The Attacks of the "Times" Upon Darkest England" Result in a Suit for Libel.

The Scotch Railway Strikes Ventilated in the House of Commons by a Gladstonian.

Parnell Received a Very Cool Reception at the Opening of Par-liament Yesterday.

THE WEST HARTLEPOOL ELECTION. LONDON, Jan. 22.—It became known, to day, that on the result of the Hartlepool election depended whether Gladstone would continue as leader of the Liberal party. This was a fact known to Morley, Harcourt and a few others, but carefully kept secret, and file of the party. This was one reason why the Liberals made the Hartlepool contest a national affair, and the leaders devoted themselves to the canvass with as much energy as if a general election was at stake, in striking contrast to the Hartlepool contest and the canvass with as much energy as if a general election was at stake, in striking contrast to the Hartlepool contest and the general election was at stake, in striking contrast to the Hartlepool contest and the general election was at stake, in striking contrast to the Hartlepool contest a national affair, and the leaders devoted themselves to the canvass with as much energy as if a general election was at stake, in striking contrast to the Hartlepool contest a national affair, and the leaders devoted themselves to the canvass with as much energy as if a general election was at stake. stake, in striking contrast to the Unionists, who left their candidate to work out his own salvation, so that they might claim in the event of defeat, that they had never expected a victory. Gladstone had intended to remain for some days at Hawarden, but will now appear in the House of Commons,

THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

The opening of parliament to-day was strikingly evident of the change which had been made in the fortunes of the Liberal party. The Liberals came in flushed with success, and without the cloud that, for weeks, had rested on the faces of the most courageous of them, while the Tories and discontented Liberals were deeply and manifestly downcast. Parnell was entirely ignored by his former Liberal friends as he entered the House, while Justin McCarthy's followers were received with hearty greetings. The Tories also failed to notice Parnell, who, however, seemed not to be moved by the change from the time when men, irrespective of party, sought his recognition.

DISCONTENTED AND DESPERATE MEN.

Although the Scottish railway strike is over, as far as any delay to the business of the companies is concerned, it is not over as to the strikers. It has left in several Scottish eities, and especially Glasgow, a throng of discontented and desperate men, who may at any time break out into some striking act of lawlessness. There is no more dangerous mob than a Scottish mob, as the history of Scotland has shown. It is slow to begin, but sudden and resolute in action. THE TIMES' ATTACK ON DARKEST ENGLAND.

LOYDON, Jan. 23.—The prolonged attacks of the Times on General Booth and his "Darkest England" scheme have at last resulted in a libel suit, proceedings having been instituted against the Times for saying that Bramwell Booth had admitted making a false statement. THE SCOTCH STRIKE.

Scotch strike made its appearance in the House of Commons to-day. F. A. Channing, Gladstonian, moved that the excessive hours of railway servants were a grave injustice to the men and a constant source of danger to the public, and that the Board of Trade be directed to direct a limitation of the hours. Mr. Howarth, Conservative, suggested the appointment of a local commission to enquire into this and other labor questions. In answer to a question. Sir

THE RATIONAL OVERTIME OURSTION. The RAILWAY OVERTIME QUESTION.

The labor advocates in Great Britain are rejoiced at the aspect of the debate in the House of Commons on the railway overtime question. The labor organizations are working hard to defeat the government's plan for an official inquiry into the overtime and other grievances of the railway men, as they consider it merely a device to shelve the whole question, such inquiries seldom having proved of any benefit.

Victoria has for the past few days had as a visitor one of the wealthiest men of Milwaukee, a gentleman, who after making a name and considerable money for himself in the brewing of Milwaukee lager on a large scale, recently sold his business interests, and came west.

He has been carefully looking over the Sound cities, and yesterday was pricing Victoria real estate, and obtaining all necessary information, as a preliminary to the establishment of a big brewery in this city. He was the guest for some time of U.S. Consul Myers, and that gentleman did not let slip the opportunity of speaking a good word for Victoria.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE. First Session of the Sixth Parliament.

FOURTH DAY. THURSDAY, Jan. 22, 1891. After prayers by the Rev. A. Bean-MR. GRANT

resumed the adjourned debate on Dr. Milne's amendment to the address. He said the subject matter of the amendment had been pretty well thrashed out last session. The premier had, yester-day, stated that the Act was to be amend-ed, but he had failed to state ed, but he had failed to state in what money bags, he said the result was due to particular; and he did himself and his the strong feeling of the electron in favor Government an injustice by not stating of the government, and that the junior that the objectionable clause was to be member had only secured election by eliminated from the bill when so amended., It was because the Premier had not taken the House into his confidence that the amendment was before the House. He contended that the Government had had contended that the Government had had no intention of amending the law, but had finally come to the conclusion that the demands of the Opposition, in this particular, must be acceded to. Referring to the grant of land to the Kootenay and Columbia railway, he contended that, to-day the 200 000 ages grant, were worth day, the 200,000 acre grant were worth

And we accept with satisfaction the assurance that the result of their labors will be laid before us at an early date, in order that we may enact such legislation as may be calculated to promote the development of our great mineral wealth." He said it calculated to promote the development of our great mineral wealth." He said it was not to be supposed that the Government would stultify themselves and the commission by not taking action upon their recommendations. He contended that it was the duty of the Government to wait for the report of the 89,878 55

The Government was determined, if possible, to do away with that ment had no stability, except that of holding on to power, and for this object were prepared to assume any attitude. They retained position by the exercise of naturance along the months to do business that should have been disposed off in less than two course in regard to a variety of matters, and claimed that while the Government and claimed that while the Government had been accustomed to condemn the reforms proposed by the Opposition, they subsequently took them bodily and subsequently took them bodily and adopted that there was great danger in placing the power of the House in the hands of a large committee.

on a point of order, raised the point that the resolution did not agree with that the resolution did not agree with the rules and orders of the House.

The Opposition, they say their own. The Opposition, they subsequently took them bodily and the power of the House in the hands of a large committee. 8,002 / adopted them as their own. The Oppo-sition had, in this case, acted in a constiside them as their own. The Opposition had, in this case, acted in a constitutional manner by proposing the m tion of censure now before the House, rather than, as had been suggested, put their hands in their pockets and taken the matter to the courts, which was not incumbent on them. The members of the House were above the ceurts; they passed the acts, and it was for them to deal with them. He censured the Government for having called the House together on the fifteenth of January and then adjourning it to the 19th. It was they who had wasted the time of the House, and yet they sought to cast blame on the Opposition on this account. Had they given proper notice to their friends of the meating of the House there would at the sum of the House there would at the sum of the House in any other way.

HON. MR. ROBSON

In presenting his motint to the House the hon. leader of the Opposition remarked that the cry all over the world was for shorter hours of labor. the world was for shorter hours of labor. The eight-hour day for the workingman was generally recognized in Australia, where it was found to be of great benefit to society. "Shorter hours of labor" was a great step in the direction of moral reform and better observance of the Sabbath, and he thought that the adopof the principle embodied in his resolution was a step in the right direction, but too radical, too sudden, and too long a step to be taken now. He did think the public would yet justify the atipulation that eight hours be made a days labor on contract work. He did not been found in Australia to be the result of paying good Ald, F. G. on the resolution. There were other lessons taught by the labor question in Australia than had been quoted by the hon, member for Victoria city. The Australian strikes showed how the organized laboring men were domineering over their fellows, and the ranks there were crowded. High wages and short hours dilled the army of wage-earners, and discouraged men from branching out for themselves in business. For several weeks past the police have been quietly working upon a big robbery case, the value of the property missing being somewhere between $1,500 and $2,000. being somewhere between $1,000 and $2,000.

The victim is a well known gentleman residing in the northern part of the province, and he had taken passage on the steamer Danube intending to go home by het. His wife accompanied him, and their most valuable possessions, including a collection of rare old coins to the number of 1,500, and well according to the statement of the state as well as a gold watch, diamond locket and other jewelry, were packed in a strong traveling valise, and handed to a man supposed to belong to the steamer for safe-keeping, while the boat was at the wharf here.

