PREFACE

t is greatly to be regretted that, owing to illness, Mr. omas Langton, K.C., has been prevented from taking part in the preparation of this edition; because the ent re-framing of The Judicature Act and Rules has essitated the re-casting, re-arranging, and in many tances re-writing, of many of the notes included in the t edition, in which his assistance would have been st valuable.

t may perhaps be excused if the genesis of this edition here traced.

When the first Ontario Judicature Act was passed in l, in addition to the Rules which were included in the hedule to that Act, many of the former Common Law les, and Chancery Orders, were left in force, but it was officially stated which of them; and it had to be de- mined judicially as the question arose whether or not particular Rule or Order was still operative. In der to assist the profession in determining which of former Rules and Orders remained in force, the sent editor published in 1884 an annotated edition of b of them as be considered to be in force, a labour m which be derived little personal benefit, but which rertheless belped in tbe nltimate consolidation of the les in 1888, and to some extent laid the foundation the present work. In 1884, Mr. Langton also pnb- ed tbe second edition of Mr. Maclennan's book on Judicature Act and Rules of 1881. In 1888 the Rules re consolidated, and the first edition of Holmested & ngton's edition of the Act and Rules was published 1890, in which the prior labonrs of Messrs. Holmested and Langton on the Act and Rules were combined. A second edition was published in 1898, and a third in 1905.

The present work is the lineal successor of the various publications above mentioned, extending over thirty years, dealing with successive Ontario Judicature Acts and Rules, and has the advantage of being in effect coeval with the new procedure inaugurated in 1881, and the changes which have since, from time to time, been made therein.

The Forms in the Appendix to the Rules have been printed because in some cases they differ from those to be found in Holmested & Langton's Forms, which were published prior to the Rules now in force; and also because some annotations on these Forms appeared to be necessary.

The edition of Holmested & Langton's Forms referred to in this work is the second, which was published in 1911.

P.S.—Since the above was written Mr. Langton, K.C., has died. By all who had the honour and pleasure of his friendship he will be remembered as a true gentleman in every relation of life, and his learning and literary ability can by none be more warmly appreciated than by the editor of this work, with whom he laboured so many years in perfect amity.

THE JUDICATURE ACT

REVISED STATUTES OF ONTARIO, 1914

n Act respecting the Supreme Court of Ontario, the administration of Justice in Ontario.

S MAJESTY, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of rio, enacts as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

This Act may be cited as The Judicature Act. 3-4 V. c. 19, s. 1. Short title.

In this Act,— Interpretation.

(a) "Action" shall mean a civil proceeding commenced by writ, or in such other manner as may be prescribed by the Rules; "Action."

Interpleader matter comes within the above definition of "action" see Rule 3 (g).

tion" in England includes proceedings by originating summons: ritt, 30 Ch. D. 231; and, in Ontario, proceedings commenced by ing notice of motion under Rules 600, 610, 615, or by petition ule 692.

ounty Court action, although not in England commenced by s held to be an "action": Johnson v. Refuge Assurance Co., K. B. 259, and "Rules" was held to mean "Rules of the Court n the proceeding is initiated," consequently a Division Court ould be an "action" in Ontario.

(b) "Appellate Division" shall mean Appellate Division of the Supreme Court; "Appellate Division."

(c) "Cause" shall include an action, suit or other original proceeding between a plaintiff and a defendant; "Cause."

Sec. 2.

"County." (d) "County" shall include district;

"County Court." (e) "County court" shall include district court;

"County town." (f) "County town" shall include district town;

"Court of Appeal." (g) "Court of Appeal" shall mean Court of Appeal for Ontario;

"Defendant." (h) "Defendant" shall include a person served with a writ of summons or process, or served with notice of or entitled to attend a proceeding;

"Defendant" does not include a third party served with notice under Rule 165: Eden v. Weardale, 28 Ch. D. 333, 339; but by an order made under Rule 168 he may be placed in the same position as a defendant: Eden v. Weardale, 35 Ch. D. 287.

"Divisional Court." (i) "Divisional Court" shall mean Divisional Court of the Appellate Division;

"High Court." (j) "High Court" shall mean High Court of Justice for Ontario;

"High Court Division." (k) "High Court Division" shall mean High Court Division of the Supreme Court;

"Judge." (l) "Judge" shall include a Chief Justice and an ex-officio judge;

"Judgment." (m) "Judgment" shall include an order;

As to the difference between a judgment and an order: see Ex p. Chinery, 12 Q. B. D. 342; Re Schmitz, Ib. 509; Onslow v. Com. of Inland Revenue, 25 Q. B. D. 465.

"Matter." (n) "Matter" shall include every proceeding in the Court not in a cause;

"Party." (o) "Party" shall include a person served with notice of or attending, a proceeding, although not named on the record;

"Petitioner." (p) "Petitioner" shall include a person making an application to the Court, either by petition, motion or summons, otherwise than as against any defendant;

"Pleading." (q) "Pleading" shall include a petition or summons, the statement in writing of the claim or demand of a plaintiff, of the defence of a defendant thereto, and of the reply of the plaintiff to a counterclaim of a defendant; Sec. 2.

Summons" in the corresponding English section 100 does not a writ of summons: Murray v. Stephenson, 19 Q. B. D. 60.

the Rules, petitions are almost abolished, and all proceedings not ed to be commenced by writ of summons are to be commenced ginating notice: see Rule 10. Perhaps, by analogy, an originating may be a "pleading."

d in Ontario the "writ of summons" appears to be the only mons" to which this sub-section can apply. Quieting title pro- g: Rule 692, and petitions of right: Rule 738, are about the roceedings now required to be commenced by petition.

(r) "Plaintiff" shall include a person asking any relief otherwise than by way of counterclaim as a defendant against any other person by any form of proceeding; "Plaintiff."

s) "Proper officer" where that expression is used with respect to a duty to be discharged under this Act or the Rules and that duty has been heretofore discharged by a particular officer, shall mean that officer, and where that expression is used in respect to a new duty under this Act or the Rules shall mean the officer to whom the duty is assigned by this Act or by the Rules or if it is not assigned to any officer shall mean such officer as shall from time to time be directed to discharge the duty, if it relates to the Appellate Division by the Chief Justice of Ontario, or if it relates to the High Court Division by the President of that Division; "Proper officer."

) "Rules" shall mean Rules of Court, and shall include those made under the authority of this or any other Act, and those approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council on the 11th day of July, 1913; "Rules."

) "Supreme Court" shall mean Supreme Court of Ontario. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 2 (1). "Supreme Court."

ONSTITUTION AND JUDGES OF SUPREME COURT.

he Supreme Court shall be continued as a superior f record, having civil and criminal jurisdiction, hall have all the jurisdiction, power and authority Supreme Court continued.

which on the 31st day of December, 1912, was vested in or might be exercised by the Court of Appeal or by the High Court of Justice or by a Divisional Court of that Court, and such jurisdiction, power and authority shall be exercised in the name of the Supreme Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 3.

The Jud. Act has not fused the former two systems of Law and Equity, but has transferred each of these two jurisdictions to one Court which administers both systems: per Chitty, J., in Emmerson v. Ind., 34 W. R. 636; 54 L. T. 757; 33 Ch. D. 327; see 12 App. Cas. 300.

JURISDICTION OF THE SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO.

The jurisdiction of the former Courts now vested in the Supreme Court of Ontario was entirely statutory.

The general jurisdiction of the former High Court of Justice is defined in the former Jud. Act, R. S. O. (1897), c. 51, ss. 25-34, 36-39, 41 and 42. Some of its jurisdiction under other statutes was mentioned in s. 40.

These sections have not been re-enacted in the present Act, but inasmuch as they constitute the foundation of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court as at present constituted, it is necessary to refer to them.

The Supreme Court has now vested in it the jurisdiction formerly conferred on the High Court of Justice, and on the Court of Appeal. The High Court of Justice was formerly the Court of first instance, and the Court of Appeal an Appellate Court. Under the present constitution of the Court, the Supreme Court is both a Court of first instance and also a Court of Appeal, but these functions are exercised in two divisions, namely, the High Court Division and the Appellate Division.

JURISDICTION OF HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE UNDER THE ONT. JUD. ACT, R. S. O. (1897), c. 51.

Section 25 of that Act was as follows:

COMMON LAW JURISDICTION.

Jurisdiction of High Court.

"25. The High Court shall be a Superior Court of Record of original jurisdiction, and shall, subject as in this Act mentioned, possess all such powers and authorities, as by the law of England, are incident to a Superior Court of civil and criminal jurisdiction; and shall have, use and exercise all the rights, incidents and privileges of a Court of Record, and all other rights, incidents and privileges as fully to all intents and purposes as the same were on the 5th day of December, 1859, used, exercised and enjoyed by any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster in England, and may and shall hold plea in all and all manner of actions and causes as well criminal as civil, and may and shall proceed in such actions and causes by such process and course as are provided by law, and as shall tend with justice and despatch to determine the same; and may and shall hear and determine all issues of law, and may and shall also hear and (with or without a jury, as provided by law) determine all Fraud.

Fraud and Accident.—Fraud.—The jurisdiction by this section vested in the Court, in respect of fraud, is confined to fraud arising in reference to civil rights. A distinction has been attempted to be drawn between acts which are illegal but which are not accompanied by any moral turpitude, and acts which are both illegal and are the result of moral delinquency. The former class of acts have been termed "legal fraud": see Peek v. Derry, 37 Ch. D. 541, and the latter "moral fraud," or "actual fraud," but it has been denied that any such distinction exists, and that in all cases where "fraud" is charged it must be supported by proof of moral turpitude: Jolliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. D. 255; 48 L. T. 966; Weir v. Barnett, 3 Ex. D. 238, 243, per Bramwell, J.: and see In re Watson, 21 Q. B. D. 301; Peek v. Derry, 14 App. Cas. 337; Glasier v. Rose, 42 Ch. D. 436. The House of Lords in Peek v. Derry, 14 App. Cas. 337; 61 L. T. 265, has held that in an action of deceit the plaintiff must prove actual fraud, and such fraud is proved when it is shown that a false representation has been made knowingly or without belief in its truth, or recklessly, without caring whether it be true or false. A false statement made through carelessness, and with reasonable ground for believing it to be true, may be evidence of fraud, but does not necessarily amount to fraud; a false statement, if made in the honest belief that it is true, does not render the person making it liable to an action for deceit: Tomkinson v. Bolkis & Co., 1891, 2 Q. B. 614; Angus v. Clifford, 1891, 2 Ch. 449; Knox v. Haymon, 67 L. T. 137; Le Lievre v. Gould, 68 L. T. 626. But misrepresentations upon an application for life insurance found to be material will make void the policy, notwithstanding that they may have been made in good faith and in conscientious belief that they were true: Jordon v. Provincial Provident Institution, 28 S. C. R. 554.

The law as laid down in Peek v. Derry, supra, as regards false statements made by the directors of joint stock companies in prospectuses issued by them, is very materially modified by statute: see R. S. O. c. 178, ss. 107-109, and see Angus v. Clifford, 1891, 2 Ch. 449.

Where fraud is alleged in any proceeding, the facts must be set out in the statement of claim or petition, as the case may be, which are alleged to amount to fraud; mere general allegations that fraud has been committed are insufficient: Re Rica Gold Washing Co., 11 Ch. D. 36, per Jessel, M.R.

As to the effect on costs, of unsuccessfully charging fraud: see notes to s. 74, "Discretion of Court or Judge." Accident.

Accident.—By the term accident is intended not merely casualty, or the act of Providence, or what is technically called vis major, or irresistible force, but such unforeseen events, misfortunes, losses, acts, or omissions as are not the result of any negligence or misconduct the party seeking relief in respect thereof: Story, s. 78. One Sec. 3.

the most common instances in which relief is sought under this Accident.
d is in the case of lost bonds, or other instruments under seal.
such a case relief is usually granted on the terms of the plaintiff ing a bond of indemnity to the defendants: McDonald v. Hime, 15 72; but see Macauley v. Boyle, 25 C. P. 339; and where a suit brought to recover promissory notes alleged to be lost after urity, and the defendant allowed the bill to go pro confesso, indemwas dispensed with: Abell v. Morrison, 23 Gr. 109. A will lost destroyed may be established on parol evidence of its contents, and of due execution: Sugden v. St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 154; Cor-
v. Carroll, 34 C. L. J. 415; Stewart v. Walker, 6 O. L. R. 495. jurisdiction of the Court also extends to giving relief in respect nstruments which have been destroyed: Frontenac v. Breden, 17

nder this head of jurisdiction the Court may also grant relief in the of a defective execution of a power resulting from accident or mis-or both, and also in regard to agreements to executa powers, h may generally be deemed a species of defective execution: see . on Pow. 549. But this relief is only granted to persons having moral right, and where there are no opposing equities. Thus, relief may be granted in favour of a purchaser: Fothergill v.
rgill, 2 Freem. 256; under which term a mortgagee, or lessee, cluded: Barker v. Hill, 2 Chy. R. 113; Reid v. Shergold, 10 Ves. to a creditor: Pottord v. Greenvil, 1 Chy. Ca. 10; Wilkes v.
es, 9 Mod. 485; to a wife: Cowp. 267; Clifford v. Burlington, 2 379; to a legitimate child: Garth v. Blanfrey, Gilb. Eq. 8, 166;
v. Sneed, Amb. 64; and to a charity: Innes v. Soyer, 7 Ha. 377; grandchild: Watt v. Butlas, 1 P. Wms. 60; nor of remote rela-or volunteers: Smith v. Ashton, 1 Freem. 308.

der this head of jurisdiction, personal representatives who have stake overpaid creditors, or legatees, beyond the amount they stly entitled to receive, may recover the overpayment: Edwards eman, 2 P. Wms. 447; Hawkins v. Day, Amb. 160; Story, s. 90.
so Uffner v. Lewis, 5 G. L. R. 684; Re Horne, 1905, 1 Ch. 76.

relief cannot be given from the consequences of a positive con-thus, a lessee cannot get relief from payment of rent because 3 Ves. 34, 38; Story, s. 101; nor can relief be given on the of accident to a party whose own gross negligence or fault has mistake must be mutual in order to afford a ground for equitable relief, yet even a unilateral mistake which has been induced by the opposite party may be a ground for setting aside a contract: see Wilding v. Sanderson, 1897, 2 Ch. 524.

In Hurd v. MacKinnon, 1909, 1 Ch. 476; 100 L. T. 330, an appointment made in forgetfulness of the execution of a prior appointment in favour of the same appointee was set aside. Where a beneficial owner in a contract of sale contracted that he should not be bound to get in the outstanding legal estate, and a conveyance subsequently executed for the purpose of carrying out the contract by mistake in effect rendered him liable to do so, the deed was reformed in accordance with the contract: Fenner v. McNab, 107 L. T. 124. And where a trustee by mistake makes payments to the wrong person, the cestui que trust rightfully entitled may recover the sums so paid from the payee; if the latter knew he was not entitled he becomes constructive trustee for the person rightfully entitled; if on the other hand he received the payments thinking he was entitled to them, the action of the cestui que trust against him may be barred by the Statute of Limitations, if not brought within six years from the receipt of the money: see Re Robinson, McLaren v. Public Trustee, 1911, 1 Ch. 502; 104 L. T. 331.

By the common law, money paid under a mistake of fact is recoverable: Boylis v. Bishop of London, 1912, 2 Ch. 318; 1913, 1 Ch. 127, but not money paid under a mistake of law: Stanley v. Nuneaton, 108 L. T. 986.

Trusts.

Trusts.—The jurisdiction in respect of trusts was formerly a part of the exclusive jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery. By the Statute of Frauds (29 Car. 2, c. 3; see now R. S. O., c. 102), s. 9, all declarations or creations of trust or confidences, of any lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall be manifested and proved by some writing signed by the party who is by law enabled to declare such trusts, or by his last will in writing; and by s. 11, all grants and assignments of any trust or confidence shall likewise be in writing, signed by the party granting or assigning the same, or by his last will. Section 10 makes two exceptions from the statute: (1) trusts arising or resulting from any conveyance of lands or tenements, by implication, or construction of law; (2) trusts transferred or extinguished by act or operation of law. Trusts of chattels real must be evidenced by writing: Forster v. Hale, 3 Ves. 695; Riddle v. Emerson, 1 Vern. 108; but not trusts of chattels personal: McPhadden v. Jenkins, 1 Ph. 153; Benbow v. Townsend, 1 My. & K. 506.

A trust of land in a foreign country may be enforced by the Supreme Court where the trustee is resident within its jurisdiction: Smith v. Henderson, 17 Gr. 6; Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, 1897, 1 Ch. 196; and see Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robertson, 22 Gr. 449. Sed vide, Ross v. Ross, 23 Ont. 43.

The Court has jurisdiction under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 4, to appoint new trustees upon a summary application: Re Hellwell, 21 Gr. 346; Re Dillon, 3 C. L. J. 126.

The Court may also on a summary application by a trustee, guardian, or personal representative, give advice or direction respecting the management or administration of the trust property, or the assets of his ward, or his testator or intestate: see Ib. s. 66.

The Court is authorized to allow trustees compensation for their vices: Ib. s. 67. Sec. 3.

Executors and Administrators.—The jurisdiction of the Court r personal representatives authorizes it to entertain actions or ceedings to compel them to account for their administration: see les 608 et seq., to fix the compensation to be paid them for their vices: The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 101), s. 67; to control their nagement of the estate of their testator, or intestate, and if neces- y to restrain them from exercising their office, and to appoint a elver or other person to act in their stead: Harrold v. Wallis, 9 443; Re Moore, McAlpin v. Moore, 21 Ch. D. 778; Re Murphy, ore Boyd, C., 9th April, 1887; Johnson v. McKenzie, 20 Ont. 131; an injunction may be granted at the instance of an executor inst his co-executor to restrain him from intermeddling with the le before probate: In re Moore, Ker v. Moore, 13 P. D. 36; 58 L. 886; without appointing a receiver: Bourn v. Phillips, 1897, 1 Ch. ; 75 L. T. 629. Executors and administrators

The Court may also, on application, give a personal representative ice: see supra.

An executor may now be removed on the same grounds as the Court remove any other trustee: The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. Before that enactment, it was held that the High Court would remove an executor from his office while anything remained to ions by him as executor, even though the will provided for his ainance as a trustee after his duties as executor had ceased, and ad acted as trustee by investing the trust fund: Re Bush, 19 Ont. nd see Eaton v. Daines, 96 L. T. Jour. 413.

The statutory jurisdiction to remove an executor cannot, however, xercised summarily on motion in invitum; an action is necessary: Davis, 17 P. R. 187.

s to the testamentary jurisdiction of the Court: see infra, p. 24. q.

Co-partnership.—The Court of Chancery formerly exercised a urrent jurisdiction with the Courts of Common Law in partner- cases, but in all cases of difficulty and complexity the equity diction was resorted to. Under this head the Court has power ntertain actions for the specific performance of agreements to into partnership for a definite term: Buxton v. Lister, 3 Atk. England v. Curling, 8 Beav. 129; but not where no specified for the duration of the partnership has been named: Hervy v. , 9 Ves. 357. It has also power to enforce the specific per- ances of articles of partnership: Somerville v. McKay, 16 Ves. England v. Curling, 8 Beav. 129; Miles v. Thomas, 9 Sim. 606, Marshall v. Watson, 25 Beav. 501; Haggart v. Allan, 4 Gr. 36; ot where damages would be an adequate compensation: Street gby, 6 Ves. 815; British Empire Shipping Co. v. Somes, 3 K. & J. nor where the partnership is in contravention of any public Collins v. Swindle, 6 Gr. 282. has also power to decree a dissolution of partnership: Rawlins ckham, 1 Giff. 355; Hue v. Richards, 2 Beav. 305; Newton v. , 1 Gr. 596; O'Lone v. O'Lone, 2 Gr. 125; and to appoint a er of the partnership assets: Prentiss v. Brennan, 2 Gr. 274; Ib. . 17, note; and to decree the taking of the partnership accounts. partnership: Bingham v. Smith, 16 Gr. 373; and to decree an account up to the time of the commencement of the action, even where a dissolution is not asked: Loscombe v. Russell, 4 Sim. 8; Fairthorne v. Weston, 3 Ha. 387; and see Lyon v. Tweddell, 44 L. T. 785; 50 L. J. Chy. 571.

Account.

Account.—Under this head of jurisdiction the Court entertains actions for an account brought by a principal against his agent: McKenzie v. Johnson, 4 Mod. 373; Kerr v. Laferty, 7 Gr. 412; Ridley v. Sexton, 18 Gr. 580; 19 Gr. 146; Arthurton v. Dolley, 3 Gr. 1; Wright v. Ronkin, 18 Gr. 625; M'Lean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76; Smith v. Henderson, 17 Gr. 6; Harrison v. Harrison, 14 Gr. 586; Londman v. Crooks, 4 Gr. 353; but not necessarily by an agent against his principal: Padwick v. Stanley, 9 Ha. 627; Smith v. Leveaux, 2 D. J. & S. 1; and see Ascherson v. Tredegar, etc., Co., 1909, 2 Ch. 401. An action for an account will lie where there are mutual accounts between the plaintiff and defendant, i.e., where each has received and paid on account of the other: Phillips v. Phillips, 9 Ha. 471; or by cestui que trust against his trustee; or by creditors, legatees, or next of kin against personal representatives; or by a client against his solicitor; or by partners against each other; or by a mortgagor against his mortgagee, or vice versa; or where the accounts are complicated; or where fraud is charged; or by any party having a statutory right to call another to account, e.g., by a municipal corporation against a registrar of deeds for an account of moneys received by him in excess of his salary, to which excess the corporation is entitled: Re Ingersoll, Gray v. Ingersoll, 16 Gnt. 194

See further as to proceedings in taking accounts: Rule 410, et seq., and notes.

Mortgages.—The Court has jurisdiction to foreclose the equity of redemption in mortgaged property, real or personal, also to direct a sale of the mortgaged property and the application of the proceeds; and also to provide for redemption by the mortgagor: see Rules 33 (h), 460-490, and notes thereto; and generally has jurisdiction as to all matters relating to mortgages.

Awards.

Awards.—The Court has power to set aside awards: Lawson v. Hutchinson, 19 Gr. 84; Edward v. Gordon, 12 Gr. 333; Kemp v. Henderson, 10 Gr. 54; Jekyll v. Wade, 8 Gr. 353; Hickman v. Lawson, 8 Gr. 386; Gillam v. Cleghorn, 7 Gr. 83. But an award was not impeachable in Equity on the ground that it was erroneous in either law or fact, unless the error appeared on its face. The cases in which the Court of Chancery could interfere were those in which such an error so appeared; or where there had been corruption, fraud, or excess of jurisdiction; or where the arbitrators making the award admitted that they had made a mistake: Re Grant v. Eastwood, 22 Gr. 553; Pardee v. Lloyd, 26 Gr. 374; and see Le Moy v. McRae, 16 Ont. App. 348; Re Harvey & Parkdale, 16 Gnt. 372. The Court of Chancery could also enforce awards: Armstrong v. Cayley, 2 Chy. Ch. 128, 163; Wilson v. Switzer, 1 Chy. Ch. 44, and see Bell v. Miller, 9 Gr. 385; Hodder v. Turvey, 20 Gr. 63; where specific performance was decreed: Darnley v. London, Chatham & Dover Ry. Co., L. R. 2 H. L. 43; Blackett v. Bates, L. R. 1 Chy. 117; Nickels v. Hancock, 7 D. M. & G. 300; Norvall v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 5 Gnt. App. 13.

In addition to the powers conferred by the R. S. G., 1897, c. 51, s. 26, the Court has also jurisdiction under The Arbitration Act (R. S.

c. 65), c. 5, to permit a revocation of a submission to arbitration; Sec. 3.
stay an action where there is an agreement to refer the matters question to arbitration: Ib. s. 8; and for recent cases where the wer has been exercised under the corresponding English Statute:

hin such further time as the Court may allow: s. 33. In computa of the 8 weeks, vacations are not to be counted: Ib.

An appeal from an award made on a submission by consent is ject to the same Rules as appeals from awards made by Referees er the order of the Court: s. 17, and see Rules 502-504.

Appeals from awards of compensation made under the Dominion lway Act (R. S. C., c. 37), are regulated by s. 209 of that Act:
see Birely v. Toronto, H. & B. Ry., 25 Ont. App. 88.

Appeals from awards of compensation under the Ontario Railway (R. S. O. c. 185), are regulated by that Act: s. 90 (15).

Dower.—The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery was formerly Dower. orrent with that of the Courts of Law in actions to enforce ns for dower: Craig v. Templeton, 8 Gr. 483; Grieve v. Woodruff, t. App. 617. Damages for detention of dower cannot be recovered re the husband does not die seised, even though a demand of tion for dower: Westacott v. Cockerline, 13 Or. 79.

Sec. 3. Infants.

Infants.—The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery over infants was partly exclusive, and partly concurrent with that of the Superior Courts of Common Law. As regards the custody of the persons of infants, it was concurrent with that of the Courts of Law; but as regards their estates, it was exclusive.

As regards the persons of infants, the Court of Chancery could make order for their custody, education, and maintenance, and appoint guardians of their persons: Re Keith, 7 P. R. 138; MacNabb v. McInnes, 25 Gr. 144; Re Irwin, 16 Gr. 461; Murphy v. Lamphier, 12 Gr 241; Anon., 6 Gr. 632. The jurisdiction of both the Courts of Law and Equity is now vested in the Supreme Court. The Surrogate Courts have a concurrent jurisdiction to appoint guardians of the persons and estates of infants: see The Infants' Act (R. S. O. c. 153), ss. 26, 32.

Custody.

Custody of Infants.—As regards the custody of infants: see Re Keith, 7 P. R. 138; Re Gillrie, 3 Gr. 279; Re Davis, 3 Ch. Ch. 277; Andrews v. Salt, L. R. 8 Chy. 622; Re Smart, 12 P. R. 312, 435, S. C. sub. nom. Smart v. Smart, 1892, A. C. 425; 67 L. T. 510; Re Kenna, 29 O. L. R. 590; and see The Infants' Act, ss. 2-4.

The power to remove testamentary guardians is now expressly given to the Court by statute: The Infants Act (R. S. O. c. 153), s. 29; and see Re X., 1899, 1 Ch. 526. Formerly it was not customary for the Court of Chancery to exercise jurisdiction in regard to an infant, unless the infant had some property in respect of which the jurisdiction could be invoked: Wellesley v. Beaufort, 2 Russ. 21; Clayton v. Clarke, 3 D. F. & J. 682; but the right of the Court to exercise jurisdiction is not considered to be limited to cases in which the property of the infant is involved: Re Spence, 2 Ph. 247; Re Tynn, 2 Dr. & S. 481; Re Smart, 12 P. R. 312, 435; see S. C. sub. nom. Smart v. Smart, 1892, A. C. 425; 67 L. T. 510; Re McCrossan, 1892, 2 Ch. 246. Any suit relating to the estate or person of an infant and for his benefit has now the effect of making him, whether plaintiff or defendant, a ward of Court: Gynn v. Gilbard, 1 Dr. & S. 356; Re Berte, 9 H. L. C. 440; Pendleton v. Macrory, 2 Dick. 736.

There is nothing contrary to public policy in a mother having no estate, transferring the custody of her infant child to a grandparent who undertakes to maintain and educate him: Chisholm v. Chisholm, 40 S. C. R. 115.

Maintenance.

Maintenance of Infants.—The Court has power to order the sale of infants' estates when necessary to provide for their maintenance or education, or when by reason of any part of the property being exposed to dilapidation or depreciation from any other cause, the infant's interest requires it: The Infants' Act (R. S. O. c. 153), s. 5. The Court may also make provision out of an infant's estate for his maintenance and education. Ashbough v. Ashbough, 10 Gr. 430; The Infants' Act (R. S. O. c. 153), ss. 2 (2), 16, 20, 21.

In England it is held that the Court has no jurisdiction to order moneys to be raised for the maintenance of an infant by a sale or mortgage of the infant's reversionary interest in realty, because such an interest cannot be delivered in execution: Cadman v. Cadman, 33 Ch. D. 397; 55 L. T. 569; Re Badger, 1913, 1 Ch. 385; 108 L. T. 411; but in Ontario see The Execution Act (R. S. O. c. 80) s. 34.

An injunction to restrain a breach by an infant of an apprentice- Sec. 3. p deed was refused: De Francesco v. Barnum, 43 Ch. D. 165; but contract entered into by an infant which is for his benefit is bindon him and may be enforced by injunction: Bromley v. Smith, 9, 2 K. B. 235; 100 L. T. 731; Gadd v. Thompson, 1911, 1 K. B. 304; L. T. 836; Roberts v. Gray, 1913, 1 K. B. 520; 108 L. T. 232; and ere an infant has obtained money or property in circumstances ich amount to fraud it may be recovered from him: Cowern v.
ld, 1912, 2 K. B. 419; 106 L. T. 984; Stocks v. Wilson, 1913, 2 K. B.

For further jurisdiction as to infants: see post, p. 23, and sec. 22 notes, and Rule 618 and notes.

Marriage.—In the last edition of this work it was stated that the Marriage.
h Court of Justice had jurisdiction to declare a marriage null and l, relying on the dictum of Boyd, C., in Lawless v. Chamberlain, 18
. 296. Later decisions serve to show that that dictum is erroneous, the proper conclusion seems to be that the Supreme Court has matrimonial jurisdiction except to grant alimony, and to adjudi-on the validity of marriages where the question arises incidally in an action. The Court has refused to annul a marriage impotence: T. v. B., 15 O. L. R. 224, and on the ground that the ies were related within the prohibited degrees: May v. May, 22
. R. 559; and on the ground that one of the spouses was insane e time of the marriage: King v. Birmen, 47 C. L. J. 232, and see d v. Spence, 4 O. W. R. 998; Malott v. Malott, 4 O. W. N. 1405; 1577; man v. Hallman, 5 O. W. N. 976; and see Holmested's Matrimonial diction in Ontario and Quebec, pp. 3 et seq.

The Marriage Act (R. S. O. c. 148), s. 36, the Court is empowered nul certain marriages—but in view of the B. N. A. Act, s. 91 (26), alidity of this Act appears to be questionable: see Holmested's imonial Jurisdiction in Ontario and Quebec, pp. 14 et seq.

Idiots and Lunatics.—The jurisdiction over idiots and lunatics is Idiots and regulated, so far as regards obtaining declarations of lunacy, and lunatics.
ding for the sale of lunatics' estates, and for their custody and enance, and the payment of their debts, by The Lunacy Act
. O. c. 68), s. 14. The Court has jurisdiction to authorize the ittee of a lunatic to accept a devise made to him on condition:
fton, 1898, 2 Ch. 378; 78 L. T. 765.

aying Waste.—The jurisdiction of the former Court of Chancery Staying y waste was part of the concurrent jurisdiction of the Court waste. was exercised by means of injunction. The jurisdiction of y originally arose in England on account of the incompetency of ourts of Law to give adequate relief. The jurisdiction of the of Chancery was originally confined to cases of what was by a hat misleading use of words called "equitable waste," meaning y acts which were deemed waste only in Courts of Equity, and hich no action would lie at law; and to cases where no waste en actually committed, but was threatened; but the Court is now d to grant an injunction to restrain waste, notwithstanding that rty in possession claims by an adverse legal title: see s. 17, infra. onveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 30, in abolishes the distinction between legal and equitable waste, by away from a tenant for life without impeachment of waste, al right to commit equitable waste, unless an intention to cont right is expressed. See, however, In re Cartwright, Avis v.

Sec. 3.

Newman, 41 Ch. D. 532; Dashwood v. Magniac, 1891, 3 Ch. 306; Meux v. Cobley, 1892, 2 Ch. 253.

Waste

All the niceties of ancient learning as to waste are not to be transferred without discrimination to such a country as Ontario: Hixon v. Reaveley, 9 O. L. R. 6.

A mortgagee of a term of years being in possession, may, at the suit of the mortgagor, be restrained from committing waste, even though he have obtained the consent of the reversioner: Chisholm v. Sheldon, 1 Gr. 318.

A mortgagor in possession will not be restrained from cutting timber for fuel, fencing, or repairs upon the premises, but if the security is scanty he will be restrained from cutting timber for other purposes, at the suit of the mortgagee: Russ v. Mills, 7 Gr. 145; King v. Smith, 2 Ha. 239; or at the suit of an execution creditor: Wason v. Carpenter, 13 Gr. 329.

An injunction has been granted to restrain waste pending litigation as to the ownership of the property: Christie v. Long, 3 Gr. 630; Robins v. Porter, 2 U. C. L. J. 230; and an injunction has also been granted to restrain waste in favour of an unpaid vendor against a vendee and his assignee: Lawrence v. Judge, 2 Gr. 301; Ferrier v. Kerr, 2 Gr. 668; Mitchell v. McGaffey, 6 Gr. 361; Walsh v. Brown, 4 U. C. L. J. 68; McLean v. Burton, 24 Gr. 134; Summers v. Cook, 28 Gr. 179. A tenant for life who is not entitled to hold without impeachment of waste, may be restrained from committing any waste in an action at the suit of the remainderman: Clow v. Clow, 4 Ont. 355; but see Drake v. Wigle, 22 C. P. 341; Saunders v. Breakie, 5 Ont. 603; Munsie v. Lindsay, 10 P. R. 177, and where the tennnt for life holds his estate without impeachment of waste, if he is guilty of malicious, extravagant, or capricious waste, that was formerly called "equitable waste," and may be restrained at the suit of the reversioner or remainderman: Garth v. Cotton, 1 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 806; Vane v. Barnard, 2 Vern. 738; Rolf v. Somerville, 2 Eq. Ca. Abr. 759; Morris v. Morris, 15 Sim. 505; Micklethwait v. Micklethwait, 1 De G. & J. 519; Turner v. Wright, 2 D. F. & J. 234; Talbot v. Hope-Scott, 4 K. & J. 96; and see The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 30. He cannot be restrained from merely permissive waste: see In re Cartwright, Avis v. Newman, 41 Ch. D. 532.

As to permissive waste by tenants for life, or years: see 44 C. L. J. 175; 8 Columbia Law Rev. 425; 134 L. T. Jour. 354.

A tenant in tail in possession cannot be restrained from committing waste: Turner v. Wright, Joh. 752; Saville's case, Mos. 224, 1 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 13, except after possibility of issue extinct: Attorney-General v. Marlborough, 3 Madd. 538; Abrahall v. Bubb, 2 Sw. 172.

A purchaser who has gone into possession and has failed to meet his payments may be restrained from committing waste: Ferrier v. Kerr, 2 Gr. 668.

Where the plaintiff has slumbered on his rights: Hughson v. Cook, 20 Gr. 238; or the injury is trifling: Bernard v. Gibson, 21 Gr. 195, an injunction will be refused.

Specific performance.

Specific Performance.—The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery to decree specific performance of contracts was discretionary, but the exercise of this discretion was regulated by certain fixed rules and principles: Lamare v. Dixon, L. R. 6 H. L. 414. This branch of the jurisdiction of the High Court is also discretionary: In re Scott, 1895, ic performance of contracts or obligations except in those cases in there was no adequate remedy at law for breach of the agree-and in which the Court could superintend and enforce the execuproposed to give in exchange, but the title, as the defendant knew, was in the plaintiff's wife. It was held that the defendant could not on that ground repudiate the contract, and the plaintiff having before action tendered a conveyance from his wife, specific performance was decreed: St. Denis v. Higgins, 24 Ont. 230.

Breach of trust.

A contract for the sale of land involving a breach of trust, will not be specifically enforced: Delves v. Gray, 1902, 2 Ch. 606; 87 L. T. 425.

Exchange.

Specific performance of an agreement for the exchange of lands in the United States for lands in Ontario, was enforced at the suit of the owner of the lands in the United States: Montgomery v. Ruppensburg, 31 Ont. 433.

Covenant to build.

A covenant to build cottages of a specified character, was specifically enforced: Molyneux v. Richard, 1906, 1 Ch. 34; 93 L. T. 698.

Rights respecting chattels.

The sale and specific delivery of chattels may be enforced when damages would manifestly be an inadequate compensation. So also the specific delivery of heirlooms: Pusey v. Pusey, 1 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 961; Somerset v. Cookson, 1 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 962; of chattels of unique value: Falcke v. Gray, 4 Drew. 651; Dowling v. Bettjemann, 2 J. & H. 544; Thorn v. Commissioners of Works, 32 Beav. 490; Elwes v. Brigg Gas Co., 33 Ch. D. 562; 55 L. T. 831; may be enforced; but specific delivery of merchandise will not usually be decreed: Buxton v. Lister, 3 Atk. 384; Fothergill v. Rowland, 17 Eq. 141; but a contract relating to saw logs has been specifically enforced: Farewell v. Wallbridge, 6 Gr. 634; Flint v. Corby, 4 Gr. 45; Stevenson v. Clark, Ib. 541; Fuller v. Richmond, 2 Gr. 24; 4 Gr. 657.

Allotment of shares.

An agreement for the allotment of shares in a company, if any shares remain available, may be specifically enforced: Price v. Denbigh Ry. Co., 17 W. R. 572; Ferguson v. Wilson, 2 Chy. 77; Canada Life Assce. Co. v. Peel Manufact'g Co., 26 Gr. 477; and agreements for the sale of shares in companies: Duncuft v. Albrecht, 12 Sim. 190; Cheale v. Kenward, 3 D. & J. 27; Turner v. Moy, 32 L. T. 56; and for the transfer of shares in a company: McGregor v. Curry, 6 O. W. N., p. 202; and for the sale of patents: Cogent v. Gibson, 32 Beav. 557; or future inventions: Printing Co. v. Sampson, L. R. 19 Eq. 462; for the sale of good will with business premises, and fixtures: Smith v. Peters, 20 Eq. 511; Mossop v. Mason, 18 Gr. 453; 17 Gr. 360; 16 Gr. 362; or with plant and trade secret: Bryson v. Whitehead, 1 S. & S. 74; but not of good-will only: Baxter v. Connoly, 1 J. & W. 580. A contract between several manufacturers not to sell goods manufactured by them below a stipulated price may be enforced: The Ontario Salt Co. v. The Merchants Salt Co., 18 Gr. 540; as also agreements not to trade within reasonable limits: see Holcomb v. Nixon, 5 Gr. 278, 373; but conditions as to the price at which goods are to be sold by retail cannot be enforced against any sub-purchaser: Taddy v. Sterious, 1904, 1 Ch. 354; 89 L. T. 628; McGruther v. Pitcher, 1904, 2 Ch. 306.

Sale of business

Incomplete contract.

A contract which on its face does not appear to have been intended to be a final and concluded agreement will not be specifically enforced: Page v. Norfolk, 70 L. T. 23, 781; Hodson v. Thetford, 123 L. T. Jour. 87; Hatzfeldt v. Alexander, 105 L. T. 434.

Where the price was to be paid in the shares of a syndicate to be formed, the nature of whose objects were not defined nor ascertainable with certainty, specific performance was refused: Douglas v. Baynes, 1908, A. C. 477; 99 L. T. 569.

Contract for service covenant by a lessor to employ a porter for the general benefit s lessees of flats, was held not to be one which the Court could fically enforce: Ryan v. The Mutual Tontine Westminster Cham-Co., 1893, 1 Ch. 116; 67 L. T. 820.

Arbitration

pecific performance of an agreement to refer to arbitration, will e decreed, either directly or indirectly, by compelling the recal-nt party t. appoint an arbitrator: Re Smith & Nelson, 25 Q. B. 5; but see R. S. O. c. 65, s. 8; Manchester Ship Canal v. *Pear-*1900, 2 Q. B. 606; 83 L. T. 46.

Award.

to specific performance of awards, and contracts relating to erships: see supra, p. 9.

Separation deed.

greements for the execution of separation deeds may be enforced: n v. Wilson, 1 H. L. C. 538.

metimes where the Court cannot decree specific performance of a ve part of a contract, if the contract includes a separate negative rt, the latter may be enforced, e.g., an agreement by a singer to t a particular place cannot be enforced, nor an agreement by a to write for a particular publisher; but if the agreement also es that the singer is not to sing elsewhere without the consent plaintiff, or that the writer will not write for any other pub-during the engagement, the negative agreement may be en-: Lumley v. Wagner, 1 D. M. & G. 604; Rolfe v. Rolfe, 15 Sim. tiff v. Cassell, 2 Jur. N. S. 348; Daggett v. Ryman, 16 W. R. Brown v. Harper, 68 L. T. 488; Star Newspaper Co. v. *O'Con-*4 L. T. Jour. 182; but such negative covenant must be reason-Ehrmann v. Bartholomew, 1898, 1 Ch. 671; 78 L. T. 646; and there is no such negative covenant, an injunction will not be d: Whitwood v. Hardman, 1891, 2 Ch. 416; 64 L. T. 716; on v. Cunningham, 1894, 1 Q. B. 125.

Declaratory judgment.

, as a rule, where the subject matter of a contract is not such Court can order to be specifically performed, it cannot, by a tory judgment, indirectly grant that relief: Chang-Yen Mao v. g. 120 L. T. Jour. 313.

Contracts not specifically enforceable ere the specific performance of a contract involves the working allway in all its minutiæ for all time to come, specific per-ce will not be decreed, nor will the Court attempt to enforce andamus or injunction: see Kingston v. Kingston P. & C. E. Ry., 399; Bickford v. Chatham, 16 S. C. R. 235.

Court has refused to order specific performance of an agree-y an Electric Railway Company to run its cars on certain at certain hours, and with certain officers, as the Court could rsee the carrying out of the judgment if granted: Kingston v. n P. & C. Electric Railway Co., 25 Ont. App. 462; see Hamilton ilton Street Ry. Co., 8 O. L. R. 642; 10 O. L. R. 594.

County Court

ases where County Courts have no jurisdiction to decree equit-ief, they cannot indirectly decree specific performance by treat-agreement for a lease as an actual lease: Foster v. Reeves, Q. B. 255; 67 L. T. 537; and see Whilden v. Jackson, per J.A., 18 Ont. App. 442; but since the latter case the equit-risdiction of the County Courts has been restored by certain see The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 59), s. 22 (d), (f), (g), (i).

Sec. 3.

Discovery.

Discovery.—This was formerly a part of the exclusive jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, but, even before the Judicature Act, the Common Law Courts were empowered to compel discovery: see R. S. O., 1877, c. 50, ss. 156, et seq.; 41 Vict., c. 8, s. 9. Discovery is now an incidental part of the relief which may be obtained in every action. This may be obtained by a plaintiff against a defendant, and by a defendant against a plaintiff. The method of obtaining discovery is prescribed by Rules 327-337, 348-353. Actions for discovery only, in aid of a foreign action, will not be entertained: Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 41 Ch. D. 151.

Multiplicity of suits.

Multiplicity of Suits.—The mode by which a multiplicity of suits in reference to the same matter, was avoided in the Court of Chancery, was by requiring all persons interested in the subject matter of the litigation to be made parties either as plaintiffs or defendants in one suit; but as this general rule sometimes operated inconveniently it was in certain classes of cases provided that some only of the persons interested need be made parties, and that those who were not made parties should be sufficiently represented by those who were made parties, and should be bound by the proceedings as if they had been themselves parties: (see Rules 66, 75-77, 79-87, and notes), or else it was provided that the parties interested need not all be made original defendants, but might be added as defendants at a later stage of the proceedings (see Rule 490).

See further as to the prevention of multiplicity of suits: sec. 16 (h) and notes, infra.

Patents.

Decreeing the Issue, or Cancellation of Patents.—The jurisdiction conferred on the Court by this section to decree the issue or cancellation of patents is probably confined to patents issued by the Provincial Government. The Court of Chancery would formerly rescind a patent for land improperly granted by the Provincial Government, although the grant were voidable, or even void at law: Martin v. Kennedy, 2 Gr. 80. But it would not set aside a patent issued upon a deliberate view of all the circumstances, where there was no fraud or mistake: Simpson v. Grant, 5 Gr. 267; Boulton v. Jeffrey, 1 E. & A. 111; Barnes v. Boomer, 10 Gr. 532; Kennedy v. Lawlor, 14 Gr. 224; and see Farmer v. Livingstone, 8 S. C. R. 140; even though the patent issued contrary to a report of the Heir and Devisee Commissioners as to the party entitled: McDiarmid v. McDiarmid, 9 Gr. 144; nor if the plaintiff had an opportunity of bringing the material facts to the attention of the officers of the Crown before the patent issued, and neglected to do so: Mahon v. McLeon, 13 Gr. 361. But a patent issued in error might be rescinded; e.g., where a patent issued to a third party after another party had contracted to purchase, and had gone into possession of the land: Martyn v. Kennedy, 4 Gr. 61; Attorney-General v. Hill, 8 Gr. 532; or where it issued without proper consideration by the officers of the Crown of all the facts: Fricht v. Scheck, 10 Gr. 254; or had issued to A., when an order in council had been passed for the grant of the land to B.: Attorney-General v. Garbutt, 5 Gr. 383; and see Saugeen v. Church Society, 6 Gr. 538. The Supreme Court has now the like jurisdiction: see Farah v. Glen Lake Mining Co., 17 O. L. R. 1; Florence Mining Co. v. Cobalt Lake Mining Co., 18 O. L. R. 275; 102 L. T. 375; Bartlet v. Delaney, 27 O. L. R. 594; 29 O. L. R. 426; Zock v. Clayton, 28 O. L. R. 447.

The Attorney-General is a proper party to such actions whenever the person to whom the patent has issued would be entitled to compensation if the patent be rescinded: Saugeen v. Church Society, supra; Re [illegible] cy-General, 15 Gr. 467; and see McIntyre v. Attorney-General, 14 Sec. 3.

but if the case made by the plaintiff is one of fraud, and the pat-would not be entitled to any compensation on the patent being set then the Attorney-General is not a necessary party; Rees v. At- General, 16 Gr. 467; and see Cosgrove v. Corbett, 14 Gr. 617; Law-
. Pomeroy, 9 Gr. 474; Farah v. Glen Lake Mining Co., supra; ooke v. Attorney-General, 11 Gr. 330; Mutchmore v. Davis, 14 6, whsrs the Attorney-General appears to have been a party the patent was impeached for fraud.

Court may be unable to grant relief where third parties have d a title under the impeached patent without notice of the Proctor v. Grant, 9 Gr. 26, 224; but see Stevens v. Cook, 10

Court by virtue of its jurisdiction to decree the issue of patents, not, however, entertain a suit for the specific performance of r in council for the grant of land: Simpson v. Grant, 5 Gr. 267.

gh there is jurisdiction before the issue of a patent to estab-right to the issue, the Court will not act, in the absence of cial ground for invoking the jurisdiction: see Bull v. Frank, 0; Brouse v. Cram, 14 Gr. 677; but the Court may in a suite make a declaratory judgment as to the rights of the parties ill practically work the result of a partition if the Crown g to act upon the judgment: Pride v. Rodger, 27 Ont. 323.

r the R. S. C. c. 69, s. 35, the Court has power to decree the can- Jurisdiction of patents for invention issued by the Dominion Government; under R. S. C.
also entertain actions to restrain the infringement of such c. 69.
and for damages therefor: Ib. s. 31; Hunter v. Carrick, 28 les of decision in the matters mentioned in sections 25 and 26 Rule of de-., 1897, c. 51, mentioned, except where otherwise provided, are cision in same as governed the Court of Chancery in England, in like such cases the 4th day of March, 1837: R. S. O. (1897), c. 51, s. 27.

ver, therefore, any Provincial statute modifies what was the le of decision of the Court of Chancery in England in like tho 4th March, 1837, then the express provisions of the statutes must control the decision of the Court rather than es which goverued the Court of Chancery in England at the e mentioned: see Smith v. The Methodist Church, 16 Ont. 199.

risdiction of the Court of Chancery in England was to some gulated by Imperial Statutes, and by force of s. 27 these ecame part of the law of Ontario. They were, in 1902, d consolidated and issued as R. S. O 1897, vol. III.

Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), s. 28, the jurisdiction rt was further defined—that section was as follows:

"The High Court shall have the like jurisdiction and power Jurisdicurt of Chancery in England possessed on the 10th day of tion in cases ns a Court of Equity to administer justice in all cases in where fore existed no adequate remedy at law. 58 V. c. 12, s. 24." merly no adequate
Law.

Sec. 3.

That section conferred upon the Court all the powers of the English Court of Chancery on 10th June, 1857, whether derived from the Common Law, or statutory enactment: see Re Hodges, 1 Gr. at p. 289, per Eaton, V.C. The general words of that section, however, were controlled by other express enactments of the Provincial Legislature. See supra, p. 19.

Perpetuating testimony

Amongst other things the Court has jurisdiction to entertain an action for the perpetuation of testimony where the Court of Chancery could have done so: see West v. Lord Sackville, 1903, 2 Ch 378; 88 L. T. 814; but the Court will not entertain such an action where the plaintiff can, if he chooses, bring the matter in controversy to an immediate judicial investigation: Ib. 1903, 2 Ch. p. 388; see post, s. 133

Equitable Revenue Jurisdiction.—By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), s. 29, the jurisdiction of the Court was further defined—that section was as follows:

Equitable jurisdiction in matters of revenue.

"29. The High Court shall have the like equitable jurisdiction in matters of revenue as the Court of Exchequer in England possessed on the 18th day of March, 1865. 58 V. c. 12, s. 25."

This section in the Revised Statutes of 1877 (c. 40, s. 37), was taken from the 28 Vict. c. 17, s. 2, and was confined in its terms to the Court of Chancery. The Courts of Law appear also to have had jurisdiction both legal and equitable in matters of revenue: see R. S. O. 1877, c. 39, s. 4; and see Jud. Act, 1897, s. 25, supra. Prior to 28 Vict. c. 17, s. 2, it had been held that the Court of Chancery had no equitable jurisdiction in revenue cases: see Norwich v. Attorney-General, 2 E. & A. 541; Miller v. Attorney-General, 9 Gr. 558; and even after equitable jurisdiction in revenue cases had been conferred on the Court of Chancery, it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction to relieve against the forfeiture of a recognizance of bail in a criminal case, which had been estreated into a Court of Quarter Sessions: Rastall v. Attorney-General, 17 Gr. 1; 18 Gr. 138; but it was held that the Crown might proceed in Chancery for dues alleged to be fraudulently withheld, although there were no equitable circumstances connected with the demand: Attorney-General v. Walker, 25 Gr. 233.

Partition.—By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 57), s. 33, the jurisdiction of the Court in suits for partition or sale was extended—that section was as follows:

Jurisdiction in partition

"33. In any action or proceeding in the High Court for partition or sale of the estate of joint tenants, tenants in common or co-partners, where any of the persons interested in the lands whereof partition or sale is sought are unknown to the plaintiff, or have not been heard of for three years or upwards, the Court shall have the same jurisdiction that, in proceedings under The Partition Act, it possesses for the purpose of binding the interests of such persons and dealing with the estate of such of them as by reason of long continued absence may reasonably be believed to be dead; and the like proceedings may be taken in such action or proceeding for the said purposes as might be taken upon a petition under the said Act; and every deed or vesting order made in any such action or proceeding shall have the same effect as a deed or vesting order made in proceedings under the said Act. 58 V. c. 12, s. 29."

Rev. Stat. c. 123.

The effect of this section was to enable the Court in an ordinary action to avail itself of the powers and authorities conferred upon it Partition Act (R. S. O. c. 114), without resorting to the pro- Sec. 3. laid down in that Act: see Bennett v. Bennett, 8 Gr. 446;

v. Cassey, 15 Gr. 399; Munro v. Munro, Ib. 431; and see Rule d nnies.

Re Hynes, Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217, an order was appointing a guardian for an absentee who had been long d of, and directing that he be served with an office copy of the nt for partition, and notice for the absentee.

sony.—By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), s. 34, tion to grant alimony was conferred—that section was as

. The High Court shall have jurisdiction to grant alimony to Jurisdice who would be entitled to alimony by the law of England, tion in ny wife who would be entitled by the law of England to a alimony.
and to alimony as incident thereto, or to any wife whose lives separate from her without any sufficient cause and rcumstances which would entitle her, by the law of England, cree for restitution of conjugal rights, and alimony when shall continue until further order of the Court. 58 V. c. 12, jurisdiction conferred by this section is part of the juris-ormerly exercised in England by the Ecclesiastical Courts, as to proceedings for divorce or judicial separation.

e proceedings are instituted against a defendant for alimony, about to quit Ontario with intent to defraud his creditors , or the plaintiff in particular, he is liable to be arrested and ail: see The Fraudulent Debtors Arrest Act (R. S. O. c. 83), hardson v. Richardson, 8 P. R. 274; Needham v. Needham, 29 Horn v. Horn, 4 U. C. L. J. 261.

efendant may be discharged from arrest if on the facts it ear that the plaintiff cannot reasonably be expected to the action: Macpherson v. Macpherson, 2 Ch. Ch. 222. The arrest issued pendente lite remains in force after judgment, gh the wife resides out of the jurisdiction: see Macdonald v.
2, 5 U. C. L. J. 66.

g the action, if the wife is in need of support, an order may

m alimony: see H. & L. Forms Nos. 613, 616; Rules 386, dy bar in England to a suit for restitution of conjugal rights or adultery on the part of the plaintiff; and cruelty or herefore under this section is the only bar to an action by alimony against a husband who declines to live with her:

Nelligan, 26 Ont. 8.

f grave misconduct short of adultery will not disentitle a mony: Aldrich v. Aldrich, 21 Ont. 447.

eement to live apart founded on valuable consideration will Atwood v. Atwood, 15 P. R. 425; but not if the agreement terms provide for the maintenance of the wife: Frémont
. 26 O. L. R. 6.

nt alimony is granted where the husband has been guilty Permanent n and cruelty: Severn v. Severn, 3 Gr. 431; see Martin v alimony.

Sec. 3.

Martin, 78 L. T. 568; or desertion, where coupled with other acts of cruelty, Ib.; or cruelty alone: Jackson v. Jackson, 8 Gr. 499, Browning v. Browning, 1911, P. 161; 104 L. T. 750; but not as a rule where he has only been guilty of a solitary act of personal violence Rodman v. Rodman, 20 Gr. 428. So also it may be granted for desertion and adultery: Henderson v. Henderson, 19 Gr. 464; Martin v. Martin, 78 L. T. 568; and perhaps for adultery alone: Howey v. Howey, 27 Gr. 57; Aldrich v. Aldrich, 21 Ont. 447; Koch v. Koch, 1899, P. 221; 81 L. T. 61; or for wrongfully accusing the wife of adultery: see Ferris v. Ferris, 7 Ont. 496. But acts of violence provoked by the misconduct of the wife for the purpose of making evidence to found a claim for alimony, are not such acts of cruelty as will entitle the wife to judgment: Payne v. Payne, 10 O. L. R. 742, but cumulating circumstances to the husband's conduct by which mental distress is produced in the wife which are sufficient to impair and do seriously impair her health, amount to cruelty: Lovell v. Lovell, 11 O. L. R. 547; 13 O. L. R. 569.

A husband taking up his residence with relatives with whom his wife was not on good terms, and could not be reasonably expected to reside, was held to be desertion: Goodfriend v. Goodfriend, 48 C. L. J. 231.

A husband may be guilty of desertion though he and his wife have never cohabited: De Laubanque v. De Loubonque, 1898, 79 L. T. 705.

The committal of a lunatic wife to an asylum is not cruelty or desertion: Hill v. Hill, 2 O. L. R. 541; 3 O. L. R. 202.

But where the wife leaves the husband without sufficient cause Edwards v. Edwards, 20 Gr. 392; or refuses him his marital rights Synge v. Synge, 1901, P. 317, she is not entitled to alimony; and it would seem that where the husband refuses to live with her by reason of her cruelty or adultery, she is not entitled to alimony: Nelligan v. Nelligan, p. 22, supra. The condonation by a wife of acts of cruelty by her husband, is annulled by repetition of such acts: Bavin v. Bavin, 27 Ont. 571; Copsey v. Copsey, 1905, P. 94; 91 L. T. 363.

Where the ground is desertion, and the husband offers to receive his wife back, the Court will require to be satisfied that the offer is bona fide, and not merely set up to prevent the pronouncement of judgment: Rae v. Rae, 31 Ont. 321.

Persistent and malicious charges by a wife against her husband of an abominable offence against morality, is held not to be legal cruelty: Russell v. Russell, 1897, A. C. 395; 77 L. T. 249; but it was held sufficient ground for refusing a restitution of conjugal rights: Russell v. Russell, 1895, P. 315; 73 L. T. 295.

A refusal by the husband to supply his wife with suitable clothes is not of itself a ground for granting alimony: Price v. Price, 21 O. L. R. 454.

Amount allowed.

One-third of the income the property of the husband calculated at 4 per cent. is allowed as permanent alimony in England: Shorthouse v. Shorthouse, 78 L. T. 687.

A judgment for alimony may be suspended on the application of the husband on proof of the wife's subsequent adultery: Severn v. Severn, 14 Gr. 150; but a husband who has deserted his wife, is not entitled as of right to have a judgment against him for alimony d on his afterwards offering to receive and maintain her: v. Cronk, 19 Gr. 283. Sec. 3.

dgment or order for alimony may be registered: see post, s. 73.

lement of Infants' Estates.—By The Judicature Act (R. S. , c. 51), s. 37, the jurisdiction to deal with the settlement of estates was conferred—that section was as follows:

. The High Court shall have the same jurisdiction as the f Chancery in England had on the eighteenth day of March, regard to enabling infants, with the approbation of the Court, e binding settlements of their real and personal estate on e; and in regard to questions submitted for the opinion of rt in the form of special cases on the part of such persons, by themselves, their committees or guardians, or otherwise, therein." 58 V. c. 12, s. 33 (1). Special cases.

Special Cases.—The jurisdiction of the English Court of Chancery in regard to special cases on the 18th March, 1865, was regulated by Imp. Stat. 13 & 14 Vict. c. 35. By that Act a special case may be stated without commencing an action, but that provision has not been retained in Ontario, and the only provisions of Imp. Stat. 13 & 14 Vict. c. 35, on this point, now in force in Ontario are to be found in ss. 135, 136, post.

After action commenced a special case may be stated under Rule 126, but, as no provision is made for stating a special case otherwise than in an action, the above section 3 of the Jud. Act must be taken to be modified so that the jurisdiction mentioned can now only be exercised as provided by the Rules.

Fictitious questions not entertained.

Fictitious questions will not be entertained, so as to give the Court jurisdiction in matters not cognizable under the Act: Pryse v. Pryse, 15 Eq. 86; and see Key v. Key, 4 D. M. & G. 73; neither will the Court entertain hypothetical questions: Glasgow Navigation Co. v. Iron Ore Co., 1910, A. C. 293; 102 L. T. 435. All persons beneficially interested should be parties: Entwistle v. Cannon, 4 W. R. 450; and trustees must be parties to a case for construing the trust deed: Worley v. Richardson, 3 D. M. & G. 126. Where some of the parties beneficially interested are out of the jurisdiction, but others having identical interests are before the Court, the presence of the absentees may in the discretion of the Court be dispensed with: Re Brown, 29 Beav. 461.

The case must be framed so that the rights of the parties can be determined, or the Court will decline to answer the questions submitted: Bulkely v. Hope, 4 N. R. 280. The Court will not act on inferences drawn by the parties, but necessary facts should be proved by affidavit: Domville v. Lamb, 9 Ha. lv.

The case may be amended: see Rule 183; but where a material fact was omitted from the case, but was admitted by all parties at the hearing, prefacing the order with a recital to that effect was held to be sufficient: Lone v. Debenham, 11 Ha. 188; 17 Jur. 1005.

But an amendment after final judgment cannot be allowed: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; and see S. C. 23 Ont. App. 566; 78 L. T. 270.

Costs.

The costs of all proceedings under the Act are in the discretion of the Court: see Attorney-Gen. v. Toronto Gen. Trusts Corporation, 5 O. L. R. p. 608; and see Jud. Act. s. 74, post.

Testamentary Jurisdiction.—By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), s. 38, a testamentary jurisdiction was conferred—that section was as follows:

The Court may try the validity of wills.

"38. The High Court shall have jurisdiction to try the validity of last wills and testaments, whether the same respect real or personal estate, and whether probate of the will has been granted or not, and to pronounce such wills and testaments to be void for fraud and undue influence or otherwise, in the same manner and to the same extent as the Court has jurisdiction to try the validity of deeds and other instruments. 58 V. c. 12, s. 34."

The Court has no original testamentary jurisdiction except that conferred by the Surrogate Courts Act (R. S. O., c. 62), ss. 32, 33, to rs commenced in the Surrogate Court and transferred to the me Court; and that conferred above to set aside wills under wer conferred by the above s. 38: see per Middleton, J., Mutrie xander, 23 O. L. R. at p. 401. it has therefore no original juris- a to establish a lost will relating merely to personalty: Ib. er has it any jurisdiction to revoke a grant of administration by a Surrogate Court, except by way of appeal from the Surro- Court: see Taylor v. Teandle, 27 O. L. R. 531. it has power to ide a will after probate granted in an action at the suit of a who was not a party to the probate proceedings: Badenach v. , 29 O. L. R. 165.

der The Trustee Act (R. S. O., c. 121), s. 10, the Supreme has power to remove a personal representative appointed by rogate Court, or by a testator, on any ground which the Court remove "any other trustee," and may appoint some other person s place. The Surrogate Court in certain cases has the like ; see The Surrogate Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 62), s. 60.

Personal representatives.

e jurisdiction of the Court, as regards wills affecting personalty, ds on this section; but as regards wills affecting realty the iction of the Supreme Court would seem to depend not only on ection, but also on the Jud. Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), ss. 25 and which the jurisdiction of the former Superior Courts of Law vested in the High Court.

e Court has not jurisdiction to adjudicate on a claim to set a renunciation of probate, or allow a retraction by a plaintiff was named in a will as executor and has filed a renunciation. laintiff must go for relief to the Court in which the retractation lled: Forwell v. Kennedy, 2 O. W. N. 821.

tters' probate are, notwithstanding The Devolution of Estates (R. S. O. c. 119), only prima facie evidence as far as realty ncerned of the testamentary capacity of the testator; and in an asserting title under a will, the defendant may give evidence ag want of testamentary capacity: Sproule v. Watson, 23 Ont. 692.

Probate.

r cases in which wills have been contested on the ground of the al incapacity of the testator: see Brown v. Bruce, 19 U. C. Q. ; Menzies v. White, 9 Gr. 574; Emes v. Emes, 11 Gr. 325; Mar- Martin, 15 Gr. 586; Ingoldsby v. Ingoldsby, 20 Gr. 131; Wilson lson, 22 Gr. 39; and for cases in which wills have been sought to t aside as having been obtained by undue influence: see Water- v. Lee, 10 Gr. 176; Donaldson v. Donaldson, 12 Gr. 431; Wilson lson, 22 Gr. 39; 24 Gr. 377; Re White, Kersten v. Tane, 22 Gr. 24 Gr. 224; Thompson v. Torrance, 28 Gr. 253; 9 Ont. App. 1.

Validity of wills

ction 38 provides that the Court may pronounce wills void for and undue influence or otherwise in the same manner and to ame extent as the Court has jurisdiction to try the validity of and other instruments. The cases in which Courts of Equity ccustomed to set aside deeds and other instruments for fraud, e they are voidable and not merely void, are: Firstly, where there tual fraud in the party defendant in which the party plaintiff ot participated. Secondly, where there is a constructive fraud st public policy, and the party plaintiff has not participated in. Thirdly, where there is a fraud against public policy, and the party plaintiff has participated therein, but public policy would be defeated by allowing it to stand. And lastly, where there is a constructive fraud by both parties, but they are not in pari delicto: Story, s. 695.

The Court will not, under The Trustee Act, act upon a summary petition, or otherwise, than in an action, remove a trustee or executor in invitum: Re Davis, 17 P. R. 187.

By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897 c. 51), s. 40, jurisdiction in the following matters was conferred; that section was as follows:

Jurisdiction.

"40. The High Court shall also have jurisdiction—

In matters testamentary. Rev. Stat. c. 62.

1. In matters testamentary as provided in sections 33 to 35 inclusive of The Surrogate Courts Act. (Now R. S. O. c. 62), ss. 32 and 33.)

Appeals against judgment of commissioners under Rev. Stat. c. 6.

2. On any appeal from the judgment or decision of the Commissioners under The Act to Prevent Trespasses to Public Lands, as provided in said Act; (But see now The Public Lands Act (R. S. O. c. 6), s. 17).

Lunatics and infants. Rev. Stat. cc. 68 and 153.

3. In respect of lunatics and infants and their property and estates, as provided by The Act respecting Lunatics and The Act respecting Infants. (Now respectively R. S. O. c. 68, and R. S. O. c. 153.)

Testamentary guardians. Rev. Stat. c. 158.

4. In respect of guardians and trustees, as provided by The Act respecting Infants. (Now R. S. O. c. 153.)

Partition. Rev. Stat. c. 114.

5. In respect of partition and sale of real estate as provided in The Partition Act. 58 V. c. 12, s. 35; (Now R. S. O. c. 114).

Settled estates. Rev. Stat. c. 74.

6. In respect of leases and sales of settled estates, as provided in The Settled Estates Act. 58 V. c. 20, s. 2 (5); (Now R. S. O. c. 74).

Matters Testamentary.—The clauses of the Surrogate Courts Act referred to, provide for the transfer of contentious matters regarding the grant of probate or administration from the Surrogate Court to the Supreme Court, (a) where the parties agree, or (b) where a Judge of the Supreme Court so orders.

The Supreme Court has no original jurisdiction to grant probate of a will, or letters or administration; and where a case is transferred to the Supreme Court from the Surrogate Court, it is usually ultimately remitted to the Surrogate Court, to issue probate or administration, as the case may require: Thompson v. Torrance, 28 Gr. 253; see Decree in that case: D. B. 37, fo. 192; H. & L. Forms, No. 937.

Infants.

Infants.—The jurisdiction by this section conferred on the High Court over infants is cumulative with that already conferred under (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), s. 26 (2) and s. 28. As to the general jurisdiction of the Court over infants: see Story's Eq., c. 35, and supra, p. 23.

Trustees.

Guardians and Trustees.—The same observation applies in regard to the jurisdiction over trustees: see R. S. O. (1897), c. 51, s. 26 (2), supra, p. 5; and ss. 28 and 37; and see supra, p. 19.

Partition.

Partition.—The like observation applies in regard to the jurisdiction in Partition: see R. S. O. (1897), c. 51, s. 33, supra, and Story's Eq., c. 14, and see supra, p. 20. The jurisdiction under The Partition Act (R. S. O., c. 114), may be exercised in any ordinary action for partition; and it would seem that it is not essential that the procedure prescribed by that Act should be strictly pursued, in order to enable the Court to exercise any special powers conferred by that Act: see Bennett v. Bennett, 8 Gr. 446; Cassey v. Cassey, 15 Gr. 399.

ases and Sales of Settled Estates.—The Settled Estates Act Sec. 3.
. O. c. 74) now regulates the jurisdiction of the Court as to

lmiralty Jurisdiction.—It haa heen held that the Supreme Admiralty.
of Ontario has concurrent jurisdiction with the Exchequer of Canada in respect of Admiralty cases arising on the inland s of the Province: Shipman v. Finn, 50 C. L. J. 234. Prior to ud. Act. 1881, many actions for ship collisiona were entertnined Common law Courts: see e.g. Brown v. Beatty, 35 U. C. R. 328; ince the Jud. Act, 1881: see Collier v. Wright, 19 Ont. App. 298;
C. R. 714.

neral Jurisdiction.—By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. (1897), , ss. 41, 42 and 43, the following general jurisdiction was con-
—those sections were as follows:

1. The High Court shall have, generally, all the jurisdiction General jurisdiction.
, prior to the 22nd day of August, 1881, was vested in, or le of being exercised by, the Court of Queen's Bench, Court of ery, Court of Common Pleas, and Courts of Assize, Oyer and ner, and Gaol Delivery (whether created by Commission or wise) and the High Court shall be deemed to be and shall be a uation of the said Courts respectively (subject to the provisions s Act) under the said name of "The High Court of Justice for lo." 58 V. c. 12, s. 36."

to criminal jurisdiction see R. S. O. (1897), c. 51, s. 25, supra,

2. The jurisdiction of the High Court shall include (subject to Existing jurisdiction of Judges continued.
xceptions hereinafter contained) the jurisdiction which at the encement of this Act, was vested in or capable of being exer-by the Judges of the said Courts respectively, sitting in Court smbers, or elsewhere, when acting as Judges in pursuance of tatute or law; and all powers given to any such Court, or to uch Judges, by any statute; and also all ministerial powers, and authorities, incident to any and every part of the juris-
n. 58 V. c. 12, s. 37."

e Eng. Jud. Act of 1837, s. 16.

der ss. 41 and 42 the High Court was held to have jurisdiction lare patents for land void, notwithstanding that R. S. O. (1877),
s. 29, has not been kept in force: Forah v. Glen Lake Mining Co., L. R. 1; see also R. S. O. (1897), c. 51, s. 26 (8), supra, p. 6.

that was done by the Jud. Act, 1881, was to give the High Court Effect of Jud. Act, 1881.
e jurisdiction which the Court of Ch[illegible]ry or the Courts of Com-Law had before. It conferred n[illegible] right to relief. An to enforce a charge where the [illegible]e of the subject matter nder £10 could not have been entertained by any of those before the Jud. Act, and therefore cannot now be maintained:
ury v. Meredith, 30 Ch. D. 387; see Gilbert v. Braithwait, 3
Ch. 413; Westbrooke v. Browett, 17 Gr. 339; Reynolds v. Cop-
9 Gr. 627; Harding v. Cardiff, 29 Gr. 308; Allen v. Lyon, 5 15; Show v. Freedy, 8 C. L. J. 136. Where, however, an action ught to recover an annuity, or other periodical payment, although nount actually in arrear when the action is commenced be less £10, it may nevertheless be entertained, inasmuch as such an is brought to recover not only the arrears but also the growayments: see Story's Eq. Plg. (8th Ed.), s. 500; and where a substantial right is in question, the Court has jurisdiction, and will entertain the action, even though the pecuniary amount involved is trifling: see Clarry v. G. T. Ry., 29 Ont. 18; Clarke v. Creighton, 14 P. R. 100. Where, however, an action is brought in the Supreme Court which turns out to have been within the jurisdiction of an inferior Court, the plaintiff, whether successful or unsuccessful, may have to bear the extra costs occasioned by bringing the action in the Supreme Court, unless the Court otherwise orders: see Rule 649.

Actions relating to land out of Ontario.

Principles on which Court Exercises its Jurisdiction. — As a general rule an English Court will not adjudicate on questions relating to the title to, or to the right of possession of, immovable property out of the jurisdiction of the Court. Exceptions to this rule depend upon the existence between the parties to the suit within the jurisdiction of some personal obligation arising out of contract, or fiduciary relation, or out of fraud or other conduct which in the view of an English Court of Equity would be unconscionable, and do not depend for their existence on the law of the locus of the immovable property: Deschamps v. Miller, 1908, 1 Ch. 856; 98 L. T. 564.

Extra-territorial jurisdiction.

Formerly the Court of Chancery in England exercised a jurisdiction in respect of property situate beyond its jurisdiction, if the defendant were within its jurisdiction, and enforced its decree by process of contempt against the person of the defendant: see Penn v. Lord Baltimore, 1 Ves. Sen. 444. But the tendency of modern decisions regarding the jurisdiction of Courts in the Overseas Dominions of the Crown is to confine their jurisdiction to property and persons within their respective territorial jurisdictions, subject to certain exceptions where persons without the jurisdiction are necessary parties to suits properly instituted against persons within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court, and the other cases provided for by Rule 25: see notes to Rule 25.

The Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an action against a defendant resident within its territorial jurisdiction for damages for trespass to land situate out of the territorial jurisdiction of the Court: Companhia de Mocambique v. The British South Africa Co., 1893, A. C. 602; 69 L. T. 604; Brereton v. C. P. Ry., 29 Ont. 57. See The Black Point Syndicate Ltd. v. Eastern Concession, Ltd., 1898, 79 L. T. 658. Nor will it entertain an action against a defendant within its jurisdiction, to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of land without the jurisdiction: Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547; nor for redemption: Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 20 Ont. App. 646; 23 S. C. R. 716; nor for a declaration that a deed of lands out of the jurisdiction is in reality a mortgage, and for redemption: Gunn v. Harper, 2 O. L. R. 611; nor to enforce a lien on lands out of the jurisdiction by a judgment for sale, or recovery of possession: Great North Western Ry. v. Charlebois, 1899, A. C. 114; 79 L. T. 35; but see Duder v. Amsterdamsch, infra; nor by a mortgagee for sale: Strange v. Radford, 15 Ont. 145; nor to determine the title: Ross v. Ross, 23 Ont. 43, of lands out of the jurisdiction; nor to enforce claims arising out of a French marriage to land out of the jurisdiction: Deschamps v. Miller, 1908, 1 Ch. 856. But it would seem that an action for foreclosure of the equity of redemption in land out of the jurisdiction may be entertained: Paget v. Ede, 18 Eq. 118; and see Re Robertson R. v. R., 22 Gr. 449; Bryson v. Huntington, 25 Gr. 265; but as to actions to foreclose the equity of redemption in personal property out of the jurisdiction: see Hughes v. Oxenham, 1913, 1 Ch. 254; 108 L. T. 316.

ecific performnnce was decreed of a contract to exchange land in nited States for land in Ontnrio, the plaintiff being the owner e land in U. S., nnd submitting to the jurisdiction of the Court tario by suing in it: Montgomery v. Ruppensburg, 31 Ont. 433; receiver was appointed of the rents and profits of land out of urisdiction on which plaintiff claimed to have an equitable e: Duder v. Amsterdamsch, 1902, 2 Ch. 132; 87 L. T. 22; but it difficult to understand how such a receivership could be en- if opposed, except by seeking the aid of the Court where the was situate. Sec. 3.

here a plaintiff is entitled to sue n defendant within Ontario to lde an agreement, the fact that there are lands included in the neat which are out of the jurisdiction will not prevent the from exercising jurisdiction: see MacKay v. Colonial Invest. Co., 4 O. L. R. 571.

seems equally clear that the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction certain an action relating to personal property out of its terri- jurisdiction, nor any action affecting or dealing with the rights rsons in such property whether they be resident in Ontario or here: see The Royal Bank v. The King, 1913, A. C. 283, and s v. Orenham, supra, and Cotton v. The King, 45 S. C. R. 469; A. C. 176. Actions relating to personalty out of the jurisdiction.

e Royal Bank v. The King, supra, involved, it is true, a question the power of a Provincial Legislature to legislate regarding ty beyond its territorial jurisdiction, but as it was there held he Legislature had not that power, it seems à fortiori, that it not delegate to any Court the power to deal with property out jurisdiction.

e Court will not exercise jurisdiction against a defendant who foreign sovereign and refuses to submit to its jurisdiction: ll v. Sultan of Johore, 1894, 1 Q. B. 149; 70 L. T. 64; nor over ign ambassador: see Musurus Bey v. Gadban, 1894, 2 Q. B. L. T. 51; nor the officials of a foreign legation: Re Bolivia, Ch. 139; and it would seem that the privilege cannot be : Ib. Foreign sovereign.

all the jurisdiction which was vested in the former High Court tice is now vested in the Supreme Court, a Judge trying a case competent to give legal or equitable relief, or both, as the case equire. Thus, where a person fraudulently personating a testa- d forged mortgages of the testator's estate, and an action was t to obtain a declaration that certain mortgages were void, have them delivered up, Kay, J., looking at this enactment at he was not administering equity merely, and should there- ve the plaintiff his legal remedy as to the deeds, and direct o be delivered up, as well as declare them void: Cooper v. 51 L. J., Chy. 149; see also Manners v. Mew, 29 Ch. D. 725. Legal and equitable relief may be given.

hts and Privileges of Judges.—By The Judicature Act (R. 1897), c. 51), s. 43, it was enacted: Rights and privileges of Judges.

3. Every Judge of the High Court shall have, use and exer- the rights, incidents and privileges of a Judge of a Court of and all other rights, incidents and privileges as fully to all and purposes as the same were, prior to the fifth day of ber, 1859, used, exercised or enjoyed by any of the Judges of Her Majesty's Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster. 12, s. 38."

Sec. 3.

And it is to be presumed that the Judges of the Supreme Court as Judges of the High Court Division have and may exercise the like rights, incidents and privileges: see post, s. 13 (2).

The Public Officers Act (R. S. O. c. 15), s. 18, empowers a Judge of the High Court Division in Chambers to appoint some other person to act for a public officer who is personally interested in some matter pending before him in his official capacity: see Re County Court Judges' Income Assessment, 5 O. W. N. 657.

Jurisdiction under Dom. Acts.

Dominion Jurisdiction.—The former High Court of Justice and Court of Appeal, in addition to the jurisdiction above mentioned, also exercised jurisdiction under certain Dominion Statutes the jurisdiction thereby conferred is now vested in the Supreme Court.

By 3-4 Geo. V. c. 50 (D.) it is provided:

Change of name of Ontario Court of Appeal not to affect references under existing law.

1. Where by any Act of the Parliament of Canada heretofore passed, provision is made by which any jurisdiction, power or authority is conferred upon, or provision is made for an appeal to, or the stating a case for the opinion of, or for any proceeding, matter or thing being had, taken or done by or before the Court of Appeal for Ontario, such jurisdiction, power and authority shall be deemed to be conferred upon, such appeal shall lie to, such case may be stated for the opinion of, and such proceeding, matter or thing may be had, taken or done by or before a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

As to Ontario High Court.

2. Where by any Act of the Parliament of Canada heretofore passed, provision is made for stating a case for the opinion of, or for any proceeding, matter or thing being had, taken or done by or before the High Court of Justice for Ontario or a Judge thereof, such case may be stated for the opinion of, and such proceeding, matter or thing may be had, taken or done before the High Court Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario or a Judge of that Division sitting in Court or in Chambers.

This Act came into force on 1st January, 1913.

Dom. Railway Act (R. S. C. c. 27).

By the Dominion Railway Act (R. S. C. c. 27), s. 209, jurisdiction is given to the "Superior Court" to entertain appeals from awards for compensation under the Act. At the time the Act was passed appeals from inferior Courts were made in Ontario to the High Court of Justice; now appeals from such Courts are not to the High Court Division, but to the Appellate Division. The Railway Act provides that the practice in appeals under the Act are to be as nearly as may be the same as upon an appeal from the decision of an inferior Court; whether the appeal is now to the High Court Division or the Appellate Division, is not very clear. It would seem as if it is now to a single Judge of the High Court Division: see s. 209 (3). But it is possible that under s. 209 (4), under The Arbitration Act (R. S. O. c. 65), s. 17, an appeal would also lie to the Appellate Division.

Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144).

Under The Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144), s. 102, an appeal was given in proceedings under that Act to the Court of Appeal for Ontario, which appeal now lies to the Appellate Division.

Cr. Code (R. S. C. c. 146).

Under The Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146), jurisdiction was given the Court of Appeal to entertain appeals in criminal cases: see s. 2 (7); and ss. 1013, 1014, 1015, 1016, 1021. This jurisdiction is now transferred to the Appellate Division.

By The Criminal Code, jurisdiction is conferred on the High Court of Justice as a Superior Court of Criminal Jurisdiction: see Cr. Code, s. 2 (35); and the jurisdiction thereby conferred is now vested in the High Court Division.

y The Controverted Elections Act (R. S. C. c. 7), jurisdiction was erred on the High Court of Justice to try Dominion election tions: see s. 2 (f), and s. 5; and that jurisdiction is now vested he High Court Division. Its jurisdiction under this Act is regu- by Rules of Court passed December 14th, 1908: see Holmested's inion Election Rules (1909). Secs. 3-6. Dom. Con. Election Act (R. S. C. c. 7).

ppellate Jurisdiction.—For the appellate jurisdiction of the t: see post, ss. 24-31.

. The Supreme Court shall continue to consist of two nches or divisions, which shall be designated respec- ly "The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of ario," and "The High Court Division of the Supreme rt of Ontario." 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 4. Supreme Court to consist of two divisions.

he Supreme Court was originally constituted in its present form Edw. VII. c. 28, which took effect on 1st January, 1913.

. The Appellate Division shall continue to consist of a ef Justice, who shall be the President of the Division shall be called the Chief Justice of Ontario, and four er judges, to be called Justices of Appeal, and of the er judges of the High Court Division who for the time g constitute or are members of a Divisional Court. Geo. V. c. 19, s. 5. Constitution of Appellate Division.

—(1) The High Court Division shall continue to con- of fourteen judges. Constitution of High Court Division.

2) The Chancellor of Ontario, the Chief Justice of the g's Bench, the Chief Justice of the Exchequer and the ef Justice of the Common Pleas shall retain their sent rank and titles, and the senior of them for the e being or the last of them who holds office as the may be shall be the President of the High Court ision. Chancellor and Chief Justices to retain rank and title. Senior to be President of High Court Division.

3) The Justices of Appeal now holding office shall in their present rank and precedence. Rank of present Justices of Appeal.

4) When a vacancy occurs in any of the offices men- ed in sub-section 2, the office which becomes vacant l be abolished. When vacancy occurs office to be abolished.

5) When all of the offices mentioned in sub-section 2 e ceased to exist, the High Court Division shall con- of a Chief Justice, who shall be the President of the sion and shall be called the Chief Justice of the High rt, and thirteen other judges. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 6. When all the offices cease to exist High Court Division to consist of a Chief Justice and thirteen other Judges.

Secs. 7-9.

Precedence of Chief Justice of Ontario.

Precedence of Chief Justice of High Court and Justices of Appeal.

Precedence of other Judges.

7.—(1) The Chief Justice of Ontario shall have rank and precedence over all the other judges.

(2) The Chief Justice of the High Court shall have rank and precedence next after the Chief Justice of Ontario.

(3) The Justices of Appeal hereafter appointed and the other Judges shall have rank and precedence after the Chief Justice of the High Court and among themselves according to seniority of appointment.

Subject to s. 6.

(4) Sub-sections 2 and 3 shall be subject to the provisions of section 6. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 7.

Residence of Judges.

All of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature were required to reside in Toronto, or within five miles thereof, but leave may be granted from time to time by Order in Council, to reside elsewhere in the Province for any specified time: R. S. C. c. 138, s. 7.

Every Judge to be a Judge of the Supreme Court.

8. Every judge appointed to the Appellate Division or to the High Court Division shall be a Judge of the Supreme Court and shall be ex officio a Judge of the Division of which he is not a member, and, except where it is otherwise expressly provided, all the Judges of the Supreme Court shall have in all respects equal jurisdiction, power and authority. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 8.

This section seems to contemplate that Judges instead of being appointed simply Judges of the Supreme Court, may be appointed to one or other of the Divisions of the Court; and that if so appointed they shall, nevertheless, be entitled to sit as Judges of both Divisions.

Oath of office.

9.—(1) Every judge hereafter appointed, before entering on the duties of his office, shall take and subscribe the following oath:—

Form.

"I do solemnly and sincerely promise and swear, that I will duly and faithfully, and to the best of my skill and knowledge, execute the powers and trusts reposed in me as ; so help me God."

How oath to be administered.

(2) The oath shall be administered to a Chief Justice before the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to a Judge of Appeal by the Chief Justice of Ontario, and to a Judge of the High Court Division by the President of that Division, unless the Lieutenant-Governor in Council in any case otherwise directs, and in that event before such officer or functionary and in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may direct. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 9.

Secs. 10, 11.

Giving of judgment by Judge who resigns or is appointed to another Court.

10.—(1) Where a judge resigns his office or is appointed to any other court, he may at any time within eight weeks after his resignation or appointment give judgment in any cause, action or matter previously tried or heard before him, as if he had not so resigned been appointed.

When to take part in judgment.

(2) Where he has heard a cause, action or matter ntly with other judges in a Divisional Court he may any time within the period mentioned in sub-section take part in the giving of judgment by that court as if were still a member of it.

Judgment of remaining Judges or majority.

(3) Where he does not take part in the giving of judgent or where a judge by whom a cause, action or matter s been heard in a Divisional Court is absent from illss or any other cause or dies, the remaining judges of court, or, if there is a difference of opinion, a majority them may give judgment as if the judge who has so igned or been appointed or is dead were still a member the court and taking part in the judgment, and in the e of absence as if the absent judge were present and ing part in the judgment.

Reading judgment of absent Judge.

(4) Where a judge who has heard a cause, action or tter in a Divisional Court is not present when the gment of the court is delivered, his written judgment y be read by one of the other judges and shall have same effect as if he were present. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, 0.

Death of Judge.

Where a Judge dies after the trial of an action, but before giving ment, there is no power to direct that the action be set down for ing before the Appellate Division on the evidence already taken, ot by consent of parties, but the case must go to trial again: ke v. Trask, 1 O. L. R. 207.

SEAL.

Seal.

1. There shall be a seal for the Supreme Court to be roved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 3-4 . V. c. 19, s. 11.

The seal is in the custody of the Clerk of Records and Writs, by ation of the Judges of the Supreme Court of 2nd January, 1913.

Jurisdiction to be exercised by Appellate Division.

12.—(1) The Appellate Division shall exercise that part of the jurisdiction vested in the Supreme Court which, on the 31st day of December, 1912, was vested in the Court of Appeal and in the Divisional Courts of the High Court, and such jurisdiction shall be exercised by a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division, and in the name of the Supreme Court.

Jurisdiction to be exercised by High Court Division.

(2) Except as provided by the next preceding subsection, all the jurisdiction vested in the Supreme Court shall be exercised by the High Court Division in the name of the Supreme Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 12.

See notes to s. 3, supra.

Jurisdiction of Chief Justice and Justices of Appeal.

13.—(1) All jurisdiction, power and authority which on the 31st day of December, 1912, was vested in or exercisable by the Chief Justice of Ontario or by a Justice of Appeal, shall be vested in and may be exercised by a Judge of the Appellate Division, and shall be exercised in the name of the Supreme Court.

Jurisdiction of Judges of the High Court Division.

(2) All jurisdiction, power and authority which on the 31st day of December, 1912, was vested in or exercisable by a Judge of the High Court shall be vested in and may be exercised by a Judge of the High Court Division, and shall be exercised in the name of the Supreme Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 13.

See notes to s. 3, supra.

Provisions for absence or vacancy in office of a Judge.

14. Upon the request of the judge or judges for or with whom he is requested to sit or act, or upon the request of the Chief Justice of Ontario or of the President of the High Court Division, any Judge of the Supreme Court or any retired judge of that Court may sit and act as a judge of either of the divisions of the Supreme Court, or perform any other official or ministerial act for or on behalf of any judge absent from illness or any other cause, or in the place of any judge whose office has become vacant, or as an additional judge of a Divisional Court: and while so sitting and acting, any such judge or retired judge shall have all the power and authority of a Judge of the Supreme Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 14.

The power to appoint Judges of the Superior Courts in each vince being vested in the Governor-General: see B. N. A. Act, s. 96, right of the Provincial Legislature to pass this section has been bted in so far as it purports to authorize retired Judges to act Judges of the Supreme Court: see 49 C. L. J. 313. ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

3. In every civil cause or matter law and equity shall dministered according to the following rules:— Rules of law.

(a) Where a plaintiff claims to be entitled to any equitable estate or right, or to relief upon any equitable ground against any deed, instrument or contract, or against any right, title or claim asserted by any defendant in such cause or matter, or to any relief founded upon a legal right which before the passing of The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, could only have been given by a Court of Equity, the Supreme Court and every judge shall give to such plaintiff such and the same relief as ought to have been given by the Court of Chancery in a suit Equitable relief. 44 V. c. 5.

or proceeding for the same or the like purposes properly instituted before the passing of that Act;

Taken from Eng. J.A., 1873, s. 24, s.-s. 1.

This and the next section deal with the old anomaly of different Courts recognizing different rights and duties, applying different remedies to the same case, and in some cases even enforcing rules of law in conflict with one another. The removal of the conflict of law is provided for by s. 22. The rest of the matter is dealt with in the present section, the provisions of which have been summarized thus:—

Law and Equity to be administered.

The plaintiff may assert an equitable claim in the Supreme Court (s.-s. a); and may obtain an equitable remedy (ibid.); the defendant may raise any equitable answer or defence to any claim; that is to say, anything which would formerly have been good by way of answer if the suit had been brought in Chancery (s.-s. c), or would have afforded ground for an injunction if the action had been brought at law (s.-s. f); and he may assert, by way of counterclaim against the plaintiff, any claim, legal or equitable, which he might have raised by a cross suit at Law, or in Equity (s.-s. d); the defendant may also obtain relief relating to, or connected with, the original subject of the action, against other persons, whether already parties or not (ibid.). The Court is to recognize equitable rights incidentally appearing (s.-s. e); no cause is to be restrained by injunction; what would have been ground for injunction is to be raised by way of defence, or upon an application to stay proceedings (s.-s. f). Subject to these provisions, Common Law rights and duties are to be recognized (s.-s. g), and the Court is to apply all appropriate remedies, and dispose of all matters in controversy (s.-s. h). See Wilson Jud. Act. 7th ed., p. 15.

By the operation of the Act the Supreme Court is to administer justice according to so much of the principles of Law and Equity as may be necessary to give complete and effectual relief to suitors: Gibbs v. Guild, 9 Q. B. D. 66, per Lord Coleridge, citing Pugh v. Heath, 7 App. Cas. 237; and where there was any conflict between the two, Equity is to prevail; therefore concealed fraud, and the absence of means of discovery, will, if pleaded, prevent the application of the Statute of Limitations, as formerly in pure Equity proceedings: Gibbs v. Guild, 8 Q. B. D. 296; 9 Q. B. D. 59; Barber v. Houston, 14 L. R. Ir. 273; irrespective of the question whether such matters formerly constituted at Law a good answer to a plea of the Statute.

In Adamson v. Adamson, 7 Ont. App. 592, the opinion was expressed by Burton, J.A., that notwithstanding the Jud. Act, the owner of an equitable estate cannot proceed to recover possession of land against a trespasser in possession, but was bound to sue in the name of the person having the legal estate. This opinion did not form part of the judgment of the Court in the case, and was founded upon the view that before the Administration of Justice Act, 1873, ejectment would not lie in such a case, and that the latter Act only enabled the Court of Chancery to entertain suits for ejectment in the same way as the Courts of Common Law. The point, which did not there distinctly arise, as the proceedings were before the Jud. Act, has since been considered in Heenan v. Heenan, 3 C. L. T. 163; Thorne v.

lliams, 13 Ont. 577, and Gordon v. Armstrong, 16 P. R. 432; see Jones v. McGrath, 16 Ont. 617, where the opinion was expressed t since the Jud. Act, such an action may be maintained by the ltable owner in his own name; but the owner of the legal estate uld also be made a party to the action: Cope v. Crichton, 30 Ont. ; Allen v. Woods, 68 L. T. 143; Saylor v. Cooper, 2 Ont. 398; rclough v. Marshall, 4 Ex. D. 37; and Goodrich v. Everglyn Coal . W. N. 1889, 152; but see Faulkner v. Greer, 16 O. L. R. 123; 40 C. R. 399, where the legal owner of the timber in question in the lon was not a party, but the equitable owner was held entitled to intain an action for trespass in respect thereof. Sec. 16 (b).

in an action of ejectment by the owner of the legal title, he was, on counterclaim of the defendant setting up an equitable title, ered to convey the legal estate to the defendant: Trinidad Asphalt v. Coryat, 1896, A. C. 587.

For definitions of "plaintiff," "petitioner," "defendant," see Jud. , s. 2 (h and r) supra, pp. 2, 3.

(b) No action or proceeding shall be open to objection on the ground that a merely declaratory judgment or order is sought thereby, and the Court may make binding declarations of right, whether any consequential relief is or could be claimed or not; Declaratory judgments and orders.

This section is the same as Eng. O. 25, r. 5, and is an amended reduction of Chy. O. 538. It does not make any radical change in rules and practice of the Court: Bunnell v. Gordon, 20 Ont. 281.

Chancery Order 538 was held only to apply to cases where the ntiff was entitled to relief consequent upon the declaration be d, if he chose to claim it, but it was held not to apply to cases re the plaintiff was not entitled to claim any relief consequent n the declaration: Rooke v. Lord Kingsdown, 2 K. & J. 753; ke v. Cook, 23 Gr. 110; Cogswell v. Sugden, 24 Gr. 474; Brookes onley, 8 Ont. 549. Thus, a decree was pronounced declaring the construction of a will, without directing administration. In a where the plaintiff was entitled to the latter relief if he desired Murphy v. Murphy, 20 Gr. 575; and see Canada Central Ry. Co. he Queen, Ib. 303. This section was passed to enable the Court ronounce a declaratory decree whether consequent relief could laimed or not. But notwithstanding the power thus conferred the diction will be exercised with great caution: Austen v. Collins, . T. 903. See also Grand Junction W. W. v. Hampton Urban, Co., 1898, 2 Ch. 331. Declaratory judgment may now be granted in favour of a party who would not be entitled to relief declaratory judgment may be pronounced even though the causa ction be one at Common Law: e.g., that defendant is a tres- er on land: Harrison v. Rutland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 142; 68 L. T. 35; certain land is a highway: Toronto v. Lorsch, 24 Ont. 227; rton v. Miller, 26 Ont. 36; Gooderham v. Toronto, 19 Ont. App. and tha rights of parties in unpatented lands: Pride v. Rodger, nt. 320; and regulations of defendants have been declared to be binding upon the plaintiff, without granting any consequential f: London Ass'n of Shipowners v. London and India Docks, 1892, . 242.

Declaratory judgment refused.

The Court has no jurisdiction under this clause or otherwise to declare a marriage void ab initio: A. v. B., 23 O. L. R. 261; nor to establish a lost will of personal estate and declare that the executor therein named is entitled to probate: Mutrie v. Alexander, 23 O. L. R. 396; and see Belanger v. Belanger, 24 O. L. R. 439, nor to declare an absentee is to be presumed to be dead for the purpose of administering his estate, as that is a matter within the jurisdiction of a Surrogate Court: Re Coots, 1 O. W. N. 807. See also notes to s. 38 of R. S. O. 1897, c. 51, supra, p. 24.

Semble, the Court has now jurisdiction under this section to make a declaration of the legitimacy of a plaintiff, and his right in remainder to a title and estates: West v. Sackville, 1903, 2 Ch. 378; 88 L. T. 814.

A declaration was made that a lessor was not entitled to impose a particular condition attached by him to a license to assign, and that the lessee was entitled to assign without any further consent of the lessor: Young v. Ashley Gardens Properties, Limited, 1903, 2 Ch. 112; 88 L. T. 541; Evans v. Levy, 1910, 1 Ch. 452; 102 L. T. 128; and see Jenkins v. Price, 1907, 2 Ch. 229; 1908, 1 Ch. 10.

A declaratory judgment was pronounced in an action against the Attorney-General as to the construction of a statute, so as to bind the Crown and its officers: Burghes v. Attorney-General, and Dyson v. Attorney-General, infra.

A declaration was made that a tenement was not subject to an easement of light by reason of an alteration in the dominant tenement: Ankerson v. Connelly, 1906, 2 Ch. 544; 95 L. T. 716.

Declaratory judgment when refused.

In Bunnell v. Gordon, 20 Ont. 281, the plaintiff asked for a declaration that she was entitled to an inchoate right of dower. She had joined in a mortgage with her husband to bar dower. Subsequently the husband had assigned his equity of redemption to an assignee for the benefit of creditors, and the mortgagees were proceeding for a sale. The plaintiff claimed a declaration in order to have a portion of any surplus arising on such sale set apart to answer her dower, in case it should become consummate by the death of her husband. The declaration was refused, it being held that what was asked was a declaration as to a claim which might be made by another or others under circumstances which might or might not happen: see also Thomson v. Cushing, 30 Ont. 123.

A declaration was refused as to the validity of a life policy during the life of the assured, even where the Society issuing the policy had refused to accept from the holder premiums upon the ground that the policy was void: Honour v. Equitable Life, &c., 1900, 1 Ch. 852; also as to the invalidity of letters patent already expired, where no legal right of the plaintiff had been infringed: N. E. Marine Engineering Co. v. Leeds Forge Co., 1906, 2 Ch. 498; and see Offin v. Rochford, 1906, 1 Ch. 342; Dysart v. Hammerton, 1914, 1 Ch. 927; also where a special statutory tribunal is appointed to determine the question as to which a declaration is asked: Young Men's Christain Assoc. v. Ottawa, 29 O. L. R. 574.

Cases in which declaration of right made.

But in some cases the Court made a decree declaring future rights. Thus the question of the right of renewal, on which a lessee's claim to compensation for land taken by a railway depended, was declared: Bogg v. Midland Ry. Co., L. R. 4 Eq. 310; and, to save expense, it has construed executory marriage articles: Byam v. Byam, 19 Beav. 58.

A declaratory judgment is a judicial act, and will not be made ely on admissions of counsel, or by consent: Williams v. Powell, N. 1894, 141. Sec. 16 (c).

Where a right of recovery was given by statute in a Court of sum- y jurisdiction, it was held that the High Court had no power to e a declaratory judgment that the plaintiff had such right: Bur- ough v. Brown, 1897, A. C. 615.

A declaration that a debtor was the beneficial owner of a claim nst the Dominion Government, was refused, the plaintiff not being position to claim any consequential relief: Stewart v. Guibord, L. R. 262.

A declaration that a municipal corporation had no power to expro- e lands acquired by a street railway for the purposes of its ness was refused: Toronto Ry. v. Toronto, 13 O. L. R. 532.

A declaration of right in respect of a matter which the Legislature expressly assigned to the Surrogate Court Registrar was also ed: Attorney-General v. Cameron, 26 Ont. App. 103.

A declaratory decree was refused under the former practice where as sought for the purpose of protecting the plaintiff against a ngent claim by the defendant: Jackson v. Turnley, 1 Drew, 617; ee Cogswell v. Sugden, supra, p. 37; and also where it was sought eet future rights in events which had not happened: Longdale v. s, 8 D. M. & G. 391; Dowling v. Dowling, L. R. 1 Chy. 612; or ns entitled in reversion: Garlick v. Lawson, 10 Ha. App. xlv.; or n esse, Bright v. Tyndall, 4 Ch. D. 189; or to declare a purely question as against infants, even by consent: Webb v. Byng, 8 . & G. 633; De Windt v. De Windt, L. R. 1 H. L. 87; or to e a merely legal right: Trustees of Birkenhead Docks v. Laird, M. & G. 732; Bristow v. Whitmore, 4 K. & J. 743; Metropolitan of Works v. Sant, L. R. 7 Eq. 197; Jenner v. Jenner, L. R. 1 51; see also Miller v. Robertson, 35 S. C. R. 80; but see now supra. Other cases in which declaratory judgments have been refused.

It would seem that a case in which the Crown is interested is not ted from the application of the English Rule corresponding to rovision: Burghes v. Atty.-Gen., 1911, 2 Ch. 139; 1912, 1 Ch. 105 L. T. 193, 758; Dyson v. Atty.-Gen., 1911, 1 K. B. 410; 103 707; S. C., 1912, 1 Ch. 158; but see The Interpretation Act (R. . 1), s 29 Crown interested.

A merely declaratory judgment will not prevent the setting up of tatute of Limitations against the person in whose favour the ation is made: Cope v. Cope, 26 Ont. 441.

unty Courts.—This sub-section applies to County Courts in otherwise within the jurisdiction of a County Court: Bradley ber, 30 Ont. 443, 449; and see sec. 23, post.

(c) Where a defendant claims to be entitled to any equitable estate or right, or to relief upon any equitable ground against any deed, instrument or contract, or against any right, title or claim asserted by any plaintiff in such cause or matter, or alleges any ground of equitable defence to any claim of the plaintiff in such cause Equitable defences.

Sec. 18 (d).

or matter, the Court and every judge shall give to every equitable estate, right or ground of relief so claimed and to every ground of equitable defence so alleged, such and the same effect, by way of defence against the claim of such plaintiff, as the Court of Chancery ought to have given if the same or the like matters had been relied on by way of defence in a suit or proceeding instituted in that court for the same or the like purpose before the passing of The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881;

44 V. c. 5.

Taken from Eng. Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24, s.-s. 2, and to the same effect as the section previously in force.

See this section applied in Mostyn v. W. Mostyn, 1 C. P. D. 145; Hughes v. Metropolitan, &c., Ib. 120; Eyre v. Hughes, 2 Ch. D. 148; Marshall v. Marshall, 5 P. D. 19; Emmerson v. Ind, 12 App. Cas. 300; Cooper v. Vesey, 20 Ch. D. 611. See also s.-s. (e) infra.

Relief which may be granted to defendants.

(d) The Court and every judge shall also have power to grant to any defendant in respect of any equitable estate or right or other matter of equity, and also in respect of any legal estate, right or title claimed or asserted by him, all such relief against any plaintiff as such defendant shall have properly claimed by his pleading, and as the Court or any judge might have granted in a suit instituted for that purpose by the same defendant against the same plaintiff; and also all such relief relating to or connected with the original subject of the cause or matter, and in like manner claimed against any other person, whether already a party to the same cause or matter or not, who shall have been duly served with notice in writing of such claim pursuant to the Rules or to any order of the Court, as might properly have been granted against such person if he had been made a defendant to a cause duly instituted by the same defendant for the like purpose; and every person served with any such notice shall henceforth be deemed a party to such cause or matter, with the same rights in respect of his defence against such claim as if he had been duly sued in the ordinary way by such defendant; Sec. 16 (d).

A defendant in an action of tort may now plead tender of amends: see post, s. 71.

See Eng. Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24 (3).

The Rules respecting counterclaims (Rule 113, et seq.), and third parties (Rules 165-171) were made in furtherance of the powers conferred by this sub-section. See notes to those Rules.

As to how far Rules have been made to regulate the exercise of the powers conferred by this section of granting relief between co-defeadants: see Treleaven v. Bray, 45 L. J. Chy. 113; and notes to Rule 165, et seq.

This section does not entitle a defendant to proceed by way of counterclaim against a co-defendant unless the plaintiff is also interested in such counterclaim; if the plaintiff is not so interested, the defendant must seek his relief against a co-defendant under the third party procedure: Cope v. Crichton, 18 P. R. 462.

In Mudge v. Adams, 50 L. J. Pro. 49; 17 C. L. J. 369, an action propounding the will of a married woman made after she had obtained a protection order, and become possessed of separate estate, the defendant set up that the protection order had been fraudulently obtained, and claimed by way of cross relief to have it set aside. The will pronounced against, and administration granted to the defendant; and it was held to be within this section as asserting by counterclaim what might be asserted in a suit against the same plaintiff.

A defendant is not bound to make his cross claims in the same action, but may assert them by cross action. Thus where an action was brought against shippers and consignees for damages for detention at the port of lading, and for freight, and the defendants brought a cross action for a larger sum for damages for loss of cargo by the shipowners' negligence, and the writs were issued on the same day and statement of claim delivered first in the former action, a master stayed proceedings in the second action with liberty to the plaintiffs in it to file a counterclaim in the first action; but it was held on appeal that though there was jurisdiction to make such an order, it should only be exercised where the points in issue are the same, and that in the case in question the right to bring a cross action should not be interfered with: Adamson v. Tuff, 44 L. T. 420. See also the notes to s. 16 (f), and Rule 320. Defendant not bound to set up cross-claim by counterclaim.

As to the effect of the concluding words of this section: see Fowler v. Knoop in the note to Rule 165.

This section does not authorize a counterclaim against a plaintiff and a third party, in respect of a matter not "relating to, or connected with the original subject of the cause or matter," e.g., in an action for libel, a counterclaim for an alleged libel against the defeadant committed by the plaintiff and his agent who was added as a party to the counterclaim, was struck out: Edge v. Weigel, 97 L. T. 447.

Where a defendant claimed indemnity under a covenant made with a third party as trustee, for his benefit, it was held that the Sec. 16 (e, f). defendant was not entitled to sue on the covenant, and the claim, therefore, was dismissed: Markham v. Paget, 1908, 1 Ch. 679; 98 L. T. 605.

Courts to take notice of equitable rights and duties.

(e) The Court and every judge shall recognize and take notice of all equitable estates, titles and rights, and all equitable duties and liabilities appearing incidentally in the course of any cause or matter, in the same manner in which the Court of Chancery would have recognized and taken notice of the same in any suit or proceeding duly instituted therein before the passing of The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881;

44 V. c. 5.

In Williams v. Snowden, W. N. 1880, 124, a plaintiff in ejectment was ordered specifically to perform an agreement to lease the premises to defendant, which agreement, though not raised by defence, appeared incidentally in the cause. See Mostyn v. W. Mostyn, &c., 1 C. P. D. 145; Borrowes v. Delancy, 24 L. R. Ir. 503, where it incidentally appeared that a party was entitled to have a deed rectified. The doctrine of Equity whereby part performance furnishes a ground for enforcing a contract not enforceable at law by reason of s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds, is confined to suits as to the sale of interests in land, and has not been extended by the Jud. Act. The Jud. Act confers no new rights, but alters procedure only: Britain v. Rossiter, 11 Q. B. D. 123. See also Gibbs v. Guild, 9 Q. B. D. 67, and The Mercantile Amendment Act (R. S. O. c. 133), s. 16.

Under this section relief was given against a forfeiture in an action to re-enter for breach of covenant for payment of taxes which the defendant paid before statement of claim delivered: Buckley v. Beigle, 8 Ont. 85.

Notwithstanding this sub-section an equitable assignment is not equivalent to a legal assignment, and is not a breach of a covenant not to assign without leave: Gentle v. Faulkner, 1900, 2 Q. B. 267; 82 L. T. 708; and a person entitled to the benefit of a covenant made with some other person cannot sue on it, the action must be brought in the name of the covenantee: see Markham v. Paget, supra, p. 42.

Section 19 also now enables the Court to relieve against penalties and forfeitures.

Restraining proceedings.

(f) No cause or proceeding shall be restrained by prohibition or injunction, but every matter of equity on which an injunction against the prosecution of any such cause or proceeding might have been obtained, prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, either unconditionally or on any terms or conditions, may be relied on by way of defence thereto; but nothing in this Act shall disable the Court from directing a stay of proceedings in any cause or matter pending before it; and any person, whether a party or not (a) to any such cause or matter, who would have been entitled, prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, to apply to any court to restrain the prosecution thereof, or who may be entitled to enforce, by attachment or otherwise, any judgment, or order, contrary to which all or any part of the proceedings in such cause or matter may have been taken, may apply to the Court by motion in a summary way, for a stay of proceedings in such cause or matter either generally, or so far as may be necessary for the purposes of justice; and the Court shall thereupon make such order as shall be deemed just;

Sec. 16 (f). 44 V. c. 5. 44 V. c. 5.

To the same effect as Rev. Stat. 1897, c. 51, s. 57 (9), and see . J. A., 1873, s. 24 (5).

The effect of this sub-section is that, in ordinary cases, whatever ld formerly have been ground for an injunction restraining an on must now be raised in the action, either by way of defence, upon an application to stay proceedings: Garbutt v. Faweus, 1 Ch. 55.

(a) "Whether a party or not." The jurisdiction to stay proceed- Staying proceedings. on the application of a person not a party is only to be exercised re the action is an improper one, or where its prosecution might e been restrained by injunction under the former practice in ncery, and only where the applicant is one who seeks to inter-, and can properly be added as a party: Fawkes v. Griffin, 17 . 473.

An application to stay proceedings in an action must be made in action sought to be stayed, and not by commencing a new action an injunction: Garbutt v. Faweus, 1 Ch. D. 155; Re South of ice Pottery Works Syndicate, 37 L. T. 260; Re People's Garden pany, 1 Ch. D. 44; Walker v. Banagher Distillery Company, 1 Q. . 129; Wright v. Redgrave, 11 Ch. D. 24; White v. Harrow, 50 W. 66. Two decisions to the contrary: Kingchurch v. People's Garden pany, 1 C. P. D. 45, and Needham v. Rivers Protection Company, . D. 253, are overruled. See also Searle v. Choat, 25 Ch. D. 723; e v. Capsey, 1891, 3 Ch. 411, and the same rule applies where the eedings sought to be stayed are being taken by an officer of the rt, e.g., a sheriff: Wright v. Redgrave, supra; or a receiver: Searle hoate, and Lane v. Capsey, supra.

Sec. 16 (f).

Thus, actions for claims provable (as to which see Crowle v. Russell, 4 C. P. D. 186), in pending administration proceedings must be restrained by motion in the actions and not in the matter in which the administration proceedings are being taken: see Cobbold v. Pryke, 4 Ex. D. 315; Powell v. Jewsbury, 9 Ch. D. 39; Bailey v. Monteith, 3 C. L. T. 599.

Proceedings under a writ of elegit, issued to enforce payment of costs of an action, were stayed where the lands taken under the writ were not lands in the hands of the defendants, chargeable with those costs: Earl Jersey v. Uxbridge Rural Sanitary Authority, 1891, 3 Ch. D. 183.

In Besant v. Wood, 12 Ch. D. 630, it was said that though a pending motion cannot be restrained, a person may, in a proper case, be restrained from instituting proceedings. See also Cercle Restaurant Co. v. Lavery, 18 Ch. D. 555; Hart v. Hart, 18 Ch. D. 670; and Armstrong v. Armstrong, 1892, P. 98, where proceedings in a foreign Court were stayed by injunction: see post, s. 21.

See also Hedley v. Bates, 13 Ch. D. 498; (explained Stannard v. St. Giles, 20 Ch. D. p. 196); Re Artistic Colour Printing Co., 14 Ch. D. 502; Crowle v. Russell, 4 C. P. D. 186.

Enforcing agreements of compromise in the same action.

Stay to Enforce a Compromise.—Under this clause and sec. 16 (h) the Court has power to enforce a compromise entered into pending an action, and (where no terms of the compromise go beyond what is in controversy in the action: Rees v. Carruthers, 17 P. R. 51), to stay the action on a summary application in that action: Eden v. Naish, 7 Ch. D. 781; Scully v. Lord Dundonald, 8 Ch. D. 658; Re Gaudet Frères Steamship, etc., Co., 12 Ch. D. 882; Baker v. Baker, 55 L. T. 723; Smythe v. Smythe, 18 Q. B. D. 544, followed in Farran v. Hunter (before Ferguson, J., 25th Sept., 1888). See also Davidson v. Merritton, 18 P. R. 139. The former Chy. practice required a fresh suit to be brought for specific performance of the agreement for compromise, unless it related merely to the prosecution of the suit: Pryer v. Gribble, L. R. 10 Chy. 534, or unless where the compromise was entered into before answer, and was set up by the answer and specific performance prayed by way of cross-relief: Small v. Union Perm. B. S., 6 P. R. 206.

Where a compromise has been made by the defendants with one only of two plaintiffs, the other not concurring, an application by the defendant to stay proceedings as to the non-concurring plaintiff is wholly irregular: Re Matthews, Oates v. Mooney, 1905, 2 Ch. 460.

A separate action to enforce a compromise may still be brought: Hart v. Hart, 18 Ch. D. 670; Knowles v. Roberts, 58 L. T. 259, and may sometimes be necessary: see Gilbert v. Endean, 9 Ch. D. 259; Re Hearn, De Bertodano v. Hearn, 108 L. T. 737, but ordinarily it will be proper to apply in the action for such order as may be necessary. Where the pronouncing of some judgment is necessary to give effect to the compromise, a motion for judgment should be made to the Court; the Master in Chambers would have no jurisdiction to make an order in such a case: Pirung v. Dawson, 9 O. L. R. 248; though possibly he would have jurisdiction where the order required is merely to stay or dismiss the action: see Ib.

The decisions as to staying proceedings upon summary application in case of a compromise are not necessarily applicable to a compromise arrived at pending a reference, as under Rule 410 the Master may after the compromise proceed to report it: Corry v. Lemoine, 18 P. R. 482.

An agreement as to payments after judgment in a foreclosure action is enforced by the appointment of a new day: McCollum v. Coslan, O. L. R. 240. Sec. 16 (f).

It has been held that the compromise cannot be set aside on summary application, and that an action is necessary: Emeris v. Woodard, 43 Ch. D. 185; and see Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1896, 1 Ch. 673; L. T. 193; 1897, 2 Ch. 584; 77 L. T. 57; Gilbert v. Endean, 9 Ch. 259; but, where necessary, an issue may be directed to determine to whether a valid agreement of compromise has been arrived at, d a stay may be directed provisionally to be continued in the event the compromise being valid: Rees v. Carruthers, 17 P. R. 51; and has also been held that the validity of a compromise agreed to by illiterate plaintiff without the knowledge or concurrence of his licitor, may be inquired into, without bringing a new action to set aside, if the compromise is pleaded in the action alleged to be compromised, and, where that is done, its validity may be tried in the tion: Johnson v. G. T. Ry. Co., 25 Ont. 64; 21 Ont. App. 408; ist v. G. T. Ry. Co., 22 Ont. App. 504; Davidson v. Merritton, P. R. 139. Setting aside a compromise.

Where the intended compromise fails but the plaintiff has obtained me advantage, he will be required to restore it, as a condition of ing allowed to continue the action: Henderson v. Underwriting soc., 65 L. T. 616, 732; Guy v. Walker, 8 T. L. R. 31 .

A stay was refused where an action had been settled by the plain-'s solicitor, the settlement having been provisional and not adopted the plaintiff: McDonald v. Field, 12 P. R. 213.

Vexatious Proceedings.—Actions or proceedings which are absolely groundless are frivolous and vexatious. A stay of such proceedgs may be granted not as a substitute for an injunction, but under e inherent jurisdiction of the Court to control its procedure. Staying vexatious proceedings.

"A Court of competent jurisdiction has inherent power to prevent use of its process, by staying or dismissing, without proof, actions ich it holds to be vexatious": Per Lord Watson, Hoggard v. Pélicier, 92, A. C. 61.

The institution of such proceedings is an abuse of the process of e Court, and they may be stayed summarily upon motion: Edmunds Attorney-General, 26 W. R. 550; 38 L. T. 213; W. N. 1878, 64. e also Tucker v. Collinson, 34 W. R. 355; 54 L. T. 128, 263; or missed: Metropolitan Bank v. Pooley, 10 App. Cas. 210; Ker v. lliams, 79 L. T. Jour. 229; W. N. 1886, 16; Willis v. Earl Beaump. 11 P. D. 59; Blair v. Cordner, 36 W. R. 64; Grepe v. Loam, Ch. D. 168; Lawrance v. Lord Norreys, 39 Ch. D. 213; 15 App. . 210; 62 L. B. 677; 78 L. T. 371; Re Ontario Sugar Co., McKinnon's Case, 22 O. L. R. 621; where the plaintiff has no locus standi: Robson v. Dodds, L. R. 8 Eq. 301; Vale v. Oppert, 5 Ch. D. 969; or it is clear that the plaintiff has no cause of action: Lawry v. Tuckett-Lawry, 2 O. L. R. 162, or the case is clearly res judicata: Birch v. Birch, 1902, P. 130; 86 L. T. 361; Boswell v. Coaks, 86 L. T. 365 n; where the claim though stating a sufficient case is shown by admission of the plaintiff to be without foundation: Jameson v. Laing, 7 P. R. 404. The Court will not decide a doubtful point of law on an application to stay proceedings as frivolous: Roberts v. Charing Cross & E. H. Ry., 87 L. T. 732; or of fact: Goodson v. Grierson, 1908, 1 K. B. 761; 98 L. T. 740 (an action to recover bets); or dismiss an action which is brought in good faith to try a question of law: Rex v. Thursby, 90 L. T. 265. Where a right to sue, however slight, appears on the face of the proceedings, and is not displaced by any admission, the plaintiff will not be prevented from having his action disposed of in the regular way: Bloxam v. Metropolitan, etc., L. R. 3 Chy. 337; Seaton v. Grant, L. R. 2 Chy. 459; Ross v. Edwards, 14 P. R. 523; 15 P. R. 150, but he may be directed to facilitate an early disposition of the action: Jameson v. Laing, supra, or may be required to give security for costs as a condition of being allowed to proceed: Smith v. Clarkson, 7 O. L. R. 460; 8 O. L. R. 131.

In England a special Act empowering the Court to prevent the bringing of vexatious proceedings has been passed: see Vexatious Actions Act, 1896 (59 & 60 V. c. 51), and see Ex p. Attorney-General, 76 L. T. 351.

In Davey v. Bentinck, 67 L. T. 742, an action was dismissed as frivolous and vexatious, under the inherent jurisdiction of the Court, where the plaintiff had persistently disobeyed an order for particulars. The inference was drawn that he did not deliver them because he had none to give, the action being frivolous.

Vexatious defence. Similarly there is inherent jurisdiction to strike out a defence as frivolous, vexatious and abuse of procedure: Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 665.

Vexatious motions. Where a party has made numerous unsuccessful interlocutory applications, the costs of which he has not paid though so ordered, he may be restrained from making any further such application without the leave of the Court: Kinnaird v. Field, 1905, 2 Ch. 306; 93 L. T. 147.

Actions against JJ.P. In actions against Justices of the Peace, brought contrary to the provisions of The Public Authorities Protection Act (R. S. O. c. 89), the roceedings may be set aside summarily: see s. 9 of that Act: sed vide Sec. 16 (l).

Webb v. Spears, 15 P. R. 232. The omission to give notice of action where one is requisite is no ground for summarily staying an action: Burney v. Emmett, 7 O. L. R. 604.

The power to stay proceedings as frivolous or vexatious will not ordinarily be exercised merely on the indorsement on the writ, and before statement of claim: Ross v. Edwards, 15 P. R. 150; Fletcher v. Bethom, 68 L. T. 438.

An action in which relief is claimed which had been already claimed in another action will be stayed, only in so far as it claims relief included in the former action: Morton v. Quick, 26 W. R. 441. Res judicata.

For a form of order staying proceedings where repeated frivolous applications have been made, see Grepe v. Loam, 37 Ch. D. 169; Seton, 7th ed., 344; Kinnaird v. Field, 1905, 2 Ch. 306; 93 L. T. 147.

There was no rule of practice at Common Law by which a plaintiff ordered to pay costs in the course of an action, but not paying them, was liable to have his action stayed till they were paid: Morton v. Palmer, 9 Q. B. D. 89; but the Court had power in its inherent jurisdiction to direct a stay if that appeared to be equitable. (The Master in Chambers has not this inherent power: Rickert v. Britton, 3 O. W. N. 1512). The onus of showing the propriety of a stay was on the party asking for it. In Equity the onus was on the other party, and he was required to show that a stay would be inequitable. The Common Law rule is adopted in Ontario as the most convenient: Stewart v. Sullivan, 11 P. R. 629, followed in Wright v. Wright, 12 P. R. 42. See also, in addition to the cases there cited, Re Wickham, Harony v. Taylor, 35 Ch. D. 272; 57 L. T. 468; and if the action is vexatious, or has been vexatiously conducted by the plaintiff, the Court by virtue of its inherent jurisdiction may stay the proceedings for non-payment of costs: Graham v. Sutton, 1897, 2 Ch. 367; 77 L. T. 35; Rickert v. Britton, 4 O. W. N. 258. Staying for non-payment of costs.

An action may be stayed till security ordered to be given for damages has been given: Richards v. Howell, W. N., 1883, 159, 168.

Another Action in Ontario Pending.—Proceedings will not be stayed pending another action where the plaintiff would not be bound by the result of the other action: Tilbury v. Romney, 19 P. R. 242; or if it will not determine the question raised in the action sought to be stayed: Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 14. Another action pending.

Cross Actions.—One of two cross actions between the same parties, arising out of the same matter, may be stayed, and a consolidation in fact thus effected; and where such an application is made the action against the party on whom the burden of proof lies ought in general to be stayed, and the action brought by him ought to be allowed to proceed, the other party being at liberty to raise by defence, set-off or counter-claim, all questions intended to be raised by him in the action which is stayed: Thompson v. Eastern Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 160. See further the notes to section 16 (d), and Rule 320. Cross actions.

Staying Proceedings Where an Agreement to Refer to Arbitration.—Where a submission to arbitration has been made, any legal proceeding brought in respect of any matter agreed to be referred may be stayed "at any time after appearance and before delivering any pleading or taking any other step in the proceeding": R. S. O. c. Staying proceedings where an agreement to refer to arbitration.

T. 811; and see notes to C. L. P. Act, s. 214, Maclennan's Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 90. An allegation of fraud by the plaintiff will not prevent the application of this rule: Ib. But when the plaintiff is entitled to some relief (e.g., an injunction or receiver) which could not be attained by a reference to arbitration, such relief may be granted, and the action stayed, except so far as is necessary to enable the plaintiff to obtain such relief: Pini v. Roncoroni, 1892, 1 Ch. 633; Baker v. Yorkshire F. & L. Ass. etc., Co., 1892, 1 Q. B. 144; Lyon v. Johnson, 60 L. T. 223; 40 Ch. D. 579; Chappell v. North, 1891, 2 Q. B. 252; Turnock v. Sartoris, 62 L. T. 209; Printing Machinery Co. v. Linotype, 1912, 1 Ch. 566.

An action was perpetually stayed where its subject was embraced in a reference to an official referee under The Vendors and Purchasers Act, R. S. O. c. 122; City of Toronto v. Canadian Pacific Railway Co., 18 P. R. 374, 451.

Where partizans had been appointed as arbitrators a stay was refused: Bonnin v. Neame, 1910, 1 Ch. 732; and see Freeman v. Chester, 1911, 1 K. B. 783.

Under this provision the Court may stay by injunction an action commenced in a foreign Court contrary to an agreement to refer. Peña Copper Mines v. Rio Tinto, 105 L. T. 346.

Unless the action is stayed an award made without the consent of both parties pendente lite would be of no effect: Doleman v. Ossett, 1912, 3 K. B. 257.

Practice.

Practice.—An application to stay must be made before delivering any pleadings or taking any other step in the proceeding on the part of the defendant. The attendance on a motion made by the plaintiff for an account under Rules 63 or 64 is the taking of a step which bars the right to apply for a stay: Ochs v. Ochs, 1909, 2 Ch. 121.

The motion must in general be on notice. "In a summary way" does not mean ex parte except in cases of emergency: see Hewitt v. Dowling, W. N. 1875, 202, Kevers v. Mitchell, W. N. 1876, 53, and notes to sec. 17.

Semble, the Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction to stay an action on the ground that it is frivolous or vexatious: see Knapp v. Carley, 40 C. L. J. 390; 7 O. L. R. 409; Rickert v. Britton, 3 O. W. N. 1512.

A motion to stay proceedings under the jurisdiction of the Court to control its own proceedings should be made in Chambers, not in Court: Lee v. Mimico Real Estate Co., 15 P. R. 288; and before the action is entered for trial: Cross v. Howe, 62 L. J. Chy. 342; 3 R. 218.

Giving effect to legal claims

(g) Subject to the foregoing provisions for giving effect to equitable rights and other matters of equity and the other express provisions of this Act, the Court and every judge shall recognize and give effect to all legal claims and demands, and all estates, rights, duties, obligations and liabilities existing by the common law or created by any statute, in the same manner as the same would have been recognized and given effect to prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, by any of the courts then existing and whose jurisdiction is now vested in the Supreme Court; Sec. 13 (h). 44 V. c. 5.

(h) The Court in the exercise of the jurisdiction vested in it by this Act in every cause or matter pending before it, shall have power to grant, and shall grant, either absolutely or on such reasonable terms and conditions as it shall deem just, all such remedies as any of the parties may appear to be entitled to in respect of any and every legal or equitable claim properly brought forward by them in such cause or matter so that, as far as possible, all matters so in controversy between the parties may be completely and finally determined, and all multiplicity of legal proceedings concerning any of such matters avoided. 3-4 Geo. Sec. 17.

Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 666. The right of the parties is limited by the opinion of the Court as to the practical convenience of trying incongruous claims in the same action. See notes to Rule 122.

Notwithstanding this sub-section the Court may, nevertheless, decline to decide questions relating to contingent interests which may never come into possession: Kevan v. Crawford, 6 Ch. D. 29; or questions not raised in the pleadings: see Gray v. Manitoba & N. W. Ry., 1897, A. C. 254.

Injunctions and receivers.

17. A mandamus or an injunction may be granted or a receiver appointed by an interlocutory order of the Court, in all cases in which it appears to the Court to be just or convenient that such order should be made; and any such order may be made either unconditionally, or upon such terms and conditions as the Court shall deem just; and if an injunction is asked, either before, or at, or after the hearing of any cause or matter, to prevent any threatened or apprehended waste or trespass, such injunction may be granted, whether the person against whom it is sought is or is not in possession under any claim of title or otherwise, or if out of possession does or does not claim a right to do the act sought to be restrained under a colour of title; and whether the estates claimed by both or by either of the parties are legal or equitable. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 17.

This section does not give any new right to an injunction which was not in force before the Judicature Act, 1881, nor does it extend the jurisdiction of the Court, or alter the principles on which the Court formerly gave summary relief: Lawson v. Crawford, 44 C. L. J. 40.

Where an injunction or receiver is a substantial object of the action the writ should be indorsed with a claim for that relief: Colebourne v. Colebourne, 1 Ch. D. 690, but it may be had though not so claimed Norton v. Gover, W. N., 1877, 206.

"Interlocutory order."

An "interlocutory order" means not merely an order between writ and final judgment, but an order other than final judgment whether before or after final judgment: Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 75; McLean v. Allen, 14 P. R. 84; Easton v. Nar Valley, etc., 8 T. L. R. 649. See also Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544, and Agnew v. McDowell, 14 L. R. Ir. 44 where, after a verdict, an injunction was granted against a continuance of the trespasses complained of in the action, no injunction having been granted at the trial. See also notes to sec. 25.

An action is pending where judgment has been pronounced but has not been entered: Spence v. G. T. Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 172.

Practice.

Motions under this section may be made in Court, except probably in the case of a mandamus, in regard to which provision is made for a summary application in Chambers: see Re Brookfield, etc., 12 P. R. 485, and Rules 207 (11), 622, and notes.

Mandamus.—The jurisdiction as to mandamus before the Ont. Act, 1881, related to writs of two kinds: (1) the old prerogative of mandamus, and (2) a writ which was grantable under various tory provisions. Sec. 17. Mandamus rerogative Mandamus.—The prerogative writ was one which not issue as of strict right like the writs which the subject had right to call for under the clause of Magna Charta, by which Crown is bound not to refuse or delay justice or right, but issued e discretion of the Crown, and the power to issue it was not ated to the ordinary Judges between party and party, but the etion of the Crown was exercised through that one of the Courts hich the Sovereign is supposed to be personally present: see 3 om. 110, 132; 4 Mod. 340; Reg. v. Cowle, Burr. 855; Tapping ortt 223. For this reason it is still in England only granted on cation to the K. B. D. being considered one of the flowers of the Court of Queen's Bench, now belonging to the K. B. D.: Glossop ston Local Board, 12 Ch. D. 115-116. The discretion which the possessed was not an arbitrary, but a judicial discretion: see v. Wigan, 1 App. Cns. 622; but was only exercised where there o other effectual remedy: Rex v. University of Cambridge, 1 W. 2; Re Barlow, 30 L. J. Q. B. 271; Rex v. Halls, 3 A. & E. 497. Prerogative mandamus.

Ontario the former Superior Courts of Law had concurrent iction in the matter; and the Supreme Court has now the same iction that any of the Courts formerly existing had: see sec. 3 Act. Re Stratford & Huron Railway and County of Perth, 38 Q. B. 156, per Moss, J.A., and Board of Education, Napanee v. ee, 29 Gr. 395; Re Paris Skating Rink Co., 6 Ch. D. 731; to Pub. Lib. Board v. Toronto, 19 P. R. 329.

is not the appropriate remedy for the enforcement of rights g out of contract: Re London, H. and B. Ry. and Tp. Wawanosh, C. Q. B. 93; Re Hamilton and N. W. Ry. and Halton, 39 U. C. 93; Grand Junction Ry. v. Peterboro', 8 S. C. R. 76; or other si right of the applicant against the respondent: Reg v. Cam-ll, 45 W. R. 336; Kingston v. Kingston P. & C. E. Ry., 25 Ont. 62. If a mandamus be grantable in such a case it is the man-which may be claimed in an action under above sec. 17: see lon v. Hamilton St. Ry., 8 O. L. R. 642; 10 O. L. R. 594; 39 S. 73. Contracts not enforced by mandamus.

B. 498; 45 W. R. 346, but it is not d where the applicant has another appropriate remedy: see upra, and Pasmore v. Oswaldtwistle Urban D. Co., 1898, A. Crown and its officers.

The prerogative mandamus cannot be granted against the Crown. McQueen v. McQueen, 16 S. C. R. 1; and see per Cockburn, C.J., Queen v. The Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, L. R. 7 Q. B. 387; though it may be granted against an officer of the Crown to compel the performance by him of a public duty: Re Massey M'g Co., supra.

Not granted where other remedy.

Formerly the existence of a remedy in Equity was not sufficient reason for refusing the writ, the Court only considered whether there was another specific remedy at law: see Rex v. Stafford, 3 T. R. 652; Re Hamilton and N. W. Ry. v. Holton, 39 U. C. Q. B. 93; and see Re Stratford and Huron Ry. Co. and Perth, 38 U. C. Q. B. 112, but, since the Ont. Jud. Act, the existence of any other remedy, legal or equitable, which the Court can apply will probably be sufficient reason for not interfering by way of the prerogative mandamus.

The granting of the prerogative mandamus is discretionary, and it will not be granted where the applicant is himself in fault: Reg. v. Wigan, 1 App. Cas. 622; Reg. v. G. W. Ry. Co., 62 L. J. Q. B. 572; 69 L. T. 572.

Where a prerogative mandamus is the proper remedy it should be applied for on motion: an action for a mandamus cannot be maintained: Smith v. Chorley, 1897, 1 Q. B. 532, 678; Kingston v. Kingston P. & C. Ry., 28 Ont. 399; 25 Ont. App. 462; but where an action was brought and a motion made in it for a mandamus the proceedings were stayed so as to turn the motion into a summary application for a prerogative mandamus: Toronto Public Library Board v. Toronto, 19 P. R. 329.

Semble the application should now be made by originating notice: see Rules 10, 215 (2), 20. The application may be made to a Judge in Chambers, 207 (11), but in important matters it may be well to apply in Court.

Examples.

Examples.—A mandamus will not be granted (either in an action or otherwise) to interfere with a discretion vested in, and honestly exercised by, a local public authority: Smith v. Chorley, 1897, 1 Q. B. 532, 678; but has been granted where the discretion has been exercised on a mistaken view of the matters to which the discretion of the local authority extends: Reg. v. St. Pancras, 24 Q. B. D. 371; Reg. v. Cotham, 1898, 1 Q. B. 802; and to a Judge of an inferior Court who refused to hear a cause because he erroneously decided that he had no jurisdiction: Reg. v. Judge of Southampton, C. C., 65 L. T. 320; Re McLeod v. Amiro, 27 O. L. R. 232.

Where a Division Court Judge held that the evidence before him showed that the case was beyond the jurisdiction of a Division Court, and ruled that no further evidence should be given, and the plaintiffs submitted to this, and a judgment of non suit was entered, and the plaintiff moved to set it aside and for a new trial, which was refused, it was held that mandamus did not lie. The fact that the plaintiff had no right of appeal did not enlarge the remedy by mandamus: Re Ratcliffe v. Crescent Mill & Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 331.

A mandamus will not be granted against a public body where, if issued, it would be unavailing, or where there is no necessity for the relief: Re Giles v. Wellington, 30 Ont. 610; nor where the performance of the duty sought to be enforced is impossible by rea-ant of funds: Re Bristol and Somerset Ry., 3 Q. B. D. 10; see Gen. v. Dorking, 20 Ch. D. 595; nor against a railway company mpel it to reinstate and keep open its line which had fallen into e in consequence of subsidence: Reg. v. Great Western Ry., 69 L. T. 572; nor to compel a railway company to operate its railwny: ston v. Kingston P. & C. E. Ry. Co., 28 Ont. 399; 25 Ont. App. 462. Sec. 17. Mandamus.

mandamus was granted to rehear an application for a license to iquor before justices who had improperly taken money for grant- he application: Reg v. Bowman, 1898, 1 Q. B. 663.

ormerly a writ of mandamus was issued, but now writs of man- a are abolished and the mandamus is in the form of an order h haa the same effect: see Rule 623.

tatutory Mandamus.—The right to claim a mandamus in an n was first given by Imp. Act, 17 & 18, c. 125, s. 69, adopted here 50 (aee R. S. O. 1877, c. 52, s. 4). Statutory mandamus.

his enactment goes further than the previous statutes, and enacts a mandamus may he grar d "by an interlocutory order of the In all cases in which it shall appear to the Court to be just or nient that such order should be made." Under the Jud. Act, sec. 17.

he object of this clause was probably two-fold: (1) to enlarge the tion of the Court in granting writs of mandamus, and (2) to e the writ to be obtained on an interlocutory application, and merely aa part of the judgment in an action.

he mandamus referred to in this section is not the old prerogamandamus, "but only a mandamus which may be granted to the performance of some act, of something to he done, which is sult of nn action where an action will lie": per Brett, L.J., In p v. Heston, etc., 12 Ch. D. 122; see also Rich v. Melancthon, 26 R. 48.

mble, a mandamus grantable hy action will not be granted to e private rights arising under an agreement, where the order not be carried out without minute supervision of the operation ailway by the Court: Kingston v. Kingston P. & C. E. Electric ay, 25 Ont. App. 462, as explained in Hamilton v. Hamilton St. 0 O. L. R., at p. 603.

hough the Court or a Judge has power to grant a mandamus interlocutory application, it will not be done unless the plainearly shows that he will suffer some injury hy waiting for the of the action: In re Paris Skating Rink Co., 6 Ch. D. 731; s Alkali Co. v. Sheffield and Midland Railways Co.'s Committee, T. 131.

ere is no Statute of Limitations applicable to a claim for a mus: Ward v. Lowndes, 1 E. & E. 940; 29 L. J. Q. B. 40.

ere it is sought to restrain interference with an individual's under a statute, the remedy is by injunction, and not by manda- Holland v. Dickson, 37 Ch. D. 669.

1892, 2 Q. B. 21; E. v. Thompson, 6 Q. B. 721; Reg. v. Pickles, 12 L. J. Q. B. 401; unless the dismissal was owing to a technical insufficiency in the affidavits: Re Guillot & Southwick, etc., 26 U. C. Q. B. 246; but see Reg. v. Bodmin, supra.

In England it has been held that the prerogative writ must be moved for by counsel, not by an applicant in person: Reg. v. Mayor of Liverpool, 7 T. L. R. 592; Ex p. Whyte, 12 T. L. R. 458; Ex p. Wallace, 1902, 2 K. B. 488: and see Rules 2, 505 (5).

Although on an application for a prerogative mandamus proof of a previous demand and refusal to do the act required must be given, this is not essential in actions for mandamus: Young v. Erie & Huron Ry., 27 Ont. 536.

Appeal.

Appeal.—Where a peremptory mandamus is granted the decision is subject to review: Reg. v. Churchwardens of All Saints, 1 App. Cas. 611; Reg. v. Bangor, 18 Q. B. D. 349, 360.

Costs.

Costs.—A successful applicant for a prerogative mandamus is not necessarily entitled to costs. These are in the discretion of the Court: Reg. v. Harding, 6 T. L. R. 53, 175.

Injunctions

Injunctions.—By the transfer to the Supreme Court of the former jurisdiction of the Common Law Courts (see J. A., sec. 3), it has power to grant injunctions, interlocutory or final, in any action to restrain the defendant from the repetition or continuance of any breach of contract, or wrongful act complained of in the action, or from the commission of any breach of contract, or injury of a like kind arising out of the same contract, or relating to the same property or right; such relief may be granted or refused upon such terms, as to its duration, keeping an account, or giving security or otherwise, as may seem just (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 52, s. 30). The Supreme Court has, therefore, not only the jurisdiction formerly possessed by the Court of Chancery to grant injunctions, but also that formerly conferred on the Courts of Law by the above enactment.

The difference between a mandamus and a mandatory injunction would appear to be now merely nominal, as far as their legal effect goes. A mandamus, however, may in certain circumstances be obtained without bringing an action, whereas an injunction is not granted except in an action. Formerly a mandatory injunction differed from a mandamus in form, the injunction being issued in a negative form, i.e., requiring the defendant not to leave undone the thing required to be done; whereas the mandamus expresaly commanded him to do the required act; but this distinction no longer prevails—and a mandatory injunction now follows the form of a mandamus. Formerly both a mandamus and an injunction were issued in the form of writs, but now both are in the form of orders of Court: see Rule 623.

Scope of enactment as to injunctions

Scope of the Act.—The meaning of the words "just or convenient," and whether they have enlarged the powers of the Court, has been considerably discussed.

An injunction may be granted where "it shall appear to the Court to be just or convenient": Thorley's Cattle Food Company v. Massam, 6 Ch. D. 582; Hinrichs v. Berndes, W. N. 1878, 11; Saxby v. Easterbrook, 3 C. P. D. 339; Re Cambrian Mining Co., 25 W. R. 881, and the words of the section rather enlarge than diminish the arm of the Court in ject of injunction: per Fry, J., in Thomas v. Williams, 43 L. T. 94; L. J. Chy. 605. But it is with regard to settled legal reasons or ciples that the Court will decide what is just or convenient: dow v. Beddow, 9 Ch. D. 89; Shaw v. E. of Jersey, 4 C. P. D. 359; to which see the case of Neal v. Rogers, 22 O. L. R. 588); kin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324; Fletcher v. Rogers, 27 W. R. 97; Aslatt orporation of Southampton, 16 Ch. D. 143; and this section does in the least alter the principles upon which the Court should act: v. Browrigg, 10 Ch. D. 294; Lawson v. Crawford, 44 C. L. J. 40. does not give any new rights to parties who had previously no rights rceable at Law or in Equity; but it enables the Supreme Court, out being hampered by any old rules, to grant an injunction when- it is just or convenient so to do, for the purpose of protecting or rtiag the legal rights of the parties: N. London Ry. Co. v. Great thern Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 30; 48 L. T. 696; Bonner v. G. W. Ry., Ch. D. 1; Wood v. Lillies, 61 L. J. Chy. 158; Richardson v. Methley ol Board, 1893, 3 Ch. 510; Kitts v. Moore, 1895, 1 Q. B. 253; Neal v. ers, supra. See also Robinson v. Pickering, 16 Ch. D. 660; and Brett Cas. in Modern Equity, 321; and notes, infra, under "Receivers."

Illustrations of the general principles on which injunctions are granted or refused.

a Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 507, Jessel, M.R., said that section may be said to be a general supplement to all Acts of lament, and where a statute creates a penalty for doing an act, injunction to restrain the act may be claimed as an ancillary edy. As to this dictum, see Hayward v. E. London W. W. Co., h. D. 146; see also Richardson v. Methley, 1893, 3 Ch. 510.

The Court will not grant an injunction at the suit of the Crown estrain acts ultra vires of a company; except where injury to the lic is plainly shewn: Attorney-General v. Niagara, etc., Tramway 18 Ont. App. 453 (where an injunction to restrain a tramway pany from running its cars on Sunday was refused); nor will irreparable injury be restrained if legal rights are not invaded: . of Birmingham v. Allen, 6 Ch. D. 284; Ballard v. Tomlinson, 26 D. 194.

Refused where no legal injury done.

o Court will grant an injunction where if the thing sought to be rained is allowed to go on, no legal injury is done to any one: Brett, L.J.: N. London Ry. Co. v. G. N. Ry. Co., supra. Thus there o right to restrain the removal of exigible goods where there o subsisting judgment or order under which execution might be d: see Newton v. Newton, 11 P. D. 11 (see after judgment ton v. Newton, 1896, P. 36); Carter v. Carter, 1896, P. 35; Burdett der, 6 O. L. R. 532; 7 O. L. R. 72 (where the entry of judgment stayed); nor the alienation by defendant of lands which would be e to satisfy the judgment if the plaintiff should succeed in the n: see Hepburn v. Patton, 26 Gr. 597; Robinson v. Pickering, 50 Chy. 527; Merchants Bank v. Bell, 29 Gr. 413; Parkes v. St. ge, 10 Ont. App. 496, 542; nor the alienation of her separate pro- by a married woman pending an action against her to recover ot: Nat. Prov. Bank v. Thomas, 24 W. R. 1013. An action will lot or such purposes: Chamberlain v. McDonald, 14 Gr. 447 n London & Blackwall Ry. Co. v. Cross, 31 Ch. D. 354, it was that the enlarged powers as to injunctions given by this section not enable the Court to restrain a person from proceeding for ensation under the Land Clauses Act, though the claim be or vexatious, and made in the name of a third party without his authority. The Court acts in such a case on the ground that its process is being abused.

Refused where other sufficient remedy.

Where the legislature has pointed out a mode of procedure before a magistrate, the Court will not interfere by way of injunction or declaration of right, except, it would seem, in very special circumstances: Grand Junction W. W. Co. v. Hampton Urban, etc., Council, 1898, 2 Ch. 331.

Use of name restrained.

In Street v. Union Bank of Spain and England, 30 Ch. D. 156, an injunction restraining the use of the telegraphic name "Street London" was refused, it being held that defendants had done no injury, and that the matter was simply one of inconvenience, which the Court had no jurisdiction to restrain, though mistakes had occurred, and plaintiff's telegrams had been received and opened by defendants.

Granted to give effect to legal right.

But the Court has jurisdiction to grant an injunction to give effect to a legal right, and the only limit to such jurisdiction then is, that it shall be just or convenient to make the order: Corporation of Cork v. Rooney, 7 L. R. Ir. 191. To use the words of Jessel, M.R., in Aslatt v. Corporation of Southampton, 16 Ch. D., at p. 148: "Of course the words 'just and convenient' do not mean that the Court is to grant an injunction simply because the Court thinks it convenient, it means that the Court should grant an injunction for the protection of rights, or for the prevention of injury, according to legal principles. The moment it is found that there is a legal principle, that a man is about to suffer serious injury, and that there is no pretence for inflicting that injury upon him, the Court ought to interfere"; and see Richardson v. Methley School Board, supra; Evan v. Smith, 3 T. L. R. 390. But an injunction will not be granted to restrain the commission of a trivial act, although an invasion of the plaintiff's legal rights: Llandudno v. Woods, 1899, 2 Ch. 705; or to restrain a trespass where the damages were merely nominal: Graham v. Northern Ry., 10 Gr. 259.

The granting of an injunction to restrain the doing of a particular thing is an act dependent on the discretion of the Court, and in exercising its discretion the Court will consider amongst other things whether the act complained of will produce injury to the applicant, whether the injury be atoned for by damages, and whether the damages must be sought in successive suits, or may be obtained once for all: Doherty v. Allman, 3 App. Cas. 709.

An injunction was granted to restrain a railway company from proceeding to trial in respect of land not properly included in or delineated on their plan and book of reference: Protheroe v. Tottenham & Forest Gate Ry., 1891, 3 Ch. 278; 65 L. T. 323.

An injunction restraining a landowner from taking proceedings before Justices of the Peace on an irregular notice under a Drainage Act, was granted as shorter and cheaper than a prohibition: Hedley v. Bates, 13 Ch. D. 498; but this was because the Court was seised of the case aliunde. Where it is a mere case of prohibition, and the Court is not called upon to decide the question on other grounds between the same parties, there is no reason for changing the proceeding from prohibition to injunction. Stannard v. Vestry of St Giles, 20 Ch. D. 196, 197.

When granted against person not a party.

An injunction is granted against a person not a party, only when he is agent of a party, or in cases where he is doing something which he performance of statutory duties imposed on a public body may nforced by injunction. Thus an injunction was granted against ilway company to compel it to observe statutory provisions cting the speed of trains, although there was no evidence of any ge by reason of their breach: Attorney-General v. London & N. y., 1900, 1 Q. B. 78; and to restrain a road company from con- ting its road otherwise than as authorized by statute: Attorney- ol v. Weston, 4 Gr. 211; and an injunction was granted to ain a municipal corporation from carrying on a business in excess s statutory powers, and the discretion of the Attorney-General stitute such proceedings on the relation of rival traders cannot be lsed with by the Court: Attorney-General v. London County cil, 1901, 1 Ch. 781; 84 L. T. 245; but an injunction or mandamus mpel a street railway company to run its cars in accordance with greement with a city was refused: Kingston v. Kingston P. & C. ., 25 Ont. App. 462; Hamilton v. Hamilton St. Ry., 8 O. L. R. 642; L. R. 594; 39 S. C. R. 673; and an injunction to compel a road any to keep its road in repair was also refused: Attorney-General ston, 4 Gr. 211. Statutory duty enforced by injunction.

was held that an action for an injunction may be commenced st a Local Board without the month's notice required by the c Health Act, in all cases where, before the Judicature Act, a would have been sustained in Chancery for an injunction; and gh damages are claimed by way of subsidiary relief: Flower v. Leyton Local Board, 5 Ch. D. 347; and when the action is bond rought for an injunction, damages may be awarded in lieu of junction, though no notice of action has been given: Chapman ckland, 23 Q. B. D. 294.

ere, if the defendant succeeded in an appeal to the House of , success would be useless unless the fund in question in the was protected in the meantime, it was held that the injunction to be continued pending the appeal: Polini v. Gray, 12 Ch. D. 438. Granted pending appeal.

injunction may be granted restraining an act, though a statute es a penalty for its commission: Hamilton, etc., Road Co. v. erry, 13 Ont. 466; and to restrain a company from acting con- to its Act of incorporation: Devonport v. Plymouth, 52 L. T. 161. Ganted though penalty imposed.

Mellor v. Thompson, 31 Ch. D. 55, an injunction motion was in camerâ on the ground that a public hearing would defeat the of the action. As to hearings in camerâ in general: see Scott tt, 1913, A. C. 413; 109 L. T. 1. Hearing in camera.

lay.—Delay is, in general, no bar to an injunction in aid of a right, unless the legal remedy is barred by the lapse of time: ood v. Fullwood, 47 L. J. Chy. 459; but where buildings (which ressed the provisions of restrictive covenants) had been allowed ain for five years without complaint, an injunction was refused: v. Bolls, 13 Ch. D. 324. mages.—As to awarding damages in lieu of an injunction: see infra.

ndatory Injunctions.—These may be granted as formerly: relley v. Pearson, 28 W. R. 752; Mullins v. Howell, 11 Ch. D. Mandatory injunctions.

Sec. 17.

763; Smith v. Smith, L. R. 20 Eq. 504; Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324; Hermann Loog v. Bean, 26 Ch. D. 306; but an injunction will not be granted where the proper remedy is a prerogative writ of mandamus: Glossop v. Heston Loc. Board, 12 Ch. D. 120; Attorney-General v. Dorking, 20 Ch. D. 595.

For a statement of the function of a mandatory injunction: see Glossop v. Heston, 12 Ch. D. 120.

A mandatory injunction may be granted for the removal of a building obstructing ancient lights though completed before the writ issued: Lawrence v. Horton, 38 W. R. 555; 62 L. T. 749, especially where it has been run up with extra haste to anticipate the action of the Court: Daniel v. Ferguson, 1891, 2 Ch. 27; and even though the action has not been actually begun before the building was completed, e.g., where defendant evaded service in order to have the building completed before service: Van Joel v. Hornsey, 1895, 2 Ch. 774. Kuble v. Poole, 105 L. T. Jour. 474; a fortiori, it will be granted where a building is completed pendente lite: Parker v. First Avenue Hotel Co., 24 Ch. D. 282; 49 L. T. 318; Home & Colonial Stores v. Colls, 1902, 1 Ch. 302; 85 L. T. 701; or after notice that it was an invasion of a public right: Attorney-General v. Parish, 1913, 1 Ch. 444.

Restrictive covenants as to building may be enforced by injunction, but where the plaintiff has himself violated, or sanctioned the violation of the building scheme, and changed the character of the neighbourhood from that contemplated by the scheme, the Court may refuse its aid: Sobey v. Sainsbury, 1913, 2 Ch. 513; 109 L. T. 393.

On an interlocutory application.

The Court may interfere by mandatory injunction on an interlocutory application, but the right must be very clear indeed: Toronto Brewing and Malting Co. v. Blake, 2 Ont. 175; Bonner v. G. W. R. Co., 24 Ch. D. 16; Hermann Loog v. Bean, 26 Ch. D. 306.

Although a mandatory injunction is not usually granted on an interlocutory application, yet it may be so granted where the defendant has done the act complained of after knowledge of the plaintiff's intention to move to restrain him from doing it: Van Joel v. Hornsey, 1895, 2 Ch. 774; 73 L. T. 372.

A mandatory injunction to pull down buildings erected before notice of any intention to restrain their erection will not be granted upon an interlocutory application: Johnston v. Royal Courts of Justice, W. N. 1883, 5; but in a clear case the Court may on such a motion order an erection to be restored: Allport v. The Securities Co., 72 L. T. 533.

Form.

A mandatory injunction was granted in a positive and not in the usual negative form, where the defendant was an uneducated man: Bidwell v. Holden, 63 L. T. 104; and it was held that this is now the proper form of a mandatory injunction in all cases: Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co., 1899, 1 Ch. 438 (C.A.); 80 L. T. 482; and see Stuart v. Gronite Rink, 1 Ont. 102 at p. 107; Smith v. Smith, L. R. 20 Eq. 505.

Damages in lieu of.

The Court may in a proper case award damages in lieu of granting a mandatory injunction: Tolton v. C. P. Ry. Co., 22 Ont. 204; Mayfair, etc. v. Johnston, 1894, 1 Ch. 508.

Interlocutory injunctions.

Interlocutory Injunctions.—The office of an interlocutory injunction is usually simply to retain matters in statu quo till the trial: Erie & Niagara Ry. Co. v. G. W. R. Co., 21 Gr. 171; Preston v. Luck,

D. 497; and the Court will not determine legal rights on such Sec. 17.

application for an interlocutory injunction must be made ly. Acquiescence or delay will generally be an answer to the before trial; but the applicant is not bound to move till the en to relief: Davies v. Marshall, 4 L. T. 105; Rich v. Brantford, Court on an interlocutory application for an injunction should r the balance of convenience, and if on the one hand irrepar-jury may be caused by withholding the injunction, while on er hand any injury occasioned by the injunction may be sufficompensated by damages, the injunction should be granted:

having been convicted of a crime, the Court refused an interlocutory injunction to restrain such expulsion, the fact of the conviction not being denied: Carmichael v. Evans, 1904, 1 Ch. 486; 90 L. T. 573.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council refused to interfere with an interlocutory injunction restraining trespass on mining lands, although the respondent did not appear: Croudace v. Zobel, 1899, A. C. 238.

An interlocutory injunction to restrain a nuisance caused by defendant teaching music in the ordinary course of his business was refused, on the ground that if granted it would break up the defendant's business, whereas damages would be a sufficient compensation to the plaintiff if found entitled to succeed at the trial: Pope v. Peate, 7 O. L. R. 207.

An interim injunction was granted restraining the repetition of a slander under a pretence of mind reading: Quirk v. Dudley, 4 O. L. R. 532.

When interlocutory motion may be made.

A plaintiff may serve notice of motion for an injunction without leave at any time after the issue of the writ: Re Sceptre V. Co., 22 Sol. Jour. 230; or possibly by leave before, in cases of urgency; see Thornloe v. Skoines, L. R. 16 Eq. 126; but ordinarily an action should be pending. A case involving necessity for dispensing with the issue of the writ is not easily imaginable. It might, however, occur where immediate action is necessary after the offices of the Court are closed for the day. The mere preparation of the writ ready for issue is easily done in connection with the affidavits, which, in any case, must be prepared, and should properly speaking be entitled and sworn in a pending action: see Charnock v. Hertz, 4 T. L. R. 331; Silber v. Lewin, 33 Sol. Jour. 757; Green v. Prior, W. N. 1886, 50. The notice of motion may be served with the writ: Capes v. Brewer, 24 W. R. 40.

A defendant may move at any time after service of the writ and before judgment: Sargent v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600; but see "Injunction against plaintiff," infra, p. 62.

In cases of urgency and necessity an application may be made before service of the writ, and ex parte, as for instance, where it was alleged that trustees were on the eve of bankruptcy, a receiver was appointed Re H.'s Estate, 1 Ch. D. 276.

Where notice has been given, an injunction should not be granted ex parte even where from pressure of business the motion cannot be brought on: Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 490; where, however, there is some defect in the notice served, the Court may, when injury is likely to ensue by delay in serving a new notice, grant an injunction ex parte; but where the opposite party appears gratis, and claims to be heard in opposition to the motion, the Court cannot properly proceed ex parte: McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459.

After notice of motion for an injunction is served it is a contempt of Court to proceed with the act sought to be restrained pending the motion: Cornell v. Assiginack, 28 C. L. J. 279; and see McGill v. McKittrick (Ch. D.) (before Street, J., 6th July, 1892); and a mandatory injunction will, if necessary, be granted to restore matters to the status quo: Ib., and see Van Joel v. Hornsey, 1895, 2 Ch. 774; 73 L. T. 372.

he plaintiff is entitled to move as soon as his legal right is ded. Notice to the defendant before coming to the Court is not ssary: Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 501; Upmann v. For-, 24 Ch. D. 231; Goodhart v. Hyett, 25 Ch. D. 182; United Tele-e v. London Tel. Co., 26 Ch. D. 766; Nicols v. Pitman, 26 Ch. 74; Wittman v. Oppenheim, 27 Ch. D. 260; and an offer to accede e plaintiff's demands will not deprive the plaintiff of his right to , or to costs, where the violation of his rights has been wilful: essy v. Day, 55 L. T. 161; not even though the defendant has innocently: Millington v. Fox, 3 My. & Cr. 338; Yeatman v. Horn-r, 107 L. T. 742; Geary v. Norton, 1 De. G. & Sm. 9; but if the tion is trifling and has been innocent and unintentional, costs be refused the plaintiff: American Tobacco Co. v. Guest, 1892, 1 30. Where, on service of the writ, defendant offered an under-g and costs, an injunction was refused: Jenkins v. Hope, 1896, 1 78; Snaggs v. Seyd, W. N. 1894, 95.

When plaintiff may commence action.

x parte Injunctions.—An injunction should not be granted arte except in cases of urgency, as where immediate damage is done or apprehended: see Capitol Manufacturing Co. v. Buffalo ally Co., 3 O. W. N. 553; Anon. per Hodley, J., W. N. 1876, Welsh v. Milton, 24 W. R. 679; Tozer v. Walford, W. N. 1875, Blewitt v. Dowling, Ib., 202; Hennessey v. Rohmann, 36 L. T. N. T. Jour. 238; W. N. 8.

Ex parte injunctions.

e affidavits on which an ex parte motion is made should dis-all facts and circumstances material for the Court to know, or njunction will be dissolved on motion for that purpose, even h the party moving did not consider the omitted matter material: ster v. Callaway, 6 Gr. 577; Ley v. McDonald, 2 Gr. 398; Hynes her, 4 Ont. 60; see notes to Rule 216.

here an ex parte injunction is dissolved on the ground of con-ent of material facts, the party who obtained it will, in general, dered to pay the costs of the motion forthwith: Walton v. Henry, R. 390; an interim injunction obtained on the suppression of may be dissolved on the motion to continue it, though there be osa motion: Boyce v. Gill, 64 L. T. 824; and though the Court ee fit to grant another injunction in the same terms: Ib.

ration of Interim Injunction.—Where an interim injunction nted ex parte, it is usually limited to a few days only, and the obtaining it, when serving it on the party enjoined, usually at the same time a notice of motion to continue it. If the on the hearing of this motion thinks fit to continue it, it is continued "until the trial or other final disposition of the ," and in that case the injunction continues in force until ent is entered. An injunction granted until a certain day s on that day unless continued; no motion to dissolve is neces-nless it is sought to get rid of the injunction in the meantime: ig v. Conmee, 19 P. R. 45. Where the judgment at the trial cted not to be entered until a future time, an interim injunction until the trial, etc., remains in force until that time arrives: Carroll v. Provincial Gas Co., 18 P. R. 518, and where a party by his counsel or solicitor gives an undertaking to refrain from doing an act, and a party has refrained from applying for an injunction in consequence, the undertaking will continue in force, and be enforced by the Court in the same manner as an injunction: Haggert v. Brampton, Ib., in note, p. 518; Polini v. Gray, 12 Ch. D. 438; London & B. Ry. Co. v. Grand Junction C. Co., 1 Eng. Ry. Cas. 224; and see Bolton v. London School Board, 7 Ch. D. 766.

A plaintiff was held not entitled to have matters kept in statu quo by an injunction after judgment, and until the case could be heard by the Court of Appeal, where the decisions in Courts of first instance were against the plaintiff, even though, unless time was given to take the case to the Court of Appeal, he would be without substantial relief: Wyld v. McMaster, 4 Ont. 717; sed vide, King v. Duncan, 9 P. R. 61; Polini v. Gray, 12 Ch. D. 438.

In Mackenzie v. Toronto (7th Dec., 1904), where the plaintiff sought to restrain the defendants from cutting off the water supply to his house, Boyd, C., at the trial, being of opinion that the immediate dissolution of the interim injunction would work unnecessary hardship and inconvenience on the plaintiff, continued the injunction to the 1st March following, or any later date which might be fixed by the Court of Appeal, and subject thereto, dismissed the action.

Where an interim injunction is granted by a Local Judge under Rule 210, it is only to be for eight days: Rule 211.

Injunction against plaintiff.

Injunction against Plaintiff.—An interim injunction may in a proper case be granted against the plaintiff at the instance of a defendant: Stewart v. Kingsmill, 13 Gr. 347; Edgecumbe v. Carpenter, 1 Beav. 171; but a defendant who has not filed a counter-claim is not entitled to such an injunction unless the relief sought by injunction arises out of or is incidental to the relief sought by the plaintiff, e.g., where he and the plaintiff are both claiming under the same contract: Collison v. Warren, 1901, 1 Ch. 812; 84 L. T. 482; and see 17 Times L. R. 315. If the defendant desires any other injunction before he is in a position to file a counter-claim, he must bring a cross action: Carter v. Fey, 1894, 2 Ch. 541; 70 L. T. 786; distinguishing Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600, and Parker v. Lopes, 7 Ch. D. 358; and see Brandon v. Elliott, 14 Gr. 109.

Costs.

