TURKS BEGIN EVACUATION CHANAK AREA

See Beck Behind City Ownership of Street Railway

OPPONENTS OF SCHEME FEAR 'ITALIAN HAND'

Believe Windsor Trip Designed to Veil Hydro Commission's Work.

WILL FIGHT PURCHASE
Aldermen Oppose Taking Over "Junk Lines" of Street Railway.

Opponents of the suggested purchase of the street railway by the city, say that they can detect "the fine Italian hand" of Sir Adam Beck behind the project.

Mayor Cameron Wilson proposes that within a few days the members of the London city council shall accompany him to Windsor to view at close range the trackless trolley system in vogue in the border cities, operated and controlled by the hydro-electric commission.

That this undertaking is nothing more or less than a "camouflaged" movement and the proverbial "herding across the trail," leading up to the ultimate adoption of the local street railway line by the provincial commission, is the stout contention of those members of the council who have to date viewed askance any move in that direction.

Those who question the advisability of the immediate purchase of the street railway, under any circumstances, adhere to the opinion that the contemplated Windsor trip will be but a clever move to herd the city councillors together in one place in order that they may be cast under the "magnetic" spell of the "hydro knight."

The actual inspection of the border city lines will assume the semblance of a farce, they assert, and the real move in the game will transpire before the mayor's train reaches the Windsor depot. Some believe the twist London and the Detroit River the councillors will be "whipped into line," is the prediction.

In the interim, it is freely granted in civic circles that no purchase of the street railway by the city will be accomplished this year without a grueling struggle in the city council, notwithstanding "probable" advice yet to be received from Mayor Wilson's special "star chamber" transportation commission and his advisers from the provincial capital.

Ald. (Dr.) Holmes expressed the frank opinion Monday that the London Street Railway Company could be compelled at any moment, and without further parley to vacate the city streets. He holds that the company has already violated its contract.

Dubious of Purchase.
Viewing the suggested purchase of the road somewhat dubiously, Ald. D. B. Ashplant, while asking that more consideration be allowed upon the subject on the grounds that it was too important a transaction for an "off-hand" opinion, intimated that he was not greatly enamoured with the proposal.

Ald. (Dr.) Douglass is steadfast in his opinion that no negotiations of that nature should be entered into at this time.

"I can see no reason for it at all," he declared Tuesday. "If the special committee viewing the situation say that the road is 'junk,' why should the city take it off their hands? Let the company fulfill its obligations and maintain a service as stipulated in its agreement. That's where I stand."

Clears Wortley Road School in 40 Seconds at Fire Drill

UNDER the leadership of Principal E. Wyatt, pupils of Wortley Road School established a record in fire drill practice Tuesday morning when they made a well-ordered exit from the school in the space of 40 seconds.

Acting in accordance with the fire prevention campaign under way in London this week, the city schools have been laying special emphasis on the fire drill.

So far, the record for speed is held by the Wortley Road School due to their exhibition Tuesday morning.

FIRE DESTROYS ALVINSTON MILL

Mysterious Early Morning
Blaze Causes Total Loss of $12,000.

Flax Plant Began Operations
Day Before, After Long Idleness.

Special to London Advertiser.

Alvinston, Oct. 3.—In operation yesterday for the first time this year, the Alvinston flaxmill was completely destroyed by a fire of unknown origin, which was discovered at 2:30 o'clock this morning. There is no fire protection near the mill, and the blaze when noticed, had gained sufficient headway to render useless what slight assistance could be given.

The mill, owned by McColl & Co. of Yale, was a fairly large, 2-story building, valued at $7,000, and built three years ago to replace a former mill which was similarly destroyed by fire.

Machinery in the building was valued at $5,000, making the total loss $12,000. Since it started running only a few hours before the fire broke out, it is considered impossible that the blaze should have been caused by overheated machinery.

Fortunately, the flames did not reach the adjacent warehouse in which were stored ten loads of flax. It was on account of the large amount of flax on hand that the mill had been closed all year.

With the destruction of the mill, there is no longer a flax market for farmers in the neighborhood of Alvinston, and it is considered extremely unlikely that another mill will be built.

Arthur Pierce was superintendent of the mill. The blaze was first noticed, and the alarm given by Walter Hurst, who discovered the blaze just west of the engine-room.

GREEKS TO HOLD ELECTION.
There, Oct. 3.—It is announced that general elections to constitute a new parliament to succeed that deposed by the revolution will be held Nov. 13.

Sift Quarrel of East and West In Flat Mud Village

GIVES STRANGE SETTING.

MUDANIA, Oct. 3.—Never was there a stranger setting for a conference of world powers than this little village on the southern shore of the Sea of Marmara.

Even the presence of the great warriors of Great Britain, France and Italy seemed incongruous in the tiny cove belted with rocks and mud, which is Mudania's harbor, for their only neighbors were a few scattered fishing boats and nondescript barges.

A few hundred yards from the point selected for the anchorage of the great Iron Duke lay the gaunt skeletons, half submerged, of two Turkish transports sunk by British submarines during the great war.

Nothing about Mudania is impressive, save for the bulk of snow-capped Mount Olympus, rising majestically in the distance. The town is squalid and depressing. There is not a single building of architectural pretensions; the houses are of mud, shaped like huge beetles, and the stores thrust their latticed windows into the narrow, crooked streets.

There is no sound of railway or motor truck to disturb. There is no evidence of modern life save two telephone wires, which run into the offices of the police chief and the mayor; there is no restaurant, no postoffice, no busy markets, no evidence of the modern world of business except the unpretentious offices of the Standard Oil Company.

The town has been of little importance, either to business or politics, since the days, long since past, when it was the port of entry for Brusa in the period when that city was the capital of the Turkish Empire. Once, however, about a year ago, it flashed into prominence when the now deposed King Constantine of Greece made his triumphal entry into Asia Minor in the vain dream that this was to be the beginning of the re-establishment of the Greek empire.

GETS PRISONER AFTER RUNNING GUN BATTLE

Russian Charged in Court
With Shooting With Intent to Kill.

IN VICTORIA HOSPITAL

Powell Martinchuk Came From Windsor, It Is Claimed,
To Settle Grievance.

After a running gun battle down the London and Port Stanley Railway tracks, south of Ottawa avenue, Motorcycle Officer Gavin Monahan shot Powell Martinchuk, a Russian, who ran amuck with a .32 calibre automatic revolver in the foreign section of the city late yesterday afternoon. The foreigner is at present under police guard in Victoria Hospital, suffering from a shattered knee.

In police court this morning charges of shooting with intent to kill and of having a revolver in his possession were laid against Martinchuk. As he was unable to appear, because of his physical condition, his case was adjourned eight days.

At 5:40 o'clock a Russian telephoned the police station to the effect that one of his countrymen was causing a disturbance at 421 Bathurst street. Sergeant Elmer Walsh and Constable Parker answered the call with the patrol. As they entered the house where the trouble was reported to have occurred, Martinchuk rushed out the back door. They followed, but he turned them, fired several shots in their direction, and vaulted a fence. They sighted him on the Hamilton road later and pursued him along William street to Ottawa avenue to Mainland street. Here Constable Monahan captured him.

Shoots at Officer.
Martinchuk fired two shots at the motorcycle officer, but the latter continued to gain on the man and fired three shots while on the run. The third lodged in the Russian's knee and wounded him to the ground. He was taken to the police station.

At first it was not thought the foreigner was seriously injured, although he was groaning and refused to give his name or address. Dr. Ernest Williams, police physician, was summoned and ordered the prisoner removed to the hospital, stating the bones in his leg had been fractured.

In the gun Martinchuk had one clip from which all the bullets had been discharged. In his pockets he had two other clips fully loaded.

Came From Windsor.
Residents of Little Russia stated Martinchuk came to London from Windsor at 8:10 o'clock yesterday morning, and stopped at 504 Philip street. Late in the afternoon, these residents reported that he had been shot.

At the time he was shot, he was in the Border gunman left to settle a grievance. He was headed for the Philip street house when Monahan captured him. The prisoner is about 35 years old.

OWNERS CLOSE AUSTRALIAN PITS
London, England, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The trouble which has been brewing in all the south coast collieries, says a Reuter dispatch from Sydney, has culminated in a decision by the owners to close down the mines immediately.

The miners took a day off recently as a protest against the delay in introducing certain improvements in the mines to better working conditions, and the owners retaliated by suspending operations until the miners could give assurance that work would be carried on uninterruptedly.

LOOKS TO DAILY AERIAL POST SERVICE TO INDIA
Director of British Aviation Believes Scheme Would Be Entirely Practical.

London, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Major-General Brancher, the director of civil aviation, in a lecture last night to the Overseas League here, said the money were found it would be perfectly practicable to run a daily post service to India. Under present conditions it would take five or six days to make the journey, and when night flying was introduced it could be made in 72 hours.

General Brancher said that possibly the air transport was going to be the factor which would keep the British Empire together. Airplanes would probably be used for short distances and airships for long distances, as between England and India and Australia. The British pilot, he declared, was the best in the world.

DELAY AUSTRALIAN ELECTIONS.
London, England, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press Cable).—A Reuter dispatch from Melbourne says that because of the uncertainty of the international situation, it is understood the federal elections have been postponed until Dec. 16.

Hon. Charles Murphy Receives Roses Through New Postal Service

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—Hon. Charles Murphy, postmaster-general, this morning received the first parcel, sent C. O. D., by the service inaugurated yesterday. It was a large basket of roses, the gift of the conference of Dominion postal officials now in session here.

The carrier, in delivering the parcel, gravely collected 7 cents from Mr. Murphy, to cover the presumed cost.

CONDEMN NOISE OF BUS HORNS

London Motor Club Officials
Will Ask Police to Prevent Nuisance.

Seek Amendment to City
Angle Parking Bylaw.

Acting on complaints received from residents in certain sections of the city that motor bus drivers are in the habit of advertising their passing with the most unearthly noises from sirens and exhaust whistles, especially in the early hours of the morning, the members of the London Motor Club at a meeting Monday afternoon decided to lay the matter before the police commission with a view to having the trouble remedied.

Secretary C. E. Bernard, of the local organization, was empowered to request the commission to make provision in the new regulations governing motor buses, restraining drivers from the unnecessary use of loud sounding devices.

The city council will be asked to make an amendment to the bylaw regarding angle parking so as to prevent parking on the west side of Wellington street, between Dundas street and Queen's avenue. The club members will be asked to make a report to the secretary regarding the dangerous crossings they notice while on a motor trip.

A special campaign to increase the club membership will be started within a short time, Secretary Bernard announced Tuesday morning. The London club has at the present time an active membership of more than 900, and it is hoped before next summer to add several hundred to the roll.

Mr. Bernard, who recently attended a meeting of the motor club secretaries in Toronto, pointed out that the Toronto membership is only about 1,400, and he considered the showing of the London club excellent, as Toronto is several times the size of the Forest City.

MILDRED HARRIS GOES BANKRUPT
Los Angeles, Oct. 3.—Mildred Harris, motion picture actress and former wife of Charles Chaplin, has filed a petition in bankruptcy here today, in which liabilities were listed at $30,000 and assets $1,500, which the petition declared was the value of wearing apparel and said to be exempt.

Two long illnesses and lack of employment for many months was what brought about her present financial condition, according to word received here from Miss Harris. She claimed that after settling with her lawyers, she had but $6,500 left of the money which Chaplin gave her.

IRISH REPUBLICANS MAKE ATTACK ON NATIONALISTS
Belfast, Oct. 3.—Republicans made a surprise attack on the Nationalist garrison at Omagh, County Louth, early today, and a sharp three-hour fight ensued. It is reported that not confirmed, that ten of the Republicans were killed and many wounded.

Telegraphic communication with Dundalk has been cut.

REPORTS REBELLION OF MEXICO FEDERAL TROOPS
Mexico City, Oct. 3.—A meagre dispatch from Pichucalco, in the State of Chiapas, to the secretary of the interior, states that the federal garrison of that town revolted yesterday. The cause and extent of the movement were not given. Pichucalco is on the Guatemalan border.

METHODISTS GAIN $4,000,000 IN CAMPAIGN

General Conference Names Committee to Collect Remaining $800,000.

Report "Christian Guardian"
Being Published at Financial Loss.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—A. E. Ames, reporting to the Methodist General Conference on the national campaign of 1920, this morning announced that of the $4,850,000 pledged, over $4,000,000 had already been paid over, and he was optimistic that the entire amount, or almost the entire amount, would be forthcoming. A committee was named to endeavor to collect the remaining $800,000.

The conference also listened to a report on the conduct of the Methodist Bookroom during the past quadrennium, which in spite of the uncertainties of the printing business was able to show a surplus. The report was by Rev. Dr. Falls, head of that institution. "We lost the Ontario provincial government, printing which we had held for the past seventeen years because we did not tender low enough. That is the only reason," he asserted.

The afternoon was devoted to committee meetings, when the committee on departmental work was organized and made a start on its program of investigating the different departments of the church.

Dr. Falls explained that the Christian Guardian continued to be published at a loss. It lost $20,000 in the past year. The only way to make the Guardian break even, he turned to Page 6, Column 4.

THINKS REDS WILL NOT ASSIST TURKS

British General Believes Soviet Russia Will Give
No Practical Aid.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 3.—Turkey could not secure practical assistance from the Russian soviet forces, in the opinion of General Sir Jocelyn Percy, who headed the British military mission with the Russian general Wrangel and Denekine, and who fought with General Sir Charles Harrington in France, Sir Jocelyn was interviewed in Vancouver yesterday.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha is too astute to open fire on the British, he thinks. Mustapha is not above trying to bluff the Allies into giving him concessions.

Regarding the soviet soldiers, Sir Jocelyn said:
The Red army as a fighting machine is not to be taken seriously. The men who compose it are not Bolsheviks at heart, and the soviet authorities know that if they attempt to take their forces into action desertions would be so heavy that the army would soon disappear.

A decision on the part of the Russians to preserve a whole skin is the only thing that make it possible for the Reds to secure an army at all, Sir Jocelyn believes. Only by enrolling as a soldier is it possible to escape death either by shooting or starvation. He says that, generally speaking, the men who compose the Russian armies would very much rather fight against their present leaders than for them.

RUB IN THE CASE WINS FREEDOM FOR MAN WITH ALCOHOL
ACCUSED HAD SORE FOOT.

THERE'S a rub in many cases which the London courts deal with by day, but in several of the breach of O. T. A. actions it's the rub that wins. Almost everyone who is caught with a bottle of alcohol on his person tells the magistrate of some ailment, which has necessitated rubbing with the popular drink, known in bootlegger circles as "iron ducky" and "white mule."

Last night, Constable Graham met a north end citizen homeward bound. There was nothing of significance in that, but the officer had a "hunch" that all was not well in Hoboken, and questioned the pedestrian. Not satisfied with his interview, he gave the man a gentle "frisk" and discovered the bottled drink.