When the owner of the valise enquired for it on board, it could not be found, and although Supt. Sheppard was at once communicated with, no trace of the thief or the stolen property has yet been discovered. It was reported that some of the jewellery was sold on the Indian reserve a few days ago, but nothing can be obtained in sub-stantiation of the rumor. The owner of the valise mourns most the loss of his collection of rare coins, which he had spent years in

In 1878 he returned to Paris. For a time he kept up communication with the friends he had made in the United States, but gradually his communications became fewer and fewer, until he was no longer heard of. For some time past the fre-quenters of the National library have noticed a thin, gaunt gray-haired old man, attired in thread-bare clothing, who visited the institution daily and spent from eight to twelve hours, reading the newspapers, and illustrated periodicals. He bought a frugal lunch wrapped in a piece of paper, and to all outward appearance was a man who, while living in the depths of poverty, was anxious to make that poverty as genteel as possible. One day last week when leaving the institution he fell exhausted in the street, apparently overcome with weakness. He was able gasp out the name of the street and the number of the house where he lived, and thither to a miserable room in a still more miserable tenement he was carried.

Sisters of Mercy were summoned, and his first demand upon them, on being re-suscitated, was for the few cents which he had in his clothing. Although the wea-ther was extremely cold, he had no fire in his room, nor was there even a stove, upon which to cook his meals. Inquiries of the neighbors developed the fact that it was the custom every morning to beg a small quantity of water. In this he placed an egg and a little bottle of milk, when the chill had been taken off the articles he breakfasted, the whole involving the modest expense of one and a half cents. Thus fortified, he passed his days at the library, and at night took a meagre repast at a restaurant of the very lowest class. He washed his own linen, borrowing the soap for the purpose. Priva-tions had more than aged him, for he had the appearance of a man who had reached Queen Elizabeth of Roumania, Carmen Sylva, received in her salon at NEW YORK, Jan. 20 .- A Paris cable the Hotel Imperial in Vienna recently, says: A millionaire, who years ago was well known in New York society, died yesterday in a miserable furnished garret brought out soon. After all the guests on the fourth floor of a tenement in the Rue Vivienne, where, for several years, little table beside the Archduchess he had managed to exist in order to Maria Theresa and read the manuescape payment of taxes. His name was Alphouse Meliere. Sixty years ago he was a tragedy in five acts. The Alphouse Meliere. Sixty years ago he plot of the tragedy conforms with the outlines of a Roumanian legend. Manolly, a master architect, is building a great cathedral. Midway in his work he becomes embarrassed by lack of By judicious management and investment he gradually increased this to fully a miltion. For a time he lived high and the best of everything to be obtained was none too good for him. Back in the latter part of the sixties he visited the United States, and was for a long time a resident of New York city. Here he was resident of New York city. Here he was received into the best surjety and as his money. Moreover, every morning he finds a bit of the work done on the prethe entombment of a living human being within its walls. The prevalence ductive in the matter of interest he was of this superstition is due to the efforts enabled to spend money like water. The head waiter at Delmonico's, who has occupied that position for a quarter of a century, remembers him well, and has promises to give money and influence if she will consent to be his. She at first refuses, with every expression of horror, his proposal, but is finally persnaded that her husband cares mo material success than for her; that she would serve him best by following the Prince's suggestion, and so promises to become the Prince's mistress on the day the cathedral shall be finished.

She has hardly given her word whe Manolly, dagger in hand, springs into her presence. His enemies have told him she is with the Prince. The Princess, however, persuades him that his wife has done no wrong—a woman shows mercy to her rival. The compact between the Prince and Manolly's wife still holds. The Prince tries to help along the building of the cathedral Still the work lags. In despair Manolly one day promises the workmen to en-tomb alive in the cellar the first person who appears before the un-finished cathedral the next morning. He goes to the cathedral early the nex day. His wife follows him. As he turns and sees her the crisis of the action comes. He begs her in vain to retrace her steps. She goes to him. He leads her to a small, half-closed stone cell in the cellar, pushes her in and makes whole the wall with his own hands. The cathedral is completed. On the day of the consecration Manolly ascends the tower to admire its beauties. His dead wife's spirit appears to him; he throws himself from the window and is killed.

The last act of "Master Manolly" has not yet been committed to writing, but the Queen sketched it at length from memory of the details she had already decided to incorporate in it. She spoke and read for three hours in a sm clear, penetrating voice, without showing the slightest fatigue. Alaska Souvenirs.

The French newspapers report that Mr. Cotteau, who has been on a pleasure trip to Alaska this year, thinks the coast towns of that country are not at all behind fashionable watering-places in the number of souvenirs the natives offer to the confiding tourist. He says the Thlinket Indians of Wrangell spend much time watching for the steamer, and when they see its smoke in the distance they at once convert their houses into shops, where both the women and the men offer for sale all sorts of curiosities that they have manufactured to coax nickels out of the pockets of travelers.

The Oldest Painting. The most ancient painting of which the author is known and date ascertained is a portrait of Henry VIII. as a child, with his young brother Arthur and his sister Margaret. This was done by Jan Gossaert, called Ma-buse. One of several copies, bearing date 1495, is in the gallery at Hampton Court. This celebrated artist received the name of Jan de Mabuse, from its being his birthplace; he lived from 1470 to 1532, and was court painter to Henry VII. of England.

Recently a Brooklynite was sitting on the piazza of the biggest of the Hudson river hotels, not so many miles from West Point, says the Brooklyn Eagle. The Brooklynite was the descendant of a very old New York family which had transferred its lares and penates to this city early in the century. Stopping at the big hotel were members of the families of the Rhinelanders, the Gallatins, the Stewarts, the Gerrys, the Stuyve-sants, the DePuysters, the Clintons, and several others of the best-known names in New York. A group was formed of a half-dozen of the New York blue bloods and the Brooklynite. One of the party spoke of a literary treasure, if it might be so called, which he had a few days before picked up in an old bookstall down-town. The treasure was a directory of New York City printed a

It is no discredit, indeed, that such should be the fact. The country was new a century and odd years ago and New York was not so very much more than a village. But it is strange how quickly the blood of aristocracy gets so very, very blue.

How Little Abe Acquired a Knowledge

he was about seven years of age. His father had gever received any "book among such people, and it was with dif-ficulty that he could write his own name. One day, about four weeks after Abe had been sent to school, his father asked the teacher: "How's Abe getting along?" The teacher replied that he was doing well; he wouldn't ask to have a better boy. He had only one lesson book, an old spelling-book. During the school hours he was attentive to his task, and at night he would study over the lesson he had been engaged upon during the day; the highest ambition of his life at this time was to learn to read. He believed if he could only read as well as his mother, who read the Bible aloud to the family every day. the whole world of knowledge would be opened to him, and in this conjecture he was about right. His mother happened to put it on a cer-tain shelf, and, the rain coming through the roof, the book was badly damaged. Abe took it back to the school-master and arranged to purchase it of him, paying for it by three days' hard work in the corn-field; and he was entirely satisfied with the bargain at that. At the age of eighteen his library consisted of the Life of Franklin, Plutarch's Lives, the Bible, the spelling-book, Æsop's Fables, Pilgrim's Progress, and the lives of Washington and Henry Clay. A boy might have a much larger privat library than this, but he could scarcely find an equal number of books better ealculated to impart wholsome lessons as to correct living and right thinking

THE DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS.

The usage for some time past in Great Britain and her Colonies is to allow the address to be carried with as little delay as possible. There is a good reason for this. All the subjects that are alluded to in the Speech will be fully dealt with annoy the Government has worked so as at some period during the session, and to to expose their own weakness and insiganticipate the discussion which is then sure to take place is nothing more than a The Independents, in this the first trial waste of time. In order that this practice can be followed by the Opposition, the Government is careful not to allow anything that is really debatable to appear in the Speech. The Speeches from the Throne have, therefore, of late years contained little more than general, and often vague, statements as to the state of the country and it is not surprising that all their and the public finances, and announcements of the measures which the Government intend to bring down, and the addresses in reply have been merely was the small device of small-minded echoes of the speech. A GROUNDLESS CLAIM.

The Times excuses itself for making the false statement it did with respect when Dr. Milne moved the amendment to the address, by stating that it derived its information from a member of the Independent Party. This is no excuse. A journalist who understands his busi ness would not dream of depending upon an outsider in a matter of that kind The Times had its representatives in the gallery, and they could, with very little trouble, have found out how parties tood.

