CHAPTER XXX.

"It is not much like living at an inn when you have a lot of servants with you," said Lord Rupert, laughing, "and necessities down from London three or four times a week."

"Isn't it?" the little widow questioned innocently. "Never mind; I will be something to talk of this autumn in our shooting season visits."

"Ah, perhaps it will!" his lordship said languidly. "Serve to amuse you ladies when we're after the grouse."

"You are all chattering so much that you give me no opportunity of telling Major Stuart how delightful we shall be to accommodate him for as long as he will take pity on us, interposed Alice, in her sweetest manner. "Sir Hugh—Shirley, ad your entreaties to mine."

"No other entreaties could be needed, Lady Eastwell, I assure you, and you are tempting me beyond all my powers of resistance," Guy answered smiling. "But I shall not trespass on your hospitality more than one night and I will start to-morrow, if you will allow me. Perhaps some of these gentlemen will feel inclined to walk a few miles with me."

"I dare say I shall," said Sir Hugh rather eagerly. "I am tired of this riding and driving. It is almost as bad as London."

"Then you will stay, Major Stuart?" said Mrs. Beaudesert, with her most bewitching smile; and, after another momentary struggle with his better judgment, Guy stayed. Ah, how often and how bitterly in after days he repented having yielded to their wishes.

man, as she stood leaning over the stone balustrade and chatting in soft lowered tones to Lord Rupert, while she puffed away at her cigarette.

"It is so charming to be in a place where you can do as you like," she was saying softly. "Now in Brighton one would not dare to smoke on a balcony."

"Lots of women do," said his lordship, looking at her admiringly.

"Ah, but they are women who have no respect for the proprieties," she answered. "Now Alice would be horrified if she were to see me smoke."

"No? You don't mean it? I should have given Lady Eastwell credit for more sense," said Lord Rupert, in amazement.

"Oh, she's awfully prudish!" "Prudish! I like that!" laughed his lordship. "Why, she flirts out sgeously with Glyn."

"She tries to do so," Mrs. Beaudesert said sweetly; "but Sir Hugh is quite too awfully in love with his life to respond."

And then they laughed softly in poken lower tones, and Guy and Captain Layton, smoking at the other end of the balcony, were silent, but not a little jealous at the pressure Lord Rupert was making with his little widow, the former looking thoughtfully down the street, with its gas lamps and lighted shop-windows, and the blue starlit sky overhead.

Suddenly he bent forward eagerly and looked keenly after a man who had walked past the "Pack of Cards," dancing up at the balcony as he passed. Guy looked after him for a moment, and Captain Layton removed his cigar from his mouth.

"Any one you know?" he asked carelessly.

"One of Sir Hugh's servants, 'ancy," Guy answered, with indifference. "His face seemed familiar to me."

"By the way, we might as well go in," drawled Captain Layton. "We are rather de trop here."

Guy smiled as he threw away his cigar and followed Frederic Layton into the sitting room, leaving the glass doors open behind them. The room was lighted only by a couple of oil-lamps—gas being an innovation which had penetrated only as far as the bar-parlor in the "Pack of Cards"—which threw a subdued light over the shabby comfortable furniture. Shirley was seated at the piano, playing scraps of melody softly with one hand. Lord Eastwell had fallen asleep in an armchair in the corner, Alice was dozing in another, and Sir

Hugh Glyn, leaning back in a low chair, was watching Shirley's graceful figure in her pretty white dress as she sat at the piano, with a curious intent miserable look in his handsome blue eyes which rather startled Guy. He moved slightly when the two young men entered, and looked up, then changed his position, altering his chair so that his face was no longer in the light.

"You don't seem very lively here," said Captain Layton laughing. "Will you come and have a game of billiards, Glyn?"

"Thanks, not to-night, Shirley, give us some music," Sir Hugh said, his voice changing suddenly when he addressed his wife.

She glanced at him over her shoulder and smiled a little; and his face brightened with such a swift sudden brightness that it touched Shirley.

