In south America and Australia pasture is abundant and oxen of the finest quality are plentiful. Bovril is prepared from these oxen and the supply is so considerable as to enable the manufacturers to use the best materials at a nominal cost. It is prepared by a special process, which ensures the retention of both the stimulating and nourishing properties of the beef thereby differing from ordinary meatextracts or beef tea, which merely stimulate without nourishing.

So, last Wednesday morning a carriage drove up to 515 West Adams street and Mrs. Carter, who had been hojing and praying for a nice day, was assisted into it. Away it rolled, along Jackson boulevard, and Mrs. Carter clapped her hands gaily, waving the all but helpless "limber" one in innocent, almost childish glee.

"See! see! Ain't it all just lovely!" she kept exclaiming. "And the grass as green an' the sky as blue as—anything. An' ain't it a beautiful day, an' me goin' down town."

The boulevards, the river, the down town streets delighted her, although, first, she was a little shy of seeming to study things openly, for fear, perhaps, of seeming odd or provincial.

But later.

"I'll never get another chance like his, she wisely decided, an 1 in just a goin' to take it all in."

With all the abuses of fanaticism, this thought remained rich in blessings; Sunday has always brought large good to the generality, and to a chosen number has always been the very life of the soul, however heretically some of them understood the words. If its ancient use perishes from among us, so much the worse for the country. And perish no doubt it will; only here in the rustic solitude can none forget the changes that have already made the day less sacred to multitudes. With it will vanish that habit of periodic calm, which, even when it has become so largely void of corscious meaning, is, one may safely say, the best spiritual boon ever bestowed upon a people. -The appalling record of railway fatalities on this continent during the of horror among the reading public, and has instigated the press to a gengestions. The Scientific American compares our railway systems with those a period of fifteen months not a single passenger had been killed on the railoads of Great Britain, while with a smaller total number of passengers and trains, and in spite of the fact that they are spread over eight times as many miles of track, the railroads of the United States have had 77 fatalities in 15 days. As a reason for this difference of results the inclination of nces is suggested. As a remedy the Scientific American proposes an absolute automatic system of signals. If such a system were possible an im-mense saving in human lives would be ever, if the automatic performance of their duties were to eliminate that element of responsibility and watchfulness which is the necessary constituent of successful work in any position. Another American exchange says:-From the reports submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission, in 27 of the more serious collisions, the principal causes were: Forgetfulness by conductors and enginemen, who run their trains past stations at which, according to written orders in their pockets, they should stop; overlooking one of a number of orders; mistakes in reading hours or names in written orders; misreading watches or calculating time; misreading timetables and train registers: carelessness in identifying From the reports submitted to the In registers: carelessness in identifying trains at meeting stations. Besides these errors of the men on the trains in receiving, copying, sending, and delivering telegraphic orders which are sent by the train dispatcher to the men in charge of trains and are repeated back to the dispatcher. Collisions occur also by reason of complications following deliberate neglect to carry out certain safeguards. In other words a single mind is likely to become careless or make any one of the many errors of sense or judgment which result in accidents. In many instances railway employes are required to be on duty,or voluntarily remain for so unusual a number of hours as to suggest that accidents more or less frequently result from that cause. The work of operating trains in which these men are engaged requires a high degree of mental and physical vigor. If their powers are inpaired by service exceeding the limits of ordinary endurance there is liable to be a loss of that there is liable to be a loss of that alertness on which the safety of the travelling public so constantly depends. From the data compiled, it appears that in seven serious cases occurring in six months, the men at fault had fallen asleep on duty or had been constantly on duty from 15 to 25 hours before the accidents.

Not only are accidents at sea and on land caused by temporary working overtime, by over-fatigue, illness, carelessness, etc., but these things are also due to old age. 'He was our oldest and most experienced man,' is often given as an excuse, when in fact it is precisely the fault. Age and long bearing of responsibility blunts the senses and the mental alertness which really prevents accidents. All pilots, captains, engineers, etc., should be pensioned or transferred to other positions at a certain age, beyond which it is unsafe to trust them with the hazardous responsibilities. It has long been recognized that two pilots must be on duty in the wheelhouse of ferryboats, etc., and why should not two engineers be on duty on every passencer lescondive. The old style of enengineers be on duty on every passenger locomotive. The old style of engine permitted the fireman to act as second to the engineer. The new machines forbid this. Let a third man be added. Two train dispatchers should be in charge of each principal office, and overtime work should be prohibited by law in trainmen. Automatic couplers and power brakes have been made compulsory by law and have served to lessen somewhat the number of casualties, but there are many other ways that a nation careful instead of reckless of the lives of its people should demand which would stop the hideous mainings and deaths at present unnecessarily permitted.

