"I think it my duty to declare that the press report of a conference with the Manitoba delegates is not altogether exact, and that it is given in such a way as to make a false impression on the minds of the people.

the charges of clerical interference in Canadian politics. Sir Wilfrid read in its entirety the interview with Mr. Rogers, as it appeared in the special despatch from Winnipeg, and then said:
Not a Shadow of Truth in it.
"Referring to the whole tenor of this document, in so far as there is a charge in it, that there was an understanding between Mgr. correspondence was brought down on April 3, he had not then received Man-April 3, he had not then received Mani-tioba's further rejoinder, in fact, it only arived yesterday. There was nothing in it to conceal. Referring to the in-terview of Messrs. Campbell and Rog-ers, with Mgr. Sbarretti, Sir Wilfrid said:

Were Not Intermediaries.

"There has been a rumor about the corridors of this house that this conference had been brought about by one of my colleagues. I have to say to the house, and I have the authority of my colleague for this, that there never was any conference brought about by him, between the delegates and Mgr. Sbarrett, and I have to make the further statement that neither myself nor any of my colleagues were the intermediarieg between Mgr. Sbarrett and the delegates of Manitoba. If there has been such, a conference, how it came about I cannot say. Perhaps Mgr. Sbarrett may have had previous communication with these gentlemen. I do not know." Were Not Intermediaries.

Sir Wilfrid next read the statement that Mgr. Sbarretti had promised if certain amendments to the school laws were made the boundaries of Manitoba would be extended to Hudson Bay, also Mgr. Sbarretti's further statement that Manitoba's failure to act in the past had prejudiced her claim for extension westward. Sir Wilfrid declared he could not cenceive how the papal ablegate, or anyone else could have made such a statement, because from July. 1886, until Jamuary 1986, the government had hever received any request from Manitoba for the extension of her boundaries. ndaries.

Dealing with Mr. Rogers' statement as to the mission of the delegates to Ottawa. Sir Wilfrid read the correspondence which he said, went to show that the initiative came not from the Dominion government, but from the government of Manitoba. Then, as to what took place at the interview, Sir Wilfrid said he differed from Mr. Rogers as to the latter's statement that the delegates were asked to remain three or four days longer in Ottawa to receive the government's answer. Sir Wilfrid said that when it came to a discussion as to the extension of Manitoba's boundaries towards Hudson Bay. Sir William Mulock strongly objected, stating that in his opinion it would not be fair to the Province of Ontario that, that claim should be considered unless the Province of Ontario had an opportunity to discuss it. Sir Wilfrid did not remember having asked the delegates to remain a few days in Ottawa, his recollection being that he fold them their representations would be brought to the attention of council, and that probably they would get an answer at an early date. Sir William Mulock.

Sir William Mulock rose at this point and said that at the request of Sir Wilfrid Laurier he had attended the meeting between members of the government and the Manitobs delegates on Feb. 17. So far as he recollected, the minister of justice was not present. When Mr. Rogers urged that the boundaries of Manitoba be extended to Hudson Bay, he (Sir William) opposed the proposition on the ground that Ontario had the right to be heard. Further, he told Mr. Rogers he thought it a waste of time to continue the discussion of the matter, as he was firm that Ontario had the right to be heard. Further, he told Mr. Rogers he thought it a waste of time to continue the discussion of the matter, as he was firm in his claim that Ontario must be heard, and with that he withdrew from the conference. 'So far as the papal ablegate is concerned,' said the postmaster-general, 'the statement made in this newspaper is the first intimation I have had that he took any part in the adjustment of the boundaries of Manitoba.'

Telegram Strengthens Rogers.

The leader of the opposition followed. Mr. Borden congratulated the prime minister upon the fact that, while he had lignored Mr. Sifton and Mr. Fielding in respect to the autonomy bill, the postmaster-general had been so strenous in his advocacy of the rights of Ontario. As to the letter of Feb. 23, all he knew was that he had just received a telegram from the attorney-general of Manitoba, asking him to see that it was brought down, as it had been omitted from the documents produced in the house. That letter, he said, bore out very strongly the view that Mr. Rogers had expressed in his interview, viz., that Sir Wilfrid had asked them to remain two or three days in Ottawa to get the government's answer.

They departed without receiving that answer, but they did receive an intimation from His Excellency Mg. Sbarretti. As to that interview, he would be an accept that Sir Wilfrid might have given his explanation at an earlier date. As long ago as February last, there appeared in The Northwest Review the statement that "The only obstacle to the territorial expansion of our Province of Manitoba is its iniquitous and cruel school greten. Net even the wildest coher of any unorganized territory will consent to saddle itself with such a tyranny. Manitoba must be content to remain small and mean so long as it maintains its small and mean so long as it maintains its small and mean so long as it maintains its small and mean so long as it maintains its small and mean so long as it maintains its small and been brought to the prime minister's content to remain small and mean so long as it maintains its small and mean school politics."

