

WITNESSES TAMPERED WITH

Sensational Proceedings at the Hendershott Trial.

DAMAGING ADMISSIONS MADE.

Hendershott Clearly Connected With the Crime.

Evidence as to Blood Being on Welter's Face When He Gave the Alarm—Hendershott Talked of Insuring Some One and Then "Removing Him" Attempt to Exclude the Prisoner's Testimony Given at the Coroner's Inquest—Arrests For Tampering With Crown Witnesses Expected.

St. Thomas, Ont., March 9.—An attempt was made to-day, it is alleged, to tamper with the Crown witnesses, and arrests are expected to-night. At the opening of the proceedings, announced that he intended to call certain lady witnesses to-day for cogent and sufficient reasons. These witnesses were Mrs. M. Griffin of Cavendish, who saw blood on Welter's face when he arrived at the house of Charles Welter the day of the tragedy, and two first cousins of Hendershott—Mrs. Emily McConnell of Ingersoll and Mrs. Ann French of Paterson, to whom Hendershott made admissions with respect to insurance and the removal of some person whom he intended to insure. Their evidence was taken and proved most important.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE ON MONDAY.

When the case reopens on Monday morning the medical testimony will be given on with. Five medical witnesses in this city will swear positively that the wounds upon Hendershott's head could not have been caused by blows from an ax. The defence made a stubborn fight this morning to have the evidence of Welter and Hendershott before the coroner eliminated. Whether or not their efforts will be successful will be decided Monday. The result is a disappointment to the young barristers, as it was hoped that the contradictory statements of Welter and Hendershott would not be brought into evidence.

BLOODY FINGER IMPRINTS.

The earlier part of the day was taken up with the production of corroborative evidence as to the fallen tree and its surroundings at the time of the tragedy. Welter spoke of the quantity of blood at the foot of the tree. He also saw the imprint of a bloody finger on a bench coping near the foot of the tree, and on an old stump 45 feet from the stump of the cut tree. Bill Campbell, the man who found the blood-stained ax concealed under the root of a tree, identified the weapon positively.

AX WHICH FELLED THE TREE.

Henry Case, who was present when the ax was found, compared the chopping with the production of the ax, which was made with the ax, and found them exactly similar. There was a note in the ax which was not in the ax which was found with the marks of a woodpecker.

MET HENDERSHOTT AT NOON.

When Albert Chivers was called, Hendershott for the first time became interested in the case, and asked the evidence of the prisoner on the New Star Hill, nine miles east of the scene of the tragedy, at 12:45 noon, on the day of the killing. The Crown claims that from the time Hendershott left home, overtaken by Elen, under the watch of the New Star, he had plenty of time to visit the woods and drive to where Chivers met him.

DECEASED WAS STRUCK WHILE STANDING.

The first female witness called was Mrs. Duncan Hendershott, sister of the prisoner. She washed the outer and underclothes of the dead man two days after the killing. Chivers was a quantity of blood on both. The shirts were stained. Blood stains were still visible on the clothing and were pointed out to the jury. This is important, as indicating that deceased must have been struck while standing up. The defence will claim that the blood got on the shirt when the undertaker pulled it over the head of the dead man.

MRS. MARTIN'S SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE.

When the coroner resumed, Mrs. Martin Griffin of Gravesend, one of the witnesses, made to tamper with the evidence. Mrs. Griffin was attired in a brown stuff dress and brown hat, and she was accompanied by her husband and John Hendershott last May with reference to insurance, when the defence objected to the admission of the evidence, and the coroner rose for an hour, pending the consulting of authorities.

RESIGNATION OF ROSEBERY.

POLITICAL FRIENDS AND FOES ANXIOUS TO HAVE IT OFF.

Health Wins Sympathy for the Liberal Premier—Speculations As to Who Will Be the New Speaker—Discussions in the Irish Land Bill—The Naval Program Will Pass Unopposed.

London, March 9.—The persistent reports that Lord Rosebery is contemplating retirement from office, together with the announcement of Mr. Arthur Wellesley Peel's intention to resign the Speakership of the House of Commons, have revived Parliamentary circles of the dispute which has prevailed for the past week. Lord Rosebery's capacity for work is doubted by nobody, but his faculty has unquestionably been seriously affected by the recurrence of his insomnia. This, with him, an old complaint, which on a former occasion led him to refuse to accept office.

