They Do Not All Know

That it is a wasteful policy to in vest money in anything but reliable goods.

Everybody knows there's a world of difference in clothes. But only those who have had the experience are conscious of the fact that any old thing looks good when it is new. Some suits of clothing will outwear three or four others, and they will look better than the fourth that is made of shoddy. It pays, and pays well, to invest in good clothes. The so-called cheap article is seldom cheap. It is when a reliable firm, such as Deeks & Munson are known to be, offer to sell at largely-reduced figures in order to make room for the coming season's goods, that real bargains may be had.

Supposed Point of Chivalry.

A good deal of emphasis is cometimes laid on the supposed lack of chivalry that might be implied in not retaining in employment those who had taken the places of employes who went out on strike. Were that doctrine to be pushed too far, there could never be restoration of employment to strikers, no matter how just their cause. All the reply that would need to be made would be, "Oh, we are bound by the laws of chivalry at all hazards to keep the men who engaged with us when the strikers left"

Chivalry is all right, especially when it is genuine; but there is such a thing as basswood chivalry; just as there is a fantastical chivalry like that of Don Quixote which is opposed to commonpute in another city-say Hamilton, for example. The men, considering themselves not fairly treated, go on strike. They ask for arbitration. The Company declare, haughtily, that there is nothing to arbitrate. But the public, remembering the street railway company are using the public streets under a public franchise, reply that in the opinion of the great body of citizens there is something to arbitrate. This opinion, we will suppose, they support by almost unanimously declining to ride in the Company's cars until some satisfactory arrangement by arbitration or otherwise, is arrived at.

Assume, also, that, in Hamilton, the bulk of those employed in manufacturing establishments, and in retail stores of every kind, and their affiliationsthat is, the great majority of the people-sympathize actively with the strikers, believing that if they had been properly dealt with and handled, there would have been no necessity for a strike at all.

Now what would a wise Company, say in Hamilton, do under such circumstances? Would they say, "It is no souls; but we are full of soul; and, like Mrs. Micawber, who would never desert Mr. Micawber; we, though losing money by it every day, will never desert our scabs." (We use the word, not opprobriously, but simply as a short, understandable term.)

Would not the suppositious Hamilton Company, if wisely directed, be likelier to say to themselves: "We find that the public, believing a principle to be involved, to our loss will not ride on our cars so long as they are manned by scabs; but we find that the public would ride, to our profit, were they

TAXES 1899.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE tax collector will be in his office, City Hall, on and after July 20, to receive taxes of 1899. manned by the old employes, after a fair and reasonable adjustment of their grievances, by arbitration, or otherwise. Therefore, as we have to choose between our old employes and the mass of the public on one side, and, on the other, the scabs with whom the mass of the public decline to ride, it is not the part of business common-sense to retain in our employ those with whom the public decline to do business. No private employer would do it."

Let us suppose a street railway dis- Mayor Wilson and Two Aldermen to Sign the Requisition.

> No Toronto Police Will Be Brought Here-Others May Come.

Chief Williams Objects to The Advertiser Printing What Sergeant Jenkins Has to Say.

Mayor Wilson has come to the conclusion that the military forces are no longer needed to aid the civic powers of London. This morning he had the following order prepared, which he said would be signed by himself and two aldermen, all of whom are magistrates by virtue of their office, and presented to the officer in command at Wolseley Barracks today:

To the Senior Officer of Active Militia of Canada, London, Ontario: "We, the undersigned justices of the peace in and for the city of London, and county of Middlesex, Province of Ontario, are of the opinion that the further employment of the force under your command now on duty in the city of London, Ont., in aid of the civic power, is no longer necessary. We therefore request that you will order the force stationed at the barracks to return to their civil avocation."

NO TORONTO POLICE

The Toronto Globe says:
"A story was current in police circles yesterday to the effect that a request had come from London for the maintaining order among the strikers.

A meeting of the pilice commissioners was held yesterday afternoon, and though no definite information was given out, the inference to be drawn from statements made by the commissioners was that an application of the kind mentioned had been received from London and politely refused.'

This morning Mayor Wilson stated positively that no Toronto policemen would be brought to the city, but declined to say whether or not the city's force would be increased by any outside policemen. The inference is that some will beb rought in. NOT FOR THE ADVERTISER.

Information regarding the possible incoming of extra policemen was sought from Chief of Police Williams, but the chief had no information to give The Advertiser. The Advertiser, he said, had printed things about him which were untrue. It was not true, he said, that he had asked Sergt. Jenkins to withdraw the charges made against him. Last Monday a prominent citizen came to him and urged him to allow Sergt. Jenkins to withdraw his resignation, at least, until the street railway trouble was over. This the speaker consented to, and the prominent citizen then brought Sergt. Jenkins before the chief, and asked the latter to repeat his offer, which was also done. The chief also found fault with The Advertiser for printing Sergt. Jenkins' reference to P. C. Egelton's trouble with Owen Gillean. Egelton had merely placed his hand over Gillean's mouth to stop him using objectionable language, he said. The affair took place during the chief's absence, and had been reported to the magistrate, but not to the chief. Egelton received a talking-to. Another complaint the chief had to make was with the "color" of The Advertiser's item. ference to Owen Gillean's death in juxtaposition with the reference to Egelton's handling of him gave an unfair impression, he said. Before his death, Gillean had been discharged and arwith Egelton.

rested several times after the affair The petty spite apparent in Chief Williams' childish declaration that he had no information to give The Advertiser, is his strongest condemnation. The Advertiser reported Sergt. Jenkins' statements fairly, as it now reports Chief Williams' statements. The Advertiser did not feel called upon to ask Chief Williams' permission to publish remarks, and, as a Sergt. Jenkins' consequence, Chief Williams, in his official capacity, refuses to give information concerning public business to The Advertiser, because this paper has offended him by not suppressing state-ments made by a reputable citizen and ex-officer, but which happened to be displeasing to him!

Does the Chief of Police, then take the ground that legitimate information respecting public business in connection with a civic department like that of police, is his private property, to be given out only to those willing to be subservient to his will?

A VOTE OF THANKS.

The wives of the striking street railway employes passed the following resolution: "Resolved, that the wives of the strikers, assembled at Labor Hall on the 19th of July, tender a vote of thanks to Mrs. Currell, who furnished ice cream gratis; also Mrs. Flitton, who gave the use of her residence and lawn, and all other parties who gave or assisted in any way to make the garden party on the 18th a success." (Signed) Wives of the Strikers.

THE RECENT DISTURBANCE. To the Editor of The Advertiser: In the Advertiser of last evening I am credited with having stated that I drew up the requisition calling for the militia at the request of the mayor, and elsewhere in the same issue it is said that probably an official responsibility only and not of initiative rests on me. I do not desire in any way to be disassociated from the mayor in his action in having the requisition made by the judge. I was with the mayor, the judge acted solely upon our statement of facts. The requisition had my full concurrence and needs no defense.

With the unruly element in the city in full sway for eight hours previous-ly, with the public traffic stopped, seventeen of the eighteen cars in use by the street car company wrecked, citizens' property destroyed, over $2,-500 damage done, and over twenty persons injured (only by good fortune without any fatality), and with the police unable to stay the wrong-doing, it was full time to show that the forces of order were the stronger. Had it not been done it is likely that those who collected the crowds and planned and arranged the outbreak on Saturday, with the evident resolve to prevent by violence all trainc upon the street railway, would voluntarily have stayed their hands upon succeed-ing days if allowed to consider them selves masters of the situation? If they have since kept quiet, and now call all to witness their lamb-like demeanor, it is too much to ask us to believe that the amendment results from a change of heart. Sudden conversions are not of ordinary experi-

Had the mayor supinely left the city without any protection for a renewed outbreak on Monday he would have incurred serious responsibility.

It does not follow that the payment of an insurance premium is a bad investment because the house does not burn.

It is time that sober-minded citizens began to ponder whither the ways of violence and terrorism are leading. Certainly, not to freedom. You obedient servant, JAMES MAGEE.

July 21, 1899. [Note.-As to the wrangle as to which person in high place most completely lost his head, in a disturbance which the mayor says he could himself have quelled with 25 policemen, The Advertiser is not called on to interfere. The citizens of London know there never was any real necessity for the calling in of outside militia; and that more than one official evidently lost his head in senseless funk.]

STRIKE NOTES. The date set by the city council by which the street railway company were required to give a full service was July 19. But the service was not given. Yesterday sixteen cars were in operation during the day and until 9 p.m., after which only five cars were run. The bylaw calls for 21 cars to be run stone being used at the McCormick 17 hours. Edward C. Brown Struck While Crossing the Track.

Fell Bleeding and Unconscious Several Feet Away.

Number of Witnesses Say the Gong Was Not Sounded-Accident Near the Scene of Wednesday's Collision.

Another serious street car accident occurred last evening within half a block of the scene of Wednesday's collision.

As a result of the accident last evening, Edward C. Brown, a man 68 years of age, is in the city hospital, with his collar-bone broken, a cut in the side of his head that required eight stitches, to close, and his body badly bruised. At about 6:05 o'clock last evening,

Mr. Brown, who is a carpenter, was returning from work to his home at 284 King street. He was crossing Dundas street at Colborne, in a southwesterly direction. An east-bound car had just passed on the south track, as Mr. Brown neared the north track. Brown who had been walking slowly stepped onto the track to await an approaching bicyclist. As his back was turned he did not see car No. 66, which was coming rapidly from the east on the north track. Several people on the sidewalk shouted a warning, but it was too late. The front of the car struck Mr. Brown fairly on the side of the head and the shoulder with such force that he was knocked into the air and fell several feet away, fortunately clear of the track. No attempt had been made to slacken the speed of the car and it was not stopped until it had gone half way to

Meanwhile, four or five men hurried over to the bleeding, unconscious man Dr. Niven arrived a moment later, and Mr. Brown was carried over and laid on the lawn inside the boulevard. Blood was pouring from his mouth, ears and nose, and from an ugly gash on the side of his head, and his collar bone was broken. Dr. Niven and Dr. Stevenson attended to the injuries as well as possible, while waiting for the embulance, which had been sent for. In about 15 minutes the injured man regained consciousness sufficiently to tell his name, but soon relapsed. was removed to the city hospital in the ambulance. Last night he slept a little and was resting easier this morn-

There were several witnesses of the accident, who say that the motorman did not sound his gong nor give any

TheGerrymander

Right of Parliament to Undo the Great Wrong.

