A resolution of regret regarding the death of the late Geo. Syme, sr., one of the oldest members of the association, was unanimously carried. It was also a resolution endorsing the policy of the Dominion Government, and the work on behalf of the party.

Revision Constitution
During an extended discussion, in which Mr. Godfrey, A. M. Wilson, Dr. E. Ball, Geo. Syme, Fred Barrett, I. C. Woodner, G. D. Scott and others took part, it was stated that the association had outlived its constitution, and a feeling was shown that various subdivisions should put forward their own vice-chairmen.

Much Accomplished
Robert R. Gansley, M.L.A., Mantoulin spoke of the progressive policy of the Conservative party in the last few years in matters of education and justice, and education and minerals. The hydro developments he characterized as the best investment to which the people of Ontario ever put their hands.

AD. CLUB LUNCHEON
Major Church will be the speaker at the luncheon of the Toronto Ad. Club tomorrow at 12:30 noon.

WARD SEVEN INDIGNANT OVER NEW SEWER BYLAW

Will Be Great Disparity in Cost of Connections to Be Paid for by Owners.

The ratepayers of Ward Seven are indignant over the recent enactment of the city council that all sewer connections from the street line outwards must be paid for by the property holder. Perhaps in no other part of the city will this be felt so much as in West Toronto, where the entire ward has been provided with a new system of trunk sewerage, and the southern part of which is now completed.

Works Out Unfairly
"It means," said Ald. W. H. Weir, "that one man who is living on part of a street such as Humboldt avenue, where a trunk sewer runs for a short distance, will have to pay for the cost of digging down a distance of 30 or 40 feet while his neighbor who is fortunate enough to live on a lower site where a sewer runs does not pay half as much."

Musical Festival
The Young People's Guild of Victoria Presbyterian Church are making preparations for a musical festival to be held in their rooms on Thursday evening of this week under the direction of Donald McGregor.

RUNNYMEDE
The meeting of the West York Neighborhood Workers' Association, in the Runnymede Library, included representatives of the library board, the Runnymede, Scarlett Plains, Lambton Park and Swansea Ratepayers' Associations, and the resident ministers of the various churches.

WYCHWOOD
On Tuesday night, at Oakwood College Assembly Hall, a concert will be held in aid of the Wychwood Young Men's Bible Class. Proceeds to go to the unemployed.

PREPARED FOR SPENT ON ONE DAY'S RELEASING WATER-SOAKED TRENCHES

Late Sergt.-Major Smith, of Toronto, an Employee of the C.N.R., Recorded in His Diary the Events Concerning the Crack Regiment in France, and the Hazardous Work to Which It Was Assigned.

Late Sergt.-Maj. Smith

When "Pat's" Peter left for the front the ranks held their full quota of Toronto men. Below is a letter to the world from a sister of Sergt.-Major Smith of the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry, who was wounded on Jan. 25, and died Feb. 2, together with a copy of a minute diary kept by him from Dec. 20 up to Jan. 22, 1915.

Sergt.-Major Smith was a former employe of the Canadian Northern Railway at Toronto. He served in the South African war with the Royal Horse Guards. He was previously with the 12th Lancers. After the war he became native commissioner in N. W. Rhodesia.

He was wounded by a German sniper in the arm, Jan. 25. The flesh of the biopsy was badly lacerated and he was sent to a hospital in England. He died of septic poisoning, Feb. 2, at Stationary Hospital No. 2, Boulogne, France.

Dear Sir:—Enclosed is a copy of the diary of my brother, Sergt.-Major Smith, No. 1 Company, P.P.C.L.I., who died of wounds in No. 2 Stationary Hospital, in Boulogne.

This may assist your publication if you wish. I received a message that he was dangerously ill, and hurried over to Boulogne, but it was too late. He had passed away the previous evening.

It was a great shock to me, as only a few days before I received a most cheering letter from him, in which he said: "I was wounded a little before 9 a.m., Jan. 25; rather rotten luck, eh? We had only been out here five weeks and three weeks on the firing line, when I got 'bowled over'. It is a nasty wound, but not dangerous."