When this statement had been brought to the prime minister's attention, he made no suggestion that it was unfounded. And then, again, there appeared in an organ of the Liberal party in Quebec the declaration that Manitoba would have to remain content with her present small territory because of her pretentious school law. In view of these declarations of Liberal newspapers, Mr. Borden submitted that the prime minister's statements should have been made before to-day.

"I have nothing to say with regard to the position which is said to have been assumed by His Excellency Mgr. Starretti," continued Mr. Borden. "He not in any sense useponsible to his parliament; he is responsible only to his ecclesized superiors in suscertly. The only persons who are in any way responsible to this parliament are he government of this country—(cheers)—and I thought that my light hon, friend to day might have kone a little farther than he did go. He knows as well as any of us that has been stated in the public press hat there were negotiations with Mgr. Sharretti with regard to education in he Northwest, if not in Manitoba Myright hon, friend did not see fit to touch that question to-day."

Mr. Borden added that he was disappointed with the meagreness of the prime minister's explanation and intimated that the subject would be brought up and discussed on a future occasion.

That Missing Letter.

Mr. Staples (Macdonald, Manitoba) arose at this point and said he could bring testimony to show that the letter of Feb. 23 was sent to Sir Wilfrid Lau-

"On Feb. 23 Hon. Mr. Rogers, after writing this letter, asked me to see that it got over te the first minister," said Mr. Staples. "I went down and rang the bell and there came a messenger named Julius Beaulieu. I delivered the letter to him and he said he would deliver it. Now, there is no doubt but that he did deliver the letter.

he would deliver it. Now, there is no doubt but that he did deliver the letter. Surely we are living in a mysterious era. Mysterious things are taking place every day and this is one of them."

Mr. Staples added that he had looked up the records, which showed that the letter had gone from Room No. 62 in the house to Sir Wilfrid's residence on that particular day.

Sir Wilfrid replied that if the letter was sent to his house it must have gone astray somewhere, because he had never seen it.

Mr. Maclean's Challenge.

W. F. Maclean in a vivid speech

Manitoba's boundary to Hudeon Bry at a conference, in which the Provimes of Saskatchewan, Ontario and Manitoba would be represented. Sir Wilfrid next referred to Mr. Roger's letter of Feb. 23, to which Mr. Borden had called his attention. The prime minister read the letter as published in the newspapers.

Sir Wilfrid declared that he had never received the letter, nor had his private secretary; but, in view of what Mr. Rogers had stated in his interview in The Citizen on Feb. 20, he did not consider it was a matter of the Government and every member who sits behind them and supports the Government in this matter.

Rogers stated he expected to learn the government's decision upon Manitoba's claims when the autonomy bills were introduced.

The Truth of '96.

Proceeding to quote from Mr. Rogers' Winnipeg interview, which, he said, appeared in The Citizen under the heading, "Laurier's Doubles-Dealing," Sir Wilfrid said that the Canadian government had never brought down any correspondence with Cardinal Rampolia, as there was no correspondence to bring down. The truth was that in 1836 he (Sir Wilfrid) and several of his co-religionists, having some difficulty in their own church, appealed to the authorities of their church to settle them. This they did not as a government, but simply as men belonging to the Roman Catholic Church.

"We had trouble," said the prime minister, "over matters of ecclesiastical policy, and we appealed to the summinister," over matters of ecclesiastical policy, and we appealed to the surport of the course of his speech, Mr. Bourassa.

In the course of his speech, Mr. Bourassa, said: If any constituency in On-

Mr. Peter White, closing an extremely able speech, said: If that was a fact the papal ablegate should not remain in this country a single hour beyond the time that it would take those gentlemen who brought him here to communicate with Rome and have him recalled.

THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1905. TRUTH FROM COL. MATHESON

The new Provincial Treasurer Hon. Colonel Matheson, has been enabled to demonstrate what he 'all along contended in opposition, the non-existence of a surplus revenue in the real sense of the word. By counting the assets consisting of funds held in trust for the Province by the Dominion Government, and also the proceeds from the sale of timber, Crown lands, and mining concessions, the late Government was able to figure out a so-called surplus varying in amount with the different statements made by ministers concerning it. At one time it was six millions, at another five,, four, three and a half, and so on. No member of the late administration could even be brought to an exact account of the moneys strictly available in the Treasury, which could be properly treated as surplus. The reason was that the Treasury was replete or deficient according as the sales of timber and other Crown appanages were extensive and prosper ous or otherwise. The sums thus gathered and lying over could not truly be called "surplus." They represented only a diminution by so much of the reserve wealth. The Province was living upon its capital It may still have to do so to a large extent, but it would be dishonest to the public of Ontario to pretend that any excess of revenue thus obtained over the necessary current expenditure was "surplus" in the sense of savings, such as constituted the surplus of three and a half millions under Sandfield Macdonald. The people should be told the truth about the finances, not hoodwinked by the arts of "book-keeping," and by de scribing as so much money ahead what in reality has been deducted from the permanent estate. Matheson is quite right in telling the people exactly how the matter stands, because the financial burdens of the Province are increasing in direct ratio with the development of the new regions and the expansion of the public institutions, asylums, hospitals and charities, which the Province bound itself to assist.

