IGNORANCE, GREED, SMALLPOX

Smallpox is raging in certain points of Leeds and Grenville counties, and unless the provincial health department can stop the spread of the disease there is some danger of an epidemic throughout the eastern provinces. Conditions down there are really serious, especially in Matilda and Edwardsburg Townships, in Grenville County, and in and about the Village of Athens, the Township of Bastard, and in Mallorytown and vicinity in Leeds County.

Ignorance and neglect have been the principal means of spreading the disease. In many cases a doctor was not called in until the disease was far advanced and meanwhile friends had been allowed access to the patient, with the result that the contagion was carried far and wide.

In some sections the disease has been going on for the past two or three months without the slightest attempt to check it. In some instances it was mistaken for chickenpox, Dr. R. W. Bell, who has just got back from a trip through the district thinks, but in others there seems no doubt but that information was deliberately suppressed, so that the district where the disease had broken out should not be injured in a business way.

All over the infected district there has been an absolute disregard of quarantine and disinfection. Children of families, which had the disease, have been permitted to go to school or to work and thus it has had every opportunity to spread.

Most of the cases are of a mild type, but Dr. Bell says that there are a number of severe cases. Some of the local doctors, unfortunately, are making light of the outbreak, and naturally the people of the district are taking their cue from them.

Death of A. E. Oliver

Respecting the death of A. E. Oliver, late of Warman, Sask., son of Mrs. (Rev.) Oliver of Frankville, the Winnipeg Tribune says:—

Coming to this city after disposing of his property at Warman, he registered at the Queen's and though not in the best of health, he had never complained of any serious trouble. Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock he was on the rotunda talking to friends. Yesterday his room was found locked at a late hour and suspicion being aroused an entrance was made with the result that he was found in bed, without the slightest sign of a struggle. Coroner English was notified, and found that death was due to heart disease. Mrs. Oliver was notified, and is on her way to the city.

THE VILLAGE ASSESSMENT

The adjourned meeting of the Court of Revision for Athens was held in the town hall on Friday evening. A number of the chief ratepayers were in attendance.

The various appeals were read, including the general appeal against the whole assessment of the corporation, but no conclusive action was taken.

The advisory committee appointed to value all the different parcels of real estate in the village submitted figures and these were read by the clerk. In every case these figures represent what in the opinion of the committee is the actual value of the property. By the council deciding to adopt the committee's valuation, the total assessment will be increased by about one-third and, of course, the tax rate will be correspondingly decreased.

At a meeting held on Saturday afternoon the council decided to have the changes made in the roll printed so that every ratepayer might have an opportunity of making comparisons. This will be done at once.

Crop Prospects

The Sun, Toronto, last week published reports from special correspondents in various parts of the province respecting crop conditions and their letters make gloomy reading. The very late spring has caused heavy damage everywhere.

J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., reporting from Elgin, in Leeds County, said spring grains were very backward in his section. Of fall wheat, little had been sown, and that little was badly killed. In hay the prospects were about the same as last year. In corn and mangels only about the usual acreage was being planted.

KAY-SHELDON

At the residence of the bride's father, Brockville, on Wednesday last, the marriage took place of Miss Sadie Maud Sheldon, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sheldon, and Mr. Fred H. Kay, also of Brockville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. S. E. Grigg, pastor of the Baptist church.

Among the out of town guests were: Mrs. J. C. Eaton, New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bullis, Mr. and Mrs. E. Livingston, and Mr. Manford Reid, Athens.

BURNETT-POINTER

Rev. H. W. Burnett, B.D., of Cobden, formerly of Addison, was married to Miss Violet B. Pointer, of Pembroke, on Wednesday, June 12th, at the residence of the bride's mother in that town. Rev. F. G. Lett, president of the Montreal conference, performed the ceremony. The bride is one of Pembroke's charming ladies, and is highly respected by a wide circle of friends. The popularity of the bride and groom was evident from the large number of beautiful presents which they received.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnett go to Toronto and western points and expect to return in time for a reception to be given them by their congregation on Friday, 21st inst.

MILROY-STINSON

At the home of the officiating clergyman in Ottawa, on Wednesday, June 12, the marriage took place of Mr. Melvin R. Milroy and Miss Edith M. Stinson, both of Athens. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. M. Weeks, B.D., late pastor of the Baptist church here. The bride was becomingly dressed in a cream suit with French straw chapeau to match.

The bride, one of Athens' most highly esteemed young ladies, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Stinson, and the groom is a young Athenian business man whose skill and industry have gained for him the favor of a wide circle of customers. They are taking up housekeeping in the home on Main street west purchased by Mr. Milroy a few years ago from Mr. McBratney. The Reporter joins with their many friends in wishing them happiness and prosperity.

REV. FRANK CORNELL HONORED

Newmarket, June 14.—About one thousand citizens of Newmarket gathered this evening on the lawn of the Friends' Church to bid good-bye to Rev. Frank Cornell, who has been minister of the Friends Church in this town for the past five years, and who will leave next week for Los Angeles, Cal. The Newmarket Brass Band was in attendance. The citizens presented Mr. Cornell with a handsome solid gold watch and chain in recognition of his valuable services and appreciation of him as a citizen. Hon. E. J. Davis presided. In connection with the presentation, which was made by Mayor Smith, an address was read by Mr. E. A. Bogart. After a fitting expression of gratitude from the recipient addresses of a complimentary nature were made by Rev. Dr. Mills, Toronto, and Messrs. Albert Rogers and Elias Rogers, Toronto.

Following this came a presentation by the young people of the congregation of a purse of money. In this case the address was read by Mr. Morley Cady, and the gift handed to Mr. Cornell by Miss Phillips. About sixty people from Toronto were present to do honor to Mr. Cornell.

Home Mission Work

The W.C.T.U. and Superintendents of Mission Work among our Canadian Lumbermen have decided to withdraw their annual social for this year and purpose sending only literature to the camps and cash to the missionaries engaged for this work by our provincial officers.

This important department of work is much in need of money, and we feel sure an appeal for cash contributions will meet with a hearty response from all classes, especially those interested in home mission work. Mrs. H. B. Knowlton and Mrs. C. C. Slack will be pleased to receive during the next two weeks cash and suitable literature for the men in camps and mines.

OUR PROGRESS BRAND SUITS

At $10, $12 or $13.50 are the Best in Town

Everyone in business naturally shows off his wares to the best advantage and there is nothing wrong in so doing, if the goods are reliable. Some clothiers press out their clothes with hot irons, crease them artistically in the windows, and passers by say,

Aren't They Great?

But clothing that has little to recommend it but a smiling face is sorry clothing indeed to live in for half a year or more. Much of the clothing sold to-day is beautiful to look at, but weak, unsound, READY AT ANY TIME TO GO TO PIECES INSIDE. It's machinery clothing, put through the mill at top speed and pressed into shape to cover poor workmanship.

Our Progress Brand Clothing is Different

Said a man the other day, "well, somehow your clothing seems altogether different from any I have seen anywhere else, and I've been around." Of course, its different, its not only tailored by hand but it is cut and built to stay.

THIS ORIGINAL DOCUMENT ENTITLED EVERY POOR CONDITION

THINNING A PLANTATION.

HOW IT IMPROVES THE FOREST, AND WHEN IT SHOULD BE DONE.

The care of a forest tree plantation by no means ends when the trees have been planted and have successfully got through their first two or three years of life. In a few years the crowns of the trees touch, and the struggle for life among the trees begins.

In theory, of course, thinning should commence when the crowns of the trees begin to interfere with one another, and continual thinning should preserve this condition.

AXLE GREASE RARE TREAT.

Sailors Introduce It, and Natives of Malabar Can't Get Enough.

It was a weird story that was told the other day on the deck of the British freight steamer Swanley by Jace Braun, the bosun, as to the origin of the tons of curlos that were being taken off the steamer at the Bush stores in South Brooklyn.

Natives of the Malabar coast give them in return for axle grease, which they eat as Americans do ice cream.

"Yesir," began Jace Braun, "ye needn't take no fancy things to China or to Singapore with you if you want a good trade. On a previous voyage an' the other fellows aboard the ship took with us all the pretty things that we could think of."

"About six o' us went up the coast one day with our things and tried to swap with those fellows all day long without getting so much as a cocoanut."

"One of the niggers stuck his fingers in the can and eats the axle grease, an' the next minute we were offered every sort of inducement to leave the axle grease with them. They even offered us the inducement of a massacre, an' we were only restrained by the sight of our pistols."

"There was a cellybration among the cannibals, an' they took all we had an' we took all they had, which was no small matter. Those natives like that axle grease better than we do ice cream. They eats it, an' then when they can't get any more down their stomach they paint their faces and necks with it."

THE SHAH'S WIVES.

Greatest Beauties of Persia Brought to the Harem.

One of the first things the new Shah of Persia did when he mounted the throne last January was to send one of his most trusted officials, accompanied by three eunuchs, through his empire to find the most beautiful girls in the realm for his harem. To-day his palaces are swarming with women, legitimate, recognized wives, and the others.

