ST. LAWRENCE AND CATTLE PRICES ARE HOLDING STEADY

Butcher Prices Firm, Butter and Eggs Are Steady.

There was a light run of cattle at the Union Yards yesterday, and prices held steady at Wednesday's close—just about that and no more.

Good butcher cattle, not too heavy in weight, are selling well, the buyers apparently being now in a position to take on a limited number of good cattle. Good butcher cows are selling well at steady prices, and good choice bulls are bringing $18 to $19 for good stock bulls, $17 to $18 for light and rough, $4 to $4.50, and rough heavy bulls, $2.50 to $3 per cwt.

The stock and feeder trade is down and out for the time being—no demand from country points, or likely to be unless we have drastic changes in the market in some way. Practically everything is sold to kill these days. The demand for milkers and springers is very limited.

There was a light run of calves yesterday—has been all week, and will be for some time longer. The buyers are not so choosy as they were a few days ago, and choice veal is selling at $12 to $13, common veal $11 to $12, grass-fed calves, $10 to $11, and calves for veal, with few on the line. A very good, and the light grass market, are for sale in the price of $10 to $11.

The lamb market is stronger—has been fairly good all week, with the top on grain-fed lambs up around $12.25 to $12.50, and $11 to $12.25 for few lots; fat lambs, $11 to $12.25. Choice grain-fed sheep, $12 to $13. Heavy fat, $5 to $5.50; culls, $2.50 to $3. It looks as if at this time of the year, the market for a pretty steady demand, in the market for lambs.

There seems to be one price for hogs, $14 to the farmer, $13.25 to the packer. The buyers talk lower quotations for hogs, but the market is so tight that they will think prices relatively too high by comparison with our neighbors' hogs across the border.

One phase of the situation which has not escaped the eye of the general public is that, with all the hammering down of prices and that have come down from $24 to $18, the average citizen, while the farmer is just a much poorer. Something wrong somewhere.

The United Producers Co-operative yesterday sold a cow, fed by Mr. Gillespie of St. Catharines, 1 1/2 tons, which was shipped in among others by Mr. Hall of Niagara Falls, and which weighed 1,420 pounds and sold at 10 1/2 cents a pound. This is the highest price for a butcher cow since the war.

The F. O. made a fine sale yesterday when they sold a fine cow, weighing 1,420 pounds, for $14.25. The Harris Abattoir at 10 1/2 cents a pound. This is the highest price for a butcher cow since the war.

Quinn & GENERAL SALES. Butcher's—1, 100 lbs. $10.50; 2, 140 lbs. $11.50; 3, 110 lbs. $10.75; 4, 210 lbs. $12.50; 5, 120 lbs. $11.25; 6, 130 lbs. $11.75; 7, 140 lbs. $12.25; 8, 150 lbs. $12.75; 9, 160 lbs. $13.25; 10, 170 lbs. $13.75; Bound to Help Business.
 The revival of the war finance corporation by the United States Congress means an early expansion in the export trade of the United States. The government is not giving away one billion dollars or any other amount, but it is going to rediscuss the paper of export banks and export associations. Already the British pound and the French franc have appreciated, and the foreign exchange situation is bound to be easier. The spread between the American and the Canadian dollar will grow less. Every bushel of wheat exported from the United States to Europe will have to be replaced by importing a bushel of wheat from Canada. We may expect to see the advocates of a high tariff against the Canadian farmer grow less ferocious. The deluge of American goods for sale at slaughter prices in Canada will be checked to some extent. A general easing of the straits under which business has been laboring in the United States will react favorably on business in Canada.

Tax Exemptions and Township School Rates Inequality.
 The tax exemption bylaw submitted to Toronto's ratepayers on Jan. 1st, carried by a large majority. This is the fourth time a question of a similar character has been submitted to the people, the first as far back as the year 1905. The principle involved in each of the questions was practically the same, that of exempting to a certain amount the small householders. In conformity with what was thought to be public opinion, the Hearst government at its last session made a provision by which the ratepayers of any municipality could give partial exemption to houses assessed at from $2000 to $4000 by the ratepayers so voting at any general election and having council pass the bylaw.

