THE ENGLISH CRISIS.

Conservatives Enraged with Lord Randolph Churchill.

A Doubtful Situation—Rumors that Lord Hartington Will Not Accept Office.

(By cable to the N. Y. Herald.) LONDON, Dec. 23.—The Campbell divorce case was on every tongue here last week. Today nothing is heard but Churchill. He furnished the news to the Times alone, which had a beat on all its contemporaries, the first time in some years. I tried this morning to interview Lord Randolph, whose official residence was literally besieged. He, however, declined to allude to anything until parliament opens in three weeks hence. I then visited one of his close friends, a Tory member of parliament, who in consideration that his name should not be used, talked freely. He said—"There has been a Churchill in the cabinet from the time of the late Earl of Salisbury. He was a Tory and was known to Sir Stafford Northcote as 'the peer of the peer' and Sir Randolph's aim was to get rid of Sir Stafford from the house of commons. But the latter in the cabinet soon began to pay back his young tormentor.

BOURBONS IN THE CABINET. "I don't know what you Americans call a Bourbon politician, but I know the name and lives in the year 1849, while Churchill, a radical Tory, wishes to keep abreast of the times. With Idelworth as fellow Bourbons in the cabinet are Lord John Manners and Viscount Cranborne, about seventy years old each; also Cross and Smith, who are over sixty.

Lord George Hamilton is a young Bourbon, only forty-one years old, but the son of a Tory duke, and whose mother is the daughter of another Tory duke and who is jealous of Churchill's leadership. The latter really had met Matthews, in the home office, as an intimate sympathizing colleague, and Salisbury and Balfour as apparent friends.

LORD RANDOLPH DE TROTS. "Lord Randolph was a reformer, agitator and economist. He is fond of quoting the line from the American poet, 'Let the dead bury their dead,' also he is for letting the dead bury their dead. He has been generally regarded as a radical, but he is not a radical in the sense of the view of those who are now, unfortunately, our opponents. (Loud cheers.)

Several of our Bourbons were John Bull, on whom Churchill has the red rag. Several of our Bourbons were John Bull, on whom Churchill has the red rag. Several of our Bourbons were John Bull, on whom Churchill has the red rag.

Next, Churchill believed in a real, local democratic, electoral county government, not in any half-way measures by letting the home government and what he called "the squires" appoint some local officials. Soon the London city Tories were horrified to see Churchill oppose their taxation of the rest of London a shilling per ton for coal, also Idelworth and Manners, who pointed out that this tax was as old as that sweet Tory James II.

THE ROCK THEY SPLIT ON. "Churchill did not believe in extreme Irish coercion and protesting landlordism, when young Bourbons Hamilton wanted £300,000 for the navy and old Bourbons Smith £200,000 for the army, and Salisbury backed these, they were the last straws on the back of the budget, and Churchill refused.

"Will he oppose the government in the house?" I asked. "Perhaps," was the answer, "for his fourth party is not yet dead."

COMING EVENTS. "Who will succeed him?" "I am assured that it will be Lord George Hamilton, who is the only other member of the cabinet really capable of being the leader of the house. Charles Ritchie, now the successor to Dilke in the government board, and lately secretary of the admiralty, will then go to the Admiralty. Churchill, seriously and long, has generally been a sympathizer with Churchill.

FRIDAY'S LONDON PAPERS. LATER—5 a. m., Friday.—The Telegraph rather defends Churchill's step, and says frankly that "conservation to live, not to die." The Chronicle writes similarly, and says: "On the question of economy being slighted by Churchill's colleagues, they and not he, have thrown away their future in politics." The Post climbs the fence on the event, but, on the whole, thinks Churchill took the honorable and patriotic course.

