WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y.—“I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter-box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives.”—Mrs. ENGLISH, 2632 Paine St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, the blues, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of nearly fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Englemann.

You should give it a fair trial now.

LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

—OR—
THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Rumor for once spoke the truth. The captain had arranged to take his wife and Angela to Nice. Lady Laura had lost her brightness, her dainty bloom, her radiance; and there was a constant shadow in her eyes, and curious lines that suggested intense mental suffering were round her lips. She was but the wreck of the bright, beautiful woman who had left Rood Abbey a short time before. One by one she had given up the pleasures of the season. She could not attend the balls, the late hours tired her too much; she could not endure the garden-parties, or “at homes,” or receptions. One by one she had given them all up; and then, after a short stay in Scotland, a fashionable physician was consulted. He knew what ailed her ladyship before he was called in, and gave his opinion at once—“Change of air and perfect rest.” The captain suggested Nice for the winter, and his wife was quite willing. It was a matter of indifference to her whether she went.

“I shall not be able to remain at Nice the whole time,” the captain announced; “but I shall be there for a while.”

To be shut up in a villa with a delicate wife and an antagonistic step-daughter was not the line of life best suited to the dashing captain. He felt, however, that he had done his duty in consulting the most fashionable physician in London and in hastening to carry out his instructions.

Then matters improved for a time. Lady Laura enjoyed and benefited by the change, the captain being kind to her in a lazy, indifferent fashion. He drove out with her; he sat with her at times; once or twice even he carried his complacency so far as to read the newspapers to her.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

SOLD BY GEO. KNOWLING, LTD.

She tried to dimiss the memories of the past and be happy, but her soul seemed to be dead within her. She knew that he did not love her, that he never had loved her; and in every action of his, in every word, in every deed, she traced his want of love.

There was nothing, however, to complain of during those few weeks. The captain certainly would leave her at times for a few days; but she never asked whether he was going, and he never volunteered any information.

When he returned he never said anything of where he had been or what he had done, and she never asked.

All minor interests had died in her heart; the one great fact lay over before her—he did not love her—a fact that shadowed her life and darkened the whole world to her.

She made many efforts during the time to win him back to her. It dawned across her slowly that there could be no renewal of a love that had never existed.

“When I have fully mastered that truth,” she said to herself, “and realize what it means, I shall be ready to die!”

Never had mother a more devoted child than was Angela at this trying period.

Intrigations were lavished upon them; but Lady Laura was compelled to decline them because of her health, and Angela because she would not leave her mother.

The captain was the only member of the family who went into society, and he was always warmly welcomed.

He soon became as popular in Nice as he had been in London, and he was rather pitted than otherwise for having a “delicate wife.”

“A sad drawback!” “A constant anxiety!” the ladies remarked; but who amongst them knew that it was he himself who had driven the bloom from his wife's cheeks and had wrecked her happiness?

“Angel,” said Lady Laura one day, “I wish you would go out more. I cannot bear to see you shut up, as it were, with me.”

“Do you call this shut up, mamma?” asked Angela, with a smile, as she looked round on the charming scenery.

“I mean, my dear, that you are always by my side. You might have gone to that picnic to-day.”

“But I preferred remaining with you, darling,” rejoined the girl, with intense love shining in her eyes. “I always do, and always shall. My greatest earthly delight is to be with you, mamma.”

“How you remind me of your father, child! He had the same loving, impulsive manner, and the same warm heart!”

“I am glad that I remind you of him, mamma,” said the girl, well pleased.

“You do indeed, my dear; and there is something in your voice which grows more like his. It is like sweet music to me.”

“I am delighted to hear you say that,” declared Angela. “I have often wished that I were more like him. I remember his bright face and laughing eyes so well. How kind he was to every one—how good he was, how true! I love to think of him.”

Out of the fullness of her heart she told many little anecdotes of the father whom she had loved so much. Lady Laura listened with a smile on her face, and for once the captain was forgotten. Some of the lost peace and happiness came back to the fragile lady who had been once so dearly loved.

Lady Laura Wynyard and her daughter passed the next summer in Switzerland, and one beautiful morning in August they were in the grounds of their villa. The golden sun shone on the blue waters; the air was fresh and invigorating. An invalid-chair had been placed for Lady Laura under the drooping boughs of a tall tree, so that she might rest in the shade. The captain had gone to a picnic, leaving the mother and daughter together.

“Angela,” said her ladyship, “you are strangely unlike other girls. You are more than eighteen years of age, yet you have never had a lover, you have never met any one you care for.”

“No,” laughed Angela, “I am fancy free, mamma. I love you best in the world, and while I have you to love and care for, I want no one else. I do not believe,” she added, turning with a pretty cooing posture to her mother, “that even you know how much I love you.”

“I know you are the best and dearest daughter in the world,” responded her ladyship; but, Angel, you must marry some time or other.”

“I do not see the absolute necessity, mamma,” the girl said, gravely. “I can imagine a very happy life without marriage. I met many nice men in London—handsome, clever, and agreeable; but I never met one whom I should care to marry.” She looked at her mother with laughing eyes, as she added, “I will wait, mamma, until I find some one like my father, and I will marry him, then I must be happy.”

Just for that one hour they had both forgotten the captain and the weight of sorrow that oppressed them.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The month of September had drawn to a close, and the captain had begun to tire of Switzerland. The beauties of nature had but little charm for him, and he would have found the time hang terribly heavy on his hands but for a small and select circle of friends, most of them men of his own caliber, who were stopping in the same place. He made many excuses to himself—he was tired of the Continent—Lady Laura was much better—it was time they had a change. But the real truth remained—he wanted to see Gladys Rane once more. Her ladyship might, from his silence, have thought that he had forgotten her; but she knew the days from Paris. She knew the envelopes with the pretty monogram “G.R.,” and the sweet subtle odor of violets that distinguished everything that belonged to Gladys Rane. She saw that on the days these letters came her husband was always light hearted and happy. She would find him sitting alone, with a happy brooding smile on his face, and she knew the cause of it.

How could she get well? Why need she get well? She had wantonly spoiled and ruined her life by marrying a man for his good looks, and she must pay the penalty.

SMOKING TOBACCO

Let's give the pipe its due. All the credit for a good smoke should not go to the tobacco. Men smoked pipes centuries before modern tobacco in tins was dreamed of. They changed their blends too, occasionally—always seeking a tobacco a trifle more suited to their taste. Now you may already be 99 p.c. pipe-happy. The purpose of Edgeworth is to give you the additional one per cent. that makes complete pipe-smoking satisfaction.

“Edgeworth” Smoking Tobacco is made in two forms. Sliced Plug and Ready-Rubbed, and we honestly don't know which you will prefer. Both forms have their enthusiastic devotees. Try both and then decide which you like best.

“Edgeworth” is sold by all stores in convenient size tins and at popular prices.

Just Folks.

THE LAND OF YESTERDAY.

The happy land of yesterday seems always, oh, so far away. And all the friendly people, too. That in the days of youth we knew. Walk phantom-like throughout our dreams. So far away their country seems!

The happy land of yesterday! 'Tis there the charms of toyhood stay. 'Tis there hearts never grow estranged. Our favorite haunts remain unchanged. And 'tis there that first sweethearts again Youth keeps its old-time freedom there.

The happy land of yesterday, A land where it is always May! There we may turn and ever see The orchards as they used to be. And meet that first sweetheart again Somewhere along the shady lane.

There still she lives, a little girl. Time has not changed one lovely curl. Or stolen from her cheeks the charm. The beauty of her dimpled arm Is still as glorious to see. As long ago it used to be.

'Tis only here that men grow old. And beauty fades and hearts turn cold! 'Tis here relentless death and age With youth their constant battle wage. But they are safe, though far away. Who rule the land of yesterday.

Household Notes.

To clean rubber bags, such as pastry bags or hot water bags, wash in lukewarm water with enough ammonia added to make it slippery.

To 1½ cups mashed potatoes add 1 cup finely ground peanuts, a beaten egg, and seasoning. Mix well, make into balls, roll in flour and bake.

To make a simple bread pudding, line the bottom of a pie dish with pieces of bread, spread free with a little butter, then with either lemon or orange marmalade. Beat up two eggs and add 1 pint milk. Pour this over bread, sprinkle with sugar and bake in a moderate oven until a rich brown.

If you do not salt eggs while they are frying, the yolows will stand round and firm and the whites will be soft and tender. Season after frying.

