WALTER SCOTT, The "Keen Kutter"

Ensign Fowler Killed

Popular Young Salem Naval Aviator Met Death Saturday Morning While Flying at Pensacola, Fla.

From the Salem Mass. News

A telegram received in Salem Saturday afternoon brought the sad tidings of Ensign F. Malcom Fowler, United States Navy aviation department, and son of John W. and Margaret (Roach) Fowler of this city. Ensign Fowler, the telegram stated, was killed with Chief Quartermaster Eyar, by the fall of their seaplane into Pensacola Bay, Fla. Saturday. No further particulars were given. The first news came to Salem by Associated Press wire to The News, and was immediately followed by one to the family from the war department.

Ensign Fowler was born in Newburyport, April 9, 1897, and came to Salem when he was seven years of age. He was educated in the practice and the Salem High schools, graduating from the latter in the class of 1914. He went to the Mexican border with Battery D, Salem Cadet Artillery, and while there was war correspondent of the Salem News. On his return, he entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a member of the class that would have graduated in 1919, entered the Massachusetts Institute of Naval aviation school until his enlistment in 1917 and then continued his instruction while taking the course himself, completing with the highest standing. Any student going through the school.

His enlistment he was detailed as instructor of theory flight at the business company plant, Marblehead and also designer of aerial craft. He was next sent to Washington, D. C. and then to Akron, Ohio. While at Akron, Ohio, he and six others fell at the Goodyear Rubber plant 500 feet from a dirigible and all escaped. Lastly he went to Pensacola as an instructor, where his time had nearly expired and he was soon expected home. In fact, it is thought that he was making his last flight, when the disaster occurred. He was made an ensign on his entrance into the navy.

There have been few, if any, more popular young Salem men, than Ensign Fowler. By all his schoolmates and acquaintances he was held in the highest esteem. While in the High school he was manager of the baseball team. In his home he was idolized by his parents and by his only brother, Kenneth Fowler, the last two being almost inseparable. Kenneth was a member of the Salem High school and is now employed by the Security Trust Company, of Lynn. His father is the manager of the Standard Oil Company, in Salem. The body will be sent home by the government, and it is expected in Salem Tuesday night.

Our North Range, Digby county, correspondent writes:—Ensign Fowler's father was the son of the late William and Elizabeth Fowler, the former being a Master Mariner from Granville, N.S., and the mother was a sister of the late Walter Healy and a cousin to your reporter. Mr. John Fowler, Malcom's father, was born in Granville, but his parents moved to Massachusetts, when he was a small boy. Malcom's mother was a New York woman.

MR. JAS. S. DELGATY.

R.R. No. 4. Gilbert Plains, Man. "In the year 1910, I had Nervous Prostration in its worst form; was reduced in weight from 170 pounds to 115 pounds.

I never had such good health for twenty years as I have enjoyed the past six years. We are never without a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' in the house."

Mrs. ALICE HELLER, Christopher, Ill. Nervousness is often a symptom of weakness or some functional derangement, which may be overcome by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as experience.

LIFT CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

"Canada is par Golf," Says Champion Evans

At St. Andrews—
 "Canadian golfers are hard to beat, but Canadian hospitality cannot be beaten," declared Charles ("Chick") Evans, Jr., amateur and open champion golfer of the United States, after he had returned from the Hamilton and Scarborough Golf Clubs. Canadian experts in these clubs had compelled him to play his best to win, and then both clubs had made him a life member. Canada, in my opinion," he added, "is par golf."
 About the third week in June Evans hopes to make his fifth trip to Canada to play for the benefit of the Canadian Red Cross. Other noted golfers who may go along are the Francis Quimet, Jerome D. Travers and John G. Anderson. The cities visited will be Montreal, Ottawa, St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, and Toronto. Canada has a string of well-planned golf courses from the At-lands to the Pacific, ranging from seaside links at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea on the Bay of Fundy to the Banff Springs Golf Club, Alberta, where the golfer can play his game at an altitude of nearly a mile. Golfing farther west he can play the Vancouver and Victoria golf clubs where the altitude is not far above the sea and where the golf sharp can play the royal and ancient game every month in the twelve, because the Japan current decrees that there shall be no "winter killed" greens.