The bylaw as assented to by the citizens is now in shape to be put forward in the council and carried. But what member of the council is going to assume this responsibility? The Toronto Telegram objects to this measure of exemption to the small citizen, urging that it will force people out into the Township of York, where the taxation is lighter.

This view of the Telegram involves another question which will have to be settled, and that at an early date. In the Township of York the school taxation is a question of anxiety owing to its tremendous inequalities as between the various school sections. For instance, in a section (College Heights) in which Mr. Joseph Atkinson, of The Star, resides, the school rate is 6.4 mills, while in a section a little farther west (Fairbank Schools) in the township known as School Section No. 15, the school rate is 44.2.

And yet there should be none of this tax jumping by citizens of Toronto or of the Township of York. There is no reason why a resident immediately outside of the boundaries of the City of Toronto should be able to get taxation any lower than they could in the city of Toronto.

But that aside, the assessment act should be carried out as provided by law. And there is no reason why one ratepayer in York Township should pay a school rate of over 44 mills and another one in a high-class district just outside the city limits should be able to evade his responsibilities or education by getting off on a rate of one seventh of that amount. It may result in putting all the suburban school sections under one school board.

In the meantime the city council is in duty bound to carry out the wishes of the ratepayers as to tax exemptions provided for by the Hearst legislation. Whether the tax exemption bylaw will bring about the remedy expected is another matter, but the act is on the statute book and the ratepayers have voted to have it put into effect; and no member of the council should dare to ignore the wishes of the citizens in this respect.

Bad Temper is Bad Business.
 Working ourselves into a tantrum is not the way to get business. We may have been hard hit in the past by regulations of the British government. We may be hard hit in the future by legislation of the American Congress. We must try to retrieve any loss as best we can by retaliation if necessary, but we must go about it in a business way. Merely to shriek like a hurt child will get us nowhere. Neither should we be played off our feet by misleading propaganda.

Of late the press and the packers

G. R. GEARY: "No, no, central, I don't want to talk to the Bell Telephone Co. Put me onto the Northern Electric Co!"

have been unsparring in their denunciation of the British food ministry. Great Britain is pictured as bent on the destruction of Canada. The indictment as presented by The Toronto Globe charges:

1. That the British authorities bought wheat in the United States at $3.80 a bushel and declined to buy Canadian wheat at a much lower price.

2. That the British food ministry overbought Chicago bacon and then practically excluded Canadian bacon from access to the British market.

3. That the British authorities refused Canadian cattle to be slaughtered within forty-eight hours after landing in England.

The last, first. It is our old friend the "cattle embargo," now in existence eighteen years. Yet it is charged up with a recent sudden dislike of Canada.

As to its merits or demerits we say nothing; it is a subject that has been talked to tatters. As to the charge respecting bacon, we have the official statement of the British food ministry that they will buy all bacon produced in Canada from hogs slaughtered prior to January 1, 1931. From now on Canadian bacon has free access to the British market. The Globe objects to the British government trying to sell its state bacon to the British public, but it does not suggest what it should do with this bacon on hand. Surely they are not so overfed in England that they can afford to dump fifty million pounds of bacon into the sea. Certainly we are not so overfed in Canada. A lot of our people here would like to have this state bacon at the British price.

Another thing we would like to have, and that is equality of treatment. Canadian packers sell their bacon to the British government at twenty-seven cents a pound, but the plain citizen of Canada pays from sixty-five to seventy cents a pound for the same bacon. Technical explanations are offered which do not explain. We are told Canadians who do not eat the bacon which is eagerly devoured by the Englishmen. Give them a chance. We know of many people in this country who would be only too glad to pay twenty-seven cents instead of seventy cents a pound for bacon.

