

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., DEC. 29, 1899.

The Closing Year.

Before another issue of this paper 1899 will be numbered with the many years already gone.

As to the events of world-wide interest only a few can here be noted. In the far East, the anxiety about China has been considerable, while the war in the Philippines has "dragged its slow length along."

The relations of Great Britain and the United States are cordial, although the failure of the Canadian government to secure a settlement of the Alaskan boundary dispute, and its utter failure, after all the liberal promises and predictions, to improve the trade arrangements between Canada and the R-public show that Mr Chamberlain's oratorical flights about an alliance are premature at least.

In Canada, the abundant crops have maintained business in its comparatively prosperous state and we can hope the coming year will witness growth in our country of all that is best and truest.

It is quite generally admitted that the remarkable success of Hugh John Macdonald in the late political elections in Manitoba is attributable to a large degree to the strong stand which the Opposition took upon the temperance question and the uncertain attitude of the Greenway government to this reform.

The end news was received here on Wednesday of the death, of heart disease, of Mr Temple Piers, at Philadelphia. He had been in poor health, but at last advice was recovering, and the news of his death was a great shock to his friends.

The Christmas number of the Farmers Advocate, of London, Ont., has reached our table. It is a splendid issue and reflects much credit upon its publishers.

Mr John Donaldson, of Church Street, planted an orchard of 100 apple trees of the Ben Davis variety in 1889. He has made a careful estimate of what he has received from these trees in the ten years as follows: 162 barrels, for which was realized in the neighborhood of $411.

The Teachers' Institute.

One hundred teachers from Kings and Hants counties met in Canning, on Wednesday, 20th inst., and on that and the two following days held a very successful Teachers' Institute.

At the first meeting, after enrollment of members, Inspector Roscoe, the president, welcomed the teachers most heartily to a participation in the work and privileges of the Institute. In his remarks he referred to the varied and onerous work of the teacher, and the different methods of doing it, and to their results. He said it is as much the duty of the teacher to inspire his pupils to love study and become students as to teach. All were encouraged to contribute their thoughts as freely as they received the thoughts of others. Thus would the sum total of gain to teachers be augmented.

The first paper, on "Composition in the Public Schools," by Miss M. A. McKenzie, B. A., was well prepared, well received and well discussed. The writer recommended that composition be begun at an early stage, that pupils be taught to observe and put in simple language what they see and that almost every lesson may be made to furnish material for compositions.

Mr Percy J. Shaw, B. A., read a paper on "Agricultural Teaching." He said this subject included all the sciences. He would have it taught as a means to secure the best mental culture and discipline, as a method of giving the right impression of the occupation of farming, and as the best of nature studies. Mr Shaw was followed by an address by Mr Bruce, both of whom hold diplomas for teaching agriculture. The discussion that followed brought out many excellent points.

The second session was opened at 9 a. m. on Thursday. The first paper was by Miss Etta J. Yull, B. A., on "The Educational Value of a Study of Literature." The paper was a fine specimen of good English, and was full of practical thoughts on the best methods of teaching literature. For young pupils she would read good, well written stories and encourage them to give the import of these in their own language. The meaning of words, phrases, and sentences should be studied under the direction of the teacher. For older pupils in the Common School, easy poems and more difficult pieces of prose should be studied in the same way. For the High School this preparation would be of great value. The aim should be to get pupils to see the beauties in literature and read.

Mr J. N. Stuart's paper on "The Three R's," dealt with the subj in a forcible, pointed manner, peculiar to the writer. He called attention to many lax methods in teaching these subjects. From the paper and the discussion that followed a listener would conclude that reading should form the primer stage, be most carefully taught, so that all pupils should read distinctly, pronounce correctly, and bring out the true meaning of what is read. In Arithmetic much depends upon the complete mastery of the fundamental rules so that pupils may add, subtract, multiply and divide rapidly and make no errors. After the principles are grasped, the advanced rules should be learned by the shortest possible methods. Many suggestions as to how to hold the pen, how to form letters etc., were presented on the subject of writing.

The afternoon session was opened by an address by Mr Clarke Gormley, B. A., on "The Preparation of Simple Physical Apparatus." He explained the construction, cost and use of several pieces of such apparatus of his own handy-work. The address was instructive and very helpful. He invited teachers to ask questions, which he answered promptly and satisfactorily.