Free to Act Under the Constitution.

A Mandate From the Electors et Last General Election.

Telling Exposure of the Rascally Cutting and Carving.

Fairness of the Scheme to Delimit the Counties by Superior Court Judges.

The Minister of Justice Makes an Unanswerable Plea for Fair Play.

Ottawa, July 19 .- The speech of the minister of justice, in moving the second reading of the bill to repeal the gerrymander, in the senate, was most conclusive. Hon. Mr. Mills first gave a succinct statement of the evolution of the parliamentary system in Great Britain, and its extension to the colomial portions of the empire. Taking up the British North America Act, the government leader in the senate pointed out the principles upon which the constitution of the country is framed. and set out as to what its provisions are. In order to preserve this federal feature of the government of Canada, it is provided that, as between the provinces, the representation in the House of Commons shall be based upon popu-lation, and that population is to be ascertained first after the union of 1871 and every ten years thereafter.

Hon. Mr. Almon—Hear, hear.

Hon. Mr. Mills—There is no author-Ity to change the constitution in that regard. As between the provinces, there is a special provision made for the representation. The population, as ascertained at the census, is the BASIS OF REPRESENTATION of each province of the Dominion for The succeeding ten years. But honorable gentlemen will see that that is a wholly distinct thing from the question of redistribution of seats. The question of redistribution of seats does not depend | Canada from time to time provides. upon the taking of the census. It has nothing to do with that provision. It has no more to do with the Dominion than with the province. Every prov-ince in the Dominion may amend or alter its representation. Let me suppose for a moment that we had a law at the union which was continued down until the present time, determining that no one except a freeholder should be an elector. Supposing that parliament afterwards were to so determine, and let me suppose that the number of freeholders was small in proportion to the population in some sections of the Dominion, and very large in proportion to the population in others. Now, it might happen, after you extend the franchise, that you might find it necessary to alter the distribution of the seats. There is nothing in the British North America Act that restrains any province from distributing the seats in the local legislature. There is nothing in the act which interferes with the distribution of seats in the Parliament of Canada, and as a matter of fact, let me say to honorable gentlemen that this has been recognized and acted upon in more than one instance since confederation.

THE WEST HURON CASE. In the redistribution of seats after the census of 1871, a division was made of the county of Huron that was regarded as very unfair by one of the representatives of that county. A bill was introduced transferring the township of Tuckersmith from one division of Huron to another division. That bill came before the House of Commons for consideration, and was carried through that house. No one suggested that, because there had been a redistribution immediately after the census, there could not be a further consideration of the subject. It went through the House of Commons with-out a question. We had in the House of Commons at that time some very eminent lawyers—John Hillyard Cameron, Edward Blake, Sir John A. Macdonald and others. No one, in all that assembly, for a moment supposed that parliament had not power to redistribute the county of Huron as if no division had taken place. That question came before this house, and this house rejected the measure, but not because a redistribution had been made under the census of 1871. Not at all. Any honorable gentlemen who remembers the discussion that took place on that occasion knows right well that the bjection made here was that, in the alteration of the representation of the constituency, the government ought to assume the responsibility of making that alteration, and the senate would not support a measure on that subject which had not emanated from the government and for which the government had not made itself responsible. Let me mention

ANOTHER INSTANCE. Any honorable gentleman in this house, I have no doubt, will readily recall the changes that were made in 1892. Very Important changes were made in the representation. Seats were redistributed, and places found for the additional members that certain provinces were entitled to. A redistribution of constituencies for the members from other provinces was called for under the constitution; it became necessary to diminish their numbers, but in the redistribution that took place, upon further jurymen. You have them meeting to-consideration, the measure did not suit gether in their county councils. You consideration, the measure did not suit the government, who were its authors, and in the following session, if honorable gentlemen will turn to the statutes of 1893, they will find there was a further measure amending the redistribution act, altering the boundaries of spheres, he becomes marked out to his some constituencies which had been established under the redistribution of

Hon. Mr. Perley-Was that to make room for the new members?

Hon. Mr. McDonald (C. B.)—It was a mistake in the printing of the statute. Hon. Mr. Mills-No. it was a further reconsideration of the subject by the house, and an amendment to the bill of the previous year. ALL BASED ON THE CENSUS. Hon. Mr. McMillan-It was all based upon the census.

Hon. Mr. Mills—So is this. Honorable gentlemen will see that. When the honrable gentleman says it was based on the census, no one pretends to say that you can give to any province a larger representation than that which it was entitled to under the census previous to the redistribution bill. It is not based on the representation as it then exists. By the census of 1891 the Province of Ontario was found to be entitled to 92 members. Under the present bill nobody proposes to give it more; but I say this, and I am perfectly sure that the view which I express will be upheld without question and without division in any judiciai body in this country, or in any judicial body to which we may appeal, that it is open to parliament, if so disposed, to introduce a new distribution bill every year, so long as they do not depart from the principle which the census furnishes them. Hon. Mr. McMillan-It is a bad prac-

Hon. Mr. Mills-That is a question for consideration. In this matter I adopt the maxim of the Turks, that it is better to change every year than to be always in the wrong.

Hon. Mr. McMillan—That is good.

THE BRITISH SYSTEM INDORSED. Hon, Mr. Mills-I need not enter into a discussion of section 51 of the British North America Act. It is perfectly clear that it contemplated a redistripower conferred upon her by this act, and that is that the division shall be and set out as to what its room. and not by parliament itself.

Hon. Mr. Almon-I believe in England it is the custom to disfranchise boroughs where great bribery has been used. I want to know if West Elgin were disfranchised by the government, would another member be given to another constituency?

Hon. Mr. Mills-If the practice that prevailed under the constitution of England were adopted, and a constituwere disfranchised for bribery, then the representation that that con-stituency had might be bestowed by parliament upon some other constituency if parliament were so disposed.

"On the completion of the census, in the year 1871, and on each subsequent decennial census, the representation of the four provinces shall be readjusted by such authority, in such manner and from such time of the Parliament of

Now, what is meant by "such authority and in such manner"? by parliament. It says who shall constitute the commission. It says many seats each constituency shall be entitled to, and it leaves to that commission the division which is to be made in the constituencies that it is found necessary to alter, and upon which it is proposed to confer further representation. Now, let me say here a word with regard to COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The principle is one that has always been recognized in the mother country, and I mention that as an important matter for the serious consideration of those who have any regard to British precedents and to the practice in the parliament of the United Kingdom. It is important, because there is such a thing as historic continuity in a county. A county that has been represented by a man of eminence, who has distinguished himself and conferred honor upon the constituency that sent him to parliament, is one of whom the constituency may be proud, and after he has served his time, and disappeared from the political arena altogether, such a constituency has a natural as-piration to be represented by another man, if not equally distinguished, by distinguished man. And so the principle, as it is stated by Mr. Gladstone, of continuity in a constituency does a great deal to aid the constituencies in aspiring to possess better representation than they would otherwise likely acquire. Under our constitution-and let me here say that in this federal union of the provinces we have a constitution similar in principle to the English-it never was intended that you should draw a sharp line between the province and the Dominion, and to say that no interests that exist in the provinces shall be known or recognized as such in the parliament of the Dominion. So far as union is concerned, this federation represents one body. We have provinces which are inseparable portions of that union composed of municipalities with decentralized power, and I say it never was intended, if these could be conveniently used by us or made available by us, that we should deny ourselves the opportunity of doing so. • When electoral districts were established for the return of members to the House of Commons, there were but two or three instances in which the principle of county boundaries was disregarded, and that was because two or three counties, lying nearly side by side, having very nearly the same population, the parties not wishing to decide to which of them the additional representative that it was necessary to bestow upon the provinces should go, undertook to CREATE CONSTITUENCIES in two or three instances in which the representative was given to a constituency made up of parts of two counties. That was done in the case of Kent and Lambton, and in one or two other instances, but in the vast majority of cases the principle of county boundaries was recognized. There was an obvious reason for that. Under the municipal organization, under your various local institutions you have the people of the some county meeting together in their agricultural societies. You have them meeting together as neighbors as a proper man to represent them in the future, and so he may be chosen. But when you make up a constituency of parts of two or three coun-ple who have no particular sympathy with each other. The very ablest man among the whole of them may be a man residing in a single township taken from another county, a stranger to all outside of his own township, who has no chance in that constituency to represent it.

BAD EFFECTS OF THE GERRY-

I have gone into many of those con-stituencies, organized in the way I have mentioned, under the act of 1882, and under the act of 1892, and I found the people today as much divided from each other, as much strangers to each other, as void of sympathy with each other, no matter whether they are Conservatives or Reformers, as if no union for a political purpose existed at all. They meet in convention once in four or five years, when the necessity for an election arises. They never meet at any other time. They choose their candidate; they generally choose that candidate from the section that has the most numerous population. The weaker sections have a very inferior chance of furnishing a representative, and a constituency so situated is a constituency without any of those organic elements which are recognized under the English parliamentary system as essential features in a healthy and proper representative institution. SIR JOHN MACDONALD'S VIEW.

