question in this cause: and that the same are confidential communications between solicitor and client."

Or, "are communications written at the instance, and for the use of my solicitor for the purpose of the proceedings in this action, and of giving advice to me with reference to the same."

Or, "are communications between A. B. and myself, for the purpose of being laid before my solicitor for obtaining his advice, and with a view to this litigation."

Or, "are communications written, and sent by A. B. for the confidential and private information of my solicitor, with a view to the institution of legal proceedings against ."

"I object to produce the documents set forth in the second part of the first schedule, on the ground that being communications between solicitor and client they are privileged": Hamelyn v. White, 6 P. R. 143, followed, though with doubt, in Hoffman v. Crerar, 17 P. R. 404; see also Macfarlane v. Holt, L. R. 14 Eq. 580. Rule 348.

11. Communications with an Unprofessional Agent in anticipation of litigation, and with a view to the prosecution of, or defence to, a claim to the matter in dispute, were held to be privileged in Ross v. Gibbs, L. R. 8 Eq. 522; Conmee v. Can. Pac. Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 297; the later cases, however, seem to show that such communications are not privileged, even where made during, and for the express purpose of, litigation: see Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 423; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644, 658; Slade v. Tucker, 14 Ch. D. 824; Martin v. Butchard, 36 L. T. 732; see also Reid v. Langlois, 1 Mac. & G. 638; Hamilton v. Nott, L. R. 16 Eq. 112; see, however, Thompson v. Maryland Casualty Co., 11 O. L. R. 44. Communication with unprofessional agent.

See also Armstrong v. Toronto Street Railway Co., 15 P. R. 208, where in an action for damages for personal injuries received in a tramway accident, a report made to defendants by the conductor of the car was held not privileged as a whole, while the portion of the report containing the names of eye-witnesses was held to be protected.

Further Examples of Non-privileged Communications. — The following are further instances of communications not privileged:— Copies of letters between defendants and third persons procured for the purpose of defence by the solicitors of the defendants from such third persons, the defendants not having kept copies of the correspondence: Chadwick v. Bowman, 16 Q. B. D. 561. Instances of communications not privileged

A transcript of shorthand notes of evidence in an action instituted by a party, with a view to ulterior proceedings not then contemplated, and for the purpose of submitting the same to counsel in such ulterior proceedings if taken: Rowstone v. Preston, 30 Ch. D. 116; Cook v. N. Metropolitan Tramway Co., 6 T. L. R. 22.

Opinions of engineers as to the validity of a patent, obtained with a view to being forearmed, in case litigation should arise: Toronto Gravel Road Co. v. Taylor, 6 P. R. 227; reports made to an insurance company by their medical officer, and by friends of the assured, to whom the company was referred, as to his health and habits: Mahony v. National Widow's Life Ass. Fund, L. R. 6 C. P. 252; reports of persons employed to survey a tug, for the purposes of an action for damages for improperly constructing the tug: Martin v. Butchard, 36 L. T. 732; correspondence between a vendor and a vendee relative to the subject matter of the action by a subvendee, but which could not be said to be confidential communications with a view to litigation: English v. Tottie, 1 Q. B. D. 141; letters from a defendant's unprofessional agent to defendant, relative to the subject matter of an action, not sent in order to be laid before the defendant's solicitor: Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644; an agreement of compromise between the defendant and a third person relative to the subject matter of an action: Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; Richards v. Morgan, 4 B. & S. 641; papers obtained from experts, by arbitrators for their own guidance: Ponsford v. Swaine, 1 J. & H. 433; statements made to a reporter in the employment of the proprietor of a newspaper: Davis v. Shepstone, 55 L. T. 1. Opinions of Engineers, etc.

Bankers' books.

Banker's books are not privileged from production, whether the bank be a party, or whether by a subpœna duces tecum production is sought from the bank as a witness: Hannum v. McKae, 18 P. R. 185. Customers' accounts are not privileged at Common Law, nor under our Banking Acts: Ib.

Correspondence after suit.

Correspondence between co-defendants after suit, is not as a general rule privileged: Hamilton v. Nott, L. R. 16 Eq. 112; see also Sankey v. Alexander, 8 L. R. Ir. 241; Hey v. De la Hey, W. N. 1886, 101.

Where a diary, that would not have been protected from production, has been lost, extracts made from it since the commencement, and for the purposes, of the litigation, are not protected: Land Corporation of Canada v. Puleston, W. N. 1884, 1; see The Palermo, 9 P. D. 6.

Form of affidavit claiming protection from production.

Form of Affidavit.—The Forms Nos. 20 and 21; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 504, 505, should be followed. "The statutory form is the right form, and is intended to be the common form. The affidavit of documents is intended now to be exhaustive, and the form given in the Act is so": per Lindley, J., W. N. 1876, 39.

Where an action is brought in the name of a firm, all the members of the firm ought to make affidavit on production, and if any one of them refuse, he may be proceeded against for contempt by his co-partners, because his default may entitle the defendant to a dismissal of the action: Seal v. Kingston, 1908, 2 K. B. 579; 99 L. T. 504.

For form of affidavit where two plaintiffs have different interests, see Fendall v. O'Connell, 52 L. T. 553.

The affidavit must give such description of the documents which the party objects to produce as will sufficiently identify them: Taylor v. Batten, 4 Q. B. D. 85; Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. 400; Taylor v. Oliver, 45 L. J. Chy. 774; Mayor of Bristol v. Cox, 26 Ch. D. 678. A list may be given setting them out in the same way as the documents which the party does not object to produce: see Hamelyn v. Whyte, 6 P. R. 143; Hoffman v. Crerar, 17 P. R. 404; Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 45.

It is obvious that a minute specification of the documents in the affidavit might often defeat the claim of privilege.

Examples of statements of objection to produce on ground of privilege.

The following descriptions have therefore been held sufficient: "A correspondence between the plaintiff and his predecessors in title on the one hand, and their respective solicitors from time to time on the other": Minet v. Morgan, L. R. 8 Chy. 361. "Certain documents, letters, and correspondence, which have passed between my legal advisers and myself, and certain instructions to, and opinions of counsel, which are numbered 50-76 inclusive and are tied up in a bundle marked with the letter A and initialed by me": Taylor v. Batten, supra; Morris v. Edwards, 15 App. Cas. 309; Budden v. Wilkinson, 1893, 2 Q. B. 432; 69 L. T. 427. "Bundles of letters" is not a sufficient description of correspondence: Hamilton v. Nott, L. R. 16 Eq. 112; but letters may be so described with sufficient description to identify them: Walker v. Poole, 51 L. J. Chy. 840. Too prolix and voluminous an affidavit may be ordered to be taken off the files: Ib., W. N. 1882, 136; or the party filing it may be ordered to pay the costs of it: Hill v. Hart-Davis, 26 Ch. D. 470.

It is not sufficient to mention bundles containing a large number of documents, among which the deponent thinks one or two may be material; an affidavit so framed may be ordered to be taken off the files: Bolton v. Natal Land & Col. Co., 83 L. T. Jour. 203; W. N. 1887, 143. Rule 348.

Reference generally to letters, etc., as filed in Court on certain specified applications, was held sufficient, without scheduling the particulars: Lyon v. McKay, 10 P. R. 557.

The affidavit must also (see par. 3) assign a reason for objecting to produce the documents, and verify the facts upon which the claim to protection is based: Bromley v. Graham, 11 P. R. 451; Gardner v. Irwin, 4 Ex. D. 49; Webb v. East, 5 Ex. D. 108; Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 724. It has been held sufficient to swear to the best of the defendant's knowledge and belief: Minet v. Morgan, supra, p. 846, but see Manby v. Bewicke, 8 DeG. M. & G. 476. It is insufficient to swear generally that the documents are privileged: Gardner v. Irwin, 4 Ex. D. 49.

Where an affidavit of documents had been filed, setting out the number and the dates, but not the parties, to title deeds, it was held that as the deeds were privileged, the Court would not order the names of the parties to the deeds to be set out: Taylor v. Oliver, 45 L. J. Chy. 774; 34 L. T. 902.

Where one document only was mentioned as "a certain document," and possession of others was negatived, the statements (1) "I object to produce the said document; (2) the naming or production of the said document might tend to criminate me, or would tend to bring a criminal prosecution against me for a crime of which I am in fact innocent, but for which I might be criminally prosecuted," were held to be sufficient to "specify" the document within Rule 348, and to state a claim of privilege, though no information was given as to the date, nature, or contents, of the document: Vansickle v. Axon, 17 P. R. 535.

Portions of books produced, containing entries not relevant to the matters in question, may be allowed to be sealed up: Re Pickering, 25 Ch. D. 247; Heugh v. Garrett, W. N. 1874, 229; 1875, 26; Jones v. Andrews, 57 L. T. 843; 58 L. T. 601; or where books are in use the portions not relevant need not be actually sealed up, but may be temporarily covered up during inspection, and, where required, any necessary affidavit may be ordered to be made so as to protect the opposite party by oath against the possibility of a relevant portion being covered up: Graham v. Sutton, 1897, 1 Ch. 761; 76 L. T. 369.

As to the conclusiveness of the affidavit: see infra, p. 848.

Motion for better Affidavit.—Where a claim to protection from production is not sufficiently made out by the affidavit on production, or where, by admissions of the party who made the affidavit, it is made out that other documents than those produced are in the possession or power of the party, the course is to require a further and better affidavit to be made: British Assoc. of Glass Bottle Mfrs. v. Nettlefold, 1912, 1 K. B. 369; 1912, A. C. 709; 106 L. T. 5; 107 L. T. 529. If on the motion it appears that the claim to protection is not authorized, or sufficiently made out, or that there are such other documents, an order will be made directing the filing of a better affidavit making the further production which may be proper. Where one member of a partnership suing in the firm name refuses to make an affidavit of documents: see Seal v. Kingston, supra, p. 846. Further and better affidavit.

Rule 348.

It is irregular to go into the merits of the action on a motion for a better affidavit: Morris v. Edwards, 23 Q. B. D. 287; Hoffman v Crerar, 17 P. R. 404.

A second application for a better affidavit on production is improper, where no objection is made on the first application to the non-production of the documents in question, the second motion not being made upon any material which did not exist at the time of the first motion: Boughton v. Citizens Insurance Co., 11 P. R. 110.

Where the affidavit is made by an officer of a corporation, the examination for discovery of another officer of the corporation cannot be used to contradict the affidavit: Swaisland v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 O. W. N. 960.

Affidavit in proper form conclusive.

Affidavit on Production, when Conclusive.—Where the documents are properly identified and described, and the ground of protection sufficiently stated, if it is a valid ground, the affidavit is primâ facie conclusive as to the relevancy of documents, and privilege claimed: Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. 400; Welsh Steam, etc., Co. v. Gaskell, 36 L. T. 352; Bulman v. Young, 31 W. R. 766; 49 L. T. 736; and it cannot be contradicted by counter affidavits: Jones v. Monte Video Gas Co., 5 Q. B. D. 556; Lyon v. McKoy, 10 P. R. 557; see also Holl v. Trumon Honbury Co., 29 Ch. D. 307; Nicholl v. Wheeler, 17 Q B. D. 101; McGregor v. McDonald, 12 P. R. 81; Morris v. Edwards, 23 Q. B. D. 287; 15 App. Cas. 309; Hoffman v. Crerar, 17 P. R. 404; but the Master or Judge may see from the nature of the case, that the party has misconceived the effect of the documents, and may therefore disregard, or refuse to act upon his affidavit: Attorney-General v. Emerson, 10 Q. B. D. 19; Ponsonby v. Hartley, W. N. 1883, 13, 44; Lyell v. Kennedy, 31 W. R. 618; Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 45; Re Pickering, 25 Ch. D. 247; Moxley v. Canada Atlantic Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 39; Frankenstein v. Govins, H. C. C. Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 62 (but see Leslie v. Cave, 35 W. R. 515; 56 L. T. 332, where it was held that one document being shown not to be privileged as claimed, by relating only to the party's own case, another document is not on that ground to be ordered to be inspected); or if from the affid. it itself: Jones v. Monte Video Gas Co., supra; Wagstaffe v. Anderson, 39 L. T. 332; (where the words "never have had" were omitted), or from the documents referred to, or an admission in the pleading of the party: Hastings v. Ivoll, L. R. 8 Chy. 1017; Imp. Lond Co. of Marseilles v. Masterman, 22 W. R. 66; 29 L. T. 559; Jones v. Monte Video Gos Co., supra: Smedley v. British America Ass. Co., 18 P. R. 92; or other documents affording reasonable suspicion that the affidavit is not sufficient: see Lyell v. Kennedy, 27 Ch. D. 1 (such as evidence given at a former trial of the case: Moxley v. Canada Atlantic Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 39), or to his examination in the cause: see Dobson v. Dobson, 7 P. R. 256; or the admission of his solicitor: Campbell v. McArthur, 7 P. R. 46; or of any officer of a company: Powson v. Merchants Bank, 11 P. R. 18. (sed vide Swaisland v. Grand Trunk Ry., supra), the Master, or the Judge, is of the opinion that the affidavit is insufficient a further affidavit may be ordered. See also Ross v. Dublin United Tramways Co., 8 L. R. Ir. 213; Compagnie Financiere v. Peruvian Guano Co., 11 Q. B. D. 55; Central News (Limited) v. Eastern Telegraph Co., 28 Sol. Jour. 390; Robinson v. Budgett, W. N. 1884, 94; 28 Sol. Jour. 411; Parnell v. Wood, 1892, P. 137; but when the affidavit is positive that all the relevant documents have been set out in the schednle to the affidavit, a further affidnvit will not be ordered: Hull v. Brener, 17 C. L. T. (Occ. N.) 132; and see Swaisland v. Grand Trunk Ry., supra, p. 848. Rule 348.

Cross-Examination on Affidavit.—In England cross-examination upon the affidavit wna not allowed in Chancery, nor is it under the Jud. Act: see Manby v. Mewicke, 8 DeG. M. & G. 470; Hall v. Truman H. & Co., 29 Ch. D. 307, 313; Nicholl v. Wheeler, 17 Q. B. D. 101; it was allowed under the Chnncery practice in Ontario: see Dobson v. Dobson, 7 P. R. 256; hut in Frith v. Ryan, 10 P. R. 235, it wns held that the Chy. practice was not continued under the Jud. Act; C. R. 512 was therefore passed in 1888 to continue the Chancery practice, but it waa rescinded in September, 1894, hy C. R. 1337 to prevent a double examination of n party, one upon the affidavit, and another for discovery. The prohibition is in effect continued in Rule 227, which limits the right to cross-examine on affidavits, to those "to he used on any motion, or at a trial, or on a reference." It would, however, seem that now, upon the usual examination for discovery, examination may take place in respect to the documents produced, as well aa in regard to nny other relevant matters: see Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. at pp. 504, 505; McMahon v. Railway Passengers Assce. Co., 26 O. L. R. 430; Lavery v. Wolfe, 10 P. R. 488; Dobson v. Dobson, supra; and admissions so ohtained impeaching the correctness of the affidavit may, it would seem, he used as the foundation of a motion for a better affidavit; and see Smedley v. British Am. Assur. Co., 18 P. R. 92. It is not permissihle, however, to the opposite party to ohtain a cross-examination of the deponent, hy the indirect means of examining him as a witness nnder Rule 228, for the purpose of using hia evidence upon a motion for a better affidnvit on production: Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 500; nor, on an examination for discovery, to cross-examine on the affidnvit on production of documents: Standard v. Seybold, Divl. Ct., 6 Oct., 1902; and see 39 C. L. J. 772; nnd see Swaisland v. Grand Trunk Ry., supra, p. 848. Cross-examination.

Inspection by a Judge of Documents claimed to be Privileged.—It seems, in England, to have been a not uncommon practice, on applications respecting discovery, to show the documents upon which a question of privilege arises to the Judge; and where hy consent, the documents are so shown to the Judge, and his decision thereupon taken, no appeal lies from his order: Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 427; see also Macdonald v. Norwich Union F. Ins. Co., 10 P. R. 505; hut whether this course is right was doubted: see Re Holloway, 12 P. D. 167, 169; it is now, however, authorized by an express English Rule, O. 31, r. 19*a* (2). Under the Ontario practice this course would not seem to be authorized. Inspection.

Injunction to Restrain use of Privileged Documents.—Where the opposite party has by any improper means obtnined possession of privileged documents, his use of the same, or of copies thereof, may be restrsined by injunction: Ashburton v. Pape, 1913, 2 Ch. 469; 109 L. T. 381. Restraining use of privileged documents.

Inspection by the Party.—As soon as documents are produced, the opposite party, at whose instance the production is ordered, is entitled to inspect them: see Rule 348, and note, pp. 828-9; but where there is some preliminary question of law or fact to he determined, on special application, the right of inspection may he postponed until after the determination of such question: see Rules 122, 352, 472; De Curteret v. Lond Security Co., 70 L. T. 323; 42 W. R. 104; 7 R. 16.

Costs.

Costs.—As to the costs of several successive affidavits on production by the same party: see Baldwin v. Quinn, 16 P. R. 248, where only the first affidavit, and the extra folios of subsequent affidavits, were allowed.

Production may be ordered at any time.

349. The Court may at any time order production and inspection of documents generally or of any particular document in the possession of any party. C.R. 463.

See Eng. (1883) R. 356. This Rule enables the Court or Judge to order production at any time: and this jurisdiction of the Court may be exercised by a Judge, or judicial officer, in Chambers: see Rules 207 (4), 208, 209. Rule 348 enables either party, after the defence is delivered, to give a notice for this purpose.

C. R. 463 expressly provided that the party might be required to produce "upon oath"; but this Rule is silent on that point.

The right to discovery of documents is not enlarged by The Judicature Act, and where a bill of discovery would not formerly lie, discovery of documents cannot now be had, e.g., in an action to recover statutory penalties: see Hunnings v. Williamson, and other cases in the note preceding Rule 327.

Where, in any such case, a notice has been served under Rule 348, the defendant is not bound to file an affidavit, and claim privilege, but may have the notice set aside: see Johnston v. London & Paris Exchange, 6 O. L. R. 49.

The present Rule will only be applicable, where the ordinary procedure for obtaining production under Rule 348 will not meet the justice of the case.

Evidence will not be entered into on a motion under this Rule, but the Court will form its conclusions upon the pleadings, if any, or upon any proceedings already taken: Downing v. Falmouth, 37 Ch. D. 234.

As a general rule, production should not be ordered in favour of a party before he pleads, unless the Court or Judge is satisfied that discovery of documents is necessary to enable him to frame his pleading: Arthur v. Runnians, 18 P. R. 206.

Production of documents before defence.

Under the present Rule production by defendant was ordered, before defence, where the plaintiff had been awarded an injunction restraining the sale of chattels, and had been put on terms to go down to trial at such a time, that it was probable that the case would be tried, before production could be obtained in the ordinary way: Coots v. Coots, 3 C. L. T. 314. So production of a document was ordered to enable defendant to frame his defence: Henderson v. Underwriting & Agency Association, 1891, 1 Q. B. 557; so also before statement of claim, to enable it to be framed: Maclean v. Barber, etc., 13 P. R. 500. So, under a similar Irish Rule, where discovery was required by defendants to ascertain what damages the plaintiff had sustained, with a view to payment of money into Court: McGow v. McDiarmid, 10 L. R. Ir. 376. See also Jourdain v. Palmer, L. R. 1 Ex. 102; Re Sutcliffe, 50 L. J. Chy. 574; 29 W. R. 732; 17 C. L. J. 367; Whyte v. Ahrens, 26 Ch. D. 717.

Documents taken out of the plaintiff's possession by the defendant, on leaving the plaintiff's employment, and to recover which the action was brought, were, on an interlocutory application, ordered to be delivered up to the plaintiff: Whitwham v. Moss, 73 L. T. 57. Rules 350, 351.

"Documents."—Under this term "photographs" are included: Fox v. Sleeman, 17 P. R. 492. Photographs.

Copies.—The right of inspection includes the right to have or take copies: see Pratt v. Pratt, 30 W. R. 837; 47 L. T. 249; Mutter v. Eastern, 38 Ch. D. 92; and the Court has jurisdiction to order that the opposite party be at liberty to take copies by means of photographs of the documents, proper safeguards being adopted to secure the preservation of the originals from injury, or loss: Lewis v. Londesborough, 1893, 2 Q. B. 191; 69 L. T. 353. Copies.

The Rule only applies to production by parties to an action or proceeding, it does not apply to third persons, as to whom: see Rules 229, 350.

350. When a document is in possession of a person not a party to the action and the production of such document at a trial might be compelled, the Court may at the instance of any party, on notice to such person and to the opposite party, direct the production and inspection thereof, and may give directions respecting the preparation of a certified copy which may be used for all purposes in lieu of the original. New. Documents in possession of persons not parties.

In order to get production before trial of a document in the possession of some third person, not a party to the action, two courses appear to be open, either an application may be made to examine the person having the document as a witness under Rule 229 and, if ordered, he might be served with a subpœna duces tecum under which he might be required to produce the document in his possession. Such an application under Rule 229 would probably be entertained on notice to the opposite party, but without notice to the witness; or, an application may be made under this Rule on notice to the opposite party, and also to the witness himself. If the application were granted the witness could probably be required to attend and produce under the order without service of a subpœna as required by Rule 345 (2); but he would have to be paid the usual witness fees.

351.—(1) A party shall be entitled to obtain the production, for inspection, of any document referred to in the pleadings or affidavits of the opposite party, by giving notice to his solicitor, and shall be entitled to take copies of such documents when so produced for inspection. Notice to produce documents referred to in pleadings or affidavit.

(2) The party to whom such notice is given, shall forthwith deliver to the party giving the same, a notice stating a time within two days from the delivery thereof. Notice to inspect.

Rule 331.

at which the document may be inspected at the office of his solicitor, and shall at the time named produce the document for inspection. C.R. 469 and 470.

See Eng. (1883) RR. 357, 358, 359.

C. R. 469 provided, that if documents were not produced as required, the party making default should not be at liberty to use the documents in evidence, unless he satisfied the Court that he had some sufficient cause for not producing them.

The present Rules render a party liable to have his action dismissed, or his defence struck out, in case he fails to comply with the notice: see Rule 353.

See notes to Rule 348.

Documents referred to in pleadings or affidavits.

In Webster v. Whewall, 15 Ch. D. 121, remarks were made by Denman, J., to the effect that "sufficient cause" for not complying with a notice by defendant under this Rule would be, that the defence had not yet been delivered. This dictum was not approved in Quilter v. Heatly, 23 Ch. D. 42, where it was held that a defendant was, primâ facie, entitled at once to inspect a document referred to in the pleadings, and the burden of showing cause is on the party from whom inspection is demanded; also that the Rule applies not only between the plaintiff and a defendant, but also between co-defendants. There Lindley, L.J., said: "There is a material distinction between ordinary discovery, and discovery of documents referred to in the pleadings or affidavits." And Jessel, M.R., said: "The defendant may say, 'Your case depends partly on a set of documents which you have set out incorrectly, I wish to see them. It may be that I have made admissions which will put me out of Court. I wish to see the documents to know whether I have made such admissions, and it is important for me to see them before I put in my defence.' It is reason enough why the defendant should be allowed to see them that the plaintiff has made them part of his statement of claim"; and see Diamond Match Co. v. Hawkesbury Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 577.

Where a document is referred to in an affidavit, of which a copy is served to be read in answer to a motion, the opposite party is entitled to call for the production of the document, even though the affidavit is not filed: Re Fenner, 1897, 1 Q. B. 667; 76 L. T. 376.

The documents need not be particularly identified, or referred to; but if more compendiously described by general words, they fall within this Rule, and inspection may be ordered: Smith v. Harris, 48 L. T. 869. A letter referred to in particulars of plaintiff's claim is a document within the Rule: Cass v. Fitzgerold, W. N. 1884, 18.

The reference in a pleading, etc., to a document in respect of which privilege might otherwise be claimed does not render it liable to inspection under this Rule, but if production is refused it cannot be used in evidence: Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 724; see also Mayor of Bristol v. Cox, 26 Ch. D. 678; Leslie v. Cave, 30 Sol. Jour. 76, and Green v. Amey, 2 Chy. Ch. 138.

Inspection of a foreign judgment was refused, in an action on a judgment brought under the old procedure: Matthias v. Delcacho, 1 Charl. Ca. (Court) 123. Inspection of a mortgage deed was refused to a defendant, who wished to find from it the amount, in order to redeem, the plaintiff undertaking to give in a week a statement of principal, interest, and amount of costs, and of the particulars of all other subsequent incumbrances: Anon., 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 61; W. N. 1876, 23; but see contra Emmens v. Middlemiss, 8 P. R. 320. In Lake v. Pooley, W. N. 1876, 54, an action for breach of covenant in a lease, the defendant had made an assignment of one undivided moiety of leasehold property, consisting of land, brewery and fixtures; the plaintiff having applied for an order for inspection of documents, and the defendant having objected that the documents related solely to his own title, Archibald, J., made the order, because it was a case of an undivided moiety, the interest in which could only be realized by the usufruct of the whole property. Rule 351.

As to inspection of a company's books by a shareholder: see Re Credit Co., 11 Ch. D. 256.

Form of Notice.—The form of notice need only be in language substantially according to Form 31; H. & L. Forms, No. 527: Rule 772, but the procedure must be according to Rule 351 in order to entitle to inspection of the documents; a notice to produce for inspection on the following morning, was held to be not authorized, and did not confer any right to inspect: Re Credit Co., 11 Ch. D. 256. Form of notice.

Notice to Produce at the Trial.—The form of the usual notice to produce documents at the trial is No. 38; H. & L. Forms, No. 685. Notice to produce at trial.

As to the effect of not giving a proper notice to produce at the trial: see Sugg v. Bray, 51 L. T. 194; 54 L. J. Chy. 132; where parol evidence was not allowed to be given of a document in respect of which a proper notice to produce had not been given.

Copies.—In a proper case the Court may authorize a party to make photographs of the documents produced by the opposite party, due precautions being taken to provide for the safety of the documents: Lewis v. Londesborough, 1893, 2 Q. B. 191; 69 L. T. 353. Copies.

Exhibits.—Irrespective of any question as to discovery, property, or privilege, if a document is made an exhibit to an affidavit, any person who has the right to inspect and take copies of the affidavit, has a similar right as to the exhibit: Re Hinchcliffe, 1895, 1 Ch. 117. Exhibits.

Privilege.—The same rules that govern the right to production of documents for discovery, are generally applicable where inspection is sought: see Clegg v. Edmonson, 22 Beav. 125, and notes to Rule 348; and so (except in the case of exhibits), there is no right to inspection of documents as to which there is no right to discovery: Central News v. Eastern Tel. Co., 28 Sol. Jour. 390; see 53 L. J. Q. B. 236; but where a document is referred to in a party's pleading it is subject to production by him: Quilter v. Heatley, 23 Ch. D. 49, 50; Diamond Match Co. v. Hawkesbury Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 577. Privilege from production.

This Rule only applies in the case of documents mentioned in pleadings, or affidavits, of the opposite party, other than affidavits on production.

The course to obtain inspection of documents produced under an affidavit on production will be found in the notes to Rule 348, p. 828 et seq.

Under C. R. 471, if the party served with the notice omitted to give notice of the time for inspection, or omitted or objected to give Order for inspection on default.

Rule 352.

inspection, the party desiring it might apply to a Judge of the High Court for an order for inspection, but this Rule has not been continued.

The present Rules provide for attachment, or for dismissal of the action, or striking out of the defence, as a penalty for noncompliance with the notice: see Rule 353.

Motion for inspection.

Motion for Inspection.—But assuming that a motion for inspection may still be made, semble, the Master in Chambers, Local Judge and Local Masters would have jurisdiction to entertain it: see Rules 207 (4), 208, 209. Where an application is made under C. R. 471, the Court might order inspection of the document indicated in the affidavit, notwithstanding that the other party might have made an affidavit on production omitting to disclose the document, and concluding with the usual general averment as to having no other documents: Wiedemon v. Walpole, 24 Q. B. D. 537; but see S. C., in appeal, Ib. 626.

Inspection might be ordered at any convenient place: see Prestney v. Colchester, 48 L. T. 353; W. N. 1883, 114, and note, supra, pp. 828-9.

In an action for breach of promise, judgment went by default, and the question of damages was referred to the Master. The plaintiff claimed a right to inspect and take copies of his letters to the defendant, as being material to the question of damages. It was held that the matter was one for the discretionary jurisdiction of the Court or a Judge, and inspection was refused on the ground that it would increase the costs. The Court of Appeal declined to review the decision: Lodds v. Wolthew, 32 W. R. 1000.

A party has the right to inspect documents the common property of both parties: Brown v. Licll, 16 Q. B. D. 229.

When inspection objected to.

352. If the party from whom discovery of any kind or inspection is sought objects to the same, or any part thereof, the Court, if satisfied that the right to the discovery or inspection sought depends on the determination of any issue or question in dispute in the action, or that for any other reason it is desirable that any issue or question in dispute should be determined before deciding upon the right to the discovery or inspection, may order that such issue or question be determined first, and reserve the question as to the discovery or inspection. C.R. 472.

See Eng. (1883) R. 362.

Inspection of documents.

The right to the discovery or inspection of documents may depend, for example, on a disputed allegation of partnership: Lyon v. Tweddell, 13 Ch. D. 375; or on whether an alteration in a will, upon which the rights of the parties depend, was validly made: Hurst v. Barber, 12 P. R. 467; or on the validity of a patent: Dickerson v. Radcliffe, 17 P. R. 586; or whether the defendant was acting as a trustee: Bedell v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 670; and, in such cases, the Court, or a Judge, may order that question to be determined first, reserving the question as to discovery on inspection.

Partners.

A plaintiff partner is entitled to inspect the partnership books by his agent, where there is no reasonable objection to the agent so appointed, and the agent undertakes not to use any information so obtained except for the purpose of confidentially advising his principal: Bevan v. Webb, 1901, 2 Ch. 59. Rule 353.

In an action for an account of profits made by the defendants as the plaintiffs' agents, the defendants denying the agency, the Court declined, until after that question should be tried, to order production of the invoices of goods sold by third persons to the defendants, and re-sold by the defendants to the plaintiffs, the defendants having sworn that those invoices had nothing to do with the point at issue, and that the disclosure would be injurious to the defendants if the plaintiffs failed: Verminck v. Edwards, 29 W. R. 189. Principal and agent.

In Re Leigh, Rowcliffe v. Leigh, 6 Ch. D. 256, where an executrix disputed a horse dealer's account, and the dispute was whether or not certain horses were sold on commission, the Court refused to order the horse dealer to disclose the prices, as being immaterial until it had been decided that the horses were sold on commission. The question of liability must be one which is severable from the question of damages: see Elkin v. Clarke, 21 W. R. 447.

In a suit by an alleged next of kin to an intestate, against the solicitor to the Treasury, to whom administration had been granted, it was held that the defendant was not bound to make an affidavit of documents relating to the estate, until a primâ facie case had been made by the plaintiff that he was next of kin: Lane v. Gray, L. R. 16 Eq. 552. Next of kin

A person who had acted as the foreman of a manufacturer's business, filed a bill against the manufacturer, alleging that the plaintiff was to have a weekly salary, and one-sixth of the profits of the business, and praying an account, and payment of one-sixth of the profits of the business to him accordingly. The defendant by his answer admitted a right to a weekly salary, and to one-twelfth of the profits of the business, coupled, however, with an agreement on the part of the plaintiff, that the latter should take the statements of the defendant as to the profits to be true, and should not ask for an account or question the business transactions, or be entitled to examine or investigate the business books; it was held that he was not compellable to produce them before the hearing, their production not being relevant to the issue whether or not the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for an account: Turney v. Boyley, 4 DeG. J. & S. 332. Account.

See also Parker v. Wells, 18 Ch. D. 447; Wood v. Italian Bank, 34 L. T. 255; and other cases in notes to Rule 348, p. 837; also Johns v. James, 13 Ch. D. 370; English v. Tottie, 1 Q. B. D. 141; De Carteret v. Land Security Co., 70 L. T. 323; 42 W. R. 104; 7 R. 16.

In England a Judge may inspect a document whose production is in dispute and determine from such inspection whether or not it shall be produced: Ord. 31, r. 19 a: Birminghom & M. M. Omnibus Co. v. London & N. W. Ry., 109 L. T. 64; but there is no such provision in these Rules.

It was held under this Rule, that where a question on examination is substantially answered, a further answer ought not to be required when discovery would be oppressive: McGregor v. McDonald, 11 P. R. 386.

tiff, to have his action dismissed, and if a defendant, to have his defence, if any, struck out. Service of the notice of motion upon the solicitor of the party is, unless the Court otherwise directs, sufficient. C.R. 473 and 474.

See Eng. (1883) R. 363.

See Rule 331 and notes.

This Rule applies in case of disobedience of a notice to produce given under Rule 348, but possibly not to a notice served under Rule 341: see Merchants Bank v. Pierson, 8 P. R. 123.

A notice for production, or inspection, need not be personally served in order to make a party disobeying it liable to attachment; it is sufficient to serve it on his solicitor: Rule 351, and C. R. 475, expressly provided that an order for production, or inspection, need not be personally served in order to found an application for an attachment, but that provision is not continued in these Rules, and it may be, that in the absence of such express provision, service of the order must be personal in order to found proceedings for an attachment.

Motion to commit; service of notice of motion.

Service of a notice of motion to commit is generally required to be personal: see notes to Rule 546 infra; Monn v. Perry, 50 L. J. Chy. 251; Re Dance, W. N. 1895, 127; and see Gilbert's Chy. Pr. 198-9, but this Rule makes an exception to the general rule, in the cases mentioned: Re Harnden, Harnden v. Harnden, 11 P. R. 35; 21 C. L. J. 238.

Two clear days' notice seems sufficient: Rule 215.

Motions to commit for breach of any order of course, or order made by a Judge in Chambers, or judicial officer, may be made in Chambers, but motions to commit for breach of any judgment or order made in Court should be made to a Judge in Court: see Southwick v. Hare, 15 P. R. 239, 331; Roberts v. Donovan, 21 Ont. 535; Berry v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14; and notes to Rule 331.

A motion to commit, when made in Chambers, must be made before a Judge; the Master in Chambers, or Local Master, has no jurisdiction to entertain it: Keefe v. Ward, 18 C. L. J. 166; see Rules 208 (1), (4), 209; but a Local Judge would appear to have jurisdiction where Rule 210 applies. See also notes to Rule 331.

Default; how established.

On motions to commit for non-production in, or for not bringing accounts into, the Master's office, the Master is to determine whether the party has been sufficiently notified. The Master's certificate of default is the only evidence of default which is necessary, or can be used: Paxton v. Dryden, 6 P. R. 83; Wilson v. Wilson, 7 P. R. 57; but on motions to commit for non-production in the proper office under Rule 348, it is necessary to prove the due service of the notice, and also to produce the certificate of the proper officer that it has not been complied with: Ib.

It is not necessary to serve with the notice of motion copies of the affidavits intended to be used in support of it: Honnum v. McRae, 18 P. R. 185.

The certificate of default should bear the latest possible date: Somerville v. Joyce, 1 Chy. Ch. 202. Such a certificate may be read, though no notice of reading it be given: Mallock v. Plunkett, 1 Chy. Ch. 381. See notes to Rule 546.

Where the order has been complied with, after notice of motion served, the motion will be refused, but the applicant will be entitled to his costs: Mallock v. Plunkett, supra, p. 856; Berrie v. Moore, 1 Chy. Ch. 107. Rule 354.

And, even after committal for not bringing in accounts, the party is entitled to be discharged on production of the Master's certificate that the accounts have been brought in, and the sufficiency of the accounts will not be inquired into on the application for discharge, nor will the payment of costs be made a condition precedent of the discharge: Clark v. Clark, 3 Chy. Ch. 67. Where a party obstinately refuses obedience, or becomes unable to obey: see Rule 551. Discharge from custody; on subsequent obedience.

Where the party has complied with a notice, or order, but it is contended that his compliance is insufficient, the question of sufficiency must, in cases pending in the Master's office, be determined by the Master upon a warrant to bring in a better affidavit, or account, as the case may be: Merkley v. Casselman, 1 Chy. Ch. 292; but see Wilson v. Wilson, 7 P. R. 57. Sufficiency of compliance: how determined

But where there is an alleged insufficient compliance with a notice served under Rule 348, the question of sufficiency must be determined on motion in Chambers to compel the party to bring in a better affidavit, or, in default, that he be committed: Ross v. Robertson, 2 Chy. Ch. 66.

354. A defendant who fails to deliver a statement of defence and against whom the pleadings have been noted as closed, shall be deemed to admit all the statements of fact set forth in the statement of claim. Effect of default in pleading.

This Rule is based on C. R. 586. It would not seem to apply to the case where a defendant has, with his appearance to a specially indorsed writ, filed the affidavit required by Rule 56, but delivers no other defence. Where the defendant files the affidavit, if the plaintiff does not within 5 days after appearance serve notice, the defendant may within ten days from his appearance deliver a statement of defence: Rule 112, but if he does not, the affidavit may be treated as the defence: see Rule 112 (3), and see Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 493, and the plaintiff should, in such a case, after the ten days have expired, note the pleadings closed, and proceed to trial in the ordinary way. Specially indorsed writs.

In other cases, where a judgment cannot be obtained as of course for default of defence: see Rule 355, the plaintiff must note the pleadings closed, and move in the Weekly Court, or at the trial where there are other defendants as to whom the action has to be tried: Rule 356 (2), for judgment on the statement of claim as against the defendant in default: Rule 222. Other cases.

This Rule in effect introduces the former Chancery practice, which entitled a plaintiff to have his bill of complaint heard pro confesso as against a defendant who put in no defence.

Notice of motion for judgment must be given to defendants who have appeared, even though they have delivered no defence. Two days' notice is sufficient: Rule 215; but it is not necessary to serve defendants who have not appeared: Rule 35. Notice of assessment of Notice of motion.

Rule 354.

damages must be given, even though a defendant has not appeared: Rule 247. In the case of a sole defendant, if judgment cannot be entered, as of course, or a motion made therefor in Chambers under Rule 466, a motion for judgment must be made to a Judge in the Weekly Court; the motion must be brought on within a year from the time when the right to move accrued, otherwise leave to move is necessary: see Rule 357; where there are other defendants who defend, the motion for judgment against a defendant who does not defend may be made at the trial of the action: Rule 356 (2), or upon motion for judgment against such other defendants. Where the relief sought against a defendant in default, is separable and distinct from that claimed against other defendants who defend, the motion for judgment against the party in default may properly be made without waiting until the action is ready for trial, or motion for judgment, as against the other defendants. But such a course would not be proper where the relief claimed against the party in default is bound up with that against the other parties who defend, as for example in an action to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance by a debtor, a motion for judgment against the debtor who made no defence would be premature, if made before the action was also ripe for hearing as against his grantee, otherwise two inconsistent judgments might be pronounced in the same action, one against the debtor declaring the conveyance impeached to be fraudulent, and another against his grantee in effect declaring it to be valid.

The difficulty in some cases about making a final order at a hearing of the action as against some defendants only, and in the absence of others, is referred to in Cooke v. Gilbert, 40 W. R. 682; W. N. 1892, 111; MacMillan v. Australasian, etc., 76 L. T. 182.

Notwithstanding pleadings noted closed, action may be dismissed.

As to noting pleadings closed for default of defence: see Rule 121. Notwithstanding that a defendant allows the pleadings to be noted as closed, the action may nevertheless be dismissed as to him, if on the trial of the action against a co-defendant the plaintiff fails to establish his case, whenever the cause of action against the two defendants is inseparable: see McDermott v. McDermott, 3 Chy. Ch. 38; and Tucker v. Goyer, before MacMahon, J., 29 April, 1898; Challoner v. Lobo, 1 O. L. R. 292.

Informal defence.

Where a defendant, with his appearance, filed a notice to the following effect: "The defendant admits only $103, but otherwise disputes the plaintiff's claim in this action," this was held to be in effect a defence, and a judgment signed for default of defence was held to be void: Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443.

Defence mislaid by officer.

Where a defence has been filed, but mislaid by the officer, and not entered in his procedure book, a judgment signed for default of defence is irregular: see Moore v. Simons, 1 C. L. J. 183; Bank of Montreal v. Harrison, 4 P. R. 331; and where a defence is filed by defendant after the pleadings are noted as closed under Rule 121, though it is irregular, it is not a nullity, and the defendant should be notified of any motion for judgment: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137. Quære, should not a motion be made to set it aside: see notes to Rule 112.

Plaintiff not wishing to proceed against a defendant.

Where, after a defendant has appeared, it becomes unnecessary to continue the action against him, the action should be either formally discontinued: see Rule 321; or the action should be formally dismissed against him, and it is irregular to proceed with the action without taking that course: see McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295.

As to the right of a defendant in default, to notice of proceedings upon a reference to a Master, see Rule 403; or for the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution: Tilling v. Blythe, 1899, 1 Q. B. 557; 80 L. T. 44. Rule 355.

355. Where a plaintiff would be entitled to sign judgment for default of appearance to the writ he shall be entitled to sign a similar judgment, mutatis mutandis, for default of defence. New. Judgment in default of defence.

This Rule is based on C. R. 587, and see Eng. 1883, R. 295.

The cases in which a plaintiff is entitled to sign judgment for default of appearance as of course, are those enumerated in Rules 37 and 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, and 467. In cases of that nature where default is made in delivering a defence judgment may also be signed under this Rule as of course. Cases in which judgment may be signed on default of defence.

An affidavit of default should be filed, or the judgment will be irregular: Hyslop v. Ostrom, 14 O. L. R. 136.

See Eng. R. (1883) R. 295.

The present Rule varies from the Eng. Rule inasmuch as it applies to cases where the plaintiff is suing for other claims besides a debt or liquidated demand, the Eng. Rule being confined to cases where a debt, or liquidated demand, alone is the subject of the action.

Under this Rule the plaintiff may obtain a final judgment for default of defence for a liquidated demand, and may continue the action against the same defendant for any other claim, and against co-defendants, if any, who have defended. So that it will be possible for a plaintiff to recover several final judgments in the same action for different parts of the relief claimed.

Judgment can be properly signed under this Rule only in respect of claims which can be, and are, specially indorsed on the writ of summons: Star Life v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151.

Where the plaintiff's claim is in the alternative against either one of two defendants, judgment cannot be signed against both, and the signing of judgment against one is an indication of election not to proceed against the other: Morel v. Westmoreland, 1904, A. C. 11, 14; French v. Howie, 1906, 2 K. B. 674; 95 L. T. 274. Alternative claims.

A defendant to whom a statement of claim is delivered must deliver his defence or counterclaim within ten days from the delivery of the statement of claim, or from the time limited for appearance, whichever shall be last: Rule 112.

As to the effect of delivering a defence after the time for doing so has elapsed: see notes to Rule 112.

In an action for replevin, where damages are claimed as well as recovery of the chattels, Rule 368 provides that "where the plaintiff is entitled to sign judgment by default, he may sign final judgment for five dollars and costs, but shall not be entitled to recover a larger sum, except upon an assessment before a Judge or jury, or upon filing the written consent of the defendant or his solicitor, and an affidavit verifying the signature to such consent." Judgment in replevin action.

Rule 355.

Judgment on replevin bond.

It is held in England that in an action on a replevin bond, if the plaintiff, instead of claiming damages, claims the amount for which the bond was given, and becomes entitled to judgment by default, his proper course is to enter final judgment, and not interlocutory judgment: Dix v. Groom, 5 Ex. D. 91, and see notes to Jud. Act, s. 125.

Defence struck out.

Where a defence has been struck out, e.g., for disobedience to an order for discovery, judgment may be signed under this Rule: see Fisher v. Hughes, 25 W. R. 528.

An informal defence cannot be treated as a nullity: see Voight v. Orth, supra, p. 858; nor yet a defence delivered after the proper time: see notes to Rule 112.

Effect of enlarging claim in statement of claim.

Formerly if the defendant did not appear the plaintiff could not enlarge, in the statement of claim, his claim indorsed on the writ: Law v. Philby, 35 W. R. 450; 56 L. T. 522; Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160; Stone v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 188; but he may do so now under Rule 100: see that Rule and notes; but see Snider v. Snider, 5 O. W. N. 325, 328, 956; but where a material addition is thus made by the statement of claim, a non-appearing defendant must be served therewith.

Where the plaintiff claimed interest at seven per cent., showing no ground for more than six, it was held to be the duty of the officer signing judgment to allow only six per cent.: Bank of Hamilton v. Harvey, 11 P. R. 145.

Judgment in default of defence to counter-claim.

Counter-claim.—Although a counter-claim is regarded for some purposes as a separate action, yet in the event of a plaintiff's not putting in a defence to it, judgment cannot, even where the counter-claim is for a liquidated demand, be entered under this Rule, but the defendant will have to move for judgment: Jones v. Macaulay, 1891, 1 Q. B. 221; 64 L. T. 621; and see Rules 121, 356.

Several defendants.

Where Several Defendants. — In Ribel v. Livingstone, 4 C. L. T. 135, an action on a promissory note against K. & L., two joint makers, final judgment was signed against L., and costs of the action up to judgment taxed. The plaintiff afterwards at the trial recovered judgment against K., and in taxing costs against K. the Taxing Officer held that by taxing the general costs against L., the plaintiff had waived the right to recover these costs from K. To remedy this an order was made in Chambers ex parte setting aside the judgment as to costs against L., upon showing that he was worthless, and that no steps had been taken to enforce the judgment against him. But see Muir v. Jenks, and other cases in note to Rule 521.

In Wilkinson v. Garrett, 7 C. L. T. 22, judgment was obtained against defendants at different stages; against defendant R. by default of appearance, and afterwards against G. who had defended. The whole costs were ordered to be taxed against G., including the costs of judgment against R.; costs up to and including judgment against R. to be also taxed against him, and, if recovered from either, to be credited on the judgment against both.

Joint debtors.

Joint Debtors.—A judgment recovered under this Rule against one or more partners, or joint debtors, does not prevent the plaintiff from proceeding in the same action to judgment against the other defendants: Ducber Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Taggart, 26 Ont. App. 295; 30 S. C. R. 373; and other cases, supra, pp. 380 and 501.

See also Jenkins v. Davies, 1 Ch. D. 696.

Joint Tortfeasors.—Where the action is against joint tortfeasors, the damages recoverable by the plaintiff are not severable, and there must be one verdict, or assessment, and judgment, against all: Greenlands v. Wilmshurst, 1913, 2 K. B. 507; 109 L. T. 487; but the costs are severable, and part may be awarded as against one defendant, and part against another; see supra, p. 252. Rule 356. Joint tortfeasors.

356.—(1) In any other case the plaintiff may after the pleadings have been noted as closed move for judgment upon the statement of claim. How judgment obtained.

(2) Where default is made by one defendant and the action proceeds to trial as against another defendant such motion may be made at the trial. New.

The first clause of this Rule is based on C. R. 609.

See Eng. (1883), R. 559.

Rules 37 et seq. provide for the plaintiff's signing final judgment on default of appearance, in the cases therein mentioned; and Rule 355, for the like judgment upon default of pleading without any motion in the like cases.

Rule 57-62 and 207 provide for obtaining judgment in Chambers on specially indorsed writs.

Rule 62 provides for the recovery of judgments on special motions, by leave, at any time after the writ has issued.

Rule 264 provides for judgment at trials.

Rules 466-467, provide for obtaining judgment on default of appearance or defence, or where the plaintiff's case is admitted, in cases of foreclosure, sale, or redemption.

Rule 529 provides for a like judgment where, under the Act or these Rules, or otherwise, it is provided that judgment may be entered or signed upon the filing of an affidavit, or production of a document.

Rules 600 et seq. provide for obtaining an adjudication in a summary way upon matters such as are enumerated in Rule 600.

Rules 608-610, 615, provide for obtaining judgments in Chambers for administration, or partition.

Motions for judgment may be necessary in other cases to obtain the proper relief in case of defendant's default in appearing, or pleading: see Rule 121; e.g., where a claim is indorsed for specific performance or other equitable relief, in which case if defendant does not appear the plaintiff must deliver a statement of claim, and cannot sign any judgment, or move for judgment by reason of the default in appearance: Stuart v. McVicar, 18 P. R. 250; or where the Judge at the trial of the action has not ordered a judgment to be entered: see Wellbanks v. Conger, 12 P. R. 354; or different issues or questions have been determined in different ways, and at different times, where a motion for judgment on the result may thus become necessary: see Rule 358, see also Rule 63.

As to motions for judgment on default of defence to a counterclaim: see Rule 121.

Rule 356.

Before setting a case down on motion for judgment, the plaintiff must in general have delivered a statemsnt of claim: see Minton v. Metcalf, 46 L. J. Chy. 584; W. N. 1877, 142; Hunter v. Wilcockson, 9 P. R. 305, or the equivalent of a statement of claim: see Rule 111; and see notes to Rule 109, p. 506.

Two clear days' notice under Rule 215 is sufficient: Martens v Birney, 10 P. R. 368; see Roupell v. Parsons, W. N. 1876, 61.

Officers to see to regularity of proceedings.

By direction of the Judges, the officer with whom cases are set down is required to see that all preliminary proceedings are regular before setting a cause down. Solicitors will therefore require, in setting down cases for judgment on default of defence, (1) to file with the officer with whom the case is set down the writ of summons, affidavit of service of writ, and statemsnt of claim, affidavit of non-appearance, or no defence, and the order authorizing the service of the writ when that is necessary under Rule 25, and a certificate of the state of the cause, where the action is pending in an outer county.

It seems that in England, as a matter of form, further directions cannot he reserved; hut the same object is accomplished by declaring that the further consideration of the action is adjourned: Bennett v. Moore, 1 Ch. D. 692; Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686; Brassington v. Cussons, 24 W. R. 881. This difficulty would seem not to exist in practice here.

Facts in statement of claim to be deemed to be admitted.

Under Rule 354 where there is no defence, the statements of fact in the statement of claim are deemed to be admitted. The motion for judgment under this Rule is ordinarily made in the Weekly Court, but if there are other defendants on the record, as to whom the action has to be tried, the motion msy be made at the trial, as provided hy clause 2.

On a motion for judgment under this Rule, though the facts alleged in ths statement of claim are to be taken ss true, it is nevertheless open to a defendant in default to contend that upon those facts the plaintiff is not in law entitled to the relief clsimed: see Rule 261; and see Greig v. Green, 6 Gr. 240; Scane v. Hartrick, 7 Gr. 161.

Proof by affidavit of the allegations contained in the statement of claim is, therefore, unnecessary as against a defendant who has put in no defence: see Rule 354; and see Williams v. Brisco, 29 W. R. 713; 17 C. L. J. 478; Ripley v. Sawyer, 31 Ch. D. 494; Jones v. Harris, 55 L. T. 884; Willmott v. Young, 44 L. T. 331; Montagu v. The Land Corporation of England, 56 L. T. 730; De Jongh v. Newman, 56 L. T. 180; Webster v. Vincent, 77 L. T. 167; Bagley v. Searle, 35 W. R. 404; 56 L. T. 306; and Gray v. Roberts, 32 Sol. Jour. 322. But under the corresponding Irish Rule, it has been held that where the plaintiff's title depends on documents, he must produce and prove them: Crisford v. Dodd, 15 L. R. Ir. 83; hut see Smith v. Buchan, and Faithful v. Woodley, infra, p. 863.

A defendsnt though in default of defence, if he has appeared, is entitled to notice of motion for judgment, whether it be made in the Weekly Court, or at the trial: see Rules 213, 215. If he has not appeared ths motion msy be mads without notice: Rule 35.

Variation of claim indorsed on writ by the statement of claim.

Where the plaintiff by his statement of claim has materially varied his claim as indorsed on the writ, the defendant must be personally, or substitutionally served with ths statement of claim: Rule 109 (2) even though he has not appeared; and as only the statement of claim will be before the Court on a motion for judgment it is the duty of the plaintiff to inform the Court of such variation; it being a well understood rule that on all ex parte applications the utmost candour must be observed. Rule 356.

On a motion for judgment on default of defence, a plaintiff will be confined to the relief asked by his statement of claim; thus, where by his statement of claim the plaintiff asked for specific performance and ancillary relief, but not for any declaration of lien, upon motion for judgment on default of defence, it was held that the plaintiff could not have a declaration of lien: Tocon v. National Standard Land Co., 56 L. T. 165; nor a rescission of the contract: Stone v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 188; 56 L. J. Ch. 871. Plaintiff confined to relief asked by claim.

Where by the statement of claim, in an action for specific performance, the plaintiff craved leave to refer to the agreement, and the property did not appear, except by reference to the agreement, it was held that the allegations were insufficient, as nothing beyond the statement of claim could be looked at: Smith v. Buchan, 36 W. R. 631; 58 L. T. 710; Faithfull v. Woodley, 43 Ch. D. 287.

If a statement of claim against a married woman on a contract, made before 13th April, 1897, does not allege the possession of separate estate, no judgment can be given: Tetley v. Griffith, 36 W. R. 96; 57 L. T. 673. Claim insufficient to found relief.

Where plaintiff's claim was dismissed by interlocutory order, defendant was held to be entitled to proceed for judgment on his counter-claim: Higgins v. Scott, 21 Q. B. D. 10; Roberts v. Booth, 1893, 1 Ch. 52. Motion for judgment on counter-claim

Where a part of the plaintiff's claim is for a debt or liquidated demand, and the balance is an unliquidated demand, and a motion for judgment is made, under Rule 121, in default of defence, the Court may, in its discretion, refer the motion to one of its officers to take an account of the amount due, and is not obliged to give final judgment for the amount of the liquidated demand: Charles v. Shepherd, 1892, 2 Q. B. 622; or the Court may on proof of the claim by affidavit, give final judgment for the amount claimed, without a reference: Roberts v. Booth, supra. In Ontario, however, it is open to a plaintiff to sign judgment under Rule 355 in default of defence for that part of the claim which is a debt, or liquidated demand: see Rule 355. Judgment, where part of claim is liquidated and part is not.

Where a defence is struck out for non-compliance with Rules as to examination, or with an order to produce, under Rules 331, 353, the defendant is in default under this Rule: Fisher v. Hughes, 25 W. R. 528. Defence struck out.

As to judgment in an action on a bond which is subject to s. 125, supra; see notes to that section.

The Rule was applied in Re Smith, Bridson v. Smith, W. N. 1876, 103, where one defendant made default, and the others admitted the plaintiff's claim by their defence.

In National Provincial Bank v. Evans, 51 L. J. Chy. 97; 30 W. R. 177, the defaulting defendant was an infant, and the action was set down under Eng. R. 1875, O. 19, r. 17 (not adopted in Ontario), for trial as against him, and on motion for judgment against other defendants. The practice in Ontario is, without express provision, Infant defendant.

the same. See also Re Fitzwater, 52 L. J. Chy. 83; Gardner v. Tapling, 33 W. R. 473.

Where a defence is put in after the proper time, but before a motion under this Rule is made: see notes to Rules 110, 112 and 121.

Several defendants.

Under the English Rules a motion cannot be made against one of several defendants alone unless the cause of action be severable, and it would seem that this Rule must be understood to be subject to that limitation: see Verney v. Thomas, 36 W. R. 398; 58 L. T. 20; MacMillan v. Australian Territories, 76 L. T. 182, and note to Rule 354.

In a case where several persons joined as plaintiffs to restrain the infringement of rights of pasture to which they were severally entitled, the defendant counter-claimed against the plaintiffs, and seven third parties, to restrain the erection of fences on the land in question. Judgment by default of appearance against the seven third parties was refused before trial, because, assuming them to have been properly made parties, the cause of action against them was not severable from that against the plaintiffs: Verney v. Thomas, 36 W. R. 398; 58 L. T. 20.

Under the former Chancery Practice, where a bill was filed against a patentee, and his vendee, impeaching the patent, and the vendee allowed the bill to be taken pro confesso, the plaintiff failing to establish his case against the patentee who defended, the bill was dismissed as against both defendants, though without costs as to the vendee: McDermott v. McDermott, 3 Chy. Ch. 38; and see Tucker v. Goyer, referred to in note to Rule 354.

Costs.

Costs.—Upon the motion for judgment the costs are, under section 74, supra, in the discretion of the Court: Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch 134; 60 L. T. 575.

Leave required for motion after one year.

357. Except by leave an action shall not be set down on motion for judgment for default, after the expiration of one year from the time when the party seeking to set down the same first became entitled so to do. C.R. 612.

See Eng. (1883) R. 567.

In case of issues between parties other than plaintiff and defendant.

358. Where issues arise otherwise than between plaintiff and defendant, if any party to any such issue makes default in delivering any pleading, the Court may, at the trial or on motion, give such judgment as upon the pleadings may seem just. C.R. 594.

See Eng. (1883) R. 307.

The Eng. Rule enables the plaintiff in a counter-claim to obtain judgment against any defendant thereto who makes default: Street v. Crump, 25 Ch. D. 68; see, in Ontario, Rule 121.

For form of judgment as to costs where an action comes on for trial against one defendant, and on motion for judgment against another defendant who has not appeared to the writ, or does not appear at the trial, and the plaintiff recovers judgment against both with costs: see Dansk Rekylriffel Syndikat Aktieselskab v. Snell, 1908, 1 Ch. 127; 98 L. T. 830. Rule 359.

(x) Replevin.

359.—(1) An order of replevin may be obtained.

When motion for replevin order required.

1. On motion therefor on showing the facts of the wrongful taking or detention complained of, the value and description of the property, and that the person claiming it is the owner thereof, or is lawfully entitled to the possession thereof (as the case may be);

When it may issue on præcipe.

2. Or on præcipe if the person claiming the property, his servant or agent, makes an affidavit stating,

Affidavit to obtain order on præcipe.

(a) That the person claiming the property is the owner or lawfully entitled to the possession thereof;

(b) The value thereof;

(c) That the property was wrongfully taken out of the possession of the claimant, or fraudulently got out of his possession, within two months next before making of the affidavit;

(d) That the deponent is advised and believes that the claimant is entitled to the order;

(e) And that there is good reason to apprehend that unless the order is issued without waiting for a motion, the delay would materially prejudice the just rights of the claimant in respect to the property.

Order may issue on præcipe if the property was distrained for rent, or damage feasant.

3. Or on præcipe (in case the property was distrained for rent or damage feasant), if the person claiming the property, his servant or agent, makes an affidavit stating,

(a) That the person claiming the property is the owner or is lawfully entitled to the possession thereof (describing the property);

(b) The value thereof;

(c) That the property was taken under colour of a distress for rent or damage feasant; and in such case the order shall state that the defendant has taken and unjustly detains the property, under colour of a distress for rent or damage feasant (as the case may be). C.R. 1068.

The order is issued on præcipe (by the officer in whose office the action is commenced: see Rule 762), under clause (2) in cases where the goods have been taken out of the plaintiff's possession, or, under clause (3), where they have been distrained for rent, or damage feasant. A special application is necessary under clause (1) in all other cases.

The latter application is made on notice, unless the special circumstances, in the opinion of the Judge, justify the making of an ex parte order: Rule 360.

Motion for replevin order.

Whether the application may now be made in Chambers, as formerly, is not clear; unless it comes within Rule 207 (4) as being a matter relating to the conduct of an action or matter, then it would appear that the motion must be made in the Weekly Court.

The affidavit for a præcipe order is to be by the person claiming the property, his servant or agent. An affidavit not describing the deponent as servant or agent, but using the words "now acting for the said (plaintiff)" was held to be insufficient, but for the fact that it further showed facts from which the agency might be inferred Arnold v. Hamilton, 1 P. R. 263.

The affidavit on special application under clause (1) may be made by any one cognizant of the facts necessary to be sworn to.

In either case the affidavit must be sufficiently explicit to enable the Sheriff to identify the property: Jones v. Cook, 2 P. R. 396, Hoorigan v. Driscoll, 8 P. R. 184; and the description must be inserted in the order: see Form No. 85; H. & L. Forms, No. 1271.

An objection that there was in fact no taking or detention is not a ground for setting aside the order; that is one of the questions to be determined in the action: Gilchrist v. Conger, 11 U. C. Q. B. 197.

An order will not be granted to replevy a vessel seized for breach of the revenue laws: Scott v. McRae, 3 P. R. 16; neither should the order be issued on præcipe in such a case: Ib.

Before taking the property the Sheriff takes a bond from the plaintiff under Rule 362, unless otherwise provided by the order.

Where the order is issued on præcipe the Sheriff takes the property under it, but does not replevy it without further order directing him to do so, except where the property was distrained for rent, or damage feasant: Rule 365.

Discretionary power of the Court or Judge when an application for an order is made.

360. The motion shall be on notice to the defendant, unless the special circumstances of the case in the opinion of the Court justify the making of an ex parte order. The Court instead of granting or refusing the order may direct the Sheriff to take a bond in less or more than treble the value of the property, or may direct him, in addition to taking a bond pursuant to Rule 369, to take and detain the property until the further order of the Court, instead of at once replevying the same to the plaintiff; or may order that the plaintiff instead of giving a bond be at liberty to pay into Court to the credit of the action, subject to further order, such sum as may be proper to stand as security to the defendant in the same manner and to the same extent as any bond which the plaintiff would otherwise be required to give to the Sheriff. C.R. 1069. Rules 361, 362.

361. The defendant may apply to the Court to discharge, vary, or modify the order, or to stay proceedings thereunder, or for any other relief, with respect to the return, safety or sale of the property or any part thereof, or otherwise. C.R. 1070. Defendant may apply to discharge order.

An objection that there was in fact no taking, is not a ground for setting aside the order: Gilchrist v. Conger, supra, in note to Rule 359.

An objection that a writ of replevin was directed to a Sheriff who was sole liquidator of the plaintiff company, was over-ruled in Alpha Oil Co. v. Donnelly, 12 P. R. 515.

This Rule applies to applications to discharge the order of replevin on the merits, and not for mere irregularities: Ib. On an application to discharge the order, however, the question involved in the action and to be disposed of at the trial cannot be considered: Ryan v. Fraser, 2 O. W. N. 1386.

362.—(1) Before the Sheriff acts on the order he shall take a bond, Form 132, from the plaintiff with two sufficient sureties in such sum as may be prescribed by the order, or if no special provision has been made, then in treble the value of the property as stated in the order of replevin. Replevin bond to be taken by Sheriff.

(2) The plaintiff may instead of giving a bond pay into Court twice the value of the goods as stated in the order, and the Sheriff may act upon a certificate of the Accountant that the money has been paid. C.R. 1072.

For form of bond, see No. 132: H. & L. Forms, No. 1272.

The taking of a bond is imperative, and no act can be done under the order until the security is given: see Lawless v. Radford, 9 P. R. 33, where the seizure was set aside as irregular.

This Rule makes it clear, by the insertion of the words "from the plaintiff with two sufficient sureties," that the Sheriff is bound to use due care to obtain a bond sufficient, at the time of taking it, to answer the damages recoverable in the event of the plaintiff being unsuccessful: see Norman v. Hope, 13 Ont. 556; 14 Ont. 287. The Sheriff must exercise a reasonable discretion in inquiring into the Sureties required.

Rule 363.

sufficiency of the sureties; if he fails to do so he will be liable to the defendant in the replevin action, in case it results in his favour, for all damages, to the amount of the penalty, naturally flowing from the wrongful act, e.g. (where the replevin arises out of distress for rent), the rent in arrear, costs of distress, and of the replevin suit, and of any action against the principal and sureties on the bond: Ib.

As two sufficient sureties are required, it will not be sufficient if the plaintiff in replevin and one of the sureties are worth the amount of the penalty at the time the bond is taken: Ib.

Semble, that a subscribing witness, and an affidavit of its due execution, is necessary to the validity of the bond: see Heley v. Cousins, 34 U. C. Q. B. 63.

As to the terms, and extent of the security, to which defendant is entitled, in cases respecting goods not previously taken out of the plaintiff's possession: see Rule 363.

The defendant is entitled to see the bond in the hands of the Sheriff: Logue v. Prescott, 18 C. L. T. 186 (N.B.).

An action lies against the Sheriff for refusing to assign the bond: Pacaud v. McEwan, 31 U. C. Q. B. 328. Only nominal damages were recovered, where the plaintiff was found not entitled to recover the value of the goods, not being their owner: Ib.

An action on the bond will lie,—

Action on replevin bond.

(1) For not prosecuting the suit with effect, i.e., not successfully: as to which see Welsh v. O'Brien, 28 U. C. Q. B. 406; Mulvaney v. Hopkins, 18 U. C. Q. B. 174; Patterson v. Fuller, 31 U. C. Q. B. 323; 32 U. C. Q. B. 240.

(2) For delay in prosecuting: see Belcher v. Burn, 24 U. C. Q. B. 124; Churchill v. Denham, 29 C. P. 474; but see O'Donnell v. Duchesnault, 14 Ont. 1.

(3) For not returning the goods: see Patterson v. Fuller, supra.

As to the damages recoverable: see Norman v. Hope, 13 Ont. 556; 14 Ont. 287. Formerly the excess of solicitor and client costs of defence, over and above taxed party and party costs, were not recoverable: Williams v. Crow, 10 Ont. App. 301; but see now Rule 363.

Damages for "illegal distress" and for "annoyance and injury to credit and reputation in trade" are recoverable in an action of replevin arising out of a wrongful distress for alleged arrears of rent: Smith v. Enright, 69 L. T. 724.

Indemnity of defendant in replevin proceedings.

363. When an order of replevin is issued for any property which had not been previously taken out of the plaintiff's possession, and for which the plaintiff might bring an action for conversion, the defendant shall be entitled, if the plaintiff fails in the action, to be fully indemnified against all damages sustained by the defendant, including any extra costs which he may incur in defending the action; and the bond shall be conditioned so as to require the plaintiff and the sureties to indemnify and save harmless the defendant from all loss and damage which he may sustain by reason of the seizure, and of any deterioration of the property in the meantime, in the event of its being returned, and all costs, charges, and expenses which the defendant may incur, including reasonable costs not taxable between party and party. This provision shall not be required in cases of distress for rent or damage feasant. C.R. 1074. Rules 364, 365.

The statute (48 Vict. c. 13, s. 8), from which this Rule is taken was probably passed in consequence of the decision in Williams v. Crow, 10 Ont. App. 301, to the effect that a successful defendant in replevin could not recover as damages the extra costs he had been put to between solicitor and client.

Under this Rule these extra costs are now recoverable, except in cases where the goods replevied have been distrained for rent, or damage feasant.

This Rule gives no right of action independently of the bond, but merely adds another condition to the bond beyond that formerly required: Harper v. Toronto Type Foundry, 31 Ont. 422.

The sureties are not discharged by the trial being postponed on the application of the plaintiff without the defendant's consent or concurrence: O'Donnell v. Duchenault, 14 Ont. 1.

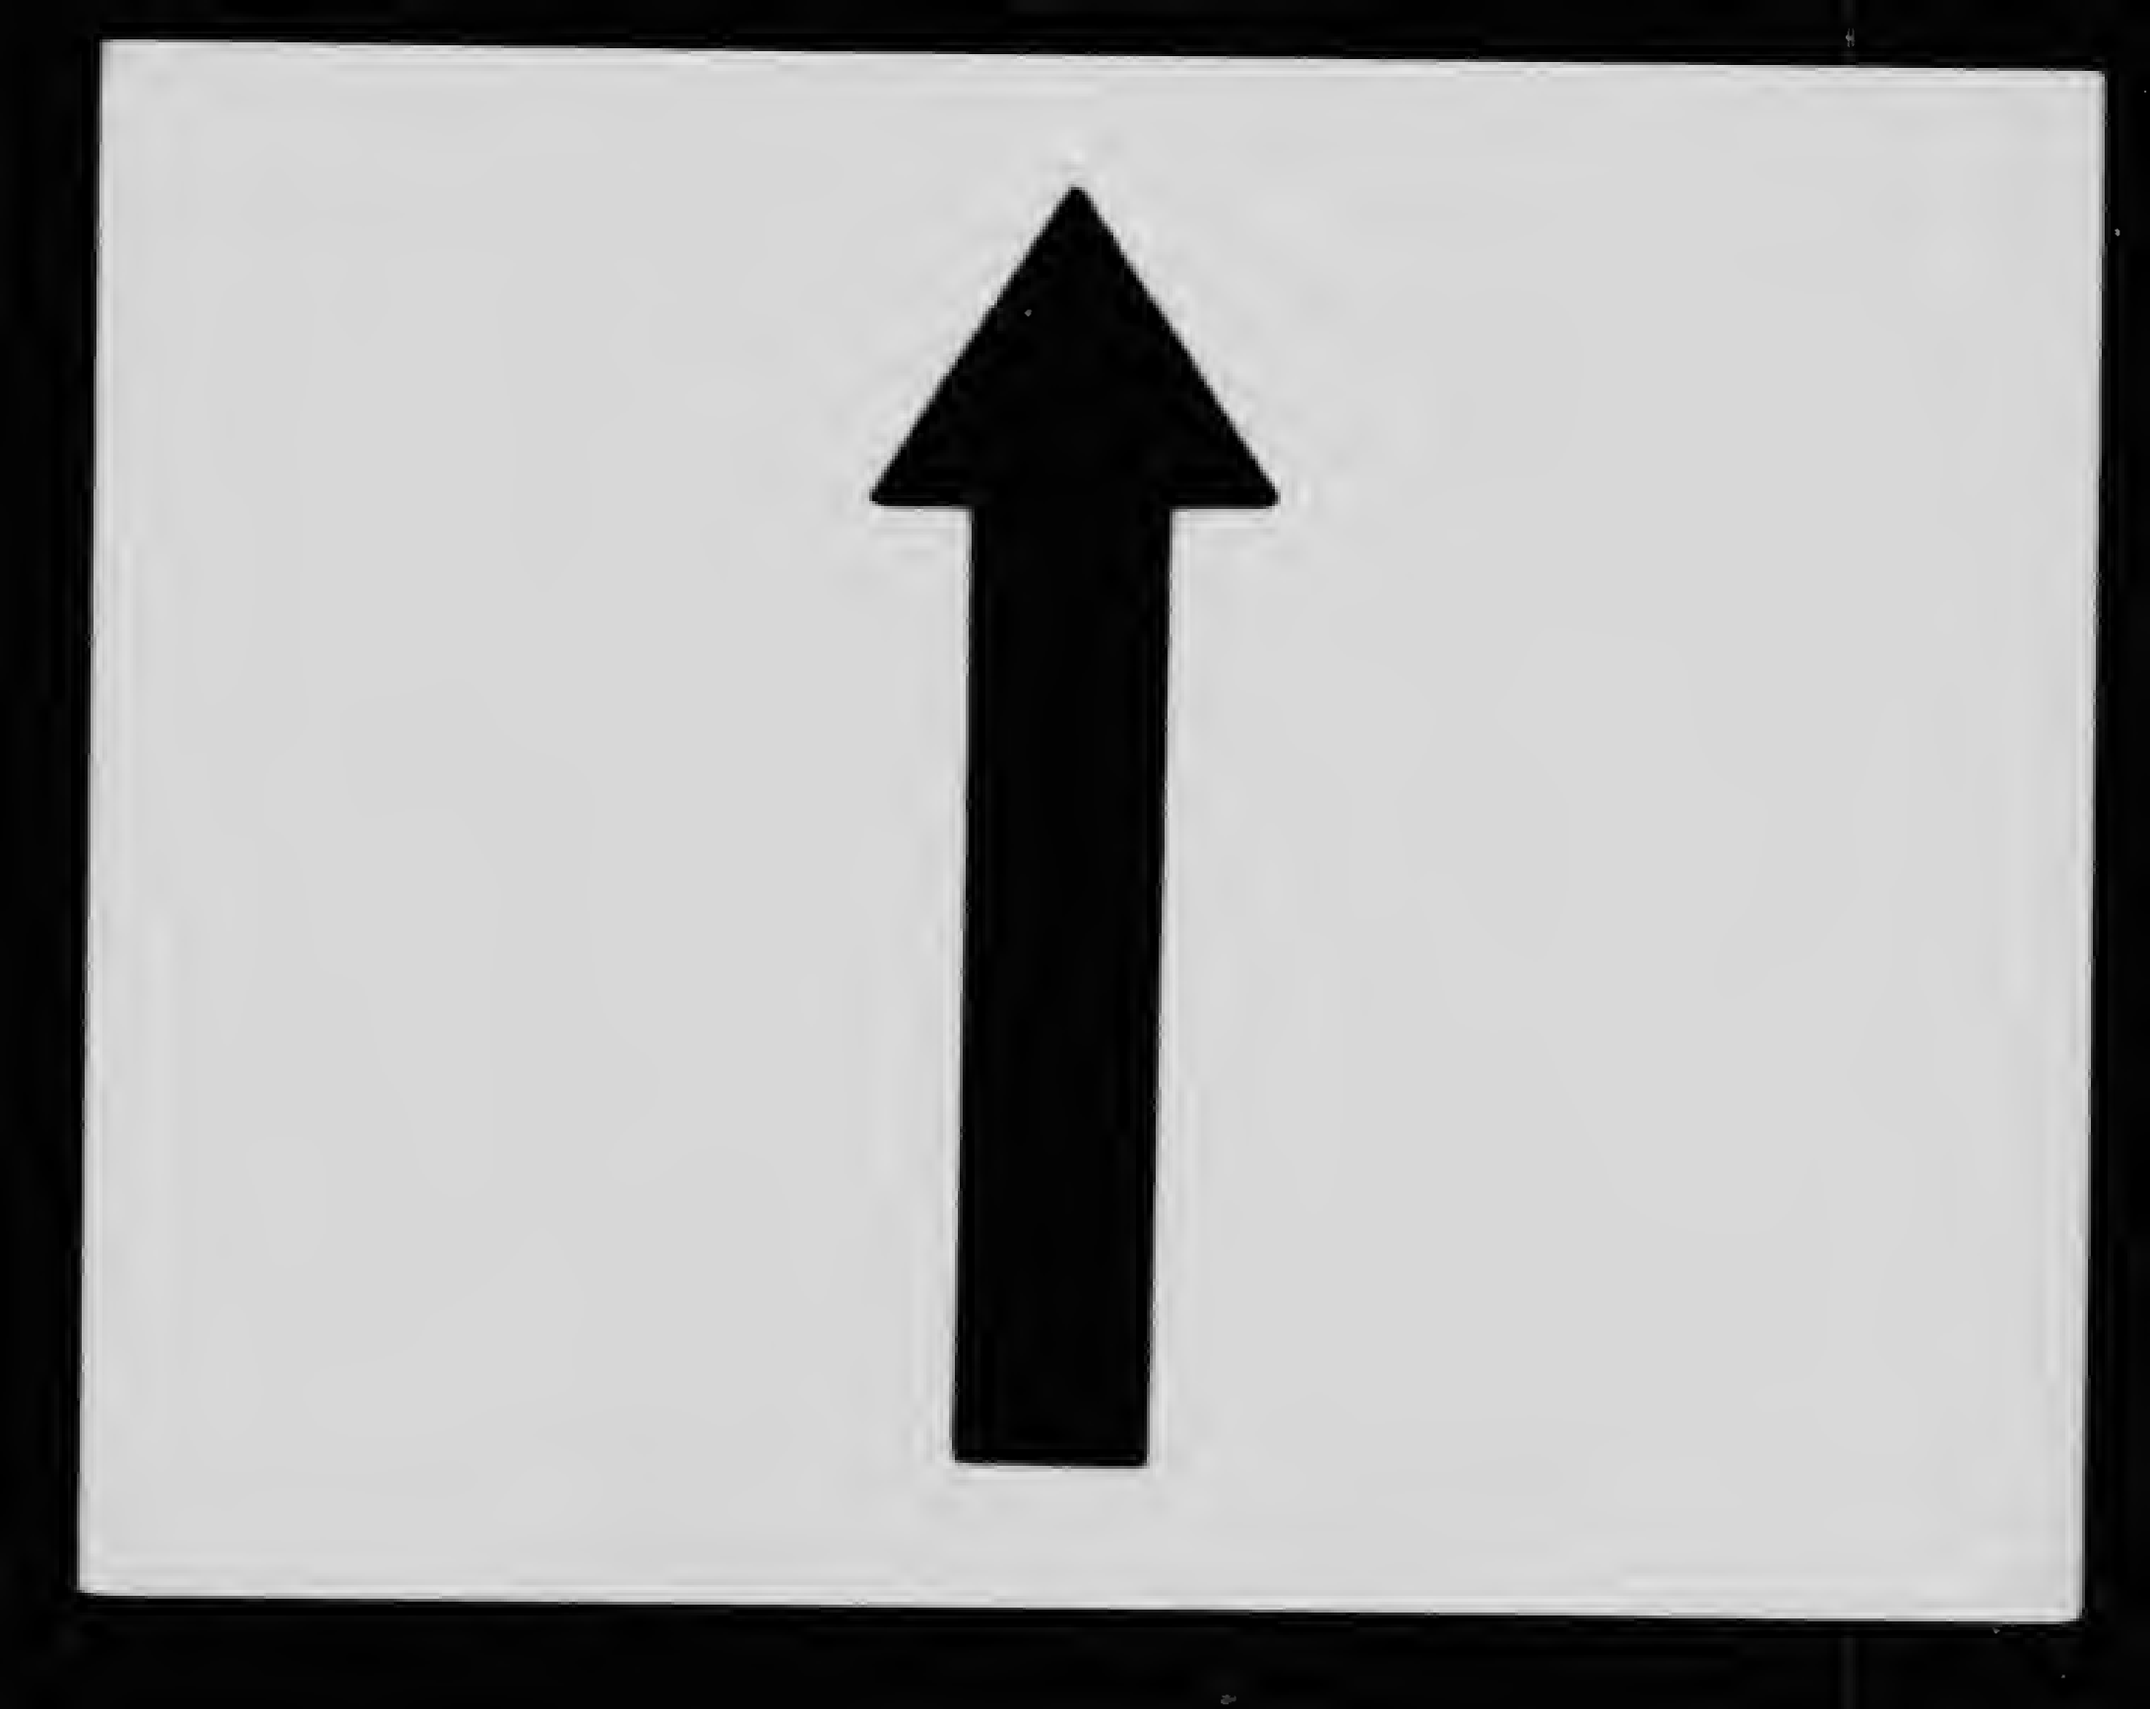
364. The Sheriff shall not serve a copy of the writ of summons or order until he has replevied the property, or some part thereof if he cannot replevy the whole. C.R. 1075. Sheriff not to serve writ of summons till he has replevied.

As to the mode of framing the statement of claim where part of the goods are eloigned: see Thurston v. Breard, 8 P. R. 10.

365. Where the order is issued on præcipe under Rule 359 (2) the Sheriff shall take and detain the property, and shall not replevy the same to the plaintiff without the order of the Court, but may, after seven days from the time of taking the same, re-deliver it to the defendant, unless in the meantime the plaintiff obtains and serves on the Sheriff an order directing a different disposition of the property. C.R. 1076. What Sheriff shall do when the order issues on præcipe.

Before acting upon the order the Sheriff must take a bond from the plaintiff, as provided in Rule 362, unless otherwise provided by the order.

In replevying, power is given to the Sheriff by The Replevin Act (R. S. O. c. 69), s. 5, to search for the property in, and if necessary (but during the daylight only) to break open the door of the defendant's dwelling house, after a demand publicly made at the door for delivery of the property, and non-compliance for six hours.



Rules 366, 367.

By section 6 of the same Act, if the property is reasonably supposed to be in any enclosure, other than the dwelling house, the Sheriff may publicly demand it at the enclosure, and in case it is not forthwith delivered, he may, and if necessary must, at once break open the enclosure to make replevin.

By section 7 of the same Act, if the property is reasonably supposed to be concealed about the person, or the premises (other than the dwelling house or other enclosure) of the defendant, or any other person holding the same for him, the Sheriff may demand it from the defendant, or such other person, and upon refusal or neglect to deliver it, may, and if necessary must, search the person of the defendant, or such other person, or such premises.

When order to be returned with Schedule annexed.

366. The Sheriff shall return the order on or before the tenth day after the service thereof, and shall transmit annexed thereto,

What Schedule to contain.

(a) The names of the sureties in, and the date of the bond taken from the plaintiff, and the name or names of the witnesses thereto;

(b) The place of residence and addition of the sureties;

(c) The number, quantity and quality of the articles of property replevied; and in case he has replevied only a portion of the property and cannot replevy the residue by reason of the same having been eloigned out of his county, or not being in the possession of the defendant or of any other person for him, he shall state in his return the articles which he cannot replevy and the reason therefor. C.R. 1077.

If Sheriff returns that the property has been eloigned, order to issue.

367.—(1) Where the Sheriff makes such a return of the property distrained, taken or detained having been eloigned, the Court may make an order (Form 86) directing the Sheriff to take in withernam goods and chattels of the defendant.

Where Sheriff returns goods eloigned.

(2) Where a Sheriff makes return that the whole or any part of the property has been eloigned, or that for any reason the same cannot be replevied, the plaintiff may, if he so elect, serve the writ of summons, and in his statement of claim, claim either the return of the goods and damages for their detention, or damages for their conversion. C.R. 1078. Amended.

For Form of order: see No. 86; H. & L. Forms, No. 1273.

On the 5th Dec., 1859, the practice in England was that if the Sheriff returned an eloignment (quod averia, etc., elongata sunt) to alias and pluries writs of replevin, the writ of capias in withernam issued; but the plaintiff might take out and deliver to the Sheriff the writ of replevin, alias, and pluries, at the same time, so as to get a return from the Sheriff to the pluries at once: Gilbert on Replevin, 95. It would seem that under the present Rules no alias and pluries orders or writs are provided for, and the order in withernam may be issued upon the Sheriff's return, to the order of replevin, of an eloignment. Rules 368-370.

368. Where the plaintiff is entitled to sign judgment by default, he may sign final judgment for five dollars and costs, but shall not be entitled to recover a larger sum except upon an assessment or upon filing the consent of the defendant or his solicitor, and an affidavit verifying the signature to such consent. C.R. 1079. Damages on judgment by default.

As to damages recoverable by a plaintiff in replevin at a trial, or on an assessment of damages: see Grohom v. O'Colloghan, 14 Ont. App. 477.

(xi) Interim Preservation of Property, etc.

369. Where there is a dispute arising upon a contract or any alleged contract affecting the title to any property the Court may make an order for the preservation or interim custody of such property, or may order that the amount in dispute be brought into Court or otherwise secured, or may order the sale of the property and the payment of the proceeds into Court. C.R. 1095. Order for interim preservation of property.

See Eng. (1883) R. 657.

This provision gives increased power to the Court for preserving the rights of the parties uninjured, during the pendency of litigation, and an interlocutory order made under this Rule may be enforced by attachment: Hutchinson v. Hartmont, W. N. 1877, 29.

In Russell v. Davies, W. N. 1883, 109; 19 C. L. J. 273, an action to recover arrears of an annuity, an order made for payment of the annuity till the trial, the plaintiff being in destitution, was reversed in appeal, as it appeared in the evidence that the defendant had a primâ facie case for insisting that the annuity had determined.

370.—(1) The Court may, upon the application of any party and upon such terms as may seem just, make any order for the detention or preservation of property, being the subject of the action, or for the inspection of any property, the inspection of which is necessary for the proper determination of the question in dispute; and for all or any of the purposes aforesaid may authorize any person or persons to enter upon or into any land Order for detention and inspection of property.

Rule 370.

or building in the possession of a party and may authorize any samples to be taken, or any observation to be made or experiment to be tried, which may seem necessary or expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information or evidence. (See also Rule 266.) C. R. 1096.

(2) The Court may also on notice to any person not a party to the action make an order authorizing entry upon or into any lands or building in the possession of such person for the purposes of such inspection.

See the Eng. (1883) R. 659.

Similar jurisdiction of Court of Chancery.

The Court of Chancery, under its similar jurisdiction, would not grant an inspection on the application of the plaintiff, unless satisfied that he had a case to be tried at the hearing; nor in any case unless the inspection asked for was necessary for the purpose of enabling the party applying for it to prove his case: Piggott v. Anglo-American Telegraph Co., 19 L. T. 46; Batley v. Kynock, L. R. 19 Eq. 90.

C. R. 1098 provided that an application might be made at any time after the right appears, and although that Rule has not been continued, presumably the application may be so made under this Rule: see Right of Way Mining Co. v. La Rose Mining Co., 14 O. L. R. 80, where an application for inspection of property was successfully made before the delivery of the statement of claim.

Inspection by the plaintiff and his solicitor and certain witnesses of a building, the construction of which was in question in the action, was ordered: Keyes v. McKeon, 23 O. L. R. 529.

Semble, a Judge cannot, validly, on an interlocutory motion, take a view of the subject matter in dispute, in lieu of the evidence of witnesses: London General Omnibus Co. v. Lavell, 1901, 1 Ch. 135; 83 L. T. 453; but see Rule 265.

Formerly, inspection could not be granted to one defendant of property belonging to another defendant, when there was no right in question between them in the action: Shaw v. Smith, 18 Q. B. D. 193; but under the Rule as now framed such an inspection might be ordered, if necessary for the proper determination of the question in dispute in the action.

The power to grant inspection under this Rule is limited by clause (1) to property in possession of a party to the action; where, to make the inspection effective, entry into any land or building is necessary, such entry must be limited to any land or building in the possession of a party to the action; and an order was refused where the person having possession was not before the Court: Reid v. Powers, 28 Sol. Jour. 653; Garrard v. Edge, 37 W. R. 501. Under clause (2), however, where the property in question is on the land or in possession of some third person not a party, on notice to such person inspection may be ordered.

In an action to restrain defendants (who were owners of a house fronting on the same street as the house owned by the plaintiff), from causing, or permitting, sewage to be discharged from their premises into a drain belonging to the plaintiff, and from permitting any connection to remain between their premises and the plaintiff's drain, an order was made under this Rule, authorizing the plaintiff to enter on that part of the etreet the eoil of which belonged to ths defendants. for the purpose of experimenting, in order to discover whether the pipe which joined the plaintiff'e drain proceeded directiy from the defendant'e houee, and for thie purpose to dig up the street as far as might he necessary: Lumb v. Beoumont, 27 Ch. D. 356; but semble, such an order could not he made in respect of a pubic etreet or highway in Ontario without the consent of the municipaiity having jurisdiction over such street or highway. Rule 370.

Where the defendant in an action for obstruction of light and air, had not delivered his statement of defence, Arohibaid, J., refueed an order for inspection until he had diecloeed hie defence: W. N. 1876, 53.

In a nuisance action, an application to inepect the defendant's worke to ascertain how the nuieance was occasioned was refused, as proof of the nuisance could be obtained from external eourcee: Borlow v. Bailey, 18 W. R. 783; see aleo Flower v. Lloyd, W. N. 1876, 169, 230.

Upon a primâ facie case of mineral trespass, or encroachment by the defendant, or where the fact of trespass (which is denied) can only be aecertained by inspection, and no injury will result to the defendant therefrom, an interiocutory order will be made for the inspection of his mine; and the order will, when necessary, extend to the removal of the obetruction to the inspection: Seton, 5th ed., 503; see Cooper v. Ince, Holl & Co., W. N. 1876, 24; Right of Way Mining Co. v. La Rose Mining Co., 14 O. L. R. 80. Mineral trespass.

The Court has juriediction under this Rule to grant an interim injunction in a proper case, to reetrain a defendant from ceasing to pump water out of a mine which the defendant was in posesssion of. and had agreed to iease, in order to prevent ite destruction: Strelley v. Pearson, 15 Ch. D. 113. Injunction.

The rule in actione for the infringement of ietters patent is, where a plaintiff ie unable to obtain clear and satisfactory evidence of infringement, the Court, upon a fair primâ facie case being made ont, will order the defendant to permit an inspection to he made of his premises and machinery, by proper persons named on behaif of the plaintiff: Seton, 5th ed., 351. In an action to restrain infringement of a patent for grinding grain eo as to separate the germ from the flour. inspection of the plaintiff's procese, to see how it wae actually carried on under their patent, was granted. The plaintiffe did not claim any novelty in the machinery, their epecification was confined to a new process or product: The Germ Milling Co. v. Robinson, 53 L. T. 696; 34 W. R. 194; 55 L. J. Chy. 287 Infringement of letters patent.

Inspection of eamples was [illegible] in Munn v. McConnell, 7 C. L. T. 169.

In an action to recover jewellery, the defendant alleged that it belonged to a third party, and had been depoeited by him to eecure a debt due to the defendant. The Court ordered it to be given up to an officer of the Court: Veloti & Co. v. Brahom & Co., 46 L. J. C. P. 415. Preservation of snbject of action.

The Court has full power to allow photographs to he taken hy a party to the action of documente in the poeeession of the other party: Lewis v. Londesborough, 1893, 2 Q. B. 191.

On the affidavit of plaintiff, stating that the property was rapidly being damaged, the Court of Appeal appointed him receiver and manoger, though no application for thie purpose had heen made, either to a Divisional Court or a Judge: Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309. Receiver to preserve property.

Rule 371.

As to authorizing the making of experiments: see Badische Anilin, etc., v. Levinstein, 24 Ch. D. 156.

Delivery up of documents.

Instead of ordering documents to be brought into Court, the Court in a clear case, on an interlocutory motion, directed a defendant to deliver up documents of which he obtained possession while in the plaintiff's service, and which he had improperly carried away on leaving his employ: Whitwham v. Moss, 73 L. T. 57.

Practice.

An application under this Rule is generally made to the Court as on motions for injunctions: see English v. Camberwell, W. N. 1875, 256; but an order has been made in Chambers: see Cooper v. Ince, Hall Co., W. N. 1876, 24; Right of Way Mining Co. v. La Rose Mining Co., supra, p. 873. It should, in general, be upon notice: see the next Rule, and Habershon v. Gill, W. N. 1875, 231; but where circumstances rendered it proper, on an ex parte application, an order for the purpose of inspecting and taking samples was made: Hennessey v. Rohmann, 36 L. T. 51; W. N. 1877, 14; an order for detention and preservation of property: Meluish v. Milton, 24 W. R. 679; and an order for inspection of a mine, in an action for damages for withdrawing support to land: Mitchell v. Darley Main Colliery Co., 31 W. R. 549.

A party is bound by an order for preservation of property as soon as he has notice of it: Ex p. Langley, 13 Ch. D. 110. See also p. 72, supra.

Chattel property in dispute may be ordered to be sent out of the jurisdiction, for the purpose of inspection by a witness out of the jurisdiction whose evidence is ordered to be taken abroad: Chaplin v. Puttick, 1898, 2 Q. B. 160; S. C., sub nom. Chaplin v. Laing, 78 L. T. 410.

Where the parties agree, without order, to an inspection, the costs thereof are taxable as part of the costs of the action: Ashworth v. English Card Clothing Co., 1904, 1 Ch. 702.

Sale of perishable goods.

371. The Court may, at any time, order the sale in such manner and on such terms as may seem just, of any goods, wares, or merchandise which may be of a perishable nature or likely to be injured from keeping, or which for any other reason it may be desirable to have sold at once. C.R. 1097.

See Eng. (1883) R. 638.

Quære, whether an order can be made under this Rule only where the goods, etc., are the subject of the action: Dongar v. Gospel Oak Iron Co., 6 T. L. R. 260, and see Rule 370.

An order may be made for the sale of a chattel which, for a "just and sufficient reason, it may be desirable to have sold at once." Thus, in Bartholomew v. Freeman, 3 C. P. D. 316, the Court ordered a horse to be sold, on the ground that it was consuming its value in food, and there was no reason why it should not be sold. In Coddington v. Jacksonville P. & M. Ry. Co., 39 L. T. 12, an order was made for the sale of bonds as perishable property; and in Evans v. Davies, 1893, 2 Ch. 216; 68 L. T. 244, a like order was made in respect of shares in a limited company, as being goods within the meaning of this Rule. (See also note to Rule 222, supra, p. 683 et seq.); and see Gee v. Betts, 103 L. T. Jour. 267.

A foreign ship was ordered to be sold on the report of the Marshal that the sale was desirable: The Hercules, 11 P. D. 10. Rules 372, 373.

An order was refused to the plaintiff where there was no dispute in the action that the property in the goods was in the defendant, there being no urgent reason for a sale: Dongar v. Gospel Oak Iron Co., supra.

In an action for an unpaid balance on the sale of a horse, and for breach of warranty of another horse received in part payment, plaintiff applied for leave to sell the horse so received in part payment; it was held by Quain, J., that no order was necessary, and that the Rule was not applicable: Anon., 1 Chart. Ch. Ca. 127; 60 L. T. Jour. p. 84.

In an action of replevin an order was refused, where applied for by the plaintiff, for the sale of six valuable horses which had been delivered to him under an order of replevin in the action, it being held that he was free to sell them, at the risk, of course, of damages, if he failed in his action: Innes v. Hutcheon, 9 O. L. R. 392.

372. Where a plaintiff seeks to recover specific property other than land, and the defendant does not dispute the title of the plaintiff, but claims to retain the property by virtue of a lien or otherwise as security for money, the Court may order that the plaintiff pay into Court, to abide the event of the action, the amount of money in respect of which the lien or security is claimed, and such further sum (if any) for interest and costs as the Court may direct, and that upon such payment into Court being made, the property claimed be given up to him. C.R. 1099. Amount of lien claimed may be paid into Court and property delivered up.

See Eng. (1853) R. 664.

Under this Rule in order to entitle the plaintiff to an order that the specific property be given up to him, he must pay into Court the whole amount of the lien claimed by the defendant, notwithstanding that it exceeds the value of the specific property claimed: Gebruder Naf v. Ploton, 25 Q. B. D. 13; 63 L. T. 328. But this would not prevent the Court from dealing with a case where a fraudulent excessive claim is made for the purpose of defeating the Rule; S. C., per Lord Esher, M.R.

The Rule would appear to apply to both real and personal property in respect of which a lien is claimed.

(xii) Security for Costs.

373. Security for costs may be ordered, Security for costs, order for.

(a) Where the plaintiff resides out of Ontario;

(b) Where the plaintiff is ordinarily resident out of Ontario, though he may be temporarily resident within Ontario;

Rule 373.

(c) Where the plaintiff has brought another action or proceeding for the same cause which is pending in Ontario or in any other country;

(d) Where the plaintiff or any person through or under whom he claims, has had judgment or order passed against him, in another action or proceeding for the same cause in Ontario or in any other country, with costs, and such costs have not been paid;

(e) Where the plaintiff sues as an informer, or seeks to recover any penalty given to an informer or person who sues for the same under a statute or law by which a penalty is given to any person who sues for the same, either for his sole benefit, for the benefit of the Crown, or partly for his benefit and partly for the benefit of the Crown, and the defendant swears that in his belief the plaintiff or informer is not possessed of property sufficient to answer the costs of the action in case a judgment is rendered in favour of the defendant, and that he (the applicant) has a good defence to the action upon the merits, as he is advised and believes;

(f) Where the action is brought by a nominal plaintiff;

(g) Where upon the examination of the plaintiff it appears that there is good reason to believe that the action is frivolous and vexatious, and that the plaintiff is not possessed of sufficient property in Ontario to answer the costs of the action;

(h) Where an action is brought on behalf of a class and the plaintiff is not possessed of sufficient property to answer the costs of the action, and it appears that the plaintiff is put forward or instigated to sue by others;

(i) Where under the provisions of any statute the defendant is entitled to security for costs;

(j) Where either party to a garnishee, interpleader or other issue is an active claimant, and would if a plaintiff be liable to give security for costs. C.R. 1198. Amended. Rule 573.

The amendment to C. R. 1198 consists of the addition of the clauses (e), (f), (g), (h), (i) and (j). All the cases enumerated in those sections were cases in which the Court was previously accustomed to order security for costs to be given, and their addition to this Rule does not really make any change in the practice.

"Plaintiff."—As to this word: see Molsons Bank v. Sawyer, and other cases, infra, p. 887.

Security for Costs, when Ordered.—This Rule does not limit the right to security for costs to the cases enumerated, but gives a specific right to security in those cases in addition to any others in which, according to law or the practice of the Court, a party has been heretofore entitled to claim security for costs.