To all and sundry the defendant in court this morning wanted it known that his foot was sore and that he had obtained the alcohol from his brother for rubbing purposes only. His brother added weight to his evidence by saying that he had obtained the alcohol on a doctor's prescription, and had given his brother half of it.

In order that all might be impressed that everything was "on the level," the defendant offered to exhibit his damaged foot to court officials, while his brother invited Chief Birrell to investigate the records of a local drug store and see for himself that a prescription had been cashed there by him.

Although Magistrate Graydon was suspicious that the contents of the bottle was going to be used as a beverage, he gave the defendant the benefit of the doubt in his mind. The north end man, alcohol in hand, left the court rejoicing.

Mrs. W. H. Felton of Georgia Is First Woman Senator

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 4.—Mrs. W. H. Felton of Cartersville, Ga., was appointed by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick today to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Thomas E. Watson, until the people elect a successor in November. Mrs. Felton will be the first woman to become a senator.

The appointment has been offered to Mrs. Watson, widow of the late senator, but she declined.

RUMOR WILSON "HAD ENOUGH"

City Hall Members Believe
Mayor Not After Second Term.

Reported Ald. Watkinson Will Enter the Mayoralty Contest.

"Mayor Cameron Wilson will not be a candidate for re-election next election."

This is the current opinion in city hall circles, and while his worship refuses to affirm or deny the report several of his associates, who claim to "have his ear," stated most emphatically and without fear of contradiction Tuesday that he would finish the term and quit.

Adding strength to the story comes the timely report that Ald. Frank R. Watkinson is casting inquiring eyes at the mayor's chair, and is incidentally being hosted by numerous friends and acquaintances for that position.

It has been said by those who annually "pick" the candidates and "dark horses" as early as August, that Ald. Watkinson could be prevailed upon to enter the mayoralty field, once he is assured that Dr. Wilson is officially out.

As the first member of the present council to declare himself with any degree of surety, Ald. John Ashton, one of Ward 3 representatives, asserted Tuesday "he did not desire to be chairman of the board of works next year." He freely intimated, however, that from present indications he would be at the barrier when the pistol cracked.

FIND BRANTFORD GIRL KILLED BABE
Hamilton, Oct. 3.—Elsie Beaver, Brantford, was found guilty by a jury this morning of manslaughter in connection with the death of her infant child. The body was found in a valise shortly after its birth, and an autopsy showed that paper had been stuffed in the throat of the child, and that this was the cause of its death. Sentence will be passed later.

SUPPLY FREE TEXT BOOKS.
Windsor, Oct. 3.—Following the decision a few weeks ago of the Windsor school board to supply children with free text books, the separate school board last evening took similar action.

COMPARES CHURCH UNION
METHODS IN 2 COUNTRIES
Glasgow Herald Contrasts System in Scotland With That of Canada.

London, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The Glasgow Herald contrasts the leisurely progress by which the goal of church union in Scotland is being attained with the bolder and speedier measures that are being taken in Canada. It recognizes the fact that the Scottish negotiations are complicated by state connection, involving delays due to parliamentary procedure and legal problems.

The Herald says the appeal of the Anglican archbishop of Alsago, Most Rev. Dr. G. Thorneley, for a wider union than there is at present between the Anglican Church and the other denominations, presents certain difficulties, because the position is not free from the complications of exclusive claims conscientiously held. In any event, the Herald continues, the Canadian churches have now to make a decision, the effects of which must be felt far beyond Canada.

26 TURKS KILLED.
Constantinople, Oct. 3.—Twenty-six Turkish irregulars, including one officer, were killed by the Greek forces following the Turks' invasion of the Chanak neutral zone yesterday, according to a communiqué issued by the Greek commander, General Polymenakos.

A Constantinople dispatch yesterday said a band of 800 Turkish irregulars crossed the border of Thrace at Sinekli, and attacked the Greek outposts. The Turks were thrown back across the boundary after the arrival of Greek reinforcements.

SOVIET WANTS PEACE.
Moscow, Oct. 3.—Soviet Russia's aims are all toward peace, General Dabelloff, chief commissioner of the army general staff, told the correspondent today in denying reports that soviet artillery was being sent to aid the Turks. "Because of the belligerent attitude of various countries regarding Russia," he said, "we must always stand ready and prepared against attack, but so far as the Greco-Turkish war is concerned, we must be felt far beyond Canada."

LESSEN DANGER OF FIGHT WITH BRITISH TROOPS

Kemalists Make Slight Withdrawal While Mudania Conference in Session.

STILL IN NEUTRAL ZONE

General Harrington Leaves for Meeting, Confident of Early Success.

Constantinople, Oct. 3.—The Turkish cavalry "has retired from its advanced positions, in the Chanak area, decreasing the danger of conflict there."

This withdrawal, which is described in messages from the Dardanelles as "slight," was supposed here to be in consequence of word received by Turks that the Mudania conference was in session. The Turkish, however, were said still to well within the neutral zone.

General Harrington, the British commander-in-chief, and Gen. Sharr, the French army, with their experts, left the Bosphorus at 10 o'clock this morning, the British general traveling on the dreadnaught Iron Duke, and the French officer on the dreadnaught Jean Bart.

Monsieur de Molle, the Italian army and staff left for the conference last night. The families of the officers and a little group of their military friends saw them off and wished them success.

Most Optimistic.
The generals were most optimistic over their mission, declaring to a correspondent that the Kemalists showed reasonableness and a moderate spirit, a solution for all the problems involved would be found within 36 hours.

Only military matters will be taken up at the conference of allied troops, it was said. The political aspects of the situation being disposed of at a meeting, according to M. Franklin-Bouillon, whose recent trip to Smyrna, where he conversed with Mustapha Kemal Pasha, was "responsible for the summoning of a day's conference."

The two most important questions to be discussed today, he said, are the demarcation of a new neutral zone on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles and at Ismid, and the evacuation of Thrace. He was confident an agreement would be reached.

H. Franklin-Bouillon referred to Kemal as "Mustapha Kemal, the victorious," and said that if, Franklin-Bouillon, was selected to represent France at the negotiation, he would be pleased with the Turkish modifications of the Turkish proposals.

Make Overtures.
Reports from Chanak showed on the verge of a truce, following the close juxtaposition of Turkish and British troops. The Turkish officer, making friendly overtures to British, offering them cups of tea and attempting similar small courtesies. The band of both armies drinking from the same troughs.

British, French and Italian chambers of commerce yesterday sent a memorial to their governments, asking continuation of the so-called "treaties," at least with reference to the following: (1) The free trade in goods and commodities between allied and Turkish subjects to be adjusted by mixed courts.

RAREST BEAUTY IS FEATURED AT FASHION SHOW

Advertiser Pageant Scores decided Success On Opening Day At Grand.

RAY OF PRETTY MODELS

Beauty and Splendor, Keynotes of Public Presentation of Latest Creations.

Beauty and magnificence have been dealt with a lavish hand in the London Fashion Show, seen for the first time at the Grand Hotel Monday, in combination with a sensational feature picture and an augmented bill of vaudeville.

Presently a review of the latest recent fall and winter fashions, yet from its perfectly appointed settings the Fashion Show may serve as criterion of good taste in the selection of home furnishings. The charmingly dressed models make their appearance in a drawing-room beautifully furnished, and displaying equally lovely vistas of conservatory and reception hall.

Flowers, wall pictures, and here and there a choice ornament lend the required touch of completeness, and a cleverly simulated grate fire adds a delightfully realistic effect.

Flowers which exemplify the particularly fine class of merchandise handled by those retailers who exhibited in the fashion show were worn by twelve models, picked from the prettiest girls of London and appearing under auspices of the Harlequin Chamber of the I. O. D. E. The agency of which a large number of the proceeds of the fashion show passes to the fund for the Warial Children's Hospital.

Effectively staged and carried out to almost advantage, so that no trace of beauty in gown or wrap was wasted, and nothing was eliminated which might lend effectiveness to the time of the charm of finished person to the furnishing of a home.

Miss Lillian Douglas, who appeared in the first model, wore over a gown of black crepe, combined with a wide bottomed sleeve of navy blue velvet, whose claim to stay lay in its modish lines, and which through simple embroidery, and which was exhibited by the Raphael-Mack Company.

The black crepe, combined with a wide bottomed sleeve of navy blue velvet, whose claim to stay lay in its modish lines, and which through simple embroidery, and which was exhibited by the Raphael-Mack Company.

Miss Mabel Broughton appeared in model which showed in its simplicity, the graceful draping which skirts many of the newer frocks to pendant ornaments of cut steel or the girle, lent a touch of brilliance, extremely effective against the black crepe which formed the gown. It was exhibited by the "Artistic Ladies' Wear" Company.

Her hat was of velvet with soft, looping feathers placed at an effective angle on the brim. Later Miss Broughton donned over her frock an elaborate coat of brown velvet, with a wide collar of beaver and fringe trimming.

Reflect Styles. A striking afternoon frock was that worn by Miss Jean Wanless. Black crepe Romanee added an apron-like panel at front, and edged both and the wide bottomed sleeve with grey Maufon. Advertiser Magnavox Will Relay World's Series Reports to Fans

MINFUL of the intense interest of London baseball fans in the world's series, The London Advertiser last year gave them something novel in the way of service. This year, in its new home at the corner of Richmond and York streets, The Advertiser will again give the fans its Magnavox service, which relays the games, inning by inning and play by play, to the listening fans.

The street intersection at Richmond and York will give the fans plenty of room and freedom from traffic interruptions as they listen to the wire of the game relayed to them through the Magnavox from a wire direct from the Polo Grounds.

Picture it! The tier upon tier of faces surrounding the Polo Grounds, the tenseness which grips the throng as the umpires make their appearance—the hurried consultations with McGraw and the diminutive Huggins—the announcement of the batter—the veteran baseball writers ready to call off the plays to the equally grizzled telegraphers, with their sending finger poised over the key; the first ball thrown—London, Ont.—You, Mister Fan.

It's one of the romances of modern science and invention grown old with familiarity but perennially new and arresting with every world's series.

The Advertiser world's series service starts with the announcement of the batteries Wednesday afternoon for the first game, and will be continued each day throughout the series.

Miss Mabel Broughton appeared in model which showed in its simplicity, the graceful draping which skirts many of the newer frocks to pendant ornaments of cut steel or the girle, lent a touch of brilliance, extremely effective against the black crepe which formed the gown. It was exhibited by the "Artistic Ladies' Wear" Company.

Her hat was of velvet with soft, looping feathers placed at an effective angle on the brim. Later Miss Broughton donned over her frock an elaborate coat of brown velvet, with a wide collar of beaver and fringe trimming.

TO DESIGNATE MILK QUALITY

City Council To State On License If Milk Is Tuberculosis-Free.

Aldermen Decide To Purchase Motor Pump For Fire Department.

From this moment on local milk dealers must be able to furnish a license designating the quality of their milk: either class A, denoting it to be free from tuberculosis, or class B, revealing it to be otherwise.

Members of the city council in regular session Monday night by unanimous vote, but without certain discussion, amended the license by-law to this effect.

Mayor Cameron Wilson voiced the suggestion that it was perhaps just a question as to whether the people desired to use pasteurized milk. There will, in any event, he claimed, be but little of the class A milk sold in London should the proposed amendment to the by-law be carried. The price will be prohibitive, he predicted.

"There is not one herd in 50 that can stand the test," he declared, "and you will have to pay a good deal more for class A milk than at present."

Alderman H. B. Ashplant contended that it was not a question only for the citizens whether they wanted pasteurized milk, but whether they should know the precise quality of the milk.

Question Important. Alderman G. B. Drake volunteered the information that one herd had already been tested in the city, and while classed "A," milk from the cows was still being sold at the old price.

Alderman Dr. Holmes held that this question was of a decidedly serious nature, and warranted every possible consideration, more especially in view of the fact that efforts were being continuously made to stamp out the tuberculosis. He urged action.

Alderman Dr. Cunningham pointed out that this problem had claimed the attention of the city health for more than a year past with certain success.

"The real trouble," he pointed out, "is this venture, as in any other people, will be that it will tend to work a hardship upon the poor. There are those dealers who will not be able to afford the necessary equipment. I think, however, that the project will be for the ultimate good of the city and should be supported."

Amendment Passed. Dr. Seabrook, representing the dairy dealers, explained the similar by-laws have been enforced in Brantford, Ottawa and other Canadian communities with commendable success.

The proposed amendment passed without further delay or parity. The council accepted the recommendation of Mayor Cameron Wilson and the finance committee that the sum of $15,000 be granted to the new Byron Sanatorium to assist in certain improvements at that institution, upon the stipulation that the city tubercular patients be hereafter treated there in lieu of Victoria Hospital.

Will Purchase Pump. After strenuous agitation from Ald. Dr. Holmes, the councilors decided to order a new motor pump for the municipal fire station, with the added provision that Mayor Wilson and Ald. H. J. Childs, chairman of the finance committee, be declared a committee to ascertain just where the funds for this additional equipment might be obtained from.

While the expenditure referred to the council of 1923, Ald. Holmes objected, holding that this had been the action for several years past. "It has been passed on from year to year," he declared, "and we have no assurance but that it would be referred next year to 1924. We should try and take care of it this year."

"Yes, but in a request for a new truck for No. 5 hall while you are at it," suggested Alderman Drake.

Alderman H. B. Ashplant explained that the committee had realized the immediate need of the pump, but had been unable to do other than recommend in view of the fact that funds were not available.

"There is only one way out of it, an overdraft," reminded Mayor Wilson.

Must Find Money. "Well, that would not be paid until next year in any event," cautioned Alderman John Ashton.

"Well, we started out to show the citizens what we could do," urged Alderman Holmes, "and I think we should consider this further. I am not in favor of an overdraft, however."

An effort will be made to locate the $15,000 necessary for the apparatus as requested by Fire Chief John Aitken, although at this moment, none of the councilors seem able to suggest any real solution.

Governor-General Appeals For Reduction of Annual Fire Loss in Canada.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2.—Over 3,000 lives lost and insurable property in excess of $250,000,000 destroyed, is Canada's fire loss for the last ten years. This is the announcement contained in the governor-general's proclamation designating Oct. 2 to 8 as Fire Prevention Week.

For the year 1921 alone the loss amounted to 350 lives and property to the extent of $45,000,000. The proclamation states this to be unparalleled, and draws attention to the enormous and inevitable increase from year to year.

This week a campaign is being carried on to try and get the public better informed as to these facts, and to teach proper methods of prevention. To this end all schools, factories and theatres have been circulated with pamphlets enumerating the above facts, common causes of fires and precautions that should be taken to prevent them.

According to Jack Lorimer, 1505 Bruce avenue, Windsor, who was with the young Londoner at the time of the tragedy, and who was wounded by a bullet, they were proceeding to his home, when they saw four Italians engaged in an altercation. One of the Italians attacked Fraser and shot him through the head, causing instant death.

