THE BICYCLE HEART.

[From the British Medical Journal] There must be few of us who have not seen the ill effects of over-exertion on a bicycle. The commonest is palpitation and temporary dilatation; but even this is sometimes very difficult to cure. In a case which occurred recently a lady, ordered for a fortnight's change of air after influenza, chose to spend it in bleyeling about 50 miles a day. As a result, she has had, ever since that time-now nine months ago -a pulse which on the least exertion rises to 120, though she has not ridden again. That temporary dilatation occurs is enough to show the great strain put upon the heart, and it is an added danger that the sense of fatigue umpires. BASEBALL. NATIONAL LEAGUE - OPENING

The National League championship baseball season opened yesterday. At New York only three innings were played, the game standing, Boston 3, New York 2, when rain stopped it. The other games resulted: At Louisville-Louisville 10, Pitts-At Cincinnati-Cincinnati 3, Cleveland 2. At St. Louis - Chicago 2, St.

In a final letter of instruction to umpires, President Young pointed out the fact that club owners have agreed in writing to compel their players to obey the rules, and have contracted to support the umpires in every way, no matter whether decisions are right or wrong. He explained the requirements of the Brush resolution to the umpires, and informed them that they must not let any offenses go unpunished. President Young fur-

A GRUESOME DISCOVERY. Berlin, April 16.—Berlin is shuddering at the discovery that there is a trade understanding between nurses and undertakers. Seven or eight lances are passed between the handles and tops of a dozen cooking kettles, and are held firmly together by forage ropes. A dozen bundles of these lances fastened together form one section of a raft or floating bridge, which it has been found will support half a ton of weight. A section can be put together in 25 minutes.

HOSTILITY TO THE UNITED STATES IN ITALY. London, April 16 .- The entire Italian press is hostile to the United States. The Tribuna calls on the powers to mark the enormous risk an American victory would mean for them. It says: "If Spain is vanquished the old established rights of Europe will fall before American highhandedness. America's Gargantuan appetite will grow with victory, and then woe to the nations of Europe." The Popolo Romano compares America's action to the Jameson raid in the Transvaal, and says it is understood and condemned by the whole civilized world, "and that America is mistaken if she thinks Spain will be left at her

CONCERT FOR COERCION.

Britain Not Likely to Play Any Part in the Alleged Scheme.

London, April 16 .- The Daily Chronicle, taking it for granted that there is some truth in the reports of a new European concert for coercion, devotes an editorial to urging England not to join. It says: "Our concern is to see that England is not once more dragged at the heels of despots and made to play the game of the latest of the rotten tyrannies that encumber the earth. We have good reason to state that there are strong friends of America in the present government, and we hope Lord Salisbury is one of them, but it on motion of Ald. Stars and Stripes in combination. It is the business of the mother country to stand by her children of the west as stiffly and strongly as one country can by another." The Daily Chronicle also ridicules the Saturday Review, which asks "Where are the American officers for an army to march through Cuba?" It says it is not aware that the United States intends to do anything of that sort, but "if it does its trouble will be chiefly one of selection of a vast number of highly trained men from the West Point Acad-

The Times, which attaches no importance to the rumors of a European demonstration against the United States, says: "England would aspathizes with American indignation at Cuban horrors, the British Government no immediate concern. It is another instance of the hair-brained folly which endeavored to involve us in a war on behalf of Greece. The Americans would rightly regard an offer of such assistance as an intrusion and an insult. But it is to be added that, though we cannot condone the errors of Spain, we feel very keenly that she is paying a heavy penalty in the form most painful to a high-spirited nation, and for any reason short of such urgent considerations as are most unlikely to arise, we should be unwilling to go out of our way to throw our forces into the balance against an old ally."

A Big Slice. Finance Committee Knock $10,-000 Off the School Board's

Demand. No Money Allowed for the Collegiate Institute.

The Grants to the Orphanages Discussed-An Increase Suggested-$250 for the Potato Patch Scheme.

A big slice was cut off, or, rather, only a slice was left, after the paring of the proposed school debenture issue by the finance committee of the city council last night. The board of education petitioned for $16,300. The committee recommended that the sum of $6,300 be granted instead.

Dr. English was advocate for the board of education. He reviewed the situation fully, and said it was impossible to send in estimates until the request for debentures was acted upon. If the debentures were not to be issued $2,000 would have to be placed in the estimates for extra accommodation at the Collegiate Institute.

Ald. Graham was in favor of granting the debentures. After considerable argument, for and against, the request was taken up clause by clause, and the committee voted against issuing $8,500 for the Collegiate and $1,500 for a janitor's cottage. The remainder of the request was granted—$1,800 to pay off Colborne street school indebtedness, $3,000 for the Richmond street north school, and $1,500 for the Queen's avenue kindergarten mortgage. The Charity Organization, represented by Messrs. J. S. Pearce, F. W. Matthews, O. Labelle and A. Talbot, asked a grant of $300 towards the potato patch scheme. The small amount granted last year, Mr. Pearce said, had saved the city relief department many dollars. They wanted the money for seed and fencing principally. All the land required could be had for the payment of the taxes.

Ald. O'Meara did not believe in the cotato patch scheme for London. These patches, in his opinion, were not worth five cents apiece to the city. The mayor favored the idea as one whereby poor people willing to work could be helped. Pauperism could only be relieved by labor and land.