His father would not recognize the harm as it is now, after having been transformed throughout India, re-furnished in the most luxurious manner, re-decorated in the most extravagant Oriental style.

The favorite wife, mother of the Crown Prince Ahmed Mirza, is designated as Amir Es Dowley ("Companion of the Sovereign").

Wine and opium lead lives of indolence, even such light occupations as embroidery being left to servants. They spend their time mainly in feasting and in gossiping.

Shah Mohammed Ali Mirza himself, not to call him lazy, is fond of ease, is given to pleasures and so loves money that some people call him avaricious. His father left an immense fortune. The stores of jewels in the strong rooms of Teheran are rich beyond computation. There are priceless pearls, while the diamonds, rubies and emeralds scattered about are guessed to be worth $10,000,000 at least.

There are three thrones, too, studded with gems of great value. The most famous is the peacock throne, worth $15,000,000 and perhaps much more. Then there is the ruby throne, a restoration of the peacock throne of Delhi, also brilliant with precious stones. Lastly, there is the marble throne, a huge affair which looks nothing like the common idea of a throne.

One of the Shah's most innocent amusements is listening to story-tellers in the good old-fashioned Oriental manner. He has appointed several professional story-tellers to be near his royal person, and when the "king of kings" is weary or troubled one of them is called on to dispel the evil spirit much in the same way as David played before Saul when that potentate suffered from the vapors.

The Shah is a great chess player and is never allowed by his courtiers to lose a game. There is a story current of a young member of the British Embassy who was invited long ago to play with the Shah and checkmated him in a few moves. The Shah sprang from his seat in a temper and swept the board and pieces in a rage on to the floor.

Mohammed Ali Mirza is not a statesman. His inclination to seek his own comfort and diversion led him to grant his subjects who were on the point of revolution when he took the reins of government, a constitution, a parliament and everything else they demanded.

Some of the great Powers, coveting Persia's vast wealth of natural resources are stealthily striving to out-wit one another and gain control of the Shah for selfish purposes—to develop the country, they smoothly put it. But there are signs that the Shah may imitate the cunning Sultan of Turkey by playing one Power against another, thus preserving his empire from spoliation.

Russia considers herself the proper guardian of Persia, England wants to boss her, proper or not. Lately Germany has taken a hand in the game.

The Kaiser and his Government are beginning to recognize the Shah and his land as objects through which they will be able to extend and strengthen German influence in the Middle East. They are evidently determined to develop the resources of the Shah's dominions with German capital and lay the foundations of interests, which at first will be economic and commercial, but will afterwards grow to be political interests.

The New German Ambassador at Teheran is a pushing man with commercial leanings rather than the diplomatic training, and his instructions are to lose no opportunity of forwarding the interests of his country, even at the risk of treading on the corns of such mighty competitors as Russia and England.

FOUGHT WOUNDED BEAR.

Bruin Put Up Desperate Struggle on Edge of a Precipice.

"Never in my life did I have such a thrilling adventure with a bear as I had last Friday about thirty miles northwest of Ceballa, in Gunnison county. It was a hot fight."

This was the way G. Gordon Pickett started his story of the biggest bear fight of the season. He and Harry Carpenter, with J. Carpenter's fine string of bear dogs, eight in number, started out last Friday afternoon, from Ceballa.

"The dogs jumped a good sized black bear along about 3 o'clock," said Mr. Pickett. "We followed him something like three miles and took long aim at him, wounding him in the right foreleg. We lost sight of him for a while and then the dogs got next to him again. This time they had him cornered on the edge of a big bluff, at least 100 feet high."

"It seems that the wound I had given him made the bear crazy mad. He matted two of the dogs, one after the other, and crunched their necks like so many soda crackers. He jumped down into a cleft of rock, where there was a little platform about twelve feet square, and beyond that the precipice."

"The dogs went after him and he went after them good and proper. He had already killed two, and it looked as if he was going to finish the entire pack. To save the lives of the dogs I jumped down to the little bench, but not until he had lunged at one of the bear dogs and cuffed him clear over the cliff."

"Of course that finished that dog, and the bear turned. He wasn't five feet from me when I tore the top of his head off with a quick shot from my rifle. He didn't exactly have me 'buffaloe,' but I think I never in all my twenty-five years' hunting experience came so near being seriously rattled. The dogs killed were among the best fighters in the pack."—Denver Post.

GIRL'S AMBITION NOT HIGH.

A Kansas girl graduate who had been given the title "Beyond the Alps Lily Italy" promulgated the following: "I don't care a cent whether Italy lies beyond the Alps or in Missouri. I do not expect to set the river on fire with my future career. I am glad that I have a good education, but I am not going to misuse it by writing poetry or essays on the future woman."

"It will enable me to correct the grammar of any lover I may have should he speak of 'dorges' in my presence or 'seen a man.' It will also come handy when I want to figure out how many pounds of soap a woman can get for three dozen eggs at the grocery. So I do not begrudge the time I spent in acquiring it. But my ambitions do not fly so high."

"I just want to marry a man who can lick anybody of his weight in the township, who can run an eighty-acre farm and who has no female relatives to come around and try to boss the ranch. I will agree to cook dinners for him that won't send him to an early grave and lavish upon him a wholesome affection and to see that his razor has not been used to cut broom wire when he wants to shave."

"In view of all this I do not care if I get a little rusty on the rule of three and kindred things as the years go by."—Topeka Capital.

Shingles Made of Concrete.

Shingles manufactured of concrete are but little heavier than slate, and not much more expensive than those made of the best quality of wood. They are practically indestructible, and, in the end, are much cheaper than shingles made of any other material. They are made in a variety of designs, and are reinforced with metal skeletons, which terminate in loops at the edges for nailing to the roof. Shingles of concrete are practically everlasting, as they are proof against decay, and, in fact, become more durable with exposure to the weather.

They Will Learn Yet.

So far as we know the strictly "ethical" physician is the only business man who deems it disgraceful to advertise what he has for sale. He has skill and professional knowledge in stock, but he refuses to inform the public of the fact. How long would any other business last if it were conducted on the principle?

To relinquish the advantages of advertising to the so-called "quacks" is merely to give the "quacks" the tremendous benefits derived from judicious publicity.

In his address before the Illinois Medical Society, Rockford Dr. Percy of Galeburg, the president, recognized the situation. "We must change our attitude toward the public on the subject of newspaper advertising," he said. "The irregular use of the press extensively and they educate the public to the injury of all real scientific advance. We must use the same means to forward the true aims and objects of science. When his confederates make up their minds to accept and exemplify his views there will be less talk of 'advertising quacks.'"

AVOID THE GIJA MONSTER.

Of the bite of the gija monster, that little-known creature of the southwestern deserts, a correspondent writes: "I have had some experience with the gija monster and can state that no matter what scientists may claim the gija monster is a good thing to shun."

"Indians and Mexicans have a horror of them and fear them more than a rattlesnake. I believe that the bite of the gija monster is dangerous because of the creature's habit of eating lizards, bugs and rodents and then lying on sand so hot that it blisters the hands and feet of men."

"The heat causes the food to putrefy in the stomach, evidenced by the fact that the teeth are often covered with a fermented, putrefied froth from the food. A bite has the same effect as the cut of a dissecting knife on an eater. In other words, the inoculation of a deadly poison."

Worked Both Ways.

Percy, kept from school by a cold, got so noisy in his play that his mother, suffering from a headache, suggested in despair that he play at being a little deaf-and-dumb boy.

"The idea struck him favorably, but the play was noisier than the old. "I should think," ventured the mother, "that a little deaf-and-dumb boy would not make any noise."

"Oh, but he would!" said Percy. "You see, he couldn't hear it." "Dear mother!" his voice broke in on her musings presently, "if the noise bothers you, why don't you play at being a little deaf-and-dumb boy yourself?"—Browning's Magazine.

Change of Scene for Holiday.

Too many people bear their tiring burles with them when they go away for rest. There must be a change of thought as well as scene. For the former their sailing city must be changed to a summer resort. The better should about the summer resort. And this is where he usually found. He has heard so much about his vacation. Get away from the crowd. Get back to nature. Live in the open. Sleep in the open if you would. Rub up against rural nature and see what the enlightenment will bring from it. Deserted Iowa Town.

Our State is so young that many are still in active life who assisted in laying its foundations, and yet we have many of the older counties in the State that have no other inhabitants.

Des Moines county has several, the most important of which was Kosuth, a town of some pretensions in the northwestern part of the county. It boasted of a fine academy, where the higher branches were taught. It was a place of some commercial importance.

When the iron horse sought its way northward from Burlington it passed Kosuth, and the county, it is said, never reached the ears of the residents. Mediopolis began, and it soon became apparent to Mediopolis that it was most important that Kosuth be wiped out. Many of the houses were gradually moved from Kosuth to the railroad town, and to-day practically nothing remains of Kosuth.—From the Burlington Hawkeye.