I learned after that the wound was a very bad one—left biceps torn, and bone shattered. The arm was shattered the morning of the day he died. He called well from the operation, and was taking nourishment, but got weaker afterwards, and died from septic poisoning at 11:30 p.m., Feb. 2.

I was in time, however, to prevent the burial, and to make the necessary arrangements for the shipment of the body to England. I should say—get permission—because I was told that I could not arrange it, but that I was to get it from the British authorities.

Well, as Kipling says: "Another day, another day, another day, and in getting—of the body of my brother to England I accomplished what I was unable to do in some cases—little goes to show what one nervous little woman can do when she is determined."

He was buried here with fine military honors. The P. P. C. L. I. sent a flag party with the coffin to the 12th Battalion, Canadian Corps (entirely) in charge. The Berkshire Regiment sent six sergeant-majors as bearers.

With Canadian Northern Railway. My brother was a Canadian Northern Railway. He was not a reservist and gave up his position to serve his country again, and also I am heartbroken, for we were devotedly attached to each other. I feel somehow that he died as he would have wished—fighting in his own country.

I live in Toronto and was summering in England when he called me, saying he had joined a regiment, and I should join the same. He was in the front. Then when the contingent left I left also, Oct. 8, to stay with our mother while our gallant boys were in the front.

I saw them march out at Manchester, and again at the dock gates at Southampton. I was already in the whole 27th division. No wonder Gen. French says they are magnificent men.

Can't tell when I shall return to Canada. There's too much to do for the boys over here. Am just off to Southampton. Embarked on the Cardiffshire and sailed about 7 p.m. It was a very stiff march to Southampton as our packs were exceedingly heavy, but the boys were very cheerful and singing all the way. We had a great send-off by the Winchester and Southampton people.

Dec. 21, 1914: Reached Harve about 7 a.m., but laid outside until about 1 p.m., when we went alongside the quay and embarked. Had a stiff march thru the town and up a very steep hill to a place I think is called Belleville, where we found the tents already pitched for us in both boards in so we were very comfortable for the night in spite of the rain.

Dec. 22, 1914: We went for a short route march in the morning. Paraded at 5 p.m., and marched to the goods station in Harve, where we were quartered in box cars. We left Harve about midnight.

Dec. 23, 1914: Still travelling when we woke up in the morning. Found ourselves all day thru many villages and towns, one of which was Calais, and finally detained at St. Omar, about 11 a.m. We marched on from there to Blaregnou, a small village. We had the misfortune to march two miles past the village and on discovering the error had to march back again. We eventually got billeted in barns and I got to bed at 6 a.m.

Dec. 24, 1914: Slept till 9:30 a.m. Got up and had a pretty quiet time all day. One half of the company is at one farm and the other half split up between two farms. I moved myself over to the latter, Major Pelly lived at today and found a very comfortable place to sleep in the cozy corner in a barn next to Brock. The firing of big guns some distance away has been continual since we have been here. There are all sorts of rumors floating about, one of which is to the effect that our troops have been driven back to the coast. Some soldiers are very busy digging trenches around this place.

A Queer Christmas. Dec. 25, 1914: Christmas Day. I've spent Christmas Day in some queer places, but I never dreamed I would wake up on a Christmas morning and find myself lying on the straw in the barn of a French farm. We found the big guns were silent when we woke up, but the sentry told me that they were firing in the direction of the coast. We had some brandy and coffee, but a little curried beef helped that down well. The officer brought us some wine at night, so we sat round the fire in the kitchen and drank.

Dec. 26, 1914: Big guns firing at intervals today. We received a business letter from home, which was very acceptable, as we were entirely out of cigarettes and tobacco, and none could be bought in the village. We had a substantial slice of Christmas pudding each, which I understand was from the Daily Mail fund. These little gifts are very acceptable, and we are all very thankful to get them. Things were pretty quiet for us all day. We could hear big guns firing in the distance.

Dec. 27, 1914: We all had to turn out today and dig trenches about three miles from the coast, and across the top of the firing line. Gen. Snoddy and most of the staff were there. The frost has stopped and it has been raining the most of today. The sound of the big guns firing seemed to be much nearer than yesterday.