The sudden death of a prominent educationist, Principal Cameron, of Yarmouth, occurred on Saturday last. He had been working at the school dibrary all day, and was found dead in the cloak room at about six o'clock, having been seen by some of the teachers in good health and spirits about an hour previously. He was well known throughout the province as an authority on English literature and astronomy, and was about 50 years of age. Heart disease is supposed to be the cause of death.

—The bone of contention about which the Alaskan dispute centres is that body of water called the Lynn Canal. If this water is an arm of the sea, as contended by the United States, its shore is a part of the coast, and the boundary line by the treaty of 1825 is to be measured thirty knots inland. On the other hand Canada contends that Lynn Canal is not an arm of the sea, but territorial water, and that the coast runs from headland to headland.

—A merry sleighing party of seventeen young people drove from Bridge town to Nictaux on Monday night, on the invitation of Mass Leta and Mr. Elroy Brown. Mrs. W. D. Lockett fulfilled the duties of chaprone. Their destination was the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morse, where they were royally entertained. They returned home in the wee small hours of the morning, their homeward trip partaking unexpectedly much of the nature of a walking party, which, however did not mar their enjoyment of the happy occasion.

The statement of the Union Bank of Halifax for the year ending 31st. Jan., 1903, has been published. The profit and loss account shows net profits, after providing for bad and doubtful debts, to be 8152,178.99. This added to the balance carried forward from Jan. 31st., 1902, makes the total of 8154, 278.64. This amount has been disposed of as follows—Puid in dividends to the shareholders, $74,802.71; written off cost of building at North Sydney, and land purchased in Dartmouth, etc., $26,744.49; transferred to reserve fund, $250,564.38, leaving a balance of $2,167.11 to be carried forward to next year. The reserve fund new stands at $855,060, a creditable showing, considering that it amounted to only $875,000 a year ago. $199,435.62 was received in premiums on new stock issued. There is a noticeable growth in the volume of business as compared with that of a year ago. This bank row occupies a prominent position among the monetary institutions of Canada. The bank has its own premises at Halifax, Sydney, Windsor, North Sydney, Sydney Winss, Liverpeo, Sherbrooke, Barrington Passage, Middleton, Annapolis and Glace Bay.

ANOTHER SHAREHOLDER.

Dear Editor:—

Kindly allow me through the columns of the Monitor to give a brief description of a sleighing party on Wednesday, Feb. 11th, from Springfield to New Germany. At three o'clock in the afternoon we met at Grimm's Corner to arrange the teams which numbered in all nine. At halfpast three we were ready to start with the merry chime of the bells.

Arrived at Dr. Feindel's at five o'clock we met with a hearty welcome from Dr. and Mrs. Feindel. As the hands of the clock pointed to six, we were summoned to a bountiful repast prepared by the kind hostess. It is an old proverb, "Laugh and grow fat," and we don't think a lean one left the table. The evening was spent in music, games and other amusements. After presenting to out host and hostess a vote of thanks and the gift of a glass tea set we started for home under the "pale, sober light of the moon," and arrived home in the wee hours. Although we met with a few mishaps, that sleighing party shall long be remembered. The members of the party were:—May Young, Nora Grimm, Daisy Morrison, Lottie Grimm, Ethel Fletcher, Lily Zwicker, Oda Grimm, Flora Grimm, Clayton Zwicker, Fred Barteaux, Kenneth Zwicker, Wylie Grimm, Clayton Grimm, Maynard Grimm, George Beals, Starr Young. Your correspondent who signs himself "Shareholder," in your last issue does not seem to be aware that Mr. O. S. Miller, of Bridgetown, Annapolis Co., Barrister, was by a vote of the shareholders of the Cheese Pactory, appointed liquidator of the same, and that he can get the information he desires by seeing or corresponding with him.

CABIN of the heart. It reflects, like a prism, the inner nost phases of human emotion. It is more than nost phases of human emotion. It is more than a play; it is a moral classic. It argues for two of the greatest themes that can engage the mind-human liberty, and immortality of the soul. It is so pure that its touch alone is chastening. Like the kiss of a child, it conquers by the very innocence of its breath. In the character of Eva, the window, who does not cherish in memory. it is unique. Who does not cherish in memory some sweet, angelic child who seemed to touch this earth only as a transient visitor who passed way with the dew of childhood's morning-to away with the dew of childhood's morning—too good, too pure, for us? "Was there ever a child like Eva? Yes. but her name is written on grave-stones." This good old play is unique because it is the only one that portrays that character. The scenery is excellent. In the river scene, one sees the floating cakes of ice alowly moving down the floating cakes of lee slowly moving down stream. One can see, in the splendid perspective of this scene, several miles up the frozen river, and the undulating snow-clad hills on either side lie like drowsy sentinels in the soggy winter day. The plantation scene represents a typical Southern home, with its mansions, its log cabins and its cotton-field. It is the sunny sunny Bouth. It is a warm, mellow, beautiful scene.

GEOGRAPHY GAME.