ONE OF A SEVEN-OAR CREW. Death of a Clergyman Who Took Part in a Famous Victory.

Rev. J. C. Cox, who was the sole surviving member of the famous "seven-oar crew" of Oxford University, which won the Grand Challenge Cup at Henley in 1843, died recently at Eastbourne, England, at the advanced age of 87 years. On account of his years and being a member of the noted crew, Cox had long been noted as the most noted oarsman in the world. But perhaps the details of this "seven-oar" race have never reached the ears of the present generation. Oxford and Cambridge subscription rooms were the opponents in the final heat for the "Grand," but Fletcher Menzies stroke of the Oxford boat, was taken ill immediately before the race.

When it was seen that Menzies could not possibly row, Oxford asked permission to put in a substitute. Cambridge positively refused, giving as a reason that it established a bad precedent, which would afterward be an excuse for the wholesale drafting of men. Then Oxford decided to row with seven men. To this the Cantabs objected, and appealed to Lord Camoys, who was the referee, to know if they were compelled to row against seven men. His lordship decided there was no ruling on the matter, and promptly ordered the race to be rowed. Thereupon Oxford pluckily backed to the starting line with seven oars.

Never since that Henley was there such excitement and Oxford won by a length. After the race the souvenir hunters literally tore the clothes off the crewmen and in many parts of England to-day bits of the caps and shirts are highly treasured. The president's chair at the Oxford University Boat Club is made out of a section of the coxswain's seat, while the two ends of the boat are in the possession of Lady Stainer. Mr. Cox was for thirty years vicar of Freston, in Essex, and for ten years chaplain of the British Embassy at Paris.

"The idea struck him favorably, but the play was noisier than the old. "I should think," ventured the mother, "that a little deaf-and-dumb boy would not make any noise."

"Oh, but he would!" said Percy. "You see, he couldn't hear it." "Dear mother!" his voice broke in on her musings presently, "if the noise bothers you, why don't you play at being a little deaf-and-dumb boy yourself?"—Browning's Magazine.

Early Cigarette Smokers.

Who first introduced cigarettes into this country? They were first used in the streets here by the late Laurence Oliphant; and, curiously enough, the introduction of this method of smoking to the English people came as a result of the Crimean war.

Our officers in Russia, among other hardships, could not procure tobacco or cigars, and learned the use of the cigarette from their French, Italian and Turkish allies, and also from their stay in Malta and Gibraltar.

Introduced into London military and other clubs, the new custom made very slow progress. But its use steadily spread from 1870 to 1880, when the fashion was set by the golden youth of those days.—From the Reader.

'Only half of it.' 'And the other half?' asked the mollified old man. 'That is passed underneath, sir, with a monkey wrench.'"

ORCHARD'S STORY OF WHY HE CONFESSED.

Had No Promise of Consideration by the Officers of the Law.

Witnesses Who Corroborate Some Parts of His Awful Story.

Boise, June 17.—Harry Orchard today told the world and the jury what it was that had determined him to make a clean breast of all his crimes from the very first one down to the latest.

"I believed it was my duty to tell the truth," he said, "regardless of the consequences to myself or anybody else. I did not see any other way. I felt I owed it to society. I owed it to God and to myself."

It was at the end of a long, bitter grilling that Orchard said these words. As he uttered them his voice faltered and grew husky and his eyes grew dim. He fumbled in his pocket, drew out a handkerchief and dabbed at his eyes. He did not break down, but he was deeply moved, and though he was able to go on answering the questions that Lawyer Richardson kept shouting at him at the top of his voice, it was the perfect control of himself that had never before deserted him through a week of severe examination.

A Dramatic Period.

There was perfect silence in the court room, everybody held their breath, the jury to a man leaned far forward in their seats with their eyes fixed upon the witness. Even the judge sat up a little straighter on the bench. They had been listening to the explanation of the telling of the most extraordinary story of crime ever narrated in an American court room and they knew it. For days this man Orchard had been telling them all an unsolved riddle. But at last here was something to help solve it. Just before that they had heard Lawyer Richardson say in that sneering tone that he adopted from the very moment he came to ask about Orchard's motives in making his confession.

"And so you thought you would procure immunity for yourself if you told, did you not?"

"No, sir. These things did not influence me except perhaps they made me confess a little sooner. But I had thought it all over. I had been thinking of my past life and I intended to put myself out of the way. I did not care about living any longer."

"Didn't you think you could get out of it by laying it all on somebody else?"

"No, sir," said Orchard faintly, but promptly. "I had been thinking over my past life and I did not think the grave ended it all, and I was afraid to die. I had been such an unnatural monster. Finally, I came to believe that if I sincerely repented of my sins I would be forgiven and I have never been in doubt since."

Orchard made it clear as daylight that it was not religion that induced him to make his confession to McParland in the State Penitentiary.

"When I first told Mr. McParland," he said, "I cared very little what became of me."

He cared so little what became of him, the witness stated, that at about that time he had practically made up his mind to commit suicide. He went so far as to write a letter of farewell to his brother. This he hid in the lining of his waistcoat and told Steve Adams, who was also confined in the penitentiary, to tell the authorities to have it delivered after he was dead. He intended to break the crystal of his watch, sever an artery and bleed to death.

How McParland Assisted.

It was after this that he got to thinking so much about what lies beyond the grave. His replies to questions indicated plainly that Detective McParland was quick to see the trend his mind was taking and to assist it. The detective talked to him a good deal about the Bible and told him some Bible stories that he used to know when he was a boy, but which the years of confinement had almost obliterated from his memory. He talked to him about King David and the evil things that he did and the years of repentance by which he strove to blot out his transgressions. The evil early years, the conversation "but I have not got cold feet," St. Paul also formed the subject of some talks Orchard had with the detective. It was after it and some visits that Dean Hicks paid to him, the witness said, in the voice that remained firm throughout all the stories of his crimes, but which now shook and grew thick and husky, that he made up his mind that the grave did not end everything and that he would not go unrepentant and by his own hand into the world that lies beyond this. It was then that he determined to live as long as he could and "to tell the truth, regardless of the consequences to myself or anybody else."

No Effort to Conceal Matters.

There was no detail of humiliation that Lawyer Richardson could inflict on Orchard that was spared him. He made him tell where he got the clothes he wore, the shoes on his feet, the overcoat that he had left in the anteroom of the Bibles that he sent to the woman he married in Cripple Creek. He questioned him minutely about the number of times McParland saw him. He made him tell all he knew about the efforts he made to get Steve Adams to confess to McParland. He drew out the statement that Gov. Gooding had commuted the sentence of a murderer named Welleser after Orchard had told the chief executive that he was sorry for him, that the Governor when he came to see him shook hands with him and called him

"Harry," and that Warden Whitney did the same thing.

He did everything he could to show that after Orchard had made his confession and promised to repeat it on the witness stand he was treated by the Governor and the warden like an intimate friend, or rather like a pampered favorite child, that there was nothing he asked for that he did not get, and that every effort was made to maintain and perpetuate the frame of mind into which he had been brought.

Orchard made not the slightest effort to conceal anything about which he was asked. He never dodged a question or any phase of it. He gave many details which he was not specifically asked. He threw wide open the windows of his memory, and if there was anything inside that Lawyer Richardson did not see it was only because he did not look. If candor ever appeared to be personified, it was in the person of Harry Orchard today.

This candor reached its extremity in his answers to questions touching the making to him of any promise of immunity. Orchard several times was asked if McParland did not tell him that the State always looked after its witnesses. He said the detective never said just this, but he added every time that McParland had told him that the State generally dealt fairly with its witnesses.

"Didn't McParland tell you that if you confessed you would be able to get out of it all right yourself?" demanded Richardson.

"No, sir," said Orchard, promptly. "McParland said he could not make any promises, because he could not keep them if he did make them. He said he would have the prosecuting attorney come and see me, but I said that he needn't do that, because whatever I told I told of my own free will, and I did not care much what became of me any way."

Orchard went on to declare that he never saw the Governor until after he had confessed, and that the Governor never had any promises to him, but he told him that he thought he was doing right, and that he believed he was doing a great thing for the State and the country.

Confronted by Peabody.

At the noon hour Orchard was taken as usual to the office of James and Hawley, of counsel for the State. As he passed through the hall with his guards he passed a man he knew and smiled pleasantly as he went on. He was still smiling as he entered Mr. Hawley's office, but the smile faded away and his face grew ashy pale as he saw a tall, broad-shouldered, spectacled man who stood near the window. This man was none other than ex-Governor Peabody, of Colorado, of whose life Orchard made two attempts with bombs and whom he tried vainly for some weeks to get a chance to kill, with a sawed-off shotgun.

"How are you, Orchard?" said the Governor, kindly. As he spoke he stepped forward and held out his hand. For a moment Orchard did not move. At last he managed to take with the Governor held out.

