

J. M. OWEN,
BARRISTER - AT - LAW
Notary Public, Real Estate Agent,
United States Consul Agent.
Annapolis, Oct. 4th, 1882.

CURE FOR THE DEAF!
Peck's Patent Improved Coughless Ear Drums.

PERFECTLY RESTORE THE HEARING,
no matter whether deafness is caused by cold,
injury, or disease. It is a natural process, and always in position, but invisible to others and uncomfortable to wear. Music, conversation, and whisper heard distinctly. We refer to those using them. Send for illustrated book of proof. Price, Address, P. H. HOSKIN, 825 Broadway N. Y.

BRIDGETOWN
MARBLE WORKS
THOMAS DEARNESS
Importer of Marble and manufacturer of Monuments, Tablets, Headstones, &c.
Also Monuments in Red Granite,
Gray Granite, and Prostate.
Granville St., Bridgetown, N. S.

N. B.—Having purchased the Stock and Trade from Mr. O. Whitman, parties ordering anything in the above line can rely on having their orders filled at short notice.
T. D.
Bridgetown, March 15th, 89.

Extension OF TIME

Is often asked for by persons becoming unable to pay when the debt is due. The debt of nature has to be paid sooner or later, but we would all prefer an Extension of Time.

Putner's Emulsion OF COD LIVER OIL

WITH Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda may give this to all who are suffering from Coughs, Colds, Consumption, General Debility, and all wasting Diseases.
Delicate Children who otherwise would pay
the debt very speedily, may have a long
EXTENSION OF TIME.

Try Putner's Emulsion
BROWN BROS. & Co.,
CHEMIST AND DRUGGISTS,
Halifax, N. S.

CHEAP CASH!

FLOUR,
OATMEAL,
FEEDING FLOUR,
CORNEAL,
GROCERIES,
STOVES, FLOWS,
HORSE CLOTHING,
Harnesses made to Order,
REPAIRING ATTENDED TO PROMPTLY.
N. H. PHINNEY,
Nov. 19th, 1888.

B. B. B.
Burdock Blood Bitters

Is a purely vegetable compound, possessing perfect regulating power over all the organs of the system, and controlling their secretions. It so purifies the blood that it

CURES

All blood humors and diseases, from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore, and this combined with its unparalleled regulating, cleansing, and purifying influence on the secretions of the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin, render it unequalled as a cure for all diseases of the SKIN

From one to two bottles will cure boils, pimples, blotches, nettle rash, scurf, eczema,
and all the skin eruptions of the face, neck,
and chest. From two to four bottles will cure eczema, shingles, erysipelas, ulcers, abcesses, running sores, and all skin eruptions.
It is noticeable that sufferers from skin

DISEASES

Are nearly always aggravated by indigestion and biliousness, but this quickly subsides on the removal of the disease by B. B. B. Passing on to graver yet prevalent diseases, such as scrofulous swellings, humors and

SCROFULA

We have undoubted proof that from three to six bottles used internally and by outward application (diluted if the skin is broken) to the affected parts, will effect a cure. The great mission of B. B. B. is to regulate the nervous, digestive, and circulatory systems,
and to open the sluice-ways of the system
to carry off all clogged and impure secretions, allowing nature to take its normal and remove without fail.

BAD BLOOD

Liver complaint, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache, dropsy, rheumatism, and every species of disease arising from disordered liver, kidneys, stomach, bowels and blood.
We guarantee every bottle of B. B. B.
Should any person be dissatisfied after using the first bottle, we will refund the money on application personally or by letter. We are glad to send testimonials and information proving the effects of B. B. B. in the above named diseases, on application to T. M. MILLER & CO., Toronto, Ont.

NOTICE.
All persons having legal demands against the estate of the late ARTHUR BURN-SEY, of Toronto, in the County of York, deceased, are hereby required to render their accounts, duly attested, to within six months from the date hereof; and all persons indebted to the said estate are requested to make immediate payment to SARAH EMMA BURNSEY, FLEXINGTON WILKINSON, Administrators.
Toronto, Nov. 12th, 1888.

W. G. Parsons, B. A., Barrister, Solicitor, &c., MIDDLETON - N. S.
Office in A. BEALS' STORE, 181

Weekly

VOL. 18.

BRIDGETOWN, N. S.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9, 1890.

NO. 1.

MAKE HENS LAY
NOTHING ON EARTH WILL MAKE HENS LAY
LIKE
SHERIDAN'S CONDITION POWDER.
WE SEND BY MAIL SHERIDAN'S CONDITION POWDER.
ALARGE 2 1/2 POUND CAN FOR $2.00
TWO SMALL PACKS 50 CENTS POST PAID.
Sheridan's Condition Powder

International S.S. Co.
CHANGE - OF - TIME!
BOSTON
FROM
ST. JOHN

Commencing Tuesday, March 11th,
ONE of the Fine Steamers of this Line will leave St. John for Boston via Eastport and Portland every TUESDAY and THURSDAY MORNING at 7:45 Eastern Standard Time. Returday leaves Boston same days.
Connection made by Bay Fundy S. S. Co.'s Steamer every MONDAY, WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY from Annapolis.

LAWRENCETOWN PUMP COMPANY, (ESTABLISHED 1880.)
N. H. PHINNEY, Manager.
THE CELEBRATED
Rubber Bucket Chain Pump,
—ALSO—FORCE PUMP,
with Hose attached if required.

SCOTT'S EMULSION
Of Pure Cod Liver Oil and HYPOPHOSPHITES
of Lime and Soda

COMET STOVE
THE BEST
IN THE WORLD.
MORE IN CASE THAN OTHER MAKES

Farm for Sale
The subscriber offers for sale that very nicely situated property in MIDDLE-TON, County of Annapolis, and Province of Nova Scotia, on the Post Road and in the immediate neighborhood of Railway Station, Telegraph Office, Post Office, Churches, consisting of about forty-five acres, superior soil, a thriving young orchard of about one hundred and fifty apple trees of choice selected fruit, and conveniently divided into fields, hills, and pasture lands. It well watered, has a commodious and thoroughly finished house, woodhouse, barn, stable, etc., in good repair. Terms easy.
JONATHAN WOODBURY.

A COOK BOOK
FREE
Perfume of a good name heralds the claim that Putnam's Patent Corn Extractor is a sure, certain, and painless remedy for corns. Fifty imitations proved to be the best. Take no seed substances at drugstore.

Poetry.
Waiting.
I see the world that round me lies,
I feel the guilt within,
I feel with grain and travail cries
The world's contentment in;
Yet, in the maddening maze of things,
And tossed by storm and flood,
To one fixed stake my spirit clings,
I know that God is good!