The Government cannot go from year to year taking toll of the Provincial patrimony without coming at length to the end of it. In the absence of a vigorous and intelligent policy of replacement, the result is inevitable bankruptcy of natural resources or resort to direct taxation. It is gratifying to think that under the new regime such a policy will be speedily entered upon to treat the public estate in the same way as a private estate must be handled to be of lasting profit. The late Government did practically nothing to ward restoring the forests which were systematically and ruthlessly plundered to provide funds for going expenses, not to speak of the plunderings of political hangers-on, which were permissible by lax and irregufar administration. So long as a "surplus" could be made out, the "gurplus" could be made out, the Mowats, Hardys, Pardees and Rosses, gan gets weaker and weaker all the seemed to be guite satisfied. To them Northern Ontario was an almost unknown land, until the Soo enterprises wakened them up to the extent of our latest riches. Then, what had been accomplished by the rained Philadelphia capitalists became with the Ross politicians the boast of their own handiwork. The present Government is seeking to find "hard pan" in regard to the find "hard pan" in regard to the finances, to know the precise foundation of a new forward policy, It is, therefore, satisfactory to know that from the inside view which he has gained since his accession to of-fice, the new Treasurer has found, and has no interest in failing to declare, the bias on which the public financial ability and credit rest. If it is a nard pill to swallow, the blame is not with the present Government. It is on the shoulders of those who year in and year out pulled the wool over the public eyes, alluring and deceiving the country by fictitious and delusive financial reckonings.-London Free Press.

mense Value of the Electrical Purification of Flour.

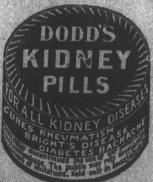

The lecture was most exhaustive and instructive, dealing with the growth of wheat, its constituents and the electrical treatment of flour. Mr. Gray remarked that but little could be said concerning the percentage of nourishment contained in the different grades of our North-Western hard wheat, as it varies from year to year.

Western hard wheat, as it varies from year to year, Speaking of chemical experiment, Mr. Gray pointed out what had been done in this line in regard to wheat, during the last ten or twelve years, in the different experimental stations of the United States. It was but very recently, however, that laboratories had been established in connection with flour mills, but they have already demonstrated their utility.

nection with floar mills, but they have already demonstrated their utility.

As to the purification of flour by electricity, the speaker remarked that it is about two years since this method was adopted, and the development has been wonderful. A beautiful silvery whiteness is produced by subjecting flour to air which has been passed through a flaming electrical discharge. The flour has also, as a consequence, better keeping qualities and commands a better price. The Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, he said, was the only firm in Canada, and one of the first in America, to make use of this purifying and sterilizing process.

Dora Thorne-April 11.

"Dora Thorne" Company play the London Grand on Saturday next. St. Thomas on Monday and here Tuesday, Seats go on sale Saturday. The charming romance, "Dora Thorne," has been converted into a pretty play of the popular-priced class, and is very refreshing from the fact that there is a noticeable absence of the spectaular and pyrotechnic display, so common in our melodramas of nowadays, "Dora Thorne" is prettily told, and has a most happy ending, and one feels assured that the interesting little Dora "lived happy ever after," in spite of all her troubles. The play is in sharp contrast to the majority of dramatic offerings, in, that sentiment is placed before excitement, and that the author does not rely on melo-dramatic situations to interest his auditors. Strong comedy bits relieve the pathetic tentions just at the right moment, and as a play to interest and please all classes, it has not an equal now before the has not an equal now before the

PHONES IN TWIN TOWNS

Port Arthur and Fort William's Experience of Municipalization.

Ex-Mayor Dyke Relates the Vicissitudes and Triumphs of the Towns' Experiment With Its 'Phone System -Declares Most Emphatically Before Committee That He is Fully Satisfied With It As a Citizen.

Offawa, April 5.—Sir William Mu-

Ottawa, April 5.—Sir William Mulecie's special telephone committee, yesterday morping heard the evidence of ex-Mayor Jeshua Dyke, of Fort William, on the working of the municipal telephone system in the twin towns or Fort William and Fort Arthur. The system was established in 1902, 22d now there are 560 telephones in Fort William and 515 in Fort Arthur, with free exchange for all subscribers between the two towns, and no charge for cosual custamers. The capital outley in Fort William was said to be $31,660, and $21,000 in Fort Arthur, the difference being largely due to the fire which destroyed the former station. In 1903 there was a deside of $576 on the Fort William system, but last year this was wiped out, and there was a surplus of $455. The rental to subscribers was $12 a year for private and $24 for business 'phones. This rental, as was shown, covered all expenses and interest, sinking fund, etc., giving the surplus indicated.

interest, sinking fund, etc., giving the surglus indicated.

