Additional Locals.

How many cooks know that when boiling meat—corned beef, chicken, in fact meat of any kind—a teaspoonful of vinegar to a large piece, a smaller teaspoonful to a smaller piece, placed in the water when first put over the fire will make it deliciously tender. There will positively be no flavor of the vinegar in the meat when cooked.

—Tom Bennett spent a couple of days this week in Mildmay. Tom has been making his home in Yautaum, Howick, recently, and keeps a watchful eye on the behavior of his neighbors. One farmer in that district incurred Tom's displeasure by buying a litter of pigs on the Sabbath day, and Tom is going to have him up before the beak in Wingham if he does it again. Andrew Heidrich, formerly of Carrick, is now a resident of Yautaum, and Tom suspects that he is engaged in the manufacture of bogus ballot boxes, and has him under careful surveillance, awaiting further developments.

BORN.

HAMEL—In Mildmay, on October 13th, to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hamel, a son.

CARR—In Edmonton, on October 7th, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Carr, (nee Moyer) a daughter.

OPTIMISTIC TO THE END

Some time ago there was a flood in Western Pennsylvania. An old fellow who had lost nearly everything he possessed was sitting on the roof of the house as it floated along when a boat approached.

"Hello, John!"
 "Hello, Dave!"
 "Are your fowls all washed away, John?"

"Yes, but the ducks can swim," replied the old man.

"Apple trees gone?"
 "Well, they said the crop would be a failure anyhow."

"I see the flood's away above your window."

"That's all right, Dave, them winders need washin', anyhow."

A Milwaukee chorus girl has left the stage to become an evangelist. This is the most sensational turn she ever made.

Judge Klein has so far recovered his health as to be able to attend to his duties. He presided at Division Court here on Tuesday. There were only a couple of cases and these were adjourned.—Teeswater News.

FORMOSA.

Mr. Kelsey, photographer, of Durham, has rented the gallery in town and is turning out first-class work. He has been living at Neustadt the last year and intends moving his family here this week.

Died—On Sunday, Oct 11th, John J. Alt, of Carrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nic. Alt, aged 30 years. The funeral took place on Wednesday forenoon to the R. C. cemetery here.

—Tony Rettinger, the new blacksmith, has bought a cold tire setting machine. He also put up a nice sign on his shop, painted by Mr. A. Schell.

Quite a number from here attended the Reinhart sale on Monday.

Mr. Geo. Helwig, bank clerk of Mildmay, was in town on Monday on business.

Rev. J. J. Gehl was called to New Germany last week on account of the serious illness of his father.

Clifford.

Mr. D. McKenzie, on Tuesday moved into the cottage opposite the school, and Mr. S. Merner moved from the cottage to Mrs. Heipel's brick adjoining.

Mr. Milton Leonard has been re-appointed assessor of Howick township, and has begun his duties, as the assessment has to be taken in the fall.

What came near being a fatal accident occurred on the farm of H. Kaufman on Monday. Mr. Jacob Frey, sr., who was assisting at the threshing, while working on the threshing table, made a mistake and was thrown directly in front of the rapidly revolving cylinder. Mr. Hy. Heinbacher, who was feeding the machine, with great presence of mind seized Mr. Frey, and with difficulty rescued him from his perilous position. The whole occurrence occupied but a few seconds, but was sufficient for Mr. Frey to make a mental inventory of all his past life.

YAWNING AS USEFUL EXERCISE

Of course you were always taught by your good mother that it is very rude to yawn. Well, here comes Dr. Nageli, of Tromsø, Norway, who says that yawning is one of the best of all breathing exercises. Says the doctor: "The act of yawning puts into play all the breathing muscles of the thorax and the neck, and consequently it is a natural exercise, probably instituted by Providence for your welfare. Every good doctor should, therefore, advise his friends to yawn largely and to make a practice of stretching at every opportunity. There's no better exercise for the throat or the chest, and one good gape mouthed yawn is worth a dozen breathing bouts. It is one of the best cures for nasal and thoracic catarrh." Therefore, gentle reader, yawn aesthetically, if you can; yawn proudly, yawn boldly, because it is good for you.

A tornado did much damage in Winnipeg district. In one case a house was lifted from over the heads of a family and carried away.

Mr. Ed. M. Diemert has taken the position of assistant in Mr. W. H. Litt's store, filling the vacancy caused by the leaving of Mr. Russell Reddon, who has gone to London where he has a situation as book-keeper with the International Harvester Co.—Teeswater News.

A very peculiar incident took place on the C. P. R. near Dumfries station one day recently when an express train left the rails and after bumping over the ties for a few seconds jumped on the track again and proceeded as merrily as if nothing had happened. Railway men say this is the funniest freak known to trainmen anywhere. The train was going at a high rate of speed, the track between Ayr and Galt being known to engineers as the race course.

It was during a very tedious ride on a Western railway, and the passengers, tired, dirty, and thirsty, all berated the company, with the exception of one single man. His fellow-passengers commented on this, and asked him why he did not denounce the company, too. "It would be hardly fair," he replied, "as I am travelling on a free pass: but, if they don't do better pretty soon, blame me if I don't go out and buy a ticket and join you."

BELMORE.

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. Wm. Crawford on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 30, at 5 o'clock, when his daughter, Miss Ida Alberta, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Oliver Stokes, a prosperous young farmer of Turnberry. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Radford, of Belmore, in the presence of about seventy invited guests the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The parlor was nicely decorated for the occasion, the ceremony being performed under a floral horse-shoe, suspended from an arch of evergreens and white roses. The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, who gave her away; she carried a beautiful bridal bouquet of white carnations, and was very becomingly attired in a rich dress of white silk eolienne trimmed with silk chiffon lace and applique. She also wore a beautiful bridal veil, caught up with orange blossoms. The bride and groom were unattended. The playing of the appropriate wedding march was well done by Miss Evelyn, sister of the bride. The ceremony performed and the congratulations fully extended, all proceeded to the spacious dining-room which was beautifully decorated with evergreens and white flowers. The tables were ably waited upon by four friends of the bride, Misses Jennie Stewart and Etta Newton, and Messrs. Wesley Montgomery of Gorrie, James Lang of Britton. The bride was the recipient of many useful and valuable presents, testifying the high esteem in which she is held. Amongst those present at the wedding were friends from Moorefield, Linwood, Millbank, Teeswater and Wroxeter.

NOT WISELY, BUT TOO WELL

The drouth ought to teach people a little sense. I am speaking particularly to the folks in the suburbs and out in the country—the people of the villages.

Now, out in the country each family has its own well. Nothing wrong about that if the well is all right; but I am afraid that in too many cases the well is not all right. Now that the water is low, just a puddle at the bottom, if you went down into one of these wells you would see things that would make you sick, even if you didn't drink any of the vile stuff at the bottom.

The medical health officers are mighty particular about the water that the dairy cows drink; why don't they get busy and examine the water that the humans drink? There is death in seven wells in ten out in the country. If the M. H. O. investigated some of the wells he might find a dead sheep in the bottom of one, a missing hen and chickens in another, not to mention a few frogs and other stock that got in and couldn't get out again. It's the old mistake of looking after No. 1. Everybody in the country has his own well, and his own binder, and his own mower, and his own silage cutter, and his own seeder, and his own roller, and so on, and it keeps him poor paying for them and keeping them in repair. One of these implements should do four or five of them, if they had much sense as a hen.