A judicious system of living banished the ailment, and restored him to his normal condition. Now overwork and an attack of influenza have reproduced the ailment, which has been with him before, and with the addition of extreme nervousness it has become necessary for him to take a prolonged season of rest. Lord Rosebery's colleagues, even those who before his illness were intensely hostile to his views, are now warmly sympathetic to his position. They are disposed to await his recovery with long and patient attention, and to regard his resignation as a political convenience which will permit his political enemies, the Tories, to be disposed to avoid his recovery, as long as public convenience will permit. His physicians cannot express an opinion with certainty as to what step will be sufficient to restore him to health, but they are hopeful that a month's absence from work and rest will enable him to resume his duties.

WHO WILL BE SPEAKER?

In regard to a new Speaker in the event of the resignation of Mr. Peel, the names of the most prominent ones are the Right Hon. Campbell-Bannerman, Secretary of State for War, Robert Reid, Mr. John Moulton, Sir Julian Goldsmid and the Right Hon. Leonard H. Courtney, all of whom are in the House of Commons have been filled with members to an extent very unusual, and the successful candidate for the Speakership has been almost the sole topic of discussion. It is generally admitted that Mr. Campbell-Bannerman possesses all of the requisite advantages for the position, among them tact, an unvarying good temper, a clear, logical mind, and long experience with the rules and forms of the House, but his great weight and the probability that in the near future he will come to the front as a political leader, make it seem doubtful that he would accept the place. The Speaker's salary of £5000 year with an official residence might be alluring to many even moderately rich men, but to him this consideration would be no inducement. Neither Sir Robert Reid nor Mr. Moulton have obtained sufficient parliamentary recognition to enable them to obtain the place and the post when it shall become vacant really lies between Mr. Courtney and Mr. Leonard Courtney, though the latter, although a Liberal, is a devotee from Mr. Courtney's point of view, and is intensely disliked by the Tories. This state of affairs has been given into consideration by the Westminster Gazette, which in a strong article in its favor recommends the Ministerial party to overlook their animosity and elect him to the position. Of all the candidates thus far suggested, Sir Julian Goldsmid really has the best chance of success.

THE UNEMPLOYED EXAGGERATED.

The work of the House of Commons committee appointed to investigate the condition of the unemployed, and the means for their relief appears to be ending in a fiasco, greatly to the annoyance of Conservatives who claim that the result confirms their contention that the howl about the wretched condition of the unemployed is merely Socialist clamor, and had no genuine basis. The report of the committee, which is now in course of preparation, is said to be practically a non-recommendation, and the statements of witnesses under examination were found, in a number of cases, to be much exaggerated, and claims of men like Kier-Hardie have been ignored because they were ridiculous.

WILL MOVE TO REJECT THE IRISH BILL.

Since the text of the Irish Land Bill has been issued, the Conservatives declare that they find important discrepancies upon comparing it with the statement of Chief Secretary for Ireland when he introduced the measure in the House of Commons. For instance, the clause dealing with the increased letting value of holdings give the tenant what is due from the natural fertility of the soil, instead of giving him what has been created by his own skill and industry. The clause dealing with improvements is strongly opposed by the landlords as being too general and too ambiguous. Viscount Cranborne has given notice of his intention to introduce a motion to reject the bill, and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach will move the Conservative party amendment.

NAVAL PROGRAM UNOPPOSED.

The leaders of the Opposition have not been able to bring forward an attack upon the Government's naval program. The War and Admiralty Departments are acting in concert in the perfection of a scheme for a series of great army and navy manoeuvres, in which the volunteers will take part. The scheme is a colossal one, and will require a great deal of work in the way of organization.

BIMETALLISM SPREADING.

The currency debate at the Bankers' Institute last Thursday disclosed the fact that there had been a very considerable growth of bimetallicism in the institute. Hitherto bimetallicism has been frowned upon, and bimetallics have been well-nigh excluded from the institute. For the moment the disclosure was not discussed very much in the newspaper, but it cannot remain suppressed a great while longer. The Economist, referring to the decision of the Finance Committee of the United States Senate in regard to arrangements for appointing delegates to an international monetary conference, holds that the committee's action is glaringly premature. The convening of such a conference, the paper says, is practically impossible, and it is not think it judicious to act upon the committee's resolution until proposals for its realization assume something like definite shape.