Red Brewery's End.
"Joe," the old man mumbled, as he lay
his length in the bed,
"Joe, God bless you, my son, but you had a better than that.
Eh, I'm a powerful sinner, and I thank the Lord for it, here on my knees, But, Joe, I'm dying, I tell you! Joe, Joe,
and I can't die game."
"Ay, old man," said the son, "die game,
or die like a rat;
I'll be your surety on heaven, I see no harm in that."
"But the parson, Joe, for pity—," the son said, "I'll be your surety on heaven, I see no harm in that."
"And the old man shrank and whimpered shuddered away from his stare.

Select Literature.
Keturah's Omen.
Mrs. Totten sat before the fire with an open letter in her hand.
"There was a solemn mystery in her words that made itself felt, and the girl's heart huddled together as she told the story of the sign she had seen that night."
"But I can't see that the dance is very dangerous," pouted Kitty.
"Ever hear how your Uncle Bije died, Ruth? My mother told me. Forty year ago Bije Totten lived in this house, and he was a great fellow for a dancer a country Bije was."

The Disgrace of Unwed Wealth.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

Victoria Detests a Firt.
NOW A YOUNG PRINCESS WAS FURNISHED FOR COURTSHIP.
"Very forward," was the criticism said to have been made by her majesty, the queen of England, on the occasion of the presentation of one of our most beautiful American girls.
"An English gentleman, a few years ago," Her majesty seemed to attend very strictly to the matter in hand, but there is not a trick of manner or a detail of dress that escapes her notice. Her intentions are so keen and the value that she sets on modesty is so great, her interest in the young so sincere, that she has become a famous reader of character.
"The queen detests a firt, and she can detect one of these specimens almost at a glance. Neither twelve nor sixteen precious stones can cast sufficient glamour over a tendency of this kind to hide it from these truly motherly eyes."
It is said that one day when her majesty was in the carriage at a military review the princess royal, then about 14 years of age, was seated in a little family and possibly slightly coquetish in thoughtless girlish fashion, with the young officers of the guard. The queen tried to catch her eye, but the young princess was so attractive, and the poor princess paid no attention to the silent endeavors of her mother.
"At last in a spirit of fun, she capped the queen's advances by dropping her handkerchief over the side of the carriage, and the queen saw it was not an accident. Immediately two or three gentlemen sprang from their horses to return it to her, but the hand of royalty waved them off.
"Thank you, but it is not necessary," said her majesty. "Leave it just where it lies," and then turning to her daughter she said: "Now, I must ask you to get down and pick up your handkerchief."
"But mamma—"
The little princess's face was scarlet and her lip quivered with shame.
"Yes, immediately," said the queen.
The royal footman had opened the door and stood waiting by the side of the carriage, and the poor princess was obliged to step down and rescue her own handkerchief.
This was hard, but it was salutary, and probably nipped in the bud the girl's first impulse toward coquetry. American mothers would do well to follow so meritorious and notable an example.
Her majesty has spoken very plain and sensible words to the British nobility in regard to the education and management of their girls, and the subjects of filial affection and immediate dressing is eloquent and good.
"I had no idea that your mother observed my harmless coquetry," said a young lady whose mother had been spoken to by the queen.
"I have no doubt it was harmless," replied the Princess Alice, who was the embodiment of kindness and sympathy, and yet who never hesitated to speak the truth,
"but it was certainly thoughtless and un-becomingly. It would be safe for any young woman to be as coquettish, as I was, but I was not aware that her majesty ever looked at me after the first formal introduction."
The princess's smile deepened into a laugh as she said: "Let me tell you just one thing, my dear; the queen of England has not one pair of eyes, but fifty, and those in the back part of her head are marvellous."

ELLECTRIFIED SNOW.—In a paper describing a perilous ascent of Pike's Peak, Lieut.
John P. Finley, United States signal service, says that the ascent was made in April, when the snow was the deepest of all months of the year, and the Lieutenant was accompanied by the sergeant of the station. The ascent was accomplished on white back trails, and the animals were taken to the half-way house below. Into this snow they sometimes sank up to their armpits and saved themselves from plunging deeper by spreading out their arms. At one time they crossed a frozen creek in the shape of a tangle of brush, where a foothold had to be out of every step, and where a mistake would have sent them thousands of feet down the mountain. Electric storms sometimes were witnessed there, when such snowflakes, charged with electricity, discharged a spark as it touched a metal back in its fall. Electric sparks streamed from the finger tips of upraised hands. In their scent they encountered a storm of sleet
that cut their faces as if to draw blood.
The last five miles was a fight for life against wind, sleet, cold and rained air.
—Washington Star.

A Trip to Manitoba.
Last year I went to Manitoba on the C. P. R. At Rat Portage I got sick, and at Winnipeg I was so weak I had to be carried off the train. I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after the first two bottles felt better. When I got to Winnipeg I was as well as ever. The Burdock Blood Bitters is a great medicine for the blood. DONALD M'NEIL, Bolover, Ont.

over which he usually strode, and carefully lifting first one foot and then the other,
he shuffled toward the corner of the kitchen.
"So glad to see you," he said, "and one glance at his feet told what had happened. Each foot was firmly fastened in the centre of a mill-pan, foot soft taffy, and Silas, with a queer grin, stood regarding the pair seriously.
"So that's what it was, was it?" he said, after the girl, in a strong reaction from intense fear, had laughed till the tears came. "Only some of 'Tury's taffy.' Well, it's a terrible sticky, 'Tury! I wonder as you didn't get this stuff to cook on the porch. Did you call it to catch a lung? I come here to-night primed for stealia, but 'twas in a fair way. I only wanted to steal you from 'Tury's taffy.'"
A phlegmatic black overpiled the pathway with chairs and tables. Kitty giggled outright.
"I set one foot in something soft," Silas went on, "and while I was trying to stomp
it off, I set the other foot into the same stuff. I was so mad, and, you see, as I danced couldn't take out there trying to get out of the trap. I couldn't contrive what on air had caught me that seemed so sudden fond o' my boots!"
He removed the pans, each with a sticky impression of his great cowhide boots in the center, and with an apology for having spoiled the taffy, placed his adhesive feet on a newspaper.
"I do hope, Keturah," he went on, "that when we're married you'll stand by me like your taffy."
Although this was intended in strict compliment, Keturah took it very ill.
"You ain't got no yit, Si Vandevanderder!" she said, crisply, and retired into the battery.
Ruth brought out her father's slippers
and gave Si some idea of the nervous state
she had been in. He laughed at their un-saininess over "Tury's rubbishy yarns," and he called upon her, and so reassured them
the little household was once more in a state of calm and contentment before he went away.
Next morning the girls found not only a muffled breakfast awaiting them, but Keturah sitting on the edge of the bed, and on her finger and a self-conscious smile on her face. Broad daylight had turned her thrilling signs into mirk-proving myths, and she herself had quite discarded the mood of prophecy.
"I do hope," said Ruth, when Mrs. Totten had returned with the news that Mary was better, "Tury, if your seven old crows meant anything, it was that you were to become Mrs. Vandevander; and I'm sure that's a good sign which proves you all wrong."
"Mebbe," said Keturah.—Lillian L.
Price in Companion.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment
which men of wealth will not generally
appreciate. He did not mean that the
rich should be stingy, but that they should
be generous in their giving."
"I don't think I shall sleep a wink to-
night," cried Kitty.
"Mark!" said Ruth, sharply, "what's
that?"
"It sounded as if a step was approaching
the house. There was a footfall on the
porch, and then a knock."
"The seven crowns have come!" muttered
Keturah, under her breath, as she listened
intently.
The knock was repeated, and then came
an imperative rap.
"No one shall open that door this
night!" declared Keturah, with a white
face.
Again they heard the step and then suddenly a noise arose, so terrific and deafen-
ing that it seemed as if a cyclone had
struck the house. The windows rattled,
and with the general
uproar were mingled frightful stamps and
slams. These sounds doubled in violence,
and low, angry groans were distinctly
heard.