Remains Arrive Monday Night. A few minutes later Frank Bianchi, 55 years old, of Windsor, was arrested in a nearby alley, and charged with killing Fraser. An inquest was held in the Border City Monday, but was adjourned for one day owing to the fact that Lorimer, who was with Fraser was unable to attend court.

Several Italians, arrested in the vicinity of the shooting by the police, are being held as material witnesses. The remains of the young victim arrived in London from Windsor shortly before midnight Monday, and were removed to George E. Logan's undertaking parlors. In all probability he will be accorded a military funeral Wednesday.

During his stay in London Fraser boarded with W. F. Leathorne, and his mother in Scotland cabled him, asking that he arrange for the funeral of her son. Mr. Leathorne and the Fraser family were friends in Scotland. Fraser was employed as an electrician on the new Central Collegiate Institute while in London.

Interment at Mount Pleasant. The funeral will be held at Mount Pleasant Cemetery, where interment will be made, and will be attended by members of St. Andrew's Society, the G. W. V. A. and the Army and Navy Veterans.

Fraser was employed with the Oakland Motor Car Company at Pontiac a short time prior to his death, and was visiting friends in Windsor at the time of the fatality. He had crossed the river to witness a football game earlier in the day. His parents and widow reside in Scotland.

As a member of the St. Andrew's Society of Detroit and Great War Veterans' Association of Windsor, the young Londoner numbered many friends in the border cities.

BLLENHEIM MEN PAY FINE FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

SPECIAL TO LONDON ADVERTISER. BLLENHEIM, Oct. 2.—Two young men of town by the names of Jones and Speed faced Magistrate J. C. Whittington this morning to explain how it was that they were speeding on Saturday evening on the main street with autos. It was a case of reckless driving to see who could go the faster, with the result that a number of citizens were attracted by their lack of thought and fool-hardiness, and Chief of Police Walter Fenwick laid a charge under the motor vehicles' act. After receiving some good advice from the court, they paid a fine of $5 and costs each, amounting to $11.50. It is hoped that it will be the lesson expected and others will take warning.

Leathorne, 96 Egerton street, Wednesday afternoon. Fraser, who came to London from his home in Scotland, was well and popularly known here, being a member of the local St. Andrew's Society, the Great War Veterans' Association and the Army and Navy Veterans.

FIRM LOCATES IN BRANTFORD

Kanada Biscuit Company To Build Modern Factory On Terrace Hill.

Welsh Coal On Sale—Building Figures Soar For September.

SPECIAL TO LONDON ADVERTISER. BRANTFORD, Oct. 2.—The Kanada Biscuit Company, Limited, has decided to locate in Brantford, it was officially announced here this evening by Ald. J. F. McCann, a director of the new firm. In discussing the matter Ald. McCann said: "It will be one of the finest factories of its kind in the country. It will be made up of the white brick, the same as the McCormick Biscuit Company's plant is at London. Four acres of land have been purchased by the firm at the corner of St. Paul's street and St. George street, Terrace Hill. Everything will be done electrically here and there will be no smoke from coal fires. The ovens will be electric, as will the other apparatus that goes to make a biscuit factory."

"The capitalization of the new firm will be $200,000," Ald. McCann stated. "And work will be started within a month. 'I am of the opinion that about 100 will be taken on at first, but as the business grows I expect that further additions will be made to the building and more help taken on.'"

Fred Harp, a local merchant, is also a director of the company, and has taken much time and trouble to get the firm to locate in the Terrace Hill. The residents of Terrace Hill are greatly enthused over the prospects of the firm locating on the hill, as there is not another firm in that district at the present time.

Coal Sale Opens.

Today is marked as the opening day for the sale of the Welsh anthracite coal purchased by the city to relieve the coal situation in the city and to be handy in the case of any coal famine which might occur during the winter months. A few applications for the coal were received this morning and everything is satisfactory regarding the sale of the fuel. There will only be sold to those who have not three tons or more in their cellars now, and not more than three tons and not less than one-half ton will be sold to a customer. The S.S. Cabotia, laden with the coal, is expected to arrive in Montreal on Wednesday or a few days later. The boat sailed on September 21.

The vital statistics for the month of September show that the clergyman of this city have been exceptionally busy this year, having performed 11 marriages. The births during the month were almost three times the number of deaths. There were only 23 deaths, while there were 64 births.

Customs Returns Up. The customs returns for the month of September show a value of $112,295.85, being considerably in excess of the same month last year. This is said to be due to the increase in the sales tax operative during the official month just closed.

The building permits for the month of September show a value of $30,065, an increase over the same month last year of $3,620, and for the nine months, when compared to the same months last year an increase of $35,160. There were 39 permits issued during September this year, which gave a value for the month of $25,765, and for the year so far $401,765.

Reformer or Liberal?

THE terms Liberal and Reformer are often used by speakers and writers with the idea of referring to the same political party. Both words have long been connected with the party, and discussion has frequently taken place as to which one is preferable.

Many Liberals of the old school hold to the word "Liberal." They believe that in that word they find all they need to signify the aims and ideals of the party. Against the word "Reformer" there are many of the same school, and they prefer "Liberal" for much the same reason as they dislike "Reformer." To their mind the word "Reformer," as applied to the individual, or "Reform," as used to denote a party, has been overworked by its application to many forms of propaganda, carried on against certain specific wrongs, ailments and shortcomings of the human family.

Liberals in public life have a decided preference for the term "Liberal." For instance, Dr. D. J. SINCLAIR, M.P. of North Oxford, has a decided preference for plain "Liberal," because he holds that "a Liberal is one who advocates the greatest freedom in political institutions. Also a Liberal is one who is always looking forward for the principles of government. A Tory looks backward. I believe," states the North Oxford member, "the term Liberal came into use under Mr. Gladstone, representing the political party opposed to Toryism or Conservatism, and claims to be the originator and champion of political reform and progressive legislation. It claims to represent the government by the people by means of trust in the people, in a sense which is denied the other political parties."

The danger of causing confusion is pointed out by W. D. EULEY, M.P. of North Waterloo, who states that he prefers "the name Liberal to that of Reformer chiefly for the reason that it is more comprehensive and therefore more accurate. The term Liberal includes everything implied in the name Reformer and a good deal more. Liberalism applies itself not only to reform, but also to the maintenance of those things we now possess which we know to be good. It connotes to my mind more of freedom, progressiveness, broadmindedness and fair play (all of which are characteristic of Liberalism) than is included in the more restricted term. Moreover, a so-called Reformer party might possibly be confused with what might be called the Moral Reform party of these later years. These may be related, but not necessarily so. It is just as well to keep them distinct. The word 'Liberal' describes accurately the ideals and principles of the party, according to my conception of them."

Another old-time Liberal who talked on the matter claimed "the word Liberal is much the better. It has always appeared to me," he said, "that the word 'Liberal' is much better and more comprehensive than the word 'Reformer,' and when you speak of the Reformer it more or less brings to my mind, at least, a sort of pedantic view of certain things, and a tendency to see things from only their own angle. This may be a bit narrow on my own part, but the word 'Liberal' seems to me much broader and more comprehensive than the word 'Reformer,' and gives the idea that you are willing to consider the other fellow's viewpoint, and see whether or not it is a better way. My own view is that 'Liberal' party is much fuller-mouthed and more wholesome than the term 'Reform party,' and hence my preference is for 'Liberal party' and 'Liberalism.'"

THE ADVERTISER sought the views of several, but in no case was there a champion to be found for the word "Reformer" or for "Reform" when applied to the party. Some held that by usage it had been applied more to the Liberal party in Ontario, and to their mind it seemed to have a significance attached to activities some years back. In all cases, though, there seemed to be a preference for the word "Liberal" in either provincial or federal spheres.

The matter has been discussed in these columns in a general way on previous occasions, but this time it is done with the definite knowledge that the word "Liberal" has many more backers than the term "Reformer." So, bowing to the will of the majority, in future "Liberal" it shall be.

Good Managers.

STRANGE that people never think of that cracked grate in the furnace until the day they want to light the fire. Queer, too, that they should never have noticed the hole in the stovepipe big enough to throw a cat through until it was time to operate the heating plant. It's not time to put on the storm windows and doors yet, so don't worry about them. You know there are two or three panes of glass that will have to be replaced, but never mind, there's apt to be a few days or so of warm weather, and there will be plenty of time to fix the broken windows when you decide to put them on.

You haven't much coal, but you have not ordered any wood yet to help you out. The weather has been favorable, and so we just let the thing slide.

And you remember that overcoat last winter. You were going to wear it a little longer, but it must go to the tailor shop to be lined and fixed up a bit. Well, wait until the first cold day and then rush down when every person else is urging the tailor to save a life by having the winter coat in shape.

Meantime the old garden hose cracks and warps as it hangs on the branch of the apple tree in the backyard, and the lawn mower is just where you left it ten days ago. The rake, the spade and the hoe are—well, we don't know, but we won't need them until the spring, so why worry about them now?

The Bank of England.

WRITING in an American financial paper, an expert on banking pays his respects to the Money Market of England, and to the Bank of England in particular. Concluding his remarks on the Money Market, he turns to the Bank of England:

"The center of it is the Bank of England, which is known throughout Great Britain simply as 'the Bank.'"

"The other banks are only buffers in any time of high pressure. Any sudden or prolonged strain comes on the Bank. This is the secret of the enormous strength and recuperative power of the Money Market."

"The Bank first opened its doors 228 years ago, and it has been standing the strain of wars, panics and European governments ever since. It has had eight generations of experience in withstanding financial shocks."

"There is no other bank like it. It is private and yet it has the government behind it. All other banks in the clearing house are required to keep balances in the Bank of England. It receives all taxes and carries all government overdrafts. It has full power to do anything that needs to be done to meet an emergency."

"No matter what happens, the Bank never stops functioning. When the outside discount houses refuse to discount bills, the Bank will, at its own price."

"To tell the truth, the Bank has good reason to like a crisis. It makes most of its profits out of stringencies. In every crisis, London bankers and brokers say that 'the market is in the Bank.'"

"If a very serious crisis comes, as it did at the beginning of the war, the Bank can declare a moratorium. It can prevent bankruptcies by the delay of payments. When the crisis is over payments are resumed. 'Then, if it comes to the worst, the Bank Charter Act is suspended, and the Bank can issue paper money without any gold basis. This was done in 1914."

So, the London Money Market is like a reservoir of rivers and reservoirs, all centering around a great central reservoir; and the keepers of the central reservoir have power to turn off all taps and to pump from a deep well."

"Such a system is as safe from panic and disaster as any human institution possibly can be. It does not depend upon any man or any institution or any government. It is a vast system of protection, improved by two centuries of vicissitudes."

Viviani and the Kaiser.

THE publication of the ex-kaiser's memoirs is being variously received. At some points it is bringing forth protests, based on the charge that the narrative is German propaganda, written with the idea of making it possible for the ex-kaiser to return to Germany, and once more tie imperialism on the neck of the German people.

Eight years ago Wilhelm II. thought he was the most powerful man in the world. More than that he held himself accountable to no earthly tribunal. He talked glibly, even to the point of blasphemy of his divine right to rule and of the favor with which the Almighty looked upon his conduct of affairs in Germany. What he willed was of itself right and law. All who dared to oppose his policies were in danger of being broken and undone.

Such was the man who launched the world war, and such was the spirit of the men with whom he was associated.

What have we today? The man who regarded the Reichstag as an honorable and useful body only so long as it did what he wanted, now submits his case to the parliament of mankind. Such a change is hard to explain, especially as he writes in a tone of one who anticipated that the verdict had already been lodged against him.

Some of his excuses are accusations. One critic, who is following the series closely, remarks that even Napoleon III. at Sedan could preface his offer of surrender by the words: "Not having been able to find death at the head of my troops. . . ."

The ex-kaiser has not even access to this comforting phrase, and that excellent spirit of heroism and sacrifice must be the weight of events and the necessity of truth be eliminated from the memoirs of Wilhelm II.

THE ADVERTISER is running the Kaiser's memoirs because it believes it is a document of world-wide importance. It is not being used in order that the ex-kaiser may have an opportunity to set himself right with the world, for such a thing is impossible. It is a document of world importance, showing the workings of the mind of the man who was thrown with volcanic intensity in the face of the world in 1914.

In order that there may be no doubt of the stand of this paper in the matter, arrangements have been made, and contracts signed, whereby, on the conclusion of the memoirs of Wilhelm II., we will proceed with the publication of "The Mistakes of the Kaiser," written by RENE VIVIANI, the strong man of France, who has been a student of European history for years, and intimately intouch with the very things of which the ex-kaiser writes.

Looking over a short survey of the VIVIANI series, one is forced to the conclusion that the writer has laid bare the places where the German monarch erred grievously and deliberately. He takes up the manner in which the Hohenzollerns conquered the throne, the manner in which Wilhelm was educated, and how he got rid of BISMARCK. From there he turns to the co-operation in Germany between militarism and capitalism—how four times, in 1905, 1907, 1911 and 1913 Europe was on the verge of war because of the attitude of Germany. Then VIVIANI comes to the fateful 1914, to the impression of the King of Belgium when he saw the Kaiser—VIVIANI's own story of his trip with POINCARÉ to Russia, and what they found in Petersburg—his supreme efforts to stop war, how France, England and Russia did all that was in their power to stop the declaration of war. The French writer then turns to the Kaiser with his twelve proofs that the Allies wanted war, and one which he disposes of these.

In conclusion, VIVIANI compares the wealthy situation of the Kaiser now to the lot of Napoleon after his defeat, concluding with the appeal that democracy is the one and only thing that can save and remake Germany. The whole document of VIVIANI bristles with sharp passages, and has the weight of plain fact behind it. There will be little left of Wilhelm II. by the time VIVIANI finishes with him.

The readers of THE ADVERTISER in these two great narratives have before them a mass of world information, which it is not possible to secure in any other way. It is history written and discussed by the men who have made it.

Here's a house for sale, advertised in the Chester Enterprise. It is solid brick, on the main street, and on a lot about 50x40 feet. Surely there must be something wrong about the size of that lot. The folks in the smaller centers poke no end of fun at the cities for the way in which the houses are jammed and crowded in one beside the other. The rural editors make rude jokes at the backyards of the city, where they assert, there is no room to swing a cat by the tail. Come now, tell us how it is that in the tiny little town of Chester they happen to "carve the lots 40x50 feet."

Brain Testers

There are two English words which contain, each of them, ten letters, and six of these are a b c d e and f, the first six letters of the alphabet. Can you build up either or both of these two words?

Yesterday's answer: Gray, Moore, Byron, Pope, Dryden, Gay, Keats and Hemans.

has been demonstrated that a man and woman in the millionaire class with divorce inclinations can spend a pile of money, make front-page material and get nowhere.