Pit steamed prunes and stuff with blanched and shredded almonds. Serve on crisp lettuce with a dressing of whipped cream flavored with lemon juice.

To make raisin pie doubly delicious add the juice of one orange, two tablespoons lemon juice, a little grated rind of each and one cup chopped walnuts.

Scraps of tin coated with asbestos, left from the new furnace pipes, make an excellent iron stand or are good to use in the oven to keep things from burning.

To ½ cup heavy cream add 2 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 tablespoons finely chopped beets, 1 tablespoon finely chopped mint and ½ teaspoonful paprika.

To one cupful of boiled dressing add one teaspoonful each of hard-boiled egg, chopped fine, minced onion a green pepper and pimento, paprika and salt to taste. Delicious!

A delicious salad dressing is made by flavoring whipped cream with a little lemon juice and tarragon vinegar and adding chopped olives, green peppers and pimentos.

When opening canned asparagus, lay can on its side in the sink, open the can a quarter of an inch from the top and let the brine drain away. By this method the heads are preserved intact.

To candy sweet potatoes parboil the potatoes, cut into pieces, boil two cups sugar and one cup water for ten minutes; add potatoes, and cook until the syrup will form a thread. Dry on glazed paper.

After opening a can of peas or beans turn them into a pan, and hold pan under cold water faucet. Allow water to change slowly until it is clear and does not foam. They will then be ready to heat.

A tomato canape is made as follows: Brown a slice of bread and cut to the desired shape, buttering it while hot. Place on it a round thick slice of skinned tomato and top with a spoonful mayonnaise.

“I Was Terribly Weak After Baby Was Born”

Mrs. H. McClure, Norwood, Ont., writes:

“After my baby was born, I was terribly weak and run down, with pains across my back. I had heard so much of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that I decided to try it. Three boxes proved enough to make me quite strong and well again. I also used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash which broke out on the baby, and the rash disappeared completely in a short time.”

The correspondent gathers that Germany fully prepared to accept far-reaching measures of international control of her finances and to participate in some international guarantee to France respecting France's treaty matters.

One hundred and twenty-seven all ranks were on parade Tuesday night. The following officers were on duty: Major Williams, Acting O.C., Major Tall, M.C., Adjutant, Capt. J. Snow, P. B. Rendell; Lieutenants Fred Reid, W. B. Moty and A. B. Perlin. The Battalion Chaplain, Rev. J. Britton, read the prayers. Rest. Sergt. Major Rendell was also on duty. The Officers Mess held a Conference at 9.15 p.m. and transacted some important matters. Major Williams announced that on Thursday nights during the winter, there will be drill from eight to eight-thirty, a lecture in the Gymnasium from 8.30 to 9 p.m. and the Gymnastic instructors will work with their pupils from 9 to 9.30. He also announced that there will be a series of wrestling competitions held shortly for the Frank Roberts trophy. This trophy was presented by the mother of the late ex-C.L.B. member, Frank Roberts, who was a prominent wrestler before the war in Brigade circles. Competitors must all be featherweights under 117 pounds. All lads wishing to join the Gymnasium class must procure rubber soled shoes and give their names to R.S.M. Harold Rendell. The annual meeting of the C.L.B. Athletic Association will be held on Thursday night at 9.30 sharp. Only officers, N.C.O.'s and Warrant Officers and members of the Old Comrades Association are eligible to attend the meeting of this Association. The Outerbridge Shield Competition will be held in May, and all Company Commanders will take due notice. The Gymnasium Classes last Thursday night were instructed by Sergt. Adams, P. Stone and Corp. Keats, and they got in some fine work with the lads. This department is in charge of R.S.M. Harold Rendell.

Pointed Paragraphs.

The country wants a change. East, West, North and South unite in saying: "No more Coaker control of the Legislature."

No one talks of the possibility of the Squires-Coaker government being elected now except a few heelers.

A spring election, a Bennett government, confidence restored, a word sealibary and plentiful supplies for the codfishery. The outlook is most satisfactory.

With Bennett leading a representative Government many of those who were forced to leave the country to seek employment will be enabled to return and engage in the fisheries without the danger of fool interference with this industry.

Though strongly opposed to Squires we cannot but pity him in the difficulty he is experiencing in finding men for the districts.

The case for the Government is now hopeless and their cause is so discredited that no responsible persons care to sign on as candidates.

From every section of the country men are offering their services to Bennett, Squires and Coaker must go. Bennett can't lose.

Judging from the line-up in the various districts Bennett will have a strong government of capable men.

The laborers and mechanics of St. John's will have a good representative in Linegar.

Cashin, Hunt and Linegar make a crack team for St. John's!

Placing men in the Legislature of the type now supporting Bennett will be a good contrast to Coaker and his crew.

The West End meeting was an eye-opener for Squires and Campbell.

No doubt about three men for Bennett in St. John's West, Cashin, Hunt and Linegar can't lose.

Indiscipline Causes Disaster.

On March 15th, 1891, the Royal Highlanders, then in Egypt, who were not engaged, but only exposed to distant shot, suffered losses of thirty wounded through lack of discipline. This loss might have been avoided had it not been for the idle curiosity of some young soldiers. General Moore had ordered the 42nd up to the right, to form the closest possible order immediately, under a hill, which would eventually conceal them while they would be ready on the first signal to dash up the hill upon the enemy. The battalion accordingly lay close under the hill, without being perceived by the enemy, and the most positive orders were given that every man should sit down, with his frelock between his knees ready to start up at a moment's warning, and on no account was any person to quit the column, lest the position should be discovered by the enemy, whose guns covered the top of the hill immediately above. In this situation the regiment lay in perfect silence till three young men seized with irresistible curiosity to see what the rest of the army were doing, crept out, unperceived by Col. Stuart, the commanding officer. They were described by the enemy who quickly brought their guns to bear on the regiment, and in an instant three shots were plunged into the centre of the column. This being repeated before the men could be moved under cover of a projecting hill, thirteen men were left on the ground, too badly wounded to follow. Thus a foolish, and on such an occasion, unpardonable curiosity caused death to three and irreparable injury to others, officers and rank and file.

CATS AND ENVY.

Envy is supposed to be a very ugly thing. But there are certain circumstances over which it can be turned to pleasing usages.

Life we want so much for the use we shall get out of them, or our joy in their beauty, as because we want other people to envy us their possessions.

Envy is Flattery.

Imitation is said to be the sincerest form of flattery.

Envy is another form. If it's genuine envy it is the sincerest kind of flattery, but even when it isn't quite so genuine as it sounds, it still is pleasant flattery.

Anyone who is anxious to win popularity by any and all means should study psychology of envy.

The person who always tries to make his own lot seem the most desirable in the world may win our envy but he won't win our affection.

Whereas the person who tries to make our lot seem specially desirable, makes us feel that he or she envies us, will certainly win our affection. That is if you can call the feeling which the cat feels for the person who strokes it affection.

Makes You Feel You're Lucky.

I think we have all met the kind of person I have in mind. If you have children and she has none she makes you feel how lonesome it is without children, how lucky you are to have them, and how lonesome life is without them. But if she has children and you have none, she makes you feel what a wonderful thing your freedom the city she sings you a song of the joys of country life and runs down the dirty, lonesome, noisy city; if you live in the city and she in the country, she envies you your wonderful chance to hear music and go to theatres and lectures.

If she has a large income and you have a small one she talks about the happy times when she used to have a limited income (as if all incomes weren't limited!) and says she never has been so happy since.

And you, why you feel just like the cat that has had its back stroked, and naturally you associate pleasant feelings with the person who does the stroking.

They Really Like Cats.

As I read this over, I feel that I have done an injustice.

To be sure there are people who do this sort of thing deliberately to make themselves popular. But I imagine there are many other people who do it with no such deliberate end in view, but simply from natural kindness. They want to make people feel happy and that is a way to do it. They stroke the cat because they like cats and they know cats like to be stroked, not because they are trying to gratiate themselves with the cat.

Will they please accept my apologies for my cynical first paragraph?

WILHELM'S WOL.

Dark is the path Old Bill is treading, the lights are out, his bearings lost; his recent wedding turns out to be a bitter frost. As wilted lilies are Wilhelm's hopes of peace and bliss; his bride confesses to the wiles, and cold and clammy in her kiss. The balls of Doqra are bleak and dreary, and spectres walk at midnight black; the bride admits that she is weary of keeping house in such a shack. Strange shapes are fitting in the basement, strange voices echo to and fro, and ghosts are waiting at the pavement and say to Bill, "I told you so." The rain is wet, the winds are tireless, and dismal winds foretell blow; and to old Bill there comes, wireless, word from his sons, "I got you so." Bill looks around in hope winning some sympathy in his dismay, and finds the whole blame world is wringing and grinning back at every day. Oh, any other husband living might find some pity in his wife but to Old Bill the world is given that bitter, where, "We told you so." From any other mortal fellow would not coldly stand aloof; but to Old Bill the world is given, divide is weeping in the cellar, his children weep upon the roof.