THE DISGRACE OF UNWED WEALTH.
A Methodist paper says:—When Mr.
Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch-American
millionaire, was in Edinburgh, Scotland,
"the man who dies worth a million dollars,
and in the grave, he uttered a sentiment

Established 1873. THE WEEKLY MONITOR. PUBLISHED ON WEDNESDAY. At Bridgetown, Annapolis Co., N. S.

M. K. PIPER, Proprietor and Publisher. OFFICE: BRIDGE STREET, BRIDGETOWN, N. S.

Advertisements are accepted for insertion on application. Advertisers are respectfully requested to send their copy to the printer as early as possible.

Copy for changes to secure insertion, must be in our hands not later than TUESDAY NOON.

Of all kinds, plain and decorated at short notice. Neat work, good paper and reasonable prices. Promptly for letters, notices and notices, put up in any style required.

News items from all parts of the County respectfully solicited. Births, deaths and marriages inserted free of charge.

Addresses all business letters or correspondence to "MONITOR OFFICE, BRIDGETOWN, N. S."

R. S. McCORMICK, Manager. The Weekly Monitor. WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9th, 1890.

British Columbia As It Is.

As Nova Scotia occupies the extreme eastern portion of the great Canadian Dominion, so British Columbia fills its extreme western portion, and while the waves of the Atlantic wash the shores of the former, those of the latter are washed by those of the Pacific.

From the pages of the Victoria Daily Times, issued at Victoria, B. C., we have gleaned the following facts relating to the great Pacific province, which show a progress equal to any now to be found on the great American continent.

Every school which has up to a recent period this province was under the control of the Hudson Bay Company, during which progress was impossible. Coal was first discovered on Vancouver Island by one of its agents—Doctor Tolmie, in 1853, but the aborigines were the pioneers in mining that valuable mineral in order to supply to the S. S. Beaver, which was the first vessel propelled by steam in that region.

Excellent coal of a semi-anthracite character, as well as vast seams of soft or bituminous coal have been discovered on Queen Charlotte's Island, and one of these mines is owned by a Nova Scotia company, which we trust may prove a bonanza to them.

tanneries, flour and rice mills, brick yards, shipyards, artificial ice works, and many other industries are in successful operation. With the C. P. R. and the Pacific S. S. line to China and Japan, British Columbia is bound to become the entrepot of an immense and lucrative trade.

—Just received at John P. Murdoch's, a lot of Boots and shoes from Amherst. Customers will find my stock complete in sizes, and the prices are lower than usual.

—A large Stock.—Mrs. Alfred, wife of Councillor Vidito, out of one of her choice collection of house-plants Monday, the stock of a Fuchsia, that measured some seven feet in length.

—It is currently reported by some of our exchanges that the session of the Local Legislature will close about the 10th of the month, and the Provincial elections will take place on or about the 15th of May.

—Sixteen candidates for baptism and church membership were received into the Baptist church last Saturday, and the ordinance of baptism will be administered next Sabbath morning at 9.30, if fine, at Faith's pond.

—On Tuesday morning, on Queen street, a sum of money. Any person claiming the same, by giving satisfactory proof as to denomination and amount can obtain it by applying to Samuel FitzRandolph at this office.

—Several men left here on Monday morning for the Paradise works, having been engaged by Mr. John Haley, of the Round Hill Woodland, and assistant in bringing along his drive of some fifteen thousand logs.

—The magnificent Band of the Household Troops, belonging to the Salvation Army, embracing twenty-five picked players, will give an entertainment in Bridgetown, Wednesday evening, April 10th, commencing at 7.30.

Local and Other Matter. —We understand that the offertory in St. James' church on Easter Sunday realized within a trifle of one hundred dollars.

—The most valuable advertising medium are those that have one price without variation, and will not under any circumstances, accept a cut rate.

—A good deal of amusement has been afforded some of our citizens the past few days, by the exhibition of a building belonging to Mr. David Woodland, and which he has taken to the court street, where it will be fitted up and used as a dwelling house.

—A good deal of amusement has been afforded some of our citizens the past few days, by the exhibition of a building belonging to Mr. David Woodland, and which he has taken to the court street, where it will be fitted up and used as a dwelling house.

—The sealing schooner Pathfinder recently seized at Port Townsend has been released under orders from Washington. The reason alleged is that the Federal authorities of the state of Washington had no jurisdiction or control in the matter, those of Alaska alone having authority.

—Good Friday was not very generally observed as a holiday by the business houses of our town, although the services held at the different places of worship were well attended. The day opened fine, but during the afternoon a heavy storm set in, and on Saturday snow fell in small quantities throughout the entire day.

—Before placing your order for carpets, call and see J. W. Beckwith's immense variety and choice patterns, as well as prices. He will be pleased to show you a large variety and better patterns from which to select, notwithstanding the inducements at present being offered by parties representing city establishments. Carpets made ready to put down if desired.

—The TRIPPER HOUSE CASE.—Late intelligence from Mr. Longley states that the case of "M. M. Trippe" is now before the Board of Censors, and that the result of their enquiries has been to effect that his breeding is all that is required, and have notified Mr. Wallace that the horse must be registered, if not under his present name, but some other name. Tupper feels very much pleased over the decision.

—Call and see J. W. Beckwith's fine line of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Boots and Shoes, every pair warranted.

—Miss Tamar C. Longley, a maiden lady of advanced years, whose demise occurred at the residence of her nephew, T. F. Longley, last week in Grandville, was a native of that place. She possessed many amiable qualities, and was greatly respected by a large circle of relatives and friends.

Lawrenceston Notes. —The Easter Service held in the vestry of the Lawrenceston Baptist Church was quite a success, twenty-one dollars being realized.

—The Easter Service held in the Methodist Church, Lawrenceston, in connection with the Mission Band was a grand success notwithstanding the very unfavorable weather. The collection amounted to six dollars and fifty cents.

—We have been much pleased by a visit from Miss Ella Gilmore, of Horton Landing, who was our late teacher here. Eugene Newcomb, Esq., was home to spend Easter with his parents. He is looking well.