Shut Out from C. P. R.

One of the interesting statements of Mf. Dyke was that the C. P. R., to whom Fort William has now given about twe million deliars for its terminals, etc., rgfuged the local, phone system access to any of its property, station or elevaters, owing to a centract with the Bell Ce., which has become a matter of history, but on application to the Canadian Northern failway they readily densented to an entrance to their station. In this cennection Mr. Dyke produced amfavits from business men, declaring that they suffered great inconvenience through lack of connection with the C. P. R., and believed it a restriction on trade.

Sariaus Charasa Made.

Scrieus Charges Made.

Berieus Charges Made.

Mr. Dyke made serious charges against the Bell Telephone Co, that they had in several ways tried to frustrate the local system, in addition to making a menopely agreement with the CP. R. after the town undertook to establish its system. He charged that the Bell Co. tried to injure the cyredit of the towns by publication in eastern papers, and were a party to the publication in The Ottawa Free Frees of an article presumably friendly but really in antagonism to the town's interests. He also charged that the Bell Co. new give one hundred free phones in Fort William and fifty he Fort Arthur to try to crush out, the local system. He arrived at this by producing figures of their rental per subscriber and of their gress revenue, as swom to for assessment purposes, which shewed a great disparity. Another of Mr. Dyke's charges was that a representative of the Bell Co. in the person of Capt. Helmes, had connived with W. H. Byran, a local labor man, to circulate a petition to have a special audit made of the town's finances, and thus to cast discredit upon it. Twolve of those who signed the petition had since declared that they signed it under false representations, and the audit has never been made. striction on trade.

of those who signed the petition had since declared that they signed it under false representations, and the audit has never been made.

Mr. Alex. Johnston pressed Mr. Dyke to say if he knew this of his own knowledge, and he produced an official decument printed by the Council making the statements, saying he believed that the statements had been made by a hamber of Council when the pamphlet was printed.

Local System Satisfactery.

"Are you," asked Mr. W. F. Maclean, "as a citizen, satisfied with the experiment you have made in the municipalization of your telephone?"

"Most certainly so," Mr. Dyke answered, "in efficiency, service, in satisfaction to the general public, and financial results."

The committee will hear more from Mr. Dyke te-day.

FINE NEEDLEWORK

Some Dainty Applications of French Ribbon Embroidery.

The ribbon used in this embroidery something like a soft taffets or louisine. Many of the large shops carry a supply of the most popular shades. Ribbosene, which is sometimes used in place of the French ribbon, has a craped surface and is much thinner and more perishable.

The designs intended to be carried out in ribbon work are all copied from the ones used in the time of Marie Antoinette, the most elaborate patterns showing baskets of flowers filled to overflowing and bedecked with ribbons and garlands. Moire or a small figured brocade is the favorite background.

The work is done with a crewel or long eyed needle, the ribbon being cut into short strips, seldom over four or five inches in length. The flower petals and leaves are made by starting a petal at the base, bringing the ribbon thread up at this point and putting it down through to the wrong side again at the top of the petal, each stitch forming a single petal or leaf. Where the figures are so broad that a single stitch will not cover the outline the needle may be put down as close as possible to the point where it was brought out, drawing the ribbon through until only a short loop is left, which will just reach to the tip of the petal. Catch this loop down with a tiny stitch made with silk the shade of the ribbon and then start again on another petal. When flowers or leaves are worked in this way it is usually necessary to take a small stitch in each side of the

Both these articles are made of white silk and lined with pink, but the bootees are worked with ribbosene instead of the French ribbon. An interesting feature of the cap is the finishing of the edge. This is done with a crochet needle and a double stream of crochet needle and a double strand of the ribbon. In this case pink and white were used. A row of single crochet stitches done quite close together and not pulled tight was worked all around, making a soft, puffy edge, which was The Cerset For the Figure of Today.

The approved type of figure is one that the Frenchwoman is pretty constant to—the straight front, sloping gently from the bust downward, the low cut at the top, the cambre back and sides, but she does not drag down the waist line to a ridiculous depth in front, and now, while the straight slope in front is preserved, the sides and back are very carefully curved to give the waist a round look.

As a head covering "the polo" is a pretty farce, for it is the merest incident. The Materials Comparatively Incr-pensive—Articles of Combined Use and Beauty Are Its Field — Some Good Designs Illustrated.

It is the endeavor in this little paper a pyrography to meet the wants of case who order the articles they wish to decorate by mall and by catalogue from any large dealer in pyrographic materials. Several articles, especially in leather, may be made at home. Frames for holding photographs are

A design for a nut bowl in the fash-lonable Indian style is shown, The drawing, inclosed by a circle, is to be placed inside the bowl and the band is for the exterior edge.

