Holloway's Pills and Ointment.—Influencing, Coughs, and Colds.—In diseases of the throat and chest, so prevalent in our changeable climate, nothing so speedily relieves, or so certainly cures, as these inestimable remedies. These disorders are too often neglected at their commencement, or are injudiciously treated, resulting in either case in disastrous consequences. Whatever the condition of the patient, Holloway's remedies will restore, if recovery be possible, they will retard the alarming symptoms till the blood is purified and nature consummates the cure, gradually restoring strength and vital nervous power. By persevering the use of Holloway's preparations, tone is conferred on the stomach and frame generally. Thousands of persons have testified that by the use of these remedies alone they have been restored to health after every other means had failed.

Miscellaneous.

It will be seen by reference to the letters of the Earl and the Dowager Countess of Crawford and Balcarras the family have determined not to offer a ransom for the recovery of their noble relative, sacrilegiously stolen from the vault at Dun Echt. The decision doubtless arrived at after long and serious reflection, is equally remarkable for common sense, unselfishness, and a high sense of public duty. To offer money for the restoration of the beloved remains would be, says the Dowager Countess, to create an evil precedent, and to encourage the recurrence of similar crimes. Nevertheless the noble and bereaved one, at least, of the conspirators, conscience-stricken, may be induced to give information as would enable the family to restore the body to its resting place. No possible method capable of being devised to prevent a repetition of such a heartless and wicked act could equal that adopted in this case, and the unstinted approbation of the entire community will be added to the universal feeling of sympathy created in favor of the affectionate and united mother and son who so thoroughly realize the first duty of citizenship, that of subordinating private sentiment and personal interest to the public good. Thoroughly baffled in their designs, and finding it impossible to make a profit of their crime, the robbers who stole the body of the late Earl of Crawford and Balcarras might yet prove themselves not wholly bad by affording a clue to the whereabouts of the remains. It would be too much to expect of such persons that they should risk their liberty for the sake of making restitution, but if consistently with their own safety they could do what we suggest, their own dying moments might perchance be saved from the worst pangs of an unavailing remorse for a cruel and useless crime.

The Queen has written a sympathizing letter to the Earl of Crawford and Balcarras, informing him that she has requested Sir William Harcourt, Home Secretary, to spare no effort or expense to recover the body of the late Earl and punish the guilty parties.

TWO YOUNG HEROINES.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17.

Last evening seven young men, who live several miles down this side of the Ottawa River, started to skate to Gatineau Point for the purpose of attending a special service which was being held in the Church at that place for young men. Two of them were named Lariviere, two LaFontaines, and one Sabourin. The names of the remainder of the party could not be found out. When they arrived opposite Kettle Island they happened to reach a piece of bad ice and five of the party fell through.

The other two did the best they could to rescue their comrades, but after they had got several of them out, the ice on which they were standing gave way, and they themselves got into the water. Two Misses O'Neil, daughters of Superintendent O'Neil, of the Dominion Police, witnessed the accident from their house on Kettle Is-and, and with great presence of mind these two young ladies ran for their father's boat, which, they pushed across the ice until they came to the broken spot when they launched it and succeeded in rescuing the young men who were in the water. They were not a moment too soon, for one of the young men was utterly exhausted and was taken out of the water senseless. He was taken to Mr. O'Neil's house where restoratives were applied to him and everything possible done to restore him to consciousness, but, notwithstanding this, it was some hours before he recovered.

ARRIVAL ON THE HIBERNIAN.

A ROUGH PASSAGE OF 20 DAYS—THE BOATSWAIN LOST OVERBOARD—DEATH OF TWO OF THE PRIZE CATTLE.