A METHODIST COUNCIL.

The Wesleyan Conference Committee on united action of Methodist Churches has decided to convene a council in London of representatives of all the Methodist churches in Great Britain, and the list of delegates to be a complete union of the Wesleyan churches.

BOOT LOCK-OUT.

A lock-out of employees in the Leicester boot trade, involving 28,000 operatives, is imminent. The trouble is due to a reduction of wages made necessary by the influx of American goods, which are flooding England. The British manufacturers declare that their trade will be gone entirely unless the payment of lower wages enables them to meet the American competition.

OBSTRUCTIONS.

THE PRINCE OF WALES SICK.

Reports to the contrary, notwithstanding, the Prince of Wales, who has been unwell since his arrival in England, has been found to be suffering from a severe attack of influenza. The young man's father wants the prospect bright and good, and young being only 22 years of age.

Mr. Henry Fowler, the Secretary of State for Indian Affairs, has been ordered to take a rest of a few days in the chateau of Salisbury, who has been suffering from influenza, is now able to leave his room and to attend to his duties. He is expected to return to the office in a few days.

Lord Wolsey, commander of the Lord's Drawing-room at Buckingham Palace on Wednesday left the effects of influenza; the attendance was the adjourned convention of the drawing-room, by the way, it was noticed that pink and blue were the colors of the day. The toilettes, although naive satin was generally worn. The weather was so cold that it drove the public into the drawing-room, the drawing-room, which is a very unusual, and the successful candidate for the future will far from being a brilliant one.

ROSEBERY WILL RESIGN.

London, March 9.—The St. James' Gazette says: "The rumor gains ground that Lord Rosebery will seek rest and recovery by resigning the office of Speaker, which he is unable to hold without friction and is no longer very congenial to him."

CHESS VIA THE CABLE.

Great Britain and the United States Engage in a Match With Ten Men a Side.

London, March 9.—The match by telegraph between the Manhattan Chess Club of New York and the British Chess Club of London was begun this afternoon. The London end of the match is conducted in the Criterion Restaurant in London, which has a floor space of 70 by 60 feet, and is the same room in which the tournament of 1888 was held. The London end of the match is conducted in the Criterion Restaurant in London, which has a floor space of 70 by 60 feet, and is the same room in which the tournament of 1888 was held.

On the American side, the match was begun at 10:15 o'clock this morning. The first despatches were exchanged between the Manhattan Chess Club of London and the British Chess Club of London and they were played on the respective teams by a private of the London Figaro. The match was begun at 10:15 o'clock this morning. The first despatches were exchanged between the Manhattan Chess Club of London and the British Chess Club of London and they were played on the respective teams by a private of the London Figaro.

RONALD ACQUITTED.

The British Charges at Johnnie Fall Bellefleur, Ont., March 9.—Johnnie D. Ronald of Brussels, Ont., manufacturer of steam fire engines, was last night acquitted on the charge of offering a bribe to Robert F. Houston, reeve of the village of Tweed, to induce him to vote in the council for the purchase of a steam fire engine for the village of Tweed. A similar charge as to the purchase of a steam fire engine for the village of Tweed, to induce him to vote in the council for the purchase of a steam fire engine for the village of Tweed.

THE HYAMS CASE ADJUDGED.

The Hyams case, which has been pending in the Police Court against Saturday, neither the Crown nor the defence were ready to go on, and an adjournment was made until the 16th inst.

SOUTH VICTORIA NOMINATIONS.

Fairbairn, M.P., Again the Choice of the Tories—George McHugh His Opponent.

Lindsay, Ont., March 9.—The Liberal Conservative convention for South Victoria was held yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall. Mr. Charles Fairbairn, the present member, received the nomination.

WANT JUDGE MUGH TO RUN.

North Essex Conservatives Tender Him the Nomination.

Windsor, Ont., March 9.—The Conservative convention for North Essex met yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall. The Liberal party held to-day, Mr. George McHugh received the nomination to contest South Victoria. Mr. J. D. Edgar, chief of the Tories, urged the voters to elect McHugh.