In addition to the cases enumerated in this Rule security for costs may be required to be given: (1) By parties residing out of the jurisdiction coming into the Master's Office to prove claims as creditors or otherwise. (2) Generally, by persons out of the jurisdiction initiating any proceedings. (3) By a defendant out of the jurisdiction setting up a counter-claim unconnected with the plaintiff's claim.

The fact that the cause of action is a foreign judgment recovered by the plaintiff does not affect the right to security: Crozat v. Brogden, 1894, 2 Q. B. 30.

It will not be ordered in an alimony suit: Bennett v. Bennett, 7 P. R. 54, because in such actions the plaintiff is not ordered to pay costs although she fails.

In regard to the liability to give security for costs, an executor stands in no different position from a litigant suing in his own right: Re Parker, 16 P. R. 392; nor does a foreign receiver: Canadian International Mercantile Agency v. International Mercantile Agency, 4 O. W. R. 338.

Poverty of the plaintiff is no ground alone for asking security: Ross v. Jacques, 8 M. & W. 135; Sweetman v. Morrison, 10 P. R. 446; Cowell v. Taylor, 31 Ch. D. at p. 38; Greener v. Kahn, 1906, 2 K. B. 374; 95 L. T. 481; Heckscher v. Crosley, 1891, 1 Q. B. 224; (as to this case: see Wightwick v. Pope, 1902, 2 K. B. 99); Lemesurier v. Ferguson, 20 T. L. R. 32; Cook v. Whellock, 24 Q. B. D. 658; 38 W. R. 534; nor his insolvency where he is suing for his own benefit: Rhodes v. Dawson, 16 Q. B. D. 548; not even though the plaintiff be also a married woman: McKay v. Boker, 12 P. R. 341. But where a party is prosecuting an appeal from a judgment, poverty may be a sufficient ground for ordering security for costs of the appeal: see Wightwick v. Pope, supra; Billington v. Billington, 1907, 2 K. B. 106; 96 L. T. 665.

A defendant's right to security for costs may, however, be waived, by not applying at a proper stage of the cause: Robertson v. McMaster, 8 P. R. 14. The rule as to when it is too late to apply is not the same, however, as formerly: see United Telephone Co. v. Bassano, 31 Ch. D. 630; and see Wightwick v. Pope, supra.

Where a defendant admitted the cause of action sued upon, and set up a counter-claim founded upon a distinct transaction, he was held not entitled to security for costs from the plaintiff, a foreigner, residing without the jurisdiction: Winterfield v. Bradnum, 3 Q. B. D. 324.

The affidavit on which the application is based need not disclose merits, it is sufficient if the deponent swears that he has "a good defence upon the merits, as he is advised and believes": Bowker v. Nat. Electric Co., C. P. Divisional Court, 1898.

When the defendant is a corporation aggregate, the required affidavit, to obtain security for costs under this Rule, may be made by one of its officers: see Rule 294.

Residence out of jurisdiction.

(a) Residence out of the Jurisdiction.—A defendant is primâ facie, but not necessarily, entitled to security where the plaintiff's residence is out of the jurisdiction. If it be made apparent from evidence which the Court can look at, such as defendant's admissions on examination, or other admission, though not in any technical form: Anglo-American Cosings Co. v. Rowlin, 10 P. R. 391, that there is no defence, security will not be ordered, or a præcipe order will be set aside: Doer v. Rand, 10 P. R. 165; Thiboudeau v. Herbert, 16 P. R. 420; De St. Martin v. Davis, W. N. 1884, 86; 28 Sol. Jour 392.

A plaintiff giving a fictitious address within the jurisdiction, when he is in fact a prisoner under criminal sentence in Ontario, will be ordered to give security for costs: Fournier v. Hogarth, 15 P. R. 72; although the fact that the plaintiff is in prison is not of itself a ground for ordering him to give security: see Dupont v. Crook, 80 L. T. Jour. 31.

A plaintiff wilfully giving a false or fictitious address within the jurisdiction, though really living without, will be ordered to give security: Woldron v. McWalter, 6 P. R. 145; Sutherland v. McDonald, 9 P. R. 178; Redondo v. Choytor, 4 Q. B. D. 458; Monby v. Bewicke, 8 De G. M. & G. 468, and see Re Sturgis, etc., 34 W. R. 163; Andrews v. Reed, 3 T. L. R. 573; Fraser v. Polmer, 3 Y. & C. 280; and where this is done, the order will not be discharged merely because the plaintiff comes to reside within the jurisdiction: Ib.; but where a plaintiff has, by mistake, given an erroneous address within the jurisdiction, when he was in fact resident, temporarily out of the jurisdiction, on the mistake being established, he will not be ordered to give security, if he has in the meantime come to reside within the jurisdiction: Anderson v. Quebec Fire Ins. Co., 15 P. R. 132. A sole plaintiff residing out of the jurisdiction, will primâ facie be obliged to give security: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 28; Republic of Costo Rica v. Erlanger, 3 Ch. D. 62; also a sole plaintiff leaving the jurisdiction during the pendency of the action in order to avoid arrest for contempt of Court: Codd v. Delap, 15 P. R. 374; but not one of several plaintiffs, one of whom resides within the jurisdiction, where they sue in respect of a joint claim, even though a several claim be set up in the alternative: D'Hormusgee v. Grey, 10 Q. B. D. 13; McConnell v. Wakeford, 13 P. R. 455; Smith v. Silverthorne, 15 P. R. 197; but where the claims are several: see Felgate v. Hegler, infra, p. 879. But since Rule 66, supra, p. 415, all the plaintiffs may not be jointly liable for the whole costs; hence, the rule that security for costs should not be ordered where the objection taken to a plaintiff (e.g., residence abroad, insolvency), is not applicable to other co-plaintiffs, does not now universally govern: Irving v. Clark, 12 P. R. 29, in which security was ordered for the costs of the defendants against one plaintiff, where the claims of the several plaintiffs were distinct.

Security for costs was refused in an alimony suit though the plaintiff was resident out of the jurisdiction: Bennett v. Bennett, 7 P. R. 54. Rule 373.

Security will not be required if the plaintiff is serving abroad in the army or navy: Evelyn v. Chippendale, 9 Sim. 497; Evering v. Chiffenden, 7 Dowl. 538; Dickenson v. Duffill, 1 Chy. Ch. 108; or if a British subject, and at the time resident within the jurisdiction, though his movements be uncertain: Allen v. Globe, Globe, 21 December, 1881; Gardiner v. Harris, 8 L. R. Ir. 352; but see Horkley v. Toronto General Trusts Co., 33 C. L. J. 432.

In Martin v. Russell, 21 L. R. Ir. 196, security was ordered to be given by a sailor following his calling out of the jurisdiction, though his family resided within it; but where a plaintiff had his home in Ontario, but carried on business out of the jurisdiction, and only visited his home at intervals of a month for a few days at a time, he was held to reside in Ontario: Moffitt v. Leonard, 8 O. L. R. 383.

A motion for security was refused where the plaintiffs resident out of the jurisdiction, had recovered judgment, and the defendant was appealing, and alleged that, since recovery of the judgment, the plaintiffs had removed their assets out of the Province: Exchange Bank v. Bornes, 11 P. R. 11; Smoll v. Henderson, 18 P. R. 314.

An infant plaintiff resident out of the jurisdiction will not be ordered to give security for costs, nor will his guardian or next friend, if within the jurisdiction: Moron v. Kellogg, 10 C. L. T. 184; Scott v. Niagara, etc., 15 P. R. 409, 455; Roberts v. Coughlin, 18 P. R. 94, but see Stinson v. Martin, 2 Chy. Ch. 88; but if the infant and his next friend be resident out of the jurisdiction, security for costs will be ordered unless a new next friend resident within the jurisdiction is appointed: McBain v. Waterloo Manufacturing Co., 8 O. L. R. 820; and where the infant plaintiff is within the jurisdiction, and the next friend is resident out of the jurisdiction, and is also a plaintiff, the latter may be required to give security for costs, or in default his claim may be struck out: Feigote v. Hegler, 9 O. L. R. 315.

If the plaintiff's permanent residence is foreign, the defendant is entitled to security if the plaintiff is out of the jurisdiction at the time of the motion: Robertson v. Cowan, 10 P. R. 568.

If a plaintiff goes out of the jurisdiction permanently pending action, he may be required to give security for both past and future costs: Mossey v. Allen, 12 Ch. D. 807; Hoteley v. Merchants' Despotch Transportation Co., 10 P. R. 253; Codd v. Delap, 15 P. R. 374; and see Tanner v. Welland, 19 P. R. 149.

A foreign corporation must be incorporated and have its head or controlling office within the jurisdiction, in order to be excused as a plaintiff from giving security for costs: Ashland Co. v. Armstrong, 11 O. L. R. 414.

Defendants were held not entitled to security from plaintiffs who sued as executors, and who, under a power of attorney from English executors, took out probate in Ontario of the will of a testator who resided and died in England: Sykes v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 3 C. L. T. 505.

Semble, that an affidavit of information and belief as to residence abroad is not sufficient ground for an order for security for costs: Hollingsworth v. Hollingsworth, 10 P. R. 5, and see Rule 13.

Rule 673.

As to what constitutes "residence" abroad: see Re Trench, 25 Ch. D. 500; Re Sturmer & Beaverton, 2 O. W. N. 1116, 1227; Re Fitzmartin & Newburg, 2 O. W. R. 1114, 1177; Langdon v. Molsons Bank, 2 O. W. N. 1387.

And as to what constitutes residence within the jurisdiction by a foreign company: see Parker v. Odette, 16 P. R. 69; Welsbach I. Light Co. v. St. Ledger, Ib., 382; Pittsburgh C. S. Co. v. Morz, 102 L. T. Jour. 532; W. N. 1897, 36; Ashland Co. v. Armstrong, 11 O. L. R. 414.

Where the action is in the nature of a cross action and the plaintiff is resident out of the jurisdiction it is a matter of judicial discretion as to whether or not he should be ordered to give security for costs: New Fenix Co. v. The General Accident Co., 1911, 2 K. B. 619; 105 L. T. 469.

Where on an application by an administrator for administration under Rule 608, a defendant out of the jurisdiction appears, and an issue is ordered to be tried in which the defendant is made plaintiff, he will, in such circumstances, be excused from giving security for costs: Forbes v. Forbes, 23 O. L. R. 518.

(b) Temporary Residence within Jurisdiction. — Formerly, if the plaintiff was in fact within the jurisdiction, he could not be required to give security: see Wilder v. Hopkins, 4 P. R. 350; Redondo v. Choytor, 4 Q. B. D. 453; and other cases cited supra, p. 878; but now under the provisions of this Rule a temporary residence within the jurisdiction will not be sufficient to exonerate a party, ordinarily resident abroad, from giving security: Nesbit v. Goina, 3 O. L. R. 429; Kavanough v. Cassidy, 5 O. L. R. 614. It is no answer to an application for security for costs against a plaintiff ordinarily resident out of the jurisdiction, that he has no fixed place of residence anywhere: Allcroft v. Morrison, 19 P. R. 59; overruling Denier v. Marks, Earle v. Marks, 18 P. R. 465. It is probable that this branch of the Rule may be held to extend to other cases besides that of a plaintiff in an action, where residence abroad is the ground of ordering security to be given. An application to compel security to be given by a foreigner in prison within the jurisdiction was refused: Dupont v. Crook, 80 L. T. Jour. 31; but that was before the amendment of the Rule authorizing an application in case of temporary residence.

A plaintiff who comes into the jurisdiction after the issue of an order may be relieved from it, if he is actually, and intends to remain, a resident there: Nesbit v. Goina, 3 O. L. R. 429.

Another action pending.

(c) Pendency of Another Action.—To bring a case within clause (c) of this Rule it must be clearly shown that the causes of action are identically the same, and not merely growing out of the same transaction: Dean v. Lamprey, 2 Chy. Ch. 202. See also Hill v. Paulet, 66 L. T. 645; Caswell v. Murray, 18 C. L. J. 76; Grand Junction Ry. v. Peterborough, 10 P. R. 107; Lucas v. Cruickshank, 13 P. R. 31; Cobbett v. Warner, L. R. 2 Q. B. 108; Weir v. Weir, 2 O. W. N. 1187; and Martin v. Beauchamp, 25 Ch. D. 12; approved in McCabe v. Bank of Ireland, 14 App. Cas. 413.

In Brunsden v. Humphrey, 14 Q. B. D. 141, it was held, that where a judgment had been obtained, in an action to recover damages for injury to the plaintiff's cab in a collision caused by the defendant's servant, another action might be brought for damages for a personal injury suffered in the same collision, as it was held to constitute a distinct cause of action. Rule 373.

See Russell v. Waterford & Limerick Ry., 16 L. R. Ir. 314, for an instance of splitting a cause of action.

In Serrao v. Noel, 15 Q. B. D. 549, an action had been instituted in the Chancery Division for an injunction to restrain the defendants and a company from parting with shares, or registering the defendants as transferees, and for "further and other relief." That action was settled by a consent order for delivery up of shares to the plaintiff, and staying the action. Owing to delay in delivering the shares they were sold at a loss, and this action was brought for damages for the detention. It was held that it was the same cause of action as in the Chancery Division, and the plaintiff was estopped by the consent order from recovering damages, the action in the Chancery Division being for all relief necessary to do complete justice between the parties.

Where security is ordered the proceedings are of course stayed until the security is given: see Campbell v. Elgie, 16 P. R. 440: Rule 377, and the action may be dismissed if the security be not given within the time limited by the Court: see Rule 376. The word "proceeding" in this and the following clause of the Rule means a proceeding in Court. An appeal from an order dismissing a motion to set aside an award was held not to be a "proceeding for the same cause," as an action to recover moneys in respect of certain matters included in the submission, but not dealt with by the award: Caughe v. Brower, 17 P. R. 438.

(d) Non-payment of Costs in another Action for same Cause.— This Rule supersedes the former practice under which the second action might be stayed until the costs of the former action were paid: Campbell v. Elgie, 16 P. R. 440. Non-payment of costs.

As to the meaning of the word "proceeding": see Caughell v. Brower, supra.

Security for costs may be ordered to be given, even though the former action was not between precisely the same parties, where the plaintiff is suing substantially by virtue of the same alleged title as that set up in the former action: May v. Werden, 17 P. R. 530, where the second plaintiff knew the history of the prior litigation, and appeared to have been made plaintiff, in order to evade the practice which would require security to be given.

Where, however, the costs in the former action were not ordered to be paid by the plaintiff personally, but out of an estate, security was refused: Curtis v. McNabb, 7 P. R. 246; Peters v. Tilly, 11 P. R. 145.

The plaintiff cannot set up that the first action was brought without his authority, where, when it becomes known to him he could move to relieve himself on that ground from liability for the costs, but did not do so: Lea v. Lang, 17 P. R. 203; 18 P. R. 1, where the order for security was set aside on terms, the plaintiff having obtained an order setting aside the judgment obtained against him in the first action.

Under the former practice, where some of the causes of action in a second action were the same as in a former action, the plaintiff having discontinued as to those, the Court refused to stay the second action in respect of the new causes of action till costs of the former action were paid: Bywater v. Dunne, 10 L. R. Ir. 380.

Where an action by a married woman by her next friend was dismissed with costs, for want of prosecution, a second action on her behalf for the same object, but by a new next friend, was stayed till the costs of the first action were paid: Re Payne, Randle v. Payne, 23 Ch. D. 288; and in such a case the defendant would now be entitled to security for costs under this clause of the Rule.

Where an application for registration under the Land Titles Act was opposed, and the contestant was ordered to be made plaintiff in an issue to determine the question of his right, he, being resident out of the jurisdiction, was ordered to give security for costs, on it appearing that he had brought two previous actions in respect of the same matter which had been dismissed with costs which had not been paid, and on the evidence, as it appeared before the Master of Titles, his claim should be dismissed: Boyle v. McCobe, 24 O. L. R. 313.

(e) Actions to Recover Penalties.—This section is based on C. R. 1200.

Rule 1244, from which C. R. 1200 was taken, provided only for the giving security for the costs "to be incurred," under which wording it was held that security for costs already incurred could not be required: Thompson v. Williamson, 16 P. R. 368; Budworth v. Bell, 10 P. R. 544; but the Rule as revised here contains no such limitation, and the security to be given under this Rule should therefore be for all costs.

Nominal plaintiff.

(f) Nominal Plaintiff.—Security may be ordered if the plaintiff is insolvent, and the action is in reality for the benefit of some other person: Mason v. Jeffrey, 2 Chy. Ch. 15; Little v. Wright, 16 Gr. 576; Pendry v. O'Neill, 7 P. R. 52; Boice v. O'Loane, 7 P. R. 359; Delaney v. MacLellan, 13 P. R. 63; Delap v. Charlebois, 15 P. R. 45; Major v. Mackenzie, 17 P. R. 18 (explaining Gordon v. Armstrong, 16 P. R. 432); May v. Werden, 17 P. R. 530, affirmed by D. C., 33 C. L. J. 568; Re Sturmer & Beaverton, 24 O. L. R. 65; especially if such other person is out of the jurisdiction, though the plaintiff had a nominal interest: Re Rainy Lake Lumber Co., 11 P. R. 314; see also Swain v. Follows, 18 Q. B. D. 585; and see Port Rowan & L. S. Ry. Co. v. South Norfolk Ry. Co., 13 P. R. 327, where an application for security for costs was made, on the ground that the plaintiff company was alleged to have no corporate existence, and was alleged to be suing on behalf of a third person who was insolvent. So, where the plaintiff is only one of a large number interested, and the Court is satisfied that he has been put forward by the others to institute the action, and he is a man of no means: Hathway v. Doig, 9 P. R. 91; Clark v. St. Catharines, 10 P. R. 205; Re Seventh E. C. Bdg. Soc., 51 L. T. 109; security may be ordered; and see clause (h), infra, p. 884.

Where an action was brought by a mortgagor in respect of the mortgaged estate, and the mortgage was so large as to leave no value in the equity of redemption, so that the action was really for the benefit of the mortgagee, the plaintiff was required to give security for costs as being in effect a nominal plaintiff: Gordon v. Armstrong, 16 P. R. 432; see Major v. Mackenzie, 17 P. R. 18.

To entitle a defendant to security on this ground, it is not sufficient to show that the plaintiff is a man of no means, and has no beneficial interest; it must be shown that tha action is really that of some other person: Major v. Mackenzie, 17 P. R. 18; and security will not he ordered to be given where the plaintiff asserts a cause of action in which no one hut himself is interested: Clarke v. Rama Timber Transport Co., 10 P. R. 384; nor where the plaintiff himself has an interest in the action which is brought partly for the benefit of another: Wallbridge v. Trust & Loan Co., 13 P. R. 57; but the interest must be substantial, and not merely nominal: Delaney v. MacLellan, 13 P. R. 63. Rule 373.

Where an alleged nominal plaintiff is examined in support of a motion to compel him to give security for costs, he cannot be required to answer as to his financial ability, until a prima facie case has been made out that he is in fact a nominal plaintiff; such prima facie case may he made hy the affidavit of the defendant, that, in his belief, such is the fact: Pritchard v. Pattison, 19 P. R. 108, 277; very clear proof that the plaintiff has no substantial interest is necessary, or the order will not be made: S. C., 1 O. L. R. 37; Ricker v. Britton, 3 O. W. N. 1512.

In a class action brought by four ratepayers against a municipal corporation and reeve for an account of moneys received by the reeve from the corporation, security was refused, although the plaintiffs were alleged to be financially incompetent to answer costs, the action being virtually the plaintiffs', and not that of third persons putting the plaintiffs forward to sue: McAllister v. O'Meara, 17 P. R. 176.

An assignee in insolvency, bona fide suing in the discharge of his duty, will not be ordered to give security, though without means and not beneficially interested: Vars v. Gould, 8 P. R. 31; Greener v. Kahn, 1906, 2 K. B. 374; 95 L. T. 481; nor will a receiver of an insolvent company continuing, hy order of the Court, an action brought hy the company: Provincial Ins. Co. v. Gooderham, 7 P. R. 283; nor an official liquidator: Cowell v. Taylor, 31 Ch. D. 34; nor an administrator bringing an action under The Fatal Accidents Act (R. S. O. c. 151): Sharp v. Grand Trunk Ry., 1 O. L. R. 200; nor a trustee suing to enforce a covenant in a separation deed: White v. Butt, 1909. 1 K. B. 50; 99 L. T. 823; hut where a plaintiff has entered into an agreement to prosecute the action for the benefit of a trustee for his creditors, he is a nominal plaintiff, and as such liable to be ordered to give security for costs: Lloyd v. Hathern S. B. Co., 85 L. T. 158; and, if resident out of the jurisdiction, a receiver of a company is liable to give security in the same way as any other person so resident: Canadian International Mercantile Agency v. International Mercantile Agency, 4 O. W. R. 338.

Where the plaintiff is a corporation, the fact that it is insolvent, and a receiver of its assets has been appointed, is no ground for ordering security: Dartmouth Harbour Commission v. Mayor of Dartmouth, 34 W. R. 774; 55 L. J. Q. B. 483; but see Hawkins H. Co. v. Want, 69 L. T. 297; 4 R. 577; 9 T. L. R. 481, 538.

Quære, whether the rule that security is not ordered against one only of several plaintiffs was ever applicable to the case of an insolvent plaintiff suing for the benefit of another: Irving v. Clark, 12 P. R. 29.

Where the plaintiff parts with his interest pendente lite, further proceedings may be stayed until security is given, or the action is revived in the name of the assignee: Swan v. Adams, 7 P. R. 147; see also Secar v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121, and Goatley v. Enmott, 15 C. B. 291.

Rule 373.

(g) Frivolous Action.—This section of the Rule resolves in the affirmative the quære suggested in Potter v. Cotton, W. N. 1879, 204.

As to what is to be considered frivolous or vexatious actions: see note to Jud. Act, s. 16 (f), supra, p. 45. Such actions may also be stayed: see Ib.

(h) Insolvent Plaintiff Representing Class.—Although section (h) is an addition to C. R. 1198, yet the Court, by virtue of its inherent jurisdiction, made orders for security in the circumstances mentioned therein: see Hathaway v. Doig, and other cases noted, ante, p. 882.

(i) Statutory Right to Security.—Among the cases in which there is a statutory right to security are the following:

Libel.

Actions for Libel.—By The Libel and Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71), s. 12, in actions for Libel contained in a newspaper (as defined by s. 2 of the Act), the defendant may, at any time after the filing of the statement of claim, apply for security for costs upon notice, and on an affidavit by the defendant, or his agent, showing the nature of the action and defence, and showing that the plaintiff is not possessed of property sufficient to answer the costs of the action in case a verdict or judgment is given in favour of the defendant, and that the defendant has a good defence on the merits, and that the statements complained of were published in good faith, or that the grounds of action are trivial or frivolous. Where, however, the alleged libel involves a criminal charge, the defendant is not entitled to security for costs, unless he satisfies the Court or Judge that the action is trivial or frivolous, or that the article was published in good faith, and that there was reasonable ground to believe that the same was for the public benefit, and that the publication took place in mistake or misapprehension of the facts, and that there was an equally public retractation as mentioned in sec. 8 (2). As to form of affidavit of defendant: see Robinson v. Mills, infra, and as to sufficiency of plaintiff's affidavit in answer: see McVeity v. Ottawa Free Press, 2 O. W. N. 703.

But, on such an application, the Judge is not to try the merits, and contentious affidavits in answer will not be received: Bartram v. London Free Press, 18 P. R. 11; it is sufficient if the defendant makes out a primâ facie case for security: Swain v. Mail Printing Co., 16 P. R. 132; Lennox v. Star Co., 16 P. R. 488; and see Southwick v. Hare, 15 P. R. 222; Bartram v. London Free Press, 18 P. R. 11.

A "Sporting Editor," or one who has the editorial care of a certain department of a newspaper, if sued for libel for matter so published, is entitled to security for costs: Robinson v. Mills, 19 O. L. R. 162; Neil v. Norman, 21 C. L. T. Occ. N. 293, distinguished.

As to the case where a criminal charge is involved: see Smyth v. Stephenson, 17 P. R. 374; Georgian Bay Co. v. The World, 16 P. R. 320; Macdonald v. World, Ib., 324.

A libel does not involve "a criminal charge," unless the offence imputed is one that could be made the subject of an indictment; e.g., a charge that a joint stock company bribed aldermen is not a "criminal charge," because a company could not be indicted for an offence involving malice, or intent, on the part of the alleged offender: Georgian Bay Co. v. The World, supra; Bennett v. Empire Print. Co., 16 P. R. 63; and see D'Ivry v. The World, 17 P. R. 387.

An accusation of "blackmailing" imputes an indictable offence: Marks v. Samuel, 1904, 2 K. B. 287; but see Macdonald v. The Mail, 2 O. L. R. 278. Rule 373.

Where it was shown that the plaintiff was not in fact the person referred to in the alleged libel, the action was regarded as frivolous: Graeme v. Globe Printing Co., 14 P. R. 72; sed vide Hulton v. Jones, 1910, A. C. 20.

A printed paper issued daily by the conductors of a mercantile agency to persons who are subscribers to the agency, for the purpose of giving the information required by such subscribers, is a "newspaper" within R. S. O. c. 71, s. 12, supra: Slattery v. Dun, 18 P. R. 168; but the Statute only entitles newspaper publishers or proprietors to security for costs; a person sued for libel contained in an advertisement published in a newspaper, of which the defendant is neither the proprietor nor publisher, is not entitled to security: Powell v. Ruskin, 35 C. L. J. 241.

As to what is a good defence on the merits: see Paladino v. Gustin, 17 P. R. 553. It must be disclosed: see Lancaster v. Ryckman, 15 P. R. 199; Georgian Bay Co. v. The World, 16 P. R. 320. An order of a Judge granting, or refusing security under R. S. O. c. 71, is final; but not that of the Master in Chambers, or other judicial officer: see Ib., and see Bryant v. Reading, 17 Q. B. D. 128; 54 L. T. 524; Clench v. Dooley, 56 L. T. 122; Christie v. Conway, 9 P. R. 529; but see Reg. ex rel McGuire v. Birkett, 21 Ont. 162.

Formerly where the alleged libel was against a candidate for a public office in Ontario, the defendant, not having published a retractation, was not entitled to security: Conmee v. Weidman, 16 P. R. 239; but under The Libel & Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71), as it is now framed, that case would appear to be no longer an authority.

Actions of Slander for Imputing Unchastity.—By The Libel and Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71), s. 19, in actions by women for slander imputing unchastity or adultery, the defendant may, at any time after the filing of the statement of claim, apply to the Court or a Judge, upon notice to the plaintiff, for security for costs, upon an affidavit of the defendant showing the nature of the action, and that the plaintiff is not possessed of property sufficient to answer the costs of the action if a verdict or judgment is given in favour of the defendant, and that the defendant has a good defence to the action on the merits, or that the grounds of the action are trivial or frivolous. Slander imputing unchastity.

On such an application the nature of the defence must be disclosed; it is not sufficient for the defendant simply to swear that he has a good defence on the merits: Lancaster v. Ryckman, 15 P. R. 199; and see Paladino v. Gustin, 17 P. R. 553; and the onus of showing that the plaintiff has not sufficient property is on the defendant: see Feaster v. Cooney, 15 P. R. 290; property to the value of $500, unincumbered, has been deemed sufficient: Ib., and see Bready v. Robertson, 14 P. R. 7; Belair v. Buchanan, 17 P. R. 413, 476.

Actions against Justices, and other Public Officers.—By The Public Authorities Protection Act (R. S. O. c. 89), s. 16, in actions, or other legal proceedings, brought against a Police Magistrate, or other Justice of the Peace, or any other person, for any act done by him in pursuance, or execution, of any statute, or of any public duty, or authority, or in respect of any alleged neglect or default in the execution Public officers.

Rule 373.

of any such statute, duty or authority, the defendant may, at any time after the service of the writ, apply for security for costs on notice to the plaintiff, and on an affidavit by the defendant or his agent, showing the nature of the action, and of the defence, and showing, to the satisfaction of the Court or Judge, that the plaintiff is not possessed of property sufficient to answer the costs of the action, in case a verdict or judgment should be given in favour of the defendant, and that he has a good defence on the merits, or that the grounds of the action are trivial or frivolous.

A police officer laying an information for obscene language is entitled to security for costs in an action brought for maliciously laying such information: Eaves v. Nesbitt, 1 O. L. R. 244; so also a police officer sued for trespass in executing a warrant of arrest: Lewis v. Dalby, 3 O. L. R. 301. A sheriff acting in execution of a fi. fa. is not a public officer entitled to security for costs under the statute: Creighton v. Sweetland, 18 P. R. 180.

The provisions of the Act must be followed with some approach to strictness: Robinson v. Morris, 15 O. L. R. 649. The solicitor for the defendant is his "agent" within the meaning of s. 16, and may make the affidavit: Ib., where the affidavit is based on belief the grounds thereof must be disclosed: Rule 293.

The defence on the merits must be disclosed: see Lancaster v. Ryckman, 15 P. R. 199, and Paladino v. Gustin, 17 P. R. 553. The merits of the action will not be tried on the application, but a prima facie defence must be established: see Paladino v. Gustin, supra. Swain v. Mail Printing Co., 16 P. R. 132; Lennox v. Star Co., 16 P. R. 488; Southwick v. Hore, 15 P. R. 222. Although the application may be made at any time after the service of the writ, yet it has been held that when a person holding a public office is made a defendant, on an application for security the pleadings must be looked at, and if, on them, the case cannot go to the jury against the defendant as a public officer, he is not entitled to security, and even though he shows on affidavit that his sole connection with the matter alleged against him was in his public capacity: Parker v. Baker, 17 P. R. 345.

(j) Garnishee, and Interpleader, Proceedings.—

Garnishing proceedings.

Garnishing Proceedings. — Security has also been ordered to be given by one of the parties to an issue arising out of garnishee proceedings, where he was resident out of the jurisdiction: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Middleton, 12 P. R. 121; Edwards v. Edwards, 12 P. R. 538; but a judgment creditor appealing from an order refusing him an attaching order was held not liable to give security for costs: Palmer v. Lovett, 14 P. R. 415.

Interpleader.

Interpleader Proceedings.—In an interpleader matter either party: Knickerbocker v. Webster, 17 P. R. 189; Swain v. Stoddart, 12 P. R. 490; Wolker v. Niles, 3 Chy. Ch. 108; Deller v. Prickett, 20 L. J. Q. B. 151; Tomlinson v. Land & Finance Co., 14 Q. B. D. 539; Lovell v. Wardroper, 4 P. R. 265; Farley v. Pedlar, 1 O. L. R. 570, may be ordered to give security for costs, in the same circumstances as a plaintiff would be so ordered in an ordinary action. The substantial, and not the nominal, interest of the parties must be looked at, and, therefore, where one of the defendants in an interpleader issue was really interested in the result thereof as a plaintiff, he was held not entitled to call upon the plaintiff in the issue to give security for costs, upon the ground that the latter was a foreigner residing abroad: Belmonte v. Aynard, 4 C. P. D. 352; and see Knickerbocker v. Webster, supra. If the party substantially moving the proceedings, whether plaintiff or defendant, is out of the jurisdiction, he should give security: Re Ancient Order of Foresters & Castner, 14 P. R. 47. Rule 373.

A Sheriff in interpleader proceedings is only entitled to security for costs under the same circumstances as would entitle an ordinary litigsnt thereto: Sweetman v. Morrison, 10 P. R. 446.

Other Interlocutory Proceedings.—In addition to the cases above enumerated, there are others in which security for costs may he ordered: e.g.—

Master's Office.—Parties residing out of the jurisdiction, coming into the Master's office to prove claims as creditors, or otherwise, may he required to give security for costs: Re Rees. Urquhart v. Toronto General Trusts Co., 10 P. R. 425; hut this case was disapproved of hy the Divisional Court of the Q. B. D. in Palmer v. Lovett, 14 P. R. 415; hut see Re Parker, 16 P. R. 392; and Con. International Mercantile Agency v. International Mer. Agency, 4 O. W. R. 338. Security, when ordered in Master's office.

Summary Applications.—Security was ordered to he given for the costs of opposing a petition for the custody of an infant: Re Pinkney, 1 O. W. R. 694, 715; and for a petition for the payment of money out of Court, presented hy a petitioner resident out of the jurisdiction: Re Porker, 16 P. R. 392; Can. International Mercantile, etc. v. International, etc., 4 O. W. R. 338; hut see Palmer v. Lovett, 14 P. R. 415; and where two persons, hoth out of the jurisdiction, were claiming the same fund, each was ordered to give security for costs to the other of them: Sinclair v. Campbell, 2 O. L. R. 1; and a person resident out of the jurisdiction making a claim to a fund in Court, under an inquiry as to who was entitled, was ordered to give security on the ground that he was in the position of a plaintiff in interpleader proceedings: Re Milward & Co., 1900, 1 Ch. 405; 82 L. T. 339; and even though it seemed probable that in any event the costs would he ordered to be paid out of the fund: Bruce v. A. O. U. W., 11 O. L. R. 633; so also for costs of opposing a motion for an injunction: Whiteley Exerciser v. Gamage, 79 L. T. 20; 1898, 2 Ch. 405. Summary applications.

A defendant residing out of the jurisdiction has a right to take any proceedings to defend himself: Re Percy & Kelly Nickel, etc., Co., 2 Ch. D. 531; against the plaintiff, upon the pleadings and proofs hetwsen the plaintiff and defendant: Walmsley v. Griffith, 11 P. R. 139, ss mod ded hy Molsons Bonk v. Sawyer, 19 P. R. 316; or may move to set aside the service on him of a writ of summons: Sporrow v. Rice, 5 O. W. R. 625; 6 O. W. R. 61; or present a petition: Cochrone v. Fearon, 18 Jur. 568, without heing called on to give security for costs; and a plaintiff moving to set aside proceedings hrought in his name without his authority is in the position of a person brought into Court and defending himself: Sample v. McLoughlin, 17 P. R. 490; but where a defendant claims indemnity, or other relief, against a co-defendant, and his claim to such relief is altogether independent of any defence to the plaintiff's claim, he is in the position of a plaintiff, and msy hc ordered to give security for costs to the co-defendant as against whom he seeks relief, and Walmsley v. Griffith, supra, is to thst extent overrnled: Molsons Bank v. Sawyer, 19 P. R. 316.

Rule 373.

In re Cornwall, 15 L. R. Ir. 144, security was ordered to be given by a client out of the jurisdiction, seeking to tax his solicitor's bill; but see Re A. B., 6 P. R. 210.

On an appeal to a Divisional Court it was held that the Divisional Court had inherent jurisdiction to order security to be given for the costs of the appeal: Billington v. Billington, 1907, 2 K. B. 106; 96 L. T. 665; and see Wightwick v. Pope, infra.

Quieting Title proceedings.

Quieting Title Proceedings.—A Judge, or the Referee of Titles, may at any stage of the proceedings, order security for costs to be given by the applicant for a certificate, or by any person making an adverse claim: R. S. O. c. 123, ss. 19, 22. A petitioner resident out of the jurisdiction, or only temporarily resident within the jurisdiction, may be ordered to give security for the costs of a contestaot; but a contestant out of the jurisdiction will not ordinarily be ordered to give security to the petitioner, as he stands in the position of a defendant: see Low v. Morrison, 14 Gr. 192; but see Boyle v. McCabe, 24 O. L. R. 313; but a contestant, whose claim has been disallowed, may be required to give security as a condition of obtaining a re-investigation of the title in question: Re Howland, 4 Chy. Ch. 74. But in prosecuting a claim to land before the Referee of Titles, a contestant served with notice will not be prevented from asserting his rights until payment of costs of proceedings instituted by him against the claimant, in respect of the property in question, ordered to be paid by the contestant: Shepherd v. Hoyboll, 13 Gr. 681; see also Re Percy & Kelly Nickel, etc., Co., 2 Ch. D. 531.

Winding-up proceedings.

Winding-up Proceedings.—A Referee acting under the Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144), and The Companies Act (R. S. O. c. 178), s. 187, et seq., has power to order security for costs, and to stay proceedings until it is given: Re Sarnia Oil Co., 14 P. R. 335.

A petitioner for winding up a company who had given an address at which he could not be found, and whose solicitor was unable to state his private address, was ordered to give security: Re Sturgis Motor Power Syndicate (Ltd.), 53 L. T. 715; 34 W. R. 163.

Defendant, when ordered to give security for costs.

Defendant, when Ordered to give Security for Costs.—Security will be ordered to be given by a person out of the jurisdiction applying to be added as a party, and for leave to apply for substantial relief, as he must be considered as in the position of a plaintiff: Apollinaris Co. v. Wilson, 31 Ch. D. 632.

A defendant out of the jurisdiction moving for a new trial may be ordered to give security for costs: Wightwick v. Pope, 1902, 2 K. B. 99; 86 L. T. 750.

Where a claim and counter-claim arise out of different matters, so that the counter-claim is really in the nature of an independent or cross-action, the defendant, if residing out of the jurisdiction, may be required to give security, and should be so required, if the only dispute in the action is on his counter-claim: Sykes v. Sacerdoti, 15 Q. B. D. 423; Lake v. Haseltine, 55 L. J. Q. B. 205; see also The Newbattle, 54 L. J. (P. D. & Ad.) 16.

In an action for breach of contract against defendant, a foreigner residing abroad, where the defendant denied the breaches, and also made a counter-claim for breaches of the same contract by the plaintiff, claiming damages to an amount less than the plaintiff's claim, it was held that the defendant could not be ordered to give security for the plaintiff's costs occasioned by the counter-claim: Mopleson v. Masini, 5 Q. B. D. 144; and wherever a defendant's counter-claim arises out of the same transaction as the plaintiff's claim, the Court has discretion to refuse to order security for costs: Neck v. Taylor, 1893, 1 Q. B. 560; 68 L. T. 399; Miller's Patent, 70 L. T. 270.

Rules 374, 375.

A cross action brought by a foreigner, if it is, in effect, merely a defence, will be subject to a similar discretion; but if the cross action is in substance an independent action, the plaintiff therein may be ordered to give security for costs: New Fenix Co. v. General Accident T. & L. Ass. Co., 1911, 2 K. B. 619; 105 L. T. 469.

In the Admiralty Division, in an action for collision, a defendant claiming damages by counter-claim was ordered to give security for the plaintiff's costs of the action: The Julia Fisher, 2 P. D. 115.

A defendant out of the jurisdiction claiming indemnity, or other relief, against a co-defendant, may be required to give that defendant security for costs: Molsons Bank v. Sawyer, 19 P. R. 316.

A defendant out of the jurisdiction disputing the right of a plaintiff to probate of a will is not liable to give security for costs: Ward v. Benson, 2 O. L. R. 366; even when he is made plaintiff in an issue: see Forbes v. Forbes, 23 O. L. R. 518; but see Boyle v. McCabe, 24 O. L. R. 313; Re Riddell, 3 O. W. N. 1232.

A foreign claimant putting in a claim under a general inquiry will not as a rule be ordered to give security: but see Re Milward & Co., supra, p. 887, where security was ordered to be given by a foreign claimant, on an inquiry as to the persons entitled to a fund in Court, on the ground that the inquiry was equivalent to an interpleader issue, in which the foreign claimant was in the position of plaintiff.

Order for security for costs, form of.

374.—(1) The order shall require the plaintiff, within four weeks from service, to give security in $400 for the defendant's costs of the action, and shall direct that all further proceedings be stayed in the meantime, and that in default of such security being given the action shall, as against the defendant obtaining the order, be dismissed with costs.

(2) In actions in the County Court the amount of the security shall be $200. C.R. 1198 (2, 3). New.

The reference to C. R. 1198 is erroneous, it should be C. R. 1199 (2), (3).

The amount of security named in this Rule may, on special application, be increased or diminished: Rule 382.

Where, after judgment, the Master in Chambers makes an order for security for costs, his order should not direct proceedings to be stayed as that is effected by Rule 377, the Master under Rule 208 (16), having no power to stay proceedings after verdict or judgment: Stow v. Currie, 20 O. L. R. 353.

Order on præcipe.

375. Where it appears by the writ of summons, or by an indorsement thereon, that the plaintiff resides out of

Rule 378.

Ontario, the order may be obtained on præcipe. C.R. 1199.

Except in the case provided for in this Rule, i.e., where it appears by the writ of summons, notice, or other proceeding, by which a cause or matter is commenced, or by an indorsement thereon, that the plaintiff resides out of the jurisdiction, all applications for security for costs must be made in Chambers, on notice to the plaintiff, or other party from whom security is claimed.

Where the order is properly issuable on præcipe, it is to be obtained at the office where the action or proceeding is commenced: Rule 762. For Forms, see No. 61; H. & L. Forms, No. 1678.

The word "plaintiff" in this Rule should probably be held to include any person initiating a proceeding other than an action, e.g., a petitioner, or person giving an originating or other notice of motion, where such notice is the commencement of a proceeding, or application for relief by such person, and not merely incidental to opposing proceedings initiated by some other person: see Re Parker, 16 P. R. 392; but see Poimer v. Lovett, 14 P. R. 415.

Præcipe order, how obtained.

Præcipe Order.—The Ontario Rules do not expressly require as the English Rules do [see Eng. (1883) R. 19], that the address of the plaintiff suing by solicitor shall be indorsed upon the writ: see Rule 11. The form of writ, however (Form No. 1), contemplates such an indorsement, and this should therefore be followed. Where the plaintiff is without the jurisdiction and liable to give security, if the writ does not disclose the residence, a special application for security is proper: Lowless v. Rodford, 17 C. L. J. 388; 1 C. L. T. 661; and the costs of it will be to the defendant, as the plaintiff ought in such case to indorse his address on the writ, so as to enable defendant to obtain an order on præcipe under this Rule: McCready v. Hennessy, 9 P. R. 439. If there is any difficulty in ascertaining the plaintiff's place of abode: see Rule 13.

A præcipe order should only issue where it appears by the indorsement on the writ that the plaintiff resides, or all the plaintiffs reside, out of the jurisdiction: McConnell v. Wakeford, 13 P. R. 455. Semble, the order, where obtainable on præcipe, may issue at any time before judgment; it was issued after defence, and before issue joined, in Smerling v. Kennedy, 5 O. L. R. 430, and see Small v. Henderson, 18 P. R. 314.

Where the indorsement stated that the plaintiffs resided at the Township of Brant in the County of Bruce, and in Wisconsin, U.S.A., this was held to be a statement that they resided out of the jurisdiction: McConnell v. Wakeford, supra.

If it appears by the indorsement on the writ that one of several plaintiffs resides within Ontario, a præcipe order should not issue, and semble, if issued, it is void and a nullity: McConnell v. Wakeford, 13 P. R. 455. An order issued as to one plaintiff only is irregular: Ib., but compliance with it will waive the irregularity: Ib.

A præcipe order has as much force, upon being served, to effect a stay of proceedings, as if made on application to a Judge: Bank of Nova Scotia v. La Roche, 9 P. R. 503; Doer v. Rand, 10 P. R. 165; except so far as is provided by Rule 383. An order under this Rule limits in the first instance the time for giving security.

Where an order has limited a time, and provided for dismissal in case of default, a subsequent ex parte motion showing default has been customary in Ontario to obtain the dismissal of the action: see Barns v. Chisholm, 2 Chy. Ch. 88; this practice was not approved of in Hollender v. Floulkes, 16 P. R. 225, but has now been established by Rule 376. Rule 375.

An order made on motion of one of several defendants may properly provide that the security to be given is to answer the costs of all of the defendants: Delap v. Charlebois, 15 P. R. 325. See also Edmunds v. Mabee, 11 C. L. T. 177, where two defendants having obtained separate orders on præcipe, an order was made on plaintiff's application that a bond filed in compliance with the first order should stand as security for both defendants, without prejudice to their rights to move to have the amount increased. Where, in pursuance of an order obtained by one of several defendants, the plaintiff pays money into Court as security for costs, on the other defendants, or any of them, obtaining similar orders, the money paid in may, on the plaintiff's application, be ordered to stand also as security for such other defendant's costs: Syracuse Smelting Works v. Stevens, 2 O. L. R. 141.

Special Application.—A special application is necessary whenever the order is not obtainable on præcipe. Where a special application is necessary it must be made on notice to the plaintiff. As to evidence required on such application, see notes to Rule 373. Unexplained delay in making the application may be a bar to its being entertained: Bertuzato v. Fauquier, 38 C. L. J. 79. After judgment, security for costs of a reference may, in a proper case, be ordered upon a special application: Brown v. Hoig, 1905, 2 Ch. 379; 93 L. T. 99. Special application.

As to what is a sufficiently positive statement that the plaintiff's residence is out of the jurisdiction, in an affidavit to obtain an order for security: see Hollingsworth v. Hollingsworth, 10 P. R. 58.

Time for Obtaining Order for Security for Costs on Præcipe.—A defendant is not entitled to an order for security for costs before he has entered an appearance: Rule 383 (1). Formerly, a defendant, by taking a step in the action after he became entitled to require security for costs to be given, was held to waive his right thereto, but now a defendant may obtain the order on special application at any time before issue joined: see Caswell v. Murray, 9 P. R. 102; Small v. Henderson, 18 P. R. 314; Smerling v. Kennedy, 5 O. L. R. 432; Martano v. Monn, 14 Ch. D. 419; 42 L. T. 893; The Lydney & W. Iron Co. v. Bird, 23 Ch. D. 358; 48 L. T. 853; Re Smith, 75 L. T. 46; W. N. 1896, 88. When the order is properly issuable on præcipe, it may be obtained at any time before issue joined: Smerling v. Kennedy, 5 O. L. R. 430, 432.

It was held to be too late for defendant to apply for security after judgment had gone against him, and he was appealing to the Court of Appeal: Small v. Henderson, 18 P. R. 314.

Amount of Security.—See Rules 374, 383. Security if applied for promptly, is generally for past, as well as future costs: Brocklebank v. King's Lynn S. S. Co., 3 C. P. D. 365; Massey v. Allen, 12 Ch. D. 807; Hateley v. Merchants Despatch, 10 P. R. 253. See note to Rule 373 (e). Amount of security required.

Grounds for Refusing, or Rescinding, Order.—If the plaintiff has substantial property within the jurisdiction, of sufficient value, and Order, when refused or rescinded.

available in execution, this may be shown in answer to a motion for security to displace the prima facie case made by proof of residence out of the jurisdiction: Gault v. Spencer, 2 Chy. Ch. 92, and see Bready v. Robertson, 14 P. R. 7; Feaster v. Cooney, 15 P. R. 290; Belair v. Buchanan, 17 P. R. 413, 476; Re Armstrong, 18 P. R. 55; Mansell v. Robertson, 2 O. W. N. 337; or it may be made the ground for a special motion to discharge any order which has been made on præcipe for security: Ganson v. Finch, 3 Chy. Ch. 296; Belair v. Buchanan, supra. The property must be immediately available in execution: Welsbach Incandescent, etc., Co. v. St. Leger, 16 P. R. 362; but it would not seem, according to the latest cases, to make any difference whether the property is real, or personal: Homburger v. Poetting, 30 W. R. 769; 47 L. T. 249; Redondo v. Chaytor, 4 Q. B. D. 453; Republic of Costa Rica v. Erlanger, 3 Ch. D. 62; but see Kilkenny Ry. Co. v. Fielden, L. R. 6 Ex. 81; Re Carroll, 2 Chy. Ch. 305; Higgins v. Manning, 6 P. R. 147; McKenzie v. Sinton, 6 P. R. 282; Wilson v. Wilson, 6 P. R. 152; Swinbourne v. Carter, 23 L. J. Q. B. 16; Re Howe S. M. Co., 61 L. T. 170; Re Apollinaris Co., 1891, 1 Ch. 1; Duffy v. Donovan, 14 P. R. 159; Welsbach I. L. Co. v. St. Leger, 16 P. R. 362; Pittsburgh C. S. Co. v. Morr, 102 L. T. Jour. 532. But the acquisition of property, subsequently to an order for security, is no reason for discharging it: Reaume v. Leavitt, 6 P. R. 70. A plaintiff cannot rely on the property which is the subject of litigation, where a prima facie good defence is shown: Wolters v. Duggon, 33 C. L. J. 362, but where the defendants are possessed of funds belonging to the plaintiff, the discretion of the Court may be exercised against hampering the plaintiff by ordering security: Duffy v. Donovan, 14 P. R. 159; Stock v. Dresden Sugar Co., 2 O. W. R. 696; and see Daniel v. Birkbeck Loan, etc., 5 O. W. R. 757; and where, in administration proceedings, the plaintiff resided out of the jurisdiction, but was entitled to an interest worth $273 in the estate, he was not ordered to give security for costs, upon his consenting that his whole interest in the estate should be subject to a first charge in respect of any costs he might be ordered to pay: Re Armstrong, 18 P. R. 55. The fact that the action is brought on a foreign judgment is no ground for refusing the order: Crozat v. Brogden, 1894, 2 Q. B. 30; 70 L. T. 522. If the possession of sufficient property at the time of applying for a præcipe order was known to the defendant's solicitor, this may be a reason for discharging the order with costs: Ganson v. Finch, supra.

As to what is sufficient in value: see Bready v. Robertson, 14 P. R. 7; Feaster v. Cooney, 15 P. R. 290; Belair v. Buchanan, 17 P. R. 413, 476. It should be sufficient to pay costs of both parties, and not merely the defendant's costs, otherwise the whole property may be paid over to the plaintiff's own solicitor, during the litigation, to meet his own costs. The onus of showing property of sufficient value is on the plaintiff on a motion by him to set aside an order for security: Daniel v. Birkbeck Loan, etc., 5 O. W. R. 757.

Return of plaintiff to jurisdiction.

If a plaintiff returns to reside permanently within the jurisdiction an order for security may be discharged: Nesbit v. Galna, 3 O. L. R. 429; Horvey v. Smith, 1 Chy. Ch. 392; sed quære: see Badnall v. Hayley, 4 M. & W. 535; 7 Dowl. 19, referred to in Hateley v. Merchants Despatch Co., 12 Ont. App. 643, 646, unless obtained because the plaintiff had wilfully misstated his residence: see Waldron v. McWalter, 6 P. R. 145. But if the Court thinks the return is merely to get rid of the order, and the plaintiff has no ties, business or otherwise, to guarantee that he will remain within the jurisdiction, the order will not be rescinded: Marsh v. Beard, 1 Chy. Ch. 390, and see Rule 373 (b), and notes, supra, p. 880. Rule 373.

Where a plaintiff resident abroad was moving to set aside the proceedings, as brought without authority, an application to compel him to give security for costs was refused: Semple v. McLoughlin, 17 P. R. 490.

Where a plaintiff residing out of the jurisdiction obtained judgment by default of defence, but defendant obtained leave to defend on terms of giving security for costs, and the judgment and execution were allowed to stand as security for the plaintiff's claim, a præcipe order for security for costs subsequently obtained by the defendant was set aside: Davis v. Teeger, 18 C. L. T. 140; 34 C. L. J. 287.

Where an order for security for costs has been regularly issued and acted on, it will not be rescinded merely because the defendant subsequently pays money into Court in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim: American Aristotype Co. v. Eakins, 7 O. L. R. 127.

Where an order for security for costs is properly granted, but is set aside on grounds subsequently arising, terms may be imposed, such as payment of the costs of the order, and of appeals therefrom: see Lea v. Lang, 18 P. R. 1.

Stay of Proceedings until Security Given.—Where an order for security for costs is obtained, the proceedings in the action are stayed from the time of the service of the order until the security is given, and if given by bond, until the bond is allowed: Rules 377-378; and after notice, under Rule 381 (2), of payment of money into Court as security, the stay continues for at least one day: see The Northern Elevator Co. v. N. W. Transportation Co., in note to Rule 381, p. 897.

Pending such stay, the plaintiff, subject to the provisions of Rule 388, cannot move, or proceed with a pending motion, even for an interim injunction: Weekes v. Underfeed Stoker Co., 19 P. R. 299; Whitley Exerciser Co. v. Gamage, 1898, 2 Ch. 405; 79 L. T. 20; but a plaintiff may move to set aside a præcipe order for security for costs, notwithstanding the stay of proceedings imposed by the order, and without giving security for the costs of the motion: Walters v. Duggan, 17 P. R. 859.

An order obtained by the defendant for security, with a stay of proceedings, does not prevent the defendant from moving to dismiss for want of prosecution: London Road Car Co. v. Kelly, 18 L. R. Ir. 43; but see Duffus v. Scullin, 20 L. R. Ir. 8.

In default of compliance with an order for security for costs, where no time has been limited for giving security, a motion may be made to limit the time, or in default to dismiss the action for want of prosecution: La Grange v. McAndrews, 4 Q. B. D. 210; White v. Bromige, W. N. 1878, 28. If the plaintiff then wishes to give security he must pay the defendant's costs of the application: Ex parte Isaacs, 10 Ch. D. 1.

It is now made clear by Rules 374, and 376, that the order for security may properly limit the time within which it is to be given, and in default dismiss the action. Under the former Rules it was also so decided in Ashcroft v. Tyson, 17 P. R. 42; distinguishing Thompson v. Williamson, 15 P. R. 368; see also Lea v. Lang, 18 P. R. 1.

Rules 376-378.

Where, pending the stay of proceedings, the defendant prepared affidavits for the purpose of opposing a motion for injunction, pending when the order for security for costs issued, the costs of such affidavits were allowed to the defendant on the subsequent dismissal of the action for failure to give security: Whitley Exerciser v. Gamage, 1898, 2 Ch. 405; 79 L. T. 20.

Dismissal of proceedings on default.

376. Upon default in giving security the action may upon an ex parte application be dismissed with costs. C.R. 1203.

On the application under this Rule proof of service of the order for security for costs must be given, and also that default has been made in giving the security.

Where an appeal has been lodged against the order for security, that is a sufficient ground for not dismissing the action until the appeal has been disposed of, and the motion may be adjourned to be heard with the appeal: Bennett v. Empire Print. Co., 15 P. R. 430.

This Rule is an affirmance of Burns v. Chisholm, 2 Chy. Ch. 88, which had not been followed in Hollender v. Fyoulkes, 16 P. R. 225, 315, which latter case must now, it is presumed, be taken to be superseded by this Rule.

Stay of proceedings till security given.

377. Where security for costs is ordered, proceedings in the action shall be stayed, from the service of the order until the security is given, and, if given by bond, until the bond is allowed. C.R. 1204.

The stay of proceedings continues the whole of the day on which the security is actually given, if by payment into Court; or, if by bond, of the day on which the bond is allowed, and the time for taking the next proceeding does not begin to run until the following day: Rule 378; see formerly Compou v. Rondall, 17 P. R. 325. The stay of proceedings does not prevent a motion by the plaintiff to set aside an order for security for costs obtained on præcipe: Walters v. Duggan, 17 P. R. 359; but proceedings on a pending motion for an interim injunction are stayed: Whitley Exerciser v. Gamage, 1898, 2 Ch. 405; 79 L. T. 20; Weeks v. Underfeed Stoker Co., 19 P. R. 299.

Where the right to security only arises in respect of a particular cause of action: semble, the action should only be stayed as to that particular cause of action, e.g., where the action is for libel against a newspaper, or for slander of a woman, and other causes of action as to which no right to security for costs exists, are joined: see Lancaster v. Ryckman, 15 P. R. 199.

Though the order does not contain a stay of proceedings, yet proceedings are stayed by an order for security, under this Rule: see Stow v. Currie, 20 O. L. R. 353.

Computation of period of stay of proceedings.

378. The day on which an order that a party do give security for costs is served, and the time until and including the day on which the security is allowed, shall nnt be reckoned in the computation of time allowed for taking any proceeding in the action. C.R. 346. Rules 379, 380.

See Eng. (1883) R. 966.

Where the plaintiff has paid money into Court as security for costs, and has given notice of payment in, the defendant is entitled to at least one day to ascertain if such payment in has really been made, and to file his defence, before the plaintiff can note the pleadings as closed, or take further proceedings: The Northern Elevator Co. v. The North-West Transportation Co., 6 O. L. R. 23.

379. A bond given as security for costs shall be to the party requiring the security, and shall be by two sufficient sureties. C.R. 1205. Security for costs where given by bond.

For form of bond: see H. & L. Forms, Nn. 1685.

The bond need not be executed by the plaintiff who is liable without it, but must be executed by two sureties. Formerly one surety might be sufficient, and the plaintiff was ordinarily a party, but the execution of the bond by the plaintiff might be dispensed with: Delap v. Charlebois, 15 P. R. 325.

Where a surety company is approved by Order in Council, its bond may be given and accepted as sufficient security without any affidevit of justification, and semble, notwithstanding this Rule, without any other surety: see Jud. Act, s. 69, supra, p. 233; and Aldrick v. British Griffin, &c., Co., 1904, 2 K. B. 850; 91 L. T. 229.

The plaintiff should not now be named as a party to the bond, unless she executes it: see Grothe v. Pearce, 15 P. R. 195.

The plaintiff's solicitor should not be a surety: Beckitt v. Wragg, 1 Chy. Ch. 5; Grand Trunk Ry. Co. v. Ontario & Quebec Ry. Co., 3 C. L. T. 173.

The sureties must be solvent: Cliffe v. Wilkinson, 4 Sim. 122; and residents within the jurisdiction: Hall v. Mackenzie, 31 C. L. J. 700; and if the security becomes altered by the death, or insolvency, of a surety, fresh security may be required: Lautour v. Holcombe, 1 Ph. 362; Veitch v. Irvine, 11 Sim. 122; Gogo v. Canada Publishing Co., 10 P. R. 169; Morgan & Wurtzburg, p. 22.

Where the order is made on the application of one of several defendants, it may provide that the security to be given shall answer the costs of all of the defendants: Delap v. Charlebois, 15 P. R. 325.

As to procuring the allowance of the bond: see Rule 380.

The plaintiff, instead of giving a bond, might formerly obtain an order ex parte, giving leave to pay $400 into Court: Cliffe v. Wilkinson, 4 Sim. 123; Ganson v. Finch, 3 Chy. Ch. 296; see also Re Howland, 4 Chy. Ch. 6; Luther v. Word, 2 Chy. Ch. 175; and may now under Rule 381 pay in not less than one-half of the penalty of the bond required without an order. The money should be paid into Court in the usual way: see Rules 727 et seq. Payment to a Local Registrar is not regular, or sufficient: Leroux v. Lanthier, 2 C. L. T. 48.

380. Upon the bond being filed, with affidavits of execution and justification, either party may apply to allow or disallow the same within seven days after notice Bond for security for costs, how allowed.

Rule 381.

of filing it is served, otherwise the bond shall stand allowed. C.R. 1206. Amended.

Where a bond filed as security for the costs of an appeal was disallowed because leave to appeal had not been obtained, and subsequently, upon leave being obtained, the same bond was refiled, it was held that it was properly disallowed a second time, because the sureties might object that it had been improperly used by the appellant, and the respondent was entitled to security free from any objections of that nature: Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 535.

The party opposing the allowance of the bond may read the sworn statements of a surety made in another action: Ib.

A surety may be cross-examined on his affidavit of justification; but a surety, justifying on his private property, cannot be compelled to answer questions as to the liabilities of a firm of which he happens to be a member: Douglas v. Blackey, 14 P. R. 504.

No affidavit of justification is necessary where a bond of a surety company approved by Order in Council is given: Jud. Act, s. 69, supra, p. 233.

A bond of a foreign guaranty company doing business in this Province, if otherwise unobjectionable, may be received as sufficient security; Aldrick v. British Griffin Co., 1904, 2 K. B. 850, 91 L. T. 229; but the company would not, unless approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council as mentioned in Jud. Act, s. 69, supra, be sufficient as sole surety: see Rule 379; nor would it, in such a case, seem proper to dispense with an affidavit of justification as required by this Rule.

Money may be paid into Court.

381.—(1) Instead of giving a bond as security for costs, a party may, without special order, pay into Court, as such security, a sum of money not less than half the penalty of the bond required.

Notice to be served.

(2) The party paying in the money shall, when paying the same in, state the purpose for which it is paid in, and shall forthwith serve a notice upon the opposite party specifying the fact and purpose of such payment. C.R. 1207.

See note to Rule 379.

If the money paid in is not sufficient the opposite party may apply under Rule 382, to have "further" security given.

The money must be paid into Court to the credit of the cause, in the same way as other moneys are paid into Court: see Rules 727, et seq., and notes, infra; and the præcipe for the direction to the bank, necessary under Rule 728, should contain a statement of the purpose for which the money is paid in. Deposit of the money with a Local Registrar is invalid: Leroux v. Lanthier, 2 C. L. T. 48. After payment of defendant's costs, any surplus of money paid into Court under this Rule may be made exigible by means of a stop order to satisfy any other claim which the defendant may have against the plaintiff: see Evans v. Huntsville, 7 O. L. R. 540.

Money paid in, in answer to any order obtained by one of several defendants, may be ordered to stand also as security for the costs of the other defendants: Syracuse Smelting Works v. Stevens, 2 O. L. R. 141. Rule 382.

A plaintiff is not entitled to get money out of Court, paid in by him under this Rule, merely because the defendant pays money into Court in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, except on the terms of first paying the defendant's costs: American Aristotype Co. v. Eakins, 7 O. L. R. 127.

After the receipt of the notice mentioned in sub-section 2 of this Rule, the defendant is entitled to at least one day to ascertain if the money has been paid in, before the plaintiff can take further proceedings: The Northern Elevator Co. v. N. W. Transportation Co., 6 O. L. R. 23.

382. The amount of security, whether directed to be given by an order issued on præcipe or otherwise, may be increased or diminished from time to time. C.R. 1208. Amount may be varied.

This Rule is said to be merely declaratory of the inherent power of the Court: see D'Ivry v. The World, 33 C. L. J. 202.

Where the order for security is made upon motion, the Judge or officer making it may name such amount in which security is to be given, as the circumstances of the case warranta: Delap v. Chorlebois, 15 P. R. 45.

Security to the amount of £600 was ordered in Dom. Brewery v. Lister, 104 L. T. 127; and to the amount of $1,000 in Delap v. Chorlebois, supra.

The security given under a præcipe order under Rule 374, may be reduced, or increased, on reason being shown.

Security given under a præcipe, or special order, might, even before this Rule, have been, in a proper case, increased. This was refused where the usual amount, $400, was likely to be insufficient only by reason of an adjournment of the hearing, owing to the Judge having to close the Sittings to take another Circuit, and it was not shown that defendant might not at the outset have applied for a larger sum than $400: Bell v. Landon, 9 P. R. 100. Also where the trial was postponed on terms, and the giving of security was not imposed as one of the terms: Simon v. Lo Banque Notionole, 7 P. R. 422; and also where it was alleged to be necessary for the defendant to issue a foreign commission to take evidence, there having been delay in making the application, and the effect of granting it would have been to delay the trial: Trevelyan v. Myers, 15 C. L. T. 135; 31 C. L. J. 284; and see D'Ivry v. The World, 33 C. L. J. 202.

In a suit by a foreign government £120 security for costs had been given before the Judicature Act came into operation. A large amount of costs would be incurred before the suit was heard, and further security to the amount of £500 to cover future costs was ordered to be given: further security, it was said, could not be ordered to be given for past costs: Republic of Costo Rico v. Erlanger, 3 Ch. D. 62.

In a matter in the Surrogate Court security was directed to be given to the amount of $200. Subsequently the matter was removed to the High Court, nothing at the time being said as to further security. On motion, further security was ordered: Johnston v. Wilson, 4 C. L. T. 291.

Obtaining a præcipe order does not preclude a subsequent application by defendant for increased security, and no reservation of the right to make a further application is necessary in the præcipe order: Standard Trading Co. v. Seybold, 5 O. L. R. 8; but the application for further security must not be made an excuse for checking of proceedings at every step in the action: see S. C., 6 O. L. R. 379.

Where it appeared by the admissions of defendant that there was over $5,000 due to the plaintiff, and the contest was as to the counterclaim of defendant, further security was refused: Reynolds v. Walsh, 6 O. W. N. 310.

Additional security for the costs of a motion by the plaintiff for a new trial was ordered: Bensten v. Taylor, 1893, 2 Q. B. 193; 69 L. T. 333.

The application for additional security should be made in Chambers: Ib.

Security on motion for judgment, under Rule

383.—(1) A defendant must appear before obtaining an order for security of costs. New.

(2) Where the writ of summons is specially indorsed the defendant shall also file the affidavits required by Rule 56, and if an order for security for costs is issued the plaintiff may pay into Court the sum of $50, as a partial compliance with such order, and thereupon he shall be at liberty to cross-examine and move for judgment; but the order for security shall, in all other respects, have its full operation and effect.

(3) Such payment into Court shall not prejudice any motion that may be made to set aside the order for security.

(4) In actions in the County Court the amount of the partial security shall be $25.

Judgment for part.

(5) Where upon motion under Rule 57 the plaintiff is awarded judgment for a portion only of his claim, he may issue the judgment and execution thereunder, but so long as the order for security stands he shall not take any other proceedings in respect to the residue of his claim, until it has been fully complied with. C.R. 1209.

This Rule is intended apparently to remove the obstacle which formerly existed in the way of the plaintiff's taking any proceedings until he had complied with an order for security for costs, or obtained its discharge: Doer v. Rand, 10 P. R. 165.

Where a plaintiff against whom an order for security for costs had been obtained, moved to set it aside, and also for judgment undsr former C. R. 603, without paying $50 into Court under this Rule, the motion was refused with costs, and Doer v. Rond, 10 P. R. 105, and Anglo American Casings Co. v. Rowlin, Ib., 391, were held to be no longer in force: Poyne v. Newberry, 13 P. R. 354; but where there was an admission hy defendant of the debt sued for, sworn to and not contradicted, an order for security was set aside, notwithstanding that the plaintiff might, under this Rule, have paid $50 into Court and proceeded to move for judgment: Thiboudeou v. Herbert, 16 P. R. 420, following Doer v. Rond, 10 P. R. 105. Rules 384, 385.

This Rule does not extend the time for putting in security for costs, it only enahles a plaintiff to remove ths stay of proceedings for the sole purpose of moving for judgment under Rule 57. If he fails on that motion he must put in the security within the time limited, or, in dsfault, tho action will stand dismissed, unless the defendant himself treats the act . . as still alive: Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 16 P. R. 225; but the time for putting in security may be enlarged upon an application under Rule 176; S. C. 16 P. R. 315.

A plaintiff may move to set asids a præcipe order for security for costs, without first giving security under this Rule: Walters v. Duggon, 17 P. R. 359.

See Rule 375 and notes, supro, p. 879 et seq.

384. A bond given for security for costs may be delivered up for cancellation or suit upon consent of the solicitors in the cause without order. C.R. 1210. Delivery of bond out of Court.

The consent must be in writing, and should he filed with the officer having the custody of the bond.

Where security for costs of the action has been given, ths plaintiff on recovsry of judgment, and at the expiration of the time for appealing therefrom, and no appeal having been lodged, is entitled to move to have the bond delivered up; hut where an appeal to the Appellate Division has been, or is about to be, brought, such an appeal was expressly stated to he a step in the action: see C. R. 798 (and presumably still is, although that Rule has not been continued), and the order would not be granted until such appeal was disposed of.

Wbere security has been given for the costs of an appeal to tbe Appellate Division, if the party giving the security succeeds on the appeal, he is entitled to have the hond delivered up to be cancelled; or where money has heen paid into Court as security for such costs, he is entitled to have it paid out to him, notwithstanding that the opposite party is prosecuting an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, because the security is not given to answer the costs of such an appeal: Marsh v. Webb, 15 P. R. 64; Homill v. Lilley, 19 Q. B. D. 83; 56 L. T. 620; Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 7 O. L. R. 411.

385. Where money has been paid into Court as security for costs or with a defence it may be paid out on the consent of the solicitors in the cause or matter, without order, and may be paid to the solicitors upon produc- Payment of money out of Court.

tion of the consent of the client verified by affidavit. C.R. 1211. Amended.

Primâ facie the payment is to be made to the litigant entitled, and not to his solicitor. Where it is desired to obtain payment to the solicitor of the party, his written consent duly verified, as required by this Rule, is necessary.

(xiii) Interim Alimony.

Defendant may notify plaintiff that he submits to pay interim alimony claimed.

386.—(1) In an alimony action, the defendant may, at any time before the statement of defence is due, give notice in writing that he submits to pay the interim alimony, and costs, as demanded by the plaintiff in the indorsement on the writ; and in that case no motion for interim alimony shall be made until there has been a default in payment; and in case of default, affidavits being filed verifying the indorsement and notice and the default, an order for payment of the sum demanded shall be issued on præcipe.

Procedure where defendant submits to pay a less sum than plaintiff claims.

(2) The defendant may give notice in writing that he submits to pay such less sum as he may deem proper and may name in his notice.

(3) Where a notice has been so served and the plaintiff accepts the amount therein mentioned as sufficient, the defendant shall pay thereafter the sum so offered as interim alimony, and no order for interim alimony shall be made until there has been default in payment.

(4) Where a notice has been so served, the plaintiff's interim disbursements may be taxed without order.

(5) Where the plaintiff does not accept the amount offered and upon motion for interim alimony it is found that the sum so offered is reasonable, and the defendant pays to the plaintiff the sum so offered, no order for interim alimony shall be made until there has been default in payment. C.R. 370.

When the order is authorized to be issued or præcipe, the officer in whose office the action was commenced may issue it: Rule 762.

See notes to Rule 387.

Application for interim alimony and costs, when it may be made.

387. An application for interim alimony or for interim disbursements shall not be made until the time for delivering the defence has expired, and costs shall not be ordered to be paid de die in diem by the defendant, but only the amount of the cash disbursements actually and properly made by the plaintiff's solicitor. C.R. 1144. Rule 387

This Rule is also based in part on C. R. 371.

Interim Alimony.—For form of indorsement, on the writ, of a claim for interim alimony: see Form 4; H. & L. Forms, No. 64. If the indorsement is omitted, an application for interim alimony may be made, but in such case it will only run from the date of the order; and no costs of the motion will be allowed: Peterson v. Peterson, 6 P. R. 150; and see Parish v. Parish, 4 O. W. N. 105.

For provisions for fixing the amount so as to avoid a motion: see Rule 386.

The application may be made at any time after the statement of defence has been filed: Gorman v. Gorman, before Proudfoot, V.C., 20th September, 1875; or after the time for delivering it has expired; Peck v. Peck, 9 P. R. 299; unless the defendant has given notice under Rule 386, and has not made default in payment of an amount accepted by the plaintiff as sufficient.

The allowance of alimony pendente lite depends on the marital relationship between the parties existing de facto, and the Court exercises a discretion in granting, or withholding, alimony pendente lite, which is regulated by the circumstances of each case: Walker v. Walker, 10 P. R. 633; Atwood v. Atwood, 15 P. R. 425; 16 P. R. 50; Parish v. Parish, supra.

It is allowed, when necessary, for the maintenance of the plaintiff: Soules v. Soules, 3 Gr. 113; Thompson v. Thompson, L. R. 1 P. & D. 553, but not as of course; the relative incomes of the husband and wife may be considered, and discretion exercised in the whole circumstances of the case, and it may be refused if the plaintiff is shown not to be in need of support: Bradley v. Bradley, 3 Chy. Ch. 329; Smith v. Smith, 6 P. R. 51; Knapp v. Knapp, 12 P. R. 105: Falvey v. Falvey, 2 O. W. R. 476, 832; and see Allen v. Allen, 1894, P. 134; and Lovell v. Lovell, 5 O. W. R. 401, 640; or if it is not shewn that the defendant has means to comply with an order if made: Pherrill v. Pherrill, 6 O. L. R. 642. Interim alimony, when allowed.

Alimony was refused where it was shewn that plaintiff and defendant had executed a separation deed containing an alimentary provision, and the wife had bound herself not to sue for alimony: Atwood v. Atwood, 15 P. R. 425; and in appeal, 16 P. R. 50, where the Divisional Court of the Ch. Div. was equally divided; but where a similar separation deed was disputed by the plaintiff, interim alimony was ordered, following Henderson v. Henderson, 19 Gr. 464; Lafrance v. Lafrance, 18 P. R. 62; and where the separation agreement contained no provision for the wife's maintenance, it was held to be no bar to her right to alimony: Frémont v. Frémont, 26 O. L. R. 6.

Where the wife is undergoing sentence for a crime, alimony will not be ordered, unless her sentence is about to expire: Leslie v. Leslie, 98 L. T. 62.

On an application for interim alimony, cross-examination of the plaintiff on her affidavit in support of the motion was allowed, but limited to the question as to her own means: Cook v. Cook, 28 C. L. J. 95; 12 C. L. T. 73.

Rule 387.

Interim alimony is payable from the date of the service of the writ, if there has been no delay in making the application: Howe v. Howe, 3 Chy. Ch. 494; Thompson v. Thompson, 9 P. R. 526; 19 C. L. J. 252; Parish v. Parish, supra, p. 901; and the claim for interim alimony is indorsed on the writ: Peterson v. Peterson, 6 P. R. 150; in other cases from the date of the order. Where the plaintiff was living in the defendant's house, and brought the action for alimony on the ground of alleged desertion, without alleging cruelty, and the husband by his defence and affidavit offered to resume co-habitation, interim alimony was refused: Snider v. Snider, 11 P. R. 140; but where it was proved that the plaintiff, though living in the defendant's homestead, was in need, it was allowed: Lalonde v. Lalonde, 11 P. R. 143.

Evidence required on motion for interim alimony.

On a motion for interim alimony, it is sufficient if a de facto marriage be proved: Taylor v. Taylor, 1 Chy. Ch. 234; Foden v. Foden, 1894, P. 307; 71 L. T. 279; its validity cannot be inquired into; Bradley v. Bradley, supra; Nolan v. Nolan, 1 Chy. Ch. 368; Carr v. Carr, 2 Chy. Ch. 71; Walker v. Walker, 10 P. R. 363; nor can any question affecting the merits of the action; thus, alleged adultery by plaintiff cannot be raised on such an application: Campbell v. Campbell, 6 P. R. 128; nor the question whether the plaintiff is justified in leaving the defendant: Wilson v. Wilson, Ib., 129; Keith v. Keith, 7 P. R. 41; Lovell v. Lovell, 5 O. W. R. 401, 640; Theakstone v. Theakstone, 10 O. L. R. 386.

Plaintiff must undertake to proceed to trial at next sittings.

The plaintiff is usually required to undertake to proceed to a trial of the action at the next sittings; but where the defendant neglected to pay the alimony, and the plaintiff was left without means of taking the case to trial, the undertaking was extended: Bowslaugh v. Bowslaugh, 6 P. R. 200; and where the cause had been entered for trial, it was ordered to stand over, until a sum sufficient to pay plaintiff's witnesses was paid by defendant: Haffey v. Haffey, 7 P. R. 137.

It would seem that the plaintiff's solicitor has no lien for his costs on moneys paid to him for interim alimony: Cross v. Cross, 43 L. T. 533; and see Re Robinson, 77 L. T. Jour. 237; Leete v. Leete, 40 L. T. 788.

Where interim alimony not applied for, permanent alimony ordered only from date of service of writ.

Exception to rule.

Where interim alimony had not been applied for, the Court refused to order the permanent alimony to run from a date prior to the decree: Soules v. Soules, 3 Gr. 113. But where the husband had agreed to a separation, and to pay the plaintiff an allowance, the Court awarded permanent alimony at the rate agreed to be paid by defendant and directed payment from the date of the writ, though no application had been made for interim alimony: Mallory v. Mallory, before Boyd, C., at Cobourg, 2nd April, 1883; and permanent alimony has been granted from the service of the writ, where no application for interim alimony was made, and judgment was obtained on motion in default of defence (the notice of motion for judgment stating that it would be so asked): Hagarty v. Hagarty, before Boyd, C., 11th February, 1885.

An order cannot be made in Chambers, even on consent, for payment of permanent alimony, as that is equivalent to a judgment in the action: see Craig v. Craig, 1 Chy. Ch. 41; but judgment might be pronounced in Court in such a case under Rule 222.

Motion to set aside order.

Where, after an order for interim alimony, the wife returned to her husband's house, and resided there for some time, but was afterwards compelled to leave, by reason of cruelty, a motion to set aside the order for interim alimony, on the ground of condonation, was refused: Maxwell v. Maxwell, 1 Chy. Ch. 27.

The payment of interim alimony has been stayed until the plaintiff produced on oath, books and papers which she had taken from her husband, and which deprived him of the means of paying it: Old v. Old, 9 P. R. 552. Rule 387.

Amount to be Allowed.—There is no fixed rule as to the amount to be allowed for interim alimony. In England, the rule is usually to allow about one-fifth of the annual income of the husband, but it is in the discretion of the Court, and may vary according to the circumstances of the case. But in this Province a percentage on the income is not always the measure for the allowance, and the value of the defendant's labour may also be taken into account: McCulloch v. McCulloch, 10 Gr. 320. The allowance is usually less than would be allowed as permanent alimony, the wife being bound pendente lite to live in retirement and seclusion: Coote Eccl. Pr. 338; Rees v. Rees, 3 Phill. 389; Hawkes v. Hawkes, 1 Hagg. 526; Otway v. Otway, 2 Phill. 108. As to the effect of The Married Women's Property Act, on the right to alimony, see Wilson v. Wilson, 2 Hagg. 204; Milne v. Milne, L. R. 2 P. & M. 202; 23 L. T. 877; Mogurn v. Mogurn, 10 P. R. 570. Amount to be allowed for interim alimony.

Where the defendant had agreed to pay the plaintiff an allowance for her separate maintenance, and subsequently a suit was brought for alimony, and for specific performance of the agreement, and the plaintiff obtained an order for interim alimony, and subsequently a decree for specific performance, it was held that the plaintiff was bound to credit the sums received as interim alimony, on account of the sums payable under the agreement: Maxwell v. Maxwell, 7 P. R. 63.

Where an order for interim alimony was granted (the defendant not appearing on the motion), for the amount indorsed on the bill, and the defendant subsequently moved to reduce the amount as excessive, a reference was granted, on payment of full costs of the application: Hooper v. Hooper, 3 Chy. Ch. 114.

Where a plaintiff in an alimony suit improperly registered a lis pendens the certificate was vacated, and the costs of the motion were ordered to be deducted from the interim alimony: Crondell v. Crandell, 20 C. L. J. 329. See White v. White, 6 P. R. 208, and notes to Jud. Act. s. 36, supra, p. 200.

Costs.—Under this Rule, in addition to interim alimony, the plaintiff is also entitled to an order for payment of the cash disbursements, properly made by her solicitor. Costs de die in diem.

The cash disbursements do not include fees paid to agents for solicitors' services, nor to counsel, when the solicitor or his partner is the counsel: Gallagher v. Gallagher, 17 P. R. 575; Lalonde v. Lalonde, 11 P. R. 143; Leslie v. Leslie, 12 C. L. T. 326. The former decisions of Magurn v. Magurn, 10 P. R. 570; Bradley v. Bradley, 21 C. L. J. 141; 10 P. R. 571, to the contrary, would seem not now to be followed; and see Ingram v. Ingram, 10 P. R. 569; and Bucke v. Bucke, 21 Gr. 77.

Notwithstanding this Rule, prospective witness fees were ordered to be paid on the plaintiff's solicitor's undertaking to account for the money paid, and not so expended: Stevenson v. Stevenson, 19 P. R. 48.

Where a cause was entered for trial it was ordered to stand over, until the defendant had paid to the plaintiff a sum sufficient to pay plaintiff's witnesses: Hoffey v. Haffey, 7 P. R. 137.

Rules 388, 389.

In Otway v. Otway, 59 L. T. 153; 13 P. D. 141, a doubt was expressed as to whether the rules respecting a wife's costs in litigation with her husband were affected by The Married Women's Property Act.

Where, before trial, an alimony suit is compromised by the parties, the plaintiff returning to co-habitation with the defendant, the solicitor of the plaintiff is not entitled to his costs from the defendant as between solicitor and client, but only to cash disbursements: Ringrose v. Ringrose, 10 P. R. 299, 596, overruling Leonard v. Leonard, 9 P. R. 450; Moore v. Moore, 10 P. R. 284; and see Thompson v. Thompson, 57 L. T. 374; but see Ferris v. Ferris, 7 Ont. 496; Re Friedberg, 10 P. D. 112.

Registration of order.

Registration of Order.—An order for payment of interim alimony and disbursements may be registered: see the Jud. Act, sec. 73, supra, p. 237; Miller v. Miller, 8 C. L. T. 120.

Plaintiff failing, defendant to pay disbursements only.

388. Where the plaintiff in an alimony action fails to obtain a judgment for alimony, no costs beyond the amount of the cash disbursements actually and properly made by the plaintiff's solicitor, shall be ordered to be paid by the defendant. C.R. 1145.

Where a plaintiff pendente lite returned to her husband, on the petition of her solicitor, the defendant was ordered to pay the plaintiff's costs as between solicitor and client: Leonard v. Leonard, 9 P. R. 450; Moore v. Moore, 10 P. R. 284; 20 C. L. J. 291; but in Ringrose v. Ringrose, 10 P. R. 299, 596, Proudfoot, J., refused to follow the cases and only gave disbursements, and his decision was subsequently affirmed by the Divisional Court; and see Thompson v. Thompson, 57 L. T. 374; but see Ferris v. Ferris, 7 Ont. 496; The Friedberg, 10 P. R. 112.

As to what come within the term "cash disbursements": see Rule 387, notes.

(xiv) Change of Solicitor.

Change of solicitor.

389. A party suing or defending by a solicitor may change his solicitor by filing and serving a notice to that effect. C.R. 335. Amended.

Where a solicitor on the record dies, a new solicitor appointed by the client should file and serve a notice of his appointment, and semble, he should also give therein an address for service: see Rule 11; where this is not done: see Rule 392 as to how service of papers is to be effected.

The Rule is probably intended to apply only to cases where, under the former practice, an order of course to change a solicitor could be obtained, or where the change could be made without order.

Where under the former practice a special application was necessary it is probably still so.

Order to change solicitor when necessary.

Notice of Change of Solicitor.—A notice of change of solicitor is necessary, not only where the client desires to discharge his solicitor in an action, but also where the solicitor discharges himself: see Griffiths v. Griffiths, 2 Hare, 587; 7 Jur. 573. Where the client appoints a new solicitor in place of one deceased, notice of the appointment of the new solicitor should be filed and served under this Rule: see Hunt v. Fineburg, 22 Q. B. D. 259; Braith. Pr. 564, 565; Bonk of Montreal v. Harrison, 4 P. R. 331. And, in default, the opposite party may serve papers as provided by Rule 392. Rule 389.

Until an order to change the solicitor is obtained and served, or a notice of the appointment of a new solicitor is filed and served under this Rule, service on the solicitor on the record or his agent, is good, even though the former has ceased to act, and though a new one has been appointed: Dovidson v. Leslie, 9 Beav. 104; Wright v. King, Ib., 161; Brown v. Burgor, 2 Chy. Ch. 446; De la Pole v. Dick, 29 Ch. D. 351; 52 L. T. 357; but eee Reg. v. JJ. of Oxfordshire, in note to Rule 199.

Under the former practice at law, the attorney could not be changed by the client, unless his costs were first paid: Witt v. Ames, 11 W. R. 751; but in Chancery the rule was otherwise: Meyers v. Robertson, 1 Gr. 439. This is one of those matters in which the rules of Equity and the rules of the Common Law differed, and therefore under the Jud. Act, s. 22, the rule of Epuity is now to prevail, and notice of the change of solicitor may be given without payment of coste: eee Grant v. Hollond, 3 C. P. D. 180. Payment of costs not a condition precedent.

Where there ie a joint retainer, notice to change the solicitor by some or one of the clients only, would be irregular: see Re Norwich and Norfolk Building Society, 22 W. R. 856; Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 17 Beav. 158.

Where there are special facts: e.g., the existence of a special retainer for a term of years unexpired: Richards v. Scorborough Market Co., 17 Beav. 83; or the fact of the solicitor being mortgagee of the client's share in the fund in question: Jenkins v. Bryant, 3 Drew. 70; there, a notice by the client changing his solicitor would be liable to be set aside on the application of the solicitor. Material facts must be disclosed.

After a notice of change of solicitor has been filed and served, if the latter objects to the change, he should apply to set aside the notice: see Topping v. Scorson, 2 H. & M. 205. Setting aside order.

Where an action is brought in the name of a nominal plaintiff, the beneficiary on whose behalf the action is brought is entitled to change the plaintiff's solicitor, and if the nominal plaintiff insists on carrying on the action in the name of the original solicitor, he may be restrained by injunction from so doing on the application of the beneficiary: Loskey v. Runtz, 124 L. T. Jour. 569.

Where a solicitor on the record dies, the client must file and serve a notice of the appointment of a new solicitor as provided by this Rule, otherwise the opposite party may serve all subsequent proceedings as provided in Rule 392.

The notice is only authorized in the cases specified in Rules 389, 390, 391 and 392. In cases not specified, semble, an order of course is still necessary, e.g.—

Where one of several plaintiffs desires to make an application in the action separately from his co-plaintiffs, he must obtain an order of course, giving him leave to appoint a solicitor for that express purpose: Danl. Pr., 5th ed., 1724. Application by one of several plaintiffs.

Proceedings taken by a new solicitor without an order, or notice, filed and served under this Rule, when one is necessary, or by a suitor in person when he has a solicitor on the record, are irregular and will be set aside: Rathbun v. Hughes, 3 Chy. Ch. 160; Yeatman v. Snow, 42 L. T. 502; Arch. Pr., 13th ed., p. 110; 12th ed., p. 94.

If a solicitor retained in an ordinary Common Law action refuses, pending the action, to continue to act without some reasonable cause, and upon reasonable notice, he has no right of action for his costs: Underwood v. Lewis, 1894, 2 Q. B. 306; but the rule appears to be otherwise in actions for equitable relief, in which the proceedings might be of a very long and complicated character, and be divided into several stages: Ib., and In re Hall, 9 Ch. D. 538.

Where a defendant, in consideration of an indemnity against costs, has agreed that his defence shall be conducted by a co-defendant, to whose solicitor he gives a retainer, he will be restrained from afterwards withdrawing the retainer or interfering with the prosecution of an appeal: Montfort v. Marsden, 1895, 1 Ch. 11, and semble, in such a case a notice changing his solicitor, without the consent of such co-defendant, would be irregular, and would be set aside on the application of the latter.

Notice to change when a discharge of solicitor by client.

The filing and serving of a notice changing a solicitor is prima facie a discharge of the former solicitor by the client: Webster v. Le Hunt, 9 W. R. 804. But it is not a discharge of the solicitor by the client, where it is filed and served in consequence of the prior refusal of the solicitor to act; and a solicitor will be considered to have discharged himself, on the bankruptcy of himself, or the firm of which he is a partner: Re Moss, L. R. 2 Eq. 345; or by being arrested, or detained in custody: Re Williams, 3 D. F. & J. 104; 28 Beav. 465; Scott v. Fleming, 9 Jur. 1085; but not by being merely in embarrassed circumstances: Re Smith, 9 W. R. 396. So also a firm of solicitors will be deemed to have discharged the client, where the firm is dissolved; and no arrangement can be made by the solicitors for the transfer of the client's business to one of their number without his consent amounting to a new retainer: Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 19 Ves. 261; Griffiths v. Griffiths, 2 Hare, 587; Slater v. Stoddard, 6 P. R. 299; Alchin v. Buffalo & L. H. Ry. Co., 2 Chy. Ch. 45.

Where any new party is brought into an action by order to continue proceedings, by reason of the death of, or transfer of interest by, any of the parties, such new party is not obliged to employ the solicitor by whom the deceased person, or transferor, was represented, but he may employ a new solicitor, but notice of such new solicitor being so employed must be filed and served as required by this Rule in the proper office: see Rule 762: and see Simmonds v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., L. R. 3 Chy. 797; but the assignee of the plaintiff in a creditor's suit could not appoint a new solicitor except on special application: Topping v. Scorson, 2 H. & M. 205.

Although a solicitor may, for sufficient cause, by notice to his client, terminate the connection between them, the Court will not make an order for that purpose on the ex parte application of the solicitor: Bricker v. Ansell, 1 Chy. Ch. 367.

Solicitor when restrained from acting for opposite party.

Solicitor Restrained from Acting for Opponent.—Where a solicitor is discharged by the dissolution of a firm of which he is a member, he is not at liberty to act for the opposite party: Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 19 Ves. 261; but when he is discharged by his client he cannot be restrained from acting for the opposite party, nor the latter from employing him: Little v. Kingswood & Parkfield Colliery Co., 20 Ch. D. 733; 47 L. T. 323; 52 L. J. Chy. 66; Rakusen v. Ellis, infra; but the solicitor may be restrained by injunction from divulging the secrets of his former client to the opposite party, either in the same transaction, or in any other flowing thereout, or connected therewith: ib.; and see Davies v. Clough, 8 Sim. 262, 267; Grissell v. Pelo, 9 Bing. 1; Johnson v. Marriott, 2 Cr. & M. 183; Rakusen v. Ellis, 1912, 1 Ch. 831; 106 L. T. 556. Rule 369.

An agreement between solicitors acting for different parties, to share profit costs, in consideration of being introduced into the litigation, was held to be misconduct: Re Four Solicitors, 1901, 1 K. B. 187.

How far the solicitor's retainer continues after judgment is recovered in the action in which he is retained to sue or defend, seems doubtful; see 79 L. T. Jour. 208; Millar v. Kanody, supra, p. 656, in note to Rule 202. Service of notice of appeal from the judgment made on the respondent's solicitor on the record, was held good: De la Pole v. Dick, 29 Ch. D. 351; 52 L. T. 457; but a retainer of a solicitor to collect a debt was held not to authorize him, after judgment recovered, to enter upon interpleader proceedings without further instructions: James v. Ricknell, 20 Q. B. D. 164; 58 L. T. 278. See also Reg. v. JJ. of Oxfordshire, 1893, 2 Q. B. 149.

Where an order has been made dismissing an action for failure to give security for costs, the retainer of the defendant's solicitor was held to continue, so as to enable the plaintiff to serve him as the solicitor on the record with proceedings by way of appeal from, or under Rule 217, to rescind, the order: Muir v. Guinane, 9 O. L. R. 324; 10 O. L. R. 367.

Lien of Solicitor on Books and Papers.—A solicitor has a lien on the books and papers of his client, which have come to him in the course of business in his professional capacity. This lien, however, is a mere right to retain the documents until his costs are paid, and cannot be actively enforced: Bozon v. Bolland, 4 My. & Cr. 354. In the absence of any agreement to the contrary, the lien is general, and attaches for all costs due from the client, and is not confined to the costs incurred in the particular business in which the documents came into the solicitor's hands: Re Faithful, L. R. 6 Eq. 325; Bozon v. Bolland, supra; Richards v. Plalel, Cr. & Ph. 82; Worrall v. Johnson, 2 Jac. & W. 214; Ex parte Sterling, 16 Ves. 257; Friswell v. King, 15 Sim. 191; Colmer v. Ede, 19 W. R. 313; Re Messenger, 3 Ch. D. 317; and see Re Rapid Rood Tronsil Co., 1909, 1 Ch. 96; 99 L. T. 774. While it exists the client is not entitled to inspect or take copies of papers subject to the lien: Re Biggs, 102 L. T. Jour. 364. Lien on books and papers.

As to principles and extent of a solicitor's lien, generally, and the remedies against a solicitor to enforce production, or delivery, notwithstanding his lien: see Re Hawkes, 1898, 2 Ch. 1, 15; 78 L. T. 336.

The solicitor cannot acquire any greater right of detainer, than the client had himself, and the lien is therefore subject to the rights and equities of those claiming by title paramount to that of the client: Francis v. Francis, 5 D. M. & G. 108; Sledmon v. Webb, 4 My. & Cr. 346; Clulton v. Pardon, T. & R. 304; Molesworth v. Robbins, 2 J. & Lat. 358; Pelly v. Wathen 1 D. M. & G. 16; 7 Ha. 351; Blunden v. Desart, 2 Dr. & W. 405; Bell v. Taylor, 8 Sim. 216; Baker v. Henderson, 4 Sim. 27; Worburton v. Edge, 9 Sim. 508; Re Mosely,

Rule 389.

15 W. R. 975; Young v. English, 7 Beav. 10; Stennett v. Aruyn, 2 Chy. Ch. 218; Re Union Cement and Brick Co., Ex parte Pulbrook, L. R. 4 Chy. 627; and where the client would be bound to produce the documents in evidence on the demand of third parties, the solicitor cannot refuse to produce them on the ground of his lien: Hope v. Liddell, 7 D. M. & G. 331; 20 Beav. 438; Fowler v. Fowler, 44 L. T. 799; 50 L. J. Ch. 686; Re Lawrence, Bowker v. Austin, 1894, 1 Ch. 556; 70 L. T. 91; Re Llewellin, 1891, 3 Ch. 145; 65 L. T. 240; Smith v. Pontypridd & R. V. T. Co., 96 L. T. Jour. 83; Re Hawkes, 1898, 2 Ch. 1; 78 L. T. 336.

A solicitor, employed by a person about to be appointed a trustee, is entitled to a lien on the trust deed for his costs incurred before its execution in investigating the title of the trust property, and preparing the deed, etc., both as against his client, the trustee, and also as against the c. q. t.: In re Dee, Wright v. Dee, 1911, 2 Ch. 85; 104 L. T. 903.

Third parties, whose rights are acquired under the client subsequent to the creation of the lien, have no greater rights than the client himself had at the time they acquired title: Gill v. Gamble, 13 Gr. 169; 2 Chy. Ch. 135. The solicitor, however, cannot claim a lien against such third parties, for costs incurred by him subsequently to their acquiring their rights: Blunden v. Desart, 2 Dr. & W. 405; Re Rapid Road Transit Co., 1909, 1 Ch. 96; 99 L. T. 774.

A solicitor cannot acquire a lien on the documents of a joint stock company which by statute, or the articles of association, are required to be kept in the office of the company: Re The Anglo-Maltese Co., 52 L. T. 841; but he may acquire a lien on the books and documents of a company which are not so required to be kept in the office of the company, Ib., but not for business which was ultra vires of the company: Re Howard & Dollman, 1 H. & M. 433.

A solicitor of a company, of whose assets a receiver is appointed, is entitled to a lien on the moneys of the company in his hands for all costs incurred up to the appointment of the receiver: Re British Tea Table Co., 101 L. T. 707.

A solicitor who is employed by a mortgagor and mortgagee to prepare a mortgage, after completion of the mortgage holds the title deeds for the mortgagee, and cannot as against him, claim any lien thereon for a debt due by the mortgagor: Ex parte Quinn, 49 L. T. 811.

A solicitor is not entitled to a lien on his client's papers, for the costs of proceedings instituted against the solicitor on behalf of the client: Re Honbury, 75 L. T. 449.

Semble, an agent of a solicitor is entitled to a lien on the documents which come to his hands in the course of his agency, for the costs of the proceedings in which the documents relate both as against his principal and the latter's client: see Re Jones, 1905, 2 Ch. 219.

Effect of taking security.

The lien is superseded by the solicitor's taking security for his costs inconsistent with the retention of his general lien: Cowell v. Simpson, 16 Ves. 275; Re Taylor, 1891, 1 Ch. 590; see Brownlow v. Keatinge, 2 Ir. Eq. 243; Kennin v. Macdonald, 22 Ont. 484; Bissell v. Brodford & P. T. Co., 94 L. T. Jour. 285; Re Douglas, 1898, 1 Ch. 199; 77 L. T. 552; but only to the extent of the security: Watson v. Lyon, 7 D. M. & G. 288; Re Morris, 1908, 1 K. B. 473; 98 L. T. 500; and ceases altogether on payment, and the solicitor cannot then retain documents on the ground that a third party claims an interest in them: Re Emma Mine, Ex p. Turner, 24 W. R. 54. The lien may also be lost by the solicitor's assigning his bill of costs to a third party: Reeser v. Ellis, 7 P. R. 371; and also by parting with possession of the documents; but where on the dissolution of a firm of solicitors, one of the partners took possession of documents on which the firm had a lien, without the permission or consent of his late partners, it was held that the lien of the firm was not thereby lost: Re Carter, Carter v. Carter, 53 L. T. 630. Rule 389.