Dec. 28, 1914: Nothing much to write about. An feeling rather lousy all day at a back spot about six miles east of here. Rather wet weather, we are getting now.

Dec. 29, 1914: Still on entrenching work and still feeling a bit lousy. No complaints were made, but we had to ask the adjutant to let me go. Fraser who came to see us today had a letter from the N.C.O.'s in the battalion have asked to go.

Dec. 30, 1914: Still on entrenching work, but have not entirely got over the back spot. Got a letter from Nell, Metha and Miss Olsen today.

Orders to March. Jan. 19, 1915: Not made any more in my diary for some days. Jan. 19, 1915: We were ordered to march to the front. We were ordered to march to the front. We were ordered to march to the front.

One bullet struck near a firing hole, blocking up the place with mud. When I started to throw dirt on the top of the covering I quickly drew the dirt and saw that only one of the shells. Later in the day we were shelled, but the shells dropped about 50 yards from us with the result that no damage was done. About an hour before dark Thorburn was shot thru the breast, the bullet coming thru the neck and going thru Thorburn's head. I am very much afraid he cannot possibly live, as his private protruding, Sergt. Lott's was also slightly wounded in the lower lip.

We remained in our positions until about 2 a.m. when we were ordered to move to the north of us. He was dressed in German uniform and was also killed. A German prisoner was also brought in, who had been captured by No. 2 company. He was a Bavarian, and had been in the trenches for some time. He had been sent out to dig, but had been left in the trenches. He was very much afraid of us, and was very much surprised to see us. He was very much surprised to see us.

DASH FOR CALAIS HAD BEEN PLANNED

Nothing Short of That Would Satisfy the German People.

REMARKABLE ACTIVITY Men Hurried From All Garrisons to Stop British Advance.

Special Cable to The Toronto World.

ROTTERDAM, March 14.—Information from the frontier indicates that the British success at La Bassée has thrown the whole of the German right wing into a remarkable state of activity. Men are being hurried from all garrisons and from some of the coast places to stop the advance of the British. For days they have been collecting along the coast, expecting that the British would attempt to throw them back there, but hoping that a quick concentration would give them the advantage of the initiative. Their counter-plan was to move northwest to the Dixmude neighborhood, in the hope of putting off the British along the coast at Neuport, at the same time trying to push a wedge thru in the neighborhood of Ypres. Much importance was attached to this fresh dash for Calais and British. At one time two German planes came over the coast, but never succeeded in hitting them. On the night of the 11th, we were ordered to march to the front. We were ordered to march to the front. We were ordered to march to the front.

Bad Deeds Seldom Spring from Reasons That Are Good

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1918, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

He cried when they took him to the police station.

"Yes, I cashed my employer's check," he said, "and used the money for myself. But I have an invalid mother, and I could not support her on my salary."

And every one was very sorry for the well-dressed young man, until it turned out that he really did have an invalid mother, and that he hadn't given her a cent for over a year.

He had spent the money on persons who were neither invalids nor mothers.

Of course.

Once in a while it turns out that the speck in the apple isn't really a speck at all, but just a bruise, and the apple is quite as good and sound as it would have been if it hadn't fallen too hard from the tree.

And then we are all glad, for we all love to think well of human nature when we can.

But, as usual, the apple with the speck in it is not sound.

There's something the matter with that apple besides the little speck you see on the surface.

And if you keep the fruit in the pantry long enough it will spoil every good apple on the shelf.

Good and Evil

It's too bad that it is true. But being sorry about it doesn't seem to alter the situation.

Some years' experience in and out of criminal courts has forced upon me one conclusion.

And when bad people do bad things there is generally a bad object at the bottom of the business.

I have met and talked with many, many thieves, but the one whose mother drove him to stealing I have yet to see face to face.

I have heard a great deal about the woman who sells herself to save her child's life, or her brother's chance in business or her father's fortune.

I have sat in many prisons and talked for hours with many miserable women who were prisoners there, and all that I have met seemed to me to be there because they wanted to do the things they did.