Miss Antoinette Forbes, B. A., of Windsor, then read a paper on "The Teaching of Entomology in the Schools." This paper was one of great excellence both on account of its literary merit and suggestions as to the best method of teaching the subject. From the prominence given to this subject in the course of study, this paper and the discussion which followed must prove invaluable to the members of the Institute.

Mr J. S. Layton, B. A., concluded the session by an address on "Drawing—How to Teach it." He illustrated what he had to say by drawings on the blackboard. By questions the Institute drew Mr Layton on to an extended address, that proved most profitable and instructive.

The evening session was devoted to a public meeting addressed by G. U. Hay, Esq., M. A., editor of the Educational Review, and Rev. Thomas Trotter, D. D., president of Acadia University. Mr Hay spoke on The Educational Outlook, and Dr. Trotter on The Dignity of the Teaching Office. Both of these addresses were of such a character that they cannot be reported with any degree of justice to the speakers, without giving them verbatim. Their matter was most excellent and they were delivered in a manner that secured the closest attention and elicited much applause. To all, these addresses were stimulating, suggestive and instructive.

President Roscoe here reported that Dr. A. H. McKay, Superintendent of Education, had written asking him to express his regret that he could not be present at the meeting of the Institute and that he had sent an Agricultural Diploma and a fifty dollar prize to be awarded to a teacher at this meeting. In presenting these the president called attention to the fact that two teachers in Kings county were now qualified, and authorized by the Council of Instruction to give lectures in connection with their schools on this subject. These were Mr Charles J. Bruce, of Lower Canada, and Mr Percy J. Shaw, B. A., to whom it was now his pleasure to hand the diploma and fifty dollar prize. For the service of lecturing each would receive $100 annually from the Provincial Treasury.

Friday morning session opened by an address by Mr Hay on "Observation, the Basis of Nature Study." This address was practical, and highly appreciated by the Institute. Mr Hay, by his sympathetic and timely addresses as well as by his frank and friendly intercourse with the teachers won a warm place in the hearts of the teachers of Inspectorate No. 5. We will be glad to welcome him and Dr. Trotter again on us.

The Committee on the Question Box reported at this stage. Their answers, which were concise, instructive and sometimes humorous, called forth repeated responses and applause. This was a pleasant feature of the Institute. The next Institute will be held in Windsor. The officers are: Inspector Roscoe, president; Miss A. Forbes, vice-president; J. A. Smith, Secy.-Treas.; Geo. Higgins, W. Shields, L. D. Robinson and Miss Yull, Ex. Committee.

Throughout the whole of the sessions teachers were prompt to speak and discuss any question under consideration. This and the evident sympathetic relations between the teachers and the president made this one more to add to list of pleasant and successful Institutes held in Inspectorate District No. 5.

Written for the Acadian.

A Song of Empire for the Times. Arouse ye Britons at the call your country makes to-day! For what her love has borne to you ye likewise should repay.

With face firm fixed upon the right, shoulder to shoulder stand For equal law and liberty—the Empire's just demand. CRO. Then let Britannia's banners, free, as in the past be flung!

Our hands have yet the might to keep the prize their sire's have won!

By the pains your sire's have suffered in Freedom's age long fight,— By the mighty deeds of heroes in their conflict for the right,— Stand firmly in your purpose to keep what they have won!

A united flag and Empire, whereon we set sets the sun!

CRO. Then let Britannia's banners, free, as in the past be flung!

Our hands have yet the might to keep the rights our fathers won!

Yes, faithful stand, ye sons of might, 'neath freedom's flag unfurled, And in the spirit of the Truth protect a needy world!

So doing, ye the race shall lead till time's last hour shall come!— The future in the present sits,— and might from right is sprung.

CRO. Then let Britannia's banners, free, to all the winds be flung!

Our hands the rights will firmly keep, our fathers bravely won!

THE "Bell" ORGAN.

There is no better nor more popular cabinet organ in Canada than the "Bell." We have had no end of testimony to this effect during the years we have known it, and since we have made it our leader among Canadian Organs, we have naturally made a large amount of inquiry in quarters where we know valuable opinion was obtainable. We think the Bell is not only the best, but all things considered it is undoubtedly the cheapest, and at our prices to-day the man or woman who invests will buy a good organ just about right.

New Minas.

One of those events which it is said are of especial interest to the ladies, but with which one at least of the sterner sex is invariably connected, took place at the residence of Adelbert Bishop, Esq., of New Minas, on Christmas morning.