Ald. McPhillips was also in favor of a grant. Mr. Pearce stated that 595 bushels of potatoes were raised from the $60 grant of last year. The parties, being poor, would have had to buy their potatoes by the half-peck and peck, costing $1 and $125 per bushel. The sum of $250 was recommended

Last year $350 was given to the Protestant Orphans' Home and $150 to the Children's Aid Society. Ald. Graham said the latter was doing much of the work the home formerly did, and moved that they be given $250 each. Ald, O'Meara opposed this. The so-ty, he said, was making a business of hawking about the country after children, many of which they should have left alone. No money was better spent than at the Protestant and the Mount Hope homes. Ald. Graham called attention to the fact that the Protestant Home, with its capacity for accommodating 150 children, had only 35 now. Ald. McPhillips saw no reason for a lifference being made in the grants to the two homes. The average at Mount Hope was much larger than in the Protestant home. On April 1 the number in the former was 93, against 35 in the latter, and last year the grants had been $250 and $350 respectively.

Decidedly the most warlike step yet taken by the war department was inaugurated yesterday, when orders were issued for the concentration at four points in the south of six regiments of cavalry, 22 regiments of infantry, and the light batteries of five regiments of artillery. At Chickamauga there will be six regiments of cavalry and the light batteries of five regiments of artillery; at New Orleans, eight regiments of infantry; at Tampa, seven regiments of infantry, and at Mobile seven regiments of infantry. AFRAID FOR THE MONARCHY. New York, April 16.—A dispatch to the World from Madrid, by way of Bayonne, France, says: "The queen-regent took a decided stand at the extraordinary council of ministers, in favor of a more energetic policy towards the United States. The majority of the ministers were of the same mind. The Royalists see it would be better to lose Cuba in a war with America than to risk the overthrow of the monarchy by a revolution on the peninsula. Gen. Correa, the minister of war, and Admiral Bermejo, the minister of marine, laid great stress upon the necessity of doing something to quiet the mutterings of rebellion at hime. The cabinet decided to adopt a vigorous, more resolute course in upholding Spanish rights of sovereignty in Cuba.

NOTES. The report that Spain has purchased the Hamburg-American Liners, Normania and Columbia, is construed Spain is figuring on yellow fever being an important factor of the Cuban situation. It says: "We have 200,000 troops on the island, perfectly accliand any Americans who are landed there will die like flies." A dispatch from Havana says: It has been decided that the colonial government, with the approval of the government at Madrid, is to send Senors Miberga, Dobea and Vindi to treat with the insurgents.

And Then Had Not Reached a Division on the Budget-The Kettle River Valley Bill Defeated.

Ottawa, April 16.-The budget debate ended without division at 6:30 this It was a weary all-night session, enlivened once in a while by sharp exchanges between opposing members. Mr. Taylor was the first to begin the president will sign them, but in a brief question before the public in London, John McMillan and then criticised the nt of talk. He first attacked Mr. members of the cabinet. There were too many lawyers in it, he said, and whoever knew a lawyer to be possessed of much business ability. He commented on the sale of the Kingston Penitentiary twine output to the Hobbs Company, of London, by permitting that company twice to amend their offer for the binder twine, and the government charged them less than the contract provided. Although barb wire and binder twine were duty free, the price had not diminished, and the Canadian industries had been destroyed. Mr. Frost eulogized the government as having brought peace and prosper-ity. He defended the ministers and condemned Mr. Bennett for charging them with having received $20,000 from Mr. Greenshields. Mr. Bennett, interrupting, said that Mr. Tarte had himself admitted the fact last year. Mr. Tarte-Permit me to say the statement made by the honorable gentleman is altogether untrue, and he knows it, too. An uproar followed, in which the Conservatives demanded that Mr. Tarte withdraw the expression. Sir Charles Tupper, Dr. Montague and Messrs. Davin and Clancy were on their feet, all trying to talk at once. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding came to Mr. Tarte's support. The deputy speaker said he was sorry that he had permitted both Mr. Bennett's and Mr. Tarte's remarks to pass unchallenged the evening previous. However, that was past now. He thought that Mr. Tarte's observations, to which exception had just been taken, should be withdrawn. Mr. Tarte arose and said, "In deference to your decision, Mr. Speaker, I will withdraw the expression The Conservatives applauded Mr. Tarte.

The dry and long-winded Dr. Sproule next bored the house. Dr. Sproule said Sir Richard Cartwright was one who had denounced the duty, and given the farmers to understand that the Liberals would relieve them from that burden. Sir Richard explained that that was when the duty was 35 per cent. After it had been reduced to 20 per cent he never said a word about it. Mr. Tarte spoke very briefly in explanation of the Drummond Railway matter. He denied that he had benented from that company. He severely condemned the practice of newspapers slandering public men. The newspapers had slandered him, but he was not dead yet. (Applause.) Messrs. Lemieux, Clancy, Davin, and

A feature of the session was the virtual defeat of the Kettle River Valley Railway bill, by which Mr. Corbine hoped to build a line from the Northern Pacific to the mining districts of British Columbia. The bill was opposed by the C. P. R. and supported by the G. T. R. In committee of the whole the bill was amended by reducing the capital stock of the company from $2,500,000 to $1,500,000, and the question put to the house last night was for the third reading of that amendment. By a majority of twenty, the house negatived that motion. The bill was accordingly dropped from the orders of the house by that vote. The division was as follows: The house divided on the question, which was upon the second reading of the amendment to the bill made in committee. The vote was as follows:

IN A LOST LIMB.

The Sense of Feeling-A Peculiar Sen sation Experienced.

We refer a sensation at once to its source in the finger-tips or the ear or the nose, or wherever it may be, and so expert have we become in recognizing the source that we localize the sensation itself there, thinking of the sensation of touch as being in the skin of the finger instead of in the brain, where it actually is. Hence he who has lost a finger refers directly to the absent member any irritation of the nerve that formerly connected with it, and can scarcely believe that it is not in its old place. This phenomenon is familiar enough and many are the superstitions to which it has given rise, but it is only of late that has received serious scientific study. A recent work on the subject is that of M. Abbatucci, published in Paris, which has cailed forth a paper by Prof. Pitres, contributed to the Annales Medico-Psychologiques of that We quote below part of an abstract from The National Druggist.

