CHAPTER XXXVIII.
A TORTURED MIND.

Without the smile from partial beauty won. Oh, what were man? A world without a son.—CAMPBELL.

Whatever doubts and fears oppressed the mind of the successful schemer, at the sight of Rebecca and the old housekeeper he was able to dispel them with a contemptuous smile and the inward assurance that he was safe; and the remainder of the ride was spent in a brilliant display of plesantry and wit, charming and surprising the beautiful countess, who had hitherto considered Captain Dartmouth as rather a thoughtful and reserved gentleman.

The days rolled on.

The guests at the ball seized eagerly upon all the adjuncts to pleasure and boasted on the lawn, arched on the lawns, flirted in the drawing-rooms, gambled in the billiard-saloon, and amused themselves after their respective tastes to their hearts' content.

Meanwhile their generous host mingled with them but very little.

He, like his guests, had separate and private suites of apartments, and to these some days he was entirely confined.

Messengers—some foreign and distinguished by swarthy Italian faces—arrived and departed bearing dispatches to and from—long, important-looking dispatches, over which the old Italian count and Reginald Dartmouth bent eagerly and argumentatively for hours together.

Sometimes the lovely Lucille would join their councils, which were then always held in the count's room, and on these occasions a scene full of pleasure would light up the captain's acute, sympathetic face, and he always contrived to throw a glamor of romance and an undercurrent of devotion and esteem into the conferences.

All was going well; he assured himself of this night after night.

His ambition—and how lofty, how great, he alone knew—his love, intense yet not unmingled with self-interest—both were going well.

But the man's heart? Well, for that he could not answer. Perhaps he did not put the question, but strove with might and main to forget the past and ignore the dark, terrible dreams that made night awful to him, and the lines of care and hidden dread which made the mirror a curse to him each morning.

Yes, outwardly all was going well with the new master of the Hall, but inwardly the demon, dread, had already taken possession of his soul, and all else—love, ambition, the thirst for more wealth and greater power—was being gradually absorbed by it.

“It is a good idea—excellent; one of those few ideas which have blessed you so seldom, my dear Bois.”

The speaker was Charles Anderson.

The person addressed was a good-natured, stupid Bois Bolton—a baronet of sporting proclivities and stable tastes.

He—Sir Bois—had just proposed, in answer to some one's declaration that, as there was no programme for the day, an impromptu steeple-chase should be got up and that the visitors who had their cattle with them should ride them.

“A very good idea,” repeated Sir Charles, crossing his legs and looking upon the group seated around the garden seat upon which he lay.

“What do you say, ladies? Will the steeple-chase suit you? There is some little excitement, an opportunity for gambling, and, if the ditches are muddy and the brooks nasty, the delightful change of witnessing a neck-breaking or head-splitting.”

“Oh, how can you!” exclaimed Miss Goldbags, the millionaire's daughter. “You are really too wicked, Sir Charles!”

“A steeple-chase?” said the countess. “What is it? Do not look so shocked!”—for Sir Charles had drawn a long face of mock horror—“I have not been in England long enough to know all your sports and pastimes. Do you chase the fox or the deer?”

There was a slight smile by the ladies, who, though they, of course, were devotedly attached to the powerful and wealthy countess, were also not a little jealous of her beauty and glad to seize the opportunity of disparaging her.

“Oh, as to chasing, we hunt nothing, save it is the first man's coat-tails!” said Sir Charles. “It is a race, countess—a race over hurdles and hedges, and, if possible, a good, broad, deep brook. But better than all expectations, especially mine, which leaves the thing explained in rather a deeper mystery than it was before, will be the thing itself. Ah, here comes Dartmouth; I'll ask him if it can be managed.”

Reginald Dartmouth, coming across the lawn with a smile of greeting upon his placid face, replied promptly, after shaking hands all around:

“Steeple-chase? Oh, yes, nothing easier! There is a course round the estate formed by nature, brook and all complete. But about the cattle and the riders?”

“Oh, that's easy enough!” said Sir Charles, rising and shaking himself. “Forsley must have the management of it; he is an old master of the fox-hounds, you know, and an authority. Sir Bois will steer his old hunter Willie Taunton has his own and will be only too glad—eh, Will!” turning to that young peer, who was flirting with Miss Goldbags.

“Eh? Oh, certainly; only too delighted!” replied the spendthrift, and then turned to his wooing.

“And you, Dartmouth—will you take a run?”

“Y-e-s,” said Reginald Dartmouth. “I'm rather heavy for that sort of thing, but—”

And he glanced at the countess, as if he would glean her wishes from her face; then, seeing a smile of interest added:

“Well, yes; I'll ride the chestnut.”

“And that's all, I think, excepting myself,” said Sir Charles. “Of course, I shall ride—and back myself to win, too, ladies. Countess, will you wager me a dozen of Gant's best—my size is seven-three-quarters—that I don't win? Oh by the way; we have not fixed upon the prize!”

“The prize?” replied the countess, with a smile. “A silver cup—no, let this be the prize.”

And with simple modesty she drew a ring of black pearls from her finger and held it up with a light laugh.

Reginald Dartmouth's face flushed and his eyes glistened.

“Ah, countess,” said Sir Charles, with a deep sigh. “I pity the poor horses now! Who of us will have pity on his beast when running for such a stake?”

“Come, you have not accepted Sir Charles's wager,” murmured Reginald Dartmouth bending over Lucille.

“Oh then I do!” she said. “A box of gloves, Sir Charles. But what an I to have, pray, if you lose?”

“A dozen boxes, countess, and my life—if it be of any service to you,” responded the baronet gallantly.

Reginald looked up.

“Charlie, your confidence has inspired me. I will back the poor old chestnut against your favorite for, say—for five hundred, and give you odds.”

“No; no odds,” said Sir Charles, with his usual open-hearted generosity. “All level betting. I take you, Reg! Now, ladies, for the gloves.”

And with the most impressive earnestness he pulled out his neatly-clasped memorandum-book and proceeded to book bets of gloves with them all.

The rest of the gentlemen followed the example, and then turned to bet among themselves.

Reginald Dartmouth stood aloof from this wholesale book-making, and, after talking over a few of the preliminaries, begged the countess to give him some advice as to the placing of some ferneries upon the terrace and bore her off for the inspection.

As soon as they were out of ear-shot he said, bending over her, in that tone of deep respect and devotion which he always adopted when he addressed her:

“Will you let me look at the ring for which we are to ride, countess?”

“Certainly,” she said, glancing up at him with a slight look of interrogation and slipping the precious trifle from her long, tapering finger.

He took the ring and looked at it, then held it between his finger and thumb and, turning his eyes upon her with an almost mournful gaze, said:

“It seems too precious a thing to be set up as a prize for a steeple-chase—a mere chance. Men have died—would die—for less than this.”

She flushed slightly; but her calm, thoughtful face resumed its self-possession in an instant, and she held out her hand for the ring.

“Men risk their lives for very little then, captain. This trifle is not worth a thought, and I would not have offered it but that I heard you praise it the other evening.”

“Ah!” he said, eagerly; “I praised it and longed for it. You would not give it to me—I dared not ask it. Can I dare I hope that you have permitted me to win it?”

She turned away her head and a half cloud settled, or, rather, drifted over her fair brow.

“It is he who wins it,” she said. “I meant it only for the winner.”