"I shall wake Lord Eastwell," she said softly.

"What does it matter? It was hardly polite to us both for him to fall asleep."

"Play something soft," suggested Captain Layton, "or sing, will you, Lady Glyn? I have not heard you for an age."

"I don't think I shall ever sing again," said Shirley, shaking her head.

"And why not?" Sir Hugh asked quickly, with a sudden anxious glance towards her.

"Because I heard such charming singing to-day—such a delicious voice so pure and sweet. You heard it too, Major Stuart?"

"Yes, it was very beautiful," Guy said dreamily, his thoughts going back to the pretty group he had surprised among the rocks.

"Who was the singer?" asked Captain Layton, eagerly. "You will be charitable and tell me, Lady Glyn. You know that I am fanatical as regards all things musical."

"Does that mean music-mad?" Shirley said gaily.

"Yes. Do take pity upon my madness, Lady Glyn," entreated the young fellow.

"How? By playing to you or by ratiying your curiosity?"

"In both ways," he answered, in the same pleading manner. "Who is this charming musician, Lady Glyn? Major Stuart, do take pity on my impatience!"

"She is Miss Ada Grey, the vicar's second daughter," said Shirley, her little fingers straying softly over the keys.

"The vicar's second daughter," he repeated eagerly. "Is she pretty?"

"I think so," Lady Glyn answered. "So do I," said Major Stuart, smiling.

"Will you take me to church under our wing next Sunday, Lady Glyn?" said Captain Layton; and while Shirley answered him laughing, Guy turned to Sir Hugh.

"By the bye, Glyn, that man La-relle, is he still in your service?"

Sir Hugh's face was in the shadow, but it had not been so, Guy Stuart could not but have noticed how it changed, growing pale and startled at the simple question.

"Larelle?" he repeated. "No. Why did you ask?"

"I thought I saw him pass the house a few minutes since," said Guy, carelessly, "and concluded that you must have him here with you. But this is not a very uncommon physique, and in all probability it was some chance likeness which struck me."

Sir Hugh made no answer.

Presently, Lord Rupert and Mrs. Beaudesert came in, Shirley, leaving the piano, came and stood by the table, slim and graceful in her white gown; and Alice, rousing up, flushed and smiling, from her nap, suggested a game of loo, a suggestion which was received with acclamation by all but Sir Hugh, Shirley and Captain Layton, who resolved to show his displeasure to Mrs. Beaudesert by abstaining from her favourite amusement and sulking.

The game began amid a good deal of chit-chat and laughter. Major Stuart was playing rather absentmindedly and was forced twice in succession. Mrs. Beaudesert, looking at him laughingly, opined that he must be in love.

"The pretty singer perhaps," said Sir Hugh, making an effort to appear at his ease. "Layton, look to yourself."

"He's going away to-morrow," rejoined Captain Layton, sauntering over

Had Itching Piles For 27 Years

Often Laid Up for Days at a Time—A Wonderful Tribute to Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Few people were ever more enthusiastic in praising Dr. Chase's Ointment than the writer of this letter. When you read the description of his case you will not wonder why Mr. John Johnson, Coleman, Alta., writes: "Three years ago I was cured of blind, itching piles of 27 years' standing by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I used to think that death would be the only relief I could ever get from the terrible misery of piles. Often I was laid up for three days at a time, and at other times worked when I should have been in bed. Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth sixty dollars a box instead of sixty cents. I am a different man since using it. I am farming all the time, and never miss a day. Words fail to express my gratitude for the cure this ointment made for me. I cannot tell half as much about it as it deserves. Anyone doubting this can write direct to me." Dr. Chase's Ointment, 1 cent a box, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

er to the piano. "I shall have it all my own way then."

"He's not obliged to go," said Lady Eastwell, smiling.

Captain Layton shrugged his shoulders as he sat down and began softly playing a waltz. Shirley crossed the room to her husband's side, standing beside his chair for a moment.

