Methodists Now After $5,000,000

Toronto, Feb. 29.—Success has been scored by the Anglican Forward Movement organization in their climb towards their new Dominion objective of $3,000,000, as sufficient reports were received during the day to cover nearly one-third of the added $500,000. The report of $90,842 during the day has brought their new Dominion total up to $2,555,060.50, and in view of the fact that only ten of the 23 dioceses in the Dominion are canvassing actively, the organization feels that their new objective is practically assured. With the exception of the Presbyterians, who have not attempted to give any official returns for some days, other than to assure their workers that they are well over the $4,000,000 objective, all the denominations in the Big Five campaign were able to report new totals during the day. The Baptists' Canadian total now stands at $878,188; and they are confident of reaching the $1,000,000 mark; while the Congregationalists have announced the new figure of $106,327. The official total for the Methodist organization now stands at $4,300,000.

The Methodist drive has been such a success that the organizers held a meeting and decided to raise their objective to $5,000,000. The Ontario and Quebec organizers went over the situation thoroughly and decided that they can see at least another $6,000,000 in the two provinces from the congregations which have not yet started their campaigns, or which have been slow in starting. In view of that, it was felt that a big effort should be made to raise the balance $100,000, required to bring them up to $5,000,000, and the amount was accordingly divided pro-rata among the five central conferences in the two provinces. A resolution was also passed giving the churches and districts which have not yet inaugurated their drives until March 15 to complete their work.

STEEL ARCHES FOR THE REBUILT BATHURST RINK

A meeting of the directors of the Bathurst Hockey and Skating Rink was held recently in Bathurst to enquire into the destruction of the roof of the rink and a meeting of the shareholders was also held for the same purpose. After receiving various reports it was decided that no blame could be placed upon the engineer or building committee, but that the accident was caused by the excessive weight of snow which lodged upon one side of the roof, owing to the course of the severe snow storm. All of the directors and shareholders were of the view that the rink had been a complete success and it was decided to salvage the damaged parts as quickly as possible and proceed to erect a new roof. It was also decided to construct the arches of steel and tenders will be called for that purpose. The stock of the company was increased to $50,000 of which $30,000 will be common and $10,000 preferred stock.

egates from all municipalities. The return of the Police Magistrate for the year 1919 was submitted and on motion of Ald. Crocker seconded by Ald. Jeffrey was received and referred to Finance Committee.

The report of the Auditor was read and on motion of Ald. Crocker seconded by Ald. Russell was received and ordered printed in the Town Report.

The following resolution was made by Ald. Fish seconded by Ald. Jeffrey—Resolved that a Committee of three members of the Town Council be appointed with power to add three or more ratepayers to examine the Town's Valuation List and to report thereon at our next regular meeting or earlier if ready.

After discussion this motion was declared lost on the following vote.

Yeas—Fish, Jeffrey
Nays—MacKay, Crocker, Russell, Durick.

Ald. Jeffrey gave notice that he would introduce an amendment to By-Law No. 10 so as to make Section 3 apply to the County of Northumberland and to increase the license fees. On motion of Ald. Fish seconded by Ald. Russell, the Council adjourned until Thursday Feb. 25th at 8 o'clock p. m.

Married Men Defeat Youngsters

The return curling match between the married men and the single men of the Newcastle Curling Club was played in the rink last Friday, and resulted in a walk over the youngsters by the married men. It also demonstrated to the single men that the old married folks had not yet come to the point that it was necessary for them to take a back seat in so far as the slippery game was concerned. The youngsters were so elated over the winning of the previous game, that they were positive they would have no trouble in again trouncing the married men in the second game. However they have been taught a lesson, and no doubt they will benefit by such. The married men are not prone to blowing their horns so much as the youngsters did over their success, but are content to accept the result of the second game in the friendly good spirit as they accepted their defeat in the first game of the series.

Great enthusiasm (and this is the main reason why the series was put on) was shown by both the married and single men and everyone was in the best of humour throughout the whole game. The Ladies Aid of St. James' Church catered to the members of the club in the evening with a Bean Supper and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Several speeches were made by different members of the club and by some invited guests of the members.

A small 5 cent slate was presented to Mr. A. H. Cole as a prize for the youngsters, so that they may have an opportunity of figuring out how they were so badly defeated and also how they might endeavor to win the next game of the series.

A sucker on the stick was presented to skip Gifford, as the skip who made the lowest score. A challenge was tendered the Greybeards by Mr. A. H. Cole on behalf of the infants, for another game, the date to be decided later, and was accepted by President J. R. Lawlor. The following is the result of the different games played.

THE DANGER OF "BUYING FROM HOME."

To realize the danger of "Buying From Home," you must consider your community as if it were a country. It was realized in practically every country in the world that if people were given permission to buy where ever they thought they could buy cheapest, that the result would be prosperity for some and poverty for others. The result was each nation put up a high tariff wall. That is, each nation said to the other, "If you try to sell goods to my people, I am going to charge a heavy duty and make it so expensive to buy your goods that people at home will buy only homemade goods." They did it. And the result everyone knows. This policy has built up enormous industries in Canada so that we have kept our money at home and have become a rich nation.

The community is the nation in miniature. We cannot put up a high tariff wall to protect our merchants, but we can appeal to the high sense of patriotism among our people. That high sense of patriotism will show them the permanent advantage of buying from their own town merchants and demonstrate the weakness of buying from other cities, for a possible temporary advantage.

