ROME LETTER

(From our own Correspondent.)

Rome, August 10, 1912.

ARISH—(Part II.)

Let us return our steps up to Assisi on the hillside to follow Francis again.

Perhaps no more touching incident in the life of the Poor Man of Assisi, whose spirit seems to pervade every mound and hollow, can be recalled than the last farewell of Francis to his beloved city. As S. Francis was being borne on a litter by his disciples on this way he suddenly made his bearers halt. And the dying Saint raised his hand and blessed Assisi.

"See, my sons, that you never give up this place," he said to his followers. "Wherever you go," return always to this as your home, for this is the holy house of God. This scene is portrayed on a magnificent bronze monument on the modern roadside leading from the railway station to the town.

No wonder, then, the spoliation of the Franciscans in Assisi by the Italian Government was particularly bitter to every Catholic worthy of the name.

San Damiano.

A walk from Assisi of half a mile brings us to the little Church of San Damiano, in which S. Francis prayed as a boy, and where S. Clare founded her Order. With joy one finds everything in the hallowed spot just as in the days of the two Saints. The little church still stands as of old. In the refectory the same old rough table and seats, which were used by S. Clare and her nuns, are still doing service for the present inmates of the ancient monastery. And best of all, the church, monastery and garden can never be alienated from the sons of S. Francis while a Great Power is able to keep the hands of the Italian Government from the grand old spot. Only a few years ago there was danger of the place being put up to auction by the Government. How pleasant it would be to see the place fall into the hands of a Jewish syndicate, and entrance to be had to the Franciscan sanctuary at the rate of a franc per head for the great job of some foreign infidel! Surely S. Francis must have been looking down on San Damiano in that crisis. At the right hour Lord Ripon, the great English statesman—who, from being a Protestant and Grand Master of English Freemasonry, became a devout Catholic—came along, bought the place, built a ten foot wall around it, installed the Friars Minor as guardians of it in his name, and then, lest his Protestant heirs should be tempted to interfere after his death with this arrangement, left the lot in the name of an old Catholic friend of his who, when his turn comes to shuffle off his mortal coil, shall will it to someone else, and so on.

The Attack of the Saracens.

What a stirring piece of Church history is wound up with the rude fresco on the front wall of San Damiano, showing S. Clare standing at the open window, holding aloft the Blessed Sacrament, and the Saracens falling to the ground, stupefied with fear! The scene portrayed happened when a band of roving Saracens attacked the convent and had scaled the walls of the place. Rising from her sick bed, Clare undauntedly bore the Obitorium containing the Blessed Eucharist before the assailants. Pressed by some unseen power, the infidels toppled backwards from the ladder and fled from the place, leaving the holy ones unharmed. This Obitorium, the bell of S. Clare, her Breviary and Crucifix and the Pastoral Cross of S. Bonaventura are among other relics preserved here, and they are willingly shown to visitors by the good Friars Minor, who succeeded the Poor Clares there when the troublous times of the Middle Ages rendered dangerous life for nuns outside the walls of the town.

The Tomb of S. Francis.

How many other spots in and around Assisi one would like to dwell upon! The Prison of S. Francis, three miles away up among the mountains, where the Saint retired for his annual retreat, and where he preached to the birds on the oak tree; the upper and lower church with the priceless frescoes of Cimabue and Giotto built over his tomb; all the other spots pointed out by the town folk as connected with his name; and the gloriously rich Umbrian plain that is lit up by the sun setting behind Perugia. But the spot where S. Francis sleeps is dearest of all. A flight of steps leads down to the crypt where the body of S. Francis was found in 1213, after being for so many centuries hidden. For old Fra Elias knew what he should do in 1230 on the day of the translation of his Master's body from S.