His face flushed and then grew stern with resolution.

“This mine already,” he murmured, fervently. “I must—I will win.”

Before she could reply the count came down the steps toward which they were approaching and, thrusting his arm through Reginald Dart-

“I Wonder Would It Help Me?”

Sleeplessness, irritability, nervousness, gloomy forebodings of the future, depression and discouragement—these are some of the symptoms which tell of exhausted nerves.

mouth's with an elated look, said: “Welcome me, Dartmouth; I bring good tidings.”

Reginald Dartmouth turned eagerly; the countess raised her eyes.

“The two corvettes we dispatched—I should say, rather, which you, my dear Dartmouth, dispatched—”

“No matter,” burst in Reginald Dartmouth, with simulated earnestness.

“Have succeeded in getting an interview with Mazzini and—His! some one is approaching. Come to my room, Lucille; bring me the plan you drew out last night.”

Almost dragging them, in his excitement and delight, the old Italian led the way to his room, where they could discuss the news in security.

Meanwhile the party of pleasure hunters, who had driven the count to his apartments, set to work preparing for the steeple-chase.

It having been suggested by some one that jackets would be needed for the riders, Miss Goldbags courageously suggested the feasibility of the ladies themselves setting to work and making the silken tunics, and, fired with the ambition of proving themselves able needle-women, they all trooped off to purchase the required silks and set to work.

Then Charles Anderson and Bois were deputed to look over the ground and lay out a course. With an ardor only matched by that of the ladies, they mounted and galloped off to make the survey, soon returning, however, with the information that the race could not be possibly run till the morrow, as the hedges were not high enough nor the brook wide enough to suit such hard riders as Bois Bolton and Reginald Dartmouth, so say nothing of Sir Charles, the hardest rider of them all.

A PRETTY SUMMER FROCK.

2816—This is a charming model, especially for slender figures. It is just the thing for organdie, dimity, voile and crepe, and will require little trimming excepting a smart sash or belt of bright ribbon. Dotted swiss, with collar of organdie or net edged with Val. lace, and a sash of chinese yellow or liberty red, would be very attractive for this style.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 will require 6 1/2 yards of 27 inch material. The skirt measures about 2 yards at the foot, with plaits drawn out.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

A SIMPLE PRETTY FROCK FOR THE LITTLE GIRL.

Pattern 3261 is here portrayed. It is cut in 4 sizes: 2, 3, 4, and 5 years. A 4 year size will require 3 1/2 yards of 27 inch material.

As here shown dotted challie in white and blue was used. Pippings of white poplin trim the dress. This model is pretty in dimity or Swiss with lace or embroidery. It is also nice for gingham, percale and pique.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

PREPARING TO MEET GERMAN DELEGATES.

BRUSSELS, July 2. The Allied Supreme Council to-day listened to Marshal Foch and others report on the disarmament clauses of the treaty which Germany has not executed and instructed the military, naval, and aerial experts to draw up a complete list of such omissions. Experts of the Reparations Commission likewise were instructed to prepare a memorandum on Germany's failure to fulfill the coal delivery requirements which were discussed in a note to the Council submitted by the Reparation Commission. The reports of those experts it is intended to present to Germany's representatives at Spa. During recess after the first session, Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand conferred with the Belgian delegation. The Allied Delegates intend to leave for Spa Sunday morning.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION HAV- ING STRENUOUS TIME.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2. A day behind the schedule and with the hardest and most important of its work still ahead, the Democratic National Convention resumed this morning at ten o'clock, to hear reports of the Platform Committee and face the inevitable floor fight over prohibition, as well as probably fights over the League of Nations and Irish Question. Midnight efforts to compose the differences over the wet and dry issue in the Platform Committee failed after prolonged hours of argument, serimony and oratory. When all eleventh hour attempts at harmony were given up, it was announced finally that all proposals to include any kind of a prohibition plank, whatever had been beaten by decisive votes and that the question would be brought to the open floor of the convention.

AMERICAN EDITION OF "THUN- DERER."

LONDON, July 2. Forty articles devoted to the relations between Great Britain and the United States are published in an American edition of the London Times today. Chief among the contributions is one by Viscount Bryce, former Ambassador to the United States, who writes on the Irish Question and the attitude of the American people towards this issue. "What the American people ought to know, and apparently do not know," says Viscount Bryce, "is that the great majority of English people desire to give Ireland the fullest measure of freedom within the Empire. But it is in divisions within Ireland not in lack of any good will on England's part that there is practically the only obstacle which still delays that peaceful settlement which the British Democracy sincerely desires."

UKRAINIAN GOVT. MOVES.

WARSAW, July 2. The Ukrainian Govt., headed by Gen-

Just pause for a moment— and picture your little baby when he is a few years old. Will he be big, strong and robust, or . . . ?

It all depends on the food you put in his bottle to-day.

A TORONTO MOTHER: Mrs. J.W. Patman, 34 Harriet St., Toronto, in writing about Neave's Food says: "When I first knew one of my friends her baby Jack was eight months old and dying by inches. She had tried three Foods because her Jack could not digest milk. At last I fetched her a tin of Neave's Food. At the end of a month, Jack was rapidly gaining flesh and was bright and happy. He is a lovely boy now and she declares Neave's Food saved his life. And it did!"

Timber That Goes Into Matches.

Much wood is used annually in making matches and toothpicks. While pine is generally used in the making of match sticks, toothpicks are made almost exclusively of beech, birch and maple. It is estimated that about 85 million board feet of lumber are used each year for matches and toothpicks, the major part of which is for matches. Of this amount about 80 per cent. is white pine and 7 per cent basswood, which is also used in making matches.

G. W. V. A. Meeting.

A very largely attended meeting of the G. W. V. A. was held last night. Petty Officer Kearley presiding. The chairman made a brief plan for increased membership, after which letters of thanks were received from the family of the late T. J. Edens, Esq., for the Association's expression of regret at his death, and from A. Hammond, stating he was writing the Regatta Committee as to entering an Army and Navy crew on Regatta Day, and also a cutting from the High Commissioner at London stating an ex-service man was being sent home. Following the adoption of the minutes of last meeting, Mr. H. Anderson, convenor of the Committee appointed to interview the Government as to various matters concerning the veterans, reported they had met the Executive on Tuesday and from 12.30 for 2 hours had discussed pensions, housing and appointments to civil service positions. Mr. Squires had asked a lot of questions and taken notes, and yesterday he had received a communication stating a Committee of Council had approved of only granting the 20 per cent. bonus for the following pensioners: totally disabled, orphans of sailors and soldiers, children of deceased sailors and soldiers and all other cases where deceased or totally disabled sailor or soldier was the sole support. This was to be retroactive from January 1st, 1920, and would include about 500 pensioners. The granting of the 20 per cent. bonus all round, the same as the Canadian scale, is being considered. Dr. Parsons had gone to Ottawa to compare the Canadian scale with ours and the whole question will be dealt with on receipt of his report. The deputy heads of the different departments will be asked for the names of those employed lately and others members of the Government will be asked later. This related to civil service positions which civilians got, but Messrs. Coaker and Squires say they always gave soldiers. He felt the veterans should hold out for the Canadian scale, which is to be increased 30 per cent. soon. At another meeting he hoped a loan up to $3,000 would be granted sailors and soldiers for housing.