Says that paper: "M. Pitres shows that the illusion of the existence of a limb (in place of one which had been amputated) may go so far as to cause many accidents. In the majority of cases the illusion is so perfect and vivacious that it constantly deceives the intelligence of the individual, so imperiously does it force itself upon him. Some of those who had lost a limb, questioned by M. Pitres, declared that they felt the amputated limb frequently more really and substantially than they did the one still attached to the body. Sometimes they get to believing more firmly upon the existence of the phantom limb than upon those members that remain, as in the case of a patient of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, who declared: "I state only the truth when I say that I am more conscious of the existence in place of the limb that I lost than of the one

Many of Prof. Pitre's patients made analogous declarations. 'Parbleu!' said one, 'I know mighty well that I have no right leg—yet, when I try to analyze my sensations, I feel that leg there. Why, I feel the foot this minute more distinctly than I do the left one, which is there before my eyes. It (the phantom) hurts me, while the other does not. If I could not assure myself by the touch and sight of the stump, nothing could convince me that the right leg was gone. I am having constantly to reason with myself in order to convince myself of the unrealness of my sensations." "When the illusion is as clear as in these cases, the person is constantly unconsciously inclined to attempt to use the phantom limb. Dr. Welr Mitchell tells of a horseman who had lost an arm, and thinking to take the reins in the amputated hand, dropped them on the neck of the horse, which was high-spirited, and leaping to one side, threw the rider, badly injuring him. Another party who had lost his right hand always tried to pick up his work with that hand which invariably caused him a fit of exasperation. "As might be imagin tunates are constantly meeting with accidents which might have been easily avoided but for the unconscious confidence had in the existence of the phantom limb. Dr. Pitres tells of a heavy man who had lost an arm, and who, in dressing one morning, lost his equilibrium, and, starting to fall, put out the phantom arm to steady himself, and, as a consequence, had a severe fall.

We remember an old soldier who had lost half of both feet, and the injury had been partially repaired by a maker of artificial limbs. This man would sit for a half-hour at a time bing the ends of his shoes, where h.s corns formerly were, and swearing at the pain the phantom corns were giving him. He would frequently declare, 'There's going to be a change of the weather-my corns are hurting me.' On being reminded that he had no corns, he would say, 'Never mind! I feel 'em all the same.' "Now that the results of investigations have proven the realness of the sensations caused by these hallucinations, and the suffering produced by them, we may hope that science will discover some means of preventing

End of Budget Debate.

The growing strength of the Dominton Government's position in regard to trade matters, is indicated by the budget debate now brought to a close. When the Finance Minister sat down after delivering his speech, it was discovered that Mr. Foster was ill; nobody else was able to answer, and by request of the Opposition the debate was adjourned without reply! Such a thing has rarely happened. A few days later the ex-Finance Minister began reply, but it was not destructive. Mr. Foster is a bright man-cold and bright like a Lapland night. He is not weighty. The Situation in Cuba.

General Lee's statement before the foreign relations committee of the United States Senate belongs to that class of news which is "important, if true." The general has been two years in Havana, and should know whereof he speaks. He says that of the 1,500,000 people in Cuba, only 300,000 are Spanish. The armed force of the insurgents numbers 31,000 to 32,000 men; that of Spain from 55,000 to 56,000. The Spanish army, he says, is ill-clothed, ill-fed, illorganized and poorly-drilled. The officers have not been paid for three months, nor privates for nine months. get a majority of protests. They failed Owing to the ravages of war, all internal food supplies are exhausted, and the population, even in Havana, is living from hand to mouth. The only recent supplies have come from the United States, and those are now cut off. The United States Senate. The Globe condemns the Senate of the United States. Whatever may be the condition of the neighboring republic at this moment, during the career of the republic it has, as a whole, been by far the most influential and valuable factor in its government. It was the Senate that in 1846 prevented the United States from going to war with Great Britain over the Oregon boundary. The United States Senate has on more than one occasion performed substantial services on behalf of the republic. It may be that owing to trusts and combines which have risen since the civil war, and have overshadowed the republic, threatening to do it that body is rather an expression of record the cost of your work?" the mischievous forces that exist in the social fabric of the republic at the present moment, and which if they continue, may bring upon it revolution. The condition of the Senate is rather an indication of the degeneracy of society than of a defect in the constitution. While a system of government may be excellent in its form, it will not alone secure good government to the state.

Time Limit for Speeches.

The Globe's Ottawa correspondent points out the waste of time that goes on at Ottawa on account of chronic talk! talk! talk! by a few men. The result, according to the correspondent, is that many private members, quite capable of contributing to discussion do not get a chance. There really should be some limit set to speeches. The mover of an important neasure might be given plenty of searoom, but all other speakers should be limited in some manner. The same suggestion applies to the religious parliaments that will be meeting presently. A time limit to speeches would promote compactness of expression and expedite business

SPAIN'S NAVAL STRENGTH.

[Harper's Weekly.] In order that timid souls may not be unduly perturbed by the stories of the Spanish navy, it is well perhaps to say that the Spanish navy is not more than one-third as powerful as our own, and is probably not more than one-tenth as effective. The power of navies cannot be judged accurately by comparing lists of ships and armaments. The condition of the ships and guns must be reckoned with; and while the American ships are always in first-class order, Spanish ships rarely are. There is the Alfonso XII .. for instance, counted among the Spanish fleet of effective vessels. As a

INCAPACITY TO GOVERN.

