"Tell Him I Loathe Him."

CHAPTER XXII. LOYD-MOSTYN'S RESOLUTIONS.

AND you will promise to obey me in everything? You promise always to try to remember what has occurred here to-day and that it was at your earnest request—ay, entreaty—alone that I consented to take you?"

"I promise, oh, I promise! Let us go! Surely God sent you to relieve me from this frightful torture."

He arose without a word and drew her hand through his arm; but, seeing how weary she was, he flung his arm about her and almost carried her onward, his strides curiously long and swaying under the weight of his burden. But he never seemed to feel it. The burden became heavier and heavier, but his steps seemed to quicken under it. His face was red as white as marble.

The greatest passions that man has ever known have been those that were born of impulse, for what is impulse but inspiration whether for good or evil? And inspiration comprises completion or perfection.

The war that was being waged in Lloyd-Mostyn's heart was a curious one. He had scarcely attempted to think of himself, but in his cowardly soul there was a suddenly awakened bravery that would have enabled him to strike the man dead who dared insultate that he meant to wrong Bebe in any way.

And so he held her protectively if passionately and trudged on to Nottingham. There he sent for the team that he had engaged for his own private use while remaining there, and, taking his valet into his confidence as much as he deemed advisable, he placed Bebe inside, himself beside her, and with his valet acting as coachman they were driven rapidly away.

He heaved a long sigh of relief as he saw how rapidly the distance between Chapman and himself was increasing, and how little chance there was that his old-enemy would ever suspect him of being an abductor.

He drew Bebe closer to him. Her head had already fallen upon his shoulder. Then he realized that exhausted nature had asserted herself and that the unfortunate girl slept.

Long and earnestly he gazed into the pale, beautiful face; then, with the reverence that even a bad man has for helpless purity, he raised the small hand to his lips and kissed it.

"She was never his wife!" he muttered passionately. "He had deceived her with a cruel lie, and after all I am saving her from a fate more bitter to woman than death! She has thrown herself upon my protection and she shall have it to the end of the chapter. I will save her reputation by making her my wife. Mad or not she shall have the protection of a lawful name. I may have stained it, but her love would make me pure. She has turned to me already unconsciously. I shall marry her, and after I am secure of her love she shall have the best medical attendance. It will be but a short time until her mind is restored, and then, Lilford Lloyd-Mostyn, you must begin life again! Begin with innocence to assist you in forming a different future."

His reflections were interrupted by realizing that a pair of sightless eyes were fixed upon him.

"Have you enjoyed your sleep, little one?" he asked with infinite gentleness.

She sighed as though relieved of a terrible fear.

"So much," she answered. "Where are we?"

"We are going to London," he replied evasively. "Are you glad?"

"Very glad. But you are not like my dear papa. If I always visit of his little Bebe. Is it that you do not love me now?"

"She uttered the words after the manner of a half petulant, half tearful child. The remembrance of Chapman seemed to have been effaced by that sleep.

A smile, both amused and embarrassed, played over Lloyd-Mostyn's lips.

"I love you more than I have ever done in all my life, Bebe," he answered truthfully.

"Then kiss me!" she exclaimed.

He looked at her a moment, his face coloring painfully, then he obediently pressed his lips upon her brow.

"Poor papa!" she murmured. "Did you have one of your restless nights last night? I always know that you have been unhappy when you kiss me upon the forehead. Am I still your 'little comforter,' papa?"

"Yes, darling. But, Bebe, try to understand me, dear. You know that I would advise only what was for your good, do you not?"

"Yes."

"Then—don't call me papa, darling. It is best that you should not just at present. It will not make us love each other less, you know?"

A puzzled expression crossed the sweet, distressingly blank countenance.

"Not call you papa?" she said slowly. "What would you have me call you?"

He hesitated a moment, then answered: "Lilford."

A shudder passed over her, strangled in its inception.

"No, not that!" she exclaimed. "I seem to have heard that name before—somewhere—somewhere! I can't remember. What is it that makes life seem so changed? What is it that makes me feel old and withered when I am only a little girl—such a very little girl? I think my heart has vanished into the decay of ages, and that very soon I shall die and go to God and my mother in Heaven. Do you think it is because I am blind that I have grown to be an old woman while yet I am a little girl?"

The sightless eyes were lifted piteously, hopelessly, and Lloyd-Mostyn groaned.

Perhaps one of the most singular things in life is the manner in which certain of God's children are punished for their faults. Lilford Lloyd-Mostyn was suffering for his through his heart.

As he gazed into that white lined face he thought of Bebe Chapman as he had seen her only a few short hours before, radiant in her perfect happiness; now helpless, her reason dethroned. A wild remorse filled all his soul, a remorse so great that passion and selfish desire were crowded out, leaving a nature purified by self-teaching.

"Hush, my darling," he whispered, pressing the lids down over the strained eyes with the tips of his fingers. "You love me, do you not?"

"You are all I have," she answered, with a sigh that was almost a moan. "I love you so much."

"Then you must trust me. Never while I live will I leave you—I swear it! You shall be the sweetest charge of my whole life. And in return you must forget all about what you have just said. You must remember only that you are my own little girl, and that I will be your eyes, your life. You will not speak of death again because of me, for I have none but

EVENING TELEGRAM FASHION PLATES.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

8763. A Practical Outfit for the Busy Woman.

The busy housewife will not fail to recognize in the accompanying illustration a most attractive and practical outfit, consisting of apron, cap and sleeves. It will afford protection to the daintiest gown, and will leave the hair neat and tidy even after a busy morning's work. The front is cut in Princess style, and fits close to the figure, and a prettily shaped bib extends over the shoulders in a manner very becoming. Floured percale was used for the making, but gingham, linen and Holland are suggested. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes. Small, Medium and Large. The medium size will require 4 1/2 yds. of 36 inch material for the apron with 1 1/2 yd. extra for the cap and sleeves. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

8713. A New and Attractive Mode for the Little Girl.

The pretty little over dress here illustrated can be most attractively reproduced in white or colored pique, which is as suitable for wear in winter as well as summer. The surplice front and short sleeves finished in buttonholed scallopes, render the mode very dressy, but any other mode of decoration may be adopted, such as insertion or edging. The blouse waist is in kimono style the front and back being cut in one piece. A belt of the material encircles the waist, or one of leather may be used. For a girl of 8 years 3 1/2 yds. of 36 inch material will be required for the making. Sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12 years. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in stamps or silver.