We see that the News-Advertiser, both in its report and its editorial column, makes the same false statement, and this, too, on two consecutive days when there was plenty of time to correct the mistake, if the statement, had been made insolver tently and without an intention to deceive. In order to show the public that we are not mistaken, we will do what neither the Times nor the News-Adver tiser has had the candor nor the honesty to do-give the names. If the Inde pendents and the Opposition had united o vote for Dr. Milne's amendment the division would have stood :

But the poor fellows were not allowed their clothes, for they were covered with ante away or eaten up.

Then the men were attacked by sickness. The low diet weakened them and made them an easy prey to fever, and ulcers broke out on them. A large proportion of the men died before Stanley came back. But it is pleasant to see how cheerfully Stairs and his companions bore their sufferings. They even had their amusements during that wearisome time ; jokes were cracked and they laughed heartily at each other's blunders and mishaps. Smoking was their great solace. They grew their own tobacco, and they were enraged when the predatory natives lessened the supply of their only remaining luxury. It is evident that the heroic young Nova Scotian was a considerate and a humane, as well as a plucky, commander. There is no hint of such cruelties as were committed by the man in command of the rear guard, but there are indications that Stairs sympathised with his men, and that the discipline under him was as mild as was consistent with the safety and the welfare of the garrison. The simple way in which the story is told and the almost boyish frankness of the narrator, make the paper, notwithstanding the painfulness of the subject, a very interesting one.

The Ancient Mud Palace of Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Extensive Repairs Being Made on the Queer O d Official Structure by the National Government

The sound of the hammer, the saw. and the trowel makes a merry echo song in and about the historic adobe palace, says the Santa Fe New Mexican. The tional Government has supplied the funds, and Secretary Thomas has let the contract for $3,000 worth of improvements, or more properly speaking, repairs, of this ancient official edifice, so full of interest to all tourists and sighters who visit Santa Fe.

The Governor's palace is in much the same condition as last year, except that the additional lapse of time has made the need of repairs more pressing. The Secretary of the Territory, who is its custodian, has obtained an appropriation of $3,000 from Congress for the pur pose, and while this sum is considerably less than that which he estimated to be necessary, yet it will do much to preserve this interesting historic edifice fair condition.

Without disparaging the importance of any of the cherished historical localities of the East, it may be truthfully said that this ancient palace surpasses in historic interest and value any other place or object in the United States. It antedates the settlement of Jamestown by nine years, and that of Plymouth by twenty-two, and has stood during the two hundred and ninety-two years since its erection, not as a cold rock or monument with no claim upon the interest of humanity except the bare fact of its continued existence, but as the living center of every thing of historical importance in the Southwest. Through all that long period, whether under Spanish, Pueblo, Mexican or American control, it has been the seat of power and authority. Secretary of the Interior Governor Prince took occasion to present some highly interesting data relative to this structure. He states that from here Onate started in 1599 on his adventurous expedition to the eastern plains; here, seven years later, eight hundred Indians came from far-off Quivira to ask aid in their war with Axiaos; from here, in 1618, Vicente de Saldiva set forth to the Moqui country only to be turned back by reports of the giants to be en-countered; from here Penelosa and his brilliant troop started March 8, 1662, on their marvelous expedition to the Missouri; in one of its strong rooms the Commissioner-General of the Inquisition was imprisoned a few years later by the same Penelosa; within its walls, fortified as for a siege, the bravest of the Spaniards were massed in their revolution of 1680; here, on the 19th of August of that year, was given the order to execute forty-seven Pueblo prisoners in the plaza which faces the building; here, a day later, was the sad war council held which determined on the evacuation of the city; here was the scene of triumph of the Pueblo chieftains as they ordered the destruction of the Spanish archives and the church ornaments in one grand conflagration; here De Vargas, September 14, 1692, after the eleven hours' combat the preceding day, gave thanks to the Virgin Mary, to whose aid he attrib uted his triumphant capture of the city; here, more than a century later, March 1807, Lieutenant Pike was brought before Governor Alencaster as an invader of Spanish soil; here, in 1822, the Mexican standard, with its eagle and cactus, was raised in token that New Mexico was no longer a dependency of Spain; from here, the 6th of August, 1837. Governor Perez started to subdue the insurrection in the North, only to return three days later to meet his death, the 9th, near Agua Fria; here, the succeeding day, Jose Gonzales, a Pueblo Indian of Taos, was installed as Governor of New Mexico, soon after to be executed by order of Armijo; here in the principal reception-room, August 12, 1846, Captain Cooke, the American envoy, was received by Governor Armijo and sent back with a message of defiance; and here, five days later, General Kearney formally took possession of the city, and slept after his long and weary march on the carpeted earthen floor of

A new illusion is reported from the Alhambra, London. In the center of the stage, hanging from four bars, is a board which may be examined by the audience. A man is securely fastened to this board with padlocks around the arms, legs and neck, making it impos sible for him to move. A curtain is then placed around the man, but which only reaches to the board, thus leaving it open below, so that the audience may see beneath the board during the whole of the performance. At the report of a pistol the curtains are opened, and in the place of the man is a woman fastened to the board by the same padlocks, the man appearing at the same instant in the midst of the audience. The change is made in less than thirty seconds, the stage being in full light all the time.

Don't Like Beer. When a Chinaman arrives in this country there is nothing he loaths more than the taste of beer: but, with the determination to become "allee samee Mel ican man," the Chinamen of New York re seeking to Americanize themselves by quaffing the foaming lager. It is a terrible cross, however, to the most of them; they do not drink it by the glass but buy a quart, which suffices for a big

A Thin Timepiece. A German watch that is on exhibi-tion in a Pittsburgh window is probably the thinnest timepiece in the world. It not more than an eighth of an inch thick, and the works themselves seem no thicker than cardboard.

CHANGES IN MEN'S DRESS.

How Time Affects the Wearing Apparels of the Sterner sex.

The question of knee-breeches and buckles is again agitating the masculine mind, and if it had not been for the determination to snub Oscar Wilde, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, who knows but that our men would have been launched in knickerbockers and silken hose ere now. A New York tailor de-clares that the past season has been the most significant one in fifty years, so far as the fashion of men's wardrobes is concerned, because it showed that the old-time and all-sufficient dress suit was losing its hold. The men have grown restive under the severe and rigid dresssuit rules of former years; they have fairly rebelled against the waiter-like simplicity which has bound them as in a vail; they are moving toward more elaborate costumes and they'll get there before long. Says this fashionable crit-ic: "Now that the dead-lock is broken it will only be a question of time when knee-breeches, buckled shoes and lace-ruffles come in." Lawn tennis and bicycling suits have shown how becoming knickerbockers are, and during the past few seasons these suits have been worn in the country, at the seaside and the watering places by men who were never-astride a wheel in their lives and who could not handle a racket if their salva-tion depended upon it. The minds of the men are set upon abbreviated trousers and the women favor them, so that

The changes in men's costume during the past few years have been very grad-ual, but noticeable. The first innova-tion was the satin collar or lapel for the tion was the satin collar or lapel for the evening coat and the low-cut waistcoat, then the white waistcoat, at first very simple and plain, but followed by the figured silks, sometimes of gaudy patterns and decorated with gold buttons, which often bore the monogram of the wearer. Some young bloods brought but the old waistcoats of their grandout the old waistcoats of their grandsires and found them quite en regie. Then came the plaited, stamped, em-broidered and ribbed shirt fronts, which were almost universal for evening wear, and a few have since shyly disported and a few have since shyly disported ruffles. The high, straight collar has been replaced by a rolling collar. The coat tails have been rounded off and made smaller and the coats have been drawn in at the waist like those of the eighteenth century. Then, too, some men are beginning to wear corsets, and the fact can scarcely be concealed. It wall known that many of them have broad expanse of shirt front, his low-cut waistcoat, his loosely-tied cravat, his-high-shouldered and tight-waisted coat-and his fine embroidered handkerchief

CURIOUS RELICS

Recent Discovery of an Indian Tomb Con-taining Many Strange Articles.