But it is the well that is the thing.

Away down in the inviolate region that wondrous filtering basin of sand that God has placed under our feet there are inexhaustible cisterns of cool, pure water. Why not tap it with one fine well for the good of the whole community? The saving in doctor's bills would pay for it in one year. The precious babies would survive, and the grownups would have better health—yes, and the milk would be a better quality.

But, no; they won't do that. Every Tom, Dick and Harry will stick to his own infested well.—The Khan.

A man from the vicinity of Ethel was sentenced at Goderich last week by His Honor Judge Doyle to pay a fine of $500, plus $100 towards the costs of prosecution, for the seduction of his stepdaughter. He was also required to furnish three bonds for his future good behavior.

A Missouri editor has it this way:—"The wind bloweth, the water floweth, the farmer soweth, the subscriber oweth and the Lord knoweth that we are in need of our dues. So come a runnin' ere we go a gunnin'! This thing of dunnin' gives us the blues."

THE MODERN STEAMSHIP

ELECTRIC MARVELS ON BIG ATLANTIC LINERS.

The Latest Cunard Steamers Utilize Electricity for a multitude of Purposes.

Although much has, from time to time, been written about the two leviathan Cunard steamers, Lusitania and Mauretania, yet comparatively few can grasp the significant part which electricity plays throughout these ships. A few facts relating to the electrical equipment of the Mauretania may be of interest.

Apart from the 70,000 h. p. of the turbines which propel the ship through the water, the electrical power, which is supplied by four generators, represents an additional 2,144 h. p.

Electricity is used not only for illuminating the ship at night, but for a multitude of other purposes, such as operating the lifts, of which there are two for passengers' use, eight for baggage and mails, and two smaller ones in the pantries. Electrically-driven cranes and winches are also provided. It may be of interest to know that 6,300 electric lamps are installed throughout the ship, giving the enormous total of over 100,000 candle-power. For heating the first-class quarters sixty electric radiators have been fitted, to say nothing of some forty-three heaters in the bathrooms for use during the cold weather.

NUMEROUS ELECTRIC FANS are used for ventilating the various rooms, and are so arranged that they can supply either warm or cool air according to the weather, while the air in the cabins can be totally changed six or eight times in an hour. Apart from the above ventilating-fans, sixteen larger ones, of 50 h. p. each, are fitted for supplying forced draught to the twenty-five boilers.

In the extensive kitchens of the Mauretania electricity is called upon to play an important role, and interest some housewives to learn that one range alone has a frontage of about 60 feet, and includes a roaster with four vertical spits rotated by an electric motor, these spits being capable of dealing with half a ton of meat at a time. This is in addition to a smaller roaster with three spits, driven in the same manner. In the bakery electricity is employed to operate a large dough-making machine capable of making bread for at least 2,000 persons.

Among the miscellaneous apparatus driven by this wonderful unseen power are three circular knives for slicing ham and bacon, four potato peelers, a whisking machine, several egg-boilers, numerous hot-plates for keeping the food warm, five plate-washing machines, and two twelve-quart freezers for making ice-cream for the passengers, to say nothing of and the electrical printing press which enables the 'Cunard Daily Bulletin' to be published on board.

Some idea of the size of the vessel may be obtained when it is mentioned that over 200 miles of wires and cables are fitted throughout the electric bell and telephone on the Mauretania surpassing hitherto attempted on ship work. Bells are placed over every bed, and 1,298 electric bells have been fitted in the various cabins, etc., whilst telephones, of which there are upwards of 100, are to be found in numerous parts of the ship and in all the best rooms.

Apart from the Marconi wireless telegraph outfit, which enables passengers to learn all that is going on in the world just as if they were in a first-class hotel in London instead of miles from land, means has been provided for coupling the ship up to the city telephone exchanges when lying alongside the landing stages at Liverpool or New York, thus enabling passengers to communicate with their friends or to transact business the moment the vessel touches the quay, or to say good-bye to friends in distant parts of the city up to the time

THE BOAT LEAVES LAND.

Electricity also plays an important part in the safety devices on board this wonderful ship, as, for instance, showing the officer in charge which water-tight doors are actually closed and what navigating lamps are lit. It is also employed to operate the fog-horn from the wheel-house, and for the system of fire alarms, in connection with which there are thirty-eight alarm-pushes in prominent parts of the vessel.

Four electric searchlights are carried on board, and, in addition to the usual complement of buoys which every ship carries, two special buoys have been provided for use at night. These, upon being released by pressing a button, automatically light a flare upon striking the water, thus indicating their position. Mention must be made of the system of electric clocks, which are placed in the various saloons and important situations throughout the ship.

The electric installation on this vessel represents about $325,000 value, or some fifteen times the cost of the electric equipment on an average Atlantic liner.

STUBBORN INDIGESTION

One Who Had Suffered for Years Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, while others loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. With others there is an intense pain and feeling of nausea after eating. Sometimes gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is another frequent and distressing symptom.

Mr. Alex. McKay, McLellan's Mountain, N. S., says:—"For years I was a great sufferer from indigestion, which was gradually growing worse and worse, and it would be impossible for me to tell how much suffering I endured. At different times I had treatment from three good doctors, but it did not help me in the least. Then I began trying all sorts of advertised medicines, and took ten packages of one medicine specially intended for dyspepsia, but with no better results. I had practically come to regard myself as incurable, and to feel that I would be a continuous sufferer, when one day I read in a newspaper of the cure of indigestion through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I made up my mind to give them a trial. I had used nearly five boxes before they began to help me, but I do not wonder at this as my case was so bad. I used in all a dozen boxes of the pills, and they cured me completely. I can now eat anything we raise on the farm for meat to eat and have no longer the pains and discomfort I had endured for years. It is several years since I was cured, and I have never felt a symptom of indigestion since. I am well known in this locality and you are quite at liberty to use what I say in the hope that it will benefit some other sufferer."

All medicine dealers sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KEEN BARGAIN HUNTERS

BIG POWERS KNOW HOW TO GET VALUE FOR MONEY.

Yankees Have Bought More Land for Cash Than Any Other Nation.

The maligned ladies who are made fun of in the comic papers, because of their fondness for frequenting sales where everything is to be disposed of at an immense sacrifice, are in very good company. Some of the biggest Powers of the world have been keen bargain-hunters, says Pearson's Weekly.

The United States, for instance, easily takes first place where big transactions in real estate are concerned. Our Yankee cousins have bought more land for hard cash than any other nation. Private speculations have been quite outdone. America's first bargain in this direction consisted of the purchase of a whole state, out and out.

Some people suppose that England was the only country which had any settlement in North America when the war of Independence broke out. This was not so, however. England held only thirteen of the States which at present form the Union. Spain possessed Louisiana and Florida. The Redskins had the rest.

Napoleon forced Spain to cede Louisiana to him. But he could not send either warships or soldiers to protect it, and he saw that it was practically certain to fall into the hands of England unless he did something. So, in 1803, he offered to sell it to the Yankees. They promptly accepted it, and paid him $10,750,000 "cash down" for it. They made a splendid bargain, for Louisiana could not be purchased for fifty times the sum given.

$15 A SQUARE MILE.