Just a few months ago some of the experts had the population sitting up nights wondering if they were eating or inhaling enough vitamins. It was a serious period through which these experts led us, but we were brave and followed. Now comes some medical man with seven letters behind his name and exposes the whole thing as a fraud, a snare and a delusion. Thus is our faith both vitaminized and undermined in the one season.

The Kaiser's Memoirs

(Former Emperor of Germany)

THE KRUGER TELEGRAM.

TREMENDOUS excitement was caused in England when the incident of the Kruger telegram became known. On Jan. 3, 1893, the German emperor telegraphed as follows to the president of the South African Republic:

"I congratulate you most sincerely on having succeeded, with your people, without calling on the help of foreign powers, by opposing your own force to an armed band which broke into your country to disturb the peace, in restoring quiet and in maintaining the independence of your country against external attack."

On Jan. 6, in conversation with Sir Frank Laing, Baron von Marschall protested against the view of the English press that it was an act of hostility against England and an encroachment on English rights for the German emperor to congratulate the head of a friendly state on his victory over an armed band that had invaded his land in defiance of international law, and had been declared to be outside the pale of the law by the English government itself. But it was not recorded that he disavowed the Kaiser's responsibility for it.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT.

It was a fateful thing for Germany—let this be stated here, in a general way—that our foreign office was unable to meet the broad policy of encirclement of England and the cunning of Russia and France with an equal degree of diplomatic skill. This was partly because it had not really been trained under Prince Bismarck, and therefore, when after the retirement of the prince and Count Herbert, the all-dominating will and spirit were lacking, it was shut up to the task of conducting foreign affairs on its own independent initiative.

Moreover, it is difficult in Germany to train up good diplomats, since our people lack the taste and endowment for diplomacy which have shone forth brilliantly only from a few German minds, like Frederick the Great and Bismarck. Unfavorable also to the foreign office were the very frequent changes of secretaries of state, imperial chancellors, following the example of Bismarck, maintained their influence upon the foreign office, and suggested the secretaries of state who should direct its affairs. I acquiesced in the proposals of the imperial chancellors as to these posts, since I admitted their right to choose themselves their leading collaborators in the domain of foreign affairs. That these frequent changes were not calculated to work toward the continuity of political policy, was a disadvantage that had to be taken into account.

The foreign office was largely influenced by the axiom: "No disagreeable quarrels with other powers"—"surround pas d'histoires" ("above all, no yarns"), as the French general said to a company of soldiers which he had heard wished to mutiny. One of the secretaries of state told me once when, in placing some matter before me, I had called his attention to the apparently serious situation in connection with some foreign question, that the foreign office regarded his acts primarily upon the maxim: "Let us have quiet."

Given this attitude, one can also understand the answer which the German representative gave to a German merchant in a South American republic who had asked him for help, and intercession with the authorities, since his shop had been plundered and his property stolen: "Oh, don't bother me with these things! We have established such pleasant relations with this republic, any action undertaken in your behalf would only serve to upset them." I need scarcely add that whenever such a conception of duty came to my attention I removed the official concerned from his post.

The foreign office enjoyed general unpopularity both among the people and in the army. I worked continuously during the tenure of office of various chancellors, for thorough reform, but in vain. Every new chancellor, especially if he himself did not come from the ranks of the foreign service, needed the foreign office in order to work himself into foreign affairs, and this took time. But once he had worked himself in he was under obligations to the official, and was reluctant to make extensive changes, burdened as he was by other matters and lacking detailed knowledge regarding the foreign office personnel, particularly as he still believed that he needed the advice of those who were "orientated."

Development of Tsing-tao.

But let us return to Tsing-tao. Here everything was done to promote commerce and industry, and done jointly with the Chinese; the flag of the Chinese Empire, moreover, was hoisted over the custom house at Tsing-tao. The development there was such that the port, during the years immediately preceding the war, ranked sixth among all Chinese trading centers in the commercial register of the great Chinese merchants and of the merchants' guild, coming just after Tien-tsin. Tsing-tao was a prosperous German commercial colony, where many Chinese worked side by side with Germans; it was so to speak, a great sample warehouse of German abilities and German achievements, to which the Chinese, who formerly had not known Germany, her capabilities of achievement nor her products, could repair for selection and emulation, it was a contrast to the naval stations of Russia and Britain, which were purely military, directed solely toward domination and conquest.

The rapid rise of Tsing-tao as a trading center aroused the envy of the Japanese and English, but this did not prevent swarms of the latter from journeying, with their families, to the splendid beach, enjoying its cool air and the beautiful Strand Hotel, and devoting themselves to playing polo and lawn tennis after they had escaped from the heat of Hongkong, Canton and Shanghai. Envy prompted England in 1914 to demand that Japan should take Tsing-tao, although it was de facto Chinese. Japan did this joyfully, promising to return it to China, but it was not returned until the beginning of 1922, after much pressure, although Japan had agreed with America that she was not to be allowed to make any territorial changes in China without previous consultation with Washington.

Thus a great German cultural work in foreign lands, which stood as a model of the method and manner which a cultured nation should employ in extending the advantages of its culture to another nation, was annihilated by English commercial envy. Some day, when Hongkong has gone the same way, England will repent of her act, and bitterly reproach herself for having abandoned her old maxim, in accordance with which she has acted for so many years: "White men together against colored men." When once Japan has made a reality out of her watchword, "Asia for the Asiatics," and brought China and India under her sway, England will cast her eyes about in search of Germany and the German fleet.

As to the "yellow peril," I had the following interview with the Czar later, after the Russo-Japanese war, at a meeting between us.

The Czar was, at that time, visibly impressed by the growing power of Japan and its constant menace to Russia and Europe. He requested my opinion concerning this. I answered that if the Russians counted themselves among the cultured nations of Europe they must be ready to rally to the defense of these nations against the "yellow peril" and to fight for and by the side of Europe for their own and Europe's existence and culture; but, that if the Russians, on the other hand, considered themselves Asiatics, they would unite with the "yellow peril," and, joining forces with it, would assault Europe. The Czar said I must hear this in mind in providing for the defense of his land and organizing his army.

When the Czar asked me what course I thought the Russians would take, I replied: "The second." The Czar was outraged and wished to know at once on what I based this opinion. I answered that my opinion was based on Russia's construction of railways and on the arraying of the Russian army along the Prussian-Austrian frontier. Thereupon the Czar protested that he and his house were Europeans, that his country and his Russians would certainly cleave to Europe, that he would look upon it as a matter of honor to protect Europe from the "yellow men." To this I replied that if this was the Czar's attitude he must make his military preparations conform to it without delay. The Czar said nothing.

At all events, I sought to utilize Czar Nicholas II's anxiety at the growing power of Japan to the advantage of Germany and general European culture. Russia, despite siding with Japan, was the first nation to collapse among all those participating in the war.

Reproaches for Japan.

The able statesmen of Japan, of whom there are quite a number, must be in some doubt as to whether they ranged their country on the right side in the war. Yes, they will perhaps ask themselves whether it would not have been more advantageous for Japan to have prevented the world war. This would have been within their powers, had she ranged herself firmly and unequivocally on the side of the central powers, from which in former times she had learned so willingly and so much.

Had Japan adopted soon enough such an orientation in her foreign policy, and, like Germany, fought by peaceful means for her share in world trade and activity, I should have put the "yellow peril" away in a corner and joyfully welcomed into the circle of peacefully-inclined nations the progressive Japanese. Therefore, the "Prussians of the East." Nobody regrets more than I that the "yellow peril" had not already lost its meaning when the crisis of 1914 arose. The experience derived from the world war may yet bring this about.

Germany's joint action with France and Russia at Shinonoseki was based upon Germany's situation in Europe. Wedged in between on-marching Russia, threatening Prussia's frontier, and France, fortifying her borders anew with forts and groups of fortresses, confronted with a friendship between these two nations resembling an alliance, Berlin looked with anxiety into the future, and warlike preparations of the two powers were far ahead of ours, their navies far more modern and powerful than the German navy, which consisted of a few old ships almost without fighting value. Therefore, it seemed to us wise to acquiesce in the suggestion of this strong group in order that it might not—should we decline—turn immediately to England and cause the entry of the latter into the combination. This would have meant the formation, at that time, of the combination of 1914, which would have been a serious matter for Germany. Japan, on the other hand, was about to go over anything to England, in her sympathies. Moreover, Germany's making common cause with the Franco-Russian group offered the possibility of achieving gradually a more trusting and less strained relationship in Europe and of living side by side with our two neighbors there in more friendliness, as a result of the common policy adopted in the Far East. The policy adopted by us at this juncture was too consistently based on the maintenance of world peace.

In the entire Kiaochow question, Prince Hohenlohe, despite his age, evinced a capacity for sticking steadily to his purpose and a degree of resolution which must be reckoned as greatly to his credit. Unfortunately, in the matter of the Kruger dispatch his prudence and his vision, so clear on other occasions, abandoned him; only by so assuming his obstinate insistence on the sending of this dispatch to be understood. The influence of such an energetic and eloquent personage as Herr von Marschall, former state attorney, may have been so powerful, the siren song of Herr von Holstein necessary to give the wise Emperor to them. In any event, he did his country an ill turn in this matter, and damaged me seriously both in England and at home.

The Kruger Telegram.

Since the so-called Kruger dispatch made a great stir and had serious political consequences, I shall tell the story of it in detail. The Japanese raid caused great and increasing excitement in Germany. The German nation was outraged at this attempt to overpower a little nation, which was Dutch, and hence Lower Saxon-German in origin—and to which we were sympathetic, because of racial relationship. I was much worried at this violent excitement, which also seized upon the higher classes of society, foreseeing possible complications with England. I believed that there was no way to prevent England from conquering the Boer countries, should she so desire, although I also was convinced that such a conquest would be unjust. But I was unable to overcome the reigning excitement, and was consequently judged by my intimates on account of the attitude I adopted.

One day when I had gone to my conference, at which the secretary of state for the navy, Admiral Hoffmann, was present, Freiherr Marschall and the foreign office were of English national psychology. I sought to make clear to Freiherr Marschall the consequences which such a step would have among the English; in this, likewise, Admiral Hoffmann seconded me. But Marschall was not to be dissuaded. Then, finally, the imperial chancellor took a hand. He remarked that, as a constitutional ruler, must not stand out against my constitutional advisers; otherwise, there was danger that the excited attitude of the German people, deeply outraged in its sense of justice and also in its sympathy for the Dutch might cause it to break down the barriers and turn against me personally. Already, he said, statements were flying about among the people; it was being said that the emperor was, after all, half an Englishman, with secret English sympathies; that he was entirely under the influence of his grandmother, Queen Victoria; that the dictation emanating from England must cease once for all; that the emperor must be freed from English tutelage, etc.

Says He Signed Against His Will. In view of all this, he continued, it was his duty as imperial chancellor notwithstanding he admitted the justification of my objecting, to insist that I sign the telegram in the general political interest, and, above all else in the interest of my relationship to my people. He and also Herr von Marschall, he went on, in their capacity of constitutional advisers, would assume full responsibility for the telegram and its consequences.

Sir Valentine Chirol, at that time correspondent of the Times, wrote, in the Times of Sept. 11, that Herr von Marschall, directly after the sending of the dispatch, had stated to him that the dispatch did not give the personal opinion of the emperor, but was a governmental act, for which the chancellor and he himself assumed full responsibility.

Admiral Hoffmann, when the Imperial chancellor appealed to him for corroboration of this point of view, and asked by him to uphold it to me, declined to do so, with the remark that the Anglo-Saxon world would unquestionably attribute the telegram to the Kaiser, since nobody would believe that such a provocative thing could come from his majesty's elderly advisers, and all would consider an "impulsive" act of the "youthful" emperor.

Then I again tried to dissuade the gentlemen from their project. But the imperial chancellor and Marschall insisted that I sign, reiterating that they would be responsible for consequences. It seemed to me that I ought not to refuse after their presentation of the case. I signed.

Not long before his death Admiral Hoffmann recalled the occurrence to me in full detail as it is described here. After the Kruger dispatch was made public the storm broke in England, as I had prophesied. I received from all classes of English society, especially from aristocratic ladies unknown to me, a veritable flood of letters containing every possible kind of reproach, some of the writers hinting even at slandering me personally and insulting me. Attacks and calumnies began to appear in the press, so that soon the legend of the origin of the dispatch was as firmly established as the amen at church. If Marschall had also announced the Reichstag, as he had done to Chirol, personally would not have been drawn into the matter to such an extent.

In February, 1900, while the Boer War was in progress, and while I was with the fleet at Heligoland attending the manoeuvres of ships of the line, after having been present at the swearing in of recruits at Kiel, I received news by telegram from the Wilhelmstrasse, via Heligoland, that Russia and France had proposed to Germany to join a joint attack on England, now that she was involved elsewhere, and cripple her sea traffic, and ordered that the proposal be accepted.

Since I assumed that Paris and St. Petersburg would present the matter at London in such a way that it would appear that Berlin had made the above proposal to both of them, I immediately telegraphed from Heligoland to Queen Victoria and to Prince of Wales (Edward) the fact of the Russo-French proposal and its refusal by me. The Queen answered expressing her thanks, the Prince of Wales with an expression of astonishment.

Later her majesty let me know secretly that, shortly before the receipt of my telegram from Heligoland concerning the proposal from Paris and St. Petersburg, the false version of the matter foreseen by me had indeed been told, and that she was glad to have been able, thanks to my dispatch, to expose the intrigue to her government and quiet it as to the loyal attitude of Germany; she added that she would not forget the service I had done England in troublous times.

Deal With Cecil Rhodes.

When Cecil Rhodes came to me, in order to bring about the construction of the Cape-to-Cairo railway and telegraph line through the interior regions of German East Africa, his wishes were approved by me, in agreement with the foreign office and the imperial chancellor, with the proviso that a branch railway should be built via Tabora, and that German material should be used in the construction work on German territory. Both conditions were acquiesced in by Rhodes most willingly. He was grateful at the fulfillment of his pet ambition by Germany, only a short time after King Leopold of Belgium had refused his request.

Rhodes was full of admiration for Berlin and the tremendous German industrial plants, which he visited daily. He said that he regretted not having been in Berlin before, in order to have learned about the power and efficiency of Germany, and to have got into touch with the German government and prominent Germans in commercial circles. He said he had wished, even before the Jameson raid, to visit Berlin, but had been prevented in London at that time from doing that, had been able to inform us before of his plan to get permission to build the Cape-to-Cairo line through the Boer countries, as well as through our colonies, the German government would probably have been able to help him by bringing persuasion to bear upon Kruger, who was unwilling to grant this permission; that "the stupid Jameson raid" would never have been made, in that case, and the Kruger dispatch never written—as to that dispatch, he had never borne me a grudge on account of it.