The Devil in Place-Names

By CLEMENT ANTRORUS HARRIS, Author of The Story of British Music. In Chamber's Weekly.

III.

How elastic the term we are discussing is may be seen from the fact that it is frequently applied in a manner precisely the opposite of that just illustrated—that is to say, for creations of man's own hand and brain which are so vast as to suggest a supernatural agency. Chief among these are various dykes, and especially the Devil's Ditch, or Dyke, extending seven miles from Reach to Wood Ditton, in Cambridgeshire. It is eighteen feet high on the east side, and evidently of Roman origin, for it is cut through the Roman roads. Even the certain knowledge among educated persons that a remarkable feature is of human design and construction will not prevent the necessity from attributing it, at least nominally, to Satanic influences. Thus Antonine's Wall, in Scotland, is popularly known as Grim's Dyke, from its being in Scoto-Saxon meaning a goblet or demon. Similarly, the earth-ramart in Germany built by the Emperor Charlemagne and extending from Ratisbon to the Danube, to the Rhine, three hundred and sixty-eight miles, is called "Teufelsmauer" (The Devil's Wall). Again, Ponty Monach, in Cardiganshire, received its name, which means peals of laughter to see the Devil thus defeated" (Longfellow, Golden Legend, V.). A dyke on the South Downs, near Brighton, is another well-known example. St. Cuthman plumed himself on having redeemed the land from the sea and scolded from perdition by building a dyke and a nunnery behind it (the site of the latter was where the dyke-house now stands). The opportunity afforded by such a dyke was not to be lost by Apollon, who accordingly shortly presented himself and told the saint that virtue was in vain—he would break down his sea-wall and flood the whole district before, next morning! Cuthman thereupon hastened to the nunnery, and told the abbess to keep the sisters in prayer till after midnight, and then to illuminate the windows. At midnight the Devil returned with maddock and spade, and began cutting a dyke into the sea. Hardly had he started, however, when (I presume in answer to the prayers of the saint and the sisters) he was seized with rheumatic pains all over the body. He "downed tools." At the same moment the cocks in the neighbourhood, mistaking the light in the nunnery windows for sunrise, began to crow, and the Price of Darkness, fearing that light was coming, made off with celerity, and—well, there the dyke is to this day, to prove it all!

Again, in Yorkshire the term 'Devil's Leap' is applied to the span between a southern spur of the Hambleton Hills and the summit of a cone-shaped promontory near by, called Hood Hill, because an infernal athlete is said to have jumped from the one to the other—and, of course, the usual stories as to his footprints having been seen are not lacking in Northumberland, on the other hand, the name Devil's Rock has been given to a huge stone because a demon, less agile than his master, failed to leap from it to the opposite side of the river—a mile distant—and, falling headlong into the Leap Crag Pool, was drowned!

Moreover, the character of the features to which a Satanic title is given are as opposite as are the legends connected with them. For, while most are gloomy or dangerous, others are bright and attractive. Of this latter kind, perhaps the most striking is the Devil's Glen, in what has been justly termed "The Garden of Wicklow." Of this "lovely glen" Mr. Hall writes: "We enter through a tunnel; and as the overhanging foliage has hitherto concealed its character, the scene that at once bursts upon the sight is inconceivably grand and beautiful." Between two mountains "rushes the rapid river, now a mass of foam, now subsiding; a calm miniature lake, the most graceful if not the most stupendous, of the Wicklow cataraets." I might have cited this glen in connection with legends, for there is a local one of a fair novice in a nunnery who baffled all the allurements of the Devil—it is given at length, and very skillfully, by the author just quoted—but I am not at all sure that the name is due to the legend: it may be the other way round.

In a few instances sheer immensity would seem to account for the appellation, as in the case of the Devil's Peak. (Local legend attributes the name—and the "table-cloth" of cloud that envelops the top of the mountain—to a yet unexplained smoking contest between a Dutchman and his Satanic Majesty) part of Table Mountain in South Africa, and the Devil's Stone, near Durkheim, in Germany, on which is the apparent imprint of a huge paw.

IV.

If we could believe the prefix 'Devil's' to be three or four thousand years old, it would be comparatively easy to account for its application to natural features or buildings of utility and even beauty. For in the original Jewish conception Satan was one of the Beni Elohim, or 'Sons of God,' who, though sometimes an instrument of physical evil, as in the case of Job, was not an incarnation of moral evil at all. And possibly the application of the term is in some cases due to a survival of, or an unconscious harking back to, this view. But I imagine that it is more generally an instance of whimsicality, as when we use the term 'Devil's luck' for a stroke, not of ill fortune, but good; or when a figure of the Devil was so placed as to appear to be looking over a college or a city as its guardian angel! It was this practice which originated the terms 'the Devil looking over Lincoln' (that is, Lincoln College, Oxford), quoted by Sir Walter Scott in Kennilworth; and 'the Devil looking over Durham.' The Oxford statue lost its head in a storm, and was taken down in 1781. I hope it was to the older and better sense of the word 'Devil' that Dublin, according to one dubious derivation, owes its name. According to this, it is derived from the Scandinavian Divalina, and Burns, in 'Death and Dr. Hornbook', says his story

Is just as true's the Devil's in hell
Or Dublin city.

There are one or two instances of the term being applied not whimsically so much as in satirical reference to the nefarious practices of the human inhabitants of a town. Thus the scandalous impositions said to have been practised on sailors and visitors in certain seaports led to their being nick-named—one might say Old-Nick-named—the 'Devil's Daughter's Portion'; hence the saying:

Deal, Dover, and Harwich,
The Devil gave with his daughter in marriage.

FACE BROKE OUT WITH PIMPLES

Hard, Large and Red. Cuticura Healed.

"My face broke out with pimples that were hard, large and red. They festered and swelled over, and itched and burned causing me to scratch them. I tried several different remedies but they did not help any. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using them about a month, I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Catherine I. Carter, Aberdeen Hospital, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum protect and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health when used as directed.

Despite many inquiries, both locally and to high authorities, two names baffle me—the 'Devil's Tower' at Pickering Castle and the 'Devil's Tower' at Windsor Castle. One way of accounting for the latter may, however, be mentioned as being different from any other derivation we have given—namely, that the term is a corruption of the name of the butler.

There are probably scores of instances in addition to those here given; many readers will in all likelihood be able to increase the list from their own knowledge. In doing so they will naturally observe whether they are adding to the kind of feature to which the term has been applied or merely increasing the list of these: out of some thirty-seven instances, twenty-nine have been distinctive in name, though occasionally very similar in character. We may sum them up as follows:

Devil's Bridge, Dykes, Walls, Varners, Frying-pan, Mountains, Elbows, Cheese-knife, Currents, Punch-bowl, Garden, Kettle, Cauldron, Mill, Stone, Slide, Towers, Arrows, Daughter's Portion, Den, Nostrils, Throat, Leap, Beef-tub, Basin, Staircase, Rock, Pulpit, Outlook over a city—a goodly heritage!

A Hero of Rorke's Drift.

A face familiar to visitors to the British Museum a few years ago was that of Sergeant Henry Hook, formerly of the 24th Foot (South Wales Borderers), a "Commissionaire," whose twenty years' service at Great Bloomsbury St. was terminated by death on March 12, 1905. Hook had seen other and less peaceful service in his time, his most exciting experience being at Rorke's Drift in 1879, a stirring episode of the Zulu War when 800 British soldiers (the gallant 24th and other detachments) were surprised and slain almost to a man near Isandlwana Mountain. Some thousands of fearless and well-disciplined savages, flushed with victory had advanced to the Drift to "wipe out" the little outpost of a hundred men left in charge of the thirty sick in the hospital huts. Survivors from the massacre, had, however, warned Lieutenants Chard and Bromhead, and a slight breastwork of corn sacks and biscuit boxes had been improvised. A withering volley welcomed the Zulu onrush, and the savages wheeled to the further side of the camp only to be beaten off with cold steel. The hospital hut was set on fire and Private Hook, and three comrades, held back the Zulus at the point of the bayonet from the door of the hut until its helpless inmates were all removed. All night long fresh attacks were made and repulsed. At dawn the enemy retired leaving the ground around the camp strewn with dead (350) and wounded. Two hours afterwards Lord Chelmsford, British Commander in Chief, rode up with the relief column, and apprehension was changed to joyful surprise at finding the Union Jack still flying over the post, and the tiny garrison almost intact. Seventeen English soldiers had been killed and twelve wounded.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM, LIMITED, PROPRIETORS.
St. John's, Newfoundland, Thursday, March 15, 1923.