Besides, if the State still belonged to France, the United States would be in exactly the same position as we are in India—as we have to keep up a great army to defend the Indian frontier; so the Americans would be compelled to spend millions of dollars yearly on an army capable of defending her frontier against possible trouble with her French neighbors.

Uncle Sam's next bargain was the biggest on record. Alaska is a vast tract of country, 580,107 square miles in extent—more than four times as large as Great Britain and Ireland. For a long time it belonged to Russia; but it was never much good to the Muscovites, and in 1867 the Czar let it be known that it was in the market. Great Britain could have had it, but refused to bid. The United States snapped it up for $7,250,000. They got it cheap, paying less than $15 a square mile.

Up to now, it must be admitted, Alaska has not paid, for it is mostly a desert of ice and snow. But it is full of possibilities. It contains the Yukon region next door to our Klondike, so that there is a possibility of millions of gold coming out of it yet. Also the country is fairly rich in seals.

Although there is no record of Britain buying big tracts of territory for cash, she has done a little bargaining. In 1878 the Sultan of Turkey was in deadly fear of being attacked by Russia. Great Britain agreed, if certain circumstances arose, to fight for him. In return he handed over the island of Cyprus. Nominally, the island was to form a base for British troops, so that they could be more readily sent to the Sultan's assistance, if needed, but its transference practically amounted to payment in advance for the promised help.

BRITAIN'S BEST BARGAIN.

The "certain circumstances" have not yet arisen, and we have not fought Russia or any other country on Turkey's behalf. So Cyprus is not yet paid for.

The British Government holds the record of having paid the highest price ever given by a nation for a picture. This was $350,000 given to the late Duke of Marlborough, in 1855, for the "Ansidei Madonna," by Raphael. When his Grace offered the picture for sale every art gallery in the world was anxious to buy, but Britain outbid them all.

Another good bargain was made by Great Britain in 1875. The Suez Canal, which, as everybody knows, is the short cut to India, was constructed by a French company founded by De Lesseps, the shares of which were held by pretty well all the Powers. Britain, though the nation most interested in the conduct of the canal, had at first no real control over its management. In time of war it might even have been closed to her warships and opened to an enemy.

But the largest shareholder was Ismail, the Khedive of Egypt. In 1875 he was on the brink of bankruptcy, and offered his shares, numbering 178,602, for sale. Germany and France would gladly have bought them, but they were forestalled by Lord Beaconsfield, who snapped them up at a total cost of $20,383,110.

This made Great Britain the chief shareholder, and gave her a controlling voice in the great waterway.

The family fortunes of Lord Dudley, the Governor-General of the Australian Commonwealth, had their foundation in a chance customer at the shop of an ancestor on Lombard Street. So, at any rate, says tradition. The story goes that in the reign of the first Charles one William Ward opened a goldsmith's shop in Lombard Street, and soon afterwards was enabled to purchase at a great bargain a quantity of the finest diamonds, which had been offered for sale by a sailor who had just come ashore. Ward's stock of diamonds soon attracted the attention of the Court, and he obtained the custom of Queen Henrietta Maria, who appointed him her jeweller. The rest of the story can be told in a few words. A Lord Dudley of that day being in want of £10,000 came to Ward and asked for a loan. Fortunately or unfortunately, he was able to offer but little in the way of security, and here Ward saw his chance. He had a son, and Lord Dudley had a granddaughter, and, if Lord Dudley would consent to the match, the money should be handed over. This was accordingly agreed upon, and the fortunes of the family may be said to have gone increasing ever since that date.

Singer Talks

6. The Many Uses of a Good Sewing Machine

There is practically no limit to the variety of work that can be done with a Singer Sewing Machine. Whether for the finest embroidery, the plainest home sewing or the most elaborate tailoring, the Singer is equally efficient.

Every woman takes pride in having these things, but if they be her own handwork, the satisfaction is complete, because her own personality is reflected in every seam.

The woman who uses a Singer may have everything in needlework she can desire—she is better dressed at much less cost; her children are clothed according to her own taste and ideas; she has attractive table linen, and an unending supply of dainty underwear.

Moreover, she is free from the worry and delay which always comes with the use of a "cheap" machine.

WONDERS OF THE FUTURE

MARCONI PREDICTS STRANGE THINGS NOT FAR AWAY.

Says We Shall Catch the Energy of the Sun and Store it for Our Own Use.

That steamships will run by sunshine is the opinion of Guglielmo Marconi. The inventor of wireless telegraphy has come to America to increase his trans-Atlantic service from a capacity of 5,000 words a day to 20,000. After predicting a great future for wireless telegraphy he said:

"There seems to be a happy fate in the coincidence of scientific discoveries, which on first thought are quite unrelated to each other. The development of the airship, as shown in the astounding performance of Orville Wright's machine in Washington, would seem to have nothing in common with the perfection of wireless communication, and yet, if one looks into the future, the great airships which are to come, sailing at incredible speed and at unforeseen and varying altitudes, could never without the wireless 'speak' each other as ships do at sea and so remain in touch with those safely at home.

LIFE AN EASIER PROBLEM.

"And the airship is certain to come into general use, and that within the lifetime of our generation, not for freight, perhaps, but for people surely. In fact, as I look into the years to come, I am convinced that life will be an easier problem, a more genial function in the scheme of things, than it is to-day.

"Aside from the economy of labor which follows the conquest of Nature's forces, there will be fewer people among whom to divide the benefits. The birthrate will continue to decrease, as I believe it should, at least for the present. With the growth of intelligence among the mass of people there will come a realization of the folly of rearing more children than can be properly fitted to be efficient members of society. Quality, not numbers, will come to be the standard racial excellence, and the present anomalous condition wherein the number of children in a family is inverse ratio to the earning capacity of the parents will have disappeared.

"The condition to-day is not one of race suicide, but of social common sense. And if the present enlightenment of the average men and women continues to its righteous turning point there will come an end of congested cities, with their wretched and starving children of the tenements, their crimes, their killing competition and their discouragement of the gentler

ASPIRATIONS OF MEN.

"In all ways, science is more and more studying to perfect the practical comfort and well-being of the world. Of course, there will always be ships upon the seas. The mysterious primeval voice of the ocean will continue its spell over the human imagination. But there will not always be steamships. They will pass the way of their predecessors, and ere long we shall cross the ocean in ships run by electric power. There will be no grime of coal smoke, no sickish odor of stale steam, no blazing caverns in the hold, where human beings with staring eyes and blackened faces sweat their lives away that the pulse of the engines may not stop. The storage battery will take the place of coal and fire and water. Instead of coaling, the great ship will quietly and cleanly renew her batteries at her journey's end, and if coal is used, it will be far from the line and the noses of men.

"Furthermore, I look for the time when coal will cease to be our only source of energy. In every land men of science are patiently studying the problem of utilizing the energy of the sun—storing it, in fact—so that the generation of electric force may be cheapened by its use to a point where the storage battery on a large scale will be an economic as well as an ACADEMIC POSSIBILITY.

The wasted energy in coal as now used may in the interval be brought to do its work and so bring about the monster storage battery sooner than we now expect. But, sooner or later, we shall enslave the sun's rays to our uses as we have the other products of his being.

"Ah, yes, life is going to be a better experience for our children than it is for most of us now. In many little ways it will be so. Do you know that in many laboratories they are coming close to letting us see the person who is talking to us at the other end of the telephone connection? And if they can do this, if they can transmit the light waves of images at a distance—and it looks as if science is bound to accomplish it—I am voicing no extravagance in saying that we may yet sit in our homes on a cold winter's night, turn a switch, and not only hear, but see the opera in progress in a faroff building.