He added that as we in Germany could not be correctly informed as to aim and actual purposes, the said raid must have looked to us like "an act of piracy," which naturally and quite rightly had excited the Germans; that all he had wanted was to have such stretches of land as were needed for his rail lines—such, in fact, as Germany had just granted to him in the interior of her colonies—a demand which was not unjust and would certainly have met with German support. I was not to worry, he added, about the dispatch, and not bother myself any more about the uproar in the English press. Rhodes did not know about the origin of the Kruger dispatch and wanted to know mine, imagining that I was its originator.

Rhodes went on to advise me to build the Bagdad railway and open up Mesopotamia, which he had had in mind, simultaneously introduced there. He said that this was Germany's task, just as his was the Cape-to-Cairo line. In view of the fact that the building of this line through our territory was also made dependent upon the cession to us of the Samoan Islands, Rhodes worked actively in London toward having them turned over to us.

In home politics, Prince Hohenlohe, the chancellor, showed a mildness which was not generally favorable. Owing to his long acquaintance with Herr von Hertling, he was able to establish friendly relations with the Vatican. His mildness and indulgence were also exercised toward Alsace-Lorraine, in which, as an expert of long standing, he showed particular interest. But he got little thanks for this, since the French element, indirectly benefited thereby, behaved with ever-increasing arrogance.

Pen Sketch of Hohenlohe. Prince Hohenlohe loved to employ mediation, compromise and conciliation toward the Socialists likewise—and he employed them on some occasions when energetic measures would have been more fitting. He talked with much joy my Far East trip to Constantinople and Jerusalem. He was pleased at the strengthening of our relations with Turkey and considered the plan for the Bagdad railway arising from them as a great cultural work worthy of Germany.

He also gave his most enthusiastic approval to my visit to England in 1899, made by me with my wife and two sons at the desire of my royal grandmother, who, growing steadily weaker on account of her years, wished to see her oldest grandson once more. He hoped that this journey might serve to efface somewhat the consequences of the Kruger dispatch sent by him, and also to clarify some important questions by means of conferences between me and English statesmen and politicians. In order to avoid any unpleasantness from the English press, which, angered by the Boer War and the partly unjustified annexation of German colonies, had been answering in like tone, the Queen had commissioned the author of "The Life of the Prince Consort," Sir Theodore Martin, to inform the English press of her majesty's desire that a friendly reception be accorded to her imperial grandson. And it was what indeed came to pass. The visit ran its course harmoniously and caused satisfaction on all sides. I held important conferences with various leading men. Not once in the entire visit was the Kruger dispatch mentioned. On the other hand, my royal grandmother did not conceal from her grandson how unwelcome the whole Boer War was to her; she made no secret of her disapproval and aversion for Mr. Chamberlain and all that he represented, and thanked me again for my prompt and sharp refusal of a certain section of the proposal to interfere and for my immediate announcement of this proposal. One could easily see how much the Queen loved her splendid army and how deeply she had been grieved by the heavy reverses suffered by it at the outset of the war, which had caused by no means negligible losses. Referring to these, the aged Field Marshal Duke of Cambridge coined the fine phrase: "The British nobleman and officer have shown that they can die bravely as gentlemen."

On my departure the Queen bade me farewell with cordial and grateful greetings to her "much-cherished cousin," the imperial chancellor, whose ability and experience, she hoped, would continue to maintain good relations between our two countries. My report entirely satisfied Prince Hohenlohe as to the success of my journey; at the same time, however, I found the object of the most violent attacks from a certain section of the press and from many excited "friends of the Boers." The German lacks the very thing which the English people has been inculcated, and to which it has been trained by long political self-discipline: when a fight is on, even though it be merely upon the field of diplomacy, the Englishman unquestioningly follows the flag, in accordance with the proverb: "You can't change the jockey while the race is running." In the autumn of 1900 Prince Hohenlohe retired from the chancellorship, since the work had become too arduous for a man of his advanced age. Moreover, the constant quarrels and disputes of the political parties with each other were disagreeable to him, and it went against the grain with him to make speeches before them in the Reichstag. Equally disagreeable to him was the press, part of which had taken the bit between its teeth and imagined that he could conserve the Bismarckian tradition by quoting sayings by Bismarck. He had greatly jeopardized relations with England, especially during the Boer War.

Chancellor's Retirement.

The hope aroused by the choice of Prince Hohenlohe as chancellor and his assumption of the office, that Prince Bismarck would place less obstacles in his path, had been only partly fulfilled. The atmosphere had been much relieved, and Prince Bismarck brought to a much milder frame of mind by my reconciliation with him, which had received outward expression in his solemn entry into Berlin and his staying at the old Hohenzollern palace, but his adherents and those rallying around him for the sake of opposition were not to be dissuaded from their activities. Moreover, the political representatives of the people succeeded, while I was on my way to Friedrichshagen to celebrate Bismarck's 80th birthday, in refusing to pay homage to the old imperial chancellor, a thing which naturally deeply hurt the sensitive Prince Hohenlohe and filled him with indignation.

He, like myself, was deeply moved by the death of his great predecessor, and we, together with the German people, sincerely mourned Prince Bismarck as one of the greatest of the sons of Prussia and Germany, in spite of the fact that he had not always made our task easy. I insisted upon hurrying back from my trip to Norway in order to pay honor to him who, as a faithful servant of his old master, had helped the German nation to unity, and under whom I, when I was prince, had had the proud privilege of working.

It is said that one of the reasons why Prince Hohenlohe retired from his post was the advice of his son Alexander, who was much at his father's house; he was known in society as "the Crown Prince," and was essentially different from his lovable father. Prince Hohenlohe could look back upon a series of successes during his term as Chancellor; the overcoming of the disputes concerning the "Citizens' Book of Laws," the reform of the military punishment procedure, the naval law, the appointment of Waldersee to the command in China at the outbreak of the Boer War, Tsing-tao, and the Yangtze Treaty.

He bade me farewell on the 15th of October, 1900. Both of us were greatly moved, for not only was the chancellor and faithful co-worker parting from his emperor, but also the uncle from his nephew, who looked up with gratitude to the old man. At the age of 75 years—an age when others have long since retired to rest and contemplation—he had not hesitated to obey the summons of the emperor to subject himself to even more exacting labors and devote his time and strength to the German Fatherland. When about to leave my room, he grasped my hand so long noted and admired between me and Admiral von Hollmann. I shall always preserve him faithfully in my memory.

CLERK'S OFFICE TOO SMALL

Wants More Accommodation for Many Who Visit Him Daily.

So heavy and so intricate has the business in Police Court Clerk John Moulie's office become that he feels much greater accommodation is needed. More people crowd into his office each day than several years ago, he said. Among his visitors are many men, who come to collect money from the wives' maintenance act. Then visitors of the motor vehicle act and numerous city laws come in continuous streams to his office to pay fines, before and after court. The office is no longer sufficient, the clerk stated. He has petitioned the council to give a safe to keep valuable papers. He has also petitioned the council to have a new and improved filing system in urgently needed. He will certainly welcome the opening of a new police station, for the quarters at present are not at all pleasant. In the rickety old Carling office is generally full, especially his office following a busy session, for his department is a court room.

Mad Bull Startles Citizens At Tillsonburg Unlashed In Street.

Special to London Advertiser. TILLSONBURG, Oct. 2.—Excitement ran high today for about 30 minutes on Tillsonburg avenue, when a large bull, being led by Deloss Hicks, suddenly became mad, creating a very dangerous situation for those on the street. After about 20 minutes' superhuman effort the large rope around the animal was wound around a nearby tree, and Jack Barrett killed the infuriated beast with the second shot from a rifle, behind the ear. Had the beast managed to have broken loose serious accidents would have almost been sure to have ensued.

SEE NO NEED IN LONDON FOR FUEL CONTROLLER

Mayor Wilson Ready To Combat Any Signs of Profiteering in Coal.

If there is any sign or hint of coal profiteering in London, Mayor Cameron Wilson promises speedy action to combat it. In regular session Monday, the city councilors received a letter from J. A. Ellis, provincial fuel controller, and ordered the same filed with little comment. Alderman Drake volunteered the opinion that the prices for anthracite coal in this city compared quite favorably with Toronto and other communities, and held that there was no immediate need here for the services of a fuel arbitrator. His colleagues viewed the situation similarly, and Mayor Wilson promised action if the need should arise.

BUILDING RETURNS SHOW INCREASE

Kitchener Reports Better Totals For Year, Although September Falls Down.

Special to London Advertiser. KITCHENER, Oct. 2.—Building statistics in this city for September fell below the total for the same month last year, although the total for the period of the year up to October 1 is far above that of last year. The permits issued last month totaled $66,573, as compared with $56,810 for the same month last year. At the end of September last year the total building in the city was only $800,680, as compared with $1,902,999 for the same period this year. Vital statistics for Kitchener for the month of September show 47 births, 10 deaths and 28 marriages. Word was received here today from Ottawa that four Kitchener young men had passed their examinations for amateur certificates of proficiency in radio telegraphy. They are H. S. Gowan, Q. M. Linke, C. A. Robinson and H. C. W. Smith. Announcement was made here today that T. H. Ballantyne, now in active charge of Grace Tabernacle Church here, will be ordained to the ministry at the local church on Wednesday. Representatives of the associated independent churches will be present for the occasion. The ordination sermon will be delivered by Rev. MacKenzie of Cleveland.

NEED SCHOOLROOM IN NORTH LONDON

Inspector Greer Points Out Ryerson Building Becoming Congested.

Provision must be made without any undue delay for the gradually increasing attendance at the Ryerson Public School, North London, according to Senior School Inspector V. K. Greer.

While advancing but slight hope for a new school in that locality within the next two or three years, the inspector urges that the trustees, as speedily as circumstances and finances will allow, cast their eyes around in the north end for a building site that could be purchased now at a more reasonable figure than years after.

In the meanwhile, he warns that something will have to be accomplished next year to alleviate probable congestion. The school is now comfortably filled, he says, but the normal increase from year to year will complicate matters, he predicts. It is just possible, he suggests, that arrangements can be made in 1923, whereby St. George's Public School can handle 15 or 20 students from the Ryerson School, and in the event that this does not satisfy the need, a suitable building could be erected.

OPEN TECHNICAL SCHOOL FOR FALL REGISTRATION

The evening classes and the commercial department are already showing signs of being overcrowded, and Mr. Beal pointed out that registrations would only continue until all the classes were filled. Special provision has been made for advanced students, and the classes have been graded to meet the various needs of those who have partly completed their courses.

Court Decides World Not in Need of New Religion—Sends Man to Asylum

When examined on the point of sanity, a vagrant, whose name was on the police court blotter, admitted he had no religion, but added that he was the proud possessor of the third degree in spiritualism. He was going to make himself known in time, he admitted, and already a multitude had been following him, although he had not engaged any press agents as yet. Another individual, a woman, who was also found to be mentally deficient, did not possess the third degree, but had been subject to it continuously, she told the jail physician. Policemen were continually haunting her. Some of them apparently did not want her to be in a position to identify them and wore masks. Officials investigating the cases, decided the gentleman was not a fit man to lead the world to higher planes, and that the woman should be delivered from the omnipresent bluecoats, and ordered the pair confined to the Ontario Hospital.

Trustees Decide To Make Sure Structure All Right Before Making Payment.

While the members of the board of education, after a recent inspection of the Central Collegiate Institute, accepted, to all intents and purposes, that much-abused structure, it is now considered imperative that another survey be instituted.

Certain "defects" were ordered remedied and several "odds and ends" were to be straightened up before the final payment should be made to the Kingston Construction Company. It was further ruled that no additional money be paid until such time as it was definitely known that all sub-contractors had been recompensed for their services.

It is now known that this has not yet been done, and in the meanwhile it is reasoned that the trustees will have to undertake another inspection of the building to assure themselves that all improvements have been accomplished "according to Hoyle," as it were.

said, was to increase its circulation to 100,000. The head of the Book Room made no reference to the printers' strike and open shop. It is understood that the committee investigating this question has taken up the statement of the labor unions and obtained Dr. Fallis' side of the question.

The conference this morning referred to a committee, a memorial from the Independent Labor Party, in which the church is urged to in-dorse single tax or at least a higher tax rate on land, than on improvements. The memorial was signed by James Simpson.

A communication expressing the greeting of the Japanese Methodist General Conference to the Canadian Methodist Conference was read. "It thanked the Canadian church for the strong Christian missionaries she had sent to Japan. 'Never has Japan needed strong missionaries more than she needs them today,' the memorial said. The discipline committee has submitted a recommendation to the conference that no person could be a district chairman for a second year until every other minister of the district had held that position.

Rev. Dr. S. W. Fallis, book steward of the Methodist Book Room, outlined the difficult years the printing trade had just gone through. Most of the printing and publishing firms have not been making money; in fact, many have been losing heavily, so that the surplus of $188,000, which the report of the book room showed was encouraging, under the circumstances.

Trade Revival. "There is a great deal of talk about trade revival, but we have not felt any such revival yet," said Dr. Fallis. He explained that one heavy load the book room had to carry was interest charges owing to the fact that it had moved into new quarters and had to pay interest charges on both the new and the old building.

Now, however, the old building was bringing in enough rents to pay all its charges and was giving a 5 per cent return on the conference. This, however, could not be said in regard to the new Wesley building. The Book Room was furnishing office space to the Methodist Conference department.

HOLD HIGH HOPES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—British official circles attach high hopes to the meeting of the allied generals with the Turkish Nationalist emissaries at Mudania, but at the same time point out that the criticalness of the situation has not yet entirely passed. By establishing contact between the Turks and the allies the conference is expected to perform a valuable service, but it is not anticipated that the path of the negotiations will be smooth, and early reports that the conference was in danger of being wrecked would not surprise London officials.

Such reports are considered likely to appear when the allies refuse, as it is felt here they will, what is expected to be the first demand of the Kemalists, namely, that the latter be allowed to enter Thrace. It is believed here, however, that the allied representatives stand firm on the Paris program two or three days will see the successful termination of the Mudania meeting and a favorable answer to the joint allied note from Mustafa Kemal Pasha.

7 DIE WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTOMOBILE

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 3.—Seven persons of a family party were instantly killed and one injured, probably fatally, early last night when their automobile was struck by a passenger train on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad at a street crossing here. A pile of lumber at the side of the track is believed to have obscured their view of the oncoming train, which was speeding down a long grade into St. Paul. The car was smashed to bits and its occupants scattered by the train, which was brought to a stop five hundred feet from the scene of the disaster.

PREPARE FOR PAS VOTING THURSDAY

Bracken, Bitterly Opposed by Three Candidates, Ends Campaign.

The Pas, Man., Oct. 3.—A keenly-contested political campaign is being brought to a close in The Pas, where on Thursday voters of the constituency are to elect their representative in the Legislature. Hon. John Bracken, the premier, is opposed by three independent candidates, and while the government forces express absolute confidence in the result, there are various features to the contest which complicates the situation somewhat in the opinion of independent observers.