The other government organ, the Standard, devotes against Churchill's patriotism, and invents two distinct editorials to show him liberal and a Tory traitor. The Standard is the devotee of Lord Idelworth. The Times is pleased with its yesterday's news victory, and says nothing. The Gladstone organ, the Nation, speaks of Churchill as breaking up of the Tory government, but without giving very strong reasons.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S VIEWS. Mr. Chamberlain, in an address at Birmingham last evening, attacked Churchill's Independent boldness, and significantly said: "I confess it seems to me possible, I fear it is probable, that the old Tory influence has gained the upper hand, and that we may be face to face with a Tory government whose proposals no consistent liberal will be able to support. "I thought that the Tories had, perhaps, grown wise by experience and that they were perhaps to govern in a liberal spirit. If they have abandoned that intention then Lord Salisbury must be prepared for all the consequences."

The latest advice (via a. m.) from Rome alleges that Lord Hartington will decline to take the chancellorship or any post in the Salisbury cabinet.

Chamberlain's Speech. HE PRAISES LORD RANDOLPH AND INDICATES POSSIBLE AGREEMENT WITH THE GLADSTONIANS. (By cable to the N. Y. Herald.) LONDON, Dec. 24.—Mr. Chamberlain made a speech at a private meeting of the Birmingham Liberal club last evening. He said that the present political situation was extraordinary and critical one. It had totally changed within 24 hours. "Although," he continued, "I have often differed with Lord Randolph Churchill, I have nevertheless done justice to his great ability and quick appreciation of public sentiment. Though reared in old Toryism, he has repeatedly shown superior to it, and his position in the present government was a guarantee to me that he would not pursue a reactionary policy. Churchill's recent speeches displayed the principles upon which he would govern. His resignation is a very significant announcement."

TENNYSON.

The Laureate and His Poetic Grandson at "Locksley Hall."

"SIXTY YEARS AFTER."

(By cable to N. Y. Independent.) Late, my eye open, half the morning have I paced these sandy tracks, Watched again the hollow ridges roaring into cascade, Wand'ring back to living boyhood while I heard the curlew call; I felt no more of death, and death itself in Locksley Hall.

Old Age Recounts Youth's Errors and is Eloquent with Good Advice. (By cable to N. Y. Independent.) Late, my eye open, half the morning have I paced these sandy tracks, Watched again the hollow ridges roaring into cascade, Wand'ring back to living boyhood while I heard the curlew call; I felt no more of death, and death itself in Locksley Hall.

But I never doubted that it was possible to devise a plan for the settlement of the land question. I am convinced that any of the three liberal leaders can soon arrange a scheme which, without any special risk on the British taxpayer, will in a short time make the Irish tenant the owner of the land he cultivates. We could go even further in the direction of unity. If we do not question of local government the difference recedes. We have all agreed on a scheme applicable to England and Scotland, and we are prepared to apply it with necessary changes of details to Ireland. Are we to remain disjointed, fighting, and in interminable strife for the benefit of our opponents, or are we to make the honest attempt, if we do not agree on every point, at least we can agree to carry these important reforms, on which there is no difference of opinion between us, and leave it to time to settle the discussion of the subject to say whether, when we have accomplished these reforms, we may not go a step further in the direction of the views of those who are now, unfortunately, our opponents. (Loud cheers.)

LONDON, Dec. 24.—In consequence of Lord Salisbury's request, Lord Hartington will resign his office on Monday. He has not received an invitation yet to enter the cabinet. Opinion grows that Hartington is not to be any longer in the cabinet. He has been finally decided to further promote until the second week in February. Lord Randolph Churchill alone insisted upon an early meeting of the cabinet, and he is summoned for next week. Lord Randolph Churchill is irritated and astounded at the quantity of the denunciations of his course by conservatives.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—Supporters of Lord Randolph Churchill, declare that when he is able to tell the true reason for his resignation, the disclosure will name the cause throughout the country and result in his triumphant vindication. They say it will be shown that he did not oppose grants of necessary reforms to the empire, but that he refused to sanction an increase of estimates unless it was accompanied by a reformed administration of the public affairs. It has been said that Randolph discovered while in office, says his friends, that the government had no control over the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of pounds which are now, unfortunately, for the war office for material that has never been provided, and that similar abuses exist in the admiralty.