The steamer Hibernian arrived from Liverpool, via Queenstown and St. John's, yesterday afternoon, after a long and boisterous passage. She left Liverpool on the 22nd of last month, and the same day a westerly gale commenced, which blew hard until Queenstown was reached, the next day. From there the weather was extremely rough, the wind blowing with great fury, the waves rising to a terrible height, and the ship, over which the sea often swept as if it would send all to bottom, making slow and tedious headway. At noon on the 28th the storm had increased to a hurricane from the north-west, and work on deck was made very dangerous. The boatswain, a man 35 years old, named Pierce Owens, belonging to Bangor, Wales, while attending to his duties, was caught in a heavy sea, as it washed fiercely over the ship, and in an instant was carried out of sight. The same wave also caught one of the boats, nearly tearing it from the davits. The boat had to be cut away to prevent the men working near from receiving injuries as it blew about. The storm continued until last Tuesday, when more moderate weather was encountered till St. John's was reached on Thursday, the only further damage sustained being the destruction of a steam winch. From St. John's, which was left on Saturday morning, heavy snow-storms were experienced, which lasted until noon yesterday. The passengers on the steamer did not show any indications of fear on the passage, even during the most furious periods of the storm, placing full confidence in the ability of those commanding to carry them safely across. The captain and several of the Hibernian's officers have seen as many as thirty years' service on the Atlantic, but none have ever before been through such violent weather as they experienced on this trip. After discharging her Halifax freight the steamer will proceed to Baltimore.

The Hibernian had on board when she left Liverpool, nine Polled Angus cattle, six cows and three bulls, selected in Great Britain by Mr. Bruce, perhaps one of the best judges of stock in the Kingdom, for the Nova Scotia Central Board of Agriculture. Two of the cows died on the passage, the others landing in excellent condition, considering the roughness of the voyage. These go in a special freight train to Truro, where they will be quarantined for ninety days, according to law, in an isolated premises owned by Mr. Cummings. They will be looked after there by Mr. Polo, who had charge of them during the passage from Liverpool. Mr. McFetridge, the Government Inspector, accompanies them to Truro. After passing the quarantine period they will be sold.—Halifax paper.

THE WIMBLETON MURDER.

ARREST AND EXAMINATION OF DR. LAMSON.

(From a late English paper.)

At the Wadsworth Police Court Dr. Lamson was examined on a charge of murder, in having caused the death of a student at the Blenheim House School, Wimbledon, with the view of succeeding to his property. Evidence was produced of the fact that a quantity of poison, probably aconite, had been found in the stomach of the deceased. It is now proposed to examine the body of the brother of the deceased, who died recently under mysterious circumstances. Dr. Lamson, who appeared to be in good spirits was remanded.

The prosecution stated that evidence would be produced that Dr. Lamson purchased two grains of aconite previous to his visit to Wimbledon, and that he was in great straits for money.

THE AMERICAN ACCUSED OF MURDER

The Wimbledon mystery is the great social topic of the day. Opinions are much divided. Some think Dr. Lamson is guilty of a clumsy murder, but others, including many medical men, think the boy died in consequence of morphia administered by the doctors. The case has excited as much attention as that of Lefroy.