PATTERN COUPON. Please send the above-mentioned pattern as per directions given below. you, as you have none but me. Your heart will live again for me, Bebe. I will warm it and cherish it into new existence, and you will help me, will you not?"

Soothed by the tenderness of his voice, she nestled her head against his shoulder, a low sob escaping her lips that which leaves the lip of a tired child.

Eczema's Tortures. All treatments failed for three long years—Cure complete with DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mrs. Link, 12 Walker St., Halifax, N. S., writes: "After three years of miserable torture and sleepless nights with terrible eczema, and after trying over a dozen remedies without obtaining anything but slight temporary relief, I have been perfectly and entirely cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment. After the third or fourth application of this grand ointment I obtained relief, and a few boxes were sufficient to make thorough cure. It is six months since I was freed of this wretched skin disease, and as there has been no return of the trouble I consider the cure a permanent one."

Such cures are not brought about by imitations and substitutes for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is therefore necessary for you to be certain that the portraits and signatures of A. W. Chase, M. D., the famous Receipt Book author are on the box you buy. 50 cts. a box at all dealers or Edmanco, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for a free copy of Dr. Chase's Receipts.

"I will try," she murmured faintly. He spoke no more, but holding her closely, they were driven onward rapidly, while he dreamed strange dreams and formed strange plans for their future.

King Edward's Joke.

King Edward's good nature was illustrated by a London correspondent at the Press Club in New York. "The King," said the correspondent "was visiting Rufford Abbey, and one morning, in company with his host, Lord Arthur Vaville, he took a walk over the preserves."

"Suddenly, Lord Arthur, a big burly man, rushed forward and seized a shabby fellow with a dead peasant protruding from the breast of his coat."

"Sir," said Lord Arthur to the King, "this fellow is a bad egg. This is the second time I've caught him posching."

But the King's handsome face beamed, and he laughed his gay and tolerant laugh. "Oh, let him go," he said. "If he really were a bad egg, you know, he wouldn't posch."

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

Instead of talking myself, I'm going to let my readers talk to each other to-day for a change. You see, it's this way.

A few weeks ago I received a letter from a young girl who had written me asking me to tell her of some way to overcome her extreme shyness and self-consciousness. Not knowing exactly how to answer her, I published the appeal and asked my readers to help me out.

And they came. Most handsomely. Here are some of their very excellent suggestions.

They are especially addressed to the girl of the letter, but I suspect that there are plenty of other girls who can make use of them.

"Sensitiveness is selfishness," writes one young woman. "Two years ago I was absolutely the most sensitive and shy person on the face of the earth. I believe. Then I went to a boarding school and fell under the influence of a preceptress, whose life is lived entirely for others. She taught me to realize this truth—that sensitiveness is selfishness—and to cure it by concentrating my mind on some other object besides myself. It was hard work, but I finally succeeded, and to-day people wonder how it was changed so much in so short a time."

"I was just such a girl as you described," writes another woman, "when I read a short article in the Youth's Companion which made a different person of me. In this article a plain, old country grandmother was adding her grandson 'goodbye' as he was leaving for a business life in the city. She told him that when he was with folks below himself in the social scale to remember that they were 'folks' after all, and should be treated with consideration and kindness. And when with those whose manner or position seemed above him, to reflect that they also were only just 'folks' like himself and family, and that there was no real reason why he should be overawed by them. I have not told this so well as the original article, but I hope you catch the idea. Certainly many times when with ladies well versed in ways of society in which I was ignorant, it has given me confidence and ease to remember that they were just 'folks' after all."

A philosophic young woman solved the problem this way:

"I was a painfully reserved, bashful, self-conscious girl. You may be sure I was quite all the things you correspondent says she is. To be liked and sought was my great desire, but I never knew how to begin the campaign. After varied experiences and many sad blows I found that my ideal was wrong. 'To be liked' was not enough. It did not strike the point. The more I pondered over the matter the more I realized that I must reconstruct my ideal, and I finally came to the conclusion that to strive to be liked is not enough. It is in striving to be worthy to be liked that the secret of popularity lies. My viewpoint was now changed completely and in the place of self-consciousness and uneasiness, I found self-reliance and assurance coming. It was no lightning change, remember, but it did come at last."

Another woman suggests—
"But, dear me, if I try to tell you the half of the wisdom that has been flowing into my office I shall be proved for running over my space. So please consider it 'continued in our next.'"

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health, love loses its lustre and gold is but dross.

Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensive repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as sacredly confidential. Address World's Dispensary, Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—1000 pages, answers in plain English hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free, in plain wrapper to any address on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only, or in cloth binding for 50 stamps.

Household Notes.

To remove ribbons which have been creased by frequent tying, lay the ribbon on the ironing board and place over it a clean sheet of brown paper. Then take a hot iron and hold firmly with the right hand and with the left draw from under the iron. The result will surprise anyone.

I always keep my eyes in a box of able salt, and one summer left home for two months forgetting about two dozen that I had. On my return I was about to throw them out, thinking them unfit for use, but on breaking one, I found it in perfect condition, as were all when I used them later.

To clean ivory handles, get a piece of the finest sandpaper made and rub the handles until all discoloration is removed; then mix a little French chalk with spirits of wine and rub the mixture on with a piece of chamois leather until all the marks are out and the handle polished equal to new.