SPOILIATION OF WEST COAST.

The people of the South and West Coasts are not likely to forget the part played by the Squires-Coaker aggregation in despoiling their homes and settlements. Fish Regulations, exorbitant taxation and other kindred legislation enacted by the Liberal-Reformers brought more destitution and depression to a once prosperous section of the country than had been experienced for over half a century.

A CHANGE NECESSARY.

Taking it all in all, there is no country in the world to-day which is more direly in need of a change of Government than Newfoundland. For three and a half years the greatest infliction of having a government of no talent or ability, has been one of the severest drawbacks from which the Colony has suffered.

West Coast Trade.

HOW SQUIRES ATTENDED TO IT.

(Extract from Premier Squires' Manifesto, 1919.)
I propose particularly to have the matter of West and South Coast Trade attended to, with a view to develop improved freight, mail and passenger service; also a steamboat service capable of satisfactorily handling the trade between the West and South Coasts of Newfoundland and Halifax and North Sydney.

Quips for the Times.

Once upon a time the mice agreed that it would be a good idea to put a bell on the cat so that they might know when she was coming.

But, across the question, who would put the bell on the mouse? Hence the old Scottish proverb "Who will bell the cat?"

The Squires organs are very anxious to know where Jesse Winsor is, but "Who will bell the cat?" It is an unco' canny job.

It is "lang grace and nae meat" with the Squires organ now. Formerly it was considered that brevity was the soul of wit.

It is difficult to tell which is the more tiresome.

The ill-mannered and ungracious crew who cry for Squires and the squanderbush have not the spirit of the old Scottish laird who, hating the French, always ended his anti-gallican tirades with the remark: "But the boddies brew the braw drink!"

Of course we can't blame those poor things for it is a bitter cup Bennett will hand them on Polling Day.

From finding fault with Bennett is but a step to picking a quarrel with a stone wall.

Men fear principles more than they fear men, hence the Squires assault upon the persons of its opponents, when they will not attack the principles for which they honorably stand.

Honest government. Sane administration. Reduced public expenditure and lower taxation.

A re-establishment of confidence in the government which the Coaker-Squires combination destroyed is also a thing to be aimed at.

Bennett and Better times for the Squires incompetents.

Bennett and Better times for the masses.

"When pigs grow wings" there will again be a Coaker-Squires government in Newfoundland, but not till then.

The North is solid for Coaker. Then why not bring the lessons on to St. John's, where the Coakerites have their backs to the wall.

St. John's elects six men, the most important and compact district in the whole country.

Why not try to win a seat here for Squires? Bring on the "heavies."

It is a shame to neglect St. John's so much. The North is solid (?) Why not let Mr. Boone try his great eloquence here we are just dying to hear him.

When is Mr. Coaker going to address a St. John's audience on how to grow grass on Water Street?

The Magnum Opus—"5000 Facts."

One fact it certainly shows, you cannot write a book unless you know what you are writing about. Other men tried the "scissors and paste" and made an equal mess of it.

The Campbell crest: "Savee qui peut" (save himself who can). Vote for me, if you can't vote for Squires!

DEBATE ON EQUAL FRANCHISE.
The resolution "That we disapprove of the amendment of The Election Act of 1913 Newfoundland, extending equal franchise and right of representation to women;" forms the subject of a debate which takes place at the Methodist College Literary Institute. An unusual departure from the rules will be that the speakers will not be confined to Institute members, but will include ladies who are prominently identified with the Woman Suffrage Movement in this city.

for nearly three weeks, and the people of the coast were crying out for supplies to keep them from starving, was a steamer sent to replace her. That seems a peculiar way to improve the South West Coast service and facilitate trade. So far as the service between Canada and the West Coast is concerned, nothing at all has been done. Whether wilfully or through negligence and incompetence, it matters not which, Squires and Coaker have succeeded in practically ruining the West Coast, and that the people of the Coast know who are responsible for their misfortunes will be proved to the full satisfaction of the Government when they find that from Ferryland, west to Channel, not one of their candidates will be returned in the coming election.

Frenzied Finance.

How Squires Gave the Colony "Reform."

Although Squires denounced the Cashin Party for its extravagance before the last election, the estimates he submitted to the Legislature in the session of 1920 increased the expenditure one and three quarter millions of dollars over and above the vote asked by the Cashin Government the previous session. Squires in his manifesto promised reduction of taxation and reasonable economy. These, with other promises, induced the electorate to support his party, and yet his very first act of a financial nature was to disregard those promises entirely and enter upon a riotous extravagance unprecedented in legislative annals.

NO CONSIDERATION FOR POOR.
The poor of the Colony received no consideration at the hands of this grasping crew. The aged and infirm who were still left with what Squires called "the paltry dole of fifty dollars per year," whilst the widows and orphans were left to starve. No wonder that a blight has fallen upon the land which is now troubled by the greatest mass of misfits that ever disgraced a civilized land. Prices were soaring and

Portia Having Hard Time

Freight landed on ice. A message from Capt. Connors to the Coastal Department this morning, states that S.S. Portia landed her freight for Gaultois at a place called Piccotte, while the supplies for Hermitage were landed on the ice one mile outside of the harbour, teams later taking the cargo to its destination. Capt. Connors reports fearful ice conditions, but will make every effort to reach St. Lawrence where, it is said, the people are badly in need of provisions.

Engagement Announced.

The announcement we make below in view of the popularity of the event is one which we are sure will be received with the greatest pleasure by various sporting sets of the city. The rumors which have been current for sometime in connection with the happy event were seemingly well founded, and on St. Patrick's afternoon the contract will be fulfilled. On that day the big card tournament that everybody is talking about will take place in the St. Vincent des Paul's Hall, Harvey Road. The tickets are only 50 cents and the prizes are big ones.—adv.

AT THE AULA MAXIMA.
On St. Patrick's Night, a concert and comedy sketch will be held in the Aula Maxima, St. Bonaventure's College, at 8.15 p.m. The following city artists have kindly consented to contribute to numbers:—Misses Mary Ryan, Barbara Gibbs, A. Murphy, M. Keegan, K. Fraser, Bessie O'Neill Primm, and Mrs. B. Norris. Messrs. J. Canning, P. Dobbin, G. Neary, R. Sullivan, Leo. Dillon, J. P. Crotty, while Messrs. James and John Healey will give a display of Irish dancing, and G. Martin and J. Bradshaw are bound to delight the audience with some humorous recitations. A feature of the evening's entertainment will be the comedy sketch by the pupils of the College. The sketch, which is entitled "The Healed Glen" will be given in its original composition, and during the performance the players will introduce for the first time songs of real ancient Irish music in costume. A notable feature in connection with the playlet will be the appearance of Munster and Connaught, each will figure in a Hurling Match, while another interesting part of the play will be the Leprachaun at work searching for the missing crock of gold. The sketch ends with a fairy covert scenes which alone will be well worth the admission. The proceeds which go towards the St. Bon's Rink fund is sufficient proof that a large attendance greet the performers.

The Tragedy of the West

the Evening Telegram day, September 27th, optimism may be defined as a position of hopefulness, but not a hopeful vision of the future. It is a condition of the mind which does not see the facts as they are, but as they would be if only they were different. It is a condition of the mind which does not see the facts as they are, but as they would be if only they were different. It is a condition of the mind which does not see the facts as they are, but as they would be if only they were different.

The Tragedy of the West Coast.