This matter was very fairly considered and very fully discussed in 1872, and the prime minister at that time, Sir John Macdonald, who introduced the redistribution bill of 1872, refer-red to this subsect. I ask those who have respect for his memory, and who admit that he was a man of unquestioned ability, to give their attention to what he said on the subject. I shall read from the parliamentary debates the exact words used on that occasion.

Hon. Mr. DeBoucherville-From the official report?

Hon. Mr. Mills-Yes. Hon. Mr. DeBoucherville-There was none published then. Hon. Mr. Mills-There was a report made in 1872, and I am quoting his exact words from a quotation which appears in the "Hansard" of 1882. Hon. Mr. Ferguson—I suppose honorable friend is aware that Sir John Macdonald put himself on record very differently at a later period. Hon. Mr. Mills-I know that. I am just as well aware of it as the honorable gentleman. I am going to discuss that later. I have nothing to conceal. My honorable friend was not in the house at that time, but some of his friends were. I regarded that as a very unjust bill, but this house never questioned it. There had been no election on the subject, and there was no issue made of it prior to the distribution which took place. I shall now read from the "Hansard" of 1882, when this opinion was quoted, and I have myself read it in the original, and know that It is perfectly correct. It will be found on page 1205. Sir John Macdonald's strong pronouncement in favor of maintaining bill of 1882, or in that of 1892. Let me county boundaries was then read. The take Essex, for instance: minister of justice continued:

These words the honorable gentle-man who, for so many years, led the Conservative party, spoke in 1872 when the bill was under consideration. The honorable gentleman from Marshfield says that Sir John Macdonald changed his mind on this question. I do not think he did. He changed his practice, but he gave a reason for that change of practice that Sir Oliver Mowat had gerrymandered some constituencies for the local legislature, and he proposed to blow his example. There was no principle recognized in the division of 1882.

THE TELL-TALE MAPS.

I have in my possession the map which was prepared for the division for 1892, with the vote of every polling division upon it, and with a careful estimate of what the political effect of the division should be, and the same in 1882. Honorable gentleman knew right well that no such calculation can be made by the present government in respect to this bill. A certain number of counties in the Province of Ontario are entitled to return under it one member and they are left undisturbed. There are certain other counties that are entitled to return more than one member, and a division of each was made prior to 1882; they are left undisturbed. Then there are other counties which it is necessary to divide, some to return two, some three members, and the division of these counties is left to three eminent judges, well known before his elevation to the bench as an active member of the Conservative party.

Hon. Mr. McMillan—He was never in

Hon. Mr. Mills-Neither was either of the others. I do not know that Chancellor Boyd ever gave a vote; I know that in his earlier years he was a Conservative in principle.

Hon. Mr. McCallum—You are going to bring him into politics now. Hon. Mr. Mills-I do not know what his politics were. I know what Judge deonbridge's was, and I believe the chief justice of Ontario was a Liberal, but as to Sir John Boyd's politics. I say that I do not know that he ever

NON-PARTISAN REDISTRIBUTION Hon. Mr. Mills-He is, and I am not calling in question the honesty or uprightness of any of those gentlemen, I think they will make a perfectly fair division. We are acting upon the interpretation which we gave in 1892 to this, the provision of section 51 of the British North America Act, which authorizes parliament to make this division through some constituted authority, and that authority we have undertaken to constitute in such a way that it will enjoy the complete confidence of well-informed men of all parties. It is sometimes said that in acting upon the principle that county boundaries are to be preserved, we are departing from the principle of representation by population. I do not think so. I think we are acting on that prinoutside constituencies. Are not these men as much devoted to the interests of Toronto, when a question comes up for consideration, as if they were returned for constituency. So that in one case the first eight constituencies, that current to the constituency. some division of Toronto? Every honorable gentleman knows right that there is some advantage to these the other case, which ought to have men and some advantage to the country, under this system of taking men of professional or commercial distinction from the city to represent rural constituencies. There is some advantage in that, and if the city were to insist upon full representation according to its numbers, the probability is that outside constituencies would cease to select suburban residents as their candidates. I say, then, that there is an advantage in that system.

THE NEWER DISTRICTS. There is another thing which cannot well be lost sight of, and that is, very often in new districts you have a large area, with only a very moderate population, and the difficulty of canvassing-the expense associated with it, the difficulty of a member remaining in touch with his constituency is such that it may very well be that while you have more than the unit of representation in the city, you have less in some of the rural districts. But this principle of representation by population was not a principle that was adhered to or recognized in the

FUNNY "REP. BY POP." The county of Essex had at the census of 1881, 46,000 people. Twenty-one thousand or a little less than 21,000 was the unit of measurement. Now giving the county two members there were 4,000 in excess of population. If you were to undertake to give representation by population then one munity. Any honorable gentleman who will go over the census will see that in such a redistribution bill as gin? that of 1882, and again that of 1892, Ho there was not the slightest regard had to the principle of representation by population, and the breaking up of county boundaries and the departure from the principle laid down by Sir John Macdonald in 1872, was not due in the slightest degree to any such consideration. No such motive had the slightest influence upon those who made the division at that time. For instance, in the Province of Nova Scotia. Inverness had nearly 26,000 inhabitants. Halifax City with two members had 68,000 inhabitants, that was 84,000 for each member. Halifax would have been entitled to three members if you were going to adhere strictly to the principle of representa-tion by population. Then there was the County of Victoria with 12,470 represented by a member, and Queen's had but one-third of the number of inhabitants that was given a single representative in the city of Halifax. Then let me take Westmoreland, in New Brunswick. Westmoreland had nearly 38,000 population with one member; Queen's had 14,000 of a population with one member; Sunbury 6,500 with one member. That was the condition of things in these provinces after the redistribution bill of 1882, so that it is PREPOSTEROUS TO ARGUE that the redistribution bill at that time broke down county boundaries and united fractions of different counties for the purpose of giving to the country the principle of representation by population in the constituency. Then when we come to the Province of Quewe find that Drummond and Arthabasca had over 37,000; Rimouski, 30,000; Hochelaga, 36,000; Montoalm, 13,-000, and so on. I mention these cases for the purpose of showing that no such principle as representation by population was recognized in 1882, nor was it in 1892, except in two or three instances. Then let me take Ontario. If you were to adopt the principle of representation by population in the arithmetical sense, and to break down county boundaries and to undertake to form constituencies of equal population, you would destroy all that or-ganic life which pertains to a constituency made up of people who are in the habit of acting together for various public and other purposes, as jury-men, as members of agricultural societies, as municipal councilors, and as voters in municipal elections and elections for the local legislature. Hon. Mr. McMillan-Sir Oliver Mowat did not pay much attention to these rules.

THE RASCALITY OF IT ALL. Hon. Mr. Mills-I think he paid a good deal of attention to them. I will have the maps here for the information of my honorable friend. In some cases there are departures from the rule, but the cases are very few. But O, the number of cases in which the rule was departed from in 1882, when 55 constituencies were altered in the Province of Ontario alone, and this house made no protest against the wrong that was being done. Let me mention a few cases. North Leeds, 12,400; South Grenville, 13,000; Frontenac, nearly 15,000; Monck, 15,000; Lennox, 16,000; Cardwell, 16,000; Kent, 56,000; East Simcoe, 28,000; South Simcoe, 26,000; East Elgin, 26,000-first eight constituencies, that ought to well have five members, have eight, and in eight members, only have five. And so you have the other eight, that ought to have had eleven, under represented by eight. I am quite sure every honorable gentleman will see that in that measure the principle of representation by population did not govern, so that the reason for the measure was something wholly different. Let me mention some of the facts, and my honorable friend sitting opposite me I hope will bear testimony to the accuracy of the statement which I make-Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell-Wait till I hear it.

HOW WESTERN ONTARIO WAS LACERATED.

Hon. Mr. Mills-I am not asking the honorable gentleman to testify in advance. The county of Kent was entitled to two representatives at least. It had 54,000 people; 42,000 was the number that, according to population, should be represented by two members. It had 12,000 to spare. Then two was the smallest number that the county should have returned. A portion of Kent was attached to the county of Lambton, that had 2,000 people less than Kent, and the remaining portion of Lambton was given two members, that is, Lambton, that had 2,000 people less had three townships taken off, and the remaining portion given two members. That portion of Lambton taken off, and a portion of Kent taken off, formed the county of Bothwell. Then township should have been taken from the east end of Essex and attached to Kent in order to reduce the number represented in Essex by the two members representing the comtwo members representing the company to the county of th and put onto the county of West El-Hon. Mr. McMillan-What was the population of West Elgin? Hon. Mr. Mills—Ferty-two thousand odd, a little more than was necessary to entitle them to two members. Hon, Sir Mackenzie Bowell-West

HIVING IN WEST ELGIN.

Hon. Mr. Mills-No, Elgin, I should say. The town of St. Thomas, if taken West Eilgin and put into East Elgin, would have given them enough for two members. Of course, East Elgin had no prescriptive right to the town of St. Thomas.

Hon. Mr. McMillan-It has had it since the union of the provinces, think.