THE LAST TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

The funeral of the late A. J. C. Clouston, a prominent merchant, took place yesterday afternoon at St. James' Church. The remains were followed by a very large number of mourners.

THREE MONTHS FOR ASSAULTING A CONSTABLE.

Daniel Sharpe, 55 Cherry-street, was convicted at the Sessions yesterday of an assault upon P.C. Nat. Guthrie. The assault took place in Cherry-street the night of December 20, Sharpe striking the officer over the head with a leaden club. Judge Morgan sentenced the prisoner to three months in the common jail.

Great Reduction in Chateau Claret.

Chateau Guereux and Chateau Du Valon 1881 Claret reduced from $15 to $12 per dozen. The above are choice vintage wines and the best value ever offered in Canada. Wm. Mars, 79 Yonge-street.

Cost of the Espionage Settlement.

The City Treasurer has received from Mr. Charles Robinson, Q.C., and Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, Q.C., their estimate of the cost of the Espionage Settlement. The principal items are: The cost of the Espionage Settlement, the cost of the Espionage Settlement, the cost of the Espionage Settlement.

THE BUILDING BYLAW.

The Ontario Association of Architects has submitted to the City Clerk a number of amendments to the Building By-law. The principal amendments are: The cost of the Espionage Settlement, the cost of the Espionage Settlement, the cost of the Espionage Settlement.

THE BUSINESS OF THE WEEK.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE IS NOT VERY SERIOUS.

Foundered Rumors of Financial Distress Are a Hoax—The Business of the Week—Features in Local Stocks—Financial Miscellany.

There is no marked improvement in trade conditions, but the belief is gaining ground that the worst is over and that the future will soon show better results. We have the usual rumors at this season of impending financial embarrassments of well-known houses. These are circulated for various reasons, and generally do much damage. There is little basis for the present disparaging reports regarding the financial position of our merchants. Such idle rumors are not even realized in a month like March, which is a month of disaster in business circles.

There is no marked improvement in trade conditions, but the belief is gaining ground that the worst is over and that the future will soon show better results. We have the usual rumors at this season of impending financial embarrassments of well-known houses. These are circulated for various reasons, and generally do much damage. There is little basis for the present disparaging reports regarding the financial position of our merchants. Such idle rumors are not even realized in a month like March, which is a month of disaster in business circles.

FINANCIAL MISCELLANY.

A steady and widespread improvement in the railway transportation business in the United States is in evidence. The aggregate tonnage of freight shipments, both in the Atlantic and Pacific, was larger for February than for January and larger for January than for December.

PUBLIC CREDIT SHOULD BE PRESERVED.

In matters of finance through the business men who have made a study of the principles which underlie the trade and industry of the world, understand the value of an established credit. It is the basis of all prospering undertakings. Politicians on the contrary, at any rate, those who are something less than statesmen—shape their courses by what they deem to be the most popular or the most expedient. The exigencies of the time lead them to take the most expedient course, and they are not slow to resort to the expedient of forcing its demand notes into circulation.

Character in Handwriting.

Character in handwriting. Have you the qualities which command success in the business world? A. T. Shaw, graphologist, 9-12 Adelaide-street east, 7th floor.

ALDERMAN WISDOM.

But Engineer Keating has weight enough behind him to soon clear the track.

restoration of credit except by releasing and retiring floating legal-tender indebtedness. He shows that the issue of greenbacks has been a cumulative and costly mistake. Every greenback dollar already costs a dollar and a half to keep floating. Had the greenbacks been retired in 1879 by the issue of 50-year per cent. bonds, the saving of such retired money would have been over ninety million dollars, as compared with the cost and liability already incurred in maintaining them at par with gold.

Until the government shall abandon the policies which have brought its financial management into worldwide discredit there will not be much hope for permanent business betterment. The theory of a part of the government is to make it a part of their business to insist upon that circumvention and honesty in the preservation of the public credit which is the basis of private credit.

THE STOCKS COMMANDING THE MOST ATTENTION.

The stocks commanding the most attention are Canadian Pacific and Toronto Street Railway. The former declined from 42 to 34, but closed yesterday at 35 1/2 bid. These are the lowest prices quoted publicly for the stock, and compare with 44 1/2 in January, 1892. The latter, which has been marketed in London, and it is needless to say that the confidence in the stock has been completely wrecked. The market for the stock is very quiet, and there is no prospect of a recovery.