Perhaps they were not to blame for wanting who shall gauge the mysterious depths of heredity? But not one woman thief, not one woman who looks on earth but herself.

This woman who loves her child will scrub floors for a living, but she will not sell her character to make money for that child. There are women of light repute who love their children, but they are of light repute in spite of their children, and not because of them.

The thing that makes a man a thief, is the same thing that makes him squander the money that he gets from thieving upon people who are even less worthy than he is himself.

Thieves and "Love."

We read in the magazines fine stories about honest men who are driven to dishonesty by selfish and extravagant wives.

I can think now of seven different bank cashiers in different parts of the world whom I have seen go to prison.

Man do not steal for good women. The sort of man who loves a good woman cannot be made to steal by any sort of woman who ever breathed.

I hope that this is true, but usually you find in mud weeds, and nothing else.

Like clings to like the world around.

No man who ever loves with all his heart any honest woman, or, if he does, he stops his thieving from the hour he learns to care for her.

And when a woman tells me that she sold her good name for the sake of some one whom she really loves I wonder what her excuse would have been if there were no such person in existence?

And now I suppose the invalid mother of the New York embezzler will come and sit at his trial and help the jury to be sorry for him.

And she will stink herself, and she will write letters, and she will send messages, and she will do everything on earth that it is in her power to do to save this son of hers from the punishment he has earned.

And the woman upon whom he spent this ill-gotten money will stay very far away from that court room indeed.

For it is one of the strange things in human nature that honest people often love a thief, but no thief ever loves an honest soul and stays a thief.

Three Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE TWO MEN ARE REQUIRED TO WIELD ONE SPADE

IN the interior of Persia, where there are all sorts of strange things to be found, I once came upon a group of farm laborers who seemed to me the hardest workers I had ever seen. The men were spading up some earth, and it took two men to wield one spade.

"Plow-Spading" in Persia.

The land they were spading was the most forbidding looking ground you could imagine. As far as the eye could see there was not a tree or a shrub or a bush to be seen. A flat, arid plain, the land stretched away under the burning sun like a lava desert, but here

JEALOUSY

By Michelson

A DREADFUL beast is jealousy. Sometimes it has a beautiful look, a dazzling kind of fascination, like some glittering reptile. This is because it is sometimes associated with quite ANOTHER idea—the idea of LOVE. Of course jealousy and love have nothing to do with each other. Love is a wish to GIVE. Jealousy is the lowest form of SELFISHNESS. So that when she plays with jealousy she is tempting a poisonous bite from the deadly serpent.

She may think just to tease the serpent. But when it is AROUSED the consequences are often sad enough. One nip from the serpent has been known to KILL LOVE.

Author of the new novel, "Diana of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as Judges.

An Early Morning Surprise.

"Well," agreed Mary, "I thought so, too. But who could have told her?"

"Likely I did," I said with a dawning wave of sleep again.

Mary was quiet so long that I grew uneasily conscious of it, and awoke with a start. My wife's pretty face looked very fixed and grim.

The Husband Losing Hours.

"Peter," she said, "I really don't think it was at all nice of you to complain about me to Aunt Minerva. A really nice man doesn't go about criticizing his wife to any one at all—not even the wisest aunt in creation."

I realized now that I was in deep water.

"I didn't criticize you to Aunt Minerva," I said indignantly.

"You just said you did," said Mary, "and there certainly was the dress lying right over the chair where I couldn't possibly miss it, and somebody must have told her—"

"Told her what?" I inquired now, honestly waking up.

"That I didn't dress as neatly in the early morning as I might, because I was sleepy, and—"

"Mary," I admitted guiltily, "a while back when you began this dialogue I wasn't wholly awake, and I'm afraid I cheated. I've been answering you by twos and threes."

"Yes," I relieved.

"Well, do you know, Peter," she said, "I don't want to get into the habit of this sort of morning horseplay, but you did say you'd told me to Aunt Minerva. A really nice man doesn't go about criticizing his wife to any one at all—not even the wisest aunt in creation."