An explanation of some slight misunderstanding with regard to the appointment of Lt. Col. Bernard as a Commissioner on the other side was made. However, this gentleman has received an appointment. Mr. C. F. Garland pointed out that Lt. Col. Bernard, Lt. Col. Rendell, and Major Parsons had decided the Newfoundland pension scale was good enough for the veterans here. Lt. Col. Bernard then had $130 per month pension himself and was wrong in saying the scale here was the best. Mr. L. Woods—It is up to us to see the government don't put us off. Mr. B. Murphy felt no definite results had been obtained, though the government had been given plenty of time to consider. Mr. J. Robinson pointed out that while the doctors gave a good board, the ideas of civilians were followed, and if men could be cut off they would. As President of the Association Lt. Col. Bernard should have given some notice of his departure. He believed in fighting the government till they "came across". Mr. Garland, who was on the special committee, said no increase over last year is asked for. The scale for a Private here is $600. In Canada it is $720 and by September it is to be $900. As to Lt. Col. Bernard he had shown scant courtesy to the Association, as he had not even told the Vice-President of his appointment. Mr. Robinson—He had the nerve to suggest the officers to be elected, before. Capt. Thistle, of the special committee, knew nothing of Col. Bernard's going away. Mr. Garland said he had only to give the opinion of the Association to the government. Mr. J. McKinley pointed out that his pension had been cut though he couldn't walk Long's Hill and cash hire cost him more than the pension. Mr. L. Woods moved, seconded by Mr. J. Robinson and T. Mahoney and Messrs. J. Higgins and McKinley, a resolution which unanimously passed, "that the Canadian pension scale, with bonus and other increases that may be adopted, be demanded from the Government, retroactive from Jan. 1st, 1920, and that local overseas doctors comprise the examining board."

It was decided to leave the housing matter over till next meeting. Mr. J. Higgins pointed out that a definite answer as to pensions was to be received to-night. Mr. B. Murphy added that the Prime Minister was expected to leave here on the 4th inst., and nothing had been decided. Mr. Routhier stated that a request had been granted before in a week when a firm demand was made. On motion of Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. B. Murphy, it was decided that the special committee press the Executive Government for an interview before the 8th inst., and demand a definite answer before the 14th, on the housing and other matters. Mr. R. Matthews asked if the audience would agree to appointments to the Civil Service by a board of reliable men, assisted by representatives of the G.W.V.A. The majority leaving the country on every train and steamer are veterans, whose jobs were grabbed by slackers while they were fighting.

Mr. J. Sexton agreed with the idea. He had gone to Mr. Brownrigg about a position, but was told to go away. A slacker, he said, got it who grew whiskers to make himself look too old for enlistment. I left a wife and three children, one only 7 days old, and wouldn't remain over till the next draft leaving for England. Is that a fair show? Slackers are in many other positions too. Squires' promises are the same as he gave in the Majestic when he took off his glasses to wipe away the tears for the sailors and soldiers. You'll get blood from a turnip quicker than you'll get anything from him. He's going off on a picnic, though his Government was not going to have any. The proposal of Mr. Matthews was carried by a standing vote, but Mr. Lea Murphy objected to the ruling on the grounds that this was the first time a vote was taken in this way. Mr. Matthews pointed out he only asked for the vote to show if the Association wished him to carry on in his idea. The Chairman again put the motion, which was carried unanimously. The plea of Mr. J. Robinson for a big parade on Sunday to do honour to the fallen comrades was supported by Messrs. Matthews and L. C. Murphy and endorsed by the meeting, which was brought to a close at 11.45 by singing the National Anthem.

ENCOURAGING THE PROFITEER.

RUTH CAMERON

Do you encourage profiteering? I can well imagine the indignation which that question would arouse, if you took it seriously. Encourage profiteers? Hardly! No more than you would encourage mosquitoes or the flu or——or "crimson ramblers." And yet I still means, do not mind bargaining. I noted this very strongly in a couple whom I know, and fell to wondering about it and trying to work it out. My conclusion is this: Men's business is the getting of money and a man expects other people to measure him by the money he makes; therefore, he wants to seem free with money as if he made a good deal. Women, on the other hand, are the money-spenders, more than the money-makers. Their business is to get as much as they can for the money; therefore, they do not mind being bargain-hunters.

Doesn't that seem reasonable to you?

ART AND GAS.

On noble books, immortal tones, I'd like to make my bids—the works of men whose bulging domes were Number Fourteen lids; I had no schooling in my youth, and now I'd like to store my mind with chunks of pregnant truth, set down by seers of yore; such trenchant words would surely please my starving mind, I ween; but how can man buy books like these, and still buy gasoline? I'd like to buy some works of art to hang upon my wall, some masterpieces, to impart a lustre to the hall; where'er such works of art you find, in frames without a crack, you know there is a cultured mind somewhere around the shack. To own the work of artist kings, my painting soul aspires; but how can one buy Rembrandt things, and still buy rubber tyres? For all the finer things I yearn, and yearn for them in vain; for all the money I can earn is spent on my old wain.

Dear Sirs.—This fall I got thrown on a fence and hurt my chest very bad, so I could not work and it hurt me to breathe. I tried all kinds of Liniments and they did me no good. One bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT warmed on flannel and applied on my breast, relieved me completely.

In Memoriam.

July 1st, 1916.
Side by side they sleep—the dead that never die.
A grateful Nation holds their memories green.
And in the distant land where they are laid
To rest, must all things seem more grand, more true, serene
Than can be found elsewhere, for they have made
It fairer, purer far, than any place
On earth, where foot of man may ever tread.
And left behind a heritage to the race
That following after, must not dare to lose,
Nay rather, but keep faith what'er be the bed,
And by remembrance only, can that trust be kept
With those, who far from home—sleep side by side.
Go tell the story of their work and worth
For those who cannot speak, e'en if they'd tell;
Go sing their praises to the vaulted sky.
This is no time to toll a funeral knell.
And then methinks, the summer breeze will take
And wait a requiem o'er the great divide.
Until attuned, the bells of all the earth
Will tell the story of—THE MEN WHO DIED.

DUTY.
I shall have done my duty here on earth
If I have lived up to the best I know,
If I have tried at times to be of worth,
And gladly done the little I could do.
I think I need not fear God's Judgment then
If only I have kept my record clean,
Have daily walked among my fellow men
And played the friend wherever I have been.
I need not have great deeds of which to boast
Nor point to splendors, gained by but the few;
If I have kept the faith and held my post,
I shall have done what I was born to do.
There is a deeper pride than strength or skill,
A greater glory than earth's fleeting fame,
There is the triumph of a steadfast will,
An honest heart excels a blazoned name.
If I shall live up to the light I own,
Shall keep the faith when tempted and assailed,
I need not tremble at the Great White throne,
Though men on earth may say that I have failed.

Crossing Newfoundland by Train.

(By J. R. Smallwood, late of the "Telegram.")