"I'm ashamed to shake hands with you, Governor," he faltered, when he was able to speak. "I tried often enough to kill you, but I didn't succeed. I'm ashamed to look at you."

"Oh, that's all right," said Governor Peabody. "That's all in the past now, and it's all over. I just want to tell you that I don't lay it up against you, and that I'm glad you have repented and made up your mind to tell the truth."

The two chatted a few minutes and the Governor then went out. Before he went he shook hands with Orchard once more.

In the afternoon, after Orchard had left the stand, Mr. Peabody came into the court-room for a few minutes. He looked curiously at the leaden box that stood on the clerk's desk. It was the case of the bomb that Orchard took down to Canyon City to kill the ex-Governor with.

"How does it feel to talk with a man who has tried so many times to kill you?" the Governor was asked.

"It's a little creepy," he answered, "but I have not got cold feet. I knew Orchard the moment I saw him, though he has changed considerably since I saw him hanging about the streets of Denver. I never suspected he was trying to 'bump me off' until after he confessed."

Mr. Peabody will testify for the State, as will also his daughter, Cora, who is also here.

Some Corroboration.

Immediately after Orchard left the stand the State began the corroboration of his testimony about trying to poison Bradley. Mrs. Sadie Swain, who, as Miss Sadie Bell, was a maid in the Bradley home; the milkman who sold the milk that was poisoned; and P. L. McCready, the chemist who analyzed the poisoned milk, carried the revolting tale from the discovery that the milk was poisoned to the analysis, which showed from 40 to 60 grains of strychnine in a quart of it. Mrs. Swain identified Orchard and connected him with the house. They all confirmed the date as within three or four days of the explosion, and Mrs. Swain swore that she opened the front door to get the morning paper a few minutes before the explosion and saw nothing on the steps.

Boise, Idaho, June 17.—Additional evidence bearing on the story told by Harry Orchard, of his attempts to kill Fred Bradley, of San Francisco, will be introduced by the state today. Laurence

M. Guibbini, the proprietor of the store near the Bradley home, is the first witness. It was here that Orchard says he made his rendezvous when he was watching the Bradley house.

Guibbini, an Italian, has been here for several days. He is a small man, quick and intelligent. Orchard, or Barry, as he called himself, when he frequented the Guibbini store, made himself very popular with the family. It was the proprietor who went out and secured the room opposite the Bradley house wroom which Orchard said he could look into Bradley's dining room and gain the exact knowledge which enabled him to plant the bomb at the right time. It is unlikely that the State will be able to conclude the San Francisco testimony today because two witnesses are on their way from California and will not be here in time. One of these is the woman from whom Orchard rented a room while in San Francisco.

To Prove Registered Letters.

In the course of his cross-examination Orchard said he had received a registered letter containing $100 from Pettibone. One of the witnesses to this called today is the registered letter, and it is possible that the tracing of the letter will be a strong piece of evidence.

A witness now on the way is said to be the man who sold the powder with which Orchard made the bomb.

Being unable to corroborate Orchard's story the state will take up some of the minor witnesses.

It is believed that Steve Adams will be located in Ogden by some of these. In the San Francisco matter it was temporarily passed the evidence will not be of great importance for the rest of the week. It is possible that Judge Wood will adjourn court over Saturday, but as the state is under great expense in the matter of witnesses, it is more probable that a session will be held on Saturday in order to dispose of those who are not of first importance to the linking up of the case. When the court does adjourn to-night or Saturday it will be till Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning, as the justices will have to hold court on Monday morning at Caldwell.

The case of Harry Orchard, charged with the murder of Frank Steffenberg, will be called in Caldwell and be postponed until the next term.

Orchard's Endurance.

Orchard, who reached the climax of his testimony yesterday, and whose sensational story came to a dramatic end, counsel for the defence leaving him pleading for the life of a fellow-murderer, returned to the penitentiary after he left the court room. Warden Whitney said his prisoner appeared to be in better spirits than he had been for many months. He shows not the slightest evidence of fatigue or nervousness and ate a hearty meal after he reached the penitentiary.

McParland's Testimony.

Capt. James McParland, the famous detective who has figured so largely in the testimony and who has been attacked by the counsel for the defence, prefers not to be interviewed at length on the subject of the Orchard confession.

"It would be superfluous to reiterate," he said yesterday. "Orchard has told the literal truth about the confession, and the way it was given to me. I made him no promises. I never made a promise to a criminal in my life. Orchard first confessed to me, but said he was not quite ready to give it to me finally."

"I promised to hold it for some time and I did so. He told me that when he was ready to tell the whole story that he would tell me know, and some time later he again told me the incidents of his life, leaving out nothing. Every word that he has said on the stand as to the confession is the truth, and there is nothing to add."

Weeks of Trial Yet.

The State expects to close its case in ten days or two weeks. It is believed Clarence Darrow, for the defence, says their case will take about four weeks, though it is possible it may be concluded in less. It is generally conceded, however, that the verdict will not be reached before August 1.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Bolt Tears Clothing Off Man's Body Near North Battleford.

North Battleford, Sask., June 17.—With his wife watching him through the window, Francois Grosjean, rancher, living thirty miles northeast of here, was instantly killed by a bolt of lightning on Saturday afternoon. He was brought here for burial. Grosjean was leading a horse when the accident occurred. The horse was knocked down, but recovered. The bolt literally tore the clothing from Grosjean's body. The dead man was 55 years old, married, and had five sons.

DR. SOMERVILLE TREASURER.

Appointment Confirmed by the General Assembly.

Rev. Alfred Gandier Will Consider His Acceptance.

Moral Reform Agency Offered to Rev. Dr. Shearer.

A Montreal despatch: What was described as "the most progressive General Assembly held for many years" was brought to a close at a late hour to-night. To-night Dr. Somerville accepted the post of Treasurer, and Mr. Gandier, while expressing his appreciation of the offer, asked leave to consult his congregation before committing himself as church financial agent.

Another important appointment was that of Rev. Dr. J. G. Shearer, Toronto, as agent to prosecute the work of moral and social reform. Dr. Shearer also reserving his decision, however, until he had consulted the Lord's Day Alliance, of which he is Secretary. Among other matters discussed at the final session was a proposal to specially ordain catechists and students working in the home mission fields so that they might be at liberty to baptize and to solemnize marriages. Rev. G. A. Wilson, Vancouver, intimated that he accepted the appointment of Superintendent of Home Missions in British Columbia.

Powers of Marriage and Baptism.

The question of whether catechists and students working under the Home Mission Committee should be empowered to baptize and solemnize marriages was raised in the report of the committee appointed at the last Assembly to consider the ministers' evangelistic course. It was recommended by the committee that where, in the judgment of a Presbytery, approved by the General Assembly's Home Mission Committee, the interests of missions require, it should be competent for a Presbytery to grant authority to dispense sealing ordinances and to marry to any catechist, student or minister, who had not yet been admitted by the General Assembly, and to ordain, where necessary, for better purposes, but that that authority should be revocable at any moment, and should not confer the full ministerial status.

Discussion of the matter was adjourned, and when it was resumed Dr. Patrick intimated that the recommendation had been altered to the effect that it should be competent for a Presbytery to ordain catechists or students for work under the Home Mission Committee, but that those thus ordained should not possess the full ministerial status nor be eligible for a call. In this form the recommendation was adopted.

Widows' and Orphans' Fund.

Rev. Dr. Sedgwick moved the adoption of the report of the ministers' widows' and orphans' fund, eastern section, and Rev. A. McGillivray, Toronto, that for the western section.

The committee for the western section reported that, although the number of annuitants was steadily increasing, the contributions from congregations had this year been less than last year by the sum of $1,812.54. In consequence of this there had not been sufficient revenue to meet the amount of the annuities paid, and they had had to close the year with a deficit of $1,033.80, the revenue having been $1,808.51 less than the expenditure.

An overture from the Presbytery of Toronto was submitted by Rev. A. MacGillivray, urging that all ministers be required at their ordination and induction to connect themselves with the aged and infirm widows' fund, and with the ministers' widows and orphans' fund. The overture was remitted to the board of the funds for consideration.

B. C. Theological College.

The committee appointed to consider the details connected with the establishment of a theological college in British Columbia recommended that until a permanent site was secured the college should be located at Vancouver. This, along with other provisional arrangements, was approved.

The report on statistics was presented by Rev. Dr. Somerville and adopted. The totals by Synods were:

The Auditors' View.

The report on the audit of the church accounts was then considered. The auditors, John McKay & Co., commented somewhat strongly on the system of finance adopted, describing it as defective.

Several recommendations with a view to improving the method of administration were submitted by Dr. Somerville and approved.

Preacher Sued for Slander.

Roseland, B. C., June 17.—A writ has been issued in the Supreme Court by George Agnew, merchant of this city, against Rev. J. P. Knox, pastor of the Methodist Church. The writ claims damages against the minister for slandering his flock, until recently superintendent of the Sabbath school.