A discovery important to relic hunters has been made, says the Chicago Even-ing Journal, at Sandy Hook, in the east-ern part of Newton, Conn. It is the find-ing of several skeletons and a quantity of curious Indian relics which have laim undisturbed for more than two hundred years. Two woodcock hunters from years. Two woodcock hunters from:

Bridgeport, George Morgan and Thomas.
Vose, while crossing a small rise of ground half a mile above the rubbermills found an earthen jar the top of which was exposed on account of the recent heavy rains. Taylor has a dog which is crazy to hunt woodchucks, and he set the animal to digging by the side he set the animal to digging by the side of the jar. Morgan turned to and as-sisted, and it took half an hour for the two men and the dog to unearth the curious jar. It was a mammoth vessel and stood nearly three feet high. The the clay of a different color from the jar itself, which was a dark stone brown. Age had weakened he vessel, and the contents caused so reat a pressure that in a few moments t fell apart and exposed the entire with the head bent over and resting be-tween the knees. When the jar tumbled apart the dry gravel also fell away and left the bones almost entirely free from dirt. Although the skeleton was perfect, with the exception of the small bones which had crumbled away, the skull and vertebræ were too frail to bear handling and broke when taken in the hand.

The skull was undoubtedly that of an Indian woman who had been buried with honors. In the burial urn were several stone implements and a quanti-ty of shell beads which had probably been strung together. Under the pot was a peck or more of clam shells and arrow heads, all of which had been baked. The flint arrow points were always rendered useless by baking before being buried with the dead to prevent the graves being opened for plunder. Mr. Morgan suggested that further investigation be made, and the earth was lug away for quite a distance. Half a dozen axes and hammers were unearthed, and finally four more skeletons were found. These were not buried in urns, but rested in the same sitting posture, and the excavations which had been made for the bodies were partly filled. with burned shells and arrow heads.

A Co-Operative Farm.

A colony of about twenty-five families from the North, for the most part farmers, have recently secured about 3,000 acres of choice farm land in Cullman County, Ala., on which to locate a cooperative farm. It is to be organized as a joint stock company, with a capital stock of $200,000, limited to 200 shares. of $1,000 each. No person can purchase. own or control more or less than one share of the capital stock. The labor is to be performed by themselves and their families at stipulated wages, the profits to be distributed as dividends. They propose to introduce manufactures as soon as practicable, as they possess a tract of valuable timber as well as an inexpansuble supply of coal.

THE DISSOLUTION OF PARLIAMENT. LONDON, Jan. 26.—The rumours of an imminent dissolution of Parliament, which have been current the last few days, have led to inquiries being made at Conservative headquarters by many of the local organiza-tions. In each case the reply has been that the particular reports referred to were with-herself or Canada of the political and comdefinite assurance been forthcoming that definite assurance been forthcoming that such a step is not in contemplation by the Government. EQUATORIAL APRICA Whatever the general public may think of Henry M. Stanley's last expedition, it is clear that the British Colonial office does mot look upon it as having been a blessing.

The colonial officials are seriously embarraseed in their relations with Equatorial Africa, in consequence of the ill-feeling engendered in the minds of many of the native potentates. It has been the custom of the Colonial Office to give missionaries and per-Colonial Office to give missionaries and per-Colonial Office to give missionaries and persons engaged in commercial affairs, letters asking for safe conduct and protection in the name of Her Majesty, while travelling in the interior of Africa. This system has worked well until recently, and the Colonial office, acting upon intimitions received from British government representatives in Africa, has decided to suspend for the present the issue of any papers to travellers. If any Englishmen wish to go at the present time into Africa for commercial explorations, such as timber prospecting, or gold hunting, they will have to do so at their own risk

DEMANDING PARNELLS RETIREMENT.

There is, in a sense, a rebellion among the many McCarthyties against the dicta-torial way in which some of the English Liberal newspapers are demanding that Parnell be utterly erased from the Irish-cause. "There is no longer any pretext of morality," says John O'Connor, "in the attacks upon Parnell in the English Liberal press, they simply demand that the man who has dared to defy Gladstone shall be trumped out of political existence. That is all, and Irishmen can afford to be amused." THE HARTLEPOOL ELECTION.

The Unionists do not propose to according to the result of the Hartlepool election, and Sir Wm. Gray, the defeated candidate, is beside himself with rage and disappointment. He almost owns the town and is amazed that his workingmen should have dared to vote for another man. He is really a good employer, but his employees, being mostly Liberals, elected Furness on principal. It is now claimed that Furness The Unionists do not propose to accept seemed rather to welcome approaching death. The popular belief that his disease was one of the heart, finds corroboration in this. If the Prince had been permitted to follow his inclinations, and married a ple-beian, he would have been more than ever a popular idol, and Belgian royalty, like royalty generally, is badly in need of a popular idol at this time; but suicides, popular idol at this time; but suicides, sudden deaths and insanity appear to be no deterrents in the way of the Bourbon idea that royalty shall match only with members of royal houses. The finest specimen of physical manhood on a European throne is King Oscar, of Sweden, a descendant from ch plebean. Bernardotte. Oscar towers like a Gaul among other sovereigns, and his mental qualifications are sound, if not brilliant. A mention was made in Friday night's dispatches to the fatality which has overtaken all who were prominently connected with the invasion of Mexico.

The proposed deposition of the insane King of Bavaria in favor of his uncle and heir, the regent Luipold, meets with general approval in Germany. Otto is really a maniac. His favorite annusement is to stand at a window of his castle prison, under watch of an attendant, and shoot at asants, not pheasants, with a gun which supposed to be loaded with ball, but is supposed to be loaded with ball, but which, of course, is not. The peasants are kept under regular pay to be shot at. They come within gun-shot, the King fires, and at the sound they fall, pretending to be killed. This murderous man is addressed as "Your Majesty," and his attendants and visitors bow to him in the most submissive manner. Luipold, his uncle, has proved himself a statesman of capacity.

His death has aroused a feeling of satisfaction in England and efforts to get possession of "the pearl of the Pacific" are being renewed with greater vigor than ever. The sion or "the pearl of the Facilic" are being renewed with greater vigor than ever. The English are said to have on their side Col. C. Washford, who is virtually in command of the small military force of the kingdom, and who has expressed himself as advocat-ing the transfer of Hawaiian interests to Canadian control and the annulment of the American treaty, which still has two years to run. Meantime, the inspired British press carefully hold from any comments that might excite their American rivals to

EX-QUEEN NATALIE'S GRIEVANCE. While a woman has plunged Ireland deep trouble, a woman's folly and obstinacy is imperilling the royal dynasty of Servia. Queen Natalie, the divorced wife of ex. King Milan, has a grievance and obstinately refuses to reat quietly under it. Her grievance is that the divorce was obtained by the king without, the authority of law by the king without the authority of law or religion. She seems to have facts on her side, but Milan is powerful in Servia yet, and the young King Alexander takes the part of his father, and to set aside the be to create a troublesome crisis, both family and political. But nothing else will silence Natalie. The Czar has saubbed her, and the regents warned her, but all in vain. The consequence is that the dynasty is in serious danger. The other and rival family of Kanageorgeyitch have no public domestic skeletons and are agitating with some prospect of success to get back on the throne. Unless the domestic dispute in the ruling household is settled, the descendants of black George may yet rule over the land black George may yet rule over the land for which their ancestors did so much to ob-tain freedom from the Turkish yoke.

Railway Strikes in Indiana

HUNTINGTON, Jan. 22.—The strike on the Chicago & Erie road is about the same as it was yesterday. No trains are running between Marion and Chicago. Attempts were made last night to run two passenger trains, but both attempts were futile. A crowd of strikers A crowd of strikers boarded both trains, set the brakes, and stopped them. The engine and train were backed into the yard where they are now with four others. Over 300 passengers are detained here. The conductors and despatchers in conference, this morning, decided to make an offer of settlement to the effect that Despatcher Scott, who was discharged, shall be reinstated and given a chance to resign, and that all the men who chance to resign, and that all the men who are interested in the strike shall return to chance to resign, and that all the men who are interested in the strike shall return to work, and the company take no action against them. W. McGrew, president of the First National Bank, and Mayor Randolph were selected by the men to present their offer to the company, and they did so. The company has not yet given an answer.

STRIKES IN CHINA.