Hon. Mr. Mills-My honorable friend says that because the town of St. Thomas, which is a part of the county of Elgin, was in the first instance put in East Elgin, that that was an insuperable bar, as I understand it, to parliament putting the town of St. Thomas into West Elgin, although it is of the same county. But to take two townships and the town out of the county of Kent, that never was in West Elgin, that did not act with West Elgin, and forms no part of West Elgin, for no purpose whatever to take that off the county of Kent and put it in the county of Elgin, was no proper thing to do. Hon. Mr. McMillan—If the honorable gentleman will look at the populations of East and West Elgin, as constitutwith those two townships, he will find they are nearly on a par. Hon. Mr. Mills-My honorable friend is in trouble again-I am speaking of the municipal county of Elgin—the county that under the law is known as the county of Elgin, contained at the time 42,000. Now, 21,000 is the unit, a one-ninety-second part of the Province of Ontario; so that the county of Elgin had a sufficient number to entitle it to two members and a few hundreds to spare. If the county of East Elgin was unduly large, and the county of West Elgin unduly small, there was a simand of equalizing the constituency, and that was by taking the town of St. Thomas out of East Elgin and putting

Hon. Mr. McMillan-There was just as much difference between East and West Elgin, if you take half of St. Thomas, which was a municipality by itself just as much as one of the townships was. You might as well take the city of St. Thomas and divide it into two, as to take one of those townships which my honorable friend mentions from Kent. They are all on a par. Hon. Mr. Mills—No, I happen to know personally of the matter, and my honorable friend does not.

Hon. Mr. McMillar—Yes, I was thirteen years in the county.

Hon. Mr. Mills—I am glad to hear it and I hope my honorable friend will see the injustice of the proposition he is now putting forward. Take the city is now putting forward. of St. Thomas. West Elgin had about 14,000 to 15,000. It is a larger constituency than a good many of those that were left, even as it was. East Elgin contained 28,000. At that time St. Thomas had about 7,000 people, and if you take St. Thomas off East Elgin, you would reduce its population by 7,000. If you put 7,000 with 14,000 it would make 21,000, and if you take 7,000 from 28,000, it would leave 21,000. So that if you transfer the town of St. Thomas, according to the population at that time from East Elgin to West Elgin, you would have two constitu-encies as nearly as possible equal. Hon. Mr. McMillan-It was a municipality by itself, and we would have to Hon. Mr. Mills-The honorable gentleman is mistaken. The town of St. Thomas had 7,000 at that time.

THE MIDDLESEX EVIDENCE. Let me see what these gentlemen did besides. They found East Elgin had too large a number and they took South Dorchester off East Elgin and put it on East Middlesex. They took the township of Euphemia off Lambton and put it on West Middlesex. They took the township of Stephen off South Huron and put it on North Middlesex. I need not go over the whole of the divisions, but as I have pointed out already, it is clear, beyond all question, that they were not made for the purpose of equalizing the constituencies. They did not equalize them. They left the difference as great between the constituencies after the changes were made as before. They cut up count, boundaries and they brought people together once in five years for elections that otherwise did not meet at all. Besides these principles upon which I think we ought to proceed and those practices which I think we ought to avoid, there is this fact, that upon this question parliament has A MANDATE FROM THE COUNTRY The present administration, and those who support them, went to the country upon this question, as one of the questions on which they asked an expression of public opinion. There was the question of the adoption of the provincial franchise; there was the question of the restoration of county boundaries and the principle of representation by population within those limits, as far as it could be conveniently adopted. Those have been adhered to in this bill. We have also, as I pointed out, not taken into our own hands the redistribution of seats. We

there was a portion of the county of hands the redistribution of seats. We Bothwell, the townships of Orford and have not come to parliament, as the Howard, and the town of Ridgetown, government did in 1872, in 1882 and in 1892, with a measure carried through the House of Commons by a majority altering the boundaries of constituencies of those who were politically dominant for the time being, and ships taken from the county of Kent this house and receiving, within a reand put onto the county of West El-markably short period of time, the ratification of that measure, without any protest by any honorable gentleman who supported the administration. I think, with the undoubted expression of public opinion in the country—the returning to parliament of a majority of 50 members supporting the principle of this bill-that this house will not consider it any portion of its duty to call in question the propriety of the measure and to object to its becoming

The Cockneys can't lose at home. At least, it's so long since they did lose a game here that they have forgotten how. Twenty-one straight games they have won here. The effect on the fans of such invariable success is noticeable. They always remain serene and confident.

Yesterday the Leafs got away with three runs in the first inning. A wild throw to first base by Price, a scratch hit, Mohler's bad fumble of a ground ball, and Wagner's clean single to center did the business. The Cockneys got two of them back in the third inming, through Kostal's temporary wildness. Lohman was hit by a pitched ball, Mohler drew a pass; singles by Reed and McFadden, assisted by a wild pitch scored. The scored Library wildness are supported by a wild process. For the next five innings they were blanked - Kostal had them phased. Even Jones and Lohman fanned futile ly, and were struck out. The only time a run seemed even possible was in the fifth, when they managed to get three men on bases, by means of a couple of scratch hits and Wagner's error. But Price ran into a batted ball on his way to third, and lost the chance of scoring.

In the Leafs' third inning a big bunch of Cockney errors filled the bases, but the Londons' luck held good and the side was retired without a run scor-

When the locals went in in the ninth the game still belonged to Guelph, and Kostal's speed was apparently as good as ever. Defeat for London seemed inevitable. A small boy on the bleachers piped out in shrill treble: "This is our last chance, Pete," as Lohman stepped to the plate. Pete smiled, and swung his bat once or twice. Then he landed on a swift, straight ball, and it went almost on a line straight over Carey's head on and over the track, and rolled to the fence. Carey did his best, but Lohman beat the ball home and the score was tied. Price went out from Miles to Grimshaw. Mohler, Reed and McFadden followed with grounders to the outfield. Schwartz drove the ball clear through Francis, scoring Mohler, and the game was won. From the time Lohman drove out his homer till Mohler crossed the plate, the grand stand bleachers were in an uproar of enthuslasm, while the spectators gave vent to the pent-up feeling of eight critical innings. THE TABLES TURNED.

Woodstock, Ont., July 21.—Yester-day's Canadian League game here com-pletely turned the tables again, Hamilton winning from Woodstock by 11 to 5. Dean, Hamilton's second baseman, was hit on the arm by a pitched ball in the second inning, and badly hurt. A doctor had to be called. Conwell ran for him, and McCann took his place on second base. The Hamiltons' good playing throughout won them the game. Score: R. H. E. Woodstock ... 1 0 0 1 0 0 1 2 0 - 5 9 5 Hamilton ... 4 0 1 0 0 0 4 2 0 - 11 10 2

TROIT. Detroit, Mich., July 21.-The unexpected happened in the Merchants' and Manufacturers' $10,000 trotting stake, when Royal Baron, a comparative outsider, became the winner of the rich purse. But it was not won without an effort, for never was there a finer struggle in a horse race than the one put up by Kingwood, who won two of the heats and finished second in the other five. Royal Baron is a six-year-old bay horse, bred by Col. Stoner, of Kentucky, and is the property of N. W. Rubinger, of New Haven. Up to yesThe Abbott lowered the season's trotting record from 2:10, made by Surpol on Thursday, to 2:07%. The first money, won by Royal Baron, amounted to $5,340. Summary:

Merchants' and Manufacturer's stake, $10,000, for 2:24 class trotters — Royal Baron, b. h., by Baron Wilkes, dam Daisy Blackwood (Spear), won fourth, sixth and seventh heats and race; Kingwood second, The Queen third, Success fourth. Best time, 2:101/2. 2:07 class, pacing, purse $2,000—Sherman Clay, ch. g., by Claydust (West), won second, third and fifth heats and race; Pearl Onward second; Egonsen third. Best time, 2:06½. 2:27 class, trotting, purse $1,200—Bel Esprite, b. g., by Row Bells (Miner), won first and second heats and race;

Derby Lass 2, Black Robert 3. Best time, 2:12½. 2:12 class, pace, purse $1,200—Edith W., b. m., by Ben Lomond, jun. (Welderman), won second and third heats and race; Fannie Dillard 2, Little Frank 3. Best time, 2:061/2.

2:08 class, trotting, purse $2,000 — The Abbott, b. g., by Chimes (Geers), won first, third and fourth heats and won first, third and fourth heats and race; Mattie Patterson 2, John Nolan 3. Best time, 2:07½.

2:15 class, pacing, purse, $2,000 (unfinished)—Nerva Patchen won first heat; Hontas Crook the second, and The Maid the third. Best time, 2:08. THE WINGHAM RACES.

Wingham, Ont., July 21.—The second day of the Wingham races was an unqualified success. Rain in the morning made the track heavy, which accounts for the time made. The crowd was immense, about 4,000 being present. A. S. Smith, St. Thomas, acted as starter, and gave good satisfaction. Summary: First race, 2:35 pace, 2:30 trot, purse $300:

DOCTORS DOWNED. A large number of visitors gathered at the asylum grounds yesterday to witness the cricket match between the doctors and lawyers. In the first inning the doctors scored only half as many as their opponents, but after luncheon the tables were turned. A fine uphill fight by the medicos all but put them in the lead. During the afternoon the Asylum Band played a select programme of music. The victory for the lawyers was a narrow one, and a future contest is being talked of, in which the doctors have strong hopes of getting the best of the argument. The score: Sawbones-First inning-

Since that time great pressure has been brought to bear on Mr. Clark, and at last he has agreed to release Maher from the contract.

SUSPENDED

MEMBERS.

Toronto, Ont., July 21.-Chief Justice Meredith this morning delivered judgment in the case of the Select Knights, who appealed against the decision of the local master at St. Catharines, making them contributories to the dues and assessments levied under the winding-up order. The appellants claimed that they were not liable, having ceased to be members before the collapse of the society by reason of non-payment of dues. Their names, however, appeared on the books as suspended members, and they had not formally retired according to the prescribed form The chief justice set aside the master's ruling and ordered a reference back to him for further consideration. At the same time the chief justice states that a suspended member is none the less a member, and any liability to pay dues and assessments continues, not only as to those payable at the time of suspension, but also as to dues and assessments incurred after suspension, and before the default has resulted by the operation of the rules in his ceasing to be a member.

Discovered by a Woman. Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking the first dose that she slept all night; and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Sold by all druggists at 50 cents and $1. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale by W. T. Strong & Co.