As to the wheat. No one pretends that the British food ministry bought wheat at double the money in the United States for which they could buy it in Canada. They bought at what they thought was a fair price on a highly nervous market. The wisecracks who are now going about saying they knew all along that wheat was going to drop were about that time jumping down instead of up, and the British food ministry having failed to hedge, were stuck for a big sum of money. They paid too much for their wheat, as it turned out, just as some people paid too much for sugar.

We want to keep on the best possible terms with Great Britain, our mother country, and our largest customer. We want to keep on good terms with the United States, our nearest neighbor. Canada expects to take care of herself and bars out British and American imports alike by fairly stiff tariff duties. She does this not because she hates Great Britain or the United States, but because she thinks it is good business. She would bitterly resent any effort by Great Britain or the United States to meddle in her domestic affairs or control her fiscal legislation. On the other hand she cannot complain if Great Britain and the United States alike endeavor to manage their own affairs in their own way. So much hysterical nonsense has been printed of late about the inequities of food control in England that we begin to suspect a colored gentleman somewhere in the woodpile. Public opinion is now ripe for government control in Canada over beef bacon and other meats. To head off this consummation a lot of people suddenly commence to howl against the British food ministry. They have, as a matter of fact, no objection to bacon control in England but they are very anxious to prevent and head off bacon control in Canada in these days of unemployment, high rents and dear coal.

 of inability to pay interest on United States war loans was at the same time buying up the world oil resources. British, while buying up the oil, is refusing to permit the United States to bring England to the Japanese market. The United States, Senator McKellar declared, has the power to bring England to the Japanese market. McKellar urged immediate action on his bill proposing that the United States should not discriminate against the United States and retaliation against those nations that do.

"We ask nothing but what is right," Senator McKellar asserted. "We simply desire that our nationals shall be treated by Great Britain in the same way that we treat hers. We want them to enjoy the same privileges in our country that we want in theirs."

Senator Phelan turned the debate from the oil question to the Japanese land question by declaring that the Japanese were buying oil from companies in California for $1.80 a barrel, while California companies were charged $2.40 a barrel. Further action of California oil lands by British legislation, Mr. Phelan said, would be stopped through enactment by the legislature of that state of a general anti-alien land ownership bill. Information was said by Senator Phelan to have been received from "underground sources" that there had been a conference of British and Japanese representatives, at which the Japanese were advised against accepting the proposed general anti-alien land bill as a settlement of the present controversy over land.

"The fight is on, and California proposes to retaliate," Senator Phelan entered into the debate to say that the government should, by treaty, provide for protection of United States interests in the development of oil in foreign countries, and Senator Phelan said he would introduce a resolution tomorrow asking the state department for information as to what had been done in this respect.

Senator King, Democrat, Utah, declared that general anti-alien land ownership laws should not be adopted by states except as retaliatory measures because, he said, they might provoke foreign reprisals.

SAY GRIFFENHAGEN CO. LOSSES FEDERAL ORDER

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—The Ottawa Journal today publishes the following: "From official sources usually well-informed on the case of Alfred Griffenhagen, secretary of the Griffenhagen firm, the government has decided to cancel the contract with Griffenhagen and Associates because of the long delay in presenting some definite recommendations for the reorganization of the postoffice department and the department of customs and inland revenue."

"The Griffenhagen firm has been employed since the end of May at a monthly retainer of $10,000. Complicated since the death of David Whyte, 82, who for 41 years was connected with the Intercontinental Railway at Halifax as master car builder.

Apart from these other stolid Heppburn, Webb, McKee and Bobby Cole, there were a few more in the crowd. One of them was a young man in a dark suit, who was in their own skins.

The Toronto World's THE HAYSTACK

A RIDER was speeding across the hills toward the H.C. lashing his horse, crashing through brush, leaping down timber, clattering down treacherous ledges to save time; and other men were riding on Jimmy Oliver's orders, bringing the cowboys in their circles, assembling them in Devil's Hole where a group of men stood silent and lathered.