The Workmen Do Not Lose Very Much In China, as is well-known, things are topsy-turvy, and even workmen's strikes are different there from those in Western lands. Recently, says the London Times, a strike took place at the great arsenal at Klangnan, where about two thousand men are employed. It appears that the custom has always been eight hours' work per day since that estab-lishment was founded, over twenty years ago. The new director, considering this amount too little for the wages timated. Hence, on the morning when the new regulation was to commence, the steam was raised in the boilers, the whistle sounded, and the machinery was set in motion as usual, but not a workman dared to pass inside the gates to work. It looked at first as if this state of things might last for months, for both sides showed no symptoms of relenting. But things go by contraries in China. In the afternoon the workmen, seeing that they made no impres sion on the directors, who could easily

WESTMINSTER.

New Westminster, Jan. 26.—The murder at Chilliwhack turns out to be a most strocious and brutal affair. The body has not been fully identified, but is supposed to be that of a man named Cawlesy, a rancher on the Skagit trail. The post-mortem by Dr. Henderson revealed the fact that the skull was broken with a blunt instrument. Half the right foot had been amputated, and the great toe of the left foot. A rope was round the neck. Capt. Pittendrigh resume the inquest this afternoon, and the following verdict was returned: The deseased came by his, death from a blow in the head with a blunt instrument in the hands of some persons unknown, and a rope was placed round the neck and the body dragged to the river and sunk.

A Big Draught of Fishes A Big Braught of Fishes.

Owing to the large number of fish in the dry dock yesterday morning, the pumps were stopped three times. The fish consisted of herring, principally, of which there were over five tons altogether. Nothing could be done with them except to give them away, and it was not long until a large number of people were on the scene carrying then off. The harbor seems to be alive with fish, and it would be a splendid place for fishing if there was any demand.

The latest advices from Berlin, Germany, is that the lymph of Dr. Koch is selling at "$60 a drop." But one man besides Dr. Koch knows how to make it, Dr. Libbertz, and he has charge of the laboratory. It is reported that with present facilities 200 vials a day of 100 drops each, can be produced. Should all this be sold at the above price, Dr. Koch will soon be the richest man on the earth, as it would amount to $1,200,000 a day! Over 10,000 physicians at this writing are waiting in Berlin begging for only a few drops at any price to carry away with them.

The Water Pipe Contract and Its Condition A special meeting of the city council was held last night. There were present the Mayor in the chair, Ald. Hunter, Richards, Holland, Robertton, Munn, Smith and Coughlan, Commissioner Teague and Mr. Mohun.

Coughlan, Commissioner Teague and Mr. Mohun.

A communication was read from the Sewerage Committee, and Commission enclosing resolution already published, which recommended that the awarding of the contract for sewer pipes be referred back to the council as it was understood that the stipulation was, that all the pipes should be made in the city and the B.C. Terra Cotta Company, to whom it had been awarded, had declared to accede to that condition.

Mr. Teague said it had been the desire of the commissioners that the pipe be made in the city; but he was glad to see such a clause inserted, as, in the event of any breakdown in the new machinery of the B.C. Terra Cotta Co., the sewerage works would not be delayed by reason of a shortage in the supply of pipe.

Can any one tell how it is that the determination of the city council to carry out, to the letter, the building by-law, is not being acted upon? Contractors continue to occupy more than their third of the streets, and the temporary sidewalks and protecting fences are noticeably absent. Respect the Chair!

Yesterday afternoon, as is usually the case, the occupants of the gallery in the House made a shuffle to get out of their seats before the motion to adjourn had been put to the House, thereby interrupting the concluding proceedings. Mr. Speaker rose in his chair and severely rebuked those who in this manner showed so little respect for the House. He observed that it was a healthful and hopeful sign to see so many people taking an interest in the work of the House. He trusted, however, that they would keep their seats until the Speaker had left the chair and the proceedings had been regularly brought to an end.

Capt. Ferry Retaras.

Capt. George Ferry, who was summoned to Washington to sign certain documents in the case of the schooner W. P. Sayward against the Government of the United States returned from the American capital on Monday night. He has little new to itell; the press telegrams have conveyed about all the real news that is obtainable in regard to the Behring's Sea question. That the courts will award the damages asked by the Sayward, Dolphin, Ada, Grace and Anna Beck, he considers certain; and he is also sure that the British Government are determined to press the main questions at issue to a speedy conclusion. The American policy is one of delay; the British one of action. Prof. Elliott's report is generally discredited at Washington, and the knowing ones shrug their shoulders and laugh

At St. John's School-Miss Beeton is certainly deserving of all praise for the energetic manner in which she directed the concert given in St. John's school, last evening, to a satisfactory conclusion. The schoolroom was well filled, and the programme offered included music, both vocal and instrumental by the Misses Langley, Powell, Beeton, Mrs. Janion and Mr. Marvin, all well known and popular amateurs. Miss Beeton's recitations were given in her usual thoroughly finished style, and were well appreciated. Refreshments were served during the evening, which was one of pleasure throughout.

That Turkey.

The plot in "that turkey" case thickens. Both Mr. Smith and the lady in whose yard the bird was found, claim proprietorship. The lady says that she has had his turkey, ship for the past two years, and can prove it; Mr. Smith says he knows his own turkey when he sees it, and that is the bird. Pending the settlement of the question, the fowl is a prisoner at the city pe ice station, although no charge has been entered against him. The police decline to surrender the bird until the question of ownership is finally disposed of, and there is a possibility for an application for its release under the habeas corpus act. There is also a faint possibility of an action against the city for false imprisonment by the turkey.

Messrs. H. W. Frost and F. G. Saunders and Miss Lydia J. Kay, Miss M. Wilson, Miss Hanzlick, Miss Riggs, Miss Collier, and Miss Bee arrived at Vancouver on Monday en route to China by the SS. Abyssinia. These ladies and gentlemen are going out to China as missionaries under the auspices of the China Inland Mission, of London, Eng., and the Deaconesses Home in Toronto. They will land at Shanghai from which city they will proceed to the interior. Miss Kay has been out in China before, and is returning after a short leave of absence, Mr. Frost is the secretary and manager of the Mission in Northwest Canada, and is only going on a short trip, and will be back in about six months. On Sunday the missionaries held service on the rallway cars on the C P.R., which was greatly appreciated by the passengers, all of whom listened with the deepest attention to the various speakers. On Monday night they held a special service in the Chinese church, and every seat in the building was oferred up for their safe journey and future welfare in China. News-Advertiser.

It is understood that the Milwaukee brewer who visited Victoria last week, succeeded while here in arranging for the formation of a joint stock company with a capital of $300,000, half local and half American, to proceed with the construction of suitable premises and the manufacture of the best beer used or sold. The company will also engage in the manufacture of ice, on a large scale.

For Convenience Sake.

In order to facilitate the disposal of business in future, all communications addressed to the City Council regarding matters coming under the operation of any of the standing committees, will go direct to those committees, instead of being first filtered through the Council. This method, it is expected, will greatly facilitate business, and enable requests to be attended to without delay.

BANK OF MONTREAL

Ready to Begin Business in Victoria-Ar-rangements for Bank Offices.

For some time the directors of the Bank for some time the directors of the Bank of Montreal have been considering the advisability of establishing a branch in the city of Victoria, but have delayed, in asmuch as they did not desire to create too great a competition at a centre in which it was considered that the financial facilities was a sufficient. Latterly, however, in were sufficient. Latterly, however, in view of the rapid and substantial growth of the city, the subject has received further and serious consideration, the conclusion being arrived at that, unless they availed is the title of a new firm, which has commenced business, on Johnson street, as the proprietors of the Elite restaurant. Their establishment is neat and well arranged and their bill of fare excellent. No doubt, they will do well.

Ruilt Upon the Sand.

At the end of St. Laurence street, on Dallas road, a sea wall was built about three years ago, that was expected to stand firm for a quarter of a century at least. That expectation will not be realized, for already about forty feet of the wall has tumbled down. It is stated that the expensive work was constructed upon a sand foundation.

WATER WORKS.

By the report of the Commissioner you will observe that much has been done to extend and make the water supply more effective for all purposes, yet there is much that ought to be carried out to make it perfect. To be able to supply manufactories it is absolutely imperative that a larger supply should be obtained, in this co nection the Commissioner and myself have been considering a scheme whereby at least five times the present discharge can be delivered in this city at a comparative small outlay. This proposal will be placed bore you. It will be conceded that an unlimited supply of water is better than half insurance.