Where a firm is changed by the introduction of a new partner, there is no lien on papers delivered to the new firm, for costs due the old firm: Re Forshaw, 16 Sim. 121.

Toronto agents, as against their principals, have a general lien for their agency bills on papers placed in their hands by their principals; and the lien is not lost even though the relationship of principal and agent is dissolved by the agent: Re Attorney, 7 P. R. 311; Re A. B. & Co., 14 C. L. J. 142; Re Cross, 4 Chy. Ch. 11. Agent of solicitor.

A solicitor is entitled to a lien on a deceased client's books and papers for moneys due by the client's executor, or administrator, in his individual capacity: see Re Foster, 116 L. T. Jour. 388.

Lien on Fund.—A solicitor has not only a general lien on his client's papers for all costs due to him, but he has also a particular lien for the costs of proceedings to recover a fund, upon the fund recovered, or ordered to be paid: Lann v. Church, 4 Mad. 391; even against a liquidator of a client company: Re Meter Cabs Ltd., 1911, 2 Ch. 557; 105 L. T. 572; or a receiver appointed at the instance of debenture holders of the company: Re British Tea Table Co., 101 L. T. 707; and, if the fund actually reaches the solicitor's hand, he is only entitled to retain it until his costs of the action in which the fund is recovered are paid: he has not a general lien thereon for all costs: Mackenzie v. MacIntosh, 64 L. T. 318, 706; but he is entitled to a lien thereon for any costs he is put to in establishing his lien, in case his retainer is disputed: Re Meter Cabs Ltd., supra; and his lien attaches upon the sum to which his client becomes entitled, in priority to the claims of other parties to whom his client is personally ordered to pay costs: Wright v. Bell, 24 S. C. R. 656; and the taxing officer, or Master, unless specially authorized so to do, has no power to set off costs payable to a party out of a fund in Court against costs payable by such party personally to other parties in the action, so as to deprive his solicitor of his lien on the fund: Ib.; Davidson v. Douglas, 15 Gr. 354; Hall v. Laver, 1 Hare, 571; but his lien only extends to what is due to him in his character of a solicitor: Re Galland, 31 Ch. D. 296; 53 L. T. 921. Lien on fund.

Where the compromise of an action is sanctioned by the Court on behalf of infant parties, and a fund is directed to be paid to them, without reserving the rights of their solicitor, the latter is not thereby deprived of his common law lien for costs on the fund so recovered, or preserved, through his instrumentality: Re Wright's Trusts, 1901 1 Ch. 317; 83 L. T. 515.

The solicitor's lien on the amount payable under a verdict is entitled to priority over the claim of a creditor of his client who has obtained an attaching order: Berneski v. Tourongeau, 18 P. R. 263.

Rule 389.

The solicitor may give notice to the opposite party not to pay the money until his costs are satisfied: Cowell v. Simpson, 16 Ves. 275; and see Sympson v. Prothero, 5 W. R. 814; notice to his solicitor is sufficient: Sanvidge v. Ireland, 14 P. R. 29. And this lien is not lost by the discharge of the solicitor by the client, or by the act of God, pending the suit; thus where the plaintiff assigned his interest in the suit, and the assignee named a new solicitor, the first solicitor was held entitled to a lien on the fund ultimately recovered and to payment of his costs thereout, next after those of the solicitor by whom the suit was concluded: Clark v. Eccles, 3 Chy. Ch. 324; and see Kellett v. Kelly, 5 Ir. Eq. R. 34; Bozen v. Bolland, 4 My. & Cr. 354; Cormack v. Beisly, 3 D. & J. 157; Re Wadsworth, Rhodes v. Sugden, 34 Ch. D. 155; 55 L. T. 596. But after the fund has been paid to the client, with the solicitor's acquiescence, or without notice by the payer of the solicitor's claim, his lien is gone, and he must look to his client alone for payment of his costs: see 86 L. T. Jour. 446.

If payment be made to the client, notwithstanding notice given by the solicitor not to pay till his costs are satisfied, the solicitor, to the extent of his lien, is entitled to recover the amount paid against the party paying: Ross v. Buxton, 42 Ch. D. 190.

Solicitor refusing to act.

Where the solicitor declines to act he has no lien upon a fund in Court: Cresswell v. Byron, 14 Ves. 271.

Compromise.

Where a compromise has been made, the plaintiff's solicitor may be entitled to a lien on money payable under it to his client as the fruits of litigation: see Walker v. Gurney, 18 P. R. 274, 471; Re Wright's Trusts, 1901, 1 Ch. 317.

Lien may be actively enforced.

The lien on a fund may be actively enforced: Bozon v. Bolland, 4 My. & Cr. 354. The solicitor may obtain a stop order: Hobson v. Shearwood, 8 Beav. 486; or an order for payment of his costs out of any money in Court payable to his client, or applicable to the payment of the costs: Wardell v. Trenouth, 8 P. R. 142; or a charge for his costs on a fund recovered or preserved through his instrumentality: see Rule 689. But a solicitor can have no higher claim against a fund, by virtue of his lien than that of his client: and if the client would not be entitled to payment of his costs out of the fund neither will his solicitor; although it may have been recovered by means of proceedings taken by him: Francis v. Froncis, 5 D. M. & G. 108; Re Harrald, Wilde v. Walford, 51 L. T. 441.

Where several solicitors in succession have acted, the general rule is that the solicitor who conducts the action to a successful termination is entitled to be paid first, and so, in inverse order, up to the solicitor first employed: Ford v. Mason, 15 P. R. 392; Re Knight, Knight v. Gardiner, 1892. 2 Ch. 368; 66 L. T. 646; see also Clark v. Eccles, 3 Chy. Ch. 324; but the first solicitor may be entitled to be paid first out of a fund created by his exertions, e.g., by his having obtained an order for its payment into Court before his discharge: Ford v. Mason, supra.

Client cannot defeat lien.

The client cannot assign a fund in Court so as to defeat his solicitor's lien, even to a purchaser for value, without express notice: Haymes v. Cooper, 33 L. J. Chy. 488; Yemen v. Johnston, 11 P. R. 231. Neither can the client release the adverse party from the payment of costs ordered to be paid, so as to defeat his solicitor's lien: Ex parte Bryant, 1 Mad. 49. But the lien may be defeated by a bond fide compromise by the parties to the action: The Hope, 8 P. D. 144; 49 L. T. 158; Bellamy v. Connolly, 15 P. R. 87; Brunsdon v. Allard, 1859. 2 El. & El. 19; Walker v. Gurney, supra, p. 910; but a collusive compromise will not have that effect: Beames Costs, 312, 313; Langle v. Fetterly, 5 U. C. Q. B. 628; Griggs v. Meyers, 6 U. C. Q. B. 532; Connors v. Squires, 2 P. R. 149; and see Plant v. Stone, 9 U. C. Q. B. 458; Ex parte Morrison, L. R. 4 Q. B. 153; Ex parte Games, 3 H. & C. 294; Brown v. Conant, 2 P. R. 208; Smith v. Thompson, 5 P. R. 110; Morgan v. Holland, 7 P. R. 74; Barrett v. Barrett, 42 Ch. D. 190; 18 C. L. J. 56; Hall v. Griffith, 5 Ont. 478; Friedrich v. Friedrich, 10 P. R. 308. 546; Ross v. Buxton, 60 L. T. 630; Re Margetson & Jones, 1897, 2 Ch. 314; 76 L. T. 805. Rule 389.

But collusion must be shewn, or the act complained of must have been done after notice from the solicitor complaining that his costs are unpaid, and that he looks to the proceeds of the action for payment: Sandidge v. Ireland, 14 P. R. 29; see Re Elliott v. McCuaig, 27 C. L. J. 26; De Santis v. Can. Pac. Ry., 14 O. L. R. 108.

Where a compromise is effected for the purpose of depriving a plaintiff's solicitor of his costs, he may be authorized to carry on the action for the purpose of realizing them out of the defendant: Dunthorne v. Bunbury, 24 L. R. Ir. 6; but unless collusion to deprive the solicitor of his costs is clearly shewn, the defendant will not be ordered to pay the plaintiff's solicitor's costs: Bellamy v. Connolly, 15 P. R. 87. But where, in a suit for foreclosure, the plaintiff and defendant compromised the suit, the plaintiff paying the defendant $200 in consideration of his releasing his equity of redemption, the defendant's solicitor was held to have no lien on the $200; Brownscomb v. Tully, Re Fairbairn, 3 Chy. Ch. 71.

An agent of a solicitor has a lien on a fund recovered: Re Ryan, 11 P. R. 127, and payment by the client to the agent in order to obtain his papers, is a good payment as against the principal solicitor: Re Cross, 4 Chy. Ch. 41; but the lien of the agent is no greater than that the principal solicitor, and if the latter has no claim upon the fund as against his client, the agent may be compelled to pay it over upon a summary application on behalf of the client: Re Edwards, 45 L. T. 578. Where the fund was in Court an order was made for payment to the agent of the amount of his lien thereout: Re Ryan, 11 P. R. 127.

Where money is standing to the separate account of a party to a cause, he may apply for payment out by a new solicitor, without an order changing the solicitor: Waddilove v. Taylor, 17 L. J. Chy. 384. But where the new solicitor delivered the cheque to the client before the lien of the former solicitor was satisfied, he was ordered to pay him the amount of his lien: McPhatter v. Blue, 15 C. L. J. 162.

A plaintiff's solicitor has no lien for his costs on money paid by plaintiff into Court as security for costs, as against the execution creditor of the plaintiff who has obtained a stop order: Gibson v. Le Temps, 10 O. L. R. 434.

Effect of Lien on Right of Set-off between Parties.—Under Rule 606, infra, set-off of damages or costs between the parties is not to be allowed to the prejudice of the solicitor's lien for costs in the particular action in which the set-off is sought; but costs of interlocutory proceedings in the same action may be set-off: see Rule Effect of lien on right of set-off.

Rule 389.

665 and notes. But that Rule is held to apply only to the set-off of damages and costs in separate actions: see notes to Rule 666; where that is sought, the set-off is not to be allowed to the prejudice of the solicitor's lien: Webb v. McArthur, 4 Chy. Ch. 63; Edwards v. Hope, 14 Q. B. D. 922; 53 L. T. 69; Cuthcbert v. Commercial Travellers Assoc., 7 P. R. 255; and see Ross v. McLay, 7 P. R. 97; Wardell v. Trenouth, 8 P. R. 142; Barker v. Hemming, 5 Q. B. D. 509; Re Harrald, Wilde v. Walford, 48 L. T. 352; 51 L. T. 441; but see Wilson v. Switzer, 1 Chy. Ch. 75, 160. But a set-off of damages and costs payable in the same action, will ordinarily be allowed without regard to the solicitor's lien: Pringle v. Gloag, 10 Ch. D. 676; 40 L. T. 512; Cameron v. Campbell, 12 U. C. Q. B. 159; Young v. Hobson, 8 P. R. 253; Brigham v. Smith, 17 Gr. 512; and the set-off of a claim and counter-claim arising out of the same transactions cannot be defeated by the claim of a solicitor to a lien: Brown v. Nelson, 11 P. R. 121 (per Osler, J.A.); Westacott v. Bevan, 1891, 1 Q. B. 774; 65 L. T. 253; but see Flett v. Way, 14 P. R. 312 (where the plaintiff being awarded costs against one defendant, and being ordered to pay the costs of other defendants, all the defendants being represented by the same solicitor, a set-off to the prejudice of the lien of the plaintiff's solicitor, was refused), and Canadian Pacific Ry. v. Grant, 11 P. R. 208 (where the claim, and counter-claim, were regarded as separate actions).

Where a special lien was given by one of the parties to his solicitor, the right of set-off, to the extent of the special lien thus created, was held to be defeated: Ross v. McLay, 7 P. R. 97.

Lien on estate recovered.

Lien on Estate Recovered.—Until the passing of Rule 689, a solicitor in Ontario could not become entitled to any lien on an estate recovered through his instrumentality: Shaw v. Neale, 6 H. L. C. 581; Tremeear v. Lawrence, 20 Ont. 137; but see Morgan v. Holland, 7 P. R. 74. Since Rule 689, however, a charge may be declared and enforced: see notes to that Rule.

Discharge of solicitor by client.

Effect of Discharge of Solicitor on his Lien.—Where the solicitor is changed by the client, the original solicitor is still entitled to a lien on any fund afterwards recovered in the cause, and is entitled to be paid his costs, after the costs of the solicitor by whom the suit is concluded: see Clark v. Eccles and other cases, supra, p. 910.

There is an important difference in the right of lien, of a solicitor in an action who discharges himself, and one who is discharged by his client.

Discharge by client.

Where the solicitor is discharged by the client he cannot generally be ordered to deliver up the papers, until his lien has been satisfied: Re Faithful, L. R. 5 Eq. 325; Griffiths v. Griffiths, 2 Hare, 587; Bozen v. Bolland, 4 My. & Cr. 354, unless it appears that there is strong ground for believing that there is nothing due the solicitor: Re Bevan & Whitting, 33 Beav. 439. Nor is the solicitor, in such a case, bound even to produce the papers for the purpose of the cause, until his bill is paid: Lord v. Wormleighton, Jac. 580; Redfearn v. Sowerby, 1 Sw. 84; Robins v. Goldingham, L. R. 13 Eq. 440; but see Simmonds v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., L. R. 3 Chy. 797; Clifford v. Turrill, 2 D. & S. 1; Webster v. Le Hunt, 9 W. R. 804; Re Leah, 6 Jur. N. S. 387; nor permit his client to inspect, or take copies of the documents: Re Biggs, 102 L. T. Jour. 364, but see Lockett v. Carey, 10 Jur. N. S. 144. But where the discharged solicitor neglects to deliver his bill of costs within the proper time, he may be ordered to deliver up the papers subject to his lien thereon: Cooper v. Hewson, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 515; and, where the papers are urgently needed, he may be ordered to deliver them up, on the amount claimed for costs being paid into Court, together with a sum to meet the costs of taxation: Re Galland, 31 Ch. D. 296; 53 L. T. 921; Re South Essex Investment Co., 46 L. T. 280. Rule 389.

Where the action is one for administration, in which the rights of third parties are concerned, the solicitor, though discharged by his client, may be compelled to deliver up the papers necessary for the prosecution of the action on the usual terms: Re Boughton, Boughton v. Boughton, 48 L. T. 413; Belaney v. Ffrench, L. R. 8 Chy. 918; 29 L. T. 706; and it is immaterial that the papers came to the hands of the solicitor before the action was commenced: Re Hawkes, 1898, 2 Ch. 1; 78 L. T. 336; and so also in a partition action: Boden v. Hensby, 1892, 1 Ch. 101; 65 L. T. 744 (see Re Hawkes, supra, at p. 11); Pallister v. Medd, 33 C. L. J. 465; and see Re Capital Fire Insurance Assn., 24 Ch. D. 408; 49 L. T. 697; Hutchinson v. Norwood, 54 L. T. 842. But costs incurred by an administrator in administration proceedings are a charge upon the estate, and upon his death, the administrator de bonis non takes the estate subject to the charge, and cannot compel the delivery up of papers in the hands of the solicitor until his costs are paid: Re Watson, 50 L. T. 205. Administration action.

A lien on books and papers may continue in respect of a bill barred by the Statute of Limitations: see Curwen v. Milburn, 42 Ch. D. 424; 62 L. T. 278; Re Carter, Carter v. Carter, 53 L. T. 630; and under an order for taxation containing a submission on the part of the client to pay what is found due on taxation, payment of statute-barred costs will be enforced: Re Margetts, 1896, 2 Ch. 263; see also Re Brockman, 1909, 2 Ch. 170; 100 L. T. 821.

A solicitor is bound to deliver up documents on which he has a lien, on tender of the amount of his claim, though not in settlement: Re Hanbury, 75 L. T. 449.

When a solicitor is retained by the acting partner of a firm, as solicitor for the firm in an action, the retirement of a dormant partner from the firm, without notice to the solicitor, pending the action, will not relieve the retiring partner from liability to the solicitor for his costs subsequently incurred: Court v. Berlin, 1897, 2 Q. B. 396; 77 L. T. 293.

Effect on Lien, of Solicitor Discharging Himself.—Where the solicitor discharges himself, he is bound to deliver up the papers in the action to the new solicitor, upon the latter undertaking to hold them subject to his lien for what, if anything, shall be found due on taxation of his bill; and to proceed with the cause with due diligence, and to re-deliver the papers within ten days after he shall cease to have occasion for them, if the lien be not sooner satisfied: Colgrave v. Manley, T. & R. 400; Heslop v. Metcalf, 3 My. & Cr. 183; Wilson v. Emmet, 19 Beav. 233; Cane v. Martin, 2 Beav. 584; Robins v. Goldingham, L. R. 13 Eq. 440; Ley v. Brown, 1 Chy. Ch. 179; Merrewether v. Mellish, 13 Ves. 161; Mayne v. Hawkey, 3 Sw. 93; Webster v. Le Hunt, 9 W. R. 804; Commerell v. Poynton, 1 Sw. 1. The solicitor cannot, in such a case, require the client to undertake to proceed to a taxation of his bills: Moir v. Mudie, 1 S. & S. 282. And Solicitor discharging himself.

Rules 390-393.

If he refuses to deliver up the papers to the new solicitor, on his undertaking as above mentioned, he may be ordered to pay the costs of an application to compel him to do so: Robins v. Goldingham, supra. A solicitor who declines to proceed with an action until his costs are paid, in effect discharges himself: Ib., and see Re Lewis, 72 L. T. Jour. 387; but see Underwood v. Lewis, and In re Hall, supra, p. 906. And so the dissolution of the firm of solicitors engaged by the client, or the arrest, or detention in custody, or bankruptcy, of the solicitor, works a discharge of the client by the solicitor: vide supra, p. 906. But where the client dies, or his interest is transferred by assignment or otherwise, and an order is made to continue the proceedings in the name of some new party who names a new solicitor, in such cases the solicitor is deemed to be discharged by the client: see Re Moss, L. R. 2 Eq. 345.

Party who has acted in person may appoint solicitor.

390. A party suing or defending in person and desiring to be represented by a solicitor may file and serve a notice to that effect. C.R. 336. Amended.

See note to Rule 389.

Notice of acting in person.

391. A party represented by a solicitor and desiring to sue or defend in person may file and serve a notice to that effect. New.

See note to Rule 389.

Death of solicitor.

392. When the solicitor on the record dies and no notice changing the solicitor has been filed and served, service may be effected by mailing the document to be served to the party at his address given in the writ or appearance (as the case may be) by registered letter, indorsed with a memorandum: "This document is served by mail as your solicitor is dead and no new solicitor has been appointed in his place." New.

See note to Rule 389.

The procedure authorized by this Rule must be strictly followed, or the mode of service thereby authorized may not be effective.—The document to be served is to be indorsed with the memorandum mentioned in the Rule, not the letter enclosing it.

(xv) Compounding Penal Actions.

Leave to compound penal actions.

393. Leave to compound a penal action may be given, but in cases where part of the penalty goes to the Crown notice shall first be given to the Attorney-General for Canada or the Attorney-General for Ontario as the case may be. C.R. 436. Amended.

By 18 Eliz., c. 5, s. 3 (now Jud. Act, sec. 145, supra), no penal action by a common informer can be compromised without the leave of the Court.

Where the Crown is concerned, the consent of the Attorney-General must be procured: Howard v. Sowerby, 1 Taunt. 103. If the Crown ae represented by the Dominion Government ie entitled, the Attorney-General of Canada must be notified, and if the Crown as represented by the Provincial Government is entitled, then the Provincial Attorney-General must be notified. Leave is not necessary in actions by the party aggrieved: Kirkham v. Wheeley, 1 Salk. 30. It is entirely in the discretion of the Court to grant it, or not: Maughan v. Wolker, 5 T. R. 98; Sheldon v. Mumford, 5 Taunt. 268. Where the sum offered is so small as to indicate collusion, leave will be refused: Wood v. Cassin, 2 W. Bl. 1157. Leave will not be granted until after the statement of defence: Rex v. Collier, 2 Dowl. 481; and see Rex v. Crisp, 1 B. & Al. 282. Rule 394. Leave, when granted.

Leave was given to compromise a penal action brought under 32 Hen. 8, c. 8, for buying pretended titles, on paying the Crown's share into Court: May q. t. v. Dettrick, 5 O. S 77.

A promise founded on the compromise of a penal action without the leave of the Court is void: Hort v. Meyers, 7 U. C. Q. B. 416; and see Bell v. Riddell, 10 Ont. App. 544.

An action for a penalty imposed by a statute cannot be brought by a common informer, unless the statute imposing the penalty so provides, either expressly, or by implication: Bradlaugh v. Clarke, 8 App. Cas. 637; 48 L. T. 681; 52 L. J. Q. B. 505. Where the penalty was claimed under the wrong statute, an amendment was refused: Burnett v. Samuel, 109 L. T. 630; 29 T. L. R. 583; Forbes v. Samuel, 1913, 3 K. B. 706; 109 L. T. 599. Where action by informer will lie.

Where the statute does not authorize an action by a common informer, the penalty can only be recovered in a proceeding at the suit of the Crown: Bradlaugh v. Clarke, supra; but see Shrigley v. Taylor, 4 Ont. 396.

An action to recover a penalty cannot be brought by an infant by his next friend; it must be brought by the informer in person, or by his solicitor: Garrett v. Roberts, 10 Ont. App. 650

The Court refused to set aside a judgment of non pros. regularly signed, in a penal action: McClenigan v. McLeod, 8 U. C. L. J. 233; 3 P. R. 13.

The pendency of a prior action for the same penalty is, if bonâ fide, a bar to a subsequent action: Forbes v. Samuel, supra.

The Court of a Judge, and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, have now power to remit penalties imposed by any Act of the Province of Ontario, either wholly, or in part: see The Fines and Forfeitures Act (R. S. O. c. 99), ss. 6, 7. They have, however, no power to remit costs incurred up to the time of the remission: Ib., s. 7. Remission of penalties.

And by The Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146), s. 1084. The Governor-General in Council may also remit, penalties, fines or forfeitures imposed by Dominion Statutes.

394. The order for compounding shall not be made unless the defendant undertakes to pay the sum for which the Court has given him leave to compound such action. C.R. 437. Order for compounding.

Rules 395, 396.

The payment of such sum might formarly be enforced by attachment: Regina v. Clifton, 5 T. R. 257; hut see now The Fraudulent Debtors Arrest Act (R. S. O. c. 83) s. 13.

King's proportion of composition.

395. Where leave is given to compound the proportion of the Crown shall, unless otherwise ordcred, be paid into Court for the use of His Majesty. C.R. 438.

See Brown v. Boiley, 4 Burr. 1929. Presumahiy the money should he paid through the Accountant'a office in the same manner as other moneys are paid into Court: aee Rulcs 727, et seq. By the order authorizing the action to be compounded, or hy some subsequent order, proviaion should he made for payment out of the money to the Provincial Tressurer, or other puhiic officer entitled to receive the same

(xvi) Transmission of Papers.

Local officers to transmit papers to Toronto on præcipe.

396.—(1) Every local officer shall upon præcipe and payment of the necessary postage or express charges for transmission and return, transmit to the Central Office, Toronto, all papers and documents required for use in Toronto. C.R. 337.

Transmission of documents from one officer to another.

(2) Where documents filed with an officer of the Court, are required by or for use before any other officer, the officer with whom the documents are filed shall upon the production of a request signed by the officer requiring them, transmit them upon payment of the postage or express charges required for their transmission and return. C.R. 338.

The following are clauses of Regulations of the Judges, promulgated on 17th Dec., 1904:—

6. When the Judge at a trial reserves judgment in any case, elsewhere than at Toronto, the Clerk of the Court shall forthwith forward the Record and Exhibits to the Central Office.

7. All Local Officers of the Court when aending papers or Exhibits to the Central Office ahall indorse on the wrapper enclosing such papers or Exhihits, the short style of cause, the title of the Officer sending them, and the purpose for which they are sent.—e.g., "Jones v. Smith. From Local Registrar at Brantford, for Appeal to Divisional Court," or "For Hon. Mr. Juatice —— "—or as may be.

Where the papers are transmitted for the purposes of an appeal to a Judge of the High Court Division it should be so stated.

Production of documents in other causes may be ordered.

This Rule is general in its terms, and appears to apply to all documents, whether filed with an officer in the action, in which their production is required, or in some other action. But there seems to be an obvioua objection to strangers to an action being permitted, on præcipe, to require the transmission of papers therein to another office. Serious inconvenience might he occasioned thereby.

Rules 397, 398.

Proof required that production of originals is necessary.

Formerly, where the documents in some other cause were required to be produced, an order was considered necessary. Where a party in his affidavit on production referred to documents produced by him, and in the custody of a Deputy Registrar in another suit, an order was made ex parte for their production: Gainer v. Doyle, 2 Chy. Ch. 279; but see Hamelyn v. White, 6 P. R. 143. On a motion to produce documents in another cause at the trial, it was necessary to show that the original documenta were required, and that the production of office copies would not be sufficient: Chadwick v. Thompson, 2 Chy. Ch. 389; Jarvis v. White, 8 Ves. 313; Attorney-General v. Ray, 6 Beav. 335; Anon., 13 Beav. 420; and see Gaynor v. Salt, 24 U. C. Q. B. 180; and, ordinarily, an application for the order was required to be on notice: Lamb v. Danby, 9 W. R. 765. But under this Rule it is, perhaps, not necessary in any case to obtain any order.

Where documents filed in an office of the Supreme Court, or County Court, Registrar of Deeds, Surrogate Court, or Clerk of the Peace, are produced in evidence under a subpœna, the original documents are not to be left with the Court, but certified copies, if necessary, are to be put in: The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 48; except where the genuineness of the document produced is in question: Ib.

By regulation of the Court dated 16th February, 1905, directions are given to the officers of the Court that, subject to this Rule, original documents on file, or of record, are not to be taken away from the Court by any officer under a subpœna unless authorized by a Judge's order: see note to Rule 274.

(xvii) Confession of Action or Judgment.

397. No cognovit actionem or warrant of attorney to confess judgment given after these Rules come into force shall be of any validity. The practice with respect to any warrant of attorney or cognovit actionem given before these Rules came into force shall be as laid down in Rules 597 to 602 of 1897. New.

The practice of taking cognovits which used to be common, prior to The Assignments and Preferences Act, has long since ceased, and has practically become obsolete. This Rule abolishes it altogether, except as to cognovits given before the 1st September, 1913. As to the former practice on this subject: see Holmested & Langton's Jud. Act & Rules (3rd ed.), notes to Rules 597-602.

(xviii) Striking Out Jury Notices.

Jury notice, when to be struck out.

398.—(1) When an application is made to a Judge in Chambers for an order striking out a jury notice, and it appears to him that the action is one which ought to be tried without a jury, he shall direct that the issues shall be tried and the damages assessed without a jury, and in case the action has been entered for trial shall direct the action to be transferred to the non-jury list.

Rule 398.

Judge at trial may strike out jury notice.

(2) The refusal of such an order by the Judge in Chambers shall not interfere with the right of the Judge presiding at the trial to try the action without a jury. Nor shall an order made in Chambers striking out a jury notice interfere with the right of the judge presiding at the trial to direct a trial by jury.

(3) The Judge presiding at a jury sittings in Toronto may in his discretion strike out the jury notice and transfer the action for trial to a non-jury sittings, and this power may be exercised notwithstanding that the case is not on the peremptory list for trial before the said Judge. C.R. 1322.

See Jud. Act, s. 56, and notes, supra, p. 215.

R. J. Jud.

CHAPTER XV.

REFERENCES.

Masters are officers of Supreme Court.

The Master in Ordinary, and Local Masters, are all officers of the Supreme Court: Jud. Act, s. 76, and, as such, actions may be referred to them.

The Judges of the County Courts, the Master in Ordinary, the Master in Chambers, the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas, the Registrars, and the Local Masters, are also ex officio Official Referees: Jud. Act, s. 86, supra, p. 274.

Place of reference.

Under the former practice in Chancery the plaintiff was primâ facie entitled to have a reference, when necessary, directed to the Master at the place where the bill was filed: Macora v. Gwynne, 3 Gr. 310; Watson v. Henderson, 2 Chy. Ch. 370; and the defendant might for good cause apply to change the reference: McNob v. McInnis, 4 Chy. Ch. 53; but now in administration actions, it has been held that the reference should be primâ facie to the Master in the county where the deceased resided: Thompson v. Fairbairn, 10 P. R. 523; and see Armstrong v. Armstrong, 18 P. R. 55.

Prima facie plaintiff entitled to have reference where writ issued.

Subject to this exception, the old rule, it is presumed, will still be followed, and a plaintiff will have the right primâ facie to have the reference, if any, directed to the Master in the county where the writ issued. Formerly when it was sought to change the reference on the score of expense, the difference of expense must have been considerable; and if on the ground of convenience, a clearly preponderating convenience in favour of the proposed change must have been established; and the fact that a defendant was a man in extensve business, or a trustee, was not a sufficient ground for changing the reference: McNob v. McInnis, supra; Jackson v. Harriman, 9 C. L. J. 29.

Reference may be changed; on what grounds.

Since The Judicature Act it has been held that the policy of that Act is to decentralize business, and to send local matters to the Local Masters, and the fact that a partnership business had been carried on in the county to which it was proposed to change the reference to take the partnership accounts, and that a delay of two months would be incurred by retaining the reference at the place directed by the judgment, was held sufficient ground to warrant the change: Aitken v. Wilson, 9 P. R. 75.

When Master has been professionally concerned.

Where the Master has been professionally concerned for any of the litigants, in reference to the same or any other matter, that is a sufficient ground for changing the reference: Bigelow v. Bigelow, 6 P. R. 124; Boyd v. Simpson, before Spragge, C., 19th June, 1878. (See Reg. Lib.)

But where the reference was directed to a Master, who had, prior to the appointment, been counsel for one of the litigants, neither party objecting, and the Master certifying that he acted in the reference at the pressing request of both parties, the Court held that the party against whom the Master reported could not raise that objection on appeal from the report, having taken the chance of the Master's finding in his favour: Cotter v. Cotter, 21 Gr. 159.

Rules 399, 400.

Where necessary to add Master as a party.

Where, in the course of a suit, it became necessary to add as a party the Master to whom the cause was referred, the reference was changed on an ex parte application by the plaintiff: Weldon v. Templeton, 1 Chy. Ch. 360. Usually, however, any application to change the reference should be on notice: McConnell v. McConnell, 3 Chy. Ch. 122.

Application to be made on notice.

The following Rules, 402-490, regulate the practice in the Master's offices, and apply to all actions which are referred to a Master, or to a Referee.

(i) Referees.

399. In the event of the Referee declining to act, or dying before he has made his report, a Judge may appoint a new Reference. C.R. 648. Amended.

This clause enables only a Judge of the High Court to appoint a new Referee. The Master in Chambers has therefore no jurisdiction in the matter: see Rule 208 (13).

Referees are either "Official Referees," or "Special Referees."

Official Referees are officers appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council: Jud. Act, s. 76 (1), (o); and certain officers of the Court who under s. 86 (1) are declared to be Official Referees. Special Referees are referees appointed by the consent of the parties: see Jud. Act, s. 64 (1).

The Rule applies to both classes of Referees, but in the case of the death of a Special Referee, the new Referee to be appointed under this Rule would have to be an Official Referee, unless all parties agreed to the appointment of a Special Referee: see Jud. Act, s. 64 (1), p. 227 supra.

Procedure before Referee.

400. The practice and procedure on a reference to a Referee, shall be the same, as nearly as may be, as the practice and procedure in the Master's office. C.R. 650.

This Rule, in effect, confers on Referees, for the purposes of references before them, the like jurisdiction as that of the Masters of the Court; and their jurisdiction is similarly limited. They may take accounts, and inquire as to matters referred to them, and make a report thereon, but they have no power to order judgment to be entered: see Jud. Act, s. 67.

As to the matters which may be referred to Referees and the procedure thereon: see Jud. Act, ss. 64 and 65 and notes, supra, pp. 225-230.

In Englsnd it has been held that an Official Referee is not bound on a reference to him to take accounts, to pursue the strict method followed on a reference to a Chief Clerk, who occupied there a position similar to that of the Master in Ordinary, and Local Masters: Re Taylor, Turpin v. Pain, 44 Ch. D. 128. It would appear from this Rule, however, that a reference to an Official Referee is intended to be conducted in the same manner as references to Masters.

As to the procedure before Masters: see Rules 402-490 and notes, infra.

A reference to a Referee whether Official, or Special, is not, unless the parties expressly so agree, a reference to arbitration: Munday v. Norton, 1892, 1 Q. B. 403; a Referee's report is consequently not an award. The Arbitration Act does not apply thereto, except where the reference to the Referee is expressly made as an arbitrator. Rules 401, 402.

401. The Court may require explanations or reasons from a Master or Referee, and may remit the cause or matter, or any part thereof, for further consideration, to the same or any other Master or Referee. C.R. 652. Amended. Court may remit case

See Eng. (1883) R. 476.

Under this Rule the Court may require of the Referee explanations or reasons, or send the matter back for re-trial, or reconsideration, and to another Referee if it thinks fit; or upon an appeal from the report may itself decide the question on the same evidence, or with additional evidence.

This Rule does not apply to the case of an arbitration ordered by the Court upon consent, where the arbitrator is selected and agreed upon by the parties: Kennedy v. Beal, 29 Ont. 599.

(ii) Proceedings on References.

402. Every order of reference shall be brought into the Master's office within ten days after it is issued, by the party having the carriage of the same, and in default any other party having an interest in the reference may assume the carriage of the order. C.R. 657. Order to be carried into M.O. within 10 days.

Usually the original, or a copy, of the judgment or order of reference, is required to be left with the Master.

Under these Rules, no time appears to be prescribed within which an order, or judgment, directing a reference, is to be drawn up and entered.

According to the former practice, it would appear that the party having the conduct of an order, or a judgment, directing a reference, was entitled to at least 21 days from the time the order, or judgment, was pronounced, or finally disposed of, by the Court, within which to issue the order, or judgment, and carry it into the Master's office; but whether he is entitled to the same time, or any longer or shorter period, under the present practice is not clear, and the Rules seem to furnish no analogy.

The rule which regulates the question, as to who shall have the carriage of an order, or judgment, directing a reference to a Master, is a technical one, and in the majority of cases, the solicitors alone are interested. The solicitor of the party having the conduct of the judgment is entitled to prosecute all those proceedings which relate to the general inquiries, and the other parties only prosecute those which relate exclusively to themselves, or such as it would be inconsistent for the party having the carriage of the order or judgment to do. Thus, if the plaintiff has the conduct, his solicitor bespeaks and Conduct of reference, who entitled to.

Rule 403.

Duty of solicitor having conduct.

procures to be inserted all advertisements, whether for creditors, or for next of kin, or for the sale of property; he prepares the abstract and answers the requisitions; and if the purchaser requires a reference as to title, he attends upon it. He furnishes, where directed, for the purpose of answering the general inquiries, and taking the general account, copies, abstracts, or extracts of, or from accounts, deeds or other documents, and pedigrees, etc., relating to proceedings of a general character, and not belonging to particular parties to prosecute. Smith's Pr., 7th ed., 729. See also notes to Rule 86.

May be changed for delay

Where the party having the carriage of a judgment or order directing a reference, is guilty of delay in carrying it into the Master's office within the meaning of this Rule, any other party to the action, or any party having an interest in the reference, may assume the carriage of the judgment, or order, which, when necessary, would include the right to draw up the minutes, and procure them to be settled, and to have the order or judgment passed and entered. No order seems necessary to entitle him to do this; but see Re Shaw, 14 Gr. 524, where a special application was made for the conduct of the reference, after the order issued, in pursuance of leave reserved. Where the judgment, or order, has been drawn up and entered, but has not been carried into the Master's office within the prescribed time, an office-copy of the judgment, or order, may be obtained and carried into the Master's office by any other party interested. Persons who are not parties to the action, but who are interested in the reference, e.g., creditors, next of kin, heirs, etc., are entitled under this Rule to assume the carriage of the order, or judgment, where the prescribed time has elapsed: see Re Shaw, 14 Gr. 524.

Or proceedings stayed.

When a plaintiff neglects for twenty years to prosecute a judgment directing a reference to take accounts in a redemption action, he may be deemed to have lost his right to prosecute the reference, and his proceedings may be stayed: see Re Leslie, 23 Ont. 143.

Party interested may assume carriage, when.

Where a judgment, or order, has been carried into the Master's office, in the event of delay arising on the part of the party having the carriage of it, the Master may transfer the conduct of the reference to any other person interested: see Rule 407.

Notice to parties in Master's office.

403. Unless otherwise directed by the Master, notice of the first proceeding before him shall be given to every party affected by or interested in the inquiry though any such party may not have appeared or pleaded in the action. C.R. 658.

This gives the force of a Rule to what had been previously the practice in the Master's office. The Rule constitutes an exception to Rule 35.

Under the present practice, provision is made for hearing the action pro confesso for default of appearance or defence: see Rules 35, 354; and judgment may be awarded against a defendant on default of appearance, or on default of defence, and the future proceedings may be carried on against him ex parte, "except where otherwise provided by these Rules, or where otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge." One of the cases "otherwise provided" is specified in this Rule. A defendant, if interested in, or affected by the inquiry, is, therefore, under this Rule, entitled to notice of proceedings upon a reference, unless the Master sees fit to dispense with it.

service on a defendant who has not appeared may, unless the Court otherwise directs, be effected by posting up a copy of the document required to be served "in the office where the proceedings are being carried on": Rule 200; but that Rule has been held not to apply to proceedings after judgment: see notes to that Rule. Where a defendant who has not appeared, appears to have some substantial interest in the proceedings on the reference, the Master would probably direct personal service. Rule 404.

Where service is effected by posting a copy, it would seem that it should be posted in the office in which the proceedings are being carried on, i.e., the Master's office: see Rule 200, but see Rule 762.

Where a defendant who has made no defence, has no interest in, and is not affected by, the reference, service on him may properly be dispensed with.

404. Where in proceedings before the Master, it appears to him that a person not already a party ought to be made a party, and ought to be at liberty to attend the proceedings before him, he may direct an office copy of the order, indorsed with a notice (Form 41), to be served upon such person, who thereupon shall be treated and named as a party to the action and shall be bound as if he had been originally made a party. C.R. 659 and 660. Master may add parties in his office.

An office copy of a judgment or order is a copy certified by the officer in whose office it is entered. For the form of the indorsement to be made thereon: see No. 41; H. & L. Forms, No. 967.

The Rule speaks only of an office copy of the "order" but the Form 41 indicates that where the reference is under a judgment the office copy of the judgment is to be served.

It is most important that all proper parties should be added. Persons interested, who are not added, or served with the judgment under Rule 87, are not bound by the proceedings, and may intervene, and compel the refunding of moneys distributed in their absence to the prejudice of their rights: see Uffner v. Lewis, 27 A. R. 242; 3 O. L. R. 208; with interest: S. C. 5 O. L. R. 684.

The Master has power to dispense with the service of the judgment on parties required to be served therewith under Rules 79-87; but he would seem to have no power to dispense with service on parties who ought to be added as parties under the provisions of this Rule. Master may dispense with service of judgment.

As to substituted service of an office copy of the judgment, or order, and as to dispensing with service: see Re Hynes, Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217.

Persons served with a copy of a judgment under Rules 79-87, are not thereby made parties to the action: see notes to Rule 87, p. 465; but persons required to be served under this Rule are made parties to the action.

Where persons are required to be added as parties, the Master usually issues an order making them parties, and directing them to Adding parties.

Rule 404.

he served with the judgment, or order, of reference, indorsed as required by this Rule.

Persons acquiring interests pendente lite need not be added.

Persons who acquire equitable interests in the subject matter of litigation pendente lite need not be added as parties, but are nevertheless bound, and concluded, by the proceedings; thus, a person recovering a judgment, and execution, against a mortgagor: Wallbridge v. Martin, 2 Chy. Ch. 275; or obtaining a mortgage, or other incumbrance from him: Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 407; pending an action for foreclosure, or sale, by a prior mortgagee, need not be made a party. But where a person acquires the legal estate pendente lite it may sometimes be necessary to make him a party for the purpose of obtaining a conveyance. A person, who after the institution of a foreclosure action acquired an interest, was on his own application added as a party in Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 600; 35 S. C. R. 181; Re Parbola, Blackburn v. Parbola, infra. A purchaser pendente lite may be added as a defendant in the Master's office under this Rule: Lindsay v. Bank of Montreal, 13 Gr. 66; but see Abell v. Parr, 9 P. R. 564. But where, after registration of a certificate of lis pendens, a statement of claim was amended by claiming further and other relief than that originally sought, it was held that persons acquiring interests before such amendment, though after the registration of the lis, were not bound by notice of such further relief: Price v. Price, 35 Ch. D. 297; but see 7 C. L. T. 205, and Bennett on Lis pendens, c. 1. The doctrine of lis pendens does not affect third persons acquiring title pendente lite under tax sales: Ib., c. 5, a. 80; nor bonâ fide assignees of negotiable paper: Ib., ss. 86, 87; nor persons acquiring title under Acts authorizing expropriation: Ib., s. 89; nor persons claiming under prior unregistered deeds: Clergue v. McKay, 6 O. L. R. 61; 8 O. L. R. 84; and it has no application to personal property other than chattel interests in land: Wigrom v. Buckley, 1894, 3 Ch. 483; 71 L. T. 287; nor does the doctrine affect persons acquiring interests from parties to the action, but without actual notice of the action, where no certificate of lis pendens has been registered: Farah v. Glen Lake Mining Co., 17 O. L. R. 1; and see Rule 469 and notes.

Except assignee of legal estate.

Effect of lis pendens.

A person acquiring an interest in mortgaged property pending an action for foreclosure, may apply to be added as a defendant, but, if so added, he must take things as he finds them, and is not entitled to any extension of time for redemption, except on such grounds as the original defendant might be entitled to ask indulgence, and he must in any event pay the costs of the application to be added: Re Parbola, Blackburn v. Parbola, 1909, 2 Ch. 437; 101 L. T. 382.

A purchaser from the plaintiff in a foreclosure action, in anticipation of a final order being granted, acquires no greater rights than his vendor, and where the final order was erroneously granted the fact of the sale was held to furnish no obstacle to its being set aside on the application of the mortgagor: Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 54; and such a sale pendente lite was held not to be supportable at a sale under the power of sale in the mortgage: Ib.

Persons with paramount title not to be added in M. O.

Persons having a paramount title to the plaintiff, cannot be made parties in the Master's office, if they object: Montgomery v. Shortis, 3 Chy. Ch. 69. Thus, in a suit by an execution creditor, to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of the equity of redemption by the execution debtor, an order adding a prior mortgagee for the purpose of redeeming him, was discharged. When that is required he should be made an original party to the action: Crowford v. Meldrum, 19 Gr. 165. Rule 405.

But where a decree has been made to take partnership accounts, in the absence of one of the partners alleged to be insolvent, and out of the jurisdiction, it was held that he was properly made a party in the Master's office on his returning to the jurisdiction pending the reference: Peterson v. Holland, 7 Gr. 563; and as to adding parties interested in the equity of redemption: see Rule 490. Absentee when action commenced, may be added in M. O. on his return.

The action is only deemed to be commenced as against parties added in the Master's office from the date of the order adding them: Juson v. Gardiner, 11 Gr. 23; and see Dumble v. Lorush, 27 Gr. 187; Sterling v. Campbell, 1 Chy. Ch. 147. Where it is made to appear to the Master that all liability on the part of a party added, is barred by the Statute of Limitations, he may discharge the order adding him as a party: Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 161. Action, commencement of, as against parties added.

No direct relief can be had against parties added in the Master's office, and they cannot be required to account: Hooper v. Horrison, 28 Gr. 22; Rolph v. Upper Canada Building Society, 11 Gr. 275, 278; Walker v. Seligmann, L. R. 12 Eq. 152; Re Parkes, Simpson v. Porkes, 66 L. T. 151. And it would seem they cannot themselves get any relief against co-defendants beyond what is claimed by the plaintiff: see Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Chy. 513; they are simply bound by, and entitled to the benefit of, the proceedings.

A party filling two capacities, if made a party to a suit distinctly in one capacity only, may not be bound as to his rights in the other capacity: e.g., a person added as a defendant in his character of a judgment creditor, was held not to be bound in his character of a mortgagee: Crooks v. Watkins, 8 Gr. 340; but see Beordsley v. Beordsley, 1899, 1 Q. B. 746; 80 L. T. 51. Party filling two capacities, how far bound.

405. A person so served may apply to the Court at any time within ten days from the date of such service, to discharge, add to, vary, or set aside the order of reference or the order adding him as a party. C.R. 661. Parties added in M. O. may move against judgment.

The application is required to be brought on to be heard within the ten days; but the application may, in the discretion of the Court, be entertained after that time: see Stewart v. Hunter, 2 Chy. Ch. 265. Application, when to be heard.

Both vacations are excluded from the ten days: Rule 179 (d).

Where a party is added who claims by title paramount to the plaintiff, he should move to discharge the order: Montgomery v. Shortis, 3 Chy. Ch. 69; Crawford v. Meldrum, 19 Gr. 165; McVeon v. Tiffin, 13 Ont. App. 1. But an incumbrancer claiming priority to the plaintiff, but whom the Master finds to be subsequent, may also appeal from the report on the question of priority: McDonold v. Rodger, 9 Gr. 75. Party added claiming priority to plaintiff.

The Master may himself discharge the order adding a party who subsequently appears to be an unnecessary party: Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 161. Master may discharge order.

A party improperly added as a party in the Master's office is not limited to the time mentioned in this Rule within which to object that he should not have been made a party; he may take the objection on an appeal from the report, or upon the hearing on further directions, if any, if sufficient appears on the Master's report to enable the Court to deal with tha question: Cowan v. Allen, 26 S. C. R. 292; McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295.

Rules 406, 407.

Where, instead of a motion to set aside the order, an appeal is sought to ha hrought therefrom, then ths procedure would seem to be governed hy Rules 502-504.

Master may classify and appoint solicitors to represent different classes.

406. Where, at any time during the reference, it appears to the Master that the interests of the parties can be classified, he may require the parties constituting each or any class to be represented by the same solicitor: and where the parties constituting such class cannot agree upon the solicitor to represent them, the Master may nominate him. C.R. 662.

Solicitor appointed by Master to represent a class binds all of the class.

Where the Master appoints a solicitor to set for a class, all the individuals composing that ciass are hound hy ths acts of ths solicitor so appointed, and cannot repudiate them, unless they appoint a separate solicitor: Re McConnell, 3 Chy. Ch. 423.

A solicitor so appointed ia entitled to act for tha class, not only in the Master's office, hut also in proceedings arising out of, or connected with, the proceedings in the Master's office: Ib. But where s solicitor was ex parte appointed to represent creditors it was held that he could not recover his costs against creditors who had not proved their claims, and who had no notice of his appointment: Monteith v. Merchants Bank, 12 P. R. 288; 23 C. L. J. 415.

As to the appointment of a solicitor to rapresent creditors generally: see Re Drury Nickel Co., 16 P. R. 525; where orders of thst kind wera not favourably regarded.

Solicitor not to be appointed to represent a class already represented.

The Master should not appoint a separate soiicitor for parties who are sufficientiy rapresented hy the plaintiff; and where primâ facie the plaintiff represents the class (see Rules 79-85), if the Master appoints a separate solicitor ha should stata the rsason for so doing in his report: Gorhnm v. Gorham, 17 Gr. 386.

After the appointment of a solicitor to act for a class, the separate costs of any member of that class subsequently incnrred will not ordinarily he allowed against the estate under administration: Re Etna Insurance Compony, 17 Gr. 160.

Any member of a cinss refusing to he represented by the solicitor nominated hy the Master, and insisting on being represented by a different solicitor: sea Rule 657.

Master may change conduct of reference.

407. Where a party prosecuting a reference, does not proceed with due diligence, the Master may, upon the application of any other person interested, commit to him the prosecution of the reference. C.R. 663.

The Master, in his discretion, may entertain an application to change the conduct of the reference ex parte: Stephenson v. Nicolls, 14 Gr. 144; hut ordinarily the application should he made on notice: 1 Sm. Pr., 2nd ed., 312; and see Sims v. Ridge, 3 Mer, 458; Edwards v. Acland, 5 Mnd. 31; and Rule 213.

An appeal lies from the order of the Master changing the conduct of the reference: Stephenson v. Nicolls, 14 Gr. at pp. 147, 149, and in Wyatt v. Sodler, 5 Sim. 450, the Court on a substantive motion changed the conduct of the reference, after the Master had refused an application for that purpose. But the application must in the first instance be made to the Master: Miller v. McNaughton, 1 Chy. Ch. 206. Rules 408, 409. Master's order subject to appeal.

Where there has been great delay in prosecuting a judgment in a creditor's suit, a creditor may apply to have the conduct of the cause, though it has become defective by the death of the defendant: Cook v. Bolton, 5 Russ. 282; and see Re Shaw, 14 Gr. 524; Patterson v. Scott, 4 Gr. 145. Creditor may apply.

A party to whom the conduct of the reference is committed is entitled to inspect and take copies of briefs and documents in the possession of the party, or his solicitor, from whom the carriage of the reference has been taken: Bennett v. Baxter, 10 Sim. 417; and see Heslop v. Metcalf, 8 Sim. 622, and notes to Rule 389, supra, p. 913. Party conducting reference entitled to inspect papers.

An order taking the conduct of the reference from the plaintiff, does not preclude him from applying to amend a clerical error in the judgment, or order, under Rule 521: Whitehead v. North, Cr. & Ph. 78. This Rule only enables the Master to transfer the conduct of proceedings in his office. Plaintiff may apply to amend order of reference, though conduct taken fr him.

Where there has been undue delay in prosecuting a reference the Court may stay the proceedings altogether: see Re Leslie, 23 Ont. 143.

408. A reference shall be proceeded with as far as possible de die in diem and when an adjournment is ordered, the Master shall note in his book the reason thereof and shall when practicable fix the time when it is to be resumed so as to avoid the service of a new appointment. C.R. 664. Reference to be proceeded with on day fixed and de die in diem.

The Master may proceed with a reference in vacation, and make his report: Marples v. Rosebrugh, 17 P. R. 104. Master may proceed in vacation.

"It is the bounden duty of the Master to observe these Orders to the letter, wherever it is not absolutely impracticable to follow them literally," per Spragge, C.; Falls v. Powell, 20 Gr., at p. 468.

The proceedings on the reference should be from time to time recorded in the Master's book referred to in this Rule: see Rule 421. All consents or undertakings should be duly entered therein, and signed by the parties to prevent misunderstandings: see Rule 421: Beaudry v. Gallien, 5 O. L. R. 73.

409. The Master shall (unless he dispenses with it) in the first instance issue an appointment to consider. Upon the return of the appointment he shall fix a time at which to proceed with the reference and shall give any special directions he thinks fit, as to:— Appointment to consider proceedings on return.

(a) The parties who are to attend on the several accounts and inquiries;

(b) The time when each proceeding is to be taken;

Rule 410.

(c) The mode in which any accounts referred to him are to be taken or vouched;

(d) The evidence to be adduced in support thereof;

(e) The manner in which each of the accounts and inquiries is to be prosecuted;

Any such directions may be afterwards varied or added to, as may be found necessary. C.R. 665.

Where judgment erroneous, Master may refuse to proceed on it.

Where a judgment is manifestly erroneous, the Master may properly refuse to proceed upon it until it has been corrected: Swainson v. Bartley, 18 C. L. J. 15; and see Commercial Bank v. Graham, 4 Gr. 419; Mitchell v. Strathy, 28 Gr. 80; Adamson v. Adamson, Ib., at p. 224; but the mistake must be very obvious to warrant the Master in refusing to proceed.

Warrant to consider.

Formerly a warrant to consider a judgment, or order, only required one day's service: see Sutherland v. Rogers, 2 Cby. Ch. at p. 192; other warrants required two clear days' service: Ib.; except warrants to settle report, which required four days' service: see Rule 424, note. The present Rules make no express provision as to Master's warrants.

The warrant must be underwritten so as to explain clearly what proceedings are to be taken under it: Denison v. Denison, 3 Chy. Ch. 349.

Who to appear on creditors' claims against estate.

In any cause, or matter, for the administration of the estate of a deceased person, no person, other than the personal representative, is, except by the leave of the Master, entitled to appear on the claim of any person not a party to the cause, against the estate of the deceased, in respect of any debt or liability. The Master may direct any person to appear, either in addition to, or in the place of, the personal representative, upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as may seem proper: see Rule 88.

As to mode of taking and verifying accounts generally: see Rules 418, 419, 420, 422; and as to taking accounts of creditors' claims against the estate of a deceased person: see Rules 413-415, 435.

The ruling of the Master is not conclusive, and the Court may, on appeal, give a party leave to attend proceedings whom the Master has excluded: Davis v. Combermere, 8 Jur. 76. But it would seem that any objection to the Master's ruling should be brought up by way of appeal, and not as a substantive motion.

Evidence is inadmissible before the Master to contradict, or controvert, any matter of fact on which the judgment, or order, of reference is based; e.g., in an action for infringing a patent, if the judgment is granted declaring that the defendant has infringed it, and a reference is granted to assess the damages, it is not competent for the defendant to show that the patent has been subsequently revoked: Poulton v. The Adjustable Cover & B. B. Co., 1908, 2 Ch. 430.

Powers of Master to take accounts with rests.

410. Under an order of reference, the Master shall have power:—

(a) To take the accounts with rests or otherwise;

(b) To take account of money, rents and profits received or which, but for wilful neglect or default, might have been received. Rule 410. To inquire as to wilful neglect and default.

(c) To set occupation rent; To set occupation rent.

(d) To take into account necessary repairs, and lasting improvements, and costs and other expenses properly incurred otherwise, or claimed to be so; To allow for improvements.

(e) To make all just allowances; To make just allowances.

(f) To report special circumstances; To report special circumstances; and to inquire as to all matters relating to accounts.

(g) And generally, in taking the accounts, to inquire, adjudge, and report as to all matters relating thereto, as fully as if the same had been specifically referred. C.R. 667.

C. R. 666 provided that to enable the Master to exercise all or any of the powers conferred upon him by, or to take the accounts and make the inquiries referred to in the Rules, it should not be necessary that any of the matters therein mentioned should have been stated in the pleadings, or that the evidence thereof should have been given before the judgment or order of reference, or that the judgment or order should contain any specific direction in respect thereof: see Sculthrope v. Burn, 12 Gr. 427. That Rule has not been continued, but probably no change is thereby intended to be made in the practice.

That Rule enabled the Master to take an account as mentioned in this Rule, although there was nothing in the pleadings: McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. at pp. 178, and 187; and though no evidence had been given as to any such matters at the trial.

It was formerly held that under a common administration order obtained on motion without bill, by any person but the personal representative himself, there could be no inquiry as to wilful neglect, or default: Harrison v. McGlashan, 7 Gr. 532. But where the order was obtained by the personal representative himself, such an inquiry might be made: Ledgerwood v. Ledgerwood, 7 Gr. 584.

The case of Carpenter v. Wood, 10 Gr. 354, though not referring to Harrison v. McGlashan, is said in effect to have overruled it; and the practice was stated by Boyd, C., to be now settled that under C. RR. 666, 667, the inquiry as to wilful neglect and default, might be made in all cases under the common administration order: Re Allan, 9 P. R. 277. It is probable, that notwithstanding the omission of C. R. 666, the present Rules have the same effect. Inquiry as to neglect and default etc., can now be made without special direction.

If the Master refuses to exercise the power to take the accounts in the manner mentioned in Rule 410, his ruling will be appealable; but it has been said to be more proper to bring the question up on further directions: see Sieveright v. Leys, 1 Ont. 375.

Where the judgment gives further relief than claimed by the pleadings, it has been held that the judgment is not to be construed by reference to the pleadings if it is unambiguous: Smith v. Goldie, 11 P. R. 24.

The Master is bound to have regard to the special terms of a judgment, or order, of reference, as well as the provisions of this Rule in taking accounts or making inquiries: Patterson v. Dart, 24 O. L. R. 609.

Interest.—The Master has power to allow interest against an accounting party, though not expressly directed so to do by the judgment, or order, under which the account is taken: Earle v. Burland, 6 O. L. R. 327; and it is immaterial that the accounting party is merely a constructive trustee: Ib. Interest is not chargeable, however, as a matter of course against an accounting party: Phillips v. Homfroy, 44 Ch. D. 694; 39 W. R. 45; 62 L. T. 897; London, Chatham & D. Ry. Co. v. South Eastern Ry. Co., 1893, A. C. 429; and see the Jud. Act, ss. 34-35 and notes, supra, pp. 195, et seq.

Rule in Ontario as to rate of interest.

In this Province prior to the repeal of the usury laws, the rule was to charge interest at the rate of 6 per cent., and where according to the English cases a higher rate of interest than 4 per cent. would be charged, to take the account with half-yearly rests: see Landman v. Crooks, 4 Gr. 353; Small v. Eccles, 12 Gr. at p. 40. Since the abolition of the usury laws, an accounting party chargeable according to the English cases with more than 4 per cent., may now be charged, either with a higher rate of interest than the legal rate, according to the value of money, as was done in Wightman v. Helliwell, 13 Gr. 330 (where an executor was charged with 8 per cent. simple interest); or it would seem he may be charged with compound interest at the legal rate: Wiard v. Gable, 8 Gr. 458; Erskine v. Campbell, 1 Gr. 570; or even at a higher rate if the money has been used in trade: Wightman v. Helliwell, 13 Gr. at p. 343; Small v. Eccles, 12 Gr. 40, or, at the option of the cestui que trust, with the actual profits realized. Prior to 63 & 64 Vict. c. 29 (D.) which reduced the legal rate of interest to 5 per cent., a trustee who had kept no accounts, and made no attempt to keep the trust moneys separate from her own, was charged with interest at 6 per cent. on the yearly balances in her hands: Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 688.

Interest on sums neglected to be paid over.

But where the trustee, or executor, has neglected to pay over sums in his hands to the parties entitled, he is chargeable with interest at the legal rate on such sums, no matter what the amount, from the time the payment ought to have been made: McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. at p. 190.

Where, from the circumstances of the estate, the executors are not justified in making permanent investments, they will be charged only with the interest actually received while the money is on deposit: see Re McIntyre, McIntyre v. London, &c., 7 O. L. R. 648.

In re Honsberger v. Kratz, 10 Ont. 621; 21 C. L. J. 400, Boyd, C., laid down the rule on which executors and trustees should be charged with interest, as follows:—(1) An executor or trustee who negligently retains funds in his hands which he should have paid over, or made productive for the estate, is to be charged with simple interest thereon at 6 per cent. (2) An executor, or trustee, who, in violation of his trust, has used the money for his own purposes (though not in trade or speculation), is to be charged at such rate as is the then current value of money. (3) An executor, or trustee, who makes a gain out of the trust by embarking the money in speculation or trading adventures, is to be charged either with the profits, or compound interest. Since this rule was laid down the legal rate of interest has been reduced to five per cent.: R. S. C. c. 120, s. 3; and in the last case not more than 5 per cent. would now be chargeable except in case of liabilities existing at, or prior to, 7th July, 1900, to which the old rate of six per cent. would apply. Where under the third case mentioned a trustee is charged with profits, it is not the course of the Court to charge him also with interest on such profits: Silkstone & H. M. Co. v. Edey, 1900, 1 Ch. 167. Rule 410.

Where the executor, or trustee, retains trust money in his hands, under a bonâ fide, though mistaken, belief that it is his own, he may be exonerated altogether from payment of interest: Bruere v. Pemberton, 12 Ves. 386; Dovenport v. Stafford, 14 Beav. 319; or he may be ordered to pay simple interest: Inglis v. Beatty, 2 Ont. App. 453; and where there has been great delay on the part of the cestui que trust in making claim to the trust fund: Browne v. Cross, 14 Beav. 105, provided such delay can be said to amount to acquiescence: The Life Assurance Co. v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 72; Blain v. Terryberry, 12 Gr. 221, the trustee or executor may be relieved from paying interest thereon: but see Boys' Home v. Lewis, 4 Ont. 18. Where retained under bona fide belief of ownership. Neglect of c. q. t. to demand payment.

A direction to invest a trust fund for infants, is not properly executed by the deposit of the money in a savings bank at 3½ per cent. interest, even though made with the consent of the statutory guardian of the infant c. q. t.; and the trustees are liable for interest at the legal rate: Spratt v. Wilson, 19 Ont. 28; but see The Trustee Act (R. S. O., c. 121), s. 29. Neglect of trustee to invest.

An executor who paid over money under what proved to be a mistaken construction of his testator's will, was held nevertheless bound to pay interest thereon to the parties properly entitled; but not to a person who had acquiesced in the misapplication of the fund: In re Hulkes. Powell v. Hulkes, 33 Ch. D. 552; 55 L. T. 209; and see In re Deane, Bridger v. Deane, 42 Ch. D. 9; National Trustees v. General Finance Agency, 1905, A. C. 378; 92 L. T. 736. Payment to wrong person.

A trust to invest in "public securities," was formerly violated by investing in municipal debentures: Ewart v. Gordon, 13 Gr. 40; but as to debentures and other securities in which trustees may now invest: see The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), ss. 28-30; and a direction to carry on a business will not justify an executor in embarking more capital in it: Smith v. Smith, 13 Gr. 81.

Where trustees, or executors, lend money to themselves at a lower rate than could have been obtained by investing it according to the trust, they will be chargeable with the higher rate, but not with rests: Smith v. Roe, 11 Gr. 311, at p. 315; and see Forbes v. Ross, 2 Cox, 116. Executors lending money to themselves.

In cases of simple neglect to invest, the Master is not justified in charging interest against the trustee until the balance amounts to a sum sufficient for an ordinary investment. $400 was considered a reasonable sum for this purpose: McLennon v. Heword, 9 Gr. 178; and see Re Jones, 49 L. T. 91; Re McIntyre, supra, p. 930.

Where an executor, or trustee, has properly deposited the trust fund for safe keeping, or not unreasonably kept it in his hands unemployed, he may be relieved from payment of interest, except such as he has actually received; but if he has not kept it apart from his own moneys, or has used it, he will be liable for interest on it: Beaton v. Boomer, 2 Chy. Ch. 89; Re McIntyre, supra, p. 930.

Or not investing as directed.

But where a trustee is authorized to invest in either of two specified modes, and by mistake invests in neither, the measure of his liability is the loss arising from his not having invested in the less beneficial of the authorized modes. Thus where a trustee was authorized to invest in Government securities, or mortgages, and he invested in bank stock, which proved a loss; he was charged with what would have been obtained had the investment been made in Government securities, although a larger rate of interest could have been obtained on mortgages: Paterson v. Lailey, 18 Gr. 13; and see Cameron v. Bethune, 15 Gr. 486; and Re Gobourie, Casey v. Gabourie, 13 Ont. 635.

Or on best terms.

Nor is an executor, or trustee, liable for neglect in not calling in investments made by the testator, in order to invest at a higher rate of interest, although authorized so to do: Smith v. Roe, 11 Gr. 311. Where a trust company was appointed executor of an estate, and took over certain securities of the estate, and without giving any security or covenant, paid interest at a lesser rate than that received from the securities, to the beneficiaries, on the ground that they had "guaranteed" the payment of interest on the fund, it was held that the transaction could not be supported, and that the company was accountable for the interest actually received: Hiddingh v. Denyssen; Hiddingh v. De Villiers, 12 App. Cas. 107, 624; 57 L. T. 886.

Where a trustee by investing money in an unauthorized investment obtains a higher rate of interest than would have been obtained from an authorized investment, and pays such interest to the tenant for life; the remainderman has no equity to have such excess treated as capital and added to the principal: Slade v. Chaine, 1908, 1 Ch. 522; 98 L. T. 352.

Improper use of trust fund.

An administratrix who allowed the moneys of the estate in her hands to be used by her husband, was charged with simple interest at the legal rate; it not being shown that the money had been used in trade, or that any larger sum had been realized: Fielder v. O'Hara, 14 Gr. 223; and see Zimmermon v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 688. Where a trustee mixes the trust fund with his own money in his bank account, he cannot attribute investments made out of the common fund, to his private account, until he has fully restored the trust fund, and his c. q. t. is entitled to the benefit of all such investments: In re Oatway, 1903, 2 Ch. 356.

No interest on sums charged to executor, he has not actually received.

An executor, or trustee, charged with principal sums which have never come to his hands, but which have been lost by his neglect, is not always chargeable with interest thereon as well: Vanston v. Thompson, 10 Gr. 542; Re Shaw, 15 Gr. 626; Re Crowter, Crowter v. Hinsman, 10 Ont. 159; unless his neglect, or default, amounts to acquiescence in the spoliation of the estate: Sovereign v. Sovereign, 15 Gr. 559; Cudney v. Cudney, 21 Gr. 153; Archer v. Severn, 13 Ont. 316.

The commencement of a suit does not stop interest running: McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. 178; McMillan v. McMillan, 21 Gr. 369; but see Blogg v. Johnston, L. R. 2 Chy. 225.

As against executors, interest should not, ordinarily, be charged, until after the lapse of a year from the testator's death.

Where a trustee or executor has made advances to the trust estate, he may be allowed simple interest on the balances of principal due to him from year to year, but not compound interest: Finch v. Prescott, L. R. 17 Eq. 554. Rule 410.

Principal and Agent.—An agent who hed used moneys of his principal, with his consent, wes only cherged simple interest: McLennan v. Heword, 9 Gr. 178; and where the state of accounts could not be ascertained until they had been taken by the Court, interest on the balance was charged only from the dete of the Master's certificete: Turner v. Burkinshow, L. R. 2 Chy. 488; and see Blogg v. Johnston, ib., 225. Principal and agent, interest as between.

Where the principel wss fonnd iudebted to the agent, interest on the balance was allowed from the filing of the declaretion in the action by the egent to recover the amount: Ridley v. Sexton, 19 Gr. 146.

Legatees.—Interest on legacies ordinarily runs from the end of e yesr from the death of the testator, in the absence of any express direction in the will to the contrary: see Smith v. Scoton, 17 Gr. 397; even though the income of the whole estate he bequeathed to enother for life: Toomey v. Tracey, 4 Ont. 708; or the legecy be payahle out of a particular fund which is not got in until after the yeer has expired: Wolford v. Walford, 1912, A. C. 658; 107 L. T. 657; and see Re Olive, Olive v. Westerman, 50 L. T. 355; hut this rule does not apply to sums sppointed by will, under a power; es to such sums, interest runs from the death of the testator: Deedes v. Graham, 20 Gr. 258. But no interest can usually he recovered on arrears of annulties, beqneathed hy will: Goldsmith v. Goldsmith, 17 Gr. 213; Crone v. Crone, 27 Gr. 425; end see Snorr v. Bodenoch, 10 Ont. 131; 21 C. L. J. 401; nor on annuities granted to secure a loan, as against land on which the annuity is charged, even though judgment may have been recovered therefor: Beomish v. Farmer, Ir. R. 1 Eq. 466; and see Ashburner v. Moguire, 2 W. & T. L. Cas. 317. But where an annulty was payahle under a covenant, it was held that interest on arrears might be allowed agsinst the estate of the covenantor: Re Selvin, Worsley v. Morshall, 1912, 1 Ch. 332; 106 L. T. 35. A legecy pnyahle after the death of an annultent benrs interest from such deeth: Re Scodding, 4 O. L. R. 632. Legatees.

Where the income of a specific sum is given to a legetee for life and, after such legatees' death, the corpus is hequeathed to another legatee absolutely, interest runs in fevour of the latter from the desth of the tenant for life, even though he die within n year from the testator's death: Re White, White v. Shenton, 101 L. T. 780.

Legacies hy persons in loco parentis to infant legatees, where there is no other provision for main'enance of the legatees, will bear interest from the death of the testator: In re McIntyre, 9 O. L. R. 408; Re West, Westhead v. Aspland, 1913, 2 Ch. 345; 109 L. R. 39. Legacies for maintenance.

Where a legacy is vested in trustees upon an express trust, more than six yeers' arrears of interest ere recoverahie: Loring v. Loring, 12 Gr. 374.

Where, by misteke, a legatee has been paid hy an executor before his legacy was due, he cannot he required to give credit as egainst subsequently accruing instalments of his legacy, for interest on the payments made before they were due: Border v. Clark, 20 Ont. 522; 18 A. R. 435. Premature payment to legatee.

A legatee receiving more than his share may he ordered to refund, with interest: Dovidson v. Boomer, 17 Gr. 509; Uffner v. Lewis, 5 O. L. it. 684; hut see Re Horne, 1905, 1 Ch. 76, where a trustee, who Refunding.

Rule 410.

was himself a beneficiary, having in a distribution paid himself too little, his executors were held not entitled to compel other beneficiaries to refund, nor to impound accruing income to make an equalization.

Fund deficient to meet annuity.

Where there is a deficiency of assets to meet an annuity given by a testator, or other person, the annuitant is entitled to have his annuity valued, and the value paid to him, where there is no gift over of the corpus of the fund after the death of the annuitant: In re Sinclair, 1897, 1 Ch. 921.

Where a specific legacy is given "as a general legacy, and not as a specific legacy," in the event of a deficiency of assets; it abates as if it were in fact a general legacy: In re Compton, Vaughan v. Smith, 1914, 1 Ch. 119.

Creditors overpaid.

Creditors.—As to creditors overpaid their proportion of the assets, and ordered to refund: see Chamberlen v. Clarke, 1 Oat. 135; 9 Ont. App. 273; Uffner v. Lewis, 3 O. L. R. 208; sed vide, S. C., 5 O. L. R. 684.

Policies of insurance.

Policies of Insurance.—Interest does not begin to run until the party claiming is in position to give a full discharge: Toronto Savings Bank v. Canada Life Assce. Co., 14 Gr. 509; and see Matthew v. Northern Ass. Co., 9 Ch. D. 80.

Partnership accounts.

Partnership Accounts.—In the absence of any agreement to the contrary, advances of capital made by a partner do not bear interest: Hill v. King, 9 Jur. N. S. 527; 3 D. J. & S. 418; Cooke v. Benbow, 3 De G. J. & S. 1; Stevens v. Cook, 5 Jur. N. S. 1415; but see Miller v. Craig, 6 Beav. 433. This applies not only to the original capital put in, but also to subsequent advances made by a partner on capital account: Jardine v. Hope, 19 Gr. 76.

No interest allowed on capital.

Neither is interest chargeable on capital agreed to be advanced by a partner, but not advanced by him: Wilson v. McCarthy, 13 C. L. J. 303; Rishton v. Grissell, L. R. 5 Eq. 326.

As to temporary loans—quaere.

As to advances in the way of temporary loans there seems to be no settled rule. In Cooke v. Benbow, supra, Turner, L.J., thought interest should not be allowed: and see De Hertel v. Supple, 14 Gr. 421. But in Ex parte Chippendale, 4 D. M. & G. 36, Knight Bruce, LJ., was of the contrary opinion; and see Re German Mining Co., 17 Jur. 745, 747; Pim v. Harris, 10 L. R. Ir. Eq. 442.

Interest allowed on sums in the hands of a partner, or not accounted for.

Interest is chargeable on sums in the hands of a partner, and not accounted for: Hutcheson v. Smith, 5 Ir. Eq. 117; or improperly applied: Evans v. Coventry, 8 D. M. & G. 835. But a partner in possession of partnership property is not obliged to account on the footing of wilful default: Rowe v. Wood, 2 J. & W. 556; Davidson v. Thirkell, 3 Gr. 330, at pp. 347-8.

No interest on capital withdrawn, or profits

Interest is not chargeable on withdrawal of capital, unless fraudulent or improper: Cooke v. Benbow, supra; Meymott v. Meymott, 31 Beav. 445; nor on undrawn profits: Dinham v. Bradford, L. R. 5 Chy. 519.

Interest payable on capital where stopped by dissolution.

Where capital carries interest during the continuance of a partnership, it does not do so after a dissolution: Watney v. Wells, L. R. 2 Chy. 250; Rhodes v. Rhodes, John 653; although the business is carried on for the purposes of a sale: Watney v. Wells, supra; unless where the capital is treated as a debt: Wood v. Scales, L. R. 1 Chy. 369; Barfield v. Loughborough, L. R. 8 Chy. 1; or in the case of a sleeping partner: Parsons v Hayward, 4 D. F. & J. 474. Rule 410.

After the Master's report, simple interest at the legal rate runs on the amount found due: Bonville v. Bonville, 35 Beav. 129; Brewer v. Yorke, 46 L. T. 289. Interest when it runs.

Losses resulting from investments of partnerships moneys, are to be borne by the partners, in the same proportions as they are entitled to share in the profits of the partnership business: Storm v. Cumberland, 18 Gr. 245. Losses how borne.

Taking the Account with rests.—Taking an account with "rests" means, either that the accounting party is charged with compound interest on the amount found due from him; or that the surplus income remaining after satisfying the interest due to him, is applied at certain periods in reduction of the principal. The amalgamation of principal and interest, or the application of income to pay off the principal, may take place yearly, half-yearly, or at other times more or less frequently, and these periods are termed "rests." In Robinson v. Cumming, 2 Atk. 410, Lord Hardwicke said rests were only ordered in accounts of realty, and not of personalty, but this is no longer the rule. When the Master declines to take an account with rests, if it is intended to appeal from his decision, he should be required to report the facts, so as to enable the Court to judge of the propriety of his decision: Sievewright v. Leys, 1 Ont. 375; but it has been said that the preferable method is to bring the question up on further directions: Ib., sed quære. Taking account with rests, what it is.

Rests, as against Executors and Trustees.—In taking accounts against an executor, or trustee, he is to be charged "with what he ought to have made, with what he actually did make, or with what he must be presumed to have made": per Esten, V.C., Smith v. Roe, 11 Gr. 312. The principle on which the Court proceeds in charging an executor, or trustee, with interest, is that of restoring to the cestui que trust his own, and of fairly compensating him for loss directly attributable to the neglect, or breach of duty, by the trustee; and on the other hand, that of withdrawing from the trustee any advantage he has appropriated by abusing his position: per Moss, C.J.: Inglis v. Beatty, 2 Ont. App. at p. 490. It is not that of punishment to the executor, or trustee: Attorney-General v. Alford, 4 D. M. & G. 843; Burdick v. Garrick, L. R. 5 Chy. 233; Vyse v. Foster, L. R. 8 Chy. 309; L. R. 7 H. L. 318. Compound interest may in some cases be a convenient mode of making this compensation, but in other cases it may be oppressive, and sound more as punishment than compensation, and therefore in such cases it ought not to be charged: see Fielder v. O'Hara, 14 Gr. 223. Rests—when allowed as against executors, and trustees.

In England the amount of interest with which an executor, or trustee is charged, depends on the circumstances: (1) When he is guilty of mere neglect, and gets no personal benefit, he is charged with simple interest at 4 per cent.: Forbes v. Ross, 2 Cox, 116; Rocke v. Harte, 11 Ves. 58; Robinson v. Robinson, 1 D. M. & G. 247; Tebbs v. Carpenter, 1 Mad. 290; Mousley v. Carr, 4 Beav. 49; Attorney-General v. Alford, 4 D. M. & G. 843; or 3 per cent. compounded: In re Barclay, 1899, 1 Ch. 674; or with the interest he should have received with half-yearly rests: Gilroy v. Stephen, 46 L. T. 761. (2) Where he is guilty English rule when executor, or trustee, guilty of mere neglect.

Rule 410.

When guilty of positive breach of trust,—or has employed trust fund in his own business.

of a positive breach of trust, or has employed trust money for his own benefit, he is charged with 5 per cent.; or, at the option of the beneficiary, with the profit actually made: Jones v. Foxall, 15 Beav. 388. The neglect to comply with a specific direction for investment, has been held to be such a positive breach of trust: Crackell v. Bethune, 1 J. & W. 586; Berwick v. Murray, 7 D. M. & G. 519; Mosley v. Ward, 11 Ves. 581; and where the trust directed accumulation, the accounts have been taken with rests: Raphael v. Boehm, 11 Ves. 92; Knott v. Collee, 16 Beav. 77; Jones v. Foxall, 15 Beav. 388; Re Barclay, 1899, 1 Ch. 674; and where a breach of trust, and the employment of the trust fund for his own benefit, in trade, or speculation, concur, whether there be any direction for accumulation, or investment, or not, the trustee is charged with 5 per cent., sometimes with: Burdick v. Garrick, L. R. 5 Chy. 233; and sometimes without rests, or, in the option of the beneficiary, with the profits actually realized from the fund: Flocton v. Bunning, L. R. 8 Chy. 323; Saltmarsh v. Borrett, 31 Beav. 349; Docker v. Somes, 2 My. & K. 655; Heathcote v. Hulme, 1 J. & W. 122; Sutton v. Sharpe, 1 Russ. 146; Robinson v. Robinson, 1 D. M. & G. 247; Re Davis, 1902, 1 Ch. 314; 86 L. T. 523. In Walker v. Woodward, 1 Russ. 107, annual rests were ordered, but this was said to have been obtained by surprise: see Attorney-General v. Solly, 2 Sim. 518. In Jones v. Foxall, 15 Beav. 388; Williams v. Powell, 15 Beav. 461; Heighington v. Grant, 1 Ph. 600; rests were ordered. In Docker v. Somes, 2 My. & K. 655; Palmer v. Mitchell, 2 My. & K. 672; Macdonald v. Richardson, 1 Giff. 81; accounts of profits arising from employment of trust funds in trade were ordered; and see Crowshay v. Collins, 15 Ves. 218; 1 J. & W. 207; 2 Russ. 325; Willett v. Blanford, 1 Ha. 253; Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 22 Beav. 84. Where a trustee raised money on the security of the trust estate in conjunction with his own property, he is bound to account to his cestui que trust for a proportionate part of the money so raised: Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, 1898, 1 Ch. 550. The paying in money to the general account of a firm of solicitors, of which the trustee was a partner, was held not to be a using of the money in his own business, so as to render him liable for compound interest: Burdick v. Garrick, L. R. 5 Chy. 233. Where an infant is interested, an inquiry will be directed whether it is for his advantage to take interest, or profits: Burden v. Burden, cited in Heathcote v. Hulme, 1 J. & W. 134-5. No special direction seems to be necessary to authorize the Master to make that inquiry in Ontario.

Where, however, trustees have improperly dealt with a trust fund but have invested it in such a way as to yield much larger profits than could have been obtained had it been dealt with strictly according to the trust, the cestuis que trustent are not at liberty to take the benefit of the investments and at the same time hold the trustees liable as for breach of duty; if they reprobate the transaction, they must account for the extraordinary profits they have received: see Smith v. Nelson, 92 L. T. 313.

The rule that a trustee shall not make a profit out of the trust estate beyond the amount agreed, was held not to preclude a trustee company from employing directors of the company to act in the capacity of solicitor, auctioneer and manager for remuneration: Bath v. Standard Land Co., 1911, 1 Ch. 618; 104 L. T. 867.

Mortgagee when liable to account with rests.

Mortgagees in Possession.—Where a mortgagee in possession, has, in that character, received rents and profits, or is chargeable with an occupation rent, in excess of the interest due, the Master may strike a balance periodically, and apply the surplus to the reduction of the principal; this is called taking the account with rests: Thorneycroft v. Crockett, 2 H. L. C. 239; Wilson v. Cluer, 3 Beav. 136; Schofield v. Ingham, 1 C. P. Coo. 477; Thompson v. Hudson, L. R. 10 Eq. 497; and see Fisher on Mortgages, 5th ed., sec. 1793, et seq. And where a mortgagee, after having been paid in full, has continued in possession, he may be charged with compound interest on his receipts: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Russ. 530; Lloyd v. Jones, 12 Sim. 490; Ashworth v. Lord, 36 Ch. D. 545; 58 L. T. 18. Rule 416.

In Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110, VanKoughnet, C., stated it to be the settled practice of the Court, "that when a mortgagee enters, his money being in arrear, he is not liable to account for the rents received by, or chargeable against, him, with rests, until he is paid off in full." And see Wilson v. Cluer, 3 Beav. 136; Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Russ. 530; Poul v. Johnson, 12 Gr. at p. 482; Davis v. Moy, 19 Ves. 384; Finch v. Brown, 3 Beav. 70; Lotter v. Dashwood, 6 Sim. 462. But if he enters when nothing is in arrear, it seems the account may be taken with rests from the beginning of the possession: Nelson v. Booth, 3 D. & J. 119.

But the mere fact of nothing being due when possession is taken, is not conclusive as to the right to have the account taken with rests; every attendant circumstance must be regarded: Horlock v. Smith, 1 Coll. 287. Thus a mortgagee who has taken possession of leaseholds to prevent a forfeiture is not liable so to account, though nothing was in arrear when he entered: Potch v. Wild, 30 Beav. 99; and see Gordon v. Eakins, 16 Gr. 363.

If a mortgagee holds bills, or notes, for arrears when he enters, he is nevertheless not liable to account with rests, if they are dishonoured: Dobson v. Land, 4 D. & S. 575.

Rests may be made when a mortgagee in possession sets up an unfounded claim to the equity of redemption, or resists the mortgagor's right to redeem: or, when overpaid, has denied that his mortgage was satisfied: Incorporated Society v. Richards, 2 Dr. & W. 258; Crippen v. Ogilvie, 15 Gr. 569; Montgomery v. Colland, 14 Sim. 79.

Where the mortgagee is in occupation, and is charged with an occupation rent more than sufficient to pay the interest, the account may be taken with rests, if the mortgage debt was not in arrear when he entered, subject to the qualifications above mentioned, from the time he entered, or, if then in arrear, then from the time he was paid in full: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Russ. 530; Binnington v. Horwood, T. & R. 477; Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110; where the account is taken with rests, it would seem that the proper time for making the rests is at the time of each payment of rent, whenever the payment exceeds the interest then in arrear.

The mere fact that a mortgagee resides with the owner of the equity of redemption on the mortgaged property, does not render him liable to account as a mortgagee in actual occupation: Paul v. Johnson, 12 Gr. 474.

A person entering as a bonâ fide purchaser from a mortgagee is not liable to account as a mortgagee in possession, in the event of his purchase being held invalid: Parkinson v. Hanbury, L. R. 2 H. L. 1; Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173. But a mortgagee who entered claiming to have purchased the equity of redemption, but who was held to be still redeemable, was ordered to account with rests: Aitchison Purchaser from mortgagee.

Rule 410.

v. Coombs, 6 Gr. 643; this point is not noticed in the report, but see the decree, D. B. 4, fo. 676; but see Parkinson v. Hanbury, supra.

Notice to tenants to attorn.

The mere giving of notice by a mortgagee to his mortgagor's tenant to pay his rent to the mortgagee, does not, unless the tenant attorns and pays his rent to the mortgagee, create any tenancy between the tenant and the mortgagee; the mere fact that he continues in possession after the notice is not enough: Towerson v. Jackson, 1891, 2 Q. B. 484; 65 L. T. 332.

Sales by mortgagees.

A mortgagee in possession from time to time effecting sales under a power of sale is not liable to account for rents and profits with rests at each sale: Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1905, 1 Ch. 435; 92 L. T. 679.

Surplus after sale.

A mortgagee who has sold under a power of sale and retains the surplus in his hands is liable to pay interest on it to the party entitled (unless there are circumstances which render it unjust), but mere non-claim, even for four years, is not such a circumstance: Eley v. Read, 76 L. T. 39; Charles v. Jones, 35 Ch. D. 544; 56 L. T. 848; Heath v. Chinn, 98 L. T. 855.

No special direction now necessary.

Prior to Chy. O. 220 (Rule 410), the account could not be taken against a mortgagee with rests, without an express direction in the decree to that effect: Webber v. Hunt, 1 Mad. 13. Under Rule 410, no express direction in the judgment is necessary; but the Master of course cannot properly take the account with rests in cases where it would not, under the former practice, have been ordered by the Court.

Mortgagor.

Mortgagor.—Under a mortgage providing for payment of compound interest, a mortgagee in possession cannot recover more than simple interest, unless he shows that the rents and profits were insufficient to meet the interest as it fell due: Wrigley v. Gill, 1906, 1 Ch. 165; 94 L. T. 179. Where a mortgagor tenders payment which is refused, he is liable for interest subsequent to the tender unless he shows that he kept money idle and made no profit from it: Edmondson v. Copeland, 1911, 2 Ch. 301; 105 L. T. 8; see Rule 309.

Statute of Limitations.

Statute of Limitations.—A mortgagee in occupation is liable to account for more than six years' occupation rent prior to the commencement of the action; the Statute of Limitations is no bar: Coldwell v. Holl, 9 Gr. 110; S. C., 7 U. C. L. J. 42; 8 U. C. L. J. 93.

Where a mortgagee after he has received sufficient from rents and profits to pay off his mortgage, continues in possession for ten years, the right of the mortgagor is barred: In re Metropolis & Counties P. I. Bg. Socy., 1911, 1 Ch. 698; 104 L. T. 382, he is not in as trustee.

Statute of Limitations, how far a bar to recovery of interest.

As against the person of the debtor, arrears of interest, or rent, payable under a covenant (except a covenant in a mortgage made on or after 1st July, 1894), accruing, or acknowledged in writing, or by part payment, to be due, at any time within twenty years of the commencement of the action, have been held recoverable, even though such interest, or rent, be charged upon, or payable out of land: The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 49; Allan v. McTavish, 2 Ont. App. 273; and see Boice v. O'Loane, 3 Ont. App. 167; McMahon v. Spencer, 13 Ont. App. 430; but see contra, Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D. 511; 48 L. T. 95; Feornside v. Flint, Ib., 154; 22 Ch. D. 579; where it was held that the remedy on a collateral bond was barred, after the lapse of the time for bringing an action in respect of the land mortgaged by the principal security: and see Shaw v. Crompton, 1910, 2 K.

B. 370; Lewin v. Wilson, 9 S. C. R. 677; Re Powers, 30 Ch. D. 291; Kirkland v. Peatfield, 1903, 1 K. B. 756. In Mocdonold v. Macdonald, 11 Ont. 187, Prondfoot, J., refused to follow Sutton v. Sutton, supra, on the gronnd that he was bound by the contrary decision of the Court of Appeal in Allan v. McTovish, supra; and in McDonald v. Elliott, 12 Ont. 98; 22 C. L. J. 229; but see Trimble v. Hill, 5 App. Cas. 342, and per Osler, J.A., 13 Ont. App. 434; and per Burton, J.A., 14 Ont. App. 256; Jacobs v. Beover, 17 O. L. R. 496. Rule 410.

In the case of mortgages made on or after 1st July, 1894, the period will be 10 years: The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 49 (1, k).

Altbough no more than six yenrs' arrears of interest accrued prior to action can be recovered in an action for foreclosure, or sale, the rule is different in redemption actions; in such actions if the mortgagor is personally liable on a covenant, or otherwise, for payment of the debt, he will not be allowed to redeem except on payment of all arrears for which he is liable: Dingle v. Coppen, 1899, 1 Ch. 726; 79 L. T. 693; but where he is not personally liable for payment of the mortgage debt, only six years' arrears are recoverable: McMicking v. Gibbons, 24 Ont. App. 586.

As against land, no arrears of rent, or interest, in respect of any sum of money charged upon, or payable out of, any land, or rent, or in respect of any legacy charged upon land, can be recovered hut within six years after the same shall have respectively become due, or next after any acknowledgment of the same, in writing, has been given to the person entitled thereto or his agent, signed by the person by whom the same was payable, or his agent: R. S. O. c. 75, s. 18; but a bond given by third parties as security for a mortgage debt was held not to be barred under R. S. O. c. 75, s. 18: see Re Powers, 30 Ch. D. 291; 53 L. T. 647. But where any prior mortgagee, or other incumbrancer, has been in possession of any land, or in receipt of the profits thereof, within one year next before an action is brought by any person entitled to a subsequent mortgage, or other incumbrance, on the same land, the person entitled to the subsequent mortgage, or incumbrance, may recover in such action the arrears of interest which have become due during the whole time that such prior mortgagee, or incumbrancer, was in possession, or receipt, as aforesaid, although such time may have exceeded the time of six years: see R. S. O. c. 75, s. 19.

An acknowledgment by one of two executors against the will of the other, is not sufficient in England to bind the land: see Astbury v. Astbury, 1898, 2 Ch. 111; but see The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), s. 3.

Where a testator charges his debts on his lands, such debts are recovcrable thereout within ten years from the testator's death, and not merely that part payable out of the land on a due administration of the realty and personalty: Re Raggi, Bross v. Young, 108 L. T. 917.

Payments.—Where a covenant for payment of a debt is given by a principal and surety, payments by the principal on account of the debt, which will prevent the Statute of Limitations from running in his favour, will also prevent the Statute from running in favonr of ths surety, tbough he be no party to the payments: In re Frisby, 43 Ch. D. 106; but see Paxton v. Smith, 18 Ont. 178. Payments, effect of, on Statute of Limitations.

Rule 410.

And payments made by a vendor of the equity of redemption in pursuance of an agreement with his vendee, will prevent the Statute from running in favour of the vendee, though he be no party to the payments: Trust & Loan Co. v. Stevenson, 20 Ont. App. 66; and see Dibb v. Walker, 1893, 2 Ch. 429; 68 L. T. 610.

Where a payment is made by cheque, the date on which the cheque is delivered is the date of the payment, and not the date the cheque is cashed, notwithstanding it be post dated, and, by arrangement, not presented for some days after its delivery: Marreco v. Richardson, 1908, 2 K. B. 584; 99 L. T. 486.

Partnership accounts, when barred by Statute of Limitations.

Partnership Accounts.—In England it has been held, that the Statute of Limitations cannot be set up as a bar to an action for an account, so long as a partnership continues: Betjeman v. Betjeman, 1895, 2 Ch. 474; 73 L. T. 2; The Pongola, 73 L. T. 512; but in Canada it has been held by the Supreme Court that the statute may be set up as between partners, or at all events that long delay may be evidence of acquiescence: Toothe v. Kittredge, 24 S. C. R. 287. Where the partnership has expired, or been dissolved, more than six years before action, the Statute of Limitations may be pleaded as a bar to the taking of partnership accounts: Noyes v. Crowley, 10 Ch. D. 31; and see Storm v. Cumberland, 18 Gr. 245; Carroll v. Eccles, 17 Gr. 529; this latter decision, however, would seem to be qualified by Wright v. Morgan, infra, but see Rule 143.

Where a Master is directed to take an account, he should allow whatever interest is proper to be allowed up to the date of his report, as, on the hearing on further directions, interest will not be allowed on the amount found due anterior to the date of the report: Phillips v. Homfray, 44 Ch. D. 694; 39 W. R. 96; 62 L. T. 897.

Where the Statute of Limitations is intended to be relied on as a bar to the whole claim, it should be specially pleaded: Rule 143; but it would seem that it may be set up in the Master's office as a bar to part of the claim, without having been pleaded: Wright v. Morgan, 1 Ont. App. 613; Cottonoch v. Urquhort, 6 P. R. 28; where no claim for interest is made by the pleadings, and there is no covenant, six years' arrears only are recoverable: Wiley v. Ledyard, 10 P. R. 182; 20 C. L. J. 142.

Wilful neglect and default; English rule regarding.

Wilful Neglect and Default.—Under the present English practice, the accounts cannot be taken on the footing of wilful default without a special direction in the judgment, or order, of reference; and where wilful default is not pleaded, no order can be made on the footing of wilful default, either at the trial, or at any subsequent time; but where wilful default has been alleged and a case made for it in the pleadings, an account may be directed on the footing of wilful default, either at the hearing or trial of the action, or at any subsequent stage: Re Symons, Luke v. Tonkin, 47 L. T. 684; Barber v. Mackrell, 12 Ch. D. 534; 41 L. T. 23, 201, where affidavits raising a case of fraud, were treated as pleadings; and see Job v. Job, 6 Ch. D. 562; Mayer v. Murray, 8 Ch. D. 424; Re Bowen, Bennett v. Bowen, 47 L. T. 114; 20 Ch. D. 538; Re Barclay, 1899, 1 Ch. 674; but see Re Wrightson, Wrightson v. Cooke, 1908, 1 Ch. 789.

Ontario rule.

In Ontario no statement in the pleadings is necessary, in order to authorize the Master to take accounts in any proper case, on the footing of wilful default: see supra, p. 929. Mortgagees in possession were always liable, as of course, to account on the footing of wilful neglect and default, and the effect of Rule 410, is to place trustees, executors, and others, liable for wilful default, upon the same footing in this respect as mortgagees in possession. Clause (b) of Rule 410, applies in terms only to accounts of realty, but it has been held that under clause (g), the Master may inquire as to wilful neglect and default, in all cases referred to him without any special direction so to do: Carpenter v. Wood, 10 Gr. 354. Wherever wilful neglect and default is charged against an accounting party, the Master is to determine whether or not he is liable to account on that footing, and, if so, the amount that is due; he should not report the facts as "special circumstances": Wolmsley v. Bull, 3 Chy. Ch. 344; and in his report he should distinguish between sums actually received, and those charged by reason of wilful default, in order to enable the Court to deal with the question of costs: Moodie v. Leslie, 12 Gr. 537. Rule 410.

Executors and Trustees. — The Master may make the inquiry, though no case of wilful neglect or default is averred in the pleadings, or proved at the trial: Carpenter v. Wood, 10 Gr. 354, and see supra, p. 909. Formerly it was thought that the inquiry could not be made under the common administration order obtained in Chambers: Harrison v. McGlashan, 7 Gr. 531; except when obtained by the personal representative himself: Ledgerwood v. Ledgerwood, Ib., 584; but the practice is now settled that the inquiry may be made in every case, per Boyd, C., Re Allan, Pocock v. Allon, 9 P. R. 277; Sullivon v. Harty, 9 P. R. 500. Executors and trustees, when liable for wilful neglect and default.

Executors are not liable for loss of interest arising from their delay in taking out probate; the remedy of any person likely to suffer loss from any such delay is to cite the executor in the Surrogate Court: Re Stevens, 1897, 1 Ch. 422; 76 L. T. 1898, 1 Ch. 162; 77 L. T. 508.

An executor improperly delaying to sell lands which, by the will are saleable for the payment of debts, in order to benefit himself, is liable to account for rents and profits: Emes v. Emes, 11 Gr. 325; and executors, without authority, intermeddling with, and assuming the management of, the realty, are liable to account as if duly empowered to act as trustees: Chisholm v. Bornord, 10 Gr. 479; but in such a case they are not entitled to any compensation for so doing: Dogg v. Dogg, 25 Gr. 542; see now The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), ss. 3, 4.

But it is the duty of the Court in all cases where executors, or trustees, are concerned, to administer equity in such a manner that honest and respectable men shall not be deterred from accepting the office, and if there is a doubt, where men have acted honestly and bonâ fide in discharge of their duty, although they have made mistakes, the doubt should be determined in favour of the executor or trustee: Re Owens, 47 L. T. 61; In re Speight, 22 Ch. D. 727; 48 L. T. 279; 9 App. Cas. 1; 50 L. T. 330; but this does not apply to mistakes in law: National Trustees Co. v. General Finance Agency, 1905, A. C. 373; 92 L. T. 736. But it must be remembered that in England, executors, and trustees, have no statutory right to compensation for their services as they have in Ontario: see The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67, Executors and trustees, entitled to benefit of doubt.

Where a person becomes beneficially entitled to a trust fund, which, prior to his interest vesting in possession, he has actively assented to being applied otherwise than according to the terms of the trust, neither he, nor his representatives, have any right to sue for the breach of trust: Evans v. Benyon, 37 Ch. D. 329; 58 L. T. 700.