[The police of London furnish these details of the story:—On Saturday evening, December 3, about seven o'clock, Mr. G. F. Lamson, aged 35, a surgeon, called at Blenheim House School in order to pay a visit to the deceased, who was his brother-in-law. Mr. Malcolm John was the sole surviving heir to considerable property, and it is not known how long his father and mother have been dead. He has two sisters, one of whom is the wife of Mr. Lamson, but none of them has a settled residence in England. Mr. Lamson, who last heard of in this country, was residing at Bournemouth where he practiced occasionally in his profession; when he called at the school on Saturday evening he saw his brother-in-law in company with Mr. W. H. Balbrook, the principal of the establishment. They were having some sherry together, when Mr. Lamson asked for some ground sugar, in order, as he said, to take away the alcoholic effect of what they were drinking. The ground sugar having been brought, Mr. Lamson produced some capsules and, addressing his brother-in-law, said: "Percy this is the way we used to take it in America to destroy the effects of the alcohol." Then he put some of the ground sugar into the empty capsule and handed it to Mr. Malcolm John who swallowed it. On a previous occasion, about three or four months ago, when Mr. Malcolm John was at Shanklin, in the Isle of Wight, he had, it appears, received a quinine pill from Mr. Lamson, from which he had suffered unpleasant sensations, and in a joking way he said on this occasion; "I don't want any of your quinine pills, such as you gave me at Shanklin. It nearly did for me there. Mr. Balbrook was handed one of the capsules before Mr. Malcolm John took his, but did not experience any unpleasant effect from taking it. The visit did not last altogether twenty minutes, and soon after Mr. Lamson left Mr. John began to feel ill. He said at first he suffered somewhat in the way he did when he took the quinine pill in the Isle of Wight. He gradually grew worse, and then he commenced to vomit, complaining all the time of a burning sensation at the heart, while his lower limbs were paralyzed. Medical aid was called at once. Mr. Berry, surgeon, was at Blenheim House School at the time and he was called up-stairs as soon as the unfavorable symptoms began to present themselves. At the same Dr. Little was sent for, and both gentlemen remained with Mr. Malcolm John until he died in great agony at 11.30 o'clock the same night. Before his death he said; "That brother of mine has done for me this time," and made other remarks to the same effect. The medical gentlemen evidently had their suspicions aroused from what they had seen and heard, for up to that evening Mr. John had been in his usual good health, and accordingly they directed that a portion of the vomit be preserved. It is now a possession of the police. Before leaving Blenheim house it was noticed that Mr. Lamson talked in a somewhat hurried and excited manner, and said he meant to start for Paris that night. It is known that he left Wimbledon by the 8.20 p.m. train for Waterloo.

THE GUILTEAU TRIAL.

Washington, Dec. 20.—It having been rumored this afternoon that Guiteau had committed suicide, a reporter visited the jail and found the prisoner in an unusually good condition. He grasped the reporter by the hand and said "I am happy to see you. I was shut off from the world so long and deprived of news-papers and my letters from relatives by that miserable Corbhill that it is quite a treat now to be able to receive my friends."

Lord Tenterden, who has, by Her Majesty's wish, undertaken the arrangements for the wedding of His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, is daily engaged at the Foreign Office furthering the project. It is understood that the Government of Waldeck, with whom Lord Tenterden is in communication, will place no barrier in the way of the Royal nuptials taking place in England, which is her Majesty's desire.

CARBONAR HERALD
Hon. labor, best heritage.
CARBONAR, JAN. 12, 1882.

THE HARBOR GRACE HIGH SCHOOL.

We understand that the Rev. D. M. McGreggor, D. D., Ph. D., opened the new Institution at Harbor Grace on (yesterday) Thursday, the 12th inst. He lectured in the Temperance Hall on the preceding Tuesday to a very large and attentive audience, in reference to the educational works which it is in contemplation to have effected. The Bishop presided on the occasion, and introduced the Lecturer.

It is impossible to condense the matter of the Lecture. The most we can do is to point out some of the considerations offered during its delivery. The speaker referred in the beginning to the promise held out by the public men of the island, and firmly believed in by the inhabitants generally, that the approaching development of resources, to be effected by the Railway project, in the mineral and agricultural capabilities of the island, is indication of a great and upward change. To prepare for the coming change, the young men of Newfoundland must be educated, or strangers will come in and walk to the front in every avenue. The training that sufficed in the past will be insufficient in the future. Steps must be taken at once; for mighty changes are imminent, and "activity is the watchword of the world."

Education must be religious as well as secular. The latter imparts knowledge but does not refine and ennoble the mind. It makes men cleverer citizens but not better men, or better members of society. God desires men to advance in branch of knowledge secular as well as religious; but above all he desires them to be virtuous; and the more virtuous a pupil is the better adapted he is to make progress even in secular instruction. Religion therefore must enter into every scholastic institute.

Everything that deadens the moral feeling is an obstacle to the progress of pupils. Novel reading, particularly of the sentimental kind, is especially injurious. It creates a distaste for severer studies and, in fact, for any earnest species of diligent application. It prevents the laying of that solid foundation which goes with us through life, and fits us to grapple perseveringly with difficulties. It promotes one's thinking for oneself; and unless one learns to think deeply one had better never open a primer.

