La Defensas, a Santiago journal, has also denounced the treatment of the children, which Mrs. Tagley calls her "Lotos Buds."

BRITAIN'S LATEST BATTLESHIP NOW PLACED IN COMMISSION

The new battleship Temeraire was commissioned at Devonport for service in the Home Fleet by Captain Alexander Ludovic Duff, lately Naval Assistant to the Controller of the Navy. By an interesting coincidence Captain Duff, as a midshipman, commissioned in the last Temeraire when she hoisted her pennant for the first time in 1878.

This vessel, which was one of the "invincible monsters" at the battle of Alexandria, carried fourteen guns, with an extreme range of five miles, steam at 18 knots, had 11 inches of compound armor, equivalent to 4 inches of Krupp, was 280 feet long, and carried 80 officers and men.

The new Temeraire has an extreme range of fifteen miles, has steam at twenty-one knots, has 11 inches of Krupp plating, is 330 feet long, and only carries about twenty more men than her predecessor.

The first striking impression on boarding her is that of extreme roominess. Her sweep of deck is magnificent, broken only by the wing and center-line turrets, with all superstructure reduced to a minimum.

Some idea of the magnitude of the new Temeraire may be gathered from the number of her decks. She has a main-deck, lower-deck, armored-deck, and double-bottom flat. Between each deck is a splendid head-room and perfect ventilation.

Electricity is the primary factor in the vicinity of this wonderful vessel. The switchboard room, with upwards of three hundred controlling keys, is one of the sights of the ship.

The installation is on a novel plan. Four dynamos generate the current which circulates through two gigantic cables, weighing fifteen tons, carried entirely around the interior of the ship.

These main cables are tapped at frequent intervals, and 140 miles of wire branching off from them give light and heat, ring bells, operate lifts, cooling winches, ammunition hoists, ventilating fans, work the smaller guns, and actuate the fire-control apparatus of the big ones.

The wireless installation is of the new Clark II. pattern, with a radius of 1,100 miles. The operating room is below, instead of on deck, as heretofore, and the wires pass up to the mainmast gaffs are cared around the big ones.

TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.
A telephone exchange, with upwards of a few days, the Home Exchange will close until the 31st.

The football game at Fredericton between the Cornwall & York Mills team and the R. C. R. X's, the capital's team won, score, 1-0. The game was a close one.

William Roach, a well known general merchant of Point de Chene, died last night, aged sixty-five. He is survived by a widow, sister, and a son, John Hughes of the Intercolonial.

The Young Men's Association of Portland street Methodist church, held a busy time at Bellefleur yesterday. There were about 500 passengers on board the Champlain when she steamed out to Bellefleur, and a happy crowd never sailed from Indiantown.

Mr. Ramsey had his hands full catering for them. Music and songs were the order of the trip, and when the Champlain landed her passengers at Bellefleur they all dispersed in various directions.

The return trip was equally as jolly, and the picnic was one of the most enjoyable and successful held by the Y. M. A.

EXTRAORDINARY SALE OF LISLE AND SILK GLOVES.
A surprising glove sale will be inaugurated tomorrow morning at M. R. A's glove counter. Both Lisle and Silk Gloves in White, Black, Tans, Greys and Fawns will be offered to clear quickly, at one special price which will be amazingly low. This is a matter of live interest to the ladies who are requested, in order to avoid disappointment, to be on hand at an early hour.

The 3rd Regt. C. A. spoon match was also held, with the following results:
Class A—
Sgt. I. F. Archibald 77
Bomb. Oscar Dick 63
There was no spoon awarded in class C, as the competitors did not shoot the complete score.

A strong, unsteady wind made very difficult shooting and the scores are accordingly low.

A DAY'S SAIL

Yachtsmen Have a Good Time on River Despite Heavy Gale

A large number of yachtsmen were in attendance at Millidgeville yesterday at the opening of the R. K. Y. C. season. The day's cruise proved most enjoyable, although the heavy winds hampered sailing to some extent. All the boats dropped anchor again at Millidgeville last evening.

The yachtsmen did not regard yesterday's sail as a special cruise, but merely as the first appearance of the boats on the river.

In the morning in the presence of the large number of members of the club the commodore, Robert Thomson, opened the season. The raising of the flag by the staff and the customary firing of cannons took place.

The yachts that participated included the Vagabond, Rena, Lavina, Levita, Viking, Canada, Vincent, while there were a number of smaller craft.

Brown's Flats was reached by many of the yachts and anchor was weighed there for a time. Nearby points on both sides of the river were also visited.

A very strong and stiff northeast wind blew during the day. Between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon it was especially strong and the seas were rough. The boys found it no easy task to sail, and it was decided that an early return should be made to the club house.

By seven o'clock the last yacht had reached Millidgeville and the evening had expressed himself as pleased with the opening day. The wind could be called fair, although at the mouth of the Kennebecas there was a heavy sea. The river here was running strong on account of the full sweep of the tides.

There was some fun when a number of the boys were endeavoring to cast their moorings. A few were given a slight sprinkling of the stream, but no accidents marred the day's pleasure.

Langford Goes Down in Fourth Round of Bout Scheduled to Go Twenty

LONDON, May 24.—Sam Langford, the colored heavyweight of Boston, knocked out Ian Hague, the heavy-weight champion of England, in the fourth round at the National Sporting Club here tonight. The fight, which was for a purse of $5,000, was scheduled to go twenty rounds.

The ring generalship which he has picked up in many fights enabled Langford to score a comparatively easy victory over Hague and the fourth round had barely begun when the burly Yorkshire man was felled by a well-directed blow and counted out.

Langford was at a disadvantage as regards weight, height and reach, but his superior knowledge of ring tactics, and his quickness overcame this and he proved to be a very brief one.

In the first round Hague was slow to start, Langford had a several times to the jaw. This seemed to encourage the men came together in a fast mix-up at the opening of the fourth and Langford put a terrific right on the Yorkshire man's chin, which ended the contest.

IN A PRECARIOUS STATE
AS RESULT OF RUNAWAY
James Hatfield, a driver for No. 2 Salvage Corps, and Frank Elliot, a machinist, living on Main street, North End, were the victims of a runaway accident yesterday at Glenwood. Hatfield sustained injuries to his back and his home, 172 Metcalf street, Elliot, while not so seriously injured, is suffering from a sprained ankle and a lacerated head. Both will recover.