Where a testator expressed the fullest confidence in one of the trustees named in his will, and directed the other trustees to be guided by his views as to sale, disposal, and reinvestment, of his American securities, and declared that his trustees should not be responsible for any loss occasioned thereby, it was held that the co-trustees were not answerable to legatees for loss occasioned by unauthorized investments of their moneys, made by the trustee: Burritt v. Burritt, 29 Gr. 321. But, as regards creditors, it seems they might not be discharged: Doyle v. Blake, 2 Sch. & L. 239.

A trustee is liable for not taking proper steps to get the trust fund into his hands: Re Robinson, Billing v. Brogden, 38 Ch. D. 546; 59 L. T. 650; but see Tudball v. Medlicott, 59 L. T. 370; Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 688. He is liable for neglect to collect debts due to the trust estate: Re Greenwood, Greenwood v. Firth, 105 L. T. 509.

While the Court will not require from executors, and trustees, any greater care than a prudent man ordinarily bestows on the management of his own property, yet it will require them to give full explanations of all their dealings, and of the causes why outstanding assets were not collected, or property of the estate has disappeared; and a trustee, or executor, who cannot account for the one or the other, will be chargeable with them: Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 481; Zimmerman v. Wilcox, supra; a trustee is not liable for losses arising through the default of agents to whom he may have properly confided the management of the trust: Re Speight, 22 Ch. D. 727; Speight v. Gaunt, 9 App. Cas. 1; and see Re Brier, 26 Ch. D. 238; even though the trustee is remunerated for his services: Jobson v. Palmer, 1893, 1 Ch. 71; nor for the default of a co-trustee who has been bonâ fide allowed to convert registered bonds into bonds payable to bearer for the purpose of facilitating a sale thereof, and who has taken advantage of the fact by converting the bonds to his own use: Re Gasquoine, 1884, 1 Ch. 470; 69 L. T. 822; 70 L. T. 196; Shepherd v. Harris, 1905, 2 Ch. 310; nor for the money of the estate obtained by a co-trustee by fraud, to which he is no party: Ib.; Re McLatchie, Preston v. Leslie, 33 Ont. 179; nor for losses arising from mere errors of judgment: Re Chapman, 1896, 2 Ch. 763; 75 L. T. 196; but he is for the loss occasioned by employing improper agents: Fry v. Tapson, 28 Ch. D. 268; 51 L. T. 326; for negligently allowing the money of the estate to remain in the hands of proper agents: McCarter v. McCarter, 7 Ont. 243; Cann v. Cann, 51 L. T. 770; Re Mitchell, 52 L. T. 178; Dewar v. Brooke, 52 L. T. 489; and for losses occasioned by neglecting to supervise the actions of agents: Low v. Gemley, 18 S. C. R. 685; but not for moneys misappropriated by a co-executor: Re Crowter, Crowter v. Hinsman, 10 Ont. 159; Re McLatchie, Preston v. Leslie, supra; unless he has knowingly allowed them to remain in his co-executor's hands uninvested without making any effort to secure the fund from loss.

Executors have a fair discretion in taking, or delaying, legal proceedings against a debtor; and a delay in suing, even though causing a loss of the debt, is not necessarily such negligence as subjects them to any liability: Re Owens, 47 L. T. 61. In the absence of special circumstances, an executor is only liable for his own individual receipts, and not for those of his co-executors: Re Crowter, supra; but he is liable for the receipts of any agent jointly employed by himself and his co-executor: Harrison v. Patterson, 11 Gr. 105.

Rule 410. Losses on investments.

There is no fixed rule as to the relative proportions which loans made by trustees ought to bear to the value of the property. As a general rule more than two-thirds the value should not be advanced; but a trustee who, in the honest exercise of his discretion, lends a little more than two-thirds, is not liable in the event of the security proving insufficient: Re Godfrey, 23 Ch. D. 483; 48 L. T. 853; and see Re Pearson, 51 L. T. 692. In the case of loans on the security of business premises, one-half is, in England, considered the limit: see Palmer v. Emerson, 1911, 1 Ch. 758; 104 L. T. 557.

Where trust funds are lost through improper investments, the trustees are all equally liable, and as a general rule one trustee who has merely passively assented to the breach of trust has no right to be indemnified by his co-trustee who has acted honestly in making an improper investment: Bahin v. Hughes, 31 Ch. D. 390; 54 L. T. 188; Bacon v. Camphousen, 58 L. T. 851; but see Re Partington, 57 L. T. 654.

Depositing money in a bank at interest may be a breach of trust: see Perpetual Executors v. Swan, 1898, A. C. 763.

As to the amount with which a trustee is chargeable, where the trust fund is lost through investment in proper, but insufficient, securities: see The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), ss. 31, 32.

Where a trustee who is also a beneficiary has consented to an improper investment, he cannot call upon his co-trustee to bear any portion of the loss which he, as a beneficiary, thereby sustains: Chillingworth v. Chambers, 73 L. T. 208; and see The Trustee Act, s. 36.

To accept a valuation made on behalf of the borrower is improper: Walcott v. Lyons, 54 L. T. 786; and see Re Somerset, Somerset v. Poulett, 68 L. T. 613; 69 L. T. 744; 42 W. R. 145 (where the solicitors for the mortgagees acted also for the mortgagor); as is also neglecting to obtain a formal valuation: Re Olive, 34 Ch. D. 70; 55 L. T. 83; Re Stuart, 1897, 2 Ch. 583; and see Re Partington, supra, where trustees were held liable for neglecting to give proper instructions to the valuators; and see Leeroyd v. Whiteley, 12 App. Cas. 727; 58 L. T. 93.

Trustees investing trust money on insufficient security in breach of trust, are not entitled to an option of taking the security; and the order for realizing the security need not contain any such option: Re Solmon, 42 Ch. D. 351; 62 L. T. 270, although, of course, if they pay up what is due to the trust they are entitled to the benefit of the securities unrealized: see also Head v. Gould, 1898, 2 Ch. 250; 78 L. T. 739.

Where a sale by a trustee to himself is set aside as a breach of trust, he is liable to account for rents and profits received by him, but is not chargeable with interest thereon: Silkstone & H. M. Co. v. Edey, 1900, 1 Ch. 167.

Executors cannot be charged with losses arising from their having carried out the express directions of their testator: Re Hurst, 63 L. T. 665; and where they have so carried on a business of the deceased pursuant to the directions in his will, or even without such directions, but with the consent of his creditors, they are entitled to indemnity from the estate against any loss, and creditors, whose claims have been thus contracted, are entitled to stand in the executors' place against the testator's estate: Dowse v. Gorton, 1891, App. Cas. 190; 64 L. T. 809; Re Brooke, 71 L. T. 398; but they are not, without express authority, justified in embarking more capital in such business: Smith v. Smith, 13 Gr. 81; nor are they entitled to indemnity when they continue the testator's business without any direction in his will so to do: Re Oxley, Hornby v. Oxley, 110 L. T. 626; (Re Brooke, supra, p. 943, overruled).

Application of rule in Clayton's case.

The rule in Clayton's Case, 1 Mer. 572, applies as between two cestuis que trustent, where money has been paid into the private bank account of the trustee: see Re Stenning, 1895, 2 Ch. 433; 73 L. T. 207.

Mortgagee in possession, liable for wilful neglect and default.

Mortgagees.—A mortgagee in possession is bound to account, as of course, for what he has, or but for his wilful default might, or ought to have received: Choplin v. Young, 33 Beav. 330; Parkinson v. Honbury, L. R. 2 H. L. 1; Hughes v. Williams, 12 Ves. 493; Kensington v. Bouverie, 7 D. M. & G. 134; Quarrel v. Beckford, 1 Mad. 274. But he is not liable for more than he has actually received, unless it is clearly proved that he knew a greater rent might, and could, have been obtained, and that he refused or neglected to obtain it: Merriam v. Cronk, 21 Gr. 60; Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110, 114; Metcalfe v. Campion, 1 Moll. 238; Hughes v. Williams, 12 Ves. 493; Brondon v. Brandon, 10 W. R. 287; Cocks v. Groy, 1 Giff. 77.

Rents not received.

A mortgagee not in possession is not chargeable with rent which a tenant of the mortgagor had promised to pay him, but did not: Waddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211.

Where, prior to the execution of a mortgage, a tenant in possession had paid rent in advance to the mortgagor, the mortgagee cannot afterwards recover such rent from the tenant: Green v. Rheinberg, 104 L. T. 149.

A mortgagee in possession who lets the mortgaged premises subject to a proviso that the lessee shall buy goods from him, is bound to account for the rent that could have been obtained for the premises without such a restriction as to trade, but he is not bound to account for the profits so made: White v. City of London Brewery Company, 39 Ch. D. 559; 60 L. T. 19; affirmed, 42 Ch. D. 237; 61 L. T. 741.

Agreement between mortgagee and mortgagor, subsequent incumbrancers not bound by.

Where a mortgagee takes possession at a rent agreed on between him and the mortgagor, he is only liable to account to the mortgagor on the footing of the agreement, but such agreement is not binding on any subsequent incumbrancer, and, as to him, the Master may charge the mortgagee with a fair occupation rent, though it exceeds the amount agreed to by the mortgagor: Court v. Hollond, 29 Gr. 19, and see Gilmour v. Roe, 21 Gr. 284; Gregg v. Arrott, Ll. & Goo. temp. Sugd. 246.

But where a mortgagor agreed with a mortgagee in possession, that the rents and profits should be applied in payment of the mortgagor's indebtedness for goods purchased from the mortgagee, it was held that a subsequent incumbrancer had no right to insist that the rents and profits should be applied in reduction of the mortgage debt: Mitchell v. Soylor, 1 O. L. R. 458.

Sales under powers.

A mortgagee selling under a power of sale is not liable for wilful neglect and default for selling adjacent premises en bloc, and not in parcels, even though a loss may have resulted from his so doing, provided he acted bonâ fide: Wilson v. Taylor, 4 O. W. N. 253, 1376.

Mortgagee becoming purchaser.

Where a mortgagee directly, or indirectly, becomes the purchaser at a sale made by himself under a power of sale in his mortgage, the sale may be set aside, and he may be required to account as a mortgagee in possession: Farrar v. Farrars Limited, 40 Ch. D. 395; 60 L. T. 121; Martinson v. Clowes, 21 Ch. D. 857; 46 L. T. 882; Hodson v. Deans, 1903, 2 Ch. 647; 89 L. T. 92. Rule 410.

A bonâ fide sale by a mortgagee under a power to one of several mortgagors, without notifying the others of the intended sale, cannot be impeached by the latter: Kennedy v. De Trafford, 1897, A. C. 180; 76 L. T. 427; and a bonâ fide sale to his own solicitor was upheld: Nutt v. Easton, 1899, 1 Ch. 873; 1900, 1 Ch. 29; 80 L. T. 353; 81 L. T. 530; and see Kaiserhof Hotel Co. v. Zuber, 23 O. L. R. 481; 25 O. L. R. 194. Sale to one of several mortgagors.

Where a sale of part of the land has been made under a power of sale in the mortgage, the expenses of sale are to be deducted from the gross proceeds of sale, and the balance only is to be brought into the account; and, without special direction, the mortgagor is not entitled to have a rest made in the account of rents and profits at the date of each sale: Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1905, 1 Ch. 435; 92 L. T. 679. Costs of sale.

A mortgagee who concurs in a sale by a mortgagor, and permits the surplus of the purchase money to be paid to the mortgagor, to the prejudice of the subsequent incumbrancers, is liable therefor to the latter: West London Commercial Bank v. Reliance Permanent Building Society, 29 Ch. D. 954; 53 L. T. 442. Application of purchase money.

A puisne mortgagee who has cut timber on mortgaged property is liable to account to the prior mortgagee for the proceeds, where the mortgaged land proves an insufficient security: McLeod v. Avey, 16 Ont. 365. Timber.

Vendor and Purchaser.—After the time fixed for completion of the contract, the vendor is liable for rents and profits, but usually only for those actually received: Howell v. Howell, 2 My. & Cr. 486, unless he allows the rent to fall in arrear, when he will be held accountable for the arrears: Aclond v. Gaisford, 2 Mad. 28; Wilson v. Clapham, 1 J. & W. 36; formerly a special case must have been made at the hearing to entitle a purchaser to have the account taken on the footing of wilful default: Sherwin v Shakspear, 5 D. M. & G. 517, 532; Phillips v. Sylvester, L. R. 8 Chy. 173. But this is no longer necessary in Ontario: see supra, p. 909. Where no time was named in the contract for delivery of possession, the purchaser was held entitled to the rents from the date of the contract: Brady v. Keenan, 6 P. R. 262; and see Dudley v. Bercsy, 2 Chy. Ch. 364, as to the liability of a vendor in possession. Vendor, after time fixed for completing, is liable to purchaser for rents and profits.

No more than six years' arrears of interest on purchase money can be recovered from a purchaser as a charge on the land, whether he has been in possession or not: Airey v. Mitchell, 21 Gr. 512; Gunn v. Trust & L. Co., before Boyd, C., 19th January, 1882; but in some cases where more than six years' arrears were recoverable against the estate of a deceased person, the excess beyond six years was allowed to avoid circuity of action: Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173; Taylor v. Hargrove, 19 Gr. 271; Howeren v. Bradburn, 22 Gr. 96; Weaver v. Vandusen, 27 Gr. 481. Interest on purchase money.

Principal and Agent.—A bailiff at Common Law was liable to account for what he might have made of the lands, but for his wilful default: Seton, 779; Wheeler v. Horne, Willes, 208; Co. Lit., 172 a; and Bailiff liable for neglect and default.

Rule 410.

an agent acting under a power of attorney is liable so to account, though the power be defective: Bradburn v. Shanly, 7 Gr. 569. But a solicitor who paid off a mortgage for a client, and entered into the receipt of rents, was held not to be liable on the footing of wilful default, his possession being that of his client: Word v. Carttar, L. R. 1 Eq. 29.

Persons not Liable to Account for Wilful Default:—

Partners.

Partners in possession of partnership property are not liable to account on the footing of wilful default: Davidson v. Thirkell, 3 Gr. 330, at p. 348; Royce v. Wood, 2 J. & W. 556; but one partner may have a demand against another for compensation for negligence or fraud: Bury v. Allen, 1 Coll. 589; Doupe v. Stewart, 13 Gr. 637.

Tenants in common.

Tenants in Common who have received more than their share, though liable to account for the excess: Lorimer v. Lorimer, 5 Mad. 363; Turner v. Morgan, 8 Ves. 145, are not answerable for wilful default: Wheeler v. Horne, Willes, 208.

Tenants for life.

Tenants for Life.—A tenant for life may cut down timber in the proper course of husbandry, in order to bring the proper proportion of land into cultivation, and perhaps destroy such timber, but he cannot cut down timber, even for that purpose, and sell it for his own benefit: Drake v. Wigle, 22 C. P. 341; Saunders v. Breakie, 3 Ont. 603; but he may sell it, in order to buy with the proceeds more suitable timber for making necessary repairs to buildings on the premises: Hixon v. Reavely, 9 O. L. R. 6.

He is not liable for permissive waste: Potterson v. Central Canada Loan Co., 29 Ont. 134; nor for repairs: In re Fremon, 1898, 1 Ch. 28; and a legatee for life of leasehold premises is not liable on the covenants in the lease: Re Tomlinson, 1898, 1 Ch. 232.

Purchasers for value.

Purchaser for Value evicted by a person having a better title, of which he is fixed with constructive notice, is not liable to account on the footing of wilful default: Howell v. Howell, 2 My. & Cr. 478.

Persons in possession by fraud.

Persons who have obtained Possession by Fraud, are not liable to account on the footing of wilful default: Murray v. Palmer, 2 Sch. & L. 474; Trevelyan v. Charter, 9 Beav. 140; 4 L. J. N. S. 209; 11 Cl. & F. 74.

Occupation rent, when chargeable.

Occupation Rent.—A person liable to account for rents and profits may, generally, if he has been himself in actual occupation of the property in question, be charged with a fair rent for the time he has so occupied—which account of rent is liable to be taken with rests, wherever rests would be charged if rents and profits had been received: but see Silkstone & H. M. Co. v. Edey, 1900, 1 Ch. 167.

As against vendors.

Vendors.—A vendor who continues in occupation after the time fixed for completion may be charged with an occupation rent: Legott v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., L. R. 5 Chy. 716; Dyer v. Hargrave, 10 Ves. 505; but not in cases where the purchaser could, and ought to have taken possession: Dakin v. Cope, 2 Russ. 170; nor where—the purchaser making default in payment—the vendor continues to carry on his business: Leggott v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., supra.

Purchasers.

Purchasers.—Where a conveyance is set aside, an occupation rent may be charged against a purchaser who has been in occupation:

Bloomer v. Spittle, L. R. 13 Eq. 427; Neesom v. Clarkson, 2 Ha. 163; but see Parkinson v. Hanbury, L. R. 2 H. L. 1. Rule 418.

Mortgagees.—A mortgagee may be charged with an occupation rent, if it be proved that he has actually occupied the mortgaged premises: Trulock v. Robey, 15 Sim. 265. Any agreement as to the amount of the rent made between mortgagor and mortgagee, though binding between them, is not binding on others interested in the equity of redemption who are not parties to it: Court v. Holland, 29 Gr. 19; Gregg v. Arrott, Ll. & G. temp. Sngd. 246. And where rent is paid in advance to a prior mortgagee, and applied, with the consent of the mortgagor, in discharge of other liabilities than the mortgage debt, a subsequent assignee of the equity of redemption is entitled to have all rents accruing subsequent to the assignment applied in reduction of the prior mortgage, notwithstanding the payment and application in advance: Gilmour v. Roe, 21 Gr. 284. A mortgagee who continues in occupation after payment in full, is chargeable with interest on the occupation rent, with rests: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Russ. 537; Quarrel v. Beckford, 1 Mad. 269; Lloyd v. Jones, 12 Sim. 491; Ashworth v. Lord, 36 Ch. D. 545; 58 L. T. 18. Mortgagee, liability of, for occupation rent.

A mortgagee in occupation is entitled to set off, against the occupation rent, with which he is charged, the arrears of interest, so far as they were recoverable against the land at the time the rent accrued; i.e., for six years prior to its accruing: Walton v. Bernard, 2 Gr. 358; Horrison v. Jones, 10 Gr. 99. A prior mortgagee is not bound to account to a subsequent mortgagee on the footing of a mortgagee in possession, merely because there is an attornment clause in the prior mortgage, if he has not actually taken possession: Western District Bank, Limited v. Turner, 47 L. T. 433; Stonley v. Grundy, 22 Ch. D. 478; 48 L. T. 106. May set off arrears of interest.

Tenants in Common.—A tenant in common who has been in exclusive occupation, cannot be charged with an occupation rent, if he has not ousted his co-tenant: Rice v. George, 20 Gr. 221; Re Kirkpatrick, Kirkpatrick v. Stevenson, 10 P. R. 4; except where his co-tenant is an infant: Courcier v. Courcier, 26 Gr. 307. But he cannot recover for substantial repairs, and improvements: Rice v. George, supra; nor even for incumbrances paid off by him, unless he also submits to account for an occupation rent: Teasdale v. Sanderson, 33 Beav. 534; Rivet v. Desourdi, 12 C. L. J. 203. But a tenant in common who has been in exclusive occupation, and has ousted his co-tenant, is liable to account for an occupation rent: Pascoe v. Swan, 27 Beav. 508. Tenants in common, how far liable for occupation rent.

Heirs.—Prior to The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), an heir-at-law was liable to account to a dowress for an occupation rent: Bamford v. Bamford, 5 Ha. 203. Heir-at-law.

Devisee.—Under the law as it stood previous to The Devolution of Estates Act, devisees in possession of land devised, charged with a legacy, were not bound to account for back rents, when the land proved insufficient to satisfy the legacy: Gorfitt v. Allen, 37 Ch. D. 48; Re Oliver, 82 L. T. 583. Devisee.

Trustees, express or constructive, in occupation of the trust property, are liable to account to their cestuis que trustent for an occupa- Trustees.

tion rent: Mill v. Hill, 3 H. L. C. 828; Lamont v. Lamont, 7 Gr. 236; Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 686.

Mistake of Title.—No occupation rent should be charged against a person who has been in occupation under a mistake of title, in respect of the increased value thereof arising from improvements made by him, which are not allowed to him: McGregor v. McGregor, 3 Ont. 617; Munsie v. Lindsay, 10 P. R. 173. Where occupation rent is charged in respect of property which has been improved by the occupant, according to the value as increased by the improvements, interest should be allowed on the outlay for the improvements: Munsie v. Lindsay, 11 Ont. 520.

Persons in possession under void deeds, how far entitled to be allowed for improvements.

Improvements:—

Persons in Possession of Lands under void Deeds, making lasting improvements, by which the value of the estate has been enhanced, may, within certain limits, be allowed for such improvements: Jortin v. South Eastern Railway Co., 2 Sm. & G. at p. 73; Quarrel v. Beckford, 14 Ves. at p. 179; and whether in, as actual, or constructive, trustees: Williamson v. Seeber, 3 Y. & C. Ex. 171; Cawdor v. Lewis, 1 Y. & C. Ex. 427; Bridge v. Brown, 2 Y. & C. C. C., 191; Bevis v. Boulton, 7 Gr. 39; or as solicitors: Robinson v. Ridley, 6 Mad. 2; or agents: Trevelyan v. White, 1 Beav. 588; or as mortgagees believing themselves absolutely entitled: Neeson v. Clarkson, 2 Ha. 176; S. C., 4 Ha. 97; or as a bonâ fide purchaser under the void deed: Ashton v. Innis, 26 Gr. 42; Churcher v. Bates, 42 U. C. Q. B. 466; Pegley v. Woods, 14 Gr. 47; Gummerson v. Banting, 18 Gr. 516; and the claim for such improvements may be actively enforced, and allowed, whether the party claiming them be plaintiff or defendant: Ib.; but see Re Brazill, Barry v. Brazill, 11 Gr. at p. 256; and even though the party claiming advereely be an infant: Bevis v. Boulton, supra; and see Bichn v. Bichn, 18 Gr. 497; Wood v. Wood, 16 Gr. 471.

But when possession had been taken in pursuance of an immoral agreement which was void, it was held that there could be no lien for improvements: Moon v. Clarke, 30 C. P. 417.

Purchaser.—A purchaser failing to complete his purchase is not entitled to be allowed for improvements: Re Yoggie, 1 Chy. Ch. 52.

Tenants in common.

Tenants in Common are entitled to contribution from their co-tenants for the cost of repairs made to prevent the property from going to ruin; Co. Lit., 200 b.; Fitzherbert, N. B., 127; but not for ordinary repairs: Leigh v. Dickeson, 12 Q. B. D. 194; 50 L. T. 124; Re Jones, Forrington v. Forrester, 1893, 2 Ch. 461; Curry v. Curry, 25 Ont. App. at p. 277; unless they submit to be charged with rents and profits: Ib.

The right of a tenant in common in partition proceedings to be paid for improvements is restricted to such as are made by him after the tenancy has commenced in fact: Lasby v. Crewson, 21 Ont. 255.

Where land held in common is sold under a paramount mortgage, money expended by one of the tenants in common in permanent improvements will be allowed to him in distributing the surplus: Re Cook's Mortgage, 74 L. T. 652.

Tenants for life.

Tenants for Life are not entitled to charge for repairs as against the inheritance, however substantial or lasting: Lewin, 9th ed., 642;

Re Smith, 4 Ont. 518; sed vide, Conway v. Fenton, 40 Ch. D. 512; nor are they chargeable with repairs: In re Freman, 1898, 1 Ch. 28; nor liable to account for permissive waste: Patterson v. Central Canada Loan Co., 15 Ont. 134; and see p. 13, supra. Rule 410.

Tenants at Will.—Improvements made by a tenant at will cannot be allowed: Foster v. Emmerson, 5 Gr. 135; but improvements made on wild land by a son, to whom his father had promised to give it by way of advancement, which he failed to do, were allowed as against the co-heirs of the father: Biehn v. Biehn, 18 Gr. 497; Hovey v. Ferguson, see 18 Gr. 498; but see Foster v. Emmerson, supra. Tenants at will, improvements by Trustees.—Substantial and lasting improvements, and repairs, made by a trustee on the trust property, are usually allowed to him: Bevis v. Boulton, 7 Gr. 39; Mill v. Hill, 3 H. L. C. 828; Smith v. Bonnistecl, 13 Gr. at p. 35; Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 624; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 352; Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 682; Davey v. Durant, 1 De G. & J. 535; King v. Anderson, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 625, 636. Repairs are allowed, even in the case of actual fraud: Baugh v. Price, 1 G. Wms., 320; and in one case improvements also: Oliver v. Court, 8 Price, 172; but see contra, Kenney v. Browne, 3 Ridg. 518; Stratton v. Murphy, 1 Ir. R. Eq. 361. Trustees are entitled to be allowed for improvements on trust estate.

Receivers.—A receiver has been allowed for improvements made, without the previous sanction of the Court: Tempest v. Ord, 2 Mer. 55. Receivers.

Committee of Lunatic.—A committee has been allowed for improvements made, without previous sanction: Re Shaw, 15 Gr. 618; Re Churchill, 3 Jur. 719. Committee.

Personal Representative.—An unauthorized expenditure by an executrix in improving the realty, was allowed, so far as the value of the estate has been enhanced, and those interested had benefited by it: Morley v. Matthews, 14 Gr. 551. But where an administratrix had occupied and improved the realty, in a suit by her for administration, such improvements were disallowed as against infant heirs; but she was not charged with any increase of rental in consequence of such improvements: Re Brazill, Borry v. Brazill, 11 Gr. 253. Personal representative.

Mortgagee.—The ordinary rule is, that a mortgagee will not be allowed for improvements further than is proper to keep the premises in necessary repair. But if buildings are incomplete, or ruinous, he may complete, or pull them down, and rebuild, and the rebuilding, or repairing, may be done in an improved manner, and more substantially than before, so that the work be done providently, and that no new, or expensive, buildings be erected for purposes different from those for which the former buildings were used; for the property when restored ought to be of the same nature as when the mortgagee received it: Fisher, Mortg., 5th ed., s. 1781. And while the mortgagee in possession is not allowed to charge for lasting improvements which are not requisite for the purpose of keeping the property in necessary repair, he is not, on the other hand, chargeable with the increased rents and profits which are directly traceable to such improvements made by him: see Jones on Mortgages, s. 1127. Mortgagee. Mortgagees entitled to be allowed for necessary repairs. But only such as are necessary for preservation of property.

Mortgagees in possession are entitled to be allowed for necessary repairs, as just allowances. Under Rule 410, no special direction in the judgment is necessary to enable the Master, in a proper case, to allow substantial improvements.

A mortgagee in possession cannot charge the mortgaged property with improvements that are not necessary for its preservation: Harrison v. Jones, 10 Gr. 99; unless with the consent of the parties entitled to the equity of redemption: Kirby v. Kirby, 5 Gr. 587. And improvements made even with the mortgagor's sanction must not be such as to improve him out of his property: Snndon v. Hooper, 6 Beav. 246; Fisher, Mortg. s. 1783. But a mortgagee is not bound to give the mortgagor notice before making any reasonable permanent improvement: Shepherd v. Jones, 47 L. T. 604; 21 Ch. D. 469.

Wrongdoers not allowed for improvements.

Wrongdoers.—A mere wrongdoer, entering without colour of right, is not usually allowed for improvements made by him: Townsley v Neil, 10 Gr. 72; Scott v. Hunter, 14 Gr. 376; nor persons entering with actual notice of a paramount title: Wyoming v. Bell, 24 Gr. 564; Smith v. Gibson, 25 C. P. 248; Kilborn v. Workman, 9 Gr. 255; Grassett v. Carter, before Boyd, C., 2nd Sept., 1884.

Exceptions to rule.

But it would seem that mere legal fraud will not deprive a party of the right to improvements: McLaren v. Fraser, 17 Gr. at p. 569; and see Nevills v. Nevills, 6 Gr. 121, 139; and the owner standing by and not objecting, may preclude himself from getting back his estate, except on the terms of paying for improvements: Davis v. Snyder, 1 Gr. 134; McBride v. McNeil, 27 O. L. R. 455.

Mistake of title, improvements made under, how far recoverable.

Improvements made under Mistake of Title.—Lasting improvements made under a bona fide mistake of title may now be allowed, and the person making them and his assigns are entitled to a lien on the land therefor: The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 37; Fawcett v. Burwell, 27 Gr. 445; McGregor v. McGregor, Ib., 470; McCarthy v. Arbuckle, 29 C. P. 529; Carrick v. Smith, 34 U. C. Q. B. 389; Skae v. Chapman, 21 Gr. 549; Munsie v. Lindsay, 10 P. R. 173; 19 C. L. J. 186; Plumb v. Steinhoff, 2 Ont. 614; or the property may be vested in the person making the improvement on payment therefor, where it is in the nature of a trifling encroachment on adjoining land: Ward v. Sanderson, 48 C. L. J. 231. But improvements made with actual knowledge of the paramount title will not be allowed under that Act: Wyoming v. Bell, 24 Gr. 564; Smith v. Gibson, 25 C. P. 248; The Commissioners of Q. V. Park v. Coit, 22 Ont. App. 1; and see Kilborn v. Workman, 9 Gr. 225. Improvements made after action commenced cannot be allowed: O'Grady v. McCaffray, 2 Ont. 309; Bright v. Campbell, 53 L. T. 428; but improvements made after notice of an adverse claim were allowed: Corbett v. Corbett, 12 O. L. R. 268.

By mortgagee.

Improvements made under mistake of title by a person in as mortgagee, but believing himself to be absolute owner, are allowed more liberally than improvements made by a mortgagee knowing that he is a mortgagee: Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173.

By mortgagor.

Improvements made by a purchaser from a mortgagor under the erroneous belief that the mortgage had been discharged, cannot be claimed as against the mortgagee: Beaty v. Shaw, 14 Ont. App. 600.

By husband.

A husband is not entitled to be paid by his wife for improvements made by him on her lands while in his occupation: Till v. Till, 15 Ont. 133.

A mortgagee of a person making lasting improvements under mistake of title is an "assign," and as such entitled to the extent of his mortgage, to the benefit of the lien for such improvements: McKibbon v. Williams, 24 Ont. App. 122. Rule 410

Where a mortgagee is charged with rents, or improved rents, arising from his improvements, he should either be allowed for such improvements: Constable v. Guest, 6 Gr. 510; Patterson v. Dort, 24 O. L. R. 609; or he should not be charged with the rent, or improved rent, arising therefrom: McGregor v. McGregor, 5 Ont. 617; 19 C. L. J. 78; Muasie v. Lindsey, 10 P. R. 173; Bright v. Campbell, 53 L. T. 428; and see Curry v. Curry, 17 P. R. 379; 25 Ont. App. 267.

A person who had bona fide purchased under a power of sale contained in a mortgage, notwithstanding the sale was held invalid, was allowed improvements made by him as far as they enhanced the value of the property, and was not restricted to such improvements as a mortgagee in possession would have been entitled to make, he acting himself to be a mortgagee: Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. [illegible], and see McLaren v. Fraser, 17 Gr. 567; Dovey v. Durant, 1 De G. & J. 534. But where a purchaser from a mortgagee, who had obtained a decree for foreclosure, which was defective owing to there being outstanding claims, which were not foreclosed, entered, and made improvements having notice of the outstanding title, such improvements were disallowed as against the unforeclosed parties: Russell v. Romanes, 3 Ont. App. 635; and see Romanes v. Herns, 22 Gr. 469. Improvements by purchaser when sale invalid allowed [illegible] have known [illegible] defe

What Improvements Allowed.—The Master is not necessarily bound to allow the actual cost of improvements, but should limit the allowance to the benefit which the property has derived therefrom: Paul v. Johnson, 12 Gr. at p. 479. The clearing of land for farming purposes is a permanent improvement under The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70), s. 29 (b); Robinet v. Pickering, 44 U. C. Q. B. 337. What improvements allowed.

After action commenced, the only improvements which can ordinarily be allowed, are such as are made to save the premises from deterioration: Hawn v. Cashion, 20 Gr. 518; and see O'Grody v. McCaffray, 2 Ont. 309.

Trustees with power to invest in the purchase of real estate, may be allowed for erecting a new building where an increased income can be obtained thereby: Re Henderson, 23 Gr. 45.

A rector cannot make a lease with a covenant to pay for improvements, which will be binding on his successor: Kirkpatrick v. Lyster, 13 Gr. 323; 18 Gr. 17; unless there be some statutory provision empowering him so to do. Covenant to pay for improvements in rectorial lease invalid.

Where a mortgagor released his equity of redemption, and two months afterwards the mortgagee agreed to reconvey, upon being repaid principal and interest, and all costs of improvements made by him, on a bill to redeem, the mortgagee was held entitled to recover for all permanent improvements, although the estate might not have been increased in value to an amount equal to the sum expended: Brotherton v. Hetherington, 23 Gr. 187. Mortgagee submitting to redemption entitled to all improvements.

Costs, and other Expenses:—

Mortgagees.—A mortgagee is entitled to charge against the estate the costs of defending the title to the mortgaged estate, for the benefit of all parties interested in the equity of redemption; and also Costs and expenses recoverable by mortgagees.

Rule 410.

the costs of proceedings taken to perfect his security, e.g., the costs of an equitable mortgagee of investigating the title for the purpose of preparing a legal mortgage, and the costs of preparing such legal mortgage are recoverable: National Provl. Bank v. Gomes, 53 L. T. 955; 54 L. T. 696; 31 Ch. D. 582; also the costs of an action brought against a surety of the mortgagor: Sachs v. Ashby, 88 L. T. 393; also, costs of a suit to redeem, brought by a subsequent incumbrancer, and dismissed: McKinnon v. Anderson, 17 Gr. 636; 18 Gr. 684; but not the costs of defending his own title to the mortgage, unless those interested in the equity of redemption had concurred in, or assisted, the litigation: Parker v. Watkins, John. 133; nor yet the costs of an unsuccessful litigation undertaken by him without the concurrence of the mortgagor: Wells v. The Trust and Loan Co., 9 Ont. 170.

Formerly solicitor trustee not entitled to profit costs.

Where a mortgagee is a solicitor and takes legal proceedings in person to recover the mortgage debt, he was formerly, upon redemption, not entitled to charge the mortgagor with his profit costs: Re Wallis, 25 Q. B. D. 176; 62 L. T. 674; but only his costs out of pocket: Stone v. Lickorish, 1891, 2 Ch. 363; 64 L. T. 29; and see Field v. Hopkins, 44 Ch. D. 524; 62 L. T. 102; but where the proceedings were taken by his partner, the latter might recover the proportion of such profit costs to which he was entitled: Re Doody, Fisher v. Doody, 1893, 1 Ch. 129; Re Rollit, 96 L. T. Jour. 199; and see Eyre v. Wynn-Mackenzie, 1894, 1 Ch. 218; but a solicitor mortgagee could not recover profit costs against the mortgagor because he also acted as solicitor for his co-mortgagee who was not a solicitor: Re Doody, Hibbert v. Lloyd, 1893, 1 Ch. 129; 67 L. T. 650; and it was held that a solicitor mortgagee, who was a trustee, was not entitled to profit costs of suits brought by him in respect of the mortgaged property: Sclofor v. Colton, 29 L. T. O. S. 309; 3 Jur. N. S. 630; 5 W. R. 744; but see contra, Re Donaldson, 27 Ch. D. 544; 51 L. T. 622, and a covenant to pay profit costs to a solicitor mortgagee was void in equity as an attempt to clog the right of redemption: see Eyre v. Wynn-Mackenzie, supra.

Now he is.

But now under The Solicitors Act (R. S. O. c. 159), ss. 68, 69, a solicitor is entitled to recover profit costs, for all proceedings or business done by him connected with the making, execution, or collection of a mortgage made to him as trustee, alone, or jointly with others.

In Re Griffith, 50 L. T. 434, it was said by Cotton, L.J., that in a foreclosure action "the mortgagor must pay all the costs of the mortgagee, including those payable by the latter to his solicitor."

Costs of sales.

The mortgagee may also be allowed the expenses of sales, and of receiving the purchase money: Fisher, Mortg., 5th ed., sec. 1785, and also the costs of an abortive sale, where it has fallen through without the default of the mortgagee: Forrer v. Lacy, 31 Ch. D. 42; 50 L. T. 121. But he is not entitled to a commission on a sale in addition to the costs, even though he has stipulated for it: Eyre v. Hughes, 2 Ch. D. 148; Broad v. Selfe, 9 Jur. N. S. 835.

Where a mortgagee had made a sale of part of the land, but before it was completely carried out found another purchaser at a better price, a payment to the assignee of the rights of the first purchaser, to obtain a release from him, was allowed in the mortgage account: Laws v. Toronto General Trusts Corp., 8 O. L. R. 522.

Costs of taking possession, etc.

A mortgagee of a ship is also entitled to the expenses of taking and holding possession, advertising it for sale, and insurances: Wilkes v. Saunion, 7 Ch. D. 188.

Where the mortgage so provides, a mortgagee may recover a commission for renewing notes held as collateral to the mortgage, but not unless the notes are actually renewed, even though the mortgagor has had all the time he would have had, had they been renewed: Bucknell v. Vickery, 64 L. T. 701; also bonuses and commissions agreed to at the time of the advance, where the security is of a speculative character: Gordiner v. Munro, 28 Ont. 375. Rule 410.

He is not entitled to charge for personal trouble in collecting rents: Bonithon v. Hockmore, 1 Vern. 316; Longstaffe v. Fenwick, 10 Ves. 405; Godfrey v. Watson, 3 Atk. 518; Leith v. Irvine, 1 M. & K. 277; not even if he has stipulated for it with the mortgagor: French v. Baron, 2 Atk. 120; Barrett v. Hartley, L. R. 2 Eq. 789; Chambers v. Goldwin, 9 Ves. 271. But the mortgagee is entitled to an allowance for an agent, or bailiff, collecting rents where the property is of such a character that a prudent owner, whose time was of value, would appoint an agent: Union Bank v. Ingram, 16 Ch. D. 53. But in the case of services rendered by solicitor mortgagees: see supra, p. 952. Cannot charge for personal services, but may for agent's services collecting rents.

Insurance.—Sums paid for insurance by a mortgagee cannot, in the absence of a special contract, be charged against the mortgaged estate: Bellamy v. Brickenden, 2 J. & H. 137; Brook v. Stone, 13 W. R. 401; Dobson v. Land, 8 Ha. 216; Russell v. Robertson, 1 Chy. Ch. 72; 6 U. C. L. J. 143; but see Scholefield v. Lockwood, 11 W. R. 555. But in the case of a trustee, such payments may be allowed, without any express stipulation to that effect in the instrument creating the trust: Heron v. Moffatt, 22 Gr. 370. Insurance, when recoverable.

Where a subsequent account is directed to be taken, sums properly paid for insurance since the last account, may be allowed under the head of just allowances, without any express direction: Bethune v. Calcutt, 3 Gr. 648.

Prior Incumbrances.—A mortgagee paying off prior incumbrances, is entitled to recover the amount paid, and interest on the principal, at the rate in his own mortgage, and on the interest and costs, at the legal rate: McMaster v. Hector, 8 C. L. J. 284; and see Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85. But a tenant in common in sole possession paying off incumbrances, is not entitled to be allowed therefor, unless he submits to account for an occupation rent: Rivet v. Desourdi, 12 C. L. J. 203. Prior incumbrances.

Trustees and Personal Representatives.—Trustees are entitled to recover, as against the beneficiaries, the expense of bailiffs, surveyors, and accountants, where necessarily employed, and also the necessary legal expenses of carrying the trust into effect: Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 2 S. & S. 237; McNamara v. Jones, 2 Dick. 587; Henderson v. McIver, 3 Mad. 275. Trustees entitled as against c. q. t. to expenses of bailiffs, etc.

The costs and expenses of taking care of a specific legacy before such legacy is assented to, are payable out of the specific legacy, or by the specific legatee: Re Pearce, Crutchley v. Wells, 1909, 1 Ch. 819; 100 L. T. 699; and estate duty payable in respect of a donatio mortis causa was held to be not "a testamentary expense" within the meaning of a will providing for the testamentary expenses of the testator's estate: Re Hudson, Spencer v. Turner, 1911, 1 Ch. 206; 103 L. T. 718.

As to what expenses come under the head of "testamentary expenses": see Re Clemow, 1900, 2 Ch. 182; Re Treasure, 1900, 2 Ch. 648.

Rule 410.

Trustees are also entitled to be allowed the costs paid to the representatives of a deceased trustee properly incurred by the latter in reference to the trust; also the costs incurred by them, on being appointed to the trust, of examining into the state of the trust property, the validity of the power under which they were appointed, and the costs paid of the donee of the power in making the appointment: Harvey v. Oliver, 57 L. T. 239.

So also a trustee is entitled to have his costs out of the trust estate even though, by reason of subsequent events, the trust becomes invalid: In re Holden, 20 Q. B. D. 43.

Where trustees were authorized by a will to carry on a business, with power to appoint one of their number manager thereof at a salary, the payment to a trustee of such salary was disallowed as against creditors of the testator's estate, it being insolvent: Re Salmen, Salmen v. Bernstein, 107 L. T. 108, but this decision turns to some extent on the ground that in England a trustee acts gratuitously.

Solicitor trustee when entitled to charge for professional services.

Formerly a trustee acting as solicitor for himself in any action was only entitled to costs and expenses out of pocket, properly incurred: Moore v. Frowd, 3 My. & Cr. 45, 50; Robinson v. Pett, 2 W. & T. Lead. Ca. Eq. 214; Re Corsellis, 33 Ch. D. 160; 34 Ch. D. 675; 55 L. T. 167; unless there was a special power to charge for professional services: Re Sherwood, 3 Beav. 338; Moore v. Frowd, supra; Re Wyche, 11 Beav. 209; but even then, no charge could be allowed for doing professionally, anything that he would have been bound to do himself, if not a solicitor: Harbin v. Dorby, 28 Beav. 325; Re Chapple, 27 Ch. D. 584; 51 L. T. 748; Re Cholinder, 1907, 1 Ch. 58; 96 L. T. 196; and what he could not charge for professionally himself, he could not recover for, if done by a partner though not a trustee: Christophers v. White, 10 Beav. 523; Collins v. Corey, 2 Beav. 128; but the partner might recover any part of such costs to which he was entitled for his own benefit: Clack v. Carlon, 7 Jur. N. S. 441; 9 W. R. 568; but where a solicitor trustee was one of several trustees, and acted for them, he might recover profit costs against the trust estate. The rule on this point was laid down in Crodock v. Piper, 1 Mac. & G. 664; 17 Sim. 41, viz., that where a solicitor (or his firm) appears in a suit on behalf of himself and a co-trustee, and the expense has not thereby been increased, then the solicitor (or his firm, as the case may be), is entitled to the usual full costs: see Re Doody, 1893, 1 Ch. at p. 138; In re Barber, Burgess v. Vinicome, 34 Ch. D. 77; 55 L. T. 882; Re Thorpe, 1891, 2 Ch. 360; 64 L. T. 654; but this rule was held not to extend to professional services rendered by a solicitor trustee to the trust estate out of Court; Re Williams, 4 O. L. R. 501. Though the rule so laid down has been frequently regretted, and its propriety questioned, and it was held that it should not be extended, it was nevertheless established: Re Corsellis, 34 Ch. D. 675; 55 L. T. 167; Re Doody, supra; Re Mimico Sewer Pipe Co., 26 Ont. 289; see also Re McNab, 19 C. L. T. 74; and its principle applied to counsel fees, where the solicitor trustee was also counsel in the case: Strachan v. Rutton, 15 P. R. 109; but see Lewin, 9th ed., 300; Manson v. Baillie, 2 Macq. 80. See also Re Roberts, 43 Ch. D. 52, and a collection of the authorities in 20 C. L. J. 218. The profit costs of professional services which could not be recovered against the c. q. t., or out of the trust estate, might be recoverable by the trustee against a third party: Colonial Trust Co. v. Cameron, 24 Gr. 548; Meighen v. Buell, 25 Gr. 604; Re Donaldson, 27 Ch. D. 544;

Rule in Cradock v. Piper.

51 L. T. 622; but see Re Corselis, Lawton v. Elwes, 33 Ch. D. 160; 34 Ch. D. 675; 55 L. T. 167; and 82 L. T. Jour. 280; 23 C. L. J. 146. Rule 410.

It must ha remembered, however, that the English cases on this point are all founded on the principia that according to English Law a trustea is not to be allowed to maka any profit out of the trust, and is entitled to no compensation for his services: aea per Lord Hatherley in Clack v. Carlon, 7 Jur. N. S. 441, although in Meighen v. Buell, 24 Gr. 508, Spragge, C., was of opinion that ona important consideration in disallowing such costs is the removal of the temptation to unnecessary litigation. How far tha English cases on the right of solicitor trustees to costs should ha followed, seems open to some question, having regard to the difference in the law of Ont. as to a trustee's right to compensation for his services: seo The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67; Re Leckie, 36 C. L. J. 136.

The rule which denied a professional trustee tha right to charge for professionnl services rendered to the trust estate, has moreover now been materially modified by The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67 (4), whereby it is provided that: "Where a barrister or solicitor is trustee, guardian, or personal representative, and has rendered necessary professional services to tha estate, regard may be had in making the allowance (i.e., the allowance of compensation for services) to such circumstance, and the allowance shall be increased hy such amount as may be deemed fair and reasonable in respect of such services." R.S.O. c. 121, s. 67 (4).

Having regard to the provisions of The Trustee Act and The Solicitors Act abova referred to, it would seem to be clear that the former rules prohibiting aolicitor trustees, or mortgagees, from recovering profit costa from their c. q. t. or mortgagors are, in effect, ahrogated, and this right to remuneration being now recognized hy statute, the quantum will be, the ordinary taxahle charges. Solicitor mortgagees

Where costs had been taxed and allowed to tha solicitors of an executor in an administration action, it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction, on an interlocutory appiication in that action, to compel tha executor to account for, and refund, a share of the profit costs, to which, under a secret arrangement with the solicitors, he was entitled; but that a naw action would have to be brought to compel him to sccount therafor: Re Thorpe, 1891, 2 Ch. 360; 64 L. T. 554.

Even though a will empowers a trustea to charge for his professional services, still, in the absence of express power to do so, trustees, or executors, cannot settle the amount payahle out of tha estate for such services to one of themselves, so aa to oind tha cestui que trust and preclude him from the right to have such costs taxed if ha desires it: Re Fish, 1893, 2 Ch. 413; 69 L. T. 233.

Where an executor and trustee is authorized hy will to charge the estate for his professional services as solicitor, that right is in the nature of a legacy, and cannot he asserted in competition with creditors: Re White, 1898, 1 Ch. 297; 2 Ch. 217; 77 L. T. 793; 78 L. T. 770; Re Salmen, Salmen v. Bernstein, supra, p. 954; sed vide The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67; Harrison v. Patterson, 11 Gr. 105, 113.

A retaining fee paid hy trustees to their solicitor in an administration suit, may ha allowed under certain circumstances: see Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 479; and see Hayes v. Hayes, 29 Gr. 90; hut thay are not entitled to any allowance for gratuitous services of an agent: Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 479. Retaining fee and costs paid by trustee, how far recoverable.

Rule 416.

Costs paid by an executor, administrator, or trustee, to his solicitor, in respect of business of the trust estate, may be allowed, but the Master should examine the bill, and without strictly taxing it, should moderate it, by deducting such charges, if any, as are improper: McCargar v. McKinnon, 17 Gr. 525; Hayes v. Hoyes, 26 Gr. 90; and where the costs have been paid out of the trust estate, and bonâ fide received by the solicitor without notice of any breach of trust on his client's part, he cannot be made to refund the costs so received to the estate, even though it should turn out that the trustee has disentitled himself to get the costs out of the estate: Re Blundell, Blundell v. Blundell, 58 L. T. 933; and see Brinsden v. Williams, 1894, 3 Ch. 385; 71 L. T. 77.

A personal representative is not liable to pay costs incurred by a beneficiary in reference to the estate, and for its protection, before the grant of probate, or letters of administration: Re Watson, 19 Q. B. D. 234; 57 L. T. 215.

Trustees' expenses are a lien on trust estate.

Trustees' expenses are a lien upon the trust estate, and have priority to the costs of suit: Morison v. Morison, 7 D. M. & G. 214; 2 S. & G. 564; Gount v. Toylor, 2 Ha. 413; Hughes v. Rees, 10 P. R. 301; unless the payments are not strictly authorized, and the estate is insufficient: Robison v. Killey, 30 Beav. 520; or they have misconducted themselves: Rose v. Sharrod, 11 W. R. 356.

A personal representative is entitled to be recouped out of the estate any costs he may be put to, or incur, without impropriety or fraud, in connection with the estate; and he is entitled to set-off, against the claims of next of kin, or other beneficiaries, costs of an unsuccessful litigation, which they have been ordered to pay him: Re Jones, 1897, 2 Ch. 190; 76 L. T. 454.

Just allowances.

Just Allowances.—Several of the matters which may be allowed under the head of "just allowances" have already been discussed in the preceding notes to this Rule.

Compensation to executors and trustees.

Allowances to Executors, and Trustees.—Compensation for care, pains, and trouble, may be allowed by the Master to trustees under any deed, settlement, or will; or to any other trustee, however the trust is created; and to executors, and administrators; and to any guardian appointed by any Court; or to any testamentary guardian: The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67; Re Commissioners of Cobourg, 22 Gr. 377; Re Toronto Horbour Commissioners, 28 Gr. 195. The Act is retrospective: Thompson v. Freemon, 15 Gr. 384; McMillan v. McMillan, 21 Gr. 365; Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 688. The Surrogate Judge has also power to allow compensation to trustees under wills, and to executors, and administrators: The Trustee Act, s. 67 (3); and he may now allow compensation to professional trustees for services rendered by them to the trust estate as barristers, and solicitors: see Ib., s. 67 (4). But where an action is pending in the Supreme Court for the administration of an estate, it is improper for the Surrogate Judge to interfere by ordering the allowance of compensation to the executors, or trustees: McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. 279; Cameron v. Bethune, 15 Gr. 436. And the Master is bound to exercise his own discretion as to the compensation to be allowed, regardless of any order of a Surrogate Judge made under such circumstances: Biggar v. Dickson, 15 Gr. 233.

A trustee of municipal debentures issued in aid of a railway, who holds them in trust, to be handed to the company in a certain event, is entitled to compensation, and has a lien on the debentures therefor: Re Tilsonburgh, L. Erie & P. Ry. Co., 24 Ont. App. 378. Rule 410.

A person acquiring lands under circumstances which constituto him a constructive trustee thereof for another, is entitled to be recouped his purchase money, and the lasting improvements made by him to the amount which the value of the property has been thereby enhanced: Rowley v. Ginnever, 1897, 2 Ch. 503; 77 L. T. 302.

A trustee does not lose his right to compensation where part of the trust fund has been lost under circumstances for which he is not responsible, as, for instance, where the loss was occasioned by the fraud of a properly selected agent to whom he had entrusted it: Jobson v. Palmer, 1893, 1 Ch. 71; 67 L. T. 797.

No fixed rule as to amount of compensation.

No fixed rule can be laid down as to the amount of compensation proper to be allowed, as it must necessarily depend on the circumstances of each case: see Robinson v. Pett, 2 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 214. Usually the amount is fixed by a percentage on the amount of money passing through the hands of the trustee, or executor. In some cases five per cent. has been allowed: Bold v. Thompson, 17 Gr. 154; McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. 178; Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 479; Re Batt, Wright v. White, 9 P. R. 447; Re Fleming, 11 P. R. 272, 426; Archer v. Severn, 13 Ont. 316; Re McIntyre, McIntyre v. London & Western Trust Co., 7 O. L. R. 548. But this may in some cases be more, and in some less, than an adequate compensation. In Torrance v. Chewett, 12 Gr. 407, four per cent. was allowed; and in McMillan v. McMillan, 21 Gr. 381, two and a-half per cent. was allowed. The Master may, instead of a percentage, allow a lump sum, but only on proper evidence as to the services rendered: Stinson v. Stinson, 8 P. R. 560; Denison v. Denison, 17 Gr. 306. In fixing compensation, it has been suggested that it would be proper to adopt a sliding scale, similar in principle to that on which the poundage of Sheriffs is fixed; see observations of Spragge, V.C., in Thompson v. Freeman, 15 Gr. at p. 387. In that case, the estate amounted to nearly $300,000, and five per cent. on the amounts disbursed, which included investments, and reinvestments, made in the course of fifteen years, was considered excessive; and on appeal, the allowance was reduced to five per cent. on investments of sums of $600, and three per cent. on investments over that amount.

Usually a percentage on receipts and payments.

But a lump sum may be allowed

A sliding scale suggested.

Allowance of percentage on investments and reinvestments disapproved.

But in a later case it was considered vicious in principle, to allow any commission on investments, or reinvestments, on the ground that it offered an inducement to trustees to be constantly, and unnecessarily, calling in and changing the investments: Re Berkeley's Trusts, 8 P. R. 193; followed in Re Williams, 4 O. L. R. 501. No commission should be allowed for merely receiving the trust estate until it has also been duly accounted for: Ib., Re McIntyre, McIntyre v. London & Western Trust Co., 7 O. L. R. 548.

Where trust property consisting of land was exchanged, with the consent of the cestui que trust, for stock in a land company, from which nothing had been realized by way of income, and both land and stock were said to be valueless, a percentage on the nominal value of the stock was held to be an improper way of fixing the trustees' compensation; and a lump sum to cover their care and trouble was allowed instead: Re Prittie, 13 P. R. 19.

Rule 410.

Legacies given to executors as compensation

A legacy given to a person appointed executor is primâ facie intended as a compensation, and if the legatee renounce, he is not entitled to the legacy: Williams on Executors (9th ed.), 1147; Re Appelton, Barber v. Tebbitt, 52 L. T. 906; and the fact that legacies are left to other executors of unequal amount is not sufficient to destroy the presumption: Ib.

Where a legacy is given to executors or trustees without any stipulation that it is to be a compensation for their trouble, they are not precluded from claiming a further sum under the statute, if the legacy is inadequate: Denison v. Denison, 17 Gr. 306; Hiddingh v. Denyssen; Hiddingh v. De Villiers, 12 App. Cas. 107, 624; 57 L. T. 885; Re Fish, 1893, 2 Ch. 413; 69 L. T. 233; Frecborn v. Vandusen, 15 P. R. 264; and so also in the case of a devise: McClenaghan v. Perkins, 5 O. L. R. 129; but where it is expressly stated to be in lieu of compensation, it would seem that no further compensation can be allowed under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67; Williams v. Roy, 9 Ont. 534; 21 C. L. J. 236; Kennedy v. Pingle, 27 Gr. 305. Such a legacy precludes any presumption that the executor is entitled beneficially to the undisposed of residue: Loveless v. Clarke, 24 Gr. 14; but see Boys' Home v. Lewis, 4 Gnt. 18.

Do not abate.

Such a legacy, in the event of a deficiency of assets, does not abate with other legacies, even though it exceeds what the executor would be entitled to under the statute: Anderson v. Dougall, 15 Gr. 405; and such legacies bear interest at the expiration of a year from the testator's death: Anderson v. Dougall, per Strong, V.C., on appeal from report, 8th and 14th Dec., 1870; but see Re White, 1898, 1 Ch. 297; 2 Ch. 217; 77 L. T. 703; 78 L. T. 770.

Bear interest.

Where a legacy is given to an executor for compensation, and is followed by a bequest of residue to him quo executor "to be at his discretion," the latter gift is for the benefit of the next of kin: Re Howell, Liggins v. Buckinghom, 1914, 2 Ch. 173.

Where the executor is also a residuary legatee, he is entitled to commission on the receipt, but not on the payment, of the share of the residue to which he is beneficially entitled: Boys' Home v. Lewis, 19 C. L. J. 139; Re Fleming, 11 P. R. 272, 426.

Where, on appeal from the Master, the Court increased the allowance for compensation, the Court of Appeal refused to interfere: McDonold v. Dovidson, 6 Ont. App. 320.

When trust fixes compensation

Where the amount of a trustee's compensation is fixed by the trust deed, the Master cannot reduce the amount: Heron v. Moffatt, 7 P. R. 438; nor can he increase it: The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67 (5).

Master cannot allow less.

Executors are entitled to some compensation for moneys received by them pendente lite, but not so much as in other cases: Re Honsberger, 10 Gnt. 521; Thompson v. Fairboirn, 11 P. R. 333.

Misconduct how far it disentitles executor to compensation.

Misconduct in the management of the estate may, but does not necessarily, disentitle an executor, or trustee, to compensation for what he has properly done: see Kennedy v. Pingle, 27 Gr. 305; Sieveright v. Leys, 1 Gnt. 375; Gould v. Burritt, 11 Gr. 523; City Bank v. Maulson, 3 Chy. Ch. 334; Hoover v. Wilson, 24 Ont. App. 424; McClenoghan v. Perkins, 5 O. L. R. 129; Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. T. 688. But commission cannot be allowed on moneys which were not actually received, but charged against the executor, or trustee, on the ground of wilful default: Bald v. Thompson, 17 Gr. 154.

Rule 410.

Nor is the fact that a balance is found against an executor, part of which is occasioned by the allowance of a surcharge, alone sufficient to disentitle him to compensation: Stevenwright v. Leys, 1 Ont. 375; McCardle v. Moore, 2 Ont. 229. Formerly, an executor, not being a trustee of the realty, was not entitled to receive the rents thereof, and if he did, he was a mere intermeddler, and not entitled to any compensation in respect of such rents: Dagg v. Dagg, 25 Gr. 542; and see Re Brazill. Barry v. Brazill, 11 Gr. 253. Since The Devolution of Estates Act, however, the rights of personal representatives in regard to the real estate are materially changed.

Where a suit was brought by an executor unnecessarily, the Court refused to allow him any commission: Graham v. Robson, 17 Gr. 318. But where executors had acted improperly, the Court, although allowing them compensation refused them their costs of suit: Kennedy v. Pingle, 27 Gr. 305. The omission to keep a regular set of books is not, alone, a sufficient ground for refusing trustees compensation: Life Association of Scotland v. Walker, 24 Gr. 293.

When one executor incurs greater responsibility than another, a larger proportion of the compensation will be allotted to him: Re Fleming, 11 P. R. 272.

Executors' compensation is prior to claim of creditors.

An allowance to trustees, or executors, for compensation is prior to the claims of creditors: Harrison v. Patterson, 11 Gr. 105, at p. [illegible] (but see contra, Re White, 1898, 1 Ch. 297; 2 Ch. 217; 77 L. T. [illegible] 78 L. T. 770); or of cestui que trust: The Life Association of Scotland v. Walker, 24 Gr. 293; and a trustee may retain it from time to time out of moneys received, and is not bound to wait until the expiration of his trust: Heron v. Moffatt, supra, p. 958.

Expenses.

A trustee who properly employs an agent to collect rents, is entitled to an allowance for his own care and responsibility, in addition to the sum paid to the agent, (in this case the trustee was allowed two and one-half per cent.): Re Prittie, 13 P. R. 19; and see Both v. Standard Land Co., infra, p. 960.

Where a testator's estate was worth $200,000, an expenditure of $3,000 for a burial plot and monument was allowed: Archer v. Severn, 13 Ont. 316.

Trustees' entitled to credit pro tanto for defective securities;

Trustees who have invested the trust fund, at the instance of one of their number, in a defective security, are nevertheless entitled to credit for the value of such security: Larkin v. Armstrong, 9 Gr. 300; and see The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 22.

And for sums paid for maintenance

An allowance may be made to executors, for sums paid for the maintenance, and education, of infant cestuis que trustent, out of the capital of the fund to which they are entitled, where the income thereof is insufficient: Stewart v. Fletcher, 16 Gr. 235.

Where compensation is allowed to a personal representative, or trustee, it should be credited at the end of each year: Hoover v. Wilson, 33 C. L. J. 458.

Liquidators.

Liquidators.—As to the allowances to liquidators in winding-up proceedings: see Re Central Bank, 22 Ont. 247; 26 C. L. J. 24.

Company trustees.

Company Trustees.—Where a company acts as a trustee, or receiver, it may recover sums paid to directors for special services rendered by them for the trust as auctioneers, solicitors, or managers: Burk v. Standard Land Co., 1911, 1 Ch. 618; 104 L. T. 867.

Claims not referred cannot be allowed.

Claims not Referred to Master, cannot be allowed.—The authority to make "just allowances" does not authorize the Master to allow claims which are not referred to him by the judgment to take an account of, however reasonable they may appear to be. The Master may, however, report such a claim as "a special circumstance," and on the hearing on further directions, or otherwise, an application may be made to the Court for its allowance: Fielder v. O'Hara, 2 Chy. Ch. 255; Kellor v. Taché, 1 Chy. Ch. 788; Stewart v. Fletcher, supra

Special circumstances.

Special Circumstances:—

Notwithstanding this Rule the Master may refuse to report as special circumstances, facts which would be immaterial on a hearing on further directions, or which would lead to evidence in relation to matters not necessary to the inquiry directed by the judgment: Braun v. Aumond, 19 Gr. 72. But he may, at the request of any party, report specially as to any matters which he may deem proper for the information of the Court: Rosebotch v. Porry, 27 Gr. at p. 199; and he ought to report any matter bearing on the question of costs: Simpson v. Horne, 28 Gr. at p. 7; Hoyes v. Hayes, 29 Gr. 90. And the Master may, at the request of a party, report specially as to matters not particularly referred to him, but which form the subject of charges of fraud in the pleadings: Ib.

Master may report.

In a mortgage suit the Master may report specially, as to the existence of a claim of the wife of a mortgagor to dower in the surplus: Rowe v. Wert, 13 C. L. J. 326; 7 P. R. 252.

The Master should not report circumstances, showing an accounting party to have been guilty of wilful neglect, and default, as a "special circumstance," but he should himself determine whether or not the party is so liable, and if so, find the amount due on that footing: Walmsley v. Bull, 2 Chy. Ch. 344.

Claims which are not referred to the Master to take an account of, cannot be allowed by the Master, but may be reported as "special circumstances:" see Fielder v. O'Hara, etc., supra.

Where money has been received by a trustee during his minority the Master should report the amount so received, notwithstanding the infancy: Re Garnes, Garnes v. Applin, 31 Ch. D. 147; 54 L. T. 141.

General powers of Masters to inquire as to all matters relating to accounts.

General Powers of Master:—

Rule 410 (g) provides that, generally, in taking the accounts, the Master is to inquire, adjudge, and report as to all matters relating thereto, as fully as if the same had been specially referred to him.

The general powers here given, enable the Master to inquire as to, and to take the accounts on the footing of wilful default, in accounts of personalty, as well as of realty, and he is not limited to the matters of inquiry specially enumerated in this Rule: Carpenter v. Wood, 10 Gr. 354. But the Master cannot inquire into the validity of the instrument upon which the plaintiff's judgment was obtained: Bickford v. Grand Junction Ry. Co., 1 S. C. R. 696, see p. 725 et seq.; not even at the instance of parties added in his office: McDougall v. Lindsay Paper Mills Co., 10 P. R. 247; 20 C. L. J. 133; and see Re Munsie, 20 C. L. J. 112; Wiley v. Ledyard, 10 P. R. 182; 20 C. L. J.

142; nor when the judgment awards larger relief than was claimed by the pleadings can the Master restrict the inquiry as to damages, or otherwise, to the relief claimed by the pleadings: Smith v. Goldie, 11 P. R. 24; neither can he extend the inquiry under a general reference "to take accounts" to matters beyond the scope of the pleadings: Rowland v. Burwell, 12 P. R. 607; Bennicourt v. Le Gendre, 1900. A. C. 173. But the mere fact that a plaintiff claiming to be a creditor has obtained a judgment directing the taking of accounts, reserving further directions, was held not to preclude the defendants from taking the objection that the plaintiff is not in fact a creditor, and consequently has no locus standi, and from insisting, on the hearing on further directions, that his action should on that ground, be dismissed: Bank of Toronto v. Beaver & T. M. I. Co., 28 Gr. 87; and see Barton v. Barton, 3 K. & J. 512, 517; Houseman v. Houseman, 1 Ch. D. 535. Rule 411.

But it will be seen that it is only matters relating to the accounts which are referred to him to take, as to which he has these general powers: he cannot allow claims altogether outside of the accounts he is directed to take, and not necessarily connected therewith. Such claims, though they cannot be allowed by the Master, may, however, be reported by him as "special circumstances," and the Court, in its discretion, may on further directions, or on special application for that purpose, allow them: Fielder v. O'Hara, 2 Chy. Ch. 255; and see Wiley v. Ledyard, supra, p. 960.

Under these general powers, in an administration suit where a creditor made a claim by virtue of a partnership with the testator, it was held that the partnership accounts might be taken in order to establish the claim: Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 137; and the Master may inquire as to a stated account set up in the defence, though no evidence was given of it at the hearing: Edinburgh Life Association v. Allen, 23 Gr. 230; Holgate v. Shutt, 28 Ch. D. 111; but semble, not as to usury, as affecting the amount recoverable on a security: see Penn v. Lockwood, 1 Gr. 547. Stated accounts.

Where it appears in an administration action that the accounts of the personal representative have been passed in the Surrogate Court under The Surrogate Court Act (R. S. O. c. 62), s. 71, the Master will not go behind such account, when the plaintiff was represented in the Surrogate Court: Gibson v. Gardner, 13 O. L. R. 521.

The Master cannot, under these general powers, set off costs so as to interfere with the lien of a solicitor on a fund: Bell v. Wright, 24 S. C. R. 656.

Where a settlement is come to between the parties, pending a reference, if it is disputed, the Master, under his general powers, may inquire as to its terms and report thereon: Corry v. Lemoine, 18 P. R. 482.

411. The Master may cause parties to be examined, and to produce books, papers and writings, as he thinks fit, and may determine what books, papers and writings are to be produced, and when and how long they are to be left in his office; or in case he does not deem it necessary that such books and papers or writings should be Master may cause parties to be examined, and may order production of documents.

Rule 411.

left or deposited in his office, he may give directions for the inspection thereof by the parties requiring the same, at such time and in such manner as he deems expedient. C.R. 669.

All officers of the Court have power to administer oaths, and to examine witnesses, for the purposes of proceedings before them: see Jud. Act, sec. 119.

Any party to a reference pending before a Master is entitled to require the evidence to be given orally, and may object to affidavits being received: see Rule 270, and see per Mowat, V.C., Brady v. Walls, 17 Gr. et p. 702.

The Master is competent to order discovery of all matters arising out of the judgment, but if discovery is sought as to other matters a new action may be necessary: see Korkis v. Weir, 110 L. T. 794.

Witnesses in M. O.

Witnesses.—A subpœna may issue, as of course, to secure the attendance of witnesses before a Master: Hannum v. McRae, 17 P. R. 567; 18 P. R. 185.

Any party to an action is now eligible as a witness in his own behalf: see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 6.

Master may order witnesses to be examined.

C. R. 668 expressly provided that witnesses may, by direction of the Master, be examined before a special Examiner. This Rule has not been continued, but presumably the Master has still that power under Rule 347. The Master should, ordinarily, himself take the evidence, and it is only where that course is, for any reason, impracticable, that he should depute the taking of evidence to another. The Rules seem to contemplate that as far as possible witnesses should be examined in the Counties where they reside: see Rule 345, and Connolly v. Connor, infra, p. 963, but in many cases it will be found to be a saving of expenses to bring the witness to the Master. This should, as a rule, be done where the witnesses are within the jurisdiction, and there is likely to be a conflict of evidence, and it is important for the Master to see the witnesses.

The Master may direct witnesses to be examined before any other Master, or Examiner, of the Court, without the consent of the parties: Re Casey, Biddell v. Casey, 1 Cny. Ch. 198.

Foreign commission.

The Master may also grant an order for a commission to issue to take evidence out of the jurisdiction: see Rules 209, 277, 433.

The Master cannot grant an order for a commission ex parte, McLennan v. Helps, 3 Chy. Ch. 193; except where the reference is ex parte.

As to when a commission may be granted: see notes to Rule 277.

As to proceedings under a commission: see Rules 277-290.

Where an application is made to the Master for a commission to cross-examine a plaintiff resident abroad, on an affidavit filed by him in support of his account, the Master cannot properly refuse it, so long as the plaintiff relies on the affidavit in support of his claim: Townend v. Hunter, 3 C. L. T. 310; Horlick v. Eschweiler, 11 O. L. R. 140.

The Master's order for a commission should follow, as nearly as may be, the form of order given in the Rules: see Form No. 73; H. & L. Forms No. 777: and for form of Commission, see No. 60. Rule 411.

The Master has no power to order a witness, or a party, out of the jurisdiction, to come within the jurisdiction for the purpose of examination as a witness: Connolly v. Connor, 12 O. L. R. 304. It was said in this case that the Master cannot name himself as Commissioner. Foreign party, or witness.

As to cross-examination on an affidavit in the Master's Office: see note to Rule 227, supra, p. 691.

In an action by, or against, heirs, next of kin, or personal representatives, or assigns, of a deceased person: The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 12; or by or against a lunatic or an inmate of a lunatic asylum: Ib., s. 13, the evidence of any opposite, or interested party, must be corroborated. As to the nature of the corroboration required: see Sugden v. Lord St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 154, 179; McDonald v. McKinnon, 26 Gr. 12; Stoddart v. Stoadart, 39 U. C. Q. B. 203; McKoy v. McKoy, 31 C. P. 1; Adamson v. Adomson, 28 Gr. 238; Brown v. Copron, 24 Gr. 91; Re Robbins, 23 Gr. 162; Halleron v. Moon, 28 Gr. 319; Re Ross, 29 Gr. 385; 18 C. L. J. 11; Re Lows, Lows v. Laws, 28 Gr. 382; Parker v. Parker, 32 C. P. 113; Birdsell v. Johnson, 24 Gr. 202; Findley v. Pedon, 26 C. P. 483; Rose v. Hickey, 3 Ont. App. 309; Re Murroy, 29 Gr. 443; 9 Ont. App. 369; Burn v. Burn, 20 C. L. J. 148; Re Curry, 32 Ont. 150; Thompson v. Coulter, 34 S. C. R. 261; Davis v. Walker, 5 O. L. R. 173; Wilson v. Howe, 5 O. L. R. 323; Scott v. Allen, 26 O. L. R. 571; Cowley v. Simpson, 31 O. L. R. 200; McGregor v. Curry, 31 O. L. R. 261; Lloyd v. Powell Duffryn S. C. Co., 111 L. T. 338. In England there is no such statute, nor any absolute rule as to corroboration in such a case: Re Griffin, 1899, 1 Ch. 408; 79 L. T. 442. Corroboration when necessary.

The whole case need not be proved by independent testimony: Radford v. Mocdonold, 18 Ont. App 167. It is sufficient if the evidence of the interested party is strengthened by evidence which appreciably helps the judicial mind to believe one or more of the material facts deposed to: Ib.; and see Green v. McLeod, 23 Ont. App. 676: Secor v. Gray, 3 O. L. R. 34; Wilson v. Howe, supra. And where a wife made a claim against her husband's estate for moneys advanced to pay premiums on a policy on his life, and it was shewn that the money was paid by a third party out of moneys of the wife in his hands, in which payment the wife reluctantly acquiesced, and that the policy was entirely in the husband's control and disposition, it was held that corroborative evidence of a contract to repay the money was not necessary: Elliott v. Bussell, 19 Ont. 413.

The testimony of one interested witness cannot be accepted as corroboration of another interested witness's testimony: Taylor v. Regis, 26 Ont. 483.

No corroboration is necessary as to matters occurring after the death of a deceased person affecting his estate: McClenaghon v. Perkins, 5 O. L. R. 129.

A witness may be cross-examined in the Master's office on the whole case. The Master cannot properly confine the cross-examination to the evidence given in chief. But in some cases, it may be proper to exercise his discretion, as to the party to pay the fees of the examination: Crondell v. Moon, 6 U. C. L. J. 143. Cross-examination of witnesses.

Rule 412.

Where a party is examined as a witness on his own behalf and dies before he can be cross-examined, his evidence is nevertheless admissible: Randall v. Atkinson, 30 Ont. 242, 620.

Not to be recalled.

The Master should not allow a witness who has been examined, to be recalled in order to supplement his testimony, except in cases where the Court itself would allow him to be re-examined: see Patterson v. Scott, 1 Gr. 582.

Depositions in other actions.

Depositions in Another Action, or Books of Account, how far Evidence.—As to how far evidence taken in another action, and books of account of third parties are receivable in evidence in the Master's Office: see Court v. Holland, 8 P. R. 219.

Production of documents.

Production of Books and Papers.—When books are in constant use, and the party required to produce them offers to allow them to be inspected in his counting house, the Master should not require them to be left in his office, in the absence of any special ground for so doing: Re Ross, 8 P. R. 86; 5 Ont. App. 82; but the usual affidavit on production must be filed, though the deposit of the books in the Master's office be dispensed with: Ib.; Darling v. Darling, 19 C. L. J. 329.

In taking accounts in an action for infringement of a patent, the defendant is bound to disclose the names of customers to whom he has sold the goods infringing the patent: Saccharin Corporation v. Chemical & Drugs Co., 1900, 2 Ch. 556; 83 L. T. 206.

Remedy for default in production.

Default.—Where default has been made in the production of documents, or the attendance of a witness to be examined, an application may be made to commit for contempt. The application should be made to a Judge, and not to the Master in Chambers, or to any County Court Judge, or Local Master: Keefe v. Ward, 18 C. L. J. 166; 2 C. L. T. 260. For Form of certificate of default: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 1067-1069; Sutherland v. Rogers, 2 Chy. Ch. 191.

Master may advertise for creditors, heirs or next of kin, etc. Time to be limited for coming in.

412. The Master may cause advertisements for creditors or for heirs or next of kin, or other unascertained persons, and the representatives of such as are dead, to be published as the circumstances of the case require: and in such advertisements he shall appoint a time within which such persons are to come in and prove their claims, and unless they so come in, they are to be excluded from the benefit of the order. A claim may nevertheless be received by the Master at any later time. C.R. 670.

Advts. for creditors where dispensed with.

The Master may dispense with an advertisement for creditors in an administration action, where the personal representative has, before action, duly advertised under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 56: Cuthbert v. Wharmby, W. N. 1869, 12; Re Bracken Doughty v. Townson, 1889, 43 Ch. D. 1; 61 L. T. 531; but he should state in his report that he has done so, and the reason for so doing. But mere lapse of time, even of twenty years, from the death of the deceased person, whose estate is being administered, is not sufficient to warrant the Master in dispensing with an advertisement for creditors, and the Court has referred causes back to the Master to advertise for creditors, where the Master has omitted to do so, merely in consequence of the lapse of time. Rule 412.

There is no rule of practice rendering it necessary in every case for the sufficiency of publication of notices to creditors, under Imp. Act, 22 & 23 Vict. c. 34, s. 29, to have an advertisement in the Times or other London daily papers in addition to the Gazette: Re Bracken, 43 Ch. D. 1; 61 L. T. 531; and it is not necessary that an advertisement in Ontario should be published in the Ontario Gazette: Re Cameron, 15 P. R. 272.

In administration actions the advertisement for creditors (see Form 46), provides that the claims are to be sent to the personal representative, a similar direction should be made in advertisements for creditors, in other actions: see Rule 2. Advertisement for creditors, form of.

Every advertisement for creditors issued pursuant to a judgment or order, should, therefore, direct every creditor, by a time to be thereby limited, to send to such party as the Master, or other officer, before whom the inquiry is, directs, or to his solicitor, to be named and described in the advertisement, the name and address of the creditor, and the full particulars of his claim, and a statement of his account, and the nature of the security (if any) held by him; and such advertisement should be according to Form 46, and see H. & L. Forms, No. 974, and, at the time of directing such advertisement, a time must be fixed for adjudicating on the claims: Rules 413, 772.

For form of advertisements for creditors in an administration action: see Form 46; H. & L. Forms, No. 974, and of advertisements for heirs or next of kin: see H. & L. Forms, No. 997. Forms of advertisements.

A month at least should be allowed for creditors to file claims, three weeks was considered too short a time: see Wood v. Weightman, L. R. 13 Eq. 434. Time for sending in claims.

An application of a creditor to prove after the time has elapsed is usually granted; but on the terms of not disturbing any division of assets which has actually been made: Re Metcalfe, Hicks v. Moy, 13 Ch. D. 236; 42 L. T. 383; 49 L. J. Ch. 192; Re McMurdo, Penfield v. McMurdo, 1902, 2 Ch. 684; Harrison v. Kirk, 1904, A. C. 1; 89 L. T. 566; and see notes to Rule 413, infra. Special application necessary.

Inquiries as to heirs and next of kin, etc.—A master making inquiries for heirs, next of kin, etc., should not presume the death of an absentee without advertising: Macdonald v. Boughner, 6 O. W. N. 172.

After the time fixed by the advertisement a claim should not be received, unless the Master thinks fit to give special leave upon application, and then upon such terms and conditions as to costs and otherwise as he directs. After expiry of time limited by advertisement for filing claims.

Where the action has been constituted as provided by Rules 79-87, heirs, and other persons interested, whose presence as original parties is dispensed with by that Rule, are nevertheless to be served with a copy of the judgment, as provided by Rule 87, unless the Master dispenses with service. If they are neither served, nor service on them dispensed with, they are not bound by the accounts or proceedings: Uffner v. Lewis, 27 Ont. App. 242. Where any of such persons Persons interested to be served with copy of judgment.

Rule 413.

cannot be found to be served with the judgment, the Master may order substitutional service on them: Rule 16. Service out of the jurisdiction may be authorized: see Rules 3 (j), 25. It is doubtful whether persons on whom service of a judgment is dispensed with, would be bound by the proceedings: see Ufner v. Lewis, supra, p. 965, and supra, p. 467.

Master to proceed on claims brought in.

413. The Master shall consider the claims brought in before him pursuant to such advertisement, upon a day to be fixed by him when settling the advertisement, and if any claim is to be contested shall cause notice of contestation to be served upon the claimant fixing a day when he will adjudicate upon the claim. C.R. 671. Amended.

Mode of proving claims of creditors.

Claims of creditors are not required to be verified by affidavit: see Form 46 and Rule 415. If a claim be disputed, the claimant may be required, at the instance of an opposing party, to establish his claim by oral evidence. Where the claim is evidenced by some written document, the production of the document and proof of its due execution, if disputed, and the claimant's affidavit of the amount due, is usually a sufficient primâ facie case, and the onus then rests with the party opposing the claim to adduce evidence: see Court v. Holland, 8 P. R. 213; and see Rule 474 and notes. A claimant may be cross-examined on his affidavit: Cast v. Poyser, 3 Jur. N. S. 38; 26 L. J. Ch. 353; and see Rule 227.

Parties entitled to attend on proof of claims.

In actions for the administration of a deceased person's estate, no party other than the personal representative, unless by leave of the Master, can appear on the claim of any person, against the estate of the deceased in respect of a debt, or liability. But the Master may direct any person to appear, in addition to, or in place of, the personal repreaentative, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may seem proper: aee Rule 88; and see Rules 406, 409, 657.

Where the personal representatives of a deceased person carry on the business of the deceased, the creditors of the estate, and the creditors of the business, do not necessarily rank pari passu in the event of a deficiency of assets: see Re East, London County & W. Bank v. East, 111 L. T. 101.

In creditors' actions plaintiff must prove claim, and any creditor may dispute any other creditor's claim.

In a creditor's action, the plaintiff must prove his claim, if required, in the Master's office, even though he may have proved it at the trial, and any creditor may dispute the claim of any other creditor: Field v. Titmuss, 1 Sim. N. S. 218; Owens v. Dickenson, Cr. & Ph. 48, subject to Rule 88; and the Master has power to adjudicate upon all questions arising between creditors inter se: Merchants Bank v. Monteith, 10 P. R. 458. The mere fact that a plaintiff claiming to be a creditor has obtained a judgment directing the taking of accounts and making of inquiries, does not preclude the defendants upon such reference from taking the objection that the plaintiff is not a creditor, and has consequently no locus standi, and from insisting, on the hearing on further directions, that his action should on that ground be dismissed: Bank of Toronto v. Beaver & T. M. I. Co., 28 Gr. 87; see Barton v. Barton, 3 K. & J. 512, 517; Houseman v. Houseman, 1 Ch. D. 535.

Creditors coming in after time has expired.

Creditors who have omitted to send in their claims within the time limited, may be allowed to come in and prove their claims, before report, by leave of the Master; and after report, on application in Chambers, so long as the fund remains in Court: Lashley v. Hogg, 11 Ves. 602; Angell v. Haddon, 1 Msd. 529; Re Metcalfe, 13 Ch. D. 236; W. N. 1879, 166; Cotton v. Vonsittart, 9 C. L. J. 312; Andrews v. Moulson, 1 Chy. Ch. 316; the statement in the advertisement that in default of coming in and proving their claims within the time limited, the creditors will be barred, is merely in terrorem and not conclusive: Harrison v. Kirk, 1904, A. C. 1; 89 L. T. 566. But a creditor coming in after a dividend has been paid, is only entitled to prove against the residue of the fund for a similar proportion of his debt; he is not permitted to disturb any prior dividend: Gillespie v. Alexander, 3 Russ, 130; Greig v. Somerville, 1 R. & M. 338; Todd v. Studholme, 3 K. & J. 324. Rule 414.

A creditor proving a claim, and objecting to the form of the decree could, under the former practice, only obtain relief by rehearing the cause: Mulholland v. Hamilton, 12 Gr. 413; Willis v. Willis, 20 Gr. 396. And a petition of a creditor to vary a decree was refused with costs: Mulholland v. Hamilton, supra. Creditor objecting to form of decree might rehear.

A creditor whose claim is disallowed, may appeal at once on a certificate of disallowance, without waiting for a general report: Re Clagett, Fordham v. Clagett, 20 Ch. D. 637; 46 L. T. 70. Appeal by creditor.

Where persons come in claiming to be heirs, next of kin, etc., they should bring in a pedigree showing their title which should be proved by certified copies of registers of burials, births, marriages, etc., if possible, and the persons named in such certificates must, by proper evidence, be identified with the persons through whom the claimants derive title, unless their claim is admitted.

Parties residing out of the jurisdiction coming into the Master's office to prove claims, cannot be ordered to give security for costs: Palmer v. Lovett, 14 P. R. 415, overruling Re Rees, Lockhart v. Toronto General Trusts Co., 10 P. R. 425; but in the event of their failing to substantiate their claims they may be ordered to pay costs occasioned thereby: see Jud. Act, s. 74 (4).

Where a residuary legatee is indebted to the testator's estate but his debt is not actually due, the executor is not entitled to retain his share of the residue to answer future instalments of his debt: Re Abrahams, Abrahams v. Abrahams, 1908, 2 Ch. 69; 99 L. T. 240.

Interest.—As to the allowance of interest on claims in the Master's office: see Re Ross, 29 Gr. 385, and notes to the Jud. Act, ss. 34, 35, and Rule 410.

A Referee has power to allow interest on the amount of a loss by fire referred to, or ascertained by, him: Atty.-Gen. v. Ætna Ins. Co., 13 P. R. 459.

As to interest on mortgages: see notes to Rules 61, 410, 474.

414. The executor or administrator, or such other person as the Master directs, shall examine the claims sent in pursuant to the advertisement, and ascertain, as far as he is able, which of such claims is just and proper. C.R. 707. Creditors' claims to be examined.

Rule 415.

Affidavit to be made by persons examining creditors' claims.

When to be filed.

415. The executor or administrator, or one of the executors or administrators, or such other person as the Master directs, shall on or before the day appointed to consider the claims, file an affidavit, verifying a list of the claims sent in pursuant to the advertisement, and stating which of such claims are just and proper to be allowed, and the reasons for such belief. C.R. 708. Amended.

For form of affidavit: see H. & L. Forms No. 987.

Affidavit of creditor dispensed with unless required.

C. R. 704 expressly provided that "A creditor need not make an affidavit, or attend in support of his claim (except to produce his security, if any), unless he is served with a notice requiring him to do so as hereinafter provided" but that Rule has not been continued, but its omission from these Rules is probably not intended to effect any change in the practice.

Notice of proceedings in the Master's office should be given to the parties, though they have not appeared on the motion for the administration order: Re Pattison, Jackson v. Matthews, 12 Gr. 47, and see Rule 403.

Where the Master requires a creditor to attend and prove his claim, the notice so to do may be transmitted to him or his solicitor by post, unless the Master otherwise directs: see Rule 437.

Notice to be sent creditors.

The executor or administrator, or such other person as the Master directs is to send notice:—

Where claim allowed without proof.

(1) To every creditor whose claim, or any part thereof, has been allowed without proof by the creditor, of the allowance; and the notice may be according to Form No. 48; H. & L. Forms No. 991.

Where proof of claim is required.

And (2) To every such creditor as the Master directs,—to attend and prove his claim, or such part thereof as is not allowed, by a time to be named in the notice (which may be according to Form No. 49; H. & L. Forms, No. 992) not less than seven clear days after the service of the notice, and being the time to which the adjudication thereon has been adjourned; and in case any creditor does not comply with the notice, his claim, or such part thereof as aforesaid, will be disallowed, unless the Master thinks fit to give further time: see C. R. 711, that Rule has not been continued, but probably the procedure there laid down should still be followed.

Corroborative evidence.

When a creditor's claim is disputed, he may be required to produce corroborative evidence thereof: see The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), ss. 11-13; and see cases in notes to Rules 411 and 608.

A judgment obtained without fraud, or collusion, is conclusive evidence in actions between creditors in relation to the property of the debtor, of the indebtedness of the latter, and of the amount of such indebtedness: Candee v. Lord, 2 Com. N. Y. Rep. 269; Martin v. Boulanger, 8 App. Cas. 296; 49 L. T. 62; and see Bowerman v. Phillips, 15 Ont. App. 679; Re Hague, Traders Bank v. Murray, 13 Ont. 727; unless such judgment were recovered in a foreign Court in circumstances which would not make it binding on the deceased: see supra, pp. 209-212.

Rule 416.

Parties entitled to appear on adjudication on creditor's claim.

No person, except the personal representative, is entitled (except by leave of the Master) to appear on the claim of any person not a party to the cause, against the estate of the deceased, in respect of any debt, or liability. But the Master may direct any other party to the cause to appear, either in addition to, or in place of, the personal representative, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as he shall think fit; see Rule 88.

Creditors, when allowed costs.

Creditors merely sending in their claims pursuant to advertisement, ought not to be allowed any costs of so doing; but where they are required to go into formal proof thereof, the Master may fix a sum for costs, or allow taxed costs of proving the claim: see Jud. Act, s. 74 (4); Rule 652.

Master cannot employ experts.

The Master has no power to employ experts to assist him in coming to a conclusion on the claims of persons claiming to be creditors: Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robertson, 24 Gr. 555.

Mortgagee's claim.

Deficiency of assets.

Subject to the provisions of The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 63, a mortgagee is entitled to prove against the general estate, and hold his security for any amount the general estate is insufficient to pay: Re Stewart, Stewart v. Stewart, 10 Gr. 169. Where, on a deficiency of assets, some creditors are paid more than their proportion, they may, on the petition of a creditor who has not been paid his proportion, be ordered to refund the excess: Chamberlen v. Clarke, 1 Ont. 135; 9 Ont. App. 273; but where the personal representative has made the payment after due notice as provided by The Trustee Act, s. 56, he is protected from liability, and has no right to recover the overpayment: Leitch v. Molson's Bank, 27 Ont. 621.

Solicitor purchasing creditors' claims.

Where the solicitor of a plaintiff in an administration action, had purchased, after judgment, and pending an inquiry thereunder as to debts, two claims against the estate for less than the sum due, it was held that the officer to whom the action was referred had no jurisdiction to certify that the solicitor was a trustee for the creditors for any surplus he might receive over and above what he had paid for the claims: Re Tillet, Field v. Lydall, 32 Ch. D. 639; 54 L. T. 604; and it was also held that such a contention could not be raised at the hearing on further directions, except by consent of the solicitor.

In the administration, in Ontario, of the estate of a person domiciled abroad, foreign creditors are entitled to dividends pari passu with Ontario creditors: Milne v. Moore, 24 Ont. 456.

As regards the estates of persons dying after 13th April, 1897, claims for three months' salary or wages are entitled to priority of payment over ordinary creditors: see The Wages Act (R. S. O. c. 143), s. 6.

Right of the Crown.

In England the Crown has a prerogative right to be paid in priority to other creditors: In re West London Commercial Bank, 38 Ch. D. 364; Attorney-General v. Leonard, 38 Ch. D. 622; Rex v. Ward, 2 Ex. 301 n.; Maritime Bank v. The Queen, 17 S. C. R. 657; Commissioners of Taxation v. Palmer, 1907, A. C. 179; Attorney-General v. Curator of Intestate Estates: Ib., 519; but see Clarkson v. Attorney-General, 15 Ont. 632; 16 Ont. App. 202; and see now The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 53, which in effect repeals 9 Hen. 8, c. 18.

Master's power as to settlement of conveyances.

416. Under every order whereby the delivery of deeds or execution of conveyances is directed or becomes necessary, the Master shall give directions as to delivery of such deeds, settle conveyances where the parties differ, and give directions as to the parties to the conveyances and as to the execution thereof. C.R. 672.

Additional powers of Master as to settlement of conveyances.

Under this Rule the Master to whom an action is referred, may, without any special directions, settle all necessary conveyances in case the parties differ, or in case there be any parties interested in the sale who are under any disability except coverture; and see further as to sales: Rules 438-457. Under this Rule the Master has power to deal with questions arising on the conveyance as to the payment off of incumbrances; and when a party applied to the Court instead of to the Master, no costs were given: Stammers v. O'Donohoe, 29 Gr. 64.

A covenant on the part of an infant for payment is not a proper covenant to be inserted in a mortgage: Brown v. Grady, 31 Ont. 73.

A conveyance, on a sale by the Court, is not to be settled until after the payment of the purchase money into Court: see Rule 437.

In determining who are the proper parties to a conveyance the primary thing to be considered, is, in whom the legal estate of the property to be conveyed is vested. Hence where the property of a company in liquidation is sold, or property in the hands of a receiver, the conveyance should not be made by the liquidator or receiver, but by the parties in whom the legal estate is vested: unless it be that only an equitable estate is the subject of the sale, in which case the person in whom it is vested should be the person to convey.

Vesting order.

A vesting order may be made in lieu of a conveyance, on an application in Chambers: Jud. Act, s. 72: see supra p. 235 et seq., and Rule 207 (4).

Form of accounts to be brought in by accounting party.

417. Where an account is to be taken, the accounting party, unless the Master otherwise directs, shall bring in the same in debit and credit form, verified by affidavit. The items on each side of the account shall be numbered consecutively, and the account shall be referred to by the affidavit as an exhibit, and shall not be annexed thereto. C.R. 673.

Personal rep. bound to make up accounts.

When a personal representative of a deceased person is required to account in respect of the dealings of the deceased, he is bound to make up the accounts of such dealings, from the books in his possession: Strathy v. Crooks, 6 Gr. 162.

Objection to accounts.

A party may be estopped by acquiescence from moving to set aside accounts brought in, in an improper form: Weale v. Rice, C. P. Coo. 438.

Cross-examination.

The deponent may be cross-examined on an affidavit verifying accounts. A party who is to be cross-examined on an affidavit verifying accounts, is entitled to detailed notice of the points in respect to which he is to be examined: Re Lord, Lord v. Lord, L. R. 2 Eq. 605. A notice that all the items but one are objected to, is insufficient: McArthur v. Dudgeon, L. R. 15 Eq. 102; and see Rule 420 infra. Such cross-examination may take place before the account is vouched: Meacham v. Cooper, L. R. 16 Eq. 102.

The affidavit under this Rule, and the production of the vouchers, is primâ facie sufficient to warrant the Master in passing the accounts, and where voluminous accounts had been passed under this Rule, the pointing out of one or two items as primâ facie objectionable, was held insufficient to warrant the re-opening of the account: In re Curry, 17 P. R. 379; affirmed, 25 Ont. App. 267. Rules 418, 419.

Where the accounting party is out of the jurisdiction, the adverse party is entitled to a commission to cross-examine him: Horlick v. Eschweiler, 11 O. L. R. 140.

418. The Master may direct that in taking accounts, the books of account, in which the accounts required to be taken have been kept, or any of them, be taken as primâ facie evidence of the truth of the matters therein contained. C.R. 674. Master may direct books of account to be taken as prima facie evidence.

This Rule was adapted from Imp. Stat. 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 54. Every sum of $8 and under, is allowed without a voucher, upon the oath of the accounting party: see Everard v. Worren, 2 Ch. Ca. 249; but his oath must be positive, and not on belief only: Robinson v. Cumming, 2 Atk. 410; and it would seem that the aggregate of such items should not exceed $400 in amount: Bennett's M. O. 86. Greater latitude in proving other items is also allowed when the account is of long standing: Ib. Receipts, or other vouchers, must be produced, but when they are lost, or accidentally destroyed, secondary evidence will be let in: Ib.; and it is to such cases, or when, for any other reason, it is impossible to vouch the account in any other way, that this Rule is intended to apply: Lodge v. Prichard, 3 D. M. & G. 906; and see Ewart v. Williams, 7 D. M. & G. 67. In partnership cases, however, the books of account of the firm are admissible by virtue of the general law, without any special direction: Gething v. Keighley, 3 Ch. D. 547, 551. Books of trustees of a will were allowed to be taken as primâ facie evidence for a period of 21 years, as against a cestui que trust who had access to them, but had not actually inspected them: Banks v. Cartwright, 15 W. R. 417; and see Sleight v. Lawson, 3 K. & J. 292; Ogden v. Bottoms, 1 Jur. N. S. 791; Hardwick v. Wright, 15 W. R. 963. Sums of $8 and under allowed without voucher. Vouchers to be produced. Books of account when admissible.

419. Before proceeding to the hearing and determining of a reference, the Master may appoint a day for the purpose of entering into the accounts and inquiries, and may direct the production and inspection of vouchers, and if deemed proper the cross-examination of the accounting party on his affidavit, with a view to ascertaining what is admitted and what is contested between the parties. C.R. 678. Appointment to ascertain what is admitted and what is contested.

Admissions before the Master should be entered in his book (see Rule 421), and subscribed by the parties or their solicitors: Foster v. Allison, 11 P. R. 233; 21 C. L. J. 418. Admissions made by a solicitor without the authority of his client have been allowed to be withdrawn on the terms of the items admitted being taken to be primâ Admissions.

Rules 420, 421.

facie correct, and the onus being cast on the party withdrawing the admission, of showing that they are wrong: McBean v. McBean, 11 P. R. 439; 22 C. L. J. 348.

As to the costs occasioned by any party improperly refusing to admit facts: see Rule 671; McIntyre v. Canada Co., 18 Gr. 370.

Party seeking to charge accounting party must give notice of particulars.

420. A party seeking to charge an accounting party beyond what he has in his account admitted to have received, shall give notice thereof to the accounting party, stating as far as he is able the amount sought to be charged and the particulars thereof in a short and succinct manner. The Master may direct any party who seeks to falsify an account to deliver particulars of the item objected to. The particulars shall refer to the item by number. C.R. 680. Amended.

Accounting party entitled to notice of items he is to be cross-examined on.

An accounting party who is intended to be cross-examined on his affidavit verifying his accounts, is entitled to notice of the items on which he is to be cross-examined: Re Lord, Lord v. Lord, L. R. 2 Eq. 605; Wormsley v. Sturt, 22 Beav. 398; Re Curry, 17 P. R. 379; 25 Ont. App. 267; and it is not sufficient to inform him that all the items except one are objected to, but the notice must specify the points on which the cross-examination is to proceed: McArthur v. Dudgeon, L. R. 15 Eq. 102; and see Glover v. Ellison, 20 W. R. 408; and, unless he has been thus duly notified, he may refuse to be sworn: McArthur v. Dudgeon, supra; see Eng. Chy. O. 30, of 16th October, 1852.