"Are you not well?" she said; and there was a very unusual gentleness softening the coldness of her voice as she spoke, which made Sir Hugh's weary blue eyes brighten perceptibly.

"My head aches," he said. "This room is insufferably hot."

"Shall we try a breath of fresh air on the balcony?"

Sir Hugh rose at once.

"Will it not be cold for you, dear?" he said, in a low tone.

"Oh, no; I have a shawl here."

She allowed him to fold it around her in silence, and they passed out on to the balcony together. Major Stuart glanced up for a moment from the cards that he held to look after them as they went, with a warm and cordial light in his eyes.

"It is pleasant here," Shirley said a little unsteadily, as she stood on the balcony.

There was something new and unfamiliar about this tete-a-tete with her husband which made her feel a little self-reproachful as she remembered how earnestly Guy had entreated her, ere he left her on that day in London, to forgive Hugh the wrong he had done her, and to live in amity with him. She had made but few efforts since then; but she had not been quite so contemptuously cold perhaps.

Increased Membership

OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

In reply to Mr. Kent yesterday, the Premier said it had been usual to table the correspondence between the Governor and the Colonial Office relating to increases in the membership of the Legislative Council. A question similar to Mr. Kent's had been put at a preceding session during the term of the present administration and of administrations that had preceded, but the Government had always declined to table such correspondence. Mr. Kent said he did not wish to debate the question on the present occasion, but he did not see any sound reason why such correspondence should not be tabled. The Premier concurred in the opinion expressed by Mr. Kent, and intimated he would see what could be done. It seems to us that the correspondence should be furnished to the House. The matter is entirely a local one.

and in no way affects Imperial or foreign interests, and we cannot see any reason why the Colonial Office or the Governor should refuse. If there are sound grounds for the increases in the Legislative Council, and these have been mapped out for the Colonial Office, surely there should be no secrecy about them and the people of the country concerned should be made acquainted with them. We hope the Premier will see his way, as apparently he is disposed to do, to advise His Excellency to permit the tabling of this correspondence.

The New Scotch Pantomime.

Next week a great Scotch pantomime—an all tartan show, fifty-five persons all in correct Highland costumes with all the very finest Scotch songs, sword dances, Highland flings, reels and other dances it will be an inspiring sight; the gathering of the Clans, the Rossleys in their Scotch act alone from the time they appeared in the Star Hall to the present time have only to advertise Scotch act to pack the Rossley Theatre to the doors, but with fifty-five persons how much better will it be; and Bonnie Wee Mary will bring a white O'Heather to every Scotch heart. It takes a real Scotchman to act a Scotchman, in this Jack Rossley excels.

At the House

Mr. Chapp presented petitions from Little Hr. Derry to be made a port of call, and from Hillier's Hr. for a weekly service with Englee.

Mr. Kent presented one from people of Torbay Road for an Agricultural Road, and Mr. Moulton one from Channel for a dredge.

In reply to Mr. Kent, the Premier said the authorized number of members in the Council was twenty-four, and that there was one vacancy now.

Mr. Lloyd took up the debate on the Address in Reply, where he left off on Tuesday. He referred to the fact of a shortage in the revenue, and said that it explained the baldness of the Governor's Speech, which showed that the Government was forced by financial necessity to mark time. The speech foreshadowed no new legislation, except the Tariff, which was to be changed and more taxes put on to make up the shortage.