I realized now that I was in deep water.

MARKETING FOR PERMANENT SUPPLIES

THESE were just a few canned things in the house for our first meal yesterday, so this morning I started out shortly after 9 o'clock to get the permanent supplies for the pantry. There's a space for all these things in my kitchen cabinet or the refrigerator and vegetable basket right near it, and just as soon as I use up any of these supplies, I can mark it on the "want" list that hangs up in the kitchen wall and replenish it on the next marketing day. I had to change last night's menu at the last minute just because I didn't have the cheese for the spaghetti. Never again!

Besides, most of these permanent supplies will last me a week—some of them a month or more; so that the only things I'll have to buy on my thrice-a-week marketing trips will be fresh vegetables and fruit, or meats or fish.

"Why don't you telephone for these things?" Edith's suggestion suggested the grocer who called. "Well, delivering anything you want any time."

"Thanks, but I don't want to get into the habit," I laughed. "My orders will be for such small quantities, as a rule, that the cost of delivery to you will be too expensive for me to buy at all." I explained.

There's a lot of competition among the grocers here, and while this one nearest me seems quite accommodating, I'm not going to get into the habit of buying at just this place and no other. So I'm not opening a charge account, but paying immediately for everything I buy, and I'll buy at the place that offers me the best quality at the lowest price, regardless of where it is.

I shall keep my list of permanent supplies and mark the prices paid so that I can watch for special prices and save by extra large quantity buying whenever possible.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I went with a boy for three or four months this summer, and I like him very much, but he has a sulky temper, and we quarrelled. We work in the same factory, and often very near each other, and I would like to speak to you in my little trouble, as it is very unpleasant working by the side of one you're not speaking to.

TRIXIE

KEEP on being "independent," Nan. You'll know when the right man comes along, and it won't take him long to decide he wants you to marry him. You are nowhere near being an old maid yet; and suppose you should be, there have been old maids who have accomplished great good for the world, and often are as happy as their married sisters.

ANNIE LAURIE

I am a girl 24 years old, but do not look my age. I have several boy friends who come and see me quite often, but none of them seem very serious. I have met two boys who have told me they loved me, but, of course, I don't believe all they say.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Kill the Mosquito Early or Suffer from Malaria

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B. M. A., M. D., (Johns Hopkins)

IT is but a handful of years since bad air was supposed to be a necessity, and malaria a visitation to be borne by all human flesh. Errors, however, lodged tenaciously in the wisest heads, and poverty of knowledge dwells in a gorgeous palace.

There are more tangled webs woven by honest convictions worse confounded than by the practice of deception. Darkness is only a relative matter. A mole and a bat think a glow-worm to be a Stygian.

The marooned medical man, caught in the dismal swamps of his own "authorities," was hard put to it until a decade or two ago to diagnose a herring from a hatchet. In those cheerless days the doctor lightly disposed of all complaints, from cowpox to consumption, with the words "a touch of malaria."

Most men fell ill either with "malaria" or a "touch of malaria." Since no doctor knew what malaria really was or was not, it was almost as convenient a term as "rheumatism," "biliousness" and "neurasthenia." It also meant as much or as little.

History of Malaria Discoveries.

After the discovery in 1880 of Pouchenko that the water flea cyclops carried the eggs and infanths of the guinea worm, which is a human parasite, a few physicians suspected that there might be certain other and more minute parasites of man, whose babyhood stages were developed in insects. True enough, the water flea cyclops, or the malaria or guinea worm of man, Dr. Patrick Manson and Dr. Ronald Ross are not to be numbered among these.

After the above find, Dr. Manson, in 1877, turned his attention to these thin, hair-like worms, which abide in the blood of man, and sought the host of the infantile moments. The ordinary house mosquito was soon convicted of harboring these felons—the first conviction in the great chain of discovery.

Unlinks in the chain of discovery, nevertheless, were forged slowly, for it was not until 1898 that two American doctors, Theobald Smith and Kilborne, unearthed the fact that a blood sucking Texas cow had a blood sucking parasite in the malaria parasites abiding in their red corpuscles. More important still was the fact that the tick or insect which lives upon the hide of these animals also acts as host of the embryo days of the animalcule which causes cattle fever.