Learn to know what damp means—especially when used upon polished woodwork. Think it means wet and you will be reviving valuable information as "news-paper rubbish." Dip a cloth in hot water, wring it as hard as you can, then shake it in the air and it should have about the right amount of moisture.

If a screw is rusted in its bed of wood there are one or two expedients to be adopted to remove, when it will not yield to the screw driver. Either heat a poker red-hot and apply it to the head of the screw or pour a drop or two of oil about the head. Then after a few moments' delay, the screw will be easily turned.

If one likes a wine sauce for a fruit salad take half a cupful of sugar and pour over it a cupful of sherry and a little Madeira. Let the mixture stand till the sugar is all dissolved and it is quite cold; then pour it over the fruit, toss well and serve on hearts of lettuce. It is a pleasing change from the French dressing.

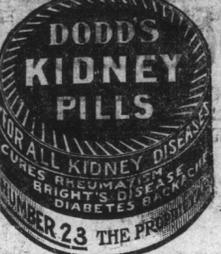

Always keep a small slip of white paper and a magnifying glass in the sewing machine drawer. If the machine is in the shadow, slip the piece of white paper behind the needle and then hold the magnifying glass at the right angle between the eyes and the needle. The threading hole will come out into perfect distinctness and the needle can be threaded with ease.

Some interesting figures relating to the population of London are published in the Daily News Year Book. At the present time it is estimated at 7,547,196. In 1801 it was 864,035; in 1821, 1,227,500; in 1855, 2,362,236; in 1873, 3,264,530; in 1891, 5,583,896, and in 1901, 6,581,327. The next census of the British Isles will be taken on April 2, 1911.

It is interesting for the sake of comparison to know that in 1840 the ten greatest cities in America gave a combined total population of 711,652. In 1900 Greater New York had 3,437,202 and the same city, according to the census returns announced last month, had 4,766,883 inhabitants.

Imperial Federation.

London, Oct. 18. — Fundamental changes in British legislation and the whole system of parliamentary government are impending. The conference of leaders of the Government and the Opposition, which had been considering a possible compromise on the question of the House of Lords, held four sessions this week and has now reached the crux of its deliberations. Not a word of the proceedings has been allowed to transpire officially, but it is possible to give the general scope of the great changes contemplated.

It is by no means certain, perhaps not even probable, that an agreement will be reached, but the leaders of both parties have made a genuine effort to reach a non-partisan solution of the grave questions involved.

Imperial Federation.

The basis of the evening changes under discussion is Earl Grey's federation scheme of the Empire, which he outlined during his visit to London. This provides for local home rule for Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales. The Imperial Parliament is to consist of a House of Commons of 60 members and a Senate of the same number. The Commons will comprise approximately twenty-five Irish, twenty-five Scotch, twelve Welsh and 138 English members. The Senate will include 100 of the present Lords.

Leaders Represented.

The colonies will be represented by six senators on approximate population basis. This, of course, is only a scheme in the rough, for there are many considerations which would modify it. It may be said in general terms that the scheme is immensely popular in Ireland, Scotland, and Wales. This explains Redmond's recent volte face after years spent in uncompromising denunciation of schemes of devolution. There is also strong opposition among certain classes, for example, the property holders of Scotland, who argue that local legislature would be intensely adical and that property there could be in greater danger than ever.

Party Situation Critical.

It is impossible to say what progress has been made by the conference, but it has been admitted that the situation thereat is now critical. Lloyd George and other members of the Government have postponed their partisan speeches, which were looked for next week, until a resolution has been reached.

Failure to agree would be followed by the announcement of a rival scheme for the reform of the Lords, and an early election by the country. If a compromise is reached, the sweeping changes involved must in my event be submitted to the people, at the election would be postponed until there had been an opportunity for a thorough canvass of the great issue. It is believed that the conference will finish its work one way or another within a week.

The Thoughtful Stork.

On a tree close to a house, within a short distance of a river or canal, here was a stork's nest, with young ones. The roof of the house caught fire one day, and, though the flames did not actually reach the tree, the heat became scorching. So the mother stork flew down to the water, got into it and drenched her breast; then, returning to her young, she spread the mass of cool, wet feathers all over them. This she repeated over and over again, flying to the river, getting down in the water and returning, her plumage drenched with wet. And thus the nest was saved, and the tender nestlings were preserved alive until the fire had been got under control and all was safe. The truth of this remarkable story was vouched for by more than one eyewitness.

Evening Telegram

Wednesday, Oct. 26, 1910.

The Message Again.

It is only a short time ago since we protested strongly against the indifference with which the cable message furnished to us through the Government was made up in Canada. Today a most glaring instance of this occurs again. We were furnished about 10.30 this morning with an account of the Le Neve trial. The report was descriptive of the trial scene and closed with the commencement of the case for the Crown. Hours before there had been published in the message furnished to the Daily News the close of the trial and the verdict.

It is time that the Government should take action to see that the Government message contain news which is up-to-date. When they do so they should also let the compilers know that newspaper offices in Newfoundland keep Who's Who and the ordinary annuals and do not want part of the contents of these reference books sent as cable news, when a notable dies.

Thieves on Waterfront.

That thieves are now nightly prowling around the waterfront with designs on craft there is no doubt. Skipper Ryan, of the schr. Mary Joseph, lying at Bowring's wharf turned in Monday night, leaving his clothing near his berth in the cabin. When he awoke yesterday morning he found his wearables disturbed and realized that some person had gone through his pockets during the night and stole his purse with $9 in it. The matter was reported to the police to-day but the Telegram could get no particulars from them and had to glean them elsewhere. Some thief also visited the schr. Mary yesterday evening or night, and kicking or prizing open a valve left on the deck by a man, stole some of the contents. This also was reported to the police but we could get no information about it at the lockup.