[Hamilton Times.] Talking to a Montreal reporter, Sir Charles Tupper has been airing his theory that the Liberals display "an inherent incapacity to govern," and upon it he bases the hope that the Conservatives will soon be in office at Ottawa again. For a man with his record, Sir Charles is not as modest as he might well be. It is of the greatest importance that our cheesemakers should remedy the above defects during the coming season, and not allow the quality of their goods to be second to that of States cheese after having gained such an enviable reputation in the British market. It is stated that these stiff-textured cheese, which are un-suitable to the trade, result from insufficient curing, which simply spoils the goods, and makes them so objectionable to consumers on the other side. It was stated in these columns repeatedly last season that cheese were being shipped from the factories in too green a state. A Customs Arrangement Between Britain and Her Colonies Advocated.

important Speech by Hon. G. W. Ross -Canada Asked to Contribute to Imperial Defense.

Toronto, April 15.-The annual meetng of the Toronto branch of the British Empire League, which was held at Association Hall last night, was largely attended, and had as its distinctive note a deep imperialistic strain. The speeches of the evening had but one sentiment, that of closer relations within the empire, to be achieved chiefly by securing a preference for Canadian or other colonial products in the British market. The principal speech was made by Hon. George W. Ross, who looked forward hopefully to this concession, and advised Canadians to seek in a cautious, deliberative manner. His speech was a very able consideration of the whole matter. Col. Denison also contributed a spirited address to the speeches of the evening. The chair was occupied by the president, Dr. Larratt W. Smith, Q.C.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS. The president, in his annual address, referred to the steps taken by distant colonies towards imperial unity, including Australia, and expressed hope that Canada would do her share. Mr. J. COLONIAL PREFERENCES. The first resolution of the evening was as follows: Moved by Hon. George W. Ross, seconded by Mr. J. K. Mc-Naught, "That in the opinion of this league it is advisable that a customs arrangement be effected between Great Britain and her colonies, by which the trade within the empire may be placed upon a more favorable footing than that which is carried on with foreign coun-

Speaking to the motion, Mr. Ross said that if a preference were given to Canadian products it would be a great incentive to Englishmen to migrate to Canada. It was not a question of trade, but a question of the unity, of the consolidation, of the empire. Mr. Ross declared that if the case were handled prudently and patiently, he was convinced that public opinion in Britain would be so changed that in the course of time they would hold the view now held by the British Empire League. (Applause.) He then read an extract from Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech board of trade banquet, in which he said he would have been very foolish if he had rejected an offer of preferential to perform the share of work allotted trade if it had been placed before him. to him in the general scheme of battle, fought much more in Great Britain than in Canada. The opinion of Mr. Fielding, while somewhat gloomy, yet had a silver lining. Mr. Chamberlain's opinion, while somewhat obscure, yet, in certain senses, was hopeful. plosives have introduced so many new factors into warfare that we are not surprised that naval and military men in Europe are hoping for a conflict between ourselves and Spain to furnish them with solutions of some of the problems about which they are anxiously concerned.

the fighting qualities of their men and the weight of their armaments, were generally the ruling factors in determining victory for old-time naval commanders. The complete revolution, however, brought about in naval warfare by steam, electricity and modern armaments has created problems undreamt of by the men of 50 years ago and those before them. The new methods and conditions have to be tested, and no one can venture to foretell results.

conditions, in which plosives have undoubtedly introduced many and in some cases serious com-plications into naval warfare, they have however, by no means obliter-ated the men. What they have done is to call for higher qualities in the men manipulating them; and, other things being equal, the victory in battle must remain with that side on which the machinery of all kinds, whether connected with the move-and with which the men and officers are the better acquainted, or, it might even be said, the more in sympathy.

These last considerations point to the conclusion that so far as it is possible there should be few changes in the personnel of modern ships of war once results from its use. I used they are put in commission. The commander of a ship going into action who knows his ship, his officers and crew, and the machinery with which he has can give his undivided attention to it, having no anxieties as to the manner in which they will all perform their particular functions. In a word, the more complete what the French call the rapport between all the elements, animate and inanimate, that go to make the modern warship an effective fighting machine, the surer is the side on which it exists in the higher degree to win the victory. What the great Napoleon said of the value of the moral tific progress may require its application in a more complex way, the principle remains the same. Naval war, then, being admitted to

of men, the side possessing the best machinery, handled by men thoroughly acquainted with it, must win. Spanish fleet, with which it is not unlikely our own may be called on to measure its strength, is notoriously a pronunciamento.

A Talk With Dr. John Clifford, Who Recently Visited Canada.

World's End, London, Eng., April 2. To the Editor of The Advertiser: I have sent you an item that I think will be interesting to you. I do not take very much interest in politics, because I have not a vote, though I think I deserve one quite as much as some who have; but I do care that good men should be elected to rule in every public department, high and low. The evening after the recent election of the London County Council, I had some business to do in Kensington. Having been indoors all day, and not having heard anything of the result, the first thing I did on going out was to look for the placards at the newsvendors, where usually morning evening the principal events are told in flaring advertisements that can be read across the street. But scarcely a placard could I find, as I passed a score or more of paper shops. The only thing I could find about the election was "Why we were beaten by Sir John Lubbock"; but as I did not know which side Sir John was on, I was still in the dark. But at last, near High street, Kensington, I saw a placard of one of the big dailies, which told of progressive victory. Then the mystery was solved. The district through which I was passing was a strongly Conservative one, and the news vendors dare not tell openly of their defeat.