The rider came into the ranch on his saddle horse. He flung off at the bunk house and, a moment later, came running toward the ranch house with a query on his lips.

"What's the trouble?" for it could be nothing but trouble which would bring fear that it pertained to Beck. They got down there with a lot of your calves an' he's put his brand on 'em. Webb's there, too, an' Heppburn, they're holding 'em all for you, the manager said. He was excited, he breathed rapidly and added, "Oliver an' I want you to get 'em out of their property."

"Ainto, this time, bore her away from the ranch, the man, tense and silent as they scrambled up the point and gained high country nor did she look at the group on the ground. The wind in their faces was hot and fitful. The scarf about her neck fluttered erratically on the ground. She looked back over her shoulder at the group of men who were following her. lously gained his feet. He slouched toward the girl, "I don't know nothin' about it," he said in his whining voice.

"Who built this pen?" Jane asked. "I don't know."

"Did you ever see it before?" "No, I never did see it, 'out I don't know nothin' about it."

"Who brands your cattle?" "I don't know."

"Can you think of anybody who would put your brand on your cattle?" "No. Nobody would ever do that."

"But have you looked at this steer?" indicating the yearling with the indistinct evidence on his side.

"Come listen an' unsteady naped to scratch his susucake, eyed the animal curiously, an' glanced at Heppburn as their eyes met. Heppburn's head moved in slight, quick negation. Avar so slight, ever so quick, as if he were saying, "Heppburn saw that she said, an' a guilty man waggled into his face, spreading clear to use eyes."

"Hasn't someone been working over my brand?" she demanded, forcing Cole to look at her again, "because I don't know 'bout it...."

"I don't know.... I dunno nothin' 'bout it...."

"How do you suppose these calves come to be here? My calves, with your brand on them?"

"Them is my calves, ma'am," he protested, weakly. "The other calves are mine. 'On, all but this yearling belong to you."

"Yes," nodding his head as his confidence rallied. "Them's all mine. I branded 'em myself."

"And why do you keep them here?" "Well, there's a water an' feed, an' I wanted to wean 'em."

"A flicker of confusion crossed the man's face, and again he looked away toward the group on the ground. Heppburn reflected a contempt, a want, and for a fraction of time Jane studied it intently, and again he looked away toward the group on the ground.

"Look at me, Cole!" she cried, and her face trembled. Her tone was compelling, she expressed a sensation of mounting power, felt that she was dominating, and without looking she knew that the men before her stirred, impressed by her confidence. "Look at me and answer my question!"

Hesitatingly, the man looked back, and then dropped his eyes.

"Well, I said I knew it was here."

"You know more than you say. You have been using it. How long ago was it built?"

"A month—Oh, I dunno," she insisted, gesturing briskly. "What about a month?"

"I dunno."

"How many cows have you?" Her voice was suddenly sharp and hard as she cut in on his impotent evasion and shifted her subject again.

"Why 'bout twenty."

"And how many calves are with them?" "Why, not more'n half of 'em got calves."

"Sure? Not more than half?" "Why.... I guess—"

"And you've got twenty young calves in the pen! How do you account for that?"

A murmur ran among her men, and Cole looked at her with fright in his eyes. "I dunno!" he suddenly burst out, voice trembling. "I dunno! I dunno! I dunno! You've all got me here an' are pickin' on me. I didn't steal anything. I thought you was all sayin' that I was in a broken, repressedly frantic appeal, I don't want to go to jail again. I don't know nothin'."

"You've been in jail once? For stealing cattle?" "I didn't steal.... They said I did. They didn't want me around. They're like all you big outlaws; they don't want me.... they don't want me...."

He lifted one hand in a gesture of hopeless appeal, and tears shined in his eyes. "I'm a poor man, ma'am...."

"Cole, did you steal my calves?" she saw her men strain forward.