—Israel Chute, of Port Maitland, is now in town, assuming to be a student here. Some of the boys spent Good Friday fishing. Roads improving some.

—Judge Botford, a prominent New Brunswick jurist and public man, met with a very sad and painful death last Saturday falling through a second story window of the Montreal Hotel building, at Montreal, N. B. He was in his 77th year, and had been in the city for some time.

—J. W. Beckwith imported direct 3000 lbs. of Dress Goods for this spring's trade, ranging in price from 8 cents to $2.00 per yard. He specially requests an inspection of quality, styles and prices.

—Call and see J. W. Beckwith's fine line of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Boots and Shoes, every pair warranted.

—Miss Tamar C. Longley, a maiden lady of advanced years, whose demise occurred at the residence of her nephew, T. F. Longley, last week in Grandville, was a native of that place. She possessed many amiable qualities, and was greatly respected by a large circle of relatives and friends.

Lawrenceston Notes. —The Easter Service held in the vestry of the Lawrenceston Baptist Church was quite a success, twenty-one dollars being realized.

—The Easter Service held in the Methodist Church, Lawrenceston, in connection with the Mission Band was a grand success notwithstanding the very unfavorable weather. The collection amounted to six dollars and fifty cents.

—We have been much pleased by a visit from Miss Ella Gilmore, of Horton Landing, who was our late teacher here. Eugene Newcomb, Esq., was home to spend Easter with his parents. He is looking well.

—Israel Chute, of Port Maitland, is now in town, assuming to be a student here. Some of the boys spent Good Friday fishing. Roads improving some.

—Judge Botford, a prominent New Brunswick jurist and public man, met with a very sad and painful death last Saturday falling through a second story window of the Montreal Hotel building, at Montreal, N. B. He was in his 77th year, and had been in the city for some time.

—J. W. Beckwith imported direct 3000 lbs. of Dress Goods for this spring's trade, ranging in price from 8 cents to $2.00 per yard. He specially requests an inspection of quality, styles and prices.

New Advertisements.

FOR SALE OR TO LET. A Small Property, situated on the Point Road, near the residence of Mr. J. W. Beckwith. Possession given immediately. For further particulars apply to Mr. J. W. Beckwith, at his residence, Grandville, N. S.

WANTED. Men to take orders for Nursery Stock, on Saturday or to make. I can make a successful SALESMAN.

For Sale. THREE subscribers offers at private sale his premises, situated at Paradise, one mile east of Highway Station. The property consists of twenty-three acres of tillage land, with orchard, well fenced, dwelling, barn, stable, and wood lot. If not disposed of by private sale the above property will be offered at Public Auction.

Public Auction. On the premises on SATURDAY, APRIL 12th, at 10 o'clock, p.m. Further particulars applying to I. M. LONGLEY, Guyabona, N. S.

Administrators' Sale. To be sold at Public Auction, on Thursday, April 17th, '90, at ten o'clock, a.m., at the residence of the late WALTER STEADMAN.

Specialties AT Shipley's. WINDOW GLASS, PAINTS, OILS, VARNISHES, General Hardware.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

New Advertisements.

FOR SALE OR TO LET. A Small Property, situated on the Point Road, near the residence of Mr. J. W. Beckwith. Possession given immediately. For further particulars apply to Mr. J. W. Beckwith, at his residence, Grandville, N. S.

WANTED. Men to take orders for Nursery Stock, on Saturday or to make. I can make a successful SALESMAN.

For Sale. THREE subscribers offers at private sale his premises, situated at Paradise, one mile east of Highway Station. The property consists of twenty-three acres of tillage land, with orchard, well fenced, dwelling, barn, stable, and wood lot. If not disposed of by private sale the above property will be offered at Public Auction.

Public Auction. On the premises on SATURDAY, APRIL 12th, at 10 o'clock, p.m. Further particulars applying to I. M. LONGLEY, Guyabona, N. S.

Administrators' Sale. To be sold at Public Auction, on Thursday, April 17th, '90, at ten o'clock, a.m., at the residence of the late WALTER STEADMAN.

Specialties AT Shipley's. WINDOW GLASS, PAINTS, OILS, VARNISHES, General Hardware.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS FULTON, Lower Stables, Colebrook County. WANTED—Working men, immediately. 525 Bath Brothers' Livery Stable.

Local and Other Matter.

—We understand that the offertory in St. James' church on Easter Sunday realized within a trifle of one hundred dollars.

—The most valuable advertising medium are those that have one price without variation, and will not under any circumstances, accept a cut rate.

—A good deal of amusement has been afforded some of our citizens the past few days, by the exhibition of a building belonging to Mr. David Woodland, and which he has taken to the court street, where it will be fitted up and used as a dwelling house.

—The magnificent Band of the Household Troops, belonging to the Salvation Army, embracing twenty-five picked players, will give an entertainment in Bridgetown, Wednesday evening, April 10th, commencing at 7.30.

—On Tuesday morning, on Queen street, a sum of money. Any person claiming the same, by giving satisfactory proof as to denomination and amount can obtain it by applying to Samuel FitzRandolph at this office.

—Several men left here on Monday morning for the Paradise works, having been engaged by Mr. John Haley, of the Round Hill Woodland, and assistant in bringing along his drive of some fifteen thousand logs.

—The sealing schooner Pathfinder recently seized at Port Townsend has been released under orders from Washington. The reason alleged is that the Federal authorities of the state of Washington had no jurisdiction or control in the matter, those of Alaska alone having authority.

—Good Friday was not very generally observed as a holiday by the business houses of our town, although the services held at the different places of worship were well attended. The day opened fine, but during the afternoon a heavy storm set in, and on Saturday snow fell in small quantities throughout the entire day.

—Before placing your order for carpets, call and see J. W. Beckwith's immense variety and choice patterns, as well as prices. He will be pleased to show you a large variety and better patterns from which to select, notwithstanding the inducements at present being offered by parties representing city establishments. Carpets made ready to put down if desired.

—The TRIPPER HOUSE CASE.—Late intelligence from Mr. Longley states that the case of "M. M. Trippe" is now before the Board of Censors, and that the result of their enquiries has been to effect that his breeding is all that is required, and have notified Mr. Wallace that the horse must be registered, if not under his present name, but some other name. Tupper feels very much pleased over the decision.

Local and Other Matter.

—We understand that the offertory in St. James' church on Easter Sunday realized within a trifle of one hundred dollars.

—The most valuable advertising medium are those that have one price without variation, and will not under any circumstances, accept a cut rate.

—A good deal of amusement has been afforded some of our citizens the past few days, by the exhibition of a building belonging to Mr. David Woodland, and which he has taken to the court street, where it will be fitted up and used as a dwelling house.

—The magnificent Band of the Household Troops, belonging to the Salvation Army, embracing twenty-five picked players, will give an entertainment in Bridgetown, Wednesday evening, April 10th, commencing at 7.30.