Steady regular attendance at School is indispensable, not merely to generate punctual habits, but also to acquire a sufficient stock of knowledge. The day lost is frequently irretrievable; it is like an unploughed, unweeded spot in a garden; fruitless itself it breeds tares which adulterate the surrounding corn. It produces superficial knowledge, while any other than thorough knowledge is farcical.

School learning must be practical, that is, it must be shaped to suit one's future vocation in life. Learning which is merely abstract is useless outside the School, unless it may perchance whet the edge of the mind, and thus make it more discriminating and acute. One subject well mastered shows more brain power than a general smattering of a dozen sciences.

Large classes are beneficial. The friction of mind on mind sharpens the intellectual edge. There is an honest enthusiasm in a crowd which is not found in the isolated individual, and which tends to make pupils upright and fearless. It helps to destroy all underhand work—undermining, underplotting, and eavesdropping.

It is however impossible to recapitulate all that was said by the Reverend and learned lecturer. He concluded by indicating with much force the necessity of acquiring a thoroughly good knowledge of the English language, its accent, pronunciation, and classic authors in verse and prose.

A vote of thanks was moved by the Rev. D. McInnis, seconded by A. T. Drysdale, Esq., and carried with much enthusiasm. The principal inhabitants of the place, ladies and gentlemen, were present, to the number of about 800.

TELEGRAM "CAUGHT" AT ITS OLD WORK.

How they try to Gull the People with Imaginary Correspondence.

BLACKHEAD FALSIFIED.

We understand the people of Bay-Verde are determined to oppose the present Government at the coming general elections. A Black Head correspondent informs us that "Mr. Penny must give place to a man of sufficient moral courage to faithfully represent the district and oppose the reckless and dishonest policy of Messrs. Whiteway and Shea's Railway-at-any-Price Administration." Already, we are assured, committees, embracing leading men from various settlements along the Shore, have been formed and preparations made for holding caucuses and doing other preliminary work. Our correspondent also states that "the future Standard-bearer of the free and independent electors of Bay-Verde District will have to subscribe to the people's platform before his nomination."

As Mr. Penny above referred to is a native and resident of this town, and as such we always feel it our duty to uphold and defend those persons from the vile attacks and false outpourings of the Editor-in-Chief of the Telegram. Had Mr. P. been resident in any other place, and unknown to us we would probably have let the matter drop, though knowing it to be an absurd falsehood. But, on the contrary, he is personally known to us, and we believe him to be an energetic and promising young man, and one whose weight may yet be felt on the floors of the Assembly, though he is not a "sixteen stoner." Of course on entering the Assembly, 1878, he was a juvenile in politics, and very widely abstained from indulging in long speeches, but probably after his four years political schooling he will be able to come out more firmly next time, and no doubt the people have confidence enough in him to give him a fair trial. If we want good sound native politicians we must give them time. Mr. Penny, during his term of office has maintained for the North Shore the earnest consideration of the Government in all matters brought under his notice, and what more can any district expect from the best and ablest statesman. A Blackhead correspondent informs the Telegram that Mr. P. must give place to a man of moral courage. That won't go down, Mr. Telegram, every person who have the pleasure of Mr P's acquaintance cannot but know that he is a man both of moral and courage, and any person who knows anything about the district of Bay-Verde is well aware that Black Head is his stronghold, and not a man in it would be found to pen such lines as those, and what is more, many in Black Head are by family or otherwise connected with Mr. Penny. Now, we would have given a little credence to this if he had said a Lower Island Cove correspondent; but, if we remember right, he (the Editor) is played out there, as things have much altered since he last heard from them, and his chances of receiving a requisition from them are now very slim as his party have decided on bringing out Mr. Frost in his stead. With regard to the forming of committees we can say, without fear of contradiction, and we say it boldly, that not a single committee has yet been formed, and like the mass of lies compiled into a Brigus letter all these things have yet to happen. In the name of truth we leave you for the present to atone for those few little lies before charging you with others of a more serious nature.