The two men went up to Glenwood by the five o'clock boat yesterday afternoon for the purpose of trying out a horse owned by Captain Tisdeman and for the purchase of which they were engaged to negotiate.

On arriving at Glenwood the horse was hitched up and taken for a spin. Before the occupants of the carriage had fairly settled down, however, and without warning, the animal bolted. The hill leading to the landing was disposed of in whirlwind fashion. Hatfield and Elliot were flung from their seats and the horse running out upon the wharf in negotiating a sharp turn, broke its ankle. The animal was subsequently destroyed. Both Hatfield and Elliot were brought to the city in stretchers by the Slinnams, arriving at nine-thirty o'clock. Drs. Case and Skinner attended the respective cases and reported last night their patients doing well suffering from a fracture forearm.

GETTING ON THE NERVES.

St. John is a city of noises. One would imagine from the unceasing ringing of bells at all hours of the day and night, that we either have perpetual church services, or that funerals are a great feature. No one who has lived in St. John for any length of time, then, can be surprised to find that there are a score of factory whistles, the ferry bell, Trinity every fifteen minutes, and the ship laborers' bell, dozens of street cars, and locomotives dooming around the outskirts, but in the midst of upturn life little attention is paid to the continuous noise. It is after the ferry has sounded the last trip, and human activity for the day may be regarded as over that these varied noises begin to make themselves more noticeable. When bedtime comes the harbor tugs get busy; they go tooting around the wharves as if their only aim in life was to keep people awake, locomotives running from the island yard right around to the water front, persist in a ceaseless clanging of bells and blowing of whistles. Although the street cars at that hour are about out of business, there are ice wagons and milk wagons during the summer months which assist in making the early morning hours hideous, and Trinity every little while is certainly more of a curse than a convenience. As if these things were not enough some ghastly genius has placed out in the harbor a bell of doleful tone which, during periods of fog, or other thick weather and even if it is felt, on occasions when there is really no possible excuse, change its weird warning to persons who do not care a hang whether there is rain or not. And the horn out on Patridge Island every few seconds, sends its howling note up the harbor, with no other apparent motive than that of developing the habit of profanity. For a town of this size and with the activity of St. John there is far too much noise. Perhaps the fog bell and fog horn will not submit to reason, may be it is a matter of convenience to allow Trinity to keep on ringing every few minutes, but certainly there is no excuse for the harbor tugs and the locomotives. They should be shut off.

THE HUNTER PETITION.

Ald. Frink and other members of the water and sewerage board are apparently unwilling to allow Trinity to keep on ringing every few minutes, but certainly there is no excuse for the harbor tugs and the locomotives. They should be shut off.

Already the aldermen have expressed the opinion that Mr. Hunter's services are no longer necessary. He has been released from his engagement with the city, and on the face of the petition there is nothing to indicate that his re-engagement is absolutely necessary. But it is likely that the insurance men are afraid of Mr. Murdoch's dual system, inclinations, and in order to avoid anything like a reversion to former conditions are anxious to keep him from direct control of the water service. If this is the case, why not say so? St. John merchants believe they are at the mercy of the underwriters, and a clear understanding between all interested parties will be of value. Perhaps the insurance people will threaten another increase in rates, perhaps the continuation of the present schedule will be made conditional on Mr. Hunter's re-engagement. But whatever may be said or done, another panic, such as struck the town four or five years ago, is to be avoided. Hence Ald. Frink is acting wisely in delaying action until the full purpose and meaning of the Hunter petition is known.

BEAUTY IN THE MAKING.

(An esteemed contemporary has made the authoritative statement that "no woman has completely reached the zenith of her charms until she has suffered, nor a man until he has had disappointment.")

The papers said the usual things. Mentioned the bride's unearthly grace. Her angel figure (less the wings). Her tresses trimmed with costly lace. Told how the bride's head was tired. And what the midget page was yearning. And found the gallant much admired. For manly build and martial bearing.

So they were wed, this "happy pair." But scarce the bridal moon had waned. When discord, darkening all the air. Got their relations rudely strained. Another month—and oh, how sad! They parted, miserable creatures. Each sore because the other had. A simply rotten set of features.

On rolled the earth, till both were fain. To fix the breach and have recourse. By separation (or divorce). And I, the loyal fellow who. Assisted at the earlier section. Turned up to see the business through. And watch their secular disjunction.

A feather might have knocked me flat. What mystic power had wrought the change. A (fair) couple never sat. Among the wigs within the wall. Then I recalled how beauty's glow. Will thus occur as though by magic. When men have had a horrid blow. And women sampled something tragic.

A most affecting scene ensued. The sight of such amazing charms. Moved them to drop their bitter feud. And fall inside each other's arms. Tough Counsel melted who had seen. Whole stacks of married pairs un-mated. And through the lids of Bagnave. The stealthy tear-drop percolated. —O. S., in Punch.

WILLING TO HELP.

Callers—"Sir, I am collecting for the poor's hospital. Will you contribute anything?"

Editor—"With pleasure. Call tonight with the ambulance and I will have some good news."

A Maine man tells a story of a friend of his in the west who was claimed by the latter to be the best wolf-dog in the country. A few days later the man took his new purchase and started out early in the morning to try him out. The dog soon picked up the scent and started off, the man following on horseback. The dog was soon out of sight, but the man could hear him bark occasionally and followed on. About noon he met another man, coming from the opposite direction, and he inquired if he had seen a wolf and a dog anywhere, to which the man replied that he had.

And then, when they were going, queried the man, "Was the dog nearly out of him?"

"Well," answered the other, "I remember correctly, the dog was just a trifle ahead."

"Paw!"

"Well, Tommy?"

"Do you believe there's people living on Mars?"

"I see no reason to doubt it."

"Well, wouldn't it be a good job on 'em if they should find out, after we get to talking to 'em, that they don't know that's the name of their planet?"

"Stella—Is she up in society?"

"Stella—Yes, she used to 'go' her hair, and now she cuts it."

"Nan—I like a play with a stirring plot."

"Father—And how are you getting on at school, Johnny?"

"Johnny—Oh, I have learnt to say 'Thank you' and 'If you please' in French."

"Father—That's more than you ever learnt in English."

"Tommy—I looked through the key-hole when Sis was in the parlor with her beau last night."

"Father—What did you find out, my son?"

"Tommy—The lamp, sir."

"Come over and see me."

"Sorry, old man, but I have an engagement with my tailor in 20 minutes."

"Gee! but you're getting swell! Couldn't break such an important date, eh?"

"No. The date is in the court room."

