TALK ABOUT FAILURES.

The story is told that a boy, who wished to puzzle some of his elders with a conundrum, put forth this one: "That boy's sister," said he, "is my sister, but that boy is not my brother."

There has been a considerable over-impaction of dry goods going these three years. For some weeks before March 15, 1879, imports were rubbed in at a great rate.

Immediately afterwards importations fell off, the country having really more goods than were wanted; and it was not until sometime in 1880, when the over-supply had been in great part worked off, that imports began again to order largely.

Ever since, or thereabouts, the importations have been at a great rate, in order to get ahead of the expected new tariff.

It ought also to have been plain enough years ago to every man of common sense, that if Canadian manufacturers started on a vigorous career of expansion, and kept it up, the time must come when there would be a surplus on the market.

With all the hard times in Winnipeg of yesterday's World they make no sign. Let them read the letter of Vindex, which appeared in yesterday's paper.

Now, let us not be misled by a note or two in the paper, which is in bad hands. This letter charges the chief librarian with lying and slandering into voting for a free public library.

The matter has got to be so serious that I hear intimations of a forthcoming indignation meeting of the citizens who have been deluged into voting for a free public library.

Manitoba will do herself no good by allowing Sir John Macdonald to use that province as a cat's paw in the matter of jurisdiction in the disputed territory.

JUDAS ISCARIOT. To the Editor of the World. Sir: Vindex touches the root of the matter in his letter in your column this morning.

There are more ways than one of slaughtering a fellow, numerously lived as that animal is supposed to be. Mr. P. T. Barnum thought by locating his biggest show outside the city limits at Montreal and Ottawa, he could beat those cities out of their license fees.

let us have stringent laws and a moral force sufficient to make the bad modes of robbing the people a sample of terror to those who do it.

CONTRASTS NOT CONTRA. To the Editor of the World. Sir: Will you kindly allow me to correct certain errors that appear in my letter in your issue of Friday, July 13.

Advise to Consumptives. On the appearance of the first symptoms of a general debility, loss of appetite, pallor, chilly sensations, followed by night-sweats and cough—prompt measures for relief should be taken.

Himalaya (the abode of snow from the gaseous "hima," snow, and "alaya," abode) is the most elevated and stupendous system of mountains on the globe.

Do You Expect a Cure? If so, don't delay too long. We have cured hundreds of patients suffering from consumption, bronchitis, laryngitis, asthma, catarrh and other pulmonary affections.

THE LIBRARIANSHIP. To the Editor of the World. Sir: Much as has been said on this question, perhaps something to the point will not be superfluous.

My life having been largely a reading one, I necessarily know something of many books, and must be aware of the grades of knowledge therein to which many of those who find any one possess the almost phenomenal knowledge of books Mr. Dent has arrived at.

It is in the pursuit of some such aim that I have been engaged in rebuking and exposing the methods of voluntary, or enforced, overwork and over exertion in the present day.

Our local divines will yet see the wisdom of the enactment of laws limiting all labor contracts to a fixed term of eight hours.

OLD FALS OF NIAGARA.

The Coolest and Self-Possession of a Man

The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser recalls from its files the following:

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 2, 1848.—At about midnight last evening a man was carried down the falls. Who he was is not known.

From his management of the sail boat in which he came down the river, I think he was not well acquainted with the current of the rapids. His dress and appearance indicated respectability, and after he got into the rapids his self-possession was extraordinary. His boat was a very good one—decked over on the bow, and I should think would carry three or four tons.

From what I learn of a sail boat having been seen below Black Rock coming down the river, I think it was from there or Buffalo. No other than a person unacquainted with the current above the rapids would venture so near them. It was on the head of Goat Island I first discovered the boat—then near half a mile below the foot of Navy island, and nearly two miles above the falls.

There seemed to be two in the boat. It was directed toward the American shore—the wind blowing from that shore, and the sail was still standing. Being well acquainted with the river I regarded the position of the boat as extraordinary and hazardous, and watched it with intense anxiety. Soon I discovered the motion of an oar, and from the changing direction of the boat concluded that it was being steered by the man who had been seen at Buffalo. While constantly approaching nearer and nearer the rapids, I could discover it was gaining the American shore and was about to be carried over the falls when it was turned up the river, and for some time the wind kept it nearly stationary. The only hope seemed to be to come directly to Goat Island, and whether I should assist in the event the boat attempted to make the island was a question of painful doubt. But soon the boat was again turned toward the American shore. Then it was certain that it must go down the American rapids.

I ran for the bridge—saw and informed a gentleman and lady just leaving the island, but they seemed unable to reply or move. I rallied a man at the toll-gate—we ran to the main bridge in time to see the boat just before it got to the first large fall in the rapids. There was but one man—standing at the stern with his oar changing the course of the boat down the current, and as it plunged over the falls he seemed to direct the boat toward the pier to which it was about to be carried. As he came to the pier he would come near enough to the pier to jump, but in a moment it was gone. Another man, who might jump upon the rock near the bridge, but the current dashed him from it under the bridge, breaking the mast. Again he rose on the pier, and pointing his boat toward the main shore, he cried: "Had I better jump from the boat?" We could not answer, for either seemed certain destruction. Within a few rods of the falls the boat struck a rock, turned over and lodged. He appeared to crawl from under the boat, and in his hand, till he went over the precipice. Without the power to render assistance—for half an hour watching a strong man struggling with every nerve for life, yet doomed with almost the certainty of death, still hoping with every effort for his deliverance—caused an intensity of excitement I pray God never again to experience.