Much talk and more writing to the effect that a trip across Newfoundland by rail was an ordeal to be dreaded had made an impression of doubt on my mind and it was worth a sort of foreboding that I took that route. Now that I have crossed the Island by rail yet me state right here that, as far as an "ordeal" is concerned, there is nothing to it! Nothing. Of course, it is an "ordeal" to some old women or some she-men to go from Prescott St. to Adelaide St. by the street car; but no healthy man regards it as such. The Transinsular run was quite pleasant and in all ways interesting. One thing impresses the traveller—the fact that Newfoundland is two countries in one. That is not a paradox. The Eastern portion of Newfoundland is as unlike the Western as chalk is like cheese. It is as if the country were divided by a broad, neutral band, running North and South. The band would run through, say, Deer Lake. East of that, and Avalon Peninsula is included, the country is bare, barren and rocky. A stunted shrubby growth abounds and sometimes a stunted type of spruce and fir. In the West, on the other hand, the land is densely covered with tall, tapering, knotless trees, beautiful birches, heavy with green leaves, graceful aspens and even maples. A luxuriant growth of foliage covers the nourishment-giving soil like a carpet—except that no artist ever designed such a carpet as Mother Nature here lavishes. The track runs between hills, through curving, extensive valleys, and the tree-covered hill sides make a most entrancing picture. One must not be an artist or possess a temperamental nature to appreciate the beauties of the West Coast. Only a misanthrope could fail to recognize those beauties. The rural rustic valley of Codroy will delight the soul of anyone alive. The multi-colored landscapes are most entrancing and are at their best, as far as scenic excellence is concerned at sunset. Then Codroy Valley is at her best—and then it is hard to beat. Newfoundland is the West Coast—the West Coast is Newfoundland. One cannot be really proud of Newfoundland until he has seen the West Coast and that's no lie!

Our Immortals.

"The bugle echoes shrill and sweet; But not of war it rings to-day. The road is rhythmic with the feet Of men-at-arms who come to pray. The roses blossom white and red On tombs where weary soldiers lie; Flags wave above the honored dead And martial music cleaves the sky. Above their wreath-strewn graves we kneel They kept the faith and fought the fight Through flying lead and crimson steel They plunged for Freedom and the Right. "May we, their grateful children, learn Their strength, who lie beneath this sod Who went through fire and death to earn At last the accolade of God. "In shining rank on rank arrayed They march, the legions of the Lord; He is their Captain unafraid, The Prince of Peace Who brought a sword."

"Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori." (It is sweet and glorious to die for one's country) runs the line of the Latin poet dedicated to those who fell in battle, fighting for all that they held dear, and may we not apply that declaration to the memories of those who died in Flanders Fields, while upholding the honor of the Empire and of their native land, the name of which arouses a thrill in the hearts of Newfoundlanders whether at home or abroad. Tomorrow may rightly be called Memorial Day. It is the day set apart in this Dominion in memory and in honor of those who fell in the cause of humanity's freedom, when Hunnish principles and Hunnish kultur threatened to overcome the world, but was checked, held back and finally destroyed by the heroism of those who, knowingly, stepped into the breach and gave their lives for mankind. "Greater love hath no man than this," may well be written as an epitaph on the crosses which mark the graves of the legions of the dead who, while living, thought it a sweet and pleasant thing to die for country. In preserving their memories we are testifying to the high regard which they held in our esteem. Nay more, we are perpetuating for all time an honor which is the only tribute we can offer on the altar of their sacrifice. They died that humanity might be free, and in their dying left us an heritage, an heritage which we will do well not to neglect. That heritage is the care of those whom they left behind: those who were dependent upon them, and are now the first lie on the Dominion finances. Soldiers and sailors, men of the Regiment and men of the Naval Reserve. Their mothers, widows and orphans cannot live upon the reflected glory of their deeds, therefore they are now the wards of Newfoundland and their care is a first duty: one which we cannot, dare not, shrink. The spirits of those who died would rise up in reproach if one jot or tittle of that which is due their loved ones, left behind, be not paid. They plunged for Freedom and the Right, and from their lonely bivouac—the bivouac of the dead—will be audible to us, if we fail, their just denunciation.

As the hallowed shrine is approached to-morrow, while bugles echo shrill and sweet, let the remembrance of those whose memories and heroism we revere be as an uplifting force, a stimulation of moral courage to demand that if there are any wrongs, that such be righted. The imitation of the real will be present. The pomp and panoply of war, without its dread, will be witnessed. The simulation of actualities will be observed in the solemn ceremonial, and the presence of a firing party will lend reality to the ritual. The wreaths placed upon the shrine will be floral tributes to those who did not come back. With thankful but saddened hearts there will be deposited the beautiful but fading flowers of the field, freshly glowing with the colors with which nature has endowed them, fit, yet transient, emblems of the beauty of those lives which were offered up as a sacrifice to the Moloch of war. But each has its lesson. Life is beautiful but transient. We go from hence and are no more seen, and so the flowers are vivid testimony of the transiency of mortals, glowing with life while the sun shines and the moisture imparts life, but when the spirit of life passes, nothing but a faded memory. And then the Regimental Colors. What eye will gaze upon their silken folds to-morrow and not communicate a thrill to the soul. The colors are the living reality of the Regiment. They are its jewel and theasket in which that jewel is laid is the hearts of the men who followed them. The colors typify the soul of the Regiment. They are its chief care. Their protection may defer the life of every officer and private, but those lives will be freely and willingly given to save them from capture. It is a tradition of the British Army that no man shall forsake the guns or the colors, and on many a field has this tradition been bravely borne out. There is no honor rendered unto men, no matter what their rank in the army, so high as that given the colors. They represent all that is grand and glorious in regimental annals. They are, in themselves, unique. They are the incarnation of the rank and file and their preservation is a religion. Civilians may not thoroughly comprehend or appreciate the special place, the exalted station, of the Regimental and King's Colors, but the soldiers know all that they stand for and highly prize that knowledge. Citizens to-morrow are requested to pay the Colors of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment all honor and respect. All will do this, for we have come to regard the flag of "Ours" as the living, breathing spirit of the regiment. Hands should go up to the salute as we pass them, for they are emblematical of the cause in which so many of Terra Nova's loyal sons laid down their lives and are now far from home—encamped with

S. S. Portia Reclassed.

The S.S. Portia, which has been under repairs at the dock this past two months, came off to-day practically a new ship. The entire work in the engine room and to the hull has been done locally, most of the former by the Portia's engineers under Chief Smith, and the latter by the Reid Co. dock staff. It is said the overhaul will cost considerably over $100,000.

Upheld Supreme Court Decision.

Information was received from London yesterday afternoon that the Privy Council has dismissed the appeal of the Standard Oil Company in the case of T. & M. Winter against them for damages for breach of contract. The Supreme Court gave judgment in favor of Messrs. T. & M. Winter for $15,800.00 which has now been confirmed by the Privy Council. Messrs. Kowley, K.C., and C. E. Hunt were counsel for Messrs. Winter, and L. E. Emerson for the Standard Oil Company.

Escaped Lunatic Brought Back.

Constable James O'Neill and Sgt. Nugent have been successful in locating the wife of John J. Juke, who escaped from the Asylum a couple of weeks ago. The man was captured at Rantem, T.B., and brought to the city by last evening's train. Juke appeared to be enjoying the best of health. According to his statement he travelled by night and slept by day, and claims to have had plenty of food, but does not state where he got it. At the Police Station a substantial sum of money was found on his person. During last night he was conveyed to the Insane Asylum.

Police Court.

A youth of Mayor's Path arrested under warrant for a serious crime was remanded for 8 days, pending medical evidence. A shopkeeper of the West End given in charge by his wife had to furnish personal bonds for $500 and two sureties of $250 each for his good behavior in future. A case of insulting language between a woman and a girl was dismissed.