I have something else to tell you. Lately I have become acquainted with Dr. John Clifford, the new chairman of the London School Board. He knew some of my relatives and friends, but having lived so long out of England, I was a stranger, and had to introduce myself. As you must have seen, he sailed around the world last summer for the good of his health, was in Australia and Canada, and intends making use of the information gained in the colonies. Several times he received from me copies of The Western Advertiser, and on one occasion, when we were conversing, I pointed out

"God's in his heaven,

All's right with the world." When he said, "Why, that is my motto, that I have long used." Do you remember some years ago of some one who had written to say that it was not a good motto for a paper, for all is not right with the world? I felt very sorry when I read that, and wrote and told you so. that I thought Browning right and the man who differed from him wrong. I would not be surprised if you receive a letter from Dr. Clifford. ating their knowledge into the manage-Yours respectfully, A. M. OLIVER.

COSTLY RESIDENCE. The late Duke of Marlborough, in alluding to the size of Blenheim Palace, used to say by way of a joke that it was the only residence in Europe which required £800 worth of putty a year to keep the window panes in order. Money went a good deal further in the last century than it does now. Consequently, when the House of Commons voted £300,000 to build the Arkansas, for treatment. The doctors sprang up a residence 348 feet long, and Churchill, during one of his visits, it ed to. A curious fact about this rheuwas over half an hour before his lord-ship, who for exercise had been exploring the place, with its fifteen stair-cases, was found. The last time it was repaired the late duke was obliged to I think it must be a joint inheritance apply to parliament for permission to from her. sell the library and pictures to pay the bills, which amounted to more than a million and a half. It is therefore not surprising that, although the estate yielded £40,000 a year, the expenses of keeping up this preposterous residence kept the duke a poor man. Altogether, everything around Blenheim is extremely large. Some of the pictures are 70 feet square. The statue of the great duke near the big lake of Peculiar Experiences of Two | brother is a strong Democrat. I think Brothers in Ingersoll and Elsewhere.

Their Great Similarity.

There are living in Michigan today two men so alike in form and feature that their wives and children have great difficulty in telling them apart. For this reason their lives have been filled with incidents that it is the privito experience, and every day adds to the queer happenings. These men are William Hisey, of Sparta, Mich., and James Hisey, of Yale, Mich. Each is us sit in different parts of the room, in the milling business, and, oddly and they never were sure whether we enough, each has achieved the same degree of success in life.

It is often the case where nature plays so queer a prank as to make chilextent as to render it comparatively easy to distinguish one from the other. In the case of the Hiseys, however, the lines of their lives have fallen in almost similar places, and, their tastes being largely the same, their characters have developed in much the same fashion. The result of all this is that the resemblance of childhood is just as strongly evident in the years of maturity.

The following narratives, written by the twins, are unvarnished statements of fact. They are given just as the writers penned them. The first is that of William Hisey, of Sparta.

WILLIAM HISEY'S STORY. "My twin brother and I look so much alike that not one person out of a thousand can tell us apart. We were born near Stouffville, Canada, on a farm. We were always together, both at home and at school, always dressed alike and weighed the same. We were exactly the same height, and, to make the resemblance more perfect, so far as other people were concerned, we each had a peculiar cough.

"When we were boys our ambition was to learn the miller's trade, and we have both gratified it. We remained Plans and Preparations for the the town of Ingersoll, Ont., to learn the miller's trade. We began work the same day, but in different mills, and there was not a soul in the town who could tell us apart. Farmers would go to one mill and then to the other, and would be puzzled to find what seemed to be the same miller in two different places, each of whom told them he had been there at the same time.

"When we went out in the evenin in company we had more fun than I can tell you. After awhile I would tell her of the change.

DROLL MISTAKES. "In 1877 I left Ingersoll and settled down at Memphis, Mich. I soon got acquainted with the young people, and after being there more than a year became engaged to a young lady. A few weeks before the wedding my brother paid me a visit, and for the life of her paid me a visit, and for the life of her should be made known. And here it is vanted to talk over the arrangements plans, much as some of us might like for the wedding she would talk with to summarize them for the benefit of my brother almost as often as she did our readers. with me. She used to make me promise not to let her make such mistakes, and that a general's intentions are not and in some way let her know which was should not be public property. There is which. At the same time I had a bad tooth, and went to a dentist to get it filled. After he had examined the tooth he went into an adjoining room to get something, when my brother and I changed places. But it is more clear than ever that help must be found outside Egyptian resources if the Khalifa Abdullah is to be beaten out of Khartoum. And I should not wonder if England is asked to find a million for this purpose before Easter. I could tell what it is necessary to find the million for, but it has not been my habit to blurt out official secrets unless my sweetheart could not tell us apart not in the public interest that there at all, nor could her people. Let me give you an instance: Last year it was announced on good enough authority that Sir H. Kitchener had been advised from London not to advance beyond Berber. When he sent the gunboats under Colin Keppel up beyond Metemneh, almost before the course of peaceful post could have official announcement as far as Khartoum, the khalifa exclaimed in intense surprise and indignation: "Why, the fellow is disobeying the orders he has received!" The amusement this created when Slatin Pasha's and Col. Wingate's spies sent in the report, was tempered a good deal by the consideration that the enemy is wonderously well informed, and that if the difficulty of the operations in future is not to be enormously increased—if, in fact, an tions have long been, by the necessity of the case, obvious. They are limited by natural obstacles, and facilitated, in turn, by the operations of nature. The obstacles have been and are being overcome; every advantage is being and will be taken of the natural advantages.