The Facts About Mosquitoes.

Mark you, all of these wonderful facts were brought to light by Russian, American, English and French scientists. In 1898 another great link was added to this chain. Dr. Bruce, another Englishman, discovered that the Congo sleeping sickness of Nagana was conveyed to the bite of the blood-sucking tsetse fly.

It was not long, however, that Dr. A. P. A. King wrote a most remarkable article in 1898 which gave twenty odd reasons why mosquitoes cause malaria. This article, which is called "The Malaria Parasite," as usual, among the medical staff-patrols.

In 1898 Dr. Ronald Ross, another Englishman, began an investigation of the relation of the mosquito to malaria, and malaria, which resulted in his discovery

Answers to Health Questions

M. E. L.—Q—1—Have a breaking out on my finger. It comes about once a month in little white blisters or pimples. Will you please tell me a cure for this?

2—Will you kindly give me a remedy for falling hair?

3—Also a remedy for dandruff?

A—Use on the hands twice a day salicylic acid, 25 grains; starch, 10 grains; zinc-oxide, 3 grains; vaseline one-half ounce. Use three times a day. Massage into the scalp twice a day. Resorcin, 15 grains; balsam peru, 15 grains; sulphur lye, 4 drams; castor oil, 14 drams; oil of theobromine, 3 drams. Use electric hair brushes, vigorous massage, scalp movements and some instant such as capsaicin vaseline.

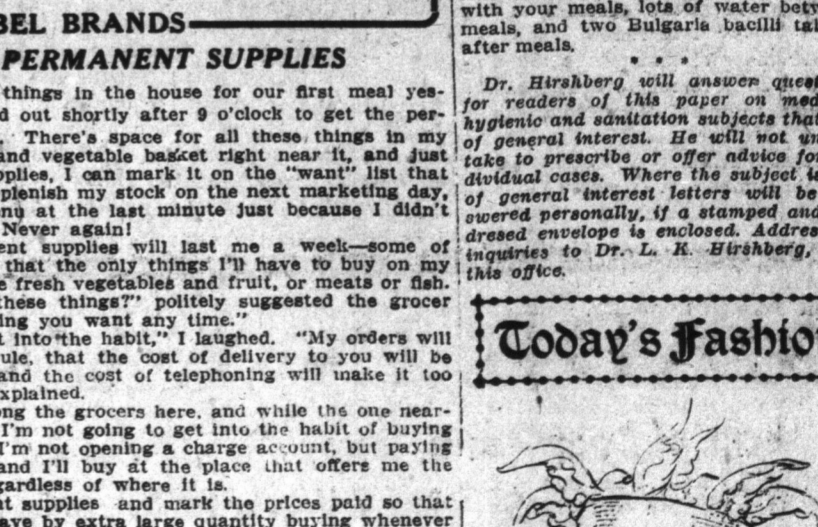

2—Dandruff will be eliminated with one dram each of acetic acid, rosin and sulphur to two ounces of red vaseline used three times a week. Massage the scalp gently and loosen it with the tips of the fingers.

Mrs. E. L.—Q—1—Suffer from indigestion, constipation and nerve trouble. I've been to many doctors and hospitals; none do me any good. I get so bloated up before I finish meals I can hardly breathe. Am so tired all the time. Get strange pains in my head and back and have poor circulation of blood and not much appetite. I am still when I get up, and have heavy feelings in stomach. Am hoarse at times. Take vocal lessons, and would be good singer but for this. Am vocal lessons but for the heart. Feel cranks all the time, and don't feel like talking. Have two children.

A—You require more sleep and a different diet. Take a two-hour nap in the afternoon and then go for a long car ride. Drink a wine glass of olive oil with your meals, lots of water between meals, and two to three Bulgarian bacilli capsules after meals.

Dr. Hirschberg will answer questions for readers of this paper on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. He will not under any circumstances prescribe or offer advice in individual cases. Where the subject is not of general interest letters will be answered personally, if a stamped and addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. L. K. Hirschberg, care of this office.