Mary of the Angels to the great church which he had for its reception. The good old Friar headed the funeral cortege until it reached the church in which S. Francis was to sleep. Then he allowed the bearers to enter and he unconsciously slammed the door in the face of all others, for well he knew that the Perugians would steal the sacred remains, just as long afterwards the people of Stroncone, taking advantage of the French occupation of Assisi, invaded San Damiano and carried off the remains of Blessed Antony of Stroncone to their native place. That day the body was buried in a stone sarcophagus in the solid rock. A pile of masonry was built around it, and an iron grill was determined to disappoint the Perugians, and he succeeded to well that it took six centuries to find out the precise spot where the body lay.

Standing before that beloved tomb what prayer could one find more appropriate than the "Hymn of the Sun," which S. Francis himself composed?

"Praised be my Lord God with all His creatures; and especially our brother the sun, who brings us the day and who brings us the light; fair is he and shining with a very great splendor. O, Lord, he signifies us to Thee!

"Praised be our Lord for the sister moon, and for the stars, the which He has set clear and lovely in heaven!

"Praised be our Lord for our brother the wind, and for air and clouds, calms and all weather, by the which Thou upholdest in life all creatures!

"Praised be my Lord for our sister water, who is very serviceable unto us, and humble and precious and clean!

"Praised be my Lord for our sister fire, through whom Thou givest us life in the darkness, and He is bright and pleasant and very mighty and strong!"

Children's Communion.

It is well to return from time to time to the decree of the Holy Father declaring that the obligation of receiving Holy Communion comes into force as soon as the child begins to have the use of reason. It is a great misfortune to deprive the child for four or five years longer of the greatest of all helps in avoiding sin, during those very years when sin is beginning to introduce itself to the childish mind. The Council of Trent declares that the Blessed Sacrament is the antidote or remedy whereby we are delivered from daily faults and preserved from mortal sin. Consequently, even children who are exposed to evil and to many temptations need the salutary help of Holy Communion as much, if not more, than their elders.

It is not often easy for fathers and mothers to realize how wonderful a grace it is for children to communicate at an early age. But it is a serious part of their responsibility to listen to the teaching of the Church on this head and to follow it to the best of their power.

The Bishop of Newport in England said recently: "There are three troublesome characteristics about all children of the present day which make it extremely difficult to form them to Christian piety. These are wilfulness, rudeness and selfishness. Parents, and especially mothers, should do their utmost to make their boys and girls domestic, gentle, well behaved and obedient. Every little child is God's treasure, the heir by Baptism of the Heavenly Kingdom, entrusted to parents in order to be brought up for God, and not for the world and its wickedness. It is truly lamentable and heart-rending to see them, even while they are just learning to speak and play, left unprotected, like lambs in the midst of wolves, by the only persons who can really look after them—their own parents." The Church is deeply interested in saving them by the practice of early Communion; and she makes every kind of effort, by exhortation, by visits and by laborious instruction to bring them under the loving care of the One Good Shepherd.

Certainly our Lord, who declared His great love for children, and who speaks so tenderly against those who would scandalize them, can come into no hearts so lovingly and as blessedly as into those innocent and unstained hearts of the lambs of the flock.—The Pilot.

A despatch from Ohio tells of a woman who applied for a divorce the day after her wedding. The customs of the North American Indians in the days of their savagery were fully as respectable as those of modern divorcee.

Closing Week At Cliff Haven.

Cliff Haven on Lake Champlain, September 6th, 1912.

After one of the most successful and most interesting sessions in its history, the 21st annual session of the Champlain Assembly is drawing to a close with the end of the present week. In every department of the extensive resort an advancement has been made that brought into prominence the strides that have been made in the maintenance of the Summer School in recent years. The great influx of new guests from all parts of the country, but notably from the South Atlantic and Western States, has brought to Cliff Haven a host of newcomers who departed with words of fond praise that augur well for the immediate seasons that follow.

The unusually great list of reservations for August accommodations, made early in the spring, threw a large overflow crowd into July, and even the early weeks of that month found the Assembly comparatively crowded and kept things in a lively spirit from the inception of the session.