From the Evening Telegram, Monday, September 27th, 1920.
Humanism may be defined as the recognition of humanity to take the hopeful view, and no one can be said to be waiting for the ray of light, if at all possible; but humanism is the stern facts which are faced render people humanly incapable of being able to look at the situation, as it were, there may be, for when hope is indeed in the way dark, and hope springs eternal in the human breast, so there are many, perhaps, who are waiting for the ray of light upon the blackness. Yet it is a condition of things existing which does not arouse any sentiment, but those of despondency. It is "and pity 'tis 'tis true." Therefore, the facts have to be taken and weighed in all their baldness and ugliness if only to show one part of the picture of how the other part is of subsisting to use the correct phrase. Witnessing such conditions of suffering the related experience of those who are wondering where to go or what to do, it would be derelict of duty if the whole truth were not told, the full picture painted of the inhumanity to man, that inhumanity makes thousands thousands of the inhumanity in the human instance is that by which certain restrictions have been made, certain restrictions placed upon free trade in exports, such restrictions interfering with and hampering the operations of men who have carried on a business for years and has practically compelled them to suspend their operations and seek other and a marginal employment, far from home and among strangers, in order that their families might be fed and clothed and themselves kept going until such time as they could return to their chief occupation, and fish with safety and immunity from vexatious restrictions.

... that tragedy is very real on the West Coast there is ample proof, and there is no need to go farther for our statement, than the publication of a letter from Pushpanth, Hermitage Bay, District of St. John's, which appeared in the Review on Saturday. The letter from which we have taken this information is fair testimony for accuracy, for the Trade Review is by any means, at least now, honest to the present government, and appearing in its columns we supposed to have passed a censorship. The letter is signed "Hermitage Bay Fisherman" and its contents are undeniable, and the tale it tells is furnished. The writer gives contents as they actually are, and of statements there can be no contradiction.

LABOR SACRIFICED.
(Editor "Trade Review.")
Dear Sir—Allow me space in your valuable paper to make a few words with regard to conditions on the West Coast at the present time, and sure that in Newfoundland's history she has never faced what she is facing at present, viz—Poverty, starvation, and in the end Bankruptcy. It's those of us who have been at the fishing this season and who have seen the fruits of our labor reduced to naught, that feel this hardest. We are bound hand and foot and gagged, and dare not open our mouths to protect the fruits of our labor. I doubt if the Control Board is doing in the manner in which you have sacrificed on this coast. We are men to inspect our fish who have nothing whatever about a confidence enough to eat, and trying to our merchants and fishermen who were born as it were a fish in their hand. The consequence of it all is, that we are approaching us. People are unable to pay their taxes, and their accounts half paid, which is dependent if justice had dealt to them. The feeling on the West Coast to-day among the fishermen is that if they were as well as some of the merchants, they would quickly rid the West Coast of its inspectors and cutlers or die in the attempt. We are in a pitiful plight at present; the women are starving because of the pests destroying their vegetables, and the men, because of Coaker and his clique sacrifying their fish. The appeal is that someone may help us to shake off the yoke of poverty once more, and save our country from destruction.

How Two Newfoundland Vessels and Crews

Went to the Seal Fishery—One From Lisbon, Portugal, and the Other From Liverpool, England.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

For the past forty years or more I have endeavored, to the best of my ability, to preserve the records of our former great sailing fleet and their crews, in their battles with the ice-floes, wind and waves of the Arctic Ocean, and I flatter myself I have succeeded fairly well. These were the days when the hardihood, agility and seamanship of our countrymen shone forth in all its glory. The minds of the younger generation cannot grapple with the descriptions of the adventures and escapes of our forefathers. Nothing seemed to daunt their energy, daring and enterprise. I have been an eye-witness, on several occasions, when they conquered all the storms and dangers of the Atlantic during winter months, and brought their ships into port, under juries, when seamen of other nationalities would have abandoned them in mid-ocean, or perhaps, have lost their ships with all on board. They were indeed a hardy and fearless race, and well may we be proud of them. Their capability as sailors, their hardihood and contempt of danger was fully recognized on both sides of the Atlantic, and it is no wonder that their services were eagerly sought after by the officials of the American Civil War, when 2,000 Newfoundland fishermen-sailors were employed during that period of fratricidal strife, and were ever to be found in the places of danger and responsibility. They had no fear, and they were fully trained on the square-riggers, many of them owned and commanded by their fathers or relatives, and when they went abroad to seek adventure they were always accepted for him, and that was to fit out his vessel at once, take all his guns and gear with him, and endeavor to return home on the back of the ice before the Seal fishery was over. He did this, and shipped twenty "picked" men with him, and you will see he had able and willing hands to drive the old vessel for all she was worth. After a good run across he sighted land in the latitude of the Bay of Biscay. He was met at once by a French man-of-war, who was then in search of a Barbary Rover, who had committed great depredations on French shipping. The man-of-war boarded him, and finding an extra large crew of men, made search of the hold and found guns for every man and a large supply of ammunition. There was no use in Capt. Frank giving any explanation—they only laughed at the thought of his going to the seal fishery, and considered it a miserable joke he was trying to play on them. Capt. Frank saw it was all up with him, and his only regret was that he had not offered fight to this d— Frenchman from the first, as he felt sure that with his able crew he could have kept them off. Anyway, they were aboard of him now, and took them prisoners, and carried them to Brest (France) as pirates.

TAKEN PRISONERS BY FRENCH.

Capt. Taylor at once got into communication with the British Ambassador at Paris, who fortunately recognized that Capt. Taylor was telling him the truth, and, like a true-born Briton, he at once went to Brest to the rescue of our hero. It was only after a period of very intricate diplomacy that he managed to convince the Frenchmen that they had made a mistake, and proved to them by the 2,500 quintals of codfish on board that the vessel was on a voyage from Newfoundland to a European market, and eventually secured the release of the brigantine "Providence" and her crew. Capt. Taylor continued his voyage to Lisbon and sold his fish at an excellent price. Any ordinary person would have been daunted with these delays, and glad to take it easy going home. It was now very near the first of March, and Capt. Taylor addressed his hardy crew, and told them there was still time to get a load of "swiles." He told them he had never missed a spring at the ice since he was twelve years of age, and the fire was in his blood now when he thought of all their folks at Carbonear getting ready for the slaughter. He wasn't going to miss it that year if they would work like he was ready to work himself. With such a leader what was a crowd of Newfoundlanders to say but that they were with him to the last and would carry the masts out of her if she didn't get there in time. They now set out from Lisbon for the seal fishery with the best wishes of their Portuguese friends, and probably a good jar to keep their feet warm. It was a hard voyage back, and many a time they had her rail under, but their spirits revived when they reached the latitude of the Funks, about the first of April, just in time to meet the seals drifting South, as they had been caught in Green Bay that Spring.

FORTUNA AUBACES JUVAT.

It shows how success will come to those who work for it, and fortune favors the brave. While it was no easy work for the men, still everything came their way, and although it seems incredible these twenty men secured 5,500 seals, and brought the old ship "Providence" safely into St. John's. One little incident that many might think not worth relating, but as I vouch for the truth of all, I want to show how exact Capt. Taylor was in all he tried to do. He hailed for 5,500, and only turned out 5,559, but found that the crew had rendered the fat from one seal to trim their lamps. You may be sure that Capt. Taylor's exploits were repeated in every store and office round St. John's, and he was the hero of the day. Such a voyage to the seal fishery has never been heard of before or since. I am not sure whether it was in the old Chamber of Commerce or not, but anyway the Mercantile body of St. John's had a special meeting for Capt. Taylor, praised his pluck, determination and adroitness in bringing success out of what appeared to be certain failure. They presented him with a "Union Jack" made of silk, with their compliments, as a souvenir of his famous exploit. In conclusion I have to acknowledge that I procured the facts of this story from the manuscript of my old friend, the late Claudius Watts, Esq. As I stated before there is a mine of historical facts to be gathered from that source still. Modern conditions have eliminated the dangers of the seal fishery to a great extent, but the success of our hardy fishermen who carried on this fishery during the first half of the past century will ever remain one of the most glorious periods of our history.

AN HISTORICAL EPOCH.

I shall now give another episode that happened in the fifties of the past century, which also forms an epoch in our country's history, and would be treated as a romance emanating from the fertile mind of a Marryat or some other popular writer, were I not fortified with all the facts and details of the notable event:—

BRIGHT IRON DUKE.

Fitted Out and Sailed From Liverpool For Seal fishery.