A New Franchise Complication

Some of these franchisees are terminable, but the terms of others are perpetual. The terms of others are perpetual...

This problem is in connection with the little regarded franchise on Danforth road. The Bathurst and Danforth line, under 87 Victoria, etc. 84, 1884, obtained a twenty years franchise...

Under these circumstances the citizens will be pleased to hear that the new Toronto and Guelph line is coming into Toronto over the suburban tracks.

"At the Expense of Holland"

On Aug. 4 last, Herr Von Jagow, the German Foreign Secretary, wrote the German Ambassador in London, Prince Lichnowsky, that Germany would under no pretence whatever annex Belgium.

The German War Book, of which an excellent translation has just been issued by McClelland, Goodchild and Stewart, of this city, states that it is well to assume a virtue and the appearance of humanity, although the necessities of warfare may require the most drastic measures.

This is why Holland may be expected to present an ultimatum to

Spies and Diplomats

All Germany's paraphernalia of spies have not sufficed and will not suffice to bring victory to her arms. These agents were of many grades, from the official of high rank received with gracious hospitality in the stately homes of England and Scotland...

Many years of patient preparation were spent in the unobtrusive and wholly despicable task of abusing the frank and generous kindness of their neighbors. In the guise of peaceful manufacturers and merchants they lent themselves to the designs of Prussian militarism...

Awaiting the Feast

"Where the carcass is there will the eagles be gathered together," is a pithy aphorism that aptly describes the situation in eastern Europe. Turkey is moribund and its demise is only a matter of time, and short at that. Already the eagles are assembling to await the moment when the lion and the bear and their allies have completed their work and the carcass is ready for dismemberment.

Liberating the German

For all their boasted intelligence Germans appear singularly unable to profit by experience. To do this in any sufficient measure is a good test of wisdom or of aptitude for its acquirement. But the average German who has been trained under a system that regards him as only an asset of the state has lost that aptitude if he ever possessed it.

The German, far from being a superman, is a very ordinary type of individual. He is not, indeed, a master who commands his own soul, but the victim of a system contrived by more efficient minds and designed not to make men, but automations. Germany has produced philosophers and musicians of acknowledged genius, but with these exceptions Germans have shown little creative ability.

the dissolution of his dream of world dominion will make the German a normal human being and regain for him independent manhood.

America's Arraignment of Germany

Not the least convincing vindication of the righteousness of the cause championed by the allies have come from American pens. This is not surprising in view of the activities of German apologists in the United States...

Dr. J. William White, a prominent citizen of Philadelphia, a fellow of the College of Surgeons, and a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, has just issued a little book titled "America's Arraignment of Germany."

Dr. White has dipped extensively into the works bearing on the situation both before and after the outbreak of war, and into the magazine and newspaper articles which it has quoted profusely.

"I've heard of Eddy's Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between fibre and woodenware?" "Fibreware is made from compressed fibre, baked at extreme heat. In one solid piece, it cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters. Wears much longer, looks better, and is light to carry. The letter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

GERMAN LEADERS MARKEDLY WEAK

Kaiser's General Staff Inferior to General Staff of Elder Von Moltke. PARIS, March 14.—General Chertils, a veteran of long experience, recently professor of strategy at French Ecole de Guerre or staff school, where General Foch was one of his pupils, and who is now military critic of Gaulois and Echo de Paris, in conversation today with The World correspondent, said that there was a marked inferiority in the leadership of the German army in 1914-5 as compared with the dash and intuality of the German general staff in 1870. General Chertils said that the German general staff had during the famous German rush towards Paris at the end of August failed to avail itself of certain grand opportunities. When questioned on the subject, General Chertils answered that no doubt existed in his mind that the German military system during the 44 years of peace had become so elaborately worked up into a vast complicated machine that it had to be a mere machine, but nothing but a machine. There was no longer any place in its minute detailed mechanism for personal initiative, and the brilliant individual achievement of its leaders, which was the source of its strength, was incapable of responding to the quick inspirations of its chief. This, in the opinion of the expert, was a great source of the inferiority of German armies as compared with the French armies. When asked how long he thought that the war would last, the general replied that perhaps it would end the coming summer.