A TORONTO BURGLAR.

The Bad Man Captured in Philadelphia While on a Spree.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 17.—John M. Parker, a well-dressed young man, who has been in this city for three weeks, posing as the son of a rich man, while he worked himself into the graces of a pretty West Philadelphia girl, who was to be his bride, has come to grief. Through his own carelessness in getting drunk and wearing a pair of over-shoes on a clear day, he brought to the attention of the police the fact that he was a notorious burglar and a former associate of Ed. and John Biddle, who made a sensational escape from prison in Pittsburgh several years ago.

When fuddled Parker fell off a trolley car last Monday night. His head was badly injured, and the patrol rushed him to the Pennsylvania Hospital. His injuries were dressed, and the house surgeon took an admission card to write down a history of the patient.

"What's your name?" asked the doctor.

"John Parker," was the reply.

"Your occupation?" asked the doctor, who by this time noticed the heavy gum shoes the patient wore. "Not a gum shoe man, I hope?"

"Close to it," was the surprising response of Parker. "I am a real burglar."

"You're delirious," was the doctor's reply.

"Honest, I am a burglar, doc," insisted the patient. "I am a real crook, served lots of time. Why, I am Pratt (alias Reddy Corney) from Toronto, Canada. Look me up, see if I look like you. You won't believe me when I tell you I know the famous Biddle brothers."

Then the police were notified and detectives were sent to investigate. By the time they reached the hospital Parker realized his carelessness in talking too much, and tried to make believe that it was all a joke. But the police had grown suspicious, and would not let him go. Finally Parker confessed that he had served seven years for house-breaking in Toronto and had done other time under the names of Corney and Pratt.

"Don't let the girl know," he pleaded, as they took him away. "She thinks I'm honest."

THE WEEK-END BABY.

A Hidden Phase of Life in Old London.

A London cable says:—Parents who go away from London for the week-end, leaving the baby in charge of the nurse, would be surprised if baby, having the experience of speech could narrate his or her experiences during their absence.

A story is told of a certain young married couple who spend most of their week-ends in country-house visiting and who, in consequence of an anonymous letter, paid a surprise visit to their home on a Saturday night. To the nurse and the baby-boy were absent. The young parents at once took a cab to the address in Chelsea given to them by the anonymous letter writer. They inquired of the grubby-looking maiden of fourteen who answered the bell if the lady So-and-so's baby was within. To the sound of a distant dance music the girl ushered the young couple into a gloomy-looking anteroom crowded with bassinets.

The young couple had unveiled for themselves a hidden phase of London life. Young parents of the middle or upper classes who have but one child frequently leave it with the nurse at home from Friday night till Monday and on the Saturday evening the frivolous nurse, secure, presumably, from interruption, takes in charge and goes out to enjoy herself in the company of her fellows at a dancing class or a remote little dancing hall. On every Saturday night ten to twenty children, from one year old to four, may be seen in the bassinets in the cloakroom of these assemblies.

But these are not the only experiences of the week-end baby. "In some districts," said a leading detective who "there are rooms in which on a Saturday night a nurse, on payment of a few pence, can leave her baby charge which she goes to the music-hall or theatre."

TO HAVE A NEW WING.

Plans for Parliament Buildings Enlargement Assume Definite Shape.

Toronto, June 17.—It is reported that plans are now being prepared for a new wing to the Provincial Parliament buildings. The need of enlargement of the buildings has been felt for some years, and various methods have been discussed. The plan, it is said, provide for the erection of the new wing immediately north of the present main portion of the existing buildings and between the eastern and western wings.

Officers will be provided for the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway and the Hydro-Electric Power Commissions, the Railway and Municipal Board, the sessional typewriters, and for one or two of the permanent departments of the Government, now in somewhat cramped quarters in the existing buildings.

The present intention is to ask at the next session of the Legislature for a vote for the work on the basis of the new plans, and to commence building next spring.

WAS WILFUL MURDER.

Coroner's Jury Find That John Boyd Shot Ed. F. Wandle.

Toronto despatch: A verdict of wilful murder against John Boyd, with a rider commending Police Constables Turner and McCree for promptitude in effecting the arrest of the prisoner, was returned last night by Coroner George W. Graham's jury, who investigated the circumstances attending the shooting of Edward F. Wandle, the York street restaurant keeper, on Tuesday afternoon.

Olive Bovey, a waitress in the restaurant, one of the principal witnesses, said that when Boyd was in the place in the morning in search of the woman, Naomi Evans, Wandle hit the prisoner over the head with a loaded cane. When Wandle ran upstairs in the afternoon, closely followed by Boyd, the restaurant keeper had no idea that the prisoner was armed with the revolver. The girl explained that three shots were fired downstairs and two more upstairs.

GREAT STRIKE FAILS.

MEN LOST ABOUT A MILLION DOLLARS IN WAGES.

Pat Connors, Leader of the Strikers, Breaks Down and Weeps as He Tells the Men They Are Beaten—Returning to Work.

New York, June 17.—There was a pathetic scene at yesterday's meeting of the longshoremen, whose strike for increased pay was declared off. Patrick Connors, leader of the strikers, broke down and wept when compelled to make the acknowledgment that the men were beaten. There was a moment's silence, and then the hall rang with cheers for the leader, while many of the men who had faced privation in the effort to win their demands hurried to the platform, shook Connors by the hand and assured him that he had made a good fight.

More than 12,000 of the original 20,000 strikers who remained firm will return to work today. It is believed that all of the men will secure their old places, but they must return for the same pay they received when they went on strike, thirty cents an hour. They had demanded an increase of ten cents.

The strike has lasted nearly six weeks, and was a great pecuniary loss to the steamship companies and to the workers. The loss in wages to the longshoremen has been close to a million dollars.

SCHMITZ IS GUILTY.

SAN FRANCISCO'S CHIEF OF EXECUTIVE CONVICTED.

The First Formal Conviction in the Anti-graft Campaign—Schmitz Unmoved When Verdict Was Rendered by Jury.

San Francisco, June 17.—Mayor Eugene Schmitz was to-night found guilty of extorting money from keepers of French restaurants in this city. This is the first formal conviction in the anti-graft campaign inaugurated several months ago. Abe Ruef, who was indicted for similar offences, pleaded guilty to the charges and appeared as a witness against Schmitz.

When the verdict was announced, Schmitz sat unmoved, with his left hand to his chin. He apparently did not understand, and asked Barrett: "What is it?"

"Guilty," said Barrett. Schmitz's hand dropped to the table, but he showed no other sign of emotion.

TWO OF THEM.

SEARCHING FOR VANISHED MAN, FOUND BODY OF AGED WOMAN.

Two Suicides at Stratford—The Second Tragedy Was Revealed While Victoria Lake Was Being Drugged.

Stratford, Ont., despatch: Last evening Mr. Samuel Rankin, of Stratford, left his home and about 8 o'clock this evening his body was found lying in three feet of water on the outskirts of the city, near the House of Refuge.

Mr. Rankin, unnoticed by his wife, got up out of bed between the hours of 12 and 4 o'clock. It was thought advisable to drag Victoria Lake, and a great portion of the water was let out, but the body was not found. Instead, however, one of the searchers was shocked to find in the water the lifeless form of an aged woman. The proper authorities were at once notified, and on enquiry the remains were found to be those of Mrs. Patterson, a well-known resident of the city. The body had only been in the water a few hours.

Late last night deceased was found wandering around in the vicinity of the lake, and was taken home, but this morning she again walked down in the same direction and ended her life. She had been brooding over the illness of her daughter.

SHOT THROUGH HEAD.

Seventeen-Year-Old Boy Killed at Augustine Cove, P. E. I.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., June 17.—A fatal accident occurred yesterday at Augustine Cove, the victim being Whitfield Laird, aged seventeen, son of Philip Laird. The boy started harrowing, but left the team standing and went off, carrying his gun. The father, who at first felt no uneasiness, finally became alarmed at his prolonged absence and went in search.

In the woods at the edge of the field he found the dead body of his son with the head shattered by a load of slugs, which the gun contained. The slugs entered underneath the chin and came out at the back of the neck.

It is believed the discharge was accidental, presumably when he was attempting to withdraw the load. Laird was always handling guns, and some months ago shot himself through the hand.

REVOLVER WAS HANDY.

Qu'Appelle Woman Chases Burglar and Secures Arrest.

Regina, June 17.—In the Supreme Court Mathias Gruenstein was found guilty of burglariously breaking into the house of Mrs. Ambler, of Qu'Appelle on May 25. Mrs. Ambler stated that she had slept with a loaded revolver under her pillow for twenty years. When Gruenstein's presence in the house was detected she chased the man out of the house at the point of her revolver. She followed him into the street, and succeeded in rousing Constable Glass, who arrested the man. Sentence was deferred.