The two concluding clauses of this Rule are new.

Master's Book, how to be kept.

421. The Master shall keep in his office a book in which he shall enter proceedings taken before him, and the directions which he gives in relation to the prosecution of the reference, or otherwise, and it shall not be necessary to issue or serve any formal order or document embodying such directions to bind the parties attending the reference. C.R. 681. Amended.

In the book referred to in this Rule any admissions which are made during the proceedings before the Master, should be entered and signed by the parties or their solicitors making the same: Beaudry v. Gallien, 5 O. L. R. 73.

It is apparently assumed by this Rule that the party affected by any order or direction entered in the Master's Book is present, either in person, or by his solicitor, at the time it is made. If he is not in fact present, or represented, though notified of the appointment, it would seem safer to issue and serve a formal order on the party intended to be affected thereby, as it would probably be hard to punish him for disobedience of an order of which he had had no actual notice.

Where a party, or his solicitor, has notice semble, he may be punished in case of default, as if he had been personally served with the order.

Rules 422-424.

422. In giving directions, and in regulating the manner of proceeding before him, the Master shall devise and adopt the simplest, most speedy, and least expensive method of prosecuting the reference, and with that view, may dispense with any proceeding ordinarily taken, which he conceives to be unnecessary, or substitute a different course of proceeding for that ordinarily taken. C.R. 683.

Master to devise simplest and speediest method of prosecuting references.

Where it is necessary for the purpose of any motion to the Court to prove what has taken place in the Master's office, the Master certifies as shortly as he conveniently can, the several proceedings had in his office in any cause or matter, and the dates thereof.

Certificate of Master as to proceeding in his office.

For forms of certificates: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 1066-1069, 1085. As to appealing from a certificate: see Rules 502, 503.

The Master is not authorized under this Rule to employ the services of experts: Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robertson, 24 Gr. 555. But he may appoint experts to examine into matters referred to him so as to enable them to give evidence before him, on which to act; and the costs of persons so appointed are taxable between party and party: McKay v. Keefer, 12 P. R. 256.

The master should allow amendments of account, when such amendments would be allowed before judgment: Court v. Hollond, 4 Ont. 688.

423. Where the Master directs parties not in attendance before him to be notified to attend at some future day, or for different purposes at different future days, it shall not be necessary to issue separate appointments, but the parties shall be notified by one appointment, signed by the Master, of the proceedings to be taken, and of the times by him appointed for the taking of the same. C.R. 684.

Appointments for several days may be included in one appointment.

For forms of appointments: see Bennett's M. O. App. I.; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 994, 995.

Where parties in person, or by their solicitors, in attendance on the Master, are notified by the Master, of proceedings to be taken before him, no appointments need be issued as to such parties, in relation to such proceedings.

Parties notified by Master not to be served with appointment.

Parties making default upon appointments made in their presence, or in presence of their solicitors, would appear to be subject to the same consequences as if an appointment had been served upon them.

Parties notified, liable for default as if served.

424. As soon as the hearing of any matter pending before the Master is completed, he shall so inform the parties to the reference then in attendance, and make note to that effect in his book; and after such entry no further evidence shall be received, or proceedings had, without the special permission of the Master; and the Master to notify parties when hearing concluded, and to note it in his book.

Rule 424.

Thereafter no evidence to be given, except by leave.

Master shall then fix a day to settle his report and shall cause notice of such day to be given to all parties interested not then in attendance, unless for special reason such notice is dispensed with. C.R. 687. Amended.

The Master should not make any ex parte communications to any of the parties as to his decision, and he should draw his report himself, and not delegate it to the solicitor of any of the parties, and all parties interested should have equal facilities for knowing the result, and being present at the settlement of the report: Knarr v. Bricker, 16 P. R. 363.

Master's report and certificate.

There is no difference between a report and a certificate of a Master, "though we apply the term 'report' to the more lengthened productions of a Master, and the term 'certificate' to his shorter statements. It is, I think, clear that all his reports are certificates, and all his certificates are reports." per Shadwell, V.C., Channel v. Mortin, 4 Sim. 344; In re Molphy, 17 P. R. 247.

Parties served with the judgment under Rule 87, who do not give notice to the plaintiff that they desire to attend the proceedings, need not be served with an appointment to settle the report: Green v. Measures, W. N. 1866, 122; Lee v. Sturrock, W. N. 1876, 226.

It would seem that a warrant to settle a report formerly required four days' service: see Bennett's M. O. 20; Beames' Ord. in Chy. 259.

A report or certificate should not, in a contested matter, be made ex parte, when intended to be used as evidence against the opposite party: see Re Ryon v. Simonton, 13 P. R. 299; sed vide, Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 109.

Application to open reference.

When the Master has closed the reference, an application to let in further evidence may be made to him at any time before the report is signed: Re Ritchie, Sewery v. Ritchie, 23 Gr. 66. After report, the application can only be made to the Court: O'Donohue v. Hembroff, 9 C. L. J. 312; or a Judge: see note to Rule 502. But to warrant such application being granted, the applicant must, in general, make such a case as would entitle him to a new trial: Waddell v. Smyth, 3 Chy. Ch. 412; and see Patterson v. Scott, 1 Gr. 582; Sounders v. Saunders, 45 L. T. 628; Carradice v. Currie, 19 Gr. 108; Mason v. Seney, 12 Gr. 143; Hosking v. Terry, 8 Jur. N. S. 977.

Master not functus officio till he has fully reported.

A Master is not functus officio until he has made his report on all the matters referred to him: Rae v. Geddes, 3 Chy. Ch. 404; but after he has made his report he should not certify as to any matters before him in the course of the inquiry upon which he has made his report, unless required by the Court so to do: Rosebatch v. Porry, 27 Gr. 193; the same rule applies to taxing officers: Langtry v. Dumoulin, 10 P. R. 444.

Masters' Reports.—Masters' reports are either General, Special, or Separate.

General report.

A General Report is that which comprises the conclusion which the Master has come to, upon all the matters referred to him by the judgment, or order under which he has proceeded.

Separate report.

A Separate Report is that which embraces one or more separate matters of the reference, and the conclusion the Master has come to thereon; and is limited thereto, apart from the other matters referred. A report on sale is a familiar illustration of a separate report. Rule 434.

Where an order directed a taxation of the plaintiff's costs including therein the remuneration of receivers and managers appointed in the action, and to certify the balance after setting off certain costs of the defence, it was held to be improper for the Master to make a separate report of the plaintiff's costs alone: Re Silkstone & H. M. Co. v. Edey, 1901, 2 Ch. 652.

A Special Report, is a report of special circumstances found by the Master, as a guide to the Court for some further direction upon the facts so reported. Special report.

Special reports on matters which the Master has power himself to adjudicate upon, and dispose of, are not to be made, unless specially directed by the judgment or order, of reference: see Bennett's M. O. 18, 19: Walmsley v. Bull, 2 Chy. Ch. 344, and other cases, infra.

A report should not be dated before the costs included therein have been revised, when revision is necessary: Waddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211.

A report, like a judgment, should state results only, and should not set forth the evidence, arguments, or reasons, on which the conclusions are arrived at: Sovereign v. Sovereign, 15 Gr. 559; Booth v. Ratté, 21 S. C. R. 637. Report, what it should state.

Where the Master is specially directed to state his reasons, they should be stated briefly: McCargar v. McKinnon, 15 .. 361. All unnecessary prolixity in reports is to be avoided: S. C., 17 Gr. 525.

The report should not go beyond the order, or judgment, of reference, or the Court will not respect it: see Beames' Orders, 23; and see Clouster v. McLeon, 10 Gr. 576; and see Imperial Trusts Co. v. N. Y. Security Co., 5 O. W. R. 641. And matters should not be reported specially, or as special circumstances, which the Master has himself power to adjudicate upon: e.g.: whether or not an accounting party is chargeable on the footing of wilful default, etc.; Walmsley v. Bull, 2 Chy. Ch. 344; whether a particular debt is, or is not, an asset of an estate being administered: Clouster v. McLeon, 10 Gr. at p. 578. Should not go beyond order of reference. Nor report specially unnecessarily.

A Master's report was set aside where he had exceeded his authority by reporting on matters not referred to him: Doull v. McIlbreith, 14 S. C. R. 739.

But the Master should state in his report such matters as may be necessary for the information of the Court on further directions, or to enable it to dispose of the question of costs: e.g., the priorities of creditors: Lavin v. O'Neill, 13 Gr. 179; and of the legatees: Clouster v. McLean, 10 Gr. 576, should be stated; and where a separate solicitor is appointed to represent a class which is primâ facie sufficiently represented by the plaintiff, or some other party to the action, the reason for the appointment should be stated: Gorham v. Gorham, 17 Gr. 386; and where an advertisement for creditors has been dispensed with, the fact, and the reason for it, should be stated in the report: see Rule 412 note. Where the Master dispensed with service of judgment on parties required to be served therewith, by Rule 203 (3) he was formerly required to state his reasons therefor, in his report: see Chy. O. 587, Holmested's Rules and Orders, 349, but that provision is not But should report matters necessary to dispose of costs.

Rule 425.

embodied in these Rules, although it would seem to be a practice which should still be followed.

Sums charged against an accounting party, on the footing of wilful default should be distinguished in the report from sums actually received: Moodie v. Leslie, 12 Gr. 537.

Final report, when to be made.

The Master should not make a final report in an action until he is in a position to deal with all the matters referred to him: e.g., it is improper to make a final report in an action to wind up a partnership, finding a balance due from one partner to another, until all the assets are realized: Smith v. Crooks, 3 Gr. 321. But when the Master is not able to make a final report, he may, when necessary, make a separate report as to certain of the matters referred to him, and on which he is able to report.

Report privileged.

The report of a Master is absolutely privileged, and no action for libel will lie for anything contained in it: see Burr v. Smith, 101 L. T. 194.

Points intended to be raised on appeal to be taken before Master.

Parties must raise before the Master, in respect of any matters presented in his office for his decision, all points which they may afterwards desire to raise upon appeal.

It would seem that the Court may, in its discretion, entertain appeals on grounds not distinctly taken before the Master, but in such cases may order the appellant, even if successful, to pay the costs of the appeal.

Or Court may refuse to entertain the appeal.

Although the Court might formerly allow an appeal on a ground not taken before the Master, it might refuse so to do. Thus, the Court refused to allow the Statute of Limitations to be raised on appeal, it not having been raised before the Master: Brigham v. Smith, 18 Gr. 224; and see Clouster v. McLean, 10 Gr. 576.

In order to avoid any question as to whether or not any point intended to be raised on appeal, has been taken before the Master, it is safer to deliver the objection in writing, or to have it noted in the Master's book; but this is not absolutely necessary.

See further as to appeals from reports: Rules 502-504, and notes.

Death, etc., of Master.

Death or Removal of Master.—Where a Master dies, or becomes incapacitated, pending the reference, an order may be obtained referring the cause to another Master with power to adopt the proceedings already taken: Anon., 4 Jur. 858.

For forms of reports on sales: see Form No. 53; H. & L. Forms, No. 1051; and of reports in administration actions: Form No. 51; H. & L. Forms, No. 1082, and in mortgage actions: Ib. Nos. 1070-1072, 1076-1080; in partition actions: Ib., No. 1083; in partnership action: Ib., No. 1032; on a receiver's account: Ib. 1081; in redemption action: Ib., No. 1077; and see Rules 425, 431.

Accounts, affidavits, etc., not to be set out in report.

425. In the report no part of any account, affidavit, deposition, examination or pleading used in the Master's office, shall be stated or recited, but the same may be referred to by date or otherwise. C.R. 689.

As to form of reports: see note to Rule 424.

Rules 426-429.

426. Reports affecting money in Court, or to be paid into Court, shall set forth, in figures, in a schedule, a brief summary of the sums found by the report, and paid or payable into or out of Court, and the funds or shares to which the sums of money are respectively chargeable. C.R. 690.

Schedule to be attached as to moneys in Court, or payable into Court.

An omission to observe this Rule may prevent the report from being acted on in the Accountant's office.

427. As soon as the Master's report is settled and signed it shall be delivered out to the party prosecuting the reference, or in case he declines to take the same, then, in the discretion of the Master, to any other party applying therefor. C.R. 691.

Report to be issued to party prosecuting reference, or if he decline it, then to any other party.

428. Pending a reference to a Master all affidavits, papers and documents relating thereto required to be filed shall be filed with the Master, but every report or certificate of a Master shall be filed in the office in which the proceedings were commenced and upon the completion of the reference the papers shall be transferred to the office in which the proceedings were commenced. C.R. 693 and 700.

Reports where to be filed.

Under the former Con. Rule 84, reports of Local Masters were required to be filed in their own office; under the present Rule all reports are required to be filed in the office where the proceedings were commenced: see Rules 761 and 762, and notes.

429. Any party affected by a report may file the same or a duplicate thereof. He shall forthwith serve notice of filing. C.R. 694.

Any party may file report, or duplicate.

The filing of a report is a necessary preliminary to its confirmation: Rule 502. It must be filed in the office where the proceedings were commenced: Rule 428. If in Toronto, in the Central Office, if elsewhere, then in the office from which the writ issued.

Report must be filed before appeal, and before it can be enforced.

The report, or certificate, of a Master, or a Taxing Officer, must be filed before an appeal can be had therefrom: Hoyes v. Hoyes, 8 P. R. 546; Longtry v. Dumoulin, 10 P. R. 444; or before any process can issue thereon: Jellett v. Anderson, 8 P. R. 387. And where it appoints a time for the payment of money it should be filed before the day for payment: Mills v. Dixon, 2 Chy. Ch. 53; and be confirmed, where the report is one requiring confirmation: Mountain v. Porter, 1 Chy. Ch. 207.

As to delay in filing a duplicate report by a party intending to appeal: see Caisse v. Burnham, 6 P. R. 201.

Rule 430.

The time for appealing runs from the date of service of notice of filing: Rule 502.

Notice of filing need not be served on defendants who have not appeared: Toronto General Trusts Corp. v. Craig, 2 O. L. R. 238.

Payment of money into bank, how to be directed in report.

430.—(1) Where the Master is directed to appoint money to be paid at some time and place, he shall appoint the same to be paid into some Bank to the joint credit of the party to whom the same is made payable, and the Accountant. The party to whom the same is made payable may name the Bank into which he desires the same to be paid.

Party may pay money to the sole credit of the party entitled thereto or to the joint credit of such party and the Accountant.

(2) Where money is paid into a Bank, in pursuance of such appointment, the party paying may pay the same either to the credit of the party to whom the same is made payable, or to the joint credit of the party and the Accountant; and if the same be paid to the sole credit of the party, such party shall be entitled to receive the same without order.

(3) When money is paid to the joint credit of the Accountant and the party entitled, the Accountant shall sign the cheque for payment out upon the production of the consent of the party paying in, duly verified, or of his solicitor, or in the absence of such consent upon the order of a Judge. C.R. 695.

Object of Rule.

This Rule does not relate to the payment of money into Court, (as to that: see Rule 727 et seq.), but it is intended to provide for the payment of money in cases where the payee is required to do some act as a condition of his receiving the money; e.g., in specific performance actions, where the vendor is required to execute a conveyance; or in mortgage actions, where the mortgagee, or incumbrancers, are required to release and discharge their incumbrances, etc.

How paid out.

Money paid into a bank under this Rule, is paid out on a joint cheque of the officer of the Court and of the party to whose credit it is paid in. The cheque will be signed by the officer either upon an order, obtained for that purpose, being produced, or without order, upon filing the written consent of the solicitor of the party paying the money in, and production of the judgment or order, and Master's report showing the person entitled to receive the same.

If the money be paid in to the sole credit of the party entitled under Rule 430 (2), he may draw it out at his pleasure.

Order for when necessary.

Where the party paying money in, refuses to consent to its payment out to the party entitled, the latter may move in Chambers for an order to the officer to sign the cheque: Bernard v. Alley, 2 Chy. Ch. 91; Weeks v. Stourton, 11 Jur. N. S. 278. Although the refusal to consent appears to have been without reason, the applicant in Bernard v. Alley was refused his costs. The application must be made on notice: Totten v. McIntyre, 2 Chy. Ch. 462. Rules 431-434.

A report appointing the payment of money, should be filed before the day named for the payment: Mills v. Dixon, 2 Chy. Ch. 53; and confirmed, where the report is one requiring confirmation: Mountain v. Porter, 1 Chy. Ch. 207. Report should be filed before day appointed for payment.

If the bank closes its office on or before the day named for payment, and default be made, an application must be made in Chambers to appoint a new day and to name another bank, and the order must be served: King v. Connor, 1 Chy. Ch. 274.

431. Where, by a report, any money in Court is found to belong to infants, the Master shall require proper evidence of the age of the infants to be given before him and shall in his report state the date of birth and age at the time of his report of each of such infants or shall certify specially his reason for not so doing. C.R. 696. Master to report age of infant beneficiaries.

For a similar provision in regard to judgments and orders: see Rule 513.

432. In administration suits, reports shall, as far as possible, be according to Form 51. C.R. 697. Reports in administration suits.

For Form: see H. & L. Forms No. 1082.

The Master should not, in an administration action, attach to his report a copy of the will of the testator whose estate is administered: McCargar v. McKinnon, 15 Gr. 361; and see Rule 425.

433.—(1) The Master shall have the same power, authority, and jurisdiction, as the Master in Chambers, in respect to all matters referred to him, or which may arise in his office. Master in Ordinary to have jurisdiction in Chambers.

(2) Where he acts as under this Rule the fees (payable in stamps) shall, in respect of such business, be the same as are payable for the like business to the Master in Chambers. C.R. 698.

434. Any Official Referee, upon the request of the Master in Ordinary, or of a Judge, may sit for the Master in Ordinary, and while sitting for him shall have all the authority and power of such Master, but shall not be entitled to any fees to his own use. C.R. 699. Official Referee may sit for Master and have like powers.

Under this Rule the Master in Ordinary may appoint a deputy, but not a local master. As to the appointment of deputies for Local Masters: see Jud. Act, s. 89.

As to the appointment of deputies for other officers absent, or ill: see Rule 760.

Rule 435.

Computation of interest on debts and legacies.

435. In taking accounts in administration proceedings interest shall be computed on the deceased's debts from the date of the judgment or order, and on legacies from the end of one year after the deceased's death, unless any other time of payment is directed by the will. C.R. 703.

Master not to proceed ex parte.

The Master ought not to proceed ex parte, even though the defendant did not appear on the motion for administration: Jackson v. Matthews, 12 Gr. 47: Rule 403.

Proof of persons necessary to be served with judgment.

Before proceeding to take the accounts, the Master should require the necessary evidence to be brought before him, to show who are the parties, if any, who ought to be served with an office copy of the judgment as prescribed by Rule 87. The Master should direct on whom the judgment is to be served, and he may also dispense with service, on any parties, as he may think fit: Ib.; but see Rule 403.

Service may be dispensed with.

Service may be dispensed with on parties whose apparent interest is small, and where there is difficulty in effecting service, and other parties in the same interest are already represented, or directed to be served with the judgment; mere difficulty in effecting service would not alone be sufficient ground for dispensing with service.

Persons who are served with an office copy of a judgment under Rule 87 do not thereby become parties to the action, they merely acquire a right to attend the proceedings on giving notice of their desire to do so to the plaintiff's solicitor, but they are bound by the proceedings as though they were actually parties to the action: English v. English, 12 Gr. 441; and see supra, p. 463; and where they do not attend the proceedings in the Master's office, they are not entitled to notice.

Persons served do not become parties to the action.

But on notice to plaintiffs' solicitor may attend proceedings.

Persons so served may give notice to the plaintiff of their desire to attend the proceedings, and are then entitled to be served with the appointments in the Master's office, and with notice of the motion for distribution; but where a person served with the judgment does not notify the plaintiff of his desire to attend the proceedings, he is not entitled to notice of the proceedings in the Master's office, nor of the motion for distribution: see Rule 87, note.

Persons so attending, however, are not, as of course, entitled to the costs of so doing out of the estate, and unless the Court is satisfied that there was some good reason for their so attending they will be left to bear their own costs in any event; and may be ordered to pay the extra costs occasioned by their unnecessary attendance: see Rule 657.

Persons served under Rule 87 cannot be required to account: see supra, p. 465.

Master may add parties.

Where the Master finds that any persons not coming within Rule 87, ought to be made parties, and enabled to attend the proceedings he may add them as parties under Rule 404. Persons added under that Rule become parties to the action, as if they had been originally made parties to the writ, or originating notice, and thereafter their names are added as defendants in the title of the action.

Rule 436.

Interest to be allowed on debts.

Judgment for administration operates as a judgment in favour of all creditors.

Rate of interest payable.

The direction contained in this Rule, as to the allowance of interest on debts, applies to debts not bearing interest, prior to the date of the judgment. The judgment for administration, operates as a judgment for all the creditors of the estate for the amount of their respective debts, and consequently from that date they bear interest; but where a creditor is entitled to interest from any prior date, by virtue of any statute, or any contract, expressed or implied, the Master may allow such interest. But where a sum is payable at a certain day, with interest, there is no implied contract to pay interest at the same rate after default; and even where the same rate has been paid for many years after default, there is no implied contract to continue doing so: Re Roberts, Goodchap v. Roberts, 14 Ch. D. 49; 42 L. T. 666; Cook v. Fowler, L. R. 7 H. L. 27; Dalby v. Humphrey, 37 U. C. Q. B. 514; Simonton v. Graham, 8 P. R. 495. As to what is a sufficient demand of interest within the Jud. Act, s. 35 (2), supra, p. 197; see Geake v. Ross, 32 L. T. 666.

Interest on legacies.

General legacies payable out of personalty bear interest from the expiration of a year from the testator's death, unless the testator was the legatee's debtor, or being a parent of, or standing in loco parentis to, the legatee has made no provision for the maintenance of the legatee who is an infant: even though the fund out of which it is payable is reversionary, unless it distinctly appears that interest is not to run till the fund falls into possession: Walford v. Walford, 1912, A. C. 658; 107 L. T. 657. Interest on legacies charged on land, bear interest from the testator's death: Ashburner v. Maguire, 2 White & Tudor's L. C. (7th ed.), 852; but where the legacy is payable out of the proceeds of the sale of land, the interest does not run until a year from the death: Turner v. Buck, 18 L. R. Eq. 301; but where the sale was postponed by the testator till after the death of a tenant for life, and the rents were directed to be applied as if the sale had taken place, a legacy payable out of the proceeds, was held to bear interest from the death of the tenant for life: Re Waters, Waters v. Boxer, 42 Ch. D. 517; 61 L. T. 431; and see Re Scadding, 4 O. L. R. 632. Where, for the convenience of the estate, the payment of a legacy is postponed by the testator, the legacy bears interest nevertheless from a year from the testator's death: Re Olive, Olive v. Westerman, 50 L. T. 355; as to interest on a legacy to an infant executor: see Re Gardner, Long v. Gardner, 67 L. T. 552; and see further as to interest on legacies, Re Judkin, 25 Ch. D. 743; 50 L. T. 200.

See further as to the allowance of interest: notes to Rule 410, p. 930 et seq., supra.

Creditors to be notified when their claims are payable out of Court.

436. Where an order is made for payment of money out of Court to creditors, the person whose duty it is to prosecute the order shall send each creditor, or his solicitor (if any), a notice that the cheques may be obtained from the Accountant; and shall deposit with the Accountant any papers necessary to enable the creditors to receive their cheques. C.R. 714.

Creditors who have proved claims, but who are not parties to the action, are not entitled to notice of a hearing on further directions, nor of an application for distribution: Lavin v. O'Neill, 13 Gr. 179.

Rules 437-438.

Creditors who have received more than their share, may be ordered to refund, on the application of a creditor who has not received his proper proportion: Chamberlen v. Clarke, 1 Ont. 135; 9 Ont. App. 273; but the right may be barred by the Statute of Limitations, if not prosecuted within six years from the date of the overpayment. Blake v. Gale, 31 Ch. D. 196; or may be lost by acquiescence: S. C. 55 L. T. 234.

For form of notice: see Form No. 50; H. & L. Forms No. 993.

Notice, how to be sent to creditors.

437. Every notice required to be given to a creditor or claimant shall, unless the Master otherwise directs, be transmitted by registered letter to the creditor or claimant at the address given in the claim sent in, or, in case the creditor or claimant has employed a solicitor, to such solicitor at the address given by him. C.R. 715.

General provisions where a sale is ordered.

438. Where a sale is ordered, the Master may cause the property to be sold either by public auction, private contract, or tender, or part by one mode and part by another, as he may think best for the interest of all parties. C.R. 716.

Conduct of sale.

Conduct of the Sale.—The party having the carriage of the order or judgment, directing a sale, is the party usually entitled to the conduct of the sale.

Conduct of sale under trusts of will or settlement.

C. R. 717 provided that, "where the trust of any will or settlement are being administered and a sale is ordered of any property vested in the trustees of such will or settlement upon trust for sale or with power of sale by the trustees, the conduct of the sale shall be given to the trustees, unless otherwise ordered. And see Eng. R., March. 1879, r. 7.

C. R. 717 has not been continued, and, therefore, subject to the Master's discretion, now, as in other cases, the plaintiff would have the conduct: Re Marshall, W. N. 1879, 12.

The conduct of the sale was given to a defendant in an action by one trustee, who was also tenant for life, against the three other trustees: Re Gardner, Gardner v. Beaumont, 48 L. J. Chy. 644.

The mere extent of the interest of any party in the property, or the possession by him of title deeds, does not give any right to conduct the sale. Usually the plaintiff having the carriage of the judgment, or order, will also have the conduct of the sale: Dale v. Hamilton, 10 Ha. App. vii. But where it is for the benefit of all parties, the conduct of the sale may be given to a defendant: Hewitt v. Nanson, 7 W. R. 5; Dixon v. Pyner, 7 Ha. 331; or where all parties to the action wish to bid, it may be given to an independent solicitor: Ramsay v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 283.

Duty of solicitor conducting sale.

It is the duty of the solicitor of the party having the conduct of the sale, to prepare the advertisement, to procure its settlement by the Master, and to see to its publication, pursuant to the Master's direction, to make the necessary arrangements with the auctioneer, to attend the sale, to see that the contracts are duly signed by the purchasers, and that the deposits, if any, required to be paid by purchasers are duly paid, to prepare the necessary affidavits proving the sale, and procure the report on sale to be settled and filed, to deliver abstracts, answers to requisitions, and objections, and to attend any reference as to the title; to attend the settlement of the conveyances, and procure their execution by all necessary parties to the action; and to enforce, if necessary, by motion, the due performance by the purchasers of their contracts. He is usually styled "the vendors' solicitor," and as such he acts for the purpose of the sale, and as regards the purchaser, for all the parties to the action who are interested in the land directed to be sold: Dolby v. Pullen, 1 R. & M. 296; Street v. Hallett, 6 P. R. 312; but his own client must bear any loss occasioned by such solicitor's malfeasance, such as the misappropriation of the purchase money: Mulkins v. Clarke, 11 P. R. 350. Rule 439.

Every party to the action is bound to facilitate the sale: Knott v. Cottee, 27 Beav. 33. Interference by other parties, with the party having the conduct of the sale, may be restrained by injunction: Dean v. Wilson, 10 Ch. D. 136. Duty of parties.

The party having the conduct of the sale, is not at liberty to bid, unless leave to do so is granted specially: see Rule 442.

Where a sale has proved abortive for want of bidders, the property may be advertised and put up again for sale without further order: Sherwood v. Campbell, 1 Chy. Ch. 299. Abortive sale.

439. The party having the conduct of the sale shall bring into the Master's office a draft advertisement, which shall shew:— Draft advertisement to be brought in. What it is to contain.

(a) The short style of cause;

(b) That the sale is in pursuance of an order of the Court;

(c) The time and place of sale;

(d) A short and true description of the property to be sold;

(e) The manner in which the property is to be sold, whether in one lot or several, and if in several, in how many, and what lots;

(f) What proportion of the purchase money is to be paid down by way of deposit, and at what time or times, and whether the residue of such purchase money is to be paid with or without interest;

(g) If there is an upset price or reserve bid it shall be so stated.

(h) Any particulars in which the proposed conditions of sale differ from the standing conditions. C.R. 720 and 721.

Rule 439.

Any particulars in which the proposed conditions of sale differ from the standing conditions, are to be set out in the advertisement. This Rule, therefore, renders it unnecessary to bring in any particulars and conditions of sale, apart from those necessarily required to be embodied in the advertisement.

Advertisements of sale, how to be framed.

Advertisements of sale should be framed as concisely as possible, and all matter which conveys no necessary information to intending purchasers should be excluded. The introduction of "puffing" is to be avoided: Baxter v. Finlay, 1 Chy. Ch. 230; Buchan v. Wilkes, Ib. 231. The advertisement should set out the improvements: Heward v. Ridout, 1 Chy. Ch. 244; and the existence of a favourable lease, if any: McAlpine v. Young, 2 Chy. Ch. 171. But any omissions of this kind, must, as a general rule, be objected to at the time of settling the advertisement, or before the sale has taken place: Creswick v. Thompson, 6 P. R. 52. But, where a material fact was omitted from the advertisement, e.g., that a lease was subject to a ground rent, the purchaser was discharged from his purchase: Jones v. Rimmer, 14 Ch. D. 588; 43 L. T. 111; 49 L. J. Ch. 775.

Defects in advertisements, when to be corrected.

Misrepresentation in, effect of.

Misdescription in the advertisement, where it amounts to a material misrepresentation, is also a ground for compensation to the purchaser: Stammers v. O'Donohoe, 28 Gr. 207; also material verbal misrepresentations: Webb v. Roberts, 16 O. L. R. 279; even after conveyance: Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 36; or may entitle the purchaser, at his option, to be relieved from his purchase: Mathias v. Yetts, 46 L. T. 497; Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 1; 45 L. T. 485; 51 L. J. Ch. 113; but he is not entitled to compensation if he bought with knowledge of the facts: Re Edwards & Daniel, 62 L. T. 445; and see infra, pp. 1002 et seq.

The misdescription of a street number, there being other sufficient description, was held to be immaterial: Foster v. Anderson, 16 O. L. R. 565; 12 S. C. R. 251—and a misdescription of the depth of a city lot followed by the words "more or less" though it amounted to 11 feet 6 inches, was held not to entitle the purchaser to compensation, the price having been fixed by reference to the lot generally and not by its frontage or depth per foot: Wilson v. Simpson, 22 22 O. L. R. 452.

Where a misstatement in the advertisement has been verbally corrected at the sale by the auctioneer, but such correction was not heard by the purchaser, the latter is not entitled to compensation, though semble, the vendor might not be entitled to enforce the contract specifically: Re Hare & O'Moore, 1901, 1 Ch. 93; 83 L. T. 672.

Where leaseholds subject to onerous covenants are offered for sale, such covenants should be disclosed to the purchaser; and an acceptance of the title in ignorance of such covenants will not be binding on the purchaser: Re Haedicke & Lipski, 1901, 2 Ch. 666; 85 L. T. 402; Molyneux v. Howtrey, 1903, 2 K. B. 487; 89 L. T. 350.

Special conditions of sale not to be resorted to without cause.

Special Conditions.—Unnecessarily stringent conditions of sale ought not to be sanctioned by the Master; thus where the title, or the proof of it, was involved in no difficulty, a condition of sale that "The vendor is not to be bound to give any evidence of title, or any title deeds, or copies thereof, other than such as are in his possession, or prove an abstract," was condemned by the Court: McDonald v. Gordon, 2 Chy. Ch. 125; and see Dance v. Goldingham, L. R. 8 Chy.

902; Dunn v. Flood, 25 Ch. D. 629; 49 L. T. 670; 28 Ch. D. 586; 52 L. T. 699; Re Rayner, 53 L. T. 495. Trustees were restrained from selling without a reserved bid: Downey v. Dennis, 14 Ont. 219. Rule 439.

In sales by the Court, if a good title can be made, the parties are not at liberty to relieve themselves by special conditions from the obligation to make such a title, and the Court will not provide by conditions for imaginary defects, per Mowat, V.C., McDonald v. Gordon, 2 Chy. Ch. 125; Piers v. Piers, Sau. & Sc. 414. "It is the uniform practice of a Court of Equity, not to set up for sale a title knowing it to be bad:" Bennett v. Wheeler, 1 Ir. Eq. 16; Lahey v. Bell, 6 Ir. Eq. 122; Sugden, V. & P., 14th ed., 100, and see Hume v. Bentley, 5 De G. & S. 527.

Where a contract stated that the land was sold "subject to the conditions of the Incorporated Law Society" it was held that the conditions for the time being of the Incorporated Law Society were incorporated into the contract, and it was not open to the objection that it did not sufficiently comply with the Statute of Frauds: Pickles v. Sutcliffe, 114 L. T. Jour. 172; and the same rule would doubtless apply to the incorporation of the standing conditions of the Court referred to in Rule 441.

A condition of sale is bad, as misleading, if it requires the purchaser to assume as true what the vendor knows to be false; or if it states that the state of the title is not accurately known, when in fact it is known to the vendor: see Nash v. Wooderson, 78 L. T. Jour. 59. And a purchaser purchasing at a sale by the Court under such conditions is entitled to have a good title made, notwithstanding the conditions; but where the conditions on the face of them purport to give only a good holding title, that is all the purchaser, even though relieved from the conditions, can insist on: Re Banister, Broad v. Munton, 12 Ch. D. 131. Condition requiring purchaser to assume as true, what is false, is bad.

And where a sale was had, under a condition that precluded the purchaser from objecting to the title prior to the document chosen as the root of the title, but the purchaser inquired into the prior title and refused to complete, on the ground that the prior title was bad, the Court, being of opinion that the objection was well founded, refused to enforce the sale against the purchaser, and discharged him from his purchase: Else v. Else, L. R. 13 Eq. 196; Williams v. Wood, 16 W. R. 1005; Bennett v. Wheeler, 1 Ir. Eq. 16; Hume v. Bentley, 5 De G. & S. 527; and see Dunn v. Flood, supra; but see Re National Provincial Bank v. Marsh, 71 L. T. 629.

Where a sale was had under a condition that no objection or requisition should be made by the purchaser by reason of the non-acknowledgment of a deed dated 18th December, 1841, by a married woman, who was a party to it, and it turned out that the deed in question was the conveyance to the vendor, and that the married woman had one-fifth interest in the estate, and that the vendor, though in possession, had not acquired a title under the Statute of Limitations, the Court refused to enforce the contract against the purchasers: Re Cumming to Goldbolt, 78 L. T. Jour. 31.

Where a sale was had upon condition that in case the vendor should be unable or unwilling to remove or comply with any objection or requisition made by the purchaser, he might rescind the sale, and the purchaser delivered requisitions which the vendor answered, but the purchaser considered the answer insufficient, and the vendor then gave notice that he rescinded the contract, it was held that the purchaser could not, by subsequently waiving his objections, prevent the rescission from taking effect: Dames v. Wood, 51 L. T. 109. Where there was such a condition, and it appeared that the purchasers objected to a prior contract for sale appearing on the registry, and they offered to give time for the removal of their objection, if the vendor would give an indemnity against the prior contract, and they threatened action if this was not accepted, the vendor, in good faith rescinding, was held entitled to do so: Woolcott v. Peggie, 15 App. Cas. 42; see also Re 163rd Starr Bowkett Building Society v. Sibun, 61 L. T. 346; but such a power to rescind can not be exercised except in good faith: Smith v. Wallace, 1895, 1 Ch. 385; Re Weston & Thomas, 1907, 1 Ch. 244; 96 L. T. 324; and where a requisition is reasonable a vendor is not entitled to rescind arbitrarily, and notwithstanding his rescission, specific performance may be ordered: Quinion v. Horne, 1906, 1 Ch. 596.

Where the conditions limit a time for making objections to the title, and provide that objections not made within the time shall be deemed to be waived, such conditions will be strictly binding on the purchaser, except in the case of an objection showing that the vendor has no title: Armstrong v. Nason, 25 S. C. R. 263.

Under a condition of sale giving the vendor the right to rescind in the event of his being unable or unwilling to answer any requisition or objection to the title, there is no difference between the case of a vendor selling having no title, and selling a defective title; in either case can he avail himself of the condition: Bowmon v. Hyland, 8 Ch. D. 588; Re Jackson & Haden, 1905, 1 Ch. 603; 1906, 1 Ch. 412; 92 L. T. 591; 94 L. T. 418; Re Deighton, 1898, 1 Ch. 458; 78 L. T. 430.

After a judgment for specific performance, the right of a vendor to rescind under a special condition is subject to the control of the Court: Halkett v. Dudley, 1907, 1 Ch. 590; 96 L. T. 539.

The expense of procuring title deeds not in the vendor's possession to which the purchaser is entitled, must be borne by the vendor in the absence of any condition to the contrary, and semble, a condition that the vendor shall not be bound to produce them for verification of the abstract is not a sufficient condition to the contrary: Re Duby & Jesson, 1898, 1 Ch. 419.

Where time is made "of the essence of the contract," in case of default, the opposite party may treat the contract as rescinded without further notice; but this will not entitle a vendor to retain purchase money paid on account (otherwise than as a deposit on sale): Labelle v. O'Connor, 15 O. L. R. 519. Where the purchaser makes default, he forfeits his deposit: see notes to Rule 448: Where after default the opposite party treats the contract as still subsisting, that may amount to a waiver of the condition: Devlin v. Rodkey, 22 O. L. R. 399; and see Re Crabbe & Little, 14 O. L. R. 631.

The standing conditions of sale are those referred to in Rule 411.

Where an advertisement is not settled in proper form, it may, on motion in Chambers, be referred back to the Master to be re-settled, and if necessary to appoint a new day for the sale: Heward v. Ridout, 1 Chy. Ch. 244; such an application if in the nature of an appeal from the Master would seem to be beyond the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, and to be proper to be made to a Judge. Rule 440.

Reserved Bid.—The Master may, without order, fix an upset price, or reserved bidding at the time the advertisement is settled, and if he does, it is to be notified in the conditions of sale. Master may fix upset price or reserved bidding.

In order to enable the Master to fix a reserved bid, an affidavit made by some competent surveyor must be filed. See H. & L. Forms, No. 1040. Reserved bid, how fixed.

According to the English practice, affidavits for the purpose of enabling the Judge to fix reserved biddings are to state the value of the property by reference to an exhibit, so that the value may not be disclosed by the affidavit when filed: Eng. (1883) R. 883.

The amount of the reserved bid should not be stated in the conditions of sale, but merely the fact that the sale is to be subject to a reserved bid.

Where the Master omitted on the settling of the advertisement to fix a reserved bid, on motion in Chambers, leave to fix a reserved bid, and re-advertise was granted: Fraser v. Bens, 1 Chy. Ch. 71.

Where the sale takes place elsewhere than before the Master, a note of the amount of the reserved bid under a sealed cover is to be delivered to the auctioneer, or person selling the estate, with instructions not to open it until the biddings are closed, and not to make the amount of it known even then. How communicated to auctioneer.

A bonâ fide purchaser cannot be prejudiced by any mistake made in fixing the reserved bid: Re Jelly, 3 O. L. R. 72.

Where a sale takes place subject to a reserved bid, all the biddings are subject to the condition that they are equal to, or greater, than the reserved price, so that the highest bidder cannot insist on a sale to him, though the auctioneer declares him to be the buyer, unless his bid fulfils the condition: McManus v. Fortescue, 1907, 2 K. B. 1; 98 L. T. 444.

The advertisement is published by the party conducting the sale, at such times and in such manner as the Master appoints. Advertising sale.

Where a sale is postponed, a note of such adjournment published at the foot of the original advertisement will suffice, without incurring the expense of an entirely fresh advertisement: Thompson v. Milliken, 15 Gr. 197. Postponement of sale.

Sales are not to be postponed except in extreme cases. Where, pending the time appointed in a mortgage suit for redemption, the mortgagor made an assignment in insolvency, but the plaintiff proceeded with the suit without adding the assignee; a motion by the latter to stay the sale on the ground that he had no notice of settling the advertisement was refused: Hoskins v. Johnston, 8 P. R. 257.

440. Upon the return of the appointment to settle the advertisement the Master shall also fix the time and place of sale, name an auctioneer, where one is to be employed, give direction for publication, fix the upset price or Duty of Master on settling advertisement.

Rule 444.

reserve bid, and make every other necessary arrangement preparatory to the sale. C.R. 722.

Formerly sale must be by auction, unless otherwise ordered, but now, Master may direct sale by tender, etc.

Formerly all sales directed by the Court of Chancery had to be by auction, unless the order, or decree, expressly authorized a sale in some other way. Even after an abortive attempt to sell by auction, a sale in any other way could not be had except by express order: Berry v. Gibbons, L. R. 15 Eq. 150. Now, where a sale is ordered, the Master may cause the property, or a competent part thereof, to be sold either by public auction, private contract, or tender, or part by one mode, and part by another, as he may think best for the interest of all parties; and he may fix an upset price, or reserved bidding, but such price or bidding, must be so fixed at the meeting held by him for the settling of the advertisement, and making the other arrangements preparatory to the sale, and must be notified in the conditions of sale: Rule 442. The Master is not justified in accepting a tender from the person having the conduct of the sale: Romsey v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 283.

Sales by auction, highest bidder, right of.

Where land is offered for sale by auction, unless in the particulars or conditions of sale it is stated that the land will be sold subject to a reserved price, or a right of the seller to bid, the sale is to be deemed, and taken, to be without reserve; and upon any sale without reserve, it is unlawful for the seller, or a puffer, to bid, or for the auctioneer knowingly to take any bidding from a seller, or puffer: see The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), ss. 51, 52; Heron v. Moffatt, 22 Gr. at pp. 375-6; Johnston v. Boyes, 1899, 2 Ch. 73; 80 L. T. 488. Upon a sale without reserve it is not open to the vendor to refuse a bid, however small: O'Connor v. Woodward, 6 P. R. 223; McAlpine v. Young, 2 Chy. Ch. 171; and the vendor is liable to the highest bidder for breach of contract if he refuses to accept his bid: Johnston v. Boyes, supra; and see 117 L. T. Jour. 455; 121 L. T. Jour. 176; but see Fenwick v. Macdonald, 41 Sc. L. R. 688, reversed, 6 F. 850, where it was held that as the bidder might withdraw his bid at any time before the hammer falls, so also the vendor might withdraw the property from sale: Rainbow v. Hawkins, 1904, 2 K. B. 322; 91 L. T. 149. The offer of property subject to a reserved bidding, does not involve also a right for the seller to bid, or to employ a puffer; thus, where a sale was advertised under a decree subject to a reserve bid, but no right on the part of the seller to bid was reserved, but a puffer was employed whose bids did not exceed the reserved bid, the sale was, on the application of the purchaser, set aside: Gittiot v. Gittiot, 18 W. R. 203; L. R. 9 Eq. 60, and if a limited right to bid be reserved, and the limit be exceeded, the sale is voidable: Porfitt v. Jepson, 46 L. J. C. P. 529.

Limited right of vendor to bid cannot be exceeded

Mortgage actions, mortgagor's duty as to advertisement.

Under a judgment for sale in a mortgage action it is the mortgagor's duty to see to the parcelling out of the land directed to be sold, and, if he considers too much is offered for sale, he should urge the objection at the time of settling the advertisement, and it should be stated in the advertisement that so soon as sufficient has been realized by the sale to pay off the plaintiff's and other claims, the remaining lots, if any, will be withdrawn, if that course is intended to be pursued: Beaty v. Rodenhurst, 3 Chy. Ch. 344.

Properties widely apart should not be included in one parcel; thus shops in a village, and a farm three-quarters of a mile away, were held to have been improperly included in one parcel: Aldrich v. Canada Permanent L. & S. Co., 24 Ont. App. 193. Rules 441, 442.

Where the Master enlarged the time appointed for sending in tenders, it was held that he had a right to do so, and that the highest tender in at the time originally appointed was not necessarily to be accepted; notwithstanding it was advertised that the sale would be then "peremptorily closed": Re Alger, etc., 21 Ont. 440.

Where property is offered for sale subject to incumbrances, they must be accurately described; and where the agreement for sale stated that the land was to be subject to a "mortgage incumbrance of $750, bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum," and it turned out that the mortgage was for $3,000, with interest at 10 per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly, to be reduced if punctually paid to 7 per cent., with an agreement to release the land, which was the subject of the contract, on payment of $750; it was held that the agreement did not convey an accurate statement as to the nature of the incumbrance, and that the purchaser was entitled to be relieved from the contract: Re Booth & McLean, 21 Ont. 452.

The Master, or his clerk, may conduct the sale if no auctioneer is employed: see Rule 443. Master, or his clerk may act as auctioneers.

441. The standing conditions of sale shall be those set forth in Form No. 52. C. R. 723. Standing conditions of sale.

See Form No. 52; H. & L. Forms, No. 1043.

Any conditions varying from, or in addition to, the standing conditions must be stated at length in the advertisement: Rule 439 (h).

Where the owner of the equity of redemption is dead, and his heirs are out of the jurisdiction, or unknown, a sale may be directed in an action against a subsequent mortgagee, and the Provincial Attorney-General as representing the deceased mortgagor, but the circumstances under which the sale is directed, must be stated in the particulars of sale: Smith v. Good, 14 Gr. 444.

As to special conditions: see note to Rule 439.

Even without the standing condition for a re-sale in case of default by the purchaser, and payment by him of any deficiency, the law implies such a contract: Re Hornibrook, 12 P. R. 591.

The fact that the standing conditions are incorporated into the contract by reference does not render the contract open to the objection that it does not comply with the Statute of Frauds: see Pickles v. Sutcliffe, 114 L. T. Jour. 127.

Where, as the standing condition provides, the deposit is payable to the vendor's solicitor; if he makes away with it, it cannot be recovered from the auctioneer: Brown v. Farebrother, 59 L. T. 822; but the client of the solicitor is responsible to the other parties interested, to make good the loss: Mulkins v. Clarke, 11 P. R. 350.

442. All parties may bid, except the party having the conduct of the sale, and except any trustees, agents, and other persons in a fiduciary position. C.R. 725. All parties may bid except party having conduct of sale, trustees, etc.

Rule 442.

Leave to hid not granted to party having conduct of sale.

Nor to executor, receiver, guardian ad lit, nor trustee.

Leave to hid will not nsually be granted to the party having the conduct of the sale: Phillips v. Conger, 1 O. S. 583; Domville v. Berrington, 2 Y. & C. 723; Sidney v. Ranger, 12 Sim. 118, nor to his servants, or agents: see Martinson v. Clawes, 21 Ch. D. 857; 46 L. T. 882; 51 L. J. Ch. 594; except upon the terms of traneferring the conduct of the sale to an independent solicitor, if none of the other partlee will take it: Ramsay v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 283. Leave to hid has also heen refueed to an executor, in an administration action: Geldard v. Randall, 9 Jur. 1085; to a receiver: Alven v. Bond, 1 Flan. & K. 195; and see Nugent v. Nugent, infra; to a guardian ad litem: see Seton, 5th ed., 295; Crawford v. Boyd, 6 P. R. 278. Leave will not, in general, he given to trusteee to hid, unlees all the cestuis que trustent who are sui juris consent, and no other purchaser at an adequate price can he found: Tenant v. Trenchard, L. R. 4 Chy. 537, 547; Farmer v. Dean, 32 Beav. 327; and eee Ricker v. Ricker, 27 Gr. 576; 7 Ont. App. 28; 18 C. L. J. 274; 2 C. L. T. 399, and a truetee who has obtained leave to hid, is not exonerated from his duty of protecting the interest of his cestui que trust: Ib., hut see Boswell v. Coaks, 48 L. T. 929; 51 L. T. 242; 55 L. T. 32; 23 Ch. D. 302; 27 Ch. D. 424; 11 App. Cas. 232. Where a trustee, who was also entitled to a lien on the trust estate for advances, had failed to realize the trust estate hy sale at auction, or hy tender, he wae himself permitted to become the purchaser: Hutton v. Justin, 2 O. L. R. 713. Although a vendor cannot himself become the purchaeer unless he has obtained special leave to hid, yet it would seem that there is no objection to a Joint Stock Company in which he is a shareholder becoming the purchaser: see Farrar v. Farrars, 40 Ch. D. 395; 59 L. T. 619. But where a trustee for sale, or the vendor, has a secret understanding not amounting to a contract, that the purchaser will re-sell the property to him. the sale will he set aside though no actual fraudnlent intent he proved: Re Postlethwaite, Postlethwaite v. Rickman, 59 L. T. 58; but this case was reversed on appeal owing to the great lapse of time: 60 L. T. 514.

Leave to bid, how obtained.

Leave for parties, not otherwise entitled, to bid, is sometimes contained in the order, or judgment, directing the sale, hut an order for that purpose is usually ohtained in Chambers on notice to the other parties interested. The Master formerly had no power to grant such leave: Re Laycock, McGillivroy v. Johnson, 8 P. R. 548, hut may now do so in the exercise of his jurisdiction in Chambers under Rule 433.

Effect of party not authorized to bid becoming purchaser.

Where a party not authorized to hid, has hid without leave, and hecomee the purchaeer, the sale will not necessarily he set aside, but the property may, on the applicatlon of the other parties interested. he ordered to he put up for sale again at the expense of the party so hidding. and if no more can he realized he may he held to his purchase: Wilson v. Greenwood, 10 Sim. 101; Sidney v. Ranger, 12 Sim. 118; Crawford v. Boyd, 6 P. R. 278; and see Martinson v. Clowes, 52 L. T. 706.

A receiver cannot, without the leave of the Court, purchase for his own henefit property to which the action in which he is receiver relates. even though the sale he made hy some third person, e.g., a mortgagee of the property: if he huys, he will be deemed to have hought for the benefit of those interested in his receivership: Nugent v. Nugent, 1907. 2 Ch. 292; 1908. 1 Ch. 546; 97 L. T. 279; 98 L. T. 354.

443. The Master or his Clerk shall conduct the sale where no auctioneer is employed. C.R. 727.

Rules 443, 444.

Master, clerk or auctioneer may conduct sale.

An auctioneer selling land is not required to be licensed under The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), s. 412: Regina v. Chapmon, 1 Ont. 582; but an assignee for the benefit of creditors cannot act as auctioneer at a sale of goods without a license: Reg. v. Rawson, 22 Ont. 467.

Biddings.

Biddings need not be in writing, but a written agreement is to be signed by the purchaser at the time of sale: see Rule 444.

Sale without reserve.

Where the sale is to be without reserve, the vendor is not at liberty to refuse any bid, however small, nor can the vendor, or a puffer, bid, unless the right to bid is expressly reserved in the conditions of sale. And where the right to bid is limited to one or more bids, the vendor may not exceed it. And where the sale is subject to a reserved bid, a puffer cannot also be employed: see note to Rule 440; but where a stranger, at the instance of the mortgagor, made a fictitious bid at a sale of the mortgaged property under a judgment of the Court, it was held that a purchaser could not avoid the sale on the ground that he had been thereby induced to bid more than he otherwise would; Union Bank v. Munster, 37 Ch. D. 51; 57 L. T. 877; but see Gillat v. Gilliat, in note to Rule 440, supra, p. 988.

Vendor, or puffer may not bid.

Where the sale is without reserve, but the vendor, after a bid has been made, withdraws the property from sale, the highest bidder may, nevertheless, apply to be declared the purchaser: McAlpine v. Young, supra, p. 988. It would seem that such an application should be made in the first place to the Master to report on the sale, and if he refuses to report the highest bidder the purchaser, an appeal would lie from him to the Court in the ordinary way: see Rules 502-504. In McAlpine v. Young, the application appears to have been made in Chambers in the first instance.

Acceptance of an invalid bid.

Where the auctioneer has accepted the bid of a vendor, or puffer, who had no right to bid, and declared him the purchaser, it would seem that the highest bidder lawfully bidding, would be entitled to set aside the sale, and have himself declared the purchaser.

Withdrawal of bid.

Semble, a bid, like every other offer, may be withdrawn before acceptance, even though it is otherwise stipulated in the conditions of sale: Kaiserhof Hotel Co. v. Zuber, 23 O. L. R. 481; 25 O. L. R. 194.

Agreement not to bid.

An agreement between intending purchasers not to bid against each other, on a verbal agreement that in the event of any one of them becoming the purchaser he will resell part to the other of them is not invalid, and may be specifically enforced as against the one becoming the purchaser: Can. Pac. Ry. v. Grand Trunk Ry., 14 O. L. R. 41; 39 S. C. R. 220; and see Brock v. Soul, in note to Rule 447, infra, p. 995.

444. The purchaser shall at the time of sale sign an agreement to purchase. C.R. 728.

Purchaser to sign contract.

Contract.

The agreement to be signed by the purchaser should identify the property purchased, by reference to the particulars and conditions of sale, and should in other respects be a sufficient agreement to satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds; but it is possible that a contract upon a sale by the Court might be enforced though these formalities had not been complied with: see Daniel's Pr., 6th ed., 1104.

Rule 445.

Contract, how to be signed.

The purchaser should sign his name, and his address and quality should also be stated. If his signature is not plain, or initials are used, it is desirable that a note of his full name should be written at the foot. Where any person purchases as agent for another, it should be so expressed in the signature, otherwise he will be treated as the purchaser, unless an affidavit showing the fact to be otherwise, is produced on the settlement of the report on sale: see Dan. Pr., 6th ed., 1083.

The auctioneer has authority to sign the contract for the purchaser, but he must sign it at the time of the sale, he cannot do so afterwards, nor can he delegate the authority to sign for the purchaser to his clerk, or any other person: Bell v. Balls, 76 L. T. 254.

Deposit at sale, how to be paid.

445. The deposit shall be paid to the vendor, or his solicitor, at the time of sale, and shall forthwith be paid by him into Court, in the name of the purchaser. C.R. 729.

Solicitor neglecting to pay in deposit, liability of.

If the solicitor for the vendor neglects to pay the deposit into Court, he may be compelled to do so by order, on application of the purchaser: Crooks v. Glenn, 1 Chy. Ch. 354. And where he neglected to pay in the deposit, and in consequence of his not having done so the judgment was not in the hands of the Accountant, so that the purchaser could not obtain a direction to pay in the balance of his purchase money, the solicitor was ordered to pay the interest which would have accrued on the whole purchase money, if the money had been duly paid into Court: Smith v. Dunn, 3 C. L. T. 217.

Misappropriation of deposit.

Where the deposit was paid by the auctioneer to one of a firm of solicitors having the conduct of the sale, who misappropriated it, the other members of the firm were held liable for it: Biggs v. Bree, 45 L. T. 648; 46 L. T. 8; and see Thompson v. Robinson, 15 Ont. 662; 16 Ont. App. 175. The auctioneer is not bound to accept a cheque for the deposit: Johnston v. Boyes, 1899, 2 Ch. 73; 80 L. T. 488.

The client of the solicitor making default is responsible to the other parties to the action for his misfeasance: Mulkins v. Clarke, 11 P. R. 350; but an auctioneer who pays the deposit to the solicitor pursuant to the conditions of sale is discharged from liability: Brown v. Fairbrother, 59 L. T. 822. Where at a sale out of Court by a mortgagee he had accepted a cheque for the deposit which proved bad, and the sale fell through in consequence of the purchaser turning out to be worthless, it was held that the mortgagee was nevertheless entitled to add the costs of the abortive sale to his debt: Farrer v. Lacey, 31 Ch. D. 42; 50 L. T. 121; 53 L. T. 515.

If sale goes off for default of purchaser, deposit is forfeited.

Where the sale is not completed through the default of the purchaser, he forfeits his deposit to the vendor: Rosenberg v. Cooke, 8 Q. B. D. 162; Whelan v. Couch, 26 Gr. 74; Smith v. Butler, 1900, 1 Q. B. 694; 82 L. T. 281; Tilt v. Knapp, 9 P. R. 314; Re Hornibrook, 12 P. R. 591; Sprague v. Booth, 1909, A. C. 576; Griffiths v. Vesey, 1906, 1 Ch. 796; 94 L. T. 574; and all other payments made on account of purchase money: Gibbons v. Cozens, 29 Ont. 356; see standing conditions of sale: Form No. 52, clause 6; and note to Rule 448, infra, p. 997; (but see Cornwall v. Henson, 1899, 2 Ch. 710; 81 L. T. 113; 1900, 2 Ch. 298; 82 L. T. 735); even though there be no stipulation to that effect: Ex parte Barrell, Re Parnell, L. R. 10 Chy. 512; Dunn v. Vere, 19 W. R. 151; and see Howe v. Smith, 50 L. T. 573; Hall v. Burnell, 1911, 2 Ch. 551; 105 L. T. 409; Fletcher v. Campbell, 29 O. L. R. 501; Catton v. Bennett, 26 Ch.

D. 161; 51 L. T. 70; and even though specific performance is refused: Scott v. Alvarez, 1895, 2 Ch. 603; 73 L. T. 43. And this is so, even where the contract is invalid, and could not be legally enforced: Thomas v. Brown, 35 L. T. 247; but see Casson v. Roberts, 31 Beav. 613; or where there is a defect in the vendor's title, which the purchaser is precluded, by the conditions, from objecting to: Rosenberg v. Cooke, supra, p. 992; nor can the deposit be recovered though the purchaser shows that the title is bad, where he has bought subject to a condition which precludes him from objecting to the title: Scott v. Alvarez, supra; and where a good holding title is shown, but not one which the Court would force on a purchaser, if the purchaser refuses to complete, he cannot, in such circumstances, recover the deposit: Re Turner & Thomas, 88 L. T. Jour. 81; but in Labelle v. O'Connor, 15 O. L. R. 519, it was held that the forfeiture did not extend to instalments paid on account of purchase money, or otherwise than as a deposit; but Gibbons v. Cozens, supra, p. 992, does not appear to have been referred to. See also note to Rule 448, infra. Rule 446.

A deposit, which has been forfeited for default of the purchaser, cannot be recovered back on the ground that upon a re-sale of the property a fatal defect in the title was discovered: Soper v. Arnold, 35 Ch. D. 384; 14 App. Cas. 429.

The deposit is only recoverable where there is a breach of contract by the vendor: Re Turner & Thomas, supra, and see Carroll v. Cottell, 4 M. & W. 734. When deposit recoverable.

Where a sale has been improperly conducted, and the purchaser has notice that such is the case, he may refuse to carry out the purchase, and recover his deposit: Locking v. Holstead, 16 Ont. 32.

Where a resale is ordered in consequence of a purchaser's default, and an order is made for payment of any deficiency arising on such resale by the purchaser; in estimating the deficiency on the resale the purchaser was held entitled to credit for the deposit paid on the original sale: Shuttleworth v. Clews, 1910, 1 Ch. 176; 101 L. T. 708; and see Morch v. Banton, 48 C. L. J. 148. Deposit to be credited in estimating deficiency on resale.

Though the vendor's solicitor is entitled to his costs of receiving the deposit on sale, and paying it into Court, out of the fund, he must look to the purchasers for his costs of receiving, and paying into Court any other instalments of the purchase money, which it is their duty to pay into Court: Re Robertson, 24 Gr. 555. Costs of paying in purchase money.

In England the auctioneer, or solicitor, appointed to receive the deposit, is required to give security duly to account therefor: Dan. Pr. 6th ed., 1080. But this has not been customary in Ontario.

In sales out of Court, a vendor's solicitor, who has received a deposit of the purchase money, and applied it on account of his costs due by his client, cannot be made to refund it at the suit of the purchaser: Ellis v. Goulton, 1893, 1 Q. B. 350.

446. After the sale is concluded, the auctioneer, where one is employed, shall make an affidavit as to the result of the sale, and where no auctioneer is employed, the Master or his Clerk shall certify the result. C.R. 730. Affidavit of auctioneer, or certificate of Master of result of sale.

For form of affidavit of auctioneer: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1048.

Rule 447.

Report on sale, form of.

The report on sale is to be according to Form No. 53; see H. & L. Forms, No. 1051.

The solicitor having the conduct of the sale usually takes the necessary steps to procure the report on sale; but it would seem that a purchaser may himself take out the report on sale, and get it confirmed, where he is the sole purchaser: Crooks v. Glenn, 1 Chy. Ch. 354; or, semble, he may take a separate report as to his own purchase, where he is not the sole purchaser.

Opposing sale before Master.

The confirmation of a sale may be opposed before the Master, and the sale disallowed, on grounds which would justify a motion to set it aside: Beaty v. Rodenhurst, 3 Chy. Ch. 344; Rodgers v. Rodgers, 13 Gr. 143.

Opposing sale in Chambers.

A motion to confirm a sale will not be entertained in Chambers, where an irregularity has occurred, unless the sale has been approved of by the Master: Thomas v. McCroe, 2 Chy. Ch. 456; and see Cayley v. Colbert, Ib., 455. Where the Master's directions have not been observed, the party having the conduct of the sale will have to show, at his own expense, that no person interested has been injured by the non-observance of the direction, otherwise the Master will not confirm the sale: Royal Canadian Bank v. Dennis, 4 Chy. Ch. 68.

Where a party bidding and becoming the purchaser had no right to bid.

Where some person not having authority to bid, has improperly bid and been declared at the auction to be the purchaser, the Master should not declare the sale void, but should report the sale, stating the facts as to the improper bid; and it is then open to the other parties to move to have the property again put up for sale, at the expense of the party so bidding improperly, and holding him to his purchase if no higher price is realized: Crawford v. Boyd, 6 P. R. 278, note p. 280; or the purchaser may, on notice to all parties interested, move to confirm the sale to him. When the person so bidding has also had the conduct of the sale, the sale will not as a general rule be confirmed, if any party objects.

Until confirmation of report on sale, property at risk of vendor.

Until confirmation of the report on sale, the property is at the risk of the vendor, and in the event of fire, the loss occasioned thereby must fall on him: Stephenson v. Boin, 8 P. R. 166, 258; S. C., 16 C. L. J. 15, 115; but as to sales out of Court: see Rayner v. Preston, 43 L. T. 18; S. C., in Appeal, 44 L. T. 787; 18 Ch. D. 1; Gill v. Canada Fire and Marine Insurance Co., 1 Ont. 341; Castellain v. Preston, 8 Q. B. D. 614; 46 L. T. 569; 19 C. L. J. 143; 49 L. T. 29; Keefer v. Phœnix Ins. Co., 26 Ont. App. 277.

Even when the sale has proved abortive for want of bidders, the report needs confirmation before it can be acted on: Robert v. Caughell, 6 O. L. R. 381.

Sale may be objected to on motion.

447. Objection to the sale shall be by motion to set aside the same; and notice of the motion shall be served upon the purchaser, and on the other parties and biddings shall be opened only on special grounds. C.R. 732.

C. R. 732, provided expressly that the motion was to be to the Court or a Judge. The present Rule is silent and semble as being a matter coming within Rule 207 (4), it may be made in Chambers to the Master in Chambers, or Local Master, or Local Judge, having jurisdiction in Chambers, and it would seem that the Master under whose authority the sale has been made would have jurisdiction to entertain such a motion: Rule 433. Rule 447.

The motion to set aside the sale, or open the biddings, must generally be made before the confirmation of the report, but see Ricker v. Ricker, 27 Gr. 576, and S. C., in appeal, 7 Ont. App. 282. Formerly, a mere offer to give an increased price was sufficient ground for opening the biddings but this is no longer the case: Roberts v. Duric, 1 Chy. Ch. 211; now, special grounds affecting the validity of the sale, must be established: Creswick v. Thompson, 6 P. R. 52; and the fact that the purchaser is one of the parties to the suit makes no difference in the rule: Mitchell v. Mitchell, 6 P. R. 232; and it applies to sales by tender, or private contract: Re Bartlett, Newman v. Hook, 44 L. T. 17. Great delay, is an answer to such an application, unless misconduct is shewn on the part of the purchaser: Crooks v. Crooks, 2 Chy. Ch. 29. The fact that property was suffered to be knocked down at an undervalue to a son of the testator, under the belief that he was bidding for himself, when in fact he had been employed by a third person to bid for him, was held sufficient to warrant a re-sale: Rodgers v. Rodgers, 13 Gr. 143; and see Re Follis, Kilbourn v. Coulter, 6 P. R. 160; and where a vendor has a secret understanding with the purchaser of the property that the purchaser is to resell it to the vendor, the sale will be set aside though no fraudulent intent be proved: see Re Postlethwaite, Postlethwaite v. Rickman, 59 L. T. 58; but this decision was subsequently reversed on appeal owing to the great lapse of time: S. C., 60 L. T. 514. Motion to "open biddings," when made. Grounds on which motion may be made.

But the fact that a defendant was prevented from bidding, by promises made by the purchaser to give him the benefit of the purchase, is no ground for opening the biddings, such fact, if established, would constitute the purchaser a trustee, and the trust must be established by action: Brock v. Saul, 2 Chy. Ch. 145. Purchaser as secret trustee.

Where the next friend of a plaintiff who had the conduct of the sale, had bid without authority, a re-sale was ordered, the next friend being held to his purchase in case a greater price could not be obtained, and he was ordered to pay the costs: Crawford v. Boyd, 6 P. R. 278; and see Ramsay v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 283. Purchase by next friend of party having conduct.

The existence of mere irregularities in the proceedings prior to the sale, does not affect the validity of the sale as against a bonâ fide purchaser: Dickey v. Heron, 1 Chy. Ch. 149; Gunn v. Doble, 15 Gr. 655; Shaw v. Crawford, 4 Ont. App. 371; McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76; Collins v. Denison, 2 Chy. Ch. 465; but see Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R 254; and the biddings will not be opened to his prejudice on the ground of mistake in fixing the amount of the reserved bid: Re Jelly, 3 O. L. R. 72. Mere irregularity not sufficient ground to set aside sale.

Where a sale took place after an order had been made staying it, but of which the auctioneer, and the purchaser, had no notice, the Court refused, after confirmation of the report, to set aside the sale: Freehold Building Society v. Choate, 3 Chy. Ch 144.

But where, through a misstatement in the advertisement, the property was knocked down at an under-value, and less than the purchaser himself would have otherwise given, a re-sale was ordered: Jones v. Clarke, 1 Gr. 368. But it would seem that if the purchaser, without any misrepresentation, or undue concealment, by the vendor, Misstatements in advertisements may be.

gets a less benefit from his purchase than he expected, that would be no ground for relieving him from his contract: James v. Freeland, 3 Gr. 302; Commercial Bank v. McConnell, 7 Gr. 323. Where the property offered for sale was described as held under a lease, when in fact it was held under an under-lease, that was held to be such a misdescription as entitled the purchaser to a rescission of the contract: see Broom v. Phillips, 74 L. T. 459; so a misrepresentation that the property was subject to no restrictive covenants, where there were in fact such covenants, was held to entitle the purchaser to avoid the sale: Wauton v. Coppard, 1899, 1 Ch. 92; 79 L. T. 467. Misrepresentations in the advertisement as to facts visible to the eye, amounting to mere exaggeration, do not warrant a release of the purchaser from his contract: Crooks v. Davis, 6 Gr. 317; but see Stammers v. O'Donohoe, 28 Gr. 207; 8 Ont. App. 161; 11 S. C. R. 358; Gale v. Hubert, 6 Gr. 312; and see Rule 448, notes.

Where land was stated in the advertisement to be in the occupation of a tenant at a yearly tenancy, but, before the sale, the tenant had written intimating his intention of giving up the land, but the letter being written before the proper time for giving such notice the vendor had answered, "you will of course send me a formal notice at the right time," and after the sale the tenant gave the formal notice; it was held that the non-disclosure of the previous correspondence did not entitle the purchaser to rescind: Davenport v. Charsley, 54 L. T. 372.

A purchaser will not be relieved from his purchase because, by his own mistake, he had been declared to be the buyer of a different lot from that which he intended to buy: VanPraagh v. Everidge, 1902, 2 Ch. 266; but see Wesner Drilling Co. v. Tremblay, 18 O. L. R. 439.

After confirmation of report, purchaser may pay his purchase money into Court.

448. The purchaser may pay his purchase money, or the balance thereof, into Court without further order; and after confirmation of the report on sale, upon notice to the party having the conduct of the sale, he may if he so desires obtain a vesting order; and when he is entitled to be let into possession, if possession is wrongfully withheld from him, an order against any party in possession for the delivery thereof to him may be made upon his application or upon the application of the vendor. C.R. 733, amended.

Default in payment of purchase money, effect of.

Payment of Purchase Money.—Where the purchaser makes default in paying his purchase money into Court pursuant to the conditions of sale, the vendor may move to compel him to pay in the amount overdue, and, in default of payment, for a re-sale of the property.

Deposit at sale to be paid into Court.

The deposit paid at the sale, is to be paid into Court: see Rule 445.

When the plaintiff's solicitor makes default in paying in the deposit, the other parties interested in the purchase money will not suffer thereby, but the plaintiff's share will be charged with the amount of the defalcation: Mulkins v. Clarke, 22 C. L. J. 267; 11 P. R. 350

Rule 443.

Where, by the conditions of sale, the purchase money is payable into Court, payment to the solicitor of the party entitled to it, is not a good payment, and is therefore no ground for dispensing with payment of it into Court: Blackburn v. Sheriff, 1 Chy. Ch. 208; except upon the production of the written consent of all parties beneficially interested duly verified; but where the deposit is payable to the vendor, payment to his solicitor as his agent is sufficient: Ellis v. Goulton, 1893, 1 Q. B. 350. Where the vendor's solicitor receives purchase money, which the purchasers are bound to pay into Court, the expense of payment in, must be borne by the purchasers, the estate, or fund, is not chargeable with such costs: Re Robertson, 24 Gr. 555.

Payment of purchase money to solicitor when not a discharge.

But the purchaser will not be compelled to pay in his purchase money unless he has accepted the title: Crooks v. Street, 1 Chy. Ch. 95; Street v. Hallett, 6 P. R. 312; McDermid v. McDermid, 8 P. R. 28; 15 C. L. J. 136; Ellwood v. Pierce, 7 P. R. 427; or, has waived the right to investigate the title, by delay: Ontario Bank v. Sirr, 6 P. R. 216; or by taking possession: Patterson v. Robb, 6 P. R. 114; and see Crooks v. Glenn, 8 Gr. 239; O'Keefe v. Taylor, 2 Gr. 305.

Payment of purchase money not compelled until title accepted.

But possession may be taken in accordance with the contract, in circumstances not amounting to a waiver, or acceptance of title: see Mitcheltree v. Irvine, 13 Gr. 537; Darby v. Greenlees, 11 Gr. 351; Wardell v. Trenouth, 24 Gr. 465. Merely obtaining the keys of a building for the purpose of viewing the premises, is not a taking possession: People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294.

If the purchaser makes default a re-sale may be ordered, and the defaulting purchaser may be ordered to pay any deficiency: Re Hornibrook, 12 P. R. 591; Noble v. Edwards, 5 Ch. D. 378. In the event of a re-sale being ordered by reason of the default of the purchaser, in the absence of any condition to the contrary, under the standing conditions of sale, Form No. 52, his deposit and all other payments on account are forfeited and cannot be recovered by him, even though the property should realize a larger price on the re-sale: Tilt v. Knapp, 9 P. R. 314; 2 C. L. T. 597; Ex parte Barrell, L. R. 10 Chy. 512; Thomas v. Brown, 35 L. T. 237; Rosenberg v. Cook, 8 Q. B. D. 162; and see Whelan v. Couch, 26 Gr. 74; Collins v. Stinson, 10 Q. B. D. 142; 48 L. T. 828; but see Casson v. Roberts, 31 Beav. 613; and a purchaser who has forfeited his deposit by default, is not entitled to recover it, in the event of the title proving bad on a subsequent resale of the property: Soper v. Arnold, 35 Ch. D. 384; 56 L. T. 330; 37 Ch. D. 96; 57 L. T. 747; 14 App. Cas. 429; 61 L. T. 702; see also note to Rule 445.

Deposit forfeited, when.

The costs of the re-sale, and also any deficiency on the subsequent sale, are also usually ordered to be borne by the defaulting purchaser: Re Hornibrook, 12 P. R. 591; and see Griffiths v. Vesey, 1906, 1 Ch. 796; 94 L. T. 574, but, in estimating the deficiency, the deposit, and all other payments, if any, paid on the original sale must be taken into account: Shuttleworth v. Clews, 1910, 1 Ch. 176; 101 L. T. 708; but where the land sold at an advance, and the profit was more than sufficient to cover the costs of the re-sale, the defaulting purchaser was relieved from the payment of the latter costs: Tilt v. Knapp, supra; Ontario Bank v. Sirr, supra.

Costs of re-sale and deficiency, how borne.

Interest on Purchase Money.—Rents and Profits.—The liability of the purchaser for interest, depends on the terms of the contract of sale: Re Dingman & Hall, 17 Ont. App. 398. In the absence of any special stipulation in the contract, it would seem that the liability to pay interest commences on the day fixed by the contract for completion of the contract, from which time the purchaser also becomes entitled to possession, and to all rents and profits, subsequently accruing: Esdaile v. Stephenson, 1 S. & S. 122; People's Loon Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. at p. 301; Vansant v. Burke, 38 U. C. Q. B. 104; but see Harrison v. Joseph, 8 P. R. 293. But where the contract provided for payment of the purchase money by instalments, but was silent as to the time when possession should be given, the purchaser was held entitled to the rents, and profits, from the date of the contract: Brady v. Keenan, 6 P. R. 262. A purchaser is entitled to a propor proportion of all rents paid to the vendor in advance: Liscombe v. Gross, 6 P. R. 271; and where rents are received by a vendor pending the completion of the contract, he is not entitled as against the purchaser to appropriate such payments to rents in arrear prior to the contract: Plews v. Samuel, 1904, 1 Ch. 464; 90 L. T. 533.

Interest on purchase money, from what time payable.

Delay in completion.

A purchaser cannot be compelled to pay interest during delay, under a condition that "the purchaser in default" shall pay interest, where the delay is due to the vendor: Jones v. Gardiner, 1902, 1 Ch. 191.

Where the contract provides for payment of interest in the event of any delay in completion not attributable to the vendor, the purchaser cannot relieve himself from liability to pay interest by depositing the money in a bank on notice to the vendor: Re Riley to Streatfield, 34 Ch. D. 386; 56 L. T. 48; Re Dingman & Hall, supra, p. 997; but where delay arises attributable to the vendor, the purchaser may relieve himself from the payment of interest beyond what the money earns, by depositing it in a bank on notice to the vendor; but the deposit must be made to a separate, and not to his general, account: Stevenson v. Davis, 21 Ont. 642; 19 Ont. App. 591, this case was varied by the Supreme Court, but not on this point; 23 S. C. R. 629.

A delay, caused by the vendors having made a bonâ fide mistake as to the origin of their title, was held not to be caused by wilful delay on their part, the real cause of the delay being the purchaser's inability to find his purchase money: Re Mayor of London & Tubbs, 1894, 2 Ch. 624; S. C. sub nom. Tubbs & Mayor of London, 70 L. T. 719; so also delay occasioned by the time occupied in remedying a defect in the title, which was not, and could not be, known to the vendor at the time of entering into the contract: Re Woods & Lewis, 1898, 1 Ch. 433; 78 L. T. 250, 665; 1898, 2 Ch. 211.

But a vendor has been held to be guilty of wilful delay, where, knowing the facts, he has named too short a time for the completion of the contract: Re Hetling & Merton, 1893, 3 Ch. 269; 68 L. T. 749; 69 L. T. 266; or from a mistaken construction of the contract, has improperly refused to deliver an abstract of title: Re Pelly, 80 L. T. 45.

Vendor's delay.

A stipulation for payment of interest, notwithstanding any delay in the completion of the contract, does not entitle a vendor to interest during delays in completion created by himself, or through an ineffectual attempt to rescind the contract, the purchaser being out of possession, and the rents not being equal to the interest: Hayes v. Elmsley, 21 Ont. 562; 19 Ont. App. 291 (this case was subsequently reversed by the Supreme Court, 23 S. C. R. 623, but not on this point): Re Young & Harston, 31 Ch. D. at p. 174; see also Stevenson v. Davis, 21 Ont. 642, supra.

Rule 448. Liability of purchaser qualified by delay of vendor making title.

Tha liahility of the purchnssr tn pay interest, may, in ths absence of express stipulation ae to the payment of interest: Re Thompson, Biggnr v. Dickson, 2 Chy. Ch. 196, he qualified by delay on the part of tbe vendor. either in making title, or giving possession. In such a case interest will not begin to run until tbe purchaser could safely hsve taken possession, and a difficulty respecting the conveynnce, may justify his not tnking possession: Rne v. Geddes, 3 Chy. Ch. 404; Re McLean & Wnlter, 19 Ont. 161; Re Hetling & Merton, 1893, 3 Cb. 269; 68 L. T. 749; 69 L. T. 266; and see Re Wilson's & Steven's Contract, 1894, 3 Cb. 546; 71 L. T. 388. Where there are several parcels included in the purcbase, possession cannot be safely taken of nny until tbe title is mada to all: Lnird v. Paton, 7 Ont. 137; 20 C. L. J. 385; so also the liability of a purchaser for tbe payment of interest may be qualified by tbe delay of tbe vendor in delivering tbs conveyance: Stevenson v. Dnvis, 21 Ont. 642, judgment of Armour, C.J., wbicb was affirmed by ths Supreme Court, 23 S. C. R. 629; and even wbere the purcbaser has entered into possession he may be entitled to compensation for ths damages be austains in keeping his purcbass money idle, owing to tbs delay of the vendor in delivering tbe conveyance: Ib. The measure of such damages, is the excess of interest payahle on the purchass money, over and above the net rental of tbe property in tbe condition it was in wben the purchaser entered into possession: Ib. Where tbe property is unproductive, ths purchaser may, whsre the completion of tbe contract is delayed by tbe vendor, be exonerated from payment of interest; wbere it is productive, hut tbe rents and profits, ara less than tbs interest, tbe vendor may be allowed to retain tbe rents, etc., and tbe purchaser may be relieved from paying interest; and wbere the rents exceed tbe interest, tbe purchaser may, notwithstanding tbe delay, be orderd to pay interest from the date fixed for completion, taking tbe rents and profits: Bnnk of Montreal v. Fox, 6 P. R. 217; The People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294; unless the delay is attributabls to the vendor: Hnyes v. Elmsley, 21 Ont. 562; 23 S. C. R. 623.

Purchaser's delay.

Wbere conditiona of sale provide for payment of interest after tbe day fixed for completion, and completion is delayed by an objection to tbs title taken by the purchaser, which is at first upheld, but ultimately, on appeal, is dlaallowed by the Court, tbe purcbaser is liable for interest from the date fixed for completion: Re Bayly-Worthington & Cohen, 1909, 1 Ch. 648; 100 L. T. 650.

Rent accruing before completion.

Wbere a contract provided that the vendor sbould be entitled to the rents and profits up to completion, and part of tbe property consisted of a quarry, wbicb was under lease, it waa held that the vendor was entitled to tbe rent payable under the lease, and that it could not be treated as purcbaae money for part of tbe corpus of the property: Leppington v. Freeman, 60 L. T. 357.

Interest on purchase money.

Wbere a purcbaser is let into poaaession, pending an investigation of title, be is bound to pay interest, although ths possession extend beyond six years: see Birch v. Joy, 3 H. L. C. 565, wbere the purchaser was in possession forty years before the completion, and the agreement provided that interest sbould not run until the completion of the contract, aee also Toft v. Stevenson, 5 D. M. & G. 735; but it would seem tbat no more than six years arrears can be recovered as against tbe land: Airey v. Mitchell, 21 Gr. 510, overruling on this point, Grent Western Ry. Co. v. Jones, 13 Gr. 355; but where the purchaser dies, and no intervening incumbrance exists, in order to prevent circuity of action, the full amount recoverable under The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 49, against the personal representative, may be recovered even against the land: Airey v. Mitchell, supra, p. 999: Howeren v. Bradburn, 22 Gr. 96.

Growing crops, purchaser entitled to.

Growing crops on the land at the time of sale pass to the purchaser, unless expressly excepted in the conditions of sale: McDowall v. Phippen, 1 Ont. 143; Manson v. Monson, 10 P. R. 155; 20 C. L. J. 33; and he is entitled to compensation if they are removed before he gets possession: Ib.

A mortgagor after default cannot give a chattel mortgage on his growing crops so as to defeat the right of his mortgagee thereto: Bloomfield v. Hellyer, 22 Ont. App. 232; and even before conveyance a purchaser may apply to the Court to restrain parties bound by the sale from exercising even a legal right to his prejudice as purchaser: Re Powers, 63 L. T. 626.

Rescission of contract.

Where the purchaser pays his purchase money, and is let into possession, but upon a reference it is found that a good title cannot be made, and the contract is rescinded, the purchaser is bound to redeliver possession on being repaid his purchase money, and if he insists on interest on the purchase money, he must submit to account for the rents and profits: Simmers v. Erb, 21 Gr. 289; and see Turley v. Evans, 13 C. P. 214.

Mortgage parol evidence admitted to show terms of.

Where the contract provided for giving a mortgage to secure part of the purchase money, but omitted to state that the mortgage was to bear interest, parol evidence to show that that was the real understanding of the parties was admitted: Gould v. Hamilton, 5 Gr. 192.

Delivery of possession to purchaser, effect of.

Delivery of Possession.—Where the conditions of sale provide that possession may be taken by the purchaser without waiving his right to investigate the title, he may take possession without waiving his right: Bolton v. London School Board, 7 Ch. D. 766; but, in the absence of any such condition, if a purchaser at a sale under a judgment, enters into possession without the sanction of the Court, and exercises acts of ownership by making repairs and improvements, he may be held to have accepted the title: Dani. Pr., 6th ed., 1093; Wallace v. Hesslein, 29 S. C. R. 171; Re Mulholland & Morris, 20 O. L. R. 27; and at any rate may be ordered to pay his purchase money into Court, notwithstanding his objecting to the title: Potterson v. Robb, 6 P. R. 114; but where, after a purchaser had taken possession, the vendor's solicitor delivered an abstract of title and answered requisitions, it was held that the vendor had waived the right to treat the taking of possession as an acceptance of title: Aldwell v. Aldwell, 6 P. R. 183; and see Gordon v. Harnden, 18 Gr. 231. Where, under the conditions of sale, a purchaser is entitled to possession, the letting him into the receipt of the rents and profits, is not a sufficient delivery of possession: The People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294.

Summary application for possession.

A summary application for delivery of possession under this Rule can only be made against parties to the action, or strangers who have obtained possession pendente lite: Bank of Montreal v. Wallace, 13 Gr. 184; Trust & Loan Co. v. Start, 6 P. R. 90; where a stranger is in possession, who has not obtained possession pendente lite, an action must be brought.

Rule 448. Purchaser accepting conveyance, effect of.

Where the purchaser accepts a conveyance or vesting order, knowing that a stranger to the suit is in adverse possession, he cannot afterwards claim compensation for delay in recovering possession: Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 36; Joliffe v. Baker, 46 L. T. 966; 11 Q. B. D. 255; unless possession is withheld contrary to the express stipulation of the contract: Barber v. Barber, 11 P. R. 137; 21 C. L. J. 418.

Notice to purchaser of adverse possession.

Adverse Possession.—Notice to the purchaser that a person, other than the vendor, is in possession is notice to the purchaser of the possessor's rights, but not necessarily of his lessor's, or other person's, through whom he claims: and notice that the rents of the property are received by an estate agent is not notice of the rights of the person for whom he receives them, nor does it put the purchaser on inquiry: Hunt v. Luck, 1902, 1 Ch. 426.

Purchaser to see to discharge of incumbrances.

Incumbrances.—A purchaser before accepting a conveyance, or vesting order, or consenting to the payment out of his purchase money, should see that all incumbrances are paid off, which the vendors are bound to discharge. After conveyance, or vesting order, his right to have incumbrances discharged out of his purchase money is gone, and he must rely on his covenant if any: Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 26; S. C., before Spragge, C., February 1, 1673; Re Buck, Peck v. Buck, 6 P. R. 98; Kincaid v. Kincaid, 6 P. R. 93; Joliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. D. 255; 48 L. T. 966; unless perhaps, where he was ignorant of such incumbrances when he accepted the conveyance: see Re Turner & Skelton, 13 Ch. D. 130; Henning v. McDougall, 6 P. R. 200; but see 68 L. T. Jour. 387; Robson v. Robson, 10 P. R. 324; or unless no title at all has been conveyed, as where the land had been sold for taxes: Turrill v. Turrill, 7 P. R. 142; and see Jones v. Clifford, 3 Ch. D. 779. But a conveyance by the vendor to a third party, even though made at the purchaser's request, will not prevent the latter, after the conveyance, from claiming to have incumbrances discharged, to which the covenants in the deed may not extend, but which, under the contract of sale, the vendor was bound to pay off: McLennan v. Cheguin, 37 U. C. Q. B. 301.

Acceptance of conveyance, effect of.

Outgoings, how payable.

Ground rent and other outgoings, accruing whilst the purchaser is kept out of possession through the default of the vendor, are held to be payable by the latter: People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294; and see Fisken v. Wride, 11 Gr. 248; sed quære, if this is so, where the purchaser, on the completion of the contract, receives the rents and profits, for the period during which such outgoings accrued. Where the contract is not completed at the appointed time owing to the default of the purchaser, subsequent outgoings paid by the vendor are chargeable to the purchaser: Borsht v. Tagg, 1900, 1 Ch. 231, and this, notwithstanding that, under the contract, the vendor is entitled to the rents and profits up to the time of completion in lieu of interest: Ib.

Purchaser entitled to registered title.

A purchaser is entitled to have instruments registered against the title creating an apparently adverse claim, removed by the vendor even though they be registered by persons having no apparent title: Keefer v. McKay, 10 P. R. 345; Re Taylor & Martyn, 14 O. L. R. 132.

A vendor, however, cannot be required to procure the discharge of a mortgage in fee made by a person, since deceased, who had only a life estate: Re Ponton & Swanston, 16 Ont. 669.

Rule 448.

Where a vendor contracts to sell only such right or interest (if any) as he has, he is nevertheless bound to convey such right or interest free from any existing incumbrances created by himself: Gould v. Birmingham, Dudley & District Bank, 58 L. T. 560.

But where it turns out that his interest is subject to taxes, the purchaser is not entitled to have the taxes paid out of the purchase money. In such a case, however, where it appeared that the purchaser had bought under a mistake he was allowed to rescind the sale on payment of the costs of sale: Wesner Drilling Co. v. Tremblay, 18 O. L. R. 439.

Taxes by whom payable.

Taxes.—The vendor is bound to pay a proportionate part of all taxes accruing up to the time fixed for the completion of the contract, even though not actually imposed at the time: Bank of Montreal v. Fox, 6 P. R. 217; People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294; Re Alger & Sarnia Oil Co., 23 Ont. at p. 591; 19 Ont. App. 446; unless the by-law imposing the taxes, expressly provides that they shall not form a charge on the land until a day after that when the title is made out: Harrison v. Joseph, 8 P. R. 293; or, under the contract for sale, the vendor is not bound to pay them: see Wesner Drilling Co. v. Tremblay, supra.

Where the purchaser pays taxes accrued before the time he is let into possession, he is entitled to be refunded out of his purchase money: Fourex v. Alcombrack, 13 C. L. J. 226.

As to taxes imposed for local improvements: see The Local Improvement Act (R. S. O. c. 193), s. 53, and The Landlord and Tenants Act (R. S. O. c. 155), s. 27; Croydon v. Hammill, 20 Ont. 199; Armstrong v. Auger, 21 Ont. 98; Re Taylor & Martyn, 14 O. L. R. 132.

Compensation, when allowed to purchaser.

Compensation.—Although a vendor is allowed great latitude in the statements or exaggerations, he may make, as to the general qualities, and capabilities, of land he is about to offer for sale, still he will not be permitted to make misstatements, and misrepresentations, as to matters of fact, which would naturally have the effect of inducing parties resident at a distance to bid for the property. Therefore, where an advertisement of sale described the property as being "a farm of eighty-four and a half acres, twenty acres cleared and fenced," on the faith of which the plaintiff purchased, when, in fact, there was not any clearing, or fencing, compensation for the misrepresentation was allowed: Stammers v. O'Donohoe, 28 Gr. 207; 8 Ont. App. 161; 11 S. C. R. 358; and see Re Murray & Kerr, 13 Ont. 414; but see Osborne v. Farmers & M. B. Soc'y, 5 Gr. 326. Where a material misrepresentation has been made by the vendors, it is not necessary for the purchaser to prove that the representation was known by the vendors to be false, or was made recklessly; and, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the purchaser will be presumed to have bought on the faith of such representation: Redgrave v. Hurd, 45 L. T. 485; 20 Ch. D. 1; Jones v. Rimmer, 43 L. T. 111; Webb v. Roberts, 16 O. L. R. 279; see, however, Joliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. D. 255; 48 L. T. 966; Smith v. Land & House Property Co., 49 L. T. 532; 51 L. T. 718; but where it is shewn that the purchaser bought with knowledge that the statement was untrue, compensation will be refused: Cormichael v. Ferris, 8 P. R. 289; and see Curran v. Little, 8 Gr. 250; but see Lett v. Randall, 49 L. T. 71. So also, where the purchaser is a party to the action.

Misrepresentation in advertisements.

and has been party to settling the conditions of sale, he cannot, it would seem, be entitled to compensation for any misrepresentation therein: see Hopcraft v. Hopcraft, 76 L. T. 391. As to the effect of a verbal correction by the auctioneer of misstatements in the advertisement, but not heard by the purchaser: see In re Hare & O'More, 1901, 1 Ch. 93; 83 L. T. 672, and see 110 L. T. Jour. 419. Rule 448. Evidence of misrepresentation.

But the fact that the purchaser was in actual occupation of the property before the sale, does not disentitle him to compensation for a deficiency in the area represented by the particulars to be sold: Re Aspinalls & Powell, 60 L. T. 595.

The purchaser may be entitled to compensation for delay in making out the title: Dudley v. Berczy, 3 Chy. Ch. 81; or in completing the contract: Jones v. Gardiner, 1902, 1 Ch. 191; 86 L. T. 74; if there is any bad faith on the part of the vendor: Rowe v. Gordon, 36 Ch. D. 619; or want of reasonable diligence in completing, and not merely delay due to conveyancing difficulties: Jones v. Gardiner, supra, p. 998; or for delay in delivering possession: Thomas v. Buxton, L. R. 8 Eq. 120; Munson v. Monson, 10 P. R. 155; 20 C. L. J. 33; Royal Bristol Co. v. Bomosh, 35 Ch. D. 390; or for delay in delivering the conveyance Hoyes v. Elmsley, 21 Ont. 562; Stevenson v. Davis, Ib., 642, judgment of Armour, C.J., afterwards affirmed 23 S. C. R. 629, by the Supreme Court; or for destruction of the property by fire before the confirmation of the sale: see Stephenson v. Boin, 8 P. R. 258; but see Rayner v. Preston, 14 Ch. D. 297; 43 L. T. 18; 18 Ch. D. 1; 44 L. T. 787; 50 L. J. Ch. 472. So also, for the existence of a public sewer on the premises sold in which other persons have rights of user: Re Brewer & Honkin, 80 L. T. 127. So, also, for deficiency of land; thus, where 300 acres "more or less," was advertised, and the land only contained 244 acres, compensation was awarded: Wardell v. Trenouth, 24 Gr. 465; Whittemore v. Whittemore, L. R. 8 Eq. 603; and see Canada Permanent L. & S. Co. v. Young, 18 Gr. 566; Re Fowcett & Holmes, 61 L. T. 105; and where there was a discrepancy between a plan referred to in the particulars, and the particulars, as to the acreage offered for sale, it was held that the plan governed: Gordon-Cumming v. Houldsworth, 1910, A. C. 537; and see Eastwood v. Ashton, 1913, 2 Ch. 39; 108 L. T. 759, reversed 1914, 1 Ch. 68; 109 L. T. 784. But a vendor who sells a parcel of land at so much per acre, which turns out to contain a greater number of acres than represented in the advertisement, is not, after conveyance, entitled to payment for the excess: Cottingham v. Cottingham, 5 Ont. 704; 11 Ont. App. 624; and see Sen v. McLeon, 23 C. L. J. 352; 14 S. C. R. 632. Compensation for delay in making title. Or delivering possession. Or deficiency of land.

The right of a purchaser to compensation for deficiency in quantity may be excluded by the conditions of sale: Re Terry & White, 32 Ch. D. 14; 54 L. T. 353. Where, however, the purchaser, by the conditions of sale, is deprived of the right to compensation for deficiency, and such deficiency is material, specific performance of the contract would not be decreed at the suit of the vendor, except on the terms of his making compensation for the deficiency: Ib.

A purchaser may also be entitled to compensation for failure to make title to part of the property sold, although he may be precluded by the conditions of sale, from objecting to carry out the sale on that ground: English v. Murray, 49 L. T. 35, and see Re Jackson & Haden, 53 W. R. 428; 1905, 1 Ch. 603; 1906, 1 Ch. 412; 92 L. T. 591; 94 L. T. 418. So also, where a purchaser could only make title to an undivided Or failure to make title to all of land sold.

Rule 448.

moiety of the land sold, the purchaser was held entitled to specific performance with an abatement of one-half of the purchase money: Kennedy v. Spence, 24 O. L. R. 535; and where a vendor assumed to sell the fee, but it turned out he had only a life estate, specific performance with compensation was ordered: Ontario Asphalt Co. v. Montreuil, 29 O. L. R. 534.

Compensation for dilapidation.

A purchaser is also entitled to compensation for dilapidations committed by parties in possession, after sale, and before completion: Fisken v. Wride, 11 Gr. 245; Thomas v. Buxton, supra, p. 1003; and he is entitled to compensation for the removal of growing crops: Manson v. Manson, 10 P. R. 155; 20 C. L. J. 33; Royal Bristol Socy. v. Bomash, 35 Ch. D. 390; 59 L. T. 179; or for removal of the soil; and the acceptance of a conveyance in ignorance of the damage done, will not estop him from claiming compensation: Clarke v. Ramuz, 1891, 2 Q. B. 456; 65 L. T. 657; Phillips v. Sylvester, L. R. 8 Ch. 173; 27 L. T. 840. Where a vendor is liable for all "outgoings" up to the time fixed for completion, he must bear the expense of the removal of dangerous buildings on the property ordered to be removed under statutory powers in that behalf before, though not actually removed till after, completion: Tubbs v. Wynne, 1897, 1 Q. B. 74.

The existence of a surface water drain draining other lands into a culvert under the land sold is a latent defect for which a purchaser is entitled to compensation, and it is latent, though part of the drain is exposed to view: Shepherd v. Croft, 1911, 1 Ch. 521; 103 L. T. 874.

For suppression of material facts.

Compensation may also be awarded for the suppression of material facts; thus, where the property offered for sale was a mill site, and mill, and the vendor had previously sold the right to take water for the purpose of floating logs, which fact was not communicated to the purchaser, it was held that this was a subject for compensation: Wardell v. Trenouth, 24 Gr. 465; or the contract may be rescinded: see Heywood v. Mallalieu, 49 L. T. 658. Notwithstanding a condition of sale that misdescription should not avoid the sale, it was held that describing the vendor's title as a lease, whereas it was an underlease, entitled the purchaser to rescind the contract: Re Beyfus & Masters, 39 Ch. D. 110; 59 L. T. 740.

Defects which come within the terms of any covenants are not to be excluded from their operation, on the ground that they appear on the face of the conveyance, or are otherwise known to the purchaser: Page v. Midland Ry. Co., 1894, 1 Ch. 11, overruling Hunt v. White, 37 L. J. Ch. 326; 16 W. R. 478.

Conditions as to compensation for misrepresentation.

A vendor can only insist on specific performance of the contract, with compensation for misrepresentations in the advertisement pursuant to a condition in that behalf, where the misrepresentation is comparatively trifling, but not where it is substantial: Jacob v. Revell, 1900, 2 Ch. 858.

After conveyance, right to compensation for defects in title is gone.