THE BANKING PROFITS.

The reduction of the dividends paid by the Bank of Montreal has been a cause for considerable remark at the present time. It is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends.

THE BANKING PROFITS.

The reduction of the dividends paid by the Bank of Montreal has been a cause for considerable remark at the present time. It is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends.

THE BANKING PROFITS.

The reduction of the dividends paid by the Bank of Montreal has been a cause for considerable remark at the present time. It is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends.

THE BANKING PROFITS.

The reduction of the dividends paid by the Bank of Montreal has been a cause for considerable remark at the present time. It is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends.

THE BANKING PROFITS.

The reduction of the dividends paid by the Bank of Montreal has been a cause for considerable remark at the present time. It is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends.

THE BANKING PROFITS.

The reduction of the dividends paid by the Bank of Montreal has been a cause for considerable remark at the present time. It is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends, and it is not the first time that the bank has reduced its dividends.

of Music, Pipe, is to be seen eminent Builders, & Son, to. 305

BOO handle et boms

Boeckh ons, ONTO

Motor

COMPANY

WSET. 604

PHONE

PRICE.

Lines.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

CRUTCHES.

THE TORONTO WORLD

One Cent Morning Paper. DAILY (without Sundays) by the year $3.00...

WHOLESALE NEWSDEALERS

F. W. Beebe, 391 Spadina-avenue. George Messer, 702 Dundas-st. west. Mrs. Moriarty, 1426 Queen west.

ATHEORSHIP AND POLITICS

Whether it is that our statesmen are not built that way, or that they find their time too fully occupied to indulge in the pleasures of an elegant leisure...

THE FOUNDATION OF BELIEF

It is a noteworthy fact that many literary men have reached eminence in political life in Great Britain...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

It is not too much to say that the House of Commons has been the scene of some of the most brilliant oratory in the history of the world...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

THE TORONTO WORLD

QUEEN WOMEN, who are like nothing that ever was on earth, or ever shall be, we devoutly hope, people who have artistic instincts may have viewed this work...

A SPIRITUAL REVIVAL

There is a marked revival of interest in spiritualism. Whether or not it will turn out to be a passing fancy, it remains to be seen...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Hall Gaine, the man of Man, has recently had a violent attack of fever. Here is a specimen of alliteration...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

An interesting interview with Sir Isaac Pitman appears in the Toronto World. He is curious to learn that in the early days of his shorthand...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The following tough episode of the war is related by The Japan Mail: While the first line of forts at Fort Mifflin...

GENERAL BOOTH AT HOME

That remarkable man, General Booth, who was with us last week, ago, is at home again. No matter how we may regard his "barbaric" methods...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present.

THE TORONTO WORLD

States, in every part finding detachments of his troops, army, facing right and left, with indifference, and feeling, sometimes, abuse and physical assault...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

It is a long while since we have heard anything of this gifted lady whose fame has made the tour of the world, and who is known wherever civilization has penetrated...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Hall Gaine, the man of Man, has recently had a violent attack of fever. Here is a specimen of alliteration...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

An interesting interview with Sir Isaac Pitman appears in the Toronto World. He is curious to learn that in the early days of his shorthand...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The following tough episode of the war is related by The Japan Mail: While the first line of forts at Fort Mifflin...

GENERAL BOOTH AT HOME

That remarkable man, General Booth, who was with us last week, ago, is at home again. No matter how we may regard his "barbaric" methods...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present.

THE TORONTO WORLD

THE COLLECT FOR THE DAY. Almighty God, who seest that we have no power of ourselves to help ourselves; keep us both outwardly and inwardly from all ungodly, unchaste, unclean, unchristianlike, uncharitable, unmerciful, unkind, unlovely, unbecoming, unbecoming, unbecoming...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

It is a long while since we have heard anything of this gifted lady whose fame has made the tour of the world, and who is known wherever civilization has penetrated...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Hall Gaine, the man of Man, has recently had a violent attack of fever. Here is a specimen of alliteration...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

An interesting interview with Sir Isaac Pitman appears in the Toronto World. He is curious to learn that in the early days of his shorthand...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The following tough episode of the war is related by The Japan Mail: While the first line of forts at Fort Mifflin...