"And, going back to my own hobby of wireless communication, I want to say that we shall not have to wait long for the wireless telephone. De Forest and his colleagues are doing great things in that direction."

A man is always willing to confess faults that he thinks he hasn't.

A man would rather give himself away than be sold by a woman.

The more a man talks the less he can be depended on to deliver the goods.

Some women are self-made and some are remodeled by a dressmaker.

Only the choicest selected hill-grown tea leaves are used in "Salada" Tea, giving it a delicious fragrance and delicious flavor.

AMERICA'S EX-CHAMPION WRESTLER

SAYS:

"After my great wrestling match with J. Mellor, of Staleybridge, at the Crystal Palace, England, for the International Championship, I was covered with cuts and bruises. I applied my favorite balm, Zam-Buk, and in a marvellously short time the abrasions and cuts were healed and I was fit and well again. At another time I had a piece of flesh almost torn completely off my arm above the elbow. I anticipated being unable to do anything with the arm for a long time. To my delight, however, Zam-Buk closed up the wound in two days. In three days it was covered with new skin, and a few days after, there was no trace of the injury. I recommend Zam-Buk for cuts, bruises or skin injuries of any kind."

Yours truly,
HUGH LANNON.

The above testimony given by Mr. Lannon when visiting Toronto shows the great value of Zam-Buk for injuries received in outdoor sports.

Baseball, Football and Lacrosse Players should always keep Zam-Buk handy. It prevents cuts and injuries "taking the wrong turn." It stops the pain and smarting, and heals. It is also an excellent embrocation, curing stiffness, sprains, twists, etc. Used and recommended by Sherring, the Marathon winner; Madral, the world's second greatest wrestler, etc.

DEVICE TO RECOVER GOLD.

Sunk 100 Years Ago in a British Warship.

To the mouth of the River Colne, off Brightlingsea, England, an extraordinary machine was towed and anchored the other day. It is to be used in a final attempt to recover the $2,500,000 treasure of gold, in coins and bars, which is said to have gone down in the British warship Lutine in 1797, near the Island of Terschelling, off the coast of Holland.

A portion of the treasure has been recovered, but an ordinary dredging plant is now useless, as the vessel has sunk into the sand. The new device is a great steel tube nearly 100 feet in length, and wide enough to allow a man to walk erect down its centre. At one end is a metal chamber provided with windows and doors, and at the other a medley of giant hooks and other tackle.

The apparatus has just been completed, after years of work, by Messrs. Forrest and Co., shipbuilders, in their Wyvenhoe yard. "One end of the tube," explained a member of the firm, "will be clamped to the side of a steamship or barge. The other end, by means of water ballast tanks, will be sunk until it touches the bottom. Then, by means of compressed air, all the water will be forced from the chamber at the bottom of it, which will be flush upon the bed of the sea.

"Divers will walk down a stairway in the centre of the tube until they reach the submerged chamber. Here they will don their diving costumes, and, opening a series of watertight doors, will step straight cut into the water. Engineers will be stationed in the chamber, and following the instructions of the divers, who will communicate with them by means of portable telephones, they will operate the mechanism of two powerful suction pumps or dredges which are fitted to the sides of the tube. These dredgers, it is hoped, will suck away the sand around the sides of the heavy chamber until it gradually sinks by its own weight right down on the dock of the wrecked ship. Then the divers, making their way from the chamber to the deck of the ship, and thence to the hold, will be able to transfer the treasure from the ship to the chamber by easy stages."

FLIES AS GERM CARRIERS.

Therefore 'Keep Food Under Screen in Darkness.

Flies hate darkness, and have been shown by experiment to lose all interest in even the most tempting food if there is no light. Advantage should be taken of this characteristic of the fly, and the larder should be in such a location that the food may be kept in darkness besides being thoroughly protected from fly contamination by the use of efficient fly screens.

The normal healthy person rarely allows a fly to come into intimate contact with the easily infected mucous membranes of his mouth, nostrils or eyes, so it is by food contamination that these germ-carriers do their greatest damage.

We may not be public spirited enough to attempt in any practical way to prevent flies breeding in our stables, but since recent scientific investigations have proved the possibilities of the fly as a disease carrier the mere human instinct of self-preservation should make us take every precaution to keep existing flies from coming into contact with people, suffering from germ diseases.

A few shillings would pay for serviceable fly screens for the typhoid patient's room and for the kitchen and larder as well.

Flies have been placed in a large sterile bell glass under which a small dish containing a gelatine culture of live typhoid bacilli has been put. After waiting until the flies have walked about on the typhoid culture this has been gently withdrawn and a dish containing carefully sterilized gelatine has been inserted in its place. After the flies had walked about on this sterile gelatine the dish was removed and put under conditions of moisture, temperature, etc., suitable to the growth and development of typhoid bacilli if any were present. In a long series of such experiments in nearly all cases, bacilli grew and multiplied on the gelatine medium which had been quite sterile until contaminated by the flies.

Since we cannot hope absolutely to exterminate the species, a single member of which can carry enough bacteria to devastate an army, precautions must be taken to keep the fly away from the sick as much as possible—by means of fly poison solutions and by screen, and also away from food.

THEY ALL BELIEVE IT.

One Bible truth there is in which Girls have abiding trust; Our wives especially believe That man is made of dust.

The flagging energies revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parlee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare power, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

The average married woman is well aware of the fact that she earns all the money she gets—and then some.

You are right in regarding erysipelas as a dangerous disease. Anoint the swollen, itching skin with Weaver's Ointment; and take Weaver's Syrup internally.

Preacher—"When you're tempted to drink, think of your wife at home." Henpeck—"I do—and that's what drives me to drink."

Every time a married man starts to settle down his wife stirs him up.

"Man is Filled With Misery."—This is not true of all men. The well, sound of lung, clear of eye, alert and buoyant with health, are not miserable, whatever may be their social condition. To be well is to be happy, and we can all be well by getting and keeping our bodies in a healthful state. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil will help all to do this.

It is easy to prevent failure; all one has to do is refrain from trying.

Spinsters know a lot of things they imagine they would do if they were wives, but as a matter of fact they wouldn't do anything of the kind.

It will be noticed in the Singer Sewing Machine Company's advertisement that there are three addresses at the bottom of the announcement. Any one writing will please address them at the nearest one of the three places to his post office.

"Thomas," said Major Hartigan, as he gazed into his son's eyes with a soul-searching look, "have you eaten any of those peaches your mother put in the cupboard?"

"Father," said Tommy, "I cannot tell a lie, I have not touched one."

The Major eyed him wrathfully as he plunged his hand into the pocket of his coat and drew forth five incriminating stones, which had once been enshrined in the luscious flesh of a peach.

"Then how is it," said the parent, "that I find these peach stones in your bedroom, while there is only one peach left in the cupboard?"

"Father," said Thomas, as he silently but swiftly left the room and placed a chair in such a position that his father would fall over it if he followed too quickly—"Father, that is the one I never touched!"

Sleeplessness.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be oblivion for a while and temporary relief. COUNTY AND DISTRICT.