Costs.—As to the mode of disposing of the costs where a party obtains the relief he seeks on an interlocutory motion: see Sonnenschein v. Barnard, 57 L. T. 712.

The plaintiff may be ordered at the trial to pay the costs of an interim injunction obtained by him, where the facts proved at the trial show no anticipation of such immediate serious damage as to justify the application for an injunction: Skiltzsky v. Cronston, 22 Ont. 590; Johnson v. Jenking, 13 C. L. T. 270.

Appeal.

Appeal.—Where after the expiration by effluxion of time of an interim injunction, proceedings are taken against a party to the action to commit him for disobeying the order, an appeal by him against the interim order will lie: McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459.

An appeal lies from an interlocutory injunction order to the Appellate Division: see s. 26 (1) a, infra. Such an order is not within og 6 Ves. 392.

Miscellaneous Decisions.—The following are further decisions illustrating the principles on which the Court acts in regard to injunctions. Illustrations Any injunction which can be granted by interlocutory order, can a fortiori be granted at the trial: Beddow v. Beddow, 9 Ch. D. 93.

The right to an injunction to restrain trespassers formerly depended on whether the person sought to be restrained was in possession or not, and if in possession whether he was a mere trespasser or acted under colour of right: see Kerr on Injunctions, 289; Hodges v. Bettle, 33 L. J. Ch. 451; 10 Jur. N. S. 226; Stansford v. Hobstone, L. R. 9 Chy. 116. But the Canadian Legislature long since dealt with this difficulty by enacting (20 Vict. c. 56, s. 4; Con. Stat. U. C. c. 12, s. 27; R. S. O., 1877, c. 40, s. 39) that "the Court may grant an injunction to stay waste in a proper case notwithstanding that the party in possession claims by an adverse legal title." The enactment in the above section 17 is to the same effect. Restraining trespassers

By Jud. Act, W. N., 1876, c. 38, an ex parte application for an injunction restraining a man from trespassing with a horse and cart was refused, the Judge remarking that "injunctions are not ordinarily granted for mere trespass, unless serious injury is threatened to the property." On a fresh application being made in this case, after notice to the defendant, no order was made, on the defendant consenting that damages should be assessed up to the date of the trial: Makin v. Watrow, Ib., 105. In the exercise of its discretion an injunction was refused to restrain a son from trespassing on his father's premises: Waterhouse v. Waterhouse, 94 L. T. 133; or the passing over land to reach the sea shore, doing no damage, although legally a trespass on the plaintiff's property: Behrens v. Richards, 1905, 2 Ch. 614; 93 L. T. 521; or using a highway for catching moths: Fielden v. Cox, 120 L. T. 521, and though the act complained of was a trespass, plaintiff was refused to pay costs: Ib.

An injunction to restrain interference with the enjoyment of an easement, which was not 20 years old, was refused, although it had been enjoyed for 19 years: Governor of Bridewell v. Ward, 68 L. T.

Nuisances may be restrained by injunction; but where the act complained of as a nuisance is done in pursuance of a legal right conferred by statute, and to carry out a lawful object, and is reasonable in its character, it is no nuisance in law, and no injunction can be granted to restrain it: Harrison v. Southwark & Vauxhall Water Co., 1891, 2 Ch. 409; but a legal right may be exercised in an unreasonable way so as to become a nuisance: e.g., the ringing of church bells at unreasonable times, and may be restrained: Soltau v. De Held, 2 Sim. N. S. 133; 21 L. J. Chy. 153; the unreasonable playing of a hand: St. Margaret's Church v. Stephens, 29 Ont. 185; or of street organs: Lambton v. Mellish, 1894, 3 Ch. 163. A public urinal is not necessarily a public nuisance: Vernon v. St. James' Vestry, 16 Ch. D. 449; 44 L. T. 229; Graham v. Newcastle, 67 L. T. 260, 790; but it may be one which will be restrained by injunction: Sellors v. Matthews, 14 Q. B. D. 928; 52 L. T. 762. A nuisance caused by the noise of washing dishes, and heat and smell from a cooking range, may be restrained: Sanders v. Grosvenor Mansions, 1900, 2 Ch. 373; 82 Nuisances.

Sec. 17.

L. T. 758; so also noise, vibration, and smell from steam engines. Knight v. Isle of Wight E. L. & P. Co., 90 L. T. 410; Colwell v. St. Pancras, 1904, 1 Ch. 707. Also nuisances created by carrying on a trade: St. Helen's Smelting Co. v. Tipping, 11 H. L. C. 642; Rushmer v. Polsue, 1906, 1 Ch. 234; 93 L. T. 823; 1907, A. C. 121; also a nuisance of bad odours created by a tobacco factory: Appleby v. Erie Tobacco Co., 22 O. L. R. 533; or by a fried fish shop: Adams v. Ursell, 1913, 1 Ch. 269; 108 L. T. 292; or an obstruction to a street, by causing crowds to assemble so as to obstruct the thoroughfare: Lyons v. Gulliver, 110 L. T. 284.

A mandatory injunction was granted for the removal of so much of a building as encroached beyond the building line, which had been erected after notice of the settlement of the line by the municipal authority: Attorney-General v. Parish, 1913, 2 Ch. 244.

A reversioner can only bring an action to restrain permanent injuries to the reversion; an action will not lie by a reversioner to restrain a nuisance occasioned by noise and odours coming from an adjoining property: White v. London Omnibus Co., 136 L. T. Jour. 451.

Where after an action commenced to restrain a nuisance, the nuisance was abated by defendant, no injunction was granted, but the motion being turned into motion for judgment, the costs of the action were awarded to plaintiff: Barber v. Penley, 1893, 2 Ch. 447; 68 L. T. 662.

Where a perpetual injunction restraining a nuisance was granted at the trial, from which an appeal was brought, and, pending the appeal, the defendants at great expense removed the cause of complaint, the injunction was rescinded; though held to have been properly granted: Attorney-General v. Birmingham, 1910, 1 Ch. 48; 101 L. T. 796; 1912, A. C. 788; even where the Attorney-General sues to restrain a public nuisance he is not entitled ex debito justitiæ to an injunction: Ib.

Recount of ballots.

The Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to restrain by injunction a County Court Judge and returning officer from holding a recount of ballots cast at an election for the House of Commons. The proceedings before the County Court Judge are not cognizable by the Supreme Court, except in so far as Parliament has by legislation conferred jurisdiction: McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459.

The Crown or its servants discharging discretionary function.

The Court has no jurisdiction at the suit of a subject to restrain the Crown, or its officers acting as its agents or servants, or discharging discretionary functions committed to them by the Sovereign: Atty.-Gen. for Ont. v. Toronto Junction R. Club, 8 O. L. R. 440.

Foreign sovereign.

The Court has no jurisdiction to prevent a foreign sovereign from removing his property in this country, though it be an article made in infringement of a patent; and a foreign sovereign who submits to be made a defendant in an action for the purpose of empowering the Court to make an order does not thereby part with any of his rights: Varasseur v. Krupp, 9 Ch. D. 351; and see Re Republic of Bolivia, 1914, 1 Ch. 139; 110 L. T. 141.

Proceedings in foreign Courts.

In the absence of any sufficient equity to justify it the Court will not restrain by injunction a plaintiff from proceeding in a foreign Court: Hunt v. Hunt, 1897, 2 Q. B. 34, as reversed in appeal, 77 L. T. 421. Mere hardship or inconvenience will not be sufficient reason: Fletcher v. Rodgers, 27 W. R. 97; but where a foreigner has appeared n English Court, the Court has a discretion to restrain him from ating the same subject matter in his own country: Dawkins v. onetti, 29 W. R. 228; see also Re Boyse, Crofton v. C., 15 Ch. D. and notes to section 21 infra. Sec. 17.

n Ex parte McPhail, 12 Ch. D. 632, Jessel, M.R. refused leave erve a writ out of the jurisdiction, on the ground that the plain- ould have as effectual a remedy by application to the local Court.

Where the writ is to be served out of the jurisdiction, if an ex injunction is required, semble it may be included in the order ing the writ to be served out of the jurisdiction, but in Ontario an order could not be made in Chambers: see Young v. Brassey, D. 277.

roperty which is the subject of an action may be preserved under 370, by means of an injunction: Strelley v. Pearson, 43 L. T. 155. Preservation of property.

Velati & Co. v. Braham & Co., 46 L. J. C. P. 415, which was an n against a jeweller for the return of goods deposited with him, efendant was ordered to deliver up the goods to an officer of the to abide the event of the action.

threatened sale of a specific chattel, which, if carried out could been compensated in damages, is not a proper case in which to an injunction restraining the sale: Bradley v. Borber, 30 Ont. 443.

London and County Banking Co. v. Lewis, 21 Ch. D. 490, an hile mortgagee, who had commenced an action for foreclosure, ed an injunction restraining the defendant from parting with gal estate.

Sec. 17.

Libel and slander.

Thomas v. Williams, Ib., 864; Saxby v. Easterbrook, 3 C. P. D. 339; Hayward v. Hayward, 34 Ch. D. 198; and slanderous oral statements injuriously affecting the person: Quirk v. Dudley, 4 O. L. R. 532; or property or trade: Hermann Loog v. Bean, 26 Ch. D. 306; Mellin v. White, 1894, 3 Ch. 276; subsequently reversed on the facts: 1895, A. C. 154; or tending to injure a friendly society or a joint stock company: Hill v. Hart Davies, 31 W. R. 22; 47 L. T. 82; but the Court will not restrain a trader from publishing circulars to the effect that his goods are better than those of a rival trader: Hubbuck v. Wilkinson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 86; 79 L. T. 429.

Though the jurisdiction in the case of such libels is clear, even on an interlocutory application, the Court only acts in a strong case and in general not unless satisfied that the statements complained of are untrue: Quartz Hill Gold Mining Co. v. Beall, 20 Ch. D. 501; Bonnard v. Perryman, 1891, 2 Ch. 284; 65 L. T. 506; Collard v. Marshall, 1892, 1 Ch. 571; 66 L. T. 248; Lee v. Gibbings, 8 T. L. R. 773; Liverpool v. Smith, 37 Ch. D. 170; nor where defendant swears he will be able to justify, and the Court is not satisfied that he may not be able to do so: Bonnard v. Perryman, 1891, 2 Ch. 269; Monson v. Tussaud's, etc., 1894, 1 Q. B. 671; 70 L. T. 235; nor where there is no reason to apprehend such danger or injury to the plaintiff in person or property, as to make it right to grant an interlocutory injunction: Salomons v. Knight, 1891, 2 Ch. 294.

Where an action for defamation will not lie, an injunction to restrain the alleged defamation will not be granted: White v. Mellin, 1895, A. C. 154.

Where the jury at the trial negatived the publication being a libel, an injunction to restrain its further publication was refused: Dockrell v. Dougall, 78 L. T. 840; 80 L. T. 556.

Publication of "Black list."

An interlocutory injunction was granted against a trades union, to restrain the publication pendente lite, of a black list of men employed by plaintiff: Trollope v. London Building Trades Federation, 72 L. T. 342.

Misappropriation of funds by public body.

An interlocutory injunction was granted to restrain a municipality from misappropriating its funds: Jarvis v. Fleming, 27 Ont. 309.

Contravention of charter.

An interlocutory injunction was granted to prevent a corporate body from acting in contravention of a prohibition contained in its special Act: Atty.-Gen. v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., 1905, 1 Ch. 24; and from proceeding to elect some one to fill the place of the plaintiff as a member, who was alleged to have forfeited his seat by absence: Richardson v. Methley School Board, 1893, 3 Ch. 510.

Interference in suit by nominal party.

Also to prevent a defendant from interfering with the proceedings in another action, in which he was also defendant, but which he had agreed to allow the plaintiff to defend in his name on being indemnified; the indemnity having been given: Montfort v. Marsden, 1895, 1 Ch. 11; 71 L. T. 620.

Goodwill.

Canvassing for customers of a business the good will of which has been sold by defendant to the plaintiff, may be restrained: Trego v. Hunt, 1896, A. C. 7; 73 L. T. 514; but where the sale of the goodwill has been made by an assignee for creditors, an injunction to restrain the debtor from canvassing his former customers was refused: Green v. Morris, 1914, 1 Ch. 562. An injunction may be granted against a former partner to prevent him from using information ired while a partner, to the prejudice of the goodwill in the ness to which his former co-partner is entitled: Jennings v. Jen-s, 77 L. T. 786. Sec. 17.

o also a servant may be restrained from utilizing copies of entries eptitiously obtained from his master's books: Robb v. Green, 1895, B. 315; 73 L. T. 15; or from disclosing a secret process used in naster's business: Amber Size & C. C. Co. v. Menzel, 1913, 2 Ch. 109 L. T. 520, or from making use of such process, or from ag use of information concerning a secret machine, obtained e in his master's service: Caribonum Co. v. LeConch, 109 L. T. 385. Servants.

nd the publication or use of documents, or copies thereof, im-erly obtained, will be restrained: Ashburton v. Pope, 1913, 2 69.

he publication of shorthand notes of private letters by the clerk took them was restrained: Laidlaw v. Lear, 30 Ont. 26. Shorthand notes.

Where an injunction was applied for to restrain a landlord from ising his legal rights of distress, until the determination of an n brought by the tenants against the landlord, to try his right e rent, the injunction was granted for a fortnight, and continued if the rent should in the meantime be paid into Court: Shaw v. of Jersey, 4 C. P. D. 120, 359; but this case is said to be no longer thority for the right to an injunction in such cases: per Middle-., in Neal v. Rogers, 22 O. L. R. 588, he being of the opinion that ria is the proper remedy. Landlord and tenant.

injunction will not be granted at the suit of a landlord or rever-to restrain a trespass or nuisance not of a permanent char-or not actually injuring the reversion: Cooper v. Crabtree, 47 5; 51 L. J. Chy. 189.

t an injunction may be granted at the suit of a tenant against andlord to restrain improper interference with the demised ses, e.g., the fixing of an advertisement on the outside wall of the ed premises: Goldfoot v. Welch, 1914, 1 Ch. 213; 109 L. T. 820.

Blewitt v. Dowling, W. N., 1875, 202, an action of ejectment t a landlord, the plaintiff was restrained from issuing writs t the tenants. In Drake's Patent Concrete v. Dower, Ib., 230, der was granted restraining the defendant from pulling down ly erected houses. In Fenner v. Bedford, Ib., 238, an order ade on an ex parte application restraining the continuance of sses and destruction of property, and liberty was given to serve der on any persons found on the premises as well as the ant. In Tozer v. Walford, Ib. 250, a defendant who had cove-not to do any act dangerous to his co-tenants, was restrained working an engine, in consequence of the working of which the ff's insurance company had refused to continue his insurance. y he had become liable under a covenant with his superior d.

Interlocutory injunction for the purpose of enforcing an agree-o lease premises for a single day was refused: Glasse v. *Wool-3 L. T. Jour. 172.

ovenant by a lessor to employ a porter for the general benefit lessees of premises, let in flats, was held not to be enforceable nction: Ryan v. Mutual T. W. Chambers Assn., 1893, 1 Ch. 116. Enforcing covenants.

Sec. 17.

An injunction to restrain a breach by an infant of an apprenticeship deed was refused: De Francesco v. Barnum, 43 Ch. D. 165.

Restrictive covenants in a lease may be enforced by injunction: e.g., covenants against carrying on an offensive trade; not only as against the lessee but also as against any occupant of the demised premises: Mander v. Falcke, 1891, 2 Ch. 554; 65 L. T. 203; or from using premises otherwise than for a private residence; Hobson v. Tulloch, 1898, 1 Ch. 424.

Restrictive covenants as to buildings, which are made for the personal benefit of the covenantee, and not as part of a general building scheme, may be enforced by injunction; but where the injury occasioned by a breach is slight, and damages would be an adequate compensation, they may be awarded in lieu of an injunction: Snow v. Wilmott, 5 O. W. R. 361.

Contracts in restraint of trade not enforced.

The enforcement by injunction of a negative stipulation in a covenant by defendant not to employ himself in any business other than the plaintiff's was refused as being unreasonable: Ehrman v. Bartholomew, 1898, 1 Ch. 671; Estes v. Russ, 1914, 1 Ch. 468; 110 L. T. 296.

Threatened contempt of Court.

The Court has jurisdiction to restrain by injunction the commission of acts which, if committed, would be a contempt of Court: e.g. the threatened publication of a statement of claim with comments as calculated to prevent a fair trial: Kitcat v. Sharp, 31 W. R. 227; 48 L. T. 64; Gazette Co. v. Shallow, 41 S. C. R. 339; publication of advertisements warning the public that an invention claimed by the plaintiff is an infringement of defendant's patent rights: Barney v. United Telephone Co., 28 Ch. D. 394; and distribution of circulars containing ex parte statements on the merits of a case in litigation: Coats v. Chadwick, 1894, 1 Ch. 347; 70 L. T. 228.

A party to an action sending circulars to other persons in the same interest soliciting their support in the litigation is not contempt of Court: In re New Gold Coast Co., 1901, 1 Ch. 860; but the distribution of fraudulent circulars containing misrepresentations to persons interested in pending litigation, with a view to inducing them to adopt a certain course, is a contempt punishable with imprisonment: In re Septimus Parsonage & Co., 1901, 2 Ch. 424.

Threatened injuries.

To maintain an action quia timet to restrain an apprehended injury, the plaintiff must prove imminent danger of a substantial kind, or that the apprehended injury, if it does come, will be irreparable: Fletcher v. Bealey, 28 Ch. D. 688; see Attorney-General v. Manchester, 1893, 2 Ch. 87 (small pox hospital being established); Phillips v. Thomas, 62 L. T. 793 (apprehended repetition of a nuisance). The Court in its discretion refused an injunction where there would be great difficulty in framing an order so as not to prejudice the trial: Liverpool, etc., Stores Assoc'n v. Egerton, 57 L. T. 770; 58 L. T. 204; 37 Ch. D. 170. See also Hinrichs v. Bernders W. N. 1878, 11.

In patent cases.

The principles on which the Court ought to act in determining whether to grant an interlocutory injunction to restrain an alleged infringement of a patent, or only to require the defendant to keep an account, were discussed in Plimpton v. Spiller, 4 Ch. D. 286.

Where a defendant before action offers to account and to destroy all articles infringing plaintiff's patent, the Court may refuse an interlocutory injunction: Jenkins v. Hope, 1896, 1 Ch. 278; 73 L. T. 705

ere, though there had been an infringement, it had been disconued several years before action, and there was no intention or babiility of a renewal of the wrongful user: Proctor v. Bayley, 38
R. 100.

An injunction will be granted to restrain the exportation of goods Trade marks.
ier a trade mark likely to deceive a foreign though not a home rchaser: Orr Ewing v. Johnston, 13 Ch. D. 434, and also to restrain infringement of a trade mark: Cochrane v. Macnish, 1896, A. C. 225; where the action was brought against a retail dealer, who had not n guilty of any intentional infringement, and who at once yielded he plaintiff's demand, no costs were awarded against the defendant:
erican Tobacco Co. v. Guest, 1892, 1 Ch. 630; and the plaintiff was l not to be entitled to an account: Slazenger v. Spalding, 1910, 1 Ch.
; 102 L. T. 390; or to an injunction: Spalding v. Gammage
L. T. 530; so also the user of a name which has come to be wn to the trade, as indicating goods made by the plaintiff, may be rained by injunction: Reddaway v. Banham, 1896, A. C. 199; Powell Birmingham Vinegar Co., 1896, 2 Ch. 54; 1897, A. C. 710; Pinet v. son Pinet, 77 L. T. 322; 1898, 1 Ch. 179; 77 L. T. 613; but see Lever Sedingfield, 80 L. T. 100.

The use of a name by a company so like that of another company o be calculated to deceive the public may be restrained: Manchester very Co. v. N. Cheshire and Manchester Brewery Co., 1898, 1 Ch.
1899, A. C. 83; 79 L. T. 645; Aerators v. Tollit, 1902, 2 Ch. 319; 86
. 651; British Vacuum Cleaner v. New Vacuum Cleaner Co., 1907,
. 312; 97 L. T. 201; Fine Cotton Spinners v. Harwood, 1907, 2 Ch.
98 L. T. 258.

The use of a trade name calculated to lead the public to believe the defendant's business was that of the plaintiff, was restrained:
Hall v. British & American Shoe Co., 1902, 2 Ch. 354; Gramm Motor k Co. v. Fisher Motor Co., 30 O. L. R. 1.

Wholesale manufacturers who do not sell their goods by retail have sufficient interest to maintain an action for the alleged infringeof their trade mark on goods sold by retail: Ullman v. Leuba, A. C. 443; 99 L. T. 531.

Where the defendant by mistake published an advertisement offeror sale certain goods made by the plaintiffs by a wrong designaand on his attention being drawn to the mistake he at once ntinued the advertisement, but the plaintiffs nevertheless went the action, it was held that they were not entitled to an injuncand the action was dismissed: Spalding v. Gammage, 110 L. T. 530.

he infringement of copyright may also be restrained by injunc- Copyright.
Church v. Linton, 25 Ont. 131; Collis v. Carter, 78 L. T. 613.

he Court will restrain an arbitrator from acting in any case in Arbitrator.
he is unfit or incompetent to act: Malmesbury v. Budd, 2 Ch.
; Beddow v. Beddow, 9 Ch. D. 89; Burford v. Chambers, 25 Ont.
Vineberg v. Guardian, etc., Co., 19 Ont. App. 293; but see Jackson ry Ry. Co., 1893, 1 Ch. 238; and will restrain arbitration proceed-where the instrument containing the agreement for reference is cned: Kitts v. Moore, 1895, 1 Q. B. 253; 71 L. T. 676.

Sec. 17.

An injunction restraining arbitration proceedings, in Farrar v. Cooper, 44 Ch. D. 323, and proceedings outside the arbitration agreement, in Wood v. Lillies, 61 L. J. Chy. 158; 8 T. L. R. 281, was refused, where, if proceeded with, they would be futile.

Proceedings were restrained which were being taken for the fixing of a new renewal rent by a sole arbitrator appointed by the lessor, on the assumption that default had been made by the lessees in appointing an arbitrator, they having appointed one under protest contending that there was no right to arbitrate: Farley v. Sanson, 5 O. L. R. 105; 7 O. L. R. 639.

See also as to restraining arbitration proceedings: N. London, etc., v. G. N. Ry., 11 Q. B. D. 30; London & Blackwall, etc. v. Cross, 31 Ch. D. 354; Ives v. Willans, 1894, 1 Ch. 68; 2 Ch. 478.

Undertaking as to damages.

Undertaking as to Damages.—The usual undertaking as to damages should be inserted in all interlocutory injunction orders: Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 491; Corp. of Cork v. Rooney, 7 L. R. Ir. 191; Re Johnston, Ex p. Abrams, 50 L. T. 184, even though the order is granted on notice: Smith v. Day, 21 Ch. D. 421; 48 L. T. 54; and there is no exception in this respect in favour of the Crown: Secretary for War v. Chubb, 13 L. T. 83; W. N. 1880, 128; but see Atty.-Gen. v. Albany Hotel Co., 1896, 2 Ch. 696; 75 L. T. 140, 195, where it was not required.

The history of the undertaking is given by Jessel, M.R., in Smith v. Day, supra.

Where the injunction, though made pendente lite, is of the nature of a final order, no undertaking as to damages need be inserted: Fenner v. Wilson, 1893, 2 Ch. 656; 68 L. T. 748, where an injunction was granted restraining the publication of matter tending to prejudice the fair trial of the action.

The usual form of the undertaking is as follows: "and the plaintiff, by his counsel, undertaking to abide by any order which this Court may make, as to damages, in case the Court shall hereafter be of opinion that the defendant [or defendants, or any or either of them], shall have sustained any by reason of this order, which the plaintiff ought to pay."

Where there are several defendants, the undertaking should be so worded as to apply to all of them who are affected by the injunction: Tucker v. New Brunswick, etc., Co., 44 Ch. D. 249; 63 L. T. 69.

Where a married woman applies, her undertaking by her counsel is sufficient: Re Prynne, 53 L. T. 465; Pike v. Cave, 68 L. T. 650.

Semble, that the undertaking of counsel for a corporation, as to damages, renders the corporation as responsible as in the case of an individual: East Molesey v. Lambeth, 1892, 3 Ch. 289; 67 L. T. 497; see Manchester, etc. v. Parkinson, 60 L. T. 47.

Where an interlocutory injunction is granted ex parte on the terms that a party shall be added as plaintiff, and his undertaking given as to damages, the amendment must be made and undertaking given at the earliest practicable moment, or the injunction will be dissolved with costs: Spanish General Agency Corporation v. Spanish Corporation, 63 L. T. 161.

The undertaking as a general rule should extend to the damages incurred by any party to the suit, who may be damaged by the injunca wrongly granted, and should not be confined to the person actually joined: Tucker v. New Brunswick Trading Co., 44 Ch. D. 249. Sec. 17.

Where the plaintiff has been required to give security for costs of action, an undertaking as to damages must be given by a responsible person within the jurisdiction, as one term of the plaintiff's obtaining an interlocutory injunction: Delap v. Robinson, 18 P. R. 231.

Undertaking Given by Defendant in Lieu of Interim Injunction.—An order having been made restraining the defendant from proceeding with certain buildings, he appealed, offering an undertaking to abide by any order the Court might make at the hearing as to pulling down or altering any buildings erected by him; the Court of Appeal, being of opinion that the right to an interlocutory injunction was not established, discharged the order, taking from the defendant the undertaking in the terms of his offer, but held that, without any such undertaking, the Court would have jurisdiction at the trial to order the pulling down of any buildings erected after the commencement of the action, or after notice had been given to the defendant that the plaintiff objected to the building: Smith v. Day, 13 Ch. D. 651; and see Penwood v. Hornsey, 53 L. T. 126, in which a similar undertaking was given on a motion for an interim injunction, where buildings were erected by the defendant pendente lite of the value of between $30,000 and $40,000, and were ordered to be pulled down, although the plaintiff's damages were estimated at only $3,000. Undertaking by defendant in lieu of injunction.

Where an order is made by consent embodying an undertaking by the defendant equivalent to an interlocutory injunction as asked by the plaintiff, there is in that case no implied undertaking as to damages on the plaintiff; if such an understanding is required it must be made part of the consent: Howard v. Press Printers, 91 L. T. 718; 53 W. R. 137; Oberrheinische Metallwerke, etc. v. Cocks, 121 L. T. Jour. 137. See further as to Undertakings as to Damages, 21 C. L. J. 44.

Enforcing the Undertaking.—How far an undertaking can be enforced when the Court has erred in granting the injunction has been a subject of some difference of opinion: see Smith v. Day, 21 Ch. D. 421; Novello v. James, 5 D. M. & G. 876; 24 L. T. O. S. 165; Smith v. Bloke, 27 Ch. D. 474; 51 L. T. 274; Montreal St. Ry. Co. v. Lachie, 16 S. C. R. 622; Hunt v. Hunt, 54 L. J. Chy. 289. Enforcement of the undertaking.

The application for an inquiry as to damages should be made at the trial or when the injunction is dissolved: Smith v. Day, supra; Wilson v. Burton, 60 L. T. 630; W. N. 1888, 55; 58 L. J. Ch. 442; but in Newby v. Harrison, 5 L. T. 12; 3 D. F. & J. 287, an inquiry was granted after the lapse of four months, and in Re Hailstone, Hopkinson v. Carter, 102 L. T. 877, after two years from the hearing; but an application to enforce the undertaking after an unexplained delay of seven years was refused, though a prima facie case was made out: Wilson v. Hall, 23 Ch. D. 644; 49 L. T. 275.

The granting of an inquiry as to damages consequent on the granting of an injunction is discretionary, and cannot be claimed ex debito justitiæ. Where, therefore, no damage appeared to have been sustained apart from the detriment arising from litigation, and the Court at the trial thought the defendant's conduct had provoked the litigation, and even though the action was dismissed, the inquiry as to damages was refused: Gault v. Murray, 21 Ont. 458; see also Cockell v. British Linen Co. Bank, 1892, 3 Ch. 159; and Montreal St.

Sec. 17.

Ry. Co. v. Ritchie, 16 S. C. R. 622; Smith v. Day, 21 Ch. D. 421; Ex p. Hall, 23 Ch. D 644; Schlesinger v. Bedford, W. N. 1893, 57. It was granted: In re Pemberton v. Cooper, 107 L. T. 716.

Where a receiver is appointed of property in litigation, such property is thereafter in custodiâ legis, and the unsuccessful party to the litigation is not liable for damages for its detention while in the hands of a receiver: Peruvian Guano Co. v. Dreyfus, 1892, A. C. 166; 66 L. T. 536.

As to the measure of damages for restraining the sale of shares: see Mansell v. British Linen Bank, 1892, 3 Ch. 159.

Notice of injunction.

Notice, and Enforcement, of Injunctions.—A notice granting an injunction may be given by telegram. A sheriff's officer who receives such a notice should inquire by telegraph to see if it be bonâ fide: Ex parte Longley, 13 Ch. D. 110, in which case it was held that a London solicitor obtaining an order restraining a sale in the country ought to telegraph to his agent at the place and ask him to give notice to the persons affected: and see McLaren v. The Ishpenning, 39 C. L. J. 290 (Ex.). See also Re Bryant, 4 Ch. D. 98. A defendant is bound to obey an injunction of which he is made aware before being served with it: Stewart v. Richardson, 17 Gr. 150; and a wilful breach of the injunction may be punished by committal, even though there had been ample time to serve the order, and it had not been served: United Telephone Co. v. Dale, 25 Ch. D. 778. See The Seraglio, 10 P. D. 120. But notice of motion to commit must be served personally: see Nelson v. Worssam, W. N. 1890, 216.

A proceeding to compel compliance with an injunction by committal or sequestration is not a criminal proceeding: The Copeland-Chatterson Co. v. Business Systems, 16 O. L. R. 481; and see Scott v. Scott, 1913, A. C. 417; 109 L. T. 1

A solicitor falsely stating that an injunction has been granted is liable to be struck off the rolls: Kimpton v Eve, 2 V. & B. 352; and see per Blake, C., 1 Gr. 66.

Where notice of motion for an injunction has been served, it is a contempt of Court to proceed with the act sought to be restrained pending the motion: Cornell v. Assiginack, 28 C. L. J. 279; and see McGilt v. McKittrick, Ch. D., before Street, J., 6th July, 1892, where an act of trespass by building a wall was persisted in after action brought, though no interim injunction was applied for, and defendant was ordered by the judgment to remove the wall, although it trespassed but a few inches on the plaintiff's land; and see Greenwood v. Hornsey, supra, p. 71.

Where an injunction was granted restraining a defendant from negotiating bills of exchange, which had been deposited by him with his solicitor, and the solicitor subsequently ordered the defendant to indorse one of them, both defendant and his solicitor were held to have committed a contempt of Court, notwithstanding that the solicitor had a right to call for the indorsement: Doy v. Longhurst, 68 L. T. 17.

Stranger concurring in breach of injunction.

A person who is neither a party, nor a servant or agent of a party, but who with full knowledge of an injunction assisted defendant in disobeying it, may be committed not for breach of the injunction but for contempt of Court: Seaward v. Paterson, 1897, 1 Ch. 545; 76

T. 215; Crooks v. Crooks, 1 Gr. 66; or may be ordered to pay costs Sec. 1 a motion to commit: Hubbard v. Woodfield, 135 L. T. J. 239.

Where an injunction is granted against a party, his servants and nts, a servant continues bound by the injunction though he subuently leaves his master's service, and may be committed for a ach of the injunction though not served with it: Brown v. Sage, Gr. 1; Gilchrist v. Carden, 26 C. P. 1. So also new trustees are nd by an injunction granted against their predecessors in the t, of which they have notice: Avory v. Andrews, 46 L. T. 279.

Where a defendant was restrained from selling goods, being a urshie imitation of the plaintiff's, it was held that a sale of such is by the defendant, acting as agent for a third party, was no ach of the injunction: Ripley v. Arthur, 86 L. T. 495, 735.

A breach of an injunction may be punished by committal for con- Committal for breach. pt, or by sequestration; but it is only where the disobedience has wilful that punishment will be awarded: see Fairclough v. Manter Ship Canal, 102 L. T. Jour. 292; Davis v. Rhayader Granite rries, 131 L. T. Jour. 79. But a breach of an injunction is none the a contempt even though not committed wilfully or contumaciously: comb v. Trowbridge, 1910, 2 Ch. 190; 102 L. T. 647; and a cortion enjoined cannot excuse itself on the ground that the breach committed by one of its servants; and though the Court may ead the issue of a sequestration or attachment to enable the to obey the injunction, it may, nevertheless, order the party efault to pay the costs of the opposite party as between solicitor client: Ib. In the case of a corporation disobeying an injunction emedy is by sequestration: Ib.; Davis v. Rhayader Granite Quar- supra. A breach of an injunction may also be punished by fine: Re n & Wentworth, 23 O. to the term of imprisonment of persons in contempt for breach order of the Court: see Re Davies, 21 Q. B. D. 236; Rule 551.

Where the injunction order is ultra vires of the Court granting it, ach of it is no contempt: McLeod v. Noble, 28 Ont. 528.

Where, however, an injunction is erroneously or improvidently ed, but only voidable, nothing should be done while it is in force ntravention of its reasonable import: Dunn v. Board of Education of Toronto, 7 O. L. R. 451.

here the Court finds a party guilty of contempt, it may order o pay the costs of a motion to commit, though the committal be d; but if no contempt has in fact been committed, there is no iction to award costs against such party, and if granted the is appealable on that ground: Ellam v. Martyn, 79 L. order to commit for contempt in a civil proceeding, is not "a al proceeding," and is appealable like any other order: see The nd-Chatterson Co. v. Business Systems, 16 O. L. R. 481; Scott v. 1913, A. C. 417; 109 L. T. 1.

actice.—A motion for an interim injunction may be made ex Practice. to a Judge in the Weekly Court, or under Rule 211, to a local Where an injunction is granted ex parte, it is usually for a time, and until a motion to continue it shall have been disof; and the party obtaining it must, if he desire to continue it that time, give the usual notice of motion to continue it, but leave to make such motion on shorter notice may be granted. Where the injunction is granted by a Local Judge, it is not to be for a longer period than eight days: see Rule 211. An ex parte injunction ought not to be granted without an undertaking on the part of the applicant to answer damages, if any, which the opposite party may sustain by its being granted: see ante, p. 70.

A perpetual injunction is usually only granted at the trial or other disposition of the action.

Though it is the usual and proper practice to serve the writ of summons with a notice of motion to continue an interim injunction previously obtained, yet the omission to do so was held not to be a fatal objection to granting the motion to continue: Nipissing Coca Cola B. W. v. Wisse, 2 O. W. N. 677.

Scope of the enactment as to receivers.

Receivers.—A receiver is a person appointed by the Court to receive property which is the subject of litigation. A receiver may be appointed pendente lite for the purpose of receiving the property in question, until it shall be determined whether the plaintiff or defendant is entitled to it; and such appointment may be continued or made, at the trial for the purpose of working out the rights of the parties as determined by the judgment. Or such an appointment may be made after judgment by way of equitable execution. The appointment of receivers may now be made in any case in which it appears to the Court to be just or convenient: Jud. Act, s. 17, supra.

Duty of receiver.

A receiver is an indifferent person between the parties, appointed by the Court to collect and receive the rents and profits of land, or the produce of personal estate, or to take the care and custody of any other property which it does not seem proper to the Court that either of the litigants should do, either by reason of the controversy existing between them, or by reason of personal disability on the part of the party legally entitled, e.g., infancy or lunacy.

Claim for, to be indorsed on writ.

Where the appointment of a receiver is a substantial part of the relief sought by a plaintiff, he should indorse a claim to that effect on his writ: Colebourne v. Colebourne, 1 Ch. D. 690.

Appointment operates as injunction.

The appointment of a receiver operates as an injunction, and neither of the litigants can receive the money, or property, committed to a receiver, without a contempt of Court, and it is not necessary in the order appointing a receiver to grant an injunction in terms: Kerr on Receivers, 8.

Receivers, when appointed.

Receiver, when Appointed.—The former Common Law Courts had no power to appoint receivers.

In Chancery a receiver would not be appointed at the instance of a mortgagee having the legal estate, or other person able to obtain protection at law: Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 647; Buxton v. Monkhouse, G. Coop. 41; Kelsey v. Kelsey, L. R. 17 Eq. 495.

It has been a moot point whether this sub-section has enlarged the power of the Court to grant a receiver. In Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D., at p. 293, Cotton, L.J., said: "Under that (the present) sub-section the Court may and does grant receivers where it never could have done so before. Thus, for instance, it has the power to grant a receiver under that section where a plaintiff has himself the power of obtaining possession at law." See also Tyrrell v. Painton, 1895, 1 Q. B. 202; Tillet v. Niron, 49 L. T. 598; 25 Ch. D. 238; Mason Westoby, 32 Ch. D. 206; The Ampthill, 5 P. D. 224, and Gawthorpe v. Gawthorpe, W. N., 1878, 91, where Jessel, M.R., considered that there was no limit to the power of the Court to grant a receiver on motion, except that it was only to be exercised where it appeared just or convenient. But in Habershon v. Gill, W. N., 1875, 231, Quain, J., on the other hand, indicated an opinion that the words "just or convenient" were to be interpreted by the old practice. See also Holmes v. Cottage, 1893, 1 Q. B. 551, and Harris v. Beauchamp, 1894, 1 Q. B. 801; 70 L. T. 636; where the Court of Appeal (Lord Esher, M.R., Lopes and Davey, L.JJ.), were unanimous in holding that the Eng. Act has not given the Court power to grant a receiver by way of equitable execution in any case in which the Court of Chancery was formerly not able to do so; and that there is no right to an order merely because a receiver would be a more convenient mode of obtaining satisfaction of the judgment than execution in the usual way. This decision has been followed in O'Donnell v. Faulkner, 1 O. L. R. 170; Morgan v. Hart, 1914, 2 K. B. 183. Sec. 17.

If it appears to be just or convenient, the power may now be exercised where the plaintiff seeks to recover land by a legal title. The Court has to consider, amongst other things, the probability of the plaintiff's succeeding, length of defendant's possession, and whether has any prima facie title, also the position of tenants, who, if the defendant is not of undoubted solvency and remains in the receipt of rents, may have to pay twice if plaintiff succeeds: John v. John, 1918, 2 Ch. 573.

Legal Title.—Formerly the Court would not, except under special circumstances, or in cases covered by R. S. O. (1877) c. 40, s. 39, appoint a receiver against a person in possession of lands claiming by a legal title; but since The Judicature Act, it has been held that the jurisdiction is extended, and that a receiver may be appointed even as against a person claiming a legal title, wherever the Court may think it "just or convenient": Real and Personal Advance Co. v. Carey, 27 W. R. 706; but see North London Ry. Co. v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 30; 48 L. T. 695; Phillips v. Jones, 76 L. T. Jour. 373. Receiver, when appointed against holder of legal title.

Infant's Estate.—A receiver will be appointed of an infant's estate in a proper case, as where the father is of bad character or insolvent, and there is danger of loss: Kiffin v. Kiffin, cited 1 P. W. 704; Ex parte Comfort, 15 Ves. 499 n.; Re Cormicks, 2 Ir. Eq. 264, or there is no testamentary guardian, or one who declines to act: Hicks v. Hicks, 3 Ves. 273; Bridges v. Hales, Mos. 111; or the guardian is misconducting himself; Beaufort v. Berty, 1 P. W. 704, and see Dillon v. Lord Clonmell, 4 Bro. P. C. 306. Receiver, when appointed. Infants' estate.

Lunatic's Estate.—A receiver will be appointed over a lunatic's estate where no person will act as committee, or where the committee cannot act, or the management of the estate onerous: Kerr on Receivers, 78. Lunatics' estates.

Trust Estate.—The Court will in a proper case appoint a receiver to act in place of an executor, or trustee, but it will not do so on slight grounds. Where fraud is charged a receiver will be appointed: Vernon v. Kinzie, 2 O. S. 40, and see Meacham v. Draper, 1 Chy. 316; or in case of misconduct or improper management, or where there is danger of loss of the trust property: Middleton v. As against executors and trustees.

N. 1878, 91; although mere poverty is no ground for the appointment: Anon., 12 Ves. 4; but if coupled with bad character it may be: Everett v. Prytherch, 12 Sim. 368; or if being a female, she has married a man in necessitous circumstances, the cestuis que trustent being infants: Dillon v. Lord Mountmashel, 4 Bro. P. C. 306. A receiver may also be granted before probate, or administration, to prevent waste or spoliation, and to provide for the collection of assets pending litigation as to the right to administration: Atkinson v. Henshaw, 2 V. & B. 85; Bull v. Oliver, Ib. 96; Jones v. Godrich, 4 Jur. 98; Wood v. Hitchings, 2 Beav. 289; 4 Jur. 858; King v. King, 6 Ves. 172; Re Moore, Ker v. Moore, 13 P. D. 36; 58 L. T. 386: but see Knight v. Duplessis, 1 Ves. S. 324; but to warrant the appointment there must in general be shown to be litigation pending, or threatened, in the Surrogate Court: Jones v. Jones, 3 Mer. 174; Jones v. Frost, 3 Mad. 1; Jac. 466; Marr v. Littlewood, 2 My. & Cr. 458; Parkin v. Seddons, L. R. 16 Eq. 36; or that there is some difficulty in obtaining administration: Overington v. Ward, 34 Beav. 175. Pending litigation respecting the grant of probate or administration, the Surrogate Court has power to grant administration pendente lite: R. S. O. c. 62, s. 53.

Other cases.

A trustee appointed, upon his own undertaking in a suit, to act as receiver of the trust property, is not, under ordinary circumstances, in England, entitled to a salary as receiver: Pilkington v. Baker, British Mutual Investment Co. v. Pilkington, 24 W. R. 234. But in this Province trustees are entitled to compensation as such: The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67.

Receiver, when granted on application of, or against mortgagee of legal estate.

Mortgaged Estate.—Formerly a receiver would not be granted at the instance of a mortgagee entitled to the legal estate: Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 648; except under special circumstances: see Kerr on Receivers, 29-30, 34; nor against a prior mortgagee in possession, at the instance of a subsequent incumbrancer, so long as anything remained due on the prior mortgage; and the Court would only act on the prior mortgagee's own admission that he had been paid off, or his refusal to accept what was due to him: Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 647; Miles v. Moore, 15 Beav. 180; but where the prior mortgagee in possession had himself acquired the equity of redemption, and it appeared that he had received rents and profits more than sufficient to pay off his mortgage, a receiver might be granted: Steinhoff v. Brown, 11 Gr. 114. And now a receiver may be appointed at the instance of a mortgagee of the legal estate, if it seems to the Court to be just or convenient so to do: Pease v. Fletcher, 1 Ch. D. 273; but see North London Railway Co. v. Great Northern Railway Co., 48 L. T. 695; and see In re Prytherch, P. v. Williams, 42 Ch. D. 590. Where the mortgagor is in possession, and a receiver is appointed at the instance of the mortgagee, the usual direction for the tenants to attorn is not sufficient to compel the mortgagor to pay a rent to the receiver; but he will from the date of the demand of rent by the receiver be compelled to pay an occupation rent if he continues to retain possession: Yorkshire Banking Co. v. Mallon, 35 Ch. D. 125, 56 L. T. 399; Re Burchnall, Walker v. Burchnall, 96 L. T. Jour. 130.

itable, Bacon, V.C., on an interlocutory application, appointed a elver for the whole. In Truman v. Redgrave, 18 Ch. D. 547, a elver was granted on application of a legal mortgagee who was vented by the mortgagor from taking possession, and also an in-ction restraining the mortgagor from interfering with the manage-nt of the business and possession of the premises. (See the form order in that case).

An equitable mortgagee may, after default, have a receiver as When on application of equitable mortgagee.

any prior mortgagee: Atkins v. Blain, 13 Gr. 616; Kerr on Revers, 35. The Court will not try, on an interlocutory motion, the stion whether a prior mortgagee in possession has been paid off, en he himself distinctly swears that there is something due;
his affidavit as to the amount due is required to be specific; if ue, or his accounts are so negligently kept that he cannot speak itively, a receiver may be appointed: Rowe v. Wood, 2 J. & W.
; Hiles v. Moore, 15 Beav. 180; Codrington v. Parker, 16 Ves. 469.

A mortgagee cannot have a manager appointed to manage a busi-

Sec. 17.

Not appointed pendente lite of going concern.

Where a dissolution is neither sought nor is absolutely necessary, a receiver pendente lite will not in general be granted of a "going concern": Goodman v. Whitcomb, 1 J. & W. 585; Roberts v. Eberhardt, Kay. 148; Holl v. Hall, supra, p. 77; unless there is danger of the business being destroyed, or the assets misapplied in the meantime; or unless one partner is misconducting himself; e.g., by colluding with debtors of the firm: Estwick v. Conningsby, 1 Vern. 118; or carrying on a separate trade with the partnership property: Harding v. Glover, 18 Ves. 281; or is wrongfully excluding the plaintiff from the management: Wilson v. Greenwood, 1 Sw. 481; Goodman v. Whitcomb, 1 J. & W. 592; Rowe v. Wood, 2 J. & W. 558; Const v. Harris, T. & R. 525; Prentiss v. Brennon, 1 Gr. 371; Bilton v. Blakely, 6 Gr. 575; Steele v. Grossmith, 19 Gr. 141; or where some of the partners are insolvent: Collins v. Borker, 1893, 1 Ch. 578.

Exception to rule.

Where a partner is appointed receiver and manager without salary, he is entitled to be paid out of the assets for premiums paid to a guarantee company for becoming surety for him: Horris v. Sleep, 1897, 2 Ch. 80; 76 L. T. 458.

The mere fact of a dissolution does not entitle a partner to a receiver as against his co-partners: Pini v. Roncoroni, 1892, 1 Ch. 633. The lunacy of a partner is a ground for appointing a receiver: J. v. S., 1894, 3 Ch. 72; 7 L. T. 758. A receiver and manager of a partnership business was appointed at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy of one of the partners, notwithstanding a provision in the articles that the share of a bankrupt partner should remain in the business as a loan to the solvent partners until the end of the term: Collins v. Borker, 1893, 1 Ch. 578; 68 L. T. 572.

In an action for the dissolution and winding up of an insolvent partnership, an order was made for the sale of the assets by a receiver before trial; the assets being of such a character that their sale at once was desirable and other special circumstances existing: McLaren v. Whiting, 16 P. R. 552.

A receiver appointed in a partnership action though entitled to indemnity for all proper expenditures out of the assets of the firm in his hands, has no claim for indemnity against the partners personally: Boehm v. Goodall, 1911, 1 Ch. 155; 103 L. T. 717; but see Matthews v. Ruggles-Brise, 1911, 1 Ch. 194; 103 L. T. 491.

Where one of the partners is appointed a receiver, he is entitled to remuneration for his services and costs incurred as receiver, notwithstanding he is found as partner indebted to the partnership: Dovy v. Scarth, 1906, 1 Ch. 55.

Property in litigation.

Property in Litigation.—The Court may now appoint a receiver where the title to the property is uncertain and disputed: Berry v. Keen, 51 L. J. Chy. 912; and the defendant is in possession: Cook v. Andrews, 1897, 1 Ch. 266; Foxwell v. VonGrutten, 1897, 1 Ch. 64; 75 L. T. 311, 368; John v. John, supra, p. 75; but a case must be made to justify the appointment. Such cases as Talbot v. Hope Scott, 4 K. & J. 139, and Dunn v. Ferrior, L. R. 3 Chy. 719, are not now law: Berry v. Keen, supra.

An interim receiver of rents has been, however, refused to the plaintiff in an action of ejectment: Powell v. Powell, 73 L. T. Jour. 140, but granted in an action by a landlord against his tenant for recovery of land, under a proviso for re-entry: Gwatkin v. Bird, 52

J. Q. B. 263, and granted in Real and Personal Advance Co. v. Carthy, 27 W. R. 706; 40 L. T. 878, an action of ejectment by a mortgagee, where the property was wasting and insufficient, and plaintiff's action had been stayed till another action by defendant inst the plaintiff and others should be ready for tr al. Sec. 17.

An interpleader issue being ordered to try the right to goods seized xecution a receiver and manager of the property may be appointed er this section instead of a sale by the sheriff; e.g., where the perty was a cab business, n going concern: Howell v. Dowson, 13 . D. 67.

So in an action to enforce specific performance of a parol agreet to execute a bill of sale of personal chattels, upon an ex parte ion before appearance of defendant, there being evidence of imme- danger of the chattels in question being disposed of: Taylor v. ersley, 2 Ch. D. 302.

Vendor and Purchaser.—In actions for specific performance, a iver, pendente lite, may, in a proper case, be appointed: Kennedy ee, 3 Mer. 448; Holl v. Jenkinson, 2 V. & B. 125; McLeod v. Phelps, r. 962; and see Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302; 5 Ch. D. 740, a of chattels; or in actions to set aside conveyances as obtained by d: Stillwell v. Wilkins, Jac. 282; *Huguenin v. reditor's Application.—An injunction to restrain a debtor from ating his property pendente lite, cannot in general be obtained by mple contract creditor suing to recover his debt, where the debtor esse; nor under such circumstances could a receiver be granted: onal Provincial Bank of England v. Thomas, 24 W. R. 1013; v. Homan, 4 H. L. C. 1036; Robinson v. Pickering, 50 L. J. 527; Hepburn v. Pallon, 26 Gr. 597; nor even though the debtor public company: *McCall v. powers were to extend for ten days after the appointment of an administrator de bonis non, the plaintiff undertaking to use all possible speed in obtaining the appointment of such administrator, and to accept short notice of motion to discharge the receiver: In re Parker, Cash v. Parker, 12 Ch. D. 293; Re Clark, Clark v. Clark, 55 Sol. J. 64.

Where in an administration action the defendant, the sole surviving executor and trustee of the testator, had been personally condemned in costs in an action to test the validity of the will, and an execution had been issued against him, and there had been a return of nulla bona, on the application of the present plaintiffs, who were executors of the deceased executor of the testator, who was also a creditor of the testator and a residuary legatee, a receiver of the proceeds of the sale of part of the testator's real estate, and of the rent of the other part, and of the outstanding personal estate was granted: Gawthorpe v. Gawthorpe, W. N., 1878, 91.

A receiver and manager of the property and undertaking of a limited company was granted to a debenture holder of the company, whose debenture was a charge on the property of the company, the security being in jeopardy through the insolvency of the company, even though the principal secured by the debenture was not immediately payable and default had not been made in payment of interest: McMahon v. N. Kent Iron Works Co., 1891, 2 Ch. D. 148; Edwards v. Standard Rolling Stock Syndicate, 1893, 1 Ch. 574; In re Victoria Steamboats, 1897, 1 Ch. 158; Re London P. H. Co., Campbell v. London P. H. Co., 1905, 1 Ch. 576; 92 L. T. 409; Re Carshalton Park, 1908, 2 Ch. 62; 99 L. T. 12; Re Tilt Copper Co., Trustees v. The Company, 1913, 2 Ch. 588. See also Hubbuck v. Helms, 56 L. T. 232; and notes to Rule 458; but see Marshall v. South Staffordshire T. Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 36, where it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction to do this unless the Act authorizing the mortgage conferred it.

Where a receiver is appointed of the assets of a company on behalf of debenture holders, the rights of persons having a prior right to the property in the possession of the company will be protected: e.g., persons who had sold property to the company under a hire purchase agency were, on application to the Court, permitted to remove it, notwithstanding the appointment of the receiver: Re Morrison, Cookes v. The Company, 108 L. T. 675.

In an action by a debenture holder of a company for foreclosure, the Court has power to appoint an interim manager as well as a receiver: Makins v. Percy Ibotson & Sons, 1891, 1 Ch. 133; 63 L. T. 515; and a receiver and manager has been appointed at the instance of debenture holders, whose debentures were a first charge on all the property of the company as "a floating security," notwithstanding that no part of the principal or interest was in arrear: Edwards v. Standard Rolling Stock Syndicate, 1893, 1 Ch. 574; but see Marshall v. South Staffordshire Tramways Co., supra, where it was held that there is no power to direct a sale, or the appointment of a manager of the undertaking of a joint stock company at the suit of a mortgagee, unless the Act authorizing the mortgage also empowers the Court to give that relief to the mortgagee: and see Re Woking, 1914, 1 Ch. 300.

Receivers by way of equitable execution.

Equitable Execution.—Receivers have since the Jud. Act often been appointed as a means of enforcing judgments and reaching property not capable of being seized under an execution, e.g., at the in-ice of the plaintiff who had recovered judgment, and sued out an Sec. 17.

it against the debtor whose only interest in land was an equity of emption in fee, for the protection of the property until a decree d be obtained, under which the equity of redemption could be hed: see Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. 275; Re Watkins, h. D. 252; and Re Pope, 34 W. R. 693; and it has been held that e is no need first to issue a fi. fa.; see Ib., Ex p. Evans, 13 Ch. D.

1. 465; 80 L. T. 29, where it was held by the Court of Appeal the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution does create a charge on property which can be enforced by a sale.

n Kincaid v. Kincaid, 12 P. R. 462, this was called "one of the usual and ordinary methods of execution," and it was held to o answer to the motion that the judgment creditor could pro-y make the amount of his judgment by sale of other property r common law process, but in Manchester, etc., v. Parkinson, 22
. D. 173, it was held that in the absence of any legal impedi-to obtaining execution of the judgment in the ordinary course of by fi. fa., or attachment of debts, and of any special circum-es showing it to be just or convenient, an appointment of a ver should not be made. See also I. v. K., W. N. 1884, 63; and it was in effect laid down by the Court of Appeal, that there jurisdiction to appoint a receiver by way of equitable execution.

t where prior to the Jud. Act, such an appointment would have nade by a Court of Equity.

msy, therefore, not be considered to be settled that a receiver y of equitable execution will only be appointed in respect of rty which the execution creditor has a right to make available e payment of his debt: Holmes v. Millage, 1893, 1 Q. B. 555;
T. 205; but which cannot be reached by execution in the ordinay, or by garnishee proceedings: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1894, 1 creditor, therefore, who has obtained judgment may apply for a After judger by way of equitable execution, as against property for the ment, re-, which, though liable to execution, cannot be reached by a writ ceiver may cution or garnishee proceedings: Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, pointed.

a receiver, to sue out a writ of execution; but it would seem now that if the property cannot be reached by the writ, such a preliminary is not necessary; but see supra.

Sec. 17.

It was decided in the Chancery Division, that a receiver appointed by way of execution, since The Creditors' Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 81), must be ordered to receive and distribute in accordance with the principle of that Act: Silvester Mfg. Co. v. McEachren, 9 C. L. T. 138, followed: Stewart v. Jones, 19 P. R. 227; which was, however, subsequently reversed on the ground that the claim was not exigible: 1 O. L. R. 37; and he should probably be an officer of the Court: Kirk v. Burgess, 15 Ont. 608. But in the other Divisions there were decisions the other way: see McLean v. Allen, 14 P. R. 84; McLean v. Bruce, 14 P. R. 190, 202, where it was held that The Creditors' Relief Act is not to be extended, by analogy, to cases not actually provided for by that Act.

But it appears to be now the settled practice of the Court that where a receiver is appointed by way of equitable execution, he must be so appointed not merely for the benefit of the applicant, but also of all other creditors of the debtor entitled to participate in the proceeds of an execution under The Creditors' Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 81).

In Cummins v. Perkins, 1899, 1 Ch. 16, an order for the payment of costs out of a married woman's separate property having been made, and the only separate property she had being an interest under a will, which the trustee was about to distribute, a receiver of it was appointed on the application of the party to whom the costs were payable, before taxation.

Receivers granted.

A receiver has been appointed to receive the life interest of a married woman in stock: Bryant v. Bull, 10 Ch. B. 903; 101 L. T. 416: In Ontario, however, patent rights are saleabis in execution by the sheriff: see The Execution Act (R. S. O. c. 80), s. 18, which fact might possibly ensble the Court to grant a receiver in such a case.

Semble, in England a debtor's legal remainder in real estate is not a sufficient present interest to justify the appointment of a receiver with a view to realization: see Re Horrison & Bottomley, 1899, 1 Ch. 465. In Ontario there is the further reason against the appointment of a receiver in such case, that under The Execution Act (R. S. O. c. 80), s. 34, the interest in remainder can be sold under an execution.

Wbere the execution debtor had a mere right of use of cbattel property for life under a settlement, a receiver of such property was refused: Whitoker v. Cohen, 69 L. T. 451.

Practice.

Practice.—A motion for an interim receiver, or a receiver hy way of equitabis execution, is usually made on two days' notice, or, in cases of emergency, ex porte, to a Jndge sitting in the Weekly Court—a Local Judge of the Supreme Court may grant a receiver by way of equitable execution: see Rule 210, and notes infra. A receiver and manager, without limit of time, may be granted in a proper case at the trial or other final disposition of an action. Pending an appeal from a judgment directing the taking of partnership accounts, a receiver was appointed by the Court of Appeal: McCurdy v. Embree (No. 2), 14 O. L. R. 325.

Where the application is made on behalf of an execution creditor, the application may he made in the action in which the judgment has been recovered, and it is not proper to institute another action for tbe purpose of obtaining a receiver: Ib.; Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 75; Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544.

Where the plaintiff desires the appointment of a receiver, otherwise than by way of equitable execution, he should claim that relief by the indorsement on his writ of summons, and in his statement of claim.

A defendant in order to obtain the appointment of a receiver must file a counter-claim claiming thst relief, where bis right to such relief arises out of some matter independent of the plaintiff's case: and if relief is required before he is in a position to file a counter-claim Sec. 17.

oss action must be commenced: Carter v. Fey, 1894, 2 Ch. 541; where such right arises out of the plaintiff's case, a counter-claim not appear to be necessary; Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600.

Application for Appointment.—The application for the appoint- Application for, to be made in Court.
t of a receiver must in the first instance be made in Court, upon on for that purpose where the appointment is required to be made lente lite, or else at the trial, or on motion for judgment in the on; but after a receiver has been appointed, applications to fill ncies subsequently occurring in the office may be made in Cham- Grole v. Bing, 9 Ha. App. I, but the order for a receiver has been ted in Chambers, by consent: Blackborough v. Ravenhill, 16 Jur. ; and see 22 Sol. Jour. 914.

defendant may, by his defence or counter-claim, claim an injunc- or the appointment of a receiver, and may, in such a case, before ment, apply for an interim injunction and receiver. He may do notwithstanding that the plaintiff has already served notice of on for the like purpose. In such case, one order will be made on wo motions, but the conduct of it will, in general, be given to laintiff: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600.

motion for a receiver is made to a Judge sitting in the weekly : see Rules 205, 207; whether a Local Judge has power to grant iver under Rule 210 has not been settled.

cept in cases of emergency the application should be on notice: ucas v. Harris, 18 Q. B. D. 134; Re Potts, 1893, 1 Q. B. 648; g v. Blythe, 1899, 1 Q. B. 557; Re Connolly Bros., 1911, 1 Ch. 731; . T. 693. In cases of emergency a receiver will be appointed rte not only before appearance: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302; fore service of writ: Re H.'s Estate, 1 Ch. D. 276; Colebourne v. urne, 1 Ch. D. 690; Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309; Evans v. Lloyd, 1889, 171; and not only by way of equitable execution (see v. Kent, 11 T. L. R. 197; 72 L. T. 186), where delay might mean f the property.

cases of equitable execution the practice has grown up of apply- parte, in cases of emergency, for an interim order for a limited and of applying within such time to continue and make per- t the appointment: see Stark v. Ross, 17 P. R. 237. This has the effect of an injunction restraining the debtor from dealing he property, as it enables the interim receiver to obtain possesdling an application for a receiver by way of equitable execution, been held in England to be not proper with the summons to ause to grant ex parte an injunction restraining the debtor from g with the property unless it be shown that there is danger of ing made away with before the hearing of the application: Bank v. Medway U. Nav. Co., 1905, 2 K. B. 359; 93 L. T. 224.

an action for the specific performance of an agreement to accept of a farm, in which judgment had been given for the defendant, laintiff having appealed, the Court of Appeal (no previous appli- having been made to the Divisional Court or a Judge) appointed laintiff receiver and manager of the farm without security, on dertaking to abide by any order which the Court might make matter: Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309.

Sec. 17.

Receiver should be disinterested, unless Court appoints one of the parties.

A receiver should in general be wholly disinterested, unless the parties otherwise consent, or the Court is of opinion that the appointment of one of the parties would be beneficial to the estate: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600. Where a party to the action is appointed it is only on his undertaking to act without salary: Ib.; Wilson v. Greenwood, 1 Sw. 471, 483; Blakeney v. Dufaur, 15 Beav. 40, 44; Kerr on Receivers, 95. Where a receiver is appointed of trust property, the cestui que trust is entitled to have the superintendence of the trustee, as a check upon the receiver; the trustee should not therefore be himself appointed, except under special circumstances: Kerr, 95, 86; and where a receiver is appointed of the property of any person not sui juris, the guardian or committee of such person should not be appointed for the same reason, nor yet any person connected with him, or the solicitor in the action: Re Lloyd, 12 Ch. D. 447; nor a Master of the Court: Ex parte Fletcher, 6 Ves. 427.

Who should be appointed, of trust estate.

The plaintiff may be appointed receiver in cases of emergency: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302; and under special circumstances: Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309; but not the plaintiff's solicitor: In re Lloyd, Allen v. Lloyd, 12 Ch. D. 447; one of the members of a dissolved partnership in certain cases may be appointed receiver: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600. The manager of a mining company was appointed receiver in an action by debenture holders against the company for foreclosure: Peck v. Trinsmaron Iron Company, 2 Ch. D. 115.

And the execution creditor is sometimes appointed the receiver by way of equitable execution: Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711. See also Book v. Ruth, 20 C. L. J. 193; Hewett v. Murray, 52 L. T. 380; McGarry v. White, 16 L. R. Ir. 322; but a plaintiff cannot in this way get himself made a sort of general assignee of all his debtor's assets. Re Asselin & Cleghorn, 6 O. L. R. 170.

Security.

Security.—The receiver must, as a rule, give security, but, in cases of emergency, an interim receiver will be appointed without security: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302. Persons who are deeply interested in the proper management of a concern will not always be required to give security: Boyle v. Bettws, etc., Co., 2 Ch. D. 726.

Where a receiver is appointed subject to security being given, the appointment does not take effect until the security is perfected, and even where the security is given, the appointment does not relate back to the date of the order: Ridout v. Fowler, 1904, 1 Ch. 658; 2 Ch. 93; 90 L. T. 147; Edwards v. Edwards, 2 Ch. D. 291; therefore, where it is desired to intercept a fund, an injunction restraining any dealing with it until the appointment of a receiver is completed should also be obtained, or the object of the receivership order may be frustrated.

Where a trust company, approved by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, is appointed receiver, it need not give security unless otherwise ordered. R. S. O. c. 184, s. 20 (5).

Interim Receiver.—An interim receiver is usually only appointed to maintain things as far as possible in statu quo until a permanent appointment is made, or until an action has been tried—but an interim receiver of a partnership may be ordered to sell the assets: McLaren v. Whiting, 16 P. R. 552.

As to whether interim receiver superseded by judgment, quære?

It has been said that an interim receiver is superseded by the judgment subsequently given in the action, unless he is expressly continued by it: Kerr on Receivers, 2nd ed., 186; Reeves v. Neville, 10 W. R. 335; Taylor's Orders, 3nd ed., 274; Gibson v. Montfort, 1 Ves. Sr., 485; but the authorities cited do not appear to bear out the proposition: see Seton, 5th ed., 638. The question would appear to depend the terms of the order appointing the receiver; if appointed "until trial," then it would seem clear, that unless continued by the gment pronounced at the trial, he would be superseded by it; but appointed generally without any limitation as to time, or "until Court make order to the contrary," then it would seem that he uld not necessarily be superseded by the judgment subsequently nounced, even though not expressly continued by it: Davies v. Vale Evesham Preserves, 73 L. T. 150.

Sec. 17.

Where a receiver has been appointed by the judgment in the action erally, it is not necessary that the judgment on further directions uld continue him: Re Underwood, 60 L. T. 384.

A receiver is liable to account, and his sureties are responsible, for moneys coming to his hands in that capacity at any time: Smort Flood, 49 L. T. 467; but not for moneys received by him after his nt to act had ceased: Re Walker, 1907, 2 Ch. 120; 96 L. T. 864.

Appellate Division.

The appointment of a receiver is in the discretion of the Court, and Appellate Division will not, as a rule, interfere with that discre-: Nothard v. Proctor, 1 Ch. D. 4.

Appointment not to prejudice prior mortgagees.

Where a receiver is appointed at the instance of a judgment cre-r, it is without prejudice to the claims of prior mortgagees. If : Lyon v. Mathieson, 2 Giff. 71; Wildy v. Mid-Hants Railway Co., V. R. 409; Potts v. Warwick & B. C. Co., Kay, 145.

A judgment creditor at whose instance a receiver is appointed is a "secured creditor" within the English Bankruptcy Act: Re s, 1893, 1 Q. B. 648; 68 L. T. 229; sed vide, Levasseur v. Mason, , 2 Q. B. 73; 64 L. T. 761.

Effect, and enforcement of order for receiver.

ffect, and Enforcement, of Order.—The appointment of a re-er (at any rate when not accompanied by a direction to any per-to pay) creates no lien or charge on the property of which he is to eceiver, and is not equivalent to a seizure in execution: Croshow v. ihurst Ship Co., 1897, 2 Ch. 154; but as to the extent to which it ents the debtor from dealing with the fund prejudicially, and ents other persons from obtaining priority in regard to it: see Marquis of Anglesey, De Gale v. Gardner, 1903, 2 Ch. D. 727; 89 . 384.

The appointing of a receiver operates as an injunction against the es to the action interfering with the receiver in the discharge s duties.

Where a receiver and manager of a partnership business has been inted, it is a breach of the order for one of the partners to set rival business and spread reports that the partnership business out to be closed: Dixon v. Dixon, 1904, 1 Ch. 161; 89 L. T. 272.

Where a creditor has obtained an order appointing himself receiver s debtor's interest in personal estate, the Court has no jurisdic-to make a declaration of charge in his favour upon such interest: v. Prentice, 1892, 2 Ch. 428; 67 L. T. 107; nor to order a sale: eyrecave v. Nicholson, 97 L. T. Jour. 286; 42 W. R. 702.

s to the effect of an order for a receiver as against a trustee in ruptcy: see Levasseur v. Mason, 1891, 2 Q. B. 73; Re Potts, 1893, B. 648; 68 L. T. 229; Croshaw v. Lyndhurst, 1897, 2 Ch. 154.

Sec. 18.

A receiver appointed by way of equitable execution is not entitled to carry on the debtor's business, but he may prevent the debtor or anyone else from carrying it on, on the debtor's premises. Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre, 1894, 3 Ch. 338, 344.

Property in possession of a receiver is not for all purposes in custodid legis: Re Hoare, 67 L. T. 45; but it is so, so far as to prevent the party ultimately found entitled, from claiming damages for its detention while in his possession: The Peruvian Guano Co. v. Dreyfus, 1892, A. C. 166.

A receiver of the debtor's share in an estate which could not be reached by execution in the usual way, after refusal of the debtor to allow the use of his name, was authorized, on giving security to him, to take proceedings in his name for the administration of the estate, and, if necessary, for the removal of the executor: Mones v. McCallum, 17 P. R. 393.

A person who is not a party to an action has been held not entitled to apply by motion for payment of money to him by a receiver appointed in the action, even though his claim is made in respect of a debt properly payable out of the funds in the receiver's hands: Brocklebank v. East London Railway Company, 12 Ch. D. 839; see Neate v. Pink, 15 Sim. 450; 3 Mac. & G. 476. Semble, the party having the carriage of the proceedings is the proper party to apply in such a case.

Third Persons Claiming Property in the Hands of a Receiver.—A person claiming to be entitled to property taken possession of by a receiver cannot interfere with the receiver's possession without first obtaining the leave of the Court; to do so would be a contempt of Court, even though the right claimed were well funded. On proper application to the Court his rights will be protected: see Re Morrison, Cooke v. The Company, 108 L. T. 675.

A third person injuriously affected by the appointment of a receiver may move to rescind it: McLean v. Allen, 13 P. R. 255.

Court may award damages, etc.

18. Where the Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application for an injunction against a breach of a covenant, contract or agreement or against the commission or continuance of a wrongful act, or for the specific performance of a covenant, contract or agreement, the Court may award damages to the party injured either in addition to or in substitution for such injunction or specific performance, and such damages may be ascertained in such manner as the Court may direct, or the Court may grant such other relief as may be deemed just. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 18.

Damages in lieu of specific performance.

Damages in Lieu of Specific Performance.—This section is taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 40, which was taken from Imp. Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 27, s. 2 (6). This section does not enable the Court to grant damages in a case where before the Act damages were not recoverable at law, e.g., in the case of an oral agreement not capable of specific performance in Equity, and in respect of which the defendant, in an action at law for damages, might have successfully pleaded the atute of Frauds: Re Northumberland Avenue Hotel Co., Sully's Case, Sec. 18.

t where, after part performance of a verbal contract for the sale of d, the vendor re-sold the land and conveyed it to a third party; in action for specific performance the Court awarded the plaintiff a urn of the part of the purchase money which he had paid with erest thereon, and also damages for the breach of the contract by ue of its jurisdiction under The Judicature Act (R. S. O. (1897) 1), s. 41 (see s. 3, supra, p. 3, et seq.), although under this section the rt might not have jurisdiction to give damages in such a case:
intyre v. Stockdale, 27 O. L. R. 460.

Damages in Lieu of an Injunction.—The following is stated as Damages in lieu of injunction.
a good working rule," under this section for awarding damages in of so injunction: "Damages may be given in substitution for an unction in cases where there are found in combination the four owing requirements, viz.: where the injury to the plaintiff's legal hts is (1) small, (2) capable of being estimated in money, (3) can be quately compensated by a small money payment, and (4) where case is one in which it would be oppressive to the defendant to nt an injunction": per A. L. Smith, L.J., in Shelfer v. City of don Electric, etc., Co., 1895, 1 Ch. 287; see S. C. sub nom., Meux ondon, etc., 72 L. T. 34; and Cowper v. Laidler, 1903, 2 Ch. 337;
L. T. 469.

The Court has no jurisdiction under this section to award dam-where no wrongful act has been actually committed, but only atened, by the person against whom the injunction is claimed:
per v. Laidler, supra; Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 43 Ch. D.
62 L. T. 518; Martin v. Price, 1894, 1 Ch. 276; 70 L. T. 228; but Holland v. Worley, 26 Ch. D. 578.

ubstantial damages can only be given where there is a proper for an injunction, and in lieu of it: Proctor v. Bayley, 42 Ch. D.
38 W. R. 100; General Accident Assce. Co. v. Noel, 1902, 1 K. B.
86 L. T. 555; but nominal damages may be given in addition to injunction: Lipman v. Pulmon, 91 L. T. 132; 1904, W. N. 139.

Where the act sought to be restrained is a continuing actionable nce, although there is jurisdiction to award damages in lieu of junction, yet it is said it ought to be exercised under very excepl circumstances: Meux v. London, etc., supra.

here a plaintiff has established his right to a perpetual injuncinjunction: Martin v. Price, supra; Krehl v. Burrell, 1 Ch. D. and Greenwood v. Hornsey, 33 Ch. D. 471, in which Holland v.

y, 26 Ch. D. 378, was distinguished. See also Allen v. Ayres, 1884, 242.

here the wrongful act has ceased before trial, the Court may this Act, in lieu of an injunction, which would be useless, at the trial the damages from the commencement of the wrong-t, including damages accrued since the writ: Fritz v. Hobson, D. 542, 557.

here the wrongful act has been discontinued before suit, without laintiff's knowledge, it was held that the Court had no jurisdicunder the above enactment to make a decree for damages:

Relief against penalties, etc.

19. The Court shall have power to relieve against all penalties and forfeitures, and in granting such relief to impose such terms as to costs, expenses, damages, compensation and all other matters as may be deemed just. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 19.

Taken from 49 Vict. c. 16, s. 38; 53 Vict. c. 12, s. 52 (3), which, however, had nt (a) the words "and agreements for liquidatsd damages," which were struck out subsequently by 60 Vict. c. 15, sched. (61).

County and Division Courts Acts.

Similar power is conferred on County and District Courts by the County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 50), s. 28, and also on Division Courts by the Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 63), s. 65; see also sec. 23, infra.

Relief in equity formerly where compensation in money is adequate.

Wherever a penalty or a forfeiture is imposed to secure the performance of some act, or the enjoyment of some right or benefit, if the breach of the act, or the withholding of the right or benefit can be adequately compensated in money, relief from the penalty or forfeiture may be decreed: e.g., where the payment of a larger sum is imposed in the event of failure to pay a stipulated sum by a given day, such larger sum is regarded as merely a security for legal interest during the time the money is in default: Aylet v. Dodd, 2 Atk. 239; Stoman v. Walter, 1 Bro. C. C. 418; Sanders v. Pope, 12 Ves. 282; Davis v. West, 12 Ves. 475. So where the performance of several acts is secured by a covenant to pay a sum, which as to some of the acts, would be too large, and as to others too small, a compensation for the injury, the sum is considered to be a penalty: see Kemble v. Forren, 6 Bing. 141. But where the damages from the breach cannot be measured, then the sum agreed to be paid in default of performance, is held to be liquidated damages from which no relief can be granted: Atkyns v. Kinnier, 4 Ex. 776, 783; Galsworthy v. Strutt, 1 Ex. 659; Law v. Redditch, 1892, 1 Q. B. 127; 66 L. T. 76; Elphinstone v. Monkland, etc., 11 App. Cas. 332. See also note to sec. 19 infra, and Townsend v. T. H. & B. Ry. Co., 28 Ont. 105, there mentioned.

Agreemant for liquidated damagas.

Relief may be granted under this section in respect of a covenant contained in an instrument made before the passing of the Act, or the Acts on which it is founded, as regards any subsequent breach: Page v. Bennett, 2 Giff. 117. See further as to cases in which the Court will, or will not, relieve against forfeitures: Story's Eq., chap. 34.

Landlord and Tenant.

By The Landlord and Tenant Act (R. S. O. c. 155), s. 20, relief may be given in respect of forfeitures incurred by breach of certain covenants in leases—but certain covenants are exempted from the operation of that section, viz.:—

(a) Covenants or conditions against assigning, under letting, parting with the possession, or disposing of the land leased;

(b) Conditions of forfeiture in case of the bankruptcy of the lessee, or on his making an assignment under The Assignments and Preferences Act—or

(c) On the taking in execution of the lessee's interest, and Sec. 19.

(d) Covenants or conditions in mining leases for allowing the or to have access to and inspect books, accounts, records, weighing chines, or other things,—or to enter and inspect the mine, or the kings thereof.

Relief will be given to a tenant against a forfeiture incurred by the -payment of rent, or other payment, e.g., the non-payment of taxes er a covenant: Buckley v. Beigle, 8 Ont. 85: The Landlord and ant's Act (R. S. O. c. 155), s. 20 (3).

The general leaning of the Court was formerly against granting ef against forfeitures for breach of covenants to repair, in the nce of special circumstances: Hill v. Barclay, 16 Ves. 402; 18 62; Gregory v. Wilson, 9 Ha. 683; Nokes v. Gibbon, 3 Drew. 681; ft v. Goldsmid, 24 Beav. 312; Burt v. Gray, 1891, 2 Q. B. 98; but Bamford v. Creasy, 3 Giff. 675; Hughes v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., pp. Cas. 439; or of covenants to insure: Green v. Bridges, 4 Sim. 96; her would the Court grant relief against a forfeiture for breach of venant by a lessee not to assign the term without leave: Hill v. ley, 18 Ves. at p. 63; Barrow v. Isaacs, 1891, 1 Q. B. 417; 68 L. T. Eastern Telegraph Co. v. Dent, 1899, 1 Q. B. 835; 80 L. T. 459; but quitable assignment is not a breach of such a covenant: Gentle v. kner, 1900, 2 Q. B. 267; 82 L. T. 708.

nder The Landlord and Tenant Act, as now framed, the Court relieve against forfeitures for breach of covenants to repair or re; but not against covenants not to assign: see supra; and see an v. Rose, 106 L. T. 907 (covenant to repair); Mulhews v. Small-, 1910, 1 Ch. 777; 102 L. T. 228 (covenant not to sub-let). This on does not enable the Court to relieve a defendant from the ity for "full satisfaction" recoverable under The Landlord and nt Act (R. S. O. c. 155), s. 54 (2), where distress had been where no rent is due: Webb v. Box, 19 O. L. R. 540.

Forfeitures.—The former Court of Chancery had power to relieve st forfeitures. This section seems to confer on the Supreme more ample power. Forfeitures, relief against.

e restrictions in The Landlord and Tenant Act, above referred ould seem, however, to preclude the Court from granting relief st forfeitures of leases in respect of breaches of covenants, which xcepted from the operation of sec. 20 of that Act.

rmerly a forfeiture for non-payment of rent could not be re- against, but under The Landlord and Tenant Act, as now d, it may be.

lessee, against whom ejectment is brought for non-payment of may stay proceedings at any time before judgment by paying Court all the rent in arrear and the costs of the action: The rd and Tenant Act (R. S. O. c. 155), s. 20 (6); Denison v. Mait- 22 Ont. 166; Howard v. Fonshawe, 1895, 2 Ch. 581; 73 L. T. 77; v. Smee, 1907, 2 K. B. 8.

der this section the Court cannot relieve against the consequence -compliance with the conditions of a policy of insurance, as to and proof, of the death of the insured: Johnston v. Dominion ada Guarantee & A. Co., 17 O. L. R. 462.

Sec. 20.

Penalties, relief against.

Penalties.—The Court would seem to have no jurisdiction under this section to relieve against the payment of liquidated damages for breach of contract: Empire Loan & S. Co. v. McRoe, 5 O. L. R. 710; although it had under 58 V. c. 12, s. 52 (3) as originally framed: see Townsend v. T. H. & B. Ry., 28 Ont. 195; and see Clyde Engineer, etc., Co. v. Castanedo, 91 L. T. 666. In deciding whether a sum payable by way of compensation for breach of a contract is to be treated as liquidated damages or as a penalty, the Court must take into consideration all the circumstances in order to ascertain the intention of the parties. The fact that the sum is to be paid on the breach of any one of a variety of stipulations of different degrees of importance does not necessarily oblige the Court to treat it as a penalty, although it raises a presumption that that was the intention; nor does the fact that the sum had been deposited at the making of the contract compel the Court to treat it as liquidated damages, although it forms a material element to be taken into consideration in ascertaining the intention of the parties: Pye v. British Automobile, etc., 1906, 1 K. B 425.

"Liquidated damages."

Where a stipulation for "liquidated damages" is really in the nature of a penalty, the Court may relieve against it. Notwithstanding an express stipulation that for breach of an agreement a specific sum will be paid as "liquidated damages," the Court may, in view of all the circumstances, find that it is really a "penalty," and as such may relieve against it: Townsend v. Rumboll, 19 O. L. R. 433; but see Pelee Island v. Doty, 23 O. L. R. 402; De Soysa v. De Picss Pol. 1912, A. C. 194; 105 L. T. 642; Webster v. Bosanquet, 1912, A. C. 394; 106 L. T. 357. And notwithstanding in an agreement it may be provided that a certain sum shall be paid by way of "penalty," the Court may, in view of all the circumstances, come to the conclusion that the specified sum is really "liquidated damages": see McManus v. Rothschild, 25 O. L. R. 138. Where there is a stipulation in an agreement that if on a certain day the agreement remains wholly or in part unperformed a forfeiture is to be incurred, that stipulation is held to be in the nature of a penalty which may be relieved against on performance of the agreement: Kilmer v. British Columbia Orchard Lands, 1913, A. C. 319; 108 L. T. 306.

Jurisdiction as to validity of provincial statute.

20.—(1) The Court shall have jurisdiction to entertain an action at the instance of either the Attorney-General for Canada, or the Attorney-General of Ontario, for a declaration as to the validity of any statute, or any provision in any statute of this Legislature, though no further relief be prayed or sought, and the action shall be sufficiently constituted if such Attorney-General is a party thereto.

Judgment appealable.

(2) A judgment in the action shall be appealable like other judgments of the Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 20.

Under this section, or R. S. O. c. 85, cases have been submitted as to the validity of 53 V. c. 56, s. 18: Re Local Option Act, 18 Ont. App. 572; 24 S. C. R. 145, 170; 1896, A. rnor in Council under a Provincial Act, although the statute part from this section the Court would appear to have jurisdiction ntertain an action to determine the true meaning of a statute r which officers of the Crown were assuming to act: see Dyson v.

is section enables the Attorney-General for Canada, or the Attor-eneral for Ontario, to institute actions for the determination of alidity of any statute, or any provision in any statute of the io Legislature. It does not extend to Acts of the Dominion ment.

rther provision is made by section 33, post, for the determination validity of statutes where such questions arise incidentally in ction; that section, it will be observed, applies both to Provincial ominion statutes.

Where an action is brought in the Supreme Court cause of action for which a suit or action has been ght and is pending between the same parties or their esentatives in any place or country out of Ontario, Court or a Judge may make an order staying all eedings in the Supreme Court until satisfactory is offered to the Court or a Judge that the suit tion so brought in such other place or country out ntario is determined or discontinued. 3-4 Geo. where there are substantial reasons to induce the plaintiff to sue in both countries; as when he can get judgment in each action, but execution is more easily obtained in one than in the other: Peruvian Guano Co. v. Bockwoldt, 23 Ch. Whether a Court having ample authority to decide the matter brought before it should await the expected adjudication of another tribunal having only similar authority is merely a question for the exercise of judicial discretion: Phosphate Sewage Company v. Molleson, 1 App. Cas. 780. See Hounston v. M. of Sligo, W. N. 1884, 29, reversed, p. 151.

There is a discretion to stay proceedings in the Supreme Court for damages for a collision, in respect of which proceedings are being taken in rem in a Vice-Admiralty Court: The Peshawur, 48 L. T. 796; 8 P. D. 32.

Rule in Ontario.

Under the above section, proceedings were stayed in this Province, where the matter could more conveniently be disposed of in the foreign Court, by reason of the suit being there in a more advanced stage, and the parties being personally subject to the jurisdiction of the foreign Court, and the latter was the most convenient, in view of the evidence to be procured: Howell v. Jewett, 7 P. R. 69. A stay was also ordered pending an appeal in a foreign Court, terms as to diligence in prosecuting the appeal being imposed: Huntington v. Attrill, 12 P. R. 36.

Where a Bank was being wound up in Ontario under the Dominion Winding-up Act, an injunction was granted restraining proceedings in a Montreal Court against the Bank, and also proceedings against the liquidators for things done in their official capacity, and from attacking the validity of their appointment: Baxter v. Central Bank, 20 Ont. 214.

Where there are substantial reasons for double litigation the Court will not stay proceedings in an action in Ontario until after the determination of another action for the same cause pending in a foreign Court. Thus where a defendant resident in Ontario was sued there on a promissory note, the Court refused to stay proceedings until after the determination of attachment proceedings in a foreign Court, the only effect of which would be to make available towards payment of the note certain stock in a Company domiciled in a foreign country: First Natchez Bank v. Coleman, 2 O. L. R. 159.

Sec. 22.

At Common Law the father of an infant (or his testamentary rdian, or guardian appointed by the Court: Wellesley v. Beaufort. & M. 639), had a prima facie right to the custody of the infant, n against the mother, unless the child was of an age to judge for self, or there was an apprehension of cruelty from the father, or amination in consequence of his immorality or gross profligacy. this right may be asserted by the father against persons to whom has by deed agreed to give the custody of his child, because such ements ars contrary to public policy and are revocable: Re Hutch-n, 26 O. L. R. 601; 28 O. L. R. 114. Common Law rule.

f the infant was of an age to elect for himself, the Court would ely interfere so far as to get it free from illegal restraint, with-handing it over to anybody: Rex v. Delaval, 3 Burr, 1435. But hs absence of any right of choice, the Court transferred the infant s proper legal custody. The right to such an election was decided epend upon age alone, and not on mental capacity: see Reg. v. ke, 7 E. & B. 186; and it was settled that no such choice could ade, at all events by a female infant, under the age of sixteen: Re Andrews, L. R. 8 Q. B. 158.

he English Court of Chancery had original jurisdiction over persons and property of infants, springing from the right of the n as parens patriæ, and had power to interfere with the Common rights of the father, in the interest of the infant, on the ground s father's cruelty, immorality, etc. (as to the father's right in case, see further notes below, and Swift v. Swift, 6 N. R. 137; 34 Chy. 209, 394); or of his agreement, express or implied, to his rights: see Simpson on Infants, 136 et seq. The jurisdic-was not often exercised except where the Court had the means plying property for the use and maintenance of the infant: Ib. existence of the jurisdiction, however, was affirmed in Re Mc-, 1892, 2 Ch. 496; 1893, 1 Ch. 143. Equity rule.

nder The Judicature Act, the Supreme Court has now jurisdiction regard to the cars and custody of infants; and, in the exercise t jurisdiction, ths rnles of Equity are to prevail. Under Judicature Act.

here an infant is in the custody of some person who is required iver him up, the application may be made for a habeas corpus ad iendum, and the Court on the return of ths writ will determine om the future custody of the infant should be committed, but plication may also be mads by originating notice entitled in the r of the infant: Rule 10; Re Smart, 12 P. abeas corpus should not issue where the person, in whose cus-hs child had been, has parted with the custody of the child t in the case of this being done to evade the process of the snd so is virtually a contempt): Reg. v. Barnardo, (Gossage's 24 Q. B. D. 283; 1892, A. C. 326, sub nom. Bornardo v. Ford. ling Reg. v. Barnardo, 23 Q. B. D. 305.

re is no power in the Court or a Judge to order the issue of a habeas corpus directed to a person who at the date of the order of the jurisdiction: Rex v. Pinckney, 1904, 2 K. B. 84.

Sec. 22.

Under R.S.O. c. 153.

The rights of the parents as to custody of their infant children have been modified by statute in Ontario. The Infants Act (R. S. O. c. 158), s. 2, contains the provisions now in force, as follows:

The Infants' Act (R.S.O. c. 153), s. 2.

2.—(1) The Supreme Court or Surrogate Court, upon application of the mother of an infant, who may apply without a next friend, may make such order as the Court sees fit regarding the custody of the infant, and the right of access thereto of either parent, having regard to the welfare of the infant, and to the conduct of the parents, and to the wishes as well of the mother as of the father, and may alter, vary or discharge the order on the application of either parent, or, after the death of either parent, of any guardian appointed under this Act, and in every case may make such order respecting the costs of the mother and the liability of the father for the same, or otherwise, as the Court may deem just.

Court may make order as to custody and right of access to infants.

Order as to maintenance.

(2) The Court may also make order for the maintenance of the infant by payment by the father, or out of any estate to which the infant is entitled, of such sum from time to time as, according to the pecuniary circumstances of the father, or the value of the estate, the Court deems reasonable.

Taken from Imp. Act, 49-50 Vict. c. 27, s. 5.

Where mother guilty of adultery.

(3) No order directing that the mother shall have the custody of or access to an infant shall be made in favour of a mother against whom adultery has been established by judgment in an action for criminal conversation, or for alimony.

See Imp. Act, 49 & 50 Vict. c. 27, s. 7.

Custody of infants.

The Act mentions no age within which the mother may be given the custody of her children. In case application is made under the Act, the matter is left entirely open to the Court to deal with the infants as may seem best for them: see Reg. v. Gyngall, 1893, 2 Q. B. 232, 239; Re Witten, 57 L. T. 336, W. N. 1887, 167; Skinner v. Skinner, 36 W. R. 912; Re Hart, 3 O. W. N. 1287; Re Hutchinson, 26 O. L. R. 113, 601; 28 O. L. R. 114. But the prima facie right of a father to the custody of his children will not be interfered with merely because his wife, without any good cause, refuses to live with him: Re Mathieu, 29 Ont. 546.

The Infants Act (R. S. O. c. 153), does not affect the right of a father to decide as to the religious education of his children: sec. 36, and see Re Scanlon, 40 Ch. D. 200; 36 W. R. 842. The Act empowers the father by deed or will to dispose of the custody and education of his infant children: see sec. 3; but any such agreement by deed is revocable by the father: Re Hutchinson, 26 O. L. R. 601; 28 O. L. R. 114; and see Re Culin, 5 O. W. N. 662.

Prima facie rights of the father.

A father has a legal right to control and direct the education and bringing up of his children until they attain the age of 21, even though they are wards of Court, and the Court will not interfere with him in the exercise of his parental authority, except (1) where by his gross moral turpitude he forfeits his rights, or (2) where he has by his conduct abdicated his paternal authority, or (3) where he seeks to remove his children, being wards of Court, out of the jurisdiction without the consent of the Court: Re Agar Ellis, 24 Ch. D. 317; Re Mathieu, 29 Ont. 546.

Before the jurisdiction of the Court to deprive a father of the guardianship of his children can be called into action, the Court in such a position, as to render it not merely better for the dren, but essential to their safety or welfare in some very seriand important respect, that the father's ordinary rights should nterfered with; see Re W——, 5 N. R. 363; Smart v. Smart, 1892,

The affidavits of the mother and others, in answer to a rule for beas corpus by a father to remove his child (a boy of nine years) n the custody of the child's maternal grandfather, disclosing s which shewed the applicant to be a person of intemperate and ous life, and in the habit of using gross and disgusting language, well as personal violence to his wife,—the Court declined to inter-
, the present custody of the child being unobjectionable: In re Isworthy, 2 Q. B. D. 75. So the Court, in the interest of the dren, declined to interfere where it was proved that there had n a gross breach of marital duty on the husband's part, that he her desired nor intended that his wife should live with him, and he did, that he declined to meet or speak to her except at meals, when the interests of the children required: Re Elderton, 25 Ch.

es to remove a child from its mother's custody, but allowed the st the wishes of its father; see Re Hutchinson, supra; Re Westa-

Sec. 22.

In Reg. v. Gyngall, 1893, 2 Q. B. 232, though the mother was the legal guardian of a child, and had not been guilty of any misconduct to disentitle her to its custody, the Court refused to give her the custody, being satisfied that that course was essential for the welfare of the child. The grounds generally upon which a parent's rights may be interfered with were discussed in that case.

Conduct of parents considered.

In exercising its jurisdiction the conduct of the mother is taken into consideration by the Court: Re Taylor, 11 Sim. 178; Re Bartlett, 2 Collyer, 661; Shillito v. Collett, 8 W. R. 683; Re Winscom, 2 H. & M. 541; Re Shaw, referred to in 11 Sim. 182-195; Re Holliday, 17 Jur. 56.

As to custody of infants where both parents have been guilty of adultery: see In re A. & B., 1897, 1 Ch. 786, and where the father alone was guilty: Re Young, 29 Ont. 665.

Removal of ward out of jurisdiction

Where the Court has made an order respecting the custody of an infant, and directed it to remain within the jurisdiction, it is a contempt of Court, punishable by attachment, to remove such infant out of the jurisdiction: Fovard v. Fovord, 75 L. T. 664.

The order may be made ex parte if the necessity of the case requires it: Re Taylor, 11 Sim. 178.

Motion as to custody.

The Court has jurisdiction to summarily order the personal attendance before it of any persons who are supposed to be in a position to give information as to the place of concealment of wards of Court: Rosenberg v. Lindo, 48 L. T. 478.

On a habeas corpus under The Ontario Habeas Corpus Act (R. S. O. c. 84), the Court may direct evidence to be taken viva voce to examine into the truth of the return: Re Smart, 12 P. R. 2.

Illegitimate child.

The desire of the mother of an illegitimate child is primarily to be considered, and unless she is shown to be unfit, she is primâ facie entitled to its custody as against the putative father: Re C., 25 O. L. R. 218.

As to the custody of illegitimate children: see Re Holshed, 5 P. R. 251; Re Brandon, 7 P. R. 347; Re Smith, 8 P. R. 23; Reg. v. Bernardo, Jones' Case, 1891, 1 Q. B. 194; 1891, A. C. 388; Reg. v. Armstrong, 1 P. R. 6; Rex v. Nash, 20 T. L. R. 583; Re Spinlove, 5 O. W. N. 832.

As to the support of illegitimate children: see R. S. O. c. 154.

Guardians.

Guardians.—The Infants Act (R. S. O. c. 153), s. 28, is as follows:—

When mother to be guardian alone or jointly with others.

28.—(1) On the death of the father of an infant, the mother, if surviving, shall be the guardian of the infant, either alone, when no guardian has been appointed by the father, or jointly with any guardian appointed by the father.

As to the right of a mother as guardian: see Re X., 1899, 1 Ch. 526; 80 L. T. 311.

When Court may appoint guardian.

(2) Where no guardian has been appointed by the father, or if the guardian appointed by the father is dead, or refuses to act, the Supreme Court or the Surrogate Court may from time to time appoint a guardian or guardians to act jointly with the mother.

When mother may appoint guardian.

(3) The mother of an infant may, by deed or will, appoint any person or persons to be guardian or guardians of the infant after the death of herself and the father of the infant, if the infant be then reason unfitted to be the sole guardian of his children, may con-the appointment of such guardian or guardians, who shall there-be empowered to act, or may make such other order in respect he guardianship as may be deemed just.

5) In the event of guardians being unable to agree among themes or with the father upon a question affecting the welfare of an nt, any of them, or the father, may apply to such Court for its ction, and the Court may make such order as may be deemed just:

her was adopted by the Court though the guardian was not ap-ted to act jointly with the father.

As to the father's power to appoint a testamentary guardian, and o the powers of guardians so appointed: see The Infants Act (R.

the father was indifferent and made opposition only for the sake of vexing the mother. It was also held that the father's living in adultery was not a relevant fact to the question of his right to control the religious education of his child.

A Protestant on his marriage with a Roman Catholic, agreed that their children should be brought up as Roman Catholics, but a son should when old enough be permitted to change his religion. A boy was born, baptized and brought up a Roman Catholic. The father died intestate, only expressing a wish that his son should go to an English Protestant School. It was held that having regard to the indication of intention on the father's part, and the present and future benefit of the son, his mother ought to be appointed his guardian, and he be brought up as a Roman Catholic: Re Clarke, 2 Ch. D. 817; 31 W. R. 37; 47 L. T. 84; and where there was no father, mother or guardian, and therefore no one entitled to the custody, or to say that the child was to be brought up in any particular religion, and it appearing to the Court to be best for the interest of the child that she should be brought up as a Protestant, it was so directed, notwithstanding that she had been baptized by a Roman Catholic priest: Re Nevin, 1891, 2 Ch. 299; 65 L. T. 35. An ante-nuptial agreement that the child should be brought up as a Roman Catholic was held not binding on the father, who was a Protestant: Ib.; and see Re McGrath, and other cases, supra.

Where a testator, a Protestant, appointed his sister to be guardian of his infant daughter, and four years after the sister became a Roman Catholic, it was held in these circumstances that it was for the benefit of the infant who had been brought up as a Protestant that the guardian should be removed: F. v. F., 1902, 1 Ch. 688.

Where both parents of an infant Jew aged 14 were dead, and he desired to be educated as a Christian, he was ordered to be so educated, notwithstanding the objection of his guardian; but a girl of eleven was considered to be too young to make a choice of religion: Re W. W. & M., 1907, 2 Ch. 557.

Where infants interested in real estate in England, whose father was dead, were living with their mother out of the jurisdiction, and she was one of their testamentary guardians, an order was made at the instance of their two other guardians declaring in what faith they should be educated: Re Montagu, 28 Ch. D. 82.

Rules of Equity to prevail.

Rules of Equity to Prevail.—This provision in s. 22 is to the same effect as Eng. J.A. 1873, s. 25 (11). In Re Terry & White, 32 Ch. D. 14, it was denied by Lord Esher, M.R., that any such difference between the Rules of Law and Equity existed; and see Pugh v. Heath, 7 App. Cas. 237; Kearsley v. Phillips, 10 Q. B. D. 41; Lowe v. Dixon, 16 Q. B. D. 455.

This section relates to matters of substantive law, not mere practice: Friendly v. Carter, 9 P. R. 41; Dalyrmple v. Leslie, 8 Q. B. D. 5; Lo Grange v. McAndrew, 4 Q. B. D. 210; Horrison v. Rutland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 142. Matters of practice are now governed by the Rules.

Examples.

The following decisions illustrate this section:—

The old learning on the subject of "conversion" at law is not imported into the Judicature Act: Stimson v. Block, 11 Ont. 96, 105.

Where the terms of a bill of sale are such as to bind after-acquired goods in Equity, the title of the claimant must now prevail as against execution creditor, under this section: per Lush, J., W. N. 1875, 3; per Archibald, J., W. N. 1876, 64. Sec. 22.

The rule of Equity now prevails that letters of administration, ea obtained, relate back to the death, and it is sufficient if a plain- suing as administrator qualifies before trial: Trier v. Robinson, 16 t. 433; Doyle v. Diamond Flint Glass Co., 8 O. L. R. 499; Dini v. iquier, 8 O. L. R. 712; Johnston v. Dominion of Canada G. & A. Co., O. L. R. 462.

Where assets have come into possession of the executor and ure erwards lost to the estate, the rule in all Courts now is, that the cutor cannot be charged without some wilful default: Job v. Job, h. D. 562; and see Barber v. Mackrell, 12 Ch. D. 534.

Since the Judicature Act there is only one Court, and the rules of uity prevail in it; therefore a tenant in possession holding under agreement for a lease (of which specific performance would be reed: Swain v. Ayres, 21 Q. B. D. at p. 293), has no longer two ates, one a legal tenancy, from year to year, and the other an uitable tenancy under the agreement. He holds as if a lease had n granted: Walsh v. Lonsdale, 21 Ch. D. 9; Lowther v. Heaver, 41 D. 264; Re Maughan, 14 Q. B. D. 956; Allhusen v. Brooking, 26 D. 559; Pugh v. Heath, 7 App. Cas. 237; Crump v. Temple, 7 T. L. R. ; Magee v. Gilmour, 17 Ont. App. 27; 18 S. C. R. 579; but this triae can only be applied in cases in the County Court in which the rt is competent to exercise equitable jurisdiction: see Foster v. ves, 1892, 2 Q. B. 255; 67 L. T. 537. The landlord has the same ht of distress as if a lease had been executed, and he cannot dis- in by virtue of a legal title if he cannot distrain under the agree- nt: Walsh v. Lonsdale, 21 Ch. D. 9; and see Lowther v. Heaver, 41 D. 248. So in actions to re-enter for breach of covenant in a lease Court will dispose of questions in their equitable rather than their al aspect in cases where under the former practice the Court of ancery would have relieved against a forfeiture: Buckley v. Beigle, at. 85.

But it would be a mistake to assume that in all cases an equitable ate is equivalent to a legal estate. The equity doctrine that "where equities are equal, the law must prevail," will still give a legal title ority over a purely equitable one. Legal and equitable estates.

Thus, where the solicitor of a lessee fraudulently procured from him memorandum of deposit of the lease as security for a loan by the citor, and upon the security of the lease and memorandum pro- ed a loan from an innocent lender, it was held in an action by the ee against the latter, for the delivery up of the lease, that this ion did not apply to enable the defendant to say that he was a chaser for value without notice, and retain the lease: James v. s, W. N. 1880, 170.

It has been held in England that where an executor or adminis- or, after the commencement of a creditor's action for adminis- ion, and before judgment, has voluntarily paid any creditor in full, rule in Equity and not at Law must prevail under this section, and will be held to have made a good payment, and will be allowed it his accounts, even though he may have had notice of the action ore payment: Re Radcliffe, European Soc. v. Radcliffe, 7 Ch. D. 733; art v. Coles, 24 Q. B. D. 364; Re Wells, 45 Ch. D. 569; but quære Equity rule as to payment of creditors by personal representatives.

Sec. 23.

whether in Ont. this was the rule in Equity: see The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 53.

Partnership cases.

The rule of Equity in the administration of partnership assets was applied in administering a fund in the sheriff's hands, and joint estate was applied to joint debts, and separate estate to separate debts, to the exclusion of any legal lien acquired by an execution creditor: see further, as to the applications of this rule: Re Ruby, 24 Ont. App. 509. Equitable rules are, however, only applied where they would have been applied formerly by a Court of Equity: e.g., the plea of purchase without notice had no effect on a case under the concurrent jurisdiction of Equity where a plaintiff was pursuing a legal title for legal relief: Monners v. Mew, 29 Ch. D. 725, 734.

See also Ryon v. Fish, 4 Ont. 335; Re Hodgson, Beckett v. Ramsdale, 55 L. J. Chy. 241, and Trower on the Prevalence of Equity under the Jud. Act.

Rule of law not abolished because Equity would not enforce it.

The rule of the Common Law in any particular matter is not necessarily superseded, because equity would not enforce by injunction the legal right: see Morris v. Cairncross, 14 O. L. R. 544. In that case the question how far a tenant for life is liable for permissive waste, was under discussion; and the Court held that the fact that equity would give no relief in the case of permissive waste by such tenants, had not the effect of abolishing the liability of such tenants at law.

Defence of purchaser for value.

The defence of "purchaser for value without notice" may be relied on by the transferee of such a purchaser, although the transferee may himself have had notice: Lowther v. Carlton, 2 Atk. 242; but this rule cannot be invoked by a trustee who has committed a breach of trust; nor will it enable a person who has committed a fraud to shield himself from the claim of the person he has defrauded: see Barrow's Case, 14 Ch. D. 432; 42 L. T. 891; Gordon v. Holland, 108 L. T. 385.

Sections 16 to 22 to apply to all Courts.

23. The provisions of sections 16 to 22 shall be in force and have effect in all courts so far as the matters to which they relate are cognizable by such courts. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 23.

Taken from Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 91.

By this section the Rules of Law, which are enacted by section 16, apply in all Courts: see Building and Loan, etc. v. Heimrod, 19 C. L. J. 256, and Pryor v. City Offices, 10 Q. B. D. 504; Poyser v. Minors, 7 Q. B. D. 329.

APPEALS.

The Appellate Division.

Appellate Division.

By the Judicature Act, as originally framed, although the Court was styled "The Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario," it was constituted of two permanent divisions, viz., "The High Court of Justice" and "The Court of Appeal," in whose names the proceedings in the respective Divisions were carried on. The High Court of Justice under this arrangement was, in effect, the Court of first instance, and the Court of Appeal was, with some exceptions, a purely appellate ounal. Under the former constitution of the Court, an appeal lay Appellate Jurisdiction.

m a Judge of the High Court to a Divisional Court composed of ee Judges of the High Court, and in certain cases, an appeal lay m the Divisional Court of the High Court to the Court of Appeal.
The Law Reform Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 28), which took effect on 1st January, 1913, a change was effected, and the Supreme Court Judicature was reconstituted. Its title was changed to "The Sume Court of Ontario," which was constituted of two Divisions, The h Court Division and The Appellate Division. The High Court ision is in effect still the Court of first instance, but it is without appellate jurisdiction except in the case of appeals from the Local ges, and officers of the Court, and under certain Dominion Statutes:
, see post, p. 110. Both the High Court Division and the Appellate ision are now mere parts of the same Court, namely, "The Supreme rt of Ontario," in whose name both branches of the Court exercise ir respective jurisdiction: see sec. 12, supra.

The act result of the change thus effected was to abolish the inter-diate appeal which formerly existed and to give litigants but one eal from the decisions of Judges of the High Court Division to a unal constituted somewhat similarly to the former Court of Apl; and at the same time to do away with the semblance of there ng two Courts.

The Court of Appeal and High Court of Justice formerly constituted effect separate and distinct Courts; and Judges were appointed to Judges either of the High Court of Justice, or of the Court of Appeal.

The former Court of Appeal was normally composed of Judges ointed to the Court of Appeal, but where for any reason a Judge of Court of Appeal was prevented from sitting, one of the Judges of High Court of Justice was accustomed to supply the place of the ent Judge. How far this was constitutional (having regard to the N. A. Act, s. 96), may perhaps be open to question. Under the ent arrangement the Appellate Division is no longer composed mally of the Judges appointed to the Court of Appeal; the first isional Court is so composed, but the second and any other Divial Court, which may be required, is to be composed of Judges of High Court Division: see sec. 39, infra. The Appellate Division, as constituted is, therefore composed (a) of Judges appointed to the rt of Appeal: see sec. 39 (1), and (b) of Judges to be selected from e appointed to the High Court Division: see sec. 39 (2) (3).

JURISDICTION OF THE APPELLATE DIVISION.

The jurisdiction of the former Court of Appeal, which is now vested Jurisdiction of Appellate Division.
he Supreme Court, was defined by the Judicature Act (R. S. O.
, c. 51)—section 49 was as follows:—

"49. The Court of Appeal shall continue to be a Superior Court of Jurisdiction of Court of Appeal.
ord with appellate jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases and ters. 4 Edw. VII. c. 11, s. 2."

Criminal Jurisdiction of the Appellate Division.—This Act Criminal jurisdiction of Appellate Division. not enlarge the civil jurisdiction of the Appellate Division, and ourss cannot give it any criminal jurisdiction which it does not rwise possess: see Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Cas. per Lord Bramwell.
27. The criminal jurisdiction of the Appellate Division now ex-s only to those cases in which it is conferred by Dominion legisla-
, and those in which an appeal is given by statute of the Province

in respect of breaches of laws within the power of the Province to enact: see Reg. v. Ell, 13 Ont. App. 526; The Summary Convictions Act (R. S. O. c. 90); Reg. v. Cushing, 26 Ont. App. 248; and also from orders made by the High Court Division refusing a habeas corpus, or refusing to discharge a prisoner in criminal proceedings upon a return to a habeas corpus; see 29 & 30 Vict. c. 45, s. 6 (which is to be found at p. 446 in the volume of the Statutes of Canada and the Provinces, not repealed, and yet not included in R. S. C. 1906); Reg. v. Browne, 6 Ont. App. 386; Reg. v. Boucher, 4 Ont. App. 191. In these cases it was held that there was no appeal under the latter statute to the Court of Appeal from a single Judge; but see contra, Reg. v. St. Clair, 27 Ont. App. 308, where The Ontario Habeas Corpus Act (R. S. O. c. 84), was assumed to be applicable, but the Appellate Division can now undoubtedly entertain such appeals. Where a habeas corpus is refused an appeal lies to the Appellate Division and its judgment is final: see Taylor v. Scott, 30 Ont. 475. No appeal to the Appellate Division lies from an order of the High Court Division discharging a prisoner on the return of a habeas corpus in a civil, and a fortiori in a criminal proceeding: see Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Cas. 506 (and see per Lord Halsbury, L.C., pp. 514 and 522).

The "Court of Appeal" referred to in Cr. Code, s. 1013, was "the Court of Appeal for Ontario": see Cr. Code, s. 2 (7); and that Court is now the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court: see supra s. 12 note.

Appeals in criminal cases.

In the case of convictions under Dominion legislation there would seem to be no appeal to the Court of Appeal unless one is given by Dominion legislation.

For instances in which the former Court of Appeal exercised appellate jurisdiction in criminal cases arising from a breach of Provincial Statutes: see Reg. v. Potter, 20 Ont. App. 516; Reg. v. Sloan, 18 Ont. App. 482; Reg. v. Hozen, 20 Ont. App. 633; Reg. v. Elborne, 19 Ont. App. 439; Reg. v. Hodge, 7 Ont. App. 246, (where the cases arose under The Liquor License Act, R. S. O. c. 215, s. 3), and Reg. v. Edwards, 19 Ont. App. 706; Reg. v. Wason, 17 Ont. App. 221 (under R. S. O. c. 90, see s. 11). As to the legislative authority of a Provincial Legislature in regard to offences against Provincial Acts: see Atty.-Gen. for Ontario v. Hamilton Street Railway Co., 1903, A. C. 524.

In civil and criminal cases, the jurisdiction of the Appellate Division is appellate only: see Brown v. Collins, W. N. 1883, 155.

Civil jurisdiction of Appellate Division.

Civil Jurisdiction of the Appellate Division.—The jurisdiction of the Appellate Division in civil cases is partly original and partly appellate. It is entirely of statutory origin, and is regulated by sections 51-56 of The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), and the Acts referred to in those sections: see infra.

Contested Provincial Elections.

It has original jurisdiction in Provincial election cases (s. 12); and see The Controverted Elections Act (R. S. O. c. 10), and in cases relating to constitutional or provincial questions referred under The Constitutional Questions Act (R. S. O. c. 85).

Where a habeas corpus is granted in a civil proceeding, e.g., for obtaining the custody of a child, an appeal lies to the Appellate Division from an order of attachment for disobedience to the writ: R. S. O. 1897, c. 51, s. 74, infra; see Reg. v. Barnardo, 23 Q. B. D. 305; an appeal to the Appellate Division also lies from the order of a single Judge remanding a person to custody upon a return to a habeas corpus issued der R. S. O. c. 84: see The Ontario Habeas Corpus Act (R. S. O. c.), s. 8; Re Harper, 23 Ont. 63, and section 26 (2), clause (i) infra.

In the Appellate Division is now vested the jurisdiction of the mer Court of Appeal: sec. 12, supra.

By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), it was enacted:

May quash proceedings. When.

"51. The Court of Appeal shall have power to quash proceedings cases brought before it, in which appeal does not lie, or where such oceedings are taken against good faith. 58 V. c. 12, s. 46."

Where a party had lodged an appeal contrary to an undertaking he d given not to appeal, it was held that the Master in Chambers d jurisdiction to enforce the undertaking by setting aside the pro- dings in appeal: Dominion v. Haldane, 14 P. R. 106.

The proper mode of invoking the power of the Court is to move quash the appeal at the earliest moment after the appeal is lodged on the motion coming in the Court may dispose of it or direct it to and for argument along with the appeal: Federal Life Assurance v. Siddall, 22 O. L. R. 96.

By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), it was enacted: -

To make whatever order may be required

"52. The Court of Appeal shall have power to dismiss an appeal, give any judgment and make any decree or order which ought to ve been made, and to direct the issue of any process, or the taking any proceedings in the Court below, or to award restitution and yment of costs, or to make such further or other order as the case y require. 58 V. c. 12, s. 47": and see sec. 27 post.

The Court may make such order as is justified by the law as then sting, though the effect be to vary a decision of the Court below, ich was in accordance with the then existing law: Quilter v. pleson, 47 L. T. 561; Re Gillespie and Toronto, 19 Ont. App. 713.

Review of questions of fact.

While there is no rule of law or procedure which prevents the preme Court of Canada or any intermediate Court of Appeal from ersing the decision at the trial on the facts: Dempster v. Lewis, 3; 33 S. C. R. 292; nevertheless the Supreme Court of Canada in discretion has refused to reconsider concurrent findings of the rts below on the facts: see Matthews v. Bouchard, 28 S. C. R. 580; T. Ry. Co. v. Rainville, 29 S. C. R. 201; and see Allen v. Quebec rehouse Co., 12 App. Cas. 101; 56 L. T. 30; Whitney v. Joyce, 95 T. 74; and the rule generally followed by Appellate Courts is not to lew the findings of the Judge of first instance, where his decision ends upon the balance of testimony: Hale v. Kennedy, 8 Ont. App. ; Cook v. Patterson, 10 Ont. App. 645; Sawyer v. Hodgson, 18 O. L. 323.

The appellate Court, however, is not deterred from reversing such udgment merely by the consideration that the Judge of first in- nce had the advantage of seeing the demeanour of the witnesses their manner of giving their evidence, unless the decision of the e rests upon the credibility of the witnesses, and the Judge in ermining the credit to be given to them proceeded upon their eanour: see Day v. Brown, 18 Gr. 681; Morrison v. Robinson, 19 480; Armstrong v. Gage, 23 Gr. 1; Ryan v. Ryan, 5 S. C. R. 406; Picton, 4 S. C. R. 648; Little v. Brunker, 28 Gr. 191; The Glan- anta, 1 P. D. 283; Bigsby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24; Symington v. nington, L. R. 2 Sc. App. 424; Gray v. Turnbull, ib. 53; Redgrave Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 22; Trumpour v. Saylor, 1 Ont. App. 104; Taylor Taylor, ib. 264; Re Randolph, ib. 331; The Milanese, 43 L. T. 107;

Appellate jurisdiction.

Bickford v. Hawkins, 19 S. C. R. 362; Warner v. Murray, 16 S. C. R. 720; N. British, etc., Co. v. Tourville, 25 S. C. R. 177; Coghlan v. Cumberland, 1898, 1 Ch. 704; 78 L. T. 540; Lefeunteum v. Beaudoin, 28 S. C. R. 89; Hayes v. Doy, 41 S. C. R. 134; Drake v. Caldwell, 2 O. W. N. 282; Weller v. McDonald McMillon Co., 43 S. C. R. 85.

For rules for the ascertainment of facts from the evidence of two witnesses of equsi credibility who contradict one another: see H. W. Kostor & Son, Etc. v. Coleman, 11 O. L. R. 262.

Where the appellate Court has the same materials before it as the Court whose decision it is reviewing, the above considerations do not apply: Redgrove v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 23; e.g., where evidence was taken by commission: Molzord v. Hart, 27 S. C. R. 510; and the Court will exercise its judgment on the evidence just as it would on a question of law. It will reverse the judgment if satisfied that it is wrong: Berdon v. Greenwood, 20 Ch. D. 769 n.; Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex. D. 122; Prentice v. Consolidated Bank, 13 Ont. App. 69; Bateman v. Middlesex, 27 O. L. R. 122; otherwise it will affirm it: Symington v. Symington, supra, p. 105; Hole v. Kennedy, 8 Ont. App. 157. See also Cord v. Cooley, 4 C. L. T. 248; Berthier Election Case, 9 S. C. R. 102; Grascit v. Carter, 10 S. C. R. 105; Re Moulton, Grahame v. Moulton, 94 L. T. 454; sed vide per Loreburn, L.C., Lodge Holes C. Co. v. Wednesbury, 1908, A. C., at p. 326.

Where the case does not so turn upon the credibility of the witnesses, but upon the proper inference to be drawn from all the evidence in the case, it is the duty of the Court to review the conclusion arrived at by the Court below upon the questions of fact: Russell v. Lefrancois, 8 S. C. R. 335. Cameron v. Bickford, 11 Ont. App. 52. Thus, where, without differing from the Judge as to the credibility of the witnesses, the appellate Court came to a different conclusion upon the evidence, documentary and written, the judgment was reversed: Cameron v. Bickford, 11 Ont. App. 52. So the appellate Court may review inferences drawn by the Judge below from undisupted facts: Fleuty v. Orr, 13 O. L. R. 59.

Read v. Anderson, 13 Q. B. D. 781, where Brett, M.R., said that the Court of Appeal was not bound by the findings of fact by a Judge who tried the case without a jury, is not inconsistent with the above cases; see also Sugden v. St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 209.

In appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, where there have been concurrent findings of fact by the Courts below, the question in appeal in the P. C. is not what conclusion the P. C. would have arrived at if the matter had come for the first time before them, but whether it has been established that the Courts below were clearly wrong: Allen v. Quebec Warehouse Co., 12 App. Cas. 111.

But where a case has been tried by a jury, if there is any evidence to support their finding on a material question of fact, an appellate Court cannot set aside such finding and enter judgment contrary thereto: Tinsley v. Toronto Ry., 17 O. L. R. 74; nor even grant a new trial: see Toronto Ry. v. King, 1908, A. C. 260.

A Court of Appeal does not consider a ground not previously relied on unless it is satisfied that it has all the evidence bearing upon it that could have been produced at the trial, and that the party against whom it is urged could not have satisfactorily explained it under mination: The Steamship "Tordenskjold," 41 S. C. R. 154. See also dlaw v. Crow's Nest S. Ry. Co., 42 S. C. R. 355; White v. Victoria nber Co., 1910, A. C 606; 103 L. T. 323.

Question of procedure.

The Supreme Court of Canada refused to interfere with a decision the Court of Appeal in a matter of procedure, viz., whether a ver- of a jury was a general or a special verdict: Toronto Railway v. Balfour, 32 S. C. R. 239.

Damages awarded by Judge.

The amount of damages awarded by the Judge at the trial will not interfered with by an appellate Court unless clearly unsupported evidence and unreasonable, or there is some error of fact, or law, partiality, on the part of the Judge: Cossette v. Dun, 18 S. C. R. ; Montreal Gas Co. v. St. Laurent, 26 S. C. R. 176; in McGarr Prescott, 4 O. L. R. 280, the damages were reduced from $1,500 900; but it would seem that this cannot be done except by consent: tt v. Watt, 1905, A. C. 115; 92 L. T. 480.

The Court has power under this section, and sec. 27 (3) to increase nages awarded to a respondent without a cross appeal by him: onto Junction v. Christie, 25 S. C. R. 551.

Refund of moneys or costs.

Where moneys and costs are ordered to be refunded by an appellate rt, interest thereon is payable at the rate of 5 per cent. but the lity for interest may be avoided by paying the fund in dispute Court: Adams v. Cox, 10 O. L. R. 96.

By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), s. 53, it was provided ollows:

Powers of Court of Appeal.

"53. The powers of the Court of Appeal may be exercised, notstanding that the appeal is brought against part only of the judgt of the Court below; and may be exsrcised in favour of all or any he respondents or parties, although such respondents or parties not have appealed from, or complained of the judgment. 58 V. 2, s. 48;" and see sec. 27 (3), post.

Appeal by some of parties.

One of two or more plaintiffs (Beckett v. Attwood, 18 Ch. D. 54), or nter-claiming defendants (Hester v. Hester, 71 L. T. Jour. 153), re the claim or counter-claim respectively is dismissed, may eal, where the others refuse to join, they being made respondents.

When non-appealing party entitled to relief.

As to how far a party not appealing can obtain relief on an appeal snother party: see Black v. Black, 9 Gr. 413; 2 E. & A. 419; pson v. McArthur, 8 Gr. 84; Topping v. Joseph, 1 E. & A. 305, Kent v. Freehold, etc., L. R. 3 Chy. 493; Vaughan v. Halliday, 9 Chy. 561; Gilbert v. Jarvis, 16 Gr. 275, 279; Saffron Walden ft Co. v. Rayner, 14 Ch. D. 406, 419; Dilke v. Douglas, 5 Ont. 63 (as to which see 1 O. L. R. p. 294); Peterkin v. McFarlane, nt. App. 254; Re Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252; Esdaile v. Payne, 59 T. 804; 40 Ch. D. 520; Re Rawlins, 45 Ch. D. 299; Toronto ction v. Christie, 25 S. C. R. 551; Harkin v. Rabidon, 7 Gr. 243; ter v. Hunter, 24 W. R. 527; Chaltoner v. Lobo, 1 O. L. R. 292; -Gen. v. Simpson, 1901, 2 Ch. 671; 85 L. T. 325.

Where the effect of a judgment on appeal of one defendant is to blish the validity of a transaction between two defendants, the saction may be declared valid in respect to the other defendant has not appealed: Lindsay v. Imp. Steel & Wire Co., 21 O. L. 75.

Appeal by person not a party.

Leave to appeal may be given to a person interested, but not a party: Re Markham, 16 Ch. D. 1; Re Securities, etc., Co., 1894, 2 Ch. 410; but only where his interest is such that he might have been made a party by service: Crawcour v. Salter, 30 W. R. 329; see also Langtry v. Dumoulin, 11 Ont. App. 544; Wood v. Madras, 23 Ch. D. 248; Watson v. Cave, 17 Ch. D. 19; Re Claggett, 30 W. R. 374; Ex p. Tupper, 12 Ch. D. 308; Re Youngs, Doggett v. Revett, 33 W. R. 880; 53 L. T. 682; but where a third party obtains leave to appeal in the name of a defendant, it is not competent for him to bring the appeal in his own name: Descronto Iron Co. v. Rathbun Co., 11 O. L. R. 433.

By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51), s. 55, it was provided as follows:—

On an appeal Court of Appeal to have all powers of High Court.

"55. For all the purposes of and incidental to the hearing and determination of any such appeal, and the amendment, execution, and enforcement of any judgment or order made on such appeal, and for the purpose of every other authority given to the Court of Appeal by this Act, the said Court of Appeal shall have all the power, authority and jurisdiction by this Act vested in the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 50."

This corresponds substantially with the second part of the English J. A., 1873, section 19.

This section only conferred additional powers on the Court of Appeal without interfering with the practice under the Rules, so that execution for costs, etc., awarded by the Appellate Division is to be issued out of the Court appealed from: Freed v. Orr, 2 C. L. T. 90; see Lowson v. Canada Farmers' Ins. Co., 8 Ont. App. 613; and Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Cas. 529.

By The Judicature Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 51) it was provided as follows:—

Jurisdiction subject to Rules, etc.

"56. The jurisdiction and power of the Court of Appeal, in respect of the said matters and all others, shall be and are subject to the provisions of this Act, and to such Rules and Orders of Court for regulating the terms and conditions on which such appeals shall be allowed as are now in force or as may be made pursuant to this Act. 58 V. c. 12, s. 51."

See Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 19, first part.

Appeal a statutory right.

A right of appeal must be given by express enactment. It does not exist in the nature of things: Sandback v. N. Staffordshire Ry., 3 Q. B. D. 4.

The jurisdiction of the Appellate Division is strictly limited by the provisions of this Act and Rules. It has, therefore, no power to hear an appeal from a Referee or Master: Clarke v. Jamieson, 9 C. L. T. 97; or from the Master in Chambers: Ball v. Cathcart, 16 Ont. 525; as these are provided for by Rules 502-506; and it has no jurisdiction to order a mandamus to a magistrate to entertain an information: Rex v. Meehan, 5 Can. Cr. C. 307; 3 O. L. R. 361; nor has it any original jurisdiction to quash a municipal by-law: see formerly Landry v. Ottawa, 11 P. R. 442.

The Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to review its own judgments or orders in an action brought for that purpose, on the ground of error apparent on their face. The remedy is now by appeal: Bright v. Sellar, 1904, 1 K. B. 6.

An appeal will not lie from a judgment which is not impeached, rely for the determination of an abstract point of law upon which opinion is expressed by the Court below, but which is not neces- y for the decision of the question between the parties: Rex v. Louie, 4, A. C. 412. Appellate jurisdiction.

it would seem that an appeal does not lie from an order where it presses the opinion of the Court, not being a judicial decision, but rely consultative: Re Arbitration, Knight & Tabernacle, B. S., 41 W. 35; 67 L. T. 403; British Westinghouse Co. v. Underground Electric (1912), 2 K. B. 128; or from a decision of the High Court Division a question submitted to it under a special enactment enabling that rse to be taken: Ex p. County Council of Kent, etc., 39 W. R. 465; where an arbitrator followed the consultative opinion of the Court his award subsequently made, and a Divisional Court refused to his award aside, it was nevertheless held that an appeal lay from order of the Divisional Court, and that it was open to the appellant contend that the consultative opinion which the Divisional Court considered binding on it was erroneous: British Westinghouse Co. Underground Electric Ry., supra. Appeals from orders not judicial but consultative.

In giving an opinion on a special case, the jurisdiction exercised by Court is judicial, not consultative, so that its decision is a "judg- nt or order": Overseers of Walsall v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 4 App. s. 30. Judgment on special case is judicial.

In Harmon v. Park, 29 W. R. 750; 17 C. L. J. 389, it was held t an appeal would lie to the Court of Appeal from a Divisional rt on a question as to whether a petition against a municipal ction was properly instituted, as being an order of the High Court Justice, though the Act, under which the petition was presented, vided that a decision upon the hearing of the petition should not sppesiable. See also Corporation of Peterboro' v. Wilsthorpe, 12 B. D. 1.

Appeals from a Single Judge.—The appellate forum for all ap- ls from a single Judge of the High Court Division is now the pellate Division. Appeals from Judge.

The decision upon the trial of an interpleader issue is appealable the same way as any other decision given at a trial in Court: see . 26 (1) a, supra, and Graham v. Temperance, etc., 17 P. R. 271. Interpleader issue.

Ex parte Orders.—Orders made ex parte need not be appealed m, but any party affected thereby may move to reopen the matter, to set aside the order: see Rule 217. Ex parte orders reopen.

Appeal from Orders Obtained by Default.—An order obtsined default in appearing to oppose it, may also be moved against: Rule ': see Re Morris, Ex p. Strecter, 19 Ch. D. 216; Walker v. Budden, Q. B. D. 267; Allum v. Dickenson, 30 W. R. 930. Orders obtained by default.

Habeas Corpus.—A decision of a Judge in Chambers on a habeas rpus application, under The Ontario Habeas Corpus Act (R. S. O. c.), s. 2, is appealable to the Appellate Division, as provided by sec. f thst Act: Re Harper, 23 Ont. 63. Habeas corpus.

Dominion Railway Act.—Under The Railway Act (R. S. C. c. 37), 209, an appeal lies by either party from an award of compensation Under Railway Act exceeding $600, to the Appellate Division: Re Birely and T. H. & B. Ry Co., 25 Ont. App. 88.

An appeal from an award under The Railway Act (R. S. C. c. 37, s 209, may be either to a Judge in Court: Re Potter & Central Counties Ry., 16 P. R. 16; Re Montreal & Ottawa Ry. Co. and Ogilvie, 18 P. R 120; or to a Divisional Court: James Bay Ry. Co. v. Armstrong, 38 S. C R. 511; 1909. A. C. 624, and in either case the decision is final: Ib.

Appeals by persons in contempt.

Appeal by a Party in Contempt—The rule is not universal that a party in contempt can take no steps in the action; he is entitled to take the necessary steps to defend himself: Small v. American Federation of Musicians, 5 O. L. R. 456, and may proceed with the action in the ordinary way; sed vide, 3 Gilbert's Chy. Pr. 102.

The contempt is only a bar to his asking the Court for an indulgence: Ferguson v. Elgin, 15 P. R. 399. He may of course appeal from the order putting him in contempt: McGregor v. McDonald, 7 C. L. T. 20; and also from the order which he has disobeyed: Ferguson v. Elgin, supra; McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459; Copeland-Chatterson Co. v. Business Systems, 14 O. L. R. 337.

Criminal or quasi criminal proceedings.

Appeals in Criminal or Quasi Criminal Proceedings. — The express provisions of sec. 47 of the Eng. Jud. Act of 1873, prevent an appeal "in any criminal cause or matter," and so prevent an appeal from an order punishing a stranger to an action for contempt of Court, where the contempt is of a criminal character, though not perhaps indictable, e.g., for publishing statements calculated to prejudice the fair trial of an action, such an order being n criminal cause or matter: O'Shea v. O'Shea, 15 P. D. 59; 62 L. T. 713; Ellis v. The Queen, 22 S. C. R. 7; but see Scott v. Scott, 1913, A. C. 417; 109 L. T. 1, where it was held that proceedings for contempt of Court in a civil case are not "criminal proceedings." In Ontario it seems doubtful whether an appeal lies in such a case: see Jud. Act., sec. 151, infra, though an appeal was entertained in Reg. ex rel. Frelitz v. Howland, 14 Ont. App. 184; 16 S. C. R. 197, where no objection to the jurisdiction appears to have been raised (see the remarks in Ellis v The Queen, 22 S. C. R. at p. 13); but an order adjudging n party to be in contempt for not obeying an order of the Court is an order in a civil proceeding, and an appeal from it lies in England: Reg. v. Barnardo, 23 Q. B. D. 305; Re Preston, 31 Q. B. D. 545; Re Dudley, 12 Q. B. D. 44; Re Hardwick, 12 Q. B. D. 148; Re Johnson, 20 Q. B. D. 68; Re Wray, 36 Ch. D. 138; Eccles v. Louisville & Nashville Ry. Co., 1912, 1 K. B. 135, and probably in Ontario an appeal will lie to the Appellate Division, as in the case of any other judgment or order in a civil proceeding.

Contempt.

As to appealing from a refusal to commit for contempt: see Jarmain v. Chatterton, 20 Ch. D. 493; Ashworth v. Outram, 5 Ch. D. 943; Debenham v. Wardroper, 48 L. T. 235; Krehl v. Burrell, W. N. 1883, 177.

As to appeals under the Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146): see ss. 1013 et seq. of that Act.

Appeals Provided for by other Statutes, Dominion and Provincial.—The appellate Division has in addition to its jurisdiction t entertain appeals in actions, a jurisdiction to entertain appeals in other matters: e.g., in proceedings under The Landlord & Tenant Act (R S O. c. 155), Part III against overholding tenants: Re Scottish Ont and n, Land Co., 21 Ont. 676; or upon a special case stated by arbitra- s under The Arbitration Act (R. S. O. c. 65), s. 17: Re Geddes & chrane, 2 O. L. R. 145; and see also sec. 26 (2) post.

Appeals under Dower Act.

The Appellate Division has no jurisdiction in appeal from an order der The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70), s. 14, dispensing with a wife's ncurrence in a bar of her dower: Re Rush, 28 C. L. J. 127. The Judge der that provision acts not as a Judge in Chambers, but as a persona signata for the purposes of the Act: Re McMillan & The Guelph nction Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 294. As to appeals in such cases: see The dges' Orders Enforcement Act (R. S. O. c. 79), s. 4.

When Judge acts as persona designata.

Appeals under Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144).

The Appellate Division has jurisdiction to entertain appeals from ders of a Judge in Chambers made under the Dominion Winding-up t (R. S. C. c. 144), s. 102, as amended by 7-8 Edw. VII., c. 10, s. 2: Sarnia Oil Co., 15 P. R. 182; Re Central Bank (Divisional Court, 16 ne, 1898).

APPEALS.

Certain orders not subject to appeal.

24. No order of the High Court Division or of a Judge ereof made with the consent of parties shall be subject appeal, and no order of the High Court Division or of Judge thereof as to costs only which by law are left to e discretion of the Court shall be subject to appeal [on e ground that the discretion was wrongly exercised, or at it was exercised under a misapprehension as to the cts or the law or on any other ground], except by leave the Court or Judge making the order. 3-4 Geo. V. 19, s. 24.

Taken from Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 49, which, however, had not the rds in brackets, and, as did R. S. O. 1897, c. 51, s. 72, allowed an peal from a consent order by leave. It is not now clear whether a nsent order is now appealable with leave: see infra; but the limitaon of appeals as to costs is made clearer by the words in brackets.

Appeals from discretionary orders.

Discretionary Orders.—Where a judgment or order is appealable, remains appealable though made in the exercise of judicial discreon. In such case, however, the Court does not in general interfere hough it may disapprove), unless in a strong case, or when the disetion was exercised on a wrong principle: Golding v. Wharton, 1 Q. D. 374; Watson v. Rodwell, 3 Ch. D. 380; Huggons v. Tweed, 10 Ch. 359, cases respecting the striking out of pleadings: Byrd v. Nunn, Ch. D. 286, 287; Laird v. Briggs, 16 Ch. D. 663 (allowance of amendents): Swindell v. Birmingham Syndicate, 3 Ch. D. 127; Ormerod v. dmorden, 8 Q. B. D. 664 (the mode of trial): Papayanni v. Coutpas, N. 1880, 109; Wallingford v. Mutual Soc., 5 App. Cas. 685, 709 llowing a defendant to defend on a motion under former C. R. 603). e also Jarmain v. Chatterson, 20 Ch. D. 493.

No exception is made of cases involving a question of law or prin ple: per Lindley, M.R., in Adlington v. Conynham, 1898, 2 Q. B 2; but see McCausland v. Quebec Fire Insurance Company, 25 Ont. ; Bew v. Bew, 1899, 2 Ch. 467; 81 L. T. 284; and Civil Service

Sec. 24.

Co-operative Soc. v Gen. Steam Navigation Co., 1903, 2 K. B. 756; see also notes to sec. 70 post.

Consent orders, what are not.

A judgment in which some of the terms have been inserted at the suggestion of a party struggling for the best possible terms, in a decision adverse to him, cannot be regarded as a consent judgment. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 16 Ont. 92; so also the mere initialing of the minutes of an order, does not make the order a consent order; it merely amounts to an admission that the minutes correctly embody the order pronounced: McMaster v. Rodford, 16 P. R. 20; and where a party accepts an alternative order offered by the Court, his acceptance does not make the order a consent order: Aldam v. Brown, 39 L. T. Jour. 116; 34 Sol. Jour. 525; and a consent to a Judge or officer entertaining jurisdiction does not make the order made on the application a consent order: Davis v. Winn, 22 O. L. R. 111.

Where a party is offered an option as to the judgment to be pronounced, his acceptance of one of the alternatives offered does not make the judgment a consent judgment within this section: Sun Life v. Elliott, 31 S. C. R. 91.

There can be no appeal from an order appearing on its face to be made by consent unless by leave of the Court or Judge making it, even though the appeal is on the ground that no such consent was given: Re Justin, 18 P. R. 125.

A consent order made by the Master in Chambers, or officer having the like jurisdiction, would seem to be within this section: see Re Solicitor, 18 C. L. T. 224, 261.

Where an undertaking equivalent to an injunction asked by plaintiff was given, and the case was tried on the question of costs only, it was held that there was no appeal, both because the judgment was as to costs within this section, and, except so far as the costs were concerned, the judgment was by consent: Hadida v. Fordham, 10 T. L. R. 139.

An interpleader matter tried summarily by consent by a Judge in Chambers under R. S. O. 1877, c. 54, s. 5, was formerly within this section: Edd v. Winsor, W. N. 1878, 88; Turner v. Bridgett, 9 Q. B. D. 55; Lyon v. Morris, 19 Q. B. D. 139; but now Rule 632, which has superseded the above sec. 5, provides for an appeal, and see sec. 26 (1) (a) infra.

Not only is there no appeal from a consent judgment (except, perhaps, by leave), but there is no jurisdiction in the Judge who pronounced it to re-open the matter and re-hear it on the ground of mistake, and it can only be set aside by bringing a fresh action: Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1896, 1 Ch. 673; 74 L. T. 193; and see Wilding v. Sanderson, 1897, 2 Ch. 534; 77 L. T. 57. See also notes to Rule 521.

Appeals as to costs.

Appeals as to Costs.—Where a defendant is ordered to pay costs of an action, but no further relief is given, an appeal from the judgment is not an appeal as to costs within the section: Fleming v. Toronto, 19 Ont. App. 318.

Where pending an appeal from an order refusing to quash a by-law, the by-law was repealed, the Supreme Court refused to entertain the appeal as it involved costs only: Moir v. Huntington, 19 S. C. R. 363.

'osts awarded to a third party are in the discretion of the Court, within this section: Russell v. Eddy, 5 O. L. R. 379. Sec. 24.

Where a Judge decided that a defendnnt had committed n brench n injunction, and no committal heing pressed for on the other side, oly ordered the defendant to pay the costs, it was heid that the r was not one as to costs only in the discretion of the Court. in the menning of this section, and that an appenl lay: Witt v. oran, 2 Ch. D. 69; followed in Stevens v. Metropolitan Ry., 29 D. 60; and see Scott v. Scott, 1913, A. C. 417; 109 L. T. 1. See Miller v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 499; Re Evans, 68 L. T. 271; Ellam artyn, 79 L. T. 510. On the other hand, where a Judge, being d to commit for contempt, made an order, within his power but different kind, viz.: to deliver a deed within a certain time, and osed of the costs: Krehl v. Burrell, W. N. 1883, 177, and in another ance refused to commit, and made the costs, costs in the cause: worth v. Outram, 5 Ch. D. 943, it was held that no appeal lay. See Jormoin v. Chatterson, 20 Ch. D. 493; Re Wray, 36 Ch. D. 138. Costs on motion to commit.

y section 74 (2), the right which certain classes of persons, such as tees, mortgagees, etc., had in Equity to costs out of a particular e or fund, is preserved. Such costs are not in the discretion e Court, and are therefore a proper subject of appeal, if no other iction on the right of appeal lies. See notes to Rule 632. Trustees' and executors' costs here a settlement is set aside in an action by the settlor, the ee has no claim to his costs as a matter of right, there being no ract in existence, and therefore where costs were given against it was held that, under this section, no appeal lay: Dutton v. npson, 23 Ch. D. 278; sed vide, Ideal Bedding Co. v. Holland, 1907, . 157; 96 L. T. 774.

o an order directing an execution to pay costs of an administration n, on the ground that he had caused the litigation by refusal to sh accounts, is appealable, as he is entitled to costs unless the is dispisced by misconduct, and whether there was misconduct e subject of appeal: Re Pugh, 57 L. T. 858.

n appeal lies from an order depriving a trustee of costs on the nd that he severed from his co-trustee in an action to administer state: Re Isaac, 1897, 1 Ch. 251.

here is a distinction between "costs" and "charges and expenses." re a trustee defended an action unreasonably (though by the e of counsel), and paid the costs of it, there were allowed in quent administration proceedings, and were heid to be not costs e administration proceedings but "charges and expenses," and fore not costs in the discretion of the Judge. An appeal as to llowance of these costs in the trustee's accounts was therefore to lie, and the costs were disallowed: Re Beddoe, 1893, 1 Ch. but an appeal from an order for payment of costs, charges and ses will not lie as to the "costs" only, if the order is right as arges and expenses: Bew v. Bew, infra.

he effect of this section is that a mortgagee may appeal from an depriving him of costs out of the estate for misconduct; (be- if there was no misconduct the costs are not in the discretion Court under sec. 74 post); but a mortgagor cannot appeal from der negativing misconduct and allowing a mortgagee costs out Mortgagees' costs.

Sec. 24.

of the estate, (because misconduct, if proved, would bring the costs within the discretion of the Judge): Charles v. Jones, 33 Ch. D. 80; in that case it was held that even though the Judge does not exercise his discretion, there could be no appeal, but Bew v. Bew, 1899, 2 Ch. 467; 81 L. T. 284, overrules Charles v. Jones in this respect, and decides that if a Judge has not exercised his discretion, but has applied some rule which excluded his discretion, an appeal lies without leave; and see The City of Manchester, 1880, 5 P. D. 221; 42 L. T. 521; and Re Brodford, infra.

Receiver ordered to pay costs.

An order directing an official receiver in bankruptcy to pay costs was held to be appealable without leave; but an order refusing him costs was considered to be discretionary, and therefore not appealable without leave: Re Raynes Park Golf Club, 1899, 1 Q. B. 961; and see Re Silver Valley Mines, 1882, 21 Ch. D. 381.

Costs out of estate.

Where costs are improperly ordered to be paid out of an estate, such order is appealable without leave: Crawford v. Bradley, 18 P. R. 233; Bew v. Bew, supra.

Costs ordered to be paid by solicitor personally.

The Court has a discretion to order costs to be paid personally by a solicitor where there has been misconduct or negligence, but an appeal lies on the question whether there has, in fact, been misconduct or negligence: Re Bradford, 15 Q. B. D. 636; overruling 11 Q. B. D. 373; and see Charles v. Jones, supra; Re Rotch, 127 L. T. J. 617.

Examples of costs in discretion of Court

The following are instances of costs in the discretion of the Court and therefore within this section:—

Costs of an interpleader issue disposed of in Chambers: Hartmont v. Foster, 8 Q. B. D. 82; costs given over to a defendant against a third party: Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q. B. D. 329; costs refused to a third party: Tomlinson v. Northern Ry., 11 P. R. 526; costs given or refused to a plaintiff on confessing a defence under Rule 164; Perkins v. Beresford, 47 L. T. 515; and costs of inspection of property under Rule 370: Mitchell v. Dorley M. C. Co., 10 Q. B. D. 457; and costs on dismissal of an action for want of prosecution: Snelling v. Pulling, 28 Ch. D. 85. See also notes to sec. 74 post.

In a suit to settle the priorities between incumbrancers, B., one of the defendants, was ordered to pay the costs of the plaintiff and his co-defendant. B. appealed, and the decision being affirmed on the merits the Court refused to vary the order as to costs, as that would be practically allowing an appeal for costs: Harpham v. Shacklock, 19 Ch. D. 215; Harris v. Jaron, 4 Ch. D. 749.

Notwithstanding this section, an appeal from a decision as to costs will lie, without leave, if the Judge has not exercised his discretion, or has decided on grounds which were not open to him: Civil Service Co-operative Soc. v. Gen. Steam Navigation Co., 1903, 2 K. B. 756; or if he has proceeded on an erroneous principle, and so has not exercised his discretion: see per Lindley, L.J., in Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. at p. 137; McCausland v. Quebec F. Ins. Co., 25 Ont. 330.

Cases where appeals as to costs permitted

The following are instances in which appeals involving questions of principle on the subject of costs have been permitted:

Where the question was the right of a claimant in interpleader proceedings to recover from the execution creditor the charges of the sheriff as costs: Goodman v. Blake, 19 Q. B. D. 77; where costs were directed to be first paid out of a fund, and then various incumbrancers in order of priority, and the fund, after payment of costs, not sufficient to pay the first incumbrancer, who appealed: John- Sec. 24.

e v. Cox, 19 Ch. D. 17; where an order imposed, as a condition new trial, the payment within a certain time of the costs of the trial: Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill, 5 App. Cas. 582:
re at the trial of an action for the infringement of a copyright of vel, it appeared that the defendant before trial discontinued the of the title of the novel objected to, and therefore the only order s was that defendant pay the costs of the action: Dicks v. Yates, h. D. 76; and where a defendant who had disclaimed was ordered y costs: Wansley v. Smallwood, 11 Ont. App. 439.

Where leave to appeal is given on questions of costs in the discreof the Court, the Appellate Court ought to have the same regard he discretion of the Judge as in other cases in which his discre-is subject to review, and it ought not to interfere unless there has a manifest disregard of principle or misapprehension of facts:
Baggallay, L. J., in Re Gilbert, Gilbert v. Huddlestone, 28 Ch. D.
Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. 134; Huxley v. W. L. Extension, etc., s to the principle upon which the Appellate Court proceeds in als on matters of discretion: see notes supra, pp. 111-112.
. B. D. 373; Russell v. Russell, 1892, P. 152.

n appeal lies from the decision of a Judge as to the scale on Other cases.
h costs should be taxed, but the Court will not interfere unless as proceeded upon a wrong principle, or made a manifest slip: Terrell, 22 Ch. D. 473. See also as to charges the allowance of h is in the discretion of the taxing officer: McGannon v. Clark, 9 555.

eave to Appeal.—Where the time for appealing as of right has Leave to suffered to elapse, then it is necessary before an appeal can be appeal ght, to obtain leave to appeal. Such applications are in the dis- generally. on of the Court: Rule 176, and neglect to proceed owing to the s of the applicant's solicitor is not alone sufficient ground for ing such leave: Cain v. Pearce, 4 O. W. N. 70; but see Rumbold v. on C. C., 100 L. T. 259.

eave to appeal will not be granted unless the appellant makes prima facie case for attacking all the grounds on which the judgor order sought to be appealed from is based; wherever any one
.l is sufficient to support the order or judgment leave will be ed: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 173; Ray v. Port Arthur, 7 O. L.
7.

Where the decision is final and conclusive, no appeal can be had it, even by leave: Van Laun v. Baring, 1903, 2 K. B. 277; 89

acies in making the application may be a ground for refusing it:
Port Arthur, supra.

eave may be refused where the amount involved is small and the involves matters of infrequent occurrence: Ford v. Mason, 15 P.
8; Hubbert v. Home Bank, 20 O. L. R. 651; Goodwin v. Ottawa, 12 R. 603; where in such a case leave is granted on the terms of the lant agreeing in any event to pay the costs of the appeal of both it was held in the circumstances, to be a proper term to impose:
v. Great Western Ry., 136 L. T. Jour. 197. Leave to appeal will ground of the law having been subsequently altered by statute, even though it be retroactive: Eyre v. Wynn-Mackenzie, 1896, 1 Ch. 135; 73 L. T. 571; or by reason of other Judges having refused in subsequent cases to follow the decision in question: Re Bradshaw, 120 L. T. Jour 591.

No appeal from order granting leave to appeal, etc.

No appeal lies from an order granting or refusing leave to appeal: Lane v. Esdaile, 1891, A. C. 210; Re Sarnia Oil Co., 15 P. R. 348; Kay v. Briggs, 22 Q. B. D. 343; Ex p. Stevenson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 609; Re Central Bank, 17 P. R. 395; Farquharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 35 C. L. J. 230; 30 S. C. R. 188; but see in the case of a refusal of leave: Moore v. Peachey, 8 T. L. R. 406.

Leave to appeal as to costs.

Leave to appeal on a question of costs should be asked for when the judgment in question is given: May v. Thompson, W. N. 1882, 53.

Consent Order.—It would appear that the concluding clause of section 24 applies to the whole section. It certainly did in the section as originally framed, but it may be contended that as the section is now framed it only applies to appeals as to costs. If it applies to the whole section, then appeals from consent orders may be brought with the leave of the Court or Judge making the order. But it may be observed that if the consent is admitted, an appeal could hardly ever be successful; and if on the other hand the contention is that the order does not carry out or follow the terms of the consent, the motion should be to the Judge who made the order to amend it, rather than to the Appellate Division by way of appeal.

Appeals from interlocutory orders.

25.—(1) There shall be no appeal to a Divisional Court from an interlocutory order of the High Court Division, whether made in Court or Chambers, where before The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, there would have been no relief from a like order by an application to a superior court.

44 V. c. 5.

Determining what are interlocutory.

(2) Any doubt which may arise as to what orders are interlocutory shall be determined by the Divisional Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 25.

For the cases in which, before the Ont. Jud. Act, there was an appeal to the Court of Appeal: see R. S. O. 1877, c. 38, and Whiting v. Hovey, 12 Ont. App. 119.

Prior to the Judicature Act, 1881, appeals from all orders made by a Judge in Court or in Chambers, either in Chancery or at Common Law, lay to the full Court: see Chy. Ord. 323; R. S. O. 1877, c. 39, ss. 22, 26; and 37 Vict. c. 7, ss. 17, 19, 20.

This section does not apparently prohibit appeals from all interlocutory orders of the High Court Division, but only from such as prior to the Judicature Act, 1881, were not appealable. In many of the cases in which an order is held to be interlocutory, therefore an appeal would lie: e.g., orders granting interlocutory injunctions were appealable: see McLaren v. Caldwell, 5 Ont. App. 363; 8 S. C. R. 435; 9 App. Cas. 392. The question whether a given interlocutory order is appealable, must depend on whether it was so prior to the Jud. Act, 1881.

Sec. 25.

Interlocutory judgments or orders.

an order or judgment is said to be interlocutory unless the decision, whichever way it might be given, would finally dispose of the action: a decision dismissing an action on a point of law raised on the pleadings was held to be interlocutory, because if the decision had been the other way it would not have disposed of the action: Sulaman v. Farner, 1891, 1 Q. B. 734; but see Bozson v. Altrincham, 1903, 1 K. B. 547. In the earlier case of Trowell v. Shenton, 8 Ch. D. 318, an order overruling a demurrer was held not to be interlocutory.

See generally as to the distinction between final and interlocutory orders: White v. Will, 5 Ch. D. 589, 591; Physick v. Physick, 12 Ch. D. 305, 307; Whiting v. Hovey, 12 Ont. App. 119; Haleley v. Montreal Despatch Co., Ib. 640, and notes to sec. 17, supra.

The right of appeal from a Judge in Chambers is, under the Rules, much restricted: see Rule 507.

What orders are considered interlocutory

Interlocutory Orders.—The following have been held to be interlocutory orders: An order that a case be tried by jury: Sucindell v. Birmingham, 3 Ch. D. 127; a rule absolute for a new trial: Highton v. Heberne, 48 L. J. Ex. 167; an order discharging a rule for a new trial: Wilks v. Judge, W. N. 1880, 98; a refusal to remit an award to arbitrator: Re Delagoa Bay Ry., etc., 37 W. R. 578; an order setting aside an award for misconduct of the arbitrator: Re Crossdell & Cornell, 1906, 2 K. B. 569; 95 L. T. 441; an order on the trial of an interpleader issue: McAndrew v. Barker, 7 Ch. D. 701; McNair v. Denshaw, 1891, 2 Q. B. 502 (but see Whiting v. Hovey, supra); order for final judgment under Rule 57: Standard Discount Co. v. Grange, 3 C. P. So also the decision of the Court upon a special case stated by an arbitrator who is therein to make his award is an interlocutory order: Collins v. Vestry of Paddington, 5 Q. B. D. 368; but in Shubrook v. Tufnell, 9 Q. B. D. 621, it was held that a decision on a special case must be treated as a final order, unless the decision of the Court could not in any event necessitate the entering of final judgment; but where the arbitrator embodied in his award the result of the decision on the special case, the award may nevertheless be appealable: British Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. v. Underground Electric Ry. Co., 1912, A. C. 673; 107 L. T. 325.

What orders considered final.

Final Orders.—The following have been held to be final orders:—A judgment for foreclosure even before final order: Smith v. Davies, 55 L. J. Cby. 496; 54 L. T. 578; an order made on an application for the delivery and taxation of a bill of costs, whether granting or refusing it: Re Reeves, 1902, 1 Ch. 29; 85 L. T. 495; an order refusing a motion to set aside a judgment signed by default, for irregularity, though the order reserved to the defendant leave to apply again on the merits: Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443; a judgment on an issue raised on a suggestion of further breaches in an action on a bond: Smort v. Dana, 9 O. L. R. 427; an order staying proceedings until the determination of another action to be brought in the Province of Quebec: Gibbons v. Berliner Gramophone Co., 4 O. W. N. 1068; an order giving plaintiff leave to sign judgment unless a sum of money should be paid into Court: Castle v. Kouri, 18 O. L. R. 462. An order made on a summary application to enforce a solicitor's undertaking: Re Marchant, 1908, 1 K. B. 998; 98 L. T 823; an order dismissing an appeal from a final judgment in a County Court: Johnson v. Refuge Assurance Co., 1913, 1 K. B. 259.

Interlocutory orders which are appealable.

Interlocutory Orders, when Appealable.—It must be observed that the effect of this section is negative. It does not authorize an appeal from any interlocutory order, but in effect declares that no appeal shall be had from any interlocutory order unless an appeal would have lain therefrom prior to the Jud. Act, 1881.

The section does not prevent an appeal to a Divisional Court from an order of a Judge in Chambers on appeal from a certificate of taxation: Talbot v. Poole, 15 P. R. 274; but see Rule 507.

An order made by a Judge in Court directing the execution by defendants (mortgagees) of a conveyance or discharge directed by a previous judgment, was said not to be interlocutory. But if interlocutory it was held to be appealable notwithstanding this section: Bull v. N. British, etc., Co., 12 P. R. 284.

Appeals to Divisional Court.

26.—(1) Subject to sections 24 and 25 and to the Rules regulating the terms and conditions on which appeals may be brought, an appeal shall lie to a Divisional Court from—

(a) any judgment, order or decision of a Judge of the High Court Division in Court, whether at the trial or otherwise;

(b) any judgment, order or decision of a Judge in Chambers in regard to a matter of practice or procedure which affects the ultimate rights of any party, and subject to the Rules from any other judgment, order or decision of a Judge in Chambers in regard to a matter of practice or procedure.

(2) A Divisional Court shall also have jurisdiction as provided by — Sec. 26. Additional jurisdiction under certain statutes.

Sec. 26.

Rights of appeal.

A suitor dissatisfied with the judgment of the High Court Division may, subject to the provisions of the Jud. Act, ss. 24 et seq., appeal therefrom to the Appellate Division, or, by consent of all parties, he may appeal directly to the Supreme Court of Canada: R. S. C. c. 139, s. 42 (a); or, by leave of the Supreme Court, he may also appeal directly to that Court, where the judgment or order to be appealed from is pronounced in any action, cause or matter, or other judicial proceeding, in the nature of a suit or proceeding in equity; or in other cases, when the judgment is a final judgment: Ib., s. 42 (b), (c). Cass. S. C. Pr., 19, 20; but to obtain such leave special circumstances must be shewn: Schultz v. Wood, 6 S. C. R. 585; Bank of B. N. A. v. Walker, Cass. Dig. 382; Sewell v. British Columbia Towing Co., Ib., 381; Moffatt v. The Merchants Bank, 11 S. C. R. 46; Cass. Dig. 382; Langtry v. Dumoulin, Ib.; Kyle v. Canada Company, 15 S. C. R. 188; Hislop v. McGillivray, Ib.

The Rules regulating appeals from the High Court Division to the Appellate Division apply, so far as appropriate, to appeals from the Drainage Referee: Re Raleigh, 18 P. R. 73; see The Municipal Drainage Act (R. S. O. c. 198), ss. 110, 116.

This section does not contain an enumeration of all the matters in respect of which a Divisional Court has jurisdiction, e.g., see The Public Works Act (R. S. O. c. 35), s. 32.

Appeals to Divisional Court.

The Divisional Court referred to in this section is a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division. The effect of the section is to transfer to the Appellate Division all appeals which were formerly heard by the former Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice.

Judgments or Orders of a Judge at the Trial.—See as to these, Rule 491, and notes; and see infra notes to this section.

An appeal lies from an order at the trial directing a case to stand over to add parties: Payne v. Caughell, 24 Ont. App. 556.

Judgments or Orders of a Single Judge in Court, not at the Trial.—In this class of decisions an appeal lies to a Divisional Court in every case under clause (a) supra.

Appeals from Weekly Court.

Judgments or Orders Pronounced in the Weekly Court.—Appeals from such orders are regulated by Rules 491-494.

Where such a judgment or order has been pronounced ex parte, or in the absence of the opposite party, there is a jurisdiction in the Judge making the same to set aside the judgment or order on the application of any party affected thereby who was not present or represented when it was pronounced: see Rule 217: and in such cases that procedure should be resorted to rather than appeal, where the Court would have to say whether or not, on the evidence before the Court, the judgment or order was properly granted.

Appeals from Judge in Chambers.

Orders of a Judge in Chambers.—Appeals in such cases are regulated by Rule 507.

An appeal does not lie to the Appellate Division from the order of a Judge under The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70), s. 14, dispensing with the concurrence, for the purpose of barring dower, of the wife of an owner of land selling or mortgaging it free from dower: Re Rush, 10 C. L. T. 184; and see Judges' Orders Enforcement Act (R. S. O. c. 79), s. 2.

Sec. 2e.

Appeals from judgment at trial.

Appeals from Judgments at Trials.—Where the judgment is pronounced in the absence of a party an appeal is not necessary, nor a motion to the Appellate Division, but the Judge at the trial may set it aside and grant a new trial: see Rule 499.

Judgment of nonsuit.

Judgment of Non-suit.—A judgment of non-suit was, at Common Law, no bar to another action for the same cause. By C. R. 779, it was provided:

"A judgment of non-suit, unless otherwise directed, has the same effect as a judgment upon the merits for the defendant, but may be set aside on such terms as may seem just."

This Rule has not been continued, but its omission is probably not intended to operate as a change of the practice in this respect. The old Common Law form of judgment of nonsuit is now very rarely, if ever pronounced; where a plaintiff fails to make out a case, his action is generally dismissed, and if it is thought that he should not be precluded from bringing another action, the judgment is declared to be "without prejudice to any other action by the plaintiff in respect of the matters in question;" unless such a clause is inserted the judgment may be pleaded in bar to a fresh action for the same cause: Bywater v. Dunne, 10 L. R. Ir. 380; and if the non-suit be reversed on appeal, the defendant is not entitled, as of right, to a new trial for the purpose of adducing evidence on his behalf, where the action is tried without a jury: Macdonald v. Worthington, 7 Ont. App. 531, 563 (as to which see Craig v. McKay, 8 O. L. R. 651); but where the action is tried by a jury, semble, the defendant is so entitled: Baker v. The Grand Trunk Ry., 11 Ont. App. 68.

C. R. 779, which provided that a judgment of non-suit should be equivalent to a judgment for the defendant on the merits unless otherwise provided, was held to be not applicable to Division Courts under sec. 65 or sec. 227 of The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 63): Building & Loan Ass. v. Heimrod, 3 C. L. T. 361: Bank of Ottawa v. McLaughlin, 1 Ont. App. 543.

A plaintiff has now no right to demand a non-suit, and he cannot discontinue at the trial without the leave of the Judge: Fox v. The Car. 1898, 1 Q. B. 636; 78 L. T. 311; 1900, A. C. 19; 81 L. T. 562.

The Judge at the trial has no power to give judgment of non-suit on the opening statement of counsel without hearing evidence, unless the plaintiff's counsel consents to that course: Fletcher v. London & N. W. Ry., 1892, 1 Q. B. 122; 65 L. T. 605; Isaac v. Evans, 16 T. L. R. 10; 1899, W. N. 261; and in Argent v. Donigan, 8 T. L. R. 432; and in actions for negligence the power of the Judge to non-suit on the ground of contributory negligence is restricted to cases where it is plain and indisputable that the injury of which the plaintiff complains would not have occurred but for his own negligence; where there is any dispute as to the facts, or as to the inference from the facts, the case should be submitted to the jury: Servier v. Lowe, 32 Ont. 290; and the ruling of the Judge at the trial that there is no evidence in support of a particular issue may be reviewed on appeal: see McCord v. Cammell, 1896, A. C. 57.

A non-suit may be ordered, although there is some evidence adduced by the plaintiff, provided it be of such a character that the jury could not reasonably give a verdict in his favour: Hiddle v. National F. & A. Ins. Co., 1896, A. C. 372; Ryder v. Wombwell, L. R. 4 Ex. 38; but where his witnesses established contributory negligence as above mentioned: Danger v. London St. Ry., 30 Ont. 493; Wakelin v. London & S. W. Ry., 12 A. C. 52; and see O'Hearn v. Port Arthur, 4 O. L. R. 209; and it may be ordered at the close of the whole case though the Judge refused a motion for non-suit at the close of the plaintiff's case: Skeate v. Slaters, 1914, 2 K. B. 429; 110 L. T. 604.

Sec. 26.

Defendant stopped by Court.

Where a defendant at the close of the plaintiff's case moves for a non-suit, and intimates that he will renew the motion at the close of the case, and then proceeds to call evidence until stopped by the Court, and a non-suit is entered, the defendant, in the event of a successful appeal from the non-suit, will be liable to pay the costs of the trial and appeal, notwithstanding that in deference to the Court he did not complete his evidence: Mills v. Hamilton St. Ry., 17 P. R. 74.

Where, in an action for negligence, the plaintiff claimed alternative relief against two defendants and at the trial was non-suited as to one, and a verdict was found in favour of the other defendant: it was held on appeal that although the verdict must stand, yet that the plaintiff might nevertheless be entitled to a new trial as against the defendant as to whom he was non-suited: Lilley v. Thomas Tilling, 134 L. T. Jour. 61.