A woman called at the police station to-day and reported a larceny to a member of the force, with whom she was cloistered for a long while.

Magisterial Enquiry.

In Judge Conroy's chambers at the police court to-day a magisterial enquiry is being held into the charge of the casting away of the schr. L'Isle, on the charge of which Messrs. Bouckie, Owens and Butt are held in custody. Last night the Messrs. Butt (4) and a man named Snow came in by train from Freshwater as witnesses, and several others are also being examined in the matter.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

Abraham Killen, of England, a painter, who was arrested yesterday on suspicion of the Grand Falls robbery of $1,000, was recorded in the court records. The man was released yesterday afternoon after giving the police full assurance of his innocence. A drunk was discharged.
 Three seamen, natives of Russia, were up charged with refusing duty on board the Ocean Ranger the past few days. It was incidentally learned that they also assaulted the mate and steward. Each was sentenced to 12 weeks' imprisonment, but if the vessel is ready for sea in the meantime they will be put on board.
 Head Const. Peet summoned a man for loose and disorderly conduct on the 22nd. He pleaded not guilty and held that he was attacked by another, so that the case stands over until the other man can be summoned.
 Nine persons were summoned by Sergt. Orliphant for dog licenses. Six of them and the other three cases stand over for the present.

Anxious About Brother

Mrs. Lane, wife of Capt. Wm. Lane, of Long's Hill, is anxious about her brother Patrick Cleary, a well known stamman who left here for New York on the Rosalind when she made her first trip after quitting the Montreal route. There is little doubt in the minds of those who know the man that it is Mrs. Lane's brother. He is believed to have joined the Regulus at New York, and there is no other man of the name from St. John's who goes in steamboats. Poor Cleary has a brother in New York, and his wife died some time ago.

ANOTHER MARINE TRAGEDY.

Loss of Schr. Golden Arrow--Two of the Crew and Three Passengers.

Telegraph messages to the city from St. Mary's Bay to-day tell of another sad tale of the sea and the loss of five persons in the gale of Sunday night last, near Cape St. Mary's, on the rocks known to the fishermen as Lancey Keys.
 The schooner Golden Arrow, Thos. Singleton, master, left St. Joseph's (Salmonier), last Saturday with a load of fish for St. John's. No doubt she was caught in the storm Sunday afternoon crossing St. Mary's Bay, and was unable to make a harbor owing to the weather being so thick. Two of the crew and three passengers were drowned, but the skipper's life was saved. He was washed ashore and got to North Harbor this morning. No further particulars were in up to press hour. Mr. R. J. Devereaux, M. H. A. for the District, is interesting himself in their behalf, and has telegraphed to St. Joseph's for the names of the crew and passengers. One of the despatches received says that there are relatives of the "lost" ones here now in town who came passengers on other schooners.

Here and There.

WENT TO CATALINA.—The S. S. File went to Catalina last midnight taking W. D. Reid who will inspect the work being done there on the Bonavista Branch.

FOUND NEAR THE WRECK.—Leo Stack, of Petty Harbor, went out to the cliff yesterday near where the Regulus went ashore, and found two pairs of socks on the landwash.

TYPHOID AND SCARLET FEVER.—A case of typhoid fever developed yesterday at No. 17 Spencer Street. A case of scarlet fever was also reported from 156 Casey Street. The patient is a child of four years.

A BIG CARGO.—The s.s. Bonavista left Charlottetown at 7 p.m. yesterday for this port via Sydney. She has on board a cargo of 10,000 barrels, 90 head of cattle, 166 sheep and 4 horses.

BRUCE PASSENGERS.—The S. S. Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.10 a.m. to-day bringing H. Patten, Mrs. G. Petrie, Miss E. Petrie, C. W. and Mrs. Sibley, E. Hart, and Mrs. Yeman. B. V. Vall, E. Hart, M. Seaport, Miss M. Marelle, Miss G. Marouly, P. Mackworth, M. V. Sionisot, C. W. Morrison, E. Russell, G. Pitfield, E. B. Reid, J. Durieux, A. E. Reed, Miss J. M. Simpson, Mrs. J. Squires, H. F. Hope, J. B. McFarlane and C. Dixon.

SHIPPING IN MOURNING.—Today the flags on nearly all the steamers and vessels in port are flying at half mast out of sympathy for Capt. Taylor and his crew, who went down in the ill-fated Regulus. In the various parts of the city, where friends of the drowned seamen reside, the blinds of the houses are all down as a mark of sorrow for the ill-fated men.

INGRAHAM NOT OUT.—There is a big sea running up around the shore near Petty Harbor and owing to this the Ingraham did not go to the scene of the wrecked Regulus. It is believed that when the ship went ashore the first seas which boarded her swept away the lifeboats and boats and that the unfortunate crew had little opportunity to use either. About 20 skiffs and motor boats are at the scene from Petty Harbor.

Man Missing.

Three young men drove from town to Torbay last evening. When near the schoolhouse there, one of them got out of the carriage. The other two drove on and waited near the hall. He did not turn up. He is missing and up to 1 p.m. to-day had not been found.

Marine Notes.

The Blanche-Currie arrived at Penambuco yesterday, 24 days out from A. Goodridge & Sons. Captain Carter, sailed for Greenpond to-day taking supplies from Bishop & Sons.

DEED.

After a lingering illness, Catherine, beloved wife of Daniel King and daughter of the late Captain Wm. Thompson of Spanish Bay, leaving two sons and a daughter to mourn their sad loss. Funeral on Friday, at 2.30 p.m., from her late residence, cor. Central and Casey Streets. Friends and acquaintances please accept this, the only intimation. Harbor Grace Standard please copy.

Train Notes.