The Song of the Hair

There are four verses. Verse 1. Ayer's Hair Vigor stops falling hair. Verse 2. Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. Verse 3. Ayer's Hair Vigor cures dandruff. Verse 4. Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the scalp healthy, and keeps it so. It is a regular hair-food; this is the real secret of its wonderful success.

MODERN FREIGHT CARS

Considerable additions are being just now made to the rolling stock of the Grand Trunk, in the delivery of some five thousand freight cars of various kinds. These cars were only ordered last November, and delivery started a few days ago, which is regarded as pretty rapid work in these days of enormous orders for rolling stock, far beyond the capacity of the shops to turn them out. The cars are of the most modern type, as is shown by the immense capacity of steel coal cars, which have a carrying power of 100,000 pounds each. The cars are being rushed into active work as fast as they arrive, which is about 30 a day.

The order which is now being delivered consists of:

1,000 steel coal cars of 100,000 lbs. capacity.

1,250 box cars of 60,000 lbs. capacity.

1,500 flat cars of 60,000 lbs. capacity.

250 furniture cars of 60,000 lbs. capacity.

300 single deck stock cars of 60,000 lbs. capacity.

200 double deck stock cars of 60,000 lbs. capacity.

300 ballast cars of 100,000 lbs. capacity.

400 refrigerator cars of 60,000 lbs. capacity.

THE POSTAL SITUATION

From all sections the recent postal convention with the United States is meeting with unqualified condemnation. The statement that the U.S. postal authorities would not consent to a postponement of the increased rates has been officially denied. In view of this the assertion of "Printer and Publisher," Toronto, that the convention was a scheme of the U.S. to increase their postal revenue a half a million dollars yearly at the expense of Canada is manifestly absurd. That this country should be making a profit of its postal business notwithstanding the excess of U.S. mail matter carried free shows that the expenses of such transportation have been greatly exaggerated. The endorsement of the action of the convention by the Canadian Press Association was secured by practices which were, to say the least, doubtful, and is now being repudiated by its members. Postmaster-General Lemieux is the victim of his subordinates, and the sooner he rights himself with the country the better. It is from the journals of his own party the protests against the existing arrangements are chiefly coming: the opponents of the Government view it complacently knowing that it is bound to react unfavorably on the administration.—Ex.

Manual Training Exhibit

An exhibit of work done by pupils in the Domestic Science and Manual Training departments of Brockville public schools last week was viewed with pleasure. Respecting the latter the Recorder says: "In one corner Mr. Andrew Hagerman and his boy pupils are proudly showing results of their handiwork, which is indeed marvelous. An idea of the showing of this department is a large workbench complete, made by Master Jim Horton, the little son of Dr. Horton, out of white ash and hard maple. Into the bench are several new wrinkles, which old-time mechanics should see and take pattern from. Then again two other little boys, Garnet Hollington and Geo. McLean, are showing sleds made by themselves in the school. Another little boy is showing a sailboat, the product of his own hand, while there are several other articles too numerous to mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Monroe, Athens, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson recently.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Redford are congratulating them on the arrival of a fine baby boy.

Goes to G. T. P. R.

Many in Athens hold in pleasant memory Mr. Charles D. Fisher, son of Mr. D. Fisher, Victoria street, and will read with pleasure the following notice from the Brandon Sun:—

C. D. Fisher, who for the past five years has been connected with the C. P. R. Telegraphic Department as chief dispatcher, has handed in his resignation to take effect on July 1st, and has accepted an appointment on the Grand Trunk Pacific, with headquarters at Winnipeg.

Mr. Fisher's departure from this city will be heard of with feelings of regret by all with whom he came in contact in his official capacity. Especially so will this be the case in business circles, wherein Mr. Fisher has formed a large number of friends by his genial and courteous manner in all business transactions. In his departure from this city Brandon will lose one of its most able and much respected citizens. Mr. Fisher was appointed to Brandon from Moose Jaw some five years ago.

The Grand Trunk Pacific is to be congratulated on securing the able services of one who has had such a large amount of experience in railway business and one who was not only a favorite with the public at large, but was also endeared in the affections of the large office staff under him.

A Beef Combine

A beef combine, the Times says, has been formed amongst the farmers in Lansdowne Township. Each farmer is to supply one beef. This is to be divided into twenty pounds, more or less, per week. This will continue in force for two weeks.

At the end of this time, settlement will be made, when the difference between the weight of each man's meat and the amount of beef he has received will be settled for at the rate of six cents per pound. The outcome of this scheme will be watched with interest.

REMARKABLE INVENTION FOR THE CULTURE OF HAIR

THE EVANS VACUUM CAP is a practical invention constructed on scientific and hygienic principles by the simple means of which a free and normal circulation is restored throughout the scalp. The minute blood vessels are gently stimulated to activity, thus allowing the food supply which can only be derived from the blood, to be carried to the hair roots, the effects of which are quickly seen in a healthy, vigorous growth of hair. There is no rubbing, and as no drugs or chemicals of whatsoever kind are employed there is nothing to cause irritation. It is only necessary to wear the Cap three or four minutes daily.

60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL!

The Company's Guarantee

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. I. N. LOVE, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles (hair roots), without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. MOORE, referring to the invention says that the principle upon which the Evans Vacuum Cap is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the Evans Vacuum Cap will be sent, post free, on application.

FRIENDSHIP WHAT DOES IT COST YOU

A few days ago two farmers off the B. & W. were seen comparing each others suits.—The taller man said, "You were beat out of $3.00. Why don't you try Semi-Ready?" The other replied that he was a personal friend of this other merchant and did not like to go past him.

His friendship cost him $3.00.—You say he was an easy mark, and so he was and yet the bush is full of such people.

Reader, if you buy your clothes at any old price because of friendship, you pay too much—the price is too high for what you get.

Peculiar Occurrence

A few days ago a wild duck was noticed flying over the town, but low down with a labored flight as it exhausted, until finally she came to the ground in Mr. S. James' garden, when investigation disclosed the fact that the mother duck had been carrying on her back twelve young ones apparently three or four weeks old. Whether the young ones were slipping from her and she wanted to readjust her load is not explainable, but after an unsuccessful effort to restore them to their former position on her back the old one departed leaving behind eleven of her brood. These Mr. James is caring for until they can take care of themselves.—Almonte Gazette.

Diminished Vitality

Some people talk very flippantly about diminished vitality. They don't stop to think vitality is the principle of life—that it is that little understood something on which every function of their bodies depends. Diminished vitality is early indicated by loss of appetite, strength and endurance, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest vitalizer.

Educational Laws

One of the latest laws promulgated by Ontario's Minister of Education requires that public school inspectors must attend a school to be opened in Toronto. As inspectors receive such large salaries they won't mind the little item of expense involved in this.

The duties of all Public School inspectors will be materially increased. At regular intervals they will be called upon to meet the Trustee Boards and fully discuss all educational matters, and at least once in each year they must call a public meeting in each township and invite trustees and rate-payers.

The possibility of securing extensions of teachers' certificates is to be made much more remote. In future ere a school can avail itself of an extended certificate it must submit to the Department a statement from the Board and inspector showing the efforts made to secure a qualified teacher and the salary offered. It will then be necessary to advertise a second time, and, if able offer a higher salary. No inspector can in future grant an extension of certificate without the approval of the Minister of Education.

Special Offer

The Weekly Mail and Empire and The Athens Reporter will be mailed to any address, postage paid, in Canada or Great Britain until January 1st, 1908 for 75 cents.

Both publications for 7 months, the period mentioned, at regular rates, would cost $1.15. By accepting this offer new subscribers save 40 cents.

Silvering Mirrors

Mirrors are usually silvered by coating the glass with amalgam. For this purpose a large, perfectly flat stone is provided, and upon it is evenly spread a sheet of tin foil without crack or flaw. This is covered to the depth of one-eighth of an inch with clean mercury. The plate of glass, perfectly cleaned from all grease and impurity, is floated on to the mercury by sitting, so as to exclude all air bubbles. It is then pressed down by loading it with weights in order to press out all the mercury which remains fluid. This is received in a gutter around the stone. After about twenty-four hours it is gently raised upon its edge, and in a few weeks it is ready to frame.

His Perseverance

Henry Arthur Jones, the noted English playwright, was giving the students of Yale an address on the drama. "Your American vernacular is picturesque," he said, "and it should help your playwrights to build strong, racy plays. But neither vernacular nor anything else is of moment if perseverance is lacking. No playwright can succeed who is like a man I know. I said to this man one New Year's day, 'Do you keep a diary, Philip?' 'Yes,' he answered, 'I've kept one for the first two weeks in January for the last seven years.'"

His Good News

"I have," said a lawyer as he entered his condemned client's cell, "good news at last."
"A reprieve?" eagerly exclaimed the prisoner.
"No, not a reprieve, but your uncle has left you £200, and now you can meet your fate with the satisfying feeling that the noble efforts of your lawyer in your behalf will not go unrewarded."—London Tit-Bits.