Herman Finger, who seems to be the premier's most feared opponent, is an old-timer in the north, a businessman of long standing, and he is conducting an energetic campaign. R. H. McNeill announces himself as a "farmer government" candidate, opposing his leader, because of his desire that a local man represent The Pas. The fourth candidate is Dr. P. S. Robertson, whose battle cry also is "local representation."

Prohibition has come in for a good deal of attention, and Premier Bracken has repeated his declaration that the government will take a referendum on government control of liquor for beverage purposes early next summer. Local issues have come up, in particular an old claim of The Pas against the province for $270,000, which Mr. Finger undertakes to collect.

REPORT SHIPMENT OF COAL HEAVY

Washington, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Heavy shipments of coal, amounting to more than a million tons a week, are being dumped at Lake Erie ports, according to figures of the American Railway Association. Most of this is moving via the Great Lakes to northwestern states. While little of it is going to China, the belief of coal and railroad men is that with the northwestern states practically relieved from fear of fuel famine, shipments into Canada from this time on will steadily increase.

ARCTIC EXPLORERS RETURN FROM TRIP

Canadian Govt. Steamer Arrives at Quebec Earlier Than Expected.

Quebec, Oct. 3.—The Canadian government steamer Arctic, which was fitted up last spring and sailed from Quebec on the 15th of July, in command of Capt. J. E. Bernier, the veteran navigator of Arctic fame, arrived at Quebec yesterday. The entire personnel of officers and scientists looked the picture of health as they were seen on board the staunch little oak-built craft on her arrival. "The trip was an unqualified success, and we accomplished our mission two months earlier than expected," were the words of Captain Bernier. The scientists found traces of soft coal in Baffin's Land, and it is the presumption that on these northern islands there are rich deposits of gold. Various Northwest Mounted Police posts were established. The duties of the police will be to administer law and keep the Esquimaux from Greenland, which is owned by Denmark, from crossing into Canada. The island of Elsmere joins Greenland by a narrow strip of land, over which the Esquimaux can travel into Canada. Sundry topographical survey work was also accomplished.

WIDOW OF IMPRESARIO ADVERTISES FOR WORK

New York, Oct. 3.—Declaring that she has no funds and must find work at once, Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein, widow of the impresario, today inserted this advertisement in a morning newspaper: "Must have work of any sort at once. Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein (widow of the late impresario)." Mrs. Hammerstein, who is staying with friends, said she had not a dollar in the world and must earn money for herself and her pet dog.

sick and help the maimed, but also to become the teaching institution of Western Ontario, where there should be made available for all the foundational principles of intelligent, competent mother care. Its beneficent influence will thus enter every home,
whether rich or poor.

The combined hospital and hygiene exhibit has come to be known as the "Circus." Possibly this is an adaptation from the name of the Canadian cavalry brigade, which was popularly called "Seely's Circus," because of its ability to move rapidly and drive hard.

In any case, a big surprise for all connected with it has been the interest that it has created. During its first week in the field it secured pledges of about $4,000 toward the completion of equipment and furnishings of the hospital. Last week new ground was broken at Wingham, and interest aroused. Theford gave it a warm welcome, and Thorndale promised to do yet more than it has done.
As an earnest of good-will, the Evelyn Dramatic Society went a check, disposing of their entire assets. Ilderton was visited on Friday, and the Red Cross Society will form a coalition with other organizations in the surrounding district and endeavor to perpetuate the sacrifices in some tangible memorial within the hospital. Mr. H. L. Hodgins, M.P., bespoke for it a sympathetic interest, and lauded the work which it intends to undertake.
Wherever it has gone people recognize that this project is one belonging to Western Ontario, and even in communities where there are small hospitals the feeling is that here is an institution which will do what they cannot, and the desire is evident to help to drive home the message that will open the doors to hundreds of waiting children who need its beneficent aid. It remains for Western Ontario to furnish the key that will make the formal opening possible on Oct. 28.

During this week Dorchester and Forest will be visited, and next week
Delaware and possibly Ridgeway.

"Who's Who."

The personnel of this expeditionary force is as follows: Generalissimo, Mr. J. J. Foote; commander-in-chief in the field, Mr. R. L. Watson; director of operations, Mr. George Clarke; aide-de-camp, Dr. L. Newland; the department of education; radio experts ("Sparks") Mr.
Ronald Foote, Messrs. Mills and Thies of the Preston Locke Company; service corps, Rotarians Grant, Dowler and Stewart; mechanical transport, Ruggie Company; liaison corps, with district women's organizations, volunteers from similar London societies.

The Women's Institutes and other societies of the district visited are asked to meet with the hospital committee at 3:30 o'clock each day at the radio car to organize local committees.

The response which is being made to the present appeal is an indication that Western Ontario realizes the health of its children is the wealth of the nation, and that it is the best kind of business to support a worthy institution.

Interest Keen in Annual Meeting of Ontario United Hospital Aids

Twenty-five or twenty-six cities and towns in Ontario, it is expected, will be represented at the annual convention next Monday, Oct. 9, in Guelph, of the Ontario United Hospital Aids, of which Mrs. Arthur H.
Smith of this city is president, and

Replies to invitations according to Mrs. Greenaway, indicate keen interest and the probability of a large attendance at the meeting, which will be held in the sunroom of the Guelph General Hospital following luncheon at the Wyndham Inn.

Reports, it is stated, will be presented in alphabetical order, some auxiliaries and guilds supplying everything for their hospitals from safety pins to awnings, while others act largely in an advisory capacity.
In a number of places, amongst them,
Stratford, Preston and Galt, junior auxiliaries have been formed. In the latter city several groups of young helpers are known as "Twigs."

"Y" GYM GIRLS MEET
AT OPENING RALLY

Graciously Welcomed by Board Members—Spend
Merry Evening.

With basketball, relay and ring games, Sir Roger de Coverley and other folk dances and singing, which awoke the most musical echoes, 100 and more girls spent a jolly evening
Monday in the Western University gym, Oxford street, in response to invitations to attend an opening rally of classes in the Y.W.C.A. physical training department. In each and all events Miss Edith Wynne-Pryce was a charming and inspiring leader. In the absence of the association president, Mrs. C. B. King, Mrs. Donald McLean graciously assisted in duties of hostess, making an appropriate little speech of welcome, and introducing the new general secretary, Miss Marjory Morton. Briefly and happily Miss Morton addressed her favorite kind of an audience, emphasizing the importance of keeping the body physically fit, in order to get the best out of life, and to give the best in service.

Gordon Philip, the popular convener of the physical department committee, was busy making everyone feel quite at home, and other members of the board present were Mesdames E. E. Reid, M. Bruce,
Sherwood Fox, W. J. Brown, Eric
Reid and Miss Moore. On the warm evening ice cream and cake were welcome refreshments.

Await Reply From
Sir Arthur Currie

Special interest attaches to the meeting Friday afternoon next at 3 o'clock, in the King Street Y. W. C.
A. of the War Memorial Hospital committee, from the fact the time has at last arrived to make definite arrangements in connection with the grand formal opening, to take place
Saturday, Oct. 28.

Word is momentarily expected from Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, who has been invited to officiate. Mrs. F. J.
Greenaway some days ago received a letter from the secretary of the former commander of the Canadian forces, stating that Sir Arthur Currie was in the Canadian West, but was expected back in Montreal by Oct. 1. To resume his duties as president of McGill University. The committee is hoping to have the presence of entertaining Lady Currie, as well as her distinguished husband.

ST. GEORGE'S GUIDES RALLY.

An enthusiastic crowd of girls gathered in St. George's parish hall for the opening meeting of the season of St. George's Girl Guides, when a program for the month of October was drawn up by the officers. The first evening is to be of a social na-

Johnston is the captain of the company, and the lieutenants, Mrs. Knox

MISSION TO LEPERS.

An inspiring address on "Missions" was the chief program feature of the meeting of the Mission to Lepers held Monday afternoon in Wellington Street Y. W. C. A., and presided over by Mrs. George Wood.
Mrs. John Stevenson, the treasurer, reported a good balance.

M. W. A. ELECTS OFFICERS.

Election of officers for the coming year and planning for a thanksgiving luncheon at which the Methodist ministers of London district will be entertained in November occasioned the attention of the London
District Methodist Ministers' Wives'
Association at the October meeting
Monday in Dundas Center Methodist Church.

Mrs. W. Godwin was made president, Mrs. J. Garbutt, vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Hiles, secretary;
Mrs. Creasy, treasurer, and Mrs. W.
Killey, of Lambeth, pianist. Mrs.
W. E. Millson, retiring president, was in the chair. Many complimentary things were said during the meeting of the efficient service of the retiring officers. Mrs. Garbutt gave the Bible reading.

Most gratifying news to the Catholic Women's League of the city and throughout London diocese was the announcement which came from Winnipeg Monday that Mrs. Bernard
C. McCann, diocesan president, had been made treasurer of the Catholic Women's League of Canada at the Dominion convention in progress
there. Under the leadership of Mrs.
McCann, and thanks in large measure to her executive ability and unflinching efforts, London diocese established a record in Canada a year ago for your speed and efficiency with which the league was organized in practically every parish. Election to office on the Dominion executive is regarded as a fine recognition of her service to the movement.

WITH THE BRIDES

GRANT-RISLER.

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Maitland street, was the scene of a pretty September wedding Wednesday, September 27 at 6 p. m., when Annie Laura, youngest daughter of Mrs. G.
B. Risler of Draneys avenue, was married to Lester William Grant, Elder L. D. Campbell officiating.

The floral decorations and ferns made a pretty setting for the bridal party, who were under a large white bell. Bows of tulle, centred with asters, adorned the seats reserved for guests.

A winsome picture was the bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, William Risler. She was attired in a taupe suit, trimmed with caracul fur collar, and small duvety and feather hat to match. She wore a rose-bud corsage.

Miss Muriel Ridley was a charming bridesmaid in her navy suit, with fur choker and large picture hat in black.
She also wore a rose-bud corsage.

The groom was attended by his brother, Walter E. Grant.

The nuptial music was played by Miss Marjorie Alford and during the signing of the register Mr. Lorne Menzies sang in delightful voice.

"Until," by Edward Teschemacher.

Nephews of the groom in boy scout suits acted as ushers.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful leather traveling bag, to the bridesmaid, pearl earrings, to the soloist and organist, harpings, and to the groomsmen, a pair of cuff links.

Out-of-town guests were from Windsor and St. Thomas.

Monk turned the keys, but all at once forgot his purpose, and coughed his ears attentively to rumors of excitement and confusion on the deck. The instinct of the seafaring man uppermost, Monk stiffened, grew rigid from head to foot.

One heard hurried feet, outcries, a sudden jangle of the engine-room telegraph.

"Monseur! Monseur!" Liane implored. "Open that box!"

The words were on her lips when she was thrown off her feet by a frightful shock which stopped the Sybarite dead in full career. The woman cannoned against Monk, shouldering him bodily aside.

Instinctively snatching at the box, Monk succeeded only in dragging it to the edge of the desk before a second shock seemed to make the yacht leap like a living thing stricken mortally.

The dispatch-box went to the floor, Liane Delorme was propelled headlong into a corner, Monk thrown to his knees, Phinuit lifted out of his chair and flung sprawling into the arms of Lanyard, who retained sufficient presence of mind to disarm Phinuit before that one guessed what he was about.

Of a sudden the engines ceased, and there was no more movement of any sort.

Lanyard had no means to measure how long that dumb suspense lasted. It seemed interminable. Eventually he saw Monk pick himself up and dash out.

As if he had only needed that vision of action to animate him, Lanyard threw Phinuit off, so that he staggered under the threat of his own pistol in Lanyard's hands. He lingered for a moment, then apparently realizing his danger, faded away into the saloon.

With a roughness dictated by the desperate extremity, Lanyard strode over to Liane Delorme, fairly jerked her to her feet, and thrust her stumbling into the saloon. Closing the door behind her, he shot his bolts.

He went to work swiftly then, in a fever of haste.

Stripping off coat and waistcoat, he took from the pocket of the latter the wallet that held his papers, then ripped open his shirt and unbuckled the money belt around his waist. Its pockets were ample and fitted with worthy fastenings; and all but what held a few English sovereigns, were empty.

The jewels of Madame de Montalais went into them as rapidly as his fingers could move. Liane engaged, he heard a pistol fired in the saloon, and saw the faded writing-bed of the captain's cabin scored by a bullet. A stream of light followed, one after another the stout panels as if their latency had been that of cheese. Lanyard stepped out of their path, nudged the partition, while he finished stuffing the jewels into the belt and, placing the thin wallet beneath it, strapped it tightly round him once more.

Lanyard edged along the partition to the door, calculated the stand of the lunatic in the saloon from the angle at which the bullets were coming through, and emptied the pistol he had taken from Phinuit at the panels as fast as he could pull the trigger.

There was no more firing.

He tossed aside the empty weapon, made sure of Popinot's on his hip, approached one of the deadlights, placed a chair, climbed upon it, and with infinite pains managed to wriggle and squirm head and shoulders through the opening.

After that he had to work his way round, inch by inch, until it seemed possible to drop into the sea and escape hitting the screw.

Ten minutes later, the fingers of one hand—he was swimming on his side—at the bottom of his stroke touched pebbles.

He lowered his feet and waded through extensive shallows to a wide and sandy beach.

CHAPTER XXII

Finis.

The windows in his suite at the Waldorf commanded a southward vista of Fifth avenue, whose enchantment was so potent that Lanyard, on the first day of his tenancy, thought it could never tire. Yet by noon of the third he was viewing

Hand-Painted Gloves Latest

To have your gloves, shoes, hats, or any other bit of wearing apparel hand-painted while you wait is the latest fad. Here you see the extra interest that may be added to a plain pair of gloves if you just use the brush on them. This is done by a new process that does not injure the flimsiest material and will endure washing without injury.

it with the eyes of soul-destroying ennui.

Three days before, immediately on arriving, he had cabled Eve de Montalais.

"Mission successful," he had wired—returning France by La Savole in five days, having arranged safe transportation your property—please advise if you can meet me in Paris to receive same or your commands otherwise.

And to this, silence only!

When the telephone did ring—to ward noon of that third day, he fairly stumbled over himself in his haste to reach the instrument.

"Yes . . . Yes, at once."

His callers fled into the room with cheerfulness of mien, Liane Delorme first, then Monk, then Phinuit, rather bleached of color and wearing one arm in a sling; all very smart in clothes conspicuously new and costly as the avenue afforded, striking figures of contentment in prosperity.

"It is a pleasure indeed," Lanyard gravely acknowledged their several salutations.

"Be that as it may," said Phinuit—"here is the happy family reunited and ready to talk business."