At the family gathering on Sunday evening, which was held at the New York Cottage, the Chairman was the Rev. Thomas McMillan, C. S. P., of the Board of Trustees, and Acting President of the Assembly in the absence of Father Hooley, who returned to his parish during August after six weeks of active administration in the interest of his extensive charge. Father McMillan paid a great tribute to the unselfish and indefatigable spirit of the Reverend President, and spoke of his work in terms that met with enthusiastic expressions of praise and applause from the gathering in the cottage. The mention of the name of the Reverend John J. Donlon, Chairman of the Board of Studies, was also the signal for heartfelt demonstration for the genial officer who mapped out one of the most interesting and valuable lecture courses in the annals of the Assembly. Another feature mentioned to the audience that found a hearty response from the guests was the formal expression of gratitude to the Catholic Press of the country for its generous cooperation, especially in sending exchanges for the reading room, where papers from all papers of the country were seasoned with eager interest from guests who were thus kept in touch with the absorbing topics of affairs at home. The reading room was an innovation of the present session under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Nolan, of Rochester, and it was daily crowded with guests who came to peruse the copies of exchanges from their various dioceses. The entertainment part of the program included excellent piano solos by Miss Grace Hoffmeyer and Miss Marguerite Thornton of New York; a reading by Mrs. Honor Walsh of Philadelphia, so well known for her literary achievements, and a reading by Father McMillan from the humorous poem by Joseph L. C. Clark, "The Frat of Father Carty."

On Saturday evening the annual meeting of the officers and trustees of the Champlain Club was held at that institution. The officers of last year were re-elected. Hon. Francis P. Cannon of New York was elected to fill the vacancy created by the death of the Hon. Michael E. Bannin of Brooklyn. The sympathy of the Board was extended to the families of the late N. B. Bannin, Mrs. Ellen Chidwick and Mrs. Wm. A. Ferguson of Brooklyn, who died during the present session.

The closing lectures of the session were given during the week just past, when only the evening courses were conducted. For Monday and Tuesday the lecturer was Miss Katherine Bregy, a Philadelphia convert, who developed a series of two lectures on the topic, "When Romance was Religion." In an attractive and instructive analysis of her theme the lecturer spoke first on "A Page of Middle English Religious Literature," while the concluding lecture had to do with "A Page of Medieval Romance." For the final series the lecturer was one whose popularity makes her course long awaited in the course of the various summers. Miss Gertrude M. O'Reilly of Ireland, famous for her Irish folk lore and Irish customs talks, was this gifted and fascinating speaker who lectured during the last two evenings on Celtic Literature. The subject of the former lecture was "Early Celtic Romances," while the latter subject was the "Irish Precursors of Dante," making up a course of more than attractive interest.

Mr. W. Moore, 132 Edgar St., Toronto, Ont., writes—"After having been troubled with indigestion, sour stomach, and severe headaches for over a year, I was induced to try Milburn's Lax-Liver Pills. One vial greatly benefited my case, and three vials completely cured me. I can heartily recommend them to any one suffering from stomach or liver trouble."

The celebrant of the last Mass on Sunday was the Rev. F. P. Sigfried of St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, Pa., one of the trustees of the Summer School since its beginning. Father Sigfried preached a touching and eloquent sermon on the Gospel of the day.

A Sensible Merchant.

A strapping German with big beads of perspiration streaming down his face was darting in and out the sides of a department store.

His excited actions attracted the attention of all the sales persons, and they hardly knew what to make of it. A bustling young man of the clothing department walked up to him and asked: "Are you looking for something in men's clothing?"

"No!" he roared, "not men's clothing; women's clothing. I can't find my vial."

The lady of the house had just entered the kitchen and found the cook sitting on a policeman's knee. "Now, Bridget," she said sternly, "what have you got to say for yourself?"

"He's a-reatin' me, mum," replied Bridget.

There is nothing harsh about Lax-Liver Pills. They cure Constipation, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, and Bilious Spills without griping, purging or sickness. Price 25c.

"How are you spending your vacation?"

"In an ideal way. I'm pleased nearly all the time."