LIFE SAVED-Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Themas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good.

A Hint to New Senators.

We notice that in recent divisions which have taken place in the Senate some of the new Senators were not present. It may be that the Liberal party have been so long in the minerity in the Senate that a division is boked upon as a useless formality; but this is a great mistake. Those who accept places at the hands of the Administration in the Senate ought to be present in order to take part in the

We have not been amongst those who have advocated the abolition of the Senate, but if anything could go to discredit the body, it would be the fact that so many of the Liberal Senators show so little interest in its proceedings. We believe that on more than one occasion since the present session began the progress of measures has been delayed waiting for the return to the Senate of some of the members who were away. This is a most unsatisfactory condition of things, and is one that the public would certainly not regard with in-

We hope, as the Liberal representation in the Senate is increased, that the Government members will feel the responsibility that devolves upon them, and will give a fair measure of attention to the public business.

The representation of the Liberal party in the Senate is steadily grow-When the present Government came into power, out of the 80 members in that body but 8 were Liberals. Now there are over three times that number.

An Ill-Timed Resolution.

The rejection of Mr. McNeill's preferential tariff resolution in the House of Commons yesterday is a matter for public congratuation. The motion in and loss of self-control, to say nothing of his apparent instability, precipitated that he could not in any was offensively partisen, but was considerably modified by san, but was considerably modified by Sir Charles Tupper. Even in its amended form the resolution was very inopportune. Nothing is so calculated to retard the steady integration of the Empire as a premature demand by Canada for special favors from the Mother Country. This would involve the complete reversal of the trade pollcy of Great Britain, which has been established for 50 years, and which publie opinion supports today as strongly as ever. There is no prominent British Statesman, excepting Mr. Chamberlain, who has lent the least encouragement to the idea of preferential trade. The Duke of Devonshire has been cited as sharing Mr. Chamberlain's views, but eyes?" in his letter to Mr. Mulock he denies having ever spoken in approval of the preferential scheme, or in denunciation of free trade, as Sir Charles Tupper claimed his grace had done. To try to force the issue on the British people before they, themselves, have been educated to the principle, would damage Canada in the intelligent opinion of Great Britain, by lending a selfish color to our imperialism. Canada at present enjoys the enthusiastic confidence and admiration of Great Britain, and has done more to promote imperial unity than all the other colonies put together, by her generous attitude and voluntary concessions to the Mother Country. We should not destroy our influence by confessing to such selfseeking motives as are expressed in Mr. McNeill's resolution. When preferential trade becomes a real mue in Great Britain it will be tim's mough for Canada to join in.

Henniker Heaton, M.P., has been presented with the freedom of the city of London for his work on behalf of imperial penny postage. It is not reported that Mr. Heaton has been sneered at by any of his political opponents because of his achievements. It is different in Canada.

Elections are strenuous enough in Canada, but in staid old England, strange to say, they are invariably more picturesque. Georgina, Duchess of Devonshire, a century ago, bribed woter with a kiss, and since that distinguished example it has become a regular thing for women to take an turn. octive part in the British elections, though it is not on record that they go to Georgina's extreme. We read in the London Times that on polling day in Oldham, a fortnight ago, "Lady Randolph Churchill, dressed entirely with sunshade to match,

Still Harping on Our Mayor. [Windsor Record.]

A London citizen who is in the city today says that all is quiet in the Forest City. He lays the entire responsibility for the so-called riot on Mayor Wilson, whose lack of judgment tomed to harangue the strikers, assuring them of his unalterable support and sympathy. Now, on the breaking of a few panes of glass and sundry rotten eggs, he reads the riot act, and later gets so panicky as to alarm all Ontario by a call for the militia. This last act has turned London and its civic government into a provincial laughing stock. This citizen characterizes the act as "idiocy," and thinks if some handy carpenter would fit Mayor Wilson with a wooden head, he would be a more useful, and certainly a safer. man for the city he governs.

LOST FOR TEN DAYS

Little Toronto Boy Brought Home in a Pitiable Plight.

Toronto, July 21.-Little Frankie Moore, of 71 Seaton street, the 11-year-old son of Thes. Moore, returned to his Wednesday night after an absence of ten days. A week ago Mon-day he disappeared and had not since been heard of. Wednesday afternoon the father heard that the boy had been seen on the Island, and he and his wife hurried over, but could find no trace of him. They returned to the city with little hopes of ever seeing the boy alive again, and were overjoyed to find him sitting on the front steps with a young lady named Miss McComb, who had brought him in from Munro Park. He had been wandering about alone all time, and it is a wonder how he managed to sustain himself. He went to sleep in the bush the first night, having taken a rest and dozed off. It is thought that the sun affected his mind, for he is now in a half-witted state and can tell nothing of his wanderings. The exposure and continual tramping has brought out blisters all over his legs, and he presented a pitiful sight to his parents on their re-

ELECTION CASE

Testimony Before the Parliamentary Committee on Privileges and Elections.

[C. P. R. Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Ont., July 20 .- At 10 o'clock, yesterday, the committee on privileges and elections resumed investigation into the West Huron election case. Donald Cummings, deputy returning officer at No. 4 Colborne was examined by Mr. Borden. Witness said Michael Tobin was poll clerk and John Law-son, one of Holmes' scrutineers, acted Tobin during the hour in which Tobin was taking his dinner. Cummings said he got the ballot box at the residence of the returning officer and took the oath there. He (witness) said that Dancy, who remained to see the ballots counted, said that he had his papers as agent for Holmes, but witness did not see them.

In reply to Mr. Russell he said that he only left the polling booth for about two or three minutes during the day. The scrutineers on both sides were present when he was absent.

To Mr. Sifton witness said that the only papers he put into the box were those which were inserted in the presence of the scrutineers. He had the key and took charge of the ballot box afterwards.
To Mr. Powell he said that the pen stuck in the paper, and he had used a pencil part of the time in putting his initials on the ballots. Of the 30 ballots which were for McLean, the Con-servative candidate, all except possibly one were initialed in pencil, and he would not swear that it was in ink. The Holmes ballots were marked, some in ink and some in pencil. Ballots from 1 to 14, inclusive, marked for Holmes had a straight line to the right, which appeared to differ from the other ballots. They were of those which were initialed in ink. The same line in the other ballots appeared to be jagged. The witness thought that the paper in the fourteen ballots was thinner than the paper of the other ballots. He could not in any way ac-

What Mr. Powell evidently wanted to show from this was that these fourteen ballots had been put in for Holmes in place of McLean ballots. The contention of the opposition that 43 voted for McLean, while only 30 ballots were found in the box. The return gave 68 for Holmes and 30 for

Witness could not, he said, again, account for the difference which appeared in the printing and in the paper of the fourteen ballots referred He would not swear that these fourteen ballots came from the package given him by the returning officer, yet they must have come from there, as his initials were on them. From the difference which appeared to be in the paper, he would not swear, but they appeared to be the ballots which he gave to the voters, from his initials being there. The paper did not appear to be the same as the others. The greater part of the fourteen ballots were initialed with a short "C" for Cummings. There were only a few of the fourteen that had a short "C" on

The witness would not swear to it, but it did not seem to him that the ballots were the same as those given him by the returning officer. While he admitted that he could not in any not come out of the book he got from the returning officer, yet he had no other source of getting them, and therefore he could not explain how his initials were on them. He had no definite place for putting his initials on the ballots. Witness denied that any voter complained of his monkeying with ballots.

THE MASONS

Grand Lodge Elects Deputy District Grand Masters-Providing for the Sick.

Ottawa, July 21.-The Grand Lodge of Masons resumed yesterday, the attendance being larger than expected. The two notices of motion offered by Bro. McKnight, of Owen Sound, regarding the prohibition of public processio s, were carried.

A proposal that in the scheme of appropriating out of the moneys to the credit of the asylum fund, the sum of $7,000 be taken for the erection of a cottage at Gravenhurst in connection with the Home for Consumptives, and that the grand master, grand treasurer, J. Ross Robertson, R. T. Walkem, Kivas Tully, W. Gibson, R. B. Hun-gerford, Judge Harding and the mover be a committee to superintend the erection and equipment of the building, etc., was amended so that the same special committee is to be appointed to consider the scheme outlined, and to prepare and submit to grand lodge at its next meeting a scheme for its adoption. Bro. Barwick withdrew his resolution in favor of the amendment, which was unanimously carried.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Fears of rust and light receipts caused a rally in wheat today, September closing at an advance of %c. Corn and oats closed a shade higher. Pork declined 5c to 7%c; lard, 2%c and ribs, 5c. Diminishing Northwest receipts and unexpected strength at Liverpool were features. September opened 70%c. Longs were disposed to take profits, however, and the price soon slipped off to 70%c. The decline was checked by the reports of damage to the spring group by a bot of damage to the spring crop by a hot wave in the Dakotas, closely follow-ing heavy reductions. The bears tried to get back former holdings, and as competition was keen. September rose quickly to 71%c. Realizing during the last hour, however, caused a decline to 71c at the close. Barcelona, July 21.-There was a serous demonstration here yesterday. A mob of about 800 persons seized the opportunity afforded by the presence of French Admiral Fournier at an official lunch to parade the streets carrying the French tricolor and shouting seditious cries. The crowd was dispersed by the police after some trouble and a number of arrests were made.

Rioting occurred also at Corrunna and Betanzes, arising from the opposition of the fish merchants to the octroi charges. The octroi department and the houses of the mayor and one of the municipal councilors at Betanzes was set on fire by the rioters and destroyed. Troops have been sent to the two towns to suppress the disturb-

Other financial measures, Senor Silvela said, would be discussed at the next session of the cortes. Senor Sagasta and the leaders of all opposing parties then congratulated Senor Silvela on having arrived at a satisfactory arrangement. The chamber will be prorogued next week.