Disagreement of jury.

Disagreement of Jury or Neglect to Answer Questions.—Where a jury disagrees, or refuses to answer questions, or answers questions in a conflicting way, the Judge presiding may direct a retrial: see Rules 500, 501; or the action may be dismissed: see post, c. 30. If it is contended that the Judge erred an appeal would lie.

Motions for a new trial.

Actions Tried with a Jury.—Where there has been a trial with a jury, an application for a new trial, whether made for that relief alone, or combined with, or as an alternative of, a motion by way of appeal from the judgment, must be made to the Appellate Division.

Motions against judgment, not involving a new trial.

In actions tried with a jury, a party may appeal,—

Upon the ground that the judgment is contrary to the findings of the jury; or,—

That, notwithstanding the findings of the jury, the applicant is entitled to judgment;

Where the Judge at the trial does not pronounce a judgment, but orders the case to stand over to add parties, either party, or both, may appeal from his decision to a Divisional Court: Munro v. Toronto Ry., 4 O. L. R. 36, and consent to the Court's giving judgment on the merits: Payne v. Caughell, 24 Ont. App. 556.

Jury cases.

The party against whom a judgment is given in a jury action has always to consider, in moving against it, whether his complaint is as to the findings of fact, and this consideration will determine whether his remedy is to move for a new trial, or for such judgment as may be the proper one.

New trial.

In jury actions a motion for a new trial is proper where the jury has made an error which the applicant is entitled to complain of, or where the Judge has prevented the facts from being properly brought forward, such as by misdirection, rejection of evidence, non-suiting of the plaintiff, etc. In such cases the objection is not to the conclusions of the Judge from the findings, and his consequent entry of judgment upon them; but the objection is to the correctness of the findings themselves; for instance, where the Judge misdirects the aintiff: Etty v. Wilson, 3 Ex. D. 359; or refuses to do so, and a verdict found for the plaintiff and judgment directed to be entered thereon: rries v. Felix, 4 Ex. D. 32; or where the Judge gives judgment for e party on the findings of the jury, and it is contended that the find- gs are not warranted by the evidence: Hamilton v. Johnson, 5 Q. B. D. 3; or where, the facts being undisputed, the Judge directs the jury find for one party, and it is contended that the finding should have en the other way: Yetts v. Foster, 3 C. P. D. 437; or after leaving the se to the jury the Judge thinks on reflection that there was no evi- nce to go to the jury and directs judgment to be entered for defen- nt: Rocke v. McKerrow, 24 Q. B. D. 463. In all these cases, though e action is that of the Judge, the dispute is in respect to the propriety the findings of the facts, and the motion should therefore ordinarily for a new trial.

Where there is any evidence on which the findings of the jury can operly be supported, a new trial will not ordinarily be granted; but ere the finding of a jury on a material fact is unsupported by any dence, such finding may properly be set aside and a new trial anted: Reiffenstein v. Day, 28 O. L. R. 491. In this case after two ials before a jury at one of which the jury had disagreed, and the other d given a verdict not warranted by the evidence, the Court granted ew trial to be had before a Judge without a jury, but on appeal this on was struck out.

Where the Court considers that it has all the needful evidence When it may be dispensed with.
fore it, it may, under s. 27 post, instead of directing a new trial, ect the proper judgment to be entered.

Non-jury Actions.—Where the trial has been had before a Judge Non-jury cases hout a jury, an appeal to the Appellate Division lies under this tion, whether the findings of fact, or the conclusions deduced from m, are questioned, and whether it is proper to direct a new trial or enter a different judgment.

In such cases the remedy is generally by motion to the Appellate ision to reverse the judgment, and, if the Judge has improperly re- ted evidence, the Court has power to let in the evidence improperly ected, and give such judgment as, upon the admission of such evi- ce, may seem proper, instead of directing a new trial: see Dollman Jones, 12 Ch. D. 553; and Rule 232.

The practice adopted by the Court of Appeal in such cases in Eng- Judgment may be given.
d is thus explained by Lord Justice Cotton, in Jones v. Hough, 5 D., at p. 125: "When the appeal comes before us, the Court of peal has the full right, if it thinks necessary, although there is no tion for a new trial, to say that the conclusion of fact arrived at is satisfactory; and as they have not the materials before them to ive at a proper conclusion, the Court will order a new trial; and an instance a case where this would be done; where the question ns on the credibility of witnesses who had been heard viva voce, l seen by the Judge, who himself has tried the case. In such a case, n although the Court had thought the conclusion was not a correct , they might direct that the case should go back for a new trial. re the case is not one which turns on the amount of credibility to Credibility of witness.
given to the different witnesses, but on the conclusion of fact from tain letters, and from certain evidence which was taken upon mission. Under those circumstances, it is our duty to deal with the matter; and if we see before us the materials for arriving at a conclusion on the facts contrary to that which was arrived at by the learned Judge, we ought not, in my opinion, to put the parties to the expense and delay of sending the matter back for a new trial. Of course I need not say in all questions of fact, especially where there has been viva voce evidence before the Judge in the Court below, the Court of Appeal ought to be most unwilling to interfere with the conclusion which the Judge has arrived at when he has had the opportunity, which the Court have not, of seeing the witnesses, and judging of their demeanour": see also Bateman v. Middlesex, 27 O. L. R. 122.

Finding of Judge on facts.

It would seem clear that the Court, under this Rule, has full power to review the decision of the Judge upon the facts. See also the language in Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex. D., at p. 122 (quoted with approval in Prentice v. Consolidated Bank, 13 Ont. App. 74), where Bramwell, L.J., says: "If upon the materials before the learned Judge, he has, in giving judgment, come to an erroneous conclusion upon certain questions of fact, and we see that the conclusions are erroneous, we must come to a different conclusion, and act upon the conclusion that we come to, and not accept his finding. . . . A great difference exists between a finding by the Judge, and a finding by the jury. Where the jury find the facts, the Court cannot be substituted for them, because the parties have agreed that the facts shall be decided by a jury; but where the Judge finds the facts then the Court of Appeal has the same jurisdiction that he has, and can find the facts whichever way they like. I have no doubt, therefore, that is our jurisdiction, our power, and our duty." See also the observations of Brett, M.R., in Read v. Anderson, 13 Q. B. D. 781, and N. British, etc., Co. v. Tourville, 25 S. C. R. 177; Coghlan v. Cumberland, 1898, 1 Ch. 704; 78 L. T. 540.

The finding of a Judge on a question of fact will be regarded by an appellate Court as primâ facie right, and will not be interfered with unless the appellant can clearly shew that it is wrong: Colonial Securities Co. v. Massey, 1896, 1 Q. B. 38; 73 L. T. 497; Hayes v. Day, 41 S. C. R. 134; Leslie v. Hill, 25 O. L. R. 144; 28 O. L. R. 48.

When it may be rejected.

But if it is clear from the reasons given by the Judge that he has misapprehended the effect of the evidence, or failed to consider a material part of it, and the evidence which has been believed by him when fairly read and considered as a whole leads the appellate Court to the conclusion that the findings of the Judge at the trial are erroneous, the Court will reverse his findings: Beal v. Michigan Central Ry., 19 O. L. R. 502; Gordon v. Goodwin, 20 O. L. R. 327; Ryan v. McIntosh, Ib., 31; Palo v. Canadian Northern Ry., 29 O. L. R. 413; Annable v. Coventry, 46 S. C. R. 570: or may reduce the damages awarded by him: Bateman v. Middlesex, 27 O. L. R. 122; or increase them: Vanhorn v. Verral, 3 O. W. R. 1567.

Conflict of evidence.

Where there was a conflict of evidence and the Judge who tried the case attributed greater weight to the evidence of some witnesses than others, but in the opinion of the appellate Court took a wrong view of the law, the Court refused to pronounce a judgment upon the evidence, and sent the case for a new trial: Canada Landed Credit Co. v. Thompson, 3 C. L. T. 158.

In a non-jury case if evidence has been improperly admitted the appellate Court may reject it and maintain the judgment if the remaining evidence warrants it: Merritt v. Hepenstall, 25 S. C. R. 150.

Where a Judge refers it to a Master to assess damages and gives Assessment of damages.
dgment for the amount assessed: Semble, a motion for a new trial re-assessment of damages must be made to the Appellate Division: Dunlop Pneumatic Tire Co. v. New Garage Motor Co., 108 L. T. 361; tide Rules 400, 502.

Where some, or one, of the parties only appeal, the judgment will Appeal by some of parties.

Procedure on Appeals.—See Rules 491-4 and notes.

Interpleader Issue.—Where a Judge has directed judgment to be Inter-pleader.
ered on an interpleader issue, an appeal lies under this section: t v. Parker, 25 W. R. 518; see Wilson v. Kerr, 18 U. C. Q. B. 470; ds v. Shepherd, 1 Ex. D. 75; 45 L. J. Ex. 457; Withers v. Parker, . J. Ex. 383; Robinson v. Tucker, 14 Q. B. D. 371; Dawson v. Fox, Q. B. D. 377.

Costs.—The costs of the former trial, and of the applications for a Costs.
trial, are in the judicial discretion of the Court: Jud. Act, s. 74 .

Sec. 26.

Where a new trial was granted on the ground that the Judge at the trial improperly non-suited the plaintiff, the defendant was ordered to pay the costs, though the Judge acted mero motu, and the defendant forebore to give his evidence in deference to his ruling: Mills v. Hamilton St. Ry., 17 P. R. 74.

New Trials.—For the principles on which the Court acts in granting new trials: see post, s. 28 and notes.

County Court Appeals.—Appeals from County Courts and District Courts are regulated by The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 59), ss. 38-46, and the Jud. Act. s. 26, supra.

The above-mentioned sections, 38-46 of The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 59), are as follows:—

Meaning of "party to a cause or matter" and "appellant."

38. The terms "party to a cause or matter," and "appellant," hereinafter used, shall include persons suing or being sued in the name of another, and a person an whose behalf or for whose benefit an action is prosecuted or defended: 10 Edw. 7. c. 30. s. 38.

Appeals to Divisional Courts.

39.—(1) Any party to a cause or matter may appeal to a Divisional Court from any judgment directed to be entered at or after the trial, or from a refusal to enter a judgment: 10 Edw. 7, c. 30, s. 39 (1); 2 Geo. 5, c. 17, s. 11 (3).

(2) A motion for a new trial shall be deemed an appeal and shall be made to a Divisional Court:" 10 Edw. 7. c. 30. s. 39 (2).

Moving for new trial on discovery of new evidence.

A Divisional Court on appeal from a County Court may under Rule 232 admit new evidence: Butler v. McMicken, 32 Ont. 422.

The Court formerly refused to entertain an appeal where the decision turned wholly upon the evidence, and involved no point of law: Fowler v. McDonald, 3 U. C. Q. B. 385; Bradley v. Crane, 4 U. C. Q. B. 122; Manning v. Ashall, 23 U. C. Q. B. 302; Clark v. Hurlburt, 6 C. P. 438; McKinstry v. Furby, 24 U. C. Q. B. 176; Harris v. Robinson, 25 U. C. Q. B. 247. In such a case, where the trial has been by jury, the remedy will ordinarily be a motion for a new trial. In a non-jury case, the decision of the County Court Judge will not be interfered with, except upon the same principles as are observed in the case of other appeals from a Judge of first instance upon the evidence: see notes to Rule 491, and supra, p. 123. Where, therefore, the Judge of the County Court who has heard the witnesses finds in favour of the respondent on contradictory evidence, the Appellate Division will not interfere, even though it may think that, if the matter had come before it in the first instance, it would have decided otherwise: Rees v. McKeown, 7 Ont. App. 521. See also cases referred to in note to sec. 12 of the Act, supra, p. 124.

A respondent, the plaintiff in the action, who has recovered part only of his claim, cannot, on an appeal by defendant, without a cross-appeal, obtain judgment for the whole of his claim: Spears v. Harnden, 17 C. L. T. 84; but see Toronto Junction v. Christie, 25 S. C. R. 551, and formerly Hutson v. Valliers, 19 Ont. App. 154.

Appeals from C. C. as to costs.

Appeals as to Costs.—An appeal as to a question of costs, where a question of principle is involved, has been entertained: Mitchell v. Vandusen, 14 Ont. App. 517, in which, however, it was pointed out as a reason for entertaining the appeal that leave to appeal had been anted: see also McDermid v. McDermid, 15 Ont. App. 287; Weaver Sec. 26.

Sawyer, 16 Ont. App. 422; Grove v. Bender, 36 C. L. J. 161; 20 C. L.
Occ. N. 93. And see The County Courts Act, s. 40 (1) (d), infra.

40.—(1) An appeal shall also lie to a Divisional at the instance Appeals from decision of Judge.
any party to a cause or matter from,—

(a) Every decision of a Judge u.. any of the powers conferred upon him by any Rules of Court, or by any statute, unless provision is therein made to the contr.. y.

[This clause is held to refer to decisions or orders, other than those expressly provided for in clauses (b), (c) and (d): Gibson v. Hawes, 24 O. L. R. 543. The orders referred to in this clause must be in their nature final: see sub-sec. 2.]

(b) Every decision or order made by a Judge in Chambers under the provisions of the law relating to interpleader proceedings, the examination of debtors, attachment of debts, and proceedings against garnishees.

[Prior to 45 Vict. c. 6, now sec. 40 (b) supra, there could be no appeal from a County Court in garnishee proceedings. Soto v. Hubbard, 6 Ont. App. 546.

This section does not apply to cases coming under sec. 39, supra: Weaver v. Sawyer, 16 Ont. App. 422; Irvine v. Sparks, 31 Ont. 603.]

(c) Every decision or order in any cause or matter disposing of any right or claim and from

["Right of claim." The right of claim referred to is that which forms the subject of the action, not the right to take any particular piece of procedure in the course of the action: McPherson v. Wilson, 13 P. R. at p. 340.]

(d) Any decision or order of a Judge whether pronounced or Appeals as to costs.
made at a trial, or an appeal from taxation or otherwise, which has the effect of depriving the plaintiff of County Court costs on the ground that his action is of the proper competence of the Division Court, or of entitling him to County Court costs on the ground that the action is not of the proper competence of the Division Court. 10 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 40 (1); 2 Geo. V. c. 17, s. 11 (4).

(2) This section shall not apply to an order or decision which is final in its nature but is merely interlocutory, or where jurisdiction given to the Judge as persona designata. 10 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 40; Geo. V. c. 17, s. 11 (5).

The proviso of sub-section (2) governs the whole section, so that, matters and the other proceedings specified in clauses (a), (b) and (d), an appeal does not lie unless the order appealed from n its nature final: see Baby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440; Hunter v. Hunter, C. L. T. 114; Arnold v. Van Tuyl, 30 Ont. 663; and Gibson v. Hawes, O. L. R. 543.

Final or Interlocutory Order.—The question as to when an order inal, and when interlocutory, has arisen under various Acts, and y be answered differently under each, according to the intention the enactment.

Sec. 26.

Interlocutory or final orders, what are.

For the purpose of determining the time for appealing under English (1883), R. 867, a final order is one made on such an application or proceeding that, for whichever side the decision is given, it will, if it stands, finaly determine the matter in litigation: Saloman v. Warner, 1891, 1 Q. B. 734; Standard Discount Co. v. LeGrange, 3 C. P. D. 67, 71; or disposes of the matter in dispute between the parties, even though inquiries have to be carried out after the order: see Re Herbert Reeves & Co., 50 W. R. 252; 1901, W. N. 213.

For the same purpose an interlocutory order includes an order for working out the rights given by a final judgment, e.g., an order setting off costs subject to a solicitor's lien: Blakey v. Latham, 43 Ch. D. 23, and see Leonard v. Burrows, 7 O. L. R. 316.

See also notes to sec. 25 of the Jud. Act, supra, p. 116.

An order interlocutory under the above English Rule is not necessarily interlocutory under the above section 40 (2); see Rural Mun. of Morris v. London & Canadian, etc., Co., 19 S. C. R. at p. 442.

An order has been considered final because there remains nothing further to be done under it: Re D. A. Jones Co., 19 Ont. App. 63; and thus an order to sign judgment (under former C. R. 603), was considered not final, and therefore not appealable under the Supreme Court Act (R. S. C. c. 135, ss. 24 to 28). Such an order would, however, seem to be final within above section 40 (1) (d); see Nelson v. Thorner, 11 Ont. App. 616; Collins v. Hickok, Ib., 620; Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347, and so also, is an order allowing a defendant to defend on payment of money into Court: Costle v. Kourt, 18 O. L. R. 462; though if judgment were denied to the plaintiff on such a motion, the matter in litigation would not have been determined, and an appeal would thus be excluded, if the rule in Saloman v. Warner, supra, were applied. A decision on an application under Rule 57, would seem now, beyond doubt, to be appealable if judgment is obtained in the action; sed quære, if the motion is refused, as such an order is not final.

In view of the cases in which appeals have been entertained under sec. 40 it would seem that a "decision or order in its nature final and not interlocutory" within the meaning of the section, is a decision or order, whether before, or after, or by, the final judgment, (other than a judgment or order to which sec. 39 applies), by which the status of the parties is determined with respect to the matter in dispute, but it is not essential that nothing further has to be done to work out the rights thus determined, nor that the decision, had it been in respondent's favour, would necessarily end the matters in dispute: see cases infra and Standard Discount Co. v. LeGrange, 3 C. P. D. 67, 71; Rural Mun. of Morris v. London & Can. L. & A. Co., 19 S. C. R. 434; Baptist v. Baptist, 21 S. C. R. 425; Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195; but see Hunter v. Hunter, 18 C. L. T. 114.

Judgments and Orders Appealable:—

County Court judgments and orders, appealable.

Appeals have been entertained in the following cases:—From a judgment in a partition matter under The Partition Act (R. S. O. c. 114): Furness v. Mitchell, 3 Ont. App. 510; an order refusing to set aside a judgment for partition under The Partition Act: Jenking v. Jenking, 11 Ont. App. 92; an order or judgment disposing of an issue directed in a garnishing matter: Henderson v. Rogers, 15 P. R. 241; or in interpleader proceedings: Feehan v. Bank of Toronto, 10 of Morris v. London and Canadian, etc., 19 S. C. R. at p. 442; a judgment on a special case: Osler v. Muter, 19 Ont. App. 94; Re Shaver v. Hart, 31 U. C. Q. B. 603; an order for judgment under former C. R. 603: Costie v. Kourt, 18 O. L. R. 462; Nelson v. Thorner, 11 Ont. App. 816; Collins v. Hickok, Ib., 620; Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347; Sydenham v. Williams, Divisionni Court, 16th January, 1897; an order imposing terms on a defendant as a condition of giving him leave to defend: McVicar v. McLaughlin, 16 P. R. 450; or striking out certain paragraphs of a defence as shewing no reasonable answer: Smith v. Traders Bank, 11 O. L. R. 24; or refusing an application to set aside a judgment entered for default of defence, on the ground of irregularity: Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443; an order (made at the instance of a contesting creditor, under The Creditors' Relief Act), setting aside a judgment and execution: Bowerman v. Phillips, 5 Ont. App. 679; Molson's Bank v. McMeckin, Ib., 535; an order allowing, or refusing to allow, execution to issue on a judgment: Moson v. Johnston, 20 Ont. App. 412; McMahon v. Spencer, 13 Ont. App. 30; an order allowing a set off of costs which were not in the discretion of the Judge, contrary to right of plaintiff: Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195, an order in proceedings under The Joint Stock Companies Winding-up Act (R. S. O. c. 178, Part xiii), approving of a sale by the liquidator, of the assets of a company en bloc, and making certain provisions for distributing the purchase money: Re D. A. Jones Co., 19 Ont. App. 63; an order for the examination of the wife of a judgment debtor under Rule 562, as a person to whom the judgment debtor had made a transfer of his property: Goodeve v. White, 5 P. R. 433; an order for the committal of a judgment debtor under Rule 587 for unsatisfactory answers on his examination as a judgment debtor: Boby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440; and see Re Anderson v. Vanstone, 5 P. R. at p. 246; (but see New Homburg v. Burden, infra, p. 130).

C. P. 32, see also Whiting v. Hovey, 12 Ont. App. 119; Rural Mun. Sec. 26.

An order respecting the person having the right to continue an action after the death of the plaintiff would also seem to be final within the meaning of the section: see Baptist v. Baptist, 21 S. C. R. 425. So also a judgment or order made otherwise than at the trial determining a right and providing for the proceedings for working it out: e.g., by taking an account, though such an order may not be final for some purposes: see The Queen v. Clark, 21 S. C. R. 656; Re Alexander, 1892, 1 Q. B. 216; and an order perpetually restraining plaintiff from proceeding with an action (which is not a final order within The Supreme and Exchequer Court Act); Maritime Bank v. Stewart, 20 S. C. R. 105.

An appeal now lies from an order or decision as to the scale of costs under a final judgment: sec. 40 (1) (d), supra (see formerly Leonard v. Burrows, 7 O. L. R. 316).

Judgments and Orders not Appealable:—

Appeals have not been entertained in the following cases, as being from orders not in their nature final:—From an order setting aside a judgment and letting defendant in to defend: Schroeder v. Rooney, 4 Ont. App. 673; O'Donnell v. Guinane, 28 Ont. 389 (but in McVicar v. McLaughlin, 16 P. R. 450, an appeal was entertained from an order setting aside a judgment obtained on a specially endorsed writ under former C. R. 603, in regard to the terms imposed upon defendant as a condition of being let in to defend); from an order dismissing a motion for judgment under C. R. 603: Fisken v. Stewart, 17 C. L. T. 82; see Rural Mun. of Morris v. London & Can. L. & A. Co., 19 S. C. R. 434; an order enlarging until after a named event, a motion to dismiss an action for want of prosecution: Slater v. Mader, 17 C. L. T. 82; an order striking out a jury notice: McPherson v. Wilson, 13 P. R. 339; an interpleader order directing an issue: Hunter v. Hunter, 18 C. L. T. 114; an order on an application to amend: Branigan v. Stinson, 10 U. C. Q. B. 403; and see Anglin v. Kingston, 16 U. C. Q. B. 121; the decision of a Judge as to the right to begin: Hastings v. Earnest, 7 U. C. Q. B. 520; or on a motion to vary the minutes of a judgment: Re Taggart v. Bennett, 6 O. L. R. 74; an order dismissing an application to commit a defendant for contempt for refusing to be sworn on an examination: New Hamburg v. Burden, 37 C. L. J. 420; or ordering a discharge from custody under a ca. sa.: Gallagher v. Gallagher, 31 Ont. 172; an order refusing a new trial: Booth v. Can. Pac. Ry., 13 O. L. R. 91; an order dismissing an action as frivolous: Re Page, Hill v. Fladgate, 102 L. T. 588; an order for arrest or mesne process, is held not to be appealable, but an order made on a motion to discharge a prisoner from custody is held to be appealable: Bank of Montreal v. Partridge, 3 O. W. N. 149.

County Court judgments and orders, not appealable.

Sec. 26.

An appeal will not lie from a judgment or order pronounced in a matter in which the Court below had no jurisdiction: Teskey v. Neil, 15 P. R. 244; but see Sweetland v. Turkish Cigarette Co., 80 L. T. 472; 47 W. R. 511; nor can a question as to jurisdiction be raised in appeal, if not taken in the County Court: Taylor v. National A. A. Society, 110 L. T. 696.

Judge acting as persona designata.

Where a Judge is persona designata.—In such case Judges' Orders Enforcement Act (R. S. O. c. 79), s. 4, applies, which provides that there shall be no appeal from the order of a Judge so made, unless an appeal is expressly authorized by the statute giving the jurisdiction, or unless special leave is granted by the Judge making the order, or by a Judge of the High Court Division, in which case an appeal may be had to a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division, whose decision is final: see Re Toronto H. & B. Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 199; Re Simpson v. Clafferty, 18 P. R. 403.

The County Court Act (R. S. O. c. 59), provides:—

Appeal after judgment signed.

41. An appeal may be had notwithstanding judgment has been signed: 10 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 41.

Pleadings, etc., to be certified.

42.—(1) The Judge shall, at the request of the appellant, certify under his hand to the proper officer of the Supreme Court, the pleadings in the cause and all motions or orders made, granted or refused therein, and his judgments or decision, and, where a trial has been had, his charge to the jury, if any, the evidence and all objections and exceptions thereto, or to his charge, and all other papers in the cause affecting the question raised by the appeal.

Certifying proceedings under ss. 40 or 41.

(2) The Judge shall be required to certify only the pleadings, motions, orders, affidavits, evidence and other material, necessary for the full understanding of the matter in appeal, together with his judgment or decision: 10 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 42.

["The proper officer" is now the Registrar of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The "judgment or decision" means the formal order or judgment, not the Judge's reasons for judgment: these should also be sent, however, when in writing.]

Sec. 26.

Staying proceedings on appeal.

43. Subject to the next following section, any Judge of the County District Court appealed from may, upon application to him, stay proceedings in the action to enable the appeal to be brought upon such terms and for such time as he may deem just: 10 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 43.

Setting down appeals.

44.—(1) The appeal shall be set down for argument at the first sittings of a Divisional Court which commences after the expiration of thirty days from the judgment, order, or decision complained of.

Extension of time for appeal.

(2) Subject to Rules of Court, a Divisional Court or a Judge of the Supreme Court, notwithstanding that the Judge of the County District Court has not certified the pleadings and other papers, or that they have not been filed in the Supreme Court, may extend the time for setting down the appeal or for giving notice of setting down, or for doing any act or taking any proceeding in or in relation to the appeal; and may, if the certificate is incomplete or incorrect, direct the same to be amended or sent back to the Judge for amendment: 10 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 44.

See Hunter v. Patterson, 2 O. W. N. 61.

Powers to amend and receive further evidence.

45.—(1) The Divisional Court shall have all the powers and duties, as to amendment and otherwise, of the Judge appealed from, and full discretionary power to receive further evidence upon questions of fact, either by oral examination before the Court, or as may be directed.

(2) Such further evidence may be given without special leave as to matters which have occurred after the date of the judgment, order or decision complained of.

[See Butler v. McMicken, 32 Ont. 422.]

(3) Except as provided by sub-section 2, upon an appeal from a judgment, order or decision given upon the merits at the trial or hearing, such further evidence shall be admitted on special grounds only, and not without the special leave of the Court: 10 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 45.

[See Rule 232, and notes.]

Order of Divisional Court on Appeal.

46.—(1) On an appeal to the Divisional Court may set aside the judgment, and may direct any other judgment to be entered, or may direct a new trial to be had, and make such other order as to costs and otherwise as appears just.

(2) The decision of the Divisional Court shall be certified by the Registrar of the Appellate Division to the Clerk of the Court in whom the judgment or order appealed from was entered, who shall thereupon cause the same to be entered in the proper judgment or order book, and all subsequent proceedings may be taken thereon, as if the decision had been given in the Court below. 10 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 46.

[This sub-section requires the judgment of the Divisional Court in this particular class of appeals to be in the form of a certificate. It also seems to imply that all judgments or orders appealed from must have been entered before the appeal is lodged, but see s. 41, supra.]

Sec. 20.

Procedure on County Court and District Court Appeals.—Formerly there could be no appeal after judgment entered: Murphy v. Northern Ry. Co., 13 C. P. 32; Duffil v. Dickinson, 14 C. P. 142; Wood v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 16 C. P. 275; but now there may: see sec. 41, supra.

Certifying proceedings.

The certifying of the proceedings under section 42 is a necessary preliminary to setting down the appeal: Smith v. Hay, 35 C. L. J. 421; McCarron v. Metropolitan Life Insce. Co., 19 C. L. T. Occ. N. 230; Reekie v. McNeil, 31 Ont. 444; and see Morse v. Thompson, 19 C. P. 94; Baby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440; Gilmor v. McPhail, 16 P. R. 151. In Lucas v. Holliday, 8 O. L. R. 541, the Court entertained the appeal notwithstanding the omission to certify the proceedings, no objection having been raised.

The Judge should not refuse to certify the papers in a case which is not appealable; it is for the appellate Court to decide whether the appeal can be entertained or not: Re Taggart v. Bennett, 6 O. L. R. 74.

Papers to be certified.

In appeals from County Courts, the pleadings, motions, orders and other papers to be certified to the proper officer of the Appellate Division under The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 59), s. 42, should include:

(a) The original pleadings: see Lees v. Ottawa & N. Y. Ry. Co., 31 Ont. 567; 20 C. L. T. 75.

(b) Notices of motion, and orders affecting questions raised by the appeal;

(c) The judgment or order appealed from and the written opinion or decision of the Judge;

also where a trial has been had

(d) The Judge's notes, or where the evidence has been taken by a stenographer, his notes, of the evidence and of any objections and exceptions thereto, and of the rejection of any evidence, and of the Judge's charge, and of all objections or exceptions thereto;

(e) The exhibits put in at the trial.

It is not necessary to certify or transmit the evidence or the objections or exceptions thereto, where the appeal is from a judgment or decision upon the pleadings, or upon a motion not founded upon the evidence.

Where the appeal is brought under The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 59), s. 40 (d), as to the papers to be certified: see Ib., s. 42.

It is not a valid objection to an appeal that the Judge has not expressed in his certificate that the proceedings are certified "to the proper officer of the Supreme Court": see Baby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440.

What a Judge certifies as his judgment will be treated as conclusive: Huddlestone v. Furness Ry., 15 T. L. R. 238.

Certifying proceedings under s. 42.

The Judge should only be required to certify the motions, rules, orders, affidavits, evidence, and other materials, necessary for the full understanding of the matter in appeal, together with his judgment or decision on the same.

The certifying of the papers may be compelled by mandamus where the Judge has been applied to, and has refused to certify, and the right to appeal still exists: see Reg. v. Wells, 17 U. C. Q. B. 545; Re Keenahan v. Preston, 21 U. C. Q. B. 461; Orr v. Barrett, 9 C. L. T. 72. Sec. 28.

For Form of Certificate of County Court Judge: see H. & L. Forms No. 1197. The first paragraph of this form requires modification, owing to the changes made by the revision of The County Courts Act since the publication of those forms. Form of certificate.

The certified papers should be fastened together and transmitted to the Central Office, and the same are to be returned to the County Court when the appeal is disposed of.

Staying Execution.—As to stay of execution, or proceedings, in a County Court case, pending an appeal: see sec. 43, supra.

Setting Down Appeals.—The appeal is set down with the Registrar of the Appellate Division within the time limited by s. 44 (1) supra, and see infra.

The sittings of the Appellate Division commence on the 1st Monday in each month, unless it be a non-juridical day, and then on the next day thereafter—except in the months of January, July, August, and September. There are no sittings in the Christmas or Long Vacations, and the sittings in January commence on the first Monday after the 6th January, and the sittings in September commence on the first Monday after the 15th September: see Rule 171 (1), (8 Nov., 1913); but see Jud. Act, s. 42 (1).

The 30 days' run from the date of the delivery of the judicial decision, oral or written, and the order or judgment founded on it must be referred to that date: Fawkes v. Swayzie, 31 Ont. 256. If the decision is not given in open Court, it cannot be said to be pronounced until the parties are notified of it: Ib.

Sunday is not reckoned in the thirty days when it is the first day: Cooper v. Dixon, 3 C. L. T. 198 (sed quære): nor where it is the last day: see Rule 174.

The appeal must be set down for a Divisional Court, which begins its sittings not later than 30 days from the decision, but may be set down for an earlier sittings: Lees v. Ottawa & New York Ry. Co., 31 Ont. 567. The appeal cannot be set down until the Judge has certified the papers under The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 59), s. 42: Reekie v. McNeil, 31 Ont. 444. After the time limited for setting down has expired there was formerly no jurisdiction to hear the appeal: Ib.: but now the Divisional Court has jurisdiction to extend the time: s. 44 (2), supra, p. 131, and see Rule 176.

The fact that a stay of proceedings has been granted by the County Court Judge under The County Courts Act, s. 43, for a time extending beyond the commencement of the sittings at which the appeal should be set down under s. 44 does not absolve the appellant from the necessity of complying with that section: Paul v. Rutlidge, 16 P. R. 140; an extension of the time may be obtained under s. 44 (2), supra, p. 131, and see Rule 176.

Where notice of hearing is given, but the case is not set down, Rule 560 seems to apply. If it does not, an application for the dismissal of the appeal, or for the costs of an abandoned appeal may be made to the Divisional Court on the return day named in the notice of hearing: see notes to Rule 215, infra, and O'Donnell v. Guinane, 28 Ont. 389.

Sec. 28.

Notice of appeal.

Notice of Appeal.—For form of notice of appeal: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1199. No express provision is made for giving notice, but it seems to be none the less necessary.

Motion relating to appeals.

Interlocutory Motions Relating to Appeals.—A motion to strike out or quash an appeal must be made to the Divisional Court: see C. C. Act, s. 44 (2), supra; O'Donnell v. Guinane, 28 Ont. 389.

A motion to extend the time for setting down an appeal, or for doing any act or taking any proceeding in reference to the appeal may be made to a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division, or to a Judge of the High Court Division; section 44 (2) supra; such motion may be made before the papers are (under sec. 42) sent up to the Appellate Division.

Costs of C. C. appeals.

Costs.—Costs of the action and of the application are in the judicial discretion of the Court; Jud. Act, s. 74, post, they are usually ordered to follow the event of the motion, even though the Judge below has ex mero motu made an erroneous adjudication: Mills v. Hamilton Street Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 74; Eddy v. Ottawa, etc., 31 U. C. Q. B. 569, 576, but see Harris v. Robinson, 25 U. C. Q. B. 247; and though the Court has no jurisdiction to hear the appeal: Cote v. Halliday, 33 C. L. J. 120; S. C., sub nom., Cote v. Halliday, 17 C. L. T. 53; and see Teskey v. Neil, 15 P. R. 244; Hewgill v. Chadwick, 18 P. R. 359; but see contra, Powley v Whitehead, 16 U. C. Q. B. 589; and per Hagarty, C.J., 20 C. P., pp. 198-9; but they may be ordered to abide the result of a new trial, or the applicant, though successful, may be ordered to pay them as a condition of getting a new trial.

Abandonment of C. C. appeals.

Abandonment or Non-prosecution of a County Court Appeal.—Where an appeal has been properly lodged in the Supreme Court, in case of its abandonment or non-prosecution after service of notice, Rule 660 is applicable, and a motion to dismiss it is unnecessary: Re Toronto Ry. Co. and City of Toronto, 18 P. R. 489.

Setting down appeals.

The appeal must be set down for argument at the first sittings of a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division which commences after the expiration of thirty days from the judgment, order or decision complained of: see pp. 131, 133, supra.

A Divisional Court or a Judge of the High Court Division may extend the time for setting down the appeal, or for giving notice of setting down or for doing any act or taking any proceedings in or in relation to the appeal, and may if the certificate is incomplete or incorrect, direct the same to be amended, or to be sent back to the Judge for amendment: sec. 44 (2), supra.

The 30 days begin to run from the day on which the order or judgment appealed from was pronounced, but if not delivered in open Court it is not to be considered to be delivered until the parties are notified of it: Fawkes v. Swayzie, 31 Ont. 256; but the appellant is not obliged to wait the expiration of 30 days from the judgment or order before setting down the appeal: Lees v. Ottawa & N. Y. Ry., 31 Ont. 567; Smith v. Baptist Church, 1 O. L. R. 195.

Judgment on C. C. appeals.

Judgment of Appellate Division.—The judgment of the Court on appeals from the County Court, is issued in the form of a certificate: see The County Courts Act, sec. 46 (2), supra, p. 131.

Semble, the judgment, where the certificate has been drawn up and issued, is final, and cannot be reopened: Hessin v. Jones, 1914, 2 K. B. 421; 110 L. T. 773.

Appeals from Surrogate Courts.—Appeals from Surrogate Courts are regulated by the following provisions in The Surrogate Courts Act, (R. S. O. c. 62). Sec. 26. Appeals from Surrogate Courts.

34.—(1) Any person who deems himself aggrieved by an order, determination or judgment of a Surrogate Court, in any matter or cause, may appeal therefrom to a Divisional Court. To what Court

(2) No such appeal shall lie unless the value of the property to be affected by such order, determination or judgment, exceeds $200. When permitted

(3) The practice and procedure upon and in relation to an appeal shall be the same as is provided by The County Courts Act, as to appeals from the County Court. Practice Rev. Stat., c. 59

(4) A motion for a new trial after a trial by jury under section 28 shall be deemed to be an appeal and shall be made to a Divisional Court: 10 Edw. VII. c. 31, s. 34.

(5) An appeal shall also lie from any order, decision or determination of the Judge of a Surrogate Court, on the taking of accounts in like manner as from the report of a Master under a reference directed by the Supreme Court, and the practice and procedure upon and in relation to the appeal, shall be the same as upon an appeal from such a report. Appeal from audit of accounts.

(6) Sub-sections 2 and 3 shall not apply to the appeal provided for by sub-section 5: 1 Geo. V. c. 18, s. 2.

It will, therefore, be seen that in all appeals from a Surrogate Court except as to a decision on taking of accounts, the appeal is to be brought and prosecuted in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in like manner as appeals from a County Court: as to which, see supra, pp. 125-134. In what cases appeal lies from Surrogate Court.

An appeal lies to the Appellate Division from an order of a Surrogate Court Judge allowing compensation to an executor under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 67 (3): Re Alexander, 31 Ont. 167.

An appeal under The Surrogate Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 62), cannot be entertained unless lodged before any removal of the matter into the Supreme Court under s. 32 of that Act. Upon the making of an order for removal the matter becomes an action in the Supreme Court, and the practice to be followed is the practice prescribed in a Supreme Court proceeding: Justin v. Goodison, 18 P. R. 174. Must be lodged before removal of action.

Appeals under sub-section 5 in regard to decisions on the taking of accounts, are to be brought and prosecuted as nearly as may be in accordance with the practice relating to appeals from Masters' reports; as to which: see Rules 503-506. Presumably, in order to comply with these Rules, the certificate or order of the Judge appealed from should be filed in the Surrogate Court, and notice of filing served on the opposite party, and seven clear days' notice of the appeal must then be served on the respondent within one month from the date of service of the notice of filing. The appeal in this case is to a Judge of the High Court Division in the Weekly Court, and it would seem that an appeal would lie from his decision to the Appellate Division under the Jud. Act, s. 26, unless precluded by Jud. Act, sec. 25.

Security for Costs of Appeal.—By Rule 57 of the Surrogate Court Rules, in appeals under s. 34, s.-s. 1 and 2, the appellant was required to give security for costs in the sum of $200. As the practice and procedure on appeals from the Surrogate Court (except under s. 34 (5)) Security for costs of appeal from Surrogate Court.

are now to be the same as is provided by The County Courts Act, and under that Act no security for costs of an appeal is required, it is probable that the Surrogate Court Rule 57 may be held to have been impliedly abrogated.

The service of a notice of appeal, and the deposit with the Registrar of the Surrogate Court, as security, of an unmarked cheek for $100, payable to the order of the Registrar, but never cashed by him, was held not to be compliance with Surrogate Court Rule 57, and, therefore, the appeal, not having been lodged and brought within the time required by The Surrogate Courts Act, was quashed: Re Wilson, 17 P. R. 407.

If Surrogate Court Rule 57 is not abrogated then on an appeal from an order of the Surrogate Court, coming under s. 34 (1), security must be given, and an affidavit of the value of the property affected filed, as required by Surrogate Court Rule 57. Unless this be done an appeal is not properly lodged, and may be quashed: Re Nichol, 1 O. L. R. 213.*

Affidavit of value of properties in question.

Affidavit of Value of Property.—Whether the filing of an affidavit of the value of the property in question as required by Surrogate Court Rule 57 (4) is necessary in appeals under s. 34 supra, is also problematical, no such affidavit being required according to the practice in County Court Appeals.*

Notice of appeal.

Notice of Appeal.—Service of notice of appeal would appear to be necessary though not expressly provided for: see supra, p. 134.

A notice of appeal not specifying that it was to a Divisional Court, or any Court, and a bond reciting that the appellant desired to appeal to the Court of Appeal, were held not to be defects sufficient to have an appeal quashed: Taylor v. Delaney, 3 O. L. R. 380. Certain defects in Surrogate Court Rule 59 and forms are pointed out in this case.

Division Court appeals.

Division Court Appeals.—Appeals from Division Courts are regulated by The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 63). The following are the provisions of that Act relating to appeals:

Parties may agree not to appeal.

107. An appeal shall not lie if, before the commencement of the trial, there is filed with the clerk an agreement in writing not to appeal, signed by the parties, or their agents, and the Judge shall note in his minutes whether such agreement was so filed or not, and the minutes shall be conclusive evidence on that point. 10 Edw. VII. c. 32, s. 107.

Appeals to Divisional Court.

125. Subject to the provisions of section 107 an appeal shall lie to a Divisional Court from the decision of a Judge at or after the trial, or upon an application for a new trial, except in cases where a new trial has been granted,—

(a) In an action or garnishee proceeding where the sum in dispute exceeds $100 exclusive of costs;

* I am informed by Mr. Justice Middleton that it has been ruled in the Appellate Division that the effect of the provision of The Surrogate Court Act as to appeals is to abrogate the Surrogate Court Rules on that subject, but I have been unable to find the case in which that ruling was made.—G.S.H.

(b) in interpleader where the money or the value of the goods or chattels claimed or proceeds thereof exceeds $100, or where the damage claimed by or awarded to either party against the other or against a bailiff exceeds the sum of $60; Sec. 26.

(c) Where the parties consent to an appeal; or

(d) Where the effect of the decision is to determine that any general assessment made by a mutual insurance company is invalid; but the company, unless the Divisional Court otherwise directs, shall pay the respondents' costs of the appeal between solicitor and client on the County Court scale in any event. 10 Edw. VII. c. 32, s. 125.

Agents for service where right to appeal.

126.—(1) Where an appeal lies, each party shall, before or at the trial, leave with the clerk a memorandum in writing of the name and place of abode of some person resident within the county town upon whom the notice of appeal, and all other papers thereafter requiring service, may be served for him, and service upon such person, or in his absence, at his place of abode, shall be sufficient; and in the event of failure to leave such memorandum, all papers requiring service upon the party so failing may be served upon the clerk or left at his office, and the clerk shall forthwith send, by registered post, all papers so served upon him, to the person entitled thereto.

Case of Judicial District.

(2) This section shall not apply to a Provisional Judicial District: 10 Edw. VII. c. 32, s. 126.

Certified proceedings, etc., to be furnished by Clerk.

127. The Clerk shall at the request of the appellant, or his agent, certify under his hand to the Clerk of the Central Office at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, the summons with all notices indorsed thereon, the claim, and any notice of defence, the evidence and all objections and exceptions thereto, and all motions or orders made, granted or refused therein, together with such notes of the Judge's charge as may have been made, the decision when in writing, or the notes thereof, and all affidavits and other papers in the action, the whole hereinafter called the appeal case; and the clerk shall furnish to the parties, when required so to do, copies of the proceeding so certified, or such part thereof as may be required, and for every copy he shall be entitled to receive five cents for every one hundred words: 10 Edw. VII. c. 32, s. 127.

Procedure upon appeal from Division Court.

128.—(1) The appellant shall, within two weeks after the date of the decision complained of or within such other time as the Judge may order, file the appeal case with the proper officer of the Supreme Court, and shall set down the appeal to be heard at the latest two clear days before the first sittings of a Divisional Court which commences after the expiration of thirty days from the decision complained of, and shall give notice thereof and of the appeal, stating the grounds thereof, to the respondent, his solicitor or agent, at least seven days before the commencement of such sittings; and the Divisional Court shall have power to dismiss the appeal or to give any judgment and make any order which ought to have been made, or to grant a new trial, and shall give such order or direction to the Court below touching the decision or judgment to be given in the matter as the law requires, and may award costs in its discretion which shall be certified to and form part of the judgment of the Court below, and upon receipt of such order, direction and certificate, the Court below shall proceed in accordance therewith.

Sec. 26.

Powers of Divisional Court on appeal.

(2) The Divisional Court shall be deemed to be seized of the appeal if and when the appeal case is filed; and subject to Rules of the Court, may extend the time for setting down the appeal and for giving notice thereof and of the appeal, and for doing any act or taking any proceeding in or in relation to the appeal; and may, if the appeal case is incomplete or inaccurate, direct the same to be amended or to be sent back to the clerk for amendment; and may also allow the notice of appeal to be amended.

Stay of proceedings.

(3) After the appeal has been set down to be heard, the execution of the judgment appealed from shall be stayed pending the appeal, unless otherwise ordered by a Judge of the Supreme Court. 10 Edw. VII. c. 32, s. 128.

Taxable costs on appeal.

129. The costs taxable, between party and party of and incidental to an appeal, shall be the actual disbursements, and no greater amount over and above actual disbursements than $15, inclusive of counsel fee; the costs of an appeal between solicitor and client shall be taxable on the County Court scale. 10 Edw. VII. c. 32, s. 129.

Where a new trial is desired, an appeal does not lie until a new trial has been applied for and refused: see sec. 125 supra, and Cole v. Halliday, 33 C. L. J. 120; 17 C. L. T. 53.

Omission to take notes of evidence.

The right of appeal from a Division Court is not lost because the Judge of the Division Court omits to take notes of the evidence: see Sullivan v. Francis, 18 Ont. App. 121; Wohlgemuthe v. Coste, 1899, 1 Q. B. 501; 80 L. T. 529. Where the evidence in such a case cannot be agreed on, or otherwise supplied, it may be necessary for the Divisional Court to remit the case to the Judge to take the evidence upon a new trial: Davidson v. Head, 18 C. L. T. 260; 34 C. L. J. 415.

The agreement not to appeal under s. 107 supra, where the amount claimed exceeds $100, must be in writing and filed: a verbal consent is not sufficient: Davidson v. Head, 18 C. L. T. 260; 34 C. L. J. 415.

Appeal, when lodged.

The filing of the appeal case and the giving of notice of setting down for argument before the Divisional Court, with the grounds of appeal required by sec. 128 (1) supra, is a condition precedent to the right to appeal, and if not given the Divisional Court has no jurisdiction to deal with the appeal: Bradley v. Wilson, 8 O. L. R. 184.

The Divisional Court has no jurisdiction to extend the time for taking steps in a Division Court appeal prior to the case being lodged; such a matter is for the Judge of the Court below: Owen v. Sprung, 28 Ont. 607.

After a certified copy of the proceedings has been filed in the office of the Registrar of the Appellate Division in proper time, the appeal is lodged, and the subsequent proceedings relating to the appeal, are in the discretion of the appellate Court, and that Court may allow an amendment and enlarge the time, etc.: see sec. 128 (2) supra.

Further opportunity was given to supply a notice of appeal, where it could be given within the proper time: Smith v. Port Colborne, etc., 1 O. L. R. 195.

An appeal may be quashed where "the sum in dispute upon the appeal" does not exceed $100, exclusive of costs: Lambert v. Clarke, 7 O. L. R. 130; see sec. 125 (a) supra, unless the case is one within sec. 125 (b); and an appeal which has been duly lodged may be dismissed if not set down 2 clear days before the sitting of the Divisional Court commencing next after the expiration of 30 days from the decision complained of: see Heise v. Shanks, 1 O. L. R. 48; and supra, s. 128 (1); but the time may be extended by the Divisional Court: see s. 128 (2) supra. Sec. 26.

Procedure.—The appeal, if any, is to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The sittings of the Divisional Court of that Division commence on the first Monday in each month, except during vacations, or where such day is a holiday and then on the next juridical day thereafter; and except during January and September, when the sittings commence on the first Monday after the 6th of January, and the first Monday after the 15th day of September. Procedure on appeals from Division Courts.

The appeal case must be certified by the Clerk of the Division Court, as required by s. 127 supra, and filed with the Registrar of the Appellate Division within two weeks from the date of the decision complained of, or within such further time as the Judge of the Division Court may allow. But semble, he cannot extend the time for filing the case so as to extend the time prescribed for setting down the appeal.

The appeal must be set down two clear days before the sittings, commencing thirty days next after the decision complained of: s. 128 (1) supra. Setting down.

The Appellate Division is not seized of the appeal until the case is filed: s. 128 (2) supra, and until then, it would seem to have no power to entertain any interlocutory application regarding the appeal. After it is filed it may extend the time for setting down the appeal or giving notice thereof and of the appeal, and may refer the case back to the Clerk of the Division Court for correction or amendment if necessary: Ib., and may also allow the notice of appeal to be amended. Probably under Rule 207 (4) all interlocutory motions of that kind may be made to a Judge in Chambers.

Notice of Appeal.—The notice of the appeal may be served on the person named in the notice required to be filed with the Clerk of the Division Court as provided by s. 126 supra, or on some grown up person at his abode, or if no notice has been filed, then the notice may be left with the Clerk of the Division Court with the necessary postage for its transmission in a prepaid registered letter to the person "entitled thereto" that is to say, the respondent in the appeal. The notice of appeal is to state the grounds thereof, and must be served as above mentioned, at least seven days before the commencement of the sittings for which the appeal is set down to be heard; for form of notice: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1199a. Notice of appeal.

Stay of Proceedings Pending Appeal.—The setting down of the appeal (not the filing of the case), operates as a stay of execution pending the appeal: s. 128 (3) supra. Stay of proceedings.

Judgment on Appeal.—The judgment of the Appellate Division should be in the form of a certificate as in the case of County Court appeals: see s. 128 (1). The form in H. & L. Forms, 955-960, therefore, should now be followed, and not Nos. 960 and 961. Judgment.

R. S. C. c. 146. Appeals under The Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146).

Applications to quash convictions are regulated by the following:—

RULES PASSED 27TH MARCH, 1908, UNDER THE CRIMINAL CODE.

Rules of Court, notice of motion in lieu of certiorari. 1279. In all cases in which it is desired to move to quash a conviction, order, warrant or inquisition, the proceeding shall be by a notice of motion in the first instance instead of by certiorari, or by rule or order nisi.

This Rule was considered to be ultra vires in so far as it purports to abolish the writ of certiorari: Rex v. Titchmorsh, 6 O. W. N. 317.

Service of notice. 1280. The notice of motion shall be served at least six days before the return day thereof, upon the Magistrate, Justice or Justices making the conviction or order, or issuing the warrant, or the coroner making the inquisition, and also upon the prosecutor or informant (if any), and upon the Clerk of the Peace if the proceedings have been returned to his office, and it shall specify the objections intended to be raised.

Indorsement of notice. 1281. Upon the notice of motion shall be indorsed a copy of Rule Number 1282 together with a notice in the following form, addressed as the case may be;

"You are hereby required forthwith after service hereof to return to the Central Office at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, the conviction (or as the case may be) herein referred to, together with the information and evidence, if any, and all things touching the matter, as fully and as entirely as they remain in your custody, together with this notice. Sec. 26.

Dated

To A. B.

Magistrate at (or as the case may be).

C. D.,

Solicitor for the applicant."

1282. Upon receiving the notice so endorsed, the Magistrate, Justice or Justices, Coroner or Clerk of the Peace, shall forthwith return to the Central Office at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, the conviction, order, warrant or inquisition, together with the information and evidence, if any, and all things touching the matter, and the notice served upon him with a certificate endorsed thereupon in the following form: Return thereto.

"Pursuant to the accompanying notice I herewith return to this Honourable Court the following papers and documents, that is to say:

"1. The conviction (or as the case may be);

"2. The information and the warrant issued thereon;

"3. The evidence taken at the hearing;

"4. (Any other papers or documents touching the matter)."

"And I hereby certify to this Honourable Court that I have above truly set forth all the papers and documents in my custody or power relating to the matter set forth in the said notice of motion."

1283. The certificate shall have the same effect as a return to a writ of certiorari. Effect of return.

1284. The notice shall be returnable before a Judge of the High Court of Justice* for Ontario sitting in Chambers. To whom to be made.

1285. The motion shall not be entertained unless the return day thereof be within six months after the conviction, order, warrant or inquisition, or unless the applicant is shewn to have entered into a recognizance with one or more sufficient sureties in the sum of $100 before a Justice or Justices of the County within which the conviction, order or inquisition was made or the warrant issued or before a Judge of the County Court of the said County or before a Judge of the High Court, and which recognizance with an affidavit of the due execution thereof shall be filed with the Registrar of the Court in which such motion is made or is pending, or unless the applicant is shewn to have made the deposit of the like sum of $100, with the Registrar of the Court in which such motion is made with or upon the condition that he will prosecute such application at his own costs and charges without any wilful or affected delay and that he will pay the person in whose favour the conviction, order or other proceeding is affirmed his full costs and charges to be taxed according to the course of the Court in case the conviction, order or other proceeding is affirmed. Security required.

*These Rules appear to need amendment here: see 3-4 Geo. V. c. 50, s. 2 D.

Sec. 26. Power of Judge.

1286. The Judge shall have all the powers of the Court in the like matters and may order the production of papers and documents as he may deem necessary.

Appeal from Judge.

1287. An appeal shall lie from the order of the Judge to a Divisional Court if leave be granted by a Judge of the High Court.*

Repeal

1288. The Rule passed by the High Court on the 17th day of November, 1886, under the authority of 49 V., c. 49, s. 6 (D.), and all Rules and parts of Rules inconsistent with the next preceding nine Rules are hereby repealed.

These Rules shall come into force on the first day of September next.

The above Rules are still in force and applicable to criminal proceedings in the Supreme Court of Ontario as at present constituted: Rex v. Titchmarsh, 6 O. W. N. 317.

Appeals under The Succession Duty Act (R. S. O. c. 124), see s. 14: Re Marshall, 20 O. L. R. 116. The procedure on such appeals would appear to be governed by Rules 491-494 so far as possible.

R. S. O. c. 129.

Appeals under The Water Privileges Act (R. S. O. c. 129), see s. 17. The procedure on such appeal, except as specially provided by the Act, or by the Judge who grants leave to appeal, is to be the same as on County Court Appeals: Ib., s.-s. 6. The costs of such appeals are in the discretion of the Divisional Court, and are not part of "the practice and procedure upon the appeal," which are subject to regulation by the Judge to whom application for leave is made, under s. 17 (4): Re Burnham, 16 P. R. 390.

R. S. O. c. 130.

Appeals under The Rivers and Streams Act (R. S. O. c. 130); see s. 12, which governs the procedure on such appeals.

Appeals under The Dominion Railway Act (R. S. O. c. 37): see Re Birely v. T. H. & B. Ry. in note preceding s. 24, supra, p. 119.

Court may pronounce proper judgment.

27.—(1) The Court upon an appeal may give any judgment which ought to have been pronounced and may make such further or other order as may be deemed just.

*These Rules appear to need amendment here: see 3-4 Geo. V. c. 50, s. 2 D.

Sec. 27.

Power to draw inferences of fact and to give judgment if all necessary materials before the Court.

2) The Court shall have power to draw inferences of t not inconsistent with any finding of the jury which not set aside, and if satisfied that there are before the urt all the materials necessary for finally determining matters in controversy, or any of them, or for awarding any relief sought, the Court may give judgment ordingly, but if the Court is of opinion that there are sufficient materials before it to enable it to give judgnt the Court may direct the appeal to stand over for ther consideration and may direct that such issues or stions of fact be tried and determined and such neunts be taken and such inquiries be made as may be emed necessary to enable the Court on such further sideration finally to dispose of the matters in conversy.

Or to direct further inquiry.

Where appeal is against part only.

3) The powers conferred by sub-sections 1 and 2 y be exercised notwithstanding that the appeal is as to rt only of the judgment, order or decision, and may be ercised in favour of all or any of the parties, although y may not have appealed. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 27.

Notwithstanding the general terms of this section it would not n possible for the Court to reverse a judgment in respect of which e was no appeal, e.g., if an action has been dismissed against a endant at the trial, and there is no appeal by the plaintiff against dismissal it would not appear possible for the Court, upon an al against another defendant, to reverse the judgment as to the endant as to whom there was no appeal. But a variation in favour a non-appealing party may sometimes be made: see infra. Subion 2 is based on C. R. 817. It also appears to be based to some ent on the provisions of C. R. 615, which provided that,—

On motion for judgment or new trial final judgment may be given by Court.

Upon a motion for judgment, or for a new trial, the Court might, t was satisfied that it had before it all the materials necessary finally determining the questions in dispute, or any of them, or awarding any relief sought, give judgment accordingly, or might t was of opinion that it had not sufficient materials before it to ble it to give judgment, direct the motion to stand over for further sideration, and direct such issues or questions to be tried or deterd, and such accounts and inquiries to be taken and made as it ht think fit.

That Rule has not been continued, and its provisions, so far as ered by sub-sec. 2, supra, now apply only on appeal to the Appellate ision, and no longer to motions for judgment, but it is probable no material change in the practice in this respect has been made. er a Rule in England, similar to sub-sec. 2, supra, it was held that n the Court is satisfied that the verdict is against the weight of dence, and considers that all the facts are before it, and the inferes to be drawn are such as no jury could properly find differently, it enter judgment accordingly, instead of ordering a new trial:

Millar v. Toulmin, 17 Q. B. D. 603; 12 App. Cas. 746; Altcock v. Hall, 1891, 1 Q. B. 444; Bryant v. N. M. Tramways Co., 6 T. L. R. 396; Paquin v. Beauclerk, 1906, A. C. 148; 94 L. T. 350; but see infra.

An appellate Court has power to enter a verdict in accordance with what it deems to be the true construction of the findings, coupled with other facts, either admitted, or so clearly proved, that there could be no controversy about them, but has no power to enter a verdict in direct opposition to the finding of the jury upon a material issue, upon which there was evidence to go to the jury: Moore v. Connecticut Mutual, 6 App. Cas. 644; see also Perkins v. Dangerfield, 51 L. T. 535; W. N. 1879, 172; Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex. D. 122; and Millissich v. Lloyds, 40 L. J. C. P. 404; W. N. 1877, 36; Sewell v. B. C. Towing Co., 20 C. L. J. 170; 4 C. L. T. 844; 9 S. C. R. 527; Macdonald v. Mail Pub. Co., 32 Ont. 163.

Judgment contrary to finding of jury.

Appellate Courts have, however, assumed to give judgment not in accordance with the finding of the jury, where the Court considered that the most convenient course was not to send the case for the opinion of another jury, but to enter a judgment in accordance with its own views, upon the whole case, and where it considered that it had the proper materials before it upon which to decide: see Hamilton v. Johnson, 5 Q. B. D. 263, 266; Lancey v. Brake, 10 Ont. 428; James v. Clement, 13 Ont. 115; Palmer v. Miller, Ib., 576; Campbell v. Cole, 7 Ont. 127; St. Denis v. Baxter, 15 Ont. App. 387; Sibbald v. Grand Trunk Ry., 18 Ont. App. at p. 197 (see, however, per Burton, J.A., at p. 207), Clayton v. Patterson, 32 Ont. 435; Jackson v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 689; 32 S. C. R. 245; or finally determine all questions in dispute though the jury might not have found upon them all: Sewell v. British Columbia Towing Co., supra; Smith v. Northern Construction Company, 30 O. L. R. 494. And where the case was one in which no additional facts remained to be proved, and in which, upon the facts proved, no jury would be justified in finding a verdict against the party in whose favour the Court thought that judgment should be given; the Court held that it had before it all the materials necessary for finally determining the questions in dispute, and acted under C. R. 615: Yorkshire Banking Company v. Beatson, 5 C. P. D. 109, 127; Bobbett v. S. E. Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 430; Stewart v. Rounds, 7 Ont. App. 515, 519; McConnell v. Wilkins, 13 Ont. App. 438; Sheppard Pub. Co. v. Press Publishing Co., 10 O. L. R. 243; Paquin v. Beauclerk, 1906, A. C. 161; and this was done, where the parties did not object, in a case where the Court was of opinion that the Judge at the trial had improperly usurped the functions of the jury on a question of fact which should have been left to them: Pearce v. Lansdowne, 69 L. T. 316.

Whether verdict of jury can be disregarded.

But later cases seem to indicate that where a case has been tried by a jury, and the Appellate Court is dissatisfied with the verdict, it ought not in any circumstances, without the consent of both parties, to usurp the functions of a jury, but ought, unless it affirms the judgment, to order a new trial: see Toronto Railway v. King, 1908, A. C. 260; Watt v. Watt, 1905, A. C. 115; 92 L. T. 480; and where a case had been properly submitted to a jury and the jury had disagreed it was considered not to be proper to act under sub-sec. 2, because further evidence might be produced on a new trial which would support a verdict for the plaintiff: Skeate v. Slaters, 1914, 2 K. B. 429; and where some of the findings of the jury are set aside, but others are left undisturbed, the Court cannot direct a judgment to be entered upon its own view of the facts, where such a view is irreconcilable with the nquestioned findings of the jury: Ogilvie v. West Australian M. & A. Sec. 27.

orp., 1896, A. C. 257; 74 L. T. 201. Where a case was tried by a Judge ithout a jury the Court refused to interfere with the finding of the udge on conflicting evidence: Sawyer v. Hodgson, 18 O. L. R. 333; and here there was a conflict of evidence, and the Judge who tried the use without a jury, attributed greater weight to the evidence of some itnesses than others, but in the opinion of the Court, took a wrong ew of the law, the Court refused to give judgment on the evidence, nd sent the case for a new trial: Canada Landed Credit Co. v. Thomp- n, 8 Ont. App. 696.

The power to enter a judgment contrary to the finding of a jury, if exists, at all events, ought to be most sparingly and cautiously exersed: see per Wilson, C.J., in Stewart v. Rounds, supra; and Clayton Patterson, 32 Ont. 435; and will not be exercised where there is evince which ought properly to go to a jury: Brewster v. Durrand, W.
1880, 27; or where, if a new trial were ordered, further evidence ight be adduced: Clark v. Molyneux, 3 Q. B. D. 237, 245; see Baker
Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 11 Ont. App. 72: Hardman v. Putnam, 18
C. R. 714.

In Millasich v. Lloyds, 46 L. J. C. P. 404; W. N. 1877, 36, an action libel, the Court held that whether the report of a trial in question s a fair one or not, was a question for the jury, which the Court uld not withdraw from them: see also Clouston v. Corry, 1906, A. C.
2; but in McGuire v. Western Morning News, 1903, 2 K. B. 100; 88
T. 757; which was an action for libel contained in a criticism of a y, the Court held that if the alleged libel only amounted to fair mment it was the duty of the Judge at the trial to withdraw the case om the jury.

If the Appellate Court finds that the damages awarded by a jury Damages excessive.
e excessive, it must grant a new trial, it has no power, unless both rties consent, to reduce the damages to a sum which it thinks pror: Watt v. Watt, supra.

erpleader issue: Daun v. Simmins, 40 L. T. 556; 41 L. T. 783; 28 W.
129; W. N. 1879, 178, where a non-suit was entered, after a verdict plaintiff, and though the rule only asked for a new trial, the Court

The Court declined to act under C. R. 615 in Garland v. Thompson, 9
. 376; see also Hislop v. McGillivray, 7 C. L. T. 37; Clouston v.
rry, 1906, A. C. 122.

An appellate Court has pronounced the proper judgment on the lings of the jury in a case where the Judge who tried the action sidered the findings insufficient to warrant a judgment for either ty: Stevens v. Grout, 16 P. R. 210.

Sec. 28.

Under this section the Appellate Division may vary a judgment appealed from in favour of a respondent who has not given any notice of cross appeal: Attorney-General v. Simpson, 1901. 2 Ch. 671; 85 L. T. 325; see also Challoner v. Lobo, 1 O. L. R. 292; 32 S. C. R. 505, where such variation is necessarily consequent on the relief given to the appellant.

Court equally divided costs.

Where the Court of Appeal is equally divided the judgment in appeal is affirmed, and usually with costs; Long v. Hancock, 12 Ont. App. 156; but the Court may refuse to give costs: Re Stratford & Huron Ry. & Perth, 38 U. C. Q. B. 112; and where, on a motion to quash the Court was equally divided in opinion as to their jurisdiction to hear the appeal, no costs were given: Whiting v. Hovey, 12 Ont. App. 119.

In the Supreme Court of Canada the practice in such a case seems uniformly to have been to give no costs, though the Court may give the respondent costs where it thinks that course would be proper: see Poulin v. Quebec, 9 S. C. R. 185, and Cassel's Dig. p. 676.

In the House of Lords where an appeal is dismissed on the ground of an equal division of opinion, no costs are ever given: see per Loreburn, L.C., Paquin v. Beauclerk, 1906, A. C. 148; 94 L. T. at p. 354; and see Smith v. Lion Brewery Co., 1911, A. C. 150; 104 L. T. 421.

Where a decision is affirmed in consequence of the appellate Court being equally divided, it has been held that the appellate Court is not bound by the decision, where the point involved arises in a subsequent case: Re Stanstead Election, 20 S. C. R. 12; see also Clarkson v. Atty.-Gen., 16 Ont. App. 202.

Costs.

As to costs in the case of a non-suit set aside, where respondents contended that the Judge had acted ex mero motu: see Mills v. Hamilton St. Ry., 17 P. R. 74.

Where an objection, held to be fatal, was taken by an applicant on appeal, but had not been taken in the Court below, the appellant was allowed costs of the appeal, but not costs of the hearing in the Court below: Re O. C. S., a Debtor, 1904, 2 K. B. 161. See also Horton v. Bosson 1899 W. N. 23, 38.

New trial not to be granted in certain cases.

28.—(1) A new trial shall not be granted on the ground of misdirection or of the improper admission or rejection of evidence, or because the verdict of the jury was not taken upon a question which the judge at the trial was not asked to leave to the jury, unless some substantial wrong or miscarriage has been thereby occasioned.

Judgment as to one part and new trial as to others.

(2) If it appears that a substantial wrong or miscarriage was so occasioned but it affected part only of the matter in controversy or some or one only of the parties, the Court may give final judgment as to any part or any party not so affected, and direct a new trial as to the other part only, or only as to the other parties. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 28.

Grounds for New Trial.—The following are grounds for granting new trial:— Sec. 28.

Grounds for new trial

1. Improper admission, or rejection, of evidence.

2. The improper non-suiting of the plaintiff.

3. Misdirection of the jury.

4. Perverse verdict, or verdict against the weight of evidence.

5. Verdict for too small, or too great damages; or damages assessed improper basis.

6. Surprise, and discovery of new evidence: see Arch. Pr., 13th ., 1210.

7. Mistrial: e.g., improper conduct of the parties or others, which s prejudiced the fair trial of the action: e.g., by interfering with e jury: see Tiffony v. McNee, 24 Ont. 551; Stewart v. Woolman, Ont. 714; or where one of the parties has been denied his right of allenge unc : R. S. O. c. 64, ss. 74, 75; or allowed, in spite of protest, ore challenges than he was entitled to: Empey v. Carscallen, 24 t. 658; misconduct of juror: Laughlin v. Harvey, 24 Ont. App. 8; bias of jury, or inclusion in jury of a person not on the jury nel, or of a person too deaf to hear the evidence: Comeron v. tawa E. Ry., 32 Ont. 24; discussion of case by litigant and his wit- sses with two of the jurors: Kellum v. Roberts, 31 O. L. R. 159. Mistrial.

"Substantial Wrong or Miscarriage."—Substantial wrong was nsidered to have occurred where, amongst other things, inadmis- le evidence was received after objection to it, and was commented by the Judge in his charge, as being important: Bank of Hamilton Isaacs, 16 Ont. 450; so also in an action under The Workmen's Com- nsation Act evidence was given that the plaintiff was indemnified ainst loss in respect of the injury complained of, although the dge warned the jury that they were not to take it into accoun ughead v. Collingwood Shipbuilding Co., 16 O. L. R. 64; and the king of the question whether the defendants were not indemnified, ough not answered, was held to be a ground for a new trial: Hynd- n v. Stephens, 48 C. L. J. 684; 19 Man. 167. "Substantial wrong," or miscarriage.

In an action for libel where there has been misdirection as to any terial part of the alleged libel, there is a "substantial wrong." d a new trial must be ordered, although the Court may be of opin- that other parts of the libel were sufficient to justify the damages en: Bray v. Ford, 1896, A. C. 44; 73 L. T. 609; but see Floyd v. Gib- r, 100 L. T. 761. Libel actions.

A new trial was refused on a point not taken at the trial in Eyre Highway Board, etc., 8 T. L. R. 648; but there is no hard and fast e which absolutely forbids the Court from entertaining an objection misdirection though not taken at the trial: Brenner v. Toronto Ry., O. L. R. 195; 40 S. C. R. 540; see also Mognussen v. L'Abbe, 24 O. R. 376. Point not taken at trial.

Where the real issue has not been passed on by the jury a new trial uld be granted: Dunsmuir v. Lowenberg, 34 S. C. R. 228; Burmon Ottawa Electric Ry., 21 O. L. R. 446. A new trial was granted on ms as to costs, where the senior counsel of the defendant was de- ned at the Assizes at another place, and the junior counsel after uccessfully applying for a postponement withdrew from the case, d it was tried in the absence of anyone representing the defendant: ahen v. Toronto Ry., 2 O. W. N. 1263. The admission of more than Real issue not passed upon.

three experts as witnesses contrary to The Evidence Act (R. S. O. c. 76), s. 10, was held to be ground for granting a new trial: Rice v. Sockett, 27 O. L. R. 410.

Cases of "substantial wrong."

For other cases as to what amounts to "substantial wrong," see Pickup v. Thames Insurance Co., 3 Q. B. D. 594; Shapcott v. Chappell, 12 Q. B. D. 58 (rejection of evidence); Swift v. Nunn, W. N. 1878, 217; McDonald v. Murray, 5 Ont. 559 (misdirection); Howell v. Listowel Rink & Park Co., 13 Ont. 476 (misdirection); Wells v. Lindop, 15 Ont. App. 695 (misdirection); Hesse v. St. John Ry. Co., 30 S. C. R. 218 (misdirection); Dakyl v. Labouchere, 96 L. T. 399; Hunt v. Star, (1908) 2 K. B. 309 (misdirection in libel).

Cases in which no "substantial wrong."

A plaintiff is not entitled to a new trial for rejection of evidence, which on the pleadings he was not entitled to give: Milligan v. Jamieson, 4 O. L. R. 650. Nor where the case has been improperly withdrawn from the jury and judgment given for defendant, if the appellate Court finds that the only verdict which could be properly given by a jury would be in favour of the defendant: Goddard v. Midland Ry., 80 L. T. 624; nor will a new trial be granted to a plaintiff where he would only be entitled to nominal damages: Simonds v. Chesley, 20 S. C. R. 174; Scammell v. Clarke, 23 S. C. R. 307; Milligan v. Jamieson, supra, or where on the findings, the damages were inappreciable: Kerry v. England, 1898, A. C. 742.

So also a new trial was refused where the jury negatived contributory negligence, notwithstanding that the plaintiff's conduct had been characterized by some degree of recklessness: Milligan v. Toronto Ry., 17 O. L. R. 530; 42 S. C. R. 238.

Refusal to allow witness to be treated as hostile.

The defendant's counsel, in order to shew that a witness called by him was hostile, and to treat him as such under s. 22 of the C. L. P. Act (Eng.), asked the Judge to look at the affidavit of a witness in a former action. As there was nothing in the witness's demeanour, or way in which he gave his evidence, to shew that he was hostile, the Judge refused to look at the affidavit, and it was held on motion for a new trial that the Judge's discretion was absolute, and the Court had no jurisdiction to review his decision: Rice v. Howard, 16 Q. B. D. 681.

Conduct of counsel at trial.

An appeal by counsel to the local prejudices of the jury was held by Robertson, J., to be a ground for a new trial; see Forwood v. Toronto, 22 Ont. 362-3; but a new trial was refused on the ground that counsel at the trial improperly inflamed the minds of the jury, the objection not having been taken at the trial: Sornberger v. Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., 24 Ont. App. 263. The exhibition of the injury for which the action is brought, to the jury, for the purpose of having it explained by a medical witness is admissible: Ib.: but not for the purpose of enabling the jury to form their own opinion and conclusions therefrom, and, if so used, a new trial will be ordered: Laughlin v. Harvey, 24 Ont. App. 438.

Although it is improper for counsel to state to the jury the amount of damages claimed where the action is in tort (see per Lord Halsbury, L.C., Wott v. Watt, 1905, A. C. 115) still such statement was held not to be of itself sufficient ground for granting a new trial: see Bradenburg v. Ottawa Elec. Ry., 19 O. L. R. 34.

Questions to jury.

A new trial was refused for error in the form of questions submitted to a jury, when no wrong or miscarriage of justice was occasioned thereby: Winnipeg Electric Ry. v. Wald, 41 S. C. R. 431. Where a jury found in answer to questions that the defendants had been guilty of gligence in omitting to do a certain act, which as a matter of law Sec. 28.

e Court found to be no negligence, a new trial was refused, the apllate Court considering that the effect of the finding was to negative e other grounds of alleged negligence submitted to the jury: Mcow v. Toronto Ry., 18 O. L. R. 154.

Where a jury are entitled to find, and do find, a general verdict, it not competent for the Judge to put a question to the jury and give igment upon their finding on that question contrary to the verdict:
nold v. Jeffreys, 110 L. T. 296.

The omission to swear a juror, where no injustice was done, is not Omission to swear juror.
ground for a new trial: Goose v. G. T. Ry. Co., 9 C. L. T. 403; nor e fact that a juryman was challenged for cause, the party moving the new trial having accepted the opinion of the Judge that there s no cause, and having proceeded with the trial: Wood v. McPherson, Ont. 163.

Where defendants, separately defending, and separately represented Improper allowance of challenge.
the trial, claimed the right of 4 peremptory challenges each, which spite of objection was allowed them, a new trial was ordered:
pey v. Carscallen, 24 Ont. 658.

Where a jury have been allowed to separate before giving their Misconduct of jury, or suitors.
dict, but their verdict is subsequently taken without objection, with knowledge of the fact, the objection to their having been wed to separate is waived: Coleman v. Toronto, 23 Ont. 345; and ere, pending the trial, a newspaper containing comments calculated prejudice the fair trial has been read by many of the jurors, and, h knowledge of the fact, the parties go on with the trial without ection, the objection is waived: Tiffany v. McNee, 24 Ont. 551.
ere a plaintiff had had conversations with a member of the jury ing the trial, and his brother, and also his solicitor, had treated e of them to drinks, a new trial was ordered: Stewart v. Woolman, Ont. 714; and see Kellum v. Roberts, supra, p. 147.

But a new trial ought not to be granted merely because the appel- Inferences.
Court does not agree with the inferences drawn by the jury from evidence: Toronto Ry. v. King, 1908, A. C. 260; 98 L. T. 650.

Where during the defendant's evidence the jury stated that they heard enough evidence, and the defendants thereupon refrained adducing further evidence, and the jury found a verdict for the ntiff, a new trial was ordered: Biggs v. Evans, 106 L. T. 796.

Where a jury disagree and the parties agree to accept the verdict Agreement to accept majority verdict.
he majority, such agreement does not preclude either party from ing against the verdict: Groom v. Shuker, 69 L. T. 293. The ement is no more than to accept the verdict as if it had been nimous.

Misdirection.—Formerly a misdirection by the Judge in point of Misdirection. or the improper admission or rejection of evidence in any erial matter was, at Law, ground for a new trial as of right. The mon Law Courts had only the power to grant a new trial of the on generally: see Faund v. Wallace, 35 L. T. 361. This practice altered by The Administration of Justice Act: see R. S. O. 1877, . s. 239, which contained a provision to the same effect as the ent section.

Sec. 28. A new trial may now be ordered on a particular question: see also s. 29 post.

Contributory negligence. "Was the plaintiff guilty of contributory negligence?" is an improper question to put to a jury, involving as it does both fact and law: Brown v. London St. Ry., 2 O. L. R. 53. It is preferable to ask "could the plaintiff by the exercise of reasonable care have avoided the accident?" If so, in what respect do you think the plaintiff omitted to take reasonable care?": Ib., but an error in the form of a question submitted to the jury will not be sufficient to warrant the granting of a new trial if no substantial injustice has been done thereby: Winnipeg Electric Ry. v. Wold, 41 S. C. R. 431.

Fraud. Refusal to charge a jury as to what would constitute fraud under the Statute of Elizabeth, in an action to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance, was held to be misdirection and a new trial was ordered: Griffiths v. Boscovitz, 1 S. C. Cas. 245. So also, an omission to charge the jury as to the manner in which they should apply the law to their finding of facts in a case where negligence was in issue was held to be misdirection: Spencer v. Alaska Packers Association, 35 S. C. R. 362. So also the withdrawal from the jury of material evidence: Burman v. Ottawa Elec. Ry., 21 O. L. R. 446; Brenner v. Toronto Ry., 13 O. L. R. 423; but this last case was subsequently reversed on appeal because the appellate Court came to the conclusion that the Judge at the trial had not in fact withdrawn the evidence: S. C. 15 O. L. R. 195; 40 S. C. R. 540.

Rejection of evidence. The rejection of material evidence is a ground for a new trial: Clarke v. Union Stock Co., 13 O. L. R. 102; 14 O. L. R. 198.

Uncorroborated evidence. The omission of a Judge to caution a jury not to find a verdict on uncorroborated evidence in a case where corroborative evidence is necessary, would appear to be a "substantial wrong or miscarriage": see Rex v. Tait, 1908, 2 K. B. 680.

The discretion of the Judge at the trial as to the questions to be answered by witnesses under examination is not lightly to be interfered with, and it has been held that the appellate Court is not justified in ordering a new trial because the Judge at the trial directed a witness not to answer a question which did not, at the time it was put, have relevancy to any of the issues: Brownell v. Brownell, 42 S. C. R. 368.

Joint tort, improper assessment of damages. Where by his pleadings the plaintiff charges a joint tort, even though separate torts be proved, the jury cannot properly assess damages for different amounts against the defendants, but can only render a verdict for one sum against all, and where the contrary was done a new trial was ordered: Greenlands v. Wilmshurst, 1913, 3 K. B. 507; and see Smith v. Streatfield, 1913, 3 K. B. 764.

Non-direction. Want of explicit directions as to the law affecting the locus in quo (the right of way of a railway company) was held to be ground for a new trial: Blue v. Red Mountain Ry., 1909, A. C. 361

Misdirection. Where a Judge wrongly directed the jury that there was no evidence to support a finding for the defendant, a new trial was ordered: Wood v. Rockwell, 38 S. C. R. 165.

Where the misdirection complained of was to the effect that the evidence warranted a finding that the injury to the plaintiff's eye which was in question, was permanent, but the damages awarded were o greater than the injury proved warranted, it was considered that "substantial wrong or miscarriage" had taken place, and a new rial was refused: Floyd v. Gibson, 100 L. T. 761. Sec. 28.

Where there is some though very slight evidence in support of he plaintiff's case, it ought not to be withdrawn from the jury, and it is, a new trial will be ordered: Jones v. Toronto & York Ry., 20 L. R. 71; 21 O. L. R. 421. Withdrawal from jury.

Quære, whether "misdirection" in this section applies to the case the Judge ruling that there is no evidence to go to the jury, and herefore withdrawing the case from them, and giving judgment for efendant: see Hall v. Jupe, 43 L. T. 411.

Exceptions to the putting or not putting questions to a jury which ere not taken at the trial, will not as a rule be entertained on appeal, nless it is manifest that some substantial injustice has been done: ee Gowganda Queen Mines v. Borckh, 24 O. L. R. 293; 46 S. C. R. 645; O. L. R. 643. As to putting question improperly to the jury: see rnold v. Jeffreys, supra, p. 149. Questions to jury

But it was said by Osler, J.A., in Brenner v. Toronto Ry., 15 O. L. 196, at p. 198, that there is no hard and fast rule which prohibits n Appellate Court from entertaining an objection on the ground of isdirection, merely because it was not taken at the trial.

The refusal of the Judge to submit some particular question to the ry is no ground for a new trial; but if the Judge refused to charge e jury in respect to any material matter which counsel desired to ave submitted to them, it may amount to non-direction, for which a ew trial may be granted: Turner v. Burns, 24 Ont. 28.

Where a new trial is moved for on the ground of misdirection, the ous of shewing that the misdirection did not cause a miscarriage of stice lies upon the party shewing cause: Anthony v. Halstead, 37 T. 433. Onus of showing miscarriage of justice.

In considering an objection for misdirection the question is not hether every expression in a charge is perfectly accurate, but whether ere is any reason to believe that a verdict, which is warranted by e evidence, has been caused or induced by an erroneous enunciation the law by the Court: Wells v. Lindop, 15 Ont. App. 695; and see lue v. Red Mountain Ry., 1909, A. C. 361.

It is not misdirection for the Judge to tell the jury his own opinion the issue before them: Smith v. Dart, 14 Q. B. D. 105, 108.

Where the Judge misdirects the jury as to the burthen of proof, new trial will be ordered: Kingston v. Kingston, 1897, A. C. 509.

An improper definition of "malice" by a Judge is misdirection: Malice.
nglish v. Lamb, 32 Ont. 73.

Where a new trial is granted on the ground of misdirection the Costs.
ourt, as a general rule, will order the costs to abide the event: Jones Richards, 15 T. L. R. 398; but they are in the discretion of the ourt: Hamilton v. Seal, 1904, 2 K. B. 262.

Where the Judge at the trial reported to the Court that he did not ake certain remarks which it was contended were objectionable, and ated what he did actually say, this course was held not to be objec- onable: Dickie v. Campbell, 34 S. C. R. 265.

Sec. 26.

Verdict against weight of evidence.

Verdict against Evidence. — It is the practice in England, adopting the practice of the former Court of Queen's Bench, not to grant a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, where the damages are under £20, except under peculiar circumstances, such as the trial of a right, or where the personal character of a person may be injured: Joyce v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 44 L. T. 810; 17 C. L. J. 411; Booth v. Briscoe, 2 Q. B. D. 496; followed Crerar v. Holbert, 17 P. R. 283; see also Jenkins v. Morris, 14 Ch. D. 674.

The ordinary reasoning according to which the verdict of a jury on a question of fact ought not to be disturbed unless the preponderance of evidence against the verdict is strong and clear, does not apply to cases in which the verdict depends upon a question of science which is not fully solved, but is still within the region of bonâ fide controversy. The importance of the verdict to others besides the parties to the litigation, and the novelty of the question are elements to be taken into consideration. Where a new trial is granted on the ground of the unsatisfactory nature of the verdict, a condition should not be imposed, that the party applying for the new trial should pay the costs of the previous trial: Managers of Metropolitan Asylum v. Hill, 47 L. T. 29.

On an application for a new trial upon the weight of evidence, where there has been no miscarriage in law, the question is, does the verdict in the opinion of the Court do substantial justice, and, if not, does the evidence warrant interference: Grieve v. Molson's Bank, 8 Ont. 162, and the Court though considering that a different verdict would have been more satisfactory, may refuse to interfere, the question being one proper for the decision of a jury: Malcolmson v. Hamilton Prov. & L. Soc., 10 Ont. App. 610; Ferrand v. Bingham, 8 T. L. R. 70. In an action for slander the jury is not bound to return a verdict for the plaintiff, although the defamatory words are proved: Milligan v. Jamieson, supra, p. 148.

Verdict against evidence or weight of evidence.

A new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, should not be granted, unless the verdict was one which the jury viewing the whole evidence reasonably, after proper directions, could not properly find: Webster v. Friederberg, 17 Q. B. D. 736, correcting Solomon v. Bitton, 8 Q. B. D. 176; see also Metropolitan Ry. Co. v. Wright, 11 App. Cas. 152, as explained in Jones v. Spencer, 77 L. T. 536; 14 T. L. R. 4; Phillips v. Martin, 15 App. Cas. 193; Quinlone v. Murnane, 18 L. R. Ir. 53; Commissioners for Railways v. Brown, 13 App. Cas. 133; Dallas v. Great Western Ry., 57 J. P. 584; Proed v. Groham, 24 Q. B. D. 53; Hompson v. Guy, 64 L. T. 778; Beckett v. G. T. Ry., 13 Ont. App. 184; see 16 S. C. R. 713; Logg v. Ellwood, 14 Ont. App. 496; Brisbane v. Martin, 1894, A. C. 249; Australian Newspaper Co. v. Bennett, Ib., 284; Cox v. English & Scottish & Australian Bank, 1905, A. C. 168; Wabash Ry. v. Misener, 38 S. C. R. 94; Windsor Hotel Co. v. Odell, 39 S. C. R. 337; see also remarks in 31 Sol. Jour. 135. Where the question at issue turns upon a matter involving scientific and expert evidence, and the weight of expert testimony is overwhelmingly in favour of one view, against which there is only the evidence of persons without much practical experience, a verdict based on the latter evidence cannot stand: Jackson v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 689; 32 S. C. R. 245.

Where the jury find negligence and specify in what it consisted but there is no evidence to support the specific finding, the Court may n its discretion order a new trial, notwithstanding that there is vidence of negligence in other respects: Cobban v. Can. Pac. Ry. Co., 23 nt. App. 115. Sec. 28.

Though the report of the Judge who presided as to whether he was atisfied or dissatisfied with the verdict is not conclusive, great weight ill be attached to it: Webster v. Friederberg, 55 L. T. 295; affirmed n appeal: Ib., 49; 17 Q. B. D. 736. Judge's opinion of verdict.

A new trial should not be granted merely because the Judge who ried the case, or the Court applied to for a new trial, is dissatisfied ith the verdict of the jury: Solomon v. Billon, 8 Q. B. D. 176; see enkins v. Morris, 14 Ch. D. p. 684; Wilcocks v. Howell, 5 Ont. 360; urtagh v. Barry, 24 Q. B. D. 632; Fraser v. Drew, 30 S. C. R. 241; nless the Court can say that the verdict is one which could not pro- erly be found on the evidence: see Clouston v. Corry, 1906, A. C. 122; ut where the evidence has been fairly submitted to the jury, it was eld to be no ground for a new trial because the Judges in appeal took different view from the jury as to the inferences proper to be drawn herefrom: Toronto Ry. v. King, 1908, A. C. 260. And where a case tried by a Judge without a jury, his finding of facts on conflicting vidence will not as a rule be disturbed by an appellate Court: awyer v. Hodgson, 18 O. L. R. 333. Judge dissatisfied with verdict.

Appellate Court dissatisfied with verdict.

The Court has in its discretion to weigh the delay, vexation and xpense of a new trial, all in fact which forms the foundation of he maxim "Interest reipublicæ ut sit finis litium" against the in- ustice which may be worked in a particular instance, and may treat s conclusive a verdict which is not perfectly satisfactory: Metro- olitan District Asylum v. Hill, 47 L. T. 29; Beckett v. G. T. Ry., 3 Ont. App. 207; see 16 S. C. R. 713; Winch v. Conservators of the hames, L. R. 7 C. P. 472. Relative advantages and disadvantages of new trial.

Where cross-actions involving the same question of law and fact re severely tried with the result that contradictory verdicts are btained, if the evidence is so fairly balanced that the jury might easonably find either way, both cases ought to be tried again, not eparately, but together. The Court cannot be called upon either o exercise the functions of a jury, or to issue contradictory judg- ents: Australian, etc., Co. v. Smith, 14 App. Cas. 321.

Excessive Damages.—The granting or refusing a new trial on he ground of excessive damages depends to some extent on the ature of the action, e.g., where the action is on contract, and the mount properly payable depends on computation, in case of error he Court would more readily interfere, even though the amount in ress is small, than in a case of tort, where the jury may properly ve vindictive damages. Excessive damages.

A verdict will not be very readily disturbed on the ground of exces- ve damages: see Sornberger v. C. P. Ry. Co., 24 Ont. App. 263; aston v. Brantford E. Ry. Co., C. P. D. Sept., 1897, nor where the idence as to damages is conflicting: McCullough v. Anderson, 27 Ont. (note); Ferguson v. Southwold, Ib., 66.

It was formerly held that the Court may, in its discretion, refuse new trial on the consent of the plaintiff alone to the damages being duced to such an amount as the Court may think, if given by the ry, would not have been excessive: Belt v. Lawes, 12 Q. B. D. 356; Denis v. Baxter, 15 Ont. App. 387; Easton v. Brantford E. Ry. New trial in case of.

Sec. 28.

Co. (before C. P. D. 20th Nov., 1897); Fraser v. London St. Ry., 29 Ont. 411; Curran v. Grand Trunk Ry., 25 Ont. App. 407; Colbier v. Michigan Central Ry., 27 Ont. App. 630; Sibbald v. Grand Trunk Ry., 19 Ont. 164; 18 Ont. App. 184; 28 C. L. J. 245; but all these cases have been over-ruled in the House of Lords, where it has been held that, in an action of tort, where the Court finds the damages to be excessive, it must grant a new trial unconditionally, and except by consent of both parties, it has no power to reduce the damages: Watt v. Watt, 1905, A. C. 115; 92 L. T. 480; but where the Court is satisfied with the judgment except as to the amount of damages, a new trial need not be directed generally, but may under Jud. Act, ss. 28, 29, be limited to the quantum of damages: Hockley v. G. T. Ry. Co., 10 O. L. R. 363; Clarke v. London St. Ry., 12 O. L. R. 279. Where, however, the damages are assessed by a Judge, an appellate Court may, if it sees fit, reduce them: Sheahen v. Toronto Ry., 25 O. L. R. 310; or increase them: Vanhorn v. Verrall (Divisional Court, 28 June, 1902).

In an action for personal injuries against a street railway the plaintiff, who was a mining engineer earning $6,000 per annum, was found to have been permanently incapacitated for work, and a verdict of $30,000 was given. The Court refused a new trial considering that the damages, in the circumstances, were not excessive: Bradenburg v. Ottawa St. Ry., 19 O. L. R. 34; and see Morin v. Ottawa Electric Ry., 18 O. L. R. 209; but in an action under The Fatal Accidents Act, for the death of a married woman aged 62, a verdict of $3,325 apportioned among the executors of her husband, who survived her, and her adult children, was held to be grossly excessive: Ronson v. Can. Pac. Ry., 18 O. L. R. 337.

Where the jury has given a specific sum for damages in respect of some particular claim, for which the Court finds there was no evidence, it may disallow that sum, without granting a new trial or disturbing the verdict in other respects: Wright v. Toronto Ry., 20 O. L. R. 498.

Libel actions.

In an action for libel the Court will not grant a new trial on the ground of excessive damages, unless it thinks that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the damages are so large that no jury could reasonably give them: Praed v. Graham, 24 Q. B. D. 53; and in assessing damages the jury are entitled to take into consideration the whole conduct of the defendant in the matter from the time the libel was published down to the time of the verdict: Ib. See also as to the granting of new trials in actions for libel: Wilcocks v. Howell, 5 Ont. 360.

As to the application of Praed v. Graham, supra, to cases generally: see Johnston v. G. W. Ry. Co., 1904, 2 K. B. 250; where Philips v. L. & S. W. Ry. Co., 1879, 4 Q. B. D. 406; 5 Q. B. D. 78, was approved, the effect of which is that a new trial may be ordered if the Court, without imputing perversity to the jury, comes to the conclusion from the amount of the damages and other circumstances, that the jury must have considered matters which they ought not to have considered, or have applied a wrong measure of damages.

Damages assessed on wrong basis.

Where damages are assessed on a wrong basis, e.g., on the ground of neglect of duty, where no such duty existed, a new trial will be ordered: Dunn v. Prescott Elevator Co., 26 Ont. App. 389; 30 S. C. R. 620.

Damages too small.

If the damages found by the jury are so small, as to shew that they must have omitted to consider some of the elements of damage, the Court will grant a new trial: Philips v. London & S. W. Ry. Co., 5 Q. B. D. 78; 5 C. P. D. 280; Church v. Ottawa, 25 Ont. 298; 22 Ont. App. 348. It has been held that a new trial will not be granted merely to enable a plaintiff to recover nominal damages: Scammell v. Clarke, 23 S. C. R. 307; Simonds v. Chesley, 20 S. C. R. 174; Milligan v. Jamieson, 4 O. L. R. 650; but see Kemp v. Christmas, 105 L. T. Jour. 56. Sec. 28.

Surprise.—In Riding v. Hawkins, 14 P. D. 58, the plaintiff's case when opened, seemed to proceed on a case of fraud, but undue influence only was alleged. The plaintiff applied for leave to amend, which was granted, and the trial proceeded after the defendant had refused an offer of the Judge to adjourn the trial at the plaintiff's expense: the finding was for the plaintiff on the question of fraud, but for the defendant on the issues on the original pleadings. It was held that defendant was not precluded, by his refusal of the offer of adjournment, from moving for a new trial on the ground of being surprised by the plaintiff's new case. It was also held that the amendment was properly allowed, due care having been taken that the defendant should not be damnified. Surprise.

See Canada Landed Credit Co. v. Thompson, supra, p. 124.

The abstaining by a party from proof under an idea that his adversary had no real intention of putting him to such proof, and being thereby taken by surprise, is no ground for a new trial: Andrews v. Stuart, 1 C. L. T. 724.

Where the reason for the application is surprise, the affidavits must state the grounds of surprise: Dow v. Dickenson, W. N. 1881, 52. Evidence of persons who were called as witnesses to the effect that the evidence they gave was untrue, and that statements made by them to the plaintiff's solicitor before trial were true, is inadmissible on a motion for a new trial: Rushton v. Grand Trunk Ry., 6 O. L. R. 425. Grounds of to be shown.

The fact that on cross-examination of an opposite party's witness a damaging statement was elicited is not surprise: Shipway v. Broadwood, 1899, 1 Q. B. 369; 80 L. T. 11.

Discovery of Fresh Evidence.—As to when a new trial, or supplemental trial may be had on the ground of discovery of new evidence: see note to Rule 257; and see Rule 523 as to motions to reverse or vary judgments upon the ground of matters arising subsequent thereto, or subsequently discovered; such motions may be made to the Court or Judge who tried the action: Armour v. Merchants Bank, 17 S. R. 108. Discovery of fresh evidence when ground for new trial.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of premature admission of evidence which has afterwards become admissible: Faund v. Wallace, 35 L. T. 361; nor of the discovery of new evidence, unless it is nearly or quite conclusive: Anderson v. Titmas, 36 L. T. 711; Young v. Kershaw, 81 L. T. 531; 16 T. L. R. 52; and see Birch v. Birch, 1902, P. 130.

Where the new evidence is merely corroborative of that given at the trial, a new trial will be refused: Hownrth v. McGugan, 23 Ont. 96; see Trumble v. Hortin, 22 Ont. App. 51.

Where the new evidence might have been discovered before trial by examinations for discovery, which were not taken, a new trial was refused: Turnbull v. Duval, 1902, A. C. 429; Yackman v. Johnson, 3 O. W. N. 624.

Sec. 30.

Staying new trial pending appeal.

Staying New Trial Pending Appeal.—An application to stay a new trial pending an appeal from the order granting the same was refused: Hockley v. Grand Trunk Ry., 7 O. L. R. 186.

Costs.

Costs.—Primâ facie, where a new trial is ordered, the party opposing the motion should be ordered to pay the costs of the motion: Hamilton v. Seol, 1904, 2 K. B. 262; 90 L. T. 592; but these costs, as also those of the former trial, are in the discretion of the Court: Ib., and see s. 74 (1).

New trial may be ordered on any question.

29. A new trial may be ordered upon any question without interfering with the decision upon any other question. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 29.

Quære, whether a new trial may not now be ordered as to one defendant, without disturbing the verdict as to another: Purnell v. G. W. Railway Co., 1 Q. B. D. 636; and see Jud. Act, s. 28 (2).

A new trial may be ordered as to the assessment of damages, the finding as to the liability of the defendant in respect of the cause of action (for negligence) not being interfered with: Hesse v. St. John Ry. Co., 30 S. C. R. 218, 240; Hockley v. G. T. Ry. Co., supra, p. 154.

Where there are distinct issues, the Judge may, under this Rule, accept the verdict of the jury on those issues on which they agree, and discharge them as to others, and a new trial may be ordered on undecided issues: Morsh v. Isaacs, 45 L. J. C. P. 505; Coleman v. Toronto, 23 Ont. 345.

Where a new trial is granted, if the order is not appealed from, the question determined by it cannot be re-argued upon an appeal from the judgment pronounced at the new trial: Journal Printing Co. v. Maclean, 23 Ont. App. 324.

Where the judgment at a trial is set aside it is not in all cases necessary that a new trial should be ordered; there are some cases in which the appellate Court may itself award the judgment which should have been awarded at the trial: see Jud. Act, s. 27 (1), (2).

Disagreement of jury.

30. Where the jury disagrees or makes no finding on which judgment can be entered, the Court may, on the application of the defendant, dismiss the action on the ground that there is no evidence to warrant a judgment for the plaintiff, or that for any other reason he is not entitled to judgment. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 30.

The Rule does not apply to every case of disagreement by a jury, but only to cases which may properly be withdrawn from the jury: Floer v. Michigan Central Ry., 30 Ont. 635; 27 A. R. 122.

See Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, in note to Rule 264; also Casey v. C. P. Ry. Co., 15 Ont. 574, where judgment was given for defendants, the plaintiff's own evidence shewing that the accident, the occasion of the damages claimed by him, was caused by his own negligence; and Gambell v. Heggie, 5 O. W. R. 746, an action for seduction, where the Judge was of opinion that there was no reasonable evidence upon which seduction only could be found by the jury, and that the evidence the plaintiff's daughter, if believed, could only lead to the con- Sec. 31.

usion that the defendant had committed the offence of rape; but is judgment was subsequently reversed: see 41 C. L. J. 839, the Divi-onal Court holding that the evidence of force might be rejected; but is for the jury to reject the evidence not the Court: E. v. F., 10 O.
R. 489; 11 O. L. R. 582.

Where after the trial the plaintiff obtains leave to amend his stateent of claim, so as to raise new issues, it is not competent for a visional Court to give judgment on the original pleadings under s section: Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. v. Cobban Mfg. Co., 22 S. C. R. 132.

The making of a motion under this section was held to stay the rrying of the case down to a second trial, where the motion was not ard because the notes of evidence were not ready in time: Schuhl Rosenstadt, 9 C. L. T. 114.

Where a case is properly submitted to the jury, and the Appellate vision finds that their was some evidence on which they might ve found in favour of the plaintiff, the Appellate Division will not able to dismiss the action under this section, because on a new al the plaintiff might be able to give further evidence to warrant verdict in his favour: Skeate v. Slaters, 1914, 2 K. B. 429; 110
T. 604.

Where the jury disagree, the action may be retried at the same or y subsequent sittings; Rule 500.

Judgment of Appellate Division, When Final.—By the Do-nion Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 55), it is enacted as follows:—

"3. In any action respecting property or civil rights, whether for When appeal lies from Appellate Div.
mages or for specific relief, the judgment of the Appellate Division all be final except,—

(a) Where the title to real estate or some interest therein is Title to real estate.
in question;

(b) Where the validity of a patent is affected; Patent.

(c) Where the matter in controversy in the appeal exceeds Sum over $1000.
the sum or value of $1,000, exclusive of costs;

(d) Where the matter in question relates to the taking of an Annual rent, etc., etc.
annual or other rent, customary or other duty or fee, or a like demand of a general or public nature affecting future rights;

(e) Where the special leave of the Appellate Division or the By leave.
Supreme Court of Canada to appeal to such last mentioned Court is granted. 10 Edw. VII. c. 25, s. 3."

31. In any cause or matter pending before a Divi- Power of Judge of Appellate Division.
onal Court any direction incidental to it not involving e decision of the appeal, may be given by a Judge of e Appellate Division; and a Judge of that Division ay during vacation make any interim order to prevent rejudice to the claim of any of the parties pending appeal, as he may think fit; but every such order ade by the Judge shall be subject to appeal to a Divi-onal Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 31.

See Eng. Jud. Act, 1873, s. 52.

Sec. 31.

When appeal becomes pending.

A matter becomes pending before the Appellate Division upon the service of notice of intention to appeal: see Sugden v. St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 209.

A matter is not pending in the Appellate Division after its order has been issued: Hargrove v. Royal Templars, 2 O. L. R. 126; and a Judge of the Appellate Division has no jurisdiction thereafter to stay proceedings pending a proposed appeal to the Supreme Court. Ib.; and see Hessin v. Jones, supra, p. 134.

But he may do so acting as a Judge of the H. C. D.: see sec. 8, supra.

Bail.

On an appeal by a party committed for extradition it would seem that a single Judge of the Appellate Division has no jurisdiction under this section to admit the applicant to bail: Re Watts, 3 O. L. R. 279, but he may do so acting as a Judge of the H. C. D. under sec. 8.

Injunction.

Where, pending an appeal from an order refusing an injunction to restrain erection of buildings, the buildings were completed before the appeal could be argued, it was said that an interim order should have been applied for under the corresponding section of the Eng. Act: Johnstone v. Royal Courts W. N. 1883, 5.

It would seem that under this section, a Judge of the Appellate Division may in vacation grant an injunction in a case in which an appeal is pending, and such jurisdiction may also be exercised by the full Court when in session: Embree v. McCurdy, 14 O. L. R. 325.

In a matter of discretion an order made by a single Judge will not be interfered with by the full Court: Neill v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 9 Ont. App. 54; Platt v. G. T. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 380.

Appeals from the Supreme Court of Ontario.

The decision of the Appellate Division on appeals from the High Court Division is not in all cases conclusive; and in certain cases an appeal can be had therefrom either to the Supreme Court of Canada, or to His Majesty in Council.

Decision of Appellate Division final in certain cases.

The decision of the Appellate Division is final in cases which have not come to it from the High Court Division, e.g., such as have come from the Drainage Referee: Re Raleigh & Harwich, Cassels' Sup. Court Prac., 2nd ed., 22; or which have originated in a County Court though removed into the Supreme Court: Young v. Tucker, 18 P. R. 449; Tucker v. Young, 30 S. C. R. 185; or appeals under the Dominion Railway Act (R. S. C. c. 37), s. 209: James Bay Railway Co. v. Armstrong, 38 S. C. R 511; 1909 A. C. 624.

Appeals to Sup. Ct. of Can.

Appeals to Supreme Court of Canada.—Appeals from the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada are regulated by The Supreme Court Act (R. S. C. c. 139), and the amendments thereto.

Appeal from final judgments.

Under that Act an appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada subject to the limitations hereafter mentioned,—

(1) From all final judgments of the highest Court of final resort, in any Province of Canada, whether such Court is a Court of appeal or of original jurisdiction, in cases in which the Court of original jurisdiction is a Superior Court; except judgments in any case of proceedings for or upon a writ of habeas corpus, certiorari or prohibition, arising out of a criminal charge, or in any case for or upon a writ of habeas corpus arising out of any claim for extradition made nder any treaty, nnd except in any criminal case except ns provided y the Criminal Code; see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 36. Sec. 31.

(2) Also in nctions commenced in the Supreme Court of Ontario, om a judgment, whether final, or not, of the Appellate Division upon ny motion for a new trial, and from any judgment whether final, or ot, in an action for equitable relief: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 38 and 3-4 eo. V. c. 51, s. 1 (D),— Where equitable relief granted.

(3) Also from any judgment upon a special case, unless the parties gree to the contrnry, and the Supreme Court of Cannda can in such ppeals draw an inference of fact from the facts stated in the special se which the Court appenled from should have drawn,— Special case.

(4) Also from a judgment on a motion to set aside an award or way of appeal from an award,— Award.

(5) Also from any judgment in any case of proceedings for or pon a habeas corpus, certiorari, or prohibition, not arising out of a iminal charge,— Habeas corpus, etc.

(6) Also in any case or proceeding for or upon n writ of mandmus,— Mandamus.

(7) Also in any case in which a by-law of n municipal corporation s been quashed, or a motion to quash it has been refused after argunent: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 39. By-laws.

(8) Also from the judgment of the Appellate Division concerning e assessment of property for provincial or municipal purposes, where e assessment is not less than $10,000: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 41. Assessments.

(9) An appeal may alao, in certain cases, by consent, or leave of e Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, be taken from a Judge of the gh Court Division per saltum: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 42. Appeal per saltum.

Except as above mentioned an appenl only lies from a final judgnt: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 44.

But the provisions of the sections above referred to are qualified regards appeals from Ontario, by R. S. C. c. 139, s. 48. Under that ction no appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from the Apllate Division unless:—

(a) The title to real estate or some interest therein is in quesn; or,

(b) The validity of a patent is affected; or,

(c) The matter in controversy in the appeal exceeds the sum or lue of $1,000, exclusive of costs; or,

(d) The matter in question relates to the taking of an annual or ier rent, customary or other duty fee, or a like demand of a general public interest affecting future rights; or,

(e) Special lenve of the Appellate Division or of the Supreme urt of Canada to appeal to such last mentioned Court is granted.

Whenever the right to appeal is dependent upon the amount in pute, such amount is to be understood to be that demanded, and not t recovered, if they nre different; see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 48. Amount in dispute.

In order, therefore, to appeal as of right, the case must be one thin clauses (5), (6), (7) or (8), supra, and also within one or re of the categories (a) to (d), above-mentioned; and if it cannot brought within any of them, then leave must be obtained.

Sec. 31.

Final judgments.

A "final judgment," for the purposes of an appeal to tha Supreme Court, means any judgment, rule, order or decision which determines in whole or in part, any substantive right of any of the parties in controversy in any action, suit, cause, matter or other judicial proceeding: 3-4 Geo. V. c. 51, s. 1 (D).

What judgments are not final.

Prior to that Act it was held that a judgment for an amount to he ascertained hy a Master was not a final judgment: Union Bank of Halifax v. Dickie, 41 S. C. R. 13; Wenger v. Lamont, 41 S. C. R. 603; Dunn v. Eaton, 47 S. C. R. 205; Clarke v. Goodall, 44 S. C. R. 284; Crown Life v. Skinner, 44 S. C. R. 616; Hesseltine v. Nelles, 47 S. C. R. 230, hut since the 3-4 Geo. V. c. 51, s. 1 (D), ahove referred to, wherever the judgment determines a right, and then directs a reference to take an account, and either reserves further directions, or directs judgment for the amount to be found due, the judgment may nevertheless he final for the purpose of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

By The Dominion Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 55), s. 3: supra, p. 157, s limitation of the right to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada is imposed in certain cases, hut this provision was held to he ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature: Clarkson v. Ryan, 17 S. C. R. 251.

Questions not appealable.

Questions not Appealable.—Except aa hereafter mentioned, an appeal cannot be had to the Supreme Court of Canada, from any judgment or order which is not final; therefore, aa a general rule, appeals from interlocutory orders or judgments will not lie: R. S. C. c. 135, s. 44. A judgment directing a reference and reserving further directions and costs, though formerly not appealahle: Crown Life v. Skinner, 44 S. C. R. 616; Clarke v. Goodall, Ib. 284; Dunn v. Eaton, 47 S. C. R. 114; Hesseltine v. Nelles, Ib. 230; may now be appealed if any substantial right is determined therehy: see 3-4 Geo. V. c. 51, s. 1 (D). supra: or if it he pronounced in respect of some equitahle claim or right: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 38. Nor can appeals be entertained from discretionary orders except when made in the exercise of equitahle jurisdiction: Ib., s. 45; see Virtue v. Hayes, 16 S. C. R. 721; Maritime Bank v. Stewart, 20 S. C. R. 105; Canadian Pacific By v. Toronto, 30 S. C. R. 337; nor appeals invoiving questions of practice and procedure: Emperor of Russia v. Poskouriakoff, 42 S. C. R. 226.

Thus an order allowing amendment of pleadings is not appealable: Williams v. Leonard, 26 S. C. R. 406; nor an order as to costs which are in the discretion of the Court: McGugan v. McGugan, 21 S. C. R. 267; unless there be aome question of principle invoived: Archbald v. De Lisle, 25 S. C. R. 1; Smith v. St. John City Ry., 28 S. C. R. 603; O'Donohoe v Beatty, 19 S. C. R. 356; Moir v. Huntingdon, 19 S. C. R. 363; Schlomann v. Dowker, 30 S. C. R. 323. So also no appeal will lie from an order granting or refusing an order on an application to set aside a judgment hy default: O'Donohoe v. Bourne, 27 S. C. R. 654; hut see Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443; nor from an order perpetually staying proceedings: Maritime Bank v. Stewart, 20 S. C. R. 105; and it has also been held that an order allowing summary judgment to be entered on a specially indorsed writ is discretionary and not appealahle: Morris v. London & Canadian L. & A. Co., 19 S. C. R. 434; but see Voight v. Orth, supra; nor does an appeal lie from an order refusing an application to set aside an order discharging bail: Scammell v. James, 16 S. C. R. 593; nor one which invoives mere questions of practice or procedure: Irpin v. Merchant's Bank, 24

C. R. 142; Macdonald v. Ferdais, 22 S. C. R. 260; Ferrier v. Trepan- Sec. 31.
r, 24 S. C R. 86; Toronto Railway v. Balfour, 32 S. C. R. 239;
y.-Gen. v. Scully, 33 S. C. R. 16; Gibson v. Nelson, 35 S. C. R. 181; less some substantial question of right is involved, or grave instice has been done: Lambe v. Armstrong, 27 S. C. R. 309; East- Townships Bank v. Swan, 29 S. C. R. 193; and see Voight v.
th, supra, p. 160.

Orders granting or refusing a new trial, although discretionary, are Orders granting new trials.
pealable: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 38 (b); but the right of appeal m an order granting a new trial is not absolute: see Ib. s. 48. It is a final judgment: Ainslie Mining Co. v. McDougall, 40 S. C. R. 270; s where on an appeal to the Court of Appeal that Court granted a w trial, a further appeal by the appellant to the Supreme Court Canada was not entertained, though the appellant desired to cond that the action should have been dismissed: Canadian Mutual serve v. Dillon, 34 S. C. R. 141; and see Confederation Life v. rden, 34 S. C. R. 338; O'Sullivan v. Lake, 15 Ont. App. 711.

Where a new trial was ordered by a Divisional Court to try certain estions of fact, the Supreme Court on appeal declined to interfere:
ott v. Bank of New Brunswick, 21 S. C. R. 30.

An order committing a judgment debtor for making unsatisfactory Order committing judgment debtor.
swers on his examination under Rule 580, is a proceeding ancillary the judgment, and no appeal lies in respect of such an order to the preme Court of Canada: Svensson v. Bateman, 42 S. C. R. 146; see so Compagnie d'Aqueduc, etc. v. Verrett, 42 S. C. R. 156

Where under the Canada Railway Act (R. S. C. c. 39), s. 209, an peal from an award is taken to the High Court Division semble no rther appeal can be had: see James Bay Ry. v. Armstrong, 1909.
C. 624.

Questions Appealable.—These are now regulated by The Supreme Questions appealable urt Act (R. S. C. c. 139), s. 48, supra, and The Dominion Courts t (R. S. O. c. 55), s. 3, which provide that no appeal shall lie to e Supreme Court from the Appellate Division except in the following ses:—

(a) Where the title to real estate or some interest therein is Title to land.
in question;

See Macdonald v. Galivan, 28 S. C. R. 258; Dreschel v. Aucr Light
Ib., 268; Jermyn v. Tew, Ib., 497; Waters v. Manigault, 30 S. C. R.
4; Aurora v. Markham, 32 S. C. R. 457; Grimsby Park v. Irving, 41
C. R. 35;

(b) Where the validity of a patent is affected: Patent.

See King v. Dupuis, 28 S. C. R. 388; Ottawa v. Hunter, 31 S. C. R. 7.

(c) Where the matter in controversy in the appeal exceeds Matter involving over $1,000.
the sum or value of $1,000, exclusive of costs;

See Banque du Peuple v. Trottier, 28 S. C. R. 422; Bain v. Anderson, 481; Jermyn v. Tew, Ib. 497; Canadian Accident Co. v. McNevin,

S. C. R. 490; Labrosse v. Langlois, 41 S. C. R. 43; Montreal Park &

Sec. 31.

I. Ry. v. Labrosse, 40 S. C. R. 96; Shawinigan H. E. Co. v. Shawinigan W. & P. Co., 43 S. C. R. 650.

In estimating the amount in controversy, interest cannot be added to the amount of the judgment appealed from: Toronto Ry. v. Milligan, 42 S. C. R. 238, S. C. 17 O. L. R. 370, 18 O. L. R. 109.

Where it is impossible from the record to say what is the amount in controversy no appeal lies: Wenger v. Lamont, 41 S. C. R. 603; but see infra as to proving amount involved by affidavits.

Where a merely declaratory judgment was asked, an appeal was quashed because there was no pecuniary amount in controversy: Canada Breweries Co. v. Garicpy, 38 S. C. R. 239; and see also Hamilton v. Hamilton Distillery Co., 38 S. C. R. 239.

Annual fee, etc.

(d) Where the matter in question relates to the taking of an annual or other rent, customary or other duty or fee, or a like demand of a general or public nature affecting future rights

See Canadian Mutual Loan Co. v. Lee, 34 S. C. R. 224; Winteler v. Davidson, 34 S. C. R. 274; Carrier v. Sirois, 36 S. C. R. 221.

A question whether a fee for entrance to a park owned by the plaintiffs could be exacted, does not come within this clause: Orimsby Park v. Irving, 41 S. C. R. 35;

By special leave.

(e) In other cases where the special leave of the Appellate Division or of the Supreme Court of Canada to appeal to such last mentioned Court is granted.

When granted.

Special leave to appeal may be granted in cases involving matters of public interest, important questions of law, the construction of imperial or Dominion Statutes, a conflict between Dominion and Provincial authority on questions of law applicable to the whole Dominion: Lake Erie, &c., Ry. Co. v. Marsh, 35 S. C. R. 197; and in such cases only: Whyte Packing Co. v. Pringle, 42 S. C. R. 691; but not even in such cases if there is no doubt about the correctness of the decision: Lake Erie, &c., Ry. Co. v. Marsh, supra.

See Atty.-Gen. v. Scully, 33 S. C. R. 16; Rice v. The King, 32 S. C. R. 450; Fisher v. Fisher, 28 S. C. R. 494; Hargrove v. Royal Templars, 31 S. C. R. 385; Tucker v. Young, 30 S. C. R. 185.

When refused.

Leave was refused where the judgment was for $1,000 damages and the grounds upon which leave was asked for were that the costs had accumulated so as to amount to $2,000, and the damages it was alleged had been estimated by a mere guess: Goold Bicycle Co. v. Laishley, 35 S. C. R. 184.

The mere fact of there being a difference of opinion among the Judges of the Court appealed from is not sufficient ground for treating a case as exceptional: Toronto Ry. v. Milligan, supra.

Amount in dispute, how determined.

(f) Whenever the right to appeal is dependent upon the amount in dispute, such amount shall be understood to be that demanded, not that recovered, if they are different.

See Ottawa v. Hunter, 31 S. C. R. 7; Jermyn v. Tew, 28 S. C. R. 497; Bain v. Anderson, 28 S. C. R. 481.

The fact that the aggregate amount for which several respondents were sought to be made liable exceeded $1,000 was not sufficient, where the individual liability of each respondent was less than that amount: Stephens v. Gerth, 24 S. C. R. 716.

The Court cannot refuse to entertain an appeal because the amount volved has not been found or stated by the Court appealed om, but it can ascertain the amount in dispute on affidavits: In re lkners Gold Mining Co. v. McKinnery, 1901, A. C. 581; Auer Light Dreschel, 18 C. L. T. 209. Sec. 31.

Under these clauses no appeal lies unless the amount in controversy the appeal exceeds $1,000, exclusive of costs; the amount demanded the clause f), having regard to clause (c), means, "demanded in appeal:" Bain v. Anderson, 28 S. C. R. 481. See also Jermyn v. e, 28 S. C. R. 497; Ottawa v. Hunter, and King v. Dupuis, supra. 61, 62, clauses (b) and (f).

Where the j ' diction of the Supreme Court is doubtful, the Court y assume that it has jurisdiction, when it has been decided that the peal, on the merits, should be dismissed: Bain v. Anderson, supra.

The Supreme Court Act (R. S. C. c. 139), applies to civil cases only; minal appeals are regulated by the Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146): e v. The King, 32 S. C. R. 480.

The Supreme Court has entertained an appeal on a question of law pearing on the pleadings, but not raised or adjudicated in the Court ow, where no evidence in rebuttal could have been adduced to affect had it been taken at the trial: McKelvey v. Le Roi Mining Co., S. C. R. 664. Appeal on question of law not raised in Court below.

An appeal may be entertained on a question of fact: Dempster v. cis, 33 S. C. R. 292; Belcher v. McDonald, 33 S. C. R. 321; but see C., 1904, A. C. 429; Hood v. Eden, 36 S. C. R. 476. Ordinarily, bow- r, if there is evidence to support a finding of fact an appellate rt will not interfere with that finding, especially if the case has n tried by a jury: Grand Trunk Railway v. Roinville, 25 Ont. App. ; 29 S. C. R. 201; D'Avignon v. Jones, 32 S. C. R. 650; Parodis v. noilon, 30 S. C. R. 405; Granby v. Ménard, 31 S. C. R. 14; even ugh the Judge at the trial was dissatisfied: Fraser v. Drew, 30 C. R. 241. So, ordinarily, an appellate Court will not interfere h the assessment of damages unless they are plainly excessive or dequate, or have been arrived at by mere guess-work: Williams v. phenson, 33 S. C. R. 323. See also notes to Jud. Act, s. 12. Appeal on questions of fact.

It is only where some fundamental principle of justice has been ored that appeals on a question of costs can be successful; see ith v. St. John City Ry., 28 S. C R. 603; Schlomann v. Dowker, 30 C. R. 323. Appeal as to costs.

A Judge of the Appellate Division has no jurisdiction to extend the e for the allowance of the security in a case in which an appeal only be brought by leave, and such leave has not been obtained: bb v. The Grand Trunk Ry., 8 O. L. R. 281; and he has no jurisdic- n to grant such leave to appeal: Ib.

Time for Appeal.—An appeal to the Supreme Court in a civil ion must be brought within sixty days from the signing or entry pronouncing of the judgment appealed from: R. S. C. c. 139, s. 69; lligan v. Grand Trunk Ry., 18 O. L. R. 149; Temiscouata Ry. v. St. r. 38 S. C. R. 236, 6 Can. Ry. Cas. 367. The signing and entry of gments are, in Ontario, usually contemporaneous acts; but they y take place long after the pronouncing of a judgment. Ordinarily time runs from the pronouncing of the judgment, and it is only ere some substantial matter remains to be determined before judg- Time for appeal to Supreme Court of Canada.

ment can be entered that the time for appealing runs from the signing or entry: O'Sullivan v. Harty, 13 S. C. R. 431; Walmsley v. Griffith, 13 S. C. R. 434; Martley v. Carson, 13 S. C. R. 439; Elgin v. Robert, 36 S. C. R. 27. Where the judgment of the Court of Appeal allowed the appeal, and restored the judgment at the trial, but reduced the amount of damages, it was held that nothing substantial remained to be settled, and that the time ran from the pronouncing of the judgment: News Printing Co. v. Macrae, 26 S. C. R. 695; and see Martin v. Sampson, 26 S. C. R. 707; as to the time when a judgment not pronounced in open Court is to be deemed to be pronounced for the purposes of appeal; see Wallace v. Bath, 7 O. L. R. 542. The vacations of the Supreme Court are not to be excluded in reckoning the time for appeal: News, etc., v. Macrae, supra. The day of pronouncing or entering judgment, whichever of them is the day from which the sixty days is to be reckoned, is excluded. The time for appealing may be extended even after the time prescribed by the statute has expired: Vaughan v. Richardson, 17 S. C. R. 703: but see Canadian Mut. Loan & I. Co. v. Lee, 34 S. C. R. 224; Atty-Gen. for Quebec v. Scott, 34 S. C. R. 282; and Hamilton v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 4 O. W. R. 299; 5 O. W. R. 162.

Where a party elects to move for an extension of the time for appealing before a Judge of the Appellate Division in Chambers, he cannot afterwards make a substantive application for the same purpose to the Court: Hamilton v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 5 O. W. R. 162. Whether an appeal lies from the Judge in Chambers to the Court, quære: Ib.; see Farquharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 30 S. C. R. 188, 201.

Where the 60 days have elapsed the Supreme Court of Ontario cannot extend the time for appealing, where the appeal is not as of right; neither can the Supreme Court of Canada: Goodison v. McNab, 42 S. C. R. 694; neither can leave to appeal be granted after the 60 days have expired: Ib.; except in cases where the appeal is as of right: R. S. C. c. 139, s. 71; Canadian Mutual Loan & Investment Co. v. Lee, 34 S. C. R. 224.

Leave to appeal, when necessary.

Leave to Appeal, when Necessary.—An appeal can only be brought, without leave or consent, from the decision of the Court of last resort in the Province: R. S. C. c. 139, s. 42: but by consent of parties an appeal may be had direct from a Court of original jurisdiction: R. S. C. c. 139, s. 42 (a): and the Supreme Court of Canada or a Judge thereof may also in its discretion allow an appeal from a superior Court of first instance: R. S. C. c. 139, s. 42 (b).

Where a case cannot be brought within any of the clauses (a) (b) (c) (d) or (e) of R. S. C. c. 139, s. 48, then there can be no appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada without leave: see Aurora v. Markham, 32 S. C. R. 457; Attorney-General v. Scully, 33 S. C. R. 16; Beck Mfg. Co. v. Valin, Cam. S. C. Pr. (2nd Ed.) 169-70, and other cases there cited: Harwich v. Raleigh, Ib. 143.

As to appeals in Equity cases: see Cam. S. C. Pr. (2nd ed.) 130.

Where the time for lodging an appeal, or giving notice of an appeal, where notice is necessary, is suffered to elapse without the appeal being lodged or notice given, the Court appealed from, or any Judge thereof, may under special circumstances allow an appeal to be brought: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 71: Demers v. Bank of Montreal, 29

C. R. 435; Bank of B. N. A. v. Walker, Coutlee's Dig. 111; Hamilton Sec. 31.
teamboat Co. v. Mackay, 15 O. L. R. 184; Milligan v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 O. L. R. 109, Cass. Dig. (2), pp. 670, 671, but only in cases where he appeal is of right: Canadian Mutual Loan & Investment Co. v. ee, supra; but the Court or Judge is to impose such terms as to ecurity or otherwise as seems proper under the circumstances: R. C. c. 139, s. 71; the applicant should shew that he had a bona fide ntention to appeal while the right to appeal without leave existed, nd the suspension of further proceedings by reason of some special ircumstances: Smith v. Hunt, 5 O. L. R. 97; or that the omission to roceed with the appeal in due course was owing to an unintentional lip: Ross v. Robertson, 7 O. L. R. 464; Hamilton v. Mutual Reserve ife Ins. Co., 4 O. W. R. 299.

Leave to Appeal, When Granted or Refused.—The Supreme Leave to appeal per saltum, when granted.
ourt of Canada has permitted an appeal to be brought from the igh Court without first going to the Court of Appeal, where an nportant constitutional question was involved: Ontario Mining Co. Seybold, 31 S. C. R. 125; and also where there were only two udges on the Bench of the Provincial Court of Appeal: Schultz Wood, 6 S. C. R. 585; so also in favour of persons interested who esired to prosecute an appeal in the name of a party who refused allow his name to be used: Dumoulin v. Langtry, 13 S. C. R. 8; but the fact that the Provincial Court of Appeal has given adverse decision on the question involved is not considered suffi- ent ground for an appeal per saltum: Hislop v. McGillivray, 15 S. C. R. 8; and such leave will not be granted in cases where there would e no appeal to the Appellate Division: Ottawa Electric Co. v. Bren- n, 31 S. C. R. 311; Armour v. Onondaga, 42 S. C. R. 218; but see rquharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 35 C. L. J. 230; 30 S. C. R. 188. proceedings under The Dominion Winding Up Act, (R. S. C. c. Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 129.) 9) leave to appeal per saltum from a High Court decision cannot granted: Re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., 36 S. C. R. 494.

The Supreme Court of Canada will not entertain an application Leave to appeal, when refused.
r leave to appeal after a similar application has been made to the ppellate Division: Aurora v. Markham, 32 S. C. R. 457, nor will give leave to appeal in a case where the appeal is not of right here the sixty days have elapsed: Goodison v. McNab, 42 S. C. R. 4, even though the Appellate Division has extended the time: Ib. d semble in such a case the Appellate Division has no power to ant leave to appeal. Leave was granted under R. S. C. c. 139 s. 71 here the omission to appeal within proper time arose from the mis- ken impression that leave to appeal was necessary and no Court was ting during the sixty days, to which application for leave could be ade: Hamilton Steamboat Co. v. Mackay, 15 O. L. R. 184. Leave to peal was refused, although the appellant had taken an appeal without ve within the proper time, which, after being argued on the merits d been quashed by the Supreme Court of Canada for want of juris- ction: Irving v. Orimsby Park, 18 O. L. R. 114; also where only 000 was involved, notwithstanding a difference of opinion among e Judges of the Court of Appeal: Milligan v. Toronto Ry., 18 O. L. R. 9. The fact that two Judges out of nine had dissented from the judg- ent arrived at by the Court of Appeal was held not to be sufficient ound for giving leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada: vell v. Lovell, 13 O. L. R. 587. Leave was also refused, in an action specific performance, where counsel had advised that the judgment s not appealable as not being final, by reason whereof the time for appeal had been suffered to elapse, the Court being of the opinion that the judgment was appealable without leave: R. S. C. c. 139 s. 38, and no special circumstances being shewn: Nelles v. Hesselline, 27 O. L. R. 97; S. C. 47 S. C. R. 230.

As to what are considered special circumstances: see notes to Rule 176.

Approving of the security for the appeal is the mode of allowing the appeal under sec. 71: Cass. Pr., 2nd ed., p. 63.

There is no appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the order of a Judge of that Court in Chambers granting leave to appeal: Farquharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 30 S. C. R. 188, 201.

Security for costs of appeal.

Security to be Given.—No appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada can be allowed until security has been given by the appellant to the satisfaction of the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof, or to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, to the extent of $500, that the appellant will effectually prosecute his appeal and pay such costs and damages as may be awarded against him by the Supreme Court: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 75; except where the appeal is brought by or on behalf of the Crown, or in proceedings for, or upon, a writ of habeas corpus: Ib., sub-sec. (2): see In re Smart, 16 S. C. R. 396; Cam. Pr. 151. The amount of the security fixed by s. 75 cannot be increased: Archer v. Severn, 12 P. R. 472.

For the form of bond for security on appeal to the Supreme Court: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 1211, 1212; Davidson v. Fraser, 17 P. R. 246; Molsons Bank v. Cooper, 17 P. R. 153; Jamieson v. London & Canadian L. & A., 18 P. R. 413; Young v. Tucker, 18 P. R. 449.

It is not necessary that the appellant should be a party to the bond, but if he is made a party and does not execute it, it will be liable to be disallowed: Robinson v. Harris, 14 P. R. 373.

Payment into Court.

Instead of giving a bond, the $500 may be paid into Court: an order for that purpose must be obtained; for form of such order, see Cameron's Pr., 2nd ed., p. 639. Where the security is to be approved by the Court appealed from the money should be paid into the Supreme Court of Ontario, but where it is to be approved by the Supreme Court of Canada, semble, the money should be paid into that Court.

Allowance of security.

The application for the allowance of the security should be made in Chambers, either in the Court appealed from, or in the Supreme Court; the application should be made within the sixty days provided for lodging the appeal, or within the extended time, if any: McCrae v. White, 9 P. R. 288.

For form of certificate that security has been given, see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 1214, 1215.

The giving of security is a condition precedent to the appeal being entertained: and where security has not been given, the appeal will be quashed: Scammell v. James, 16 S. C. R. 593; even though there be no one interested in opposing the appeal: Re Cahan, 21 S. C. R. 100.

Where an application was made to approve of security for appeal within the time limited for giving security, but the application was not disposed of until after that time had expired, and the Judge then proved of the security, it was held that, although he had not ex- Sec. 31.

essly extended the time for giving security, he had impliedly done by allowing the security: Great Northern Ry. v. Furness, 40 S. C.
455.

Where the Supreme Court of Canada orders a new trial and directs at the costs of the appeal shall abide the result of the new trial, the pellant is not entitled to have the bond for security for the costs of e appeal delivered up to be cancelled, before the result of the new al is seen: Dicarllo v. McLean, 6 O. W. N. 290.

Notice of Appeal, when Necessary.—No appeal upon a special Notice of appeal, when necessary.
se, or from a judgment upon a motion to enter a verdict, or non-it, upon a point reserved at the trial, or from a judgment upon a tion for a new trial upon the ground that the Judge has not ruled ording to law shall be allowed, unless notice thereof is given in iting to the opposite party, or his attorney of record, within twenty ys after the decision complained of, or within such further time as e Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof, allows: R. S. C. c. 139, 70. Notice of appeal would seem to be unnecessary in the case all other appeals to the Supreme Court in civil proceedings: see f, p. 173.

The giving of notice, when necessary, is a condition precedent to e right to appeal: Vaughan v. Richardson, 17 S. C. R. 703.

For form of notice of appeal: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1210.

Case to be Settled.—The appeal is to be on a case stated by the Appeal case, how settled rties, or, in case of difference, to be settled by the Court appealed m, or a Judge thereof: sea R. S. C. c. 139, s. 73.

The case is to set forth so much of the pleadings, evidence, affidavits d documents as is necessary to raise the question for the decision the Court; it must also include the reasons of the Judge or Judges the Court or Courts below: see Rule S. C. 6; but see Mayhew v. ne, 26 S. C. R. 58; and also the formal order or judgment of the urt appealed from: R. S. C. c. 139, s. 73; Reid v. Ramsay, Cass. Dig.
420; Kearney v. Kean, and Wallace v. Souther, Ib. 672; Rule S. C. 7, must also contain the formal judgment or order of the Court of first tance: Wright v. Huron, Ib. 673; and also a copy of an order which y have been made by the Court below or a Judge thereof, enlarging time for appealing: Rule S. C. 7.

It should not contain immaterial documents, or documents, or other tter, not before the Court of first instance: Lionais v. The Molsons nk, 10 S. C. R. 526; Exchange Bank v. Gilman, 17 S. C. R. 108; ess the Court appealed from has formally admitted further evidence e given: see Rule 232; in which case such further evidence would, naterial to the question in appeal, be a necessary part of the case.

The Supreme Court of Canada does not go behind the statement in order or certificate of the Court appealed from as to the result of judgment of that Court: Booth v. Ratte, 21 S. C. R. 637.

By R. S. C. c. 139, s. 68, it is provided that proceedings in appeals Procedure of Privy Council to be followed.
ll, when not otherwise provided for by that Act, or by the Act viding for the appeal, or by the general rules and orders of the preme Court, be as nearly as possible in conformity with the present practice of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council; but notwithstanding this provision it is held that the Supreme Court of Canada cannot allow an appeal in forma pauperis: Fraser v. Abbott, Cnss. Dig., 695; although the same may be allowed by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council: Quinlan v. Quinlan, 1901, A. C. 612.

Upon the case being agreed to by the parties, or settled by a Judge, the case is to be printed: see Rules S. C. 11, 12; and when printed the Registrar of the Court appealed from is to certify the case and transmit it, with 25 copies, to the Registrar of the Supreme Court of Canada; see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 45; Rule S. C. 11. For form of certificate, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1213; and when the security has been allowed by a Judge of the Court appealed from, the Registrar should also transmit his certificate thereof: see Ib., Nos. 1214, 1215; and see Macdonald v. Abbott, 3 S. C. R. 278.

Together with the printed case, certified copies of all original documents and exhibits used in evidence in the Court of first instance are to be deposited with the Registrar of the Supreme Court, unless their production is dispensed with by order of a Judge of the Supreme Court; and the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, may order that all or any of the original documents be transmitted to the Registrar of the Supreme Court: see Rule S. C. 14.

The case must be filed with the Registrar of the Supreme Court twenty clear days, at least, before the first day of the session of the Supreme Court at which the appeal is to be heard: see Rule S. C. 31.

For form of case: see Rule S. C. 12.

Staying proceedings pending appeal.

Stay of Proceedings, pending Appeal.—Where it is desired to stay execution pending the appeal, further security, in addition to the $500 above mentioned, is required to be given: see R. S. C. c. 139, s. 76; and an order obtained allowing the security: Kelly v. Imperial Loan Co., 10 P. R. 499; Agricultural Ins. Co. v. Sargent, 16 P. R. 397; and see Rombough v. Balch, 19 P. R. 123. After the judgment of the Appellate Division has been entered, that Division has no jurisdiction to stay proceedings in the High Court Division pending an appeal to the Supreme Court: see Hargrove v. Royal Templars, 2 O. L. R. 126. A stay of a reference to take accounts pending an appeal was refused: Saskatchewan L. & H. Co. v. Moore, 6 O. W. N. 162.

The Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction in such a case, and, semble, a Judge in Chambers, in a case in which an appeal does not lie to the Supreme Court of Canada without leave, cannot stay proceedings until leave to appeal can be obtained: Tabb v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., 8 O. L. R. 514.

The former Court of Appeal refused to continue an injunction, which was dissolved by the judgment appealed from, pending an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada: Klees v. Dominion C. & A. Co., 3 O. W. R. 937; or to stay a new trial: Hockley v. Grand Trunk Ry., 7 O. L. R. 186.

Factums to be put in.

Factums.—At least fifteen days before the first day of the session at which the appeal is to be heard, the appellant and respondent are, respectively, to deposit with the Registrar of the Supreme Court twenty-five copies of their factums, or points for argument in appeal: see Rule S. C. 29. The factum is to contain a concise statement of the facts and of the points of law intended to be relied on, and of the uments and authorities to be urged and cited at the hearing, Sec. 31.

nged under appropriate heads; see Rule S. C. 30; and is to rinted in the same style as the case; see Rule S. C. 31.

No factums are required in habeas corpus appeals; see Rule S. C. 61. Hab. corp.

If the appellant does not deposit his factum within the prescribed Default in putting in factum.
, the respondent may move to dismiss the appeal; see Rule S. C. and if the respondent does not deposit his factum the appellant set the appeal down to be heard ex parte; see Rule S. C. 33; such setting down may, on application in Chambers, supported by avits excusing the default, be set aside; see Rule S. C. 34. The um first deposited is not to be open to inspection by the opposite y until he has deposited his own factum; see Rule S. C. 35. After a party has deposited his factum he may, on demand, obtain three Amendment.

A judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada is amendable: Letourneau v. Carbonneau, 35 S. C. R. 701.

APPEALS TO HIS MAJESTY IN HIS PRIVY COUNCIL.

Appeals to King in Council.

The prerogative of the Court to allow an appeal to His Majesty in Council cannot be taken away by any Canadian statute: see Canadian Pacific Ry. v. Toronto, 1911, A. C. 461; 104 L. T. 724; nor by any Court: see 116 L. J. Jour. 28.

Appeals to His Majesty in His Privy Council.—In cases where the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $4,000, or where the matter in question relates to the taking of an annual or other rent, customary or other duty, or fee, or any like demand of a general and public nature affecting future rights of what value or amount soever the same may be, an appeal from the Appellate Division lies to His Majesty in His Privy Council; but except as aforesaid it is declared that no appeal shall lie to His Majesty in His Privy Council: The Privy Council Appeals Act (R. S. O. c. 54), s. 2; but as to this latter provision, see Clarkson v. Ryan, 17 S. C. R. 251; sed vide Cuvillier v. Aylwin, 2 Knapp., 72.

When appeal may be made.

Appeals as of Right.—The Privy Council Appeals Act (R. S. O. c. 54), provides:—

"2. Where the matter in controversy in any case exceeds the sum or value of $4,000, as well as in any case where the matter in question relates to the taking of any annual or other rent, customary or other duty, or fee, or any like demand of a general and public nature affecting future rights, of what value or amount soever the same may be, an appeal shall lie to His Majesty in His Privy Council; and, except as aforesaid, no appeal shall lie to His Majesty in His Privy Council. 10 Edw. VII. c. 24, s. 2.

Security.

3. No such appeal shall be allowed until the appellant has given security in $2,000, to the satisfaction of the Court appealed from, that he will effectually prosecute the appeal, and pay such costs and damages as may be awarded in case the judgment appealed from is confirmed. 10 Edw. VII. c. 24, s. 3."

From Supreme Court.

This appeal may be had from the Appellate Division to the Privy Council without first resorting to the Supreme Court of Canada; but it cannot be had per saltum from the High Court Division.

Where an appeal has been had to the Supreme Court of Canada, a further appeal to His Majesty in His Privy Council can only be had by special leave of the Judicial Committee: R. S. C. c. 139, s. 59; Cuvillier v. Aylwin, 2 Knapp. 72.

Amount in dispute.

Where the question in controversy (the destruction of the defendants' franchise), was not within the last branch of s. 2 supra, and there was nothing before the Court to shew that the matter in controversy was of value to the plaintiffs of more than $4,000 or of any sum capable of being valued or ascertained, a motion by the plaintiffs to allow security for an appeal to His Majesty in Council was dismissed: Toronto v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 11 O. L. R. 310; followed in Beardmore v. Toronto, 2 O. W. N. 479. In allowing security or an appeal, the Appellate Division or a Judge thereof is bound to consider whether the case is properly appealable, and when it appears by its order that it has left this question open, no appeal lies: Gillett v. Lumsden, 1905, A. C. 601; 93 L. T. 314. Sec. 31.

Where the plaintiff originally claimed $5,000 damages, but agreed to fix the damages at $1,000, for which amount he recovered judgment, and abandoned all claim to $4,000, it was held that the amount in controversy did not exceed $4,000, and no appeal lay by the defendant: Preston v. Toronto Ry., 13 O. L. R. 78.

No appeal lies in an action to restrain infringement of a trade mark where no particular sum is in controversy or involved: Gillett v. Lumsden, 1905, A. C. 601; 93 L. T. 314.

Leave when Necessary.—Except in cases provided for by The Privy Council Appeals Act, s. 2, supra, no appeal can be had to His Majesty in Council without leave. Leave to appeal to P.C. when necessary Proceedings in Obtaining Leave to Appeal.—The practice in applying for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council is comparatively simple. A petition is presented setting out the matter as briefly as possible, and reducing it as far as possible to the condition of a legal problem: shewing that the amount involved is very considerable, or the case otherwise very important, or that it involves matter of public interest; or that an important and far reaching point of law is involved, and that there is prima facie ground for contending that the judgment in the Court below is wrong. Any one of these contentions may turn the scale in favour of the applicant. Their absence is generally the ground for refusing leave, and of the three the question of law is more often the decisive one; see Daily Telegraph v. McLaughlin, 1904, A. C. 776; Montreal v. St. Sulpice, 14 App. Cas. 660; Prince v. Gagnon, 8 App. Cas. 103. Application for leave

The petition may be typewritten, but it is better to print it, as in that case all the members of the Judicial Committee who are to sit see it, whereas if it is only typewritten only one as a rule peruses it before going into Court: see infra, pp. 178, 185-187.

The petition may be drawn, revised and typewritten here, there is no reason why it should not be printed in Canada provided it be printed in the manner prescribed by the Rules of the Privy Council: see infra p. 185, R. 47. As a general rule, however, it is drafted and sent over to the London agents who see to its typing or printing. They then set it down with the Registrar of the Privy Council for hearing.

It is very advisable, but not necessary, to have a certified copy of the case from the Court from which the appeal is proposed to be taken.

Leave, When Granted or Refused.—The Privy Council will not advise His Majesty to admit an appeal from the Supreme Court of Canada, save where the case is of gravity involving matters of public interest or some important question of law, or affecting property of considerable amount, or where the case is otherwise of some public importance, or of a very substantial character: Prince v. Gagnon, 8 App. Cas. 103; Johnston v. St. Andrews, 3 App. Cas. 159; Daily Telegraph v. McLaughlin, 1904, A. C. 776; but semble the same considerations might not apply to an application for leave to appeal from the Supreme Court of Ontario. Amongst the considerations affecting the granting of the leave are - the general importance of the Leave to appeal to P.C., when granted.

Sec. 31.

question, whether it has caused great difference of judicial opinion, and the extent to which the decision has been based upon English authorities: Robinson v. Can. Pac. Ry., 1892, A. C. 481; 67 L. T. 505; it is not enough that the questions involved are of great importance to the parties or calculated to attract public attention: Dumoulin v. Langtry, 57 L. T. 317. Special leave to appeal was refused in a case involving only an issue of fact: Canada Central Ry. Co. v. Murray, 8 App. Cas. 574.

Leave to appeal from an injunction was granted, where it was shewn that to obey it would put the appellant to expense of £300: Centre Star v. Rossland K. M. Co., 11 B. C. R. 509.

When refused.

Leave to appeal was refused though the question sought to be raised was one of public importance, and turned on the construction of a statute, because the Privy Council did not think there was any reasonable doubt as to the correctness of the construction which had been adopted: Montreal v. Seminaire de St. Sulpice, 14 App. Cas. 660; 16 S. C. R. 407; and see Toronto v. Attorney-General, 29 C. L. J. 601; and where the appellant had the right to appeal either to the Supreme Court of Canada or to His Majesty in Council, and has elected to appeal to the Supreme Court and has failed, a further appeal to His Majesty in Council will not be allowed unless some important question of law is involved: the question whether a railway company is bound to protect a passenger on its railway from assault was not considered a question of such importance as to warrant the granting of leave: Canadian Pacific Ry. v. Blain, 1904, A. C. 453, and see Clergue v. Murray, 1903, A. C. 521; Victorian Ry. Comrs. v. Brown, 1906, A. C. 381; 95 L. T. 73; Wilfley Ore Concentrator Syndicate v. Guthridge, 1906, A. C. 548; 95 L. T. 73.

When leave granted on one ground another cannot be taken.

Where an appellant obtained leave to appeal on the ground that he desired to raise a particular question of great and general importance, he was not permitted on the appeal to contend that no such question arose, and that the case turned upon a question of fact on which the Court below was in error: St. John's v. Central Vermont Ry. Co., 14 App. Cas. 590.

Where an appellant had omitted to move for a new trial within the time prescribed by a statute, it was held that the Privy Council could not dispense with, or relax the provisions of such statute: Emery v. Wells, 1906, A. C. 515.

Leave to appeal was refused where the amount involved was inconsiderable, and the question at issue had been settled by subsequent legislation, so that it could not again arise: Commissioners of Taxation for New South Wales v. Baxter, 1908, A. C. 214; 98 L. T. 221.

Leave will not be given to enable an appellant to raise the question as to the policy or propriety of a colonial statute, the Judicial Committee having no jurisdiction to entertain any such question: Tilonko v. Attorney-General, 1907, A. C. 461; 97 L. T. 613.

Appeal not allowed on question of procedure nor on points not taken below.

His Majesty in Council will not entertain appeals on mere questions of procedure, where no substantial injustice has been done, and will not suffer points to be raised on such appeals which were not taken, or have been abandoned, in the Court below: The Palgrave Gold Mg. Co. v. McMillan, 1892, A. C. 460; 67 L. T. 425; Randwick v. Australian C. I. Corp., 1893, A. C. 322; Solling v. Broughton, 1893, A. C. 556; Ex p. Kennington, 8 Jur. N. S. 1111; Grey v. Manitoba & N. W. Ry. 1897, A. C. 254, unless the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is satisfied that it has before it all the facts bearing on the new contention s completely as if it had been raised at the trial: Karunaratne v. erdinandus, 1902, A. C. 405, 86 L. T. 329; Archambault v. Archambault, 87 L. T. 404; 1902, A. C. 575, and see The Queen v. Poirier, 30 . C. R. 36; and when the question of the illegality of a contract was aised by the Court of Appeal itself, but had not been raised in argument before them, the Judicial Committee, though considering the circumstances suspicious, declined to give judgment on the question and ent the case for a new trial: Connolly v. Consumers' Cordage Co., 9 L. T. 347. Sec. 31.

Where the Supreme Court of Canada has acted under a special eference to it, under an agreement between the parties, and not in its rdinary jurisdiction as a Court of Appeal, no appeal lies to His ajesty in Council: Atty.-Gen. of Nova Scotia v. Gregory, 55 L. T. 270; 5 L. J. P. C. 40. No appeal from Sup. Ct. when acting under special power.

Where the Court below gives leave to appeal to His Majesty in ouncil, the appeal may nevertheless be quashed, if it appears to the udicial Committee to be improper or futile: see Grieve v. Tasker, 1906, . C. 132; 94 L. T. 115. Appeal may be quashed though leave given.

For other cases illustrating the principles on which the Judicial ommittee acts in granting special leave to appeal: see 89 L. T. our. 287.

Terms Imposed.—Where leave to appeal is granted in a case where he amount in dispute is below that for which an appeal lies in rict course of law, it may be granted only on the terms of the ppellant submitting to pay the costs of the appeal in any event: henton v. Smith, 1895, A. C. 229; 72 L. T. 130; Montreal Gas Co. v. adieux, 1898, A. C. 718. Terms.

Leave to Cross Appeal.—Where the respondents were clearly ntitled to relief, but had not presented a cross petition, leave to file he nunc pro tunc was granted at the hearing of the appeal: Toronto y. v. King, 1908, A. C. 260; 98 L. T. 650. Cross appeal nunc pro tunc.

Appeal in Forma Pauperis.—By leave of the Judicial Committee n appeal may be allowed to be prosecuted in formâ pauperis in a roper case; but where it subsequently appeared that such an appeal as frivolous and the leave would not have been granted if all the cts had been disclosed, the order was rescinded: Quinlan v. Quinlan, 01, A. C. 612. Appeal in forma pauperis.

As to prosecuting or opposing appeals, in formâ pauperis: see infra 179, R. 8, and p. 184, R. 44.

Security to be Given.—Security is to be given by the appellant case of an appeal to His Majesty in His Privy Council, to the satisction of the Court appealed from, in the sum of $2,000; such security ill be usually given by paying the money into Court to abide the reult of the appeal; or by giving a bond to the respondent in double the mount on condition that the appellant will effectually prosecute his ppeal, and pay such costs and damages as shall be awarded in case e judgment appealed from is confirmed: The Privy Council Appeals ct (R. S. O. c. 54), s. 3, supra. Security to be given on appeals to Privy Council.

For form of bond in: see H. & L. Forms No. 1224; and The Privy ouncil Appeals Act, Form 1.

A bond according to the terms of this Form having the words "or y" in the condition, instead of "and pay," is regular; and "effectlly prosecute" means "successfully prosecute." But to entitle the Bond.

Sec. 31.

appellant to a stay of execution, a bond with the condition in the form of H. & L. Forms No. 1206 is necessary: International Bridge Co. v Canada Southern Ry. Co., 9 P. R. 250; McMaster v. Radford, 16 P. R. 20; The Privy Council Appeals Act (R. S. O. c. 54), s. 4; and Form 1.

Payment into Court.

In lieu of giving a bond, the appellant may pay into the Supreme Court of Ontario $2,000 by way of security for the costs of the appeal: see Florence Mining Co. v. Cobalt Lake Mining Co., 19 O. L. R. 342. Where there are several respondents, each of them is not entitled to separate security for $2,000: Stavert v. McMillan, 3 O. W. N. 165; 20 O. W. R. 242.

Security not allowed till leave given when necessary.

Where there is no appeal as of right from the judgment of the Appellate Division, that Court will not, until leave to appeal has been obtained, allow security for a proposed appeal to the Privy Council: Can. Pacific Ry. v. Toronto, 19 O. L. R. 663.

The Supreme Court of Canada has no jurisdiction to stay execution pending an appeal from its judgment to the King in Council: Peters v. Perras, 42 S. C. R. 311, overruling Union Investment Co. v. Wells, 41 S. C. R. 244: neither will it entertain an application to stay proceedings pending an appeal from that Court to His Majesty in Council: Adams v. Bank of Montreal, 31 S. C. R. 223.

The respondent is entitled to a security free from objections which might be raised by the sureties if sued: Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 535.

Motion for disallowance of bond, when made.

Where the respondent objects to the sufficiency of the bond, he must move to disallow it, or it will, under The Privy Council Appeals Act, s. 8, stand allowed after the lapse of fourteen days from service of notice of its filing. The motion should be made in the Court appealed from. The application may be entertained by the Master in Chambers, or, where the bond is filed in an outer office, by a Local Master, or Local Judge, having jurisdiction: see Rules 207-209: Brigham v. Smith, 1 Chy. Ch. 334.

A bond filed before leave to appeal is granted, in a case where leave is necessary, is irregular, and will be disallowed; and a bond which has been disallowed on that ground cannot afterwards be filed, on leave to appeal being granted, without the consent of the sureties: Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 435.

Affidavits may be used.

Affidavits may be read in opposition to the affidavits of justification of the sureties: Campbell v. Royal Canadian Bank, 6 P. R. 45; Brigham v. Smith, 1 Chy. Ch. 334; and also depositions made by the sureties in another action to which the principal was no party: Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 435; but whether the sureties are liable to cross-examination on their affidavits of justification, quære: but see Rule 227; Douglas v. Blackey, 14 P. R. 504; and whether they may be compelled to attend to be so examined by being served with an appointment and subpœna though no motion against the bond is pending, quære: but see Rule 338; Hughes v. Hughes, 17 C. L. J. 110; 1 C. L. T. 189.

Whether sureties may be examined.

Bond and affidavits to be filed.

The bond, and affidavits of execution, and justification, are separate documents, and each must be stamped with a proper filing stamp: McBeth v. Smart, 1 Chy. Ch. 269.

The affidavit of justification should be entitled in the cause: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1207. In Molsons Bank v. Cooper, 17 P. R. 153, it was held that an affidavit of execution not so entitled is Stay of Execution, or Proceedings Pending Appeal.—The Privy uncil Appeals Act (R. S. O. c. 54), provides:—

"4. Suhject to Rules af Court, upon the perfecting of auch security, Stay of execution.
ecution shall he stayed in the original cause, except in the follow-cases:—

(a) If the judgment appealed from directs the assignment or Exceptions: Where assignment or delivery of documents or personal property directed.
delivery of documents or personnl property, execution shall not he stayed until the things directed to be assigned or delivered have been brought into Court or placed in the custody of such officer or receiver as that Court or a Judge of it appoints, or until security haa been given to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof, and in such sum as may be directed, that the appellant will obey the order of the Privy Council; Delivery into custody, or security.

(b) If the judgment appealed from directs the execution of a Where execution of instrument directed.
conveyance or any other instrument, execution shall not he stayed until the instrument has been executed and deposited with the proper officer, to abide the judgment of the Privy Council;

Sec. 31.

Where sale of real property, etc., directed.

Security, not to commit waste.

(c) If the judgment appealed from directs the sale or delivery of possession of real property or chattels real, execution shall not be stayed until security has been entered into to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, and in such sum as such Court or Judge directs, that during the possession of the property by the appellant he will not commit or suffer to be committed any waste on the property, and if the judgment is confirmed he will pay the value of the use and occupation of the property from the time of the appeal until the delivery of possession of it, and also in case the judgment is for the sale of property and the payment of a deficiency arising upon the sale, that the appellant will pay the deficiency;

Where payment of money directed.

Security to pay debt.

(d) If the judgment appealed from directs the payment of money, execution shall not be stayed until the appellant has given security to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof that if the judgment or any part of it is affirmed the appellant will pay the amount thereby directed to be paid or the part of it as to which the judgment may be affirmed, if it is affirmed only as to part, and all damages awarded against the appellant on the appeal. 2 Geo. V. c. 18, s. 1, part."

Forms, etc., of security. Rev. Stat. c. 10.

5. Subject to the provisions of The Guarantee Companies Securities Act, the security shall be by the bond, Form 1, of two sufficient sureties, each of whom shall make affidavits of justification, Form 2. 2 Geo. V. c. 18, s. 1, part.

Where the security is given by bond of a Guarantee Company approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council—no sureties or affidavits of justification are necessary. See ss. 4, 5 and sec. 69, post. The Privy Council Appeals Act also provides as follows:—

Amount of security where judgment directs payment of money.

"6. Where security is to be given for payment of money, directed by the judgment or order appealed from to be paid, either as a debt or for damages or costs, the bond shall be in double the amount by the judgment or order directed to be paid; but where security is to be given in a sum in excess of $2,000, the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof may allow it to be given by a larger number of sureties, apportioning the amount among them as may be deemed proper; and where the amount directed to be paid exceeds $10,000 may allow the security to be given for such amount less than double the amount directed to be paid as may be deemed proper. 2 Geo. V. c. 18, s. 1, part.

Where judgment directs sale, etc.

7. Where the judgment appealed from directs the sale or delivery of possession of real property or chattels real, the bond shall be in double the yearly value of the property. 2 Geo. V. c. 18, s. 1, part.

Filing of bond.

8. The bond, with an affidavit of the due execution of it, and the affidavits of justification, shall be filed in the office in which the action or matter was commenced, and shall be deemed to be perfected and allowed, unless within fourteen days after being served with notice of the filing the respondent moves for its disallowance; but the appellant may, after the filing, make a special application before the expiration of such fourteen days to stay execution. 2 Geo. V. c. 18, s. 1, part (see note to s. 5, supra).

Payment into court in lieu of bond.

9. Instead of giving a bond the appellant may, without order, pay into Court a sum equal to half the penalty of the bond in cases within ction 5 or section 7, or equal to the amount by the judgment or order rected to be paid in cases within section 6, and the money when so id is shall stand as security in lieu of a bond, but either party may pply to the Court or a Judge to increase or diminish the amount to paid into Court. 2 Geo. V. c. 18, s. 1, part." Sec. 31.

A judgment declaring that the plaintiff is entitled to damages and recting a reference to assess the same, and reserving further direc- ons, is not a judgment for payment of money within section 4 pra: see Sharpe v. White, 20 O. L. R. 475; but the Court in its scretion may stay the reference under such a judgment pending e appeal: Ib; but a judgment for the specific performance of a con- act to form a joint stock company and ordering the proposed ap- llant to pay costs, was held by Maclaren, J.A., to be a judgment for e payment of money: McLeod v. Crawford, 17 Sept., 1908.

Where judgment is given by the Appellate Division in favour of fendant with costs, he is entitled to payment out of Court of money id into Court by the plaintiff as security for the costs of the action, twithstanding an intended appeal by the plaintiff to the Privy uncil, as, otherwise, there would in effect be a stay of proceedings thout any security being given. In such a case the plaintiff should ply to the Appellate Division to stay execution: Centaur Cycle Co. Hill, 7 O. L. R. 617. Money in Court as security for costs may be paid notwithstanding appeal to P.C.

Approval of Security.—The Privy Council Appeals Act (R. S. O. 54) provides:—

"11. A Judge of the Supreme Court shall have authority to ap- ve of and allow the security to be given by a party who intends appeal to His Majesty in His Privy Council, whether the applica- n for such allowance be made during the sittings of the Court, at any other time. 10 Edw. VII c. 24, s. 6." Approval of security.

Stay of Execution on Perfecting Security—The Privy Council Appeals Act provides:— Stay of execution.

"10. When the security has been perfected and allowed, a Judge the Supreme Court may issue his fiat to the sheriff to whom any ecution upon the judgment has been issued, to stay the execution, d the execution shall be thereby stayed, whether a levy has been de under it or not; but if the grounds of appeal appear to be rolous, the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof may order execution issue or to be proceeded with. 2 Geo. V. c. 18, s. 1, part." Fiat for stay. Unless appeal frivolous.

Provisions as to Security, when not Applicable.—The provi- ns above mentioned as to security do not apply to an appeal to His jesty in His Privy Council from a judgment of any Court on a erence under The Constitutional Questions Act. See R. S. O. c. 54, 2. Exception in Appeals under R.S.O. c. 85.

And a person prosecuting an appeal in formâ pauperis is not re- red to give security for costs: see infra p. 179, R. 9; but he does appear to be able to stay execution without giving security.

P. C. Rules.

Under the Imperial Statute, 7 & 8 Vict. c. 69, s. 11, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is empowered to make Rules, and under the power thus conferred the following Rules relating to appeals have been passed.

THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE RULES, 1908.

Special Leave to appeal.

Form of Petition for special leave to appeal.

3. A Petition for special leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council shall state succinctly and fairly all such facts as it may be necessary to state in order to enable the Judicial Committee to advise His Majesty whether such leave ought to be granted. The Petition shall not travel into extraneous matter, and shall deal with the merits of the case only so far as is necessary for the purpose of explaining and supporting the particular grounds upon which special leave to appeal is sought.

*This order is to be found in Holmested & Langton (3rd ed.) p. 1091.

P. C. Rules.

4. The Petitioner shall lodge at least three copies of his Petition r special leave to appeal together with the Affidavit in support there- prescribed by Rule 50 hereinafter contained. Three copies of Petition to be lodged together with Affidavit in support.

5. A Petition for special leave to appeal may be lodged at any me after the date of the judgment sought to be appealed from, but e Petitioner shall, in every case, lodge his Petition with the least ssible delay. Time for lodging Petition.

6. Where the Judicial Committee agree to advise His Majesty to ant special leave to appeal, they shall, in their Report, specify the mount of the security for costs (if any) to be lodged by the Petl- oner, and the period (if any) within which such security is to be dged and shall, unless the circumstances of a particular cass render ch s course unnecessary, provide for the transmission of the Record the Registrar of the Court appealed from to the Registrar of the ivy Council and for such further matters as the justice of the case ay require. Security for costs and transmission of Record.

7. Save as by the four last preceding Rules otherwise provided, the ovisions of Rules 47 to 50 and 52 to 59 (all inclusive) hereinafter ntained shall apply mutatis mutandis to Petitions for special leave appeal. General provisions.

8. Rules 3 to 7 (both inclusive) shall apply mutatis mutandis to titions for leave to appeal in formâ pauperis, but in addition to the fidavit referred to in Rule 4 every such Petition shall be accompanied an Affidavit from the Petitioner stating that he is not worth £25 in e world excepting his wearing apparel and his interest in the subject- tter of the intended Appeal, and that he is unable to provide sure- s, and also by a certificate of Counsel that the Petitioner has reason- le ground of appeal. Petitions for special leave to appeal in forma pauperis.

9. Where a Petitioner obtains leave to appeal in formâ pauperis, shall not be required to lodge security for the costs of the Respond- t or to pay any Council Office fees. Exemption of pauper Appellant from lodging security and paying Office fees.

10. A Petitioner whose Petition for leave to appeal in formâ uperis is dismissed may, notwithstanding such dismissal, be excused om paying the Council Office fees usually chargeable to a Petitioner respect of a Petition for leave to appeal, if His Majesty in Council, the advice of the Judicial Committee, shall think fit so to order. Exemption of unsuccessful Petitioner for leave to appeal in forma pauperis from payment of Office fees.