These nut sets consist of a large bowl for nuts or fruit and any number of smaller ones. These bowls come in nests and make charming little catchalls. They may be used for fruit and decorated with the same. The foregoing articles have all been made of wood of some kind.

A favorite design for a frame in leather is illustrated. Sometimes these frames are not easily procured, but may be made. Skins costing about $1.50 and containing about seven square feet can be bought in two shades of tan, several of brown, in sandes of tan, several of brown, in dark red, green, etc. A mat of heavy cardboard is cut, with an opening the required size, and is covered with paste. This is firmly pressed on the skin, leaving a margin of one inch on top and left side and of three or four inches on right side and bottom. It is dried under heavy pressure Parts the inch der heavy pressure. Paste the inch wide margin on the inside of the mat; cut the same margin on every side of the opening and paste smoothly on the inside. After the burning is finished the wide margin is slashed into a fringe. Large and gay kindergarten beads may be strung on the fringe two or three on a strand about an inch apart.—Modern Priscellie.

The Washing of Ribbons.

The washing of ribbons is not always attended by the best results, but a writer in a household exchange gives a hint that sounds promising: I like this method, taught me by a milliner, haster than any vet tried: Put the riba hint that sounds promising: I like this method, taught me by a milliner, better than any yet tried: Put the ribbon into a basin of warm water, rub on some good white soap, and wash as you would anything else. While still wet iron on the right side with a hot fron, and when dry rub between the hands as if washing it until all the stiffness is out of it. Then iron again to remove the wrinkles. Washed in this way it is difficult to tell it from new ribbon.

"Cellaritis" an Early Spring Hint,
"Cellaritis" is the very descriptive term which some physicians apply to a condition of the body when it is debilitated as the result of living in a house ifated as the result of living in a house in which there is an unclean or improperly cared for cellar. This word may be fielther good Greek nor Latin, but it carries to all housewives in its very sound a hint as to what causes the illness, and in many cases this is all that is required to bring about a different condition in the health of a family, by the renovation of the cellar and the removal of the cause of illness.

When to Anchor.

A minister has given this well defined exposition of the text, "And having done all, to stand." On some body of water near his home there was one day a race between two boats. The captain of one saw that he was get-ting behind, but he also saw that at the particular point where they were the current was stronger than the wind and that the head boat, tho apparently progressing, was really drifting backward. Quickly taking in the situation, this captain of the rear boat cast anchor and won the race.

OVERCOME BY GAS

A. W. Law, a young Englishman n the employ of the Gas Co., had a narrow escape from death this morn ing. He, with some others, was putting a service pipe into the residence of J. J. Dr. Hall wasn't even breathing. Dr. Hall was hastily summoned and, on his arrival, set those present at work forcing respiration. John Park took this work in charge and in 15 minutes he had the man breathing. He gradheld the man breathing he gradiently regained consciousness and was removed to his home. REID VS. MACDUNALD

The case of Reid vs. Macdonald, tried in the County Court before Judge Dowlin, was concluded yester day, judgment being given for the Alex. Macdonald, a Chatham Tp. farmer, died in 1893, leaving two sons, Chas. H. and John A. He left Wm. Reid and Mr. Fewster, two neighbors, executors. They collected the $3,000 life insurance, bought a farm and took a deed in the boys' name. The accounts were passed before Judge Bell, in which it was held that the estate was indebted to the executors for about $175. The sons refused ito play and Reid sued in the County Court.

The defendants set up that the executors hadn't worked for the best interests of the boys, but for themselves and on the results.

CARD OF THANKS

The Horse During the Middle Ages.

The importance of the horse during the middle ages, especially in the crusades and in the tournaments which followed in the wake of the crusades, is significant. Fully half the glamor and romance that surrounded the knight belonged to the horse, for without the horse those daring deeds in behalf of the weak and suffering had never been done. The horse, however, has had his reward, for the best feature of the middle age, outside the church, is closely identified with his name, lasting traces of which are seen in the noble word "chivalry."

The Mighty Hunter.

"Yes," says our host, "this is the skin of a grizzly bear that I shot in the tropics."

"But," we suggest gently, "grizzly bears are only found in Colorado and localities in that latitude."

"I know," he replies proudly. "But I chased this fellow clean out of this country and shot him at last. I was clean out of breath when I got within range of him too."

A Glimpse of Emerson, Thorean and Hawthorne. Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis says in her "Bits of Gossip" that Emerson as she met him in Concord in 1862 was a typical Yankee in appearance: "The tall, gaunt man with the watchful, pa-tient face and slightly dazed eyes, his hands clasped behind his back, that came slowly down the shady village street toward the Wayside that summer day was Uncle Sam himself in ill fitting brown clothes. I have often wondered that none of his biographers have noticed the likeness."