Honest

Boarder (on leaving)—Madam, you are one of the most honest persons I have ever met. Landlady—I am glad to hear you say that, sir. Boarder—Yes; your honesty is conspicuous on the very front of your establishment. Your sign says, "Boarders taken here"—London Telegraph.

SUNDAY AT HOME

Congregation Delighted by Novel Easter Address.

Easter Sunday morning was celebrated at Elchester Parish Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne, by the unusual form of a sermon preached in verse.

In a series of Spenserian stanzas the pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. George Gibson, discussed the text, "In the garden of a new sepulchre," and created something of a sensation in his congregation.

The following are the first stanzas of the sermon:

How sweet the phrase each burial ground that calls "A cemetery" that is "Sleeping-place!" Where, out beyond the noisy city walls, Our dear one's rest while, past their earthly race,

They bask in presence of their Father's face, And wait the summons of the Judgment Day, When they and we shall once again embrace,

And re-unite life's closest bonds for aye! Ah, who such meeting seek most warmly—we or they?

While speeds the city on its reckless course, The Cemetery rests in peace profound, While yields the city now to fraud, now force, The Sleeping-place is always holy ground

Where appears the tiny grass-grown mound, The coarsest nature feels a sense of awe, The birds appear to sing with softer sound,

As if the symbols of repose they saw, This reverence for the grave is Nature's solemn law, Not far from Calvary's ill-omened slope, Were gardens, and in them a rock-hewn cave,

Where wealthy Joseph had indulged the hope, That himself might one day find a grave, The Sacred Form from contact rude to save,

He laid it reverently there to rest, Now let the rough world round about The secret convert had achieved his best, And Christ, as sang the seer, lay 'mid the wealthiest.

The sermon was very closely and attentively followed by the delighted congregation.

Prayer.

Our Heavenly Father, who in ancient days didst lead Thy people like a flock, and didst deliver them from the wrath of their enemies, we also would commit ourselves to Thy guidance and protection.

When the road is dark and we know not how we should go, send forth Thy light and Thy truth and lead us, Thy path which we are not able to overcome, make Thou a way for us, as Thou didst part the sea for Israel. When our faith grows weak and courage fails, speak to us words of cheer, and strengthen Thy promises and by the touch of Thy gracious Spirit, that we may go forward according to Thy will and may follow whomever Thou dost lead. Finally, when we stand face to face with death, let Thy presence still be with us, that the fear of the last great enemy may be taken away, and that we may pass peacefully and triumphantly into the land of promise. Hear our prayer for Jesus' sake. Amen.

"Put Yourself in His Place."—This motto, good for all classes, is especially applicable to children. Too many act as if they had forgotten their childhood. They seem to have little sympathy or patience with children and youth. But both are essential to helping the young. One cannot have the confidence of the young who does not sympathize with them; and without their confidence little help can be rendered. In order to sympathize with them, it is necessary to enter into their state of mind—to realize the value of their trials, their sorrows, their expectations, their disappointments, and whatever else may befall him. He who does this may hope to be of real service to the young. None else can.

Teach Them Right Views.—Children must learn, and they are susceptible of being taught. It is of the utmost importance that they be taught correct views of God, of themselves, of the nature of sin, of duty, of the Christian life, and the way to live it. Too many are left to absorb their notions from others, who are illy prepared to instruct others, because of their own defective knowledge. It would be a blessing to every church if the younger ones were conducted into classes for specific instruction in the fundamentals of the Christian religion and of Christian life. Such training would be of incalculable value for the future of every such congregation. It would make it easy to secure the children of the church for Christ and His services when young, and prevent those long delays and uncertainties incident to many of them.

Set Them a Good Example.—Teaching will go a very little way unless backed up by the right sort of example. "Teaching by example" is the best way to reach anyone, especially the young. Here is a field in which every endeavor may find something to do. Let him be careful that what he does puts no stumbling-block in the way of some younger person. If we have the confidence of the young, the more easily can we lead them in paths of righteousness by what we are, by the path in which we walk. We must see to it that our path is perfectly safe for them to take. Some things which we may wish for ourselves, we may have to give up for the sake of those who look to us for example, and who will be greatly influenced by what they see in us.

Try to Influence Them for Christ.—This should be the final aim of all our relations with the youth of our homes and our churches. This should never be out of mind. All that we do for them should have this for its ultimate goal. It is a crying need of our churches that the young are too much neglected. They are committed to the Sunday school and the Junior Endeavor, while the church authorities give them little or no attention. Yet they need the tenderest care, the most careful nursing, that they may be saved while young from the burdening effects of indifference and procrastination, and be influenced to give themselves joyfully to Christ.

Our Best.

There are some who shrink from undertaking work which the Master gives them to do. They are not worthy; they have no skill nor power for the delicate duty. But to all their timid shrinking and withdrawing the Master's gentle yet urgent word is, "Do your best." They have only to kneel in lowly reverence, and pray for the beloved Master's sake, for skill and strength for the task assigned, and they will be inspired and helped to do it well. The power of Christ will rest upon them, and the love of Christ will be in their hearts. And all work done under this blessed inspiration will be acceptable to God. We have but truly to lay the living sacrifice on the altar; then God will send the fire.

We need to get this matter of consecration down out of cloudland into the region of actual, common, daily living. We sing about it in our religious meetings, oftentimes in glowing mood, as if it were some exalted state, with which earth's life of toil, struggles, and care had nothing whatever to do. But the consecration suggested by the living sacrifice is one that walks the earth, that meets one's actual duties, struggles, temptations, and sorrows, and that falters not in obedience, fidelity or submission, but follows Christ with love and joy wherever He leads. No other consecration pleases God.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

The Landing Place of Prayer.

I thought I was in the King's treasure house, a large and ample place. Men in authority were present and servants acting their part. Large vases stood in rows, tier above tier. At one end I saw a wharf with shipping, and all was busy, flags of different nations were flying at the masthead, with all the bustle of a busy port.

All seemed busy but one, and he approached and seemed willing to communicate. I inquired about the contents of the treasure house and the importations, "I am not permitted to know all. Indeed, but very little, but these massive vases have a history which is very precious. Go and look into one of them." The fragrance was that of a garden which the Lord had blessed. "You must not reckon by the bulk, but by the excellence of the contents. Gold, well refined, the most precious potent factors in the universe." The rarest, most costly jewels may not compare with their value; their worth is beyond computation. Each golden bowl or vase has a distinct history, and a name is attached to each, though you do not see it. The refining of these contents is a marvellous performance.

You see that fleet at the wharf. During long voyages the refining process has been going on, sifting, washing, dividing, sorting. Oh, the worthless stuff thrown overboard has been immense, so much so that the ocean bed has been considerably arised. This great landing place means treasures far more precious than gold. The vases, like concentrated, solidified tears—they shine, they sparkle, they illustrate the agencies of the past and the present, for the process still goes on."

There was silence. The goodly smell overpowered us. We felt the atmosphere delicious and oppressive, a burden and yet so glad. "Tell me in a word," said I, "the contents of these vases." "They are the prayers of the saints; the history of even one would fill you with amazement. The heart of man may be compared to a factory where raw material is crushed, smelted, moulded, refined, adapted and made fit for use. The product is jewels for the crown of the King, gold for the currency of the realm, arguments for the high courts, beauties of holiness for the angels to admire. There is scarcely a prayer that does not pass through the crucible; it goes in big; it comes out small. Take selfishness out a million prayers, and you have what a child may carry in a basket—selfish prayers, by the hundred tons at a time into the sea. No wonder that the sea is filling up. Selfishness is a defilement, and nothing that works defilement enters these holy vessels. The garments of the laughters of the King are all glorious within the palace gates; no wrinkle or spot or any such thing is found. They are pure within, and beautiful without. The shades of evening were gathering with a profound salute. I took leave of me and went in the language of a beautiful woman, I said: "The staff has not been told me." H. T. Miller.

Affliction.

When the Psalmist said: "It is good for me that I have been afflicted," he was not talking cant. He had reached the point in his earthly career at which he could look back upon the preceding years and see them—much as God sees them—as a whole. He could appreciate the danger of the temptations which he had met, and the necessity of sharp warnings at this point, and of actual scourgings of the soul at this point, in order to prevent his straying, or to rescue him, already strayed from the way of safety. Such a retrospect of life is granted to each of us at times, and it is full of instruction. It teaches us a tremendous truth, the need and use of unhappiness. Chastening widens the experience, deepens sympathy, enlarges the range of friendship, invigorates character, throws the soul back upon God in firmer trust, and does a work for the soul so noble that, if its own character alone be regarded, the divine love behind it and pervading it becomes evident. Blessed are they who no longer need to be thus assured, because their own hearts have learned the truth and rest upon it.—The Congregationalist.

CHAMBERLIN STILL HELPLESS.

His Weakness Shocks His Friends at Birmingham.

Birmingham, Eng., June 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain arrived here to-day from London. The health of Mr. Chamberlain is improving, but his comparative helplessness was a great shock to his friends, who assembled at the railway station to meet him. All hats were raised in respectful silence as his carriage drove away.