The occasion was the marriage of Mr. Bishop's daughter, Luella, to C. Fenwick Morrell, of Freeport, Digby Co. Only the immediate friends of the family were present. Promptly at 8.30 o'clock, the hour appointed, the harmonious strains of the wedding march came softly upon the ear, and a few minutes later the bride, becomingly attired in a light brown travelling suit with hat to match, entered the room upon the arm of the happy man whom she had chosen for her life-partner. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. N. Nobles, of Kentville, assisted by H. G. Colpitta, (Lac) pastor of the New Minas church. After a very enjoyable repast had been served the happy couple took coach for Kentville and thence by train to their home in Freeport.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts expressive of the high esteem in which she is held; and she goes to her new home accompanied by the best wishes of a host of friends. She will be greatly missed both in the social and religious life of New Minas. This is the third of her fair daughters that New Minas has contributed in this way to the life and society of other parts of our province within the year, and yet we are by no means rendered destitute.

Christmas.

We usually say that Christmas comes but once a year. That is a fact but its concomitants are not to be forgotten. With us the usual sleighing has not been on hand, but the weather has not been too bad. Many friends have shown themselves and have left their "forget me not" in various ways.

One of the most pleasing occurrences of the occasion was a Christmas service held in the Methodist church, Wolfville, on last Sunday evening. The Wolfville Band played some voluntaries very finely. Mr. Donkin, the pastor, presided. After praise and prayer, some twenty girls sang some pieces, beautifully, and some gave recitations. Dr. R. V. Jones gave an address of about 35 minutes, exceedingly interesting and well adapted to Christmas—the annual reminder of one of the greatest events of our race.

Near the close of the service Mr. E. C. Johnson, the superintendent of the Bath school, presented Mr. Donkin with an envelope containing a Christmas present from the people of his church, and congregation. Mr. Donkin made a very happy and interesting reply, referring to the present service and the kindness that he had received from ministers and many others during some weeks being laid by with illness. The attendance was large and the services produced a good impression on all present. Those who made the arrangements and did the necessary work should not be forgotten. I trust that such services may be held when Christmas comes again.

ONE PRESENT.

Jack Cook, the famous boy preacher of Europe, is now visiting the United States. He is only 12 years of age, and yet he preaches with such power that audiences are thrilled and amazed. Though his early education was neglected, and he never manifested extraordinary abilities different from boys of his own age, yet the Holy Spirit has been with him in wonderful power. In Chicago and Philadelphia he has conducted meetings with marked success. He may visit Canada.

There is a report in circulation that "the powers that be" have decided to locate the College of Agriculture and Technology at Nappan where the Gov't. Experimental farm has been trying for some years to grow an orchard that will bear apples. If this is true, we presume the N. S. Gov't will continue the Horticultural School in Wolfville and each Gov't will establish "Horticultural Stations" in the provinces where fruit is grown, as the Ont. Gov't has done.

About Salt.

Where does the salt, the white, sparkling salt, that we prize so much, and yet so little, come from? Is it a product of a manufactured article? How many of you can tell where it is found?

Although one of the necessities of life, salt is so common and everyday an article that we scarcely give it a thought. We could not live without it, and yet if we were suddenly deprived of it, I am afraid few of us would know where to get a supply.

Salt is principally supplied from three sources—the ocean, salt springs and mines. The larger part of the salt used in this country is obtained from salt springs, the richest and most extensive being those of Salina, near Syracuse, N. Y.

Every forty gallons of water from these wells will produce a bushel of salt. As it takes three hundred and fifty gallons of sea water to obtain the same quantity of salt, you can see how valuable these springs are.

Do you know how they distill salt from spring and sea water? The brine is drawn in large quantities and placed in shallow vessels which are exposed to either artificial heat or the sun. The heat produces evaporation, and the salt is left in mass in the bottom of the vessels.

The most famous salt mines are in Poland, Austria. They extend over a space two miles in length by one in breadth, and are about one thousand feet in depth. The mines are entered by numerous shafts, with galleries at several different levels leading to a labyrinth of passages and immense excavations; in fact it is a town underground, with streets, churches and statues all cut out of salt.

Salt is so scarce in some eastern countries that a man "able to eat salt" is considered a person of wealth by his neighbors. To sit "above the salt" was a designation of social importance, for the salt cellar was placed in the centre of the table, and only servants and those of low degree were placed below it.