The west bound express left Notre Dame Junction at 8.45 a.m. to-day.
 The incoming express left Port aux Basques on time to-day.
 The local arrived at St. John's from Carbonear at noon to-day bringing about 25 passengers, including Geo. Rossiter, Willis Davis, F. Jerritt, John French and Moses Earle.

TREAT FOR THE K. OF C.—Mr. R. Reid took the visiting Knights of Columbus out to Petty Harbor in his automobile this morning. They came back by way of Donovan's, where they had a lunch.

Attacked by Dogs.

Miss Hendry and her sister, driving out to town over Robinson's Hill this forenoon, had a narrow escape from being badly mauled by two savage dogs. One of the brutes actually jumped into the carriage and made a "yap" at one of the ladies. The dog was beaten down with the butt end of the whip, but would not go away. Miss Hendry whipped up the horse at full speed, but the dogs could not be headed off. They kept on jumping on the legs of the horses and towards the carriage till they got to Rennie's Bridge, when a young woman there, Mr. Ayre's servant girl, called off the big dog, which, Miss Hendry says, belonged to Mr. Ayre. Both ladies called at the police office to-day to seek redress and to have the dogs shot.

Missing Schr. Safe.

Last evening it was reported to the police here that the schr. Senator, Capt. Pat. Power, from Salmonier, and owned by Wm. McDonald, had not turned up here, though several days out, and there was considerable anxiety about her. She arrived during the night with her mainsail and foresail torn, but otherwise O.K. She harbored out of Sunday's storm in Trepassay with seven other schooners.

They Went on the Gladstone.

People from Bell Island to-day say that the s.s. Gladstone left Bell Island two hours before the Regulus Sunday morning with ore for Sydney. She took from the island 36 men who could not get employment there and all went to Sydney to seek work. As far as these people were aware no men took passage by the s.s. Regulus, though some had intended to do so.

Here and There.

RAISINS PICKED UP.—Yesterday evening the police picked up a box of raisins on Adelaide Street, evidently dropped from a team. The owner can get it at the lockup.

LAD TO REST.—The funeral of the late Mrs. French took place at 2 p.m. to-day at Petty Harbor. Deceased was a highly respected lady and was housekeeper at the Deinery for several years.

BIG STORM APPROACHING.—The Fisheries Department had a special wire 16-255 from Toronto advising them that a big gale from the Eastward was approaching. The Department ordered up the storm signals at the North Battery to warn fishermen and seamen of the approach of the bad weather.

The tug Ingraham, which left here shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning, returned to port from the scene of the wrecked Regulus at 7.15 p.m. yesterday, immediately after which the Telegram interviewed Mr. A. W. Piccott, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who was on the tug, and he kindly supplied the following facts relating to the work done at the wreck. There went with Mr. Piccott on the tug one of the lieutenants of the Regulus with the chief diver of the warship and two subordinate divers, ten bluejackets also accompanying these as helpers and tenders. Capt. W. H. Bartlett also went along and good time was made going along the shore. On arrival at the place where the wreck is lying the ship's propeller and some 15 feet of the shaft lay on the rocks and marked the spot where the ill-fated steamer met her fate. After anchoring the tug, the divers got everything ready with despatch. They located the hull of the Regulus lying on the bottom across a small gulch, framed with precipitous cliffs and so disposed as to bar it completely off. The ship lies in 15 fathoms of water with the bottom torn completely out of her. A heavy sea ran in this gulch all the afternoon, making it difficult for the divers to perform their duties as well as they would wish. Four Petty Officers, while the Ingraham was there, were on top of the cliff working lines and jiggers in the hope of bringing up some of the bodies, but the sea running interfered greatly with their work also. These men often shouted to those on the Ingraham, but with the surging of the waters what they said could not be heard. One of these men took from the bottom a pair of men's socks and a few other belongings of some of the hapless crew but what these latter were could not be determined. The first diver who went down remained under water for over half an hour. He descended at the bow of the vessel on the starboard side. The gulch alighted to run east and west and the ship lies on the rocks with her head to the eastward. The diver went in under the torn bottom of the ship and could see up through the holds from which the hatches had been wrenched off by the action of the waves. He then came to the surface and took a needed rest, after which the boat with the tenders' air pump on board was shifted and then the man went down amidships, where he could see the bridge, the superstructure and the davits. One of the boats seemed to have been taken clear of the slings, showing that some at least of the crew made a dash to try and save their lives by the launching of a lifeboat. As a matter of fact it looked to the diver as if all the ship's boats had been put over the side, for the canvas coverings had been cut off them, it would seem, and lay about the submerged decks. The diver also saw blankets, bedding, &c., but Mr. Piccott's orders were to take nothing from her except bodies, if any could be secured. The diver in this descent was down over 40 minutes, and it was 2.30 p.m. when he went on board the Ingraham after he came to the surface. Mr. Piccott after some trouble got the boat in the gulch on the inside of the wreck, when the diver was relieved and another man who replaced him went down on the port side of the wreck. He gave it as his opinion on coming up that if the bodies of the crew are anywhere they would be on this side of the ship in this gulch, where there is no ground sea to throw them ashore. The diver remained down until it became almost dark, and then the work was suspended for the day and the tug came back to port. The ship's mainmast is broken off and is about 4 fathoms below the surface. Mr. Piccott believes that the ship took the rocks stern foremost, her head swinging off with the weight of the tow line until the seas threw her bodily in on the shore. It is also believed that if even both tugs had secured the vessel they would not be able to tow her off the land under the conditions which prevailed. Mr. Piccott is hopeful that when the divers go up again to-day the bodies of at least some of the crew will be secured. It is also believed that even if the crew had had time to get the boats out they would not have lived an instant but would have been swept in against the rocks and dashed to pieces.

The Traffic to Newfoundland.