Here and There.

AT THE DOCK—Steamers Strathcona, Sea Scout, Watchful, Lobelia, Harle and Ranger are at the dock premises.
AT THE BALSAM—Rev. W. McKillop and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy and wife, Miss M. Kennedy, Western Bay; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Jones, Montreal.
RELIEF GOODS STOLEN—It is reported that a number of robberies have taken place at Bay Bulls Arm, T.B. The goods stolen in the recent articles for the sufferers in the recent forest fires.
The members of the C. C. C. Boat Club are requested to meet at the C. L. B. Boat Club at 7.30 sharp this evening. A full attendance requested. J. M. TOBIN, Hon. Sec'y.—July 11.

THE BIVOUAC OF THE DEAD

"The muffled drum's sad roll has beat The soldier's last tattoo; No more on life's parade shall meet That brave and fallen few. On Fame's eternal camping ground Their silent tents are spread, And Glory guards with solemn round The bivouac of the dead."
"No rumor of the foe's advance Now swells upon the wind; No troubled thought at midnight haunts Of loved ones left behind; No vision of the morrow's strife The warrior's dream alarms; No braying horn or screaming fife At dawn shall call to arms."
"Rest on, embalm'd and sainted dead, Dear as the blood ye gave; No impious footsteps e'er shall tread The herbage of your grave; Nor shall your glory be forgot While fame her record keeps, Or honor points the hallowed spot Where Valor proudly sleeps."
[Editor's Note.—The authors of the beautiful and appropriate lines beginning and ending this article, are Joyce Kilmer and Theodore O'Hara.]

Fire Motor Truck Exhibition.

Mr. Edward Jacobs, Delivery Engineer of the American La France Fire Engine Co. Ltd., of Elgin, New York, will give a public exhibition of the qualities and power of the two motor fire trucks, recently purchased from the above company by the Fire Department of St. John's, on Monday night at 8 o'clock, which will be witnessed by the heads of Departments and prominent citizens. The exhibition promises to be most interesting, as Mr. Jacobs will put the auto trucks through all their paces, in a demonstration of their hill climbing abilities, the steps to be negotiated being Lime Street, Holloway Street, Batters Hill and Court House Hill which is the steepest of the lot, the grade being 40 per cent. and not being a perfect gradient, the test on the trucks in essaying this climb will be most severe one. The trucks will carry full capacity fire load of men and equipment.

The Reason Why!

There are a great many things that command attention in a big business concern. Perhaps it is some unusual feature of organization, perhaps some original method in the conduct of its affairs or the scope or magnitude of its transactions; whatever it may be, there is almost invariably something which appeals especially to the imagination and interest of the onlooker. May we take "The Royal Stores" for example? Here is a large business firm which possesses probably hundreds of such leading points of attraction; it may be difficult to select any one thing among so many, of which you would say "this is why I go to The Royal Stores." Yet a few days ago I heard a lady definitely state her reason why she always shopped at The Royal Stores. "I go there," she said, "because of the wide choice of things that are offered, and because you can get almost anything you are likely to need." There are other reasons, of course, why this lady came here to make her purchases, but the feature that appealed to her most strongly was the extensive scope of buying opportunities.

Low Down Politics.

Sir Michael Cashin's lucid and caustic criticism of the Prime Minister's cowardly attack upon him and his political associates in Wednesday's "Star" evoked loud and prolonged applause from those who were present at last night's session of the Legislature. Squire repudiated attempts to rouse sectarian animosity in this country, and his efforts to divide the Dominion on sectarian lines are well known to all intelligent people; but, as the Leader of the Opposition stated in the Assembly, the intelligent electors are not easily swayed by a politician like Squires, whose efforts are directed, not to convince the educated and enlightened people of the country, but to delude the innocent and unsuspecting, and to sway them by desperate and passionate appeals in the hope that by this sectarian method, capital may be made for the Government.
Squires began his political campaign by holding the red flag of sectarianism and has kept that flag floating ever since. In October, when his first sectarian appeal was published in the "Star," he accused the "Herald" and "Daily News" of using the very tactics which he primordially advocated and which he used to such advantage in three campaigns. He pleaded the excuse for his base conduct that the Government organs supporting Sir Michael Cashin were adopting similar methods, knowing full well that in a country in which two-thirds of the people are Protestant, no Catholic leader would or could dare attempt any such insane tactics. In the heat of an evenly balanced political campaign irresponsibility may use such methods which are always excusable

DIAMOND DUST

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

Thanks to the energetic members of the City Council, St. John's is to have a Public Play Ground, which will be built at the expense of the City and the Government co-jointly, and handed over to a Commission from the Football and Baseball Leagues to take care of, the agreement being that all juniors and schoolboy athletes are to have free use of the ground, except when regular scheduled league games are played. It was the last act—and a very gracious one at that—of the City Council before vacating their offices; and the matter was fully discussed at a meeting on Wednesday night of Mayor Gosling, Deputy Mayor Morris, Aldermen Ayre, Vinicombe and Mul-lally, who met the Legislative representatives of St. John's—Prime Minister Squires, Finance Minister Brownrigg, Messrs. Bennett, Higgins and Fox, who accorded the project of the City Fathers a very cordial and sympathetic interest, realising as they did its absolute necessity. All these gentlemen showed great interest in the promotion of recreation and athletics in the city, and decided to follow in the footsteps of the City Fathers of other places and give St. John's what it has long needed. The site selected was the Parade Ground, and instead of playing games on the streets and endangering their lives, the schoolboys, juniors, and young men will have a decent ground on which to play their games and practice. It was also decided to make a regular cinder track, so that an annual Olympic will be held under the auspices of the Government in which representatives from every district in the island will compete. The new ground will cost in the vicinity of $10,000 half of which was promised by the Prime Minister on behalf of the Government, the Opposition members assenting.

P.S.—This is a dream the editor of "Diamond Dust" had last night.

"IT"

(With apologies to Kipling.)

If you can boot the ball when all about you
Are playing hard to pull a tight game through.
If you can make your team-mates truly doubt you,
And realise they doubt with justice too.
If you can fall for lusty hidden-ball tricks,
And, being caught, lay blame upon your coach
(Most yellow and least sportsmanlike of all tricks, Deserving naught but bitterest reproach).
If you can steal a base with some man on it,
Whose presence 'e'en a blind man ought to note,
The sticks for yours! Just bet your coin upon it—
And what is more, my friend, you'll be the goat.

After all the publicity attendant upon their securing the services of Dr. M. S. Power, Manager Hall has handed the genial "Doc" his release and full permission to seek pastures new.

Oh, hall the doughty ball-yard fan!
The wrought-up, frenzied hidden creature.
A fearful and a wondrous man,
He grandly rules the stand and bleacher.
With fervour fraught, impassioned mien,
He slams the walk in with his rooting;
And slams you gently on the bean,
The while some luckless play he's booting.

Oh, hall the doughty ball-yard fan!
The wrought-up, frenzied hidden creature.
A fearful and a wondrous man,
He grandly rules the stand and bleacher.
With fervour fraught, impassioned mien,
He slams the walk in with his rooting;
And slams you gently on the bean,
The while some luckless play he's booting.

Shipping Notes.

The Digby leaves Liverpool to-day for this port.

S. S. Eagle berthed at the South-side premises of Bowring Bros. Ltd. yesterday, to have repairs made to her headgear to which damage was caused by collision with the S.S. Isis.