About the year 1857, young Capt. Joe Houlahan in the brigantine "Iron Duke," owned by S. March & Sons, took a load of oil to Liverpool, and after discharging cargo, Capt. Joe telegraphed to London and Greenock for the agents to hunt up all the Newfoundland sailors who were in those ports. His object was to procure twenty-five men to prosecute the seal fishery on his way out to St. John's. They succeeded in mustering up the required number, amongst them being such hardy, experienced and practical seamen as William Galway, Larry Grace, John Redmond, Peter Aspell and others, who were in the barque "Snowdon," owned by Messrs. Job Bros. & Co., who were paid off there. They purchased boats, pokers, guns and all the necessary paraphernalia for prosecuting the seal fishery in Liverpool, and cleared at the Custom House for Newfoundland. They left Liverpool in February, and made a quick run out to the Funks, having struck the ice about 150 miles off the above island. When they arrived at the icefields amongst the great sailing fleet, the outpost sealers were astonished at the beautiful boats with which they were supplied, and upon hearing her exclaim: "James, there's some skipper of she." The boats were of a far superior quality to our regular punts, and were built of cedar, under Joe Houlahan's inspection. They had oak frames. Notwithstanding the many difficulties, they succeeded in securing 1,200 seals, old and young, and the crew shared a fairly good amount. They arrived in St. John's about 25th April, and the entire population turned out to give them a hearty welcome, and young Capt. Joe was the hero of the hour. He was late in getting on the coast, and was driven South, with the continuance of Northwest gales. It must be remembered that the good ship "Iron Duke" had to force through 150 or 200 miles of ice to the Westward, in the teeth of heavy gales of wind. Only for the crew, he had Capt. Joe could never have succeeded. All the men were used to the seal fishery, but like the majority of our sailors on those days, after arriving from Labrador or shore fishery, they shipped on board foreign vessels, and made voyages to Brazil, the Mediterranean and elsewhere. Many of them, who were paid off in England and Scotland, remained away for years, finding it difficult to get a ship returning to Newfoundland, and others, unfortunately, shipped on deeper water voyages, as the sailors call it, to India, China, Japan, Australia and other countries, and have never returned. Being noted for their hardihood, agility and seamanship, they were eagerly sought after by all masters in every port they visited. I know a few who returned after twenty, thirty, even forty years, having sailed the greater part of the globe.

The Menace of Coakerism.

ARTICLE IX.

In my previous reviews of what Coakerism means to Newfoundland and the misfortunes that followed in the wake of this menace, I had that notwithstanding the many hostile criticisms of the Government press, I am still going strong and cannot refrain from continuing for the benefit of Telegram readers who are not aware of the autocrat's misdeeds as well as to those who might have forgotten the many as recorded, still assumed the position of dictator. The Union was to be an influence in the Colony for the public good, not seeking the benefit of its members only, but aiming to uplift the whole people; not desiring to grasp the reins of exclusive power, and the profits of place for itself, but to control for the general good, by beneficent influence the actions with corruptly receiving money from the Reid Company, while Colonial Secretary. You have read how Mr. Squires, in the Legislative Council, declared, at or about the same time, that "Coaker is untrustworthy, sets self-interest before the welfare of the country, is an offence to honest men and true—a stumbling block in the way of the success of patriotic effort, and an example of party misdeeds and self-seeking politics." You have read, too how Mr. Coaker endeavored to have Mr. Squires dismissed from the Legislative Council, for misconduct in public office. And you know that Mr. Squires established his paper, the Star, to destroy Mr. Coaker as a public man. Those of you who are members of the F.P.U. are aware that, at the Citalina Convention in 1918, Mr. Coaker procured the adoption of a resolution demanding a public enquiry into the alleged misconduct of Mr. Squires—an enquiry which has never been held.

In view of these things said by themselves about each other—and not one of them withdrawn to this moment—is it not an insult to your intelligence to ask you to support Mr. Coaker and his colleagues under the leadership of Mr. Squires? Is it not especially an insult to every intelligent voter.

Strong Array of Screen Players.

IN LATEST CARTER DeHAVEN FILM.

An unusual array of well known screen players were engaged by Lloyd Ingraham to support Mr. and Mrs. Carter DeHaven in the First National attraction, "The Girl in the Taxi," a screen version of the famous musical comedy stage success of the same name, which is at the Nickel Theatre to-night. Out of the entire group of players at least two have appeared as stars in their own right. King Baggott, screen hero of over 300 plays, is seen in the role of Major Frederick Smith. Grace Cunard, the well known heroine of countless serial productions, has the part of Marietta, the wife of a jealous policeman. Other members of the cast who have appeared to advantage in numerous picture plays include Otis Harlan, Tom McGuire, Margaret Campbell, Lincoln Plumer, Freya Sterling and John Gough. "The Girl in the Taxi" was written by Stanislaus Strang and adapted for the screen by Robert McGowan.

Lady Allardyce Inspects Girl Guides.

On Tuesday afternoon the Spencer College Guides had the pleasure of being inspected by Lady Allardyce, Island Commissioner, accompanied by Miss Vini Allardyce and Captain Goodfellow. The Wolf Cubs formed a Guard of Honour and four companies of Guides and thirty-five Brownies were drawn up in the Assembly Hall in charge of Capt. Nash. After the inspection Lady Allardyce gave an inspiring address to them all and reminded the Wolf Cubs that they must do credit to their training when they joined the Scouts or the C.L.B. After congratulating the Guides warmly on their progress Lady Allardyce quoted the words of an English statesman emphasizing the importance of Faith, Hope, Love and Work and explained that these words embodied the Guides promise. Captain Nash proposed a very hearty vote of thanks to Lady Allardyce, and the Guides gave three cheers. After the singing of the National Anthem and the hoisting of the flag, the Companies were dismissed.

Newfoundlander in Movie Story.

Surrounded by Notable Screen Celebrities.

"The Sea Riders," which has been announced by the Majestic for screening next week, is produced by the Maritime Motion Picture Co., Ltd. at their studios in Sydney, Nova Scotia.

A number of scenes were shot on the Nfld. coast. One of the main reasons why this picture will be well patronised is because a large number of our people are stockholders in the Company, and naturally everybody will want to see how their money is being used.

The leading female role is portrayed by Miss Betty Bouton, a winsome little California beauty, who it will be remembered appeared opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "The Mud-die" and "When the Clouds Roll By," seen at this theatre some time ago.

The male lead is taken by Edward Phillips, who it will also be remembered played such an appealing role in "Just Around the Corner," a Cosmopolitan Special, which was also shown at the Majestic. The character role is in the capable hands of a Newfoundlander, Michael Brennan, who makes his initial appearance on the silver sheet, and that his own countrymen will give him a big ovation goes without saying. The story is said to be "Censor-Proof," having received the highest possible credentials from the various Boards of Censors of Canada and the United States.

An excellent way in which to utilize the last bit of chopped meat is to make a biscuit dough, spread it lightly with butter. Roll like a jelly roll and bake in a hot oven. Serve with tomato sauce.

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before!

There was a cartoon in Tuesday night's Wad which was very much to the point, it was entitled "There's an end to all things," and showed a shape, a la Squires, comfortably seated on a divan smoking one of his own Doré cabbages. On the other end of the lounge was an ordinary human being, looking very sad and disconsolate and he is depicted as saying "Every year 'tis the same thing"—evidently having in mind the burden of facing nearly another twelve months of Coaker-Squires-Collishaw regime. It represented January and comprised scene 1.

Scene 2 was entitled February, and showed Squires leaning on and attempting to crush the poor elector, at the same time remarking "This is the most comfortable place I know!" The little fellow retorts with "Every day in every way I'm getting madder and madder!"

The third scene is simply described M-a-r-c-h, and shows the little elector follow ordering Squires of the premises much to the latter's surprise and disgust.

And this is just a happy angry of what will happen on polling day when the intelligent electors of this little island of ours will say to the present bunch of "Incapables" known as the Government:—"January—February—March—and March they will, for the elector of Newfoundland are determined to a man to vote for BENNETT & BETTER TIMES.

A PLEA FOR GOOD PLUGS

"A defective sparking plug can be the cause of many and peculiar troubles. It is, therefore, false economy to purchase cheap plugs on the supposition that they are all 'much of a muchness.' It is true that a cheap plug may be perfectly satisfactory for many hundreds of miles; a plug of first-class make, however, for which a fair price is paid, will generally suffice for at least one season's running in an average engine."

The LODGE plug is known not only as a plug of first-class make which will last, but also as one that clearly manifests its superiority in the firing of a petrol engine.

Vessel in Distress.
SENEF ORDERED TO ASSISTANCE
 A message was received in the city this morning from Branch, Placentia Bay, reporting that a foreign-going vessel was driven out of St. Mary's Bay last night, while a northeast blizzard was raging. After the unknown vessel drifted a few miles to sea, a flare-up was seen for some minutes, the schooner evidently being in distress. It is quite possible that the vessel reported is the Natalie J. Nelson, which was spoken by Capt. Norman, of the Senef on the last trip coming east. As soon as the information was received the Government Coastal Department immediately got in touch with Capt. Norman of the Senef, now at Burnt, and asked him to have a careful lookout for the vessel on his return trip to port. The Senef left the latter port this morning on her way to St. John's.