—On Tuesday morning, on Queen street, a sum of money. Any person claiming the same, by giving satisfactory proof as to denomination and amount can obtain it by applying to Samuel FitzRandolph at this office.

—Several men left here on Monday morning for the Paradise works, having been engaged by Mr. John Haley, of the Round Hill Woodland, and assistant in bringing along his drive of some fifteen thousand logs.

—The sealing schooner Pathfinder recently seized at Port Townsend has been released under orders from Washington. The reason alleged is that the Federal authorities of the state of Washington had no jurisdiction or control in the matter, those of Alaska alone having authority.

—Good Friday was not very generally observed as a holiday by the business houses of our town, although the services held at the different places of worship were well attended. The day opened fine, but during the afternoon a heavy storm set in, and on Saturday snow fell in small quantities throughout the entire day.

—Before placing your order for carpets, call and see J. W. Beckwith's immense variety and choice patterns, as well as prices. He will be pleased to show you a large variety and better patterns from which to select, notwithstanding the inducements at present being offered by parties representing city establishments. Carpets made ready to put down if desired.

—The TRIPPER HOUSE CASE.—Late intelligence from Mr. Longley states that the case of "M. M. Trippe" is now before the Board of Censors, and that the result of their enquiries has been to effect that his breeding is all that is required, and have notified Mr. Wallace that the horse must be registered, if not under his present name, but some other name. Tupper feels very much pleased over the decision.

Local and Other Matter.

—We understand that the offertory in St. James' church on Easter Sunday realized within a trifle of one hundred dollars.

—The most valuable advertising medium are those that have one price without variation, and will not under any circumstances, accept a cut rate.

—A good deal of amusement has been afforded some of our citizens the past few days, by the exhibition of a building belonging to Mr. David Woodland, and which he has taken to the court street, where it will be fitted up and used as a dwelling house.

—The magnificent Band of the Household Troops, belonging to the Salvation Army, embracing twenty-five picked players, will give an entertainment in Bridgetown, Wednesday evening, April 10th, commencing at 7.30.

—On Tuesday morning, on Queen street, a sum of money. Any person claiming the same, by giving satisfactory proof as to denomination and amount can obtain it by applying to Samuel FitzRandolph at this office.

—Several men left here on Monday morning for the Paradise works, having been engaged by Mr. John Haley, of the Round Hill Woodland, and assistant in bringing along his drive of some fifteen thousand logs.

—The sealing schooner Pathfinder recently seized at Port Townsend has been released under orders from Washington. The reason alleged is that the Federal authorities of the state of Washington had no jurisdiction or control in the matter, those of Alaska alone having authority.

—Good Friday was not very generally observed as a holiday by the business houses of our town, although the services held at the different places of worship were well attended. The day opened fine, but during the afternoon a heavy storm set in, and on Saturday snow fell in small quantities throughout the entire day.

—Before placing your order for carpets, call and see J. W. Beckwith's immense variety and choice patterns, as well as prices. He will be pleased to show you a large variety and better patterns from which to select, notwithstanding the inducements at present being offered by parties representing city establishments. Carpets made ready to put down if desired.

—The TRIPPER HOUSE CASE.—Late intelligence from Mr. Longley states that the case of "M. M. Trippe" is now before the Board of Censors, and that the result of their enquiries has been to effect that his breeding is all that is required, and have notified Mr. Wallace that the horse must be registered, if not under his present name, but some other name. Tupper feels very much pleased over the decision.

Local and Other Matter.

—We understand that the offertory in St. James' church on Easter Sunday realized within a trifle of one hundred dollars.

—The most valuable advertising medium are those that have one price without variation, and will not under any circumstances, accept a cut rate.

—A good deal of amusement has been afforded some of our citizens the past few days, by the exhibition of a building belonging to Mr. David Woodland, and which he has taken to the court street, where it will be fitted up and used as a dwelling house.

—The magnificent Band of the Household Troops, belonging to the Salvation Army, embracing twenty-five picked players, will give an entertainment in Bridgetown, Wednesday evening, April 10th, commencing at 7.30.

—On Tuesday morning, on Queen street, a sum of money. Any person claiming the same, by giving satisfactory proof as to denomination and amount can obtain it by applying to Samuel FitzRandolph at this office.

—Several men left here on Monday morning for the Paradise works, having been engaged by Mr. John Haley, of the Round Hill Woodland, and assistant in bringing along his drive of some fifteen thousand logs.

—The sealing schooner Pathfinder recently seized at Port Townsend has been released under orders from Washington. The reason alleged is that the Federal authorities of the state of Washington had no jurisdiction or control in the matter, those of Alaska alone having authority.

—Good Friday was not very generally observed as a holiday by the business houses of our town, although the services held at the different places of worship were well attended. The day opened fine, but during the afternoon a heavy storm set in, and on Saturday snow fell in small quantities throughout the entire day.

—Before placing your order for carpets, call and see J. W. Beckwith's immense variety and choice patterns, as well as prices. He will be pleased to show you a large variety and better patterns from which to select, notwithstanding the inducements at present being offered by parties representing city establishments. Carpets made ready to put down if desired.

—The TRIPPER HOUSE CASE.—Late intelligence from Mr. Longley states that the case of "M. M. Trippe" is now before the Board of Censors, and that the result of their enquiries has been to effect that his breeding is all that is required, and have notified Mr. Wallace that the horse must be registered, if not under his present name, but some other name. Tupper feels very much pleased over the decision.

New Advertisements.

FOR SALE OR TO LET. A Small Property, situated on the Point Road, near the residence of Mr. J. W. Beckwith. Possession given immediately. For further particulars apply to Mr. J. W. Beckwith, at his residence, Grandville, N. S.

WANTED. Men to take orders for Nursery Stock, on Saturday or to make. I can make a successful SALESMAN.

For Sale. THREE subscribers offers at private sale his premises, situated at Paradise, one mile east of Highway Station. The property consists of twenty-three acres of tillage land, with orchard, well fenced, dwelling, barn, stable, and wood lot. If not disposed of by private sale the above property will be offered at Public Auction.

Public Auction. On the premises on SATURDAY, APRIL 12th, at 10 o'clock, p.m. Further particulars applying to I. M. LONGLEY, Guyabona, N. S.

Administrators' Sale. To be sold at Public Auction, on Thursday, April 17th, '90, at ten o'clock, a.m., at the residence of the late WALTER STEADMAN.

Specialties AT Shipley's. WINDOW GLASS, PAINTS, OILS, VARNISHES, General Hardware.

FOR SALE! A three-story Holston Frame Brick Bldg. 2 1/2 stories high, by imported stock. Direct. Rep. Apply to THEOPHILUS F

Local and Other Matter.

Two cents a pound increase on the duty on beef will weigh in the Chicago article from provincial markets. But it will be a source of much consolation to the home raised steer and his owner.