Wash Day and Backache

WASH day is the least welcome day of the week in most homes, though sweeping day is not much better. Both days are most trying on the back.

The strain of washing, ironing and sweeping frequently deranges the kidneys. The system is poisoned and backaches, rheumatism, pains in the limbs result.

Kidney action must be aroused—the liver awakened to action and the bowels regulated by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This favorite prescription of the well-known Receipt Book author will not fail you in the hour of need.

Odd Abyssinian Troops Had Feud With Egyptians

During Stay at Port Said

A judge by letters received lately from Port Said, it would seem that certain odd comrades who still lag under mobilised upon the scene are finding life utterly intolerable in that fragrant town, writes a correspondent of the London Times. If such be the case it is clear that the place has lost its last interesting feature, says the correspondent.

"I allude to the mysterious horde of jet-black aborigines known to the British soldier as the Jumping Jacks, or the Indiarubber Gentleman (though 'gentleman' is not exactly the word used), and to the civil population by various pithy cognomina which, perhaps fortunately, have no satisfactory equivalent in English. To dally no further with their identity, they are the Abyssinian levies raised by Italy for some purpose which has not yet been stated.

"They dawned upon the town one hot, sticky morning about a year ago, stamped alongside the white Italian troops in one of the little inclosed sand deserts of the Rue Eugenie. They appeared as a very drowsy crowd, wearing a particularly tall scarlet turban, with chin strap; a white calico garment resembling a curtailed smock, secured around their slim waists with a broad sash of vivid hues suggestive of corsets; white calico bags and puttees. A few wore sandals; most went barefoot.

"The N. C. O.'s carried scimitars and sported little crinkly goatees beards. Port Said was charmed with them at first, for they had money and seemed simple folk; and for their part they were greatly taken with Port Said and its miniature skyscrapers, its 'bars' and its pungent Arab towns, its busy streets, and, presumably, the contrast it afforded with their native villages in the torrid plateau to the southeast.

"But this incipient orient cordiale was doomed to perish untimely. The visitors showed that they cherished some unpleasant customs, such as the indulgence at night, more especially at the full of the moon, in interminable concerts of tom-tom, flute, and vocal atrocities which could have been heard half-way down the canal.

"But the estranging circumstance was that those who still had money discovered a tendency to be a little exacting with it. So their popularity soon waned, and the small fry of the town, masters of armor-piercing epithets, began to pursue them with discourteous gestures and derisive outcries. But they knew not what an Abyssinian warrior will do when his blood is up. The gallant blacks turned upon the small boys and rent them.

"The feud was begun, for the Egyptian's tender point is his small boy, no matter how full his quiver of them. Early one evening exasperated fathers bounded the blacks to their camp with every detail of ignominy. Arriving more or less in safety, they held a soiree musicale of great length and animation, in the course of which they were harangued by their leading d'Anquizio's into a state of war-like frenzy.

"Hastily arming themselves with staves, scimitars, and any other weapon that was handy, they eluded or brushed aside their Italian guards and sallied forth into the town, capering and yelling like stage Irishmen, to spoil some Egyptians. Outside a cafe they all but killed an Italian officer who strove to restrain them; but during the skirmish they had the misfortune to come into conflict with some Australians, and being unused to the Dominion style of fighting, they suffered a reverse. Nevertheless, two women, two boys, an aged Arab and several windows were damaged by their staves before they could be hustled back to their camp.

"This kind of thing went on for three successive nights, a truce being tacitly arranged by day, apparently in order that they might still make their little purchases of the Egyptian peddlers who haunted the vicinity of their camp. Then open hostilities ceased by common consent, though when the blacks fared abroad they sought the security of numbers.

"One glorious moonlit night the rare peace of the Rue Eugenie was shattered first by the dull thumping of the tom-tom and shortly afterward by a hullabaloo that brought every policeman, civil and military, panting to the camp. The Mahometans of the detachment, wearying of the quiet life, had fallen upon their Christian brothers in arms, and every bivvy in the camp lay prone. A bemused Australian had figured prominently but vaguely in the fray, though in what capacity he had broken into the camp—whether as friend of one party or the other, as peacemaker or as agent-provocateur—he never explained.

"And so they have—they must have—gone, taking with them, it is to be feared, the threefold mystery which enveloped them. No one has ever seen them on any front; none knew what high hopes or intentions had brought them thither; their ultimate destination was hidden from all. It would be in the highest degree unjust to suggest that they did not do their bit in the great war. At the worst, for nearly a year, they helped to amuse and entertain a whole town."

Disposition of The 132nd Batt. Colors

Word has been received from Lt.-Col. G. W. Mersereau, O. C. 132nd North Shore Battalion, regarding the disposal of regimental colors. Col. Mersereau recommends that they be permanently placed in the Soldiers' Memorial Hall if it is proposed to erect in Chatham, as soon as the building is ready to receive them.

These colors were presented to the battalion at Valcartier, by the Earl of Chatham Chapter, I. O. D. E., prior to the battalion's departure overseas; and remained in Westminster Abbey draped over Wolfe's monument, during the war.

Would Retire Women At 50 and Men at 60

Ottawa, Feb. 24—For the past few days a rumor has been travelling through the Civil Service that the Civil Service Commission is working on a plan which when completed will provide that all women over the age of fifty and all men over the age of sixty in the service shall automatically be retired.