In the second place, the very details of the plans are made no secret to those who undertake to preserve discretion concerning them-to understand them for guidance, and not make such use of them as may be advantageous to the enemy. Under due reserve, then, I may say that the Daily Chronicle has already on more than one occasion tole the home-staying reader all that would really interest him as regards plans, and that Sir H. H. Kitchener holds the khalifa and the dervishes in the hollow of his hand, bar a few isolated raids of no importance. Strategically, he must fight one, or at the most three, losing battles if he fights at all on a big scale. Michaelmas Day will see Khartoum once more with British rulers, whether the flag be the crescent and star or the Union Jack. A UNIQUE WILL.

How Miss Willard Disposed of Her Effects.

This unique document has been much commented upon by the daily papers of Chicago, and will be of great interest to all who knew the writer It is free from legalities, is not technical, and is as unconventional as was the author. At the same time it is religious and affectionate, and has a large block of temperance in it. The original is in Miss Willard's own hand, and is written on a single sheet of note paper and with the freedom which indicates that it was her first copy and that it was written without studious effort, after the subject had been digested in her own mind. There is no codicil, as some have supposed This is the first and last and only will of Miss Willard:

It was a fight to the death, and at first it looked as though the rat would be the victor. But the dog, with his finer instincts for fighting, got a good hold upon the rat's neck, and in this position the two rolled over and over, the dog never slackening his

Every brick is capable of absorbing a pint of water—new mortar and fresh plaster in proportion—and it takes at least three months for all this water to evaporate and the house to dry. How many persons consider this when they move into new houses? Dampness is especially conducive to tubercular disorder; so if you live along any of the Great Lakes, or have moved into a newly built house, and begin to suffer from symptoms of "breakdown"—especially if you have a troublesome cough—look to it that you are not becoming tuberculous! Commence at once to build up your digestive system, and to strengthen and heal your bronchial tubes. A course of Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure will do wonders for you; it will cure your indigestion and tone up your bowels. Oh, my friends, it is a great deal easier to drift into consumption, than to work your way out of it! I remember a prominent young physician, the son of a well-known clergyman; he died in the early prime of his young manhood, just because he moved too soon into his newlybuilt office, contracted a cold, neglected it, being usually too busy with a large number of patients, took to his bed when it was too late, and died in two months from Galloping Consumption. A good alterative and tonic for his general health, and a course of simple but effective medicine like Shiloh's Consumption Cure, at 25e., 5oc., and $1.00 a bottle, would have prevented his fatal termination, and today he might have been a shining light in the profession.

These reindeer are not like the reindeer who draw Santa Claus on his onto the table. There is no doubt a great temptation to do this. When have him, you forget yourself. The common plan is not to leap upon the table all at once. This is the more usual practice: The carver begins to carve sitting; by and bye he is on his feet, and his brow is contracted; his face approaches the fowl, as if he wanted to inquire within about everything except that the duck is reluctant to yield any of his portions; one of his feet limbs into his chair, then the other; his knees are now resting against the table, and, in his excitement, he, so to speak, flings himself upon the fowl.

This brings us to Rule II.-Carving should not be made a matter of brute force. It ought from the outset to be kept in mind that you and the duck are not pitted against Mr. James Caston, merchant, Wilkesbarre, Pa., writes:—For nine years I have been disfigured with tetter on hands and face. The Reindeer for Alaska. There arrived in the harbor of New York recently a steamship from Arctic his father's neighbors. Norway, having on board over 500 reindeer, and a group of Norwegians, Finns and Laplanders to care for them. There are very few railroads in that must be reached by dogs and sleds, or reindeer and sleds. The government some years ago introduced the reindeer into Alaska, not only as beasts of burden, but also to supply food. The reindeer travel much faster than dogs; and can live on the moss to be found under the snow. The dogs must be fed and the food carried for them in the sleds when long journeys are taken. Last December it was resuffering for food, and Congress voted to send relief to them. This last fall a number of whalers were caught in the ice, and, it was thought, without food enough to last until the ice should break in the spring. It was almost imgo by boat to a given point where reindeer would meet them and start over the ice with supplies. There were not reindeer enough in the country to carry relief to the miners and the whalers without bringing possible suffering to the natives. At once the government decided to buy and send to Alaska a large herd of reindeer, and this herd, with its caretakers, arrived in New York lately on its way to Alaska. After the herd arrived in New York the government decided to sell them, as the reports of suffering among the miners had been contra-

Kingston Convicts Will Have Neither Butter Nor Sugar in Future.

Kingston, April 16.-It is evidently the literal meaning of the word. After having their tobacco supply cut off, the order has gone forth that the convicts be further deprived of sugar for their tea and butter for their bread. The convicts find this dry fare, but what they get of it is wholesome and substantial.

THE LABOR'S FIELD.

President Gompers' Invitation to the Federation Meeting Largely Accepted.

Chicago, April 16 .- President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, Vice-President O'Connell and other members of the national body held three business sessions yesterday. President Gompers had invited all the organizations which were interested in the affairs of the organization or which have had trade disputes to have representatives present. These responded in a manner to indicate that interest in the federation is on the increase, and that there is little likelihood of any of the trade unions east of the Missouri River paying any attention to the Salt Lake City call to form a western organization.

Conference Between Leaders of the Two Houses With a View to Prompt Action.