The speech was filled up with padding about the order at the General Election, negotiations about the Fog Free Zone, negotiations about utilizing water powers on the Labrador, even before the title to the territory had been secured, and about reviving the Fog Free Zone under a new face, and an enquiry in to the effect of whaling on the bay supply, now that the whalers were practically exterminated. Mr. Lloyd dwelt at some length on each of these topics and pointed out that in no case had the negotiations arrived at the stage of a bill, and that there was no likelihood of any legislation coming before the House of these matters this session. The paragraphs were inserted to fill up an showed the state of paralysis in the Government had fallen into from their cross blundering in connection with the Railway Contract, the Railway Loans and the Budget change of last year. He sympathized with the Minister of Finance who had taken the sound and sane course, but he had fallen into a financial hole by giving way to political expediency in 1911. The blunder was all the more disastrous from carrying on a series of financial blunders, and he was undertaking to build five branch railways without counting the cost; on defaulting to pay the contractor 100,000 instead of 10,000, taking the risk of an adverse market, and not in 1912 finding themselves with many miles of railway to build, many extras in the shape of stations and rolling stock to provide for and not red cent left of the two Railway Loans to pay for them. The contractor could insist on building 5 miles of railway this year and on providing the extras, and on demanding a million dollars or so in payment. The 1913 contract gave him the power to borrow to the extent of 100,000, and the market for loans was adverse. All Colonial Government loans had lately been received cold and little taken up by the investing public, and Sir Edward Morris would have to go to a stringent market with the adverse conditions he had brought about by the Election Budget of 1911. Sir Edward Morris had complained of Mr. Halfyard stating he had been sent there to criticize the Government. Mr. Halfyard was right, and Sir Edward Morris was wrong. The Opposition was there to criticize and in doing so it was carrying out its sound and sane policy of constructive parliament. The caucus system had destroyed free discussion from Government benches and the Opposition were the exponents of the practical elementary function. Why should the Morris Govt. be exempt from criticism? It was owing to the disregard of Opposition criticism of the Railway Extension, the 1912 Budget, the Loans and the 1913 Budget, that the Government was in the financial straits of to-day. It was the duty of the Opposition to criticize, and particularly so an administration that had been so reckless in its undertakings as the present one, and which was the effect of the authority of parliament by opening the Legislature with no Minister of Justice or Minister of Agriculture in either branch of the Legislature. He seconded Mr. Kent's amendment.

Mr. Cashin followed and likened the Opposition to a theatrical troupe with Mr. Lloyd as leading man. The latter had painted a most gloomy picture, especially of the financial conditions, but he (Mr. C.) would have things straightened out when he made his financial statement to the House. He dwelt much on the price of fish and the law of supply and demand, dwelling on the foreign demand, particularly in America, and ignoring, resolutely, the law of supply and the effect of the control over a portion of the supply by the F.P.U. He quoted a lot of figures showing the fish dry and green exported to the United States, during the past four years, both for the fiscal year ending in June, and the calendar year ending in December. His object being to establish that the American demand had put up the price of fish, and to help the Premier out of the difficulty he had placed himself in by his wrong quotation of figures on Monday last. Curiously, the figures given by the Minister sustained Mr. Lloyd to the full in the challenge he threw out that the Premier had muddled up the quotation. He charged the people in the north with ingratitude and ignorance. The only intelligent men in Bonavista Bay were the 1,700 who had voted for Mr. Morrison and his colleagues.

Mr. Stone. He understood that the Government had taken the credit for raising the price of fish. He said, to Mr. Coaker belonged that credit. That while he had no control over the foreign markets he (Mr. Stone) knew that the F.P.U. President, by his untiring efforts raised the price of fish in Newfoundland, at least in all the northern districts. Mr. Stone then dealt with the Agricultural policy and gave a brief but effective criticism of it. That policy was costing the country thousands of dollars and no benefits were being derived. All that policy was doing was paying the salaries to Commissioners and he-lers. When introducing that policy, Sir Edward Morris said that two blades of grass would grow where only one grew before. Applause. They had not had time to import hay. Mr. Devereaux, Agricultural Commissioner, was about to say something when Mr. Stone retorted, "You do not understand your business because you do not know the difference between a spade and a harrow." He thought the best thing for the Government to adopt would be to establish a market for local produce.

Mr. Moulton then spoke in effect that the Agricultural policy of the Morris Government was a better one than that of the Bond Government, but gave no reason why it was. He said the increase in the price of fish was mainly due to competition.