Moreover it is stated that the plan proposes that for the future all civic servants shall automatically be retired when they reach this age.

He Wants to Tell The Whole World

Durham's Nerves Steady Now and Health is Fine Since Taking Tanlac

"Yes, sir, I am in the very best of health since I have taken Tanlac, and I feel so grateful for it that I want to tell the world about this medicine," said Arthur Silas Dunham, who lives at 11 High street, Moncton, N. B.

"You can just imagine," he continued, "what a weakened, miserable condition I was in after I had the 'flu, and it was followed by pleurisy and bronchitis. I was so weak I could hardly get about and so nervous I shook like a leaf. Severe headache spells came on me and at times I got so dizzy it was hard for me to stand up. I had almost no appetite at all and the little I did force down seemed to give me no strength and nourishment. It was next to impossible for me to get a good night's rest. Why sometimes I got hardly two hours sleep. When morning came I was simply 'all in' and all day long I felt so miserable that life was hardly worth living.

"A friend who knew the condition I was in came to see me and told me about Tanlac and advised me to give it a trial. And I am certainly glad I took his advice, for while I have only taken three bottles I am all ready feeling like a new man. My appetite is so fine that my biggest trouble is trying to satisfy it, and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly and is giving me strength and energy. My nerves are now steady and I am no longer bothered with headaches or dizzy spells. I sleep like a child the whole night through and when morning comes I get up feeling just fine."

Tanlac is sold in Newcastle by E. J. Morris and in Redbank by Wm M. Sullivan.

March Weather Dangerous To Baby

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright, but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mothers to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

Pale, Wan Cheeks A Sign Of Anaemia

To Have Good Color and Health the Blood Must be Kept Red and Pure

Many women who had good color and bright eyes in their girlhood grow pale and colorless and lose much of their charm when they become wives and mothers. Why is it? When the fading color in the cheeks and lips is accompanied by a loss of brightness in the eyes and an increasing heaviness in the step and a tendency to tire easily, the cause is to be sought in the state of the blood.

Many causes may contribute to the condition of the blood known as anaemia. Care of the home, overwork, lack of outdoor exercise, insufficient rest and sleep, improper diet, are a few of them. The important thing is to restore the blood, to build it up so that the color will return to the cheeks and lips, brightness to the eyes, and lightness to the step. To do this, nothing can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They begin at once to increase the red corpuscles in the blood, and this new blood carries strength and health to every part of the body. The appetite improves, digestion becomes perfect, and energy and ambition return. Proof is given in the statement of Mrs. Alex. Archambo, Cornwall, Ont., who says:—

"Two years ago my health began to fail. I was suffering from headaches, pains in the back and sides, and a constant tired out feeling. I had used a lot of medicine, but instead of it helping me I seemed to be growing weaker. My friends urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and while I felt disheartened at my experience with other medicines, I decided to do so. To my great joy I soon found the pills were helping me, and their continued use for a time fully restored my health. I feel that I would be ungrateful if I did not give my experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, in the hope that it may point the way to health to some other poor sufferer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained through any medicine dealer, or may be had by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 when the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Co. is addressed.

Double Murder and suicide but—

...but for the Grace of God.

NOT long ago a shamefully wronged husband started out to do away with his wife and the destroyer of his home.

HE was intercepted, reasoned with, pleaded with. After two days and two nights spent in prayer and meditation, through the manifestation of the Holy Spirit he was turned from his intense and terrible passion to a magnificent attitude of forgiveness.

THE instrument through which husband and wife were reconciled—and a ghastly tragedy prevented,—was a Salvation Army Officer.

SUCH a change of heart wrought by the Spirit is not rare in the whole-wide experience of the Salvation.

MUSICAL TALKS
By C. C. Laugher, Mus. Bac. Bowmanville.

The Opera

The Opera is a dramatic entertainment of which music forms an essential, and not merely an accessory part. Music and acting have been associated from the very early savage days when the music was only the beating of the Tom-Tom, and the acting was the wild movement of the war dance. We now regard opera as a great display of action, beautiful scenic effect, a big orchestra and fine singing. The aim of the opera is to interpret the drama, yet there is little speaking and much singing. There are various forms of opera and I will mention just the most important: opera buffa—comic or low comedy; opera dramatic—romantic; grand opera—singing, full orchestra, high musical character.

Away back in the 16th century in a beautiful city of Italy called Florence, a few gentlemen gathered together to discuss how to discover or recover the music of the ancient Greek drama, which had been lost for many centuries. The names of these gentlemen were Galileo, father of the astronomer, Caccini, Peri, Strezzi, Renuccini and some others. They met at the palace of Giovanni Bardil and they called themselves "La Camerata." They talked of the ancient Greeks and of the Romans who sang their tragedies throughout on the stage, accompanied by an orchestra of lyres and flutes. This group of men thought it would be a great thing, and worth the effort to revive that same kind of stately entertainment.