Record.

11. As soon as an Appeal has been admitted, whether by an Order the Court appealed from or by an Order of His Majesty in Council anting special leave to appeal, the Appellant shall without delay take necessary steps to have the Record transmitted to the Registrar of e Privy Council. Record to be transmitted without delay.

12. The Record shall be printed in accordance with Rules I. to IV. Schedule A. hereto. It may be so printed either abroad or in gland. Printing of Record.

13. Where the Record is printed abroad, the Registrar shall, at the pense of the Appellant, transmit to the Registrar of the Privy Council copies of such Record, one of which copies he shall certify to be rect by signing his name on, or initialling, every eighth page thereof d by affixing thereto the seal, if any, of the Court appealed from. Number of copies to be transmitted, where Record printed abroad

14. Where the Record is to be printed in England, the Registrar all, at the expense of the Appellant, transmit to the Registrar of e Privy Council one certified copy of such Record, together with an dex of all the papers and exhibits in the case. No other certified One certified copy to be transmitted, where Record to be printed in England.

P. C. Rules.

copies of the Record shall be transmitted to the Agents in England by or on behalf of the parties to the Appeal.

Record printed partly abroad, partly in England.

13. Where part of the Record is printed abroad and part is to be printed in England, Rules 13 and 14 shall, as far as practicable, apply to such parts as are printed abroad and such as are to be printed in England respectively.

Reasons for judgments to be transmitted.

16. The reasons given by the judge, or any of the judges, for or against any judgment pronounced in the course of the proceedings out of which the Appeal arises, shall by such judge or judges be communicated in writing to the Registrar and shall by him be transmitted to the Registrar of the Privy Council at the same time when the Record is transmitted.

Exclusion of unnecessary documents from Record.

17. The Registrar, as well as the parties and their Agents, shall endeavour to exclude from the Record all documents (more particularly such as are merely formal) that are not relevant to the subject-matter of the Appeal, and, generally, to reduce the bulk of the Record as far as practicable, taking special care to avoid the duplication of documents and the unnecessary repetition of headings and other merely formal parts of documents; but the documents omitted to be printed or copied shall be enumerated in a list to be placed after the Index or at the end of the Record.

Documents objected to to be indicated.

18. Where in the course of preparation of a Record one party objects to the inclusion of a document on the ground that it is unnecessary or irrelevant, and the other party nevertheless insists upon its being included, the Record, as finally printed (whether abroad or in England), shall, with a view to the subsequent adjustment of the costs of and incidental to such document, indicate, in the Index of papers, or otherwise, the fact that, and the party by whom, the inclusion of the document was objected to.

Registration and numbering of Records.

19. As soon as the Record is received in the Registry of the Privy Council, it shall be registered in the said Registry, with the date of arrival, the names of the parties, the date of the judgment appealed from, and the description whether "printed" or "written." A Record, or any part of a Record, not printed in accordance with Rules I. to IV. of Schedule A hereto, shall be treated as written. Appeals shall be numbered consecutively in each year in the order in which the Records are received in the said Registry.

Inspection of Record by parties.

20. The parties shall be entitled to inspect the Record and to extract all necessary particulars therefrom for the purpose of entering an Appearance.

Times within which a copy of a written Record shall be bespoken.

21. Where the Record arrives in England either wholly written, or partly written and party printed, the Appellant shall, within a period of four months from the date of such arrival in the case of Appeals from Courts situate in any of the countries or places named in Schedule B hereto, and within a period of two months from the same date in the case of Appeals from any other Courts, enter an Appearance and bespeak a type-written copy of the Record, or of such parts thereof as it may be necessary to have copied, and shall engage to pay the cost of preparing such copy at the following rates per folio typed (exclusive of tabular matter)—1½*d.* per folio of English matter, 2d. per folio of Indian matter, and 3*d.* per folio of foreign matter.

Notice of Appearance by Appellant.

22. The Appellant shall forthwith, after entering his Appearance, give notice thereof to the Respondent, if the latter has entered an Appearance.

Preparation of copy of Record for Printer.

23. As soon as the Appellant has obtained the type-written copy of ie Record bespoken by him, he shall proceed, with due diligence, to rrange the documents in suitable order, to check the index, to insert ie marginal notes and check the same with the index, and, generally, do whatever may be required for the purpose of preparing the copy r the Printer, and shall, if the Respondent has entered an Appearance, bmit the copy, as prepared for the Printer, to the Respondent for is approval. In the event of the parties being unable to agree as to y matter arising under this Rule, such matter shall be referred to e Registrar of the Privy Council, whose decision thereon shall be al.

Lodging copy of Record for Printing.

24. As soon as the type-written copy of the Record is ready for the rinter, the Appellant shall lodge it, with a request to the Registrar the Privy Council to cause it to be printed by His Majesty's Printer by any other printer on the same terms, and shall engage to pay at e price specified in Rule V. of Schedule A hereto the cost of printing copies thereof, or such other number as in the opinion of the said egistrar the circumstances of the case require.

Special Case.

25. Whenever it shall be found that the decision of a matter on peal is likely to turn exclusively on a question of law, the parties, ith the sanction of the Registrar of the Privy Council, may submit ch question of law to the Judicial Committee in the form of a Special se, and print such parts only of the Record as may be necessary for e discussion of the same. Provided that nothing herein contained all in any way prevent the Judicial Committee from ordering the ll discussion of the whole case, if they shall so think fit, and that, order to promote such arrangements and simplification of the matter dispute, the said Registrar may call the parties before him, and aving heard them, and examined the Record, may report to the Judial Committee as to the nature of the proceedings.

Examination of proof of Record and striking off copies.

26. The Registrar of the Privy Council shall, as soon as the proof ints of the Record are ready, give notice to all parties who have tered an Appearance requesting them to attend at the Registry of the ivy Council at a time to be named in such notice in order to examine e said proof prints and compare the same with the certified Record, d shall, for that purpose, furnish each of the said parties with one oof print. After the examination has been completed, the Appellant all, without delay, lodge his proof print, duly corrected and (so far necessary) approved by the Respondent, and the Registrar of the ivy Council shall thereupon cause the copies of the Record to be uck off from such proof print.

Number of copies of Record for parties.

27. Each party who has entered an Appearance shall be entitled to ceive, for his own use, six copies of the Record.

How costs of printing Record are to be borne.

28. Subject to any special directions from the Judicial Committee the contrary, the costs of and incidental to the printing of the Record all form part of the costs of the Appeal, but the costs of and incident to the printing of any document objected to by one party, in accordnce with Rule 18, shall, if such document is found on the taxation of sts to be unnecessary or irrelevant, be disallowed to, or borne by, the rty insisting on including the same in the Record.

Enforcing judgment of H. M. in Council.

Enforcing Judgments of His Majesty in Council.—Provision is made by Rule 524 for enforcing the judgments of His Majesty in Council by filing the order in the Supreme Court, whereupon it may be entered and acted upon as a judgment of that Court. Where the order reverses a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada it may be made a rule of that Court: Lewin v. Howe, 14 S. C. R. 722; and where costs have been paid under the judgment so reversed the Supreme Court will order them to be refunded: Ib., and semble, with interest from the date of payment: see Ashworth v. English Card Clothing Co. (No. 2), 1904, 1 Ch. 704; 90 L. T. 263.

Costs.—The Privy Council Appeals Act (R. S. O. c. 54), provides:— Sec. 32.

"13. Costs awarded by His Majesty in His Privy Council upon an appeal shall be recoverable by the same process as costs awarded by the Supreme Court: 10 Edw. VII. c. 24, s. 8." Costs.

Where by the judgment of the Privy Council costs are awarded, in the absence of any express direction to the contrary, they are payable forthwith after taxation, and no inferior Court has jurisdiction to stay execution therefor, with a view to setting off damages or costs: Metallic Roofing Co. v. Jose, 17 O. L. R. 237.

EFFECT OF JUDICIAL DECISIONS.

32.—(1) The decision of a Divisional Court on a question of law or practice unless overruled or otherwise impugned by a higher court shall be binding on all Divisional Courts and on all other courts and judges and shall not be departed from in subsequent cases without the concurrence of the judges who gave the decision. Decisions of Divisional Court to be binding.

(2) It shall not be competent for any Judge of the High Court Division in any case before him to disregard or depart from a prior known decision of any other judge of co-ordinate authority on any question of law or practice without his concurrence. Judge to follow known prior decision of Judge of co-ordinate authority.

(3) If a Judge deems a decision previously given to be wrong and of sufficient importance to be considered in a higher court, he may refer the case before him to a Divisional Court. If decision deemed wrong, reference may be made to a Divisional Court.

(4) Where a case is so referred, it shall be set down for hearing, and notice of hearing shall be given in like manner as in the case of an appeal to a Divisional Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 32. Procedure thereon.

The Divisional Court referred to in this section is a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division.

This section only affects civil proceedings. As Courts of Appeal for criminal cases were formerly constituted (as to which see note to s. 3), the decision of the Judges of one Court was not binding on the Judges of another Court of co-ordinate jurisdiction: The Queen v. Hammond, 29 Ont. 211. Whether that case is still an authority remains to be determined.

A decision of the House of Lords upon a question of law is conclusively binding upon the House afterwards: London Tramways Co. v. London County Council, 1898, A. C. 375.

It would seem to have been decided in Toronto v. Toronto Ry., 9 O. W. R. 330, 335, that sub-section (1) interferes with the rule laid down in Trimble v. Hill, 5 App. Cas. 344, (see also City Bank v. Barrow, 5 App. Cas. 679), and adopted in Hollender v. Foulkes, 26 Gr. 61, that in the construction of a Colonial Act similar in its terms Sub-section (1), how it affects decision in Trimble v. Hill.

Sec. 33.

to an Imperial Act, the Colonial Courts should adopt as authoritative the construction placed upon the Imperial Act by the Court of Appeal in England in preference to prior decisions of the Colonial Courts of Appeal. The rule was not adopted in Macdonald v. Macdonald, 11 Ont. 187, and McDonald v. Elliott, 12 Ont. 98; see also Woodruff v. McLennan, 14 Ont. App. 256, and in Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., supra, p. 193, it has been held that a decision of the Court of Appeal is to be followed, notwithstanding that it is in conflict with English authorities, except decisions of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

As to the effect of a decision where the Appellate Court is equally divided: see Clarkson v. Atty.-General of Canada, 16 Ont. App. 202; Re Stanstead Election, 20 S. C. R. 12.

Decisions of other Courts not held binding.

Formerly in cases where the High Court of Justice was a final Court of Appeal, in some cases (notwithstanding a similar provision in the Jud. Act. 1897), it followed: Toronto Auer Light Co. v. Colling, 31 Ont. 18; Slater v. Laboree, 10 O. L. R. 648; and in some cases refused to follow prior decisions of Courts of co-ordinate jurisdiction: see Re Stinson and College of Physicians and Surgeons, 27 O. L. R. 565; Mercier v. Compbell, 14 O. L. R. 639, or even a decision of the Court of Appeal: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Perram, 31 Ont. 116; Farrell v. Gallagher, 23 O. L. R. 130; and see per Riddell, J., Crow v. Graham, 22 O. L. R. 145.

Conflict of decisions.

For a conflict existing between decisions of former Divisional Courts of the High Court: see McKelvey v. Chilman, 5 O. L. R. 263, and cases referred to therein, and in the notes to Rule 314.

Before this enactment it was decided in Pledge v. Corr, 1895, 1 Ch. 51, and other cases that the decision of a Court of co-ordinate jurisdiction is to be followed, though this rule has not been uniformly observed and exceptions to it have been made: see Heath v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 388, more especially in cases where there is no further appeal, see, supra.

When Eng. or Prov. Courts to be followed.

Where after a succession of Ontario decisions the point involved becomes differently decided by Courts of first instance in England, the Ontario cases will, it would seem, be followed in preference to the English cases until a different decision is given by the English or the Provincial Court of Appeal: Moore v. Bank of B. N. A., 15 Gr. 308, 319.

Comparative authority of decisions.

As to the comparative authority of decisions of a single Judge sitting as the High Court, and those of a Divisional Court, see Tancred v. Delagoa Bay, etc., 23 Q. B. D. 242.

Ground for referring case to higher Court.

The words in sub-sec. 3 "deems the decision previously given to be wrong," were considered by Riddell, J., not to be equivalent to "has a suspicion that the decision may be wrong," but to mean something in the nature of an adjudication; and the fact that there was a conflicting Irish decision, was held not to be sufficient to warrant a reference of the point to a higher Court: In re Shafer, 15 O. L. R. 266.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTIONS.

Notice to be given to Attorneys-General of Canada and of Ontario before Act declared invalid.

33.—(1) Where in any action or other proceeding, the constitutional validity of any Act or enactment of the Parliament of Canada or of this Legislature is brought in question, the same shall not be adjudged to be invalid until after notice has been given to the Attorney-General for Canada, and the Attorney-General of Ontario. Sec. 34.

(2) The notice shall state what Act or part of an Act is in question, and the day on which the question is to be argued, and shall give such other particulars as are necessary to show the constitutional point proposed to be argued. Form of notice.

(3) Subject to the Rules, the notice shall be served six days before the day named for the argument. Six days' notice necessary.

(4) The Attorney-General for Canada and the Attorney-General of Ontario shall be entitled, as of right, to be heard, either in person or by counsel, notwithstanding that the Crown is not a party to the action or proceeding. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 33. Right of Attorneys-General to be heard.

By this section provision is made for the determination of the validity of Acts of either the Dominion or the Province when called in question incidentally in actions. By sec. 20 supra, provision is also made for the determination of the validity of any Provincial Act, either on the application of the Dominion, or Provincial Attorney-General.

INTEREST

34. Interest shall be payable in all cases in which it is now payable by law, [or in which it has been usual for a jury to allow it.] 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 34. Interest may be allowed as heretofore.

The words in brackets are not in the Imp. Act, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 42, s. 28, from which this section was taken. As to the words in brackets: see McCullough v. Clemow, 26 Ont. pp. 472, 475.

Interest is in practice more frequently allowed by our juries than English authority would seem to warrant: Spence v. Hector, 24 U. C. R. 277; see also Mennie v. Leitch, 8 Ont. 397; Snarr v. Badenach, 9 Ont. 131; Re Kirkpatrick, 10 P. R. 4; Michie v. Reynolds, 24 U. C. R. 303; Montgomery v. Boucher, 14 U. C. C. P. 45; McCullough v. Clemow, supra; McCullough v. Newlove, 27 Ont. 627. Where in the opinion of the Court payment of a just debt has been improperly withheld, and it seems fair and equitable that the party in default should make compensation by payment of interest, it is incumbent on the Court to allow interest for such time, and at such rate, as the Court may think right. Where no rate is fixed by the parties the Court has a jurisdiction to fix it. This need not necessarily be the legal rate: City of Toronto v. Toronto Ry., 7 O. L. R. 78; 1906 A. C. 117; 93 L. T. 646.

As to the allowance of interest on a claim in the Master's office: Re Ross, 29 Gr. 385; Rule 410 and notes. Master's office.

A referee on taking accounts has power to allow interest whenever a jury would be entitled to allow it: Attorney-General v. Etna

Sec. 35.

Insurance Co., 13 P. R. 459; and on amounts claimed for work and services agreed to be paid at a fixed rate, from the times when they became payable: McCullough v. Newlove, 27 Ont. 627.

Mortgages.

As to interest on mortgages: see Rule 474, and notes.

Interest Act.

The Interest Act (R. S. C. c. 120), being an Act passed on grounds of public policy for the benefit of borrowers, its application cannot be waived: Dunn v. Malone, 6 O. L. R. 484.

Foreign judgment.

Interest is not recoverable on the amount of a foreign judgment except as unliquidated damages: Solmes v. Stratford, 16 P. R. 78, 264; nor on an award; and such interest does not begin to run until notice of the award has been given to the person liable to pay: Hayes v. Wilson, 18 P. R. 44.

Fraud.

Interest is payable on money obtained, and retained, in fraud of the plaintiff, but not on money paid by mistake: Johnson v. The King, 1904, A. C. 817; 91 L. T. 234.

When allowable on debts certain and overdue.

35.—(1) On the trial of any issue, or on any assessment of damages, upon any debt or sum certain, payable by virtue of a written instrument at a time certain, interest may be allowed from the time when the debt or sum became payable.

See Towsley v. Wythes, 16 U. C. Q. B. 139; McCullough v. Clemow, supra, p. 195.

Debt or sum certain.

"Debt or Sum Certain, etc."—"The Act requires that the contract shall ascertain the sum and the time; the certainty of both must appear from the contract. But still, if all the elements of certainty appear by the contract, and nothing more is required than an arithmetical computation to ascertain the exact sum or the exact time for payment, that will be sufficient:" Per Lindley, L.J., in London C. & D. etc. v. S. E. Ry. Co., 1892, 1 Ch. 144; see also 1893, A. C. 429; and McCullough v. Clemow, 26 Ont. p. 473. But it is not sufficient that the debt or the time may be made certain by some process of calculation, or some act to be performed in the future: Sinclair v. Preston, 31 S. C. R. 408.

Bond.

Where the amount recovered on a bond is damages not ascertainable until judgment, interest will not be allowed: see Sinclair v. Preston, 31 S. C. R. 408; Beam v. Beatty, 3 O. L. R. 345, (but this case was reversed on another point, 4 O. L. R. 554); but interest is payable as interest, and not as damages, under a bond having a condition or defeasance to make void the same on payment of a lesser sum at a day or place certain, even although no express mention of interest is made in the bond: Re Dixon, Heynes v. Dixon, 1899, 2 Ch. 561; 1900, 2 Ch. 561.

Where a money bond fixed no time for payment, interest was allowed under this section, from the date of filing the claim thereon against the debtor's estate, there having been no previous demand of payment: Re Dale, 3 O. W. N. 329, 332.

Agreement for sale.

Where lessees went into possession under an agreement for a lease, and there was delay by the lessors in making title, and the rent was in the meantime neither paid nor tendered, it was held that interest on rent in arrear did not begin to run until the lessors had made title; Re Canadian Pacific R. W. v. Toronto, 5 O. L. R. 717, in appeal, 1905, A. C. 33; Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 7 O. L. R. 78; 1906 A. C. 117; 93 L. T. 646. Sec. 35.

Where the sale of a chattel was set aside for fraud and the price was ordered to be refunded, the use of the chattel by plaintiff was set off against the interest on the purchase money: Addison v. Auto and Tari Co., 30 O. L. R. 51.

(2) If such debt or sum is payable otherwise than by virtue of a written instrument at a time certain, interest may be allowed from the time when a demand of payment was made in writing, informing the debtor that interest would be claimed from the date of the demand. When allowable after demand of payment.

These provisions are founded upon Imp. Act, 3 & 4 Wm. 4, c. 42, s. 28.

Interest cannot be allowed on merchants' accounts unless a demand of interest under this section is proved: Inglis v. Wellington Hotel Co., 29 C. P. 387. But in Michie v. Reynolds, 24 U. C. Q. B. 303, 310, Draper, C.J. said: "It has been the practice for a very long time to leave to the discretion of the jury to give interest where the payment of a just debt has been withheld, and we can find no good reason to depart from that practice;" and in Spence v. Hector, Ib. 277, 281, the same learned Judge remarked that "interest is in practice much more frequently allowed by our juries than English authorities would seem to warrant." Interest on claims, when allowed.

When the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, no demand is necessary in order to entitle the payee to interest. A covenant to pay six months after the death of the covenantor is a covenant to pay at "a certain time:" Re Horner, 1896, 2 Ch. 188; 74 L. T. 688; and interest is usually allowed, without demand made, on sums awarded to be paid at a particular time: Townsley v. Wythes, 16 U. C. Q. B. 139. Demand of interest.

Where the indorsement on the writ claimed interest, Boyd, C., was of opinion that that was a good demand of interest under the statute: Irwin v. Victoria Harbour, Jan. 22nd, 1894 (not reported); but the mere bringing of the action appears not to be sufficient demand where there has been no specific demand of interest: London, Chatham & Dover Ry. v. South Eastern Ry., 1893, A. C. 429; 69 L. T. 637.

It has been held in England that a printed notice at the head of an account that interest will be charged is not a sufficient demand within the statute: Re Edwards, 65 L. T. 453; but where interest had been regularly charged on sums overdue for three years and upwards, the fact that no objection was made by the debtor was held to be evidence of a promise to pay interest: Re Anglesey, 1901, 2 Ch. 548; 85 L. T. 179, overruling Re Edwards, supra, on this point.

Interest may be allowed upon a solicitor's bill, if a demand in writing is made for it: Re McClive, 9 P. R. 213; and see The Solicitors Act (R. S. O. c. 159), s. 63.

Although interest cannot, in the cases provided for in this section, be allowed without a prior demand, it is still in the discretion of the Discretion of Court or jury.

Sec. 35. Judge or jury to disallow interest in such cases, even though a demand be proved.

Where money has been paid by mistake, interest on it will not be allowed in favour of the payer: Barber v. Clark, 20 Ont. 522; 18 Ont. App. 435; Johnson v. The King, 1904, A. C. 817; 91 L. T. 234, but where moneys of an estate were distributed under a judgment subsequently reversed for irregularity, the payees were ordered to refund with interest from the commencement of the proceedings to set aside the judgment: Ufner v. Lewis, Boys' Home v. Lewis, 5 O. L. R. 684.

Where an action was brought upon a written agreement, silent as to interest, to recover the amount of net profits of a business for a period ending 1st May, 1895, as ascertained in the manner provided for in the agreement, but not so ascertained till after the time fixed thereby, and it was adjudged at the trial that the ascertainment was void, and a reference was directed to a Master to take an account, it was held that interest was not recoverable, (1) under s. 34, as in a case in which it had been usual for a jury to allow it, because no debt existed which was payable till ascertained, either in the manner provided in the agreement, or by the account taken in the action; nor (2) under s. 35 (1), because, the mode of computation provided by the contract being departed from, there was no certainty as to the amount payable, nor time of payment: McCullough v. Clemow, 26 Ont. 467.

Rule in Equity. As regards the rule followed by Courts of Equity in the allowance of interest, Bacon, V.C., said, in Spatali v. Constantinidi, 20 W. R. 823, "I take the law of this Court to be perfectly clear and distinct, and to have prevailed for centuries, that upon the wrongful withholding of a debt, the party who wrongfully withholds it is liable to pay interest upon that debt. A jury might always have given it, I do not say it did, but it might always have given it at law. But without reference to what a jury might do, this Court has given it in numberless instances:" see Rodger v. Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris, L. R. 3 P. C. 465; but it is said that as regards legal claims the Courts of Equity always followed the law: see per Lindley, L.J., London, Chatham & Dover Ry. v. South Eastern Ry., 1892, 1 Ch. at p. 142; Booth v. Leycester, 3 My. & Cr. 459; 1 Keen. 247.

Rate. Usually interest at the rate fixed by the parties is recoverable; but not if it contravenes the provisions of The Interest Act: see Dunn v. Malone, supra, p. 196; but where no rate is fixed by the parties the Court has a discretion as to the rate to be allowed; usually the legal rate will be allowed, but a lesser rate may in certain cases be deemed proper: see Toronto v. Toronto Ry., supra, p. 197, where only 4 per cent. was allowed.

After judgment. After judgment has been recovered for a sum of money, payable "with interest until paid," it is doubtful whether the rate reserved by the contract can be recovered after judgment: see Hutton v. Federal Bank, 9 P. R. 568. In Rykert v. St. John, 4 Ont. App. 213; 10 S. C. R. 278, it was held that the contract became merged in the judgment, and only the interest payable under the judgment could be recovered. But in Popple v. Sylvester, 22 Ch. D. 98; 47 L. T. 329, it was held that the difference between the rate payable by the contract, and the rate recovered on the judgment, for the period between the recovering of judgment and payment, might be recovered in a subsequent action; and see 19 C. L. J. 21; Acc. Economic Life Assce. Co.

Osborne, 85 L. T. 587; but see Ex p. Fewings, 25 Ch. D. 338;; 50 L. T. 109. Sec. 35.

(3) In actions for the conversion of goods or for trespass de bonis asportatis, the jury may give interest in the nature of damages over and above the value of the goods at the time of the conversion or seizure, and in actions on policies of insurance may give interest over and above the money recoverable thereon. Interest by way of damages in certain actions

After goods are placed in the custody of the law — for instance, in the hands of a sheriff or receiver, the liability of the defendant for interest on the value of such goods ceases: Peruvian Guano Co. v. Dreyfus, 1892, A. C. 166.

(4) Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, a verdict [illegible] or judgment shall bear interest from the time of the rendering of the verdict, or of giving the judgment, as the case may be, notwithstanding that the entry of judgment shall have been suspended by any proceeding in the action including an appeal. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 35. [illegible] payments.

Interest does not run from the date of the verdict, where the judgment is expressly directed to be entered at a future day: McLaren v. Canada Central Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 328; and where a verdict is entered, subject to an award, the amount of the award does not bear interest from the date of the verdict: Hope v. Brotty, 7 P. R. 39; and see Woodruff v. Canada Guarantee Co., 8 P. R. 532.

Where the entry of judgment is stayed, the interest nevertheless runs from the date of the judgment: Talbot v. Canadian C. C. Co., 33 C. L. J. 735; 17 C. L. T. 336; and see Rule 512.

Where the judgment declares a charge of money upon land without imposing any personal liability, it bears interest unless otherwise ordered: Re Drax, 1903, 1 Ch. 781; 88 L. T. 510; although the contrary was held in Lynch v. Skerritt, 5 Ir. Eq. 494.

An interlocutory order for payment of costs was held to be a judgment within Imp. Act, 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 28, and to carry interest on the costs from the date of the order: Taylor v. Roe, 1894, 1 Ch. 413; 70 L. T. 232; see also R. S. O. c. 83, s. 5. Orders.

The interest included in a judgment is a part of the claim for the purpose of determining the scale of costs applicable: Malcolm v. Leys, 5 P. R. 75; but not the interest which accrues on the verdict or judgment under this section: Sproule v. Wilson, 15 P. R. 349.

Where the Judge at the trial of an action for unliquidated damages dismisses it, and the judgment is subsequently reversed, and damages are awarded, interest will, unless otherwise expressly ordered, only run on such damages from the date of the judgment awarding them: Northwick v. Elderslie, 1905, 2 K. B. 516; and see Burland v. Earle, 1905, A. C. 590; 93 L. T. 313; Shea v. Inglis referred to by MacMahon, J., in Morton v. Ontario Accident Co., 28 Mar., 1908—and where there is a reference to ascertain damages, interest on the damages will Unliquidated damages.

Sec. 36.

run from the date of the report, and not from the date of the judgment or order of reference; Ashover Fluor Spar Mines v. Jackson, 1911, 2 Ch. 355; 105 L. T. 334.

CERTIFICATE OF LIS PENDENS.

Action, etc., not notice unless caution or certificate registered 36.—(1) The institution of an action or the taking of a proceeding, in which any title to or interest in land is brought in question, shall not be deemed notice of the action or proceeding to any person not a party to it, until, where the land is registered under The Land Titles Act, a caution is registered under that Act, nor in other cases until a certificate, signed by the proper officer of the Court, has been registered in the Registry Office of the registry division in which the land is situate.

Rev. Stat. c. 126.

Form.

(2) The certificate may be in the following form:—

"I certify that in an action or proceeding in the Supreme Court of Ontario, between A. B., of and C. D., of some title or interest is called in question in the following land (describing it.)"

Dated at (stating date and place).

Exception.

(3) Subsection 1 shall not apply to an action or proceeding for foreclosure or sale upon a registered mortgage. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 36.

Lis pendens.

The registration of a lis pendens is notice to persons subsequently dealing with the lands which are the subject of the lis, and they take subject to the rights of the parties as ultimately declared in the action. It cannot avail to give a plaintiff priority over any prior unregistered instrument: Clergue v. McKay, 6 O. L. R. 51; 8 O. L. R. 84.

As to the doctrine of lis pendens: see notes to Rule 404.

As to the effect of a lis pendens: see Price v. Price, 35 Ch. D. 297.

Mode of registering.

Where the plaintiff desires to register a certificate of lis pendens, the indorsement on the writ of summons should contain a short description of the property, sufficient to identify it for the purpose of registration: see note to Form No. 4; H. & L. Forms No. 64. The officer who issues the writ will issue the certificate of lis pendens in the manner provided in this section; Rule 752. Where a lis pendens is required the plaintiff should be more precise than in ordinary cases, and should by the indorsement define generally the grounds of his claim to an interest in the land: Sheppard v. Kennedy, 10 P. R. 242. A solicitor suing for his bill of costs of foreclosure proceedings and claiming a lien or charge on the property in question under Rule 689, was held entitled to register a lis pendens: O'Flynn v. Middleton, 5 O. L. R. 321.

When not to be issued or registered.

Where the title to land is not in question in the action, e.g., in an alimony suit: White v. White, 6 P. R. 208; Crandell v. Crandell, 20 C. L. J. 329; 4 C. L. T. 500. It is improper to issue a lis pendens: and if this appears from the indorsement on the writ, the registration may vacated on motion before a Judge in Chambers: sec. 37 (1) infra. the suit ostensibly brings the title to land in question, but is an usory suit brought in order to register a lis pendens, the action may dismissed on an admission by the plaintiff, as to the real nature the suit; but otherwise it must be disposed of in the regular way. there is not such an admission, but the affidavits clearly shew the ture of the suit, an order may be made by a Judge directing a eedy trial: see Jameson v. Laing, 7 P. R. 404; Sheppard v. Kennedy, pra. Sec. 37.

A plaintiff may not register a lis pendens merely to prevent a fendant from alienating land which would be liable to satisfy the dgment if the plaintiff should succeed in the action. An action for at purpose will not lie, and the registration of a certificate of lis ndens may be vacated on motion: Westloh v. Brown, Referee in mbers, 5th June, 1878; see Newton v. Newton, and National Pro- ncial Bank v. Thomas, supra, p. 55; also White v. White, supra, p. 200; pburn v. Patton, 26 Gr. 597; Robinson v. Pickering, 50 L. J. Chy. 7; Green v. Temple, 6 O. W. R. 15. A certificate of lis pendens ued before the action was actually begun was set aside: St. Louis O'Callaghan, 13 P. R. 322. Vacating lis pendens.

Where a certificate of lis pendens is registered, a defendant is en- led to appear gratis and anticipate the service upon him of actually ued process, so as to compel the plaintiff to proceed promptly: Taggart v. Toothe, 20 C. L. J. 175; Poulton v. Lee, 7 P. R. 415. here an appearance is so entered gratis, the defendant should serve tice thereof on the plaintiff's solicitor: Vigeon v. Northcote, 12 L. T. 101.

Semble, an action will not lie for maliciously registering or main- ning the registration of a lis pendens: see Cowan v. Macaulay, 5 C. R. 495.

Provision has now been made by sec. 37 post, for the discharge a certificate of lis pendens where the plaintiff does not promptly ceed with his action. Before this enactment, where a lis pendens d been properly issued and registered, it could not be vacated ding the action: Foster v. Moore, 11 P. R. 447, a case of fraudu- t conveyance.

The registration of a certificate of an order dismissing the action is sufficient discharge of a lis pendens: Tedford v. Tedford, 7 C. L. T. ; Graham v. Chalmers, 2 Chy. Ch. 53.

It may be observed that the concluding words of the section dis- sing with the registration of a certificate of lis pendens in actions foreclosure of sale, do not expressly provide that the institution of h actions shall be deemed notice thereof to any person not a party; does the clause extend to actions for redemption. Mortgage actions.

37.—(1) Where a caution or certificate is registered, d the plaintiff, or other party at whose instance it s issued, does not in good faith prosecute the action proceeding, a Judge of the High Court Division may any time make an order vacating the caution or rtificate. Order vacating caution or certificate on failure to prosecute action.

Sec. 37.

Where land, etc., not claimed.

(2) Where a caution or certificate is registered, and the plaintiff's claim is not solely to recover land, or an estate or interest in land, but to recover money or money's worth, chargeable on or payable out of land, or some estate or interest in it, or for the payment of which he claims that the land or such estate or interest ought to be subjected, or where the plaintiff claims land or some estate or interest in land, and, in the alternative, damages or compensation in money or money's worth, a Judge of the High Court Division may at any time make an order vacating the caution or certificate upon such terms as to giving security or otherwise as may be deemed just.

The 'caution' referred to in the above sub-section is the equivalent under The Land Titles Act (R. S. O. c. 126) for a certificate of lis pendens.

Upon other grounds.

(3) A Judge of the High Court Division may at any time vacate the registration upon any other ground which may be deemed just.

Costs.

(4) On an application under this section, the Judge may order any of the parties to the application to pay the costs of any of the other parties to it, or may make any other order with respect to costs, which under all the circumstances may be deemed just.

Appeal from order.

(5) The order vacating a caution or certificate shall be subject to appeal according to the practice in like cases, and may be registered in the same manner as a judgment affecting land on or after the fourteenth day from the date of the order, unless the order is meanwhile reversed or its registration is postponed or forbidden by an order of a Judge of the High Court Division.

Registration of order.

Effect of vacating caution or certificate.

(6) Where a caution or certificate is vacated, any person may deal in respect to the land as fully as if the caution or certificate had not been registered, and it shall not be incumbent on any purchaser or mortgagee to enquire as to the allegations in the action or proceeding, and his rights shall not be affected by his being aware of such allegations. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 37.

Sub-sections 3-6 apply only where the lis pendens has been registered by an opposite party: McGillivray v. Williams, 4 O. L. R. 454. A party by whom, or for whose benefit, a lis pendens has been registered, nay obtain ex parte an order vacating it and may register the order t any time: Ib. Secs. 38, 39.

The object of delaying the registration of orders vacating a lis endens, is obviously to prevent a plaintiff from being prejudiced in ase the order should be reversed. It is questionable whether any rder vacating a certificate of lis pendens obtained by a defendant can e legally registered until after the fourteen days, even though the rder be made by consent; at the same time, it is to be observed that ub-section (6) seems to enable persons to deal with the land as oon as the certificate is vacated, even before registration of the order. The proper way to construe these sub-sections, 5 and 6, however, is robably to treat a certificate as not "vacated" until the order vacating it is actually registered.

The Master in Chambers or other officer having like jurisdiction ight formerly entertain the motion: but see now Rule 208 (13).

An order refusing to vacate a certificate is not in terms appealable nder this section, and has been held to be not appealable under Rules 05 or 507; Hodge v. Hollamore, 18 P. R. 447.

SITTINGS AND DISTRIBUTION OF BUSINESS.

38.—(1) There shall be as many Divisional Courts of he Appellate Division as are necessary for the proper despatch of the business of the Division. Divisional Courts of Appellate Division.

(2) There shall at all times be at least two of such Divisional Courts. To be two Divisional Courts.

(3) A Divisional Court shall consist of five Judges. How constituted.

See post sec. 41 (1).

(4) The Divisional Courts shall be numbered consecu- ively. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 38. To be numbered.

39.—(1) The first Divisional Court shall consist of he Chief Justice of Ontario and the four Justices of ppeal. First Divisional Court.

(2) The Judges of the Supreme Court shall at a neeting to be held in the month of December in each ear and not later than the second Monday in the month, elect from among the Judges of the High Court Division, the judges to constitute the second Divisional Court or the next ensuing calendar year, and when such election has been made, the judges so selected shall be he judges to constitute that Divisional Court for that ear. Annual selection of Judges for second Divisional Court.

(3) Whenever the volume of business in the Appel- ate Division requires that an additional Divisional Court Additional Divisional Courts.

Sec. 39.

or additional Divisional Courts be constituted, the Judges of the Supreme Court shall select the judges to constitute such Court or Courts.

Permanent and temporary Divisional Courts.

(4) The first and second Divisional Courts shall be permnnent Divisional Courts, and those constituted under the provisions of subsection 3 shall be temporary Divisional Courts.

Failure of Judges to make selection.

(5) In the event of the Judges of the Supreme Court failing at the prescribed time to select the judges who are to constitute the Divisional Courts or any of them, the selection may be made at a later date.

Judges of one Divisional Court may sit in another.

(6) Whenever occasion requires, a judge of any Divisional Court may sit in the place of a judge of any other Divisional Court.

Ad hoc Judges of Divisional Courts.

(7) Whenever occasion requires, a judge who is not a member of a Divisional Court may sit in the place of a judge of any Divisional Court.

Application of sub-secs. 6, 7 in case of vacancy.

(8) Subsections 6 and 7 shall apply where a vacancy occurs in a Divisional Court by the death or resignation of a judge or otherwise, until, in the case of the first Divisional Court, his successor is appointed, and in the case of any other Divisional Court until his successor is selected, as provided by subsection 9.

Filling vacancy in Divisional Courts other than the first.

(9) Where a vacancy occurs in a Divisional Court, except the first, by the death or resignation of a judge or otherwise, the Judges of the Supreme Court at a meeting called for that purpose shall select a judge to fill the vacancy for the remainder of the year for which the judge whose place he is selected to fill, was selected.

Right of Judge who sits in place of another not to be questioned.

(10) A Judge who sits in the place of a judge of a Divisional Court shall be conclusively deemed to have been entitled and qualified to so sit, within the meaning of the next preceding four subsections.

Judge may give judgment after ceasing to be Judge of Divisional Court.

(11) A judge who has sat in a Divisional Court on the hearing of any appeal, matter or proceeding therein may give judgment notwithstanding that he has ceased to be a judge of that Court.

Judge not to hear appeal from his own judgment.

(12) A judge shall not sit on the hearing of an appeal from a judgment or order made by himself. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 39.

Chief Justice of Ontario and Justices of Appeal not to be assigned to other work without consent.

40. Neither the Chief Justice of Ontario nor any of the Justices of Appeal shall without his consent be assigned to, or required to perform any duty, except such as appertains to him as a member of the Appellate Division. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 40.

Four judges may hear appeals.

41.—(1) Appeals to a Divisional Court may be heard and disposed of by a court of four judges.

Exception as to Election trials and Criminal matters. Rev. Stat. c. 10. R.S.C. c. 146

(2) Subsection 1 shall not apply to appeals under The Ontario Controverted Elections Act or to cases and matters which come before the Court under the provisions of the Criminal Code, all of which shall be heard and disposed of by a full court of five judges. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 41.

Monthly sittings of Divisional Courts.

42.—(1) There shall be at least monthly sittings of a Divisional Court, except during vacations, and, subject to subsection 2 and to the Rules and to any other arrangement between the judges constituting the Divisional Courts, such courts shall sit in alternate weeks, but nothing in this section shall prevent a sittings from being held during the long vacation.

Sittings may be held concurrently.

(2) The Divisional Courts may sit concurrently and shall do so whenever necessary for the proper despatch of business.

Presiding Judge in absence of Chief Justice.

(3) In the absence of the Chief Justice of Ontario, or if he is not a member of the Court, the judge entitled to precedence over the other judges present shall preside. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 42

BUSINESS IN HIGH COURT DIVISION TO BE DISPOSED OF BY A JUDGE.

Business to be disposed of by one Judge.

Judge to constitute the Court.

43.—(1) Every action and proceeding in the High Court Division, and all business arising out of it, except as herein otherwise expressly provided, shall be heard, determined and disposed of before a Judge, and where he sits in Court he shall constitute the Court. (a)

(a) This is the same in effect as the enactment in the Eng. J. A. 1876, s. 17; and is an extension of the authority previously to Ont. J. A. 1881, possessed in Ontario by a Judge of the Common Law Courts under the Administration of Justice Act, 1874 (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 281); see Cooper v. Central Ont. Ry., 4 Ont. 280.

Sec. 44.

Judge not to reserve questions.

(2) Subject to section 32, a Judge of the High Court Division shall decide all questions coming properly before him, and shall not reserve any case, or any point in a case, for the consideration of a Divisional Court.

See Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 46; J. A. 1875, s. 22; and J. A. 1876, s. 17.

In Benschor v. Coley, 52 L. J. Q. B. 398; 48 L. T. 533, it was held that notwithstanding the first clause of this section a Judge at Nisi Prius may leave any party to move a Divisional Court for judgment, and that the words "so far as is practicable and convenient" above, should be interpreted to authorize that course. This decision would not seem to be applicable in Ontario as the Imp. Act contains no clause similar to sub-sec. (2) above.

Where "a special case on the pleadings" had been referred to a Divisional Court in forgetfulness of the above sections, the application was turned into a motion and heard under Rule 220; Till v. Till, 15 Ont. 133.

In re Vivian, Rose, J., directed an issue to be heard before a Divisional Court, and it was heard and disposed of by C. P. Divisional Court, 9th January, 1896; but see Rood-Barrs v. Cathcart, 72 L. T. 184; W. N. 1895, 34.

Hearing in camera, when permissible.

Ordinarily all causes ought to be heard in open Court: Scott v. Scott, 1913, A. C. 417; 109 L. T. 1; Reid v. Aull (1914), 5 O. W. N. 964 (an action to annul a marriage); but a hearing in camerâ may be allowed in a proper case: see Cleland v. Cleland, 109 L. T. 744; Mellor v. Thompson, 31 Ch. D. 55, (an application to restrain a solicitor from disclosing communications made to him confidentially as such solicitor), and see 82 L. T. Jour. 297, and observations of Lord Fitzgerald in Macdougall v. Knight, 14 App. Cas. 206-7; also articles in 25 C. L. J. 597, and 88 L. T. Jour. 40, 123. Where a cause is heard in camerâ it is a contempt of Court to publish a report of the hearing: Re Martindale, 1894, 3 Ch. 193; unless it is done bonâ fide and without malice: Scott v. Scott, supra.

As to the comparative authority of decisions of a single Judge sitting as the Supreme Court and those of a Divisional Court: see Tancred v. Delagoa Bay, etc., Co., 23 Q. B. D. 242.

Arrangements for holding Courts, etc.

(3) All such arrangements as may be necessary or proper for the holding of any of the courts, or the transaction of business in the High Court Division or the assignment from time to time of judges to hold such courts, or to transact such business, shall be made by the Judges of that Division. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 43.

SITTINGS FOR TRIALS.

Sittings for trials.

44.—(1) There shall be as many sittings of the High Court Division in and for every county as are required for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues and for the trial of criminal matters and proceedings.

Sec. 45.

Separate sittings may be held.

(2) Separate sittings may be held for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues which are to be tried without a jury and separate sittings for those which are to be tried with a jury, and separate sittings may also be held for the trial of criminal matters and proceedings.

Sittings may be held concurrently.

(3) Sittings may be held concurrently or separately as may be directed by the judges appointing the days therefor or by the judges presiding at such sittings.

Jury cases to be first tried.

(4) Subject to the Rules, where a sittings is held for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues which are to be tried with and for those which are to be tried without a jury, separate lists shall be made and the jury cases shall be first disposed of unless the presiding judge otherwise directs.

Sittings to be held in county town.

(5) The sittings shall be held in the court house of the county town or at such other place in the county town as the presiding judge directs.

Two sittings yearly in each county.

Additional sittings in certain counties.

(6) Subject to the Rules, at least two sittings shall be held in each year in and for every county, and at least one additional sittings in and for the County of York, the County of Carleton, the County of Wentworth, the County of Middlesex, and the United Counties of Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry. 3-4 Geo. V, c. 19, s. 44.

Section 109 provides that the Judges of the Supreme Court, seven of whom shall form a quorum: sec. 113, shall have power to appoint the days upon which the Assizes and Sittings for trial shall be held.

Under this section the High Court Division holds Circuit Sittings similar to the former Sittings of Courts of Assize and Nisi Prius.

Commissions for holding Courts of Assize, or any other commissions general or special, for trials of causes, may still be issued: see post, secs. 49, 120.

Who may preside.

45.—(1) Every such sittings shall be presided over by one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, or, on the request in writing of a Judge of the Supreme Court, by a retired judge of that Court, or by a judge of a county court, or by one of His Majesty's Counsel learned in the law appointed for Upper Canada, or for Ontario.

Powers of presiding Judge.

(2) Such judge or counsel while holding the sittings shall possess and enjoy and may exercise all the powers and authorities of a Judge of the High Court Division.

Secs. 46-49.

and in civil proceedings may reserve the giving of his decision on questions raised at the trial and afterwards give the same, and such decision shall have the like force and effect as the decision of a Judge of the High Court Division. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 45.

In so far as this section purports to authorise the appointment of a retired Judge, or a Judge of a County Court, or one of His Majesty's Counsel, to act as a Judge of the Supreme Court, its validity has been doubted, as being a contravention of the B. N. A. Act, s. 96, which reserves to His Excellency the Governor-General the right to appoint Judges of Provincial Superior Courts: see 49 C. L. J. 313; see also sec. 120, post.

Course to be pursued by the sheriff if the judge does not arrive on the day appointed for opening Court.

46. Where the judge whose duty it is to hold any sitting does not arrive in time, or is not able to open court on the day appointed for that purpose, the sheriff, or, in his absence, his deputy, may, after six o'clock in the afternoon of that day, by proclamation, adjourn the sittings to an hour on the following day to be named by him, and so from day to day until the judge arrives or until other directions from the judge are received. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 46.

When sittings to commence.

47.—(1) No such sittings shall begin on the first day earlier than one o'clock in the afternoon or on any other day before nine o'clock in the forenoon, nor, except for special reasons, shall it extend beyond seven o'clock in the afternoon, and there shall be an intermission of at least half an hour at or near noon.

Hours of sittings.

Non-observance of hours not to effect proceeding.

(2) Failure to observe any of the provisions of sub-section 1 shall not render the trial or other proceeding void. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 47.

Entering non-jury actions for trial.

48. Non-jury actions to be tried in any county except the County of York, may be entered for trial at any sittings of the High Court Division in such county. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 48.

Commissions of assize and other commissions.

49.—(1) Commissions of assize or any other commissions, either general or special, may be issued, by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, assigning to the person therein named, the duty of trying and determining within any place or district named for that purpose by the commission, any cause or matter, or any question or issue of fact or of law or partly of fact and partly of law, in ny cause or matter, depending in the Supreme Court; Sec. 49.

r for the exercise of any civil or criminal jurisdiction apable of being exercised by the Court.

(2) A commissioner, when exercising any jurisdiction Commissioner to be a Court.
o assigned to him, shall be deemed to constitute the ourt. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 49.

The English J. A. 1873, s. 37, gave this authority expressly to His Whether section intra vires?
ajesty. In Canada it has been questioned whether the authority longs under the B. N. A. Act to the Governor-General or the euteasnt-Governor. A commission in its ordinary form both conitutes the Court and names the Judges, while under the B. N. A. Act e creation of Courts belongs to the Province, and the appointment Superior Court Judges belongs to the Dominion: see Regina v.
ner, 42 U. C. Q. B. 391.

The English section l...ited the appointment to "any Judge or dges of the High Court, or other persons usually named in commisns of assize." The Dominion Government is understood to maintain at a Provincial Legislature has no authority to limit the class of rsons from which Judges are to be selected.

The Commissions issued under this section would ordinarily assign a Judge or Judges of the Supreme Court the duty of holding the Ases; and it is douhted whether, in view of the B. N. A. Act, s 96, His nour the Lieutenant-Governor could appoint any other person to try ses in the Supreme Court, or exercise the criminal jurisdiction of e Supreme Court: see 49 C. L. J. 313.

Pleadings in Actions on Foreign Judgments.

Foreign judgments are those given by Courts whose jurisdiction Actions on foreign judgments es not extend to Ontario: Macfarlane v. Derbishire, 8 U. C. Q. B. 12; oreign judgment, if not impeached or denied, is prima facie evidence ainst the defendant: Monning v. Thompson, 17 C. P. 606; hut it st be a judgment which finally and conclusively (subject only to peal) settles the existence of the debt, so as to become res judicoto ween the parties: Nouvion v. Freemon, 15 App. Cas. 1.

A foreign judgment constitutes a simple contract debt, so that the A simple contract debt.
iod of limitation in such case (6 years), for bringing an action n it, applies: North v. Fisher, 6 Ont. 206; and is a liquidated dend which may be specially indorsed under Rule 33: Solmes v. Staf-
d. 16 P. R. 78.

The principle upon which a foreign judgment is enforced is that the Principle on which they are enforced.
gment of a Court of competent jurisdiction over the defendant poses an obligation upon the defendant to pay which the domestic urt is bound to enforce: Fowler v. Vail, 4 Ont. App. 270; Cas- ue v. Imrie, L. R. 4 E. & I. App. 414; Godard v. Gray, L. R. 6 Q.
139; Re Trufort, Trafford v. Blone, 57 L. T. 674; Ritter v. Fairfield, Ont. 350; Fuyerick v. Hubbord, 86 L. T. 829; Swaizie v Swaizie, 31
324; Robertson v Robertson, 16 O. L. R. 170.

No legislature, having merely territorial jurisdiction, can confer Jurisdiction of foreign Courts over foreigners Courts under its control, jurisdiction which any foreign Court ought to recognize, against absent foreigners who owe no allegiance or obedience to the power which so legislates. In all personal actions the Courts of the country where the defendant resides, not the Courts of the country where the cause of action arose, should be resorted to: Sirdar Gurdyol Singh v. Rajah of Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670; see also note prefixed to Rule 25; Brennan v. Cameron, 46 C. L. J. 136; but semble where the foreign Court is by agreement of the parties to have jurisdiction over the matter in question its judgment is binding on the parties and enforceable in Ontario, if not contrary to natural practice: see Jeannot v. Fuerst, 100 L. T. 816.

Actions on foreign judgments.

Final judgments not enforced.

A judgment for a penalty payable to a foreign state, under a statute of such foreign state, does not create a debt enforceable in this Province; but where the penalty is payable by way of indemnity to a private citizen a foreign judgment for such penalty may be enforced in Ontario: Huntington v. Attrill, 20 Ont. App. 703; 1893, A. C. 150; neither can a judgment recovered for a sum payable under a local improvement Act of a foreign country create a debt enforceable in Ontario: Sydney v. Cook (1908), 99 L. T. 805; and where the foreign judgment is both for a penalty and also for a civil claim for damages it is severable and the latter claim may be enforced in Ontario: Raulin v. Fischer, 1911, 2 K. B. 93; 104 L. T. 849.

Foreign judgment is not merger of original cause of action.

A foreign judgment is not a merger of the original cause of action, which may, notwithstanding such judgment, be sued on in Ontario Trevelyan v. Myers, 26 Ont. 430; Bugbee v. Clergue, 27 Ont. 96, affirmed in S. C., sub nom. Clergue v. Humphrey, 31 S. C. R. 66; the foreign judgment creditor may sue either upon the judgment or upon the original cause of action: Ib.; and where he sues upon both the judgment and original claim, and, at the trial, establishes both causes of action, and elects to take judgment on his claim on the foreign judgment, he is not thereby precluded, in case he is found on appeal not to be entitled to recover on the judgment, from obtaining judgment on the original claim: Moritz v. Canada Wood Specialty Co., 17 O. L. R. 53; 42 S. C. R. 237.

Limits of Provincial jurisdictions.

The tribunals constituted by Provincial authority cannot extend their powers so as to bind by their decisions persons, or their property, in other Provinces, unless such persons choose to attorn to their jurisdiction; but judgments of Provincial Courts are binding on persons resident in other Provinces when pronounced in actions or proceedings which they have themselves instituted: Deacon v. Chadwick, 1 O. L. R. 346.

Defendant, when bound.

Mr. Justice Fry in Rousillon v. Rousillon, 14 Ch. D. 351; 42 L. T. 679, enumerates five cases in which the Court considers a defendant bound by a foreign judgment:

(1) Where he is a subject of the country in which the judgment is recovered;

(2) Where he was resident in such country when action was begun.

(3) Where defendant in character of a plaintiff selected the venue in which he is afterwards sued.

(4) Where he has voluntarily appeared in the action.

(5) Where he has voluntarily contracted to submit himself to the jurisdiction of the foreign Court.

He also enumerated as a 6th case where defendant has real estate in the foreign jurisdiction, but this ground has been denied: see per Lord eiborne in Sirdar Gurdyal Singh v. Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670; but a h case was held to exist where the judgment is a judgment in rem affecting status, or ancillary thereto: Phillips v. Batho, 1913, 3 K. B. ; 109 L. T. 345, and see 135 L. T. Jour., 500. Actions on foreign judgments.

A judgment of a Colonial Court against a defendant resident in ngland who did not appear, was held to be not binding on him, though e defendant was born in the colony in which the judgment was re- vered: Gavin v. Gibson, 1913, 3 K. B. 379; 109 L. T. 445. Judgment of foreign Court against absentee.

A foreign judgment is prima facie evidence only that the foreign urt had jurisdiction over the subject matter, or the person of the fendant, and that the judgment was regularly obtained. It may be ewn by way of defence that the judgment was not binding in the reign country, for want of jurisdiction. The Court has jurisdiction er the person of the defendant when he is a subject of the country, en though not resident nor domiciled in it, and he is therefore und by a judgment, though obtained in his absence, where recovered der the process of the country to which he owes allegiance as a bject, or temporary allegiance, by being when the suit was com- enced resident in the country, so as to have the benefit and protec- n of its laws. The absence of these circumstances will constitute defence: see Fowler v. Vail; Godard v. Gray, supra, p. 209; Schibsby Westenholz, L. R. 6 Q. B. 155; Maubourquet v. Wyse, 1 Ir. C. L. 471; Lean v. Shields, 9 Ont. 699; Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78; Beatty Cromwell, 9 P. R. 547; Turnbull v. Walker, 67 L. T. 767; 2 Smith L. 10th ed., 766. Effect of foreign judgment as evidence.

If the foreign Court had jurisdiction as above, or if defendant sub- tted to its jurisdiction by appearing: Voinet v. Barrett, 34 W. R. 1; 1 Cab. & E. 554, the judgment is conclusive so as to prevent him om pleading any defence which might have been pleaded in the for- n country: Fowler v. Vail, and other cases, supra; Paisley v. Broddy, P. R. 202; Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78. When conclusive.

A judgment or decree pronounced by a foreign Court will be treated d acted on as final, notwithstanding any irregularity of procedure der the local law; provided the foreign Court had jurisdiction over e subject matter, and over the persons brought before it, and the oceedings do not offend against English views of substantial jus- e: Pemberton v. Hughes, 1899, 1 Ch 781; but an action on a for- n judgment must fail if it be proved that the judgment was obtained thout notice to the defendant, actual or constructive: Bugbee v. rgue, 27 Ont. 96; 31 S. C. R. 66; but if a defendant in the foreign ion does not prove that he had no notice of the proceedings and no portunity of appearing in the foreign Court, the judgment, if in rem, y be conclusive on him; see Fracis v. Corr, 81 L. T. 50; 1902, A. C. ; 85 L. T. 144. Irregularity in foreign judgment. Judgment obtained without notice.

By invoking or submitting to the jurisdiction of a foreign Court, a rty may, in an action in Ontario on the judgment of the foreign urt, be precluded from setting up want of jurisdiction to it: Swaizie Swaizie, 31 Ont. 324. Conclusive against party who invoked jurisdiction.

Fraud in obtaining a foreign judgment is in some cases a defence: binson v. Fenner, 106 L. T. 722; Jacobs v. Beaver, 17 O. L. R. 496; ouloff v. Oppenheimer, 10 Q. B. D. 295; e.g., by means of false evidence duced in the foreign Court; Hollender v. Fjoulkes, 23 Ont. 61; Ander- v. Nesbitt, 1 O. W. R. 818; 2 O. W. R. 430; though the fraud is h that it cannot be proved without re-trying the questions adjudi- ed upon by the foreign Court: Ib. and Vadala v. Lowes, 25 Q. B. D. Effect of fraud.

310; 62 L. T. 701; 63 L. T. 128; Johnson v. Barkley, 10 O. L. R. 724; but where the judgment is in rem: Castrique v. Behrens, 1861, 30 L. J. Q. B. 163; or affects the status of parties, e.g., a decree of divorce: Bates v. Bates, 1906, P. 209, it may be binding so long as it is unimpeached in the foreign Court, notwithstanding it was obtained even by fraud or suppression of material facts. It is also a defence that the judgment is contrary to natural justice, as in Buchanan v. Rucker, 1 Camp. 63; 9 East., 192; or the fact that it was obtained against defendant without notice (he being an alien), notwithstanding the judgment is valid in the foreign country: Rousillon v. Rousillon, 14 Ch. D. 351.

ACTIONS ON QUEBEC JUDGMENTS.

Action on Quebec judgment where service personal.

50. Where an action is brought on a judgment obtained in the Province of Quebec in an action in which the service on the defendant or party sued was personal, no defence which might have set up to the original action may be made to the action on the judgment. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 50.

Judgments of the Courts of Quebec are now subject to the ordinary rules of international law, and are not conclusive evidence of liability unless there has been personal service of process in Quebec, or the defendant has attorned to the jurisdiction of the Quebec Court, though served out of Quebec: Vézina v. Newsome, 14 O. L. R. 658; Court v. Scott, 32 C. P. 148, at p. 22 Vict. c. 5, s. 58, on which it was based, are no longer law; and see Jacobs v. Beaver, 17 O. L. R. 496.

Where the defendant did not appear or submit to the jurisdiction of the foreign Court, and was not a resident within the territorial jurisdiction when the foreign judgment was obtained, an action on such judgment (except when recovered in the Provinc of Quebec, as mentioned in s. 50, supra), cannot be maintained in Ontario: see Turnbull v. Walker, 67 L. T. 767; and see Schibsby v. Westenholz: Sirdar Gurdyal Singh v. Faridkote, and other cases, supra, pp. 209, 210. Where a party enters into a partnership in a foreign country he does not thereby impliedly submit himself to the jurisdiction of the Courts of that country so far as the affairs of the partnership are concerned, and proceedings in the Court of such country of which he is notified, are not binding on him if he does not appear and is at the time resident without the jurisdiction of such Court: Emanuel v. Symon, 1907, 1 K. B. 335; 1908, 1 K. B. 302; 96 L. T. 231; 98 L. T. 304.

Action on Quebec judgment where service not personal.

51. Where an action is brought on a judgment obtained in the Province of Quebec in an action in which the service was not personal and in which no defence was made, any defence which might have been set up to the original action may be made to the action on the judgment. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 51.

As to the mode of proof of a Quebec judgment: see Tilton v. McKay, 24 U. C. C. P. 94.

See notes to sec. 50, supra.

Costs.

52.—(1) Where an action is brought on a judgment obtained in the Province of Quebec the costs incurred in obtaining the judgment in that Province shall not be recoverable without the order of a judge directing their allowance.

Conditions under which order may be made.

(2) Such order shall not be made, unless, in the opinion of the judge, the costs were properly incurred nor if it would have been a saving of expense and costs to have first instituted proceedings in Ontario on the original claim. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 52.

TRIAL, AND PLACE OF TRIAL.

Practice as to trials with, or without, jury.

In Ontario the practice as to having, or dispensing with, a jury is different from that which prevails in England, as to which see H. & A. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 139.

(1) All actions which, under the practice existing at the time of the passing of the A. J. Act, 1873, could have been brought in the Court of Chancery only, must be tried by a Judge without a jury: see ss. 55, 56 (4), and a notice of jury given in such a case is irregular and will be struck out on motion: see Gowanlock v. Mann, 9 P. R. 279 (an action for rectification of a lease): Thurlow v. Beck, 9 P. R. 268 (an action to set aside a conveyance): see also Usil v. Whelpton, 45 L. T. 39; 29 W. R. 799.

(2) Certain actions against municipal corporations are to be tried without a jury: sec. 54.

(3) In all other actions (except those mentioned in sec. 53), the provisions of secs. 55 and 56 will apply; and either party, upon giving notice, has a prima facie right to a trial by jury, subject to the discretion vested in a Judge in Chambers, or the Judge at the trial, to direct otherwise: see notes to sec. 56, infra.

Certain actions to be tried by a jury.

53. Actions of libel, slander, criminal conversation, seduction, malicious arrest, malicious prosecution and false imprisonment shall be tried by a jury unless the parties in person or by their solicitors or counsel waive such trial. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 53.

In the cases mentioned in this section it is not necessary to file and serve a jury notice: Puterbaugh v. Gold Medal Mfg. Co., 3 O. L. R. 259, and the Court has no power to dispense with the jury, except by consent of both parties: see Adair v. Wade, 9 Ont. 15, but it is for the Judge to say if an alleged libel is reasonably capable of being interpreted as libellous, and, if it is not, there is no question for the jury, and the Judge may give judgment for the defendant: McQuire v. Western Morning News, 1903, 2 K. B. 100; Macdonald v. The Mail, 2 O. L. R. 278.

Secs. 54, 55.

An action for trads libel does not come within this section so as to be triable only hy s jury, unless by consent: Dickerson v. Radcliffe, 17 P. R. 418.

Certain actions against municipalities, etc., to be tried without a jury and venue to be local.

54. Actions against a municipal eorporation or board of poliee trustees for damages in respect of injuries sustained by reason of the default of the eorporation in keeping in repair a highway or bridge shall be tried by a judge without the intervention of a jury, and the trial shall take place in the county whieh eonstitutes the municipality or in which the municipality or police village is situate. 3-4 Geo. V. e. 19, s. 54.

Actions against municipalities for non-repair of roads.

As to actions of the kind mentioned in this section, see The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192) s. 463.

In Vennard v. Township of Bruce, 19 C. L. T. 87, it was held that a bridge, part of the highway, was within ths words "etreets, rosds or sidewalks," in this eection.

An action against a municipal corporation for negligently leaving a stone roller on the highway whereby plaintiff's horses wsre frightened and thereby csused damags to ths plsintiff is not in respect of non-repair of streets, snd therefore is not within this section: Clemens v. Berlin, 7 O. L. R. 33; nor is an action in respect of injuries occasioned by the negligent use of a steam roller of the municipality, operated hy a contracting company: Kirk v. Toronto, 7 O. L. R. 36.

An action hssed both on non-repair and obstruction is within the section, and on a motion to striks out a jury notice leave to amend by striking out the allegations as to non-repair was refused: Read v. City of Toronto, 4 O. W. R. 310.

Where an action was hrought against a railway company snd a city corporation to recover damages for injuries eustained by the plaintiffs by being upset upon a street in the city, owing to ths heaping up of snow upon the side of ths roadway, and the plaintiffs in their statement of claim alleged that the corporation had permitted this to be done, and had thereby allowed the street to be out of repair and dangerous for travel, it was held that the action must be treated as one for non-repair of a street within the meaning of this section, and a jury notice was therefore irregular and was struck out: Barber v. Toronto Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 293.

An action based on negligent construction of a pavement, rendering it slippery and dangerous, is within the section: Armour v. Peterborough, 10 O. L. R. 306.

The omission to guard an excavation on a public street is held to be non-repair within this section: Burns v. Toronto, 13 O. L. R. 109; and it appears to be immaterial for the purpose of this section whether the non-repair arise from nonfessance or misfeasance: Brown v. Toronto, 21 O. L. R. 230.

Issues of fact with certain exceptions to be tried without jury.

55.—(1) Subjeet to the Rules, except where otherwise expressly provided by this Act, all issues of fact shall be tried and all damages shall be assessed by the judge without the intervention of a jury.

Sec. 56.

(2) The judge may nevertheless direct that the issues or any of them be tried and the damages assessed by a jury. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 55.

Judge may direct trial by jury.

One of the Rules to which this provision is subject is Rule 258, by which equitable issues are to be tried without a jury. See also Rule 259, providing for the case where there are both legal and equitable issues.

56.—(1) Subject to the Rules, if a party desires that the issues of fact shall be tried or the damages assessed by a jury he may, at any stage of the proceedings, but not later than the fourth day after the close of the pleadings or if notice of trial or assessment is served before that time, within two days after service of such notice or within such other time as may be allowed by a judge, file and serve on the opposite party a notice in writing requiring that the issues be tried or the damages assessed by a jury, and if such notice is given, subject to subsection 3, they shall be tried or assessed accordingly.

Where jury required notice to be given.

(2) A copy of the notice shall be attached to the certified copy of the pleadings prepared for use at the trial.

Copy of notice to be annexed to record.

(3) Notwithstanding the giving of the notice the issues of fact may be tried or the damages assessed wi' it the intervention of a jury if the judge presiding a ne sittings so directs or if it is so ordered by a judge.

Jury may be dispensed with.

(4) Subsection 1 shall not apply to causes, matters or issues over the subject of which before The Administration of Justice Act, 1873, the Court of Chancery had exclusive jurisdiction. 3-4 Geo. V., c. 19, s. 56.

Sub-section not to apply to certain causes, etc. 36 V. c. 8.

For the form of jury notice: see Form 33; H. & L. Forms, No. 824.

Where a jury notice was serv but by inadvertence not filed within the proper time, it was that there was power to correct the slip by ordering the notic stand good, and that such an order should be made where the case is a proper one to be tried by a jury: Macrae v. News Printing Co., 16 P. R. 364.

No jury notice is necessary in actions of the class provided for by sec. 53: Puterbaugh v. Gold Medal Co., 3 O. L. R. 259.

Striking Out Jury Notice.—It has been said that as a rule the question whether a jury notice ought to be struck out can be better disposed of by the Judge at the trial, when the real questions to be tried have been ascertained, than by a Judge in Chambers on the pleadings and affidavits (per Osler, J.A., in Conmee v. Can. Pac. Ry., 12 Ont. App. 769), and the Judge at the trial is considered to have absolute control over the manner in which the case shall be tried, and his discretion will not be interfered with by a Divisional Court: Brown v. Wood, 12

Striking out jury notices.

Sec. 56.

P. R. 198. See, however, per Osler, J.A., in Reg. v. Grant, 17 P. R. at p. 171.

Dispensing with jury at trial.

In Conmee v C. P. R. (sup.), though the Court of Appeal held that the plaintiff was entitled to a jury, at the trial a jury was dispensed with and the case referred to arbitrators. It has, therefore, sometimes been considered inexpedient to deal with the matter on motion before trial in view of the power of the Judge at the trial: see Temperance Colonization Co. v. Evans, 12 P. R. 48, 380; McMahon v. Lavery, ib. 62. Cases, however, have arisen in which the Court has acted on motion: see Montgomery v. Ryan, 13 O. L. R. 297; Bryans v. Moffatt, 15 O. L. R. 220; Clisdell v. Lovell, 15 O. L. R. 379; and in Bissett v. Knights of Maccabees, 3 O. W. N. 1280; and Gerbracht v. Bingham, 4 O. W. N. 117. it is said to be the duty of a Judge in Chambers to exercise his discretion as whether or not a case is to be tried with a jury.

The jurisdiction of Judge in Chambers to strike out a jury notice has never been judicially doubted: Peoples' Loan, etc., Co. v. Stanley, 4 O. L. R. 90, 377; Shantz v. Berlin, 4 O. L. R. 730.

Jurisdiction of Judge in Chambers as to jury notices.

A Judge in Chambers, on motion before trial, has full discretion to direct as to the mode of trial: Lauder v. Didmon, 16 P. R. 74; and semble, where, before trial, the Court or a Judge has ordered that the action be tried without a jury, the Judge at the trial has no power (while the order stands unreversed) to say that the issues shall be tried by a jury: Reg. v. Grant, 17 P. R. at p. 171, per Osler, J.A. It had previously been said that the exercise by a Judge in Chambers of his power before trial may hamper the discretion of the trial Judge: per Street, J., in Bristol, etc., v. Taylor, 15 P. R. 310; and see Bank of Toronto v. Keystone F. Ins. Co., 18 P. R. 113. While, therefore, there is no doubt as to the discretionary power of a Judge in Chambers before trial to strike out a jury notice, the practice is not to strike it out where the ground is merely that the action can be more conveniently dealt with without a jury, that being a matter which can better be left for the consideration of the Judge at the trial: Hawke v. O'Neill, 18 P. R. 164; Shantz v. Berlin, supra; and it was held by a Divisional Court that where the action is of a purely common law character that a Judge in Chambers should not strike out the notice but leave it to the Judge at the trial to determine whether or not the case should be tried by a jury: Stavert v. McNaught, 18 O. L. R. 370. It is by no means, however, a rule that all common law actions should be tried with a jury: see infra. On the other hand it is said that it is desirable to have the question whether an action is to be tried with or without a jury determined at as early a stage as possible: Lauder v. Didmon, 16 P. R. 74; and the discretion of a Judge on this point will not be lightly interfered with: Ib.; and see Toogood v. Hindmarsh, 17 P. R. 446; and Mangan v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., 1891, 2 Ch. 551.

Local Judges.

A local Judge acting under Rule 210 has the same power as a Judge of the High Court in Chambers: Fox v. Fox, 17 P. R. 161; and in a case where it was almost certain that the Judge at the trial would dispense with the jury it was held that the discretion of the local Judge ought to have been exercised by striking out the jury notice.

Discretion of Judge.

It has been held that this section places the matter in the discretion of the Judge in much the same way as under the English Order 36, rr. 3-7, that it, the Judge must be satisfied that sufficient reasons exist to deprive the party claiming a jury of his primâ facie right.

he onus of establishing this is on the other side, if an application is ade before trial, and if the case can be equally well tried by either ode, then, if either party desires it, the case should go to a jury: ank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 9 P. R. 470; see also ' ark v. Skipper, 21 h. D. 134; Moses v. Simpson, 20 C. L. J. 230. Sec. 56.

Where a trial is commenced with a jury, the Judge may, even fter the evidence is taken, or during its progress, dispense with, and ischarge the jury, and try the case himself: Marks v. Windsor, 17 nt. 719; see also Denmark v. McConaghy, 26 C. P. 563; Adair v. ode, 9 Ont. 15; but semble, where he refuses to try a case with a ury he should proceed to try it himself, and semble, he has no juris- iction to strike out the jury notice and transfer the case to a non- ury sittings for trial: Bank of Toronto v. Keystone Fire Insurance o., 18 P. R. 113. Judge at trial.

The Master in Chambers and officers having like jurisdiction can nly strike out a jury notice for irregularity, e.g., where not proper nder sec. 55, or where delivered after the time allowed by section 56 or doing so; see Rule 208, clause 12. Before that Rule the Master in hambers had the same jurisdiction as a Judge: see Baldwin v. Mc- uire, 15 P. R. 305; Bristol, etc. v. Taylor, 15 P. R. 310; Lauder v. idmon, 16 P. R. 74. Jurisdiction of Judge and judicial officers.

In cases in County Courts an order made by the Judge before trial, s to trial of the action with, or without a jury, is not appealable nder sec. 40 of The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 59): McPherson v. ilson, 13 P. R. 339. County Court cases.

In Pickup v. Kincaid, 11 P. R. 445, an action to recover fees for edical attendance, where nothing was in dispute but the amount, t was held to be a proper case to strike out a jury notice with a view o having an account directed at once. Examples.

Semble, mere complexity of facts would not, alone, be sufficient eason for dispensing with a jury, in a Common Law action: Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 9 P. R. 468.

Under ordinary circumstances an action for infringement of a atent should not be tried by a jury: Vermilyea v. Guthrie, 9 P. R. 67; and here there is an issue involving a scientific investigation, hat may be a good reason for dispensing with a jury: Swyny v. North Eastern Ry. Co., 100 L. T. Jour. 390. Patent cases.

It has been said that actions against physicians and surgeons for malpractice, should now, as a general rule, be tried without a jury: Town v. Archer, 4 O. L. R. 383; Hodgins v. Banting, 12 O. L. R. 117; Gerbracht v. Bingham, 4 O. W. N. 117; and an action on a fire policy in which the defendants set up fraud was tried without a jury: Whyte v. British America Assurance Co., 38 C. L. J. 165. Actions for malpractice.

Cases of action may in a proper case be severed, that some proper for a trial by jury may be so tried: see Temperance Colonization Co. v. Evans, 12 P. R. 48, and McMahon v. Lavery, 12 P. R. 62; but such separate trial by jury should not be ordered where there is but one cause of action: Farran v. Hunter, 12 P. R. 324. Separate trials.

Rules 258 and 259, provide the mode of trial where equitable issues, or both legal and equitable issues, are raised: see notes to those Rules. Legal and equitable issues.

Sec. 56.

Where a case had been tried and the jury disagreed, a motion was made to dispense with a jury, as a jury would be likely to disagree again, but is was held that the case having been considered proper for a trial by jury, it should be so tried, subject to the directions of the Judge at the trial: Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 3 C. L. T. 499; see 19 C. L. J. 158; but in Adomson v. Adamson, 12 P. R. 469, a second trial was directed to be without a jury, the case being one where there was no primâ facie right to a jury; but in Reifenstein v. Day, 28 O. L. R. 491, that course was considered improper in a case properly triable by a jury.

In McGunighal v. Grand Trunk Ry., 6 P. R. 209, after the jury disagreed, and a second trial had been had, but the verdict had been set aside as against evidence, an order was made for trial by a Judge.

Where at the trial both parties treated an issue as one which should be tried by the Judge, and not by the jury, and the plaintiffs obtained a rule nisi for a new trial on the ground that the Judge had decided the issue wrongly, they were not allowed to amend the rule so as to state that the Judge should have left the issue to the jury: Australian, etc., Co. v. Smith, 14 App. Cas. 318.

As to the effect of withdrawing a juror: see Thomas v. Exeter, Flying Post, 18 Q. B. D. 882.

Equity cases. What actions prima facie to be tried without a jury.

Equity Cases.—A change in the practice was made by sub-sec. (4) in 1887. The words "prior to The Administration of Justice Act of 1873," were in the Revision of the Statutes, 1887, substituted for the words "at the time of the passing of this (the J. A. 1881) Act," in sec. 45, of 44 Vict. c. 5. The effect of this alteration was to add to the cases which must be tried without a jury those actions which by the A. J. Act, 1873, were made cognizable by a Court of Law as well as by the Court of Chancery, e.g., actions for purely money demands, though the right to recover was an equitable one (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 4), and actions where an injunction, or similar equitable relief is required, though otherwise cognizable by a Court of Law: see Toronto & Hamilton Navigation Co. v. Silcox, 12 P. R. 622, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 8.

In determining whether an action is one over the subject of which the Court of Chancery had exclusive jurisdiction, the test is not whether the plaintiff's end might have been substantially obtained by some proceeding cognizable in a Court of Law, but whether or not the specific relief asked for in the statement of claim is of a kind which on the 29th March, 1873, could only have been obtained in the Court of Chancery: see Powson v. Merchants' Bank, 11 P. R. 72; Mosse v. Mosse, 11 P. R. 81, reversing S. C., 10 P. R. 574; Herring v. Brooks, 11 P. R. 15. If the cause of action is an equitable one, the circumstances that the issues or questions of fact to be tried are matters which juries are accustomed to consider, in actions differently framed, will not entitle a party to a trial by jury: Feran v. Hunter, 12 P. R. 324.

An action to enforce a charge, and also for a personal judgment for the recovery of the sum charged, was held to be not an action for relief, which prior to 29th March, 1873, could only have been obtained in the Court of Chancery: Sawyer v. Robertson, 19 P. R. 172; so also an action to restrain a nuisance, and for damages: Shontz v. Berlin, 4 O. L. R. 730; sed vide, St. Margaret's v. Stephens, infra, p. 219.

Sec. 56.

The following have been held to be cases which could have been only brought in Chancery: an action for the rectification of a lease: Gowanlock v. Mann, 9 P. R. 270; to set aside a conveyance: Thurlow v. Beck, 9 P. R. 268; Hall v. McPherson, 45 C. L. J. 357; to declare void the delivery of certain notes: Pawson v. Merchants' Bank, supra, p. 218; to establish a will: Re Lewis, 11 P. R. 107; Jarrett v. Campbell, 26 O. L. R. 83; to obtain a declaration of trust: Roscoe v. McConnell, 4 O. W. N. 126. Examples.

An action by ratepayers against members of a municipal council for misconduct causing loss to the municipality is an action against trustees, and formerly within the exclusive jurisdiction of Chancery: Morrow v. Connor, 11 P. R. 423; so also an action for an injunction, and to establish a will, and for an account: McGill v. McDonell, 14 P. R. 483; and an action for an injunction to abate a nuisance and for damages: Lauder v. Didmon, 16 P. R. 74; St. Margaret's v. Stephens, 33 C. L. J. 464; see 29 Ont. 195; sed vide, Shantz v. Berlin, supra, p. 218. Action by ratepayers against municipality.

An action for specific performance of a covenant to repair, or for damages, was held to be a Common Law action, as specific performance of such a covenant could not be decreed in Chancery: Bingham v. Warner, 10 P. R. 621; but generally where a party seeks equitable relief to which he is not entitled, the opposite party should, unless in a very clear case, move to strike out the pleading (see Rule 124), instead of attacking it indirectly by asking to have a jury: Fraser v. Johnston, 12 P. R. 113. Where equitable relief not grantable.

Formerly in cases within the former exclusive jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, a trial by jury might be had. Primâ facie the trial is to be without a jury. It might, however, be "otherwise ordered" on special application. The power to order a jury existed under the Chancery Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 99). Applications under that section could only be made to the Court; the Master in Chambers had no jurisdiction: Thurlow v. Beck, 9 P. R. 268. Under the present section it seems doubtful whether the power to order a jury in such cases any longer exists except in the Judge at the trial under sec. 55 (2). If there be any jurisdiction in the Court or a Judge to make such an order: semble, the application should be made in the same way as an application under sub-sec. 1, that is, to the Court or a Judge thereof, and should not be made to the Master in Chambers or a local Judge, as the discretion to be exercised on the motion is similar to that vested in the Judge at the trial under section 55 (2); see, however, Bennett v. Trepent, 25 C. P. 443. When jury can be obtained on special motion?

A jury was refused in Re Lewis, 11 P. R. 107, a suit to establish a will; and see McGill v. McDonell, 14 P. R. 483.

It was granted in an action by a mine owner against another mine owner for an account and for an injunction, in which a view was said to be necessary: Jenkins v. Bushby, 1891, 1 Ch. 484; 64 L. T. 213; and also in a partnership action in which allegations of fraud and misconduct were made against the defendant as grounds for a dissolution: Ehrmann v. Ehrmann, 72 L. T. 352, 548. Case where view necessary.

The fact that a counterclaim is filed in respect of a claim properly triable by a jury, does not entitle the defendant to have the action so tried, if otherwise triable without a jury: Kinnaird v. Field, 1905, 2 Ch. 361. Defendant filing counterclaim.

As to where there are both legal and equitable issues: see Rule 259 and notes.

Secs. 57-60.

Effect of agreement, etc., as to place of trial.

57.—(1) Subject to subsection 2, no proviso, condition, stipulation, agreement or statement which provides for the place of trial of any action, matter or other proceeding shall be of any force or effect.

Motion by defendants to change venue.

(2) Subsection 1 shall not apply or be available unless and until the defendant moves to change the place of trial. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 57.

This section applies to cases where, by contract, the parties have agreed that actions in respect of the contract may be brought in some specified county. The effect of it appears to be that if the plaintiff lay the venue at the place agreed on, the defendant may, nevertheless, move to change it, notwithstanding the contract; and the venue will not be changed to the place agreed on if the preponderance of convenience is in favour of the place at which it is laid: see Bell v. Goodison Thresher Co., 12 O. L. R. 611.

JURY TRIALS.

Agreement of ten jurors in verdict or answers to be sufficient.

58.—(1) It shall be sufficient if ten of the jurors agree, and a verdict rendered or question answered by ten jurors shall have the same effect as a verdict or answer given by twelve jurors.

Special juries.

(2) This section shall apply to special juries.

Not necessary for same ten jurors to agree to all answers.

(3) Where more questions than one are submitted, it shall not be necessary that the same ten jurors shall agree to every answer. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 58.

This sub-section is passed to meet the question raised, but not decided, in Zuvelt v. Can. Pac. Ry., 23 O. L. R. 602.

Death or illness of juror or discovery interest during trial.

59. If at the trial of an action or issue or assessment of damages, a juror dies or becomes incapacitated from any cause from continuing to sit or act on the jury, or if it is discovered that a juror has an interest in the result of the proceeding, or is a relative within the degree of first cousin of any of the parties the judge may discharge such juror, and may direct that the trial or assessment shall proceed on such terms as he deems just with eleven jurors, and in such case ten jurors may give the verdict or answer the questions submitted to the jury. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 59.

General or special verdict may be given unless Judge otherwise directs.

60.—(1) In the absence of a direction to the contrary of the judge, a jury may give a general or special verdict, but shall give a special verdict if he so directs and hall not give a general verdict if directed by him not to Sec. 61.

o so.

(2) This section shall not apply to actions of libel. Not to apply to actions of libel.
-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 60.

A "general verdict" is one whereby the jur" ad the issue in vour of one party or the other, generally, i.e., t plaintiff or de- ndant, as the case may be; and where there are veral issues, if me be found in favour of one side and some in favour of the other, is would still be a "general verdict": Co. Lit. 226: Davies v. ounder, 1 Sc. N. R. 328; Chitty's Arch. Pr. (14th ed.) 655. A "special rdict," on the other hand, is one whereby the jury simply find the cts, leaving it to the Court on applying the law to the facts so und, to determine for which of the parties a judgment should be ven: Co. Lit. 227 b., 228; Chitty's Arch. Pr. (14th ed.) 655.

Formerly a jury might in all cases give a general verdict: Mayor f Devizes v. Clark, 3 A. & E. 506; but this and the following sec- on have restricted this right, and the jury may in certain cases be equired to answer specific questions: sec. 61.

Where a jury is entitled to return, and do return, a general verdict, is not competent for the Judge to put a special question to them nd to give judgment in accordance with their answer to it, contrary o their general verdict: Arnold v. Jeffreys, 110 L. T. 25o.

61.—(1) Upon a trial by jury, except in an action for Except in actions of libel, the jury may be directed to answer questions.
ibel, the judge, instead of directing the jury to give ither a general or a special verdict, may direct the jury o answer any questions of fact stated to them by him; nd the jury shall answer such questions, and shall not ive any verdict.

(2) Judgment may be directed to be entered on the Judgment may be entered on answers.
nswers to such questions. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 61.

This section has made an important change. Formerly not only ctions for libel, but actions for slander, criminal conversation, seduc- ion, malicious arrest, malicious prosecution or false imprisonment, ere excepted from the cases in which the jury could be directed to nswer questions: see Jud. Act (1897) c. 51, s. 112. Now in all actions xcept for libel, the jury may be required to answer questions.

It was considered by Anglin, J., that in the excepted class of ctions it was not competent for a Judge to require a jury to answer pecific questions at all: Still v. Hastings, 13 O. L. R. 322; 14 O. L. R. 38; but see per Middleton, J., Harris v. Bickerton, 24 O. L. R. 41, and s to whether by consent of parties questions may be put: see Go cer . Lusse, 16 Ont. 88.

For cases where the section has been applied and as to the duty of he Judge upon the questions being answered: see Canada Central v. cLaren, 8 Ont. App. 564; St. Denis v. Baxter, 13 Ont. 41; 15 Ont pp. 387.

It is imperative upon the jury to answer the questions submitted o them, and they may not give a general verdict instead, unless the

Sec. 62.

Judge in his discretion receives it: Furlong v. Carroll, 7 Ont. App. 145, but to enable the jury to give such general verdict instead of answering the questions, the Judge's charge must give them such instructions as to the law, that they can properly give a general verdict instead of merely answering the questions: Reid v. Barnes, 25 Ont. 223, and see Gowganda-Queen Mines v. Borckh, 24 O. L. R. 293; 46 S. C. R. 645. Leave to appeal to P. C. refused: 27 O. L. R. 643.

In libel cases, this section prevents a judgment from being entered upon answers to questions submitted to the jury; a general verdict must be given by the jury in such cases, and a finding, in answer to a question, of a certain amount of damages is not equivalent to a general verdict: Gordon v. Denison, 22 Ont. App. 315 (an action for false imprisonment).

A Judge is not bound to submit questions in writing to the jury: Lett v. St. Lawrence, 1 Ont. 545. See also Bolfour v. Toronto Railway Co., 5 O. L. R. 735; 32 S. C. R. 239; where Armour, C.J.O. said that questions should be in writing; but Osler, J.A., said that while it is convenient and no doubt the usual course that questions submitted to the jury should be in writing, the law does not so require; and a judge's refusal to submit any particular question is not ground for a new trial: Turner v. Burns, 24 Ont. 28.

Failure of jury to answer questions.

When the jury fail to answer questions, or their answers are conflicting, so that no judgment can be awarded for either party on their finding, or in case the Judge at the trial refuses to give judgment for either party, the action may, unless his decision is appealed from, be carried down for trial again, as upon a disagreement of the jury: see Jud. Act, s. 30 and Rule 501. In Nettleton v. Prescott, 16 O. L. R. 538, a Divisional Court rejected an answer of a jury to a question as being insensible and at unreasonable variance with their answers to other questions.

In Spencer v. Alaska, etc., 35 S. C. R. 362, it was said by Nesbitt, J., that in an action founded upon negligence it is advisable that specific questions be submitted to the jury to enable them to state the special grounds on which they find negligence or no negligence. The jury should be asked to find specifically what was the negligence which caused the injury: Mader v. Hotifax Electric Tramway Co., 37 S. C. R. 94.

ACTIONS FOR MALICIOUS PROSECUTION.

Question of reasonable and probable cause to be decided by judge.

62. In actions for malicious prosecution, the judge shall decide all questions both of law and fact necessary for determining whether or not there was reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 62.

This section appears to work a legislative reversal of Harris v. Bickerton, 24 O. L. R. 41, where it was held that any disputed fact on which reasonable and probable cause was based, must be found by the jury. This section now leaves both the law and fact on such questions to the decision of the Court.

In such an action the plaintiff must establish not only malice, but the absence of reasonable and probable cause. Notwithstanding this section, the question of malice would appear to be distinct from that "reasonable and probable cause," and, therefore, still a question to be submitted to the jury: Harris v. Bickerton, supra, p. 222. Sec. 63.

Proof that the charge was made and failed is not per se proof of malice, or want of reasonable and probable cause: Corea v. Peiris, 1909, A. C. 549; 100 L. T. 790; Walters v. Smith, 136 L. T. J. 169.

Where the defendant acts on the advice of counsel after a full disclosure of the facts so far as known to the defendant, that of itself is "reasonable and probable cause": Longdon v. Bilsky, 22 O. L. R. 4; and see Ford v. Canadian Express Co., 21 O. L. R. 585; Pitchet v. Fulton, 22 O. L. R. 40; 23 O. L. R. 260.

The section does not apply to actions for false imprisonment, as to which: see Walters v. Smith, supra.

QUASHING CONVICTIONS, ETC.

Procedure substituted for certiorari, etc.

63.—(1) Where it is desired to move to quash a conviction, order, warrant or inquisition, the proceeding shall be by motion in the first instance instead of by certiorari, rule or order nisi.

Service of notice of motion.

(2) Notice of the motion shall be served at least six days before the return day thereof upon the magistrate making the conviction or order, or issuing the warrant, or the coroner making the inquisition, and also upon the prosecutor or informant, if any, and upon the clerk of the peace if the proceedings have been returned to his office, and the notice shall specify the objections intended to be raised.

Indorsement on notice of motion.

(3) Upon the notice of motion shall be indorsed a copy of subsection 4 and a notice in the following form, addressed to the magistrate, coroner or clerk of the peace, as the case may be:

Form.

"You are hereby required forthwith after service hereof to return to the Central Office at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, the conviction (or as the case may be) herein referred to, together with the information and evidence, if any, and all things touching the matter, as fully and entirely as they remain in your custody, together with this notice.

"Dated

"To A. B.

"Magistrate (or as the case may be).

"C. D.,

"Solicitor for the Applicant."

The notice does not indicate that it is to be entitled in any cause or matter, but it would seem advisable that it should be entitled in the proceeding in which the conviction, warrant, or inquisition which is sought to be quashed was made. The same remark applies to the notice of motion, which should also be entitled "In the Supreme Court."

Sec. 63.

Return by Magistrate, etc.

(4) Upon receiving the notice so indorsed, the magistrate, coroner or clerk of the peace shall forthwith return to the Central Office, the conviction, order, warrant or inquisition, and the information and evidence, if any, and all things touching the matter, and the notice served upon him with a certificate indorsed upon it in the following form:

Form.

Pursuant to the within notice I herewith return to this Honourable Court the following papers and documents:—

"1. The conviction (or as the case may be);

"2. The information and the warrant issued thereon;

"3. The evidence taken at the hearing;

"4. (Any other papers or documents touching the matter).

"And I hereby certify to this Honourable Court that I have above truly set forth all the papers and documents in my custody or power relating to the matter set forth in this notice of motion."

Effect of certificate.

(5) The certificate shall have the same effect as a return to a writ of certiorari or to an order under the Rules.

Notice returnable before Judge in Chambers.

(6) The notice shall be returnable before a Judge of the High Court Division sitting in Chambers.

(7) The motion shall not be entertained—

Limitation of time for proceedings.

(a) unless the return day thereof is within six months after the conviction, order, warrant or inquisition; and Security to be given.

(b) the applicant is shown to have entered into a recognizance with one or more sufficient sureties in the sum of $100 before a Magistrate of the county within which the conviction, order or inquisition was made or the warrant was issued, or before a judge of the county court of that county or before a Judge of the High Court Division, conditioned that the applicant will prosecute the application at his own costs and charges without any wilful or affected delay and that he will pay to the person in whose favour the conviction, order or other proceeding is affirmed his full costs and charges to be taxed according to the course of the Court in case the conviction, order or other proceeding is affirmed, or has paid into Court the like sum as security that he will do so. Sec. 64.

The Crown is not bound by this section, and therefore on an application by the Crown to quash a conviction, no deposit or security is required: Re Martin & Garlow, 20 O. L. R. 295.

(8) The recognizance with an affidavit of its due execution shall be filed with the Clerk in Chambers. Recognizance to be filed.

Where money is paid into Court as security, semble, the certificate of the Accountant should be filed with the Clerk in Chambers.

(9) The Judge shall have all the powers of the Court in the like matters and may order the production of papers and documents as he may deem necessary. Powers of Judge. Appeal.

(10) No appeal from the order of the Judge shall lie unless leave is granted by a Judge of the High Court Division. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 63. No appeal without leave.

The motion must be returnable before a Judge of the High Court Division, the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers and officers having the like jurisdiction is therefore excluded: Rule 208 (13).

The effect of this section is to abolish the writ of certiorari for the purpose of removing a conviction for breach of Provincial laws. This change was originally effected by the former C. RR. 1289-1298, subsequently superseded by 8 Edw. VII., c. 34, on which this section is based.

Similar provisions are made by C. RR. 1279-1288 in respect of convictions under The Criminal Code which are still in force: see supra, p. 140.

This section is only applicable in cases where certiorari formerly lay: Rex v. Cook, 18 O. L. R. 415; 14 C. C. C. 495; Rex v. Nelson, 18 O. L. R. 484; Rex v. Renaud, 18 O. L. R. 420; 15 C. C. C. 246.

An acquittal will not as a rule be quashed: Rex v. Simpson, 1914, K. B. 66. The quashing of a conviction is not pleadable as a bar to fresh proceedings in reference to the same alleged offence: see Ib.

REFERENCES TO OFFICIALS AND SPECIAL REFEREES.

64.—(1) Subject to the Rules and to any right to have particular cases tried by a jury, a Judge of the High Court Division may refer any question arising in an action for inquiry and report either to an official referee or to a special referee agreed upon by the parties. Reference for inquiry and report.

(2) Subsection 1 shall not, unless with the consent of His Majesty, authorize the reference to an official referee Where Crown interested.

Sec. 64.

of an action to which His Majesty is a party or of any question or issue therein. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 64.

"A Judge of the High Court Division."—The Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters, have no jurisdiction to make an order under this section: Union Loan Co. v. Boomer, 10 P. R. 630; Bank of Commerce v. Jennings, 7 C. L. T. 170: see Rule 208 (13), except, as to a Local Judge, where he has jurisdiction under Rule 210.

As to who are Official Referees: see ss. 76 (1) (o), infra, p. 265; and s. 86 (1), infra, p. 274.

See also Rule 65, which provides further for references to take accounts or make inquiries at any stage of proceedings.

As to the employment of experts: see Rule 268.

Except by consent, the Court has no power to order a reference under the above section to any person other than an Official Referee, or the Judge of a County Court: Fewster v. Raleigh, 14 P. R. 429.

Scope of section.

"Inquiry and Report."—In view of other provisions of the Act, these words probably have a slightly different signification in this section from that given to them in the English Act. The inquiry intended is just such a judicial inquiry as a Master would make in the case, to ascertain, as the delegate of the Court, the rights of the parties in regard to the questions referred: see Rule 400; and the report is to be similar to that of a Master and is to have the same effect given to it when filed: see sec. 67, infra, and notes.

Under Ont. Act.

What may be referred.

"Any Question Arising."—Under this section all that can be referred is a question or questions in the action, and must be a question or questions which must necessarily be decided in the action, not such as it may prove unnecessary to decide: Weed v. Ward, 40 Ch. D. 555. The whole action, facts and law, cannot be referred: Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 142; Braginton v. Yates, W. N. 1880, 150; Luney v. Essery, 10 P. R. 285; Re Queen City Refining Co., 10 P. R. 415; nor the whole of the issues in an action: Clarry v. B. A. Ass. Co., 12 P. R. 357; but the whole action may be referred for trial by an official referee under sec. 65 infra.

A question of liability, upon which the right to an account depends, should be tried in the usual way: Ward v. Hall, W. N. 1880, 69, per Cotton, L.J., Clow v. Harper, 3 Ex. D. 198; Fewster v. Raleigh, 14 P. R. 429; more especially if it be a proper question for a jury: Young v. Prittie, Globe, 19th April, 1882. Where a question is directly raised by the pleadings, and is distinctly presented to the Court for its decision, and evidence has been taken upon it, it should not be referred, but should be disposed of by the Court: International Bridge Co. v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 7 Ont. App. 266; Smith v. Armitage, 24 Ch. D. 727.

Amount of damages.

The question of the amount of damages, as a question in the action, may be referred, in the discretion of the trial Judge, but the exercise of his discretion is subject to review: Ratté v. Booth, 16 P. R. 185. The onus of shewing that the discretion was wrongly exercised is on the party objecting: Ib.; and generally speaking a reference as to damages ought only to be ordered in cases where the inquiry involves questions of detail which it would be wasting the time of the Court to investigate: Wallis v. Sayers, 34 Sol. Jour. 545, per Bowen, L.J.

For form of order of reference under this section: see No. 74 H. & L. Forms, No. 943. it should express on its face whether it is an order under this section for inquiry and report, or under sec. 65 for trial: Cumming v. Low, 2 Ont. 505; and see White v. Peto, W. N. 1886, 165; Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 19 Q. B. D. 155. Sec. 84. Form of order.

Further directions need not be expressly reserved, but a motion for judgment upon the report may be made after it has become confirmed, which is in effect the former motion for decree on further directions.

Procedure before Referee.—This section contemplates an inquiry by examination of witnesses and not by the Referee's personal observation only: Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 19 Q. B. D. 155. Procedure on reference.

The practice and procedure generally before a Referee is the same as before a Master: see Rule 400, also Rules 277, 402-459.

Eng. Rule 474 confers power on the Referee to direct judgment to be entered, and gives authority with respect to discovery and production: see Serle v. Fardell, 44 Ch. D. 299; Clark v. Sonnenschein, 25 Q. B. D. 226; Hayward v. Mut. Reserve, 1891, 2 Q. B. 236. The Ont. Jud. Act denies the power to direct judgment to be entered, and no express provision is made in regard to discovery.

Ther was formerly doubt as to whether a Referee had power to issue a direction for production like a Master, or whether an order in præcipe might be obtained: see Hilderbroom v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 89. Discovery.

Now, however, it is made clear by Rule 400 that the practice before a Referee is to be as nearly as possible the same as before a Master. If the order of reference is made after discovery and production has been obtained in the action in the ordinary way under Rule 327, that may suffice; but if further discovery or production is required for the purpose of the reference, it is obtainable by the order or direction of the Referee: see Rules 349, 411, and Brooks v. Georgian Bay, &c., 16 P. R. 511; Garland v. Clarkson, 9 O. L. R. 281. Where the parties directed to make discovery are present or represented by their solicitor, no formal order is necessary, and the direction entered in the Master's book is sufficient: Rule 421.

Where a reference is made for trial, the Referee has power to direct such discovery as might be obtained in an action before trial, including discovery, under Rule 334, from a person for whose immediate benefit the action is brought or defended: Garland v. Clarkson, 9 O. L. R. 281.

The Referee, whether the reference is for report (Jud. Act, s. 64); or trial (Ib., s. 65), has power, subject to the control of the Court, to fix a peremptory appointment for the hearing, and, on default of either party, to proceed in his absence: Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 32 W. R. 220; 49 L. T. 617. Hearing.

Report.—The report is subject to the same rules, and should be drawn in the same form, as the report of a Master, as to which: see notes to Rule 424. Report of Referee.

The Master, if he sufficiently follows the directions of the judgment, is not obliged to give his reasons for, or to enter into detailed explanations of his report: Booth v. Ratté, 21 S. C. R. 637; and see

Sec. 65.

Dunkirk, etc. v. Lever, 9 Ch. D. 20, under the English practice. Evidence should not he steted: Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 149; Sovereign v. Sovereign, 15 Gr. 559.

A Referee may, like a Master, report specielly any circumstances which he deems necessary for the informetion of the Court, end he should do so as to any metter affecting costs: eee Hayes v. Hayes, 29 Gr. 90.

When the conduct of en erhitrator would invelidate his report the like conduct on the part of e Referee would be fatal to his report: see Conmee v. Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., 16 Ont. 639.

The Referee should himeelf draw his report and eettle it in th presence of both parties: Knarr v. Bricker, 16 P. R. 363, where it wee held to he improper for the Referee to delegate the drewing of the report to the eolicitor for the successful perty.

As to 'ling the report, see sec. 67, infra, and Rules 429, 502.

Costs.

Where en ection is referred to a Referee for trial under The Jud. Act, s. 65, he would seem to have power to determine hy whom the costs of the action end reference should he paid: eee Patten v. West of England, etc., 1894, 2 Q. B. 159, and note infra, p. 232; hut peyment thereof cen only he enforced under a judgment or order directing payment which is made hy e Judge.

As to the costs of references and appeels: see McCullough v. Clemow, 26 Ont. 467.

Judgment on Referee's report.

Judgment on Report.—A report under this section, under Rule 502, hecomee absolute at the expiration of 14 deye from the filing unlese duly appealed from, or erroneors on its fece. Judgment cannot he signed upon it, however, without a motion for judgment, which is simliar to the former motion for decree on further directione, end the Referee cannot direct judgment to be entered upon his report: see sec. 67. The Eng. practice is different: see Eng. (1883), R. 474; Clark v. Sonnenschein, 25 Q. B. D. 226, 464.

Two clear days' notice of e motion for judgment is sufficient: Re Brook, 45 L. T. 172; 29 W. R. 891; 17 C. L. J. 391, and Rule 215.

Appeal from Report.—See sec. 67, infra, and Rules 502-504 and notes.

The appeal from a report lies to a Judge in the Weekly Court, upon eeven deys' notice: Rule 503, and see notes to s. 65 infra.

65. In an action,

Power to refer in certain cases.

(a) if all the parties interested who are not under disability consent, and where there are parties under disability the Judge is of opinion that the reference should be made and the other parties interested consent; or,

(b) where a prolonged examination of documents or a scientific or local investigation is required which cannot in the opinion of the Court or a Judge conveniently be made before a jury or conducted by the Court directly; or, Sec. 65.

(c) where the question in dispute consists wholly or partly of matters of account, a Judge of the High Court Division may at any time refer the whole action or any question or issue of fact arising therein or question of account either to an official referee or to a special referee agreed upon by the parties. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 65.

"A Judge of the High Court Division."—The Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters, have no jurisdiction to order a reference under this section: White v. Beemer, 10 P. R. 531; Union Loan v. Boomer, 10 P. R. 630; Bank of Commerce v. Jennings, 7 C. L. T. 170; see Rule 208 (13); except as to a Local Judge where he has jurisdiction under Rule 210.

But where the Master in Chambers made an order of reference to a Judge of a District Court, and a report was made and judgment subsequently pronounced thereon by a Judge of the High Court, a Divisional Court refused to entertain the question whether the Master in Chambers had jurisdiction to make the order, there being no appeal therefrom: Fraser v. Buchanan, 25 Ont. 1

Special Referee.—A reference to a special Referee under secs. 64 or 65 can only be ordered on consent: see London & Lancashire F. Ins. Co. v. British American Ass. Co., 52 L. T. 385; 54 L. J. Q. B. 302, where the extra costs of a trial before an Official Referee instead of a special Referee, to whose appointment defendants refused to consent, were reserved.

As to Official Referees: see ss. 76 (1), 86.

Under above sec. 65, the Court, or a Judge at nisi prius, or at a Circuit sitting of the High Court: Hoch v. Boor, W. N. 1880, 93; 43 L. T. 425; 49 L. J. Q. B. 665, may send, where the parties have consented, the whole action (though this was not formerly authorized: see Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 142; Braginton v. Yates, W. N. 1880, 150; Clarry v. B. A. Ass. Co., 12 P. R. 357), or any question or issue of fact, or question of account, to an Official Referee for trial. When an order is made without consent, the Court can only send such questions as are brought within the terms of clauses (b) and (c), that is, any issue requiring prolonged examination of documents or accounts, etc., which in the opinion of the Judge cannot conveniently be made before a jury or conducted by the Court itself: Longman v. East; Hoch v. Boor, supra, or where the question in dispute consists wholly, or in part, of matters of account. But if a case is once brought within clauses (b) and (c), or either of them, the Court may refer not only the questions of account, but the whole cause or matter (see last clause of sec. 65); or all issues of fact in the cause: Ward v. Pilley, 5 Q. B. D. 427, 431; Miller v. Tilling, 9 Q. B. D. 738; Knight v. Coales, 19 Q. B. D. 296; though the question in dispute does not consist entirely of matters of account: Martin v. Fife, 31 W. R. 840; 49 L. T. 107; Goodwin v. Budden, 42 L. T. What may be referred.

Sec. 66.

536; as where issues of fact were so mixed up with matters of account, that they could not practically be dissevered: Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 150; Ward v. Hall, W. N. 1880, 69. It is probable, however, that where there is a substantial question of liability, upon which the taking of accounts depends, to be determined, it will first be determined in the ordinary way: Clow v. Horper, 3 Ex. D. 198; Word v. Holl, W. N. 1880, 69; Weed v. Word, 40 Ch. D. 665; and other cases under s. 54, supra, p. 226.

"Prolonged" means prolonged if had before a jury, not if had before a skilled accountant: Word v. Pilley, 5 Q. B. D. 428; and the documents are such as it would be necessary to inquire into, in order to leave the question properly to the jury, not such as require examination to determine a question of legal right: Ormerod v. Todmorden, 8 Q. B. D. 664, 677. Reading a lot of letters is not a prolonged examination of documents: Green's Trustee v. Borrett, W. N. 1875, 204.

The expression "question of account," will receive a large construction: Re Leigh, 3 Ch. D. 292; and any question of account which might have been compulsorily referred under the C. L. P. Act (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 60, ss. 189 and 195), may be compulsorily referred under this section: Word v. Pilley, 6 Q. B. D. 427.

In a case involving a critical knowledge of pictures, the Court of Appeal refused to send the case for trial before a Referee against defendant's will, as the fortune and character of the defendant were involved, and he was entitled to have the matters of fraud charged tried in a public Court: Leigh v. Brooks, 5 Ch. D. 592. But even where there are questions of fraud there is no inherent right to a trial by jury, and in such a case if the issues involve a prolonged examination of documents or accounts they may be compulsorily referred: Hoch v. Boor, W. N. 1880, 93; 43 L. T. 425; Socker v. Rogozine & Co., 44 L. T. 308; but see Russell v. Horris, 65 L. T. 752.

A question of damages consisting of various items in an action for injuries caused to a vessel by defendant's negligence: Liverpool, etc., Co. v. London Novigotion, W. N. 1875, 203; damages from obstructing a river by casting in sawdust and rubbish: Rotté v. Booth, 16 P. R. 185; issues of fact in a patent case requiring "scientific investigation"; Saxby v. Gloucester Wagon Co., W. N. 1880, 28; and damages in an action for specific performance: Stofford v. Coxon, W. N. 1877, 138, were ordered to be assessed by a Referee.

An order made under this section by a Judge in his discretion is appealable: Ormerod v. Todmorden, etc., 8 Q. B. D. 664; Hoch v. Boor, W. N. 1880, 93; 43 L. T. 425; Ratté v. Booth, 16 P. R. 185. But as a rule a Court of Appeal is disinclined to interfere with the exercise of a discretion: Saxby v. Gloucester Wagon Co., W. N. 1880, 28.

Order.

For form of order: see No. 75; H. & L. Forms, No. 944. It should, as intimated in Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 163, point out that it is an order under this section for issues to be tried, and should state whether all the issues are to be tried, or, if only certain issues, it should state by some sufficient description what those issues are: Cumming v. Low, 2 Ont. 505.

Special referee to be an officer of the Court.

66.—(1) In the case of a reference to a special referee he shall be deemed to be an officer of the Court.

(2) The remuneration to be paid to a special referee may be determined by a Judge of the High Court Division. Sec. 67. Remuneration of special referee.

(3) The remuneration, fees, charges and disbursements payable to an official referee, and, in the absence of any special direction, to a special referee, shall be the same as are payable to a local master. Scale of remuneration of referee.

(4) Where the Judge at the trial instead or trying an action refers the whole action under the provisions of section 65 to an official referee who is a local registrar or deputy registrar, a deputy clerk of the crown and pleas, a local master or other officer of the Court, paid wholly or partly by salary, no fees, either in law stamps or otherwise, shall be charged by the referee. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 66. No fees when whole action is referred to officer of Court.

Where the Referee apportions the fees payable to him between the plaintiff and defendant according to the time occupied by each in the reference, and the plaintiff pays his proportion, the Referee cannot refuse to issue to the plaintiff the report until the fees payable by defendant are paid: Brooks v. Georgian Bay, etc., Co., 17 P. R. 34.

Procedure before Referee.—For the procedure before the Referee: see Rules 400, et seq.

Where a Referee refused to postpone the trial of a matter referred to him, it was held that an appeal from that decision might be made to a Judge in Chambers: see Richard v. Talbot, 38 W. R. 478. In Ontario, the course would seem to be to take out a certificate of the Referee of his decision, and appeal from it to the Court, as in the case of a Master.

67. The referee shall make his findings and embody his conclusions in the form of a report, and his report shall be subject to all the incidents of a report of a master on a reference as regards filing, confirmation, appealing therefrom, motions thereupon and otherwise, including appeals to a Divisional Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 67. Referee to make report.

A Referee has the same power to allow interest as a jury has: Attorney-General v. Ætna Insurance Co., 13 P. R. 459; and see secs. 34, 35, supra, and notes.

Report.—The report of a Referee under this section should state his conclusions upon the issues referred, and he is not bound to give reasons for his findings: Miller v. Pilling, 9 Q. B. D. 736; see also Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 155; Fawcett v. Winters, 12 P. R. 232. Under Rule 401 the Court has power to obtain any explanation or reason as to the principles upon which the Referee has rested his conclusions: Ib. Report.

Sec. 67.

For an example of scientific or local investigation by a Referee: see Broder v. Saillord, 2 Ch. D. 692.

The Referee should himself draw his report and settle it in the presence of both parties: Knarr v. Bricker, 16 P. R. 363; he should not delegate the drawing of the report to the solicitor for the successful party: Ib.

See also notes to Rule 424.

Effect of report of referee after filing.

Effect of Report of Referee.—The report of an Official or special Referee under either s. 64 or s. 66 should be filed, and notice of the filing thereof given to the other parties, and from the time of service of such notice it is subject to all the incidents of a report of a Master as regards confirmation, appealing therefrom, motions thereupon, and otherwise: see Rule 400. See also Rules 428, 502.

The report should be filed in the office in which the proceedings were commenced: see Rules 428, 761, 762.

Appeals from report.

Appeals from Reports.—The appeal from the report is heard and decided by a Judge sitting in the Weekly Court, and the practice to be observed upon such appeal and any further appeal to the Appellate Division is the practice observed on an appeal from the report of a Master: see Rule 503.

As to appeals from the Judge in Weekly Court: see sec. 26, supra.

Where a Referee held that there was a want of reasonable and probable cause for the defendant's proceeding criminally against the plaintiff, and it was objected that this was a finding of law and not of fact, it was held to be equivalent to a verdict for plaintiff rendered by a jury under instructions from the Judge as to what would be reasonable and probable cause: Fowcett v. Winters, 12 P. R. 232.

Time for appealing.

An appeal from a report must be brought before the expiration of 14 days from the filing thereof, and the giving notice of such filing to the opposite party, unless special leave to allow an appeal after the 14 days is obtained. See notes to Rule 503.

As to appeals in respect to costs: see sec. 74 (4), and notes.

Costs.—As to the costs of references and appeals: see McCullough v. Clemow, 26 Ont. 467.

Where an action was referred to a Referee for trial, and he gave the defendant the costs of the action and award, this was held to include the costs of the reference: Potten v. West of England, etc., 1894, 2 Q. B. 159.

Where an action is referred under s. 65, the Referee may find by whom the costs should be paid, but payment of them can only be enforced under a judgment or order of the Court directing payment of them. The judgment or order of reference may contain such a direction: see Form 75; H. & L. Forms, No. 944.

Judgment.—An Official Referee has no power to order judgment to be entered: Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 142. The report must be brought before the Court on motion for judgment, when the Court will give judgment as formerly in Chancery upon the report of a Master: Murphy v. Corry, 12 O. L. R. 120; Longman v. East, supra; Secs. 68, 69.

Deacon v. Dolby, W. N. 1883, 25; Miller v. Pilling, 9 Q. B. D. 736; Monro v. Rendall, W. N. 1878, 41; Walker v. Bunkell, 22 Ch. D. 722.
The motion is made to a Judge sitting in the Weekly Court: see Cum- ming v. Low, supra, p. 230. See also s. 64, supra, p. 225.

Defects appearing on the face of the report such as that the report is imperfect, or in excess of jurisdiction, may be urged in opposing a motion for judgment: Cooke v. Newcastle, 10 Q. B. D. 336.

Where the judgment of reference also orders payment of what shall be found due, no motion for judgment on the report is necessary, but execution may issue on the confirmation of the report.

Transmission of evidence and exhibits.

68. The evidence of witnesses examined upon the reference, and the exhibits shall forthwith, after the making of the report, be transmitted by the referee to the proper officer of the Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 68.

The proper officer will be the officer in whose office the proceedings were commenced: see Rules 761 and 762.

SURETY COMPANIES.

"Surety Company."

69.—(1) In this section "Surety Company" shall mean an incorporated company empowered to give bonds by way of indemnity.

Bonds of company may be taken as security.

(2) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may direct that the bond of any surety company named in the order in council may be given as security in all cases where security is ordered to be given by any court or by any judge or officer of any court, and in all cases where security for the costs of an appeal, or for the prosecution of the appeal, is required by any law, rule or practice.

Order in council approving of company to be published in Gazette.

(3) Every order in council made under subsection 2 shall forthwith be published in the Ontario Gazette and shall be laid before the Assembly within 15 days after the making thereof if the Assembly is then in session, and if it is not in session within 15 days after the opening of the next session.

Other surety or affidavit of justification not required.

(4) The bond of any surety company named in the order in council shall be sufficient without any other surety joining in the bond, and an affidavit of justification shall not be necessary.

Disallowance of bond on motion.

(5) Notwithstanding anything in this section, any judge or any officer having jurisdiction in the matter, may in his discretion disallow any such bond on a motion to disallow it, and upon any evidence which may be deemed sufficient. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 69.

Sec. 70.

Sub-section 2, originally applied merely to security for costs, as now amended it applies to security for any purpose.

See The Guarantee Companies Securities Act (R. S. O. c. 190).

PHYSICAL EXAMINATION OF PARTIES.

Physical examination of party by medical practitioner.

70.—(1) In any action or proceeding for the recovery of damages or other compensation for or in respect of bodily injury sustained by any person, the court which, or the judge, or the person who by consent of parties, or otherwise, has power to fix the amount of such damages or compensation, may order that the person in respect of whose injury damages or compensation are sought shall submit himself to a physical examination by a duly qualified medical practitioner who is not a witness on either side and may make such order respecting the examination and the costs of it as may be deemed proper.

Medical practitioner to be selected by judge and may be a witness.

(2) The medical practitioner shall be selected by the court, judge, or person making the order, and may afterwards be a witness on the trial unless the court, judge or person before whom the action or proceeding is tried otherwise directs. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 70.

Former C. R. 462 made a similar provision.

This section applies to all actions in which the plaintiff seeks to recover damages for personal physical injuries caused by the alleged negligence of the defendant, e.g., to actions under The Fatal Accidents Act; and to actions against municipal bodies, or railways, or others for bodily injuries occasioned through the alleged default of their servants.

Formerly, the examination of the person of a litigant could not be ordered for the purpose of discovery: Reily v. City of London, 14 P. R. 171.

This section does not authorize the putting of questions by the medical practitioner to the person examined, who may therefore refuse to answer questions, but must allow himself to be physically examined: Clouse v. Coleman, 16 P. R. 496, 541; and he cannot be compelled to submit himself to any operation: Rothwell v. Davies, 19 T. L. R. 423; Warnecken v. Moreland, 1909, 1 K. B. 184; Tutton v. Majestic, 1909, 2 K. B. 54.

An examination under C. R. 462, after trial and verdict for plaintiff, for the purpose of shewing that the plaintiff had recovered his health, and that the verdict was excessive, was refused, it being held that an examination under that Rule was only intended for discovery before trial: Fraser v. London Street Ry. Co., 18 P. R. 370; and see Burns v. Toronto Ry., 13 O. L. R. 404.

Where the issues are defined by pleadings, an examination may be ordered under this section on any point pertinent to the issues: Kippen v. Baldwin, 3 O. W. N. 121; 20 O. W. R. 203. Secs. 71, 72.

TENDER OF AMENDS IN CASE OF TORTS.

71. A person who has committed a wrong giving a cause of action for the recovery of damages to the person wronged may at any time before action tender amends, and the tender shall have the same effect as a tender in an action for the recovery of a debt. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 71. Tender of amends in case of torts.

This section is a departure from the Common Law and extends to all actions of tort, a right which was first given by statute in actions of libel, to tender amends for the alleged wrong. In libel actions the tender could only be effectively made after action brought, and in respect of libels in newspapers: see The Libel and Slander Act (R. S. O. c. 71), s. 9; in actions for either libel or slander a written or printed apology might be given in evidence, but only in mitigation of damages, ib. s. 4; but now, under the present section, a tender of amends for any wrong is to have the same effect as a tender in an action on contract, and if the jury find the tender to have been sufficient, it will not be merely evidence in mitigation of damages, but a bar to the action. Tender of amends for tort.

VESTING ORDERS.

72. Where the Court has authority to order the execution of a deed, conveyance, transfer or assignment of any property, real or personal, the Court may by order vest such real or personal property in such person, and in such manner, and for such estates, as would be done by any such deed, conveyance, assignment or transfer if executed; and the order shall have the same effect as if the legal or other estate or interest in the property had been actually conveyed by deed or otherwise, for the same estate or interest, to the person in whom the same is so ordered to be vested, or in case of a chose in action, as if it had been actually assigned to such last mentioned person. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 72. Vesting order, effect of.

The power of the Court to grant a vesting order extends to every case where it has power to order the execution of a conveyance, transfer, or assignment, of any property, real or personal; but the Court cannot order the execution of any conveyance by any person who is not before the Court and amenable to its jurisdiction, and it can therefore only vest the interests of those who are before the Court and subject to its jurisdiction: Re Hewish, 17 Ont. 454, as to the report of which see Ayerst v. McClean, 10 C. L. T. 341. Only interests of parties before the Court can be vested.

Where lands are sold under the judgment or order of the Court, a conveyance by the person having the legal estate is all that is necessary to vest the title in the purchaser. It is not necessary that parties to the suit having purely equitable interests should also join in the conveyance: Ross v. Steele, 1 Chy. Ch. 94; Moore v. Shinners, 1 Chy. Ch. 59; but persons having equitable interests who were not parties to the action would not formerly (unless represented sufficiently by persons who were parties) be bound by the judgment, and it was necessary for a purchaser, before taking either a conveyance or vesting order, to see that all persons having any interest, had been made parties, or were properly represented by persons who were parties, and were bound by the judgment; but see The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 56.

Effect of vesting order.

By a vesting order, all the interest, legal and equitable, of the parties to the action, or any of them, may be vested in the person named in the order: Re Robertson, 22 Gr. 449; even though some of them be infants: Donaldson v. Berry, 2 Chy. Ch. 16. But where the legal estate was in the plaintiff, who became the purchaser himself at a sale under a decree, the Court refused to make a vesting order because it had no power to order him to convey to himself: Bowen v. Fox, 1 Chy. Ch. 387. In such cases the purchaser's title would be made out by the production of the judgment and the Master's report on sale duly confirmed (see per Maclennan, Q.C., arguendo, 22 Gr. 452); but this has been thought an unsatisfactory mode of proving that the equitable rights have been extinguished, and in some cases under similar circumstances vesting orders have been made, no objection thereto being raised by the parties.

Vesting order when refused.

Purchase money.

A vesting order will not be granted to a purchaser except on proof of payment of his purchase money, or on evidence entitling him to an order dispensing with its payment.

Purchaser entitled to deed.

The purchaser is entitled to a conveyance with ordinary covenants for title, and he cannot be compelled to accept a vesting order: see Slater v. Fisken, 1 Chy. Ch. 1; but he may, if he chooses, take a vesting order instead.

Evidence.

In Slater v. Fisken, supra, it was held that a purchaser, before taking a vesting order, was entitled to proof that the persons whose estates were sold were alive at the time of the sale; but in deducing title under a vesting order it has been held unnecessary to give this evidence because the order will be presumed to be rightly made until the contrary is shewn: Re Morse, 8 P. R. 475; and see Gunn v. Doble, 15 Gr. 655; Shaw v. Crawford, 4 Gnt. App. 371; McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76.

Notice of motion for vesting order, to whom to be given.

Upon a sale of lands by the Court, notice to the vendor's solicitor of the application for a vesting order by the purchaser is sufficient, and notice to infants interested was held to be unnecessary: Boulton v. Stegman, 1 Chy. Ch. 199; but see Thorne v. Chute, 2 Chy. Ch. 221. So also a vesting order has been granted ex parte where a party to the action was ordered to convey, but could not be found after due diligence: McNair v. Simpson, 1 Chy. Ch. 299; and see Lawrason v. Buckley, 3 Chy. Ch. 270, where the costs of the motion were ordered to be paid out of the purchase money. But where one of the plaintiffs had become the purchaser in a mortgage action, notice of a motion to dispense with payment into Court and for a vesting order was required to be given to the mortgagor who had appeared in the suit: McMaster v. Kempshall, 1 Chy. Ch. 329.

sec. 73.

Where a purchaser takes a vesting order he usually waives all objection to the title, and if possession has not previously been delivered to him, he assumes the responsibility of obtaining possession: Bell v. Harper, 6 P. R. 36; and where a purchaser after the lapse of a year from obtaining a vesting order, applied to be allowed compensation in respect of certain taxes which the vendor should have paid, the application was refused: Kincaid v. Kincaid, 6 P. R. 93. But so long as the purchase money remains in Court, an application by a purchaser who has inadvertently taken a vesting order without first requiring incumbrances to be paid off, to have the incumbrances discharged out of the purchase money, will be granted: Fleming v. McDougall, 8 P. R. 200; Turrill v. Turrill, 7 P. R. 142.

Purchaser taking v. o. waives objections to title, etc.

As regards infants, whose estates have been sold under the direction of the Court, the Court may order some person to execute the conveyance in the place of the infants: The Infants Act (R. S. O. c. 153), s. 14; and the Master in Ordinary or a Local Master may, in like manner, be ordered to execute a deed for adult parties who have been committed to gaol for contempt in refusing to execute the same, after the expiration of two calendar months from their being committed or detained under such process; see post, section 137; Ledyard v. Campbell, O. B. 26, fo. 719.

Infants.

Under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), ss. 6-11, the Court has also power to make vesting orders of real or personal property: and under secs. 14, and 15 (4), wherever the Court can under that Act make a vesting order, it may also appoint some person to execute a conveyance.

Trustee Act.

JUDGMENTS FOR ALIMONY.

Judgment for alimony may be registered.

73.—(1) An order or judgment for alimony may be registered in any registry office in Ontario, and the registration shall, so long as the order or judgment remains in force, bind the estate and interest which the defendant has in any land in the registry division in which the registration is made, and operate thereon in the same manner and with the same effect as the registration of a charge by the defendant of a life annuity on his land.

Registration of order.

Rev. Stat. c. 126.

(2) The order or judgment may also, on the application of the plaintiff, be registered as a charge against any lands of the defendant registered under The Land Titles Act. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 73.

How registered.

A judgment for alimony is registered by means of a certificate: see The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 124), s. 43; and an order for payment of interim alimony may in like manner be registered.

The charge created by the registration of a judgment or order for alimony, binds all the lands of the defendant in the registration division in which the registration is made. The judgment itself does not contain any clause creating a lien, nor does it specify any lands to be bound; the judgmsnt or order creates the charge, hut under the Registry Act, s. 34, it would now appear to be necessary, before the certificate of the judgment or order can be registered, that a statutory declaration should be delivsred to the Registrar specifying by local description the lands of ths defendant affected or hound by the judgment or order.

Sec. 74.

Statutory declaration required.

Enforcing charge.

The charge created hy the judgment or order may be enforced by a motion in the alimony action, where the defendant has made default in paying the alimony ordered to be paid: Abbott v. Abbott, 3 O. W. N. 683. Upon such a motion the Court may order the land bound by the judgment, or such part thereof as may be deemed necessary, to be sold and the purchase money to he applied in payment of the arrears of alimony, and ths alimony as it accrues. The order should provide for a sale free from ths wife's inchoate right of dower, and for an allowance to her of a sum in lieu thereof: Abbott v. Abbott, 3 O. W. N. 683. For form of order in such a case: see Forrester v. Forrester, D. B. 37, fo. 232; H. & L. Forms, No. 882.

Charge not affected by assignment.

The charge created hy a registered judgment under this section is not affected hy an assignment for the benefit of creditors subsequently made by the defendant, and the plaintiff is not obliged to rank pari passu with other creditors of the defendant under The Assignments and Preferences Act (R. S. O. c. 134), s. 14: Abraham v. Abraham, 19 Ont. 256; 18 Ont. App. 436; nor is the charge affected by the plaintiff recovering judgment in another Court for instalments of alimony in arrear: Lee v. Lee, 27 Ont. 193; and see Abbott v. Abbott, supra.

COSTS.

Costs.

74.—(1) Subject to the express provisions of any statute, the costs of and incidental to all proceedings shall be in the discretion of the Court or Judge, and the Court or Judge shall have full power to determine by whom and to what extent the costs shall be paid.

Right of trustee or mortgagee preserved.

(2) Nothing herein shall deprive a trustee, mortgagee or other person of any right to costs out of a particular estate or fund.

When costs to follow the event.

(3) Where an action or issue is tried by a jury, the costs shall follow the event, unless the Judge before whom the action or issue is tried in his discretion otherwise orders.

In proceedings before judicial officers.

(4) Costs of proceedings before judicial officers, unless otherwise disposed of, shall be in their discretion subject to appeal. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 74.

Hab. corp. proceedings.

Habeas corpus proceedings are within this section: Re Weatherall, 1 O. L. R. 542; so also motions to quash convictions under Ontario statutes: Rex v. Mancion, 8 O. L. R. 24.

Absence of express authority as to costs.

The mere absence of any clause conferring jurisdiction on the Court to award costs under a particular statute is not an "express provision of any statute" so as to amount to an express prohibition by the Legislature, and to deprive the Court of its discretion as to costs conferred by this section: Re Schmarr, 1902, 1 Ch. 326. Sec. 74.

The ancient doctrine that in matters of Common Law the Crown neither pays nor receives costs, has not been altered in England: Rex. v. Archbishop of Canterbury, 1902, 2 K. B. 503; 86 L. T. 450; but various statutory provisions have in Ontario made a change in this respect, so that it has been said that the rule is practically superseded: see Attorney-General v. Toronto General Trusts Corporation, 5 O. L. R. 607, and Rule 5 (2); but see Johnson v. The King, 1904, A. C. 817. Crown.

This section applies both to costs in the High Court Division and in the Appellate Division: Peoples' Loan, etc. v. Stanley, 4 O. L. R. 247. By C. RR. 1238, 1241, the jurisdiction to award costs given by the Jud. Act and Rules of 1897 was made to apply to proceedings in relation to the quashing of convictions or orders, but C. RR. 1238, 1241 have not been continued. Whether their omission has altered the law remains to be determined.

The section does not apply to costs incurred in a matter before the proceedings have actually come into Court: Re Brandreth's Trade-mark, 9 Ch. D. 618. Costs out of Court.

But, where upon a reference by consent, though not in a cause, the costs of the reference are left in the discretion of the arbitrator, the costs of negotiating and settling terms of the submission may be taxed as "costs of the reference:" Re Autothreptic, etc. Co. & Townsend & Co., 21 Q. B. D. 182.

"Any Statute."—Sect. 74 has the effect of preserving in force any special statutory provisions in force at the date of The Judicature Act, 1914, and probably also includes any statute which may thereafter be passed, relating to costs in particular cases. All such provisions in Ontario Acts have now been inserted in The Revised Statutes. Certain statutory provisions regarding costs formerly found in the Imperial Statutes, revised and consolidated in R. S. O. 1897, vol. 3, e.g., as to costs of contempt: see now ss. 137-139 post; of charging orders: see now s. 141 (4) post; of quo warranto proceedings: see now s. 149 post: of proceedings under The Trustee Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 70; of applications to apply dividends on stock for maintenance of infants: The Infants Act (R. S. O. c. 153) s. 21 (3); of proceedings as to lunatics and their estates: see The Lunacy Act (R. S. O. c. 68), s. 35; of applications for renewals of leases in case of absentee lessors: see The Landlord and Tenant Act (R. S. O. c. 155), s. 63 (6). It may here be noted that sec. 13 of R. S. O. (1897), c. 340, which gave the Court power to make orders as to costs in all applications under that Act, has in the present Revised Statutes (R. S. O. c. 153), s. 21 (3), been restricted to applications under sec. 21 of that Act. Statutes affecting costs.

The discretionary power is not taken away by an Act providing that a judgment in an action contemplated by the Act "shall carry costs to be taxed as between solicitor and client": Bostock v. Ramsay Urban, etc., 1900, 1 Q. B. 357, 2 Q. B. 616, but it is otherwise when the language is "shall be entitled to his full costs . . to be taxed as between solicitor and client:" Ing Kon v. Archibald, 17 O. L. R. 484; Webb v. Box, 19 O. L. R. 40.

By various Rules special provision is made as to costs in particular cases—where a County Court has no jurisdiction: see Rule 766; and Great Northern, etc., v. Inett, 2 Q. B. D. 284; Crowther v. Boult, 33 Costs under special Rules.

Sec. 74.

W. R. 150; on confession of defence: Rule 164: on discontinuance: Rule 321; on accepting money paid into Court in satisfaction: Rule 314; preliminary examinations of parties: Rule 654; by reason of a party not making admissions: Rule 671.

Generally.

Costs Generally of Proceedings in the Supreme Court.—The costs of proceedings in the respective branches of the Supreme Court are in the discretion of the Court or Judge before whom such proceedings come for hearing or determination: Holmes v. Bready, 18 P. R. 79; In re Schnarr, 1902, 1 Ch. 326.

Effect of sec. 74.

Where before the Act the Court had no power, original or statutory, to award costs, it has now power to do so: see Re Gonty & Manchester & S. Ry. Co., 1896, 2 Q. B. 439; Ex p. Hospital of St. Katherines, 17 Ch. D. 378; Re Lee v. Hemingway, 24 Ch. D. 669; see also Arscott v. Lilley, 14 Ont. App. 295; Re Knight's Trusts, 26 Ch. D. 82; Re Wood, 31 Ch. D. 607; Kingston v. Murphy, 11 P. R. 304; London County Council v. Churchwardens of West Ham., 1892, 2 Q. B. 173; Re Fisher, 1894, 1 Ch. 450. As to costs, in certiorari and prohibition proceedings: see Rex v. Woodhouse, 1906, 2 K. B. 501; 95 L. T. 399. Prior to the Jud. Act it would seem that the Court had not. (see The Queen v. Jones, 1894, 2 Q. B. 382); but it has now, power to award costs against a defendant in habeas corpus proceedings; Re Weatherall, 1 O. L. R. 542; and it has been held that, in a civil proceeding, where an Act gives jurisdiction to determine questions, but is silent as to costs, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to order a person wrongly putting it in motion to pay costs: Re Bombay Civil Fund Act, 40 Ch. D. 288. Even though not named as a party where it is shewn that he is the instigator and supporter of the action or proceeding: Re Sturmer & Beaverton, 25 O. L. R. 190, 566. So where costs were not asked for by a rule nisi, but were asked for at the bar, they were in the discretion of the Court, and might, nevertheless, be awarded, where the opposite party appears: Re Peck & Galt, 46 U. C. Q. B. 211; but where the opposite party does not appear the Court will not usually give costs if they have not been asked by the notice of motion. In England neither an order for an interpleader issue: Wicks v. Wood, 26 W. R. 680; Harmont v. Foster, 8 Q. B. D. 82, nor sending a case for trial to a County Court: Farmers v. May, 44 L. T. 148, removes the case from the jurisdiction of the High Court as to costs; but see Rules 645, 646.

Section 74 also repeals all former practice which laid down any special rule as to costs: The Friedberg, 10 P. D. 112.

Applies to all proceedings.

Section 74 applies not merely to costs at the trial, but also on motions: Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. 134; and where the Court is exercising statutory jurisdiction, as e.g., under an expropriation Act: Re Schnarr, 1902, 1 Ch. 326; but it only applies to proceedings in the Supreme Court of Ontario, and does not give a Judge jurisdiction over costs in matters where he acts under a statute merely as persona designata, and not by virtue of his office as Judge: Re Young, 14 P. R. 303; Re Pacquette, 11 P. R. 463; but the costs of such proceedings are now in the discretion of the Judge by virtue of The Judges Orders Enforcement Act (R. S. O. c. 79) s. 2. Section 74 applies to civil proceedings, but whether it applies also to proceedings in relation to the quashing of convictions or orders, whether they be affirmed or quashed in whole or in part, and whether it enables the Court or a Judge to award costs in other Crown cases where they are not otherwise by statute or Rule authorized so to do may perhaps be open to doubt as C. RR. 1238 and 1241 have not been continued: see London County Council v. West

Ham, 1892, 2 Q. B. 173; but this case was not followed: Rex v. Woodhouse, 1906, 2 K. B. 501; 95 L. T. 399; and see The Queen v. Jones, supra; or in cases where the Court has only a consultative jurisdiction, as upon a special case stated by an arbitrator: In re Knight & The Tabernacle Building Socy., 1892, 2 Q. B. 613. Sec. 74.

"Full Costs" referred to in the Imp. Copyright Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 45, s. 26, is held to mean no more than the usual costs taxable between party and party: Avery v. Wood, 1891, 3 Ch. 115; and that expression in an order or judgment is in England held to mean merely the ordinary party and party costs taxable according to the scale properly applicable: see Irwine v. Reddish, 5 B. & Ald. 796; Jamieson v. Trevelyan, 10 Ex. 748; but the words "full costs and expenses" are held to cover costs as between solicitor and client: Doe d. Hyde v. Manchester, 12 C. B. 474. The expression "full costs" was held in Ontario to mean costs according to the High Court scale: per Falconbridge, J., Marsh v. Burns, March, 1897, but see Ireland v. Pitcher, 11 P. R. 403. "Full costs."

Proceedings before Judicial Officers.—It has been held by Street, J., that it is not intended by s. 74 (4), that the discretion of the appellate tribunal should be substituted for that of the judicial officer whose decision is appealed from: Campbell v. Wheler, 17 P. R. 289; and that the Court will not interfere with the discretion exercised as to costs, unless the officer whose order is appealed from has proceeded upon some erroneous principle of law, or upon some misapprehension of the facts of the case: Ib.; see also Knickerbocker v. Katz, 16 P. R. 191. Jurisdiction of judicial officers as to costs.

The costs of proceedings before an Official Referee would seem to be within the provisions of s. 74 (4); but see Minister v. Apperley, 1902, 1 K. B. 643.

Notwithstanding sub-sec. (4), ex parte orders made by judicial officers are to be silent as to costs: Rule 658.

Costs where Court has no Jurisdiction.—Though the Court may have no jurisdiction to entertain the action or proceeding, it has been held that it may, nevertheless, make an order as to the costs thereof: Re Erb, 16 O. L. R. 594; Reg. v. Eli, 13 Ont. App. 526; see Sherk v. Evans, 22 Ont. App. 242, per Osler, J.A., at p. 245; Plant v. Gillies, 3 L. W. N. 921; Cote v. Halliday, 33 C. L. J. 159; 17 C. L. T. 53; Great Northern, etc. v. Inett, 2 Q. B. D. 284; Crowther v. Boult, 33 W. R. 150. In cases in the County Court or Division Court, those Courts have express jurisdiction to give costs in such circumstances: see The County Court Act (R. S. O. c. 59), s. 33, and Rule 766. Where Court has no jurisdiction over matter in litigation.

Costs at the Trial.—In actions tried without a jury the costs are subject to certain special exceptions and restrictions) in the discretion of the trial Judge, and without an order made in the exercise of such discretion, no costs will be taxable to any party: s. 74. Non-jury cases.

Where, in an action tried by a Judge without a jury, no order is made as to costs, none are recoverable by either party: Re Great Western Advertising Co. v. Rainer, 9 P. R. 494; Lewin v. Trimming, 1 Q. B. D. 230. An order for payment of costs simpliciter does not preclude an inquiry under Rule 649, as to the scale properly applicable: Re Forster, 18 P. R. 65; and it would seem that in such case where the Judge gives no directions disallowing a set-off of costs by defendant (such as is contemplated by Rule 649), the Taxing Officer has now power to allow such set-off: Rule 649; see formerly Truax v. Dixon, 13 P. R. 279.

In an action tried without a jury, judgment being given for plaintiff, on the claim and counter-claim, but for defendant against third parties with "such costs as defendant would be entitled to by law," it was held that the costs being in the discretion of the Judge, and no discretion being exercised in favour of defendant against the third parties, the defendant was not "entitled by law" to costs: Lewin v. Trimming, 21 Q. B. D. 230.

Jury cases.

In actions tried by a jury, the costs of the trial primâ facie must follow the event, but the Judge has a discretion subject to certain special exceptions and restrictions, to make a different order: s. 74 (3).

Where an action is tried before a Referee, he would appear to have no jurisdiction as to the costs of the action or reference, unless specially authorised to deal with them; even then he can give no judgment therefor, he can only report who should bear them: see s. 67 supra.

Where interlocutory costs have been ordered to be paid by either party, a subsequent dismissal of the action without costs, does not affect the order as to such interlocutory costs: Walter v. Bewicke, 90 L. T. 409.

Motions.

Costs on Motions.—The power as to costs is exercisable not merely at the trial but also on motions for judgment: Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. 134; 66 L. T. 575; and extends to costs to be dealt with on interlocutory proceedings before the trial, so that they may be directed to be borne by one party in any event: Vicary v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 168. See infra, pp. 251 et seq.

The dismissal of an action for want of prosecution without costs is within the discretion of the Judge, and there is no appeal without leave: Snelling v. Pulling, 29 Ch. D. 85; and see supra p. 129.

The Court has jurisdiction to grant prohibition with costs: Reg. v. JJ. of London, etc., 1894, 1 Q. B. 453; and also a certiorari: see Rex v. Woodhouse, 1906, 2 K. B. 501; 95 L. T. 399; but see Rules 622, 623.

Orders made ex parte are not to contain any direction as to costs: Rule 658.

Costs of examining judgment debtor, attaching debts, etc.

Costs of Proceedings after Judgment.—By C. R. 1139, the costs of the examination of a judgment debtor or other person liable to examination, and of any application for the attachment of debts, and of any proceedings arising from, or incidental to, such application, were expressly made in the discretion of the Court or a Judge.

That Rule has not been continued but probably no change has been made in the practice.

Prior to that Rule it was held in Ginty v. Rich, 7 P. R. 319, that an order for the payment of the costs of the debtor's examination could not be made on an application for that purpose, though it might perhaps be made by way of punishment, on an application to commit.

The costs of proceedings to examine the debtor may be allowed, though the examination does not actually take place: Popham v. Flynn, 15 P. R. 286.

Semble, the costs of the examination of the judgment debtor, and also of garnishee proceedings in which the execution creditor succeeds, where the creditor has not proceeded unreasonably, should be allowed him as against the debtor: see Arlington v. Conyngham, 1898, 2 Q. B. 492; 79 L. T. 238. Sec. 74.

Costs of Appeals.—Usually the costs of appeals follow the result of the appeal, but the Court has full discretion, and may make such order respecting them as it sees fit. Appeals.

In McNair v. Boyd, 14 P. R. 132, the C. A. allowed an appeal without costs, where the case was the first which had come before the Court as to the meaning of a new Rule about which there had been much difference of opinion.

Costs of Summary Proceedings.—Costs of habeas corpus proceedings in civil cases are in the discretion of the Court, and where a return has been made to the writ and the body produced, the Court may order the applicant to pay the expenses of complying with the writ: Re Weatherall, 1 O. L. R. 542. Summary proceedings.

Where the Court makes "no order as to costs," that is a refusal of costs to either party: McCune v. Botsford, 38 C. L. J. 606; In re Hodgkinson, 1895, 2 Ch. 190.

Costs where Judgment entered without Trial, or Motion.—Where judgment is entered without a trial, or motion for judgment, and therefore without any express directions as to costs, the scale of costs is determined by the Taxing Officer, under Rules 650, 651. Where judgment without a trial.

Scale of Costs.—In the case of actions brought in the Supreme Court, which might have been brought in an inferior Court, if no order is made by the Judge, Rule 649 applies and prescribes the scale upon which the costs are to be taxed; but whether the action is tried with, or without, a jury the Judge may give special directions as to the scale. It was said in Bennett v. White, 13 P. R. 152, that in exercising the Judge's discretion there was no better guide than the rule laid down by Rule 649, in the absence of special circumstances; but the Judge is not fettered in his discretion except by s. 74 (2). Scale of costs.

Where a plaintiff takes money out of Court under Rule 314, even though the amount be within the jurisdiction of an inferior Court, he is under that Rule, entitled to his full costs without any set off by the defendant; and a Judge has no jurisdiction under this Section to make any other order as to the costs: Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 5.

"Full costs," even where given by statute, do not include any more than the usual costs taxable between party and party: see Avery v. Wood, 1891, 3 Ch. 115; 65 L. T. 122; sed vide, Marsh v. Burns, supra, 241.

Disposal of Costs of Action on Motion in Chambers.—Though the discretion of the Court as to the costs of a contested action is usually exercised at the trial, or on motion for judgment, yet where the object of the action is obtained without a trial or motion for judgment, it is improper to bring the action to trial, or bring on motion for judgment, merely for the purpose of obtaining adjudication as to the costs, without first offering to have the question disposed of in Chambers: see Sivell v. Abraham, 8 Beav. Summary motion to dispose of costs.

Sec. 74.

598; Morgan v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., 1 H. & M. 78; O'Sullivan v. Cluxton, 26 Gr. 612; Webb v. McArthur, 3 Cby. Ch. 364; but if the opposite party refuses to consent to the disposition of the costs in that way, the action must be tried, or heard on motion for judgment. Hunter v. Strathroy, 18 P. R. 127; see also Sonnenschein v. Barnard, 57 L. T. 712; Blakley v. Ingram, 9 C. L. T. 143; Storr v. Maidstone, W. N. 1878, 219; Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. D. 77; Landed Estates Company v. Weeding, W. N. 1871, 148; Wilde v. Wilde, 4 De G. F. & J. 348; McLean v. Cross, 3 Chy. Ch. 432; sed vide Knickerbocker v. Ratz, 16 P. R. 193, where a contrary view is expressed; and the extra expense so occasioned will be considered in disposing of the costs, and in any event may be ordered to be borne by the party who has occasioned them: see Eastwood v. Henderson, 17 P. R. 578; East v. O'Connor, 2 O. L. R. 355.

At all events the plaintiff cannot compel the defendant to submit to a disposition of the question of costs in Chambers where the act alleged by the plaintiff to be a satisfaction of his claim is equivocal, and the defendant denies that the plaintiff had any cause of action: Hunter v. Strathroy, supra.

Where both plaintiff and defendant had sold their properties which were in question in the litigation, (an action to restrain interference with the flow of water) the Court, on a motion to dispose of the costs, refused to go into the pleadings and documentary evidence in order to form an opinion as to the merits; the Judge saying, "Where the merits, for any reason, cannot be determined, there ought not to be a pretended investigation of the merits for the purpose of awarding costs": McClellan v. Powassan Lumber Co., 6 O. W. N. 302.

Jurisdiction of Master in Chambers.

It was apparently doubted by Spragge, C.: McLean v. Cross, 3 Chy. Ch. at p. 433, whether the former Referee in Chambers had jurisdiction to entertain such applications; and as to whether the Master in Chambers has such jurisdiction has been doubted: see per Meredith, J., Knickerbocker v. Ratz, 16 P. R. at p. 39, and see Jones v. Miller, 16 P. R. 92; King v. Federal Bank, 17 P. R. 65; Davis v. Winn, 22 O. L. R. 111.

He certainly cannot entertain jurisdiction on such a question without the consent of the parties, and, if he does, his order is appealable notwithstanding Jud. Act, s. 24; Davis v. Winn, supra.

Disposal of costs of action on interlocutory motion.

Sometimes in such cases where parties consent, an interlocutory motion in Court is treated as a trial of the action, and the costs are then disposed of: Barber v. Penley, 68 L. T. 662; and where the parties agree to an order being made in Chambers to carry out a settlement, the plaintiff cannot recover the costs of moving in Court: Allen v. Gakey, 62 L. T. 724. Sed quære, see Craig v. Craig, 1 Ch. Ch. 41.

Where there is no object in proceeding with the action except to determine the question of the costs of it, owing to the loss or destruction of the subject matter, or other circumstances occurring after the commencement of the action, the plaintiff must nevertheless proceed either by trial, or motion for judgment, or, by consent, by motion in Chambers, to have the question of costs disposed of, otherwise the defendant may apply to dismiss for want of prosecution: Elliott v. Gardner, 8 P. R. 409; see also Hogaboom v. Gillies, 16 P. R. 402.

The Crown.

The Crown.—Formerly the rule was that the Crown, when a party to civil proceedings, was neither ordered to pay nor receive costs: see Reg. v. Mainwaring, 5 O. S. 670; Gibson v. Church, 1 Cby. Ch. 69; United States v. Denison, 2 Cby. Ch. 263; Johnson v. The King, 1904, A. C. 817; 91 L. T. 234; but now in proceedings by petition of right the costs are in the discretion of the Court: Rule 748; as also in proceedings on a special case: see Attorney-General v. Toronto General Trusts Corpn., 5 O. L. R. 607; but in proceedings of a strictly common law character it would seem that the old rule still prevails: Rex v. Archbishop of Canterbury, 1902, 2 K. B. 503; 86 L. T. 450, unless the case is governed by some statute, or there are exceptional circumstances justifying a departure from the rule: Johnson v. The King, 1904, A. C. 817; 91 L. T. 234. Sec. 74.

Suitors in Person.—As a rule a suitor, not being a solicitor, suing or defending in person, is not entitled to solicitor's costs, but, at most, to his actual disbursements, and a reasonable allowance for loss of time; see Dax's M. O. 31; where a suitor in person successfully opposed an appeal to the Divisional Court he was allowed his disbursements, and "a moderate amount for his time and trouble on the argument" to be set off against the debt due by him to the plaintiff in the action: Miller v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 499; but where a duly qualified solicitor sues or defends in person, and he is awarded costs, he is, unless acting in a fiduciary character, entitled to make and recover the same charges as when acting for another: Lush Pr., 775, 896; except for taking instructions: Dax's M. O. 31; and see Gupy v. Brown, L. R. 1 P. C. 411; and if he is also a barrister, and also acts as counsel he cannot recover his counsel fee: Clarke v. Creighton, 15 P. R. 105; but if his partner acts as counsel he may tax his counsel fee, or such part thereof as the suitor has no interest in: Henderson v. Comer, 3 U. C. L. J. 29; Johnston v. Ryckman, 7 O. L. R. 511; and even when, being a co-trustee with others, he acts for himself and co-trustees as solicitor and counsel, he may, if awarded costs, tax against the opposite party full costs, including instructions and counsel fees; Strachan v. Ruttan, 15 P. R. 109; ordinarily, a solicitor, trustee, or mortgagee, when acting in person for himself alone is only entitled to costs out of pocket, either as against the trust or mortgaged estate, or his cestui que trust, or mortgagor, as the case may be, unless expressly empowered to charge for his professional services as against the trust estate, or mortgagor: see note to Rule 410, infra. Costs of suitors in person.

Suitors in a Fiduciary Capacity.—A trustee, or liquidator, or other person in a fiduciary capacity, suing, or defending, in his own name, ordinarily becomes liable, if he fails, to be ordered personally to pay costs to the opposite party: Macdonald v. Balfour, 20 Ont. App. 404; Ex p. Brown, 17 Q. B. D. 488; Smith v. Williamson, 13 P. R. 126; G. W. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 13 Gr. 355; and where a liquidator of a company intervened, and obtained leave to defend an action brought against the company, he was held to be personally liable to the plaintiff for costs: Boyd v. Dominion Cold Storage Co., 17 P. R. 468. But where an action is brought by a liquidator of a company in the name of the company, and the liquidator is not personally a party, he cannot be ordered to pay the costs of the action: Ontario Forge & B. Co. v. The Tomel Cycle Co., 17 P. R. 156; and a liquidator who bonâ fide contested a claim was held to be not personally liable for costs, though he failed in the litigation: Re Bollon, 1895, 1 Ch. 333, overruling Re Staffordshire Gas Co., 1893, 3 Ch. 523. Trustees, &c.

Sec. 74.

Executors were given costs of opposing an unsuccessful appeal, out of the estate, in the event of their not being able to make them out of the appellant: Re Cassie, 17 P. R. 402.

Executors who, in a probate action, had, without justification, contested the validity of a codicil, were ordered to pay the costs so occasioned personally: Re Speke, Speke v. Deakin, 109 L. T. 719.

An administrator is entitled to his costs of an administration action (which may, however, be given in the form of a commission under Rule 653), even though the action has been caused by a claim by him for the allowance of payments which are disallowed in the action, provided the claim is made under an honest mistake, and is neither fraudulent nor monstrous: Re Jones, 1892, 2 Ch. 190; but see Re Skinner, Cooper v. Skinner, 1904, 1 Ch. 289.

Where in an action between a trustee and his cestui que trust the Court makes "no order as to the costs," such adjudication is final, and the trustee cannot afterwards retain his costs of the proceedings out of the trust estate: Re Hodgkinson, 1895, 2 Ch. 190; 72 L. T. 617. And when on an appeal on the merits the appellate Court has refused to make an order for the payment of the costs of a trustee or executor out of the estate or fund in litigation, it is not competent for the Court of first instance thereafter to make any such order: Purcell v. Bernin, 16 P. R. 301.

Indemnity out of trust estate.

A person properly suing or defending in a fiduciary capacity, is usually entitled to indemnity for his costs out of the trust estate. But a person occupying a fiduciary position, who is improperly put to costs, has no right to indemnity out of the trust estate unless the proceeding was for the benefit or protection of the estate, e.g., a receiver sued for misfeasance and succeeding in the action, which is dismissed with costs, is not, in the event of being unable to recover the costs from the plaintiff, entitled to payment thereof out of the estate of which he is receiver: Re Dunn, 116 L. T. Jour. 366; neither can he recover such costs from his cestuis que trustent, unless they have expressly agreed to indemnify him: Johnston v. Dulmage, 30 Ont. 233; and an executor bringing an unsuccessful action to recover a sum of money alleged to be due to the testator's estate, is not entitled to resort to the specifically devised realty for payment of his costs, even though the personal estate is exhausted: In re Champagne, 7 O. L. R. 537. And where a defendant is sued in a fiduciary character, and judgment is given against him with costs, the plaintiff cannot deduct such costs from moneys in his hands to which the defendant is entitled in his fiduciary character, even though the defendant may have a beneficial interest in a share of the fund: Phillips v. Howell, 1901, 2 Ch. 773; 85 L. T. 777.

A trustee of a settlement which was set aside at the instance of creditors of the settlor was, nevertheless, held entitled to his costs out of the settled estate, though he had appeared and endeavoured to defend the settlement and had failed: Ideal Bedding Co. v. Holland, 1907, 2 Ch. 157; 96 L. T. 774; sed vide, Dutton v. Thompson, 23 Ch. D. 278.

Receivers, and liquidators.

Liquidators and Receivers.—A receiver is usually ordered to be indemnified against costs out of the assets which come to his hands. As a rule he will not be ordered to pay costs personally unless he has taken an active part as a litigant, in the proceedings, in which case he may be ordered personally to pay the costs of the adverse party: see Re Tweddle, 1910, 2 K. B. 67, 697; 103 L. T. 257; Re Williams, 1913, 2 K. B. 88. Where proceedings are taken by, or against, a receiver in his own name whether as plaintiff, or defendant, he should take the precaution to obtain indemnity from those beneficially interested before embarking in the litigation. Where an action is brought against a liquidator or receiver personally, for alleged misconduct, it may be impossible to obtain indemnity, and though the action fail, he may have to bear his own costs if he cannot recover them from the opposite party: see Re Dunn, supra, p. 246. Sec. 74.

Where a liquidator of a company brought an unsuccessful suit and was ordered to pay the defendant's costs, it was held that the defendant was entitled to priority over the liquidator's own solicitors for payment of such costs out of the assets in the liquidators' hands: In re Pacific Coast Syndicate, 1913, 2 Ch. 26.

Administration Actions.—Where the costs of a trustee, or personal representative, in an administration action are ordered to be paid out of the estate in question, which proves deficient, the trustee, or personal representative is entitled to be paid his costs in priority to those of the other parties, even though the order be silent on that point: Re Griffith, 1904, 1 Ch. 807; 90 L. T. 639. Costs of administration actions.

Where a person suing or sued in a fiduciary character is ordered to pay costs, such order is appealable; but where he is refused costs, it was held by Wright, J., that the order is discretionary, and not appealable: In re Roynes Park Golf Club, 1899, 1 Q. B. 961; unless, perhaps, where the Judge had proceeded on some wrong principle. Order when appealable.

Pecuniary legatees, defendants in an action in which the validity of a will was in question, who put in formal defences submitting their rights to the protection of the Court, were held to be not entitled to costs out of the estate, nor from the plaintiff who had failed in having the will declared invalid: Logon v. Herring, 19 P. R. 168.

A creditor, or legatee, bringing an action for administration, though not standing in a fiduciary position, is, in case of a deficiency of assets, entitled to costs as between solicitor and client out of the estate: Re New Zealand M. Ry. Co., 1901, 2 Ch. 357; 84 L. T. 852.

The rule that a trustee's costs are payable as between solicitor and client is not confined to cases where he is brought into Court against his will: Blakeley v. Ingram, 9 C. L. T. 143. Solicitor and client costs.

Trustees and executors are, in litigating with third persons, in the same position in regard to their right to, and liability for, costs, as parties litigating in their own right: Smith v. Williamson, 13 P. R. 126; G. W. Ry. v. Jones, 15 Gr. 335; Macdonald v. Balfour, 20 Ont. App. 404. They are not as against the defendant entitled to costs as between solicitor and client, where the action is not brought in respect of the trust estate: Holman v. Knox, 25 O. L. R. 588; 29 O. L. R. 648. As to the right of the trustees, etc., to be recouped out of the trust estate: see supra, pp. 245, 246.

Where trustees unreasonably delay making a division of the trust estate in accordance with the trust, they may be ordered to pay the costs of an application to compel them to distribute it: Re Ruddock, Newberry v. Monsfield, 102 L. T. 89. Trustees guilty of default.

Although the costs of an administration action properly instituted are usually ordered to be paid out of the estate generally, it may sometimes happen that the parties interested in the realty and personalty may be different persons, and in such a case the costs of administration accounts and inquiries exclusively relating to the realty When costs ordered out of particular fund.

Sec. 74.

may be ordered to be paid out of the renity: see Re Betts, Doughty v. Walker, 1907, 2 Ch. 149; 96 L. T. 875.

As to costs in administration actions: see notes to Rules 608 and 633.

Mortgagees.

Mortgagees.—A mortgagee is entitled, as by contract, to all costs properly incurred in enforcing his security, and such costs are not in the discretion of the Court: Re Rio Grande, etc., S. S. Co., 5 Ch. D. 282; and see note to Rule 474. See also notes to Jud. Act, s. 24, and see 29 Sol. Jour. 178, 199; but where he is a solicitor he cannot recover profit costs against the mortgagor or those claiming under him: Eyre v. Wynn-Mackenzie, 69 L. T. 822; and see notes to Rule 410, infra.

A mortgagee making a wrongful claim and refusing to be redeemed, and thus occasioning the litigation, may be ordered to pay costs: Squire v. Pordoe, 66 L. T. 243. See also Queen's College v. Claxton, 25 Ont. 282; and, so also, if he is sued for a surplus in his hands after exercising a power of sale in his mortgage, if a balance is found against him he is liable to pay the costs of the action: Boulton v. Rowland, 4 Ont. 720; sed vide Heath v. Chinn, infra.

A mortgagee is not disentitled to costs merely because he has bona fide claimed more than is actually found due to him: Cotterell v. Stratton, L. R. 8 Chy. 295; Doigneau v. Dogenois, 5 O. L. R. 265; nor because he has set up a right to consolidate securities which is disallowed: Stork v. Reid, 26 Ont. 257, though he may be disallowed costs occasioned by claims on which he failed: Block v. Hiebert, 38 S. C. R. 457, or may be ordered to pay costs occasioned by his unfounded claims; though allowed the costs of an ordinary redemption action: Heath v. Chinn, 98 L. T. 855; and see supra.

Debenture holder.

An action by a debenture holder to enforce payment of his debentures stands on the same footing as a mortgage action, and the plaintiff is not, even as against his co-debenture holders, who get the benefit of the action, entitled to costs as between solicitor and client: In re Queen's Hotel, 1900, 1 Ch. 792; except, perhaps, in the case of a deficient fund: see Re New Zealand M. Ry., 1901, 2 Ch. 357, and Mortgage Insurance Co. v. Canadian A. C. & C. Co., 1901, 2 Ch. 377.

General discretion where equitable relief granted.

Equitable Relief.—In cases unaffected by s. 74 (2) where equitable relief is sought, the costs are in the discretion of the Judge, without any restriction. It would be impossible to indicate how that discretion is exercised in all cases, but although there are some cases in which a party, though successful, may be ordered to pay costs, the general rule is that, in the absence of any misconduct on the part of the successful party, he is usually awarded his costs as against the opposite unsuccessful party: see Downey v. Roof, 6 P. R. 89.

In Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542, where costs of an injunction had been reserved till the trial, but counsel had then omitted to ask for them, the omission was supplied on subsequent motion under Rule 521; but such a motion must be made in Court to the Judge who tried the action, the Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction: Jones v. Miller, 16 P. R. 42.

Discretion limited in certain cases.

Where the action is for relief of an equitable nature, s. 74 limits the discretion of the Judge in his disposition of the costs of the action in certain cases, so that he cannot deprive a trustee, or mortgagee, or other person, of any right to costs out of a particular estate or fund to which he would be entitled according to the rules acted upon before the Ont. Jud. Act, 1881, in Courts of Equity. Where, therefore, the disposition of costs made by a Judge is not in accordance with those rules, the order as to costs is appealable. Those rules affect not only the right to payment out of a particular fund, but also the quantum of costs to be allowed, e.g., ordinary suitors are only entitled to costs as between party and party, but according to the rules in question, a suitor made a party in a fiduciary capacity and awarded costs, is in some cases entitled to them "as between solicitor and client," and this exception as to the quantum of costs in some cases, applies to creditors or legatees and others who have not any fiduciary character, but who are acting not only for themselves but on behalf of others. Sec. 74.

A trustee, or other person in a fiduciary position, guilty of no misconduct, who is a party to an action, either as plaintiff or defendant, in his fiduciary character, is usually entitled to his costs either against the opposite party, or out of the trust estate, if it is before the Court in the litigation: Crawford v. Broddy, 18 P. R. 233. Where a settlement is set aside, see as to the trustees' costs, Dutton v. Thompson, 23 Ch. D. 278, in note to Jud. Act, s. 24, supra, p. 113. Trustees who have been guilty of impropriety of conduct may be deprived of costs in the discretion of the Court: Re Hoskin's Trusts, 6 Ch. D. 281; Turner v. Hancock, 20 Ch. D. 303; Re Cabburn, Goge v. Rutlond, 46 L. T. 848; W. N. 1882, 92; Re Radcliffe, Pearce v. Radcliffe, 44 L. T. 96; Re Hawkins, 16 P. R. 136; or may be ordered to pay costs: Re Chapman, 72 L. T. 66; Re Skinner, Cooper v. Skinner, 1904, 1 Ch. 289; but such an order is appealable, as the costs are not in the discretion of the Court if there was no misconduct: Re Pugh, Lewis v. Pritchard, 57 L. T. 858; In re Raynes Park Golf Club, 1899, 1 Q. B. 961. Where cestuis que trustent were allowed their costs as against a co-defendant, it was held on appeal that as they were improperly made parties, their costs were not in the discretion of the Court, and were disallowed: Re Cooper, Cooper v. Vesey, 20 Ch. D. 611; 47 L. T. 89. Costs out of estate.

The exception in section 74 (2) applies not only to persons in a fiduciary position, but to "other persons" who, according to the rules of Courts of Equity above referred to, were entitled to be paid their costs out of any estate or fund in question; but this does not apply in favour of persons named as executors in a will unsuccessfully attempted to be established: see Purcell v. Bergin, 16 P. R. 301; nor to persons unsuccessfully claiming as next of kin against a deceased person's estate: Lomb v. Cleveland, 19 S. C. R. 78. Persons suing for benefit of others. Unsuccessful trustees.