The S. S. Sagona, after landing her passengers at Placentia, will come on here to take up the Labrador Service.

The S. S. Isis which brought a cargo of salt and was on time charter, exceeded the latter while discharging by several days. The demurrage rate on the Isis is £450 per diem. Yesterday she hauled to Harvey's premises where she loads 1000 tons of bunker coal.

S. S. Roseland left New York at 11 a.m. to-day for Halifax.

S. S. Coruna is calling at Pictou, Summerside, Charlottetown, and Sydney and is due here on Tuesday.

S. S. Sable Island leaves North Sydney this evening and is due here on Monday.

S. S. Herbert Green now at North Sydney will likely make another trip to West Coast ports from here.

S. S. Harmony, 23 days from London arrived in port yesterday.

S. S. Canadian Ming, 11 days from Montreal with a general cargo to the Furness Withy Co., arrived in port this morning and will probably sail again on Monday.

Schooner Innovation arrived in port to-day, 4 days from Halifax with a cargo of hard coal.

S. S. Prospero has hauled to Harvey's pier to discharge a herring cargo.

S. S. Thetis sailed this forenoon for Montreal, at which port she will load supplies for posts of the Hudson's Bay Company in Hudson's Bay. Among the equipment taken on board before sailing to-day was a number of motor looms.

MUST JOIN LEAGUE.

TORONTO, July 3.

Addressing three thousand delegates of the International Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America here to-night, Dr. D. J. Evans, of Liberty, Missouri, President of the Union said, "I want to tell you (Canadian) we are going to join the League of Nations as you have done, not because of any political issues that are on the surface, but for deeper reasons, because man, woman and child the world over, are tired of war, and man, woman and child must be cared for."

NOTE OF THANKS.

Mr. E. S. Hennebury, wishes to thank Doctors Keegan and Omond, and the sister and Nurses of the General Hospital who so kindly attended him during his illness, and also wishes to thank the Rev. A. A. Moulton and all other kind friends who visited him while at the Institution.—adv.

How a mother's heart is aching for the son she loved so well.
He gave his all for his country, in peace he would have been well.
Peaceful be your rest, dear son, 'tis sweet to breathe your name.
In life I loved you very dear, in death I do the same.—Inserted by his Sister.

IN LOVING MEMORY

of our dear brother, Pte. Joseph W. Evans, who was killed in action July 1st, 1916, aged 23 years.

We have loved him in life,
Let us not forget him in death;
The sun shines on our brother's grave
The one we loved, but could not save.—Sister.

To-day's Messages.

GETTING TO WORK.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.

In quick and successive votes the Democratic National Convention to-day voted down by a heavy majority all attempts to amend the report of the Platform Committee, and threw out all the substitute proposals, including the one dry plank by Wm. J. Bryan and the wet plank offered by W. Bourke Cochrane. The Administration's League of Nations plank, as reported by the committee, was sustained against all attacks. Administration supporters were in control by a heavy majority all along the line. A combination against William McAdoo found itself tonight, to use the language of one of the Administration leaders, without any candidate on whom to coalesce. McAdoo supporters continued to predict a nomination for him somewhere near the fifth ballot.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

KINGSTON, July 3.

Kingston and St. Andrew were shaken by an earthquake at midnight last night, but no damage has been reported.

ROYAL AUTO ACCIDENT.

BRUSSELS, July 3.

King Albert, while driving his automobile home from Switzerland, collided with a cart near the Franco-Belgian frontier. The automobile was damaged, but King Albert was uninjured, and continued his journey in a hired car.

NO NOMINATION.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.

On a first ballot cast by the Presidential candidates to-night, McAdoo, Palmer and Cox were in the lead of a large field of candidates, but no one of the three had more than thirty per cent of the seven hundred and twenty-nine, and the one-third necessary to nominate.

GREEKS REPORT GAINS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 3.

Occupation by the Greeks of Batoukassar, 50 miles north of Soma, in Asia Minor, after a stubborn resistance by the Turks, on a line extending eastward, is reported in a Greek communication issued under date of July 1st.

Wedding Bells.

At 7.30 Tuesday evening, St. Thomas's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Violet, daughter of Patrick and Amelia Summers was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Albert Ryan, of Trinity. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A. Moulton. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. George Summers, was attired in white, crepe-de-chene with satin trimming and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of white lilies. She was attended by her sisters Beatrice and Esther, who wore dresses of white gorette and peach colored silk with hats to match. The groom was attired in a suit of white lilies. He was attended by the bride's brothers William and Peter. After the ceremony the happy couple motored round the Lake and thence to the residence of the bride's parents where a sumptuous repast was partaken of and the toast of the bride and groom was proposed by Mr. W. T. Hearn, grocer, and Mr. Samuel B. Fry, of Bowring Bros. brother-in-law of the bride. The bride and groom left by train for Trinity where the honeymoon will be spent. On returning, will reside on Signal Hill. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents including a cheque from the groom. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Ryan many years of wedded happiness.

TRAPS DOING WELL.

NOTICE.

St. John's, Jan. 22nd, 1915.

Mr. John Sullivan, Carbonsar Road, near Harbor Grace.

Dear Sir,—In a very short time a man will visit my property on the Carbonsar Road. Will you kindly do what you can to help him in pointing out my property, and if you hear anyone denying my title to the property you can assure him that there is no doubt about my title and that the land belongs to me personally. I must also ask you to see that no one cuts any wood off the property and to warn people that I will take the law against anyone so acting.

Thanking you in advance for so obliging me.

Yours truly,
MARY FOLEY.

Meeting of Regatta Committee.

MANY IMPORTANT DETAILS DISCUSSED.

The Regatta Committee held a very enthusiastic meeting last night. President Hiscock in the chair, and a large gathering of members being present. The President informed the meeting that he had interviewed the Mayor in connection with the dump at the head of the Lake, and that arrangements had been made to have the unsightly place covered with sand or loam and a road made from one side of the lake to the other for the convenience of the public. He also reported that he had interviewed the Secretary of Public Works, and that bridges across the river would be built at a very early date. He also reported that in company with the executive he had interviewed His Excellency, who was pleased to give his patronage to the day. His Excellency also offered a prize, which at the suggestion of the executive, will take the form of medals.

At the suggestion of the President it was decided that the collectors begin their work next week.

Messrs. Gerald Harvey and Phil Brown were added to the active membership roll.

The following committees were appointed:—Tent, C. W. Ryan, J. W. Morris; Pond, Capt. E. English, Jr., N. J. Vinnicombe, A. G. Williams; Programmes and Rosettes—W. J. Higgins, J. L. Slattery, P. J. Hanley; Bugle and Blackboard, L. G. Chafe, A. G. Williams; Luncheon, President Hiscock, Vice-Pres. Higgins, F. W. Hayward, N. Andrews.

The President announced that an offer had been made for furnishing medals at the same rate as last year. The matter was left in the hands of the Medals Committee.

A. Hammond, a war veteran, wrote asking that the Army and Navy race be placed on the programme. Agreed to, providing three or more crews enter.

On motion of Mr. C. J. Ellis it was decided that the Governor's medals be given to the winners of the Championship race. It is hoped that they will have some distinguishing mark as from the other medals, as the fortunate prize winners would prize highly His Excellency's prize.