Renuccini

One man of this company named Renuccini, wrote a story for a drama and named it "Dafne" and produced it at the house of Count Corsi, but the score has been lost. Three years later the same man, Renuccini, wrote another poem, the story of a musician named Orpheus and the opera was named "Euridyce." Two musicians of the company, Peri and Caccini, wrote music to it, but the music of Peri was considered most appropriate. This opera "Euridyce" is considered the first opera ever written, and was presented at the festivities to celebrate the marriage of Henry IV. of France to Marie de Medicis. Of this opera we know very little concerning the costumes they wore or the stage setting, but we do know that the composer sang the hero's role, and back of the stage Signor Corsi presided at the harpsichord. This little gathering of men who worked out this opera intended it to be a revival of Greek musical work, but in place of that they unknowingly became the originators of opera as we have it today. Euridyce contains the great principle of the modern opera. Renuccini seven years later wrote the libretto for the opera "Arianna" and "Orfeo." The music was written by Monteverde.

Monteverde

The father of instrumentation is Monteverde. He was the first to put character to the orchestra. To the opera "Orfeo" he collected an orchestra of more than 30 instruments. Monteverde is the man that invented the tremolo and pizzicato in violin playing. His orchestra consisted of such instruments as flutes, lutes, viols, harpsichords or spinet, and the orchestra was always placed behind the scenes. So far all operas had been performed in large houses or castles and not until opera was in vogue thirty-seven years, was an opera house built. The first opera house was built in Venice and from that time on the growth of opera spread into other large cities particularly Vienna and Paris.

Lulli

A boy named Lulli was brought from Italy when a child and worked in Paris in the kitchen of the niece of Louis XIV., later, being dismissed, his musical ability earned for him a position as violinist in the King's band. He afterwards became the greatest musician of that time. Lulli wrote 20 operas in less than that number of years, and he is regarded as the originator of the overture. He is also called the father of Grand Opera and is important as having put the French school on a firm basis.

Handel was born about one month earlier than the great J. S. Bach in the year 1685 and lived 74 years his father was a barber, and was strong against Handel being a musician. It was his desire that young George should be a lawyer. He was not allowed to attend school because he would be taught the scale but somehow a small piano called a spinet was smuggled up into the garret and George learned to play while his father was at work. Handel was recognized as a great composer, and when I tell you what he wrote 321 musical works, it seems hardly believable and included in this was the priceless heritage "The Messiah." I trust that every music student will hear this work, it is the "King of oratorios." The former part of Handel's life was taken up in the writing of operas of which he wrote 41. Then in deep disgust at his own bankruptcy brought about by an opposing element, who pushed the front an important musician named Bononcini, Handel gave up operas and took to writing oratorio for which we know his fame as a genius rests. Later Bononcini had to leave London, having been discovered in a dishonorable effort of claiming another's composition as his own and Handel was left master of the field.

END STOMACH TROUBLE. GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach-headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Pop an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation to excessive acid in stomach.

Gluck

Another man I wish to speak of is Gluck, a great original thinker. He made some changes in opera. He was born in 1714 in Bohemia, but studied opera in Italy, but the later part of his life was spent in Paris. Gluck broadened out opera, also making the overture convey the character of the play to the spectator. Against Gluck was placed another musician named Piccini. In 1776 this man and his party sought to give Gluck by introducing the old form of Italian opera. He aroused great sensation and considerable party feeling. The musical world was split into two powerful parties, Gluckists and Piccinists, and there was a great fight, although no record of actual spilling of blood. This is the way it was settled: Each composer to write the musical part to the opera called "Iphigenia in Tauris" and the music considered the most appropriate would be pronounced the "winner of the day." Gluck produced his opera in 1779, and proved his masterpiece. Piccini's appeared some time later and suffered sadly by comparison.

Wagner

Opera cannot be spoken without the name of Wagner. Wagner is spoken of as the reformer of Opera. He made it more real. He arranged that music be set to words and not words to music. Wagner is the most important figure in all the three hundred years of opera. He brought music to its true purpose to support the poem to strengthen the expression and feeling. The world is willing to say that the art for which the nineteenth century will doubtless be remembered is the musical and dramatic art of Richard Wagner.

In closing it will be seen that Italy is first responsible for opera and Italy is just proud of the honor due that Verdi, the grand old man in opera of the 19th century is an Italian. Verdi was born in 1813 and died 1901. He wrote many operas and his opera Falstaff is supposed to be his masterpiece and was written when he was 80 years of age.

War-Made Millionaires
Duped by the Dealers

Who Reap Rich Harvest

DURING the war the art dealer has reaped a rich harvest, and there is no reason to believe that he is not reaping it still, for the demand for valuable oil and water-color paintings is unprecedented. War-made millionaires, says London Ideas, who openly admit knowing more about a bale of cotton than art, have paid stupendous sums for alleged "old masters" which in reality are not worth the canvases they are painted on.

There are at the present day art factories and studios in France, Belgium and Austria which are turning out these show "old masters" by the carload. Paintings by Rubens, Hals, Vandyke and Rembrandt have all been duplicated innumerable times, and even yet the game goes merrily on.

The painting of these spurious masterpieces employs a large number of broken-down artists, who work on what is known as the "part-picture" principle. One artist paints the head and another the torso, invariably obtained by first impregnating the canvas with special chemicals, whilst the dirt of centuries is applied with a mixture of gum and powdered black cinders.

The finished canvas is now ready for framing, and here again the spurious art manufacturer shows his ingenuity by placing it in an old worm-eaten frame, the material of which was probably obtained from a neighboring barn door, or secured at the demolition of an ancient cottage or church. The completed masterpiece—of trickery if not of art—now passes into the hands of the crafty art dealer, who, if he has no customer with more money than sense, or whom to palm the picture, invariably takes it to a second-hand shop, where, by arrangement with the proprietor, the faked painting is placed in the window, probably upside down, or under a heap of old books.