Emerson said to Mrs. Davis: "I wish

Emerson said to Mrs. Davis: "I wish Thoreau had not died before you came. He was an interesting study." She asked why, and after a moment he replied: "Henry often reminded me of an animal in human form. He had the eye of a bird, the scent of a dog, the most acute, delicate intelligence, but no soul. No," he repeated, shaking his head with decision, "Henry could not have had a human soul."

Mrs. Davis remarks on Hawthorne's not have had a human soul."

Mrs. Davis remarks on Hawthorne's shyness and on his love of seciusion, which indeed was a family trait: "Personally he was a rather short, powerfully built man, gentle and low voiced, with a siy, clusive humor gleaming sometimes in his watchful gray eyes. The portrait with which we are all familiar, a curled barber shop head, gives no idea of the singular, melancholy charm of his face. There was a mysterious power in it which I have never seen elsewhere in picture, statue or human being." or human being."

This possibly had something to do with the depres-sion of mind that drove her into the serious field of sociology, the very wich and the very poor being in prac-tically the same predicament. To have every wish gratified is in effect as crushing as to have no wish gratified. This is as plain as a pikestaff, and it This is as plain as a pikestaff, and it doubtless had something to do with Marcia Sinclair's unnatural thirst for

In consequence she might have been seen almost any day that winter wending her way up to Columbia, clad in austere tailor made gowns and carrying a book or two, as the "outward visible sign" of her inward intensity. Sociology, she decided at the start, should begin at home, and thereupon she abandoned her carriage and took to street cars, thereby seeing more of real life than she ever had seen before. In this wise the winter days marched by, keeping step, it seemed to her, with a grim, stupefying monotony. Whether she looked backward into the past or forward into the future, the view was same—a blur of gray days huddled together by the perspective. She was listlessly thinking some such Thoughts as these on her way to a lecture one day when a man in overalls and blouse boarded the car. Something in the way he carried himself attracted her attention.

"Might be the Emperor William travreling incog.," she mused as her aroused glance took in the square set shoulders, clear cut face and crisp hair. A few months earlier it would not have occurred to her to notice a man in overalls and blouse at all. Seen from her carriage, they had been mere shadows, by no means human beings. Now all was different. Though she began to suspect that the pursuit of knowledge was only another of the endless makeshifts by which we strive to forget the ennui of life, she had learned one cardinal fact-namely, that the humblest worker shares all the most important things of life with the greatest poten

The young workman meantime had leg over the other and, with an arm extended along the back of the seat, turn-ed a preoccupied glance out of the window, thereby presenting to his vis-a-vis a profile that, to say the least, bespoke absolute physical integrity.

His hands, she noticed with growing wonder, though large and powerful, were of the sort most frequently seen protruding from the sleeves of modish tweeds or knowing tuxedos. Emerg-ing from the sleeves of a blouse they were nothing short of startling, and Miss Sinclair was stirred by an interest that degenerated into curiosity What manner of workman could he be who wore all the habiliments of toll with the air of one descended from a throne for an hour's masquerading?

With an abrupt turn of the head, un cannily suggestive of his having heard her mute query, he turned and received her puzzled glance full in the fage.
For a moment they stared at each other with the undisturbed frankness of a pair of children; then Miss Sinclair, with an acute recollection of the new-live acquired fact that the humblest of toilers is a person and not a thing, withdrew her eyes, while the man in overalls took his turn at inspecting. It was for this reason that she did not see the slight twitch of the lips not see the slight twitch or the ups that had followed the open amazement of her glance. When, later in the day, she recalled the little scene that followed she could find but one excuse. It was an up-flare of that madness which a certain philosopher had long since discovered as lurking in each and every human brain.

A quick, resolute desire to know who A quick resolute desire to know who and what he was had seized her, and for twenty-five years she had been accustomed to getting what she wanted. Was he not by every token a mere workman, a man of the sort that might come to to fix the electric wires of solve plumbing mysteries? Why, then, should she hesitate to address him?

Lifting her eyes, she leaned forward with the serene blandness of a queen addressing a subject.

"Pardon me"—the voice was very winning, but the dullest could not have misunderstood; it was meant to put an inferior perfectly at ease—"pardon me, but I wonder if you would think it very strange if I asked you a few questions. I'm interested in labor unions," she continued, with a beautiful directness "and I should so like to hear labor's side. Excuse the personality, but you have the appearance of a workman who thinks for himself—who"— other like little waves across his quiv-ering lips, while his eyes held a hun-dred dancing smiles. Then suddenly the lights went out, and his face was all humble, flattered gravity.

"I'll do my best, miss," he replied, "though, as to having thought the matter out for myself, I can't claim that I have. Still, we—us union men—think labor ought to have a chance, and we're going to have it too. We'll have capital, on #s kness to my serf. We'll have capital on its knees to us yet! We'll knock the props from under it, and don't you forget it!"