After conveyance, or vesting order, the purchaser's right to compensation for defects in title to which his covenants, if any, do not extend, is usually gone: Greswolde v. Barneby, 83 L. T. 708; Allen v. Richardson, 13 Ch. D. 524; Manson v. Thacker, 7 Ch. D. 620; Egleson v. Howe, 3 Ont. App. 566; Re Buck, Peck v. Buck, 6 P. R. 38; Kincaid v. Kincaid, 6 P. R. 93; Follis v. Porter, 11 Gr. 412; McCall v. Faithorne, 10 Gr. 324; Joliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. D. 255; 48 L. T. 966; Besley v. Besley, 9 Ch. D. 103; Clayson v. Leech, 61 L. T. 69; but where there is an express condition for compensation, see Bos v. Helsham, L. R. 2 Ex. 72; Re Turner & Skelton, 13 Ch. D. 130; 41 L. T. 668; Palmer v. Johnson, 12 Q. B. D. 32; 13 Q. B. D. 351; 51 L. T. 211; and where the conveyance has been made to a third party: see McLennan v. Cheguin, 37 U. C. Q. B. 301; and Clarke v. Ramuz, 1891, 2 Q. B. 456; 65 L. T. 657. Rule 448.

But misstatements in the advertisement of a sale by the Court, or suppression of material facts, may form the ground for compensation even after conveyance, so long as the fund remains in Court: Cann v. Cann, 3 Sim. 447; Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 36; Turrill v. Turrill, 7 P. R. 142; and see Horner v. Williams, Jo. & Ca. 274; Re Perriam, Perriam v. Perriam, 49 L. T. 710, and see Palmer v. Johnson, 13 Q. B. D. 351; or the sale, may, after, or before, conveyance, be set aside: Nash v. Wooderson, 52 L. T. 49; Brewer v. Brown, 78 L. T. Jour. 79; and so also stipulations in the advertisement for the delivery of possession, if not carried out, may be the subject of compensation even after a vesting order has been taken, so long as the purchase money remains in Court: Barber v. Barber, 11 P. R. 137; and where a purchaser has, by mistake, or inadvertence, taken a vesting order before an incumbrance has been discharged which he is entitled to have discharged, so long as the purchase money remains under the control of the Court, it may be ordered to be applied in discharge of the incumbrance: Fleming v. McDougall, 8 P. R. 200. Exception where misstatements in advertisements.

The Court will not enforce specific performance of a contract, with compensation for misdescription, where the sale was made by a vendor in a fiduciary capacity, and any cestui que trust would have a right to complain of the sale, if so enforced, as a breach of trust: Osborne v. Farmers & M. B. Socy., 5 Gr. 326; Mortlock v. Buller, 10 Ves. 292; Goodwin v. Fielding, 4 De G. M. & G. 104; Sneizely v. Thorn, 1 Jur. N. S. 125; Dunn v. Flood, 28 Ch. D. 586; 49 L. T. 670; Re Douglas, 1902, 2 Ch. 296; and see Jacob v. Revell, 1902, 2 Ch. 850; and it is immaterial whether the trustees are plaintiffs, or defendants: Ib.; sed vide Sea v. McLean, 23 C. L. J. 352; 14 S. C. R. 632; nor will the Court enforce the contract when the title is doubtful: see Re Hollis Hospital, 1899, 2 Ch. 540; Williams v. Scott, 1900, A. C. 499, 82 L. T. 727. Specific performance, when not enforced.

Insurance Pending Completion.—Where a vendor insures the property sold, pending completion, for the benefit of himself and his assigns, the insurance will enure to the benefit of the purchaser, for whom the vendor will be trustee for the balance, if any, of the insurance money which remains after satisfying the amount due to the vendor for purchase money: Keefer v. Phœnix, 29 Ont. 394; 26 Ont. App. 277; 31 S. C. R. 144. Insurance of property sold.

Rescission of Contract.—The misrepresentation of material facts may entitle the purchaser to have the contract rescinded: Gale v. Hubert, 6 G. R. 312; Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 1; Broom v. Phillips, 74 L. T. 459; Moorhouse v. Hewish, 22 Ont. App. 172; and the giving of time to a vendor to make good a representation, on the faith of which the purchaser bought, does not prevent the purchaser from claiming a rescission if, at the end of that time, it is not made good: Tibbatts v. Boutler, 73 L. T. 534. Rescission of contract. Misrepresentation, ground for rescission.

As to special conditions enabling the vendor to rescind: see notes to Rule 439.

Rule 448.

Where the vendor has the right to rescind, he may exercise it, notwithstanding the issue of a writ by the purchaser for specific performance: Isaacs v. Towell, 78 L. T. 619.

Where the vendor fails to make title to part of the property sold, the purchaser is entitled to rescind and recover back his deposit with interest, and the costs he has been put to: Re Jackson & Haden, 1905, 1 Ch. 403; 1906, 1 Ch. 412; 92 L. T. 591; 94 L. T. 418; and where the vendor under an open contract has failed to disclose a material defect which is known to him, but which the purchaser could not be expected to discover himself in the exercise of ordinary care, the purchaser is entitled to rescind the contract, and recover his deposit, and costs: Carlisle v. Salt, 1906, 1 Ch. 335; 94 L. T. 58.

The fact that a tenant of the premises sold, was, unknown both to the vendor and purchaser at the time of sale, keeping a disorderly house on the premises, was held to be no ground for rescission at the instance of the purchaser, nor any bar to the vendor's obtaining specific performance of the contract: Hope v. Walters, 1899, 1 Ch. 879; 1900, 1 Ch. 257; 80 L. T. 355.

Purchaser not entitled to improvements on rescission.

In the absence of fraud by the vendor, or other special circumstances, where the contract is rescinded by reason of the vendor's failure to make title, the purchaser cannot recover for improvements made while he is in possession under the contract: Rankin v. Sterling, 3 O. L. R. 646; Dart. V. & P. (6th ed.), 1085; nor is he ordinarily entitled to damages for loss of his bargain, unless the contract fails through in consequence of the failure of the vendor to do his best to complete it: Ib., and see Day v. Lighton, 1899, 2 Ch. 320; 81 L. T. 306. He is entitled to his costs of investigating and endeavouring to clear up the title: Dart, V. & P., 6th ed., 1085; and occasioned by his becoming the purchaser: Hollwell v. Seacombe, 1906, 1 Ch. 426.

Costs recoverable on rescission.

As to the costs recoverable by the purchaser where the vendor rescinds pursuant to a condition: see Isaacs v. Towell, 1898, 2 Ch. 285.

Where a contract is rescinded in circumstances entitling a purchaser to a refund of his deposit, or any other payment on account of his purchase money, he is entitled to a lien on the land therefor: see note to Rule 454.

Reference as to title, when ordered.

Reference as to Title.—The inclination of the Court is in favour of giving the purchaser a reference as to title, if he desires it. And it is only when the evidence is clear that the purchaser intended to waive, and has actually waived, his right of examining the title, that a reference will be denied: Mitchelltree v. Irwin, 13 Gr. at p. 543; and see Jackson v. Jessup, 6 Gr. 157.

On an application by the vendor to compel the purchaser to pay his purchase money into Court, a reference as to title may be ordered, if the purchaser has neither accepted, nor waived his right to examine the title: Crooks v. Street, 1 Chy. Ch. 95; Street v. Hallett, 6 P. R. 312; McDermid v. McDermid, 8 P. R. 28; 15 C. L. J. 136; Ellwood v. Pierce, 7 P. R. 427.

Where a reference as to title is directed in general terms, it must be understood that the reference is to inquire whether a good title can be made, having regard to the contract: Upperton v. Nickolson, L. R. 10 Eq. 228; L. R. 6 Chy. 436.

Waiver.—The right to a reference may be waived by long delay, in either demanding an abstract, or making any objection to the title: Ontario Bank v. Sirr, 6 P. R. 216; and see Rae v. Geddes, 18 Gr. 217; or by taking possession: Denison v. Fuller, 10 Gr. 498; Commercial Bank v. McConnell, 7 Gr. 323; Wallace v. Hesslein, 29 S. C. R. 171; Patterson v. Robb, 6 P. R. 114; O'Connor v. Beatty, 2 Ont. App. 497; but see Wardell v. Trenouth, 24 Gr. 465; Darby v. Greenlees, 11 Gr. 351; Mitcheltree v. Irwin, 13 Gr. 537; Crooks v. Glenn, 8 Gr. 239; Morin v. Wilkinson, 2 Gr. 157; O'Keefe v. Taylor, Ib., 305; Jackson v. Jessup, 6 Gr. 156. But if, after possession taken, the vendor proceeds with the investigation of title, and answers requisitions, the taking of possession will be no waiver: Burroughs v. Oakley, 3 Sw. 159; Aldwell v. Aldwell, 6 P. R. 183; Gordon v. Harnden, 18 Gr. 231. Rule 449. Waiver of right to reference, what constitutes.

The right of a purchaser to investigate the title may be also waived by his accepting a conveyance, or vesting order: Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 36. So also writing a letter apologizing for non-payment of the purchase money, although making no reference to the title; or accepting a release of dower from a person interested in the estate; or the giving of a mortgage to secure the purchase money, are circumstances from which an acceptance of title may be inferred: McDonald v. Garrett, 8 Gr. 290; but see Jackson v. Jessup, 6 Gr. 157. But though the purchaser by taking possession and dealing with the property may waive his right to compel the vendor to make out a good title, he may yet be relieved from payment of his purchase money before completion, on showing that the vendor has no title at all: Denison v. Fuller, 10 Gr. 498. Circumstances from which a waiver may be inferred.

In applying the doctrine of waiver, a distinction is to be observed between the case of a contract, providing that a good title shall be shown, and that possession may be taken before completion, and the case of a purchaser taking possession before completion without any express stipulation in that behalf. There is also a broad distinction between a purchaser going into, or remaining in, possession, and making structural alterations, knowing of the existence of an incurable objection; and one entering with knowledge of objections which are curable. In the former case he may, although entitled to have the title otherwise made out, be held to have waived the particular incurable objection: Re Gloag & Miller, 23 Ch. D. 320; 48 L. T. 629; but where the title was by possession, and the purchaser after objecting to the evidence of possession as being insufficient, continued in possession and made improvements, it was held not to be a waiver of his right to have a good title made out: Rankin v. Sterling, 3 O. L. R. 646. Possession taken with knowledge of incurable defects; effect of.

449. The vendor shall, forthwith upon demand, deliver an abstract of title to the purchaser; and if the purchaser does not serve objections within 7 days, he shall be deemed to have accepted the abstract as sufficient, but if objections are served, the vendor shall answer them within 14 days; and if the purchaser is still dissatisfied, and the parties cannot agree, either party may obtain from the Master an appointment to consider the abstract. C.R. 735. Delivery of abstract. If no objection served abstract to be deemed sufficient.

Rule 449.

Objections to abstract; how disposed of.

This, and the five following Rules, apply to all cases where a reference as to title is made to a Master, or Official Referee, as well as to sales by the Court: Rule 455. But where a sale is made out of Court, subject to certain conditions as to the delivery of objections to title within a specified time, and before action objections are delivered, the purchaser, on an action for specific performance being subsequently brought, cannot, in the Master's office, deliver any further objections: Imperial Bank v. Metcalfe, 11 Ont. 467; except by leave of the Court; the Master has no power to grant such leave: Clarke v. Langley, 10 P. R. 208.

Abstract, delivery of.

In sales by the Court, the solicitor of the party conducting the sale, is considered the vendor's solicitor, and it is from him the abstract must be demanded, and it is his duty to prepare, and deliver it.

Demand of abstract.

The vendor is only required to deliver an abstract on demand. The demand should be in writing: see The Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146), s. 419. Wilful falsification of pedigree, or concealment of deeds, renders a vendor criminally liable: Ib., and also civilly liable in damages: The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 55.

Where after reasonable notice a vendor refuses to deliver a proper abstract of title, the purchaser is entitled to rescind the contract, and claim a return of his deposit. Fourteen days has been held to be a reasonable time to limit for its delivery in the case of a sale out of Court: Compton v. Bagley, 65 L. T. 706.

Neglect of purchaser to demand abstract, effect of

The purchaser may, if he pleases, investigate the title, without making the demand. And where he made no demand of an abstract, and made no objection to the title, for twenty-three months, he was held to have waived his right to object to the title: Ontario Bank v. Sirr, 6 P. R. 276; and see Rae v. Geddes, 18 Gr. 217.

Where a purchaser neglects to demand an abstract of title, but brings a suit for specific performance in which the usual reference as to title is directed, and an inquiry when the title was first shown; although the Master found the title was first shown in his office, yet as no demand of abstract had been made previous to the suit, the purchaser was ordered to pay the costs of it: London & Canadian L. & A. Co. v. Graham, 12 P. R 651.

Neglect of vendor to deliver abstract.

Where the vendor neglects, on demand, to deliver an abstract, the purchaser may move to compel him to do so. Or it would seem if the delay is unreasonable, he may apply to be discharged: see Walton v. Armstrong, 11 Gr. 379. The purchaser is entitled to a solicitor's abstract, and not merely a registrar's abstract, unless there be an express condition of sale to the contrary.

Although the taking of possession by the purchaser, may amount to a waiver of title, yet if the vendor afterwards delivers an abstract, or proceeds with the investigation of the title, he cannot set up the waiver: Aldwell v. Aldwell, 6 P. R. 183; Gordon v. Hornden, 18 Gr. 231.

Abstract, nature of.

An abstract of title is a brief statement of all material deeds, and facts, necessary to be proved, in order to establish a good title in a vendor. For form of a solicitor's abstract: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1055.

Where all matters essential to a good title are manifest in the abstract, and the vendor is able and willing to verify it, a good title is shown; and a good title is made when the abstract is verified: Granger v. Latham, 14 Gr. 209, and other cases cited on p. 1010. Rule 450.

After the receipt of the abstract, the purchaser may deliver objections to the abstract e.g., that assuming the chain of title therein set out to be proved, it does not show a good, or any title, in the vendors; or that the effect of any instrument is not sufficiently abstracted. This class of objections is confined to the sufficiency of the abstract per se. The objections should be specific, and point out clearly the alleged defect. Objection to abstract, how made.

As to the determination of questions thus raised: see Rule 451, infra; McManus v. Little, 3 Chy. Ch. 263. After the abstract has been made perfect or accepted as sufficient, the next step is its verification, and any defects in the proofs form the subject of objections to, or requisitions on, the title, as provided by Rules 452-454. Determination of.

The purchaser should not deliver objections, and requisitions, on title, until all objections to the abstract are disposed of, or he will be held to have waived all objections to the abstract: McManus v. Little, 3 Chy. Ch. 263. Objections to title, delivery of.

For forms of objections to the abstract: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1055.

450. The Master shall determine all questions upon the abstract and the sufficiency thereof; and, if desired by the purchaser, may require the vendor to make the same as perfect as he can, and if the vendor neglects or refuses to do so, may permit the purchaser to supply defects therein, at the vendor's expense. C.R. 736. Master to determine question as to sufficiency of abstract.

A perfect abstract may be defined to be one in which is set forth the deeds and documents and facts, showing that the vendor has a good title to the estate or interest which is the subject of the sale. Objections to the abstract, are quite distinct from objections to title, and are usually based on the fact, that if all the documents and facts set out in the abstract were proved, a good title in the vendor would not be established.

The omission from the abstract of a document whose contents sufficiently appeared by a document abstracted, was held to be no objection to the abstract: Re Ebsworth & Tidy, 42 Ch. D. 23.

Where the objections to the abstract are not removed within fourteen days after service of the objections, it is not necessary to obtain any order of reference, i norder to obtain the Master's decision; but the vendor, or purchaser, may carry the abstract and objections into the Master's office, and obtain a warrant to consider the abstract. Objections to abstract may be referred to Master.

If the Master holds the abstract to he insufficient, and the vendor neglects or refuses, to supply the defects, the purchaser may be permitted to do so. This, of course, will not always he in the power of a purchaser; hut where deeds are registered, the purchaser may frequently obtain the necessary information to perfect the abstract from the Registry office. Vendor may supply defects in abstract.

A condition of sale that "the examination of title is to he at the expense of the purchaser, who is to call for only those deeds and papers in my possession and under my control," does not relieve the vendor from delivering an abstract of title, even though such an abstract be not among the papers in his possession or control: Re Boustead & Warwick, 12 Ont. 488.

Verification of abstract.

The vendor is usually bound to verify the abstract, by the production of all documents abstracted, or by proper secondary evidence, where the non-production of the originals is sufficiently accounted for; and by producing affidavits of all facts necessary to be proved in order to make out title: see Rule 452; Re Halifax Coml. Banking Co. & Wood, 79 L. T. 183; 1898, W. N. 174 (16).

Where a leasehold is sold, it is doubtful whether a purchaser can be compelled to accept the title, if the vendor is only a sub-lessee, if that fact has not been disclosed to the purchaser before sale; he cannot be compelled to accept such a title when the head lease comprises other property, unless that fact has been disclosed prior to the making of the contract: Re Lloyds Bank & Lillington, 1912, 1 Ch. 601; 106 L. T. 56. Where these objections appear on the face of the abstract, they would be properly taken as objections to the abstract, as not showing a title which the purchaser is bound to accept.

Good title, when shewn

A good title is not shown until it is both exhibited by the abstract, and the vendor is able and willing to verify it: Granger v. Latham, 14 Gr. 209; Parr v. Lovegrove, 4 Drew. 176; 6 Jur. N. S. 600; but see Loird v. Paton, 7 Ont. 137; 20 C. L. J. 385; London & Canadian L. & A. Co. v. Graham, 12 P. R. 651; Groham v. Stephens, 27 Gr. 434.

Although the conditions of sale may intimate that a vendor has a paper title, yet though he has not, if he has a good possessory title, the purchaser may be compelled to accept it: Re Atkinson & Horsell, 1912, 2 Ch. 1; 106 L. T. 548.

Master not to make a report, but to mark objections allowed or disallowed.

451. The Master shall not make a report on the abstract, but shall mark the objections as allowed or disallowed, and when he finds the abstract perfect, or as perfect as the vendor can make it, he shall certify to that effect thereon; and such certificate shall be final without filing, unless appealed from in the same manner as from a Master's report. C.R. 737.

Where the Master made a report on the title, instead of marking the objections "allowed," or "disallowed," the Court refused to entertain an appeal from his report, but referred the matter back to the Master, to be dealt with as provided by Rule 453: Cockenour v. Bullock, 12 Gr. 73.

As to the time for appealing from a Master's report: see Rules 502-3.

Verification of abstract. Notice to deliver objections and requisitions.

452. After acceptance or confirmation of the abstract, the verification shall be proceeded with, and the vendor shall with all diligence afford the purchaser all the means of verification in his power, in the manner and according to the practice usual with conveyancers; and after having done so, he may serve a notice on the purchaser to make objections or requisitions, if any, within 7 days, or that otherwise he will be deemed to have accepted the title. C.R. 739. Rule 452.

The abstract is accepted as sufficient, if the purchaser does not serve any objection within seven days after its delivery: Rule 449. It is confirmed, if the Master disallow the objections, and no appeal is had from his finding within the time limited by Rules 502, 503. After abstract confirmed, no further objection allowed.

Verification of Abstract.—The practice of conveyancers is for the vendor's solicitor to give notice of a time and place (usually his own office), where the abstract will be verified. Sometimes the deeds and evidences of title, are sent to the purchaser's solicitor. So far as the title deeds are concerned, the abstract is verified by the production of the originals, or such of them as are in the vendor's possession, and by producing certified copies of the deeds, or registered memorials where the originals are not in the vendor's possession. Sometimes, however, notarial copies are furnished, e.g., where a deed covering other lands is in the hands of some third party. In verifying the abstract the production of the title deeds is sufficient proof of their due execution, unless evidence is adduced casting doubt upon their authenticity: see Coventry, 41. As to how far registered memorials are evidence, and as to how far recitals in deeds are evidence of the facts recited, see The Vendors and Purchasers Act (R. S. O. c. 122), ss. 2, 3; Sanders v. Malsburg, 1 Ont. 178; 18 C. L. J. 206; Allan v. McTavish, 28 Gr. 539; Reg. v. Guthrie, 41 U. C. Q. B. 148; Canada Permanent Loan & Savings Co. v. Ross, 7 P. R. 79; Re Halifax Coml. Banking Co. & Wood, 1898, W. N. 174 (16); 79 L. T. 183; for cases before the Statute: see Wishort v. Cook, 15 Gr. 237; Gough v. McBride, 10 C. P. 166; Re Higgins, 19 Gr. 303; S. C., 4 Chy. Ch. 128; Russell v. Fraser, 15 C. P. 375. Verification of abstract. Title deeds, how proved.

Where the vendor relies on a possessory title, the possession must be proved by affidavits, and the purchaser is entitled to cross-examine the deponents: Re Boustead & Worwick, 12 Ont. 488; McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389; sed vide as to costs, Dome v. Slater, 21 Ont. 375. Possessory title, how proved.

The evidence in such a case must not only establish possession for the required period, but should also negative the existence of any fact mentioned in the Statute which would prevent, or stop, its running: Chapman v. Bunbury, 31 C. L. J. 103; 15 C. L. T. 57.

Facts necessary to be proved in order to make out the title, e.g., death, intestacy, heirship, etc., are required to be proved by certificates of births, marriages and deaths, and certificates of the Surrogate Clerk as to intestacy, and affidavits; but statutory declarations of such facts, taken on a former devolution of the title, are usually accepted as evidence, and need not be corroborated by affidavits made in the action. By The Vendors and Purchasers Act (R. S. O. c. 122), s. 2, recitals, statements and descriptions of facts, matters, and parties contained in Statutes, deeds, instruments, or statutory declarations twenty years old at the date of the contract, shall, unless and except so far as they are proved to be inaccurate, be taken to be sufficient proof of such facts, matters and descriptions; and see Re Ponton & Swanston, 16 Ont. 669; Re Marsh & Granville, 24 Ch. D. 11; 48 L. T. 947. As to registered memorials as evidence: see The Vendors and Purchasers Act, s. 2 (b), (c). Other facts, how proved.

Deeds must be registered at vendor's expense.

Where the title is a registered title, all instruments in the chain of title must be registered, and any unregistered deeds in the chain of title, must be registered at the expense of the vendor: Kitchen v. Murray, 16 C. P. 69; Brody v. Wolls, 17 Gr. 699; Fahner v. Ran, 1 Chy. Ch. 246; Sweetnom v. Sweetnam, 6 P. R. 83; Laird v. Paton, 7 Ont. 137; 20 C. L. J. 385; Taylor v. Martyn, 14 O. L. R. 132. Where a registered deed appears on the abstract, it is not sufficient verification of the abstract to produce a deed apparently between the same parties as the registered deed, but bearing no certificate of registration, without in some way establishing the identity of the deed produced with that registered: McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389.

Copies, when to be furnished by vendor.

In the absence of any express condition of sale to the contrary, the vendor is bound to furnish, at his own expense, to the purchaser, copies of all instruments relating to the title which are not of record: Re Charles, 4 Chy. Ch. 19. He is also bound to furnish copies of all deeds registered by memorial, but it was held not of deeds registered in full: Ib.; but see Harrison v. Joseph, 8 P. R. 293; but in a later case it was held by Street, J., that the vendor is bound to produce and deliver to the purchaser certified copies of all deeds, of which he cannot produce the originals, whether registered in full or not: McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389; and see Bobier & Ontario Invt. Assoc. 16 Ont. 259.

Liability of vendor to furnish qualified by conditions.

The ordinary liability of a vendor to produce all necessary evidence to make out a good title, and to deliver, on completion, the original deeds, or copies of such as are not in his possession, may be qualified by special conditions of sale. Where special conditions are imposed, they have to be set out in full in the advertisement; see Rule 439 (h). Special conditions of this kind should not be unnecessarily stringent, as they are calculated to damp the sale. Thus, where the proof of title was involved in no difficulty, a condition of sale that "the vendor is not to be bound to give any evidence of title, or any title deeds, or copies thereof, other than such as are in his possession, or prove any abstract," was held to be very objectionable, and one that should not be sanctioned by the Master, even by consent: McDonald v. Gordon, 2 Chy. Ch. 125.

Vendor may be bound, notwithstanding such conditions to prove title.

But it seems that even such a condition would not exempt a vendor from otherwise showing a good title: Canada Permanent Building Society v. Wallis, 8 Or. 368; McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389; 14 Ont. 97; Secus, where the vendor purports to sell only such title as he has, but even then, if it can be shown by the purchaser that the vendor has no title at all, the contract will not be specifically enforced against the purchaser: Leslie v. Preston, 7 Gr. 434; Jones v. Clifford, 3 Ch. D. 779; Darlington v. Hamilton, Kay. 550; but see Hume v. Pocock, L. R. 1 Chy. 379; Hume v. Bentley, 5 De G. & S. 520; even where a vendor advertises to sell only such title as he has, he is bound to convey that title free from any subsisting incumbrance: Goold v. Birmingham, Dudley & District Bank, 58 L. T. 560. The Court will not knowingly pass off a bad title, by the aid of special or misleading conditions: Else v. Else, L. R. 13 Eq. 196; Seton, 5th ed., 294, 1854.

Court will not pass off a bad title knowingly.

Crown bonds.

The vendor is bound to procure the discharge of Crown bonds affecting the land: Re Charles, 4 Chy. Ch. 19. Crown bonds of the Province of Ontario, are no longer a charge on land of the obligor, unless registered against it: R. S. O. (1897) c. 113; Re Franklin, 8 P. R.

470; although that Act is now repealed (see R. S. O. 1914, Sc[illegible], Rule 453.
yst the effect of the repeal is not to revive the former law: see The Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1), s. 14; nor are Crown bonds of the Dominion a charge on land, unless registered: R. S. C. c. 103, s. 3.

Taxes and incumbrances.

The vendor is not bound to give evidence, negativing the existence of arrears of taxes, or other incumbrances: Thompson v. Milliken, 9 Gr. 359. As to punishment for concealing incumbrances, or falsifying pedigree, etc., after written demand of abstract: see The Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146), s. 419. But he is bound to have removed from the register or otherwise nullified, any registered instrument, appearing to create an adverse interest in the land, even though such instruments purport to be made by parties having no apparent title: Keefer v. McKoy, 10 P. R. 345. The vendor is also bound to remove certificates of lis pendens registered against the land: Bohler & Ont. Invt. Assoc., 16 Ont. 259.

As soon as the vendor's solicitor considers that the verification of the abstract is complete, he should serve notice on the purchaser to deliver objections, and requisitions.

Notice to deliver objections, service of

The Master has no jurisdiction to permit further objections to be delivered after the time limited by this Rule, but the Court on special application for that purpose may permit further objections to be delivered: Clarke v. Langley, 10 P. R. 208. And where under the conditions of sale, the time for putting in objections has expired before the reference to the Master takes place, no further objections can be delivered in the Master's office: Imperial Bank v. Metcalfe, 11 Ont. 467. Notwithstanding, that since the decision in Clarke v. Langley jurisdiction in Chambers has been conferred on the Master in Ordinary, that decision is probably still law: but see Rule 207 (4).

Objections, and requisitions to whom to be delivered.

453. Upon being served with such notice, the purchaser, if dissatisfied, shall serve his objections or requisitions within the time thereby limited; and the like course shall be followed upon such objections or requisitions as is prescribed in relation to the abstract. C.R. 740.

Requisitions on title.

Requisitions on, and Objections to, Title.—If the purchaser is dissatisfied with the proofs of title adduced by the vendor, he must deliver his objections and requisitions within seven days after receipt of notice so to do, or he will be deemed to have accepted the title: Rule 452. For form of objections to and requisitions on title: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1063. As to the construction of conditions for the delivery of objections to title in the case of sales out of Court: see Noson v. Armstrong, 22 Ont. 542; 21 Ont. App. 183; 25 S. C. R. 263.

Objections to title.

Stipulations as to time for delivery of objections to title do not prevent objection, even after the stipulated time, to an entire want of title: Ib.

The existence of an easement, undisclosed by the particulars, was held a valid objection, although the property was offered "subject to any existing public and private rights of way, and other rights and easements of whatever nature": Heywood v. Mallalieu, 49 L. T. 658; and a condition providing that the purchaser was deemed to have purchased with knowledge of the qualities and conditions of the property purchased was held not to apply to an underground culvert: Re Puckett & Smith, 1902, 2 Ch. 258; 87 L. T. 189; and see Shepherd v. Croft, 1911, 1 Ch. 521; 103 L. T. 874; and Pemsel v. Tucker, infra. The existence of registered deeds by parties apparently having no title is a valid objection: McKoy v. Keefer, 10 P. R. 345; the fact that the sale was by trustees under unnecessarily depreciative conditions is also a valid objection: Re Rayner, 53 L. T. 495.

The existence of a public road across the land was held a valid objection to the title, although a resolution of the Municipal Council to close it had been passed: Kronsbien v. Gage, 10 Gr. 572; so also the existence of a right of way: Ashburner v. Sewell, 1891, 3 Ch. 405; 65 L. T. 524; or a public sewer: Re Brewer & Honkin, 80 L. T. 127; or underground culvert: Re Puckett & Smith, supra; or a drain, the legal title to which is in third parties; or an agreement by the vendor with the owner of adjoining property not to interfere with his lights: Pemsel v. Tucker, 1907, 2 Ch. 191. So also is an outstanding claim to dower: Gamble v. Gummerson, 9 Gr. 193. So also is the lunacy of a previous owner of the land: Francis v. St. Germain, 6 Gr. 636. So also is the fact that the vendor, an attorney, claimed through a will prepared by himself: Grove v. Bastard, 2 Phil. 621. So also is the fact that the title came through a will, whereby the testator purported only to devise a moiety: Stapylton v. Scott, 16 Ves. 273; and where the validity of the vendor's title depended on the fact of his having purchased without notice: Freer v. Hesse, 4 D. M. & G. 495; but a supposed equity in a person who died upwards of fifty years ago, where the possession since that time had been in another, and the vendor had a good legal title, was held no objection: Dewitt v. Thomas, 10 Gr. 21. McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389; Imperial Bank v. Metcalfe, 11 Ont. 467; Re Shortt & Howard, before Boyd, C., 21st March, 1888.

Trusts.

Where trusts affecting the title are accidentally disclosed to the purchaser, he may require the production of the trust deed: Re Bloiberg & Abrahams, 1899, 2 Ch. 340; and where a title is traced through a trustee for sale, who has himself become the purchaser, the burden is on the vendor of showing by clear affirmative evidence, that the trustee and c. q. t. were at arm's length, and that the latter had full information of all material facts, and adopted what was done. In the absence of such evidence the Court would not compel an unwilling purchaser to complete: Williams v. Scott, 1900, A. C. 499; 82 L. T. 727.

Threatened litigation.

And where litigation is threatened in respect of the property, specific performance would not be enforced until, at all events, it is reasonably clear that the claim in respect of which it is threatened is without foundation: see George v. Thomas, 90 L. T. 505.

Possession, inquiry should be made as to.

inquiry should always be made as to the possession. If a stranger is in possession, the purchaser should insist on his being ejected by the vendor. Under The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 124), s. 73, it would seem that possession is no longer constructive notice of the title of the person in possession as against a party claiming under a registered title: Bell v. Wolker, 20 Gr. 569; Grey v. Ball, 23 Gr. 390; Sherbonean v. Jeffs, 15 Gr. 574; Building & Loan Ass. v. Poops, 27 Ont. 470; nor of the title of the person through whom the person in possession claims: see Hunt v. Luck, 1901, 1 Ch. 45; 83 L. T. 449; 86 L. T. 68; not even though there be actual notice of the possession. Ib.; Cooley

v. Smith, 40 U. C. Q. B. 543; Roe v. Broden, 24 Gr. 589; but where the person in possession is tenant under a lease for a term not exceeding seven years, his interest is protected though his lease is not registered: The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 124), s. 71 (2); Latch v. Bright, 16 Gr. 653; and see Green v. Rheinberg, 104 L. T. 149. As to the effect of possession in cases to which The Registry Act does not apply: see Attorney-General v. McNulty, 11 Gr. 281, 581; Gray v. Coucher, 15 Gr. 419; and as to what may amount to actual notice sufficient to take a case out of the protection of The Registry Act: see Rose v. Peterkin, 13 S. C. R. 677. Rule 453. No longer constructive notice of title.

In investigating the title, the purchaser at a sale by the Court, is not bound to inquire into the regularity of the proceedings in the action; if the judgment appears to be regular on its face, he will be protected: Shaw v. Crawford, 4 Ont. App. 371; Gunn v. Doble, 15 Gr. 655; McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76; but see Forsters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254. He must, however, ascertain that all proper necessary parties are bound by the judgment: Lechmere v. Brasier, 2 J. & W. 287; Calvert v. Godfrey, 6 Beav. 97; Bennett v. Hamill, 2 Sch. & Lef. 577; and that the sale was in accordance with the judgment: Colclough v. Sterum, 3 Bli. 181; Talbot v. Minnett, 6 Ir. Eq. 83. An order of the Court is not invalidated as against a bonâ fide purchaser under it, on the ground of want of jurisdiction, or of want of any concurrence, consent, notice, or service: see The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 56; but semble, a purchaser having notice of the irregularity in the proceedings cannot be compelled to rely on the statutory indemnity: see Life Interest Corp. v. Hand-in-Hand, 1898, 2 Ch. 230. Purchaser need not inquire as to regularity of proceedings. But must see that all necessary parties are bound, etc.

Where the requisitions and objections, or any of them, are not answered, either party may carry in the objections, or such of them as are not answered, before the Master, as provided by Rule 449, and get his decision thereon: see Rule 453. Requisitions, how adjudicated on.

Where a sale is made subject to a condition that the vendor may rescind the contract in case the purchaser should take any objection, or make any requisition, which the vendor should be unable, or unwilling, to answer or comply with, such right must be fairly exercised, and a vendor will not be allowed to temporise with the purchaser whilst endeavouring to effect a sale to some one else: Smith v. Wallace 1895, 1 Ch. 385; 71 L. T. 814.

Where it is found that the vendor has sold land which he cannot convey himself, the purchaser may rescind; he is not bound to wait and see if the vendor can procure a conveyance by a third party: Re Cooke, 78 L. T. 106, 108. Matters of conveyance, what are.

But where the vendor has a good equitable title, and a right to call for the conveyance of the legal estate, a purchaser cannot repudiate the contract because the legal estate has not been got in before the date fixed for completion: Re Huckleshy and Atkinson, 102 L. T. 214.

There are some objections which are not strictly objections to the title, but are considered "matters of conveyance." Thus, the existence of outstanding incumbrances, or satisfied mortgages—where the vendor is entitled to require the party appearing entitled thereto, to join in the conveyance to the purchaser, or to release or discharge his incumbrance,—are not objections to the title. But where the vendor is unable to procure such conveyance, or release, such incumbrances then constitute an objection to the title: see Re Great Northern Ry. Co. v. Sanderson, 25 Ch. D. 788; 50 L. T. 87; McLean v. Walker, 19 Ont. 161. See also Fry, Sp. Perf., 2nd ed., sec. 1357 et seq., and Martin v. McGee, 19 Ont. 705; and 18 Ont. App. 384; Re Deighton & Harris, 1898, 1 Ch. 458; 46 W. R. 341.

Ordinarily a purchaser is entitled to a conveyance of the legal estate, but when the vendor was able to convey a good equitable title, an objection that the legal estate was outstanding, delivered after the time limited for delivery of objections had expired, was held to be too late: Pryce-Jones v. Williams, 1902, 2 Ch. 517; 87 L. T. 260.

On refusal of vendor to verify abstract, Master may authorise purchaser to do so.

454. In case of the refusal or neglect of the vendor to verify the abstract to the best of his ability, or to furnish any necessary proof or documents in his power, the Master may authorize the purchaser to do so at the vendor's expense. C.R. 741.

Costs of reference as to title, how borne.

Costs of Reference as to Title.—In sales by the Court, the purchaser is entitled to his costs of the reference, where the title proves good, on grounds not appearing on the abstract: Fielder v. Higginson, 3 V. & B. 142; and will not be ordered to pay the vendor's costs, though the title is proved according to the abstract: Flower v. Hartop, 8 Beav. 200; Holland v. King, 1 W. R. 80; Dart. V. & P. 1210; unless the objections are frivolous and vexatious: Thorpe v. Freer, 4 Mad. 466; Peers v. Sneyd, 17 Beav. 151; Seton, 5th ed., 1875; Platt v. Blizzard, 29 Gr. 46; Hurd v. Robertson, 7 Gr. 42; Laird v. Paton, 7 Ont. 137. A special application is necessary for an order for such costs: Flower v. Hartop, supra.

Though the title be a possessory one, and be first proved in the M. O., a purchaser may be ordered to pay the costs of the reference where he has acted unreasonably: see Dame v. Slater, 21 Ont. 375.

A purchaser will be ordered to pay the costs of an unsuccessful application to be relieved from his purchase: Osborne v. Osborne, 18 W. R. 421.

Purchaser's lien for costs.

Where a good title cannot be made, the purchaser is entitled to a lien on the land sold, for the deposit and costs, including those for investigating the title: Yeilding v. Westbrook, 31 Ch. D. 344; 54 L. T. 531; Kitton v. Hewett, 1904, W. N. 21; Hurd v. Robertson, 7 Gr. 142; Re Furneaux & Aird, 122 L. T. Jour. 109; and where the vendor rescinds under a condition enabling him to do so, the purchaser is entitled to his costs: see Isaacs v. Towell, 1898, 2 Ch. 285.

Rules 449-454, apply to all references as to title.

455. The foregoing six Rules shall apply to all cases of reference to the Master as to title, as well as to sales by the Court. C.R. 742.

Payment of purchase money out of Court.

456. Purchase money shall not be paid out of Court except upon consent of the purchaser or his solicitor, or upon proof being made to the Accountant that the purchaser has received a conveyance or vesting order in respect of the property for which the money in question was paid into Court. C.R. 743. Rule 457.

This Rule embodies what has always been the practice in the Accountant's office.

457. No conveyance shall be settled until evidence is produced of the purchase money having been paid into Court, and, where a mortgage is taken for part of the purchase money, until evidence is given to the said officer of such mortgage having been registered and deposited with the Accountant. C.R. 970. Conveyance of lands—evidence to be produced to officer settling.

C. R. 970 only applied to sales of infants' lands under C. R. 960, et seq., and to sales in actions or other proceedings in Court, in which infants are interested. The present Rule applies, apparently, to all sales, whether infants are interested or not.

C. R. 734 provided that the Master is to settle all necessary conveyances for the purpose of carrying out the sale in case the parties differ, or in case there are any persons under any disability (other than coverture) interested in such sale; but the omission of that Rule is probably not intended to alter the practice; usually the judgment or order directing the sale expressly authorizes the Master so to do. See Rule 416. Settlement of conveyance.

Conveyance.—In all sales by the Court, therefore, the Master to whom the action is referred, is to settle the conveyance in case the parties differ, or there be any parties not sui juris interested, without any special reference; and see Rule 416. But no conveyance of property sold under the order of the Court is to be settled until evidence is produced to the officer settling the same of the purchase money having been paid into Court, or of the payment into Court having been dispensed with; and, in cases where there is a mortgage for a part of the purchase money, until evidence is given to the officer settling the conveyance that such mortgage has been registered and deposited with the Accountant as required by this Rule. The proper evidence of the payment of the purchase money into Court and of the deposit of the mortgage is the certificate of the Accountant, or of his Chief Clerk. The order for dispensing with payment into Court can only be made by a Judge in Chambers, the Master in Chambers, or Master in Ordinary, and the Local Masters have no power to make such orders: Rules 208 (10), 209; but Local Judges may in certain cases do so, under Rule 210.

It is the purchaser's duty to prepare, and tender, the conveyance for execution: Stephens v. DeMedino, 4 Q. B. 422; Bolton v. Hugel, 35 U. C. Q. B. 407; Watt v. Porker, 2 Chy. Ch. 33; Mooney v. Prevost, 20 Gr. 416; Burns v. Boyd, 19 U. C. Q. B. 547; Stevenson v. Davis, 23 S. C. R. 629, at p. 633, unless the contract provides otherwise, and the fact that it was stipulated that the deed was to be prepared at the vendor's expense was held to impose on the vendor the duty of preparing it: Foster v. Anderson, 16 O. L. R. 565; 42 S. C. R. 251; and a provision that the purchase money is to be paid as soon as the conveyance is ready for delivery does not alter the rule: Stevenson v. Davis, 23 S. C. R. 629; but see Porker v. Watt, 25 U. C. Q. B. 115; Harrison v. Livingston, T. T. 1 & 2 Vict.; Monck v. Stuart, 4 U. C. Q. Purchaser's duty to prepare and tender conveyance.

Rule 457.

B. 203; Prindle v. McCon, Ib., 228; Scott v. Reikie, 15 C. P. 200; McDonald v. Snitsinger, 5 U. C. Q. B. 312; Rogers v. Lake, 9 U. C. Q. B. 264; Smith v. Doon, 15 U. C. Q. B. 634; Thoyer v. Street, 11 C. P. 243; Koster v. Holden, 16 C. P. 331; and in the event of the parties differing, or in case of infants, or lunatics, being interested, it must be settled by the Master, before engrossment, or tender for execution.

Settlement of by Master when necessary.

Tender of conveyance.

Tha purchaser sufficientiy tenders ths conveyance for execution under the standing conditions of sale, hy delivering tha same to the vendor's solicitor: Weiss v. Crofts, 6 P. R. 151.

Covenants.

Equitable interests.

The purchaser cannot require a covenant by a cestui que trust for title: Cottrell v. Cottrell, L. R 2 Eq. 330; nor where the legal estate is conveyed can ha reqnire parties to ths action, having merely equitable estates, to join in the conveyanca. Therafore, upon a sale of mortgaged premises, he cannot require the mortgagor to join in the deed: Ross v. Steele, 1 Chy. Ch. 94; nor the wife of the mortgagor: Moore v. Shinners, 1 Chy. Ch. 59. Where, in consequence of the infancy of some of the vendors, a settlement of the conveyance by the Master is rendered necessary, the purchaser's costs will be ordered to be paid out of his purchase money: Re McMorris, 3 Chy. Ch. 430.

Plan.

Where, for the proper identification of the property sold, it is necessary that there should be a plan, the purchaser is entitled to attach to, or incorporate a plan in the deed: see Re Sansom & Narbeth, 1910, 1 Ch. 741, and as to the effect of a plan so incorporated: see Eastwood v. Ashton, 1913, 2 Ch. 39.

Dower, purchaser entitled to release of.

The purchaser is entitled to a conveyance with bar of dower of vendor's wife; if she refuses to bar dower, ths purchaser is entitled to an abatement, or to rescind the contract: Kendrew v. Shewan, 4 Gr. 578; Von Norman v. Beoupre, 5 Gr. 599; or to have a portion of the purchase money, sufficiant to answer the dower, set apart until the wife's death, and tha interest thereon paid to the vendor during his wife's life: see Skinner v. Ainsworth, 24 Gr. 148; and Loughead v. Stubbs, 27 Gr. 387; hut the wife of a mortgagea cannot be compelled to join in a conveyance to a purchaser: Simpson v. Simpson, 1 Chy. Ch. 265, except where ths mortgagee's title has become absolute by the foreclosure of the equity of redemption, and even then only when the mortgagee has tha legal estata: see The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70), s. 4. As to the mods of computing dower in an equity of redemption where the dower has not been assigned, but the widow has been in possession of the land: see Re Percy, 11 Ont. 374.

Purchaser may take vesting order in lieu of conveyance.

The purchaser is entitled to a conveyance with ordinary covenants: and for the principle for determining what are "usual covenants" see Re Lander & Bogley, 1892, 3 Ch. 41; 67 L. T. 521; Davidson on Conveyancing, vol. 5, pt. ii., pp. 51-54; 3 Bythw. 122; Re Can. Pac. Ry. & Toronto, 4 O. L. R. 134; 27 Ont. App. 54; 5 O. L. R. 717; 1905, A. C. 33; De Soysa v. De Piess Pol., 1912, A. C. 194; 105 L. T. 642; but he may, if he chooses, taka a vesting order; hut a purchaser cannot be compelled to take a vesting order instead of a conveyance: Lavlant v. Seamen, 8 Ont. App. 557. Wherever the Court has authority to order the execution of a conveyance, it may make a vesting order: see Jud. Act, s. 72, supra, p. 235. Ths vesting order is granted in Chambers on production of tha report on sale duly confirmed, and proof that the purchase money has been duly paid, or secured, according to the report. Where the purchasa money is to be paid into Court its payment must be proved hy the production of the certificate of the Application for, how made.

Accountant, or his Chief Clerk. The vendor's solicitor is entitled to notice of the application: Boulton v. Stegman, 1 Chy. Ch. 199; and, where infants are interested, the guardian ad litem is usually notified also: Thorne v. Chute, 2 Chy. Ch. 221; but see Boulton v. Stegman, supra. Where the owner of the legal estate became the purchaser, a vesting order was refused: Bowen v. Fox, 1 Chy. Ch. 387; and see Jud. Act, s. 72, and notes, supra, pp. 235-237. Rule 458.

As to execution of deeds, by the Trust & Loan Co.: see 25 Vict. c. 72; Trust & Loan Co. v. Monk, 14 Gr. 385; by The Canada Company: Woodhill v. Sullivan, 14 C. P. 265; Fell v. South, 24 U. C. Q. B. 196. Deeds by T. & L. Co. & Canada Co.

The Canada Company is not exempted from giving ordinary covenants for title: see Scarlett v. Canada Co., 1 Chy. Ch. 90. Covenants by Canada Co.

Where, in consequence of the absence of one of the vendors from the jurisdiction, the execution of the conveyance prepared, and tendered by the purchaser, could not be procured, and a vesting order was then obtained, the purchaser was held entitled to the extra costs so occasioned: Re McMorris, 3 Chy. Ch. 430; and see Lowrason v. Buckley, 3 Chy. Ch. 270. Costs of vesting order.

Even before conveyance a purchaser may apply to the Court to restrain any party bound by the sale from exercising even a legal right to his prejudice as purchaser: Re Powers, 63 L. T. 626.

Completion of Sale.—On the completion of the sale the purchaser is entitled to the delivery of all title deeds relating to the property purchased, unless otherwise provided by the conditions of sale; or unless the vendor is entitled to retain them as mortgagee; and the expense of procuring such of the title deeds as are not in the vendor's possession must be borne by the vendor in the absence of any conditions of sale to the contrary, and semble, a condition that the vendor shall not be bound to produce them for the verification of the abstract is not such a condition to the contrary: Re Duthy & Jesson, 1898, 1 Ch. 419.

Trustees purchasing lands for the trust should see that the original title deeds are delivered up, and are guilty of negligence if they omit to obtain them: see Walker v. Linom, 1907, 2 Ch. 104; 97 L. T. 92.

The purchaser is also entitled to require the vendor to deliver to him possession of the premises: see Rule 448 and notes p. 1000.

Deeds of land in Ontario, executed in England, do not require to be stamped under the English Stamp Acts: Murray v. Vonbrocklin, 1 Chy. Ch. 300.

Where a vendor is guilty of unreasonable delay in procuring the execution and delivery of the conveyance, the purchaser may be entitled to compensation for any damage he may suffer in consequence thereof: see supra, p. 1003, et seq.

An application to compel a party to execute a conveyance must be on notice: Westacott v. Cockerline, 2 Chy. Ch. 442.

458. Where a Master is to appoint a committee, guardian or receiver, the name proposed and the names of his proposed sureties shall be given in the appointment and the Master shall appoint the committee, guardian or receiver, and settle and approve of the proposed security, Master to appoint committee, guardian or receiver and settle and approve security.

Rule 458.

and when the security has been duly filed, shall sign a written appointment. C.R. 762 and 763.

As to the appointment of Receivers: see Jud. Act, s. 17 and notes, supra, p. 74.

Evidence to be produced on settling security.

In order to enable the Master to settle the security to be given, affidavits must be filed proving the amount of property likely to come to the hands of the committee, guardian, or receiver. The amount of the security required will vary according to the circumstances; usually security will be required to be given by the appointee, with at least two sureties, in double the amount of the probable annual rents of realty, and double the probable amount of personal estate, likely to come to his hands.

The husband of a married woman who is declared a lunatic, has no absolute right to be appointed her committee: Re Davy, 1892, 3 Ch. 38; 67 L. T. 180.

On return of warrant, bond to be brought in.

At the time appointed, the party prosecuting the order should bring into the Master's office the draft of the bond proposed as security, which, after approval, should be engrossed, and executed, and filed.

Bond, how to be given.

The bond must now be made to the "Accountant of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, his successors and assigns": Rule 720; Jud. Act, s. 105 (1), see supra, p. 284.

Where a guarantee company has been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, its bond may be accepted as security: The Guarantee Companies Securities Act (R. S. O. c. 190), s. 3; and no affidavit of justification is necessary: Ib., s. 35; and see Carpenter v. Solicitor to the Treasury, 46 L. T. 821; and The Public Officers Act (R. S. O. c. 15), s. 9. The solicitor of any of the parties is not eligible as a surety: Re Gibson, 13 P. R. 359.

The security is for the protection of the parties to the litigation, but not for the benefit of third persons with whom the receiver has dealings in the course of his receivership: In re British Power Traction Co., 1910, 2 Ch. 470; 103 L. T. 451; and third persons dealing with a receiver have no greater rights than the receiver has: Ib.

Party desiring to propose another person as receiver, to give notice.

Any other party desirous of proposing another person as receiver, should serve notice of his intention so to do upon the other parties, naming in the notice the person proposed by him as receiver, and his sureties, and should bring into the Master's office the bond proposed by him as security.

If the receiver is named by the Court, "on his giving security," no other person can be named in the Master's warrant, or by any of the parties, and if the person named in the order fails to give the security, a further order will be necessary to enable the Master to appoint some one else.

Receiver's appointment, when effectual.

A receiver appointed "upon his giving security," is not effectually constituted receiver as against third parties until he has given the security: Edwards v. Edwards, 1 Ch. D. 454; 2 Ch. D. 291; but if no security be required, he is legally clothed with the character of receiver from the date of his appointment: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302; 5 Ch. D. 740.

Rule 458. Parties not eligible.

A party to the action cannot propose himself as receiver unless leave to do so be embodied in the order: Davis v. Duke of Marlborough, 2 Sw. 118.

Security.

The giving of security for the due performance of his duty by the receiver will not be dispensed with, where infants or other persons not sui juris are interested: Tylee v. Tylee, 17 Beav. 583; nor even where all the parties are sui juris and consent, if it is referred to the Master to appoint the receiver: Manners v. Furze, 11 Beav. 30; but it may be, if the parties themselves nominate the receiver: Ib. Where a receiver is required to give additional security his omission to do so may be a ground for removing him from office, but he cannot be proceeded against for contempt of Court for not doing so: Re Dominion Provid. B & E. Assoc., 24 Ont. 416.

Where a person is appointed receiver without salary, he is entitled to be paid out of property in question the premiums paid by him to a guarantee company for becoming his surety: Harris v. Sleep, 1897, 2 Ch. 80; 76 L. T. 458.

A receiver appointed by the Court can look only to the assets under the control of the Court for his indemnity or remuneration. He is not entitled to be indemnified personally by the parties at whose instance, or with whose consent he was appointed: Boehm v. Goodall, 1911, 1 Ch. 155; 103 L. T. 717.

Interference with receiver, when a contempt of Court.

Interference by third parties with the property in question, before the appointment is completed, is not a contempt of Court: Taylor v. Eckersley, supra, p. 1020; and see Fox v. Toronto & Nipissing Ry. Co., 29 Gr. 11.

After the appointment of the receiver is complete, any interference with the property committed to his charge and in his possession, either by parties to the action, or third parties having notice of his appointment, is a contempt of Court, unless the leave of the Court has been first obtained: Angel v. Smith, 9 Ves. 335; Russell v. East Anglian Ry. Co., 3 Mac. & G. 104; Ames v. Birkenhead Docks, 20 Beav. 353; even though such interference be by persons claiming by title paramount to that of the parties to the action in which the receiver is appointed: Ib.; Evelyn v. Lewis, 3 Ha. 475; Hawkins v. Gathercole, 1 Drew. 17; Randfield v. Randfield, 1 Dr. & Sm. 314; Whadcoat v. Shropshire Ry. Co., 95 L. T. Jour. 272; and the Court will not permit any one, without its sanction, to intercept or prevent payment, or delivery to the receiver, of any money or property which he has been appointed to receive: Ames v. Birkenhead Docks, 20 Beav. 353; but where goods in the possession of a receiver were sold for taxes, and neither the bailiff, nor purchaser had notice of the receiver's rights, the Court refused to hold the sale void: Gibson v. Lovell, 18 Gr. 197.

Master not to make report appointing a receiver; but to sign appointment.

Where the Master has approved the securities, they are to be duly executed and filed, and the Master then appoints the committee, guardian, or receiver, by signing a written appointment.

For Form of appointment: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 1033, 1343, which may be varied when committees of lunatics, and guardians of the person or estate of infants, are to be appointed.

Master's appointment of receiver to be filed.

The appointment should also be filed by the party who has procured the appointment to be made, and it may be moved against within 14 days by any party interested: see Rules 502, 503.

Rule 458.

Receiver, an Officer of the Court.

A receiver, when appointed, is an officer of the Court, and stands in the position of trustee to all who are interested in the estate or fund. In making the appointment, the Master should endeavour to select a person acceptable to all parties, as well as otherwise fit and competent for the duties he will be called on to perform: Simpson v. Ottawa & Prescott Ry. Co., 1 Chy. Ch. 99; and see Brant v. Willoughby, 17 Gr. 627.

It has been held that the effect of a receivership order, obtained by an execution creditor, is to vest in the party obtaining the same a right to the property in question, as from the date of the order, which cannot be divested by proceedings in bankruptcy subsequently taken against the debtor: Levasseur v. Mason, 1891, 2 Q. B. 73; 64 L. T. 761; but, notwithstanding, it has been held that he is not a "secured creditor" within The Bankruptcy Act; Re Potts, 1893, 1 Q. B. 648; 68 L. T. 229; and see Croshaw v. Lyndhurst Ship Co., 1897, 2 Ch. 154; 76 L. T. 553, where it was held by Stirling, J., that a receiving order, under which the receiver is required to pay the moneys received into Court subject to further order, gave the execution creditor no charge on the property. See also McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. at p. 259.

Property in the hands of a receiver is in custodiâ legis in so far that none of the parties to the action can recover damages for its detention while in his custody: The Peruvian Guano Co. v. Dreyfus, 1892, A. C. 166; but not in the same way as it would be if in possession of a sequestrator, or sheriff: Re Hoare, Hoare v. Owen, 1892, 3 Ch. 94; 67 L. T. 45.

Receiver to obtain leave to sue, or defend, or distrain.

Where it is necessary for the receiver to bring, or defend, an action, or take other legal proceedings, to recover, or maintain, his right to property committed to him, he should first obtain the sanction of the Court: Thomas v. Torrance, 1 Chy. Ch. 9. He cannot sue in his own name, but he must get the leave of the Court to bring the action in the name of the party in whom the legal cause of action is vested: McGuin v. Fretts, 13 Ont. 699; Stuart v. Grough, 14 Ont. 255.

The Court may refuse to authorize the receiver to sue, where the party having the legal title is ready and willing to do so: McLean v. Allen, 14 P. R. 291.

Where a receiver is appointed by way of equitable execution, he may be authorized to sue in the name of the debtor for the purpose of recovering assets to satisfy the execution, on first giving the debtor a proper indemnity against costs: Morris v. McCollum, 17 P. R. 398.

The receiver should not himself initiate proceedings, but he should apply to the party having the conduct of the cause to take any proceedings that may be necessary: Third National Bank v. Queen City Refining Co., 20 C. L. J. 151. After attornment by a tenant to the receiver, the receiver may distrain in his own name; before attornment, leave must be obtained to distrain in the name of the person having the legal estate: Kerr, 142, 143. The application for leave to sue, defend, or distrain, may be made in Chambers: Thomas v. Torrance, 1 Chy. Ch. 9; notice to the tenants is not necessary: Farton v. Dryden, 6 P. R. 127.

A receiver cannot be empowered by the Court to do things which the parties to the action could not themselves legally do, e.g., in a partnership action he cannot be empowered to agree to a compromise against the w... of one of the partners: Niemonn v. Niemann, 43 Ch. D. 198; 62 L. T. 339. Rule 458.

Proceedings instituted against a receiver for acts done by him in the execution of his office, will, on application to the Court on behalf of the receiver, be restrained: Simpson v. Hutchinson, 7 Gr. 308; and see Searle v. Choat, 25 Ch. D. 732; 50 L. T. 470; Re West Lancashire Ry. Co., 63 L. T. 56. Proceedings against, restrained.

After his discharge, a receiver will not be restrained from soliciting customers, unless he was appointed on the terms that he would not do so after he ceased to be receiver: Re Irish, Irish v. Irish, 40 Ch. D. 49; 60 L. T. 224.

If any person is aggrieved by the action of the receiver, he should not bring an action, but should make application to the Court in the action in which the receiver was appointed: see Re Maidstone Police, Blair v. Maidstone Palace, 1909, 2 Ch. 283; 101 L. T. 458. In re Diehl v. Carritt, 15 O. L. R. 232, leave was given to sue receivers of a company and others, to restrain them from carrying out a bond issue by the company. Remedy of third persons against receiver.

Leave was given to abate an obstruction to a right of way existing on land in the possession of a receiver: Lone v. Copsey, 1891, 3 Ch. 411; 65 L. T. 375.

Status of Receiver.—A receiver is an officer of the Court, and when appointed at the instance of debenture holders of a company he was held to be neither an agent of the company, nor of the debenture holders, but an officer of the Court appointed to discharge certain duties: see Parsons v. Sovereign Bank, 1913, A. C. 160; 105 L. T. 572.

Prima facie, any contracts made by him, unless otherwise expressly provided, would be made by him personally in reliance on his right to indemnity out of the assets: Ib., and see Moss S.S. Co. v. Whinney, 1912, A. C. 254; 105 L. T. 305.

Liability of Receiver.—A receiver or manager entering into contracts will make himself personally liable, unless the contract expressly provides otherwise: Burt v. Bull, 1895, 1 Q. B. 276; 71 L. T. 810; or the credit is clearly given to the firm, or business, of which the receiver is manager: Isaacs v. Chinery, 74 L. T. 320; and see Plumpton v. Burkinshaw, 1908, 2 K. B. 572; 99 L. T. 415; and Re Boynton, Hoffmon v. Boynton, infra, p. 1025; and where a receiver is appointed by trustees for debenture holders in pursuance of a power in the trust deed, the trustees are not liable on the contracts of the receiver as undisclosed principals: Goskell v. Gosling, 1896, 1 Q. B. 669; 77 L. T. 314; 1897, A. C. 575, in which case the deed provided that the receiver when appointed should be the agent of the company, who alone should be liable for his acts or defaults. Liability of receiver.

A receiver is bound to conform to the orders of the Court, and is responsible for any loss resulting from his not doing so: thus, where a receiver was ordered to pay money to the plaintiffs, and he paid it to their solicitor who misappropriated it, the receiver was held liable to make good the loss: Ind, Coope & Co. v. Kidd, 71 L. T. 203.

A receiver is liable to attachment for disobeying the order of the Court as to the payment of moneys which come to his hands as receiver; but semble, a specific order for payment should be first obtained, and served on him: Fawkes v. Griffin, 18 P. R. 48.

Rule 459.

Master to appoint time for receivers, and committees to pass accounts.

459. The Master shall appoint a time when the person appointed is to pass his accounts and pay his balances into Court; and in default of compliance with such direction, the person appointed may, on the passing of his accounts, be disallowed any salary or compensation for his services, and may be charged with interest upon his balances. C.R. 766.

Accounts of.

Accounts of Receiver.—

A receiver appointed without salary, is entitled to be allowed in his accounts for premiums paid for the purpose of furnishing security: Harris v. Sleep, 1897, 2 Ch. 80; 76 L. T. 458.

Where a receiver, who was appointed without a salary, performed divers extraordinary services in connaction with his office which were not contemplated when he was appointed, he was allowed a reasonable compensation for such extraordinary services: Harris v. Sleep, 76 L. T. 670.

Notwithstanding a receiver has omitted to pass his accounts as required, he may be allowed remuneration for his services if the Court see fit: Re Breen, Breen v. Toronto General Trusts Corpn., 18 O. L. R. 447.

As to payments which a receiver of a going concern may properly make: see Gooderham v. Toronto & Nipissing Ry. Co., 8 Ont. App. 685.

Where a receiver has notice of a preferred claim and subsequently pays unpreferred claims, he is liable in tort to the preferred creditor in respect of moneys so paid away: Woods v. Winskill, 1913, 2 Ch. 303.

A receiver, committee, or guardian should obtain the leave of the Court before borrowing money, or making any extraordinary expenditure; but where such money has been borrowed or expenditure made without leave, it may be allowed, provided it is shown that it would have been authorized by the Court if an application had been made: Re Breen, Breen v. Toronto General Trusts Corporation, 18 O. L. R. 447; Re British Power Traction Co., Halifax Bank v. British Power Traction Co., 1906, 1 Ch. 497; 94 L. T. 479. Though a receiver is entitled to indemnity out of the assets which come to his hands for all proper expenditures made by him for the purposes of his receivership: Re Gladsir Copper Mines, English E. M. Co. v. Gladsir Copper Mines, 1906, 1 Ch. 365; 94 L. T. 8; he has no right of action against the litigants personally therefor: Boehm v. Goodall, 1911, 1 Ch. 155; 103 L. T. 717; sed vide, Matthews v. Ruggles-Brice, 1911, 1 Ch. 194; 103 L. T. 491; and Deyes v. Wood, 1911, 1 K. B. 806; 104 L. T. 404.

Where a receiver is also manager, he is bound to exercise such reasonable care as an ordinary man would give to his own business, and is personally liable for any loss occasioned by his not doing so: Plisson v. Duncan, 36 S. C. R. 647.

Where a receiver is authorized to borrow money to carry on a business, and the loan is made a first charge on the property in the hands of the receiver, such a charge does not, unless expressly so provided, take priority over the lien of the receiver for his remuneration, nor does the receiver incur any personal liability for such loan: Re Boyn- Rule 468.

ton, Hoffman v. Boynton, 1910, 1 Ch. 579; 102 L. T. 273.

Money paid by mistake to a receiver, or other officer of the Court may, so long as the fund remains under the control of the Court, be ordered to be refunded: Ex p. James, L. R. 9 Ch. 609; 30 L. T. 773; Ex p. Simmonds, 16 Q. B. D. 308; 54 L. T. 439; Re Tyler (1907), 1 K. B. 865; 97 L. T. 30; Re Temple F. & A. Assuree. Co., 129 L. T. Jour. 115.

The sureties of a receiver or committee are not liable for his receipts, after the right to act as receiver, or committee, has come to an end: Re Walker, 1907, 2 Ch. 120; 96 L. T. 864.

When a receiver has passed his final accounts, and paid his balances as directed by the Court, an application may be made to discharge the bond; all parties interested are entitled to notice of the application: Brown v. Perry, 1 Chy. Ch. 253. As to the liability of the sureties, eee Re Graham, 1895, 1 Ch. 66; 71 L. T. 623; In re British Power Tracti.n Co., supra, p. 1024. Discharge of bond.

CHAPTER XVI.

MORTGAGE ACTIONS.

When demand of payment, or notice of intention to exercise power of sale given, other proceedings not to be taken without order.

By The Mortgages Act (R. S. O. c. 112), s. 29, it is provided that where, pursuant to any condition or proviso in a mortgage, a demand or notice has been given requiring payment or declaring an intention to proceed to exercise the power of sale contained in the mortgage, no further proceeding shall be taken, and no action shall be brought to enforce the mortgage until after the lapse of the time at or after which, according to the demand or notice, payment is to be made, or the power of sale is to be exercised or proceeded under, except by leave of a Judge of the High Court or a Judge of a County Court.

Where, after an action to enforce payment under the covenant in a mortgage had been commenced, the plaintiff served notice of intention to exercise the power of sale, unless payment of the mortgage moneys was made within 30 days, this notice, though subsequently abandoned by notice to that effect, was held to have the effect of giving the defendant 30 days during which no further proceedings in the action could be taken without leave: Lyon v. Ryerson, 17 P. R. 516.

The publication of an advertisement for sale is a "proceeding" within the above Act: Smith v. Brown, 20 Ont. 165. See also Neil v. Almond, 29 Ont. 63; In re Woodall, 8 O. L. R. 288, and The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 24 (2).

The Act does not apply where the power of sale is exercisable without any notice: Canada Permanent v. Teeter, 19 Ont. 156.

A mortgagee who has given the mortgagor notice to pay off the principal money and interest, is not at liberty to withdraw it without the consent of the mortgagor: Sontley v. Wilde, 47 W. R. 297.

Where a mortgagee, on default of payment of an instalment of interest, brings a foreclosure action and claims payment of the amount secured by the mortgage, any party to the action, by the original writ, or added in the Master's office, or by subsequent order, is entitled to hold the plaintiff to his election and to pay his claim; but this right must be taken advantage of in the foreclosure action, and does not enure to the benefit of a person, not a party to the action, who ignores the foreclosure proceedings, and brings a redemption action, after making an independent tender to the mortgagee: Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500.

After a foreclosure action has been commenced, it is improper for the plaintiff to bring a second action for a subsequently accruing instalment of principal or interest, so long as the first action is pending: see Poulett v. Hill, 68 L. T. 476; 1893, 1 Ch. 277. But where a mortgagee having a principal mortgage, and five supplemental mortgages, commenced an action and indorsed his writ in respect of only five of the mortgages, he was held entitled to bring another action in respect of the sixth mortgage: Bake v. French, 1907, 1 Ch. 423; 96 L. T. 496; 97 L. T. 131.

460. A mortgagee may in an action claim foreclosure of the equity of redemption or a sale of the mortgaged premises, and payment of the mortgage debt by any party personally liable therefor and possession of the mortgaged premises. The writ shall be indorsed in accordance with the Form applicable thereto. C.R. 378 and 141.

Rule 460.

Mortgagee may have sale or foreclosure and also personal remedy.

Indorsement of writ.

For forms of indorsement in mortgage actions for sale, payment and possession: see No. 4 (a), and for foreclosure, payment and possession: see No. 4 (b), and for redemption: see No. 4 (c), in the H. & L. Forms, Nos. 57-59.

The indorsement should also state concisely the lands in question: Canada Landed Credit Co. v. Colloghan, Boyd, C., 26th October, 1881; and see Forms, supra.

This Rule having reference to the indorsement of a writ only, does not apply to a counter-claim on a mortgage, and orders for immediate payment, and possession, may be granted, though not asked for specifically by the counter-claim: Klein v. Union Fire Insurance Co., 3 Ont. 250.

A separate action for possession should not be brought when other remedies against the mortgagor are claimed: Hoy v. McArthur, 8 P. R. 321.

A writ indorsed with all the claims mentioned in this Rule is specially indorsed under Rule 33 (h), but semble, not so as to entitle the plaintiff to move under Rule 56 for summary judgment for recovery of land: Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 80. Rules 460-490, appear to be the Rules especially governing such actions.

In an action for foreclosure, in which also possession is claimed, where the mortgage sought to be foreclosed was held void for illegal, or immoral, consideration, the plaintiff was held not entitled to recover possession: Clork v. Hogor, 22 S. C. R. 511.

Where a mortgagor is dead the mortgagee is entitled to an order for payment against the personal representative of the deceased, and in case of a deficiency, to administration of the deceased's estate: Re Eustace, Lee v. McMillan, 1912, 1 Ch. 561; 106 L. T. 789; but semble that relief cannot be granted by præcipe judgment.

Where a mortgage is being enforced by foreclosure against executors of the mortgagor, and an order for payment is asked against them, and they do not plead plene administraverunt, the additional costs of the latter claim only should be taxed against the executors personally: Miles v. Brown, 15 P. R. 375.

Mortgagee should seek all remedies in one action.

A mortgagee should seek all the remedies he is entitled to, in one action, and if after commencing an action for foreclosure, and while it is pending, he brings another action on the covenant, the proceedings in such second action will be stayed: Williams v. Hunt, 1905, 1 K. B. 512; 92 L. T. 193.

Order for payment of deficiency when granted.

A mortgagee is only entitled to an order for the payment of the mortgage debt, or for payment of any deficiency after a sale, where there is an express or implied contract by the defendant with the plaintiff, by covenant, or otherwise, to pay the mortgage debt. If there be no such contract, the mortgagee is entitled to no personal remedy against the defendant: see Christie v. Dowker, 10 U. C. L. J. 161; Turnbull v. Symmonds, 6 Gr. 615; Forbes v. Adamson, 1 Chy. Ch. 117; Clarkson v. Scott, 25 Gr. 373; Norris v. Meadows, 28 Gr. 334; 7 Ont. App. 237; Pierce v. Cannavan Ib. 356; Mathers v. Helliwell, 10 Gr. 175; Aldous v. Hicks, 21 Ont. 95; Frontenac L. & I. Soc. v. Hysop, Ib. 577; Re Errington, 1894, 1 Q. B. 11; Re Jones, 1893, 2 Ch. 461; where, however, the mortgage deed contains no express covenant to pay, the law will imply a contract by the mortgagor to pay: see Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D. 511; 48 L. T. 95; Barnes v. Glenton, 79 L. T. 94; provided there be evidence that the mortgage was made to secure a debt or loan: Holl v. Morley, 8 U. C. Q. B. 584; Penrmon v. Hyland, 22 U. C. Q. B. 202; Jackson v. Ycomons, 19 C. P. 394; 28 U. C. Q. B. 307; 39 U. C. Q. B. 280. The mere acknowledgment of the receipt of the mortgage money, is not sufficient to raise any presumption of a loan, or an implied promise of repayment: London Loan Co. v. Smyth, 32 C. P. 530.

Not if there be no personal liability to pay.

Liability, when implied.

A covenant for payment is implied by persons who convey, and are expressed to convey, as beneficial owners in a conveysnce by way of mortgage: The Mortgages Act (R. S. O. c. 112), s. 7.

A mortgagor may by his covenant restrict his liability as to amount, or as to the terms on which it may be enforced: Wilson v. Fleming, 24 Ont. 388.

Order for immediate payment, when made.

Where there is a covenant for the payment of the mortgage debt, judgment may now be obtained, if claimed by the writ, for the full amount due with costs, for which execution may issue at once, without waiting for a sale of the mortgaged property.

Where a reference to the Master to inquire as to incumbrances is necessary, and relief is also sought on the covenant, the judgment usually refers it to the Master to take the account, and directs payment of the amount which he finds due, forthwith after the making of his report: see H. & L. Forms, No. 905, and North of Scotland v. Beard, 19 C. L. J. 252, though Form 101 in the Rules contemplates a computation by the officer entering the judgment, of the amount for which the plaintiff is entitled to a personal order. A judgment in the latter form will only provide for the immediate payment of the costs up to the date of the judgment, and will not entitle the plaintiff to a personal order for payment of the costs of the reference; these will be simply added to the mortgage debt and be payable as part of the price of redemption, although no execution can issue therefor.

Although the claim of a mortgagee against his mortgagor personally, may be barred by the Statute of Limitations, the mortgagee may, nevertheless, be entitled to proceed for the foreclosure of the equity of redemptio, c for the sale of the mortgaged property: Barnes v. Glenton, 1899, 1 Q. B. 885; 80 L. T. 606 (a mortgage of land), London & Midland Bank v. Mitchell, 1899, 2 Ch. 161; 81 L. T. 263 (a mortgage of chattels).

Covenant of mortgagor not enforceable against his assigns.

The burden of a covenant to pay mortgage money does not run with the mortgaged lands. Though the purchaser of an equity of redemption covenants with the mortgagor to pay the mortgage money, there is no privity of contract between him and the mortgagee, or any implied obligation thereby created which will enable the mortgagee to sue the purchaser: Re Frontenac Loan & Investment Society v. Hysop, 21 Ont. 577; Canada Landed and Nat. Investment Co. v. Shaver, 22 Ont. App. 377; the mortgagee cannot, by way of equitable execution against the mortgagor, obtain an order for a receiver to enforce payment by the purchaser, upon his covenant with the mortgagor: Palmer v. McKnight, 31 Ont. 306; and where a deceased mortgagor's estate is insolvent, the mortgagee cannot compel his personal representative to seek indemnity from a purchaser of the equity of redemption: Higgins v. Trusts Corporation, 30 Ont. 684; 27 Ont. App. 432; neither has the mortgagee any direct remedy against such purchaser on his contract with the mortgagor, in the absence of an assignment of the contract: Palmer v. McKnight, supra; but the legal or equitable obligation of the purchaser to pay off the mortgage may be assigned by the vendor to the mortgagee, who may then sue the purchaser for the mortgage moneys: Campbell v. Morrison, 24 Ont. App. 224. Rule 460.

The relations which exist among mortgagee, mortgagor, and assignee, who has agreed to pay the mortgage moneys, are not those which exist among creditor, surety, and principal debtor: Forster v. Ivey, 32 Ont., 175.

A mortgagor who has assigned his equity of redemption, on the terms that the assignee is to pay off the mortgage, cannot, as between himself and the mortgagee, claim to stand in the position of a surety: Aldous v. Hicks, 21 Ont. 95; but he is entitled under a contract for indemnity to bring in the assignee as a third party: McMurtry v. Leushner, 3 O. W. N. 1176.

So long as the covenant to pay endures, the mortgagor, notwithstanding he has assigned his equity of redemption, is liable to pay when sued by the mortgagee; his equitable right is upon payment to get the land back, and to have, unimpaired, his remedies against his assignee; and if those rights can be exercised by him at the time he is sued, it is immaterial, that at some previous time, there was such dealing between his assignee and the mortgagee as would then have interfered with such rights: Forster v. Ivey, 32 Ont. 175. The mortgagor is, therefore, liable on his covenant notwithstanding a previous extension of time granted by the mortgagee to the purchaser, if, when the liability is enforced, the right of the mortgagor to redeem is not affected: Ib., 2 O. L. R. 480; but a mortgagee, who has notice that the mortgagor is entitled to indemnity from his assignee, cannot deal with the latter to the prejudice of the mortgagor, without discharging him from liability: Mothere v. Helliwell, 10 Gr. 172; Muttleberry v. Taylor, 22 Ont. 312. Mortgagor's liability on covenant.

Where the action is against the personal representative of a deceased mortgagor, and the plaintiff claims relief on the covenant for payment made by the deceased mortgagor, on default of defence, the defendant should only be ordered to pay personally the additional costs occasioned by that claim: Miles v. Brown, 15 P. R. 375. Deceased mortgagor.

Where there is a surety for the payment of the mortgage debt, in default of payment thereof by the mortgagor, it is always desirable to join the surety as a defendant in any action by the mortgagee to enforce the mortgage security, because, as soon as judgment is recovered against the principal, the right of action on the covenant is merged in the judgment, and subsequent accruing interest may not be otherwise recoverable against the surety: Fober v. Lathom, 77 L. T. 168. Surety, rights of.

Rule 460.

A surety against whom a judgment has been recovered, which, by agreement, is to stand as security for the payment of the deficiency, is entitled to have the security realized, before he can be called on to pay anything: Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85. An assignee of the equity of redemption who covenants with the mortgagee to pay off the mortgage debt, becomes a principal debtor, and if time be given him by the mortgagee, the mortgagor may be discharged: Mathers v. Helliwell, 10 Gr. 172.

Where a mortgagee on assigning a mortgage had covenanted that the mortgagor would pay the mortgage moneys, a release of part of the mortgaged lands, on payment of part of the debt, without the consent of the covenantor, was held to have discharged him, whether the amount paid was the full value of the lands released or not: Farmers' Loan & S. Co. v. Patchett, 6 O. L. R. 255.

Personal relief should not be directed if not claimed.

Where the writ, or statement of claim, does not claim any personal remedy against the defendant, the judgment is erroneous, if it contain any personal order for payment of the mortgage debt, and such a defect was amended after the lapse of four years: Cockerone v. Bullock, 12 Gr. 136.

Mortgagee entitled to sale or foreclosure.

A mortgagee is now usually entitled to a sale, or foreclosure, at his option: Meyers v. Harrison, 1 Gr. 449. But a subsequeot mortgagee cannot, as plaintiff, have a sale against a prior mortgagee without the latter's consent: McDougall v. Campbell, 6 S. C. R. 502; although he may, as a defendant, under Rule 462. Where infants are concerned, and the mortgagee claims foreclosure, the judgment usually directs a sale, or foreclosure, as the Master may find most beneficial for the infants.

Mortgagee of chattels may foreclose.

Pledgee can only sell.

A mortgagee of chattels: Cook v. Flood, 5 Gr. 463; a municipal corporation: Oxford v. Bailey, 12 Gr. 276; and a chartered bank: Bank of Upper Canada v. Scott, 6 Gr. 451; are each entitled to foreclosure. But a mere pledgee of chattels is said to be only entitled to a sale: Carter v. Wake, 4 Ch. D. 605.

Mortgagee by deposit when not entitled to a sale.

The law as to equitable mortgage by deposit of title deeds, save as affected by The Registry Act, is the same in Ontario as in England: Zimmerman v. Sproat, 26 O. L. R. 446. A mortgagee of lands by deposit is said not to be entitled to a sale, but only to a foreclosure: Pryce v. Bury, L. R. 16 Eq. 153 n; James v. James, Ib. 153; Backhouse v. Charlton, 8 Ch. D. 444; but where the deposit is accompanied by an agreement to execute a legal mortgage, the mortgagee is entitled to either sale, or foreclosure: York Union Banking Co. v. Artley, 11 Ch. D. 205; although an equitable mortgagee by deposit cannot insist on a sale, yet if a subsequent incumbrancer, or the mortgagor himself, desires a sale, it may be granted as in any other case: Kerr v. Beebe, 12 Gr. 204.

Crown can not be foreclosed.

The Crown cannot be foreclosed; the only judgment that can be awarded where the equity of redemption is in the Crown, is one authorizing the mortgagee in default of payment to take possession until the Crown shall think proper to redeem: Reeve v. Attorney-General, 2 Atk. 223; Dunn v. Attorney-General, 10 Gr. 462; or until the debt shall be satisfied: Hodge v. Attorney-General, 3 Y. & C. 342; or, if the Crown consent, or do not object, a sale may be ordered: Seton, 4th ed., 1044; Prescott v. Tylee, 1 Jur. 470; 2 Jur. 870; Rogers v. Maule, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 4; Hancock v. Attorney-General, 12 W. R. 569; Bartlett v. Rees, L. R. 12 Eq. 395.

Form of judgment against the Crown.

Rule 460.

Mortgagee of railway entitled to sale, or foreclosure.

A mortgagee of a railway, subject to Dominion control, is entitled to enforce payment of his mortgage by either sale, or foreclosure, of the railway as a going concern: Toronto General Trusts Corp. v. Central Ont. Ry., 6 O. L. R. 1; 8 O. L. R. 342. Affirmed by P. C. 1905, A. C. 576; 93 L. T. 317: and see The Railway Act (R. S. C. c. 37), s. 299: but in England the property of a railway, or other company, in which the public have rights, is held to be unsaleable at the instance of creditors: see Gardner v. London C. & D. Ry., L. R. 2 Ch. 201, but a company organized to carry on a piece of amusement is not such a company: Re Crystal Palace, 104 L. T. 898. A mortgagee of a railway under Dominion control is also entitled to have a receiver, or manager, of the undertaking appointed: Galt v. Erie and Niagara Ry. Co., 14 Gr. 499; Peto v. Welland Ry. Co., 9 Gr. 455; Furness v. Caterham Ry. Co., 25 Beav. 614. A vendor of a right of way to a railway company is entitled to enforce a lien for unpaid purchase money, by sale, or rescission of the contract: Walker v. Ware H. & B. Ry. Co., L. R. 1 Eq. 195; Martin v. London, Chatham & Dover Ry. Co., 12 Jur. N. S. 775; but see the Bishop of Winchester v. Mid-Hants Ry. Co., L. R. 5 Eq. 17; Pell v. Northampton & B. J. Ry. Co., L. R. 2 Chy. 100, where the lien was enforced by the appointment of a receiver. And see notes to Jud. Act, s. 17, p. 83, supra.

Vendor to Ry. Co., rights of.

Mortgages of any railway within Provincial control may in like manner be enforced by sale, or foreclosure: see The Ontario Railway Act (R. S. O. c. 185), s. 53.

As to foreclosure in a debenture holder's action: see Re Continental Oxygen Co., 1897, 1 Ch. 511; Re Wolverhampton, etc., Brewery Co., 1899, W. N. 229; and Wallace v. Evershed, 1899, 1 Ch. 891.

Right to sale, or foreclosure, when lost by sale of part of property.

The right of a mortgagee to either a sale, or foreclosure, may be lost by his having sold, or parted with, part of the mortgaged property, without the concurrence of a person to whom the equity of redemption in the remainder has been conveyed. But this rule does not apply where the sale has been made under a power contained in the mortgage, or where the mortgage is of chattels which the mortgagee has a right to sell without any express power. But it applies to a sale under a decree in an action to which the owner of the unsold portion was no party: Gouland v. Gorbutt, 13 Gr. 578, and see Crawford v. Armour, Ib. 576; Munsen v. Hauss, 22 Gr. 279.

Where the mortgaged lands are out of the jurisdiction, although the Court may grant judgment for foreclosure: Poget v. Edc, L. R. 18 Eq. 118; it will not grant a judgment for sale: Stronge v. Radford, 15 Ont. 145; nor for redemption, even in a case where the right to redeem exists according to our law; nor other decree, even though in personam, respecting foreign lands, which can have no specific operation without the intervention of a foreign Court: Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 23 Ont. 327; 20 Ont. App. 646; 23 S. C. R. 716; Gunn v. Harper, 2 O. L. R. 611; but see MacKay v. The Colonial Investment & L. Co., 38 C. L. J. 723; 4 O. L. R. 571.

In Grey v. Manitoba & N. W. Ry., 31 C. L. J. 324, a judgment for sale of a mortgaged railway, part of which extended beyond the limits of Manitoba, was granted by the Manitoba Court.

Rule 461.

Where judgment for foreclosure, f. s. for sale may be granted.

Where the judgment directs foreclosure, on default in payment a final order may be made in Chambers, directing a sale in lieu of foreclosure, without appealing from the judgment: Laslett v. Cliffe, 2 Sm. & G. 278; Fish v. Carnegie, D. B. 4, fo. 151; D. B. 5 fo. 211; Thompson v. Bodgley, O. B. 25; but usually the sale will not be ordered until after the mortgagor has had the usual time to redeem: Trust and Loan Co. v. Reynolds, 2 Chy. Ch. 41; where the application is made by a defendant he will be required to deposit $80 to meet the expense of the sale, and this deposit will not be dispensed with, although the security be ample: Thompson v. Macaulay, 3 Chy. Ch. 111. But if the plaintiff prefer it, the defendant may be required to conduct the sale in lieu of making the deposit. Formerly the Court would not, after a decree for sale, direct a foreclosure without rehearing the cause: McClelan v. Jacob, 9 Gr. 50; except where the sale had been attempted, and proved abortive: Goodall v. Burrows, 7 Gr. 449; Odell v. Doty, 1 Chy. Ch. 207; Girdlestone v. Gunn, Ib. 212. In such a case, an order for foreclosure is granted in Chambers on motion. The mortgagor was usually allowed three months further time to redeem: Ib.; but the time has been held to be subject to the discretion of the Court in view of all the circumstances of the case: Scarlett v. Birney, 15 P. R. 283. In Goodall v. Burrows, supra; and Heney v. Kerr, 10 C. L. T. 69, only one month was allowed, and perhaps that will now always be the time fixed, by analogy to Rule 489.

But if judgment is for sale f. o. f., not granted unless after abortive sale.

But a plaintiff who has been declared a trustee, with a lien for advances, is not entitled to foreclosure, even after an abortive sale, but may be allowed by the Court to become the purchaser of the land: Hutton v. Justin, 2 O. L. R. 713.

Or security inadequate.

After a judgment for sale, immediate foreclosure was granted, on proof that the lands were not worth the debt, apparently, without giving any further time for redemption: Lloyd's Bank v. Colston, 106 L. T. 420.

Subsequent incumbrancer may obtain order.

After a judgment of foreclosure, an order for sale may be obtained by a subsequent incumbrancer, under Rule 462.

A derivative or sub-mortgagee may foreclose his derivative mortgage without making the original mortgagor, or his assigns, parties: Silverthorn v. Glazbrook, 30 Ont. 408. (N.B.—The head note of this case is incorrect.) A derivative mortgagee takes subject to the equities subsisting between the original mortgagor and mortgagee at the time of the creation of the derivative mortgage: DeLisle v. Union Bank of Scotland, 1914, 1 Ch. 22; 109 L. T. 727.

Defendant desiring sale without defending.

461. Where a defendant by writ in an action for foreclosure desires a sale, but does not otherwise desire to defend the action, he shall, within the time allowed for appearance, file and serve a memorandum, entitled in the action, to the following effect: "I desire a sale of the mortgaged premises instead of foreclosure," and shall pay into Court the sum of $80 to meet the expenses of the sale, and thereupon the judgment shall be entered for sale. C.R. 381.

462. A person made a party in the Master's office and desiring a sale shall make a similar deposit before the Master's report is settled, and obtain an order which may be issued on præcipe directing sale instead of foreclosure, and thereupon all subsequent proceedings shall be had and taken as if the judgment had been in the first instance for sale. C.R. 382.

Rule 462.

Incumbrancer made a party to a foreclosure action in the M. O., may apply for a sale.

The officer out of whose office the writ was issued is the proper officer to issue the præcipe order: Rule 762. For form of order: see H. & L. Forms No. 912.

Tha præcipe should show on whose behalf the application is made, and should also state that the applicant is an incumbrancer, made a party in the Master's office, who has proved a claim; and that the Master's report has not been settled; and should be accompanied by ths certificate of the Accountant of the payment into Court of the requisite deposit of $80.

Præcipe for sale, form of.

If the plaintiff deems the deposit inadequate he may require an adult defendant obtaining the order for sale to conduct the sale: see Rule 464.

Chy. O. 429, from which this Rule is adapted, required the deposit of "a reasonable sum." The usual amount required was $80, hut, on special application before the sale, it was sometimes increased: London & C. L. & A. Co. v. Morrison, 7 P. R. 450; 15 C. L. J. 57. But an application after the sale had taken place to increase the deposit would not he entertained, even though the sale had failed to realize the smount of the plaintiff's claim: London & C. L. & A. Co. v. Pulford, 7 P. R. 432; 15 C. L. J. 55; and probably, even before sale, such an application would not now he entertained: see Cruso v. Close, infra.

By the form of indorsement on the writ in mortgage actions, the amount of the deposit to he made hy a defendant served with the writ, in order to secure a sale, is $80: see Form 4 (b); H. & L. Forms, No. 58. When tha sale is applied for hy an original defendant to the action, an application to increase the amount of the deposit cannot be entertained, even though the costs of the sale will exceed $80: Cruso v. Close, 8 P. R. 33.

Deposit to secure sale in mortgage cases.

The deposit will not he dispensed with, even though the security be ample: Thompson v. Macaulay, 3 Chy. Ch. 111; or the applicant be a trustee: Machell v. Campbell, 5 U. C. L. J. 117; and a defendant cannot claim a sala against the consent of tha mortgagee without making the deposit: Taylor v. Walker, 8 Gr. 506; except in the case of infant defendants, who are entitled to a sale, without the usual deposit: Bank of Upper Canada v. Scott, 6 Gr. 451; Lawroson v. Fitzgerold, 9 Gr. 371; hut see Western Canada Loan & S. Co. v. Dunn, 9 P. R. 587.

Cannot he dispensed with.

Except in case of infant defendant.

Where the sale realizes sufficient to pay the plaintiff's claim, hut not the claims of subsequent incumbrancers, the deposit will be ordered to ha applied on account of the claims of the intter, according to their priorities: Gzowski v. Beaty, 8 P. R. 146. And where the sale proved abortive, except as to one parcel, which did not realize sufficient to pay tha plaintiff's claim, the deposit was applied on account of plaintiff's costs of sale: Corsellis v. Patman, L. R. 4 Eq. 155. Whera the sale realizes sufficient to pay tha claims prior to tha incumbrancer who paid in the deposit to secure a sale. the lattar is entitled to obtain an order to refund it.

Although a mortgagee hy deposit is not entitled to a sale: see Rule 460, note; yet a suhsequent legal mortgagee made a party to the suit by the equitahle mortgagee, is entitled to apply for a sale under this Rule: Kerr v. Beebe, 12 Gr. 204.

463. Where there are infant defendants the official guardian may require the judgment to be for sale without making any deposit. New.

Plaintiff may require defendant asking sale to conduct it.

464.—(1) If the plaintiff prefers that the sale be conducted by any adult defendant desiring the sale, he may so elect; and he shall thereupon notify the defendant of such election and the defendant making the deposit shall be entitled to a return thereof. C.R. 383 and 384.

On filing notice, deposit to be returned to defendant.

(2) In other cases the Master shall deal with the deposit in making his report. New.

Plaintiff may have reserved bid fixed.

Where the defendant claims a sale contrary to the wish of the plaintiff, the latter may protect himself against the mortgaged property being sold for less than his claim by getting a reserved bid fixed, and in tha event of the sale proving abortive, he may obtain a final order for foreclosure: see note to Rule 460.

Before the money can be obtained proof will have to be given to the Accountant of tha dua filing of the notice of election. The production of an offica copy, with a certificata of its heing filed, would seem to be the proper proof

As to the application of the deposit: see notes to Rule 462.

Rules 462, 463 only apply to cases in which it is competent for the Court to pronounca a judgment for aale, they consequently do not apply where, on the record, such relief cannot be granted, e.g., they do not apply even where infanta nre concerned, to an action by a mortgagea for possession merely: Western Con., etc., v. Dunn, 19 C. L. J. 211.

Sale may be ordered instead of foreclosure.

465. The Court may on special application either before or after judgment direct a sale instead of a foreclosure; and without previously determining the priorities of incumbrancers, or giving the usual or any time to redeem. C.R. 379.

Ordinary time for redemption, when shortened.

Some special ground must be shewn in order to deprive the mortgagor of the ordinary six months' time to redeem: Rigney v. Fuller, 4 Gr. 198; Swift v. Minter, 27 Gr. 217; Newman v. Selfe, 33 Beav. 522; and even where nn application for sale was mada in a foreclosure suit, by subsequent incumbrancers, after the time allowed them for redemption had expired, it was held that tha mortgagor was entitled to an opportunity to redeem, before a final order for aale could be made: Trust and Loan Co. v. Reynolds, 2 Chy. Ch. 41.

Rule 466.

Where the writ claims foreclosure, the defendant is entitled to have the judgment drawn up for sale, on paying into Court $80; see Form No. 4 (b); and where a judgment has been entered for foreclosure, a subsequent incumbrancer may also, on being made a party, at any time before the report is settled, on making a like payment, obtain on præcipe an order for sale in lieu of foreclosure: see Rule 462. The $80 is intended as security for the costs of the sale: see notes to Rule 462.

Defendants, when entitled to a sale in foreclosure action.

On the Court being satisfied by evidence that the value of the mortgaged property was not sufficient to pay the amount due to the plaintiff, and that it was for the benefit of infant defendants, an account was dispensed with, and a judgment for immediate foreclosure was granted on the consent of the infant's solicitor: Wolverhampton & Staffordshire Banking Co. v. George, 24 Ch. D. 707; and see Lloyds Bank v. Colston, 106 L. T. 420.

A judgment for an immediate sale, without appointing any day for redemption, can only be granted on motion for judgment; it cannot be awarded on præcipe. The motion may be made in Chambers, where infants are concerned: see Rule 466; Cayley v. Colbert, 2 Chy. Ch. 431; but in other cases the motion must be to the Court. An immediate sale has been granted on the consent of the mortgagor, and without the consent of the subsequent incumbrancers: Township of Hamilton v. Stephenson, 25 Gr. 198; but Blake, V.C., repeatedly refused to make such a decree without the consent of the subsequent incumbrancers, on the ground that the equity of redemption might be worthless, and the mortgagor might have really no interest in the mortgaged property.

Judgment for immediate sale, how awarded.

Where a decree for sale was pronounced in Court, the Referee in Chambers refused to entertain a motion for a final order for sale, before the time for redemption had expired: Buell v. Fisher, 6 P. R. 51.

Where a judgment for sale, or foreclosure, has been pronounced, it is not competent for the mortgagee to abandon the judgment, and proceed to sell under a power of sale in his mortgage: Stevens v. Theatres, 1903, 1 Ch. 857; 88 L. T. 458.

Plaintiff cannot abandon judgment, and exercise power.

466. In a mortgage action where the defendants, or some of the defendants, are infants and default is made by the adult defendants and the official guardian does not desire to set up any defence, the plaintiff, upon filing affidavits showing such facts and circumstances as entitle him to judgment, may move for judgment in Chambers, upon notice to the official guardian. C.R. 595. Amended.

Judgment for redemption, foreclosure or sale, where infants are defendants may be made in Chambers.

This Rule enables judgment to be pronounced in Chambers, as against infants, and adult defendants, who are sui juris, but where any of the adult defendants is a lunatic, or person of unsound mind not so found. It is necessary that the motion for judgment should be made in Court: Warnock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

When anything beyond the ordinary relief is required, as for example an injunction, it would seem that the motion for judgment should be made in Court: see King v. Freeman, 1 Chy. Ch. 350.

Rule 467.

Day to shew cause.

In judgments for foreclosure against infants, a day to shew cause must still be inserted: Mellor v. Porter, 25 Ch. D. 158; Gray v. Bell, 46 L. T. 521; London & C. L. & A. Co. v. Evcritt, 8 P. R. 489; Mair v. Kerr, 2 Gr. 223; and the final ordar must also reserve a day to suew cause. The formal worda usually inserted in Ontario are "and this judgment [or order] is to be binding upon [name of infonts] unless being served with a copy thereof on attaining the age of twenty-ona years. they do, within six months after such service. shew unto this Court good causs to the contrary": sec Seton, 5th ed., 827.

When unnecessary.

No day to shew cause is reserved in judgments for sale; nor in judgmeuts against infant trustees of real estate: Foster v. Parker, 8 Ch. D. 223, and see Wolverhampton, etc. v. George, 24 Ch. D. 707. Thus, in a redemption suit against an infant for redemption of innd conveyed to the infant's ancestor by deed absoiuta in form, it was held that no day to shew cause ahould he reserved in the decree directing a reconveyance: Lake v. McIntosh, 7 Gr. 532.

Where a decree for foreclosure was mads against the ancestor, who died before a final order was obtained, it was unnecessary to reserve a dsy to shew cause in favour of infant heirs of the mortgagor, as to whom the proceadings were revived: Sutherland v. Dickson, 2 Chy. Ch. 25; Younge v. Cocker, 76 L. T. Jour. 247; and infant parties, in such circumstances, could not set up a defsnce, which their ancestor had not set up, unless he had been prevented, by fraud, or mistake, from pleading it: Burke v. Pyne, 2 Chy. Ch. 193; hut now, in such circumstances, the estate of the mortgagor descends to his psrsonal representative: The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119) s. 3.

As to defences opsn to an infant shewing cause: see Seton, 5th ed., 828, 830.

Inquiry whether sale or foreclosure more beneficial for infant, directed as of cou. .

Formarly where infants wera dafendants in an action for foreclosure befora judgment, the Court would direct a reference to the Master, as of course, to inquire whether a sale, or foreclosure, would be the more beneficial for the infants, and direct a sale, or foreclosure, accordingly, or it would determine the question, on ths motion for judgment, if affidavits were produced, or th Guardian ad litem consented to dispense with tha reference on that point: Dudley v. Berczy, 13 Gr. 141; hut see Graham v. Davis, 2 Chy. Ch. 24; and if a sale was directed on the application of infant defendants, no deposit was required from the infants: Bank of Upper Canada v. Scott, 6 Gr. 451; Lawrason v. Fitzgerald, 9 Gr. 371, this practice is now embodied in Rule 463. Whether a personal representative of a deceased mortgagor would be entitled to a sale without a deposit, where infants are beneficially interested in the equity of redemption, has not been thus far determined.