Farmers in the vicinity of Marden and Guelph are justly indignant at some very mysterious occurrences which have taken place in the vicinity of the village recently, as the result of which two cattle were maimed through having their legs broken in a most peculiar manner. So great is the indignation expressed that at a meeting of the township council it was decided to offer a reward that would lead to the clearing up of the mystery.

Saturday's Globe tells of a sale of wild land in Saskatchewan at $19 an acre. A block of land was purchased by an American three or four years ago, and he couldn't do anything with it. There was 10,000 acres in the block and a few days ago he brought over a lot of his neighbors from the States to see it. When they saw the big wheat crop it decided them and they gobbled it up at the aforesaid price. It is not likely that there will ever be much of a falling off in the price of Northwest land for it is the last west.

A Scotsman went to an English race meeting, and boldly staked a sovereign. The horse he backed proved a winner, and he went to the "bookie" to claim his winnings. The sporting man begrudgingly handed him seven sovereigns. The Scot looked at each one very carefully before placing it in his pocket.

"Well," said the bookie, with a snarl, "are you afraid they're bad?"
"Oh, no," said the Scotsman; "but I was just lookin' to mak' sure the bad 'un I gie'd ye wisna among them."

An Italian scientist proposes to supply a safety valve for Vesuvius by boring a tunnel in the base of the mountain and letting the lava escape into the sea. His idea is to bore the tunnel while the crater is in a state of coma, and he believes that when the volcano becomes active such a channel would be sufficient to carry away the lava. His whole proposal, however, is not to let the lava escape altogether, but to run it into molds and make it into blocks for use in the streets and quays of Naples. In all probability his scheme will die a natural death.

There was only one case tried at the Fall Assizes here this week. This was Donald vs McDermaid. It was an action for damages brought by the widow of the late John Donald, who was killed by a horse at the Port Elgin fair on the 28th of September of last year. The horse bolted in the midst of the race and ran over deceased, and the plaintiff sought to show that it was owing to the negligence of the rider. The case lasted the whole of Tuesday afternoon and all Wednesday forenoon but was then withdrawn for the jury and the action dismissed, each side to pay their own costs. A true bill was found by the grand jury against Louie Onrod for stealing a bag of oats from George Fisk, and as he was not at court a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.—Telescope.

Some time ago a man named Edward Wood, living in Grey township, was arrested charged with an offence under the Charlton Act against his step-daughter, and when he was brought before Judge Doyle he pleaded guilty. He was remanded for ten days that enquiries might be made as to his character, circumstances and other details which seemed to surround the case, and last Monday he was brought up for sentence. In a careful review of the facts Judge Doyle gave reasons why he would not give a sentence of imprisonment, the man's farm of 200 acres, a large quantity of stock, a sick wife and a number of very young children all required his presence and care; but he imposed a fine of $500 and $100 costs, to be paid before the defendant would be liberated from jail, where he has been for a couple of weeks, or in default of payment a term of five years imprisonment. The father and other relatives of the accused promised to raise the money in a few days.

FARMS FOR SALE

In order to wind up the estate of the late Noah Wenger, of the Village of Ayton, Township of Normanby, County of Grey, the following farm lands are offered at private sale.

Parcel No. 1 consists of parts of lots 14 and 15, Con. 9, and part of lot 14, Con. 10, Township of Normanby, comprising 167½ acres, of which 60 acres is a good hardwood bush. The buildings are a good bank barn, 72 x 82 ft, centre posts 36 ft high. Stone stabling underneath capable to accommodate 50 to 60 head of cattle and 8 to 10 horses. A good frame sheep stable and wagon shed, a good pig stable and a good frame house. A strong spring of fine water near buildings, so that neither pump nor windmill is necessary.

This parcel is bounded on West by G. T. R. and Ayton station in said R. R., and North by Saugeen River and Village of Ayton, on East by Wenger's Mill pond.

Parcel No. 2 consists of East part of Lot 16, Con. 9, Township of Normanby, comprises 50 acres, half of which is bush.

This Parcel is bounded on West by Wenger's mill pond, on North by Village of Ayton, on east by sideroad. No buildings on this parcel, having heretofore been farmed with parcel No. 1. These lands are good warm soil and do not require draining.

There are many advantages with these lands, such as nearness to Station, to mill, to market, to good school and churches, etc., fuller particulars of which and other advantages will be given by letter to intending purchasers on enquiry.

WATCH YOUR TONGUE

If Furred and Coated, it's a Looking Glass Stomach Warning

When it is the morning after the night before, you do not have to look at your tongue to know that the stomach is upset, the head is aching, no appetite, nerves on edge with all the sunshine of life clouded.

The real time to watch the tongue is all of the time. If it is coated with a white fur, or possibly with dark trimmings, even though the stomach does not tell you by the acute pains of indigestion that it needs help, yet the coating shows that you are getting into a bad way and that there is need of Mi-o-na.

Mi-o-na is so positive, so sure, so reliable in its curative action upon the stomach that J. Coates, the local agent, gives a guarantee of satisfaction with every 50c box or money back.

From our exchanges we glean the intelligence that a Dominion election is in progress in Canada. We have not heard any noise up this way. Guess it is what they call a still hunt.

A farmer named Michael Penston, who took some grazing land at Arklow county, Wicklow, Ireland, found that the manes and tails of his horses had been cut, and informed the police. LIVE STOCK MARKETS.
TORONTO.

Receipts of live stock at the City Market, as reported by the railways, were 108 carloads, composed of 1951 cattle, 1121 hogs, 3155 sheep and lambs and 148 calves.

The quality of cattle offered as fat was no better, but, if anything, worse than has been coming; anyway, there was more of the common, inferior stuff, a lot of which was left over, being unsold at the close of the market.

Trade was all right for good quality, but slow, with prices easier for the common and inferior. Good to choice butchers' cattle sell at as high prices as exporters, and are in better demand.

Exporters—There were none reported, excepting a few that might be picked out of the loads of butchers. Export steers of good quality are worth about $5; bulls, $3.50 to $4, and real choice quality bulls would bring $4.25, or perhaps a trifle more.

Butchers—Good to choice quality butchers were quoted as selling at from $4.25 to $4.70; medium, $3.70 to $4; cows, $2.50 to $4; canners and bulls, $1 to $2.35 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers—Few good quality feeders or stockers were on sale. J. & W. Murby report a fair demand for the best, but the common are slow of sale. Messrs. Murby bought 160, ranging in weight from 700 to 1050 lbs., and quote feeders at $3.40 to $3.75 for good, and $2.75 to $3.25 for medium; common stockers, $2.25 to $2.50 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers—There was, as usual, a fair delivery of milkers and springers, amongst which were some of good to choice quality, which sold at $30 to $65, and one at $75. The demand from Montreal is the chief factor in keeping prices where they are. The average price was around $50.

Veal Calves—Receipts light, with prices steady, at $3 to $6.50 for the bulk, with a very few new, milk-fed calves at $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs—Over 3155 sheep and lambs were on sale, which caused prices to go lower, especially for lambs. Export ewes sold at $3.25 to $3.50; rams, $2.50 to $2.75; lambs $4 to $4.70 per cwt.

Hogs—Mr. Harris quoted prices lower as follows: Selects, fed and watered, $6.25, and lights at $6 per cwt.

The bulk of the hogs offered to-day were far from being good quality—light, lanky and lean, with no fat on them. If drovers keep bringing this class of hogs, they may look out for still lower prices. Farmers are standing in their own light when they do not finish their hogs.