A PROGRESSIVE NEWFOUNDLANDER.

CARBONAR AGAIN TO THE FRONT.

We had the pleasure of meeting, on Wednesday last, Mr. C. J. Keough who, we learn, preparatory to his trip to Britain, was on a flying visit to his friends and relatives, all of whom were more than happy to see one who has so far done honor to this town, in which he was born and reared, and proved himself to be one of the many successful pupils of the zealous and painstaking Lawrence McKay, Esq., J. P. Mr. Keough, after remaining with his family over night took his departure at a early hour next morning for Saint John's, where he left on Saturday last for the "old country," for the purpose of forming a company to work his mine at North-West Arm, Holyrood.

THE PROSPECTS OF THE MINE. The mine is situated in the head of Conception Bay, and is bounded by the sea and the main Road, and within 100 yards of the Railway line. It has been prospected by a competent miner named McGrath, who gives a very flattering account of the "hidden treasure," which is found in large quantities of "gray ore," embedded in slate. The deposit is supposed to be very abundant, as it has been found at several points. In addition to the above, and on the same claim has been found some splendid specimens of gold in quartz, which from its bearings is supposed to be a "lead" from the gold region of Brigus. In conclusion we wish this enterprising gentleman every success, and congratulate his parents and friends on his new undertaking.

At 11 o'clock the Jurors took their seats and were in the usual way sworn. His Worship I. L. McNeil, Esq., addressed them at some length in his able and impressive manner, giving very great attention, in the course of his remarks to the furtherance of the Permissive Bill, now in contemplation, and expressed his wish to see it become Law. After which the Grand Jury retired for some time and returned into Court with the following Presentment:

GRAND JURY ROOM.
Jan. 2nd, 1882.
The Grand Jury would call attention to the dangerous part of the Main Street between James Kelly's and Dwyers old Stores, and would suggest the necessity of a railing for public safety.
The Grand Jury would suggest that the Public Wharf be piled at the sides, at present it is unfit and dangerous for vessels lying there, owing to obstructions at its sides.
The Grand Jury would call attention to the Public Pumps in the rear of Capt. Fooks, and request they be put in working order.
The Grand Jury are pleased to find that measures are being taken to extend the Railway to Carbonar, and trust that a Survey will shortly be made for that purpose.

Correspondence

(To the Editor of Carbonar Herald.)

DEAR SIR,—
For the past month or more I have heard much concerning the Permissive Bill, and the probability of its passing in this District with but very little trouble. Mr. Editor, as you are no doubt aware, I am, and always have been, opposed to drunkenness and liquor drinking to excess, and (thank God) have a ways refrained from it. But in doing so I would never, no never, make any effort whatsoever to compel a District of such importance as this to shut out totally the sale of liquor. It is not because I am opposed to it or that I am afraid my sons may not walk in the path of sobriety that I must rise in "my might" and call all my friends "up in arms" against the four or five respectable publicans who are doing, or are striving to do, a respectable liquor business, and who cannot account for the few who may in the festive season over estimate their carrying capacities and moor themselves to the public street, or anchor in the police office, to "go on dock next day." Better, yes! much better have them there than on the Harbor Grace road with a bottle in their pocket and the hull probably below Plum-off's floating line, in a blinding snow storm like that of Saturday night. This is not in accordance with the Christian charity which we hear preached by many of the promoters of the Bill, viz:—"Help one another," "love your neighbor as yourself," "do unto others as you would wish others to do unto you," &c. I wonder how would any of the promoters of this Bill like to see the publicans go around with a requisition to obstruct in the slightest way their business much more to shut it down total if possible. Why should we, the people of Carbonar, be denied the privilege enjoyed by the people of a town but three miles distant. The matter will be this and nothing less, but goodness knows how much more.—Our people will not be a free people, they will not be able to go out and get their gas, as free citizens, they will have to walk three miles for it or make their own house a liquor store. If they go to Harbor Grace they meet with strange friends and strange foes and no knowing what may be the result. Many habits will be only glad for an excuse to go to Harbor Grace to buy their necessities and take a good feed of Rum, probably forgetting what they went for, any anxious mother and son will eagerly watch the majestic saddle to see emerging over it, their husband, brother, or other relative. Many a broken hearted wife the Permissive Bill will cause to roam the Harbor Grace Road late and early. Those who will not go but will send somebody to carry the can, I fear not a few of them will meet the fate of poor John Adams who lived in the parish of Southwell.