Mr. Hickman was the next speaker. It was his maiden effort in the House. He gave a practical and interesting review of the fish question. He said that his knowledge and experience of the fish business made him approach with the problem intelligently. His fluent utterances were attentively listened to and commended on all sides. After congratulating the Premier on his elevation to the position he now occupies, he claimed that the opening up of American markets to both the fiscal and the calendar year. He was at a loss to know why the calendar year had been introduced unless it was to bring in the reports for the last two or three years. The current fiscal year for 1914, will not witness any large increase in the exportation of salt bulk fish. Further, 100,000 quintals of fish for the last calendar year to the United States is only a small factor in a few of the fact that over a million and a half quintals is exported altogether annually. The reason why the sales were our people for the calendar year of 1913, is because more fish went into the United States on the opening of the free market in salt bulk from various sections of the S.W. coast, where mostly all our bankers re fitted out. It is a well known fact that the Bank fishery finishes about October 1st, and that the cargoes green rather than to keep 'em over and dry them for the Portuguese market, which has been much disturbed of late years. It is now to all of us that American agents were distributed all around our coast buying up all the salt bulk and green fish they could get hold of some two years ago. These agents did not understand the business, and ought up fish that was not fit for the packing houses in the States. He Mr. Hickman personally saw some of the salt bulk cargoes discharged in Gloucester, and one-third of the cargoes were unfit for use. This is not the fault of the foreign markets, but that of the incompetent agents. He pointed out how this spoiled fish was cured and shipped to Porto Rico, where it went for duty from Gloucester, and told against us at Porto Rico. Mr. Hickman said that the raising of the price of fish was mainly due to the supply and demand in the foreign markets. He believed that low prices would ever exist again owing to our improved methods of marketing and facilities. Through the channels that are opened up—our freight steamers and by the New York Liverpool service—our fish can reach any new markets. The salt bulk business is growing larger and our own people should go into it and allow American agents to be getting all the profits from the marketing. He said that the services of Mr. Simonsen, the Norwegian cod oil expert, should not be dispensed with, as he had a thorough knowledge of the business and was a practical man in every sense of the word. He (Mr. Hickman) was of the opinion that the Government could get all the necessary information as to salt preservation without going abroad for it. He speaker then referred to the partridge berry industry. He said there were great possibilities in store for that industry, which is now carried on in the district of Bay de Verde, which he had the honor to represent. He referred to the enterprising cranberry concerns in Massachusetts, where the industry had grown from thousands in value to millions and he believed that similar progress in that direction could be made here.

Mr. Halfyard followed, but had only one short distance when the debate was adjourned to to-day.

The Premier then tabled the correspondence about the visit of Prof. Junstan, and the House adjourned ill to-day.

A Happy Child In Just A Few Hours

When cross, constipated or if feverish give "California Syrup of Figs" then don't worry.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs" because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what all your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages, and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

HALIFAX, Jan. 22.—The American fishing schooner Eglantine was wrecked at Spy Bay, during yesterday's storm. Her crew of eighteen were saved.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The pious aim of the militant suffragettes is to make 1914 politically famous. The platform laid down is from storming Buckingham Palace to stopping a ball game.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 22.—The crew of the missing five-masted schooner Prescott Palmer, have been picked up by a steamer, which landed them at Bermuda to-day, according to a despatch to her owners. The schooner was abandoned during last week's storm.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The body of Stratford, in all probability, will be interred at Westminster Abbey, as a recognition of his eminence as an empire builder and philanthropist. His own wish was to be buried beside his wife, but in view of the public desire that the dead statesman should find a resting place either in Westminster or St. Paul's, his relatives will likely agree.

HALIFAX, Jan. 22.—Five men did not return to the Gloucester fishing schooners Pontiac and Elsie, while six men from the latter had a narrow escape during the storm that struck the Nova Scotia coast last night. Among the missing are Charles Bronson and J. M. Whealan, of Newfoundland. They were fishing off the coast when their dories were caught in the storm, and could not reach their vessel. The other six landed at Sambro, after a terrible struggle.