LIGHTING. With our extended area you will find it necessary to improve and enlarge the lighting capabilities of the present plant, as well as place lamps at several points within the old limits.

FIRE DEPARTMENT. This branch of the city service, I am glad to say, is in an efficient state, as evidence the small loss by fire during the past few years. It can be made still more effective by the addition of a chemical engine.

POLICE FORCE.

Although few in numbers as compared with other cities of the same size, yet they have been able to maintain good order. It will, however, be necessary to increase the force, so that a surveillance can be had over the new district.

It is gratifying that the ratepayers have placed in the hands of the Council a sum of money to carry on this work. In a month's time it is expected that the work will be well in hand, and the contractor agrees to have it finished in twenty months from commencement. The greatest care will have to be exercised to see that only pipes of the best quality are laid down. I believe that it would be wise to carry the pipes known as the bouse connections to the fence line during the building of the main sewers. It can be dore cheaper at that time and prevent the cutting up of the streets afterwards. This outting up would be most objectionable if the streets were paved. The utmost care will have to be observed in finally making connection with the houses, so that no sewer gas will find its way into dwellings. Rules toward this end will be necessary, so that no one will be allowed to have defective work performed.

Ross Ray cemetery has been enlarged and mimproved, but there are still a few acres that it would be well to acquire. Arrangements have been made toward that end if the Council so desire.

Beacon Hill Park.

By this time I feel convinced that the maiority of the rate-payers of this city fully approach the what could be accomplished in the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park if a sum of money were on hand for that the park SEWERAGE.

JUST CRITICISM.

Principal Grant, who is one of the most clear-headed as well as one of the best-informed men in this Dominion, delivered a lecture the other day on Henry George's work, "Progress and Mr. Grant gave Henry for public purposes the whole value of land. He wrote so pleasantly about this —how no violence would be necessary, but only a tote of the majority to have it done, and it should be done. There were two chiestians. In the first passage in that passage in done, and it should be done. There were two objections. In the first place, it would be immoral thus to confiscate As all the whole value of land would be taken, the workingman would feel i' to be extravagant to use more land than was necessary, and one lot would be made to contain many tenements piled one on another. The wealthy man in a small office would almost wholly escape taxation; the poor market gardener, whose business called for the use of much land, would be hurdened."

Principal Grant's experience has been that of many others. He was charmed by the clearness and the vivacity of George's style and attracted by the plausibility of his theories, but when he came to reflect he saw that his theory of land reform was inherently vicious and utterly imprac ticable. There are many who do not reach this latter stage. They are incapable of sober second thought, and they remain the enthusiastic and undes criminating advocates of everything that George has proposed. To say a word against anything that their prophet has written is to them flat blasphemy, and they anathematize the critic violently and volubly. Principal Grant will, no liar to itself, replies to an article, in which it is directly and plainly charged with making a false statement. In Friday's issue it said: "A careful estimate of the relative strength of parties in the House at the present time showed that, owing at the present time showed that, owing to the fact that several of the Government's supporters had not yet arrived in Victoria, a coalition of the Independents and Opposition would give a voting strength of 14 against the 13 votes which the Government could muster." This statement we declared to be false. and to prove that we were right, gave the names of the supporters of the Govof our article, the News-Advertiser does not even attempt to show that Milne's Amendment to the Address, and regrets that it cannot see its way to walk into the trap so neatly laid. What trap? Is a challenge to tell the truth in the estimation of the News-Advertiser a trap? If we had which his discovery has given rise, or for however, who still persist in misreprethe News-Advertiser a trap? If we had made a mistake as to the relative strength of parties nothing could have been easier than for our contemporary to have corrected the mistake. It was, indeed, bound to do this, for the Independents had been credited with "magnets and had been credited with "magnets in dispute and the senting the points in dispute and the tone and temper in which the negotiations are carried on. There are for instance some American journalists who still contend that Behring's Sea is a closed sea and that any encroachment on the sovereignty claimed by the United States will be resented by its Government and of the farming districts of other to do so. It was claimed for them that they the Horatsan precept to scientific as well.

He scorns to play the part of the Jackdaw in the fable. If he has not plumes of his own, he will not strut secret that he was driven to premature about in those that are borrowed or publicity by pressure from his official stolen. But the News-Advertiser does not possess this spirit. It desires to get for the Independent party the reputation for magnanimity on false pretenses. In order to do this it makes a statement which is demonstrably false, and when brought to book for its dishonesty it tries to sneak out of the difficulty in which it has been placed by assuming an air of great astuteness, and by again violating the truth. It cannot say that the division we have made is incorrect in any respect, but in an indirect and, as it no doubt considers, a very clever way, i endeavors to convey the impression that the Leader of the Government at the time admitted that his supporters were a minority in the House. This is what the

News-Advertiser says : "The leader of

A DANGEROUS SPOT

To THE EDITOR: A fit subject for the attention of the Street committee can be found on Dallas Road, near the South west corner of the park. Some cribbing, which was erected about a year ago at a cost of over three hundred dollars, has given way, carrying with it the footpath and a portion of the road. This happened nearly a week ago, and yet it still reand would not last two years. Now the city will be put to a further expense of nearly one thousand dollars, which had engaged men who understood their business. I think the corporation should appoint an overseer of such work; not necessarily a high priced railroad contractor, but a good practical man who set and results and the set and results and resu men who did such bad work on Superior street and Dallas road will get no more employment on public works. The public will, no doubt, be surprised to learn of the real state of affairs, but if these few lines will help to cause a change in the management of street work they will not have been written in vain. THE HESPERUS' SEIZURE.

MR. COTTON moved that a respectful address be presented to the Lieu enantaddress be presented to the lifet enant-flov mor, requesting copies of all corres-ponde...ce, Orders in Council, or other papers, that have passed between any de-partment of the Government and any other department or officials of it, or any other persons concerning the seizure of the schooner Hesperus, on or about Oct. 1889, and the arrest of the owners and the crew of the said vessel.

The hon, senior member for Vancouv r explained that the Hesperus, with a crew of four men and a cargo of general stores, of four men and a cape of general sections, and sailed from Vancouver on a coasting cruise. She was seized by the police of Nanaimo on a charge of selling liquor to Indians. Three of the crew were acquitted by the police magistrate; one was fined upon Indian testimony. This one conviction was appealed, and the decision of the police magistrate over-ruled. The owners of the Hesperus had lost their all by the transaction, and it was something that should be enquired

The resolution was passed, without MILITIA AT WELLINGTON.

MR. KEITH moved that a respectful address be presented to the Lieutenant Governor, requesting copies of all orders in council, correspondence, and papers connected with the sending of a militia force to Wellington last summer, and of their maintenance while there. It was, ne said, a well ke own fact that an armed orce had been sent to Wellington last summer, for a purpose unknown. The ircumstance required explanation, and was to secure this explanation that he resolution was introduced.

The motion was put to the House, and would have been carried without discussion had not Hon. Mr. Beaven claimed that an ex-

Hon. Mr. Turner, for the first time in his life, rose to a question of privilege. He complained of misstatements contained in a letter entitled "The Hon. J. H. Turner," and signed J. N. The fact was that he (Mr. Turner) had not opened his mouth, except to vote for Mr. Beaven's amendment. If all Mr. Muir's grievances were as groundless as this, they were not worthy of much consideration.

Hon. Mr. Davie had also to complain of untrue statements contained in the morth-seast corner of lot 5, group 1; thence due east to the northeast corner of lot 13, group 1;

PROFIT FROM PATENTS.

Rich Returns Received by Ingen ious Inventors.

Articles of Usefulness and Conven Which Have Made Large Fortunes for the Men Who Thought Them Out —The Value of Ideas.