INDIGNATION AT CAPE TOWN. Cape Town, July 21.- The communique which appeared in the London Times stating that the franchise con-cessions said to have been made by the Volksraad and the Transvaal were regarded as ending the crisis in the relations between Great Britain and the South African republic was cabled here. The present attitude of the British Government, if the statements in the communique were officially inspired, as they are believed to have been, is regarded as an incredible volteface, and has aroused strong indignation among the British residents. Much surprise and excitement also occasioned at Johannesburg at the news. The seven-year franchise is regarded as wholly inadequate here, and Sir Alfred Milner's demand for a fiveyear franchise is still insisted upon as the minimum acceptable.

HOT IN LONDON.

London, July 20 .- A spell of unpresedented heat, which has spread over the entire country, reached a climax yesterday and today, the thermometer registering 87 degrees in the shade. There have been numerous cases of sunstroke, many fatally. Horses have suffered from the heat almost as much as human beings.

TITHES BILL PASSED.

In the House of Commons the tithes rental bill passed its third reading by a vote of 182 in favor to 117 against. Several Unionist and Liberal members voted against the bill, while others abstained from voting.

AT THE HAGUE.

The first committee of the interna-tional peace conference met yesterday. Mr. Van Karnebeck, representing Holland, submitted amendments to the report, omitting the prohibition clause desire that the remaining three points be made the subject of a formal convention. The committee unanimously supported the prohibition of firing explosives from balloons. The delegates representing the United States and Great Britain voted against the prohibition of the use of asphyxiating gas and the expansive bullets. The American delegates explained that they voted with the British delegation on the subject of expansive bullets because they did not wish to modify their objection to any kind of restriction up-on the production of war material. Capt. Mahan and Sir Julian Pauncefote finally moved the suppression of the clause, and proposed a formal convention upon the other three points of the Muravieff circular. This was agreed to. CHAMBERLAIN IS HOPEFUL.

Replying to a question in the House of Commons regarding the relations be-tween Great Britain and the South Af-rican Republic, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain said that the modifications made in the franchise law of the Transvaal led the government to hope that the new law may prove the basis of a settlement upon the lines laid down by Sir Alfred Milner, the British high commissioner of South Africa. The government, however, Mr. Chamberrovernment ain added, observed that the Volksraad has still retained a number of conditions that might be interpreted so as to take with one hand what given by the other. It would also be easy by subsequent legislation to alter the whole character of the concessions; but Mr. Chamberlain added, the government feels assured that President Kruger, having accepted the principle for which the British Government contended, is well prepared to reconsider any details of his scheme which might possibly hinder the full accomplish-ment of the object in view, and that he will not allow it to be nullified or reduced in value by subsequent alterations of the law or any act of the administration.

Conflicting Statements Regarding the Situation in New York.

Disturbances in Cleveland-A Little Strike at Simcoe, Ont.—Trouble in Woodstock Threatened.

IN NEW YORK. New York, July 21. - There were scarcely any indications of a street railway strike in Manhattan borough this morning. Cars on all lines affected ran apparently on schedule time. In Brooklyn apparently about 90 per cent of the regular number of cars were in American troops. operation, but carrying only about one-half the usual number of passengers.

ANOTHER STORY. Notwithstanding the claims of the officials of the various lines that their cars are running on schedule time, General Master Workman Parsons issued a statement yesterday, in which he declared that the strike is practically won. He says that 1,500 men are out, and more are going out hourly.

He was stoned and driven away. A girl was hit with a stone and seriously hurt. Three pa trol wagon loads of police responded to the call, and the crowd scattered.

A mob collected on Broadway at Petrie street, and attempted to prevent the last car from going to the barns. A small squad of police, under Captain Rowe, soon arrived, and charged the crowd, which soon dispersed. Several arrests were made, one of the prisoners being a man who was knocked senseless by a policeman's club.

During the night obstructions were piled on the street railway tracks in various parts of the city. The mayor and the street railway union announce that rewards will be offered for the arrest of those guilty of blowing up the street car with dynamite.

COST OF THE BROOKLYN STRIKE. Brooklyn, July 21.-The strike, according to a statement made by President Rossiter, has so far cost the Brooklyn Transit Company, $55,000, or an average of $11,000 a day since it was started last Sunday morning.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Mrs. G. Stinson, who keeps a grocery store at 350 Rectory street, has laid a complaint against Wm. Lobb, charging him with assault. Mrs. Stinson was standing on the verandah, in front of her store this morning about 10 o'clock, and is said to have called "scab," when. Lobb, who was passing, is alleged to have struck her violently in the face with his clenched fist, making her nose bleed. Lobb is a foreman at the Chemical Company's

THE OLD BOYS' BADGES.

The clasp is of embossed gold, representing Canada's emblem. the beaver and the maple leaf, and inlaid in enamel are two Union Jacks. One thousand of these handsome decorations are to be prepared for the printing committee, to be sent to the visitors. Personal invitations to attend the great reunion on Aug. 5 will also be sent by the committee to many of the distinguished Old Boys. The badges to be worn by the members of the reception committee will be of red wilk. These details were decided upon by the printing committee yesterday

LONDON OLD BOYS OF TORONTO. The London Old Boys' Association, of Toronto, met last night at the Queen's Hotel and perfected arrangements for the annual excursion to London on Saturday, Aug. 5. It is expected that several hundred ex-Londoners from this city will go. Special caps and badges will be worn, and arrangements for the sale thereof have been made with local merchants. The contingent will be attended by the Forty-eighth Highlanders' Band. In addition to the Toronto association, London old boys resident in Chicago will be present to

The Detroit contingent will probably reach 300, and will be accompanied by the Michigan Light Guards' Band. Many representatives from Pittsburg, Pa., and Grand Rapids, Mich., where associations exist, will also be present, and old boys in New York, Montreal, Port Huron, Windsor and other cities have signified their intention of being present.-Toronto Mail and Empire. MAY STAY SIX WEEKS.

The Windsor correspondent of the Detroit Free Press says: Yesterday Lieut.-Col. Guillot, of the Twenty-first Fusiliers, was notified by Col. Holmes. of London, that permission had been granted to any member of the Windsor detachment to return home if he wished. Only two or three availed themselves of the privilege. The boys will in all likelihood be kept in London for the next six weeks, and others will be sent to take the places of those who are forced to return to their work here. THE SECOND ENJOYABLE OUTING.

The bicycle club of Smallman & Ingram took a run to Pond Mills last EXODUS OF evening, and after enjoying themselves for an hour, returned and ended at Mr. Smith's on Dufferin avenue, where they were entertained most loyally to a magnificent spread of all the seasonable delicacies. After satisfying themselves a splendid programme was introduced of readings, recitations, singing and violin selections, which lasted till the first hour of the day. Mr. Wallace made a very fitting speech, after which the gathering dispersed, leaving behind them their good wishes for Mr. Smith and Miss Smith.

NORMAL SCHOOL APPOINTMENTS

F. W. Merchant Principal and John Dearness Vice-Principal.

A special dispatch to The Advertiser from the education department conarms the reported appointment of Mr. F. W. Merchant, principal of the Collegiate Institute, to the principalship of the new Normal School here, with Mr. John Dearness, inspector of public schools for East Middlesex, as vice-principal. The appointments are marks of distinguished honor, and carry good salaries, and that the choice should have fallen upon two local men will be gratifying to the citizens of London. Both appointers are highly capable and efficient men for the positions. The school will be opened at the beginning of the year.

AFRICAN BELLES Being Stockingless, They Color Their

Limbs With Red Faint. Lieutenant Houst, of the French army, has published a lively personal narrative of his recent explorations in West Africa. With four white companies he pluckily sailed down the Niger River in an aluminum sailing boat of about seven feet beam, managing to carry her and her smaller consorts, manned by friendly natives, the whole distance from Timbuctoo, past Say and Busa, to the sea without serious accident of loss of life. Being & Frenchman, the most amusing parts of his book are devoted to descriptions of Negredian ladies, whom he studied along the river banks. He was not captivated by their beauty. Indeed, he compares them to Durham oxen, for negresses, "like English women, when they are ugly at all, are really re-voltingly ugly."

The corpulent matrons of the Niger eagerly clad themselves in yards upon yards of cheap velveteen, but there were girls of more slender make, whose sole attempt at dressing was staining their legs to the knees with rocou or red dye, "which gives them the appearance of wearing nothing but light red stockings." The gay lieutenant confesses that he was confused as a shy Englishman at the unusual sight; but one of the red-legged beauties, noticing his embarrassment, remarked very sensibly: "Are we so badly made that we need hide ourselves? All in good time. When we are old like our mothers we will wear clothes." The menfolks likewise have their amusing traits. A declaration of war was one day brought to the lieutenant's boat. While it was being translated M. Hourst covertly watched the ambassador. After delivering his message he had prudently sought refuge behind a piece of rock, but, finding that no notice was taken of him, he peeped out, first with one eye, then with both eyes, finally ventured into the open, with the plaintive interrogatory:

"Is there any hope of getting

JESSAMINE.

Roy Fordham's full, pleasant tones reached Jessie's ear like an angelic benediction through the seething chaos that was wallowing her up.

"I am glad, moreover, that you have, in the present company, introduced the subject of your misgivings regarding my cousin's behavior while I was away. I appointed him by proxy before I left my betrothed and my native land. doubt of his right dealing were paid in that character. I cannot have you undervalue the 'true and honorable gentleman' I knew Orrin Wyllys to be. He is my friend."