THE SALE OF FIRECRACKERS.

To the Editor Star:

Sir—I would like to say a few words in reference to the sale of fire-crackers and the danger to property from same.

I would suggest it a good idea for the common council to pass a law prohibiting the sale of fire-crackers, except on the 4th of July, and that could be dispensed with, too. For in a city like St. John where there are so many wooden buildings, the chances of a general conflagration are very great, especially on a day like the 24th. It is absolutely no use prohibiting a child by the way of penalties, for he will take chances whether or not. But the only way is to come at the dealer and prevent the sale.

Thanking you, PROPERTY OWNER.

HEAVY RAINS BRING DISASTER IN OKLAHOMA

Earthquake Shock Felt at Messina.

Jack O'Brien and Ketchell Matched—Fifteen Drowned—Negro Lynched—Dime Novels Again.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 24.—Five persons are dead, at least ten seriously injured, several thousand acres of crops are inundated and every stream in the northern and eastern part of Oklahoma is raging as a result of heavy rains during the last twenty-four hours. A number of houses were washed away.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 24.—Jack O'Brien and Stanley Ketchell were matched tonight to fight six rounds before the National Athletic Club, this city, on June 9th. The men agreed to weigh in at 160 pounds at noon on the day of the fight. Each fighter deposited a forfeit of $1,000.

MESSENA, May 24.—One of the severest shocks since the great earthquake occurred here this afternoon. The movement was both vertical and horizontal and lasted ten seconds. The shock was preceded by a rumbling noise. The populace fled panic-stricken, and the walls of the ruins in various places collapsed.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 24.—A photograph helped the Jersey City club of the Eastern League to win a victory for Sunday baseball. The victory was held today by Fisher Eiderge, the eleven-year-old son of state senator James F. Shaw, was returned to his father today by Fisher Eiderge, the father of Mrs. Shaw, who, with the boy, was found in company with Mr. Shaw's chauffeur in Santa Barbara, Cal., recently.

LINCOLN, Ga., May 24.—Albert Aiken, a negro, who wounded John Spire, a white farmer, last Thursday, was hanged early today by 100 men who came into the jail, seized the negro and carried him into the country. The body was found today by a team of men.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, May 24.—A steam launch in which Julius Jacobson, a representative of the General Electric Company of New York, and fifteen others were making a trip on the River Tiete today, ran into a sunken rock and was wrecked. Jacobson and six of the other excursionists were drowned.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 24.—After journeying as far as Meriden, Conn., on his way to the far west, Frank Rice, aged fourteen, returned to his home in North Cambridge today, and was at once taken into police custody and locked up at the central station, Somerville, on the charge of attempted train-wrecking. Rice said that he had worked his way to Meriden, and that for two days he had had nothing to eat, so he came back. He disappeared after several attempts were made last Friday night to wreck trains on the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine R. R. by putting sleepers on the tracks. The police say Rice has been reading dime novels.

Another boy, Kenneth Foster, is also in custody. He is from Somerville and Cambridge police expect to make a third arrest within a few days.

Multan withdrew to some broken ravines, but he was held in check and his retreat to the hills prevented until the arrival of some infantry from the cantonment. Most of the "badmash" Pathans were captured, and were hanged on the 22nd of last month.

Multan himself, who was a magnificent shot, married down the British officers until a bullet hit him full in the face and killed him. This ruffian is said to have been a great favorite with the ladies, and several charms were found hanging beneath the freshest of his fancy every one in the Ashawar admired him for his coolness and his daring, but by many a midnight summons he had sorely taxed his popularity with the military and police.

The Peshawar border has also been freed of another disturber of the peace. The Sufi Mullah, who it will be remembered, created a diversion just as our troops were about to enter the Mohmand country, by leading a large Afghan and Shinwari "lashkar" against Lund Kotla, died last night. He was a political and religious agitator of the worst type, and no one regretted his death.

Directly to the south of Peshawar lies a long strip of independent territory, which separates Peshawar from Kohat. It is occupied by the Adam Khel section of the great Afridi tribe. The Pathans, as doubtless everybody in England knows, are always quarrelsome and fighting with each other, and are bound down by a terrible system of blood feuds, which is highly detrimental to their advancement to prosperity and civilization. A feud is usually fought out by a money payment, or be silenced temporarily by a truce.

That there is honor of a high sort, even among these savages, is illustrated by the following facts: Some time ago the Adam Khels agreed to have an armistice for twelve months, and they forthwith set up pillars to witness the "sulah," or peace. The truce was scrupulously respected, except in one case, where a great outrage was known the Jowaki (sub-section) "qaul," or council, consisting of 60 elders, immediately assembled, and quarreled themselves upon the offender. They refused to do business for a week, during which the wretched man had to feed them, and feed them well too. They then tried him, burned his house and property, and gave him a few days in which to pay a fine of Rs. 2,000. (112.)

Eccentric Hat's Still Vogue, But They've Beautified It

The eccentric hat still obtains, but it has become beautiful as well. The harsh outlines are softened with large plumes, masses of flowers and ribbon. One side is almost universally wider than the other, and this width is usually chosen as the place to set the trimming.

THE INDIAN FRONTIER.

Where There is Always Fighting of Some Sort to Do.

A correspondent of the London Standard writes:

Minor disturbances continue to be recorded along the northwest frontier—they always follow expeditions such as the Zakha Khel and Mohmand last March and May—but they have no political significance, though the political officers in charge of the north-west frontier are very tender about their chollutions of truculent tribesmen.

Last December there disappeared from the scene a character of some importance. There are few outlines of his name in the northwest frontier—they always follow expeditions such as the Zakha Khel and Mohmand last March and May—but they have no political significance, though the political officers in charge of the north-west frontier are very tender about their chollutions of truculent tribesmen.

On more than one occasion he turned his regimental education to good account. Last year he held in check and his retreat to the hills prevented until the arrival of some infantry from the cantonment. Most of the "badmash" Pathans were captured, and were hanged on the 22nd of last month.