The good style and low prices of J. W. Beckwith's Hats and Caps, and ready-made clothing are surprising all.

An exhibit for Northwest immigration was submitted to the government Saturday. Among other things suggested to the government is to have immigration maps of Canada prepared and an edition of 200,000 published and distributed among the school books of Great Britain.

Mrs. Kent-Mason Clayton - Chicago is as popular as ever with persons desiring to sever the matrimonial bond, due, no doubt, to the "examples" in high and low life, that have been given.

A divorce was granted by Judge Collins yesterday to Arthur H. Clayton, a clerk for J. W. Tully & Co., from Martha Clayton, a temperance lecturer well known in Canada as Mrs. Kent-Mason.

Many of our readers will remember Mr. Kent-Mason, who a few years ago lectured on temperance here, and for a time created a mild sensation. On a lecturing tour about Me. Clayton, who was studying for the Methodist ministry, and was just then on probation. There were two sons, etc., and they fell in love and were married. Mr. Clayton had to give up his ministerial prospects and the couple went to the United States, where Mr. Clayton obtained lay employment.

Provincial Paragraphs. Mr. W. G. Perley, M. P. for Ottawa, died on April last.

Widow Caldwell, relict of the late Sheriff Caldwell, of Kentville, died on Friday night last.

APPOINTMENT.—Francis A. McMahon, of North Annapolis, has been appointed a Justice of the Peace.

The City of Montserrat made the trip from St. John to Digby wharf on Monday last in three hours and thirteen minutes, and the return trip in three hours and sixteen minutes.

Rev. Geo. Christie, an agent and well-known minister of the Presbyterian church in Nova Scotia, has asked Presbytery for leave to retire from the active work of the ministry.

James McLeod, of White Hill, Colchester, has been committed for trial at the Supreme Court at Toronto, Ontario, on the 23rd March of Capt. J. R. Bowry, of the ship Nereida. Capt. Bowry has recently returned from the Nereida.

It is understood that the trotting race to take place between L. D. Windsor, horse, of Halifax, and Mr. Bill's horse, of Billtown has been satisfactorily arranged. The race will take place on the Kentville track, and the date will be either the 16th or 24th of May.

Geo. Cameron, Mr. Leander Palmer, of Long Island, recently sold 3 head of cattle to a party in Windsor-ville, 1 cow weighing 1600 lbs., and 1 pair of oxen weighing 4300 lbs. He realized for the same the handsome sum of $297.25, selling at the rate of $13 dollars per cwt.

George Cummings of Canning, received a despatch from the Capt. of the schooner Nellie Blanche which cleared this port a few days ago for New York and put into Parrboro, saying that his son Thomas Cummings had been drowned. The afflicted family have the sympathy of the village.

James Wilson, of Dutch settlement, Gay's River, was tried by County Stipendiary Griffin a short time ago, charged with cheating and killing moose in the close season. The case was brought by the Game Society, but the offense charged was not clearly proven, and his honor dismissed the case. A day or two after a warrant was issued against the same party, charging him with having in his possession during the close season the carcass of a moose. The case was set down for yesterday morning, but the defendant didn't appear. Daniel Iron, testified that the accused had on his sled, on March 22nd, the carcass of a moose. The case was continued to the 11th inst.

Mount Unkidee - I. H. Hattie, Digby and Bay View - L. D. Morrill, Middleton and Melvern Square - L. W. Parker. St. Croix and Ellershouse - George R. McLeod. Missionary to Labrador - F. W. Thompson.

The supply of some other stations was left for the Presbytery's home mission committee. The request the college board to undertake the enlargement of the Pine Hill building was granted, as far as the Presbytery's interest went. The call for the congregation of Shubenacadie to its late pastor was sustained. Mr. Wilson was granted in a call to the congregation of Lower Westville, Waterville and Lakeville.

It is from there a veritable boom, good properties in favorable locations finding ready purchasers. This is not due alone to the rise in the price of iron, but it is the natural outcome of the formation of several large companies to work our iron deposits and the progressive action of Mr. Lockie, the Superintendent of the Lonsdale Iron Works, in seeking out new sources of ore supply. From Cape Breton to Digby County all available deposits are being tested and several have already been found. We have unlimited supplies of all grades of ore with coal and flux close at hand, and the only wonder is that this Province has so long remained such a small producer of iron and steel. In 1888 we mined 41,011 tons and in 1889 45,997 tons. The increase in the amount mined this year should easily double the latter amount, and ten years from now these figures will dwindle into insignificance in the face of the immense yield from ship building of the iron.

Had suffered with headache, and tried everything I could think of without effect until I used Burdock Blood Bitters, which relieved me right away, and I am now so marked well. ANNE TORNBURG, Glen Almond, Que.

Correspondence.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents.

DEAR EDITOR,—It is getting so near the end of the school term, I think it would be amiss to call attention to the fact of your readers to school matters. In fact, it would not be amiss at any time, for the subject is one in which every grower person should be interested; for any one who pays his taxes, even though he may not send any children to school, has an interest enough to look to the end for which his money is expended.

Though we have one of the finest and best working systems of education that exists to-day, yet I cannot refrain from the remark that it is vastly superior to perfection in theory than in actual practice; and far from this, that the degree of perfection rests, in a great measure, on the parents themselves. I do not mean to say that the parent "makes the school," but I do mean to state that whether the school does its proper amount of work or not, depends, far greater degree, on the parents than they seem aware of.

It is next to impossible to develop the mental faculties of the child in the proper direction, and quite impossible to have a proper development in a moral direction, unless the parents during the school term do co-operate with the influence of the school. The first to think of the parents, are so liable to think of the teacher and his work in one of two extreme aspects. The first is to think of the school as a mere place where the child is sent to be taught, and the second is to think of the school as a place where the child is sent to be punished.

It is not generally the case, you hear from your child, or from the school, of some action that has taken place there, and that draw your conclusions. I do not for a moment intend to say that the child has not told the truth, in so far as it is acquainted with the facts, for they generally speak fairly, and are more strictly than when they get older, but what he tells you is only his view of the subject. In the measure of his knowledge about the house his counsel would not for one moment be asked, but nevertheless, you do not for an instant pause before you judge the whole educational work of your school from his mere impressions and his only. From this source your ideas are unjust even if you consider the teacher in his other extreme aspect, the person who should never give advice because teaching is his business, and therefore every act that does not exactly fall in with your own opinion should be caused either by the teacher's stupidity, ignorance, or capriciousness.