President Collins of the C. C. Boat Club, announced to the meeting that their boats had practically been crewed for all the races, but there is still room for some other entries; that the club had three practice boats ready, that their wharf and the Reid Co.'s wharf had been erected and that many crews were practicing. Mr. N. Andrews of the Reid Co.'s Boat Club, also announced that a large number of crews had made application for their boats.

After some discussion of minor matters the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock until Friday night next.

Notes From Brigus.

The S.S. Edmund Donald arrived here between 11 and 12 p.m. on Thursday, 24th ult. Many crews from Brigus and vicinity were taken on board during the night, after which the steamer sailed for Cupids at about 6 a.m. on Friday.

On Friday, 25th ult. the noon train killed a cow belonging to Mr. Michael Fowler, in a cut a short distance from Long Pond. The owner had only that morning left, with his wife and family for Labrador. The loss is a severe one.

Misses Pearl and Sybil Hiscock, daughters of J. W. Hiscock, Esq., who had been attending college at Montreal, came here by motor on Friday evening.

Misses Jean and S. Knowling arrived by motor on Saturday night to spend the summer here.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Knowling arrived by motor on Saturday. Accompanied by Miss Edith Bartlett they motored to Heart's Content on Sunday and returned again on Monday morning.

Mrs. Joseph Bartlett, of Millertown, arrived on Saturday night on a visit to her father-in-law, Mr. H. T. Bartlett.

During the past week the Road Board have commenced operations, and some badly needed repairs have been effected to several bridges. We notice an initial start has been made at repairing the well worn station road, and we hope those in charge will see that this important roadway will receive the attention it so badly needs.

Rev. Oliver Jackson, who had been attending the Methodist Conference at St. John's, arrived home on Tuesday night. We are pleased to note that we are to have the Rev. gentleman on our circuit for the next term.

Mrs. Trevis, who had been in the city on a brief business visit, returned by last night's train.

The schooner "Clarence B" arrived from St. John's on Saturday, 26th ult. with salt for her owner, C. A. Jerrett. She sailed for the Labrador to-day.

The Council of Higher Education examinations are being conducted here this week. Formerly we had but one centre—at the Methodist Academy. This year there are two, the second being at the Convent of Mercy. We understand upwards of fifty candi-

J. W. Hiscock's schooner "Vickers-Vinny," G. Gushue master, left for Labrador on the 28th ult.

Messrs. Washer and Roberts are now engaged in painting the residence of Mr. John Brien, tinsmith.

Yesterday the surrounding hills were shrouded in smoke, and appearances would lead one to conclude that a serious fire was in progress not many miles distant. Last night's rain seems to have effectively quenched the blaze as the atmosphere to-day is clear.

Codfish Standardization Commission

TO THE FISHERMEN OF NEWFOUNDLAND:

PROPOSAL REGARDING THE METHODS TO BE ADOPTED TO IMPROVE THE CURE OF NEWFOUNDLAND CODFISH.

1. That the position of the Newfoundland Fisheries in relation to those of Norway, Iceland and Britain be placed before the fishermen and the public through the Press, and in any other manner that will illustrate the necessity for improving our cure of fish if we are to successfully market our fish in competition without that from other countries.

2. That a full and complete statement of the essential features of curing that must be adopted by all fishermen if the cure is to be improved shall be published and circulated throughout Newfoundland and Labrador.

3. That Inspectors shall be appointed whose duty it shall be to examine and inspect all fishery and curing stages, boats, etc., throughout Newfoundland and the Labrador with a view to—

- (a) Explaining the methods to be adopted to improve the cure;
- (b) Bringing about an improvement in the construction of sanitary conditions of Fishing Stages;
- (c) To collect and distribute information as to catch of fish or other matters affecting the interests of the fishermen and the country generally.

NOTE:—The Inspectors should eventually be given authority to condemn stages that are unfit for the sanitary curing of fish.

4. That fish purchased from the fishermen by exporters, whether in St. John's or in outports, shall be bought subject to a cull.

5. That all exports of fish from Newfoundland and the Labrador shall be inspected by duly qualified inspectors and certificates issued specifying the nature, style, cure and quality of the fish, and that specific standards shall, if possible, be laid down for the guidance of the Inspectors.

SUMMARISED, THE REQUIREMENTS MOST ESSENTIAL FOR IMPROVED CURING ARE:

- (1) Clean boats, stages and splitting tables.
- (2) Well split fish.
- (3) Fish to be well washed from knife—all blood, liver and gut to be removed.
- (4) Clean stage for curing fish.
- (5) Regularity in salting.
- (6) Fish to be washed thoroughly on back and face when taken from salt bulk.
- (7) Fish to be bled as soon as taken from the water when possible.

LABRADOR.

Same qualities for all markets.

No. 1 FISH.

Fish to be split to the crux of the tail, washed from the knife, free from blood stains, clots, liver and gut. To be firm, thoroughly salted and well pressed. To be washed out of salt bulk by hand. All slub and slime removed from back. To be dried sufficiently to stand shipment without loss in weight. Fish not complying with these requirements to be classed as No. 2 quality and to be stowed in such a manner in the vessel as to form a distinct part of the cargo.

SHORE FISH CURED LABRADOR STYLE

To be known as Imitation Labrador. All Shore Fish cured Labrador style will be graded as such and not as Labrador, and must be cured as above. The making of this quality of Imitation Labrador is not encouraged as the demand will be very limited.

The black should be removed from the fins of Shore and Bank Fish from 18 inches up. Such fish when well cured will be classed Extra No. 1 and will command the highest price.

CURING OF FISH.

Fish is an article of food, and this fact must be kept clearly before all those who have the handling of it from the time it is caught until it reaches the consumers' table. Unfortunately, this fact is lost sight of by nearly all those who are occupied in the Fisheries of Newfoundland, whether they be the catchers, curers or exporters. There is not sufficient care exercised by any one of the several classes of handlers. The fishermen in their anxiety to get their catch under salt forget the fact that the fish they are curing is to be eaten by some person many thousands of miles away possibly many months hence. The exporters in their desire to, first: secure a large stock, and second: to send it to market quickly, also lose sight of the same fact. This must change, and in future all interested in the fisheries must always remember that they are handling an article of food, and treat it accordingly.

The first essential feature of all processes for handling food products is cleanliness. The boats into which the live fish are thrown from trap or hook must be clean, sweet and free from gurry of past catches. The stage upon which the fish are thrown from the boat must be clean. The splitting tables must be clean and kept clean throughout the whole time that the fish is passing over it. The curing stages must be thoroughly cleaned before the season opens, and kept clean during the whole season. Pound boards should be well washed frequently. Water is plentiful and cheap and should be used without stint. Stages should be limed at least once every year, inside and out.

With thoroughly clean boats, stage heads, splitting tables and stages, the first step towards good fish is secured. The next is cleanliness in handling the fish. All blood, livers and gut should be removed; all slime and gurry thoroughly washed off before the fish is put under salt. This can only be done by well washing the fish when split in plenty of clean water.

The fish should be split to the crux of the tail and laid open evenly without pockets. The sound bone should be removed to about half an inch beyond the end of the sound, to allow the blood in the bone to drain out. If this is done the fish, on going to salt, will have every chance of turning out of salt bulk or pickle a perfect fish.