Sooner or later, a "green" collector, looking for a bargain, will rush in and, in his excitement at having discovered an apparent Rubens, will not realize how the price is being run up until it is too late to draw out. Only on getting his worthless painting home, is he left to meditate upon his folly.

Cleaning up and revarnishing old pictures is another trick of the trade which brings a substantial increase to the art dealer's income. It is by no means an extraordinary thing for an art dealer to buy a collection of worthless paintings for a few pounds and afterwards sell them for as many hundreds. Wielded by a competent man, a brushful of black oil paint will soon forge the name of some dead artist whose work is in constant demand, whilst experts on art declare that there is nothing like the pulp of a raw potato to tone up and bring out the colors of a faded painting. A small quantity of picture varnish is now cleverly applied, the frame regilded, and once again the crafty art dealer has a real, genuine, "old master" for sale.

Female Magistrates.

Seven women have been appointed magistrates in Great Britain, in pursuance of an Act of Parliament making members of the ordinary sex eligible to such an office. They are: Mrs. David Lloyd George, wife of the Prime Minister; the Marchioness of Crewe, younger daughter of a former Prime Minister, the Earl of Rosebery; the Marchioness of Londonderry, who recently opened a political salon; Mrs. Humphrey Ward, a famous author; Mrs. Sidney Webb, who has been active in investigating social and industrial conditions, upon which she has written important works, and who has served on Government commissions; Miss Elizabeth Haldane (sister of Lord Haldane), who has been conspicuous for many years in welfare and educational work, and Miss Gertrude Truckwell.

They are to constitute also a Women's Advisory Committee to advise the Lord High Chancellor as to the fitness of other women for magistratorial office when vacancies occur.

These appointments were made by the Lord High Chancellor (Lord Birkenhead, better known as Sir Frederick E. Smith), the highest judicial officer of the British crown, who appoints all judges as well as justices of the peace. He regards women as especially qualified for work in children's courts.

He Had to Play.

The best story ever told by Major Regan, veteran bandmaster of the British army, concerns a music hall manager of the old school who once entered the place during a band rehearsal. Soft music was being played, and the trombone player was not required. "Why ain't that chap playing?" demanded the manager. "Well, they are play pizzicato, you see," was the explanation volunteered. "I don't care a hang what they're playing," roared the first one. "Tell him if he cannot play pizzicato or any other dashed tune that is put in front of him, he's to get out of my band."

A Dreary Journey.

When the projected trans-Australian line from Oodnadatta to Port Darwin is completed the traveller on it will be confronted with what will be, probably, the dreariest journey in the world. The greater part of the route lies through a desert region, practically devoid of life, and utterly uninteresting.

Man Perishes in Severe Blizzard

Louis Michaud, a former resident of Madawaska county, perished in the recent blizzard which buried the country districts on both sides of the upper St. John river. Michaud, who was a farmer of Caswell plantation, had been to Caribou with a load of potatoes and was caught on his way home by the heavy storm. A day or two later George Watson, another farmer, noticed a pair of horse shoes belonged to Michaud and with the aid of neighbors went in search of the owner.

The tracks in the deep snow indicated that the horses had become stalled in a drift, that Michaud had attempted to dig them out and that finding this impossible threw the blankets on the animals. He had evidently removed his heavy coat and taking his lantern started for shelter. His body was found in the snow a short distance from John Brown's barn. The man was apparently too exhausted to reach the barn. The medical examiner pronounced death due to cold, exposure and exhaustion.

J. V. Albert, a farmer and potato dealer living near Caribou, almost perished in the same way. He was caught on the road, and his horse became exhausted when he luckily stopped near the home of another farmer, where he obtained shelter.

Masked Burglars Beat Bank Man

Jack Twining, formerly of Halifax, but now manager of a branch bank in western Alberta, received a severe beating at the hands of two burglars, whom he foiled in an attempt to loot the bank recently. Mr. Twining was alone in the bank when two masked men suddenly appeared and pointing revolvers at him threatened death if he made any sound. Mr. Twining, attempting to reach his revolver was felled, but he managed to move until his foot pressed the burglar alarm. The two men immediately sprang at the manager and gave him a beating, using the butts of their revolvers. They, however, had to depart without taking with them any of the bank's funds. Although severely beaten, Mr. Twining was not seriously injured and is now recovering. He is the son of the late Russell Twining, and his sister, Miss Twining, resides at Birchdale, N. S.

What Factors Influence Seed Yields in Roots

During the last few years considerable quantities of field root seed, including Mangel, Swede turnip, and Carrot seed, have been raised by the Dominion Experimental Farms' System for the purpose of safeguarding against a threatening shortage in the supply. Much valuable information has been accumulated on the subject of root seed production, the more so because, while engaged in seed growing as an emergency undertaking, the Experimental Farms' System at the same time desired to gain reliable data bearing on the possibilities of making root seed growing a permanent agricultural industry in Canada.

One of the more important subjects in connection with root seed growing which have been investigated is the question of under what conditions the heaviest possible seed yields may be expected. This question is of course of particular interest, as the size of the seed yields will largely determine the profit from seed growing.