How, then, do you suppose, are you to "take an interest in the school" as it is called, or "partial judgment" simply, know what is going on in the schoolroom and know it exactly, and then pass your remarks and your opinion afterwards; it is a curious fact that the most fault-finding school work is found by school parents who do not go to school. I know the least about it. If you follow this, it will make it compulsory for you to visit the school room, and you can see for yourself the object that you have not time. No! you have not time for this, but you can attend societies or public meetings, talk politics, gossip about crops or horses or fancy work, and even occasionally read a story or go to a picnic. Of course you consider such things more important than the education of your children. You must consider it so, or at least you must consent to see your children gain an education to fit them for the upper parts of life, or the lower, or both, as the case may be. You would think it an act of severity to punish a child for not doing his school work, but how many of you can keep your children at home, for no sufficient reason, but to satisfy their deprive them of an education by which their usefulness in the world is lessened? I do not mean to say that those whose children do not attend school at all; but very many of you would be surprised to-day, if you could look at the school register and find that from various causes, your child has lost nearly half the number of days of school and thereby lost far more than half of the term's opportunities. If you would only try to help the teachers in their work, instead of trying to drive them to any method, (when you really have none), you would find it vastly to your own ease and more pleasant for all. Obstacles that look like mountains will prove to be anti-hills and education be promoted instead of being retarded to the utmost of your power, by grumbling and fault-finding. Some parents find comfort for their minds, by attending, as a matter of duty, at the half-yearly public examination, and from that judge the half-yearly public examination. If in a teacher's work there is one thing more to be detested than another, it is "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Correspondence.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents.

DEAR EDITOR,—It is getting so near the end of the school term, I think it would be amiss to call attention to the fact of your readers to school matters. In fact, it would not be amiss at any time, for the subject is one in which every grower person should be interested; for any one who pays his taxes, even though he may not send any children to school, has an interest enough to look to the end for which his money is expended.

Though we have one of the finest and best working systems of education that exists to-day, yet I cannot refrain from the remark that it is vastly superior to perfection in theory than in actual practice; and far from this, that the degree of perfection rests, in a great measure, on the parents themselves. I do not mean to say that the parent "makes the school," but I do mean to state that whether the school does its proper amount of work or not, depends, far greater degree, on the parents than they seem aware of.

It is next to impossible to develop the mental faculties of the child in the proper direction, and quite impossible to have a proper development in a moral direction, unless the parents during the school term do co-operate with the influence of the school. The first to think of the parents, are so liable to think of the teacher and his work in one of two extreme aspects. The first is to think of the school as a mere place where the child is sent to be taught, and the second is to think of the school as a place where the child is sent to be punished.

It is not generally the case, you hear from your child, or from the school, of some action that has taken place there, and that draw your conclusions. I do not for a moment intend to say that the child has not told the truth, in so far as it is acquainted with the facts, for they generally speak fairly, and are more strictly than when they get older, but what he tells you is only his view of the subject. In the measure of his knowledge about the house his counsel would not for one moment be asked, but nevertheless, you do not for an instant pause before you judge the whole educational work of your school from his mere impressions and his only. From this source your ideas are unjust even if you consider the teacher in his other extreme aspect, the person who should never give advice because teaching is his business, and therefore every act that does not exactly fall in with your own opinion should be caused either by the teacher's stupidity, ignorance, or capriciousness.

How, then, do you suppose, are you to "take an interest in the school" as it is called, or "partial judgment" simply, know what is going on in the schoolroom and know it exactly, and then pass your remarks and your opinion afterwards; it is a curious fact that the most fault-finding school work is found by school parents who do not go to school. I know the least about it. If you follow this, it will make it compulsory for you to visit the school room, and you can see for yourself the object that you have not time. No! you have not time for this, but you can attend societies or public meetings, talk politics, gossip about crops or horses or fancy work, and even occasionally read a story or go to a picnic. Of course you consider such things more important than the education of your children. You must consider it so, or at least you must consent to see your children gain an education to fit them for the upper parts of life, or the lower, or both, as the case may be. You would think it an act of severity to punish a child for not doing his school work, but how many of you can keep your children at home, for no sufficient reason, but to satisfy their deprive them of an education by which their usefulness in the world is lessened? I do not mean to say that those whose children do not attend school at all; but very many of you would be surprised to-day, if you could look at the school register and find that from various causes, your child has lost nearly half the number of days of school and thereby lost far more than half of the term's opportunities. If you would only try to help the teachers in their work, instead of trying to drive them to any method, (when you really have none), you would find it vastly to your own ease and more pleasant for all. Obstacles that look like mountains will prove to be anti-hills and education be promoted instead of being retarded to the utmost of your power, by grumbling and fault-finding. Some parents find comfort for their minds, by attending, as a matter of duty, at the half-yearly public examination, and from that judge the half-yearly public examination. If in a teacher's work there is one thing more to be detested than another, it is "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Ms. Editor,—In your issue of the 26th ultimo, a letter appears over the signature of Albert Morse, to which I was invited to reply by replying very briefly, after which I shall trouble you no further. Mr. Morse complains of my criticism, and says that I am "out and dried" examination. No one can on the eventful day a question is asked that the child cannot answer, and he is sent to the principal's office, and kept in mind that though a person's memory might be better, they may still be poor. Yours sincerely, "MOVE FORWARD."

Correspondence.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents.

DEAR EDITOR,—It is getting so near the end of the school term, I think it would be amiss to call attention to the fact of your readers to school matters. In fact, it would not be amiss at any time, for the subject is one in which every grower person should be interested; for any one who pays his taxes, even though he may not send any children to school, has an interest enough to look to the end for which his money is expended.

Though we have one of the finest and best working systems of education that exists to-day, yet I cannot refrain from the remark that it is vastly superior to perfection in theory than in actual practice; and far from this, that the degree of perfection rests, in a great measure, on the parents themselves. I do not mean to say that the parent "makes the school," but I do mean to state that whether the school does its proper amount of work or not, depends, far greater degree, on the parents than they seem aware of.

It is next to impossible to develop the mental faculties of the child in the proper direction, and quite impossible to have a proper development in a moral direction, unless the parents during the school term do co-operate with the influence of the school. The first to think of the parents, are so liable to think of the teacher and his work in one of two extreme aspects. The first is to think of the school as a mere place where the child is sent to be taught, and the second is to think of the school as a place where the child is sent to be punished.

It is not generally the case, you hear from your child, or from the school, of some action that has taken place there, and that draw your conclusions. I do not for a moment intend to say that the child has not told the truth, in so far as it is acquainted with the facts, for they generally speak fairly, and are more strictly than when they get older, but what he tells you is only his view of the subject. In the measure of his knowledge about the house his counsel would not for one moment be asked, but nevertheless, you do not for an instant pause before you judge the whole educational work of your school from his mere impressions and his only. From this source your ideas are unjust even if you consider the teacher in his other extreme aspect, the person who should never give advice because teaching is his business, and therefore every act that does not exactly fall in with your own opinion should be caused either by the teacher's stupidity, ignorance, or capriciousness.

How, then, do you suppose, are you to "take an interest in the school" as it is called, or "partial judgment" simply, know what is going on in the schoolroom and know it exactly, and then pass your remarks and your opinion afterwards;

Miscellaneous.

Tricks of Showmen.