Salting should be done with care. Much fish is spoiled by irregular salting and by careless packing in bulks. Salting should be completed without delay. Fish should not be laid away to be salted at convenience. Washing out from salt bulk should be done by hand—every fish being washed back and face separately. Eighteen hnds. Cadiz salt should be used in salting Labrador cure. Shore cure should not be bulked higher than three feet and from ten to twelve hnds. Cadiz salt to the hundred quintals.

The length of time for remaining in salt bulk or pickle is a matter for the judgment of the person in charge of the curing, as also in the curing once the fish has been washed out of bulk.

In some cases it is thought advisable that hook and line men should throat their fish immediately they are removed from the hook. This permits the fish to bleed, and not only insure a whiter fish but retards decay of the fish.

The foregoing approved by the Standardization Commission.

Our Heroic Dead.

As a Dominion we join to celebrate the part our Newfoundlanders played in the Great World War. Having read your editorial "Better than the Best," and the poem, "Those who came not back," I thought you would find space for the following from "The Vision Splendid," by John Oxenham:

THE CALL OF THE DEAD.

"Do you hear a deep voice calling—
Calling persistently?—
Like the sound of God's great waters
Calling insistently—
'Tis the voice of our dead, our myriad dead,
Calling to you and me—
By the red death's we have suffered,
By the fiery paths we trod,
By the lives we gave All Life to save
We call you back to God.
'We call you from your striving
With the petty things of life:
We cry aloud for a new world vowed
To a world redeeming strife.
'We call you to cut the cankers
That have grown around your growth:
We call you from byways to High
Ways,
And the pledge of a new God troth.
'We call you to His high service,
You have followed other gods,
Their baneful ways brought the evil days
And loosed the grim red floods.
'On your knees, on your knees seek pardon
For the wrongs that have been done—
For the perverse wills, and the active ills,
And the high things left undone!
'One way there is—one only,
Whereby we may stand sure—
One way by which we may withstand
All foes, and Life's High Ways command,
And make your building sure—
Take God once more as Counsellor,
Work with Him hand in hand,
Build surely in His Grace and Power,
The nobler things that shall endure,
And having done all—Stand."
Of each fallen hero it is true—"He being dead yet speaketh!" —"N."

THE MEMORIAL SERVICE, SUNDAY, THE 4th INST.

In the course of another day our ears will catch the tramp of many feet as the various processions move on their way to Bannerman Park to participate in the Memorial Services of this year. It will be an impressive affair—full of dignity, sympathy and respect for the gallant dead; touching in the simplicity of the service and truly appreciative in its treatment of the sacrifices the day commemorates.

The Navy will be represented by a firing party; the Royal Naval Reserve and Royal Newfoundland Regiment is asked to attend with the war veterans (with or without uniform); the City Brigades and the Boy Scouts are also asked to be present, and the Nurses, V.A.D.'s, and the other gallant women workers in the Great War are likewise invited to attend; no formal invitation has been issued other than the official programme which was a request in itself.

In view of the fact that some of the city schools have closed for the summer vacation, it is felt that perhaps they may not be able to parade in a body, as they did last year, and in this connection would the parents of those children who have not been instructed by their teachers to assemble after the Church services and march to the park, kindly bring the little ones along with them, so that they may be cared for?

For the attention of all ranks, it is hoped that they will wear all military decorations (full dress), as the parade is a ceremonial one.

As a final appeal, may we hope that the returned men will attend in large numbers, and thereby pay tribute to their gallant comrades who so often stood by them in those dark moments in the North Sea, in those thrilling moments in the attack at dawn or fought the monarchs in the woods in Northern Scotland. By a general spirit of co-operation the Memorial Services on to-morrow morning will be what the Committee intends they should be—a sincere tribute to our heroic dead who have symbolized the passage.

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

LEO C. MURPHY, Captain,
Secretary Memorial Day Committee,
July 2nd, 1920.

NOTES OF TRAVEL:

And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

L. C. MORRIS,
CHAPTER XXV,
AT BOSTON.

The Police strike had just been settled when we reached Boston; but on every side we heard of the trouble, and of the mistake the police had made. There did not appear to be much sympathy with the policemen in their action, and the watch word of the moment was law and Order. This settlement was strongly and practically expressed in the election of Governor Coolidge; and his return to office had a wholesome effect upon the public thought of the city. At the same time there was an undercurrent of regret on behalf of the older members of the Police Force, and they had the sympathy of those who knew the situation. It seems that these men went on strike much against their will. They did not want to strike, but they were over-ruled by the younger members of their company.

The result of the strike was, that the entire police force of the city forfeited their position, and the older men forfeited their pensions. Some of these had put in twenty, and twenty-five, and thirty years service, and all their career was marked by efficiency and honor. They had devoted the prime of their lives to the service of the city; and in their position had earned the confidence of the people. They must have been good men. What a pity therefore, that after all their servitude they should have been so victimized as to lose the claim of such long and faithful service. We understand that some of these men pleaded hard to be re-instated; but in vain their plea; they had gone against the advice of their friends, and betrayed their trust as sworn custodians of the public peace; and much as some people would have wished to see them restored, the common feeling on behalf of law and order was so strong, that no leniency could be shown, and every man who went out, was left out. They all suffered alike; the men who wanted to strike, and the men who did not want to strike—the innocent, with the guilty. Such, somehow, seems the way of life.

The policemen having left their post of duty, the city was, of course, without protection, and for awhile there was some minor disturbances. But the situation was soon met, and instead of the regular burly policemen with their brass buttoned blue suits, there appeared the youthful state-guards in Khaki. To the number of five hundred, these latter men were commissioned, and for fully three months they patrolled the city. The change was marked. The regular police were slow, and cautious of step; and were looked upon as a sort of institutional; but the state-guards presented quite a militant front, and their agility stood out in bold contrast to their blue-coated predecessors. As a rule, policemen move slowly while on regular duty, because their work is as much to observe and watch, as to parade; hence their apparent inactivity. But in the case of the state-guards it seemed all reversed, and instead of the stationary officer, there was the alert, gunsman. In all the city duties, in which the guards served, they won the esteem of the people; nor were they long in adapting themselves to the situation. At every point they appeared to advantage, and their most regrettable feature of their service was, that they bore arms. The policeman's baton is bad enough to see in this age, but the guns of the state-guards were more so. But then these things must be; for boast as we may of our civilization, or hope as we will of our christianity, there is still a lot of the old Adam left; and because of this, the state must ever be prepared to assume the defensive.

We saw the state-guards to much advantage during our rambles of three months in and about Boston; and we joined with the average citizen in the admiration of their work. But it was at the street crossings, and the great thoroughfares, that we mostly admired them. At such places as these the throngs of people are very numerous, and the line of wheeled vehicles intensify the congestion. This put the guards on their mettle, and really showed what they were made of, and it must have proved a heavy tax upon them. But to their credit be it said, they measured up to the standard; and amid the swaying crowds, and busy throngs, they directed the traffic to the entire satisfaction of the great populace of the city. The men's street crossings, did not, we think bear arms. They were so busy with their whistles, and so occupied with the crowds, that arms would seem an encumbrance, and in their way. But whatever they had, or whatever they bore, they did their duty well, and in some things taught a lesson or two, to the regular policemen; and the city of Boston is to be congratulated upon the excellent service which the state-guards rendered; and the state is to be equally congratulated upon having had such trained men ready to aid, when emergency demanded.