Where a creditor, legatee, or personal representative, takes proceedings for the administration of a deceased person's estate, he is entitled to costs out of the estate, unless there are special grounds for depriving him of them, and this rule is preserved by section 74, and as to such costs, controls the discretion of the Court; Farrow v. Austin, 18 Ch. D. 58; followed as to the costs of residuary legatees in Re Woodhall, Urbutt v. Hewson, 2 Ont. 456; see also Croggan v. Allen, 22 Ch. D. 651; Johnstone v. Cox, 19 Ch. D. 17; Turner v. Hancock, 20 Ch. D. 303; Chennell, 8 Ch. D. 492; Re McClellon, 29 Ch. D. 495; Sandford v. Irter, 16 Oat. App. 565; and Bew v. Bew, 1899, 2 Ch. 467; 81 L. T. 464; Re New Zealand M. Ry. Co., 1901, 2 Ch. 357; 84 L. T. 852.

Where in an action against a trustee the Judge declared that "he did not see fit to make any order as to the costs of the action," this was held to be a declaration that the trustee was not entitled to his costs, and had no right to retain them out of the estates Re Hodgson, 1895, 2 Ch. 190. Effect of "no order as to costs."

Sec. 74.

Costs of a hostile action against a trustee seeking to charge him with costs on account of misconduct were not within the old rule of Chancery, that the plaintiff in an administration suit is entitled primâ facie to costs out of the fund. Such costs are in the discretion of the Court and therefore an order as to them is not appealable without leave: Williams v. Jones, 3 Ch. D. 120.

An order allowing a trustee costs of some other proceedings as against his trust estate is appealable without leave: In re Beddoe, 1893, 1 Ch. 547; 88 L. T. 595.

Where an action to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance by a judgment debtor failed, and the grantee and debtor appeared by the same solicitor, and the action was dismissed with costs those of the debtor to be set off pro tanto against the judgment of the plaintiff against him, it was held that one-third of the total costs taxed should be so set off: Zaratz v. Dodge, 17 P. R. 295, following In re Colquhoun, 5 D. M. & G. 35, and Clark v. Virgo, 17 P. R. 280; Beaumont v. Senior, 1903, 1 K. B. 282, infra, p. 259.

Married women.

Married Woman.—A married woman bringing an unsuccessful action, on a motion, may be ordered to pay the costs personally: Morris v. Freeman, 3 P. D. 351, followed by Boyd, C., Barker v. Westover, 31 May, 1882, and see Olway v. Olway, 13 P. D. 142; Cox v. Bennett, 1891, 1 Ch. 617; 64 L. T. 380; or they may be ordered to be paid out of her separate property notwithstanding a restraint against anticipation: Pawley v. Pawley, 1905, 1 Ch. 593; 92 L. T. 457; Re Godfrey, 72 L. T. 8.

It may be noted, that, notwithstanding The Married Women's Property Act, a married woman is still a person who is not sui juris, and is incapable of consenting to a judgment in personam: Re Hamilton v. Parry, 24 O. L. R. 38.

Next friend.

Next Friend.—In general the next friend of an infant is in the same position as any other litigant and receives and pays costs personally, as between himself and the opposite party. Where an infant by his next friend brings an unsuccessful action, the latter may be personally ordered to pay the opposite party's costs, but such order may be made without prejudice to any claim he may have to be indemnified out of the infant's estate: Smith v. Mason, 17 P. R. 444.

And the next friend has a right to an indemnity for costs he incurs or is ordered to pay out of the infant's estate where there has been a reasonable ground for bringing the action or taking the proceedings, even though they have proved unsuccessful: Steeden v. Walden, 1910, 2 Ch. 393; 103 L. T. 135.

Nominal plaintiff.

Nominal Plaintiff.—Where an action or other proceeding was brought or promoted by any person in the name of some other person who was not the real litigant, the Court, on a summary application, may order the real litigant to pay the costs of the opposite party: Re Sturmer & Beaverton, 25 O. L. R. 190, 566, and the real instigator of the proceedings may be also liable to an action: Bradlaugh v. Newdigate, 11 Q. B. D. 31. Persons having a common interest with the plaintiff, may assist him to maintain his action, but a trade union has been held to have no common interest entitling it to maintain a suit brought by one of its officers for libel of him in his official capacity: Orom v. Hutt, 1913, 1 Ch. 259.

The Official Guardian ad litem.—The costs of the Official Guardian ad litem are usually ordered to be paid, no matter what may be the result of the litigation, either out of the estate or fund, if any, in question, or by the plaintiff personally, with power to add them to his own costs. Where the action has been occasioned by the personal misconduct of an infant, for whom the Official Guardian ad litem appears, the infant may be ordered to pay personally the plaintiff's costs, including those paid by him to the Official Guardian ad litem: Lipsett v. Perdue, 18 Ont. 575; Woolf v. Woolf, 1899, 1 Ch. 343; 79 L. T. 725; Westgate v. Westgate, 11 P. R. 62. Sec. 76. Official Guardian.

In England the costs of the official solicitor, when appointed guardian ad litem, if no special directions are given, are taxable as between party and party, but the Court may allow them as between solicitor and client, and semble, the Official Guardian ad litem, may obtain a special direction for taxation of his costs as between solicitor and client, even where he appears for an infant defendant sued for tort, and such costs may be ordered to be paid by the plaintiff and added to his own: see Eady v. Elsdon, 1901, 2 K. B. 460; 84 L. T. 615, and Rule 655.

Discretion of Court or Judge. Extent of.—Where the right to exercise a discretion as to the costs of an action or proceeding exists, no hard and fast rules can be laid down as to the manner of exercising it: The Friedberg, 10 P. D. 112; Badische Anilin, etc. v. Levinstein, 29 Ch. D. 366. The discretion extends to persons who are not parties, but who have actively promoted or supported the litigation: see Re Sturmer & Beaverton, supra, p. 250. Discretion of Court.

The Judge at a trial has the same discretion as to the costs in actions tried by a jury as in those tried without a jury.

The recommendation of the jury that each party should pay his own costs was not considered; and affidavits by some of the jurymen that they would not have acquiesced in a verdict for defendant if they had supposed the result would be to throw all the costs on the plaintiff, were held inadmissible: Forquhar v. Robertson, 13 P. R. 156; Weaver v. Sawyer, 16 Ont. App. 422. Recommendation of jury.

Some of the cases decided under the former Rules (repealed in 1893) may still be usefully consulted as shewing circumstances which were formerly considered "good cause" for making the costs not follow the event, and may now furnish the Judge who tries the case with reasons for similarly disposing of the costs in the exercise of his discretion. See H. & L. Jud. Act, 1st ed., pp. 897, 898; 2nd ed., pp. 1259, 1260.

As to the power of the Judge at the trial to direct a set-off without regard to any claim of lien on the part of the solicitors: see Blumenthiel v. Edwards, 11 O. L. R. 30, in notes to Rule 116, post, and in notes to Rule 666.

The discretion is a judicial one, and it has been said that a plaintiff who successfully enforces a substantial legal right, and in no way misconducts himself, may not be deprived of costs, but is entitled to them as of right: Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 501; and see Bell v. Wilson, 19 P. R. 167; but see the remarks of Bowen, L.J., in Young v. Thomas, 40 W. R. 468, referring to N. London Ry. Co. v. G. N. Ry. Co., 1 Q. B. D. 30; and see also Hayward v. E. London W. Works, 28 Ch. D. 46; The Condor, 4 P. D. 120; The Monkseaton, 14 P. D. 51; Upmann v. Forester, 24 Ch. D. 231; Goodhart v. Hyett, 25 Ch. D. 182; Wittmann v. Oppenheim, 27 Ch. D. 260; 54 L. J. Chy. 56; Re Patullo v. Orongo- Discretion is judicial. How exercised.

Sec. 74.

ville, 31 Ont. 192; Anglo-Canadian M. P. Assn. v. Somerville, 19 P. R. 113; but where the plaintiff is found to have acted in a tricky and unfair manner towards the defendant: Lever v. Masbro' Equitable Society, 105 L. T. 948; 106 L. T. 472; or recovers only nominal damages, or a very trifling part of his claim, he is not entitled to costs as of right: Florence v. Mallinson, 65 L. T. 354; and see American Tobacco Co. v. Guest, 1892, 1 Ch. 630; and he may be ordered to pay the defendant's costs (even where the case is tried by a jury); Harris v. Petherick, 4 Q. B. D. 611; and Forget v. Ostigny, 1895, A. C. 318; Fielden v. Cox, 120 L. T. Jour. 521; and Nicolos v. Atkinson, 25 T. L. R. 568; but if the defendant after notice has resisted the plaintiff's claim, even although only nominal damages are recovered against him he may be ordered to pay costs: Overend v. Burrow, 19 O. L. R. 642.

Where a plaintiff is only partially successful he may be given only an aliquot part of his costs proportioned to his success: see Coats v. Herefordshire, 1909, 2 Ch. 579.

Costs in partnership action.

In particular classes of cases, where by the practice before the Jud. Act certain rules have been developed as the just mode of disposing of costs, in such cases the discretion of the Court will probably be exercised in accordance with such rules, for example, as to the costs in partnership cases: Chapman v. Newell, 14 P. R. 208; Ross v. White, 71 L. T. 277; 1894, 3 Ch. 326; but see Downey v. Roof, 6 P. R. 89.

Joint tort feasors.

As to the severability of costs in actions against joint tort feasors: see Birmingham & M. Motor Omnibus Co. v. London & N. W. Ry., 1913, 3 K. B. 850; 110 L. T. 64; Adam S. S. Co. v. London Ass'ce Co., 137 L. T. Jour. 342.

Third parties.

As to the case of "third parties": see Blore v. Ashby, 42 Ch. D. 682; 38 W. R. 141, and notes to Rule 169.

Delegation of discretion.

A Judge has no power to delegate his discretion to the Taxing Officer: Lombton v. Parkinson, 35 W. R. 545.

Action brought without notice.

The fact that the action was brought without first making an application to the defendant for the relief sought, was not considered sufficient to deprive plaintiff of costs: Goodhart v. Hyett, 25 Ch. D. 182; Wittmon v. Oppenheim, 27 Ch. D. 260; Ruskin v. Robinson, 2 T. L. R. 18; but see Holt v. Smith, 3 T. L. R. 329.

For the effect on costs of a refusal of a reasonable sum tendered before suit: see The William Symington, 10 P. D. 1.

Trade mark.

In an action for infringement of trademark, an offer of full compliance with the plaintiff's demands was made after action commenced, but, notwithstanding this, a motion for injunction was brought on. The motion was held not unnecessary, the compromise being insufficient, and the plaintiff was held entitled to costs: Fenessy v. Day & Martin, 55 L. T. 161; see also Knickerbocker v. Ratz, 16 P. R. 30, 191; Trotter v. Macleon, 13 Ch. D. 574; Anglo-Canadian M. P. Assocn. v. Winnifrith, 15 Ont. 164; but where an action for infringement of trademark was brought against an innocent retail dealer without any previous notice, the Court, though granting an injunction, refused to order the defendant to pay costs: American Tobacco Co. v. Guest, 1892, 1 Ch. 630; 66 L. T. 257; and an action for infringement was dismissed, but without costs, because it appeared that the defendants had adopted their design with the view of acquiring the benefit of the market which the plaintiffs had developed: Kerstein v. Cohen, 11 O. L. R. 450; 13 O. L. R. 144; 39 S. C. R. 286.

Nominal damages.

A Judge before whom a second trial is held, has power (subject to any restriction contained in the order granting the new trial) to order a plaintiff who recovers a nominal sum to pay the costs of both trials, even where the action is tried with a jury: Harris v. Petherick, 4 Q. B. D. 611; see Fane v. Fane, 13 Ch. D. 228; Florence v. Mallinson, 65 L. T. 354; and where the costs of the former trial were "ordered to abide the result" of a new trial, and at the new trial the jury only gave the plaintiff nominal damages, and no order was made as to costs, it was held that he was not entitled to the costs of the former trial; the result in such a case means the result as to costs: Brotherton v. Metropolitan Dist. Ry., 1894, 1 Q. B. 666; sed vide Koosen v. Rose, infra, p. 258. Sec. 74. "Costs to abide result."

In an action of slander, where the plaintiff only recovered $1 damages the Court refused to interfere so as to deprive the plaintiff of costs, his conduct not having been reprehensible, and the smallness of the damages being due to the defendant's condition at the time the defamatory words were spoken: Bell v. Wilson, 19 P. R. 167. Slander.

Successful Defendant.—Where a defendant succeeds generally he may have the costs of some of his defences on which he has not succeeded; but where he has raised a distinct issue and failed he ought not to have the costs of that issue, but should be ordered to pay them: Blank v. Footman, 39 Ch. D. 678; Reinhart v. Mentasti, 42 Ch. D. 690. Successful defendant.

Where plaintiff recovered no more than a sum paid into Court, with defence denying the negligence on which the action was based, it was held that, though the defendant was entitled to the general costs of the action, there was power in the discretion of the Court to give the plaintiff costs of the issue of negligence on which he had succeeded: Dunn v. S. E. & Chatham Ry. Co., 1903, 1 K. B. 358; Hubback v. British North Borneo Co., 91 L. T. 672.

Where a plaintiff wholly fails there is no power to order the defendant to pay the costs: Vipond v. Sisco, 29 O. L. R. 200; but he may be refused his costs, even though the action be tried with a jury: Rogers v. Kidd, 13 O. L. R. 396 (an action for slander); but such discretion should not be exercised arbitrarily: Ib. Where the conduct of a defendant who had partly succeeded had been harsh and unreasonable: Hessey v. Quinn, 20 O. L. R. 442; or unmeritorious: McMurray v. E. Missouri, 21 O. L. R. 46, that was considered a sufficient reason for refusing the defendant costs; and see Kerstein v. Cohen, supra, p. 252.

As to the costs of a guilty wife in an action for alimony: see Townson v. Townson, 78 L. T. 54.

A successful defendant is primâ facie entitled to costs, and it is not a proper exercise of discretion as to costs to deprive him of costs because he has done some act which, although a fraud on the public, is not in any way connected with the issue between himself and the plaintiffs: King v. Gillard, 1905, 2 Ch. D. 7; 92 L. T. 605; and see Civil Service Co-operative Soc. v. Gen. Steam Navigation Co., 1903, 2 K. B. 756; 89 L. T. 429; or because he has succeeded on the defence of the Statute of Limitations: Elms v. Hedges, 95 L. T. 145. If a successful defendant is deprived of costs, where no material exists for the exercise of the Judge's discretion, the order as to costs is appealable: Civil Service Co-operative Soc. v. Gen. Steam Navigation Co., supra; but it is to be noted that in Re Rotch, 127 L. T. Jour. 617, it was said that the statements in King v. Gillard, supra, that there is no judicial discretion to deprive a successful defendant of his costs are obiter and contrary to the prior decision of the Court of Appeal in Estcourt v. Estcourt Hop Essence Co., L. R. 10 Chy. App. 276; 32 L. T. 80. Successful defendant.

Sec. 74.

It was for some time doubtful whether, where the plaintiff fails, the defendant could be ordered to pay the whole costs: see Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. D. 76; Foster v. G. W. Ry., 8 Q. B. D. 25, 515; Butcher v. Pooler, 24 Ch. D. 273; Lambton v. Parkinson, 35 W. R. 545; Mitchell v. Vandusen, 14 Ont. App. 517; Forget v. Ostigny, 1895, A. C. 318; 72 L. T. 399; but it would now seem to be settled that he cannot be so ordered, unless the plaintiff was entitled to bring the action, and it has failed merely by reason of circumstances subsequently occurring: Fleming v. Toronto, 19 Ont. App. 318; Andrew v. Grove, 1902, 1 K. B. 625.

Thus a defendant as to whom the action is dismissed cannot (except as above mentioned), properly be ordered to pay the plaintiff's costs: Wills v. Carman, 14 Ont. App. 656, confirming Mitchell v. Vandusen, 14 Ont. App. 517, where the question of the power to make a successful party pay costs was also raised, but was not necessary to the decision: see also McDermid v. McDermid, 15 Ont. App. 287; but he has been ordered to pay the costs of a co-defendant, though there was no issue between them: Church v. Fuller, 3 Ont. 417.

Partial success.

When a defendant is only partially successful, and is deprived of costs, the order as to costs is not appealable: Leckhampton Quarries Co. v. Ballinger, 93 L. T. 93: Where a defendant is wrongly made a party, but nevertheless chooses to take an active part in the proceedings when he might have stood aside, he was held not entitled to costs: Butler v. Rice, 1910, 2 Ch. 277; 103 L. T. 94; and see Re Cooper, Cooper v. Vesey, 20 Ch. D. 611; 47 L. T. 89, and note to Rule 134.

Improper parties.

Costs may be ordered to be paid by one defendant to another.

By C. R. 1140, it was expressly provided that where the costs of one defendant ought to be paid by another defendant, the Court might order payment to be made by the one to the other directly.

That Rule has not been continued, but under section 74 the like order may probably be made.

Costs between co-defendants.

A defendant is usually liable to pay costs to his co-defendant, when the latter is an innocent party, and is necessarily brought into the litigation in order to enable the plaintiff to obtain complete relief in the action: see McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76. Formerly at law there was no practice authorizing a judgment to be given against a defendant for the payment of the costs of a co-defendant either directly or indirectly; and even in Equity, prior to Chy. O. 319, from which C. R. 1140 was taken, the Court of Chancery was accustomed only to order such costs to be paid by the circuitous process of directing the plaintiff to pay them, and add them to his own costs. In interpleader proceedings by Sheriffs, the costs of the Sheriff are to be included in the costs of the successful party under Rule 641 (2).

The Court has ordered a defendant to pay a co-defendant's costs, even though the action was dismissed: Church v Fuller, 3 Ont. 417, but a successful defendant cannot be ordered to pay the plaintiff's costs: Mitchell v. Vandusen, 14 Ont. App. 517; Wills v. Carman, Ib., 656; unless the plaintiff was entitled to bring the action, and it has failed by reason of circumstances subsequently occurring: see supra.

Several defendants, as to some of whom action fails.

When a plaintiff succeeds against one defendant and fails against another, he is not entitled, without an order to that effect, to add in his costs, payable by the unsuccessful defendant, the costs payable by him to the successful defendant: Child v. Stenning, 7 Ch. D. 413; 11 Ch. D. 82; Bergmann v. McMillan, 17 Ch. D. 423, 428; and see Beaumont v. Senior, 1903, 1 K. B. 282; but where the unsuccessful defendant has occasioned the litigation as against the other defendants, or the circumstances justified the plaintiff in making them parties, he may be ordered to recoup the plaintiff the costs he is ordered to pay the successful defendants: Child v. Stenning, supra; Bostermann v. British Motor C. Co., 1914, 3 K. B. 181; 110 L. T. 754.

Where there are several defendants, some of whom do not defend and some of whom do; the non-defending defendants may in some cases be relieved from paying costs occasioned by the defence of their co-defendants: see Dansk Rekylriffel, etc., v. Snell, 1908, 2 Ch. 127; 98 L. T. 830. And where a defendant is improperly made a party, but actively takes part in the litigation in support of another party, he may disentitle himself to costs: Butler v. Rice, 103 L. T. 94; 1910, 2 Ch. 277; Re Cooper, Cooper v. Vesey, 20 Ch. D. 611; 47 L. T. 89.

No power to award anything by way of penalty in addition to costs.

The Court cannot, except under some special statute, impose costs beyond the costs of suit, by way of penalty. The discretion as to costs, however, extends to ordering a defendant to pay half the costs, or a fixed sum in lieu of costs: Rule 652 (1); Wilmott v. Barber, 17 Ch. D. 772; Ryan v. Fish, 4 Ont. 335, 344; see Cockburn v. Edwards, 18 Ch. D. 449, 459; Harrison v. McSheehan, W. N. 1885, 207; or no more costs than the verdict: Hancock v. Hale, 28 Sol. Jour. 230, where only £1 was recovered on a much larger claim; or costs as between solicitor and client (in matters of equitable jurisdiction at any rate): Andrews v. Barnes, 39 Ch. D. 133; Sandford v. Porter, 16 Ont. App. 565, 577; or giving no costs where the action was within the jurisdiction of an inferior Court: Vandewaters v. Horton, 9 Ont. 548; Kay v. Tighe, 18 L. R. Ir. 40; or where the defendant, who was nearly of age, had avoided the contract sued on, on the ground of infancy: Edison Co. v. Smith, 119 L. T. Jour. 106; or only such costs as would have been incurred had a less costly mode of proceeding been adopted: Wallis v. Cain, 21 Ont. 532; McPherson v. Irwin, 26 Ont. 440; Re Brown, 32 Ch. D. 323; or to directing a solicitor to pay costs personally: Barnard v. Holes, 37 W. R. 668; or to directing costs to be borne by an infant: Bassett v. Perdue, 18 Ont. 575; Woolf v. Woolf, 1899, 1 Ch. 343; 79 L. T. 725; or to refusing costs to a party, though successful, whose conduct has been discreditable in respect to some matter connected with the litigation in question: Darby v. City of Toronto, 17 Ont. 554; Robinson v. Bogle, 18 Ont. 387; Green v. Stevenson, 9 O. L. R. 671; and Re King v. Gillard, supra, p. 253; or harsh and unreasonable: American Tobacco Co. v. Guest, 1892, 1 Ch. 630; or whose claim is trivial: Mendudno v. Woods, 1899, 2 Ch. 705; Fielden v. Cox, 120 L. T. Jour. 7; or has been submitted to by the defendant: see Slazenger v. Spalding, 1910, 1 Ch. 257; 102 L. T. 390; or who has made improper charges of fraud, etc., which are not sustained: Fry v. Lane, 40 Ch. D. 312; Minute v. Walsh, 34 Ont. 309; In re Stanton, 3 Ont. 86; Stretton v. Grimes, 19 Ont. 286; Beatty v. O'Connor, 5 Ont. 747; or to directing payment of the opposite party's costs of such charges: see Neale v. Winter, 9 Gr. 261; Hodgins v. McNeil, Ib., 305; Watson v. Watson, 9 Gr. 70; Teacher v. Calder, 1899, A. C. 451; McKenzie v. Yielding, 11 Gr. 496; so also costs may be refused where a party otherwise misconducts himself, as by making an untruthful defence: Finlayson v. Willard, 10 Gr. 130; or unnecessarily bringing a suit: Darling v. Wilson, 9 Gr. 255; Springer v. Clarke, 15 Gr. 664; even in the case of a mortgagee: McLean v. Cross, 3 Chy. Ch. 432; Ashworth v. Lord, 36 Ch. D. 545; Graham v. Ross, 6 Ont. 154; Smallpiece v. Lee, 20 Sol. Jour. 61; Beatty v. O'Connor, 5 Ont. 747; or trustee: Easton v. Landor, 67 L. T. 1; or he may be ordered to pay costs: Faire v. Fane, 13 Ch. D. 228; Tabburn, Gage v. Rutland, 46 L. T. 848; W. N. 1882, 92.

Costs as between solicitor and client may be given.

Or costs of less expensive mode of proceeding.

Examples of discretion as to costs.

Unfounded charges of fraud.

Improper action, or defence.

Sec. 74.

There is jurisdiction in an action of tort, as well as of contract, to order a defendant against whom relief is obtained to pay, not only the plaintiff's own costs, but also the costs the plaintiff is ordered to pay to a defendant as to whom the action has failed: Bullock v. London General Omnibus Co., 1907, 1 K. B. 264; 95 L. T. 105; Bestermann v. British Moto Cab Co., supra, p. 255.

Awarding costs out of an estate.

Costs out of Estate.—In testamentary cases, where a will set up is obtained under suspicious circumstances, a defendant setting up fraud and undue influence, may, though unsuccessful, nevertheless be entitled to costs out of the estate: see Gilbert v. Ireland, 9 O. L. R. 124; Wilson v. Bassill, 1903, p. 239; 89 L. T. 586, but subsequent to the payment of the plaintiff's costs as between solicitor and client: Ib., or though the plaintiff be unsuccessful the action may be dismissed without costs: Logan v. Herring, 19 P. R. 168; or the party whose conduct excited the litigation may have to bear them: see Re Osment, Child v. Osment, 110 L. T. 990.

Actions to establish or impugn wills.

Costs out of the estate have, under special circumstances, been allowed to all parties, in an action to establish a will, even where undue influence was established: R. C. Episcopal Corp. v. O'Connor, 14 O. L. R. 670.

But where, after probate, a party sued to set aside the will on the ground of alleged undue influence and testamentary capacity on insufficient evidence and without having made proper inquiry, he was ordered to pay the costs of the defendants who actively defended the action: McAllister v. McMillan, 25 O. L. R. 1. In that case the rules for ordering costs to be paid out of an estate were stated to be (1) where the litigation is due to the act or conduct of the testator or principal beneficiaries; and (2) if there is a reasonable ground for investigation due to surrounding circumstances, an unsuccessful litigant may be relieved from paying costs, and the plaintiff's costs may be ordered to be paid out of the estate: see Re Osment, Child v. Osment, supra.

Costs in action for construction of will.

In an action for the construction of a will, the costs of all parties, in the absence of misconduct, are usually ordered to be paid out of the estate of the testator under whose will the difficulty arose: Shortman v. Shortman, 67 L. T. 717; and see Ib. as to the principles upon which costs will be allowed out of an estate where a will, disputed on the ground of undue influence, is established; but costs of an action in which an estate is interested cannot properly be ordered to be paid out of such estate unless the estate is before the Court in the litigation: Crawford v. Broddy, 18 P. R. 233.

But on a summary application for the construction of a will, an unsuccessful defendant was ordered to pay costs: Re Halston, Elcen v. Halston, 1912, 1 Ch. 435; 106 L. T. 182 (a case of the misnomer of a devisee).

Where the question arising on the construction of a will had given rise to great divergence of judicial opinion, the Privy Council, while dismissing an appeal directed the costs of both parties as between solicitor and client to be paid out of the estate: Dunne v. Byrne, 1912, A. C. 407; 106 L. T. 394, whether this order merely applied to the costs of the appeal or the whole costs of the litigation is not stated.

The Court may order costs to be paid out of real or personal estate, but where it makes no specific direction of that kind, but simply orders them to be paid out of an estate, the costs are payable out of the entirety in due course of administration: Re Vickerstaff, 1906, 1 Ch. 762.

Where Money Paid into Court.—Where in an action on a covenant the defendant paid money into Court and denied the breach, and a referee, to whom the issues were referred, reported that the money paid in was sufficient to satisfy the claim, it was held that the costs were in the discretion of the Court, and that the proper method of exercising it was by allowing plaintiff his costs up to the time of payment into Court, and defendant the costs of the action after that time: Buckton v. Higgs, 4 Ex. D. 174. Sec. 74. Costs where money paid into Court.

Where money is paid in with a defence denying liability, and the plaintiff fails to recover as much as is paid in, but succeeds on the issue as to liability, the plaintiff is entitled to the costs of the action up to the time of payment in, and of the issues as to liability raised by the defendant, and the defendant is entitled to his costs of action after payment in, other than the costs of the issues on which he fails: see Wagstaffe v. Bently, 1902, 1 K. B. 124; Ridout v. Green, 87 L. T. 679; Hubback v. British North Borneo Co. 1904, 2 K. B. 473; Fitzgerald v. Tilling, 96 L. T. 718; Powell v. Vickers, 1907, 1 K. B. 71, 95 L. T. 774.

Where money is paid into Court in satisfaction of a claim for damages which the plaintiff accepts in full of that claim, but proceeds to trial claiming an injunction, or other relief, which is refused with costs, and the money paid into Court is ordered to be paid to the plaintiff with costs of that claim; under such an order the general costs of the action are apportionable: Todd v. N. E. Ry. Co., 87 L. T. 710; 88 L. T. 112; 1903, W. N. 30.

But where a cause was referred by consent at a trial to the Master under the C. L. P. Act, as a matter of account, formal judgment being entered for the plaintiff, and the order of reference was silent as to costs, after an award that nothing was due to plaintiffs beyond money paid into Court, it was held that the proceedings were not "proceedings in the High Court" within this section, but withdrawn from it by an agreement of the parties, and, the parties having agreed to its terms, the Court could not add to it, and had no power to give costs: Wimshurst v. Barrow Shipbuilding Co., 2 Q. B. D. 335.

Tender After Writ.—A defendant cannot escape the costs of a writ of summons by tendering the amount sued for before service, but after the issue of the writ: O'Malley v. Killmallock, 22 L. R. Ir. 326, and see Hughes v. Justin, 1894, 1 Q. B. 667; Du Pasquier v. Cadbury, Jones & Co., 1903, 1 K. B. 104; but where no writ has been issued, it would seem that no costs of proceedings taken with a view to bringing an action are recoverable from a defendant: Holman v. Stephens, 6 Ir. N. S. 124. Effect of the issue of a writ on right to costs.

Reservation of Question of Costs to a Future Time.—Sometimes the question of the costs of the action is not disposed of at the trial, but is reserved to the future hearing of the cause on further directions, or the costs may be awarded up to the judgment at the trial, and the question of subsequent costs only may be so reserved.

Costs of Interlocutory Applications Adjourned to the Trial — Frequently costs of interlocutory applications are reserved to be disposed of at the trial, and care should be taken to bring the question of such costs to the attention of the Judge at the trial, so that he may make order concerning the same. Costs of motions adjourned to the trial.

Sec. 74.

The Judges in England have laid down the following rules, viz.: that where applications are adjourned to the trial, and are not then mentioned to the Judge, the costs of such applications are to be costs in the cause, and taxed accordingly, and need not be mentioned in the judgment; where, however, an interlocutory application has been disposed of, but the costs of it have been reserved, such costs are not to be mentioned in the judgment or order pronounced at the trial, or allowed on taxation without the special direction of the Judge: see British Natural Premium, etc., Assocn. v. Bywater, 1897, 2 Ch. 531; 77 L. T. 22. Thus, where a motion by plaintiff is adjourned till the trial, and no mention is made of the costs of it then, or at the trial, a judgment dismissing the action with costs carries with it the costs of the motion: Gosnell v. Bishop, 38 Ch. D. 385. See also as to costs reserved to be disposed of at the trial: Hodges v. Hodges, 25 W. R. 162; Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542. In Ontario no general rule such as that referred to above has been laid down, and it would seem to be necessary that the costs of all interlocutory motions adjourned, and all interlocutory costs reserved, till the trial, should be mentioned to, and disposed of by, the Judge at the trial.

Omission to dispose of costs reserved.

Where the judgment at the trial omits to dispose of such costs, and the judgment is appealed from and affirmed, it may be found thereafter impossible to get such costs disposed of: see Tucker v. Tecumseh, 10 Can. Ex. 153, but an omission of that kind may be remedied at any time before the judgment is entered, or affirmed on appeal. After entry, or on appeal, it does not seem possible for the Judge of first instance to vary the judgment. If, however, the costs were awarded at the trial, but by mistake such award is omitted in the formal judgment, then it is amendable under Rule 521.

Where costs of a motion for an interim injunction were reserved to the trial, and it appeared that although the plaintiff had made a prima facie case for an interim injunction, yet the action failed, no order was made as to the costs of the motion, but the action was dismissed with costs: Coombe v. Mendit, 136 L. T. Jour. 86.

Whether orders as to interlocutory costs may be affected by judgment at trial.

Orders disposing of interlocutory costs are not interfered with by a general award of costs at the trial: Beynon v. Godden, 4 Ex. D. 246; Walter v. Bewicke, 90 L. T. 409; and cannot be reviewed at the trial. Thus where such costs are ordered to be "costs in the cause," the Judge at the trial cannot deprive the successful party of them: Koosen v. Rose, 76 L. T. 145; 45 W. R. 337; this was a decision of the English Court of Appeal; but see contra, per Meredith, J., in Chambers, Dickerson v. Ratcliffe, 19 P. R. 223, and per Rose, J., Muir v. Squire, Ib. 237, where it was held that the making of costs of an interlocutory motion "costs in the action" or "costs in the cause to the successful party in the action," is not a final disposition of the costs, but leaves such costs in the discretion of the Judge at the trial: and see Brotherton v. Metropolitan Dist. Ry., supra, p. 253, where costs were ordered to abide the result, and it was held that the result referred to was the result as to costs.

Mode of taxation where two defendants appear by same solicitor.

For the mode of taxation of costs, where an action against two defendants appearing by the same solicitor was dismissed as to one with costs, and judgment was given for the plaintiff against the other with costs: see Clark v. Virgo, 17 P. R. 260; and see Beaumont v. Senior, infra, p. 259.

As to costs of witnesses where plaintiff was ordered to pay defendants so much of the costs as were occasioned by a particular contention: see Lockard v. Waugh, 17 P. R. 269.

Costs where Success Divided on Several Issues.—In jury cases the observations following are in regard to the cases where the costs follow the "event," under sub-section (3), i.e., where the Judge has not otherwise ordered. Sec. 74. Costs where success divided.

Where the "event" is the result of a single issue, no difficulty occurs in the application of the sub-section. It is where there are several issues, or there is a counter-claim, that difficulty arises. Jury cases.

Where there are several issues, and neither plaintiff nor defendant is wholly successful, the question arises, what the "event" is which the costs are to follow. It has been held that the word "event" in sub-sec. (3) is complex, and must be read distributively as regards distinct causes of action. The general costs of the cause follow the judgment, but the costs of the particular issues must be respectively taxed in favour of the party who has succeeded on them: Myers v. Defries, 4 Ex. D. at p. 180; Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. D. 569; in which the previous case of Staples v. Young, 2 Ex. D. 324, was not approved of: see also Ellis v. Desilva, 6 Q. B. D. 521; Waring v. Pearman, 32 W. R. 429; Lund v. Campbell, 14 Q. B. D. 821; Hawke v. Brear, Ib., 841; Goutard v. Carr, 13 Q. B. D. 598 n; Ahrbecker v. Frost, 17 Q. B. D. 606; Bertram v. Massey Mfg. Co., 13 P. R. 184; Crepeau v. Pacaud, 35 C. L. J. 114; Lockhampton Quarries Co. v. Ballinger, 93 L. T. 93; and the judgment should be drawn up so as to give effect to sub-sec. (3): Hoyes v. Tate, 1907, 1 K. B. 656. Where several issues.

In each issue the "event" is the result of all the proceedings incidental to the litigation, and the costs which follow the event include the costs of all the stages of that litigation; and therefore where a new trial was had and the plaintiff on the second trial recovered a verdict, he was held entitled to the costs of the first trial as part of the costs of the action: Field v. Great Northern Ry., 3 Ex. D. 261; Green v. Wright, 2 C. P. D. 354; Waring v. Pearman, 32 W R. 429; Wright v. Shaw, 19 Q. B. D. 396; and so also, where at the first trial the jury disagreed: Copeland v. Blenheim, 11 P. R. 54. "Event," meaning of.

Where there are issues on which the plaintiff succeeds and others on which he fails, and by reason of his failure he recovers nothing in the action, where costs follow the "event" he is entitled to the costs of the issues on which he succeeded: Slatford v. Erlebach, 106 L. T. 61.

Where a plaintiff recovered a less sum than an amount paid into court by the defendants for the sake of peace, the defendants, though held entitled to the general costs of the action, were nevertheless ordered to pay the costs of an issue as to which they had failed: Ashback v. British North Borneo Co., 91 L. T. 672.

In Abbott v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 648, where the plaintiff succeeded on some issues but was non-suited on others, no order being made as to costs, the defendant was held entitled to costs of issues on which the plaintiff was non-suited, and the plaintiff to the other costs, including the general costs of the cause.

Where two defendants are jointly represented by the same solicitor, and costs are awarded in favour of one defendant, and against the other, the successful defendant, in the absence of any agreement between him and his co-defendant, as to how their costs are to be borne inter se, is entitled to recover from the plaintiff half the costs of the defence: Beaumont v. Senior, 1903, 1 K. B. 282; and see Zavitz v. Judge, and other cases, supra, p. 250.

Sec. 74.

Claims against defendants in the alternative.

Where the plaintiff's claim is against two defendants in the alternative he may be ordered to add the costs of the defendant as to whom he fails to bis own, and get them over against the defendant as to whom he succeeds: see Sanderson v. Blyth Theatre Co., 1903, 2 K. B. 533; 89 L. T. 159; in an action of tort as well as an action of contract, or for equitable relief: Bullock v. London General Omnibus Co., 1907, 1 K. B. 264; 95 L. T. 105; Medley v. United Tramways, 26 T. L. R. 315; Bestermann v. British Motor Cab Co., 1914, 3 K. B. 181; 110 L. T. 754; but this cannot be done without the special order of the Court: Child v. Stanning, 7 Ch. D. 413; 11 Ch. D. 82.

Ambiguous order as to costs.

Where a judgment is ambiguous as to costs, application should be made to the Judge who pronounced it, to correct the ambiguity. It is not proper to bring the matter up on an appeal from the taxing officer: Abbott v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 648; Sparrow v. Hill, 8 Q. B. D. 479, may also be referred to, though in that case the Judge made an order as to costs, and the question was the right interpretation of it. There the plaintiff succeeded on three heads of his claim, and was awarded costs in respect of the amounts recovered, and the defendant was given costs in respect of the rest. Therefore the plaintiff was held entitled to the general costs of the cause, excepting those which related to the issues on which he had failed, and the defendant was given his costs of the latter issues; and see: Davis v. Hurd, 4 O. L. R. 466.

Where one of several plaintiffs fails.

Where several plaintiffs are joined, and some or one of them only are or is found entitled to relief, the defendant, though unsuccessful, would appear to be entitled to his costs occasioned by so joining any person who has not been found entitled to relief, unless the Court in disposing of the costs of the action otherwise orders.

Where an action was brought by two plaintiffs on separate causes of action, one of whom failed and the other succeeded, and the costs were ordered to abide the event of the action; it was held that the defendants were entitled to the costs occasioned by joining the unsuccessful plaintiff, and that the successful plaintiff was entitled to the general costs of the action: Gort v. Rowney, 17 Q. B. D. 625.

Cases of counter-claims.

Counter-claims.—In cases where there are counter-claims, most difficulty has occurred in jury cases where costs follow the event under section 74 (3), or in any case where an order is made which has the same practical effect as to costs, e.g., giving costs simply to the party successful on the counter-claim.

Strictly speaking a counter-claim is a claim which a defendant prior to the Judicature Act could only have set up by cross-action, or by a claim for cross-relief: see Girardot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 162, 201.

There is a distinction between cases where a defendant sets up a counter-claim in the nature of a set-off of a debt or liquidated claim, and a counter-claim for unliquidated damages.

Set-off.

Under the present Rule 115 both kinds of claims may be presented by the defendant in the pleading called a counter-claim: see Bennett v. White, 13 P. R. 151; but a true set-off does not lose its real character by being pleaded as a counter-claim: Ryan v. Fraser, 16 L. R. Ir. 253; Cutler v. Morse, 12 P. R. 594; Bennett v. White, 13 P. R. 149; Sanderson v. Ashfield, 13 P. R. 230; and the costs are taxable on the same principles as they would have been taxed in like case before the Jud. Act; Cutler v. Morse, supra; see also Wight v. Shaw, 19 B. D. 396; Girardot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 162, 201. Sec. 74.

Therefore, where the plaintiff establishes his claim and the defendant a set-off of an equal or greater amount, the defendant has succeeded and the plaintiff failed, and the defendant is therefore entitled to the costs of the action: Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. D. 576; Baines v. Bromley, 6 Q. B. D. 794; Heritage v. Ford, supra; Gates v. Seagram, 19 O. L. R. 216. Plaintiff's claim reduced by set-off.

On the other hand, where the plaintiff establishes a claim, and the defendant establishes a counter-claim, in the nature of a cross-action, i.e., both claim and counter-claim are successful, the plaintiff is entitled to the costs of the action (without any apportionment of charges common to both claim and counter-claim), and the defendant to such costs only as are properly attributable to the counter-claim: Re Brown, Ward v. Morse, 23 Ch. D. 377; Stooke v. Taylor, supra; Gray v. Davidson, 5 Ex. D. 189; Ellis v. Desilva, 6 Q. B. D. 521; Ontario Forge, etc. v. Comet Cycle Co., 17 P. R. 156; Sharpe v. Haggith, 106 L. T. 13. This gives the general costs of the action not to the party recovering the most, nor to the party to whom the litigation is on the whole favourable, but to the plaintiff: Baines v. Bromley, supra; Pearson v. Ripley, 32 W. R. 463; 50 L. T. 629 (because his costs are those of the action), whether the balance is in favour of the plaintiff: Hallinan v. Price, 41 L. T. 627; 27 W. R. 490; or of the defendant: Re Brown, Ward v. Morse, supra. See also Waring v. Penrman, 32 W. R. 429; 50 L. T. 633; and Coughlin v. Hollingsworth, 5 Ont. 207, where costs were directed to be taxed upon this principle and judgment was directed to be entered for the party in whose favour the balance should be found. Recovery on claim and counter-claim.

Where the plaintiffs claimed £304 17s. 9d., and the defendants set up a counter-claim for £480, and the arbitrator to whom the matter was referred found in favour of the plaintiffs for £371, and in favour of the defendants for £375, the Court, on appeal from the District Registrar, who had given the costs of the cause to the defendants, ordered "the costs of, and relating to the plaintiff's claim, and the proof thereof to be paid by the defendants, and the costs of, and relating to the defendants' counter-claim, and the proof thereof, to be paid by the plaintiffs": Cole, Merchant & Co. v. Firth, 4 Ex. D. 201; 40 L. T. 851.

For the purposes of taxation a counter-claim properly so called is now to be treated as a cross action, and the costs thereof may be taxed separately from those of the action: Emerson v. Gearin, 12 P. R. 399; Shrapnel v. Laing, 20 Q. B. D. 334; Amon v. Bobbett, 22 Q. B. D. 543; Ontario Forge & Bolt Co. v. Comet Cycle Co., 17 P. R. 476; Haggart v. Brampton, 17 P. R. 477; but a defence which is not strictly speaking a counter-claim cannot acquire that character merely because the plaintiff or defendant so calls it: Girardot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 162, 201; Gates v. Seagram, 19 O. L. R. 216. Counter-claim to be treated as cross-action on taxation of costs.

In Bowker v. Kesteven, 47 L. T. 515, the plaintiff claimed £49 17s., the defendant admitted the claim, and counter-claimed for £75; judgment was for the plaintiff on the claim admitted and costs, and for the defendant for £40 and costs. It was held that the plaintiff was entitled to costs up to and including the statement of defence, and the defendant to costs after that time: see also O'Riordan v. Kelly, 16 L. R. Ir. 263.

Sec. 74.

Recovery on counter-claim exceeding claim of plaintiff.

Where there is a counter-claim in respect of matters which could not be pleaded as a set-off, and the defendant recovers on his counter-claim a sum exceeding that which the plaintiff recovers on his claim, the claim and counter-claim having, for purposes of taxation, to be treated as independent actions, the costs in each should be taxed in favour of the successful party, as if he had wholly succeeded in the action, subject to a deduction in respect of the costs of any issues on which he has not succeeded: Shrapnel v. Laing, 20 Q. B. D. 334; Summerfeldt v. Johnston, 17 P. R. 6; but "common items," that is items common to the defence and the counter-claim, should not be allowed to the defendant: Haggart v. Brampton, 17 P. R. 477. It is immaterial, for purposes of taxation, whether the form of the judgment be for recovery by each party of the amount found due to him, or by plaintiff or defendant for the balance in his favour: Ib.

Reduction by set-off.

In the case of a true counter-claim, the plaintiff cannot foresee that the defendant will set up the counter-claim, but may prefer to bring a cross-action, while in the case of a set-off, he must know of the existence of the claim, and should give credit for it, if good: see Heritage v. Ford, 71 L. T. Jour. 313; Stooke v. Taylor, infra.

Claim and counter-claim dismissed.

Where therefore the claim and counter-claim are both dismissed, the plaintiff is to pay the defendant the general costs of the action, as if no counter-claim had been put in, and the defendant has only to pay the sum by which the costs have been increased by the counter-claim: Soner v. Milton, 11 Ch. D. 416; Mason v. Brentini, 15 Ch. D. 287. No part of the general costs of the action are chargeable against the defendant: Ib., and Atlas, etc., Co. v. Miller, 1898, 2 Q. B. 500; 79 L. T. 5. As to the form of judgment in such cases: see James v. Jackson, 1910, 2 Ch. 92; 102 L. T. 804.

Claim dismissed without, and counter-claim dismissed with, costs.

Where the claim was dismissed without costs, and the counter-claim with costs, the Judge ordered defendant to pay half plaintiff's costs, as a convenient mode of settling the matter: Wilmott v. Barber, 15 Ch. D. 96; 17 Ch. D. 774.

Where the Judge gave the plaintiff the costs of the action, and the defendant the costs of his counter-claim, it was held that the taxing officer could not tax costs to the plaintiff only up to the defence which admitted his claim: Finsko v. Brown, W. N. 1891, 87.

Set-off and counter-claim pleaded.

"Event."

In Chatfield v. Sedgwick, 4 C. P. D. 459, the plaintiff claimed a sum exceeding £50. The defendant pleaded a set-off, and also made a counter-claim for goods to the amount of about £24. The action was referred to a Master, costs to abide the event. The Master certified that there was due to the plaintiff on the claim £16, and to the defendant on the counter-claim £23, and that the balance due to the defendant was £7. It was held that defendant was entitled to his costs, as the question was, taking claim and counter-claim together, which was creditor and which was debtor, and, the finding being in favour of the defendant, that was the event which the costs were to follow. The reasons for this decision are dissented from by Cockburn, C.J., in Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. D. 582, though the decision itself is approved of, as being in accordance with the principles previously above mentioned, not because the defendant succeeded, but because the plaintiff failed as to costs, not having recovered £20, so as to be entitled to costs under the County Court Act. See also Lowe v. Holme, 10 Q. B. D. 286; Ryon v. Fraser, 16 L. R. Ir. 253.

Where, in an arbitration, costs were to follow the "event," and the defendant recovered more on his counter-claim than the plaintiff, it was held that the defendant was entitled to the general costs and the plaintiff to costs of the issue on which he succeeded: Lund v. Campbell, 14 Q. B. D. 821, where Baines v. Bromley, is explained: Hawke v. Brear, Ib., 841: see also Ahrbecker v. Frost, 17 Q. B. D. 606. Sec. 74.

The costs of an action in which judgment is signed in default of defence, and the damages are assessed by a jury, do not follow the event, but are in the discretion of the Judge, there having been no trial with a jury: Guth v. Howarth, 28 Sol. Jour. 427; W. N. 1884, 99; see Section 74 (3), and Rules 650, 651. Costs on assessment of damages.

Appeals Respecting Costs.—Sections 74 (1), and 24, have the effect, that except in the case of trustees, mortgagees, etc.: see Farrow v. Austin, and other cases cited, supra, p. 249; and where the Judge has proceeded on a wrong principle: Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. per Lindley, L.J., at p. 137; McCausland v. Quebec F. Ins. Co., 25 Ont. 330, or misapprehension of the facts: Gates v. Seagram, 19 O. L. R. 216, no appeal in respect of costs will be allowed, without leave, since section 24 prohibits appeals, except by leave of the Court or Judge appealed from, in respect of costs, which are by law left to the discretion of the Court: Mitchell v. Vandusen, 14 Ont. App. 517 (where, on an appeal by leave, the decision was reversed). Appeals as to costs.

An appeal lies to a Divisional Court respecting the award of costs at the trial, where the Judge at the trial proceeded on an erroneous principle: McCausland v. Quebec Fire Ins. Co., 25 Ont. 330; and see Re Brodford, 15 Q. B. D. 635; or where the costs are in fact in his discretion, but he acts on the assumption that his discretion is excluded: Bew v. Bew, 1899, 2 Ch. 467; 81 L. T. 284; also see King v. Gillard, and Civil Service Co-operative Socy. v. General Steam Navigation Co., supra, p. 253.

Where the costs of an action referred to a Referee for trial are in his discretion, it is held in England that there is no appeal from his disposition thereof: Minister v. Apperly, 1902, 1 K. B. 643; but in Ontario on a motion for judgment in accordance with the Referee's report, it would appear to be open to the Judge to adopt, or reject, or vary, the Referee's decision as to costs; and the Referee's decision as to costs, as well as to any other matter involved in the reference, would appear to be subject to appeal: see Rules 400, 502, 503, 504.

Even, though leave to appeal has been given, the appellate Court will not review the exercise of his discretion by the Judge; per Lindley, L.J., Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. p. 136; and the Court will not on appeal interfere with the discretion exercised by a judicial officer as to costs of proceedings before him, unless there is error of law or fact: Campbell v. Wheler, 17 P. R. 289.

Orders have therefore been held unappealable in respect of costs of inspection of a mine allowed under Rule 370: Mitchell v. Darley Main Colliery Co., 10 Q. B. D. 457; costs directed to be paid to a defendant by a co-defendant though there was no issue between them: Church v. Fuller, 3 Ont. 417: see also Rudow v. Great Britain Insurance Co., 17 Ch. D. 600; Leckhampton Quarries Co. v. Ballinger, supra, p. 254: but see Re Cooper, Cooper v. Vesey, Ib.: costs directed to be paid by defendant, and given over against a third party: Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q. B. D. 329; and costs dealt with before the trial and directed to be borne by one party "in any event": Vicary v. Great Orders not appealable.

Sec. 75. Northern Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 168. See other cases in notes to section 24 of the Jud. Act, supra, pp. 112 et seq.

Costs are not in the discretion of the Court, and are therefore the proper subject of an appeal where they came within the exceptional cases in section 74 (2).

See also notes to section 24, and Bozett v. Morgan, 24 Q. B. D. 28; Horphom v. Shocklock, 19 Ch. D. 207.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

Practice and procedure.

75.—(1) Subject as to appeals under The Ontario Controverted Elections Act to the provisions of that Act, and as to appeals and applications for a new trial to the Court under The Criminal Code to the provisions of that Act, and subject also to the Rules, the practice and procedure upon and as to appeals to a Divisional Court shall be that which on the 31st day of December, 1912, was applicable to appeals to a Divisional Court of the High Court.

Rights of appeal preserved.

(2) Nothing in subsection 1 shall take away or affect any right of appeal to the Court of Appeal from a judgment, order or decision pronounced, made or given by a Divisional Court of the High Court which on the 31st day of December, 1912, any party had or was entitled to, whether by or without leave, but the appeal shall be to a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division.

Judgment in matters heard before 31st December, 1912.

(3) In all matters and proceedings which on the 31st day of December, 1912, had been fully heard by a Divisional Court of the High Court, and in which judgment had not been given, or having been given had not been signed, drawn up, passed, entered or otherwise perfected, judgment may be given, signed, drawn up, passed, entered or otherwise perfected in the name of the same court, and by the same judges and officers, and generally in the same manner as if such court had not been abolished, and for those purposes the court shall be deemed to continue to exist.

Matters pending in Divisional Courts on 31st December, 1912.

(4) All matters and proceedings in a Divisional Court of the High Court pending on the 31st day of December, 1912, to which subsection 3 does not apply, shall be deemed to be matters and proceedings in the Appellate Division and shall be dealt with in the manner, and the practice and procedure shall be as provided by subsection 1. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 75.

OFFICES AND OFFICERS. Sec. 76.

76.—(1) There shall be the following officers of the Supreme Court:— Officers.

In Toronto:

(a) An Official Guardian;

(q) A deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas, and a deputy registrar, if those offices are not consolidated, and a local registrar if they are

Sec. 76.

consolidated, for every county except the County of York;

(r) One or more local masters for every county except the County of York, who shall also be ex officio referees of titles in their respective counties; and the officers mentioned in this subsection, except the special examiners, shall be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

In addition to the officers in Toronto specified in this sub-section, there are also two other officers of the Supreme Court for the administration of The Quieting Titles Act (R. S. O. c. 123), viz.:

(1) The Inspector of Titles, and

(2) The Referee of Titles in Toronto: see Ib. ss. 42, 43.

Other officers may be appointed.

(2) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint such other officers and clerks as he may deem necessary for the proper despatch of business in the Supreme Court.

Existing officers to continue.

Tenure of office.

(3) Every person now holding any of the offices mentioned in subsection 1, and every officer and clerk employed in the office of any such officer shall continue to hold office during pleasure, and every officer and clerk hereafter appointed shall also hold office during pleasure.

Officers may be dispensed with.

(4) If the Lieutenant-Governor in Council deems it advisable so to do, he may dispense with any of the officers mentioned in subsection 1, or may amalgamate his office with any other office.

Existing officers to retain rank, etc.

(5) Existing officers shall retain their present rank and seniority, and subject to subsection 6, their offices shall retain the names they now bear.

Official names may be changed.

(6) The official names of any of the offices and officers may be changed, and the duties assigned to any officer may be regulated and changed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council and, subject to any order in council, by the Rules.

Duties of officers may be prescribed by the Rules.

(7) Subject to any order made by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, the duties to be performed in the Supreme Court or in either Division of it or in a Divisional Court or in Chambers, in connection with the business therein, other than those to be performed by the judges, shall be assigned to such officer as may be directed by the Rules and shall be performed by him. Sec. 76.

(8) Duties may be assigned to an officer in respect of business in either of the Divisions or in both of them, and every officer shall perform the duties assigned to him by the Rules, whether or not they appertain to the office which he holds. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 76. Duties in either Division may be assigned to officers.

The Official Guardian.—This officer acts as the ex officio guardian ad litem of all infant defendants, Rule 18, unless some other guardian is especially appointed, and he also intervenes whenever required so to do by the Court for the protection of the rights of infant suitors even though they are plaintiffs: see Rules 609, 615. He also has certain duties under The Devolution of Estates Act, where infants are concerned: see Rules 690, 691. He has also to see that mortgages in Court in which infants are interested are promptly paid and that the insurance and taxes on the mortgaged property are duly paid: Rule 719; and also in regard to the payment of maintenance money for infants: Rule 737: and in regard to money paid into County Courts or Surrogate Courts in which infants are interested: Rule 770. Official Guardian.

The Official Guardian also acts, on request, as the Solicitor of the Court. See further as to the duties of this office: sec. 106 post.

The Master in Chambers.—This officer discharges the business in Chambers as provided by Rule 208. Master in Chambers.

The Master in Ordinary.—This officer is charged with the duty of conducting inquiries and taking accounts, etc., in such matters as may be referred to him by any order or judgment of the Court: see Rules 402-459. Master in Ordinary.

The Registrar of the Appellate Division.—With this officer is set down all appeals to the Appellate Division, and to him is transmitted from the Central Office all papers required for the purposes of such appeals, and in his office the cause lists for that Division are made up. He, or the assistant Registrar, attends the sittings of the first Divisional Court. It is the duty of the Registrar to sign all judgments and orders made by the Appellate Division: Judge's Regulations, 28th Jan., 1913. Registrar Appellate Division.

Registrars of the High Court Division.—The following business is transacted in the office of the Registrars of the High Court Division: Registrar's office, H.C.D. business in.

(a) The business of the Crown Office, which comprises all criminal business, and quasi criminal business, and proceedings carried on in the offices of the Registrars of any Division of the High Court prior to the 1st day of January, 1896, and all business and proceedings on the Crown, and Revenue side of the Queen's Bench, and Common Pleas, Divisions, carried on in the offices of the Registrars of those Divisions prior to said date. Crown business.

(b) The preparation of Cause Lists in the High Court Division comprising the following business, viz.:— Civil business.

(1) The setting down of actions for trial at sittings of the High Court Division in the County of York.

Sec. 78.

(2) The setting down of all motions, special cases and other matters required by the Rules to be set down for sittings of the Weekly Court at Toronto.

(3) The attendance with records, exhibits and papers on the Court or Judges thereof, and the furnishing to the proper officer on his requisition, of all papers and exhibits necessary for the purposes of all motions, appeals, special cases and other matters in the High Court Division.

(4) The custody of the records, exhibits, affidavits and papers relating to the matters aforesaid until the conclusion of the same when the same are to be transmitted to the Central Office.

(c) The custody of the roll of barristers, and solicitors, and all former rolls of barristers, attorneys and solicitors, and the producing thereof when necessary and the issuing of certificates in respect thereof.

(d) The settling of all judgments and orders made at any sittings of the High Court Division in the County of York, for the trial of causes, matters and issues, or at the sittings of the Appellate Division: see C. R. 26, Rules 526, 527, and Judges' regulations of 28th Jan., 1913.

Distribution of business.

(f) The Senior Registrar of the High Court Division is also Inspector of Titles, and Referee of Titles in Toronto, under the Quieting Titles Act: see Rule 695.

Duties of Registrars.

Subject to any Orders in Council and to the provisions of the Rules the duty of settling the judgments and orders referred to in clause (d), is assigned to the Senior Registrar of the High Court Division; and the control and superintendence of the business referred to in clauses (a), (b) and (c), is assigned to one of the Junior Registrars: see C. R. 28.

(g) One of the Junior Registrars also acts as the clerk of the Weekly Court.

Settlement of judgments and orders by Registrar.

The Registrar attending the Weekly Sittings of the High Court Division at Toronto, settles all judgments pronounced at any such Sittings so attended by him, or they may at the desire of any party be settled by the Senior Registrar: see C. R. 30.

Cause lists to be transmitted to proper officers.

The proper officer in the Registrar's Department makes out and transmits to the proper Registrar, Clerk of Assize, Clerk of the Weekly Court or other proper officer, a list of all actions and matters set down for trial at the Sittings of the High Court Division for trial of actions, causes and matters in the County of York, and of all motions, appeals, special cases and matters set down for argument in the Weekly Court: see C. R. 31.

The Clerk of the Crown and Pleas.—This officer is the head of the Central Office and has the general supervision thereof.

20. The business of the Central Office includes:

(1) The issuing of writs for the commencement of actions in the County of York: see C. R. 21.

(2) The receiving, filing and custody of all appearances, pleadings, petitions, reports, depositions, affidavits, bonds, and other papers and proceedings, and making entries thereof in the proper books.

(3) Amending pleadings.

(4) Entering notes of default in pleading and giving certificates thereof. Sec. 76.

Central Office.

(5) The care and custody of all papers and proceedings in actions commenced in the Central Office, and of all documents required or ordered to be deposited for safe keeping or produced under any order of Court.

(6) Preparing and issuing all writs (other than writs of summons), commissions, and orders, obtainable on præcipe.

Præcipe orders are all the orders which, according to the practice of the Court of Chancery, could be obtained on præcipe without an actual motion therefor, or which, at Common Law, were called "side bar rules," and were issued on the filing of a motion paper signed by Counsel. The most common orders of this kind were:—

(a) Orders for security for costs, where the writ or other proceeding by which an action is commenced discloses on its face, that the plaintiff or person asking relief is resident out of the jurisdiction: Rule 375.

(b) Orders to continue proceedings where the death or marriage of parties, or the transmission of interest pendente lite, renders it necessary for other persons to be made parties to the action: Rule 301.

(c) Orders for sheriffs to return writs, or to bring in the body: Rule 574; The Fraudulent Debtors Arrest Act (R. S. O. c. 83), s. 23.

(d) Orders for delivery and taxation of solicitors' bills of costs, on the application of a client: or for the taxation alone of such bills on the application of the client within a month from the delivery thereof, or on the application of the solicitor at any time after such month: see The Solicitors' Act (R. S. O. c. 159), s. 35.

For other orders issuable as of course: see Daniel's Pr., 5th ed., 2002-2012.

(7) Certifying proceedings and making exemplifications of proceedings and of judgments or orders.

Certificates of officers as to proceedings in their offices are conclusive; and affidavits cannot be read to contradict them: Beaven v. Burgess, 10 Jur. 63; Foley v. Griffith, 2 Moll. 318.

(8) Examining and authenticating office copies of pleadings and other proceedings.

(9) Issuing certificates of lis pendens.

(10) Preparing and issuing certificates for registration.

(11) Receiving the return of commissions and attending on the opening of the same.

(12) The issuing of writs of execution or other process under judgments and orders.

(13) Receiving and filing articles of clerkship.

(14) Preparing precepts for summoning juries, and transmitting them to the proper officers.

(15) The care and custody of all books kept under the Act for Quieting Titles and making the necessary entries therein.

(16) Transmitting petitions to the proper Referee.

Sec. 78.

(17) Entering and issuing certificates of title and conveyances granted under the said Act.

The petition, affidavits, and other evidence used upon Quieting Titles proceedings (except the original title deeds), remain in the custody of the Senior Registrar, but are not open to public inspection, except by consent of the petitioner or his solicitor, or leave of the Court.

(18) The signing of all judgments in actions commenced in the Central Office.

(19) The issuing of all such judgments, and all orders pronounced in Toronto (other than orders in Chambers), and the entering of such thereof as by the Rules or practice are required to be entered.

(20) The custody of all judgment and order books of the former Courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas and the Court of Chancery, and all judgments and order books (other than Chambers order books in actual use) containing judgments and orders entered since the Judicature Act of 1881 came into force: see C. R. 23.

(21) And generally all other business transacted in the office of the Clerk of Records and Writs, prior to the 1st day of January, 1896, not otherwise expressly provided for by the form Con. RR., and all similar business transacted, prior to said date, in the offices of the Registrars of the Queen's Bench and Common Pleas Divisions: see C. R. 22.

This Department also has charge of records, exhibits, and other documents received by the Central Office from outer offices, and attends to their transmission to the proper local office.

Seal.

In this office the seal of the Court is kept, and all documents requiring the seal of the Court issue therefrom.

The Clerk of Records and Writs.—This officer is the head of the Records and Writs Branch of the Central Office, and is practically the deputy head of the Central Office. This officer has the custody of the seal of the Court: see sec. 11, supra, p. 33.

Deputy Registrars, Deputy Clerks of the Crown, and Local Registrars.—When The Judicature Act, 1881, was passed there were in existence as local officers of the Common Law Courts in each county "Deputy Clerks of the Crown," whose duties were confined to proceedings in those Courts; and in each county there was also a "Deputy Registrar," who was a local officer of the Court of Chancery, and whose duties were confined to proceedings in that Court. When the Judicature Act took effect these officers were in many counties continued, the Deputy Clerks of the Crown's duties being limited to actions in the Queen's Bench and Common Pleas Divisions of the High Court, and the Deputy Registrar's duties being limited to actions in the Chancery Division. In some counties both of these offices were combined in one officer, who was thenceforth styled "The Local Registrar": see post, sec. 91. In course of time the plan of commencing actions in particular Divisions of the High Court was abolished, and actions were thereafter instituted in the High Court of Justice, whereupon in counties where there are a Deputy Clerk of the Crown, and a Deputy Registrar, both officers had co-ordinate jurisdiction, and proceedings might, at the election of the suitor, be instituted in either office, all subsequent proceedings being carried on in the office in which the proceedings were instituted.

These officers, in their respective counties, perform the like duties as are performed in Toronto in the Central Office: see further as to their duties: Rules 752-755 and 757; and ss. 82-86, 90-95, 98, 99, 100, post; and also the like duties for the Courts held in their respective counties as are performed by the Registrars of the High Court Division in Toronto.

Local Masters.—These officers in their respective counties discharge the like duties as are performed in Toronto by the Master in Ordinary: see supra, and see post, ss. 81, 83, 87, 88, 89.

The Accountant.—As to this officer: see post, ss. 105, 107, and Rules 715-737.

Oath of officers.

77.—(1) Every officer hereafter appointed shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the following oath:—

Form.

"I, A. B., of solemnly swear that I will, according to the best of my skill, learning, ability and judgment, well and faithfully execute and fulfil the duties of the office of without favour or affection, prejudice or partiality, to any person. So help me God."

Oath to be administered by a Judge in Court.

(2) The oath shall be administered by a Judge in Court.

Exception where inconvenient for officer to attend at Toronto.

(3) Where it is not convenient for a person appointed to an office to attend at Toronto to take the oath, it may be taken before the judge of the county court of the county in which the officer resides, or before a commissioner authorized to take affidavits in that county.

Oath to be transmitted to, and filed in Central Office.

(4) Where the oath is taken in accordance with subsection 3, the judge or commissioner before whom it is taken shall forthwith transmit the oath to and it shall be filed in the Central Office. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 77.

Appointment of deputies by Local Registrars.

77.—(a) With the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council every Local Registrar, Deputy Registrar, Deputy Clerk of the Crown and County Court Clerk may, by writing under his hand and seal of office, appoint a deputy who may perform all the duties required to be performed by the officer making the appointment: 4 Geo. V. c. 21, s. 15 (1).

Section 77 (a) is to be deemed to have been in force on and from the 16th day of April, 1912: see 4 Geo. V. c. 21, s. 15 (2).

OFFICERS PAID BY SALARY NOT TO TAKE FEES.

Officers paid by salary not to take fees.

78.—(1) Except where in this Act it is otherwise expressly provided, an officer who is paid by salary shall not take for his own benefit, directly or indirectly, any fee or emolument except the salary to which he is entitled, and the fees payable in respect of proceedings in his office shall be payable to the Crown.

Secs. 79-81.

(2) Subsection 1 shall not apply to the fees of—

Exceptions.

(a) A deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas on an examination had before him as a special examiner or on a reference made to him as an official referee.

(b) A stenographic reporter for copies of short-hand notes of evidence. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 78.

This section does not preclude a salaried officer from claiming compensation from the Crown for any special and extraordinary service he may be called on by the government to perform, which could not have been legitimately expected or intended when he accepted office: see The Queen v. Bradley, 27 S. C. R. 657.

RETURN OF FEES.

Return of fees.

79.—(1) Every officer paid wholly or partly by fees, whether commuted or not, shall on or before the 15th day of January in every year, transmit to the Inspector of Legal Offices a just, true and faithful account, verified by his oath, of the amount of fees paid or payable to him in cash or in law stamps, in respect of his office during the next preceding calendar year, and such other particulars with reference to the business of his office as the Inspector may require.

Form of return may be prescribed.

(2) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council or the Minister having charge of the matter, may require the return to state any particulars, or to be made in any form which may be deemed proper, and the return shall be made accordingly. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 79.

WHERE OFFICES TO BE KEPT.

Certain officers in Toronto to keep their offices at Osgoode Hall.

80. The officers in Toronto mentioned in section 76, except those mentioned in clauses (a), (n), (o) and (p), shall keep their offices at Osgoode Hall, in the City of Toronto. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 80.

Local Master to keep office in county town.

81. Every local master shall keep his office in the county town of the county for which he is appointed. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 81.

Secs. 82, 83.

Certain offices to be kept at court house.

82.—(1) Subject to subsection 2, every local registrar, every deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas, and every deputy registrar shall, if proper accommodation is afforded to him there, keep his office in the court house of the county for which he is appointed, and until he can obtain such accommodation he shall keep his office in some convenient place in the county town.

Exception. (Essex).

(2) The local registrar at Sandwich may keep an office in some convenient place in the city of Windsor, subject to such arrangements as the council of the county of Essex may assent to, and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may approve. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 82.

OFFICE HOURS.

Office hours.

83. Except on holidays, and subject to the Rules as to office hours during vacations, the offices of the local registrars, deputy clerks of the Crown and Pleas and deputy registrars and those of the Snpreme Court and of both divisions of it at Osgoode Hall, shall be kept open from 10 o'clock in the forenoon until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, except on Saturdays, when the offices shall be kept open until 1 o'clock in the afternoon. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 83.

[As to Clerks of County Courts see The County Courts Act, s. 9, and as to registrars of Surrogate Courts see Sur. Court Rule 30.]

See Rule 177.

This Rule is merely directory, and for the guidance of the officials only. It does not forbid them to keep their offices open to a later hour than those mentioned if they think fit, or the business of the office requires it: Muir v. McNeil, Re N. Bruce Election, 27 C. L. J. 338; 11 C. L. T. 265. The hours will be according to standard time: The Definition of Time Act (R. S. O. c. 132), s. 2; see also Lloyd v. Ford, 13 P. R. 238.

A special examiner, though an official of the Court, has no office in connection with the Court which is required to be kept open or closed under this or any other Rule: Hogaboom v. Cox, 15 P. R. 23, 127.

As to the office of the Taxing Officers: see Cousineau v. City of London F. I. Co., 13 P. R. 36; and as to the office of Official Referees: see Marples v. Rosebrugh, 17 P. R. 104.

Office hours during vacation.

During vacation the Registrars' offices are open only for the transaction of matters of an urgent nature, such as issuing injunction orders, but not as a general rule for the transaction of business requiring the Secs. 84-86. attendance of the opposite party, such as the settlement of the minutes of orders or judgments not of an urgent nature: Miller v. Spencer, 13 P. R. 478; and see former Chy. O. 425.

SECURITY FROM OFFICERS.

Officers to give security, if required.

84.—(1) Every officer of the Supreme Court, if and when so required by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, shall give security to His Majesty for the due performance of the duties of his office in such sum as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may direct.

Consequences of neglecting to do so.

(2) The neglect to give such security shall render the appointment of the officer void, but the forfeiture of office shall not affect any act done by him while he continues to act. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 84.

SEALS OF OFFICERS OUT OF TORONTO.

Seals of Local Registrars, Deputy Registrars, and Deputy Clerks of the Crown and Pleas.

85.—(1) In the offices of the local registrars, deputy registrars and deputy clerks of the Crown and Pleas, such seals shall be used as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall from time to time direct, and the same shall be impressed on every writ and other document issued out of such office; and every such writ and document, and every exemplification and copy thereof purporting to be sealed with such seal shall be received in evidence in all Courts without further proof thereof.

Seals of Accountant, and Master in Ordinary, and local officers.

(2) Until other seals are authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, the seals now in use in the office of the Accountant and in the office of the Master in Ordinary or of any local officer of either of the Divisions shall be the proper seals of those officers respectively. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 85.

As to the seal of the Supreme Court: see sec. 11, supra.

OFFICIAL REFEREES.

Official referees.

86.—(1) Subject to the Rules, judges of county courts, the Master in Ordinary, the Master in Chambers, the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas, Registrars, local masters, local registrars, deputy clerks of the Crown and Pleas, and deputy registrars shall be official referees for the trial of such questions as may be directed to be tried by an official referee.

Additional referees.

(2) Where the business requires additional official referees, the Lieutenant-Governer in Council may appoint them.

(3) Subject to subsection 4 of section 66 in the case of officers who are paid by salary, the fees on a reference or trial shall be paid in law stamps; other referees shall be paid in money. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 86. Fees of referees.

The Drainage Referee is not an Official Referee under this section unless specially so appointed, which has not been done: McClure v. Brooke, 5 O. L. R. 59.

CERTAIN LOCAL MASTERS NOT TO PRACTICE.

87.—(1) A local master whose gross income from his office of local master or of deputy registrar and local master is $2,000 or upwards, and ony other local master as to whom the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall so direct, shall not, directly or indirectly, practise the profession of the law as counsel, or solicitor, or act as a notary public, or conveyancer, or do any manner of conveyancing, or prepare any paper or document to be used in any court. Certain Local Masters not to practise.

(2) Every person who contravenes the provisions of subsection 1 shall incur a penalty of $400. Penalty.

(3) This section shall not apply to a local master whom the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has relieved or may hereafter relieve from its prohibition, which the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall have authority to do. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 87. Lieutenant-Governor in Council may relieve from prohibition of sub-section 1.

VACANCY IN OFFICE OF LOCAL MASTER.

88. Where a vacancy occurs in the office of local master, the judge of the county court of the county shall be the local master until and unless another person is appointed local master, and if there are two judges, both of them shall be local masters until and unless one of them or some other person is appointed sole local master. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 88. Vacancy in office of Local Master.

More than one Master may now be appointed for a county or union of counties: see s. 76 (1) r.

Prior to the Act from which section 76 is derived, the contingency provided for in this sub-section was held to be the only case in which there could be two Local Masters in a county: see Re Glen, Fleming v. Perry, 27 Ont. App. 144.

Where a Master writes a letter to the government resigning his office, the appointment of some other person to the office is equivalent to an acceptance of the resignation: Ib.

APPOINTMENT OF LOCAL MASTER PRO TEMPORE.

When Judge of County Court may act for Local Master.

89. In case of the illness or absence of a local master or upon his request in writing, filed with the local registrar, a judge, or deputy judge of the county court of the county, after approval by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, may act as such local master and while so acting shall have all the powers and may perform all the duties of such local master. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 89.

DEPUTY REGISTRARS, EX OFFICIO.

Deputy Registrars.

90. Where a judge of the county court is the local master, the clerk of that court shall be the deputy registrar unless another person is appointed to that office. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 90.

This section would have no application in a county where there is a Local Registrar: see notes to s. 76, and ss. 91 93.

CONSOLIDATION OF OFFICES OF DEPUTY CLERK OF CROWN AND PLEAS AND DEPUTY REGISTRAR.

Local Registrars.

91. The offices of the deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas, and deputy registrar (not local master) may be consolidated as vacancies occur in either of them, and when they are held by the same person, he shall be styled local registrar. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 91.

LOCAL REGISTRARS, EX OFFICIO.

Clerks of District Courts to be Local Registrars.

92. Unless another person is appointed, the clerk of the district court shall ex officio be local registrar for his district. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 92.

CLERKS OF COUNTY COURTS TO BE DEPUTY CLERKS OF CROWN AND PLEAS.

Deputy Clerks of the Crown and Pleas.

93. Except in the County of York, and unless another person is appointed, the clerk of the county court shall ex officio be deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas for his county, unless the offices of deputy clerk and deputy registrar are consolidated under section 91. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 93.

SALARIES OF DEPUTY CLERKS OF THE CROWN AND PLEAS.

Salaries of Deputy Clerks of the Crown and Pleas.

94.—(1) Every deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas shall be paid out of any money appropriated for that purpose by the Legislature a yearly salary of such amount not exceeding $600 or less than $100, as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall direct.

When maximum not to apply.

(2) The maximum of $600 shall not apply where the deputy clerk does not hold the office of registrar of the surrogate court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 94.

FEES OF OFFICERS ATTENDING SITTINGS.

Fees for attending sittings for trial.

95.—(1) Every local registrar, deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas, and deputy registrar, and every officer authorized to act as local registrar, deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas, or deputy registrar, shall be entitled to be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund $4 for each day's attendance at non-jury as well as at jury sittings. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 95.

STENOGRAPHIC REPORTERS.

Stenographic reporters.

96.—(1) The stenographic reporters shall be officers of the court to which they are appointed, and shall perform such other duties as may be assigned to them by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council or by the Rules.

Reporter's oath.

(2) Every such reporter shall take and subscribe the following oath before a judge of the court to which he is appointed, and the oath shall be filed with the proper officer of that Court:—

Form.

"I (A. B.), solemnly and sincerely promise and swear that I will faithfully report the evidence and proceedings in each case in which I act as stenographic reporter. So help me God."

3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 96.

Reporters for County and Surrogate Courts.

97. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a stenographic reporter for any county court or surrogate court and the provisions of the next preceding section shall apply to a stenographic reporter so appointed. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 97.

Sec. 98.

SPECIAL EXAMINERS.

Ex officio, special examiners.

98.—(1) Every local registrar, deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas, deputy registrar, and clerk of the county court shall ex officio be a special examiner for the county for which he is appointed.

Appointment of special examiners.

(2) The Judges of the Supreme Court may appoint special examiners for the purpose of taking evidence of parties and witnesses, and a commission under the seal of the Court shall be issued to a special examiner so appointed.

Number limited.

(3) There shall be but four special examiners in Toronto, in addition to the officer or clerk at Osgoode Hall mentioned in subsection 4.

Salaried officers at Osgoode Hall not to take fees as special examiner for own use.

(4) No officer or clerk at Osgoode Hall who is in receipt of a salary as such officer or clerk from the Province shall act as a special examiner for fee or reward; but the fees payable in respect of any examination before him or for copies or certificates thereof or connected therewith shall be payable to the Crown, and not otherwise, and no such officer or clerk whose salary is so paid shall be eligible for appointment as a special examiner.

Number of special examiners.

(5) Where a vacancy occurs in the office of special examiner there shall thereafter be but three special examiners in Toronto, in addition to such officer or clerk.

Examination to be taken in presence of special examiner.

(6) Where an examination is taken by a stenographer or other person who is not a special examiner, it shall be taken in the presence of the special examiner.

Examinations not to be solicited.

(7) A special examiner shall not solicit or make request from any suitor, solicitor, or other person, or offer any inducement to have a special examination taken before him, nor shall any one do so on his behalf with his knowledge or assent, on pain of forfeiture of office.

Appointment of special examiners, pro tem.

(8) Where it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council that a local registrar, a deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas, a deputy registrar, or a clerk of a county court elsewhere than in Toronto, is infirm or ill, or is otherwise unable or unfit to act personally as special examiner, or if he is absent on leave, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint the stenographic reporter for the County Court, or some other person, to act temporarily or otherwise as such special examiner in his stead. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 98. Secs. 99-100.

An examiner appointed under this section becomes an officer of the Court, and before entering on his duties should take the oath of office as required by s. 77.

Where a stenographic reporter for the County Court is appointed a special examiner under this section he becomes an officer of the Supreme Court, and before entering on his duties as such, should take the oath of office as required by s. 77.

COMMUTATION OF FEES OF CERTAIN OFFICERS.

Commutation of fees of certain officers.

99.—(1) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may commute the fees payable to a—

(a) local master, or local registrar, or deputy registrar, including his fees as an official referee;

(b) deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas on references and examinations and other matters; for a fixed annual sum, not exceeding the average income derived from such fees during the next preceding five years.

Amount of commutation may be changed.

(2) An annual sum so fixed, and any order in council for payment of any such annual sum may be rescinded, and the amount may be increased or diminished, but in no case shall it exceed the average income or fees, as the case may be, during the next preceding five years. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 99.

Order in Council as to commutations to be laid before Assembly.

100.—(1) Every order in council determining any commutation allowance under the authority of this Act, shall be laid before the Assembly forthwith, if the Assembly is then in session, and if the Assembly is not then in session, within the first fifteen days after the opening of the next session.

Disapproval by Assembly.

(2) If the Assembly at such session, or if the session does not continue for three weeks after the order in council is laid before the Assembly, then at the next ensuing session, disapproves by resolution of such order in council, either wholly, or so far as relates to any person named in it, the Order in Council, so far as so disapproved, shall have no effect from the time of the passing of the resolution. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 100.

Secs. 101-103.

RETURNS BY CLERK OF PROCESS.

Clerk of Process to make quarterly returns.

101. The Clerk of the Process shall make to the Treasurer of Ontario quarterly returns verified by his affidavit, of all writs and process supplied by him to the local registrars, deputy clerks of the Crown and Pleas and deputy registrars to be issued by them. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 101.

INSPECTOR OF LEGAL OFFICES.

Inspector of Legal Offices.

102. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint an officer to be called "The Inspector of Legal Offices," to inspect the offices of the Master-in-Ordinary and of the other officers of the Supreme Court and of both Divisions of it at Toronto, and the offices of the sheriffs, local masters, local registrars, deputy clerks of the Crown and Pleas, deputy registrars, Surrogate Clerk, registrars of the surrogate courts, clerks of the peace, crown attorneys and clerks of the county courts, and such other offices connected with the administration of justice as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may direct. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 104.

Duties of Inspector.

103.—(1) In addition to any other duties assigned to him by any Act of this Legislature or which may be assigned to him by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, the Inspector shall—

(a) make a personal inspection of the offices mentioned in section 102 and of the books and court papers belonging to them;

(b) see that proper books are provided, that they are in good order and condition, that the proper entries and records are made therein in a proper manner, at proper times and in proper form and order, and that the court papers and documents are properly classified and preserved;

(c) ascertain that the duties of the officers are duly and efficiently performed.

(d) see that proper costs and charges only are allowed or exacted;

(e) ascertain whether uniformity of practice prevails in the offices; and Sec. 104.

(f) report upon all such matters to the Lieutenant-Governor.

(2) Where the Inspector has occasion to inquire into the conduct of any officer in relation to his official duties or acts, he may require such officer, or any other person, to give evidence before him on oath; and for that purpose he shall have the same power to summon such officer or other person to attend as a witness, to enforce his attendance and to compel him to produce books and documents and to give evidence, as any court has in civil cases. Inquiries by Inspector.

(3) The officers shall, when and as often as required by the Inspector, produce for examination and inspection all books and documents which are required to be kept by them, and shall report to the Inspector all such matters relating to any cause or proceeding as the Inspector shall require. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 105. Books, etc., to be produced for inspection.

[As to authority of Inspector to direct law stamps to be affixed to proceedings not properly stamped, see The Law Stamps Act, s. 12.]

OFFICIAL GUARDIAN.

104.—(1) No person shall be appointed Official Guardian unless he is a barrister at law and solicitor of Ontario of not less than 10 years standing. Qualification of Official Guardian.

(2) The Official Guardian shall be the guardian ad litem of infants and shall perform such other duties as may be assigned to him by the Rules. Duties.

(3) The same costs as are payable to counsel and solicitors shall be payable to the Official Guardian, but all costs paid to him by any party shall forthwith be paid into Court by the Official Guardian and shall be placed to the credit of an account to be entitled "Account of Official Guardian," and all costs payable to the Official Guardian out of any fund in Court shall be transferred to the credit of the same account. Costs payable to Official Guardian to be paid into Court.

(4) Where an estate is small, and in view of the amount at the credit of the Account of Official Guardian the amount or part of the amount payable out of the Dispensing with payment of costs out of small estates.

Sec. 104.

estate for the costs of the Official Guardian does not appear to be required to pay his salary and the disbursements of his office, the Court may direct that payment out of the estate of the whole or any part of such costs be dispensed with.

Remuneration of Official Guardian.

(5) There shall be paid to the Official Guardian for all business done and all costs in respect of it over and above all disbursements, a fixed annual salary of such sum as, in view of the amount of the business done or to be done by him and the sum at the credit of the account, the Judges of the Supreme Court deem reasonable and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council approves.

Salary and disbursements to be paid monthly.

(6) The salary and disbursements shall be paid monthly out of the money at the credit of the account, and the surplus at the credit of the account shall be transferred to the Suitors Fee Fund Account.

Deficiency to be paid out of Suitors Fee Fund Account.

(7) If in any year the amount at the credit of the account is insufficient to pay the salary and disbursements the deficiency shall be paid out of the Suitors Fee Fund Account.

Deputy Official Guardian.

(8) Subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, the Official Guardian may appoint a deputy to act for him when he may be absent from Toronto, or ill, and such deputy shall have all the powers and shall perform all the duties of the Official Guardian during any such absence or illness.

Qualification of Deputy.

(9) No person shall be appointed as such deputy unless he is a barrister at law and solicitor of Ontario of not less than 10 years standing.

Employment of solicitor out of Toronto.

(10) The Official Guardian may employ as agents, solicitors out of Toronto for the purpose of any proceeding being carried on out of Toronto, and a solicitor so appointed shall be entitled to the same costs for the work actually done by him as the Official Guardian would have been entitled to if the work had been done by him, and such costs shall be paid to the solicitor and shall be deemed to be a disbursement of the Official Guardian.

Half-yearly statement of costs received to be made and filed.

(11) The Official Guardian shall once in every six months file in the office of the Accountant a statement verified by his affidavit showing in detail all costs received by him as Official Guardian during the next preceding six months and the names of the actions and matters in which the same were received, together with the date of receipt. Sec. 104.

(12) If the Lieutenant-Governor in Council so directs, the Official Guardian shall not directly or indirectly practise the profession of the law as counsel or solicitor or act as a notary public or conveyancer or do any matter of conveyancing or prepare any paper or document to be used in any court of Ontario except in the discharge of his duties as Official Guardian or of a duty which may be assigned to him under the authority of this Act. Official Guardian not to practise if Lieutenant-Governor in Council so directs.

(13) For every contravention of the next preceding subsection the Official Guardian shall incur a penalty of $400. Penalty.

(14) Unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge the Official Guardian shall not be required to give security for the costs of any proceeding. Official Guardian not to give security for costs.

(15) The Accountant shall on or before the 15th day of January in every year transmit to the Provincial Secretary a statement certified by him to be a true statement, showing the state of the Account of Official Guardian on the 31st day of the next preceding December. Return by Accountant as to state of account of Official Guardian.

(16) When a new Official Guardian is appointed he shall ipso facto become and be by virtue of his appointment guardian ad litem of all infants in the place and stead of his predecessor with the same rights, duties and powers, and the latter or his executors or administrators shall forthwith deliver to the new Official Guardian all letters, papers, documents and books in his or their possession or power relating to matters in which such predecessor acted as official or other guardian ad litem of infants, and the new Official Guardian shall forthwith notify all persons concerned of his appointment. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 106. New Official Guardian.

By section 76, provision is made for the appointment of "an Official Guardian" by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. Under the Judicature Act, 1897, s. 157, provision was made for the appointment of the Official Guardian ad litem of infants," by the Lieutenant-Governor. Under section 76 and this section the official title of the officer in question is "The Official Guardian," and he is appointable by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. It is to be presumed that "the Official Guardian ad litem of infants," appointed under the former Act, is now "the Official Guardian," though the statute does not say so in terms.

Secs. 105, 106.

The Suitors Fee Fund Account referred to in sub-sec. 6, is that provided for by sec. 108 post.

ACCOUNTANT.

Accountant to be a corporation sole.

105.—(1) The Accountant of the Supreme Court shall be a corporation sole by the name of "The Accountant of the Supreme Court of Ontario," and as such corporation sole shall have perpetual succession and may sue and be sued and may plead and be impleaded in any of His Majesty's Courts.

Money, mortgages, etc., to be vested in Accountant.

(2) All money, mortgages, stocks, securities and property now vested in the Accountant, as such corporation sole, shall continue to be so vested in him, and all money in Court and all securities in which money paid into Court is invested shall be vested in him as such corporation sole, subject to the provisions of this Act.

Where there is no Accountant, officer designated by the Rules shall be the Accountant.

(3) Where there is a vacancy in the office of Accountant, such officer or person as may be directed by the Rules to perform the duties of the office shall be deemed to be and shall have all the powers of the Accountant.

Expenses of Accountant's office.

Surplus to be paid to suitors fee fund.

(4) The expenses of the Accountant's office including all salaries shall be the first charge on the income from the funds in Court, and the surplus income after payment of such interest on the money of suitors as by the Rules or otherwise is directed to be paid shall be transferred to the Suitors Fee Fund Account. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 107.

INVESTMENT OF COURT FUNDS.

Finance Committee of Judges.

106.—(1) The Judges of the Supreme Court may delegate to a committee of themselves appointed for that purpose, to be called The Finance Committee, the control and management of the money in Court and the securities in which it is invested and the investment of such money.

Investment of Court funds.

(2) Money paid into Court shall be invested in the name of the Accountant, or if there is no Accountant, in the name of such officer as may be directed by the Rules, and may be invested in such of the securities in which a trustee may uader The Trustee Act iuvest, as may from time to time be directed by the Judges of the Supreme Court or by the Finance Committee. Secs. 107, 108. Rev. Stat. c. 121.

(3) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may direct that aay part of such money which is available for investment shall be invested in securities issued by the Province of Ontario or in securities the paymeat of which is guaranteed by it. Investment in Provincial Securities, etc.

(4) Where an investment in debentures of a municipal corporatiou is made, the validity of the debentures shall not thereafter be open to questiou but they shall be deemed to be valid. Debentnres invested in not to be open to question.

(5) The Judges of the Supreme Court or the Finance Committee may employ a trust company to make tbe iuvestments of money paid into Court on such terms and conditions as may be agreed on. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 108. Trust corporation may be employed.

For the purpose of investing the moneys in Court, arrangements have been made by the Court with the Toronto General Trusts Corporation. These arrangements were embodied in the former J. A. Rule 521. Con. Rule 191, and Rule of 23rd March, 1895. Subject to this section, moneys in Court can only he invested in the manner provided for in those Rules, and the Conrt will not on the application of suitors authorize the investment of moneys in Court in any other way: see Re Smith's Trusts, 18 Ont. 327; Re Harrison, 18 P. R. 303.

107. All money, securities, effects and real or personal property vested in or held by the Accountant or by the Official Guardian or by any one appointed to discharge the duties of either of them shall be deemed to be vested in them in trust for His Majesty, but may, nevertheless, be paid out, sold, disposed of, assigned, conveyed or dealt with in accordance with any statute or the Rules, or with any judgment, or order of Court, or Order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council or otherwise as heretofore or as may be provided or directed by any snch statute, rules, judgmeat, order, or Order-in-Council. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 109. Money, etc., vested in Accountant, Guardian, etc., to be deemed to be held in trust for Crown.

SUITORS FEE FUND ACCOUNT.

108. The Suitors Fee Fund Account shall be kept and managed as may from time to time be directed by the Judges of the Snpreme Conrt or the Finance Committee, and any Divisional Court or any Judge of the Supreme Court may apply so much of the money at the credit of Suitors' fee fund.

Sec. 108.

the account as may be necessary for the protection of any infant or other person not sui juris or non compos mentis, on whose behalf proceedings may be had in the Court, or may be ordered to be had in another court, and may also, from time to time, order to be paid, out of the money at the credit of the account, any sum required to make good a default in respect to any suitor's money or securities from any mistake, act or omission of any officer of the Court, but such payment shall not prejudice the right to require the officer or his sureties to make good the loss occasioned by the mistake, act or omission. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 110.

Certain losses may be charged on suitors' fee fund.

The "Suitors' Fee Fund Account," which is an account formerly kept by the Court of Chancery, was first created by 20 Vict. c. 56, s. 20 (Con. Stat. U. C. c. 12, s. 73; R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 104). It was constituted by a fee of ten cents on every bill, answer, and demurrer filed; and it was provided that the account should "be kept and managed as may from time to time be directed by the Court; and the sums at the credit of such account shall be applied by the Court as may be necessary for the protection of infants and other persons not sui juris, on whose behalf proceedings may be had in the Court, or may by the Court be ordered to be had in other Courts." This section of the Revised Statute was repealed by 41 Vict. c. 8, s. 5, "so far as it directed payment of any fee to the accou[illegible]" There was then, and is still, a considerable sum at the credit [illegible] the account; and this sum, with the additions that may be made to it under sections 104 (6) and 105 (4), will continue to be applicable to the same purposes and the others mentioned in this section.

The Suitors' Fee Fund is to be resorted to if necessary for the protection of infants, but not for the purpose of relieving adult plaintiffs from their liability to pay the costs incurred on behalf of infant defendants: Re Farrell, 5 O. W. N. 455.

RULES OF COURT.

The result of sections 109 and 110 in the present Act is, that since the Act went into operation, the power of making Rules is as follows:

(1) Rules may be made by the Judges of the Supreme Court for Ontario for the several purposes mentioned in section 109.

(2) The Lieutenant-Governor may authorize the three Chief Justices and the Chancellor, and any one or more of the other Judges and the Treasurer of the Law Society and any two barristers-at-law to make Rules for any purpose under the Act, and Rules made by such persons, or any three of them, are to have the same effect as if made by all the Judges of the Supreme Court: sec. 110.

As to the power to make Rules respecting criminal procedure: see The Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146), s. 576. For certain Rules made under this power: see notes to sec. 26, supra, p. 140.

As to the virtue and effect of Rules of Court; and as to Rules which may not be considered intra vires: see Williams v. Goose, 1897, 1 Q. B. 471.

Rules of the Court are not to be construed as having a retroactive effect, so as to deprive any suitor of any vested right or interest he may have acquired at the time of their being passed: Island v. Ingersoll, 18 P. R. 3; but where they merely affect procedure, they will be held to apply to all pending actions: Ib.; Spence v. G. T. Ry., 1; P. R. 172; but see McGillivray v. Lindsay, 16 P. R. 11; Doran v. Jewell, 49 S. C. R. 88. Sec. 109.

By the Judicature Act, 1913 (3-4 Geo. V., c. 19) s. 103, it appears that the Hon. Mr. Justice Middleton was empowered to frame Rules, and tariffs of fees and disbursements, which, when approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, were to take effect as if embodied in that Act from the day named by the Lieutenant-Governor by proclamation. The Rules referred to in that section were approved and came into force on the first day of September, 1913: see Ontario Gazette, 1913, p. 981. For these Rules, and Tariffs: see post, p. 311, et seq.

RULES OF COURT.

109.—(1) The Judges of the Supreme Court may at any time amend or repeal any of the Rules and may make any further or additional Rules for carrying this Act into effect, and in particular for— Judges of Supreme Court may make rules.

(a) regulating the sittings of the Divisional Courts and of the Judges of the High Court Division sitting in Court or in Chambers; Sittings.

(b) regulating the pleading, practice, and procedure in the Supreme Court and the Divisions thereof and in the Divisional Courts, and in the county and surrogate Courts; Pleading, practice and procedure.

District Courts are included in this sub-section: see sec. 2. The Divisional Courts referred to are the Divisional Courts of the Appellate Division.

(c) allowing service out of Ontario; Service out of Ontario.

See Rules 25 et seq.

(d) prescribing the fees and charges of special examiners and stenographic reporters; Fees of special examiners and stenographic reporters.

See Tariff B, as to fees of special examiners.

(e) fixing the vacations; Vacations.

See Rule 177.

(f) empowering the Master in Chambers, or any officer sitting for him or in his stead or the judges of the county courts, other than a judge of the County Court of the County of York, or the local masters in respect of actions Empowering Master in Chambers, etc., to transact business.

Sec. 109.

brought in their counties, to do any such thing, and to transact any such business, and to exercise any such authority and jurisdiction in respect of the same as by virtue of any statute or custom, or by the Rules, are or may be done, transacted or exercised by a Judge of the High Court Division sitting in Chambers, as shall be specified in any such rule, except in respect of matters relating to—

Exceptions.

(i) the liberty of the subject;

(ii) appeals and applications in the nature of appeals;

Rev. Stat. c. 68.

(iii) proceedings under The Lunacy Act;

Rev. Stat. c. 121.

(iv) applications for advice under The Trustee Act;

(v) matters affecting the custody of children;

(vi) proceedings enabling infants to make binding settlements of their real and personal property on marriage;

Regulating practice and procedure, duties of officers, costs, etc.

(g) generally, for regulating any matters relating to the practice and procedure of the courts mentioned in clause (b), or to the duties of the officers thereof, or to the costs of proceedings therein; and every other matter deemed expedient for the better attaining the ends of justice, advancing the remedies of suitors, and carrying into effect the provisions of this Act and of all other Acts respecting such courts;

Fees payable to the Crown.

(h) subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for making rules from time to time regulating all fees payable to the Crown in respect of proceedings in any Court.

Provisions of statutes as to practice or procedure may be modified.

(2) Where any provisions in respect of the practice or procedure of any court, the jurisdiction of which is vested in the Supreme Court, are contained in any statute, Rules may be made for modifying such provisions to any extent that may be deemed necessary for adapting the same to such court unless, in the case of an Act hereafter passed, that power is expressly excluded.

Exception.

Secs. 110, 111.

(3) Any provisions relating to the payment, transfer or deposit into, or in, or out of any court of any money or property, or to the dealing therewith, shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be provisions relating to practice and procedure. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 111.

Provisions as to payment into or out of Court of money, etc.

Clause (f) See Rules 207-210.

The Judicature Act, 1897, s. 122. included among the excepted matters, "questions submitted for the opinion of the Court in the form of special cases on the part of such persons as may by themselves, their committees or guardians or otherwise concur therein;" but the Rules made under this sub-section do not appear to authorize the County Court Judges or officers named, to entertain such matters: as to County and District Court Judges, however, see post, s. 114.

Clause (g) See Rules post, passim.

Clause (h) See the Tariff B., infra; and as to power to impose fees, see Institute of Patent Agents v. Lockwood, 1894, A. C. 347; but see Cotton v. The King, 1914, A. C. 176.

Sub-section (2). To the same effect as Eng. J. A., 1875, s. 24.

See Williams v. Goose, 1897, 1 Q. B. 471.

The operation of this section is probably now very limited, as nearly all the statutory enactments regulating practice and procedure in any of the Courts existing prior to Ont. J. A., 1881, whose jurisdiction is now vested in the Supreme Court were, at the time of the Revisions of the Statutes in 1887 and 1897, intended to be embodied in the Consolidated Rules. For an instance in which the Rules varied a statute, see Jud. Act, 1897, s. 128 and former C. R. 8.

Sub-section (3). See Eng. Jud. Act, 1875, s. 24.

Lieutenant-Governor in Council may authorize certain Judges and others to make rules.

110.—(1) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may from time to time authorize the Chief Justices, including the Chancellor, if any, and any one or more of the other Judges of the Supreme Court and the Treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada and any two barristers-at-law of Ontario to make Rules under this Act; and every appointment so made shall continue for the time specified in the order in council.

Effect of rules so made.

(2) The persons so appointed, or any three of them, may make such rules, and they shall have the same effect as if made under section 109. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 112.

COUNCIL OF JUDGES.

Council of Judges.

111.—(1) A Council of the Judges of the Supreme Court, of which due notice shall be given to all of them, shall assemble once at least in every year, on such day as shall be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, for the purpose of considering the operation of this Act and of the Rules, and the working of the offices and the arrangements relative to the duties of the officers of the Court, and of enquiring and examining into any defects which may appear to exist in the system of procedure or the administration of justice in the Supreme Court or in any other court, or by any other authority.

Secs. 112, 113.

Purposes for which Council to be held.

Council to report to Lieutenant-Governor.

(2) The Council shall report to the Lieutenant-Governor what amendments or alterations, if any, it would be expedient to make in this Act, or otherwise relating to the administration of justice, and what other provision, if any, which cannot be carried into effect without legislative authority it would be expedient to make for the better administration of justice.

Extraordinary Councils.

(3) An extraordinary council for the purposes mentioned in subsection (1) may also at any time be convened by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 113.

DELEGATION OF POWERS OF JUDGES.

Delegation of powers of Judges.

112.—(1) Where by this or any other Act any power or authority is conferred upon the Judges of the Supreme Court or upon the Judges of the High Court Division as a body, they may respectively delegate such power or authority to a committee of themselves, and when it is exercised by the committee the acts done by the committee shall have the same effect as if they had been done by the body by which the committee was appointed.

Majority to be a quorum.

(2) The presence of a majority of the members of the committee shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Application of subs. (1).

(3) Subsection (1) shall not apply to the making of Rules under the powers conferred by section 109 or to a Council of the Judges provided for by section 111. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 114.

QUORUM OF MEETINGS OF JUDGES.

Quorum of meetings of Judges.

113. Where by this Act any power is conferred on the judges of the Supreme Court or of the High Court Division the power may be exercised at a meeting duly called at which in the case of the Supreme Court at least seven of the judges are present, and in the case of the High Court Division at least five of the judges are present. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 115. Secs. 114-117.

LOCAL JUDGES OF THE HIGH COURT DIVISION.

114. Except in the County of York, every judge of a county court shall be a Judge of the High Court Division for the purposes of his jurisdiction in actions in the Supreme Court; and in the exercise of such jurisdiction may be styled a Local Judge of the Supreme Court, and shall, in all causes and actions in the Supreme Court, have, subject to the Rules, power and authority to do and perform all such acts and transact all such business in respect to matters and causes in or before the High Court Division as he is or may be by statute or the Rules empowered to do and perform. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 116. County Court Judges to be local Judges of H.C.D.

Judges of District Courts are included: see supra, s. 2.

See notes to Rules 209, 210.

Under the Rules of 1897, it was held that notwithstanding anything in this section, Judges of County, and District, Courts who were Local Judges of the High Court had no jurisdiction to deal with applications under The Vendors and Purchasers Act (R. S. O. c. 122), or under The Land Titles Act (R. S. O. c. 126); Re Mitchell & The Pioneer Steam Navigation Co., 31 Ont. 542; but under the Rules as now framed, it would seem that a Judge of a County, or District, Court, would have such jurisdiction in such matters, where all parties reside in his county, or agree that the same may be heard before him: see Rule 210 (1).

SHERIFFS, ETC.

115. Sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, gaolers, constables and other peace officers, shall aid, assist and obey the Court and the Judges thereof in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, and otherwise, whenever by the Rules or by the order of the Court or of a Judge required so to do. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 117. Sheriffs, Gaolers, etc., to obey orders of the Court.

GAOLS.

116. All gaols in Ontario shall be prisons of the Court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 118. Gaols to be prisons of the Court.

OATHS AND AFFIDAVITS.

117. Every officer of the Supreme Court shall, for the purposes of any proceeding directed by a Judge of the Administration of oaths.

Secs. 118-121.

Court or by a Divisional Court to be taken before him, have power to administer oaths, to take affidavits, and to examine parties and witnesses as the Court or Judge may direct. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 119.

WITNESS FEES.

Fees of certain officers producing documents.

118. A public official or other witness subpœnaed or called upon to produce before any court or other tribunal any public or other document shall not be entitled to more than ordinary witness fees, unless the court or other tribunal otherwise orders. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 120.

PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO COUNTY COURTS.

Certain sections to apply to County Courts.

119. In addition to the provisions of this Act which are expressly made applicable to all courts or county courts or are otherwise by their terms so applicable, sections 24, 32, 34, 36, 50 to 52, 58 to 62, 71, 72, 74, 115 and 116 shall mutatis mutandis apply to the county courts. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 121.

COMMISSIONS FOR HOLDING SITTINGS, ETC.

Power to issue Commissions not to be affected.

120. This Act shall not affect the power to issue commissions for the discharge of civil or criminal business on circuit or otherwise; or the authority of a judge or a retired judge of any of the superior courts, or a judge of a county court, or one of His Majesty's Counsel learned in the law, to preside without any commission at any sittings for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues or for the trial of criminal matters and proceedings; and any such judge or counsel shall have the same authority to preside at and to hold any such sittings as a Judge of the High Court Division; and when so presiding with or without a commission, or when holding any such sittings, shall be deemed to constitute the court. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 122.

See notes to ss. 45, 49, supra.

ACCESS TO CERTAIN BOOKS.

All books in which writs, judgments, etc., are entered to be open to inspection.

121.—(1) Every person shall have access to and be entitled to inspect the books of the Supreme Court and of the county courts, containing records or entries of the writs issued, judgments entered, and chattel mortgages and bills of sale filed; and no person desiring such access or inspection shall be required, as a condition of his right thereto, to furnish the names of the parties or the style of the causes or matters in respect of which such access or inspection is sought. Secs. 122-124.

(2) Every officer having the charge or custody of any such book shall upon request produce for inspection any writ of summons or copy thereof so issued, and any judgment roll, or chattel mortgage, or bill of sale so filed in his office, or of which records or entries are, by law, required to be kept in such book. Production of writs of summons, etc.

(3) The fees payable in respect of such inspection shall be 25 cents for a general search, and 10 cents for each writ of summons, judgment roll, chattel mortgage or bill of sale inspected, and 10 cents per folio shall also be payable for all extracts, whether made by the person making the search or by the officer. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 123. Fees for inspection.

See also sec. 132, post.

PLEADINGS TO BE IN ENGLISH.

122. Writs, pleadings and proceedings in all courts shall be in the English language only, but the proper or known names of writs or other process, or technical words, may be in the same language as has been commonly used. R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 1. Writs, pleadings and proceedings to be in English.

This section is based on Imp. Statutes, 4 Geo. II. c. 26, s. 1, and 6 Geo. II. c. 14, s. 5.

DEMISE OF CROWN.

123. No action or other proceeding in any court shall be discontinued or determined by reason of the demise of the Crown, but the same shall be proceeded with as if such demise had not happened. R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 2. Demise of Crown not to affect pending proceedings.

This section is based on 1 Edw. VI. c. 7, s. 1, and 1 Anne, c. 2, s. 4. But for this provision the proceedings in an action would, on the demise of the Crown, come to an end, and have to be commenced de novo: see also R. S. C. c. 101, s. 5.

SERVICE OF PROCESS ON THE LORD'S DAY.

124. No person upon the Lord's Day shall serve or execute, or cause to be served or executed, any writ, process, warrant, order or judgment, except in cases of Service of process on the Lord's day (exception) void.

Sec. 125.

treason, felony, or breach of the peace, and the service of every such writ, process, warrant, order or judgment on the Lord's Day shall be void, and the person so serving or executing the same shall be as liable to the suit of the party grieved, and to answer damages to him for doing thereof, as if he had done the same without any writ, process, warrant, order or judgment. R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 3.

Persons serving same liable to action.

This section is based on 29 Car. II, c. 7, s. 6.

Before this Act ministerial acts done in civil actions on Sunday were valid: Pit v. Welby, 2 Bulst. 72; but since the Act service of any civil process on Sunday is absolutely void: Wilson v. Tucker, 1696, 1 Salk. 78; and cannot be validated by waiver: Taylor v. Phillips, 1802, 3 East. 155; 6 R. R. 575; but not if the service is effected through the Post: Reg. v. Leominster, infra.

A writ tested on Sunday is null and void: but if the writ is correctly tested, and the copy served is erroneously tested on Sunday, that is a mere irregularity: Corrall v. Foulkes, 1848, 5 D. & L. 590.

A pleading: Worren v. Roe, 1826, 8 D. & R. 342; Good title d. Mortimer v. No title, 1822, 2 D. & R. 232; and notice of filing a pleading: Roberts v. Monkhouse, 1807, 8 East. 547; 9 R. R. 497; a notice to produce: Hughes v. Budd, 8 Dowl. 315; and a notice of appeal: Milch v. Frankau, 1909, 2 K. B. 100; 100 L. T. 1002; Reg. v. Leominster, 1862, 2 B. & S. 391, come within the meaning of "process."

A debtor cannot be arrested on Sunday, but if he escape he may be retaken on Sunday: Anon, 1704, 6 Mod. 231, Parker v. Moore, 1705, 2 Salk. 626; but not if he has been voluntarily liberated: Featherstonehough v. Atkinson, 1735, Barnes 373, even though there be a detainer at the suit of another person in the Sheriff's hands: Atkinson v. Jameson, 1792, 5 T. R. 25. But a debtor unlawfully arrested on Sunday may on a subsequent day be validly detained under process issued by another creditor, without collusion: In re Romsden, 1846, 15 L. J. M. C. 113; Hooper v. Lane, 1857, 6 H. L. Cas. 443.

An arrest made, or process served, on Sunday, may be set aside on motion, and the prisoner discharged: Atkinson v. Jameson, supra; and an action will lie against the Sheriff for trespass: Wilson v. Gutsery, 1695, 5 Mod. 95; 1 Salk. 78.

An arrest for contempt of Court may be validly made on Sunday: Ex p. Whitchurch, 1792, 1 Atk. 55.

A distress made on Sunday is within the Act: per Mathew, J., in Werth v. London & Westminster Loan Co., 5 T. L. R. 521, 522; and see Child v. Edwards, 1909, 2 K. B. 753.

A notice to quit is not "process," and may be validly served on Sunday: Songster v. Noy, 16 L. T. 157.

ACTIONS ON BONDS.

In actions on bonds, etc., plaintiff may assign as many breaches as he pleases.

125.—(1) In an action commenced or prosecuted in any court upon a bond for non-performance of any covenant or agreement in any indenture, deed or writing, the plaintiff may assign as many breaches as he thinks fit.

Sec. 125.

and, upon trial of such action, not only such damages and costs as have heretofore been usually assessed shall be assessed, but also damages for such of the breaches so assigned as the plaintiff upon the trial of the issues shall prove, and the like judgment shall be entered as heretofore in such action.

Damages may be assessed.

In what case if judgment for plaintiff, he may suggest as many breaches as he pleases.

(2) If judgment is given for the plaintiff by confession or default he may suggest as many breaches of the covenants and agreements as he thinks fit, and the damages that he shall have sustained thereby shall be assessed; and if the defendant after such judgment entered, and before any execution executed, pays into the court in which the action is brought to the use of the plaintiff such damages so to be assessed by reason of all or any of the breaches of such covenants or agreements, together with the costs of suit, a stay of execution on the judgment shall be entered upon record.

Defendant paying damages and costs, execution may be stayed.

Judgment to remain to answer any further breach.

(3) If, by reason of any execution executed the plaintiff or his executors or administrators are fully paid or satisfied, all such damages so to be assessed, together with his or their costs of suit, and all reasonable charges and expenses for executing the execution, the body, land or goods of the defendant shall be thereupon forthwith discharged from the execution, which shall likewise be entered upon record; but such judgment shall, nevertheless, remain, continue, and be as a further security to answer to the plaintiff and his executors or administrators such damages as shall or may be sustained for further breach of any covenant or agreement in the same indenture, deed or writing contained upon which the plaintiff may apply to the court in which judgment is entered for leave to issue execution upon the judgment against the defendant, or his executors or administrators, suggesting other breaches of the covenants or agreements, and to call upon him or them to show cause why execution shall not be awarded upon the judgment, upon which the court shall make such order as may be deemed just.

And plaintiff may apply to issue execution against defendant.

And so toties quoties.

(4) Upon payment or satisfaction of such future damages, costs and charges all further proceedings on the judgment are again to be stayed, and so toties quoties.

Sec. 125.

and the defendant, his body, land or goods shall be discharged out of execution. R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 4.

Common Law rule as to bonds.

Originally the penal sum mentioned in a bond was recoverable on default at Common Law; but Courts of Equity established a practice of relieving the obligor in certain cases from payment of the penalty, on his paying the amount intended to be secured. In order to save obligors the necessity of going into Equity for relief, two statutes were passed, viz.: 8-9 W. 3, c. 11, s. 8, from which this section is derived; and 4 & 5 Anne c. 3 (c. 16, according to Ruffhead), ss. 12, 13 (from which s. 129 post is derived), so that thereafter an obligor might obtain the same relief at law as he could in equity. This section applies to all bonds given to secure the performance of divers acts or obligations. It does not apply to bonds given for the performance of a single act, for in such cases, only one breach can be assigned: see per Bramwell, B., Preston v. Dania, L. R. 8 Ex. at p. 21; and see 1 Saund. Plg. (5th Am. ed.), 651.

Bonds not within sec. 125.

A bond conditioned for payment of a sum certain is not within this section: Murray v. Lord Stair, 2 B. & C. 90; nor is a bail bond: Moody v. Pheasant, 2 B. & P. 446; McNamee v. Reilly, 13 U. C. Q. B. 197; nor a bond conditioned not to trespass: Strickland v. Williams, 1899, 1 Q. B. 382; 80 L. T. 4, the penalty in such a case being liquidated damages; neither is a replevin bond: Bletcher v. Burn, 24 U. C. Q. B. 259, under C. R. 1073, such a bond was within the statute, but that Rule has not been continued. An appeal bond is within this section: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175.

A bond for the payment of a sum of money by instalments is within this section: Star Life v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151; but a bond for payment of a sum of money subject to a condition that a smaller sum, if punctually paid by instalments, would be accepted in satisfaction, is not: see Bonafous v. Rybot, 3 Burr. 1370; because that is not a condition against which a Court of Equity would relieve.

Procedure in actions on bonds within sec. 125.

In all respects, other than the matters mentioned in this section, the practice and proceedings in an action on a bond are the same as in an ordinary action: Star Life, etc. v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151; Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175. Where the action is brought on a bond, which is within this section, the indorsement of the writ should claim the full amount of the penalty, and allege the breach or breaches and claim execution for the amount due in respect thereof. In the event of default of appearance, a statement of claim appears to be necessary, which should set out the condition and specify the breaches, and in default of defence, judgment, it would seem, must be obtained, by motion for judgment under Rule 356, not under Rule 355: Star Life v. Southgate, supra, and will be for the full amount of the penalty, but should conclude with an allegation of the condition, and of the alleged breach, and a direction to assess the damages in respect thereof in such way as may be thought proper under Rule 39: Ib. When the action comes on for assessment of damages, the damages in respect of the breaches for which execution is to be issued will be assessed:

Ib. Upon the damages being assessed, the judgment should be entered reciting the assessment and directing execution to issue for the amount thereof and costs.

For forms of judgment, see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 884-887.

SET OFF.

Mutual debts to be set one against the other.

126. Where there are mutual debts between the plaintiff and defendant, or, if either party sue or be sued as executor or administrator, where there are mutual debts between the testator or intestate and either party one debt may be set against the other. R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 5.

This section is founded on 2 Geo. II. c 22, s. 13.

Set-off and counter-claim.

Set-off and counterclaim in our practice remain in their nature different, a set-off may be a defence, but a counterclaim cannot. The latter is in effect a cross action for relief, which cannot be obtained in the plaintiff's action; and the costs of an action and counterclaim are usually dealt with as if they were separate actions—whereas, a set-off where proved is not only a defence to the plaintiff's action, but if it exceed the plaintiff's claim the defendant is entitled under sec. 128 infra, to judgment for the excess against the plaintiff: see Gates v. Seagram, 19 O. L. R. 216.

Mutual debts may be set off although one accrues by reason of penalty.

127.—(1) Mutual debts may be set against each other, notwithstanding that such debts are deemed in law to be of a different nature, except where either of the debts shall accrue by reason of a penalty contained in any bond or specialty.

Judgment only for balance due after set off.

(2) Where either the debt for which the action is brought, or the debt intended to be set against the same, has accrued by reason of any such penalty the debt intended to be set off shall be pleaded, and it shall be shown by the pleading how much is truly and justly due on either side; and if the plaintiff recovers in any such action judgment shall be entered for no more than shall appear to be truly and justly due to the plaintiff after one debt being set against the other. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 6.

This section is based on 8 Geo. II. c. 24, s. 5.

See note to preceding section. The proper judgment, where the defendant proves a set-off equalling the plaintiff's claim, is one dismissing the action; and, if the set-off exceeds the plaintiff's claim, there should also be judgment for the defendant for the excess. Where a set-off is pleaded by way of counter-claim it should be treated as a defence: Gates v. Seagram, supra.

Defendant to be entitled to judgment for balance due after set off.

128. If, upon a defence of set off, a larger sum is found to be due from the plaintiff to the defendant than is found to be due from the defendant to the plaintiff the defendant shall be entitled to judgment for the balance remaining due to him. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 7.

Secs. 129, 130.

No similar provision to this is found in the English statutes of set-off. Its origin in this province is to be found in 11 Geo. IV. c. 5, whence it passed into the Common Law Procedure Act, 1856. For the subsequent history of this section: see Gates v. Seagram, 22 O. L. R. 216, per Osler, J.A., at p. 222.

PAYMENT POST DIEM.

Plea of payment in bar in action of debt, etc.

129. Where an action is brought upon any bill, or where action is brought upon any judgment, if the defendant has paid the money due upon such bill or judgment such payment may be pleaded in the action, and where an action is brought upon a bond which has a condition or defeasance to make void the same upon payment of a lesser sum at a day or place certain, if the obligor, his heirs, executors or administrators have, before the action brought, paid to the obligee, his executors or administrators the principal and interest due by the condition or defeasance of such bond, though such payment was not made strictly according to the condition or defeasance, yet it may nevertheless be pleaded in such action, and shall be as effectual a bar thereof as if the money had been paid at the day and place according to the condition or defeasance and had been so pleaded. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 8.

This and section 130 are based on 4-5 Anne c. 3 (c. 16 in Ruffhead), ss. 12, 13, and are in pari materia with s. 125, supra.

See note to that section; and for some observations on this section see Bonafous Rybot, 3 Burr. 1370; Preston v. Denia, L. R. 8 Ex., at p. 21; and Re Dixon, Heynes v. Dixon, 1900, 2 Ch. 561; 83 L. T. 129.

Where the bond is conditioned for the payment of a sum of money on a specified day, and is subject to a condition that if a lesser sum is punctually paid in instalments, it will be accepted in satisfaction, payment post diem will be a defence: see Bonafous v. Rybot, supra.

Principal, interest, and costs brought into court pending action upon bond.

130. If, at any time pending an action upon any bond with a penalty, the defendant brings into the court all the principal money and interest due on such bond, and also all such costs as have been expended in any suit upon such bond, the money so brought in shall be deemed and taken to be in full satisfaction and discharge of the bond, and the court may give judgment to discharge every such defendant of and from the same accordingly. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 9.

This section is based on 4-5 Anne c. 3 (c. 16 in Ruffhead), s. 13. See note to s. 129, supra.

Secs. 131-133.

ACCOUNT BY JOINT-TENANTS.

Proviso for actions of account by and between joint tenants as bailiffs, etc.

131. Actions of account shall and may be brought and maintained against the executors and administrators of a guardian, bailiff and receiver, and also by one joint-tenant and tenant in common, his executors and administrators, against the other as bailiff for receiving more than comes to his just share or proportion, and against the executor and administrator of such joiut-tenant or tenant in common. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 10.

This section is based on 4-5 Anne c. 3 (c. 16, according to Ruffhead), s. 27. At Common Law the action of account authorized by this section would not lie for want of privity between the parties, nor is there any trust or agency: see Woodfall's Landlord and Tenant (19th ed.), p. 15.

RECORDS OF COURT.

Persons entitled to search and to copies of records of courts.

132. A person affected by any record in any court, whether it concerns the King or other person, shall be entitled, upon payment of the proper fee, to search and examine the same, and to have an exemplification or a certified copy thereof made, and delivered to him by the proper officer. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 11.

This section is based on 46 Edw. III.; see the petition of Algernon Sidney, State Tracts 266. It was at one time doubted whether a person accused and acquitted of a criminal charge, was entitled, as of right, to an exemplification or certified copy of the proceedings shewing his acquittal, or whether it might be lawfully refused, unless the fiat of the Attorney-General was first obtained: see Reg. v. Ivy, 24 C. P. 78; Hewitt v. Cane, 26 Ont. 133; but see contra: O'Hara v. Dougherty, 25 Ont. 347; Rex v. Scully, 2 O. L. R. 315; 4 O. L. R. 394. In none of these cases except the last, do the provisions of this statute appear to have been noticed by the counsel, or the Court. The last case seems to settle that under this section the right of a person affected by the proceedings of a Court or Justice to a copy of the record thereof is ex debito justitiæ, and is not subject to the discretion of the Attorney-General, or any other functionary.

See supra, sec. 121.

PERPETUATING TESTIMONY.

Actions to perpetuate testimony may be brought by persons claiming offices, titles, etc., contingent on future events.

133. Any person who would, under the circumstances alleged by him to exist, become entitled, upon the happening of any future event, to any office or to any estate or interest in any property, real or personal, the right or claim to which cannot by him be brought to trial before the happening of such event, shall be entitled to maintain an action in the Supreme Court to perpetuate any testimony which may be material for establishing such claim or right; and all laws, rules and regulations, not contrary to the provisions of this section, in force or in use in suits to perpetuate testimony, or respecting depositions taken in such actions in making such depositions, shall be in force and used and applied in all suits instituted under the authority of this section and in respect to depositions taken in such action. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 14.

Secs. 134, 135.

This section is based on the Imp. Stat. 5-6 Vict. c. 69, s. 1:

The Act as it appeared in R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 14, had, prior to the word "office" in the third line, the words "any honour, title, dignity or." The omission of these words from this section would probably prevent an action to perpetuate testimony in reference to "any honour, title, or dignity," unless the honour, title or dignity can be associated with the ownership of land in Ontario which, in view of the fact that many younger sons of the nobility come to Canada, may possibly at some time prove inconvenient. It may be noticed that the side note does not agree with the text.

Attorney-General to be party defendant in all such actions in which the King may have any estate or interest.

134. In all actions which may be so instituted under the authority of section 133 touching any office, or any other matter or thing in which His Majesty may have any estate or interest, it shall be lawful to make the Attorney-General a party defendant thereto; and in all proceedings in which the depositions taken in any such action in which the Attorney-General was so made a defendant may be offered in evidence, such depositions may be admissible notwithstanding any objection to such depositions upon the ground that His Majesty was not a party to the action in which such depositions were taken. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 15.

See note to sec. 133.

SPECIAL CASE—INDEMNITY TO PESONS ACTING UNDER JUDGMENT ON.

Protection to be afforded to trustees by declaration.

135. Any executor, administrator, trustee or other person making any payment or doing any act in conformity with the declaration contained in any judgment made upon a special case shall in all respects be as fully and effectually protected and indemnified by such declaration as if such payment had been made or act done under or in pursuance of the express order of the court made in a suit between the same parties instituted by writ of summons, save only as to any right or claim of any person in respect of matters not determined by such declaration. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 16. Secs. 136, 137.

See Rule 126 and notes.

136. The filing of a special case shall be taken to be a lis pendens. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 17. Special case to be a lis pendens.

Although this section constitutes a special case a lis pendens, it does not in any way obviate the necessity of registering a certificate of it under The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 124), in order to constitute notice of it to other persons dealing with any land affected thereby.

CONTEMPT.

137.—(1) When any person has been directed by any judgment or order to execute any deed or other instrument, or make a surrender or transfer, and has refused or neglected to execute such deed, or instrument, or make, such surrender or transfer, and has been committed to prison under process for such contempt, or, being confined in prison for any other cause, has been charged with or detained under process for such contempt, and remains in such prison, the court may, upon affidavit that such person has, after the expiration of fourteen days from the time of his being committed under, or charged with, or detained under such process, again refused to execute such deed or instrument, or make such surrender or transfer, order or appoint an officer of the court to execute such deed or other instrument, or to make such surrender or transfer for and in the name of such person. Court may appoint person to execute instrument for person in contempt.

(2) The execution of such deed or other instrument, and the surrender or transfer in his name made by such officer, shall in all respects have the same force and validity as if the same had been executed or made by the party himself. Effect of instrument.

(3) Within ten days after the execution or making of any such deed or other instrument, or surrender or transfer, notice thereof shall be given by the adverse solicitor to the party in whose name the same is executed or made: and such party, as soon as the deed or other instrument, surrender or transfer is executed or made, shall be considered as having cleared his contempt, except as far as regards the payment of the costs of the contempt, and shall be entitled to be discharged from custody, and the court shall make such order as shall be Notice to be given.

Secs. 138, 139.

deemed just touching the payment of the costs of or attending any such deed, surrender, instrument or transfer. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 18.

This section is based on Imp. Stat., 11 Geo. IV. & 1 W. IV. c. 36, s. 15, s.-s. 15.

The object of this section is to do away with the difficulty which formerly existed, where a person contumaciously refused to execute a deed when ordered by the Court so to do. Formerly, the only remedy was to keep the disobedient person in gaol, but, under this section, the act may be ordered to be done in the name of the contemnor by some officer of the Court, and when so done it is to have the same effect as if done by the contemnor himself. The procedure laid down in sub-section (1) should be carefully observed.

See Rule 551 and notes and s. 139 post.

Power of sequestrator in cases of contempt.

138.—(1) Where a person is committed for a contempt in not delivering to any person, or depositing in court or elsewhere, as by any order may be directed, books, papers or any other articles or things, any sequestrator appointed under any commission of sequestration shall have the same power to seize and take such books, papers, writings or other articles or things, being in the custody or power of the person against whom the sequestration issues, as he would have over his own property; and thereupon such articles or things so seized and taken shall be dealt with by the court as shall be deemed just.

Power of Court to discharge.

(2) After such seizure the court may, upon the application of the prisoner or of any other person in the cause or matter, or upon any report, make such order for the discharge of the prisoner upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as the court may deem proper. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 19.

This section is based on Imp. Stat., 11 Geo. IV. & 1 W. IV. c. 36, s. 15, s.-s. 16.

See Rules 547-549 and notes.

Court may compulsorily discharge prisoners confined for contempt.

139. Where any person committed for a contempt is entitled to his discharge upon applying to the court, but omits to make such application, the court may, upon any such report, compulsorily discharge such person from the contempt and from custody, and pay the costs of the contempt out of any funds belonging to him over which the court may have power, or make them costs in the cause as against him. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 20.

This section is based on Imp. Stat. 11 Geo. IV. & 1 W. IV. c. 36, s. 15, s.-s. 18.

Sections 137, 139 were framed when a person in contempt could not be discharged until he had cleared his contempt completely, i.e., by doing the act required to be done by him, and also by paying the costs occasioned by his contempt. But since the Act was originally passed, The Fraudulent Debtors' Arrest Act (R. S. O. c. 83), was passed, which practically abolishes imprisonment merely for the non-payment of money, and as a contemnor can no longer be committed for contempt in not paying costs; see s. 13 of that Act, quære, can a contemnor now be detained in custody where he has in all other respects cleared his contempt, except the payment of costs?

Secs. 140, 141.

At all events this section enables the Court to order such costs to be paid out of any property of the contemnor in the control of the Court.

CHARGING ORDERS ON STOCKS, ETC.

Stock and shares in public funds, and public companies, belonging to the debtor, and standing in his own name, to be charged by order of a Judge.

140. If a person against whom a judgment has been entered up in any of His Majesty's Courts in Ontario, has any Government stock, funds or annuities, or any stock or shares of or in a public company in Ontario, whether incorporated or not, standing in his name in his own right, or in the name of any person in trust for him, a judge of the Supreme Court, on the application of any judgment creditor, may order that such stock, funds, annuities, or shares or such of them or such part thereof respectively as he shall think fit shall stand charged with the payment of the amount for which judgment has been so recovered, and interest thereon, and such order shall entitle the judgment creditor to all such remedies as he would have been entitled to if such charge had been made in his favour by the judgment debtor; but no proceedings shall be taken to have the benefit of such charge until after the expiration of six months from the date of such order. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 21.

This section is based on Imp. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 14.

Order of Judge to be made in the first instance ex parte, and on notice to the bank or company to operate as an injunction.

141.—(1) Every such order shall be made in the first instance ex parte and without any notice to the judgment debtor, and shall be an order to show cause only; and such order, if any Government stock, funds or annuities standing in the name of the judgment debtor in his own right or in the name of any person in trust for him are to be affected, shall restrain any transfer thereof being made in the meantime and until such order has been made absolute or discharged; and if any stock or shares of or in any public company standing in the name of the judgment debtor in his own right or in the name of any person in trust for him nro to be affected by any such order, shall in like manner restrain such public company from permitting a traasfer thereof.

Liability of persons disregarding order.

(2) If, after notice of such order to tho person to be restrained thereby, or, in case of corporations, to any authorized agent of such corporation, and before the same order is discharged or mado absolute, such corporation or person permits any such transfer to be made, the corporation or person so permitting such trausfer shnll be liable to the judgment creditor for the value or amount of the property so charged and so transferred, or such part thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy his judgment; and no disposition of the judgment debtor in the meantime shall be valid or effeotual as against the judgment creditor.

When order absolute.

(3) Unless the jndgment debtor, within a time to be mentioned in such order, shows to a Judge sufficient cause to the contrary the order shall after proof of notice thereof to the jndgment debtor, his solicitor or agent, be made absolute.

Varying or discharging orders.

(4) Any such Judge, upon the application of the jndgment debtor or any person interested, may dischnrge or vary such order and award such costs upon such application as he may think fit. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 22.

This section is based on Imp. Stat. 1-2 Vict. c. 110, s. 15.

The application under section 141 would appear to be proper to be made in the action in which the judgment was recovered which is sought to be made a charge.

Provisions as to property of judgment debtors defined and extended.

142.—(1) Sections 140 and 141 shall extend to the interest of a judgment debtor, whether in possessiou, remainder, or reversion, and whether vested or contingent as well in any such stocks, funds, annuities or shares, as also in the dividends, interest or annual produce of any snch stock, funds, annuities or shares.

Order affecting funds in Court.

(2) Where any such judgment debtor has any estate, right, title or interest, vested or contingent, in possession, remainder, or reversion in or to stocks, funds, annuities or shares standing in the name of the Accountant of the Supreme Court or in or to the dividends, interest or annual produce thereof, such Judge may make any order as to such stock, funds, annuities or shares, or the interest, dividends or annual produce thereof, in the same way as if the same had been standing in the name of a trustee of such judgment debtor. Sec. 143.

(3) No order of any Judge as to any stock, funds, annuities or shares standing in the name of the Accountant, or as to the interest, dividends or annual produce thereof, shall prevent any incorporated bank or any public company from permitting any transfer of such stocks, funds, annuities or shares, or payment of the interest dividends or annual produce thereof, in such manner as the Supreme Court may direct, or shall have any greater effect than if such debtor had charged such stock, funds, annuities or shares, or the interest, dividends, or annual produce thereof, in favour of the judgment creditor with the amount of the sum mentioned in any such order. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 23. Effect of such order.

This section is based on Imp. Stat. 3-4 Vict. c. 82, s. 1.

PENAL ACTIONS.

143.—(1) In any penal action brought in good faith in which the defendant sets up a prior judgment the plaintiff may reply in avoidance of such judgment that such prior judgment was had by covin or collusion; and no release by any person before or after action for a penalty shall be a ground for staying such action. In penal action if prior judgment set up, plaintiff may reply fraud.

(2) No plaintiff in any such action shall be permitted to set up by way of reply, or otherwise, any such charge of covin or collusion, where the merits of the matter in question in the action, or a like charge of covin or collusion, have been once tried and found either for or against the plaintiff. R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 27. Exception.

This section is founded on 4 Hen. VII. c. 20.

Not only is a judgment recovered in a prior action a bar, but the bringing of a prior action which is pending also operates as a bar to a subsequent action, unless as mentioned in this section such prior judgment or action is fraudulent or collusive and merely brought to protect the defendant: see Forbes v. Samuel, 1913, 3 K. B. 706; 109 L. T. 599.

Where a plaintiff in a penal action founds his claim on the wrong statute an amendment will not be readily allowed: Ib.

QUO WARRANTO PROCEEDINGS.

Quo warranto, writ of, superseded, in certain cases,—proceedings in lieu of.

146.—(1) Except in the cases mentioned in sections 149 and 150, all proceedings against any person who unlawfully claims or usurps, or is alleged unlawfully to claim or to usurp any office, franchise or liberty, or who has forfeited or is alleged to have forfeited any franchise, by reason of non-user or mis-user thereof, which have heretofore been instituted or taken by writ of quo warranto, or by information in the nature of a writ of quo warranto, hereafter shall be instituted and taken, where the proceeding is by the Attorney-General ex officio, by notice of motion calling on the person against whom the proceeding is taken to show cause why he unlawfully exercises or usurps such office, franchise or liberty. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 31.

Motion, or order nisi.

Where relator named, proceedings how framed.

(2) Where the proceeding is at the instance of a relator it shall be taken in the name of His Majesty on the relation of such person, and such person shall before serving the notice of motion give security for the due and effectual prosecution thereof in like manner as nearly as may be and in the like amount as is, according to the practice of the Supreme Court, required to be given on an application to quash a conviction or order made by a Justice of the Peace, or in such manner and amount as the court may direct. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 32.

Relator to give security.

The proceedings under this section are probably intended to be instituted by an originating notice: see Rule 10; and: see Rules 215 (2). This section is intended to apply to all public officers subject to Provincial jurisdiction, except those referred to in section 149, viz., municipal, and school officers.

Security for Costs.—As to the security for costs required to be given by relators, on such applications: see Jud. Act, s. 63, sub-sec. 7 (b).

Secs. 147-150.

Issue may be directed, or injunction etc., granted.

147. The court may direct an issue for the trial of the matters in question on any such application, and may grant an injunction or a mandatory order in aid of the proceedings, or for the purpose of enforcing the judgment or order which shall be pronounced thereon. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 33.

Practice and appeals.

148. The practice and procedure, including the right of appeal, shall be, in all other respects, in accordance with the ordinary practice and procedure of the Supreme Court. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 34.

Municipal and school officers.

149. Where it is intended to call in question the right of any person claiming to be a municipal officer, or an officer of a school corporation, to the office which he claims to hold, exercise or occupy as such officer, or the right of a member of any school board or school corporation to have, hold or enjoy any office, either as a member of such board or corporation or otherwise under the school laws of Ontario, and the provisions of section 150 do not apply to the trial and determination of such question, the matter shall be tried and determined by the judge of the county court of the county in which the duties of the office are to be performed, in a summary manner, and the proceedings shall be the same, as nearly as may be, as those provided for trying and determining a complaint respecting the validity or mode of conducting the elections of school trustees in an urban municipality, excepting that such Judge shall have the same power to award costs to either party to the proceedings as he would have if the same were a proceeding in the County Court. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 35.

This section does not apply to controverted municipal elections: see s. 150; for these a special procedure is provided: see The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), s. 160, et seq; nor does it apply to Public School Trustees: see The Public School Act (R. S. O. c. 266), s. 54 (11), nor to Separate School Trustees: see The Separate Schools Act (R. S. O. c. 270), s. 43.

Where other special statutory provision, this Act not to apply.

150. Nothing in the next preceding section shall apply to or affect the proceedings in cases for which special provision is made by the municipal or school laws of Ontario, but in all such cases the proceedings shall be instituted and taken in the manner provided by those Acts, and not otherwise. R.S.O. 1897, c. 324, s. 36.

See note to s. 149.

Sec. 151.

CERTAIN PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE NOT AFFECTED.

Act not to apply to criminal matters or Dominion controverted elections.

151. Nothing in this Act shall affect the practice or procedure in criminal matters, or matters connected with Dominion controverted elections. 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 124.

See Eng. J. A. 1875, ss. 19, 21; Rules S. C. 1875, O. 62.

As to what are criminal proceedings: see Seaman v. Burley, 75 L. T. 91; Southport v. Birkdale, 76 L. T. 318: O'Shea v. O'Shea, 15 P. D. 59; Ellis v. The Queen, 22 S. C. R. 7; Rex v. Bennett, 4 O. L. R. 207; Copeland-Chatterson Co. v. Business Systems, 16 O. L. R. 481; Rex v. Justices of Wilts, 1912, 1 K. B. 566; 106 L. T. 364: and see Rex v. Woodhouse, 1906, 2 K. B. at p. 541-2 as to jurisdiction as to costs in proceedings for certiorari, or prohibition; and see notes to s. 74, supra.

Proceedings for contempt of Court in a civil action were at one time considered to be in the nature of criminal proceedings, but it has been settled by the House of Lords that they are not: see Scott v. Scott (1913), A. C. 417; 109 L. T. 1.

In Reg. v. Cushing, 26 Ont. App. at p. 250, Osler, J.A., said: "The jurisdiction of the High Court to review convictions made under Provincial Acts, when brought before it on certiorari, to the same extent and in the same manner as summary convictions under a Dominion Act, seems not to be interfered with: see Judicature Act, 1897, sec. 25. The practice in that respect followed in the High Court Division as to both classes of convictions is the same: see supra, s. 63, and C. RR. 1279-1288, in note to s. 26, supra.

The High Court Division is a continuation of the former High Court of Justice and has the same jurisdiction in Dominion Controverted Election matters as the former Courts of Law and Equity had under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act of 1874: The Dominion Controverted Elections Act (R. S. C. c. 7) s. 2 (i); Mitchell v. Cameron, 8 S. C. R. 126, reversing S. C. 1 Ont. 433. See also Re N. York, 32 C. P. 458, and Re Russell, 1 Ont. 439, and Holmested's Election Rules.

CHAPTER I.

INTERPRETATION.

Date of coming into force of Rules.

1. These Rules shall take effect on the 1st day of September, 1913. C.R. 1.

The expresion "Rules of Court," when ueed in relation to any Court, mean Rules made hy the authority having for the time being power to make Rules or Orders regulating the practice and procedure of euch Court: The Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1) s. 8; and the power of the said authority to make Rules of Court, as above defined, includes a power to make Rules of Court for the purpose of any Act directing or authorizing anything to be done hy Rulee of Court: Ib., s. 8 (37).

These Rules were prepared hy the Hon. Mr. Juetice Middleton under instructions from the Attorney-General of Gntario, and were approved hy His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council under the authority of The Jud Act, 3 Geo V., c. 19, s. 103, and under that section have tha force of an Act of the Legislature, and supereede the former Rules and tariffe theretofore in force, hut the eame are suhject to be varied or repealed from time to time hy the same authority and in the eame manner as other Rules of Court: eee Jud. Act, ss. 109, 110, supra.

It, therefore, doee not appear to be poeeible to question the velidity of any of these Rules on the ground that the Commissioner exceeded his authority, ae was done in Williams v. Goose, 1897, 1 Q. B. 471.

Former practice superseded.

2. All Rules and orders heretofore passed are rescinded, except those mentioned in the schedule hereto, and as to all matters not provided for in these Rules, the practice shall be regulated by analogy thereto. C.R. 2 and 3.

Matters unprovided for.

For cases in which the latter part of this Rule has been applied: see Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645; Flett v. Way, 14 P. R. at p. 315; Ladies' Tailoring Ass'n v. Clarkson, 27 C. L. J. 501; Morse v. Lamb, 15 P. R. 9, in note to Rule 121; Smith v. Houston, 15 P. R. 18, in note to Rule 396 (1); Re Murray, 13 P. R. 367, in note to Rule 706.

Criminal matters not affected.

The Rules relate merely to civil matters.

See Eng. Jud. Act, 1890, e. 4; and The Jud. Act, s. 124, and notes, supra, p. 293.

A proceeding before Jueticee to recover a penalty against a municipal hody for not supplying gae up to the proper etandard was held to be a criminal proceeding: Southport v. Birkdale, 76 L. T. 318; and see other casee cited in note to e. 124, supra, p. .

Interpretation.

The Interpretation Act and the interpretation clauses of The Judicature Act, 1895, were hy former C. R. 5 made applicahle to the former Rules unless there wes anything in the suhject or context repugnant thereto.

This provision has not been included in the present Rules. By 3-4 Geo. V. c. 19 s. 108 these Rules are "to have the same force and effect as if embodied" in The Judicature Act: see 3-4 Geo. V., c. 19, s. 103; but it may be said that that does not make the Rules an "Act" within the meaning of The Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1) ss. 29, 30. Whether therefore the interpretation clauses of The Interpretation Act, s. 29, or of The Judicature Act s. 2, supra, apply to the Rules, does not appear to be free from doubt. Rule 3.

3. In these Rules, Interpretation.

(a) "Acconntant" shall mean "The Accountant of the Supreme Court of Ontario." "Accountant."

(b) "Action" shall include garnishee proceedings and proceedings for relief by interpleader. C.R. 6. "Action."

See The Judicature Act, s. 2 (a), supra, p. 1.

(c) "County Court" shall include District Court, and "County" shall include "District." "County Court," "District Court," "County," "District."

See The Judicature Act, s. 2 (d e), supra, p. 2.

(d) "Judge" shall mean a Judge of the High Court Division of the Supreme Court. Judge.

See The Judicature Act, s. 2 (l), supra, p. 2.

By Rule 205 infra certain powers of the Court may be exercised by a Judge in Chambers, or the Master in Chambers, or a Local Judge in Chambers, or any Master or Referee to whom any cause or matter is referred.

(e) "Judgment creditor" shall mean the party or person who is entitled to receive payment or to enforce a judgment or order. "Judgment creditor."

(f) "Judgment debtor" shall mean the party or person to make payment under any judgment or order, or against whom the same may be enforced. "Judgment debtor."

(g) In Rules 533 to 599 "Judgment" shall include an order to the same effect. C.R. 835. "Judgment."

See The Judicature Act, s. 2 (m), supra, p. 2.

See Eng. (1883), R. 602.

This Rule only means that an order may be enforced in the action in the same way as a judgment. An order does not create a debt like a judgment, so as to enable an independent action to be maintained upon it: Re Kerr v. Smith, 24 Ont. 473. By The Division Court Act (R. S. O. c. 63) s. 61 (e), no action can be brought in a Division Court upon any judgment or order made by the Supreme Court or a County Court, where execution may issue upon or in respect thereof. Orders.

Rule 4.

In England it has been held that it is not intended that all orders are to be equivalent to judgments: Ex. p. Chinery, 12 Q. B. D. 342; and that the provisions respecting attachments of debts, (Rule 590 et seq.) which apply to judgments may not be employed to enforce an order dismissing an action with costs for want of prosecution: Cremetti v. Crom, 4 Q. B. D. 225; see also Ex. p. Earl of Strathmore, 20 Q. B. D. 512, Ex. p. Whinney, 13 Q. B. D. 476; Ex. p. Grimwade, 17 Q. B. D. 357; Ex p. Moore, Re Faithfull, 14 Q. B. B. 627; see, however, Nott v. Sonds, W. N. 1883, 74; Whittaker v. Whittaker, 7 P. D. 15.

As to the practice in this Province, see notes to Rules 580 and 590.

As to enforcing orders made by a Judge of the H. C. D. or of a C. C., as persona designata, and not in Court: see The Judges' Orders Enforcement Act, R. S. O. c. 79.

The non-service of an order under which an execution has been issued, is no ground for setting aside the execution: Cronston v. Blair, 15 P. R. 167.

"Sheriff."

(h) "Sheriff" shall include any Coroner, Elisor or other officer charged with the execution of any writ or process. C.R. 1102 and 892.

See R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 65.

A coroner acting as Sheriff is liable for his acts in the same way as a Sheriff: Horsfall v. Sutherland, 35 C. L. J. 245.

"Time prescribed."

(i) "Time prescribed" shall mean time limited or appointed by the Rules or by any judgment or order.

"Writ of summons."

(j) In Rules 11 to 31, the words "Writ of Summons" and "Writ" shall include any document by which proceedings are commenced, and shall also include all proceedings by which a person not a party is added as a party either before or after judgment, e.g., proceedings in the Master's office and garnishee and third party proceedings. 3 Edw. VII. ch. 8, s. 13.

"Writ of execution." "Execution."

(k) "Writ of Execution" and "execution" shall include all writs by which a judgment may be enforced, and in the Rules relating to interpleader shall also include an order of attachment under the Absconding Debtors Act. C.R. 1102, amended.

Division of Rules and marginal notes.

4. The division of these Rules into chapters, titles, and headings is for convenience only, and shall not affect their construction.

This Rule is based on C. R. 7.

But for this Rule the construction of the Rules would be controlled by the title and headings: see Inglis v. Robertson, 1898, A. C. 616; 79 L. T. 224.

CHAPTER II.

FORM AND COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS IN THE SUPREME COURT.

(1) Writ of Summons.

5.—(1) All actions shall be commenced by the issue of a writ of summons, tested in the name of the Chief Justice of Ontario, which shall be prepared by the plaintiff, and shall contain the names of the parties and the characters in which they sue and are sued, and the office in which and the time within which the defendant is to enter his appearance, and shall be indorsed with a short statement of the nature of the plaintiff's claim. C.R. 120 and 124.

Date and teste of Writ.

Defects in teste of writ.

The writ should run in the name of the reigning Sovereign; but where by mistake of the solicitor and officer of the Court, a writ issued in the name of a deceased Sovereign, the mistake was held to be merely an irregularity, and as such amendable: Bank of Hamilton v. Baldwin, 28 O. L. R. 175, and this, notwithstanding that such amendment prevented the defendant from setting up the Statute of Limitations as a bar to the action.

A clerical error in the teste is of no importance: Pleasants v. East Dereham, 47 L. T. 439; Wesson v. Stalker, 47 L. T. [illegible]. See also Rule 183.

Where the teste was "witness, , Lord High Chancellor," leaving out the name of the Lord Chancellor, the writ was held to be good: McNay v. Alt, 66 L. T. 832.

See Rule 183 as to irregularities in the teste of writs.

Absence from the Province of the Judge in whose name writs are tested, does not render it improper to teste writs in his name: Brett v. Smith, 1 P. R. 309.

Time of issue of writ.

A writ issued after the cause of action accrued, but on the same day is good. The issue of the writ is the act of the party and not of the Court, and the Court will in such case inquire as to the actual time, and not refer the act to the first moment of the day: Clarke v. Bradlaugh, 7 Q. B. D. 151; 8 Q. B. D. 63; see Lord Dorchester v. Petrie, 3 Doug. 273.

Costs.

If the plaintiff intends to claim costs, the indorsement of the writ should include a claim for costs. The costs claimed are subject to taxation: see Rule 659.

Actions generally.

Every writ must have the full title of the action, including the names of all the defendants and their addresses: State Savings Bank v. Columbia Iron Works, 6 O. L. R. 358; but need only be directed to the particular defendant or defendants intended to be served with it. Where different times have to be mentioned for different defendants to appear, the proper course is to issue concurrent writs: Traill v. Porter, 1 L. R. Ir. 60; see Burt v. Bowen, 8 T. L. R. 28.

Rule 5.

The term "action" is defined by the Act (s. 2), to be a civil proceeding commenced by writ, or in such other manner as may be prescribed by the Rules. As to the effect of this definition, see Darcy v. Whittaker, 33 L. T. 778; 24 W. R. 244; and notes to sec. 2.

There is to be no special form of writ for particular kinds of actions, such as proceedings by capias, and against absconding debtors, in dower, replevin, ejectment, etc.; all are to be commenced by writ of summons.

Proceedings appear to have been instituted by a writ of scire facias in Shaver v. Cotton, 16 P. R. 278.

Actions by the Crown with or without a relator.

An action may, by amendment of the writ and statement of claim, be turned into an action by the Attorney-General at the suit of a relator corresponding to an information under the old practice, the sanction of the Attorney-General being obtained: Caldwell v. Pogham Harbour, etc., Co., 2 Ch. D. 221; Wallasey v. Gracey, 36 Ch. D. 599; see Rule 183. The title "information" is no longer to be used: Attorney-General v. Shrewsbury Bridge, 42 L. T. 79; W. N. 1880, 23; but the name of a relator is to be used where the action does not immediately concern the rights of the Crown: see Brooks v. Terry, 4 T. L. R. 678. Where the rights of the Crown are immediately concerned, the action may be brought by the Attorney-General alone without a relator: Atty.-Gen. v. Logan, 1891, 2 Q. B. 107; but such an action can only be instituted by his sanction: see Attorney-General v. Toronto Street Railway Co., 2 Chy. Ch. 165, and his fiat should be obtained and indorsed on the writ and a copy thereof. The copy should then be filed under Rule 6.

Where the action is to enforce a public right, e.g., the proper management of a city park, it must be brought by the Attorney-General: Hope v. Hamilton Park Commissioners, 1 O. L. R. 477.

Address of defendant.

The address of the defendant is a necessary part of the writ. If omitted the writ may, in a proper case, be amended by inserting it; but where defendant lived out of Ontario, and no cause of action within Rule 25 was shewn, the writ was set aside: State Savings Bonk v. Columbia Iron Works, 6 O. L. R. 358. See also notes to Rule 7.

Indorsement of claim.

Except so far as Rule 109 (1) applies, it is irregular to proceed by statement of claim upon a different cause of action from that mentioned in the writ: see United Telephone Co. v. Tasker, 59 L. T. 852, and notes to Rule 109.

In case a mondamus, or an injunction, or a receiver is claimed, the plaintiff ought to indorse his writ accordingly, though, if the necessity for such relief arises incidentally in the course of the action, the Court has power to give the relief even if a claim for it was not indorsed on the writ: see Colebourne v. Colebourne, 1 Ch. D. 690; Norton v. Gover, W. N. 1877, 206. A defective indorsement may be amended. A general power of amending proceedings is given by Rule 183.

In an action for administration, the writ should shew that such is the nature of the action, by being entitled "In the matter of the estate of": Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 24 W. R. 317.

No very precise indorsement of the nature of the claim is required: see Rule 33. Rule 5.

A writ against A. O. & R. indorsed to have set aside a deed from A. to O., and a deed from O. to A., was held sufficient, and a motion by R. to have service on him set aside as shewing no cause of action against him was refused: Gilmore v. Orford, 11 P. R. 437.

Where a woman is made a defendant, she ought to be described in the writ as a spinster, married woman, or widow: Tofield v. Roberts, 96 L. T. Jour. 11; W. N. 1894, 74; Re Poinons, W. N. 1891, 139; where a plaintiff sues on behalf of a class it should so appear in the title of the action; a statement to that effect in the body of the statement of claim is not sufficient: Re Tottenham, 1896, 1 Ch. 628; 74 L. T. 376; sed vide McNab v. Macdonell, infra. Character of parties.

In Worraker v. Pryer, 2 Ch. D. 109, it was held by Jessel, M.R., and in Re Boyle, 5 Ch. D. 540, by Bacon, V.C., and in Adcock v. Peters, W. N. 1876, 139; 2 Charl. N. C. (Court) 288, by Malins, V.C., that in an ordinary creditors' action for administration of the real and personal estate of a deceased debtor, the action must be by the plaintiff on behalf of himself and all the other creditors; and the writ must be indorsed accordingly. In the earlier case of Cooper v. Blissett, 1 Ch. D. 691, Hall, V.C., had taken a contrary view. In the later case of Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 24 W. R. 317, Jessel, M.R., said that when it appeared in the statement of claim that the plaintiff was suing on behalf of himself and other creditors, it was not necessary to amend the writ by the insertion of these words. See also McNab v. Macdonnell, 15 P. R. 14. But it has been said: "A statement buried somewhere in the statement of claim that the plaintiff is suing on behalf of all the creditors of the testatrix, would be of no use, the statement ought to appear in the title of the action": per North, J., Re Tottenham, 1896, 1 Ch. 628; cited by Riddell, J., in Barton v. Hamilton, 13 O. W. R. at p. 1128; see notes to Rule 75, as to class suits; and Harris v. Goldfields, 28 O. L. R. 625. Action on behalf of a class.

Where a judgment for administration is applied for under Rule 608, et seq., it has not been the practice to require the style of the cause to shew that the action is on behalf of all the creditors, etc.: see also Re Blount, 27 W. R. 865.

Plaintiffs suing on behalf of a class, should specify the class as accurately as possible: Marshall v. S. Staffordshire Tramways Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 36.

A statement of the representative capacity in which a plaintiff sues cannot be supplied from allegations in plaintiff's affidavits on a motion: Hynes v. Fisher, 4 Ont. 78; but may be shewn in the statement of claim if omitted in the writ: McNab v. Macdonnell, 15 P. R. 14.

The irregularity of omitting to indorse the character in which the plaintiff sues, if a representative one, may be waived by appearing: Ib.

Where notice of action is necessary it may not be required where the principal relief sought is an injunction, and damages are only claimed as subsidiary thereto: see Flower v. Low Leyton Local Board, 5 Ch. D. 347. Notice of action.

(2) Any claim on behalf of His Majesty, including a claim to repeal letters patent under the great seal, may Action by Crown.

Rule 6.

be enforced by an action brought by the Attorney-General on behalf of His Majesty. See C.R. 238-241.

See R. S. O. 1877, c. 58, ss. 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12.

The Court may on the application of the Crown strike out a jury notice in a Crown action: Reg. v. Grant, 17 P. R. 165.

The Crown has the same right of discovery as a subject has in an ordinary action: see Atty.-Gen. v. Newcastle, 1897, 2 Q. B. 384, but is not bound to give discovery: Ib. See note to Rule 348, infra.

As to the right of reply: see Crim. Code, s. 944 (3), and Rex v. Martin, 9 O. L. R. 218. This right was reserved in civil cases by C. R. 238, but that provision has not been continued in the present Rules.

In Atty.-Gen. v. Williamson, 60 L. T. 930, the Atty.-Gen. notified the defendant that the information would not be further prosecuted, and it was held that there was no power to dismiss it for want of prosecution, or to award costs to the defendant as the cause was not determined. Quære, in Ontario.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court in regard to the cancellation of letters patent: see J. A. (1897), s. 26 (7), (8), and note, p. 18, supra.

The former C. R. 241, on which this Rule is partly based, was considered to apply only to cases where under the practice prior to The Judicature Act, 1881, a scire facias would be necessary, and not to actions by private persons to cancel a patent as having been issued through fraud or improvidence, which it was held might be still instituted by a private person, without joining, or obtaining the leave or concurrence of the Attorney-General: Farah v. Glen Lake Mining Co., 17 O. L. R. 1; Zock v. Clayton, 28 O. L. R. 447.

Officer to seal and sign writ.

6. The proper officer shall, on receiving a copy of the writ so prepared, to be filed with him, issue the writ by signing and sealing the same with his seal of office, and shall also note in the margin of the writ from what office and in what county it is issued, and shall subscribe his name thereto. C.R. 123 and 125.

Writ may issue in any county.

A writ of summons may be issued in any county. The writ in an action for recovery of land may issue out of the proper office in any county without reference to the locality of the land, though the trial must, under Rule 245, be in the county where the land lies: Canada Permanent, etc. v. Foley, 9 P. R. 273. In County Court cases an action for the recovery of land must be brought as well as tried in the County or District in which the land is: The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 59), s. 30 (2).

An action for assignment of dower is an action for the recovery of land: McCullough v. McCullough, 4 C. L. T. 252.

From what office.

Writs of summons in the county of York are issued out of the Central Office, and in other counties by either the Deputy Clerk of the Crown or Deputy Registrar at the option of the plaintiff, or in counties where there is a Local Registrar by such Local Registrar.

Issue of writs of summons.

The issue of the writ is not a judicial act and the Court will take cognizance of the fact that it was not issued till later in the day than the cause of action arose: Clarke v. Bradlaugh, 8 Q. B. D. 63.

A writ sealed but not signed was held valid: Archibold v. Strathy, 18 S. C. R. 116. Rule 7.

7. A writ for service in Ontario (either personally or in any other manner), shall be according to Form No. 1. A writ for service out of Ontario shall be according to Form No. 2. Where the defendant is not a British subject and is not in British Dominions, notice of the writ, according to Form No. 3, shall be served in lieu of the writ. C.R. 127, 128. Writ for service in, or out of, Ontario.

See Eng. (1883), RR. 5 and 7.

For Forms: see Nos. 1, 2 and 3.

A writ in the form for service within the jurisdiction will not be set aside before service because the defendant is resident without the jurisdiction, for the plaintiff may wait until he comes within the jurisdiction to serve him: The Helenslea, 7 P. D. 57; 47 L. T. 446; and see Snow v. Cole, 7 P. R. 162; Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395, 397. Writ for service within jurisdiction not irregular because defendant is out of jurisdiction.

Where a writ for service on persons domiciled within, was served on them without the jurisdiction, leave was given to issue nunc pro tunc a concurrent writ for service out of the jurisdiction, and to amend the copies served in accordance therewith: Metcalf v. Davis, 6 P. R. 275. Service of writ in wrong form.

A writ not according to the form for service out of the jurisdiction may, if served out of the jurisdiction, be set aside: Sedgwick v. Yedros Mining Co., 35 W. R. 780.

Where a writ for service on a foreigner out of the jurisdiction was served on him while within the jurisdiction on a temporary visit, a judgment signed by default of appearance was held to be regular: Snow v. Cole, 7 P. R. 162.

Where a writ for service out of the jurisdiction is issued, and the defendant is abroad, the Judge may, if the circumstances warrant substitutional service, order a copy to be served within the jurisdiction: Ford v. Shepherd, 34 W. R. 63; 53 L. T. 564; Western Suburban & N. H. B. Society v. Rucklidge, 1905, 2 Ch. 472; 93 L. T. 664. Where a writ is served substitutionally it should be in the form in which it would be required to be if personal service were being effected; i.e., if the defendant is within the jurisdiction, the writ must be one for service within the jurisdiction; and if the defendant is out of the jurisdiction, the writ, though served substitutionally within the jurisdiction, must nevertheless be in the form of one for service out of the jurisdiction: see Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784; 70 L. T. 443; and notes to Rule 25. Substitutional service.

The forms contemplate the defendant's address being stated in the body of the writ, but an incorrect statement of his address will not invalidate the writ: Smith v. Hommond, 1896, 1 Q. B. 571; but its omission, coupled with the fact that no cause of action is shewn against the defendant properly sueable in Ontario, may be a ground for setting the writ aside: State Savings Bank v. Columbia Iron Works, 6 O. L. R. 358. Address of defendant in writ.

Rule 8.

In The W. A. Scholten, 36 W. R. 559, a writ was set aside for not containing the address of defendant as prescribed by the form of writ, but the decision seems to have proceeded upon the fact that the defendant was a foreign corporation, and if the address abroad had been inserted the writ could not have been issued without leave. But see The Helenslea, 7 P. D. 57; Zuccato v. Young, 38 W. R. 474.

The last clause is adopted from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 45, and is not in the English Rule. As to the form of affidavit of service: see Bustros v. Bustros, 14 Ch. D. 849, and H. & L. Forms, Nos. 70 et seq.

Writ and notice for service out of jurisdiction.

Where a foreigner is served out of the jurisdiction, with a writ, instead of a notice as prescribed by this Rule, the service is void: Hewitson v. Fabre, 21 Q. B. D. 6.

See also notes to Rule 25.

Concurrent writs or duplicate for service within or without the jurisdiction.

8. The plaintiff may issue a duplicate writ or concurrent writ for service either within or without Ontario, tested of the same day as the original writ, and marked "duplicate" or "concurrent," and with the date of actual issue. Such writs shall only be in force during the currency of the original writ. C.R. 129, 130, 131.

See Eng. (1883) RR. 40, 41. The original writ is only in force for twelve calendar months unless renewed: see Rule 9, and notes.

Time within which concurrent or duplicate writs may issue.

By the terms of this Rule the concurrent or duplicate writ can only be issued during the period for which the original writ is current: see also Smallpage v. Yonge, 17 Q. B. D. 644; but under Rule 176 the Court or Judge may enlarge the time, and after the renewal of the original writ under Rule 9, may allow a concurrent writ to issue: Smallpage v. Yonge, supra, and Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 46 L. J. Chy. 316; W. N. 1877, 38.

Where different times are to be mentioned for different defendants to appear, the proper course is to issue concurrent writs: Traill v. Porter, 1 L. R. Ir. 60; see Burt v. Bowen, 8 T. L. R. 28; so that, that course will be proper where several defendants out of the jurisdiction are given different times to appear, or where some defendants are within, and others without the jurisdiction: see Beddington v. Beddington, 24 W. R. 348; 34 L. T. 366; 45 L. J. (P. D. & A.) 44.

Where it is sought to issue a concurrent writ for service out of the jurisdiction on a party alleged to be a necessary party to an action against a defendant resident within the jurisdiction [see Rule 25 (g)], the defendant within the jurisdiction must be first served, and an application should then be made for leave to issue a concurrent writ for service on the absent party: see Rules 25, 26, 27, and in support of the application it must be shewn that the party sought to be served out of the jurisdiction is a necessary party: Collins v. N. B. & M. Ins. Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 228; 71 L. T. 58. The omission to mark the copy served of a concurrent writ as "concurrent" is irregular: Ib. See also notes to Rule 25 (g).

Concurrent writ.

A concurrent writ may be issued after the original writ has been issued, and although there is only one defendant, and for service abroad although the original writ is for service within the jurisdiction: Smallpage v. Yonge, 17 Q. B. D. 644; cf. Wilding v. Bean, 1891,

1 Q. B. 100; but a concurrent writ for service abroad, where the original writ is for service within the jurisdiction, could not be served without an order being first obtained under Rules 25 and 26. Rule 6.