"Oh, I don't want to go to jail!" he said, and tears streamed down his cheeks. "I took 'em.... but I'm a poor man...."

"Riley, what's your verdict, Miss Hunter?" Riley asked. His voice was hoarse.

"You have heard it all, Miss Hunter. You heard it from his lips."

She was not looking at them, but at Bobby Cole, who stood with his knuckles pressed against his lips, fighting in his staring eyes. The strength, the vindictiveness was gone, and he looked at the girl, then, a little girl in trouble.

"Then I guess there's nothing to do but to go thru with this cursed business. The old cattle man spoke slowly and rather sadly. "Cole, there's a way of treating thieves in this country. The best way of fashion in recent years; we ain't had to hang anybody for a long time, but—"

"Stop!"

It was a clear, ringing cry from Jane that checked Riley, that caused the man to stand before it motionless. He had been standing behind it, motionless. He had been standing behind it, motionless.

"This is a matter for all of us, but by common consent I was asked to judge in this man. He has asked for a trial after an opportunity to protest his innocence. Now you must let me pass sentence...."

"This man has stolen from me. You have seen him here. He has shown himself to be a weakling, a poor, wretched man, who has neither friends nor respect for himself. He has shown trouble before. SCHOOL POPULATION SHOWS LARGE GROWTH

Toronto's school population is growing at the rate of 2,000 a year, according to December records, issued yesterday. The comparison shows a growth of over 10,000 since 1916. The figures follow: 1916, 61,473; 1917, 64,270; 1918, 66,235; 1919, 67,875; 1920, 71,823.

It will be noted that the 1920 mark is almost 4,000 greater than the record for 1919, so that it is clear the rate of increase is rapidly growing. The average attendance was 87 per cent. The cases of lateness numbered 2,154. Only 525 pupils had to be strapped, and eight drew suspension sentences. Earl Grey School had the heaviest strap list with 34. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Albert Heck, and was suddenly stricken just before she reached her own home.

The late Mrs. Cummings was an exceedingly charitable woman and never considered herself when the welfare and happiness of others were at stake. She was an ardent worker in the Edward Kye Chapter of the L.O.E.E. of the Christian Mothers of St. Peter's parish and of the Catholic League.

Mrs. Cummings was born at Adolphustown, her maiden name being Miss Josephine Davenport. She had two husbands, E. J. URGE COMMENCING FEDERAL BUILDINGS

Change in Weather Was the Cause of More Applications for Relief.

Colder weather reflected itself yesterday in Toronto's unemployment situation in slightly increased applications for relief at the Krausmann Hotel headquarters. The articles concerning which destination seemed to be greatest were principally those of warm clothing, although coal was also sought in comparatively small lots and food baskets were despatched to the usual number.

The citizens' unemployment relief committee announced during the day thru its secretary, Mr. Tolchard, that representations would be immediately made to the Dominion government pointing out the strong advisability of commencing all possible federal works for the relief of the present situation. The new Customs House and a sub-postoffice for Spadina avenue were declared to be projects which, if started at once, would considerably ease the work scarcity.

The "Red" element which has been remarked in the unemployed of other parts of the country was stated by Sergt.-Major Creighton to be non-existent locally. The men who were being cared for at the Krausmann House were, he declared, essentially orderly and displayed high morale and an spirit of comradeship.

WARNINGS ON USE OF ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT

Never touch any electric fixture while in bath or while standing on anything wet. Always keep electrical equipment in first-class repair. Never, if avoidable, attach heaters to ordinary lamp socket fixtures. These are the lessons which Hydro-Electric Commission engineers emphasize as to be learned from the death by electrocution of Mrs. Ada Batten of Uxbridge avenue, who, while in a bath, attempted to remove the electric heater. It has been shown that one of the terminals carrying current to the two coils was in contact with the framework of the heater, which was electrified as a result; this was caused by a breakdown in the mica insulation.