The growth in the volume of traffic between Canada and Newfoundland is a matter of importance to the port of Sydney, more especially to North Sydney. This year's increase is probably the largest since the opening of the Reid Newfoundland railway and the establishment of the ocean ferry service between North Sydney and Port aux Basques. Officials of the Reid Newfoundland Co. state that they have done 25 per cent. more business this year than last and that there is every indication of this rate of growth being kept up if not exceeded for some time to come. Next year will probably see a daily through service on this popular route which involves the placing of a second steamer between North Sydney and Port aux Basque.

In view of the growing importance of this traffic to Cape Breton and indeed to all the maritime provinces, it is to be hoped that the I. C. R. management will endeavor to do all they can when time tables are being arranged to make the best possible connections with the Newfoundland steamers at North Sydney. Complaints on this head have been rife in the past. Possibly in the past the importance of the traffic hardly warranted any great departure from the settled order of things for the accommodation merely of passengers to and from Newfoundland. But the Newfoundland service is daily growing in importance to the I. C. R. and with the advent of daily boats it behooves the Canadian railways to do something more to facilitate traffic going through to the Colony.—Sydney Post, Oct. 21st.

The Portia Arrives.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. Fitzpatrick, arrived here at 5.30 p.m. yesterday from the westward after experiencing some stormy weather. The ship left here on the 14th inst. and had fine weather to St. Mary's, when she met variable winds from S.S.E. to E.N.E. After that she met a S. E. gale after leaving St. Lawrence with dense fog until midnight of Monday week. Tuesday morning at 6.30 the vessel arrived at Port aux Basques and then went to Sydney, arriving at 5 p.m. She took in a coal cargo and left for Bay of Islands at 7 p.m. Wednesday and arrived at Birch Cove at 4.30 p.m. Thursday with a gale blowing from the S.W., varying to west. She left that evening and arrived at Bonne Bay at 1 a.m. next day. She left at 5 a.m. and then came down to Bay of Islands and Port aux Basques. She was at Hermitage Cove at midnight Saturday. After leaving Fortune she had a southerly wind and dense fog. At 6.30 they were quite near Cape Chapé Rouge, at the entrance to St. Lawrence, but the fog was so dense and such a gale blew from the S.S.E. with intense darkness that the ship could not make the harbor and had to lay off there until 4 a.m. Capt. Fitzpatrick says that a light or beacon is badly wanted in that locality. If such a convenience were there he could have entered with perfect security. She left Mortier Bay next day with a gale of W. by N. wind blowing. It was too stormy Monday to deal with the roads of Placentia and she did not enter there. She had a good run from that port. A heavy sea ran as the ship came down the shore. Capt. Fitzpatrick heard of the Regulus disaster at St. Mary's, and coming along near Petty Harbor kept close to the shore but could see no sign of the ship, though the tug with the divers were seen at work. She brought a good cargo and these passengers: Messrs. E. E. Lake, J. Flynn, P. J. Power, G. Bulley, J. LeDrew, E. J. Broderick, J. Jackman, W. Norris, Hon. M. P. Cashin, Rev. Rawlins, E. F. Lawlor, Sergt. Cleary, Messadmes Kennedy, Myrick, Fowlow, Dutton, Carew, Cashin; Misses O'Leary, Murphy, Devereaux, Rawlins, Sister M. Anthony, Rev. Mother Stanstan and 63 steerage.

King George's Coronation.

The proposal for a Castel Hill Placentia Memorial Park to King Edward has been ably placed before the Newfoundland Historical Society at their recently monthly meeting in St. John's, Newfoundland, and there is a general feeling that next June (King George's Coronation month) would be a very appropriate time for opening the Memorial Park. It could thus be a festival of Empire and have no very special reference to the Utrecht anniversary, which would occur two years later 1913. As all the Empire is celebrating the King's Coronation year in next June, it is believed the Newfoundland Historical Society will be cordially supported in any effort toward the Castel Hill Park for the year of 1911, in honour of two British kings.—St. John New Freeman.

Twice Tries to Suicide.

Man's Desperate Efforts at Self Destruction.

When Mrs. Dyer, of Colonial Street, arose this morning she was surprised to notice that her son, who had slept in his room all night and who had been unwell for some time past, had quit the house, and she feared, and with good reason, that some mishap had occurred to him. Shortly after 9 o'clock the young man arrived home shivering and with his clothing saturated, and only after careful questioning did he relate the fact that he had attempted suicide by drowning. After leaving his home he hastened down to the Gut of Quidi Vidi and securing a stone of considerable size tied it round his neck with a piece of rope which he had brought for the purpose, and then went to a rock overhanging the cliff and sprang into the water. Dyer was always noted for his ability as a swimmer, and to it to-day can attribute the saving of his life. The stone was large enough and had sufficient weight to bring him to bottom, but his strength as a swimmer, coupled with the fact that he had only a few yards to go to reach the shore, saved him from death. He was very much exhausted on reaching the land and walked home dazed and weak. The police later probed the correctness of his story by enquiries from the people of the place. After his wet clothing was removed his mother advised him to go to bed. After he entered his room she heard a noise, and running in was horrified to see her son lying on the bed with his suspenders tied tightly around his neck, his tongue protruding from his mouth and his eyes almost burning from their sockets. Mrs. Dyer jumped to his aid, tore the braces off him and then summoned assistance. The man was unconscious for a long while. Dr. Macpherson was called and viewed him, after which he pronounced him insane and he was taken by Const. Devine to the Lunatic Asylum. Going there he became very violent and the officer had all he could do to keep him from jumping from the carriage. He was at Tilton Harbor all the summer, came home unwell, and his ill-health, it is feared, affected his brain.

The Governor Expresses Sympathy.

Through the Department of the Marine and Fisheries His Excellency the Governor sent a message of sympathy to those bereft of loved ones by the loss of the S. S. Regulus. His Excellency's message to Minister Piccott was as follows:

 Oct. 25th, 1910.
 Please convey to the wives and children and relatives of the officers and crew of the "Regulus," the deep sorrow of Lady Williams and myself, and of all our party, at the terrible loss which they have sustained. They may be assured that they have our very real and earnest sympathy. I wish also to express my high sense of the sterling pluck shown in the attempts at rescue, especially by those on board the tug, "John Green."