Girls Hockey Game.
SPENCER WINS FROM M.C.—FELDIANS DEFEAT ST. BON'S IN COLLEGE RELAY.

A girl's hockey game, and an inter-collegiate relay race, were the two items of the short sports programme held in the Prince's Rink last night. The medals won in the recent sports were presented by Lady Allard, who was present as Island Commissioner of the Girl Guides.

THRILLING HOCKEY.
 The hockey game provided the sensation of the rink season. The teams represented the Girl Guides of Bishop Spencer and the Methodist Colleges, and both presented a very smart appearance on the ice. From the start, Spencer skated all round their opponents, and within a very few minutes, after play that would have done credit to this year's League Champions, netted their first goal. From the centre, they pressed on the M.C. goal again, and the goalkeeper was compelled to throw discretion to the winds, and use her stick as if she were playing baseball. It was only excellent goaltending that saved the M.C. team from going down to a bad defeat. The girls showed admirable progressiveness in abandoning the off-side rule, which has so often proved a nuisance in League Hockey. Unfortunately, the referee was not quite used to the new rule, and now and then blew his whistle. This did not matter much, however, as very few of the players heard it, being too keen on the game. Before the first period had come to an end, the Spencer had scored another goal.

IN THE SECOND PERIOD
 the M.C. took the offensive, chiefly with individual rushes, but after a few minutes, Spencer made a combined movement and put the puck into the twines. This seemed to wake their opponents up, and for a time the Spencer defence was on its mettle, but after a few enjoyable little tussles near goal, which showed that the girls knew more than a little about the finer points of hockey, the Spencer forwards got away and added another goal to their score. Very soon after, the M.C. went through their opponents defence and scored their one and only goal. On the whole, the game was good, and while inclined at times to be a little rough, this must be put down to the inexperience of the players. Mr. Bren Sinnott was referee, but it is feared that he was too lenient on many occasions, and did not dole out many well merited penalties.

COLLEGE RELAY.
 The College relay race was a most exciting event. The Methodist College did not enter a team, and the race was left between Bishop Field and St. Bon's. Three men entered for each school, and each had to do three laps. After a splendid race which was very close until the last two laps, the Pelidians team won, for the first time since the competition was instituted. The Pelidians team was Lloyd, Chalk, and Fraser, and the St. Bon's, Cotter, Fraser, and Eagan. The Mount Cashel Band rendered excellent music for the general skating which followed. The sports were in aid of the Girl Guide and Child Welfare movements.

Why the Face is Lathered at Shaving.
 The question has been asked: Why does lathering the face make shaving easier? Here is one explanation given by a writer in one of the English scientific magazines:
 "When a barber applies a heavy coat of lather to a long beard the lather tends to hold the hair upright. In the first shaving the microscope shows that the cuttings are nearly at a right angle to the length of the beard, but the second time over, when the call for a close shave, short, rapid strokes are made several times repeated.
 "When the lather is off the barber will occasionally wet his fingers, because the face gets too dry. Indeed, there is nothing to maintain the perpendicularity of the beard. It bends over and the barber rapidly whacks away at it like a batsman flattening a cricket pitch."
 "Lathering," says another writer, "has the effect, when properly done, of reducing the bulk of the soap and increasing the number of bubbles whereby water is kept in close opposition to the skin by the surface tension. This is a roundabout way of using water as a lubricant for the efficient and easy passage of a razor across the skin, but, once the lubricating qualities of water are recognized as of value in such circumstances, it is but a short step to applying the water direct and shaving while the skin is well soaped. This is the method long in use by the Orientals, and is one that can be thoroughly recommended for trial. Apart from its economy, the skin is not so liable to irritation, the edge of the razor is not so easily dulled, while the whole operation is completed in half the time."

Obituary.
MRS. PATRICK MURPHY.
 There passed away yesterday morning at Killybegs, a highly esteemed and popular lady in the person of Mrs. Patrick Murphy after an illness of very brief duration. For a number of years previous to her marriage, which took place a few months ago, the deceased lady had been on the nursing staff of the Insane Asylum. In this position she was held in high esteem by the doctors, matron, nurses and patients, for her bright cheerful disposition and kindness of heart endeared her to all who were privileged with her friendship. The deceased was a daughter of Michael and the late Mary Ryan of Killybegs. She leaves to mourn a husband, father, stepmother, 2 brothers and 2 sisters, one of the latter being a religious in a convent at Little Rock, Arkansas, many relatives and a large number of friends. To the bereaved husband and relatives the Telegram extends sympathy.

Rivers in the Ocean.
 Just like the land, the oceans have their rivers, and just as the land rivers are sometimes full and swift, and at others slow and scanty, so do the ocean rivers vary in speed and size.
 The one which we know best is the Gulf Stream. It is a very real river, though it moves rather slowly. A schooner, the W. L. White, abandoned off Cape Delaware in March of one year, has drifted across to the Hebrides, where she went ashore in the following January. The Gulf Stream had brought her right across the Atlantic.
 Yet at times the Gulf Stream runs quite strongly, for in 1913 the White Star liner Olympic recorded that the drift of the Gulf Stream had given her for two days an extra thirty knots a day. Again, in 1909, off Cape Hatteras, the Gulf Stream turned deep yellow and ran with twice its usual speed.
 The greatest ocean river is the "Kuro Siwo" or Black Stream, which runs from Japan due east towards the American coast, and so wonderfully modifies the climate that in summer humming birds are found in Southern Alaska. Part of the Black Stream beats as far north as Behring Strait.
 Inshore from the Gulf Stream a river of icy waters, from the Arctic creeps down past New York and Cape Hatteras, and brings a delicious coolness as far south as Florida, and in exactly like manner a similar current sneaks inside the Black Stream and so down to the China coast.
 Another big ocean river is the Guinea Current, which sweeps down the northwest coast of Africa. This is one of the swiftest of such currents, for at times it runs with a speed of no less than five miles an hour.
 These currents are constantly measured by the hydrographic authorities of various countries, by means of floating bottles. Each bottle has inside it a blank form for the finder's name, the date and locality, together with directions printed in six languages.
 The record pace at which such a bottle has travelled is 237 miles in 16 days, and the greatest distance just over 6,000 miles, which was covered in 674 days.

Sterlings Recovery Saves $2,000,000,000.
 That the recovery of the pound sterling from its lowest quotation in terms of the American dollar, during 1922, meant a reduction of £483,990,000 in the British debt to the United States, Walter Leaf, chairman of London County Westminster & Parr's Bank, told the general meeting of the shareholders of that bank recently.

INNER TOMB OF EGYPTIAN KING

Gives Up It's Secrets--Seals Set on Granite Door 3,000 Years Ago. What Will Be Found?

(By JOHN E. PEMBER in Boston Sunday Herald.)

To-day will be a momentous—perhaps the most momentous—day in the history of archaeology. For Lord Carnarvon, at the head of Tut-Ankh-Amen, in the Valley of the Kings, in Upper Egypt, has announced that on this date, the seals, 3,000 years old, which were set on the granite door of the mysterious inner tomb, will be broken and the chamber opened.

Here, it is believed, the mummy of the Pharaoh lies, as it was placed, with stately ritual, some 14 centuries before the Christian era, surrounded by his choicest treasures and all the ceremonial images, vessels and other objects deposited for the use of the monarch in the other world.

What will be disclosed when the stones are pulled aside? What hitherto unexpected relics of a long vanished civilization will be found? What inscriptions, what records, what manuscripts which, upon being deciphered, may shed a flood of light upon a period still hidden in the gloom and mawk of forgotten centuries?

Will it be the superb climax of a series of discoveries which has left archaeologists and historians breathless? Or—because it is known that robbers despoiled the tomb within a very few years of the royal burial—are we doomed to disappointment? May the flashlight of the explorers, reveal more plundered wreckage or even sheer, stark emptiness?

The latter alternative is regarded as highly improbable. In fact, it is a remote and disquieting possibility, only.

The robbers who forced their way into the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen wrought the deed, only a few years after the Pharaoh's death, in haste and in fear. They obtained little of real value.

From the historical records which have been translated, it is known that these thieves went in search of jewels and articles of value that could be easily carried away, and particularly of metal. They had neither the time nor the desire to take chariots or statues of couches, or chests of royal robes.