Here is a game that all the members of the family may take part in. It is hardly fair that boys and girls should contend with grown people in games of an ordinary kind, but in this one the chances are that the boys and girls would have the advantage, for the reason that they are studying geography, while the grown people stopped that long ago.

But however that may be, the game is a capital one, and will give amusement for an hour or so, and will prove instructive at the same time. One advantage about it is that it requires no preparation of any kind.

Any number of persons may play.

"Two van loads; and I wouldn't give at ten.pound note for the lot. Carpets! I wouldn't put them down in my kitchen And the children! I won't allow min.c to associate with them. And the mother! She looks as if she had never known a day's happiness. The father drinks, I expect. Too bad that such people should come into this neighborhood. I wonder who they are?"

"I know them."

"Do you? Well, I declare! Who are they?"

"The wife is my sister." vartage about it is that it requires no preparation of any kind.

NOTES ON THE FASHIONS. Out goes the decidedly untidy and loose ended way of wearing the veil with which we have been afflicted, and in comes the latest Pans style, trim, trig and chic, as is everything genuinely Parisian. Pass the veil easily around the head, under the hat brim, gathering up the ends and fastening with a neat pin behind. Its lower edge should fall just below the nose, barely touching the upper curve of "Cupid's bow" and crossing the lobes of the ear. It must be admitted that only a tolerably perfect mouth and chin justify an bly perfect mouth and chin justify a arrangement which throws them in such bold relief as this does.

such bold relief as this does.

Long drooping shoulders are the correct style in all the new gowns, and the lace collar or cape falls well over the upper part of the sleeves so that the tight fitting upper sleeve must needs be in fashion for some time to come. Below the elbow there may be pulfa or ruffles of lace again or the sleeve may end at the elbow; those points can be decided by individual tasts; only the upper part of the arm points can be decided by individual taste; only the upper part of the arm is outlined. This is not so inconsistent as might be thought, for with the upper part of a sleeve large and full, the size of the figure is increased even to a tall and slender figure. And for the benefit of those women who have to be content with last year's forms there is a very easy, way to remodel. there is a very easy way to remodel the old sleeves, by slashing them be-low the elbow and inserting puffs of chiffon, satin or velvet, which puffs are then gathered into a band at the wrist and the effect is of an up to date

HIS FIRST PATIENT.

Teach a child to be self-reliant and you have taught him one of the most important of life's lessons. The child who is waited upon and pumpered mentally and physically through his childhood will have to suffer many hard knocks before he adjusts himself and learns to swing with life's pendulum, not against it. The growing child is a creature of habit. He can be taught to rely on himself, or he can be taught to rely on others, but which ever is taught lirst that will he adopt and cling to. If he is timid and lacks self-confidence, he should be given small tasks to perform abd made to understand he is responsible for the proper performance of them. He will gradually grow more independent and learn to rely on his own ability to perform the task instead of going at it in a half-hearted way, knowing that semeone else will finish it. It is a good idea to give every healthy, growing boy or girl some daily task, and to have it thoroughly understood they themselves must attend to it, and they then the first the conditions of the condition of the same age were diverting themselves apartments and staight give the way corners and cupboards. Even the doctor's most private apartments to vis the cotor's most private apartments and other conditions of the closet containing his way the responsibility to mean and the contents of the closet containing his way the responsibility to mean and the actual work that will most benefit them, but the knowledge they are responsibility owners soon enough and prefer to keep their children's lives as free from it as possible. These thoughtful parents are confusing responsibility with care. They often go together, but in childhood they are not inseparable, and he who has been made to feel the responsibility in his youth, will be more fitted to assume it in manhood than will he who has had no training. He will be strong in his self-reliance and proud in the knowledge than the prop

Mrs. Singleton put her head over the garden wall and thus addressed her neighbor, who was hanging out her week's washing.

HIS MAIDEN SPEECH.

and then he stopped. He stammered, shuffled his feet and began:
When Greece, her knees—
The old schoolmaster leaned forward and, in a shrill voice said: "Greece her knees once more, Teddy, and maybe she'll go!" And Teddy, with his usual pluck, tried it again with marked success.

UNDERLYING *VIRTUE. President Edwin A. Alderman, of Tulene University, in New Orleans, used to do much speechmaking for educational causes when he was a citizen of North Carolina, and tells the story of an experience in the home of a mountain woman, to whose home he had been invited to take dinner.

"At the dinner table with us was the hostess's son, a sullen looking, morose sort of a chap. He did not seem to know exactly how to behave himself, and his mother, after he had acted in a boorish fashion once or twice, took and his mother, after he had acted in a boorish fashion once or twice, took it upon herself to make excuses for him. She said to me: "Dr Alderman, there's one thing, the boy never cussed his pa at the table."

"Now, go away back—"
Unconsciously from the entire class there came a responsive murmur:

"And sit down."
The teacher was compelled to join the audible smile, and hardly knows yet whether the boy's answer was right.—Newburg News.