With thinly concealed anxiety—the anxiety of one who was playing a part and who wondered if he had done well—he watched the effect of his words. But he need have had no fear, for his listener had no standard by which to judge him. She had listened with slowly kindling eyes and the general appearance of one coming into touch with the realities of life for the first lumbia she alighted with the conviction that the man in the blouse had infused a new interest into life, while he, as the car coasted down the hill into Harlem, stared blankly after her disappearing figure for a second and

"The joke's on me," he confided to himself ruefully. "It seems, then, that blood doesn't always tell and that it does take the tailor to make the man."
He glanced at the address she had scribbled on a slip of paper for him, shrugged his shoulders and narrowed his eyes thoughtfully, the outcome being a decision that she needed the lesson. Besides, the corners of her mouth were distracting!

In the days that followed Miss Sinclair was more and more amazed at the intelligence, as well as the contradic tions, of John Clayton, electrician. His speech would flow on with a smooth elegance astonishing in a man of his class, then, without warning, break into the most ear splitting errors.

"Hack-kneed phrases! Mere hack-kneed phrases!" he exclaimed fervently in the midst of a discussion one day. You see, miss, in your en-vy-ron-ment' —he accented the third syllable strong-ly—"you can't see the things that I see." Never by any chance did he use her surname. Yet his manner at times —in moments of self forgetfulness, she fancied-verged upon perfection. Nev-er in her life had she met with such contradictions. And never in her life, she mutely admitted to herself at last, in a state of breathless dismay-never had she met a man so entirely interesting.

Of himself he spoke but little, but deep question he would catch a soft, absent, woman look in the eyes fixed intently upon him-a look that had to do not with wealth, position or the betterment of the working classes, but that made him grow strangely warm and inwardly call himself a brute.

It was at a dinner party three months after their first meeting that the unmasking took place—one blinding flash of surprise when Mr. Harrington was presented to her, and then Miss Sinclair was herself again.
"Well?" he murmured brazenly when he found himself seated beside her at

"Pray, what is your real name, and, if I may ask, do you regard life as a bal masque?" Deftly she managed to impart to the question that elusive touch of insult the use of which is one of the most delicate arts that society has to teach. But Harrington did not wince.

Genius Inimical to "Prizes."

There is not in existence a single great opera, oratorio, symphony or indeed any fine piece of musical art which is the result of the prize system. There is "Cavalleria," which is drivel, there are other works which are worse drivel, but no one can name to me a really fine work that has won a prize. The reason, though apparently ridicular really fine work that has won a prize. The reason, though apparently ridiculously simple, is sufficient. In music the big men contemptuously refuse to compete for prizes. I know that in sculpture it is otherwise. Stevens' Wellington affair, which, they tell me, is kept in a cellar somewhere, is proof of that. But there is not a fine prize play, neize picture, prize poem, prize piece of who"—

When You Less Your Taste.
"When people lose their taste." said a physician, "they retain their old likes and dislikes just the same. Miss Smith, for instance, can't tell a slice of roast beef from a fried onion, but she dis-liked onions before her taste went, and ilinesses, and with the loss of taste the loss of smell nearly always goes; hence queer, cruel practical jokes. I know woman without smell to whom a pint of onion juice was sent in a cologne bottle. She deluged herself with this onion juice and appeared in a crowded heated ballroom.

"To a man without taste or smell all cheeses must be alike, yet old Brown-low won't touch limburger. He says it would make him ill, and probably it would. It is very odd to hear these de ficient people praising and condemning food and drink. They do it, though. They do it as heartly as you or I. I have seen old Brownlow send away in disgust a glass of white wine, claiming it was corked, while at the same time he ate calmly an addled egg."

Ments and Digestion. Of all known meats veal is the hard-est to digest, requiring five hours and thirty minutes. The Italians are a happy people. They are healthy and hopeful. Their favorite meat is veal. Veal in the New York markets must weigh exactly 120 pounds to the car-cass to be perfect. That is the standard of quality and price. All sorts of tricks are resorted to to hit the mark precisely. The question is, What is best for the human race, food that re-quires a long time to digest or a short time? Roast beef is digested in thre hours. We Americans are great eaters of pork, which is nearly as hard to digest as veal, requiring five hours and fifteen minutes. We are a nation of dyspeptics, reveling in fresh bread, which takes three hours and fifteen minutes. China and Japan live on rice, which digests in one hour.

Pulling Ostrich Feather A man who runs an ostrich farm, asked the other day as to the method of gathering the feathers, admitted that they were pulled out of the birds once in every eight mouths. Was the process painful?

"Well," he replied, "about equal to pulling out your eyeteeth." A good many ladies who wear ostrich feathers do so in the belief that they are thereby serving the cause of humanity. As a matter of fact, they are encouraging the most cruel and barbarous forture which man can inflict upon a

The phrase "to sham Abraham" was coined in Bedlam, or Bethlehem hospital, where there was at one time an Abraham ward, the inmates of which upon certain days were permitted to go out as licensed begars on behalf of the hospital. These mendicant lu-natics were known as "Abraham men." and their success in invoking the pity of the charitable was such that they had many unlicensed imitators, who, when discovered, were said "to have shammed Abraham."