GENERAL BOOTH AT HOME

That remarkable man, General Booth, who was with us last week, ago, is at home again. No matter how we may regard his "barbaric" methods...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present.

THE TORONTO WORLD

THE SECOND SUNDAY IN LENT. The Collect for the Day. Almighty God, who seest that we have no power of ourselves to help ourselves; keep us both outwardly and inwardly from all ungodly, unchaste, unclean, unchristianlike, uncharitable, unmerciful, unkind, unlovely, unbecoming, unbecoming, unbecoming...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

It is a long while since we have heard anything of this gifted lady whose fame has made the tour of the world, and who is known wherever civilization has penetrated...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Hall Gaine, the man of Man, has recently had a violent attack of fever. Here is a specimen of alliteration...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

An interesting interview with Sir Isaac Pitman appears in the Toronto World. He is curious to learn that in the early days of his shorthand...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The following tough episode of the war is related by The Japan Mail: While the first line of forts at Fort Mifflin...

GENERAL BOOTH AT HOME

That remarkable man, General Booth, who was with us last week, ago, is at home again. No matter how we may regard his "barbaric" methods...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present.

THE TORONTO WORLD

little likely to be heard.—Alexander MacCarn. True Friends. To know that there are some souls, hearts and minds, here and there, who trust and whom we trust, and who know us as we are, and whom we know as we are, is a great comfort...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

It is a long while since we have heard anything of this gifted lady whose fame has made the tour of the world, and who is known wherever civilization has penetrated...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Hall Gaine, the man of Man, has recently had a violent attack of fever. Here is a specimen of alliteration...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

An interesting interview with Sir Isaac Pitman appears in the Toronto World. He is curious to learn that in the early days of his shorthand...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The following tough episode of the war is related by The Japan Mail: While the first line of forts at Fort Mifflin...

GENERAL BOOTH AT HOME

That remarkable man, General Booth, who was with us last week, ago, is at home again. No matter how we may regard his "barbaric" methods...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present.

THE TORONTO WORLD

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS. The Collect for the Day. Almighty God, who seest that we have no power of ourselves to help ourselves; keep us both outwardly and inwardly from all ungodly, unchaste, unclean, unchristianlike, uncharitable, unmerciful, unkind, unlovely, unbecoming, unbecoming, unbecoming...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

It is a long while since we have heard anything of this gifted lady whose fame has made the tour of the world, and who is known wherever civilization has penetrated...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Hall Gaine, the man of Man, has recently had a violent attack of fever. Here is a specimen of alliteration...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

An interesting interview with Sir Isaac Pitman appears in the Toronto World. He is curious to learn that in the early days of his shorthand...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The following tough episode of the war is related by The Japan Mail: While the first line of forts at Fort Mifflin...

GENERAL BOOTH AT HOME

That remarkable man, General Booth, who was with us last week, ago, is at home again. No matter how we may regard his "barbaric" methods...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present.

THE TORONTO WORLD

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS. The Collect for the Day. Almighty God, who seest that we have no power of ourselves to help ourselves; keep us both outwardly and inwardly from all ungodly, unchaste, unclean, unchristianlike, uncharitable, unmerciful, unkind, unlovely, unbecoming, unbecoming, unbecoming...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

It is a long while since we have heard anything of this gifted lady whose fame has made the tour of the world, and who is known wherever civilization has penetrated...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Hall Gaine, the man of Man, has recently had a violent attack of fever. Here is a specimen of alliteration...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

An interesting interview with Sir Isaac Pitman appears in the Toronto World. He is curious to learn that in the early days of his shorthand...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The following tough episode of the war is related by The Japan Mail: While the first line of forts at Fort Mifflin...

GENERAL BOOTH AT HOME

That remarkable man, General Booth, who was with us last week, ago, is at home again. No matter how we may regard his "barbaric" methods...

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present. There are past and present.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

ART DEPARTMENT

The peculiar art of an English poet of twenty-four years, named Anthony Beardsley, has forced itself upon the public mind lately.