HALIFAX, Jan. 22.—Her bridge carried away, forward lifeboats gone and hatches burst open, as a result of her decks having been swept by furious seas Sunday last, the tank steamer Bradmayne, from New York for Galis, crippled into port this morning for repairs. Her deck forward was a mass of wreckage. For three days she battled with the heavy gales, and in order to make Halifax, emergency steering gear had to be used. The sea that swept the ship's bridge carried away the compass and everything movable about the decks.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Premier Asquith apparently provided a solution at to-day's Cabinet meeting of Lloyd George's difficulties in making both ends of the budget meet. Lloyd George and Churchill left the Conference arm in arm, as though there was never the sign of a quarrel between them. That Churchill will get the four capital ships he insists on is accepted in naval circles as an assured fact; while other departments will have little expenditure in the meantime. According to Unionists, Lloyd George's championship of the little navy faction has brought into line again a strong contingent of non-conformist government supporters, who were showing restiveness at forcing Protestant Ulster under the rule of the Catholic majority.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Twin boys were born to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spencer, this morning. Congratulations.

The young men of King Edward Brigade have lately formed themselves into a Club to be known as King Edward Athletic Association.

It is said that King George Brigade, of Carbonear, are going to treat us to a concert shortly. They will no doubt have a full hall, as they have many friends here.

Miss Minnie Shea returned home by Saturday night's train after spending Christmas most pleasantly with her aunt, Mrs. Fennessy, of Water St., West, St. John's.

We notice by one of the St. John's allies that the general meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, will be held at King George Fifth Institute on Friday night. We wish this noble organization every success in stamping out cruelty to animals; and we go further and say that every individual in this island should be a working member. We have heard of cases of cruelty to little children which should, if it is not already, be work for the society in putting a stop to. Success again in your good work, gentlemen.

We have before suggested and we again suggest that we should have a fearless representative of that Society in this town, and in fact in every other town in the island.

The police are keeping our Water Street residents up to the law in the way of keeping the snow cleared off the sidewalks in front of their premises. That is right, but surely some power should be brought to bear on the Government to have the snow levelled off at the public street crossings. Imagine a bank of snow at the foot of Prescott Street, St. John's, and when the residents east and west clear the snow away quite a ditch would be made, where some person might easily break a limb. Surely some person is responsible for the public thoroughfares.

The installation of the officers of the Carbonear Masonic Lodge, took place at that town last night. The visiting brethren and some members from Carbonear will perform similar service for the Harbor Grace Lodge to-night. The Society's flag is now flying on the hall in honor of the event.

Several shebeen cases were adjudicated upon by Judge Oke this week, and convictions secured. It looks almost like another Klondike.

As we write (1.30 p.m. Thursday), it is snowing thickly, but not frosty. There is every indication of another storm.

A Modern Miracle.

He Had Eczema 25 Years and Doctors Said "No Cure."

Yet Zam-Buk has Worked Complete Cure.

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal, and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. T. M. Marsh, the gentleman referred to, lives at 101 Deloraine Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he has had eczema on his hands and wrists. The disease first started in red blotches, which itched, and when scratched became painful. Bad sores followed, which discharged, and the discharge spread the disease until his hands were one raw, painful mass of sores. This state of affairs continued for twenty-five years!

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless. Naturally Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds but he, also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night so terrible was the pain and itching when the air got to the sores. Then came Zam-Buk! He tried it just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little perseverance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of—a complete cure! And the cure was no temporary cure. It was permanent. He was cured nearly four years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Marsh said: "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return."

If you suffer from any skin trouble cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it with one cent stamp to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggist and stores sell this famous remedy 50c. box, or three for $1.25. Refuse harmful substitutes.

K. of C. Lecture.

The lecture given by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Roche, V. G., at the Knights of Columbus Rooms was largely attended by the members of the Order and their lady friends.