Baxter gulped down all the solicitude she could swallow, and threw all the rest into the deprecating look she cast upon Roy. He stood before his zealous old superior—courteous, kind, but earnest in defense of his absent friend the model of gallant manliness thought shadow of Mrs. Baxter's chair, halfdead with remorse and the dread of additional questioning.

The love of this man she had trodden under foot, forgotten affection and duty to him in the mad, wicked delirium ance. wrought by the wiles of one whom Roy. She in the simplicity of his integrity, still accounted honest and faithful. A cheat and a coward Jessie had written Orrin down since that early September day when he confided to her the fact of his engagement, and shrank visibly at the suggestion of Roy's anger at his shameless breach of faith. She stigmatized him now, in the council of her thoughts, as a liar from the beginning. He had maneuvered, then, to procure Mrs. Baxter's invitation for herself, while he denied to her that she had ever been named between them until after this was sent out; he inveigled her away from the shelter of her father's roof and the guard of her sister's care, that he might establish his fell influence over her. Would not Roy, with all his generous trust in his cousin's honor and friendship, compare the doctor's mal-apropos statement with her confession of the change in herself, and arrive at a tolerably correct perception of the truth that would blast her for ever in his sight, as not the gentle voice. "And henceforward merely weak and fickle, but forward

His considerate spouse carried him off before one-third of the knots in his handkerchief were untied. Her valedictory, like her salutatory, was a diffuse apology for their intrusion upon the sacredness of the installation eve.

But the doctor - dear, blundering man, is amenable to no laws of conventionality," she subjoined, with an indulgent shrug and sigh.

It is questionable whether either of the persons addressed regretted the breach of etiquette. The time had gone by more swiftly and comfortably than if they had been left to themselves. As it was, an embarrassing silence followed the visitors' departure. Roy stood on the rug, facing the fire, motionless and thoughtful. Jessie, trembling in a nervous chill that changed her fingers into shaking icicles, durst not attempt to speak.

Fordham finally came out of his reverie with a start, and turned toward her apologetically.

"You are sadly tired. Our good friends were very welcome, but they have kept you up beyond your strength. May I take you to your room?"

She murmured a disclaimer of the imputation of excessive fatigue, but took his proffered arm, and they mounted the stairs together.

A bright fire burned in the large front chamber, flashed gaily back from the gilt fleur-de-lis of the delicately tinted wall paper and the frames of the few pictures. A cosy arm-chair stood ready for Jessie with a foot-cushion below it, and the marble slab of bureau and mantle bore fragile wealth of Bohemian and frosted glass and Parian ornaments.

"Is there anything I can do to make you more comfortable?" inquired Roy, not offering to sit down. "Wouldn't a glass of wine do your head good?" "I think not. I need nothing, thank you," without raising her eyes from the

"Good-night and pleasant dreams," he repeated, with a kindly pressure of the chill fingers. An impulse she could not control or define drew her to her feet. "Won't you kiss me, Roy?" she asked, in sorrowful humility.

She did not see how bloodless were the lips that obeyed. The salute was, to her apprehension, cold and reluctant, and, without another syllable, he passed on to the outer door. There he stopped-hesitated, with a backward glance at the drooping figure standing where he had left her-and returned.

"I had not intended to say it yet," he mid, agitatedly. "There have been times when I questioned the propriety of any attempt at self-justification. But I would not have you think worse of me than I deserve for my selfish recklessness in hurrying on our marriage. I received this letter"—giving it to her —"last night. It furnishes the clue to much that I now see ought to have checked my unseemly impatience to claim the right I believed was still mine. "My only hope now is, that since I know what I should have perceived from the beginning, I may spare you annoyance, if not misery, by consulting your wishes and respecting your repugnances. If I could set you free, I would. My heaviest burden is the consciousness that this is impracticable. It is my desire that, from this time, you should cease to regard me as your husband, and try to think of me as your friend. For we may still be that to each other-may we not, dear Jessie?"

She was moaning as in mortal pain. "This kindness kills me! I had rather you should say that you hated

FIRE ON A STEAMER. Owen Sound, Ont., July 21. - Fire broke out Wednesday night in the C. P. R. steamer Athabasca, which was tied up at her dock. An explosion of some combustibles took place, after which the fire was discovered. An effort was made to subdue the flames by steam to save the cargo. Eventually, however, the hold had to be flooded with water. The loss will be considerable, as a large quantity of freight was damaged.

A very pretty custom obtains among certain classes by which the newly married pair starts a savings bank for the child yet to be. Every day a penny or a dime, as to be. Every day a penny or a dime, as the case may be, is dropped into the bank to swell the fund, and this practice is

The Redistribution Bill Voted Down, 36 to 14.

The Preferential Trade Motion Defeated in the House of Commons The House in Supply.

Ottawa, July 21.-By a vote of 36 to 14 the senate yesterday killed the redistribution bill. The division was strictly on party lines, with the exception of Senator de Boucherville, of Quebec, who voted with the Liberal minority. The result of the vote was, of course, no surprise to the govern-ment, whose members were well aware of the probable issue since Sir Mac-kenzie Bowell moved his amendment declaring that the bill was inadvisable at the present juncture, and that the principle of decennial redistributions should be adhered to. The vote sim-ply means that the members of the senate hold that the Commons of Canada are not competent to regulate their own affairs.

IN THE HOUSE. For the first time this session the House of Commons held a morning sitting yesterday, and from now until the business of the session is concluded the house will sit in the morning, in addition to the regular sitting, which commenced at 3 o'clock on six days in the week. The time of the house was occupied until 10 o'clock in the evening with the debate upon the motion offered by Sir Charles Tupper in reference to preferential trade with

After the Duke of Devonshire's expose of the fallacy of the statement that in 1897 he had offered prefer-ential trade to Canada through Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the interest very largely went out of the debate. Sir Charles, in his amendment, recited this now exploded assertion, and while members on both sides of the house spoke today, some of them delivering interesting addresses, the debate was rather more of an academic than a controversial character, albeit Mr. Da-vin essayed to revamp his leader's assertion. The amendment of Sir Charles was simply a direct motion of want of confidence in the government, and was voted down by gentlemen who are quite as earnestly in favor of closer trade relations with the mother land as are Sir Charles and his friends. The amendment was defeated by 77 to 41. Messrs. McCarthy, Stubbs and Rogers voting with the minority. At 10:15 the house went into committee and passed a small item of $5,000 without delay. At 12:30 o'clock the second item, $10,000, for erecting a wharf at Bruce Mines, was passed after motions to strike the item out and making it imperative for the work to be done by tender had been voted down. The item of $40,000 for im-proving the channel at Burlington was then taken up.

Several Firms in Toronto, London and Other Cities in the Province Associated in the Movement.

[From Toronto Globe, July 21.]

An important movement has been undertaken by many of the leading firms engaged in the wholesale grocery business in Western Ontario. For may years competition in this line has been excessively keen, and, al-though a great volume of business has been done in the aggregate, expenses have been very heavy. In no branch of the trade has this been more notceable than in the buying department. Shrewd and skilled buyers have been employed by each firm, and no effort has been spared to obtain whatever advantages might accrue from such a

This has been found to be a great handicap on account of the expense, and it will all be changed in the future. An organization has been formed for the establishment of a central buying agency, which will act as a broker for all the firms who are members. This agency will employ a corps of intelligent buyers, who will visit the principal markets and se-cure goods under very favorable conditions. By purchasing goods in large quantities the agency will be enabled to command the lowest figures and to secure the best terms as to credit, discounts, etc. It will do almost all the buying for the houses represented, and only small orders will be given to the individual firms. A vast amount of capital will indirectly support the new agency, enabling it to consummate extensive deals in grocery articles.

Mr. H. T. Wilson, of J. L. Watt &
Scott, Toronto, is the manager of the new institution, and the following Toronto firms have become members: Eby, Blain Co., limited, Davidson & Hay, Perkins, Ince & Co., and T. Kin-near & Co. Others have signified their intention of joining, and it is probable that before long all the large wholesale grocery firms in the city will do their buying through the agency. Lucas, Steele & Bristol, and other firms in Hamilton, and firms in London and Brantford are also mem-bers. The head office of the concern will be in Toronto. It will take the form of a joint stock company, and application for a charter has already been made. The officers will not be elected until the charter is secured. The nominal capital will not be large, as it is expected that the actual running expenses of the agency will be triffing.

The movement starts with every prospect of success, and it will pos-sibly lead to combinations of a similar character among other branches of character among other branches of the wholesale trade. The establish-ment of the agency will be noticed with interest by all classes of the com-mercial world, as the innovation is another evidence of the tendency to concentration that is going on in the commercial world

A FAMILY GATHERING. The seven surviving sons and three daughters of the late John M. and Rebecca Wilson, who settled in the township of Middleton, Norfolk county, in 1852, held a reunion on Wednesday, July 19, 1899. They met at the day, July 19, 1899. They met at the G. T. R. depot at 11 o'clock, and proceeded to Edy's gallery to obtain photographs of the group, after which they drove out to the residence of one of the brothers. Charles E. Wilson of the brothers, Charles E. Wilson, 2nd concession of Westminster, where a choice dinner was served. The afternoon was spent in games, and the evening was spent in singing and reciting pleasant reminiscences of the old home life. There were present Rev. Jasper Wilson, of Goderich; Joseph A. Wilson, of Chatham, Mrs. Jennie Williams and her husband, of Delaware; Mrs. Susie Thompson and husband, of Kilworth; Mrs. Maria McNiece and husband, of Byron; Wm. J. RUSTY NAIL CAUSES DEATH. Halifax, N. S., July 21.-Jennie, a daughter of Michael Blakeney, while at play, ran a rusty nail into her foot. Blood poisoning followed and ultimately lock-jaw, from which, after ter-rible suffering, the little girl died. SLIVER DID IT.