 This year will be the greatest in the history of Canada and the United States so far as international golf is concerned. Ten of Canada's best golfers will play against ten of the best from the United States at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club, Hamilton, Ontario, on July 25th, and the Canadian Seniors, who won the Duke of Devonshire's Cup in a

When to Cut Grass and Clover for Hay.

Experimental Farm Notes.
 It is regrettable that it is a too general practice among farmers in Canada to leave the hay crops to be cut much too long. There are, as a matter of fact, a large number of farmers who delay the cutting of the hay crops far beyond the time when it would pay them the most to cut. In many cases the reason for the delay is that it is general a belief that a somewhat increased tonnage may be secured if cutting is postponed, and in other cases the late cutting is practised because it is even believed that a better quality of hay may be obtained than if the cutting were done earlier.
 In the case of Eastern Canada, where mixed clover and timothy, or timothy alone, are the fundamental hay plants, a few suggestions based on experience may be found not to be out of order.
 Timothy and red clover are the standard hay plants which universally are grown together. The clover is contributing the bulk of the hay crop the year after seeding, and the timothy is furnishing the bulk of the hay the following year or years. Supposing that a farmer has a field of mixed clover and timothy, what would be the best time for him to cut it for hay? The clover develops early and is ready to cut some time before the timothy has reached its best stage. Shall the farmer cut the hay when the red clover is in its prime, or shall he wait until the timothy is at its best? The answer is: cut when the clover is at its best, notwithstanding that the timothy mixed with it may not be as well developed as might be desired, for the reason that the clover is the more valuable part of the mixture. By cutting early, the clover is given a chance to recuperate and to produce a remunerative second crop, which it might fail to do if the cutting for hay is delayed too long for the sake of the timothy.

In case timothy forms the principal part of the hay crop, which it generally does two years or more after seeding to hay, it is important to handle it for hay in a proper manner. Timothy, like most other grasses, has a period of its own when it has the greatest feeding value and when the hay made from it is apt to furnish the maximum feeding value per acre. This period is the time of blossoming. At that time, timothy is richest in flesh and milk producing constituents and, if cut for hay when in bloom, the best quality hay may consequently be realized. It is a mistake to believe that better crops may be secured if cutting is somewhat delayed. Some slight increase in the yield may be obtained but what is gained in quantity is lost in quality and feeding value pound for pound.
 Under the circumstances, early cutting of timothy for hay must of necessity be recommended as the most economical method of securing a hay of the highest possible value.

Inglisville

An exceedingly pretty marriage ceremony took place at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening, June 11th, at the Methodist Church, it was that of Miss Linda Malcolm and Guilford Whitman. At the appointed hour, the groom, supported by Mr. Harry Hatt, took their places at the altar under an arch decorated with flowers. The bride immediately followed with the bridesmaid, Miss Violet Rowter, cousin of the bride. They were preceded by two little flower girls, Edna and Marie McGill. The bride was prettily attired in a gown of white silk trimmed with fringe and lace, and wore tulle veil and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid wore a silk mill with pink trimmings. Rev. Sydney J. Boyce tied the nuptial knot. The wedding march was rendered by Mrs. V. I. Beals. Misses Evelyn Smith and Flora Nogar acted as ushers. At the close about fifty invited guests repaired to the home of the bride's uncle, R. P. Best, where a dainty luncheon was served. The Church was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns for the occasion. They were serenaded by the boys. All wish them a long and prosperous wedded life.

Upper Granville

Miss C. E. Longley is visiting relatives in Boston.
 Mrs. Miller and little son were guests of Mrs. Newcomb quite recently.

Mrs. G. O. Fulton, of Truro, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Troop, with other relatives and friends in the valley and will later be joined by her husband and return by auto to her home.

The "Sweet June days" ever welcome and too quickly on the wane, Queen of months, has given this year lovely days and perfect moonlight nights with sudden changes of temperature. Farming operations are in full swing. The prospect of a heavy hay harvest is prophesied and if perfect bloom goes for a good sign the various fruits with which we are blessed will also be abundant.

POSTMASTER Reception at Granville Ferry Again were we called upon to rejoice upon the homecoming of another of our young men from the battle fields of France. Pte. Gerald B. Mills, 283065, of the 85th Canadian Battalion, arrived home on Wednesday evening, June 11th.