A defendant, whose domicil is within the jurisdiction, if served abroad, must be served pursuant to an order made under Rule 25; service on him of a writ in the form of a writ for service within the jurisdiction is a nullity: Grant v. Kerr, 2 O. W. N. 770; and is no longer amendable as formerly: see Metcalf v. Davis, 6 P. R. 275. Service abroad.

As to substitutional service, within the jurisdiction, of writs against defendants who are abroad: see notes to Rules 7 and 25.

Service on a defendant, within the jurisdiction, of a concurrent writ issued for service on him out of the jurisdiction was, on motion to set it aside, allowed to stand as good service: Marshall v. McTavish, 32 C. L. J. 199.

As to the provision for issuing duplicate writs: see Eng. (1883) R. 47. Introduced in Ont. in 1894 by Rule 1308 to meet the difficulty presented in Davies v. Garland, 1 Q. B. D. 250, in which it was held that only the original writ, when produced, could be renewed.

9. The writ shall be in force for twelve months from the date thereof, including the day of such date; but if for any sufficient reason any defendant has not been served, the writ may at any time before its expiration, by order, be renewed for twelve months, and so from time to time during the currency of the renewed writ. The writ shall be marked by the proper officer, "renewed," with the date of the order. C.R. 132. Writ to be in force 12 months, but may be renewed.

This Rule, in 1881, introduced an important change. Theretofore, the writ, if not served, might, as of right, during its currency, be renewed for six months from the date of renewal, and so on from time to time during the currency of the renewed writ, so as to keep the action alive without service, and thereby defeat the Statute of Limitations for an indefinite time; whereas under this Rule a writ can only be renewed by leave, and if reasonable efforts have been made to serve the defendant, or for other good reasons. The application is made ex parte: see Chitty's Arch., 14th ed., 229. Change effected by Rule.

The Forms indicate expressly that the twelve months mentioned in this Rule are calendar months.

A local Judge has jurisdiction under this clause: Gilmour v. Magee, 14 P. R. 120.

An original writ of summons, notwithstanding the expiration of 12 months mentioned in this Rule, and even though not renewed, still continues effectual for all purposes, except that of service, the limit of time applying to service only: Re Kerly, Son, & Verden, 1901, 1 Ch. 467.

The twelve months are inclusive of the day of issue, or of the last renewal, if any: Laird v. King, 19 P. R. 307; 1 O. L. R. 51.

The writ will expire at midnight preceding the anniversary of its issue: see Fitch v. Walker, 7 P. R. 8.

Rule 9.

Order for renewal.

The order, besides providing for the renewal, should also provide that service of the writ may be made notwithstanding the lapse of a year: Gilmour v. Magee, 14 P. R. 120.

The twelve months run from the date of the writ: Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 48 L. J. Chy. 318; W. N. 1877, 38; and vacation is included: see Rule 179, and Mullin v. Bonjor, 5 Ir. C. L. 475.

Enlarging time.

By Rule 178, the Court may enlarge the time for any proceeding, and although the prescribed time has elapsed. In Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, supra, Jessel, M.R., allowed a writ to be renewed after its period of currency had expired, the plaintiff not having been able to serve it: and see Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Tenant, 5 O. L. R. 524, see also St. Louis v. O'Callaghan, 13 P. R. 322, followed in Gilmour v. Magee, supra; Cairns v. Airth, 16 P. R. 100. The Judge exercises a discretion, however, where the time has expired, and where the Statute of Limitations had in the meantime run, the Court refused to renew the writ: Doyle v. Kaufman, 3 Q. B. D. 7, affirmed in Appeal, Ib. 340; see also Hewett v. Barr, 1891, 1 Q. B. 98, where, however, it was said by Kay, L.J., that even in such a case there would, under exceptional circumstances, be a discretion to allow a renewal: e.g., where the plaintiff has made every reasonable effort to serve the writ, or for some unavoidable reason the service has been prevented: see Gilmour v. Magee, supra; but where a writ is ordered to be renewed, notwithstanding that the action has become barred by the Statute of Limitations, and the order is not appealed or moved against, it is too late on an appeal from the judgment in the action to raise the objection that the writ ought not to have been renewed: Butler v McMicken, 32 Ont. 422,

In Mair v. Cameron, 18 P. R. 484, where orders had been made from time to time renewing the writ of summons, but the plaintiff knew, though he did not disclose that he knew, where the defendant could be served, and but for the renewals the Statute of Limitations had barred the plaintiff's claim, the orders were rescinded on defendant's application under Rule 217.

Setting aside order for renewal.

Where an order has been made ex parte under this Rule, it is open to the defendant to move against it within the time prescribed by Rule 217, and to shew that no reasonable efforts were made to serve the writ, and that there was no good reason for making the order for renewal, even though the result of setting the order aside will be to make the Statute of Limitations a bar to the claim: Howland v. Dominion Bank, 15 P. R. 56; 22 S. C. R. 130; Mair v. Cameron, 18 P. R. 484; sed vide Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Tennant, 5 O. L. R. 524; and Williams v. Harrison, infra.

The Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to rescind an ex parte order made by a Local Judge for the renewal of a writ, if material evidence has, even unintentionally, not been brought to the attention of the Local Judge: Williams v. Harrison, 6 O. L. R. 685, and see Langley v. Costigan, 5 O. W. R. 147.

But such a motion, unless made within the time prescribed by Rule 217, viz., within 4 days of its coming to the notice of the applicant, will be too late: Cairns v. Airth, 16 P. R. 100.

Where a defendant is entitled to immunity from suit, a writ of summons cannot properly be issued against him and kept renewed in the expectation that the immunity may cease: Musurus Bey v. Gadban, 1894, 2 Q. B. 352.

Where the writ has expired before service, the copy and service of the writ may be set aside, hut not the original writ: Fitch v. Walker, 7 P. R. 8. Rules 10, 11.

Whers a defendant has been served with an unrenewed writ after the expiration of twelvs months from the date of its issue, he probably cannot treat it is a nuility, hut shouid apply to set aside the service for irregularity: see Hemp v. Warren, 11 M. & W. 103; 2 Dowl., N. S. 758.

(ii) Originating Notice.

Originating notice.

10.—(1) Every proceeding iu the Court other thaa aa action or a proceeding that may be taken ex parte, shall, unless otherwise specially provided, be commenced by a notice of motioa called aa originating notice.

(2) When by any statute an application may be made to the Court or a Judge in a maaaer therein provided, such applicatioa may also be made by originating notice, but aay security required by such statute shall be given. New.

According to Mr. Justice Middleton's letter puhlished aa a preface to the original draft of these Rules, their intention is to abolish petitions. The Rules do not, however, in terms, forhid the filing of a petition, and it may he that there may yet be some cases in which it may be proper still to file a petition where a detailed statement of the facts which cannot well he mado in a notice of motion, is desirable as a means of laying before the Court the facts, or question of law, on which an adjudication is desired. Petition to quiet title is one of the cases "otherwise specially provided for": see Rule 692; siso petition of right: see Rule 738.

Although two normal methods of commencing actions or proceedings are here pointed out, it does not appear to be the intention of the Rule thst a suitor may eiect which of the two he will adopt. Where, according to the cstahlished practice, an action must he hrought, a writ of summons must still he issued; and it is only where the Court is expressly empowered hy Statute or Rule to act in a summary way that an originating notice may he adopted.

As to matters which may he commenced hy originating notice: see Rules 600-606, 608, 610, 615, 617, 618, 622.

(iii) Indorsement of Address, Etc.

Indorsement of name of solicitor.

11.—(1) Where a plaintiff sues by a solicitor, the writ of summoas (or aotice in lieu thereof), shall be indorsed with the solicitor's aaiae or firm aad place of busiaess, where service may be made.

When agent.

(2) Where the solicitor issuing a writ of summons is only ageat of aaother solicitor, his aame or firm and place of busiaess as well as the name or firm and place of business of the principal solicitor shall be indorsed. C.R. 134.

Rule 12.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 19.

By Rule 3 (j) in these Rules the words "writ of summons" include "any document by which proceedings are commenced" therefore, a similar indorsement should be made on every document by which proceedings are commenced, e.g., originating notices, third party notices, garnishee orders, interpleader orders, notices to incumbrancers, or orders making persons parties in the Master's Office, petitions of right, and petitions to quiet titles.

Where a petition was indorsed by agents only, it was held to be irregular and was set aside: Re Scholes, 34 W. R. 501; 54 L. T. 466; see also Wray v. Kemp, 26 Ch. D. 169.

It has been held in Ontario that, though not expressly provided in this Rule, the plaintiff's address, as well as the solicitor's address, must be indorsed, as the form of writ No. 1 in the Appendix (H. & L., Form No. 35), so provides, and that form is made imperative by Rule 7; Chess Carley Co. v. Rodger, 4 C. L. T. 500; see also Rule 375. A writ not so indorsed may be set aside as irregular: Ib.; Sherwood v. Goldmon, 11 P. R. 433; see also McCready v. Henessy, 9 P. R. 489.

The address of the plaintiff indorsed must be that of his residence: Mee v. Denbigh, 27 Sol. Jour. 617; Stoy v. Rees, 24 Q. B. D. 748; 63 L. T. 49. The business address of a firm is sufficient: Ib.; 59 L. J. Q. B. 311.

Where the suit was on behalf of "the plaintiff and all others, the underwriters of a steamship Cid at the time of loss in 1873," it was held that there was only one plaintiff, that his address alone need be given; the other persons mentioned were not plaintiffs: Leathley, etc., v. McAndrew, W. N. 1875, 259; 1 Chart. Ch. Ca. 58.

As to obtaining security for costs where an illusory address is given, see notes to Rule 373. The action is not irregular, though the address be illusory: Pittsburgh C. S. Co. v. Marx, 102 L. T. 532; W. N. 1897, 136.

Address of plaintiff in person.

12.—(1) Where a plaintiff sues in person, there shall be indorsed upon the writ or notice in lieu thereof, his place of residence and occupation.

Address for service.

(2) If the plaintiff's residence is more than two miles from the office in which the proceedings are commenced, there shall also be indorsed an address for service within that distance. In default, any paper not requiring personal service may be served by mailing the same to the plaintiff at his address, by registered letter. C.R. 135.

No one but a solicitor, or a plaintiff in person, may issue a writ. Where a person not a solicitor, but purporting to be next friend of a married woman, issued a writ, the writ and all subsequent proceedings were set aside: Swann v. Swann, 43 L. T. 530; 25 Sol. Jour. 134.

As to sufficiency of address: see Smith v. Dobbin, 3 Ex. D. 338.

As to what retainer of a solicitor authorizes him to issue a writ: see Wray v. Kemp, 26 Ch. D. 169. Rule 13.

A company can neither sue nor defend in person, and a managing director of a company is not competent to act in person for the company. A company can only sue or defend by a solicitor: Scriven v. Jescott, 126 L. T. Jour. 100.

13.—(1) The solicitor whose name is indorsed on any writ of summons, shall on demand declare forthwith whether the cause or matter has been commenced by him or with his authority or privity. He shall also, if demanded, disclose the profession or occupation, and place of abode (giving name of street and house number where practicable) of the plaintiff. In default the action may be stayed and the solicitor may be directed to pay the costs. Demand on solicitor instituting proceedings, whether commenced by his authority.

(2) If the solicitor declares that the writ was not issued by him or with his authority or privity, an order may be obtained ex parte directing that all proceedings shall be stayed, and thereafter no further proceedings shall be taken without leave. C.R. 143. Action commenced without authority may be stayed.

See Eng. (1883) R. 42.

The former Rule expressly applied to other proceedings than those commenced by writ, but as to such proceedings the present Rule is silent: see note to Rule 11.

Where a solicitor continued to act for a Company after it had been dissolved, he was held to be not liable for acting under his original authority after it had been revoked, until he knew, or by the exercise of due diligence he might have known, of the dissolution: Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co., 1900, 1 Ch. 43. Where he had not exercised such due diligence he was ordered to pay the opposite party's costs between solicitor and client: Ib.; Yonge v. Toynbee, 1909, 1 K. B. 215; 102 L. T. 57.

Where a solicitor without authority prosecutes or defends an action, the proceedings are not necessarily void in all cases; e.g., an action prosecuted without authority binds the plaintiff, and his remedy is against the solicitor; he may, however, on getting notice of the proceedings, move to stay them: see infra, and Chisholm v. Sheldon, 1 Gr. 294. Effect of action commenced without authority.

A solicitor is assumed to know the status of parties for whom he acts; thus, where a solicitor for defendants who were sued in their firm name of "Liberal Opinion Limited" there being in fact no such limited company, entered an appearance in the name of "Liberal Opinion Limited" instead of for the defendants individually, he was held to be personally liable to pay to the plaintiff all costs lost by his so doing: Simmons v. Liberal Opinion Limited, 1911, 1 K. B. 966; 104 L. T. 264; but where a company which had obtained a charter of incorporation was sued, and a defence was entered in its name, and a judgment was recovered against it which proved fruitless because the company had never qualified itself to do business and had no assets, it was held that the solicitor who had acted for the company was not liable to the plaintiff for his costs which had thus been thrown away: Campbell v. Taxicabs Verrall's Limited, 27 O. L. R. 141.

Unauthorised appearance.

But where a defendant has not been served with process, and an unauthorized appearance is entered for him, the proceedings will be set aside on his applying promptly after he has notice of them: Roissier v. Westbrook, 24 C. P. 91; Massey v. Rapelje, 5 C. P. 134; Wright v. Hull, 2 P. R. 26; Re Gray, 65 L. T. 743; and this rule applies in the cass of partners, one of whom will not be bound by an appearance entered for him on the instructions of a co-partner, but without his authority: Mason v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 418; unless he be a dormant partner: see Court v. Berlin, infra; or unless the partner giving the retainer be the managing partner, in which case an appearance entered by authority of the managing partner for the other partners will be binding on them: Tomlinson v. Broodsmith, 1896, 1 Q. B. 386; 74 L. T. 265; and the retainer of the solicitor will not be terminated by the retirement of a sleeping partner from the firm, of which the solicitor has no notice: see Court v. Berlin, 1897, 2 Q. B. 396.

By delay defendant may waive his rights: Kerr v. Malpus, 2 P. R. 135. In McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76, the party was held to be bound by an unauthorized defence to a Chancery suit, though he does not appear to have been served with the bill. Where a defendant has been personally served with process, he is bound by an unauthorized appearance and defence, and the proceedings will not be set aside unless the plaintiff had notice: see Roissier v. Westbrook, supra; Moran v. Schermerhorn, 2 P. R. 261; Boyley v. Buckland, 1 Ex. 1; Arch. Pr., 14th Ed., 107 (y); or unless the solicitor be insolvent: Warely v. Poopst, 7 U. C. L. J. 294. See note to Rule 15.

Dismissal on application of plaintiff whose name used without authority.

Where a solicitor has commenced an action in the name of a plaintiff without authority, the plaintiff may, on notice to the defendant and the solicitor, move that the action be dismissed, and that the solicitor pay the costs of the plaintiff as between solicitor and client, and the costs of the defendant as between party and party: Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong, 13 Ch. D. 310; Nurse v. Durnford, 13 Ch. D. 764; Wray v. Kemp, 26 Ch. D. 169; Scribner v. Porcells, 20 Ont. 554; Geilinger v. Gibbs, 1897, 1 Ch. 479; a defendant is also entitled to move to strike out the name of a plaintiff which has been used without authority: Barrie v. Weaymouth, 15 P. R. 95; Borrie Public School Board v. Borrie, 19 P. R. 33. The fact that the action has been dismissed: Morris v. Confederation Life, 17 P. R. 24; Scribner v. Porcells, supra, or discontinued: Gold Reefs of W. A. v. Dowson, 1897, 1 Ch. 115, is no answer to the application.

Dismissal on defendant's application.

So where plaintiffs were joined without authority, their names were struck out, on the defendant's application, with costs payable by the other plaintiffs. The plaintiff's solicitors were not ordered to pay the costs personally, as they had acted bona fide. Semble, that any plaintiff joined without his authority should be made a party to the motion by a defendant: Borrie v. Weaymouth, 15 P. R. 95; but where a plaintiff was added as a party without his written consent as required by Rule 134 (2), although a verbal consent to his being added had been given by his solicitor in his presence, it was held that he was entitled to have his name struck out, and the solicitor who had added him was ordered, notwithstanding he appeared to have acted bonâ fide, to pay the applicant's costs as between solicitor and client, and also the costs of the adverse party, which the applicant had been ordered to pay, together with all the costs of the application: Fricker v. Von Grutten, 1896, 2 Ch. 649; and see Morris v. Confederation Life, supra. A plaintiff residing out of the jurisdiction moving to set aside proceedings brought by a solicitor without his authority cannot be ordered to give security for costs on the solicitor's application: Sample v. McLaughlin, 17 P. R. 490. Rule 14.

The fact that a solicitor has acted as a solicitor for a trustee does not authorize the solicitor to enter an appearance for the trustee in an action in relation to the trust without any further retainer: Re Gray, 65 L. T. 743.

Where an order for security for costs has been obtained against a plaintiff for non-payment of the costs of a former action, in which his name had been used without his authority, he cannot apply to set aside the order on that ground, he must attack the root of the irregularity, and take proceedings to have his name struck out of the former action: Lea v. Long, 17 P. R. 203, and see S. C., 18 P. R. 1.

Any former rule of practice that an action brought without the authority of the plaintiff can be dismissed, on application of the plaintiff, only on payment of costs, is not now in force. He may now have the action stayed without payment of costs: McKay v. Macfarlane, 12 P. R. 149. In this case it was held that on an application of this kind after judgment, the action should not be dismissed, where it is brought for the benefit of a class: sed quære, see Bank of Toronto v. Beaver, etc., 28 Gr. 87.

Where a solicitor acts as solicitor for a party without a direct retainer, and only upon the instructions of a third person, he may become personally liable for any loss arising to such party, in the proceedings, consequent on the fraud of the third person: Slater v. Slater, 1897, 1 Ch. 222, note.

14.—(1) Where an action is brought in the name of a firm or in a name or style other than the plaintiff's own name, the plaintiffs shall, on demand, declare forthwith in writing the names and places of residence of all the persons constituting the firm, or carrying on business under such name or style. Names and addresses of members of firm suing as partners.

(2) If the plaintiffs fail to comply with such demand, all proceedings in the action may, upon an application for that purpose, be stayed. C.R. 144.

By The Partnership Registration Act (R. S. O. c. 139), s. 2, the names of the individual members composing a firm carrying on a trading, manufacturing or mining business, are required to be registered in the Registry Office for the county or registry division in which the business is carried on.

Where the names of partners are disclosed under this Rule it does not seem to be necessary to verify the declaration by an affidavit; but if so verified, it has been held in England that the deponent is not liable to cross-examination on the affidavit, nor can the Court order the trial of an issue to determine who are the actual partners of a plaintiff firm: Abrahams & Co. v. Dunlop, 1905, 1 K. B. 46; 91 L. T. 11: and see Rule 227.

Rule 15.

A plaintiff in a class suit cannot under this Rule be compelled to disclose the names and addresses of the persons on whose behalf he sues: Leathley v. McAndrew, W. N. 1875, 259.

(iv) Service.

Undertaking to accept service.

15. Service of a writ of summons shall not be required where the defendant by his solicitor accepts service, and undertakes to appear. C.R. 145 and 174.

Former C. R. 145 applied not only to writs of summons, but also to any other document by which a cause, matter, or proceeding may be commenced, and that is still the effect of the present Rule: see Rule 3 (j).

Solicitor's undertaking.

The corresponding Eng. (1883) R. 48, has the words "undertakes in writing to accept service and enters an appearance." Former Rule 174 also required the undertaking to be in writing in order to found proceedings against the solicitor for an attachment for breach of the undertaking. It would seem to be imperative that the acceptance and undertaking should still be in writing: see Rule 36, which requires it to be filed, before proceedings can be taken for default. The undertaking of the solicitor is enforceable by attachment, on a summary application, and he may also be ordered to pay all costs occasioned by his neglect: Cook v. Broomhead, 16 Ves. 133; and see Courtney v. Stock, 2 D. & W. 251; Townley v. Jones, 29 L. J. C. P. 299. The plaintiff may also proceed against defendant upon default of appearance: Rule 36; he must take the risk, however, of the solicitor not having had authority to accept service: Roissier v. Westbrook, 24 C. P. 91; and it would therefore be proper, where no appearance is entered, to serve any subsequent proceedings upon the defendant personally. See note to Rule 13.

As to the effect of a judgment obtained by the plaintiff in an action where the appearance of defendant was entered without his authority: see notes to Rule 13, supra, p. 328.

A sleeping partner may be bound by an appearance entered for the firm by the authority of the acting partner: see Court v. Berlin, 1897, 2 Q. B. 396; Tomlinson v. Broadsmith, 1896, 1 Q. B. 386.

Where a solicitor accepted service, but did not in terms undertake to appear, a motion to attach him was refused: The Anna & Bertha, 61 L. T. 332.

An undertaking to "enter an appearance in due course" is unconditional, and must be performed forthwith. A solicitor's undertaking is binding even after the lapse of 12 months from issue of the writ, and it may, at the instance of the plaintiff, be enforced by attachment at any time within six years from its date: Re Kerly, Son, & Verden, 1901, 1 Ch. 467; 83 L. T. 521, 699.

An application to attach should be entitled not in the action but in the matter of the solicitor: Ib., and the solicitor would in the first place be ordered to enter an appearance and in default would be ordered to be attached.

If a solicitor enter an appearance without authority, it may be set aside with costs, to be paid by him. Re Lloyd, 12 Ch. D. 419. See also cases in the note to Rule 13, p. 328; and Re Gray, Gray v. Coles, 65 L. T. 743; and see Yonge v. Toynbee, 1910, 1 K. B. 215; 102 L. T. 37, where the solicitor's authority was determined without his knowledge, his client having become insane. Rule 16.

Proceedings by attachment to compel an appearance to be entered, may perhaps be usefully adopted where it is desired to obtain from defendant a waiver of some irregularity: see Carrick v. Young, Jac. 524, or to prevent a relitigation of the matter in an action on the judgment in another country. The plaintiff should reques. the defendant's solicitor to enter the appearance before moving to attach: Jacobs v. Magnay, 7 Jur. 326.

See also as to the enforcement of an undertaking by a solicitor given out of Court, Woodfin v. Wroy, 51 L. J. Chy. 427; and see Skyny v. Harland, 1894, 1 Q. B. 707.

16. Save as hereinafter provided, in the absence of such acceptance of service every writ of summons shall be served personally, but if it appears that the plaintiff is unable to effect prompt personal service, substituted service, by advertisement or otherwise, may be ordered. Substitutional service may also be allowed of any other document which requires personal service. C.R. 146 and 167. Personal and substituted service.

As to service of infants: see Rules 18-20, and lunatics: see Rule 21, and corporations: see Rule 23.

Service of process must if possible be personal, or, in the case of a corporation, upon the duly constituted agent: the substitutional method is to be followed only when prompt personal service is shewn to be unavailable: Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139.

Personal service may be by delivering the process into the defendant's hand; or by seeing him and bringing the process to his notice: Thomson v. Phoney, 1 Dowl. 441; and shewing him the original (see Rule 203), if he desires it: Goggs v. Huntingtower, 12 M. & W. 503; Philipson v. Emmanuel, 56 L. T. 858; Hawthorn v. Harris, 23 W. R. 214; within a reasonable time after service: Thomas v. Pearce, 2 B. & C. 761; Petit v. Ambrose, 6 M. & S. 274; a quarter of an hour was considered reasonable time in Westly v. Jones, 5 Moo. 162; or if he refuses to receive the copy, after being told its nature and being tendered it, then by placing it on his person: Bell v. Vincent, 7 D. & R. 233; Rose v. Hempthorne, 103 L. T. 739; or by throwing it down in his presence: 1 Dowl. 443. The copy must, however, be left with the defendant and not merely shewn to him; Worley v. Glover, 2 Str. 877, even though he refuses to take it: Pigeon v. Bruce, 8 Taunt. 410; Ercin v. Powley, 2 U. C. Q. B. 270. Handing a writ or notice of writ in an envelope, the defendant not being informed of the contents, and having no knowledge that an action has been or is about to be brought against him, is not good personal service: Banque Russe, etc. v. Clark, W. N. 1894, 203. Personal service.

In O'Sullivan v. Murphy, 78 L. T. Jour. 213, placing the writ on the ground within 20 or 30 yards, and holding up the original, the defendant having run away to evade service, was held to be insufficient.

Where the person serving did not shew the original, although requested to do so, service was set aside: Philipson v. Emmanuel, supra, p. 331.

Appearance precludes all question as to the sufficiency of service: Dart v. Citizens' Insurance Co., 11 P. R. 513 see Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 251, and notes to Rule 46.

If it is intended to object to the service, a motion to set it aside should be made before appearance: Boyle v. Sacker, supra.

The Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 94), from which former C. R. 167 was originally taken, was held to apply to cases where defendants are very numerous or where they reside out of the jurisdiction at a very great distance, or where the residence is not known at all, or where from any other cause it would be difficult or expensive to effect a service: Pearson v. Campbell, 2 Chy. Ch. 25. Advertising has been dispensed with where it would be useless, and service allowed by mailing to the address of defendant's brother resident in the Province, though not in any way an agent of defendant: Cooper v. Lane, 1 Chy. Ch. 363; see also Dobson v. Marshall, 9 P. R. 1.

As to the constitutionality of such a provision as that contained in this Rule: see Ashbury v. Ellis, 1893, A. C. 339.

Mere absence from Ontario unaccompanied by any difficulty in effecting personal service, is no ground for resorting to substituted service under this Rule: Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139, but a solicitor on whom service has been ordered to be effected, has no locus standi to move to set aside the service, even though before service his authority to act for the defendant had been revoked: Taylor v. Taylor, 6 O. L. R. 356, though it would be proper for him to notify the opposite party, and also the Court, of the fact of his want of authority.

Time for service.

Service of the writ may be effected at any time of the day or night: Upton v. Mackenzie, 1 D. & R. 172; Priddle v. Cooper, 1 Bing. 66; Rule 264 does not apply: Murray v. Stephenson, 19 Q. B. D. 60; but not on Sunday: Mackreth v. Nicholson, 19 Ves. 367; Taylor v. Phillips, 3 East. 155; Mitch v. Frankau, 1909, 2 K. B. 100; Jud. Act, s. 124, supra.

Where a person has been induced by fraud to come into the jurisdiction for the purpose of serving him, within it, with a writ, the service will be set aside as an abuse of the process of the Court; secus, if the invitation to come within the jurisdiction was bonâ fide for another purpose, even though it was also intended to take advantage of the opportunity to serve the person: Watkins v. N. A. Land & Timber Co., 20 T. L. R. 534.

Action to recover land.

Action to Recover Possession of Land.—In actions for recovery of land where it is in the actual possession of several persons, all ought to be named as defendants, and served with the writ, as judgment must follow the writ, and can be awarded only against the defendants; and only the defendants, and those claiming under them, can be ejected: see Minet v. Johnston, 63 L. T. 507. Persons in the position of servants, or the members of the family of a person in possession, need not be made parties or served with the writ. A landlord or person not named as defendant, and claiming to be in possession, independently of the defendants, may appear: Rules 52, et seq., and, even after judgment against the defendants, may obtain leave to defendant: see notes to Rule 53. Rule 18.

In an action by a landlord against his tenant, sub-tenants of the tenant, though in actual occupation, need not be made parties, and may be ejected under a judgment recovered against the tenant: Synod of Toronto v. Fisken, 29 Ont. 738; Green v. Herring, 1905, 1 K. B. 152, Substitutional Service.—The present Rule gives a wide discretion to the Court. It allows substituted service to be ordered in whatever way the Court or a Judge may direct: Whitley v. Honeywell, 24 W. R. 851; if, from any cause, the plaintiff is unable to effect prompt personal service. Present practice.

Substitutional service should not be ordered where service under Rules 16 or 23, might be effected: Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139 (where an order for substitutional service was set aside). Substituted service of writ.

A statute authorizing Courts in the case of contracts made or to be performed within the jurisdiction, to decide whether they will, or will not, proceed in the absence of defendant, is intra vires, but whether a judgment obtained in such circumstances will be enforced by the Courts of another country is for those Courts to determine: Ashbury v. Ellis, 1893, A. C. 339.

As to substituted service where a defendant is out of the jurisdiction: see notes to Rule 25.

As to whether the Rule applies to the case of persons sued in the name of a firm, where no person having control or management of the business can be found: see notes to Rule 101.

Where defendant has an agent within the jurisdiction, substitutional service may be allowed on such agent, e.g., a managing clerk at his place of business: Armitage v. Fitzwilliam, W. N. 1875, 238; general agents: Jones v. Cargill, 11 L. T. 566; special agents: Hobhouse v. Courtney, 12 Sim. 140; solicitors who had acted for defendant: Hornby v. Holmes, 4 Ha. 306; Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 183, 363; Tottenham v. Barry, 12 Ch. D. 798; but see The Pommerania, 4 P. D. 195; and Young v. Dominion Construction Co., supra. When substituted service allowed. Substituted service.

Where the defendant, out of the jurisdiction, has expressly agreed to service being effected on him in a particular way, service effected in that way will be allowed as good service: Montgomery v. Liebenthal, 1898, 1 Q. B. 487; but only in a case in which there is jurisdiction to allow service upon him out of the jurisdiction; see Brit Waggon Co. v. West, 1896, 1 Q. B. 35, 37.

As it was said in Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 367, substituted service may be properly ordered upon any persons with whom the Court is satisfied that the party is in communication. The Court has a right to consider that the copy of writ served will be sent on, and the service will be good, though the service is not in fact communicated.

In cases decided under the former Chancery practice the agent was required to be such in relation to the subject matter of the suit: Allan v. Pyper, 5 U. C. L. J. 118 Cupples v. Yorston, 2 Chy. Ch. 31; Canniffe v Taylor, 2 Gr. 617; Doremus v. Kennedy, 2 Gr. 657; but under the present practice orders have been made though the person served has no connection with the subject of the action, if only he is likely to communicate the fact of service to the defendant: see Watt v. Barnett, supra.

Rule 16.

Where a defendant's wife, or other relative or pereon, ie shewn to be, or to be likely to be, in communication with him, and is within the jurisdiction, service may be allowed on such person: Dicker v. Clarke, 11 W. R. 635; Bank of Whitehaven v. Thompson, W. N. 1877, 45; Somerville v. Joyce, 1 Chy. Ch. 358; and even under the former Chancery practice such service has been allowed though the relative was not shewn to be at the time in communication with defendant: Cameron v. Baker, 2 Chy. Ch. 281. Such service may hs accompanied by advertising whsre the person upon whom eubetituted service is made, may not be able to communicate with defendant: Bank of Whitehaven v. Thompson, and Cameron v. Baker, supra; Coulbourn v. Carshaw, 32 W. R. 33, or by mailing to an address at which defendant is shewn to have recently been: Cupples v. Yorston, supra, p. 333.

Where a hill had heen filed for foreclosure, and the defendant, tbe official aseignee of the mortgagor, aheconded before eervice effected, service was allowed subetitutionally upon one of the Inspectors of the estate: London Canadian Loan & Agency Co. v. Thompson, 8 P. R. 91.

When not allowed.

Substituted service will not be ordered under this Rule unlese it is shswn that prompt personal service cannot he effected. The fact of a defendant being out of the jurisdiction ie not alone a reason for diepensing with personal service. He must he evading eervice, or his whereabouts be unknown: Robertson v. Mero, 9 P. R. 510; eee also Adler v. Benjamin, 1 T. L. R. 308; Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139; and eee as to that case, Taylor v. Taylor, 6 O. L. R. 356, 545. Where his residence can be aecertained hy examination of relatives, that course will doubtlees be proper as formerly in Chancery: see McMurrich v. Hogan, 1 Chy. Ch. 307; McDonald v. McMillan, 2 Chy. Ch. 282.

In the case of actions hrought in reepect of a bueiness carried on in Ontario, by a defendant out of the juriediction, a special provision ie made hy Rule 24.

After a service, not pereonal, hae been effected, there ie power to make an order allowing the plaintiff to proceed on ths service made, but this power must be prudently exercised: Adler v. Benjamin, 1 T. L. R. 308.

Substituted service will not he ordered under tbie Rule, of a writ which could not legally have been served personally—ae a writ against a colonial government: Sloman v. Governor of New Zealand, 1 C. P. D. 563; or against a foreign sovereign: see Mighell v. Sultan of Johore, 1894, 1 Q. B. 149; 70 L. T. 64; or a foreign ambassador: see Musurus Bey v. Gadban, 1894, 1 Q. B. 533; or of a writ for eervice within the juriediction, where the defendant is without the juriediction, and there ie no evidence that he left the jurisdiction to avoid service: Wilding v. Bean, 1891, 1 Q. B. 100; or of a writ against a partnership firm, upon a partner resident out of the jurisdiction: Worcester, etc. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784.

But where after issue of a writ for service witbin the jurisdiction the defendant, knowing of it, leaves tbe jurisdiction, though not for the purpose of evading service, substituted eervice of the writ may be authorized, and the plaintiff will not in such a case be required to issue a concurrent writ for service out of the jurisdiction: Joy v. Budd, 1898, 1 Q. B. 12; 77 L. T. 335; dietinguisbing Wilding v. Bean, supra.

See also Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395; Field v. Barnett, 56 L. J. Q. B. 89; Hilliord v. Smyth, 36 W. R. 7; and Rule 25.

Rule 18.

The principle upon which snbstituted service is granted is that the service is likely to come to the knowledge of the party: Hope v. Hope, supra; Furber v. King, 29 W. R. 535; where therefore the defendant was shswn to have absconded from his residence and place of husiness, leave to serve him substitutionally, by leoving copies of the writ at those places, was refused, and service was allowed by advertising: Wolverhampton & Staffordshire Banking Co. v. Bond, 43 L. T. 72; 29 W. R. 599; see also Coulbourn v. Carshaw, 32 W. R. 33.

For observations on an order made for substitutional service, where there was oot sufficient evidence that the service was likely to come to the knowledge of the defendant: see Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639.

Setting service aside.

The Court will not set aside substitutional service if it appears, or can fairly be inferred, that the defendant hos notice of the proceedings: Taylor v. Taylor, 6 O. L. R. 356, 545. Where, after instructions to a solicitor to accept service had heen revoked, and the plaintiff's solicitor se loformed, an order for subetitutional service on the solicitor was obtaioed, it was held that the solicitor had no locus standi to move to set aside the order on the defendant's hehalf: Taylor v. Taylor, supra; but a person served as the agent of defendant may move to set aside the service if he is not the agent: Doremus v. Kennedy, 2 Gr. 65; The Pommerania, 4 P. D. 195; cited in Taylor v. Taylor, supra.

Not confined to service of writs.

The provision for substituted service has been held in England to apply to an originating summons, as well as to a writ: Re Pepper, 32 W. R. 765; 50 L. T. 580; 53 L. J. Chy. 1054; though it has also been held hy Denman, J., in Chambers, to relate only to service of writs of summons or notices thereof, and therefore substituted service of a ootice of application for a writ of attachment was refused: Anon., W. N. 1876, 105; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 26. It is presnmed, however, that notices under Rule 165 (see last clause of Rule 16) may be so served, and that, under the general jurisdiction which the Courts of this Province have heretofore had, they may order such service of all pspers not required to he personally served: see Rules 3 (j), 16, 24; McToggort v. Merrill, 7 P. R. 405.

Substituted service has been allowed of a notice of motion: Cook v. Dey, W. N. 1876, 122; Hamilton v. Davies, W. N. 1880, 82; see Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 1442; an order for an interim injunction: Young v. Brassey, 1 Ch. D. 277; a summons to shew cause, where defendant was evadiog service: Hunt v. Austin, Ex. p. Mason, 9 Q. B. D. 598; a notice of appeal: Ex p. Warburg, Re Whalley, 24 Ch D. 364; 25 Ch. D. 336; and a notice of motion for an administration order under Chy. Gen. O. 638 (now Rule 608): Re Allan, 9 P. R. 77; see also Re Morant, W. N. 1879, 144; Trubner v. Trubner, 62 L. T. 186.

Ao order to proceed without service will not he made; substituted or equivsleot service must be effected, if personal service, or acceptance of servlce cannot he obtained: W. N. 1875, p. 202; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 37.

Substitution of notice for service.

In Cook v. Dey, 2 Ch. D. 218, it was held by V. C. Hall, that the substitutioo of notice for service mentioned in the latter part of the original Rule was not intended to apply to ordinary coses of persons not able to he found, but who were within the jurisdiction. He, however directed substituted service of the writ by advertising, and by leaving a copy at defendant's office and lodgings, which is plainly authorized by the Rule in its present shape. In Leddell v. McDougall,

Rule 16.

22 Sol. Jour. 838, Manisty, J., held that the Court had power to make an order for substitution of notice for service within the jurisdiction.

In such cases the time for appearance runs from the time the order takes effect, that is, from the service of the writ at the place mentioned, or publication of the advertisemsnt, whichever is the later: Crone v. Jullion, 2 Ch. D. 220; ses also Johnson v. Moffot, W. N. 1875. 248; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 39.

A combination of different modes of effecting service where defendant's address is not known, or he cannot be found, may be ordered, depending upon the circumstances of the particular case.

When service set aside.

Where defendant gave his club as his address, and an order for substitutional service had been granted on an affidavit of a clerk that he had been to the defendant's residence but had been unable to effect personal service, and judgment by default was signed on the substituted service, the affidavit was considered misleading, and the order for substitutional service was set aside, though two years had elapsed since the signing of judgment: Johnson v. Menzies, 72 L. T. Jour. 348.

An order directing substitutional service upon solicitors of defendant in a former action was set aside, it being shown that the solicitors had ceased to act for defendant in such former action: The Pommeranio, 4 P. D. 195. See also Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139; and Taylor v. Taylor, 6 O. L. R. 356, 545.

Examples of substituted service allowed.

Examples.—Where the defendant was supposed to be within the jurisdiction, but had absconded or was evading service, service was allowed by leaving copies of writ with his wife or other relatives presumably in communication with him: Bank of Whitehaven v. Thompson, W. N. 1877, 45; Atkins v. Atkins, W. N. 1887, 92; at his last lodgings and place of business, and by advertising or mailing: Cook v. Dey, 2 Ch. D. 218; Capes v. Brewer, 24 W. R. 40; by serving his managing clerk at his offices, and upon his solicitors: Armitage v. Fitzwilliom, W. N. 1875, 238; by serving tenants of lands in question in the action to whom the defendant had given notice to pay rents to him, and advertisement: Crane v. Jullion, 2 Ch. D. 220; Coulbourn v. Carshow, 32 W. R. 33; by posting to defendant's last address: Dymond v. Croft, 3 Ch. D. 512; by leaving a copy of writ at defendant's only known place of residence, a club, and serving solicitors who refused to accept service, but had acted in other matters for defendant: Rafael v. Ongley, 34 L. fendants at the suit of the same plaintiff, and the application is based on the same facts, a single affidavit may be used setting out the necessary facts and entitled in all the actions: Orkney v. Shanahan, 8 L. R. Ir. 155.

Any objection to an order allowing any particular mode of service must be taken by motion to set aside the order, and not by pleading the objection as a defence: Preston v. Lamont, 1 Ex. D. 363; and it should be made before the defendant has taken any other step in the action, otherwise he will be deemed to have waived his right to object: see Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395; Western Nat. Bank v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, and notes preceding Rule 25.

Costs of a motion for leave to effect substituted service are taxable Costs.
in the cause: Eoger v. Buckley, 8 L. R. Ir. 99.

17.—(1) The person serving a writ of summons shall, Indorsement of service.
within three days after the service, indorse on the writ the day of the month and week of the service thereof, and the date of the making of the indorsement, otherwise the plaintiff shall not be at liberty, in case of non-appearance, to proceed by default [without leave, to be obtained at the sole cost of the plaintiff].

(2) Every affidavit of service of a writ of summons shall state the day on which such indorsement was made. C.R. 156.

See Eng. (1883), R. 62, which is expressly made to apply to substitutional service.

This Rule does not apply to cases of substituted service: see Dymond v. Croft, 3 Ch. D. 512; Cruse v. Kuttingwell, W. N. 1875, 250; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 40; or where notice in lieu of a writ (see Rule 29), is served: Fish v. Chotterton, W. N. 1882, 145; 31 W. R. 87; 47 L. T. 328; or where the writ is served by advertisement: Davis v. Lound, 78 L. T. Jour. 318; W. N. 1885, 54.

The words in brackets are not in the Eng. Rule. In Hastings v. Hurley, 16 Ch. D. 734, and in Sproat v. Peckett, W. N. 1883, 76; 48 L. T. 755, and in Shepherd v. Silcock, W. N. 1886, 84, the time for making the indorsement was extended under Rule 176.

An order to amend the indorsement of service was granted where a wrong date was indorsed by mistake: Hyne v. Murphy, 2 L. R. Ir. 35.

Judgment was allowed to be signed where the indorsement shewed the day of the month, but not the day of the week: Foat v. Basset, W. N. 1888, 255.

Holidays are not included in the three days: Rule 172.

In England it is held that the omission to comply with the corresponding Eng. Rule is an irregularity which cannot be waived, and a judgment in default of appearance was set aside for non-compliance with the Rule: Hamp-Adams v. Hall, 1911, 2 K. B. 942; 105 L. T. 326. In that case it was held, if the indorsement is not made, the plaintiff cannot proceed to enter judgment by default, and that it is the duty of the officer of the Court to refuse to sign such a judgment. Under Rule 17 (1), supra, an application may be made in such a case for leave to sign judgment.

Although by Rule 3 (f), the word "writ" in the Rules includes any document by which a proceeding is commenced, this Rule is probably not intended to apply to originating notices, garnishee orders, interpleader orders, etc., at the same time until that point has been decided it might be well to assume that it does.

Service on infants by serving Official Guardian.

18.—(1) Where an infant is sued in respect of his interest in an estate, he shall be served by delivering a copy of the writ to the Official Guardian.

Address of guardian.

(2) The post office address of the father or guardian of such infant or of the person with whom or under whose care the infant is shall be indorsed on the copy of the writ so served.

Official Guardian to act.

(3) From the time of such service, the said Official Guardian shall be the guardian ad litem of the infant, unless and until otherwise ordered, and it shall be the duty of the said Official Guardian, or of any other guardian appointed for such infant, forthwith to attend to the interests of the infant, and to take all such proceedings as may be necessary for the protection of such interests in the proceeding in which he is appointed guardian, and for that purpose to communicate with all proper persons and parties, including the father or guardian of the infant and the person with whom or under whose care the infant is.

One copy only need be served.

(4) In case there is more than one infant for whom service is made on the Official Guardian, one copy only of the writ need be served, but the name of each person on whose behalf the Official Guardian is served shall be stated on the copy served. C.R. 152.

The practice under Eng. (1883), R. 51 is different.

The cases in which the Official Guardian is to act under this Rule are those which formerly were dealt with in Chancery, viz., where an infant, whether within or without the Province, is interested in an estate in question in the action. The former C. R. 152 further expressly provided that whether the interest of the infant in the estate was beneficial or fiduciary he was to be represented by the Official Guardian: see Re Jackson, Massey v. Crookshanks, 12 P. R. 475. It is probable that the present Rule is also intended to apply, whether the interest of the infant is beneficial or fiduciary. In all other cases not covered by this Rule and Rules 19 and 20, Rule 92 applies.

Where a plaintiff signs judgment against a defendant in ignorance that he is an infant, it is discretionary with the Court whether such judgment shall be set aside: Furnival v. Brooke, 49 L. T. 134; Straughan v. Smith, 19 Ont. 558; Millson v. Smale, 25 Ont. 144. Rules 19-21.

Service on the Official Guardian of a notice under The Quieting Titles Act is good service upon infants who are required to be notified: Re Murray, 13 P. R. 367.

See also notes to Rules 91 and 92.

Service on infant personally when necessary.

19. Where the action against an infant defendant is for the recovery of lands, goods, or chattels of which he is personally in possession, service shall be made on the infant personally, and a copy of the writ shall also be delivered to the Official Guardian, indorsed as aforesaid, who may enter an appearance for the infant, in the absence of other order or direction. C.R. 153.

This Rule varies from Eng. (1883), R. 51.

Personal service on an infant is made in the same manner as upon an adult: Dan. Chy. Prac. (5th ed.), 368, 376.

Where an infant is out of the jurisdiction the Court has the like power to order service substitutionally, or by publication, or otherwise, as in the case of an adult: Duffy v. O'Connor, 1 Chy. Ch. 393.

In an action for foreclosure, where possession is claimed, the writ of summons need not be served personally on the infant heirs of the mortgagor if they are not personally in possession: Sparks v. Purdy, 15 P. R. 1, 295.

See also notes to Rule 18.

Infants sued for torts, etc.

20. Where the action is against an infant in respect of a personal tort or for the recovery of money only, the infant shall be served as in the case of an adult defendant. C.R. 154.

See notes to Rules 91 and 92.

Lunatics, etc., with committees.

21.—(1) Where a lunatic, or person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition [or judicial declaration], is a defendant, service on the committee of the lunatic or on the person with whom the defendant of unsound mind resides, or under whose care he is, shall, unless otherwise ordered, be deemed good service.

Inspector of Prisons, etc., not to be regarded as committee.

(2) The Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities shall not be regarded as the committee of a lunatic detained in any public Asylum within the meaning of this rule. (See R.S.O. 1897, c. 317, s. 55.) C.R. 157.

Sub-section 1 is similar to Eng. (1883), R. 52, except the words in brackets. The Lunacy Act (R. S. O. c. 68), s. 6, authorizes the Court to declare a person a lunatic without an inquisition.

By The Hospitals for the Insane Act (R. S. O. c. 295), s. 40, the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities is ex officio the committee

Rules 22, 23. of every lunatic who has no other committee, and is detained in any public asylum, sanitarium for mental diseases or place of safe custody. Section 42 of that Act provides as follows:—

Proceedings against persons under detention.

42. If an action or other proceeding is brought against a patient it shall be sufficient in order to bind the estate of such patient, or to make the proceedings otherwise valid, to serve any writ, process, paper or other document upon the Inspector, if the Inspector is named therein as committee.

The above provision appears to be inconsistent with sub-section 2 of this Rule, for while the Rule says that the Inspector shall not be regarded as the committee of a lunatic detained in any public asylum within the meaning of the Rule; which would, in effect, prevent his being served with a writ for a patient under sub-section 1; The Hospitals for the Insane Act (R. S. O. c. 295) s. 42 provides that service on the Inspector shall be sufficient to bind the estate of a patient. If the Inspector is served, however, Rule 22 provides that a guardian must be appointed where the lunatic has no other committee except the Inspector.

Where a lunatic had no committee, service was, in England, directed to be made on the keeper of an asylum where the lunatic was living: Thorn v. Smith, W. N. 1879, 81; 27 W. R. 617. It is the duty of the keeper of an asylum to allow the writ to be served: Denison v. Hardings, W. N. 1867, 17, unless the service might be injurious to the lunatic: Re Mein, 2 Chy. 429. Service on the manager of a lunatic defendant's business was held insufficient: Fore Street Co. v. Durant, 10 Q. B. D. 471.

Guardian ad litem.

22. After service of the writ no further proceedings shall be taken against a defendant who is a lunatic and has no committee, or no committee except the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, or against a defendant of unsound mind not so found, until a guardian ad litem is appointed. C.R. 158.

See notes to Rules 94-98.

Where the fact of lunacy is disputed, and the defendant has not been judicially found lunatic, an inquiry would probably be ordered on this point, on the application of the defendant, before appointing a guardian: see Howell v. Lewis, 65 L. T. 672, the case of a plaintiff.

Where proceedings are taken against a lunatic defendant without the due appointment of a guardian, in the manner prescribed by this Rule, they may be set aside as irregular: Warnock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

Service on corporations, how effected.

23. A corporation may be served with a writ of summons by delivering a copy to the Mayor, Warden, Reeve, President, or other head officer, or on the Township, Town, City or County Clerk, or on the Cashier, Treasurer or Secretary, Clerk or Agent of such corporation, or of any branch or agency thereof in Ontario. Any person who, within Ontario, transacts or carries on any of the business of, or any business for, any corporation whose chief place of business is without Ontario, shall, for the purpose of being served as aforesaid, be deemed the agent thereof. C.R. 159. Rule 23.

(2) Service may also be effected on any person appointed for that purpose under the Extra-provincial Corporation Act. 63 Vic., c. 24, s. 8 (b). R. S. O. c. 179.

(3) In the case of a railway, telegraph, or express corporation, service may be effected on the agent of such corporation at any branch or agency thereof, or on any station master of the railway company, or on the telegraph operator or express agent having charge of any telegraph or express office belonging to such corporation. C.R. 160. Services of papers on certain corporations.

See Eng. (1883) R. 55.

Former C. R. 159 provided not only for service of a writ of summons but also for service of any "other document" in any cause or matter.

As to the residence of a corporation: see Bank of Nova Scotia v. McKinnon, 12 C. L. T. 178; Rex. v. Lovitt, 1912, A. C. 212: Royal Bank of Canada v. The King, 1913, A. C. 283.

The Mother Superior of a convent is not the "head officer" within the corresponding English Rule upon whom to serve the writ in an action against an order whose governing body is in France: Golding v. Order of La Sainte Union des Sacrées Coeurs, 67 L. T. 605. Whether such a body is a corporation quære: Ib.

Rule 23 applies to a company incorporated by the Dominion. Such a company cannot in any Province be regarded as a foreign corporation: Tytler v. Can. Pac. Ry., 29 Ont. 654, 659; 26 Ont. App. 467. As to such companies: see The Dominion Companies Act (R. S. C. c. 79), s. 95. Dominion companies.

Where the head office of such a corporation had been at Ottawa at the time of the issue of the writ, and, though it was said that the head office had been changed to Montreal, this was not clearly shown to be the case, an order for substitutional service of the corporation by advertising was upheld, there being at the time of service no place of business of the corporation in Ontario, nor any representative on whom service could be made: Gold Run (Klondike) Mining Co. v. Canadian Gold Mining Co., 5 O. W. R. 411.

The Canadian Pacific Railway, whose head office is in Montreal, was served in Ontario with a writ of summons in an action to recover damages for negligence in British Columbia, and the service was upheld: Tytler v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 29 Ont. 654; 26 Ont. App. 467.

But an action against a railway company in Ontario, whose head office is in Quebec, for damages to lands in another Province, the title of the plaintiff to which is denied, cannot be maintained in Ontario: Brereton v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 29 Ont. 57.

Foreign Corporations.—A foreign corporation is not subject to process simply because some person in its employ as clerk or agent Foreign corporations.

Rule 28.

can be found in Ontario: per Moss, J.A., in Murphy v. Phœnix Bridge Co., 18 P. R. 502. A foreign corporation in order to be sued in Ontario must be carrying on business there in such a way as to render it subject to be deemed resident within Ontario, and in order to serve a writ upon it within Ontario some person must be served within Ontario who sufficiently represents it; if a clerk, he must be one transacting business or performing duties in Ontario on behalf of the corporation of such a nature that if transacted or performed by a clerk of a domestic corporation, would make him a proper person to be served: Ib., per Moss, J.A., 502; or one who transacts or carries on in Ontario or controls or manages for the corporation some part of the business which it professes to do, and for which it was incorporated: per Osler, J.A., Ib., p. 501.

It is sufficient to warrant service under this Rule that the corporation is actually carrying on business within the jurisdiction, though it be merely temporarily doing so: Dunlop, &c., v. Actien-Gesellschaft, 1902, 1 K. B. 342; 86 L. T. 472.

Where there is such an officer or agent as in this Rule mentioned of a corporation whose chief place of business is without Ontario, service may be effected on such officer or agent, even in an action respecting a liability incurred by the corporation out of the Province: Armstrong v. Loncashire, 3 O. L. R. 395.

Service within the Province on the President of a foreign corporation was held bad where it was not shewn that it transacted any business there: Wilson v. Detroit & Milwaukee Ry. Co., 3 P. R. 37. Where a foreign insurance Co. had a head office for the Province in Toronto, service on the local agent of the Co. at Ottawa was held good, notwithstanding the provisions of the Dom. Act, 40 Vict. c. 42, s. 9: Wilson v. Etna Life Insurance Co., 8 P. R. 131; see now The Insurance Act, 1910 (9-10 Edw. 7, c. 32. D.), s. 23; even though the company had transferred its business to another company, the authority of the agent remaining unrevoked: Armstrong v. Lancashire, supra.

For peculiar circumstances under which a corporation was held not to have had an agent in Ontario upon whom service might be effected: see Murphy v. Phœnix Bridge Co., 18 P. R. 406, 495; Burnett v. General Accident Assurance Corp., 6 O. W. R. 144.

Having an agent resident within the jurisdiction paid by commission on orders sent by him, and having power to make contracts for the corporation, and to receive payments of debts due to it, was held to be carrying on business within the jurisdiction: Saccharin Corporation v. Chemische Fabrik, etc., 1911, 2 K. B. 516; 104 L. T. 886; and see Rule 33 and Actiesselkabet, etc. v. Grand Trunk Pac. Ry., 1912, 1 K. B. 222; 105 L. T. 695; but if the agent has no power to make contracts binding on the foreign corporation, he is not such an agent as can be served under this Rule: Okura Forsbocka, 110 L. T. 464; 1914, 1 K. B. 715.

Foreign company carrying on business in Ontario.

"Carrying on Business in Ontario."—See cases under Rule 100, and Bennett v. Gen. Accident Ass. Corp., 6 O. W. R. 144.

It has been decided under the English O. 63 of 1875, and s. 100 of the Jud. Act of 1873 [see s. 2 (h) of the Ont. Act, and The Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1), s. 29 (x)], that a foreign corporation, though it does not carry on business within the jurisdiction, may be sued there, in cases where an individual foreigner might be sued: see Westmon v. Aktiebologet, etc., 1 Ex. D. 237; Scott v. The Royal Wax Candle

Co., 1 Q. B. D. 404; Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. v. Braham, 2 App. Cas. 381. Such a corporation might, under the old practice, have been sued in Ontario, and the mode of service in such a case was prescribed by Chy. O. 92, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 50 and 51. Since the Jud. Act a foreign defendant can only be sued where Rules 25, et seq., apply. Rule 23.

A company registered abroad and having its head office abroad but the directors of which resided in England where they transacted the principal part of the company's business, was held to have its residence in England: De Beers Con. Mines v. Howe, 1906, A. C. 455; and see Actiesselskabet, etc. v. Grand Trunk Pac. Ry., supra, p. 342.

Service under the Eng. (1883) R. 56 was held good on a foreign corporation which had an agency office in London: Lhoneux & Co. v. Hong Kong & Shanghai Banking Co., 33 Ch. D. 446.

A foreign corporation which carries on business within Ontario is capable of being treated for the purpose of service as a Provincial corporation resident within the Province: Haggin v. Comptoir, etc., 23 Q. B. D. 519; 61 L. T. 748; approving of and following Newby v. Von Oppen, L. R. 7 Q. B. 293; see also Palmer v. Gould's Manufacturing Co., W. N. 1884, 63; per Lord St. Leonards in The Corron Iron Co. v. Maclaren, 5 H. L. C. at p. 459; La Bourgogne, 79 L. T. 310, 331; S. C., sub nom. Compagnie-Generale v. Law, 1899, A. C. 431; 80 L. T. 845; Logan v. Bank of Scotland, 1904, 2 K. B. 495.

A foreign corporation having no place of business within the jurisdiction, but which employs a traveller to solicit orders within the jurisdiction, which orders are sent to the corporation and there executed by forwarding goods in accordance with the orders for which payment was made direct to the corporation, was held not "to carry on business within the jurisdiction": see Standard Ideal Co. v. Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Co., 1911, A. C. 78; Woodbridge v. Bellamy, 1911, 1 Ch. 326; 103 L. T. 852: Allison v. Independent Press Cable Assoc., 28 T. L. R. 128; and a foreign corporation, all the directors and officers of which are abroad, but the majority of the shareholders of which are in England, and which has a London agent with a London office, but carries on no principal or material part of its business in England, is not liable to be sued in an English Court: Badcock v. Cumberland, 1893, 1 Ch. 362; 41 W. R. 204; 68 L. T. 155. Traveller.

Nor can a foreign corporation which advertises that inquiries may be made at the office of its agents within the jurisdiction, be served, by serving the managing clerk of such agents where the office is the agent's office, and the clerk is the agent's servant: Re Princesse Clementine, 75 L. T. 695, but see La Bourgogne, supra; but a foreign railway company having an agent in Ontario described as "General Canadian Agent" whose business was to solicit freight for the company, was held to be carrying on business in Ontario, and as such suable and servable in Ontario: Wagner v. Erie Ry. Co., 6 O. W. N. 386; and see Thomes & Mersey M. I. Co. v. Societa de Navigazione, etc., 136 L. T. Jour. 633. Agent.

Service within the jurisdiction on a broker employed by a foreign corporation to obtain subscriptions to its stock, was held good service on the corporation: Globe P. Co. v. Hilltop, G. M. Co., 33 C. L. J. 771. Broker.

The word "clerk" in this Rule means a principal officer, and not a mere subordinate clerk: Wolton v. Universal Co., 16 M. & W. 438; Mackereth v. Glasgow, L. R. 8 Ex. 149. Clerk.

Rule 24.

Liquidator.

Service on the liquidator of a company is not good service on the company: see Re Flowers, 75 L. T. 306.

Contract as to service.

A foreign corporation may contract that process, etc., may be served upon a person within the jurisdiction, and the appointment of such person is irrevocable until some other agent is appointed: Tharsis Sulphur, etc., Co. v. Société Industrielle, etc., des Métaux, 38 W. R. 78; 60 L. T. 924; Montgomery v. Liebenthal, 1898, 1 Q. B. 407; but only in a case where the Court has jurisdiction to allow service of a writ out of the jurisdiction: British Waggon Co. v. West, 1896, 1 Q. B. 35, 37.

Colonial Government.

A colonial Government: Sloman v. Governor of New Zealand, 1 C. P. D. 563, and a foreign Government: Strousberg v. Costa Rica, 29 W. R. 125, have been held not to be corporations.

Service as provided by any special statute, or by letters patent or special Act.

Former C. R. 161 provided:—

"Where, by any statute, provision is made for service in any other manner, service may be made accordingly."

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 55, last clause. This practice, it is presumed, must still be followed, and the provisions of any such statutes must be strictly followed: Wood v. Anderston, 36 W. R. 918.

Statutory authority as to service.

Where, by a statute, service of writ might be effected by being left at, or sent by post to, the company's office, or given to the secretary, or if no secretary, to a director, and the company had no office, and the action was brought by the secretary, service on a director was held invalid: Lawrenson v. Dublin Metropolitan, etc., Railway, 37 L. T. 32.

(v) Service Out of Ontario.

Substitutional service on manager of a business in Ontario.

24. Where service of a writ out of Ontario may be allowed, and the defendant, whether a British subject or not, is, or was at the time the cause of action arose, carrying on business within Ontario, if the cause of action arose in respect of such business, an order may be made allowing service upon any person having the control or management of the business. C.R. 147.

Jurisdiction to allow service out of Ontario.

The right of the Court to order service of proceedings out of the jurisdiction, whether on British subjects or foreigners, is not an inherent right, but depends altogether on statute: see In re Anglo-African S. Co., 32 Ch. D. 350; and see Re Busfield, 32 Ch. D. 123; Re Moughom, 22 W. R. 748. The jurisdiction of all Provincial Courts is primâ facie only territorial, and, generally speaking, is exercisable only over persons and land and movables within the territorial limits within which this jurisdiction is to be exercised. "Territorial jurisdiction attaches (with special exceptions) upon all persons either permanently or temporarily resident within the territory while they are within it; but it does not follow them after they have withdrawn from it, and when they are living in another independent country. It exists always as to land within the territory, and it may be exercised over movables within the territory, and in questions of status and succession governed by domicil, it may exist as to persons domiciled, or who, when living, were domiciled within the territory": see Sirdar Gurdyal Singh v. Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670. In the same

...se the Privy Council laid down (1) that no territorial Legislature Rule 31.
...an give jurisdiction, which any foreign Courts ought to recognize, against absent foreigners who owe no allegiance or obedience to the power which legislates; and (2) that in all personal actions the Courts of the country in which the defendant resides, not the Courts of the country where the action arose, ought to be resorted to. And it was also said that "in a personal action to which none of the above named causes of jurisdiction apply, a decree pronounced in absentid by a foreign Court, to the jurisdiction of which the defendant has not in any way subjected himself, is by international law an absolute nullity."

The present English Rules as regards suits against absent foreigners, which are followed by the Ontario Rules, are the result of diplomatic remonstrance in regard to the previous practice of the English Courts, and they were passed "to bring that practice into accordance with well-settled rules of international law, or at all events, comity": see per Lord Coleridge, C.J., Field v. Bennett, 3 T. L. R. 239; 56 L. J. Q. B. 89; and see per Huddleston, B., Lendens v. Anderson, 12 Q. B. D. p. 57; and per Field, J., Hewitson v. Fabre, 21 Q. B. D. p. 8; and per Chitty, J., Re Busfield, 32 Ch. D. 123.

Present Practice.—Under the English Rules it has been held Present practice. that the provisions of the new Rules are exhaustive, and even though under any former practice process might be served out of the jurisdiction it will not now be allowed, unless the case falls within these Rules: Re Eager, 22 Ch. D. 86; Re Cliff, 1895, 2 Ch. 21; and, following this English practice, the present Ontario Rules embrace all cases in which it is intended that the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court shall, for the present, be exercised in the case of a defendant out of the jurisdiction.

There is, for instance, no power given by the Rules to give leave to serve a writ out of the jurisdiction in an action to enforce a charge against personal property in Ontario: Kolchmonn v. Meurice, 1903, 1 K. B. 534; nor in an action for alimony: Wheeler v. Wheeler, 17 P. R. 45; and see Allen v. Allen, 15 P. R. 458, unless Rule 25 (c) applies. See Bonbright v. Bonbright, 1 O. L. R. 629; 2 O. L. R. 249; see also Rasch v. Wulfert, 1904, 1 K. B. 118, where it was held that there was no jurisdiction to authorize service out of the jurisdiction of a summons to enforce an award, under The Arbitration Act. Nor is there jurisdiction now to allow service out of Ontario of a statement of claim already filed, except, probably, in an action under The Mechanics Lien Act, which is commenced by a statement of claim: see Rule 3 (j).

A motion must be made for leave to issue the writ of summons showing a case falling within some clause of Rule 25: Pennington v. Morley, 3 O. L. R. 514; Grant v. Kerr, 2 O. W. N. 770, and see Re Jones v. Bissonnette, 3 O. L. R. 54.

Where, however, a foreign firm which cannot be sued within the jurisdiction brings an action, it thereby brings itself within the jurisdiction, and by a counter-claim the defendant can set up matters which could not be set up in an action against the foreign firm: Griendtoveen v. Hamlyn, 8 T. L. R. 231; but see Imperial Japanese Govt. v. Peninsular & Oriental S. N. Co., 1895, A. C. 644.

A foreign sovereign suing in the Courts of this country submits to the jurisdiction to the extent only that (1) he must give discovery, and (2) cross-proceedings in mitigation of the relief claimed by him can be taken against him: S. African Rep., etc., v. La Compagnie, etc., 1898, 1 Ch. 190.

Rule 24.

Motion for leave to issue and serve.

Motion for Leave to Issue and Serve Writ.—Leave to issue and serve the writ may, and generally should, be asked for on the same motion: Young v. Brassey, 24 W. R. 110; 1 Ch. D. 277; Traill v. Porter, 1 L. R. Ir. 60; McVie v. Crown Point Mining Co., 19 P. R. 335; though separate motions may possibly sometimes be necessary: see Stigand v. Stigand, 19 Ch. D. 460.

The motion for leave should also be for the limiting of the time for defendant to appear, and the order giving leave should name the time: Rule 27; Re Jones v. Bissonnette, 3 O. L. R. 54.

The motion is made in Chambers: Ib., before the Master in Chambers or other officer (except the Master in Ordinary) having like jurisdiction in Chambers: see Rules 208, 209, 433.

The evidence in support of the motion (usually an affidavit) is prescribed by Rule 26: see also Seagrove v. Parks, 1891, 1 Q. B. 551.

Affidavit.

The affidavit or other evidence should show that primâ facie the plaintiff has a good cause of action within the Rules: Great Australian Mining Co. v. Martin, 5 Ch. D. 1; Société, etc., v. Dreyfus, 37 Ch. D. 215; but the Court need not try the action to determine the existence of a cause of action, if there is primâ facie evidence, that is sufficient: Badische Anilin, etc., v. Chemische Fabrik, etc., 88 L. T. 490; Badische Anilin v. Thompson, 88 L. T. 492*n*.

Although the affidavit need only establish a primâ facie case, it should be "candid": see Hardingham v. Rowan, 24 Sol. Jour. 309.

The facts must be fairly disclosed, or the order may be rescinded: Ploskitt v Eddis, 79 L. T. 136.

An ex parte order allowing service out of the jurisdiction was discharged upon its being shown that the affidavit on which the order was obtained contained misstatements of fact, which had the effect of showing the plaintiffs to have a good cause of action: Republic of Peru v. Dreyfus, 55 L. T. 802. The affidavit may be made by the solicitor, or any one who has a knowledge of the facts. Identifying a copy of the statement of claim is not enough; the material allegations contained in it as to the contract, etc., must be sworn to: Great Australian, etc., v. Martin, sup.; Perkins v. Mississippi, etc., Co., 10 P. R. 198; Société, etc., v. Dreyfus, 37 Ch. D. 215. It is not necessary to use the words "there is a cause of action" if the facts sworn to shew it: Fowler v. Barstow, 30 W. R. 113; 20 Ch. D. 240.

The affidavit should be styled, "In the matter of an intended action between, etc."; Young v. Brassey, 1 Ch. D. 277; Blake v. Lever, 6 L. R. Ir. 476; Re Jones v. Bissonnette, supra.

Where a defendant out of the jurisdiction was a proper party to an action against defendants within the jurisdiction, and on that ground alone was made a defendant, the order allowing service on him was made subject to an undertaking by the plaintiff to submit to a dismissal of the action against the defendant out of the jurisdiction if he failed as against those within: Re Jones v. Bissonnette, supra; and see Burson v. German Union Ins. Co., 10 O. L. R. 238, in which the action was for that reason dismissed.

Rule 24.

Service of proceedings other than writs of summons out of the jurisdiction.

Proceedings other than Writs of Summons.—The word "writ" in these Rules includes any document by which a matter or proceeding is commenced: Rule 3 (j).

As to service of infants with proceedings under The Quieting Titles Act: see Re Murray, 10 [illegible] T. 88.

In Manitoba & [illegible] W. v. Allen, 1893, 3 Ch. 432, it was held that the Court had no power to give leave for service of a notice of motion with a writ, where the writ is to be served out of the jurisdiction. But see Hersey v. Tessier, W. N. 1 94, 18.

Counterclaim.

Leave to serve a counter-claim on a third person out of the jurisdiction was granted in Re Luckie, W. N. 1880, 12; and see Griendtoreen v. Homlyn, 8 T. L. R. 231; but refused in Potters v. Miller, 31 W. R. 358; but this case is probably overruled by Dubout v. Macpherson, 23 Q. B. D. 340; and see Rule 113.

Third party notice.

As to service of a third party notice out of the jurisdiction: see notes to Rule 165: Montgomery v. Soginow Lumber Co., 12 O. L. R. 144. Under the former C. R. 162 a petition for a declaration of lunacy was allowed to be served out of Ontario: Re Webb, 12 O. L. R. 194. Under the Eng. Rule a notice of motion to set aside an award was held not to be servable out of the jurisdiction on a foreign corporation: Re Aktiebologet, 1910, 2 K. B. 727; 103 L. T. 503. Possibly, under the wide effect given to this Rule by Rule 3 (j) such a proceeding might be authorized.

Discretion.

Discretion.—The Court is not bound to allow service in cases within Rule 25, but has a discretion on a consideration of the merits: Société Generale de Paris v. Dreyfus, 37 Ch. D. 215.

It has been held to be a matter for the discretion of the Judge or officer in Chambers whether he will give leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction to recover damages for breach of promise of marriage, where the affidavits on the motion do not show that the plaintiff is prepared to prove her case by corroborative evidence of the promise: Franklyn v. Choplin, 17 T. L. R. 84. See also Cooper v. Knight, Ib., 299.

Where the contract was made in Quebec and the defendants resided there, but had a large amount of debts due them in Ontario it was held not to be a proper exercise of discretion to refuse an order for service out of the jurisdiction: Gibbons v. Berliner Gramophone Co., 28 O. L. R. 620.

Motion to set aside service.

Motion to set Aside Service.—If the case is not one in which service should be allowed, the proper course is, not to raise the question by statement of defence, but to move to set aside the service or to rescind the order allowing service, if an order has been made: Preston v. Lomont, 1 Ex. D. 361; Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249.

If defendant contends that the Court has not jurisdiction under Rule 25, he may move in the ordinary way in Chambers to set aside the order for service, and the service, and any judgment signed by default of appearance.

Where an order giving leave to serve out of the jurisdiction had been made, a motion against it, on the ground of irregularity, made after the lapse of a year, was held to be too late: Reynolds v. Coleman, 36 Ch. D. 453.

Rule 24.

Where defendant moves against the order, or to set aside the service, affidavits are admissible to try the question whether a cause of action arose within the jurisdiction, or other circumstances exist which are necessary under Rule 25 to give the Court jurisdiction, though not to try the merits of the case: Fowler v. Barstow, 20 Ch. D. 240; overruling on this point Great Australian Gold Mining Co. v. Martin, 5 Ch. D. 1; see also Thomas v. Hamilton, 17 Q. B. D. 592; Société, etc., v. Dreyfus, 37 Ch. D. 215; and the order may be maintained by further evidence, though the affidavits on which it was granted were insufficient: Kemerer v. Watterson, 20 O. L. R. 451.

Where a defendant was resident in Scotland or Ireland the omission of any statement that he was a British subject was held immaterial: Fowler v. Borstow, supra.

Conflict of evidence.

Where there has been a conflict of evidence as to whether the cause of action arose within or without the jurisdiction, orders have been made similar to that in Diamond v. Sutton, L. R. 1 Ex. 130, i.e., the service to stand, plaintiff undertaking to be non-suited if no cause of action within the jurisdiction be shewn at the trial: see O'Donohoe v. Wiley, 43 U. C. Q. B. 350; Nottage v. Aitkin, 71 L. T. Jour. 326; 25 Sol. Jour. 834; see also Fowler v. Borstow, 20 Ch. D. 240; Shearman v. Findlay, 32 W. R. 122; Thomas v. Homilton, 17 Q. B. D. 592, reversing the judgment of the Court below, reported in 55 L. T. 219; and Perkins v. Mississippi, supra, p. 346, where the practice was disapproved of; but it was again approved of in Simpson v. Hall, 14 P. R. 310; see also Bell v. Villeneuve, 16 P. R. 413; Franchot v. General Securities Co., 18 P. R. 291; Re Jones v. Bissonnette, 3 O. L. R. 54; and Burson v. Germon Union Ins. Co., 6 O. W. R. 21.

In the case of such a conflict of evidence another practice has sometimes been adopted since Rule 48 was passed, viz., to allow the defendant to enter a conditional appearance and raise on pleadings the want of jurisdiction, so that, where there would be great expense involved in the trial of all the merits, the preliminary question as to the jurisdiction may be tried separately: see Canadian Radiator Co. v. Cuthbertson, 9 O. L. R. 126; but this is contrary to the English practice, under which a conditional appearance is allowed merely to enable a defendant to move to discharge the order allowing service: see note to Rule 48.

Upon motion to set aside the service on the ground that the breach of contract did not occur within the jurisdiction, the plaintiff was refused leave to amend by setting up another and distinct cause of action: Parker v. Schiller, 17 T. L. R. 299.

A notice of motion to set aside an order for service out of the jurisdiction operates as a stay of proceedings till the motion is disposed of, so that the time for appearance does not run in the meanwhile: Confederation Life, etc, v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 603.

The Court will not try the case on a motion to set aside an order allowing service out of the jurisdiction: Badische Anilin v. Chemische Fabrik, 88 L. T. 490.

Effect of appearance on right to move against order allowing service.

Effect of Appearance.—An appearance by a defendant in the usual way without notice of any objection to the jurisdiction estops him from moving to set aside a writ and service as being unwarranted by Rule 25; see notes to Rule 46: Grocers' Wholesale Co. v. Bostock, 22 O. L. R. 130; Tozier v. Howkins, 1885, 15 Q. B. D. 650, 680; Sears

v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 381, 456; Dort v. Citizens, 11 P. R. 513; but obtaining security for costs; and opposing a motion for speedy judgment without entering an appearance, does not estop him: Heath v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 387. An unconditional appearance is a waiver of the right to object to the jurisdiction as to the whole claim, though part of it may not be within Rule 25: Manitoba & N. W. v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432. Rule 24.

Where a defendant out of the jurisdiction had appeared and successfully opposed a motion for speedy judgment, an application to withdraw his appearance and for leave to enter a conditional appearance was refused: Croil v. McCullough, 11 O. L. R. 282.

An unauthorized appearance will not operate as a waiver of the right to object to the jurisdiction: Crozier v. Auerbach, 1908, W. N. 68.

There is an express Rule in England (O. 12, r. 30), under which a motion to set aside the service of a writ may be made before appearance: see Western v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304; but a conditional appearance may be entered: Firth v. De las Rivos, 1893, 1 Q. B. 768; 69 L. T. 383, or an ordinary appearance, if defendant at the same time notifies plaintiff that he objects to the jurisdiction: Moyer v. Claretie, 7 T. L. R. 40, without waiving the right to set aside the service. Conditional appearance.

Unless within a reasonable time after the entry of a conditional appearance, the defendant moves to set aside the writ according to the English practice, the appearance becomes absolute: Keymer v. Reddy, 1912, 1 K. B. 215; 105 L. T. 541.

In Ontario a conditional appearance may now be entered by leave of the Court: Rule 48; and see Burson v. German Union Ins. Co., 6 O. W. R. 22.

An objection to the jurisdiction of the Court, not based on the ground that Rule 25 does not authorize service, but upon other grounds which might arise even though the Court has jurisdiction over the person of the defendant, is not necessarily waived by an ordinary appearance: Wilmott v. McFarlane, 16 C. L. T. 83; 32 C. L. J. 129.

Objection to an order for service out of the jurisdiction was held to have been waived by appearing on a motion for an injunction and arguing the merits: Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249; (but see Heath v. Meyers, supra); by taking out a summons for delivery of a statement of claim: Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 398; and by applying for security for costs: Lhoneux & Co. v. Hong Kong, etc., Corp., 33 Ch. D. 446; (but see Heath v. Meyers, supra); and by proceeding to examine witnesses after objection to the jurisdiction overruled: Guy v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 372: see also notes to Rule 46.

Substituted Service.—Under the Irish Rules it is held that a writ intended to be served substitutionally upon a person within the jurisdiction may be issued without leave, though the defendant be resident out of the jurisdiction: Lewis v. Herberts, 16 L. R. Ir. 340; but the contrary has been held in England: Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395, where it was said that holding otherwise would enable the Rule to be evaded, which requires leave to be obtained. Where a writ has been properly issued against a defendant out of the jurisdiction, an order for substitutional service within the jurisdiction may be obtained: Ford v. Shepherd, 53 L. T. 564; 34 W. R. 63; Western Suburban & N. H. P. B. Society v. Rucklidge, 1905, 2 Ch. 472; 93 L. T. 664; Substitutional service.

Rule 24.

or by mailing to an address out of the jurisdiction: Dittan v. Bornemann, 3 T. L. R. 3.

In Ontario, an order for substituted service of a defendant out of the jurisdiction can only be obtained in case the subject-matter of the action makes Rule 25 applicable; and the time for appearance, etc., will be the same as if the defendant had been served out of the jurisdiction.

The person on whom service is authorized should be served with such form of writ, or notice thereof, as would be proper if the service were being personally effected upon the defendant himself, at the place where he is at the time of the substituted service.

There cannot be substituted service of an ordinary writ for service within the jurisdiction on a defendant who cannot be served with it by reason of his being out of the jurisdiction: Société Industrielle, etc. v. Companhia Portugueza, etc., W. N. 1889, 32; Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 399; Hillyard v. Smith, 36 W. R. 7; see Field v. Bennett, 56 L. J. Q. B. 89; Stewart v. Bank of England, W. N. 1876, 263; Wilding v. Bean, 1891, 1 Q. B. 100; Worcester, etc. v. Firbank, etc., 1894, 1 Q. B. 784, unless defendant is out of the jurisdiction to evade service: Re Urquhart, 24 Q. B. D. 723; see Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 186; or has left the jurisdiction after the issue of the writ without intending to evade service: Jay v. Budd, 1898, 1 Q. B. 12; 77 L. T. 335.

Under the former Rule substituted service on a lunatic out of the jurisdiction of a petition for a declaration of lunacy was allowed, it being proved to be dangerous to serve personally the alleged lunatic: Re Webb, 12 O. L. R. 194.

Foreign corporations.

Foreign Corporations.—A foreign corporation is within the Rules and may be served abroad; Scott v. Royal Wax Candle Association, 1 Q. B. D. 404; Westman v. Aktiebolaget, etc., Snickarefabrik, 1 Ex. D. 237, but not a foreign sovereign or state: Strousberg v. Costa Rica, 29 W. R. 125; see also Sedgwick v. Yedras Mining Co., 35 W. R. 780; Mighell v. Sultan of Johore, 1894, 1 Q. B. 149.

A corporation incorporated by the Dominion is not in any Province a corporation of foreign origin: Tytler v. Can. Pac. Ry., 29 Ont. 654; 26 Ont. App. 467.

Where a foreign corporation is carrying on business within the jurisdiction, and has an agent resident within the jurisdiction, no leave to serve is necessary: see Rule 23 and notes.

Statute of Limitations.

Miscellaneous.—The power conferred by Rule 25 of serving a writ or notice of a writ on a defendant out of the jurisdiction, who is neither a British subject, nor in British dominions, does not affect The Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. c. 75), s. 52, by which in certain specified actions, where a defendant is out of Ontario when the cause of action arises, the plaintiff is at liberty to bring his action after the defendant's return, but within the period limited by ss. 49 and 50: Musurus Bey v. Gadban, 1894, 2 Q. B. 352; 71 L. T. 51.

Consent.

It would seem that a party out of the jurisdiction cannot, even by consent, give the Court jurisdiction in cases not within the provisions of Rule 25: see The British Waggon Co. v. West, 1896, 1 Q. B. 35, 37; 73 L. T. 498; sed vide, Manitoba & N. W. v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432; but it was held that a party out of the jurisdiction may appoint a person within the jurisdiction to accept service for the purpose of being sued within the jurisdiction: Tharsis Sulphur, etc., Soc. v. Société, etc., 60 L. T. 924; 38 W. R. 78; and see per Lord Esher, 1896, 1 Q. B. 37; Montgomery v. Liebenthal, 1898, 1 Q. B. 487; and that the jurisdiction of any Court may be excluded by agreement: Hoerler v. Hanover, etc., 10 T. L. R. 22. Rule 25.

25.—(1) Service out of Ontario of a writ of summons or notice of writ may be allowed wherever:— Service of writ out of jurisdiction.

This Rule is taken from Eng. (1883) R. 64.

The words "writ of summons" in this Rule shall include any document by which a matter or proceeding is commenced: Rule 3 (j).

The sub-sections of Rule 25 are to be read disjunctively, and each of such sub-sections is complete in itself, and independent of the others: Tassell v. Hallen, 1892, 1 Q. B. 321; Livingstone v. Sibbald, 15 P. R. 315; Hadad v. Bruce, 8 T. L. R. 409.

Where a person, though resident out of the jurisdiction, is carrying on business within the jurisdiction in a name other than his own, he may be sued as provided by Rule 108, which appears to constitute an exception to this Rule, unless the plaintiff wishes to serve the defendant personally, in which case the provisions of Rules 28, 29 must be complied with.

See notes to Rule 24.

(a) The whole subject-matter of the action is land situate within Ontario (with or without rents or profits); Land.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (a).

The fact that the defendant is the owner of land within the jurisdiction, against which the plaintiff seeks to realize the amount of a judgment recovered against a defendant in a foreign Court, does not raise a cause of action within this or any other section of Rule 25: Heath v. Meyers, 16 P. R. 381, unless the case can be brought within clause (h) infra.

In Conrad v. Alberta, 17 C. L. T. 134, under the similar Jud. Ordinance of the N. W. Territories, s. 32 (1), it was held that an action by judgment creditors to declare defendants, resident in a foreign country, trustees for the judgment debtor of lands situated within the jurisdiction of the Court, and for a sale of the land to satisfy the judgment, is an action in which the whole subject matter is land situate within the judicial district.

An action to perpetuate testimony in order to preserve evidence material to the ownership of land within the jurisdiction, is not an action in which the subject matter is land; and where an infant whose legitimacy was in question was defendant in such an action and domiciled out of the jurisdiction, leave to serve him with the writ out of the jurisdiction was refused: Slingsby v. Slingsby, 1912, 2 Ch. 21; 106 L. T. 666.

Specific performance of a contract for the exchange of lands out of Ontario for lands in Ontario, was decreed in favour of the plaintiff, who was the owner of the lands out of Ontario: Montgomery v. Ruppensburg, 31 Ont. 433; but see Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547; Purdom v. Pavey, 26 S. C. R. 112; Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 23 S. C. R. 716; 20 Ont. App. 646; Gunn v. Harper, 30 Ont. 650; 2 O. L. R. 611.

Rule 25.

Contracts, etc., affecting land.

(b) Any act, deed, will, contract, obligation, or liability affecting land or hereditaments situate within Ontario is sought to be construed, rectified, set aside, or enforced;

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (b).

An action for breach of covenant to repair, contained in a lease of premises situate within the jurisdiction was held to be within this clause: Tassell v. Hallen, 1892, 1 Q. B. 321; 66 L. T. 196; and see Kaye v. Sutherland, 20 Q. B. D. 147; so also was an action by a simple contract creditor on behalf of himself and other creditors to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of lands in Ontario, made by the alleged debtor residing out of Ontario: Livingstone v. Sibbald, 15 P. R. 315. But an action for rent is held to be not within this clause, though the lands in respect of which it is payable are within the jurisdiction: Agnew v. Usher, 14 Q. B. D. 78; 51 L. T. 576, 752; but see Tassell v. Hallen, supra.

A statement in the nature of slander of title, made out of the jurisdiction, concerning property within the jurisdiction, has been held not to be an act or thing affecting such property within the meaning of this clause: Casey v. Arnott, 2 C. P. D. 24, where the Rule was held not to apply in a case in which the defendant in Ireland said that a ship in England was unseworthy.

A slander not actionable in itself without special damage, spoken out of the jurisdiction, but resulting in a special damage within the jurisdiction, was not within the original Rule: Bree v. Marescaux, 7 Q. B. D. 434; but may now fall within the case provided for by clause (c).

An action between foreigners on a foreign judgment to obtain equitable execution against lands of defendant in Ontario is not within this Rule: Sears v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 381; unless the case can be brought within clause (h) infra.

As to actions to perpetuate testimony as to the title to land within the jurisdiction: see Slingsby v. Slingsby, 1912, 2 Ch. 21; 106 L. T. 666, supra, p. 351.

Persons ordinarily domiciled in Ontario.

(c) Any relief is sought against any person domiciled or ordinarily resident within Ontario;

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (c).

As to what amounts to domicil: see Wanzer v. Woods, 13 P. R. 511; Allen v. Allen, 15 P. R. 458; Re Craignish, 1892, 3 Ch. 180; Bonbright v. Bonbright, 1 O. L. R. 629; 2 O. L. R. 249.

If it is shewn that defendant is ordinarily resident within Ontario, it is not necessary to bring the case within any of the other clauses of this Rule: Hadad v. Bruce, 8 T. L. R. 409; but notwithstanding this Rule the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an action for damages for trespass to land situated in a foreign country against a defendant resident within Ontario: Companhia de Mocambique v. B. S. African Co., 1892, 2 Q. B. 358; 1893, 1 A. C. 602; Brereton v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 29 Ont. 57; and see Black Point v. Eastern Concessions, 79 L. T. 658; or to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of lands out of the jurisdiction: Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont.

547, approved in Purdom v. Pavey, 26 S. C. R. 412; or to declare a conveyance of lands out of the jurisdiction, though absolute in form, to be by way of mortgage only, after an absolute conveyance by the grantee to other parties: Gunn v. Harper, 30 Ont. 650; or to redeem lands out of Ontario; Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 20 Ont. App. 646; 23 S. C. R. 716. As to the appointment of a receiver of lands out of the jurisdiction: see Mercantile I. Co. v. River Plate, 1892, 2 Ch. 303; 66 L. T. 711; Kerr on Receivers, p. 100; and see further as to the jurisdiction in respect of lands out of the jurisdiction, 94 L. T. Jour. 30. Rule 25.

It has been held in England that an Admiralty writ in personam cannot be issued for service abroad in respect of a wrong done on the high seas. The phrase "within the jurisdiction," was construed to mean "within the territorial jurisdiction": Re Smith, 1 P. D. 300; The Vicar, 2 P. D. 29; which does not extend beyond low water mark: Harris v. Owners of the Franconia, 2 C. P. D. 173; see Reg. v. Keyn, 2 Ex. D. 63.

A company with a registered office in Scotland and branches in England, was held not to be domiciled or ordinarily resident in England: Jones v. Scottish Accident Insurance Co., 17 Q. B. D. 421; Watkins v. Scottish, etc., Co., 23 Q. B. D. 285; sed vide In re Burland, Burland v. Broxburn Oil Co., 41 Ch. D. 542; Tytler v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 29 Ont. 654; 26 Ont. App. 467.

As to foreign corporations doing business within the jurisdiction, see Palmer v. Goulds Mfg. Co., in note to clause (c).

An action to recover damages for negligence alleged to have been committed in British Columbia was held to be maintainable against the Canadian Pacific Railway in Ontario: Tytler v. Canadian Pacific Ry., supra.

No action will lie against a defendant out of the jurisdiction for a wrong committed out of the jurisdiction, unless it was a wrong according to the law of the place where it was committed: Carr v. Fracis, 1902, A. C. 176. Neither can a contract be enforced in Ontario, which would be void as against public policy if made in Ontario, notwithstanding it may be legal according to the law of the place where it was made: Kaufman v. Gerson, 1904, 1 K. B. 591.

A person who has acquired a domicil of choice in Ontario, and has not abandoned it, may be served out of Ontario with a writ claiming alimony: Bonbright v. Bonbright, 1 O. L. R. 249.

(d) Administration is sought of the personal estate of a deceased person who at the time of his death was domiciled within Ontario, or the execution (as to property situate within Ontario) of the trusts of a written instrument of which the person to be served is a trustee, which ought to be executed according to the law of Ontario; Administration of personal estates and trusts.

Taken from Eng. (1883) R. 64 (d).

It is a condition precedent to the proper service of a writ out of the jurisdiction under this clause that there be property within the jurisdiction, either when leave to serve the writ is applied for, or when service is affected, or at the latest when an application to set aside the service is made: Winter v. Winter, 1894, 1 Ch. 421; 69 L. T. 759. It is not sufficient that according to the terms of the trust it ought to be within the jurisdiction, if in fact it is not: Ib.

This clause it may be observed is limited to the "personal estate" of a deceased person; where the realty, within the jurisdiction, of a deceased person is also sought to be administered, the case would seem to come within clause (a).

A notice of motion for an administration judgment under Rules 207, 608, may be ordered to be served out of the jurisdiction in a proper case: see Rule 3 (j).

(e) The action is founded upon [a judgment or on] a breach within Ontario of a contract, wherever made, which is to be performed within Ontario [or on a tort committed therein];

Except the words in brackets, similar to first part of Eng. (1883) R. 54 (c): the Eng. Rule has instead of the words "is to be performed," the words "according to the terms thereof ought to be performed."

A foreigner resident in the Province, or a foreign corporation having a place of business in the Province, may be served without any leave though the contract was made and breach thereof occurred out of the jurisdiction: see Palmer v. Gould's Manufacturing Co., W. N. 1884, 63; and notes to Rule 23.

The effect of Rule 3 (j) is to make the present Rule applicable to all documents whereby proceedings are commenced. It therefore applies to a third party notice, and when so applied the word "action" in this Rule is read as if it were "third party proceedings": Montgomery v. Saginaw Lumber Co., 12 O. L. R. 144.

Contract.—No difficulty can now arise such as used to arise under R. S. O. 1877 c. 50, s. 49, as to the meaning of a "cause of action which arose in Ontario": see Gildersleeve v. McDougall, 31 C. P. 164, 166. The breach within Ontario is the test of the application of the Rule, and it is, therefore, enough if any part of the contract in respect of which the breach is alleged, is to be performed within the jurisdiction: Rein v. Stein, 1892, 1 Q. B. 753; 66 L. T. 469.

It is not necessary that a contract should expressly state that it is to be performed within the jurisdiction. It is sufficient if this appear from the contract either expressly, or by necessary implication, or surrounding circumstances: Reynolds v. Coleman, 36 Ch. D. 453; Duval & Co. v. Gans, 1904, 2 K. B. 685; 91 L. T. 308; but it must appear from the contract either expressly, or by necessary implication: Bell & Co. v. Antwerp Line, 1891, 1 Q. B. 103; 64 L. T. 276; see also The Eider, 1893, P. 119; 69 L. T. 622; Baxter v. Faulkner, 6 O. W. R. 198. If by the contract, as an express or implied term, payment is to be made in Ontario, an action based on a breach of that term will be within this clause: Anger v. Vasmer, 18 T. L. R. 596; Atkinson v. Pimpton, 6 O. L. R. 566; Duval v. Gans, supra, and see Phillips v. Malone, 3 O. L. R. 47, 492; but quære, whether under the Ontario Rule 25 (e), in construing the contract, the rule of law must be applied that the debtor must seek out his creditor to pay him, unless the application of that rule is inconsistent with the terms of the contract, construing it in the light of the facts which existed when it was made: Blockley v. Elite Costume Co., 9 O. L. R. at p. 387. See also cases infra, under "Examples." Rule 25.

Where on its face a contract is in part to be performed in Ontario, parol evidence is not admissible to shew a contrary intention: Niron v. Jamieson, 18 O. L. R. 425.

Where a contract is primarily performable out of the jurisdiction, the fact that it may also be performed within the jurisdiction was held not to be sufficient to authorize service out of the jurisdiction under clause (e): Gibbons v. Berliner Gramophone Co., 27 O. L. R. 402; sed vide S. C. 28 O. L. R. 620.

Where the contract was not in writing, and would only be within this Rule if, by it, payment was to be made in Ontario, and this was disputed, leave to issue the writ was held to be proper; but the defendant was given leave to enter a conditional appearance, so as to enable the question of jurisdiction to be raised in the action: Canadian Radiator Co. v. Cuthbertson, 9 O. L. R. 126; Kemerer v. Watterson, 20 O. L. R. 451. Claims on contracts.

The ordinary rule is that where no place of payment is named the debtor is bound to seek his creditor, and that rule was held not to be displaced, where goods were sold to be delivered out of the jurisdiction, and part of the price was made payable on delivery: Leonard v. Cushing, 5 O. W. N. 453.

Where no place of payment is named in a policy of insurance, it must be assumed that payment is to be made at the head office of the company, and that fact may determine the question of the lex loci contractus: Burson v. German Union Ins. Co., 6 O. W. R. 21.

Where part of a contract only is to be performed within the jurisdiction, and a foreign defendant is sued for breach of the contract, the order giving leave for service out of the jurisdiction should expressly limit the relief to be given against such defendant to relief in respect of the breach within the jurisdiction: Manitoba & N. W. Co. v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432; 69 L. T. 558; see also Indigo Co. v. Ogilvy, 1891, 2 Ch. D. 31, and Lovell v. Coles, 3 O. L. R. 291.

The plaintiff may be directed so to restrict his statement of claim without prejudice to his bringing an action elsewhere for breaches committed without the jurisdiction: Lovell v. Coles, supra.

A contract which may be performed either within or without the jurisdiction is not within this Rule: Bell & Co. v. Antwerp Line, 1891, 1 Q. B. 103; Comber v. Leyland, 1898, A. C. 524; 79 L. T. 180; see also The Eider, 1893, P. 119; 69 L. T. 622; Thompson v. Palmer, 1893, 2 Q. B. 80; 69 L. T. 366.

Where an offer to purchase goods was made by letter from London (Ont.), and accepted by letter posted at Quebec, and delivery was to be on the cars at Quebec, it was held that the contract was to be performed in Quebec: Empire Oil Co. v. Vallerand, 17 P. R. 27; and see Phillips v. Malone, 3 O. L. R. 47, 492.

Where a contract of hiring is made within Ontario, and the work thereunder is to be done there, the remuneration is payable there: Bell v. Villeneuve, 16 P. R. 413.

Rule 25.

Where a c. i. f. contract was made with a defendant resident out of the jurisdiction for sale of goods to be delivered within the jurisdiction, and the plaintiff accepted delivery at a place out of the jurisdiction, it was held that an action for breach of contract on the ground that the goods were not of the stipulated quality was not within clause (e): Crozier v. Auerbach, 1908, 2 K. B. 161; 99 L. T. 225.

Foreclosure of equity in personal property.

An action simply to foreclose a mortgage of personal property is held not to be an action founded on a breach of contract within the meaning of clause (e): Hughes v. Oxenham, 1913, 1 Ch. 181, as reversed by C. A.: Ib., 254; 108 L. T. 316; and an action to foreclose a mortgage on a policy of insurance against a subsequent incumbrancer was held not to come within clause (e): Deutsche Nat. Bank v. Paul, 1898, 1 Ch. 283; 78 L. T. 35; and it may be doubted whether a writ for foreclosure of the equity of redemption in personalty in which a claim for relief on a covenant is joined, could be authorized to be served out of the jurisdiction, except on the terms of first striking out the claim for foreclosure. An action to foreclose the equity of redemption in land would probably be held to be within clause (a), supra; see Paget v. Ede, supra, p. 28.

Action to enforce charge.

It was held in Moritz v. Stephen, 36 W. R. 779; 58 L. T. 850, that an action to enforce a charge obtained by a judgment creditor under a statutory provision (1 & 2 V. c. 110, s. 14), (see Jud. Act, ss. 40, 41, supra), in that behalf, does not fall within this clause, nor any other clause of this Rule, and that, therefore, service of a writ in such an action out of the jurisdiction is not authorized: Kolchmann v. Meurice, 1903, 1 K. B. 534; and see Re La Campagnie Generale, etc., 1891, 3 Ch. 451, where, although leave to serve was refused, the Court nevertheless held that the party required to be served, might be notified, without order, that proceedings affecting his interests were pending, leaving him to appear and submit to the jurisdiction if so advised, and the Court, if satisfied that a notice so served was sufficient, will act upon the notice: Re Cliff, 1895, 2 Ch., p. 28.

The following are further examples of the application or non-application of this clause:

Service allowed.

Service was Allowed.—Where the plaintiff complained of an agreement made in England, as infringing his rights under an agreement made in India; because the action was in respect of a breach within the jurisdiction, of a contract made abroad: Harris v. Fleming, 13 Ch. D. 208; and where a contract made in England by a defendant resident in Ireland, to pay for a rink constructed in Dublin, was broken by non-payment to the plaintiff in England: Green v. Browning, 34 L. T. 760. See Atkinson v. Plimpton, 6 O. L. R. 566.

Where goods were furnished by an English firm to defendants in Man. and no place for payment was named, it was presumed that it was to be in England, and the breach therefore took place there: Robey v. Snaefell Mining Co., 20 Q. B. D. 152.

So where according to the course of business in similar transactions payment was to be made in England: Rein v. Stein, 1892, 1 Q. B. 753; Fry v. Raggio, 40 W. R. 120; but where money is payable under a contract, and no place for payment is stated, the case is not brought within the Rule by the fact that the person to whom the money is payable resides within the jurisdiction: Bell & Co. v. Antwerp, etc., 1891, 1 Q. B. 103; Banque Nationale v. S. A. Trading Co., 12 C. L. T. 20;

Phillips v. Molone, 3 O. L. R. 47, 492; see, however, Thompson v. Palmer, 1893, 2 Q. B. 80, and Leonard v. Cushing, supra, p. 355. Rule 25

Where goods were to be shipped in British Columbia and delivered freight paid at Toronto, and payment was to be made in Toronto, an action in Ontario for the amount paid by plaintiff for freight and for damages for breach of contract, the goods not being up to sample, was held to be within the Rule: Fisher v. Cassady, 14 P. R. 577; and in such a case an action will also lie in Ontario for the price: Atkinson v. Plimpton, 6 O. L. R. 566; Duval v. Gans, 1904, 2 K. B. 685; so also where a firm in Montreal delivered an order to the plaintiffs' traveller in Montreal, which was accepted by letter of plaintiffs, posted in Toronto, under which goods were to be delivered f. o. b. in Toronto: Blackley v. Elite Co., 9 O. L. R. 382; Nixon v. Jamieson, 18 O. L. R. 625.

Where defendant, a commercial traveller, under a contract for selling and taking orders for goods over a route through British Columbia and Ontario, resigned his position by letter from British Columbia, before the entry upon performance of the contract in Ontario, the plaintiffs after waiting until the expiration of the time by which the entire contract was to be performed, moved for leave to issue a writ for damages for non-performance of the entire contract, and leave was given to issue a writ confined to breaches of the contract within Ontario, but reserving to the plaintiffs the right to bring action for breaches out of Ontario: Lovell v. Coles, 3 O. L. R. 291.

As to the principles applicable where a plaintiff sues for an account, upon a contract to pay in a foreign currency: see Manners v. Pearson, 1898, 1 Ch. 581; 78 L. T. 432. The payments due must be ordered to be paid in Canadian currency, and must be converted into such currency at the rate of exchange current at the time of the ascertainment of the amount due: Ib.

Where the action is founded on a breach of trust committed in Ontario, but both plaintiff and defendant are resident out of the jurisdiction, it may be a question whether the action is brought oppressively and vexatiously in Ontario: Russell v. Greenshields, 23 O. L. R. 171; 24 O. L. R. 113; but where the Court is satisfied that such is not the case the action may be allowed to proceed: Ib.

Service was not Allowed.—Where the writ was indorsed with a claim to restrain a ship-owner from dealing with a ship in port at Cardiff contrary to a charter party entered into in Scotland between a plaintiff and defendant who both resided in Scotland: Ex parte McPhail, 12 Ch. D. 632; where the claim was by a cestui que trust resident in England for administration of trusts of Scotch property by Scotch trustees: Cresswell v. Parker, 11 Ch. D. 601. Service not allowed.

Where mortgagees of a ship and her freight, in an action against second mortgagees, discovered that some freight had previously to the suit been collected by brokers in Antwerp, who claimed to retain the money against a debt due to them by the second mortgagees, the plaintiffs obtained leave to serve the brokers, but the order was on motion set aside, the Court holding that the right to the freight was claimed by virtue of a right as mortgagees to take possession of the ship and its earnings, and not by way of enforcement of the contract: McStephens v. Carnegie, 28 W. R. 385; 42 L. T. 309.

Where by the contract, defendants, a steamship company, were exempted from liability for damage for loss arising beyond their line of steamships, and there was no breach alleged within Ontario, but one beyond the said line of steamships, in not delivering the subject of the contract, it was held that as no damage would result from the breach, though the case was technically within this Rule, discretion, if any existed, should be exercised in refusing to allow the service: Perkins v. Mississippi, 10 P. R. 198.

Service was not allowed in an action for wrongful dismissal where the appointment was in Glasgow, and the letter of dismissal was posted there. The defendant was a Scotch coal merchant, who verbally appointed the plaintiff commission agent in Ireland. The posting of the letter was held to be the act of dismissal: Hamilton v. Barr, 18 L. R. Ir. 297; Offord v. Bresse, 16 P. R. 332; but see Bell v. Villeneuve, 16 P. R. 413; Holland v. Bennett, 1902, 1 K. B. 867; 81 L. T. 485.

Where a servant employed within the jurisdiction was dismissed by a letter written and posted by his employer out of the jurisdiction, leave to serve a writ for wrongful dismissal was refused, there being no breach of the contract within the jurisdiction: Holland v. Bennett, 1902, 1 K. B. 867; 81 L. T. 485; but where the letter of dismissal was written and posted within the jurisdiction, the breach was held to have taken place within the jurisdiction and service on the defendant abroad was allowed: Mutzenbecher v. Asseguradora, 1906, 1 K. B. 251; 94 L. T. 127.

As to breach of a promise to marry in Ontario: see Cooper v. Knight, 17 T. L. R. 299.

Actions for torts.

Tort.—A transfer of goods effected in Ontario as a fraudulent preference, the goods being afterwards removed to Quebec, is a "tort committed within the jurisdiction" within this Rule: Clarkson v. Dupré, 16 P. R. 521.

The publication within Ontario of a libel written without, entitles the plaintiff to sue in Ontario: Shearman v. Findlay, 32 W. R. 122.

The making of a fraudulent conveyance of land out of the jurisdiction, would not appear to be a tort for which the plaintiff could sue under this Rule, even though the deed were actually executed within the jurisdiction: see Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547.

Criminal proceedings begun in Quebec, under which the plaintiff was arrested in Ontario and taken to Montreal, where he was discharged, were held to constitute one entire tort, founded upon transactions in Quebec, so that leave to issue a writ of summons for malicious prosecution was refused: Oligny v. Beauchemin, 16 P. R. 568.

A foreigner out of the jurisdiction cannot be sued in Ontario for a tort committed out of the jurisdiction: Badische Anilin, etc., v. Johnson, 76 L. T. 434. (See S. C. 1896, 1 Ch. 25, where leave was given for the service, a primâ facie case having been made out): see also Rourke v. Wiedenbach, 1 O. L. R. 581.

It is open to question how far a judgment recovered against a defendant sued under this clause would be binding on the defendant in a foreign country: see Sidar Gurdyal Singh v. Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670.

Tort committed abroad.

To entitle a plaintiff to sue in Ontario for a tort committed abroad, the act complained of must be wrongful according to the law of England, and must not have been justifiable according to the law of the place where it was committed: Phillips v. Eyre, L. R. 6 Q. B. 1; Machado v. Fontes, 1897, 2 Q. B. 231. See also Carr v. Francis, etc., 1902, A. C. 176; and Story v. Stratford Mill Building Co., 30 O. L. R. 271. In such an action the defendant can only be sued in Ontario if he can be served therein; leave to serve out of the jurisdiction cannot be given under clause (c): see Rourke v. Wiedenbach, 1 O. L. R. p. 383. Rule 25.

(f) An injunction is sought as to anything done or to be done within Ontario, or any nuisance within Ontario is sought to be prevented or removed, whether damages are or are not claimed in respect thereof; or Injunction.

The same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (f).

(x) As to the effect of this disjunctive "or": see Tassell v. Hallen, 40 W. R. 221; 1892, 1 Q. B. 231.

Semble, leave cannot be given for service of a notice of motion for an injunction out of Ontario, with the writ: Manitoba, etc. v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432.

See also Lisbon, etc., v. Heddle, 52 L. T. 796; Speckhart v. Campbell, W. N. 1884, 24.

Unless the injunction can properly be asked against the party out of the jurisdiction he cannot be sued under this clause: Postlethwaite v. McWhinney, 6 O. L. R. 412; and a claim for an injunction which does not appear to be bonâ fide, but merely to bring the case within this Rule, will not be sufficient: De Bernales v. N. Y. Herald, 68 L. T. 638; 1893, 2 Q. B. 97 (n); and see Marshall v. Dominion Mfrs., infra, p. 361.

If the Court is satisfied that, even assuming the plaintiff has a good cause of action, there is no reasonable probability that he will obtain an injunction, the Court ought not to consider the making of a claim for an injunction as sufficient to justify the service of the writ out of the jurisdiction, if, apart from such claim, the case is not one in which service should be authorized. Therefore where plaintiff claimed to restrain the publication in England of an alleged title by a newspaper published and circulated in Scotland, and of which only a few copies were sold in England, leave to serve the writ out of the jurisdiction was refused: Watson v. Daily Record, 1907, 1 K. B. 853; 96 L. T. 485.

In Tozier v. Hawkins, 15 Q. B. D. 680, however, it was held that the Court might allow service out of the jurisdiction of a writ claiming an injunction to restrain the defendant from sending libels to the plaintiff, resident within the jurisdiction, where the defendant does not state on affidavit that he never comes within the jurisdiction.

The Court has no jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining a person resident abroad from doing acts abroad, which, if done within the jurisdiction, would be an infringement of the plaintiff's Canadian patent of invention: see Badische Anilin, etc. v. Johnson, 1896, 1 Ch. 25; 76 L. T. 424; and see Sirdar Gurdyal Singh v. Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670; but the Court may entertain an action for an injunction against a defendant resident out of the jurisdiction, to restrain an infringement of a patent within the jurisdiction: Badische Anilin v. Chemische Fabrik, 88 L. T. 490.

Rule 25.

A claim to an injunction to restrain defendant from parting with his assets in a case not otherwise within the Rule does not give jurisdiction by virtue of above clause (f): Seors v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 381.

An injunction to restrain executors out of the jurisdiction from suing within the jurisdiction to recover part of the estate, is an injunction "as to something to be done within Ontario": Re De Penny. De Penny v. Christie, 1891, 2 Ch. 63.

And as to the effect of a judgment recovered under this Rule: see Sirdor Gurdyal, etc., v. Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670.

Necessary party.

(g) A person out of Ontario is a necessary or proper party to an action properly brought against another person duly served within Ontario.

This same as Eng. (1883), R. 64 (g).

This clause applies to a foreigner resident out of the jurisdiction: Firth v. De las Rivos, 1893, 1 Q. B. 768; 42 W. R. 100; 69 L. T. 383. 666; Duder v. Amsterdamsch. 1902, 2 Ch. 138; The "Duc D'Aumale." 1903, P. 18; 87 L. T. 674; and whether the action be founded on contract or tort: Croft v. King. 1893, 1 Q. B. 419; but ought only to be applied to an action of tort in extreme cases: Williams v. Cartwright. 43 W. R. 145, per Lord Esher; but see The Duc D'Aumole, supra.

Defendant within jurisdiction must be first served.

Where a person out of the jurisdiction is made a defendant to an action under clause (g), the application for leave to serve him should not be made until the defendant within the jurisdiction has been served: Postlethwaite v. McWhinney, 6 O. L. R. 412; and see Firth v. De las Rivas, 95 L. T. Jour. 297; Yorkshire Tannery Co. v. Eglinton. 54 L. J. Ch. 81; 33 W. R. 162; Collins v N. B. & Mer. Insce. Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 228. See, however, Livingstone v. Sibbald. 15 P. R. 315; Tossell v. Hollen, 1892, 1 Q. B. 321. This person served within the jurisdiction must be one against whom relief is bonâ fide sought, and not a person colourably joined, against whom the plaintiff has no cause of action: Shorples v. Eoson, 1911, 2 Ir. R. 436; Ross v. Eoson, 1911, 2 Ir. R. 459.

Claim against party within jurisdiction must be bona fide.

On the application it should be shewn that the party within the jurisdiction has been served, and that against him substantial relief is claimed: Yorkshire Tannery Co. v. Eglinton, 54 L. J. Chy. 81; 33 W. R. 162; Collins v. North British, etc., Insce. Co., 71 L. T. 58; 1894, 3 Ch. 228; Wolsely Tool & Motor Company v. Jockson, 6 O. W. N. 109. Failure to so proceed (viz., first to serve the defendant who is within the jurisdiction, and then to apply for leave to serve the defendant who is out of the jurisdiction, with a concurrent writ), is not an irregularity merely which can be condoned: Postlethwaite v. McWhinney, 6 O. L. R. 412.

In order to make the Rule apply, the plaintiff must have an apparent cause of action against the person served within Ontario, or an alternative claim either against the person within or the person without Ontario, though it cannot be ascertained till the trial which of the two is liable: Witted v. Galbraith, 1893, 1 Q. B. 431, 577; 68 L. T. 421; and the relief sought against the person within and the person without the jurisdiction must be connected: Collins v. North British, etc., supra; and see Marshall v. Dominion Mfrs., infro, p. 361. The Rule cannot be evaded by making persons against whom there is no cause of action, parties, only in order to obtain leave to serve the persons out of the jurisdiction whom it is really desired to sue: Ib.; and see Simpson v. Hall, 14 P. R. 310. Rule 25.

The plaintiff cannot by making a person within the jurisdiction a defendant, when he ought properly to have made him a co-plaintiff, thereby acquire a right to add a party out of the jurisdiction as a necessary party under clause (g): Deutsche Nat. Bank v. Paul, 1898, 1 Ch. 283; 78 L. T. 35; and where the party out of the jurisdiction is made a defendant solely on the ground that he is the proper party to the action against a co-defendant within the jurisdiction, the plaintiff may be required to undertake as a condition of being allowed to serve the defendant out of the jurisdiction, that if he fails against the defendant within the jurisdiction, he will submit to a dismissal of the action as against the defendant out of the jurisdiction: Re Jones v. Bissonnette, 3 O. L. R. 54.

Clause (g) has no application to a third party notice for contribution, unless, semble, there were at least two joint contributors, one of whom is within the jurisdiction: McCheane v. Gyles, 1902, 1 Ch. 287; 86 L. T. 1. Third parties.

In an action to set aside an agreement between a Quebec and an Ontario loan company, transferring the assets of the Quebec company to the Ontario company, and for the distribution of the proceeds of the assets, service was allowed on the Quebec company and its liquidator as necessary parties to the action brought against the Ontario company under clause (g): McKay v. Colonial Investment, etc., Co., 4 O. L. R. 571. Actions to set aside transactions.

In an action against a company in Ontario, and a defendant resident out of the jurisdiction, to set aside a transfer of shares for alleged fraud of the defendant resident out of Ontario, it was held that the defendant resident out of the jurisdiction was a necessary party to an action against the company for an injunction to restrain it from dealing with the shares in question, but that the alleged fraud was not necessarily cognate to the action for the injunction, and, therefore, the defendant out of the jurisdiction was allowed to enter a conditional appearance: Marshall v. Dominion Mfrs., 6 O. W. N. 385.

In the absence of special circumstances no term ought to be imposed that the plaintiff is not to sign judgment without leave of the Court or a Judge: Firth v. De los Rivos, supra.

In an action for salvage against owners of a vessel within the jurisdiction, leave was given to serve the owner of the cargo out of the jurisdiction: The Elton, 1891, P. 265.

Where an action was brought in respect of a collision which took place out of the jurisdiction, and the party sought to be served out of the jurisdiction was a necessary party to the action in respect of the tort in question, but had himself begun an action in respect of the same matter in the place where he resided, and where the plaintiff's cause of action arose; it was held to be an improper exercise of discretion to authorize service of a writ on him out of the jurisdiction: The Hagen, 1908, P. 189. Action for collision.

Where the plaintiff's action was on policies of insurance made by co-insurers one of whom was out of the jurisdiction, it was held that he might be properly joined as a co-defendant in an action against the Co-insurers.

Rule 25.

other co-inaurer, who was within the jurisdiction: Oesterreichische, etc., v. British Indemnity Insce. Co., 1914, 2 K. B. 747; 110 L. T. 955.

Conspiracy.

An order was made where the alleged cause of action was a conspiracy hy three defendants, one of whom resided out of the jurisdiction; hut the plaintiff was required to undertake to suhmit to a non-suit, in case he failed to prove the cause of action alleged: Simpson v. Holl, 14 P. R. 310.

Breach of warranty.

In an action against defendants in London, for hreach of wnrranty of authority, their principals out of the jurisdiction having repudiated ahrond a contract as made without authority, it was held that the foreign principals were proper parties, and service on them ahroad was allowed: Massey v. Heynes, 21 Q. B. D. 330; and see Bennetts v. McIlwraith, 1896, 2 Q. B. 464; 75 L. T. 145.

Trusts.

In an action hy dehenture holders of a foreign corporation against trustees for the plaintiffs residing within the jurisdiction, the validity of the dehentures being in dispute, it was held that the corporation was a necessary party, and service on it ahroad was allowed under this clause: Bowtree v. The Great Northern Ry., 105 L. T. Jour. 104.

See also The Steamship Shonemore, Limited v. Thompson, 52 L. T. 552; Lisbon, etc., v. Heddle, Ib., 796; Livingstone v. Sibbold, 15 P. R. 315; Duder v. Amsterdomsch, etc., 1902, 2 Ch. 132, supro, p. 360.

In Horvey v. Dougherty, 56 L. T. 322, an action for hreach oi trust was hrought against the executors of a testator dying in England, two of whom were in Ireland and one in England. The action was to compel them to replace assets invested in Ireland: service on the defendants resident in Ireland was allowed: see also Re Lane, 55 L. T. 149.

To an action against the personal representatives of a deceased trustee for hreach of trust, the solicitors for the trustee, who resided out of the jurisdiction, and had made the investment which had resulted in a loss, were held not to he necessary parties: Ploskitt v. Eddis, 79 L. T. 136.

Partn'rship.

In Lightowler v. Lightowler, W. N. 1884, 8, an order was made where the party out of the juriadiction was a partner of the defendant already served, and the action was for specific performance of an agreement to convey the partnership property.

Land.

Where the land in queation was out of the jurisdiction, but some of the parties were within, liberty was granted to serve a defendant out of the jurisdiction: Jenney v. Mockintosh, 33 Ch. D. 595; Dickson v. Low, 1895, 2 Ch. 62; 72 L. T. 680; and see clause (o) supra.

Whether a third party notice can be served under this clause, quære: see Speller v. Bristol, 13 Q. B. D. 96; Rule 3 (j).

The order granting leave to serve the persons out of the jurisdiction, may he for the issue of a writ to be concurrent with the writ served on the other defendants within the jurisdiction: Burt v. Bowen, 8 T. L. R. 28.

Assets within jurisdiction.

(h) Service may also be allowed where the action is for any other matter and it appears that the plaintiff has a good cause of action against the defendant upon a contract or judgment, [or in respect of a claim for alimony], and that the defendant has assets in Ontario, of the value of $200 at least, which may be rendered liable for the satisfaction of the judgment; but the order allowing service shall in such case provide that in case the plaintiff should recover judgment if the defendant does not appear, the plaintiff shall prove his claim, in such manner as may be deemed proper. Rule 25.

"Contract or Judgment."—The words "where the action is for any other matter" in the first line, would appear to extend the class of cases in which service of a writ out of the jurisdiction may be allowed to all other cases not within any of those enumerated in the preceding clauses, but the subsequent words shew that the operation of this Rule is limited to cases where the plaintiff is suing upon a contract or judgment, or for alimony, and it is shewn that the defendant has assets in Ontario of the value of at leeast $200, which may be rendered liable to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, if judgment is recovered. Contract or judgment.

The right to alimony is not based on "contract," and, before the amendment of this clause by 5 Edw. 7. c. 13, s. 22. by inserting the words in brackets, an action for alimony could be brought against a defendant residing out of the jurisdiction only under clause (c). upon a judgment recovered out of the jurisdiction: Wheeler v. Wheeler, 17 P. R. 45; or under clause (c) supra. Alimony.

Debts by simple contract are assets where the debtor resides, but a debt by specialty is an asset where the specialty is: see Kemerer v. Watterson, 20 O. L. R. 451; a garnishable debt due to the defendant by a debtor within the jurisdiction on a simple contract will be assets within clause (h): Ib: therefore, where it appeared that the defendants had large floating balances of accounts due them in Ontario, an order allowing service in Ontario was made: Gibbons v. Berliner Gramophone Co., 27 O. L. R. 402, as reversed, 28 O. L. R. 620. Debts may be assets.

Amendment of Writ.—The indorsement of a claim on a writ served out of the jurisdiction may be ordered to be amended after service, without requiring re-service, but not so as to add any claim which could not under this Rule be indorsed on a writ for service out of the jurisdiction: Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. D. 450; followed Hogaboom v. MacCullough, 17 P. R. 377. Amendment of writ.

Where plaintiff and defendant were both residing out of Ontario, and neither of them was a British subject, and the plaintiff's right, if any, to sue depended upon the above clause (h), and defendant, contending that there was no jurisdiction, a summary judgment under former C. R. 603 was refused, in view of a former provision in clause (h), requiring that the plaintiff prove his claim "before a Judge or jury, etc.," and the case was allowed to go to trial in the regular way: Campau v. Randall, 17 P. R. 243.

(2) Where it is necessary or proper to serve persons, not already parties to an action, with an office copy of Service of office copy of judgment out of jurisdiction.

Rule 26.

any judgment or order, or notice to prove claims thereunder, service of the same out of Ontario may be allowed.

The order allowing service of a copy of a judgment under this Rule must also prescribe the time within which the party served may move against the judgment: see Rule 27 (3), (4).

Attaching order.

(3) Service out of Ontario may also be allowed of an attaching order in cases falling within the provisions of Rule 590. C.R. 162 and 126, and 5 Edw. VII. ch. 13, sec. 22.

Former C. R. 162 (2), expressly authorized service out of Ontario of any order or notice in the winding-up of a company: see also The Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 144), s. 111; and also service out of Ontario of a petition or notice of motion in an action or matter relating to the administration of the estate of a deceased person, or to the execution of a trust, or, praying for an order dealing with any funds in Court, and in interpleader proceedings, but though these provisions have not been continued, this Rule by virtue of Rule 3 (j), extends to, and includes, all documents by which proceedings are commenced.

All originating notices of motion under Rule 600 are within this Rule.

Semble, leave cannot be given to serve a notice of motion for an injunction out of the jurisdiction with the writ: Manitoba, etc., v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432.

See also notes supra, p. 347.

Notice of a summary application for an interpleader order by an insurance company was allowed to be served out of the jurisdiction under the former C. R. 162: Re Confederation Life Ass. Co. & Cordingly, 19 P. R. 89.

Application to be supported by evidence.

26. Every application to allow service out of Ontario shall be supported by an affidavit stating that in the belief of the deponent the applicant has a right to the relief claimed, and shewing in what place or country the person to be served is or probably may be found, and whether he is a British subject or not, and that the case is a proper one for service out of Ontario under these Rules. C.R. 163.

The affidavit must shew that the plaintiff has a primâ facie case: Collins v. North British & M. Ins. Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 228; 71 L. T. 58. And a material mistake in the affidavit, though unintentional, will be a ground for rescinding the order: Republic of Peru v. Dreyfus, 55 L. T. 802. The affidavit was allowed to be filed nunc pro tunc in Gilpin v. Hazel, 5 O. W. N. 518; but where the plaintiff had not filed a proper affidavit, and had not served with the writ a statement of claim, as required by Rule 28, and the writ served had not indorsed thereon any minute shewing it to have been issued pursuant to an order: the order, and writ, and service, were set aside: Heaman v. Humber, 6 O. W. N. 221.

it may be difficult for a conscientious plaintiff to comply literally with this Rule, as the relief can only be claimed by the writ and statement of claim, and the affidavit is required to be made before the writ is issued, and therefore before the relief can be claimed: see a form of affidavit, H. & L. Forms, No. 84. Rules 27-29.

Order to fix time for appearance to writ, or for moving against judgment.

27.—(1) An order allowing service of a writ of summons out of Ontario may be made before the writ is issued and shall limit the time for entering appearance.

(2) An order allowing service out of Ontario of a notice of motion or attaching order, shall limit a time, which must elapse after service before the day when the motion is to be heard.

(3) An order allowing service ont of Ontario of a judgment or order or notice to prove claims thereunder shall limit a time for moving to add to, vary or set aside the judgment or order.

(4) In limiting the time, regard shall be had to the place where service is to be effected. C.R. 164.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 68.

See notes to Rule 45.

The order allowing service, besides regulating the time for appearance, should also authorize the service of the statement of claim, if any, at the same time: see Rule 28, and limit a time for the delivery of the statement of defence, which should not be earlier than eight days from the last day of appearance: McIver v. Crown Point Mining Co., 19 P. R. 335. See Lovell v. Taylor, 5 O. W. R. 525.

Service out of Ontario.

28. Where a defendant is to be ser ed out of Ontario with a writ of summons or notice in lieu thereof, the statement of claim shall be served therewith unless the writ is specially indorsed. C.R. 166.

The statement of claim referred to in this Rule means the pleading so called, and not any indorsement, however full, upon the writ, of the nature of the claim: Summers v. Summers, Mr. Dalton, 6th February, 1882; but it will be observed that under the present Rules it is no longer necessary to serve a statement of claim out of Ontario with the writ, where the writ is specially indorsed under Rule 33.

Notice in lieu of writ.

29.—(1) Where the defendant is to be served out of Ontario, and is neither a British subject nor in British dominions, notice of the writ and not the writ itself shall be served. Such notice shall, save as herein provided, be served personally, unless otherwise directed. C.R. 165.

Compare Eng. (1883), RR. 69, 70; and see notes, p. 345.

Service of a writ may be made on a British subject abroad, or upon a foreigner within the jurisdiction: Fowler v. Barstowe, 20 Ch. D.

Rule 30

246; but service of process abrosd upon a defendant, not a British subject, might involve unpleasant questions of jurisdiction. Where therefore, a defendsnt to be served out of the jurisdiction is a foreigner, or a foreign corporation, notice of tbe writ, and not the writ itself, is to be served: Beddington v. Beddington, 1 P. D. 426; Westman v. Aktiebolaget, etc., 1 Ex. D. 237; the Court having jurisdiction to so order service: James v. Despott, 14 L. R. Ir. 71. If the defendant is a British subject residing abroad, the writ itself should be served on him; Great Australian Mining Co. v. Martin, 5 Ch. D. 1, and so if the defendant is the British wife of a foreigner: see Bacon v. Turner, 34 L. T. 647: Re Howard, 10 Cb. D. 550; but see R. S. C. c. 77, s. 32; Piggott. On service out of the jurisdiction, 100. Where the writ was served instead of notice thereof, it was held, under the similar practice before the Judicature Act, that it was an irregularity which could not be cured hy amendment, and the service was accordingly set aside: Henderson v. Hall, 8 P. R. 353; and in Hewitson v. Fabre, 21 Q. B. D. 6, sucb service was held to be a nuility, unless made good by appearance to it without objection.

A respondent to a petition, or a notice of motion, wbich can be served out of Ontario, may properly be served with the petition or notice of motion itself, and not merely with notice of it. It is only in the case of a writ (or formerly a summons) wbicb commands the attendance of the party served, that service of tbe document itself is only proper upon a subject who owes obedience to the Conrts of the Sovereign.

A foreigner who cannot be served personally out of the jurisdiction, may, by order, be served substitutionally: see Field v. Bennett, 56 L. J. Q. B. 89; but only in a case in which there is jurisdiction to allow service of a writ, or notice thereof, upon him personally: Ib.: Worcester, etc. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784; 70 L. T. 443; see also note to Rule 16.

If the defendant is ont of the jurisdiction, snd is not a British subject, and on order for substitutional service on some one within the jurisdiction is made, the order should direct service of a notice of the writ, and not the writ itself, otherwise tbe service will be invalid: Kemp v. Necchi, 134 L. T. Jour. 455.

Service of process in certain foreign countries.

30. Where service is to be effected in any foreign country to which this Rule is by direction of the Chief Justice of Ontario made to apply, upon any one other than a British subject, the following procedure shall be adopted:—

Documents to be furnished.

(1) The notice of the writ and statement of claim shall be transmitted by the Clerk of Records and Writs to the Secretary of State with a copy thereof, translated into the language of the country in which service is to be effected, with a request for further transmission of the same to the Government of the country in which it is to be served, with the request that service, either personal or in such manner as is consistent with the practice and usage of that country when personal service cannot be made, be effected and that return be made shewiag how such service has been effected. Rule 31.

(2) Any such official return shall be regarded as proof of the facts therein stated. Return.

(3) The plaintiff's solicitor shall, before the papers are transmitted, pay or secure to the satisfaction of the Clerk of Records and Writs a sufficient sum to answer the fees and charges in connection with such service. See Eag. Rule, 71. New. Disbursements to be prepaid.

This Rule only applies to those countries to which it is expressly made applicable by order of the Chief Justice of Ontario. No order has so far been made, and therefore the previous Rules apply to all foreign countries. The Eng. Rule 71 on which this Rule is based has been made applicable to Germany, Russia, France, Spain, and Belgium.

31. Where in any civil or commercial matter pending before a Court or Tribuaal of a foreign couatry, a letter of request from such Court or Tribunal for service oa any person in Ontario of any proc ess or citation in such matter, is transmitted to the Supreme Court for Ontario, the following procedure shall be adopted:— Service of process of foreign Court in Ontario.

(1) The letter of request for service shall be accompanied by a traaslation thereof ia the Eaglish language, and by two copies of the process or citation to be served, and two copies thereof in the English laagnage. Letters of request.

(2) Service of the process or citation shall, by a direction of a Judge, be effected by any Sheriff or his authorized agent. Service, how to be effected.

(3) Sach service shall be effected by delivering to and leaviag with the person to be served one copy of the process to be served and one copy of the translation thereof, or may be effected in such other manner as aay be directed by the letter of request.

(4) After service has been effected the process shall be returaed to the Clerk of the Supreme Court, together with the evidence of service by affidavit of the person effecting the service, sworn before a Notary Public and verified by his seal, and particulars of charges for the cost of effecting such service. Proof of service.

(5) The Clerk of the Supreme Court for Oatario sball return the letter of request for service, together with the evideace of service, with a certificate appended thereto, Return of process.

Rule 32.

duly sealed with the seal of the said Court. Such certificate shall be in accordance with Form No. 16.

(6) Nothing in this Rule shall prevent service from being effected in any other manner in which it may now be made. C.R. 1320.

This Rule prescribes the procedure to be followed for serving the process of a foreign Court in Ontario, and does not in any way affect, or relate to, proceedings in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Among the officers enumerated in The Jud. Act, s. 76, there is no officer styled "Clerk of the Supreme Court."

Taking evidence for use in foreign Courts.

The following is an extract from a circular letter addressed by the Secretary of State to Colonial authorities, in reference to the taking of evidence in Ontario for use in foreign Courts:—

"2. The following are the general principles which I am advised should be borne in mind. When an application for the taking of evidence is received with respect to a civil or commercial case pending before a foreign tribunal, the matter would not appear to be one in which the Colonial authorities should intervene, beyond calling the attention of the Consul, or other person making the application, to the provisions of the Act 19 and 20 Vict., cap. 113, and informing him that he, or some other person duly authorized by the foreign tribunal, should apply directly to the Court for the required evidence to be taken; except where there is a treaty obligation to a contrary effect, the same course should be followed in cases where a criminal matter is pending, as the above-cited Act is extended to criminal cases by s. 24 of The Extradition Act, 1870 (33 and 34 Vict., cap. 52). The expression 'Criminal matter pending' is understood to mean a matter or proceeding in which a specific charge has been brought against some person or persons of having committed a criminal act, and which is actually pending before a Court or tribunal."

(vi) Indorsement of Claim.

Indorsement of claim.

32. Upon every writ the plaintiff shall indorse a concise statement of his claim. It shall not be essential to set forth the precise ground of complaint, or the precise remedy or relief sought. (See Form No. 4). C.R. 137.

Indorsements under Rule 5 (1) are compulsory, as also are those under Rule 460, in the cases therein provided for. Indorsements under Rule 33 are optional.

See Eng. (1883) RR. 12 and 13. The object of the indorsement is to identify the claim to which the action relates: one advantage of this being to facilitate a settlement without the action going further. In some cases the indorsement will take the place of a pleading: see Rules 39, 111, etc.

Though the plaintiff's precise ground of complaint, or the precise remedy or relief claimed, need not be set forth under this Rule, still a claim for an injunction, or receiver, should be indorsed, where the obtaining of either is a substantial object of the action: see notes to Rule 5 (1), and Colebourne v. Colebourne, there cited.

It is also to be observed that unless the claim of the plaintiff is precisely stated no interlocutory judgment can be signed for default of appearance: see Rule 39 (2). Rule 33.

As to amendment of the indorsement on the writ: see notes to Rule 183.

An amendment of the indorsement by increasing the amount claimed was allowed after judgment: The Dictator, 1892, P. 64; 66 L. T. 863; and see Wyatt v. Rosherville, 2 T. L. R. 282; Modera v. Modera, 10 T. L. R. 69; Wilde v. Crowe, 10 C. P. 406, 412; Robinson v. Hatt, 1 Ont. 265; Smith v. Goldie, 11 P. R. 24; Rowland v. Bennett, 12 P. R. 667; but when, without any such amendment, judgment was signed for damages assessed at a greater amount than was claimed, it was set side: Chattell v. Daily Mail, 18 T. L. R. 165. Amendment of indorsement.

Where a plaintiff seeks to enforce a claim against the separate estate of a married woman, the writ should be indorsed with a claim for that relief, though an amendment may be allowed where such indorsement has been omitted: see the remarks in McNab v. Macdonnell, 15 P. R. 17; referring to Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; Sweetland v. Neville, 21 Ont. 412; see also other cases in notes to Rule 57.

Where a husband is sued as trustee of separate estate of his wife as well as in his personal capacity, the claim against him as such trustee should be made expressly in the indorsement: Dixon v. Dougan, 8 L. R. Ir. 211.

Lis Pendens.—As to the registration of a certificate of lis pendens: see Ths Jud. Act, s. 36, and notes, supra, pp. 200-203.

(vii) Special Indorsements.

Special indorsements.

33.—(1) The writ of summons may, at the option of the plaintiff, be specially indorsed with a statement of his claim, where the plaintiff seeks to recover a debt or liquidated demand in money (with or without interest, and whether the interest be payable by way of damages or otherwise), arising—

(a) Upon a contract, express or implied (as for instance on a bill of exchange, promissory note, cheque, or other simple contract debt); or

(b) On a bond or contract under seal for payment of a liquidated sum; or on a judgment; or

(c) On a statute where the amount sought to be recovered is a fixed sum of money or in the nature of a debt other than a penalty; or

(d) On a guaranty, whether under seal or not, where the claim against the principal is in respect of a debt or liquidated demand; or

Rule 33.

(e) On a trust; and also

(f) In actions for the recovery of land (with or without a claim for rent or mesne profits); and (g) In actions for the recovery of chattels. C.R. 138.

(h) In actions for foreclosure or sale. New.

(2) The writ in such case shall be in accordance with Form No. 5.

See Eng. (1883) R. 10.

Clauses (g) and (h) are not in the Eng. Rule, and (g) was first introduced in C. R. 138.

Sub-sect. 2 refers to Form 5 as applicable to all the cases mentioned in sub-sect. 1; but a reference to that Form will shew that it does not include the indorsements in actions for foreclosure or sale; these are to be found in Form 4.

The use of this indorsement is optional; the chief advantage in using it is that it will entitle the plaintiff to final judgment in case of default of appearance, and even notwithstanding appearance, unless the defendant can satisfy a Judge that he has a defence or ought to be allowed to defend: see Rule 57; and where the plaintiff's claim is properly the subject of a special indorsement under this Rule he may not be entitled to any extra costs occasioned by his omitting so to indorse his writ: see Rule 667.

Special indorsements of money demands.

Special Indorsement.—For forms of special indorsement, see Forms Nos. 4, 5; H. & L. Forms Nos. 39, 57, 58. Such forms must be substantially followed to entitle plaintiff to judgment under Rules 37 or 57, but a merely formal difference will not prejudice: per Archibald, J., Anon, W. N. 1876, 53.

As the object of the special indorsement is to give the defendant an opportunity of avoiding further proceedings by payment of the debt, as well as to entitle the plaintiff to a summary remedy, the indorsement must give sufficient particulars to enable the defendant to satisfy his mind as to whether he ought to pay, or resist: Walker v. Hicks, 3 Q. B. D. 8; and if it gives sufficiently specified particulars to bring to the mind of the defendant knowledge as to what the plaintiff's claim is, it is a good special indorsement: Bickers v. Speight, 22 Q. B. D. 7.

The indorsement may be sufficient though not so full as a statement of claims see Satchwell v. Clark, 66 L. T. 641; but it must be sufficient to show a cause of action: see Fruhauf v. Grosvenor, 67 L. T. 350; 8 T. L. R. 744.

It cannot be supplemented by affidavits: see notes to Rule 57.

In Anon, W. N. 1875, p. 220, Lush, J., said that it could not be intended that a list of items, extending perhaps over three or four years, should be indorsed on the writ. In an action for the price of goods sold, the dates and amounts of consignments were held necessary: Porpaite v. Dickinson, 38 L. T. 178; 26 W. R. 479.

A claim for arrears of alimony, and alimony pendente lite, payable under an order or judgment is a claim for "a debt or liquidated demand in money" within this Rule: Robertson v. Robertson, 16 O. L. R. 170; but see contra Bailey v. Bailey, 13 Q. B. D. 855; Robins v. Robins, 1907, 2 K. B. 13; 96 L. T. 787. A claim for a sum in dispute and requiring assessment or valuation, as a claim by lessor against lessee for amount of dilapidation to premises leased; is not a debt or liquidated demand within the Rule: Clarke v. Berger, 36 W. R. 809; nor a claim for quarterly payments of an annuity secured by a bond for a penal sum, as breaches have to be assigned: Tuther v. Caralampi, 21 Q. B. D. 414; nor is a claim on a bond conditioned for payment of a sum of money by instalments with interest in the meantime on the unpaid principal, where only some of the instalments are overdue: Star Life, etc., v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151; nor a claim on a bond given as security for costs: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145; but in an action on a common money bond, where only one breach can be assigned, and the penal sum is not for the performance of several covenants, a special indorsement can be framed, e.g., on a bond conditioned for the payment of a sum certain on a day certain: Gerrard v. Clowes, 1892, 2 Q. B. 11, 67 L. T. 204. Rule 33.

A claim for damages against an over-holding tenant for double the yearly value of the land, under The Landlord and Tenant Act (R. S. O. c. 155) s. 57, is an unliquidated claim: Magann v. Ferguson, 29 Ont. 235. Overholding tenant.

A claim for unliquidated damages other than interest, whether arising out of contract or tort, even though the amount of damages be fixed and definite, cannot be specially indorsed: Knight v. Abbott, 10 Q. B. D. 11; nor a claim by an unpaid vendor to recover possession of the land sold, and also a money demand: Spears v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 127; nor a claim to recover alleged overpayments made under a contract, on the ground that it has not been carried out by the opposite party, where the amount of the overpayments has not been ascertained or settled between the parties: McIntyre v. Munn, 6 O. L. R. 290; nor a claim by a vendor for a balance of purchase money under a contract, on the ground that he had shown, and was ready to show title, and was willing to convey: Leader v. Tod-Heatley, 1891, W. N. 38; Hood v. Martin, 9 P. R. 313. Such a claim is not a liquidated demand, but only for damages: Baird v. Pim, 7 M. & W. 474. Unliquidated damages.

A claim on a bond for a penal sum to secure payment of money by instalments cannot be specially indorsed: Star Life, etc., v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151; but a bond to secure payment of a sum as liquidated damages may be specially indorsed; thus a bond conditioned to obey an injunction restraining defendant from committing trespasses of various kinds was held to depend upon one event only, viz., the breach of the injunction, and that the sum secured by it was a liquidated sum which might therefore be specially indorsed: Strickland v. Williams, 1899, 1 Q. B. 382. Bond.

A special indorsement within Rule 33 may be framed upon a covenant for payment in a mortgage, where foreclosure or sale is not also claimed; but the particular covenant which makes the money payable (e.g., by default in payment of interest), must be sufficiently stated in the indorsement, also the agreement to pay interest, if interest is claimed, under the terms of the mortgage: Munro v. Pike, 15 P. R. 164. But where foreclosure or sale is also asked, the writ must be indorsed under Rule 465, and not under this Rule: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Bricker, 1 C. L. T. 729; Hill v. Sidebottom, 47 L. T. 224. Covenant.

Rule 33.

Implied contract. A claim based on an implied covenant, or equitable obligation to pay, cannot be specially indorsed, or support an application under Rule 57: Davidson v. Gard, 15 P. R. 31.

Foreign judgment. An action upon a foreign judgment is within the Rule: Grant v. Easton, 13 Q. B. D. 302: Solmes v. Stafford, 18 P. R. 78 (where the foreign judgment is one that can be sued on at all, i.e., where it is a final and conclusive judgment: Re Henderson, 37 Ch. D. 244; S. C. sub nom.; Nouvion v. Freeman, 15 App. Cas. 1; 82 L. T. 189, and see Huntington v. Attrill, 20 Ont. App. Appx. 1; Dohn v. Gillespie, 33 C. L. J. 304).

Solicitor's bill. A claim on a solicitor's bill though untaxed may be specially indorsed, though the defendant may be entitled to have the bill taxed: Logos v. Grunwaldt, 1910, 1 K. B. 41; 101 L. T. 820; and see Smith v. Edwardes, 1888, 22 Q. B. D. 10; 60 L. T. 10: Re Brockman, 1909, 2 Ch. 170; 100 L. T. 821.

Married woman. Where a specially indorsed writ is served on a married woman, the judgment to be signed thereon, in default of appearance, or defence, should be in the restricted form. See Form 110; H. & L. Forms Nos. 932, 924. If in absolute form it will be void: Oxley v. Link, 1914, 2 K. B. 734; 110 L. T. 248; even though signed against her by consent: Re Hamilton v. Perry, 24 O. L. R. 38.

Place of trial. A place of trial should be named in a special indorsement as no statement of claim may be delivered; and when a place of trial is so named it cannot be changed by the plaintiff by naming a new one in a subsequent statement of claim: Segsworth v. McKinnon, 19 P. R. 178; but this rule does not apply to writs not specially indorsed: St. Mary's v. Webb, 18 O. L. R. 336.

Interest. Interest.—Formerly interest could only be claimed by "special indorsement" where it was payable under a contract, or by a statute: Gold Ores Reduction Co. v. Parr, 1892, 2 Q. B. 14; Wilks v. Wood, 1892, 1 Q. B. 684; 88 L. T. 520; Cosselman v. Borrie, 14 P. R. 567; Huyck v. Wilson, 18 P. R. 44: and if a contract was relied on, it must have appeared from the indorsement itself, and any defect in that respect could not be supplied by affidavit on a motion for summary judgment: Gold Ores, etc. v. Parr, supra; and see Clarkson v. Dixon, 17 P. R. 92; but now the first clause of the Rule is so framed as to enable a claim for interest, though payable only by way of damages, to be specially indorsed.

In Richardson v. Molloy, before Falconbridge, J., on 5th Aug., 1898, an indorsement respecting a merchant's account with the addition of "And for interest thereon $12." was held to be sufficient within this Rule, to enable the plaintiff to sign judgment for the interest, under Rule 37.

The fact that an account is stated does not entitle the creditor to interest as of course: George v. Green, 13 O. L. R. 189; 14 O. L. R. 578; 42 S. C. R. 219; but a claim for interest thereon may now be specially indorsed: see Rule 33 (1).

See also notes to Rule 57.

Interest on foreign judgment. Interest on a foreign judgment is recoverable as unliquidated damages: Hollender v Foulkes, 18 P. R. 175, 204; and Solmes v. Stafford, ib. 78, and formerly could not, but under the present Rule may be "specially indorsed." Under ss. 134 and 186 of The Bills of Exchange Act (R. S. C. c. 119), interest accruing from the maturity of a bill or note, and the "expense of noting" or protesting: London and Universal Bank v. Clancarty, 1892, 1 Q. B. 689; Lawrence v. Willcocks, ib. 696; McVicar v. McLaughlin, 16 P. R. 450; Clarkson v. Dwan, 17 P. R. 92; are recoverable as liquidated damages and may be specially indorsed, and expenses of noting and protesting are sufficiently expressed by the words "bank charges": Dando v. Boden, 1893, 1 Q. B. 318. Rule 33.

Where more than the statutory rate of interest is claimed on a promissory note, the ground on which the claim is based should be specifically stated in the indorsement: see Clarkson v. Dwan, 17 P. R. 92.

Indorsements Insufficient.—The following indorsements have been held to be insufficient in point of form and particularity: Insufficient indorsements.

(1) "The plaintiff's claim is £399 9s., 7d., the defendant's share or contribution to the payment of certain bills of exchange and promissory notes in which he and the plaintiff were jointly liable, and which bills and notes have been taken up by the plaintiffs": Walker v. Hicks, 3 Q. B. D. 8.

(2) A claim on a dishonored cheque, where the indorsement did not aver that notice of dishonour had been given to the drawer: Fruhauf v. Grosvenor, 8 T. L. R. 744.

(3) "The plaintiff's claim is £399 9s,. 7d., being seventy-five per cent. of the invoice price of goods supplied by the plaintiff to the defendant under an agreement" (giving its date and nature).

"The plaintiffs also claim to recover from the defendants the following bills of exchange, drawn by the plaintiffs and payable to the order of the defendants, being bills drawn for the price of goods supplied by the plaintiffs to the defendants as aforesaid." A list of bills was then set out in the indorsement, giving their dates and amounts: Parpaite v. Dickinson, 38 L. T. 178; 26 W. R. 479.

(4) The plaintiff's claim is for $420.37, balance of work, etc., less credits as agreed upon. The plaintiff claims interest on $420.37 until judgment: Fitzsimmons v. Wilson, 4 C. L. T. 91.

(5) The plaintiff's claim is for $213.90, balance due for sawing wood by the plaintiff for the defendant: Villeneuve v. Wait, 12 P. R. 505.

(6) The plaintiff's claim is against the defendants as makers of a joint and several promisanry note, dated 11th April, 1892, £36 6s., 0d. and payable by certain instalments in respect whereof default has been made: Particulars.—To balance of moneys owing upon the said promissory note £24 6s.: Manchester & D. Bank v. Watton, 68 L. T. 167; 5 R. 147.

(7) Where a plaintiff had brought an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage, and had obtained therein the appointment of a receiver, it was held that a subsequent action on the covenant to recover interest payable under the same mortgage, the interest claimed was not a liquidated sum having regard to the order for the receipt of rents by the receiver, and therefore could not be "specially indorsed": Poulett v. Hill, 1893, 1 Ch. 277; 68 L. T. 476.

(8) "The plaintiff's claim is for the price of goods supplied. The following are the particulars:—$621.06 for money payable by the defendant to the plaintiff for goods bargained and sold and delivered by the plaintiff to the defendant, and interest thereon from 25th July, 1882": Lucas v. Ross, 9 P. R. 251. No reasons are given for holding this to be insufficient, but the omission of the date of sale and the claim of interest would appear to have rendered it bad under the Rule as it then stood.

(9) A claim for $404 for services rendered and money expended for the defendants, indicating the nature of the services and of the expenditure, but not the items, was held to be not a special indorsement: Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15.

In some of the foregoing cases though the indorsements were adjudged to be insufficient, the claims were nevertheless proper subjects for a special indorsement, if the indorsement had been properly framed.

Claims for damages for breach of contract are not within the Rule: Knight v. Abbott, 1882, 10 Q. B. D. 11; e.g., a claim to enforce an agreement to repurchase shares at a definite sum.

Liquidated demand.

"Liquidated Demand."—A claim is said to be liquidated where it is a matter of calculation from fixed data; when the amount is a matter of assessment to be made according to circumstances and the opinion of the assessor, it is unliquidated: see Williamson v. Playfair, 5 O. W. N. 354.

Claims on bills of exchange and promissory notes are within the Rule, but a claim for "exchange" in respect of a foreign bill is a claim for unliquidated damages: Re Gillespie, 16 Q. B. D. 702; 1886, 18 Q. B. D. 286, and is not a claim which can be specially indorsed.

As to what are liquidated claims, or claims ascertained by the signature of the party, see Kreutziger v. Brox, 32 Ont. 418, following Kinsey v. Roche, 8 P. R. 515; McDermid v. McDermid, 15 Ont. App. 287; but see contra, Re Graham v. Tomlinson, 12 P. R. 367; Thompson v. Pearson, 18 P. R. 308, 420; Ostrom v. Benjamin (2), 21 Ont. App. 467; McCormick H. M. Co. v. Warnica, 3 O. L. R. 427; McLaughlin v. Schaefer, 13 Ont. App. 253.

The plaintiff sued for $228.20, the balance of a claim for $1,828.20 worth of butter at 22c. per lb., on which $1,600 had been paid, and obtained a verdict for $228.20. It was held that the amount was liquidated by the act of the parties within R. S. O. 1877, c. 43, s. 19 (2) Durnin v. McLean, 10 P. R. 295; and see Lovell v. Phillips, 5 O. L. R. 235. Where the suit was to recover "$272.03, the return of moneys received by defendant belonging to plaintiff, being the proceeds from sales of goods in plaintiff's shop, as follows—etc.," it was held that the sum was not liquidated: Robb v. Murray, 16 Ont. App. 503; so also a claim for work and labour and materials to the amount of $197.01, and $14.54 for interest, was held not to be liquidated: Malcolm v. Leys, 15 P. R. 75; and a sale according to a price list was held not to make the claim a liquidated one: Evans v. Chandler, 19 P. R. 160, sed quære, nor a claim for commission on the sale of land: Re McKay v. Martin, 21 Ont. 104.

A claim for a specified sum for work, labour and attendance as a medical man, has been held to be a liquidated demand, and capable of being made the subject of a special indorsement, entitling the plaintiff to obtain final judgment on default of appearance: Kilgariff v. McGrane, 8 L. R. Ir. 354.

Indorsements held sufficient.

Indorsements Sufficient.—The following indorsements have been held to be sufficient:—

(1) "The plaintiff's claim is £36 5*s*. for the balance of goods sold." Anon., W. N. 1875, 220; 1 Chart. Ch. Ca. 44. See, however, Parpaite v. Dickinson, supra, p. 373, as to effect of absence of dates.

(2) "The plaintiff's claim is £49 5*s.* 8*d.*; the following ars ths particulars: Rule 33.

and £2 15*s.* for costs": Smith v. Wilson, 4 C. P. D. 392; 5 C. P. D. 25.

(3) "Tn· plaintiff's claim is for £116 0*s.* 10*d.*, being the halance due to him from the defendant, for moneys paid at ths said defendant's request, and on his behalf, for the purchass of certain stocks and shares, between the 3rd June, 1879, and the 31st August, 1879, an secount of which has heen rendered and exceeds three folios": Ashton v. Hurwitz, W. N. 1879, 194. Ths ground of ths decision was that such an indorsement wonld have heen sufficient under C. L. P. Act: see R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 19, and the schedule, where the form given states that an account previously delivered may be referred to by its dste: see also Bickers v. Speight, infra.

(4) "Ths plaintiff's claim is £130 due him from the defendant, under sn assignment, under the hand of one M. J., and dated July 14, 1888; particulars, whereof are as follows: I do herehy authorize and request you to pay to Mr. E. Bickers, of, etc., the sum of £130, being the amount dus or to become due from you to me, as appears by an I. O. U. signed hy you, and dated Feh. 4, 1885, and his receipt for the same shall he a good discharge": Bickers v. Speight, 22 Q. B. D. 7.

(5) "Ths plaintiffs claim $2,000, heing the amount of the defendants' overdrawn account with the plaintiffs' hank on the 18th September, 1882": Imp. Bank v. Britton, 9 P. R. 274. A similar indorsement omitting the date of the overdraft wns held to he insufficient: Ontario Bank v. Burke, 10 P. R. 648.

(8) Claim for payment of a legacy of £2,750, "which hss remained nnpsid hy resson of a hreach of trust" with interest, the interest being payahle nnder the will and not as damages: Hamilton v. Brogden, 60 L. J. Chy. 88.

(7) Clsim for ths amount due under a covenant in a mortgage in an action by sn assignee, without averring ihat the ortmgagor had been notified of ths assignment: Satchwell v. Clark, 66 L. T. 641; 8 T. L. R. 592.

Rule 33.

(8) "To 12 Debentures of Municipality of Morris, in the Province of Manitoba, which debentures are dated . . . and numbered . . . and were issued under a By-law passed . . . being By-law No. 5 of said municipality, which said By-law, and the coupons attached thereto, were legalized and confirmed by the Act of the Manitoba Legislature, 46 & 47 Vict. c. 70. The said debentures fall due respectively, Nos. 10, 11 and 12, on . . . To interest on debentures 10, 11 and 12 since their due date to the issue of this writ, at 6 per cent.: London & Canadian L. & I. Co. v. Rural Mun. of Morris, 11 C. L. T. 20.

(9) Claim by a surety for a debt and costs paid by him for the principal debtor: Borland v. Curry, 4 L. R. Ir. 273.

(10) Claim by a cestui que trust against his trustee for money payable under an express trust: Wilson v. Dundas, W. N. 1875, 232.

(11) Claim for overdue instalments payable under a contract for building a ship, in course of construction, with interest thereon; under an agreement to pay the same when the work had reached a certain stage: Workman v. Lloyd Brazileiro, 1908, 1 K. B. 968; 99 L. T. 477.

(12) Claim on an agreement by defendant to pay £210 to the plaintiff, if he would deliver to defendant's husband certain bills, was held to be good, notwithstanding that it contained no averment of performance by plaintiff of the conditions precedent: Bradley v. Chamberlyn, 1893, 1 Q. B. 439; 68 L. T. 413.

(13) Claim for arrears of alimony due under a foreign judgment: Robertson v. Robertson, 16 O. L. R. 170.

Special indorsement in actions to recover land.

Actions to Recover Land.—The power to specially indorse a writ in an action for the recovery of land now extends to all actions of ejectment, and is not now limited as it was by the former Con. Rule 245, to certain cases between landlord and tenant. In Jarred v. Edwardes, 92 L. T. Jour. 8, it was held that the former Con. Rule applied (and a fortiori the present Rule applies) in the case of a tenancy at will.

The indorsement of a claim for possession of the mortgaged land in an action for foreclosure was held not to be "a special indorsement" under C. R. 138, so as to enable the plaintiff to apply for judgment under C. R. 603: Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 80; nor semble, is a claim by an unpaid vendor of land for possession: Spears v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 127.

But a claim by a mortgagee "to recover possession of" land (describing it) and "for an order that defendant do forthwith deliver up possession thereof" where that was the only claim, was held to be a sufficient indorsement within Rule 33: Central Trust Co. of N. Y. v. Algoma Steel Co., 6 O. L. R. 464.

Where, in an action by a landlord for possession, the copy of writ served omitted the length of the tenant's term, which was in the indorsement on the original writ, it was held on a motion under C. R. 603 for final judgment that sufficient information was given by the copy: Hanmer v. Clifton, 1894, 1 Q. B. 238.

Amendment.

Amendment of Indorsement.—The particulars of claim indorsed on the writ may, by leave, be amended, even though the writ has been served out of the jurisdiction, so long as no claim is introduced by amendment, which could not have been properly indorsed on the writ originally: Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 450; 71 L. T. 33; Hogaboom v. MacCulloch, 17 P. R. 377. Rule 34.

Where claims are added by amendment, the order allowing the amendment may provide that the action as to such added claims shall be deemed to have been commenced only as from the date of the amendment: Holland v. Leslie, supra.

The place of trial named in the indorsement of a specially indorsed writ cannot be altered without leave in a subsequently delivered statement of claim: Segsworth v. McKinnon, 17 P. R. 178; but where the writ is not specially indorsed the plea of trial if any named in the writ may be changed: St. Mary's v. Webb, 18 O. L. R. 336.

Claim for Costs.—A specially indorsed writ must include a claim for costs: see Rule 773, such costs may be taxed even after payment: Rule 659. Claim for costs.

34. Where the plaintiff in an action of dower claims damages for detention of her dower, the indorsement shall contain a statement that the plaintiff claims damages for the detention of her dower, from some day to be stated. C.R. 142. Indorsement in action of dower.

Where the plaintiff's husband did not die seised of the land out of which dower is claimed, no damages for detention are recoverable: Lowe v. Armstrong, 11 Gr. 517, even though a demand for dower may have been made by the plaintiff before action: Morgan v. Morgan, 15 Ont. 194. See further as to damages in actions for dower: Wallace v. Moore, 18 Gr. 560; Ryan v. Fish, 4 Ont. 335, and notes to Rule 51.

CHAPTER III.

DEFAULT OF APPEARANCE.

Non-appearing defendant.

35. Except where otherwise provided or otherwise ordered a defendant who fails to appear shall not be entitled to notice of any subsequent proceedings in the action. C.R. 573.

In case of default of defence: see Rule 354, notwithstanding that Rule, a defendant who had appeared would be entitled to notice of motion for judgment.

A defendant apparently is entitled to notice of assessment of damages, notwithstanding this Rule: see Rule 247.

Where a reference is directed, a defendant who has not appeared is entitled to notice of the first proceeding on the reference: Rule 403. Generally speaking, a defendant is entitled to notice of proceedings to commit him for contempt, and, usually, personal service of the notice is necessary. Where any other proceedings are required to be served on a non-appearing defendant: see Rule 200.

As to re-service of amended writ on a defendant who has not appeared: see notes to Rule 183 infra.

A defendant who has not appeared is, nevertheless, entitled to notice of an application to appoint a receiver by way of equitable execution: Tilling v. Blythe, 1899, 1 Q. B. 557; 80 L. T. 44; and so also of an application to discontinue against a co-defendant sued as a joint tort feasor: Jennings v. Cripps (Div'l Court, 14th Nov., 1904). But notice of filing a report need not be served on a defendant who has not appeared, or taken any part in the reference: Toronto General Trusts Corp. v. Craig, 2 O. L. R. 238.

Proceedings in default of appearance.

36. Where a defendant fails to appear the plaintiff before signing judgment or noting the pleadings closed, shall file an affidavit of service of the writ or the notice in lieu thereof, [or the undertaking of the defendant's solicitor accepting service and agreeing to enter an appearance, with an affidavit verifying the undertaking as the case may be]. C.R. 574.

This Rule corresponds with the Eng. (1883) R. 102, except that the clause in brackets is not in the latter. Rule 15 provides for a solicitor's acceptance of service, and undertaking to appear. Rule 63 prescribes the procedure in case of default of appearance to a writ indorsed with a claim for an account: and see Rule 37, as to specially indorsed writs.

Where notice of writ served.

The substitution of notice in lieu of service of the writ, is authorized in cases where the Court sees fit to allow that mode of service, whenever the plaintiff is unable to effect prompt personal service:

Rule 16, and notice of the writ, and not the writ itself, is required to be served where the defendant is served out of the jurisdiction and is not a British subject: see Rule 7. Rule 37.

Where a notice was served in lieu of a writ, an affidavit stating that defendant had been served with "a notice in writing, a true copy of which is hereto annexed," was held sufficient: Bustros v. Bustros, 14 Ch. D. 849. In cases, however, to which Rule 17 applies, the affidavit of service should state the day on which the indorsement of the time of service was made.

The writ should be annexed to the affidavit of service in accordance with the former practice: The Eppos, 32 W. R. 154; 49 L. T. 604. Affidavit of service.

This Rule must be complied with, and an affidavit of service of the writ filed, before a statement of claim can be served on default of appearance: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175, and see Lovell v. Taylor, 5 O. W. R. 525.

As this Rule requires an affidavit it has been held that the Court will not accept a certificate, though British consuls, in the country to which the defendant belonged, had instructions not to administer oaths to subjects of that country: Ford v. Miescke, 16 Q. B. D. 57.

Ordinarily, a solicitor's signature does not need verification in proceedings in an action, but in the case of an acceptance of service of a writ of summons, before any proceedings can be taken on it, this Rule requires it to be verified by affidavit. The wording of this Rule indicates that in default of a solicitor complying with his undertaking to appear, judgment may be signed in default of appearance, if the case be one in which that proceeding may be taken; or the plaintiff may file a statement of claim and in default of defence note the pleadings closed, without compelling the solicitor to comply with the undertaking. Before this course is adopted, however, it would be well to be assured that the solicitor was authorized to act for the defendant, because if it should turn out that he was unauthorized to accept service, the whole proceedings might prove nugatory, for although a defendant is bound by an unauthorized appearance, where he has been personally served; he is not bound by the unauthorized act of a solicitor, if he has not been personally served and he promptly moves against it as soon as he has knowledge of it: see notes to Rule 13. Solicitor's undertaking to be verified.

37. Where the writ is specially indorsed for a debt or liquidated demand in money, and any defendant fails to appear, the plaintiff, notwithstanding that the writ may be indorsed with any other claim, may, as against such defendant, sign final judgment for any sum not exceeding the amount for which the writ is so specially indorsed, together with interest as claimed to the date of the judgment, and for his costs, without prejudice to his right to proceed with the action against any other defendant, and as to any other claims indorsed. C.R. 575. Where writ is specially indorsed for a debt or liquidated demand.

See Eng. (1883) R. 103, which, however, does not admit of a judgment being signed where there is any other claim indorsed on the writ besides the special indorsement.

Rule 37.

"Specially Indorsed."—See notes to Rules 33 and 57.

Under the Rules, claims properly the subject of a special indorsement may be combined with others which are not, and, in default of appearance, final judgment may be signed for the former, and the action may be proceeded with as to the other claims.

The present Rules therefore override a number of decisions settling the former practice: see Hollender v. Fjoulkes, 16 P. R. 175; Solmes v. Stafford, Ib., 264; McVicar v. McLaughlin, Ib., 450, and cases there referred to. The Rule was applied in Huyck v. Wilson, 18 P. R. 44.

The result of this Rule has been held to be that where a judgment is signed for default of appearance on a specially indorsed writ, for more than is properly the subject of a "special indorsement" the judgment is not absolutely null and void as formerly, but is merely irregular: see George v. Green, 13 O. L. R. 189; 14 O. L. R. 578; 42 S. C. R. 219; and see Armitage v. Parsons, 1908, 2 K. B. 510; 99 L. T. 329; but see Muir v. Jenks, 1913, 2 K. B. 412; 108 L. T. 747.

It may be observed, however, that the Rule merely authorizes a final judgment for "any sum not exceeding the amount for which the writ is so specially indorsed," and a final judgment for any sum which is not properly the subject of a special indorsement is clearly unwarranted by the Rules.

Where judgment is signed purporting to be under this Rule, but the writ is not specially indorsed, the judgment is a nullity: Hoffmon v. Creror, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15; Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175: Stor Life v. Southgote, 18 P. R. 151.