"That is rare. What is your method?"

"I spend two days in the country, then I'm glad to get back to the city. I spend two days in the city, then I'm glad to get back to the country."

Minard's Liniment cures neuralgia.

"I am completely in the dark with these bills," he exclaimed.

"Yes, John, his wife said, pointing to a tinted paper, 'you will be in the dark if you do not pay this one. It is the gas bill!'"

Minard's Liniment cures Neuralgia.

"They seem a well-mated pair."

"Oh, yes, botanically."

"What do you mean?"

"She is a society bad and he is a blooming idiot!"

HAD DYSPEPSIA FOR TEN YEARS

COULD NOT KEEP ANYTHING ON HER STOMACH

Dyspepsia is caused by poor digestion, and to get rid of this terrible affliction, it is necessary to place the stomach in a good condition. For this purpose Buxdock Blood Bitters has no equal.

Mrs. Norman A. MacLeod, Port Bevis, N.B., writes—"For the last ten years I suffered dreadfully with dyspepsia, and I could not keep anything on my stomach. I tried several kinds of medicines, but none of them seemed to do me any good. At last a friend advised me to try Buxdock Blood Bitters, which I did, and after using five bottles I was completely cured. I would advise any one troubled with stomach trouble to use B.B.B. I cannot recommend it too highly."

BISHOP MORRISON'S CONSECRATION.

We avail ourselves of this occasion to reiterate our congratulations to the Right Rev. Dr. Morrison, Bishop of Antigonish. The splendid reception accorded him on his arrival there, as Bishop elect (of which we gave an account last week) bore evidence of the affection in which he is held by his dioceses; of the popularity, in the best sense, of the new Bishop of Antigonish with his people. All this is confirmed over and over again by the grand and solemn ceremonies attending his consecration on Wednesday last, and by the great number of distinguished ecclesiastical dignitaries, prelates and priests, from all sections, in attendance. The Apostolic Delegate, who was Consecrator, was accorded a splendid reception on his arrival at Antigonish on Tuesday.

To attain to the Episcopal dignity is an honor and distinction that raise the recipient to a sacred elevation among his fellow men, and set him apart as one of those chosen to rule the Church of God. To have been chosen for this high and holy office confers unspokeable distinction on Rt. Rev. Bishop Morrison, and also on the diocese of Charlottetown, wherein he was born; spent his youth and labored many fruitful years in the sacred ministry. It is our sincere wish that he may have many years of fruitful labor as Bishop of Antigonish.

The following account of the consecration ceremonies is taken from the Antigonish Casket of last week: At nine o'clock in the forenoon, St. Ninian's Cathedral was packed to the doors, when the procession entered. The Consecrator, the most Reverend Pellegrino Francesco Stagni, Apostolic Delegate to Canada and Newfoundland, was seated on the throne, and the ceremonies of consecration began. He was attended by Rev. D. M. MacAdam, of Sydney; Rev. C. W. MacDonald, Bridgeport; and Rev. A. L. MacDonald, Inverness.

The two assistant bishops at the consecration were the Most Reverend E. J. McCarthy, Archbishop of Halifax, attended by Rev. J. B. Moriarty, of Kentville, and Rev. A. E. Monbourquette, Arichat, and the Most Rev. Timothy Casey, Archbishop-elect of Vancouver, attended by Rev. W. F. Kiely, North Sydney, and Rev. J. W. McIsaac, Little Bras D'Or. Present in the sanctuary were the Most Reverend M. F. Howley, Archbishop of St. John's Newfoundland; Most Rev. Archbishop Gauthier of Ottawa; Right Rev. Thomas F. Barry, Bishop of Chatham; Right Reverend Paul La Rocque, Bishop of Sherbrooke; Right Reverend M. F. Power, Bishop of St. George's; Right Rev. Bishop March of Harbor Grace, and representatives of the Bishop of Rimouski and St. Hyacinthe; Rev. Father Saint Germain representing the Most Reverend J. S. H. Brunalt, Bishop of Nicolet; Right Reverend Monsignor V. F. Beardon, Placentia, Newfoundland; Right Rev. Monsignor D. J. Gillis, Indian River, Prince Edward Island, Very Reverend Monsignor W. Veitch, Conception Harbor, Newfoundland; Very Rev. S. J. Doucet, Grand Anse, N. B.; Very Rev. W. A. Chapman, V. G., St. John N. B.; Rev. Donald McDonald, Domestic Prelate, Tignish, P. F. Island.