It was a glorious time both to him and his friends, when after three long years he was able to come and find no changes. Pte. Mills enlisted the 17th of March, 1916, with the 219th Batt. After a long summer of training and preparation at Aldershot, on the 11th of Oct., the battalion and others of the Highland brigade, 85th, 193rd, 185th broke camp and entrained for Halifax where the Olympic was waiting for them.

Silently they marched through the streets of Halifax to the steamer and on the morning of the 13th, their faces were turned toward France and what? And Whitley first, then at Bramshott Camp, Pte. Mills received more training and on March 17, 1917. Just one year from the time he enlisted he was in the sunny land of France, as one of the drafts of the 85th Batt. Then began one of the worst battles of the war, Vimy Ridge. On the morning of April 9, at zero, hour 6 o'clock, one big gun spoke and that opened the battle. A good many of our boys met death there but Gerald came through unscathed. After Vimy Ridge he was transferred to the Stretcher Bearer Section of the Batt., and had to render first aid to the wounded upon the battle field.

Through Paschendaele, Lens and Arras, Amiens and up until Nov. 8, Gerald followed his battalion without getting any more than a "close shave". On Nov. 11th peace was declared and from then until the last of April the battalion was stationed at Rixensart, Belgium. In May they went to England and on June 8th docked via Adriatic at Halifax. A reception was held at his parents' home, Mr. L. B. Mills, on June 14. A varied program consisting of an address of welcome by Rev. Mr. Hudson followed by a few well chosen remarks by Pte. Mills, music by Mrs. Patterson and Mr. Brindly, readings by Mrs. Read, speeches by Rev. MacWilliam, Brinley, Patterson and Penney. Refreshments were served and every one returned to their homes well satisfied with their evening spent.

The Quickaction Chemical Fire Extinguisher

THE GREATEST "SAFETY FIRST" INVENTION OF THE AGE

The Quickaction Chemical Fire Extinguisher is the result of years of study, and while being the product of a master inventor's mind, is so simple to operate that a child can use it. This new scientific method fights fire in a manner that water has never been able to do. Its method is altogether different and much more effective. The Quickaction, which is charged with a powerful chemical, does its work by chemical action entirely. By air pressure applied through a single stroke of the powerful force pump a strong, swift stream aimed directly at the fire goes straight to the base of the flame. Chemical action then gets in its deadly work of extinguishing the blaze by choking off the supply of oxygen from the surrounding air. Life cannot exist without oxygen; neither can fire burn.

The Powerful Chemical used is Safe, Harmless, Positive. Having secured the agency for this wonderful invention described above, I am prepared to take orders immediately. Goods delivered from two to three weeks after order is taken. The price of the Extinguisher is $1.50. My plan is to accept 75 cents, or half of the total price, with order, and the balance on delivery of Extinguisher. In this way we both give some security. Those ordering by mail must enclose $1.00 with order to help pay postage, etc., and remaining 50 cents on delivery.

Hoping the public will see the wisdom of having one or more of these wonderful Chemical Fire Extinguishers in their homes, shops, offices, etc., I will be expecting a fair share of your patronage. Sample shown on request.

How Deadly Diseases Are Treated By The Heathen

We reprint the following from the Bear River Church Chronicle:

Bimilpatam, March 20, 1919

My Dear Friend: Other than the Poleyilly feast to which the people flocked in crowds, despite the prevalence of high prices and disease the event of the present month has been the cholera outbreak in Dakam-arri. We were there and spent the day on Friday, the 7th inst. Were in the town as usual, and saw and heard nothing of any special illness. The next day, however, there were six cases of cholera. The matter was reported to me, and I sent for the school to be closed. Went to the hospital to see the Doctor and found the Kernam of the village had reported the matter to him and he was going the next morning to disinfect the wells, etc. It was well he did as the following will show.

That very day a man was stricken with this awful malady and decided to end his agony by making way with himself. He disappeared but what had become of him the villagers could not ascertain but they had a rude awakening on the morning of the fourth day when the body rose to the top of the line well from which the entire caste section of the village gets its water for drinking purposes. For four days they had been drinking that infected water. The Doctor remarked that had he not put the disinfectant in the well it is probable that the mortality would have been appalling. As it was cholera of most virulent type broke out in all parts of the village of 1580 inhabitants. I presume we are quite safe in saying that during the past ten days not less than 100 deaths have occurred. The official report does not give that many, but we know that the facts have been withheld for reasons I will now tell.