BRYCE SEES NO REASON IN THE WORLD FOR WAR

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 24.—James Bryce, the British ambassador, was the guest of honor and the principal speaker tonight at the Victoria Day dinner, commemorating Queen Victoria's birthday, given by the British Schools and Universities Club of Delmonico's. One hundred and fifty others were present, among them being Dr. John H. Finley, of the College of the City of New York; Dr. Francis L. Patton, former president of Princeton University; and J. M. Clark of Toronto. A toast was drunk to "the king" and "the president," and after some preliminary speeches, Mr. Bryce responded to the toast "the empire." As he arose every diner sprang to his feet and the room echoed with cheers. The ambassador paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of Queen Victoria, and then said:

"I feel an interest in the prosperity of the United States, only second to my interest in Great Britain, and I believe the citizens of the United States have an attachment to our empire. This is a good thing for the peace of the world. The two nations are of one mind and have one heart and desire to promote peace among other nations. I see no reason in the world anywhere for war and I hope that such an occasion may never come."

In conclusion he spoke of the responsibility of Great Britain for the people under her control not ready for autonomy, saying that the colonies were accepting their part of the burden.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 24.—British Empire day was celebrated in Louisville by a banquet tonight at the Maple Leaf Club, an organization of several hundred Canadian citizens. Dr. W. H. Montague, of Winnipeg, minister of railways in the cabinet of Sir John McDonald, made a speech, in which he advocated a supreme court of nations for the settlement of all disputes. He said that when England and the United States agreed to abide by this court, no other nation would dare refuse.

Two seiners abroad.

LIVERPOOL, N. S., May 24.—Liverpool was swept by a northeast hurricane today that drove two American mackerel seiners on the rocks, shook many buildings and did much damage along the shore. The storm came from the east on Sunday morning as a light breeze that gradually developed into a fifty mile hurricane. There were a number of vessels in the harbor and they sought shelter under Brooklyn lights. Among them were fourteen seiners. Early today two seiners, Lena and Maud and Judique, broke their cables and drifted ashore at the mouth of the river. They may be floated with considerable difficulty. All crews were kept busy for the entire day, for at any moment more of the fleet might break adrift.

Many buildings were badly shaken by the storm and the loss to shore fishermen will be heavy.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

Mr. John Griffith and supporting company appeared before a large audience at the Opera House yesterday. The bills were the bill for the afternoon performance, while in the evening Macbeth was produced. At the matinee Mr. Griffith was at his best and created a very favorable impression. Miss Totten, the leading lady, is a capable actress, and in the part of Annetta displayed considerable ability. While Mr. Griffith is an actor of no mean powers, his talents find wider opportunity in roles other than Shakespearean. His interpretation of Macbeth was not on a par with his work as Mathias, it was intensely dramatic, and he was much to be pitied. Miss Totten in the difficult part of Lady Macbeth gave a consistent interpretation.

This evening Faust will be presented.

'Twill Cost $500,000 to Give Ghosts of Dead Armies a Place in Their Old Haunts

PICTURE SHOWS HISTORIC F.T. TICONDEROGA, AS IT IS TODAY, AND MRS. S. H. P. PELL, NEW YORK SOCIETY WOMAN WHO WILL RESTORE IT TO ITS FORMER CONDITION, AS IN THE DAYS BEFORE THE REVOLUTION.

NEW YORK, May 24.—"It is gone-gone-gone," say the pulsating sounds of nature, keeping time with your thoughts. "Montcalm, Abercrombie, Howe, Amherst, Allen, St. Clair, Burgoyne—Indian, French, English, colonial—burning torch, savage cry, pouring blood, booming gun."

Twenty years ago an author who loved the ruins of old Fort Ticonderoga, in New York, this picture and the story of the fort's restoration, and the passing of the old stronghold. Now comes a New York society woman who wants it restored as far as possible.

She is willing to live on the scene of the bloody battle, and the ghosts of French, Indian, English and colonialists may traverse her halls as they please. They'll be welcome, she says.

The woman is Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell. The old fort and its surroundings have belonged to the Pell family for over 100 years, and it was Mrs. Pell herself, who, charmed with the

GERMANY'S NORTH SEA SENTINEL; HELIGOLAND NOW SWARMING WITH SHIPS

Heligoland, where the German fleet has now gathered for maneuvers, guards the entrance to Germany's two greatest ports, and is probably that one of her possessions which she regards with most complacency as having been obtained from England for the asking. Not, of course, that it would have been wise to neglect the opportunity of having what was an open sore even though we received in exchange for it a perfectly illusory compensation which was really not Germany's to give or withhold—the suzerainty of Zanzibar.

But although Germany obtained this beautiful and useful island so easily and cheaply, she does not hold it the less dear for that. She is fortifying it—has indeed fortified it—after modern ideas, so that it will indeed be a formidable obstacle in the way of any power threatening to approach to Hamburg and Bremen.

What, however, will strike an impartial observer most forcibly in the contemplation of Heligoland today is the marvelous way in which it has become completely Germanized in the short space of nine years. I am afraid that this argues a neglect of the island when Britain owned it, and yet it may not be so. For self-acting little communities like that of Heligoland and Malta have a way of preserving their individuality in some important respects and of initiating their overlord in others that is not easily to be explained.

A PROSPEROUS ISLAND.

How very few indeed, of the Maltese in Malta speak English! A very bad patois of Italian and the ancient Phoenician are their colloquial media, and the parallel holds exactly in Heligoland, where English is practically unknown; the better classes speak German, and the bulk of the population a patois of their own, which is akin to the ancient Frisian. Under German rule, however, Heligoland has prospered, has been made to feel that its circumstances could not fall to be bettered by its inclusion in the mighty German empire; and although the condition of individual freedom are certainly far less easy than they were, there are no signs that the people resent this change. A cynic might say that they dare not; but, given a sympathetic listener, the individual who feels the shoe pinch seldom falls to air his grievances. And I find that while there is a slight sentimental regret for the British flag manifested by those who were born under it, such a feeling is entirely over-weighed by the pride they take in the position occupied by Germany among the nations today.

The comfort, yes, prosperity, exhibited by the islanders is very marked, especially in comparison with the islands of the Netherlands, which, like Heligoland, gain their livelihood by fishing and the money spent by visitors during the summer. There are no beggars here and no appearance of either poverty or squalor. All men, women and children are well dressed and appear to be well fed, also to have an air of independence that sits very well upon them.

This is shown also by the great number of large well-built piers, a number out of all proportion to the tiny population of 4,000. Fishing is a really prosperous industry here, the fishermen's gains ranging between five and ten shillings a day each, and in the summer, when, as most seaside visitors know, coastal fishing is suspended by the working of natural law, which draw the fish off into deep water, there comes the great influx of visitors. Their numbers average 20,000, and where on earth they are all bestowed seems a mystery, although no doubt it is easy of solution to the trained observer for the wants of seaside visitors.

A NORTH SEA PANORAMA.