German Army's New Uniform.

London, Oct. 19.—Advices from Berlin say that after a great deal of experimenting the German General Staff has decided upon a universal service uniform for use in Europe. The result of the many experiments is a decision in favor of a uniform of a greenish gray.

Mysterious Plague in English County

LONDON, Oct. 18.—A mysterious and extremely fatal disease, to which doctors up to the present are unable to give a name, has broken out in Holbrook, a village in Suffolk, and carried off four persons after illness lasting only two or three days. A medical correspondent who has been investigating the disease writes that the symptoms point to a devastating and rapidly spreading plague which is rarely met with in England. While the high fever, sudden onset, cough and congestion of the bases of the lungs pointed to acute pneumonia of an influenza or septic type one of the local physicians stated that the intensely infectious character of the malady and the nature of the lung expectoration pointed to a pneumonia of a much more dangerous origin. So anxious were the medical authorities regarding the seriousness of the outbreak, which some darea diagnose that Professor Sims Woodhead, of Cambridge, Dr. Bulstrode, medical officer to the Local Government Board, and Dr. L. Heath, the honorary bacteriologist to the East Suffolk and Ipswich Hospital, were deputed to inquire into the mystery.

Twitching of the Nerves

Wonderful cure brought about by DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD. It is only by watching the symptoms of nervous exhaustion and applying restorative treatment that you can ever hope to ward off locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

Mrs. J. Vandenberg of Hester Welland Ave., St. Catharines, Ont., states:—"For twenty-one years I was badly afflicted with heart trouble, nervousness and cramps in the limbs, also twitching of the nerves and nervous headaches. I became weak, debilitated and emaciated. My condition was so trying that I was made worse through worry and loss of sleep."

"I tried a hundred remedies in vain. After having used half a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my ailment had entirely vanished, and I was enjoying better health than I had since childhood. I was made worse through worry and loss of sleep."

Such cases as this prove the wonderful efficiency of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. It acts in Nature's way by enriching the blood and its benefits are lasting. 50 cts. a box. All dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Capt. Burke's Loss.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir.—You were somewhat astray last evening in your reference to Capt. Burke's loss and his relationship to Messrs. John and Alex. Burke of this city.

Capt. John Burke was the father, and not the brother, of the above-named persons. He was also the uncle, on the mother's side, of His Grace Archbishop Howley and James P. Howley. The vessel was not returning from the icefields with a load of seals, as she was lost on New Year's Night, 1865. I think she was coming from Sydney with a load of coal, or else returning from the Brasils. William Burke, the captain's eldest son, was with him on his maiden voyage. The vessel was lost, I believe, in the same spot as the Regulus. William's body was the first recovered, and was buried on the 6th of February following.

The writer attended both funerals. This occurrence took place nearly 46 years ago, not 50 years as stated.

I take these facts from an old diary kept by myself at the time. It is a very remarkable coincidence that on Sunday night, without knowing anything whatever about the Regulus, and just about the time she went ashore, I happened to turn up this old diary and was reading the very notes I had made relative to Capt. Burke's loss. I was not aware that I had this diary till I came across it quite accidentally, nor did I learn of the Regulus disaster till the afternoon of Monday.

Yours truly,
 J. H.

Keeping Them Clean.

Const. Nugent in the West End and Const. Lawlor in the other part of the city are busy men these days. Debris from these run down the thoroughfare and pollute them, and the officers are seeing to it that all refuse matter must be removed and the places cleaned up.

Portia's Fishery News.

From the Portia's captain we learn that all the western banking fleet out of Grand Bank, Fortune, Harbor Breton and other places have given up the voyage, and that the summer has been a record one as far as the bank fishery is concerned. Some four or five schooners from Belleoram are still out at Labrador, Quero and Grand Banks. The Excelsa, Mary Smith and Gladys had 500 qtls. each, and the latter 300 qtls. all taken on the Labrador on their last trips. Grand Bank has 22 vessels out this season and they averaged from 1,200 to 2,600 qtls. for the season. These will stock $12,000 on an average, and their crews will average in wages about $400. This is the best voyage, best stock and best wages in the history of Grand Bank.

The Trial of Ethel Le Neve

Special Evening Telegram. LONDON, Oct. 25. Ethel Clara Le Neve was placed on trial to-day as an accessory after the fact in the murder of Cora Belle Crippen, of whose death her husband, Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, has been convicted and sentenced to death on the gallows on Nov. 8th. As upon the occasion of the physician's trial, the court room was crowded with members of the legal profession and as many others as could secure places by right or influence. If Crippen had any well-wishers they kept in the background during his trial, while there is a noticeable sentiment of sympathy for the girl, who for love of a man twice her age had sacrificed her reputation, deserted home and friends, and remained true to him even when their association made her liable as an accessory to a brutal murder. Miss Le Neve was represented by counsel who took advantage of every technicality of the law. According to the prosecution, her relation to the crime as an accessory began very soon after the death of Mrs. Crippen, who was murdered on the night of Feb. 1st and her dismembered body buried in the cellar of the Crippen home on the night of the following day. As Miss Le Neve sat in the prisoner's dock to-day she was a pathetic figure. She is 25 years old, of medium build, light brown hair, grey eyes, and excellent teeth. Her face is pretty and she is trim. She wore good clothes becomingly, was naturally buoyant and affable. To-day she was attired in the same neat blue suit which she wore at the preliminary hearing in the police court. She entered the dock between two wardens and remained standing during the few minutes occupied by the swearing of the Jury. Miss Le Neve was an object for keen scrutiny on the part of the women who composed the majority of the spectators. In reply to the formal charge of being an accessory after the fact of the murder of Belle Elmore, the girl pleaded not guilty in a voice that was scarcely audible. Lord Chief Justice Alverstone thereupon called Richard D. Muir, the Crown Prosecutor, who outlined the case against the accused. It was clear, Mr. Muir said, that the intrigue between Crippen and Miss Le Neve contained the motive for the murder of Crippen's wife. He particularly dealt upon the evidence given by Mrs. Jackson, Miss Le Neve's landlady, in the preliminary hearing, and which will be introduced into the trial. The illness of the accused on the night of her interview with Mrs. Jackson was not, the Prosecutor said, an ordinary illness but a condition of horror of which the explanation was the knowledge that had come to her that Crippen had buried his wife.