In the first place, it is necessary that the roots to be used for seed raising are absolutely sound when planted out. Our experience is that planting of roots which show signs of disease or rot, especially at the crown, leads to most disappointing results. Such roots may linger along for some time, but sooner or later they die off, with the result of course that the seed field becomes patchy and consequently gives a comparatively low yield per acre.

In the second place, the seed roots should be planted as early as possible in the spring. The earlier they are set out the heavier are the seed yields which may be expected. This applies to all kinds of field root seed crops and has been demonstrated over and over again.

In the third place it is absolutely necessary that the land is in good tilth and in a high state of fertility. Several experiments conducted the last few years have most decidedly shown that the land must be in the best possible shape if good seed crops are to be expected. An experiment carried out at Ottawa in 1915 gave several results to the effect that an application of 20 tons of barnyard manure to the acre, or of a commercial fertilizer, composed of 500 pounds of Superphosphate, 200 pounds of Nitrate of Soda, and 200 pounds of Muriate of Potash, increased the seed yield of mangels with almost 50 per cent. Experiments carried out later have not only substantiated this result but also shown that a still greater increase in the yield may be realized if the land is given both manure and artificial fertilizers in liberal quantities.

Sound roots, early planting, and rich land are the main factors which determine the size of the yield. It should be added, though, that the yields are also influenced, to a not unimportant degree, by the supply of farm labour that may be available and by the size of the seed fields. Profitable root seed growing requires plentiful labour at certain periods and under present conditions, the writer would say that to a farmer who has not had years of experience in root seed growing one or two acres may prove more remunerative than a large acreage, because with a small acreage, the yield is apt to be much greater per acre than if the acreage is so large that it cannot be handled conveniently.

TO SUBSCRIBERS
It is our intention to draw eight drafts on all subscribers who are in arrears to the Union Advocate. Before doing so, we would respectfully request those in arrears, to kindly send in the amount due by them at once. By so doing the necessity of drawing drafts will be eliminated. We have a large amount due us by subscribers, and have repeatedly asked for their remittances. Some have responded, others have not, and we are compelled to take the above measure. It costs money to run a newspaper, and since newsprint has advanced to such a high figure, we must collect our subscriptions which are in arrears.
When remitting kindly notice the date of the tag on your paper and not paid up to 1929, compute from date of tag to corresponding month in 1929, at $1.50 per year, and thus be sure that your remittance is correct.

Industry of Agriculture

"Organization, of operation, and education are going hand in hand throughout the agricultural districts of the country," is the opinion of W. J. Rutherford, Dean of the Saskatchewan College of Agriculture, who expresses the following views in the Agricultural Gazette for January. He says, "Farming is not the independent self-contained occupation that it was a generation ago. Conditions have changed from the pioneer days, and production has not only to do with supplying the demands of the home but it must aim to create an export trade. Farming is a real business, successfully carried on by men and women who are not only skilled in the art and practice, but are versed in the

They are interested in the economic problems of their own communities and to a great extent in the problems of their customers in the city. Export Lumber Trade Must be Regulated

Although the Board of Commerce has not yet taken any action with respect to the complaints arriving from all parts of Canada, as to the scarcity and high prices of lumber in Canada, it has been represented to the commissioners that the situation calls for the application to the export lumber trade of similar regulations to those governing the export of paper. It is urged that measures should be taken, in co-operation with the lumber manufacturers, the lumber merchants, the wood users and the builders, to ascertain from year to year the estimated needs of every kind of wood, and to divide among the various saw mills the job of filling this demand, making it obligatory for each mill to make its quota for the domestic market in order to gain permission to export the surplus. It is suggested that the various mills might be permitted to agree among themselves which mills would supply the home needs, and which the foreign, according to advantages of location. This plan, however, was tried in New Zealand where it led to a traffic in export privileges among the mills, those assigned to the home trade demanding money for giving up export privileges even if they had never exported lumber.

Imports From U. S.
Canada's situation differs from that of New Zealand in that she has for a neighbor a great and prosperous republic needing lumber in great quantities. The situation is further complicated by the fact that though we export on the average nearly fifty million dollars worth of lumber we also import and mainly from the United States, about eighteen million dollars worth of which one-third is made up of boards, planks and deals.

Take hard pine, for instance, of which the whole supply is from the United States it is absolutely necessary for building construction, car construction, keels and stringers of boats, bowling alleys, stove boxes, churn frames, derricks, electrical apparatus, beams and supports of elevator, extension and step ladders, running boards of locomotives mill construction, wood casing of oil tanks, for pulp mills, pump rods, and a hundred other purposes. Ontario agricultural implement industries, for example, draw almost as much hard wood from the United States as from Canada. It is obvious that an export embargo would not help, but it is argued that export restriction such as the United States has at certain times put on oral, and Canada now puts on paper, would be of great advantage to the building industry, while an investigation by the Board of Commerce might settle the question of price.

Price Will Increase
It is stated here that lumber will be one-third higher in price this season than last year. About this time last year certain American buyers from North Tonawanda purchased the entire output of some Canadian mills at an average price of $40 per thousand for white pine.

This year contracts have already been closed by American buyers of the entire output of some mills at $60 per thousand. Laths which are now costing the public $21 to $25 per thousand, were sold originally and at a good profit for from $150 to $250 per thousand.

There is a shortage because the Americans are willing to pay these prices or more. It is represented that it is more important for Canada to get its commercial fabric in running order than not to do this and get higher prices from the United States for the lumber. Many building men are buying at present prices, and they are anxious to prevent the country being depleted of supplies.