ART DEPARTMENT

ART DEPARTMENT

ART DEPARTMENT

ART DEPARTMENT

ART DEPARTMENT

ART DEPARTMENT

ART DEPARTMENT

ART DEPARTMENT

SOME RULES IN RHYME

FINE POINTS IN THE GREAT AMERICAN GAME.

When they go better, there's no doubt of course in others keep out.

With all two pair, or "three," if small, though even chance you beat them all, on the "go in," but "no limit."

Not have all the "three" in it.

Rolling Up.
Sometimes you "roll up," and it's wise; draw one and have "three" in die-throw. But have some rule, and quick decision, which card to keep your "three" to.

With three kings, therefore, keep the deuce—the high cards keep the ace in use; with three queens keep the ace in use; when opener draws three keep the try.

With three jacks look "chitlike and blind." And keep the deuce, to screen your hand; but when three jacks and all's serene, "Draw full strength," make no excuse.

With three nines don't keep "ace or face"—The spot, though, comes right in place.

With three eights, "hold up," the five, some one may be inclined to drive.

With three sevens it works first rate; "hold up" either six or eight "raise." Hold up the nine—it sometimes pays.

With three fives, when but few complete, hold up the ten—you won't get beat; try this method (only two), "Draw full strength," make no excuse.

With three fours, always draw two. And when you "raise" draw two "raise." "Hold up," the deuce, understand? Or by "the draw" exposes your hand.

Keep the odd one, with "three" even, with three odd, you'll "draw" it.

Keep none but the ace above the ten.

The reason, though, you may not know, why certain cards with others go: try this method (only two), "Draw full strength," make no excuse.

Big Hands.
(The hands here described were all held at a certain club during four hours of play at one table. Every player held an ace or four "four" and everyone held "four" or a straight flush during the game, without the "joker." There were six ace full hands, and all held one, but no one held four aces. Four were held six times, and one held them but No. 4, he held a straight flush.)

It was some time in November, (rather odd, as some remember). And every man but one, we name. Had one of them, and the other a "joker."

Seven fellows, some were greedy, some were from the country, steady—They never held such hands before—For every poor hand had more—And this is not a table.

While each one thought he played the best, two fellows there beat all the rest; the game broke up, some "couldn't" take it, and the other fellows went away. And they took all the money.

There was never such a game, "Big hands" were out just the same, six and six were held "four."

An "ace full" was six times made, four were held six times and paid, but number four had none.

Six was "four" of a kind, four had no "four" of a kind, but held a straight flush "cold."

But held a "straight flush" "cold."

Three of a Kind.
Six men "round a table set," three went in two "were paid," "four" and "three" were held, two had pat hands—both "paid"—One man calling "three" played "three" and "divided."

Each one thought that he was whizz'd, and with caution each one chipp'd; "four" and "three" were held, neither one could take the pot—One-third only each man got.

With straight only (very small), they could only one chip call.

All went in had a straight—Three straight aces, and eight, and all were won, even high.

FASHIONS FOR WOMEN.

Articles of Dress and Adornment That are Now Most Affect for Themselves.

The latest fashions in dress and adornment are now most affect for themselves. The latest fashions are in diamonds, large fire opals set with diamonds frequently from the top. One of the latest fashions is a large amethyst set with pearls. A pretty pendant is a pearl and diamond chain. Hat pins are gorgeous affairs. Large fire opals set with diamonds frequently from the top. One of the latest fashions is a large amethyst set with pearls. A pretty pendant is a pearl and diamond chain. Hat pins are gorgeous affairs. Large fire opals set with diamonds frequently from the top.

STORIES OF OLD LONDON.

Principally Concerning Actors and the Wits of the Day—Quin, Foote

It stoned had tongue, how many stories of love and murder the old Piazza of Covent Garden could tell. It was a favorite rendezvous for duellists, especially among the actors of Drury Lane and Covent Garden, and many a bloody scene has been enacted there. The old players were sudden and quick in quarrel, and made no more of "pinking" each other for a stray word than they did for a quarrel in the presence of Mr. David Garrick, the great actor and manager of Drury Lane Theatre. A sneer of Garrick's was the usual signal for a fight, and he was not slow to take advantage of it.

AFTERNOON TOILET.

How the bow of orange velvet. Another velvet bow fastened the bodice together at the waist line.