So they hastily rummaged the various utensils and stripped off a few golden ornaments, leaving the place in confusion. They even tunneled through the wall into the inner chamber and they have rifled the mummy case in their search for precious stones. They have made away with a few things of great intrinsic worth. But, after their depredations had been discovered, the priestly caretakers of the royal necropolis made good the damage as best they could. They gathered up the scattered treasures and brought about a semblance of order, although the modern explorers found evidences of disturbance and confusion. They sealed up the inner tomb once more, impressing on the mortar the cartouches or seals of Ramesses, whose inspectors they were.

DRIFTING SANDS BURY TREASURE.

After that the tomb remained untouched and unharmed. The desert sands drifted about the entrance. Presently they covered it completely,

The slow years went by. Generations of Egyptians came and went. Dynasties succeeded dynasties. The place of the tomb became a tradition, only known to a few. One by one, the possessors of the secret passed away. At last, totally forgotten, it lay hidden while empires rose and fell, until Howard Carter, the untiring enthusiast and director of the enterprise, and Lord Carnarvon, who has chiefly financed the work of excavation, firmly persuaded of the existence of the tomb, piled pick and shovel till they brought it once more to the light of day and filled the civilized world with delight and astonishment.

The cabled despatches have described in detail the marvellous finds which have been taken from the outer chamber—objects whose value has been estimated at $2,000,000 commercially, but which, sentimentally, are priceless.

These include the guardian statues of gold and black bitumen, believed to have been effigies of the dead Pharaoh, which have stood on either side of the inner entrance all these thousands of years, awaiting the coming of the explorer.

They include couches and chariots of wondrous artifice; thrones and footstools; grotesque effigies of sphinxes; images and implements of many kinds. Instruments whose use is only conjectural; utensils packed with food to sustain the dead monarch during his long journey beyond the black waters of death; wondrous cases packed with robes and other articles of attire; alabaster vases containing unguents; weapons, whips, ceremonial staves; ornaments of every description; funerary furniture.

WOULD PACK MUSEUM.
In fact, treasures sufficient to pack a museum have been found. Only a tithe of them have been removed as yet, for each article must be handled with extraordinary care.

Some of the things have been touched by the hand of decay and are ready to crumble to dust at a touch, or even by exposure to the outer air and light.

The work of removing these precious objects is, however, proceeding as fast as is compatible with their preservation, with a view of transporting them to the museum at Cairo, where they will be classified and studied at leisure and where, undoubtedly, the majority will find a permanent abiding place.

One cannot help wondering whether after living undisturbed more than 3,000 years in the rock tomb where they have just been found, they will be preserved intact for even a fraction of that time in their new depository.

Among those assisting Howard Carter, the director-in-chief of the expedition, are Mr. Lucas, director of the Egyptian Government Laboratories, and Arthur Mace, assistant director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. They have set up a laboratory in the empty tomb of Pharaoh Seti II, one of the show places of the Valley of the Kings, where they treat the fragile articles with chemical preservatives and give them a preliminary examination before sending them to Cairo.

BORNE WITH GREAT CARE.

The articles are carried to this place, which is lighted by electric lights installed for the assistance of tourists and sightseers, with the utmost care, strapped on special traps and borne on a sort of litter by human power.

Mr. Carter himself, or Mr. Callender, who is in charge of the office and joinery, supervises each burden and lends a hand in carrying the more valuable treasures.

Great precautions are being taken against theft, as the whole district is inhabited by hereditary tomb-robbers. The news of the find has, of course, spread far and wide through the desert, and bands of marauders are always hovering about, ready at the first opportunity to make a raid.

The whole valley is closely patrolled by the camel corps of the Egyptian army, but it is an anxious time, nevertheless, and every one connected with the expedition will have a sigh of relief when the work is done and all the treasures are finally in a place of safety.

Merely handling them is an arduous piece of work. Speaking in London recently, Lord Carnarvon said that for purposes of packing and transport, he and Mr. Carter had bought in Cairo "about a mile and a half of wadding and several gross of surgical bandages."

HAMPERED BY TOURISTS.

The explorers have been hampered in other ways. Not only has an army of tourists and curious excursionists been turned loose by the Cooks and other agencies, but it seems as though every individual in two continents who thought that he or she possessed a "pull" of some sort, has exerted it to obtain admission to the tomb and access to the relics themselves.

Persons of title and official position have simply swarmed about the scene of operations. Kings and queens and major-generals have appeared and demanded to be shown everything at a moment's notice. The members of the expedition, working at top speed, have frequently been compelled to cease operations and, outwardly smiling but inwardly very much the reverse, to conduct some consequential nobody about the work.

This, notwithstanding that the hot season, which sets in in April, is at hand, during which any kind of work is virtually impossible. Little wonder that the tempers of the leaders of the expedition are decidedly frayed about the edges.

The Egyptian Government has promised to supply a steamer to transport the objects found in the tomb to Cairo. The water method will be easier on the delicate articles and will involve less handling than if they were to be taken overland.

Harbor Grace Notes.

A four act drama, entitled, "Lena Rivers," will be staged by a troupe of our local amateurs in the Academy Hall on St. Patrick's night. As the play is under the able direction of Mr. W. H. Kennedy, we are assured that it will be most enjoyable and successful, as his past productions have been.

Mr. F. B. Wood, in the interests of his firm, the F. B. Wood Co. Ltd., of St. John's, was in town to-day, and leaves for Bay Roberts by to-morrow morning's train.

A Memorial service was held in the Methodist Church last night, Sunday, for three members of the Church who passed from earthly scenes during the last few months. The names of deceased are:—Mrs. Richard Spencer, Messrs. Josiah Stevenson and Robert S. Parsons. The preacher, Rev. Mr. Harris, took for his text: Revelations 14 Chap. 13 Verse, which is in part: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; that they may rest from their labours and their works do follow them." The Anthem "From Shore to Shore" was very nicely rendered by the choir.

Captain Shute of the Salvation Army who is conducting an Evangelistic Campaign around the Island, has been at Bell Island for the past few days, and should weather conditions permit her to leave the Island, she will conduct a meeting in the S. A. Citadel here to-morrow, Tuesday night. Captain Shute has been doing good work, and will conduct meetings here until Sunday next and probably after.

Colonel Martin, of the S. A. Headquarters, St. John's, accompanied by Staff Captain Tilley, General Secretary, came to town by Saturday night's train, and conducted meetings in the Citadel here on Sunday. In the afternoon a lecture, entitled: "With the Army Flag on the Continent of Europe" was given by the Colonel. The discourse was listened to by a large audience, and was most interesting and instructive. Especially from the fact that the Colonel has spent years of service in parts of the Continent such as Norway, Sweden, Germany, France, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland, and no doubt other countries. The work of the army in world-wide—it's beginning was indeed small, but to-day it represented in all parts of the civilized and many parts of the uncivilized world. An evidence of what the army is endeavouring to do for the uplift and betterment of humanity, in this Island, is the "Maternity Hospital" which is nearing completion and will probably be ready for occupancy this year.

Sir Richard Squires, who passed through here from the city in special car on Friday to Carbonear, spent Saturday night with his father, Mr.

Alex. Squires, here, and left on Sunday morning.

Politics is the order of the day at present, as it is no doubt where else around the island. This interest is rife as to the "line" of this district. Some names are mentioned as likely candidates, but await the official announcement.

Mr. J. T. McRae was a passenger by the "Digby" enroute for the Country on a business trip.

Coaker does not repudiate one expression of opinion held by 1920, unless it is that like another honest man he has dis-his mistake in not supporting of Sir Michael Cashin. In he complained that while in countries profiteering was a crime, it was not so recogniz-to the point wherein the of Squires reveals itself

"RIM LAC"

THE LATEST THING IN OPTICAL SCIENCE.

Rim Lac on the edge of a lens greatly improves its appearance, leaving a smooth glossy finish which is most attractive, and prevents chipping of the edge, also cutting out the usual reflection of light from the edge of lenses.

MAY WE SHOW YOU THE ADVANTAGES OF RIM LAC?

Is your Table Silver as good to-day as when you bought it?

Have you noticed that at the parts most exposed to wear, the plate has become worn?

Do you think this condition of your Silver is in keeping with your idea of a well appointed table?

Then why not, when you decide on replacing your old ware, give place to it with the "Wallace" Brand, the Silver that refuses to wear and is guaranteed without time limit.

Start with the Tea Spoons and gradually complete your Set with the one pattern—there are several for you to choose from and the price is very moderate.