"And no hard feelings, Monsieur Phinuit?"

"We don't want to pull any rough stuff on you, Lanyard."

"Rough stuff, monsieur? You mean, physical force?"

"Not exactly. I've got a couple of friends of mine from headquarters."

that glimmered in a face otherwise gravely acknowledged their several salutations.

"But how surprising!" she declared. "Madame la Comtesse de Lorgnes—Monsieur Monk—Mr. Phinuit—how delightful to see you all again!"

"The civility met with inadequate appreciation."

"Nothing could be more opportune," Lanyard declared; "for it is to this lady, Madame de Montalais, and to these gentlemen that you owe the recovery of your jewels."

"But how can I thank them?"

"Well," said Lanyard, "if you ask me, I believe they would be most grateful to be permitted to leave and keep their numerous and pressing appointments elsewhere."

"I am entirely of your mind, monsieur."

Lanyard nodded to the man in the doorway—"All right, Mr. Murray"—and he stood indifferently aside.

In silence the three men moved to the door and out. Phinuit with a brazen swagger, Jules without emotion visible, Monk with eyebrows adroop and flapping.

But Lanyard interposed when Liane Delorme would have followed.

"A moment, Liane, if you will be so good."

She paused, regarding him with a somber and inscrutable face while he produced from his coat-pocket a fat envelope without indorsement.

"This is yours."

The woman murmured blankly: "Mine?"

He said in a guarded voice: "Papers I found in the safe in your library that night. You are unwise to keep such papers, Liane. Good-bye."

Lifting the flap, the woman half withdrew the inclosure, recognized it at a glance, and crushed it in a convulsive grasp. For an instant she seemed about to speak, then moved her head in dumb acknowledgment, and left the room.

Lanyard nodded to Mr. Murray, who amiably closed the door, keeping himself on the outside of it.

Eve de Montalais was eyeing him with an indulgent and amused glance.

"That woman loves you, monsieur," she said quietly.

He succeeded admirably in looking as if he thought was strange to him.

"One is sure madame must be mistaken."

"Ah, but I am not!" said Eve de Montalais. "Who should know better the signs that tell of woman's love for you, my dear?"

THE END.

WROXETER

Wroxeter, Sept. 30.—An address on the "Indians of Canada" was given by Mr. A. J. Bell, agent for the Upper Canada Bible and Tract Society in the Methodist Church Wednesday evening. Mr. Bell has labored for four years among the Indians at Norway House. His address was illustrated by limelight views.

The Women's Institute of Wroxeter entertained the Belmore Institute at Mrs. Pope's rooms Thursday afternoon, when a most enjoyable time was spent.

There was a large attendance and eight new members were added. A splendid paper on "Success" was read by Mrs. Wm. Wilson. Roll call was responded to by names of famous women.

After the business meeting a program of music and readings was given, including several community songs, in which all entered with enthusiasm. At the close a social time was enjoyed, after which a dainty lunch was served.

A medicine troupe are holding a series of concerts in the town hall this week.

Tricks of Sleeves

ALTHOUGH many fall coats and dresses show new sleeves that are tight and devoid of ornament, there are just as many that show sleeves wide and flowing and of most peculiar shapes.

Naturally these sleeves are seen oftenest on afternoon gowns, since evening gowns are usually entirely sleeveless and daytime frocks have grown quite conservative.

Two models sketched show gracefully draped sleeves—the gowns are of satin-back crepe in two of the new golden shades of brown.

THE OLD WOMAN THEN TOLD JACK HOW HARD HER LIFE HAD BEEN SINCE HER HUSBAND DIED THREE YEARS AGO. "THEY ALL TRY I'M A WITCH, AND THAT THIS HOUSE IS HAUNTED," SHE EXCLAIMED.

AFTER SHE HAD FINISHED HER HEARTY BREAKING STORY, SHE DROPPED TO THE FLOOR IN A FAINT. JACK WAS FLURRIED, PUZZLED, AND WONDERED WHAT TO DO. CONTINUED IN NEXT CHAPTER.

Radio Radiations

MISS JESSIE E. KOEWING ANNOUNCING.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 2.—The voice with a radio smile has made broadcasting station WOR, atop a department store here, one of the most popular in the United States.

It's the voice of Miss Jessie E. Koewing, the country's first woman broadcast announcer.

Radio fans as far away as Nebraska, Nova Scotia, and Porto Rico have written in about it. Answering these letters keeps her busy.

And happy.

"It proves that woman can go man one better," she said as she prepared to start the program. "I had never seen a radio set until I came here one afternoon. I was to play a violin solo. While awaiting my turn I listened to the announcer. He was a man who, try as he did, couldn't get his voice to ring right."

"I was sure a woman could do better. I told the management about it—and got a chance to prove it."

Smile Wins.

During the war Miss Koewing worked with a group of Y. M. C. A. entertainers. She watched the boys' faces as she played and recited, and soon learned the knack of putting the smile into her voice.

"It was easy when I started broadcasting," she went on. "I just thought of the thousands who were listening—and just smiled."

Her success has opened a new field for women. For other broadcasting stations have replaced their men announcers with girls.

It was time for the program to

A New Charm

Came to millions in this way

Millions of people have gained new charm through whiter, prettier teeth. You see them everywhere. The reason lies in a new cleaning method. Careful people of some fifty nations are using it today.

Test this method if you do not know it. People all about you have proved its importance. See what it means to you.

Combats the film

One purpose is to combat film on teeth—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Then it forms cloudy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, these troubles constantly increased, and beautiful teeth were seen less often than today.

Two ways found

To meet this situation, dental science searched for ways to fight film, and two ways were found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants are embodied in it. Then dentists the world over began to advise its use.

Other factors

But Pepsodent brings other effects which old ways did not bring. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

Watch the man

Men who smoke find that tobacco particularly stains that film. Such men see conspicuous results. But most people's teeth, of every age, are clouded more or less.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

That test will give you new ideas of what clean teeth mean. You will want your family to always have them, we believe. Cut out the coupon now.

Women of Middle Ages

THE critical stage of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 55, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia, heat flashes which produce headache and dizziness, and a sense of suffocation. Guard your health carefully, for if this period be passed over safely, many years of perfect health may be enjoyed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women through this crisis. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics. Its value is proven by many such letters as these:

Vincennes, Saskatchewan—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a female weakness. I had pains in the back and bearing-down pains in the abdomen and was in a general run-down condition. I could not sleep, rest, or work, and was quite unfit to do even slight household tasks. A friend told me about your Vegetable Compound and I in my turn truly recommend it, as my severe symptoms vanished and I am better in every way. I do my own work, look after my children and see to chickens, a cow, and my garden. I also recommend it for young girls who are weak and run-down, as my 18-year-old daughter has taken it and is quite her own pay self again."—Mrs. FRED WILEY, Vincennes, Saskatchewan.

EVERY TRAIN DUMPS ITS MOTLEY THROGS

Fans Forgive New York "Buying" Pennants in Anxiety To See Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—A fast freight train stopped in Newark, N. J., at dusk today, and from one of its cars doors jumped a lengthy unburned youth, known down in a far, hot corner of Texas as "Long Jim" Baker, star hurler of a semi-professional team.

"Who's going to pitch the first game?" he asked.

"Joe Bush for the Yanks and little Artie Nehf, the left-handed gink," answered an individual whose face was buried in a sporting edition.

"Well," returned Jim, "I been expectin' for some time that some of these here days I'd be pitching a world series game myself, so I thought I'd come up to see what they're like, get used to the crowds of folks and that stuff. Ain't never seed one afore."

At about the same time Jim left his freight, and for some hours previously during the day, fast passenger trains were arriving at their New York terminals, bringing crowds of minor and major league players, managers and officials and newspapermen and a fair-sized bunch of fans.

Must Have Peck. It probably is true that the sectional interest is not so great when the series is for the principals two teams of the same city, but a baseball fan is like a little boy when his sister's best is calling. He can't resist the burning desire to take a peek.

Among the writers who will report the games for newspapers from other countries are a squad from England, two from Japan, one from France, one from Russia, one from the Argentine, one from Sweden and a half-squad from Canada. It is possible to count more than 40,000 persons in the Polo Grounds, where all the games will be played. Each team will alternate in being "the home team" with the Giants enjoying the comforts of the home bench on the first day.

"Ebbie" Ruth, who is the home team, is expected to be somewhat of a terror to the Giant twirlers.

HUGGINS.

By Roy Grove. "OF COURSE I'm grouchy, I'm the grouchyest guy in the world," yelled Miller Huggins, "while I'm on a ball field."

And from the outside world he has all the fans back him in his grouches.

But he's far from the individual the fan thinks he is. First, it is not grouches; it is severe seriousness.

Worked Too Hard. "I have worked too hard in my day," says Huggins. "I have given my physical health."

That's some statement from the man who has developed the greatest game of athletes in the world and made the "mighty" Babe.

But it's exactly that. A small, nervous man who doesn't weigh much above a hundred and twenty, but who's always thinking.

That's his hobby. Just to sit and smoke and think, and THINK HARD.

Entering his hotel room, you look around and find him hidden deeply in a chair in some far corner, one leg thrown over the arm, nothing near him but a single magazine on the floor, and from the veil of curling smoke from his half-lit pipe, his steel eyes look out.

THINKING.

Huggins' greatest hobby is his mania for heavy literature. During the day when most folks think he is just sitting, he is working his head off.

Wants to Relax. When the game is over he wants to relax, to get away from the game, to hide in his room. He doesn't care to be disturbed. He wants to talk baseball. That's just what he doesn't.

Errors Behind McPhee Enable Terriers To Win Play-Off at Brantford

4,200 FANS SEE SAINTS WOBBLE

Southpaw Fans Fourteen, But Bad Seventh Behind Does It.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 2.—Although McPhee for St. Thomas pitched excellent ball and should have won, the Galt Terriers got away with the O. B. A. A. semi-final this afternoon, 4 to 3, hitting timely after errors had put men on bases. The game set an attendance record. Although played on neutral ground, and almost at a half-day's notice, there were 4,200 paid admissions.

McPhee fanned fourteen, but the infield behind him was wobbly in the pinches.

GRAND CIRCUIT BILL IS SPECTACULAR

Kentucky Opening Furnishes Best in Fifty Years.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 2.—Some of the most spectacular racing in its 50 years of history was witnessed at the opening day of the golden jubilee meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association this afternoon. REPORTS INCREASE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—The increase over the corresponding month of last year in the number of cases of infantile paralysis is the circumstance in the Province's health during September, which the provincial health department's monthly report calls attention to.

There were, during the last month, 55 cases of infantile paralysis, with 19 deaths resulting reported to the department, while in September last year only 17 cases and one death were recorded. The epidemic, however, is apparently, the report states, on the wane.

During the month the number of cases of each disease and the consequent deaths reported were: Smallpox, 19 and 1; scarlet fever, 180 and 19; diphtheria, 180 and 19; measles, 180 and 19; whooping cough, 180 and 19; tuberculosis, 180 and 19; infantile paralysis, 55 and 19; cerebro-meningitis, 8 and 6. There were 341 cases of venereal disease reported.

John McGraw Is As Hard On Ice Box As He Is With His Squad of Players

John McGraw likes to sleep in the mornings and he likes to eat at night. Above he is shown with Mrs. McGraw and their thoroughbred Airedale on the lawn of their Pelham Manor home. Below John is getting a bit to eat from his refrigerator.

By Dudley Siddall.
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Beyond the barrier of aloofness that he has erected between himself and a hero-worshipping world is a John McGraw of fine sensibilities, a big heart and a deep appreciation of other folks' virtues.

To the fans who know him only through the newspapers, the name of John McGraw conjures up a cold, calculating, Napoleonic type of leader. They have learned to think of him as a fighter, a result-getter, a driver, an austere, distant man whose amazing achievements merit respect, but whose personality forbids affection.

John McGraw, suburbanite, is a much different individual from John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants.

Forget, for the moment, the pictures of him on the bench as he directs the Giants; those intense, grim pictures showing his brows knitted, his jaw set.

POLICE ROUND UP FOLL TAX DODGERS

Collect Money in Chatham—Brothers Fined For Breach of Liquor Law.

Special to London Advertiser.
CHATHAM, Oct. 2.—The city police are now engaged in collecting poll tax from all citizens whose names are not on the assessment roll.

All young men who are members of the Kent Regiment or any other military force in the city are not liable to the poll tax, exemption of this nature having been provided for these young men by the city council last year.

Registration for pupils for the night classes for the Industrial School commenced this evening, a large number of young men and ladies asking to be placed in various classes.

The above classes open in the Industrial School on Monday evening, October 9th. Principal Harry Collins of the school expects that the registration will be much larger than that of last year.

Charles and William Patchett, farmers of Chatham Township, paid fines of $200 and costs each on charges of violating the Ontario Temperance Act in the county police court this morning.

Charles Patchett also paid a fine of $10 and costs for assaulting his wife.

Augustus E. Sauermann of this city is the new conductor of the band of the First Battalion of the Kent Regiment. Members of the band held a special meeting on Saturday evening last, when several applications were received for the position.

Mr. Sauermann is well known in Western Ontario musical circles, and was leader of the Kent Mills Band, which played in this city many years ago.

OPPOSE COALITION TO FIGHT SOCIALIST PARTY

Prominent British Tories Object To Conservative-Liberal Alliance Against Labor.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The suggestion of Sir George Younger, chairman of the Conservative party, in a speech last week, that Conservative support ought to continue to be given to the coalition to fight Socialism, meets emphatic opposition from Conservatives of prominence in the North of England, who for the most part are inclined to express the opinion that the Socialist menace, if such really exists in a formidable way, should not be fought by a Conservative and Liberal alliance against Labor.

The Yorkshire Post has collected the views of Unionists in the North of England, which shows an almost unanimous desire for a return to complete independence by the Unionist party.

From the Independent Liberal quarters there comes the opinion that Bonar Law will ultimately decide which way the Conservative cat will jump. Lord Long, as already cabled, has declared for the maintenance of the present government for the time being at all events. But Bonar Law is lying very low, doubtless because he appreciates the extreme effect

CONSIDER NEW POSTAL RULES

Authorities Approve of Increased Indemnity For Loss of Registered Articles.

Conference Frowns On Time Clock As Substitute For Attendance Book.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2.—(By Canadian Press.)—Important changes in regard to registered articles met with the approval of the first conference of Dominion postal authorities at this afternoon's sitting. Votes taken favored:

1. Increase in the maximum indemnity for the loss of registered articles. The present maximum is $25. The new maximum suggested is $100.

2. Indemnity to include abstraction and damage. In regard to the last named vote, indemnity is now paid only if the registered article is totally lost. Should the decision of the conference be adopted, indemnity will be paid if the contents are missing or damaged.

Discussion during the day covered a wide range of topics, mostly dealing with the technical handling of mail.