There must be something extremely fascinating in a place which, without any natural advantages, such as are

"GRACE IS NOT USUALLY SAID OVER CHAMPAGNE"

Dr. Cochran intimates that the Homes of the Rich Do Not Develop Men for Christian Ministry.

DENVER, Colo., May 24.—"Grace is not usually said over champagne and lobster at a Newburg."

"Family affairs are not raised over Persian rugs."

"Students for the ministry do not as a rule get their early training by running steam yachts."

These remarks by Dr. Joseph M. Cochran, of Philadelphia, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Education, caused great interest in the Presbyterian General Assembly today.

Dr. Cochran spoke on the report of the Board of Education which deplored the lack of recruits for the ministry.

MUSICAL TWINS' FIRST JOB NETS THEM BIG PRICE

TOLEDO, O., May 24.—How would you like to be the Coolbrasses brothers of Chicago, who have just received a check for $14,000 for four songs—and for their first efforts in the musical line, by the way?

It would be more interesting to say the "Musical Twins" as they are called, wrote in a garret, lived on crusts and hawked their productions from publisher to publisher, only it would not be true, so romance gets it where Amanda grabbed the pullet.

The first man who heard the "Musical Twins" songs cornered them. His name is Carl Laemmle, who went to Chicago with $2,000 he had saved in the clothing business, invested in the moving picture business and is now piling up the cash.

Laemmle met Phil and Bob Cochran, heard the former hum a catchy air, suggested it would make a popular song and a few minutes later read the words which are now known as "The Love Bug." Then and there Laemmle contracted for four compositions and signed a check for $14,000. In addition he agreed to publish all future efforts of the brothers.

Before branching out as song writers, Phil and Bob Cochran were newspaper men, the latter at one time being city editor of the Toledo Bee. They are now in the advertising business in Chicago, writing their songs between drinks; as you might say—or between adds, to be more correct.

To date the brothers have written "The Love Bug," "When the Band Plays at Night," "You've Got Me Goin' Kid," "Let's All Go Home."

SMALL BOY DROWNED AT NORTH SYDNEY

Peter Pizalle, Aged Six, Went Adrift on a Raft and Jumped Overboard.

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S., May 24.—A drowning accident happened at Sydney Mines on Sunday afternoon when a little German boy aged six years, named Peter Pizalle, lost his life. The boy was at play on a raft in a pond near his home when the raft went adrift. A boat was launched from the shore, but before it could reach the boy he got frightened and jumped over in an endeavor to reach shore. He sank and never rose again.

TO SHIP GOODS VIA MEXICO NOW

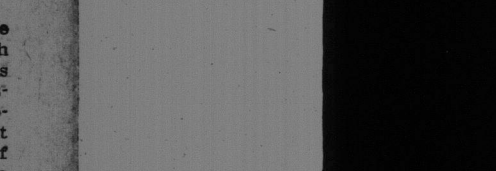

HALIFAX, N. S., May 24.—On the Elder-Dempster steamer Bormi, which has arrived here from Montreal, is David Martin, of the staff of the customs department at Toronto. The Dominion government is making a test of the practicability of the carriage of goods between Montreal and Canadian ports on the Pacific coast by way of Mexico. The scheme is to have freight carried by water from Montreal to Mexican ports and from other Canadian ports to points near Vera Cruz, in Mexico, thence overland by the Tehuantepec railway, a distance of 200 to the Pacific seaboard, and thence by water to final destination. Martin has been appointed by the Canadian government to oversee the transportation of freight in bond through Mexican territory and he will be stationed there during the shipping season. It is claimed that by this route freight can be carried from Montreal to British Columbia ports 20 per cent more cheaply than overland by the C. P. R. Should the experiment prove a success, the Mexican railway mentioned which has recently been completed, will be double tracked in order to accommodate the large traffic to which this route would give rise. The possibilities, Mr. Martin stated, for development by the proposed route are great, notwithstanding the fact that the distance is several times as far as by direct overland line.

Spoiled Victoria Day

A pouring rain and high northwesterly wind spoiled Victoria Day celebration in Halifax completely. Had the day been fine the celebration would have been one of the most extensive ones seen here in many years. The features of the day's programme was to have been a review of the garrison on the common adjoining which all troops, both permanent forces and militia, were to have taken part. This had to be put off, for when the militiamen mustered at the armories the rain was coming down in torrents. The wind reached a velocity of 40 miles an hour and the rain fell in twenty hours was 2 1/2 inches.

NEW YORK SOCIETY GIRL'S STORY OF HER TROUBLES

I have attempted that which God and the world are supposed to look upon as a crime. The girl who saved my life—told me that boredom was at the bottom of my attempt, and I laughed at her. "Do you think that is the tragedy of my life?" I asked. Yet as I go over the tedious details of all that went before I am firmly convinced that she was right—boredom was the root from which branched the events that followed.

For four years, day in and day out, I've been doing the same thing, saying the same things and meeting the same things—the things that figure so prominently in the society columns of our daily and weekly papers. And I belonged to them, was one of them.

I was born to it—Heaven help me!—just as the criminal's child is born to crime unless some one leads him away from it early enough. A gold spoon baby I suppose the world would have called me. All my life I've been pampered and indulged in by governesses who were paid to do it and others who knew it was to their best interests.

My mother is a cold, brilliant woman, who adores men and looks upon women as cats who'll scratch their minute she turns her back; so she smiles impartially on both sexes and ranks as a "popular matron" who retains much of the beauty of her early youth. Morally and mentally I've never interested her particularly, but socially—and matrimonially—I was to prove a credit to her, of course. That was probably planned when I was in the cradle.

My father is likewise cold and brilliant and is known as "a man of affairs." Occasionally he proves himself human by establishing a volcanic temper. That is all I know about him.

I have one brother, a lawyer, who ranks as an eccentric because he doesn't care about "playing the game." He was for a long time the oasis in my desert of life.

HER COMING OUT.

I was introduced when I was just sixteen. It seemed all roses and golden glory then. I'd been trained for the great occasion—treated and pruned, duffed and smoothed, told how to stand and how to sit, what to say, how and to whom to say it. But I learned my lesson cheerfully—the world was mine and I was a child, inevitable. Five debutantes were selected to receive with me—not too good looking, nor yet homely enough to call attention to the fact. Two of them were friends, the others were girls who would be giving forth while entertainments throughout the winter.