Dead leaves in the tree had fallen in the crutch of some branches and there the hen chose her nest.

SOMETHING CAN BE DONE

To Stop the Increase of Catarrh in Mildmay

Catarrhal troubles are increasing, not only in Mildmay but all over the country. Catarrh is a germ disease and to cure it, germ life in the nose throat and lungs must be destroyed, and this can be done only by breathing Hyomei.

There is no dangerous stomach drugging when Hyomei is used, as tablet or liquid mixtures whereby the digestion is often destroyed. Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, its healing balsams penetrate the most remote air cells, destroying the catarrhal germs so that quick recovery follows. The complete outfit costs but $1.00, and J. Coates agrees to refund the money should Hyomei fail to do all that is claimed for it.

Wm. Rinn, of Hullett, bought four pigs on the 9th of July which then weighed 250 pounds. On the 17th of Sept. he sold them and they weighed 950 pounds. This is an astonishing increase, being 700 pounds in a few days over two months, or an average increase of 175 pounds per pig. They were of the Tamworth breed.

"Yes, gentlemen," said the orator. "If I had the wings of the eagle, I'd spread them forth and soar the broad heavens, until stretched athwart the blue they held beneath their thrall the majestic waters of the rolling deep; I'd soar from mountain peak to mountain peak, across the dales and grassy plains. I'd onward sweep from the vast Atlantic's rock-bound shore, westward, to where the grand Pacific leaves the western coast; from lake to gulf I'd wend my flight, and everywhere I'd sing the grand, inspiring word, Socialism, Socialism, Socialism."

"Oh, come off," cried the old campaigner from the rear seats. "You'd be shot for a hen-hawk before you'd flew a mile."

DISCOURAGED MEN IS LIFE WORTH LIVING

MEN, you become disheartened when you feel the symptoms of Nervous Debility and decline stealing upon you. You haven't the nerve or ambition you used to have. You feel you are not the man you ought to be. You feel like giving up in despair. You get nervous and weak, have little ambition, pain in the back over kidneys, drains at night, hollow eyes, tired mornings, prefer to be alone, distrustful, variable appetite, looseness of hair, poor circulation—you have Nervous Debility. UNCLE DICK;

CHAPTER I.

The advent of its regatta is usually the herald of a sea-side season's demise. Wivernsea, as yet, is not sufficiently developed to justify indulgence in a water festival. So far, its carnival flights have been confined within the limits of flower shows and the treats of its Sunday school.

The builder—his surname is Jerry—is around with a rule though. His conspiracy with the man who plots lands and dispenses free luncheons and railway tickets, will possibly wreak a change on that part of the map's countenance. Increased population may render the place more famous—or infamous. So very much depends on one's viewpoint.

The houses of Wivernsea are built in its bay. Stuck in round the fringe of it like teeth in a lower jaw. Picture to yourself the long ago—the bay's origin—and the present appearance of the place may come before you. If possible to introduce a belief that there were giants in the earth in those days it will make realization simpler, because it looks as if a mammoth had snapped at the coast just there and bitten out a huge mouthful.

If your imagination is sufficiently elastic to give play to it, conceive houses being dropped into the marks left by the giant's teeth—a sort of dental stopping. So may be garnered a fair idea of the presentment of this particular indentation in the land.

When the goose of Michaelmas is shaking in its scales, Wivernsea lodging letters encroach on the farmer's privilege. The closing time of their harvest is near enough to be grumbled at. It is painful knowledge to them that visitors scuttle away as September ends. The exodus is due to some absurd belief that the weather then—like a school at the advent of the holidays—breaks up.

In the ears of one man—William Masters by name, binder-together-of-sensational-incidents—in book form by profession—such grumbles tinkled pleasantly. Because the usual October Wivernsea weather is mild and bright and rainless. Being a non-gregarious man, the place shaped before his eyes as a land flowing with milk and honey. He knew it to be good then.

Knowledge is the wing on which we fly to heaven. In this instance, the author's flight from London was via the London and South Western Railway Company's terminus. Later on he told himself that it was proving veritably—his Waterloo.

Wivernsea's wall is known locally as the Esplanade. Euphemisms—sacrifices to vanity at the expense of the seashore. The walk terminated eastwards with the abruptness of a cinematograph view. A private owner claimed the land there.

It was not an undisputed claim. Opposition made the owner handle the matter with mailed fist. To make his position stronger he erected a high wall. If it did not prevent his opponents going further with their libidinal opposition, it effectually prevented them from going further along the parade.

The embellishments of the wall were, apparently, the outcome of deep thought. Its top was artistically embroidered with spikes and broken bottles. This sharply jagged crown was known locally as a shivery-freeze. Give the average man an opportunity to mispronounce a word and his success may be counted on every time.

Warnings to trespassers and threats of prosecution garnished the wall's face with the liberality of almonds in a piece of French rock. The everyday man might well be excused a fear that there was danger in letting an unguarded eye rest on it.

Amongst others, the wall barred the easterly progress of William Masters. In his instance no chagrin resulted. It was a boast of his that he possessed "views of his own"—the things which other people smile at unpleasantly and label "eccentricities." The owner of the wall was a man after his own heart. Undoubtedly a fellow-feeling makes us wondrous kind.

It is not good that man should be alone. But the author had not yet realized the greatness of that truth. He had been heard to voice the nature of his Ultima Thule—undisturbed existence in a cot. Not beside the hill, but in the centre of a big field. The situation to be enhanced by possession of a shot gun, wherewith to pepper trespassers on his solitude.

Strangers who heard Masters speak so felt inclination to move away a pace; were prompted to thoughts of Hanwell and Colney Hatch. His friends—another boast of his was the poverty of their number—smiled. The idea of Masters hurting a fly appealed to the humor in them.

But, as the blackets hat may have a silver-paper lining, so the wall served a good purpose. It acted as a shelter from the one thing which disturbed the enjoyment of October in Wivernsea: that wind which is said to be good for neither man nor beast. Thoughtful hands had placed a comfortable seat within the wall's shelter.

Knowledge of these things had inspired Masters' journey to Wivernsea. Where he had stayed before the landlady had rooms vacant. She knew his requirements and, hitherto, had suited him admirably. Had even acquired the knowledge that his visits to Wivernsea were not prompted solely by a desire to hear her talk.

Having done justice to a hastily prepared luncheon, Masters slipped a note book into his pocket and sallied forth. His route was easterly, its termination his favorite seat at the end of the Parade. There were some hours left of warmth and sunshine; the author's intent was to avail himself of them.

Seated, he for a time succumbed to the charm of the water as it stole out and away. Listened to its lapping as it broadened the ribbon of sand at each receding wave. Then, turning a deaf ear to the charm and his eyes on to his note book, he buried himself in the particular chapter on which he was engaged.

The writer's concentration was not of the plumbless kind. Sound of a girl's voice roused him from his depth of thought. It should not be gathered from that that the sex had any extraordinary influence over him—save when it was very young.

Here are lands that are near railroads, nearly all within ten miles of an up-to-date railroad, to be offered at auction. They have been retailed at $10 to $15 per acre, but there are many tracts that would be bargains at $20. The Saskatoon & Western Land Co., Ltd., prefers to wholesale 250,000 acres of its holdings in the heart of Saskatchewan, and will therefore offer for sale this number of acres at this important sale.