SUCCESSOR TO LANSING AS SECRETARY OF STATE

Washington, Feb. 25—Baltimore Colby, of New York, who was one of the leaders in the Progressive party under Theodore Roosevelt, will succeed Robert Lansing as secretary of state.

The Vanishing School Teacher

The United States, like some parts of our own Dominion is confronted by a very serious situation in the growing scarcity of teachers—especially male teachers—for the common schools. Quite recently the news papers of New York reported that there were not enough teachers by five thousand to sit at the desks provided for them in the schoolhouses of the state. In other states teachers are quite as scarce, and where large towns are rare and where the rural school abounds they are even scarcer. The chief reason given is the low salaries paid to teachers. "Now a-days anyone who has the brains to be a teacher can make an excellent living at some other occupation and naturally prefers prosperity to penury and schoolteaching. Men, except the few who feel irresistibly called to the profession, have long since ceased to consider teaching as a life work. And now that a wide field of well-paid service is open to women, they, too, are beginning to abandon the vocation that they used to claim proudly as especially their own." Not only, says the paper from which we quote, does the profession of teaching stand in danger; "what is more serious is that the community itself stands in danger. Hundreds of rural schools are closed this winter because there are no teachers to be had. The limited supply is all drained off to the larger centres. If the situation continues and grows worse, those schools will close permanently. Children in the country will have to go uneducated or, at best, scantily educated. That means that families of ambition and substance will not stay in the country, where they must sacrifice the future of their children. The drift to the cities will gather volume and speed. Only the shiftless and the indifferent can remain in the country, and that can mean nothing except national decay." The school problem may not be so exaggerated in Canada as in some parts of the United States, but conditions here are certainly very similar. Men are turning away from the teaching profession. Few ladies think of it as more than a temporary stepping-stone to some thing better. If the efficiency of our schools is not to be suffered to decline, the teaching profession must be raised to a higher plane. "The teacher must be so convinced of the value and dignity of his service that he will not lightly abandon it for some occupation that offers more ease or excitement or money and on the other hand the public must stop being niggardly. It must tax itself more heavily for schools than it has been in the habit of doing; and it must pay salaries that do not degrade the teacher in the eyes of the community. Wherever else a town must skimp, let it not skimp its schools."

How Does Canadian Grown Root Compare With Imported?

It is commonly conceded that, for some reason or other, European grown seed of field roots is superior in respect to root crop producing ability, to seed raised in Canada. In order to investigate this assertion which, were it true, naturally would prevent Canada from becoming a root seed growing country of importance, several experiments have been under taken during the last few years.

In 1916, seed of a few varieties of mangels and Swede turnips raised the previous year by the Dominion Experimental Farms' System was tested in comparison with seed of the same varieties obtained commercially. The results of the experiments strongly indicated that the Canadian grown seed was fully capable of competing with the commercial seed, which later had been imported from Europe, in respect to crop producing power. In fact in some instances the Canadian-grown seed proved decidedly superior.

In 1919, a very large number of varieties of field roots were tested. The majority were grown from ordinary

A CLERGYMAN'S RECOMMENDATION

The Zam-Buk Co.
Dear Sirs:
Appreciating what your balm has done for me, I should like an opportunity of recommending it to others who may be similarly afflicted. For the last forty years I have had a patch of eczema on my right hand. I tried in every possible way to get rid of it—had treatment from several doctors and tried innumerable remedies, but received no lasting benefit. If a remedy eased it or cured it for a time, it always returned as bad as ever. One of my friends is a great believer in Zam-Buk, so I decided to give it a trial and sent first for a sample. You can imagine my amazement when even this small quantity brought me more relief than anything I had ever before used. I continued the use of Zam-Buk for two weeks, by which time the eczema, although of forty years standing, had entirely disappeared. That was one year ago, and there has been no return of it.

Yours sincerely,
(Name of clergyman, from whom the above letter was received, will be given upon request.)

Influenza Has Later Dangers

Particular Care Needed When Patient is Convalescent, Says Expert

The influenza convalescent who has apparently recovered from the disease, and is yet in a strangely weak and depressed condition should be the object of particular care, according to Dr. Louis I. Harris, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases of the New York Health Department. In the opinion of Dr. Harris the after care of the influenza patient is most important. The cooperation of the patient, coupled with the willingness to see that the weakness and depression are a part of the illness, though coming after the disease itself has spent its force, is a big factor in effecting a complete return to full health. On the other hand the determination to ignore this debilitated condition and to fight against it, will, Dr. Harris says, frequently bring serious consequences upon the patient.

After Effects Bad
 "The subject of the after effects of influenza," said Dr. Harris, "is one of particular interest to the scientist at the present time."

"First, and perhaps that most momentous condition to be considered is the striking depression, mental, nervous, and physical, complained of by most patients. Those attacked by the disease with moderate severity are almost afflicted with this depression, which should be recognized and dealt with. Those who have had mild cases of the epidemic are little affected by depression, and their quick return to health and strength gives rise to the belief that influenza is trivial. On the contrary influenza in its after effects is anything but trivial, and calls for the application of rules of common sense and sanitation which are the fruit of years of experience.