The officers of the Mass were—Celebrant, His Excellency the Consecrator; Assistant Priest, Very Rev. H. P. McPherson; Deacon of the Mass, Very Rev. A. Thompson; Sub-deacon of the Mass, Rev. J. J. McNeil, Port Hawkesbury; Master of Ceremonies, Rev. M. A. McAdam, Rector of St. Ninian's Cathedral; Assistant Masters of Ceremonies, Rev. M. Gillis, Assistant rector of the Cathedral, and Rev. H. J. McDonald, Grace Bay.

All being ready, the Consecrator took his place at the middle of the altar, seated with his back to it; and the Bishop-elect, vested and wearing his birette, was led between the Assistant bishops, and being seated before the Consecrator, after a pause they rose with heads uncovered, and the senior assistant bishop said to the Consecrator: "Most Rev. Father, our holy mother the Catholic Church, asks that you promote this priest here present to the burden of the episcopate."

Whereupon the Consecrator asked—"Have you the Apostolic Mandate?" The Senior Assistant Bishop answered, "We have." The Consecrator said:—"Let it be read." The Apostolic Mandate was then read by the acting notary of the Consecrator. The Bishop-elect then knelt before the Consecrator, and took the oath of office, as follows:—"I, elected Bishop of Antigonish, shall always be faithful and obedient to blessed Peter the Apostle and to the Holy Apostolic Roman Church and to our Lord Pius X, and to his lawful successors. Not only shall I give them due honor but also to the best of my power with filial devotion shall take care that due honor shall be given them by all and that no man do them wrong. I shall also receive with honor those also whom they send to represent them, and shall, so far as I can, help them in all their necessities and wants. I shall take care to defend, preserve, increase and promote the rights, honors, privileges and authority of the Holy Roman Church, of our Lord the Pope, and of his successors. I shall also faithfully, immediately or indirectly, disclose to the said our Lord the Pope, if the case should occur, whatever may happen to be attempted by anybody against the authority and jurisdiction of the Roman Church. I shall not presume, even with the consent of my chapter, alienate contrary to the sacred canons the possessions belonging to my mensa, but shall strive to preserve them with all care. I shall come to a Council when called unless I be excused by some just and canonical reason every pretext being set aside. I shall observe to the best of my power the rules of the Holy Fathers, the Apostolic decrees, ordinances, or dispositions, reservations, provisions and mandates, and shall cause them to be observed by others. I shall steadfastly endeavour to preserve the purity of the Faith; while to those erring in the faith I shall show no favour. At the times prescribed by the decree of the Sacred Consistorial Congregation, A Remotissima, of the 31st day December 1909, I shall make my visit Ad limina either in person or by a coadjutor or auxiliary bishop, if I have any, or, for just reasons, to be approved by the Holy See, by a suitable priest having permanent Statutes in the diocese. Then I shall render to our Lord the Pope and his successors an account of all my pastoral office and all things pertaining to the state of my Church in any manner whatsoever and to the discipline of the clergy and the people; and in turn I shall receive and humbly accept the Apostolic mandates and execute them as diligently as possible.

So help me God and these Holy Gospels of God." The Bishop-elect touched with both hands the text of the Gospels, and the Consecrator said, "Thanks be to God."

The Consecrator read the following examination, the assistant bishops repeating his words in a lower tone.— And the Consecrator said to him.—"May the Lord bestow upon thee all these things and every other good thing, and preserve thee and strengthen thee in all goodness."