HIT MARKET AT OPPORTUNE TIME

Kingston Made Quick Sale of Debenture Issue—Troops Mobilizing. Special to The Toronto World. KINGSTON, Ont., March 14.—Twenty-eight recruits have arrived for the 30th Battalion, which is being mobilized for the third contingent. Five came from Deseronto and 23 from Peterboro. Major G. R. Hall, Peterboro, and Lieutenant G. Allan and E. C. Ellwood will arrive Monday and take charge of the work. The Kingston City council decided to issue debentures to the extent of $84,000 on city property, and at the present time not one dollar's worth remains unissued. Treasurer Bartels stated that the debentures struck the market at a very opportune time, and the fact that the entire $84,000 worth was so readily bought was remarkable. The Carruthers medal was taken out of the possession of the Kingston Curling Club. In the unfinished game of the medal, M. P. Beld defeated D. McCann by 13 to 9, and by winning it two years in succession he gains permanent possession. The medal has been in possession of the club forty years. Varsity has defaulted the games for the junior intercollegiate hockey championship in the Kingston colleges will play off with that team next week. If arrangements can be made the first game will be in Port Hope on Monday night.

CURLING IN WATER AT THE GRANITE

J. Rennie Wins Four Games and the Club Medals—Some Records in Low Scores. Granite curlers did not adhere to the front rule on Saturday when ordered by the committee to play the last of their competition for the club medals. In their own minds they were playing a pool of water curling and evening stones sailing thru a foam of spray like last year's curling. It was necessary to bail out the backs before every shot.

HOT FOR FRANCHISE IN FEDERAL LEAGUE

Newark Enthusiastic to Get Into Fold—Indianapolis Would Fight Transfer. NEW YORK, March 13.—That the matter of transferring the Kansas City franchise to Newark would be amicably adjusted out of court was the announcement made yesterday by James A. Gilmore, president of the Federal League, following a meeting of the club owners and officials at the Biltmore Hotel. Just how the controversy was to be settled was not made clear by Mr. Gilmore, but from other members of the league it was learned that the club owners were ready to withdraw its injunction proceedings against the league and to allow the franchise to be transferred to Newark. It was further intimated that the amount of the franchise fee would be set by the league's internal difficulty.

WOMEN OF AYR HAVE ACCOMPLISHED MUCH

Statement Issued Giving Contributions and Expenses in Patriotic Work. Special to The Toronto World. AYR, Ont., March 14.—After seven months of steady work on behalf of the output of the two local patriotic and Red Cross leagues makes a very substantial showing. The Ayr Patriotic League, the first to start work, has contributed in cash to date $675. More attention, however, has been paid to the making of hospital supplies and soldiers' comforts. The money spent for this material totals $1000. In addition to this $75 was spent in gifts to the Ayr boys at Salisbury, to those about to go and to the chauffeurs' Christmas fund. A president of the women's institute, Miss Watson has instituted a plan of interest in the Red Cross and Belgian relief work. The voluntary subscriptions total $1500, while clothing, dried apples and other necessities have been packed and sent to Belgium. About 500 pieces of new clothing and 300 of new underclothing have also been sent to Belgium. Charitable work has also been undertaken, and quantities of clothing, flannellets and mittens have been sent out of town.

WILL NOT PLAY ENGLISH CUP FINAL IN LONDON

LONDON, March 13.—The English Football Association has called a special meeting for March 29 to decide where the final tie for the English cup will be played this season. The decision to remove the final from the Crystal Palace, where it has been played for twenty-two years, was a big blow to soccer followers in the south of England, but the attitude of the London press against the continuation of football during the war forced the authorities to make the change. At present the large grounds of Aston Villa, Manchester City and Sheffield United are under consideration for the big tie to be played off, as it is necessary to provide for the accommodation of a big crowd, but after the semifinal ties have been decided on March 27 it will be easier to select a ground convenient for the two lucky clubs which are to battle for the cup.