Montreal's Winter Carnival. MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 23.—The annual winter carnival is now recognized as the event of the kind in America, affording as it does an opportunity of enjoying by actual participation every description of Canadian amusements. The carnival will commence on Monday, February 7, and continuing through the week will close on the night of Saturday, February 12. The programme includes tobogganing on illuminated slides, skating exhibitions, hockey matches and horse races on the ice, snowshoe parades by night and day, Mardi Gras parades, curling competitions, grand concerts and musical entertainments. Every museum and conservatory will be free to visitors during the week, and the least attractive of such places being the agricultural display in the grand ice castle. The carnival will be held, as usual, under the auspices of a committee of citizens, the sports being under the immediate direction of committees from the various athletic clubs.

The Pop's Complaints. ROME, Dec. 23.—The Pope, receiving Christmas congratulations from the College of Cardinals, spoke at some length of the position of the church in Italy. He protested against the anti-clerical movement which is being carried on in the country and said that the Holy See was now despoiled of the last remnants of its patrimony. The only liberty left to him was that which he had inherited from the Roman pontiff in the earliest ages. The Italian government, he declared, had assisted the laity in unduly interfering with the administration of the church, had expelled religious bodies and had tolerated an organized hostility against the Vatican. As the head of the church he must continue to protest against the position in which he is placed.

OCEAN YACHT RACE.

ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB PLAN FOR THE CELEBRATION OF THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—As everybody on land is emulating everybody else in being loyal to the Queen's jubilee, the contagion has now spread to the water. Last evening the Royal Thames Yacht Club, at its cosy club house, in Albemarle street, Piccadilly, with Lord Alfred Paget, vice commodore, in the chair, resolved that the jubilee year of the Queen, the patroness of the club, should be celebrated by a great ocean yacht race for a prize of the value of a thousand guineas, open to the world.

Mr. Stowell, the secretary, said: "This proposition was only made last night, but was carried unanimously by a full meeting for the holiday season. The details and full particulars will be yet to be discussed at a next meeting, shortly after New Year's day. Then all the arrangements as to the date, the course and the conditions will be made, but from the club feeling it might be the one and the last of importance and magnitude."

"Will American yachts have an entry?" "Certainly so, if accepting of the conditions that may be made, and the more the merrier."

Have you sunk below them? Poets are the helpless horse, and drive themselves mad with their own thoughts and burn the kindling of their brains.

Brutus! the brutes are not your wrongers, burnt at midnight, found at noon, Twisted hard to mortal agony, with their clapping hands above.

Clinging to the strands of mercy. Are we devils? Are we men? Sweetest, friends of Aesop!—would that he were here!

He that in his catholic wholeness used to call the very Statesmen, brothers, and the beasts whose pains are hardly less than ours.

CHRISTMAS AT SUSSEX.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SUSSEX, Dec. 25.—Perhaps a more unpleasant day could not be experienced than today, rain falling during the morning in torrents. The state of the weather prevented our churches being as largely attended as they otherwise would have been. In the morning services were held in Trinity church, where Canon Medley preached a very instructive sermon, taking his text from 2nd chap of Hagai, "In these days, the desire of all nations." The choir, which had been assembled to rehearse for the service, acquitted themselves in a very pleasing manner. The floral decorations were handsome as well as tasteful. The notices included Merciful and mighty consolation; Good will towards men; Send out thy light and truth; On earth peace, good will to men.

A union prayer meeting was held in the F. C. Baptist church in the morning. Revs. Berrie, McDonald, Gray, Wetmore and Erby being present. Mr. Berry preached a sermon, which is spoken of as being one of great excellence.

The Free Masons are to dine at the Depot House on Monday evening, after installation of officers. A large number have been invited and a pleasant time will no doubt be had. The firing of a pistol in one of our irregulars on Thursday night by a young man whose training and education ought to lead him to know that his conduct is very painful to his friends, is reported. A narrow escape, I am informed, from serious consequences was experienced.