A Carrier, who carried his can to his mouth well;
He carried so much, and he carried so fast.
He could carry no more—so was carried at last;
For, the liquor he drank, being too much for one,
He could not carry off,—so he's now a Dragoon.

In conclusion, I would ask if the promoters of this Bill will buy up all the liquor in the hands of the publicans at the time of the passage of the Bill, and "stok it in fifty ratons of water." If not, what will they do with it, are the Publicans to be at the loss of their stock in trade to please the wafles and laucies of the few promoters.

Yours, etc.,
JUSTICE.

(To the Editor of Carbonar Herald.)

Harbor Grace, Jan. 10th, 1882.

DEAR SIR,—
I read a letter in the last number of your journal "A Painter," condemning the action taken by John Mann & Co's firm with regard to certain men who he says have built up that firm. Though correct in pointing out the principal points in the letter of "A Painter," I will with your permission ask him a few questions:—Was not the bricks laid, and the planks also, when Captain Thomey entered the employ? Is Captain Thomey treated any worse than several others of his fellow Captains who go too far East on Sundays, or as some designate them, "men who haul seals on Sundays?" Have Captain Thomey been more than ten years in the firm, and were not all the bricks and planks in their places when he came into the firm? Certainly he was a good means of keeping them in their places and I must admit he is worthy of being Commodore of a more extensive fleet than that of John Mann & Co's. Why was this name made mention of any more than Capt Green, Keeffe's the Pamphrey's, the Hennebury's and several others, who have been in the firm from father to son, and some of them are treated worse than Captain Thomey, without any reasonable or just cause, but to make room for in-Experienced strangers who have not the energy or ability of the men above referred to. Why should men be brought to Harbor Grace to take charge of the sealing fleet and plenty of better men on the spot. There is some mystery at the bottom of this that must be solved by strength or strategy, but it is solved. Perhaps it is this, John Munn & Co. feels that a certain class of men are getting too independent, that they will be able, if allowed "fair play" to demand their rights to the cent, and at any moment pitch the firm and go elsewhere. But in order to keep them in their dutiful places, he deprives them of their lawful position to the seal fishery and brings men in to fill their places in order to disgust them from going to that fishery at all, necessitating them to alone depend upon the codfishery, which is not fair play, for if a man goes to the codfishery and prosecutes it to a large extent and it becomes a failure he ought to be entitled to a chance to the seal fishery, as also ought to be the men depending on him instead of bringing in strangers who do not care whether the men are entitled to or in need of a berth.

[FOR THE "HERALD."]

Ones evening as I started blated and light-hearted, To meet one now departed. My mission was to be, But by darkness was taken My courage I was shaken. —My senses did awaken To a sad certainty.

The drifting snow was blinding The path I laid in finding The vow I'd made was binding Pray what was I to do? 'Twas long I steered in sorrow And waited for the morrow The courage I should borrow My journey I'll pursue.

That night as I lay sleeping My dreams brought on a weeping That lasted till the peeping Of the day did come on; 'Twas then determination Despoiled of my vexation Urged on my inclination "To prepare me and be gone."

Then I started light and airy Still thinking of the fairy Of which I'll never weary Tho' now she's lost to me. That big hill of which you hear 'Twas this and Carbonear Which has been to me so dear, I never again shall see.

Local and other Items.