Detroit, July 21.-A week ago Anton Zemba, aged 12, and living at 421 Lovett avenue, ran a sliver into his right foot, having been allowed to go about barefooted. No attention was paid to the injury at first. In a day or two, the foot swelled, the boy suffered great pain, and lock-jaw supervened. Dr. Gottman decided to try the new tetanus serum, a recent discovery by German authorities. He obtained the necessary quantity from Parke, Davis & Co., and inoculated the child. The effect was marvelous. After, three days the muscles began to relax and the boy's jaw assumed its normal position. However, his physical condition was greatly weakened, and yes-terday he died of exhaustion. Said Dr. Gottman: "The boy got over the lock-jaw all right enough. What he needed was stimulants and tonics to build up his weakened sys-

AN AWFUL DEATH.

Lakeville, Mich., July 21.-Mrs. Edgett, the 16-year-old wife of John Edgett, who the doctors say had hy-drophobia caused by the bite of a dog a year ago, died during a paroxysm. During her illness the unfortunate woman imagined herself to be nearly every domestic animal. As a dog she would bark and bite, as a cat, spit, claw and purr, and as a horse neigh, and ravenously eat hay.

Mrs. Sargeant, who was 71 years of age, was as well as usual Wednesday. In the evening she was sitting at supper with her family, and had just been handed a plate of berries, and put them down before her, when, suddenly, her head dropped forward and she fell off the chair to the floor and was dead before anyone could reach her. Mrs. Westbrook, of Windsor, Says Her Little Girl Was Abducted.

Detroit News: Little curly-headed, 3-year-old Nina Westbrook was boldly abducted in the street this morning, according to the story told between sobs to the police by the child's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Westbrook, of Pitt street east. She says this morning she sent her little girl with a note to a grocery store a short distance away. The child toddled away in the direction of the store. This was the last seen of her by her mother. Fifteen minutes passed and the lit-tle one had not returned. The mother became anxious. She started out in search of her baby. At the store she was told that the child had not be there. For an hour she kept up the search. She learned that a woman, described as of medium height, with gray heir and wearing a black with gray hair, and wearing a black dress, was seen to take the little girl in her arms at Pitt and Macdougall streets, and walk rapidly away with her. Mrs. Westbrook asked the police for assistance. Chief of Police Wills believes that the woman who carried off the child was from some children's home in Detroit and picked up the little one on the street to avoid the opposition that the mother would offer to giving up the child. Mrs. Westbrook is said to be in destitute circumstances, unable to care for the child.

SECOND CITY IN CANADA.

The cigar output of London during the fiscal year ending with June was in round numbers twenty-five million cigars-two millions more than in any previous year. London ranks second in Canada as a cigar-manufacturing center, being exceeded only by Montreal, where the output reached over forty millions this year. The number of cigars manufactured in London is three times greater than any other Canadian city outside of Montreal. IRISH BENEVOLENT SOCIETY

PICNIC. The Irish Benevolent Society picnic will be held at Port Stanley, and not at Sarnia, as was at first proposed. This was decided at a largely attended meeting last night. A vote was taken, and resulted in Port being chosen. The margin, however, was a very small one. A vote of thanks was passed to mayor and corporation of Sarnia for their action in the matter. The society will try this year to make the picnic a greater success than ever.

THE LATE ALFRED ROWLAND. The Lake Geneva (Wis.) Herald says in reference to the late Rev. Alfred Rowland, formerly of this city, who died in Lake Geneva on the 13th inst.: He was a man of strong religious convictions, of a sympathetic nature, which never lost an opportunity to do a good turn for another. His sense of honor was clean-cut and he was never known to do a mean or dishonest act. His word was good and could be relied upon. Such, in short, was his life among the people of Lake Geneva. He had been pastor of the Baptist Churches at East Delavan and Walworth, where his services gave good satisfaction. He leaves a wife, three sons, William and Alfred, of Chicago, and Edward, of our city; and four daughters, Mary and Bessie, of Lake Geneva, Mrs. W. F. Tapscott, of Erie, Pa., and Mrs. M. D. Stevers, of Chicago, besides a large number of friends all over this section to mourn his death, which was caused by pneumonia. Mrs. A. T. H. caused by pneumonia. Mrs. A. T. H. CHARLES CLARK IS DEAD

The Old Man Whe Was Assaulted and Robbed Last March-Death Was Due to Paralysis.

Mr. Charles Clark died about ten o'clock last night at the residence of his nephew, Mr. Jas. C. Stewart, 415

King street. Mr. Clark, it will be remembered, was assaulted and robbed at his home on St. James street in March last. He recovered partially, but never fully regained his strength. Deceased lay at the point of death for several weeks after the assault, and his physicians held out no hope for his recovery. At periods he could walk about the house, but some six weeks ago he tripped and fell, sustaining injuries which resulted in paralysis. This week he had lapsed into an unconscious condition, and gradually sank. He was 75 years of age, and had been a resident of London for a great many years. An aged sister, who lived with deceased, survives. The two men charged with the assault, Frank Cahill and John McDonald, are now out on bail.

FOUND IN CABAIO

Packages of Rennie's Seeds Discovered in a Philippine Town - One For. warded to Teronto.

[Toronto Globe.]

The Filipinos, it would seem, are not so barbarous as some of their detractors would like to make out; but, on the contrary, rejoice in the possession of aesthetic tastes and a love of the beautiful in nature. There is evidence to show that not only do the Filipinos delight in raising flowers, but they have the good sense to import their seeds from Canada. Mr. William Rennie, the well-known seed merchant, of this city, does a large foreign export business, but he probably did not realize until yesterday that his products were known and appreciated in the Philippines. That such is the case, however, is apparent from the follow-ing communication which Mr. Rennie received yesterday:

Headquarters First Division,
Eighth Army Corps, Office of Chief Surgeon,

Manila, P. I., May 29, 1899. William Rennie, Toronto, Canada: Sir,—On the recent advance to the north of the Island of Luzon, through the Provinces of Bulacan, Nueva, Ecija and A. M. de la Pampagna, the troops under the command of Major-General Lawton advanced into the town of Cabaio, a small native village, situated on the Rio Grande de la Pampagna. In a deserted house in that town I found a packages containing some dozens of packets of flower seeds from

Board of Works Advised to Save Up.

A Rainy Day in Sight-Ald. Parnell's Opinion of the Council's Business Methods-Some Tenders Dealt With.

At the regular meeting of the board of works last night Ald. There couldn't be an overdraft, he said, and No. 2 committee would have to help the council out of the hole to some ex-

Contracts for supplying gravel for No. 5 ward were received from Wm. H. Gould, Chas. Barfitt and P. M. Fox. Gould's tender at $3 50 per cord for screened pit gravel and $2 25 for unscreened was accepted. Barfitt's tender for screened river gravel was $2 65; unscreened, $1 80; screened pit, $3 75; unscreend, $2; paving stone, $1; screenings, 85 cents. Fox offered screened river gravel at $2.75 a cord. Ald. Garratt was strongly in favor of C. Barfitt's tender being accepted. Ald. Wilkey and Ald. Parnell opposed this. "If a private business was run like this city is, it would be bankrupt in six months," said Ald. Parnell.

The corporation laborers' pay sheet, amounting to $721 65, was passed. The chairman will interview Mr. George T. Hiscox about a long-standing account for a walk at corner of King and Richmond streets.

LOST IDENTITY

Every Fit-Reform Suit has the maker's brand and price sewn in the left breast pocket.

If that brand and price should happen to get CUT, LOST, STRAYED or STOLEN, then the garment ceases to be Fit-Reform, and may be sold at any old price.

We have about two dozen suits which lost their identity last night, and some of them appear in our window today looking for an owner. Most of these unhappy suits are made of Scotch tweed from Scotland and a few are of the best Canadian stock.

Some of this nameless lot are in slender and stout shapes in medium sizes, and some are in normal shapes, large and small sizes.

A few are in pronounced Scotch effects, which win favor every time with Londoners.

There is not a suit in the lot worth less than $22 made to order, nor less than $15 judged by Fit-Reform standards.

Every one of these garments bears our full and unequivocal guarantee and comes under our "money-back-if-dissatisfied" clause.

Our tailors make such alterations in the fit as you request, free of charge, and as cheerfully as if you were paying us the value of the garments instead of the vanishing price.

We have a few pairs of trousers which are equally unfortunate in having lost their labels.

Now who will own these daring exceptions to Fit-Reform?

Take a look in our window.

OREGON CLUB'S GARDEN PARTY

A Very Successful Affair in Aid of the Striking Street Railway Men.

A most pleasant and successful garden party was held last night on the pretty grounds of the Oregon Club, corner of Adelaide and Dundas streets, East London. It was held in aid of the striking street railway employes, and attended by about 350 people. A neat sum was realized. Ice cream and other refreshments were served by the ladies of the Home Defense League. The grounds were gatly decorated with Chinese lanterns and flags. There were some 30 tables for the accommodation of the guests, spread on the lawn, under the trees. An excellent programme was also provided. Among those taking part were: Sandy Dren-nan, Misses Nellie McLean, Lydia Sanger and Susie McGill. Several selec-tions were rendered by the Imperial Quartet, in fine voice. The ladies and committee in charge worked hard all yesterday afternoon, getting things in shape, and deserve great praise for the success of their efforts. There are 118 schools of music alone

Delegates Are Wrestling With Amendments to the Laws.

Port Huron, Mich., July 21.—The supreme tent, K. O. T. M., is wrestling with propositions submitted by the committee on laws. The convention will not likely close this week. At present the order pays old members, when 70 years old, whether disabled or not. A new amendment provides that disability must exist.

The ladies will probably fix on an extra assessment to swell the emergency fund. Both knights and ladies will subdivide their orders into districts and appoint a medical examiner for each.