Tom Thump's Start in Life.

It is in his sixth year that the general was discovered by P. T. Barnum, and then began his life of public exhibition, which continued until his death. The showman was stopping over night in Bridgeport, and hearing of the child, had him brought to the hotel. He was then a well-formed, very intelligent child, and exceedingly fond of the ludicrous. He was first put on exhibition in the New York museum, but temporarily. After a little time, the consent of his parents having been obtained, a contract was entered into for four weeks at $3 a week, including the board and travelling expenses of the diminutive general and his mother. At the conclusion of the four weeks a second contract was made at $7 a week for one year, with the privilege of taking him anywhere in the country. Before many weeks had elapsed the general's salary was increased to $25, so great an attraction had he become. At the end of the year a bargain was made for the next year at $50 a week, and the first trip to Europe was made. The general's mother and tutor accompanied him across the water. The first exhibition was given in Liverpool, and a very fair of enthusiasm attended there through England and the continent. In London he was visited by Hon. Edward Crewe, the American minister, and at Buckingham palace he was permitted to hold levees. He was invited to the royal palace, where he was a frequent visitor, and his presence was considered a special boon in the house of nobility. He was a great favorite with the Prince of Wales, who was about his own age. While a frequent of the queen's household he was the recipient of many fine presents from her majesty, among which was an elegant gold watch and chain made expressly for his use. In Paris the general was treated with the same consideration, enjoying entrée to the best society of the French metropolis. King Louis Philippe, as a mark of his regard, presented him with a magnificent diamond brooch. His character personations of Napoleon Bonaparte elicited the most unbounded applause in France, and there was first developed his merit as an actor. He soon acquired a knowledge of the French language, and exhibitions were given throughout the empire. He thence traversed the whole of Europe, and upon his return to his native land, where intelligence of his successes had preceded him, he was received with enthusiastic welcome. During his entire lifetime four tours of Europe were made, all of which were attended with the same continued ovation which had greeted his initial visit.

Spelling Reform.

The American Philological association, which has been holding its sessions for this year at Middletown, Conn., had great enjoyment in the essays and debates. The committee on spelling reform reported, through their chairman, Professor March, that the English Philological society, at a meeting held April 20 of this year, had unanimously approved and accepted the rules for amended spelling, adopted by the American association in 1881, and that these rules are now jointly recommended by the two associations for immediate adoption:

MY SWATHHART ABROAD.

Miss Minnie Palmer, of American Court, Detroit, Michigan.

The Edinburgh Evening News, in a recent issue, says: During the performance of My Swathhart at the Theatre Royal last night, a disturbance of a most serious character took place, which created a great deal of excitement, and led to the apprehension of nine young men, said to be students. A body of nine students, whose names are variously stated at from 50 to 150, assembled in the gallery of the Theatre Royal before the performance began and indulged in the noisy fun usually carried on by students whenever they meet in force. The knocking of sticks and whistling continued to a modified extent after the curtain rose, and more or less during the whole of the first act, and the rest of the audience showed their disapprobation by hissing, booing and threatening to get the disturbers of the peace ejected. Mr. Heslop, the manager, informed the police that the students were throwing rotten eggs, rotten apples and other missiles at the people in the gallery and in the pit. Two policemen were sent to the theatre and admitted to the gallery. Soon after their entrance the policemen saw the students, who were all seated at the right-hand corner of the opposite side, and they made their way down to the front seat and apprehended a young man who appeared to be the leader of the party. The rest of the students did their utmost to rescue their companion, but the other auditors in the gallery came to the assistance of the policeman who managed to keep hold of their prisoner and lodged him in St. James's street police station. When there got the assistance of other policemen, with whom they went back to the theatre and succeeded in apprehending the other eight of the young men. During this time the police searched the theatre and threw some of the students over the gallery. Hats were lost in the affray and walking sticks were smashed or, as the (sic) the police had to be carried out, where they were attended by medical men. The afternoon notice was posted at the University bearing an injunction to students to assemble at the theatre at 7 o'clock, admission strictly free; that they were to bring pens and sticks, and prepare for a general row; and that another card would be issued to the students found on one of the prisoners. An intimation of the intended visit of the students was also pushed under the theatre on Tuesday afternoon. Among the productions in the case of the card above mentioned, on which the following is written: "Go to the Theatre Royal on Tuesday, August 14th, at 7 o'clock, and bring sticks and pens. Admission, sixpence, 7 p.m. On the bank of the river, near the Theatre Royal, a row will be held on Tuesday, August 14th, at 7 o'clock, and the students are to bring pens and sticks, and prepare for a general row; and that another card would be issued to the students found on one of the prisoners.