Where the judgment directs an inquiry whether a sale or foreclosure would be more beneficial for infant defendants, if the Master omits to report on thnt point, no final order can be granted: Edwards v. Burling, 2 Chy. Ch. 48.

When judgment may be signed in mortgage action.

467.—(1) Where the writ has been duly indorsed, and the defendant fails to appear, or by his statement of defence admits the execution of the mortgage and other facts entitling the plaintiff to a judgment, or where the defendant disclaims any interest in the mortgaged premises, or where no statement of defence is delivered, or where the defendant disputes the amount of the plaintiff's claim only, the plaintiff may sign judgment. Rule 447.

(2) Where the defendant has disputed the amount of the plaintiff's claim, he shall be entitled to four days' notice of the taking of the account. Where no reference as to incumbrances is desired, such account may be taken by the officer signing judgment; whose finding shall be subject to appeal to a Judge in Chambers in the manner prescribed for appeals from the Master in Chambers. Procedure, when dispute filed.

(3) Where the writ has not been personally served, the claim of the plaintiff shall be duly verified by an affidavit which shall be filed with the officer taking the account. C.R. 596. Amended. Plaintiff's claim to be verified when writ not personally served.

Where a reference as to incumbrances is desired the reference must be to the Master in Ordinary, or Local Master of the County in which the action is pending.

Where the indorsement on the writ claims foreclosure, and the defendant files a notice requiring a sale and a certificate of the deposit of the sum of $80 as required by Rule 461, the judgment must be for sale, together with such other relief, if any, as the plaintiff is entitled to, upon the indorsement.

Where in the defendant's appearance, or otherwise, a notice disputing the amount of the plaintiff's claim only is filed, the defendant filing the same is entitled to four days' notice of the taking of the account. Where no reference as to incumbrances is desired, the account is taken by the officer signing judgment; and where a reference as to incumbrances is desired, then by the Master to whom the action is referred. The finding of the officer taking the account as to the amount due on signing judgment is subject to appeal to a Judge in Chambers in the manner prescribed by Rule 502. If a stay of proceedings until the time for appealing has expired is desired, an application to a Judge would appear to be necessary: see Rule 208 (16). Notice of taking account.

Where a reference as to incumbrances is directed, in a case where a dispute note has been filed, the judgment should direct that the defendant filing such notice shall have four days' notice of the taking of the account.

The Rule applies only to ordinary cases: where any special relief is desired a motion for judgment will be necessary.

A motion for judgment was held to be necessary, where costs of proceeding under the power of sale, and moneys expended for repairs, were claimed: Hannaford v. Neeley, 9 C. L. T. 38; or immediate foreclosure: Gibson v. McCrimmon, 9 C. L. T. 40; but since Hannaford v. Neeley the form of special indorsement has been changed so as to include such claims as were there in question. Motion for judgment, when necessary.

Rule 467.

Cases covered by Rule 467.

It will be seen that this Rule covers five classes of cases.

(a) Where defendant does not appear.

(b) Where the defendant by his defence admits the mortgage and other facts entitling the plaintiff to judgment:

(c) Where the defendant disclaims any interest in the mortgaged premises:

(d) Where no defence is filed:

(e) Or where only a notice disputing the amount claimed is filed.

It is not necessary that all the defendants should be in the same position, in order to entitle the plaintiff to judgment under this Rule, it is sufficient if they all come within one or other of the five classes of cases above mentioned; and the judgment should be against all of the defendants and not against some only: see McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295.

Where the writ is issued from a local office, the judgment should be entered in that local office: Chamberlain v. Armstrong, 9 P. R. 212; and see Rule 762.

Where any of the defendants are infants, or lunatics, or persons of unsound mind not so found, judgment cannot be obtained under this Rule, but in the case of infants it may be obtained on motion in Chambers: see Rule 466, and in the case of lunatics, etc., a motion in Court is necessary: Wornock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

For forms of judgment, see Forms Nos. 101, 102. These forms require modification according to the nature of the relief claimed in the writ. See H. & L. Forms, Nos. 904, 905, 906, 908 and 909.

Indorsement on writ.

Where the writ has not been sufficiently indorsed with a statement of the relief claimed, according to the form prescribed by Rule 460, it would seem that the officer may properly refuse to enter judgment as of course: Pherill v. Forbes, 8 P. R. 408.

In a foreclosure action, where the mortgagee applies for judgment in default of appearance, or defence, not only for foreclosure, but also for a personal order for payment, the indorsement on the writ, or the statement of claim, ought to contain an express statement of the covenant upon which the order is claimed: Law v. Philby, 56 L. T. 230; 35 W. R. 401; and see Form No. 4 (a); H. & L. Forms, Nos. 57, 58.

As to the form of judgment, when immediate payment under the covenant for payment is desired, as well as the usual judgment for foreclosure: see notes to Rule 460, supra, p. 1027.

Praecipe judgment, form of.

Under Chy. O. 435, on which this Rule is mainly founded, it was held that the Registrar was bound to issue on praecipe the decree which the Court would itself make upon a hearing of the cause pro confesso; Kirkpatrick v. Howell, 22 Gr. 94; Buell v. Towns, Ib., 95; but extraordinary relief could not be granted by judgment on praecipe, nor can such a judgment be properly granted under this Rule: thus, an immediate sale, or foreclosure, without appointing a day for redemption, cannot be granted, even though the relief be claimed by the writ or statement of claim: Potey v. Flint, 48 L. J. Chy. 696. To obtain such relief, a motion for judgment in Court under Rule 356 is necessary. On such a motion, however, special grounds for immediate foreclosure or other special relief, must be shewn though the defendant has not appeared, otherwise only the usual judgment will be given: Meredith v. McCabe, 19th January, 1881, Boyd, C., see also North of Scotland, etc., v. Beard, 9 P. R. 546. Rule 487.

Extraordinary relief not granted.

Where no appearance has been entered, the plaintiff can not, unless he serves the statement of claim on the defendant personally, enlarge by it the scope of the claim indorsed on the writ, Rule 109 (2); and on motion for judgment according to the terms of relief claimed in the statement of claim, in default of appearance, the usual foreclosure judgment only should be given, when that is the only relief claimed by the writ, notwithstanding that by the statement of claim additional relief is claimed, if it has not been personally served on the defendant: see Law v. Philby, 56 L. T. 522; 35 W. R. 450; Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160.

Where the defendant is a married woman, and the writ is indorsed with a claim for execution against her separate estate, where the action is founded on a contract made before 13th April, 1897, the indorsement should allege that she had, when she made the contract sued on, and still has, separate estate, and when the writ is properly indorsed judgment may be signed under this Rule: Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149), ss. 4, 5. This allegation is not necessary in the case of contracts made by a married woman since 13th April, 1897: see Ib. s. 5. Married woman defendant.

For form of judgment for payment against a married woman: see Form No. 110; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 923, 924.

Where the plaintiff had obtained an interlocutory injunction, it was held that it could not be continued by a præcipe decree: King v. Freeman, 1 Chy. Ch. 350, the power to issue decrees on præcipe being confined to simple cases, where the ordinary decree for foreclosure, or sale, with order for payment and delivery of possession, was all that was required. Thus, where the defendant answered admitting the mortgage, but denying an alleged agreement to pay an increased rate of interest, and set up a tender, and claimed costs, it was held that a decree could not be granted on præcipe. Nor could a decree issued on præcipe in such a case be amended in Chambers, by inserting a direction to the Master to inquire as to the alleged tender: Ross v. Vader, 3 Chy. Ch. 236. Interlocutory injunction cannot be continued by.

Reference as to Incumbrances.—The plaintiff must determine for himself whether he takes a judgment with a reference to the Master as to incumbrancers. If he takes a reference unnecessarily, he will not be entitled to the costs of it: Hamilton v. Howard, 4 Cr. 581; Purdy v. Parks, 9 P. R. 424. If he omits to take a reference where one is necessary, his proceedings will be defective: see Wilgress v. Crawford, 12 P. R. 658. Reference as to incumbrances.

Varying Præcipe Judgment.—A decree pronounced pro confesso or on præcipe, might be varied, or set aside, on motion in Chambers, without rehearing the cause: see Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 79; Nelles v. Vandyke, 17 Gr. 14; and the same rule applies to judgments on præcipe under this Rule: Trust & Loan Co. v. McCarthy, 19 C. L. J. 188; 3 C. L. T. 266. Varying judgment.

Where a plaintiff had taken judgment without a reference, and after the mortgagor was foreclosed, discovered there was an incumbrancer, on an interlocutory application the judgment was amended by directing the usual reference as to incumbrancers: Wilgress v. Crawford, 12 P. R. 658; and see Lally v. Longhurst, infra, p. 1040.

Statute of Limitations.—It has been decided that a defendant filing a disputing note in a mortgage action may, on the taking of the Statute of Limitations.

Rules 468, 469.

accounts, shew that the Statute of Limitations applies so as to prevent the recovery of more than six years' arrears of interest: Wright v. Morgan, 1 Ont. App. 613, overruling the decision reported, 24 Gr. 457. But the statute must be pleaded if the defendant wishes to set it up as a bar to the action; Cattanach v. Urquhart, 6 P. R. 28, explained, 1 Ont. App. 616; see also notes to Rule 143.

Discovery.

Discovery.—It was held also under the former Chancery practice that a disputing note was not an answer, and therefore Gen. Order 134 (see Rule 348) allowing a defendant after answer to obtain on praecipe an order for production, did not apply: Richardson v. Beaupré, 2 Chy. Ch. 54. It would seem that under the present Rules the filing of a mere dispute note would not disentitle a defendant to examine for discovery: see Rule 336 and notes; and it would seem that he might, under Rule 348, give notice to produce documents.

Master to inquire as to incumbrances.

468. Upon a reference under a judgment for foreclosure or sale or redemption of mortgaged property, the Master shall inquire and state whether any person, and who, other than the plaintiff, has any lien, charge, or incumbrance upon the land and premises embraced in the mortgage security of the plaintiff, subsequent thereto. C.R. 744.

This Rule in its terms applies only to the case of mortgages of lands, but a similar procedure is followed upon a judgment for the sale, or foreclosure of chattels.

Master to inquire as to incumbrancers subsequent to plaintiff.

The inquiry is confined to subsequent incumbrancers; persons against whom relief is sought, who are entitled to the ultimate equity of redemption, or whose claims, if any, are primâ facie prior to the plaintiff's must be made parties to the writ: Glass v. Freckleton, 10 Gr. 470; Lally v. Longhurst, 12 P. R. 510; and see White v. Beasley, 2 Gr. 662; and as to the wife of the mortgagor: see Blong v. Fitzgerald, 15 P. R. 467; and see 30 C. L. J. 113. Where, however, the plaintiff has sought to attack, in the Master's office, the priority of an incumbrancer who is primâ facie entitled to priority over him, he has been allowed to vacate his judgment and to add the incumbrancer as an original defendant to the writ, and proceed de novo as against him: Lally v. Longhurst, supra. Where the mortgagor was the only defendant, and a decree, by consent, for immediate foreclosure was taken against him, a reference as to incumbrances was refused: Taylor v. Ward, 13 Gr. 590; but it seems doubtful whether the rule laid down in that case would be followed under the present practice. Where there are no incumbrancers, the plaintiff should not take a judgment with a reference as to incumbrances: see Rule 519, and notes.

The incumbrancers are ascertained by the production of the certificates mentioned in the following Rule.

Plaintiff to bring into M. O. Sheriff's and Registrar's certificates.

469. The plaintiff shall bring into the Master's Office certificates of the Registrar and Sheriff of the County wherein the property lies, setting forth all the incumbrances which affect the property and such other evidence as may be necessary. C.R. 745.

The certificates should be brought down to, at least, the day subsequent to the issue of the writ in the action. Rule 466.

It is not necessary to add as parties, those who acquire title pendente lite: Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 407; Waldridge v. Martin, 2 Cby. Ch. 275; Bellamy v. Sabine, 1 D. & J. 566, 578, 580, 584; 3 Jur. N. S. 943; Tyler v. Thomas, 25 Beav. 47; an order adding parties who had acquired interests pendente lite was set aside: Abell v. Parr, 9 P. R. 564; but see Lindsay v. Bank of Montreal, 13 Gr. 86. A party acquiring an interest in the subject matter of an action pendente lite, may be added as a defendant on his own application: Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500; 35 S. C. R. 181, but he is bound by the proceedings as they stand, and is not entitled, as of right, to any extension of time to redeem, and must pay the costs of the application: Re Parbola, Blackburn v. Parbola, 1909, 2 Ch. 437; 101 L. T. 382. See further notes to Rule 300, supra, p. 758. Parties acquiring title pendente lite need not be added.

Sheriff's Certificate.—Where the mortgage is of freehold lands, the certificate of the Sheriff must relate to executions against lands, but where the property mortgaged is leasehold, or chattels, it should relate to executions against goods: Sparrow v. Champagne, 5 C. P. 394. The certificates are usually confined to executions against the mortgagor, or other owner of the equity of redemption. But when the practice of registration of judgments was in force, it was held to be necessary to make the judgment creditors of the mortgagee parties also: Sanderson v. Ince, 7 Gr. 383; but in a later case it was held that a creditor of the mortgagee who had obtained an order attaching the mortgage debt, but not an order to pay over, was not an incumbrancer, and ought not to be made a party: Crosbie v. Fenn, 26 Gr. 283. The Sheriff's certificate should be so worded as to include writs which have been withdrawn for renewal, this may be done by making the certificate cover any writs which have been in the Sheriff's hands within thirty days preceding its date: see form of such a certificate. H. & L. Forms, No. 1479. Sheriff's certificate, form of.

The withdrawal of a writ for renewal is not an abandonment of its priority, but on being returned to the Sheriff renewed, it retains the same position it held prior to its withdrawal for renewal: Rowe v. Jarvis, 13 C. P. 495; Muir v. Munroe, 28 U. C. Q. B. 139. The day of the teste of a fi. fa. is inclusive, so that a writ issued on the 15th day of a month expires on the 14th day of the same month in the last year of its currency: Bank of Montreal v. Taylor, 15 C. P. 107. A writ withdrawn for renewal, and not returned for fifteen days thereafter, when a year from the teste had expired, was held, nevertheless, to be redelivered in sufficient time: Menelily v. McKenzie, 3 E. & A. 209; but a writ not returned to the Sheriff until six months after its renewal—owing to mistake—was held to have lost its priority: Re Hime & Ledley, 13 P. R. 1; as to the currency and renewal of writs of fi. fa., see Rule 571. A direction by the execution creditor to the Sheriff to stay proceedings, is tantamount to a withdrawal of the writ, and any subsequent execution then in the Sheriff's hands, or thereafter, and during the stay, coming to his hands, will take priority: Trust & Loan Co. v. Cuthbert, 12 Gr. 412. Under The Creditors' Relief Act, (R. S. O. c. 81), the question of priority between execution creditors is to a large extent done away with: see s. 4. Withdrawal of writ for renewal is not an abandonment. But a direction to the sheriff to stay is

Rule 470.

Registrar's certificate.

Registrar's Certificate.—The Registrar's certificate is usually confined to registrations on the particular parcel of land included in the plaintiff's mortgage. But it is well to bear in mind, that judgments for alimony registered against a defendant, bind all his lands situate within the county, or counties, in which the registration is made, without any local description: see Jud. Act, s. 73, supra, p. 33.

C. C. Clerk's certificate, when necessary.

Where the mortgaged property consists of chattels, the certificate of the Clerk of the proper County Court should be produced, as to subsequent mortgages.

It is to the interest of the plaintiff to take care that all persons, having any claim as subsequent incumbrancers, are made parties; as the omission to make them parties at the proper time, may lead to difficulty in carrying out any subsequent sale which may be had in the action and possibly render another action necessary: see Lally v. Longhurst, in note to Rule 468, p. 1040.

Master is to add parties.

470. The Master shall direct all such persons as appear to have any lien, charge or incumbrance upon the property in question, subsequent to the mortgage in question, to be made parties to the action, and to be served with a notice (Form No. 43). C.R. 746.

For Form No. 43: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1022.

Rights of parties whose claims appear doubtful not to be decided in their absence.

Where it is doubtful whether persons, appearing to have claims, have any valid right, the question should not be determined against them in their absence, but they should be added as parties, and an opportunity given them to maintain their claims: Canada Landed Credit Co. v. McAllister, 21 Gr. 593. Persons whose claims, if any, would be prior to the plaintiff's should be made parties to the writ, if any relief is claimed against them, and not added in the Master's office: Gloss v. Freckleton, 10 Gr. 470; Lolly v. Longhurst, 12 P. R. 510; and see Rule 488. Persons having mechanics' liens subsequent to the plaintiff should be added under this Rule, and not made parties by the writ: Jackson v. Hommond, 8 P. R. 157. Under the former Mechanics' Lien Act an execution creditor whose writ was placed in the Sheriff's hands subsequent to the registration of a mechanic's lien, but prior to the institution of an action to enforce it, was a subsequent incumbrancer, and might be made a party to the action to enforce the lien, in the Master's office notwithstanding the 90 days limited by R. S. O. 1887, c. 126, s. 23, had expired: Cole v. Hall, 12 P. R. 584, affirmed by C. A., 18 P. R. 100; but under the present Mechanics' Lien Act (R. S. O. c. 140), it would seem that such an execution creditor should be made an original party. A creditor of a mortgagee who has obtained an attaching order against the mortgage debt, but who has not obtained an order to pay over, is not an incumbrancer within the meaning of the Rule: Crosbie v. Fenn, 26 Gr. 283; neither is a simple contract creditor of the mortgagor, nor has he any right of redemption: Nichol v. Allenby, 17 Ont. 275; and where a tenant in common mortgages his share, his co-tenants have no equity to redeem that share: Ib.

Mechanics' liens.

Attaching creditor of mortgagee.

Deceased mortgagee, representatives to be added.

Where a subsequent mortgagee is dead his real representatives should not be made parties, it is only necessary to add his personal representatives: Whitla v. Holliday, 4 D. & W. 267; Taylor v. Stead 1 Chy. Ch. 74; Grimshowe v. Parks, 6 U. C. L. J. 142; Lawrence v.

Humphries, 11 Gr. 209; The Mortgages Act (R. S. O. c. 112), s. 10; Dilk v. Douglas, 26 Gr. 99; Robinson v. Byers, 9 Or. 572; and see The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), ss. 3, 4. And where a mortgage is taken in the name of one partner to secure a partnership debt, it is not necessary to add the real, or personal, representatives of a deceased partner in an action by the surviving partner to enforce the security: Stephens v. Simpson, 12 Gr. 493. Rule 471.

To an action for sale, or foreclosure, by a mortgagee of a limited company, whose mortgage covers specific property, debenture holders, secured by a subsequent mortgage constituting a floating security on all the property and undertaking of the company, are proper parties and even though their debentures are not due, they should be added under Rule 470; Wallace v. Evershed, 1899, 1 Ch. 891; 80 L. T. 523.

Subsequent incumbrancers should not be made defendants by writ, even in an action to enforce an annuity: Nelson v. Cochrane, 13 P. R. 76.

Where a person is entitled to rights in two different capacities, if he be made a party to an action distinctly as regards his right in one capacity, he may not be bound as to his rights in the other capacity; e.g., a person made a defendant as a judgment creditor, was held not to be bound in his character of mortgagee: Crooks v. Watkins, 8 Gr. 340. Person filling two capacities should be added in both or may not be bound.

Where an execution creditor is made a party in the Master's office as a subsequent incumbrancer, service of the notice (Form 43) upon his solicitor in the action in which the execution was recovered is sufficient: see Rule 202. Where it is brought to the notice of the Master that there are parties having subsequent unregistered claims against the lands, they should be made parties in his office: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Forbes, 10 P. R. 442.

A mortgagor's tenant for years is entitled to redeem, if the mortgagee refuse to concur in the lease: Tarn v. Turner, 39 Ch. D. 456; 58 L. T. 558; and should be added as a party; and see Anderson v. Stevenson, 15 Ont. 563; but the tenant is not a subsequent incumbrancer, and cannot be added in the Master's office as such: McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295; but see Rule 490.

Persons added as parties under this Rule become parties from the date of the notice (Form No. 43), not merely from the date of its service: Sterling v. Compbell, 1 Chy. Ch. 147.

471. Any party served with such notice may apply at any time within 10 days from the date of the service, to discharge, add to, vary, or set aside the judgment, or the order making him a party. C.R. 747. Parties added may move against order.

Where a party added by the Master, claims to be prior to the plaintiff, he should move to discharge the Master's order: McDougall v. Lindsay Paper Mills Co., 10 P. R. 247; 20 C. L. J. 133.

In Montgomery v. Shortis, 3 Chy. Ch. 69, the motion to discharge an order adding a party, appears to have been entertained in Chambers; and in McDonald v. Rodger, 9 Gr. 75, the question was raised on an appeal from the Master's report; and in Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 161, an application was made to the Master himself, to discharge Motion to discharge order adding parties in M. O., how made.

Rule 472.

his order adding a party under Rule 404, on grounds disclosed subsequent to the making of the order.

Motion to vary judgment must be made to the Court.

Where the party added, desires to move to vary, or set aside the judgment, the motion must be made to the Court at its weekly sittings, and the motion must be returnable within fourteen days from service of the notice on the party moving: Miller v. Brown, before Proudfoot, V.C., 23rd November, 1880; Wright v. Wright, before Blake V.C., 29th March, 1881; and see McIlroy v. Howke, 3 Chy. Ch. 66; Harris v. Meyers, 16 Gr. 117; Jackson v. Gardiner, 2 Chy. Ch. 385.

Leave to move when necessary.

Where the fourteen days is suffered to elapse, before the motion is made returnable to discharge the order, or to vary, or set aside, the judgment, the party added must first obtain leave to move, before he can move to very, or set aside, the judgment, or set aside the order adding him as a party: Roe v. Stanton, 15 Gr. 137; McIlroy v. Hawke, 3 Chy. Ch. 66. This leave, in a proper case, may be obtained on motion in Chambers, but where the applicant failed to show a primâ facie case, leave was refused: Box v. Bridgman, 6 P. R. 234.

A subsequent incumbrancer is not entitled to have the judgment varied so as to require the plaintiff to bring before the Court parties for the purposes of effectuating relief to which the incumbrancer is entitled; his remedy is to redeem, and then to proceed on his own account to obtain such relief: Rutherford v. Rutherford, 17 P. R. 22[illegible].

Incumbrancers to be served with appointment.

472. The Master before he proceeds to hear and determine shall require an appointment (Form No. 44) to be served upon all persons made parties before the judgment appearing to have any lien, charge or incumbrance upon the lands in question, subject to the plaintiff's mortgage, and shall in the notice to the defendant by writ, required by Rule 403, state the names and nature of the claims of those so notified, and of those added under the provisions of Rule 470 as appearing to have a lien, charge or incumbrance upon the said lands, and such notice may be in the Form 45. C.R. 748 and 1306.

For Form No. 44: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1023.

Defendant who has not appeared entitled to notice of proceedings in M.O.

Under the former practice in Chancery, it was held that notwithstanding a bill might have been taken pro confesso against a defendant he was, nevertheless, entitled under certain circumstances, to notice of proceedings in the Master's office: Robinson v. Whitcomb, 20 Gr. 415; McCormick v. McCormick, 6 P. R. 208; Buchanon v. Tiffany, 1 Gr. 98; Walsh v. Bourke, Ib. 105; Hawkins v. Jarvis, Ib. 257; 1 E. & A. 246; Strachon v. Murney, 6 Gr. 284; but see Perrin v. Davies, 3 Gr. 161. In mortgage cases it was customary to notify not only subsequent incumbrancers who were parties to the bill, as required by this Rule, but also the mortgagor, whenever the plaintiff proved any other claim in addition to that alleged in his bill, or where subsequent incumbrancers were added, even though the bill had been taken pro confesso: see McCormick v. McCormick, supra; but see Baby v.

Woodbridge, 5 U. C. L. J. 67. But a defendant cannnt, in tha Master's nffice, rely nn any dofence which, if sustained, would have tha effect of determining that iha Cnurt had made a nugatory order or judgment: McDougall v. Lindsay Paper Mills Co., 10 P. R. 247; Wilby v. Ledyard, Ib. 182. Rule 473.

Under the present practice thore is nnw an equivalent proceeding to the formar proceedings pro confesso; see Rules 35, 121, 354, 356; Rule 35 expressly provides that defendants who do not appear "except where otherwise provided or ntherwise ordered, shall not be entitled to notice of any subsequent proceedings in tha action." This Rule contains such a provisinn for notice to such defendants. Under Rule 200 non-appearing defendants may be served by postin[illegible] the document required to be served "in the office where the proceedings are being conducted," unless the Court sees fit to order otherwise.

Parties not attending, may be foreclosed.

473. When a person who has been duly served with a notice under Rule 470 or with an appointment under Rule 472 neglects to attend at the time appointed, the Master shall treat such non-attendance as a disclaimer by the person so making the default; and any claim of such person shall be thereby foreclosed, unless otherwise ordered upon application duly made for that purpose. C.R. 749.

Application to incumbrancer to be let in to prove after foreclosure.

Notwithstanding that a subsequent incumbrancer has been foreclosed under this Rule, he may in some cases nhtain leave to prove his claim. Applications for leave to be let in after tho time has expired must be obtained from tho Master, if no report has been made, and where the report has issued, then upon motion in Chambers. After a Master has made his* general report, he is thon functus officio, and there would therefore he no jurisdiction in the Master in Ordinary to entertain such an application undor Rule 433; hut a Local Master having a general juriediction in Chambers under Rule 209 would appear to he entitled to entertain such an application. In Becher v. Webb, 7 P. R. 445, relief was given on tha terms of postponing the applicant tn e subsequont incumbrancer, who had duly proved his claim: and see Catell v. Simons, 8 Beav. 243; Hull v. Falconer, 11 Jur. N. S. 151; Cameron v. Wolfe Island Ry. Co., 6 P. R. 91; hut in Ross v. Stevenson, 7 P. R. 126; Sterling v. Compbell, 1 Chy. Ch. 147, relief was granted, without postponing the applicant.

Terms on which motion granted.

Where an incumbrancer had proved his claim on one mortgage, he was afterwards let in after report, on payment of coets, to prove a claim on another mortgage with e view to coneolidating them: Ross v. Stevenson, supro.

Where a person added as a eubsequent incumbrancer, appeara and disclaime, he ie nnt entitled to costs: Hott v. Park, 6 Gr. 553; Lewin v. Jones, 51 L. T. 59.

Incumbrancer disclaiming, costs.

---

*In The Queen City Refining Co., before the Master in Ordinary, 7th May, 1885, the learned master wae of opinion thst he was not functus until hie report was filed.

Rule 474.

Master to take accounts of plaintiff and incumbrancers.

474. When all parties have been duly served, the Master shall take an account of what is due the plaintiff, and to the other incumbrancers (if any), for principal money and interest, and tax their costs, and settle their priorities, and appoint a time and place, or times and places, for payment according to the practice of the Court. C.R. 750.

Proof of service of notice.

Proof of Service.—It is the duty of the Master, before proceeding to take the accounts, to require due proof to be adduced of service of the necessary proceedings on all parties not attending before him who are entitled to notice. All subsequent incumbrancers are entitled to attend the taking of the account, and it would seem also necessary that the defendants named in the writ should also be notified, even though they have not appeared: see note to Rule 472.

Taking accounts, prima facie proof, what is.

Taking Account.—The production of the mortgage and affidavit of the incumbrancer proving his claim is primâ facie sufficient proof of the claim, and under Rule 475 the affidavit of an assignee is primâ facie sufficient: Court v. Holland, 8 P. R. 213; Elliott v. Hunter, 24 Gr. 430; Pollock v. Perry, 5 Gr. 591; Hancock v. Maulson, 10 Gr. 483; Warren v. Taylor, 9 Gr. 59; he need not go into evidence to prove that the amount is unpaid: Markle v. Ross, 13 P. R. 135; where the bill was pro confesso, the mortgagee was bound to state the amount actually advanced: Sterling v. Riley, 9 Gr. 343; and in every case it is competent for the parties, if the mortgage has not been made for the purpose apparent on the face of it, to shew in the Master's office, the real purpose for which it was executed: Ib.; Penn v. Lockwood, 1 Gr. 547; Brownlee v. Cunningham, 13 Gr. 586; Morrison v. Robinson, 19 Gr. 480; or for which it is held as security: Inglis v. Gilchrist, 10 Gr. 301; McIntyre v. Thompson, 6 Ont. 710; 19 C. L. J. 393. But to reduce the amount below the amount apparently secured, the evidence must be clear: Fraser v. Locie, 10 Gr. 207. If the opposite party desires to cross-examine the plaintiff on his affidavit he must do so before the Master before whom the reference is pending, and it would be irregular, without first obtaining the Master's direction to do so, to take out an appointment before a special examiner to take such cross-examination: Plenderleith v. Parsons, 10 O. L. R. 436.

Affidavit of claimant.

Where the claim is brought in, in the name of the Accountant of the Court, his certificate of the amount appearing due by his books, and that he has not been in possession, is sufficient primâ facie evidence of his claim: Holmested v. Vanderbogart, 19 C. L. J. 97; this was a decision of the Chancellor and Proudfoot, J., on the matter being submitted to them.

Where only part of mortgage money advanced.

Where a mortgagor had received only a part of the mortgage money, but gave a receipt for the full amount, and the mortgagee thereupon, and before any payment had fallen due under the mortgage assigned it to a third person who took it bonâ fide without notice that the full amount had not been advanced, it was held that the mortgagor could not, as against the assignee, dispute that the mortgage was security for the amount it purported to secure, and for which he had given the receipt: Bickerton v. Walker, 31 Ch. D. 151; 53 L. T. 731. But the usual rule is that an assignee of a mortgage takes it subject to the actual state of account between the mortgagee and mortgagor, and cannot, even when the mortgage contains a formal receipt for the whole amount purported to be secured thereby, recover more than has been actually advanced: Manley v. London Loan Co., 23 Ont. App. 139; 26 S. C. R. 443. But a receipt for the mortgage money does not estop the mortgagor as against an assignee, who has notice that the mortgagee is the solicitor of the mortgagor, and takes his assignment without inquiry as to the state of accounts between them: Powell v. Browne, 97 L. T. 854. Rule 474.

An assignee, moreover, is not entitled to enforce a covenant which his assignor could not have enforced, thus, where a trustee by mistake executed a mortgage containing a covenant for payment personally of the mortgage debt, there being no consideration therefor, it was held that the assignee, though a purchaser for value without notice, could not enforce it: Patterson v. McLean, 21 Ont. 221. Right of assignee not greater than that of assignor.

Collateral advantages stipulated for by a mortgagee over and above his principal and interest, e.g., a bonus, cannot be recovered: James v. Kerr, 40 Ch. D. 449; 60 L. T. 212; Bradley v. Carritt, 1903, A. C. 253; 88 L. T. 633; overruling Santley v. Wilde, 1899, 2 Ch. 474; 80 L. T. 154; 81 L. T. 393; see Rice v. Noakes, 1900, 1 Ch. 213; 2 Ch. 445; 1902, A. C. 24; 81 L. T. 482; 86 L. T. 62; nor costs not connected with the loan transaction: Field v. Hopkins, 62 L. T. 102; but in Potter v. Edwards, 26 L. J. Ch. 468, (where the security was unsatisfactory, and the mortgage was for £1,000, of which only £700 was actually advanced); the mortgagee was held entitled to hold the security for £1,000, it being proved that the £300 was agreed to be paid for the risk and hazard, and this case was approved by Lord Parker in the Kreglinger Case, infra: such stipulations are regarded as a clog on redemption: see Morgan v. Jeffries, 1910, 1 Ch. 620; British S. A. Co. v. DeBeers, 1910, 1 Ch. 354; 2 Ch. 502; 102 L. T. 95; 103 L. T. 4. This case was ultimately reversed in the House of Lords, 1912, A. C. 52; 105 L. T. 683, on the ground that the agreement in question was a separate transaction, and the mortgage was in fact subject to it. A mortgage of a lease which is framed so as to purport to make it redeemable only when the lease is about to expire, may, in certain circumstances be regarded as imposing a clog on redemption, which would make the proviso void: Fairclough v. Swan Brewery Co., 1912, A. C. 565; 106 L. T. 931. Collateral advantages stipulated for by mortgagee

Where a mortgagee stipulates for a life insurance as collateral security for the loan, and for the premiums being paid by, or charged against, the mortgagor, the representatives of the mortgagor are entitled to have the insurance applied to the payment of the debt, and are entitled to any surplus, notwithstanding any stipulation in the mortgage to the contrary: Salt v. Northampton, 1892, A. C. 1; 76 L. T. 765. A stipulation that the mortgagor should buy goods from the mortgagee exclusively was upheld: Biggs v. Hoddinott, 1898, 2 Ch. 307; 79 L. T. 201; but such a stipulation is only enforceable during the currency of the mortgage: see Rice v. Noakes, supra; but a stipulation that the mortgagor would sell his goods to the mortgagees exclusively at the market price for a period of five years, was held to be enforceable after redemption, as being a collateral agreement independent of the mortgage: Kreglinger v. New Patagonia Meat & C. S. Co., 1914, A. C. 25; 109 L. T. 802; and it was laid down in that case that collateral agreements between mortgagor and mortgagee may be valid provided (1) that they are not unfair or unreasonable, or (2) in the nature of a penalty clogging redemption, or (3) inconsistent with, or repugnant to, the contractual and equitable right to redeem.

An option to the mortgagee to purchase the mortgaged property given at the time the mortgage was made, was held to be a clog on the equity of redemption which could not be enforced: Jarrah Timber Co. v. Samuel, 1902, 2 Ch. 479; 87 L. T. 44; 88 L. T. 196.

But a subsequent agreement giving the mortgagee a collateral advantage may be valid: Lisle v. Reeve, 1902, 1 Ch. 53; 1902, A. C. 461 85 L. T. 464; 87 L. T. 308.

Account by mortgagee.

Where the secretary of a building society had given the society a mortgage to secure a loan payable by instalments "and other moneys becoming due from the mortgagor to the society," it was held that the mortgagees could not hold the mortgage as security for moneys embezzled from them by the mortgagor after he had assigned the equity of redemption, as against the assignee: Bailes v. Sunderland Eq. Industrial Society, 55 L. T. 808.

A mortgagee in possession by an agent may be compelled to give a detailed account of the receipts by the agent; an account merely of the lump sums received from the agent is insufficient: Noyes v. Pollock, 30 Ch. D. 336; 53 L. T. 430.

A derivative mortgagee is bound to account to his mortgagor for all profits made by him: thus, where a derivative mortgagee, by representing himself to be the mortgagee, obtained an assignment of the equity of redemption, which he subsequently resold at a profit, he was held bound to account for the profit so made: Wilkins v. McLean, 10 Ont. 58; 13 Ont. App. 467; 14 S. C. R. 22.

Where a mortgagee had sold under his power of sale, but, owing to a defect in the advertisement, had been compelled to allow the purchaser compensation, it was held that he was chargeable, as against the mortgagor, with any loss occasioned by the misdescription: Tomlin v. Luce, 41 Ch. D. 573, in appeal, 43 Ch. D. 191.

Where the mortgage provided that the total amount to be recovered by the mortgagee "under these presents" should not exceed £900 payments made by the mortgagee for rent, and insurance, while in possession, were held to be recoverable, though the aggregate amount of the claim exceeded £900: White v. City of London Brewery Co., 42 Ch. D. 237; but where an incumbrancer proved a claim on a bond in a penal sum of £1,000, conditioned for the payment of £500, it was held that he could not, as against a subsequent incumbrancer, recover any large sum against the land than the amount of the penalty, and the decree made in 1853 was amended in 1891 by limiting the principal and interest recoverable thereunder to the amount of the penalty: Hatton v. Harris, 1892, A. C. 547; 67 L. T. 722.

Stated account may be relied on in M. O., when.

The plaintiff, or defendant, may rely, in the Master's office, on a stated account set up in the pleadings, although no evidence was given of it at the trial: Edinburgh Life Assurance Co. v. Allen, 23 Gr. 238; and see Inglis v. Gilchrist, 10 Gr. 301; Neil v. Neil, 15 Gr. 110; Holgate v. Shutt, 28 Ch. D. 111.

The Master, in taking the account under the usual judgment in a mortgage action for sale or foreclosure, cannot go into any question affecting the validity of the plaintiff's security: McDougall v. Lindsay

Paper Mills Co., 10 Pr. R. 247; 20 C. L. J. 133, 253; Wiley v. Ledyard, 10 P. R. 182; Bickford v. Grand Junction Ry. Co., 1 S. C. R. 696, and see Re Munsie, 10 P. R. 98; 20 C. L. J. 112; but a subsequent incumbrancer is not bound by an agreement made after the date of such incumbrancer's charge, between the plaintiff and the mortgagor, as to the amount due to plaintiff, and may dispute it without moving against the judgment: Rutherford v. Rutherford, 17 P. R. 228. Rule 474.

As to the proper method of taking the account, where the mortgagor has sold the equity of redemption in part of the mortgaged lands, and has agreed to indemnify the grantee against the mortgage: see Perkins v. Vanderlip, 11 Gr. 488. Taking account when equity of redemption divided.

Costs.—As to costs taxable to a mortgagee on a reference: see Plenderleith v. Parsons, 15 O. L. R. 397.

Consolidation of Mortgages.—Subject, inter alia, to the exceptions hereafter mentioned, a mortgagee has a right, in actions for redemption, or foreclosure, to consolidate all mortgages held by him, and made by the same mortgagor, so as to prevent the mortgagor, or subsequent incumbrancers, from redeeming one or more without redeeming all: Watts v. Symes, 1 D. M. & G. 240; Selby v. Pomfret, 1 J. & H. 336; 3 De G. F. & J. 595; Johnston v. Reid, 29 Gr. 296; even though they were originally made by the same mortgagor in favour of different mortgagees: Pledge v. Carr, 1895, 1 Ch. 51; S. C., Sub nom. Pledge v. White, 1896, A. C. 187; 74 L. T. 323, and though the securities are of different natures, or the mortgagee is a legal mortgagee in one security, and a derivative mortgagee in another: Silverthorn v. Glazebrook, 30 Ont. 408; but where the mortgages were made by different mortgagors, the subsequent acquisition of the equity of redemption by one person, does not entitle the mortgagee to consolidate the mortgages: Sharp v. Rickards, 1909, 1 Ch. 109; 99 L. T. 916. Consolidation of mortgages.

A subsequent incumbrancer added in the Master's office has the same right: Merritt v. Stephenson, 7 Gr. 22: Ross v. Stevenson, 7 P. R. 126. But the right to consolidate cannot be enforced against a subsequent registered purchaser, or incumbrancer, without actual notice: Brower v. Canada Permanent Building Society, 24 Gr. 509; Johnston v. Reid, 29 Gr. 296; Smith v. Smith, 18 Ont. 205; Miller v. Brown, 3 Ont. 210. Nor can it be enforced, where, prior to the creation of the second mortgage, the mortgagor had assigned, or mortgaged, his equity of redemption in the first mortgage, as against such assignee, or mortgagee: Jennings v. Jordan, 6 App. Cas. 698; 45 L. T. 593; Harter v. Coleman, 19 Ch. D. 630; 46 L. T. 154; and see Baker v. Gray, 1 Ch. D. 491; nor where, though the second mortgage was created before the assignment of the equity of redemption, it does not become united in the same hand with the first until after the assignment of the equity of redemption in the first mortgage: Minter v. Carr, 1894, 2 Ch. 321; 71 L. T. 526; nor where one of the mortgaged estates has ceased to exist, e.g., where it was a leasehold, or life estate: Re Raggett, ex parte Williams, 44 L. T. 4; 50 L. J. Chy. 187; nor can a mortgage of realty be consolidated with a mortgage of chattels, so as to throw the debt secured by the realty on the chattels: Chesworth v. Hunt, 5 C. P. D. 266; 42 L. T. 774; 49 L. J. C. P. 507; nor can it be allowed in favour of the plaintiff in an action for foreclosure, where one of the mortgages is not in default: Cummins v. Fletcher, 42 L. T. 859; 49 L. J. Chy. 117, 563; The Scottish-American I. Co. v. Tennant,

Rule 471.

19 Ont. 263. Nor can a mortgago heid hy n sole mortgagee be consolidated with one held hy him jointly with a third person: Riley v. Holl, 79 L. T. 244. The right to consolidate, except by express agreement, is now abolished in England hy the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41) s. 17.

Even where there is an express agreement for consolidation it is held not to apply to mortgages taken after the mortgagor had assigned his equity of redemption in the property covered by the principal mortgage: Hughes v. Britannia Permanent, B. B. Society, 1906, 2 Ch. 607; 95 L. T. 327.

Consolidation is only allowed as a condition of granting the owner of the equity of redemption equitable relief, on the principle that "he who seeks equity must do equity," but it cannot be imposed as a condition of granting him relief in respect of a legal claim on his part: Re Union Assce. Co., 23 Ont. 627, per Ferguson, J.

As to whether a mortgagee is entitled to consolidate mortgages as against a surety: see Nicholas v. Ridley, 1904, 1 Ch. 192.

Where the right to consolidate mortgages on different properties has once arisen, it cannot he defeated hy any subsequent transfer of the equity of redemption in the different properties to other parties and the right to consolidate arises, notwithstanding that the mortgages which it is sought to consolidate, were not united in title with the mortgage sought to be redeemed, until after the assignment of the equity of redemption in the intter mortgage to the person seeking to redeem: Pledge v. Carr, 1895, 1 Ch. 51; 71 L. T. 598; S. C., sub nom., Pledge v. White, 1896, A. C. 187; 74 L. T. 323.

Mortgagee may be estopped from consolidating

Where an intending purchaser of the equity of redemption inquires of the mortgagee the amount due on a prior mortgage, and also states the purpose for which the inquiry is made, and the mortgagee neglects to notify him of the claim to consolidate the security with another, the mortgagee is deprived of the right of consolidation as against such person: Dominion Savings & Investment Company v. Kittridge, 23 Gr. 631. So also, the assignee of two mortgages cannot consolidate them, if his assignor was precluded from so doing: Bird v. Wenn, 33 Ch. D. 215.

See further as to the consolidation of mortgages, 101 L. T. 200.

Tacking — what claims may be tacked to mortgage debt

Tacking.—Tacking a subsequent to a prior incumbrance, so as to cut out an intervening registered incumbrance, can no longer be done so as to defeat the provisions of The Registry Act: (R. S. O. c. 124), ss. 72, 73; and to this extent tacking is abolished, but there are still some instances in which claims, not secured by the mortgage, may be tacked thereto as a condition of redemption.

The mortgagee cannot tack to his mortgage debt a simple contract debt due from the mortgagor: Ferguson v. Frontenac, 21 Gr. 188; Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Forbes, 10 P. R. 442; but he may as against his representatives, in case of his death; and he may tack all prior charges or incumbrances paid off by him: Trust & Loan Co. v. Cuthbert, 14 Gr. 410; Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85; Wells v. The Trust & Loan Co., 9 Ont. 270; 20 C. L. J. 407; and he is entitled to claim as against subsequent incumbrancers, or the mortgagor, the full amount due thereon, no matter how advantageous the terms on which he may have acquired them: Watkins v. McKellar, 7 Gr. 586; Dobson v. Land, 8 Hn. 216. Rule 474.

The mortgagee is also entitled to tack to his mortgage debt any costs occasioned by part of the mortgaged estate being expropriated under any statute: Rees v. The Metropoliton Board of Works, 14 Ch. D. 372; 42 L. T. 685; 49 L. J. Ch. 620; and also any costs incurred in protecting, or endeavouring to realize, his security: Wilkes v. Saunion, 7 Ch. D. 188; and see Rule 410, note pp. 951 et seq.; and the costs of an abortive sale: Forrer v. Lacey, 31 Ch. D. 42; 50 L. T. 121; but not the costs of unsuccesaful proceedinga undertaken without the concurrence of the mortgagor: Wells v. The Trust & Loan Co., supra, p. 1050; nor costs of proceedings for sale which he has taken, but abandoned: Middleton v. Scott, 3 O. L. R. 26. Tacking costs.

Merger.—Where an incumbrancer obtains a release of the equity of redemption, a question whether his incumbrance is merged arises. This is a question of intention, and where it is obviously not for his benefit, the Court will not presume any such intention: Hart v. McQueston, 22 Gr. 133; North of Scotland Mortgage Company v. German, 31 C. P. 349; Elliot v. Jayne, 11 Gr. 412; Weaver v. Vandusen, 27 Gr. 477; Macdonald v. Bullivant, 10 Ont. App. 582; and see Adams v. Angell, 5 Ch. 634; Bell v. Sunderland Building Society, 24 Ch. D. 618; 49 L. T. 555; Re Pride, Schockell v. Colnett, 1891, 2 Ch. 135; 64 L. T. 768; Thorne v. Cann, 1895, A. C. 11; Liquidation Estates Co. v. Willoughby, 1896, 1 Ch. 726; 74 L. T. 228; 1898, A. C. 321; 78 L. T. 329; Whiteley v. Delaney, 1914, A. C. 132; 110 L. T. 434. Merger, a question of intention.

Where a third person advanced money to pay off an equitable mortgage, on the understanding that he was to get a legal mortgage from the mortgagor to secure the advance, which, after payment, the mortgagor refused to execute, it was held that the lender was entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee who had been paid off: Butler v. Rice, 1910, 2 Ch. 277; 103 L. T. 94; Whiteley v. Delaney, supra.

Improvements.—Where a sale of the mortgaged property under execution is set aside the vendee is entitled to improvements: Shaw v. Tims, 19 Gr. 496; and also when a sale is made by the mortgagee who claims to be the absolute owner, as purchaser at a sale under the power which proves invalid: McLaren v. Fraser, 17 Gr. 567; Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173. The expense of erecting a carding mill was disallowed: Kerby v. Kerby, 5 Gr. 587. Expenses of planting, and tending fruit, and ornamental trees, suitable for carrying out improvements commenced by the mortgagor were allowed, but not their value at the time of redemption; Paul v. Johnson, 12 Gr. 474. Where the mortgagee is charged with rents arising from improvements made by him, he should be allowed the expenses of such improvements to a corresponding amount: Constable v. Guest, 6 Gr. 510; and see further as to allowances to mortgagees in possession, notes to Rule 410, supra, pp. 949 et seq. Improvements—What allowed mortgagee in possession.

Interest.—Interest on moneys secured by mortgages made after 1st July, 1880, is subject to the provisions of R. S. C. c. 120, ss. 6-11. Interest, arrears of, how far recoverable against mortgaged land.

Interest begins to run only from the time the money is actually advanced: Edmonds v. Hamilton P. & L. Soc., 19 Ont. 677; 18 Ont. App. 347.

Rule 474.

The general rule is that a mortgagee suing for sale, or foreclosure cannot recover arrears of interest for more than six years prior to the commencement of the action: see The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 18; and the same rule applies in an action by a subsequent mortgagee for redemption: McMicking v. Gibbons, 24 Ont. App. 586, overruling on that point Delaney v. Can. Pac. Ry., 21 Ont. R. See also Colquhoun v. Murray, 26 Ont. App. 204.

Where the action is either for foreclosure or redemption, and is between the mortgagee and the mortgagor, or the representative of a deceased mortgagor, who has covenanted for payment, and no subsequent incumbrancer intervenes, the mortgagee may tack all the interest recoverable on the covenant: Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173; Howeren v. Bradburn, 22 Gr. 96; Macdonald v. Macdonald, 11 Ont. 157; see however McMicking v. Gibbons, supra; but where there is no covenant, even in such a case, no more than six years' arrears can be recovered: Taylor v. Hargrave, 19 Gr. 271; and see Airey v. Mitchell, 21 Gr. 510; Howeren v. Bradburn, 22 Gr. 96; Weaver v. Vandusen, 27 Gr. at p. 481; Barnes v. Glenton, 1898, 2 Q. B. 223; 1899, 1 Q. B. 885; 80 L. T. 606 (under the English Act, the language is different, not being, like The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 24, confined to actions to recover "out of any land"); see also Dingle v. Coppin, 1898, 79 L. T. 693; 1899, 1 Ch. 726; but the limitation of six years arrears of interest has no application where the mortgaged property is personal estate: Mellersh v. Brown, 45 Ch. D. 225; 63 L. T. 189; unless it is included in the same mortgage with realty, so as to form one security: Charter v. Watson, 1899, 1 Ch. 175; 79 L. T. 440. See also London & Midland Bank v. Mitchell, 1899, 2 Ch. 161; nor does it apply as against a subsequent mortgagee, as regards interest accruing due to him while a prior mortgagee is in possession: see The Statute of Limitations, s. 19.

When a mortgagee sells under a power of sale he may retain out of the proceeds, the arrears of interest though they exceed six years: Edmunds v. Waugh, L. R. 1 Eq. 418; Ford v. Allen, 15 Gr. 565; In re Marshfield, Marshfield v. Hutchings, 34 Ch. D. 721; 56 L. T. 694. See also Dingle v. Coppin, supra.

Interest is not ordinarily allowed on the costs of the action, but it may be allowed on costs which have been expressly ordered to be added to the plaintiff's security, from the date of taxation: Eardley v. Knight, 41 Ch. D. 537.

Where a mortgagee in possession is charged with rents and profits he should also be allowed interest on his mortgage debt: Patterson v. Dart, 24 O. L. R. 609.

Rate of interest recoverable

Rate of Interest.—Since the repeal of the usury laws, the Court will not refuse to enforce any contract, which parties competent to contract, may make for the payment of interest, provided it is understood: Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85; R. S. C. c. 120, s. 2.

But this is subject to the provisions of The Ontario Money Lenders Act (R. S. O. c. 175), which entitles the Court to refuse to enforce "harsh and unconscionable" transactions: see s. 4.

Stipulation for increased rate on default may be enforced.

Where a mortgage stipulated that up to a certain day the interest to be charged should be eight per cent., and if the principal were not then paid twelve per cent., it was held that the mortgagee was entitled to recover the twelve per cent. on default: Waldell v. McColl

14 Gr. 211; but as to mortgages made subsequent to 20th April, 1907; see The Mortgage Act (R. S. O. c. 112), s. 16. Rule 474.

Where a mortgage is made payable without interest, or no interest is reserved, interest may nevertheless be recovered at the legal rate from the time of default: McDonell v. West, 14 Gr. 492; Reid v. Wilson, 9 P. R. 165; 18 C. L. J. 58. Compound interest may now, subject to the provisions of R. S. C. c. 120, ss. 6-8, and The Ontario Money Lenders Act (R. S. O. c. 175), be stipulated for, and recovered: Clarkson v. Henderson, 14 Ch. D. 348; 43 L. T. 29; Henderson v. Dickson, 9 Gr. 379; or an increased rate in case of default: Downey v. Parnell, 2 Ont. 62; 16 C. L. J. 241; but a mortgagee is prima facie only entitled to simple interest, and where an account charging compound interest was assented to by the mortgagor in ignorance of his rights it was re-opened: Daniell v. Sinclair, L. R. 6. H. L. 181; 44 L. T. 257; and a bargain for an exorbitant rate of interest will not be enforced if it is shewn not to have been understood by the mortgagor: Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 65. Mortgage payable without interest. Compound interest. Exorbitant interest.

Agreements to pay compound interest are construed very strictly: see Imperial Trusts Co. v. New York Sec. Co., 10 O. L. R. 269.

Where the incumbrancer has redeemed a prior incumbrance, he is entitled to recover interest on the aggregate amount of principal, interest, and costs, so paid; on the principal, at the rate reserved in his own mortgage, and on the interest and costs, at the legal rate: McMaster v. Hector, 6 C. L. J. 264; and he has a lien on the land therefor as against subsequent incumbrancers: Trust & Loan Company v. Cuthbert, 14 Gr. 410; Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 65. But where a solicitor purchases securities at his client's request, simple interest on the amount paid, is all that is chargeable, and not the rate reserved by the securities purchased, unless otherwise agreed: Macleod v. Jones, 50 L. T. 356. Interest on prior incumbrances paid off by mortgagee.

The rate of interest reserved by the mortgage, is not necessarily payable after default, unless the mortgage expressly so provides: Cook v. Fowler, L. R. 7 H. L. 27; Dalby v. Humphrey, 37 U. C. Q. B. 514; Jackson v. Horris, 76 L. T. Jour. 130; and a covenant to pay interest on instalments in default does not necessarily mean that interest is to be paid on interest in default: Goldstrom v. Tattermon, 17 Q. B. D. 80; 16 Q. B. D. 1; 55 L. T. 866. But such rate was allowed after default, by way of damages, where it was not expressly shewn by evidence to be excessive: Simonton v. Graham, 6 P. R. 495; and see Mellersh v. Brown, 45 Ch. D. 225; 63 L. T. 169; but in another case, where no evidence was given by the mortgagees as to the rate of interest after default, only the legal rate was allowed: Archbold v. Building & Loan Assoc., 15 Ont. 237; but see S. C., 16 Ont. App. 1. A covenant to pay interest at a higher rate than the legal rate "until mortgage money paid" does not entitle the covenantor to such higher rate after the time fixed for payment has expired: Powell v. Peck, 12 Ont. 492; 23 C. L. J. 93; 15 Ont. App. 136; Peoples Loan & D. Co. v. Grant, 18 S. C. R. 262, but a covenant to pay a specified rate of interest as well before, as after, maturity, until the principal is fully paid, entitles the covenantee to recover the specified rate after maturity until the principal is fully paid: Middleton v. Scott, 4 O. L. R. 459; Imperial Trusts Co. v. New York Sec. Co., 10 O. L. R. 289. Rate of interest payable after time for payment.

A covenant to pay interest on all instalments in arrear, does not cover principal becoming due under an acceleration clause: Biggs v.

Rule 474.

Freehold, 26 Ont. App. 232; 31 S. C. R. 163. Nor does it apply to interest accruing due after maturity: Imperial Trusts Co. v. New York Sec. Co., supra, p. 1053.

Effect of acceleration clause.

In computing the amount to be paid for redemption, in the case of a mortgage, the payment of which had been accelerated by default in the payment of an instalment, the Court allowed the mortgage rate for the six months allowed for redemption though it exceeded the legal rate: Muttlebury v. Stephens, 6 C. L. T. 588; 23 C. L. J. 12; and see Mellersh v. Brown, supra, p. 1053.

Interest after judgment.

Where an instrument provided for payment of interest at a given rate, until the principal money should be paid, it was held that the rate contracted for could not be recovered after judgment had been obtained on the instrument; but only interest at the legal rate on the amount of the judgment: St. John v. Rykert, 4 Ont. App. 213; Grant v. People's Loan & D. Co., 17 Ont. App. 85; 18 S. C. R. 262; Arbuthnot v. Bunstall, 62 L. T. 234; Freehold Loan Co. v. McLean, 8 Man. R. 116; Manitoba & N. W. L. Co. v. Barker, Ib. 296; Ex p. Fewings, 25 Ch. D. 338; 50 L. T. 109; but see contra, Popple v. Sylvester, 22 Ch. D. 98; 47 L. T. 329; and see 19 C. L. J. 21; Re Atkinson, before Boyd, C., 4th May, 1883; and it would seem to be settled that the mortgagee cannot be redeemed by a subsequent incumbrancer except on payment of the interest secured by the mortgage, notwithstanding that the mortgagor may have recovered a judgment on the covenant for interest in arrear Economic Life Assce. Co. v. Usborne, 1902, A. C. 147; 85 L. T. 589.

Payment of higher rate than could be legally required

Where a mortgagor in ignornnce of his rights, has paid interest at a higher rate than he could have been legally required to pay, he cannot recover the over-payments from the mortgagee, nor have them set off against moneys subsequently accruing due on the mortgage Stewart v. Ferguson, 31 Ont. 112; but money paid by a mortgagor under a mistake of facts is recoverable: McDermott v. Hickling, 38 C. L. J. 85.

Interest in advance.

Where the interest is payable in advance, the mortgagee is nevertheless not entitled to have interest allowed for a period subsequent to that appointed for redemption: Trust & Loan Co. v. Kirk, 8 P. R. 203.

Tender prima facie stops interest.

Tender.—Where a tender is relied on, it should be set up by statement of defence, and the amount tendered should be paid into Court: Rule 309. Where such a defence is pleaded, it is sometimes specially referred to the Master to inquire as to the tender, or whether the amount tendered was sufficient: Knapp v. Bower, 17 Gr. 695. Prima facie a tender stops interest; but if the mortgagee shews that the money was subsequently used by the mortgagor, and a profit made, subsequent interest is, nevertheless, chargeable: Ib.; and see Pearce v. Morris, L. R. 5 Chy. at p. 231.

A tender is not equivalent to payment, and if refused, the mortgagor's remedy is an action for redemption; detinue for his title deeds will not lie: Bank of N. S. W. v. O'Connor, 14 App. Cas. 273.

A tender under protest is good, and a mortgagor is entitled to no inquiry whether the amount tendered was sufficient: Peers v. Allen, 19 Gr. 98; Greenwood v. Sutcliffe, 1892, 1 Ch. 1; 65 L. T. 797; and although a mortgagee is usually entitled to the costs of a redemption action, yet where it has been occasioned by his refusal to accept the amount due, he may be ordered to pay the costs of the action up to judgment: Squire v. Pardoe, 66 L. T. 243. Tender by a cheque to a solicitor of a mortgagee is not a legal tender, though not objected to on that ground: Blumberg v. Life Interest R. I. Corp., 1897, 1 Ch. 171; 1898, 1 Ch. 27; and see Middleton v. Scott, 4 O. L. R. 459. Rule 474.

The mortgagor, when making a tender at the appointed time for payment, is entitled to require a reconveyance, and the delivery up of the title deeds in the mortgagee's possession, and if the mortgagee, having had reasonable notice of the intention to pay the debt, is unprepared to reconvey or deliver up the title deeds he is in default: Rourke v. Robinson, 1911, 1 Ch. 480; 103 L. T. 895. Where the mortgagor has demanded payment the mortgagee may redeem without notice, or the payment of interest in lieu of notice. A tender does not stop the running of interest unless the mortgagor is able to show that he has kept the money idle and made no profit out of it: Edmondson v. Copland, 1911, 2 Ch. 301; 105 L. T. 8.

Where a tender is made subject to the execution and delivery of a conveyance, and previous reasonable notice of the intention to make the tender has not been given, a reasonable time should be allowed to procure the execution of the reconveyance before interest will stop: Webb v. Crosse, 1912, 1 Ch. 323; 105 L. T. 867.

Parol Agreements Affecting Mortgage.—A written agreement for value by a mortgagor to pay additional interest, is enforceable against the mortgagor, though not under seal: Brown v. Deacon, 12 Gr. 198; and see Alliance Bank v. Brown, 10 Jur. N. S. 1121. But a verbal agreement to that effect will not bind the lands, as against a subsequent purchaser of the equity of redemption: Totten v. Watson, 17 Gr. 233; or even as against a devisee, or heir-at-law, of the mortgagor: Re Houston, Houston v. Houston, 2 Ont. 84. Parol agreements affecting mortgage debt.

An agreement for extra interest between a derivative mortgagee and the mortgagor enures to the benefit of the original mortgagee: Grahame v. Anderson, 15 Gr. 189.

Where, after the mortgage debt was partly paid off, the mortgagor re-borrowed the money and returned the receipts given for his previous payments, it was held that he was estopped from disputing that the amount so re-advanced was still secured by the mortgage: Inglis v. Gilchrist, 10 Gr. 301. Estoppel

Statute of Limitations.—Under a dispute note, the Statute may be set up as a bar to the recovery of more than six years' arrears of interest; but where it is relied on as a defence to the whole claim, a statement of defence must be filed: Wright v. Morgan, 1 Ont. App. 513; Cattenach v. Urquhart, 6 P. R. 28. Statute of Limitations.

Although ten years is now a bar to the recovery of money charged on land, as against the land: The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 5; yet it was held that the right of action on the covenant was not barred until the lapse of twenty years under Ib. s. 49; Allan v. McTavish, 2 Ont. App. 278; Macdonald v. McDonald, 11 Ont. 187; McDonald v. Elliott, 12 Ont. 98; but see contra, Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D. 511; 48 L. T. 95; Fearnside v. Flint, 22 Ch. D. 579; 48 L. T. 154; Shaw v. Crompton, 1910, 2 K. B. 370; 103 L. T. 501. As to mortgages made on or after 1st July, 1894, the ten years' limitation applies to actions on the covenant: see The Statute of Limitations, s. How far a bar to recovery of interest.

Rule 474.

49 (b), (k). As to the application of The Statute of Limitations as regards interest: see supra, p. 938.

Where there is an acceleration clause in case of default in payment of an instalment, the statute begins to run as to the principal and interest from the date of default: McFadden v. Brondon, 6 O. L. R. 247.

No bar to account for rents.

The Statute is no bar to an account for more than six years' rents as against a mortgagee in possession: Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110; affirmed in appeal, 7 U. C. L. J. 42; 8 U. C. L. J. 93.

Subsequent incumbrancer, how affected by statute.

Where a prior mortgagee, or other incumbrancer, has been in possession of any land, or in the receipt of the profits thereof, within one year next before an action is brought by any person entitled to a subsequent mortgage, or other incumbrance on the same land, the person entitled to the subsequent mortgage, or incumbrance, may recover in such action the arrears of interest which have become due during the whole time that such prior mortgagee, or incumbrancer, was in possession, or receipt, as aforesaid, although such time may have exceeded the term of six years: see The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 19.

Action for foreclosure, effect of.

Although the remedy against the person of the debtor for the debt may be barred, an action for the foreclosure of the mortgaged property may lie: see London & Midland Bank v. Mitchell, 1899, 2 Ch. 161; 81 L. T. 263; Bornes v. Glenton, 1899, 1 Q. B. 885; 80 L. T. 606.

An action for foreclosure, or sale, is an action to recover land, and the commencement of an action for foreclosure, or sale, by a mortgagee out of possession, stops the running of the statute: Harlock v. Ashberry, 19 Ch. D. 539; 46 L. T. 356; Pugh v. Heath, 7 App. Cas. 235; 46 L. T. 321; Fletcher v. Rodden, 1 Ont. 155; but see Barwick v. Barwick, 21 Gr. 39; and an action for redemption is also an action to recover land: per Strong, J., Foulds v. Harper, 11 S. C. R. 639.

Tenant in common entitled to redeem whole estate.

Where some of several tenants in common are barred by The Statute of Limitations, and others of them are not; the latter are entitled to redeem the whole mortgaged estate, and not merely an aliquot part: Foulds v. Harper, 2 Ont. 405; 9 Ont. App. 537; 11 S. C. R. 639; see also Martin v. Miles, 5 Ont. 404.

Effect of payments.

Payments to take a case out of The Statute of Limitations must be made by the mortgagor, or his duly authorized agent; (payments made on his behalf without his authority will not prevent the Statute from running: Newbould v. Smith, 29 Ch. D. 882; 53 L. T. 137); or else by some person to whom the right of redemption is expressly reserved by the mortgage, even though he is no party to it: see Lewin v. Wilson, 11 App. Cas. 639; or by some person liable to pay the mortgage debt, and payment by such person will prevent the Statute from running in favour of his grantee, who is in possession, and no party to the payment: Trust & Loan Co. v. Stevenson, 20 Ont. App. 66; and see Dibb v. Walker, 1893, 2 Ch. 429; 68 L. T. 614. Payment by one of several executors, against the will of the others, was held not to bind the land: Astbury v. Astbury, 1898, 2 Ch. 111; but see The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), s. 4.

Payment by a receiver appointed by a mortgagee, will be as effectual as a payment by the mortgagor, to prevent the running of The Statute of Limitations: Re Hale, Litley v. Faad, 1899, 2 Ch. 107; 79 L. T. 468.

Payments.—Payment to one of several executors, is a good payment on account of a mortgage held by two of them as executors: Ewart v. Dryden, 13 Gr. 50; but payment to one of several trustees, who held a mortgage, is not good as to the other trustees: Ewart v. Snyder, 13 Gr. 55. Rule 474. Payments

Where a mortgagor requested his mortgagee to release a part of the mortgaged property on payment of £100, and he released it on payment of £50 only, he was held liable for the difference: Boll v. Jarvis, 10 Gr. 568. But where a mortgagee refused to accept £100 offered as the price of part of the mortgaged property, which was expropriated, and upon an arbitration only £30 was awarded, the mortgagee was held not to be liable for the difference: Gunn v. McDonald, 11 Gr. 140. When mortgagee liable for moneys not received.

Payments of interest made by a mortgagee's agent out of his own pocket to the mortgagee do not enure to the benefit of the mortgagor, or any subsequent incumbrancer: Gloscott v. Comeron, 10 O. L. R. 399.

As to the date at which payments by cheque count: see Marreco v. Richardson, supra, p. 940.

Appropriation of Payments:— Appropriation of payments

Payments made on account are to be appropriated (1) as the debtor directs at the time of payment, or (2) Where there is no direction by the debtor, as the creditor directs, or (3) Where neither makes any direction, the law will apply it to the older debt, or as may be just: Wilson v. Rykert, 14 Ont. 188; and see Lowther v. Heaver, 41 Ch. D. 248.

A payment unappropriated by a debtor may be appropriated by the creditor at any time before judgment; and an appropriation by the creditor in the witness box at the trial was held to be valid: Seymour v. Pickett, 1905, 1 K. B. 715; 92 L. T. 519.

A mortgagee in possession, and in receipt of rents and profits, may sell under the power of sale, if the mortgage be in default, even though the rents are sufficient to keep down the interest; as, in the absence of any agreement, there is no appropriation of payments until the taking of the account: Cockburn v. Edwards, 18 Ch. D. 449; 45 L. T. 500; 51 L. J. Ch. 46; and see Horlock v. Ashberry, 19 Ch. D. 539.

Where a mortgagee sells under a power of sale, he is bound to apply the proceeds, first, in payment of interest and costs, and then either to pay the balance to the mortgagor, or apply it in reduction of principal: Thompson v. Hudson, L. R. 10 Eq. 497; but see Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1905, 1 Ch. 435; Wrigley v. Gill, Ib. 241. He may sell on time, but he must give credit for the amount secured by the mortgage of the purchaser as cash: Mendels v. Gibson, 9 O. L. R. 94; and, even if he gets the consent of the mortgagor to a sale on credit, he is not at liberty to convert the mortgage taken to secure that part of the purchase money for which credit is given into cash, and charge the mortgagor with the discount and expenses, without a distinct bargain to that effect: Beatty v. O'Connor, 5 Ont. 731; any surplus in his hands should be either paid over to the party entitled, or if there be no hand to receive it, it should be either paid into Court under The Trustee Act, or set apart, so as to be fruitful for the benefit of the party entitled. If the mortgagee neglects to do either of these things, he will be chargeable with interest on the money so long as it remains Appropriation of purchase money, on sale by mortgagee.

in his hands: Charles v. Jones, 35 Ch. D. 544; 58 L. T. 848; Read v. Eley, 1900, W. N. 57; 88 L. T. 369. A mortgagee who concurs in a sale by his mortgagor is responsible for the due application of the purchase money: West London Commercial Bank v. Reliance Permanent Building Society, 29 Ch. D. 954; 53 L. T. 442.

Payments how to be appropriated.

If money is not expressly appropriated by the party paying it, the party receiving it may appropriate it, even upon a claim which he cannot enforce by suit; but an appropriation cannot be made by the creditor after action brought, on bringing in his account: Fraser v. Locie, 10 Gr. 207; Hagerman v. Smith, Tay. 123; Armour v. Carruthers, 4 U. C. L. J. 210; Fuller v. Parnall, 8 C. L. J. 86; and where a mortgagee held as security for a partnership debt the mortgage of one partner, and the note of the other, it was held that he could not, as against an assignee of the equity of redemption, appropriate to the note all payments received by him, but that he was bound to apply one-half of the sums paid out of the partnership assets, on account of the mortgage: Moore v. Riddell, 11 Gr. 89.

Where two securities held for same debt.

Where no appropriation by payer, payments how to be applied.

In taking the account, payments on account, should (if not otherwise appropriated by the debtor, or creditor, at the time of payment) be applied first, in payment of overdue interest and costs, and then of overdue principal, and where there are several items, the appropriation should be made in discharge of those earliest in date: McGregor v. Gaulin, 4 U. C. Q. B. 378; Cummings v. Usher, 1 P. R. 15; Ross v. Perrault, 13 Gr. 206; Clayton's Case, Devaynes v. Noble, 1 Mer. 530. 604; Wilson v. Rykert, 14 Ont. 188; Patterson v. Dart, 24 O. L. R. 609; Deeley v. Lloyd's Bank, 1910, 1 Ch. 648; 1912, A. C. 756; 102 L. T. 556; 107 L. T. 465; but this rule is not an invariable rule of law. It cannot be applied to two transactions of the same date merely because one precedes the other on the paper on which they are recorded: Corey v. S. S. Mecca, 1897, A. C. 286; and where an accounting party (a solicitor) had, in his accounts, appropriated payments to principal, instead of the overdue interest, he was held bound by the appropriation: Taylor v. Magrath, 10 Ont. 669. Where the creditor claims to have appropriated a payment, the onus lies on him of showing affirmatively that no appropriation was made by the debtor: Lowther v. Heaver, 41 Ch. D. 248. Where, for convenience, two separate accounts are kept by the creditor with his debtor in respect of one of which there is a credit, and the other a debit for which the creditor holds securities; the amount at the credit of the one account is properly applicable to the reduction of the balance to the debit of the other account: Mutton v. Peat, 1900, 2 Ch. 79.

Appropriation of payments, where mortgage given to secure a floating balance.

A mortgage given to secure a floating balance, however, is not discharged by payments made on account, so long as the dealings between the parties continue, and any balance remains due in respect thereof, even though the payments exceed in amount the debt due when the mortgage was given, or the amount of the debt mentioned in the mortgage: Cameron v. Kerr, 3 Ont. App. 30; Russell v. Davey, 7 Gr. 13; The City Discount Company v. McLean, L. R. 9 C. P. 692; Fenton v. Blackwood, L. R. 5 P. C. 167; Griffith v. Crocker, 18 Ont. App. 370; but see Re Brown, 2 Gr. 111, 590; Buchanan v. Kerby, 5 Gr. 332; and this was so held as against a transferree of the equity of redemption: Thomson v. Stikeman, 29 O. L. R. 146; but as against a subsequent incumbrancer the rule in Clayton's Case is applicable: see Deeley v. Lloyd's Bank, supra.

Rule 474.

An appropriation by the creditor cannot prevent the debtor from pleading the Statute of Limitations, but where the debtor pays a sum in respect of an account which includes a statute-barred item, that will amount to an acknowledgment. After a creditor has once made an appropriation, he cannot, after action brought, make another appropriation of the same payment: Re Friend, 1897, 2 Ch. 421; 77 L. T. 50.

Where a mortgagee in possession has, by an agreement with his mortgagor, applied the rents and profits on a collateral indebtedness for goods sold by him to the mortgagor, a subsequent incumbrancer whose rights accrue after the arrangement is executed, is not entitled to have such rents applied on the mortgage debt: Mitchell v. Saylor, 1 O. L. R. 458.

Insurance money, how applicable.

Insurance Money.—Where the mortgage contains no provision for the application of insurance money, payable under a policy effected by the mortgagor, or by the mortgagee under some covenant or provision in the mortgage in that behalf, the mortgagee is not bound to apply it in reduction of his debt before the time appointed for payment, or on the interest to accrue thereon, until it is actually due. In such a case, where the mortgagee declines to apply the money on his debt, or interest, the mortgagor is entitled to have the moneys laid out in rebuilding and restoring the premises to the status quo; but if the mortgagee retains the money he must apply it on account: Austin v. Story, 10 Gr. 306. Under The Mortgages Act (R. S. O. c. 112), s. 6 (2), the mortgagee cannot, without the mortgagor's consent, apply the insurance money in payment of moneys not yet due: Corham v. Kingston, 17 Ont. 432; Edmonds v. Hamilton P. & L. Socy., 19 Ont 677; 18 Ont. App. 347; and he is not bound to apply it in payment of arrears, but may hold it in reserve as collateral security while any portion of the mortgage money is unpaid; and, though he applies part of the insurance money in payment of overdue principal, he is not bound to apply the balance in discharge of overdue interest: Edmonds v. Hamilton, supra; but if he elects to hold the insurance money in reserve he is accountable for all profit made out of the money while so held, and he should not let it lie idle, but ought, if possible, to concur with the mortgagor on some profitable way of laying it out: see per Maclennan, J.A., 18 Ont. App. 367.

Mortgagee may have money applied in rebuilding.

In mortgagee executed after 11th March, 1879, after default, there is a statutory power to insure, and the mortgagee may recover premiums paid, with interest at the rate reserved by the mortgage: The Mortgages Act (R. S. O. c. 112), s. 19. Where the mortgagor insures, though there be no covenant, in the event of a loss the mortgagee may have the insurance money laid out in re-building: see The Mortgages Act (R. S. O. c. 112), s. 6.

Mortgagee insuring whether he can recover both insurance and debt, quaere?

A mortgagee insuring out of his own funds, is not bound to give the mortgagor credit for the moneys received in the event of a loss: Russell v. Robertson, 1 Chy. Ch. 72. Nor is he entitled to charge him with the premiums, unless the insurance is effected under The Mortgages Act, s. 19, supra; McIntosh v. Ontario Bank, 20 Gr. 24. But whether a mortgagee can recover both the insurance money, and also the mortgage debt seems doubtful: see Castellain v. Preston, 8 Q. B. D. 613; 46 L. T. 568; 19 C. L. J. 143; Keefer v. Phœnix, 26 Ont. App. 277; as to the right of a second mortgagee to recover on an insurance effected by him, when there is also insurance on the same property effected by a prior mortgagee, see Westminister v. Glasgow, 12 App. Cas. 699; 59 L. T. 641.

Insurance by mortgagor.

Where a mortgagee holds several mortgages on different properties made by the same mortgagor, and receives insurance money in respect of one of such properties sufficient to satisfy the mortgage thereon, and the mortgagor has assigned his equity of redemption on that parcel to a third party, the third party is entitled to recover the surplus of the insurance moneys, and his right thereto cannot be defeated by consolidation of the mortgages: Re Union Assurance Co., 23 Ont. 627.

Mortgagees to whom a policy of insurance effected by the mortgagors is made payable, as their interest may appear, may sue thereon in their own names and enforce payment to the extent of their interest, but if there is no mortgage or subrogation clause in the policy, the mortgagee stands in no better position than the mortgagor, and any defence against him will be a defence against the mortgagee: Agricultural L. & S. Co. v. Liverpool L. & G. Ins. Co., 3 O. L. R. 127. A renewal of a policy is a new contract, and though the original policy may have been voidable for non-disclosure of a prior insurance, yet, if, when the renewal is affected, there is no such prior insurance, the insurers cannot avoid the renewal on the ground of the existence of the prior insurance when the policy was originally issued: Ib.

A boiler and other machinery were held as between mortgagor and mortgagees to be included under the word "building," as they were treated by the parties as part of the freehold, and passed as such, and the mortgagor was held entitled to the benefit of the insurance thereon as on part of the building: Carr v. The Fire Assurance Association, 14 Ont. 487.

Assignment of mortgage to Insurance Co., effect of.

Where the mortgagor had insured in pursuance of a covenant, loss, if any, being payable to the mortgagee, and the buildings were burnt by the mortgagor, and the insurance money paid to the mortgagee, who assigned the mortgage to the insurance company; it was held, that inasmuch as the mortgagor could not have recovered on the policy, the insurance company were not bound to give credit on the mortgage debt for the amount of the insurance money, as against a puisne incumbrancer: Westmacott v. Hanley, 22 Gr. 382; Livingstone v. The Western Assurance Company, 14 Gr. 461; S. C., 16 Gr. 9; and see Klein v. Union Fire Insurance Company, 3 Ont. 234; Reddick v. The Saugeen Mutual Insurance Company, 14 Ont. 506; 15 Ont. App. 363; Secus, if the mortgagor had not been debarred from recovering: Bull v. North British & Commercial Insurance Company, 14 Ont. 322, 15 Ont. App. 421, 18 S. C. R. 697; Howes v. Dominion Insurance Company, 2 Ont. 89 (this case was reversed on appeal: see 19 C. L. J. 348, but not on the point for which it is here cited); Austin v. Story, 10 Gr. 306; and see Provincial Insurance Company v. Reesor, 21 Gr. 296; Burton v. Gore District M. F. I. Co., 12 Gr. 156; affirmed in appeal, January 21st, 1875; see R. & J. Dig. 1819, and per Proudfoot, V.C., 22 Gr. 384; Green v. Hewer, 21 C. P. 531; and even though the mortgagor could not himself have recovered on the policy by reason of breach of its conditions, yet, if it is unconditional in favour of the mortgagee, the insurance company is bound to give the mortgagor credit for the insurance moneys on the mortgage, if on payment of the loss it takes an assignment thereof from the mortgagee: Bull v. N. B. & Coml. Ins. Co., supra; McKay v. Norwich Union Ins. Co., 27 Gnt. 251. Rule 474.

Rents.—A mortgagee in possession may be charged with rents actually received, or which, but for wilful neglect and default, he might have received; or he may be charged with an occupation rent when he has been in actual occupation, using and enjoying the mortgaged property in the place of a tenant; in the latter case, he is charged with a fair rental, such as a tenant might be expected to give, unless it is shown that he actually made a larger profit: Trulock v. Robey, 15 Sim. 265; S. C., 2 Phil. 395; Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110. Rents chargeable against mortgagee.

A mortgagee is accountable not merely for his actual receipts whilst in possession, but also for whatever is received by those to whom he transfers possession under an arrangement inoperative to transfer title, and in derogation of the rights of the mortgagor: National Bank of Australasia v. United Hand in Hand Band of Hope, 4 App. Cas. 391.

A mortgagee in possession, but not in actual occupation, will not be held liable for any greater rent than he actually received, unless it is clearly established, in evidence, that he knew a greater rent might, and could, have been obtained, and that he refused, or neglected, to obtain the same: Merriam v. Cronk, 21 Gr. 60; Waddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211; Penn v. Lockwood, 1 Gr. 547.

A mortgagee receiving rents, or going into occupation, by consent of the mortgagor, must account as a mortgagee in possession to a subsequent incumbrancer, or purchaser of the equity of redemption, although the mortgagor has directed the rents to be applied in payment of another debt due by him to the mortgagee: Gilmour v. Roe, 21 Gr. 284; Court v. Holland, 29 Gr. 19; unless such arrangement was made and executed before the right of the subsequent incumbrancer accrued: Mitchell v. Saylor, 1 O. L. R. 458; and where a mortgagee, pursuant to a power, enters into possession and manages the mortgaged estate without default, at a loss, he is entitled to be recouped the loss as against a puisne incumbrancer, not only out of the rents, but also out of any surplus proceeds arising from the sale of the property: Bompas v. King, 33 Ch. D. 279; 55 L. T. 190. But when a mortgagee suffers the mortgagor to resume possession he ceases to be liable to account for rents: Rice v. George, 19 Gr. 174. Where the mortgage provides for payment of five per cent. interest, reducible if punctually paid, to four-and-a-half per cent., a mortgagee, on going into possession, after default, is not bound to accept the lower rate: Union Bank v. Ingram, 16 Ch. D. 53 (overruling Stains v. Banks, 9 Jur. N. S. 1049); Bright v. Campbell, 41 Ch. D. 388. A mortgagee in possession is entitled to be allowed a commission reasonably paid for collecting the rents: Union Bank v. Ingram, supra; but see Eyre v. Hughes, 2 Ch. D. 148. Mortgagee in possession by arrangement with mortgagor, how far liable to subsequent incumbrancer.

A mortgagee, in possession, should not be charged with rests on rents received by him, until he has been paid in full, when his money was in arrear when he entered: Coldwell v. Holl, 9 Gr. 110; affirmed in appeal, 7 U. C. L. J. 42; 8 U. C. L. J. 93; but by setting up a title adverse to the mortgagor's right of redemption, he may lose the immunity of an ordinary mortgagee: National Bank of Australasia v. United Hand in Hand Band of Hope, 4 App. Cas. 391: and see notes to Rule 410, supra, p. 936 et seq. Rests, where chargeable.

Rule 474.

Mortgagee in possession, account by.

Notwithstanding the Statute of Limitations, a mortgagee in possession may be compelled to account to the mortgagor for more than six years' rent: Coldwell v. Hall, supra, p. 961; although, if the mortgagee has been overpaid, the Statute would doubtless be a bar to the mortgagor's recovering payment of more than six years' arrears.

Where the mortgagee is in occupation, he should be charged with an occupation rent up to the day appointed for payment: Pipe v. Shafer, 1 Chy. Ch. 251; and he is entitled to interest on his debt: Patterson v. Dart, 24 O. L. R. 609.

Attornment clause, effect of.

The mere existence of an attornment clause in a mortgage, does not make the mortgagee liable to account to a subsequent incumbrancer, as a mortgagee in possession: Stanley v. Grundy, 48 L. T. 106; but see Re Stockton Iron Company, 10 Ch. D. 335; 40 L. T. 19; Ex parte Jackson, 14 Ch. D. 725; 43 L. T. 272; Ex parte Punnett, 16 Ch. D. 226; 44 L. T. 226; Ex parte Harrison, 18 Ch. D. 127; 45 L. T. 290; nor yet the fact that he has given notice to the tenant of the mortgagor to attorn, unless the tenant has, in fact, attorned, his mere continuance in possession after the notice is not sufficient: Towerson v. Jackson, 1891, 2 Q. B. 484; 65 L. T. 332.

See further as to rents: notes to Rule 410, supra, p. 944.

Estoppel arising from representation to persons dealing with equity of redemption.

Estoppel.—A mortgagee may be estopped as against a person inquiring of him the amount due on his mortgage, with a view to purchasing the equity of redemption, from claiming more than the amount then claimed: Dominion Savings & Investment Co. v. Kittridge, 23 Gr. 631. But if such representations are made to a person not known to be intending to purchase, or deal in respect of, the equity of redemption, they are not binding on the mortgagee, although actually acted upon: Moffatt v. Bank of Upper Canada, 5 Gr. 374.

The mortgagor may, by his conduct be also estopped from setting up payments on account of the mortgage: Inglis v. Gilchrist, 10 Gr. 301.

Vendor's lien enforceable, where mortgage taken for purchase money invalid.

Vendor's Lien.—Void Mortgage for Purchase Money.—Where a mortgage was given by an infant for purchase money, and the infant on coming of age adopted the purchase, but repudiated the mortgage; an assignee of the mortgage was held nevertheless entitled to a lien for the purchase money: Grace v. Whitehead, 7 Gr. 591.

Where land is conveyed in consideration of maintenance, the vendor has a lien for the consideration: Paine v. Chapman, 6 Gr. 338; 7 Gr. 179.

Mortgage payable in foreign currency.

Mortgage payable in Foreign Currency.—Where the mortgage debt is payable in lawful money of the United States, the mortgagee is entitled, at his option, to claim the amount in the current money of that country, or its equivalent in Canadian currency, at the time of default made in payment: Morrell v. Ward, 10 Gr. 231; Crawford v. Beard, 14 C. P. 87; and see Manners v. Pearson, 1898, 1 Ch. 581; 78 L. T. 432.

Priorities, as to executions.

Priorities.—Formerly the priorities were determined in the case of executions by the date of the delivery of the writs to the sheriff for execution, and for this purpose a fraction of a day was regarded: Beckman v. Jarvis, 3 U. C. Q. B. 280; Converse v. Michie, 16 C. P. 167. But now under The Creditors' Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 81), all execution creditors whose writs are in the sheriff's hands to be executed are entitled to rank pari passu: Harvey v. McNeil, 12 P. R. 362; 24 C. L. J. 122. But an execution creditor directing the sheriff to stay execution, may now, as formerly thereby lose his priority, as against any subsequent execution then in, or thereafter coming into, the sheriff's hands, before the stay is removed: Ross v. Hamilton, E. T. 3 Vict.; Foster v. Smith, 13 U. C. Q. B. 243; Re Ross, 3 P. R. 394; Bank of Montreal v. Munro, 23 U. C. Q. B. 414; Kerr v. Kinsey, 15 C. P. 531; Trust & Loan Co. v. Cuthbert, 13 Gr. 412. But the sheriff, after being stayed, may make a second seizure during the currency of the writ: Gates v. Smith, 13 C. P. 572. Rule 474. Stay of execution, effect of.

Mortgagees for value are usually entitled to priority, according to the date of registration of their mortgages; and the omission of the Registrar to index a registered instrument will not deprive it of its priority: Lowrie v. Rathbun, 38 U. C. Q. B. 255; Green v. Ponton, 8 Ont. 471. Priority of mortgages.

Voluntary mortgagees, and mortgagees with actual notice of a prior unregistered instrument, however, are not within the protection of The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 124); and see Greaves v. Tofield, 43 L. T. 100; Kettlewell v. Watson, 46 L. T. 83; 51 L. J. Chy. 281; Clarke v. Palmer, 48 L. T. 857; and a person making voluntary payments on a registered mortgage cannot thereby acquire the position of a prior incumbrancer in respect of such payments as against persons having charges or incumbrancers on the mortgaged property at the time of such payments, subsequent to the mortgage, even though the person making the payment subsequently obtains an assignment of the mortgage: McMillan v. McMillan, 23 Ont. 351; and where an assignee of a term subject to a mortgage, in pursuance of an option in that behalf contained in the lease, purchases the fee, the mortgage becomes a charge on the fee, and the purchaser of the fee has no prior lien, even for his purchase money, as against the mortgagee: Building & L. Ass'n. v. McKenzie, 24 Ont. App. 599. Voluntary mortgages.

A mortgagee who has assigned the mortgage, and covenanted for its payment, is entitled to a lien as against the mortgagor for all payments so made: Fleming v. Palmer, 12 Gr. 226. Payments by guarantor, lien for.

An execution creditor cannot get priority over a prior unregistered deed: Russell v. Russell, 28 Gr. 419; nor over a prior unregistered equity: Hamilton P. L. Socy. v. Gilbert, 6 Ont. 434; Brown v. McLean, 18 Ont. 533; Re Trusts Corporation v. Bæhmer, 26 Ont. 191; Parke v. Riley, 3 E. & A. 215; Re Lewis & Thorne, 14 Ont. 133; but it would seem that a purchaser at a sheriff's sale may: Van Wagner v. Findlay, 14 Gr. 53. Execution creditors purchasers at sheriff's sale.

Where the goods of a debtor are liable to a lien in favour of a third person on his giving notice to the debtor, and the goods are seized in execution before any notice is given, the execution creditor is entitled to priority: Byford v. Russell, 1907, 2 K. B. 522; 97 L. T. 104.

A mortgagor who becomes also an execution creditor cannot acquire priority as such over his own mortgage, and where the mortgaged property is sold the proceeds are applicable to the mortgage, and only the surplus, if any, which remains will be applicable to his execution: see Dixon v. Steel, 1901, 2 Ch. 602.

Where it is necessary, for the purpose of settling the priority of incumbrancers, to inquire whether a person who has been sued, was, Absconding debtor, inquiry as to.

or was not, an absconding debtor within the meaning of the Act (R. S. O. c. 82), the Master may do so, although the party sued may have taken no proceedings to set aside the attachment: Montreal Bank v. Baker, 9 Gr. 97, 298; but see Martin v. Boulanger, 8 App. Cas. 296; 49 L. T. 62. An attachment only binds lands from the date of the seizure under it, and an execution delivered to the sheriff, before seizure made under the attachment, is entitled to priority over it: Robinson v. Bergin, 10 P. R. 127.

Creditor, when postponed, by conduct to prejudice of other creditors.

Where a creditor who had obtained security by an assignment from his debtor of his chattels, and other assets, by way of mortgage, was notified by a subsequent execution creditor of his claim, and informed that he would be held answerable for his dealing with the assets assigned, but negligently allowed the debtor to use, and deal with them, so that they were lost; it was held that the first creditor was thereby postponed to the second as regards other property liable for the payment of their debts: Huntingdon v. Van Brocklin, 8 Gr. 421.

Two deeds on same day, priority, how settled.

For the purpose of determining priorities between two deeds executed on the same day, the Master may inquire which was in fact first executed, and may have regard to the internal evidence of the deeds themselves, for the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties upon the question of priority: Gartside v. Silkstone, D. C. & I. Co., 21 Ch. D. 762; 47 L. T. 76.

Where a judgment has been pronounced on the construction of an instrument declaring, A. to be entitled in priority to B., such judgment is a bar to any subsequent action by B. for the rectification of the instrument so as to give him priority; the proper course in such a case is for B. to procure a stay in the first action until his action for rectification can be determined: Caird v. Moss, 33 Ch. D. 22; 55 L. T. 453.

Disputes between incumbrancers, how determined.

Disputes between Incumbrancers.—Where there is a dispute between two persons, as to which of them is entitled to an incumbrance, the Master may determine the question himself, or, where to do so, would be likely unduly to delay the plaintiff and other parties not interested in the question, he may report the incumbrance, and its priority as regards other incumbrances, and the dispute between the claimants, so that the Court may give proper directions for determining the question: McDonald v. Wright, 12 Gr. 552.

Place of payment.

Place of Payment.—The Master, in appointing the place, and manner of payment, must proceed under Rule 430.

Day of payment not to be a dies non.

Persons to Redeem, and Day for Redemption.—The Master is to appoint a day for redemption. He should be careful to see that the day appointed is not a Sunday, or a bank holiday, otherwise a new day will have to be appointed, before a final order can be obtained: Holcumb v. Leach, 3 Gr. 449. The omission of the Master to appoint a day for redemption may be remedied by order in Chambers: King v. Connor, 10 Gr. 364.

Omission to appoint a day.

Foreclosure—redemption, how directed.

Where the judgment is for sale, one day is appointed six calendar months from the making of the report, for the mortgagor to redeem the plaintiff, and all subsequent incumbrancers who have proved claims; in default of payment, a final order for sale is made; see Rules 478, 486, but see Jones v. Harris, 55 L. T. 884, where only three months were allowed for redemption. Where the judgment is for foreclosure, the subsequent incumbrancers are ordinarily entitled to successive rights of redemption in the order in which they acquired their charges; six calendar months being given to the first in priority, and one calendar month (Rule 489) to each of the others in succession: Seton, 5th ed., 1645; Webster v. Patterson, N. N. 1884, 20. But the Court may specially direct that one day only be given to all the defendants to redeem the plaintiff, without prejudice to their priorities inter se: Bartlett v. Rees, L. R. 12 Eq. 395; The General Credit & D. Co. v. Glegg, 22 Ch. D. 549; 48 L. T. 182; Smith v. Olding, 25 Ch. D. 462; 50 L. T. 357; Lewis v. Aberdare & P. Co., 50 L. T. 451; Western Canada L. & S. Co. v. Helmrod, 28 C. L. J. 185. In Mutual Life Assurance Co. v. Longley, 26 Ch. D. 686; 51 L. T. 284, Pearson, J., said that, as a general rule, where there are several defendants, but one day should be given: and see Platt v. Mendel, 27 Ch. D. 246; 51 L. T. 424; where the practice of giving successive days for redemption, where there are subsequent incumbrancers, was declared to be anomalous: and see Davis v. Manley, 78 L. T. Jour. 318; Doble v. Manley, 28 Ch. D. 664; Tufnell v. Nicholls, 56 L. T. 152. A puisne incumbrancer, and all persons claiming under him are entitled to but one day for redemption: Loveday v. Chapmon, 32 L. T. 689; Beevor v. Luck, L. R. 4 Eq. 537; and so are execution creditors, where there are no intermediate incumbrances: Bates v. Hillcoat, 16 Beav. 139; Stead v. Banks, 5 D. & S. 560; Ardagh v. Wilson, 1 Chy. Ch. 389; Seton, 5th ed., 1645; but see Carroll v. Hopkins, 4 Gr. 431. Rule 474.

As to the mode in which the direction for redemption is given where one of the subsequent incumbrancers is an annuitant: see Smithett v. Hesketh, 44 Ch. D. 161; 62 L. T. 802.

After a judgment, or report, appointing a day for redemption, a plaintiff cannot be required to accept payment of the redemption money before the day named for payment with interest only to that date: Hill v. Rowlands, 1897, 2 Ch. 361; 77 L. T. 34; but see The Mortgages Act (R. S. O. c. 112), s. 15; and R. S. C. c. 120, s. 10.

A party making default in redemption at the time appointed, may be foreclosed: Rule 486, and new accounts may, from time to time, be taken without further order: Rule 477. When all the subsequent incumbrancers have been foreclosed, one calendar month (Rule 489) is given to the mortgagor to redeem, and, on default, he may be foreclosed. An incumbrancer redeeming, may proceed to foreclose the subsequent incumbrancers and the mortgagor, as if he were the original plaintiff in the action. A subsequent incumbrancer redeeming out of his order of priority may add the amount paid to his own claim as against all incumbrancers subsequent to himself, but not as against any that are prior; as against the latter, he may claim to be redeemed in respect of any claim he has paid which had priority over the latter's claim. But, inasmuch as a prior incumbrancer on redeeming a subsequent incumbrancer, in respect of a prior claim paid off by the latter, would be entitled, to add the amount so paid to his own debt, and to be redeemed by the latter, it will generally be found inexpedient to claim the right to be redeemed, and the incumbrancer next in priority to the plaintiff should be appointed to be redeemed as to his claim, without first requiring him to redeem a subsequent incumbrancer in respect of any prior claim paid by the latter. Where the mortgagor redeems after puisne incumbrancers have been foreclosed, he thereby opens the foreclosure as to them: see Box v. Bridgman, 6 P. R. 234; Otter v. Lord Vaux, 2 K. & J. 650; 6 De G. M. & G. 638; Read v. Smith, Subsequent incumbrancer redeeming out of his order.

Rule 474.

14 Gr. 250; 16 Gr. 52; Bell v. Sunderland Building Society, 24 Ch. D. 618; 49 L. T. 555; and see Ledbrook v. Passman, 59 L. T. 306; and Whiteley v. Delaney, infra.

Redemption, how directed where equity of redemption divided.

Where portions of an estate under mortgage are conveyed away by the mortgagor, one day should be given to all the persons interested in the equity of redemption to redeem: Hill v. Forsyth, 7 Gr. 461; so also where there is any dispute between co-defendants as to their priorities, one day may be given to all to redeem without prejudice to their rights inter se: General Credit & D. Co. v. Glegg, 22 Ch. D. 549; 48 L. T. 182; Smith v. Gilding, 25 Ch. D. 462; 50 L. T. 357; Lewis v. Aberdare & P. Co., 50 L. T. 451; but where there is a stipulation in the mortgage that in case of sales by the mortgagor, the mortgagee shall, on payment of a certain portion of the purchase money, release the part sold, each purchaser is entitled to redeem his own part on payment of the stipulated portion of the money, and the Master should, in such a case, appoint one day for each of the several persons so entitled, to redeem his respective portion accordingly: Davis v. White, 16 Gr. 312.

Right of purchasers of different parts of mortgaged estate.

As to the rights of purchasers of different portions of the mortgaged estate inter se, see Barker v. Eccles, 17 Gr. 277; Jones v. Beck, 15 Gr. 671; Pierce v. Canavan, 28 Gr. 356; 7 Ont. App. 187; Buckler v. Bowman, 12 Gr. 457; Norris v. Meadows, 28 Gr. 334, affirmed 7 Ont. App. 237; Clork v. Bogart, 27 Gr. 450; Fraser v. Nagle, 16 Ont. 241.

Where a mortgage comprised both real and personal estate, on the death of the mortgagor it was held that his personal representative was entitled to redeem both properties, but that the reconveyance to him should reserve the right or equity of redemption of any other person or persons: Hall v. Heword, 32 Ch. D. 430; 54 L. T. 810; but see now The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), ss. 4, 8, 10.