The term "solary" means nothing but "salt money," and goes back to the time when imperial Rome, having abundant stores of salt in her German mines and a scarcity of money in her treasury, was accustomed to pay her legionaries partly in coin, partly in salt. When we say a "man can't earn his salt," we merely repeat the idea borrowed of the Romans that he is not capable of getting half a living—Zion's Herald.

Unequaled in the bravery of the British soldier. The Boers fight behind boulders and rocks and never attack. The British soldier takes the open and charges against the foe. He is always aggressive; and, though he knows that in similar assaults his comrades have fallen by the hundred, he never flinches but makes straight for the enemy with the bayonet fixed to the end of his rifle.

"I want you to make a statue of Marie—my wife that was," said the rural visitor to the sculptor, "but I haven't a picture of her, can't find one nowheres, and she's dead and gone."

"That's it!" was the triumphant interruption. "That's it! Just make it like thunder an' lightning, an' you won't miss her very far."

The old question, "When does the present century end and the new century commence?" is still troubling many people, as the queries addressed to the papers indicate. But it is easily solved. The last figure in every hundred is 100, and the first in every hundred is 1.

The Dominion Atlantic Railway.

The statistical year Book of Canada for 1898, recently issued, reports some very valuable information concerning transportation facilities, as also the receipts and expenses of several railway companies doing business in Canada.

In the tariff returns for railways in Canada for 1897 and 1898 the following is reported concerning the Dominion Atlantic railway for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1898:

Number of miles of railway in operation by this company for the year 1898, two hundred and twenty; capital paid up $8,883,867. Number of passengers carried in 1897, 212,347; number of passengers carried in 1898, 207,249. Number of tons of freight carried in 1897, 159,146; number of tons of freight carried in 1898, 156,743.

The receipts for 1897 amounted to $547,933; the receipts for 1898 amounted to $579,054. The expenses for 1897 amounted to $362,485, and the expenses for 1898 amounted to $460,472. The proportion of expenses to receipts for 1897 was 66 per cent., in comparison with 79.5 per cent. for 1898.

The earnings of the passenger traffic for 1897 were $327,985; for freight $209,743; for mail express and other sources $41,326.

The working expenses for that year amounted to $133,275; for maintenance of lines and buildings $177,131; for working and repairing, and for general working expenses $150,066; in all a total of $460,472, equal to $95.51 per train mile.

Kipling on Americans.

The Englishman's house is said to be the Englishman's castle; but, as Mr. Kipling has been the first or one of the first to point out, the American castle is the American's office. The American of wealth, says Mr. Kipling, is owned by his family. It would be strange were he disowned, but Mr. Kipling uses the word "owned" in a very particular sense—the sense of this rather slangy Capeloutou word "run." A Papa is "exploited for balls" by his woman folk and especially by his daughter. It seems that modern fiction is not so far wrong in its portrayal after all.

The splendidly unfettered tyranny of the daughter, however, is often meteoric in its brilliancy. There is often ahead a Stock Exchange crisis and should this come the girl who has "irreverently" taken the domestic lead has to discard her $40 bonnet and her $18 above the prescriptive right to the society of the man who wears and takes to stenography and typewriting. In the last state more than in the first it is that Mamie or Hattie or Sadie shows herself worthy of Mr. Kipling's eulogy. Only—this is not to be forgotten—the true American girl whose life is crisis clouds does not drop her less happy sister from the list of her friends. "No," said a scarlet lipped vision in white lace, "the evening, the evening, the evening—might happen to me any day."

What the Men of the Canadian Continent Eat Daily.

Some idea of the enormous amount of food consumed daily by the continent can be gathered from these facts. The butcher cuts up 1,200 pounds of fresh beef every day, and from the cold storage room having a cubic capacity of 8,000 square feet. Remember this does not include tinned meats, etc. Four men are constantly employed preparing potatoes and other vegetables. About nine hundred weight of potatoes are used daily. Of good strong tea and coffee, 130 gallons each are brewed for one day's consumption, and 90 gallons of soap. In the bake house 3,000 half-pound loaves, three dozen long loaves (four pounds each) for officers' mess, besides scones, pastries, doughnuts, etc., are baked daily.

Preserved and fresh fruits are constantly being distributed. These are augmented by the good things sent from those at home, who were careful that our boys should not lack good things.