All answered,—"Amen." The bishop elect was then questioned respecting his belief in the Holy Trinity; the Father; in Jesus Christ the son of God, God and Man, His Incarnation, sufferings, death, resurrection and ascension who is "to come to judge the living and the dead, and to render to everyone according to his works as they shall have been good or bad; in the Holy Ghost."

The Consecrator said:—"May this faith be increased in thee, by the Lord into true and eternal happiness, dearest brother in Christ."

All answered—"Amen." The assistant bishops then led the Bishop-elect to the Consecrator whose hand he kissed. The Consecrator then began the Mass. The ceremonies of the consecration took place during the Mass. The assistant bishops led the Bishop-elect to his chapel, where he received the pectoral cross, and was vested with the tunic, dalmatic, chasuble and maniple, and began Mass himself. The Consecrator sang portions of the Mass from his throne. It may be noted here that the bishop's mitre worn on his head, indicates the exercise of authority. This explains why the mitre is sometimes on the head and sometimes laid aside. The Gradual being finished, the new bishop was again led before the Consecrator who sat before the altar, and the Consecrator said to him:—"A bishop judges, interprets, consecrates, ordains, offers, baptizes and conforms."

Then he prayed for grace for the new bishop. All sat down except the new bishop who prostrated himself, and the Litany of the Saints was sung by the choir. Near the end of it, the Consecrator intervened with three special petitions for the new bishop, and then the choir finished it. Then the Consecrator took the book of the Gospels, open, and laid it on the neck and shoulders of the Bishop-elect, so that the printed page touched his neck. Then the Consecrator and the assistant bishops touched with both hands his head saying—"Receive the Holy Ghost." This is the rite of the imposition of hands, vitally important, as conferring Episcopal power. The Consecrator then prayed for grace for the new bishop. The ceremonies continued, each having its special significance and meaning. We can insert only a few of them here. The Consecrator blessed the pastoral staff praying and said:—"Receive the staff of the pastoral office, so that in the correction of vices you may be lovingly severe, giving judgment without wrath, softening the minds of your hearers whilst fostering virtues, not neglecting strictness of discipline through love of tranquility."

Praying again, he blessed the ring and said:—"Receive the ring the symbol of fidelity, in order that, adorned with unspotted faith, you may keep inviolably the Spouse of God, namely His Holy Church."

He then took the book of the Gospels from the shoulders of the new bishop, where the attendants had held it, and handed it to him, and said:—"Receive the Gospel and go preach to the people committed to thee, for God is powerful to increase His grace in thee, He who liveth and reigneth, world without end."

The Consecrator and the assistant bishops gave him the kiss of peace, saying to him: "Peace be with thee." And he answered to each: "And with thy spirit."

The new bishop then returned to his chapel, and being again led in before the Consecrator he knelt before him and offered to him two loaves of bread and two small barrels of wine and two lighted torches, and kissed his hands. This is a relic of ancient discipline, according to which the faithful made their offerings on such occasions for the support of the clergy and other purposes connected with religion.

From the Offertory to the Communion the new bishop stood at the Epistle side of the altar and acted and recited together with the Consecrator; and, after the Benediction, the Consecrator sat again before the altar, and blessed the mitre, and placed it on the new bishop's head.

The new bishop, with the assistant bishops, proceeded around the church, with mitre, staff, robes, gloves and ring, and blessed the people.

These are some of the principal ceremonies of the consecration. The crush of people at the Cathedral was exceedingly great. The weather was perfect. About 150 of the clergy were present.

A banquet of the clergy to Bishop Morrison took place last evening.

ADDRESS OF THE CLERGY. The Rt. Rev. James Morrison, D.D., Bishop of Antigonish.

My Lords,—The clergy of this diocese beg to offer you a most cordial welcome on this auspicious occasion. The sentiments of profound respect and veneration which the clergy and laity of this diocese have always cherished for the pastor whom the Holy Ghost has placed to rule the Church of God, are an ample guarantee of the sincerity with which we greet you today.