It was received by telegram at Heart's Content last week that Mr. Smith, book agent, had been robbed and murdered, at St. Peter's the Friday night, according to New Year. He was so disfigured that but for photographs of his deceased wife which he was known to carry, and was recognized by his boarding-house keeper, he would not have been identified. Mr. Smith was a native of the United States, but for some time engaged in bookselling in this country, and also carried on a Grocery and Provision Store at St. John's.

A Bazaar was opened at Heart's Content on Wednesday, 4th inst., for the benefit of the Methodist Church of that town, which was an immense success.

The Valetta arrived at Harbor Grace on Tuesday last from St. John's for the purpose of taking a cargo of fish to Brazil for the enterprising firm of John Munn & Co.

A Newfoundland District Judge named Prowse denounced the "good Wesleyans of Portugal Cove" as wholesale perjurers. The Public Ledger declares that there are dozens of good Wesleyans at Portugal Cove who would be believed by a jury in preference to Judge Prowse. The libel upon the Wesleyans appear to have been uttered without even the poor excuse of provocation. What sort of men are the Newfoundland District Judges?—Presbyterian Witness

It will be seen on reference to a Public Notice from I. L. McNeil, Esq., in another column that the 13th prox, has been set apart for the Polling of votes in connection with the Permissive Bill.

We have telegraphed to St. John's, and are now out of patience waiting, for particulars concerning the sad disaster of the Lion. Up to the present we have not been apprised of anything but which has already been published. The Cabot cannot have yet arrived.

We very much regret to learn from the list of passengers per Lion that the name of our esteemed agent Mr. G. Power merchant, of Trinity, unfortunately was on board. We offer heart-felt sympathy to his bereaved wife and friends in this their hour of sorrow.

A sudden accident happened at Green's Harbor a short time since, the eldest son of a widower named Penny, the father of three sons, the deceased being the eldest, 15 years old. While sliding on Green's Harbor pond in pursuit of wood, lost his life.

On this side of Trinity Bay the name of Whiteway is hailed with delight, and the Railway is more than popular. In all directions of the coast may be seen large piles of Railway sleepers and in every house may be seen fuel and plenty. That's more than can be said of last year Mr. Telegram.

Our Fancy Fair opened, according to the Standard, on Monday evening last. It being held in St. Patrick's School Room it offered a chance to the numbers who wished to patronize it. The receipts much exceeded their expectations.

NEARING HOME.

Nearing home! A little longer
Wait us onward, fair'ring breeze;
Sunbeams falling clearer, stronger,
Light a pathway through the seas.

Nearing home! Oh, fold your pinises,
Brooding spirits of the storm,
Till o'er Ocean's wide dominions
We are swiftly, safely borne!

Nearing home! Ah, cease to wrestle,
Saucy waves that keep us back;
Quickly let our bonny vessel
Leave you foaming in her track.

Nearing home! Bright birds are clinging
Midst the swaying sails above;
They, like we, their way are winging
To a land and home they love.

Nearing home! Now far behind us Countries bright, but strange, we cast;
No fond thoughts to them can bind us—
We are nearing home at last.

Nearing home! No time for dreams
ing—
Fancy soon may quit her throne.
All along the light is gleaming—
Beams of love to guide us home.

CHAPTER IV.

Continued.

Long did the watchers strain their eyes over the dark waters. The guns had ceased, and no word was spoken. The sea boomed more heavily every moment; the spray dashed in snowy sheets against the rocky barriers, and flooded the little pier, driving the crowd further ashore, while the torches flared in the wind, and moments seemed hours.

Katie gazed anxiously in the direction of the wreck, trying to catch a glimpse of the life-boat, but it was beyond her range of vision; and only from the smothered exclamations of those near her could she discover how the gallant band were faring.

'There she is! Where is she now? Look—look!' she called alongside! and so on, till Katie at last that the first half of the perilous journey had been successfully achieved; and a short time after, when, with its precious freight of saved, the boat reached the shore, amid the ringing exclamations of the by-standers, Katie could hardly restrain herself from rushing forward to join in the thanksgivings to their brave preservers.