A REMARKABLE SCENE. Washington, April 16 .- Mr. Allen (Nebraska) says he wanted to call attention to the remarkable scene that had occurred at the White House on April 7. He referred to the call of the representatives of six of the great powers upon the president and to the exchange of notes upon the Hispano-American situation. He declared that no similar scene had ever been witness in this country. "I want to register my protest," said Mr. Alien, "against the representatives of the powers of Europe entering the White House and telling this country what it shall do. I cannot understand why the president did not inform them that this country would not tolerate any interference, yet here is the first step nation. It is understood that these same powers are to go further and make another assault upon the White House with more pressing demands. Within six months these same powers will be urging the United States to the position assumed in this crisis by the president, and argued against the recognition of the present Republic of Washington, April 16.-The house leaders will confer ouring the afternoon with leading members of the senate as to the prospect of an early vote on the Cuban resolutions, and if there is a prospect of action this af- lates held the same view. ternoon it is possible the house may remain in session in order to secure Cuban Republic no attempt will be made to act upon them tonight. It will then be in order to move concurrence in the senate amendments so that the house undoubtedly will have an opportunity to vote upon the senate propositions and accept it if a majority can be mustered in its support. BRITISH PRESS COMMENT. London, April 16.—The St. James' Gazette, in an article headed "An Anti-American Holy Alliance," says: "The reports of European interference (in the Cuban question) are distinctly the most interesting news this morningmost interesting because it is now clear nothing can prevent war except some such intervention. The United States has gone too far to recede. America wants to fight, and so far as we can Campania... see America will be going wrong, not through its statesmen, but through a sort of national hysteria. It is exasperating to those of us who wish both peace and the end in Cuba of Spanish misrule, to see American passion throwing away what American statesmanship has won. There is, therefore, obviously an opportunity for the forcible intervention of the powers, or some Three drunks arrayed themselves of them. The position of Great Britain in such an eventuality is a delicate one; but, from the point of view of France, Italy, Austria and Germany, it must be allowed that the plea made by Spain could hardly fall on deaf ears. All senators approve action, the only difference being as to the methods employed, the general desire being to place the United States in a favorable position before the peo-ple of this country as well as before the civilized nations of the world. In accordance with the agreement reached last night, the senate convened promptly at 10 o'clock, and after the transaction of some routine business the resolution of the foreign relations committee was laid before the senate. Mr. Cannon (Utah) was then recognized, and spoke in favor of immediate decisive action and for the recognition of the independence of the Cuban repub-

he was asked. "A good deal," replied the manager. "We're manufacturing a new brand of soap, and to compete with others we've got to have poetical advertisements that will catch the public ear. QUESTIONS ANSWERED

GRANTON.—A man died on June 5, 1876, and left a will dated June 3, 1876, which bequeaths certain real estate to his niece during her life, then to revert to her heirs. She dies, leaving three children, the second one male, the other two females. Would the said estate, according to law, be divided between the three children, or would there be any preference to the eldest, or to the male heir, in such case? If divided, when could each child claim his or her share? Ans.—The three children are the heirs, and their dowers are completed on the death of their viother. The eldest or the son has no preference.

"Because I have done wrong, great wrong," replied Mrs. Dale, and even to this antagonistic woman her voice shook on the words, "you have no right to think that I am never to lead an in-dependent life. You have no right to the control of my actions. All that you can demand is that I should live decently and quietly. As long as I do so I ought to be, I will be, as free as

"But," persisted the other, "you seem not to understand what decency requires. "Surely you have done that?" she said ironically. "Even the inquisitors of Spain used to let their victims have a little rest from the torture sometimes, just to let the creatures get up their strength again, to give you more sport on a future occasion!"

The visitor affected to be offended by this speech, and drew herself up in a dignified manner. But it was possible to imagine that she felt just a little shame, or a little twinge of remorse for her persistent cruelty, for she went so far as to offer a cold hand to Mrs. Dale as she prepared to go. Mrs. Dale looked as if she would have

LIQUID AIR POURED OUT.

Mr. Tripler's Audience Thought They Would Get Wet, but They Didn't. New York Sun: The fifth annual exhibition of the New York Academy of Science was opened last evening at the Museum of Natural History. Fifteen departments of science are represented, and in each are many interesting fatures. By far the most interesting feature of last night's opening was a lecture, with demonstrations on liquid air, by Charles E. Tripler. Mr. Tripler's big vat of liquid air was a source of great interest to the 600 people who crowded into the hall. His experiments were many and amusing. An egg dipped in the vat became as hard as a rock, and when struck with a hammer broke into bits as though made of stone. A piece of rubber pipe became so hard that it could be snapped like a stick, while the effect of air upon a piece of metal tubing was to corrode it so that it could easily be broken in the hands. At the conclusion of the lecture, Mr. Tripler dumped his vat of liquid air out onto the platform, to the consternation of the people sitting in the front rows, who imagined they were going to get wet. It all went up in smoke, however. The exhibition goes on tonight, when Prof. Hale will lecture.

Satteriee of Washington.

Washington, April 15.—Bishop Catterlee, of the Episcopal Church, has issued the following address to the members of his diocese:

"Diocese of Washington. My Dear Brethren of the Clergy and Laity,-The chief magistrate of the United States, who, under God, is the chief ruler of our country, has in his message to congress, set forth the only conditions upon which, in his judgment, we can engage in a Christian warfare, and also under which, to use his own words, our aspirations as a Christian and peaceoving people can be realized. "It will be a grave responsibility if war is undertaken under any conditions, and our country, acting through its congress, will be held accountable to God and by the civilized world at large if her first aim is not for truth and justice, peace and happiness. "I invoke you all, as the servants of that Prince of Peace to whom all power is now given, in heaven and on earth, to remember in earnest prayer those in the government of the United States who are charged with this God-given responsibility, and to pray that God will bestow upon them a right judgment in all things, and grant that they may both perceive and know what things they ought to do, and also may have grace and power faithfully to fulfill the same. "I herewith set forth a prayer to be used at this present time in all the public services of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Wash-

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Are the

Wonder of the Century.

A Proposal to Test Their Remarkable Efficacy in Stomach Diseases-Box of Health for Fifty Cents. It used to be said, "You can't buy health with money." Many people will tell you so today. But to a very great extent, the saying has lost its truth and significance. Many things that used to be impossible, are today quite easy of accomplishment. For instance, you can talk to a friend a thousand miles away; Niagara Falls have been harnessed to the service of man; electricity is one of our servants. And you can buy health, by the box.