Who knows but that some of these rich, fertile acres may be yours on a low bid? You do not have to live on this land to get the big bargain value. The market is rising. These lands are a big paying investment for the city man as well as the farmer.

Make your plans to go now. Arrange your business so you can be in Regina October 12, when The Saskatoon & Western Land Co.'s sale starts. Or go to Regina and get on the land a few days previous to October 12, so as to get acquainted with the great tract and determine what location you prefer. So far as is possible we will accommodate buyers by putting up at any time any special quarter, half or whole section. We supply free maps of every acre we own in the heart of Saskatchewan.

If you desire more complete advance information, send to our Regina office for Large Map and 90-page Book Free.

Our map shows each and every section we own. It gives you a true picture of our holdings. It shows just how we selected the most fertile and best located acres available in the entire Province of Saskatchewan. It shows how ideally the lands are situated—how near Regina, how convenient to Winnipeg and the grain and stock markets, and the excellent railway facilities. Free. Write for the map to The Saskatoon & Western Land Co., Ltd., Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada.

Our book is a storehouse of information on Western Canada grain lands. Contains ninety pages, and many faithful photographs of land, crops, homes, and features of interest in the heart of Saskatchewan. It lists all our property by quarter sections. Free. We want to send it to you. Write for it to The Saskatoon & Western Land Co.'s office in Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada.

The Saskatoon & Western Land Co.'s Land is Extra Choice Grain Land. You Get Title From the Crown—An Indisputable Title.

The Saskatoon & Western Land Co., Ltd., had the pick of 3,000,000 acres of best Saskatchewan prairie lands. We took in our grant extra choice acres—not all in one continuous place, but a section here and there, so as to get the most fertile, the deepest soil, ground free from boulders, with best water, near railways—in fact, land ready for the plough, ready to yield the golden harvest and make profits from the very first. Think of it! 250,000 acres of these lands to be offered at public auction.

THE AUCTION.

The Saskatoon & Western Land Co.'s auction will be held at Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada. Nowhere else. It will be held in the Saskatoon & Western Land Co.'s own pavilion—nowhere else. It will be held October 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17. Remember those dates. Don't get there late. Be on hand early. Don't buy, under any circumstances, of anyone until the auction is on—no matter what you hear. The Saskatoon & Western Land Co.'s land is extra choice. Don't take somebody else's word that they have land "just as good."

This land was especially selected—its title is from the Crown. The terms of payment will be the fairest. You will always stand behind every promise and give you the most liberal treatment you can ask. The company reserves the right to withdraw any of the lands from sale.

He loved children. Loved them best before the rubbing off of what is called their corners; the sweetness of what is actually the innocence we all come into the world with—which it seems the business of the world to destroy.

Masters guessed from the voice that it belonged to a very little girl. Looking up, saw standing in front of him proof of the correctness of his guess. A blue-eyed—wide-open-eyed—with-astonishment too at seeing him there—little maid. She had turned the parade corner and so come on him unexpectedly.—It was plain that she pulled up suddenly at seeing him there. Just as suddenly called out in her clear, childish treble—

"Oh! There's someone on your seat, Miss Mivvins!"

The young lady so addressed came into view at that moment, round the bushes planted at the corner—the little one having run on ahead. Miss Mivvins flushed a little. Becoming, for otherwise the face might have been considered a trifle too pale. The possibility of the child's speech being considered rude induced her to say in an undertone:

"Hush, Gracie, dear!"

The speech reached Masters' ears. He was struck by the singularly sweet voice the governess had. When he looked at the place whence the voice issued, he thought it the prettiest mouth he had ever set eyes on. The little droop of sadness at its corners mellowed rather than took away from the sweetness of it.

The lips—ripe red in color, Cupid's bowed in shape—enchanting as they were, did not hold his attention in iron bonds. His glance wandered to her eyes and hair. From that inspection was formed an opinion—one which he never changed.

The features were the most beautiful and womanly ones he had ever seen. Just as sweet a face as a woman with golden hair—that peculiar tint of gold which the sun ever seems anxious to search amongst—and forget-not eyes, can possess at the age of three-and-twenty. She was good to look upon.

She lay still, watching the sunset, and watching him while he worked. It was characteristic of the man that for quite a long time as he talked he worked also, without looking at her at all.

"When I first saw you, I was interested in you, in spite of myself," he said. "This strange Aunt Phipps who sprang suddenly into the lives of people in whom I had an interest—who was proud and strong, and very much of an enigma—held my attention. She was hard and bitter, as I afterwards knew she had been taught to be; but she was always struggling against herself—always fighting against better instincts that belonged naturally to her. One had expected that Aunt Phipps would be a middle-aged—even an elderly person; this woman was a surprise."

"I have never been young," said Olive quietly.

"You are growing younger every day," said Martin, glancing at her for a moment with a smile. "Some begin their youth at the wrong end—catch it up, as it were, after it should have been left behind. And I'm not sure that that isn't the best youth of all. Well, as I was saying, I couldn't understand you; and when I did understand you, I hated you for what you had done. I didn't know you then—not properly; I couldn't see clearly what a fight you had made for it."

He was silent for a few moments, while Olive lay still, wondering if he knew how great that fight had been.

"When I understood at last, I began to have a feeling for you that was quite outside myself, as it were. I was filled with an admiration for you—the dry old heart in me woke up, and I found that I loved you."

"Mr. Blake! Is this fair? I'm quite helpless here—"

"And I take advantage of it," said Martin, laying down his palette, and turning towards her. "You promised to listen, you know—and I'm afraid you must. I want to be honest with you; I want to tell you everything that is in my heart."

"When I am stronger, I shall be able to thank you for all you have done for me—or try to thank you—and I shall go back into the world and begin my life again. Because I failed once is not to say that I shall fail again."

"A few years ago," went on Martin, quite as if she had not spoken, "there was one woman—a mere girl—in my life, and one woman only. I had known her mother; I had grown up into an elderly young man, with a tenderness for little Lucy Ewing that I had for no one else. I want you to understand that—I want you to see, in all fairness, that I may have had dreams that never could be realized, and that those dreams are—quite happily, I assure you—ended. She could never have cared for me, and I should have made her life, and probably my own, unhappy if I had taken advantage of any gratitude she might have felt towards me. Honestly and sincerely, I am glad to think that she gave her heart to another man."

She let her hand droop over the side of the couch on which she lay; Martin took it, and held it while he talked.

"Then you came into my life—who were strong and fine and purposeful. I realized that you were the woman for whom a man might wait; the woman who would lift a man up, and makesomething of him—he never could have made of himself. I wouldn't have you believe for the world that I turned to you with any second-rate affection; yours was different. I loved you from the very beginning, almost without knowing it; it was the bitterest moment of my life when I had your letter telling me that I should never see you again."

"I wouldn't have you think that I didn't understand," said Olive. "But you forget that Olive Varney is dead—and that, even the other name I carried wasn't mine. If I have blundered, I have yet managed to creep out of my blunder honorably enough; let me go away when I am stronger, and be forgotten. I came to do a certain thing, and I hope I did something better. But all my life lies behind me—in shadows."