HOW THE WHITE ELEPHANTS OF FOREPAUGH AND BARNUM WERE SECURED.

Old showmen who traveled with the late Adam Forepaugh or were intimately acquainted with him for many years have...

"When Barnum announced that he had procured a sacred white elephant, Adam Forepaugh made up his mind that he must have one at once.

The low hum of the insects outside and the sighing of the wind-swept pines made to the worshippers incline to slumber, and Abraham was about to drift away to dreamland...

UNPLEASANT REMARKS.—Never till anybody an unpalatable truth when it is necessary for good purpose.

"In 1884, when Forepaugh had his white elephant in the show, an embassy from Siam visited the country for a tour through the states.

The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died...

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

"The white elephant appeared on the bill and in the show until interest in the animal began to flag, and then it was suddenly announced that the sacred white elephant had died, having been unable to stand the climate.

Farm and Garden.

Points of Interest for Farmers.

One industry greatly neglected in this country is the breeding of large, strong mules.

Now it happened that the minister had chosen for his text one more appropriate than his, for when the opening exercises were over he rose from his seat and said solemnly, "Abraham, what hast thou in thy bosom?"

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

Farm and Garden.

Points of Interest for Farmers.

One industry greatly neglected in this country is the breeding of large, strong mules.

Now it happened that the minister had chosen for his text one more appropriate than his, for when the opening exercises were over he rose from his seat and said solemnly, "Abraham, what hast thou in thy bosom?"

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

Farm and Garden.

Points of Interest for Farmers.

One industry greatly neglected in this country is the breeding of large, strong mules.

Now it happened that the minister had chosen for his text one more appropriate than his, for when the opening exercises were over he rose from his seat and said solemnly, "Abraham, what hast thou in thy bosom?"

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

Farm and Garden.

Points of Interest for Farmers.

One industry greatly neglected in this country is the breeding of large, strong mules.

Now it happened that the minister had chosen for his text one more appropriate than his, for when the opening exercises were over he rose from his seat and said solemnly, "Abraham, what hast thou in thy bosom?"

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

At a late Kentucky sale 400 horses brought an average of $85 a head.

Now long since a dealer shipped eighteen horses from a station in Pennsylvania to Newark, N. J., all in one car.

The Household.

Care for Your Mother.

Young ladies, don't loiter about the parlour spending your time with some foolish schoolmate...

Don't dress yourself up in fine laces, silks and jewels, while she wears old, faded calico.

Don't take all the holidays and pleasure trips and leave her alone.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

The Household.

Care for Your Mother.

Young ladies, don't loiter about the parlour spending your time with some foolish schoolmate...

Don't dress yourself up in fine laces, silks and jewels, while she wears old, faded calico.

Don't take all the holidays and pleasure trips and leave her alone.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

Don't let her sit alone in the kitchen, unwept and unthought of.

FRASER'S HARDWARE STORE.

QUEEN STREET, BRIDGE TOWN.

At this well-known Establishment are offered the iron and steel in all the usual forms and of excellent quality and at lowest cash rates.

A large assortment of tools in great variety, including Pickaxe, Diggers, Shovels, Spades, Hand and Crosscut Saws, Hacks, Hoes, &c., and a full assortment of hardware.

Also, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Turpentine and Ready Cut Glass.

NAILS and SPIKES, cut and wrought, in full variety and cheap as any in the market.

ARTISTS' MATERIALS also in stock to suit all wants in the town and as cheap.

ORDERS FOR COAL SOFT OR HARD for House and Smith's use, received and delivered at lowest rates.

H. FRASER.

A FINE BREACH LOADING GUN FOR $5.25.

Weights only 5-3-4 lbs. Strong, well finished, and a good shooter.

FINE DOUBLE BARREL GUNS!

Powder, Shot, Shells, Cartridges, and all kinds of Ammunition.

For Sale Cheap.

B. STARRATT.

EXCELSIOR PACKAGE DYES ARE UNEQUALLED.

SIMPLICITY OF USE, BEAUTY OF COLOR, AND THE LARGE AMOUNT OF GOODS DYEABLE WITH WILL.

The Colors, namely, are supplied: Yellow, Orange, Red, Pink, Blue, Green, Purple, Black, Brown, Grey, White.

SOLE MANUFACTURERS: C. HARRISON & CO., Cambridge, Kings Co., N. S.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE!

MERCHANTS AND DRUGGISTS who have been supplied with this dye, are requested to inform their customers that the dye is of the highest quality and that it is the only dye of the kind in the market.

SOLE MANUFACTURERS: C. HARRISON & CO., Cambridge, Kings Co., N. S.

LOOK HERE FRIEND!

If you have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back? Do you feel dull and sleepy? Do you have a headache? Do you feel nervous and restless? Do you feel a general weakness? Do you feel a general debility? Do you feel a general prostration? Do you feel a general exhaustion? Do you feel a general collapse? Do you feel a general paralysis? Do you feel a general convulsion? Do you feel a general apoplexy? Do you feel a general aneurysm? Do you feel a general hernia? Do you feel a general fistula? Do you feel a general abscess? Do you feel a general tumor? Do you feel a general cancer? Do you feel a general syphilis? Do you feel a general gonorrhoea? Do you feel a general leucorrhoea? Do you feel a general dysuria? Do you feel a general hematuria? Do you feel a general meluria? Do you feel a general strabismus? Do you feel a general myopia? Do you feel a general hypermetropia? Do you feel a general astigmatism? Do you feel a general presbyopia? Do you feel a general cataract? Do you feel a general glaucoma? Do you feel a general optic neuritis? Do you feel a general optic atrophy? Do you feel a general optic glioma? Do you feel a general optic meningitis? Do you feel a general optic sarcoma? Do you feel a general optic carcinoma? Do you feel a general optic melanoma? Do you feel a general optic lymphoma? Do you feel a general optic sarcoma? Do you feel a general optic carcinoma? Do you feel a general optic melanoma? Do you feel a general optic lymphoma?

Prepared only by FRANK SMITH, Apothecary, St. Stephen, N. B.

Price, 25 cents; five boxes, $1. If not kept by your local dealer, we will send a box by mail on receipt of price.

Harry Morgan!

This fine horse, owned by Thomas Doran, Windsor, was the season of 1889.

BRIDGETOWN & HORTON.

HE will stand at Glenore's Stable on Saturday, 24th May, and remain until Monday, 27th May, when he will be sold at public auction.

What is he? He is a fine, powerful, and active horse, and is well adapted for all kinds of work.

Further particulars will be given later.

THOMAS DORAN, Auctioneer.

Prof. Loissette's MEMORY.

DISCOVERY AND TRAINING METHOD.

In spite of advanced intelligence, which gives the student a great advantage, the memory is the most important faculty of the human mind.

The student who has a good memory will be able to do more in less time, and will be able to do more things than those who have a poor memory.

The student who has a good memory will be able to do more in less time, and will be able to do more things than those who have a