Of course this was the work of the cholera goddess and she must be propitiated and driven from the village ere normal conditions could be restored. The case being so extreme, every effort must be made. So from another village a guru who had the name of having great power with the goddesses was brought to the place. Of course his stipulations were agreed to, among them was the stipulation that he was to be fed on plantains and a stated amount of spirits given him daily. The people not only gave him the spirits but imbibed freely themselves. Booths were set up in different parts of the village to which the people rushed with their offerings. There were no indications of any improvement in the health conditions of the place and the guru was asked to explain the reason; so he laid the blame at the door of two of the villagers who were regarded by the people as sort of priests. They were accused of practising witch craft and tying the hands of the goddess so she was powerless to drive out the cholera goddess. The people gathered in a body and surrounded these men declaring they must untie the hands of the goddess or they would beat them until they did so. In vain were their protestations of innocence. Mr. Gullison happened on the scene about this time. One of the threatened men sought his help and he talked with the people for a time, then sent for the responsible heads of the village and told them that if any violence were done these men the guilt would rest largely upon them and he would not keep still.

I have not been to the village, Mr. Gullison absolutely refused to allow me to go in his stead and as I could do nothing more than he was doing, it seemed unwise for both of us to expose ourselves to the disease. So while I remained at home, I prayed that the plague might not come nigh him and that our Christians might be spared and the people might learn how utterly ineffective were all their efforts.

It was when their efforts seemed so futile, that they began to hide the facts. It was reported one day that there were no new cases. Mr. Gullison walked through part of the town and in a short time found four new cases. I have not all the facts of the matter. I hope he may write up his experiences. He told me it was beyond everything he had ever known the people seemed frenzied. Sunday evening when he returned, he said they had been carrying burning palm leaves around the houses lest the goddess might be hiding among the thatch and after walking around the house with the torch another party would beat, the thatch of the house to drive the goddess away should she have been disturbed by the glare of the torch. When Mr. Gullison left the village that night, he said the people were rushing to a certain temple with a black pig, a black goat and a black hen for sacrifice. He said they were so excited that he could readily understand how human sacrifices were possible before the Government made them illegal. He also said that had he not seen what he had, he would have found it difficult to believe that another was not exaggerating in telling the story.

And what of our Christians there? We were much concerned about them and set our tents for them to camp in while the cholera was so bad. We advised them to go to another village and camp near it for a time but by the time the tents reached there, two children in one family were in the grip of the awful sickness and there was nothing to be done but to nurse them. Fortunately we had sent word that they must boil all drinking water, see to it that no flies lighered on their cooked food, etc., and had sent them cholera mixture disinfectant to have in readiness in case of need. Mr. Gullison said their calmness and confidence was in striking contrast to the frenzy of the heathen. We prayed most earnestly that no deaths might occur among them at this time, lest the heathen should say, "Where is now their God?" Up to the present time they have been preserved. The two children are out of danger but the one who had the severer attack is very weak, of course, and will need careful nursing. Not only so, but the majority of those who took medicine from Mr. Gullison, or our Christians there, have recovered. I made special prayer for the safety of our school girls. But one of them, so far as we know, was taken. She had just recovered from a severe attack of fever and was very weak so that when cholera seized her it was a matter of but a few hours and the little life went out. We feel very thankful and we hope this experience may teach some at least of the people that the idol is nothing. Oh! if they could but be delivered from their fear of evil spirits and learn the cause of disease, it would mean so much. I am glad we have that little school there and do hope we may be able to give the children some knowledge that will make them less superstitious in after years.

Very sincerely yours,

IDA M. NEWCOMBE.

Bear River

From the Church Chronicle

Now that socials are regular functions of the Ladies' Circle, it is pleasing to know that these are increasingly popular. The May social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chipman Harris the evening of the 20th. There were about eighty in attendance and everybody had a good time as might be expected when Mrs. Harris was hostess.

The value of these social gatherings to the church life is very marked, tending to break down the barrier to the best interests of the church. It is hoped that others may see their way to attend and thus lend a helping hand to this part of the forward movement programme.

The sum of twenty two dollars was contributed as a voluntary offering toward the fund for the up keep of the parsonage which work is being so splendidly carried on by the ladies of the Circle.

The movement in real estate still continues and even desirable houses for rental are practically out of the question.