Judgment by Default.—Judgment can only be signed for the amount due at the time the writ was issued, not for claims which had not then matured: Pork v. Patton, 3 C. L. T. 264; but see Hughes v. Justin and Muir v. Jenks, infro.

In an action for foreclosure, and on the covenant for payment, judgment was signed on a claim on the covenant under this Rule: Bisset v. Jones, 32 Ch. D. 635; but the practice in Ontario is not to sign a separate judgment on the covenant, but to sign one judgment which awards relief on the covenant, and also provides for redemption or sale, or foreclosure.

Judgment may be signed by default of appearance against a married woman, when the writ is specially indorsed, and, in the case of contracts entered into before 13th April, 1897, the special indorsement should allege that she had, when she made the contract, and still has, separate estate: Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; and see Tetley v. Griffith, 36 W. R. 96; 57 L. T. 673; but that allegation is not necessary in the case of contracts made after 13th April, 1897: see The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149), ss. 4, 5.

Where several defendants.

Where there are several defendants jointly liable, some of whom appear, and some of whom do not, judgment may be signed under this Rule against the latter without prejudice to the plaintiff's claim against the others: and see Montgomery v. Ferris, 20 L. R. Ir. 282; Rice v. Dillon, 28 L. R. Ir. 376; and Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Taggart, 26 Ont. App. 295; 30 S. C. R. 373. But if the plaintiff sues and recovers judgment against one of two joint debtors, without making the other a party, the latter is discharged: Hammond v. Schofield, 1891, 1 Q. B. 453; Toronto Dental Mfg. Co. v. McLoren, 14 P. R.

89; such a judgment will not be vacated on the plaintiff's application in order to join the co-debtor, even with the defendant's consent: Hammond v. Schofield, supra, and see Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15. See also note to Rules 105, 106, pp. 498-501, and to Rule 59, p. 410. Rule 37.

If a plaintiff alleges a joint liability against two defendants, and signs judgment against one, and at the trial only proves a sole liability against the other defendant, he cannot recover against him; so also where defendants are sued as alternatively liable, if the plaintiff enters final judgment against one of them, he cannot thereafter proceed against the other: Morel v. Westmoreland, 1903, 1 K. B. 64; 1904, A. C. 11; 89 L. T. 702 (a case of husband and wife); French v. Howie, 1906, 2 K. B. 674; 95 L. T. 274; Cross v. Mathews, 117 L. T. Jour. 220 (a case of principal and agent). Joint liability.

But where a judgment entered against a person erroneously assumed to be liable, was void under a statute, and was set aside by consent, it was held to be no bar to a subsequent action against other persons liable for the debt: Keating v. Graham, 26 Ont. 361.

In an action on a promissory note, the plaintiff may sign judgment on default of appearance to a specially indorsed writ, without production of the note: Oliver v. Fryer, 7 P. R. 325.

Where an action is commenced in a local office, a judgment by default should be entered in the local office: Chamberlain v. Armstrong, 18 C. L. J. 99, and see Rules 531, and 762.

Where the copy of writ served was not an accurate copy, the teste being 1880 instead of 1882, this was held not to be a fatal error, and a motion to set aside a judgment signed was refused: Wesson v. Stalker, 47 L. T. 444.

Where the defendant is a married woman the judgment against her must follow the limited form: see Form No. 110; H. & L. Forms 923, 924, otherwise it will be null and void and not capable of amendment: Orley v. Link, 1914, 2 K. B. 734; 110 L. T. 248; even though consented to by the defendant: see Hamilton v. Perry, 24 O. L. R. 38. Married woman.

Execution.—Execution may in all cases be issued forthwith, unless otherwise ordered: see Rule 538.

Setting aside Judgment by Default.—See Rule 520. Setting aside judgment.

Under R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 64, it was provided that an application to set aside a judgment must be based upon affidavits "accounting for the non-appearance, and disclosing a defence upon the merits." Under the present Rules the matter is left at large to the discretion of the Court or Judge; but, no doubt, in practice, the non-appearance will have to be explained, and a defence shewn. The terms commonly imposed have been the payment by the defendant of the costs of the application, pleading without delay, and sometimes bringing money into Court: see Harrison C. L. P. Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50), s. 64; Arch. Pr., 13th ed., 790, and 800; and Smith v. Dobbin, 3 Ex. D. 340. In Hillyard v. Swan, 12 P. R. 226, the judgment and execution were directed to stand as security. See also Ontario Bank v. Burke, 16 P. R. 561, 565.

Where the defendant paid the claim sued on, after the writ issued, a judgment subsequently entered for non-appearance, for the amount of the claim and costs, was set aside as irregular: Hughes v. Justin, Claim paid wholly or in part before judgment.

Rule 38.

1894, 1 Q. B. 667; 70 L. T. 365; and see Muir v. Jenks, 1913, 2 K. B 412; 108 L. T. 747, where judgment was entered for too much, and plaintiff refused to amend, and it was set aside.

Where service substituted.

Substituted service, when regularly effected, is, for all purposes, equivalent to personal service, and, even though it has in reality never come to the knowledge of the defendant, he will not be let in to defend, as of right: Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 183, 363. Lapse of time is no bar to an application to set aside a judgment obtained by default, where no irreparable mischief will be done to the plaintiff, and the injury caused by the delay may be compensated for by payment of costs: Atwood v. Chichester, 3 Q. B. D. 722; see also Davies v. Ballenden, W. N. 1882, 92; 46 L. T. 797, and notes to Rules 520 and 499, but, especially after delay in moving, a judgment regularly signed, will only be set aside on proper terms: sees McVicar v. McLoughlin, 15 P. R. 454.

Appearance entered but mislaid.

Where an appearance was duly filed, but the appearance was mislaid by the officer and not entered in his book, and in consequence a judgment for default was signed, the judgment was set aside as irregular: Moore v. Simons, 1 C. L. J. 183; and see Bank of Montreal v. Harrison, 4 P. R. 331.

Technical defence.

The application will not be granted to give the defendant the advantage of a technical defence: Forbes v. Middleton, 2 Str. 1242.

Meritorious defences.

The following have been considered meritorious defences: The Statute of Limitations: Maddocks v. Holmes, 1 B. & P. 228; McIntyre v. The Canada Co., 18 Gr. 367; Seaton v. Fenwick, 7 P. R. 146; and see Elms v. Hedges, 95 L. T. 145; Usury: Trust & Loan Company of Canada v. Boulton, 18 Gr. 234; Infancy: Delafield v. Tanner, 5 Taunt. 836; Cavallier v. Michael, 17 L. T. 290; that the claim is not one that can be specially indorsed: Rogers v. Hunt, 10 Ex. 474; want of jurisdiction: Homelyn v. White, 5 P. R. 120. As to want of stamps: see Coughill v. Clark, 9 P. R. 471.

A judgment signed for default was set aside after the lapse of two years, on the ground that the covenant sued on, which was contained in a mortgage settled by an officer of the Court, was inserted per incuriam: Brown v. Grady, 31 Ont. 73.

Where writ specially indorsed for recovery of chattels.

38. Where the writ is specially indorsed with a claim for the recovery of chattels, and any defendant fails to appear the plaintiff, notwithstanding that the writ may be indorsed with any other claim, may, as against such defendant, sign final judgment for the recovery of the chattels and his costs without prejudice to his right to proceed with the action against any other defendant and as to any other claims indorsed. C.R. 577.

This provision applies where claims for the recovery of chattels are specially indorsed: see Rule 33 (g).

It may be a question how far a plaintiff would be entitled to issue execution for the recovery of chattels in the joint possession of several defendants, some of whom appear, and some of whom do not, until he has recovered judgment against all: see Rules 41, 2.

For form of judgment: see Form No. 96; H. & L. Forms, No. 848. Rule 39.

In such actions in case of default of defence a similar judgment may be signed: see Rule 355.

39.—(1) Where the writ is not specially indorsed but as indorsed includes a claim for the detention of goods and pecuniary damages, or either of them, and any defendant fails to appear, interlocutory judgment may be signed against such defendant, directing an assessment of damages, without prejudice to the right of the plaintiff to proceed against any other defendants, and such damages may, unless otherwise ordered, be assessed, as against such defendant, either before or at the same time as the trial of the action, against any other defendant, or the Court may order that instead of an assessment the value of the goods and amount of damages, or either of them, shall be ascertained by a reference or in any other way. C. R. 578, 579. Where claim is not specially indorsed.

(2) No interlocutory judgment shall be signed for default of appearance, unless the precise cause of action is clearly stated in the indorsement of the writ. New.

In such actions, in case of default of defence a similar judgment may be signed: see Rule 355.

This Rule in effect embodies similar provisions to those in Eng. (1883) RR. 105 and 106, except that under the Eng. Rules interlocutory judgment cannot be signed for the value of the goods or damages, where the writ is indorsed for other claims, such as for example an injunction: see Port v. Griffiths, 28 Sol. Jour. 339; the same was the case under former Con. Rule 708: McCallum v. McCallum, 11 P. R. 16.

Under the present Rule the plaintiff may sign interlocutory judgment, and proceed with the action as to the claim for an injunction, and to assess damages.

Interlocutory judgment may be entered immediately upon default of appearance; and the indorsement on the writ will govern the inquiry as to damages without any pleading, so far as the claim for the detention of goods is concerned, but as to any other claims it would seem necessary that a statement of claim should be filed.

The old learning on the subject of "conversion" need not be imported into the system introduced by The Judicature Act, which provides for redress in case the plaintiff's goods are wrongfully detained, or in case he is wrongfully deprived of them: Stimson v. Block, 11 Ont. 103.

For a form of interlocutory judgment: see Form No. 97; H. & L. Forms, No. 850, and of judgment in default of appearance after assessment of damages, No. 147; H. & L. Forms, No. 851.

A claim indorsed "for damages for slander" is for pecuniary damages within this Rule, there being nothing to shew that the action is brought under section 19 of The Libel and Slander Act (R. S. O. Claim for damages.

Rule 40.

c. 71); Stanley v. Litt, 19 P. R. 101; but whether the Rule would apply to an action for libel or slander brought under that section, quære: Ib.

Specific chattels.

It would seem that, under this Rule, where the action is brought for the specific recovery of chattels, the plaintiff may, upon default of appearance, have judgment for the delivery of the chattels; and may then enforce that judgment under Rule 544; Ivory v. Cruickshonk, W. N. 1875, 249; per Quain, J., at Chambers.

Vacating judgment.

Where a final, instead of an interlocutory judgment was signed, and was therefore set aside, it was held under the former practice, that the plaintiff was not forthwith entitled to take out and file the order, and sign an interlocutory judgment. The final judgment was held to be not set aside without an entry on the roll, and the defendant, without laches, could not be deprived of the carriage of the order: Covonagh v. Hastings Mutual, 7 P. R. 111.

No interlocutory judgment for equitable relief.

Where the plaintiff claims equitable relief, e.g., specific performance of a contract, an interlocutory judgment cannot be signed in default of appearance: Stuart v. McVicar, 18 P. R. 250. In such cases, in default of appearance a statement of claim must be filed, and in default of defence a motion for judgment should be made: Ib.

In Ivory v. Cruickshonk, W. N. 1875, 249, the action was for rent, and for the return of certain chattels; the defendant had failed to appear; it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to have judgment for the rent, and for the return of the goods.

See Dix v. Groom, in note to Rule 355.

Action on bond.

Where the action is on a bond which is subject to 8 & 9 Wm. 3, c. 11 (now section 125, supra): see notes to that section, p. 296, supra.

Assessment of damages.

Modo of Assessment of Damages.—See the last clause of the Rule.

An inquiry was directed before a Master on affidavit evidence in Macdonald v. Antelme, W. N. 1884, 72; and it would seem that, under Rule 39, the Court or a Judge might so order.

Joint tortfeasors.

Where several defendants are sued as joint tortfeasors each is liable for the whole damage and there cannot be separate assessments of damages, or separate judgments, against them for different amounts: Greenlands v. Wilmshurst, 1913, 3 K. B. 507; and see Smith v. Streatfield, 1913, 3 K. B. 764. Where in such a case damages were assessed against the defendants separately, it was held that judgment should be entered against all the defendants for the aggregate amount assessed: Domiens v. Modern Socy., 27 T. L. R. 164; but see Copeland-Chatterson Co. v. Business Systems, 11 O. L. R. 292.

Appeal.

Where a Judge at a trial refers it to a Master to assess damages, and judgment is awarded for the damages so to be assessed, semble, any motion for a new trial, or a new assessment of damages, must be made to the Appellate Division: see Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. New Garage and Motor Co., 1913, 2 K. B. 207; 108 L. T. 361; but see Rules 400, 502, 503.

Action for dower. Judgment of seisin. Execution Costs.

40.—(1) Where a defendant fails to appear in an action for dower, the plaintiff may sign judgment of seisin forthwith, and sue out a writ of assignment of dower, but she shall not, unless otherwise ordered, be entitled to costs.

(2) Where the plaintiff claims arrears of dower or damages for detention of her dower, the entry of a judgment of seisin and the taking of proceedings for the assignment of her dower thereunder shall not prevent her from proceeding with the action for the recovery of such arrears or damages. C.R. 581.

On motion for judgment on the pleadings where detention and demand were denied, and defendants alleged that they always had been and were ready to assign dower, judgment of seisin was granted, but no damages (or, apparently, costs): Malone v. Malone, 17 Ont. 101.

See notes to Rule 51.

Action for land.

41.—(1) Where an action is for or includes a claim for the recovery of land, and any defendant fails to appear, or if an appearance is entered but the defence is limited to part only, the plaintiff, notwithstanding that the writ may be indorsed with any other claim, may sign judgment against such defendant for possession of the land or of the part thereof to which the defence does not apply. C.R. 582.

This corresponds with the Eng. R. (1883) R. 108, and is in substance the same as the former practice. For form of judgment which may be adapted to meet such cases: see Nos. 91, 92, 93; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 843, 844, 845.

This judgment does not carry costs, without an affidavit being filed to the effect mentioned in Rule 43, or an order obtained under that Rule.

Execution not to issue until judgment given as to all defendants.

(2) Where judgment by default is signed, but is not signed against all the defendants, a writ of possession shall not be issued unless directed by the Court. C.R. 584.

This Rule, although in general terms, appears to be intended to be limited to actions for the recovery of land: see Form No. 117; H. & L. Forms, No. 1125, a similar provision seems necessary in actions for the recovery of chattels in the joint possession of several defendants; but see Rule 2.

Assessment of damages in action for land.

42. Where an action is for or includes a claim for the recovery of land, and any defendant fails to appear, and the writ is indorsed with a claim for mesne profits, arrears of rent, or double value (a) in respect of the premises claimed or any part of them, or damages for breach of contract, or wrong or injury to the premises claimed, the plaintiff may sign judgment against such defendant for possession, and may proceed as to the other claims. C.R. 583.

Rule 42.

Corresponding with Eng. (1883) R. 109. The former practice confined this right to the suit of a landlord against a tenant.

A form of judgment which may be adapted to meet such cases will be found in the Form No. 93; H. & L. Forms, No. 845.

Actions to recover dower are specially provided for by Rule 40.

(a) A landlord, or person entitled in remainder, or reversion, claiming possession against a tenant overholding after notice to quit, is entitled to double value: The Landlord and Tenant Act (R. S. O. c. 155), s. 57; and for double rent when the tenant has given the notice: Ib., s. 58.

Execution not to issue till judgment against all defendants.

In such an action as that mentioned in this Rule, on default of defence a like judgment may be entered: Rule 355. C. R. 592, provided that: Where a judgment is not entered against all the defendants a writ of possession shall not be issued unless directed by the judgment against the defendants who defend, or by the order of the Court or a Judge.

That Rule applied generally to actions for the recovery of land, and prevented a plaintiff from issuing execution to recover possession of the land in question against some defendants, so long as there were others on the record, as against whom he was not entitled to judgment, without first obtaining leave; which leave would, ordinarily, not be granted, so long as the plaintiff's right to possession was in dispute.

Although that Rule has been omitted, it is presumed no change is intended in the practice. In any case, a writ for delivery of possession by A., would not appear to warrant the ejectment of any other person not claiming under A; and see Rule 41 (3), supra, which is probably intended to have a general application to like cases, and not merely to those within that Rule.

A judgment for recovery of land (unlike the former judgment in ejectment) has the same finality as any other judgment: see Ball v. Cothcart, 16 Ont. 525; Cochrane v. Hamilton Prov., 15 Ont. 128.

Where the judgment is for a liquidated sum for arrears of rent, it would seem to be final in the first instance, and not interlocutory: see Rule 37.

Mesne profits.

Where mesne profits were claimed on a specially indorsed writ in an action for the recovery of land, on a motion for judgment under former C. R. 603 the mesne profits were ordered to be calculated up to the date when the plaintiff should recover possession: Southport Tramways Co. v. Gondy, 1897, 2 Q. B. 66; but whether judgment could be entered as of course for mesne profits accruing subsequent to the date of the judgment seems doubtful, although there appears to be authority for saying that whenever a judgment is authorized to be entered without motion, it may properly embody all such provisions as would be included in the judgment if pronounced by the Court on a hearing pro confesso: see Kirkpatrick v. Howell, 22 Gr. 94. A judgment for mesne profits up to the date of recovery of possession would seem to necessitate its being framed so as to direct a reference to ascertain the amount, inasmuch as the amount to be recovered could not be ascertained until the writ of possession to be issued under the judgment should be executed.

Rules 43, 44.

Costs where adverse possession.

43. Where any defendant fails to appear in an action for recovery of land, the plaintiff shall not be entitled to costs unless he files an affidavit showing that such defendant was at the time of the issue of the writ in actual adverse possession of the land, or obtains an order allowing him to sign judgment as well for his costs as for possession of the land. C.R. 585.

Statement of claim when when necessary.

44. In all cases not hereinbefore provided for a statement of claim must be delivered. (New.)

Where a statement of claim is delivered [illegible] if a defence is delivered raising any issue of fact, the action must be set down to trial in the ordinary way; but where the defence raises no issue of fact, or the mere proof of the execution of documents is needed, such evidence may be given by affidavit, and the action disposed of, on a motion for judgment; and where no defence at all is delivered then on the pleadings being noted closed, the action may be heard pro confesso on a motion for judgment: see Rule 354.

Where there are some defendants as to whom issues of fact are to be tried, and other defendants as to whom the action can be disposed of on motion for judgment, it is usually advisable to move for judgment as against the latter defendants at the trial of the action; where a defendant is entitled to notice of the motion he should be served. Motions for judgment, where there is no issue of fact to be tried, are made in the Weekly Court.

Where a statement of claim is delivered, on default of defence, a motion for judgment is necessary, except in those cases in which the plaintiff would be entitled to sign judgment for default of appearance, and in those cases a similar judgment may be signed for default of defence: see Rule 356 and notes.

CHAPTER IV.

APPEARANCE, ETC.

Time for appearance.

45. When a defendant is served within Ontario, he shall appear within ten days, including the day of service. C.R. 168 and 130, amended.

It is made clear by this Rule that the period limited for appearance is to be inclusive of the day of service: see Cornish v. Manning, 18 C. L. J. 76, 143; 2 C. L. T. 105.

Under the terms of a special order limiting the time for appearance to "10 days from the service of the writ," Rule 173 (1) was held to apply, and the period was computed "exclusively of the first day and inclusively of the last day": Bank of B. N. A. v. Hughes, 16 P. R. 61.

In case of service by advertising, the advertisement should specify the time for appearance, and the time allowed should date from the last publication, unless otherwise ordered: Crone v. Jullion, 2 Ch. D. 220.

Service out of Ontario.

Service out of Ontario.—Where service is to be effected on a defendant resident out of Ontario, the order which allows service to be effected must name the time for appearance (see Rule 27), which will be regulated in the discretion of the Court or Judge making the order, according to the distance of the place where service is to be effected, or (in case of substitutional service), according to the distance of the place where defendant is: see Rule 27, and Sparks v. Purdy, 15 P. R. 1. For form of order: see No. 69; H. & L. Forms, No. 85.

Time for appearance.

The time for appearance of a defendant to be served out of the jurisdiction is regulated according to the facilities of communication with the place where the defendant is shewn to be residing. Two weeks are ordinarily limited by the Master in Chambers where the defendant resides in Montreal, and three weeks where defendant resides in some place in the United States not far from the border of Ontario. Similar periods will now probably be fixed in orders giving leave to serve defendants resident in such places.

Where a writ has been issued for service within the jurisdiction, and a defendant out of the jurisdiction is added as a party, a concurrent writ according to Form No. 2 should be issued: see Dickson v. Law, 1895, 2 Ch. 62; 72 L. T. 680; Burt v. Bowen, 8 T. L. R. 28; Manitobo, etc., Co. v. Allon, 1893, 3 Ch. 434.

Appearance, how entered.

46. A defendant shall appear by filing with the proper officer a memorandum in writing, if he appears by solicitor, stating the name and place of business of such solicitor, or, if he appears in person, stating that he defends in person, and giving his address and naming a place to be called his address for service, which shall not be more than two miles from the office from which the writ of summons was issued. (See Form No. 6.) C.R. 169. Rule 46.

See Eng. (1883), RR. 77, 80, 81, 83.

An appearance entered by two solicitors for one defendant is not a nullity, but is irregular: see Williams v. Williams, 10 M. & W. 178; Walton v. Thompson, L. R. 6 Eq. 7. If sued in a wrong name defendant should appear by the right one, stating that he was sued by the wrong one: Lomax v. Kilpin, 4 D. & L. 295; Hobson v. Wadsworth, 8 Dowl. P. C. 601; (see Zuccato v. Young, 38 W. R. 474, where a motion by a defendant wrongly named and described to set aside the writ as irregular was refused), otherwise the plaintiff may proceed against him by the wrong name: Clark v. Baker, 13 East, 273; Williams v. Bryant, 5 M. & W. 447. Two appearances for same defendant.

Where a party who appears in person subsequently appoints a solicitor, a notice of the appointment must be filed, and served on the opposite party: see Rule 390. The omission to do this is not fatal to the right to recover solicitor's costs, if the opposite party has had actual notice of the appointment: see Mason v. Grigg, 1909, 2 K. B. 341. Defendant appearing in person, subsequently, appointing solicitor.

An appearance entered without an address is not a nullity, and therefore judgment cannot be signed disregarding it. It must first be set aside as irregular: Gordon v. Roadley, 34 C. L. J. 135 (Brit. Col.). Address for service.

Where at an address for service given by a defendant in person, no one was found but a housekeeper who refused to receive documents, service of a summons for judgment under Rule 57 by putting it into a letter box was held not sufficient: Jiminey v. Owen, 28 Sol. Jour. 165.

Where several defendants represent one interest (e.g., trustee and cestui que trust, mortgagee and mortgagor, partners, etc.), they should appear by the same solicitor, and if they do not, will be allowed only one set of costs: Morgan & Wurtzburg, 124; see also Barrett v. Campbell, 7 P. R. 150; but where a trustee has really a separate interest, as where he claims that a co-trustee is liable, he may receive a separate set of costs: Webb v. Webb, 16 Sim. 55. Defendants in same interest.

An ordinary appearance usually operates as a waiver of any prior irregularity in the proceedings taken against the defendant: see Oulton v. Radcliff, L. R. 9 C. P. 189; Preston v. Lamont, 1 Ex. D. 362; Diamond v. Sutton, L. R. 1 Ex. 131; Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249; Re Merchants Bank v. VonAllen, 10 P. R., per Osler, J.A., at p. 35; Manitoba v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432; Dart v. Citizens Ins. Co., 11 P. R. 513. See, however, Benecke v. Frost, 1 Q. B. D. 421; Moore v. Gamgee, 38 W. R. 669; Western National Bank of N. Y. v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304; see also note, supra, pp. 348, 349. Waiver of irregularity by appearance.

An appearance by a foreign ambassador is not a waiver of the right to claim privilege from suit: Re Republic of Bolivia, 1914, 1 Ch. 139; 109 L. T. 741.

An appearance to the original writ stands as a good appearance to the writ though subsequently amended: Hanmer v. Clifton, 10 R. 55.

Appearance Gratis.—A defendant need not necessarily wait till he is served, before entering an appearance, and where he is prejudicially affected by the issue of the writ, he may appear gratis, so as Appearing gratis.

Rules 47, 48. to compel the plaintiff to proceed promptly: see McTaggart v. Toothe, etc., in notes to sec. 36 of the Act, supra, p. 201 (where a certificate of lis pendens had been issued). Where appearance is so entered notice should he given to the plaintiff's solicitor: Vigeon v. Northcote, 12 C. L. T. 101.

Where no address, or improper address given.

47. If the memorandum does not contain the address of the solicitor or the defendant (as the case may be) it shall not be filed; and if such address is illusory or fictitious, the appearance may be set aside. C.R. 170.

See Eng. (1883) R. 82.

Where a defendant givea an address for service at which he is not to be found, and there is no person authorized to take in or forwsrd documents, such address is illusory, and the appearance will he set aside: A. v. B., W. N. 1883, 174; W. N. 1884, 241; Edell v. Cave (prohably S. C.), 51 L. T. 621; 33 W. R. 208; E. v. C., 54 L. J. Chy. 308.

Conditional appearance.

48. Where a defendant desires to contend that an order for service out of Ontario conld not properly be made, a conditional appearance may be entered by leave. C.R. 173.

Effect of ordinary appearance.

An ordinary appearance is deemed a suhmission to the jurisdiction of the Court, and a waiver of the right to dispute the same: see Seors v. Mcyers and other cases infra, and notes to Rule 24, supra, p. 348. If the appearance is absolute, though the question of jurisdiction be raised hy the defence it will he of no avail: Grocers Wholesale Co. v. Bostock, 22 O. L. R. 130.

Where, therefore, a defendant wishes to contend that he is not properly subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, he should ohtain leave under this Rule to enter a conditional appearance: see Howland v. Insurance Co., 16 P. R. 514; Campou v. Rondall, 17 P. R. at p. 244; as an unconditional appearance will he deemed a waiver of the right to take the ohjection: Sears v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 381, 456; Western National Bonk v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, 313; hut an unconditional appearance, though a waiver of the right to ohject to the jurisdiction of the Court over the person of the defendant, would seem not to be a waiver of the defendant's right to object to the jurisdiction of the Court over the subject matter of the action: see Wilmott v. McForlone, 32 C. L. J. 129.

In Howlond v. Insurance Co., and Compau v. Randall, supra, the ohjection to the jurisdiction was allowed to he taken hy defence; hut the English practice requires the ohjection to he raised and disposed of in limine, and is in accordance with the former practice aa to pleas in ahatement; as to the English practice respecting conditional appearances: see The Yearly Practice, 1914, 104.

Object of conditional appearance.

But it has heen said: "A conditional appearance is not intended to be a provisional appearance as in Englsnd, hut a form of appearance to be used, where, for some reason, it is not convenient to determine the question whether the case can he brought within Rule 25, until the hearing of the action. Sometimes this question depends upon a finding of fact collateral to the issues in the action which cannot consequently be made without a trial upon oral evidence. The conditional appear- Rule 48.

ance is substituted for the practice which prevailed in the Common Law Courts of requiring the plaintiff to prove at the hearing the facts necessary to bring the case within the provisions of the law permitting service out of the jurisdiction, and, in default, to submit to a non-suit. Experience has shewn that it is only in rare cases that this, or any similar expedient, should be resorted to, it being generally desirable to determine the question of jurisdiction once and for all at the earliest possible stage of the action." Per Middleton, J., Wolsely v. Jackson, 6 O. W. N. 109.

Where it appears clearly that the defendant out of the jurisdiction When disallowed. has been properly made a defendant, leave to enter a conditional appearance will be refused: Bain v. University Estates, 6 O. W. N. 22.

The object of obtaining leave to enter a conditional appearance according to the English practice, appears to be to obtain time to move to set aside the writ. Where a defendant is served out of the jurisdiction, it will often happen that the time for entering an appearance will be up before the defendant is in a position to move to set aside the writ. If he enters an absolute appearance his right to except to the jurisdiction is waived, and if he enters no appearance he runs the risk of judgment being signed against him by default. To meet this difficulty he must either apply for leave to extend the time for appearance, or obtain leave to enter a conditional appearance. Having obtained leave to enter, and entered a conditional appearance, he must then, according to the English practice, move, within a reasonable time (usually ten days), to set aside the writ. If he does not move, or, having moved, fails, then his appearance becomes absolute and he is no longer able to object to the jurisdiction of the Court: see Keymer v. Reddy, 1912, 1 K. B. 215; 105 L. T. 841.

The Form of conditional appearance, No. 6, in these Rules, states: "The defendant by order of day of is permitted to appear without prejudice to his right to dispute the jurisdiction of the Court in this action (or as the case may be)." Whether he may dispute the jurisdiction by his defence, or, as in England, is limited to moving to set aside the writ, is not stated. If he may dispute the jurisdiction by his defence, then the preliminary question of jurisdiction cannot be disposed of till all the expense of a trial on the merits has been incurred. Where a defendant moved in Chambers to set aside the order allowing service out of the jurisdiction, and the writ and service thereof, on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction to make the order, and the motion was refused, leave to enter a conditional appearance was also refused on the ground that the question of jurisdiction had been decided: Standard Construction Co. v. Wallberg, 20 O. L. R. 646; Bain v. University Estates, supra; but see Auburn Nurseries v. McGredy, 5 O. W. N. 104, 165, where a conditional appearance was allowed, although the motion to set aside the order allowing service was refused; sed quære, in such circumstances whether the question of jurisdiction would not be res judicata, the defendant having raised the question and had it determined against him, and the order refusing to set aside the order and writ, etc., remaining unreversed, unless the order in appeal expressly protects a defendant from that contingency.

So far as the Rules and the form of a conditional appearance go, there is really nothing in them to indicate that the practice regarding conditional appearance should vary from the English practice.

Rule 49.

The power to allow a conditional appearance should be exercised only where it is doubtful whether the plaintiff has brought, or can bring himself, within Rule 25; where a case is shown to be within that Rule there is no reason for allowing a conditional appearance. A defendant served out of the jurisdiction and not moving to set aside the order allowing such service, was refused leave to enter a conditional appearance, and the Court on the application determined the question of jurisdiction: Standard Construction Co. v. Wallberg, 20 O. L. R. 646; but this is contrary to the English practice, under which the leave is granted in order to enable the defendant to move to set aside the order allowing service and the writ, etc.: see supra.

The object of a conditional appearance is to raise the question of the jurisdiction of the Court over the defendant, and it cannot be made use of for the purpose of objecting to the regularity of the proceedings: National Trust Co. v. Toronto Guarantee Co., 2 O. W. N. 222.

In Burson v. German Union Insurance Co., 10 O. L. R. 238, a conditional appearance was allowed, and it was ordered "that the plaintiff do prove at the trial of this action a cause of action upon which they are entitled to sue the defendants within the Province of Ontario to recover their claim in this action, and in default of their doing so, that their action be dismissed with costs," and the plaintiff having failed at the trial to prove such a case, his action was dismissed: and see Farmer's Bank of Canada v. Heath, 3 O. W. N. 692, where it seems to have been assumed that without a conditional appearance, or special order, the like result might be attained: sed quære.

When appearance may be entered.

49. A defendant may appear at any time before judgment. C.R. 175, amended.

See Eng. (1883) R. 92.

For the time limited for appearance: see note to Rule 45

Former C. R. 175 provided that where an appearance was entered after it was due, notice of it had to be served on the plaintiff.

A form of notice of appearance will be found in Form No. 7; H. & L. Forms, No. 106. Whether this notice is now essential seems doubtful. It may be that the form is intended only to apply to Rule 54.

An appearance entered or tendered while the plaintiff is signing judgment is in time: Horris v. Andrews, 3 U. C. L. J. 31; and the judgment is not complete until the stamps are affixed: Smith v. Logan, 17 P. R. 219. See also note to Rule 758.

If an appearance has been entered but the plaintiff nevertheless proceeds as if none had been entered, the proceedings are not null, but merely irregular, and the irregularity may be waived: see Misager v. Crisp, 9 Dowl. 353; Strange v. Freeman, 5 Dowl. 407; Mople v. Woodgate, 1 B. & C. 79; but under C. R. 175, where notice of an appearance, entered after the proper time was not given, judgment signed disregarding the appearance was upheld: Smith v. Dobbin, 3 Ex. D. 338; see also Hunter v. Wilcockson, 9 P. R. 305; and the knowledge of the fact that an appearance had been entered did not constitute such notice as C. R. 175 required: Hudson's Bay Co. v. Hamilton, 13 P. R. 461.

Ejectment.

In an action for recovery of land, an appearance by the original defendant, after the landlord had intervened and appeared, so as to join with the landlord in a statement of defence, was held regular: Goring v. Cameron, 10 P. R. 496. Rules 50, 51.

Although an appearance may, under this Rule, be entered at any time before judgment, yet the defendant may be precluded from putting in a defence after the proper time, by the plaintiff's noting the pleadings closed under Rule 121.

Limitation of defence to question of amount only.

50. A defendant appearing to a writ, indorsed to recover a money demand, may, in his appearance, state that he disputes only the amount claimed. The plaintiff may thereupon proceed to take an account of the amount due to him before the officer with whom the judgment is to be signed on four clear days' notice, and judgment may be signed for the amount found due, or the plaintiff may move for a judgment of reference. C.R. 176.

For Form: see No. 8; H. & L. Forms, No. 112.

Mortgage action.

Actions upon a mortgage are specially provided for by Rule 467. Upon the appearance, disputing the amount only, being filed, the record is complete. No statement of claim is necessary or proper. Express provision is by this Rule made for the proceedings which may thereupon be taken by the plaintiff to take the account and obtain judgment. Formerly a motion for judgment was necessary: see Peel v. White, 11 P. R. 177; Mahoney v. Hopkins, 14 P. R. 117.

A defendant cannot limit his appearance to part of the plaintiff's claim, and offer to submit to another part of it: Padget v. Padget, 38 C. L. J. 207; except in the case of an action to recover land, as to which: see Rule 55.

Statute of Limitations.

Statute of Limitations.—If the defendant wishes to set up the Statute of Limitations as a bar to the action, he should set it up by a defence. He can not avail himself of the Statute for that purpose by filing a notice under this Rule: see Cattanach v. Urquhart, 6 P. R. 28, explained, 1 Ont. App. 616, and notes to Rule 143.

As to how far the Statute may be taken advantage of in taking the account under this Rule: see Wright v. Morgan, 1 Ont. App. 613, and note to Rule 467.

Defendant may file appearance and acknowledge tenancy.

51.—(1) A defendant in an action for dower, may, with his appearance, file an acknowledgment that he is tenant of the freehold of the land named in the writ, together with his consent that the plaintiff may have judgment for her dower therein, and may take the proceedings authorized by The Dower Procedure Act to have the same assigned to her, unless the parties otherwise agree, and he shall forthwith serve the plaintiff or her solicitor with a copy of such acknowledgment and consent, and upon such consent the plaintiff may enter judgment of seisin, and may obtain a writ of assignment of dower, but shall not, without an order, be entitled to tax or recover the costs of the action or judgment against the defendant.

Rule 51.

Judgment of seisin and writ of assignment thereon.

(2) The entry of a judgment of seisin and the taking of proceedings for the assignment of her dower thereunder shall not prevent the plaintiff from proceeding with the action for the recovery of arrears of dower or damages.

Where defendant may issue writ.

(3) Where the defendant has filed and served such acknowledgment and consent, and the plaintiff does not within 3 months thereafter sue out and cause to be executed a writ of assignment of dower, the defendant may, by leave, sue out such writ; and the writ shall be, as nearly as may be, in the same form as a writ sued out by the plaintiff, and the like proceedings shall be had thereon. C. R. 177 and 178.

The former Dower Procedure Act is now combined with The Dower Act (R. S. O. c. 70).

Dower judgment for seisin.

Clause (2) was introduced in Con. Rules 1888, to meet the decisions of Linfoot v. Duncombe, 21 C. P. 484, and Cameron v. Gilchrist, 7 P. R. 184, which decided that judgment of seisin is conclusive, and when signed the defendant cannot be proceeded against for damages: see also Harvey v. Pearsall, 31 C. P. 239. Those cases are therefore no longer to be followed.

Damages when movable.

It was held in Ryan v. Fish, 4 Ont. 335, that a dowress may recover damages as well for mesne profits, as for detention, against all persons, and in all cases where they were recoverable before Aug. 10th, 1850. An action for dower is under The Jud. Act to be carried on the same as other actions for recovery of land; the right to damages would appear not to be affected by the change in the mode of procedure to obtain them: but see Giles v. Morrow, 1 Ont. 527. Costs are not given unless a demand for dower was made and refused before action: Losee v. Armstrong, 11 Gr. 517.

A widow is not entitled to damages for detention of dower till after demand: Ryan v. Fish, 4 Ont. 335; Malone v. Malone, 17 Ont. 101; nor to either arrears of dower, or damages for detention, unless her husband died seised: Losee v. Armstrong, 11 Gr. 517; Morgan v. Morgan, 15 Ont. 194; even though demand made, and refused: Ib.

As to whether damages are to be computed against the tenant of the freehold from the death of the husband, or the date of demand, quære: see Ryan v. Fish, supra.

The mere fact that at the death of, or alienation by, the husband, his lands were of no rentable value, is not alone sufficient to disentitle the widow to damages if the land has been subsequently made rentable by reason of improvements or otherwise, either by the heir or the vendee; in such case a portion of the rent is attributable to the land: Wallace v. Moore, 18 Gr. 560.

For forms of writs of assignment of dower: see Forms Nos. 122, 123; H. & L. Forms Nos. 1128, 1129.

Rules 52-54.

Landlord may be substituted as defendant.

52. In an action for dower the landlord or other person under whom a tenant in possession, who is not also tenant of the freehold, holds or entered into possession, may, without leave, appear and defend, by filing with his appearance an affidavit that he is tenant of the freehold, and is advised and believes that there is good ground for disputing the plaintiff's claim to dower. C.R. 179.

Appearance without leave by person not named as a defendant.

53. Any person not named as a defendant in a writ for the recovery of land, may, without leave, appear and defend, by filing with his appearance an affidavit stating that he is in possession either by himself or his tenant (as the case may be). C. R. 180.

This Rule in part corresponds with Eng. (1883) R. 95.

For form of affidavit: see H. & L. Forms No. 115.

It would seem that the power hereby conferred must be exercised before judgment is entered. If judgment is entered then an application to the Court to be let in to defend would appear to be necessary.

It may sometimes be a question whether a person can be said to be "in possession by himself or his tenant" within the meaning of this Rule: for example a mortgagee out of possession in an action against his mortgagor: McDermott v. Keeling, 7 U. C. L. J. 150; see also Morris v. Smythe, 2 U. C. L. J. 212. In such cases it may be necessary to apply for leave to defend.

Even where judgment had been signed against the defendant named in the writ, any other person claiming to be in possession independently of him, might under former C. R. 181 obtain leave to defend the action: see Minet v. Johnson, 63 L. T. 507. That Rule has not been included in the present Rules.

In ejectment by a landlord against his tenant, the sub-tenants of the lessee are not necessary parties; and under a judgment recovered against the plaintiff's lessee, the defendant's sub-tenants may be ejected: Synod of Toronto v. Fisken, 29 Ont. 738. See also Geen v. Herring, 1905, 1 K. B. 152.

The Court will not on the application for leave to defend consider nice questions as to the right of possession: see Croft v. Lumley, 4 E. & B. 614, and Thompson v. Tompkinson, 11 Ex. 442. In Longbourne v. Fisher, W. N. 1878, 28; 47 L. J. Ch. 379, an equitable tenant for life was given leave to defend an action of ejectment in the place of her trustees, using their names and indemnifying them: see also Leader v. Hayes, 54 L. T. 204.

Notice of appearance by person not named as a defendant in writ.

54. Any person entering an appearance under the two preceding rules, shall forthwith give notice thereof, and shall in all subsequent proceedings be named as a party defendant; if notice of appearance is not forthwith given the plaintiff may proceed as in case of non-appearance. C.R. 183.

Rules 55-56.

For form of notice of appearance: see Form No. 7; H. & L. Forms, No. 106.

The notice should of course be given to the plaintiff if he sues in person, otherwise to his solicitor.

Limited appearance in action for land.

55. Any person appearing to a writ for the recovery of land may limit his defence to a part only of the land, describing the part with reasonable certainty in his appearance, or in a notice to be served within four days after appearance. C. R. 184.

Compare Eng. (1883) Rs. 98 and 99.

For Form see No. 9; H. & L. Forms, No. 113.

This Rule has been held to be applicable in an action of dower: Cunningham v. Pearce, Mr. Dalton, 21st Sept., 1881; see also McCulloch v. McCulloch, 4 C. L. T. 252. Better particulars may be obtained where there is a want of "reasonable certainty": Watson v. Brewer, 4 P. R. 202.

The notice should be served upon the plaintiff if he sues in person, otherwise upon his solicitor.

An appearance without limitation therein, or by notice served within four days after appearance, will of course be an appearance to defend for the whole land.

This Rule does not enable a defendant, in actions other than for recovery of possession of land, to limit his appearance to part of the plaintiff's claim: Padget v. Padget, 38 C. L. J. 207.

Affidavit to be filed by defendant with appearance to specially indorsed writ.

56.—(1) Where the writ is specially indorsed the defendant shall with his appearance file an affidavit that he has a good defence upon the merits and shewing the nature of his defence, with the facts and circumstances which he deems entitle him to defend the action and shall forthwith serve a copy of such affidavit upon the plaintiff. The affidavit may be made by the defendant or by any one having knowledge of the facts.

Notice of trial.

(2) If the plaintiff so elects he may then treat the claim indorsed upon the writ, and the affidavit, as constituting the record, and may within five days serve notice of trial. In such case the defendant shall be entitled to 21 days' notice of trial.

Discovery.

(3) Either party may then have discovery and shall make production as in ordinary cases.

Appearance not to be received without affidavit.

(4) If the defendant fails to file an affidavit the appearance shall not be received and the plaintiff shall be entitled to sign judgment for default of appearance.

(5) A defendant may obtain leave to deliver a statement of defence setting up any further or other answer to the plaintiff's claim. New. Rule 55. Statement of defence.

(6) An affidavit shall not be necessary where an appearance is entered by the Official Guardian for an infant or lunatic. (See Rules of 24th December, 1913).

Where the defendant is a corporation an affidavit by one of its officers having knowledge of the facts would appear to be a sufficient compliance with the Rule: see Rule 294.

The deponent in the affidavit is liable to cross-examination thereon, and if the plaintiff can thereby establish by his admissions, that the alleged defence is not well founded, he may forthwith move for judgment under Rule 57.

If the plaintiff is unable to extract such admission from the deponent, then he may proceed to a speedy trial of the action as provided in this Rule.

The decisions under C. R. 603 in regard to the defendant's affidavit may be useful in the construction of this Rule. Under C. R. 603 the affidavit was, ordinarily, required to be made by the defendant himself, where he was a person who could make an affidavit: Muirhead v. Direct U. S. Cable Co., 27 W. R. 708; Shelford v. Louth, etc., Ry. Co., 4 Ex. D. 317; and if a corporation, the affidavit was required to be made by its proper officer disclosing the defence of the defendant corporation: Ib. The affidavit would not be insufficient merely because it contained only hearsay evidence: Harrison v. Boltenheim, 26 W. R. 362. Affidavit of defendant.

A simple affidavit of merits is not sufficient; the affidavit must disclose a good defence, i.e., shew its nature, and give some reason for thinking that it exists in fact: Collins v. Hickok, 11 Ont. App 620; Pascal v. Stone, 9th Sept., 1881 (Mr. Dalton); Bank of Toronto v. Keilly, 17 P. R. 250; see also Anon, 1 Chnr. Ch. Cn. 48; W. N. 1875, 249, 250. In the words of Lord Blackburn in Wallingford v. Mutual Soc., 5 App. Cns. 704: "It is not enough for defendant to swear 'I say I owe the man nothing.' Doubtless if it were true that you owed the man nothing, as you swear, that would be a good defence; but that is not enough. You must satisfy the Judge that there is reasonable ground for saying so. So again if you swear there was a fraud, that will not do. It is difficult to define it, but you must give such an extent of definite facts pointing to the fraud as to satisfy the Judge that there are facts which make it reasonable that you should be allowed to raise that defence. And in like manner as to illegality, and every other defence that might be mentioned." A mere statement that he has a good defence is not sufficient: per Quain, J., Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Cas 48; W. N. 1875, 249, 250. Merits must be disclosed.

In London & Canadian, etc. v. Morris, 11 C. L. T. 20, a defence alleging that an Act legalizing debentures, and relied on by the plaintiff, was obtained by fraud, was held to be no defence.

Where the action was on a foreign judgment, and the defendant set up that it was obtained by fraud, but the only fraud alleged was the perjury of a witness, and it was not shewn that the plaintiff was in any way party to that fraud, or knew that the evidence was false, leave to sign judgment was granted: Dohn v. Gillespie, 33 C. L. Fraud.

Rule 88.

J. 394; but see Robinson v. Fenner, 106 L. T. 722; Jacobs v. Beaver, 17 O. L. R. 496; Codd v. Delap, 92 L. T. 510.

Leave was granted to sign judgment against a firm on a specially indorsed writ, notwithstanding that one of the partners was shown to be an infant: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534; 69 L. T. 373; but in such a case the judgment should not be against the firm generally, but "against the firm other than the infant"; Lovell v. Beauchamp, 1894, A. C. 607.

A judgment obtained against a partner under this Rule cannot be pleaded in bar to the action by any other partner who obtains leave to defend: Wecll v. Jones, 68 L. T. 515; and see note to Rule 105 p. 498.

In an action against a limited company incorporated under R. S. O. (1897) c. 199, for goods sold and delivered, the company set up that their indebtedness when the goods were purchased exceeded the limit prescribed by ss. 11, 40 of that Act, and that the directors of the company were personally liable,—and a motion for judgment against the company under former C. R. 603 was dismissed: Canadian General Elec. Co. v. Togono Water Co., 6 O. L. R. 641.

On such a motion the only question to be determined is whether the Judge is satisfied that there is a good defence on the merits: per Jessel, M.R., Ex. p. Morshall, 5 Ch. D. 877.

What defendant must shew.

What must be shewn to entitle the defendant to defend has been variously expressed: see H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., pp. 756-7 et seq.

The various decisions are probably summarized in the judgments in the House of Lords in Jacobs v. Booth's Distillery, 1901, 50 W. R. 49; 85 L. T. 262, and Canadian Gen. Electric v. Togono Water & Light Co., 6 O. L. R. 641, in which it was held that the merits of the case are not to be tried (though they must of course to some extent appear and be discussed), and a defence is not to be shut out where on the disclosed facts a triable issue arises; and the plaintiff is to be awarded judgment only where it appears that, assuming all the facts set up by the defendant to be true, they nevertheless do not amount to a defence in law; see also Nisbet v. Hill, 5 O. W. R. 155; Wells v. Allcott, 1904, 2 K. B. 842; Castle v. Kouri, 18 O. L. R. 462; Rutherford v. Murray-Kay, 3 O. W. N. 29.

A question of law in dispute may perhaps be decided on the motion, but where it is a question of foreign law it was held to be impossible to decide this upon affidavits: Western Nat. Bank of N. Y. v. Percz, 6 T. L. R. 366.

When counter-claim sufficient.

The fact that there is a valid counter-claim is not necessarily sufficient, as the admission of a counter-claim is not of right but in the discretion of the Judge: Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, W. N. 1877, 263; 1878, 10; 38 L. T. 197; Fowler v. Lee, W. N. 1876, 86; Roberom v. Priest, 49 L. J. C. P. 104; Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 45; Bank of Ottawa v. Johnston, 9 C. L. T. 251.

Where a counter-claim is, however, proper, the defendant will generally be allowed to set it up: Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 85; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 45; Morin v. Colcock, 26 Oct., 1881 (Mr. Dalton in Chambers); and, if sufficiently connected with the same transaction as that which is the subject of the plaintiff's claim, the counter-claim may be sufficient to entitle the defendant to defend, even where set up as a defence to a liquidated claim, as on a bill of exchange: per Thesiger, L.J., in Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, 38 L. T. 197. So where the defendant has a valid set-off greater than the plaintiff's claim: Groom v. Rathbone, 41 L. T. 591; and see Bowyear v. Fawson, 6 Q. B. D. 540; Government Co. v. Dempsey, 50 L. J. Q. B. 199; or where a counter-claim is set up, execution may be stayed for so much of the plaintiff's claim as equals the amount of the counter-claim, subject to the defendant paying the amount into Court: Workman v. Lloyd Brazileiro Co., 1908, 1 K. B. 968; 99 L. T. 477. Rule 56.

In Shepherd v. Wilkinson, 6 T. L. R. 13, judgment was granted for an amount admitted to be due to plaintiff, but execution was stayed till after the trial of the counter-claim; similar orders have been made in Ontario. See also Rule 117.

A claim for indemnity against a third party will not suffice; Thorne v. Steel, W. N. 1878, 215; German Bank v. Schmidt, W. N. 1876, 10; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 53; nor a promise to give time without consideration: Woolston v. Baines, W. N. 1876, 74; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 21. Claim for indemnity not a defence.

Rule 57.

CHAPTER V.

MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON SPECIALLY INDORSED WRITS AND IN ACTIONS FOR ACCOUNT.

Motion for final judgment on specially indorsed writ.

57.—(1) Where the defendant appears to a writ specially indorsed and files the affidavit required by Rule 56, the plaintiff may cross-examine upon such affidavit and move for judgment, and if the Court is satisfied that the defendant has not a good defence to the action on the merits, or has not disclosed such facts as may be deemed sufficient to entitle him to defend the action, judgment may be given for the plaintiff.

(2) Such motion may be made in respect of a cause of action specially indorsed, though the writ may also be indorsed with any other claim.

(3) On any such motion any amendment of the writ which might be ordered on a substantive motion may be directed, and judgment may be awarded in accordance with the writ as amended. C.R. 603. Amended.

When Rule applies.

This Rule has changed the practice heretofore prevailing in regard to obtaining judgment on specially indorsed writs. Under former C. R. 603, on a motion for judgment on a specially indorsed writ, an affidavit of the plaintiff or of some one who could swear positively as to the debt, or cause of action, and stating that in his belief there was no defence, was required; but this no longer appears to be necessary, the onus is cast on the defendant of showing in the first place that he has a good defence to the action, and this he must do by affidavit filed with his appearance under Rule 56. Unless the plaintiff can by cross examination of the defendant establish that the alleged defence is non-existent, it would seem to be useless to move for summary judgment under this Rule.. The Court will not on such a motion try the case where the facts are in dispute, judgment can only be awarded under this Rule where the defendant's affidavit, or admissions in his cross-examination shew that he has no bonâ fide defence to the plaintiff's claim: see Lloyd's Banking Co. v. Ogle, 1 Ex. D. 262; Thompson v. Marshall, 28 W. R. 220; Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53; Jones v. Stone, 1894, A. C. 124; Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347; Stephenson v. Dallas, 13 P. R. 450; decisions under the former C. R. 603, or its English counterpart.

Formerly where the nature of the claim involved the taking of accounts between the parties, C. R. 603 was not applicable: Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 685; but see now Rule 61.

The right to direct a reference to take accounts is now expressly given by Rule 61, but even before that Rule, in the case of an action on a solicitor's hill, where it was clear that something was due to the plaintiff, the usual order for taxation was made, combined with a judgment under this Rule for payment of the amount which, as the result of the taxation should be payable: Smith v. Edwardes, 22 Q. B. D. 10. Rule 57.

An application under this Rule can only be made where the writ has been specially indorsed under Rule 33, i.e., where the claim is in respect of the causes of action therein specified, or any one or more of them: see Rule 33. Where, therefore, the claim was upon a covenant in a chattel mortgage given as a continuing security for future advances, and the writ was indorsed for the amount mentioned in the mortgage, and not for the various advances, and the Master in Chambers had directed judgment to be signed for a sum less than $2,500, which upon affidavits and the depositions of defendant, appeared to him to be due, it was held on appeal that the plaintiff's claim was not a debt, or liquidated demand: Barber v Russell, 9 P. R. 433, 442. Where writ specially indorsed under Rule 33.

Where equitable relief was claimed in addition to a liquidated demand, that was formerly a bar to a motion under former C. R. 603: see McCollum v. McCollum, 11 P. R. 16; Yeatman v. Snow, 42 L. T. 502, and, unless the claims are distinct and properly severable, it may still be a reason for refusing an application under this Rule in such cases.

The addition of any claim in the writ which was not capable of being specially indorsed under Rule 33 formerly vitiated the whole indorsement, even as regarded claims which were properly the subject of a "special indorsement," and prevented any summary motion for judgment under C. R. 603, even in respect of the demand which might, if it had stood alone, have been specially indorsed: Wilks v. Wood, 1892, 1 Q. B. 684; Sheba Gold Mining Co. v. Trubshawe, and Ryley v. Master, 1892, 1 Q. B. 674; Cosselman v. Borrie, 14 P. R. 507; Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78, 264; Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 16 P. R. 175; Clarkson v. Dwan, 17 P. R. 206. But all of these cases are in effect superseded by the changes made in the framing of the present Rules: see Rule 57 (2). Additional claims.

A writ may now be "specially indorsed" for claims coming within Rule 33, and other claims may also be added in the indorsement, and judgment may now be obtained as to the claims specially indorsed under Rule 33, and the action may be proceeded with thereafter as to any other claims.

Under the present Rule the motion is to be one for judgment, and where the judgment is granted it will be drawn up and issued in Chambers and will have then to be entered in the proper office as in the case of other judgments: see Rule 207 (8).

Plaintiff could apply for judgment under C. R. 603 where the defendant was a corporation: see Shelford v. Louth & H. C. Ry. Co., 4 Ex. D. 317, and the like motion can no doubt be made under this Rule.

A judgment may be obtained against one or more of several partners, or other joint debtors, without preventing the plaintiff from proceeding in the same action to judgment in the ordinary way against the other defendants: Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Taggart, 26 Ont. App. 295; see also infra, p. 501. Joint debtors.

Rule 57.

As to a claim for recovery of land with other claims: see Spears v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 127.

For instances of indorsements sufficient and insufficient under Rule 33: see notes to that Rule.

Mortgage actions.

In actions where the writ was indorsed for foreclosure, and immediate payment of the amount due under a covenant in a mortgage, former C R. 603 did not apply: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Bricker, 1 C. L. T. 729; Hill v. Sidebottom, 47 L. T. 224; Imbert-Terry v. Carver, 34 Ch. D. 506; Clarke v. Berger, 36 W. R. 809; and it did not apply to a claim for immediate possession under Rule 460: Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 80. But Rule 33 includes claims for foreclosure or sale among those which may be specially indorsed: Rule 33 (1) h.

Where plaintiff was entitled to costs payable by defendant, between solicitor and client, he was held not entitled to the costs of a motion made under C. R. 603 and refused, because the indorsement on the writ was not a good special indorsement: Baldwin v. Quinn, 16 P. R. 248.

Indorsement must be complete.

In order to entitle a plaintiff to judgment under this Rule the indorsement on the writ must be complete in itself, and shew a cause of action, which is properly the subject of a special indorsement under Rule 33. A defect in the indorsement cannot be supplemented by the affidavits on the motion: Davidson v. Gurd, 15 P. R. 31; Fruhauf v. Grosvenor, 67 L. T. 350; Munro v. Pike, 15 P. R. 164; unless an amendment can be made under clause (3) of this Rule: see, however, Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366.

But, in an action to recover land, where the writ was indorsed to recover £80 for meane profits, explanation was allowed to be given by the affidavit that the £80 was claimed as double value for 6 months in consequence of a refusal to deliver up possession, and an order was made for judgment: Southport Tramways v. Gandy, 45 W. R. 684.

Formal defect.

A formal error in the indorsement of the writ, such as the misplacing of a date, is no answer to an application under this Rule: Anon., W. N. 1876, 53; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 20. Neither is a mistake in the teste in the copy of the writ served: Wesson v. Stalker, 47 L. T. 444, where the year was given in the copy as "eighty" instead of "eighty-two": see also Re Johnson, 25 Ch. D. 112.

Married woman.

In Ontario, since 47 V. c. 19 (now R. S. O. c. 149), it has been held that the Rule may be applied, and judgment entered in a plain case against a married woman, with execution against her separate estate not subject to a restraint on anticipation: Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; Kinnear v. Blue, 10 P. R. 465; Quebec Bank v. Radford, 10 P. R. 619; Comeron v. Rutherford, 10 P. R. 620; see contra, Comeron v. Heighs, 14 P. R. 56; and the later English cases seem to have established the same right in England: see Bursill v. Tanner, 13 Q. B. D. 691, and other cases referred to in the notes to Rule 99, p. 486.

In an action against a married woman on a contract made prior to 13th April, 1897 (see R. S. O. c. 149, s. 4), the plaintiff must allege that the married woman was capable of contracting by alleging the possession of separate estate at the date of the contract: see Holmested's Married Women's Property Act, p. 32 et seq., and Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Woodstock, 13 P. R. 242. Where this did not appear by the writ, but was shewn by the affidavits on the motion, an amendment of the writ was allowed: Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; and see Sweetland v. Neville, 21 Ont. 412.

In actions founded on contracts made by a married woman since 13th April, 1897, it is no longer necessary to allege or prove the possession of separate estate at the date of the contract: see The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149) s. 4. Rule 57.

For the form of judgment against a married woman: see Form No. 110; H. & L. Forms Nos. 923, 924.

A judgment against a married woman founded on contract must follow the prescribed form, whether it be entered against her by default: Oxley v. Link, 110 L. T. 248; or by consent: Hamilton v. Perry, 24 O. L. R. 38, otherwise it will be null and void and incapable of amendment.

An Indian may sue, and be sued, and judgment may be obtained against an Indian (R. S. O. c. 149), though by The Indian Act (R. S. C. c. 81), s. 102, the judgment will not bind any property of the Indian except that described in sec. 100: Bryce, etc., Salt, 11 P. R. 112. Indians.

As to actions to recover land, to which the present Rule has now been made applicable: see notes to Rule 33, supra, p. 369, et seq. Actions to recover land.

Judgment cannot be given under this Rule in an action for possession of land where the right to possession is disputed for some bond fide reason: see Jones v. Stone, 1894, A. C. 124; 70 L. T. 174.

In an action for the recovery of land where other questions are raised by counter-claim, judgment for the recovery of the land should not be granted, where the Judge at the trial might be thereby hampered in dealing with the other questions: Spears v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 127.

Where the action is for recovery of land and mesne profits, and the plaintiff obtains judgment under this Rule, the mesne profits may be ordered to be calculated up to the date of the plaintiff's obtaining possession, so as to avoid the necessity of bringing another action: Southport Tramways Co. v. Gandy, 1897, 2 Q. B. 66. Mesne profits.

The effect of the Rules is to abolish the non-finality which a judgment in ejectment formerly had. A former judgment in ejectment on the same question will now sustain a defence of res judicata: Ball v. Cathcart, 16 Ont. 525; Cochrane v. Hamilton Prov. L. S., 15 Ont. 128. Finality of judgment.

Where the plaintiff is liable to give security for costs, and an order for that purpose has been obtained, but the plaintiff has a case for setting it aside, it was held under the former C. RR. that he might move nunc pro tunc, and upon the same materials, to vacate the order for security, and to sign judgment: Anglo-American Casings Co. v. Rowlin, 10 P. R. 391. This course cannot be taken now; but it is open to a plaintiff, under Rule 383 (2), to pay $50 into Court as a partial compliance with the order for security, and proceed with the motion for judgment: Payne v. Newberry, 13 P. R. 354. Security for costs.

The Master in Chambers, and the Local Judges and Masters, under Rules 207 (8), 208, 209, have jurisdiction to entertain applications under the present Rule. Jurisdiction.

Time for Moving.—No time is limited within which an application may be made, and it has therefore been held to be regular after statement of claim delivered: Hope v. Neill, 12th Sept., 1881 (Mr. Dalton); and see Hanmer v. Flight, 36 L. T. 279. It is held in Ireland Time for moving.

Rule 57.

under a similiar Rule that, after issue joined on a statement of defence, a plaintiff cannot resort to this summary procedure, as he has adopted the defendant's mode of procedure: Hackett v. Lalor, 12 L. R. Ir. 45; also that where the plaintiff, after appearance, takes any deliberate step to have the action tried by a jury by serving a statement of claim, he cannot move under this Rule: Stewartstown Loan Co. v. Daly, 12 L. R. Ir. 418, and an unexplained delay from 5th July to 20th November was held to be a bar to the motion: German American Bank v. Kingston Sugar Co., 20 O. L. R. 555.

In Ontario the rule is that motions after a statement of claim is delivered, are not to be encouraged, though in cases of necessity, allownble: Woodruff v. McLennon, 11 P. R. 22; but see McLardy v. Slateum, 24 Q. B. D. 504.

If the time for delivering a defence is running pending the motion, the Judge or Minster will by his order give further time if necessary: Hobson v. Monk, W. N. 1884, 8.

Second motion after dismissal of previous one.

Under the practice in Ireland where a motion was refused, because no affidavit was filed at the time of service of the summons, the Court refused to entertain a renewal of the motion: Trench v. Mulcahy, 8 L. R. Ir. 146; but in England the dismissal of the motion on the ground of a technical defect in the writ, has been held to be no bar to a fresh application on fresh materials after the defect has been cured: Wagstoff v. Jacobowitz, W. N. 1884, 17; Dombey & Son v. Playfair, 1897, 1 Q. B. 368; 75 L. T. 676; and the doctrine of res judicata has no application to such renewal of the motion: Ib. A dismissal for not complying with the provisions of Rule 383 (2), is no bar to a subsequent motion when the provisions of that Rule have been complied with: Payne v. Newberry, 13 P. R. 392.

Although under former C. R. 603 an affidavit proving the plaintiff's claim was essential, under the present Rule it is no longer so, the intention of the Rule appparently being that the motion must be based on the defendant's admissions, and if sufficient admissions cannot be got from the defendant, then that the plaintiff may adopt the alternative of a speedy trial as provided by Rule 56 (2).

If a motion is made under this Rule without such admission having been obtained the plaintiff may be ordered to pay the costs of the motion if it fails.

Affidavit in answer.

Under C. R. 603 the Judge might, in his discretion, allow the plaintiff to file affidavits in answer to the defendant's affidavit: Davis v. Spence, 1 C. P. D. 719; but this case was disapproved of in North Central Waggon Co. v. The N. Wales Waggon Co., 39 L. T. 628, but was followed in Girvin v. Grepe, 13 Ch. D. 174. The filing of an affidavit in answer under C. R. 603 was, however, not a matter of right: see Rotheram v. Priest, 49 L. J. C. P. 104; W. N. 1879, 190, and semble, under the present Rule, no affidavits in contradiction of defendant's affidavit and examination ought to be permitted.

Where the plaintiff files an affidavit the defendant is, ex debito justitia, entitled to cross-examine the deponent: Kingsley v. Dunn, 13 P. R. 300.

Opposition to the motion.

The application may be adjourned, if necessary, for better particulars of the plaintiff's claim: Aston v. Hurwitz., W. N. 1879, 194.

That defendant was served in New York, and had not time to instruct his solicitors, was considered sufficient reason for refusing an order: Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 213; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 18, and under the present Rule it would probably be considered a sufficient ground for extending the time for filing the affidavit required by Rule 56. Rule 57.

The orders which may be made upon the application are:—

(1) Final Judgment.—This order ought not to be made save where the case is free from doubt: Ray v. Barker, 48 L. J. Ex. 569; 4 Ex. D. 279; Thompson v. Marshall, 28 W. R. 220; Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347; Stephenson v. Dallas, 13 P. R. 450; Jones v. Stone, 1894, A. C. 124; Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53. It will be made if defendant's affidavit states that there is a good defence, without stating what it is: Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 704; though an opportunity of filing a better affidavit may be given: Pascal v. Stone, p. 397, supra; or if no fairly arguable defence be shewn: Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, 38 L. T. 197; Thorne v. Steel, W. N. 1878, 215; Anon., W. N. 1876, 23; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 18; East Assam, etc., v. Roche, W. N. 1875, 238; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 46; Bank of Toronto v. Keilty, 17 P. R. 250; Jacobs v. Booth's Distillery, 50 W. R. 49; 85 L. T. 262; Jones v. Mason, 18 P. R. 442; Imp. Bank v. Tuckett, 6 O. W. R. 121, 161. Judgment was ordered to be signed where the only defence was that the defendant had commenced proceedings in bankruptcy: Anon., W. N. 1875, 220; W. N. 1876, 23; Clifford v. Budds, W. N. 1884, 40. So where in an action against two defendants, one admitted the debt and let judgment go by default, and the other only deposed that he was willing to pay his share, and that his co-defendant was acting in collusion with the plaintiff: East Assam Company v. Roche, W. N. 1875, 238. Final judgment.

Execution was stayed to enable defendant to appeal, in Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, 38 L. T. 197. An order directing payment by a day named, otherwise judgment to be signed, need not be served before signing judgment on default of payment: Hopton v. Robertson, 23 Q. B. D. 126; W. N. 1884, 77; 28 Sol. Jour. 375; and see Cranston v. Blair, 15 P. R. 167. Stay of execution.

Where the action was on an untaxed bill of costs delivered within a year, the order made was for taxation and judgment for the amount certified: Larkin & Co. v. McInerney, 16 L. R. Ir. 246; see also Smith v. Edwardes, 22 Q. B. D. 10.

Under Eng. Rules 115, 116, judgment was ordered to be signed where it was stated that the defendant was at sea on his way to join his regiment, and that he had been served with the writ the day before leaving England: Anon., W. N. 1875, 260; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 49.

Where a judgment is granted under this Rule a delay for a year in signing it would be no waiver: Deighton v. Cockle, 1912, 1 K. B. 206.

(2) Leave to Defend Unconditionally: This will be the order where the affidavit shews what the defence is, and the Court is of opinion that a triable issue arises: Jacobs v. Booth Distillery, 50 W. R. 49; 85 L. T. 262; Canadian Gen. Electric v. Tagona, etc., 6 O. L. R. 641; Runnacles v. Mesquita, 1 Q. B. D. 416; Castle v. Kouri, 18 O. L. R. 462. Where the defendant was a surety, and had not acknowledged his indebtedness, and there was nothing to shew that the defence was merely for delay, he was held entitled to put the plaintiff to proof of his claim, and was admitted to defend: Lloyd's Banking Co. v. Ogle, 1 Ex. D. 263. Leave to defend unconditionally.

Rule 57.

Set-off

So also where a set-off was shewn exceeding the plaintiff's claim: Groom v. Rathbone, 41 L. T. 391; Commee v. Can. Pac. Ry., No. 2, 11 P. R. 222, but see Branch's Case, 40 L. T. 652: so also, where the action was on a covenant for payment in a mortgage, and defendant swore that the mortgage was signed on the express understanding that he was not to be personally liable, and there were circumstances to corroborate this statement: Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53. Where in an action on a promissory note the defendant swears to facts affecting the note with fraud, he is entitled to defend unconditionally, as the onus of proof is on the plaintiff that he is a bonâ fide holder for value: Fuller v. Alexander, 47 L. T. 443; 52 L. J. Q. B. 103; Millard v. Baddeley, W. N. 1884, 96; 28 Sol. Jour. 412, 427; 76 L. T. Jour. 408; Farmer v. Ellis, 2 O. L. R. 544. In the case, however, of a note not alleged to have been obtained by fraud, but only to have been made for the accommodation of another, the presumption of value is not removed, and the onus is on the defendant; leave to defend in such a case was refused, except on the terms of paying money into Court: Merchants Nat. Bank v. Ontario Coal Co., 16 P. R. 87.

Non-performance of condition.

Where the action was on a note, and defendants swore that it was given on conditions which had not been fulfilled by the payees, and the defendants also swore that they were informed and believed (without indicating the source of information), that the plaintiffs (who were indorsees) were suing for the benefit of the payees, and were not holders for value, or took the note after maturity, and the plaintiffs denied that they had any notice of any condition, it was held that no valid defence was shewn: Jones v. Mason, 18 P. R. 442, distinguishing Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53, and following Bank of Toronto v. Keilty, 17 P. R. 250.

Want of consideration.

A defendant setting up that the note sued on was made without consideration, and that the plaintiff was suing on behalf of the payee who had notice, was allowed to defend unconditionally: Farmers' Bank v. Sargent, 17 P. R. 67; also where the defendant set up that the note sued on was void under The Bills of Exchange Act (R. S. C. c. 119) s. 16, because, to the knowledge of the plaintiff, it was given for a patent right, which fact did not appear on its face as the Act requires: Davey v. Sadler, 1 O. L. R. 626.

Want of notice of dishonour.

Indorsers who denied receipt of notice of dishonour, although the protest was produced, were held entitled to have the matter tried: Ontario Bank v. Burke, 10 P. R. 561; see also Hughson v. Gordon, 10 P. R. 565.

Defence must be bona fide.

Leave to defend unconditionally will be granted where a bonâ fide defence is set up, (even though novel in its character: Jones v. Stone, 1894, A. C. 124), wherever there is a bonâ fide contest on a question which is a fair subject for litigation: Wilkes v. Kennedy, 16 P. R. 204; Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53; Dueber v. Taggart, Ch. D. Ont. 23 Dec., 1895; Clark v. Lee, 5 O. W. R. 631; Hill v. Edey, Ib., 690, 719; McGeachin v. Compbell, 6 O. W. R. 94; Imp. Bank v. Tuckett, 6 O. W. R. 161; Codd v. Delap, 92 L. T. 510; Can. Pac. Ry. v. Matthews, 5 O. W. N. 437.

See also where the only defence set up is to the jurisdiction of the Court under Rule 25, (h), having regard to the special nature of that jurisdiction: Campau v. Randall, 17 P. R. 243.

In an action on a covenant in a mortgage where there is a bonâ fide dispute as to the amount due, leave to defend will be given:

Lynde v. Waithman, 1895, 2 Q. B. 180; but quære, in such a case in Ontario whether a reference might not be directed under Rule 61. Rule 57.

Where a plaintiff, pending an action on a covenant in a mortgage, without the leave of the Court, gives notice of sale under a power of sale contained in the mortgage, that, ipso facto, operates as an extension of the time of payment, and the plaintiff cannot without the defendant's consent, withdraw the notice or move for judgment under this Rule until the time for payment under the notice has expired: Lyon v. Ryerson, 17 P. R. 516. Stay of action by reason of collateral proceedings.

In Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 176; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 52, on an appeal from a Master who had ordered money into Court, a fresh affidavit not used before the Master being read, leave to defend unconditionally was given. Further evidence on appeal.

Where an order is made directing a trial of the action without a jury, and such order is not appealed from, the defendant is thereafter precluded from applying for a trial by jury: Kelsey v. Dame, 1912, 2 K. B. 482. Order for trial without a jury.

(3) Leave to Defend on Payment of Money into Court within a Reasonable Time, or on Other Terms.—Where on an application for judgment under former C. R. 603, it was not clear that there was a defence, but the defendant shewed such a state of facts as led to the inference that at the trial he might be able to establish a good defence, leave was given to defend on payment of the amount claimed into Court: Ray v. Barker, 4 Ex. D. 279; sed vide, Leslie v. Poulton, 15 P. R. 332; Merchants Notional Bank v. Ontario Cool Co., 16 P. R. 87 (where the defence urged was not founded on any known facts, but was merely a suggestion of what might be disclosed if the case went to trial); see also Dunnet v. Harris, 14 P. R. 437, where the defence set up was negatived by the plaintiff's affidavits. On terms.

In Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 85; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 45, Quain, J., gave leave to defend where a proper counter-claim was the defence, but confined the defence to the counter-claim; but see Shepherd v. Wilkinson, 6 T. L. R. 13. Counter-claim.

Where the defendant shews what his defence is, and his reasons for thinking it substantial, and it appears to be fairly in dispute, he ought not to be ordered to bring money into Court: Runnacles v. Mesquito, 1 Q. B. D. 416; Dobie v. Lemon, 12 P. R. 64; even though the plaintiff's case appears to be supported by documents: Word v. Plumbley, 6 T. L. R. 198; Bowes v. Caustic Soda, etc.; Ford v. Harvey, 9 T. L. R. 328; and it would seem from the later cases that, as a general rule, whenever the Court is of opinion that the defendant should be allowed to defend at all, no terms should be imposed: Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53; Ducber v. Taggart, Ch. D. Ont. 23 Dec., 1895. Payment into Court not ordered if defence substantial.

Where in a claim for payment of sums of money, the defence set up is a denial and contradiction of the accounts on which the claim is founded, it is erroneous to make an order under this Rule refusing leave to defend, except upon the condition of the defendant paying into Court a definite sum within a certain time, and that, unless he does so, judgment shall be signed against him. This is especially the case where the plaintiffs are mortgagees, and have been in possession as mortgagees: Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 685.

In Roberts v. Guest, W. N. 1876, 10; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 53, judgment was ordered to be signed, unless the defendant paid the money into

Rule 57.

Court, where the defence was a counter-claim for costs in a suit in Chancery, in which an order for costs had not been obtained. See also Germon Bank v. Schmidt, W. N. 1876, 10, and as to the amount to be paid: Oriental Bank v. Fitzgerald, W. N. 1880, 119.

Fraud.

Where the defence to an action by the holder of a bill of exchange was sworn to be that the acceptance was obtained by fraud, to which the plaintiff replied that he took the bill for value without notice of any fraud, it was held reasonable to give defendant leave to defend upon payment into Court of the amount of the bill: Brooks v. Aylmer, 73 L. T. Jour. 80.

Action for calls.

In an action by a company on a call, a clerk of the company swore that notice of allotment was duly posted to the defendant, but though the defendant swore that the letter was never received, it was held that this constituted no defence: see Household Fire Insurance Company v. Grant, 4 Ex. D. 216; but it was held that the defendant was entitled to cross-examine the clerk who swore to the posting, and leave was therefore given to defend on payment into Court: Carta Para Gold Mining Company v. Fastnedge, 30 W. R. 80.

Married woman.

Where a primâ facie case was made out on notes signed by a married woman in the course of a business carried on by her, and the Judge not being satisfied that there was ground for a defence that the business was her husband's, and that she only acted as his agent, and the defendant declining to pay money into Court, leave to sign judgment was granted: Nelson v. Thorner, 11 Ont. App. 616.

Right to defend.

Under C. R. 603, a defendant was not entitled as of right to defend upon paying money into Court, without an affidavit of merits: Crump v. Cavendish, 5 Ex. D. 211.

Money paid in, abides result.

The money paid in, is paid in as security to abide the event, and therefore where the plaintiff succeeds he is entitled to have the money paid out to him: Bird v. Barstow, 1892, 1 Q. B. 94; and his right is not affected by the subsequent insolvency of the defendant: Re Ford, 1900, 2 Q. B. 211; and a defendant who has paid money into Court has been held entitled to have it paid out to him if successful in the action, notwithstanding that a notice of appeal has been given: Yorkshire Banking Co. v. Beatson, 4 C. P. D. 213; but see notes to Rule 496.

Judgment for part.

(4) Judgment for Part, and Leave to Defend as to the Residue Unconditionally.—Where the defendant's affidavit or examination admits part of the claim to be due, and discloses a defence upon the merits as to the residue, there is no power to grant leave to defend as to part of the claim only, on condition of payment of the amount as to which there is no defence. The plaintiff is entitled to have judgment for the amount admitted; the defendant being at liberty to defend as to the residue: Dennis v. Seymour, 4 Ex. D. 80, and see Rule 58.

Defence to part only.

Where a good defence is not shewn to the whole of the plaintiff's claim, judgment may be obtained under this Rule for so much of the claim as is not answered: see Rule 58; Anon., W. N. 1876, 53; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 22; Hanmer v. Flight, 35 L. T. 127; W. N. 1876, 54; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 23. On appeal, however, in the last case, 36 L. T. 279, it was considered that the facts set out in the pleadings did not support the claim in respect of which the plaintiff sought to sign judgment, and the order was therefore refused. See also Dennis v. Seymour, 1 Ex. D. 80.

Rule 58.

Defence allowed on giving security—appeal.

It has been held in England that where leave is given to defend upon giving security to the satisfaction of a Master in Chambers, there is no appeal from the decision of the Master in regard to the sufficiency of the security tendered: Hoare & Co. v. Morshead, 1903, 2 K. B. 359; 89 L. T. 225; but in Ontario probably the Master's decision is not necessarily final merely because the subject of it, or some matter decided forming part of it, is more or less in his discretion.

Effect of dismissal of motion.

(5) Dismissal of the Motion.—The simple dismissal of the plaintiff's motion will be equivalent to leave to defend: Margate Pier, etc., Co. v. Perry, W. N. 1876, 52; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 19; and where the motion is dismissed the plaintiff must proceed with the action either under Rule 56 or in the usual way, the indorsement being a statement of claim under Rule 111. Where the motion is dismissed it may be well to provide that it is without prejudice to the further prosecution of the action.

Amendment of indorsement of writ.

Amendment of Indorsement.—Formerly where at the time of the motion the indorsement on the writ was defective, the motion was refused, and the defect could not be cured by amendment pending the motion: Gurney v. Small, 1891, 2 Q. B. 584; 65 L. T. 754; but after the amendment of the indorsement a new motion for judgment might be made: Paxton v. Baird, 1893, 1 Q. B. 139; 67 L. T. 623; Satchwell v. Clark, 66 L. T. 641; Clarkson v. Dixon, 17 P. R. 92, 206; but see Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366, and Casselman v. Barrie, 14 P. R. 507; Roberts v. Plant, 1895, 1 Q. B. 597.

Under Rule 57 (3) a substantive motion to amend is not necessary, but, in a proper case, an amendment may be granted on the motion for judgment; but it is to be presumed that an amendment under that clause will not be granted, if a defendant will be unfairly prejudiced thereby.

Where a motion under Rule 57 is dismissed, there is no jurisdiction to treat the application as a motion for judgment under Rule 222: Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 264.

Forms of judgment, orders, etc.

For form of judgment: see Form No. 106; H. & L. Forms, No. 424.

For forms of orders under this Rule: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 421, 422, 423.

Appeal.

An appeal lies to a Judge in Chambers, and from him to a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division, from an order granted by a judicial officer or local Judge under Rule 57, notwithstanding that it is interlocutory: see Jud Act, sec. 25, and Bank of Toronto v. Kelly, 17 P. R. 250; but where leave to defend has been given, an appeal against the discretion thus exercised will hardly ever be entertained: Papayanni v. Coutpas, W. N. 1880, 109.

Where the costs of a motion under this Rule are disposed of by an order made on the motion, the mode of disposing of them is not reviewable by the Judge at the trial: Koosen v. Rose, 76 L. T. 145; 45 W. R. 337.

Defence as to part.

58. Where the defence disclosed applies only to a part of the plaintiff's claim, or any part of his claim is admitted to be due, the plaintiff shall have judgment forthwith for such part of his claim as the defence does not apply to, or as is admitted to be due, subject to such terms, if any, as to suspending execution, or payment into Court as may seem just, and the defendant may be allowed to defend as to the residue of the plaintiff's claim, or a reference may be directed under Rule 61. C.R. 604.

Rules 59, 61.

See the Eng. (1883) R. 118. The Rule was applied in Hanmer v Flight, 24 W. R. 346; 36 L. T. 279.

See notes to Rule 57. The jurisdiction conferred by this Rule may be exercised in Chambers: Rule 207 (8).

Judgment not to prejudice proceeding against other defendants.

59. Judgment may be awarded and execution issued against any defendant without prejudice to the plaintiff's right to proceed against any other defendant. C.R. 605.

Cf. Eng. R. (1883) 119, which, though not in the same words, is to the same effect. Jurisdiction may be exercised under this Rule in Chambers: Rule 207 (8).

This Rule does not apply where the right of action can only be in the alternative against one or other of two defendants. In such case judgment signed against one defendant is conclusive evidence of election not to proceed against the other: Morel, etc., v. Westmoreland, 1904, A. C. 11, 14; French v. Howie, 1905, 2 K. B. 580; 1906, 2 K. B. 674; 95 L. T. 274.

See notes to Rule 57.

Where one of two partners submits to judgment, and the other obtains leave to defend, the latter cannot set up the judgment so recovered against his partner as a bar to the recovery of judgment against himself: Weall v. James, 68 L. T. 54, 515; see also Dueber Watch Case Manufg. Co. v. Taggart, 26 Ont. App. 295. Semble, if the judgment is obtained by consent: McLeod v. Power, 79 L. T. 67; see notes to Rule 106.

Leave to defend may be absolute or conditional.

60. On any such motion, an order may be made, giving the defendant leave to defend either unconditionally, or subject to such terms as may seem just, or for a speedy trial of the action upon such terms as may be deemed proper. C.R. 606. Amended.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 120.

See notes to Rule 57.

Reference when may be ordered.

61. On any such motion, if it appears that the defence disclosed is substantially only as to the amount recoverable, the Court may direct a reference, and either pronounce judgment to take effect on the confirmation of the report, or reserve further directions and questions of costs for consideration after the report is made. C.R. 607. Rule 62.

There is no corresponding English Rule.

62. Where a writ is specially indorsed and some special reason for urgency is shewn the plaintiff may, at any time, by leave, serve notice of motion for judgment. Such leave may be given ex parte and subject to such directions, as to the service of the notice of motion and filing and service of the affidavits and otherwise, as may seem just. C.R. 608. Amended. Motion for judgment by leave after service of writ.

There is no corresponding English Rule. The Rule applies only where the writ is specially indorsed. Former Rule 608 was not so limited.

The Master, or a Judge in Chambers, may grant leave under this clause to make the motion Rule 207 (8), 208, but the motion itself must be made in Court: Morrison v. Taylor, 46 U. C. Q. B. 492. The report of Lucas v. Fraser, 9 P. R. 319, is erroneous; the motion was before Osler, J., in Court. Jurisdiction.

Where an order was erroneously made in Chambers instead of in Court, it was held that advantage of the irregularity must be taken by a summary motion to set aside the judgment, and that its invalidity could not be set up in an action founded upon it: Martin v. Evans, 6 Ont. 238; in this case the Judge of a County Court pronounced the judgment in question in a County Court action, and the judicial personality was the same in Court as in Chambers.

In Federal Bank v. Hope, 6 Ont. 209, the Court refused to decide on a motion under this Rule whether a defence set up was a valid one, as not being clearly bad.

An execution issued upon a judgment obtained under this Rule is, of course, subject to the provisions of The Creditors' Relief Act.

The plaintiff must make out as clear a case for judgment as on a motion under Rule 57; Leslie v. Poulton, 15 P. R. 332; Copeland Brewing Co. v. Brooks, 35 C. L. J. 419; and in addition special circumstances necessitating a hearing out of the ordinary course must be shewn: Francis v. Francis, 9 P. R. 209; Leslie v. Poulton, supra; e.g., that some injury or injustice is likely to happen to him if he is not awarded immediate relief: Greene v. Wright, 12 P. R. 426. Something beyond the plaintiff's desire to get a speedy judgment is necessary: Kinloch v. Morton, 9 P. R. 38; Lucas v. Fraser, 9 P. R. 319; Leslie v. Poulton, supra.

Judgment will not be granted where a substantial defence is indicated in the affidavits for the defendant: Molson's Bank v. Cooper, 16 P. R. 195.

Where the affidavits filed for and against the motion were conflicting, the action was ordered to be entered for trial: Francis v. Francis, 9 P. R. 209; Greene v. Wright, 12 P. R. 426; and even though the Court is unable to say that a clear legal defence is shewn, yet if, on the facts presented, it is of opinion that there is a question to be tried, the motion will not be granted: Leslie v. Poulton, Conflicting affidavits.

Rule 63.

supra. The fact that the sheriff had sold the goods of the defendant in another action, and that the plaintiff desired to obtain a share in the distribution of the proceeds under The Creditors' Relief Act, was held not to be of itself a sufficient reason for granting judgment under this Rule: Molsons Bank v. Cooper, 16 P. R. 195. In Lake of the Woods Milling Co. v. Apps, 17 P. R. 96, the motion was refused though unopposed, and the defendant was sworn to have fraudulently assigned his property: sed vide Kinloch v. Morton, supra, p. 411.

Action for account.

63. In default of appearance when the plaintiff's claim is for an account, the plaintiff may apply for a judgment for the taking of the account claimed, with all directions usual in similar cases. C.R. 645.

See Eng. (1883) R. 121. The order or judgment for an account under this Rule can only be obtained on motion to the Court.

The claim as indorsed should involve an account: Re Gyhon, 29 Ch. D. 834, and notes infra.

Before taking proceedings under this Rule in default of appearance the plaintiff must file an affidavit of service of the writ of summons, or the notice in lieu thereof: see Rule 36.

This Rule applies not merely where the plaintiff claims an account from defendant, but also where the plaintiff will himself be the accounting party: Molony v. Molony, 21 L. R. Ir. 91.

Indorsement of claim for account.

No form is given of an indorsement of a claim for an account by principal of an agent. The following may suffice: "The defendant acted as the plaintiff's agent for (stating nature of agency) and the plaintiff claims an account of the dealings and transactions, receipts and disbursements by the defendant for the plaintiff as his agent. The plaintiff submits to pay what, if anything, on the taking of such account, may appear to be due from him to the defendant, and he claims payment by the defendant of what, if anything, may be found due by him to the plaintiff." A claim for an account by a trustee, mortgagee, or of a partnership may be framed from the above: and see Form No. 4, Equitable Relief; H. & L. Forms Nos. 54, 55, 56.

It is not quite clear from the Rule whether it is, or is not, intended that the motion shall be made on the indorsement of the writ without filing a statement of claim: see Green v. Colby, 24 W. R. 246, but from the heading of the chapter and the collocation of the Rules it may perhaps be safely assumed that a statement of claim is unnecessary, and that all that is necessary on the motion is proof of service of the writ indorsed with a claim for an account and the non-appearance of the defendant: see Rule 64, where in case of appearance pleading is expressly dispensed with. The motion should be made in the Weekly Court: but see Ladies Tailoring Association v. Clarkson, 27 C. L. J. 501, where it was held that the Master in Chambers may pronounce any judgment where the parties consent. But this can hardly be said to be the established practice.

Under the corresponding English Rule, where the account claimed is an executorship or administration account, the order made is the same as the usual administration decree formerly made in Chancery: see Bell v. Lowe, W. N. 1875, 229; 1 Chan. Ch. Ca. 56; and Pratt v. Brown, cited in Dan. Forms, 3rd ed., 206. Under such a judgment, the account may, in Ontario, be taken on the footing of wilful neglect and default: see notes to Rules 410, 608. Rules 64, 65.

In Ontario it is not customary to make orders for an account under this Rule, in mortgage actions, a special procedure being provided to meet such cases: see Rules 466-467.

Administration accounts are also usually taken under other special Rules: see Rules 608, 613, and Form No. 104; H. & L. Forms Nos. 378, 379. Where, however, complete administration of the estate of a deceased person, or of a trust, or the winding-up of a partnership, is not desired, but only an account, this Rule may probably be usefully applied: see Leyborne-Popham v. Spencer-Brown, 9 T. L. R. 309.

The provisions of the Rules 331, 353, for enforcing orders for discovery or inspection of documents, are not applicable to an order for accounts under this Rule: Pike v. Keene, 35 L. T. 341; 24 W. R. 322; but see Rule 411.

This Rule is intended to enable parties upon a summary application to obtain a judgment to take accounts, and the Court may, by the same judgment, order payment of what may be found due on the taking of the account, or reserve to for a subsequent hearing the appropriate judgment.

A form of a notice of motion will be found in H. & L. Forms, No. 404. Two days' notice of motion is all that is necessary: Rule 215. Forms.

64. Where the plaintiff's claim is for an account and appearance is entered the plaintiff may move for judgment, without pleading, and unless the defendant satisfies the Court that there is some preliminary question to be tried the appropriate judgment shall be pronounced. New. Motion for account after appearance.

This Rule, though said to be new, appears to be based on C. R. 645.

If the right to an account depends upon a preliminary question which is in dispute, that question must first be decided in some manner authorized by the Rules before an account will be ordered: see Re Gyhon, 29 Ch. D. 834 (disputed question of breach of trust): Batthyany v. Walford, 36 Ch. D. 276 (Plaintiff's claim as a creditor disputed): Dyott v. Neville, W. N. 1887, 35.

65. The Court may, at any stage of the proceedings in a cause or matter, direct any necessary inquiries or accounts to be made or taken, notwithstanding that some special or further relief is sought, or some issue is to be tried, as to which it may be proper that the cause or matter should proceed in the ordinary manner. C.R. 646. Reference at any stage.

To the same effect as the Eng. (1883) R. 381.

A reference under this Rule may be to a Master, or other proper officer, or to an Official Referee, under sec. 64, supra, p. 225.

An inquiry was directed in West London Dairy Soc. v. Abbott, 29 W. R. 584; 44 L. T. 376, as to a question of fact, leaving questions

It wss considered that under this Rule it is not proper that the issue in the action should he referred to he tried on the reference; hut only accounts suhsidisry to the rights of the parties should he directed to he tsken: Gornhom v. Skipper, 29 Ch. D. 566; see slso Mocdonold v. Piper, 10 P. R. 586.

Where an sction wss hrought to ohtain s decisration of plaintiff's rights in certsin mortgsged property, snd to restrain a ssle hy the mortgsgees, snd the plaintiff ohtsined judgment declaring his rights, hut the Court refused to restrsin the ssle, it wss held that s supplementsry order to tske the mortgsgees' account, tsx costs and ascertain the surplus in their hsnds after the ssle wss properly made under this Rule: Meyers v. Homilton Provident, etc., 15 P. The motion should be msde in Court: see sec. 64, supra, p. 225; but see Lodies' Toiloring Assoc. v. Clorkson, 27 C. L. J. 501, supro. p. 412.

Rule 66.

CHAPTER VI.

PARTIES AND JOINDER OF CAUSES OF ACTION.

(i) Generally.

Parties to actions.

The Court has no jurisdiction, inherent or otherwise, over any person other than those properly brought before it as parties, or persons whom it is authorized by stntute to treat as if they were parties (e.g., persons served with nn ndministration judgment, or in the samn interest with persons appointed to represent them), or persons coming in and submitting to the jurisdiction of their own free will, to the extent which they so submit (e.g., creditors of a bankrupt executor, who has carried on business under a power in the will, coming in to claim against the testator's estate in order to obtain subrogation to the executor's right of indemnity); see per Farwell, L.J., Brydges v. Brydges, 1909, 2 K. B. at p. 191.

The following Rules are framed with a view to binding persons by judgments rendered in actions to which they ars not parties in certain cases, by reason of their being represented in the action by persons who are parties. It will be seen by the cases hereafter referred to, that though the rights of absent parties may be bound by representation under the Rules, yet if any relief is sought against them individually, such as an account, or execution of conveyances, or recovery of money, etc., they must be made actual parties to the proceeding either originally, or by supplementary proceedings,—"The Courts have no jurisdiction to make orders against persons not before them merely because an order made, or to be made, may, or will be ineffectual," per Farwell, L.J., Brydges v. Brydges, supra.

Joinder of plaintiffs.

66. All persons may be joined in an action as plaintiffs in whom any right to relief in respect of or arising out of the same transaction or occurrence, or series of traasactions or occurrences, is alleged to exist, whether joiatly, severally, or in the alternative, where if such persons brought separate actions any common question of law or fact would arise; but, if, upon the application of a defeadant, it appears that such joinder may embarrass or delay the trial of the action, the Court may order separate trials, or make such other order as may be expedient; and without any amendment, judgment may be givea for such one or more of the plaintiffs as may be fouad entitled to relief, for such relief as he or they may be entitled to, but the defendant, though unsuccessfnl, shall be entitled to his costs occasioned by joining any persoa who is not found entitled to relief, unless the Court otherwise orders. C.R. 185.

Rule 66.

(2) On the signing of default judgment the officer signing judgment may fix and ascertain costs without taxation. (See Rules of 24th December, 1913).

See the Eng. Rule 123 of 26th Oct., 1896.

Clause 2 would appear to be more appropriate as an addition to Rule 661.

Practice under former Rules and decisions.

Speaking generally the original Jud. Act provided that all parties might be joined whose presence before the Court was necessary to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon, and settle all the questions involved in the action. On the question, however, how far separate causes of action by several plaintiffs, or against several defendants, might be investigated in one action, the cases do not present a consistent and uniform course of decision. A change of view began about 1893, and culminated in the decision of the House of Lords in Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 1894, A. C. 494, where it was held that several shippers, or several consignees of different shipments, of goods shipped on board the same ship, for carriage from and to the same places, could not join as plaintiffs in one action, against the ship-owners to recover damages for short delivery; because the causes of action were separate and distinct, and could not under the Rule, as it formerly stood, be joined in one action; see also Peninsular and Oriental S. N. Co. v. Tsune Kijima, 1895, A. C. 661.

The numerous cases in which the decision of the House of Lords was subsequently applied led to the passing in England of the Rule of 1896, above mentioned, and in Ontario of the above Rule 66.

Under the Rule as it now stands, probably all of the cases which follow Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 1894, A. C. 494, would now be differently decided. Even under the former Rules it was held that separate actions by husband and wife for damages caused by the same wrongful act ought not to be brought, but that they should join in one action: Noyes v. Young, 16 P. R. 254; but see Heimbs v. Newcastle, 76 L. T. 109.

The power to order separate trials contained in Rule 66 is in accordance with the decision in Hannay v. Smurthwaite, in the C. A. 1893, 2 Q. B. 412.

"Series of transactions."

"Series of Transactions."—The allegation that the defendants have been actuated by the same motive in each of a number of similar transactions between them and distinct plaintiffs, is not sufficient to constitute the transactions a "series" within the meaning of this Rule: Mason v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 8 O. L. R. 28.

But an action by mother and daughter against a defendant for trespass to the mother's land, and an assault made on the daughter in the course of the trespass, was held to be properly constituted within the Rule: Lanister v. Crawford, 2 O. W. N. 7.

Eight different contracts of insurance, made by six different persons with the same insurance company, were held not to constitute a series of transactions within the Rule: Honsinger v. Mut. Reserve, 5 O. W. R. 528.

Joinder of plaintiffs.

Joinder of Plaintiffs.—Two or more holders of debentures may join as plaintiffs in an action against directors of a company for damages for alleged misrepresentations in the prospectus of the company: Drincqbier v. Wood, 1899, 1 Ch. 393; 79 L. T. 548.

A plaintiff claiming on his own behalf damages against directors of a company, in respect of his having been induced by fraud of defendants to purchase shares, was held not entitled under this Rule to make, in the same action, that claim, and also a claim on behalf of himself and all shareholders to a declaration that a declaration of a dividend on shares, when there were no profits, was ultra vires and illegal, and for judgment for repayment of the dividend: Stroud v. Lawson 1898, 2 Q. B. 44; 78 L. T. 729. Rule 66.

The proper person to sue directors of a limited company for acts done by them ultra vires, is the company itself; but if the company will not allow its name to be used, a shareholder on behalf of himself and other shareholders may sue, making the company a defendant: per Jessel, M.R., in Russell v. Wakefield, etc., L. R. 20 Eq. 474; Atwool v. Merryweather, L. R. 5 Eq. 464 n. Action against directors.

Two plaintiffs whose names had been wrongfully used in publications of the defendant were held entitled to join in an action to restrain such user: Oxford v. Gill, 1899, 1 Ch. 55; 79 L. T. 338. So also two plaintiffs, a married man and an unmarried woman, against whom charges of criminal intimacy had been made by the defendant, on three different occasions, were held entitled to sue in one action in respect of the three charges, there being publication as to all, and the three occasions being a series with a common question of fact: Agar v. Escott, 8 O. L. R. 177; but the male plaintiff was held not entitled to join in the action a claim for libel contained in a letter to the female plaintiff, except by way of aggravation of damages: Ib.; and several plaintiffs claiming to have been damnified by several defendants combining and conspiring together as officials of different trades unions, to prevent the plaintiffs doing acts they were legally entitled to do, were held entitled to join in one action, and the defendants were also held to be properly sued together: Walters v. Green, 1899, 2 Ch. 696. Actions for libels.

Where two or more fruit-growers brought an action claiming to enforce certain preferential rights in Covent Garden Market, it was held that the plaintiffs, as representing a class who had an interest in common, could maintain the action; the Attorney-General was directed to be added as a defendant to represent the rest of the public; sed quære, if that was necessary: Ellis v. Duke of Bedford, 1899, 1 Ch. 494; 1901, A. C. 1; 83 L. T. 686.

Where the action is brought to enforce a public right, the Attorney-General should be plaintiff: Devonport v. Tozer, 1903, 1 Ch. 759 (an action to enforce a municipal building by-law). Some only of the public cannot maintain such an action unless they have a special and private interest in the subject matter of the action: Hope v. Hamilton Park Comrs., 1 O. L. R. 477; Liverpool v. Chorley, 1852, 2 D. M. & G. 852. Attorney-General.

Mortgagees asking to have a lease set aside as having been made by the mortgagor after the mortgage, and an assignee for the benefit of creditors asking to have the lease set aside as being voluntary and void as against creditors, were held not entitled to join as plaintiffs: Bank of Hamilton v. Anderson, 7 O. L. R. 613; 3 O. L. R. 153. Conflicting claims.

One of two joint promisees can maintain an action on a contract making the other joint promisee a co-defendant, if after tender of an indemnity against costs he refuses to be joined as a co-plaintiff: Cullen v. Knowles, 1898, 2 Q. B. 380. Joint contractors.

So also one of several joint covenantees may sue alone to restrain a breach of the covenant, where the other covenantees have ceased to be interested in the covenant; but, semble, they should be joined as defendants: see Pornell v. Deon, 31 Ont. 517.

Joint owners of patent.

One of several joint owners of a patent may sue for a recovery of profits due for the use of the patent without joining the other owners: Sheehon v. G. E. Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59.

Co-mortgagees.

One of several mortgagees may bring a foreclosure action, making his co-mortgagees defendants, if they will not join as plaintiffs: Luke v. South Kensington Hotel Co., 11 Ch. D. 121.

Joint reversioners

One of several owners of a reversion may sue for injury to the reversion without joining his co-tenants: Roberts v. Holland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 665.

Independent causes of action.

Several plaintiffs cannot join in the same action separate and distinct causes of action to which they are respectively entitled, against the same defendants, where such causes are in no way dependent on each other: Horris Maxwell Lorder Lake Mining Co. v. Gold Fields, 23 O. L. R. 625.

Seduction, and breach of promise.

The Rule does not permit claims for seduction, and breach of promise of marriage, to be joined in one action: Dixon v. Tracey, 17 C. L. T. 381.

Misjoinder

As to the mode of objecting to a misjoinder, or non-joinder, of plaintiffs: see Rule 134.

Counter-claim to joint claims.

Where two or more plaintiffs sue for a joint claim, the defendant may set up a separate counter-claim against each plaintiff: Manchester, etc., Ry. v. Brooks, 2 Ex. D. 243.

Actions by companies in liquidation.

A company in liquidation retains its corporate powers, and suits to recover debts or property of the company should be brought by the liquidator in the company's name: Kent v. Communauté des Sœurs de Chorité, 1903, A. C. 220; where, however, the liquidator is suing as representative of the creditors or contributories, he should sue in his own name: Ib.

An objection that one of several plaintiffs has no title to maintain the action, should be taken by defence: Morong v. Rose, 3 O. L. R. 354.

Foreign Sovereign.

A Sovereign of a foreign state is not obliged to sue in his own name to enforce contracts made on his behalf by his ministers, but such ministers, or their successors in office, though not expressly named in the contract, may sue for the enforcement thereof: Yzquierdo v. Clydebank E. Co., 1902, A. C. 524; 87 L. T. 339.

Costs.

Where two plaintiffs joined in an action and one was successful and the other unsuccessful, the successful plaintiff was held to be chargeable with the costs of joining the unsuccessful plaintiff: D'Hormusjee & Co. and Isaacs & Co. v. Grey, 10 Q. B. D. 13; 52 L. J. Q. B. 192; but in Viscount Gort v. Rowney, 17 Q. B. D. 625, where costs had been ordered "to abide the event," it was held that the unsuccessful plaintiff only was liable for the costs occasioned by his being joined in the action.

Where some plaintiffs were successful but some were absent at the trial from illness and gave no evidence, the latter were ordered to pay defendants the costs occasioned by their being joined as plaintiffs, without prejudice to their bringing a fresh action: Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 348.

Rule 67.
Joinder of defendants

67.—(1) Where the plaintiff claims that the same transaction or occurrence, or series of transactions or occurreaces, give him a cause of action against one or more persons, or where he is in doubt as to the person from whom he is entitled to redress, he may join as defendaats all persons against whom he claims any right to relief, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative; and judgment may be given against one or more of the defendants according to their respective liabilities.

(2) The Court may order separate trials or make such other order as may be deemed expedient, if such joinder is deemed oppressive or unfair. New.

See Eng. (1883) R. 126.

This Rule enables defendants to be joined in the like circumstances that plaintiffs may be joined under the preceding Rule.

As to what is meant by series of transactions: see notes to Rule 66.

This Rule must he read with Rule 134: Edwards v. Lowther, 24 W. R. 434.

See former C. RR. 188, 189, 192, 202.

All or any parties liable on one contract may be joined.

By the present Rule it is optional with the plaintiff in actions on bills and notes, as well as in actions on any other contract, to proceed against any one or more of the parties jointly or severally liable: see Re Arcedeckne, Atkins v. Arecdeckne, 24 Ch. D. 709; Murray v. Gillett, 18 C. L. J. 78; but one of such parties if sued alone is entitled to have his co-contractors joined, wherever under the old practice a plea in abatement might have been pleaded: Pilley v. Robinson, 20 Q. B. D. 155, as explained in Wilson v. Balcarres, 1893, 1 Q. B. 422; S. C. sub nom. Wilson v. Killick, 68 L. T. 169. Where, however, the joint contractor is a foreigner residing out of the jurisdiction the defendant cannot insist on his being joined: Ib.; see also Robb v. Murray, 13 P. R. 397. The Court will ordinarily stay the plaintiff's proceedings until the co-contractor is added, when the latter is within the jurisdiction, but where he has been added as defendant, and after reasonable efforts, the plaintiff is unable to serve him with process, the action will he allowed to proceed against the other parties: Robinson v. Geisel, 1894, 2 Q. B. 695; 71 L. T. 70. Semble, in such a case the name of the defendant who cannot be found ought to be ordered to be struck out.

As to the rule that judgment recovered against one of two joint contractors, or tortfeasers, is a bar to an action against the other: see Hammond v. Schofield, 1891, 1 Q. B. 453; Toronto Dental Mfg. Co. v. McLaren, 14 P. R. 89; Kelly v. Hammond, 2 T. L. R. 804; Weall v. James, 68 L. T. 515; and note to Rules 100 and 101.

Under Chy. Gen. Order 62, a plaintiff might select one or more of several persons liable. Under the corresponding English Con. Order VII. R. 2, it was held in Smith v. Horsfall, 24 Beav. 331, that if the plaintiff chose to sue all or some of them, and the suit became defective or abated by reason of a transmission of the interest of one of them, he could not afterwards proceed against the other. This gloee on tha Order was described as highly technical' Gray v. Lewis, L. R. 8 Chy. 1035, 1052, and will not be imported hy analogy into the present Rule: Lloyd v. Dimmack, 7 Ch. D. 398. In the latter case two of five defendants became bankrupt, and it was held that the action might proceed against the other three without hringing the trustees of the bankrupte before the Court. For other restrictions upon the application of Chy. G. O. 62, see Lewin, 6th ed., 807. See also Wilson v. Rhodes, 8 Ch. D. 777.

Where a plaintiff's claim was on four policies of insnrance by co-insurers one of whom was out of the jurisdiction, it was held that the latter might be properly joined as a defendant in an action against the other co-insurer who wns within the jurisdiction: Osterreichische, etc., v. British Indemnity Ins. Co., 1914, 2 K. B. 747; 110 L. T. 955.

Surety may be joined with mortgagor, relief obtained against both.

Liability of assignee of mortgagor.

Of assignor of a mortgage on covenant for its payment.

Sureties.—Under this Rule a surety for ths payment of a mortgage debt may be made a party to the action for the eala of the mortgaged property; but an assignee of the mortgagor who had covenanted with the mortgagor to pay the mortgage debt, could not formerly have been ordered to pay the mortgagee, to whom he wss under no legal liability: Turnbull v. Symmonds, 6 Gr. 615; Clarkson v. Scott, 25 Gr. 373; and seo other cases in notes to Rule 460. And where the original mortgagee had assigned the mortgage to the plaintiff, and covenanted for payment, it was held that he was not a surety, but that tho contract amounted merely to a guaranty, to enforce which, a separate action must he hrought: Clarke v. Best, 8 Gr. 7. But it would seem that in such cases the appropriate relief as hetween the plaintiff and defendants, and hetween the defendants inter se, may now he granted in the same action. Ses Rule 170, and Campbell v. Robinson, 27 Gr. 634; Chamberlain v. Sovais, 28 Gr. 404.

Principal, when a necessary party.

Where th^ surety had given a mortgage on his own property, the principal debtor was formerly a necessary party to an nction for foreclosure, or sale thereof: Seidler v. Sheppard, 12 Gr. 456.

A surety cannot be required to pay the amount of a judgment which it has been agreed ehall stand as security for the deficiency on a mortgage, until the security has been realized and the deficiency ascertained: Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85.

Liability of surety for deficiency.

Where a surety is not joined in an action against his principal, he may bs released from liahility for interest accruing subsequent to the judgment against his principal, on the ground that the right of action against the principal is merged in the judgment: Faber v. Lathom, 77 L. T. 168.

Joinder of Defendants.—In considering the propriety of the joinder of defendants, the nature of the action and the relief asked must he considered. If that relief is of an equitahle nature all parties must he before the Court whose preeence is necessary to give ths plaintiff, if successful, the full measure of his rights, assuming that the action is not multifarious. On the other hand the plaintiff cannot join two independent claims merely because they happen to relate to the same subject matter, there being no connection otherwise hetween the parties: Andrews v. Forsythe, 7 O. L. R. 188; Vachon v. Crown Reserve Mining Co., 2 O. W. N. 378.

Ordinarily the right to sue, and the liahility to be sued attaches only to individuals, corporations or firms, and as a general rule all persons interested in the subject matter of an action should he made parties either as plaintiffs, or defendants; but there are many cases in which the persons interested are so numerous, that if it were necessary to make them all parties, the difficulty in suing them and carrying on the suit would be insuperable. The rules as to parties to suits in equity were not the same as those which governed Courts of Common Law, and were long since adapted to meet the difficulties presented by a multiplicity of persons interested in the subject matter of litigation. Some of such persons were allowed to sue and be sued on behalf of themselves and all others having the same interests. This was avowedly done to prevent a failure of justice: see per Lord Lindley: Taff Vale Ry. Co. v. Amalgomoted Society of Railway Servants, 1901, A. C. 426; 85 L. T. 147. Suits so constituted were technically called class suits, and provision is made by Rule 75 for the continuance of the former equity practice as to parties in such cases. Rule 67.

Following Honnoy v. Smurthwaite, 1894, A. C. 494; 71 L. T. 157, it was held by the House of Lords that a plaintiff could not join several defendants in an action to abate several separate nuisances, though occasioned by similar but separate acts: Sadler v. G. W. Ry., 1896, A. C. 450; 74 L. T. 561. And it has been held that several defendants, sued under The Liquor License Act (R. S. O. c. 215), s. 114, for wrongfully supplying liquor to a person at different times, could not be joined as defendants in the same action: Crane v. Hunt, 26 Ont. 641; but under Rule 67 as it now stands: Semble, such a joinder of defendants would be admissible. Defendants severally sued on several causes of action.

Where several defendants are sued, a claim for damages in respect of a tort alleged against some of them cannot be combined with a claim for damages in respect of a separate tort alleged against all: Gower v. Couldridge, 1898, 1 Q. B. 348 (explained in Frankenburg v. Great Horseless Carriage Co., 1900, 1 Q. B. 504; see also Thompson v. London County Council, 1899, 1 Q. B. 840); claims against two or more defendants in respect of separate torts cannot be joined in the same action: Appleton v. Fuller, 6 O. L. R. 683: Hinds v. Barrie, 6 O. L. R. 656; Greenwood v. Greenwood, 126 L. T. Jour. 57; even though the damage complained of may be the same as against each defendant: Thompson v. London County Council, 1899, 1 Q. B. 840; and generally speaking, a plaintiff cannot claim on separate causes of action against different persons in one action, if the real causes of action that exist against them are separate: Quigley v. Waterloo, 1 O. L. R. 606; Hinds v. Barrie, 6 O. L. R. 656; Vochon v. Crown Reserve Mining Co., 2 O. W. N. 378; but there may be such unity in the matters complained of as between all parties as to justify the joining of defendants who are not all interested in the same way, or in the same inquiries: Evans v. Jaffray, 1 O. L. R. 614; Crowther v. Cobourg, 2 O. W. N. 1216. Torts—Separate causes of action against different persons.

Causes of action for a similar slander spoken at different times by each defendant, but arising out of the same matter, cannot be joined in the same action; and a cause of action for conspiracy between the defendants wrongfully to dismiss the plaintiff cannot properly be joined with either of the causes of action for slander: Pope v. Howtrey, 17 T. L. R. 717; 85 L. T. 263; but persons who conspire illegally to watch and beset a place with a view to persuade workmen not to work, or to cease work for a person, may be sued jointly in the same action: Wolters v. Green, 1899, 2 Ch. 696. (There the right to the relief claimed arose out of the same series of transactions, and there was a common question of fact as well as law, whether all the acts complained of were done in pursuance of a combination so as to render the defendants jointly liable.) Even if it were not established that all the defendants had committed the acts complained of, judgment might be recovered against some or one of them: Ib: see also Copeland-Chatterson v. Business Systems, 11 O. L. R. 292.

In an action against two joint tort-feasors for conversion, a claim may be joined against one of them for money had and received, if it arise out of the same transaction: Rice v. Reed, 1900, 1 Q. B. 54; so also an action may be maintained against a company and its directors and the executors of a deceased director, asking against the company for cancellation of plaintiff's shares, and asking against the directors, damages, on the ground of misrepresentations in the prospectus of the company: Frankenburg v. Great Horseless Carriage Company, 1900, 1 Q. B. 504: and see Kent Coal Co. v. Martin, 1900, 16 T. L. R. 486.

A plaintiff may sue two or more persons for damages for injuries caused by the combined effect of their respective negligence; he cannot be compelled to elect against which he will proceed: Bullock v. London General Omnibus Co., 1907, 1 K. B. 27, 264; 95 L. T. 905; Tracey v. Toronto Ry., 13 O. W. R. 15; and see Componio Sonsinena Congeladas v. Houlder, 1910, 2 K. B. 354; 103 L. T. 333 (a case of breach of contract). Where several defendants are joined as joint tort-feasors each is liable for the whole damages occasioned by the joint tort: see Greenlands v. Wilmshurst, 1913, 3 K. B. 507 and other cases cited in note to Rule 39, supra, p. 384.

A plaintiff cannot, in an action against a municipal corporation for damages for obstructing a highway, add as a defendant a person as against whom under The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 192), s. 464, the corporation is entitled to relief over: Baines v. Woodstock, 10 O. L. R. 694.

Several defendants in cases of doubt.

Under this Rule, where a plaintiff is in doubt as to the person from whom he is entitled to redress he may join two or more defendants, in order that the question as to which, if any, of them is liable and to what extent, may be determined as between all parties.

This Rule is applicable to actions which have been already commenced, as well as to those in which the plaintiff is in doubt at the commencement of action: per Cockburn, C.J., in Honduras Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 2 Ex. D. 305. In that case the plaintiffs claimed against L. specific performance of a contract alleged to have been made by T., the authorized agent of L.; they afterwards alleged that L. denied that T. was his authorized agent, and were therefore in doubt as to who was liable, and they obtained leave to add T. as defendant, claiming that if he was not the authorized agent of L. he was liable as principal. See also Bennetts v. McIlwraith, 1896, 2 Q. B. 464, followed in Tote v. Natural Gas Co., 18 P. R. 82, but it is doubtful whether these cases would now be followed: see Quigley v. Waterloo, 1 O. L. R. 606; Chandler v. Grand Trunk Ry., 5 O. L. R. 589; Andrews v. Forsythe, 7 O. L. R. 188; and it would seem that the Rule would now be held only to apply to the case of the plaintiff having a single claim, and being in doubt as to which of two or more defendants is liable to satisfy it: sed vide, Langley v. Low Society, infra, p. 423.

If the doubt arises after an action has been commenced as to whether the defendant sued is the party liable, other parties may be added under Rule 134: Tote v. Natural Gas Co., supra.

This Rule was applied in Harvey v. G. T. Ry. Co., & G. W. Ry. Co., 9 P. R. 80, affirmed on appeal 7 Ont. App. 715, where injury was done to goods carried by two railway companies, but the plaintiff was not able to ascertain which line of railway the goods were on at the time of the injury. The plaintiff was held entitled to join both companies as defendants; and see Witted v. Galbraith, 1893, 1 Q. B. 431. But this Rule does not authorize the recovery of judgment against two or more parties separately liable, and where damages were assessed against two defendants under such circumstances, the Court directed judgment to be entered against one defendant only, on the plaintiff agreeing to abandon judgment as to the other defendant: Crane v. Hunt, 26 Ont. 641. Rule 67.

In an action brought against an Irish railway con. any claiming damages for breach of contract in not carrying pigs from a station in Ireland to Liverpool, and for trover and conversion of the pigs; the company having stated in answers to interrogatories, that some of the pigs were sold by the L. & N. W. Ry. Co., on whose line part of the journey had to be performed, but without communication with the defendants, leave was given to add the L. & N. W. Ry. Co. as defendants: Creeton v. Midland G. W. Ry. Co., 10 L. R. Ir. 74.

In Heed v Bowmon, 9 P. R. 12, the plaintiff sued in respect of the flooding of land by a mill-dam. The G. W. Ry. had turned the waters of the stream into another channel, which was not deep enough to carry off all the water, even though the defendant's dam were removed, so that complete relief could not be given, even though the plaintiff were successful against the defendant. The plaintiff was therefore allowed under this Rule and Rule 134 to add the G. W. Ry. Co. as defendants.

An action against four independent saw-mill owners, from whose mills sawdust and refuse matter were carried down the River Ottawa and lodged upon and in front of the plaintiff's land, was held to have been properly brought against all four owners as defendants: Ratté v. Booth, 10 P. R. 649.

Where several defendants are joined each of whom is alleged to have been guilty of negligence, the combined result of which was to cause injury to the plaintiff, he cannot be required to elect against which one he will proceed, but is entitled to proceed against them all: Symon v. Guelph & Goderich Ry., 13 O. L. R. 47.

In an action by the assignee of a debt, the plaintiff was allowed to add the assignor and claim alternative relief against him, in the event of being unable to recover against the debtor: Longley v. Law Society, 3 O. L. R. 245. But the later cases seem to establish that this Rule is confined to cases in which the alternative relief asked by a statement of claim against one defendant is consistent with that asked against another; and entirely separate and distinct causes of action, founded upon different rights, cannot be joined in the same action: Quigley v. Waterloo, 1 O. L. R. 606; Chandler v. Grand Trunk Ry., 5 O. L. R. 589; Andrews v Forsythe, 7 O. L. R. 188; but see Honduras Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 2 Ex. D. 301; Child v. Stenning, 5 Ch. D. 695; Philips v. Philips, 4 Q. B. D. 134; Boines v. Woodstock, supra, p. 422. Alternative claims.

In actions of tort as well as actions of contract, defendants may be joined against whom relief is claimed in the alternative: Bullock v. London General Omnibus Co., 1907, 1 K. B. 27, 264; 95 L. T. 905; Tilt v. Oakville, 5 O. W. N. 601.

If the defendant can shew that there is inconvenience or additional expense in trying both the claims at the same time, or that the Election by plaintiff compelled.

Rule 67.

disposition of one will render the trial of the other unnecessary, he may apply under Rule 73 for the trial of one issue before the other is approached: Bogot v. Easton, 7 Ch. D. 1; or he may apply to compel a plaintiff to elect against which defendant he will proceed: Andrews v. Forsythe, 1 O. L. R. 98.

If alternative cases are alleged, the facts ought not to be mixed up, but should be stated so as to shew on what facts each alternative of the relief sought is founded: Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 489.

Where the claim of the plaintiff is in the alternative against one or the other of two defendants, if the plaintiff take final judgment against one of the defendants, that is a bar to the further prosecution of his action against the other defendant: Morel v. Westmoreland, 1903, 1 K. B. 84; 87 L. T. 635; 1904, A. C. 11; 89 L. T. 702; French v. Howie, 1905, 2 K. B. 580; 93 L. T. 202; 1906, 2 K. B. 674; 95 L. T. 274; and see Cross v. Mathews, 117 L. T. Jour. 220.

Costs.

Where the plaintiff succeeds against one defendant, but not against another, the costs of the successful defendant must be borne by the plaintiff, and not by the unsuccessful defendant, unless the Court orders otherwise: see Child v. Stenning, 7 Ch. D. 413; 11 Ch. D. 82, and Bingham v. Alexander, cited Charley's Judicature Act, 3rd ed., 455. See also Jud. Act, s. 74, note p. 254 et seq.

If a plaintiff brings separate actions against a number of persons whom he might have joined as defendants in one action, he may have to pay the defendants' extra costs: Gucret v. Young, W. N. 1883, 216.

A man cannot be both plaintiff and defendant in the same action, and, therefore, where the plaintiff was also made a defendant in another capacity his name was struck out as a defendant: Wavell v. Mitchell, W. N. 1891, 88; 84 L. T. 560.

Other cases.

It is not proper to make individual corporators defendants for the sole purpose of making them pay costs: Atty.-Gen. v. Vestry of Bermondsey, 23 Ch. D. 60. Neither is it proper to make solicitors, agents, or arbitrators parties merely for asking discovery, or costs, against them: see Matthias v. Yetts, 46 L. T. 497; Barnes v. Addy, L. R. 9 Chy. 244, 255, 256; Burstall v. Beyfus, 26 Ch. D. 35; Amos v. Herne Bay, 80 L. T. Jour. 356, for this is contrary to what was formerly known in Chy. as the rule of the three A.'s.

Officers of corporations not to be made defendants merely for discovery.

Officers may be parties when charged with wrongful acts.

Where an action is brought against a corporation aggregate, an officer of the corporation should not be made a defendant for discovery only: see former C. R. 191; but where the plaintiff charges the officers of a corporation with collusion and conspiracy to deprive plaintiff of his rights, or damages are claimed against them for wrongful acts, such officers may be properly made defendants: Cuthbert v. The Commercial Travellers' Association, 24 Gr. 551; Clin. v. The Mountainview Cheese Factory, 20 Gr. 227; Betts v. Neilson, L. R. 3 Chy. 429; L. R. 5 H. L. 1.

As to discovery by corporations: see Rule 32 (2), (3).

In Heatley v. Newton, 51 L. J. Chy. 225, an action by a purchaser for rescission of a contract of sale and costs, auctioneers were made co-defendants with the vendors, the plaintiff alleging that they and the vendors had joined in a fraud whereby the plaintiff was induced to pay too high a price. It was held that the auctioneers were rightly joined and could not claim to be dismissed merely on payment of the deposit into Court, and costs to the date of the order.

In an action to recover the value of goods, a person who had notified the plaintiff not to remove the goods, which had not been paid for, and the property in which had not passed, was made a defendant in the action: Polson v. DeGreer, 12 Ont. 275. Rule 67.

Though a restrictive covenant in a lease is omitted in a sub-lease, both lessee and sub-lessee are properly made defendants in an action for breach of the covenant: Triffon v. Honkart, 35 W. R. 474; 56 L. T. 306; 56 L. J. Chy. 629.

In an action by a creditor to recover a debt, persons to whom the debtor had made an alleged fraudulent conveyance of his property, which the plaintiff claimed to have set aside, were held to be properly joined as defendants: Heaton v. McKellar, 13 P. R. 81.

In an action by a simple contract creditor claiming merely to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent against creditors, the debtor and grantor is a necessary party as well as the grantee: Gibbons v. Darvill, 12 P. R. 478.

As to adding a party for discovery only: see Symonds v. City Bank, 79 L. T. Jour. 175.

Foreign Sovereign.—A sovereign of an independent foreign state, though within the jurisdiction of the Court, is not liable to a civil action unless he chooses to submit to the jurisdiction: Mighell v. Sultan of Johore, 1894, 1 Q. B. 149; 70 L. T. 64; neither is a foreign ambassador: Musurus Bey v. Gadban, 1894, 1 Q. B. 533; Re Republic of Bolivia, 1914, 1 Ch. 139; 109 L. T. 741; 110 L. T. 141. As to the extent to which a foreign sovereign by suing submits to the jurisdiction: see S. African Republic v. Compagnie Franco Belge, 1898, 1 Ch. 190, in the note, supra, p. 346.

Administrators ad litem.—Under C. R. 195, it was provided that: "Where probate of the will of a deceased person, or letters of administration to his estate, have not been granted, and representation of such estate is required in any action or proceeding in the High Court, the Court may appoint some person administrator ad litem;" but that Rule has not been continued, and the power to appoint an administrator ad litem, would seem to rest, as it does in England, with the Probate Court, i.e., in Ontario, the Surrogate Courts. Appointment of administrator to represent estate in proceedings in High Court.

A judgment against an administrator ad litem, will as effectually bind the estate as if a general administrator were a party; but in any action which involves general inquiries as to next of kin, or general inquiries as to assets, and creditors, an administrator ad litem should not be appointed as he would not sufficiently represent the estate; a general administrator would in such case be necessary: Dowdeswell v. Dowdeswell, 9 Ch. D. 294; and see Rodger v. Moran, 28 Ont.; per Meredith, J., at p. 283; and McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 255.

The authority of an administrator ad litem in a probate action terminates on the pronouncing of a judgment in favour of a will; a grant of probate is not necessary to put an end to his powers: Weilland v. Bird, 1894, P. 262; 71 L. T. 267.

An administrator ad litem in an administration action has no power to commence another action in respect of the lands of the deceased, and a fortiori where the lands have vested in the heirs of the deceased through no caution having been filed: Rodger v. Moran, 28 Ont. 275; and it may be open to question whether an administrator ad litem has any power to register a caveat under The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), s. 13.

Rule 66.

A general administrator pendente lite, appointed by the Surrogate Court in a probate action, may be served without first obtaining the leave of the Court: In re Toleman, 1897, 1 Ch. 866.

Executor de son tort.—Under former C. R. 196, an action for an account might be brought against an executor de son tort without joining a legal personal representative; but that Rule has not been continued; and, consequently, to an action for an account against an executor de son tort, the legal personal representative is now a necessary party. By the same C. R. 196, it was also provided that where the Court appointed a receiver of a deceased person's estate, the estate might be administered by the Court without the appointment of any personal representative, but that Rule having been dropped, that procedure can no longer be adopted.

Attorney-General as Defendant.—Where the rights of the Crown are involved, or a declaration is sought against the Crown, the Attorney-General may be made a defendant as representing the Crown, and the Crown will be bound by the adjudication in an action so framed: see Pawlett v. Attorney-General, Hardrea Rep. 465; Laragoity v. Attorney-General, 2 Price 172; Dyson v. Attorney-General, 1911, 1 K. B. 410; 1912, 1 Ch. 158; 103 L. T. 707; Burghes v. Attorney-General, 1911, 2 Ch. 139; 1912, 1 Ch. 173; 105 L. T. 193, 758.

Where relief is claimed against the Crown then a petition of right is the usual procedure: see Rules 738 et seq.

Where defendant not interested in all the relief prayed.

68. It shall not be necessary that every defendant to an action shall be interested as to all the relief claimed, or as to every cause of action included therein. C.R. 187.

See Eng. (1883) R. 127.

See Cox v. Barker, 3 Ch. D. 359, where this Rule was considered and given a liberal construction. The judgment of V.-C. Bacon, which was affirmed on appeal, contains the following passages:—"I take it that it was the intention of the Legislature, when any question of any sort, or any set of questions, arose, to endeavour by one hearing and one decree to dispose of all matters in litigation between all the parties who were interested in the subject of the litigation. The Act of Parliament, at the same time that it has enabled any person stating a claim to bring before the Court all persons interested in that claim, and to include in the claim every question that can belong to it, or arise out of it, has, at the same time, carefully provided that no one shall be prejudiced by the fact of his being joined. The Rules are distinct on the subject."

It was held that notwithstanding this Rule separate tort feasors could not be joined as defendants in the same action: Sadler v. Great Western Ry., 1896, A. C. 450; 74 L. T. 561; Gower v. Couldridge, 1898, 1 Q. B. 348; Thompson v. Lardon, 1899, 1 Q. B. 840; 80 L. T. 512; Pope v. Hawtrey, 85 L. T. 263; Quigley v. Waterloo, 1 O. L. R. 606; but see Walters v. Green, 1899, 2 Ch. 696; 81 L. T. 151; Evans v. Jaffray, 1 O. L. R. 614.

See notes to Rule 68.

69. A plaintiff may unite, in the same action, several causes of action. C.R. 232.

Rule 69. What causes of action may be joined.

Substantially identical with the first clause of Eng. (1883), R. 138.

Multifariousness, or the uniting of separate and distinct subjects in one suit, was formerly a ground for demurrer; but is now no objection of itself: see Cox v. Barker, 3 Ch. D. 359; and the right to join several causes of action is not limited to cases where they are between the same parties, nor (save as provided in these Rules) in the same right.

The present Rule is an extension of s. 84 of the C. L. P. Act, and it is apprehended that the words "cause of action" must receive the same construction as they received under the above section of the C. L. P. Act: see Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 423. The Rule must, therefore, as put by an able commentator on the English Judicature Act, be taken to include, not only different legal relations arising out of the same transaction, but also separate and independent transactions: Wilson's Jud. Act, 7th ed., 189.

One plaintiff and one defendant.

Where there is but one plaintiff and one defendant, then the plaintiff may, apparently, without any restriction, join in an action any number of separate and distinct causes of action, but subject to separate trials being directed of issues which cannot, without prejudice to either of the parties, be tried at the same time: see Rule 73. Thus claims for separate liens for taxes on separate lots were held to be properly joined in an action to enforce such liens: Sturgeon Falls v. Imperial Land Co., 31 O. L. R. 62.

Two or more plaintiffs or defendants.

Where, however, there are two or more plaintiffs or defendants, then different considerations arise, and the plaintiff's right to join separate and distinct causes of action is subject to important limitations. Though it is not necessary that every defendant in an action shall be interested as to all the relief claimed by the plaintiff, or as to every cause of action included therein (Rule 68), yet it is not competent for a plaintiff or plaintiffs to join in the same action several defendants against whom wholly separate and distinct causes of action are alleged.

This provision of this Rule are therefore subject to Rule 67, respecting the joinder of parties defendant.

In an action against two defendants, two causes of action cannot be joined, in one of which one of the defendants has no concern: Hinds v. Barrie, 6 O. L. R. 656; Ney v. Ney, 3 O. W. N. 927.

Examples.

In Honduras Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 2 Ex. D. 301, there was one subject matter, a contract made and broken. The plaintiffs claimed relief against L. who made it, if T. was authorized to make it as agent of L., but if not so authorized then against T. as principal. Both were held to be rightly made defendants.

In Bagot v. Easton, 7 Ch. D. 1, separate alternative causes of action were held to have been properly joined against the same defendant.

In Dessila v. Schunck, etc., W. N. 1880. 96, it was held that separate causes of action against separate defendants might be joined with joint and several causes of action, where all related to the same subject matter.

Rules 70, 71.

A plaintiff cannot join an individual claim with one by him on behalf of a class, unless they arise out of the same transaction: Stroud v. Lawson, 1898, 2 Q. B. 44; 78 L. T. 729; Harris Maxwell Larder Lake Mining Co. v. Gold Fields, 23 O. L. R. 625.

A cause of action against promoters and directors of a company, for a fraud and conspiracy in pursuance of which they had carried out certain purchases, loans, etc., and a cause of action against directors alone for, in regard to the first cause of action, having been guilty of a breach of duty as directors, were held to be properly joined: Kent, etc., v. Martin, 16 T L. R. 486; and see Harris Maxwell Larder Lake Mining Co. v. Gold Fields, supra.

A claim by plaintiffs who were mortgagees to set aside a lease by the mortgagor, joined with a claim by a co-plaintiff, who was assignee for the creditors of the mortgagor, for the avoidance of the lease, as having been made voluntarily and with intent to defraud creditors, were held to be improperly joined: Bank of Hamilton v. Anderson, 7 O. L. R. 613; 8 O. L. R. 153.

A claim by two plaintiffs, a married man and an unmarried woman, in respect of charges of criminal intimacy made on three different occasions by the defendant, was held to be proper, there being publication as to all, and the three occasions being a series with a common question of fact: Agar v. Escott, 8 O. L. R. 177.

Lord Selborne, in Burstall v. Beyfus, 26 Ch. D. 39, said: "To bring into one claim distinct causes of action against different persons neither having anything to do with the other (and only historically connected) is not contemplated by Order 18, s. 1, (Rule 232).

The liberty given by the present Rule is, however, subject to the limitations contained in the following Rules, and to the discretion of the Court (see Rule 73), to interfere in order to prevent issues being raised which embarrass a fair trial of the action.

Ejectment.

There is nothing to prevent any cause of action from being joined with one for the recovery of land; but the Court has power to prevent the joining in one action of claims which are incongruous and inconvenient to try together: Rule 73.

Claims by assignee in insolvency.

Under former C. R. 233 a claim by an assignee in insolvency, or for the benefit of creditors, could not, unless by leave of the Court or a Judge, be joined with any claim by him in any other capacity.

Such claims may now be joined, but of course subject to Rule 73.

Claims by or against husband and wife.

70. A claim by or against husband and wife may be joined with a claim by or against either of them separately. C.R. 234.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 191.

Claims by or against executor.

71. A claim by or against an executor or administrator may be joined with a claim by or against him personally, provided the last mentioned claim is alleged to have arisen with reference to the estate represented by him in the action. C.R. 235.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 192.

"Alleged," i.e., in the writ or pleadings: Davis v. Saintsbury, 1 T. L. R. 538. Rules 72, 73.

In an action against executors founded on an alleged promise of a testator to leave a sum of money to the plaintiff by his will, it was held that the plaintiff could not join a claim against the executors personally for fraudulently influencing the testator to omit such bequest: Whitworth v. Darbishire, 41 W. R. 317; 68 L. T. 216; 5 R. 198.

Semble, that as regards claims by an executor, this Rule refers to a case where the plaintiff's personal claim is in respect of the assets of the testator qua assets; the claim as executor and the claim personally must be with reference to the same estate: Johnson v. Burgess, 47 L. J. Chy. 552. Thus a claim by an executor for arrears of rent due to his testator's estate cannot be joined with a claim by him as tenant for life of the same estate: Tredegar v. Roberts, 1914, 1 K. B. 283; 9 L. T. 731.

The Rule it seems does not apply to a counter-claim, so as to enable the defendant to set up by way of counter-claim, claims against the plaintiff personally and as executor, where he is only suing in a distinct personal character: Macdonald v. Carington, 4 C. P. D. 28.

72. A claim by plaintiffs jointly may be joined with a claim by them or any of them separately against the same defendant. C.R. 236. Joint and several claims.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 193.

73. If several causes of action joined in the same action are such as cannot be conveniently disposed of in one action, the Court may order any of them to be excluded, or may direct the issues respecting the separate causes of action to be tried separately. C.R. 237. Order for separate issues.

See Eng. (1883), RR. 188, 194, 195, 196, 432. Former C. R. 531 contained a similar provision.

In Re Worssam, Hemery v. Worssam, 51 L. J. Ch. 669, the Court declined to entertain an action to set aside a transaction, and in the same proceedings inquire whether to do so was for the benefit of infants or unborn persons.

The provisions of the Rules for preventing any of the parties from being prejudiced are two:

(1) A claim which embarrassed a fair trial of the action may be struck out: Rules 73, 137. This was done in a case where a claim was made for inconsistent alternative relief by different plaintiffs: Smith v. Richardson, 4 C. P. D. 112, where the vendor of goods and the indorsees of a bill given by the purchaser to the vendor for the price, jointly sued the purchaser, the vendor, to recover the price, and the other plaintiffs to recover upon the dishonoured bill. Striking out embarrassing claims for diverse causes of action.

Where the paintiff's claim was for infringsment of 23 different patents, this was considered embarrassing to the defendants, and the action was confined to a limited number: Saccharin, etc., v. Wild, 1903, 1 Ch. 410; Saccharin, etc., v. White, 1903, W. N. 120; 88 L. T. 850.

Rule 73.

Separate trials.

(2) The Court may direct the different causes of action to be tried separately under this Rule: see Bagot v. Easton, 7 Ch. D. 1; Child v. Stenning, 5 Ch. D. 695, and Doy v. Rodcliffe, 24 W. R. 844; Barker v. Cox, 3 Ch. 359; Honnay v. Smurthwaite, 1893, 2 Q. B. 412; 1894, A. C. 494. This course might formerly have been directed under R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 85; see Fitzsimmons v. McIntyre, 5 P. R. 119. In Rodger v. Noxon Co., 19 P. R. 327, it was held to be proper where the two causes of action were wrongful dismissal, and slander.

Compare similar power given in Rules 136-137, and see Hall v. Old Talargoch Leod Mining Co., 45 L. J. Chy. 775; 34 L. T. 901; Re Woodfine, 38 L. T. 753; Dessilla v. Schunck, etc., W. N. 1880, 96; Cox v. Barker, 3 Ch. D. 372.

Rule 122 enables the Court to direct a preliminary point of law to be decided before the trial of issues of fact; or it may be decided at the same time as issues of fact.

The present Rule enables the Court to direct one or more issues of fact, which may decide the case, to be tried before the others: see Simson v. New Brunswick, etc., Co., 5 T. L. R. 148; but it is to be read in connection with sec. 16 (h) of the Act, which provides that multiplicity of proceedings is to be avoided: Village of Fort Erie v. Fort Erie Ferry Co., 13 P. R. 444.

Preliminary trial of questions of law.

An order for the trial of a point of law first, was made in Corporation of Preston v. Fullwood, 80 L. T. Jour. 41. See also Irwin v. Sperry, 11 P. R. 229; Smith v. Horgrove, 16 Q. B. D. 183; Temperance Colonization Society v. Evans, 12 P. R. 48, 380; Elmore v. Pirrie, 57 L. T. 333; London C. & D. v. S. E. Ry., 53 L. T. 109. See also Graham v. Temperance, etc., Ass'n Co. of N. A., 16 P. R. 536; but it will not be made unless the decision of the preliminary point will dispose of the action so far, at least, as to dispense with a second trial: Northern Crown Bank v. Motzo, 3 O. W. N. 373, and cases there referred to. In that case, owing to the exceptional circumstances, a special order was made: see 3 O. W. N. 517, 518.

Where a preliminary point of law is ordered to be tried first, the trial of the issues of fact will not take place until after the final determination of the preliminary point: Owners, etc., Maori King v. Hughes, 73 L. T. 141. See, however, notes to Rule 122.

Separating issues at trial.

A separation of the issues may be made at the trial, and one issue may be left to the jury and another disposed of by the Judge: Hoist v. G. T. Ry., 22 Ont. App. 504; Johnson v. G. T. Ry. Co., 25 Ont. 64; 21 Ont. App. 408; and his discretion will not be interfered with on appeal, unless he acted on a mistaken view of the law: Ib., and see Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, 20 Ch. D. 365.

Mode of applying Rule.

In The Emmo Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 Ch. D. 918, Jessel, M.R., said (p. 930), that a "case to be brought within this Rule ought to be one of simple issues. I do not think it is convenient to travel through a long record, and to get a number of complicated issues, and except them, so to say, from the pleadings." He explained in what cases the Rule had theretofore been acted upon. All had been cases in which the application was by the defendant.

In the subsequent case of Piercy v. Young, 15 Ch. D. 474, the learned Judge stated that the Rule was intended to be applied in exceptional cases only; that the object of The Judicature Act was to try all disputes together, and that, it was considered, was a beneficial object. "Separate trials of separate issues are nearly as expensive as separate actions, and ought certainly not to be encouraged, and they should only be granted on special grounds." It was there held that a defendant in a partnership action, who had set up by counter-claim, an agreement by the plaintiff for sale of his interest in the partnership to the defendant, at a stated price, was not entitled to have this issue tried before the plaintiff's issues in the action. Sec. 74.

In Tasmanian Railway Company v. Clark, W. N. 1879, 106; 27 W. R. 677, the Court refused leave to try the liability of a surety, before that of the principal; and the Court of Appeal declined to interfere with their discretion.

Where a reference would be ordered by the Judge as to a question of account, it is proper that the question of liability should be tried separately from the question to be so referred: Liverpool, Brazil, etc., Navigation v. London & St. Katherine, etc., Co., W. N. 1875, 203; 1 Chan. Ch. Cs. 121. Account.

Where discovery of accounts and dealings is sought, but the plaintiff's right to the account is disputed, a preliminary trial of that question may be ordered: Graham v. Temperance and Gen. Life, etc., 16 P. R. 536. Discovery.

In Milissich v. Lloyds, W. N. 1875, 200; 36 L. T. 423, an action for libel, an application by the defendant to have the question of libel tried before the question of damages was refused by Lush, J., who said, "'I do not think that I could in this case separate the question of damages from the question of fact without injury to the plaintiff." In Dent v. Sovereign Life Assurance Co., 27 W. R. 379; W. N. 1879, 33, the validity of a life policy being the matter in dispute, an application by the plaintiff that the issue, whether the deceased was a man of temperate, or intemperate, habits, should be tried first, was refused by V.-C. Bacon, who said that "this particular issue could not be so severed from the rest of the case as to admit of its being heard separately by a jury." Libel action.

Where the plaintiff, who had been injured in a railway accident, signed a receipt for a sum of money paid to him in full satisfaction of all claims, but, having subsequently become totally blind, he brought an action for damages, the question of law whether, owing to his conduct, the action was not maintainable, was directed to be tried first by a Judge alone before the trial of the issues of fact: Ellen v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 49 W. R. 396. Release of action.

The Rule applies not merely to questions of fact, but to mixed questions of law and fact: Tasmanian Ry. Co. v. Clark, supra; Simson v. New Brunswick, etc., Co., 5 T. L. R. 148.

See also Tattersall v. National Steamship Co., W. N. 1884, 32, and Pooley v. Driver, 5 Ch. D. 458.

74.—(1) Trustees, executors, and administrators may sue and be sued on behalf of, or as representing, the property or estate of which they are trustees or representatives, without joining any of the persons beneficially interested, and shall represent them; but the Court may Trustees, executors and administrators.

Rule 74.

at any time order any of them to be made parties in addition to, or in lieu of, the previous parties. C.R. 193.

(2) This Rule shall apply to an action to enforce a security by foreclosure or otherwise. Eng. Rule 130.

(Note.—As to parties to foreclosure actions where no personal representative. See 10 Edw. VII. ch. 56, sec. 10.)

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 130, and an extension of Chy. O. 61.

Trustees represent their c. q. t.

The effect of Rule 74 is that in litigation with strangers, trustees and executors represent their cestuis que trustent: Re Cooper, Cooper v. Vesey, 20 Ch. D. 611; Bulley v. Bulley, 8 Ch. D. 489; Brooke v. McLean, 5 Ont. 209; thus in a suit for redemption a trustee of the equity of redemption has been held to sufficiently represent the trust estate: Mills v. Jennings, 13 Ch. D. 639; 6 App. Cas. 698; sub nom. Jennings v. Jordan; see Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844; so trustees of real estate, in a partition suit under The Partition Act: Stace v. Gage, 8 Ch. D. 451; Simpson v. Denny, 10 Ch. D. 28; Goodrich v. Marsh, W. N. 1878, 186; In re Cooper, Cooper v. Vesey, supra, one of four trustees under a will was a beneficiary and son of the testator and bore the same name. He, personating the testator, mortgaged the trust estate, and applied the mortgage money for his own use. After his death the remaining trustees brought an action against the mortgagees and beneficiaries to have the mortgage declared void. It was held that the plaintiffs represented the beneficiaries, and that the latter were improperly made parties, and an order directing the mortgagees to pay their costs was therefore reversed on appeal.

Next of kin.

In an action to establish a will, the executors do not sufficiently represent the next of kin, nor does one of the next of kin sufficiently represent the rest; all should be made parties: Cornell v. Smith, 14 P. R. 273; O'Sullivan v. Phelan, 14 P. R. 278; Gunn v. Corson, 11 C. L. T. 47; and see Clifton v. Crawford, 18 P. R. 316.

Where persons are joined with trustees as defendants on the ground that they have become constructive trustees, all are equally liable: there is no primary or secondary liability as between them: Cowper v. Stoneham, 68 L. T. 18.

Action by c. q. t. against trustee.

Where the action is brought by a cestui que trust in respect of an alleged breach of trust, the trust estate must be represented, e.g., where the trustees have died, and none been appointed in their stead, the personal representative of the last surviving trustee must be before the Court, or new trustees must be appointed and made parties to the action, because a cestui que trust has no legal title to the trust estate, and it is always necessary that the party having the legal title to the property in question shall be a party to the litigation: Re Jordan, 1904, 1 Ch. 260.

Where the subject of a settlement was an equitable chose in action and the legal estate was not in the trustees of the settlement, but in the trustees under a prior will who were charged with mis-application of the fund, the cestui que trust was held entitled to institute the suit: Pigot v. Stewart, W. N. 1875, 69.

Notwithstanding this Rule where the interests of the cestuis que trustent are in conflict with those of the trustee, they should all be made parties: see Meldrum v. Scorer, 56 L. T. 471. Rule 74.

A cestui que trust may probably also still be properly joined where the chief object of the suit is to affect the right of the cestui que trust: Liddell v. Deacon, 20 Gr. 72; Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844; or the trustee has an adverse interest: Payne v. Parker, L. R. 1 Chy. 327; or there is a question of fraud: Read v. Prest, 1 K. & J. 183. When c. q. t. necessary party.

Where the action is against a personal representative to recover a debt due by the deceased, if the defendant does not plead and prove plene administravit, he is liable to be personally ordered to pay the costs of the action; but when the action is brought for foreclosure as well as to enforce a covenant for the payment of the mortgage debt, only so much of the costs as relate to the claim on the covenant should be ordered to be paid by an executor or administrator personally: Miles v. Brown, 15 P. R. 375. Liability of personal representative not pleading plene administravit.

In an action respecting the realty of a deceased person, where the personal representatives neglect to register a caution under The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119) s. 13, the parties beneficially entitled to such realty as heirs or devisees, sufficiently represent it after the lapse of 3 years: see Ramus v. Dow, 15 P. R. 219; and The Devolution of Estates Act, s. 13. Action by heirs or devisees.

Where a party was only agent and not trustee, the principal was required to be made a party: Wright v. Mills (No. 2), 63 L. T. 186.

The question of the beneficiaries being parties, or not, is now entirely in the discretion of the Court: see Jennings v. Jordan, 6 App. Cas. 698; 45 L. T. 593. It has been laid down that in the exercise of this discretion, wherever the suit is to set aside the trust, or is adverse to the rights of the beneficiaries, the Court should require one or more of the beneficiaries to be made parties: Read v. Prest, 1 K. & J. 183; Baker v. Trainor, 15 Gr. 252; Payne v. Parker, L. R. 1 Ch. 327; and see Thomas v. Torrance, 1 Chy. Ch. 46, and Clarke v. Cook, 23 Gr. 110; Liddell v. Deacon, 20 Gr. 72. Discretion of Court as to requiring c. q. t. to be made parties.

It would seem that, notwithstanding the general terms of Rule 74, it is only where the trustee has the like absolute control over the trust estate which an executor has over personalty, that he can, in general, be said to sufficiently represent his cestui que trust: Cox v. Barnard, 5 Hare, 253. As to the extent to which the personal representative prior to The Devolution of Estates Act represented those interested in the realty: see Eccles v. Lowry, 23 Gr. 167. Under The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), ss. 3, 4, the personal representative may, if his letters of administration extend to the realty, as fully represent those interested in the realty as he does those interested in the personalty: see Malone v. Malone, 17 Ont. 101; see, however, Keen v. Codd, 14 P. R. 182; Watts v. Lane, 84 L. T. 144; and Ramus v. Dow, supra. Where, however, the beneficiaries are infants or persons not sui juris, they are usually required to be added as defendants.

In a suit for administration, by a plaintiff claiming as a beneficiary under a will, but whose title was doubtful, one of the cestuis que trustent was required to be added as a party before the hearing, in order to have an opportunity to argue the question of the plaintiff's title: Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844.

Rule 74.

Cases where c. q. t. required to be added.

In a suit to execute the trusts of a will, where the trustee had only a power of sale on the death of tenants for life who were still living, the parties interested in remainder were ordered to be added: Cox v. Barnard, 5 Hare, 253; where the plaintiff claimed under an assignment, the validity of which was denied by the trustee, who set up that the heir of the assignor was entitled to the trust estate, the heir was required to be added: Miller v. Ostrander, 12 Gr. 349.

Cases where c. q. t. not required to be added.

For cases where the cestui que trust was not required to be added under the former practice, see H. & L., 2nd ed., pp. 320-321.

Effect of representation of c. q. t. by trustee.

Effect of Representation.—Where the action is brought by, or against, a trustee without adding the cestuis que trustent as parties, if the question in issue has been fairly tried, all parties represented by the trustee would, generally speaking, seem to be concluded by the judgment, but not otherwise: Eccles v. Lowry, 23 Gr. 167. Thus a decree made after replication filed, dismissing a bill brought by an official assignee, was, in the absence of fraud, conclusive against the creditors of the estate of which he was assignee: Morrison v. Robinson, 19 Gr. 480, and see Jardine v. Wood, 19 Gr. 617.

Where, however, a suit by trustees had failed for want of evidence, it was held that a subsequent suit might be maintained for the same purpose by the cestui que trust on the discovery of new evidence: Pierce v. Brady, 2 Jur. N. S. 772. See, however, Commissioners, etc., of London v. Gellatly, 3 Ch. D. 610; 24 W. R. 1059; Morrison v. Robinson, 19 Gr. 480.

Actual knowledge of, and acquiescence in, the proceedings, and an acceptance of the benefit thereof, may preclude a person interested from afterwards disputing their validity, even though he were not sufficiently represented in such proceedings: see In re Lart, 1896, 2 Ch. 788.

Parties to Foreclosure Actions.—The Devolution of Estates (R. S. O. c. 119) provides as follows:—

Who to be defendants in actions for foreclosure, where no personal representative of mortgagor.

"10.—(1) Where there is no legal personal representative of a deceased mortgagor of freehold property it shall be sufficient for the purposes of an action for the foreclosure of the equity of redemption in, or for the sale of, such property that the person beneficially entitled under the last will and testament, if any, of the deceased mortgagor, or under the provisions of this Act, to such property or the proceeds thereof, be made defendant to such action, and it shall not be necessary that a legal personal representative of the deceased mortgagor be appointed or made a defendant thereto unless it shall be otherwise ordered by the Court in which the action is brought or by a Judge thereof; but if during the pendency of such action the equity of redemption devolves upon or becomes vested in a legal personal representative of the mortgagor he shall be made a party to the action.

"Mortgagor," meaning of.

(2) In sub-section 1 the word mortgagor shall include the assignee of a mortgagor and any person entitled to or interested in the equity of redemption: 10 Edw. VII., c. 56, s. 10."

This section it will be observed is a sort of converse to Rule 74: for while the Rule provides that a trustee may represent his cestui que trust, this section virtually provides that the action may in certain circumstances be carried on against the beenficiaries without the presence of a fiduciary representative of the estate. Where the mortgaged property is more than sufficient to pay the incumbrances thereon, it would seem to be desirable that the personal representative should always to be made a party, otherwise it is difficult to see how the rights of the creditors will be safeguarded. Rule 78.

The section applies only to mortgages of freeholds; and therefore to foreclose the equity of redemption in personal property a personal representative of a deceased mortgagor would still be a necessary party to the action.

The "Sale" referred to in this section must mean a sale of property at the instance of a mortgagee for the purpose of realizing the mortgage debt, and would not include an action for a sale by a creditor or other person not being a mortgagee, although possibly an action to enforce a lien on freehold property might be held to be within the section.

In an action for foreclosure, although since The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), the record may as a matter of title be complete with the general administrator as sole defendant, yet as a matter of procedure the infant children of the deceased intestate mortgagor are proper parties, and should, as a rule, be made parties, unless good reason exists for omitting them: Keen v. Codd, 14 P. R. 182, and in Watts v. Lane, 84 L. T. 144, a devisee beneficially interested in the equity of redemption was required to be added as a defendant. But where the mortgagor had devised his lands to his executors, the latter were held to be the only necessary defendants to an action for foreclosure, even though the widow and children of the deceased mortgagor were in actual possession of the mortgaged premises: Emerson v. Humphries, 15 P. R. 84; and see Re Booth v. Kettlewell, 67 L. T. 551. Foreclosure actions. Infant parties.

Where the trustee was bankrupt: Francis v. Harrison, 43 Ch D. 183; and even where not bankrupt: Griffith v. Pound, 45 Ch. D. 553; Wavell v. Mitchell, 64 L. T. 560, it has been held that he does not sufficiently represent his c. q. t. as defendant in an action for foreclosure unless he is also personal representative of the mortgagor: S. C. 65 L. T. 851; Re Booth & Kettlewell, 67 L. T. 551.

In a suit for foreclosure, where a trustee was defendant and was bankrupt, the cestuis que trustent were added: Francis v. Harrison, 43 Ch. D. 183.

75. Where there are numerous persons having the same interest, one or more may sue or be sued, or may be authorized by the Court to defend, on behalf of, or for the benefit of all. C.R. 200. Where parties are numerous.

This is the same as Eng. (1883) R. 131, and corresponds with what had long been the practice of the Court of Chancery: see Dan. Ch. Pr., 5th ed. 207, et seq., 1088; Thomson v. Victoria Mutual Company, 29 Gr. 56.

The object of this Rule is to avoid the expense and inconvenience of bringing before the Court a numerous body of persons all having the same interest: Ward v. Benson, 3 O. L. R. 199; and to prevent a denial of justice: see observations of Lord Macnaghten: Taff Vale Ry. v. Amalgamated Society, etc., 1901, A. C. 426; 85 L. T. 147.

Rule 75.

A plaintiff suing under this Rule must frame his writ accordingly, see Rule 5 (1), and Hynes v. Fisher, 4 Ont 76; and the class should be specified as accurately as possible: Marshall v. S. Staffordshire Tramways Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 36; and he should specify shortly those for whom he sues, in the title of the action: see per North. J., Re Tottenham, 1896, 1 Ch. 628; and other cases cited in notes to Rule 5 (1) supra, p. 317.

By whom order should be made.

Under C. R. 200 a Judge of the High Court only could exercise the jurisdiction conferred by this Rule; Local Judges, the Master in Chambers, and other judicial officers, could not do so: Chisholm v. Herkimer, 19 O. L. R. 600; and if the jurisdiction under this Rule is not included in Rule 207 (4), that case would still seem to govern; but if the jurisdiction may now be exercised under that clause by a Judge in Chambers, then it is not excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers and Local Masters by Rules 206, 209. It follows that if a Judge in Chambers has no jurisdiction, then the application for an order under this Rule must now be made in Court.

A plaintiff is under no obligation to obtain the leave of the Court to sue on behalf of others besides himself. He cannot, however, sue for others as to matters in which he is not also himself individually concerned: see infra.

A defendant has no authority to defend for other persons than himself unless authorized by the Court so to do under this Rule.

The Rule does not authorize the making of an order on the plaintiff's application for the appointment of a solicitor to defend for a number of persons in the same interest who are already defendants to the action: Taff Vale Ry. v. Amalgamated Society, etc., supra, p. 435.

Plaintiffs in class actions.

Plaintiffs.—A plaintiff can only sue under this Rule where he has the same interest as all the members of the class he claims to represent: see Parkinson v. Wainwright, 72 L. T. 495; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 23 Ont. App. 566; Herman v. Wilson, 32 Ont. 60; and where a person suing on behalf of himself and others is disentitled to sue on his own behalf, he cannot do so on behalf of the others interested: Dillon v. Raleigh, 13 Ont. App. 53; Harris Maxwell Larder Lake Mining Co. v. Gold Fields, 23 O. L. R. 625.

Shippers of part of a cargo sued the ship-owners on behalf of themselves "and all other shippers," for "breach of contract and duty," but it was held that as regards "all other shippers" the plaintiffs could not maintain the action: Markt v. Knight S. S. Co., 1910, 2 K. B. 1021; 103 L. T. 369; but in De Hart v. Stevenson, 1 Q. B. D. 313, it was held that one part-owner of a ship might sue under this Rule on behalf of himself and his co-owners for freight. So also one underwriter on behalf of all: Leathley v. McAndrew, W. N. 1875, 259; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 58; one of a number of co-owners of a patent: Sheehan v. G. E. Ry., 16 Ch. D. 59; or bondholders: Frazer v. Cooper, Hill & Co., 21 Ch. D. 718, or policy holders in an insurance company: Thomson v. Victoria Mutual Company, 29 Gr. 56; or shareholders of a company: International Wrecking Company v. Murphy, 12 P. R. 423; see also Bergman v. McMillan, W. N. 1881, 39; Ellis v. Bedford, 1899, 1 Ch. 494; 1901, A. C. 1, 80 L. T. 332; 83 L. T. 686.

Debenture holders' action.

Where a plaintiff described himself as suing on behalf of himself and all other debenture holders of the defendant company, "and its predecessors in title," the fact being that the plaintiff was the debenture holder of a company which had been dissolved, and which had transferred its business to the defendant company, it was held that the description of those on whose behalf the plaintiff sued was too vague, and that he should describe himself as suing on behalf of all other debenture holders of the (naming the Company) "now dissolved": Marshall v. South Staffordshire T. Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 36. Rule 75.

An action cannot be brought by a plaintiff on behalf of himself and other persons to recover damages for conspiracy or any other tort: Murray v. Clopp, 33 C. L. J. 771: Canadian Cordage Co. v. Lea, 11 O. L. R. 171; 37 S. C. R. 672; and see Temperton v. Russell, 1893, 1 Q. B. 435; nor "on behalf of himself all other owners of cargo not being shippers of cargo contraband of war" claiming damages arising out of the capture of the vessel for having on board contraband of war: Market v. Knight, S. S. Co., 1910, 2 K. B. 1021; 103 L. T. 369. Torts.

A plaintiff cannot join a claim by himself and others of a class asserting rights on behalf of the class with a claim asserting public rights which can only be asserted by the Attorney-General: Parsons v. London, 3 O. W. N. 55.

A plaintiff in a class suit under this Rule cannot be compelled to disclose the names and addresses of the persons on whose behalf he sues: Leathley v. McAndrew, W. N. 1875, 259.

In Stroud v. Lawson, 1898, 2 Q. B. 44; 78 L. T. 729, it was held that notwithstanding Rule 60, a claim cannot be joined by a plaintiff individually with one by him on behalf of a class.

Quite independently of this Rule any number of persons claiming mechanics' liens on the same property may join in an action to enforce their liens, and an action brought by one lien-holder is to be taken as brought on behalf of all other lien-holders on the property in question: see The Mechanics' Lien Act (R. C. O. c. 140) s. 32.

Defendants.—To bind the absent parties, an order must be made under this Rule authorizing one or more persons to defend on behalf of all persons interested: Re Richerson, 1893, 3 Ch. 146; 3 R. 643; Fairfield v. London, W. N. 1895, 64; Saragossa Ry. Co. v. Collingham, etc., 1904, A. C. 159; and an order may be made against the will of the persons so authorized to defend: Wood v. McCarthy, 1893, 1 Q. B. 775; 69 L. T. 431. Defendants in class actions.

It should be shown that the parties having the same interest are numerous, before a party can be authorized to defend on "behalf of all": Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552.

The officers of an unincorporated benevolent society may be sued, to compel them to make a levy for the plaintiff's benefit on the members of the society in accordance with its rules, and an order may be made under this Rule authorizing them to represent both themselves and the other members of the society: Wood v. McCarthy, supra. Benevolent society.

The Rule, however, is held not to authorize an order being made enabling a plaintiff to sue for an alleged tort, some members of a club as representing themselves and all other members of the club: Scully v. Ontario Jockey Club, 4 O. W. N. 379.

Apart altogether from this Rule the executive officers of an unincorporated club may be sued personally, for contracts entered into by them on behalf of the club: see Aikins v. Dominion Live Stock Clubs.

Rule 75.

Ass., 17 P. R. 393; Pears v. Stormont, 24 O. L. R. 509. But it has recently been held that in an action for debt against an unincorporated society, a representative order cannot be made under this Rule so as to enable a judgment recovered against some of the members to bind all: Wolker v. Sur, 1914, 2 K. B. 930; 109 L. T. 888.

In Andrews v. Solmon, W. N. 1888, 102 (see also Ib. 176), defendants were authorized to defend an action for tort on behalf of all the members of the committee of the club.

Voluntary unincorporated societies.

It has been held that there is jurisdiction under this Rule to make an order that some of the officers of a voluntary unincorporated association (e.g., a trade union), may be sued as representing themselves and all other members of the association, to restrain torts by the members of the association, or to recover damages for torts committed by the association, or its servants, or agents; but in order to levy against the property of the association, it would appear to be necessary that the persons or trustees in whom such property is vested should also be made parties to the action: Metallic Roofing Co. v. Local Union, etc., 5 O. L. R. 424; 9 O. L. R. 171; and see S. C. (sub nom. Metallic Roofing Co. v. Jose), 12 O. L. R. 200; 14 O. L. R. 156; 1908, A. C. 514; 99 L. T. 742; (*) and see Taff Vale Ry. v. Amalgamated Society of Engineers, 1901, A. C. 426; 85 L. T. 147; and Wallace v. Railroad Telegraphers, 5 O. W. R. 788; but such a society (not being registered anywhere by its name so as to constitute it a quasi corporation, such as was sued in the Taff Vale case) cannot be sued in its own name: see Kingston v. Salvation Army, 7 O. L. R. 681; Metallic Roofing Co. v. Local Union, 5 O. L. R. 424; 5 O. W. R. 95; Small v. American Society of Associated Musicians, 5 O. L. R. 456; Sellars v. Dutton, 7 O. L. R. 646; Ward v. Lowthian, 4 O. W. R. 502; Logan v. Hurlburt, 2 Unt. App. 623, but, after a trade union had appeared and pleaded in an apparently corporate capacity, it was held to be too late at the trial to raise the objection that it was not in fact incorporated, or liable to be sued. Such an objection must be specially pleaded: Krug Furniture Company v. Berlin Union of Amalgamated Workers, 5 O. L. R. 463.