It would be no easy task to convey in words the feeling of satisfaction which we all experienced when the news of your appointment reached us. All who have the interest of the diocese at heart have felt very keenly the want of a chief pastor since the death of the late Bishop Cameron of glorious and immortal memory.

The Canadian government steamer Lady Grey had left Quebec at noon to meet Premier Borden on the steamer Victorian at the Island of Orleans.

On board were several distinguished personages, including Senator Landry, speaker of the senate, Owens, Messrs Lesperance, M. P., Montague, Biondin, M. P., Champlain; Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons; Dr. Paquet, M. P., Lislet, Sevigny, M. P., Dorchester; Ames, M. P., Montreal; Baker, M. P.; Brome, Lavergne, M. L. A., Montagu; Bernier, M. L. A., Lewis; Labrousse, M. L. A., Champlain; Andrew Allan, of the Allan line; Harry Price, Dr. Verge and L. Weston. The Prime Minister and Postmaster General were met on the Lady Grey by their cabinet colleagues and received an address of welcome from their Quebec party friends which was read by Senator Landry.

Disembarking from the steamer Victorian, the premier was landed by the government steamer Lady Grey, on the King's wharf, where he was met by the mayor and aldermen and many leading citizens and escorted to the city hall.

The procession of carriages and automobiles was a most imposing one and as the premier passed through the gaily decorated streets, he was repeatedly cheered by the crowds which had assembled.

MAGNIFICENT DECORATIONS. The council chamber of the city hall had been transformed into a veritable fairy palace. The draperies and decorations which had been used on the occasion of the visit of the present king when he came to Quebec for the Tercentenary were again brought into use, and amidst a myriad of electric lights, palms, greens and flowers, Hon. Mr. Borden was acclaimed by a crowd that thronged the large chamber.

It was a brilliant scene when the premier accompanied by Mrs. Borden and Mr. and Mrs. Pelletier entered. The premier and party were received with a roar of cheers, and as the band of the Royal Canadian Garrison Artillery rendered "O Canada," from the end of the hall flashed out the motto in colored lights: "Homage de Quebec au Hon. R. L. Borden."

Mayor Drouin read the address and Hon. Mr. Borden replied. When he started his remarks in French he was loudly cheered.

The address was as follows: To the Right Hon. R. L. Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, Member of the Privy Council.

Sir,—The ancient capital of the Province of Quebec prides itself on the privilege it enjoys of being the first to greet the distinguished personages who land on the shores of our great river.

In accordance with this custom, the citizens of Quebec welcome you today on your return from the important journey you have taken, and they are all the more pleased to perform this act of courtesy that its object is the distinguished gentleman who now fills the high position of Prime Minister of this country.

Every man who is alive to the duty imposed on him by love for his country and its institutions feels that his esteem and respect are due to those whom the voice of the people has called to administer public affairs. The responsibility and labor, inherent to that office, fully deserve the people's gratitude, and it is but fair that when opportunity presents itself, they should publicly testify to it.

Therefore, Sir, the citizens of Quebec, animated by feelings of lofty pride, inspired by the high position that your country occupies in the empire, are happy to welcome in you their eminent representative in the memorable campaign you have attended. It affords

PREMIER BORDEN HOME

Accorded Enthusiastic Reception

Ancient Capital Gaily Decorated

Quebec, Sept. 6.—Quebec gave a remarkable reception this afternoon to Hon. R. L. Borden, premier of Canada, on his arrival from the Old Country, where the Dominion premier created such a great impression. Quebec was the first to greet him, and Quebec certainly did so in splendid style, the hospitality of the ancient capital being exhibited in its most brilliant form.

The demonstration in honor of Mr. Borden was totally devoid of politics. It was a purely civic one, and many Liberals as well as Conservatives united in doing homage to the man who is now at the helm of Canadian politics.

Accompanying Mr. Borden was Mr. Pelletier, postmaster general, and most of the cabinet ministers were here to receive the returning colleague.