But the danger was not over yet; six men still remained upon the wreck, and the noble band went forth again.

Another period of suspense, another shout of triumph as the boat took on board the trembling survivors, then a dead silence as she pulled slowly back to land.

Every moment the wind rose higher, every moment the waves increased in force; the strength of the rowers must be ebbing; and suddenly a wild cry echoed through the crowd, as a huge wave rolled in, swamping the boat, and in the concentrated light of a dozen lanterns and torches, Katie saw it come to the surface bottom upward, and a few dark specks were alone visible amid the seething breakers.

It was an awful moment, and Katie sunk down unconscious on the sand. What passed next she never knew.

Her senses soon returned, however, and with trembling steps, and sick at heart, she dragged herself down to the water's edge, hardly heeding a group of poor women wailing bitterly for those dear to them whom death had called away so suddenly.

Katie stood half-paralysed as one man after another was washed up at her feet; some still unconscious, some whose recovery was very doubtful, some whose feet would never again cross the threshold of the homes they had so lately left.

Trembling Katie watched on still no signs of the doctor. Could he have been rescued, or was he among those whom she heard had been washed out of reach of the hands stretched out to save?

At last, a man came hurrying down to the beach, and a fisherman standing near eagerly inquired:—'Has the doctor come too yet, Tom?'

'Ay, ay,' replied the other. 'Thank God, his life's safe! We can ill spare those poor fellows but to lose the doctor worse. He was a good bit coming round, but he's spoken, and though he's a bit bruised by being thrown against the boat he won't be much the worse in a few days.'

This was enough for Katie. With a passionate thanksgiving in her heart she turned homeward, careless of the lecture she would certainly receive if her aunt had wakened and missed her. This, however, was happily not the case and creeping softly to her room she tried but vainly to lose the memory of the night's events in sleep. But it would not come; visions of the raging sea, the life-boat, Cecil Rayleigh in danger, and she powerless to help, tortured her through the succeeding hours till, just as the day dawned, she sunk exhausted into a dreamless slumber.

White checked, and heavy-eyed, Katie appeared the following morning in her aunt's room. At first Miss Rycroft was alarmed, and questioned the girl sharply, but was satisfied at last to attribute her looks to the cause assigned, want of sleep in consequence of the storm.

'It is singular I should have slept through it all,' said the old lady, a little later in the day, when, with the garrulity of her class, Mrs. Jones had enlarged on the events of the preceding night as they had been detailed by the early visitors to the house. 'It must have been the effect of those soothing pills the doctor ordered me. I did not feel so well and took one before going to bed.'

'Oh, ma'am, I forgot to tell you about the doctor,' said Mrs. Jones. 'Thinking of those poor drowned men put him clean out of my head, but he's very ill this morning, they say. People are saying no one would have gone in the boat last night if he hadn't jumped in first, and they were forced to follow him for shame. The boat upset, as I told you, and all were thrown out. The six men they had brought from the wreck all managed to get to shore, and the doctor was washed up directly, but a great wave carried him back, and threw him against the boat which was being knocked about and he sunk. He came up again little nearer the shore, and Jim Walker and Tom Harris rushed in as far as they durst, and luckily clutched hold of him and dragged him out. He couldn't have helped himself, for his shoulder was hurt. Mr. Grey was with him directly, but they say he is very bad this morning.'

Katie's cheek grew paler than before, but she waited for her aunt to speak.

'I am grieved to hear this, Mrs. Jones,' she said. 'Can you spare your little boy to go up with my compliments and enquire how he is? I should like to know; and the old lady murmured to herself, 'Poor fellow! poor fellow!'

Katie waited with what patience she could till Robin returned, when the report was found to be exaggerated, and the doctor himself sent his kind regards to Miss Rycroft, and begged to assure her that beyond a blow on the shoulder, which would disable him for a few days, he was not really hurt; very soon, he hoped he would be quite recovered.

A week passed away, and the excitement of the week passed too.