"Tonic treatment, well chosen diet, and great care in not becoming over tired or allowing the body to be chilled are necessary. Eggs may be eaten, but not more than two a day, for the average adult. Of course, it must be said, the disease tends to direct its force against the kidneys, and therefore we instruct patients to avoid eating a great amount of meat, eggs, or beef extracts. Eggs, soft boiled, poached, or beaten, raw are advisable in limited number. The raw eggs should always be agitated before taking.

When Good Food is Bad
 With milk and eggs as a foundation the patient should eat good nourishing food, including meat, fish, and vegetables, simply prepared. Frying, for instance, is out of the question. Good food prepared in an unassimilable manner becomes bad food; especially is this to be noted in cases of convalescence from influenza, for the disease often manifests itself in vomiting, and in intestinal and gastric disturbances, and it is important not to weaken the digestive function by the eating of poorly prepared food or even the best of food in ill-advised quantities. The quantitative distribution of foodstuffs should be so adjusted as not to overtax the stomach but the patient should eat generously and frequently."

As a tonic to build up the blood and stimulate the shattered nerves, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body, improves the appetite, strengthens digestion and drives away the feeling of weariness and depression always following an attack of influenza or influenza. Those who give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial will be amply repaid by the new health and strength this tonic medicine always gives.

Iron Clogs of Lancashire

HERE is something remarkable, says the Christian Science Monitor, in the Lancashire clog when it has the streets to itself, and this was evidenced in no small degree only lately before hours of labor were shortened, say about 5.45 a.m. There is nothing more indicative of the solid character of the Lancashire people than the sturdiness and the self-denial of the clattering crowd who wear their breakfast before they eat it.

In all the Lancashire manufacturing towns, one sound more than any other betokens the opening of a working day. From five o'clock onward, as the men and women turn out for the mills, the pavements ring with a sharp metallic clatter. It is the clang of many ironshod clogs. And in the evening, when the mills are "loosing," the streets again resound to the music of what Webster describes as an "overshoe with a thick sole of leather or wood for wet weather." "Into Lunnon aw'll walk w' mi clogs on mi feet," says some boaster in a ballad.

None but a Lancashire man would have so spoken, for the clog is a peculiar institution of the mill folk. Yorkshire, it is true, has borrowed the idea from her neighbor, but still the clog is endeared by an intimate association with all that marks the Lancashire character. To a lover of old things it is sad to be told that the clog is dying out. There are those who say that before many years it will be as obsolete as the crinoline, though there have been threats of a return of the latter in a mixture of feminine foibles and fancies.

Happily these are croakers' prophecies. Many generations to come will doubtless hear, as we do now, the familiar noise awakening a thousand homely thoughts and memories.

And yet in many parts of Lancashire the clog is losing ground before its victorious enemy, the boot. Time was when clogs were generally worn; boots were an expensive luxury, only to be indulged in, if at all, on the Sabbath. Nowadays, boots have become cheaper in comparison with clogs, and the honest clog suffers from modern competition. Another potent factor is the superior respectability of the boot, which confers an elegance on its wearer unknown to the demonstrative clog.

But the old cloggers do not despair for they say that the clog is peculiarly suited to the conditions of mill life. It will stand the wear and tear of flagged floors, and it is not ruined by heat and grease as is the delicate boot. People wear it because their fathers did before them, which is, perhaps, the most hopeful consideration. It is believed that the clog was first introduced into Lancashire when the Flemish weavers came to Bolton in the year 1337, thus establishing the clog as well as the cotton trade of Lancashire.

Like his brother, the shoemaker, the clogger figures in literature as a ripe philosopher and critic of his kind. He is Lancashire in essence. He is wise and he gives generously of his wisdom to all comers. His lithe and lithe legs with rows of finished clogs which make the customer bow his head. Behind the counter—if he is in good business—there will be three or four journeymen busy cutting and stitching the uppers. More often the clogger is master and workman in one.

The place is like the old-fashioned cobbler's shop, which existed before the boot factories had come into being. The clogger of to-day works with the same tools as did the earliest cloggers. His is one of the gradually diminishing number of handicrafts. Machinery has been tried for shaping the wooden soles, but it cannot supplant the delicate skill of the craftsman.

There is more variation in the shape of clogs than is generally admitted. Customers are measured for them, as they are for boots, and niceties of form are carefully followed in curving the sole. There are the garden clog, the Wellington clog, the dancing clog, the laundry clog, imitation Dutch sabots, the Blucher clog, the washing clog, and many others. The finished soles pass into the shop, where the top leather is firmly fastened and the iron rim nailed on.

In working-class Lancashire almost every one stamps cheerfully about in clogs. There are clogs in the shop windows with a tiny rim of iron, hardly bigger than a doll's shoes. It would seem that the wearers love the sound of the clanking iron, for if the iron comes off the heel they run to the clogger's without delay. These mill girls enjoy "the clackety clack of their heels," as one clogger put it.

The biggest expression of the clogger's art is the "Sunday clog." This piece of decoration often bears an elaborate pattern on the front. Sometimes there is a streak of red paint along the sole to give it a dashing appearance, and as a finishing touch there may be three small pearl buttons stitched in a rakish row on the side.

Heligoland as Bird Sanctuary.
 It is practically agreed that the island of Heligoland, late German naval base in the North Sea, has but two possible uses: the one it served in the World War, or as a sanctuary for the millions of migratory birds that have long utilized it as a temporary resting place. Since it will never be permitted to revert to its former state there seems to be little in the way of making it a bird refuge. The proposal is made by British ornithologists, and has American support.