On board were several distinguished personages, including Senator Landry, speaker of the senate, Owens, Messrs Lesperance, M. P., Montague, Biondin, M. Two inches of rain fell in Winnipeg district last Tuesday night and the storm was general throughout the Province. This will prevent field work for 24 hours. Thirty-five thousand harvesters have been disturbed over the western wheat fields. 50,000 were needed, but the weather helped to offset the labor shortage. There is a plan to transfer laborers from the English sections to those who would help where it is most needed in Regina. Many of our readers, who remember Rev. Father Tonnigan, S. J., who gave several missions in this Province, in company with Father Devlin, S. J., will regret to learn of his death, which occurred at the Charlottetown Hospital early Sunday morning. He had lately been attached to the Jesuit House at Quebec City; but for a couple of years had been in very poor health. He came here some three months ago, in hope of some improvement, but he gradually sank until the end as above stated. Monday morning a solemn Mass of Requiem was chanted over his remains in the Cathedral. The celebrant was Rev. Father Froux, S. J., Quebec; deacon, Father Smith; Master of Ceremonies, Rev. Dr. McLellan. Yesterday morning the remains were borne to the Railway Station, and thence forwarded to Quebec for interment. R. L. P.

On the hill slope overlooking the valley of the Meuse, three-fourths of a mile from the village, stands a bastion with a slender golden spire, marking the spot where according to tradition, stood the 'Fairy tree' beneath which Jeanne and the maidens of the village used to dance and where the maid received the command to go forth and lead the armies of France.

To-day the fields are green with hay and corn, and men and women are busy caring for the harvest. Two-wheeled carts, drawn by oxen, sometimes with a horse in front, come up the hill and are loaded and driven down in the dewy eve.

And here she lived that wonderful girl, through all the years of her childhood and her girlhood till her eighteenth year. It does not seem such a long time back—these five hundred years—as we stand by the house that has sheltered her, the church where she worshipped, the garden where she dreamed and the hillside where she heard the voice.

Greece, Rumania, Serbia and Bulgaria, it is the turn of Albania. In lieu of Russian and English protection Albania can count on help nearer home, for her national aspirations are identified with demands for reform on the part of the army and the political leaders who were not allowed to express their opinions in the late elections.

It is an anomalous situation when the realists turn to a constitutional government, such as Kiamil Pasha and old Ahmed Pasha are entrusted with the application of the Constitution on broader lines than those of the Young Turks who inaugurated it. The collapse of the Young Turks bears out what has been written in these pages about their methods and aim very shortly after they had deposed the Sultan Abdul-Hamid and started to unite all Ottoman subjects in one happy family.

The forced observance of Turkish feasts weighs heavily on those who cherish their own, and the declarations of the Committee of Union and Progress that all creeds would be respected are illusory when the Sheikh-ul-Islam can decide that the Latin alphabet is 'irreligious.'

The impossibility of reconciling Turk and Christian may be seen from the verses below that are croned by every Turkish soldier in his barracks, and muttered by every Turkish child in the bazaar, his first lesson, and his living code from the cradle to the grave.

To him, alone, be glory!'"

This is the teaching, these are the tenets of the element that professes to harmonize with men of good-will within the Ottoman Empire. The Young Turk party has failed, and the Cabinet that has taken up the task would be ill advised in attempting to resume it. Christianity and Islamism are irreconcilable factors. Anything short of autonomous administration will not solve the Albanian difficulty.—Hon. Hursi, in American.

WAS TROUBLED WITH HIS HEART

HAD TO GIVE UP WORK

Mr. Alfred Male, Florida, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with my heart for two or three years. I thought sometimes that I would die. I went to the doctor, and he said he could not do anything for me. I had to give up work. My wife persuaded me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. The first box relieved me, so I kept on until I had taken seven boxes, and they cured me. I would not be without them on any account, as they are worth their weight in gold. I advise my friends and neighbors who are troubled with heart or nerve trouble to try them."