Since our last issue the farm formerly owned by Herman Rice has been sold to Capt. Furlong, of St. John.

The Hancock property has been purchased by Burton Frude and the Joseph Henshaw place by Samuel Stevens.

The home of the late Capt. Chas. H. Parker has been sold to Fowler Robinson, and Harry C. Anthony has bought the John A. Purdy place.

Mr. Fulton H. Parker, of Boston will soon occupy the premises recently purchased from Miss Gertrude Fleet.

Work is already under way by Clarke Bros. Ltd., on their extensive development projects at Victoria Bridge and their new offices at Bear River are now in the hands of the carpenters.

The Bear River Trading Co., that has taken over the merchandise part of the business of Clark Bros Ltd., opened for business under the new name on June 2nd.

There promises to be a large tourist travel this year, all the summer hotels reporting full bookings.

BOLSHEVISM Organization as Projected in Russia

Article No. 2 by R. M. King in the Church Chronicle

From the turmoil and confusion which followed the great Russian Revolution and the abdication of the ill fated Czar Nicholas two conspicuous figures, Messrs. Lenine and Trotzky emerged and proceeded to organize the new Bolsheviki Government. This comprised two Grand Departments or features of organization.

FIRST—The Grand Council of state which embraced the Cabinet Ministers and other heads or departments of National Importance. In this council Lenine is president, Trotzky Minister of war.

SECOND The "Soviet" a local committee of management for cities and towns as well as for rural communities. The members of these Departments were to be elected to office by a universal suffrage franchise of the people. But not much could be expected for some time at least from the franchise of a people who were almost wholly illiterate. Less than three per cent of the people of the Russian nation can read and write according to the last census taken. Up to this date no elections have been held. But in the meantime both the Grand Council and the Soviet have been temporarily filled from the hosts of exile both men and women as well as many returned emigrants from America chiefly Jews, who had learned while abroad the mysteries of the three R's and the rudiments of political organization. These all rushed to the help of the new administration. The following business card published by a "Red" leader is suggestive of the character for leadership of some, at least of these adventurers. "Billy Gordon, an American negro pugilist in 1917 was doorman at the American Embassy in Petrograd. He is now a leading member of that city's Soviet government."

What may perhaps be called a third department of this government has been established by the reorganization of the Russian Army for frontier protection as well as control of the restless people at home. The method of enlistment of this army which has now reached considerable proportions has been quite unique. The Government seized all the food supplies in the section where enlistment was in process and then forced the men to join up because otherwise they and all belonging to them would be exterminated by utter starvation. If an officer or soldier deserted, both he and his whole family were hanged up and shot.

The Relation of the Pastor to the Church From the Bear River Church Chronicle

I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me Acts 10:29. If the work of the pastorate is to be carried on successfully and harmoniously it must be based upon a complete understanding between the pastor and his flock.

The probabilities are that nine-tenths of all the trouble in the world today, national, social and religious is but the fruit of misunderstanding. The difficulty seems to be in the failure to catch the other fellow's view point. If we could only get the other fellow's angle of vision how vastly different would be our conclusions.

The purpose of this sermon is to shed some light on the all important subject the relation of the pastor to the church. The assumption is not that the church is ignorant with regard to this subject; but rather the church would welcome such information as the pastor way have to impart.

This is a transitory age. There is so much coming and going, so many people coming into the church and so many leaving for other parts of the world, that a little education along this line is an absolute essential.

What then is the relation of the pastor to his church? FIRST: The pastor stands related to the church as the teacher to the taught.

The pastor is the religious instructor of the church. He is responsible for the quality and quantity of all instruction imparted from the pulpit, and in view of his position, determines largely the nature of teaching in every other department of the church.

In view of the effect of such instruction as he may have to impart or superintend, his is a position of tremendous responsibility. Destinies may be determined by the bent of his mind. The soul may climb upward, or gravitate downward, according as he interprets life's verities. The strength of the church spiritually, socially and financially, is the measure of the man behind the desk.

SECONDLY: The pastor stands related to the church as the shepherd to the flock. The pastor is the shepherd.

The aches and pains, the joys and sorrows, prosperities and misfortunes of the flock must find an echo in the pastor's heart. He must in a very real sense enter into and sympathize with all the personal and vital relations of every member of his large flock.