The time clock as a substitute for the present attendance book did not receive much favor. Replies received from the larger postoffices, it was said, were against time clocks mainly on two grounds: (1) That with time clocks, clerks in charge of the various offices were unable to go to the time book and see who was or was not present. There was also no record of, for instance, a week previous and (2) employees in city postoffices did not all have the same hours of duty.

To these objections the point was made that they had in view the older form of time clock and not the latest models, which could not be beaten. "I have seen the latest time clocks at work and I have seen them beaten," observed one postal official.

No formal vote on the question was taken, however. The conference continues tomorrow and Wednesday.

OPPOSES INDIANS' APPEAL TO CROWN

Hon. Charles Stewart Declares Six Nations' Claim Must Be Settled in Canada.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 2.—There will be no reference of the claims of the Six Nations Indians to the British crown or to the League of Nations, said Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior and superintendent-general of Indian affairs for the Dominion of Canada, writing to Chief Deskaheh (Levi) General, speaker of the Six Nations Council.

In part he says: "The government desires to promote your interests, to inquire fully and freely into all your claims, to deal justly with your people, but does not feel that it would be justified in submitting any question with reference to the administration of your affairs or the affairs of any other tribe of Indians in Canada to any arbitration or tribunal outside the country. The government is certain that the Canadian Parliament, Canadian courts and other Canadian tribunals, properly and legally constituted, are the only proper tribunals to which the claims of British subjects both Indian and non-Indian residing in Canada can be referred and dealt with."

"The government is yet willing to have this question of status referred to the proposed commission of three judges of the Supreme Court of Ontario."

REPORT GIRL DEMENTED FROM SHOCK OF ACCIDENT
Responsible for Motor Smash, Brant Township Girl Believed Insane.

Special to London Advertiser.
CARGILL, Oct. 2.—A young girl of Brant Township, near here, who figured in a motor accident in Brant about six weeks ago, when a Kitchener car collided with a car driven by her, is reported to have become violently insane as a result of the shock sustained at the time of the mishap.

The Brant girl and her mother, who were the only occupants of the car, were thrown out and had a narrow escape from being killed. Both were high-powered motor cars and were badly damaged.

The Kitchener autoist, it seems, had the right-of-way, with the result that the girl's father had to pay a considerable amount of money to repair both cars. This preyed on her mind so much, along with the shock, that she is reported to have went insane a few days ago.

MATERIAL AID FROM INDIA TO TURKS IMPROBABLE

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Notwithstanding the keenest interest is being taken in the Near East situation throughout India, the political situation is easier, says a Reuters cable from Simla, India. This applies even to Punjab, which is a predominantly Moslem province.

Punjab would undoubtedly sympathize with the Turks if hostilities broke out, but that sympathy would not likely be translated into action.

The recent manifestations of communal bitterness between Hindus and Mohammedans, although acute, were not directed against the government, and are not likely in the future to assume dimensions beyond the control of armed forces.

POSTAGE STAMP SALES FOR YEAR $28,350,000

More Than 500,000,000 Letters Mailed in Twelve Months in Canada.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2.—(By Canadian Press.)—More than 500,000,000 letters and postcards and some 350,000,000 newspapers are carried through the Canadian mails in the course of a year's business, according to figures presented by the postoffice department to the conference of postal officials today. In addition, 50,000,000 parcels and 250,000,000 circulars, etc., are handled.

The statement, giving approximate figures for a year's business, showed that in the course of twelve months 10,000,000 money orders and 6,000,000 postal notes are issued. There are 12,200 postoffices operated and 12,400 mail routes.

The summary of a year's business was given to the postal officials as indicative of the place of the postoffice in the business life of the Dominion. Translated into dollars, the mail service expenditure for a year was stated to be $15,000,000 and the annual cost of rural delivery service $2,750,000.

Postage stamp sales in the course of a year, it was pointed out, reach the enormous total of $28,350,000, while money-order transactions amounted to the changing hands of $270,000,000. Postal note transactions totaled $25,000,000, and there was on deposit in postoffice savings banks approximately $25,000,000.

Invariably the first thought that comes to the mind of one who has lost an heirloom, a valuable jewel or some article prized for its associations, or as a keepsake, is a Want Ad.

CANADA'S PART AGAINST TURK IS QUESTIONED

Methodist General Conference Divided on Backing Britain If War Declared.

LIVELY DEBATE ENSUES

Shelve Resolution Pledging Methodist Support in Probable Holy War.

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—The Methodist general conference launched into a vigorous debate this forenoon on the part Canada was to play should Britain war with the Turks. It was interjected into the proceedings when a delegate insisted that owing to the Near East situation being critical, the report of the committee named to draft a resolution should have right-of-way to present it at once. The resolution expressing the wish that the honorable solution of the question could be peacefully arrived at, and devotion to the British Empire concluded as follows: "If in spite of every honorable effort to discover a peaceful solution this result cannot be obtained, we beg to assure the British, Canadian and Newfoundland and Bermuda governments that the Methodist people of the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland and the Bermudas, as in the late war, will be prepared to make any sacrifice in the interests of liberty and justice."

As the debate which sprang up when this was read indicated a long duration, the resolution was finally referred back to the committee until there was time to discuss it. Pledged Too Much. However, before the decision to leave it over was accepted, requests that it be passed without discussion were urged on the one hand, and that it pledged the church to too much and should be toned down, on the other hand. One delegate urged that the resolution pledged the Methodists if need be to go to war with the Turks.

APPEALS FOR PEACE.
TORONTO, Oct. 2.—At mass meetings tonight held under the auspices of the Methodist general conference great audiences which crowded Massey Hall and Metropolitan Church heard appeals to the Christian forces of Canada to get behind the League of Nations by signing a public opinion in this country that would zealously support the league. One of the speakers was Sir Robert Borden, who in a closely-knit and carefully-reasoned speech, contradicted the assertion that the league has not accomplished anything. He said he believed it had accomplished more towards maintaining peace during the less than three years of its existence than had been accomplished in any previous ten years by all the chancelleries in the world. He warned that should another world war break out it would be more terrible, more destructive than the one just passed, and impressed on his hearers the individual responsibility to work towards peace and goodwill among the nations.

Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell, the other principal speaker, emphasized that the present crisis in the Near East was not due to any failure of the League of Nations. "If there is a failure, the failure is on the part of the old type of diplomacy as represented by the supreme council," he endorsed Britain's stand that the Dardanelles should be kept open to the ships of all nations under all flags at all times and placed much of the blame for the present situation for failure of the allied powers to agree among themselves with regard to Turkey, until after the Kemal Pasha movement had got under way. Mr. Rowell's address aroused great enthusiasm.

The speeches were delivered at both meetings. The massed choirs of the Methodist Churches of the city took part at Massey Hall, and another large choir, assisted at the Metropolitan. There were over 13,000 tickets of admission to the two meetings applied for, the committee in charge announced.

The children of Canada should be taught through the schools and Sunday schools, Sir Robert Borden said, that upon them will some day rest the responsibility of the peace of the world.

"A wide outlook is necessary. Every nation sits today at the threshold of every other nation and in a certain sense every nation is the keeper of every other nation." He hoped that Canadian people would show the same enthusiasm in promoting peace as they had so nobly shown in helping to win the war. "Is it not worth while," he asked, "when you consider the great sacrifices you made and the thousands of Canadians who sleep beyond the seas, to throw the same earnestness and ardor into your efforts to prevent such a war from coming again?"

ARTHUR MAN SERIOUSLY INJURED ON HIGHWAY
HARRISTON, Oct. 2.—Peter Pringlemeier of Arthur was a victim of an accident which will confine him to his bed for some days and which narrowly escaped being fatal. He was one of a number of men at work on the Owen Sound-Hamilton Highway, a few miles north of Arthur, putting in posts for the new wire fence which the Department of Highways is erecting on both sides of the road from Arthur to Mount Forest.

They were putting a large anchor post in, and as it was being swung into the hole it caught and swung over, striking Mr. Pringlemeier full on the chest, breaking his breast bone.

Rules Greeks
ATHENS, Oct. 2.—Former Crown Prince George, who has acceded to the Greek throne following the abdication of King Constantine, says he will make every effort to hold Thrace in Greek hands.

over the Dardanelles question. It was claimed the conference had not authority to make such pledge. Others said: "If we can't speak for the Methodists of Canada, who can?" "You are pledging the Methodist Church almost to a religious war," said George Bell of Victoria, B. C., and questioned the advisability of such an action.

Britain deliberately closed the Dardanelles," said Rev. G. W. McCall of Brockville. "As I understand it, this is not a question of protecting the liberties of Christians in Asia Minor at all. It is merely political, a question of reopening the Dardanelles. I am not ready to lay down the life of my boy to keep the Dardanelles opened or closed."

Predicts Religious War.
"If Britain goes to war with Turkey it will be a religious war," said Rev. Charles D. Baldwin of Sharbot Lake. "The Turks will make it a religious war, and will do their utmost to break the Christian religion, hip and thigh. We might put in the resolution that the Methodists would do their duty. If the Methodists believe it their duty to be in this war they will be there. Who can speak for the Methodists if we can't?"

Rev. Mr. Dean outlined the givings of the Methodists during the past quadrennium, totalling over $37,000,000 for all phases of the work. Increase in church membership was also referred to.

Stratford Man Is Back From Africa
Mineral Expert Returns To Native City From Dark Continent Mines.

Special to London Advertiser.
STRATFORD, Oct. 2.—Robert Delafrairie has returned to the city from Katanga, South Africa, where he had been in the employ of the Union Miniere Dupont Company as a mineral and metallurgical expert. He was recalled to the home office in New York on account of a change in the management of the mine. Mr. Delafrairie declared this morning that conditions in Africa were generally very bad. Malaria, typhoid fever and blackwater are prevalent.

The great difficulty encountered in the treating of typhoid is on account of the scarcity of ice. Everything is very expensive in Africa. Board costs $75 and up per month. A light two-piece flannel suit costs $35. Automobiles are almost prohibitive in price. A Ford costing in the neighborhood of $1,500 in Canadian money. Another difficulty that the company has to overcome is that everything used

Plowmen's Association of Arthur Obtains Trophies For Competition
Special to London Advertiser.
HARRISTON, Oct. 2.—Luck seems to be with the Arthur Plowmen's Association this year in respect to securing trophies for their annual plowing match. Yesterday they received word from Robert McArthur, M.P.P., that he was willing to donate a cup, and his offer was accepted.

The cup will be competed for annually, and will be held after each match by the winner for one year, and his name will be engraved thereon. The cup will be competed for by local men in seed or stubble. This should prove an interesting additional feature to the plowing match.

The Arthur Board of Trade donated a cup under similar conditions to boys under 20. As further cups and cash prizes are expected, no effort is being spared on the part of the plowmen's association to make this year's match a really big event.

In the camp has to be transported over 2,500 miles of railroad. Marking the opening of Fire Prevention Week, Fire Chief Kappelle and members of the city council visited the city schools today and spoke to the children on "Prevention." The method of sending in a fire alarm was demonstrated.

The vital statistics for the month of September show that there were 26 births, 16 marriages and 11 deaths. During the month building in Stratford was undertaken to a valuation of $13,040. The total valuation so far this year is $660,346, the largest amount for fourteen years for a corresponding period. Twenty-four plumbing and drainage permits were granted.

The customs report was $58,152.73.

In Chatty Vein... By Their Handles
—ye shall know them, the new Umbrellas —for they have very clubby, friendly-looking handles of bakelite, amber or lacquer, and the silk that is in them might be reseda green, Akbar, a deep red, or Malay brown.

If a Wise Monarch
—fell from favor and a throne, he would be careful and kind when he was restored. And Corsets must be wise, too, for they're not as rigid as in other days, but are little more than girdles, sometimes made of silk elastic; then, again, of batiste; and all have a very low bust and long, slim hips.

Just Because
—you wear a Draped Turban you needn't think that you must go to a mountain, as Mahomet did. But you could go anywhere at all, smartly and safely; for dagger and scimitar motifs are often used as adornments on Turbans of velvet, hatter's plush or faille silk. And the colors you're apt to see are browns, golden, copper or seal; and greens, such as reseda, sea-green or almond.

The World Is So Full
—of a number of things, and so many important ones must go into a Handbag, it's no more than right to want a very nice one. And tremendously nice are these bags of very smart moire in shapes galore with marcesite trimmings.

It Would Never Do
—to be a bit behind the times, think Undergarments, as they promptly decide to be influenced by peasant ideas, and to own pleats, panels and drapes very much like the new Frocks. So a Costume Slip might have all-over embroidery or a Crepe de Chine gown possess jabot-like frills for sleeves.

There's Egypt
—in your dreamy eyes—might be a very acceptable statement to hear about oneself. But if it can't be said that there's Egypt some place in the new Fall Costume, there is a very important note missing, for an Egyptian mood is in the mode—in colors, in fabrics, and even in jewelry.

Putting It Over
—skirts is a favorite habit of the charming new Fall Blouses, for most of them are overblouses. They have been influenced by a red Russian stitching often appears on their borders. All in all, they're apt to be most flamboyant and gay, reflecting bright ideas from Persia and Egypt.

Browns, Browns, Everywhere
—and not a one but pleases. That's the status of the Browns for Autumn. They run a gamut from muffin, tiffin, and bobolink, which are beige and bisque tones to bright golden pheasant and copper-rose, and thence to the dark shades of seal and congo.

Shine-Little Evening Gown—Glimmer
One would think that Evening Gowns were obeying some such order, for they surely gleam and glisten. In lame cloths, gold and silver, in Chausse Souris velvets and beaded chiffons they wear their drapes, flounces and lengths of hemline with grace and distinction.

Little Miss Netticoat
—for all her important connections with Petticoats would no doubt be thoroughly entranced, with these of silk. In ruffles, Crepe de Chine and Georgette, tucked, pleated and flounced, they are perfect companions for the newest Frocks. They are, as it were, Petticoats of distinction.

JUDGE DISMISSES TWO LIBEL SUITS
Actions Against Firmers' Sun Thrown Out by Chief Justice Meredith.

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—Acting for the publishers of the Famous Sun, Gordon Waldron, K. C., this morning secured an order from Chief Justice Meredith at Osgoode Hall dismissing the long-standing actions brought by J. D. Chaplin, M. P., and Edmund Beitel, K. C., against that publication for damages for alleged libel. The plaintiffs in the actions were not represented. The order is not to issue until Friday next to enable the plaintiffs to oppose the motion should they see fit.

Mr. Waldron's motion was to dismiss the actions for failure to serve the statutory notice upon the defendants.

The alleged libel complained of was on comments in the Sun on the Rumanian loan. It was declared that Rumania and Greece were indebted to Canada to the extent of $23,000,000, and that advances were arranged, and that companies with which eight members of parliament were connected received payment for $1,200,000 worth of goods.