Gems.

Speak well of your friends—of your enemies say nothing. Do your business promptly, and bore not a business man with long visits. Happiness consists not in possessing much, but in being content with what we possess.

Systematize your business and keep an eye on little expenses. Small leaks sink great ships. One who is never busy can never enjoy rest, for rest implies relief from previous labors.

A happiness that is quite undisturbed because of fire, we must have ups and downs; the difficulties which are mingled with love awaken passion and increase pleasure.

Lady Henry Somerset, of Temperance (and, speaking of work carried on at her industrial farm colony in England, says: "The bees, however, are really our most successful venture. They have already repaid the whole of the original outlay, and given a profit as well. This season the eight hives yielded 300 pounds of honey, and the colonies were increased by swarms from eight to eleven, so that next season we ought to gain a very good profit if the season is favorable."

"Don't let Henrietta hear you allude to her as my better half," said Mr. Mackton behind his hand to the friend who had come to dinner. "I understand. The expression is a trifle commonplace not to say plebeian."

"I don't think that. But I wish you'd choose another fraction. I would not choose Henrietta vastly; I have you think she was less than four-fifths at the lowest calculation."

What Ladysmith is Like.

Ladysmith, which is the chief town of the Klip river division of the Klip river country in Natal, is 189 miles from Durban by rail and is situated on a tongue of land formed by the Klip river. On the right of the railway, looking north, is a high rocky ridge crowned with the thorn bush or flat-topped mimosa which bears fragrant yellow flowers. Ladysmith is surrounded by a whitening semi-circle of hills, writes a correspondent of the Fall Mail Gazette.

Approaching Ladysmith from the south the main road runs through flat and bare country, with hedges and broken ground away to the right in the direction of Middelburg. Then the Klip river is crossed before entering the town. A small superintending camp lies on the south side of the river, but General White's main position is out of the town altogether, on the top of the hills which overlook Ladysmith. The most conspicuous public building is the town hall erected at a cost of 6,000. It is a handsome building in the Doric style built of blue whinstone and freestone, the common rocks of the district, with a tower and clock. The county goal, the colonial engineer's department office, and the postal and telegraph buildings form part of what we may term a large inclosure taking the form of a large garden, the Zulu war. Ladysmith also has a large government school with an attendance of 220 pupils. Natal police barracks, and a large reading room and library. It is an important railway centre, and there are large repairing and other workshops connected with the station. Ladysmith has at least thirteen well laid out streets, one of which, near the railway station, is mainly composed of what are known as Arab stores, dry premises, occupied by Banyan traders, who prey upon the guileless country natives when they venture in to purchase blankets, beads, hoes, and trinkets so dear to the savage fancy. Ladysmith is 119 miles from the next English base, Pietermaritzburg, and 189 miles from Durban.

Be Cured of Catarh.

It is quite easy to cure yourself of Catarrh or Asthma if you use Catarrh-ozone, the medicated air treatment for all diseases of the nasal and respiratory organs caused by germ life. Catarrh-ozone will cure absolutely Catarrh, and is a very pleasant remedy that can be used without any danger or risk whatever. When inhaled it rapidly volatilizes, and finds its way to the very seat of the disease, where it kills the microbe life that causes Catarrh and at the same time restores all irritated membranes to their normal condition, effecting a permanent cure. You simply breathe, Catarrh-ozone does the rest. One trial will demonstrate its worth. For sale at all druggists or by mail, price $1.00. For trial order send 10c in stamps to N. C. POLSON & CO., Box 618, Kingston, Ont.

Saving the Day.

Here is something I believe to be true: "There is in every person's life a crucial hour in the day which must be employed instead of wasted if the day is to be saved." That crucial hour is the hour when you begin to feel lazy. I have known it to come to some boys the moment they get up in the morning. They yawn while they are dressing and even stretch at the breakfast table. Sometimes this crucial hour does not come until they are at school, and then, just when they should be active and alert, laziness sets in and if they do not brace right up the day will be lost. He who gives up in the morning is sure to fail of accomplishing anything in the afternoon. Do not yield to the temptation to be idle if you want to save the day.