From the day of my debut I gained a reputation for originality by changing the bouquet on my arm every five or ten minutes. It was done, incidentally, to show how many flowers I received—a rather daring process, but excellent advertisement of my mother's popularity. Such are the hall marks of social distinction.

There was a bewildering array of teas that first year, dozens of them just like my own, at which people did and said the same things with little or no variety. You could very well have taken a sample of one as a specimen of the rest. But I loved it—all of it. The lights and the fragrance of perfumes and flowers, the music and the blaze of color dazzled me so that I had no time to note details. I was whirled about like a helpless little marionette. The string was pulled and I danced—I wanted to dance. I wanted to be everywhere and do everything at once, and I did, most of the time.

I don't recall anything definite about that first year—it was just a gorgeous medley. There wasn't a single human being that counted. I was in love with the shining, brilliant, stately world—my own exclusive world, in a word. I was fascinated by the attentions shown me, I was hailed as a belle and a beauty, all society girls are called beauties in the world—except me.

MISS BIGELOW'S CATCH.

Jeanne Bigelow, the other "success," had come home from abroad with a French poise and a French count. I wondered the night she presented them both to us at a Horse Show box party whether she had paid duty on the latter as well as the former, he was so obviously made to order. Also, it seemed to me I had seen or met him before, and I puzzled my brain to recall just when, where and how. He was narrow-shouldered, blond and watery, and spoke with a beautiful baby lisp. He looked as though for generations his ancestors had fed on those fatty French oysters—marmalades, they called—just leave such a nasty metallic taste in your mouth. Jeanne put him through his paces that night for all the world as though she were exhibiting a blue ribboner, and I dare say that's just the way she felt about him. It didn't matter much, a horse, a dog, or a prospective husband, so long as he was for one reason or another an enviable possession.

A few days later Jeanne's brother—a sprig of the American nobility—a certain magazine of town talk called him in describing the affair—gave a luncheon at Sherry's for his sister and her foreign trophy of the chase. We had a table in a large room—publicity had been at the bottom of it.

But having failed to attain the freedom of wedlock, I was not untroubled by those of my sisters who might be regarded with titbits of scandal, and so De Bereniz, who seemed to look upon me as something more than the newest thing in gowns with a girl inside, was as intense relief after the callow youth and senile age of the ballroom and tea table. He seemed to enjoy my views on everything, even sounding me on the marriage question from the American girl's point of view. And I talked—heaven, how I did expound my all of twenty-year-old theories and ideas! Helma Penning—whom I loved more than anyone else in the world—used to twit me with the startling announcement that I looked almost human when he was about. I told her she didn't realize the man was my safety valve. I'd never before dared to tell a male creature that I read anything but the latest popular novel.

I dare say my mother was already beginning to entertain visions of visiting her daughter, the Baronne de Bereniz—rest assured the title would no longer rest in retirement once the Baron became my mother's son-in-law at the ancestral estate near Budapest. The magazine of town talk previously mentioned had helped along the thing by hinting that something was pretty sure to come of the devotion of a certain distinguished visitor to our fascinating, type-haired young friend, who from the day she made her how to us, little over a year ago, has been steadily gaining in originality and one might almost say, daring. I couldn't quite see where this last came in, and it didn't especially please my mother—it's one of the few charming uncertainties of my particular species of life, waiting yet dreading to see whether next week's issue of this spicy little sheet will have anything at a party of this kind is by no means a thing to be shunned. There were only ten in all, but Fritz (short for John Frederick Hunter Bigelow, the last two recently hyphenated) had something new for us in the way of a Hungarian baron who from all accounts, though vague at best, was here representing his government. Fritz had met him, Carlsbad, and had taken him up with few questions asked. We were informed in advance that he doctored his titles while here and was to be known modestly as Dr. de Bereniz. He was about thirty-five, well built, well groomed, well seamed, and wore inconspicuously several small orders, besides a distinguished-looking monocle on a heavy black cord. Jeanne's count faded quite into insignificance beside the charm of this newcomer, though personally, I was far more interested for the time in the limp Frenchman. I couldn't help feeling that somewhere I had seen him under the most favorable circumstances.

During the course of luncheon the conversation turned, as usual, on the gowns worn at a ball the night before. And here Jeanne had just cause to feel pride in her foreign importation—he might have been at the head of a dressmaking establishment, so thoroughly was he at home in discussing the latest cry in the fashionable world. One of the girls remarked wistfully that he must have spent much of his time at Paquet's and Doucet's admiring the "models," but the point of her witticism escaped him.

"Oh, yeth," he lapsed sweetly. "I admire women's clothes. After the war, there isn't nothing the fascinating as her gown."

And then suddenly it came to me where I had last seen him. It was the summer before, in a curio shop near the Kurhaus at St. Moritz. As I entered the place he was standing in the doorway gazing with soft sheep's eyes at a terrible creature who tripped her heels in a pair of black and white stockings, a spasm of pain crossing her face at each step. She combined all the light shades and colors of a cockatoo, and the feathers on her hat heightened the resemblance, so that I had felt more for my sister than for the creature. And then I began to think, already two of the girls who received me now about as well as the former was without the latter.

It was during my second season that I began to get a clearer view of things—to separate the men from the music, so to speak. And then I began to think of me now about as well as the former was without the latter.

It was during my second season that I began to get a clearer view of things—to separate the men from the music, so to speak. And then I began to think of me now about as well as the former was without the latter.

to say of you. It served, however, to link my name with the Baron's, so there were compensations.

The devotion of the distinguished visitor continued without developing any exciting details until toward the end of the season, when there appeared in town for a very short visit an American woman, then resident in Italy, a pupil countess, whose hobby was charity bazaars. She had a habit of swooping down upon New York each year, victimizing the populace with a series of concerts, tableaux and fairs, and flying back to Italy with the proceeds thereof. I've often suspected that her charity began at home, but Gotham is quite willing to pay for its pastimes, and the Countess' parties were never dull. Their chief flavor consisted in a motley array of semi-bourgeois, some of whom were none the less "art" clothed in a mode of life that some of our liveliest matrons might well have envied. No, that I heard of these affairs were scattered broadcast—indeed, not they were procurable through invitation to the "vulgar herd."

I was frankly uncomfortable. I thought of the darling with which I had been credited and longed for some relief to relieve the situation. Dr. de Bereniz was leaning oppressively close and I experienced an uncontrollable longing to tell him to straighten up and be a man. "Will you not come for a little promenade with me in the corridor outside?" I heard him say.