The chair was occupied by Mr. V. P. Burke, Lecturer of the Council, who introduced the rev. lecturer in a few brief remarks. The subject was "Cardinal Newman," and for over one hour the rev. lecturer dealt with the life and works of the great man in an eloquent and masterly manner. The rev. speaker's ability as an orator and lecturer is well known and last night's discourse was one of his finest efforts. At the close a vote of thanks proposed by Grand Knight C. P. Egan and seconded by P. J. Summers was passed to the rev. lecturer.

On next Tuesday night the second of the series of lectures will be given by Hon. J. A. Robinson whose subject will be "Epigrams."

East Wabana, Bell Island, C.B., Jan. 13th, 1914.

The Dominion Volunteer Fire Dept., Bell Island.

Gentlemen—Herewith I beg to hand you a cheque for the sum of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) as a small token of appreciation of the services performed by your Volunteer Brigade in connection with the recent fire at my premises.

I fully appreciate the good work of your Brigade on that occasion, and I regret that owing to illness, I have not been able to give more adequate expression to my feelings of gratitude before this date. Suffice it to say, however, that I cannot forget the prompt manner in which your organisation rendered assistance; and the hearty manner in which they worked on the scene is an excellent indication of the broad-minded spirit of the members.

Again thanking you and with best wishes for the future success of the Dominion Volunteer Fire Brigade, I remain,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) R. T. KENT.

The Eyeglass Beautiful.—Our New Eyeglass Mountings possess the qualities of dignity, grace and beauty, combined with firmness and comfort. R. H. TRAPNELL, Eyeglass Specialist.—Jan 23, 14

FURNESS LINE.—The Durango sailed last night for Liverpool taking a large outward freight. The Dicky leaves Halifax on Monday next for here. The Almeriana sails from Liverpool to-morrow for this port.

SAGONA COMING SOUTH.—The s.s. Sagona left Nipper's Hr., at 6.30 a.m. to-day, coming south. As Green Bay is now blocked with ice, it is expected she will come direct to Seldom, omitting the intermediate ports of call.

LOCAL LATE TO-DAY.—To-day's local from Carbonear will not arrive in the city until about 3.30 p.m. This is the first day since the storm, that the local comes via Broad Cove, and the necessary snow-clearing accounts for the delay.

CURLING.—In the point competition, for Mrs. Chas. Harvey's Cup, this morning, Mrs. R. G. Reid was the winner with a score of 21 points; the other scores were:—Mrs. Gosling, 19; Mrs. John Harvey, 18; Mrs. Clapp, 17; Mrs. J. C. Baird, 17.

SEVERE FROST UP COUNTRY.—Severe frost is felt along the railway line to-day. At Bishop's Falls the thermometer registered 10 below zero, and at the Quarry 5 below. At many points on the line the temperature is down to zero, but there is practically no snow to interrupt the railway service.

The coastal steamer Prospero left Westville early this morning going north, but had to return to Westville owing to the heavy ice encountered, as the following message to Bowring Bros. to-day from Capt. A. Kean shows:—"Left for Seldom this morning, forced to retreat, from Cobler's Rock solid jam of very heavy ice; will require several hours down wind to get there; wind now N.W. fine, but frosty."

NOTE OF THANKS.—The Treasurer of St. Bon's Ladies' Association begs to acknowledge the receipt of $187.00, from Miss Mary Keegan, half the net proceeds of "Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner." As promoters of the play Miss Keegan and Mr. Ceall Chiff wish to thank the ladies and gentlemen of the company. The Misses Johnston, and Windeler, and Mr. T. Courtney, Mr. T. H. O'Neill, Mr. W. Power and staff of the Atlantic Bookstore; Messrs. Redmond, Griffin, Croxley and Rolls, who acted as Ticket Takers and Ushers; Mr. N. W. Chown, the U.S. Picture and Portrait Co., Mr. A. O'Rielly of Callahan & Class, and Mr. Thomas O'Mara of Jas. Baird's Ltd.—adv. Jan. 23, 14.