Injunction.

Where the plaintiff sought an injunction against a musical protective association to restrain them from making a member of that body break a contract with the plaintiff and made the president and six other officers or leading members of the association defendants as representing the association, an order was granted directing that the defendants might be sued and authorized to defend on behalf of all the members of the association: Small v. Hyttenrouch, 6 O. L. R. 388.

* On an application to enforce an order in this case by attachment of money in a bank at the credit of an account headed, "Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' Union, No. 30" (said to be the defendants, the Local Union), payable out on cheques signed by three officers of the Local Union, it was held that the members of the Union, other than those who had been made defendants to represent all members, though bound by the judgment, were not parties to the action; and that the money in the bank not being the property of the representative defendants, was not exigible under a judgment against them: see 10 O. L. R. 108. But see per Meredith, C.J., as to whether property of the Local Union might have been exigible under a judgment differently framed. In this case one of the persons to whose credit the money sought to be attached stood, was Alex. Kay, and he does not appear to have been a party defendant.

This Rule was acted on in a case where certain charitable bequests in a will, if held invalid, would go to the next of kin, and four of the next of kin besides the widow of the testator, and the Atty.-Gen. as representing the charities, had been served, and it appeared that there were a large number of next of kin, many of whom were unknown, and service upon others would be difficult and expensive. An order was made declaring that the next of kin were sufficiently represented by those before the Court: Gillies v. McConochie, 18 C. L. J. 179; see S. C., 3 Ont. 203. Rule 75. Charities.

The Rule applies only to persons who have, or claim, some proprietary right, which they are asserting or defending. It was therefore held not to authorize a plaintiff to sue in tort several presidents of defendant trades unions and societies as representing not only themselves, but all the members of their respective societies: Temperton v. Russell, 1893, 1 Q. B. 435; 4 R. 302.

Where an action is brought to establish a will, unless so ordered, one of the heirs or next of kin does not sufficiently represent the others. As a general rule all should be made parties: Cornell v. Smith, 14 P. R. 275; O'Sullivan v. Phelan, 14 P. R. 278; Gunn v. Corson, 11 C. L. T. 47; and see Clifton v. Crawford, 18 P. R. 318.

Effect of Representation of a Class.—In suits by one on behalf of all others of a particular class, the other members of the class, if fairly represented, are bound by the judgment: Commissioners of Sewers v. Oelloty, 3 Ch. D. 610; Leothley v. McAndrew, W. N. 1878, 38; 2 Ch. Ch. Ca. 24; Burt v. British Nation Life Assurance Association, 4 De G. & J. 158, 174; Borker v. Walters, 8 Beav. 97. But semble not so as to enable execution to be issued against any person not actually a party: see supra, p. 438. Effect of representation order.

An order authorizing a person to represent a class only binds those whose interests are identical with the rest of the class; persons belonging to the class, but having other interests, may however be bound by acquiescence; if any member of a class having notice of the proceedings conceives that his interests are not properly represented, he may apply to be made a defendant: see Rule 134; Young v. Holloway, 1895, P. 87; 72 L. T. 118; but if he lie by he may be bound by the judgment: see Re Lort, 1896, 2 Ch. 788; 75 L. T. 175.

The same rule holds good where one of the class, on behalf of which the plaintiff claims to sue, objects to the proceedings; he may on applying, be made a party defendant: Wilson v. Church, 8 Ch. D. 552; Fraser v. Cooper, Hall & Co., 21 Ch. D. 718; and that is the proper course if he is really not represented by the plaintiff. He cannot otherwise appeal from an order obtained by the plaintiff: Watson v. Cove, 17 Ch. D. 19; unless perhaps in a case where a person has already been made a defendant in the same interest as the applicant, and appointed under this Rule to represent that interest: see Fraser v. Cooper, etc., supra.

A person fairly represented will not be allowed to attend the proceedings unless he is joined as a party: Conybeare v. Lewis, 48 L. T. 327. And, as a rule, he will not be joined as a party where he is fairly represented: Ib. Party represented may not attend proceeding.

But where the object of the action was to fix the parties represented with liability, a party so represented on being brought in the Master's office, on appeal from the Master's certificate, succeeded practically in reversing the judgment so far as he was concerned, although he did not in terma appeal therefrom: Wise v. Perpetual Trustee Co., 1903, A. C. 139; 87 L. T. 569.

Rule 75.

Party represented not bound by consent judgment.

Peraons authorized by the Court to defend an action on behalf of othera having the aame interest, have no power to consent on behalf of such othera to judgment; the proper courae, in case there is no defencc, ia for the repreaentative to suhmit the righta of such other person to the judgment of tbe Court, and the judgment should he so drawn up: Rees v. Richmond, 62 L. T. 427.

Compromise.

In Collingham v. Sloper, 1901, 1 Ch. 769, the Court held that it had no juriadiction to ilmit a time within which unascertained bondholders muat come in, or be excluded from the benefit of n compromise. As to whether represented partles are bound by a compromise order: see S. C., 1904, A. C. 159, and Eng. Rule 131 A; and Rule 78, post.

Dominus litis.

Where an actlon is brought by a plaintiff on behalf of himself and other persons of the same class, he continues dominus litis, until judgment, and the other peraons interested are bound to see that it is prosecuted to judgment, otherwise it may be compromised, or dismissed, for want of prosecutlon: Smith v. Doyle, 4 Ont. App. 477; or on the settlement of the plaintiff's claim: Driffill v. Ough, 13 O. L. R. 8. Before judgment, one of the class on whose behalf the actlon is brought, has no right to intervene, and claim to prosecute the action: Ib. Tbis rule, however, probably does not apply in the case of actlons to enforce mechanics' liens: see McPherson v. Gedge, 4 Ont. 246. After a judgment for the plaintiff in a class action, any peraon of the aame class as the plaintiff may intervene and apply to prosecute the nctlon if the plaintiff declines to do so: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Tinning, 29 C. L. J. 614; and after judgment in such suit a certificate of lis pendens will not be vacated on the plaintiff's consent: Arnbery v. Thornton, 6 P. R. 190; In re Alpha Co., 1903, 1 Ch. 203. The Court refused, after payment of the plaintiff's claim before judgment, in an actlon by a creditor on behalf of himself and all other creditors, to set aside a chattel mortgage, to add another creditor as plaintiff: Driffill v. Ough, supra.

Where the judgment is not in favour of the plaintiff, the aame considerations do not apply, and another member of the class is not entitled to be substituted for the plaintiff in order to appeal from tbe judgment: Macdonald v. Toronto, 18 P. R. 17.

But where aeveral ratepnyers combined in taking proceedings to quash a hy-law which were prosecuted in the name of one of tbeir numher who was afterwards corruptly induced to countermand the notice of motion to quash given hy him; on the application of tbe others they were allowed to continue the proceedings in his name, upon indemnifying him as to costs: Re Ritz v. New Hamburg, 4 O. L. R. 639.

The general rule is that all persons intereated in the questions raised in an action should be made partiea; and resort should be had to representation only where some speciai reason exists for not bringing all proper partles before the Court: Gunn v. Corson, 11 C. L. T. 47, and, as a general rule, where an actlon is hrought to establish a will, all heirs or next of kin should be made partles, as well as the devisees, or legatees: Cornell v. Smith, 14 P. R. 275; O'Sullivan v. Phelan, Ib., 278, note.

The Court may execute some only of several trusts.

The Court may under the Rules execute one or more of several specific trusts embraced in an instrument without making all the persons interested in the other trusts embraced therein parties: Parnell v. Hingston, 3 Sm. & G. 337. But aome of the partles interested on both sides of the question involved must be before the Court: Swallow v. Binns, 9 Hare App. xlvii. The Court has refused to permit a plaintiff at the hearing to strike out the names of defendants whom he had improperly omitted to serve with a subpœna to hear judgment, and proceed in their absence although such parties had merely a nominal interest: Lanham v. Paris, 1 Jur. N. S. 1201, and see Quantz v. Smelzer, 6 P. R. 298; but where at the hearing it was discovered that an order pro confesso against certain defendants had been vacated by a subsequent amendment, the Court pronounced a decree saving the rights of such defendants: Waddle v. McGinty, 15 Gr. 261. Rule 76.

Formerly a decree for foreclosure could not be made against some only of the parties interested in the equity of redemption: Caddick v. Cook, 32 Beav. 70. But where the parties interested in the equity of redemption are numerous, the Court may, under Rule 490, award judgment and direct that parties so interested be made parties in the Master's Office, but such order can only be made when one or more parties interested in the equity of redemption are already parties to the action. Foreclosure.

The Rules as to parties apply to applications made under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), and some out of several parties entitled to the equity of redemption were held entitled to apply under that Act for a reconveyance: Re Sharpley's Trusts, 1 W. R. 271. The Rules also apply to parties to special cases: Swallow v. Binns, 9 Hare App. xlvii.; Re Brown, 29 Beav. 401. Application under Trustee Act.

Where all persons interested in the questions raised in an action, or other proceeding, are not before the Court either as parties, or ordered to be represented by persons who are parties, the Court may, nevertheless, proceed in their absence, saving their rights: see Rule 89; or it may under this Rule authorize some person to sue or be sued on behalf of the absent parties, or it may in the case of deceased persons having no personal representatives: Rule 90; or in the case of unborn or unascertained persons: Rule 77; appoint some person to represent the absent parties. Saving rights of unrepresented parties.

When the Court proceeds under Rule 89 in the absence of any parties interested, the absent parties are not bound by the proceedings: Doody v. Higgins, 9 Hare App. xxxii., unless an order has been made for their representation by some person who is a party to the proceedings: Re Richerson, 1893, 3 Ch. 146.

And it would seem that no order made under this Rule authorizing one person to defend for another, could render such other person liable on the judgment recovered in the action; even though such person were a member of a numerous body, and it would be an impossibility to make them all parties: see Walker v. Sur, 1914, 2 K. B. 930; 109 L. T. 288.

76. Where the right of an heir-at-law or of the next of kin, or of a class, [or of an unborn person], depends upon the construction of an instrument, and it is not known or is difficult to ascertain who is such heir-at-law or next of kin or class, and the Court deems it convenient to have the question determined before the heir-at-law, next of kin or class in question is ascertained, Persons appointed to represent a class.

Rule 76.

[or before the birth of any unborn person], the Court may appoint some person to represent the heir-at-law, next of kin or class, [or unborn person], and the judgment of the Court shall be binding upon the person or class [or unborn person] so represented. C. R. 201.

Unborn persons.

The extension of this Rule, by the words in brackets, to the case of an unborn person, follows C. R. 1312 of 23rd June, 1894. In other respects the clause is substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 154.

The Rule is thus wider than the English Rule, under which the Court has no power to appoint a person to represent a class of which there is no member in existence, e.g., unborn children: Re Whiting's Settlement, 1905, 1 Ch. 96.

The jurisdiction conferred by this Rule in reference to the construction of documents is extended to other cases by Rule 77.

As to the constitutionality of such an enactment: see Ashbury v. Ellis, 1893, A. C. 339.

To enable the Court to act under this Rule, an order must be obtained: see Re Richerson, 1893, 3 Ch. 146; 3 R. 643.

As to when the rights of unascertained persons may be determined, and as to their representation by trustees: see Cardigan v. Curzon-Howe, 1901, 2 Ch. 479; Re Whiting's Settlement, 1905, 1 Ch. 96.

Under former C. R. 201, on which Rule 76 is based, the Local Judges, the Master in Chambers and other judicial officers had no jurisdiction in Chambers to make orders: Chisholm v. Herkimer, 19 O. L. R. 600.

It might perhaps be argued that the combined effect of Rules 207 (4), 208 and 210 is now to give them jurisdiction to make orders under this Rule, but semble, a Judge having jurisdiction to adjudicate on the construction of the document in question is the proper tribunal to make an order under this Rule, and he may do so either in Court or in Chambers: see Rule 207 (4).

Examples.

Examples.—Where upon the construction of a will, questions had arisen as to what classes of representatives of the testator were entitled, and great difficulty was foreseen in attempting to find the heir, who in the result might be held not entitled, an order was made under this Rule appointing persons to represent the various classes of persons, some or one of which might be held to be entitled, before the questions of construction came on to be decided: Re Peppitt's Estate, Chester v. Phillips, 4 Ch. D. 230.

In Re Hoke, Pownall v. Pryor, W. N. 1895, 116, plaintiffs, the legal representatives of the last surviving executor or trustee under a will, were appointed to represent the next of kin for the purposes of the determination, on the construction of a will, whether, in the events which had occurred, the residuary estate was undisposed of.

Persons interested in an estate, the subject of an administration action to which they have not been made parties, and whose rights or interests may be affected by an order directing accounts and inquiries, are not bound by proceedings under that order, at any rate where they ought to be served, unless they are served with notice of the order, or an order has been made appointing a member of their class to represent them: May v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347. Rules 77, 78.

In Re Rees, Rees v. George, 49 L. J., Chy. 568, persons who had not been parties, but had been served with notice of the decree, were directed to be served with notice of hearing on further consideration, where an order was asked against them personally: sed quære, whether relief can in any case be properly granted against persons who are not parties: see Hooper v. Harrison, and other cases cited in notes to Rule 404.

In Re Pringle, 17 Ch. D. 821, an action by legatees for construction of a will, the defendants the executors, two of the next of kin, were at the hearing authorized to represent the absent next of kin.

In Cook v. Fearn, 27 W. R. 212, representation of an unascertained class, viz., the next of kin of the plaintiff, was dispensed with.

See also Lovesy v. Smith, 15 Ch. D. 655; Hobbs v. Reid, W. N. 1876, 95; and Beale v. Ruston, W. N. 1878, 179; Moore v. Sinkin, 53 L. T. 815.

An order appointing a person to represent a class, such as next of kin, is not binding on one of the next of kin who has a distinct and independent interest in another capacity: Re Lart, 1896, 2 Ch. 788; 75 L. T. 175.

A person not a party to the action, nor technically bound by the judgment, but who was fully cognizant of the proceedings, and stood by and took the benefit of a decision on the construction of a will under which a particular fund was distributed, was held to be estopped by his conduct from re-opening any of the questions covered by the decision by means of a fresh action, relating to another fund under the same will: Ib.

77. The Court may appoint some person to represent, for the purposes of any action or proceeding, the interest of any person or class, who may be not ascertained or who may be unborn, and the judgment of the Court shall be binding upon the person or class so represented. C.R. 237. Court may appoint representative of unascertained, or unborn persons.

The reference to C. R. 237 at the end of this Rule appears to be erroneous, and should be C. R. 200 (2): see notes to Rule 76: Rule 76 is limited to cases where the construction of documents is in question, but the present Rule enables the Court to make an order for the representation of unascertained or unborn persons in any other action or proceeding where the interests of such persons may be involved. It is usually only where such representation is required for the purpose of adjudicating on the rights of persons in esse that orders under this Rule will be made.

78. Where in a proceeding concerning a trust a compromise is proposed and some of the persons interested in the compromise are not parties to the proceeding, but there are other persons in the same interest before the Court and assenting to the compromise, the Court Court may sanction compromise concerning trusts so as to bind absent persons.

Rule 79.

if satisfied that the compromise will be for the benefit of the absent persons, and that to require service on them would cause unreasonable expense or delay, may approve the compromise and order that the same shall be binding on the absent persons, and they shall be bound accordingly, except where the order has been obtained by fraud or non-disclosure of material facts. New. See Eng. Rule 13*a*.

The Court had always power in a properly constituted action to bind the members of a class represented in the action, though not actually parties, by an adjudication in due course of law, but it could not bind them by a compromise, though sanctioned by the Court. The power conferred by this Rule is new, and the Court is thereby empowered to bind absent parties by a compromise which it sanctions: Saragossa & M. Ry. Co. v. Collingham, 1904, A. C. 159; Re Wrigglesworth, 1901, N. W. 172. The Rule gives no power to bind dissentient parties, and provision must be made for satisfying the claims of dissentients in full before the Court will sanction the compromise: see Collingham v. Sloper, supra, p. 490.

The Rule it must be noted is confined to compromises concerning a trust.

Cases where one of a class may sue without joining others.

Residuary legatee, etc.

79. A residuary legatee, or next of kin, may have a judgment for the administration of the personal estate of a deceased person without serving the other residuary legatees or next of kin. C.R. 202.

The reference to C. R. 202 at the end of this Rule is erroneous. It should be C. R. 203 (1) a.

The English (1888) RR. 155-160, are to the same effect as Rules 79-84.

Scope of Rule.

The object of Rules 78-85 is to save unnecessary expense, and where unnecessary parties are joined in the action, the Court will refuse to charge the estate with extra costs thereby occasioned: Rodgers v. Rodgers, 13 Gr. 457; Bradley v. Wilson, Ib. 645, and it would seem that the plaintiff may be ordered to pay such costs.

Persons interested in an estate the subject of administration proceedings to which they have not been made parties, and whose rights may be affected, are not bound by the proceedings, where a reference is ordered, unless they are served with notice of the judgment: see Rule 87; or an order has been made appointing a member of their class to represent them: see Rules 76-77; May v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347. But where no reference is ordered it does not appear to be required by any Rule that the copy of the judgment or order made on the application should be served on any of the persons interested, who, under Rules 78-85, need not be made parties.

Persons not parties must be served with judgment.

Although in the several cases mentioned in this Rule the action may be commenced and judgment obtained without making all persons interested parties to the action, yet the persons who but for this Rule, would be necessary parties to the proceedings must, under Rule 87, wherever a reference is directed, be served with a copy of the judgment, unless the Court or Master, dispense with the service, and it is not until "after such service," that they are bound by the proceedings. Whether persons upon whom service of judgment is dispensed with, are bound by the proceedings as if they had been actually served, is not stated in the Rule, and it is possible that they would not be so bound: see Doody v. Higgins, 9 Hare App. xxxii. Rule 79.

Notwithstanding Rules 79-85, all persons from whom an account is sought, must be made parties in the first instance: Latch v. Latch, L. R. 10 Chy. 464; Walker v. Seligmonn, L. R. 12 Eq. 152; Rolph v. C. C. Building Society, 11 Gr. 275, 278-9; Hopper v. Harrison, 28 Gr. 22; Re Par' ', 66 L. T. 151; and the judgment cannot be varied under Rule 87, post, at the instance of persons served with the judgment so as to direct the taking of accounts for which no foundation is laid in the pleadings: Foster v. Foster, L. R. 3 Chy. 330, at all events not without giving the party from whom an account is sought an opportunity to adduce evidence to shew that the account should not be ordered; and persons served with the judgment have no greater right to call the original defendants to account, than they would have if such persons had been originally made co-defendants in an action; thus in an action by a remainderman for an account, it was held that a tenant for life served with the judgment could not claim an account of the income: Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Chy. 513. Persons from whom an account is sought should be made parties.

All persons in the same interest with the plaintiff, necessary to be made parties, except perhaps infants, should be made co-plaintiffs; where they are made defendants in consequence of their refusal to join as plaintiffs, they will be refused their costs: Ling v. Smith, 25 Gr. 246.

Where the action is brought by one of several residuary legatees, the plaintiff sufficiently represents all the residuary legatees, and the others are not entitled, as of course, to appear in the Master's Office by a separate solicitor, and if they do, they may be refused their costs; to entitle them to costs some sufficient reason should be stated in the Master's report, for their being represented by a separate solicitor: Gorham v. Gorham, 17 Gr. 386. Action by residuary legatee.

The legal personal representative is ordinarily a necessary party to an action for general administration, and it is necessary to allege that the person named as the legal personal representative has proved the will, or obtained letters of administration, as the case may be: Penny v. Watts, 2 Ph. 149; Re Marshall, Fowler v. Morshall, 1 Chy. Ch. 29; Kelly v. Ardell, 11 Gr. 579; Simons v. Millmon, 2 Sim. 241; Lowry v. Fulton, 9 Sim. 104; Zimmermon v. O'Reilly, 14 Gr. 646; Groves v. Lane, 16 Jur. 1061; Cooke v. Gittings, 21 Beav. 497; Beardmore v. Gregory, 2 H. & M. 491; Cary v. Hills, L. R. 15 Eq. 79; Dowdeswell v. Dowdeswell, 9 Ch. D. 294; Rowsell v. Morris, L. R. 17 Eq. 20. But probate, or administration, obtained by the alleged personal representative pendente lite before the trial of the action, will be sufficient to bind the estate: Bateman v. Margerison, 6 Hare, 496; Trice v. Robinson, 16 Ont. 433; Doyle v. Diamond Flint Glass Co., 8 O. L. R. 499; and semble, will relate back to the commencement of the action so as to bar the running of the Statute of Limitations: Dini v. Fauguier, 8 O. L. A. 712 (casting doubt upon, if not overruling, Chord v. Rae, 18 Ont. 371); Johnston v. Dominion of C. G. & A. Co., 17 O. L. R. 462; and this was held even though the objection was taken by defendant in his answer: Edinburgh Life Assurance Co. v. Allen, 19 Gr. 593; and see Stump v. Bradley, 15 Gr. 30; McDonold v. McDonald, 14 Gr. 133

Rule 79.

(where probate was not obtained until after judgment); but where the executor had applied for, and had obtained an order for the grant of probate, but it had never actually obtained probate: after his death, a judgment recovered against him as executor was held not to bind the estate: Mohomidu v. Pitchey, 1894, A. C. 437; 71 L. T. 99. Judgment for the general administration of a deceased person's estate cannot be granted against an executor de son tort without a legal personal representative being a party: Rowsell v. Morris, L. R. 17 Eq. 30; Outrom v. Wyckhoff, 6 P. R. 150; Re Kirkpatrick, 10 P. R. 4; but see Re Lovett, 3 Ch. D. 198; formerly it was otherwise: see former C. R. 196. Neither can judgment for administration be granted against one of several executors who have proved, even though the absent executor be out of the jurisdiction: Re Freeborn, Freeborn v. Carroll, 6 P. R. 188; Latch v. Lotch, L. R. 10 Chy. 464. All the executors who have proved, and all who have acted, even though they have not proved, are necessary parties: Vickers v. Bell, 4 D. J. & S. 274; Hump v. Robinson, 3 D. J. & S. 97; Lotch v. Lotch, supra; but an executor who has renounced, or who has neither proved nor acted, need not be made a party: Forsyth v. Droke, 1 Gr. 228; Wittis v. Walker, 1 Vern. 90 (n) 2; Stinson v. Stinson, 2 Gr. 508. Where the plaintiff brought a suit for administration against one of three executors and trustees, alleging in the bill that the others had never acted, and the bill having been served by publication, on a hearing pro confesso the Court refused to make a decree in the absence of the other two executors and trustees as parties, or of proof of the facts alleged accounting for their not being made parties: Lane v. Young, 17 Gr. 100. The renunciation of an executor under The Surrogate Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 62), s. 59, is peremptory and cannot be recalled on the death of the acting executor: Aitcn v. Porke, 17 C. P. 105; and see Foxwell v. Kennedy, 24 O. L. R. 189; and after renunciation he cannot execute a power of sale given to him, quo executor: Trovers v. Gustin, 20 Gr. 106; and see Re Delaronde, 19 Gr. 119. As to the acts which will render an executor liable, notwithstanding his renunciation of probate: see Vonnatto v. Mitchett, 13 Gr. 665.

Personal representative a necessary party to action for administration.

Real representatives, when necessary parties.

Where an action relates to the realty as well as the personalty, unless the executor is also trustee, or devisee, of the realty, or of some part of it: Stewort v. Hunter, 14 Gr. 132, or entitled thereto under The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), s. 4, it is necessary to join the heir, or if the lands be devised, then the devisee, or one or more of the devisees: Calvert, 151, 153. But execution against the lands of a deceased person might, prior to The Devolution of Estates Act, be issued upon a judgment against his personal representative, although those interested in the realty were not parties to the action: The Execution Act (R. S. O. c. 80), s. 36, and see McEroy v. Clune, 21 Gr. 515.

Representatives of deceased executors.

The representative of a deceased executor who fully accounted to the surviving executor, need not be made a party: Webster v. Leys, 28 Gr. 471; and in an action for a general account against surviving trustees, the representatives of a deceased trustee were held not to be necessary parties to the writ, but they may be added at any time under Rule 134 if necessary: Re Harrison, 64 L. T. 442.

An executor proving the will, after judgment has been obtained, against another executor who has previously proved, might formerly have been added as a party by a supplemental order: Guthrie v. Wolrond, 22 W. R. 723; and it would seem he might under the present practice be brought before the Court under an order to continue proceedings: see Rules 300, 301. A general decree for administration was granted in a creditor's suit against an administrator ad litem, it being alleged in the bill that there was no personal estate, and the parties interested in the realty having allowed the bill to be taken pro confesso against them: Dey v. Dey, 2 Gr. 149, but see remarks of Spragge, C., in Gorrow v. McDonald, 20 Gr. 130; and The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), s. 4. Rule 79.

An action for protecting the estate until probate cannot be joined with an action for administration; formerly a bill so framed was demurrable for want of parties: Rawlings v. Lambert, 1 J. & H. 458; Overington v. Word, 34 Beav. 175; and see Tempest v. Camoys, 35 Beav. 201; and Cole v. Glover, 16 Gr. 392; but now any objection to an action on the ground of the absence of necessary parties, can not, under The Judicature Act, be taken by demurrer; the question must be raised on motion to add the necessary parties: Werderman v. Société Générale D'Electricité, 45 L. T. 514, 18 C. L. J. 18; 19 Ch. D. 246; Young v. Robertson, 2 Ont. 439; Carter v. Clarkson, 15 P. R. 379; Smith v. London, 19 O. L. R. 139; and see Rule 134. Action for protection of estate until probate.

The removal of the assets out of the jurisdiction will be restrained by injunction even though the deceased's domicil was out of the Province: Shaver v. Gray, 18 Gr. 419. Removal of assets may be restrained.

No action can be brought by a legatee, or next of kin, against a personal representative before a year has elapsed from the death of the testator, or intestate: The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), s. 32; Slater v. Slater, 3 Chy. Ch. 1; Vivian v. Westbrooke, 19 Gr. 461; but see Wollis v. Wallis, 9 Ir. Chy. 511; Prosser v. Mossop, 29 W. R. 439. But an action for the protection of the estate simply, may be brought by a legatee, or next of kin, against an executor de son tort before the lapse of the year: Beardmore v. Gregory, 2 H. & M. 491; but not for administration as well: Rawlings v. Lambert, 1 J. & H. 458; Overington v. Ward, 34 Beav. 175. Formerly the High Court had no power to appoint an executor, in place of executors who had become incompetent to act through bodily infirmity, that could only be done by the Surrogate Court; nor would the High Court appoint a trustee in place of such executors: Corrigal v. Henry, 2 Gr. 310; but in Re Moore, 21 Ch. D. 778, under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), a trustee was appointed to discharge the duties of an executrix who retired: and see Re Murphy, before Boyd, C., 9th April, 1887; Re Bush, 19 Ont. 1. But where an executor had become insolvent, a receiver was appointed: Harrold v. Wallis, 9 Gr. 443; and see Meachom v. Draper, 2 Gr. 316; and now jurisdiction to remove executors and appoint others in their stead has been conferred on the Supreme Court: see The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 40: see p. 25 supra. No action for administration lies by legatee, or next of kin, within a year of death. Formerly High Court could not appoint trustee in place of executor.

Where the personal representative has duly advertised for creditors under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 56, and has distributed the estate, that is an answer to a subsequent action against him for administration, by a legatee: see Newton v. Sherry, 1 C. P. D. 246; or by a creditor: Clegg v. Rowland, L. R. 3 Eq. 368; or by an alleged cestui que trust of the deceased: Re Bracken, 43 Ch. D. 1; 61 L. T. 531; even though he have retained money in his hands to answer legacies, because from the time he sets apart moneys to answer legacies, he ceases to hold them as executor, and becomes then a trustee thereof for the legacies: Ib.; Cameron v. Campbell, 27 Gr. 307; Ballard v. Marsden, 42 L. T. 763; Galbraith v. Duncombe 28 Gr. 27; but see When personal representative has distributed estate after advertising under statute, administration refused.

Rule 79.

Noble v. Brett, 24 Beav. 499. But if he has notice of a creditor's claim, he is not discharged because it was not sent in: Wood v. Wood, Markwell's Case, 21 W. R. 135; Re Land Credit Co. of Ireland, W. N. 1872, 210; and if the advertisement is insufficient he is not protected: Wood v. Weightman, L. R. 13 Eq. 434.

Account in Surrogate Court.

Where also there had been an accounting in the Surrogate Court by the personal representative, and no objection made for eight years, the right to a further account in the High Court of Justice was held to be barred: Bell v. Landon, 18 C. L. J. 178.

Personal representative distributing estate without advertising under statute, remains liable to creditors.

Personal representatives distributing an estate without advertising under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 56, or without the authority of the Court, remain liable to a creditor, though they had no notice of his claim: Knatchbull v. Fearnhead, 3 My. & Cr. 122; Noble v. Brett, 24 Beav. 499; Jeffreys v. Jeffreys, 19 W. R. 464; and also to legatees; and where the executor has distributed under a mistaken construction of the will he is liable to the parties injured: Hilliard v. Fulford, 4 Ch. D. 389; Boulton v. Peard, 3 D. M. & G. 608; Doyle v. Bloke, 2 Sch. & L. 243; but he would have a right to recoup himself out of any further payments due to those who had been overpaid: Dibbs v. Goren, 11 Beav. 483; and would also seem entitled to call on them to refund the money overpaid them, but not any interest thereon: Jervis v. Wolferstan, L. R. 18 Eq. 18; Boys' Home v. Lewis, 3 O. L. R. 208.

Publication of the advertisement in the Ontario Gazette is not necessary: Re Comeron, 15 P. R. 272.

Infant not liable to account.

An infant executor or administrator is not liable to account for assets received by him whilst a minor: Nosh v. McKoy, 15 Gr. 247; Hindmarsh v. Southgate, 3 Russ. 324; Merchants' Bank v. Monteith, 10 P. R. 334; 20 C. L. J. 377. But a judgment for an account against a trustee who has received moneys while an infant ought to be general in its terms, and not confined merely to his receipts after he comes of age: In re Garnes, 31 Ch. D. 147.

Payment of legacy is admission of assets.

Payment of a legacy in full, is primâ facie an admission of assets to pay all legacies in full, but it is open to explanation: Coleman v. Whitehead, 3 Gr. 227. Where an executor in a residuary account stated that he retained £500 to meet outstanding legacies he was held to be precluded from afterwards showing that the statement was a mistake: Brewster v. Pryor, 55 L. T. 771.

Administration refused when estate small.

Administration has been refused, where the estate was sworn by the executors not to have exceeded $50: Foster v. Foster, 19 Gr. 463; but see Re Falconer, 1 Chy. Ch. 273; and where the plaintiff's claim as legatee only amounted to $28, notwithstanding it was alleged that there were other legacies for a considerable sum remaining unpaid, administration was refused, though the suit was unopposed: Reynolds v. Coppin, 19 Gr. 627. Administration has also been refused where the applicant was a partnership creditor of the deceased whose separate estate proved to be insufficient to pay his separate creditors: Re Barnard, Edwards v. Barnard, 32 Ch. D. 447; 55 L. T. 40.

This Rule applies to applications for administration on summary applications in Chambers, under Rules 608, 610; but it is to be noted that this Rule is confined to actions by a residuary legatee, or next of kin, and Rule 80 is confined to actions by a legatee interested in a legacy charged upon real estate, and therefore neither of these extends to actions by specific legatees, or pecuniary legatees whose legacies are not charged on real estate.

Rules 80-82.

Legatee whose legacy is charged on realty.

80. A legatee interested in a legacy charged upon real estate, or a person interested in the proceeds of real estate directed to be sold, may have a judgment for the administration of the estate of a deceased person without serving any other legatee or person interested in the proceeds. C.R. 202.

The reference to C. R. 202 is erroneous, it should be C. R. 203 (1) b.

See notes to Rule 79.

Residuary devisee or heir.

81. A residuary devisee, or heir, may have the like judgment, without serving any other residuary devisee, or heir. C.R. 202.

The reference to C. R. 202 is erroneous, it should be C. R. 203 (1) c.

See notes to Rule 79.

One of several c. q. t. may sue.

82. One cestui que trust, under an instrument, may have a judgment for the execution of the trusts of the instrument, without serving the other cestuis que trustent. C.R. 202.

The reference to C. R. 202 is erroneous, it should be C. R. 203 (1) d.

A new trustee may be appointed in an action by one of several cestuis que trustent: Jones v. James, 9 Hare, App. lxxx.

A suit by one of two cestuis que trustent to recover an annuity charged upon land devised to the defendant, was held maintainable without making another cestui que trust interested in another annuity charged on the same land, a party: Rees v. Engleback, L. R. 12 Eq. 225.

But parties who claim adversely to the trust could not formerly be made parties to a suit for the execution of the trust: Attorney-General v. Avon Corporation, 3 De G. J. & S. 637, where it is said that Talbot v. Earl of Radnor, 3 My. & K. 252, to the contrary had been constantly disapproved of, and never followed; but see now Rules 67, 68.

Persons from whom account required, must notwithstanding be parties.

All persons from whom an account is required must be made original parties to the action: see note, p. 445; thus a cestui que trust who has been party to a breach of trust, is a proper party: Jesse v. Bennett, 6 D. M. & G. 609; and a stranger or a creditor who has joined in the breach of trust may be joined: Lund v. Blanshard, 4 Hare, 9; Bank of Toronto v. Beaver & Toronto Mutual Fire Insurance Co., 26 Gr. 102; Consett v. Bell, 1 Y. & C., C. C. 569; Stainton v. The Carron Co., 18 Beav. 146. But if a trustee commits a breach of trust, the person participating is not a necessary party to an action for the general administration of the trust estate: Tiffany v. Thompson, 9 Gr. 244.

Where a trustee held shares for several persons in specified shares, but no provision was made for sale or division of the proceeds, an action by one of the c. q. t. for transfer to him of his alleged portion of the shares was held to be not properly constituted: Bechtel v. Zinkann, 16 O. L. R. 72.

Rules 83, 84.

Where a suit was brought by a remaindsrman for an account against trustees, tho tenants for lifs who wers served with the decree, were held not entitled to call the trustees to account as to the income: Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Chy. 513.

Execution of trust in foreign country.

Ths Court will decree ths execution of a trust of lands in n foreign country when ths trustee is resident within the jurisdiction: Smith v. Henderson, 17 Gr. 6; and see Re Robertson R. v. R., 22 Gr. 449; but see Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547; 94 L. Sale by trustee restrained in suit by one of several c. q. t.

Where property was offered for sals hy a trustee under depreciatory conditions of sale as to title, the snle was restrained in a suit instituted hy one of several cestuis que trustent: Donce v. Goldinghom, L. R. 8 Chy. 902; hut see The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 21.

Where the action is necessary and proper, and has resulted in benefit to the co-owners, they may be compelled to hear their proportion of the expense of ths action, according to the advantage they are shown respectively to bave derived from the proceedings: Gage v. Mulholland, 16 Gr. 145.

One tenant in common is entitled to maintain an action for injury to the reversion without joining his co-tenants. The only question would bs whether non-joinder of the co-tenants is a reason for staying proceedings till they ars joined: Roberts v. Holland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 665.

Administration against one c. q. t.

84. An exeeutor, administrator, or trustee, may obtain a judgment against any one legatee, next of kin or cestui que trust, for the administration of the estate or the execution of the trusts. C.R. 202.

The refcrence to C. R. 202 is erroneous, it ought to be C. R. 203 (1) f.

In action for administration by personal representative, special circumstances must be shewn.

Whers an action for administration is hrought hy the personal representative, soms epecial circumstances requiring the intervention of the Court must be shown: Cole v. Glover, 16 Gr. 392; Barry v. Barry, 19 Gr. 458; Grant v. Grant, 10 P. R. 211; 18 C. L. J. 99. It seems that hs hss no right to institute an action merely to ohtain nn indemnity by passing his accounts: White v. Cummins, 3 Gr. 602; Cole v. Glover, 16 Gr. 392. As to whether a deficiency of assets to pay debts in full is alone a sufficient reason, seems douhtful: Sweetnam v. Sweetnam, 6 P. R. 149; Re Ette, 6 P. R. 159; Re Shipman, Wallace v. Shipman, 24 Or. 177; Marsh v. Marsh, 7 P. R. 129; Re Jock, Jack v. Jock, 13 C. L. Where there were leaseholds it was held that the executor was entitled to bring an action in order to obtain indemnity against liability on the covenants in the lesse: Re Bosworth, Howard v. Easton, 45 L. T. 136; Dodson v. Sammell, 1 Dr. & Sm. 575; 4 L. T. 44; but see The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 54; In re Lawley, Jackson v. Leighton, 1911, 2 Ch. 530. The absence of a legatee beyond the jurisdiction, whom the executors are unable to discover, was held to be a sufficient ground for the executors coming to the Court: Re Wade, Dee v. Wade, 18 Gr. 485. Rule 85.

Where the action is unnecessarily brought by the personal representative, he may be ordered to pay costs, or may be refused his costs: see cases cited in note to Rule 611. He may be ordered to pay costs.

An executor may begin an action before obtaining probate, but he must obtain probate before trial: Newton v. Metropolitan Railway Co., 1 Dr. & Sm. 583; Trice v. Robinson, 16 Ont. 433; or before a defence is filed that he is not executor: Simons v. Millman, 2 Sm. 241; but see Edinburgh Life Insurance Co. v. Allen, 19 Gr. 593; and the same rule applies to administrators: Humphreys v. Humphreys, 3 P. Wms. 350; see also supra pp. 445-6. Executor may begin suit before probate.

Where an executor, before probate, brought an action to recover an asset of the estate, which the defendant had refused to deliver up until probate should be obtained, the action was stayed as being frivolous and vexatious: Tarn v. Commercial Banking Company, 12 Q. B. D. 294; 50 L. T. 365; and an executor intermeddling with the estate before probate may be restrained from so doing, and a receiver may be appointed at the suit of a co-executor: In re Moore, 13 P. D. 36; 58 L. T. 386.

An executor cannot, under this Rule, bring an action against one of two co-executors who have proved, without making the other a party: Latch v. Latch, L. R. 10 Chy. 464. Executor suing one of several co-executors.

An action may be brought by a trustee against his co-trustee to recover and secure the trust fund, without joining any of the cestuis que trustent as parties: Horsley v. Fawcett, 11 Beav. 565; Baynard v. Wooley, 20 Beav. 583; May v. Selby, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 235; Peok v. Ledger, 4 De G. & S. 137; Franco v. Franco, 3 Ves. 75; and an action may also be brought by the trustee against one cestui que trust to recover the trust fund, without making the other cestuis que trustent parties: Bridget v. Hames, 1 Coll. 72. But e. q. t. need not be joined.

An executor who advanced money to pay the price of certain land held by his testator as lessee with a right of purchase, was held entitled to enforce his claim against the land, for the advances so made, the personal estate being exhausted: Lannin v. Jermyn, 9 Gr. 160. Action by personal representatives to enforce claim against realty.

A personal representative who is a creditor of the estate may, where the personalty is exhausted, obtain judgment against a devisee for administration of the realty devised. To such an action the heir-at-law was a proper party; but where the devisee made no objection in his answer to his not being joined, and the plaintiff alleged by his bill that there were no lands descended, a decree was made in the absence of the heir, for the administration of the realty: Tiffany v. Tiffany, 8 Gr. 158; but see now The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), s. 3.

85. An assignee of a chose in action may sue in respect thereof without making the assignor a party. C.R. 202. Assignee of chose in action may sue without joining.

The reference to C. R. 202 is erroneous, it should be C. R. 203 (1) g.

A chose in action, though assignable in equity, was not assignable at common law. Where such an assignment was made, any action to recover it had to be brought at common law in the name of the assignor, and any defence which the defendant had as against the assignor, even though accruing after the assignment, might be set up in the action; but in equity the assignee might sue in his own name, and the defendant could not successfully set up any defence arising after he had notice of the assignment as against the assignor in answer to the claim. Rule 85 and the enactments hereafter mentioned are a partial adoption of the equity doctrine concerning assignments of choses in action.

Rule 85.

By The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 49, it is enacted as follows:—

Assignment of debt and choses in action.

"S. 49.—(1) Any absolute assignment made on or after the 31st day of December, 1897, by writing under the hand of the assignor, not purporting to be by way of charge only, of any debt or other legal chose in action of which express notice in writing shall have been given to the debtor, trustee or other person from whom the assignor would have been entitled to receive or claim such debt or chose in action, shall be effectual in law, subject to all equities which would have been entitled to priority over the right of the assignee if this section had * been enacted, to pass and transfer the legal right to such debt or chose in action from the date of such notice, and all legal or other remedies for the same and the power to give a good discharge for the same without the concurrence of the assignor.

Where several claimants under assignment.

(2) In case of an assignment of a debt or other chose in action, if the debtor, trustee or other person liable in respect of the debt or chose in action shall have had notice that such assignment is disputed by the assignor or anyone claiming under him, or of any other opposing or conflicting claims to such debt or chose in action, he shall be entitled, if he thinks fit, to call upon the several persons making claim thereto to interplead concerning the same, or he may, if he thinks fit, pay the same into the Supreme Court under and in conformity with the provisions of law for the relief of trustees, 1 Geo. V. c. 25, s. 45."

This section is taken from 60 Vict. c. 15, s. 5, whereby the law of Ontario on this point was assimilated with that of England under the English Judicature Act, 1873, 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 25 (6).

For a discussion of the English cases bearing on this section: see 108 L. T. Jour. 436.

Scope of enactment.

Scope of the Enactment.—This section is not retrospective in which respect it differs from the Eng. Act: see Dibb v. Walker, 1893, 2 Ch. 429. Assignments of choses in action made prior to 31st December, 1897, are probably still governed by R. S. O. 1897, c. 122: see (R. S. O. c. 1), s. 14 (c).

The effect of the clause is to give the assignee of a chose in action a legal, where he formerly had a merely equitable, title. In other respects the enactment does not give new rights, but only affords a new mode of enforcing old rights: Walker v. Bradford Bank, 12 Q. B. D. 511, 515. It does not make anything an assignment which was not theretofore an assignment either at Law or in Equity: Schroeder v. The Central Bank, 24 W. R. 710; as, for instance, a claim, the assignment of which is against public policy, such as a bond to secure alimony payable to a married woman: Reiffenstein v. Hooper, 36 U. C. Q. B. 295; Re Robinson, 27 Ch. D. 160; and see Watkins v. Watkins, 74 L. T. 636. It only enables an action to be brought by the assignee in his own name where previously he would have sued in the assignor's name: Torkington v. Magee, 1902, 2 K. B. 427. Rule 85.

The enactment transfers the legal remedies, as well as the legal rights, of the assignor; thus, the assignee of a judgment debt is enabled to garnish debts due to the judgment debtor: Goodman v. Robinson, 18 Q. B. D. 332. The assignee does not, however, acquire any greater right than his assignor had, and therefore the assignment of an agreement to advance money by way of loan does not create a debt, and confers no right on the assignee to compel the specific performance of the agreement, or to recover damages for its breach, unless some specific fund is bound by the agreement: Western Wagon Co. v. West, 1892, 1 Ch. 271; South African Territories v. Wallington, 1898, A. C. 309; 78 L. T. 426; May v. Lane, 43 W. R. 58, 193; 71 L. T. 869; Roxburghe v. Cox, 17 Ch. D. 520; Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. 199. Act transfers legal remedies

A cheque is a mere order to pay and a revocable request, and does not purport to be an absolute assignment: Schroeder v. The Central Bank, supra, p. 52. After a cheque has been marked good by the bank, however, the drawer is discharged and the bank becomes the principal debtor: Boyd v. Nasmith, 17 Ont. 40; see further as to payment by cheque: Day v. McLea, 22 Q. B. D. 610; Mason v. Johnston, 20 Ont. App. 412; and see post, p. 458. Cheque not an assignment.

The Act is held not to apply to assignments of part of a chose in action: Forster v. Baker, 1910, 2 K. B. 636; 102 L. T. 29, 522; Seaman v. Canadian Sicicart Co., 2 O. W. N. 576; sed vide, Shipper v. Holloway, 1910, 2 K. B. 630. Assignment of part.

An assignment of an indefinite and unascertained part is, therefore, not within the Act, and the assignee cannot sue in his own name: Jones v. Humphreys, 1902, 1 K. B. 10.

The assignee of a chose in action is in no better position than his assignor: Re Rhodesia, Partridge v. Rhodesia, 1910, 1 Ch. 239; 102 L. T. 126. The enactment does not affect the principle of equitable assignments: Sovereign Bank v. International Portland Cement Co., 14 O. L. R. 511. Assignee in no better position than assignor.

The provisions of this enactment are not binding on the Crown: Re Powell v. The King, 9 Can. Ex. 364. On grounds of public policy the salary of a Dominion official is not assignable: Ib.

"Debt or other Legal Chose in Action."—These words include "all rights, the assignment of which a Court of Law or Equity would before the Act have held to be lawful": King v. Victoria Ins. Co., 1896, A. C., pp. 254, 256; see also Colonial Bank v. Whinney, 30 Ch. D., pp. 285, 286; 11 App. Cas. p. 438, as to what are "choses in action." See also Warren's Choses in Action, Bk. I., c. II. The former Act, R. S. O. 1887, c. 116, s. 7, was confined to choses in action "arising out of contract": see Blair v. Assclstine, 15 P. R. 211. What choses in action are within Act.

If the contract is not itself assignable, then a claim for damages for its breach is not assignable: Cohen v. Webber, infra.

Contracts involving a personal element are not, as a rule, assignable, thus claims for breach of contract for personal services, e.g., for singing, are not assignable: Cohen v. W[illegible] O. L. R. 171; nor contracts

Torts.

Damages for injury to a horse is not assignable: McCormack v. Toronto Ry., 8 O. W. R. 467; 13 O. L. R. 656; but the prospective fruits of an action for tort may be assigned: Glegg v. Bromley, 106 L. T. 825.

Equitable choses in action.

The enactment does not appear to extend to all choses in action, but only to debts or other legal choses in action. A claim for damages for a tort is a legal chose in action, but it is not within the section, not being ejusdem generis as a "debt": see supra; and equitable choses in action do not appear to be within the section, but the former equitable right of the assignee to enforce such choses in action in his own name is not taken away, and continues. In Dawson v. Great Northern Ry., 1904, 1 K. B. 277, reversed, 1905, 1 K. B. 260, it was held that a claim for compensation for damages done to land by a railway company is not in the nature of damages for a tort, and is assignable within this section. In King v. Victoria Ins. Co., 1896, A. C. 250, the Supreme Court of Queensland held that a claim for unliquidated damages arising out of a tort is a chose in action within the corresponding section of the Queensland Jud. Act, which is in the same terms as the English Act, but the Jud. Committee of the Privy Council, on appeal, while not dissenting from that construction of the Act, affirmed the judgment on other grounds. See article in 20 Law Quarterly Review, p. 113.

Matters assignable.

The subjects capable of assignment within section 49 supra, therefore, include debts due: Comfort v. Betts, 1891, 1 Q. B. 737; judgment debts: Goodman v. Robinson, 18 Q. B. D. 332; moneys due under a building contract: Drew v. Josolyne, 18 Q. B. D. 590; Ex p. Moss, 14 Q. B. D. 310; 52 L. T. 188; money accruing due but not yet due: Brice v. Bonnister, 3 Q. B. D. 569; Buck v. Robson, Ib. 686; British Woggon Co. v. Leo, 5 Q. B. D. 149, 154; Walker v. Bradford Bank, 12 Q. B. D. 511, 516; May v. Lane, 43 W. R. 58, 193; 71 L. T. 869; Ex p. Hall, 10 Ch. D. 621; future book debts during a limited time: Tailby v. Official Receiver, 13 App. Cas. 523; moneys accruing due to the assignor as legatee under a will: Re Coleman, 39 Ch. D. 433; a beneficial interest under a policy of insurance: Re Turcan, 40 Ch. D. 5; a future balance at a banker's: Walker v. Bradford Bank, supra; rent accruing: Knill v. Prowse, 33 W. R. 163; or in trustees' hands: Harding v. Harding, 17 Q. B. D. 442; a solicitor's bill of costs: Ingle v. McCutchan, 12 Q. B. D. 518; Ibberson v. Neck, 2 T. L. R. 427; a claim on a policy of insurance of goods before loss, even though the goods are not transferred to the assignee: McPhillips v. London M. F. Ins. Co., 23 Ont. App. 524; a covenant to indemnify against liability under a covenant: Re Perkins, 1898, 2 Ch. 182; 78 L. T. 216, 666; a claim against a purchaser of an equity of redemption for indemnification against the mortgage debt: British Canadian L. Co. v. Tear, 23 Ont. 664; Scarlett v. Nattress, 23 Ont. App. 297; Maloney v. Campbell, 28 S. C. R. 228; Smoll v. Thompson, Ib., 211; Irving v. Boyd, 15 Gr. 162; Glenn v. Scott, 18 C. L. T. 162; McCuaig v. Barber, 29 S. C. R. 126 (in which it was held that the mortgagee had so dealt with the covenant assigned to him that he had disentitled himself to sue at that time upon it); an executory contract for the purchase of a reversionary interest, is assignable under this section as a "legal chose in action"; Torkington v. Magee, 1902, 2 K. B. 427, 431, 435; sed vide S. C. 1903, 1 K. B. 644; 88 L. T. 443. And so executory contract for the purchase of materials for the purposes of a trade is assignable, so as to enable the assignee to sue thereon in his own name: Tolhurst v. Associated Portland Cement Mfrs., 1903, A. C. 414; and see King v. Victoria Ins. Co., supra, p. 454. Rule 85.

"Absolute Assignment."—A deed by which debts are assigned to a trustee to receive them and thereout pay himself a sum due from the assignor, and pay the surplus to the assignor, is an absolute assignment (not purporting to be by way of charge only): Burkinson v. Hall, 12 Q. B. D. 347; Comfort v. Betts, 1891, 1 Q. B. 737; so is an assignment made merely to enable the assignee to sue in his own name: Wiesener v. Rackow, 76 L. T. 449; so is a mortgage of debts due, in the ordinary form with proviso for redemption and reconveyance: Tancred v. Delagoa Bay Ry., 23 Q. B. D. 239, in which Nat. Provincial Bank of England v. Harle, 6 Q. B. D. 626, was disapproved of, and not followed; see also Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 765; 78 L. T. 438. Requisites of assignment within the Act.

An assignment of a debt, though coupled with a covenant by assignee to pay over the assignor the amount of such debt when recovered, less the assignee's costs, is one that may be enforced by the assignee in his own name, and is not open to objection on the ground that it savours of maintenance: Fitzroy v. Cave, 1905, 2 K. B. 364; 93 L. T. 499: sed vide contra, Mills v. Small, 14 O. L. R. 105, and observations on Fitzroy v. Cave in Colville v. Small, infra.

Where an assignment was absolute in form though in trust for the assignee and assignor, it was held that the assignee might sue in his own name, and could not, at the instance of the defendant, be compelled to join the assignor as a party: Colville v. Small, 22 O. L. R. 1; but the assignment in question in that case was subsequently held to be void for maintenance: S. C. 22 O. L. R. 33, 426.

An assignment in these terms: "We hereby charge the sum of £1,080, which will become due to us from J. R. on the completion of the above building, as security for the advances, and we hereby assign our interest in the above mentioned sum until the money, with interest added, be repaid to you," was held not to be an absolute assignment: Durham v. Robertson, supra. So an assignment though in general terms of the whole rights and interests of the assignor, where it appeared from the instrument of assignment that it was "as security for the repayment on demand" of a sum advanced and really an assignment only of sufficient to make the repayment, is not an absolute assignment within the section: Mercantile Bank, etc. v. Evans, 1899, 2 Q. B. 613; 81 L. T. 376. Charge not within Act.

But where the intention to be gathered from the whole instrument is not to assign merely so much of the debt or chose in action as will provide security, but to pass the whole interest of the assignor though subject to an equity of redemption, the assignment will be an absolute one within the section: Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co., 1902, 2 K. B. 190.

In order to entitle an assignee to sue in his own name the assignment must be explicit in its terms, and free from ambiguity: McMillan v. Orillia E. L. Co., 6 O. L. R. 126.

An antecedent debt due by the assignor to the assignee coupled with forbearance and further advances, were held to constitute a good consideration for the assignment of the fruits of a pending action by Consideration,—antecedent debt.

Rule 85.

ths assignor for a tort: Glegg v. Bromley, 106 L. T. 825; but n pre-existing debt, alone, is not "a valuable considsration": see Wigon v. English & S. L. L. Assce, Co., 1909, 1 Ch. 291; 100 L. T. 34.

Form of assignment.

Modo of Assignment.—"In Writing."—Section 49 supro only appiies to an assignment in writing: Re Sutton's Trusts, 12 Ch. D. 175; a written order on trustees of a fund notified to them is a good assignment witbin tbe sub-section: Harding v. Hording, 17 Q. B.. D. 442; so is a lstter from a landiord to a tsnant directing him to psy rent to another person till further order: Knill v. Prowse, 33 W. R. 163; but a direction by A. to pay a debt to B., without referring to a specific fund out of which the payment is to he mads, is not an assignment: Percivol v. Dunn, 29 Ch. D. 132; ses Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. 192; Western Wagon Co. v. West (1892), 1 Ch. 271; 66 L. T. 402; Brandts v. Dunlop, 1904, 1 K. B. 387; 90 L. T. 106; Thomson v. Huggins, 23 Ont. App. 191; and Quick v. Colchester South, 30 Ont. 645; Greenwoy v. Atkinson, W. N. 1881, 47; Southwell v. Scottor, 49 L. J. Q. B. 356; and a discussion in 78 L. T. Jour. 439.

Assignments not within the Act.

Equitable Assignment.—Although, to bring a case within section 49, it is necessary that the assignment shouid be in writing, yet tbe statuts does not invalidate parol assignments of choses in action: see Trusts Corporotion v. Rider, 27 Ont. 593; 24 Ont. App. 157; McMoster v. Canoda Paper Co., 21 C. L. J. 16; which may take priority over a subsequent written assignment: Heyd v. Millor, 29 Ont. 735. Neither a writing nor any particuiar form of words is necessary to constitute an equitable assignment; an intention to pass the beneficial interest is all that is required: Re McRoe Estate, 6 O. L. R. 238; but where there is only a parol assignment ths action to recover ths chose in action must be brougbt in the name of the assignor, or he must be joined as defendant if he refuses an offer of a proper indemnity to allow his name to be used as plaintiff: see Turquond v. Fearon, 4 Q. B. D. 280; 40 L. T. 141; Trusts Corporation v. Rider, 27 Ont. 593; 24 Ont. App. 157. Ths indorsement and delivery to a third party as a gift of a banker's deposit receipt expressed on its face to be unassignabie, was heid to bs a good eqnitable assignment: Re Griffin, 1899, 1 Ch. 408; 79 L. T. 442.

Equitable assignments.

An assignment which may not come within the section. 49 supra, by reason of the absence of writing, notice or otherwise, may be enforceable as an equitable assignment, or cbarge: see Gorringe v. Irwell, 34 Ch. D. 128; Christie v. Tounton, 1893, 2 Ch. 175, 181; Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. 192; Re Patrick, 1891, 1 Cb. 82, 87; Sovereign Bonk v. International Portiond Cement Co., 14 O. L. R. 511.

A present appropriation by order of a particuiar fund not yet realized operates as nn equitable assignment, and a promise or executory agreement to apply a fund in discharge of an obligation has the same effect in equity: Heyd v. Millar, 29 Ont. 735; and see Quick v. Colchester South, 30 Ont. 645; Polmer v. Culverwell, 85 L. T. 758; Re McRoe, 6 O. L. R. 238.

A letter indicating an intention to make an equitable assignment of a fund written to the holder of tbe fund, is operative upon tbe posting of the letter: Alexonder v. Steinhardt Wolker & Co., 1903, 2 K. B. 208; but a request by a creditor to his debtor to agree to pay his debt to a third party, though a good equitable assignment of the debt to such third party, is not an assignment within the meaning of section 49 supra, but it may be nevertheless enforced in the assignee's own name making the assignor a party either as plaintiff or defendant: Brandts v. Dunlop, 1904, 1 K. B. 387; 90 L. T. 106; 1905, A. C. 454; 93 L. T. 495; see the sequel of this case: Kleinwort v. Dunlop, 97 L. T. 263. Rule 85.

A declaration in writing by a debtor that he had for collateral security placed and assigned to his creditor a policy of life insurance, was held to constitute a good equitable assignment: Thomson v. Macdonell, 13 O. L. R. 653.

In all cases where it is alleged that a defaulting trustee has appropriated securities to make good his breaches of trust, and a declaration of trust, or equitable assignment is relied on, the Court must be satisfied that a present irrevocable declaration has been made—mere pencil jottings which the trustee was at liberty to alter from time to time were rejected: Re Cozens Green v. Brisley, 1913, 2 Ch. 478.

Notice in Writing.—The notice may be given after the death of the assignor: Wotker v. Bradford Bonk, 12 Q. B. D. 511; or of the assignee: Botemon v. Hunt, 1904, 2 K. B. 530; 91 L. T. 331. It is in some cases necessary, in order to make the assignment effectual as regards third person, e.g., in the case of book debts to bind the debtor: Tolby v. Official Receiver, 13 App. Cas. 534; but is not necessary as between the assignor and the assignee: Newman v. Newman, 28 Ch. D. 678; Gorringe v. Irwell, 34 Ch. D. 128. Notice of assignment.

The notice must be clear and unequivocal: McMitton v. Orillia E. L. Co., 6 O. L. R. 126.

Where a debt was assigned for the benefit of the creditors of the assignor, a letter of the assignee to the debtor claiming payment was held to be sufficient notice of the assignment: Denney v. Conklin, 1913, 3 K. B. 177; 109 L. T. 444.

Notice of an assignment of funds, in the hands of a trustee, is necessary to be given to the trustees in order to preserve priority as against other chargees or assignees of the same fund.

Notice should be given to all of the trustees; where notice was given to one only of several trustees, and he died, a subsequent assignee of the fund without notice of the prior assignment, who first gave notice to the surviving trustees, was held entitled to priority: Re Phillips, 1903, 1 Ch. 183; 88 L. T. 9.

A subsequent assignee of a chose in action may, by being first to give notice of his assignment to the debtor, obtain priority over a prior assignment, of which he had no notice when he took his assignment: see Marchant v. Morton, infra, p. 458.

An assignee of a reversionary fund who has given notice to the existing trustees is under no obligation to give any further notice, and is consequently entitled to priority over a subsequent assignee who has taken an assignment after the death of all the old trustees, and has given notice to the new trustees: Re Wasdale, Brittin v. Partridge, 1899, 1 Ch. 163.

As to the effect of omitting to give notice: see English and Scottish, etc., Investment Co. v. Brunton, 1892, 2 Q. B. 1, 700; West v. Williams, 46 W. R. 362; Re Phillips, 1903, 1 Ch. 183; Lloyd's Bank v. Pearson, 1901, 1 Ch. 865; McMillan v. Orillia E. L. Co., supra. Effect of omission to give notice.

The omission to give notice in writing to the debtor will not enable an execution creditor of the debtor to acquire priority over the assignee: Rennie v. Quebec Bank, 1 O. L. R. 303; nor semble, a subsequent assignee for creditors: In re Wallis, 1902, 1 K. B. 719; but see Re Neal (1914), 2 K. B. 910.

Rule 85.

After notice of the assignment no valid agreement can be made between the debtor and the assignor to the prejudice of the assignee with reference to the chose in action assigned: Quick v. Colchester South, 30 Ont. 645.

Payment by debtor before notice.

The absence of notice in writing to the debtor, is immaterial where the debtor has paid the debt by cheque to the agent of the assignee, and a third person having notice of the assignment cannot acquire any right to such cheque by execution, or by assignment from the creditor: Eby-Blain v. Montreal Packing Co., 17 O. L. R. 292; but a judgment creditor serving an order attaching the debt on the debtor, before the debtor has received notice of any assignment thereof, or paid the debt, is entitled to priority over the assignee: Vacuum Oil Co. v. Ellis, 1914, 1 K. B. 693.

Where a debtor gives a negotiable cheque in payment of his debt before notice of its assignment, he is not bound to stop payment and take steps to get back the cheque on subsequently receiving notice, but before payment of the cheque. He may properly pay the assignor, who still holds the cheque: Bence v. Shermon, 1898, 2 Ch. 582; 78 L. T. 804.

Priority.

An assignee for creditors cannot by first giving notice acquire priority over a prior assignee for value, or a prior assignment for creditors: Re Anderson, 1911, 1 K. B. 896; nor can priority by giving notice to a debtor be gained by a person having actual notice of a prior assignment: Re Ind. Coope & Co., Fisher v. The Compony, 1911, 2 Ch. 223.

Notice must be given to the person having legal dominion of the fund. A notice given by an assignee to the person who is himself the assignor is not an effectual notice to alter priorities: Re Dallas, 1904, 2 Ch. 385.

The doctrine of obtaining priority by notice does not apply between successive equitable sub-mortgagees of land: Hopkins v. Hemsworth, 1898, 2 Ch. 347.

A debt due to a firm was assigned by one partner to defendant in writing, and subsequently, by the other partner to plaintiff by deed. The plaintiff gave notice of his assignment to the debtor before the defendant did, and it was held that there was a valid equitable assignment, and that the plaintiff having given notice first was entitled to priority: Marchant v. Morton & Co., 1901, 2 K. B. 829; 85 L. T. 169; following Ward v. Duncombe, 1893, A. C. 369; 68 L. T. 129.

Action by assignee.

Action by Assignee.—When an assignment within section 49 supra is made and notice given, the legal right, and legal remedies, are transferred, and the assignee may sue in his own name: see Read v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 132; including the right to set off the debt assigned against a debt due by the assignee to the debtor: Bennett v. White, 1910, 2 K. B. 643; 103 L. T. 52; and see infra.

And since the right is transferred to him he must probably so sue, as was necessary under the repealed Act, R. S. O. 1887, c. 122, s. 7: (see Dawson v. Grahom, 41 U. C. Q. B. 532; Ward v. Hughes, 8 Ont. 138), where the assignee took the beneficial interest: Wood v. McAlpine, 1 Ont. App. 234.

Any equitable right remaining in the assignor may doubtless be enforced by him in the same way as in the case of any other equitable right. Rule 85.

Formerly under R. S. O. 1887, c. 122, the assignee in order to sue alone must have taken the beneficial interest in the claim assigned: Wood v. McAlpine, 1 Ont. App. 234; Scarlett v. Nattress, 23 Ont. App. 297; and where the assignment was by way of security only, the assignor might sue in his own name: Hostrawser v. Robinson, 23 C. P. 350; Dawson v. Graham, 41 U. C. Q. B. 532; Prittie v. Connecticut F. Ins., 23 Ont. App. 449; and see McPhillips v. London M. F. Ins. Co., 23 Ont. App. 524; but under the present section 49 it is only necessary that there be an assignment in writing, absolute in form. It may be an assignment with a trust declared for the benefit of the assignor or others: Burlinson v. Hall, 12 Q. B. D. 347; Comfort v. Betts, 1891, 1 Q. B. 737; or with a proviso for redemption, and reconveyance: Tancred v. Delagoa Bay, 23 Q. B. D. 239; or it may have been made to the assignee as agent of the assignor, and merely to enable the assignee to sue in his own name: Wiesener v. Rackow, 102 L. T. Jour. 577. There is nothing in section 49 to prevent the making of an equitable assignment, or the enforcement of it as it might have been enforced in equity prior to the Jud. Act. Such an assignment, the assignee, quite independently of s. 49, may still enforce in his own name, but there is this distinction, the assignor must be a party to the action as plaintiff, or defendant: Brandts v. Dunlop, 1905, A. C. 454; 93 L. T. 495; Kleinwort v. Dunlop, 97 L. T. 263. Former law. Present law.

In Lee v. Magrath, 10 L. R. Ir. 45, 313, the payee of a promissory note not negotiable, and not then payable, indorsed it as follows: "I indorse the within promissory note for £100 to my sister L.," and delivered it to L. There was no consideration for the indorsement and delivery, but it was found as a fact that the intention was to vest in L. the beneficial interest. The payee died before the note was due, and bequeathed to one of the makers all moneys he should die possessed of, and appointed the legatee executor. Express notice in writing of the indorsement was given to the maker after the payee's death and before action. It was held that as the appointment of the maker of the note executor of the payee, extinguished the debt prior to service of notice of the indorsement, there had been no legal transfer of the debt to L. within this section 49 so as to enable her to bring an action thereon.

Where the assignment is not an "absolute assignment," but purports to be by way of charge, the assignor is a necessary party: see Turquand v. Fearon, 4 Q. B. D. 280; 40 L. T. 141; and may sue in his own name: Walls v. Sault Ste. Marie Paper, etc., Co., 18 C. L. T. 117; 34 C. L. J. 196: see Prittie v. Connecticut F. Ins. Co., 23 Ont. App. 449; Western Waggon Co. v. West, 1892, 1 Ch. 271. Where assignment not absolute.

Where the plaintiff had only a partial assignment, the objection that the assignor should be made a party when taken at the hearing was cured by the assignor appearing by counsel and submitting to be added as a party plaintiff, and to be bound by the proceedings: Yates v. Great Western Railway Company, 24 Gr. 495; his consent in writing to be added as a plaintiff is now necessary: see Rule 134 (2).

Where the assignee sued in his own name, and afterwards desired to amend by adding the assignor as a co-plaintiff, the amendment was refused, the Statute of Limitations having in the meantime run out as against the assignor: Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722.

Equities.

Equities, and Set-off, Against Assignee.—It has been said that the Act does not affect the rule that the assignee of a chose in action takes subject to all equities; and the assignor can give no greater right in equity than he himself possesses: West of England Banking Co. v. Batchelor, W. N. 1882, 11; Roxburghe v. Cox, 17 Ch. D. 520; Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. 199. That rule, however, does not apply to choses in action assignable at Common Law, and therefore does not apply to an assignee of a negotiable security: Taylor v. Blakelock, 32 Ch. D. 560; 55 L. T. 8.

Where a mortgagor gave his solicitor money to pay off a mortgage which he misapplied, but subsequently obtained a transfer of the mortgage to himself and then assigned it for value to a third party without notice, it was held the assignee could not hold the mortgage against the mortgagor as a subsisting security: Turner v. Smith, 1901, 1 Ch. 213; 83 L. T. 704; but see The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 124), s. 73.

A licensee of a patentee takes subject to an equitable assignment of which he has express notice: New Ixion Tyre Co. v. Spilsbury, 1898, 2 Ch. 137, 484.

The fact that the debtor before notice of the assignment has given a negotiable instrument in payment of the debt, is a defence to any claim by the assignee: Bence v. Sheorman, 1898, 2 Ch. 582, supra, p. 458.

Where an assignment is absolute in form, a subsequent assignee for value is not affected by an equity between the original assignor and assignee of which he had no notice: Quebec Bank v. Taggart, 27 Ont. 162.

Set-off of Debts.

Set off.—Where the debt sought to be set off by the debtor is a debt due to him by the assignor, it seems to be clear that the debtor may set off as against the assignee a debt which accrued prior to the time notice of the assignment was received by the debtor: see Christie v. Taunton, 1893, 2 Ch. 175; and payment to the assignor after the assignment but before the notice is good, and may be set off against the assignee: Crawford v. Canada Life Ass. Co., 24 Ont. App. 643. It has also been held that the debtor cannot act off as against the assignee a debt which accrues subsequently to the notice, even though the debt arises out of a liability which existed at and previously to the notice: see Christie v. Taunton, 1893, 2 Ch. 175; unless it flows out of and is inseparably connected with the dealings and transactions which gave rise to the subject of assignment: Ib., and Newfoundland v. Newfoundland Ry. Co., 13 App. Cas. 200, 213. See also Quick v. Colchester S., 30 Ont. 645.

In such cases the debt sought to be set off must arise out of the debt assigned, e.g., in an action by the assignee of a policy of insurance, claims against the assignor on other policies cannot be set off against the assignee: Baker v. Adam, 102 L. T. 248. And a mere cross claim arising out of other transactions between the debtor and the assignee cannot be set off against the assignee: Sovereign Bank v. Parsons, 24 O. L. R. 387; but damages in respect of the breach of the contract assigned may be set off against the assignee: Parsons v. Sovereign Bank, 1913, A. C. 160; 107 L. T. 572.

Rule 88.

Of unliquidated damages.

In regard to unliquidated damages, some change seems to have been made by the repeal of R. S. O., 1887, c. 122, s. 11. Under the present enactment unliquidated damages, under a right of action, accrued before the notice, and also unliquidated damages under a right of action accruing after the notice, if flowing out of and inseparably connected with the dealings and transactions which gave rise to the subject of assignment, may be set off as against the assignee to the extent of his claim: Newfoundland v. Newfoundland Ry. Co., 13 App. Cas. 213; but damages beyond the amount claimed by the assignee cannot be recovered from him.

Thus where the statement of claim alleged that the plaintiff sued as assignee by deed of a debt due from the defendant to the assignor on a building contract, and the defendant pleaded by way of set-off and counter-claim that he was entitled to damages for breaches of contract by the assignor to complete and deliver the buildings at the specified time, whereby the defendant lost the use of them, it was held, on demurrer, that the defendant was not entitled to recover any damages against the plaintiff; but was entitled by way of set-off or deduction from the plaintiff's claim, to the damages which he had sustained by the non-performance of the contract by the assignor: Young v. Kitchin, 3 Ex. D. 127; and see Forquhar v. Toronto, 26 Ont. 356. For cases under R. S. O., 1887, c. 122, s. 11: see Exchange Bank v. Stinson, 32 C. P. 158; Seyfong v. Monn, 27 Ont. 631; 25 Ont. App. 179.

Debts due in another capacity.

The debtor has the right also to set off against the assignee any debt due by the assignee personally to the debtor: Bennett v. White, 1910, 2 K. B. 693; and see Jud. Act, ss. 126-128, supra; but not a debt due by the assignee to the debtor in another capacity: Nelson v. Roberts, 69 L. T. 352.

Fraud as a defence by debtor.

Fraud.—The debtor may also set up fraud, or misrepresentation, on the part of the assignor in reference to the contract, or debt, assigned; but such defence will not be available to him when he has so acted in reference to the subject matter of the contract, or debt, assigned, that he cannot put things back in statu quo: Stoddart v. Union Trust, 1912, 1 K. B. 181; 105 L. T. 806.

The non-disclosure of material facts by a party insured was held to be a defence available to the insurer in an action on the policy by the assignee of the insured: Pickersgill v. London & P. M. & G. Ins. Co., 1912, 3 K. B. 614.

Where several claimants under assignment of debts or choses in action.

Several Claimants.—Sub-section (2) of s. 49, corresponds with the latter part of s.-s. 6 of the English J. A., 1873, s. 25 (6).

A broker to whom shares had been transferred for the purpose of sale may, when rival claims are set up to them by a third party, call on the latter and the transferor, to interplead: Robinson v. Jenkins, 24 Q. B. D. 167.

A debtor, against whom an action has been brought for a debt of which notice of assignment has been given, may call on the claimants to interplead in respect of part of the debt, and dispute the remainder: Reading v. School Board for London, 16 Q. B. D. 686. The application may be made in a pending action, or by a separate proceeding under s. 49: Ib., and McElheran v. London Masonic, etc., 11 P. R. 181. On a separate application under s. 49, s.-s. 2, an action commenced against the debtor cannot be stayed: Reading v. School Board, supra, p. 461, otherwise, if a summary application is made in the action: McElheran v. London Masonic, supra, p. 461.

Rule 86.

To entitle the debtor, trustee, etc., to interplead, sufficient notice of the assignment must be shewn: see Re New Hamburg, etc., Co., W. N., 1875, 239.

Payment into Court.

The provisions of sub-section (2) were held to entitle an insurance company to pay insurance money into Court, where it was claimed by different parties: Re Bajus, 24 Ont. 397.

A banking company, having received notice in writing of conflicting claims to moneys placed with them on deposit, paid such moneys into Court under the Trustee Relief Acts after first deducting therefrom their costs of payment in. Upon petition by one of the claimants for payment out, it was held that the corresponding subsection in the Eng. Act applied only to debts of which there had been an absolute assignment in writing, and that the banking company, not being trustees within the Trustee Relief Acts, were not entitled to pay the deposit moneys into Court thereunder; but it was also held that the petitioner must be taken to have submitted to the jurisdiction under the Trustee Relief Acts by petitioning the Court; and that the bank was entitled to taxed costs of paying in the money, and of the petition: In re Sutton's Trusts, 12 Ch. D. 175: see In re Haycock's Policy, 1 Ch. D. 611; but it is to be noticed that this sub-section, unlike the corresponding Eng. sub-sec., is not in terms confined to an absolute assignment in writing. The provisions of the Trustee Relief Acts are now to be found in The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 38.

Court may require other persons to be joined as parties.

86. The Court may require any other person to be made a party to an action to which Rules 79 to 84 apply, and may give the conduct of the action to such party as it deems proper; and may make such order as it deems just for placing the plaintiff on the record on the same footing in regard to costs as other persons having a common interest with him in the matter in question. C.R. 202.

The reference to C. R. 202 is erroneous; it should be C. R. 203 (2).

See Chy. O. 59.

Where proceedings are necessary against persons who have had dealings with the testator whose estate is being administered, the executor has a right to the conduct of the cause unless misconduct has been proved: Longbourne v. Fisher, 40 L. T. 124.

Where trustees were accounting parties they were not given the conduct of proceedings: Allen v. Norris, W. N. 1884, 118.

Conduct of a sale was given to the party most interested in getting a good price, in Woolley v. Colman, 30 W. R. 769; and Davies v. Wright, 32 Ch. D. 221.

Where the conduct of an administration action is given to a creditor he is entitled to costs as between solicitor and client: Re Richardson, Richardson v. Richardson, 14 Ch. D. 611; 43 L. T. 279.

As a general rule, where two actions for administration have been commenced, the conduct will be given to the plaintiff in the first, even though a judgment may have been first obtained in the second. This rule is not however inflexible. There may be special circumstances which the Court will take into account, such as the object of the first plaintiff in commencing his action, the amount of his interest, and the nature of his claim: Re Swire, Mellor v. Swire, 21 Ch. D. 647; Townsend v. Townsend, 23 Ch. D. 100; Re McRae, Forster v. Davis, 25 Ch. D. 16; or the fact of one of the applicants being an accounting party: Re Curry, Curry v. Curry, 17 P. R. 69. See also Perrin v. Perrin, 3 Chy. Ch. 452, and Re Droggon, 8 P. R. 330. Rule 87.

Where the conduct of the cause was refused to a party, and he appealed, it was held that all parties were interested and should be served with notice: Sephton v. Quillam, 71 L. T. Jour. 264.

87. Where a reference is directed the persons who, but for Rules 79 to 84, would have been necessary parties, shall be served with an office-copy of the judgment (unless the Court or Master dispenses with such service) indorsed with a notice according to Form No. 41, and after such service they shall be bound by the proceedings in the same manner as if they had been originally made parties; and upon notice to the plaintiff they may at their own risk as to costs require notice to be given them to enable them to attend the proceedings under the judgment. Any person so served may apply to the Court to add to, vary, or set aside the judgment within ten days from the date of such service. C.R. 202. Persons who would be necessary parties except for Rules 79-84 when to be served with judgment.

The reference to C. R. 202 is erroneous, it should be C. R. 203 (3).

The Eng. (1883) R. 162, makes the service of such persons necessary only if directed by the Court or a Judge: see Moy v. Newton, in note, supra, p. 444.

The former Rule 208 (3) required service of an office copy of the judgment as a condition precedent to the absent persons being bound thereby, unless such service was expressly dispensed with. This Rule only requires the judgment to be served where a reference is ordered, and not then, if dispensed with.

For form of indorsement on office copy of judgment to be served: see Form No. 41; H. & L. Forms, No. 967.

Office Copy to be Served.—An office copy of the judgment must be served. As to the making and certifying of office copies of judgments: see Rule 192. Office copy to be served.

Who is to be Served.—All parties, who, but for Rules 79-84 would have been necessary parties to the action, who have not been made parties by writ, must be served with the judgment unless service is dispensed with. Infants and persons of unsound mind not so found who are interested must be served: Clarke v. Clarke, 20 L. T. O. S. 88. Before proceedings can be validly carried on against an infant or a person of unsound mind not so found, a guardian ad litem must be All persons who but for Rules 78-84 would have been necessary parties to action, must be serv-

Rule 87.

Infants.

appointed for such person: see Rules 95, 96. Service of the office copy of the judgment on the Official Guardian ad litem seems of itself sufficient to constitute him guardian ad litem for the infant parties requiring to be served under Rule 87; Rules 16, 3 (j). The procedure to obtain the appointment of a guardian ad litem for persons of unsound mind by order is prescribed by Rule 96. Where a guardian ad litem is appointed by order, he must be served with the order appointing him guardian, and with the office copy of the judgment The Official Guardian is usually appointed guardian ad litem: Rule 95 (3).

Lunatics.

Where parties who should be served are not served, and no proper order is made dispensing with service on them, they will not be bound by the proceedings, and they may be opened up on their application, and moneys distributed to their prejudice may be ordered to be refunded with interest: Uffner v. Lewis, 27 Ont. App. 242; S. C., 3 O. L. R. 206; 5 O. L. R. 664. But if a party who should have been served, lie by after notice of the proceedings, and take no step until after the estate is distributed, he may be precluded by laches from thereafter disputing the validity of the proceedings: Mohan v. Broughton, 1900, P. 56; 62 L. T. 29.

Service out of Ontario.

Service out of the jurisdiction may be directed: Rule 25 and 3 (j): see Chambers v. Laurie, 10 Ha. App. xxvii.; Strong v. Moore, 22 L. J. Chy. 917; or substituted service: Rule 16; Dan. Pr., 6th ed., 999; Re Hynes, Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217.

Substituted service.

Service of infant, or lunatic, with judgment, how effected.

Service of Office Copy of Judgment.—Infants.—Service on the Official Guardian of an office copy of a judgment required to be served on an infant, is sufficient service on the infant, and the Official Guardian thereby ipso facto becomes his guardian ad litem: Rule 18 (see Rule 2), and Re Murray, 13 P. R. 367.

A guardian ad litem must be appointed for an infant whether he is made a party in his own right, or in a representative capacity, e.g., as executor or trustee, or the proceedings will be void as against such infant: Re Jackson, Massey v. Crookshanks, 12 P. R. 475, and see infra, Rules 91-94, and notes.

Lunatics.

Lunatics so Found.—Where a person who has been judicially declared a lunatic is required to be served with a judgment, the office copy should be directed to be served on his committee, who should be also made a co-defendant; the service should also be made on the lunatic as well, unless it is shewn that for any reason it is dangerous to serve him personally: Re Miller, 1 Chy. Ch. 215. See note to Rule 96, sed vide, Re Hagar, 12 P. R. 645.

Not so found.

Lunatics not so Found.—Where the person required to be served is of unsound mind, but has not been judicially declared to be a lunatic, the direction of the Master before whom the reference is pending should be obtained under this Rule as to the mode in which he is to be served. By analogy to Rule 21 (see Rule 2) it would appear that the person with whom, or under whose care he is, should be directed to be served; and, unless it is shewn that service on the person of unsound mind would be attended with danger, it would seem that he should be directed to be personally served as well: see Re Miller, 1 Chy. Ch. 215; Re Newman, 2 Chy. Ch. 390; Re Mein, 2 Chy. Ch. 429; Re Webb, 12 O. L. R. 194. No proceedings can be validly taken against a person of unsound mind who has no committee until a guardian ad litem has been appointed: Rule 96: Warnock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

Rule 87.

it is therefore necessary not only to obtain the Master's direction for service of the office copy of judgment on the person of unsound mind under this Rule, but it is also necessary to obtain an order appointing a guardian ad litem to such person. This is to be done by order to be obtained in Chambers on motion, supported by affidavits. By analogy to Rule 95 it would seem that the notice of the motion should be served in the manner mentioned in that Rule, and that it must be a six clear days' notice instead of the ordinary two clear days' notice.

Inspector of Prisons and Pub. Charities.

Where the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities is ex officio committee of the lunatic (see The Hospitals for the Insane Act, (R. S. O. c. 295), s. 40, it is nevertheless necessary in proceedings against the lunatic, not so found, where no defence is delivered, that a guardian should be appointed of such lunatic: see Rule 95.

Lunacy pendente lite.

Where a defendant in an action becomes of unsound mind after judgment, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for him before proceedings can be validly continued against him: Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645. This must be done by order, upon motion, and cannot be effected by merely serving the Official Guardian on his behalf: ib.; sed vide, Re Hagar, 12 P. R. 645, where it was held that this might be done where the defendant had been judicially declared insane, sed quære: see Warnock v. Prieur, supra, p. 464.

Effect of Service.—The person served is not liable to account, nor can a motion for an injunction be made against him: Walker v. Seligmann, L. R. 12 Eq. 152; Hooper v. Horrison, 28 Gr. 22; Rolph v. U. C. Building Society, 11 Gr. 275, 278-9; Re Porkes, 68 L. T. 151; see, however, In re Rees, 15 Ch. D. 490; Re Rolfe, 70 L. T. 624. Neither can he require the defendant to account any farther than if he had been himself an original defendant in the action: Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Chy. 513. A party served, however, may impeach in the Master's Office an instrument set up in answer to his claim as a legatee, on the ground of fraud: Darling v. Darling, Rossa's claim, 15 C. L. J. 112.

Whether the party served attend the proceedings or not, he is bound by the proceedings. Unless he gives notice to the plaintiff of his intention to attend the proceedings under the judgment he is not entitled to service of notice of the proceedings in the Master's office: English v. English, 12 Gr. 441.

Persons who have been improperly served may move to set aside the service: Re Symons, 54 L. T. 501.

Parties served may move against judgment.

Motion to Vary Judgment.—The motion to vary, or set aside the judgment, must be made on notice to the plaintiff. The motion is to be made before a Judge in Court. Two clear days' notice of the motion must be given: see Rule 215; and it must be set down at least the day before the day named for hearing the motion: see Rule 234 (6).

On the motion to vary the judgment by any person served with a copy, the Court will not direct the taking of accounts for which no foundation was laid in the pleadings or proceedings in the action, except perhaps on the terms of first allowing the party from whom such account is sought, an opportunity to adduce evidence, to shew why it should not be granted: Foster v. Foster, L. R. 3 Chy. 330; and see

Rule 87.

Murgatroyd v. Caldwell, 10 L. T. 410. Additional accounts and inquiries have been directed after the report, at the instance of a party subsequently served with the decree: Reeve v. Reeve, W. N. 1871, 52. Under the former practice in Chancery, any person served with the decree might rehear the cause: Ellison v. Thomas, 1 D. J. & S. 18.

A person improperly made a party under this Rule is not limited to moving against the order, but may appeal from the Master's report. Cowan v. Allen, 23 Ont. App. 457; 26 S. C. R. 292; McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295.

Where the question intended to be raised does not appear on the pleadings or previous proceedings in the action, it may be necessary to present a petition in the nature of a bill of review under the former Chancery practice. No application for leave to file this petition is necessary: Kidd v. Cheyne, 18 Jur. 348; Duggan v. McKay, 1 Chy. Ch. 380; and see Rule 523; but whether the application should be by petition or notice of motion quære: see Rule 10.

Purchaser bound to see that all necessary parties are bound by the proceedings.

It would seem that a purchaser under a judgment pronounced in an action constituted under Rules 74 to 84, is bound to see that it has been served on all necessary parties, so as to bind them by the proceedings, in the same way that a purchaser is bound to see that all necessary parties are made parties to any other action in which a sale is directed by the Court. Primâ facie, only the persons who are actually named as parties to the record are bound: Rules 74 to 84 form an exception to this rule: see Reeve v. Reeve, W. N. 1871, 52, and Russell v. Romaines, 3 Ont. App. 635.

A purchaser, however, is not bound to inquire into the regularity of the proceedings antecedent to the judgment: Gunn v. Doble, 15 Gr. 655; Shaw v. Crawford, 4 Ont. App. 371; Collins v. Denison, 2 Chy. Ch. 465, and see The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R. S. O. c. 109), s. 56; but a purchaser buying, pending legal proceedings, whose rights are made expressly subject to a termination of the proceedings in a regular way, is in a different position: Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254.

Parties served may on notice to plaintiff attend the proceedings.

Attending Proceedings.—A person served is entitled, on giving notice to the plaintiff, to attend the proceedings. A party so attending, although entitled to notice of the future proceedings in the action, does not thereby become a party to the action: English v. English, 12 Gr. 441; Walker v. Seligmann, L. R. 12 Eq. 152; but see Re Rees, 15 Ch. D. 490.

Costs where attending unnecessary.

Under Rule 409 the Master has power, among other things, to give special directions as to the parties who are to attend on the several accounts and inquiries: and see also Rule 88. A person served under Rule 87, and attending the proceedings without special leave, may be ordered to pay all the extra costs occasioned by his so attending, if it appear that his attendance was unnecessary: Sharp v. Lush, 10 Ch. D. 463; and see Daubney v. Leake, L. R. 1 Eq. 495; Re Marshall, W. N. 1879, 12.

Persons not attending proceedings not entitled to notice.

Persons served with the judgment, and not attending the proceedings, are not entitled to service of the warrant to settle the report: Green v. Measures, W. N. 1866, 122; nor of the notice of hearing on further directions: Lee v. Sturrock, W. N. 1876, 226. If any relief is intended to be asked against them they are entitled to notice, even though they have not attended the proceedings before the Master: Re Rees, 15 Ch. D. 490; Re Rolfe, supra, p. 465.

The Court will not authorize persons, not parties, to attend proceedings, even at their own expense, even though they have large interests at stake, unless there is some special reason shewn for so doing: Re Schwabacher, Stern v. Schwabacher, 1907, 1 Ch. 719; 96 L. T. 564. Rule 88.

Dispensing with Service.—No service appears to be necessary unless a reference is ordered. Where a reference is ordered the Master, to whom the action is referred, as well as the Court, has under this Rule power to dispense with the service of a copy of the judgment: Re Hynes, Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217. Formerly, where the Master dispensed with service he was required to state the reasons therefor in his report: see Chy. O. 587; but that provision has not been embodied in these Rules, though it seems a practice it would be well to follow: Dispensing with service of judgment.

An advertisement may be published for persons who cannot be found to be served, as a condition of dispensing with service on them: see Rule 412. Advertisement.

Service on some of the next of kin, who were resident out of the jurisdiction, was dispensed with: English v. English, 12 Gr. 441. An application to the Court to dispense with service may be made ex parte: Ib.

Absence from the jurisdiction is not of itself sufficient reason for dispensing with service: Chalmers v. Lourie, 10 Hars. App. xxvii.; Maybery v. Brooking, 7 D. M. & G. 673; Strong v. Moore, 22 L. J. Chy. 917. Absence from jurisdiction.

Whether parties on whom service of the judgment is dispensed with, either by the Court, or Master, are nevertheless bound by the proceedings, is nowhere stated; it would seem that they are in the same position as parties in whose absence judgment is pronounced and that they are not bound: see Doody v. Higgins, 9 Hare, App. xxxii.; May v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347; unless by acquiescence: see Re Lart, 1896, 2 Ch. 788; 75 L. T. 175; and see Bunnett v. Foster, 7 Beav. 540; Saragossa Ry. Co. v. Collingham, 1904, A. C. 159; and Eng. Rule 131 A. How far persons not served are bound.

Persons not having an interest at the date of the judgment cannot be brought before the Court under this Rule: Colyer v. Colyer, 11 W. R. 355; but see Rule 404.

As to the effect of omitting to serve, or dispense with service: see Ufner v. Lewis, supra, p. 464.

88. In administration proceedings no person other than the executor or administrator shall, unless by leave, be entitled to appear on the claim of any person against the estate of the deceased. C.R. 204. Parties to administration proceedings.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 169, which is in substance the same.

Mere liberty to attend proceedings does not necessarily entitle the party to costs of attendance. The order should so provide if it is the intention that costs should be allowed: Day v. Beatty, 21 Ch. D. 830; and see Re Schwabacher, Stern v. Schwabacher, p. 467, supra.

Only one party, generally speaking the executor or administrator, should in general attend to oppose a contested claim in an administration action: Re Smith v. Watts, 52 L. J. Chy. 209.

Rules 89, 90.

Judgment saving rights of absentees.

89. The Court, if it thinks fit, may pronounce a judgment saving the rights of all persons not parties. C.R. 205.

See Chy. O. 65.

When the Court acts under this Rule the absent parties will not, as a general rule, be bound by the judgment pronounced, unless after knowledge thereof, they accept any benefit thereunder, or otherwise acquiesce therein: see Re Lart, 1896, 2 Ch. 788; 75 L. T. 175; but the Court instead of pronouncing a judgment saving the rights of an absent party, may make an order adding him as a defendant, and adjourn the hearing or trial to enable him to be served: Rule 134; see Clifton v. Crawford, 18 P. R. 316.

The Court will only act under Rule 89, where justice can be done to all parties notwithstanding the defective constitution of the action: Lambert v. Hutchinson, 1 Beav. 277, 286.

Cases in which Rule acted on.

Where in a suit to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance by a debtor, it appeared at the hearing that a note pro confesso entered against one of the defendants, the original debtor, had been waived by a subsequent amendment of the bill, the Court dismissed the bill as against that defendant, on the application of the plaintiff, without the dismissal being equivalent to a dismissal on the merits, and made a decree, saving the rights of that defendant: Waddie v. McGinty, 15 Gr. 261.

A decree was made under Chy. O. 65, from which this Rule is taken, in the absence of the assignee of a bankrupt: Maybery v. Brooking, 7 D. M. & G. 673; of a mortgagee: Felthom v. Clark, 1 De G. & Sm. 307; of a person entitled in a remote contingency: Daubuz v. Peel, 1 Coop. temp. Cott. 365; of the heir-at-law of the last surviving trustee, and of the personal representative of a testator: Faulkner v. Daniel, 3 Hare, 199.

Objections for want of parties must be taken promptly.

An objection for want of parties should be taken as soon as possible, and not postponed until the trial, or motion for judgment: Luke v. South Kensington Hotel Co., 11 Ch. D. 121; Sheehon v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59; 29 W. R. 69; the objection should be taken by motion, and not merely raised by statement of defence: Ib., and see notes to Rule 134 infra; and see Vallance v. Birminghom, 24 W. R. 454; Roberts v. Evons, 7 Ch. D. 830; 26 W. R. 280, where no costs of pleadings were allowed to plaintiff from the time the objection was taken.

The Court directed a special case to be set down for hearing on the application of an executrix, the first tenant for life and the trustees being defendants, the persons interested in remainder, who were absent in New Zealand, being omitted as parties: Bogley v. Miles, 21 L. T. 784.

If a deceased person has no personal representative, proceedings may go on, or the Court may appoint a representative.

90. Where it appears that a deceased person who was interested in the matters in question has no personal representative, the Court may either proceed in the absence of any person representing his estate or may appoint some person to represent the estate for all the purposes of the action or other proceeding, on such notice as may seem proper, [notwithstanding that the estate in question may have a substantial interest in the matters, or that there may be active duties to be performed by the person so appointed, or that he may represent interests adverse to the plaintiff, or that administration of the estate whereof representation is sought] is claimed, and the order so made and any orders consequent thereon, shall bind the estate of such deceased person, in the same manner as if a duly appointed personal representative of such person had been a party to the action or proceeding. C.R. 194. Rule 90.

See Eng. (1883) R. 168.

The words in brackets in this Rule were intended to meet the various cases decided under Chy. O. 56 (see Morgan's Chy. Orders, 201), and the Rule as now framed may have rendered some of those cases obsolete: see, however, Fairfield v. Ross, 4 O. L. R. 534. As to the constitutionality of such provisions: see Ashbury v. Ellis, 1893, A. C. 339.

The Rule has still a comparatively limited scope, as the representation which may be ordered under it is only of a deceased person "who was interested in the matters in question." A person, the administration of whose estate is the subject of the action, is not a deceased person "interested in the matters in question," within the meaning of the Rule. He must in his lifetime have been interested in the matters in question: Hughes v. Hughes, 6 Ont. App. 373; Fairfield v. Ross, 4 O. L. R. 534; sed vide, Webster v. The British Empire Ins. Co., 15 Ch. D. 169. The legal personal representative of deceased must in such case be a party to properly constitute the action: see Id. and Roscell v. Morris, L. R. 17 Eq. 20; Outram v. Wyckoff, 6 P. R. 150; Leonard v. Clydesdale, 6 P. R. 142; Toronto Savings Bank v. Canada Life Ass. Co., 13 Gr. 171; a judgment against an executor de son tort does not bind the deceased person's estate: see Mohamidu v. Pitchey, 1894, A. C. 437; 71 L. T. 99.

The Rule enables the Court to take one of two courses, either (1) to proceed without a representative of the estate of a deceased person who may have been interested in the matters in question; or, (2) to appoint some person to represent such deceased person's estate for the purposes of the action.

Where the Court makes an order adopting either of these courses, the estate in question is bound and concluded by the proceedings as though it had been represented in the litigation by a duly appointed legal personal representative.

In order to bind the estate, however, an order under this Rule must be made: it is not enough that the Court should proceed to adjudicate on the matters before it in the absence of a representative of the estate: Re Richerson, 1893, 3 Ch. 146; 3 R. 643; and see Mohamidu v. Pitchey, 1894. A. C. 437; 71 L. T. 99.

Originally the Chy. O. only applied to the representation of the personal estate, and whenever it was necessary that the real estate of a deceased person should be represented in any action or proceeding, the Court had no power, before The Devolution of Estates Act, under this Rule to proceed in the absence of the real representative, or to appoint any person to represent such estate, so as to bind it by the proceedings. But in the case of the estates of persons dying after the 1st of July, 1886, the personal representative is also the representative of the realty, unless his powers are expressly limited to the personal estate, or have expired as to realty by reason of his omitting to register a caveat: Romus v. Dow, 15 P. R. 219; The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. 1914, c. 119), ss. 3, 4, 13; and see Re Williams & McKinnon, 14 P. R. 338; sed vide, The Surrogate Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 62), s. 57.

Formerly no authority to appoint any one to represent realty.

Rule 90.

A person appointed to represent an estate under this Rule is not entitled to the assets of the deceased, or to administer the same; his authority is purely representative, and upon the subsequent grant of general administration to another his authority, even as a representative of the deceased's estate, is entirely superseded: see McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 255.

Judgment against personal representative how far binding on real representative.

Although a judgment in an action to which the personal representative was a party was conclusive as regards the personal estate, and those beneficially interested therein, whether as legatees, or next of kin; it was formerly only primâ facie evidence of liability of the estate as against those interested in the realty, whether as devisees, or heirs-at-law, and the latter were at liberty to rebut it: Eccles v. Lowry, 23 Gr. 167; Lovell v. Gibson, 19 Gr. 280; Willis v. Willis, 19 Gr. 573; Harvey v. Wilde, L. R. 14 Eq. 488; Steel v. Lineberger, 58 Penn. St. Rep. 308; Story v. Fry, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 603, and see Anderson v. Poine, 14 Gr. 110; and it is therefore only to this extent that an order under the Rule will bind those interested in the real estate, except in cases coming under The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 119), ss. 3, 4, in which the personal representative also represents the realty: but see Ib., s. 13. But even before The Devolution of Estates Act the lands of a deceased person could be sold under execution against his personal representative, without making the persons interested in the realty parties: R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, ss. 35, 36, 40; and the persons interested in the realty were primâ facie bound by the sale: McEvoy v. Clune, 21 Gr. 515. But where the claim for which the judgment was recovered was one that was not properly enforceable against the realty, the execution might be stayed in an action by heirs-at-law: Anderson v. Poine, 14 Gr. 110; and if a sale took place it might be successfully impeached by the heir-at-law: Freed v. Orr, 6 Ont. App. 690; Mohomidu v. Pitchey, 1894, A. C. 437; 71 L. T. 99. Where the judgment against the personal representative was successfully impeached on the ground of fraud and collusion, the beneficiaries were entitled to set up the Statute of Limitations against the claim of the creditor which the personal representative had omitted or neglected to plead: Jardine v. Wood, 19 Gr. 617.

Rule does not supersede jurisdiction of Surrogate Courts.

This Rule does not authorize the High Court to grant letters probate of wills, or letters of administration. It merely enables the Court to proceed with an action so as to bind the personal estate of a deceased person even though no letters probate, or letters of administration, have been granted by the Surrogate Court. In the absence of some such power the Court would have no jurisdiction to bind the estate of a deceased person unless some duly appointed personal representative was before the Court; even an executor who had applied for but not actually obtained probate, would not represent the deceased's estate so as to bind it by a judgment recovered against him: Mohamidu v. Pitchey, supra, p. 469. The representative authorized to be appointed by this Rule is not an administrator, but merely represents the estate for the purpose of the action in which the order is made, and he is not entitled to act as an administrator of the estate except so far only as it is necessary for him to do so for the purposes of the action in which he is so appointed. It has not been usual to require any security to be given by a person appointed under this Rule to represent an estate; and he has no authority to receive any moneys belonging to the estate he is appointed to represent, except according to the express order of the Court in that behalf. The Court, under the Chy. O. 58, refused to appoint a person to receive a sum of money payable out of Court to a deceased person: Rowlins v. McMahon, 1 Drew. 225; Williams v. Allen, 2 Beav. 650; and refused to order payment to a person who had been appointed in the suit to represent the estate: Byam v. Sutton, 19 Beav. 646.

Administrator ad litem.

An administrator ad litem, however, may be appointed by the Surrogate Court: The Surrogate Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 62), s. 53; and see s. 54 (2), and a judgment against him binds the general administrator: Dovis v. Chanter, 2 Ph. 545; Croft v. Waterton, 13 Sim. 653; Ellice v. Goodson, 2 Coll. 4; Williams v. Allen, 32 Beav. 650; Woodhouse v. Woodhouse, L. R. 8 Eq. 514; Collas v. Hesse, 12 W. R. 565.

An administrator ad litem does not, under The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121), s. 41 (2), sufficiently represent the estate of a person sued for a tort who dies pendente lite: Hunter v. Boyd, 3 O. L. R. 183.

Dispensing with personal representative.

Where an estate had been administered, and pending the suit for administration the personal representative died, and all that remained to be done was for the Master to make his report, and it appeared that the estate was insolvent, an order was made appointing the solicitor of the deceased administratrix to represent the estate: Re Tobin, Cook v. Tobin, 6 P. R. 40; and see Sherwood v. Frcelond, 6 Gr. 305; Toronto Savings Bank v. Canada Life Assnce. Co., 13 Gr. 171.

Cases where Rule applies.

The Rule has been held to apply though the deceased person was never a party to the action: Webster v. British Empire Ins. Co., 15 Ch. D. 169; but see Hughes v. Hughes, 6 Ont. App. 373, and to an action for administration where the estate is small: Re Colton Fisher v. Cotton, 8 P. R. 542, and to actions for the construction of wills: Gairdner v. Gairdner, 1 Ont. 186; see also Mendes v. Guedalla, 10 W. R. 485, where an order was made at the trial; and McCarthy v. Arbuckle, 31 C. P. 48, where a defendant died after the trial. It also applies to proceedings on a special case: Swallow v. Binns, 17 Jur. 29; and to proceedings by petition: Re Ranking, L. R. 6 Eq. 601-5; Ex parte Cramer, 9 Hars. App. xivii.; and see Magnay v. Davidson, Ib. lxxxii., but is generally applicable only where from any cause there is difficulty in obtaining representation of the estate: Long v. Storie, Kay App. xii.; Davies v. Boulcott, 1 Dr. & Sm. 2; Bliss v. Putnam, 29 Beav. 20.

In an action to make several defendants liable for a breach of trust, where one died before decree having made a will appointing executors who had not proved the will (the liability of the surviving defendants being the same as that of the deceased defendant), the Court made an order allowing the suit to proceed in the absence of a personal representative, reserving leave to the executors to intervene, if so advised when they had proved the will: Heberman Joint Stock Co. v. Fottrill, 13 L. R. Ir. 335.

Rule 90.

It was held that an appointment should not be made where an administrator ad litem appointed by the Probate Court would not enffice. and that an administrator ad litem did not sufficiently represent the estate where a general administration of the estate is necessary: Dowdeswell v. Dowdeswell, 9 Ch. D. 294; see also Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 181; 6th ed., 208, Morgan's Chy. Orders, 201; Webster v. British Empire Co., 15 Ch. D. 169; Curtius v. Caledonian, etc., Ins. Co., 19 Ch. D. 534.

Where a mortgagor died pending a foreclosure action, it was held that a finsl order could not properly he made eo as to hind the mortgagor's estate agsinst a person appointed to represent his estate under this Rule: Aylward v. Lewis, 1891, 2 Ch. 81; 64 L. T. 250.

See Wingrove v. Thompson, 11 Ch. D. 419, cited in note to Rule 305.

Consent of person appointed necessary.

A person cannot be appointed to repreeent an estnte under this Rule without his consent: Prince of Wales Co. v. Palmer, 25 Beav. 605; Hill v. Bonner, 26 Beav. 372. The proper person to he appointed is the person who would be appointed administrator ad litem: Dean of Ely v. Stafford, 16 Beav. 561; where the deceased had left a will which was disputed, the person named as executor therein was appointed: Hele v. Lord Bexley, 15 Beav. 340.

Removal of personal representatives.

Removal of Personal Representatives, and Trustees.—By The Trustee Act (R. S. O. c. 121) s. 40, the Supreme Court may remove a personal representative on the same grounds that it may remove a trustee, and appoint some other person to act in the place of such personal representative so removed.

The Court has jurisdiction at any time during the proceedings in an action respecting the estate to remove a trustee or personal representative, if it considers such removal necessary for the preservation of the trust estate, or the welfare of the c. q. t. and that, notwithstanding such removal has not been originally asked for: Re Wrightson Wrightson v. Cooke, 1908, 1 Ch. 789; 98 L. T. 799.

Cases where order is unnecessary.

In an action to enforce a lien for an annuity charged upon real estate, it is not necessary to make the personal representative of a deceased person who was liahle for its payment a party, unless an account of the personal estate of the deceased is asked: Paine v. Chapman, 7 Gr. 179, and see Burns v. Conada Co., 7 Gr. 587.

In an action for a general account against a surviving trustee or executor it is not, in the absence of special circumstances, necessary that the representatives of a deceased truetee or executor should he made parties where no reiief le sought as againet the decessed's estate. The defendant may have such representstives added under Rules 134 or 165, if the circumetances render it ndvisahle: Re Harrison, 1891, 2 Ch. 349.

An application for an order under this Rule would appear to be within the matters which may he dealt with in Chambers ss being a matter relating to the conduct of an action or matter: see Rule 207; and it is not one of those matters expressly excluded from the jurisdiction of Local Judges, and judicial officers: see Rules 208-210. The jurisdiction therefore may be exercised hy a Judge in Chambers snd also hy Local Judges and judicial officers; hut it would seem desirable that such orders should only he made hy a Local Judge, or judicial officer, where he is also competent to dispose of the action or matter in which the representation is desired; it would be manifestly inconvenient if such an order were made in an action by a Local Judge or judicial officer and then on the case coming on for trial or hearing it should be found by the Judge that the order ought not to have been made. The proper rule regarding such applications would appear to be that they should only be made to a Judge or officer competent to dispose of the action or matter in which the representation is sought. As to the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers on such applications: see Collver v. Swayzie, 8 P. R. 12. Rule 90.

The application under the Rule is usually made by ex parte motion in Chambers, but the order may be made at the trial of the action: Mendes v. Guedalla, 10 W. R. 485; Hewitson v. Todhunter, 22 L. J. Chy. 76; Re Peppitt's Estate, Chester v. Phillips, 4 Ch. D. 230; 35 L. T. 902; 25 W. R. 211; or on a motion for judgment: Gairdner v. Gairdner, 1 Ont. 184, and see Curtius v. Caledonian Fire and Life Ins. Co., 19 Ch. D. 534; or at a subsequent stage of the action where the party whose estate is to be represented, dies after the trial: McCarthy v. Arbuckle, 31 C. P. 48. Before the order is made notice is sometimes required to be given to the person, if any, who would be entitled to letters of administration: Curtius v. Caledonian Fire and Life Ins. Co., supra. Application under Rule 90, how made.

The Court has a wide discretion either to appoint a representative, or to order that the action may proceed without any representation if it considers the estate in question sufficiently protected: see Joint Discount Co. v. Brown, L. R. 8 Eq. 380; Tarrott v. Lloyd, 2 Jur. N. S. 371; Hewitson v. Todhunter, 22 L. J. Chy. 76. Discretion of Court.

Representation of the estate has been dispensed with, where the deceased person was in the same interest as the plaintiff: Cox v. Taylor, 22 L. J. Chy. 910; or where other persons of the same class were before the Court: Abrey v. Newman, 17 Jur. 153; and a representative of the estate of one of two executors who had died insolvent, and to which representation could not be obtained, was also dispensed with: Moore v. Morris, L. R. 13 Eq. 139; Bond v. Randle, 2 W. R. 331; Rogers v. Jones, 1 Sm. & G. 17; and where the deceased person's interest was very small: Montgomery v. Douglas, 14 Gr. 268; and where his estate was insolvent and his next of kin refused to take out letters of administration, and the estate appeared to have no substantial interest in the fund sought to be recovered by the plaintiff, representation was dispensed with: Curtius v. Caledonian Fire and Life Ins. Co., 19 Ch. D. 534; Webster v. The British Empire Ins. Co., 15 Ch. D. 169; and even where the deceased party was sole plaintiff and tenant for life, and an arrear of income remained due to him, an administration suit instituted by him was, on the application of the defendants, revived without any representative of the original plaintiff, whose executor had died without proving his will, but without prejudice to the right of the personal representative of the original plaintiff to intervene: Hayward v. Pile, L. R. 7 Chy. 634, but see Bank of Montreal v. Wallace, 1 Chy. Ch. 261. Cases when representative dispensed with.

Where a deceased person had by an instrument inter vivos made over his property to the defendant, who became bound to pay his grandchildren $400 each after the death of the settlor, the Court dispensed with a personal representative of the settlor, in a suit by one of the grandchildren to enforce payment of the $400: Mulholland v. Merriam, 19 Gr. 288; S. C., 20 Gr. 152.

Where a mortgage or an obligation for payment of money is made to two or more persons and one of them dies, the survivor is entitled without any order, to enforce payment by action without joining the Joint debts enforceable by surviving creditor.

Rule 91.

representatives of the deceased mortgagee or joint creditor, and this though the mortgagees are trustees: see The Mercantile Law Amendment Act (R. S. O. c. 133), s. 4; Plenderleith v. Smith, 10 O. L. R. 188.

Further provisions are made by Rules 76, 77, 184, to enable actions to be prosecuted in the absence of persons who, according to the ordinary practice, should be joined as parties.

(ii) Infants and Lunatics.

Infants.

91. An infant may sue by his next friend; (a) and may defend by his guardian appointed for that purpose, [or by the Official Guardian, as the case may be]. C.R. 197.

The original J. A. Rule 96 had at (a) the words "in the manner practised in the Court of Chancery," following Eng. R. 1875, O. 16, r. 8 (1883, R. 138). The words in brackets are not in the Eng. Rules, which, as respects infants, correspond otherwise, with the above. For a history of the practice of an infant suing by next friend at law, and in equity, before the Jud. Act, and as to the legal status, powers and responsibilities of a next friend: see Vano v. Canadian Colored Cotton Mills Co., 21 O. L. R. 144.

It is irregular for an infant to sue without a next friend, but such an irregularity was allowed to be amended at the trial by adding a next friend: Durie v. Toronto Ry., 5 O. W. N. 829; but in order to make such an amendment, the written consent of the proposed next friend must be filed: see Rule 99.

Next friend of infant.

Infants as Plaintiffs.—By the practice of the Court of Chancery, every suit or application: Cox v. Wright, 9 Jur. N. S. 981, on behalf of an infant must be by next friend, who properly will be the father if he is not adverse in interest: Woolf v. Pemberton, 6 Ch. D. 19; but who need not be a relation: Cross v. Cross, 8 Beav. 455; nor a solvent person: Re McConnell, 3 Chy. Ch. 423; Moran v. Kellogg, 10 C. L. T. 184; and therefore need not give security for costs: Fellows v. Barrett, 1 Keen, 119; but see Swain v. Follows, 18 Q. B. D. 585; but may not be a married woman: Thynne v. St. Maur, 34 Ch. D. 465; nor a defendant: Anon., 11 Jur. 258; Payne v. Little, 13 Beav. 114; Re Burgess, Burgess v. Bottomley, 25 Ch. D. 243, unless merely a formal defendant: Taylor v. Taylor, 16 L. J. Notes of Cases; 66 W. N. 181.

In Nalder v. Hawkins, 2 M. & K. 248, it was said that the Court always expected next friends to be substantial persons, and that they should be relations, connections or friends of the family, not mere volunteers: see also Foster v. Cautley, 10 Ha. App. 24, and Woolf v. Pemberton, supra; but see cases supra and infra.

The primary object of requiring the infant to sue by next friend is not, however, that defendants shall have security for costs, but that there may be some one before the Court to answer for the propriety of the action, and through whom the Court may compel the obedience of its orders. Thus even where the natural guardian and next friend is not a resident of Ontario, infants having a bonâ fide cause of action are privileged suitors, and the same rule as to security for costs should not be applied as in the case of adults: Roberts v. Coughlin, 18 P. R. 94; Scott v. Niagara, etc., Co., 15 P. R. 409. In the latter case the infant and the next friend were within Ontario, but that would not.

however, seem to affect the question: see Roberts v. Coughlin, supra, p. 475, and Rule 373 (b). Rule 91.

Circumstances connecting a next friend too closely with parties adverse in interest may render him an improper person, and liable to be removed, though nothing is alleged against his character, circumstances or conduct: Re Burgess, Burgess v. Bottomley, 25 Ch. D. 243.

Consent of next friend.

The consent of the next friend should be obtained before using his name, though the infant's consent is unnecessary: Worthan v. Pemberton, 9 Jur. 291, and the written authority of the next friend for the use of his name in the proceedings must be filed: see Rule 99.

If no next friend named.

If no next friend is named a motion may be made to dismiss the action, with costs to be paid by the solicitor: Flight v. Bolland, 4 Russ. 298; Dan. Pr. 6th ed., 105; but an amendment may be allowed even at the trial: Duric v. Toronto Ry., supra, p. 474.

Where a suit was prosecuted by an infant without a next friend, an application made by him more than twelve months after he became of age to set aside the proceedings was refused: Millson v. Smale, 25 Ont. 144.

If an action is brought in the name of an infant by a married woman as next friend, the course is, to apply to have her removed, and to stay proceedings until a proper next friend is appointed: Martin v. Martin, 15 P. R. 177.

Where an infant plaintiff and his next friend both reside out of the jurisdiction, the defendant may move to have the action stayed until either security for costs is given, or a next friend within the jurisdiction is appointed: McBain v. Waterloo, &c., 8 O. L. R. 620.

Inquiry whether suit for benefit of infant.

Notwithstanding that generally anyone may sue as next friend of an infant, the Court will, on the application of the defendant, or of any person acting as next friend of the infant for the purpose of the application: Guy v. Guy, 2 Beav. 460, institute an inquiry as to whether the suit is for the benefit of the infant, and if the result shows that the proceedings are not for the benefit of the infant, the suit may be stayed: Anderton v. Yates, 5 DeG. & S. 202, or dismissed with costs, to be paid by the next friend: Fox v. Suwerkrop, 1 Beav. 583; Golds v. Kerr, W. N. 1884, 46; Huxley v. Wooton, 134 L. T. Jour. 178; and see Re Elsom, Thomas v. Elsom, W. N. 1877, 177; Mill v. Mill, 20 C. L. J. 252.

Costs, liability of next friend for.

In general a next friend is as to costs in the same position as any other litigant, and receives or pays costs personally as between himself and defendant: Smith v. Mason, 17 P. R. 444; unless otherwise ordered: Coley v. Coley, 25 W. R. 528.

As to whether a next friend is entitled to solicitor and client costs: see Damont v. Hennell, 33 Ch. D. 224.

The costs of an unsuccessful action by infants by their next friend claiming a share of a testator's estate, by the alleged forfeiture of the share by the legatee thereof after the testator's death, were ordered to be paid by the next friend, and not out of the testator's estate, without prejudice to the claim of the next friend to be indemnified out of the shares of the infants when they should come into possession: Smith v. Mason, 17 P. R. 444.

The next friend of an infant was indemnified against the costs of an appeal to the Supreme Court out of the infant's estate, where the appeal was advised by more than one counsel, and the Court proposed to be appealed from was not unanimous: Cottingham v. Cottingham, 11 P. R. 13; and this though the proceeding is unsuccessful: Steeden v. Walden, 1910, 2 Ch. 393; 103 L. T. 135.

Death of next friend.

When the next friend of an infant dies pending the action, a new next friend may be appointed on an ex parte motion: Daly v. Daly, 9 L. R. Ir. 383: Dan. Forms, 34.

In an action on behalf of an infant by a next friend acting with the father's authority, the father died and the mother, the testamentary guardian, was held entitled to be substituted as next friend, though no charge of improper conduct had been made against the actual next friend: Hutchinson v. Norwood, 31 Ch. D. 237.

Authority ceases on infant's attaining 21.

The next friend should not take any step in the cause in the name of the infant after he attains twenty-one, for the infant may abandon the suit: Brown v. Weatherhead, 4 Ha. 122. If the infant adopts the proceedings after he becomes of age, he becomes liable for all the costs of the suit.

Removal of next friend.

A next friend who refuses to appeal may be removed: Depuy v. Welsford, W. N. 1880, 121.

Withdrawal.

The next friend of an infant plaintiff may obtain leave to withdraw upon such terms as the circumstances of the case and the welfare of the infant may require, and subject amongst other things to liability to the opposite party for costs theretofore incurred in case the Court should so order: Taylor v. Wood, 14 P. R. 449. Where a next friend desires to withdraw, the defendant may move to stay proceedings until a new next friend is named, though the normal practice is for the next friend to move: Ib. A solicitor should not continue an action in the name of a next friend who has notified him of his desire to withdraw: Ib. Semble, if a next friend cannot be found to prosecute an action for an infant, the Court in a proper case may appoint the Official Guardian to act as next friend: Ib.

Compromise.

A compromise cannot be forced upon infants if it is of no benefit to them, even though agreed to by their counsel: Rhodes v. Swithinbank, 22 Q. B. D. 577; or if it is contrary to the opinion of their legal adviser: Re Bircholl, Wilson v. Birchall, 16 Ch. D. 41; 44 L. T. 113. A compromise of an action brought by a next friend of an infant will not be binding on the infant, unless the Court shall find that it was for his benefit: Vono v. Conodion Colored Cotton Mills, 21 O. L. R. 144; Mottet v. Voutro, 78 L. T. 682.

Infants as defendants.

Infants as Defendants.—Defendants when known to be infants should be represented by a guardian, who, in an action in respect of an estate in which the infant is interested (see Rule 18), or for recovery of lands, goods or chattels, of which he is personally in possession (see Rule 19), will be the Official Guardian. In other cases (see Rules 20, 92), a guardian should be appointed, but the appointment of a guardian is not imperative, so that the want of one will not necessarily invalidate the proceedings after judgment, where the interests of the infant appear to have been sufficiently protected: see Furnivol v. Brooke, 49 L. T. 134; Stroughon v. Smith, 19 Ont. 558.

Guardian other than official guardian.

92. Where an infant defendant is not represented by the Official Guardian, a guardian may be appointed for him by the Court. C.R. 155.

The English practice is different: see White v. DuVernoy, 1891, P. 291.

See note to Rule 18.

Rule 93.

Under this Rule the defendant may himself before appearance make an application in Chambers to appoint a guardian ad litem by whom he may appear and defend the action, or in case he does not, the plaintiff may, after the time for appearance has elapsed and defendant has not appeared by guardian, move, on notice to the defendant, for the appointment of a guardian ad litem for him, and if the defendant fails to nominate a guardian, the plaintiff may probably be allowed to do so; the consent of the person nominated, and an affidavit of his fitness, and that he has no adverse interest, should be filed: see Hyne v. Brown, 13 P. R. 17, and the proposed guardian should attend before the Judge with the infant: Rule 93.

Where a plaintiff knows that the defendant is a minor he should not proceed with his action until a guardian has been appointed, or his proceedings may be invalid: but in Straughan v. Smith, 19 Ont. 558 (an action of tort), the appointment of a guardian was held not to be imperative, so that the want of one would necessarily invalidate the proceedings after judgment, where the defendant was not quite of age, but his interests appeared to the Court to have been sufficiently protected, and the fact of his infancy was well known to his parents and solicitors, and no objection to the want of a guardian had been taken until the case was in the Divisional Court.

93. A person desirous of appointing a guardian for himself other than the Official Guardian to defend an action or matter, may go before a Judge with the proposed guardian. He must satisfy the Judge by affidavit that the proposed guardian is a fit person, and has no adverse interest; and the Judge may examine the proposed guardian, or the person making the affidavit, vivâ voce, or require further evidence to be adduced until he is satisfied of the propriety of the appointment. C.R. 221.

Person desiring to have a guardian ad litem appointed to himself, may attend Judge with proposed guardian.

Evidence required on application.

Based on Chy. O. 526.

This Rule would appear to apply to all cases of disability where the appointment of a guardian is necessary.

The Official Guardian ad litem is now to be appointed in all cases, unless some special reason exists for the appointment of some other persons: see Rule 95 (3).

Official guardian to be appointed.

Where a guardian was irregularly appointed upon insufficient notice to the infant, the appointment was set aside on the application of the infant after decree: Hamilton v. Hamilton, 2 Chy. Ch. 160; and see Re Jackson, Massey v. Crookshanks, 12 P. R. 475.

Proceedings set aside where guardian ad litem irregularly appointed.

On an application at the instance of an infant of 18 who was considered capable of exercising a sound discretion in managing his own affairs, and applied with the approbation of his father, a guardian nominated by the infant was appointed under the above clause in the place of the Official Guardian: McKenzie v. Dwight, 2 C. L. T. 359.

The Court would appear to have inherent jurisdiction to substitute another guardian for a guardian appointed under Rule 92.

Rule 94.

Insane persons.

94. A person of unsound mind (not so found by inquisition or judicial declaration) may sue by his next friend, and may defend by his guardian. C.R. 217.

The words "or judicial declaration" are not in the English Rules; in other respects this is to the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 139.

The practice adopted by this Rule is that of the Court of Chancery. This Rule applies only to lunatics "not so found." The Rule applicable to persons found to be lunatics is Rule 97.

Lunatics as plaintiffs.

Lunatics—As Plaintiffs.—A lunatic so found by inquisition, or judicial declaration under The Lunacy Act (R. S. O. c. 68), s. 6, and having a committee, must sue by him: Rule 97; and his committee must be made a co-plaintiff: Re Townshend, Townshend v. Robins, 1908, 1 Ch. 201. If he has no committee, or if the committee has an interest in the subject matter of the action adverse to the lunatic, the suit in certain cases may be brought by the Attorney-General: Atty.-Gen. v. Panther, 2 Dick. 748. The ordinary procedure is under this Rule to sue by next friend: Light v. Light, 25 Beav. 248; Porter v. Porter, 37 Ch. D. 420; who may be any person who chooses to act, just as in the case of an infant: Skinner v. White, 19 C. L. J. 115; and need not be a solvent person: Sharp v. Sharp, 2 Chy. Ch. 244; Crumley v. Kingston, 3 C. L. T. 311.

As in the case of an infant the next friend may not be a married woman. If an action is so framed the defendant may move to remove her, and stay the action till a proper next friend is named: Mostin v. Mostin, 15 P. R. 177.

The consent of the next friend to act must be filed: Rule 99.

A committee before instituting a suit on behalf of a lunatic or his estate must obtain the sanction of the Court: Den. Prac., 5th ed., 82; 6th ed., 118.

If an action is brought in the name of a person, who was at the time in a state of mental incapacity, without either a committee or next friend, the defendant may move to dismiss the action, but not if the plaintiff becomes imbecile after commencing an action in the ordinary way: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 81, 83; 6th ed., 118; Wortnoby v. Wartnoby, Jac. 377; Bloke v. Smith, You. 594.

Where an action has been commenced in the name of a person of unsound mind by next friend, an inquiry may be directed at the instance of the person alleged to be of unsound mind as to his competency: Powell v. Lewis, 40 W. R. 88; 65 L. T. 672.

An action which can be shewn to be not beneficial to a lunatic plaintiff will be stayed on application, as in the case of an infant: Waterhouse v. Worsnop, 59 L. T. 140.

Plaintiff improperly described as lunatic.

Where an action is brought by a next friend on behalf of a person alleged to be of unsound mind, but who is really of sound mind, the action will on his application, shewing by affidavit his sanity and ability to manage his own affairs, be ordered to be dismissed with costs against the next friend: Palmer v. Wolesby, L. R. 3 Chy. 732; and the defendant may make a similar application: Skinner v. White, 19 C. L. J. 115; and see Borrie v. Weymouth, 15 P. R. 95; and Richmond v. Bronson in note to Rule 124, supra, p. 543; sed vide Quantz v. Smeltzer, 6 P. R. 126.

The application must be to a Judge in Chambers, since if the affidavit is contradicted or doubtful, an inquisition in lunacy might be directed and the Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction to entertain such a question: Skinner v. White, supra, p. 478. Rule 94.

If a plaintiff is found a lunatic, and a committee appointed after the commencement of an action, an order should be obtained for the committee to carry on the proceedings: Green v. Pratt, 41 L. T. 30, and see Beall v. Smith, L. R. 9 Chy. 85, where the effect of the appointment of a committee was said to paralyze a preceding action by a next friend. If during the action the committee dies or is removed, and a new committee is appointed, a similar order should be obtained. If the plaintiff's solicitor neglects to obtain an order in either of such cases, to carry on the proceedings, the defendant may, before judgment, move to dismiss the action, unless the order is obtained within a limited time; after judgment the defendant may obtain the order himself. See Dan. Forms, 3rd ed., 55. Plaintiff becoming insane pendente lite.

The Court has no jurisdiction over the property of a person of unsound mind, except to protect it, so that where more is desired the proper course is to apply for the appointment of a committee to prosecute the suit: Skinner v. White, supra; see Jones v. Lloyd, L. R. 18 Eq. 265; Beall v. Smith, L. R. 9 Chy. 85.

By The Hospitals for the Insane Act (R. S. O. c. 295), the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities is ex officio committee of lunatics detained in any public asylum or place of safe custody, and having no other committee. But the Court may appoint a committee of any such lunatic, and upon its so doing, so long as the committee appointed by the Court exercises such office, the Inspector ceases to be the committee. Inspector as Committee.

Lunatics—As Defendants.—A lunatic defends by the committee of his estate, if he has one: Rule 97. If he has none, or his committee has an adverse interest, or the lunatic has not been so found by inquisition or judicial declaration, he defends by guardian ad litem under this Rule: see also Howlett v. Wilbraham, 5 Mad. 423; Worth v. McKenzie, 13 M. & G. 363. Lunatics as defendants.

The committee of a lunatic's estate is a necessary party defendant with the lunatic in an action relating to that estate, and may defend without obtaining leave: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 82.

As to the mode in which a lunatic defendant in an action is to be served: see Rule 21, and Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645.

After service under Rule 21, no further proceedings are to be taken against a lunatic who has no committee, until a guardian ad litem is appointed: Rule 22. If the friends of a lunatic desire to defend for him, they should cause an appearance to be entered for him: see Rule 95 (2), and then apply in Chambers: Crawford v. Crawford, 9 P. R. 178, to have a guardian ad litem appointed: see Rule 93, 221. Notice of such a motion should be served on the alleged lunatic, unless it be shewn to be dangerous to do so: Bank of Ottawa v. Bradfield, 2 O. W. N. 1014; and see Re Mein, 2 Chy. Ch. 429. Any fit person who has no adverse interest may be such guardian: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 180, but in general the Official Guardian will be appointed: Rule 95 (3). Guardian must be appointed.

If no application is made on the lunatic's part the plaintiff may, after the time for appearance has expired, apply for the appointment of a guardian ad litem by motion on notice; in which case the Official Guardian will be appointed, unless he be already acting as solicitor for the plaintiff, or for some other parties having an interest in the subject matter of the action adverse to the lunatic, or unless the friends of the lunatic ask for the appointment of some other person, in which case some other proper person may be appointed: see Rule 95 (3), though some good reason is now required for appointing some one other than the Official Guardian: see Rule 95, and notes.

Where proceedings are carried on without the due appointment of a guardian to a lunatic defendant, they are not merely irregular but void: see Warnock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

The defence of a lunatic or person of unsound mind should be expressed to be by his committee or guardian; Arch. Pr., 13th ed., 1048.

Added after judgment.

Where a person of unsound mind, not so found, has to be made a party in the Master's office, after judgment, or to be served with notice of motion for an administration order, a guardian ad litem must be appointed "in like manner as before judgment," that is to say by analogy to the practice (see Rule 2) in an action before judgment: see Rule 96, and Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645. The procedure will therefore be by special motion in Chambers; in the latter case, before the application for the administration order is made: Wolff v. Ogilvy, supra; Berry v. Brazil, 1 Chy. Ch. 237.

Service of persons of unsound mind with an office copy of a judgment, pursuant to Rule 87 or otherwise, is effected as the officer before whom the reference is pending directs.

A guardian ad litem to a defendant, who became of unsound mind after judgment, was appointed at the instance of a co-defendant who wished to obtain indemnity from the insane defendant: Re Dawson. Johnston v. Hill, 41 Ch. D. 415.

No appearance by persons of unsound mind.

95.—(1) Where no appearance has been entered to a writ of summons for a defendant who is a person of unsound mind not so found, the plaintiff may apply for an order that a guardian of such defendant be appointed, by whom he may appear and defend.

(2) No such order shall be made unless it appears that the writ was duly served, and that notice of the application was, after the expiration of the time allowed for appearance, and at least six clear days before the day in the notice named for hearing the application, served upon, or left at the dwelling-house of, the person with whom the defendant resides, or under whose care he is at the time of serving such notice.

(3) The Official Guardian shall be appointed, unless for good reason it is otherwise directed. C.R. 218.

Eng. (1883) R. 101 does not speak of an Official Guardian, and includes the case of an infant which is provided for by Rule 18.

This Rule is based upon the English Chancery Order 7, Rule 3, as to which, see H. & L. Jnd. Act, 2nd ed., p. 390, and Morgan's Chy. Orders, 4th ed., p. 400; Seton, 4th ed., 706. Rule se.

It will be seen, from the terme of Rule 22, that the practice in Ontario is the same as under the Eng. Rula of 1883, and that even though an appearance should be entered for a lunatic, if he has no committee or guardian ad litem, the plaintiff cannot proceed until a guardian ad litem is appointed. It is apprehended that the intention of the Rules is, that application may be made on behalf of a lunatic for the appointment of a committee or guardian ad litem by whom he may appear and defend; but that if no such appointment is made, the plaintiff may under this Rule apply to have a guardian appointed. Guardian must be appointed to lunatic defendant.

By The Hospitals for the Insane Act (R. S. O. c. 23) s. 40, the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities is ex officio committee of lunatics detained in any public asylum who have no other committee, and, in the case of a defendant for whom the Inspector is thus committee, service of a writ or other paper on the Inspector is sufficient if he is named therein as committee: Ib., sec. 42; see also notes to Rules 94, 97.

Applications under this Rule should be made to the Master or other officer having jurisdiction in Chambers, not to a Judge: Crawford v. Crawford, 9 P. R. 178. If the lunatic defendant has been found to be of unsound mind by inquisition, or judicial declaration, the Rule does not apply, and he should defend by his committee; but where he has not been so found lunatic the Rule applies, and it should be shewn, on the application to appoint a guardian, that the defendant has not been found lunatic by inquisition or judicial declaration: Crawford v. Birdsall, 1 Chy. Cham. 70; and facts must also be shewn upon which the Court may judge for itself that the person is of unsound mind: McIntyre v. Kingsley, 1 Chy. Ch. 281. The Official Guardian is to be appointed, unless a case is made for appointing another proper person. It will have to be shewn that such other person has no conflicting interest: see Rule 93, and James v. Robertson, 1 Chy. Ch. 197. Motion in Chambers. Official Guardian generally appointed.

Service of notice of the application is necessary though the person to be served is out of the jurisdiction: O'Brien v. Maitland, 10 W. R. 275.

An appointment of a guardian without notice served as directed by this Rule was held to be void, and not to be a mere irregularity, and to be a defect not capable of being waived by the fact that the Official Guardian who was appointed, acted as such, and made all the inquiries usual in such cases in the interests of the lunatic: Warnock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264. It would seem that Sunday is reckoned in computing the six clear days: see Brewster v. Thorpe, 11 Jur. 6; unless it is the last day: see Rule 179; see also Rules 172, 173. Notice of application.

96. Where a person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition or judicial declaration is served with an office copy of a judgment or order or is made a party after judgment, a guardian ad litem shall be appointed for him after the like notice. C.R. 219. Appointment of guardian ad litem to infants or lunatics added after judgment.

Based upon Chy. Orders 522, 525.

Rules 97, 98. Ths former C. R. 219 applied not only to persons of unsound mind but also to infants. No express provision is now made for the appointment of guardians to infants after judgmsnt; hut hy analogy to this Rule it may possihly be held that where an infant is made a party after judgment, or is served with an office copy of a judgment or order, a guardian shall he appointed for him as prescrihed hy this Rule in the case of persons of unsound mind.

Infants added after judgment, guardian for, how appointed.

Infants.—Ths appointment of guardians ad litem to infants before judgment, is now governsd hy Rules 18, 92, 93. Under those Rules service of the writ on the Official Guardian ad litem, ipso facto constitutes him the guardian of ths infant on whose behalf hs is served, where ths infant is served in respect of his intsrest in an estate, but not in actions for personal torts, or for the mere recovery of land, goods or money: ses Rules 19-20. Where an infant is required to be served with an office copy of judgment it is ordinarily in that class of cases in which service of a writ on ths Official Guardian is sufficient service on the infant if an original defendant, and hy analogy to Rule 18 (see Rule 2), in such cases, servlce of the office copy of ths judgment on ths Official Guardian would be snfficient service on ths infant, and the Official Guardian would thereby hecome ipso facto his guardian ad litem. Where there are ssveral infant defendants to be served, by analogy to Rule 18, only ons copy of ths judgment nesd be served on the Official Guardian.

Lunatics added after judgment, guardian for, how appointed.

Lunatics.—This Rule refers to persons of unsound mind not so found hy an inquisition or order of the Court. The appointment of guardians ad litem to such persons hefore judgment is regulated by Rules 93, 95. Where the person is found lunatic hy inquisition or order, it is not necessary to appoint a guardian ad litem for him, his committee having power to act for him.

The appointment is made on an application in Chambers, notice of which motion may be served along with the office copy of ths judgment—or afterwards, hut no further proceedings affecting ths person of unsound mind can properly be taken until a guardian ad litem bas been appointed for him: see Rule 22 and Rule 3 j; Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645. Where the Master before whom the reference is pending has also jurisdiction in Chambers, it would seem that he would have power to entertain such applications: see Rules 209, 433.

Where a person has been judicially declared a lunatic, ssrvice is effected on his committee, who should hs made a co-defendant: Sm. Pr., 7th ed., p. 311, and it would seem not to be necssary in such a case to appoint a guardian ad litem: Ib., but where ths lunatic bas no committee within ths jurisdiction, it has besn hsld proper to serve the Official Guardian ad litem on behalf of such lunatic: see Re Hagar, 12 P. R. 645, sed quære; see Warnock v. Prieur, supra, p. 481, and in case of lunatics detained in any public asylum: see R. S. O. c. 295, supra, p. 481.

Lunatic so found, how to sue or defend.

97. A lunatic who has been so found may sue or defend by his committee. C.R. 217.

See notes to Rule 94.

Persons declared incompetent.

98. A person who has been declared incompetent under The Lunacy Act shall be represented by any person who may be authorized under the provisions of that Act. New.

The Lunacy Act (R. S. O. c. 68), does not appear to make any provision for declaring a person "incompetent." The Court has power, by s. 6, to declare a person a "lunatic." See, however, s. 37 of the Act. Rule 99.

99. Unless otherwise ordered, before the name of any person is used, as next friend or as relator, such person shall sign a written authority to the solicitor for that purpose, and the authority shall be filed in the office in which the cause or matter is commenced. C.R. 198. Consent of next friend, or relator, to be filed.

Married Women as Plaintiffs and Defendants.—Married women prior to the Married Women's Property Act were not considered to be sui juris and could not sue without a next friend, or be sued without joining their husbands. They may now sue and be sued in their own names, and without a next friend and without joining their husbands as co-plaintiffs or co-defendants, either in contract, in tort, or otherwise, or as a trustee or representative of a deceased person: see The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149), ss. 3, 4 (2), 16. Married women as plaintiffs, and defendants.

Section 16 of the Act is as follows:—

16. Every woman, whether married before or after this Act, shall have in her own name against all persons whomsoever, including her husband, the same remedies for the protection and security of her own separate property, as if such property belonged to her as a feme sole, but, except as aforesaid, no husband or wife shall be entitled to sue the other for a tort: 3-4 Geo. V. c. 29, s. 16. Remedies of married woman for protection and security of property.

Notwithstanding the concluding words of this section, a wife could always formerly sue her husband for alimony; and might compromise the suit and deal with it just as any other suitor can: Vardon v. Vardon, 6 Ont. 719, and the Act has not been considered to have made any change in that respect, although an alimony action is founded in tort.

She may sue her husband to recover possession of her real estate: Till v. Till, 15 Ont. 133; or for the return of her personal property detained by him: Larner v. Larner, 1905, 2 K. B. 539.

A married woman in sole occupation of a house bought by her out of her own earnings may sue alone, without her husband, in an action for trespass: Weldon v. De Bathe, 14 Q. B. D. 339.

Costs.—Where a married woman sues as a feme sole, semble, she assumes a liability to be ordered to pay personally the defendant's costs of the action: such liability does not depend on contract and apparently is not one, the enforcement of which should be limited to her separate property. Costs.

Contracts.—The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149), s. 5 is as follows:— Contracts.

5.—(1) Every contract into by a married woman on or after the 13th day of April, 1897, otherwise than as an agent Contracts of married women to bind all their separate estate.

(a) Shall be deemed to be a contract entered into by her with respect to and to bind her separate property whether she was or was not in fact possessed of or entitled to any separate property at the time when she entered into such contract,;

(b) Shall bind all separate property which she may at the time or thereafter possess or be entitled to: and

Rule 99.

Except where restraint on anticipation exists.

(c) Shall also be enforceable by process of law against all property which she may thereafter while discovert possess or be entitled to.

Post nuptial contracts.

(2) Nothing in this section shall render available to satisfy any liability or obligation arising out of such contract any separate property which she is restrained from anticipating: 3-4 Geo. V. c. 29, s. 5.

Post-nuptial Contracts.—Where a married woman enters into a contract for necessaries as agent for her husband she cannot be sued thereon—and the Act does not apply to such contracts. She was held to have so acted where she gave evidence (uncontradicted) that she had her husband's express authority for dealing with the plaintiff, and that the dresses purchased by her from the plaintiff, which were the subject of the action, were worn in his presence; and if no evidence is given beyond the fact that the goods were such as are usually required in the department of domestic life, which the wife usually manages, and the lady gave her name and address as that of a married woman living with her husband, the presumption is that she acted as his agent, unless such presumption is rebutted by other evidence; and it is immaterial whether the plaintiff knew that the wife had her husband's authority: see Paquin v. Beauclerk, 1906, A. C. 148.

A husband may bring an action against his wife for money lent and for money paid at her request after marriage: Butler v. Butler, 14 Q. B. D. 831; affirmed in appeal, 16 Q. B. D. 374; see McGregor v. McGregor, 20 Q. B. D. 529.

Since R. S. O. 1897.

As to contracts made since 13th April, 1897, by a married woman, it is no longer necessary to allege or prove the existence of separate property, either at the date of the contract or subsequently: see Gibson v. Le Temps, 8 O. L. R. 707.

A judgment against a married woman in default of appearance or defence must follow form No. 110; H. & L. Forms Nos. 923 or 924, or it will be void; and a personal judgment against her on a post-nuptial contract was held to be void though she had consented thereto: Re Hamilton v. Perry, 24 O. L. R. 38.

The separate estate of a married woman is liable for her funeral expenses: Re Gibbons, 31 Ont. 252.

In an action on a contract made before marriage.

Ante-nuptial Contracts.—Where a wife is sued on a contract made before marriage (whether before or after 13th April, 1897), there is no need to shew the possession of separate estate at the time of entering into the contract or at the time of judgment: Downe v. Fletcher, 21 Q. B. D. 11; more fully reported, 59 L. T. 180. Judgment in such a case will not be restricted to property not subject to any restraint on anticipation, as in Scott v. Morley, infra, p. 485; Robinson v. Lynes, 1894, 2 Q. B. D. 577; see also Downe v. Fletcher, 59 L. T. 181, per Lord Coleridge; and Axford v. Reid, 22 Q. B. D. 548, (decided under the English M. W. Act of 1870, and as to which, see Birmingham v. Lane, 1904, 1 K. B. 35; 89 L. T. 656); Re Teasdall v. Brady, 18 P. R. 104; but even, though the judgment be in a personal form, it would seem that The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149), s. 21, will still have the effect of protecting property from execution which the defendant is restrained from anticipating, unless the restraint is imposed by the married woman herself: Birmingham v. Lane, 1904, 1 K. B. 35; 89 L. T. 656.

Enforcement of Judgments against a Married Woman.—Although married women may now be sued as femes soles a judgment recovered against them is only recoverable out of their separate property not subject to restraint against anticipation, unless such restraint was imposed by themselves. In the case of a contract entered into before 13th April, 1897, both separate property at the date of the contract, and all separate property thereafter acquired, will be liable to satisfy any judgment recovered, provided it is not subject to any restraint against anticipation not imposed by herself: The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149), ss. 4 (5), 21. Rule 99. Before 13th April, 1897.

In the case of a contract entered into by a married woman on or after 13th April, 1897, otherwise than as an agent, all separate property which she may at the time, or thereafter, possess, or be entitled to, is bound, and the contract is also enforceable by process of law against all property which she may thereafter while discovert possess or be entitled to: Ib., sec. 5 (1 b. c.), provided it has not been subject to a restraint against anticipation not imposed by herself: ss. 5 (2), 21, After 13th April, 1897.

The form of judgment against a married woman was settled in Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. 132, but that form was settled prior to the statute of 1897; for the form now in use, see Form No. 110; H. & L. Forms Nos. 923, 924; and see Brown v. Dimbleby, 1904, 1 K. B. 28; 89 L. T. 424; Doull v. Doelle, 5 O. W. R. 414; Quebec Bank v. Rodford, 10 P. R. 619; Turnbull v. Forman, 15 Q. B. D. 234; Kinnear v. Blue, 10 P. R. 465; Cameron v. Rutherford, Ib. 620. Form of judgment under present Act.

Where the married woman after the contract has become a widow, such verbal alterations should be made in the form of judgment as are necessary to adapt the form to that state of facts: see Softlaw v. Welch, 1899, 2 Q. B. 419; 81 L. T. 64.

The judgment has been said not to subject the married woman to a "personal" liability, but only to a "proprietary" liability; per Bowen, L. J., in Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. at p. 128; and see In re Hewett, 1895, 1 Q. B. 328; 72 L. T. 60; but in Holtby v. Hodgson, 24 Q. B. D. 105, it was said that this was only a short and compendious way of saying that the judgment must be executed against her property, not her person: see also Van Wart v. Burland, 17 C. L. T. 68, and McLeod v. Emigh, 12 P. R. 45, doubted in Re Teasdale v. Brady, 18 P. R. 104. The judgment is, in other words, a personal judgment though it can only be enforced against her property: Pelton v. Harrison, 1891, 2 Q. B. 422; 65 L. T. 845.

But semble, a married woman plaintiff being before the Court as a feme sole is liable, like any other suitor, to be ordered to pay costs, and a judgment therefor ought to be against her generally, and not limited to her separate property: see Morris v. Freeman and other cases, supra, p. 250. As a defendant, the costs may, and generally are, ordered to be levied only out of her separate property.

Where a married woman administratrix was ordered to pay into Court money admitted to be in her hands and to belong to the estate of the intestate, it was held that in the absence of any evidence that she had committed a devastavit, the order should be in the ordinary form, and should not be restricted to payment out of her separate estate; and if she failed to comply with the order the Court had jurisdiction to make an order for attachment against her; but, semble, if the object of the order be to make her make good a loss occasioned by her devastavit, the order should be as in Scott v. Morley; Re Turnbull,

Rule 99.

Turnbull v. Nicholas, 1900, 1 Ch. 180, subject to modification as above, where the liability has arisen after 13th April, 1897.

An order for arrest should not be made under The Fraudulent Debtors Act (R. S. O. c. 83), s. 3, in the case of a married woman against whom a judgment leviable only out of her separate property has been recovered: Doull v. Doelle, 4 O. W. R. 525.

As to how far a married woman is subject to the provisions of The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 63), ss. 191, 192, relating to judgment summonses: see McLeod v. Emigh, supra, p. 485; Aylesford v. O. W. R., 1892, 2 Q. B. D. 626; Re Teasdall v. Brady, 18 P. R. 104; sed vide, 116 L. T. Jour. 467-70; and Re Stewart v. Edwards, 11 O. L. R. 378. There is no power to commit a married woman for refusing to attend to be examined upon a judgment summons, even though her refusal amounts to wilful misconduct: Ib.

Property not subject to restraint on anticipation.

With regard to all her property, other than that settled to her separate use with a restraint on anticipation not imposed by herself, a judgment against a married woman is said to operate against her just as it would against an unmarried woman: Holtby v. Hodgson, 24 Q. B. D., at p. 107; Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, 1897, A. C. 177; see also Cox v. Bennett, 1891, 1 Ch. 617; but it does not even after her husband's death bind her personally to pay the debt, as if she were a feme sole at the time of its recovery: Pelton v. Harrison, 1891, 2 Q. B. 422; In re Hewett, 1895, 1 Q. B. 328.

Property subject to restraint.

As has been already mentioned, separate property which is subject to a restraint on anticipation, is not separate property upon which a judgment can operate (unless such restraint exists under any settlement of her own property made by herself): Bursill v. Tanner, 13 Q. B. D. 691; Myles v. Burton, 14 L. R. Ir. 258; Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. 120; Beckett v. Tasker, 19 Q. B. D. 7; see also Pike v. Fitzgibbon, 17 Ch. D. 454; Smith v. Lucas, 18 Ch. D. 531; Re Hedgely, 34 Ch. D. 385; Re Dixon, 35 Ch. D. 4; Smith v. Whitlock, 34 W. R. 414; Roberts v. Watkins, 46 L. J. Q. B. 552; Re Glanville, 31 Ch. D. 532; Re Andrews, 30 Ch. D. 159; even after the removal, by the death of the husband, of the restraint on anticipation: Pelton v. Harrison, 1891, 2 Q. B. 422; Softlaw v. Welch, 1899, 2 Q. B. 419; 81 L. T. 64; Barnett v. Howard, 1900, 2 Q. B. 784; Brown v. Dimbleby, 1904, 1 K. B. 28; 89 L. T. 424; in the case of a judgment on an ante-nuptial contract: see cases supra; and Birmingham v. Lane, 89 L. T. 656; and the judgment cannot be enforced by any kind of process (receiver, sequestration, or otherwise), against income of property subject to a restraint on anticipation, accruing due after the date of the judgment: Hood-Barrs v. Cathcart, 1894, 2 Q. B. 559; Loftus v. Heriot, 1895, 2 Q. B. 212; 73 L. T. 167; Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, 1897, A. C. 177; Whiteley v. Edwards, 1896, 2 Q. B. 48; 74 L. T. 720; Colyer v. Isaacs, 77 L. T. 198; Bolitho v. Gidley, 1905, A. C. 98; 92 L. T. 369. Thus income, which is subject to a restraint on anticipation, accrued before the date of the judgment, but not paid over to the married woman, can be reached by the appointment of a receiver (but not income accrued after the judgment): Loftus v. Heriot, supra; Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, 1897, A. C. 177; but this distinction was denied in Wood v. Lewis, 110 L. T. 934, where it was in effect held, that any income which is the subject of a restraint against anticipation is not attachable either before, or after, it has become payable.

A plaintiff cannot, by postponing the entry of his judgment, make available income not accrued due before the time when he became entitled to enter judgment: Colyer v. Isaacs, 77 L. T. 198.

Rule 99.

Effect of Act as to conveyances to husband and wife and third party.

The Act, in enlarging the capacity of a married woman to take property, as her separate property, has changed the former rule in respect to a gift to a husband, his wife, and a third party, so that now the husband and wife do not take one moiety, and the third party the other moiety, but each takes one-third: Re March, 24 Ch. D. 222; Re Dixon, 42 Ch. D. 306; Re Wilson & Incandescent Light Co., 20 Ont. 397; Thornley v. Thornley, 1893, 2 Ch. 229; 68 L. T. 199; Re Jeffery, Nussey v. Jeffery, 136 L. T. Jour. 143; but see Re Jupp, 39 Ch. D. 148; 59 L. T. 129, and 11 C. L. T. 97, 153, 157; 13 C. L. T. 177.

Form of judgment against married woman.

Judgment against a widow on a contract entered into by her during coverture must be according to the form settled in Scott v. Morley, as modified in Form No. 110, and not in the ordinary form as though she were a feme sole; Softlaw v. Welch, 1899, 2 Q. B. 429; but it may be enforced against property acquired after the death of her husband: Doull v. Docile, 10 O. L. R. 411, provided it was not during coverture subject to a restraint against anticipation, which during coverture would have exempted it from liability: Brown v. Dimbleby, supra, p. 486.

The restraint on anticipation though suspended on a married women becoming discovert: In re Wheeler's Settlement, 1899, 2 Ch. 717; revives on her subsequent re-marriage: Stroud v. Edwards, 77 L. T. 280.

The execution by a married woman of a general power of appointment by will makes the property appointed liable to meet her debts: The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149) s. 9; Re Ann, 1894, 1 Ch. 549; 70 L. T. 273.

Execution.

A writ of sequestration against the "estate and effects" was held to be in proper form, but it only operates on separate property, not subject to any restraint on anticipation as above mentioned: Hyde v. Hyde, 59 L. T. 529; 36 W. R. 708; Hood-Barrs v. Cathcart, etc., supra, p. 486.

The property liable may be reached in execution in the usual way, as in the case of any other judgment debtor: Barker v. Westover, 5 Ont. 121-2; Lowson v. Laidlaw, 3 Ont. App. 77; and see Perks v. Mylrea, W. N. 1884, 64; Re Peace v. Waller, 24 Ch. D. 405; and a direction in a judgment that an inquiry be made as to separate estate exigible, does not authorize the examination of any person other than the debtor or other person examinable under Rule 580, et seq.: Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, Ex p. Blyth, 1896, 2 Q. B. 338.

Ante-nuptial Torts.—A married woman is liable to the extent of her separate property not subject to any restraint against anticipation as above mentioned for her ante-nuptial torts; and her husband is also liable for such torts to the extent of all property whatsoever belonging to his wife, which he shall have acquired and become entitled to, from or through his wife, after deducting any payments made by him, and any sums for which judgment may have been bona fide recovered against him in any legal proceedings in respect of any of his wife's ante-nuptial debts, contracts or torts, or post-nuptial torts: The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149), s. 13 (1); as to whether he is liable to any greater extent; see Ib. s. 4 (2); Holmested's Married Women's Property Act, pp. 4, 47, 48.

Actions of tort.

Post-nuptial Torts of Married Women.—A married woman is liable to the extent of her separate property as aforesaid for her post-nuptial torts; and her husband is also liable therefor to the same extent as he is also liable for her ante-nuptial torts: see R. S. O. c. 149, sec. 18 (1), but it was held, under the Act of 1872, that the husband was not a proper party to the action, but that the wife was to be sued alone, and that her liability was not dependent upon her possession of separate estate: Amer v. Rogers, 31 C. P. 195; Barker v. Westover, supra; but see Lee v. Hopkins, 20 Ont. 686. This seems to be in accordance with the opinions expressed by Hagarty, C.J., in Stone v. Knapp, 29 C. P. 809, Spragge, C., in McFarlane v. Murphy, 21 Gr. 80; and Wilson, J., in Wagner v. Jefferson, 37 Q. B. 577, 578; but under the present Act the husband and wife may be sued jointly, or the wife may be sued alone, for torts committed by her after marriage: Seroka v. Kattenburg, 17 Q. B. D. 177; see Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. at p. 125; Bohin v. Hughes, 31 Ch. D. 390; Earle v. Kingscote, 1900, 2 Ch. 585, followed in Travis v. Hales, 6 O. L. R. 574, approving of Lee v. Hopkins, 20 Ont. 666, and overruling Amer v. Rogers, 31 C. P. 195.

Rule 99.

Where the action is against both husband and wife, they cannot put in inconsistent defences. The defence of the husband is to be considered the one on the record: Beaumont v. Kaye, 1904, 1 K. B. 292; 90 L. T. 51, though what was regarded as an inconsistent defence in that case might probably not be so regarded under the Ontario Rules.

In actions by a married woman for a tort suffered by her, unconnected with her separate estate, her husband was, even after the Act of 1872, required to be a party plaintiff: see Amer v. Rogers, 31 C. P. 199; but under the present Act it would seem that the wife may sue alone: Weldon v. Winslow, 13 Q. B. D. 784; Spahr v. Bean, 18 Ont. 70; The Married Women's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 149), s. 4 (2).

(iii) Partners, etc.

Scope of the Rules.—The following Rules, 105-108, form a code and must, in construing them, be read together: per Lord Esher in Worcester, etc., Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 787-8, adopting the view of Fry, L.J., in Heinemann v. Hale, 1891, 2 Q. B. 90.

What are firms within the Rule.

These Rules in effect merely furnish a convenient way of proceeding by, or against, the individuals who constitute a firm, by enabling them to sue, or be sued, in the name which they have adopted for business purposes. A plaintiff is thereby enabled to reach in the first instance the property of the firm, and also under certain circumstances (see Rules 105-106), the property of the individuals: see Re Frances Handford, 1899, 1 Q. B. 566.

The partners may still be sued individually if the plaintiff so desires. In such case, if he does not sue all the partners, those sued may be entitled to have the others added as defendants: see note to Rule 134, p. 569; and a judgment obtained against some only of the partners will be a bar to an action for the debt against the others not sued: see note to Rule 106, p. 500.

A proprietary club would appear to be a partnership in which the proprietors are the partners, and may be sued in the club name: Firmin v. International Club, 5 T. L. R. 612, 694. As to a member's club, see Overton v. Hewett, 3 T. L. R. 656; The Granville Club, 28 Sol. Jour. 513; Stansfield v. Ridout, 5 T. L. R. 656.

As to whether trades unions can be sued: see Taff Vale Ry. v. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, 1901, A. C. 426; 85 L. T. 147; and other cases noted under Rule 75. Rule 100.

See also as to general scope of the Rules: Law Quarterly Mag., vol. (1896), p. 53.

100. Any two or more persons (whether British subjects or not and whether residing within or without Ontario) claiming or being liable as partners, and carrying on business within Ontario, may sue or be sued in the name of the firm of which such persons were co-partners at the time of the accruing of the cause of action. C.R. 222. Partnership firms, how may sue, and be sued.

Follows in substance Eng. R. 1891, O. 48*a*, r. 1.

The words in brackets are not in the English Rule, and have been inserted to make clear what seems also to be established by decision to be the meaning of the Eng. Rule: see Grant v. Anderson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 108; Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784; Shepherd v. Hirsch & Co., 45 Ch. D. 231.

If a firm is sued as such, service may be effected either upon any one or more of the partners, or, at the principal place of business of the partnership, upon any person having control or management of the business. The partners are to appear individually in their own names, but all subsequent proceedings go on in the name of the firm: Rule 102. Scope of Rule.

After judgment against the firm, execution may issue as provided in Rules 105, 106.

The Rule only covers the case of two or more persons trading as a firm, it does not authorize a single person carrying on business in the name of a firm to sue in the firm name: see Lang v. Thompson, 16 P. R. 516; St. Gobain v. Hoyermann, 1893, 2 Q. B. D. 96; Russell v. Cambefort, 23 Q. B. D. 526. He may be sued in the name or style under which he carries on business, under Rule 108, but must sue in his own name: Lancashire v. Spectator, 29 O. L. R. 293. Individual carrying on business as a firm.

Infant Partner.—This Rule applies though one of the partners is an infant: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534; see Re Beauchamp, 1894, 1 Q. B. 1; but the judgment should be expressed to be either against the firm "other than A. B., an infant," or possibly against the other partners by name: Ib.; and Lovell v. Beauchamp, 1894, A. C. 607; see pp. 612, 613; but see Rule 102, and notes to Rule 20. Infant partner.

"Carrying on Business Within Ontario."—Under the present Rules the test of the power to sue a firm by its firm name is whether or not it "carries on business within Ontario": per Lord Davey in Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. p. 790, so that the Rule has no application to actions by, or against, a foreign firm not carrying on business within Ontario, the members of which are domiciled and resident out of Ontario, even though a partner be temporarily within and served within Ontario: Agar v. Kaufman, 39 Sol. Jour. 181; Grant v. Anderson, 1892, 1 Q. B. Carrying on business.

Rule 100.

108; but it applies to a firm carrying on business within Ontario, though it be a foreign, or a British, or a colonial firm, the members of which are resident out of Ontario: Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784.

As to the difference between "carrying on business" and "transacting business": see Nelson v. Lenz, 9 O. L. R. 50, 52, and Rule 23.

A place of business held in the name of the firm in charge of a partner, or employee, would seem to be necessary to bring the firm within the meaning of this Rule. Regular visits to Ontario to purchase goods to be sent to the firm is not "carrying on business" within the Rule; see Singleton v. Roberts, 10 R. 223; 70 L. T. 687; Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784; sed quære whether a place of business is necessary except to effect substitutional service on a manager provided for by Rule 101.

A partner may perhaps be considered as carrying on business of the firm at his regular office, though the name of the firm does not appear there: see Heinemann v. Hale, 1891, 2 Q. B. 83, where some such circumstances existed, but the former Rules were held not to apply.

A foreign corporation having agencies within the jurisdiction, and conducting a trade therein by means of steamships, was held to be "carrying on business" within the jurisdiction: La Bourgogne, 1899, A. C. 431; 79 L. T. 310, 331: Thames & M. M. Ins. Co. v. Societa di Navigazione, etc., 111 L. T. 97. So a foreign corporation having "a stand" at the Crystal Palace for exhibition of their manufactures at a "cycle show," and for explaining their cycles, taking orders, and pressing the sale of their goods: Dunlop Pneumatic Tire Co. v. Action Gesellschaft, etc., 1902, 1 K. B. 342; see also Nelson v. Lenz, supra.

The mere employment of an agent within the jurisdiction to solicit orders, but not to make contracts, is not "carrying on business within Ontario" within the meaning of the Rule, notwithstanding that the name of the firm is painted on the door of the agent's office: Grant v. Anderson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 108. See also Baillie v. Goodwin, 33 Ch. D. 604.

See also notes to Rules 23, 24, 101.

Foreign firm as plaintiff.

Foreign Firm as Plaintiff.—If not "carrying on business within Ontario," a foreign firm cannot sue by its firm name. An action may, of course, as formerly, be brought by all the partners in their individual names, and in such an action a counter-claim may be made against the firm even though an action respecting the subject of the counter-claim could not have been brought within Ontario against the plaintiffs: Grieudtoveen v. Hamlyn, 8 T. L. R. 231.

Defendants.

Foreign Firms as Defendants.—The individual members of a foreign firm may still, it is presumed, be sued jointly, in any case within Rule 25; but, unless carrying on business within Ontario, the firm cannot be sued in the firm name, even by leave, under Rule 25. Dobson v. Festi, 1891, 2 Q. B. 92; Von Hellfeld v. Rechnitzer, 1914, 1 Ch. 748; 110 L. T. 877; where the members of the firm (or any of them: Indigo Co. v. Ogilvy, 1891, 2 Ch. 31), reside abroad: see per Lord Davey in Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 790; and see Western, etc., v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, under the former Rules.

The correspondents in New York of an Ontario firm of brokers, who, in certain transactions, share profits with the Ontario firm, are not thereby partners of that firm: Ryckman v. Randolph, 20 O. L. R. 1. Rule 101.

Where a foreign firm carries on business within Ontario, that circumstance makes it under the Rules subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, apparently, whatever the cause of action may be, and it will not be necessary to bring the case within Rule 25, or to obtain leave to issue the writ against the firm: Rule 101; Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784.

The writ when issued however must be served according to some one of the modes prescribed by Rule 101, otherwise the service will not be sufficient to bind the firm and support a judgment against it, which is the only form of judgment obtainable in such an action: see Rules 102, 104, 105. Substitutional service in modes not prescribed by Rule 101 cannot be ordered: Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 788.

From the reference to the time of the accruing of the cause of action in this Rule, and from the clause as to dissolved firms in Rule 101, it would seem that a firm dissolved before action may, nevertheless, sue or be sued in the firm name, but in the case of defendants, if the dissolution was known to the plaintiff at the time of the issue of the writ all of the partners within the jurisdiction sought to be made liable must be individually served: see Rule 101; Fisher v. Linton, 28 Ont. 322.

Disclosure of Names and Addresses. — If partners are suing in the name of the firm they must, on the demand of the defendant, disclose the names and place of residence of the partners: Rule 14; see notes to that Rule. Disclosure by partners.