Now, dyspeptics, and people suffering from indigestion, may not believe this. All the same, it is a fact, and they can prove it to be one, and make themselves happy for life at the same time, if they wish.

This is how to do it. Buy a box Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets-price fifty cents. Use one or two tablets after each meal, and they will find that their disease will soon be replaced by vigorous health. This is another fact—if you don't believe it—TEST IT. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will convince you by curing you. Isn't that proof enough? Every box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets is A BOX OF HEALTH. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure all liseases of the stomach except cancer. Life and Work Of George Muller.

He Sought Aid From No One and Yet He Was Donated for His Work Nearly Seven Millions.

The death of Rev. George Muller, the founder of the famous orphanage at Bristol, England, has called forth many warm tributes to his memory from the religious press. Mr. Muller was born in Halberstadt, Prussia, Sept. 27, 1805, and received his education at Halle. He came to England in 1829 to labor among the Jews, but failing to conform to the disciplinary conditions of the Jews' society he became minister of a church at Bristol, where he remained to the end of his life. The striking feature of his work lay in the fact that although he organized and carried to great success a number of important religious and charitable enterprises, he never asked for any financial support, believing that all his needs in this di-rection would be supplied in answer to prayer. His faith was apparently fully justified. His five orphanage homes at Bristol cost, it is said, for construction and maintenance, not much less than $6,000,000, all of which was paid into Mr. Muller's hands, without a word of solicitation, by Christian men and wo-men throughout the world. It is calculated that he cared for and educated more than 40,000 orphan children in these homes, besides supporting numerous foreign and home missionaries, and circulating vast numbers of copies of the Scriptures and religious tracts. He was highly regarded by men of all faiths and respected by those who had I no religious faith. Two years ago, Mr. Muller then in his 91st year, told his experience to a large audience in Bristol, in an address 50 minutes in length.

Writing six months later, in the Missionary Review of the World, Rev. Dr. A. T. Pierson said of the address: "After 30 years, during which I have been attending great missionary convocations and hearing great missionary advocates on occasions of absorbing interest, I can deliberately say that, for simple, unpretending eloquence—the eloquence of experience extending through 70 years of daily walk with God-that address far surpassed any I have ever heard, as also for aweinspiring and faith-incentive power."
Mr. Muller stated that the total amount expended by him up to that time was £1,394,800 ($6.974,000), and he challenged any person living to tell of a case in which pecuniary help had been sought by him from man. He had established schools for 123,000 puin various countries, distributed 1,426,000 New Testaments, 275,000 Bibles, and 106,500,000 tracts, pamphlets and other kinds of Christian literature. And let it be noted that Mr. Muller, in order not to weaken his testimony to a prayer-hearing God, has enjoined on all his helpers never to make known the exigencies of the work to any one outside the institution, but to unite with him in spreading all such wants before God alone; and lest his annual reports might be thought to be indirect appeals, for some three years no report was published, and yet the supplies continued to come with as little interruption and in as great abundance as before." In an editorial on "Wonderful George Muller," the Northwestern Christian Advocate says: "One sturdy saint like George Muller efutes and neutralizes an army of unelievers, so far as virtue is concerned. A bad man's life survives him, but the alue of the examples of those who labor for God increases in a geometrical ratio. Gerald Massey was not the first man to ask 'why God does not kill the devil, or suddenly extirpate the children of the slums. The king of the universe is not a hysterical workman who childishly smashes machinery that goes wrong. He raises things and to teach the world that he with whom a thousand years is as one day is not in a hurry. Men seem to forget great providential events, but he who rules men does not allow his holy agencies to fail out of human regard. The bill is directed against the statutes of remote days, passed with the object of removing from Ireland everything distinctly Irish and forbidding the use of these prefixes. The result has been that many Irish names have been curtailed of their prefix. As the House of Commons seems disposed to take a good-humored view of the question, prefixes may be restored to their owners and their descendants, formally and officially, so to speak, Irishmen show no reluctance to adopt these prefixes, and their origin is, of course, not hard to trace, the "O" being an ab-breviation of "of" and corresponding to the German "you," the French "de," the Italian "di" and the Dutch "van." The word "Mac" is of Celtic origin and Like many other matters of historical nport in Ireland, the use of prefixes there is traced to the illustrious Brian

THIEF CAUGHT. GRAIN George Earhart Admits Stealing

Grain From Huestons Bros.' Warehouse in Appin. For some time past grain thieves have been operating extensively in the rural districts west and north of London, and complaints to Detectives Ward and Northgreaves have been frequent. Detective Ward returned from Appin and Glencoe yesterday, where he had been working up a case with County Constable Black, of Glencoe. As a result George Earhart and Alfred Cushman, two laborers, living near Appin, were placed under arrest on the charge of stealing eleven bushels of wheat from Hueston Bros.' warehouse, at Appin, on the night of Feb. 16. The men were brought before Squire French, of Glencoe. Earhart was committed for trial, and Cushman bailed to appear before the magistrate on Mon-Earhart told all he knew about the affair. Cushman, he said, had nothing to do with the stealing. Another man, whose name he did not give, he also said, had gone with him to Hueston's warehouse, where, instead of forcing an entrance by the ordinary means, they crawled under the warehouse and bored an inch hole in the floor. The eleven bushels of grain were secured in this way, and sold in Dutton the next day. Constable Black is still working on the case, and several more arrests are expected to follow. TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY. Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. Al Wednesday druggists refund the money if it fails to cure joint rally.