Fighting Seasickness There is one place in a ship where the voyager may be at rest. Was Given Up to Die. The Doctor Said So.

Burdock Blood Bitters Saved Her Life.

Read what Mrs. Wm. Castilloux, Newport, Quebec, has to say about Burdock Blood Bitters :- "Last December I fell very sick after confinement. I was not able to walk for three months, and was given up to die by the doctor. My husband read of the many wonderful cures made by Burdock Blood Bitters, so procured me two bottles. After using it for about ten days, I was able to get around, and could mind my baby without help from anyone, and am now well, and able to do my own work. I told a lady friend of mine who was troubled in the same way, and she used it with equal success. I cannot too highly recommend your medicine, for I know just how good it is, and hope and wish that anyone suffering

The deceased lady was born at Eton. England, in 1810, and in her youth was employed as a domestic in the famous Eton College. She had a clear recollection of the sovereigns of England, since George the Third, and remembered having seen George the Third, George the Fourth, William the Fourth, Queen Victoria, and the present King when he was Prince of Wales, and on one occasion had helped to push the late occasion had helped to push the late Queen's chair in the park at Windson. Bedroom Climate. On the tombstone of tens of thor-sands of those who have died from

To show that this is no exaggeration ft is only necessary to call attention to the fact that fully half the tubercular patients placed in outdoor consumptive hospitals make a satisfactory recovery. If fresh air will cure the disease, it is certainly a wonderful preventive of it.

ARTIST WHISTLER'S GENIUS IN GREAT SHOW AT LONDON.

Collection of 750 Master's Works Makes Imposing Exhibition-Public Galleries and Private Collections in All Parts of the Globe Contribute-Only a Few of Whistler's More Important Works Are Missing.

Rarely has there ever been so triumphal a demonstration of a great artist's genius as the Whistier exhibition, which was opened in London on the 25th Feb. by M. The fine arts correspondent of the The line arts correspondent of the European edition of The New York Herald in London writes as follows:

Too Much For the Cook. He was a new waiter in a down-town restaurant, and after he had waited on a man who was seated at one of the tables the other noon he went behind the cold lunch counter to eat his own dinner. Presently be dropped down from his stool and whistled up the tube to the cook on the se floor. "Where's that pie I ordered?" he asked. "Hurry it up." The cook's reply could not be heard. He was evidently a suspicious cook, and he provoked the new waiter. The volley the latter fired into the tin funnel sounced like a bunch of firecreators. like a bunch of firecrackers going off in a barrel. "Heavens!" he spluttered. "Did you think I wanted it for myself? I haven't been here long, but I've seen your pies. I haven't been disappointed in love, and I haven't got any domestic troubles. When I'm desperate, I'll take something easier to swallow than one of your pies. There's a customer here waiting for it. He's no friend of mine or I'd switch him off on to crackers and cheese. CRUSADE AGAINST CLUTTER A Good Time to Inaugurate It Is With the Early Spring Cleaning.

"The elimination of clutter!" My very soul responds to the toast. In some of our American homes the inmates seem to have gone "lamp mad," in others "table mad," in others still "vase mad," while in one and all of those that run to clutter there is the gamut of bric a-brac, the inevitable carved or painted fans, the bits of historic lace, the exquisite this and commonplace that, with two or three times as many chairs, sofas and stools as are necessary to proper furnishing. It would be impossible to describe the mischievous sequential effects of this art riot in the homes of people of moderate means or or those less fortunate than the well to Clutter and the Servant Problem. First, who can estimate how much the overfurnishing of homes has to do with the prevailing discontent among the servant class? A house overloaded with furnishings and ornamental impedimenta is far more difficult to keep clean and requires more time for such cleaning than a house furnished accord-ing to the ideals. cleaning than a house furnished according to the ideals of good taste. But is such extra work allowed for by the housekeeper who overfurnishes? It is safe to answer rarely, if ever. General cleaning day is a tax upon strength, nerves and spirits which has its influ-ence upon the work of the rest of the week. The handling and care of very valuable articles is a matter of time and strain not sufficiently considered in the apportioning of duties.

How Clutter Affects Health, The other protest against clutter re-lates to a more serious consideration health. A prominent physician said re-cently in my hearing, "The furnishing of American homes is a reflection of of American nervousness, and, conversely, American nervousness is aggravated by the furnishings of American homes." The duliest human being, we know, is affected to some degree by surfacement, and it is easy to conceive environment, and it is easy to conceive that where there is not a reposeful spot in a room to which one can turn the eye there must be a constant though perhaps unconscious strain upon one in that room.—Ella Morris Kretschmar in Good Housekeeping.
