In answer to Mr. Murton, the Secretary stated that when Mr. Black signed his agreement he mentioned that there was a possibility of his wishing to leave, and the Secretary then told him that he had never known a case in which the Board had refused to allow a teacher to leave if he had an opportunity of bettering his position.

Dr. Keating, as the seconder of the motion refusing Mr. Black's resignation, said that as Mr. Black was given to understand that he would be allowed to resign, and as there was no personal feeling on the part of the Board against Mr. Black, but only a desire to maintain a principle, he (the speaker) would give notice of a he (the speaker) would give notice of a motion to rescind the resolution on the subject passed at the last meeting. During all the others, excepting the fifth, the visitors were put out in one, two, three order by our boys. It will be seen by the score that Anglin and the two above-mentioned were the only ones fortunate enough to reach the home plate in safety during the entire game. We must not omit to mention some fine running catches made by the visitors, one in particular being beautifully taken in the one hand style by Mc-Cammon on the right field. The game throughout was composed of a series of bruises and wounds, and showed great pluck on the part of the players on both sides to stick at it as well as they did, but Billy's stitch was too much for him, and he had to retire to centra field, and Johnny Colson took his place, the slow pitching of whom seemed to be a source of annoyance to Charley Maddook rather than a pleasure, but had a telling effect on their opponents' striking. We might mention in justice to the visitors that their slow pitching after the 6th innings also caused our boys some difficulty until they began to see into the for his decisions, which on the whole were the deanster bringing in auphiles.

The robbery is ascertained to have taken place between 12 and 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The porter and a night clerk left the building yesterday morning about 6.30, at which time the building was all closed. It was then left in charge of the housekeeper, who now thinks that all the doors were properly fastened. Ganarhaxa.—On Friday morning, just before daylight, a fire broke out on the premises of. Mr. Thomas Ewing, Lot 5, 3rd concession of West Garafrara. His large frame stables, containing twelve tons of hay, harness, and a number of small implements, was burned to the gro und. Had it not been for the efforts of a few willing neighbors, and a plentiful supply of water, the barn and other buildings would have suffered a similar fate. Mr. Ewing's brother, directly after the fire broke out, observed a strange man running from the fields, but before they could vertake him, he was lost to view. It is supposed that the individual referred to had slept in the hay mow during the night, and probably had thrown a lighted match in the hay unthinkingly after having lit his pipe, thus causing the destruction of the premises. The building was insured in Nichol Insurance Company for $150, and the contents for $200, making $350 in all, which will partially cover the loss.

PHILIP WESTON IN THE DEPTHS OF WOE - AR RIVAL AT ROCKSTONE - A TABLEAUX. Oh, why did they make efforts-to re store the consciousness which had so mercifully departed? Why did they try to terminate the blessed oblivion into which Philip's soul had been cast? restore him was only to bring him to the salisation of a pain, an agony, a woe as poignant and dreadful as mortal heart ever experienced. The kindest thing they could have done him was to leave him could have done him was to leave him alone, and let life pass away in that death like swoon. He would thus have escaped the awful anguish to which he must awake and reached the shore of eternal rest and peace, where sorrow and suffering are no more known.

But it was not so to be. Actuated by feelings of deepest commiseration, they did what the tenderest hearts are prompted to do in like circumstances, and used all the means in their power to restore him to sensibility.

For a long time their efforts were vain. Nature, truer than her instincts than reason, did her best to shield the heart of Philip from the mighty wave of suffering that was surging towards it, by refusing to be influenced by the means adopted for his recovery. But at length unwillingly it yielded, and consciousness began to return.—

Ah, me! the misery, the wild, frantic betterned.

it yielded, and consciousness began to return."

Ah, me! the misery, the wild, frantic despair of Philip when again he became the subject of thought and feeling. Words of ours cannot adequately describe his state. For many hours Jim and others about him trembled for his reason. Jim hinaself was sorrow stricken enough and overwhelmed by the tidings, yet his greater fear for Philip swallowed up his worst distress for the death of Annabel, and in his dread and anxiety for the youth his homest, faithful nature had a heavy trial to bear.

To detail the struggle between grief and madness which the following three weeks witnessed would be to give unnecessary stdness to the reader's heart. It was a period in individual human history such as is seldom paralleled in this world. How it would end was for a time very doubtful—whether insanity, or even death itself, or whether the the strong frame and the streng nature of youth would conquer, and bring Philip through the sary humace, with hide and reason preserved.

Liverpool from the bright, courageous youth who had sailed some months before! His most intimate friends would have passed him in the street enviceonized, finding it impossible to detect in the wan, wasted being before them him whom they had known as Philip Weston.