The bow of orange velvet. Another velvet bow fastened the bodice together at the waist line. The stock bodice was worn with a skirt of black crepe trimmed around the bottom with a roll of orange velvet. The reverse, collar and cuffs are of white crepe. The bodice is trimmed with a roll of orange velvet. The stock bodice was worn with a skirt of black crepe trimmed around the bottom with a roll of orange velvet. The reverse, collar and cuffs are of white crepe. The bodice is trimmed with a roll of orange velvet.

GREAT MAN'S WIDOW.

Specialist Translated From the French of Alphonse Daudet for The Toronto Sunday World by Thomas C. Greenwood.

Nobody was astonished to hear that she was about to marry. In spite of all his genius, perhaps because of it, the great man had led her 15 years of a very hard life, varied by occasional periods of ease and luxury. She had followed him over the highway of glory which he had traversed triumphantly and rapidly as he betted a man who was to die early, she had humbly followed him in the chariot of a corner of the car ever awaiting glory. When she complained, relations, respect his weakness, they are the failings of a god. Do not annoy him, do not disturb him. Remember that you are to die more to the country, to art, than to each other. All who know that that each one of these faults for which you are proud, felt herself unjustly treated; that when the great man died separation and this illustrious name dragged through the third page of the evening paper, she was left alone, and the sudden stroke of death.

BEEF AND GREENS.

They Are Enjoyed in the Birchplace of the Merry Renard.

They are enjoyed in the Birchplace of the Merry Renard. However great an effort may be made to work up a story of the curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. This morning the Gladfield Club came over to Glenora to play for the Provincial medal, driving their young black glens in a wagon, the horses smoking in the gold air, the hooves ringing hollow on the frozen ground, or slipping wildly in spite of sharpened shoes on the icy patches. The game was played, lost, and won, and the contestants are met over the welcome meal in the Lorne Arms Inn. The minister talks, and every curler is in customary even in Scotland when people are very hungry—and for 30 minutes the curlers are the only ones who do not eat. The minister is a Scotchman, and his speech is full of the rasp of Kiltbannan against his own artificial incisors or a laconic remark is made every few minutes, and he is in a becoming frame succeeded in completing the coup. Having assisted in long time the good fellow declared himself, but in such humble and timid terms—"He was aware how unworthy he was to be asked to exchange his illustrious name for his own, unknown and mean." And he understood that at the bottom of her heart the lady was extremely flattered with her conquest, but she played the comedy of the broken heart, of the woman whose life is finished without prospect of recommencement. Although she had never been so happy as since the death of the great man, she still found tears to regret his loss and exhibited an enthusiastic air in speaking of him. This, of course, only increased the reverent admiration of the admirer, rendered him more eloquent, more persuasive.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited.

Published for the Proprietor by the Toronto Printing and Publishing Co., Limited. The curling match between the two kinks at Intervale, and when 10 o'clock comes the impenetrable fog is so dense that the curlers' dinner is a mere shadow. But it is known even in Glenora, and the visitors will be clattering hub-ny on a short time, but it cannot be a bit of a blast it cannot be enjoyed? Best be the man who invented it, was a rare genius, and all the more of a genius because he recognized that simple virtues were the best for strong men. A curler's dinner, accordingly, was beef and greens, and the curlers played only primitive boilers of unadorned granite, and beef and greens it remains until this day—the beef, huge, corned, fat and home-lead, the greens the curly frost-crisped kale-wort, whose color on the platter soothes the eye like the green ones of an antique sauce vase. Only that and nothing more, unless, indeed, I include whisky, which—according to the curlers' superstitions—should go without saying. In my travels I forgot to say I had from Bonnie Glenora—I have known innovations to be attempted on the menu of the curler. I have even seen tomato soup, curried rabbit, plum pudding, and, moreover, our country chicken and turkey on the bill of fare. These things are an abomination to the true curler, for whom the art of a Stoy or a Francatelli can have no charm compared with the ability of beef and greens without outside or fancy, to meet the demands of a ravenous appetite. To him the sitting over a dinner of many courses, as much as they are time, empty plates, is, obviously, a woful waste of time, which might be much more advantageously employed in listening to the curler's story, or in securing the rapid revolution of the whisky bottle.