"I will not," I replied, rising indignantly. "I'm surprised at you for saying that."

And just then the Countess came toward us, her brow, as she returned to her box after having rectified some error behind the scenes, of none to her companion. "Why, Baron de Bereniz?" she exclaimed, extending her hand. "When did you arrive? I'm so glad to see you. How are you? And do tell me how is the dear little Madame la Baronne?"

FIRE DESTROYS MILFORD SCENE FINE OLD HOUSE OF A BAD FIRE

A disastrous fire occurred yesterday afternoon at Nauyasigauk, 17 miles from St. John, by which the fine old residence of the late Michael Keator, situated on the beautiful knoll overlooking the marshes and the water of Darling's Lake, about a mile above the C. N. station, was entirely destroyed with most of its contents.

Oswald D. Ford and his family have occupied the premises for some time, although Mrs. Keator has retained at least partial occupation, alternating between the old homestead, St. John and Westfield. It was about a quarter to two o'clock when the fire was first discovered on the roof which had apparently been started by sparks, from the kitchen range, and once started the high north wind quickly gave it a hold which no efforts could dislodge until it had consumed everything possible within reach of its fiery breath.

Every assistance possible was rendered the family by neighbors who hastened to the scene, but so fierce was the fire that only a portion of the furniture and effects on the ground floor were rescued, everything in the upper portion of the house being a total loss.

The house contained a great deal of heavy old-time furniture of fine quality, made by the famous cabinet makers of the middle Victorian period, and its destruction not only involves serious monetary loss, but from the artistic and sentimental points of view it is irreparable.

Mr. Ford carried no insurance on the household effects, and he does not know what, if any, policy on the house was held by Mrs. Keator. Fortunately the members of the household met with no personal mishap, but the loss and inconvenience added to the removal of an old landmark of almost manual importance and extent will be regretted by many persons especially among the elderly residents of Kings and St. John counties, who in years past enjoyed the hospitality of its late lamented owner.

TWO HORSES WERE BURNED TO DEATH

About 2 o'clock this morning the fire alarm was rung from box 14, corner of Brussels and Richmond streets, which was promptly responded to. The alarm was for a fire in A. E. McInerney's stable off Brussels street. When the firemen arrived on the scene the building was in flames and it was found impossible to save the horses on the inside. The cries of the unfortunate animals could be heard from some distance. Although too late to save the horses' lives the firemen succeeded in confining the blaze to the stable.

The horses belonged to Mr. McInerney and Mr. Almon. The building was the property of Mr. McInerney. Mr. Almon paid $100 for his horse, which was his claim, worth considerable more. He feels his loss greatly, for he is not in a position to replace it. Mr. Almon lives close by but did not know of the fire until the alarm had been sounded.

The origin of the fire has not yet been discovered.

MANY DON'T KNOW HEART AFFECTED.

More People than Aware of it Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent lecture. "I should like to say that heart disease is as common as this world is," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, not disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and tear of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

I think they are worth their weight in gold."

SCHOOL OF EATING

STARTED BY WOMAN

Pupils Taught How to Face Any Possible Banquet Without Flinching

BUDAPEST, May 24.—An enterprising woman named Harker has started a school here where pupils of all ages are given a full course of instruction in the art of eating.

Practical demonstrations are given in ordinary table manners, but the chief aim of the establishment is to teach the ignorant how to deal successfully with such dishes as they have never even heard of.

A curious feature of the affair is that from the first Lieutenant Calderara had a presentiment that it would be unlucky for him to make a flight.

Thursday he informed Lieutenant Savaja, another army officer, who is studying aeronautics, that he would not attempt an ascent today. Late that night, however, he changed his mind in response to the entreaties of Count Stroganoff, whom he had promised to take with him in the aeroplane, and also because three of Lieutenant Calderara's uncles had arrived from Vienna for the sole purpose of seeing their nephew fly.

HAS MISGIVING STILL.

When Count Stroganoff arrived on the field of Centocelle the sun was shining behind the ancient aqueduct, and, aided by a strong northeasterly wind, which blew almost directly at the aeroplane, the fog which enveloped the plain.

Lieutenant Calderara was still impressed with the belief that it was an "unlucky" morning, and immediately on his arriving he informed Count Stroganoff that it would be more prudent to make the first flight alone, as he feared an accident on account of the wind.

The start was made without mishap and the aeroplane, after rising successfully to the experts on a number of evolutions, although it was apparent that the gusty wind rendered its movements somewhat difficult.

Suddenly, while taking a curve, the aeroplane stopped, tilted forward, and, as if by magic, it was seen to be thrown from its seat, hurled over and over, and when he struck the ground the aeroplane seemed like a gigantic wheel, for the motor was still running, and the machine throbbled convulsively.

When Lieutenant Calderara was apparently dead, but an army doctor, who, it was discovered, was not a doctor, was thrown from his seat, hurled over and over, and when he struck the ground the aeroplane seemed like a gigantic wheel, for the motor was still running, and the machine throbbled convulsively.

Count Stroganoff, who is an Englishman, received the wounded officer, and, as he was being carried to the hospital, he was seen to be thrown from his seat, hurled over and over, and when he struck the ground the aeroplane seemed like a gigantic wheel, for the motor was still running, and the machine throbbled convulsively.

CONCURRENCE OF THE PRINCE.

It was found that Lieutenant Calderara had sustained concussion of the brain, in addition to internal injuries and lacerations to his shoulder, knee, right eye and face. It is believed that he will recover.

The aeroplane was practically ruined, only the extreme propellers and two rudders being left. It was found that the motor had been damaged by the collision with the ground.

They held a mass meeting yesterday and passed, with fitting solemnity, a resolution that, "rather than be forced to remove the body of a man who has died for his country, a general strike of the whole confraternity will be declared."

The special vote referred to the efforts of the family of a millionaire who is believed to be dying, and who wishes to have a coffin-like funeral in other words, he wants his funeral to be dressed in eighteenth century style—and high fees have been offered to a number of nudes if they will consent.

The special vote referring to this warned all brothers that they will be treated as traitors to the confraternity if they masquerade or shave, and that a general strike will be declared until they are dismissed.

MOUSTACHES MAY LEAD TO STRIKE

Funeral Mutes of Paris Resort Effort to Make Them Clean Shaven.

PARIS, May 24.—The funeral mutes of Paris are again easy because of an effort which is being made to force them to shave off their moustaches.