A tenant for life of a mortgaged estate cannot purchase the estate at a sale under a power of sale in the mortgage, so as to cut out the remainderman under the same settlement: Griffith v. Owen, 1907, 1 Ch. 195; 96 L. T. 5; and probably the same rule would apply where the sale takes place under a judgment.

A mortgagee who realizes a part of his security for his debt, does not thereby prejudice his rights in respect of the rest of his security: see Monks v. Whiteley, 1911, 2 Ch. 448; 105 L. T. 504, at p. 509; and see S.C. sub nom. Whiteley v. Delaney, 1914, A. C. 132; 110 L. T. 734.

Where several persons are interested in the equity of redemption, any one of them seeking to redeem is entitled to, and as a rule must, redeem the whole mortgaged property, and not merely a proportionate part, but the conveyance to one of several persons entitled to the equity of redemption should be made subject to the right of redemption of such other persons: Pearce v. Morris, L. R. 5 Chy. 227; 22 L. T. 190; Foulds v. Harper, 11 S. C. R. 639; Kennedy v. Foxwell, 11 O. L. R. 389. But under special circumstances one of several joint mortgagors was permitted to redeem his proportionate part of the mortgaged estate on payment of a proportionate part of the mortgage debt: Readdy v. Pendergast, 56 L. T. 790; and see Smith v. Hunt, 2 O. L. R. 134; 4 O. L. R. 653, where third parties having acquired, under a power of sale, a legal title to an undivided three-fourths of the mortgaged property, the mortgagor was held only entitled to redeem the remaining undivided one-fourth, and to get compensation for the three-fourths from the mortgagee.

Where the day appointed for redemption is uncertain, a new day must be appointed: Scott v. McKeown, 1 Chy. Ch. 166. Rule 474.

Pending the time allowed for redemption it is not competant for the mortgagee to sell the mortgaged property under a power of sale: Stevens v. Theatres, Ltd., 1903, 1 Ch. 857; 88 L. T. 458. (In this case leave to appeal was given: 117 L. T. J. 199, but the case is not further reported.)

But the exercise of the power of sale before an action to redeem has been commenced puts an end to the right of redemption; even though the purchaser is in default: Soltmon v. McColl, 12 W. L. R. 146.

Master's Report.—The Master's report should bear date the day it is signed, and not before: Woddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211. It must be confirmed before the day appointed for redemption, or a final order will be refused: Mountain v. Porter, 1 Chy. Ch. 207; Mills v. Dixon, 2 Chy. Ch. 53. In the latter case a month's further time to redeem was allowed; and see Rule 489, and Imp. Trusts Co. v. N. Y. Security, 5 O. W. R. 641. Master's report, date of. Should be confirmed.

As to confirming report: see Rules 692, 769, and notes. The omission to appoint a day for redemption may be remedied by application in Chambers: King v. Connor, 10 Gr. 364.

Where the Master had omitted to allow the plaintiff two items of interest, an order was made to correct the mistake, after a final order for sale, without appointing any new day for payment: Bessey v. Graham, 9 U. C. L. J. 82; and see Morley v. Matthews, 12 Gr. 453; but the Master cannot, of his own motion, in a subsequent report, correct a mistake in a prior report: Crooks v. Street, 1 Chy. Ch. 76; and see further RR. 502-4, note p. 915. Correcting mistake in.

Extending Time for Payment.—Application to extend the time for payment should be made in Chambers: Anon., 4 Gr. 61; where the defendant showed that he had sold for £300, and the mortgage debt was only £250, and that he expected to receive payment in full in two or three months, the time was extended: Ford v. Steeples, 1 O. S. 282. So also where the mortgage was for purchase money, and the vendor had neglected to pay off a prior mortgage, pursuant to his covenant, and it appeared that the existence of the first mortgage prevented the defendant from raising money to pay off the second, the time was extended: G. v. V., 2 Chy. Ch. 33. So also six months' further time was given, where the defendant was prevented from raising the money by reason of an improper advertisement published by the plaintiff's solicitors: Gilmour v. Meyers, 2 Chy. Ch. 179. So also where it was shown that the value of the property would be enhanced in the meantime, by the construction of a railway: Cameron v. Cameron, 2 Chy. Ch. 375; and where a reasonable prospect of payment at the extended time was shown, the time was extended: Cohane v. Durie, 2 Chy. Ch. 394; Street v. O'Reilly, 2 Chy. Ch. 370; but an affidavit of the solicitor, that he believed his clients had exerted themselves, and were endeavouring to raise the money, and that the property was worth much more than the debt, was held insufficient: Anon., 4 Gr. 61. Extension of time for payment, when granted.

Where pending an appeal it is desired to extend the time fixed by a judgment, or report, for redemption until after the appeal shall have been disposed of, the application under Rule 176 may be made to the Rules 475, 476.

Court of first instance: Manks v. Whiteley, 1913, 1 Ch. 581, 108 L. T. 450.

Application after day appointed has elapsed.

Where the application is made after the day fixed for redemption the applicant is usually required to pay interest for the extended time, on the whole amount found due for principal, and interest: Street v. O'Reilly; Cahuac v. Durie; Cameron v. Cameron, supra, p. 1067; and the payment of the whole costs, or at all events the costs of the application, is also usually made a condition precedent: Ib.; and see Hilford v. Yate, 1 K. & J. 677; Whitfield v. Roberts, 7 Jur. N. S. 1268, Canada Permanent L. & S. Co. v. Donaldson, 30 C. L. J. 68; and where the mortgagee swore that he had been compelled, in consequence of the mortgagor's default, to contract a loan to meet his liabilities, at a higher rate of interest than that reserved by the mortgage; on extending the time, the mortgagor was required to pay such a sum as would cover the excess of interest payable by the mortgagee: Howard v. Macara, 1 Chy. Ch. 27. It is probable however, that where the application is made before a final order has been obtained, the application will be more readily granted, and on less stringent terms, than where it is made after the final order has issued: Patch v. Ward, L. R. 3 Chy. 212.

Terms imposed.

Time may be extended on the same grounds in a redemption action, where the application is not made until after a final order dismissing the action, that order must be first vacated: see Collinson v. Jeffery, 1896, 1 Ch. 644; 76 L. T. 78.

See further as to applications to open foreclosure, and extend the time for payment, Rule 486, note.

In proceedings for foreclosure, etc., state of mortgage account may be proved prima facie, by statement on oath of assignee of mortgage.

475. On any proceeding for foreclosure by, or for redemption against an assignee of a mortgagee, the statement of the mortgage account, under the oath of such assignee, shall be sufficient prima facie evidence of the state of such account, and an affidavit or oath shall not be required from the mortgagee or any intermediate assignee denying any payment to such mortgagee or intermediate assignee, unless the mortgagor or his assignee, or the party proceeding to redeem, denies by oath or affidavit the correctness of such statement of account. C.R. 751.

See Court v. Holland, 8 P. R. 213.

Master's report, contents of.

476. The Master's report shall state the names of all persons who have been made parties in his office, and who have been served with the notice or appointment hereinbefore provided for, and the names of such as have made default, and shall set forth the amount of the claims, and priorities of such as have attended, and these latter shall be certified as the only incumbrancers upon the property. C.R. 752.

For forms of reports in mortgage cases: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 1070-1072, 1075, 1077, 1078-1080.

477. Subsequent accounts shall, from time to time, be taken, subsequent costs taxed, and necessary proceedings had, for redemption by, or foreclosure of, the other parties entitled to redeem the mortgaged premises, as if specific directions for all these purposes had been contained in the judgment. C.R. 753. [As amended by Rule 1, December, 1913.]

Subsequent accounts to be taken by Master.

If the mortgagor, or owner of the equity of redemption, or any incumbrancer, redeems any prior charge which was his own debt, or which, by contract, express or implied, he was bound to discharge, he cannot keep such charge alive as against a mesne incumbrancer, whose incumbrance he is also expressly, or impliedly, bound to discharge: Blake v. Beaty, 5 Gr. 359; Otter v. Lord Vaux, 2 K. & J. 650; 6 D. G. M. & G. 638.

Mortgagor paying off incumbrance, effect of.

In taking the subsequent account the Master may allow a sum paid for insurance since the last account, under a provision in the mortgage: Bethune v. Calcutt, 3 Gr. 648.

Insurance.

In England, it is the practice on taking the subsequent account, to allow interest on the gross amount of principal, interest and costs, found due by the last report: Ellon v. Curtois, 19 Ch D. 49; 45 L. T. 435; and see Jocob v. Earl of Suffolk, Mos. 27; but in Ontario, it has not been customary to allow interest upon interest in respect of an incumbrancer's own proper debt, unless the mortgage expressly provides therefor. But where a subsequent incumbrancer pays off a prior incumbrance, he is entitled to interest on the aggregate amount paid by him for principal, interest and costs; the interest on the principal being computed at the rate reserved in his own security, but on the interest and costs, at the legal rate only: McMaster v. Hector, 8 C. L. J. 284.

It ereat on subsequant amount.

Although ordinarily a mortgagee's own costs do not bear interest, yet if they have been expressly ordered to be added to his debt, they bear interest at the same rate as the principal money from the date of taxation: Eardley v. Knight, 41 Ch. D. 537.

Where an execution creditor redeems a plaintiff mortgagee, he is entitled to consolidate his claim as execution creditor with that of the plaintiff which he has paid off, and an assignee for creditors of the mortgagor cannot redeem the execution creditor without paying the whole amount due to him: Federal Life Assce. Co. v. Stinson, 13 O. L. R. 127. S. C. sub nom. Scott v. Swonson, 39 S. C. R. 230.

Where a subsequent incumbrancer redeems the plaintiff, and desires to proceed under this Rule, it has not been usual for him to take out an order to continue the proceedings in his own name. The judgment is treated as giving him the right, on redeeming the plaintiff, to assume the carriage of the judgment under this Rule without the necessity of any order under Rule 300: see Mad. Cby. Pr., 495.

Sale—proceedings on.

478. If the judgment directs a sale on default in payment, then on default being made, and an order for sale obtained, the property shall be sold, with the approbation of the Master, and the purchaser shall pay his purchase money into Court, to the credit of the action. C.R. 754.

Rule 479.

C. R. 754 provided for the settlement of conveyances by the Master, but that is now provided for in case of all sales by the Court, by Rule 416.

Master may sell by tender, private contract, etc.

By Rule 438, where a sale is ordered, the Master may cause the property, or a competent part thereof, to be sold, either by public auction, private contract, or tender; or part by one mode, and part by another, as he may think best for the interests of all parties; and he may fix an upset price, or reserved bidding, but such price, or bidding, must be so fixed at the meeting held by him for the purpose of settling the advertisement, and making the other arrangements preparatory to the sale, and must be notified in the conditions of sale.

Settle all conveyances.

The Master is to settle all necessary conveyances for the purpose of carrying out the sale, in case the parties differ; or in case there shall be any persons under any disability interested in such sale: see Rules 416, 457.

Before a sale can take place, a final order must be obtained: see Rule 486, and note.

Whole should not be sold where part sufficient.

It is the Master's duty not to sell the whole, where it is clear that a sale of part would suffice for the payment of the incumbrances. Where the mortgagor thinks more land is offered for sale than is necessary, he should object at the settlement of the advertisement. It is too late to take the objection after the sale: Beaty v. Radenhurst, 3 Chy. Ch. 344.

Purchase money, application of.

479. The purchase money, when so paid, shall be applied and paid out of Court in payment of what has been found due to the plaintiff and the other incumbrancers (if any), according to their priorities, together with subsequent interest, and subsequent costs. C.R. 755.

Even after a sale a dowress was allowed to come in and prove her claim: Hyde v. Barton, 8 P. R. 205.

Residue of purchase money, how disposed of.

This Rule makes no provision for the disposition of the residue, after payment of the claims of the plaintiff, and other incumbrances. A motion may be made by the mortgagor, before a Judge in Chambers, for payment of the residue. Since 11th March, 1879, a wife having dower in a mortgage, does so only for the purpose of the mortgage, and is consequently dowable out of any surplus after satisfying the mortgage debt. It will therefore be necessary wherever this right exists, that the wife should be notified, and provision made for her protection, in any order directing payment out of the surplus: The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70), s. 10; Mortindale v. Clarkson, 6 Oct. App. 1; but it would seem that the wife of a mortgagor who has joined in the mortgage should now be made a party by writ: Biong v. Fitzgerald, 15 P. R. 467; sed quære, whether, even now, a woman having a mere inchoate right to dower in mortgaged lands has any present right of redemption.

Execution creditors.

The Creditors' Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 81), applies to executions against lands which have been sold in a mortgage action; and the surplus after payment of specific incumbrancers is distributable, rateably among the execution creditors: Harvey v. McNeil, 12 P. R. 362; 24 C. L. J. 122.

Rules 480, 481.

The surplus proceeds of mortgaged land sold in the lifetime of the mortgagor are personalty, and, in case of intestacy, devolve as such, even though there be a power of sale which provides that the surplus is to go to the mortgagor "his heirs or assigns": In re Grange, Chadwick v. Grange, 1907, 2 Ch. 20.

Master to take account in redemption suits.

480. Upon a reference under a judgment for redemption, the Master shall, without any special direction, take an account of what is due to the defendant for principal money and interest, and his costs shall be taxed, and a time and place for payment appointed. C.R. 756.

Six months is usually allowed for redemption by the plaintiff in a redemption action, as in the case of a defendant in a foreclosure action: see Rules 474, 489, and notes. But it would seem that if the mortgagee were to insist on exercising his power of sale instanter, a mortgagor could not, by commencing a redemption action, where the right to redeem is not in dispute, procure an extension of time for redemption, nor even stay the sale pending the action, except on the terms of bringing the money sworn to be due by the mortgagee for principal, interest, and costs, into Court, to abide the taking of the account. But where the right of redemption is in dispute, a sale may be restrained until the trial or hearing of the cause without bringing the amount claimed into Court: Rhodes v. Buckland, 16 Beav. 212, 219; and the general rule requiring the payment of the money into Court may be modified, having regard to the special circumstances of the case: see Hickson v. Darlow, 23 Ch. D. 690; Macleod v. Jones, 24 Ch. D. 289.

In the event of a plaintiff in a redemption action failing to redeem at the time appointed he may be foreclosed: Rule 487.

Procedure where judgment is for redemption, etc.

481. Where the judgment is for redemption or foreclosure, or redemption or sale, such proceedings are in such case to be therenpon had, and with the same effect as in an action for foreclosure or sale, and in such case the last incumbrancer shall be treated as the owner of the equity of redemption. C.R. 757.

In an action for redemption the plaintiff is not entitled to a sale in default of redemption, and it is only where the mortgagee expressly consents, that a judgment in a redemption action can be so framed.

Usually the only alternative of redemption is foreclosure, or dismissal of the action, which is equivalent to a foreclosure. The plaintiff may be foreclosed: see Rule 487; and under this Rule the mortgagee may bring in any subsequent incumbrancers and foreclose them. But when the mortgagee brings in the subsequent incumbrancers it would seem that they would have the ordinary right of defendants in a foreclosure action, and be entitled to claim a sale on the usual terms, because the action then ceases to be a redemption action, and becomes one for foreclosure: see Rule 462.

A mortgagor, or any person liable to pay, is entitled to redeem any mortgage made after the 1st July, 1880, after it has run five years, even though the time limited by the mortgage itself for redemption has not expired: The Interest Act (R. S. C. c. 120), s. 10; Re Parker, 30 C. L. J. 140; but this provision does not extend to mortgages or debentures secured on real estate given by any joint stock company or corporation: Ib.: and after the time for redemption has been fixed by any judgment, order, or report, the right of a mortgagor to stop interest by redeeming at an earlier period than that named would seem to be doubtful: see Hill v. Rowlands, 1897, 2 Ch. 361; 77 L. T. 34.

Where a mortgagee takes proceedings to enforce his security, he cannot refuse to accept payment of the whole amount of principal and interest, even though part of it has not matured; but when his proceedings are confined to protecting his security, he cannot, so far as the Statute above mentioned applies, be compelled to accept payment of moneys not yet accrued due; the right to accelerate payment for default being his, and not that of the mortgagor; see Ex p. Ellis, 1898, 2 Q. B. 79; 78 L. T. 733; Ex p. Wickens, 1898, 1 Q. B. 542; Wickens v. Shuckburgh, 78 L. T. 213.

A reversioner, or remainderman, is not entitled to redeem a mortgage of the particular estate, without the mortgagee's consent, before the reversion, or remainder, has come into possession: Prout v. Cock, 1896, 2 Ch. 808.

Assignment of property, and delivery of documents.

482. Subject to the provisions of The Mortgages Act, upon payment of the amount found due, the mortgagee shall, unless the judgment otherwise directs, assign and convey the mortgaged property to the party making the payment, or to whom he may appoint, free and clear of all incumbrances done by him, and shall deliver up all deeds and writings in his custody or power relating thereto. C.R. 758.

The Act referred to in this Rule is R. S. O. c. 112, under which a person entitled to redeem, instead of taking a discharge, or reconveyance, may require the mortgage debt, and mortgaged property to be transferred by the mortgagee to any third person: see s. 3, unless the mortgagee is, or has been, in possession: see Ib., sub-s. 3.

Judgment creditor.

A judgment creditor is bound to assign his judgment to the party redeeming him: Bank of British North America v. Moore, 8 Gr. 461.

Who entitled to conveyance.

Where both the mortgagor, and a subsequent incumbrancer, pay the money due to the plaintiff into the bank, the subsequent incumbrancer has the right to a conveyance in preference to a mortgagor, and as between two incumbrancers, the one who is prior is entitled to the conveyance: see Teevan v. Smith, 20 Ch. D. 724.

Redemption by one of several interested in equity of redemption.

Where there are other persons interested in the equity of redemption, besides the person redeeming, the mortgagee should convey to the party redeeming, subject to the equities of such other persons: Pearce v. Morris, L. R. 5 Chy. 227; and see Boyd v. Petrie, L. R. 10 Eq. 482; L. R. 7 Chy. 392; and see further as to form of conveyance: Hartley v. Burton, L. R. 3 Chy. 365.

Reconveyance.

Where a mortgagor who has assigned his equity of redemption, taking a covenant of indemnity from his assignee, is compelled to pay the mortgage debt, he is entitled to a reconveyance subject to the equities of persons other than himself in the property: Kinnaird v.

Trollope, 39 Ch. D. 636; 59 L. T. 433; Queen's Coll. v. Claxton, 25 Ont. 282; Stark v. Reid, 26 Ont. 257; and he is entitled to a charge on the land for the amount so paid as against his assignee: Hamilton Providt. L. & I. Co. v. Smith, 17 Ont. 1. As to the terms of a conveyance to a tenant for life who redeems: see Alderson v. Elgey, 26 Ch. D. 567. Where a mortgage is paid off, the mortgagee is bound to reconvey the mortgaged property so that it will revest in the mortgagors; if he reconvey to one of several mortgagors, he will be liable at the suit of the other mortgagors for any loss they may sustain by his so doing: Magnus v. Queensland National Bank, 36 Ch. D. 25; 57 L. T. 136; affirmed by C. A.: 37 Ch. D. 466; 58 L. T. 248. Rule 482.

A subsequent incumbrancer redeeming a prior mortgage is bound to take over all collateral securities of which he has notice, in the hands of the mortgagee, or is liable to subsequent incumbrancers for the value thereof: Glover v. Southern L. & S. Co., 1 O. L. R. 59. If a mortgagee has put it out of his power to reconvey the whole of the mortgage security, he may be compelled to make compensation for the part he is unable to reconvey: Smith v. Hunt, 2 O. L. R. 134; 4 O. L. R. 633.

A mortgagor redeeming is entitled to a reconveyance, or vesting order, and is not obliged to accept a certificate of discharge of the mortgage: Ellis v. Ellis, 1 Chy. Ch. 257; McLennan v. McLean, 27 Gr. 54.

Where, owing to the disappearance of a mortgagee trustee, a reconveyance or discharge cannot be obtained from him, and it becomes necessary to obtain a vesting order under The Trustee Act, the mortgagor is liable to pay the costs of obtaining such order: Webb v. Crosse, 1912, 1 Ch. 323.

Where the mortgagee has realized part of his securities, the party redeeming is not entitled to any reconveyance thereof: see Manks v. Whiteley, 1911, 2 Ch. 448; 105 L. T. 504; see p. 509.

The costs of the reconveyance are chargeable to the mortgagor as part of the price of redemption: see Webb v. Crosse, supra.

C. R. 758 provided that the delivery of deeds was to be on oath, which meant that an affidavit might be required from the mortgagee proving that the deeds delivered were all that he had received, but this provision has been dropped from the present Rule.

Lost mortgage, indemnity required.

Where the mortgagee has lost the mortgage deed, he is bound, at his own expense, to furnish the mortgagor, or any incumbrancer redeeming him, with proof of the loss, and with an indemnity against any demand of third persons: McDonald v. Hime, 15 Gr. 72; and see Caldwell v. Matthews, 62 L. T. 799.

Redemption money, how paid out of bank.

In order to get the money out of the bank, it is necessary to produce to the officer required to sign the cheque, the consent of the party paying it in, duly verified, or that of his solicitor, if any. If this consent cannot be procured, an order must be obtained in Chambers, on notice to such party, and the costs of such motion will not be ordered to be paid by the latter: Bernard v. Alley, 2 Chy. Ch. 91; Weeks v. Stourton, 11 Jur. N. S. 278. There should also be produced to him a certificate from the bank that the money has been paid in, and the judgment and report, if any, under which it was paid in.

Payment of redemption money.

Rules 483, 484.

The party paying in the money, is entitled to receive his conveyance and deeds, and to be let into possession, before the money is paid out.

Order for payment of deficiency may be obtained, when.

483. If the purchase money is not sufficient to pay what has been found due to the mortgagee (where the mortgagor or person liable to pay the debt is a defendant), he shall be entitled on an ex parte application, to an order for the payment of the deficiency. C.R. 386.

Judgment on covenant, on praecipe.

Where a personal order for payment is claimed by indorsement on the writ, that relief may now be awarded by the judgment in the first instance, without waiting for the ascertainment of the deficiency: see Forms 101, 102, 154; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 904, 905.

Enforcing judgment on covenant after foreclosure.

Where the judgment is for foreclosure, accompanied by a personal remedy for payment of the mortgage debt, if the mortgagee, after obtaining a final order of foreclosure, enforces the judgment for payment, by issuing execution, or otherwise, he thereby opens the foreclosure. If he has in such a case, parted with the mortgaged property after obtaining the final order (otherwise than under a power of sale), any further proceedings to enforce the payment of the debt will be restrained on motion: see Rule 486, note p. 1082.

Order for payment of deficiency, only granted when there is a personal liability.

The order for payment of deficiency can only be granted where there is a personal liability to pay. See cases cited in note to Rule 460.

Where there is a covenant express, or implied, for payment of the mortgage debt, a mortgagee, who has exercised his power of sale, is entitled to sue for any deficiency which may remain due after deducting the proceeds of the sale, and the fact that the mortgagee has again acquired the land is no objection to his right to recover: Pegg v. Hobson, 14 Ont. 272.

Where a mortgagor, who has parted with his equity of redemption, is sued on his covenant to pay the mortgage debt, he is entitled, as against the assignee of the equity of redemption, to a lien on the mortgaged land, if still in the hands of the mortgagee, subject to redemption, for any sum so paid, if the assignee of the equity of redemption has agreed to assume the mortgage: Hamilton Provident L. & I. Co. v. Smith, 17 Ont. 1.

Where account changed after being ascertained, new account may be taken.

484.—(1) Where the state of the account ascertained by a judgment order or report is changed before the final order is obtained, the mortgagee may either before or after the day appointed for payment apply ex parte to fix, by reference to a Master or otherwise, the amount to be paid in lieu of the amount previously ascertained, or where the day appointed for payment has not arrived, may give notice to the party by whom the money is payable that he gives him credit for a sum certain, to be named in the notice, and that he claims that there remains due in respect of such mortgage money a sum certain, to be also named in the notice.

Or notice of credit given.

Rule 485.

New day.

(2) Where the application is made after the day appointed for payment, and in other cases if so directed, a new day for payment shall be appointed.

Final order may be granted if notice of credit given, or party may have new account taken.

(3) Where notice of credit has been given, if the sums named therein appear proper to be allowed and paid, the final order may be granted without further notice; but the party to whom the notice of credit is given may apply to fix, by reference to a Master or otherwise, the amounts proper to be allowed and paid instead of the amounts mentioned in the notice. C.R. 387.

Notice of credit must be served before day of payment.

A notice of credit must be given before the day for payment arrives: see also Knottinger v. Barber, 1 Chy. Ch. 258. Notice of credit of payments, or rents, which have been received after the day fixed for redemption, need not be given: see Rule 486, note. Such payments do not affect the plaintiff's right to a final order, unless indeed they amount to a total extinguishment of the debt: National Perm. Mutl. B. B. Socy. v. Raper, 65 L. T. 668.

A new day was appointed where accounts had been altered by a new arrangement between the plaintiff and defendant as to payments: McCollum v. Caston, 1 O. L. R. 240.

The procedure prescribed by this Rule must be followed, and it is not enough to entitle a plaintiff to a final order, after the account has been changed, to state on affidavit that the outgoings have exceeded the receipts since the date of the report: Foresters v. Pegg, 13 P. R. 254.

When notice has been given under this Rule, or the payment on account has been made after the day fixed for redemption, the final order may be obtained, notwithstanding the alteration in the state of the account, without appointing any new day: Ib.

Action may be dismissed before judgment on payment of arrears and costs.

485.—(1) In an action for foreclosure or sale, or for recovery of possession of any mortgaged property for default in the payment of interest, or of an instalment of the principal, the defendant may, before judgment or after judgment, but before sale or final foreclosure or recovery of possession of the mortgaged property, move to stay the action upon payment of the amount then due for principal, interest and costs. C.R. 388.

(2) Any action so stayed may upon subsequent default in the payment of a further instalment of the principal, or of the interest, be proceeded with by leave of the court. C.R. 389 and 390.

Rule 485 applies to actions for redemption.

The Rule, in terms, is confined to actions for foreclosure, or sale, and for recovery of possession of mortgaged property for default in payment of principal or interest; but it has been held that a mortgagor bringing an action for redemption is within the equity of this

Rule 485.

Rule: Moore v. Merritt, 6 Gr. 550; Dornyn v. Fralick, 21 Gr. 194; see contra, Tylee v. Hinton, 3 Ont. App. 53; but a plaintiff in an action for redemption claiming the benefit of this Rule is not entitled to six months for payment of the instalment in default: Dornyn v. Fralick, supra. The Rule is held not to apply where the mortgagee is seeking to enforce a power of sale: Robertson v. Hetherington, 8 C. L. T. 141; nor where he is suing solely on the covenant for payment, even though the principal has become due by virtue of an acceleration clause in the mortgage: Wilson v. Campbell, 15 P. R. 254.

Mortgagee bringing action cannot claim six months' notice, or six months' interest.

Formerly when the principal money due under a mortgage was not paid off at the date at which it was covenanted to be paid, the mortgagee was entitled to six months' notice of payment, or six months' interest: Lotshow v. Davis, Blake, V.C., 7th June, 1877; and see Re Houston, 2 Ont. 84; Trust & Loan Co. v. Kirk, 8 P. R. 203; Archbold v. Building & Loan Association, 15 Ont. 237; Smith v. Smith, 1891, 3 Ch. 550; 65 L. T. 234; notice was not necessary where the six months' interest was paid: Johnson v. Evans, 61 L. T. 18; but a mortgagee bringing an action for sale, or foreclosure, or taking steps to enforce payment, could not insist on getting six months' notice of payment, or in default thereof, six months' interest: Letts v. Hutchins, L. R. 13 Eq. 176; Re Alcock, Prescott v. Phipps, 23 Ch. D. 372; 49 L. T. 240; Bovill v. Endle, 1896, 1 Ch. 648; nor could a mortgagee who entered into possession: Bovill v. Endle, supra; or who proved his claim in a partition action: Re Houston, 2 Ont. 84; and see In re Moss, 31 Ch. D. 90; 54 L. T. 49; nor an equitable mortgagee by deposit of title deeds: Fitzgerald's Trustee v. Mellersh, 1892, 1 Ch. 385; 66 L. T. 178. This right to six months' notice, or six months' interest, does not exist in the case of a mortgage made after 1st July, 1888, unless there is an express stipulation therein to that effect: see The Mortgages Act (R. S. O.), c. 112, s. 15; see R. S. C. c. 120, ss. 10, 11.

Although, after action for foreclosure brought, a mortgagor may, at any time before judgment, tender the amount due with interest to the date of tender, and the plaintiff is bound to accept it, yet after judgment, it has been held, in England, that a defendant cannot waive the six months allowed for redemption without the consent of the plaintiff: Hill v. Rowlands, 1897, 2 Ch. 361, but quære, how far the statutes above referred to would enable a defendant to do so in Ontario.

In default of payment of instalment, whole amount secured becomes due.

Upon default in payment of any instalment of principal, or interest, the mortgagee has a right, without any express stipulation to that effect, to call in the whole amount secured by the mortgage: Cameron v. McRae, 3 Gr. 311; but this right may be qualified by the express stipulation of the parties, as, for instance, where there was an express proviso that in default of payment of any instalment of interest for six months, the whole principal money should become payable, it was held that a suit for foreclosure would not lie until the lapse of the six months: Porker v. The Vine Growers' Association, 23 Gr. 179; and see Hooper v. Herts, 1906, 1 Ch. 549; 94 L. T. 324; Williams v. Morgan, 1906, 1 Ch. 804; 94 L. T. 473.

The acceptance of instalments after default has been made entitling the mortgagee to call in the principal, though not necessarily a waiver of the right to enforce payment, is a circumstance to be considered where a waiver is claimed: Seal v. Gibson, 110 L. T. 583.

Rule 485.

Proviso accelerating payment, how construed.

Where there was a proviso accelerating payment of principal and interest in the event of the mortgagor mortgaging, or otherwise incumbering the property, or suffering it to become liable to sale for taxes, it was held that a voluntary assignment in insolvency was not within the proviso: McKay v. McFarlane, 19 Gr. 345. Under a clause accelerating payment of mortgage money in the event of default, a mortgagee, who neglects to call in the mortgage money pursuant to the proviso, cannot in a redemption action treat the sums, of which the payment is accelerated, as overdue, and claim interest thereon: McLaren v. Miller, 20 Gr. 637.

How far Court can relieve from express proviso for accelerating payment in event of default, quaere?

It was held by Spragge, C., that even though there be an express stipulation in the mortgage, that in default of payment of any instalment the whole mortgage money shall become payable, the mortgagor may, nevertheless, after default, claim the benefit of this Rule: Gemmell v. Burn, 7 P. R. 381; and see Knapp v. Cameron, 6 Gr. 559; but in Tylee v. Hinton, 3 Ont. App. 53, Moss, C.J.A., expressed a doubt whether the Court had any power to relieve against such a stipulation, either under this Rule, or under its inherent jurisdiction to relieve against penalties, and forfeitures; and see General Credit & Discount Co. v. Glegg, 48 L. T. 182. It cannot, therefore, be said to be clear that the Rule applies to cases where there is an express proviso accelerating the payment of the mortgage debt in the event of default.

Interest to be paid up to last gale day.

Where a defendant moves to stay proceedings under this Rule, he may obtain the stay, on payment of the interest calculated up to the last gale day, and is not obliged to pay it, up to the time of making the application: Strachan v. Murney, 6 Gr. 378; but, if the defendant desires to pay off the whole amount of the mortgage debt, the mortgagee cannot refuse to accept it: Cruso v. Bond, 9 P. R. 111; 1 Ont. 884 (overruling Green v. Adams, 2 Chy. Ch. 184); Ex p. Wickens, 1898, 1 Q. B. 543; 78 L. T. 213; Re Ellis, 1898, 2 Q. B. 79; 78 L. T. 733; although in a redemption action he might not be bound to accept more than the instalments in arrear: see Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500.

Mortgagee plaintiff cannot refuse to accept payment of whole debt.

The making of a motion to stay proceedings on payment of principal and interest is not equivalent to a tender: Kinnaird v. Trollope, 42 Ch. D. 610.

This Rule does not apply where, after judgment, the parties agree to an extension of the time for payment by instalments. In the event of the mortgagor making default he has no right, on payment of instalments in arrear under the agreement, to have the proceedings stayed: see Keen v. Biscoe, 8 Ch. D. 201; McCollum v. Caston, 1 O. L. R. 240.

Stay of proceedings under Rule 485, effect of.

After payment has been made, under this Rule, of the instalments in arrear, it is irregular for the plaintiff to take any further proceedings in the action, until another instalment falls due: Carroll v. Hopkins, 4 Gr. 431; and not even then, without the leave of the Court: see Rule 485.

Where subsequent default made after stay, form or order.

Where, after a judgment of foreclosure, the proceedings are stayed under this Rule, on a subsequent default being made, on the plaintiff's application to enforce the judgment, and the defendant asking for a further stay on payment of the arrears, an order may be made directing payment of the whole sum in six months, and in default

Rule 485. foreclosure, with liberty to the defendant to pay the arrears forthwith, and in that event staying the proceedings: Strachan v. Devlin, 1 Chy. Ch. 8.

In default of redemption final order may be granted in Chambers.

486. In default of payment according to the report in a foreclosure action, a final order of foreclosure may be granted against the party making default, on an ex parte application. C.R. 385.

Judgments in mortgage actions in the usual form, are to be read as if this Rule was incorporated therein: see Rule 519. Where the judgment is for sale in default of redemption, in like manner a final order for sale should be obtained: see Rule 478.

A final order is, generally speaking, necessary in all cases where a judgment directs anything to be done, upon the default of a party in doing a given act by a future day; the final order being the judicial determination that the default has in fact taken place.

Application for, how made.

Application for Final Order.—The application may be made to the Master in Chambers, or to any local officer having like jurisdiction.

Affidavit of non-payment to be produced.

In order to obtain a final order for default of redemption in a mortgage action, it is necessary to produce an office copy of the judgment, an office copy of the report, if any, the affidavit of the party to be redeemed of non-payment, and non-receipt of rents, and negativing his being in possession: Scott v. McDonnell, 1 Chy. Ch. 193; Burford v. Lymburner, Ib. 275; Prees v. Coke, L. R. 6 Chy. 645, or, in case any sum has been paid since the account was taken, and before the day appointed for redemption, showing that notice has been given pursuant to Rule 484, or, in case the party is in possession, showing no receipts, beyond those for which credit has been given in the account. For forms of affidavits: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 598-600.

There must also be produced a certificate of the cashier, or other like officer: Campbell v. Garrett, 1 Chy. Ch. 255, of the bank, where the money is appointed to be paid, of non-payment of the money, on the date of the judgment, or since, duly verified by affidavit: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 596, 597.

Affidavit of non-payment, by whom to be made.

Affidavit of Non-payment. — Where there are several parties entitled to the money directed to be paid, the affidavit of non-payment should be made by all: Annis v. Wilson, 1 Chy. Ch. 217; Kinnaird v. Yorke, 60 L. T. 380; but where one of the parties is out of the jurisdiction, his affidavit may be dispensed with: Lyman v. Kirkpatrick, 2 Gr. 625; Counter v. Wylde, 1 Gr. 538; and see Frith v. Cooke, 52 L. T. 798, where the affidavit of the plaintiff's solicitor was accepted: Kinnaird v. Yorke, supra; where a sole plaintiff resides out of the jurisdiction, the affidavit of his agent will be accepted, and in such case the affidavit should show where the custody of the mortgage has been: Rae v. Shaw, 1 Chy. Ch. 209; and where, in such a case, the affidavit is made by the solicitor of the plaintiff, it should show that the plaintiff has no other agent within the jurisdiction authorized to receive the money: Taylor v. Cuthbert, 1 Chy. Ch. 240; but see Moody v. Tyrrell, 6 P. R. 313; Gillen v. Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation, 7 Ont. 146; McMullen v. Polly, 12 Ont. 702;

13 Ont. 299. An agent should state that he is authorized to receive the money: Powers v. Merriman, 1 Chy. Ch. 225; but it is not, however, necessary to produce the agent's authority: Radclyffe v. Duffy, 1 Chy. Ch. 302; and where the party to receive the money is a corporation aggregate, the affidavit of an officer of the company must show that he is the proper officer to receive the mortgage money: Western Assurance Co. v. Coprcol, 1 Chy. Ch. 227. Rule 488.

The affidavit of non-payment must he made after the day appointed for redemption: Blong v. Kennedy, 2 Chy. Ch. 453. When to be made.

When Notice Necessary.—The motion for a final order is usually ex parte: Henderson v. Cowan, 1 Chy. Ch. 297; Rule 486. But where two years had elapsed since the default, before the motion was made, notice was required to he served: Kirkhoffer v. Stafford, 2 Chy. Ch. 52; Ardagh v. Orchord, 2 C. L. J. 303; and where it appeared hy the report, that the defendant had not received notice of the proceedings in the Maeter's office, in a caee in which he was entitled to notice, notice of the motion was required to he eerved: McCormick v. McCormick, 6 P. R. 208; and where the account has heen changed even after the day appointed for redemption, notice ehould he eerved: Portman v. Smith, 2 C. L. J. 167; Forcsters v. Peg', 19 P. R. 254. Notice of motion when necessary.

On What Grounds Final Order Refused.—The order may be refused where the account ie changed hy the receipt of money before the day fixed for redemption: Prees v. Coke, L. R. 6 Chy. 645; Garlick v. Jackson, 4 Beav. 154. Final order, when refused, where account changed.

Where the mortgagee ie in occupation, or receipt of rents, he should be charged with rents up to the day fixed for redemption, or a new account muet be taken, and a new day appointed for payment: Pipe v. Shafer, 1 Chy. Ch. 251; and it was heid that this must he done even where the plaintiff ewore he wae in occupation merely as a caretaker: Cummer v. Tomlinson, 1 Chy. Ch. 235; or where a receiver had been appointed: Jenner-Fust v. Needham, 31 Ch. D. 500; 54 L. T. 420, affirmed hy C. A. 32 Ch. D. 582; Piat v. Nicholson, 80 L. T. Jour. 374; hut see Rule 474, notc; Hoare v. Stephens, 32 Ch. D. 194; 54 L. T. 230; Holt v. Beagle, 55 L. T. 592; Ingham v. Sutherland, 63 L. T. 614.

But the plaintiff'e going into poeeeesion and receiving rents, after the day appointed for payment, does not affect his right to a final order: Portmon v. Smith, 2 C. L. J. 167; Greenshields v. Blackwood, 1 Chy. Ch. 60; Constable v. Howick, 5 Jur. N. S. 331; National Perm. B. S. v. Raper, 65 L. T. 668.

Where before the day appointed for payment, the office of the bank, at which the money is made payable, ie cloeed, a new day must be appointed: King v. Connor, 1 Chy. Ch. 274. So where a Sunday was appointed for payment, the final order was refueed: Holcumb v. Leach, 3 Gr. 449. Refused where bank closed.

Where it appeared that the decree was erroneous, a final order was refused: Commercial Bank v. Graham, 4 Gr. 419; and see Mitchell v. Strathy, 28 Gr. 80. Or judgment erroneous.

Where a sole mortgagee, or one of eeveral joint mortgagees, diee before the day appointed for payment, unless the judgment provides in the latter caee for payment to the eurvivore, a new account must Death of mortgagee, effect of.

be taken, and a new day appointed: Blackburn v. Caine, 22 Beav. 614; Kingsford v. Polle, 8 W. R. 110.

Crown cannot be foreclosed.

Where the Crown is entitled to the equity of redemption, a final order of foreclosure cannot be obtained, but merely an order authorizing the mortgagee to take possession until the Crown may see fit to redeem: Dunn v. Attorney-General, 10 Gr. 482, or the security be satisfied: Hodge v. Attorney-General, 3 Y. & C. 342; Seton (4th ed.), 1044. A sale may be ordered where the Crown is interested: Bartlett v. Rees, L. R. 12 Eq. 396.

The final order may be refused where an extension of time for redemption is asked, and reasonable grounds therefor are shown, and the same relief may be granted in a redemption action, where the judgment provides for the dismissal of the action in default of payment, so long as the final order of dismissal has not been granted: Collinson v. Jeffery, 1896, 1 Ch. 644; 74 L. T. 78.

Effect of final order.

A bar to redemption.

Effect of Final Order.—The final order for foreclosure, so long as it remains in force, is an absolute bar to the parties foreclosed from claiming the right to redeem. But it is no bar to the mortgagee, as long as he is in a position to restore the mortgaged property, from seeking to enforce payment of the mortgage debt: Lockhart v. Hardy, 9 Beav. 349; Munsen v. Hawes, 22 Gr. 279; and see Worthington v. Abbott, 1910, 1 Ch. 585; 101 L. T. 895. But if, after a final order for foreclosure, he takes proceedings to enforce payment of the debt, that ipso facto operates as an opening of the foreclosure, and entitles the mortgagor to a reconveyance on payment of the money: Palmer v. Hendrie, 27 Beav. 349; 28 Beav. 341. If, however, the mortgagee, by his own act, unauthorized by the mortgagor, has made it impossible to restore the mortgaged property, proceedings to enforce payment of the debt will be stayed on the application of the mortgagor: Ib.; The British and Canadian Loan & Investment Co. v. Williams, 15 Ont. 366; and see Re Thuresson, 3 O. L. R. 271; Beatty v. Bailey, 26 O. L. R. 143.

Unless mortgagee enforces payment of mortgage debt.

A final order of foreclosure obtained against an assignee of the equity of redemption for the benefit of creditors, is no estoppel to a subsequent action by him on behalf of the creditors of the mortgagor, under The Assignments and Preferences Act (R. S. O. c. 134), s. 12 (2), to set aside the mortgage for fraud where no such issue was raised in the action for foreclosure: Glass v. Grant, 16 Ont. 233.

Where a final order was granted, after a defendant had died, and without obtaining an order to continue proceedings against his representatives (see Rules 300-302), it was held to be void: Kennedy v. Forwell, 11 O. L. R. 389.

The fact that a subsequent incumbrancer consents to a judgment or foreclosure in favour of a prior mortgagee does not preclude him from suing on a covenant for payment contained in his mortgage: Worthington v. Abott, supra.

Opening foreclosure at the instance of the mortgagor.

Opening of Foreclosure at the Instance of the Mortgagor.—Even after a final order has been obtained, the mortgagor may apply to set aside the order, and to be let in to redeem: and this relief was granted even as against a purchaser from the mortgagee after the final order of foreclosure: Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 166; 26 W. R. 160; Johnston v. Johnston, 9 P. R. 259; Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254; and see Re Parbola, Blackburn v. Parbola, 1909, 2 Ch. 437; 101 L. T. 382.

Rule 468.

But usually, where a mortgagee has entered into a binding contract to sell either under a power of sale, or after a final order of foreclosure, the mortgagor cannot be let in to redeem: Standard Realty Co. v. Nicholson, 24 O. L. R. 40; Kenney v. Barnard, 17 O. W. R. 889. A purchaser who has purchased pending foreclosure proceedings, and whose rights are expressly subject to the termination of the proceedings by a final order in favour of the mortgagee, stands in a different position from one who comes in for the first time after the final order has been made, and is much more readily made subject to the discretion of the Court to open the foreclosure. But it has been said that this relief can only be granted where the final order has been obtained by actual positive fraud, or under circumstances of oppression: Potch v. Wa L. R. 3 Chy. 203, 212; and in Trinity College v. Hill, 2 Ont. 848; 18 C. L. J. 387, the relief was refused as against a purchaser from the mortgagee after the final order, there being no such circumstances; but this case was subsequently reversed in appeal on the ground of irregularity in the proceedings; the sale having taken place under a decree nisi, which had not been made absolute before the final order was obtained: S. C., 10 Ont. App. 99. When the rights of third parties do not intervene, and the plaintiff can be replaced in the same position he occupied before the default, and recompensed for any damages he may have suffered, and there is a reasonable prospect of payment shown, the foreclosure may be opened, and the time for payment extended: Waddell v. McColl, 2 Chy. Ch. 62; but some reasonable excuse must be shown for not redeeming at the time appointed, and the fact that the property is of much greater value than the amount due should be established: Johnson v. Ashbridge, 2 Chy. Ch. 251. The fact that the property has increased in value, is not alone a sufficient ground for opening the foreclosure: Miles v. Cameron, 9 P. R. 502; 19 C. L. J. 235; 3 C. L. T. 361. In Platt v. Ashbridge, 12 Gr. 106, the foreclosure was opened after a lapse of eighteen months, the mortgagor being illiterate, and having no solicitor, and not understanding the proceedings, and the property appearing to be worth three times the amount of the incumbrance.

Not opened as against purchaser from mortgagee except where fraud shewn.

When rights of third party do not intervene, it may be opened.

Evidence required.

The Court refused to open a foreclosure merely because a receiver, by mistake, neglected to account for all the rents he had received before the final order was granted: Ingham v. Sutherland, 83 L. T. 614.

Where, after a final order of foreclosure against subsequent incumbrancers, the mortgagor redeems; that has the effect of opening the foreclosure as against the subsequent incumbrancers: Reed v. Smith, 14 Gr. 250; S. C., 16 Gr. 52; Box v. Bridgman, 6 P. R. 234; Otter v. Lord Vaux, 2 K. & J. 650; 6 D. M. & G. 638; and see Ledbrook v. Passman, 59 L. T. 306; Re Howard, 29 L. R. Ir. 266. In Hilliard v. Campbell, 7 Gr. 96, a final order of foreclosure was set aside at the instance of a purchaser of the equity of redemption pendente lite, but without notice of it, but in Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 407, such relief was refused.

Mortgagor redeeming after mesne incumbrancers have been foreclosed.

Purchaser of equity of redemption.

Terms on which Foreclosure Opened at the Instance of the Mortgagor.—The terms on which a foreclosure is opened are in the discretion of the Court. Where the security is not ample, the mortgagor may be required to pay the interest and costs by an early day, and six months may be allowed for the payment of the principal: Fisher on Mortgages, 5th ed., 926; Robbins on Mortgages, 1047. But where the security is ample, the costs of the action, and Terms on which foreclosure opened.

Rule 487.

of the application, may be ordered to be paid forthwith, and the time extended for payment of the principal and interest, the defendant being charged with interest on the gross amount of the principal and interest, for the per' t of the extension: see Trinity College v. Hill, 9 Ont. 286; 20 C. L. . 359, 385; Holford v. Yate, 1 K. & J. 677; Whitfield v. Roberts, 7 Jur. N. S. 1268; Thornhill v. Manning, 1 Sim. N. S. 451; and see Howard v. Macara, 1 Chy. Cb. 27, and other cases cited in note to Rule 474.

Opening Foreclosure at the Instance of a Subsequent Incumbrancer.—See Scottish American Investment Co. v. Brewer, 2 O. L. R. 369, where the circumstances were such that the mortgagor might have successfully applied, and the incumbrancers, his creditors, even though they had not proved their claim, were held entitled to the same relief as the mortgagor.

Opening foreclosure by mortgagee.

Opening of the Foreclosure by the Mortgagee.—So long as the mortgagee is in a position to restore the mortgaged property, he may at any time open the foreclosure by enforcing payment of the debt. But if, after he has obtained a final order, he has parted with the mortgaged estate, or any part of it (otherwise than under power of sale: see Pegg v. Hobson, infra), so that he is not in a position to re-convey, he will be restrained from recovering the debt: Lockhart v. Hordy, 9 Beav. 349; Gowland v. Garbutt, 13 Gr. 583; Burnham v. Galt 16 Gr. 417; Chatfield v. Cunningham, 23 Ont. 153; but see Bald v. Thompson, 16 Gr. 177; but the making of a mortgage by the mortgagee on the mortgaged estate, will not prevent him from opening the foreclosure by suing for the mortgage debt, if at the time of his bringing the action, he has paid off the mortgage, and is in a position to re-convey: Munsen v. Hauss, 22 Gr. 279.

Cannot be opened by mortgagee if not in a position to re-convey.

But this rule does not necessarily apply in the case of a second mortgagee whose estate has been extinguished by the first mortgagee, nor will the inability to re-convey the mortgaged estate bar a mortgagee's right to sue on the covenant where such inability arises from the default of the mortgagor: Beatty v. Bolley, 26 O. L. R. 145.

Where the mortgagee has incapacitated himself from restoring the mortgaged property intact, he will be disabled from enforcing payment: Re Thuresson, 2 O. L. R. 271; but this principle does not apply where the property is not intact merely owing to the removal or destruction of a building on it, unless, semble, the building is of such a character that compensation in money (which the mortgagor is, in such an event, entitled to) would not be an adequate indemnity: Mendels v. Gibson, 9 O. L. R. 94; and where the property was not intact by reason of the mortgagee having granted a right of way across part of it, he was given an opportunity to remove this difficulty: Re Thuresson, supra.

A mortgagee who has exercised his power of sale, where there is a personal liability to pay the mortgage debt, is entitled to sue for the deficiency: the fact that the mortgagee has acquired the land since the sale, is no objection to his right to recover: Pegg v. Hobson, 14 Ont. 272. In the absence of any objection to the sale under the power, the acquisition of the estate by the mortgagee would not give the mortgagor any new right of redemption.

Order on default.

487. In a redemption action, on default of payment being made according to the report, the defendant shall be entitled, on an ex parte application, to a final order of foreclosure against the plaintiff, or to an order dismissing the action with costs to be paid by the plaintiff. C.R. 391. Rules 486, 488.

See Rules 486, 488, and notes.

As to the evidence of non-payment: see Docksey v. Else, 64 L. T. 256.

The Court may in a proper case extend the time for redemption, at any time before a final order of dismissal, or foreclosure: Collinson v. Jeffery, 1896, 1 Ch. 644; 74 L. T. 78.

488. In a redemption action where the plaintiff is declared foreclosed, directions may be given either by the final order foreclosing the plaintiff, or by subsequent orders, that all necessary inquiries be made, accounts taken and proceedings had for redemption or foreclosure, or redemption or sale, as against any subsequent incumbrancers, or for the adjustment of the relative rights and liabilities of the original defendants as among themselves. C.R. 392. Directions where plaintiff in redemption action is foreclosed.

The dismissal of an action for redemption by a mortgagor usually operates as a foreclosure; and where a bill did not pray redemption, but a decree for redemption was granted, it would seem a subsequent dismissal operated as a foreclosure: Cornwell v. Henriod, 12 Gr. 338; but this is not the case where the mortgage is by deposit of title deeds, because in such a case a judgment of foreclosure would provide for the execution of a legal mortgage, but the mere dismissal of an action to redeem cannot have that effect, though it may preclude the mortgagor from bringing another action to redeem: Marshall v. Shrewsbury, L. R. 10 Chy. 250; it would seem, however, that the defendant, on obtaining the dismissal, may also obtain an order for the absolute conveyance of the property: see note infra, p. 1087. Dismissal of action for redemption operates as a foreclosure.

Where an action for redemption is brought by a second mortgagee and he is foreclosed, the mortgagor, as well as the first mortgagee, has a right to have a day appointed for the redemption of the first mortgage by the mortgagor: McKinnon v. Anderson, 18 Gr. 684. The defendant who is sought to be redeemed, need not, unless he pleases, proceed under this Rule, and he cannot be deprived of costs of any subsequent action for foreclosure, or redemption, for not having done so: Ib. Subsequent proceedings.

Where a second mortgagee brings an action to redeem a prior mortgagee, and to foreclose the mortgagor; in default of redemption, the action may be dismissed as against both the prior mortgagee, and the mortgagor, with costs: Hallett v. Furze, 31 Ch. D. 312; 55 L. T. 12.

489. In mortgage actions the period allowed for redemption in the first place shall be six months and when it becomes necessary to fix a date for redemption after Redemption after six months.

Rule 490.

the lapse of the first period the further time allowed shall be one month. C.R. 393.

Before this Rule the practice was to allow each person, or set of persons, successively entitled to redeem, three months from the taking of the subsequent accounts respectively. Incumbrancers having a specific lien by mortgage were successively allowed each a separate day in order of their priorities, but since The Creditors' Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 81), s. 4, execution creditors have been together given one day for redemption, their order of priority conjointly being that of the first execution creditor: see note to Rule 474.

The terms of this Rule are probably wide enough to be applicable to the time to be given to a mortgagor, where foreclosure is ordered after an abortive sale: see note to Rule 460.

Parties interested in equity of redemption may be allowed to be added in M. O.

490.—(1) Where one or more of the persons interested in the equity of redemption are already defendants, and it is made to appear that by reason of their number or otherwise, it is expedient to permit the action to proceed without the presence of the other persons interested in the equity of redemption, the Court may give directions accordingly, and may order such other persons to be made parties in the Master's office after judgment.

(2) Where after judgment it appears that persons are interested in the equity of redemption besides those who are already parties, such persons may be made parties in the Master's office upon such terms as may seem just. C.R. 190.

This Rule and Rules 77-84, 404 and 470, constitute an exception to the general rule of practice, that after judgment parties cannot be added: see Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 765, per Chitty, L.J., at p. 774; and see Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297.

Parties to whom Rule applies.

The words "persons interested in the equity of redemption" in this Rule are intended to apply to persons interested in the ultimate equity of redemption, i.e., the mortgagor or any one standing in his place. As a general rule, all parties interested in the ultimate equity of redemption in mortgaged property, ought to be made original defendants in an action to enforce the mortgage, by sale, or foreclosure: Paterson v. Holland, 8 Gr. 238; Buckley v. Wilson, 8 Gr. 566; but not mesne incumbrancers, or execution creditors, who are always added in the Master's office: see Rule 470.

Where a co-mortgagor (even though only a surety) is not made a party to an action to foreclose the mortgage, the foreclosure of his principal is not binding upon him: Gee v. Liddell, 1913, 2 Ch. 62; 108 L. T. 913.

This Rule makes an exception to the general rule, and enables the Court or a Judge to direct that parties interested in the ultimate equity of redemption, may be made parties in the Master's office.

Rule 490.

Under the former Con. Rule 306 it was not clear whether before judgment the other persons could, by order, be directed to be added in the Master's office. It was in Chancery done either upon motion for judgment: Jones v. Bank of U. C., 12 Gr. 429; Faulds v. Harper, 2 Ont. 405; or upon motion in Chambers afterwards: see cases infra. This Rule contemplates either an interlocutory order, or an order embodied in the judgment. Such a direction, however, cannot be inserted in a judgment obtained on præcipe, because this is a matter of judicial discretion.

When order to add parties interested in the equity of redemption in the M. O. may be obtained.

Upon any such motion to add parties in the Master's office the parties already before the Court are entitled to notice, but not those intended to be added: Penner v. Canniff, 1 Chy. Ch. 351; Harrison v. Greer, 2 Chy. Ch. 440; Rumble v. Moore, 1 Chy. Ch. 59; but see Cummins v. Harrison, 1 Chy. Ch. 369, where the order was granted ex parte. But after a final order of foreclosure, or sale, the application is, in general, too late: see Orford v. Bayley, 1 Chy. Ch. 272; Street v. Dolan, 3 Chy. Ch. 227. And where the plaintiff had not acted with reasonable diligence in framing his suit, the order was refused: Portman v. Paul, 10 Gr. 458.

Setting aside orders.

Where an order of this kind has been obtained in Chambers after judgment, the defendant so added should be served with a copy of the order adding him, and also with an office copy of the judgment which, by analogy to the procedure laid down in Rule 87, should be indorsed with a notice according to Form No. 41; H. & L. Forms, No. 967. Any motion to set aside or vary the order, or judgment, should be made to the Court: Tice v. Myers, 3 C. L. J. 102.

Wherever the party added claims by title paramount to the plaintiff's, he may move to discharge the order adding him as a party: Montgomery v. Shortis, 3 Chy. Ch. 69; but see note to Rule 471.

Conflict between co-defendants as to equity of redemption, how determined.

Occasionally it happens that the plaintiff is unable to determine which of the defendants is entitled to the equity of redemption, or there may be a conflict between defendants on this point inter se. The Court will not, however, determine such questions ex parte, even against defendants who have not appeared, but will pronounce the usual judgment directing all the defendants to redeem, leaving them to settle their rights inter se by a separate proceeding: Robinson v. Dobson, 11 Gr. 357, and see Bumsey v. Thompson, 8 Gr. 372; or may direct the Master to inquire as to the point: Cayley v. Hodgson, 13 Gr. 433. But latterly any such reference if ordered has been directed as a separate reference from the general reference in the cause, and so as the plaintiff may not be put to expense, or delay, thereby: see decree in Johnson v. Neezer, D. B. 27, fo. 150.

Wife of Mortgagor.—Whether the wife of the mortgagor who joined in the mortgage to bar her dower should be a party to an action for foreclosure or sale has been several times considered. Prior to R. S. O. 1887, c. 133, ss. 5-8 (see now The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70), ss. 10, 11, it was held that she was neither a proper, nor a necessary party: see Moffatt v. Thomson, 3 Gr. 111; Davidson v. Boyes, 6 P. R. 27. After that Act she was held to be a proper party: Building & Loan v. Carswell, 9 P. R. 73; Ayerst v. McClean, 14 P. R. 15. In Casner v. Haight, 6 Ont. 451, she was held, by Proudfoot, J., to be not a necessary party, but the contrary view was taken by Rose, J., in Blong v. Fitzgerald, 15 P. R. 467, where, on her application, she was added as a defendant, the opinion being intimated that she was a necessary party in order to bind her by the proceedings. The weight of authority appears to be rather in favour of the view that she is a proper, but not a necessary party. The safer practice is to add her as a party, though strictly speaking a married woman having a mere inchoate right of dower in the equity of redemption has no present right to redeem: see per Riddell, J., Standard Realty Co. v. Nicholson, 24 O. L. R. at p. 51. Where the wife of a mortgagor has covenanted to pay the mortgage debt of her husband, she is entitled as his surety to redeem apart from her right as dowress: Ib.

Husband of Mortgagor.—In view of what is said by Osler, J.A., in Moore v. Jackson, 19 Ont. App. at p. 396, and see Wallace v. Lee, 28 S. C. R. 595; it would seem safer to add the husband of a married woman mortgagor as a defendant in an action for foreclosure, or sale, notwithstanding the estate mortgaged may have been her separate estate.

Infant Heirs of Intestate Mortgagor.—Though the record may be complete as a matter of title, since The Devolution of Estates Act, by making the administrator of the mortgagor sole defendant (see Plenderleith v. Smith, 5 O. W. R. 753), yet as a matter of procedure the infant heirs are proper parties, and as such should be made defendants to the writ, unless some good reason exists for omitting them: Keen v. Codd, 14 P. R. 182. See notes to Rule 74 (2).

Devisees of a mortgagor were ordered to be added: Watts v. Lane, 84 L. T. 144.

Where the mortgaged estate proves insufficient to satisfy the mortgage the mortgagee is entitled to administration of the deceased mortgagor's estate and to follow assets thereof into the hands of legatees who have received any part thereof: Re Eustace, Lee v. McMillan, 1912, 1 Ch. 561; 106 L. T. 789.

Railway Co.—A railway company which has expropriated part of the mortgaged property and obtained an award fixing the compensation is a proper party to a foreclosure action when the award has not been taken up, and the compensation has not been paid: Scottish Investment Co. v. Prittie, 20 Ont. App. 398.

Prior Mortgagees.—Con. Rule 305 of 1888 has not been inserted in the present Consolidation, as the practice which it stated is now too well established to require stating in a Rule. That Rule was as follows:

Where relief is sought subject to prior mortgage, prior mortgagee an unnecessary party.

"305. Where the plaintiff prays a sale or foreclosure, subject to a prior mortgage, the prior mortgagee is not to be made a party either originally or in the Master's office, except under special circumstances to be alleged in the statement of claim. Chy. O. 440."

That Rule was, and the practice which it stated will still be, confined to cases where the plaintiff claims relief subject to the prior mortgage; where he seeks to redeem, or in any way to bring in question the right of the prior mortgagee, the latter must, of course, be made a defendant by writ.

Formerly Chy. O. 439 provided that where a bill was filed by a subsequent incumbrancer seeking relief against a prior mortgagee, such mortgagee must be made a party previous to the hearing of the cause; but that Order was in 1888 omitted from the Rules as being no longer necessary. The practice it prescribed, however, is still in force. Rule 480.

Subsequent incumbrancer, action for redemption by.

An action for redemption by a subsequent, against a prior mortgagee, will not lie, unless the prior mortgage, and that of the plaintiff, are both overdue: Parsons v. Bank of Montreal, 15 Gr. 411; Long v. Long, 16 Gr. 239. The owner of the equity of redemption is a necessary party to such an action: Ib.

A bill, by a subsequent incumbrancer, against a prior mortgagee, claiming the right of redemption, but not offering to redeem him, was not demurrable: Pearson v. Campbell, 2 Chy. Ch. 12 (but see Rogers v. Lewis, 11 Gr. 257); and it would probably now be held that a statement of claim, omitting an offer to redeem, would not be open to objection under the present practice: see National Bank of Australasia v. United Hand in Hand Band of Hope, 4 App. Cas., at p. 400.

Not entitled to a sale

A subsequent incumbrancer, bringing an action against a prior mortgagee, is not entitled to a sale: McDougall v. Campbell, 6 S. C. R. 502; unless the prior incumbrancer consents, or does not object, to a sale: Grange v. Barber, 2 Chy. Ch. 189; he is only entitled to judgment for redemption, and in default of redemption he is foreclosed: see Rule 487, or the action is dismissed, as against both mortgagee and mortgagor with costs: Hallet v. Furze, 54 L. T. 12, which is equivalent to a foreclosure of the plaintiff: Cornwall v. Henriod, 12 Gr. 338; Inmon v. Wearing, 3 De G. & Sm. 734; except in the case of an equitable mortgage by deposit: Marshall v. Shrewsbury, L. R. 10 Chy. 250, unless in the latter case the defendant on obtaining the dismissal obtains also an order for the absolute conveyance of the property, as he probably might do under the present system of procedure: see Jud. Act, s. 16 (h).

In an action by a subsequent incumbrancer, to redeem, he may also impeach transactions by the prior mortgagee in reference to the mortgaged estate: McLaren v. Fraser, 15 Gr. 239.

Prior mortgagee, when he may be made a defendant.

Although a prior mortgagee can, ordinarily, only be made a party to an action by a subsequent incumbrancer, for the purpose of redeeming him, yet where the prior security is created by a deed absolute in form, a subsequent incumbrancer is at liberty to bring him before the Court for the purpose of showing his interest to be redeemable, without offering to redeem him: Moore v. Hobson, 14 Gr. 703; and see Rogers v. Lewis, 12 Gr. 257. To such an action the execution creditors of the alleged mortgagee are necessary parties: Glass v. Freckleton, 10 Gr. 470; and see Darling v. Wilson, 16 Gr. 255, 257.

Subsequent incumbrancer obtaining sale has no priority for costs.

Where a prior incumbrancer is made a party to an action by a subsequent incumbrancer, and a judgment for sale is obtained by consent, or without objection on the part of the prior incumbrancer, the proceeds of the sale must be distributed in payment of the claims of the incumbrancers according to their priorities, and in such a case the plaintiff is not entitled to any priority in respect of his costs, even though the fund prove insufficient: Grange v. Barber, 2 Chy. Ch. 189.

Assignee of equity of redemption, when entitled to attack prior mortgage for fraud.

Where the equity of redemption was valueless, and an assignment thereof was made merely for the purpose of enabling the assignee to impeach a prior mortgage, on the ground of fraud, for the benefit of the assignor, the assignment was held to savour of champerty, and no relief was granted to the assignee, even though he asked in the alternative for redemption: Mucholl v. Banks, 10 Gr. 25; and see

Rule 490.

Little v. Hawkins, 19 Gr. 267; Wigle v. Setterington, Ib., 512; Bell v. Walker, 20 Gr. 558; Hilton v. Woods, L. R. 4 Eq. 432. But where the assignee takes beneficially, and the assignment is not made merely to enable him to sue in respect of the alleged fraud, it would seem that he may maintain the action: Scear v. Lawson, 15 Ch. D. 426; Dickinson v. Burrell, L. R. 1 Eq. 337.

Liability of purchaser of equity of redemption.

The purchaser of an equity of redemption is, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, under an implied obligation to indemnify the mortgagor against any further claim under the mortgage: Waring v. Ward, 5 Ves. Jr. 690; 7 Ves. Jr. 332; but where is an express agreement as to indemnity, that precludes any implied agreement: Mills v. United Counties Bank, 1911, 1 Ch. 669; 104 L. T. 632; 1912, 1 Ch. 231; 105 L. T. 742.

Relief against other incumbrancers.

A subsequent incumbrancer may, in the same action, obtain relief against the mortgagor, and incumbrancers subsequent to himself—consequent on his redeeming the prior mortgagee: Rogers v. Lewis, 12 Gr. 257; McLaren v. Fraser, 15 Gr. 239; and see Rule 477.

Prior mortgagee owning eq. of red., account for rents by.

A prior mortgagee in possession, who is also the owner of the equity of redemption, is only bound to account to a subsequent incumbrancer for rents and profits, on the footing of a mortgagee in possession, until his mortgage is paid off; any subsequent receipts he is entitled to retain without account as owner: Steinhoff v. Brown, 11 Gr. 114.

CHAPTER XVII.

APPEALS AND NEW TRIALS.

(i) Appeals to Divisional Courts.

Rules 491 and 492 are repealed and the following substituted therefor:—

492.—(1) An appeal from a judgment pronounced at a trial or a motion for a new trial shall be by notice of motion returnable before a Divisional Court seven days after service, and shall be set down to be heard within fifteen days from the date of the judgment.

(2) All other appeals shall be by a notice of motion returnable before a Divisional Court two clear days after service and shall be set down to be heard within seven days from the date of the judgment or order.

(3) Cases shall be entered on the list for hearing as soon as the papers are completed.

(4) If the evidence is not deposited within seven days after notice from the office of the Registrar of the High Court Division that it has been received from the stenographer, the appeal shall be deemed to be abandoned and costs may be taxed as provided by Rule 660.

(5) The notice of motion may be according to the following form:—

(STYLE OF CAUSE.)

Take notice that the appeals to a Divisional Court from the judgment (or order) pronounced by on the day of 191 , on the following grounds (stating them briefly).

Dated the day of , 191 .

Solicitor for

To , Esq.,

Solicitor for (Rule passed, 19th June, 1914).

Rule 492.

This Rule was published after some part of this work was in print, and modifies what is said on previous pages as to the sittings of the Divisional Court of the Appellate Division (e.g., pp. 133, 139).

Sittings of Appellate Division.

The Sittings of the Appellate Division.—For the sittings of the Appellate Division: see Jud. Act, s. 42.

The following Rule regulating the sittings of the Appellate Division was passed on December 13th, 1912, and approved on 2nd January, 1913, the confirmation on the latter day being necessary because The Law Reform Act (1909), Part I. did not come into force until 1st January, 1913, and until then there was no jurisdiction to pass the Rule.

"It was recommended that excepting long vacation, the Sittings of the Divisional Court be held weekly, commencing Monday of each week, except that in the month of January, the first Sittings be held on the first Monday after the 6th of the month and that in the month of September the first Sittings be held on the first Monday after the 14th of the month."

This Rule has not been officially published.

The effect of Rule 492, supra, appears to be to require appeals and motions to be set down for the Appellate Division as if the sittings were continuous. Formerly the sittings of Divisional Courts of the High Court of Justice were monthly. And it was assumed that the same rule applied to the sittings of the Appellate Division: see Jud. Act, 1913, ss. 42 (1), 75. The Rule of 2nd January, 1913, seems to have made the sittings of the Divisional Courts of the Appellate Division weekly, and now this Rule in effect makes them continuous, except during the periods mentioned in the Rule of the 2nd January, 1913. The second clause of the Rule would appear not to apply to County Court, District Court, Surrogate Court or Division Court appeals, as to which there are special statutory provisions: see supra, pp. 131, 136.

See Jud. Act, ss. 24-31, and notes, supra.

The Court may, on a special application, allow the appeal to be set down on short notice, and stay proceedings pending the appeal: Todd v. Rusnell, 17 P. R. 127.

As to how far a motion to a Divisional Court operates to stay execution and other proceedings under the judgment: see Rules 496-498.

The "date of the judgment" means the day of pronouncing the judgment or order: see Rule 512, and Hickey v. Stover, 11 P. R. 88; but where judgment is not given in open Court: see Wallace v. Bath, 7 O. L. R. 522. Vacations are not to be reckoned in the 15 days, or 7 days: Rule 179.

A motion to extend the time for moving under this Rule should be made before the Divisional Court itself: Imperial Loan Co. v. Baby, 13 P. R. 59. For circumstances under which the time may be extended: see Hickey v. Stover, 11 P. R. 88.

A motion for a new trial was allowed after the time for moving had elapsed under peculiar circumstances, in Wilkins v. Wilkins, 12

T. L. R. 212, where it had been decided at the trial that a man was dead, but he was subsequently found to be alive. Rule 492.

The seven days' notice of motion, under clause (1), are not expressed to be clear days; as to the mode of their computation: see Rule 173. Formerly notice was required to be given for the first day of the sittings, and would not be sufficient if given for any subsequent day, although given in time to permit the motion to be set down two clear days before the commencement of the sittings: Sierichs v. Woodcock, 13 P. R. 260.

The two days' notice of motion under clause 2 are expressed to be "clear days"; for mode of their computation: see Rule 173 (2).

Where a solicitor had instructed his clerk to set down a case, but the clerk, by a mistake in supposing that the days limited for that purpose were not clear days, allowed the last day to pass, this was held not a sufficient ground for granting leave to set the case down: Rumohr v. Marx, 18 C. L. J. 444; 19 C. L. J. 10; 3 C. L. T. 31.

Where judgment for defendants was delivered on 22nd November, and the plaintiff's solicitor immediately applied for a copy, but did not receive it until 29th November, which was the last day for setting down a motion to reverse the judgment, and there was therefore, no time to consult either the plaintiff, or counsel, the Court held that the delay was sufficiently excused, and granted leave to set down, upon payment of costs: Foley v. Canada Permanent, etc., 18 C. L. J. 444; 3 C. L. T. 32.

Abandonment of appeal.

Where a cause has been set down, and notice of abandonment subsequently served, it will not be restored to the list on the appellant's application, unless he make out a case in which it would be proper to grant leave to appeal: Union Bank of Canada v. Rideau Lumber Co., 19 P. R. 106; semble, he should show that the judgment, or order, to be appealed from is primâ facie wrong, and that there is good ground for allowing the appeal to prevent a substantial wrong or injustice: Ib.

Striking out.

Where a case is improperly set down, a substantive motion to the Divisional Court should be made to strike it out: Wansley v. Smallwood, 10 P. R. 233. Where the objection has not been taken until the case has been called on for argument, costs have sometimes been refused, although the objection has been sustained.

Notice must be formal notice.

The notice of appeal must be a formal notice; the mere communication, verbal, or otherwise, by an unsuccessful party to his opponent of his intention to appeal is not sufficient notice of appeal: In re Blyth & Young, 13 Ch. D. 416; Re New Callao Co., 22 Ch. D. 484; see Kettlewell v. Watson, W. N. 1883, 102.

Service of notice.

The retainer of a solicitor continues after judgment, so as to make service of notice of appeal on him good service on the client, until the client takes proper steps to inform his opponent that he has withdrawn his authority: De la Pole v. Dick, 29 Ch. D. 351.

Service of the notice must be made upon all parties affected by the appeal. It would, therefore, seem to be necessary for a defendant appealing to serve any co-defendant, or third party, against whom he claims relief over, and probably all against whom the plaintiff, in case the appeal is successful, can claim any relief different from that which the judgment already gives him: see formerly Freed v. Orr, 6 Ont. App. 690, not followed in Johnston v. Petrolia, 17 P. R. 332; Re Solmon, 42 Ch. D. 351.

Rule 492.

Where a notice of appeal has been given contrary to an undertaking not to appeal, the notice may be set aside on a motion to the High Court Division: Donovon v. Holdane, 14 P. R. 106.

Notice of appeal not necessary to give Court jurisdiction.

The service of notice as required by Rule 491 is not a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the appeal, and may be waived by the respondent: see Park Gate Iron Co. v. Coates, L. R. 5 C. P. 634.

Third parties.

A third party who has obtained liberty to contest the plaintiff's claim is not entitled to be heard on an appeal by plaintiff from a judgment dismissing the action: see Ewing v. Toronto, 18 P. R. 137.

Where a plaintiff appeals, third parties are held to be not "directly affected by the appeal": Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. 351, but quære whether they are not affected by the appeal, and entitled to notice under this Rule: see Re New Callao, etc., 22 Ch. D. 484; Eckensweiller v. Coyle, 18 P. R. 423; but see O'Sullivan v. Lake, 12 P. R. 550.

Trustees served with notice of appeal, and holding merely a neutral position, without any intention of taking any part in the argument, ought not to appear by separate counsel on the appeal: Carroll v. Graham, 1905, 1 Ch. 478.

Court may order parties not served to be notified.

Where it appears that a party who has not been served ought to be notified, the Court may direct service to be made, and may postpone the hearing of the appeal for that purpose, upon such terms as may seem just.

In Re Salmon, Priest v. Uppleby, 61 L. T. 146; W. N. 1889, 106, on an appeal by plaintiff the Court directed third parties to be served, who, if the judgment were reversed, would have to indemnify defendant, the defendant so desiring, though the Court considered that the third parties were only indirectly affected. The defendant was ordered to pay the costs of the adjournment.

As a rule a respondent will not be heard by counsel in support of the appellant's case, but the rule may be relaxed: see Re Marquis of Ailesbury's Settled Estates, 1892, 1 Ch. 506.

Default of parties at hearing—effect of.

If either party fails to appear the Court may hear the other party, and give judgment, or may postpone the hearing upon such terms as may seem just.

Extending Time for Appeal.—Formerly an unexplained oversight on the part of a solicitor, was held to be an insufficient ground for extending the time for giving notice of appeal; though it might be otherwise if an important question of law were involved, as to which there was a conflict between the Courts: Gordon v. Great Western Ry., 6 P. R. 300.

Under the present practice relief will be granted against a slip in practice, such as a failure to give notice of appeal, wherever the justice of the case requires it, and no injury has resulted to the opposite party which cannot be compensated for by costs; and, in considering what justice requires, regard is to be had to the bona fides of the applicant, and whether or not his proposed appeal appears to be groundless or frivolous: Ross v. Robertson, 7 O. L. R. 464; Ray v. Port Arthur, 7 O. L. R. 737; and the fact that the party desiring to appeal has taken some step within the month is deemed important: Cain v. Pearce, 4 O. W. N. 70; McClemont v. Kilgour Mfg. Co., 3 O. W. N. 1351.

Rules 493, 494.

Before applying for an extension of time, the solicitor requiring the time should apply for it to the opposite solicitor, who should in every proper case grant it: Bodine v. Howe, 1 O. L. R. 208. Where the opposite party unreasonably refused to consent to extend the time, an order extending the time was made without costs: Bodine v. Howe, 1 O. L. R. 208; McLaughlin v. Mayhew, 5 O. L. R. 114; and see McGuire v. Corry, 1 O. L. R. 590, where the costs of the application were made costs in the appeal.

Notice, when allowed to be served after time has elapsed.

Where the notice was served on the last day after office hours, the notice was allowed, but the Court doubted whether the section requiring notice applied in that particular case: Rose v. Hickey, 7 P. R. 390; and where notice had been served in due time on the respondent, but, through the negligence of a clerk of the appellant's solicitor, notice had not been served on the Registrar of the Court appealed from (which was then necessary), notice was allowed to be served on payment of costs: Re Laws, 9 P. R. 72; and see Re Crosby, Munns v. Burn, 34 Ch. D. 664; and where notice had been given, but the appeal was not set down in time, but security had been given for a large part of the debt and costs, leave to prosecute the appeal was given on terms: D'Ivry v. The World, 17 P. R. 543; see also Thuresson v. Thuresson, 18 P. R. 414; but where nothing was done within the time, and no sufficient special circumstances were shown, leave was refused: Miller v. Brown, 9 P. R. 542. In England a delay of three days beyond the prescribed time in delivering notice to the officer has been held fatal to the right of appeal: Ex parte Lamb, 45 L. T. 639, and see Ex parte Lyon, Ib. 768; Re Blyth & Young, 18 Ch. D. 416; and Wright v. Leys, 10 P. R. 354.

See also the cases relating to applications for leave to appeal in notes to Rule 176, and on pp. 115, 165, supra.

Grounds of appeal to be set out in notice.

493. Every notice of motion by way of appeal shall set out the grounds of the motion or appeal. C.R. 789.

C. R. 789 only applied to appeals to a Divisional Court. Under the present Rule it will be necessary to set out the grounds in every notice of motion by way of appeal, as notwithstanding the collocation of this Rule it is probably intended to apply not only to appeals to the Appellate Division, but also to appeals to the Weekly Court, or to a Judge in Chambers: see Rule 4.

A notice of motion for a new trial on the ground of misdirection, or non-direction, should state how and in what manner the Judge misdirected, or failed to direct, the jury: Pfeiffer v. Midland Ry. Co., 18 Q. B. D. 243; Mutt v. Smith, 12 P. D. 116; Scott v. Crerar, 11 Ont. 541; Furlong v. Reid, 12 P. R. 201; see 12 Ont. 607; and Hughes v. Dublin United Tramways Co., 1911, 2 Ir. R. 112. Amendment may be allowed in a proper case, but was refused in Furlong v. Reid.

Copy of judgment or order as settled to be furnished to Court.

494.—(1) The appellant shall when setting the appeal down deliver to the Registrar of the Appellate Division all papers necessary for the proper hearing of the appeal, including [five copies] of the judgment or order in question (or the settled minutes thereof [and of the reasons therefor unless reported]) and, where evidence is to be used, five copies of the evidence, certified as correct by the official stenographer. As amended by Rule passed December 1, 1913.)

Rule 494.

Five copies of shorthand notes to be delivered on motions for new trial, etc.

(2) If the copies of evidence have not then been prepared, it shall be sufficient if such copies have been duly bespoken and are deposited so soon as received from the stenographer. C.R. 791, 792.

The words in [ ] in clause (1) indicate the amendments.

Under this Rule it is necessary that the judgment or order appealed from be settled, though not necessarily entered, or issued, before the appeal comes on for argument. The staying of the entry of the judgment will not prevent its settlement for the purposes of this Rule. Where a judgment is entered before the appeal therefrom is heard, a stay of execution, where necessary, can be applied for under Rule 496.

As to whether an appeal will be quashed if this Rule has not been complied with: see Henderson v. Rogers, 15 P. R. 241.

Sometimes the order, or judgment, appealed from, is not delivered to the Registrar in order to delay the placing of the cass on the peremptory list, but this was held to be improper: Sherwell v. Combined Incandescent Mantles Syndicate, 124 L. T. Jour. 35; 1907, W. N. 211.

Fees for notes of evidence.

The fees payable to stenographers for copies of evidence on appeals to Divisional Courts and County Courts are regulated by the following Orders in Council.

Orders in Council dated 18th March, A.D. 1896.

Court Reporters.

The Committee of Council advise that the portion of the charges for copies of shorthand notes of evidence at trials at present payable to the "Shorthand Reporters' Fund" be abolished, and that the fees payable and applicable to the personal use of the reporters, be hereafter as follows:—

1. For single copies—five cents per folio.

2. For copies required for the Judges under Rules made or to be made in that behalf, and to be furnished at the expense of the parties, and for one copy for the party desiring to move thereon—six cents per folio of one copy for all the copies required of any one transcription of shorthand notes, not exceeding five altogether.

3. For any additional copies made for the parties—one and one-half cents per folio for each copy.

4. The charges aforesaid shall be paid to the reporter when and as the moneys payable in respect of such copies are collected, and no charge is to be made for copies required by the Attorney-General of Ontario, or by the Judges for their private use and not taxable to any party, or for copies which it is the duty of the reporter to supply without charge.

5. The extra reporters shall be allowed for their own use, the same fees as the regular reporters, with twenty-five per cent. added thereto, to be paid out of the "Shorthand Reporters' Fund."

6. The above charges are to apply only to cases entered for trial after 1st January, 1896. Rule 494.

[Local Masters, Referees, Special Examiners and others, entitled to take examinations or cross-examinations in the High Court and County Court shall, for copies of such examinations or cross-examinations, be entitled to the same fees for copies of notes of evidence at trials, as are payable to the Official Shorthand Reporters, vide 58 Vict. c. 13, s. 40.] (a).

Order in Council dated 26th May, A.D. 1896.

Upon the recommendation of the Honourable the Attorney-General, the Committee of Council advise that the Order in Council of 18th March, 1896, fixing the fees for copies of shorthand notes of evidence, payable to the Official Court Reporters, be amended by striking out the last paragraph thereof having reference to the fees for copies of evidence payable to Local Masters, Referees, Special Examiners, etc. (b). County Court Reporters.

The Committee further advise that the same fees as are under the said Order payable to the Official Court Reporters be paid to the Reporters in the County Courts (c).

Order in Council dated 12th August, 1897.

Upon the recommendation of the Honourable the Attorney-General, the Committee of Council advise that the same fees as are payable to the Official Court Reportere, for copies of shorthand notes of evidence under Order in Council of 18th March, 1896, be paid to the Official Reporter or other stenographer of the Master in Ordinary, for copies of notes of evidence taken on any reference before the Master in Ordinary. Master's office.

Order in Council dated the 29th day of January, A.D. 1913.

Having regard to the re-arrangement of the Courts under "The Law Reform Act, 1909," and upon the recommendation of the Honourable the Attorney-General, the Committee of Council advise that the Order in Council of 18th March, 1896, fixing the fees for copies of evidence to be taken for their own use by the Official Court Reporters, be revoked, and that the following be substituted therefor: Fees of shorthand writers in S. C. O.

1. For copies required for the Judges under Rules made or to be made in that behalf, and to be furnished at the expense of the parties, and for one copy for the party desiring to move thereon

---

(a) This clause was abrogated by order of 26th May, 1896, which follows.

Whether this order, though repealed, still governs the fees payable to stenographers in the office of the Master in Ordinary: Quære, see order in Council of 12th August, 1897.

(b) The fees payable to Local Masters, Referees, and Special Examiners, are fixed by Tariff B.

(c) See now Order in Council of 28th March, 1913, infra, p. 1096.

Rule 494.

seven and one-half cents per folio of one copy for all the copies required of any one transcription of shorthand notes not exceeding six altogether.

2. For any additional copies made for the parties two and one-half cents per folio for each copy.

3. The charges aforesaid shall be paid to the Reporters when and as the moneys payable in respect of such copies are collected. No charge shall be made for copies required by the Judges for their private use and not taxable to any party.

4. For copies of evidence and other proceedings in the case of a retrial in criminal cases furnished to the Attorney-General or the Crown prosecutor, two and one-half cents per folio.

Order in Council of the 28th day of March, A.D. 1913:—

Fees of shorthand writers in Local Courts.

Upon the recommendation of the Honourable the Attorney-General, the Committee of Council advise that, pursuant to the provisions of sub-section 2 of section 17, cap. 29, 9 Edward VII., the remuneration by salary of the Shorthand Writers of the Local Courts and the fees for copies of evidence to be taken by them for their own use, be fixed as follows:—

1. For services during the time actually employed, six dollars ($6) per diem.

2. For copies of evidence required for the judges under Rules made or to be made in that behalf and to be furnished at the expense of the parties, and for one copy for the party desiring to move thereon, seven and one-half cents per folio of one copy for all the copies required of any one transcription of shorthand notes not exceeding six altogether.

3. For any additional copies made for the parties, two cents per folio for each copy.

4. For single copies ordered, six and two-third cents per folio.

5. For copies ordered by the Judge for his own use, six and two-third cents per folio, to be paid by the County Treasurer upon the order or certificate of the Judge.

6. For reading evidence to the Judge from notes taken where no copies are ordered, at the rate of one dollar per hour, to be paid by the County Treasurer upon the order or certificate of the Judge.

The Committee further advise that the Orders in Council of 31st December, 1878, and 30th June, 1896, with reference to the above be revoked.

Copies of evidence.

The copies of evidence required for the appeal may be procured from the stenographer. In Supreme Court cases the order is given through the office of the Registrar of the H. C. D.

If the notes of the evidence taken have been lost, the Appellate Division may allow the evidence to be taken over again: Ex parte Firth, Re Cowburn, 19 Ch. D. 419; 51 L. J. Chy. 473.

Documents not proved or produced at the trial cannot be relied on or made part of the case in appeal: Lionais v. Molson, 10 S. C. R. 527. Rule 494.

Where no written judgment has been given by the Court or Judge appealed from, a statement of the grounds assigned for the judgment should be obtained from the reporter, or from the notes of counsel, and should be inserted in the appeal book: Blockley v. Kenny, 16 Ont. App. 522.

The formal judgment as drawn up, or the minutes thereof as settled, must be included in the papers to be used on the appeal. That is the subject of the appeal, and not the reasons upon which it is founded: Thompson v. Robinson, 16 Ont. App. at p. 184.

Printing Appeal Books.—No provision is made requiring the printing of appeal books. In some cases however the parties may desire to have them printed, and where that is the case it may be well to abide by the regulations formerly in existence in reference to the printing of appeal books, which were as follows:—

1. The book shall be printed upon both sides of the paper, which shall be of good quality, not less than 60 pounds to the ream.

2. The sheet when folded and trimmed shall be 11 inches long and 8½ inches wide.

3. The type in the text shall be pica, but long primer shall be used in printing accounts, tabular matter and notes.

4. The number of lines on each page shall be 47, as nearly as may be, exclusive of headlines, each line to be 5¾ inches in length, exclusive of marginal notes, and every tenth line on each page shall be numbered in the margin, and the other margin shall be one and one-half inches wide.

5. The books shall be bound in paper, not less than 60 pounds to the ream, and the backs shall be reinforced with cloth.

6. In cases in which an appeal lies to His Majesty in Council, and in any other case in which the parties so agree or a Judge upon the application of either party so directs, marginal notes, such as are required upon an Appeal to His Majesty in Council, shall be printed.

7. In other cases there shall be a headline on each page of evidence, giving the name of the witness and stating whether the evidence is on examination-in-chief, cross-examination, or as the case may be, and answers shall follow the questions immediately and not commence a separate line.

8. All exhibits shall be grouped, and be printed in chronological order.

9. At the beginning of the book there shall be an index setting out in detail the contents of the book in four parts, as follows:

Part 1. A statement of the case and each pleading, order or other document in chronological order, with its date.

Part 2. Each witness by name, stating whether for plaintiff or defendant, examination-in-chief or cross-examination, or as the case may be.

Part 3. Each exhibit, with its description, date and number in the order of filing.

Rule 494.

Part 4. All judgments in the Courts below, with the reasons for judgment (a), and the name of the Judge delivering the same, and the reasons for and against appeal.

10. The name of the Court, Judge, or Official, appealed from shall be stated on the cover and title page.

11. The book shall contain the date of the first proceeding and of the delivery of the several pleadings, but the style of the cause shall not be repeated.

Quashing Appeals.—Where an appeal does not lie, the Court may quash it, and order the appellant to pay the costs. A motion to quash should be made without delay; Federal Life Assce. Co. v. Siddall, 22 O. L. R. 96; and notice of motion may be served for any day the Court sits, two day's notice is sufficient: Rule 215. Such a motion need not be set down. On the return of the notice the Court may either hear the motion, or adjourn it to come on with the appeal. Where a party appeals contrary to an undertaking the proceedings may be quashed: Donovan v. Haldane, 14 P. R. 106.

Appellants may discontinue.

Discontinuance of Appeal.—An appellant may discontinue his appeal by failing to set it down, or by giving to the respondent a notice signed by the appellant or his solicitor, stating that he discontinues, and thereupon, in either case, respondent is entitled to the costs of the appeal: see Rule 660.

Where an appellant has given notice of his intention to withdraw his appeal, and has obtained the respondent's consent, he cannot afterwards revoke it, and proceed with the appeal: Watson v. Cave, 29 W. R. 768; 44 L. T. 40; 50 L. J. Chy. 561; 17 C. L. J. 366.

After notice of abandonment of an appeal has been given, any application for leave to restore it must be supported by evidence showing the existence of a primâ facie ground of appeal: Union Bank v. Rideau Lumber Co., 19 P. R. 106.

Where the Court had no jurisdiction, an appeal was quashed, with costs, the Court on the merits seeing no reason to differ from the decision of the Court below: Teskey v. Neil, 15 P. R. 244.

Costs on discontinuance or abandonment.

The costs of an abandoned appeal may be taxed without an order upon the production of the notice of discontinuance served, or of the notice of appeal, with an affidavit that the appeal has not been set down; and if the costs are not paid within 4 days from taxation the respondent may issue execution therefor: see Rule 660 (3).

Reasons for and against appeal.

Reasons for and against Appeal.—Although the reasons for the appeal are to be stated in the notice of motion under this Rule, there is no provision requiring formal reasons against the appeal to be delivered by a respondent.

If the appeal is from a part only of the judgment, the notice should specify the part.

Raising new points on appeal.

A new point may not be allowed to be raised in the Appellate Division, where, if raised, it might have been met by evidence:

(a) Where the judgment has been reported this is now not necessary: see Rule 494.

Ex parte Firth, Re Cowburn, 10 Ch. D. 419; 46 L. T. 120; Randwick v. Australian C. I. Corp., 1893, A. C. 322; Brown v. Dunn, 6 R. 67; Martin v. Great Northern Ry., 16 C. B. 179; see also Millar v. McTaggart, 20 Ont. 617; Connecticut F. Ins. Co. v. Kavanagh, 1892, A. C. 473; 67 L. T. 508; and the Court will not decide such point in favour of the party taking it, unless it is satisfied that it has all the facts before it, and that no satisfactory answer to it could have been given: Tasmania v. City of Corinth, 15 App. Cas. 223, approved L. R. P. C., Karunaratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 405; 86 L. T. 329; Archambault v. Archambault, 1902, A. C. 575; 87 L. T. 404. Rule 494.

Where certain issues were not raised on the pleadings, but at the trial had been treated as if raised, the objection that they were not pleaded was not allowed to be taken in the Appellate Court, because if taken at the trial an amendment would have been allowed: Kennan v. Murphy, 8 L. R. Ir. 285.

A point of law not taken at the trial may be raised for the first time on appeal: see McKelvey v. Le Roi Mining Co., 32 S. C. R. 664; provided that the appellate Court is satisfied that it has before it all the facts bearing on the new contention as completely as if it had been raised at the trial: Karunaratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 405; 86 L. T. 329; Archambault v. Archambault, 1902, A. C. 575; 87 L. T. 404; and see The Queen v. Poirier, 30 S. C. R. 36.

Where an appellant succeeds upon a point not adjudicated upon in the Court below he may not be allowed his costs: Goddard v. Jeffreys, 46 L. T. 904; Page v. Austin, 7 Ont. App. 1; Van Velser v. Hughson, 9 Ont. App. 390; Cooper v. Cooper, 59 L. T. 1. See also p. 1118.

In the Privy Council an appellant is not allowed to take a point not taken in the Court below: Corporation of Adelaide v. White, 55 L. T. 3; Randwick v. Australian C. I. Corp., supra; Connecticut F. Ins. Co. v. Kavanagh, 1892, A. C. 473; or to raise questions not raised in the Court below either on the pleadings or evidence: Grey v. Manitoba & N. W. Ry., 1897, A. C. 254; but see McKelvey v. Le Roi Mining Co., Karunaratne v. Ferinandus, and Archambault v. Archambault, supra.

Cross Appeal.—A cross appeal is an appeal by a respondent in respect to some matter in which the appellant is also concerned.

Under C. R. 813, which has not been continued, it was provided that a cross appeal should not be necessary, but that a respondent might in his reasons against the appeal set up any grounds which he desired to urge by way of cross appeal: see also Eng. (1883), R. 870. In the interpretation of that Rule the Ontario and English Courts have differed. In England it is held that where such a notice is given by a respondent the appellant cannot, by abandoning his appeal, prevent the respondent from having his point argued: see per Jessel, M.R., Re Cavander, 16 Ch. D. 270; but that the respondent, in such circumstances, is entitled to elect whether to continue, or withdraw his cross appeal. If he elects to continue, the original appellant and the respondent in effect change places, and the latter is, on the hearing of the respondents' appeal, entitled to rely on his original appeal by way of cross appeal: The Beeswing, 1884, 10 P. D. 18; 51 L. T. 883. In Ontario, however, the cross notice was held to be merely subsidiary to the appeal, and if the latter were abandoned, or dismissed for want of prosecution, the cross notice also fell: Pickering v. Toronto Ry., 16 P. R. 144, that case, however, turned on the difference in the practice as to the constitution of appeals in England, and Ontario, which appears no longer to exist. Under C. R. 813, a respondent might serve notice on a co-respondent claiming a variation in his favour of the judgment appealed from: Ex p. Payne, 11 Ch. D. 539; Harrison v. Cornwall M. Ry. Co., 18 Ch. D. 334; but, apparently, not in respect to a question in which the appellant was not interested; an independent appeal in such case would seem to be necessary: Johnston v. Petrolia, 17 P. R. 332, not following Freed v. Orr, 6 Ont. App. 690; but see Ralph v. Carrick, 11 Ch. D. 873; 40 L. T. 505.

A respondent could not give notice of cross appeal to parties, or persons, who were in no way affected by the original appeal: Begg v. Ellison, 14 P. R. 267; Johnston v. Petrolia, 17 P. R. 332; Re Cavander, 16 Ch. D. 270.

A respondent questioning the judgment under C. R. 813 was so far in the same position as an appellant, that anything which would be an answer to an independent appeal by him would be an answer to his cross appeal: Re Charles Stark Co., 15 P. R. 451.

Where a claim, and counter-claim, were both dismissed, and the defendant appealed from the judgment on the counter-claim, if the plaintiff desired also to appeal from the judgment on his claim, he must bring a separate appeal, and could not raise the question by a notice under the Eng. Rule above referred to: National Society, etc., v. Gibb, 1900, 2 Ch. 280.

Where a party adopts, or acts under, or enforces, a judgment or order, he usually waives his right to appeal therefrom: see infra, p. 1101.

Where a respondent sought to vary the order appealed from, leave to enforce the order pending the appeal, without prejudice to his cross appeal, was refused: Re Stark, 15 P. R. 451.

In the present Rules, no provision appears to be made for a cross-appeal by a respondent, except as an original appellant. This perhaps may prove inconvenient in practice, as it may necessitate each party obtaining copies of the evidence and all necessary papers for the purpose of complying with this Rule; unless by leave of the Court, and arrangement between the parties, the same papers be authorized to be received and used for the purposes of all appeals (if more than one) from the same order, or judgment.

A cross appeal of which notice could be given under C. R. 813, was limited to matters in which the original appellant was concerned; an appeal in which other parties are interested is not a "cross appeal:" Re Covender, supra; Begg v. Ellison, 14 P. R. 267; Johnston v. Petrolia, 17 P. R. 332.

Costs, where Cross Appeal Lodged.—Where respondents gave notice of intention to move to have the judgment varied, and both appeals were dismissed, the appellants were ordered to pay the costs, except such as were occasioned by the notice of the respondents: The Louretta, 4 P. D. 25.

Where there were two respondents, one of whom gave a cross notice affecting the other respondent, the appellant, whose appeal was dismissed, was ordered to pay half the costs of both the respondents, and the unsuccessful respondent in the cross appeal was ordered to pay half the costs of the other respondent: Horrison v. Cornwall Minerol Ry. Co., 18 Ch. D. 334. Where, however, the costs could not have been materially increased by the notice, no apportionment was made, but a fixed sum was allowed for costs incidental to the notice: Robinson v. Drakes, 23 Ch. D. 98. Rule 494.

As to the costs of a respondent who has given no notice of objection, and as to whom the judgment appealed from is reversed: see Challoner v. Lobo, infra.