"There is," says an eminent authority, "scarcely an article of human con venience or necessity in the market to-day that has not been the subject of a patent in whole or in part. The sale of every such article yields its inventor a profit. If we purchase a box of paper collars a portion of the price goes to the inventor; if we buy a sewing machine the probability is that we pay a royalty to as many as a dozen or fifteen inven-tors at once." Lord Brougham often said that he would gladly have ex-changed his honors and emoluments for the profits and renown of the inventor of the perambulator or sewing machine We are not wishful, says the Chicago Herald, to lead our readers to cove what are termed "large fortunes" a really conducive to happiness or useful-ness. "Fortune" is itself a heathen and not a Christian word. But "inven tion" is another thing, and the remuner ative results are a fitting element for consideration in these days. Howe, the originator of the sawing machine, de-rived £100,000 a year from it, and from their mechanical improvements the cel-ebrated Wheeler & Wilson are reputed to have divided for many years an income of £200,000, while the author of the Singer sewing machine left at his decease nearly £3,000,000. The tele-phone, the planing machine and the rubber patents realized many millions. the simple idea of heating the blast in iron smelting increased the wealth of the country by hundreds of millions. The patent of making the lower ends of candles taper inst narallel so as to more easily fit the socket, made the present enermou business of a well-known firm of Lon don chandlers. The "drive-well" an idea of Colonel Green, whose troops during the war were in want of He conceived the notion of driving a two-inch tube into the ground until water was reached, and then attaching a pump. This simple contrivance was patented, and the tens of thou sands of farmers who have adopted it have been obliged to pay him a royalty, estimated at £800,000. A large profit was realized by the inventor who pat-ented the idea of making umbrellas out of alpaca instead of gingham, and the patentee of the improved "paragon frame" (Samuel Fox) lately left by will £170,000 out of the profits of his invenribbon-making trades originated and de ribon-making trades originated and depend for their existence upon ingenious machinery, the result of an infinity of inventive efforts.

The discovery of the perforated substance used for bottoming chairs and for other purposes has made its inventor a millionaire. George Yeaton, the inventor in question was a proc. Venkouses. in question, was a poor Yankee cane-seater in Vermont. He first distin-guished himself by inventing a machine for weaving cane, but he made n money out of it, as some one stole his idea and had the process patented. After a number of years' experimenting Yeaton t last hit upon this invention, which consists of a number of thin layers of boards of different degrees of hardness glued together to give pliability. He formed a company, and to-day he has a plant valued at $500,000, and is in the receipt of a princely annual revenue derived from this invention. Carpet beating from being an un-told nuisance, has become a lucrative trade through inventive genius and mechanical contrivance. Even natural cuthe number of automatic boxes for the sale of goods of all kinds, and fabulous to her and called out "Shool" in her dividends have been paid by the com- shrill voice. The poor hen retreated to profitable inventions have been the improvements in simple devices, things of every-day use, that everybody wants. Among the number of patents for small things may be mentioned the "stylographic pen," and a pen for shading in different colors, producing £40,000 per annum. A large profit has been reaped by a miner who invented a metal rivet or eyelet at each end of the mouth of coat and trousers pocket to resist the strain caused by the carriage of pieces of ore and heavy tools. In a recent legal action it transpired in evidence that the inventor of metal plates used to protect soles and heals of boots from meast sold award of 18 00 flow plets dis wear sold upward of 12,000,000 plates in 1879, and in 1887 the number reached 143,000,000, producing realized profits of a quarter of a million of money. An-other useful invention is the "darning weaver," a device for repairing stockings, undergarments, etc., the sale of which is very large and increasing. As large a sum as was ever obtained for any invention was enjoyed by the in-ventor of the inverted glass bell to hang over gas to protect ceilings from being blackened, and a scarcely less lucrative patent was that for simply putting emery powder on cloth. Fre-quently time and circumstances are wanted before an invention is appreci-ated, but it will be seen that patience is well rewarded, for the inventor of the roller skate made over £200,000, notwithstanding the fact that his patent had nearly expired before its value was ascertained. The gimlet-pointed screw has produced more wealth than most silver mines, and the American who first thought of putting copper tips to children's shoes is as well off as if his father had left him £400,000 in United States bonds. Upward of £2,000 a year was made by the inventor of the conmon needle threader. To the foregon might be added thousands of trifling but useful articles from which hand-

TOBACCO IN FRANCE. The Most Villainous Weed to Be Found in

On the different kinds of tobacco in use in the various countries of the world, Mr. Pritchett in his recent paabundance, says the Chicago Evening tomary contents. The Chinese, we are Mr. Pritchett does not think injurious to them in health. The inhabitants of Zanzibar smoke wild hemp or bhang. With these exceptions, to which some others might have been added, the tobacco leaf is the thing smoked. There are many varieties of it, and we have a plant. But beyond this Mr. Pritchett does not attempt to go. He writes of Dutch and German smokers and he has a word on French pipes.

a word on French pipes.

But what kind of stuff these people burn in their pipes is not so much as hinted at. The English traveler on the continent will soon gain the informa-tion for himself. Go where he may, he will find it simply impossible to obtain what he will dignify with the name of tobacco. The German and Dutch forms are better than the Italian and the French, but we can say no more than this for them. France we are inclined to put as the lowest among civilized tobacco-consuming countries. The hand of the Govern-ment makes itself felt all through. The three kinds of foreign tobacco which are admitted into France are purchased on Government account, and they are about equally bad. The native-grown tobacco is wholly wanting in fragrance, and it has the doubtful merit of being very strong, or, as we should term it, very rank. Care is further taken that no or with capital at command shall be suffered to open a tobacco shop.

The whole scheme works out as we might expect. There is small chance anywhere, and only between bad and worse. It would, perhaps, do something to reconcile the English working-man to his lot in life if he had the means comparing his position with that of his fellow in France. The Englishman has not only higher wages and shorter hours threepence an ounce a kind of tobac by no means of the highest quality, b nevertheless far superior to any which either a French workman or a French millionaire can hope for in his own country. We do not know what value our working classes set on a commor privilege which comes to them as a mat ter of course, but we believe ther would be a rebellion to-morrow if it were taken away and they were con pelled to smoke caperal, nor should we dare to say that it had not been abun-

Horse Sense. The intelligence of the horse has just been demonstrated at Vesper, near Syacuse, N. Y. Among a herd of Hambletonian horses in a field was a brood mare and a sucking colt. A few days ago the mother partly pulled one of her shoes off. With a great deal of horse sense" she jumped out of the pasture and went to the blacksmith shop. The smithy started to drive th animal away, but finally discovered and reset the bent shoe. The mare then went contentedly back to the pasture. scaled the fence, and was once more mingled with the herd.

> perfect and severest habit were the strictest essentials of riding in the Row. During the last year or two, however, nsiderable relaxation has come over full riding dress, and a round straw hat, a covert coat, and cotton shirt were often —indeed, most frequently—worn. The types and conditions of womenkind to e seen here are unending. The titled daughter of an M. F. H. is at her ease here just as she will be in the evening at a dance, or later on exchanging friendly greetings with her father's tenantry at the covert side. Her Brayswater in charge of the riding mas-ter and thinking that being on horseback is an over-estimated pleasure; here is the stout and heavy lady, who hopes that violent exercise upon a weight-car-rier will allow her to have her dresses made an inch or two tighter in the waist, and there is the professional rideress with a showy horse to sell. Yes, the Row is certainly the first place of "recreation" for women in London.

The last season has seen driving jump to a great height of favor among fashionable women. A smart pony and a little ralli cart are what they have chiefly affected, but it is dangerous to the safety of humbler citizens every woman believes driving to be the easiest thing in the world. Only those who can and dodrive well recognize how fine an art it is under any circumstances and that in London it really requires a great amount of skill and nerve not to ndanger either one's own life or that of other people's.

Compared with what it has done in the provinces, 'cycling has made small progress in London as a lady's pastime. It is, however, now becoming more pop-ular, as several well-known women are adopting it. Mrs. Haweis, among others, is an enthusiastic tricyclist, an can give many useful hints to other ladies about the wisdom of taking train out beyond dreary suburbs and reserving strength for long runs among the hill and pretty scenery which can be reached so easily from London.

It is certain that the predjudice which once existed regarding ladies riding a tricycle is fast dying out, and many women now who are leading sedentary lives in offices and schools look forward to a Saturday afternoon's "run" as a restorative and tonic after their week's

LANTERNS IN GERMANY.