AMENDING B.N.A. ACT.

FIRST READING PASSED IN BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Resolutions of Premiers at Ottawa Conference Incorporated—Premier McBride, of British Columbia, Proposed to Colonial Office Regarding Inadequacy of His Grant.

London, June 17.—To-day Mr. Winston Churchill introduced the British North America Act, 1907, containing the essential portions of the resolutions of the Premiers at the Ottawa Conference last autumn. The new scale of Federal subsidies is confirmed, but the words "final and unalterable" are omitted, because no act of the British Parliament is final. There was no opposition, and the bill passed its first reading.

Premier McBride, of British Columbia, made many interviews with the Colonial Office, about the inadequacy of his grant. Mr. McBride made a great impression and was complimented by Mr. Winston Churchill and Mr. Alfred Lyttelton, but the authorities declined to interfere with the substance of the Ottawa conference and Dominion Parliament resolutions. They declined also to lay down the rule that the opinion of the Federal Government is necessarily final.

Attorneys-General Foy, of Ontario, Campbell of Manitoba, and Premier McBride were in the gallery during the debate. Mr. Churchill read the letter from Hon. W. S. Fielding urging the immediate passage of the bill. The House greeted his speech with cheers.

HELD FAST, FATALLY SCALDED.

Terrible Fate of an Engineer at Owen Sound Cement Works.

An Owen Sound despatch: A terrible fatality occurred here this afternoon by the upsetting of the portable crane used at the Imperial Cement Company's mills for handling coal and marl. Engineer Harvey Frank was the sole operator of the machine, and, while no one saw the accident, it was in the gallery during the debate. Mr. Churchill read the letter from Hon. W. S. Fielding urging the immediate passage of the bill. The House greeted his speech with cheers.

FIGURES FROM TOWNS OUTSIDE OF WINNIPEG SHOW GREAT ACTIVITY.

Winnipeg, June 17.—Statistics gathered from 37 towns throughout the west show that buildings actually under way therein amount to $22,500,000. This is, of course, exclusive of Winnipeg. In Edmonton alone $6,000,000 will be expended in new structures. This wonderful development, great as it is, would be one-fifth more were it not for the prohibitive rates charged for lumber. Wages are uniformly high.

A GREAT TRIUMPH

GAINED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE.

The Doctors of Mount Clemens Institute Prove the Value of These Pills in the Case of Mr. S. Harris, Government Inspector of Elevators at Hamilton, Ont.

(From the Star, Dundas, Ont.) We were much pleased to see Mr. S. Harris, the well-known Government inspector of elevators of Hamilton, in Dundas the other day, greatly improved in health and appearance since the last time we met him. As is known to many of the Star readers, Mr. Harris had recovered from a long and severe illness, and is now quite able to attend his usual duties. From this long illness many predicted Mr. Harris would never recover, and the fact that he is once more able to go around as very nearly as spry as he did before he was attacked, is little less than marvellous to them.

In reply to our reporter, Mr. Harris related the early stages of the attack and subsequent sufferings which he experienced, and while he did not court publicity, decided that in the public interest he would relate the circumstances of this wonderful cure. About fourteen months ago Mr. Harris woke up one morning with a stiff neck; try as he would, and after applying all the remedies externally that he could hear or think of, he was unable to get rid of it. The stiffness moved to the spine and shoulders, then to his hips, until made almost a cripple of him, and it was with extreme difficulty that he could get out of bed at all. As for walking it was out of the question with him. The attack became so bad that he was unable to put on either his coat, vest or hat. From time to time he called in various medical men, none of whom were able to give him much relief. It was almost impossible for him to raise his feet from the floor, and all pronounced his a severe case of muscular rheumatism, giving him little encouragement as to his ultimate recovery. However, one medical gentleman finally recommended the baths, and as a last resort Mr. Harris decided to follow his advice, and went to Mount Clemens, Mich. As is customary with all patients, Mr. Harris had to undergo a thorough examination in order to determine if the system can stand this rigorous treatment. After several examinations had been made as to Mr. Harris' condition, the physicians there finally decided that he was not suffering from muscular rheumatism at all, but that his ailment was of the nerves, and told him that the baths would do him little or no good; that he required altogether different treatment. Mr. Harris placed himself in the hands of one of the physicians there, and what seemed quite strange to him, they did nothing for him but administer medicine in the shape of pills. Shortly after he commenced this treatment he began to improve perceptibly, and his appetite greatly improved. He began to walk around slowly at first, but soon was able to get around more than he could for a year previous. He was able to put on his coat and vest and began to feel like his former self. His improvement was so rapid and perceptible not only to himself, but to others, that he was piled with all sorts of questions as to his wonderful recovery. The medical attendant was questioned as to the nature of the medicine which was being administered. Much to the surprise of Mr. Harris and other patients there, he was told that it was a well-known Canadian remedy, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and was advised to continue their use for a time on his return home. Mr. Harris is loud in his praise of the wonderful curative qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and consented to make his case public in the hope that he might benefit others similarly afflicted. Mr. Harris has long been a resident of Hamilton, being a well-known builder of elevators, as well as Government inspector of the same, so that his prominence and well known integrity is evidence that he is sincere in the statements he made.

TRIAL FOR LIFE

"It is too horrible." "What, the dream?" "To hear you trifle so with such tremendous guilt!"

"No!" "Come, draw up the curtain! Let us see what this very dramatic dream is," he said, disdainfully.

"What the fiend are you driving at now? What about the dagger? Come, what about it?" "It was produced to-day in court; I recognized it; it was yours."

"You should have nothing to do with her, more than a spirit of darkness has to do with an angel of light; and yet you have twice cruelly deceived her."

"You escape; you think your deed of darkness hid forever from the world; but, Robert Thugsen, I repeat, each night when sleep has closed your eyes and seals your senses, conscience awakes and re-enacts every minute scene of that tragedy, speaking out, when then you only thought and felt, as well as what you saw and did!"

"What the fiend are you driving at now? What about the dagger? Come, what about it?"

"It was produced to-day in court; I recognized it; it was yours." "Upon my word, you are trying to get up quite a case against me. Anything more?"

"You should have nothing to do with her, more than a spirit of darkness has to do with an angel of light; and yet you have twice cruelly deceived her."

"You escape; you think your deed of darkness hid forever from the world; but, Robert Thugsen, I repeat, each night when sleep has closed your eyes and seals your senses, conscience awakes and re-enacts every minute scene of that tragedy, speaking out, when then you only thought and felt, as well as what you saw and did!"

"What duty? How will you do it?" "I'll, ill, ill ti death!" gasped the sufferer, while a cold sweat bathed his pallid forehead.

"Woman! what is the meaning of this? You are not ill!" "No, Robert, only anxious."

"I know, and my evidence against you could not be received in court, but I could give what information I possess to the police, and let them follow it up as they please. I must do this; it will kill or maim me, but I must."

"You have poisoned me, you have poisoned me—murderer, you shall swing for it!" "I—I—Robert? I poison you? But you don't know what you are saying—"

"You do not eat your soup; there is no soup fallen into yours!" inquired Ruth.

"You are not well," said Thugsen. "I am as well as I can be, with the anxiety that oppresses my mind, Robert."

"I know, and my evidence against you could not be received in court, but I could give what information I possess to the police, and let them follow it up as they please. I must do this; it will kill or maim me, but I must."

FARM DRAINAGE OPERATIONS

About two years ago, at the suggestion of Professor Reynolds, the Minister of Agriculture authorized the Department of Physics at the O. A. C. to send out representatives among the farmers to give advice on drainage to those requiring it.

Before any recourse is had to legal procedure the parties concerned in a drain affecting two or more owners should get together informally and endeavor to agree on some apportionment of the labor and expense of construction and maintenance.

SOWING VS. PLANTING.

WITH FOREST TREES, FORMER METHOD'S RESULTS.

Reproducing a forest by sowing seed directly on the area to be put into trees is feasible. It is, however, a method little used on this continent up to the present, for it has been found that the cost has been as great, at least as that of planting, owing to the high price of seed and the cultivation which must be given to the ground to be sown.

Another disadvantage of seeding is that we can never count on getting a good mixed crop of trees by seeding. To avoid the expense of cultivating the whole area, various plans have been tried.

AMERICAN SUBSCRIBERS

As announced some time ago, the Reporter will not be sent, after July 1st, to any American subscriber who has not paid in advance. The heavy postage renders this course necessary.

A statement of account has been sent to every American subscriber and payment of all indebtedness should be made at once. Those who do not make payment promptly will have to settle with a collecting agency—and most people know what that means.

We have dealt liberally with our American readers and we now expect fair treatment from them. We have given to all due notice, and if trouble, annoyance and expense are caused by the efforts of a collecting agency they will have only themselves to blame.

Next week's Reporter will be the last sent to U.S. subscribers in arrears. Terms after that will be $1.25 per year in advance.