"All your life—your real life—lies before you—in sunshine," said Martin. "Let me tell you what I have done. I recognized that Olive Varney could not appear among those who once had dreaded her coming; I knew that Aunt Phipps could not return among them; so I made up my mind to leave behind me all the old things—to begin again myself. I am going abroad; I can always find work to do, and I am not exactly a pauper. The old studio in Chelsea is shut up, and I want to marry Aunt Phipps, and take her away with me. Lucy is safe and happy; Odley—bless her kind heart!—Odley goes back to London, to be near her darling. You and I, Olive, are out of the story, although we had so much to do with it. Olive—I love you with all my heart and soul; I can't bear to think that we should ever be parted again. Will you marry me?"

"There is no Olive Varney in the world," she said. "And I can't marry you. I have no right to creep into happiness like this."

He got up and walked away to the end of the garden. She saw him standing there, looking out over the valley on which the sun was setting for the day. He turned presently and came back, and knelt suddenly down beside her.

"When I called you Olive Varney, I made a mistake, dear," he said. "Olive Varney—poor unhappy girl, bred up to a life that never should have been hers—is well forgotten. But there are quite a number of people who bless the name of Aunt Phipps, and love her almost as well as I do. Aunt Phipps—he drew her hands into his, and looked close into her eyes—"won't you let me take care of you?"

"Yes—please," said Aunt Phipps, and hid her face against his hands.

THE END.

MURDERER DOOMED TO D

J. F. Creighton Was Convicted at Owen Sound.

A despatch from Owen Sound says: The trial of James Farish Creighton concluded on Thursday, the prisoner being found guilty of the charges of murdering his wife and step-daughters in May last. The verdict was an unanimous one. In addressing the jury Mr. A. G. Mackay, counsel for the defence, pleaded that he be committed to an asylum for the remainder of his life. The judge, however, summed up against the prisoner, and, after the jury brought in their verdict, said that he would have been greatly disappointed had it been different from what it was. Creighton terribly affected when he heard verdict and had to be practically carried out of court, weeping bitterly the while. At 8.30 on Thursday evening Justice Riddell sentenced Creighton to be hanged on Dec. 3rd. In giving sentence, he said that the accused had been guilty of one of the most atrocious crimes known to man and he would hold out no hope of Executive clemency. He must have mercy at a higher tribunal, but it was never refused to the convict.

82,000 DEFENDERS.

Would Cost Australia £100,000 More, Says Ewing.

A despatch from London says: In the Melbourne House of Representatives, on Tuesday, the Minister of Defence, Ewing, moved the second reading of the defence bill, and said that under the bill the Commonwealth would get, instead of 20,000 men, enlisted under the voluntary system, 82,000, costing only £100,000 sterling more than they are now paying. The main duty of the British navy was to protect the heart of the Empire, and Australia ought to be able to say to Britain: "We have a national guard of 200,000 trained men which will enable us to keep inviolate our island continent while you do bigger work with the navy."

CZARINA STILL VERY ILL.

Nervous Breakdown Shows no Sign of Improvement.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: It is understood that the Czarina's prolonged nervous breakdown, arising from anxiety over her husband and children, has not been improved by her long yachting cruise along the coast of Finland. Her physicians insist upon her passing the Winter in the south, but she refuses to do so unless the Czar and her children accompany her. This is regarded as impossible, but the family fear to tell her Majesty, whose nervous condition makes the thwarting of her wishes dangerous. Her relatives are anxious concerning her.

ROUNDHOUSE BURNED.

$20,000 Damage Done to C. P. R. Building at Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: Fire broke out in the Outremont roundhouse on the Canadian Pacific Railway early on Thursday and resulted in damage estimated at $20,000. Ten locomotives were in the shed when the fire was discovered, and the employees of the company succeeded in getting six out of the burning building. Three were wrecked by falling timber and fire. One locomotive, standing on the track in another part of the structure, was not damaged.

RECORD GRAIN MOVEMENT.

231 Cars Received at Port Arthur in One Day Over C. N. R.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: The greatest grain movement so far this year was accomplished on the Canadian Northern Railway Wednesday, when 231 cars of wheat were received at Port Arthur. Chief officials of the line, who are closely watching the work of bringing the great crops down to the lake ports, are highly gratified the way in which the task is being done.

DIED OF STARVATION.

Man Dropped Dead While Waiting for Bread.

A despatch from New York says: Standing in the "bread line" and clutching in his hand a ticket which within a few moments would have given him the food he so sorely needed, a man of 45, early on Thursday suddenly crumpled up and pitched to the ground and died. He was neatly dressed, but appeared to have suffered from lack of nourishment. The body has not yet been identified.

BRITISH REVENUES DECLINING.

The Year Will Result in Deficit of $25,000,000.

A despatch from London says: Further evidence of the depression in British commerce and finance is given by the revenue returns from April 1 to Sept. 30. The receipts for that period were £4,481,000 less than during the corresponding period last year. All items, except two, show a decline. It is figured that the year will result in a deficit of nearly £5,000,000.

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED.

Lamp Exploded in Home of Kent County Farmer.

A despatch from Chatham says: Mrs. George Jordan, aged 23, wife of a farmer near McKay's Corners, died as the result of burns received in her home when a lamp exploded on Wednesday. She was almost roasted alive, nearly all her clothes being burned from her body. Her husband and one child survive her.

CANADA'S RICHEST WOMAN.

Widow of Late Robert Dunsmuir Passes Away.

A despatch from Victoria, B. C., says: Mrs. Jean Oliver Dunsmuir, widow of the late Robert Dunsmuir, discoverer of the Wellington coal mines on Vancouver Island, died on Friday morning. Mrs. Dunsmuir, who was the richest woman in Canada, was eighty years of age.

Free postal delivery is being inaugurated in St. Thomas.

FARMER'S WIFE MURDERED

Murderer Makes No Attempt to Escape and is Now in Stratford Jail.

A despatch from Stratford says: What bears every evidence of having been a brutal murder was committed on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Wm. Peak, a respectable farmer of Downie, two and a half miles west of this city. The victim was Mrs. Peak, aged 65 years and her alleged murderer is a negro named Frank Runchman.

Mrs. Peak had been left alone in the house while her husband and two sons went to the fields. One of the sons, John, returned to the house about three o'clock to get a drink of water, and found Runchman sitting on a step of the cellar stairs, and his mother lying dead in the cellar, covered with blood, everything indicating that her head had been battered against the cellar floor. The hands and clothing of the negro were also bloodstained. The unfortunate woman had evidently been dead about an hour when found. Peak gave the alarm to the neighbors, then came to the city and notified the police. When an officer returned the neighbor had Runchman tied up, and he was brought here and lodged in jail. He had evidently been drinking.

The prisoner had the day previous just completed a term of twenty days in jail for vagrancy, having been committed from Listowel, and was wandering about the city on Wednesday forenoon. He had, when arrested, a policeman's overcoat, which he had stolen from the men's quarters here. The negro, Runchman, refuses to make any statement.

Miss M. Schurter, Mildmay.

Our Tea Trade

Gets bigger and bigger.

• Why does it grow ?

Because the Teas we handle are quite a bit better for the money than most stores handle.

Why are they better?

Because we devote more than ordinary care to choosing them.

Because we insist upon each lot we buy being the very best obtainable.

Because we are able to sell at 30 cents a Tea that equals the 40 cent grades of many stores.

Because all the way up and down our Tea line we offer superior qualities.

If these reasons look good to you PROFIT BY THEM.