"Not Guilty."

(Daily News Messages). LONDON, Oct. 25. The trial of Ethel Le Neve, on a charge of being an accessory after the fact, in the Crippen-Elmore murder case, elicited no new testimony. Chief Justice Alverstone, in addressing the jury, said that he saw no reason why Crippen should have told any story different to that which he had told others. The jury quickly returned a verdict of "not guilty." A sequel to the Crippen case to-day occurred, when the Court inflicted a fine of a thousand dollars on the Daily Chronicle for publishing a story asserting that Crippen had confessed to the murder of his wife.

Cyclone in Italy.

(Daily News Messages). NAPLES, Oct. 25. The coasts of the Bay of Naples, the Gulf of Salerno, and the Islands of Ischia and Procida have been devastated by a peculiar combination of the elements. The exact number of the victims has not been learned, but it is said that 250 persons have been killed, and that the monetary loss is enormous. The disaster appears to have resulted from a cyclone having three centres, the first over the Island of Ischia, the second over the town of Del Gracia, on the East Coast of the Bay of Naples, and the third sweeping the Gulf of Salerno. Dishonest Lobster Pack

Mr. J. H. Dee said to the Telegram yesterday in reference to the bad lobster pack that several instances came under his notice when in St. George's and Fortune Bay. A resident of Bank Head who was conducting a lobster factory allowed four other men to pack under his license and to use his labels. This information came out when the license holder was brought up for packing bad goods. It was not squid that was packed in the tins but bad lobster, or lobster boiled up to a chowder, what the lobster men call "do-overs" or re-processed lobsters. There were also a few instances where salmon was found in tins labelled as lobster. Mr. Dee says that there were only a few cases of the kind, and that the Department is resolved to put a stop to the practice.

Idle Rumors Afloat About the Regulus

Yesterday afternoon and night all kinds of rumors were set afloat as regards the s.s. Regulus. One was to the effect that one of the crew had been found alive in a crevice in the cliff but in a very exhausted state. Another had it that the people of Petty Harbor had picked up three bodies and that the divers of the Brilliant had found several. At 10 o'clock last night it was reported that the body of M. Keough, the second engineer, had been found and brought by Petty Harbor people to the King's wharf in a boat. A brother of the deceased and his relatives heard it and were proceeding to the pier when met by a Telegram reporter, who assured them of the falsity of the rumor. John Grace, who joined the ship in New York, was a son of Mr. Rd. Grace, formerly Road Inspector, who resides on King's Road. He has a wife, four brothers, and a sister living in New York, and another sister, Mrs. Stephen J. White, resides in this city. It was ascertained yesterday that all the crew were Newfoundlanders, as the men Bentley and Hutchings, who joined her in New York, were also natives of St. John's. Last week four residents of Mobile, on the Southern Shore, who were at Bell Island, wrote their friends saying that they had intended leaving there and would go to Sydney in the Regulus. It is feared that these four joined the ill-fated ship and were lost in her. Frederick Cook, who was registered in the ship's articles, took the surname of his stepbrother. His real name was Frederick Conway, and his father, who was a blacksmith by trade, was well and favorably known to the people of the East End, as is also his mother. John Knight, a brother of M. Knight, the second engineer of the Regulus, was washed off the jibboom of the Golden Hind while bound from this port to Macao after she was eight days out. This occurred 5 years ago, and the loss of the other son in the Regulus is a terrible blow to the parents.

Wanted, a Powerful Tug.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I don't know how they manage things in other countries, but this I do know, that we ought to have a fully equipped steamer of a large size to be in readiness in case of accident. We have been taught a dear lesson in the Regulus disaster, and I trust we will take steps to make matters right. Here we are a sea-faring people, depending upon the sea for our living to a great extent, living in a seaport town into which crowd hundreds of sailing craft from all parts of the Island, steamers and sailing vessels from all parts of the world, and yet we have not a tug capable to tow any of these in boisterous weather such as prevailed in the recent disaster. They are good enough in moderate weather, but where do they count when heavy seas and gales prevail? We want a big, strong steamer owned by the Government, and ready at all times to despatch at a moment's notice. The cost will be something, but what would we all give to-night if we could bring back the crew of the Regulus to life once more.
St. John's, Oct. 26, 1910. R. J. P.

An Excellent Concert.

Saturday night at Conception Harbour an excellent concert was given at the Parish Hall. The place was packed early and many could not gain admittance. Many were present from Bell Island. The concert was given by the pupils of the Convent assisted by talent from St. John's, and all present were delighted with the performance of the pupils and the others who helped. The concert was succeeded by a most enjoyable dance, and the proceeds realized amounted to $150 which will be devoted to the fund of the new church erected in the harbor.

$240,000 in the Collection Plate.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 9.—What was said to be the largest collection ever taken up on plates by any church in America; an interpretation by the house of bishops on the "open pulpit" subject and refusal to change the name of the church, were among the most important features of the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in session here yesterday. While the convention was in session, a communion service was being held in Christ Church, where the donations were being received for the general missionary fund. At the conclusion it was announced that the collection was $242,116.83.