When the investigation that is being conducted by the Buffalo State Cancer Laboratory to ascertain whether fish communicate cancer germs to man when used as food, was called to their attention these experts smiled. They repeated the word "germs" with a deplorable rising inflection and then went into an elaborate explanation of why cancer is not a germ disease.

Chas. H. Townsend, director of the New York Aquarium, declared that if persons were made ill by eating fish it was simply because of the amount of filth the fish imbibed from the foul waters of the streams near our large cities.

WRIGHT PUPIL HURT IN AEROPLANE WRECK

Machine Meets With Disaster in Gale and Dashes Wildly to Earth.

ROME, May 24.—Lieutenant Calderara, one of Wilbur Wright's most promising "flying" pupils, was the victim yesterday of a remarkable catastrophe in which he received serious injuries and the Wright aeroplane was wrecked.

The accident occurred shortly after sunrise on the field of Centocelle, when the aeroplane became unmanageable at a height of 100 feet and suddenly dropped to earth like a stone, burying Lieutenant Calderara under the wreckage.

A curious feature of the affair is that from the first Lieutenant Calderara had a presentiment that it would be unlucky for him to make a flight.

Thursday he informed Lieutenant Savaja, another army officer, who is studying aeronautics, that he would not attempt an ascent today. Late that night, however, he changed his mind in response to the entreaties of Count Stroganoff, whom he had promised to take with him in the aeroplane, and also because three of Lieutenant Calderara's uncles had arrived from Vienna for the sole purpose of seeing their nephew fly.

LONG SENTENCES FOR CRUELTY TO CHILDREN

Body of Unknown Man Found in a Pond.

Two Injured in Auto Accident—Italian Historian Discusses United States Economic Conditions.

PARIS, May 24.—On the charge of having maltreated young children confined to their care, Count H. Sargent, an Englishman, and his American wife, who was Josephine Savin, of New York, were found guilty in the Correctional Court today. Sargent was sentenced to two years imprisonment and his wife to thirteen months imprisonment. In addition a small fine was imposed on each of the defendants.

Witnesses testified that the Sargents beat the children and deprived them of food. One of the last witnesses, Mme. Marchand, of Brussels, declared that she confided her child to the Sargents five years ago and had not until recently heard any tidings of it. In burst of unmanageable fury she threw herself at the throat of Mrs. Sargent and endeavored to strangle her. Guards pulled the enraged woman away with difficulty.

HOOGSTEDT, N. H., May 24.—A bullet wound in the right temple and a hole or depression on the left of the skull made apparently by a blow from a blunt instrument, were disclosed by the autopsy today on the body of a man found yesterday in Hilmant's Pond. The body was weighted with a heavy piece of granite, which had apparently been heaved specially so that the rope wound around it would not become detached. At the other end the rope was wound half a dozen times around the man's waist.

The body was in an advanced stage of decomposition and had evidently been in the water some months. It was that of a man six feet tall who probably weighed 200 pounds and was wearing a dark suit and a hat.

His name was not known, but he was identified by his relatives as being a man who had been missing for some time.

RECENT EVENTS SHOW NEED OF A BOARD OF CONTROL

Advocates of the Board of Control system of city government have found in several recent matters texts on which to base arguments in favor of this plan. The latest matter is the request of the Department of Public Works for permission to go ahead with the dredging of the Sand Point basin. It is about a month since the first communication was sent and it was only in response to another and more urgent letter that a meeting was called for this afternoon.

Another matter that has been hanging fire for a considerable length of time is the petition regarding Engineer Hunter, which has been referred back and forth between the council and the standing committee with no action yet taken.

The request of a local merchant for the use of a west side warehouse for molasses storage at a good rental, was held up from February to May before it was finally turned down.

It is argued that such matters would have been disposed of in a few days by an efficient Board of Control.

FEAST OF PENTECOST

The Jewish residents of St. John this evening begin the celebration of the Feast of Pentecost. Services will be held this and tomorrow evenings in the Hazen avenue synagogue. Tonight there will be a lecture in English and on Wednesday evening in Yiddish.

Pentecost is a scriptural feast, originally of an agricultural nature. Forty-nine days after the Passover the people brought offerings of the fruits of the field to the temple. Some thirty-two centuries ago there was incorporated with that feast the commemoration of the revelation—the giving of the law on Mt. Sinai, and today the anniversary is looked upon more as the receiving of the Charter of Israel, than in its original nature as a thanksgiving.

HARBOR BOARD MEETS THIS AFTERNOON

Will Discuss Plans to Dredge Basin and to Cut Front Off C. P. R. Wharf.

The Harbor Board meets at three o'clock this afternoon to consider the communications from Engineer C. H. Scammon of the Dominion Public Works Department regarding dredging at West St. John.

The board is expected to give its consent to the proposal that the basin between Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5, 6, 7 wharves be dredged to a depth of thirty-three feet by the "W. S. Fielding." The Fielding is now ready for work and the department has been awaiting word from the city before proceeding.

The board will also take up the communication regarding the C. P. R. wharf at Sand Point. In order to complete their dredging of the Beacon bar the Public Works Department wants to have the face of the C. P. R. wharf cut off to bring it in line with their plans. As the wharf is still the property of the C. P. R. until the transfer is made, it is not likely that this will be done at once.

ARBITRATION BOARD HEARD TWO WITNESSES

Hon. Edwin E. Ring and H. B. Gunk on the Stand—The Final Meeting.

The witnesses were Hon. Edwin E. Ring, the forest commissioner of the State of Maine, and H. B. Gunk, of Bangor. The latter is the manager of over three million acres of timber lands. Their evidence covered the necessity for the exercise of fire control in timber lands and the influence of railways on the value of such property.

The session adjourned for lunch at one o'clock and met again at 2:30. It is expected that this will be the final meeting of the commissioners.

SAYS ST. JOHN MEN ARE DOING WELL IN THE WEST

T. W. Crawford, formerly of Hampton, is in the city on a visit from the west. Mr. Crawford was for some years with the B. and A. Railway and has been in the west for several years lately connected with the C. P. R. He is now located at Saskatoon as ticket agent.

Speaking of conditions in that part of the country he says that the population at Saskatoon is now estimated at between seven and eight thousand and is growing rapidly. To handle the increased trade the C. P. R. and the N. B. railways are erecting a very handsome union depot.

There are quite a number of men from St. John and other parts of New Brunswick in Saskatoon, and they all seem to be doing well.

Mr. Crawford will return to the west in about ten days and will be accompanied by his wife, who has been staying with her family at Hampton.