Every scar and tear must leave its impress upon his soul if he is to be a true and good shepherd. Some extent of the magnitude of his task may be gathered from the fact that the pastor of your church is responsible for the well being of between four and five hundred church members and an equally large number of adherents.

THIRDLY: The pastor stands related to the church as the manager to his business. The pastor as the executive head is the business manager of the church. He is not only the teacher and shepherd but also the controller of all the business affairs of the church. That responsibility is assumed when he takes charge.

By virtue of his position he is not only the chairman of the church business meeting, but is a member, ex officio in his own right, of every committee in the church. This being so the pastor not only superintends the business working and methods of the church but acts as a link binding all the church activities into one grand whole.

This peculiar relation of the pastor to his church makes for harmony, unity, proper methods and success. This then in brief, is the relation of the pastor to his church, Instructor, shepherd, business manager.

From Fighting to Farming

(1) A Soldier and His Family on a C. P. R. Colony Farm. (2) A Soldier Seeding the Soil. (3) A Typical Colony Farmstead.

Not many months ago two men were in the same battalion in France—the one an officer, the other a private. They both were in at the end and in the short interval since the armistice was signed have come back to Western Canada, received their discharge from the army, and are now occupying neighboring farms in one of the farm colonies prepared for returned soldiers by the Canadian Pacific Railway in Southern Alberta. Here in these colonies are soldiers of all ranks, a number of whom were in the firing line up to the signing of the armistice. What surprises one most is that so many of them have so soon got back to practical work again and the Canadian Pacific Railway is to be congratulated on having had the foresight to adopt a practical scheme which has made it possible for a large number of men to begin farming on their own account in so short a space of time after their release from military duties. But this company has a reputation for making it easy for the right kind of men to get a start at farming, and its soldiers' settlement scheme is only an elaboration of its original "Ready Made Farm" and settlement plans, by means of which many of Western Canada's most prosperous farmers were enabled to begin farming in a new country under most favourable circumstances and which has contributed in no small measure to their present success. The soldier settler in these farm colonies has an unusual opportunity to make good. He finds on the farm a comfortable house ready for him to move into with his family and effects. There is a good barn for his horses and cows, his water supply is provided for, his farm is fenced, and he has forty acres of land broken and ready for crop which will bring him a revenue during his first season. For this farm he is not required to pay anything for three years; time enough to give a man an opportunity to bring his farm to a fine state of development and with average luck to have acquired a fair sized bank account as well. Moreover, if he is unable to purchase, live stock, farm implements and seed, he is provided with a team of horses and harness, two cows, a sow, some poultry, some necessary implements and small tools and seed for his forty acres, for which payment is to be made under an agreement entered into for the purpose. Some of the larger implements are available for use by the colonists in common, a set being allotted to every three farms and use by them in turn under the direction of the colony superintendent. A fixed charge per day is made for the use of these implements. The colony superintendent is an expert agriculturist and it is his duty to assist the colonists with advice as to the best manner of conducting their farming operations. His headquarters is the central control farm, a farm somewhat larger than the rest of the farms in the colony, which is used largely for demonstration purposes, and among other functions, serves as a supply depot for male live stock. The central control farm is situated at a point most conveniently reached by all the settlers in the colony and will no doubt become their chief meeting place. A more enthusiastic community of farmers will be hard to find anywhere than those in process of formation in these veterans' colonies in Alberta. To see the men at work, for themselves, on their own farms, after what they have gone through is an inspiring sight. The spirit of mutual help and comradeship that is everywhere evident, speaks well for the success of the venture. These farm colonies are sure to become centres of considerable agricultural activity.

Houses To Let On Thanksgiving Street

"At a Methodist love feast," says the Christian Intelligencer, a good brother had indulged in a long, complaining strains of experiences about the trials and difficulties in the way to heaven. Another of a different spirit followed, who said: "I see, our brother who has just sat down lives in Grumbling Street. I lived there myself for some time and never enjoyed good health. The air is bad, the houses bad, the water bad; the birds never came and sang in the street, and it was gloomy and sad enough. But I flitted; I got into Thanksgiving Street, and ever since that I have had good health and so has my family. The air is pure, the water good, the houses good, the sun shines in all day, the birds are always singing, and I am as happy as I can be. Now I recommend our brother to "fl." There are plenty of houses to let in Thanksgiving Street.