Sometimes temptation sets in before we get up in the morning, and we lie in bed one or even two hours longer than usual, and in those hours that causes one to lose the day. Beware of this hour while the day is yet young. You will find it impossible to return to your work with the same freshness and enthusiasm you felt when you put that work aside. No one who is steadily and cheerfully industrious can lose his day, and no one will enjoy his well earned rest and play if he will enjoy them.—J. L. Harter.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Sometimes a little white lie does a lot of good. The well-read man isn't always the pink of perfection. "Somehow badness is far more contagious than goodness. Half a loaf is sometimes better than an unpaid board bill. Habit is a sort of chattel mortgage on a man's individuality. The sleeping infant should always be placed on the retired list. Good fortune seldom travels around in an automobile looking for you. More good intentions would be carried out if they didn't live forever. The manager of an opera company should not be blamed for putting on airs. A little girl never has too many dolls and a woman never has too many dollars. A featureless complexion is a thing of beauty, but it will not remain a joy forever. Barring football players, the inhabitants of this country are fairly well civilized. A girl should never throw away her old slippers; they will come in handy at her wedding—and much handier in after years. The world may owe every man a living, but the miner is the one who digs it into the earth's pockets and gets it.

Scrapings for Odd Moments.

Take time by the forelock. It is also wise to take the mule there. Just about the time you begin to think your cup of happiness is going to run over it springs a leak.

Billy, do you think woman ought to smoke? Well, she wouldn't look much uglier than she does chewing gum.

Long—What's in a name, anyway? Short—Go ask a bank cashier to discount your note and you'll probably find out.

"Did your office boy's vacation trip do him any good?" "I think so. He seems lazier than before he went away."

Old Gent—What do you wear green spec for, boy? Bootblack—Cos I puts such a shiny shine on boots it hurts my eyes.

Stone walls do not a prison make quoted the prison visitor. Maybe not, said the convict, but they make it hard for a feller to get out.

Mrs. Winks (looking up from the paper)—A woman out west shot a burglar and killed him. Mr. Winks—Well, well! What was he aiming at?

He stepped on the trailing skirt of one woman, only to stumble back and trip on the skirt of another. "I'm like Dewey," he muttered. "I never miss a train!"

The horse show judges were undecided between the bay and the sorrel. "Remember the name," hissed the anxious woman who owned the bay, and they promptly gave her the blue ribbon.

"It seems to me that Willie gets into a awful lot of fights. I wonder who is to blame for it all?" "The other boy, always the other boy," replied Willie's mother, with conviction. "Willie says so himself."

A farmer in Hampshire recently forwarded a letter to a neighbouring town, requesting the postmaster to deliver it "to any respectable attorney." After ten days the letter was returned, with the significant endorsement, "Not known."

Small Willie, accompanied by his father, Oh, boy, he exclaimed, as they stopped in front of the elephant, look at the big cow with the horns in her mouth eating hay with her tail.

Minards Liniment Cures Distemper.

"Oh, Major Blower! Is it true you once ran an Indian to death?" "It is true," said the major. "And how far did the Indian run?" "I cannot tell you. I was looking straight ahead all the time until I got back to camp."

Here is a unique verdict by a coroner's jury on a man who was killed by a switch engine: "We, the jury, find that the deceased came to his death at the hands of a switch engine after being 'at' on by the coroner for two hours and a half."

Fisher—Gusber is not very happy in his choice of adjectives. Fisher—Why so? "Miss Gusber looked for a compliment by asking him what he thought of her slippers."

"What did he say?" "He said they were immense."

In a car a small boy was observed to be suddenly agitated, but regained his self-control in a few moments. Soon after, the conductor appeared and asked for fares. When he stood before the small boy there was slight pause, and the passengers were surprised to hear the following: "Please charge it to my papa; I've swallowed the money."

LETTERS TO LEGISLATORS.—Dear Sir:—I wish you'd put in a bill to make Bill Jones of Bill's Crossroads, who is the son of old Bill, who married Bill Green's widow at Bill Jenkins' grocery store, should be the time Bill Sprague broke Bill Brown's left leg in a wrestling match at Bill Peters' home, respect the stock bill more than what he is a do-in of.

Sentiment and poetry are good in their places, but the best of things are sometimes misplaced. Good rhetoric may be very poor history. "Where did George Washington live, after he retired from public life?" asked the teacher.

"No one seemed to know." "Was it at Washington or Mount Vernon?" suggested the teacher. "Still there was no reply." "Come children," she insisted, "some of you must know."

"I know, teacher!" piped up the smallest scholar. "He lived in the heart of his countrymen."