They Were Formerly Used as Symbols of The distinctions of rank which exist in European countries give rise to many troubles which, though they may seem rather amusing as well as trivial to us, are in reality quite serious to the persons concerned in them. In Stuttgart, years ago, says an exchange, there existed a curious custom which is not yet entirely abolished, and, in fact, still flourishes quite vigorously in some parts of Gesmany and Switzerland. This was the use of lanterns of different varieties and sizes, by which, at night, the rank of the party could be easily dis-

The lanterns were carried by the servants who were sent to escort their mistresses home from places of amusement, and they made the square in front of the Royal Opera-House, where most of the entertainments were then given, quite picturesque with their lights bobbing up and down in every direction.

The differences between some of these anterns were slight, but they had to be strictly observed, or trouble arose. The order of rank, as set forth in the "ranklist," was something from which they could never swerve. Some had lanterns of tift, some of brass; some had wax lights, and others tallow; even the number of lights was prescribed for each separate class or rank. An amusing story is told by Hack-

The servant polished the offending lantern, and took it with her the very next night when she went to meet her mistress at the close of an operatic entertainment. It was some time before the other woman, whose sense of the proprieties of life had been outraged, and who thought her old friend was enleavoring to lay claim to a rank above the one in which they both belonged, could be appeased. Even after the exwas always a sore one between them.

Only one species of featherless ani-mal, that can fly exists in all the world, and it is one that you probably have often seen. Properly speaking it has no wings, nevertheless its flying appurtenance is more nearly perfect than that of any bird. It flies with wonder ful rapidity, darts about with such quickness that it is difficult for the eye to follow it, and its sense of touch and smell are something marvelous.

In watching its rapid and eccentric flight in the twilight you have, no doubt thought that this strange animal is a bird. But its bird-like appearance ends with its ability to fly. Its young are born and nurtured just as are pupples and kittens.
This strange flying animal is the bat, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times.

In one of Æsop's fables it is related that the beasts and the birds once engaged in battle, and the bat hovered ab changing from one side to the other, as the chances of victory changed. For this treachery the bat was doomed to the queer life he now leads, that of an apparent bird, but a real mammalian ani mal.

The structure of the bat is very pecul iar. An eminent naturalist says: the fingers of a man were to be drawn out like wire to about four feet in out like wire to about four feet in length, a thin membrane to extend from finger to finger, and another membrane to fall from the little finger to the ankles, he would make a very tolerable bat." Somewhat analogous to the hat, the mammalian of the air, is the whale, the mammalian of the sea. The whale is no nore a fish than the bat is a bird. Its young are born like the kittens and the puppies, but only one at a time. The oung whale takes its nourishment at s mother's breast, just as the human baby does, and it is just as carefully watched and guarded by its parents.

Although whales grow to enormous size, sometimes eighty and even ninet the animal couldn't swallow a bite as the animal couldn't swallow a little as large as a tea biscuit. This applies to the common whale; the spermaceti has a mouth large enough to swallow a man. FASHIONABLE PARTIES. The Expense and Inconvenience of Large Balls.

New York is distinguished every season for its monster masquerades and fancy balls. In spite of gas, music, flowers and gay costumes these gatherings, if we are to believe the reports of many who "assist" at them, are at once dreary and disgusting. The multitudes of mocl kings, knights, duchesses, scaramouches pickwicks, cardinals, Indians, clowns columbines, pantaloons, hidalgos, sail-ors, punchinellos, flower-girls and what not who meet upon a common level upon these occasions are nothing more than promenading and gyrating dummies, says the New York Ledger. The world may be a stage, but these ladies and gentlemen show very clearly that all the men and women are not players-not one in five hundred of them having Washington City, Jan. 27.—The will of and, really, while it makes one excessively nervous, there is little danger to life. I have known the shocks to come as frequently as eighty times in an hour. The effects are quite peculiar. In the city of Salvador is a brick column nine feet high and three feet square. That was shoved some one hundred feet without losing its perpendicularity or cracking the mortar.

the late George Bancroft has been placed in probate. The estate is given in trust for the benefit of relatives. Bancroft gives his portrait to Harvard college. His manuscript and historical collection will be offered for sale to the library of congress, and in event of their not being purchased, will be offered to any public library, the money to be added to the trust fund. His library and printed works will be sold preferably to some one institution. the late George Bancroft has been placed in ing the mortar.

"The ground under the city of Salwador is full of caverns of unknown depth. A man was digging a well there. The income from his copyrights will also go to the same fund.

Since when have teachers forfeited their rights as citizens, and what should they are the same teachers. and why should they not pass any resolution they may see fit to pass? The Advertiser says nothing about resolutions of want of confidence in the Department. A resolution was passed last summer at the Teachers' Institute which was virtually a vote of want of confidence, and surely if some teachers choose to express their disapproval of the Departmen others may express their approval! It must not be supposed that, because one or two teachers, actuated probables by ambitious motives, are dissatisfied with the Department, all, or even a majority, of the teaching staff of the province share their opinions. Several of the most famous workshops, than skill, industry and probity. Little by little money was gathered for an extension of the works, the gains became larger, more money could be invested to cheapen processes or extend trade, relations of business value were established, and so the business kept the western end of Lake Pend d'Oreille, and on expanding until acres of buildings then follow the Pend d'Oreille river to took the place of one small shop, and then follow the Pend d'Oreille river to Simaquotene Ferry, where that stream cuts the Cabinet mountains. It will then run due west to Diamond Lake, and continuing, connect with the Spokane & Northern at some point in the northern part of Spokane county. Thence it will run in a west southwesterly direction through the northern part of Spokane, Lincoln and Dougias counties, thus traversing the Big Bend country and keeping to the south of the Columbia river before it makes the bend to the southward. The saving device, he is very likely to say that there are no such opportunities now as once existed to thus build up a great business from almost nothing; that the age of machinery has come, and that tablished factories except by the use of large capital at the very beginning.

There is a little truth in this, because one could hardly expect to succeed in building locomotives, for example by hand-work in competition with estabit has been rumored here that the Northern it is altogether overshadowed by the lished works using machine tools; but Pacific has been pressing the Oregon & larger truth that now, as heretofore, Washington Territory Railway, the "Hunt | there is room at the top for the young man of probity, industry, zeal and intel money collected by the latter on freight ligence. Thirty years ago, says the Baltim Sun, the same objection was made with apparently the same force, yet within these thirty years instances can be found of poor boys rising to become the great merchants and manufacturers of the country. If they had considered that the opportunities to rise had passed away with the first half of the century, they might have remained behind the counter or at the work-bench; but they were industrious, faithful, skillful, and above all self-confident and determined to succeed, and opportunities came to them as they may come to any boy of the present generation who prepares himself to take advantage of a change himself to take advantage of a change in the tide of fortune. One of the famous assayers of the country started in a very small way, extracting the gold and silver from the sweepings of jewelry manufactories. It required some years of honest dealing before he could firmly establish a reputation for probity and skill that brought him large consignments. Then his little laboratory began to grow, he invented new processes to help him in his work, his good name became known in distant States, and toward the close of his life more gold and silver passed through the United States mint at Philadelphia. His great business success was due in part to his knowledge and skill, in part to his inpromised he would not repeat that mistake. The younger man was more enterprising and energetic than his neighbor who, tiring of the struggle after accumulating a large fortune, retired from the field. In the business world as in nature there is the period of growth and decay. Great business houses may have fresh blood infused into them and descending from father to son may go on growing beyond the lifetime of their founder; corporations give a still longer time to the period of growth, but decay comes to all of them and younger enterprises displace them. Even the corporations though of such long life suffer from the competition of young rivals that enter the field with new appliances, fresh ideas and the vigor and zeal of youth. Because the field world as in nature there is the period of and zeal of youth. Because the field seems to be occupied is no reason why the young man of to-day should give way to despair or lose in the slightest degree confidence in his own power to succeed. Six years ago all British Columbia was startled by the news of a horrible murder, which took place near Kamloops, among the mountains of the upper country. A poor dertaking. There are exceptional circumstances under which this may be done, but the general rule is that severcumstances under which this may be done, but the general rule is that several years are required to fully establish a business reputation that can command a large trade.

Quite recently in one of the large cities an old mercantile firm that had been established for over half a century, and was at one time at the head of all the wholesale establishments, was bought out—stock, good will and fixtures—by a young man who had started a small store when this firm was at the height of its power and business influence. He did not dream at that time of competing with his great neighbor. He was content to do the small trade that fell to his lot, he attended strictly to business and exerted himself to please his customers. Slowly but steadily his business expanded. Before many years
